Mr. K. C. Neogy : Now, Sir, I have in my hand the Report of the Select Committee, and I naturally expected that if the Select Committee had offered a particular reason as stated by the Honourable the Home Member for omitting for the time being, this particular provision, they would have given us some indication of their attitude in the matter. But this is what the Report says : " We have omitted the references to Indian Princes and Chiefs ". That is all. Now, Sir, my Honourable friend, along with two other Members of the Government, had a minute of dissent appended to that Report. No mention do I find even there as to the intention of Government in regard to this particular provision. What is more,—our amiable friend, Mr. Anklesaria, whom by the way I want to congratulate on his C.I.E....

An Honourable Member : And his pleasure trip to England !

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Even our Honourable friend, Mr. Anklesaria, had appended a minute of dissent. He was not satisfied with this particular omission. This is what he says : " The position in respect of Indian Chiefs and Princes will not tend to advance the object of the Bill ", and so on. Then, later on, he says : " I would, therefore, keep sub-clause.....as it stood originally in the Bill ".

It cannot be said that this was dropped as a result of absent-mindedness or that the reason why it was omitted from this Bill was not inserted in the Report of the Select Committee out of sheer absent-mindedness. Here was Mr. Anklesaria to remind the Government of their duty....

Mr. S. G. Jog (Berar Representative) : Was an amendment given by Mr. Anklesaria ?

Mr. K. C. Neogy : I do not find any trace of any amendment in the discussions.

Sirdar Harbans Singh Brar (East Punjab : Sikh) : He had given notice of it, but he did not move it.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : What is this emergency provision which is sought to be introduced ? The idea is that the provisions of the Indian Press (Emergency Powers) Act, as amended by the Criminal Law Amendment Act, shall include cases in which any writings " tended directly or indirectly to bring into hatred or contempt or to excite disaffection towards the administration established in any State in India ". Now, Sir, " tended directly or indirectly to bring into hatred or contempt ",—what does this mean ? If the facts that have been related this morning by my friend, Mr. B. Das, and by my friend, Mr. Joshi, were printed, as they will be in the official proceedings of this debate, I am very much afraid, even that would come within this description, because the very bare narration of the facts as they exist in the Indian States may have the effect of bringing any administration into hatred or contempt, in spite of anything that anybody might do to prevent such a result. As to whether a particular publication does tend directly or indirectly to bring any administration into hatred or contempt, would depend upon the character of the facts which are disclosed, and not upon any motive or intention on the part of the writer to create any disaffection.

Sir, again, speaking as a result of my experience of the Indian Princes, I say that there are very honourable exceptions among their order,—but can it be said, even by my friend, Mr. Glancy, that there are not States in which things continually go on, for the bare publication of which, however truthful, a publicist may be hauled up on the ground that it would tend directly or indirectly to bring into hatred or contempt, very well-deserved hatred or contempt, the administration of those States,—and penalised for it ?

Sir, my friend, Mr. B. Das, read out an extract from a speech delivered by Lord Irwin at a meeting of the Chamber of Princes in March, 1931. That speech merely summarised a note which Lord Irwin had circulated on the 14th June, 1927, among all the Indian States, in which he laid down certain minimum requirements of good administration which he expected the States to satisfy. Now, Sir, my Honourable friend, the Political Secretary, when he gets up to speak, will perhaps oblige this House by telling us as to what effect that particular note has produced, how many Princes, for instance, have conformed to the requirements as laid down by Lord Irwin himself, and not by any irresponsible newspaper man. On this particular point I find, the Butler Committee, reporting in 1931, said that 30 Princes have established Legislative Councils most of which are at present of a consultative nature only ; 40 have constituted High Courts, and so on. It gives us the numbers of Princes who have taken certain steps in liberalising their administration. But then it added :

" Some of these reforms are still no doubt inchoate or on paper, and some of the States are still backward ; but a sense of responsibility to their people is spreading among the States and growing from year to year."

That was about three years ago. Will my Honourable friend, the Political Secretary, tell us as to what the progress has been in this matter ? Speaking at a meeting of the Chamber of Princes in March, 1931, Lord Irwin had to give a few bits of advice to the Princes. That was the last speech that he delivered at the Chamber of Princes. My Honourable friend, Mr. B. Das, has already quoted a portion from it, but there are some more observations in it which have some bearing on this particular measure.

This is what Lord Irwin said :

" There is no use in disguising from ourselves that the new order of things and the irresistible logic of events are lifting the veil from much that has hitherto been considered of private concern, and more and more factors are tending to bring your affairs into publicity (meaning the Princes). Where there is criticism of any of your administrations, be it based on reasonable grounds or scurrilous and misinformed....."

I want to draw the attention of the House to these words :

" .....be it based on reasonable grounds or scurrilous and misinformed ; the best answer on the part of those who have nothing to hide is the issue of full and regular administration reports from which the public may learn how your Government is carried on."

Lord Irwin did not think of a legislation of this character as the remedy ! Then he went on to observe :

" But let us not forget that, as you acquire a share in the control of common subjects, and as your internal affairs become of increasing interest to public opinion in India, there will come to you more and more responsibility for bringing your administrations to the level demanded of all modern Governments. I acknowledge gratefully that there are many States that have nothing to fear, where within the compass of their resources all that is possible is done for the welfare and progress of their subjects. But there are still others to which this description cannot apply ; where personal extravagance has injured the financial stability on which sound administration must rest, and where too little is spent on the welfare and advancement of the people. Where such conditions exist, they cannot fail to be a danger to the whole body of your Order, and I appeal to Your Highnesses to use all your influence, as the Viceroy must use his, to secure improvement."

I very much expect the Political Secretary to tell us as to what effect this admonition had upon those other Princes to whom his Lordship referred,—how many of them have established Legislative Councils, for instance, which he had advocated, though not in so many words, how many have conceded the most elementary rights of citizenship to their subjects, how many States permit public meetings to be held in their States without any permission.

Now, Sir, my Honourable friend, the Home Member, justified this Bill on grounds of reciprocity. I should like to know in how many States there is an independent press, because I take it, when he meant reciprocity, he meant reciprocity in regard to the different provisions of this Bill. I should like to know from the Political Secretary how many States have got an independent press, which would enable us to judge of the value of the reciprocal protection which we enjoy in regard to press criticisms of British Indian affairs.

Now, my Honourable friend has said : " You cannot expect a dead level of similarity in regard to the forms of administration that prevail throughout this country. " I entirely agree with him there, and I do not think that it is any impediment to our having a Federal Constitution if, for instance, the States have a different system of administration from our own. But that does not mean that, whatever forms of Government may obtain in the States, the people themselves should have absolutely no voice in the affairs of the Governments of their own.

Now, Sir, I do not know what the present policy of the Government of India in this matter is ; perhaps, they think they have no right to dictate to the Princes as to what form of administration they should set up in their States. But may I draw the attention of the Political Secretary to what was stated by Lord Lytton on the occasion of the rendition of Mysore. This is what he said :

" The British Government now undertakes the duty of protecting all Native States in India from external enemies and of preserving internal order by measures necessary for securing the people from misgovernment and for supporting the lawful authority of the Ruler. So also the powers of the British Government to prescribe the forms of administration (Cheers) and to insist that its advice be adopted are the necessary correlatives of the admitted responsibilities of the British Government for the internal peace of the whole Empire and general welfare of the people."

[At this stage, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) vacated the Chair which was then occupied by Sir Abdulla-al-Mámún Suhrawardy, one of the Panel of Chairmen.]

I should like to know whether there has been any departure from this declaration of policy in regard to the Indian States. If the Honourable gentleman says that that was merely an expression of opinion on the part of an individual Viceroy, then I want him to tell us as to what effect has been given to the wishes of the last Viceroy of India who left our shores not very long ago. And may I take it that Lord Irwin's admonition in this matter represents the British policy in regard to the Indian States ? If that be so, my Honourable friend should have no difficulty in satisfying this House that substantial effect has been given to this piece of advice tendered by Lord Irwin, if he wants this House to support this particular measure.

Sir, my Honourable friend, the Home Member, said towards the conclusion of his speech, that Federation could not be built upon a basis of distrust. I entirely agree with him. But my conception of Federation is not a collection of units in a state of armed neutrality either. There must be perfect understanding and goodwill and community of interests among all the units of the Federation. That alone can make for a stable Government, whether of the federal type or of any other type. Now, Sir, my Honourable friend, in seeking to promote a legislation of this character at this particular moment, is only seeking to increase distrust where distrust was vanishing, thanks to the noble part which the Princes played in London in fighting the common battle of our common motherland. For all these reasons, Sir, I cannot give my support to this measure.

Mr. S. G. Jog : Just about an hour ago, a very influential man in the Government Benches made a remark that I was silent since the opening of this Session. I gave him the explanation that the Simla climate was more suited for silence than for any activity. However, I have great pleasure in breaking that silence and expressing my views on the measure that is before the House, which has got a gravity of its own.

I am glad to find that the Honourable the Home Member has realised and has also explained to the House the gravity of this measure. He also explained that he is in no hurry to rush this Bill, but at the same time he has made a motion for the Select Committee. The question is of still greater importance, because it has been associated with the question of Federation. People in India are getting more and more impatient as regards this Federation idea and everybody is anxious that, in whatever form it may be, the new Government should start functioning,—the sooner the better. The more it is delayed, people are getting more and more anxious about the coming Federation. The question of granting protection to the Princes is of great importance as I have just now said. Probably many Members of this House have no idea of the number of States in India and their population. The area covered in the Indian States is 675,267 square miles with a population of seventy millions. The Indian States embrace the widest variety of country and jurisdiction. They vary in size from petty States like Lawa, in Rajputana, with an area of 19 square miles, and the Simla Hill States, which are little more than small holdings, to States like Hyderabad, as large as Italy, with a population of thirteen millions. They include the inhospitable regions of Western Rajputana, Baroda, part of the Garden of India, Mysore, rich in agricultural wealth, and Kashmir, one of the most favoured spots on the face of the globe. This is the area and this is the number of States that will be affected by this legislation. Although the legislation is a very small one, its implications are of grave consequences. This is the first time the House gets an opportunity of discussing the political affairs of Indian States and it is for the first time that the Honourable the Political Secretary has come to the House and is anxiously listening to the debates. Though the measure has been introduced by the Home Department, it is no doubt at the dictation of the Political Department. It is no doubt true that the relations between the States and British India are of an extremely delicate nature. How far the Political Department will be justified in interfering in the internal affairs of the State is a very difficult question. They interfere when they like and, when they do not want to interfere, they give the reason that they are not authorised to interfere with the affairs of the State. I am glad to find that the Political Department is coming more and more into the discussions of this House and I think this itself is an indication of the political progress in the States. The question of the protection of the Princes came prominently before this House in 1922 and this measure has a notoriety of its own. It was introduced by the then Home Member, the Honourable Sir William Vincent. I would like to tell the House with what scant courtesy this measure was treated by the House then. Even breaking the convention of the House, it was thrown out at the first introduction of the measure. It was for the first time that the Viceroy exercised his power of certification. The Bill went before the Council of State. As to what happened there, the Assembly debates give us no guide. One speech was made by the Honourable Sir William Vincent and one speech was made by Munshi Iswar Saran and the motion was negatived by 48 votes to 41. That is the only record of the debate we have got and the whole measure was summarily rejected by the House. Then, the matter was taken up by the Council of State and there the matter was not thoroughly discussed and, without much discussion, it became the law under the certification power of the Viceroy. This is the history of this legislation. Soon after the inauguration of the reforms, the Viceroy had to use his power of certification, and, as such, this measure has got a notoriety of its own. The Honourable the Home Member then made out his case on three grounds. He said that the British Government was under a pledge bound to respect the privileges and dignity of the Princes. There were several attacks made in the press and elsewhere of which he had given instances, but I do not wish to tire out the House by reading all those. The Government then thought that it was their bounden duty to protect the Princes. Whatever may be the effect of that legislation, we have a sort of legislation which has been able to protect them so far and the question before this House now is, whether there is any necessity of amplifying that legislation or introducing a new measure. The Honourable the Home Member, in his Statement of Object and Reasons, has stated :

"Experience in recent years has shown that the ordinary law is not adequate to afford States in India the protection they may reasonably expect against activities which may be carried on in British India."

I presume that by the ordinary law he refers to this measure which has been passed already, for I do not know if there is any other ordinary law.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I meant the whole body of law existing in British India.

Mr. S. G. Jog : May I know if there is any other law which protects the Princes ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : The Honourable Member will understand that this Bill seeks to amend the Indian Penal Code which in certain respects is inadequate for giving that protection which we consider to be reasonable.

Mr. S. G. Jog : I quite see the point. But the ordinary law today is the Indian States Protection Act, of which section 3 runs as follows :

"Whoever edits, prints or publishes or is the author of any newspaper or other document which brings or is intended to bring into hatred or contempt or excites or is intended to excite disaffection towards the Prince or the Chief of the State or the Government and Administration established in such a State shall be punished with imprisonment which may extend to five years, or with fine, or with both."

This is the existing provision which we have got, and what we have got to see is, whether the existing provision is sufficient or not to meet the requirements of the present times. If we find that the present law is quite enough to meet the case, then I, for one, do not see the necessity of the present measure that is before the House. Another constitutional question which has been raised in the House today is whether we are bound to have this legislation so long as the administration of the Native States does not come up to a particular standard. My friend, Mr. Neogy, has already read out some speeches of Lord Irwin and I will read out to the House the speech which Lord Minto made in the year 1909 :

"Our policy with rare exceptions is of non-interference in the internal affairs of the Native States. But in guaranteeing their internal affairs and in undertaking their protection against external aggression, it naturally follows that the Imperial Government has assumed a certain degree of responsibility on the general soundness of their administration and would not consent to incur the reproach of being an indirect instrument of misrule."

I would appeal to the Political Department and to the Home Member before an action is being taken for giving this protection, which may amount to a passport, whether it is not necessary for the Political Department and the Home Government to find out as to what steps have been taken by the Native States themselves to bring their administration in a line with the other approved forms. I have no quarrel with the form of administration, but, at any rate, it must be a good administration. A bad administration can, in no sense of the term, be called any administration. Whatever the form of administration may be, it must be a good government. When the Princes want protection, they have also to discharge certain obligations to their State and to their State people. In this connection I would like to read a passage :

"In the historic Proclamation of Queen Victoria, it was set out that we desire no extension of the present territorial possessions and will permit no aggression on our Dominions and the rights ..... We shall allow no encroachment of others. We shall respect the rights of the Princes as our own and we desire that they, as well as our own subjects, should enjoy that authority and that social advancement which can only be secured by internal peace and good government."

I again earnestly bring to the notice of the Government that the obligations of the Political Department, as well as of the British Government, are to see that good government exists in all these Native States.

The House will find that I have given notice of an amendment that the present Bill should be circulated among the Princes in India as well as their subjects. What I mean to say is this. I have no means of knowing how far the Princes themselves have moved in the matter and have asked the Political Department to move the Government of India machinery to have a legislation of this kind or whether it is the Political Department itself which has moved this motion on its own initiative. I must tell this House that the Princes of the year 1922 and the Princes of the year 1932 are quite different. I am not prepared to say that the administration of all the States is bad. I am glad to find that many States are progressive. In many States they have introduced legislation and reforms. In many States many of the British laws are administered and the government is being carried on on progressive lines. I still think that if the question is referred to the Princes and they are asked whether they would like to have this sort of protection from this House, it will be making a confession of weakness on the part of the Princes if they will approach this Government and this House for a measure of this kind. I still believe that, out of the 600 Princes, I do not think many will come forward and ask for this protective measure. I am glad to find that, since the Round Table Conference, the Princes and their representatives are coming more and more in close contact with the British Government. There is no doubt that the angle of vision has considerably changed, although it may not be up to the expectations of some of us. But I do find that they are progressing in the right direction. It may take some time to come up to our standard, but that cannot be helped. Last time, in 1910, when this measure was to be introduced and when the press was abolished, the members of the Committee saved the difficulty. At that time, when the Committee met, they said they had not sufficient materials from the Princes to say whether they wanted any protection and that they were extremely handicapped for want of this information. Another point I have to make is that in India there are so many States and there are so many different organisations. Many of these associations in the Indian States, for various reasons, find it easy and more convenient to have their grievances ventilated in British India and they will be seriously affected by this measure. Therefore, I move this amendment :

"That the Bill be circulated amongst all the State Subjects' Associations throughout India for the purpose of eliciting opinion thereon."

I want this Bill to be circulated to all States Associations, called Prajamandals, and we should be in a position to know the views of these Associations. After having said so much, I do not want to detain the House any longer. We will have to find out the means whereby we can pave the way for the future Federation. If the Princes demand, as a condition precedent to their joining the Federation, the granting of more powers to them, I think it is our duty to examine the case very critically and very carefully and we must try to do a thing which may not stand in the way of Federation. I find from the reports of the Round Table Conference that almost all the British Indian delegates have come to the conclusion that Federation is the only form of Government that India should have and that it is only the hope of getting a Federation that still keeps all the delegates together. I find from the proceedings of the Federal Structure Committee the following :

"A further examination of the problem has confirmed them in the belief that by no other line of development can the ideal in view be fully realised. For this purpose it is essential that the 'India' of the future should include, along with British India, that 'Indian India' which, if Burma is excluded, embraces nearly half of the area and nearly one-fourth of the population of the country—an area and population, moreover, which are not self-contained and apart geographically or racially, but are part and parcel of the country's fabric ;"

In the British Indian fabric we have to make use of the Indian States. My Honourable friend, Mr. Joshi, has given out that that particular fabric may not for the time be equal to the fabric which we have in our administration. But, in course of time, this coarse fabric may be improved and may be made to fit in with the British Indian administration. We have to know as regards this measure whether the initiative has come from all the Princes or from a few of the Princes or whether the initiative has been taken by the Political Department to fortify themselves in the new Constitution or whether the Home Member has taken the initiative for strengthening the new Constitution. Whatever they may be, I should like to put in a word to the Princes, that all these artificial protections will avail nothing to them. The real protection for them is the progress that they will make in their own States. The contentment of their subjects and the conceding of more and more powers to their subjects would be the real protection for them and, after all, these artificial protections will prove fruitless. Sir, as I have said, I strongly recommend that the measure should be circulated amongst the Princes as well as amongst the Indian States subjects whose views will be available to us and, after getting the views from those bodies and from those Princes, we will be in a better position to see what sort of protection is necessary. After all, even taking the newspapers, some of them might be exploiting the Princes for their own ends. They might be utilising the Princes for some ulterior object. There may be cases like that and, in that case, it may be necessary to have some measure of protection to the Princes. If the House is satisfied that some measure of protection is necessary, the House will willingly do so. But, before we do that, we must have some material to go upon and to give us satisfaction. Sir, I move.

Mr. Chairman (Sir Abdulla-al-Mâmûn Suhrawardy) : Amendment moved :

" That the Bill be circulated amongst all the State Subjects' Associations throughout India for the purpose of eliciting opinion thereon."

Mr. Muhammad Anwar-ul-Azim (Chittagong Division : Muhammadan Rural) : Mr. Chairman, I am extremely grateful to you for this opportunity afforded to me to speak on this important measure. I should, at the very outset, like to reserve to myself my considered opinion whether it is desirable at this stage of the advancement of India that we should have Federation with the Indian Princes. I should first start with the subject matter of this Bill. It seems, Mr. Chairman, that the previous speakers have overlooked altogether the purport of this small Bill of seven clauses which has been brought up. I do not say for one moment that measures of this kind adumbrated here in these clauses are normally necessary and I am certain and I am convinced in my belief that perhaps the Government of India had materials at their disposal to come forward before this Assembly with a measure for the protection of the princely order. It is certainly true that the Indian States, just like the seeds in a cake, are scattered in almost all the centres of this big continent. I think it is only fair that people, living beyond their jurisdiction, should not take upon themselves the liberty of saying how best these Princes should administer their States. After all, as I have said at the very beginning, I should not like to go into that complicated subject of Federation. But it seems to me, personally speaking, that perhaps there is a great force in what the previous speakers said, namely, that you keep a very untidy and careless sort of administration, in between, this big continent, and perhaps the contagion from that side may catch fire here in the British territory also. I think there is a great force in that contention of my Honourable friends. But, so far as I am concerned here today, I have heard from the Honourable the Home Member that the sole purport of this Bill is to amend certain sections of the Indian Penal Code and thereby to empower district officers to prevent jathas entering into the Indian States with a view to creating trouble there. My idea is this. If you continue to start jathas and if you are not going to stop these inroads into the Indian State territories, I am certain, every one will admit that the condition of India will be reduced to that of Russia or, for the matter of that, the condition of the territories beyond the Frontier is sure to be repeated here in this country. Mr. Chairman, the previous speakers have of course taken side issues and have not faced the Bill. They have put this question to the Government of India whether as a responsible organisation in this country it is right for them as a Government to offer this protection to a class of people who, in the words of Mr. Neogy, are in various stages of development. As I said at the beginning, I do not like to go into matters of that description. My idea is this. I think things are only taking shape just now and if these things are over-threshed here on the floor of the Assembly, perhaps our ideals in certain directions may not be realised. That is why I say that I should not like to go deeper into that aspect of the case. In this connection, Mr. Jog has pertinently put one question whether the Government of India, as a responsible organisation, are not free to tell this Assembly that they had this representation from the " Narendra Mandal " which is the organisation of the Princes ; for, I am certain, that unless they had received it, they would not have come forward with this piece of legislation. There is certainly great force also in the view when the Government of India have got authority over these Princes, they, as a suzerain power, should have first tried to make them come up to a certain level of civilisation in matters of up-to-date governance, so to speak. If they could bring their administration even to the level of the District Boards and Municipalities of India and offered some semblance of self-government, perhaps Government would not have found so much criticism over this measure. But I think there is, really speaking, a great force in that contention of my friends. As the Government of India have started to take this parental interest in the affairs of the Indian States, I think, if I had any say in the matter, by way of advice, I would have told the Princely order to so adjust and arrange their houses that there may not be any criticism whatsoever in the way of allowing them to come into the Federation.

Sir, I do not think it is at all necessary for me to reply seriatim to what has fallen from my friends, Messrs. Das, Neogy, Ranga Iyer and Joshi. I am sure, they are entitled to their own opinions, but I think if they had placed themselves in the position of the Government of India and had experience of the last three years as to the events at Alwar, Kashmir and other States, they would not have been so very critical about the actions of Government. If I could give any advice to my friends on my right, I would tell them that they would have utilised their influence and experience much better if they had tried to stop these troubles getting into the Indian States. I am greatly convinced that perhaps the troubles of the last two or three years have been responsible for bringing in this Bill. This is a small protective measure and the maximum punishment prescribed here is six months, and of course the infliction of that punishment is in the hands of Indian magistrates who are all brothers and relations of my friends to my right.

Mr. Neogy, at the beginning of his speech, made one very important point that any statement about the working of the Indian States might bring one within the mischief of this law. But I may humbly tell him that there are safeguards here, and why should he not trust his kinsmen and his friends and relations who are the judiciary in this country ? They are not foreigners ; as a matter of fact, there is so much Indianisation from the Hindukush to Assam that I do not think anybody need be afraid on that score. It is not such a terribly bad measure that it should evoke so much opposition from my friends on my right.

4 P.M.

Mr. Chairman, mention has been made of previous Viceroys' after-dinner talks or talks of that kind at times. Viceroys, of course, make statements on their own responsibility, but here we are only concerned with the facts contained in this piece of legislation. If any Viceroy gave any assurance about the Indian States, he must have given it on his own responsibility ; and, it may be, that, because those desires or instructions of previous Viceroys have not been consummated, that has actuated the present Government of India to bring forward this measure. My esteemed friend, Mr. Joshi, said that this was one other item of protection which Government were introducing for their own advantage. I do not know how far he is right or wrong, but here the Government of India, as a responsible body, have got a duty to discharge and, if they have brought in this piece of legislation, I am sure, they have not brought it too early. With these few words, I support the principle that it be referred to the Select Committee.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : Sir, I do not propose, when I rise to address this Honourable House on this Bill, to survey the whole constitutional position as it faces us today, as I do not think it advisable to follow my Honourable friend, Mr. Neogy, in what I consider a really clever speech, but which may not have been quite relevant in some parts although, on the whole, most interesting. I propose to confine myself entirely to the Bill that is before us.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Why did not the Honourable Member take the same exception to the Honourable the Home Member's speech, because it was he who first referred to the constitutional aspect and went into details with regard to the Federation ?

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : I regret that I have forgotten the Home Member's speech. I will first refer to clause 3 of this Bill which will amend section 121A of the Indian Penal Code. Personally, I really do not see any strong objection to that amendment, specially when one comes to consider section 125 of the Code. Section 125 of the Code gives the same protection to an Asiatic power in alliance or at peace with the Queen. Well, I do not see why an Indian State should not be placed on the same level with an Asiatic State in alliance and peace with the Queen ; and, so far as I can understand this amendment, it goes no further than placing an Indian State in the same position as an Oriental State.....

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Not at all : if I may interrupt the Honourable Member, he will realise that the proposed amendment is not to section 125, but to section 121A, which places the Rulers of States exactly in the same position as His Majesty the King-Emperor.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : No : I do not agree with the Honourable Member. That is not the position. The position is this : that in 121A the words are :

"Whoever—(meaning any British Indian subject)—within or without British India conspires to commit any of the offences punishable under section 121 or to deprive the Queen of the sovereignty of British India or of any part thereof or conspires to overawe by means of criminal force or a show of criminal force the Government of India or any local government" and here is the insertion—"or the administration of any State in India". Therefore, it places an Indian State in the same position as section 125 places an oriental State in alliance or peace with Her Majesty the Queen. That is my reading of the amendment. I may be wrong.....

Mr. K. C. Neogy : You are.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : In view of the assertion of my Honourable friend, Mr. Neogy, I would point out that he does not seem to have read the section which is being amended, when he says that in effect this puts the administration of an Indian State in exactly the same position as His Majesty the King. It is not so. Section 121A says :

"Whoever, within or without British India, conspires to commit any of the offences punishable by section 121—very serious offences against the Crown—or to deprive the Queen of the sovereignty of British India....."

None of that applies to Indian States. The only effect of this amendment of section 121A is to prohibit a conspiracy to overawe by means of criminal force or the show of criminal force the administration of a State in India.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : My point was that the whole of section 121A was a paraphrase of a provision of the Treason Felony Act, which was an ancillary provision to the provision regarding treason.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : My point is that this amendment affects only a portion of section 121A, and not the whole of it.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : But that portion, again, is part of the Treason Felony Act.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : That is my humble opinion, whether I be right or whether I be wrong. But when we come to clause 4 of the Bill, I must state that I begin to get rather doubtful. We cannot compare British India with an Indian State. We are proud to be able to say that in British India we do not hear of some of the scandals that we do hear of in Indian States.

[At this stage, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) resumed the Chair.]

I believe the Foreign Secretary cannot contradict me nor can the Home Member. It is a fact and, on the floor of this House, we have got to face facts. It is no use hiding them and closing our eyes to the facts. Things do occur in Indian States which cannot possibly occur in British India ; and when you come to amend the Press Act and to put an Indian State exactly on the same level as British India, you may be going a little bit further than you intended to go. I will try and explain what I mean. You are inserting in the Indian Press Act the following words :

"to bring into hatred or contempt or to excite disaffection towards the Administration established in a State in India."

We know what the Courts have held about the words "which would excite disaffection". Now, there are cases in the Administration of Indian States, the facts of which, if related correctly on the strongest of evidence, would be held by Courts to excite disaffection. Is it intended that, by this Act, no one in the press in India can expose the ill-treatment of an Indian British citizen in an Indian State or even of the citizen of an Indian State ? If you relate facts, I contend you are bound to excite disaffection. You cannot help it. Your safeguards do not go far enough. The Explanations to that section do not go far enough. Take Explanation 2 :

"Comments expressing disapprobation of the measures of the Government with a view to obtain their alteration by lawful means, without exciting or attempting to excite hatred, contempt or disaffection, shall not be demeed to be of the nature described in clause (a) of this sub-section."

In British India this is a protection. Would it be a protection in connection with an Indian State ? I contend with pride that few acts of the Government of India in India, if related correctly, could be held to excite disaffection ; but I am not so sure that acts of some of the Indian States, correctly related in an Indian paper in India, would not create disaffection against those States. Therefore, your Explanation 2 does not protect the press with regard to Indian States, while it might protect them with regard to British India. I think I have made my point fairly clear. I do not want to make it clearer. I could, but I may be guilty of an offence.

[Sir Cowasji Jehangir.]

Mr. President, I would again draw the attention of the Government Benches that it is paying no compliment to themselves when they place British India and Indian States on the same level, and they cannot amend an Act which applies to British India, so as to make it applicable to Indian States. The circumstances are so different. There are Indian States and Indian States.....

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : The Honourable Member must remember that exactly the same provisions applied from 1910 to 1922 both to British India and in Indian States.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : You may have made mistakes in the past, but as we have been told, much water has flowed under the bridge since then, and much water will flow under the bridge before we get Federation. By that time circumstances may change considerably,—they have already changed to such an extent that you cannot amend these Acts in this way to suit the circumstances prevailing in British India and in Indian States. Sir, I am a strong advocate of Federation, and I have openly, both on the floor of this House and in other places, candidly and willingly acknowledged the assistance given to the Indian delegation at the Round Table Conference by the Indian Princes and by their representatives, and I would be the last to go out of my way, whether it be on the floor of this House or elsewhere, to expose what must be admitted to be maladministration in some of these Indian States. No one knows better than the Honourable Members, sitting on the opposite Benches, of this maladministration, and it is no use,—I repeat,—closing their own eyes or asking us to close ours. That is not going to help Federation. Therefore, Sir, I am distinctly doubtful about the amendments proposed in clause 3. I believe that it may be doing,—I don't say it will be,—I am not sure,—I want further opinions, I want further light thrown on this question,—I say it may be doing an injustice to the press, and it may be doing a greater injustice to the Indian States to prevent exposure. After all, it is criticism, it is exposure, that opens the eyes of both Indian States and Government. If there was no criticism, if there was no exposure, there would be no remedies to this maladministration either on the part of the Indian Princes themselves or of the Indian Government, and, therefore, to protect the Indian Princes to the extent that it might be illegal to publish facts and figures which may not be creditable to the Indian States, would be going too far. Sir, under those circumstances, my Party have decided to support the amendment for circulation. We would like to have more light thrown on this Bill in the interests of all parties, and we earnestly desire that there should be no hush hush policy adopted with regard to Indian States. Sir, I am not going further into these clauses, because, if this Bill goes for circulation, we shall have a considerable amount of material before us to be able to judge how far these amendments go. I might, in passing, say that clause 5 of the Bill seems to be a protection given to Indian States which they may legitimately claim. I think there would be a justifiable grievance if, in British India, the Government allow organizations or associations to combine together to march into an Indian State with the deliberate intention of defying law and order in that State. I was surprised to know that that was impossible today, but evidently it is possible if Government find it necessary to bring in legislation to prevent it. I was rather surprised.....

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : We had to have an Ordinance.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : Under those circumstances, I would be quite prepared to accept an Ordinance. I think any Indian State would have a legitimate grievance against British India, and, therefore, in passing, I say that I do think that clause 5 is justifiable. But, on the whole, we have decided,—I would repeat,—to support the amendment for circulation, and to save time, I may appeal to Government to accept that amendment. We are all out to save time, and, if Government are half inclined now, well, it will be just as well to make up their mind immediately and close the debate, for if Government agree to accept the amendment for circulation, this side of the House will be prepared to allow the debate to be closed (Several Honourable Members from the Nationalist Benches : "Yes, yes."), and we can go on with the next business.

I have nothing further to say, Mr. President. I think Government will be well advised to accept this amendment to allow the Bill to go for circulation.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I am afraid, Sir, I cannot on the spur of the moment give an answer to my Honourable friend opposite, because, though we have not the slightest objection,—in fact we are anxious that this Bill should be thoroughly discussed and considered,—we are equally anxious that there should be nothing to prevent our taking it up effectively at the beginning of January. Now, Sir, I am not sure which the amendment is that my friend is supporting. I think it is an amendment for the circulation of the Bill by the beginning of January, but even that would mean that, at the beginning of the January Session, we should have to resume this debate on the question of setting up a Select Committee. That might take several days. Then the Select Committee will have to sit,—a matter of some difficulty during that Session, and by that time we should be in the budget discussions. Therefore, I am afraid I must ask my Honourable friend to allow the Government to consider his suggestion and not give an answer till tomorrow.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : There is no desperate hurry in getting this Bill through as long as the Honourable Member has the assurance that this House is prepared to consider the Bill carefully. What is the desperate hurry ? He has done without this Bill so long and he can go on without this Bill for a few months more.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : It is not a question of doing without the Bill for a few months. If we fail to pass it in the January Session, we should not be able to proceed with it until this time next year, and that Government are not prepared to do.

Captain Sher Muhammad Khan Gakhar (Nominated Non-Official) : As a resident of a neighbouring district of the important State of Kashmir which was recently the victim of a calamitous misfortune, and as an eye-witness to the dire and dreadful consequences of the recent disturbances within and outside the territories of the Kashmir State, I rise to make a few observations on the Bill under discussion.

Sir, there cannot be the slightest shred of doubt that the present Bill will provoke considerable irresponsible criticism from a certain dubious section of public opinion in India. Indeed, it has already generated in this House a great deal of unnecessary heat and temper. My Honourable friend, Mr. Neogy, in his brilliant speech, spent a lot of time in drawing a picture of the Government Benches. The thing in which I do not agree with him is his description that the Army Secretary will be sitting in the Simla A. D. C. My Honourable friend, Mr. Joshi, said that he was loyal and, at the same time, he said that the British Government were an unwanted guest.....

Mr. N. M. Joshi : I never said that. What I said was that the British Government should not remain here as unwanted guest with the support of the autocratic and reactionary forces. They can stay here with our support.

Captain Sher Muhammadan Khan Gakhar : I am sorry I have misunderstood the Honourable Member. As I said, it has already generated in this House a great deal of unnecessary heat and temper. With due deference to my Honourable friends, I would contend that all these criticisms are entirely unwarranted and unjustified.

Sir, there appears to be a large element of truth in the well known statement that human memory is very short, at least some of my Honourable friends would appear to substantiate the truth of the same. But, as His Excellency the Viceroy rightly pointed out in his recent address, the Indian States are entitled to claim that effective measures should be adopted by the British Indian Government against the serious and sinister agitation which is now being carried on in British India by interested persons. Sir, we cannot forget the important fact that the Indian States have as a body stood by British India in all times of stress and storm ; we cannot ignore the long chapter in the annals of our country which deals with the struggles of the Indian States on behalf of British India. We cannot legitimately brush aside the contributions which the Indian States have made to the cultural and political development of India as a whole. Indeed, those who participated in the deliberations of the first Round Table Conference will remember that the constitutional reforms envisaged in the White Paper proposals would not have been within the range of practical politics if the Princes as a body had not decided to throw in their lot with us. I would, therefore, make bold to say that responsibility at the Centre, for which British India is clamouring today, would have been a chimera, an unachieved and unachievable ideal, an empty and fruitless dream, but for the ready response and co-operation on the part of the Indian States. Is it not then our bounden duty to render every assistance to the States which are today being menaced and threatened by malicious agitation outside their territories where the arms of their law cannot reach the offenders ? Is it not then our duty to reciprocate the feeling which the Princes have always evinced with regard to the welfare and progress of British India ? If we seriously think what is the object of this Bill, as the Honourable the Home Member has stated in his speech, its object is to prevent unconstitutional agitation or mischievous propaganda against the States. I have no doubt whatever that all reasonable and fair-minded Members of this House will agree with me that we would be failing in our duty if we did not appreciate the difficulties which the Indian States were experiencing today, and did not come to their rescue by adopting such effective measures, as have been incorporated in the present Bill, against the serious agitation in British India which has become a menace to the well ordered progress and development of the States. In this connection, I trust my friends on the opposite Benches will not fail to remember that we do not live in hermetically sealed compartments, and that disorder and disturbances within the territories of the Indian States must necessarily transcend the frontiers and affect the masses in British India.

Sir, I have no high pretensions ; I am only a mere soldier. I would, therefore, leave the first four sections of the present Bill to the brilliant legal luminaries on the opposite Benches and confine my observations to the last three sections. Sir, those amongst us who have had the sad experience of the last disturbances in Kashmir and other parts of India, those amongst us who have seen the misery and hardships which these disturbances had brought in their train, those amongst us who have seen men, women and children without any food and shelter, suffering from terrible hunger and privation, will undoubtedly lend their fullest support to these provisions of the Bill. I remember the day when about 2,000 persons crossed the Jhelum river and poured into the town of Jhelum from the Mirpur district of Kashmir, suffering from starvation and other hardships which the disturbances in Kashmir had inflicted on them.

Now, Sir, I am sure all these unfortunate disturbances, all this misery and suffering, all these hardships and privations could have been easily averted if a measure of the character of the present Bill had been placed on the Statute-book.

For these reasons I support the motion that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Order, order. Honourable Members have been at some difficulty as to the exact scope of clause 3 of the Bill, and the Chair undertook to give a ruling, if possible, before the question was actually put to the vote. The Chair has now carefully considered the point and it has to give the following ruling.

The point of order that has been raised is, whether clause 3 of the Bill is ultra vires of this Legislature. This doubt arose by reason of the facts that it was supposed that the new offence committed by a subject of an Indian State within the territory of an Indian State was sought to be made punishable under the Indian Penal Code. If this is the effect of clause 3, it would certainly be ultra vires of this Legislature, for this Legislature has no power to punish offences committed by non-British Indian subjects outside the territory of British India. To decide whether clause 3 is ultra vires or intra vires from this point of view, reference will have to be made to various sections of the Indian Penal Code. Clause 3 of the Bill seeks to create a new offence, under the Indian Penal Code, the new offence being conspiracy against the administration of any State in India. Beyond creating this new offence, the clause does not widen either the personal or the territorial jurisdiction as defined in the Indian Penal Code. For determining the personal and territorial jurisdiction coming within the jurisdiction of British Indian Courts, reference must be made to sections 2 and 4 of the Indian Penal Code. Section 2 deals with the intra-territorial operation of the Code. It makes the Code universal in its application to all parts of British India. In other words, an offence committed within British India by any person of whatever nationality, rank, caste or creed, becomes punishable under the Code. This territorial jurisdiction is covered by section 65 of the Government of India Act. Section 4 of the Indian Penal Code provides for extra-territorial offences, that is to say, offences committed outside British India. By virtue of this section 4, an offence committed outside British India by any Indian subject of His Majesty is punishable under the Code. The section also makes punishable an offence committed by any other British subject within the territories of any Indian Prince or Chief in India and offences committed by any servant of the Queen, whether a British subject or not, within the territories of any Indian Prince or Chief in India. All these provisions are intra vires of this Legislature by virtue of the provisions of section 65 of the Government of India Act. Since clause 3 of the Bill confines its operation, both personal and territorial, to the above cases provided by the Indian Penal Code, and since those cases are within the competence and jurisdiction of this Legislature, the Chair holds that clause 3 is not ultra vires of this Legislature.

The Chair would, however, draw the attention of the House to one other aspect of the matter. In the course of a reply to the questions asked by the Honourable Member, Mr. Mody, and the Chair, the Honourable the Home Member said that it was the intention of the Bill to punish the committing of the new offence only if it was committed within British India. The whole scheme of the Indian Penal Code makes all offences under the Code punishable if they are committed by Indian subjects of His Majesty in any part of the world and not necessarily within the territory of British India alone. Whether the restriction of the new punishment for this new offence will create an anomaly or confusion or any legal difficulty, it is for the legal advisers of the Government of India to decide. It is for the Select Committee and for the Government to examine this position further and to see how this can be rectified. So far as the intra vires character of clause 3 is concerned, the Chair has held that this clause is in order.

Sirdar Harbans Singh Brar : This Bill has been brought before the House for the purpose of protecting the Indian States from disaffection and otherwise. This function of protecting the Indian States is primarily the concern of the paramount power and this Legislature as such has no connection with Indian States and their affairs. We, as a British Indian Legislature, can neither ask questions nor pass laws about them. So, the paramount power has in this matter asked us to share the responsibility of paramountcy by protecting the States from aggression from outside, but it has not asked us to share the responsibility in the other matter of protecting the subjects of Indian States also from oppression in those States. If the paramountcy wants British Indian elected representatives to share the burden of responsibility for the protection of Indian States from the Press and otherwise in British India, it must also ask us to share in the other matter. They cannot ask us to share only in the evil and not in the good. We must also be asked to share what little good we can do for the subjects residing in the Indian States. But, no. They say that the Indian States view is that all thine is mine and all mine is, of course, mine and that we will stick to that principle. They say : "You have nothing to do with the internal affairs of the States. The reponsibility of protecting the subjects living in those States must rest with paramountcy for ever." I do not consider that that is a very charitable and generous treatment towards us. We will be blamed by all sides in British India as well as in Indian States that, as the representatives of the subjects and not of the Government, it is our duty to look towards the benefit of the subjects all round and not only to join with the Government when the question of protecting the Indian States is concerned. The Governments of International States have been criticised in other parts of the world and an asylum has been provided to political offenders and agitators in different parts of the world and, if they claim to enjoy international sovereignty and thus be on a par in the international world as international entities, why do they not allow British India that right of asylum which the United States provided for the Irish agitator, which England provided for the Italian agitator and all the European countries have provided for the White Russian against the Red Russian at the present day. Have not the Jews carried on an intensive agitation against the Hitler Government in different parts of the world and, smilarly, why not allow the subjects of Indian States to carry on in the press their legitimate grievances. As has been pointed out by Sir Cowasji Jehangir and others, even the mention of the ordinary facts of administration of these States will be covered as an offence by the provisions of this Bill. I do not think the question of the States coming into the Federation justifies this course of action. It cannot be denied that grievances exist in most of the States. There are a good many States which can be honourable exceptions and which have got very good Governments prevailing in their territories, but that cannot be said of all the States. The Home Member has taken up the line that the paramount power could be memorialised by the subjects of the States to redress their grievances through the good offices of the Political Department or otherwise. Am I not entitled to ask the Political Secretary or the Honourable the Home Member in how many cases these memorials were taken notice of and action of a redressing nature taken by the Political Department on memorials alone ? Even the mother does not give milk to the child without weeping, nor does the father part with his power during his life time even to his own blood, his sons. So, mere memorials sent by post cannot be said to have any effect on the administration, I mean, the Paramount Power, to take action for the redress of the grievances of the Indian States. I, therefore, think that the provisions of this Bill are rather too wide. They do not allow even the legitimate mention of the ordinary facts of administration in the Indian States as has been mentioned by the previous speakers. Before I proceed further, because I may take a good bit of time, I would like to make a suggestion to the Honourable the Home Member.....

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : How long will the Honourable Member take ?

Sirdar Harbans Singh Brar : I want to make a suggestion about the consideration of Sir Cowasji Jehangir's suggestion. I want you, Sir, to permit me to speak for a minute only and then I will sit down. Before I proceed regarding other matters, I would like to make an appeal regarding Sir Cowasji Jehangir's suggestion to the Home

[Sirdar Harbans Singh Brar.]

Member. If the Home Member finds it difficult to accept the motion for circulation, he may agree to circulate it either by executive order or otherwise. I think it will be far better from the point of view of the Legislature if the Select Committee examines witnesses as we have done in other Select Committees either on behalf of the Chamber of Princes or other bodies and the Select Committee can have the views of the public put before them.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad (Patna and Chota Nagpur cum Orissa : Muhammadan) : We cannot accept the principle of the Bill and, therefore, cannot agree to its reference to the Select Committee.

Sirdar Harbans Singh Brar : Mr. President, I am not personally against the consideration of the Bill. I certainly want it to be examined. There are good many necessities for proceeding with it, but, in that case, I will take time. I leave it to you, Sir, to allow me to proceed with my speech tomorrow or to continue it today.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Government want time to consider the suggestion of Sir Cowasji Jehangir and they said that they would give an answer to it tomorrow. If the Honourable Member, in the light of the answer given by Government, is not still satisfied, he can continue his speech tomorrow.

The request has been made to the Chair that, in view of the state of public business, the Chair should direct that the House should sit tomorrow also. The Chair has accordingly directed that the House will sit tomorrow, but that it shall adjourn tomorrow at quarter past one and will not meet in the afternoon.

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Saturday, the 9th September, 1933.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Saturday, 9th September, 1933.

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber at Eleven of the Clock, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) in the Chair.

MOTION FOR ADJOURNMENT.

EXPULSION ORDER PASSED BY THE COMMISSIONER ON SOME RESIDENTS OF THE PHULRA STATE.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Just about five minutes back, I received a notice of a motion for adjournment from the Honourable Member, Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi, on a matter of urgent public importance, namely, the Government not accepting short notice of a question on a matter of urgent public importance which relates to the expulsion order passed by the Commissioner on some residents of Phulra State within seven days from the date of the order. Is the Political Secretary in a position to state whether Phulra State is an Indian State ?

Mr. B. J. Glancy (Political Secretary) : As far as I understand, it is not an Indian State. It is situated partly in the district of Hazara on the North-West Frontier Province and, partly, I understand, in tribal territory. I am not fully conversant with the situation myself and I, therefore, asked for the usual period of notice in order to enable me to study the position.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Under these circumstances, I would permit the Honourable Member, if he still desires, to make this motion on Monday, and I will waive the objection on the question of urgency. It will then be decided whether it is in order or not when the Honourable Member makes a motion on Monday.

Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi (Tirhut Division : Muhammadan) : All right, Sir.

THE INDIAN STATES (PROTECTION) BILL.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Has the Honourable the Home Member got to make any statement with regard to the suggestion made yesterday by Sir Cowasji Jehangir ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig (Home Member) : At the end of our proceedings yesterday, my Honourable friend, the Leader of the Independent Party, speaking on behalf of that side of the House, said that he was prepared to accept the amendment for circulation of this Bill by 7th January, 1934, and he appealed to the Government, if they were also prepared to accept it, to announce their decision at once, so that we could save time and close the debate. Well, Sir, the object of Government, as I have already explained, is that the House should take a final decision on this Bill not later than the end of the next Budget Session. After going into the details, we have thought that that result can be achieved by the method proposed by my Honourable friend, the Leader of the Independent Party. We have no objection to criticism and to the fullest examination of the provisions of this Bill. (Hear, hear.) We propose that the motion for Select Committee should be taken up after receipt of the opinions at the very beginning of the January Session and I hope we might expect perhaps that Honourable Members who have already made speeches will not at any rate repeat the same remarks on that occasion. (Laughter.) I should be very glad to set an example myself. The Government are, therefore, prepared to accept the amendment for circulation. (Applause.)

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Chair takes it that, in view of what the Honourable the Home Member has said on behalf of Government, it is the desire of the House generally to close the debate now.

Several Honourable Members : Yes.

Sirdar Harbans Singh Brar (East Punjab : Sikh) : I quite agree that the debate should be closed, but my remarks yesterday had been misunderstood in some quarters and I just want to speak for a minute or two to clear up that misunderstanding. Yesterday I was developing my argument regarding the paramountcy and that the function of protecting a State from external aggression as well as from internal commotion was resting with the Paramount Power and that the Paramount Power was asking us to share the responsibility regarding the protection of the Indian States, in one manner and not in the other. I had not yet completed my arguments, but my remarks have been misunderstood in some quarters as would appear from the reports appearing in this morning's newspapers in Delhi and other places. It has been understood that I was opposing the Princes and their cause. I was simply attacking the Government regarding their desire to ask us to share with them the responsibility of the functions of paramountcy in one direction and not in the other. I meant no reflection on any Indian State, nor on any Prince, nor on their Governments, and much less against my esteemed friend, His Highness the present Chancellor of the Chamber of Princes. I do not desire in any way to lengthen the debate, but I simply wanted to make these remarks to clear the misunderstanding and, I hope, the Press would clear it in the way that I have explained just now. Yesterday I had not developed my argument and, unless I had done so, the Press had no right to conclude that I meant any reflection on anybody and that I was against the Princes.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai (Sind : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I want to say one word.....

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : What is meant by saying one word ? Does the Honourable Member want to make a personal explanation ?

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I want to say a word with regard to the statement made by the Home Member about circulation.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Chair understood that it was the general desire of the House to close the debate, Government having accepted the motion for circulation.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh (Muzaffarpur cum Champaran : Non-Muhammadan) : Cannot an Honourable Member oppose the motion for circulation ?

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Is it the desire of the House that the debate should be continued ?

Several Honourable Members : No, no.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I am not advancing anything as regards the debate. I am only making a suggestion with regard to the motion for circulation ; if you permit, I will make that suggestion.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is that the question be now put.

(Mr. President, by gathering the voices, declared that the "Ayes" had it, when a division was asked for by Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh.)

(When the division bell was ringing.)

Mr. B. R. Puri (West Punjab : Non-Muhammadan) : On a point of order, may I make a submission ?

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : There cannot be a point of order when the division is on.

The motion was adopted.

RAILWAYS.

RAILWAY BOARD.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Sir, I beg to move :

" That an excess grant of Rs. 34,327 be voted by the Assembly to regularise the railway expenditure chargeable to Revenue actually incurred in excess of the voted grant in the year 1930-31 in respect of ' Railway Board '."

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad (United Provinces : Southern Divisions : Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I just want to ask one question, and that is, whether the money we are going to vote now will be added to the deficits of the current year.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I think my Honourable friend must have noticed that we are dealing with the expenditure chargeable to revenue actually incurred in excess of the voted grant in the year 1930-31, and the expenditure has already been incurred and included in the accounts for that year. This is merely regularising what has been spent in excess.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

" That an excess grant of Rs. 34,327 be voted by the Assembly to regularise the railway expenditure chargeable to Revenue actually incurred in excess of the voted grant in the year 1930-31 in respect of ' Railway Board '."

The motion was adopted.

WORKING EXPENSES—ADMINISTRATION.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Sir, I beg to move :

" That an excess grant of Rs. 18,70,248 be voted by the Assembly to regularise the railway expenditure chargeable to Revenue actually incurred in excess of the voted grant in the year 1930-31 in respect of ' Working Expenses—Administration '."

The motion was adopted.

APPROPRIATION FROM DEPRECIATION FUND.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Sir, I beg to move :

" That an excess grant of Rs. 2,39,58,961 be voted by the Assembly to regularise the railway expenditure actually incurred in excess of the voted grant in the year 1930-31 in respect of ' Appropriation from Depreciation Fund '."

The motion was adopted.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Sir, I beg to move :

" That an excess grant of Rs. 14,960 be voted by the Assembly to regularise the railway expenditure chargeable to Revenue actually incurred in excess of the voted grant in the year 1930-31 in respect of ' Miscellaneous '."

The motion was adopted.

APPROPRIATION FROM THE RESERVE FUND.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Sir, I beg to move :

" That an excess grant of Rs. 6,36,160 be voted by the Assembly to regularise the railway expenditure actually incurred in excess of the voted grant in the year 1930-31 in respect of ' Appropriation from the Reserve Fund '."

The motion was adopted.

STRATEGIC LINES—WORKING EXPENSES AND MISCELLANEOUS.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Sir, I beg to move :

" That an excess grant of Rs. 1,67,449 be voted by the Assembly to regularise the railway expenditure chargeable to Revenue actually incurred in excess of the voted grant in the year 1930-31 in respect of ' Strategic Lines—Working Expenses and Miscellaneous '."

The motion was adopted.

DEMAND FOR SUPPLEMENTARY GRANT.

NEW CAPITAL WORKS AT DELHI.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : Sir, I beg to move :

" That a supplementary sum not exceeding Rs. 9,81,000 be granted to the Governor General in Council to defray the charges which will come in course of payment during the year ending the 31st day of March, 1934, in respect of ' New Capital Works at Delhi '."

Mr. Jagan Nath Aggarwal (Jullundur Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, this expenditure of Rs. 9,81,000 appears to be part of a very large project the details of which have not been supplied to the House. We got some information the other day in reply to a question that an expenditure of something like a crore of rupees was to be incurred in building quarters for clerks, for the Members of the Legislature and for various other purposes, and that the New Capital project, which had been closed owing to stringency in the year 1930-31, was now going to be revived. Although this expenditure of Rs. 9,81,000 appears to be a fleabite in connection with the expenditure on New Delhi, the point underlying it is a very important one. The point underlying is, is this chapter of capital expenditure in New Delhi going to be re-opened, and for how long ? What is in contemplation ? I ask this more for the sake of seeking information at this stage than of saying anything of my own, because we should like to know more definitely as to the programme to which we are going to be committed by this expenditure of Rs. 9,81,000. It appears that the idea is to provide accommodation for a large body of clerks. If it is part of a scheme that a number of offices are going to be retained in New Delhi and their migration to Simla is going to be stopped, then perhaps many of us may welcome that step. If it is to be in connection with the Federal Legislature, that would be something which we shall have to do, and we might as well be told what is in contemplation, whether it is in view of the fact that the Federal Legislature will be holding its sittings in New Delhi during the summer period or whether it is only to provide accommodation for them in the winter and that they will be holding their Sessions in Simla, or what. In fact, this grant of Rs. 9,81,000 opens up a very large chapter, the details of which have not been furnished to us. I would submit that more information on this subject be vouchsafed to us so that we might know what we are going to be committed to by sanctioning this expenditure.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai (Sind : Non-Muhammadan) : With respect to this item of capital expenditure on new construction at New Delhi, I might say I was on the Standing Finance Committee when this question came up. It was decided by a majority, but it was not decided without a contest. The first point raised by me was this. That this project had been kept in abeyance, and what were the reasons now-a-days, when our budgets are precarious, for reviving it ? I may say for the information of the House that two reasons were put forward. One was that at the time the money market was such that they could borrow money on easy terms, and the second was that labour could be got at cheaper rates. We know that this is the question on the new Constitution. We do not know whether the Federal Legislature is going to sit all the time at Delhi, or what is going to happen when the Federal Assembly is brought into existence. It is premature to say that all this is being done with the intention of providing in advance of the Federal Assembly. Therefore, that point does not support the case of the Government. The next question is the easiness with which money can be got now. Why should it be said that the money conditions will not be better still later ? Therefore, unless there is some ulterior motive in it, which I cannot understand, nothing substantial in the shape of reasons has been put forward before the Standing Finance Committee or in this House and I do not think the House would be justified in sanctioning this project being taken at this time. The second reason given was easy labour conditions. We do not know whether labour expenses are going to increase or going to decrease. These are hypothetical contentions and will not hold good unless there are other reasons which necessitate this expenditure at this time. I may say plainly that they want to build 57 bungalows for officers. Those officers are living now in Delhi and they have their bungalows which they have got on rent. They can wait until the finances prosper.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce (Member for Industries and Labour) : May I interrupt the Honourable Member ? I understood him to say 57 bungalows. The number is 37.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I am sorry. It was only a mistake. 37 is correct. With regard to quarters for subordinates, several quarters are proposed to be constructed. But they can also wait, because some of them are accommodated in Government quarters and some in rented houses. These two questions were carried by a majority and I saw that there was no hope of my carrying my point. I thought that it would be much better not to oppose the third item without prejudice but on principle I would say that the whole scheme should wait and should not be taken up in a hurry and without any cogent reasons which have not been disclosed.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad (Patna and Chota Nagpur cum Orissa : Muhammadan) : Sir, I can not be a party to such waste of public money. I would suggest to the Government to wait and not be in a hurry to spend so much amount in these days of depression. It is true that now-a-days they can get money at a cheaper rate, but more important items are before us. You will remember, Sir, that on several occasions when proposals for expenditure were laid before Government, they said that money was not available. Take Agriculture or Education. If you want to improve these matters, you will find the Finance Member saying that money is not available. Money is not available for agricultural improvement, for education, for the development of industries and for improving communications. There are two alternatives. Either money is available or it is not. If money is not available, what is the use of spending it on these buildings, when there are more important items pending before them for want of funds. If money is available, then I would suggest that it should be spent on more deserving objects. Whatever money is spent by Government, you will find that it is spent on bricks and on quarters. If the question of education comes, you will find that so large a proportion is spent on buildings that very little is left for professors and actual training. If the question of agriculture comes, again the major portion is spent on quarters for officers. I want money to be spent on real improvements and not on bricks. On this principle I oppose the whole idea and would ask Government to wait and see.

We do not know when the Federal Assembly will come into existence, whether it will come after two or three or four or ten years or whether it will come at all. There are so many ifs in the White Paper that you can say nothing with certainty about it. If there is no certainty, what is the use of spending so much money ? Now, Sir, if you turn to page 51 of the proceedings of the Standing Finance Committee, you find that no mention of the recurring expenditure is made. When so many buildings are going to be constructed, they will certainly require a large amount of money for recurring expenditure, for maintaining those buildings. I find it is put down as nil. Turning to part (b), I thought I would get there some information as to what amount Government consider they will get back on account of rent, but I find only a two line remark to this effect " Recoveries of rent from the officers, clerks and legislators in respect of the residential accommodation which will be allotted to them ". This is a very plain thing. Every one knows that when you spend something on buildings, you will get something in the shape of rent. I want to know from the Finance Member what amount they expect to get from these bungalows. There is absolutely no mention of that in the proceedings of the Standing Finance Committee. Unless we know something about what the return will be on these buildings, we cannot sanction this amount.

Further, I find that the type of quarters provided for the legislators, the representatives of the people, is of an inferior one to that of officers. It is very evident from this fact that they have provided Rs. 10 lakhs and 50 thousands for 37 bungalows and only five lakhs for 33 legislators' quarters. The numbers 37 and 33 are almost the same, but the sum to be spent is less than half.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : May I ask the Honourable Member two questions ? One is—what about the families of officers ? The other is—would legislators be willing to pay the same rent for their quarters that the officers pay for theirs ?

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : I think legislators will not object to pay ten per cent. which is realised from the officers. We are prepared to pay you Rs. 60.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir (Bombay City : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : May I ask the Honourable Member whether he meant to insinuate that non-official legislators should have no families ?

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : I find officers getting Rs. 200 or Rs. 300 get much bigger and better quarters and only ten per cent. is taken from their pay. In this way, I think, Government are losing money.

You will also find that the opinion of the Committee was this :

" The Committee approved the proposal, but with regard to officers' and clerks' quarters, Mr. Jadhav, Diwan Lalchand Navalrai and Sirdar Harbans Singh Brar dissented on the ground that sufficient information had not been provided regarding the possibility of accommodating Government servants in private bungalows."

So I say that full information has not been provided to us. With these words, I suggest that Government should wait.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I rise to intervene at this stage in order to deal with the main point which has been raised—the justification of this expenditure. I am very glad to have an opportunity of defending this particular proposal and I must confess, to a very great astonishment, that Honourable Members opposite should have found any reason for objecting to it at all. I would defend it on two grounds, both general grounds and particular grounds. As regards the general ground, I think Honourable Members opposite have not been backward in urging on the Government that they should take some steps to relieve the present economic depression and one of the courses which has been at all times urged on the Government is that they should undertake public expenditure on public works which would give employment. Now, Sir, one of the great difficulties in carrying out proposals of that kind is to find opportunities for expenditure which are justifiable and remunerative. Honourable Members know that we have been studying the matter in connection with the Railways and that if we can find remunerative occupations for capital we think that the time has come when the restrictions on capital expenditure which have had to be imposed during the last three years should be relaxed. We have also been studying opportunities in other directions, such as undertaking a programme of building construction of this kind where the buildings are urgently needed and where some commercial return can be obtained from them. This is a very excellent example of the sort of public works that can be undertaken and which can have some small effect on relieving the present economic depression. I am told that the state of unemployment in Delhi is particularly bad. There is a large population which has accumulated from the days when big contracts were being given out. That population cannot be hastily dispersed over the rest of India and our information is that the distress among the population of that kind in Delhi has been particularly bad. Now, Sir, this is only a small move, but at least it is doing something to relieve that very great distress. On that general ground I think that a programme of this kind deserves support from all quarters of this House.

12 NOON.

I should like to tell the House something of the history of this project. When I came out to India as Finance Member I was met by a very urgent demand for further expenditure on housing accommodation in Delhi. It was found that the original programme was by no means sufficient and that there was a definite urgent need for expenditure on housing accommodation amounting to well over a crore, even after cutting down the departmental demands to the very minimum that we could do. Unfortunately, at that time I foresaw that Government's credit was going to be very severely taxed and that in the next few years it was absolutely necessary to put a check on capital expenditure of all kinds. We had to get the situation in hand. We have now succeeded in getting the situation in hand and the House will remember the very moderate demands for capital expenditure which I brought forward in the Budget of this year. We have, in fact, got our credit on to a very high level and we have practically reduced the demands which we make on the public for new loans to loans which are required for redeeming existing loans. Now, Sir, having reached that position, on broad financial grounds we feel that we are in a position to undertake capital expenditure again and we have been looking about for projects, as I have already said, with the idea that we can by starting schemes of this kind produce some small effect to relieve unemployment. That being so, it obviously became a reasonable thing for us to reconsider re-opening this Delhi capital project and make good the arrears of housing accommodation which we had put aside for over three years. Then on top of that came an additional reason. We had to contemplate the need for considerable additional accommodation at Delhi when the new Constitution came into being. Now, I do not agree with my Honourable friend, Mr. Maswood Ahmad, in saying that that is such a distant prospect that we need not take it into account at all. We must take these things into account, and we must undertake the construction of buildings particularly at a time when we can take advantage of bottom prices—bottom prices as regards the cost of building and bottom prices as regards the cost of raising the capital which is necessary. I am sure that the inhabitants of New Delhi in the future, say, three or four years hence, would have very good cause to criticise us most severely if we had not taken this opportunity of making a change in our policy. Then, Sir, turning to other particular grounds—and I have already dealt with this point incidentally—there is definitely a most urgent need for housing many Government officials, particularly among the clerks. I am told that the overcrowding at present has reached a very undesirable stage and provided that money is available, we certainly ought to meet a need of that kind. My Honourable friend, Mr. Maswood Ahmad, has raised the question as to whether we shall get any return from this expenditure at all. It is very difficult to make exact calculations because it is impossible to estimate exactly how many of these houses will be occupied for the full year. A large proportion of the Delhi houses is, of course, occupied for the full year, but it is difficult to say as regards a particular house whether it will be occupied for six months or 12 months. But on the basis of the rents now charged and the building costs which we now estimate, if a house is occupied for a full year we can look for a return of up to 5 per cent. If the house is occupied only for half the year, probably we can only get 2½ per cent. return. The annual return, therefore, will be something between 2½ per cent. and 5 per cent., and as we now can raise money at something like 4 per cent. or under, I think the House will recognise that a loss involved in construction of these houses is not a great one. Moreover, it is bound to be a diminishing loss because, as things advance, one is bound to see greater use, say, for 12 months in the year, of houses in Delhi.

Honourable Members have raised the question of the Simla exodus. Well, Sir, we are not ready to make any definite statement about that, but I can tell my Honourable friends that Government are seriously reconsidering that position in the light of two factors. The first is that the shortage of water, which was one of the chief reasons for not enlarging the summer population in Delhi, will shortly be overcome. The other reason is that we must look forward to conditions which will prevail in the future. When there is a Federal Assembly, I think Honourable Members will recognise that anything in the nature of a Simla Session will probably be impossible.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : What will be recurring expenditure every year on these cases ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I do not think I need be interrupted in order to answer my Honourable friend's question, for I do not think it is particularly relevant to the main line of my argument. I was making the point, Sir, that if we look forward to the future, we must foresee an inevitable change in the nature of the all-year-round population in New Delhi. Therefore, my point is that this expenditure is likely to become increasingly remunerative. Sir, on these grounds I hope that the House will pass this small supplementary estimate which, as I said at the outset, I feel really represents a policy which deserves support from every quarter of the House.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad (United Provinces : Southern Divisions : Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I welcome the announcement of the Finance Member that he has succeeded in establishing the credit of the country and that he is now in a position to embark on the scheme of new capital expenditure. Those of us who have studied the world conditions in economic matters will realise that it has not been a joke to maintain the credit of a country during the last three years and it will not be a joke to maintain the credit of the country during the next few years. Every country is really in a very difficult position and, comparing our country with other countries, I am glad to say—and I congratulate the Honourable the Finance Member —that we are much better off than many other countries in the world. But before he embarks on the scheme of capital expenditure, which I would welcome very much, I would like to ask whether his scheme of retrenchment which began about two years ago will now end. A large number of persons have been thrown out of employment. These persons were drawing very low salaries and they were in a miserable condition. Before we embark on any scheme of capital expenditure to relieve unemployment, we should have some kind of official statement from the Honourable the Finance Member that the future retrenchment in the various branches of the Government departments will now cease. It may be possible to have more economic administration in some branches, but economic administration is very different from the retrenchment of the hands in order to save money. Therefore, I would like the Finance Member to reconsider this particular question and give a statement on the floor of the House that all the retrenchment schemes, which we had been having during the last two years, will now come to an end.

Mr. B. Das (Orissa Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, coming as I do from one of the most distressed areas, the province of Orissa, that is so much flood-stricken now, I was very much touched to hear the speech of the Honourable the Finance Member. For the first time the Finance Member feels for economic distress of the people or those on the unemployed list. He said that he had increased the credit of the Government of India though some of us, on this side of the House, do not believe it in view of the fact that the Government of India and the Punjab Government floated their recent loans at heavy discount. Yet he says that the tide has turned and the Government now turn their mind to revive the new capital project of Delhi in order to give better houses for their clerks and officers and also to improve the conditions of the distressed people in Delhi who have gathered there for a large number of years to eke out their livelihood through the building projects of the Government. But, if I could believe the pledges which the Honourable the Finance Member gave to this House and if Government are in a position of solvency, then their first duty would have been to reduce taxation. But they have not done so. Instead of doing that, they incur fresh capital expenditure and, according to the estimate of the Honourable the Finance Member himself, the project will not bring more than four per cent. to the exchequer while the Honourable Member will borrow at a higher rate of interest. When the economic distress set in, the Government of India were very solicitous about their officials and revised the house rents that were paid by the front-benchers and by the back-benchers of the Government of India. What happened ? Just on the eve of the economic depression, every official on the front-benches has been paying 50 per cent. less than what he used to pay before. I know even the Members of the Legislature, at whom I do not know why the Honourable Sir Frank Noyce had a joke a few minutes ago, even they are paying less than what they used to pay three or four years ago. We do not know why the Government are so solicitous for those who can pay and yet they bring out deficit budgets every year and increase the burden of taxation on the people. I cannot subscribe to any new capital expenditure until the pledge which the Honourable the Finance Member gave to this House is redeemed. Before any capital expenditure is incurred, I want there should be reduction of taxation. The income-tax level which was reduced to Rs. 1,000 should be raised to the level of Rs. 2,000 and the surcharges on income-tax should be taken off. As long as that is not done, we, on this side of the House, cannot support any extravagant expenditure on the part of the Government of India.

Two years ago, when the Gandhi-Irwin Pact was under discussion and when Mahatma Gandhi visited Delhi, he went to the residence of my Honourable friend, Sir George Schuster, and also to the residence of Mr. (now His Excellency Sir Herbert) Emerson and, after visiting them, Mahatma Gandhi said that in the Swaraj Government he would not like to tolerate officials having residences extending to three acres of land with extensive gardens, while poor people were still living in congested areas like Delhi, Bombay and other places. But I believe that the officials, who are now adorning the front and back benches, know that what the Congress was demanding or what Mahatma Gandhi was demanding will not materialise. There will be no Government in the nationalist fashion or in the Congress fashion. Now the Government of India can enter again on their policy of extravagance in house building for their officers while it is well known even to the Honourable the Finance Member that in New Delhi many private buildings have been built. There are several fat contractors who got themselves enriched through the New Delhi project. I do not want to repeat, seven or eight years afterwards, the scandals of the New Delhi project and the mismanagement of the huge funds and how a capital project of four crores ultimately became sixteen crores. I do not want to allude to the stone-yard scandal and other scandals, I do not want to refer to Commissions, non-official and official that sat for days. Yet there are today in Delhi many contractors who can build private houses. I ask the Government, why do they not subsidise private contractors to build private houses ? There are still many private houses empty in the winter season in New Delhi. Apart from that, I understood that the Government of India practised retrenchment and reduced their staff of clerks and officers. Where is this sudden demand in the number of quarters for the officers and clerks, for whom, I am glad to see, that the Honourable the Finance Member is so solicitous ? Where did this sudden demand arise ? If there is a demand, that demand can be postponed until the Honourable the Finance Member introduces his Budget next Session, until he reduces taxation, until he shows that there is real solvency in the country and also of the Government.

I am alarmed to learn that my Honourable friend is already dreaming of having new capital expenditure in the railways. He knows it that the railways have not paid him his share of six crores of rupees for the last two years. Let the railways pay first six crores to the General Revenue with all the arrears and then the Honourable the Finance Member can accord sanction to the Financial Commissioner, Mr. Rau, to incur further capital expenditure on railways. Of course I have seen a pamphlet (Report of the Statutory Railway Authority Committee) circulated showing that the future Legislature, whether it is the present Legislature or the Federal Legislature, will not be asked to scrutinise the expenditure on railways. In future, the Legislature will only be asked to meet the deficit on railways. I hope my Honourable friend, the Finance Member, has read that document and, knowing the extreme deficit condition of the railways, he still foreshadows that there will be further capital expenditure on railways. I look with alarm and the country would look with alarm at the suggestions which the Honourable the Finance Member has put forward. I will be the first man to congratulate him if he will show in his budget speech on the 28th February next that Government have turned the tide and that Government have brought out a surplus Budget and that Government have reduced these emergency taxes for which the Honourable the Finance Member took power in September, 1931, on the fair promises which he gave then. He did not even acknowledge on a subsequent occasion that he gave any promises to the House and to the country at that time. Until then, I do hope, this House will not accede to any idea of capital expenditure or to any increase in the deficit of the Government either in the General Budget or in the Railway Budget.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav (Bombay Central Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, the present demand is only for Rs. 9,81,000. But as my Honourable friend, Mr. Aggarwal, has said, this opens a very great problem on which a larger amount of nearly 50 lakhs will be spent. Sir, the present demand is for housing some of the clerks and officers, and when the Standing Finance Committee asked for more information, the reply was that the information required was not available. I now find that the information has been denied even to this House. We have seen, Sir, that each bungalow for officers costs Rs. 31,000 and the return, that is got from them, even if they are occupied for all the 12 months, is hardly 4 per cent. The Honourable the Finance Member said that it was 4 per cent., but I find that, as only 10 per cent. is taken from the officers, the calculated interest will not amount to even 4 per cent. Information on this point was asked in the Standing Finance Committee, but it was not forthcoming ; and, inspite of our objections and protests that the consideration of this demand should be postponed till the second meeting of the Finance Committee, the whole thing was hurried on. I do not think there is any justification for this. The housing in New Delhi may be insufficient, but at the same time I may point out that private owners have been investing their money and erecting houses suitable for the officers and the staff. Information was asked about the number of private houses that were available for accommodating officers. That information also was not available at the time the Finance Committee met, and it has not been made available even now. In such circumstances, it will not be proper for this House to give its consent to this heavy expenditure which does not stop at Rs. 9,81,000, but will be multiplied in the long run many times over. The town of New Delhi is increasing and the number of private houses that are being built is also on the increase. Government do not want to take any notice of this fact and do not take into consideration the number of private houses that will be available specially for the officers and the clerks, and they want to rush this House into sanctioning this scheme which will entail on the finances of Government a very large amount in future. Sir, I hope this House will reject this demand.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt (Burdwan Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, there is a saying that he who builds a New Delhi digs his own grave, and this saying is based upon history. We have read of the seven cities of Delhi wherein lie the graves of the founders of those cities. Sir, when the capital was transferred from Calcutta, it was a great Viceroy, who had imagination, who said that Delhi was a city of forgotten kings and dynasties and that the Capital ought not to be removed from Calcutta to Delhi. With Calcutta the history of the rise of the British power is associated and I could not understand how many patriotic Englishmen could agree to such an outrageous proposal of severance from past associations and sacred memories of their great work in this land.

Sir, at the beginning we were given to understand that about 12 crores would be needed for building the new Capital at Delhi. Immediately land grabbers came in and around Delhi, but the Government outdid them. They built New Delhi on the ruins of Old Delhi. Those who had occasion to drive to the Kutb Minar in those days from the old city of Delhi might have noticed that the area consisted of one or two hamlets with a little arable land here and there and that it was full of jungles and graveyards. It may be said that that land has now been rendered into a paradise. I do not know whether it is a paradise or not, but we know that we bled the Indian tax-payer to build the New Capital while there was already a Capital with all necessary paraphernalia in Calcutta. Whatever might have been the motive behind the transfer of Capital, I submit that to spend such huge sums upon building a new city in a country where old and ancient cities with sacred memories behind them abound is a thing which no Government should have undertaken. Sir, from 12 crores gradually several more were being added year after year and we thought we had nearly come to the end, but we see that there is to be no end of capital expenditure upon this New Delhi. One piece of advice that I shall give to the Honourable Member in charge of this motion is that he should advise the Government of which he forms a part to go back to Calcutta. (Laughter.) Sir, I see the Government Members are laughing. Of course Delhi is a very safe haven for them for there is little public life and little criticism of their actions. But I tell you, Sir, and tell them through you that a time will come when Delhi like Calcutta will have a forceful public opinion and probably they will have to shift themselves to some desert area near by or to Sind. But Calcutta enjoyed the benefit of being the Capital City of the country only for a century or so, and, to deprive her of that position, was not at all proper. I would not have grudged any money to the Government, but my point is that if, at this time, as is said, money is cheap owing to the low rate of interest, I would advise them to try and relieve the distress of the agriculturists with this money. Why not remit some revenue so that the landholders may remit the rent of their tenants? These are things which we have always pressed upon Government and I think it will be better if, instead of spending nine lakhs on the building of a few houses for clerks and for the legislatures, they were left to find out their own accommodation in New Delhi where many houses are available as also in Old Delhi where I think there is plenty of accommodation.

Sir, if you remember the days when the Capital was at Calcutta, neither the clerks nor high officers had quarters built for them there: but they could easily find accommodation for themselves in that City of Palaces. What was the necessity then of removing the Capital to Delhi? To say that these clerks and officers have to be provided with accommodation is rather amazing, as they form an infinitesimally small proportion of the people for whom nobody cares to provide accommodation. They have either to build their own houses or to hire houses for themselves. Then, why this solicitude for a class of people who live at the expense of the tax-payers and provide them with accommodation at the cost of the tax-payer? I am opposed to any such grant on principle, and, as I have pointed out in this House, the initial mistake was the transfer of the Capital from Calcutta to Delhi. Again, to say at first that only 12 crores would be required and, then, by leaps and bounds, to add several more crores, is wrong: I submit we must be told when this sort of expenditure will come to an end. But I think it will not come to an end so long as the poor Indian tax-payers can be robbed of their hard-earned money. If the Capital at Delhi could continue from the year 1912 till now, for nearly a quarter of a century, without this accommodation, I cannot understand why suddenly, in this year of grace, 1933, there should be a necessity for expenditure of this amount. We must be given to know how these clerks and officers accommodated themselves previously, and what was their difficulty. There are lots of bungalows in the Civil Lines and there are lots of houses in the old City of Delhi and, if a simple bus service is instituted.....

An Honourable Member: Those houses are unfit for habitation.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt: But the predecessors of the present Executive Council Members and others lived in the houses in the Civil Lines and all of them were accommodated there. It was only a few years ago that these houses in New Delhi were built for them. I do not think they were inconvenienced in any way. At least there was one Honourable Member who can bear me out—I mean the Honourable the Commerce Member, who was at that time also in the Government of India, and he will bear me out that the Executive Councillors did not find themselves in any difficulty whatsoever by living in those bungalows.....

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore (Member for Commerce and Railways): I was not an Executive Councillor in those days, and, therefore, I cannot speak from personal experience.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt: At least you have knowledge of those days and you were living in a house there. However, whatever that may be, I have laid down the principle of my objection to this; and unless I am convinced that this New Delhi has been built for the interests of the people or of the Empire, I for one cannot subscribe to any further capital outlay, and I would like, if there are purchasers for all these buildings in New Delhi, to have all of them sold up and the Capital transferred once again to Calcutta.

Mr. Muhammad Muazzam Sahib Bahadur (North Madras: Muhammadan): Sir, whether the Government of India were right or whether they were wrong in shifting the Capital from Calcutta to Delhi, the step has once for all been taken and now, having taken that step, they stand committed to provide facilities in that part of Delhi known as New Delhi, which was practically waste land when the Government shifted their headquarters from Calcutta to that City. Having come there, I ask, is it not the duty of the Government of India to provide these officials and to provide us, who come from distant places, with quarters, with housing accommodation? I wish my Honourable friend, Mr. Amar Nath Dutt, had been an officer of the Government of India: then I think he would have pressed the case for housing accommodation as a pressing necessity. I, therefore, say that the main question for consideration is whether this is really a pressing necessity; and whether it is justified in the circumstances which the Honourable the Finance Member characterised as being the most opportune conditions in which such a scheme like this could be taken up. If the statement of the Honourable the Finance Member cannot be controverted on the point that the present is the best season as it were at which money could be raised, and when it is borne in mind that owing to cheap labour and cheap material at the present day there will be a saving of as much as 25 per cent. if this scheme is taken up at once, and that, if it is taken up three or four years hence, we shall be losing that 25 per cent. which we are saving now, then I think we are perfectly justified in spending this amount and in charging it to capital expenditure. No doubt, three years ago, it was decided that whatever expenditure might be incurred in constructing buildings in New Delhi ought not to be charged to the head of capital but to revenue. That step was taken at that time probably as the Government were not quite sure of their own financial position; but as I find that the Honourable the Finance Member has assured us that the position, as it now exists, is far better and they can control the financial position at the present moment, I think the step which is now sought to be taken is a justifiable one. Something has been said as to the special necessity which has arisen on account of the Federation which is to come into being. Quite apart from that aspect of it, I think that, so far as the present extension of house accommodation for officers and clerks of the Government of India and for Members of the Legislature is concerned, the House will be doing the right thing in voting for the grant.

Sirdar Harbans Singh Brar (East Punjab: Sikh): Mr. President, I had opposed this grant in the Standing Finance Committee on the ground that enough material was not placed before us regarding the availability of private accommodation for officers. I had not at that time considered the other points which touch this particular item. There is no doubt that the information supplied to the Standing Finance Committee was insufficient and misleading to some extent. In the item, say, for Officers' Bungalows which are 37 in number, Rs. 10 lakhs and 50,000 are provided for. No account has been taken of the valuation of the site which is to be used for building these bungalows, and, therefore, taking the average sale price of each of these sites at Rs. 10,000, it comes to Rs. 3 lakhs 70 thousand, thus making a total of about 14 lakhs 20 thousand for 37 bungalows. No figures have been given regarding the return which we will get on this capital expenditure nor on the capital expenditure for other buildings. There is some difficulty for the taxpayer to know what the return is exactly going to be, but the other considerations cannot be ignored altogether. If the Government have decided, as a matter of policy, to provide bungalows for the officers, they cannot provide for some officers and leave the 37 officers without any housing accommodation. In New Delhi, we have provided accommodation for almost all officers who are stationed there, and to leave 37 officers alone without any accommodation out of so many thousands of officers is rather unfair to the members of the services. You cannot discriminate between officers, and you must treat them alike.

There is another very important factor which must be taken into consideration, which was stressed by the Honourable the Finance Member, and that is, that unemployment is very much on the increase. There are so many engineers remaining unemployed with foreign training, there are so many youngmen remaining unemployed, so many M.Sc.'s and B.Sc.'s remaining unemployed, because recruitment to the P. W. D. and other departments has been stopped, and I think it is high time that we must provide these youngmen with some occupation to maintain themselves.....

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Bara Khamba Road is full of buildings.

Sirdar Harbans Singh Brar : My friend must have seen as much of it as I have seen. Those are the bungalows which cannot be suitable for ordinary officers of Government. Those are meant for Princes, and, in the earlier days, when accommodation was not available, these Princes rented these bungalows at fabulous sums ranging from Rs. 10,000 to Rs. 50,000 for a week's occupation, and people, under the impression that they will be able to get the same fabulous sums, built more of these palatial buildings, and an officer, with a small family, will not be able to maintain such a big house, nor will he be able to pay such a heavy rent for those bungalows. Even if that fact is not taken into consideration, during our Delhi sojourn we seldom find any of these houses lying vacant. Almost every one of them is occupied. There are no figures placed before us by Honourable Members to show how many houses are actually available at reasonable rates for the occupation of officers during their stay in Delhi.....

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : If the Government want the figures, I can supply them.

Sirdar Harbans Singh Brar : As far as the clerks' quarters are concerned, the rules provide that they shall be given a certain allowance in lieu of accommodation.' These house allowances are prohibitive and Government have to pay, I think, a couple of lakhs or more to the clerks as house allowance, which is again a burden on the taxpayer.

Sir, this building programme of Government will provide occupation for labour, skilled as well as unskilled, and it will also provide accommodation for the officers of Government. If the Federation materialises, as we all hope it will in the not distant future, housing accommodation, office accommodation and officers' bungalows, legislators' quarters, etc., will be needed. It will then naturally take sometime to build all those things, with the result that it will put the legislators as well as the officers of Government into much inconvenience if this building programme is not undertaken immediately. I, therefore, think that this expenditure will do a lot of good to the country as a whole, because it will be a capital programme which will afford enough employment for labour. These are my grounds for supporting this motion, though I had in the Standing Finance Committee opposed it believing that there was sufficient housing accommodation.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : You changed so soon ?

Sirdar Harbans Singh Brar : I have a right to reconsider and review my opinions in the light of subsequent events and in the light of subsequent information which has come to my knowledge. There are no private works going on now in New Delhi to keep the unemployed busy, and it is the business of the Government,—Government have done so in all countries—during the period of depression that they should start public works for the employment of labour. In addition to this, I think we should also press on the Government that they should start capital railway works and other public works. Why should we allow our youngmen to remain idle in their homes and to engage themselves in revolutionary activities ? If they are not given some work to do, the result will be that they will join the revolutionary ranks and take to manufacture of bombs and other things.....

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Then you should spend more money in Bengal.

Sirdar Harbans Singh Brar : When Honourable Members come to Delhi and when they do not get sufficient orthodox quarters, they complain, and when the Government ask for more money for building quarters, they stand and oppose the demand. Only a short time ago, we were discussing the housing problem, and almost all the Members of the House Committee were stressing the need for more orthodox quarters, and here Government are now going to give us 33 more quarters. What we stress on the Government is that as much economy as possible should be practised in this building programme, and, as I understand, the rates for building materials are very low just at present, and the time is certainly very opportune, because the tenders are about 30 per cent. below the estimated price. We cannot find a better time to start this programme. In the Standing Finance Committee the Chief Engineer to the Government of India was pleased to tell us that he had, in anticipation, invited tenders which showed that work could be done 30 per cent. below the estimated cost. That is to the benefit of the taxpayer, and I think that Government have chosen a very opportune time to start this building programme now. With these few words, I support the supplementary grant.

Mr. S. C. Mitra (Chittagong and Rajshahi Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : The Honourable the Finance Member has already made two speeches on this motion, but still I think he has not convinced the House by giving accurate information relating to these demands. The three of the most important members of the Standing Finance Committee, Messrs. Jadhav, Lalchand Navalrai and Harbans Singh, dissented on the ground that sufficient information had not been given to the Committee, and that they had to record a dissentient note.....

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I cannot accept my Honourable friend's description of those three members as the most important members on the Standing Finance Committee as correct. All members of the Standing Finance Committee are equally important.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : I never said that they were more important than other members, but I take it that all members are important, but, to justify my statement, I might say that they are all elected Members, and if you will look at the list of members, you will see that more than half the number of members are nominated, and Government can now secure half the number of members by election to any of these Standing Committees. My purpose was to emphasise the fact that the dissentient note was from the elected Members, and not from nominated Members.

However, the anxiety of the Honourable the Finance Member was for the unemployed of this country. I congratulate him for the great anxiety he has shown for the unemployed of this country, because he has been unlike his other colleagues who, however, when the question of unemployment is raised in this House, try to dissociate themselves by pointing out that this question of unemployment is a matter for the Provincial Councils.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I must protest against the assertion of my Honourable friend. As Member in charge of the Industries and Labour Department, I can naturally closely associate myself with the proposals now under consideration before the House.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : May I ask my Honourable friend whether he did or did not, in reply to a question in this House, say that unemployment was primarily a matter for the Local Governments ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : That is perfectly true. We can only take steps in regard to it in our centrally administered areas and this project is one of the steps which we ourselves are prepared to take.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : May I hope that in the next year's Budget the Finance Member will provide for large estimates on this scale for the other big cities also, Rs. 50 lakhs each, as he has done for Delhi, and I shall be very glad to welcome such a Budget.

What the Standing Finance Committee wanted to know was whether this project could stand on its own legs from economic standpoint. Where is the difficulty in giving these figures ? They know that, at least for the buildings that are meant for the clerks and officers, they can get rent at the rate of 10 per cent. They know the class of clerks or the officials that will occupy these houses, and they can easily calculate the rent that will be realisable from them. They certainly owe it to this House to tell us that Government will cut their coat according to their cloth. In the past the Government had been reckless in their construction programmes not to care for the public interest. It is not Government's case that these officers and clerks should be given some concession and provided with houses at lower rates of rent. That is not the Government's case. From past experience we know that the expenditure that has been incurred for providing houses for officers and clerks involved a great loss. When they are now coming with plans for new building construction, is it not their duty to calculate what is the amount of rent realisable from the officials and clerks ? And it is not difficult to find out the exact results. From that we can see whether the project is economically a sound one. When this matter was raised in the Standing Finance Committee, the Finance Member was not in a position to tell them whether the expenditure of so many lakhs and lakhs of rupees was economically sound or proper. We are not opposed to the policy of building quarters for the officers or for the clerks or for the Members of the Legislature, particularly when the rate of interest is low. We accept the policy, but this House must get correct figures when a question had been asked in the Standing Finance Committee, and now the Finance Member, without supplying us with relevant figures, wants us to vote a blank cheque. It is difficult for us to vote on a question like this ; otherwise, on principle, we are agreeable to this motion.

Mr. R. S. Sarma (Nominated Non-Official) : I should not have been a party to any conspiracy to wasting the time of the House, but I am desired by my Party to inform.....

Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury (Bengal : Landholders) : On a point of order, Sir. How can the Honourable Member say we are wasting the time of this House ?

Mr. R. S. Sarma : If any conspiracy really existed, it applies, otherwise.....

Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury : Not conspiracy, but you said wasting the time of the House.

Mr. R. S. Sarma : Yes. I have been asked by my Party to say that we are in favour of this demand for grant, if for no other reason than this, that it will provide employment in these hard days for a large number of labourers and it is most essential that those people who had even been asked to quit Delhi should now find re-employment under this new scheme of building construction. At the same time, our Party wants to impress upon the Finance Member two things, namely, one, that the grant should not exceed what is now provided and, secondly, that as far as possible all these contracts are given to Indians.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh (Muzaffarpur cum Champaran : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I find some difficulty in understanding the position of some members of the Standing Finance Committee and also of the Government in this matter. One particular member of the Standing Finance Committee, who has spoken in support of the grant today, dissented from the proposal in the Standing Finance Committee's meeting held on the 19th August. That is what the proceedings of the Standing Finance Committee of that date contain :

> "The Committee approved the proposal, but with regard to officers' and clerks' quarters, Mr. Jadhav, Dewan Lalchand Navalrai and Sardar Harbans Singh Brar dissented on the ground that sufficient information had not been provided regarding the possibility of accommodating Government servants in private bungalows. Dewan Lalchand Navalrai also considered that the matter was not sufficiently urgent to justify expenditure at the present time. With regard to the Legislators' quarters, Mr. Jadhav dissented. Sardar Harbans Singh Brar and Dewan Lalchand Navalrai did not wish to press their objection to this part of the proposal as the rest of the scheme had been accepted by a majority of the Committee."

My Honourable friend, Sirdar Harbans Singh Brar, seems to have changed his position, and has now supported this motion on the floor of the House. I said at the outset of my speech that I was also not convinced as to the proper position of the Government in this matter of New Delhi expenditure. They must once for all make up their mind whether it is their intention to abandon the Simla exodus, and to make Delhi the permanent Capital of India, or their intention is to continue the Simla exodus as merrily as before and to go on sinking crores and crores of rupees amidst the tumbling graveyards of Delhi. I find from the proposal which was put forward before the Standing Finance Committee :

"The Government of India had recently to reconsider the question of re-opening the project estimate in connection with the serious shortage, in New Delhi, of residential accommodation for officers and clerks of all Departments which will, it is anticipated, be greatly aggravated on the introduction of the new constitution."

This House, as representative of the people of this country and as the custodian of public revenues, has a right to know from the Government once for all what is their intention with regard to the question of transferring offices from Simla to Delhi and vice versa. If, as I have stated, the Government want to shirk this question and not to arrive at a proper decision, this House will be justified in refusing any further grant for the extension of residential quarters in New Delhi. With regard to that point, questions have been asked in this House. I myself was responsible for asking a question, perhaps some other Members also were responsible for asking questions on the subject. But, as usual, the Government tried to evade the real issue and gave answers which were not at all satisfactory from the public point of view. If they make up their mind to abandon the Simla exodus, the question will arise as to the fate of the immense house property which will be left in Simla. Now, Sir, opinion has been expressed in many quarters, and I think my Honourable friend, the Finance Member, has himself stated it this morning on the floor of the House that with the advent of the Federal Legislature, the holding of the Simla Session will have to be abandoned. I do not pronounce any definite opinion on this project just now, but I have a right to ask as to what will be the condition with regard to the transfer of offices and the pleasure trip of the high officials on the hill top. Does this mean that the highest officials in the land will continue to have their annual pleasure trips at the expense of the taxpayers, but only the Members of the Federal Legislature will be deprived of the opportunity of coming up to Simla. That, Sir, is a point which must be carefully looked into. I really object that the rate payers' money should be squandered in lakhs and lakhs every year for the pleasure of a few individuals who might choose to come up to Simla with their offices and clerks and their other establishments, while, we, the representatives of the people from whose pockets the revenue comes should alone be sweltering in the plains of Delhi. It is, therefore, necessary that Government should unfold their plans definitely, and should not keep anything up their sleeves. We should like to know really what is their intention. Are they going to come up to Simla, leaving us to our fate in Delhi ?

There is just one other little point I should like to mention before I proceed further. Labour conditions in Delhi, being what they are, I should like to know what arrangements have been made for housing the labour population there. A question was asked in this House in the last Session. Perhaps I was myself responsible for asking that question and some other Members also. The Municipality of Delhi had given notice to many hundreds and thousands of coolies, who were responsible for making New Delhi what it is today, to quit their quarters. I understand their water supply was stopped and they were asked to clear out bag and baggage. I should like to know in that connection what is the arrangement which Government contemplate to make in order to house the labour population of New Delhi. I mean the labour population which they will employ in building these additional quarters proposed in the scheme before the House just now. Then, again, I should like to bring to the notice of this House the scheme which is under contemplation. It is said that a scheme was worked out in 1930 and that it was estimated that the demand for residential accommodation then comprised additional quarters for at least 52 officers and 837 clerks, the provision of which cost about 79 lakhs. I should like to know what happened to that scheme, as to how many officials' and how many clerks' quarters were provided and how many yet remain to be provided. It is said that the scheme was approved in principle, but had to be postponed owing to the difficulty of providing funds. I should like to know how far the financial situation of the Government of India has improved to justify them in embarking upon this costly project. If there is a plethora of funds at the disposal of Government, I should like to submit that the rate payers of the country were entitled to the first relief. A portion of the taxation, with which they are burdened and under which they are groaning, ought to have been remitted, but, instead of that, I find that costly projects are undertaken. I am not referring principally to this item which is on the agenda just now. There have been so many other directions of expenditure in which the interests of the rate payers have been lost sight of. "Since 1930, rates for buildings have dropped considerably, while money can also be obtained at much cheaper rates." The Honourable the Finance Member has not enlightened the House as to his scheme for providing money at much cheaper rates for the building of these quarters. "The Government of India therefore consider" the statement continues "that the present moment is a suitable opportunity for re-opening the project estimate, particularly in view of the serious shortage of quarters.". I find that in Simla also quarters are being provided. Only recently some expenditure was incurred in providing kitchen arrangements for some of the Members of the Legislative Assembly occupying Longwood Hotel, New Block. I quite welcome that piece of expenditure, but I should like to know whether Government have a settled plan in tackling this question finally and definitely.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I should like to mention with reference to what the Honourable Member has just stated that the provision of kitchens at Longwood, which has been urged on me for some time past, is a very small work costing a few thousand rupees.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : I have myself stated just now that I welcome that project, and, as a member of the House Committee, I was responsible for recommending the building of these cooking sheds. Therefore, I do not grumble at that little bit of expenditure which the Honourable Member's Department has incurred. I should have liked him to spend a little more in that direction, if necessary ; and I should like to know once for all what is up their sleeve in finally settling this question of exodus and the permanent residence of the Government of India in New Delhi. The statement says :

"As matters stand at present, the staff of all Departments are being subjected to great difficulties in finding suitable accommodation. During the winter season of 1932-33, there was a total demand for 2,651 married clerks' quarters and 290 officers bungalows, while only 1,602 quarters and 191 bungalows were available for allotment.''

This House would like to have a clear statement showing up to now how many quarters have been built, at what expenditure, both for officers and clerks, as well as for Members of the Legislative Assembly, and what is the cost of each quarter. Now, I understand that a project is on foot for building some additional quarters for Members of the Legislature in New Delhi. Now, the House Committee met the other day, and has submitted a recommendation that the plan of the new quarters should be submitted to the House Committee for their approval in consultation with the Engineer in charge of the Department concerned. I hope, Sir, the Honourable Member's Department will look into the matter and comply with the request made therein.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I have already promised that.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : I am glad that my Honourable friend has promised to look into the matter and to build those quarters in consultation with the representatives of this House on the House Committee :

''A large part of the clerical staff find themselves compelled to choose between finding accommodation in the already overcrowded city of Old Delhi, or of sharing with those to whom it is allotted the insufficient available accommodation in New Delhi, to an extent far in excess of that which would be adopted were they allowed reasonable freedom of choice.''

I should like the Government to throw more light on this somewhat complicated sentence which occurs in their proposal. What exactly is the number of clerks who reside in Old Delhi and what are the quarters available to them, and how Government want to provide bungalows for them in New Delhi, and in what locality :

''The difficulties experienced, for want of adequate residential accommodation, by the superior staff are also well known.''

I should like to understand clearly what is meant by the superior staff ? Does it refer to Gazetted Officers or only to non-gazetted officers ? How many of them have found accommodation in Government buildings, and how many of them have to be provided for in the new plan which Government have before them :

''It may be noted that large numbers of officers are embarrassed every year by not knowing till the last moment whether they can count on finding any accommodation at all in New Delhi, while some of the highest civil and military officials are unable year after year to procure any Government residence and are compelled to reside in hotels.''

The mention of the military officials brings me, Sir, to the question of accommodation for the Members of the Legislature in the Western Hostel in New Delhi. I understand that last time a few Members of the Legislative Assembly, who applied for quarters in the Western Hostel were not provided with quarters, just for the reason that they were in occupation of some of the military officers and officers of the Air Force. Of course, I do not object that they should have been accommodated in the Western Hostel, but I should like to know definitely what is the plan of the Government in dealing with applications for quarters from officers of the Government and the Members of the Legislative Assembly in the Western Hostel. I understand that the Western Hostel was built expressly for the purpose of the Members of the Central Legislature, and I think that they should be given a preferential right to reside in the Western Hostel.

If there is an extra accommodation available, then it should be made over to the civil or military officers of the Government of India. In this connection, I should like to bring to the notice of the Government one other recommendation which was made by the House Committee the other day. It was to the effect that one block of the Western Hostel should be reserved for Members of the Assembly.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Chair would like to know from the Honourable Member how long he will speak. In view of the advanced discussion on this motion, the Chair proposes to sit until this motion is finished.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : I hope, Sir, you are not sitting in the afternoon.

Mr. President : The Chair proposes to adjourn the House after the question is put on this motion.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Then I will take two or three minutes more. I was submitting, Sir, that the House Committee had made a recommendation that one block of the Western Hostel should be reserved for Members who live in orthodox style and that a kitchen should be provided behind the block. In view of all these considerations, to which Members of this House have given expression, I hope the Honourable the Finance Member or the Member in charge of the Department will look into the whole question. It should not necessarily be supposed that we are opposing the item which is before us, but we should like to be enlightened on those points to which the attention of the Government has been drawn in the course of the debate this morning.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Sir, I do not wish to make a long speech now. I wish only to take advantage of the opportunity which you have given me to answer one or two points that have been made. In the first place, my Honourable friend, Mr. Mitra, referred to the distinction between elected and nominated members of the Standing Finance Committee. I would like to remind the House that the Standing Finance Committee consists of an official Chairman and 14 unofficial members elected by this House and that, at present, out of these 14 members, 11 are elected members and only 3 are nominated members. One of these three nominated members is actually the nominee of one of the unofficial parties in this House. I think there is no Committee which has a hand in transacting business in connection with the Legislature which is so predominantly unofficial in its character as the Standing Finance Committee. I am the only official on the Committee and I have taken every opportunity that I have had of testifying to the very great assistance which I have always had from every member of the Standing Finance Committee, whether they be elected or nominated.

Then, Sir, my Honourable friend raised the question of lack of information. If there has been lack of necessary information, I sincerely apologise to the House. I was not, as the Honourable Members know, at the Standing Finance Committee when this matter was taken up, and I confess I did not know if there was any unsatisfied demand for information. A good many questions have been asked in the course of this debate and, I am sure, I am entitled to say on behalf of my Honourable colleague, the Member for Industries and Labour, that his Department will go into all these questions and that, before the House is asked to take any further step in connection with this programme, we will endeavour to put before the House information on all the points that have been raised.

Now, Sir, there is only one other thing that I wish to say and that is as regards the general financial position. There has been, I think, certain amount of confusion in some of the remarks which have been made by my Honourable friends opposite between capital expenditure and expenditure which has to be charged to revenue. I never ventured to state that, so far as the budgetary position was concerned and so far as the balance between current revenue and the current expenditure was concerned, we had any justification for looking forward to any definite improvement. We hope that things are getting better, but there certainly is no evidence on which I can express an opinion of that kind. What I did say was that as regards the Government's capacity to undertake capital expenditure, the position had entirely changed. But I wish to say now that we should not, even in the present position, feel ourselves justified in undertaking capital expenditure which was going to put upon the revenue position of the Government in future any serious burden. In the case of the present proposition, the expenditure is, to a very large extent, remunerative. The slight difference that may occur between the actual return from the letting of the houses and the interest that is to be paid will, at any rate, on the amount of expenditure which is now in contemplation, not appreciably affect the Budget or the Government's power to remit taxation. We are not asking the House to undertake any project which will substantially or appreciably deteriorate the budgetary position. That, Sir, makes the position perfectly clear and I will not detain the House any longer with my remarks on this subject.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That a supplementary sum not exceeding Rs. 9,81,000 be granted to the Governor General in Council to defray the charges which will come in course of payment during the year ending the 31st day of March, 1934, in respect of 'New Capital Works at Delhi'."

The motion was adopted.

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Monday, the 11th September, 1933.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Monday, 11th September, 1933.

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber at Eleven of the Clock, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE SUB-COMMITTEE OF THE WORLD ECONOMIC CONFERENCE DEALING WITH SHIPPING SUBSIDIES.

762. Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if they have received a copy of the official report of the proceedings of the Sub-Committee of the World Economic Conference dealing with shipping subsidies, and if so, will Government be pleased to place a copy of the same on the table ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state if their delegates to the World Economic Conference took part in the proceedings of the Sub-Committee dealing with shipping subsidies, and if so, will Government be pleased to state what were the views expressed by them on that question ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state if they have been asked by the Secretary of State to submit their views on the question of shipping subsidies, and if so, are Government prepared to lay on the table a copy of the despatch they have forwarded on this subject ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : (a) Yes. A copy of the Reports of the Monetary and Economic Conference has been placed in the Library of the Indian Legislature.

(b) and (c). The reply to the first part of each of these questions is in the negative, and the second does not arise.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Do I take it that the Government of India did not give any instructions to their delegates in this matter ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : No, Sir. They did not.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Why not, Sir ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : Because they were not directly concerned with the matter.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know, how they were not concerned with the matter ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I leave my Honourable friend to exercise his own intelligence in the matter.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I want better intelligence from the Honourable Member.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I have too great a respect for my Honourable friend's intelligence.

PURCHASE OF SHARES BY GOVERNMENT SERVANTS IN JOINT STOCK COMPANIES.

763. *Mr. B. R. Puri : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that a Government servant cannot take any active part or be a partner in a private firm, but he can purchase shares in a joint stock concern ?

(b) Is it a fact that a Government servant cannot be a proprietor, partner or editor of a newspaper ?

(c) Will Government please state if he can purchase shares in a joint stock company owning a printing press which may also be publishing or owning a newspaper in the same manner as he can purchase shares in other joint stock concerns ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) Under rule 15 of the Government Servants' Conduct Rules (a copy of which is in the Library) a Government servant may not, without the previous sanction of the Local Government, engage in any trade or undertake any employment, other than his public duties. Under rule 12 of the same Rules a Government servant may not make any investment (other than an investment in immoveable property permitted by rule 10 of the same Rules) which gives him such private interest in matters with which his public duties are connected as would be likely, in the opinion of the Local Government, to embarrass or influence him in the discharge of his duties.

(b) It is laid down in rule 18 of the Government Servants' Conduct Rules that a Government servant may not, without the previous sanction of the Local Government, become the proprietor in whole or in part, or conduct or participate in the editing or management of any newspaper or other periodical publications.

(c) I would refer the Honourable Member to my answers to (a) and (b) of his question.

INCOME-TAX ASSESSED ON THE INCOME OF RAI BAHADUR BANARSI DAS OF AMBALA.

764. *Sardar Harbans Singh Brar : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the amount of income-tax assessed each year on the income of Rai Bahadur Banarsi Das, Rais, Banker and Mill-owner of Ambala, during the last fifteen years ?

(b) Are Government aware that one Kartar Singh, son of Khazan Singh, has submitted a memorial, dated the 5th June, 1933, to His Excellency the Governor of the Punjab, making serious allegations against the Rai Bahadur and the Income-tax Department regarding the Rai Bahadur's successfully evading the income-tax assessment during the past fifteen years, although he has been enjoying enormous profits from his various concerns during the said period (paragraph 9 of the said memorial deals with the subject in question) ?

(c) If not, are Government prepared to take early steps to secure a copy of the said memorial and take suitable action in the matter ?

(d) If the aforesaid memorial has already come to the notice of Government, will they be pleased to state what steps they have already taken, or they propose to take, regarding the said matter ?

(e) Are Government prepared to make an immediate enquiry into this matter ?

(f) If so, do Government propose to entrust this enquiry to a Bench consisting of two judicial officers—one European and one Indian—in view of the serious allegations of cheating against the Rai Bahadur and of corruption against the Income-tax Department ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) I am debarred by the provisions of section 54 of the Indian Income-tax Act from disclosing any particulars relating to an assessment proceeding.

(b) Yes.

(c) Does not arise.

(d) and (e). The Commissioner of Income-tax is making enquiries.

(f) No.

STATUS OF TEACHERS OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY INDIAN SCHOOLS.

765. *Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : (a) Are Government aware that in replies to question No. 296, parts (b), (c) and (d), dated 8th February, 1933, and to question No. 319, parts (b), (c) and (d), dated 9th February, 1933, affirming the correctness of the statements of Sir George Rainy on 25th February, 1928, that " the schools of the two of the biggest Company-managed Railways have come under the direct control of the state", and on 21st February, 1929, " that the schools are under our control"; and on 12th September, 1929 " that the schools are the property of the East Indian Railway, and the East Indian Railway belongs to Government and I do not think there can be any doubt that they are Government schools in that sense " and in the reply to question No. 31 in the United Provinces Legislative Council on 19th February, 1932, stating that the East Indian Railway High School, Tundla " belongs to the Central Government ", Government have recognised that the East Indian Railway Indian Schools including the East Indian Railway Oakgrove School for Anglo-Indians are " Government Schools " ?

(b) If so, will Government please state (i) whether these schools are actually so treated in the day to day administration as well ? If not, why not ?

(c) Will Government please state if these schools are classified as Government schools in all Government returns ? If not, why not ?

(d) Are the committees attached to these schools advisory like those attached to provincial Government schools, and having the same powers ? If not, why not ?

(e) Do the committees, attached to the East Indian Railway Indian Schools possess full " proprietory powers " like those attached to privately-owned but Government-aided schools ? If so, why have powers to disburse Government funds been vested in these bodies ?

(f) Are Government aware that paragraph 10 of the rules and regulations for the management of the East Indian Railway Schools lays down : " The teaching staff of the school shall be subordinate to the committee through the Honorary Secretary, and all proposals for changes in the staff or their salaries shall be recorded in the Minutes of Proceedings, for confirmation or otherwise, by the Superintendent. All actual engagements, discharges or dismissals shall be made by the committee through the Honorary Secretary " ? If so, will Government please state if there is any school belonging to the Local or Central Government, or any other branch of any Railway or Government service, in which such powers over the destinies of Government servants have been vested in committees of this type ?

(g) Are Government prepared to take immediate steps to insure to the teachers of East Indian Railway Schools greater security of service ?

Mr. P R. Rau : (a) to (f). I would invite the Honourable Member's attention to the replies given to his previous question No. 274 and to Mr. A. Das's question No. 604 on the same subject during this Session.

(g) The Government are not aware that the teachers of the East Indian Railway are suffering under any grievance in respect of security of service.

Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : May I know who is the Chairman of these school committees ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : There are various school committees and I do not think there is one Chairman for all of them.

Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : Is it not a fact that these school committees are generally mismanaged ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I have no information to that effect.

Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : Is it not a fact that the railway school at Tundla has been informed by the Agent about the mismanagement of the committee and that the school has been threatened with abolition if it is not managed in a proper way ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I have no knowledge about it, but if the Honourable Member will put a question, I will obtain information.

GOVERNING BODIES OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY SCHOOLS FOR INDIANS.

766. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : (a) Will Government please lay on the table of this House a statement showing the names and designations, with salaries, of the members of the governing bodies of all the East Indian Railway Schools for Indians ?

(b) Will Government please lay on the table of this House a statement showing the names of the executive officers, honorary secretaries and managers of the various East Indian Railway Indian schools, and their official designations together with their rates of pay, and also showing what powers they enjoy in their own departments with regard to the appointments, control and punishments, including dismissal, discharge, etc., of their own subordinates and their powers and duties in their respective schools over the teachers and the headmasters ?

(c) Is it a fact that the governing bodies of the East Indian Railway Indian schools contain a number of low-paid, lower subordinates, such as clerks, ticket-collectors, guards, etc., etc., who are far inferior in education, status, pay or position to the teachers and headmasters of the East Indian Railway Indian high schools whose destinies they control and govern ?

If so, why is such an arrangement permitted ? Are Government aware of such an arrangement existing in any Government school run by Local Governments ?

(d) Do Government propose to bring the administration of the East Indian Railway Indian schools and the powers and positions of the committees attached to them into line with the administration of the committees attached to the Provincial Government schools ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) and (b). Government do not consider that any public purpose would be served by the collection of this detailed information.

(c) Under the rules and regulations for the management of the East Indian Railway schools the members consist of the principal resident servants of the Railway who may be willing to serve and such other residents in the neighbourhood as it may be desirable to have thereon and who may be willing to take an interest in the working of the school.

(d) Government do not consider that it is necessary to follow the Provincial Government strictly in the detailed rules for the administration of Railway schools.

Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : Will Government consider the desirability of improving the position of these school committees and conferring greater power on the headmasters of the schools with a view to effecting better control and discipline in the schools ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : If my Honourable friend has any suggestions to make, I will consider them.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Is it not a fact that the Superintendents are Presidents of these managing committees ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I do not know. But if my Honourable friend wants information, I shall get it for him.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : May I ask whether it is the policy of the Government to abolish these schools altogether gradually ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : It is not practicable, I am afraid. We tried to make the Provincial Governments take these schools over, but there were difficulties in the way.

PROPOSED TRANSFER OF THE SEAT OF THE HIGH COURT FROM ALLAHABAD TO LUCKNOW.

767. Mr. A. Das : Are Government aware that the intention of the United Provinces Government is to transfer the seat of the High Court from Allahabad to Lucknow ? Have Government received any communication on the subject ? If so, will they please lay a copy of it on the table of this House ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : Government are not aware of any such intention and have received no communication on the subject.

THROUGH BOGIES BETWEEN CERTAIN STATIONS.

768. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether any first and second class bogie is attached to the trains at the capital of the Bihar Province for Delhi, Kalka, Lahore, or Dehra Dun ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state from which stations through bogies go to (i) Delhi ; (ii) Kalka ; (iii) Lahore ; and (iv) Dehra Dun ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Not at present, but as I informed the House the other day it is proposed from the 1st October to attach such a carriage to run between Patna and Kalka via Allahabad in summer and to Lahore in winter.

(b) The information is contained in the time tables of the Railways concerned.

RUNNING OF MAIL TRAINS THROUGH PATNA.

769. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Is it a fact that there is a proposal that no mail train should pass via the main line touching the capital of the Bihar province on the East Indian Railway ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : No.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : May I know which mail train will pass through Patna ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : 5 Up.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : I believe a bogie will be attached to that for Delhi ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Yes, Sir.

RUNNING OF A THROUGH BOGIE BETWEEN TWO STATIONS.

770. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Will Government be pleased to state what is the number of passengers which in their opinion justifies the running of a through bogie between two stations ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government are not prepared to express an opinion. It depends on varying factors, such as the seating capacity of the carriages in general use, the fluctuating nature or otherwise of the traffic and so on.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Will Government please state the factors which affect these ? I find, in reply to several of my questions, the Honourable Member says that the number of the travelling public does not warrant the running of trains or attaching bogies. I want to know all the factors.

Mr. P. R. Rau : I have already said that the decision of this question depends upon varying factors such as the seating capacity of the carriages, the fluctuating nature of the traffic or otherwise, and so on.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Are Government prepared to state all the factors which are concerned ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am afraid it is not possible for me to give an exhaustive reply to this question.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know if there is any rule laid down that a train will be run if there are so many passengers and a bogie will be run if there are so many passengers ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : There is no such rule.

DEATH OF ONE H. BAGCHI, A DETENU IN THE DEOLI DETENTION CAMP.

771. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Is it a fact that Mr. H. Bagchi of Rajshahi District, a detenu in Deoli Detention Jail died on the 22nd August, 1933 ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state the cause of the death of the detenu ?

(c) Will Government please state the conditions on which Mr. Krishna Gopal got the permission to cremate the body ?

Mr. T. Sloan : (a) and (b). The detenu died on the 21st August of pneumonia following an operation for appendicitis.

(c) Messrs. Krishna Gopal Gurg and S. L. Gupta of Ajmer were permitted to cremate the body on the understanding that it would not be taken in procession.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Will Government be pleased to say why these restrictions were imposed for taking the dead body ?

Mr. T. Sloan : I think the reasons for imposing these conditions are obvious.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : What are those obvious reasons ?

Mr. T. Sloan : Because the Commissioner did not wish to have a demonstration made.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Are Government aware that even the Generals of enemies are respected after their death ?

Mr. T. Sloan : I do not think the Government consider this gentleman as an enemy.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Do Government consider these nationalists, who have been detained without any charge and without any trial, as worse than the Generals of enemies ?

Mr. T. Sloan : No, Sir.

FAILURE OF WATER SUPPLY AT THE KURUKSHETRA STATION AFTER THE SOLAR ECLIPSE.

772. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Is it a fact that the Railway water supply failed at Kurukshetra station immediately after the solar eclipse, which dislocated the train traffic for some hours ?

(b) Are Government aware that passengers suffered considerable inconvenience as no water could be obtained ?

(c) Is it a fact that several women and children collapsed due to scarcity of water ?

(d) What action do Government propose to take to avoid a recurrence of such trouble in future ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government are aware that certain allegations to this effect appeared in certain papers. Enquiries were immediately instituted, and it was found that these were based on inaccurate information. They were, I understand, contradicted later, the actual facts are that at about 19-15 hours it was found that the water level in the high service tank had fallen to nine inches owing to the waste of water which was then taking place due to taps not being closed after use, and it was therefore then decided in order to refill the high service tank to shut off the water to the Mela passenger area until 20 hours, when the supply was re-opened. Not a single ordinary or Special train was detained due to lack of water and actually during the period in which it was alleged that no trains were able to leave, five ordinary passenger and 16 Mela Specials left Kurukshetra. Had any such serious shortage of water occurred, as was alleged, it would not have been possible to have run 49 Mela Specials in the first 24 hours which is a higher figure than that obtained in 1928 on the last occasion of the Solar Eclipse at Kurukshetra.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know if there was some defect in the tank for which the water went down ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I have been informed that the water level in the high service tank fell to 9 inches owing to the waste of water which was then taking place by taps being kept open.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know what was the arrangement to see that taps were not interfered with like that ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : It is not possible to detail a railway servant to close taps after use by every passenger.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Was there no superintendence over the water that was allowed to be used ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : In a large crowd such as we find at a Mela, it is obviously impossible to see that every passenger who uses the tap turns it off after use and it must be left to the good sense of the passengers concerned.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know how many pipes were there to be tapped ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Perhaps my Honourable friend will give me notice of that question.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Did any one collapse ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : To the best of my information, there was no such incident.

PAYMENT MADE TO THE INDIAN BRANCH OF THE ROSS INSTITUTE.

773. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Do Government pay any amount to the India Branch of the Ross Institute ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : No, Sir.

REPRESENTATION OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA AT THE INTERNATIONAL WHEAT CONFERENCE.

774. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether or not they were represented at the International Wheat Conference ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state whether they are aware of the extent to which the agreement on the subject, if any, will affect India ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) India did not take part in the recent conference between the four principal wheat exporting countries or in their subsequent negotiations with European wheat importing countries.

(b) India is not a party to the agreement to restrict production which is reported to have been arrived at between the United States, Canada, Australia and the Argentine. It is not yet possible to predict the effect of this agreement on India.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Have Government examined the question whether this agreement will affect India or not ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Yes, Sir ; and their own present conclusion is that it will not affect India at all.

DERAILMENT OF AN ENGINE AND SOME BOGIES NEAR CHINIOT, NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

775. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Will Government be pleased to state the full facts of the derailment of an engine and some bogies, on account of the Chiniot landslide which took place on Tuesday, the 22nd August, 1933 ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The report received from the North Western Railway shows that as a result of a landslide the engine and two loading vehicles of No. 138 Down Passenger train got derailed on the 23rd August, 1933, in the cutting between Kot Amir Shah and Chiniot stations on the Sargodha-Lyallpur Section of the North Western Railway. There were no casualties. The train service was resumed on the 30th August.

VACANCIES IN THE GAZETTED RANK IN THE RAILWAY SERVICES.

776. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Is it a fact that four vacancies in the gazetted rank in the Railway Services have occurred ?

(b) Is it a fact that Government want to recruit three Europeans and one Madrasi for the four vacancies mentioned in part (a) ?

(c) Is it a fact that Government have requested the Secretary of State to send three Europeans for the vacancies ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to state whether qualified men were not available in India ?

(e) Will Government be pleased to state the qualifications required for these appointments ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : My Honourable friend has since informed me that he is referring to State-managed Railways. I am not aware of any proposal to recruit three Europeans and one Madrasi to the Superior Railway Services as stated by the Honourable Member.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Was there any vacancy on the Burma Railways ? If so, did the Agent request the Railway Board to send one man for the post of an Engineer ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I think there was a vacancy in the Electrical Department of the Burma Railways and steps are being taken to recruit for the vacancy in India.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Is that the gentleman who is mentioned in this question ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am not aware that anybody is mentioned in this question.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Has any letter been issued by the Railway Board to the High Commissioner in England for recruiting three Europeans either for State-managed or for Company-managed Railways ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I cannot say about Company-managed Railways until my Honourable friend tells me what Company-managed Railway he is referring to and what department he refers to. As regards State-managed Railways, I have already said that there is no proposal to recruit three Europeans and one Madrasi, and no such letter has issued from the Railway Board to the High Commissioner.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : May I know whether officers in a Company-managed Railway are recruited by the Directors of the Company or by the Railway Board ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : By the Directors, Sir.

FIXATION OF THE DATE AND TIME FOR DIFFERENT STANDING COMMITTEES.

777. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Do Government propose to fix the date and time for meetings of different Standing Committees in consultation with the Secretary of the Legislative Assembly ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : There is already a standing instruction that Departments should consult the Secretary, Legislative Assembly, as far as possible, before fixing the times for meetings of Committees of which Members of the Legislature are members.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Is it a fact that there was a meeting of the Standing Finance Committee for Railways in the end of August and that there was another meeting of the Standing Committee on Hedjaz on the same day ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I think my Honourable friend is right in his suggestion.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Was any representation made to the Leader of the House in this connection that it is impossible for common members to attend both these Committees ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I think my Honourable friend did suggest to me that it was impossible for him to attend both at the same time.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Is it a fact that after this suggestion, the interval between the two meetings was only reduced ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I am sorry if my Honourable friend was put to any inconvenience in this matter, but he will realise that the fault did not rest with my Department. The actual change of time was made by another Department, but we shall do our best to see in future that the standing instructions are observed.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : Will Government also see that these committees are not called before 11 A.M. which suit only those who are accustomed to European style of living ; the time should suit also those who are used to Indian style of living and have their own hours of taking food at 10 or 10-30 A.M. ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : My Honourable friend must realise that in a crowded session like this, it is essential to make use of every possible moment that we can get.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : Then why is no meeting held at 1-30 P.M. or on Sundays, simply because it is inconvenient to official Members ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : My recollection is that on one occasion when a meeting of the Railway Standing Finance Committee was called on a Sunday, there was a general protest in this House.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : May I know if it is a fact that in the Standing Committee meeting of that day, there was not a single item on the agenda which could not be postponed for a day ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I am afraid I do not know the agenda of the Haj Committee meeting of that day.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : Is it possible to discourage a Member of this House being on too many Standing Committees ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : The remedy is in the hands of Honourable Members themselves.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : May I suggest that the information about notices of Committee meetings may be sent to the Secretariat of the Assembly when they may be in a position to point out in time, if the times fixed for two or more meetings clashed ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I have already said that we hope that arrangements will be made to see that this standing instruction is more closely observed in future.

SCHOOL BUILDINGS ON THE RIDGE AT NEW DELHI.

778. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : (a) Will Government please state what is the total expenditure incurred on the school buildings on the Ridge at New Delhi ?

(b) What are the schools that have been located in the above buildings ?

(c) What is the number of students and teachers in those schools ?

(d) Has any provision been made for the residential accommodation of the teachers ? If not, do Government propose to take up the question of the residential accommodation of these teachers in the building programme that has been sanctioned recently ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) Rs. 4,53,532.

(b) and (c). A statement giving the information asked for by the Honourable Member is laid on the table.

(d) Provision is being made for the residential accommodation of teachers.

Statement giving the names of and the number of teachers and students in the Schools located on the Ridge, New Delhi.

No.	Name of the school.	No. of teachers.*	Students.
			During Summer.	During Winter.
1	Municipal Boys High School	21	407	500
2	Bengali Boys High School	12	262	262
3	Municipal Boys Primary School	9	313	560
4	Madrassi Primary School	2	22	80

*NOTE.—Some temporary staff is engaged to cope with the increase of boys in winter.

NOMINATION OF MEMBERS OF THE NEW DELHI MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE.

779. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen: (a) Will Government please state the number and the names of the members of the New Delhi Municipal Committee? What is the principle on which the nominations have been made?

(b) Will Government please state the number of Bengali residents in New Delhi and state why no nominations were made from that community?

(c) Is it a fact that a very large number of the official non-migratory population of the non-gazetted rank exists at New Delhi? If so, why has no nomination been made from among this class of officials?

(d) Is it a fact that representation has been allotted to the Imperial Secretariat Association (migratory), but that representation of the local Civil Accounts Association was refused? If so, why?

(e) Are Government considering the desirability of remodelling the Municipality so as to allow representation of the various provincial communities living in New Delhi?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai: (a) I lay on the table a statement which gives the information asked for in the first part of the Honourable Member's question. Nominations are made with regard to two principles, viz., the safeguarding of the interests of Government which has the largest share of any rate-payer in New Delhi and, consistently with this, to provide a non-official element which can speak for non-official interests.

(b) The total number of Bengalis in February, 1931, (last census) was 2,469. Nominations are not made on any sectional basis.

(c) The reply to the first part of the question is in the affirmative. As regards the second part, I would invite the Honourable Member's attention to the answer I have given to parts (a) and (b) of this question.

(d) The reply to the first part of the question is in the affirmative. The Civil Accounts Association asked for representation on the New Delhi Municipal Committee, but it was not found possible to grant this request.

(e) No.

Statement showing the number and names of the members of the New Delhi Municipal Committee.

President.

Mr. F. T. Jones, C.I.E., M.V.O., V.D., Officiating Chief Engineer, Central Public Works Department, New Delhi.

Members.

1. Superintending Engineer, I Circle, Central Public Works Department, New Delhi.
2. The Chief Auditor, Railway Clearing Accounts, Delhi.
3. The Civil Surgeon, New Delhi (or, during the Civil Surgeon's absence in summer months, the Assistant Surgeon in charge Civil Hospital, New Delhi).
4. The Assistant Director of Public Health, Delhi.
5. The Superintendent of Education, Delhi.
6. The Land and Development Officer, New Delhi.
7. Superintending Engineer, II Circle, Central Public Works Department, New Delhi.

Appointed by name.

1. Mr. R. T. Russell, Chief Architect, Central Public Works Department, New Delhi.
2. Mr. C. G. Blomfield, New Delhi.
3. Mr. H. N. Khanna, Commerce Department, Government of India (representing the Imperial Secretariat Association).
4. S. B. Sardar Sobha Singh, New Delhi.
5. L. Jagdish Pershad, New Delhi.
6. K. S. Chaudhri Akbar Ali, New Delhi.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai: May I know why the elective system is not being introduced in the New Delhi Municipality which is supposed to be a progressive municipality?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai: As I explained on an earlier occasion, we have come to the conclusion that for the time being it is best to carry on with a nominated Committee.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai: May I know what that length of time is going to be?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai: My Honourable friend would not expect me to fix a limit to that. I should say, at least for the next three or four years.

RESERVATION OF THE IMPERIAL COASTING TRADE TO BRITISH SHIPS.

780. Mr. K. C. Neogy: (a) Will Government be pleased to state if the question of reserving the Imperial coasting trade to British ships was discussed by a Sub-Committee at the last Ottawa Conference, and if so, will Government be pleased to state the views expressed by the delegates from India at that Conference on that subject ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state whether they have received any communication from the India Office on the subject of reserving the Imperial coasting trade to British ships, and if so, will Government be pleased to state whether they have submitted any representation to the India Office on the subject ?

(c) If the answer to (b) be in the affirmative, are Government prepared to lay a copy of their representation on the table ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : (a) The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the reply given by me to a somewhat similar question, on the same subject, asked in the Legislative Assembly by Mr. B. Das on the 28th November, 1932.

(b) The answer is in the negative.

(c) Does not arise.

PROTECTION TO THE INDIAN SHIPPING COMPANIES.

781. Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the following observations made by Sir Alfred Watson in reply to question No. 4538 during the course of his recent evidence before the Joint Select Committee of Parliament :

"I am bound to say, speaking as an European, that the Indians have a case for a large share in their coastal shipping ; and although I opposed the Bill very strongly because it savoured of expropriation, I recognise that Indian company after Indian company which endeavoured to develop a coastal service has been financially shattered by the heavy combination of the British interests. I think those British interests have to realise in the future that they must be prepared for a real partnership and must admit Indians to a share—at least a share in their coastal trade."

(b) If the answer to (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state what steps they have taken or propose to take to protect Indian shipping companies from being "financially shattered by the heavy combination of the British interests" and to secure for them an adequate share of the trade in their home waters and on the overseas ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : (a) Government have seen the observations referred to.

(b) The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the replies given to somewhat similar questions asked in the Legislative Assembly by Mr. S. C. Shahani and Mr. B. Das on the 29th January, 1931, and the 29th March, 1932, respectively, and in the Council of State by the Honourable Lala Jagdish Prasad on the 8th March, 1933. The whole question of the development of an Indian Mercantile Marine has been engaging the attention of the Government of India for some time past, and they have repeatedly expressed the opinion that a solution of this difficult problem should, as far as possible, be found in an agreed settlement between the interests concerned. I am glad to be able to inform the Honourable Member that considerable progress has been made in that direction.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : May I ask whether the Honourable Member agrees with the observations made by Sir Alfred Watson ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I think that my personal opinion does not matter very much.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I did not ask the personal opinion of the Honourable Member. On the floor of the House I ask the opinion of the Government.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : My Honourable friend did not make that clear.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I now make it clear that I ask the opinion of the Honourable Member for Commerce.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : My Honourable friend is still asking for an opinion ; but the views of the Government of India have been very definitely laid down as will be seen from Mr. Neogy's next question.

Mr. B. Das : Did it not surprise the Honourable Member to find such an expression of opinion from Sir Alfred Watson on his retirement from India ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : That is hardly a matter which calls for a reply.

Mr. B. Das : I would like to know the Honourable Member's opinion on the point.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I regret I am not prepared to give any opinion on the point.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Knowing the antecedents of Sir Alfred Watson, I think nobody should be surprised at the expression of this opinion.

PARTICIPATION OF INDIAN SHIPPING IN THE COASTAL AND OVERSEAS TRADE OF INDIA.

782. Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if it is their policy to take steps for providing an adequate participation of Indian shipping,

(i) in the coastal trade of India,

(ii) in the overseas trade of India ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state if they announced, at the end of the Shipping Conference convened by them in 1930, that the responsibility for taking further steps for the development of Indian shipping in the coastal and overseas trade of India will rest on them ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state if in September, 1932, they further confirmed their policy regarding the development of Indian shipping by stating in the Legislative Assembly "that Government are particularly anxious to facilitate the growth and the expansion of the coastal trade of India in so far as that coastal trade is operated by Indian agencies and through the instrumentality of Indian capital" ?

(d) If the answer to (a), (b) and/or (c) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the steps they have taken, or propose to take, for an adequate participation and development of Indian shipping both in the coastal and the overseas trade of India ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : (a), (b) and (c). The reply is in the affirmative.

(d) The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the reply just given by me to his question No. 781.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : May I ask what steps have Government taken to realise the object underlying these questions ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : As I have explained, Government hold the view that this very difficult problem can only be settled by general and mutual agreement between the parties concerned. So far as Government are concerned, they have taken every opportunity to try and bring about such agreement. I am glad to be able to say that their efforts have in recent times been successful, and I can assure this House that, so far as the Government are concerned, it will be their constant endeavour to see that the development of the Indian-owned mercantile marine is steadily kept in view and steadily pushed forward.

Sardar Sant Singh : May I know if the Government propose to introduce any legislation to protect this trade in case the British companies do not agree adequately to protect the interests of the Indians ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I do not propose to reply to a hypothetical question.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know from the Honourable Member if any conference for considering these agreements is being called ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : No : no conference is being called ; but I think the reply to the next question of my Honourable friend, Mr. Neogy, will show that a new arrangement has been arrived at recently.

PARTICIPATION OF INDIAN SHIPPING IN THE COASTAL AND OVERSEAS TRADE OF INDIA.

783. Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if their good offices were ever utilised in bringing about an agreement between the British shipping companies and the Indian shipping companies engaged in the coastal trade of India ?

(b) If the answer to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state whether any new arrangement that might have been reached with their help effectively provides for an adequate participation of Indian shipping both in the coastal and overseas trade of India ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : (a) Yes.

(b) I am not in a position to give details, but the arrangement referred to by the Honourable Member provides substantial further opportunities for the development of Indian shipping.

Mr. B. Das : Is it not a fact that since the rapprochement between Sir Leslie Hudson representing the B. I. S. N. Co. and my friend, Mr. Mody, representing the Scindia Steam Navigation Company, these two gentlemen have formed an offensive and defensive alliance and that Sir Leslie Hudson defended the Cotton Yarn Textile Protection Bill which was passed the other day ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I am not aware of any such alliance between my Honourable friends referred to.

Mr. B. Das : Is it not a fact that last Session, before this agreement was reached, my friends, Mr. Mody and Sir Leslie Hudson, were seen always closetted together in the lobby and also in the House ?

GRIEVANCES OF THE INDIAN SHIPPING COMPANIES.

784. Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) Is it a fact that a deputation of Indian ship-owners waited upon His Excellency at New Delhi in October last and submitted to His Excellency the grievances of Indian shipping and pointed out to him that if timely help was not given, Indian Shipping Companies, and especially the small Indian Steamship Companies on the west coast of India, would be wiped out of existence owing to the unfair rate war and other means adopted by the British vested interests ?

(b) If the answer to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state what steps they have taken to prevent the small Indian Steamship Companies from being wiped out of existence, and whether they are aware that the freight war carried on against them by the British vested interests has ceased ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : (a) Yes.

(b) The Honourable Member is referred to the reply given to part (b) of his question No. 781. The case of the small Indian Steamship Companies has also been borne in mind in that connection. I have, however, very recently received a further representation on this subject, and am making inquiries into the present state of affairs in the trade in question.

NON-ADMISSION OF INDIANS TO THE PRINCE OF WALES SEAMEN'S INSTITUTE, BOMBAY.

785. Mr. K. C. Neogy : With reference to starred questions Nos. 1058 and 1059 relating to the non-admission of Indians to the Prince of Wales Seamen's Institute, Bombay, put by Mr. B. Das in the Legislative Assembly on the 29th March, 1932, will Government be pleased to lay on the table of this House copies of the answers that may have been sent to Mr. B. Das as promised by the Honourable Sir George Rainy in reply to those questions ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : Replies to the questions referred to were laid on the table on the 7th November, 1932.

TRAINING OF MARINE ENGINEERS IN INDIA.

786. Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) Are Government aware that Lord Irwin as the Viceroy of India, speaking at Calcutta in 1928, observed " that India should have its mercantile marine and that the ships of that mercantile marine should be officered as well as manned by Indians " and that he further added that " in modern times experience of countries that have tried to create a mercantile marine has shown that everything depends upon the personnel " and that " on the long view it is the training of the personnel that I believe to be the fundamental of the whole matter in this vital matter " ?

(b) If the answer to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state when they propose to provide facilities for the training of marine engineers in India ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : (a) Yes.

(b) A scheme for the provision of facilities for the training of Marine Engineers in India is at present being worked out, but I am not yet in a position to say when it can be brought into effect. That must depend, among other things, on the possibility of providing the necessary funds.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Have the Government of India formulated any scheme mentioning the amount of money they require and, if so, whether they have sent any recommendations to the Finance Department about it ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : No ; not yet ; the scheme itself is being worked out.

ALLEGED ATTACK ON MAHATMA GANDHI BY THE Daily Gazette OF KARACHI.

787. Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if their attention has been drawn to the leading editorial article under the heading " Mr. Gandhi's latest " published in the Daily Gazette, the Anglo-Indian paper of Karachi, in its issue of the 18th August, 1933, which has been referred to in the National Call of the 24th August, 1933, and the Sind Observer of the 20th August, 1933, stating that the Gazette " has crossed all bounds of journalistic decency and decorum by indulging in a vituperative outburst against Mahatma Gandhi on account of his recurring fasts, and pleading for meting out to him corporal punishment of the most barbarous and outrageous kind and suggesting flogging him on that part of anatomy which nature has specifically provided for the purpose " ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Daily Gazette, in its issue of the 18th August, 1933, wrote as follows :

" Most people feel that Gandhiji should be well smacked on part of anatomy nature has specifically provided for the purpose. Unfortunately, he is too old for this type of treatment to prove of any use—certainly his latest antic smacks of a silly old man entering his second childhood. The writer feels disappointed at the impossibility to inflict flogging on Mahatmaji owing to his old age and not because of his cruel nature."

(c) Are Government aware that the same Daily Gazette has on previous occasions too advocated indiscriminate award of flogging punishment to civil disobedience offenders below the age of 18 and remarked early in 1932 that " buttocks are created or intended by nature for flogging " ?

(d) Are Government aware that such provocative writings create bad blood between Europeans and Indians ?

(e) Are Government aware that it has been suggested in the papers to take suitable action against the authors of such writings in the Daily Gazette ?

(f) Are Government aware that Mahatma Gandhi is held in great reverence by the millions in India ?

(g) Have Government consulted their law officers with a view to taking any action against the Gazette ? If so, with what result ?

(h) Do Government propose to take action against the Daily Gazette under the Press Act, or the Penal Code, or otherwise ? If not, why not ?

Mr. T. Sloan : (a) The Honourable Member's question has directed my attention to the article and the comments on it referred to. I ought to add that the Daily Gazette has published a further article repudiating the interpretations placed on its words in the comment quoted.

(b) The first two sentences quoted by the Honourable Member occur substantially in the article. The third does not, and appears to be the interpolation of a critic.

(c) Government have no information.

(d) to (h). The question of the effect produced by an article of this kind is one which can best be judged by the Local Government, who have power to take action against any writings that offend against the law.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know from the Honourable Member whether the Local Government, which, in this case, is the Commissioner in Sind, has called for any explanation from the Daily Gazette ?

Mr. T. Sloan : I have no information.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Does the Honourable Member know that the reply of the Daily Gazette on August 30th, 1933, to which perhaps the Honourable Member made reference, admits the two portions of the statement made in part (b) of the question ?

Mr. T. Sloan : Yes.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Does the Honourable Member also see the silly explanation given, which is this, that the spanking referred to signified the action of an exasperated mother with a fractious child and the phrase was figurative connected with the childishness imputed to Mr. Gandhi's fasting antics which are similar to those of a child who refuses its food because its parents do not give in to its will ? May I know, with this explanation, whether the Honourable Member would think it necessary to call the attention of the Bombay Government that the answer is only childish and the allegation is admitted, and that action should, therefore, be taken against the Daily Gazette ?

Mr. T. Sloan : No, Sir. The Government of India do not propose to call the attention of the Government of Bombay to a reply which explains the obvious meaning of the article.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know, therefore, whether Government are accepting this explanation which will not be acceptable even to a child ?

Mr. T. Sloan : The explanation given is an obvious one to any one who has a good knowledge of the English language.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know if the Honourable Member is aware that there have been so many criticisms over this article which has been called childish and if he thinks that those who have criticised do not also know the English language well ?

Mr. T. Sloan : I have not seen any criticism, Sir, except the Honourable Member's.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Are Government aware that these articles have injured the feelings of many people who are living in the areas administered by the Central Government also ?

Mr. T. Sloan : Government have nothing to say in defence of the article.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : I want to know whether Government are aware that these articles have injured the feelings of people who live in the areas administered by the Central Government ? This is a very simple question.

Mr. T. Sloan : The Government are not aware of the feelings of all the people who read or have read this article.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Do Government read nationalist papers as well ?

Mr. T. Sloan : Yes, Sir.

Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : May I know if the reference made by the Daily Gazette is to Indian buttocks only or European buttocks as well including those of the editor himself ?

Mr. T. Sloan : I believe the buttocks referred to were Indian.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is not the most appropriate form of punishment to the Anglo-Indian writers of such scurrilous articles that they should be flogged on that part of the body which is mentioned in (c) of the question ?

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : May I ask the Honourable Member whether Government have come to the conclusion that this article does not fall within the four corners of the law and that a criminal prosecution is not possible ?

Mr. T. Sloan : As I have said, that is a matter for the Local Government to consider.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : Does the Honourable Member know that the Local Government is under the control, supervision and direction of the Government of India ?

Mr. T. Sloan : Yes, Sir.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : Then does the Honourable Member know that it is for the Government of India also to make up their minds whether to launch a prosecution or not, because they, and not the Local Government, are responsible to this House ? I will ask a very simple question. Have the Government of India come to the conclusion that this article does or does not fall within the four corners of the law ?

Mr. T. Sloan : No, Sir ; the Government of India have not come to any conclusion on the subject, because they consider that the matter is one for the Local Government. It is perfectly right that the Local Government is under the direction, superintendence and control of the Government of India, but that does not mean that the Government of India should interfere with the Local Government in its day to day administration.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : Does the Honourable Member mean to say that it is not the duty of the Government of India even to give the slightest consideration to the matter ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : May I intervene for a moment, Sir, with your permission ? If my Honourable friend said that these articles were in questionable taste, I think there would be no difficulty in agreeing, but, Sir, it is a very different matter when you come to a question of criminal prosecution. A publication may offend against the canons of good taste, and yet it may not possibly be a fit subject for prosecution. I cannot speak for the Home Department, but I shall bring it to the notice of my Honourable colleague, the Home Member, and I have no doubt that he will send a copy of the questions and the replies given in this House to the Local Government for their consideration.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : My question was, whether the Government had come to the conclusion that this article did not fall within the four corners of the law, and the answer given was that the Government of India had given no consideration to this matter. The answer evidently should have been whether it fell within the four corners of the law or not, but; instead of that, I am told that the Government of India had given no consideration to this matter. Mr. President, I think it is the duty of the Government of India to tell us whether they have given any consideration to this matter at all or not, whether the article falls within the four corners of the law or not ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I tried to make it perfectly clear that this is primarily a matter for the Local Government and for the exercise of the discretion of the Local Government. The Government of India do not propose to direct the Local Government to take certain action in this matter, but what they will do is, they will bring to the notice of the Local Government the opinions given expression to in this House, so that the Local Government may then come to a conclusion as to what they should do.

Mr. B. R. Puri : May I know, Sir, if the Government of India realise whether or not they have some responsibility in this matter ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I do not question that suggestion at all.

Mr. B. R. Puri : Very well ; then may I know when the publication of an article of this nature is widely circulated and it is also published and circulated in territories which are directly under the direction and control of the Government of India, for instance the Delhi Province, are not the Government of India responsible for an article of that nature which finds publication and broadcasting in a province like Delhi ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : Sir, I am not aware of the extent of the publication of this article to which my friend has referred.

Mr. B. R. Puri : May I know if the Government's case is that the publication of an article of this nature never found its way in a province like Delhi ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : Will my friend kindly repeat his question ?

thus enable themselves to know that it is a most flagrant case coming under section 153-A of the Indian Penal Code and also under the Press Act ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : So far as I am concerned and so far as I am in a position to speak for Government, Government do not propose to take the action suggested by my Honourable friend.

Mr. B. R. Puri : Why ?

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Why ?

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : It is because it is an Anglo-Indian paper that is concerned.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : Because I have explained more than half a dozen times to Honourable Members that the matter is within the direct competence of the Local Government and the Local Government must be left to take such steps as appear to them necessary.

Mr. B. R. Puri : Do the Government realise that it might put a premium on counter attacks of a similar kind ? (Hear, hear.)

Mr. N. M. Joshi : You will be sent to jail.

An Honourable Member : Blood is thicker than water.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I am afraid that counter attacks already exist and I do not think they can be intensified by any action such as has been referred to.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : In view of these questions that have been asked this morning, is it not desirable that Government should at least know whether this article did or did not come within the four corners of the law ? They can find it out from the Law Department.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I really cannot go beyond what I have already said.

Sardar Sant Singh : May I know if it is the consistent policy of the Government of India not to interfere with local affairs, and, if so, may I know why terrorist outrages are condemned in this House ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I suggest that it hardly arises out of this question.

Sardar Sant Singh : It does arise in this way. When we are trying to put down terrorist outrages in the country, such inflammable material is supplied by the Anglo-Indian Press. Therefore, I say, if terrorist outrages are to be condemned in this House, and they are properly condemned, then such outrages on the part of Anglo-Indian papers must be taken notice of by the Government. May I know why, the Government will not take notice of this ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I have already explained that it is perfectly open to this House to condemn an article such as that which is being discussed this morning. I have further explained that at the present moment Government will not do more than bring this condemnation, as expressed by Honourable Members in this House, to the notice of the Local Government for their consideration. I regret that I am unable to say anything beyond what I have already stated.

Mr. H. P. Mody : If the Government of Bombay do not choose to take action in this matter, then, in view of the strong feeling exhibited in this House and outside, on account of this silly effusion, do the Government of India propose to call upon the Bombay Government for an explanation ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : It is a purely hypothetical question.

Mr. H. P. Mody : It is not a hypothetical question. I want to know whether the Government of India propose to call upon the Bombay Government for an explanation in the event of the Bombay Government not taking any action ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : It is obvious on the face of it.

Mr. H. P. Mody : What is obvious ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : That it is hypothetical. If my Honourable friend will only take the trouble to consider his own question, he will realise it.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : May I ask the Government one simple question ? Is it their policy to make any distinction between papers which may tend to cause a breach of the peace by attacks against the Government or against anybody else, the result being a breach of the peace in both cases ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : As far as I know, it is not the policy of Government to make any distinction whatever.

Mr. B. Das : Are Government aware that their superintendence, direction and control over the Bombay Government has failed, and are they aware that the Bombay Government at the slightest pretext ask for heavy deposits from Indian edited papers, while they allow Anglo-Indian edited papers to go on creating racial hatred between Indians, Europeans and the British Government ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : Government are not aware that their superintendence, direction and control had failed in any case.

Mr. B. Das : The reply of the Government does not indicate that.

Mr. A. Hoon : In view of the fact that the questions put by Mr. Mody are considered hypothetical by the Government, will Government be pleased to ask the Bombay Government at once why no action has so far been taken by them and why they have been sleeping over this matter ?

The Honourale Sir Joseph Bhore : I am not prepared to go beyond what I have indicated that the Government of India would do in this matter.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : Are you anxious and prepared for an adjournment motion on this matter ?

Some Honourable Members : There must be an adjournment motion on this tomorrow.

Mr. B. R. Puri : May I know if the Government of India are in a position to assert that this newspaper article was not really published in Delhi ?

Mr. T. Sloan : Whether the Daily Gazette of Karachi reaches Delhi or not, I cannot say, but the article was substantially repeated in the National Call which, I understand, is published in Delhi.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Was any action contemplated against the National Call by the Government of India ?

Mr. T. Sloan : No, Sir.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Why not, Sir ?

Mr. T. Sloan : I want notice of that question.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know, Sir, whether the Honourable the Leader of the House agrees with the reply given by the Home Secretary, because it appears to me that he is prejudicing the case by giving his opinion for the consideration of the Local Government ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : My friend must not ask me for my opinion on the reply given by another Department of the Government of India.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I, therefore, know from the Joint Secretary of the Home Department himself whether any such expression has been ever used in the United Kingdom with regard to a child and whether the buttocks of any British people will be spanked ?

Mr. T. Sloan : If the Honourable gentleman had knowledge of United Kingdom, he would know that in many households there it is customary for the buttocks to be spanked.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I will merely ask the Honourable Member to say whether the simile can be applied to a man of the position of Mahatma Gandhi ?

Mr. R. S. Sarma : In view of the fact that the Publicity Officer of the Government of India is in direct touch with newspapers all over the country, will Government be pleased to direct him to draw the attention of the editor of the Daily Gazette to this article and to ask him, if necessary, in a friendly manner, to refrain from writing any more articles of a provocative character ?

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : And also to offer an apology ?

Mr. T. Sloan : The Honourable the Leader of the House has already undertaken to see that copies of the questions and answers on this subject be sent to the Bombay Government, and they will no doubt consider whether it is desirable or not to take the action suggested by the Honourable Member.

Mr. F. E. James : Will the Honourable Member inform the House as to whether it is not within the power of Mahatma Gandhi himself to take action under the law against the editor of this paper if he considers that this article transgresses the law of libel ?

Mr. T. Sloan : That, Sir, is a legal question, but I think if Mr. Gandhi was advised that he can take action, then there will be nothing to prevent him from taking action.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : May I ask, Sir, whether Government are absolved from their duty simply because a private person can take action under the law ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I think, Sir, I have already made the point abundantly clear. The point is, the Government of India do not propose to interfere directly in this matter, but they will bring all that has been said in this House to the attention of those who are directly responsible in this matter.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will Government be pleased to see that the Honourable the Home Member is present, if necessary, so that the answers to questions relating to his Department may be more fully given than has been given by the Joint Secretary ?

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will Government kindly also see that the Home Member is present in this House so that answers to questions relating to his Department may be more fully given than has been done by the Honourable Member ?

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Order, order. The Honourable the Joint Secretary in the Home Department has already expressed on behalf of the Home Member his regret at his inability to be present here. The Home Member, as far as the Chair is aware, has never been absent when questions are asked. (Cheers.)

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Does the Chair realise that the reply of the Honourable Member, the Joint Secretary in the Home Department, has been rather flippant to some of the questions asked by my Honourable friend, Mr. Lalchand Navalrai ? I never meant any reflection on the Home Member.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Order, order, The Chair is not concerned with the nature of the answer given by any Member of the Government. But the Chair is certainly concerned to see that every Member of Government shows courtesy to this House by being present in his place, when subjects relating to his Department are discussed. and the Chair has no reason to think that the Home Member has failed in his duty.

Mr. B. R. Puri : May I know if the Government of India are now disposed, in view of the most flagrantly indecent character of this attack upon a very revered gentleman, to transmit to the Government of Sind their strong condemnation of the article in question, and not merely to be content with despatching the question and answers which are being gone into in this matter this morning ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I cannot engage that the Government of India will commit themselves to any expression of opinion, and I regret that I am not in a position to go any further than I have gone this morning in the matter.

Mr. B. R. Puri : May I know if the Government of India are at all disposed to take legal opinion with reference to this article and

PROTECTION OF THE PRIVATE DAIRY INDUSTRY FROM THE UNFAIR COMPETITION OF MILITARY DAIRIES.

788. Mr. Jagan Nath Aggarwal : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether in May last they received any representation from the private dairy owners of Simla and other places, complaining against the Government military dairies interfering with private dairy enterprise, by sending out their produce for sale outside the regimental lines ?

(b) Are Government aware that their representation received the full support of several leading newspapers and trades associations in India ?

(c) If the reply to part (a) above is in the affirmative, will Government kindly state whether they have taken, or propose to take, any action to redress the grievances embodied in the above representation, to protect the private dairy industry from the unfair competition of the military dairies ? If not, why not ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) Yes.

(b) Government have only received one other representation on the subject from the Indian Merchants' Chamber, Bombay.

(c) The matter is at present under the consideration of Government.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Have Government received a representation sent by numerous owners of dairy farms protesting against the military dairy farm at Jutogh competing with private enterprise ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Yes. I have said so in answer to part (a) of the question.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it a fact that large tracts of valuable land were granted to the military dairy farms free or on nominal value to help them for the sake of military necessity only ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : The dairy farms have been supplied with land, but not free. If the Honourable Member would read the answer that I gave to a question asked by my Honourable friend, Mr. Lalchand Navalrai, some days ago, he would find that the farms have to pay rent to Government on the market value of all land that was placed at their disposal.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it a fact that the Military Dairy Farm at Jutogh make purchases from some of the local gowalas, keep country buffaloes and take their milk and then supply it to the civil population outside the regimental areas ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : There is a further question on that point which is coming later.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : If these are commercial concerns, will Government lay the balance sheets of these concerns before the House ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : I am perfectly prepared to do so. In fact, I think they were already laid before the Military Accounts Committee and the Public Accounts Committee.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it a fact that the Military Dairy Farm at Jutogh is working at a loss ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Yes, it is working at a slight loss at present.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it a fact that Messrs. Edward Keventer, Ltd. once offered in 1921, to undertake to supply the full requirements of dairy produce in Jutogh from their farm at Taradevi on same price, but that offer was refused ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : I have no information on that point, but probably that is so.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : May I know why their offer was not accepted and the Military Dairy Farm has been allowed to compete with private enterprise, even though working at a loss ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : I do not admit that the Jutogh Dairy Farm does compete with private enterprise, but probably the reason why the offer of Messrs. Keventer and Co., was turned down was that the prices of their products were considerably higher than those of the Dairy Farm.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it a fact that the produce of the Jutogh Dairy Farm is only supplied to the officials of Simla, and not to the non-officials of the City ? If so, why this discrimination ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : That, Sir, is a fact. It is due to the policy of the Government of India which lays down that the surplus output of Government factories must be used in supplying other departments of Government and that the supply to private consumers should come last. Objections were raised to our supplying private consumers in Simla with these dairy products and, in accordance with that policy, we prohibited the supply of the dairy products from Jutogh to other than officials in Simla.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will Government kindly state why milk is purchased by the Military Farm at Jutogh from local gowalas and then sold to the civil population ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : As I have explained just now, there is another question on that subject coming along.

LEASING OUT OF MILITARY DAIRIES TO CONTRACTORS.

789. Mr. Jagan Nath Aggarwal : (a) Is it a fact that Government Military Dairies were originally started to meet the requirements of the regimental ranks and families, but are now freely encroaching on the field of private trade ?

(b) Did Government issue any subsequent orders governing the sale of dairy produce from Government Military Dairies to residents outside the regimental areas, and if so, what are those orders ?

(c) Is it a fact that the bread loaves manufactured at the Government Military Bakeries are not so freely offered for sale to the general public as the produce of the Government Military Dairies ?

(d) Is it also a fact that the local military authorities do not generally allow any private dairyman to do any dairy business inside the regimental areas, where a Government Military Dairy exists ?

(e) Will Government kindly state how they justify the existence of these Government Military Dairies ? Is it a fact that all other food requirements for the army are supplied by approved regimental contractors ?

(f) Are Government prepared to consider the advisability of leasing out the present Military Dairies to qualified contractors ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) and (b). Military Dairies are intended to supply pure dairy products to troops, Army Departments and establishments in peace and war. They have no desire to encroach on the field of private trade, but as the military demand which they have to meet fluctuates considerably and as it is desirable that they should work as economically as possible, they have been permitted for many years to sell surplus produce, when available, at remunerative rates to non-military government officials and their families and also except in Simla to the public.

(c) Yes.

(d) In those Cantonments in which Government Military Dairies have been established, British soldiers are not permitted to purchase dairy produce from other sources. The prohibition does not extend, however, to soldiers' families or to Indian soldiers.

(e) and (f). In the opinion of Government, Military Dairies must continue for many years to come in order to meet war requirements, and any reduction of their number in peace will be impossible until private firms demonstrate that they are able to supply dairy products of the required standard. The contractor system has not proved satisfactory in those cantonments in which it has been tried.

Mr. Jagan Nath Aggarwal : Do I understand that even in Simla, the military requirements cannot be met from private agencies ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : That is a question which I shall look into. I suppose it might be possible to get supplies, but not at the prices charged by the Military Dairy Farm.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Has the attention of the Government been drawn to their own order, dated Simla, the 22nd April, 1932, which runs as follows :

" Though Government dairies are only intended for the supply of produce to troops Army Departments and establishments, and are not to embark in private trade, as this prohibition falls heavily on non-military Government officials and their families desirous of obtaining supplies when the same are available, it has been decided that where any surplus exists at a dairy it may be issued to civilians provided it can be sold at remunerative rates.

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Yes, Sir.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : May I know as stated in this order, it is only the surplus that should be sold to the civil population ? Why should the Military Dairy Farm at Jutogh purchase milk from local gowalas and then sell it to the civil population ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : I have already said that there is another question on that subject.

Mr. Jagan Nath Aggarwal : I should like to know definitely—is it quality or is it economy that is at the basis of this military dairy ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Both.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Why should not this produce be made self-sufficient for the military ? Why should there be a surplus ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : As I have already explained, the military demand fluctuates considerably from time to time and it is impossible to say that the military demand is any fixed figure.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : With regard to the answer of the Honourable the Army Secretary as to the quality of the milk produced, has his attention been drawn to this portion of the representation of the dairy farms at Simla, in which it is stated that the military dairies have been " compelled to keep a good many country buffaloes of some contractor in their farm for purchases of milk, and, to break the gravity of the buffaloes milk, they take out a certain percentage of cream from this milk and then offer this milk for supply and also purchase cream from outsiders to make butter for their supply."

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : That is not true.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is this the quality of the milk to which you referred—cheating the public ?

PROTECTION OF THE PRIVATE DAIRY INDUSTRY FROM THE UNFAIR COMPETITION OF MILITARY DAIRIES.

790. Mr. Jagan Nath Aggarwal: (a) Are Government aware that during the last few years many educated young men have qualified in the dairy industry at the various Government institutions, but they have no scope to develop the dairy business in view of the Government Military Dairies coming in the field to cut out private enterprise by their competition ?

(b) Is it not a fact that the private dairy enterprises alone meet the requirements of the military residents where a Government Military Dairy does not exist ?

(c) Are Government aware that several private dairies possess credentials and warrants of appointments for good services, from the highest civil and military officers ?

(d) Are Government also aware that even the Government Military Dairies regularly purchase a considerable amount of cream from the contractors for making butter, and also employ local ghosis and hire their cattle for purchase of milk at their farms to cope with their increasing demand ?

(e) Are Government prepared to issue necessary instructions for the Government Military Dairies to restrict their activities within the regimental areas, in the interests of safeguarding the private dairy industry ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) Government are aware that a certain number of young men obtain the Indian Diploma of Dairying issued by the Imperial Institute of Animal Husbandry and Dairying at Bangalore. The scope for private enterprise outside the radius served by Government Military Dairies is enormous.

(b) There are several cantonments in which the troops depend either on cantonment dairies, or regimental dairies or on private enterprise.

(c) I am prepared to accept the Honourable Member's assurance on this point.

(d) Large amounts of cream are purchased and pasteurized for the manufacture of butter, but very little milk or cream is purchased for direct supply as milk or cream. In exceptional cases cattle are hired to meet urgent unforeseen demands, but these cattle are kept, fed and milked on Military Dairy Farm premises, and as far as possible, the milk obtained from them is used to feed the calves of the Military Dairy herd and not for direct supply to consumers. Milk is not purchased simply to meet demands from the non-military public.

(e) The matter is at present under consideration.

Mr. Jagan Nath Aggarwal : Do the Government realise that it is part of their duty to encourage private dairy farms as well ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Certainly.

Mr. Jagan Nath Aggarwal : May I know what has been done in that connection during recent years outside military areas ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : I should like to have notice of that question.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Considering the complaints from the representatives of private dairy farms on this point and the complaints expressed on the floor of the House, will the Honourable the Army Secretary be pleased to consider the question of either limiting the supply of the Jutogh Military Dairy Farm only to regimental areas or to close up the Jutogh Dairy Farm altogether, if it is working at a slight loss ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : I have already said in reply to this question that Government are considering that matter already, and, in considering it, they will take into account the views that have been expressed by Honourable Members this morning.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Is it a fact that all such dairies are running at a loss ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : No, Sir.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Will Government state whether there is any dairy which does not run at a loss ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Will the Honourable Member wait till I answer the next question ?

PROFIT AND LOSS OF THE GOVERNMENT MILITARY DAIRIES.

791. Mr. Jagan Nath Aggarwal : (a) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing the figures of the total net yearly profit and loss incurred by the Government military dairies during the last five years ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state what amount, if any, has been written off from their accounts since the Government military dairies started ?

(d) What is the average specific gravity, fat percentage and other specifications allowed in the saleable dairy products of Government military dairies ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) In 1928-29 the net profit amounted to Rs. 48,620 ; in 1929-30 to Rs. 1,00,835 ; in 1930-31 to Rs. 71,893 ; in 1931-32 to Rs. 1,17,181 ; and in 1932-33 to Rs. 83,563.

(b) Owing to abnormal prices and purchases during the Great War, the Military Dairy Farms became overburdened with Capital. With a view to working the farms on a sound commercial basis their capital assets were revalued by a committee in 1925 ; and the revaluation resulted in a reduction of Rs. 12,74,608 which was written off in the accounts of the year 1924-25. Working losses sustained up to 1924-25 were also written off to the extent of Rs. 42,71,922. Since 1924-25 no amount has been written off.

	lbs.
Milk	1,15,96,380
Butter	9,28,267
Cream	1,31,106

Information regarding the percentage referred to at the end of the question is not readily available, but probably over half the butter was made from purchased cream, while well under 1 per cent. of the milk and none of the cream was purchased in the open market.

(d) The milk specification is as follows :

	Per cent.
Butter Fat	3.7
Solids other than fat not less than	8.5

Butter has to contain :—

Not more than 16 per cent. of water and 3 per cent. of salt.

UNSTARRED QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

DEFECTS IN CERTAIN QUARTERS OF LAKE AND CLIVE SQUARES IN NEW DELHI.

33. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) whether the Eastern wings of the quarters of Lake and Clive Squares in New Delhi are of old type and have many defects, for instance, (i) there are only two bed-rooms ; (ii) smoke-chimney is very defective ; (iii) the existing inner court-yard exposes the inmates to the blasting sun during the summer ; (iv) there are no windows in the bath room and the kitchen godown ; (v) the downpour of rain from the gutters comes into the honeycombs of the kitchen godown and the bath room, etc. ;

(b) whether budget provision was made to alter these quarters and those in the Hastings Square but the work was stopped after the quarters in the Hastings Square were so altered ?

(c) whether the majority of the inhabitants of the quarters in the Lake and Clive Squares live throughout the year while those of the Hastings Square are migratory and Government do not charge any rent from the latter ;

(d) whether the inhabitants of the Lake Square quarters represented the difficulties more than once but no measures have been adopted to carry out the alterations ;

(e) if the reply to the above parts be in the affirmative, the reasons which led to the differential treatment being meted out to the occupants of these squares and whether the difficulties of the occupants are proposed to be removed without delay by carrying out the necessary alterations ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Yes ; the quarters referred to are of an old type. The replies to the different parts of the question are :

(i) Yes.

(ii) No.

(iii) No. The courtyard is designed to provide light, ventilation and air.

(iv) There are no windows but brick honeycomb openings, i.e., jalies, are provided.

(v) Ordinarily, this does not happen.

(b) No budget provision was made for any alterations to the quarters in Lake and Clive Squares, while the cost of alterations to the quarters in Hastings Square was met by reappropriation.

(c) Yes. The quarters in Hastings Square are occupied by the members of His Excellency the Viceroy's staff who are both migratory and non-migratory and are entitled to occupy them free of rent.

(d) and (e). Representations have been received from the occupants of similar type of quarters in other squares, but the additions and alterations could not be carried out on account of financial stringency.

STOPPAGE OF EXPRESS TRAINS AT KHATAULI, NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

34. Mr. Jagan Nath Aggarwal : (1) Will Government be pleased to state whether the Up Bombay Express No. 57 and Down Express No. 58 do not stop at Khatauli on the North-Western Railway, which is nearly midway between Muzaffarnagar and Meerut Cantonment ?

(2) Is it a fact that Khatauli has a much larger population—8 or 9 times the population of Mansurpur and Daurala where these trains stop—and is also commercially more important and also the nearest Railway Station to the Tahsil headquarters at Janseth ?

(3) Are there any special reasons why the Bombay Express trains should stop at those stations and not at Khatauli and will Government please state the reasons ?

(4) Is it a fact that a big sugar mill is also being erected at Khatauli and will Government please give the figures for the goods and passenger traffic on this station from 1st April to 15th August, 1933, as also the figures for Mansurpur and Daurala Stations for the same period and also for the corresponding period in 1932 ?

(5) Are Government prepared to consider the advisability of asking the North Western Railway Administration to arrange the stoppage of the Express at Khatauli ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (1) Yes.

(2) to (4). Government have no information.

(5) I am sending a copy of the question to the Agent, North Western Railway, for considering the suggestion made by the Honourable Member.

INDIAN POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS EMPLOYEES' MUTUAL RELIEF FUND, LAHORE.

35. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether they are aware of the fact that in Lahore there is a fund named Indian Posts and Telegraphs Employees' Mutual Relief Fund ?

(b) Are Government aware that Mr. Jamita Ram, Assistant Postmaster, Lahore General Post Office, is the General Secretary of the Fund ?

(c) If the reply to parts (a) and (b) be in the negative, will Government be pleased to call for a copy of the Rules and Regulations of the Fund from Mr. Jamita Ram ?

(d) Is it a fact that the Fund is not registered ?

(e) If not, do Government propose to take necessary steps to see that this Fund which has got many members from amongst the postal employees, is registered without delay ?

(f) Are Government prepared to refer the rules and regulations of this Fund to the Government Actuaries in order to examine whether the Fund is being managed on a sound basis ?

(g) Will Government please further state whether they raised any objection to such a fund being managed without being registered ? Are Government aware that it is very necessary in the interest of the members ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) and (b). The reply is in the affirmative.

(c), (d), (e) and (f). The Fund is a private one in the management of which Government are not concerned. It is not registered in the office of the Registrar, Co-operative Societies. Government see no reason to take any action as suggested by the Honourable Member.

(g) As already explained, Government have nothing to do with the Fund which is a private concern.

GRIEVANCES OF MUSLIMS AGAINST THE MEDICAL DEPARTMENT OF THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

36. Seth Haji Abdoola Haroon : (a) Have the various articles and editorial notes published in the :

(i) Eastern Times of Lahore, dated the 30th June, 12th July, 18th July and 22nd August, 1933,

(ii) Weekly Mail of Lahore, dated the 3rd July, 10th July, 17th July, 7th August and 21st August, 1933, and

(iii) Pilot of Amritsar, dated the 9th July, regarding the Medical Department of the North Western Railway, come to the notice of Government, and have any steps been taken to verify the allegations contained therein ? If so, with what result ?

(b) Do Government intend to appoint an impartial enquiry committee to enquire into the serious allegations contained therein ?

(c) What other action do Government propose to take to redress the grievances and right the wrongs done to Mussalmans as alleged in the articles referred to above ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Government have seen some of the articles referred to.

(b) and (c). I have sent a copy of these questions together with the copies of the papers in the possession of Government to the Agent, North Western Railway, for such action as he may consider necessary.

COMMUNAL COMPOSITION OF DISTRICT MEDICAL OFFICERS ON STATE RAILWAYS.

37. Seth Haji Abdoola Haroon : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the communal composition of the District Medical Officers on State Railways, and particularly on the North Western Railway ?

(b) Is it a fact that it is proposed to appoint some District Medical Officers in the near future ? If so, will Government please state if, in order to bring up the representation of Mussalmans to an adequate level, only Mussalmans will be recruited for some time ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) On all State-managed Railways taken together, the total number of officers in the superior service of the Medical Department is 39. Of these, 18 are Europeans, one Anglo-Indian, sixteen Hindus, three Muslims, two Sikhs, and three belong to other communities.

On the North Western Railway, the total number is 4, of whom one is a European, one a Hindu, one a Muslim and one a Sikh.

(b) The question of recruiting some District Medical Officers for the North Western Railway is at present under consideration. In such recruitment, Government will follow the policy laid down to prevent undue preponderance of any one class or community.

COMMUNAL COMPOSITION OF THE STAFF IN THE OFFICE OF THE CHIEF MEDICAL AND HEALTH OFFICER, NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

38. Seth Haji Abdoola Haroon : (a) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement giving the communal composition, by grades, of staff in the office of the Chief Medical and Health Officer, North Western Railway, Lahore, as well as giving by communities the number and grades of District Medical Officers, Assistant Surgeons, Sub-Assistant Surgeons and Dispensers on the North Western Railway, showing separately the Brahmin and non-Brahmin Hindus ?

(b) Do Government realise that the representation of Muslims in almost every category and grade is very meagre ? If so, will Government please state the special reasons to which this could be attributed ?

(c) Is it a fact that there is a large number of Brahmin, as against non-Brahmin, Hindus ? If so, to what special reason, if any, do Government attribute this difference ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to state the number of vacancies that occurred in the above grades and categories in 1933 and the communal composition of staff recruited ?

(e) Were the standing orders of Government in regard to maintaining, or bringing up to an adequate level, the communal balance in the services duly observed ? If not, what action do Government propose to take against the persons concerned ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Government regret that they are not prepared to supplement with figures for particular classes of posts the information in regard to communal representation in Railway Services given in the annual Administration Report on Indian Railways.

(b), (c), (d) and (e). I am making enquiries on the points raised by the Honourable Member.

GRANT OF ENHANCED SALARIES TO HINDU ASSISTANT SURGEONS WITH ENGLISH QUALIFICATIONS.

39. Seth Haji Abdoola Haroon : (a) Is it a fact that Hindu Assistant Surgeons with English qualifications have been given enhanced salaries whereas similarly qualified Muslims were only offered the minimum pay of the grade, which resulted in the non-acceptance of the offers by the latter ?

(b) If so, will Government please state the reasons for the differential treatment being meted out to them as against Mussalmans ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I have called for the necessary information and will place a reply on the table in due course.

REPRESENTATION OF MUSLIMS IN THE ESTABLISHMENT BRANCH OF THE OFFICE OF THE CHIEF MEDICAL OFFICER, NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

40. Seth Haji Abdoola Haroon : (a) Is it a fact that all the Muslim clerks formerly working in the Establishment Branch of the Chief Medical Officer's office, North Western Railway, Lahore, have either been dismissed, transferred to other departments altogether, or put to work on unimportant duties in other branches, and far junior Hindu clerks have been put to work in their places, to the entire exclusion of Muslim element from the Establishment Branch ?

(b) Is this policy of weeding out Mussalmans from the Establishment Branches in accordance with the recommendations contained in the Hassan Report ? If not, what action do Government propose to take to ensure adequate representation of Mussalmans in this branch ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no information, but are enquiring into the matter.

COMMUNAL COMPOSITION OF CLERKS IN THE MEDICAL DEPARTMENT, NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

41. Seth Haji Abdoola Haroon : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the total number of clerks by communities employed in the Medical Department, North Western Railway, in 1928 and in 1933, showing separately the number by communities at the Head Office, Lahore, and sub-offices at out-stations, and specifying those permanent or temporary ?

(b) Is it a fact that the number of Muslims in the Chief Medical Officer's office is progressively decreasing, and is it the intention of the authorities concerned to weed out the Muslim element from this office ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) The available information is contained in Mr. Hassan's report, copies of which are in the Library.

(b) Government have no information as to the exact position in this particular office, but I can assure the Honourable Member that it is not the intention of Government to weed out any community from any office. A copy of this question and the answer given has been sent to the Agent, North Western Railway, for any action necessary.

VICTIMISATION OF MUSLIMS IN THE OFFICE OF THE CHIEF MEDICAL OFFICER, NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

42. Seth Haji Abdoola Haroon : (a) Is it a fact that all the Hindu permanent clerks in the Chief Medical Officer's office have been given one, two and even three out of the way and accelerated grade promotions as for example :

(i) Pt. Ram Rakha, from Grade II to Grade V, in about three years ;

(ii) Pt. Suraj Prakash, from Grade I to Grade II, in barely seven days ;

(iii) L. Roshan Lal, from Grade III to Grade V, and for some time officiating in Grade VI, in about two years ;

(iv) S. Dharam Singh, from Grade I to Grade III, within a year, etc., etc. ?

(b) Is it also a fact that in contra-distinction to part (a) above, here is not a single Muslim clerk in the Chief Medical Officer's office, who has not at one time or other in his service been either reverted to a lower grade, demoted or superseded by a junior non-Muslim or had his promotion stopped for alleged irregularities ?

(c) Are Government aware that the Office Superintendent gets the Hindu Head Clerks to write out, or some times even dictates to them himself, reports against their Muslim subordinates in order to make these the basis of their victimisation at a future date ?

(d) Is it a fact that L. Ram Narain, formerly Head Clerk of the Medical Section of the Chief Medical Officer's office, particularly mentioned that he had been, against the dictates of his conscience, forced to write an adverse report against a Muslim clerk working under him, which was subsequently made the basis of the latter's chastisement ?

(e) If replies to parts (b), (c) and (d) above be in the affirmative, do Government agree that the communalistic tendencies of the Office Superintendent and his Hindu upper subordinates are responsible for the victimisation of Muslims ? If so, what action do Government propose to take in the matter ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no information, but are enquiring into the matter.

DISMISSAL OF ONE B. GHULAM MUHAMMAD, A CLERK IN THE OFFICE OF THE CHIEF MEDICAL OFFICER, NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

43. Seth Haji Abdoola Haroon : (a) Is it a fact that B. Ghulam Muhammad, a clerk in the Chief Medical Officer's office, was dismissed for delaying disposal of certain letters and travelling allowance bills ?

(b) Is it a fact that disposal of certain letters and travelling allowance bills was similarly delayed by a temporary Hindu clerk, but he was lightly let off ?

(c) Is it a fact that a relative of the Office Superintendent also delayed disposal of certain important letters while working under the Medical Officer, Multan, who strongly reported the matter against him, but no other action beyond that of transferring the clerk concerned under the protection of the Office Superintendent himself was taken against him ?

(d) If the replies to parts (a), (b) and (c) above, be in the affirmative, will Government please state the reasons for this differential treatment ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no information but I have sent a copy of the question to the Agent, North Western Railway, for any action necessary.

DEPUTATION OF A MEDICAL MAN FOR A CLERICAL JOB IN THE OFFICE OF THE MEDICAL OFFICER, LAHORE.

44. Seth Haji Abdoola Haroon : (a) Is it a fact that a Sub-Assistant Surgeon is working merely as a clerk in the office of the Medical Officer, Lahore ? If so,

(i) what is the reason for deputing a medical man for a clerical job and consequently having to pay him a higher salary than that paid to a clerk ; and

(ii) are Government prepared in the interest of economy to replace him by an ordinary clerk ? If not, will Government please state the nature of any medical work actually done by him during the last year ?

(b) Is it a fact that this Sub-Assistant Surgeon is being paid Rs. 25 as consolidated conveyance allowance for his supposed visits to the Mayo Gardens to attend to servants of officers ? If so, will Government please state the number of any such visits actually paid by him ?

(c) Are Government prepared to consider the advisability of discontinuing or drastically cutting down this allowance if it is found that no such visits are or have ever been paid, or that the number of the visits is meagre ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I have called for the necessary information and will place a reply on the table in due course.

MISUSE OF PRIVILEGE PASSES BY CERTAIN EMPLOYEES OF THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

45. Seth Haji Abdoola Haroon : (a) Is it a fact that the Office Superintendent, Chief Medical Officer's office, North Western Railway, admittedly misused a Privilege Pass issued in his favour, but was lightly let off, although according to clear Pass rules he should have been summarily dismissed or at least severely punished ?

(b) Is it a fact that for similar offences Mr. B. K. Sood, Assistant Controller of Stores, and Mr. Ashwood, Office Superintendent, Divisional Superintendent's Office, Delhi, were summarily dismissed ?

(c) If the replies to parts (a) and (b) be in the affirmative, will Government please state the reasons for the differential treatment ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am making enquiries and I shall lay a reply on the table in due course.

COMMUNAL COMPOSITION OF THE STAFF RECRUITED BY THE CHIEF MEDICAL OFFICER, NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

46. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Will Government be pleased to state the number of vacancies that were filled by the Chief Medical Officer, North-Western Railway, in 1933, and what was the communal composition of the staff recruited and the source from which they were recruited ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am making enquiries and I shall lay a reply on the table in due course.

SUPERSESSIONS ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

47. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Is it a fact that the Agent, North Western Railway, vide his letter No. E.C./188-W. (Con.), dated the 29th March, 1933, admitted certain supersessions and ordered redressal of the same at an early date ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state what action has been taken to give effect to these orders of the Agent, by the respective Heads of Department ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no information.

MUSLIM SUB-ASSISTANT SURGEONS AND ASSISTANT SURGEONS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

48. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Will Government be pleased to state the number of Muslim Sub-Assistant Surgeons and Assistant Surgeons on the East Indian Railway ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : There are seven Muslim Sub-Assistant Surgeons and one Assistant Surgeon on the East Indian Railway.

RECRUITMENT OF MUSLIM EMPLOYEES IN THE GOVERNMENT FORMS PRESS, ALIGARH.

49. Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan : (a) Is it a fact that the Government have fixed a ratio for the recruitment of the Muslim employees in the Government Forms Press, Aligarh ?

(b) When was that order enforced ? What is the present representation of Muslim employees in the Government Forms Press, Aligarh, in the clerical branch ?

(c) How many Muslims against Hindus have been employed in the clerical branch in the above Press since that order was enforced ?

(d) Are Government aware that Muslim claims have been ignored with regard to the representations in the Press ?

(e) Do Government propose to issue instructions to the Manager, Government Forms Press, to redress their grievances ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) and (d). No.

(b) No such order was given ? Seven posts in the clerical branch were held by Muslims in 1932 which is the latest year for which I have information.

(c) and (e). Do not arise.

INCOME OF THE ACCOUNTANT, GOVERNMENT FORMS PRESS, ALIGARH.

50. Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan : (a) What is the present pay of B. Bhawani Charan, Accountant, in the Government Forms Press, Aligarh ?

(b) Are Government aware that he runs a press and makes Government press employees work in his press free of all charges ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The present pay of the Accountant in the Aligarh Press is Rs. 110.

(b) Government have no information, but the Controller is being asked to make enquiries.

CONTRACTS FOR BUILDING AND SUPPLYING GOODS, ETC., IN THE GOVERNMENT FORMS PRESS, ALIGARH.

51. Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan : (a) Is it a fact that contracts for building and supplying goods and waste paper are always held by Hindus in the Aligarh Government Forms Press ?

(b) Is it a fact that the tenders are not invited by the Manager, and applications submitted by Muhammadan contractors for considering their rates are turned down ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) and (b). The answer is in the negative.

ALLEGATIONS AGAINST THE HEAD CLERK, GOVERNMENT FORMS PRESS, ALIGARH.

52. Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan : (a) Is it a fact that the Head Clerk, Government Forms Press, Aligarh, owns a press at Simla which is called the Victoria Press ?

(b) Do Government permit their servants to carry on private business ?

(c) How many months leave has the Head Clerk taken since he was posted at Aligarh ?

(d) Are Government aware that the leave availed of by him was utilised in looking after his private press ?

(e) Are Government aware that the Head Clerk is not in a good financial condition ?

(f) Is it a fact that he has borrowed a large sum of money from one of his subordinate's relations, named Misri Lal contracter in Aligarh workshop ?

(g) Do Government encourage such dealings ? If not, do Government propose to order an inquiry and take necessary action against him ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a), (c) and (d). I am not in possession of the facts but shall make inquiries.

(b) and (e). No.

(f) Government have no information.

(g) The answer to the first part is in the negative and to the second part in the affirmative.

DIM-LIT STREETS OF NEW DELHI.

53. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the letter which appeared in the Hindustan Times of the 2nd July, 1933, under the caption " Dim-lit Streets of New Delhi " ?

(b) If so, do Government propose to inquire into the matter and to remove the grievance complained of ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) Yes.

(b) No reduction in the usual summer scale of lighting has been made this year. The lighting of roads in New Delhi is reduced every summer on grounds of economy and because it is considered that at that season, when the traffic and population of the area are reduced to a minimum, there is no need for the illumination on the scale required in the winter months. The summer scale of road lighting is under consideration and such improvements as may be found possible will be effected.

INSANITARY CONDITIONS NEAR SAMRU PLACE AND LUMSDEN SQUARE, NEW DELHI.

54. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government please refer to the reply given on 8th March, 1933, to my unstarred question No. 60 regarding insanitary conditions near Samru Place and Lumsden Square, New Delhi and say whether " suitable action " has been taken in the matter ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the nature of the action taken ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) Yes.

(b) The gwalas who were responsible for the insanitary conditions were prosecuted and this has had satisfactory results.

EXPULSION ORDER PASSED BY THE COMMISSIONER ON SOME RESIDENTS OF PHULRA STATE.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Order, order : I have received a notice from Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi that he proposes to ask for leave to make a motion for the adjournment of the business of the House today for the purpose of discussing definite matter of urgent public importance as follows :

" The expulsion order passed by the Commissioner on or about the 5th instant on some residents of Phulra State within seven days from the order."

Before I ask if any Honourable Member has any objection to this motion, I must point out that my attention has been drawn to the Notification of the Government of India, No. 498-F., dated the 5th September, 1933. This Notification relates to the territory in the North-West Frontier Province known as Upper Tanawal. I have to ask from the Political Secretary whether the Phulra State referred to in this motion is within the territory of Upper Tanawal ?

Mr. B. J. Glancy (Political Secretary) : Yes, Sir, it is.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : On the 5th September, 1933, the Government of India in the Foreign Department have issued a Notification to this effect :

" In exercise of the powers conferred by sub-section (2) of section 52A of the Government of India Act, the Governor General in Council is pleased to declare the territory in the North-West Frontier Province known as Upper Tanawal to be a backward tract, and is further pleased, with the sanction of His Majesty which has been signified by the Secretary of State for India in Council, to direct that the said Act in its application to the said territory shall be subject to the exceptions and modifications specified in the Schedule hereto annexed."

The relevant portion of the Schedule with which we are concerned is paragraph 3 of the Schedule which runs as follows :

" In lieu of the provisions of the said Act (i.e., the Government of India Act), which enable rules to be made for prohibiting or regulating in either chamber of the Indian Legislature the asking of questions on, and the discussion of, any subject specified in the rules, there shall be substituted a provision prohibiting the asking of questions on, and the discussion of, any subject relating to this territory."

Now, in the light of this Notification, I would like to know from the Honourable the Mover how is his motion in order ?

Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi (Tirhut Division : Muhammadan) : Sir, I received the telegram on the 5th September, and, I believe, on the 6th, I gave notice of a short notice question to the Secretary of this House. I wanted to know what the real facts about this case were. I was told that the Member in charge was not prepared to accept the short notice and that my question would be answered in the normal course of the business of the House. I thought that the seven days will expire before the turn of the question came and, therefore, I could not do anything else except to put in an adjournment motion, so that the Government may be compelled to express their views on the point and give us the information available. Now, I find that they have placed before you, Sir, a Notification of the Government of India, dated the 5th September which was certainly in their possession on that day. So, they treated us very badly by not telling us directly on that very day that there was a Notification of that description and that, under that Notification, orders have been passed by the Commissioner. If they have got the discretion in refusing to take notice of a short notice question, they should not exercise it in accordance with their whims. They must proceed in a reasonable manner. If they had told us the facts they have now brought to your notice, I would have considered the matter and taken some other course of action. But, as it is, I repeat that I have been treated very badly by the Honourable Member in charge of the Department. I wanted to move the adjournment of the House, because the Member in charge had used the discretion in a manner which is not worthy of the House. I was told by the Secretary that I could not do it and, therefore, I had to frame my motion for adjournment in that form.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : I want to know from the Honourable Member what he has to say in the light of the Notification that I have read out as to the admissibility of his motion. With regard to the observations which the Honourable the Mover has made as to the refusal of the Political Secretary to answer the short notice question, I propose to ask him to make any observations he may choose to make.

Mr. B. J. Glancy : May I say, Sir, that at the time when notice was given, this Notification had not been brought to my attention. All that I asked for was time to study the case so that, if the question was allowed, it might be properly answered.

Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi : It is not that the time was asked by the Honourable Member, but he said that he would not accept notice of a short notice question. If it had been a question of time, that would have been a different matter altogether.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Whatever it is, in the light of this Notification, even the short notice question of the Honourable Member would be out of order, because this Notification, read with the existing rules, debars this Assembly's jurisdiction from asking any question or moving any Resolutions relating to that territory.

Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi : Now that the Notification has been read out to the House, I shall have to consider over the matter and take steps that I may think necessary in the matter.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Honourable Member, therefore, does not adduce any argument to show that his motion is in order in the light of this Notification. Therefore, in the light of the Notification that has just been read to the House by me read with Rule 23 and Rule 12 (5), I rule that the adjournment motion is not in order.

STATEMENTS LAID ON THE TABLE.

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham (Army Secretary) : Sir, I lay on the table the information promised in reply to starred questions Nos. 628 to 632 asked by Bhai Parma Nand on the 3rd March, 1933.

PAY OF CLERKS OF THE INDIAN ARMY SERVICE CORPS.

*628. (a) Yes.

(b) (i) and (ii). Yes.

(iii) The maximum pay of Rs. 375 can be earned only by those who are appointed or promoted to the Upper Division before they are 31 years of age.

PAY OF CLERKS OF THE INDIAN ARMY SERVICE CORPS.

*629. (a) (i). Yes, but the increase of Rs. 60 was sanctioned only as a temporary measure on account of the increase in the cost of living.

(ii) Only two cases can be recalled in which a clerk reached a position entitling him to pay and allowances at the rate of Rs. 360 a month.

(iii) No option was given, but clerks whose pay on the 1st September, 1923 (inclusive of the temporary increase in pay and local allowance) exceeded the emoluments admissible under the new scale, were granted the difference as a personal allowance which was absorbed in subsequent increments.

(iv) Yes. On the introduction of the revised rates of pay in 1923, all local allowances, except those in Burma, Aden and Gilgit, and all officiating allowances, were discontinued.

(b) The maximum pay admissible under the old rates was Rs. 300 a month, whereas the maximum now is Rs. 375. The new scale of pay as a whole is more attractive inasmuch as Upper Division clerks are now eligible for annual increments of Rs. 10 until they reach the Rs. 325 stage and thereafter biennial increments of Rs. 25, whereas under the old rates the increments were much smaller and only head assistants were allowed increments of Rs. 10. The minimum of the present time-scale of pay is also higher than that of the old scale.

PAY OF CLERKS OF THE INDIAN ARMY SERVICE CORPS.

*630. (a) and (b). Government are aware that there is some discontent in certain quarters and the suitability of the existing scales is being examined. No proposal, however, which involves an increase of expenditure is likely to receive consideration at the present time ; and the existing rates will probably be reduced for future entrants.

(c) The alteration of grading asked for by the personnel concerned would involve extra expenditure.

GRANT OF PENSION TO CHECKERS OF THE INDIAN ARMY SERVICE CORPS.

*631. The answer is in the negative.

PAY OF STORE-KEEPERS OF THE INDIAN ARMY SERVICE CORPS.

*632. (a) About 14 per cent. of the serving Upper Division storekeepers and those Lower Division storekeepers who may be promoted to the Upper Division before the age of 29, will normally attain the maximum pay of Rs. 140 before retirement.

(b) Yes. The difference is due to the nature of their duties. The retention and advancement of men in the Mechanical Transport Branch are subject to their passing searching technical tests which are not applicable to the Supply Branch.

(c) Yes.

(d) No.

ELECTION OF MEMBERS TO THE SALT INDUSTRY COMMITTEE.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : Sir, I beg to move :

"That this Assembly do proceed to elect, in such manner as the Honourable the President may direct, three Members to sit on the Salt Industry Committee of the

[Sir George Schuster.]

Legislative Assembly in place of Mr. S. C. Shahani, deceased, and the Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty and Mr. L. V. Heathcote who have ceased to be members of the Committee.''

The motion was adopted.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : I may inform Honourable Members that nominations for the purpose of election of three Members for the Salt Industry Committee will be received in the Assembly Office upto 12 noon on Wednesday, the 13th September, and that the election, if necessary, will be held on Friday, the 15th September, 1933. It is proposed to adopt the same procedure for holding the election for this Committee as has been observed in connection with the Standing Committees for the Departments of Commerce and Industries and Labour. Honourable Members have already been informed of this procedure in the Legislative Assembly Circular No. XLIV, dated the 28th August, 1933. The election will be conducted in accordance with the principle of proportional representation by means of the single transferable vote.

THE IMPERIAL BANK OF INDIA (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : Sir, I move for leave to introduce a Bill further to amend the Imperial Bank of India Act, 1920, for certain purposes. Sir, the objects and reasons for this Bill are so fully set out in the statement that I need say nothing more in explanation on this occasion. I would only like to remind the House that this Bill is very closely connected with, and indeed is consequential on, the Bill to set up a Reserve Bank for India, and that, following the procedure which was adopted on the last occasion, we consider it desirable that the two Bills should be considered together and we hope that the House will agree that the Imperial Bank of India (Amendment) Bill should be referred to the same Committee which will consider the Reserve Bank Bill. Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

''That leave be granted to introduce a Bill further to amend the Imperial Bank of India Act, 1920, for certain purposes.''

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

THE INDIAN LAC CESS (AMENDMENT) BILL.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai (Secretary, Department of Education, Health and Lands) : Sir, I move for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the Indian Lac Cess Act, 1930, for certain purposes.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

''That leave be granted to introduce a Bill to amend the Indian Lac Cess Act, 1930, for certain purposes.''

The motion was adopted.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

THE RESERVE BANK OF INDIA BILL.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : Sir, I beg to move :

''That this Assembly do recommend to the Council of State that the Bill to constitute a Reserve Bank of India be referred to a Joint Committee of this Assembly and of the Council of State with instructions to report on or before the 20th November, 1933, and that the Joint Committee do consist of 24 members.''

Sir, I desire to avoid making a long speech on this occasion. I imagine that there is practically complete agreement in this House on the main purpose of the Reserve Bank Bill, the main and primary purpose being, as I should describe it, to set up a Reserve Bank free from political influence. That, Sir, is the main principle of this Bill and, at this stage, it is not appropriate or indeed permissible to enter into any long discussion of details. We are now moving for reference to a Joint Committee, and as I am making that motion, I want to explain to the House as shortly as I can what are our reasons for having proposed this procedure and what is the nature of the business which that Committee would have to undertake. As regards our reasons for proposing this procedure, we have been mainly influenced by the fact that it was followed on the last occasion. We thought that as it had been adopted after very careful consideration on that occasion, and that as a precedent has been set up, that precedent, in the absence of very strong reasons to the contrary, should be followed.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh (Muzaffarpur cum Champaran : Non-Muhammadan) : What was the result of that precedent last time ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : The result of that precedent was at any rate a full discussion of that measure, but I trust that, on the present occasion, such discussion will lead to some more fruit-bearing results than on the last occasion.

Mr. B. Das (Orissa Division : Non-Muhammadan) : The Bill will be thrown out on clause 8.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : The procedure,—whatever my Honourable friends may think of the nature of the measure,—the procedure at any rate was acceptable on the last occasion to this Assembly and, as I say, unless there were very strong reasons to the contrary which we do not see, we felt it desirable to follow that procedure, because it seems to us not only to be an established precedent, but also to have a great deal to commend itself to us.

Then, I turn to another point as regards the procedure. Before the Committee sits, there will be ample time for all those sections of the public, that are interested in this measure, to study it and to put forward their opinions, and we should be very glad to receive opinions which can be laid before the Joint Committee—if this House approves the proposal to set up such a Committee. The matters for discussion being also of a highly technical nature, it would be our idea, if it is approved by the Committee, to arrange for certain individuals in this country who have expert experience on matters under discussion to attend the meetings of the Committee and give the Committee the benefit of their evidence and advice. (Hear, hear.) That, Sir, I think, is all I need say as regards the procedure.

[Sir George Schuster.]

I want next to say something as regards the nature of the business which the Committee will have to conduct, as I think it is important that the House, before it considers this motion, should clearly visualise what that Committee has got to do. The nature of the task is highly technical. There are three classes of questions which will have to be considered. First of all, there are the provisions of the original Bill which are being repeated without alteration in the present Bill. Then, there are those provisions in the present Bill where we have endeavoured to incorporate, as exactly as we can interpret them, the recommendations of the London Committee, —provisions where the present Bill differs from the original Bill. Lastly, there are those matters where the London Committee recommended that they should be the subject of further consideration in India.

Now, Sir, I need say nothing about the first class of questions that I have mentioned, the provisions of the present Bill which remain unaltered. As to the second class, the provisions, where important alterations have been made, I would just like to run over some of the main points so that the House may be reminded of them. There is the question of the denomination of shares, there is the question of voting rights—and here, I would remind the House that one important change in the present Bill is that there is no limit for maximum holding of shares by any individual, but there is a limitation on the voting rights that can be exercised by a single individual. Then, there is the question of the distribution of shares among the various areas in India as to which, I would remind the House that the areas have been somewhat differently defined in the present Bill. I would also like to call attention to one feature which, I hope, all Honourable Members will regard as satisfactory and that is, that, whereas in the former Bill all the Indian States would have been concentrated in the Delhi area and on the Delhi register, now the recommendation is—it is a recommendation which was supported by all the States representatives on the Committee—the recommendation is that the States shall be grouped where they geographically lie and that no distinction should be made between British India and the Indian States. That, Sir, I think, is a significant move towards the conception of a United India where there is no distinction, at any rate, for the purpose of ordinary life between British India and the Indian States. Then there is the provision as regards allotment of shares; there is a special direction in the present Bill that the Board, in allotting the shares, shall do so on the basis that they consider equitable in order to secure the widest possible distribution of shares. In the former Bill the provision was that after allotting one share to each applicant, the balance should be distributed by lot. We think that the present provision is a more satisfactory provision. Then there is the question of the Board of Directors. The present Bill contemplates a much smaller board, 16 instead of 24. Then there are the very important new provisions as regards the method of electing Directors. They are to be elected by local elective boards instead of by electoral colleges and these local boards will have a definite function and we hope that they will become a definite reality and not bodies just merely set up for the purpose of carrying out elections.

I next come to certain more technical matters. There is the question of the assets and liabilities of the Bank. On the liability side, there is one very important change. According to the present proposals, the Bank has to carry no liability for the redemption of silver rupees on return from circulation. Therefore, we propose no rupee redemption funds as was formerly considered to be necessary. The Government, according to our present proposals, will only ask the Bank to take over the stock of rupees which is considered sufficient for its own normal purposes, that is to say, 50 crores; and the liability for redeeming rupees in excess of that which may be returned from circulation and also the whole responsibility for disposing of the Government's present surplus stock of silver in excess of 50 crores of rupees will remain with the Government of India. Then, on the asset side, there is, of course, the important change that the whole question of gold is now on a different basis. But the Committee has recommended that although gold at present is worth 50 per cent. more than its nominal value according to the old parity, nevertheless gold in the reserves shall be valued at the old parity. I would remind Honourable Members that that means, if that provision is adopted, that the Bank would in present circumstances start with a hidden reserve of about 22 crores. Then there is the question of the proportion of gold to be held, the proportion of gold to the other reserves, which was the subject of very considerable discussion in London and which, I am sure, the Committee of this Legislature will want to consider in detail.

Another point is that the opening of a London Branch is in the present Bill made optional and various considerations as regards that are mentioned in the report. Then the last point that I would mention among the definite changes in the Bill is the question of the dividend on the shares. That was dealt with in the old Bill in clause 46 and in Schedule III and is dealt with in clause 44 and Schedule IV of the new Bill. Formerly the provision was that dividends should be 5 per cent. rising to a maximum of 7 per cent., and the proposal in the present Bill is that the fixed minimum dividend should be at a rate to be fixed by the Governor General in Council, so that it may be fixed at a rate appropriate to the conditions when the shares have been issued and that the maximum rate shall be 6 per cent. Whereas formerly it was 5 to 7 per cent., now it is up to 6 per cent. And, in mentioning that point, I would like to emphasise to the House that when there is a good deal of talk of handing over a very profitable enterprise to private shareholders, I would remind Honourable Members that according to these proposals the private shareholders cannot get more than a maximum of 6 per cent. dividend on their shares and that all surplus profits will still go to the Government.

Mr. B. Das: Why not a State Bank? Why a shareholders' bank?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster: Then, Sir, I return to the third class of points which I mentioned, points which have to be further considered in India. As regards those points, Honourable Members may have noticed that the Committee, in its report on certain occasions, recommended that a point should be further considered in India and on other occasions recommended that it should be further considered by the Government of India. I would also remind them that some of the points will be points for legislation and others will be points to be dealt with either in subsidiary agreements or merely in the form of laying down Government policy. But although there is that distinction between these different classes of points, I want to make it clear that we regard them all as intimately connected with the policy which is being put before the House in this Bill, and that we desire to have an opportunity of getting the opinions of representatives in this Legislature by discussion in Select Committee. Now, Sir, these points are in the main all technical points. There is the question of the nature of Government securities that the Bank should be allowed to purchase, clause 17, sub-clauses (7) and (8). The Committee held that the restrictions might be unduly restrictive and that point has got to be considered in Committee. Then there is clause 18, a clause dealing with the Bank's power to take part in open market operations in discounting bills. There, again, the Committee held that the old provision may be interpreted in too restrictive a way. That is another point for consideration. Then there is the question of the size of the initial reserves, how much ought to be held in the form of gold and sterling securities before it is safe to set the Bank up. The Committee adopted the old provision that the Bank should be started off with 50 per cent. of the reserves of that type, but has recommended that as the reserve provision has in a sense been reduced by the elimination of the rupee redemption fund, it should be considered whether that 50 per cent. ought not perhaps to be a bit higher. That is a very important point.

[Sir George Schuster.]

Then there is another question, the question of how the proceeds of sales of surplus silver by the Government are to be disposed of, because, with the altered arrangements which we now propose, the proceeds of those silver sales will not automatically go to the currency reserves. That is a question affecting the policy of Government and certainly demands most careful consideration. Then another point is the proportion of Government of India securities to be held in the currency reserves,—clause 31 of the old Bill and clause 33 of the new Bill. The Committee say that the limit proposed in the old Bill of 50 crores or one-quarter of the reserves, whichever is less, might unduly restrict the open market operations of the Bank. That, again, is a point which will require careful consideration. Then there is the point arising from what I have just said, of the valuation of gold reserves. If the gold reserves are to be valued at their existing parity, there is a chance of great profit being made either on the sale of a portion of those gold reserves or on a revaluation of the gold if at any time a different monetary system were to be adopted. The question of how such a profit, if it arose, should be disposed of is one which requires most careful consideration and has been referred by the London Committee for further consideration in India. Then there are the provisions as regards the Scheduled Banks; that matter again is being referred for further consideration here, and that is a very important question, for it raises the whole question of the relations between the odinary banks and the Reserve Bank. Then, lastly, there is that very important head, the question of the relations between the Reserve Bank and the Imperial Bank. The Committee recommended that a new agreement should be made with the Imperial Bank on the lines suggested in the case of the old Bill. So far as we are concerned, up to the present, we have merely inserted again in the Bill the old provisions, but we recognise that they require reconsideration. There is the question of the period for which the agreement should be made, and the terms on which the Imperial Bank should act as Agents for the Reserve Bank and the sort of remuneration which they should get for maintaining a number of branch offices. Lastly, there is the possibility of the question of some sort of compensation to the Imperial Bank on the occasion of this change. All those are matters which must be dealt with in the first place by negotiation between the Executive Government and the Directors of the Imperial Bank, but they are all matters on which we must consult the representatives of this Legislature in the Committee which has got to be set up.

Now, I have only selected some of the more important points which the Committee will have to consider; but I think after hearing my list, Honourable Members will realise that what I said in the beginning is true, that this is going to be a very technical business, on which we want to have the assistance, as far as possible, of all those in the House who are qualified to speak on technical matters of this kind. I have dealt with the main features of the Bill and what it does; and I just want to say that there is one thing which the Bill does not do. It does not purport to be a Bill for setting up a new monetary or currency system for India. It is merely a Bill to set up certain machinery for working the existing monetary system whatever that may be. The question of whether the existing monetary system should be changed is a matter which would have to be dealt with differently and separately.

Before I conclude, I think it might be of interest to the House if I said something as regards the practical possibilities of setting up the Bank in the near future. When this matter has been discussed before, there has always been an apprehension that the provision of currency reserves in the form of external securities, gold and sterling securities, might be a matter of great practical difficulty, and that delay in accumulating those reserves might lead to delay in setting up the Bank. If we look at the present position, I think at least there is reason for some satisfaction on that particular score. I do not say that we have already reached the necessary level, but we are very near it; and, if things go well, we should certainly attain to that position in the very near future. In fact it would be actually within our power to attain that position at the present moment. The position is as follows. I am giving the figures as on 31st August, 1933. The liabilities on the note issue were Rs. 179¾ crores; and, if we say, that there should be 50 per cent. of that available in gold and sterling securities, that means there ought to be Rs. 89.88 crores. On the 31st August, there was in the form of gold in the Paper Currency Reserve and the Gold Standard Reserve a sum of Rs. 44.49 crores and in sterling securities Rs. 38.16 crores or a total of Rs. 82.65 crores, against the fifty per cent. requirement of Rs. 89.88 crores. Therefore, there is only an actual shortage of Rs. 7.23 crores. On the same date the Treasury Balances in London were £13 millions sterling and there was still £3,870,000 to come in the form of final payment on the last loan. That means we had resources available in London of very nearly £17 millions. As against that, we have to consider that there is a liability of £10 millions to meet on the repayment of the £10 million 6 per cent. loan on the 15th December. Allowing for that liability we have £7 millions in hand. And a further transfer of £6 millions, providing for Rs. 8 crores, would be more than enough to fill the actual gap in the currency reserve. Lastly, one must consider, together with that, the fact to which I have already called attention that our gold is valued at the old parity and that at present prices there is a hidden reserve of unrealised profit of Rs. 22 crores on that gold holding.

I think if all those facts are considered together, one may say that the present situation is not an unsatisfactory one. What it will be when the time comes when we are administratively ready to set up the Reserve Bank is another matter, that depends on how things go in the interval. I would say nothing more than this, that when we bring forward this measure on the present occasion, we can say that we have at least reasonable ground for hoping that difficulty in providing currency reserves will not be a factor which will hold up the bringing into fruition of this scheme. Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Motion moved :

"That this Assembly do recommend to the Council of State that the Bill to constitute a Reserve Bank of India be referred to a Joint Committee of this Assembly and of the Council of State with instructions to report on or before the 20th November, 1933, and that the Joint Committee do consist of 24 members."

There are two amendments down on the paper, one in the name of Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya and the other in the name of Mr. S. C. Mitra. I propose to call on these Honourable Members to move their amendments and to throw open the discussion on the original motion together with the two amendments.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya (Madras : Indian Commerce) : Sir, I beg to rise to speak on the motion and also to move my amendment of which I have given notice :

"That the Bill to constitute a Reserve Bank for India be circulated for the purpose of eliciting opinion thereon by the 31st December, 1933."

But, before I proceed, let me first of all congratulate the Honourable the Finance Member on the good fortune he has in bringing a Bill of such importance during the tenure of his office. Now, you know the Honourable the Finance Member went to England to consult the authorities there and also took with him a party of gentlemen from this House, and it was something like a bridal party that went there, and we expected that we would get a very fine fairy of a Reserve Bank of India of which we will all be proud. But when he came back our disappointment was of the kind expressed in an Indian proverb :

"Bahu āyi Bahu āyi mèré man chāó Dolé mén sé nikalā Ghogad Belāó" which translated into English, means this :

"Lo ! The bride has come, the bride has come and we were overjoyed ; but when the palanquin, bearing the bride, was opened, we found a Tom Cat !"

Well, Sir, I do not wish to tire the House by giving a detailed history of the last Gold Standard and the Reserve Bank of India Bills of 1927 and 1928. I may, however, refer to one part of the procedure then adopted to show how the time of the House was wasted and how the Select Committee was appointed of 24 stout Knights and how they made a Report and how the whole thing was thrown into the waste paper basket on receipt of a confidential letter from the Secretary of State to the then Finance Member. I do not wish to re-open all that old story. I do not think that the public outside or this House, except the Members who had gone with the bridal party, to have had sufficient time to consider all aspects of the case, and that is why it is very necessary that the Bill should be referred for public opinion. The Honourable the Finance Member, in his speech, has told us of only one part of the procedure that was adopted. He said that the Select Committee was previously appointed, and how it held its meetings. May I remind him, Sir, that the real procedure adopted on the previous occasion was this—first the Bill was formally introduced, then it was circulated for public opinion and then referred to a Joint Select Committee. But, on this occasion, that part of the procedure to circulate for public opinion has been omitted and the matter is being rushed through by the Honourable the Finance Member, and he wants us to believe that he is giving us ample time for the consideration of the various points involved, but, in my opinion, Sir, it is not possible to obtain public opinion within such a short time on such a very important subject as this. It is hardly necessary for me to impress on this House the importance of this Bill. I, therefore, have to press my amendment in the matter and, in doing so, I may quote the very words of the Honourable the Finance Member in support of my amendment. When introducing the Bill the Finance Member has himself said :

"In framing and passing this Bill, we shall be doing something to shape the destinies of new India of the future under the new constitution."

Then, again, he said :

"On this Bill will depend the security and stability of Indian finances in the future", and that :

"the setting up of the Bank is an important step towards the new Constitution".

In his words :

"this is a matter which is attracting wide attention outside India and the eyes of many countries are on it".

In fact, the credit of India in the other countries will depend upon how the Reserve Bank of India is not only constituted, but also actually worked. We need not in future, if our Bank is a success, depend entirely on England for our loans, and to the extent we are able to inspire confidence by the constitution and working of the Bank and the stability and soundness of our currency policy and finance, we can hope to raise money from other countries at more reasonable and cheaper rates than we get from England and also relieve England from the responsibility and burden of providing money to us when they themselves have to meet heavy war dues. In fact, our solvency will depend upon the solvency of the Bank and the way in which it is constituted and is worked. Again, in the words of the Honourable the Finance Member :

"The country ought to have ample time to ruminate and deliberate, and there should be no disposition to rush through the Bill or attempt unwisely in a few weeks to push through a measure on which the future destiny of India so much depends."

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : The Honourable Member is quoting, as my own words, words which I put in the mouth of my critics. What the Honourable Member has just quoted is what I said that my critics have been saying in the press.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : I hope the Honourable the Finance Member will agree to all the other portions of what I have quoted from his speech though I may have misquoted one sentence. He has given sufficient reasons himself as to why the Bill should not be rushed through and sufficient time should be given to the public. I quite appreciate the anxiety of the Honourable the Finance Member to bestow this boon of the Reserve Bank of India as early as possible, but we must gauge public opinion and see whether the public are prepared to accept the boon in the present form and the manner in which it is proposed to be given to them. The Honourable the Finance Member has tried to convince us that the method he is adopting of referring the Bill to a Joint Select Committee of the Assembly and the Council of State and placing it before the House for passing it in November next is a correct procedure, and he thinks that the intervening period is quite enough for the public to examine the provisions of the Bill minutely. I quite appreciate the desire of the Honourable the Finance Member to give India a Reserve Bank. But, Sir, we have to consider whether the new Bank will be a change from " King Log " to " King Stork ".

My Honourable friend, the Finance Member, has spoken of the time table and also of the occasion which he has chosen. The time table is very brief. The Report of the London Committee was published in part in the press on the 16th August, and supplied to the Members of the House late on the 18th August, last. A copy of the Bill was made available only on the 8th instant. Unless the Bill was available, it was not possible to know which of the recommendations of the London Committee, on which Indians in general and the Indian Legislature in particular were so represented as declared by the Finance Member, were accepted. It is a travesty of facts to say that the London Committee was representative of either this House or of the larger public outside. It was rather constituted contrary to the original programme of the Secretary of State for India. In the report of the Financial Safeguards Committee of the Third Round Table Conference, it is placed on record that :

" the Secretary of State undertook that representative Indian opinion would be consulted in the preparation of proposals for the establishment of a Reserve Bank including those relating to the reserves ".

The Committee which sat in London and which has reported is not at all representative of Indian public opinion. It was, as usual, a packed committee of Government nominees and the members appointed thereon were not even elected by the Indian Central Legislature. The Government did not ask even the Central Legislature to elect them, nor the various Chambers or representative public bodies. I do not know what was the qualification and practical experience of some of the members who were picked up from the Assembly and the Council of State to deal with the question of a Reserve Bank. Several of them had open minds, that is, blank minds, ignorant of the subject. They were no doubt good and eminent men in their own way, but whether they were competent to deal with the subjects which have been described by the Honourable Member as so technical—whether they were competent to give their opinion on those matters is a different question. The Committee, therefore, merely said " ditto " to the old Bill of 1928. If the Secretary of State really desires representative Indian public opinion, the Bill must be circulated and then brought up before this House. The Indian press, the Indian Chambers and the public have all denounced the Report of the so-called representative London Committee.

Now, coming back to the time table of the Finance Member, the Honourable Member introduced the Bill at 11 A.M. on the 8th instant. The House sat the whole of that day, half of the next day, and there was besides a sitting of some Select Committee. Thus, practically one day only was allowed to the Members to " ruminate and deliberate ", to use the words of the Finance Member. Honourable Members opposite have a large battalion of well trained Secretaries and clerks and library of literature, and it may not even then be possible for them to go through the Bill in such a short time. But Members on this side who have not got the same facilities found it difficult to go through the Bill and consider it carefully within a period of 24 hours. The time given is too short even to discuss the principles. The task before Members on this side is to go carefully first, through the original Bill of 1927, then the modified Bill of the last Joint Select Committee, then the notorious Bill of 1928, fourthly, the recommendations of the Hilton-Young Commission, fifthly, the Central Banking Inquiry Committee's report and the discussions with the Foreign experts ; they have also to compare the Bill with the statutes of other countries who have recently gone off the gold standard and see whether the Bill, as it has been submitted to us, is really acceptable to this House or to the general public outside. I confess it is practically impossible for a Member to make a study of all these things in a day. There is no time even to consult one's own constituency like mine which is spread over 26 districts. The Indian commercial constituency of the Madras Presidency which I have the honour to represent in this House has the largest stake in the country and I have no time to consult them. I have forwarded copies of the Bill to several Chambers in the Madras Presidency, but they will get them only after the discussion in the House accepting the principle of this Bill is over.

The Joint Select Committee will meet in October, and, according to the motion of the Finance Member, the Committee is to report on or before the 20th November, by which time, according to the speech of His Excellency the Viceroy, the Bill will be placed before the House for passing it. Where is the time for the country to express its opinion on the Bill or as passed by the Joint Select Committee ? Even on the admission of the Finance Member, he " should have welcomed more time ", and, according to his own words, " only a short time has elapsed since the publication of the London Committee's report " and, though the Committee made certain definite proposals, they recommended that " several important points on which it was unable to make final recommendations should receive further consideration in India ". The Finance Member again said :

" As regards the definite proposals, we have endeavoured to incorporate those as exactly as we can interpret them in the Bill. As regards the points which were to receive further consideration in India, (and these include some of the points which are not subject to legislation by a Bill, but which will have to be dealt with in subsidiary agreements), I have not had time since my return to give the full consideration they deserve. We desire to consider them in consultation with the Legislature before we commit ourselves finally to definite proposals."

The Finance Member would not, in his anxiety to place the Reserve Bank on the Statute, give enough time to the public to express their views on the present Bill, nor are these subsidiary agreements placed before the House. Unless we consider them also, it is not possible to fully understand the full significance of the Bill and the implications of the agreements.

He has said that the public is already familiar with the 1928 Bill. But the three Bills,—the Bill of 1927, that of the Joint Select Committee of 1927, and that of 1928,—have confused the public. The original Bill of 1927 was circulated by the Government for opinion. Then it went to the Joint Select Committee and there was thus enough time given to the public. Why not follow that procedure ? The Bill of 1928 fell through. Six or seven years have passed and the heavens have not fallen for want of a Reserve Bank, as it was then thought when the Bill was rejected. So, when we have waited for the last six or seven years, a little more time, say six or eight months more would not matter very much.

Now, coming to the occasion which he has chosen, in his own way it is no doubt an excellent one. Government can get any Bill passed in any shape and in any manner. They have got a majority and if they bring a proposition, that the sun rises in the west, it will be passed by this House. The Government have got a clear majority. The confusion among the parties, the absence of a large number of Members, the scramble for a seat on the Joint Select Committee (Hear, hear), the anticipation of occupying a seat by some of us in the House on the new Bank are very good opportunity for the Government. Why should they not take advantage of it ?

An Honourable Member : Make hay while the sun shines !

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : The Honourable the Finance Member says :

"We did not think it fair to risk that delay and uncertainty in getting the legislation and it is important that steps should be taken in advance of the inauguration of the new constitution."

As such, they do not want to take the risk of the Bill being rejected by the new body which may come hereafter, and they wish to take full advantage of the present situation. I would ask whether it is a fair thing for the Government to do. The proper time for the Bill would have been after the new Assembly is constituted and the monetary chaos is over. The Bill itself says :

"Whereas in the present disorganisation of the monetary systems of the world it is not possible to determine what will be suitable as a permanent basis of the Indian monetary system"; and it further says :

"But whereas it is expedient to make temporary provision on the basis of the existing monetary system, and to leave the question of the monetary standard best suited to India to be considered when the international monetary position has become sufficiently clear and stable to make it possible to frame permanent measures."

Why not take some breathing time and consult the country and pass the Bill with their support.

I now come to the Bill itself. As in the case of the Bill of 1928, the Reserve Bank is to be a Shareholders' bank. The Bill proposes that it shall relieve the Secretary of State for India and the Government of India of some of the administrative functions relating to Indian Finance and Currency. After a century of administration by the notorious East India Company, the British Parliament decided to transfer the administration to the British Crown and it would be regrettable if, after another 75 years only, they were to take the retrograde step of retransferring one of the most important branches of the administration to a private company—another East India Company. In theory, the advocates of the establishment of a shareholders' bank may have some good reasons and some examples in other countries on their side but, in practice, I believe it would not subserve the best interests of India. The Reserve Bank's business should be to encourage Gold Currency and to provide India with Gold Reserves, but it will be run by men who are not prepared to encourage the getting of gold for fear of disturbing the European money markets. They feel that their first duty is to the London money market and the need of India is only a secondary consideration. The Reserve Bank, unless it be a national body, representing all Indian interests, has no right to be constituted or designated as the Reserve Bank of India to manage Indian finance and currency. By experience Indians find that the full benefit of similar institutions, ostensibly started for India, do not reach further than the White Community in India. It is not possible for a sectarian bank with an alien control to approach finances from an Indian standpoint. When once a particular community gets hold of a certain advantage, it naturally tries to retain it.

From the facts and figures given in a recent letter of one of the leading Indian Chambers, the Southern India Chamber of Commerce, Madras, addressed to the Honourable the Finance Member only last month, it will be clear that in the three old Presidency Banks and the present Imperial Bank of India the European element largely predominates and in the new Reserve Bank of India also, looking into the complicated constitution contained in the Bill, the European element will predominate and the Indian interests will be subordinated. I am afraid that owing to the conflicting interests of multifarious communities covering such a large continent as India, it is difficult to constitute a shareholders' institution to look after the interests of India. Local influence is likely to be in the ascendent and other parts of the country are likely to be neglected as has happened in the case of the Imperial Bank of India, and we find some indication of it in the Bill. The representation, for instance, of the Madras Presidency has been curtailed. In the original Bill, the meetings were to be held in Madras also, but now there will be no meetings at Madras and there is fear of the interests of other parts of India being neglected. Bombay and Calcutta will have a lion's share and, as such, the question of the establishment of the head office of the Bank will also have to be considered, just as the Government of India felt that it was not safe for them to remain in Calcutta and they transferred the capital and came to Delhi.

I will now read some portions of the letter of the Southern India Chamber of Commerce which will clearly show how the European interests predominate. In the past, the Bank of Madras did not contain a single Madrasi from 1843 to 1917. In the Bank of Bengal, there was not a single Bengali and it is only in the case of Bombay they had two Indians on the Board. They took them because it was absolutely necessary in the interests of the Bank and the Bank could not get on without them. Otherwise, they would not have had them. The Imperial Bank of India is no doubt in a sense imperial. They have got a lot of Europeans on it, both in the local Boards as well as on the Central Board. This letter clearly proves that the management of a bank of shareholders is a fraud on the public. The Secretary of the responsible Chamber writes :

" (1) I am directed by my Committee to address the Government of India on the question of the practical working of the Imperial Bank of India Act XLVI of 1920 in the three head offices at Calcutta, Bombay and Madras and in the Central Board and request you to be good enough to introduce necessary amendments of the Act at an early date. You will no doubt recognise that the experience of the working of the Imperial Bank of India Act during the last 12 years ought to give a timely warning to the Government of India so that the defects of this statute might not be mechanically repeated in the new Reserve Bank of India Bill and my Committee are anxious for a further reason that the Government of India should closely examine just at this time the drawbacks of this legislation because the establishment of a Reserve Bank would necessitate an amendment of the Imperial Bank of India Act and the Government are probably already drafting an amending Bill for the purpose.

(2) Traditions of the old Presidency Banks.—The Act of 1920 dubbed the Imperial Bank of India as the successor of the three old Presidency Banks and like a true successor the former has been carrying out its rich heritage of the history and traditions of the Presidency Banks with redoubled vigour and enthusiasm. By an omnibus provision in section 27 of the Act, the several persons who were the directors of the three Presidency Banks constituted the first Local Boards of the Imperial Bank of India at Calcutta, Bombay and Madras respectively and the persons who were then President, Vice-President and Secretary, respectively, of the Presidency Banks filled the same offices in the respective local boards of the Imperial Bank of India.

(3) My Committee find the present position of the Calcutta Head Office of the Imperial Bank an exact reflex of what the ' Capital ', the leading Anglo-Indian Commercial journal of the country, described of it a few years before the amalgamation of the Presidency Banks."

Now come the trenchant remarks of the Capital, the representative organ of the Anglo-Indian community in India :

" The Directorate of the Bank of Bengal has always been a very close borough, confined to certain favoured firms, some sixteen in number : of those firms three went bankrupt, one having its certificate suspended and six have closed up their business, so that only seven remain to draw directors from—Messrs. Jardine, Skinner and Company, and Gillanders, Arbuthnot and Company, have had a member of their firm a director during the past half century at least. They evidently have a freehold tenure of this position.

Of the present Board Messrs. Geo. Handerson and Company, came on the scene in 1873, Messrs. Begg, Dunlop and Company in 1888 and Messrs. Turner, Morrison and Company in 1893."

One or the other of the partners of these firms always managed to be there. Even if a Director goes on leave or furlough, a junior or other partner gets in. Sometimes it so happens that they do not find even a junior partner of that particular firm and then they keep the seat vacant and warm for this partner of the same firm to fill it up later :

" The defunct firms are : Colvin, Cowie and Company, Gisborne and Company, Crooke, Rome and Company, who came on prior to 1860, Mackillop, Stewart and Company, 1861, Shand, Fairlie and Company, 1863, Lyall, Rennie and Company, 1866, Ashburner and Company and Carlisle Nephews, 1871, John Elliot and Company, 1885.

Messrs. Kettlewell, Bullen and Company, who were in the first batch of firms, dropped out for some time, and then reappeared with the advent of Mr. Aitkin only to disappear. Messrs. Hoare, Miller and Company, who entered an appearance in 1862, seem out of favour now, Messrs. Begg, Dunlop and Company, in whose firm the late Secretary's brother was a partner, were admitted in 1888, but their Mr. J. F. Macnair having, it is said, been too independent, their firm, when he resigned in 1893, languished under the cold shade of the Secretary's displeasure, and their contempt was not brought to notice until a few years ago."

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The House now stands adjourned till Half Past Two.

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till Half Past Two of the Clock.

The Assembly re-assembled after Lunch at Half Past Two of the Clock, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) in the Chair.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : When the House adjourned for Lunch, I was reading an extract from the Capital and, with your permission, I shall read the remaining portion now. The writer says :

" Now, I am not sure that this arrangement, under which a seat on the direction of the Bank of Bengal becomes apparently an asset in the partnerships of certain firms, is an absolutely wise and prudent one. The firms in question are undoubtedly of the highest standing ; but firms, even of the highest standing do not possess a monopoly of all those requisites which go to make an ideal bank director. It is common knowledge that the partners of these firms have not always been men of outstanding ability."

I wish to draw the special attention of the House to what I am going to read further :

" The aim of the Bank should be to secure the very best men, not to have the partners in certain firms running in and out of the Board room with their qualifying scrip like dogs at a fair. Firms like Apcar and Company, Balmer Lawrie and Company, Duncan Brothers and Finlay Muir and Company, etc."

I omit other names given by the journal :

" could all have furnished able Directors and brought business which is an important item. But the man in the street, rightly or wrongly, has an idea that the Directors have no independence and are simply dummies or pawns for the Secretary to play with. The present is a convenient time to change all this."

Now, I come back to the letter written by the Southern India Chamber of Commerce on the working of the Imperial Bank of India during the last 12 years. The state of affairs mentioned in the article of the Capital is practically repeated in the Imperial Bank of India. The Secretary of the Chamber says :

" I enclose statement No. I which contains the names of the Local Board Members from 1921 to 1932 on the Imperial Bank of India at Calcutta compiled from the published half yearly reports. From this it will be clear that the present Board of Directors at Calcutta head office have been ' a very close borough ' practically confined to seven favoured firms during all these years except for an occasional isolated departure. Messrs. Turner Morrison and Company, James Findlay and Company, Bird and Company, Gillander Arbuthnot and Company, George Henderson and Company, Jardine Skinner and Company, and Prankissen Law and Company, all these had a freehold tenure of the Calcutta Board, some Director or partner of which Companies or firms always being able to secure a seat on the Board from year to year. When it so happened in any year, a suitable partner or Director from the caucus of firms and companies was not available, the Board has gone the length of keeping the vacancy unfilled in direct contravention of Regulation No. 45 (1) of Schedule II of the Act which says that ' any vacancy.....shall be filled up by the remaining members.....'. Adding the number of years the partners and Directors of some of those concerns had occupied a seat on the Board of the Bank of Bengal, it will be found that certain firms have had the privilege of a reserved seat on the management of the institution for a period of 40 to 80 years. The above statement also makes it clear how a seat on the direction of the Imperial Bank of India has become apparently an asset in the partnership of these firms."

They have sent in support of this a statement No. I in which on the one side we have got each half year from 1921 to 1932, and on the other side, the names of the firms whose partners have been on the directorate.

[Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya.]

The firm of Messrs. Turner Morrison and Co. has had Mr. Smith, M.L.C. on the directorate. Then their partner Sir Robert Watson Smyth for three half years. Their partners Mr. Edmundson, and Mr. T. V. Dowding, then Mr. Edmundson who continued for five half years. Then, again, came Mr. Dowding for a half year, then Mr. Edmundson again and Mr. Cunningham. Again Mr. Dowding followed by Mr. Cunningham. Now, in 1932, they have got no seat.

Similarly, in the table of directors, of Messrs. James Findlay and Co., Ltd., Mr. Langford James continued for four half years, Mr. Tessi for another four half years, then Mr. Reid Kay, then again Mr. Tessi came, for five half years, then Mr. Reid Kay. Again Mr. Tessi and Mr. J. Reid Kay, all these partners of the same firm.

As for Messrs. Bird and Co., Mr. Carey continued for a number of years till Mr. Benthal came and he continued till 1932.

Then, from the firm of Messrs. Prankissén, Raja Rishi Case Law began in 1921 and continued till June 1932 when after him the partner of Messrs. Prem Chand Janaki Das Sitanath Roy came, that is Mr. J. N. Roy took his place. I may inform the House that Raja Rishi Case Law is about 90 years of age.

Similarly in the case of Messrs. Gillanders Arbuthnot and Co., the partner Mr. Eddis came for a year, then Mr. Ad'A. Willis who continued for 4 half years, then Mr. Eddis for 3 half years, then Mr. Kellock came and then Mr. Gladstone and so all their partners have been coming for years together on the directorate and they have been getting a warm welcome.

As regards Messrs. George Henderson and Co., their partners served for 50 years on the Bank of Bengal and this continued for another 12 years on the Imperial Bank. Their partners have been Mr. Meares, Mr. Mackenzie, Mr. Will, and again Mr. Mackenzie.

Similarly the partners of Jardine Skinner came, first Sir Alexander Murray, and he continued for about five years, then Mr. Austin came in and then again Sir Alexander Murray for three half years. Then Mr. Austin entered and continued for about four half years. Once Mr. Hunter also occupied the seat for 6 months. Then, Mr. Austin continued for 5 half years till December, 1932.

Now, Sir, recently on the representation made by the Southern India Chamber of Commerce and when they drew the attention of the Honourable the Finance Member, he was kind enough to put another Indian ; till now there was only one Indian and then in 1930, they invited Rai Badri Das Goenkar Bahadur to join the directorate and he has been continuing.

This is the story of the Imperial Bank Board, Calcutta, and now we come to the Imperial Bank Board at Bombay. The Committee of the Chamber says :

"My Committee note with regret that the conditions in Bombay have been very similar. It is found that the partners or Directors of seven firms or companies have had a practical monopoly of the seats of the Bombay Local Board. The firms and companies which have been enjoying this unrestricted privilege of determining the conduct and administration of the Bombay Head Office of the Imperial Bank of India have been,—Messrs. Bombay Company, Limited, David Sassoon and Company, Limited, Killick Nixon and Company, Forbes, Forbes, Campbell and Company, Limited, Currimbhoy Ibrahim and Company, and Narandas Rajaram and Company. Besides those firms and companies one or two individuals also have had the good fortune to become a permanent fixture of the Bombay Local Board. The Bombay Board has even improved upon the Bengal Board in this. While in Bengal the partners of the favoured firms have been running in and out of the Board rooms with their qualifying scrips, in Bombay the self-same partners or Directors have been driven by an inexorable fate to hold the position from year to year for 8 years in the case of one firm and for 10 years in the case of 5 other firms. Moreover, two of the firms have been simultaneously represented either on the Calcutta Board or on the Madras Board."

I will read the statement later on.

Now, coming to my own province, they say :

"In the case of Madras it will be found from Statement (3) that just as in the cases of Bengal and Bombay the Board of Directors has been more or less a monopoly of five firms, viz., Messrs. Parry and Company, Gordon Woodroffe and Company, Bombay Company, Limited, Best and Company, Limited, as well as a solicitors' firm now known as Moresby and Thomas but which has thrice renovated itself by change of name and partnership. The partners or Directors of these firms and companies have practically had an assured career on the Local Board of the Imperial Bank ever since its commencement and they used to hold a seat on the Board of the old Bank of Madras. Some of the Directors had to vacate their seats when their firms were closed or when they died. It will be seen from the same Statement that the individuals now sitting on the Board have seen long years in the appointment."

In support of that we have got the statement of Bombay. It is interesting to note how the Directors come into the Board and it has even been suggested that the shares are held by the firm and not by the Directors. So, as soon as one partner wants to go in, the shares are transferred to him and, if other partners want to go, the shares are transferred to them ; and so it goes on.

Now, coming to the Bombay Circle, we have got the Bombay Company from 1921-1932. We find Mr. Gillum and then Mr. Goodall, again Mr. Gillum and again Mr. Goodall, and so on, till 1927, then Mr. Macdonell, again Mr. Goodall and again Mr. Macdonell again, there after Mr. Moore and Mr. Macdonell.

Then, in the case of Currimbhoy Ibrahim and Co., we find that Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy continues from 1921 to 1932 and, in the case of David Sassoon and Co. also, Mr. Sawyer continues from 1921 to June 1932.

Then, in the case of Messrs. Killick Nixon and Co., we get Sir Thomas Birkett, then Mr. Hebbelthwaite, then Mr. Annesley. Again, Mr. Hebbelthwaite and, then, again, Mr. Annesley for about 8 years and then Mr. Reid.

Then we come to Sir Jamsetjee Jeejeebhoy who was Director from 1921 to December 1930. Then we come to Messrs. Forbes, Forbes, Campbell and Co. There was Mr. Bunbury up to December, 1923, and then partner Mr. Grantham and, again, Mr. Bunbury for 5 half years, then Mr. Fox and, again, Mr. Bunbury for 8 half years with Mr. Fox in the interval.

Then we come to Messrs. Narandas Rajaram & Co., where we find Sir Purshottamdas Thakurdas who entered in 1922 and still continues either as President or Vice-President alternately from 1924—1932, which is against the Imperial Bank of India Act. And then some other people also come in now and then probably to relieve the monotony.

Then we come to the Madras Board. There we find under Parry & Co., their partner Mr. Buchanan, then Mr. Wood for some years and then Mr. Wright, and then Mr. Wood and Mr. Wright changing alternately from 1924 to 1932.

Then the partners of Brightwell and Moresby, first Mr. Brightwell, then Mr. Moresby, then Mr. Taylor, then, again, Mr. Moresby, then Mr. Small and then Mr. Thomas.

[Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya.]

Then, coming to Messrs. Gordon Woodroffe & Co., we find Sir James Simpson and then Mr. Strouts, and these two gentlemen carry on alternately from 1921 to 1932.

Then, coming to the Directors of the Bombay Co., Ltd., we find Mr. Rae, then Mr. Hearson alternately till 1927, then Mr. Moore and, again, Mr. Hearson from 1928 to 1932.

Then, coming to the Best & Co., we find Sir Thomas Ross, then Sir Gordon Fraser, then Mr. Mackenzie Ross again and then the Director of the Taylor & Co.

Then we have the firm of the South Indian Industrials, Ltd., and its Director Mr. Haji Muhammad Ibrahim Sait, and then he went away when the South Indian Industrials went into liquidation, and Rao Bahadur V. T. Chetty came in.

Then, we have got some others and then the partners of Walker and Co. Then, we have got Raja Sir Annamalai Chettiyar for five full years and Mr. I. V. Ramaswamy Mudaliar for about 14 to 15 half years. But, in justice to the Imperial Bank in Madras, I must say that they had temporarily four Indians on the Board for three or four weeks and only three Europeans. It was more to bring out in prominence what they were doing otherwise in the past. Now I have read the three lists of the three circles.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir (Bombay City : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : Did the Bank crash, because there were four Indians ?

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : No : it did not. Then I come to the local boards. See what the Chamber says :

" General view of the Local Boards.—The three statements mentioned above make quite clear certain broad features common to them all as to members of the same family. The Directors are confined to certain favoured firms and companies within a charmed circle, whose boundaries are very jealously guarded. They evidently have a freehold tenure of the direction of the bankers of the Government of India. "

These are not my words but the words of the Chamber, a responsible body. Again it says :

" It may be admitted that this is apparently due to the apathy on the part of the shareholders who for some reason or other have not succeeded in taking interest in the elections at the Annual Meetings. There is no doubt that one chief reason for this apathy is the fact that the management hold in their pockets a large block of proxies to thwart any attempt to elect anybody outside the caucus..... ".

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : Whose are the proxies ? Are they of Indians or of Europeans ?

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : Of Europeans.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : Are you sure of your facts ?

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : Yes. For example when one of the Indians wanted to be an auditor of the Imperial Bank, one of the Secretaries threatened him with dire penalties ; that gentleman then went to Bombay.....

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : I am asking a question as to how many Indians there are among the shareholders in the Imperial Bank who give proxies.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : I do not know the exact number. But this much I can say. There are some members who are specially called on that day to attend the meeting to thank the directors for their little mercies, and so forth.

Now to take up the letter :

" In order to show you at a glance the nature of attendance at the meetings of the shareholders "—(the letter says)—" I am directed to attach hereto statements 4 and 5 setting out the number of shareholders of the Imperial Bank of India present in person and by proxy at the General Meetings as well as at the local General Meetings at Calcutta, Bombay and Madras. They indicate what an abnormal number of proxies are whipped up each time to decide the election of the Directors and Auditors. It is clear that at the latter meetings not more than a dozen shareholders attend ordinarily at Calcutta and Madras and less than two dozen at Bombay. The members usually present consist of Directors, ex-Directors, officers of the bank and their brokers. There have been occasions when only Directors are left to elect themselves or their successors which must be a matter of a couple of minutes only—you will notice, for instance, that in the year 1926 there were only 4 members present at the Madras meeting. Thus the shareholders have practically no say in the matter and exercise absolutely no control. "

I will read those statements which will give a somewhat clear idea and answer also to my leader, Sir Cowasji Jehangir's question. This statement is about General Meetings of the Shareholders. In 1921, at Calcutta, the number present in person was 11, while the proxies were 665. In 1922, at Bombay, 33 were present in person, while the proxies were 881. In 1923, at Madras, 41 were present in person, while the proxies were 1,621. Here I want to say this. There was a little tussle between an Indian auditor and one of the Secretaries of the Bank, and the Secretary said " You dare not enter this charmed circle and I will teach you a lesson ". Then the auditor went to Bombay and, with the help of some of his friends there, was able to get about a thousand proxies, while the Bank had only 600 ; and the result was that the Bank came down on its knees and begged him not to propose some other Indians in the place of the other two European auditors and then a compromise was reached and that is why 41 were present in person on this occasion. On this occasion, as I have said, 1,621 proxies were collected by both the parties. In 1924, at Calcutta, 16 were present in person while the proxies were 908. In 1925, at Bombay, 34 were present in person and the proxies were 841. In 1926, in Madras, only 13 were present in person while the proxies were 788. In 1927, in Calcutta, 36 were present, while the proxies were 807. Then there was a special meeting which we need not take into consideration. But there also it was 37 and 815, respectively, when the question of establishing a Reserve Bank came up. In 1928, at Bombay, 32 were present in person and by proxies 812. In 1929, in Madras, the numbers were 22 and 788 ; in 1930, in Calcutta, 12 were present and 740 were proxies. In 1931, in Bombay, 176 were present and 954 were proxies. That was the year when there was a trouble and walk-out and apologies in the meeting. In 1932, in Madras, 19 were present with 1,198 proxies.

I now come to the Local General Meetings and the number of shareholders present in person and by proxy. The numbers present in person in the Calcutta meetings are 7, 8, 9, 11, 8, 10, 15, 8, 10, 10, 21, and 18 respectively from 1921 to 1932 : of course these consist of the directors, the secretaries and ex-directors and their friends. The number of proxies for the years from 1922 to 1932 are 255, 268, 276, 264, 232, 285, 280, 266, 255, 315, and 422. This goes to confirm the idea that they have got practically permanent proxies also. The numbers present in Bombay for the same period, that is 1921 to 1932, are 32, 18, 25, 20, 16, 18, 17, 13, 19, 21, 97, 43 and 47 in person, and in Madras for the same period there were 11, 7, 15, 10, 10, 4, 9, 14, 12, 13, 11, and 13 : while the number of proxies were,

[Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya.]

Sheets of the Imperial Bank of India should not indicate this position while, in the case of ordinary Banks of the country, it is a statutory obligation under the Indian Companies Act, 1913.

Mr. S. C. Mitra (Chittagong and Rajshahi Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : What is the inference ? Do they borrow largely ?

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : I can't say anything about it, but it is for the general public to draw their own inference.

Then, they make a suggestion as to how the Imperial Bank Act requires to be amended at an early date, and the recommendations are :

" (1) That no firm or company shall be represented on any Local Board or any Central Board of Directors of the Bank for more than five years under any circumstances.

(2) That no single partner or Director of any firm or company shall be a Director of the Bank for two terms in succession. Similarly for the Auditors' firms.

(3) That either the President or Vice-President in any Local Board shall be an Indian in any year, and none shall be either a President or Vice-President for two years in succession.

(4) That no Local Board Member or Governor on the Central Board or Secretary or the Auditor shall be more than 60 or 65 years old.

(5) That no Director or Officer of the Bank shall act as proxy for any shareholder or canvass for proxies and that the system of granting permanent proxies shall be abolished.

(6) That no single person shall be proxy for more than three shareholders and that no shareholder should have more than 12 votes."

Under the present Imperial Bank of India Act, it is open to one single man to sit with a number of proxies and carry on the meeting :

" That the liabilities of the Directors of Firms or Companies with which they are connected, to the Bank will be disclosed in the half-yearly Balance Sheets as required by other Banks under the Indian Companies Act."

I have finished with the letter of the Southern India Chamber of Commerce. The Chamber have collected the information very carefully and the defects indicated by them ought to be a lesson to us for our future guidance.

Thus, I have conclusively proved that even under the best drawn scheme for a shareholders Bank the Directors are practically left to pass the accounts submitted by themselves, to re-elect themselves or their successors, or to appoint Auditors of their own choice to audit their accounts. Owing to the apathy of the shareholders the Directors comply with just the formalities required by law to issue the report and a balance sheet. Thus, the control and direction of the Bank is vested in a group of men responsible to nobody but themselves without any effective supervision by the Government. Under clauses 8 to 16 of the Bill the Governor and the Deputy Governor will have the Bank in their pockets. The Directorates of the Reserve Bank Board as well as the Local Boards will be closed boroughs confined to certain favoured firms and the Directors will practically be mutes. The Directors even by election under the scheme will have no independence but will be simply dummies or pawns for the Governors and the local agents to play with, as is the case with the Imperial Bank of India. Whenever any information is sought about the Bank or Indianisation is pressed, the Government will say the Bank is a private body and they cannot give any information and must leave it to the Directors to do as they like. The question is whether the Indian currency and banking is to be handed over to one or two Great Moghuls of the Reserve Bank of India under the Constitution as contained in the Bill. The election of the Directors will be in the hands of the Executive by whipping up proxies through the influence of those who are indebted to them or their agencies.

Mr. B. Das : Do you mean to say that the Directors are indebted to the Imperial Bank ?

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : That is a question for the Imperial Bank of India to answer.

I have taken so much time of the House in giving these necessary details so that they may fully understand the implications of the Shareholders' Bank. The country has unmistakably expressed that the Reserve Bank should be a State Bank. The last Bills were lost on account of that. The London Committee sitting at a distance of 6,000 miles had simply adopted the Bill of 1928 with certain modifications. It is no use dismissing the constitution of a State Bank only on a mere phrase of " political influence ". Why should not the Government ask the country what they want ? The Government which is the biggest political party in the country chooses to call the Directors elected by the Legislatures as politicians. The Government nominate five Directors and in the beginning still more. They would represent the Government polities. Yet the kettle calls the pot black !

Another reason for my asking the Bill to be circulated for public opinion is that the country does not want to be tied to the coat tail of England. England is establishing a chain of Central Banks throughout the Empire and naturally requires the formation of a Reserve Bank of India so that the Bank may be an annexe of the Bank of England to carry out its prearranged policy. The country should be given an opportunity to express whether they want a real and honest Gold Standard or only Paper Sterling Standard and an independent Bank. Under the provisions of the Bill the currency notes are not convertible in gold. You may take silver coins or sterling. As I had to tell the House once before that if this Bill is to be put on the Statute-book I shall have to use an epigram which was in vogue in the time of Pitt :

" Of Augustus and Rome,
The poets still warble.
How he found it of brick,
And left it of marble."

" So, of Schuster and Ind
Men may say without vapur,
That he found it of gold,
And left it of paper." (Laughter.)

The idea, I believe, of the British Government has been to give India a real Gold Standard with Gold Currency, but owing to the peculiar circumstances over which England had no control she had to go off the Gold Standard. I do not see why they should drag India to follow their fall. It was open to the Finance Member to secure all the distressed gold which has gone out of India and create a sufficient Gold Reserve to keep India on Gold basis instead of tying the Rupee to the Sterling which has so heavily depreciated in terms of Gold. Formerly, an ounce of gold could be secured for £3-17-6 The depreciated Sterling or paper of the face value of over £6 has to be paid to secure an ounce of gold, and even that is difficult to procure.

as regards Bombay, 494, 553, 550, 538, 494, 483, 478, 477, 466, 437, 845, 870, and 583 : while the figures for Madras proxies are 54, 70, 111, 88, 87, 69, 63, 57, 46, 42, 75 and 127.

I now come back to the letter. It goes on to say :

" As a result of such manipulation at meetings, it has been found that, as shown in Statement No. 6, the election of auditors also goes in stereotyped lines, partners of the same four firms being repeatedly elected. It is hardly fair to the public who as shareholders, as depositors and as taxpayers are deeply interested in the bank's affairs, to elect the same persons repeatedly to do this work which involves great responsibility to the public. The auditors have further made a domestic affair of this responsible work by segregating the work of each one, which is quite contrary to the intentions of the Act and of the shareholders. Regulation 52 evidently implies that all the auditors are to examine all the accounts jointly and be responsible for the work as a whole.

(8) Ex-officio members of the Central Board.—The statements indicate the names of the Presidents and Vice-Presidents as well as the Secretaries of the several Local Boards who have been ex-officio Governors of the Central Board. In Calcutta the President has been for a decade only a European, and the Vice-President has also been so, except for the fact that Rajah Reshee Case Law was permitted to be a Vice-President on two occasions. In this manner as large a representation of Europeans on the Central Board as is statutorily possible has been successively secured. In Bombay one of the Directors had been alternately holding the President's and Vice-President's office continuously for over 7 or 8 years, which appears to be in direct contravention of the letter and spirit of Proviso to 44 (1) which requires that no person shall be chosen to be President or Vice-President ' twice in succession '. There are some cases where proviso to section 44 (1) has been broken out. It may be said to the credit of the Bombay Board, however, that two Indians were given reasonable chances of being President and Vice-President. In Madras it was only after a serious protest was made by this Chamber in 1929 that any Indian was occasionally given the supreme privilege of entering the sanctum sanctorum. But no Indian has yet been found fit to be elected President in the Madras Local Board and no Indian has yet adorned that place except perhaps in a stop-gap arrangement when the permanent incumbent was out of India on leave.

(9) A Central Board so peculiarly constituted mostly of ex-officio European members can hardly pretend to give fair play to the needs of Indian merchants or manufacturers."

Here I may stop for a moment to give an explanation. The Board of the Imperial Bank is constituted of a President, Vice President and Secretary being ex-officio Members of the Central Board. The result is that they always succeed in getting a majority of nine Europeans on the Central Board of the Imperial Bank.....

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : May I remind my Honourable friend that we are discussing a Reserve Bank Bill and not the Imperial Bank. There is a Bill dealing with the Imperial Bank, but I fail to see how the constitution of the present Board of the Imperial Bank is relevant to the proposals in this Bill. The Reserve Bank will have a Board constituted on an entirely different basis. I may also remind my friend that he himself complained that sufficient time was not given to consider the provisions of this Bill, and I suggest that he himself will not be giving very much help to the House by considering the provisions of a Bill which is not before the House.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : I am alluding to this point merely because to show to the House how the shareholders of the Bank similarly constituted could not control, how in the case of Bank of Bengal, Madras and Bombay the shareholders were totally helpless or took no care to control, and I may add that in the year 1866, in spite of the shareholders' Bank and with a Government Director nominated on it the Bank went to dogs. That was in 1866. Then in the case of the Imperial Bank, the scheme is practically the same. I want to make it clear whether the shareholders control the Directors and whether they have any effective hand in the management or not. All that the Directors do is they go on re-nominating themselves over and over again and things go on merrily for the Directors. (Laughter.) The same history may be repeated here.

Now, Sir, coming to the Central Board, as the Secretary says :

" I enclose a statement No. 9 which sets out the names of the four Governors nominated by the Government of India under section 28 (1) in each year in succession."

I want Honourable Members to kindly listen carefully to this part, and see how the Government nominates members in such cases, and what is the effect of their nomination :

" My Committee very much regret to note that the Government of India in making the nominations have put into the shade all the Local Boards. It will be observed that the Honourable Sir Dinshaw Wacha, aged 89 years (born on the 22nd August, 1844) has been nominated continuously from 1921 to 1932 in spite of the bad state of his health so well known. Similarly, Sir R. N. Mukharjee, aged 80 (born on the 23rd June, 1853) has been on the Board continuously except for a break of one year, i.e., 1923. The Honourable Sir Maneckjee Dadabhoy, aged 68 (born on the 30th July, 1865) was continuously nominated until when the Government could not do so owing to his election as the President of the Council of State. The nomination of the 4th Governor has shown some show of refreshing contrast though it has its own peculiar and interesting features. In re-nominating, the same person over and over again the Government have overlooked the physical disabilities of age, the claims of the different provinces and the needs of the institution for liberalising and broadbasing the banking policy of the country. Indian interests of Bengal and Madras go practically without any ex-officio representative on the Central Board, although there are 9 ex-officio seats allotted on the Central Board. It is so constituted that there is an assured majority of 11 or 12 Europeans against 4 Indians and such a Board can hardly be expected to deal fairly with Indian interests even if it is supposed that the 4 Indian Governors bestir themselves to voice Indian interests."

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad (United Provinces Southern Divisions : Muhammadan Rural) : What about the other parts of India ?

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : They are nowhere in the geography of the Bank. I may also add here that the Directors sometimes meet in Bombay, sometimes in Calcutta and sometimes in Madras, and on very rare occasions that the same persons are present at a meeting. Then the letter says further on :

" (10) I am also to enclose a statement of Secretaries and Managing Governors of the Imperial Bank which shows that Mr. Murray (now Sir Norman) was ex-officio Governor for seven years as Secretary and then as Managing Governor. Similarly, Sir K. M. Macdonald has been ex-officio Governor for 5 years either as Secretary or as Managing Governor. Sir Osborne Smith has been similarly a Managing Governor for about 7 years now. Ordinarily, even the Viceroy, Governors of Provinces and Members of the Executive Councils are allowed to remain in office only for 5 years, though there is a tendency to secure extensions in transition periods. But there is no limit to the number of years a person may be a Director, a Secretary or a Managing Governor of the Imperial Bank of India, nor is there any age-limit for any of them.

(11) Liabilities of Directors.—I am further to draw your attention to the fact that the Imperial Bank Act does not require that the Balance Sheet of the Bank should indicate the nature and amount of the liabilities owed to the Bank by the Directors or the business concerns with which they are connected. It is believed that some or several of the Directors are heavily indebted to the Bank directly or indirectly ", and how much portion of their loan they will be able to repay God alone knows. In the circumstances, it is extremely unfair that the Balance

[Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya.]

Talking on the Bill, the constitution of the Central Board and the Local Boards is such that the best men in the country may not care to stand for the seats on the Boards. The sale and purchase of gold and silver is gone. The control is practically vested in the Governor and the Deputy Governor. The Bill is shorn of all its glory by the removal of the powers of the Bank to buy and sell gold. In all countries, the natural born, the nationals have got the control of the Bank. Here there is every loophole to allow aliens to secure the control of the Bank.

Now, I shall offer a few remarks on the provisions of the Bill. Clause 4 —Share Capital. To give proper representation to all provinces it may be necessary to increase the amount of share capital from 5 crores to a much larger amount so that all the provinces may be better represented. Three-fourths of the capital must be held by natural born Indians and when this proportion is disturbed the Directors should stop transfer of shares to aliens. Similarly, transfer from one provincial register to another should be so arranged that the election of Directors in any province does not become a farce.

Then I come to clause 8, sub-clause 1, c iv. Madras is not given the proper representation according to its population and importance. Here I will have to go more deeply into the constitution of the Board under this Bill and see how it compares with the Boards under previous Bills. I have got with me here so to say the horoscope of the four Bills. According to the original Bill of 1927 the constitution was as follows : (a) A governor and a deputy governor who shall be appointed by the Governor General in Council for a period of 5 years and shall devote their whole time to the affairs of the bank and shall receive such salaries and allowances, etc. (b) Then, 9 directors elected by the shareholders, each of whom shall be a registered holder in his own right of not less than 20,000 unencumbered shares, of whom two shall represent interests in Calcutta, two shall represent interests in Bombay and one the business interests of Madras, two to represent business interests in British India, exclusive of Bombay and Calcutta, (c) three directors to be nominated by the Governor General in Council to represent the interests of commerce and industry and agriculture, respectively, and (d) one officer of Government appointed by the Governor General. Under that scheme the number of Indian directors that could be secured at the utmost would have been for 9 out of 15. Now, this is very important. I would request those members who will constitute the Joint Select Committee to listen to this very carefully and whoever may be the members of that committee will have to do their duty by the country.

Under the Joint Select Committee Bill, the Board consisted of (a) a governor and a deputy governor of whom one was to be an Indian, (b) two directors who will be Indians, nominated by the Governor General in Council, (c) four directors of whom two shall be elected by the Associated Chamber of Commerce and two by the Federation of the Indian Chambers of Commerce, (d) one director to be elected by the provincial co-operative societies, (e) three directors to be elected by the elected members of the Indian legislature of whom one shall be elected to represent the interests of commerce and industry, (f) three directors to be elected by the elected members of the legislature of the Governors' provinces of whom two shall be elected to represent the interests of agriculture and one to represent the interests of commerce and industry, then (g) one officer of the Government nominated. Thus, under this scheme, out of 16 Directors we could secure 10 Indians.

Then, we come to the Bill of 1928, which has been followed by our friends in London : (a) the Governor and two Deputy Governors, to be appointed by the Governor General in Council after consideration of any recommendation made by the Board in that behalf, and (b) four Directors to be nominated by the Governor General, (c) two Directors to be elected by the Associated Chamber of Commerce, (d) two Directors elected by the Federation of Indian Chambers of Commerce and then (e) one Director representing the interests of agriculture by Provincial Co-operative Banks and (f) eleven Directors to be elected on behalf of the shareholders, etc. Now, under this Bill of 1928, you could secure 14 Indians out of 24 Directors. Under the present Bill, (a) the Governor and one or two Deputy Governors are to be appointed by the Governor General in Council after consideration of the recommendation of the Board in that behalf. That means three Europeans, (b) four Directors to be nominated by the Governor General in Council. I hope they will not repeat the story of the Imperial Bank by appointing men of 80 or 90 years of age. Then (c) eight Directors to be elected on behalf of the shareholders and (d) one Government officer nominated by the Governor General. We have practically only 8 or 9 Indians out of a Board of 15 or 16 Directors. Under the Bill the Governor General can nominate eight aliens besides the aliens coming through the election by the shareholders. Is there any other country in the world where so much opportunity is given to aliens? There is no guarantee that the natural born Indians or national Indians shall be in majority on the Board. The Government of India is a great political party by itself. It can have political influence, but the shareholders cannot elect any member of any Legislature or a Banker. There was a good chance under the scheme of the Joint Select Committee of there being a majority of Indians. Is there any Reserve Bank anywhere in the world where the aliens have any seat on a Reserve Bank. Here aliens can be in a majority. If the Reserve Bank of India is to be free of political interference the politicians in their turn must be equally free from any restriction of finance imposed upon them by the policy of the Bank. If not its establishment merely transfers the ultimate destiny of India from democratic rule to the autocracy of an institution similar to the Bank of England working its will in Parliament through the agency of the British treasury.

Then I come to clause 13 (1). As I have said, the meetings at Madras have been omitted. So, their interests will be neglected.

Under clause 24, there is no restriction on issuing of small notes of Rs. 2 and Re. 1. I think we must be careful about that.

Clause 28. I hope the discussion of August 31st will be taken into consideration and the rules will be liberal for the refund of money on cut or mutilated or lost notes. I hope the Honourable the Finance Member will kindly appoint the expert committee to look into the claims of the parties in the past.

Clause 41 requires Scheduled Banks to keep with the Reserve Bank not less than 7½ per cent. of the daily average on demand and 2½ per cent. of the daily average of time liabilities. I do think this a heavy burden on the banks and I do not think they will get sufficient compensation for the sacrifices they are called upon to make. In the light of my experience all over India I think this will penalise Bombay more than any other province. The Banks in Bombay will have to keep larger balances with the Reserve Bank than the banks in other parts of India.

Under clause 42 (7), I do not see any reason why the banks having over three lakhs capital should be penalised and all other institutions allowed to go scot-free. The five big banks of England have got capital of 8 to 9 millions but their deposits are about 300 to 400 millions. It would be for the Select Committee to go carefully into this matter in order to fix the contribution on the basis of capital or deposits.

Clause 44.—The dividend of 5 per cent. is enough and they should not by giving hopes of larger dividends encourage speculation in the market in these shares. Sub-clause (c) should be deleted.

Clauses 46—48.—I suggest similar alterations as have been suggested by the Chamber, i.e., the same auditor should not be re-nominated more than twice.

Clause 49.—The Bank should issue quarterly reports of accounts and the annual report should be issued not only in English but also in important vernacular languages. It is no use expecting the whole of India to read English reports. Then, the reports and accounts should be submitted to both the Houses of the Legislature and the salaries of the Governors and Deputy Governors and the emoluments of the Directors may be made a votable item, so that we may know how they are running the show and their work may be properly reviewed in this House.

Clause 52.—This clause gives power to the Board to make a number of regulations. Well, I do not think any regulation should be passed by them unless and until it has been approved and confirmed by Legislature. Similarly, no alterations or changes should be made without the permission of the Legislature otherwise it gives lot of discretionary power to the Directors to do as they like or may think best. Similarly, there has been a complaint that the registers of the shareholders are not so easily available and therefore we must take steps to see that every shareholder will have a right to look into the registers without unnecessary restrictions of taking copies or notes from them.

Now, Sir, I wish to sum up briefly what I have said so far and I do not wish to tire the House for too long. First of all, we must take into consideration the control of the Bank. Leaving aside the question of the State-owned or private-owned capital, the constitution should be such as to secure complete public and national control and prevent undue sectional influence. That should be avoided. Non-nationals should not hold shares or occupy seats on the Board. Three-fourths of the capital and the seats on the Board should be reserved for natural born Indians. The Governor General should nominate only natural born Indians not at his own pleasure but on the advice of the Finance Member. So, also the Governor and the Deputy Governors should be appointed on the advice of the popular minister.

Exchange and ratio.—Rupee should not be linked to Sterling but gold standard and gold currency should be aimed at and all efforts should be made to accumulate Reserves.

Now, I come to the agreement or arrangement between Imperial Bank of India and the Reserve Bank. The Imperial Bank, which is dominated by non-Indian interests, should not be the sole agent of the Reserve Bank. Remuneration for agency is too high and in some countries such services to the public are being rendered free. Public Debt account is also maintained without any change. The Imperial Bank should no longer have the prestige and privileges of Government connection, otherwise they will be a formidable rival to Indian Joint Stock Banks. It has been a Central Bank but playing the role of trusteeship of wolf over lambs.

Now, I come to the question of compensation. They have no moral claim for compensation in respect of the so-called "disappointed expectations", as they have been cancelled by realised advantages and unexpected windfalls and benefits. Thus, the recommendation of the London Committee must not only be ignored but the Bank authorities, if I may say so, should be impeached for the disservice they have done to the Indian interests. I agree that there may be a London Branch but the work should not be entrusted to the Bank of England. The Reserve Bank should not work under the poisonous influence of any other Bank. It should be a training ground for future Indian Governors and Deputy Governors to be in touch with the foreign money markets. Sir, I think, I have already tired the patience of the House and specially of the Honourable the Finance Member and, Honourable Mr. President, with your permission, I will now close my speech.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Amendment moved :

"That the Bill to constitute a Reserve Bank for India be circulated for the purpose of eliciting opinion thereon by the 31st December, 1933."

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Sir, I would like to restrict myself to a few general observations today and would not like to go into the details of the Bill. The points that I would like to take up for discussion are, (1) whether it should be a State Bank or a Shareholders Bank ; (2) the question of exchange ; (3) should rupee be linked up with the sterling or gold or with nothing ; (4) the ratio question, whether it should be 1*s.* 4*d.* or 1*s.* 6*d.* I quite agree that Nos. 3 and 4, as the Finance Member suggested, may be discussed as distinct problems. But the London Committee in their report have distinctly said that at every stage of the discussion of the Reserve Bank Bill it is impossible to avoid their discussions. The fifth point which I would like to take up would be the reserve of the Bank.

[At this stage Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) vacated the Chair which was then occupied by Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury).]

That is the proportion of gold and other forms and reserve in our Reserve Bank. The sixth question I will take up will be the relation with our Imperial Bank, and then the last question which I will take up, if unfortunately it is decided by a majority that it should be a Shareholders' Bank, is the restrictions and the safeguards of income-tax payers in the country.

An Honourable Member : Agriculturists.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Yes, most of whom are agriculturists. These are the points which I will take in turn. I now take my first point.

In 1926, it was agreed that the Reserve Bank would be a State Bank. Opinions changed in 1927 and the Bill laid before the Assembly in 1928 contemplated that it should be a Shareholders' Bank but, on account of strong opposition from the then Members of the Assembly and for other reasons, the Government withdrew that Bill. The present Bill is contemplated to be a Shareholders' Bank, but no arguments are given in favour of the Shareholders' Bank, either in the report or in the speech of the Honourable the Finance Member except one point that it ought to be free from political influence. I would read clause 3 of the Report which says :

> "We fully accept the principle that the Reserve Bank should be free from any political influence. The best device which the practical experience of other countries has evolved for achieving this object is that the capital of the Bank should be held by private shareholders and we recommend that this plan should be adopted in the case of India."

I request you to mark the words " capital should be held by private shareholders " which I will discuss later on. May I ask, Sir, the Honourable the Finance Member whether the Reserve Bank will discuss any philosophical questions, whether it will discuss the theory of relativity or questions of that kind for which it is necessary that the Reserve Bank should be free from political influence. I submit that politics does not only mean " non-co-operation " or its reverse. Politics includes the maintenance of the credit of the country, control of currency, stabilisation of exchange. All these are fundamental political problems. If you demand today that the Reserve Bank should be free from political influence, you may as well demand that the Universities in India should be free from academic influence. (Laughter.) You deal with fundamental political problems and then, afterwards, say that they should be free from political influence. You are just acting, as the Persian Poet said :

" Darmiyáne qáare daryá takhtá bandam kardaí
Baz mi goi keh dáman tar mákun hushyàr básh."

It means, " you have bound my hand and feet in the middle of the river and then say, ' be careful, do not make your clothes wet '." It is just what you are doing. You are making a Reserve Bank to deal with political issues and yet you demand that it should be free from political influence, and this is a position that I cannot understand. There is one point to which I should like to draw the special attention of the House. It is assumed in the report that the Indian Minister will mean political influence, but the Secretary of State for India will not mean political influence. We assume that the present Members on the Treasury Benches do not represent politics, the Viceroy does not represent politics, the Secretary of State for India does not represent politics, but the only unfortunate person, the future Finance Minister, when and if he comes into existence, will represent politics. I say, adopt one uniform principle. Either you admit that the Bank should be free from political influence, and since Ministers, Members of the Executive Council, Members of the Legislature and the Secretary of State are all politics, therefore the administration of the Bank should be left to the capitalists of the country alone. But if the politicians do come into existence and if the Viceroy and his Executive Council exercise their influence, then, I do not see why the future Minister, when and if he is appointed, should be left out of consideration altogether. Either both the Secretary of State and Indian Minister should be excluded or they both come in.

If you permit me, Sir, I should like to introduce a little confusion of thought and take my second point and come back again to this issue ; and my justification for introducing this confusion of thought is that the conclusion which I will draw from that will throw light on the problem which I am now discussing. So I take up the question of " Exchange ", which is really my second point. Sir, I quoted, two years ago, on the floor of this House, a preliminary note from Professor Gregory's book that " there is only one person who understands the conundrum of exchange and that man is in the lunatic asylum ". My apology for introducing it is that we are all M. L. A.'s. Speaking more seriously, the exchange of every country is worked by the demand and supply of currencies. This thing again is based on three factors, first is what we call visible balance of trade, that is the balance of trade of merchandise, or the difference of import and export of goods. Then the second item to be considered is what is called the invisible balance of trade, which includes the services, the expenses of the tourists, and the interests on long investments and other things. The third item is the movement of long term capital from one country to another. These three items, taken together, really determine the problem of exchange. If these three items balance in any year, then the exchange stands on the even key. If the balance of trade taking all these three points together—to use my pet phraseology—if the balance of trade of visible and invisible negotiations is equal to zero, then the exchange balances, but if it is against us, then we should be prepared to part with our gold. That is to say, an uneven balance is always met by the export of gold from the country. In addition to these three important factors, there is a new factor which has come into existence in recent years, and that is called the short term capital and it is popularly known as " ready money ". Now, this ready money or short term capital has been estimated by the Bank of International Settlement in 1931 to be 10 billion dollars. Now, this amount is the same as the value of the monetary gold in the whole world. This huge mass of perfectly liquid capital is concentrated in a few financial centres and it is in a comparatively few hands and it belongs mainly to a few banks and to some financial houses and to a few rich men. It can be moved easily and without notice. The movements of this ready money are sudden, violent and overwhelming and incalculable, and they break down the exchanges. The movement of this capital was the cause of the collapse of British currency in 1931 and of America three months ago. I would refer the persons, who are interested in it, to the beautiful article in the Times of London, dated the 31st July, 1933. The holders of this ready money collapsed sterling which at one time was thought to be the most stable currency in the world. The World Economic Conference made useless efforts to solve the questions of war debts, tariff walls and monetary problems, but these remedies, even if solved, would not solve the world economic problem till this fluid capital of 10 billion dollars has found a home where it can safely be locked up and will not be allowed to move about freely without notice from one country to another. We are now demanding a Reserve Bank where we can carry on operations in the open market and I have a great apprehension that we will put our necks in the hands of these capitalists and our currency may be broken down in the manner in which the currencies of other countries have been broken down, by the movement of this large fluid amount of 10 billion dollars from one place to another. It is not unknown that the amount now standing in the accounts of the English people in the Banks of the United Kingdom and which can be invested at a moment's notice, is in the neighbourhood of one billion sterling.

Now, Sir, do we really believe that our capitalists here in this country who will be the Directors of our Shareholders' Reserve Bank would be able to face this huge amount of capital, whose mouth may be directed to India and break up our currency. Here Government alone can give relief. We have got the example of Germany before us. Can any one think that the Reich Bank of Germany would have been able to control the exchange of Germany had not the Government come forward to their assistance and controlled the movement of capital from Germany to outside countries? So, in this case, I say that if we want really to stabilise and protect ourselves from this huge fluid capital, then we will have to give predominating powers in the hands of the Government, for the Government alone can protect us. The shareholders who are advised to go in the open market will never be able to protect us.

Sir, the object of the Reserve Bank is not to secure large profits for capitalists, but to safeguard the interests of the country. Who are the people who are most competent to safeguard the interests of the country? Are they the politicians or the capitalists? Here, I believe, I join issue with the Honourable the Finance Member. He will probably say that the capitalists are best qualified to safeguard the interests of the tax-payers of India and I think that those who are the elected representatives of the people will guard the interests of the people more efficiently and more effectively than the capitalists can possibly do. Sir, I come back again to my first point. We want a Shareholders' Bank only on the ground that it would be free from political influence. Sir Henry Strakotch, for whom I have great respect and whose opinions I highly value, said on one occasion that the political influence in the case of a Shareholders' Bank was greater than in the case of a Government Bank. The action of the Minister will be exposed in the Assembly by the political opponent, but your capitalist Directors will take shelter behind statutory responsibility. Besides, the politicians will have no axe of their own to grind, but the Directors, who will be capitalists, may get some advantage for themselves from the secret knowledge which they may get from the Reserve Bank. I would request the Finance Member or any one who is a supporter of the Shareholders' Bank to give on the floor of the House some definite illustrations of the way by which the Minister can practically break up the Reserve Bank if it happened to be a Government Bank. Now, if your Minister happened to have enormous influence with the House and an enormous influence in the country, then I can assure him that he can influence the shareholders much more easily than he can influence his opponents in the Assembly.

Now, Sir, I will take up my third point, as to whether the rupee should be linked with gold, sterling or dollar or with nothing. In this matter, Sir, I differ from the opinion which is expressed by my distinguished friend who moved the amendment for circulation. The Hilton-Young Commission recommended that the rupee should be linked with gold sterling and said that if, by chance, England went off the gold standard, then the time would come to consider the separation. When England went off the gold standard on the 21st September, 1931, the first instinct of the Honourable the Finance Member was to do away with that provision. But, on second consideration, he changed his mind and he brought a second Ordinance. The Assembly, however, stuck to its guns, and we passed a Resolution under the leadership of Mr. President (then Mr. Deputy President) insisting that the rupee should no longer be linked with paper sterling. I always had the same opinion, but a minute consideration of the world economic conditions led me to change my opinion, and I honestly believe that it is for the advantage of both England and India that the rupee should continue to be linked with sterling. To link up our rupee with gold will, in my opinion, be a reactionary policy, because, in that case, the rupee will become very expensive, and our export will enormously be affected. There exist at present weighty opinions in favour of making the rupee cheaper and its linking with gold will be the reverse process. If we do not connect it with gold, then are you going to connect it with the dollar, or with the currency of any other country? Are you going to connect it with anything? I say that we are at present in the deluge of economic confusion and the boats of the currencies of many countries have been cut off from the shore of gold. It is always beneficial for loosely floating boats to bind themselves together to get out of this present deluge. Therefore, if we really unite together with sterling, and all those countries, who have disconnected themselves from gold, unite together, then there are greater chances of our coming to the shore. Now, England adopted the right policy at Ottawa to meet the present commotion. She attempted to unite together, in the first instance, all the countries forming part of the British Empire, and then increase their fold. The policy initiated at Ottawa was really the right policy, and had that policy been pursued, then we would have got by this time in our fold a large number of other countries. But, unfortunately, England adopted the opposite policy this year at the Economic Conference. Instead of making efforts to unite together, in the first instance, only those countries which have already disconnected themselves from gold, she began to ask the gold countries to disconnect themselves, and the result was that all the economic enemies of England joined together under the leadership of France, and the chances of all the countries uniting together have become more remote. Therefore, I am not going to pursue this question further just now, but I will discuss when we come to review the Ottawa Agreement,—and I hope the Leader of the House will give us an opportunity to discuss the Ottawa Agreement as he promised,—then we will discuss what action we have taken and what action England and India ought to take in future.

Whether we like it or not, the most advantageous course open to us is to keep the rupee linked with sterling.

I come now to the fourth point, the question of the "Ratio," i.e., whether rupee should be equal to 1*s.* 6*d.* or 1*s.* 4*d.* Here I do not propose to bring before the Assembly the entire discussions that we had since 1926. I myself moved a motion about it two years ago, but I would like to draw the attention only to one point in connection with this matter. Till recently, our exchange has been on an even keel. We had a favourable balance of visible trade, that is the difference of export over import in merchandise amounted to about 75 or 80 crores of rupees. Out of this visible balance of trade, we paid for the invisible balance of trade, including commitments of 50 crores ; and, in the end, something was left to our credit and we got the balance in the shape of precious metals. This has been the position of India for some time. But, now, the process has changed on account of world conditions which I need not discuss here, our visible balance of trade has been continually diminishing. We are not now in a position to pay up all our commitments which amount to 50 crores and the other invisible balance of trade by export of our raw materials. Since England went off the gold standard, we have been paying for this balance of trade by the export of gold. Had gold not been exported from this country, our currency would have been broken to pieces, our credit would have gone down, and we do not know what would have been the value of the rupee in the world market : but the exchange was really kept up not by the means of export of merchandise as we have been doing in the past, but by the export of gold. The Government of India did not have a very large reserve of gold to maintain this unfortunate position. We know very well that, in these days of adversity, only those firms could stand who had a reserve in cash. This is applicable not only to business firms. but also to Governments and only those Governments have come out successful from economic troubles who had a strong balance of gold in reserve. Fortunately for India, the people of this country are accustomed to keep their savings not in banks, but in precious metals and, on account of this habit of the people, on account of the very good reserves which they had, the Indian exchange was well maintained ; but this process cannot be continued for a very long time. The balance of invisible trade, that is, our commitments, cannot for a long time be paid out of the gold which the people have collected to meet their own emergency needs. Even if they can do it, I think it is wrong policy to draw continuously year after year on our reserves ; but we should try to create a situation by means of which we can pay up all our commitments by means of our visible favourable balance of trade. This can only happen if we increase our exports. There is no other way of doing it. Now, everybody knows that our export has enormously fallen, because other countries have now come up in competition, and it is our duty and the duty of every person interested in the currency of the country to see that we should increase the exports of our country and that is the only method by means of which we can maintain our exchange without exporting gold from India. We have been pressing the Government that there should be an embargo on gold, but such attacks are useless. In the first place, Government will not do it ; and even if the Government did it, it would result in the breakdown of our currency ; and the only way in which we can maintain it is that we should have a favourable balance of trade and we must increase the quantity of exports in order to pay up our commitments.

Now, I make one suggestion, and I ask the Honourable the Finance Member or any other person who is opposed to my opinion to give me another method of increasing our exports. One method is that we should make our rupee cheaper in the world market and then our exports are bound to increase. This was tried by two countries—New Zealand and Sweden ; and, in both cases, they tried it with great success. They had a devaluation of their currency : they diminished the value of their currency in the world markets and their exports went up ; and I would like to press the same thing today, namely, that with the object of increasing our exports it is essential that we must lower the value of our rupee in the world market : in other words, the value of the rupee, instead of being at 1*s.* 6*d.*, ought to be 1*s.* 4*d.* and that is the only way in which we can maintain our exchange on an even keel : I believe it will be very unfortunate for the future Reserve Bank if we are to establish it with a ratio of 1*s.* 6*d.*, because it will be impossible for the Bank to maintain exchange on an even keel with this ratio, that is, always pay the invisible balance of trade by means of the reserve of gold. If the people of India do not come forward and part with their private savings, then it will have to be paid by the Reserve Bank from its reserve gold, and it will be a very great strain on the Bank to do it. Therefore, I think we must seriously consider, not in the light of political conditions, but purely from the point of view of increasing our exports, whether we should not consider the devaluation of the rupee and reduce it from 1*s.* 6*d.* to 1*s.* 4*d.*

I take up the next question and that is the Bank Reserve. In considering the amount of reserve, we should not only consider our credit outside the country, but also the credit inside the country and we must see that the people have confidence in the currency ; and the confidence of the people of this country is much more important than the confidence of the people outside India. We know that the currency note is a kind of pronote and people accept it, because they believe in the stability of the Indian Government. The credit of currency notes at present does not depend on gold reserve, but the credit of their notes depends upon their power of taxation, and upon the stability of the Government, and gold reserve is really built up with the primary consideration of the credit abroad. But if it is going to be a private bank, then the position would be reversed. In that case, we will have to consider the confidence of the people inside the country which is much more important than the question of confidence abroad. This private bank has to satisfy the people that it has got sufficient money to honour the notes which it would issue.

Sir, in determining the amount of the reserve, we have to consider three very important factors : (1) the credit inside the country ; (2) the credit outside the country ; (3) the emergency that may arise by a change in the monetary condition of the world, such as England returning to the gold standard again.

Nobody can say at present what would be the monetary position a few years hence in the world. It is possible that England may return to gold standard and we may have to follow. In that case, the amount of reserve, that we should have, must be substantially greater than when England is off the gold standard. These three considerations ought to determine the total amount of the gold reserve in the Reserve Bank. Unfortunately we have taken into consideration only one important factor, and that is the credit outside the country ; but the other two important factors, namely, the confidence of the people inside the country and the emergency factor have not been given proper consideration which they deserved. Sir, the amount under the head " Emergency " ought to be sufficiently large, so that we may be able to meet all possible contingencies. In this case the question would arise, and it is not possible to discuss it in detail here just now, what should be the ratio of gold reserve to the total liabilities of the bank. In this connection, I would like to give the House certain figures from various countries. In France, the gold reserve is 35 per cent. of the total of its notes and current accounts.

[At this stage, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) resumed the Chair.]

In Belgium, it is 40 per cent. of the gold and foreign credits payable in gold out of which 30 per cent. must be physical gold. In Copenhagen, 50 per cent. must be in metallic reserve ; in Netherlands, 40 per cent. of the Bank notes in gold bullion and gold coins, and, in South Africa, 40 per cent. in gold, U. S. A. 35 per cent. to notes. Any one, who is interested in these figures, is referred to a very important book written by Mr. Kisch. Though it is some years old, still it is a very important contribution, and you will find in it the ratio of gold reserve to the total paper notes and also to total liabilities :

Countries.	Manner of quotation.	Notes.	Deposits.	Sum of notes and deposits.	Ratio of gold to notes.	Ratio of gold to notes and deposits.
England	Million Sterling.	356	108	464	44·4	34·1
France	Million Francs.	73,007	15,425	88,505	59·9	49·5
Belgium	Million Francs.	2,909	144	3,053	41·3	39·3
Japan	Million Yens.	1,186	753	1,939	73·4	44·9
South Africa ..	..	9	7	16	81·1	45·3
U. S. A.	Million dollars.	.. 1,489	2,434	3,925	20·4	77·21

In our case we have provided only 20 per cent. of the note issue. Here we should not consider only the paper notes that we issue, but also the other liabilities, Treasury Bills and Cash Certificates.....

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : They will not be the liabilities of the Bank. They will be liabilities of the Government.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : We would take into consideration the entire liabilities of the Bank in determining the amount of reserve. We should consider two items together, that is, deposits and the notes which they issue. These are the two items which we must consider ; we should fix up the amount of gold reserve, not by considering the amount of paper issue only, but also the amount of the deposits, and then we should fix up some ratio. Now, I suggest the following proportion. Of course, this is only tentative, and the exact proportion might be discussed later. I think the gold should be 30 per cent. of the note issue and deposits ; then sterling or gold securities should be 20 per cent., the Indian Government securities 15 per cent., and rupees only 20 per cent. We all admit that the rupees are not good form of reserve. Rupee in itself is a token coin just as much as bank notes are. The notes are printed on paper and the rupees are printed on silver, and both of them are token coins, and so silver rupees are really not a good form of reserve. This is a point which ought to be discussed in detail in Select Committee. In the Bill, we have provided 35 crores of rupees for gold reserve, which, to my mind, is not sufficiently large. Considering the three purposes for which gold reserve is built up, I think we should increase this amount to at least 50 crores, and say either 50 crores or 25 per cent. of the total liabilities whichever may be the maximum, that is, 50 crores should be the minimum, and it should go up to 25 per cent. of the total liabilities.

As regards the percentage of other forms of liabilities, this is a point which we should consider carefully. I may also mention here by the way, that gold should be calculated not according to the present parity, but according to old parity. If any time, the Bank changes the gold into other forms of reserve, then the profits accrued by sale of gold should come to us and they should not go to the bank, because it is Government property, and given by Government at old parity.

Then I come to the question of our relation with the Imperial Bank. I wanted to discuss the question more exhaustively, but we already had a long discourse by the Mover of the amendment, Mr. Pandya, and he has very much lightened my task. Sir, it was proposed that the Imperial Bank should be transformed into a Reserve Bank. It was also proposed that the shareholders of the Imperial Bank should be transformed into the shareholders of the Reserve Bank. Then, again, these suggestions were whittled down to the demand that there should be some intimate relationship between the Imperial Bank and the Reserve Bank. In discussing our relation with the Imperial Bank, we must consider the following points. The first point is the existence of clique system. This was exhaustively illustrated by my friend, Mr. Pandya. He described in detail the manner in which the Directorship is transferred from one generation to another generation, and he has exposed the process clearly on the floor of this House, and I think if we ever form a Shareholders' Bank, we ought to take a lesson and we should not allow this kind of thing to be repeated. The second point is that these directors, while evaluating the prices of various articles in order to determine the amount of the loan to be advanced, do not evaluate the prices correctly and impartially ; they evaluate the prices highly in the case of a few favoured merchants and undervalue the prices in the case of merchants who are not favourites, but, I hope, that the appointment of these Local Boards, if they are properly appointed, may, to a certain extent, mitigate this partiality. Then the third is the question of appointments. Mr. Pandya pointed out very clearly that there were very few Indians in the service of the Bank, and if I draw the attention of my Muslim friends, they will notice that the number of Muslims is still more limited. Not only this, Sir. If you draw the attention of the authorities, then, instead of hearing with patience or trying to redress the wrongs, they lose their temper. I am myself a shareholder of the Imperial Bank, I hold not only one share, but I hold several shares, but from the speech of my distinguished friend and from the additional facts which I propose to lay before the House presently, I am quite willing to lose my shares if the Imperial Bank is allowed to cease to exist.

Sir, we have been hearing a good deal about the special facilities which the Imperial Bank has provided for Indian trade and commerce. I should like to examine some of these facilities. Here, if you take a cheque for Rs. 10 on the Imperial Bank to any of its branches, the branch will at once charge you eight annas discount. The discount is four annas per cent., with a minimum discount of eight annas. If you cash a cheque for Rs. 10, you will only get Rs. 9-8-0. Most of us are familiar with the banking system in Europe, and I ask you whether you have to pay this discount anywhere in London ? You take a cheque to any bank and cash it at par and no discount has to be paid. Then why should we pay discount in India ? I call this swindling, though you may call it facility. The second thing is they say they provided banking facilities in smaller places where those facilities do not exist. Yes, but in smaller places people are engaged in agriculture. If the Imperial Bank makes advances on the security of landed property, then it will be doing a service, but the Imperial Bank does not advance money on the security of landed property.

An Honourable Member : Not directly, but indirectly it does.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : What is the result ? The result is that the local rates of interest remain where they were before. The Bank rate has been diminished from 7 per cent. to 3½ per cent., but the local rates of interest charged by the mahajans and local bankers remain exactly in the same position, because they are the persons who advance money on the security of landed property. If the Imperial Bank desired to do service to the country, then it ought to have made it the first rule that it would advance money at the bank rate on the security of landed property.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : May I point out to my Honourable friend that they are precluded by law from doing so.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I am merely narrating the facts as they are. They may be due to law made by the Legislature before we came into existence, or may have been made by the Directors, but the facts remain. It is immaterial how the Act was first framed. We could have changed it, had we been required to do so. But the fact remains that the lower rate of interest of the Imperial Bank has not lowered the rate of interest in the case of local banks and absolutely no good has been done to the landed proprietors and agriculturists who form the bulk of the population of this country and they are exactly in the same position as they were before. Recently, the Imperial Bank of India has introduced a new rule that you must keep a sufficient amount of money in the Bank, whose interest may cover the expenditure on keeping the accounts. This is a recent rule. This is not under the Act, and this rule has been made by the Directors. This rule does not help the banking system of this country. It rather frightens away people from keeping their money in the banks. These are the actions which the Imperial Bank have taken and they are not very encouraging so far as the landed interests are concerned. The Bank may have proved to be useful, which is very doubtful, to a few firms in big towns like Bombay, Calcutta, and possibly Madras.

Sir, I do not like to enlarge on this topic, but I should very much emphasise that our relations with all the banks should be uniform, that is, that no bank should be placed in an advantageous position. One thing more I should like to say in this connection. Though I am not unwilling to extend these privileges to foreign banks, but I would like to put down one condition before their names are entered in the Second Schedule of this Bill. That is, that each of these foreign banks should keep the accounts of the Indian branch quite separately and they should be in a position to submit their audited balance sheets to the proper quarters in the same manner as the other Indian banks are doing.... (An Honourable Member : "And publish them also.").....and publish them too. This ought to be a condition before we can recognise any of the branches of any foreign bank.

I leave the question of the Imperial Bank, and I take up the last point. If unfortunately it is decided that this Reserve Bank of ours should be a Shareholders' Bank, then what action should be taken to safeguard the interests of poor taxpayers like myself ? Before I deal with it, I desire to relate one more story. There was a person who did not like to eat laddus from a particular shop. One person brought 300 laddus for him and told him that he purchased them from that particular shop. Then he could not take them. What did the other person do ? He bought five laddus from another shop and mixed them with the 300 laddus. He took out the first laddu and said in his mind ; "This may not be the laddu from that particular shop" ; and so saying he ate the first laddu. He repeated the process till he ate all the 305 laddus. He ate all the 305 laddus under the pretence of what lawyers call "the benefit of doubt". By using the catchword, he conscientiously ate all the 305 laddus. This is exactly what we are doing here. We are going to hand over the question of Indian credit and finance to these private persons. These private individuals are going to bring in five crores of rupees, and we are going to hand over to them the whole of the financial credit of India which at one time was valued at Rs. 300 crores. These capitalists will really take possession with their five crores of rupees, Rs. 300 crores belonging to Indian taxpayers. Thus we are handing over, under another catchward, the catchword of "political influence", our 300 crores to persons who brought in 5 crores.

My Honourable friend, Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya, has mentioned certain restrictions which he would like to impose upon the Reserve Bank if, unfortunately, it is a Shareholders' Bank. I would also like to add a few more restrictions. I would like to put down, like the Assembly election, one man one vote. The votes should not be determined by the number of shares a person holds ; but one man should have only one vote. In the Assembly election a person may possess several qualifications, but he has only one vote. And, in order to avoid one person buying shares in the name of minor sons and daughters, etc., I would like to add one more condition and that is that only persons above the age of 18 should exercise the right of voting and nobody else. The guardian should not be able to exercise the right of voting. Another condition, I would like to have, is that no person should have more than ten shares. This is really a very liberal account. Shares should not be monopolised by a few capitalists. The next condition is that a person, who is a shareholder in one particular province or locality, should not be allowed to purchase shares in another locality. If purchasers are not available, then Government, for the time being, may buy those shares and sell them as soon as the buyers are available. Now, the other thing is that we have set up an indirect election for the Directors. They are to be elected by local boards. I do not seriously object to this indirect election though I would prefer myself a direct election. I do not seriously object to it, but the number of persons who are going to elect the Directors is too small. That is, the number in the electoral colleges are very few. Therefore, it is very desirable that their number should be increased, so that we might have a true representative and I think we cannot have an indirect election in which the number of persons in the electoral college are so few. The next thing which was pointed out also by my friend, Mr. Pandya, is that, even if it be a Shareholders' Bank, there ought to be annual reports which ought to be published and the two Houses of the Legislature should have a right to criticise the report and pass Resolutions on it. Though it may be a private Shareholders' Bank, we must remember that these shareholders have brought only five crores of rupees, and really the bulk of the capital belongs to the Indian taxpayers, and we must also remember that the losses of this Reserve Bank will be borne by the Indian taxpayers and, therefore, we are intimately interested in the whole problem. The next thing is that we should not show favour to any particular bank. All the banks should be placed on the same footing and no favour should be shown to one bank, which may be unfair to the general banking problem of the whole country. If we place one particular bank in a more favourable position, then naturally the other banks would suffer. The next thing is, we ought not to make the Reserve Bank a new concern for profiteering purposes. We know that the Imperial Bank has long been paying an interest of 18 per cent. Now, they have recently reduced it from 18 to 12. Even 12 per cent. is rather high. The bank rate is only 3½. Therefore, I am quite willing to give a slightly higher per cent., one per cent. higher than the bank rate and, in any case, it should not be more than 6 per cent. I would like to put down explicitly that these shareholders are not entitled to have any dividend more than one per cent. above the bank rate. I think we might discuss these and similar other restrictions when we come to a discussion of the details. I will sum up my remarks. I am very strongly in favour of establishing a Reserve Bank. I suppose that is the principle of the Bill, that a Reserve Bank should be established and I give my heartiest support to it. We hope it will be left to the Select Committee to consider whether it should be a Government Bank or a Shareholders' Bank, but if the Select Committee is precluded from discussing whether it should be a State Bank or a Shareholders' Bank, then I would rather like that this Bill should be circulated to elicit public opinion ; but if we could discuss this particular thing also in the Select Committee, then we would not mind going to Select Committee and discuss face to face with the opposite opinions and come to some conclusions which may be advantageous to the taxpayers of this country and which may not put our neck in the hands of the capitalists of this country or abroad.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Sir, Never before, perhaps, in the history of legislative business in this House was a more far reaching measure introduced than the one which we are discussing today ; but, Sir, I have to utter a note of regret that the time which has elapsed between the introduction of the Bill and its discussion on the floor of the House today has not been more ample than has been given to us by the Government. A Bill of this nature requires to be studied from all points of view, but I must take things as they are, and proceed with some general observations on the Bill as they occur to me today.

We have before us two motions down on the Agenda Paper. One is for the reference of the Bill to a Joint Committee of both Houses, and another is for the circulation of the Bill for the purposes of eliciting opinions thereon. Now, I must say, Sir, that if the House accepts the motion for the Select Committee, it would have accepted the principle of the Bill. That leads me to try and discover what is the main principle of the Bill. My Honourable friend, the Finance Member, in his Statement of Objects and Reasons says : " The object of this Bill is to set up a Reserve Bank for India." Now, with regard to this, I think there will be a unanimity of opinion both in this House as well as in the country outside that a Reserve Bank on approved lines ought to be established in this country ; but the difficulty arises as to what sort of Reserve Bank it is to be, its constitution and the handling of the finances of the country, and the control over the Reserve Bank. These are some of the questions that must be carefully looked into before we commit ourselves to the principle of the Bill. My Honourable friend, the Finance Member, in the course of his speech this morning reiterated that he wanted to keep the Reserve Bank free from political influences. I should like to inquire in this connection whether the Bill in its present form is free from another sort of political influence or not. I find that most of the powers have been designed to be concentrated in the hands of the Governor General. If the Governor General does not represent the largest political party in this country, I should like to know what else does he represent. The Governor General is responsible to the Secretary of State, and the Secretary of State, as we all know, in these financial matters, is more or less influenced by the financial magnates of the City of London, and of the interests of England, than of this country. Therefore, Sir, under the scheme propounded in this Bill, I take it that the political influence will play upon it though of a character quite different from the one which we contemplate. Powerful City interests in London will have a voice in the actual working of this Bank, and that will be an influence which will not be in accord with the interests of the masses of this country. In this connection I should like to refer to the Despatch of the Government of India on Constitutional Reforms in 1930. In the course of that Despatch they said :

> " It would be possible to convince Indian opinion of the desirability that such a Bank should work in close co-operation with and on lines approved by the Bank of England."

That gives away the whole case. The Reserve Bank which is sought to be established will be a sort of appendage to the Bank of England. This feature of the proposal before the House is open to serious objection from the point of view of the larger interests of the country.

I will next refer to the proposal that this Bank should be a Shareholders' Bank. Opinion in the country is practically unanimous that, instead of having a Shareholders' Bank, the Bank should be a State Bank. I am glad that at least one member of the London Committee, Rai Bahadur Lala Ram Saran Das, did dissent from the view of the majority of the members of that Committee, and appended a note that it should be a State Bank rather than a Shareholders' Bank. When a Bill of a somewhat similar character was before the House a few years ago, Sir Basil Blackett agreed afterwards to a State Bank, but powerful influences were brought to bear upon him by the Secretary of State, and he resiled from the position which he then took up and the whole scheme was knocked on the head. To entrust currency and exchange to big capitalists and exploiters of the masses of the people is not the sort of arrangement which will commend itself to some of us on this side of the House. Clause 17 of the Bill sets out in some detail the business which this Bank will be called upon to transact. Some of these items are as follows : The accepting of money on deposit without interest and the collection of money for the Secretary of State in Council, the Governor General in Council, Local Governments, States in India, Banks and other persons : purchase, sale and re-discount on bills of exchange and promissory notes. I am not going to read out all the different items in this list, but I will refer only to a few of them in order to show the important nature of the work which this Bank will be called upon to transact : Gold coin or bullion or documents of title to the same ; promissory notes of any scheduled bank ; the making of advances to the Governor General in Council ; the issue of demand drafts, and the making, issue and circulation of bank post bills ; the purchase and sale of securities ; the custody of monies, securities and other articles of value ; the sale and realisation of all property, whether movable or immovable, which may in any way come into the possession of the Bank ; the acting as agent for the Secretary of State in Council, the Governor General in Council or any Local Government or State in India ; the purchase and sale of gold or silver ; the purchase, sale, transfer and custody of bills of exchange, securities or shares in any company ; the collection of the proceeds, whether principal, interest or dividends, of any securities or shares ; the management of public debt ; the issue of notes ; the purchase and sale of gold coin and bullion, and so on.

It will, therefore, be seen that the business which this Bank will be called upon to transact will be of enormous importance, and it will be rather dangerous to entrust the affairs of the Bank to private shareholders whose interests may not always coincide with the interests of the people of this country generally. Sir, it will be found that the shareholders generally are hankering more after their personal profits and gains, and they are not always solicitous about the interests of the people of the country. My Honourable friend, Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya, has referred in some detail to the manner in which the Imperial Bank of India is being carried on. I am afraid that, if this Bank is established as a Shareholders Bank, it may also fall into the same error in which the Imperial Bank has fallen. Now, in other countries also there are instances of State Banks, as, for instance, Australia. Another feature to which objection is to be taken in connection with the proposals of the Government is the total absence of any reference to the nationality of the shareholders. In the best interests of this country, there ought to be a restriction to the sale of shares only to the nationals of this country.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Honourable Member will resume his speech tomorrow.

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Tuesday, the 12th September, 1933.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Tuesday, 12th September, 1933.

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber at Eleven of the Clock, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

GRADES OF OFFICERS IN THE MADRAS CUSTOMS PREVENTIVE STAFF.

792. Mr. K. P. Thampan : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) if it is a fact that in the Madras Customs Preventive Staff there are two grades of officers with different scales of salary ;

(b) if they are of the same qualifications and perform the same nature of work ;

(c) if this system obtains in Madras alone and that in Bombay, Calcutta, Karachi, Rangoon and other places there is only one grade ;

(d) if the answer to part (c) be in the affirmative, what is the reason for continuing this distinction in Madras ;

(e) if they are prepared to consider the desirability of abolishing the two grades in Madras and introduce an uniform grade for all ports in India ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) Yes.

(b) No.

(c) No. There are two classes of Preventive Officers at Karachi, Bombay and Burma Outports.

(d) Does not arise.

(e) No.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : Do I understand that there are Assistant Preventive Officers not only in Madras, but also in other major ports like Calcutta and Bombay ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Yes, Sir. If the Honourable Member had followed my answer to part (c), he would find that I said " there are two classes of Preventive Officers at Karachi, Bombay and Burma Outports."

NEW OVERTIME RULES FOR THE ASSISTANT PREVENTIVE OFFICERS OF THE MADRAS CUSTOMS OFFICE.

793. Mr. K. P. Thampan : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) whether they have received a memorial from the Assistant Preventive Officers of the Madras Customs Office regarding the new overtime rules ;

(b) whether the new rules were introduced as the outcome of some anonymous petitions ; if so, why ;

(c) if it is a fact that after the introduction of the new rules the overtime earnings of an Assistant Preventive Officer have been considerably reduced and whether they are aware that there is considerable discontent among them ;

(d) whether they are prepared to undertake an enquiry and redress the grievances of the Assistant Preventive Officers ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) Yes.

(b) No.

(c) The new rules aim at a more equitable distribution of overtime earnings. The ratio of overtime earnings to salary is even now greater for an Assistant Preventive Officer than for a Preventive Officer. The Government of India are not aware of any discontent.

(d) The question has already been considered and Government do not consider that any change is necessary.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : Considering the lower scale of salary of these Assistant Preventive Officers, may I know if the rules could not be revised more favourably to them ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : As my answer implies, we have considered the matter very carefully and we consider that the present conditions are quite fair.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : Is it a fact that in other ports, such as Calcutta and Bombay, also, the overtime rules are more or less on the same lines that are recently introduced in Madras ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I must ask for notice. I must enquire into the question whether the overtime rules are exactly the same in all ports.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : Will the Honourable Member please enquire and communicate to me ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Yes.

PROPOSED REVISION OF THE TERMS OF THE OTTAWA AGREEMENT.

794. *Mr. K. P. Thampan : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) whether their attention has been drawn to a Reuter's message, dated London, July 20, regarding the decision to hold a series of meetings between the British and Dominion Government delegates with a view to revise the terms of the Ottawa Agreements ;

(b) whether Government have deputed any one to represent them at these meetings ;

(c) in what important commodities, judged from the experience of the last six months, are the Agreements not working favourably to Indian interests ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : (a) Yes.

(b) and (c). The Honourable Member is referred to the reply given on the 1st September, 1933, to starred question No. 371 on the same subject.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : I did not hear the Honourable Member well. May I know whether any definite decisions were arrived at at that Conference ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : The general gist of my reply on that occasion was that we had no information of what took place.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : Were the Government of India represented at that Conference ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : To the best of my recollection, no, Sir. We have no information, as far as I remember, about this matter, nor have we, I believe, any information as to what was actually discussed at that Conference.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : May I know, whether judging from the experience of the last so many months, the Ottawa Trade Agreement is working entirely to the benefit of Great Britain and that the exports from India have not appreciably increased ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : A few days ago, in reply to a question, I laid statistical information that was available on the table of the House and I would suggest to my Honourable friend that he should consult the information that I then laid before the House. He will, I think, find that it does not really bear out his suggestion.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : What does the Honourable Member himself think about the working of the Ottawa Agreement ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I prefer for the present to withhold my opinion on that point.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Will the Honourable Member give the Assembly an opportunity to discuss the results of the working of the Ottawa Agreement as soon as the 12 months are over ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : As Honourable Members in the Assembly are aware, we are pledged to setting up a representative committee of this Assembly to examine from time to time the results of the working of that Agreement. Either in the next Session or in the early part of the Budget Session, I propose to move for the setting up of such a Committee. When it is constituted, all the facts available will be placed before it.

Mr. F. E. James : May I take it that if the Government are convinced that as regards any particular article, the preference given in the United Kingdom is not adequate, in view of all the circumstances, to confer any benefit on the Indian producer, then the Government will represent to His Majesty's Government the possibility of increasing the preference before the Committee is set up by the Assembly ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I have always refused, in fact I refused yesterday to reply to hypothetical questions put to me, but I can assure the House that if at any time information comes to our hand which makes it advisable for us to seek the alteration of the agreement to the advantage of this country, we shall not hesitate to try and do so.

Mr. F. E. James : May I know whether the Government feel bound to the present preferences until the Committee of the House which is envisaged has reported ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I would like to make it perfectly clear to the House that if, at any time, we consider that we can better the Agreement that we came to with the United Kingdom from our point of view, and if it could reasonably be done, we shall not hesitate to try and do so.

Mr. B. Das : Were the Government approached by any section of the so-called Indian producers to make representation to the United Kingdom to alter the present Agreement ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I must ask for notice, because I think we have received a number of representations in connection with the Agreement.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : In any further preferential treatment that may be given to the products of the United Kingdom, will the interests of the consumers of India be carefully watched ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I think we always bear all interests in mind.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I understand from the reply of the Honourable Member that the Government of India have no information so far about the message sent by Reuter. In case this message comes out to be true, and since the Assembly will no longer be sitting, may I request the Honourable Member to convey to His Majesty's Government the strong desire and feeling of this Assembly that in future the representatives of India should be sent from India and should not be represented by persons already in England ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I am not in a position to commit myself in any way.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Very often India is represented by men who have not got personal knowledge of India on the present day problems. It is our wish that, if India is to be represented at all, she must be represented by persons who have got knowledge of the present day problems, and not by persons who have never visited India or who left India more than six months ago.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : My Honourable friend may rest assured that the representatives of India will always be chosen from amongst those who have up-to-date and complete knowledge of the problems in India.

CASE OF ONE MR. BHARTHI, ex-GUARD, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

795. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : (a) Is it a fact that Mr. Bharthi, ex-Guard, East Indian Railway, preferred an appeal to the Agent, East Indian Railway, Calcutta, through the Divisional Superintendent which was withheld by the latter under paragraph 15 (iv) of rules for discharge and dismissal of State Railway non-gazetted servants ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Divisional Superintendent in his letter to Mr. Bharthi said that the order of discharge was passed not by him, but by the Superintendent Transportation and that the investigation ordered by his predecessor would take place ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state what the order of his predecessor actually was and who investigated the case and in whose presence, and what the report was ?

(d) Is it a fact that rules 6 and 14 for discharge and dismissal of State Railway non-gazetted Government Servants, framed by the Railway Board, have been violated in this case ? If so, why ?

(e) Is it a fact that Mr. Bharthi preferred an appeal to the Government of India, which was sent to the Divisional Superintendent for disposal, and on which the Divisional Superintendent wrote to Mr. Bharthi as follows :

" Your appeal to His Excellency the Viceroy has been sent to me for disposal, as no appeal lies to any one above me, I have nothing to add to what I have said " ?

(f) Is it a fact that Mr. Bharthi submitted to the Divisional Superintendent a copy of the written statement of his witness regarding his insult ?

(g) Will Government be pleased to state whether Mr. Bharthi, under Government of India Circular No. 3267-A., dated the 8th July, 1916, and repeated in 1929 and 1930 is entitled to represent his case to the Government of India ?

(h) Will Government be pleased to state if the appeal of Mr. Bharthi was forwarded to the Agent, East Indian Railway, by the Secretary, Indian Soldiers' Board (vide his No. 57|Emp.|5100, Government of India, dated the 11th March, 1933, New Delhi) for reinstatement ? If so, what action was taken by the Agent ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no information but are enquiring into the matter, and, if they find that the procedure adopted was contrary to the existing rules, they will consider what action is necessary to set the matter right.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know if these Divisional Officers, against whose decision an appeal is preferred, withhold the appeal, what is the remedy to the applicant ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : A Divisional Officer can withhold an appeal only for definite reasons and he has to communicate those reasons to the petitioner.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Supposing in fact he has done it very wrongly, what is the remedy left ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The rules definitely lay down that for certain reasons appeals may be withheld and, if the Divisional Officer withholds appeals contrary to those rules, the matter will be looked into.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : But my point is that if the Divisional Officer decides an appeal whether rightly or wrongly and withholds it, and the applicant is not satisfied, what is the reasonable course left to him, or is he doomed ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : There must be a limit to appeals, Sir.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I am asking about cases in which a wrong has been done. I would ask the Honourable Member to consider the rules on that point and, if there is any necessity for changing the rules, they may be changed for the purpose of doing justice.

Mr. P. R. Rau : The rules provide for certain appeals and Government consider that they have in the rules allowed for all reasonable chances of appeal to an aggrieved employee.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : My Honourable friend is only repeating. I am asking whether the Honourable Member is prepared to go into this question and give a chance to these unfortunate people who are not able to reach the Agent.

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am afraid the Honourable Member is repeating the same question over and over again. I cannot say what exactly he is after. If he has any suggestions to make, I shall be quite prepared to consider them.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : My suggestion is that where certain appeals are wrongly withheld, some opportunity should be allowed to these people to reach the Agent and represent the case.

Mr. P. R. Rau : If appeals are wrongly withheld, certainly the Agent will look into the matter.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Have Government mentioned in the rules the reasons for which appeals may be withheld ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I think so, Sir.

Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : Did the Honourable Member suggest that the right procedure was adopted in the present case ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I said that Government are making inquiries into the matter and, if they find that the procedure adopted was contrary to the existing rules, they will consider what action is necessary.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Can an employee send an advance copy of the appeal to the Agent ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : There is nothing to prevent him from doing so.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : In case the appeal is wrongly withheld, what is the course left to the applicant to reach the Agent ? Has he got to go again through the Divisional Officer or can he send his appeal direct to the Agent against the wrongful withholding ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : As a matter of fact, I believe employees very often send their appeals direct in a large number of cases.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Can an employee appeal to the Agent against an order withholding the application ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : If the application has been wrongly withheld, I suppose they are at liberty to do so.

DISCHARGE ORDERS PASSED IN THE DINAPORE DIVISION, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

796. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : In how many cases have orders of discharge been passed in the Dinapore Division of the East Indian Railway since 1931 ? How many of those have been reversed after reconsideration ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no information.

RETRENCHMENT IN THE SURVEY OF INDIA DEPARTMENT.

797. Seth Haji Abdoola Haroon : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether retrenchment was made in class II Service of the Survey of India Department in 1931 ?

(b) If so, how many officers and other clerks were picked out of the total workers ?

(c) Is it a fact that since the beginning, the above department has remained the monopoly of Anglo-Indians ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to state how many officers are there in the above department who are still in service although they are over 50 years in age ?

(e) Is it a fact that fresh hands are to be recruited in the near future to fill up vacancies in the class II Service ?

(f) If so, are Government prepared to appoint the retrenched young officers, who have spent the best part of their lives in the department, for the above stated vacancies ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) Yes.

The other parts of the question presumably refer only to Class II of the Survey of India. On this assumption, the replies are :

(b) 22 officers and 1 probationer. There are no clerks.

(c) I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply given to part (c) of starred question No. 349 in this House on the 1st September, 1933.

(d) Four.

(e) Yes.

(f) The Honourable Member is referred to the reply given to part (c) of starred question No. 346 in this House on the 1st September, 1933.

RETRENCHMENT IN THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY PRESS.

798. Rai Bahadur Lala Brij Kishore : (a) Is it a fact that at the time of retrenchment in 1931 in the East Indian Railway Press, Calcutta, 16 Compositors, 26 Binders and 9 Distributors and a number of other operatives were reduced, but none of the supervising staff, such as Overseers, Foremen, Section Holders, Computors, Clerks, Time-keepers, etc., were touched ?

(b) Is it a fact that in 1926 there were only two Jamadars to supervise the work of the Binders, whereas at present there are five Supervisors, viz., one Foreman, two Assistant Foremen, one Jamadar and one Assistant Jamadar, in the binding section who perform identically the same duties ?

(c) Is it a fact that in 1926 there were only two Section-Holders to supervise the work of the Compositors while now, after the reduction of operatives (in 1926, 101 Compositors, at present 75), there are one Foreman and four Section Holders for the same purpose ?

(d) Is it a fact that the payment of wages on the monthly salary basis has been introduced in the East Indian Railway and Eastern Bengal Railway Presses, Calcutta, in place of the piece system ?

(e) Have Government considered whether in the case of the payment of wages on a salary basis the services of the Computors are not necessary for calculating the wages of the Operatives ?

(f) Is it a fact that the Superintendent of the Eastern Bengal Railway Press informed the Railway Board that after the introduction of the monthly salary system the posts of the Computors were superfluous and that he did actually abolish the same posts of the Computors in his Press ?

(g) Is it a fact that in 1926 there were only two Computors in the East Indian Railway Press, whereas at present the number of the said Computors is 16, and that the strength of the operatives has considerably decreased due to the retrenchment in 1931 and to the introduction of the monthly salary system ?

(h) Is it a fact that the following is a correct statement of the comparative strength of the supervising staff in the East Indian Railway Press, Calcutta and Howrah, in 1926 and at present ?

	1926.	At present.
Overseer	1	2
Foremen	1	4
Assistant Foremen	Nil	2
Office Superintendent	Nil	1
Press Mechanic	Nil	1
Section-holders	2	4
Machine Jamadars	1	3
Computors (including Asstt. Computors) ..	2	16
Time-keeper (including Asstt. Time-keepers)	3	4
Clerks	36	44
Checkers	Nil	2

(i) If answers to parts (a) to (h) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state whether they have satisfied themselves that the existing number of posts in the supervising staff and among the clerks in the East Indian Railway Press, Calcutta and Howrah, do not contain many surplus hands ? If not, why not ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : With your permission, Sir, I propose to reply to questions Nos. 798 to 801 and 803 to 813 together. Government have not full information on the various points raised but are obtaining whatever information is readily available and I will lay a reply on the table of the House, in due course.

RETRENCHMENT IN THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY PRESS.

†799. Rai Bahadur Lala Brij Kishore : (a) Is it a fact that the Railway Board have recently issued further instructions for retrenchment of the staff in the East Indian Railway Press ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Agent, East Indian Railway, has informed the Secretary of the Press Employees Association, Calcutta, that further reductions of staff in the said Press will be undertaken shortly, and has invited the opinion of the Association in the matter ?

(c) Is it a fact that the Secretary, Press Employees' Association, in his letter dated the 9th August, 1932, protested against this distinction and pointed out that the Operatives, specially the Binders, were now fully employed ?

(d) Is it a fact that Mr. A. F. Slater, who was appointed a Special Officer at an enormous cost to enquire into the scheme of reorganising the Printing Offices of the Railways, recommended in 1930 that the minimum strength of the Compositors and Binders in East Indian Railway Press should be 79 and 175, respectively ?

(e) Is it a fact that the present strength of the Compositors and the Binders in the said Press is 75 and 154, respectively ?

(f) Is it a fact that owing to pressure of work in the binding department :

(i) men belonging to the departments of Machine, Inkman, Packerman, etc., are now daily being engaged to do the work of the Binders ;

(ii) extra temporary Compositors are still working ;

(iii) overtime is also going on ?

(g) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a copy of the letter referred to above written by the Secretary, Press Employees' Association ?

(h) If answers to parts (b) to (g) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state :

(i) the reasons of the Agent's proposal for reduction of Operatives ;

(ii) whether Government propose to reduce the existing number of the supervising staff such as Overseer, Foreman, Computor, Checker, Clerks, etc., at the time of the proposed retrenchment ? If not, why not ?

PURCHASE OF TIME-RECORDER MACHINES BY THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY PRESS.

†800. Rai Bahadur Lala Brij Kishore : (a) Is it a fact that in the East Indian Railway Press four time-recorder machines, viz., Glendhill Brook time clocks, etc., were purchased ?

(b) If the answer to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state :

(i) the cost and the date of the purchase of each machine ;

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 798.

(ii) what their uses are ; and

(iii) whether these machines make the services of the Time-Keepers redundant ? If so, whether the number of the Time-Keepers has been reduced accordingly ?

PURCHASE OF CERTAIN MACHINES BY THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY PRESS.

†801. Rai Bahadur Lala Brij Kishore : (a) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing the number of (i) Rotary, (ii) Envolve, (iii) Folding, (iv) Cutting, (v) Mono., (vi) Lino and other machines bought by the East Indian Railway Press from 1914 to 1931, year by year ?

(b) Is it a fact that a number of machines, viz., one Envolve machine and one Rotary, have never been used since their purchase ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state the amount, if any, realised as discount on the purchase of each machine ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing, year by year, from 1914 to 1931 :

(i) the number of machines and presses sold by the East Indian Railway Press, Calcutta and Howrah ;

(ii) the amount for which each was sold, together with the original price for which each was bought, as well as the dates of purchase and sale of each ?

SALE OF WASTE PAPER IN THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY PRESS.

802. Rai Bahadur Lala Brij Kishore : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether the East Indian Railway Press, Calcutta and Howrah, call for tenders for the sale of old papers ?

(b) If the answer to part (a) be in the negative, will Government be pleased to state the reason for not doing so ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing, year by year, from 1915 to 1931, the amount realised from the sale of waste paper ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply given by Sir Alan Parsons to question No. 381 by Mr. S. C. Mitra on the 11th February, 1931.

PURCHASE OF CERTAIN MACHINES BY THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY PRESS.

†803. Rai Bahadur Lala Brij Kishore : (a) Is it a fact that two Lino. and seven Mono. machines and six Mono.-casting machines were purchased in the East Indian Railway Press immediately after the East Indian Railway became a State Railway ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Mono. machines cause to the Government a loss of 40 per cent. while the lino. machines cause a 20 per cent. loss ?

(c) Is it a fact that matters composed in Mono. or Line. machines have to be melted away after printing, and that such melting can go on for five times only ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 798.

(d) Is it a fact that hand-composed matter lasts 90 lakhs of impressions ?

(e) Is it a fact that Hand Compositors are entitled to remuneration after the first reading, second reading, third reading, revised corrections and rule dress-up are finished ?

(f) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a comparative statement showing the cost of composing by hand 44 × 72 Em non-pareil type 15 column statement, and that of having it in a Mono-machine, noting specifically the charge of :

(i) Operator ;

(ii) Caster ;

(iii) Arranging ;

(iv) First reading corrections ;

(v) Second reading corrections ;

(vi) Third reading corrections ;

(vii) Revise corrections ;

(viii) Rule Dress up ;

(x) Electricity ;

(xi) Water ; and

(xii) Metal ?

(g) If the replies to parts (a), (b), (c), (d) and (e) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state why they are replacing hand composition by Lino. and Mono. machines ?

MEMORIAL FROM CERTAIN EMPLOYEES OF THE EAST INDIAN AND THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY PRESSES.

†804. Rai Bahadur Lala Brij Kishore : (a) Is it a fact that the Honourable Member in charge of Railways and Commerce received a memorial, dated the 12th January, 1931, from the Compositors, Distributors and Binders of the East Indian Railway Press, Calcutta and Howrah, and the Eastern Bengal Railway Press, Calcutta ?

(b) If the answer to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to lay on the table a copy of the said memorial ?

(c) Will the Honourable Member in charge of Railways and Commerce, be pleased to state :

(i) what action has been taken or is intended to be taken in the matter ;

(ii) if no action has been taken or is intended to be taken, the reasons therefor ?

RETRENCHMENTS AND REDUCTIONS IN THE OPERATIVE STAFF OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY PRESS.

the East Indian Railway Press, retrenchments and reductions have been made in the operative staff of the East Indian Railway Press ?

(b) Are Government aware that the operative staff of the East Indian Railway Press held a meeting of the Press-workers affected by the said amalgamation on July 29, 1933, at Calcutta, and passed resolutions expressing their grave apprehensions and that a copy of those resolutions was duly forwarded to the Honourable Member in charge, Department of Railways and Commerce, by the Secretary, Press Employees' Association, Calcutta, on the 31st July, 1933 ?

(c) Is it a fact that the Agent, East Indian Railway, addressed a letter to the Secretary, Press Employees' Association, Calcutta, dated the 23rd June, 1933, and enclosed a list showing by categories the " surplus " staff in the Printing Department ?

(d) Is it a fact that the post of the Assistant Time-keeper and ten posts of clerks were shown as " surplus " in the said list ?

(e) Is it a fact that the said posts of the Assistant Time-keeper and the clerks have subsequently been kept intact while eleven operatives have been marked out " surplus " instead ?

(f) What action do they propose to take for remedying such irregularities ?

STAFF OF THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY PRESS.

†806. Rai Bahadur Lala Brij Kishore : (a) Is it a fact that the staff of the Eastern Bengal Railway Press were guided by the General Manual of the Eastern Bengal Railway ?

(b) Is it a fact that the staff of the Eastern Bengal Railway Press were divided into two heads, viz.,

(i) ministerial and (ii) industrial, under the said Manual ?

(c) Is it a fact that in a notice over the signature of Mr. I. T. St. Pringle for the Agent, Eastern Bengal Railway, in July, 1933, to the Eastern Bengal Railway Press staff taken over by the East Indian Railway, the term " workshop staff of the Eastern Bengal Railway Press " occurs ?

(d) If the answers to parts (a) to (c) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the reason and the authority under which the term " workshop staff of the Eastern Bengal Railway Press " was employed in the said notice by Mr. Pringle ?

DISCONTINUANCE OF THE PRIVILEGE OF ALLOWING FREE PASSES TO THE COMPOSITORS OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY PRESS.

†807. Rai Bahadur Lala Brij Kishore : (a) Is it a fact that according to the Railway Board's orders in 1905, the Compositors of the East Indian Railway Press, Calcutta, drawing a pay of Rs. 20 and over were treated as Clerks and were allowed free Intermediate Class passes ?

(b) Is it a fact that the privilege thus enjoyed by the Compositors has been discontinued since 1921 ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 798.

(c) If the answers to parts (a) and (b) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the reasons for the discontinuance of a long-enjoyed privilege ?

RESOLUTIONS PASSED BY THE EMPLOYEES OF THE EAST INDIAN AND EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY PRESSES.

†808. Rai Bahadur Lala Brij Kishore : (a) Is it a fact that the Secretary, Press Employees' Association, Calcutta, sent a letter, dated the 31st July, 1933, to the Honourable Member in charge, Department of Railways and Commerce, forwarding therewith a copy of the resolutions passed at a mass meeting of the employees of the East Indian and Eastern Bengal Railway Presses held at Sealdah, Calcutta, on July 29, last ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) above be in the affirmative, will the Honourable Member be pleased :

(i) to lay on the table a copy of those resolutions ;

(ii) to state what action, if any, has been taken in the matter ?

PAY OF COMPOSITORS OF THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY PRESS.

†809. Rai Bahadur Lala Brij Kishore : (a) Is it a fact that the Compositors of the Eastern Bengal Railway Press, Calcutta, are salaried hands ?

(b) Is it a fact that the pay of the Compositors was revised in 1930 ?

(c) Is it a fact that at the time of the revision neither seniority in service nor any other definite principles were followed in fixing the pay of the said Compositors ?

(d) Is it a fact that the staff list of the Printing Department, East Indian and Eastern Bengal Railways (1933) shows that :

(i) Compositors appointed in 1926 are drawing the same pay with their co-workers appointed in 1927 ; and (ii) different salaries are being allowed to Compositors appointed on the same date and year ?

(e) If the answers to parts (a) to (d) be in the affirmative :

(i) will Government be pleased to state the reasons for these discrepancies ;

(iii) if not, why not ?

RETRENCHMENT AMONG THE INDUSTRIAL STAFF OF THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY PRESS.

†810. Rai Bahadur Lala Brij Kishore : (a) Are Government aware :

(i) that heavy retrenchment has recently been made among the industrial staff of the Eastern Bengal Railway Press ; and

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 798.

(ii) that several permanent hands have been retrenched as "surplus"?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state the principles, if any, followed in relegating a hand to the "surplus" list?

(c) Is it a fact that amongst the Compositors appointed on the same date and in the same year some have been put down as "surplus", while several others have not been so regarded?

(d) Are Government aware that an attempt is being made by the authorities of the Eastern Bengal Railway for providing for the "surplus" ministerial hands by reshuffling and distributing them over the sections, while no such attempt for providing for the "surplus" industrial hands is even being thought of?

(e) If the answers to parts (a) to (d) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state:

(i) the reasons that led to the state of affairs as revealed in part (c), and (ii) what action they intend to take for providing for the "surplus" industrial hands?

DEMOTION AND REDUCTION IN SALARIES OF THE INDUSTRIAL STAFF IN THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY PRESS.

†811. Rai Bahadur Lala Brij Kishore: (a) Are Government aware that demotion and reduction in salaries of the industrial hands have recently been effected in the Eastern Bengal Railway Press?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state the principles followed in carrying out these demotions and reductions in salaries?

(c) Is it a fact that these demotions and reductions have been made in case of the industrial hands only, the supervising and clerical staff being left entirely untouched?

(d) If the replies to parts (a) to (c) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state:

(i) the reasons for the action mentioned in part (c), and

(ii) what action they intend to take to remedy the grievances of the industrial hands in this respect?

POSITION OF COMPOSITORS AND BINDERS AFTER THE AMALGAMATION OF THE EAST INDIAN AND EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY PRESSES.

†812. Rai Bahadur Lala Brij Kishore: (a) Is it a fact that an amalgamation of the East Indian and Eastern Bengal Railway Presses has recently been effected?

(b) Is it a fact that the industrial hands of the Eastern Bengal Railway Press will be paid from the Eastern Bengal Railway fund, the said amalgamation notwithstanding?

(c) Is it a fact that the Compositors and the Binders of the Eastern Bengal Railway Press at present transferred to East Indian Railway are all in superior service equally with other industrial staff, viz., Supervisors and Readers?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 798.

(d) If the answers to parts (a) to (c) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the rules and regulations under which the said Compositors and Binders of the Eastern Bengal Railway Press, now transferred to East Indian Railway Press, will in future be guided in their service?

ACTION TAKEN ON THE MEMORIALS OF THE EMPLOYEES OF THE EAST INDIAN AND EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY PRESSES.

†813. Rai Bahadur Lala Brij Kishore: (a) Is it a fact that the employees of the East Indian Railway and the Eastern Bengal Railway Presses, Calcutta, submitted on 12th January, 1931, and 17th January, 1931, respectively, two memorials to the Honourable Sir George Rainy, Member-in-Charge, Railway and Commerce Departments?

(b) Is it a fact that on the 21st March, 1931, Mr. A. A. L. Parsons stated that the said memorials of the workers of the two Presses abovenamed were under consideration?

(c) Is it a fact that in answer to unstarred question No. 108, dated the 28th September, 1931, with reference to the said memorial, Mr. A. A. L. Parsons stated that the Agent of the Eastern Bengal Railway had been asked to expedite the matter?

(d) If the replies to parts (a) to (c) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state, whether the views of the Agent, Eastern Bengal Railway, on the said memorials had been forwarded?

(e) If so, what action has been taken in the matter of those memorials?

(f) If no action has yet been taken, when do Government intend doing so?

ENFORCEMENT OF THE PUNJAB PRIMARY EDUCATION ACT IN DELHI.

814. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad: (a) Is it a fact that the Punjab Primary Education Act, 1919, has recently been enforced in Delhi, and if so, will Government please state: (i) whether a "School Attendance Committee" has been formed, (ii) who are the members of the said committee, (iii) if this committee has received representations for exemption of boys receiving religious education in Islami Maktabs, (iv) what has been decided by the committee in such cases, (v) if no action has yet been taken, whether they propose to see that such boys who are receiving religious education in such Schools and Maktabs which are not recognised by Government, are also exempted under section 10 (c) of the said Act?

(b) Is it a fact that the Delhi Municipality has issued a number of notices to the managers of Maktabs or parents of boys who are receiving religious education in Islamia Maktabs to the effect that they have committed an offence under section 14 of the compulsory Act, and, if so, will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing (i) the number of boys affected, (ii) the number of notices issued, (iii) number of cases challaned, and (iv) the amount of fine realized?

(c) Are Government aware that the issue of notices to those who are receiving religious education is considered by the general public as an interference in the performance of religious duty, and are Government prepared to consider the advisability of issuing necessary instructions in the matter ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Enquiries have been made and the result will be communicated to the House in due course.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Has the Honourable Member seen section 14 of the Punjab Primary Education Act which runs as follows :

" Any person other than the parent of such boy who shall, during the prescribed hours of attendance at school, utilise in connection with any employment, whether for remuneration or not, the services of any boy whose parent is required under section 9 to cause his attendance at school, shall, on conviction, be punishable with a fine not exceeding twenty-five rupees."

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I have a general familiarity with the Act from which my Honourable friend has read out, but he would agree that, until I am in possession of the facts, the question whether it is applicable cannot be determined.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Do Government realise that teaching a boy in a musjid and giving him religious instruction is not employment ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : That is a question asking for an expression of opinion. The question here relates to certain facts and, as I have said, when I do get the facts, I shall look into the matter.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : I want to know the views of Government, whether they take it as employment or not.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I am not here to express an opinion, but only to deal with questions of fact.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : When this report comes in, will Government consider the fact that a boy who is receiving religious instruction along with some secular instruction may be supposed to be attending a school ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : My Honourable friend's suggestion will certainly be considered when the facts are available to Government.

AMOUNT RECEIVED FROM THE ENHANCED PETROL TAX FOR ROAD PURPOSES.

815. Mr. B. V. Jadhav : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) the total amount received each year from the enhanced petrol tax for road purposes since its levy ;

(b) the amount collected each year from (i) the Bombay Presidency, and (ii) the City of Bombay ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce :

	Rs.
(a) March, 1929	3,95,082
1929-30	98,42,801
1930-31	98,03,207
1931-32	102,00,768
1932-33 (Provisional)	102,86,267
	405,28,125

(b) I presume the Honourable Member wishes to know the amounts allotted to the Bombay Presidency from the Road Development Fund on the basis of consumption. They are as follows :

	Rs. lakhs.
1929-30 (including March, 1929)	16.85
1930-31	15.70
1931-32	16.83
First half of 1932-33 (up to the 30th September, 1933) Provisional	8.25
	57.63

No separate figures for the City of Bombay are available.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav : May I point out, Sir, that my question was about the total amount collected each year in Bombay ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I should like to explain to the Honourable Member that, if I gave him those figures, as I am quite prepared to do, they would convey nothing. The petrol duty of two annas—2½ annas now—from which the Road Development Fund is financed is made up of customs duty and excise, and it is only natural that by far the greater part of the excise duty should be collected in Burma. The actual collection of petrol duty in Bombay as customs duty is comparatively small and, it is for that reason, that I was under the impression that the Honourable Member wanted to know the amount allotted to Bombay. If he desires to know the amount actually collected in the Bombay Presidency, I shall be happy to furnish the figures.

GOLD AND SILVER HELD IN THE CURRENCY DEPARTMENT.

816. Mr. B. V. Jadhav : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) (i) the maximum and (ii) minimum amounts of (A) gold and (B) silver held in the Currency Department during each of the years 1930, 1931, 1932, 1933 (upto 30th June) ;

(b) the average rate at which each was (i) sold or (ii) bought during each of the above years ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) I would invite the attention of the Honourable Member to the weekly Abstracts of the Accounts of the Currency Department and to the memoranda published by the Controller of the Currency regarding the balance of the Gold Standard Reserve.

(b) No gold was sold and no silver was bought during this period. Gold was acquired at the statutory rate of Rs. 21-3-10 per tola in accordance with section 4 of the Currency Act, 1927. As regards sales of silver the information could not be compiled without involving an amount of labour which Government do not consider justified, but I may state for the information of the Honourable Member that the amount of silver sold from the commencement of operations to the 31st March, 1933, was 151 million fine ounces and the net price realised was approximately 18½ crores of rupees which represents an average price of about 22*d.* per fine ounce or slightly over 20⅛*d.* per standard ounce.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : May I ask whether the Honourable gentleman has taken into consideration the amount of silver sold in the month of July ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : The figures that I have given are up to the 31st March, 1933 : therefore, the month of July, 1933, does not come in.

RELEASE OF MEMBERS OF THE WORKING COMMITTEE OF THE JAMIAT-UL-ULEMA-I-HIND.

817. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Are Government aware of the resolution passed by the working committee of the Jamiat-ul-Ulema-i-Hind at their Moradabad meeting on the 19th, 20th and 21st August, 1933, suspending the programme of civil disobedience announced by the President of the Jamiat in exercise of his special powers ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state how many members of the Working Committee and workers of the Jamiat are still in jail ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state how many members of the Working Committee and workers of the Jamiat are under notices of expulsion ?

(d) Do Government propose to release the members of the Working Committee and the workers of the Jamiat and to withdraw the notices of expulsion ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I am making enquiries and will lay a statement on the table in due course.

SENIORITY OF EAST INDIAN RAILWAY AND OLD OUDH AND ROHILKUND RAILWAY STAFF.

818. Rai Bahadur Lala Brij Kishore : (a) Will Government be pleased to state in how many senior posts on the Oudh and Rohilkund section of the East Indian Railway subordinates are working at present and vice versa ?

(b) Is it a fact that common seniority of East Indian and Oudh and Rohilkund is maintained for Traffic staff and not for Engineering ? If so, why ?

(c) Is it a fact that there are different rules governing the seniority of different departments of the Railway ? If so, why ?

(d) Is it a fact that the privilege of daily allowances which used to be enjoyed by the Overseers on the Oudh and Rohilkund section has now been withdrawn, although their duty hours are the same and the Chief Engineer and the Chief Auditor, Oudh and Rohilkund Railway, never disallowed this privilege ?

(e) How many posts have been fixed in the cadre of revised grades I and II for the Oudh and Rohilkund Railway Inspectors of Works and how have they been filled up ?

(f) Is it a fact that revised scales sanctioned by the Agent in 1928 were given to some staff from the date of introduction while in some cases years after ? If so, who is responsible for the delay and why has not all the staff been treated alike ?

(g) Is it a fact that in Lucknow Division menials are allowed seven days and subordinates between six and ten days allowance, although they might have earned more in the discharge of their duties, and that there is no such limit for officials ? If so, why ?

(h) Is it a fact that there is a periodical eye-sight examination after every three years for subordinates ? If so, why is there no such examination for officers ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I have called for certain information and will lay a reply on the table of the House in due course.

CUT IN THE CONSOLIDATED ALLOWANCE OF TRAVELLING TICKET EXAMINERS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

819. Mr. E. H. M. Bower : (a) Will Governmnet be pleased to state whether it is a fact that in accordance with the orders of the Railway Board continued in letter No. 7196-F., dated 24th July, 1931, the consolidated allowance paid to the Travelling Ticket Examiners on the East Indian Railway has been subjected to a 12½ per cent. cut ?

(b) Is it a fact that the cut has been imposed from August, 1931 ?

(c) Is it a fact that five months later, i.e., from December, 1931, a ten per cent. cut on pay was introduced in addition ?

(d) Is it a fact that the cut on pay has been reduced to five per cent. whereas the 12½ per cent on consolidated allowance still continues, although two years have passed ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The reply to all these questions is in the affirmative.

CUT IN THE CONSOLIDATED ALLOWANCE OF TRAVELLING TICKET EXAMINERS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

820. Mr. E. H. M. Bower : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that in their letter No. 7196-F., dated the 24th July, 1931, the Railway Board have classed consolidated allowance as compensatory allowance and subjected it to a 12½ per cent. cut ?

(b) Is it a fact that daily allowance has not been subjected to any cut ?

(c) Is it a fact that daily allowance was converted into consolidated allowance in June, 1931 ?

(d) Is it a fact that the 10 per cent. cut on mileage allowance which has been treated like pay has been subsequently reduced to five per cent., the cut to last only till the 31st March, 1934 ?

(e) Is it a fact that when the ten per cent. cut on pay was introduced, all other emergency cuts and methods of economy were cancelled ?

(f) If the reply to part (e) be in the affirmative why was this cut on consolidated allowance not cancelled and why has it been imposed for a longer period than that on pay and at a much higher rate and why has consolidated allowance been treated differently from daily allowance and mileage allowance ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The reply to parts (a), (b) and (d) is in the affirmative, and to parts (c) and (e) in the negative. In regard to (f), I may say that the question whether consolidated travelling allowance should be dealt with on the same principles as daily allowance is under consideration.

CONSOLIDATED ALLOWANCES PAID ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

821. Mr. E. H. M. Bower : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) whether substantial allowance is paid to the staff for the running duty they perform ;

(b) whether it is compensatory allowance, and if so, whether its payment is governed by Supplementary Rule 6 ; if not, why not ; and also why is it treated differently from the daily allowance ; and whether both are defined as travelling allowance under Supplementary Rule 21 ;

(c) what are the various rates of consolidated allowances paid on the East Indian Railway and to what classes of employees, and what is the total number of each class ;

(d) whether it is a fact that the President, National Union of Railwaymen of India and Burma, Bombay, personally represented this case to the Chief Commissioner of Railways during the last half-yearly meeting of the Railway Board with the Federation ; if so, what was the reply given ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) The term ' substantial allowance ' is new to me, but perhaps my Honourable friend is referring to the mileage allowance paid to running staff.

(b) The mileage allowance is treated as part of pay to a large extent. It is taken into account in calculating provident fund bonus, gratuity and leave allowances subject to a maximum of 75 per cent. of pay. I am not quite clear what exactly is the Honourable Member's difficulty with regard to the interpretation of the Supplementary Rules quoted by him. I shall be glad to give him a fuller reply if he will elucidate his difficulty further, but he, no doubt, realises that such questions are not easy to discuss in the form of question and answer in this House. Perhaps it will be more convenient if he will speak to me privately about it.

(c) The information is not readily available, and I am afraid its collection will be a laborious task which is hardly likely to yield any adequate return.

(d) I am unable to trace anything on record about this interview ; Sir Guthrie Russell, with whom the interview is represented as having taken place, is away from India at present and I am not in a position to make any statement on the point.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Will Government be pleased to state whether travelling ticket examiners get travelling allowance and mileage allowance ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Travelling Ticket Examiners get travelling allowances.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : And mileage allowance ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : No.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Has the attention of the Government been drawn to the Gazette of India, dated the 31st January, 1931—Running staff, viz., drivers, shunters, firemen, guards, brakesmen, travelling van porters, travelling van checkers, travelling ticket examiners, travelling stores delivery staff, etc.,—and that travelling ticket examiners are also taken as running staff ? Have Government changed that rule or not ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : That, Sir, is intended for the purpose of the Hours of Employment Regulations.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Have Government changed that or is it that they still treat travelling ticket examiners as running staff ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Travelling ticket examiners are included in running staff for the purpose of the Hours of Employment Regulations.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Do Government propose that they will amend this rule and will mention for what purpose they will be treated as running staff ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : If my Honourable friend will read those rules, he will see that they are meant for the purpose of interpreting the Hours of Employment Regulations.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Is it not a fact that this mileage allowance has been changed into a consolidated allowanee ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : My Honourable friend is quite right.

TRAVELLING WITHOUT TICKETS ON RAILWAY TRAINS.

822. Mr. E. H. M. Bower : Will Government be pleased to state with reference to paragraph 47, item 6, on page 30 of the Report of the Public Accounts Committee, Volume I, for 1929-30 :

(a) whether illicit travelling entails leakage of revenue ,

(b) whether it is the duty of the Traffic Department to recover money by the sale of tickets ;

(c) whether the Traffic Department is responsible that no passengers board a train without a ticket ; and

(d) whether Government propose to stop the leakage of revenue ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The answer to all these questions is in the affirmative. Railway Administrations are fully alive to the necessity of taking steps to check travelling without tickets.

TICKET FRAUDS ON RAILWAYS.

823. Mr. E. H. M. Bower : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to a note published in the Railway Times, the official organ of the National Union of Railwaymen of India and Burma, Bombay, dated the 14th January, 1933, under the heading " Ticket Frauds on Railways " ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state if the facts contained therein are correct ?

(c) Is it a fact that several gunny bags of used tickets were discovered in the hollow pillars of Howrah station ?

(d) What action do Government propose to take on the suggestions contained in the note referred to in part (a) and on a similar suggestion contained in the Railway Retrenchment Sub-Committee's Report under a special note by Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Yes.

(b) and (c). I am making enquiries and shall lay a reply on the table in due course.

(d) I presume the Honourable Member refers to the recommendation of reverting to the old system of check by Travelling Ticket Inspectors working under the Chief Accounts Officer. The question was, as the Honourable Member is aware, discussed at length by the Public Accounts Committee when they considered the Appropriation Accounts of Railways for 1929-30, and the opinion of the Railway Board was explained to them by Sir Alan Parsons, viz., that it was desirable to enforce the responsibility of collecting railway dues on the Traffic Department. The Auditor General concurred in this opinion and added that the function of the Accounts Department was, through the accounts, to check whether the Traffic Department was doing its work properly.

DISCHARGE OF CERTAIN PEONS ATTACHED TO TRAVELLING TICKET INSPECTOR SECTION ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

824. Mr. E. H. M. Bower : (a) Will Government be pleased to state how many peons attached to the Travelling Ticket Inspector section under the Accounts Department on the East Indian Railway were discharged from service from the 1st June, 1931 ?

(b) What was the length of service of each and the last pay drawn ?

(c) Have any efforts been made to provide them with similar posts elsewhere ? Is it a fact that those posts are being filled by fresh recruits from outside ? If so, why ?

(d) Do Government propose to consider the lot of these persons and mitigate their hardships by providing for them in some manner ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) to (c). Government have no information.

(d) I have asked the Controller of Railway Accounts to make enquiries and see whether anything can be done to remove the grievances complained of.

REFUND OF FEES TO CERTAIN CANDIDATES NOT PERMITTED TO APPEAR AT THE MINISTERIAL SERVICE EXAMINATION OF THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION.

825. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact :

(i) that permanent Government servants between the ages of 25 and 30 are allowed to sit for the Indian Audit and Accounts Service Examination ;

(ii) that the same concession was extended to retrenched Government employees, who were candidates for the Ministerial Service Examination held in July, 1933 ;

(iii) that permanent Government employees between the ages of 25 and 30, who deposited fees under a reasonable belief that they were eligible to sit for the Ministerial Service Examination, were neither permitted to appear at the examination, nor were their fees refunded to them ?

(b) Has it been represented to Government that the notice, dated the 25th March, 1933, issued by the Secretary, Public Service Commission, is not explicit on the point ?

(c) Do Government propose to enquire into the matter and refund the fees to the affected parties ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) (i) and (ii). Yes.

(a) (iii) and (c). The Notice and the Application Form for the examination in question prescribed the conditions of eligibility clearly and also stated plainly and specifically that the fee would not be refunded under any circumstances. The application form also warned candidates to read the Notice carefully to see whether they were eligible before paying the fee and that the conditions prescribed for the examination would not be relaxed in any case. If, in spite of this, some candidates, who were not eligible, applied and paid the fee, I do not think they have any cause for legitimate grievance. Government do not therefore see any reason to enquire into the matter as suggested by the Honourable Member.

(b) No.

Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : May I know what it would amount to if these fees are refunded ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I am afraid I cannot tell. The object of the rule presumably was to avoid the time of Government officers being wasted in looking into applications for refunds.

APPLICATION OF THE NEW STATE RAILWAY LEAVE RULES TO THE ACCOUNTS STAFF.

826. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : (a) With reference to their reply to starred question No. 946, put in the Legislative Assembly on the 8th November, 1932, regarding the application of the new State Railway Leave Rules to the Accounts staff, will Government be pleased to state the action taken by them in the matter so far ?

(b) Is it a fact that the new State Railway Leave Rules have been made applicable to permanent staff with effect from the 1st April, 1930 ?

(c) Is it a fact that there are staff in the Railway Accounts Department, who were confirmed from a date prior to the 1st April, 1930, and were not required to execute a declaration that they would come under the new State Railway Leave Rules on their introduction ?

(d) If so, do Government propose to give such staff the option to remain under the old set of Leave Rules ? If not, why not ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) The temporary staff appointed in the old combined Audit and Accounts Offices before the 1st April, 1929, and taken over by the Railway Accounts Department have been allowed the option of remaining under the old leave rules, if they were not informed of the fact that the new State Railway Leave Rules would be applicable to them. The permanent staff taken over from the old combined Audit and Accounts Department have the option to remain under the Fundamental Rules.

(b) The new leave rules have been introduced with effect from the 1st April, 1930, and are applicable to those appointed on or after that date and also to those appointed prior to that date under the arrangement that when the new rules are introduced they would be brought under them.

(c) and (d). The question is still under consideration.

APPOINTMENT OF QUALIFIED CLERKS AS SUB-HEADS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

827. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : (a) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a copy of the information referred to in reply to starred question No. 846, dated the 21st March, 1933, regarding appointment of qualified clerks as sub-heads on the East Indian Railway ?

(b) Are Government aware that if reverted sub-heads monopolise all the vacancies in the sub-head's grade, the qualified clerks, who have passed the highest departmental examination, will have to wait for promotion for at least a decade ?

(c) Is it a fact that the Controller of Railway Accounts' letter No. 77-E.|31|C.R.A.|III, dated the 20th July, 1932, has practically been reduced to a dead letter ?

(d) If so, do Government propose to reconsider the case of the above class of qualified clerks ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I would refer the Honourable Member to the statement laid by me on the table of the House on the 28th August, 1933, in reply to parts (a) to (c) of question No. 846, dated 21st March, 1933.

APPOINTMENT OF LILLOOAH APPRENTICES.

828. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : With reference to the answer to Mr. S. C. Mitra's unstarred question No. 22 (a), (b) and (c) of the 5th September, 1932, regarding Lillooah apprentices, will Government please state in what way they considered the said Anglo-Indian to be the best all round for the appointment in preference to other ex-apprentices of his batch all of whom were placed in higher Divisions in the Technical School examination and who are still waiting ? Is it a fact that he had no qualifications of Train Examiner [as referred to by Government in reply to Mr. Bhuput Sing's starred question No. 631 (a) of the 4th March, 1932] and he failed in the Technical School examination ? Do Government intend to take steps to replace him (the said unsuccessful Anglo-Indian) by an Indian ex-apprentice of his batch ? If not, why not ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : With your permission, Sir, I propose to reply to questions Nos. 828 to 836 together. I have called for certain information and will lay a reply on the table in due course.

APPOINTMENT OF LILLOOAH APPRENTICES.

†829. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : (a) With reference to the answer given in reply to Mr. S. C. Mitra's unstarred question No. 22 (c) of the

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 828.

5th September, 1932, are Government aware that it is not a fact that those two apprentices were sent back to Lillooah shops for unsatisfactory work and irregular attendance ?

(b) Is it a fact that one of them was retained there (under Divisional Superintendent, Howrah) for the discharge of his duties even for a week after the strike was over ? And is it also a fact that he drew the maximum overtime allowance (working under Divisional Superintendent, Howrah) during the strike of all other apprentices of Lillooah workshop who were appointed since 1925 ?

(c) If the answer to parts (a) and (b) above, be in the affirmative, will Government please state whether, before appointing the said unsuccessful Anglo-Indian, they made any endeavour to select any one of those two Indians who had prior claims and both of whom passed in the First Division and were the seniormost of his batch for the post ? If not, why not ?

(d) If the answer to parts (a) and (b) above be in the negative, are Government prepared to make an enquiry into the matter and take necessary steps ? If not, why not ?

(e) Will Government please state why racial discrimination was made in spite of the assurance given in reply to Mr. S. C. Mitra's starred question No. 291 (a) of the 10th September, 1929, in appointing the unsuccessful Anglo-Indian as Train Examiner, although better qualified Indians were available ?

(f) Do Government propose to appoint those two Indian ex-apprentices as Train Examiners under Divisional Superintendents at the earliest opportunity and when vacancies arise and to issue orders to all Divisional Superintendents to this effect ? If not, why not ?

APPOINTMENT OF APPRENTICE TRAIN EXAMINERS FOR THE OPERATING DEPARTMENT.

†830. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : (a) Will Government please lay on the table a copy of their decision in the matter of appointing further apprentice Train Examiners for the Operating Department, as referred to in the reply to a question by Mr. S. C. Mitra ?

(b) If Government have not yet reached any decision, how much longer will they take and what are the reasons for delay ?

APPOINTMENT OF LILLOOAH APPRENTICES.

†831. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : (a) Will Government please state the number of ex-apprentices of Lillooah workshop appointed in suitable posts under Divisional Superintendents, as referred to in answer to Mr. S. C. Mitra's unstarred question No. 22 (f) of the 5th September, 1932, with the following particulars :

(i) names of those who have been appointed,

(ii) names of the Divisions posted,

(iii) Division placed in final examination in Technical school,

(iv) designations,

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 828.

(v) number of Indians, Anglo-Indians and Europeans,

(vi) starting salaries ?

If not, why not ?

(b) Is it a fact that some ex-apprentices of Lillooah workshop have been appointed as Train Examiners under Divisional Superintendent, Howrah, only, and none have been appointed so far in other Divisions ? Are Government aware of the assurance given in reply to Mr. S. C. Mitra's unstarred questions Nos. 22 (f) and 23 (b) and (c) of the 5th September, 1932, and Mr. Bhuput Sing's starred question No. 631 (c) of the 4th March, 1932 ?

(c) If the answer to part (b) above be in the affirmative, will Government please state the reasons for not appointing any ex-apprentices in other Divisions ? Is it a fact that vacancies exist in other Divisions ?

(d) Do Government propose to appoint the ex-apprentices of Lillooah workshop (East Indian Railway), in other Divisions too and issue orders to all Divisional Superintendents accordingly without further delay ? If not, why not ?

APPOINTMENT OF LILLOOAH APPRENTICES AS TRAIN EXAMINERS.

†832. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : (a) Is it a fact that recently some ex-apprentices of the East Indian Railway workshop, Lillooah, have been appointed as Train Examiners under the Divisional Superintendent, Howrah (East Indian Railway) ?

(b) Is it a fact that the majority of them are junior to many ex-apprentices who passed in the First Division and who are still unemployed ?

(c) If the answers to parts (a) and (b) above be in the affirmative, will Government please state the reasons for not selecting those seniors who passed in the First Division and the grounds for selecting juniors, two of whom passed in the First Division and one in the Second Division, for the posts ? Is it a fact that they had appointed one Anglo-Indian ex-apprentice of Lillooah workshop of 1930 under the same Divisional Superintendent who was decidedly less qualified than all the Indians of his batch and who had no qualifications of Train Examiner ? Do Government propose to take steps to replace them by those seniors who passed in the First Division and who are on the waiting list ? If not, why not ?

(d) If the answer to part (b) above be in the negative, do Government propose to make an inquiry into the matter and take necessary steps ? If not, why not ?

(e) Will Government please lay on the table a statement showing the names of the ex-apprentices of Lillooah workshop (East Indian Railway), who have been recently appointed as Train Examiners under the Divisional Superintendent, Howrah, with the dates of their completion of apprenticeship training and the Divisions in which they passed from the Technical School and also of their seniors who are still waiting ?

(f) Will Government please state the percentage of Indian, European and Anglo-Indian ex-apprentices of Lillooah workshop (East Indian Railway) appointed as Train Examiners under the Divisional Superintendent, Howrah, East Indian Railway, since 1931 and whether the policy of progressive Indianisation has been strictly adhered to in making these appointments ?

(g) Will Government please state whether they propose to appoint the senior ex-apprentices of Lillooah workshop (East Indian Railway) of 1929 and 1930 whose cases have been ignored, as Train Examiners, when next vacancies arise, according to the dates of completion of their training and the Divisions they passed from Technical School, and issue orders to all Divisional Superintendents to this effect without further delay ? If not, why not ?

APPOINTMENT OF LILLOOAH APPRENTICES AS TRAIN EXAMINERS.

†833. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : (a) Is it a fact that selection of ex-apprentices of East Indian Railway workshop, Lillooah, for the posts of Train Examiners under Divisional Superintendent, Howrah, on 14th August, 1933, was made after granting interviews to all ex-apprentices who completed their training up to the year 1932 ?

(b) Is it a fact that one European or Anglo-Indian who completed his training this year was appointed as Train Examiner under the Divisional Superintendent, Howrah, without even being called for an interview and ignoring the claims of many senior Indians ?

(c) If the answer to part (b) above be in the affirmative, will Government please state why racial discrimination was made in appointing a junior European or Anglo-Indian ex-apprentice of 1933 without granting him an interview along with others ?

(d) If the answer to part (b) above be in the negative, are Government prepared to make an enquiry into the matter and take necessary steps ? If not, why not ?

(e) Do Government propose to appoint the ex-apprentices of Lillooah in all future cases as Train Examiners from the waiting list strictly according to seniority, giving preference to those who passed in the First Division without making any racial discrimination and issue orders to all officers concerned accordingly ? If not, why not ?

APPOINTMENT OF LILLOOAH APPRENTICES AS ELECTRICIANS AND TRAIN EXAMINERS.

†834. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : (a) Will Government please state the number of ex-apprentices who are likely to be provided with posts under Divisional Superintendents this year, as referred to in answer to Mr. Bhuput Sing's starred question No. 631 (c) of 4th March, 1932 ?

(b) Will Government please state the number of vacancies which occurred in the grade of Electricians and Train Examiners under Divisional Superintendents, East Indian Railway, since 1932 with the following particulars :

(i) number of vacancies in each Division with the name of the Division, and (ii) designations of the vacant posts ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 828.

FORMATION OF SQUADS FOR TICKET CHECKING ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

†835. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if squads of Anglo-Indian boys have been formed on the East Indian Railway for Ticket Checking purposes and placed under the Watch and Ward Department ?

(b) On what considerations have the provisions of Rule 9, Section I, on page 4 of East Indian Railway Agent's Circular No. 548|A.E.-2460 of the 1st October, 1932, been overlooked in basing these appointments on racial discrimination ?

(c) Was practical training for one month given to them as per Rule No. 28, Section II (Commercial) of the above Circular ?

(d) Is it a fact that a few cases of harassment to the travelling public have come to light ?

(e) Is it a fact that they are not empowered to realise money from defaulters and have to hand such men over to station staff for recovery, and that even those men who are ready to pay on demand are made over for such recovery ?

(f) Is it a fact that due to the arrangement mentioned in question (e) above, the passengers on occasions have to pay more penalty than admissible under the rules as per illustration below :

"A passenger travelling without ticket to Chandernagore is detected at Belur. Since the squad men cannot recover the amount, they make him over to the station staff at Chandernagore where the passenger has to pay annas six as fare and annas six as penalty, whereas, if the amount was recovered then and there, as the man was willing to pay, he would have paid annas six as fare and only five pice as penalty ?"

(g) If the reply to the above be in the affirmative are Government prepared to take immediate steps to stop this excessive recovery ?

FORMATION OF SQUADS FOR TICKET CHECKING ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

†836. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) whether the posts for squads of Ticket Checkers on the East Indian Railway were advertised, as per Section III on page 13 of East Indian Railway Agent's Circular No. 548|A.E.-2460 of 1st October, 1932 ;

(b) if so, the names and dates of the papers ;

(c) whether there were any Indian applicants also ; if so, their qualifications, and the names of the officers of the Selection Board, if any was held ;

(d) what reasons have been recorded by the Agent in relaxing the provisions of his own Circular No. 548|A.E.-2560 of the 1st October, 1932, in basing these appointments on racial discrimination and without advertisement and one month's practical training as desired under Rule 64 of the said Circular ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 828.

PAYMENT OF DEATH CLAIMS BY THE POSTAL INSURANCE FUND.

837. Mr. E. Studd : (a) With reference to part (b) of the unstarred question No. 157, asked by Mr. Arthur Moore on the 13th November, 1931, on the subject of payment of death claims by the Postal Insurance Fund, and its reply by the Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore to the effect that he would examine the question, will Government be pleased to state the result of that examination ?

(b) Are Government aware of the feeling of strong dissatisfaction on the part of insurance companies as regards the practice of Government of competing through the Post Office Insurance Fund on particularly favourable terms with private enterprise, especially in view of :

(i) the extension of the Post Office Insurance Fund to quasi-Government servants,

(ii) the increase in the maximum limit of Insurance in the Fund from Rs. 10,000 to Rs. 20,000 on any one life, and

(iii) the practice of Government in granting a concession by dispensing with legal proof of title of claimants to policy monies where the sum assured does not exceed Rs. 5,000, which facility is one that insurance companies are unable, for their own protection, to grant ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state what steps, if any, they propose to take in the matter so as to remove the disadvantages under which insurance companies labour when in competition with the Post Office Insurance Fund ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The question was examined and it was decided that when the amount payable to the heirs of a deceased insurant exceeds Rs. 5,000, or when the claim is disputed, payment should not be made without production of legal proof of title. It was decided that in other cases legal evidence of claim should be dispensed with but that an indemnity bond with two approved sureties should be taken. I may say that this decision was communicated to the Association of Life Insurance Offices in India, and it was explained to them that unlike private companies the scope of the Post Office Insurance Fund is limited to Government servants and quasi-Government servants who are better known to Government than the public at large are known to private insurance companies. The identification of their heirs is comparatively easy and there is very little risk of mispayment. In these circumstances Government consider that it would impose an unnecessary burden on the heirs of small insurants if they were required to produce legal evidence when the amount of the policy does not exceed Rs. 5,000.

(c) Government do not consider that their existing practice involves unfair competition with private Insurance enterprise, having regard to the fact that the Post Office Insurance Fund caters only for Government's own employees and persons of analogous position. There is a very large field available in India for the operation of private insurance enterprise outside the ranks of those to whom the Post Office Insurance Fund is available, and even within those ranks since it is open to any Government official to insure—as many do—with private companies. In the circumstances Government do not propose to take any steps in this matter.

RAISING OF A STERLING LOAN IN LONDON BY THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA.

838. *Mr. K. P. Thampan : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) whether it is a fact that within ten days of the Government floating the 3½ per cent. 1947-50 loan at Rs. 96 under Notification No. F. 3(2) F. 33, dated 25th April 1933, the Secretary of State raised a sterling loan of 4 per cent. at 97 in London ;

(b) whether the Secretary of State had about 18 million sterling at his disposal for his requirements on that date and what was the immediate necessity for raising any loan ;

(c) whether the loan was raised at the instance of the Government of India or that of the Secretary of State, and in the latter case, if the Government were consulted in the matter and they agreed to it ;

(d) whether Government knew at the time the notification for the 3½ per cent. loan was issued that within a short time the Secretary of State would be raising a sterling loan in London on a higher rate of interest ;

(e) whether Government will lay on the table the whole correspondence that passed between Simla and Whitehall on the subject ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) The facts are not quite correctly stated. The 3½ per cent. 1947-50 loan at 96 was announced on the 25th of April and the sterling 4 per cent. loan 1948-53 was issued at 97¼ on the 10th of May.

(b) No. The balance at the Home Treasury at the end of April was approximately seven million pounds. The purpose of raising a sterling loan was, first to pay off the seven million pounds sterling six per cent. loan falling due on the 15th June, and secondly to strengthen the sterling position of Government with a view to accumulating adequate external reserves for the establishment of a Reserve Bank.

(c) The loan was issued after full consultation between the Government of India and the Secretary of State.

(d) The possibility of issuing a sterling loan if at any moment conditions appeared favourable had been under discussion since the beginning of the year. But no decision had been taken nor had any terms been fixed. These decisions have to be taken in London at very short notice and the terms are fixed at the last moment.

(e) No.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : Is it not a fact, Sir, that the ruling rate of interest in England is generally less than that in India ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Will the Honourable Member kindly repeat his question ? I could not hear him.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : Is it not a fact that generally the ruling rate of interest in England is less than that in India ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I presume my Honourable friend is referring to the discount rate of Three Months' Bills or short term interest, is that the point ?

Mr. K. P. Thampan : No, I mean ordinary bank rate of interest.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : It is a fact that the Bank of England discount rate is lower at present than the bank rate of the Imperial Bank of India.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : How does the Honourable the Finance Member account for the phenomenon that the loan raised in India was at a lower rate of interest than the one raised in England ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Because the rate of interest payable on a Government of India loan depends on the conditions affecting Government of India securities in the London market ; it depends on the general level of credit of India in the London market.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : Is the credit of India less in England ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I am afraid I do not follow my friend's question. He seems to be suggesting that because the bank rate in London was lower than the bank rate in India, therefore, the Government of India sterling loan in London ought to have been issued on more favourable terms than the Government of India rupee loan in India. If that is my friend's suggestion, my reply to him is that the price at which a Government of India sterling loan in London is issued depends upon the credit of the Government of India in London, and it is on those conditions that the terms were fixed.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Is it not a fact, Sir, that the Government of India's credit is now-a-days very high ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Yes, Sir ; it is very high, and that particular loan was issued at a comparatively favourable rate.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Is it very high in England as well ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : It is open to my friend to see the quotations for Government of India sterling securities in the daily Press, and he can judge for himself.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav : Whenever the Government of India borrow in England a higher rate is paid than the rate in India, why is it so ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : It is a fact that our sterling loans in London practically always stand at a slightly lower price than the corresponding rupee loans in India, and that is a very common phenomenon for all countries. If my friend will study the position of Japan, for example, he will find still more striking differences between the quotations of their internal loans in Japan and the quotations of their external loans in London or New York.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : Is it a fact that the loan raised in England by the British Government was at a lower rate of interest than that raised by the Secretary of State for India ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I do not know to what particular loan my friend is referring to, but obviously British Government securities in London stand at a higher level than the Government of India securities ; they stand at a level which produces a yield of about one half per cent. lower rate of interest than our securities.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : Is there any foundation for the rumour that the Bank of England had a lot of money at that time and that they wanted to thrust it on this country, and that was the reason why this loan was raised ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : No, Sir, we did not raise the loan from the Bank of England. We raised it from the British public.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : Was not the Bank of England a large subscriber to this loan ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : The Bank of England never subscribes to these loans. The Bank of England arranges the issue to the public ; it is the public who subscribe to the loans.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : In view of the fact that there is a very large amount available in various banks in England for investment, did the Government of India and the Secretary of State make inquiries through their experts whether the money could be raised at a lower rate of interest in London ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I suppose my friend is suggesting that we should have endeavoured to negotiate privately in London. I can only tell my friend that it will be quite an impossible method for the Government of India to adopt. They cannot go round London and endeavour to raise sums privately.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : What I mean is, did the Government of India and the Secretary of State make sufficient efforts to find out whether they could raise a loan at a lower rate of interest, and did they find that it was not possible ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I can assure my Honourable friend that we used every possible effort to get that loan issued at more favourable rates than we were actually able to do.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : May I ask the Finance Member whether there were any advantages at that particular time for raising a loan in England rather than in India ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Sir, the object of raising this particular loan was to increase our sterling resources, and that we would not have been able to do by raising a loan in India.

REPORT OF THE POPE ENQUIRY COMMITTEE.

839. Mr. K. P. Thampan : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) whether the Pope Committee which was appointed on the recommendation of the Railway Retrenchment Sub-Committee has submitted its report, and if so, whether it will be made available to the members of this House ;

(b) the remuneration offered to Mr. Pope and other members of the committee ;

(c) the total expense incurred, including the cost of printing the report, on behalf of this committee ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Copies are available in the Library of the House.

(b) Mr. Pope was paid a salary of £2,000 per annum together with an allowance of Rs. 1,000 per mensem while in India and travelling expenses at Rs. 10 per day. Mr. Pope's associates drew the pay they were in receipt of in their regular posts plus Rs. 10 per day travelling allowance.

(c) Including the cost of printing the report, the cost of the enquiry roughly amounted to Rs. 36,000.

IMPORT OF MOTOR CARS DESIGNED TO RUN WITHOUT PETROL FROM JAPAN.

840. Rai Bahadur Sukhraj Roy : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether they are aware that new motor cars designed to run without petrol have been imported from Japan and are lying on ships in Diamond Harbour at Calcutta ?

(b) Is there any dispute about payment of custom duties on the same ?

(c) Is there no provision at present in law for imposition of duties on these cars ? If so, why not ?

(d) Do Government apprehend a fall in income from petrol duties by the import of these cars ? If so, how ?

(e) Are Government aware at what price it is intended to sell such cars in India and what are the main features of such cars ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) No such cars have been imported from Japan into Calcutta, and no such cars are lying on ships at Diamond Harbour or Calcutta. Diamond Harbour is not a port, and goods cannot be legally imported there.

(b) No.

(c) Such cars would be dutiable at the same rate as other cars.

(d) Does not arise.

(e) No.

PROSECUTION OF CERTAIN OFFICIALS OF THE CENTRAL TELEGRAPH OFFICE, CALCUTTA, FOR DIVULGING THE CONTENTS OF TELEGRAMS REGARDING RACES.

841. Mr. B. N. Misra : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the remarks at page 155 of the Telegraph Review for April, 1933, under the caption of " Gambling " ?

(b) Is it a fact that some years back certain officials of the Central Telegraph Office, Calcutta, were prosecuted for divulging the contents of telegrams regarding horse races ?

(c) If the answer to parts (a) and (b) be in the affirmative, what steps have Government taken, or propose to take as a preventive measure ?

(d) Will Government please lay on the table a statement showing the number of Telegraph employees (by designation) employed on this work in different offices in each Circle and how many of them are Indians and Anglo-Indians ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce: (a) Government have seen the article.

(b) Government are aware of only one case of the kind to which the Honourable Member refers.

(c) The article refers to a matter of discipline in the Calcutta Telegraph Office and shows that the Chief Superintendent who is fully competent to deal with the matter has already taken such steps as he considers appropriate ; Government do not, therefore, propose to interfere.

(d) I regret I am unable to answer the Honourable Member's question as it is not clear what particular work the Honourable Member means by the expression " this work ".

PERMISSION TO THE TELEGRAPH EMPLOYEES TO WORK IN THE RACE COURSE.

842. Mr. B. N. Misra: (a) Is it a fact that the Government Servants' Conduct Rules preclude the departmental employees from receiving remuneration from other firms or agents ?

(b) Is it a fact that permission is granted to the employees in the Telegraph Department to work in the race course due to economic depression ?

(c) Is it a fact that arrangements are made by the Department to give them off or reshuffle their duties in such a way as to enable them to work in the race course on every Saturday ?

(d) Will Government please state if any complaint has ever been received from any head of office for sparing these men at the appointed time on the fixed dates regularly ? If so, from which offices and on how many occasions ?

(e) Will Government please state if there was any occasion in any office to refuse this permission ? If so, when and where ?

(f) Is it a fact that many of these workers are granted permission to perform night duties permanently ? If so, why ?

(g) Will Government please lay on the table a statement showing the names of other departmental offices in which such permission is granted and the number of men thus employed and how many of them are Indians and Anglo-Indians ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce: (a) Yes, except with the previous sanction of the proper authority.

(b) Such permission is of long standing and was granted before the economic depression.

(c), (e) and (f). Government have no information. The arrangement of duties in a Telegraph office is carried out by the officer-in-charge.

(d) Government have not been able to trace any such complaint.

(g) I regret that I am unable to answer the Honourable Member's question as it is not clear what offices he means by the expression " other departmental offices ".

DUTY SYSTEM OF TELEGRAPHISTS AND SIGNAL ROOM CLERKS.

843. Mr. B. N. Misra: With reference to answer given to unstarred question No. 100, dated the 13th March, 1933, by Mr. Rameswar Prasad Bagla :

(a) has the attention of Government been drawn to page 369 of the Telegraph Review, November, 1932, where a representation to the Director General appeared under the heading " Frequent night duties " ?

(b) are Government prepared to order a departmental enquiry into the duty system prevalent in signal offices ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce: (a) Yes, the reperesentation, which is reproduced on the page mentioned, was duly replied to by the Director General.

(b) No, Government do not consider that there is any necessity for such inquiry.

REPORT OF THE VARMA COMMITTEE.

844. Mr. B. N. Misra: (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to question No. 5 under section H—Supplementary Questionnaire of the Varma Committee ?

(b) Is it a fact that the investigation conducted has not been embodied in the Report ?

(c) Will Government please lay on the table the whole correspondence on the subject with the reasons for omission of their findings on this subject in the Report by the Committee ?

(d) With reference to paragraph 30 of the Varma Committee Report, will Government please lay on the table the whole correspondence and evidence on the duty chart and daily absence list which are essential for the computation of telegraph staff ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce: (a) to (d). Government have not yet taken the report of the Varma Committee into consideration and I, therefore, regret that I am unable to reply to the Honourable Member's questions.

MEAL RELIEF IN POST OFFICES.

845. Mr. B. N. Misra: (a) Will Government please state what are the differences in the conditions of service in the Indian and continental signal offices in respect of meal relief, which preclude the Government to accept the standard of 45 minutes' relief ?

(b) Will Government please state the result of the enquiry regarding meal relief in British Post Offices ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce: (a) and (b). For the reasons explained in the reply to part (h) of Mr. Rameshwar Prasad Bagla's unstarred question No. 100 in this House on the 13th March, 1933, Government do not propose to take any action in the matter of comparison between the Indian and British and Continental signal offices in respect of the period of meal relief.

INSOLVENT EMPLOYEES IN CERTAIN GOVERNMENT DEPARTMENTS.

846. *Mr. B. N. Misra : With reference to starred question No. 850, dated the 21st March, 1933, by Mr. Lalchand Navalrai, will Government be pleased to state how many insolvents are still in the active service in the Telegraph side of the Posts and Telegraphs Department in gazetted ranks in (i) Railway, (ii) Posts, and (iii) Telegraphs Departments separately ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Government regret that the information is not readily available and could not be obtained without an expenditure of time and labour which would be unjustifiable.

INDEBTEDNESS OF GAZETTED OFFICERS IN THE TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENT.

847. *Mr. B. N. Misra : (a) Are Government aware that many gazetted officers in the Telegraph Department are hopelessly encumbered with debt taken from private individuals ?

(b) Will Government please lay on the table a statement showing the number of employees still in service in the Telegraph Department among the (i) subordinate and (ii) gazetted ranks whose pay has been attached by the Court ?

(c) Is it a fact that Government is considering the desirability of amending Rule 16 of the Government Servants' Conduct Rules with a view to make dismissal a compulsory condition for those Government servants who have been adjudged insolvents ?

(d) Will Government please state the number of employees during the last 10 years in the Telegraph Department whose services have been dispensed with for misappropriating the public money or for abetting or falsification of Government accounts ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Although Government are aware that certain of the gazetted officers in the Telegraph branch of the Posts and Telegraphs Department are financially embarrassed, they have no reason to suppose that the number is large.

(b) and (d). Government regret that the required information is not readily available and cannot be obtained without an undue expenditure of time and labour.

(c) No.

ALLEGED FALSIFICATION OF ACCOUNTS BY A CLERK OF THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR, TELEGRAPH ENGINEERING, EASTERN CIRCLE.

848. *Mr. B. N. Misra : (a) Is it a fact that the services of a clerk who was attached to the office of the Director, Telegraph Engineering, Eastern Circle (now amalgamated with the Postmaster-General's Office, Calcutta), were dispensed with for alleged falsification of accounts and misappropriation on the judgment of the Presidency Magistrate during the time when Mr. Fox was Personal Assistant ?

(b) Is it a fact that the trying Magistrate passed severe strictures on the conduct of some responsible officers ?

(c) Will Government please lay on the table the full copy of the judgment ? If not, why not ?

(d) Is it a fact that the officers whose conduct was criticised are still in service ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The clerk was dismissed from service on the charges referred to not in connection with the cases in which he was acquitted by the Presidency Magistrate but in connection with other cases of falsification of accounts and misappropriation of Government money, brought to light as a result of departmental investigations after his acquittal by the Magistrate.

(b) So far as Government are aware the trying Magistrate made adverse comments on the conduct of one officer only.

(c) Government regret that they are unable to comply with the Honourable Member's request as the dismissal of the clerk referred to in part (a) of this question was not in connection with the cases forming the subject of the judgment and the officer referred to in my reply to part (b) above has since died.

(d) The Honourable Member is referred to the reply to parts (b) and (c) above.

UNAUTHORISED APPOINTMENTS IN THE POSTAL DEPARTMENT.

849. *Mr. B. N. Misra : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to Chapter XIV of the Report of the Telegraph Establishment Enquiry Committee and to pages 353, 390 of the Telegraph Review of November and December, 1932, on the subjects of certain unauthorised appointments ?

(b) Have Government undertaken any enquiry ? If so, with what results ? If not, why not ?

(c) Is it a fact that all these appointments are being carried on for years with the full knowledge of the Circle Heads ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) As regards the first part of the question, Government have not yet considered the Report of the Committee. As regards the second part, Government have seen the article in question.

(b) Government have made no enquiries as the matter is one with which the Head of the Circle is competent to deal.

(c) Government have no information.

DECENTRALISATION OF THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS DEPARTMENT.

850. *Mr. B. N. Misra : (a) Is it a fact that the administration of the Posts and Telegraph Department is being gradually decentralised like other Government Departments ?

(b) Have Government taken any disciplinary action against the responsible officers where they have flouted the orders of the Director General ? If so, will Government be pleased to state the number of such officers and the nature of punishment awarded ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Yes, so far as is practicable.

(b) Government are not aware of the orders of the Director General being flouted by responsible officers. Occasionally orders may be disregarded ; such cases when they come to notice are dealt with according to the circumstances. The Department has been so long in existence that it would be an impossible task to compile a statement of such cases.

RULES FOR RECOGNITION OF GOVERNMENT SERVANTS' ORGANISATIONS.

851. Mr. B. N. Misra : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the two editorials in the Telegraph Review for December, 1932 and June 1933 on the subject of Rules of Recognition of Government servants' organizations ?

(b) Is it not a fact that the editorial under caption " A bone of contention " in the June, 1933, issue is based on the recommendations of the Whitley Commission ?

(c) Is it a fact that under the existing rules of recognition, service organizations cannot represent the grievances of individual members ?

(d) Is it not a fact that on many occasions Government ask for individual concrete instances from the organizations whenever common grievances are represented ?

(e) In view of the recommendations of the Royal Commission on Labour in India, are Government prepared to consider the modification of the existing rules of recognition of Government servants' organisations ? If not, why not ? If so, when ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Government have seen the article.

(b) The article refers to certain passages in the Report of the Commission.

(c) Yes, representations must be confined to matters which are, or raise questions which are, of common interest to the class represented by the Association.

(d) Such occasions may arise, but are not frequent.

(e) Government have under consideration the revision of the Recognition Rules in their application to industrial workers.

INSPECTION OF COMBINED POST AND TELEGRAPH OFFICES.

852. Mr. B. N. Misra : (a) Is it a fact that the inspection of combined post and telegraph offices has been transferred from the duty of a Superintendent of Telegraph Traffic to that of a Postal Inspector and Superintendent ?

(b) Is it a fact that under the existing rules Postal clerks are eligible for the posts of telegraphists after training ?

(c) Is it a fact that the majority of 228 telegraphists surplus to requirements have been transferred to the post offices and the occasion for such transfers are too frequent ?

(d) Will Government please state whether suitable telegraphists and clerks in the Telegraph Department are eligible for promotions to the grades of Postmasters, Postal Inspectors and Superintendents' provided they possess the required qualifications ? If not, why not ? Will Government please state whether they are prepared to consider the question now ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) and (b). The replies are in affirmative.

(c) No, only 68 telegraphists have been so transferred.

(d) The reply to the first part is in the negative. As regards the second part, the duties of telegraphists or clerks in telegraph offices are quite different from those of officials in the grades of Postmasters, Postal Inspectors or Superintendents of Post Offices and the experience gained by them in their own grades would be of no value in the grades named by the Honourable Member. The reply to the last part is in the negative.

NON-GRANT OF LEAVE TO THE INFERIOR SERVANTS OF THE TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENT.

853. Mr. B. N. Misra : (a) Are Government aware that there are no provisions for leave reserves staff for the inferior servants of the Telegraph Department and consequently leave on average pay granted to superior establishment is denied to this class of employees ?

(b) If answer to part (a) be in the affirmative, are Government aware of the hardship caused to these servants of Government ?

(c) If answer to part (b) be in the affirmative, do Government propose to make necessary provision for their leave reserve and grant them average pay for privilege leave ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Yes.

(b) and (c). The existing rules do not provide for the grant of leave on average pay to inferior Government servants generally and Government do not propose to make an exception in respect of the inferior staff of the Telegraph Department.

GRIEVANCES OF THE TELEGRAPH STAFF.

854. Mr. B. N. Misra : (a) Are Government aware of the fact that in the May and July, 1933, issues of the Telegraph Review on pages

189-190 and 255-256, three articles appeared under the captions (i) " Who is to blame ", (ii) " Legitimate Claims " and (iii) " Viceroy's Camp " ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state whether the facts on which the articles have appeared are substantially correct ? If so, what action have Government since taken or propose to take to redress the grievances of the staff ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Yes.

(b) As regards the first part of the question, the reply is in the affirmative.

Of the cases referred to, the claim for enhanced overtime allowance made by certain telephone operators, Dacca and Narayanganj, was not admitted, on the ground that it was a very belated one when it reached the Director General. I have however given instructions that the claim should be re-examined.

The claim of certain task work messengers for overtime allowance for duty performed in 1930, in the Viceroy's camp office at Calcutta, was not referred to the Director General by the Postmaster-General, Bengal and Assam, who apparently disposed of it under his own powers.

REALISATION OF SUBSCRIPTION OF MEMBERS OF SERVICE ORGANISATIONS THROUGH THE SALARY BILLS OF THE STAFF.

855. Mr. B. N. Misra : (a) Is it a fact that recoveries of co-operative credit societies, clubs, etc., attached to different Government offices are made through the salary bills of the staff ?

(b) If the reply to the above question be in the affirmative, do Government propose to grant the same facilities to service organisations recognised by Government in respect of realisation of subscriptions of members through their salary bills ? If not, why not?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) and (b). There are no cases where deductions for such purposes are made through salary bills in the same way, for instance, as a subscription to a Provident Fund. In certain cases however an arrangement was introduced as a concession whereby sums due from members of co-operative societies in the Posts and Telegraphs Department could be realised through the assistance of departmental officials. The practice is limited to certain cases and it is considered undesirable to extend it.

RETRENCHMENT IN THE UNITED PROVINCES POSTAL CIRCLE.

856. Mr. B. N. Misra : (a) Is it not a fact that the promotions and discharge of officials under the retrenchment scheme in the United Provinces Circle of the Posts and Telegraphs Department are being done on the grounds of communalism ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state if they have received any appeals from the staff of the United Provinces Circle on the grounds mentioned in part (a) ?

(c) Are Government prepared to make sifting enquiries into this matter and take such steps as would stop these practices ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) As has often been stated in this House, promotions are not made on communal grounds. In carrying out retrenchment, however, the communal ratios existing before the beginning of the retrenchment campaign have been maintained as nearly as circumstances allowed.

(b) No such appeals have been traced.

(c) In the absence of any reason to suppose that their orders are not being carried out in the United Provinces Circle, Government do not propose to initiate enquiries.

TEACHING STAFF OF THE ROYAL INDIAN MILITARY COLLEGE, DEHRA DUN.

857. Mr. B. N. Misra : (a) Will Government be pleased to state (i) the number of the members of the senior staff of the Royal Indian Military College at Dehra Dun, (ii) their academic qualifications, (iii) the classes in which they obtained their degrees, if any, (iv) their ages and dates of appointment, (v) the salaries on which they started and their present salaries, (vi) their extra allowances and the duties for which they are given, and (vii) other privileges, like free bungalows with their rental values, etc. ?

(b) Are there any Indians on the senior staff of this college, or has any Indian been appointed on the senior teaching staff ? If not, why not ?

(c) If the answer to part (b) be in the negative, were there no Indians available with these or better qualifications ? Why have no Indians been appointed, keeping in view the Government declared policy of Indianising a certain proportion of the military services ?

(d) Is it a fact that this college has nothing to do with military training ? If so, have Government considered whether they can obtain more efficient Indians on lower salaries for it ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) I lay a statement on the table giving the information desired by the Honourable Member so far as available.

(b) and (c). No Indian has been appointed permanently to the senior teaching staff because the object of the college is to give a Public School education on British lines and British masters are considered essential if this object is to be fulfilled.

(d) Apart from simple drill and physical training no military training is imparted at the college. For the reason given in the reply to parts (b) and (c) the answer to the second part of this question is in the negative.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : I understood the Honourable Member to say that no military training is given in the Royal Indian Military College at Dehra Dun.

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Yes.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : If that is so, why should the name be the Royal Indian Military College ? It becomes a misnomer.

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Because it prepares boys for the Indian Military Academy examination.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Without any military training at all ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Yes.

TEACHING STAFF OF THE INDIAN MILITARY ACADEMY, DEHRA DUN.

858. Mr. B. N. Misra : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if there are any Indians on the teaching staff of the Indian Military Academy, Dehra Dun ? If not, why not ?

(b) Why are military officers only appointed for the teaching of such subjects as Elementary Mathematics, Geography, Law, Drawing, Higher Mathematics, Economics, Science, etc. ?

(c) If the answer to the latter part of (b) above be in the affirmative, are Government prepared to take the necessary action to replace the military officers with Indians with proper qualifications ?

(d) Will Government please state the number of officers in the Military Academy getting (i) Rs. 300 and upwards and (ii) below that ?

(e) How many (i) Europeans, (ii) Indians are there in the cadre above Rs. 300 ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a), (b) and (c). The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the answer to starred question No. 759 asked on the 13th March last.

(ii). 2.
(e) (i). 15.
(ii). None.

EXTENSIONS GIVEN TO THE COMMISSIONER AND ASSISTANT COMMISSIONER OF INCOME-TAX IN THE UNITED PROVINCES AND THE PUNJAB, RESPECTIVELY.

859. Bhai Parma Nand : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that in the Income-tax Department, extension has been given for the second time to an Income-tax Commissioner in the United Provinces, and that an extension has also been given to an Assistant Income-tax Commissioner in the Punjab ?

(b) Is it a fact that Government have issued instructions that persons who have done 25 years' service should be made to retire ? If so, why is it that extension is so freely given in the Income-tax Department ?

(c) Are Government prepared to consider in the interests of economy that such extension should be disallowed and persons who have done 25 years' service be asked to retire ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) Yes.

(b) No. The second part of the question does not arise.

(c) That is a matter for consideration in each case. Extensions have only been granted when that has been considered to be in the interest of public service.

STOPPAGE OF EXPRESS TRAINS AT KHATAULI, NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

860. Bhai Parma Nand : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether the Up Bombay Express No. 57 and Down Express No. 58 do not stop at Khatauli on the North Western Railway, which is nearly midway between Muzaffarnagar and Meerut Cantonment ?

(b) Is it a fact that Khatauli has a much larger population—eight or nine times the population of Mansurpur and Daurala where these trains stop—and is also commercially more important and also the nearest Railway Station to the Tahsil headquarters at Janseth ?

(c) Are there any special reasons why the Bombay Express trains should stop at those stations and not at Khatauli and will Government please state the reasons ?

(d) Is it a fact that a big sugar mill is also being erected at Khatauli and will Government please give the figures for the goods and passenger traffic on this station from the 1st April to the 15th August, 1933, as also the figures for Mansurpur and Daurala stations for the same period and also for the corresponding period in 1932 ?

(e) Are Government prepared to consider the advisability of asking the North Western Railway Administration to arrange the stoppage of the Express at Khatauli ?

(f) Is Mansurpur only five miles from Muzaffarnagar and Daurala and six or seven miles from Meerut Cantonment ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Yes.

(b), (c), (d) and (f). Government have no information.

(e) I am sending a copy of this question to the Agent, North Western Railway, for considering the suggestion made by the Honourable Member.

CLASSIFICATION IN JAIL OF INDIAN PRISONERS.

861. Bhai Parma Nand : (a) Is it a fact that the social status and the mode of living of the convict is the sole test applied by Government in the matter of the classification of Indian prisoners into three classes ?

(b) Is it a fact that Government have always been extremely averse to the entertainment of any proposal aiming at discrimination between ordinary and political prisoners ?

(c) Is it not a fact that normally every prisoner is entitled to associate with other prisoners of his own class, and that the Jail Manual even permits, with certain limitations, an only prisoner of a particular class to associate with one or more of a different class if he so desires ?

(d) Will Government please state whether they have authorised the Inspector-General of Prisons to frame and issue discriminatory regulations, and are Government aware that they virtually do away with the provisions of section 60 of the Prisoner's Act, so far as they are applicable to Delhi ?

If so, how do they reconcile their position with oft-professed principle of non-discrimination between the ordinary and political prisoners ?

(e) Is it also not a fact that in addition to his segregation :

(i) the so-called terrorist prisoner does not get the special remission permitted in the case of ordinary prisoners ;

(ii) he is not entitled to be made a convict-official, and loses the special remission and other facilities incidental thereto ;

(iii) he cannot get any of the better kind of labour, such as clerical work, etc. ;

(iv) he is not permitted books from outside ;

(v) he is not permitted a newspaper even when placed in the B class ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) Social status, education and habit of life are the criteria for admission to classes B and C but admission to class A is dependent also on the nature of the crime for which the prisoner is convicted and on his being a non-habitual prisoner.

(b) Government have not recognised a special class of political prisoners.

(c) It is a fact that prisoners are normally allowed a certain amount of association with other prisoners and that where there is only one prisoner of a certain class it is usual to give him some facilities for company.

(d) Section 60 of the Prisons Act confers a rule-making power on Local Governments. The Government of India are not aware that any Local Government has issued rules, or authorised any Inspector General to issue orders, which are not in accordance with the general instructions prescribed by the Governor General in Council for the classification of prisoners.

(e) (i) The rule relating to special remission applies to all prisoners equally.

(ii) No prisoner has any right to be made a convict official. Such appointments are made purely by selection.

(iii) Prisoners are ordinarily employed on the class of labour for which the Medical Officer certifies them to be fit. No prisoner has any right to any less severe form of labour.

(iv) and (v). There is no discrimination against terrorist prisoners in the matter of facilities for reading either books or newspapers.

CASE OF MESSRS. VAISHAMPAYAN AND POTDAR, ACCUSED IN THE DELHI CONSPIRACY CASE.

862. Bhai Parma Nand : (a) Is it a fact that Vaishampayan and Potdar were acquitted by the Sessions Judge of Delhi in a case under the Explosive Substances Act ?

(b) Is it a fact that both the persons above-named were immediately re-arrested and confined in jail ?

(c) Is it a fact that Potdar was released after three or four days ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to state why he was detained ?

(e) Are Government prepared to order Vaishampayan's release ? If not, why not ? Why is he being detained ?

(f) Is it a fact that Vaishampayan and Potdar were accused in Delhi Conspiracy Case before the case under the Explosive Substances Act was instituted, and that this case was withdrawn after about two years ?

(g) Do Government propose to compensate the above-named persons for their long and uncalled-for confinement ? If so, what compensation do they intend to make ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) to (e). Yes.

(d) Potdar was detained under section 2 of the Punjab Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1932, pending consideration whether it was necessary to take any action against him.

(e) The answer to the first part is in the negative, and to the remaining parts, that the State Prisoner is being detained in jail in view of his terrorist activities which make it undesirable for him to be at liberty.

(f) Yes.

(g) I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply given by me on the 2nd March last to Rai Bahadur Sukhraj Roy's question No. 602.

GRANT OF AN ALLOWANCE TO MR. V. G. VAISHAMPAYAN, A STATE PRISONER.

863. Bhai Parma Nand : (a) Is it not a fact that Mr. V. G. Vaishampayan was arrested and detained under Regulation III of 1818 immediately after he was acquitted by the Sessions Judge of Delhi from charges under Explosives Act ?

(b) Is it a fact that Government have not so far fixed any allowance for him and his dependants ?

(c) Are Government aware of the fact that Mr. V. G. Vaishampayan was the sole bread-winner of the family, consisting of a blind father, an old mother, an unmarried sister, and two minor brothers ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to state as to what steps they are taking towards the speedy decision of the question of proper allowance, etc., for him ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) Yes. Mr. V. G. Vaishampayan was detained as a State Prisoner under Regulation III of 1818 about the middle of August last.

(b), (c) and (d). The question whether any allowance is necessary is under consideration. According to my information the State Prisoner is unmarried and was a student and was earning nothing at the time of his arrest. It is understood that his father is in receipt of a pension.

EXTERNMENT OF ONE MR. RATNA PRAKASH FROM DELHI.

864. Bhai Parma Nand : (a) Are Government aware that on the 25th July, 1933, Mr. Ratna Prakash was served with notice to leave Delhi Province within 24 hours for an indefinite period ?

(b) Are Government aware that Mr. Ratna Prakash was Secretary of the Students Harijan Service League, Delhi, which is a purely social body ?

(c) Has Mr. Ratna Prakash been externed on account of his anti-untouchability activities ? If not, will Government be pleased to give reasons for externing Mr. Ratna Prakash from Delhi where he has been residing for the last eight years ?

(d) Was any opportunity given to Mr. Ratna Prakash to explain himself before taking action against him ? If so, what ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) Yes.

(b) It is understood this was one of his activities.

(c) and (d). The order of externment had nothing to do with anti-untouchability activities. It was issued in view of the Local Government being satisfied that he was pursuing activities of a revolutionary character falling within the terms of section 3 of the Punjab Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1932, and in accordance with the procedure laid down in that section.

COMMUNAL INEQUALITY IN INFERIOR APPOINTMENTS IN THE JHELUM HEAD POST OFFICE.

865. Bhai Parma Nand : (a) Is it a fact that out of 18 non-clerical superior and 11 inferior appointments in the Jhelum Head Post Office only one inferior appointment is held by a Hindu and all the rest by Muslims ? If so, do Government propose to take action to remedy the communal inequality in the said appointments ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state the number of candidates for the above cadres of each community on the waiting list and how many Hindus have been recruited during the last five years to adjust the communal inequalities ? Has any of the Hindu candidates been given appointment according to Government orders regarding reserving of vacancies for minority communities ? If not, who is responsible for not acting up to Government orders and what action do Government propose to take against him and to stop further injustice to the Hindu community ?

(c) Owing to the paucity of Hindu inferior servants on the staff of the Jhelum Head Post Office, will Government be pleased to state what facilities, if any, have been provided for the supply of water, etc., to the Hindu clerical staff there ? Is it a fact that the Muslim staff are benefited by the service of a bhishtee sanctioned for the office besides the ten Muslim inferior servants ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) to (c). Information has been called for and will be placed on the table in due course.

COMPULSORY ATTENDANCE OF THE STAFF OF THE HISSAR HEAD POST OFFICE ON A HOLIDAY.

866. Bhai Parma Nand : (a) Have Government seen the article under the caption " Strange if True " in the issue of the Daily Herald, dated the 30th March, 1933, regarding compulsory attendance of the staff of the Hissar Head Post Office on 12th March, 1933, which was a Sunday and also a religious day for the Hindus on account of Holi ?

(b) Will Government please state who was responsible for the issue of these orders ?

(c) If the facts mentioned in part (a) are correct, do Government propose to state whether any action was taken against the officer concerned for causing inconvenience to the Hindu staff and interfering with the observance of their religious day ? If not, are Government now prepared to take suitable action to avoid a repetition of such occurrences ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Government have seen the article in question.

(b) and (c). Government have no information, but the matter is within the competence of the Head of the Circle concerned to whom a copy of the question is being sent.

RETRENCHMENT OF HINDUS IN THE PUNJAB AND NORTH-WEST FRONTIER POSTAL CIRCLE.

867. Bhai Parma Nand : (a) Is it a fact that Government have laid down the policy of giving weight to communal proportion in services in the matter of

(i) Recruitment,

(ii) Retrenchment of personnel ?

(b) Is it a fact that recently the Postmaster-General, Punjab and North-West Frontier Circle, has retrenched 19 officials of the Railway Mail Service, out of which four are Muslims, one Sikh and fourteen Hindus ?

(c) Is it a fact that out of the 19 officials retrenched, four Muslims, six Hindus, and one Sikh are those who have voluntarily retired and that the remaining eight who have been retrenched are all Hindus ?

(d) If replies to parts (a), (b) and (c) be in the affirmative, will Government please state why Hindu officials have been retrenched out of all proportion ?

(e) Do Government propose to restore to service the Hindu officials, who have thus been retrenched ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The facts are substantially as stated by the Honourable Member.

(b) to (e). Information is being collected and a reply will be laid on the table in due course.

RETRENCHMENT OF HINDUS IN CERTAIN RAILWAY MAIL SERVICE DIVISIONS.

868. Bhai Parma Nand : (a) Is it a fact that recently some four selection grade officials have been retrenched in Railway Mail Service "D" and "L" Divisions, who are all Hindus ?

(b) Is it a fact that there are orders from Government of India that the proportion amongst communities existing before retrenchment should not change after retrenchment ?

(c) Is it also a fact that officials who volunteer themselves to retire under retrenchment concessions or otherwise are not regarded as retrenched personnel for the purpose of maintaining communal ratio as stated in part (b) above ?

(d) Is it also a fact that the retrenched Hindu officials have barely put in a service of 30 years in the department, whereas others who have been left over are officials with more than 32 years of service ? Is it not against the intentions of and contrary to the instructions laid down by the Government of India in this connection ?

(e) If the replies to parts (a), (b), (c) and (d) be in the affirmative, will Government please state why only the junior Hindu officials have been singled out for retrenchment ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a), (d) and (e). The information is being collected and will be placed on the table in due course.

(b) Yes, the ratio between the various communities existing before retrenchment is to be maintained to the nearest practicable figure.

(c) The fact is not as stated. Officials who retire voluntarily under the retrenchment scheme, but not those who retire under the ordinary rules, are treated as retrenched officials for the purpose referred to.

RETRENCHMENT OF HINDUS IN CERTAIN RAILWAY MAIL SERVICE DIVISIONS.

869. Bhai Parma Nand : (a) Will Government please state the number of Hindus, Muhammadans, Sikhs and others serving in the Railway Mail Service "D" and "L" Divisions in clerical and sorters cadre on the 1st March, 1933 ?

(b) Will Government also please state the number of officials retrenched in those Divisions (excluding those who volunteered themselves for retirement) since 1st March, 1933, as also the communities to which they belonged ?

(c) Is it a fact that the proportion that existed on the 1st March, 1933, in these Divisions has not been maintained ? If so, are Government prepared to restore them to service ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The latest figures in possession of Government which are up to the 31st December, 1932, are as follows :

Railway Mail Service 'D' Division.	Hindus 280, Muhammadans 105, Sikhs 35, Indian Christians 3 and others nil.
Railway Mail Service 'L' Division.	Hindus 300, Muhammadans 98, Sikhs 62, Indian Christians and others nil.

PERIOD OF STAY OF EACH DEPUTY POSTMASTER GENERAL IN ONE POSTAL CIRCLE.

870. Bhai Parma Nand : (a) Will Government please state if there is any order fixing the limit of stay of a Deputy Postmaster General in one Circle ?

(b) Will Government please lay a statement on the table showing the period of stay of each Deputy Postmaster General in their Circles ?

(c) If any such officer has exceeded the fixed limit, do Government propose to transfer him to some other Circle ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The reply is in the negative.

(b) In view of the reply to part (a) Government do not consider that it would be useful to collect the information.

(c) Does not arise.

ALLEGATIONS AGAINST THE SUPERINTENDENT OF POST OFFICES, ROHTAK DIVISION.

871. Bhai Parma Nand : (a) Is it a fact that the present Superintendent of Post Offices, Rohtak Division, closed the Telegraph Branches of Rohtak Head Office and Hissar Cutchery Sub-Office several times during the years 1932-33 and 1933-34 on the ground that no combined hand was available to do telegraph work during the casual leave granted to officials for private affairs ? Are Government aware that this caused delay in the disposal of the telegraph work, and consequent inconvenience to the public ?

(b) Are Government aware that one Mr. Chander Bhan Gupta, reserve clerk, Hissar Post Office, applied for leave owing to his son's serious illness, which was not granted, and the child subsequently died, and even then he was not relieved soon after ? If so, will Government please state why some arrangement could not be made to relieve Mr. Chandar Bhan ?

(c) Will Government please state whether the Director General, Posts and Telegraphs, ever issued any instructions to his subordinates in the matter of granting leave in such cases of emergencies ? If so, why were those instructions not acted upon by the Superintendent of Rohtak Division ?

(d) Is it a fact that during the time Mr. Chandar Bhan's son was ill, a combined hand was available in the office of the Superintendent, Rohtak Division but his services were not utilized on this occasion ? If so, why ?

(e) Is it a fact that there are standing orders to the effect that a combined hand should not be posted to the Superintendent's office nor any clerk kept in such offices for more than five years ? If so, will Government please state how many such officials are working in the office of the Superintendent, Post Offices, Rohtak Division, contrary to Government orders and what action they propose to take in the matter ?

(f) Is it a fact that the combined hand working in the office of the Superintendent, Post Offices, Rohtak Division, since a long time was ordered several times by the Postmaster General to be removed but his orders have not been carried out by the Superintendent ? If so, why not ?

(g) If the facts are as stated in parts (a) to (f), will Government please state what action they propose to take against this Superintendent ? Do they propose to refer to his personal records in other Circles before he was transferred to the Punjab which is his home ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a), (b), (d), (e), (f) and (g). Government have no information. The Head of the Circle is fully competent to deal with the matters to which the Honourable Member refers and a copy of this question is being sent to him.

(c) The fact is not as stated. The Director General's instructions which the Honourable Member seems to have in mind relate to the prompt relief of officials in cases of their own serious illness. The latter part of the question does not arise.

DEMAND OF WHITE-SETTLERS FOR THE CONTROL OF FINANCES OF THE KENYA GOVERNMENT.

872. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the Tanganyika Opinion of the 4th August, 1933, pages 2, 3 and 4 publishing a memorandum under the heading " Kenya Leaders Memorandum on White Demands ", which purports to be a memorandum submitted by the leaders of the Kenya Indian community to the President of the East African Indian National Congress on the subject of Kenya White Demand for control of finances of the Kenya Government ?

(b) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the Presidential Address delivered at the Kenya Indian Unofficial Conference to consider the serious situation, which is published in the Tanganyika Opinion of the 4th August, 1933, at page 6, under the heading " President's Revealing Address at Mombasa " ?

(c) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the Resolutions passed at the Indian Unofficial Conference held at Mombasa, which are published in the Tanganyika Opinion, at page 5, under the heading " A Challenge to the Kenya White Demands " ?

(d) Do Government realize that an overwhelming serious situation has arisen in Kenya in regard to the future status of the Indian settlers in that colony ?

(e) Are Government prepared to make representations to the Government in London on the subject of relieving the tension ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a), (b) and (c). Yes.

(d) and (e). The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the Press Note on the subject issued on the 11th August, 1933.

DEMAND FOR CLOSER UNION OF EAST AFRICA INCLUDING TANGANYIKA WITH KENYA.

873. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to a leading article under the heading " Closer Union Menace ", at page 10 of the Tanganyika Opinion of the 11th August, 1933 ?

(b) Are Government aware of the situation arising out of the Kenya Whites' Demand for control of colonial finance and Closer Union of East Africa including Tanganyika with Kenya so as to give them an over-riding voice in the East African Government ?

(c) Are Government aware that the Indian community of Tanganyika are opposed to any kind of Closer Union of the mandated territory with Kenya ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to inform this House as to how far negotiations have been carried on with the Imperial Government up to now on the subject of the Closer Union of East Africa and the question of white self-government in Kenya ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) and (c). Yes.

(b) I would invite my Honourable friend's attention to the Press Note to which I have just now referred.

(c) So far as the Government of India are aware, His Majesty's Government contemplate no departure, in the matter of Closer Union, from the decision announced in July, 1932.

PERMISSION TO MR. SAILENDRA NATH GHOSE, AN EXILE, TO RETURN TO INDIA.

874. Mr. Bhuput Sing : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether their attention has been drawn to the letter of Mr. Sailendra Nath Ghose, President, Indian National Congress, America, addressed to Mr. S. C. Mitra, as published in a Free Press message from Simla, dated the 27th July, 1933, requesting him and his colleagues in this House to take interest in his case so that he may, on his giving reasonable undertakings, come back to his motherland and contribute his share to her improvement under the new Constitution ?

(b) Have Government received any communication from the Secretary of State for India, asking for their opinion on the desirability or otherwise of allowing him to return to this country ?

(c) When, why and under whose orders had the exile taken place ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) I have seen a reference to this in the Press.

(b) The Secretary of State is not prepared to accede to Mr. Ghose's request.

(c) I would invite the Honourable Member's attention to the reply given by me to Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh's question No. 788 on the 20th March, 1933, to which I have nothing to add.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : Will Government allow the gentleman to come to India and then launch a prosecution under any section of the Penal Code ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : His Majesty's Government do not consider it desirable to give this gentleman passport facilities for returning to India.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : Do not the Government consider that this gentleman might create troubles for Great Britain in other countries than India ? If he is really guilty, why not prosecute him and convict him in a court of law ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I do not think even the gentleman himself is anxious to come here and be prosecuted and punished, because one of his requests is for an amnesty.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : May I tell the Honourable Member that the man is anxious to come here and take the consequences under the laws of the land ? He has written to me.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : That is not in accordance with the letter which I saw, which was addressed either to the Prime Minister or to the British Ambassador in Washington.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : May I take it that Government have no objection if the man comes here and is willing to accept any punishment that may be inflicted upon him by a competent Court of law ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : No, Sir. The decision, when this matter was last considered, was that the Government at Home are not prepared to give him facilities for returning to India.

ISSUE OF NEW TEN-RUPEE AND FIVE-RUPEE CURRENCY NOTES.

875. Mr. Bhuput Sing : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the reasons for which the new ten rupee and five rupee notes were issued ?

(b) Why is the paper of the new notes inferior in quality to that of the old ones ?

(c) Are Government aware that these notes run a greater risk of becoming mutilated and unfit for use than the previous ones ?

(d) What was the cost of preparation of each note previously and what will it be now ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a), (b) and (c). The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the reply given to starred question No. 338 asked by Mr. Badri Lal Rastogi on the 1st of September, 1933.

(d) Exact figures are not available; but it is anticipated that the total saving in the cost of preparation of ten and five rupee notes will amount to at least four lakhs per annum in a normal year.

READING ROOM ASSOCIATION OF AN INDIAN RAILWAY SCHOOL AT JAMALPUR.

876. Mr. Bhuput Sing : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether there is a Reading Room Association of Keshabpur M. E. East Indian Railway Behari School at Jamalpur attached to the said school ?

(b) If so, is it a fact that one anna is realised from each student as subscription for increasing the stock of books of the said Reading Room ?

(c) Is Babu Palakdhari Singh, Secretary of the Reading Room ?

(d) Are Government aware if :

(i) any account is kept of the said Reading Room by the Head Master of the School and the Secretary of the Reading Room ;

(ii) there is any stock book at present of the Reading Room ;

(iii) the stock book maintained by the Ex-Secretary, Pandit Madan Jha is preserved ;

(iv) it is a fact that this has been changed and alteration and interpolations have been made now and then ?

(e) Was any enquiry directed into the affairs of the Reading Room recently ?

(f) What were the remarks made by the Inspector of Schools, Bhagalpur Division, in his forwarding note to the Director of Public Instruction, Bihar and Orissa, regarding the present Honorary Secretary of the School and Babu Palakdhari Singh, teacher ?

(g) Was any note submitted by Babu Sambhu Prasad Singh, now a discharged teacher of the school, to the Inspector of Schools, Bhagalpur, directing attention to the mis-managed state of affairs of the Reading Room and to some important matters regarding Babu Palakdhari Singh ? If so, what action was taken on this ? Will Government be pleased to place a copy of the said note on the table ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no information but I have sent a copy of the question to the Agent, East Indian Railway, for any action he might think it necessary to take.

REJECTION OF APPLICATIONS FOR APPOINTMENTS FROM THE SONS AND RELATIVES OF POSTAL OFFICIALS OF THE CALCUTTA GENERAL POST OFFICE.

877. Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury : (a) Is it a fact that applications for appointments from the sons and relatives of the postal officials working at the Calcutta General Post Office, who are inhabitants of the Dacca, Rajshahi or Chittagong Divisions, are rejected by the Presidency Postmaster, Calcutta, on the ground that they are not inhabitants of the revenue divisions adjoining Calcutta ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Director General has issued such an order ?

(c) If so, do Government propose to relax this order, allowing sons and relatives of the postal officials to get appointments in the Calcutta General Post Office ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Government have no information.

(b) and (c). The Director General has laid it down as a general principle that candidates for the subordinate postal and telegraph services must belong to the revenue divisions in which they desire to enlist. Heads of Circles are, however, empowered to exercise their discretion should local conditions make this necessary. The Honourable Member's suggestion will however be considered and suitable supplementary orders will be issued giving Heads of Circles more latitude.

RETENTION IN CALCUTTA OF BABU ASWINI KUMAR CHOWDHURY, TOWN INSPECTOR OF POST OFFICES.

878. Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury : (a) Is it a fact that there is a standing order to the effect that Secretaries of the Postal Unions will not be transferred within one year of their election as Secretary ?

(b) Are Government aware that Babu Aswini Kumar Chowdhury, a Town Inspector of the Calcutta, General Post Office, has been elected as Honorary Secretary of the Calcutta Postal Union ?

(c) Is it a fact that he is likely to be transferred out of Calcutta due to abolition of selection grade Town Inspectors' appointments in Calcutta ?

(d) If so, are Government prepared to provide for him in one of the existing vacancies of the selection grade supervisors in the Calcutta General Post Office, so that he can be retained in Calcutta ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The order, relating to Secretaries of recognised associations, is substantially as stated by the Honourable Member, but exceptions are permitted in the interests of service.

(b) and (c). Government have no information.

(d) A selection grade Town Inspector has, on the abolition of his post, to be transferred to the cadre of sub-divisional Inspectors and Head Clerks to Superintendents of Post Offices and not to the selection grade cadre of the general line. Government therefore regret that they are unable to accept the Honourable Member's suggestion which would be unfair to the men in the general line.

REPLACEMENT OF SELECTION GRADE TOWN INSPECTORS OF POST OFFICES AT CALCUTTA BY TIME-SCALE MEN.

879. Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury : Is it a fact that Government have decided to replace the selection grade Town Inspectors of Post Offices at Calcutta by time-scale men ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Calcutta Postal Union made a representation to the Presidency Postmaster, Calcutta, to appoint senior time-scale clerks as Town Inspectors ?

(c) Is it a fact that in spite of the representation from the Union the Presidency Postmaster has appointed some junior men as Town Inspectors ?

(d) Are Government prepared to see that senior clerks are appointed in these posts ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Yes, in common with selection grade Town Inspectors at all other places.

(b) to (d). Government have no information. The matter is entirely within the discretion of the Head of the Circle to whom a copy of the question and of this reply is being sent.

FORWARD POLICY OF GOVERNMENT ON THE NORTH-WEST FRONTIER BORDER.

880. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Will Government be pleased to state their policy in connection with the forward policy adopted on the North-West Frontier border ?

Mr. B. J. Glancy : The policy of the Government of India is to maintain the peace of the border and foster good relations with the tribes in the hope that in time civilisation will spread gradually through the tribal area. For further particulars regarding this policy, I would invite the attention of the Honourable Member to the speech made by Sir Denys Bray on the 5th March, 1923, in this Assembly.

REPORT OF THE TARIFF BOARD ON GLASS INDUSTRY.

881. Mr. A. Das : (a) Is it correct that the Tariff Board submitted its report on the glass industry in the United Provinces to Government early in 1933 ? If not, when do they propose to submit it ?

(b) If the reply to the first part of (a) be in the affirmative, have Government considered the report ?

(c) When do they propose to publish the same ?

(d) Why has there been so much delay in its publication ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore: (a) The Report was submitted in March, 1933.

(b), (c) and (d). It is still under the consideration of the Government of India. In the meantime, representations have been received from the glass industry for protection under the Safeguarding of Industries Act, 1933, and these are under examination.

MOTION FOR ADJOURNMENT.

ALLEGED SCURRILOUS ARTICLE IN THE Daily Gazette RE MAHATMA GANDHI.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : I have received a notice from Mr. B. R. Puri that he proposes to ask for leave to make a motion for the adjournment of the business of the House today for the purpose of discussing a definite matter of urgent public importance as follows : 12 NOON.

> " The unsatisfactory replies given on behalf of Government to starred question No. 787, asked by Mr. Lalchand Navalrai, relating to a scurrilous article in the Daily Gazette, dated the 18th August last, and the attitude and policy of Government as disclosed by those replies."

I have to inquire if any Honourable Member has any objection to this motion.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore (Leader of the House) : Sir, I am obliged to you for informing me as to which notice I am to reply to. My Honourable friend, Mr. Puri, has, I think, given notice of a number of motions—three altogether—and I was a little uncertain as to which of these we had to deal with. Judging from the number of these notices, my Honourable friend, I think, was not sure of his ground and I venture to submit that there is some reason for his anxiety. In so far as his motion relates to the alleged unsatisfactory replies given by Government yesterday, I submit that it is, in accordance with the ruling of the Chair given recently, out of order. The question to which those replies relate must itself be related, according to your ruling, Sir, to a matter of recent occurrence. This question, Sir, has reference to the publication of an article which, I understand, saw the light of day on the 18th August. I submit, therefore, that in virtue of your own ruling this is not a matter of recent occurrence within the meaning of Rule 12. But, in whatever form my Honourable friend, may have couched his notice, what he really wants, I submit, is to discuss the alleged unsatisfactory replies which were given yesterday. In attempting to go behind the ruling of the Chair, I venture to submit that that has made his case very much worse. The urgent matter which he now suggests should be discussed is the attitude and the policy of the Government in respect of the administration of certain enactments of this Legislature. Now, that policy did not come into existence yesterday or last month or last year. It is the normal policy which has been adopted by the Government of India for a considerable time. That policy, therefore, I submit, is not a matter of recent occurrence within the meaning of Rule 12 of the Legislative Rules. What my Honourable friend really means to do is to attack the Government for not having directed the Local Government to launch a prosecution in respect of an article which was published so long ago as the 18th August. I submit that it was open to my Honourable friend or any Member of this House to have obtained information and to have made this motion on the first day of the Session or immediately thereafter. In this connection, may I read your own ruling which, I think, is entirely relevant to the present case :

> " If Honourable Members are not in full possession of the facts with regard to a particular case and if no short notice is taken of that, what they should do is actually to ask for the leave of the House to move the adjournment motion and then ask the leave of the House for permission to waive objection on the question of urgency until full facts are available to all Honourable Members. If that course is adopted and, if the Chair is satisfied that it is a proper case, necessary permission could be given to move the motion on a later date."

Sir, for these reasons, I submit that the motion is out of order.

Mr. B. R. Puri (West Punjab : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, after hearing the Honourable the Leader of the House in the short speech in which he has given us the benefit of his view as to the interpretation of the rule which governs the admissibility of the motions for adjournment of the House, I confess I feel quite unconvinced of the force of his objection. I am not seeking the adjournment of the House on the ground that the Government yesterday, on the floor of this House, tendered unsatisfactory replies to a certain set of questions which were put to them. Let it be very clearly understood by the Government that I am not asking the permission of the House for the adjournment of the House on that ground. Nor, Sir, am I seeking the adjournment of the House on the ground that, as far back as the 18th August, there was a particular article of a particular character which was published in Karachi in a particular paper. I am not seeking, again I submit, the adjournment of the House on that ground, because that would not be a recent event. I would be wholly out of court if I sought, at this time of the day, after the Assembly has been in Session from the 22nd of last month, to grant me permission to discuss a matter which I could have brought to the notice of the House on the very opening day of the Assembly Session. I confess that I will be wholly out of court if I asked this " adjournment " on any one of these grounds. The ground on which I am seeking the adjournment of the House is very simple and I will ask the Honourable the Leader of the House to note my words, i.e.,—" the attitude of Government, as disclosed by a certain set of replies which were given yesterday ". Now, the interpretation of the Honourable Member of the " policy " of the Government is that, it cannot be recent and it must be deemed to be spread over a long time and cover a very wide area both in space as well as in time. That is perhaps correct, and if I had confined the ground for my adjournment motion merely and solely to the " policy ", perhaps, I might have been out of court again. But, Sir, the " attitude " as distinguished from " policy " is a definite act and I request this House to appreciate the distinction between the " policy " and a particular " attitude ", which is a specific act and a specific incident, and which in the present case came to the light for the first time yesterday in the course of the interpellations. My Honourable friend has misconceived the identity of the word " matter " as used in the Standing Order. The confusion has arisen, because Government think that I am seeking to have a certain " matter " discussed, which in fact I am not. I am not seeking to discuss the unsatisfactory nature of the replies nor the publication as such of a certain article. What I in fact propose to discuss is the "attitude" of the Government which came to light for the first time to our great amazement and horror, namely, that the Government, under the circumstances disclosed, were not prepared to interfere in the matter and were to treat the whole incident with supreme indifference. That, Sir, is the true position and, I submit, that my motion is perfectly in order.

Mr. S. C. Mitra (Chittagong and Rajshahi Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : My Honourable friend, Mr. Puri, has made it clear that the object of his motion for adjournment was to censure Government on their failure to exercise their powers of superintendence, direction and control in this very important matter as disclosed in the reply to the question yesterday. We all expected that when this particular matter was brought to the notice of the Government of India, they would exercise their powers of superintendence, direction and control when the Bombay Government had failed in the discharge of their duties. It is this particular attitude of the Government, as has been clearly explained, that is at issue and it is an urgent matter of public importance and, I submit, that this motion should be allowed.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The first objection raised by the Honourable the Leader of the House to the motion is based upon a ruling given by the Chair not very long ago that the mere unsatisfactory nature of the reply to a question will not by itself be a sufficient ground for moving the adjournment of the House irrespective of the original subject matter with which the question was concerned. So far as that objection is concerned, the Honourable Member, Mr. Puri, has made it clear that it is not his intention to censure Government on this motion merely on the unsatisfactory reply that they gave to the question. The Chair takes it that the reference to the unsatisfactory reply in the motion is only by way of explanation to what follows in the motion itself, namely, the attitude and policy of Government as disclosed in that unsatisfactory reply. So, the Chair has now to decide as to whether an adjournment motion for the purpose of censuring Government on their attitude and policy, as disclosed in a certain reply, is in order under the rules. The Chair has to find out whether it is a definite and urgent matter of public importance. Now, the attitude of Government in this respect is certainly a matter of public importance, and it is also definite, because, the Chair takes it that it is the intention of the Honourable the Mover to censure Government for their failure to exercise their powers of superintendence and control (Hear, hear) in the matter which, in their opinion, seriously affects the peace of the country. To that extent, therefore, the question sought to be raised is definite. It is urgent, because that policy and attitude were disclosed only yesterday to this House. On a previous occasion, on the 21st March, 1929, an adjournment motion to discuss the policy of the Government in sanctioning wholesale raids and arrests in different parts of India was held to be in order. That shows that though generally the policy of the Government cannot be considered to be one of recent occurrence, occasions may arise when the policy and attitude of Government may become a matter of urgent public importance. The Honourable the Leader of the House said that this policy of Government did not come into existence yesterday and was not a matter of recent occurrence. It is quite possible that Government might have consistently followed this policy to their knowledge, but that knowledge might have come to the possession of the House only yesterday. Therefore, under those circumstances, this motion is in order. (Applause.) As objection has been taken, the Chair would request those Honourable Members, who are in favour of leave being granted, to rise in their places.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : As not less than 25 Members have risen, I declare that leave is granted and that the motion will be taken up for discussion at 4 P.M. this afternoon.

The House will now resume discussion on the Reserve Bank Bill.

THE RESERVE BANK OF INDIA BILL.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh (Muzaffarpur cum Champaran : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, when I was speaking yesterday, I was trying to develop the point that the establishment of a State Bank was conducive to the best interests of the country. As the proposed Bank will have to transact extensive business in different directions, the confidence of the people will not be secured if the Bank is a private bank with shareholders. The work of currency and exchange ought, in the fitness of things, to be the concern of the Federal Government and of the Federal Legislature. Therefore, any institution of this kind which is divorced from the control of the Federal Legislature will not be acceptable to the people of this country, and will not be conducive to their interests. With reference to this point, I should like to give the opinion of Mr. John Maynard Keynes. In his book on "Indian Currency and Finance", 1924 edition, at page 235 he says :

"At the present time the arguments in favour of a State Bank for India are very strong, far stronger than they were in 1867 or even in 1898. The Government have taken over so many of the functions of a Central Bank that they cannot wisely neglect the task. The note issue of growing importance, the management of the Government's cash balances, the regulations of the foreign exchanges, all these are controlled together and treated as a whole."

Afterwards he has summarised in the next page the arguments in favour of a State Bank. I am not going to burden my speech with any further quotations with regard to the arguments which Mr. Keynes has advanced. Recently, I understand, Mr. Keynes, in his memorandum to the Chamberlain Commission, had urged that the Central Bank for India should be a State Bank and not a Shareholders' Bank. Sir, none among the financial experts in this country seems to favour a Shareholders' Bank. Mr. C. S. Rangaswami, a financial expert of reputation, in his article which was contributed to the Roy's Weekly, dated 4th September, has urged the establishment of a State Bank and not a Shareholders' Bank. In the course of that article, he says :

"The first is the problem State Bank versus Shareholders' Bank. On this issue, to urge the virtues of a State Bank is futile and profitless as, from the beginning, the Government of India have been opposed to a State Bank and the London Committee has unanimously decided in favour of a Shareholders' Bank. However, developments, subsequent to the London discussions, are of a character as to necessitate a more careful consideration of this question. The Financial News, in Air Mail week, has referred to a scheme which the present Conservative Government are contemplating with a view to make the Bank of England assume a form midway between its present status as a Shareholders' institution and the dream of the Socialists of a nationalised central banking institution."

[Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh.]

Even if we assume for a moment that there are virtues in a Shareholders' Bank of this nature, I would suggest that the State should have at least a moiety of the shares in this Shareholders' Bank, or it may be free to buy up the shares when necessary at some future date. There should also be a restriction that the shareholders should not be allowed to transfer their shares to non-nationals. Such a restriction exists in similar Banks of many other countries in the world. In the Netherlands, Denmark, Czecho-Slovakia, etc., voting rights are exercised by nationals of the country, and, in the charter of the Lithuanian Central Bank, it is provided that foreigners cannot hold more than one-third of the capital. A further safeguard provided by certain charters is that only nationals are eligible to hold office in the Central Bank. There is no such restriction in the proposals made in the Bill. Then also there must be a clause that the majority of the Directors must be Indians or of Indian domicile. Sir Basil Blackett, when he introduced his Bill in 1927, conceded this point. In the official report of the Legislative Assembly, dated the 30th August, 1927, he stated as follows :

"May I say that I shall be perfectly willing to add to the draft amendments I have that no one, who is not an Indian or a British subject ordinarily resident in India, should have a vote."

So I take it, this point has been conceded by Government themselves, and I am surprised to find that there is no reference to it in the Bill presented now by the Finance Member. The other point to which I should like to refer is the agreement with the Imperial Bank. It is proposed that the Imperial Bank will act as the sole agent for the Reserve Bank. This will add to the patronage which the Imperial Bank enjoys at the hands of Government, and the position of the indigenous banks of the country will be precarious. The indigenous banks require special facilities for development, and I should think that there should be some suitable provision inserted in any agreement which might be entered into between the Reserve Bank of India and the Imperial Bank, safeguarding the legitimate interests of the indigenous banking system. I should like also to ask why it is proposed to confer this benefit only on the Imperial Bank of India. It is also proposed, Sir, that the Reserve Bank of India should have no branch of its own in London and that it should transact its business through the London branch of the Imperial Bank. This also is open to objection. The Imperial Bank is dominated by European interests, and the interests of the indigenous banking organisations in this country will not be adequately protected if the proposal for the agreement with the Imperial Bank is carried into effect.

I would next refer, Sir, to the ratio question which also finds a place in the report of the London Committee. I have no desire to dig up the buried bones of a dead controversy which raged round this question a few years back, but I must say that the suggestion not to reopen this question is one which cannot be accepted in the best interests of this country. Now, Sir, in the Mansfield Commission report which was submitted as far back as 1866, this question was dealt with at some length :

"The Commission was appointed by the Government of India on the 3rd February, 1866, with Sir William Mansfield as Chairman, and it was the first of its kind set up in India. The Commission distinguished itself by making as early as 1866 two important recommendations, viz., (1) the introduction of a 'universal note', and (2) the introduction of a gold currency. The first recommendation was carried out in 1909, when, for the first time, the five-rupee note was made 'universal' for the whole of India, the second recommendation forms the subject of acute controversy and doubt at the present time."

I am referring to a very useful book, "The Monetary Problems of India" by Mr. L. C. Jain, which I would commend to Honourable Members for perusal.

The Herschell Commission in 1892 recommended the ratio to be fixed at 1*s.* 4*d.* What does the report of the London Committee state on this point ? They say as follows :

"We consider that the only sound course for India is to remain on the sterling standard. On that basis the exchange obligations incorporated in the Bill must necessarily be in accord with the rupee sterling ratio existing at the time when the Bill is introduced."

Sir, I will now refer Honourable Members to some of the proposals of the London Committee. They recommend that a minority of the Board should be nominated by the Governor General in Council under the present Constitution, and by the Governor General at his discretion under the new Constitution. Sir, the Governor General in Council at the present moment is not constitutionally responsible to this House, while the Financial Minister of the furture will be responsible to the Federal Legislature as well as to the Federal Government, and I see no reason why this discrimination has been sought to be made in this particular recommendation. The Committee also recommends that the first appointment of Directors should be made by the Governor General in Council. This also is open to very serious objection. Why should Directors be appointed by the Governor General in Council ? If this is to be a Shareholders' Bank, the shareholders themselves must have the power to appoint their own Directors.

There is also one point to which I should like to make a passing reference. It has been claimed by my Honourable friend, the Finance Member, that the proposal in the Bill that the different Indian States should fall into different geographical areas is an improvement. I submit, Sir, that it is not an improvement as it is made to appear. Formerly the Indian States were, if I remember aright, proposed to be included only in the Delhi province, where they could have exercised their influence in the selection of Directors ; but now, under the present proposal, the influence of these States can be exercised in all the five geographical areas into which this country is sought to be divided, and their influence will be exercised more or less over the whole field of those areas. In that sense also, this proposal does not seem to be an improvement. There is another proposal that the profit of the sale of gold must belong to the Reserve Bank. My opinion is that the profit of the sale of gold must belong to the State. The Reserve Bank may utilise that money by way of loan, but the proprietary right of the profit must belong to the State and not to the Reserve Bank. As to the other recommendation of the Report, as regards the appointment of the Governor and Deputy Governor or Deputy Governors, the majority of the London Committee hold that the Governor General in his discretion should be the appointing authority when the new Constitution comes into force. Here, again, the Committee have made a distinction between the Governor General in Council under the present Constitution and the Governor General alone in his discretion in the future Federal Constitution. The minority of the Committee, however, hold that these appointments should be made by the Board of Directors subject to the approval of the Governor General. The opinion of the minority seems to be an improvement upon the proposal set forth by the majority on this point.

There is only one little point which I should like to raise before this House. Why is this hurry for the establishment of a Reserve Bank in India far in advance of the time when the Federal Legislature is supposed to come into existence and to be functioning ? The Secretary of State for India said that central responsibility depended upon the proper functioning of the Reserve Bank. I should like to know what inherent connection there is between responsibility at the Centre and the functioning of the Reserve Bank. Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, Mr. Jayakar and others protested against this position being assigned to the Reserve Bank with regard to the future Constitution of India. The Reserve Bank, as I stated at the outset in my speech, on proper lines would be an institution which we should all welcome ; but, framed as it is, it is open to objection on different points. I have merely tried to indicate some of the points to which objection might be raised. The Reserve Bank must be a Reserve Bank, in the proper sense. It should not be a preserve bank to preserve the vested interests of foreign capitalists. The proposal, as adumbrated in this Bill, seems to make it a sort of preserve bank and not a Reserve Bank.

Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi (Madras ceded Districts and Chittoor : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, the Honourable the Finance Member, in introducing this Bill, said that he was following the precedent set up by his predecessor in the matter of the procedure he was adopting ; and, then, he moved a motion for referring this Bill to a Joint Committee of both Houses. If he proposes to follow precedent, I may also request him to have 28 Members on the Joint Committee as on the previous occasion, and not 24 as now proposed ; and I hope he will agree to this number being added.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : If that is the general view of the House in the course of this debate, speaking on behalf of the Government, we should be perfectly prepared to adopt that course, and I should ask you, Sir, in due course to allow an amendment to that effect to be moved.

Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi : I am thankful to the Government for accepting this small amendment. It is with great trepidation that I have to oppose the motion of my revered friend, Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya, who is a doyen in the financial world, for sending out this Bill for circulation. If I differ from such a great authority, it is only on some valid and substantial grounds. My first ground is that an identical Bill which was introduced in 1927 was sent for circulation and there is already abundance of public opinion that has been expressed upon it which can be had if Members require it. Again, if it is said that much time has elapsed since then and that so many tremendous changes in monetary values have occurred in the world subsequent to that time, my reply is that it is very recently that the Government appointed the Banking Inquiry Committee, composed of very able financiers, including, Sir, yourself, which went about the country, made a thorough inquiry, examined witnesses who were experts in financial matters, and published their report ; and even that report strongly recommends the establishment of a Reserve Bank as the only panacea for all the ills to trade, commerce and agriculture this country is suffering from.

These are not my only grounds for my pressing for taking up this Bill immediately. I have got stronger grounds. I am an agriculturist, and I represent the interests of the agriculturists. Nobody will deny the fact that India is pre-eminently an agricultural country, and many millions of the people depend upon the good prices they get for their agricultural products. In such an agricultural country as India, there is a seasonal demand for the expansion of the currency. Expansion of currency is necessary only in some particular seasons, when there is abundance of crop in the hands of the farmer and the crop requires to be moved from one place to another so that the producers may get good prices for the crops. A Government which does not do banking business and which is only a currency authority is not expected to know the seasonal conditions or the seasonal demands for the expansion of the currency. It is only a bank which does credit operations that can understand the position. The bank note issue generally is based upon the business transactions, and it will expand or contract according to the seasonal needs and hence a bank, like the Reserve Bank, which is entrusted not only with credit operations, but also with the issue of currency, is very necessary, because it will be in a position to know the seasonal demand for expansion of currency. Mr. Kisch in his book on " Central Bank " says this :

" Government are not as sensitive as a bank to the conditions in the financial and commercial world."

It is the bank that is the barometer to judge the necessity for this expansion. Hence, Sir, a bank, such as is proposed to be established, is quite essential for India.

There is, again, another reason why the agriculturists want a Reserve Bank to be established at as early a date as possible. We all know that the Government collect kists just about the time when the agriculturists get their crops on hand. I do not know the conditions obtaining in other provinces, but, in my Presidency, the collection of kists begins from December and goes up to April. That is just the time when the agriculturists get their crops on hand and they have to pay their kists, and, therefore, they have to sell their crops at whatever price thay can get, and it is exactly the time when the creditors will also sit tight over them and collect their dues. Therefore, the poor agriculturists are forced to sell their produce at whatever prices they can get to pay up the Government dues as well as to satisfy their creditors. At present the Government are carrying on their collection work by means of treasury operations. Of course, the Imperial Bank is authorised to open branches and to undertake treasury transactions on behalf of the Government, but yet, Sir, at present there are only about 100 or 120 branches of the Imperial Bank, and they are very small in number when compared to the vast size of the country. Therefore, almost all the taxes that are being collected go to the treasuries with the result that crores of rupees have been withdrawn from circulation and locked up in these treasuries, and this money ultimately perhaps goes to the coffers of the Secretary of State and then lent out in the United Kingdom at favourable rates of interest. However, that may be, the net result is that so much of the currency has been locked up in these Government treasuries, and there is a contraction of the currency in the country. When there is a contraction of the currency, as every economist knows, prices of commodities will go down, and hence it is the agriculturist who suffers from this contraction. On the other hand, if all this money is placed in the hands of the Central Bank, it can again flow out of the bank and get into circulation in its transactions with the farmers with its creditors or with other banks. Thus the money will be in circulation in the country itself, and it will tend to raise the price of agricultural produce. For all these reasons, Sir, I strongly recommend that there should be a Reserve Bank established in this country as early as possible.

Then, Sir, the Honourable the Finance Member, while introducing the Bill yesterday, said that it had been agreed that the Bank, if it was to be established, should be free from political influences, and the Report of that packed Committee of London had also stated in paragraph 3 that they fully accepted the principle that the Reserve Bank should be free from any kind of political influence. But, Sir, neither the Report nor the Honourable the Finance Member has explained to us what that "political influence" means. If it means that the Assembly or its representatives or the politicians of the country, who have no knowledge of financial matters, should not interfere with the day to day working of the Reserve Bank that is to be set up, than I entirely agree with the Finance Member that such influence is not beneficial for the good of the working of the Reserve Bank ; but if it is meant that there should not be even a single representative of this House, however eminent he may be in the financial world, or as the Report wants, it should be a Shareholders' Bank and not a State Bank, then, in that case, I beg to differ. How can it be free from political influence at all ? The constitution of the Bank, as disclosed in this Report or in the Bill, clearly states that the Governor General with the help of his Ministers at present will appoint a Governor, a Deputy Governor and four Directors out of perhaps 15 Directors. So I ask, are not the Government of India a political body ? And a Governor General, while exercising the powers of nominating, has necessarily to consult his Cabinet and the Secretary of State, and the Secretary of State is responsible for the good government and also for the moral and material progress of this country to the Parliament. Sir, the future Governor General has to exercise so many powers that it is not possible for any human Governor General to exercise all those powers. It requires really a super-human Viceroy or Governor General to exercise all those powers. Unless he has two attributes out of the three that are associated with God, that is omnipotence and omniscience, it is impossible for any Governor General to exercise all these powers.

Mr. B. Das : You are forgetting the Financial Adviser.

Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi : Even with the help of his advisers, the Governor General will not be able to exercise all these powers properly. Therefore, it is no use saying that the future Bank should be free from political influence. There will certainly be political influence exercised in one way or the other.

Then, Sir, one point was not made quite clear by the Honourable the Finance Member yesterday in his speech. He merely said that the Reserve Bank should be free from political influence, and this Report attempts a sort of definition of what kind of that political influence is. In the second sentence of the third para. of the Report, it is said :

"The best device which the practical experience of other countries has evolved for achieving this object is that the capital of the Bank should be held by private shareholders ; and we recommend that this plan should be adopted as in the case of India."

Putting these two statements together, one will come to the conclusion that a bank to be free from political influence should be only a Shareholders' Bank, and not a State Bank. So, if we accept this motion for reference to a Joint Select Committee, then it might be understood that we have accepted the principle of a Shareholders' Bank, and not a State Bank...

Some Honourable Members : No, no.

Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi : If that is not so, I should be very glad, but I should like the Government Member to make the point clear whether the Joint Select Committee will be allowed to discuss the principle whether it should be a State Bank or a Shareholders' Bank.

Mr. B. Das (Orissa Division : Non-Muhammadan) : It is not a principle.

Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi : That is how I understood from the speech of the Honourable Member and that is why I want to make that clear,—whether the question is open for discussion whether it should be a State Bank or a Shareholders' Bank. If it be so, then I am for the reference of this Bill to a Select Committee where the Chairman will not be in a position to tell the members of the Committee that, since they have accepted the principle, they ought not to discuss the question that it should be a State Bank. I want the Honourable the Finance Member to make that point clear, because, on that point, depends the vote of my Party. As a matter of fact, my Party has discussed this question and we have decided that we will give our vote if the Select Committee is permitted to discuss this question whether it should be a State Bank or a Shareholders' Bank.

At this time we are not called upon to discuss the detailed sections of the Bill. There are only two important questions to be discussed at this stage. It is of great interest whether the future Bank will be a State Bank or a Shareholders' Bank, because it is agitating the minds of so many people already. It does not require a great financier to discuss the question whether it should be a State Bank or a Shareholders' Bank. Every one can use his reason and his common sense and arrive at a conclusion. Applying these two tests, I find that it is monstrous that we should entrust the heavy responsibility of the destinies of this country in the matter of currency and finance into the hands of a few shareholders who will contribute a share capital of five crores of rupees though they may have to deal with many crores of rupees in daily transactions.

An Honourable Member : Shareholders do not lay down policy :

Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi : I mean the Directors who are appointed by the shareholders, and it is much worse, because it is a small body. I am not in favour of entrusting such heavy responsibilities to the representatives of a few shareholders who happen to purchase shares to the extent of Rs. 5 crores. From the agriculturist's point of view, I cannot look at the prospect with equanimity, of a certain number of shareholders, who form a coterie, being entrusted with the currency policy of the country. According to this Bill, the value of a share is Rs. 500, and it is only a person who purchases two shares that is entitled to exercise his vote. This means that the person must invest at least Rs. 1,000 before he can exercise his vote. As I said, the Bank will be entrusted with a heavy responsibility and will be given ample powers in the matter of dictating the policy of the currency and finance of this country. Trading and commercial interests, represented by my Honourable friends like Mr. Mody and Sir Cowasji Jehangir, would be the first to take advantage of it and to purchase as many shares as it is possible under the circumstances. Under this Bill a limit is placed upon the number of votes a person may exercise, but there is no limit fixed for the number of shares he can purchase. 6 per cent. interest on investment is a very tempting proposition for financiers like Mr. Mody and Sir Cowasji Jehangir and they would not grudge investing lakhs and lakhs of rupees in this concern.

Mr. H. P. Mody (Bombay Millowners' Association : Indian Commerce) : Unless the Bank gives us overdrafts, I do not think we will be able to purchase them.

Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi : And thus, ultimately, the destinies of our country will be in the hands of a coterie. On account of the high price of shares and the ignorance that prevails amongst the agricultural community, the agriculturists will not be in a position to take advantage of it and to purchase many shares of the Bank. Hence their point of view will not be properly represented in the Directorate. I am conscious that the Governor General has got power to nominate agricultural interests to make up the deficiency. That will be only one or two, and then they will be in a minority. So, ultimately the policy of the Bank will be dictated by the Directors elected by shareholders who are mostly men from the trading and commercial interests. The interests of trade and commerce are divergent from the interests of agriculturists. The trading interests will want to purchase agricultural produce cheap, whereas the agricultural interests will want to get as much price for their produce as possible. So the interests of the trading and commercial communities are different from those of the agricultural community. If the policy of the Bank is to be entrusted to Directors, who are elected by these shareholders, then it will be dictated by those interests, and so they would withdraw currency when they want to purchase agricultural produce cheap. That is why, as an agriculturist, I view with apprehension the high price of a share of the Bank. The old Bill provided Rs. 100 per share which was more helpful to the agriculturists.

An Honourable Member : You are a lawyer.

Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi : I have given up law for the last three or four years ; I am purely an agriculturist.

There is another ground why there should be a State Bank and not a Shareholders' Bank. It is said that if it is a Shareholders' Bank, the shareholders take very great interest in the management of the Bank and it will be free from Governmental interference. Yesterday, Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya pointed out in his speech how the shareholders took interest in the management of the Imperial Bank of India. According to him, very few attend any meetings and their interest ceases after electing Directors of the Bank. Again, when once the Directors are elected, they hold their office in free-hold-in-perpetuity, and thus the policy will continue for ever and ever. If that is the interest which the shareholders take in a Bank, where they can expect higher and higher dividends, I wonder what kind of interest the shareholders will take in a Bank which fixes the maximum dividend that can be declared at 6 per cent. only. They are sure, that with so many privileges which the Reserve Bank enjoys as the dictator of the currency and credit system of India, they would get their own dividends and, when they are sure of that, they will not take any interest at all in the management of the Bank. So it is mere bunkum to say that the shareholders will take any interest in the Bank after they have elected the Directors. If it were a State Bank, all the interest or the dividend that this Bank earns would go to the Government Treasuries and that might lighten the burden of tax on the people. I do not want that this interest should be earned by the shareholders. They can as well invest the five crores of rupees in other industries and commerce and earn more money and thus enrich the country. On that consideration also, I want that the Bank should be a State Bank and not a Shareholders' Bank. We have got the experience of the management of railways by private companies, and the experience that we have gained does not encourage us in the belief that the future Reserve Bank, if it is to be a Shareholders' Bank, will work very satisfactorily. The representatives of the people have urged on the Government to take back the management of the railways to the hands of the State, and important lines have already been taken up by the Government and it is only on account of financial stringency that the other railways have not been purchased. With that experience, I have no belief that a Shareholders' Bank will serve the interests of India better than the State Bank. Again, it is said, that the whole idea of the establishment of a Reserve Bank is that the control of the Government should be removed and that it should be restored to the representatives of the people and that the Government of India should have no influence at all. But, Sir, as I have said, it is impossible to divest the influence of the Government of India from the working of this Bank. As I said, the Governor General will have a great voice in nominating the Governor and the Deputy Governors and others. As a matter of fact, the whole administration of the Bank will be in the hands of the Governor and the Deputy Governor who are nominees of the Governor General and, hence, it is impossible to escape the influence of the Government in the working of the Bank. I may state that we are not so much afraid of the influence of the Government of India as of the influence which the Secretary of State wields over the head of the Government of India in the management of financial and currency affairs of this country. If left to themselves, I do not think the Government, whether it is an irresponsible Government as it exists now or a Government with a semblance of responsibility in the future, will conscientiously do anything against the interests of India. We are only afraid of the influence that the Secretary of State may bring to bear on the Government of India. That is what we want to avoid. We had an experience recently when England went off the gold standard. Immediately on hearing this, the Honourable the Finance Member, with the first impulse of the dictates of the best interests of the country, promulgated an Ordinance divorcing the rupee from the sterling. The very next day, the Secretary of State for India, who has the interests of his own country at heart, made the Government here pass an Ordinance abrogating the previous one and also linking the rupee with the vicissitudes of the sterling. It is that influence that we want to avoid. After all, it is very difficult to divest the Government from any political influence. After all, it is the Legislature that is creating the Bank. It is the child of the Legislature and it is bound to carry some heritage of its creator. For all these reasons, I think that it should be a State Bank. I may tell you that in 1928, when this Bill was introduced and discussed, the Select Committee unanimously recommended a State Bank and the then Finance Member accepted the principle of a State Bank and the Banking Inquiry Committee also recommended a State Bank. The whole country wants it and I do not understand why the London Committee, which was a packed Committee, came to another conclusion that it should be a Shareholders' Bank, with the honourable exception of Lala Ram Saran Das.

1 P.M.

I shall now say a few words about the constitution of the Bank. This country is peculiarly situated. Here the interests of the Britishers have been strongly established and it is impossible to eliminate any representation of the European commercial and mercantile interests in the future working of the Reserve Bank. But, though we are not opposed to a small representation, we require,—if the Government succeed in persuading us that it should be a Shareholders' Bank,—that the Directorate must be predominantly Indian and it should subserve the interests of only Indians. In this connection I would like to quote one or two lines from the speech delivered by you, Sir, when you were on these Benches. You said :

> "Unfortunately, the history of currency in this country has brought to the forefront this fact, that the interests of India, as understood by Indians, are very different from the interests of India, as understood by the European community. I would, therefore, impress the necessity for making ample provision to entrust the control of the Reserve Bank to Indian hands, people who know the interests of India best."

Sir, it is said that there should be no representation of the Legislatures on the Directorate, because that would bring in political influence. As I said, the Directorate should not be dominated by the representatives of the Legislature, but there should be some provision for some sort of representation of the Legislature if it is to redress any deficiency. Supposing there are great bankers and financiers like Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya and Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas in this Assembly ; then, on account of such restrictions, they would not find a place on the Directorate of the Bank. In order to restore or redress any such deficiency, there should be a provision that there should be some representation, though it may be one or two representatives, elected from the Legislature. If it is thought that their remaining in the Legislature, after being Directors, will be construed to be a political influence, then a provision might be made that they might resign the membership of the Assembly in order to become a Director. Some such provision ought to be made in the Bill.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir (Bombay City : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : May I point out, Sir, that, so far as I can see, there is nothing in the proposals at present which will stop what the Honourable Member proposes to do. Any Member of the Legislative Assembly, who chooses to become a Director of the Bank and is ready to resign his seat in the Assembly, can do so under the present proposals.

Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi : From the reading of the Bill I understood that no representation should be made from the Assembly.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : There cannot be any representation from this House as such, but any Member of this Assembly can offer himself to be appointed a Director or to be elected a Director and he can then resign immediately.

Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi : I see there is a provision to that effect. Sir, the Honourable the Finance Member, in regard to the relations between the Reserve Bank and the Imperial Bank, said that the new agreement should be made with the Imperial Bank on the lines suggested by the old Bill. He commended to our acceptance the provisions contained in the Third Schedule to this Bill which practically reproduces the provisions that were contained in the original Bill. The circumstances have since changed. At that time, when the old Bill was under discussion, the agreement between the Imperial Bank and the Government had to run three more years. Under that agreement, the Imperial Bank had to do certain functions ; they had to help the development of trade and industries of this country. They must develop the banking habits of Indians by taking in more Indians as apprentices or giving employment to more Indians and also by encouraging indigenous banks.....

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Honourable Member may resume his speech after Lunch. But before the House adjourns for Lunch, the Chair would appeal to Honourable Members that, though technically there is no time limit to speeches on a legislation, in view of the importance of the measure and the restricted time at our disposal and the great number of members of different Parties who are anxious to take part in the debate, Honourable Members will do well to impose upon themselves a reasonable time limit. The Chair does not want to unnecessarily restrict the right of any Honourable Member to speak as long as he likes, but the Chair would regretfully point out that it has already observed a tendency for very tedious repetitions of the same arguments by Honourable Members. If the Chair finds that tendency again, it will have to prevent Honourable Members from indulging in repetitions.

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till Half Past Two of the Clock.

The Assembly re-assembled after Lunch at Half Past Two of the Clock, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) in the Chair.

Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi : Sir, after what has fallen from the Chair just when we were rising for Lunch, I would put upon myself a time limit and bring my remarks to a close. At that time I was stating that the Government expected certain things to be done by the Imperial Bank and, further, according to the terms, the Government required the Imperial Bank to do treasury business on behalf of the Bank. In return for this work to be done by the Imperial Bank, the Government were allowing large cash balances to remain with the Bank free of interest. At times, the average balance would amount to nearly 20 crores. Sometime last year, I moved a Resolution in this Assembly for the appointment of a Committee to enquire into the working of the Imperial Bank in all its branches. At that time, I dealt with, in detail, how the Imperial Bank had failed to come up to the expectations of the Government and how it proved to be a menace or rival to the indigenous banking system and how it brought in racial discrimination in the matter of disposing of applications for credits. At that time, the Honourable the Finance Member, in reply, stated that all these things would come up for consideration when we came to discuss the Reserve Bank Bill sometime later on. On that assurance, I withdrew my Resolution. The whole period of contract has now elapsed and now we are establishing a Reserve Bank in India and there are absolutely no grounds for extending any sort of privilege to the Imperial Bank now. According to the Bill, it is contemplated to place nearly five crores with the Imperial Bank free of interest. No valid reasons are urged by the Government why this privilege should be extended to the Imperial Bank even after the contract period has come to a close. The only reason, if at all, that the Imperial Bank would urge, is that it has opened branches to the extent of about 120 as per terms of the contract and that, on that ground, the Government should extend this privilege. But, according to their own admission, most of the branches are now paying concerns except a few branches which are lying in outlying parts ; and, hence, if this privilege is extended to the Imperial Bank, it will have a dominating position and it would be a perpetual menace to the indigenous banks in India. The Government should try to develop the indigenous banking system, and if they extend this abnormal privilege, it will not tend to the development in that direction. The Bill provides that the Imperial Bank should act as a sole agent for the Reserve Bank in all places where the branches exist. Here also there is a discrimination against indigenous banks. I should like to suggest that wherever there are indigenous banks or their branches, a sort of tender should be called for for doing the work of the Reserve Bank and no such discrimination should be made in favour of the Imperial Bank.

One point more that I should like to urge, before I conclude, is this. According to the provisions, each Bank, which comes under the Schedule of the Reserve Bank Bill, will have to deposit 10 per cent. of the cash balances with them in the Reserve Bank. That will be an unnecessary curtailment of the working of the indigenous banks which usually work on their bare margin and hence that provision also should be modified in the way of permitting each bank under the Schedule to deposit as much amount as is convenient for the bank to spare. I hope all these points will be considered by the Select Committee. If the Honourable the Finance Member is prepared to give an assurance that all these points would be dealt with in the Select Committee, then, I, for my part, and on behalf of our Party, can say that we will be in favour of accepting the motion before the House.

Mr. H. P. Mody : Mr. President, my Honourable friend, the Finance Member, expressed satisfaction at the fact that towards the close of his career, it had fallen to his lot to pilot a measure of this character.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : No " satisfaction ".

Mr. H. P. Mody : Do I understand my Honourable friend to say that he does not feel any satisfaction in piloting this measure ? I suppose he puts it down to some of the speeches which he has heard. Anyway, I congratulate my Honourable friend that it has fallen to his lot to pilot this Bill and, if I may say so, I regard it as a fitting culmination of his five long and anxious years of office that it should have been his good fortune to be on the way to place on the Statute-book such a very important measure. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. B. Das : How on the Statute-book ?

Mr. H. P. Mody : Yes, with such amendments as my Honourable friend succeeds in introducing.

Now, Sir, two Honourable Members, who addressed this House at considerable length, had something to say about the nature of the Committee which was appointed, and which deliberated on this measure in England. My Honourable friend, Mr. Pandya, said that he did not know what the qualifications of those gentlemen were and that they were not at any rate elected by the House ; and my friend, Mr. Reddi, also suggested that it was a packed Committee and that he did not see what its qualifications were. Considering that most of the Indian members of the Committee, members who belong to this House, happen to be Leaders or Deputy Leaders of the parties, groups and grouplets that exist in this House, I do not know whether it is the intention of my Honourable friend to suggest that their Leaders and Deputy Leaders do not possess their confidence.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : And incidentally supporters of the Ottawa betrayal.

Mr. H. P. Mody : What does my Honourable friend know about Ottawa ? The only word he knows is " betrayal ". But I have a warm regard for him in spite of his idiosyncrasies and I would advise him in his own interests not to betray such crass ignorance about things. There are matters beyond my Honourable friend's ken ; to put it in a homely way, the shoemaker to his last.

Sir, I was saying that we in this House have some experience of how members get elected or selected to various committees. And I doubt very much whether the selections made by Government were any worse than this House itself might have made if the choice had been left to it. I hope, therefore, it will not lie in the mouth of any Honourable Member to suggest that we, who went to England, were not representative of this House or did not know what we were talking about.

Now, let me go on to the Bill. Let the House clearly understand that by the very fact that we are going to set up a Reserve Bank in India, the millenium is not going to be ushered in. Every important country today has got some sort of Reserve or Central Bank, and, in spite of that, currencies have tumbled down and the whole credit system has collapsed. It is only in Great Britain that the credit structure has stood and, even there, if I may venture to suggest a rather novel point of view, I would not say that it was largely or entirely due to the operations of the Bank of England, even though the Bank of England is the bedrock of finance all over the world ; I would say that it is largely due to the conservatism of the people and to the financial genius of the City that the structure of England has stood as solidly as it has done. Therefore, by the mere fact that we are setting up a Reserve Bank in India, we must not think that we are setting up a machinery which will make impossible any fluctuations of the exchange or which will bring absolute stability to the finances or the credit structure of India. But the Reserve Bank will do a great deal even without attempting this. Amongst the many functions of the Reserve Bank, when it is properly established, will be to increase the banking power of the country, to provide against undue rigidity or expansion of credit, to co-ordinate governmental and business finance, to assist member banks during times of crisis, to free the financial mechanism of the country, both from the control of big business and of officialdom, and to help in a sense to reduce foreign indebtedness. The Reserve Bank will do something even more, and that is, it will carry on open market operations as and when required, a matter in which Government somehow or other have never been able to take their courage in their hands. After all, what are the two weapons which Reserve Banks employ in all countries ? Rediscounting of bills and open market operations. In India, as is very well known, the bill market is in a very undeveloped condition, and the only way in which a Reserve Bank can and should function is by open market operations calculated to reduce the volume of credit or to enlarge it as and when the occasion arises. All these are very important functions, and I think that if the Reserve Bank is properly established and if it has got the right sort of directorate, its influence on the fortunes of India will be enormous. The only doubt that arises in my mind is whether this is quite an opportune time for setting up a Bank. It seems to me that if the choice had been left to us it is just possible that the Bank would not have come into existence at this particular stage. But, after all, we have no choice in the matter. It was beyond the ken of the Committee which went to England to question whether the time had arrived for setting up a Reserve Bank. Either by the Round Table Conferences or by some other body or authority it was laid down that a Reserve Bank was a condition precedent to the establishment of financial autonomy and to the establishment of Federation. It was stated that the Reserve Bank would have to be successfully functioning before financial autonomy could be conceded to India or before Federation could be brought into existence. Therefore, Sir, there was no choice, and today we find ourselves in the position of having to devise ways and means to set up a Bank on sound lines.

[Mr. H. P. Mody.]

Now, Sir, a great deal has been said in the course of the last two days on the question whether it should be a State Bank or a Shareholders' Bank. My objection to a State Bank is that I do not want the control of the State over the Reserve Bank's operations. I do not want that rigid sort of control which would necessarily be exercised by the State if, for instance, it held all the capital. And what I should like my Honourable friends to remember is that even though this may be a Shareholders' Bank and the State may technically have nothing to do with it, it is a matter of common knowledge that the State in every country, where there is a Shareholders' Bank, has an enormous influence on the operations of the Bank. Take even such a strongly entrenched institution as the Bank of England. The Bank of England has very close relations with the Treasury, and, while the Bank of England is technically in a thoroughly independent position and can defy the Treasury if it wants to, the co-operation between the Treasury and the Bank of England is so close that it may almost be said that the State has a hand in the regulation of the affairs of the Bank of England. I should like my Honourable friends to remember that, by merely putting up a Shareholders' Bank, we are not doing away altogether with the control of the State or the Finance Member. If he knows his business, he will have a direct influence upon the way in which the operations of the Bank are carried on. Now, Sir, I quite understand certain objections being raised to a Shareholders' Bank, but those objections have been sought to be met by us in the Bill which is the result of the report that we have put up. One of the objections which naturally arises in the mind is that if there is a Shareholders' Bank, then naturally the profits, that ought to go to the State and form part of the general revenues, are diverted to a lot of shareholders who had the good fortune to have got hold of a few shares. We have provided against that, and we have laid down the ultimate limit at 6 per cent. I may say that I would have gone a little further than my other colleagues and I would have reduced it still further, because of the prevailing money rates in the country today. As regards individual holdings, we have tried to ensure that no one section can exercise an undue influence upon the deliberations of the Directorate ; and through the medium of regional holdings and through the fact that no shareholder can have at the very outside more than ten votes, we have I think successfully secured that end. But it is just possible that our calculations may be upset, the reasoning upon which we have based them may be found to be unsound after a few years ; and, therefore, I would be prepared to concede that an opportunity should be given at some stage to determine whether a Shareholders' Bank is the right sort of bank, and, therefore, I would be inclined to favour the suggestion that after a term of years the State might have the option of buying up the shares, and at that time, of course, the composition of the Directorate would also have to be revised. That suggestion has been made and I think that there is something in it which might well be explored in the Select Committee.

The next point that I would like to deal with is the constitution of the body. It has been laid down that the Governor shall be appointed by the Governor General at his discretion under the new Constitution. I have differed from that view. I put up a suggestion before the Committee, a suggestion to which I still hold, and that is that the proper way of appointing a Governor of such an important institution is by the Directorate with the approval of the Federal Government ; and I went further and said that if these two bodies failed to come to an agreement, then the Governor General at his discretion might appoint the Governor. My reasoning was this : here is the Directorate of the Reserve Bank : before ever it is called upon to appoint a Governor, it may be a few years during which it will have quite sufficient experience. That body, I say, would have enough experience to make it possible for a right selection to be made ; but there again I impose the approval of the Federal Government, and I say if these two very competent bodies, namely, the Directorate with its experience and the Federal Government with all those larger considerations which are ever present to the mind of a Government but which may not be present to the minds of a small body or an individual, if between these two they agree upon the choice of one man, then I say that that man may be presumed to be the right sort of person. I, therefore, disagreed with what is laid down in the Committee's Report, and is to be found in the Bill, namely, that the Governor should be appointed at the discretion of the Governor General.

[Mr. H. P. Mody.]

Now, about the Directors : I realise too well that the mere process of selection by a number of people who have acquired shares in the concern is not the most ideal way of getting hold of the best man. I feel particularly that with the limitation which has been imposed, namely, that the Director should not belong to the Legislature, that he should not be a member of any other Bank, that it will be extremely difficult to get the right sort of man. That is my view. But I do not think it lies in the mouth of my democratic friends here to question the principle of selection at the hands of what might be called a popular body. They have always fought for the right of election and here they have got it : let them at any rate not cavil at it. So far as I am concerned, I realise that it is not the best method ; and I made a suggestion, again turned down, and which in fact did not find any supporter almost ; and that was that while you give the right of nomination to the Governor General and while you give the right of selection to a number of shareholders, you ought also to give three or four seats, or at least two, to recognised commercial bodies and associations which would at any rate ensure that the member who represented them would have the proper equipment for the task of a Director of such an important institution. I do not know whether that suggestion is going to find any more favour here than it found there ; but I do feel that it is one which requires to be explored, and which ought not to be rejected, so to say, out of hand.

I now go on to another subject, and that is the subject of the link to sterling and the ratio which I see is being vigorously ventilated in various commercial bodies and in the press.

Mr. Muhammad Azhar Ali (Lucknow and Fyzabad Divisions : Muhammadan Rural) : You said you would refer to the Finance Minister in the future Government coming into this scheme of yours : how does he come in ?

Mr. H. P. Mody : As I pointed out, the Finance Member is always in touch with the Governor and Board of the Reserve Bank : they are bound to consult him at every turn, and while it may not be statutorily laid down, if my Honourable friend will see what other countries are doing, he will come to realise that there is always a close connection between the Treasury and the Central Bank of a country. I was speaking with regard to the linking of the rupee to sterling and the ratio. So far as I am concerned, my Honourable friends know what my views are with regard to the linking of the rupee to sterling. You will remember, Sir, that in 1931, when Great Britain went off the gold standard, we tabled a Resolution which we carried by an overwhelming majority in this House, which was moved by yourself and which was seconded by me ; and we gave sufficient reasons, from our point of view, in the course of our speeches for holding that the linking to sterling was an unwise thing. I cannot say that that is not my opinion now : but I feel equally strongly at the same time that this at any rate is not the occasion for disturbing the status quo. I do not think that in a period of flux, when currencies and currency systems are being changed from day to day, a change of this vital character can be made without very considerable dislocation of the finance, industry and trade of the country ; and, therefore, inspite of all the criticisms that have been uttered in public, I hold very strongly that this, at any rate, is not the time for disturbing the position which exists. As regards the ratio, I hold the same view. Nobody in this country, or at any rate only a very small section of the country, has ever had anything, but the utmost condemnation of the way in which the currency policy of the country has been managed and of the way in which the one and six ratio had been forced down our throats. I say, this ratio has brought untold harm to the country, and I do not care what other opinions are held. I think it is the considered opinion of anybody who understands anything about the trade, industry and finance of the country that this ratio has brought very great evils in its train. But, here, again, I say that we cannot sit down at a Select Committee table and say " Now this ratio is bad : let us see what ratio we are going to fix ". That is not the way in which the ratio will be altered or will have to be altered. But I do feel at the same time that it is up to the Government to watch the situation very carefully and from day to day and revise their policy the moment it is found to be necessary. It is a matter of common knowledge that the Government of India would have been forced off the ratio had it not been for the very fortuitous exports of gold. I am not sure that before the Reserve Bank comes into operation, the Government will not have occasion to revise their policy and to consider whether the ratio ought not to be altered. I say that the Government ought to keep this public feeling in this country perpetually in view. They must have the courage to retrace their steps, to see the folly of their ways, and when it is realised that the ratio cannot be held together without serious detriment to the interests of this country, then they must immediately revise it. That is the meaning of the suggestion we have made.....

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer (Rohilkund and Kumaon Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Is it not likely that the Reserve Bank, if it comes into existence, will prove an instrument in facilitating the revision of the ratio ?

Mr. H. P. Mody : My Honourable friend wants to know if it is not likely that the coming into existence of the Reserve Bank by itself will facilitate the reversion of the ratio. He is right in this sense, that when there is a competent body handling the credit structure of the country, if that body realises that the ratio cannot be held together without serious detriment, naturally the opinion of that body will have considerable weight with the Government. And I say, Sir, that the only meaning to be applied to the words which we have used in the Report, namely, that it is up to the Government and the Legislature to see that no undue strain is placed on the resources of the Bank,—the only meaning is that the Government must not hesitate to alter the ratio if they feel that the present ratio cannot be maintained without hurting the best interests of the country.

3 P.M.

There is another point on which, I am afraid, I am again in a minority, it is rather a technical point,—and that is with regard to the proportion of the reserves which have been laid down in the Bill as the minimum reserve to be held against the note liability of the country. According to my reading of the situation, many countries are beginning to think that the minimum reserves which have been laid down by Statute are unduly restrictive of the operations of Central Banks, and the trend of opinion now is in the direction of reducing these minimum reserves with a view to giving greater power in the hands of the Central Banks to control the credit structure of the country. We have laid down a very high minimum reserve. It may be that it may serve to inspire confidence in the international money markets, but, at the same time, it may also be that at a later stage it may be found that it hampers to a great extent the way in which the credit structure of the country has to be handled.

There is only one other point, and that is with regard to the proposed arrangements with the Imperial Bank. We are not hostile to the Imperial Bank, but at the same time we must see to it that no arrangement is arrived at with that institution which is at all calculated to hurt the interests of the indigenous banks. A great deal has been heard in the last few years about the way in which the Imperial Bank has brought banking at the door of a great many people. That is perfectly true, but, I say, it is also true that if the Imperial Bank had not established itself in the places where it has now got branches, the indigenous banks might have found their way there. I can say from experience of a Bank of which I happen to be a Director—I say from experience, that the competition of the Imperial Bank, where both it and the indigenous banks have branches, has very seriously affected the interests of the indigenous banks. By all means strike a fair deal with the Imperial Bank, but the country will have to see that whatever arrangement is come to with the Imperial Bank is not of such a character that the indigenous banks, which are struggling against great handicaps to minister to the needs of trade and industry in places which the Imperial Bank cannot reach, are not seriously affected. These banks, which are performing such a useful function, should have a fair play and fair field, and if the arrangement that the Government propose to make with the Imperial Bank satisfies those conditions, I for one would not grudge an arrangement whereby the Imperial Bank is properly compensated.

These are points which will have to be considered in the Select Committee. All I will say is that it is a matter of very great importance to this country, even though this may perhaps be an unseasonable time for the setting up of a Bank, that the Reserve Bank should come into existence. It will establish the confidence of the public in the financial machinery of the Government. What has happened in the past is that no matter what operation has been undertaken by the Government in the way of contracting or expanding currency, we have been apt always to put it down either to the hand of Whitehall or to the hand of the British business interests. It may be that we have done an injustice to Government ; but our experience has been so bitter that I think we may be pardoned for making that assumption which we have made in previous years. All that is going to be changed, and now the operations which the Reserve Bank will carry out for the purpose of regulating credit and currency—those operations, at any rate, will not be suspected and in the country there will be this confidence that the management of an important undertaking is in hands which may be trusted to look after the interests of India. A Reserve Bank will also be of importance from the international point of view. My Honourable friend says, and I think with legitimate pride, that the credit of India stands high today. But the credit of India will stand even higher when the Reserve Bank is established and is found to be functioning successfully.

For all these reasons, I ask my Honourable friends to consider this measure as one of great national importance. Let us all apply our minds to the problem and regard it as one in which no party predilections or prejudices need enter, but as one in which we are all vitally and equally interested. (Cheers.)

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : Mr. President, I do not know of any Bill or any subject that has been more thoroughly discussed and considered than that of the establishment of a Reserve Bank for India. As we all know, there have been two Bills drafted, one actually considered by this Honourable House some years ago. These Bills were criticised, and were seriously considered by all interested in banking and finance in India, and today we have, let us hope at least for some years to come, the last of these Bills to bring a Reserve Bank into existence.

I think one of my Honourable friends complained that he had not had sufficient time to consider the very important proposals put forward by the Finance Member based upon the report of a Committee which sat only a few months ago in London. My answer to my Honourable friend is that he has had ample time to read, consider and digest the Bill of 1928 ; he has had ample time to do the same with the Hilton-Young Commission's Report ; he has had ample time to digest the Committee's report which was published some days ago. And, having considered and disgested all those three documents, which a man in his position ought to know by heart—I claim he has no justification for now complaining to this House that he has not had sufficient time to consider this Bill.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya (Madras : Indian Commerce) : 24 hours !

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : 24 hours are more than sufficient to consider a measure which he has had years to think over. What is this Bill ? It is based on the Bill of 1928. It is altered in certain respects by a Committee the report of which he has had for days in his hands.....

Mr. B. Das : The 1928 Bill was never considered by this House. It was disallowed by President Patel.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : It was not considered perhaps by this House, but surely it was considered by my Honourable friend, Mr. B. Das.

Mr. B. Das : No.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : It was before the public ; everybody read it ; and does my Honourable friend contend that he only read the 1928 Bill for the first time 24 hours ago ?

Mr. B. Das : Yes.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : Then he has no right to pose as an authority on banking or on the Reserve Bank ; he has no right even to speak before this Honourable House on a Bill of this kind. If my Honourable friend means to say that he has only read the Bill of 1928, 24 hours ago, I can only say that my Honourable friend has devoted his attention to political matters, to matters with which a Reserve Bank is not connected.

Mr. B. Das : I stand by the Joint Committee's Report of 1927, which my Honourable friend has omitted to refer.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : Well, if he has gone through the Bill of 1927 and the Bill of 1928 and if he has gone through the Committee's Report which has also been in his hands for some days, I confidently say that the Bill presented by the Finance Member need not have been read by him at all. He could have made a speech on the strength of those three documents which would have been perfectly relevant to the Bill presented by my Honourable friend, the Finance Member. Therefore, I do not think, Mr. President, with due deference to my Honourable friends that there can be any real justification for asking for further delay.

Now, Sir, I have been, as you all know, a signatory to this Report and, with such reservations as are contained in that Report, I stand by it, but I regret that I have not much to say in reply to the speeches I have heard up to now, because I claim that nobody has really made out any strong point or argument against any of the recommendations. Now I will come to one suggestion in this Report which has really been contested. That is the question of a State versus a Shareholders' Bank. You are well aware that there are only two countries in the world which have got a State Bank. One is Australia, the other is Sweden. Even those countries are considering the position of their Reserve Banks. Not till 1929 or 1930 was the question really considered seriously by economists and by the greatest authorities in the world as to which was the more preferable, a State Bank or a Shareholders' Bank. The matter really became a matter of practical politics during the regimé of the last labour Government in England, but I do not desire to go into great details as to why that subject became a matter of practical politics. To put it briefly, the late Labour Government and the Bank of England did not get on very well together and it is an open secret that perhaps the conservatism and caution of the Bank of England drove the Labour Government out of office. To put it shortly, the Government of the day in England wanted to borrow from the open market loans for purposes other than remunerative. There was uproar in the country. The Bank of England refused to help and it was only then that the question really became a matter of practical politics as to whether a State Bank or a Shareholders' Bank was the best thing for a country. I am firmly of the opinion that had England had a State Bank on that critical occasion in 1931, England, far from being in the solid position in which she is today, — top dog in the world of finance — England might have been a bankrupt country regretting that she had a State Bank bound to follow the lead given by the Government of the day.

Mr. B. Das: You are insulting Lord Snowden's memory.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir: I am not here to compliment either Mr. B. Das or Lord Snowden. I am here to relate the facts. Therefore, the question of a State Bank versus a Shareholders' Bank is really a question of whether you want an independent authority in this country, that can check Government when Government are liable to go wrong. I agree with my friend, Mr. Mody, when he says that perhaps some of the mistakes that Government made in this country would not have been made had there been a Reserve Bank. We do not want to try experiments again with our finances and, if there were no question of reforms in the immediate future, even if it was a question of reforms 10 or 15 years hence, I should be strongly in favour of a Reserve Bank, to be a check, to be a guide, philosopher and friend both to the Government and to the Assembly. We are in a unique position.

As many Members know, in India the Government, with the assistance of the Assembly, not only lays down the policy but Government are responsible for the management of currency and exchange. In very few countries in the world do Government perform these two functions and, considering the great responsibility that Government bear on their shoulders, is it right to ask them to perform both these functions? If they have blundered, they have done so, because they have had too much thrust upon them. You are asking them to do more than any other Government in a civilised country is asked to do. They have not got the men, the resources, the expert knowledge at their hands. The Reserve Bank is intended to supply that knowledge, that expert opinion, that experience of the world of finance which ought to be at the service of Government from day to day. A good deal of my Honourable friend's speech (Mr. Pandya), a very long speech, the first speech we heard on this Bill, consisted of an attack on the Imperial Bank of India. He gave us a most interesting history of the Directorate of the Imperial Bank. He went back to, I think, 1821 and he gave us all those facts and figures in order to show that a Shareholders' Bank is liable to fail, because the appointment of the Directors is in the hands of a clique, that members of the same firm year after year become Directors. He quoted men having been Directors for 15 years. I should have thought that in certain circumstances that was a good argument for a Shareholders' Bank. It shows that the Directorate have at their disposal at least men of experience, men who have served them for 10 or 15 years. But my Honourable friend seems to think that a constant change in the Directorate is good for a bank. I leave that to my Honourable friends to judge. Is it a good thing to have constant changes in the Directorate or in any commercial body whether it be a bank or any other industrial concern? He gave us the instance of my Honourable friend, Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas, and complained that he was a Director of the Imperial Bank for the last 15 years and has been its President and Vice-President. I should have thought that we should be grateful to a man like Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas for having served a public body—for, after all, the Reserve Bank will be public body—for 15 years by devoting his time and attention to the work of that public body and by becoming its President and Vice-President. My complaint is that there may be no continuity in the Directorate of the Reserve Bank. That is my fear, because the provisions of the Bill are such as to make it very difficult to get a continuity of the same Directors. The circumstances of the Imperial Bank and those of the new proposed Reserve Bank are totally different. There may be a block of shares in the hands of one individual which would give him great power. A man may hold 10 or 20 lakhs worth of shares and his proxy would be worth having. A number of such proxies in the hands of the Imperial Bank Manager is a great strength. Then, it is possible for him to say that the successor of such and such man shall be a partner in the same firm. But such a thing is impossible under these provisions. No man can have more than 10 votes, that is to say, a man who holds Rs. 10,000 worth shares will get votes equivalent to Rs. 10,000. For every share that he holds above Rs. 10,000 he gets no voting power. Therefore, if a man holds shares to the tune of ten lakhs in this Reserve Bank, he has the same voting power as a man holding shares of Rs. 10,000.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Rs. 5,000.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : Yes, that is right, because a man gets vote for a share of five hundred rupees. Now, let me draw the attention of my Honourable friends here as to how it is possible for any clique, whether it be the Governor of the Bank or whether it be a clique of shareholders, to get certain Directors appointed year after year. They collect proxies and they go to the biggest shareholders. It is easy to do so when the Articles of Association enable a man to have large holdings with an equivalent voting power. In that case it is possible that a few proxies may mean the majority. Having those proxies in their pocket, they can defy all opposition from others who desire to get fresh blood into the Directorate. But that is impossible, nearly impossible, under the provisions of this Bill. I would like to see the management of the Bank or some shareholders trying to get proxies from men owning only up to a limit of Rs. 5,000 to enable them to get such a number of proxies as to make the election of A, B or C absolutely certain. Therefore, this argument that a Shareholders' Bank will make it possible to have a certain number of capitalists constantly in power is not a correct argument and, it is, in order to avoid that and to make this Bank broad-based upon the will of the people, a phrase very much abused, that this restriction has been inserted. Therefore, I think I may respectfully point out to my Honourable friend, Mr. Pandya, that his apprehensions are not valid. Now, Mr. Pandya says that they are based on his past experience. It may be so. I understand that he has been the Manager of the Hindustan Bank for 25 years and has been associated with three other Banks. If Mr. Pandya would give the names of his Directors and the number of years they have served on that Directorate, he may give us as interesting figures as he was able to read about the Imperial Bank. If that is his past experience on which he based his criticism, I maintain that the circumstances are totally different. It is possible that in his Bank a man could be a Director from the very establishment of the Bank till today. I think that is not possible in the case of the Reserve Bank unless the man is extraordinarily good and has the confidence of the people, because the shares of this Bank will be held by the people. It may have been the sad experience with my Honourable friend's Bank, the Bank of which he was the Manager, that he had to put up with old fogies, as he called them. But let me again repeat—I have repeated it three times already and now I repeat it for the fourth time—that it is not possible under the provisions of this Bill.

Now, Sir, so much for the State Bank versus the Shareholders' Bank. I presume I shall have the good fortune of perhaps addressing this Honourable House again on this subject. There is only one point on which I would like to refer. I am not going through this Bill, because there is little time at my disposal. We shall have further opportunities of doing so and I do not think that any point has been brought up which is of such importance that you would think it necessary for one of your members who was a member of the Committee to answer it. But there is one point I would like to bring to the notice of the House. That is the question of the ratio. Now, as we all know, there will have to be a clause in this Bill which will lay down the ratio, another as to whether we should be linked to sterling, to gold or to the dollar. These clauses come into the Bill, because they are to be the instructions to the Reserve Bank as to what the policy of Government is with regard to exchange. Those instructions to the Reserve Bank are given through this Bill. We are not considering the policy of exchange when we consider this Bill. The main object of this Bill is to establish a Reserve Bank. It so happens that it is through this Bill that we have to give instructions to the Reserve Bank as to what the policy of exchange should be. Therefore, the only thing that we can do is to put into the Bill the ratio that may be in existence the day before the Bill comes into operation. Now, Sir, that does not mean by any means that all the signatories to the report agree with the policy of the Government with regard to exchange.

My Honourable friend, Mr. Mody, reminded you, Sir, of the Resolution which you moved when England went off the gold standard. He now says and I was rather surprised to hear it, he now says that this is not the time to make any change. Let me tell this House that so far as I can judge public opinion in India it is that 1*s.* 6*d.* ratio is wrong and that Government can with benefit to the country change that ratio. I do not say it can be reduced to 1*s.* 4*d.* or 1*s.* 3*d.* or 1*s.* 2*d.* It is not my purpose to express any opinion, but I must say that public opinion today is stronger than ever it was before, at least in my part of the country. (Hear, hear.) The public feeling is that the time has arrived when Government should give their most serious consideration to the question of ratio.

Mr. H. P. Mody : Does my Honourable friend suggest that I said that this ratio should not be changed ?

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : You did.

Mr. H. P. Mody : I only said at the Select Committee table. Surely my Honourable friend understands it.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : Quite. When he said he had changed his opinion, I thought that he said that the present exchange should remain.

Mr. H. P. Mody : Nothing of the kind.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : I am glad to get that contradiction. But, Mr. President, we all know that this ratio cannot be changed by legislation. There are constitutions which lay down that the policy of exchange can only be changed by Government by legislation ; that is the constitution in England today. The British Government cannot make a radical change without legislation, but what does the British Government do ? What did it do ? It took action overnight and then went to the Legislature to get it ratified. That is the only way in which the ratio can be changed in any country ; whatever the constitution may lay down, it is the Government and Government alone that can take action overnight and come before the Legislature and say " that we have taken the responsibility for doing what we thought was in the best interests of this country ; we ask you to ratify it ". But you cannot allow the Legislature to decide what the ratio should be, because speculation would be rampant and the country would be ruined long before you legislate. People would be speculating in every part of the world with your exchange. Therefore, whether it be this Government or whether it be any

[Sir Cowasji Jehangir.]

Swaraj Government in the future, the Government alone will have to take the responsibility of changing the ratio and presenting a fait accompli to the Legislature. Therefore, under these circumstances, it is evident that it was never intended that we, as a Legislature, should decide questions of exchange when this Bill was brought up. But it is perfectly in order, as you know, Sir, for me to discuss this question and I think it is a fitting opportunity to remind my Honourable friend opposite of the point of view of India of which perhaps he is well aware. But I do feel that we are safe in the hands of the present Finance Member and that he will give India's opinion every consideration. We cannot expect him at any time to express too definite an opinion, no Government can or dare express too definite an opinion, because speculation will become rampant.

Mr. B. Das : What about the safeguards in the White Paper about the fixity of ratio ?

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : I would only remind the House how sensitive the financial world is. A word or two from the Honourable the Finance Member is enough. Why, the Honourable Member opposite arrived in Bombay and he made a little speech or gave a little interview and Government paper leaped up two points the next day. Why ? Something escaped out of his lips which he never intended and the result was that the Goverument paper went up, but next day it came down again.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I do not think it came back.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : I am very glad that the remarks of my Honourable friend have led to a couple of points rise in the Government paper, but it came back to the former level. Now, Sir, anything said by the Government Benches is taken up by the financial world in India or in other parts of the world, and people begin to speculate and, therefore, I am not going to ask my Honourable friend to give any definite opinion but I am going to request him to keep in mind public opinion on this question. Let us hope that even before the Bill comes before this Legislature again, the Honourable Member in charge of the finances of this country will have carefully considered the position. I am not going into details. The position has changed within the last two or three months as the Honourable Member well knows. It is changing every day and it may be that any big change in our ratio may have only a transitory effect. After all, it will have a beneficial effect even if it be for a short time. I will say nothing more about the ratio, Mr. President, as I do feel that although it is not absolutely out of order, it is irrelevant to the subject matter of the Bill.

Now, Sir, there is one important matter which the Committee have not really considered very carefully in England and that is what are to be the terms on which the Imperial Bank is to sever its connection with Government. I am not going into details, as these will have to be thrashed out in the Select Committee. It was deliberately left out of our deliberations in England because, at least, I felt, that India was a much better place to deal with this question than six thousand miles away. Speaking for myself, I do hope that every justice will be done to the Imperial Bank. I can only repeat what has been said so often in England that we shall see that justice is done to our indigenous banks also and that the Imperial Bank, although I am a shareholder, shall not be a position in which it shall be able to crush all indigenous banks. Its capital is very large. I know the claims that they have put forward in connection with their capital. I am not going into details now. At least I am certain that the Select Committee will give all these points due consideration and I can only express the hope which, I am sure, will be fulfilled that the Select Committee will do justice both to the Imperial Bank and to the indigenous banks.

Mr. President, there are other reasons, as this House knows, why we should get on with this Bill and why a Reserve Bank should be established as soon as possible. There were many experts who told us last year and the year before that it would be impossible to establish a Reserve Bank for financial reasons on which I am not going to dilate. Let us thank those who have made it possible for a Reserve Bank to be established within the near future, and let us also thank all our friends who have helped us to bring this country to a position which is second to none in the world. Those pessimistic prophets who told us that it would be impossible to have a Reserve Bank have not turned out to be quite correct. Let us hope, before long Government will be able to completely prove that those prophets were wrong. I do not want to be too optimistic just now, but Honourable Members will realise that the position has considerably improved as is shown by the figures given by the Finance Member and that we shall not be building castles in the air when we express the hope that this Reserve Bank will begin to function,—shall we say,—before the Finance Member leaves this country or perhaps very soon after.

Mr. Jagan Nath Aggarwal (Jullundur Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, the debate was losing an element of liveliness and interest when the Honourable Members from Bombay intervened and lent to it a certain amount of interest and flavour. We heard from the Leader of the Independent Party that the desire of our Honourable friends on this side for circulation of this Bill was wholly unjustified. He said that after reading the Bill of 1927 which had been discussed at very great length in this House and the Bill of 1928 which proved still-born and the Hilton-Young report all that was worth knowing was known and what was not known was not worth knowing ; and therefore it was wholly unnecessary to indulge in the luxury of a circulation motion. Well, Sir, may I remind my Honourable friend that between 1928 and 1933 the year 1931 intervened ? A good many economic theories and economic maxims have become heresies now.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : I may point out that you have got the London Committee's report on the 1928 Bill which made certain amendments in the 1928 Bill and that Committee sat only a couple of months ago and the report has been in your hands for some days.

Mr. Jagan Nath Aggarwal : I was not at all forgetful of the great Committee which sat in London and of which my Honourable friend and Mr. Mody were luminaries and were signatories to the report. That fact I was duly conscious of. The point that I was making was that during this period 1928 and 1933 the great year 1931 intervened. A good many economic theories have collapsed and have become heresies and the desire of my Honourable friends who have suggested that this Bill should be circulated is by no means a desire merely of a dilatory kind, because, as you will notice, the only time that we have asked for circulation is up to December, 1933. If I may be pardoned for mentioning it, this Reserve Bank scheme comes before us as part of the scheme of Federation ; one of the essential preliminaries which must be satisfied before Federation is an accomplished fact in this land is that there must be a Reserve Bank. And if that is so, why should my learned and Honourable friend leading the opposition be in such a desperate hurry when we know from a telegram received today that the report of the Joint Parliamentary Committee will not be out before 1934, the Parliamentary legislation will take another year, and that one great consummation that a requisite number of States have to declare their assent to the instrument of accession to Federation is still a long way off. Why should we be in such a desperate hurry ? I refuse to believe that it is part of dilatory tactics to ask for circulation by December, 1933. Now, Sir, that the Indian public is much exercised in mind over this measure will be apparent to you from one or two considerations. You will notice that my Honourable friend pinned his faith upon the London Committee and the London Committee is supposed to have said the last word on the subject. I refuse to assent to any such proposition. Neither the Anglo-Indian commercial world nor the Indian commercial world thinks that the last word has been pronounced on the subject. My Honourable friend, Mr. Mody, may go into raptures over it ; my Honourable friend, Sir Cowasji Jehangir, may say that the last word has been pronounced on the subject ; but may I remind them that when they were taken to London and were faced with the proposition that this Reserve Bank has got to come as a preliminary to Federation and everything in London seemed as if this was the only stumbling block, would not that have weighed with the members of the Committee ? May I also point out that one Honourable Member of that Committee has appended a note of dissent, that he has given his adhesion to a State Bank rather than a Shareholders' Bank ? In this connection, Sir, I am tempted, with your permission, to read during the few minutes at my disposal the remarks of a paper which just came into my hands, the Capital of Calcutta. One cannot accuse this paper of any leaning towards dilatory tactics or of being anxious to cause delay in the consideration of a motion of this character. This is what it says in this connection :

"Representative British and Indian opinion feels that the implications of the Reserve Bank on the trade and industries of the country would be so great that it is desirable to give the public a full opportunity to examine in detail all the proposals, and to that end it is essential not to rush the Bill through the Assembly during the next month but to circulate it for eliciting public opinion before taking the final step."

Now, Sir, if that is what comes from the Capital of Calcutta, I do not see how my Honourable friend, Sir Cowasji Jehangir, could make light of such a motion. I submit with all respect that the implications of this measure are so great and the effect of it on the trade and industry of the country would be so far-reaching that it is just as well to have light from all quarters that we possibly can have, and this by no means savours of a dilatory motion. My Honourable friend, the Finance Member, was at pains to assure us that even in the Select Committee we will be seeking the help of experts and we would be prepared to consider the evidence of persons who would be called and give evidence before the Committee. If that is so, I fully share his anxiety but I certainly do not see why some people should make light of the desire on this part of the House for a circulation motion and say that it is nothing but a motion of a dilatory character.

Now, Sir on of the questions that can be examined in the short space of time at my disposal is this controversy relating to the Shareholders' Bank and the State Bank. I do not like to speak as an expert in this matter because I am in these matters a layman ; but I should like to approach this question as a layman, and what has been the policy of the Government of India in matters of this kind ? When the previous Reserve Bank Bill was before this House it was felt that because the Government of India, the Secretary of State and the Finance Department of the Government of India had made mistakes and we had recent experience of huge mistakes having been made, it was felt necessary to have an independent body who should be in control of currency and exchange and who should control the credit of the country, and by that means it was thought that we would bring into existence an independent body who would be able to control the manipulations of exchange and currency and save the credit of the country. They would provide us with an independent body, with an expert body and not be led away by the red tape either of the Finance Department or the interests of foreign capitalists directing the policy from London. That was one of the reasons that was responsible for the introduction of the previous Reserve Bank Bill. Now, there is a suspicion—I call it a suspicion and no more—that the reason why this present Bill is coming up is not that you should have an expert body, but that you should have a body who would be free from the control of the future legislature of India to whom the destinies of this country are in a certain measure to be entrusted. I say it is a suspicion : proof of it is afforded in certain quarters ; it is pointed out that you are going to have a directorate on which in the first instance the Governor General in Council will be making nominations of four Directors and the Governor and the Deputy Governor. That is as it should be : the appointment is to be made by the Governor General in Council : in other words it would mean acting as the head executive in India with the consultation of his advisers. But this report tells us that thereafter the appointments shall be by the Governor General at his discretion. I would like to put it, as one of the previous speakers was at pains to tell us, that if the Finance Minister of the country knew his business and knew what he was about he would have a profound influence on the management of the Bank and on the control of the Bank. I would like to say, does not this savour of an attempt to deprive the future Finance Minister of having anything to do with the policy of this Bank ? That is a point which cannot escape the notice of those who are looking into this measure.

The previous speaker waxed eloquent on the merits of a Shareholders' Bank and the classic example of the Bank of England was put before us. In fact my learned friend went so far as to say that the reason why England was the top dog in finance at this time and has escaped the convulsions of 1931 was because of the existence of the Bank of England. He could as well have said that it was due to the existence of the Cabinet or to the existence of the British Navy or anything of that kind. I put it to him that the real cause why England has escaped is the determined character of the British and the boldness of its Prime Minister. The Prime Minister had no hesitation in breaking up his labour cabinet if they were not prepared to go all the way with him : he was bold enough to take the plunge, to take the nation with him and form a national cabinet. When that thing was done, the people thought Mr. Macdonald had written his own epitaph though somebody pointed out it would be a glorious epitaph. To say that it is the Bank of England that has saved the nation may be true in a sense ; but it would be true only in the sense that the Bank of England responded to the call of the Prime Minister. But what is there in the constitution of the Bank of England to say that they should follow the advice of the Prime Minister or that they should keep in touch with the treasury ? In fact the truth leaked out when my learned friend told us that the Bank of England was at loggerheads with the labour ministry. Would it not be fair to say that if the labour ministry had their way and had a large majority they would have nationalised the bank ? What is clear is that the last word has not been said on the subject. It is too early or in fact it is the last chapter in the history of Shareholders' Banks to say that they are the only institutions that can manage the currency and exchange simply because the Bank of England has done it. That is a fortuitous circumstance. It is an accident ; the result of conventions, or one might say, the result of the British character. There are so many things as we know ; the Queen can create every one a peer or make every man a marshal ; but they are not done : it is the character of the nation ; and because the Bank of England as a Shareholders' Bank has succeeded, it is no argument to say that a Shareholders' Bank is the only thing in this world. In the few minutes at my disposal I will just examine the proposition from a layman's point of view. This Government of India, according to its previous tendency, has been going in the direction of a socialistic government in certain directions. We own forests ; I mean, the Government owns forests ; it owns mines ; and when it did not own the railways it has raised a good deal of capital and has come to own the railways : in fact it is taking power to acquire railways whenever they are built by private agency. There is a point underlying this policy, the point surely being that all objects of public utility which the State manages or in which the State has direct concern must be run for the benefit of the State also. All profits must go to the State, and in the management thereof national interests must predominate. If that is so, I will put it to you, is this management of currency and exchange and the monetary policy of the country such a trivial matter that we should mix up national policy with the policy of a private directorate ? I do not say it is wholly to be handed over to private directors : there are special redeeming features and the Honourable the Finance Member has taken good care to incorporate various suggestions in deference to the opinions expressed in this House in order to make it fairly broad based, e.g., that you cannot have large accumulation of shares in certain hands, you cannot have large voting power concentrated in the hands of a few, and also the regional scheme of voting going far to make every part of the country interested in the inauguration of the Bank ; but I put it to you that taking it as a broad proposition if the affairs of the country are being managed in this manner, if in matters of supreme importance any concern is to be managed by the State, I put it to you respectfully why is it that we are afraid of having a State Bank ? This is a matter of such urgent importance that it well behoves us to discard old theories and to see if the current thought of the world is not in the direction of organising credit and finance in various countries in the way of State management. My learned friend who preceded me told the House that there were only two places in the world where they had a State bank. I submit that this proposition is not strictly accurate. He referred to Sweden and Australia. If I may be pardoned for mentioning it, Russia has got a Central Bank which is a State institution and places like Latvia and two or three others are in that position. After the termination of the war, several banks that have been instituted are a mixture of the two schemes, of State Banks and private Shareholders' Banks. Therefore, I submit that it is certainly not a settled proposition as my learned friend took it that all that we can say at this time is that the Shareholders' Bank holds the field according to the theories of economists.

I need not say much in regard to the bank being free from political influence, because that is a topic which can keep one going for some time : the idea of this political influence seems to be to shut out political influence of a certain kind. If the Bank is broad based, all kinds of influence will be brought to bear upon it. But the point underlying this shutting out of political influence seems to be to shut out political influence of Indians as such. If that is so, I do not know whether the safeguard that has been devised by my Honourable friends at the London conference has gone any way to remove that suspicion. I submit that in a matter of this kind one has to be very careful. One has to see that all interests, agricultural and commercial and other, have to be represented and that the Bank really serves the national needs of the country. For that purpose I do not see why so much has been made of this shutting out of political influence. If it means keeping out Members of the Legislature I am happy. I do not grudge the Finance Member the credit for this policy ; if you only keep out Members of the Legislature I do not see much harm in it. But if by keeping out political influence is meant the keeping out of leaders of Indian thought, I certainly would not subscribe to that proposition. I have finished.

MOTION FOR ADJOURNMENT.

ALLEGED SCURRILOUS ARTICLE IN THE Daily Gazette re MAHATMA GANDHI.

Mr. B. R. Puri (West Punjab : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I move :

"That the House do now adjourn."

4 P.M.

In order that the House may be in a position to appreciate the nature of the question involved in the present motion, I shall have to make some introductory observations to put the House in possession of necessary data. The ultimate issue which is involved in this motion, I am sure, the House will find, to be a very simple one. A certain article appeared in an Anglo-Indian daily which is published in Karachi, in its issue of the 18th August last containing most provocative and inflammatory suggestions against Mahatma Gandhi. It appears that this gentleman who is the author of the article is an Anglo-Indian who has taken into his head, and is a great believer in, the efficacy of the flogging system of punishment. On a previous occasion too he recommended to the Government of India that all the civil disobedience offenders should be flogged in order to put an end to that movement.

Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi (Dacca cum Mymensingh : Muhammadan Rural) : Is the article here ?

Mr. B. R. Puri : That article is not here, but the fact was asserted in the question itself, which question I shall presently place before the House. The question referred to is No. 787 which was put by my Honourable friend, Mr. Lalchand Navalrai, and the reply of the Home Secretary relating to this previous article was that the Home Secretary had no information regarding that. Thus the Government are not in a position to challenge or dispute the accuracy of the statement regarding this previous article. The most vital part of the article is contained in a couple of sentences which, with the leave of the House, I shall read :

"Most people feel that Gandhiji should be well smacked on part of anatomy nature has specifically provided for the purpose."

According to him, the only use for the buttocks in human body is to be flogged and for no other purpose. Now, mark the next sentence :

"Unfortunately, he is too old for this type of treatment to prove of any use,—certainly his latest antic smacks of a silly old man entering his second childhood."

I have omitted the earlier portion of the article although perhaps, in order to show the context, it may be useful, but since the clinching part of the article, the most offensive part of it, is the one I have read, I have confined myself to these two sentences only.

The policy of the Government came out unexpectedly as the result of various interpellations yesterday in a most naked form. And what is that policy ? That policy is a policy of complete indifference, of non-interference with anything which a Local Government may choose to do or omit to do. The Government of India, according to the replies which were vouchsafed yesterday, will not worry however much a Local Government may disregard its duties with regard to certain momentous questions. One thing which has very prominently come out in the answers which were given on behalf of the Government is that the Government refused to bring their mind to bear upon this article. Time and again, effort was made to induce the Home Secretary to consider and let us know whether, in the opinion of the Government of India, they are in a position to approve of this article, or to disapprove of this article, or to condemn this article. But the answer, Sir, which was given, was couched in the following words :

"The question of the effect produced by an article of this kind is one which can best be judged by the Local Government who have power to take action against any articles that offend against the law."

We know what the powers and duties of a Local Government are. But the question is, is this a proper discharge of the obligations and duties of a Supreme Government ? That is the true position with which we are confronted. This attitude, I submit, of complete indifference is likely to lead to very mischievous results, and it is on that account that we feel constrained to move today the adjournment motion and to give a warning to the Government that, when dealing with questions of such delicate nature, the attitude of the Government should not be such as was disclosed yesterday in answers to questions. The only thing which the Government of India was prepared to do, to use the words of the Leader of the House, was that the Government of India were prepared to transmit and to despatch the questions and answers which were being put in this House to the Government of Bombay. May I know what is the point of it ? How far will that carry us ? What is the virtue of this procedure which the Government of India are so graciously pleased to follow ?

Asked in another question : "Do you condemn this article ?" "No." Asked : "Do you disapprove of the article ?" The answer was, it was either by the Leader of the House or by the Home Secretary : "The Government refuse to commit itself to any expression of opinion".

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore (Leader of the House) : In justice to me, I think my Honourable friend might quote my reply. When Sir Cowasji Jehangir put me a question, I replied to him that if it was suggested that the article was in questionable taste, I would have no hesitation in agreeing with him on that point.

Mr. B. R. Puri : I will quote the very words of his reply. I will presently be able to lay my finger on the particular answer.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : Does the Honourable Member dispute the correctness of the statement that I have just now made ?

Mr. B. R. Puri : All I say is, it was either the Leader of the House or the Home Secretary who vouchsafed this answer that the Government of India were not going to commit itself to any expression of opinion. I say this, and I repeat it, and I am presently going to show it to the House from the answers that I have got in my hands. If only the House will have a little patience, I will be able to lay my finger on the answer, and I will just ask my Honourable colleague to find it out for me, and in the meanwhile I will go on.

Mr. T. Sloan (Government of India : Nominated Official) : May I say that I also said that I had nothing to say in defence of the article.

Mr. B. R. Puri : That is wholly beside the point. The question before the House is whether it was not deliberately stated on behalf of the Government that the Government of India were not prepared to commit themselves to any expression of opinion and whether this answer is not consistent with the answer which the Home Secretary has already vouchsafed with reference to the last three or four paragraphs of question No. 787.

Major Nawab Ahmad Nawaz Khan (Nominated Non-Official) : May I ask whether this article was written by way of joke or seriously, and how Mr. Gandhi has taken it.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai (Sind : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : The Anglo-Indian Press never means to cut jokes.

Mr. B. R. Puri : My question was :

"May I know if the Government of India are now disposed, in view of the most flagrantly indecent character of this attack upon a very revered gentleman, to transmit to the Government of Bombay their strong condemnation of the article in question and not merely to be content with despatching the questions and answers."

The reply of the Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore was :

"I cannot engage that the Government of India will commit themselves to any expression of opinion."

I hope that this would satisfy the Honourable the Leader of the House who apparently, in the stress of his duties, had overlooked that he had committed himself in so many words.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : Will the Honourable Member read my reply to Sir Cowasji Jehangir's question ?

Mr. B. R. Puri : That is perfectly immaterial again. I undertake to show you your own answer. This is what you said speaking as a responsible Minister on behalf of the Government. I take my stand on that answer. These were the identical words used by the Honourable the Leader of the House. All that the Government of India are prepared to do is, under the circumstances, to despatch these questions and answers. What would be the advantage in doing that unless the Government of India were to send along with their despatch their own views and opinions as to what they think of this article. Otherwise the mere report of the questions and answers could very well be read by the Bombay Government officials from the daily press. As to the earlier incidents, the C. I. D. Department of the Bombay Government must have known that an article of this nature was published in the Daily Gazette as far back as 18th August. They also must have known that, in consequence of the most inflammatory character of that article, public meetings had been actually convened in Karachi, where the article had been very strongly condemned. Can the Government of India seriously maintain that the Government of Bombay are unaware of this incident ? Their eyes would only be opened by the Honourable the Leader of the House sending these questions and answers to the Bombay Government. Sir, this sending of questions and answers is the job of a mere post office clerk. Surely that is not the way in which great political obligations are discharged by a supreme Government. Now, Sir, I will show you what the Government are not prepared to do, so that you may be able to appreciate the extent of the apathy and the indifference to which the Government stand committed. In the first place, they say.....

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Honourable Member has just two minutes more.

Mr. B. R. Puri : It is not prepared to convey its condemnation of the article to the Bombay Government. The Government will not commit themselves to any expression of opinion. It is not prepared to consult its Law Department to find out whether the case does not fall under section 153A of the Indian Penal Code and also offends the Press laws. In this connection, I would ask the House to consider the suggestion which came out from a nominated Member, the Honourable Mr. Sarma. Mr. Sarma asked : whether the Government were prepared to ask the Editor in a friendly manner to refrain from writing any more articles of a provocative character. The Government were not prepared to do even that much.

Mr. R. S. Sarma (Nominated Non-Official) : I said that the Leader of the House has already said that they are taking action in forwarding these questions and answers for necessary action.

Mr. B. R. Puri : You have as bad a memory as other Members of the Government. Here is your answer. You said :

> " In view of the fact that the Publicity Officer of the Government of India is in direct touch with newspapers all over the country, will the Government be pleased to direct him to draw the attention of the Editor of the Daily Gazette to this article and to ask him, if necessary, in a friendly manner, to refrain from writing any more articles of a provocative character ? "

I hope my Honourable friend stands corrected now.

Mr. R. S. Sarma : I want the reply to that.

Mr. B. R. Puri : The reply is that the Government of India are not prepared to do beyond what they have already stated, namely, that they will despatch these questions and answers.

That is the reply. Time and again, the Government gave the same reply, that they are not prepared to go beyond that. Now, Sir, the enormity of this action is open to very serious question. The hand that rules may be heavy, but we want that its pressure should be even. It would be highly mischievous if the impression got abroad that any Anglo-Indian offender or any European offender, no matter whom he may malign, is above all laws. On the other hand, any Indian, no matter how high his position may be, if he does any corresponding act, will be hauled up under the law and sent to jail. This kind of discriminatory treatment would lead, I am afraid, to violence, the consequences of which should be the aim of all parties in this House to check as far as it lies with us. Before I sit down, I would like your indulgence just for one second. I have got to skip over a good many points which I cannot now take up, but I will just deal for a moment with the point raised by my Honourable friend, Mr. James, yesterday.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The rules relating to the time limit on speeches of this kind are absolutely mandatory. Standing Order 24 says : " No speech during the debate shall exceed fifteen minutes in duration ". Owing to the interruptions, the Chair allowed the Honourable Member five minutes more.

Mr. B. R. Puri : I move that this House do now adjourn.

Mr. R. S. Sarma : Mr. President, my Honourable friend, Mr. Puri, is a criminal lawyer of eminence and has already won fame and wealth in his profession, but I must congratulate him really on the success that his forensic eloquence achieved on the floor of this House this morning when he was able to convince a section of this House that the matter he was raising was of urgent public importance.

An Honourable Member : Are you questioning the ruling of the Chair ?

Mr. R. S. Sarma : No ; on the other hand, I am saying that he was able to convince the Chair that the matter was of urgent public importance.

[At this stage, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) vacated the Chair which was then occupied by Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury).]

I do not think any man will be more embarrassed by the attitude taken, not by the Government, but by those who profess to be his friends than Mahatma Gandhi himself. Sir, whatever we may say about Mahatma Gandhi—many people say that he is not a good diplomatist, nor is he a statesman—he has got one characteristic which everybody has acknowledged, namely, he has got great and good sense of humour which I wish Members sitting on these Benches had possessed. There is a Tamil proverb which says that a husband thrashed his wife and the wife was weeping and, after half an hour, when the husband came back and asked her why she was weeping, she said, she was weeping not because the husband beat her, but because the husband's sister laughed at her. So, here our friends are not concerned as to what the Daily Gazette wrote, but what the attitude of the Government was in their replies yesterday. After all, to my mind, as a journalist, however silly the effusion may have been in the Daily Gazette it was a funny article which ought not to have been taken seriously at all. I do admit that it is a risk job to indulge in jokes about a personality who has achieved International fame and if the Editor of the paper.....

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer (Rohilkund and Kumaon Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : I think the Honourable Member will agree that it was a very foolish article and should be treated with contempt. It was not a humorous article.

Mr. R. S. Sarma : I am subject to correction, I say that it was a silly article and ought to have been treated like that. But we are not concerned here with the article, but the attitude of the Government in their replies. Now, what was the reply ? Not once, not twice, not thrice, but half a dozen times the Leader of the House yesterday said that he was drawing the attention of the Bombay Government to this article and he was going to forward to the Bombay Government a copy of all the interpellations. Some Members asked yesterday whether the Government of India did not exercise control, direction and supervision over the Local Government. I may say that it is because they are exercising direction and control that the Leader of the House thought it fit to communicate to the Bombay Government what the Honourable Members have thought about this matter. Having done that, I want to know what further action do they expect the Government of India to take ? Does my Honourable friend, Mr. Puri, expect the Honourable Sir Harry Haig to send a clear the line message to the Commissioner of Sind to hang the Editor on the nearest tree ? I can understand that if the Bombay Government, after going through these interpellations, do not do anything and there was still bitter feeling in this matter, it will be open to Members of this House to raise this question again on the floor of this House. Having said that much, I maintain that the attitude of the Government has been perfectly satisfactory so far.

I want to make one appeal which I should have liked to make to the President and now I make it to the Deputy President. We are having so many motions for adjournment in this House, the object of which is to ascertion whether this House really censures the Government on these issue or approves of the action of the Government. But when these motions are only talked out, it is not fair either to the outside public or to the constituencies whose Members are in this House.....

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : Order, order : The Honourable Member cannot question the decision of the Chair.

Mr. R. S. Sarma : I am not questioning the decision of the Chair. I am only appealing to the Chair that at least in this matter the House should divide and record its votes.

Mr. B. Das (Orissa Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Why don't you challenge a division ? You have not the courage to challenge a division.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Sir, we have heard the Honourable Mr. Sarma many a time in this House and I do not think I can take it that he was speaking not seriously. My submissions to this House on this question are three in number. The first question is whether the Government of India can plead that they have no jurisdiction in a matter like this when it concerns the whole of India as I will presently show. The second question is whether the article in question, for which I am responsible for bringing it into this House, is not such an insulting and libellous one as to create bad blood if the Government of India do not interfere. I must say that the leader that appeared in the Daily Gazette was not read by me in any paper of Sind. My attention was first drawn to it when it was reproduced here and I saw it in Simla in the National Call only a day before I sent in the question. The third question is as to the attitude of the representative of the Government of India on this article as well as its interpretation and that of the replies given to the supplementary questions by the representative of the Government who was on that day the Honourable the Joint Secretary in the Home Department. I was sorry that the Honourable the Home Member was unavoidably absent, as, I am sure, his replies would have been given with more tact and would have been more satisfactory. Of course, I do not in the least condemn or say anything in condemnation of the Honourable the Joint Secretary. I know he was sincere in what he said, though he was mistaken. Perhaps it was due to the fact that it was the first time that he opened his mouth in this House when he gave answers which were absolutely unreasonable and unsatisfactory. As the time at my disposal is limited, I will run over these three questions. The first question is with regard to the jurisdiction. This article has not been published only in Sind and does not affect the people of Sind only. This article is not of such a character that it can be taken notice of only by the people of Sind or Bombay, but it is an article which is likely to be taken notice of by the whole of India. The Daily Gazette claims to be a paper which has got a large circulation.

An Honourable Member : Has it ?

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : At any rate, it has the Government support. So, if I may be permitted to say so, the Government have been more or less negligent in taking action against these Anglo-Indian papers in order to bring them to their proper senses. I say that as this is a question of all-India importance, it will cause bad blood if this article is allowed to go to every nook and corner of India unchallenged. Therefore, it is certainly an all-India question on which the Government of India cannot come forward and give an unsatisfactory reply to the effect that they will act as a channel or as a post office only to send these questions to the Bombay Government. I submit, this is one phase of the question of jurisdiction. Coming to the second, it is a legal point. In my questions, I asked whether the Government of India were going to take legal action against this paper for this article which, according to some Honourable Members of the House, is at least foolish or childish. If you read the article closely and if you know the career of this paper in having published previously an article of this nature, I submit, it is the duty of Government to take notice of it. According to law, there is a section in the Code of Criminal Procedure which says that if there is any offence which is continuing, or continues over other areas, any Government of any area will have jurisdiction to take cognisance of it. As this article has appeared also in Delhi and in Simla and also elsewhere, why should not the Government of India take action against the paper under section 153A of the Penal Code.

Section 182, Code of Criminal Procedure, says :

"Where an offence is a continuing one, and continues to be committed in more local areas than one, or where it consists of several acts done in different local areas, it may be inquired into or tried by a Court having jurisdiction over any of such local areas."

[Mr. Lalchand Navalrai.]

The commentary on this section says :

"If a defamatory letter is posted in Madras with a view to its being read in Tinnevelly, the offence of defamation is triable either in Madras or in Tinnevelly under section 179 or 182."

Similarly, the editor of an offensive article can be prosecuted at any place where his paper is circulated.

I need not pursue this point further. But I must say that it is certain that the Government of India, under their several functions, could take cognisance of this article and consider it for themselves. Different interpretations are sought to be put on this article and it is the duty of the Government to come forward and consult their own legal officers and come to a definite conclusion. It is up to the Government of India themselves to take action in the matter and not direct the Government of Bombay to enquire into the matter. If this cannot be done, the Government of India can send a peremptory order to the Government of Bombay to enquire into the matter. Apart from the power of superintendence and the power of revision that the Government of India have, they have generally all-India power and, I submit, that according to law, they must take action. The reply that they have given is absolutely unsatisfactory and, by this reply, the Government have shown that they are taking a partial attitude towards the Anglo-Indian press. I am sure, if an Indian paper had done something like this and had attacked a European in this way, I do not know whether the matter will have stood only with the Government of India. Action would have been taken even by the Secretary of State for India. On this point I must say further that the position of Government in the answers that they have given is rather inconsistent. Sir, as my Honourable friend, Mr. Puri, has made it plain that the Government of India have given certain replies in which they say that they have got nothing more to do than to send the papers to the Bombay Government. I submit, that is not a fair position as disclosed in the answers that they have given. I will presently show that, on the interpretation of the article, the Honourable the Joint Secretary of the Home Department has given more or less a definite opinion, and, having given a definite opinion, was it right to say only that the papers would be sent to the Bombay Government ? It would mean that they prejudice the case with regard to the article itself and then say that they would send the papers to the Bombay Government. On that point I put a specific question to the Honourable the Leader of the House who happened to intervene on behalf of the Home Department. I put the following question :

"May I know, Sir, whether the Honourable the Leader of the House agrees with a reply given by the Home Secretary, because it appears to me that he is prejudicing the case by giving his opinion for the consideration of the Local Government ?"

The reply was very unsatisfactory. Then, having shown the passage in the Daily Gazette, I asked the Home Secretary the following question :

"May I know, with this explanation, of the Daily Gazette, whether the Honourable Member would think it necessary to call the attention of the Bombay Government that the answer is only childish and the allegation is admitted, and that action should, therefore, be taken against the Daily Gazette ?"

What was the reply ? It will show how the Government of India tried to prejudice the case. The reply was :

"No, Sir. The Government of India do not propose to call the attention of the Government of Bombay to a reply which explains the obvious meaning of the article."

Then, Sir, the Government of India more or less agree with the Daily Gazette that the obvious explanation is the one given by that paper. So I put another question to the Home Secretary which runs :

"May I know, therefore, whether Government are accepting this explanation which will not be acceptable even to a child ?"

The reply was :

"The explanation given is an obvious one to any one who has a good knowledge of the English language."

May I say here, without any disrespect to anyone, that this reply has been taken verbatim from the explanation of the Editor of the Daily Gazette ? With regard to the article, which I brought to the notice of the Government, from the Daily Gazette, the reply then given by Government was that the meaning was clear only to those who had a good knowledge of English. I submit that this explanation has been inspired plainly by the explanation given in the Daily Gazette and then the Honourable Member came forward and said that those who had a good knowledge of English would only appreciate its meaning. Then, again, I put another pointed question which runs :

"May I know if the Honourable Member is aware that there have been so many criticisms over this article which has been called childish and whether those who have criticised also do not know the English language well ?"

The reply was :

"I have not seen any criticisms, Sir, except the Honourable Member's."

Where did the Honourable Member read my criticism ? I did not write in any newspaper. When he referred to me, there was, I must say, in some quarters a suspicion that the Honourable Member was referring to my own knowledge of English. But I was quite charitable on this point and took it that he could not have possibly meant that my knowledge of English was defective. To be fair to him on this point, I must say that he made it clear to me yesterday in the lobby that he never meant to say that my knowledge of English was bad. On the other hand, he said to the contrary. Therefore, I have no complaint on that point. So far as the answers are concerned, I must say positively that the Joint Secretary of the Home Department has prejudiced the case if it should go to Court. He said that the explanation was obvious. I still repeat that it is not an explanation which will be acceptable even to a child. Anyway, here it is considered by some to be foolish and such as no responsible paper should publish. Why should a responsible paper like the Daily Gazette come forward and make jokes at a man who is so revered and on whose account the whole of India will resent. After this article was published, the Daily Gazette, in its issue, dated the 30th August, has pointed out how this matter in fact led to a stir amongst the people of Karachi that they met in the Khalikdino hall and gave expression to their views condemning this article. Further on, it is said in the paper that it was even given out that if such an article had been written in Bengal, they would have seen how to meet with the writer.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : The Honourable Member has got one minute more.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : What I am submitting with regard to this article is that it is really inflammatory, I may almost call it libellous. Coming then, to the third question, the attitude of Government, I have, while giving my arguments on the other two questions, referred to that also. Sir, Government have not taken this attitude on this occasion only. We talk often of the Government of India's powers of superintendence and control. For instance, when we talk of the Railway Department, we are told that the questions are being sent to the Agent ; when we talk of the Government of India, we are told that the question is being sent to the Provincial Governments to be dealt with. Is this an attitude which the House will accept ? Those days are gone when the House was more or less helpless on this side at least, but now the days are different.

[Mr. Lalchand Navalrai.]

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : The Honourable Member's time is up.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I was saying that we are now more wide awake, and I support this motion.

Mr. S. C. Mitra (Chittagong and Rajshahi Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I support the motion of my Honourable friend, Mr. Puri. I do not like to discuss the newspaper article in question in detail, because I know every sensible man will treat with contempt such inelegant and indecent articles and appraise the worth of the author. But what I regret is the attitude of Government. Personally, I think that had the Honourable the Home Member been present yesterday, we would not have been compelled to drag the discussion to this extent. I know the Leader of the House wanted to mitigate the situation by saying that he would refer the questions and answers to the Bombay Government. I wish he had been bold enough to say that the Government of India did not approve of such articles and that they did not think that these ugly sentiments should have been indulged in.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I did say that. I said that I entirely agreed with Sir Cowasji Jehangir that it was in very questionable taste indeed.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : The Joint Secretary of the Home Department perhaps, being new to this House, did not gauge the depth of feeling amongst the Indians that such scurrilous remarks were made against one of their greatest leaders. There is no doubt a general impression in the country that Anglo-Indian papers are immune from all the sections of the Penal Code. We have tried, times without number, to bring to the notice of the House during the Kashmir disturbances the objectionable nature of the articles from the Statesman, which should have been suppressed, and also, on many other occasions, and it is really a very deplorable thing that this impression should be confirmed by such callous attitude of the Government of India in this particular matter. I do not know what is the standard of sense of decorum or decency, prevailing in the western civilised world ; but I can tell the Honourable the Home Member and the Government Benches that we, oriental people, may be very backward in everything else, but, according to our sense of honour and decency, such inelegant and indecent expressions from educated men is never tolerated in any decent society. I do not know the ideas of humour of my friend, Mr. Sarma, but I think he will agree that this sort of writing is neither humorous nor will be accepted as witty by any civilised people ; if he thinks over it closely and not be anxious to support Government in every way whenever there is an occasion, he will be ashamed to support such a conduct.

I think Government most certainly realise that Mahatma Gandhi's name is one to be conjured with throughout the length and breadth of India, and, no man, particularly an Englishman, with a decent education, and the editor of a newspaper should indulge in this sort of writing. If they do so, they will only be widening the great gulf of difference between the two races, and certainly it was the duty of the Government of Bombay at least to warn such persons to be more careful. What we desired was that the Government of India, having the power of superintendence, direction and control over the Provincial Governments, should have taken steps, when their attention was drawn to this matter by Mr. Lalchand Navalrai, to draw the attention of the Bombay Government, and that would have consoled the feelings of the Members of this House. I think it was not fair to consider this matter as merely provincial, particularly when the attention of Government was drawn specially to it by my friend, Mr. Lalchand Navalrai. I have my own views as to whether on these small matters the attention of Government should at all be drawn, as it is very insignificant, but once it is brought to the notice of Government, I think it is incumbent on the Government of India to do their best and satisfy public opinion in these matters. With these remarks, I support the motion.

Mr. F. E. James (Madras : European) : Sir, if ever it is my misfortune to get ensnared in the toils of litigation, I shall endeavour to engage Mr. Puri on my behalf as there is no doubt that there is no one who can make a better speech on a hopeless case. I should like, first of all, to say, in regard to the remarks which are quoted from this particular article, that none of us on this side of the House would wish to give the impression that we think they are in any way justifiable. My own personal view is that they are in bad taste, they are foolish and they are petulant ; and when anything is said in a widely circulated press which is either petulant or foolish or in bad taste, and specially when those remarks are addressed to a person who is held in great veneration by the whole of India, then obviously they are very unfortunate and nobody in his normal senses would justify their publication in any responsible journal. But when that is said, I do beg of Members of the House to preserve a sense of proportion in dealing with this matter. Many foolish things are said from time to time almost every day in almost every paper. Honourable Members of Government have, in a paper which is published not very far from here, been caricatured in the most scandalous terms by a very well-known caricaturist. The last caricature I saw was of the Honourable Member for Industries and Labour, and I should certainly think that, from the description of the Honourable Member, he had an extremely good case for complaint, and an extremely good case for intervention by the Government of India. I wonder why he did not ask the Government of India to exercise their powers of superintendence, direction and control over the Local Government. I once more appeal to the House, in view of what I have said and of what I think should be the attitude of every reasonably-minded man, to preserve a sense of proportion in this matter. I would remind the Members of this House of the meaning of this adjournment motion. An adjournment motion is directed against the Government. If it is carried, it means that the Government of the day is censured. On what basis is this motion going to be carried through the House ? As far as I could understand the speech of my Honourable friend, Mr. Puri, he had two complaints : the first was that the Government of India, as a Government, were not prepared to express an opinion about these particular words. I put it to my Honourable friend, that we are living in very anxious times : there are many important matters before the House : we have just interrupted a discussion on the Reserve Bank Bill which, according to many Members of the Opposition, is the most important measure yet placed before this House. Therefore, the Government of India's time is fully occupied. Does my Honourable friend really suggest that the Government of India should, as a Government, seriously consider these particular words or any similar words made in any publication in India and come to a considered and careful opinion as to whether they are or are not proper ? I do suggest that my Honourable friend's sense of humour and sense of proportion have deserted him on this occasion.

I gather that the second ground for the adjournment motion is that if the Government of India did not express an official opinion, at least they should exercise their great powers of superintendence, direction and control over the Bombay Government so that that Government should take action in regard to this article. Now, those of us who have been in close touch with Provincial Governments, and who have served on Provincial Legislatures well know that the provinces are very jealous of the exercise of these great powers by the Government of India, and resent any interference very much. Therefore, it is not unnatural that the Government of India should not, as a rule, use these powers in respect of Local Governments unless there is some very grave emergency, unless there is some very compelling circumstance which will make the use of those powers justified. I would ask Honourable Members in this House frankly to face the issue and answer the question—are the circumstances so compelling as to make it justifiable for the Government of India to use these powers ? Is the emergency so grave ? This article was published, I believe, some time in August. I understand one meeting of protest has been held in Karachi. I have not heard of other meetings ; I have not heard of any breach of the peace in Karachi itself. I quite admit that articles of this kind are foolish and they do breed ill feeling between one community and another ; but, at the same time, let us preserve a sense of proportion in these matters and realise that there is no justification whatsoever for the exercise of these great and extraordinary powers of direction, superintendence and control by the Government of India.

Rao Bahadur B. L. Patil (Bombay Southern Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : May I ask whether the Honourable Member knows that superintendence, apart from the law of the country itself, gives such a power to the Governor General in Council to prosecute such persons ? If he knows that, I have no more to say.

Mr. F. E. James : I did not hear my Honourable friend, but, in any case, it is immaterial. I understood from the Commerce Member, as from the Joint Secretary to the Home Department, who, on this his first appearance, has had to answer questions and has been placed in a very difficult position (which, I am sure, Members of this House will realise)—I understood that they were prepared to send the proceedings of this House at question time to the Bombay Government. I consider that that is a very sympathetic step for the Government of India to have agreed to take ; and I do suggest that if Honourable Members of this House, in view of all the circumstances, in view of the important business which is before the House, in view of the foolishness of the words which are complained of, in view of all these things, I do suggest that Members of this House should be content with what the Government have agreed to do and should throw out the motion for adjournment which is in effect a motion of censure. The real question which we shall have shortly to face is this : on this issue, are Members genuinely and honestly prepared to censure the Government of India ? If they are and if the censure motion is really carried against the Government of India, then I am not at all sure that the Governor General will not be justified in ordering a speedy dissolution of this Assembly so that fresh elections can be held !

[At this stage, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) resumed the Chair.]

Mr. K. C. Neogy (Dacca Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : We Chetty) resumed the Chair.]

Sir Cowasji Jehangir (Bombay City : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : Mr. President, I am afraid, this is a most unfortunate debate, because it is founded, I am sure, on a misunderstanding. I cannot, for one moment, believe that any Member of this House, whether he be on the Government Benches or on these Benches here or on those Benches further down, would for one minute try to justify such a leader in a responsible newspaper—and I believe it is a responsible newspaper—at least I have never heard of it before—talking of a man, with whom we may disagree, with whose methods we may disagree, but about whom there can be no two opinions that he is a man of international reputation, a man admired by millions in this country. To talk about a man like that, especially of a man of his years—he is 65—about spanking him in a leader, not even in a note, is really the most absurd thing I have ever heard of ; and I do not think that any of those replies that came from the opposite Benches tried to justify the remarks made in that leader. But my Honourable friends opposite, perhaps in the absence of the Honourable the Home Member, who, however strong his replies may be, however clear they may be and however much he may disagree with us, has always got such a pleasant smile on his face and who tells us exactly what he thinks and what he is going to do, were at a disadvantage.

Now, Sir, notwithstanding the very able assistance given by my Honourable friend, the Leader of the House, to a new Member on the Government Benches, I do believe that a misunderstanding did take place, and I can realise how this misunderstanding did take place. My Honourable friend, I believe he is the Joint Secretary in the Home Department, is here for the first time, and although he was answering questions, it was a maiden effort for all I know. I do not know whether he has addressed the House before, it was a maiden speech, and in attempting to give answers perhaps he was not quite what the Home Member might have been. Perhaps he fully realises from this incident that it is not so easy for Government Members to give replies as he imagined. It is a difficult thing ; it is an art that has to be acquired, and my Honourable friend, the Home Member, and my Honourable friend, the Leader of the House, have acquired the art really to perfection, and it will be many years perhaps before my Honourable friend, the Joint Secretary, will acquire the art in the same manner as my two Honourable friends who sit on the front Benches. But that misunderstanding need not lead to a vote with regard to the adjournment motion.

5 P.M.

The real point is this, and it is a constitutional point. Have the Government of India supervision, direction and control over Provincial Governments ? They have today ; they may not have two or three years hence. And we have got to consider the constitutional position as it stands today. My Honourable friend, Mr. James, who now sits so far away that I can hardly hear—I believe he was talking about the sensitiveness of Local Governments about the interference from the Central Government. I was just as sensitive in days gone by, but the fact remains that the Central Government are responsible. They are responsible to this House in a way, not completely, but in a way ; at least they are responsible to the extent that they have to answer our questions. I do not think that the Treasury Benches opposite can on certain occasions take the responsibility of certain actions of the Local Governments, and, on other occasions, say : " We shall have nothing to do with the Local Government, it is their business, and we will allow them to do what they like ". This is inconsistent. I can understand their saying : " We shall not go on enquiring every day about certain matters from the Local Government, we are not going to bother them ". But when a question is asked of them : " What about this article in the papers ? ", the only answer that Government can give is that they will consider the matter, that they will refer it to the Local Government, that they will get the views of the Local Government, but that they will give it their consideration. I cannot see, under the present Constitution, how they can refuse this side of the House consideration of any matter that they may bring to their attention. They may reject it, but consideration of the matter they must give. But, unfortunately, and that is where the misunderstanding took place,—unfortunately, the reply led us to believe that Government refused to give the matter consideration although half a dozen Members on this side of the House demanded that Government must give consideration to this matter. That is where the constitutional position comes in. I think that this side of the House can, under the present constitution, demand that the Government must consider the matter. The consideration of the matter may consist of the Home Member glancing through the article and saying : " Gentlemen, I do not think this requires any further consideration ". That means he has already given it consideration and he has come to the conclusion that he cannot give it any further consideration. But to tell us : " We will refer it to the Local Government, and we will not interfere with the Local Government whatever they may do ",—that is not the constitutional position and cannot be the constitutional position of the Government of India. If that were the constitutional position, then Local Governments could turn round and tell the Honourable Members opposite that they would do whatever they liked with Mr. Gandhi and that the Government of India could please themselves. That is not the constitutional position. When we ask questions about Mr. Gandhi, the Honourable Member takes full responsibility for actions taken and says : " These are our actions ". That may have been the result of consultation with the Local Government ; it may be that the Local Government disagreed with them and they had to submit to the Government of India ; but they do not tell us that. We have nothing to do with what the Central Government do with the Local Government, or what weight they give to the opinion of the Local Government. We are not concerned with that. What we are concerned with is, what do the Government of India think about a matter over which they have superintendence, direction and control. It is our constitutional right that we shall get an answer. That is the question and, I feel certain, that there was a misunderstanding. I have never seen any Government yet, Local or Central, who will shirk their responsibility in that way, and I have not the slightest doubt that Honourable Members opposite do not want to shirk any responsibility. But, as I say, the answers were unfortunate and it became all the more unfortunate, because it was connected with an article which will give offence to millions in this country. Honourable Members opposite may not agree with me, but it is a fact that this article will give the greatest offence, will hurt the feelings of millions in this country. We may disagree with Mr. Gandhi, and no one has disagreed with Mr. Gandhi more than I have, openly and privately. No one perhaps has told Mr. Gandhi his mind more clearly, and no one has been less afraid to say what he thinks publicly. But Mr. Gandhi is a great man, and if articles of this stupid character are written and if they are resented by millions of people in this country, although they may not fall within the four corners of the law, we do demand that the Government of India shall be responsible to us and shall tell us that they have considered this matter, that it falls or does not fall within the four corners of the law and that they do not desire to take any further action in the matter, or they cannot or they will not. Some sort of reply we must get from the Government of India, and we cannot be told that the matter has been referred to the Local Government who will do what they choose and we shall not get a reply. That is the position and that is all that the trouble is about.

Now, Mr. President, I do think that the matter can be solved in five minutes. The constitutional position has only to be placed before the House by the Home Member and the thing is over. I do feel that the Government of India cannot and will not take up the position that they refuse under any circumstances, with or without consultation with the Local Government, to say what they propose to do with regard to an article like that. I do not think they can take up that position, and, I am sure, no Government can take up that constitutional position so long as the present Constitution lasts.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Honourable Member's time is up.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : In two minutes more I shall finish. I do not think anybody would like to be told in a leading article " You ought to be spanked ", and if the same was written of any of us, or any of those gentlemen opposite, I do not think we would be very pleased. And if this is encouraged, tomorrow you will get leaders saying : " I should be spanked, my Honourable friend, the Leader of the House, my Honourable friend, the Home Member, every one of us should be spanked ", and, then, my Honourable friends will have to grin and bear it if they express no resentment now at such stupid and vindictive articles. I trust that this misunderstanding will be removed within the first two or three minutes of the speech of my Honourable friend, the Home Member. (Applause.)

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig (Home Member) : I must, in the first place, express my regret that I was not in the House yesterday at question time, but I was engaged on work which I considered to be of great importance and I did not expect for a moment that any storm would develop in consequence of this question, and, I am afraid, even if I had known that the storm was going to develop, I should still have felt that the work on which I was engaged was more important than the work of answering this question. Now, Sir, I am very grateful to the Honourable Members opposite who have paid me the compliment of suggesting that anything that I might have said yesterday might possibly have avoided some of the trouble, but I must confess, after reading the questions and answers, I feel that in a way I am very glad that I was not in the House yesterday. I am perfectly certain that I should not have been able to deal with the situation any more effectively than my friend, who sits behind me, and my friend, the Honourable the Leader of the House. They were subjected, Sir, to a very intense bombardment and I think the position they developed before the House was a perfectly reasonable one.

Now, Sir, with reference to what fell from my Honourable friend, Mr. Mitra, and my Honourable friend, Sir Cowasji Jehangir, about the nature of the article, let there be no misunderstanding about that, and, I do not think, if the answers of my Honourable friends are regarded with some fairness, that there could be any misunderstanding. One knows that the tendency of modern journalism all over the world is in the effort to be bright, too often to pass the bounds of good or even reasonable taste, and occasionally I fear, I do not want to insult any of my journalist friends and there are very many honourable exceptions, to lapse into vulgarity. Well, Sir, I think this was one of those cases, and when such lapses occur, they must certainly be deplored. But, Sir, the point of attack on the Government is not the nature of this article, for which the Government are not responsible, but the attitude of the Government in regard to the demand put forward yesterday by the House. I must say, I am very much surprised that we should be asked to take an attitude different from the attitude that was taken up yesterday. Our general policy in regard to the administration of the reserved Provincial subjects is, I think, pretty well appreciated by the House. We are constantly being pressed by certain Honourable Members, particularly, if I may say so, by my Honourable friend, Mr. Lalchand Navalrai, to take an active part in the Provincial administration and that is a tendency which we, in the Home Department, invariably resist. I cannot accept the view put forward by my Honourable friend, Sir Cowasji Jehangir. It is perfectly true that constitutionally the Government of India have the power of superintendence, direction and control in regard to Provincial reserved subjects, but it is perfectly obvious that the administration of this enormous country could not go on if the Government of India were continually interfering in the administration of Provincial subjects.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : I never said that.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : Provincial Governments are, after all, very responsible bodies. They have their Legislative Councils which are very vigilant watchdogs of what they are doing. It is only in the major matters of policy—questions of the treatment of Mr. Gandhi admittedly—questions of that sort—that we have to take an active part. Now, Sir, when these questions arise which we consider fall within the normal administrative powers of a Local Government, so far as I am concerned, I have always refused to take any definite action in the way of interfering with the discretion of a Local Government, and the utmost that we in the Home Department ever care to do is precisely what my Honourable friend, the Leader of the House, agreed to yesterday, and I think it was a very reasonable offer, namely, to communicate the opinions of this House to the Local Government. That is what my Honourable friend, the Leader of the House, agreed to do yesterday and that is precisely what I should have done had I been in my place. It is really a question of the degree of importance that is attached to this article. My Honourable friend, Mr. James, said that he felt there was a certain lack of proportion. I must say the same idea crossed my mind. My Honourable friend, in moving this motion, referred to this as a momentous question. Well, Sir, if I regarded this in any way as a momentous question, I should certainly have referred the matter to the Bombay Government and made some inquiries.

Mr. B. R. Puri : I hope the Honourable Member will pardon me if I interrupt him. I never said that the article itself constituted a momentous question. I said that the momentous question was the indifference of the Government of India.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I am sorry, if I misunderstood the Honourable Member, but even the indifference of the Government of India does not appear to me to be in this case a very momentous question. The point at issue really is whether this is a normal matter of administration. In regard to the control of the Press, our deliberate policy has been for many years to leave these matters to the Local Governments and I would just remind the House that when the Indian Press Act of 1931—I hope my reference to it will not in any way annoy the House—was passed, the powers for dealing with the Press were quite definitely placed in the hands of Local Governments and the intention was that those powers should remain where the Legislature had placed them, and only in very exceptional and unusual cases would the Government of India dream of questioning the discretion of the Local Government. In this particular case, I think, we can safely leave the matter to the Government of Bombay. After all, what was this article ? An article published in a paper in Karachi, an article which would probably never have been noticed in this part of the world at any rate, if it had not been disseminated to some extent by a Delhi newspaper, and had not received the tremendous advertisement which has been given to it by my Honourable friend's question and by this motion in the House this evening. I think, Sir, if the House had been content to leave this article in the obscurity which it deserved, it would have been very much better for all concerned, including, if I may venture to say so, Mr. Gandhi. No one wants any insults to be directed against him ; no one wants writings of this sort to multiply ; but the question of taking legal action is quite a different matter. I am certainly not prepared to make any suggestion to the Bombay Government that any kind of legal action should be taken. I do not think, Sir, there is anything more I need say except to make it quite clear that on the general point which is at issue here as to whether the Government are right in the attitude they have taken towards this question, I have not the smallest doubt that the Government are right and I hope that the House will support us in that decision.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : Sir, before I proceed with my speech, I should like to put one direct question to the Honourable the Home Member and that is this : whether he will be prepared to convey to the Government of Bombay the debate on this adjournment motion along with the questions and supplementary questions which the Honourable the Leader of the House was prepared to convey with a note that great feeling prevailed on this side of the House ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I am perfectly prepared to convey the proceedings of the House, but I do not propose to comment on them.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : My purpose will be served, because, after all, I do not attach so much importance to the Home Member's comment as to the feeling actually exhibited on this side of the House. I admit that not only the Editor of the Daily Gazette ought to be grateful to Mr. Puri for having given him great advertisement by this adjournment motion, but also the Opposition ought to be grateful to the Home Member for having condemned the editorial comments in unmistakable language, which condemnation it was not possible to secure for this side of the House naturally in a series of supplementary questions, because supplementary questions are not exactly a satisfactory method of getting an adequate condemnation from the Government. As the Honourable the Home Member has himself admitted, even if he were present with all the cleverness of a magician that he possesses, he could not have manipulated the situation better than the Honourable gentleman seated behind him. As the Honourable the Leader of the Independent Party has generously pointed out and I associate myself with those observations in the spirit in which he made them, it was a maiden effort on the part of the Honourable Mr. Sloan. But, situated as he is, backing the Home Department of the Government of India, which is, naturally in these political days of upheaval, the widest target for the Opposition Benches, and the manner in which he answered questions for the Department whose mind he is best entitled to interpret in the absence of his Chief, the Opposition obviously felt that it had no other alternative but to go for him in the manner in which it did. Sir, this House is like a tennis court. One side hits as hard as it can the other. Having watched as I did for several months in England, especially in 1929 and 1927 in the stormy days of the House of Commons, I sympathised with the Home Secretary surrounded as he was by angry waves marching from this side of the House until the Leader of the House, out of sheer sportsmanship and sympathy, himself took charge of the situation. I remember a similar occasion in the House of Commons. The Opposition would not permit the President of the Board of Trade to speak and Mr. Baldwin would not go to his rescue for a long time. Ultimately he was compelled. Mr. Sloan's was certainly a maiden effort which reminded me of the maiden speech of Lord Birkenhead in the House of Commons. When Lord Birkenhead made a maiden speech and invited trouble, he was most interrupted. Unfortunately, the Honourable the Home Secretary did not make a maiden speech. It was a maiden endeavour to give a series of answers to unmaiden questions or unready-made answers to unpremeditated supplementary questions. Sir, I congratulate him for having hit back the Opposition without the blushes of a maid. (Laughter.)

Now, I am very grateful to the Honourable the Home Member to have said that no one wants insults to be directed against Mahatma Gandhi as the Karachi newspaper directed. Much as I value the liberty of the Press, I hope newspapers in this country will use that liberty in terms of wholesome restraint. As for the actual aspersion itself, it is fortunate to notice that Mahatma Gandhi has not taken notice of it. It is fortunate also to notice that his numerous admirers in Sind, in Bombay and all over the country have treated the wretched fulmination of an unworthy scribe with the contempt with which the fulmination deserved to be treated. I hope, after hearing the Home Member, we will follow the example of the great Mahatma and his loyal followers out in the country, and, instead of voting upon this issue or pressing it to a division, withdraw the motion and proclaim to the country that we propose to treat this indecent effusion of an irresponsible writer with utter contempt. (Cries of "Hear, hear".) The Opposition Benches cannot always take notice of unworthy effusions in a corner of India.....

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : It is not a corner of India ; it is proposed to be a separate province of India.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : I apologise to my friend. (Laughter.) A separate young province, almost coming into existence, has treated this contemptible effusion with contempt. We will follow Mahatmaji's silent lead which may be summed up in these words :

"Aspersion is the babbler's trade
To listen is to lend him aid."

No more shall we listen to this aspersion, but dismiss it with the scorn which it deserves. My friend, Mr. Puri, has no intention to kill a fly with a Nasmith hammer, but only to raise certain issues and especially to get the condemnation of that kind of article in the Anglo-Indian Press, who seem to have a charter as wide as the wind to blow on whom they like. His object was to get the condemnation of the article in question from the Government and that object has been achieved. I do not think, therefore, that he will proceed, with his great sense of humour and responsibility, to kill a fly with a Nasmith hammer. (Applause.)

Several Honourable Members : The question may now be put.

Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi (Tirhut Division : Muhammadan) : Sir, I rise to say that I agree with the words which the Honourable Sir Cowasji Jehangir just now spoke in connection with this motion. I had thought that we would have some satisfactory reply from the Honourable the Home Member on this point. I do not find that there is any justification for the attitude which the Government have taken now after the appeal which was so eloquently made by Sir Cowasji Jehangir.

As the Honourable the Home Member has himself admitted, the paper had indulged in vulgarity. There is no doubt about it. Everybody here or outside this House, who has read the article, would admit it in the most unequivocal language. But what is the remedy ? Does the remedy lie in merely condemning it here and allowing such vulgarities to pervade this country. I feel very strongly that it is provocative language like this which has created bad blood in India between one community and another. It is the language which sets one community against another. I feel that Government would be well advised in taking serious action against the paper which has committed this wrong. I also feel that if this is not done, it might create bad blood in the country which, I think, the Honourable the Home Member will deplore more than I do. It is not a matter which should be dealt with in a light-hearted way as it is suggested. I would strongly advise the Treasury Benches to ponder over this question and find out some means by which the wrong should be redressed and not allow the paper to go scot-free. Otherwise, it might create serious situation. It is not a matter which should be lightly treated. With these words, I support the motion.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : I am sure, Honourable Members on this side of the House are deeply grateful to the Honourable the Home Member for the statement that he has made, namely, that, in the midst of his multifarious duties of a most onerous kind, he has had time to go through the answers that were given in this House yesterday on this subject. But, I am sure, he has not had time sufficiently at his disposal to go through the questions carefully, because, if he had done so, he would have found that his statement that he agrees with those answers has practically cast a kind of doubt upon the character of the knowledge of English possessed by his colleague, the Leader of the House ; because Sir, the Honourable the Joint Secretary of the Home Department, in one of his replies, stated—I am giving the substance of his reply—that this article would not convey any very serious meaning to anybody who had a good knowledge of English. And it was after that that the Honourable the Leader of the House got up and expressed himself in the manner that he did stating that this was a scurrilous kind of article and that he was going to take the responsibility on behalf of Government, of sending down the questions and the answers to the Bombay Government.

Mr. T. Sloan : May I, in defence of myself, explain that when I answered the question to which Mr. Neogy has referred, I was dealing with the interpretation placed upon the original article, namely, that it meant that the judicial punishment of flogging should be used. It was with reference to that, I explained that the article could not bear that interpretation.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : I am very glad to hear that my Honourable friend is not in disagreement with the Leader of the House, but this is what he said :

> " The Government of India do not propose to call the attention of the Government of Bombay to a reply which explains the obvious meaning of the article."

He thought that it was a satisfactory explanation which the Editor of the Daily Gazette had given in a subsequent issue and nothing need be done. That, seemed to be his attitude. However, Sir, addressing myself to the constitutional issue that has been raised in this House, I am again very much doubtful as to whether the Honourable the Home Member has gone carefully through the answers that were given in the House yesterday, because if he had done so, he would have found that there was a question put to the Joint Secretary of the Home Department as to whether any action was contemplated against the National Call which is published in Delhi and which admittedly gave the widest publicity to this particular article. The Honourable the Joint Secretary stated :

> " Whether the Daily Gazette of Karachi reaches Delhi or not, I cannot say, but the article was substantially reproduced in the National Call which, I understand ", —well, Sir, as the representative of the Home Department, he is under some doubt about it,—

> " which I understand is published in Delhi ".

The next question from me was :

> " Was any action contemplated against the National Call by the Government of India ? "

The answer was :

> " No, Sir."

Now, Sir, as regards this particular point, I am addressing the Local Government for the Delhi Province today in this House which is the Local Legislature for the Delhi Province. I want to know from the Honourable the Home Member as to whether it is not quite incumbent upon the Government of the Delhi Province, for which he is himself directly responsible, to take the necessary legal action in matters of this kind. What did we find ? The Government said that they had not taken care to obtain even legal opinion in the matter although the Joint Secretary of the Home Department stated that this had been published in a paper which has got a wide circulation in the Delhi Province.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : The Honourable Member seems to be under some misapprehension as to the relations between the Government of India and the Chief Commissioner of Delhi. We do not directly administer the Province of Delhi, the primary administration is carried on by the Chief Commissioner. I admit, Sir, that we answer questions in this House and keep a much closer watch on the affairs of the Delhi Province than we do on those provinces which have their own Legislatures ; but with regard to the National Call, I do not understand why we should take any action. Our general position is that we do not attach any particular importance to this article and it is entirely in accordance with that that we do not consider it necessary to initiate any action with regard to the National Call.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : The Honourable the Home Member has not obliged this House with an explanation as to the nature of relation that subsists between the Government of India and the Delhi Province beyond stating that the Chief Commissioner is primarily responsible. But I want the Honourable Member to tell this House as to whether the administration of Delhi is on the same constitutional footing as the Government of any provincial administration in India.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I have just explained to the House and I do not want to weary the House by saying it again that that is not so.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : I take it that it is not merely courtesy that prompts my Honourable friend to answer questions that are put by Honourable Members on this side of the House regarding the administration of Delhi. There is something constitutional about it which gives this House the right to discuss affairs of the Delhi Province.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I have just explained that the reason is that the Delhi Province has no Legislature of its own.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Therefore, I say, this is the Local Legislature for the Delhi Province, and, I take it, the Government of India is the Local Government of the Delhi Province, the only Government which we can address in regard to matters concerning the Delhi Province and the only Government which is responsible for replying to our questions and our criticisms in regard to the Delhi Province. Now, Sir, the Delhi Province is described as a centrally administered area and my Honourable friend would perhaps care to explain what that means. However, Sir, that is rather a minor point. I am very much interested to hear from my Honourable friend that the reason why the Government of India did not think of taking any legal action or even taking any legal opinion, let alone any legal action, was that they did not attach any weight to this article. Now, Sir, it is a very serious question. We, I claim, are the people who can say what effect such an article is likely to produce upon the Indian people, and not the Government of India, not even the Home Member.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : Then, I hope, Sir, the Honourable Member will agree to put this matter to the vote of the House.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : The Honourable Member's strength in making that statement lies in the knowledge of the extent to which his Government has succeeded in demoralising this House.

Now, Sir, I turn to another gentleman who spoke of this constitutional issue. My Honourable friend, Mr. James, from Madras, thinks that this is such a trivial matter or perhaps that this is so peculiarly a provincial matter that we are not justified in bringing this up for discussion in this House. May I remind.....

Mr. F. E. James : I did not say anything of the kind. I merely said that I thought there was no justification for the exercise by the Government of India of their power of superintendence, direction and control. This is a very different thing.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : My Honourable friend referred to the sensitiveness of the Provincial Governments, and, I take it, his point was that that sensitiveness would be hurt if this Legislature were to say anything with regard to the indifference of the Bombay Government in this matter. Sir, may I remind my Honourable friend that it was exactly a year ago that he was responsible for moving an adjournment of this House and that was for drawing attention to the attempted assassination of the Editor of the Statesman in Calcutta ?

Mr. F. E. James : May I again rise to interrupt my Honourable friend ? I am sorry to interrupt him, but that adjournment motion was moved by my Honourable friend, Mr. George Morgan, with reference to an attack on the life of Sir Alfred Watson following on a dastardly outrage at Chittagong where several people lost their lives. I suggest to my Honourable friend, as he has raised this question, that looking at the two things from their proper standpoint and perspective, there is a great deal of difference between the one and the other.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : My Honourable friend will at once see my point if he will permit me to proceed, I am glad to be corrected that it was not he who moved the motion, but that it was my Honourable friend from Bengal. But he spoke in support of that motion as far as I remember.

Now, Sir, my point is this. Supposing, as a result of this provocation, a similarly dastardly outrage,—God forbid,—were to happen and a hot-headed youth were to take similar action in Karachi, my Honourable friend would be the first to move this House by way of an adjournment motion. That certainly would be in order according to my Honourable friend and his friends sitting on those Benches. What we are doing is to try and seek the aid of Government to prevent such a contingency arising ; we are anxious to prevent bad blood being created. There is enough of it already and more bad blood.....

Mr. F. E. James : I am sorry to interrupt my Honourable friend, but may I ask him a direct question ? Why did he not make that attempt two years ago ? It might have prevented many of the outrages happening in Bengal ?

Why did not my friend take the same attitude with regard to the Press in Bengal as he is now taking with regard to a stupid article in a very small paper ?

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Why did not my friend himself suggest action to be taken against the Statesman for inciting a reign of Black and Tan in Bengal which directly led to certain outrages on Indians in Chittagong ? My Honourable friend should, before he gets up to interrupt me, examine the strength of his own case.

Now, Sir, as I was saying, our attempt is to prevent bad blood being increased between the two communities and we want the assistance of Government in this matter, so that, by any effective action taken in cases of this character, they may demonstrate to the country that they were not sleeping over such matters merely because they relate to the Anglo-Indian Press and not to the Indian Press. Sir, I do hope the object of this adjournment motion will not be misunderstood on the other side. What we say is that Government should take the necessary action in this matter after consulting their legal advisers so that more bad blood may not be created and outrages may be prevented of the character that took place unfortunately in Calcutta only a year ago.

Mr. F. E. James : You are a bit late in the day.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Sir, I do not think I need deal with any other point referred to by the Honourable the Home Member. After more or less half-heartedly condemning the article, he said that the question of taking legal action was a quite different matter. I should like the Honourable Member to get up and say as to why it is quite a different matter. Why is mere half-hearted condemnation considered by Government to be sufficient in this matter, and why is not legal action contemplated ? Why should not legal action be taken, for instance, against the newspaper which is published in Delhi and which gave the widest publicity to this scurrilous article ?

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad (Patna and Chota Nagpur cum Orissa : Muhammadan) : Sir, I am very sorry to say that now-a-days the attitude of Government is very unsatisfactory and condemnable. What we find now-a-days in replies to our questions is that the Government Members do not show us even the courtesy of reading the articles referred to in our questions. Even when letters referred to in our questions are with their subordinates, they do not take the trouble of reading them. What happens is that the Railway Department acts like Sir Thomas Ryan's Department, i.e., the Postal Department and my Honourable friend, Mr. Rau, says that he will send the question to the Agent and then he writes to the Agent that there is no need of any reply from him and he may take any action he likes. Then there is the Education, Health and Lands Department which does not want to do the duties of the Postal Department and does not take even the trouble to send these questions to the Local Governments. The Honourable the Finance Member and the Army Secretary are in reserved compartments, while the Political Department is a secret society. In the Home Department, Sir, there is perfect home rule. This is the attitude of Government now-a-days. I want to warn Government that this is the attitude which is responsible for all these terrorist activities (Applause) in the country as proved by what happened a year or two ago in Calcutta. Then an attempt was made on the life of an editor. This attitude works in the minds of the young men, but this side has always condemned these ideas. But when it is a case of Anglo-Indian papers, Government do not want to take any action against them.

I want to ask them, what is the harm if you bring a case against the Anglo-Indian papers ? They will be punished with a fine of Rs. 500 or Rs. 1,000. You can repay them those thousand rupees by way of advertisements. (Laughter.) You are always giving those advertisements to those papers and, so, what is the harm ? You will get something from them from one pocket and put it back in another in another way. (Hear, hear.) What is the harm in bringing cases against these papers ?

Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury (Bengal : Landholders) : That is a nice way of balancing the budget.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : That is a homely affair of the Home Department.

This is an all-India question. I have great respect for Mahatmaji. I put a question yesterday to my Honourable friend, sitting just behind the Home Member, and it was " I want to know whether Government are aware that these articles have injured the feelings of people who live in the area administered by the Central Government ". It was a very simple question ; and what was the reply to it ? It should merely have been that the Government are aware that those feelings had been injured. But, no. The same attitude, which the Government took in replying to Mahatmaji, in reply to his telegram—no—was shown : the Joint Secretary said : " The Government are not aware of the feelings of all the people who have read this article." It is quite strange that, after so many supplementary questions, which were put here, they should say that they were not aware of this fact. When he was asked by Sir Cowasji Jehangir whether the Government were now prepared to consider this question, what was the harm in saying : " Yes ; Government are prepared now, after seeing the feelings of the House, to consult the Law Member." But, no. Government do not propose even to consult the Law Member. Certainly this is an attitude of the Government which we should all censure. We cannot encourage this sort of reply. Sir, had this article been issued only in those areas, which were under Local Governments, they would have been right in saying that they were sending this article and these questions and answers to the Local Governments. But that is not the case. That article was published in Delhi as well and the attention of the Government was drawn to this fact as well. When this article had been published in areas administered by the Central Government and there is no Council there, the people of those areas cannot bring those facts to the notice of the Home Member ; and so we brought this matter to his notice ; but even then the Government did not propose to take any action. I ask Government, if they are not even prepared to show this much courtesy that such articles, which injure the feelings of thousands and millions in India, and which may endanger the peace of the country, should be placed before the Court ; are they not prepared to place it even before the Law Member and to consult him ? The reply is that they are not prepared to do anything. They always say : " Trust us ; we will do everything ". Take the case of the Reserve Bank Bill. They say " Trust us "; " We are doing this, that and the other ". But mere promises cannot do anything. When I see their practice, how they work these things, I find that everything is quite different. They do not even care for our feelings.

Sir, certainly I hope my Honourable friend will remember the words expressed by Lord Irwin and by other great men of Great Britain about Mahatmaji. With all the differences with Mahatmaji, I do not hesitate in saying that he is a great man ; he is respected not only by Hindus, he is respected by all in India. He is not respected by Indians only : rather the world respects him. He is an old man. He is a religious man. When for such articles written against such a man the Government are not prepared to take any action, their case is indefensible. Certainly this attitude of the Government is shameful and condemnable. (Applause.)

Apart from the attitude of the Government, I will ask my friend that so far as the attitude of my Honourable friend, the Joint Secretary, is concerned, we must consider that after all he was a new man here and he had opened his lips, as far as I remember, for the first time in this Assembly ; and, so anything which would have been said loosely by him, we should not take it very seriously. (Laughter.) But so far as the attitude of Government is concerned, certainly the attitude of Government is condemnable. Today also I found a speech from my Honourable friend, Mr. Sarma. He is the habitual supporter of the Government (Laughter), and so we should not take any notice of him. (Laughter.) There are men amongst us as well who sit on the opposite side and who have voted against the question of the mosque in Delhi. The mosque was called the Kucha Rahman Mosque. As those Members who are Nominated Members, we should not take them seriously. (Laughter.) After all, we represent here our constituencies and they represent their constituencies. (Loud Laughter.) They also have got, after all, a constituency which nominate them. Certainly it is their duty to satisfy their constituency. If I do not satisfy my constituency, certainly when I go out, they will come down upon me and say : " You did not represent us well ". The same is the case with Mr. Sarma : if he had not made this speech, the Department which has nominated him can ask him : " Why did you not support us when we have nominated you ? " (Loud Laughter.)

[Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad.]

Just now, I heard my Honourable friend, the Home Member, say that votes should be taken on this subject. For the first time in the tenure of his office, I am sorry to see that he has lost his temper. I have never before seen him losing it. He always gives replies, some time laugbing and some time with a smiling face. He always attempts to satisfy the House ; but I am surprised to see what forced him to stand and say : " Very well, come and decide this question by vote ". (Laughter.).....

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : Why are we debating ? What is the object of our debate ?

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : It means that my Honourable friend also wanted to satisfy his constituency. (Laughter.)

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Order, order. The House now stands adjourned till Eleven O'clock tomorrow.

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Wednesday, the 13th September, 1933.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Wednesday, 13th September, 1933.

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber at Eleven of the Clock, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

MUSLIMS APPOINTED IN THE MUSSOORIE HEAD AND SUB-POST OFFICES IN THE INFERIOR CADRE.

882. Lieut. Nawab Muhammad Ibrahim Ali Khan : With reference to the reply to my question No. 7, dated the 22nd August last, will Government be pleased to let the House have the information regarding the number of Muslims appointed in the Mussoorie Head and Sub-Post-Offices in the inferior cadre, during the years 1931, 1932 and 1933, in officiating and permanent vacancies ? If the information be not available as yet, when may it be expected ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : No permanent appointment was made in the Head Post Office and the Sub-Post Offices at Mussoorie in the inferior cadre, during the years 1931, 1932 and 1933. Nine Muslims were engaged in seasonal appointments during the period, two in 1932 and seven in 1933.

COMMITTEES FORMED IN CONNECTION WITH CONSTITUTIONAL REFORMS.

883. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Will Government be pleased to state the names of the Committees which were formed in connection with the constitutional reforms and in which not a single non-Muslim was appointed and the names of the Committees in which not a single Muslim was appointed ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : Since 1930 there have been three Committees to which no representative of the Muslim Community was appointed, namely

(1) Sind Financial Enquiry Committee (1931).
(2) Orissa Committee (1931-1932).
(3) Orissa Committee (1933).

No. (1) was purely an expert official Committee to which no Indian, Muslim or non-Muslim, was appointed.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : What is the reply to the second part of the question, Sir, in which it is stated that not a single non-Muslim was appointed to any of these Committees.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : The Sind Financial Inquiry Committee, Sir.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Was that Committee composed of Muslims only ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : Sir, I have just now stated that that was a Committee to which neither Muslims nor non-Muslims (I mean Indians) were appointed. It was a purely official Committee.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : If these officials were neither Muslims nor non-Muslims, then what they were ?

HOURS OF DUTY OF RAILWAY MAIL SERVICE SORTERS.

884. Mr. B. N. Misra : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the weekly hours of duty worked by the Railway Mail Service sorters working (i) in Mail Offices, (ii) in Sections (running trains) during :

(A) day time, (B) combined day and night time and (C) night time ?

(b) Is the attendance of the sorters on the platform or in the mail van before the departure of the train from a railway station counted as duty ?

(c) Is any provision made for the time spent by the sorters in handing over charge to a mail agent or other set at a terminal or changing station ?

(d) Is the time spent by the sorters working in sections at Record Offices in order to prepare the work-papers for the next trip and on other duties counted in their weekly hours of duty ?

(e) If the reply to parts (b) to (d) be in the negative, will Government please state why the time of the sorters which is spent in performing official duties mentioned above is ignored ?

(f) Do Government propose to take these duties into consideration in calculating the duty hours of sorters ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Though Government have not definitely fixed the weekly working hours of sorters in the Railway Mail Service Mail offices, the following standards are usually followed as a rough guide in actual practice :

For wholly day work—not exceeding 56 hours.

For wholly night work—not exceeding 42 hours.

For work partly by day and partly by night—varying between 42 and 56 hours.

As regards the weekly working hours of the sorters of Railway Mail Service working in running sections, the Honourable Member's attention is invited to the reply to part (c) of Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen's starred question No. 1211 in this House on the 10th April, 1933.

(b), (c) and (d). No. The weekly working hours referred to in the latter part of the reply to (a) above are exclusively for work done by sorters in the running van.

(e) and (f). The standards laid down for the weekly working hours of sorters in running sections are so liberal that Government do not consider it necessary to make any separate allowance for the duties referred to by the Honourable Member.

INTERNATIONAL POSTAL CONFERENCE TO BE HELD AT CAIRO.

885. Mr. B. N. Misra : (a) Is it a fact that an International Postal Conference will be held shortly at Cairo (Egypt) and that some Postal officers from India will represent Government at that Conference ?

(b) Is it a fact that the proceedings of the Conference will be conducted in the French language and that for that purpose the knowledge of the French language is essential for the Indian delegates who will attend the Conference ?

(c) If the replies to parts (a) and (b) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the names of the Postal officers selected for the Conference from India, stating whether each and every member of the delegation is fully qualified in the French language to take proper part in the deliberations of the Conference ?

(d) Do Government propose to select suitable officers having knowledge of French and Foreign Postal Work ?

(e) Will Government please state what will be the approximate expenditure on account of the delegation ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Yes.

(b) At previous International Postal Conferences the formal proceedings were conducted in French. At the last International Telegraph and Radio Telegraph Conference, however, it was decided that the proceedings should be conducted both in French and English, and it is possible that the same procedure will be followed at the forthcoming Postal Conference also. In any case, much of the discussion in which delegates take part is conducted in English, and an expert knowledge of French can hardly be regarded as essential, though knowledge of that language is very desirable.

(c) and (d). The names of the officers selected are :

(1) Rai Bahadur P. N. Mukerji, C.B.E., M.A.,

(2) Rai Bahadur S. C. Gupta, M.A.,

(3) Mr. Mohamed Al Hasan, B.A.

Rai Bahadur P. N. Mukerji has already attended two previous International Postal Congresses. Rai Bahadur S. C. Gupta has been doing the preliminary work in connection with the forthcoming Congress. Both these officers are familiar with foreign post work and possess a working knowledge of French.

Mr. Mohamed Al Hasan is an experienced postal officer, who, it is believed will also prove a valuable member of the delegation though he has not specialised in foreign post work. He is expected to have a sufficient knowledge of French by the time he attends the Conference.

All three officers are considered quite suitable to represent India at the Congress.

(e) About Rs. 45,600.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Can we not insist on the Conference to follow the example of the League of Nations, where the speeches are permitted to be made in English or in French, and they are immediately translated. May I, therefore, request the Government to consider this fact ; and

I may further point out that a person who has a little knowledge if French will never be able to acquire sufficient command over French language so as to be able to take part in proceedings and make speeches. It is not an easy matter to understand speeches in French when they are made by Frenchmen and then to reply to those speeches in French ; and it is exceedingly difficult for any Indian to acquire such a thorough knowledge of French, and I would, therefore, request the Honourable Member in charge to consider this fact carefully and to press that the example of the League of Nations should be followed in all these Conferences and the proceedings should be conducted both in English and in French. We should press that this should be made a necessary condition for our participation.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I am very glad the point has been raised by the Honourable Member, but I would point out to him that this is a Congress of all the nations of the world, and I very much doubt whether a single Government is in a position to influence the authorities concerned as to the way in which the proceedings of the Congress should be conducted.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : But the League of Nations is just in the same position. They represent 57 nations, and the only languages recognised there are French and English. That is a good example and we ought to insist on all Congresses and Conferences to follow the example of the League of Nations.

DUTIES OF THE HEAD CLERK TO A SUPERINTENDENT OF POST OFFICES.

886. Mr. B. N. Misra : (a) Is the Head Clerk to a Superintendent of Post Offices an investigating officer ?

(b) Is it any part of his duties to conduct enquiries into any case of the Department ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) and (b). Although the Head Clerk of a Superintendent of Post Offices is not usually regarded as an investigating officer, he may, in certain conditions, be required to make inquiries into departmental cases.

OFFICE BEARERS OF POSTAL UNIONS.

887. Mr. B. N. Misra : (a) Will Government please state whether there are any orders forbidding Postal Officials to become members and office bearers of their Unions ?

(b) Are Government aware of the impression that such office-bearers of Unions are penalized by transfer and other means for their holding such appointments ?

(c) If the replies to parts (a) and (b) above be in the negative, do Government propose to enquire into the case of the transfer of the Secretary, Bahawalpur Posts and Telegraphs Hindu Union (Mr. Dharam Chand) from Bahawalpur to Jampur in the Dera Ghazi Khan District ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) There are no orders forbidding postal officials to join or become office bearers of any Union, membership of which is not opposed to the Government Servants' Conduct Rules. The question is however under consideration whether gazetted officers should be allowed to be office bearers in associations composed mainly of subordinate staff.

(b) No.

(c) Government do not propose to make enquiries as the matter is within the competence of the Head of the Postal Circle concerned to whom a copy of the question is being sent.

RESERVATION OF SEATS FOR SOLDIERS IN THE ARMY HEADQUARTERS.

888. Mr. Muhammad Azhar Ali : (a) Will Government please state whether it is a fact that a Home Department circular laid down " that it has now been decided in consultation with the Army Department that 25 per cent. of the clerical staff in the Army and Royal Air Force Headquarters, hitherto reserved for soldiers and ex-soldiers, should in future include lady clerks as well " ?

(b) Is it open under that circular for any branch of the Army Headquarters to interpret the circular to mean that the 25 per cent. posts reserved for soldiers and ex-soldiers shall be confined to the upper grade and not spread over the entire clerical staff ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) Yes.

(b) The 25 per cent. applies to Army Headquarters as a whole and not to any particular grade in any particular Branch. In practice however the men are divided between the first and second Divisions.

SOLDIERS HOLDING UPPER DIVISION APPOINTMENTS IN THE ARMY HEADQUARTERS.

889. Mr. Muhammad Azhar Ali : (a) Will Government please lay on the table a statement showing the percentage of soldiers or ex-soldiers holding upper grade appointments in the various branches of the Army Headquarters ?

(b) Is it a fact that in the Adjutant General's Branch an Office Order has been issued reserving 25 out of 36 upper grade appointments for soldiers and ex-soldiers ? If so, how do Government reconcile this order with their circular that 25 per cent. of the reservation shall be in respect of all clerical appointments ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) A statement is laid on the table.

(b) The reply to the first portion of the question is in the affirmative.

As explained in the answer to the previous question, there is no order laying down the percentage of soldiers, ex-soldiers and lady clerks to be employed in each Branch or grade. They are employed in accordance with the administrative requirements subject to the condition that their number does not exceed 25 per cent. of the total clerical strength of Army and Royal Air Force Headquarters as a whole.

UNQUALIFIED PERSONS PROMOTED TO UPPER DIVISION IN THE ARMY HEADQUARTERS.

890. Mr. Muhammad Azhar Ali: (a) Will Government please lay on the table a statement showing the number of unqualified persons promoted to the Upper Division since the Public Service Commission authorised the Departments to make such promotions?

(b) How many of such promotions were made in respect of soldiers and ex-soldiers and how many in respect of Indian employees?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig: The information asked for is being collected and will be laid on the table in due course.

APPLICATIONS RECEIVED FROM ASSESSEES IN SIND FOR TRANSFER OF THEIR ASSESSMENT.

891. Mr. Lalchand Navalrai: Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing for each of the three years 1930-31, 1931-32 and 1932-33 the number of applications received from assessees in Sind for transfer of their assessments under the provisions of section 64 of the Income-tax Act and the number in which transfers were refused?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster: A statement is laid on the table.

AMENDMENT OF SECTION 64 OF THE INDIAN INCOME-TAX ACT.

892. Mr. Lalchand Navalrai: (a) Will Government be pleased to state if they have received any representations for amending section 64 of the Income-tax Act?

(b) If so, will Government be pleased to state the nature of the representations so far made and the action so far taken or proposed to be taken in response to such representations?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster: The Government have received one such representation. It suggested that provision should be made that a party concerned should be given a hearing before the Commissioner gives a decision under the section. As in practice an applicant can always have a hearing and as in the case mentioned by the person who made the representation it was clear that he had put his case to the Commissioner before orders were passed, the Government saw no occasion for any action.

INCOME-TAX AND ASSISTANT INCOME-TAX OFFICERS APPOINTED IN BENGAL.

893. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen: Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing the total number of Income-tax Officers and Assistant Income-tax Officers appointed since April, 1922, to date in the Income-tax Department of Bengal?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster: Twelve Income-tax Officers and fifteen Assistant Income-tax Officers have been appointed in the Income-tax Department, Bengal, since April, 1922.

OFFICERS DISCHARGED FOR FAILURE TO PASS DEPARTMENTAL EXAMINATION IN THE INCOME-TAX DEPARTMENT IN BENGAL.

894. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : (a) Will Government be pleased to lay a statement on the table showing the total number of officers (gazetted) discharged for failure to pass the departmental examination from April, 1922, upto date and the total amount of salary paid to the discharged officers during the tenure of their service, in the Income-tax Department, Bengal ?

(b) Has any officer been confirmed during the said period, though he could not pass completely the departmental examination ?

(c) How many Examiners of Accounts have been confirmed after having passed the Departmental Examination in due course within two years during the said period ?

(d) How many Examiners of Accounts have been confirmed with grace chances after two years and how many have been confirmed, though they could not pass the departmental examination completely, in spite of grace chances having been allowed to them ?

(e) How many Examiners of Accounts have been discharged for failure to pass the departmental examination during the said period ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) and (c). About six gazetted officers have been so discharged in the period named but the exact figure cannot be given without going through the records. As for the amounts of salary paid to them while in service, the answer to this, as also to part (c) of this question, is that the compilation of the information asked for would involve an expenditure of time and labour which would be incommensurate with the value of the results secured.

(b) No.

(d) Exact particulars could only be given at the cost of excessive labour, but the number is approximately six.

(e) None.

INCOME-TAX DEPARTMENT IN BENGAL.

895. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : (a) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a complete list showing the names of officers (gazetted) in the Income-tax Department in Bengal, who died in active service, and their respective age and lengths of service in this Department at the time of their death from April, 1922, till now ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing the percentage of discharged officers, and the percentage of death rate of officers separately, compared with the total sanctioned strength of Income-tax Officers in Bengal during this period ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a list showing the names and length of service of officers who have recently been retrenched on the ground of economy in the Income-tax Department of Bengal ?

(d) Is it a fact that the very same Government of India letter of June, 1933, which conveyed the sanction for retrenchment of seven officers, also conveyed the sanction for appointment of seven Examiners of Accounts to replace the seven retrenched officers with a view to curtailment of expenditure ?

(e) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a detailed statement showing the total amount of annual saving that they have in mind to effect by replacing the seven retrenched officers by seven newly appointed Examiners of Accounts after paying bonus, pension and earned leave pay for the retrenched officers ?

(f) Will Government be pleased to state the estimated additional expenditure that Government have to meet monthly from May, 1933, as a result of the reduction of ten per cent. cut to 5 per cent. in the pay of the whole force of the Income-tax Department of Bengal ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) and (c). Two statements are laid on the table.

(b) The number of discharged gazetted officers was seven, (four Income-tax Officers and three Assistant Income-tax Officers). At the time, the sanctioned strength of Income-tax Officers was 35 ; the total number of gazetted officers was 62, out of a sanctioned strength of 66, two posts being vacant and two having been surrendered to correspond with an increase by two in the number of Examiners, in accordance with the programme of gradual absorption adopted in 1927. The total number of deaths of gazetted officers of all grades has already been given and may be compared with the sanctioned strength already given.

(d) Yes.

(e) Exact figures as to bonus, pension and leave pay of the retrenched officers are not yet available, but the approximate figures are—for pension, Rs. 915 monthly and for gratuities, Rs. 18,750. The annual saving in pay on account of replacement of the seven retrenched officers by Examiners of Accounts is Rs. 23,332 on average cost basis.

(f) Rs. 53,000 approximately.

SAVING EFFECTED BY THE RETRENCHMENT OF SEVEN OFFICERS IN THE INCOME-TAX DEPARTMENT, BENGAL.

896. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen: Will Government be pleased to place on the table a statement showing :

(i) the total receipts in 1932-33 ;

(ii) the total expenditure in 1932-33 ;

(iii) the ratio of expenditure to receipts in 1932-33 ; and

(iv) the ratio of savings to total expenditure that Government have in mind to effect by the retrenchment of the above-noted seven officers in the Income-tax Department, Bengal ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster: I presume the question refers to the Bengal Income-tax Department. If so, the answers are :

(i) Rs. 428½ lakhs.

(ii) Rs. 11½ lakhs.

(iii) 2.6 per cent.

(iv) The saving due to the abolition of seven posts of Income-tax Officers referred to in the previous question will be on the average cost basis, 2.5 per cent. of the total expenditure in the Bengal Income-tax Department.

RETRENCHMENT IN THE INCOME-TAX DEPARTMENT, BENGAL.

897. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen: (a) Is it a fact that the General Purposes Sub-Committee of the Retrenchment Advisory Committee recommended (vide page 12 of Part I of the Report) the abolition of the two highly paid posts of Assistant Commissioners of Income-tax in Calcutta ? If so, have they been abolished ? If not, why not ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state the number of additional Income-tax Officers who have been working or who have worked after confirmation in the Department without any powers like examiners on account of their inefficiency and the period during which they are having no such powers ?

(c) Has any of these additional Income-tax Officers, who have been working or who have worked without powers been retrenched on account of their incompetency and inefficiency ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster: (a) Yes. The posts have not been abolished. The pay of the posts was reduced to Rs. 1,000—100—1,500 with a special pay of Rs. 250 in 1927, but as the present incumbents were holding the posts before 1927, they are drawing the old scale of Rs. 1,500—100—2,000. The revised scale will be introduced as they retire. It is not part of the Government policy of retrenchment to discharge officers and replace them by officers of the same grade but on lower rates of pay.

(b) No additional Income-tax Officers are working without statutory powers on grounds of inefficiency. Certain officers are working without powers for reasons of departmental convenience.

(c) Does not arise.

RELEASE OF PERSONS DETAINED IN JAILS FOR INDEFINITE PERIODS.

898. Shaikh Sadiq Hasan: Are Government aware that a peaceful atmosphere prevails at present throughout the country, and if so, are they prepared to consider the possibilities of releasing those persons who have been detained in jails for indefinite long periods ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig: With regard to the first part of the question I should prefer not to generalise. With regard to the second part, I presume the Honourable Member refers to State Prisoners detained under Regulation III of 1818. Their cases are reviewed from time to time in order to determine whether the orders for detention should continue in force or be modified.

REPRESENTATIONS TO GOVERNMENT OF MR. AZIZ HINDI, A STATE PRISONER.

899. Shaikh Sadiq Hasan: (a) Is it a fact that a State Prisoner has often to wait for a considerable period of three to four months for a reply from Government to his representations ?

(b) Is it a fact that Mr. Aziz Hindi, a State Prisoner, does not often get a reply to his representations made to Government ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state what avenues are open to a State Prisoner if he feels that he is not being treated fairly and squarely at the hands of the authorities ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig: (a) and (b). I am not aware of any avoidable delays in disposing of representations by a State Prisoner, or of any instance in which a reply has not been sent to Mr. Aziz Hindi's representations.

(c) I would draw the Honourable Member's attention to the provisions of section 5 of Regulation III of 1818 from which he will observe that every representation which a State Prisoner may be desirous of making is forwarded to and dealt with by the Governor General in Council.

WELFARE SCHEME ON THE EAST INDIAN AND EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAYS.

900 Mr. E. H. M. Bower: (a) Is it a fact that there are welfare schemes on the East Indian and Eastern Bengal Railways for the benefit of the subordinate staff ?

(b) If the answer to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government please state whether the staff of the Accounts Department of these Railways participate in the benefits of these welfare schemes ?

(c) If the reply to part (b) be in the negative, will Government please state what provisions there are for the staff of the Accounts Department to receive welfare relief in accordance with the policy operating on those Railways ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I presume the Honourable Member is referring to the Staff Benefit Fund. If so, the reply to part (a) is in the affirmative. As regards part (b), I am not aware of any rule which prevents the Accounts Department from sharing in the benefits of the schemes. Part (c) does not arise.

SUSPENSION OF EMPLOYEES OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY, ACCUSED OF AN OFFENCE UNDER THE INDIAN PENAL CODE BUT RELEASED ON BAIL.

901. Mr. E. H. M. Bower : (a) Is there any rule that when a subordinate employee on the East Indian Railway is accused of an offence against the Indian Penal Code and is released on bail pending trial, the accused employee is placed under suspension till such time as a competent court pronounces judgment ?

(b) If the answer to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government please state whether the same procedure is applied in the case of the gazetted officers of the East Indian Railway ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) The rule is that any person whose conduct is undergoing investigation on a serious charge shall be placed under suspension until his case has been decided by the competent authority.

(b) I am not aware of any case in which this rule has been disregarded in the case of gazetted officers by the East Indian Railway.

CERTAIN POSTS IN THE RATES AND CLAIMS OFFICES OF THE COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

902. Mr. E. H. M. Bower : (a) Is it a fact that the Rates and Claims offices of the Commercial Department of the East Indian Railway are considered as one unit for the demotion of subordinate staff ?

(b) Are they also considered as one unit for the promotion of the subordinate staff ?

(c) Are the subordinate posts in these offices inter-changeable, e.g., can the services of a Rates Clerk be utilised as a Claims Clerk and vice versa ?

(d) Is it a fact that there are five subordinate posts in these two offices of the Commercial Department in the cadre of Rs. 400—500 ?

(e) Will Government please state :

(i) the names of the five substantive incumbents of these five posts ;

(ii) the dates on which they were appointed to these posts ;

(iii) their substantive salaries ;

(iv) whether they are actually performing the specific duties of their posts ;

(v) whether any of these five posts are at present filled by officiating incumbents ; and

(vi) the names and substantive salaries of such officiating incumbents ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) to (e). Government have no information. These questions are all within the competence of the Agent to decide.

RULES FOR DETERMINATION OF SENIORITY OF THE SUBORDINATE STAFF ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

903. Mr. E. H. M. Bower : (a) Is it a fact :

(i) that the Agent of the East Indian Railway has circularised rules for determining the seniority of the subordinate staff ;

(ii) that no definite rules have been framed regarding the seniority of officiating Transportation Inspectors ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state how seniority is to be decided in the case of subordinates who officiate in the Transportation Inspectors' grade ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no information, but have sent a copy of this question to the Agent, East Indian Railway, for any action necessary.

PROVISION OF FACILITIES TO ACCUSED SUBORDINATES IN DEPARTMENTAL ENQUIRIES ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

904. Mr. E. H. M. Bower : (a) Is it a fact that the rules governing departmental enquiries on the East Indian Railway do not make any provision

(i) for the recording of the evidence of witnesses by the accused subordinates,

(ii) for copies of the evidence and the findings of the enquiry being supplied to the accused subordinate ?

(b) Do Government propose either to grant facilities to the accused subordinate to record the evidence or supply him with copies of the same and the finding of the enquiry ? If not, why not ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : With your permission, Sir, I propose to reply to questions Nos. 904, 905 and 906, together. Rules were issued in 1930 under the authority of the Government of India regulating the discharge and dismissal of State Railway non-gazetted Government servants. These apply to all State-managed Railways : they provide for a departmental enquiry when it is considered that the offence with which an employee is charged is likely to lead to his dismissal. At this enquiry it is laid down that a definite charge in writing shall be framed in respect of each offence and explained to the employee, and the evidence in support of it, as well as his defence, along with any evidence which he may adduce in his defence, shall be recorded in his presence, provided that, for special reasons to be recorded, the evidence of any witness may be taken and recorded otherwise than in the presence of the employee. Copies of relevant documents, which in the opinion of the officer or the committee making an enquiry will be of assistance to the employee in the conduct of his defence, should be supplied at his request. The Agents are empowered to make subsidiary rules for the purpose of giving effect to the provisions of these rules, but not to alter the main provisions and Government have no reason to believe that they are disregarded on the two Railways mentioned by the Honourable Member.

PROVISION OF FACILITIES TO ACCUSED SUBORDINATES IN DEPARTMENTAL ENQUIRIES ON THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.

†905. Mr. E. H. M. Bower : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether rules exist on the Eastern Bengal Railway for the conduct and procedure of departmental enquiries in which a subordinate employee is the accused ?

(b) Is the accused subordinate at such enquiries permitted to cross-examine witnesses ?

(c) Is he permitted to record the evidence of witnesses ?

(d) If the answer to part (c) be in the negative, is the accused provided with copies of the evidence and the finding of the enquiry ?

(e) Do Government propose to issue orders to the Railway authorities concerned to provide facilities to accused subordinates ? If not, why not ?

RULES GOVERNING DEPARTMENTAL ENQUIRIES ON STATE RAILWAYS.

†906. Mr. E. H. M. Bower : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether there is a common set of rules governing departmental enquiries on State Railways ?

(b) If so, are those rules followed by all the five State Railways ?

(c) If the answer to part (b) be in the negative, do Government propose to issue instructions tc Agents of Railways to adhere to these rules in all such cases ?

PROCESSION ON THE EKADASI DAY IN SHAHDARA, DELHI.

907. Bhai Parma Nand : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if it is not a fact that the Hindus of Shahdara (Delhi) have been holding a procession on the Ekadasi day every year from very ancient times ?

(b) Is it not a fact that up till this year, no restriction was placed on that procession ?

(c) Is it a fact that this year, the local authorities have laid down a condition, forbidding the Hindus to play music before the mosques ?

(d) Is it also a fact that as a protest the Hindus of Shahdara have given up the holding of the procession and as a result great discontent prevails among them ? If so, who is responsible for this innovation and consequent discontent ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) Yes.

(b), (c) and (d). In 1932 the Muhammadans of Shahdara objected to the procession playing a band in front of the Saraiwala Mosque because it interfered with their evening prayers. The Magistrate of Shahdara issued a written order forbidding the procession to play music before the mosque at the time of evening prayers. This condition was not entered in the licence as the licence had been prepared and delivered before the issue of the order. The condition was, however, observed by the licencees. This year an application for the taking out of the procession was made to the Magistrate of Shahdara who sanctioned the application but in accordance with the precedent of 1932 ordered that the procession should not play music before the Saraiwala Mosque during the evening prayer time and this condition was inserted in the licence. The licencees, however, refused to accept it and the procession was not taken out. A meeting was held by the Hindus of Shahdara protesting against the condition inserted in the licence.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know from the Honourable Member whether any objection was taken by the Muhammadans during this last occasion when permission was applied for ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I think we may assume that that was the case from the facts that I have stated to the House.

Rai Bahadur Kunwar Raghubir Singh : Is the mosque on the road ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I should require notice of that question. I am not acquainted myself with the locality.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav : May I know what was the necessity of inserting the condition in the licence when, on a former occasion, the insertion was not necessary and the Hindus had not broken that condition ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : The point is that in 1932 the question arose at the last moment and it was not possible to insert the condition in the licence. It was a question of time. On this occasion the matter was taken into consideration sufficiently early and the condition was inserted in the licence.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Is it a fact that playing of music is not a part of religion ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : That is a general question which it seems unnecessary to go into now.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know if the licence was given for this year only or for the future also ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : The licences are given annually as the occasion arises.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : May I suggest that we may discuss this question outside the Assembly, and let us not discuss it on the floor of the House.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Bhai Parma Nand will be prepared for it I think.

Bhai Parma Nand : May I know, if some three or four people or one go and raise an objection, should Government at once introduce a new condition altogether and ignore the tradition that had been going on for a century or more ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I have no doubt that all the circumstances of the case were carefully considered by the Magistrate before he came to his conclusion.

Bhai Parma Nand : Is it a fact that after that procession another procession by the Jain community was started and that no such condition was laid down for them ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I am afraid I have no information on that point.

CIRCULATION OF A PROPOSAL FOR PURCHASE OF DERBY SWEEP TICKETS BY THE DIVISIONAL SUPERINTENDENT, MORADABAD DIVISION, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

908. Bhai Parma Nand : (a) Will Government please state if it is a fact that the Divisional Superintendent, Moradabad Division, East Indian Railway, on April 3, 1933, under No. 12|199|32-E., circulated a proposal for purchase of Derby Sweep Tickets through the Chief Operating Superintendent, Calcutta ? If so, what was the initial expenditure incurred in respect of this printed circular, postage stamps, remittance charges, etc., and was it justified ?

(b) Is it a fact that the money collected for Derby Sweep, 1933 (approximately Rs. 500) in the Moradabad Division was sent through a special messenger to Calcutta, who travelled to and from Moradabad on a duty pass and was allowed the usual travelling expenses ? If so, how far is it justified in the public interests ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I have called for the information and will place a reply on the table in due course.

Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : May I know from the Honourable the Home Member whether the Derby Sweep is an institution recognised by the Government ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I do not think it is a matter which comes within the jurisdiction of Government. Government have nothing to do with the Derby Sweep.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Does it come under the Gambling Act ?

Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : Are Government aware that the Derby Sweep has an extensive operation in India ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : The Honourable Member is referring to the Derby Sweep. I suppose he means the Sweep organised by the Calcutta Turf Club which is a private institution.

Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : Yes.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : On that point I think I am right in saying that the provisions of the Indian Penal Code do not apply to that particular Sweep.

Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : Is it a fact that, although the Derby Sweep is not a recognised institution, still Government do not take exception to the operations of that Sweep, while the operations of other raffle Sweeps are very vehemently opposed by Government ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I understand that the legal position is that the Sweep organised by the Calcutta Turf Club does not offend against the law.

Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : Is it the same with other Sweeps, as well, for instance, the Irish Hospital Sweep ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : It depends on the nature of the Sweep. I dare say if my Honourable friend wishes to pursue the legal question, my Honourable friend, the Law Member, would be able to throw further light on the subject.

Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : Are Government aware that one Rabindra Nath Dhar was prosecuted and convicted last year for selling tickets for the Irish Hospital Sweep ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : No, Sir. I was not aware of that fact.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Might I know from the Honourable Member if special sanction has been given for carrying on this Sweep ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : No special sanction has been given. It is merely a question of whether a particular transaction offends against the law or not.

Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : Is it a fact that a large number of Government servants holding very responsible positions are members of the Derby Sweep ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I do not quite understand what the Honourable Member means by saying " members of a Derby Sweep ".

Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : I mean the Derby Sweep Committee.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Might I know if the Honourable Member has ever considered the legal aspect of this question as distinguished from other Sweeps ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : The question asked did not appear to affect my Department and I must confess that I have not recently looked into these legal questions on which my Honourable friends opposite ply me with so many inquiries.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will the Honourable Member go into that question and find out why this Derby Sweep does not come within the purview of the Penal Code.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : If the Honourable Member wishes to put down a question, I shall be very happy to give him an answer.

Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : I gave notice of several questons which have been disallowed.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I am afraid I cannot take the responsibility for that.

Mr. S. C. Sen : Is it a fact that these tickets are sold privately and confidentially through members only ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : That is the position.

Mr. S. C. Sen : Is that the reason why it does not come within the purview of the Penal Code ?

ISSUE OF DUTY PASSES FOR HIS PRIVATE SERVANT BY THE SUPERINTENDENT, RAILWAY SCHOOL OF TRANSPORTATION, CHANDAUSI.

909. Bhai Parma Nand : Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that the Superintendent, Railway School of Transportation, East Indian Railway, Chandausi, issued duty passes for his private servants and for carrying his personal things ? If not, for what purposes were duty passes for third class, No. 006204, dated the 27th January, 1933, No. 006208, dated the 22nd February, 1933, ex-Chandausi to Cawnpore

Central, No. 006203, dated the 6th January, 1933, for 32 menials ex-Chandausi to Moradabad and for second class, No. 005286, dated the 6th January, 1933, for eight subordinates ex-Chandausi to Moradabad, issued and whether the Audit Department made any objection to such use of the passes ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no information but are enquiring into the matter.

USE OF AN OFFICER'S CARRIAGE FOR JOY RIDES UNDER ORDERS OF THE DIVISIONAL SUPERINTENDENT, MORADABAD DIVISION, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

910 Bhai Parma Nand : Is it a fact that an officer's carriage, No. 4883, under orders of the Divisional Superintendent, Moradabad Division, East Indian Railway, has frequently been used for joy rides ? If not, on which dates the said carriage was booked to Hardwar and onwards upto Dehra Dun during the period from December, 1932 to August, 1933 and for what purposes ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I have called for a report from the Agent, East Indian Railway, and will lay a reply on the table in due course.

DUTIES PERFORMED BY THE RAILWAY STAFF DURING MELAS AT GARHMUKTESAR, HARDWAR AND ROORKEE.

911. Bhai Parma Nand : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the nature of the duties performed by the Mela Officer, Mela Supervisor and the staff deputed from Travelling Ticket Examiners (Mr. A. M. Alvi) and Junior Guards (Messrs. Ahmed Nabi and Jagdesh Narain) during the Melas at Garhmuktesar, Hardwar and Roorkee in the years of 1932 and 1933 ?

(b) From what appointments or cadre were the Mela Officer and Mela Supervisor drawn ?

(c) Did Government consider whether the appointment of the Mela Supervisor could be avoided in view of the Station Masters at these stations holding the supervising duties as their ordinary routine ?

(d) What was the necessity of having two officers (Mela Officer and Mela Supervisor) functioning at the same time for the Mela at the same station ?

(e) What was the extra expenditure incurred in respect of these appointments ?

(f) Is it a fact that the Mela Supervisor was provided with a first class four-wheel carriage ? If so, was he entitled to it and for how many days was it utilized by him ? Could he not be accommodated in a tent which was specially hired during the Melas ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : With your permission, Sir, I propose to reply to this and the next question together. Government have no information, but have sent a copy of the question to the Agent, East Indian Railway, for consideration in connection with future Melas.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE ADH-KUMB MELA 1933 AT HARDWAR.

†912. Bhai Parma Nand : (a) Will Government be pleased to state who was directly responsible for the arrangements of the Adh-Kumb Mela 1933 at Hardwar ?

(b) Were the working rules of Hardwar Railway Station during Adh-Kumb Mela 1933 workable and approved by the Senior Government Inspector in accordance with the General Rules of the Open Line Working ? If so, will Government please lay on the table a copy of the said rules, together with a statement showing detentions of regular trains and details of derailments and accidents, if any ?

(c) Will Government please state how it was justified :

(i) to open a Control Office at Hardwar ;

(ii) to suspend the goods traffic between Moradabad and Saharanpur ;

(iii) to lay an avoiding line off Lhaksar and erect and work cabins or flag stations at both ends ;

(iv) to erect a cabin at Hardwar and work the same as a line clear station ;

(v) to provide high power arc lamps in addition to the electric installation done for the Mela ;

(vi) to purchase kerosine oil for the arc lamps ;

(vii) to suspend the stoppage of light trains at Hardwar Tunnel (City Booking Office) and Bhimgoda and the booking of passengers therefrom in spite of the fact that every train stops there under a caution order of Engineering Department ;

(viii) to suspend the booking of passengers to and from Jawalapur and Raiwala stations ;

(x) to lay out extra lines and erection of temporary platforms out of capital outlay ;

(xi) to keep engines on steam for a longer period than required in absence of any anticipation of running of a special ?

ARREARS IN FOREIGN SEA-BORNE TRADE STATISTICS FOR KATHIAWAR PORTS.

913. Mr. J. Ramsay Scott : (a) Are Government aware that foreign sea-borne trade monthly statistics for British India for July, 1933, have just been published ?

(b) Are Government aware that foreign sea-borne trade statistics for Kathiawar Ports for November, 1932, have just been published ?

(c) Are Government aware that the Kathiawar statistics are nine months in arrears ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : (a), (b) and (c). Yes, Sir.

† For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 911.

IMPORT OF SUGAR THROUGH KATHIAWAR PORTS.

914. *Mr. J. Ramsay Scott : Will Government please lay on the table a statement giving the total imports of sugar imported through Kathiawar ports for the year 1932-33 ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : With your permission, Sir, I will reply to questions Nos. 914 and 915 together.

I lay on the table two statements furnishing the information required.

STATEMENT I.

Total imports of sugar into Kathiawar ports during 1932-33.

(a) Weight not recorded.

IMPORT OF COTTON TEXTILE AND YARN, ETC., THROUGH KATHIAWAR PORTS.

†915. *Mr. J. Ramsay Scott : Will Government please lay on the table a statement giving the imports through Kathiawar ports for the year 1932-33 of :

(a) cotton textiles and yarn in weight and value ;

(b) the Japanese share of such imports in weight and value ?

† For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 914.

INCLUSION IN THE SEA-BORNE TRADE VOLUME OF STATISTICS OF IMPORTS THROUGH KATHIAWAR PORTS.

916. *Mr. J. Ramsay Scott : (a) Are Government aware that the yearly volume of sea-borne trade of 1931-32 does not give the full picture of imports into India, as Kathiawar figures are not included ?

(b) Are Government prepared to take steps, in view of the great increase of imports through Kathiawar ports, to have these statistics included in the sea-borne trade volume for 1932-33 ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : (a) Government are aware that Kathiawar figures are not included in the annual volume of Sea-borne Trade for 1931-32.

(b) Government will consider the suggestion made by the Honourable Member.

ARMY HEADQUARTERS SPECIAL TRAIN BETWEEN SUMMER HILL AND SIMLA.

917. *Sardar Sant Singh : (a) With reference to the reply to part (d) of the starred question No. 136, dated the 29th August, 1933, will Government be pleased to state the number of Army Headquarters technical clerks who are entitled to free conveyance under the military rules for living at a place more than half a mile distant from the office, and will they be pleased to place a copy of the said rules on the table of this House ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state the total cost of giving the respective class of monthly ticket fares to only such clerks of the Army Headquarters who are entitled under the military rules to free conveyance for themselves and their school-going children reading in Simla schools ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : The information asked for by the Honourable Member is being collected, and will be laid on the table of the House in due course.

ARMY HEADQUARTERS SPECIAL TRAIN BETWEEN SUMMER HILL AND SIMLA.

918. *Sardar Sant Singh : (a) With reference to the reply to part (c) of the starred question No. 137, dated the 29th August, 1933, denying the fact stated in the said part of the question, will Government be pleased to state whether the following persons, who travel daily by the clerks' special, hold Army Headquarters passes for such free conveyance between Summer Hill and Simla in accordance with the Army Department instructions to the Quartermaster General, regarding the issue of such passes ?

(i) Mr. C. Allan of the M. G. O. Branch, living in Summer Hill in a private house ;

(ii) Staff Sergeant Gill of the office of the A. D. O. S. P. (M. G. O.) living in Summer Hill in a private house ;

(iii) Mr. Edwards, a pensioner of Army Headquarters and at present employed in a private office but living in Government quarters by sufferance ;

(iv) Mrs. Augustine of the M. G. O. living in a private house in Summer Hill ;

(v) Miss Gidson of the M. G. O. living in a private house in Summer Hill ;

(vi) Mr. S. E. Souza of the M. A. G. which is not included in the Army Department instructions regarding issue of passes ;

(vii) Mr. Wade of Indian State Forces who has not been allotted any Government quarters in Summer Hill ;

(viii) Mr. Rutter of A. G.'s Branch and who has not been allotted any Government quarters ;

(ix) Mr. Dannett of the office of the A. M. S. P. living in a private house in Summer Hill ;

(x) Mr. C. Soisa of A. G.'s Branch living in a private house in Summer Hill ?

If not, do Government propose to enquire from the North Western Railway Administration whether any monthly tickets have been issued by the Assistant Operating Officer, Simla, in the name of those persons and if so, have those or any of those been issued after the notice of the previous questions were received by Government in the beginning of July ?

(b) If no Army Headquarters passes have been issued, nor monthly tickets have been purchased by those mentioned above, are Government aware that they are allowed to travel by the three bogies of the clerks' special paid from military estimates in contravention of the Army Department instruction to the Quartermaster-General ? If so, why ?

(c) If the answer to parts (a) and (b) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state what steps they propose to take against the North Western Railway for denying the facts stated in part (c) of starred question No. 137 ?

(d) With reference to the reply to part (d) of the starred question No. 137, dated the 29th August, 1933, denying the facts stated in part (a) above, do Government propose to ask the North Western Railway whether such facts were brought to the notice of the Assistant Station Masters, Simla, especially Harbanslal and others who generally used to travel in the clerks' special as Guards in charge of the train about such distinctions, by a large number of the public utilising the train, and are Government aware that they always replied that they are not authorised to check the tickets or passes of the Army Headquarters' European clerks ? If not, do Government propose to ask the North Western Railway to enquire from the public ? If not, why not ?

(e) Will Government be pleased to state further how such a large number of European clerks as mentioned in part (a) were travelling and are still travelling in the bogies paid for from military estimates ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) I am informed that of the ten persons mentioned in this question, only two namely Messrs. Rutter and Dannett hold Army Headquarters passes, at present.

It appears that since July, monthly season tickets have been issued to two of the persons named, namely Mrs. Augustine for August and September, 1933, and Miss Gidson for September, 1933.

(b) I understand that persons found travelling without tickets or passes are charged excess fares by the Railway Administration, and no person is permitted to travel without a ticket or a pass.

The entrainment and detrainment is supervised by the Camp Sergeant and a certificate is forwarded to the Assistant Operating Officer, Simla, that only those entitled to travel in these couches actually have travelled.

(c) I cannot see in what respect the Honourable Member contends that the information given previously was incorrect.

(d) I am informed that all the three Assistant Station Masters report that no such facts were brought to their notice by anybody. They also deny having stated that they are not authorised to check the tickets or passes of Army Headquarters European Clerks.

Government do not consider that a public enquiry is called for.

(e) In view of the reply to parts (a) and (b), this question does not arise.

PROVISION OF A CLUB FOR INDIAN CLERKS LIVING IN SUMMER HILL QUARTERS.

919. Sardar Sant Singh : (a) With reference to the reply to starred question No. 138, dated the 29th August, 1933, will Government be pleased to state the reasons why the Club House built at Government expense is only reserved for a particular community of Government servants, namely Europeans and Anglo-Indians, living in Summer Hill Government quarters ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state further the reasons why the Europeans and Anglo-Indians, working in the civil departments and offices as well are allowed to utilise the Club and why Indians who have adopted European style of living are not allowed to enjoy the Club House ?

(c) Do Government propose to remove this racial bar and allow the Indian tenants of Summer Hill Government quarters who have been allotted those quarters on the declaration that they have adopted European style of living ? If not, why not ?

(d) With reference to the reply to the starred question No. 138, dated the 29th August, 1933, will Government be pleased to state the number of European and Anglo-Indian allottees of Summer Hill Government quarters in the year of construction of the said Club House for whom Government did provide the said Club House, and will they be pleased to state the number of Indian allottees of Summer Hill Government quarters in the summer of 1933 and the summer of 1934 for whom no Club House has been provided ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a), (b) and (c). The Club House, Summer Hill, was provided for Europeans and Anglo-Indians at a time when there were very few, if any, Indians living in Government quarters in that neighbourhood. If there is any general desire on the part of Indian clerks residing in Summer Hill to become eligible for membership, they can always make that desire known to Government through their Associations. A representation on the subject from any of these Associations would receive the consideration of Government in consultation with the Committee of the Club.

(d) The Club House referred to was constructed in 1926, and in that year 63 European and Anglo-Indian clerks were allotted quarters in Summer Hill. The number of Indian allottees of these quarters in 1933 and 1934 is 28 and 31, respectively.

ARMY HEADQUARTERS SPECIAL TRAIN BETWEEN SUMMER HILL AND SIMLA.

920. *Sardar Sant Singh : (a) With reference to the reply to part (a) of the starred question No. 139, dated the 29th August, 1933, will Government be pleased to state whether cases of eviction of Indian ladies and school boys from intermediate class compartments attached to the clerks' Special by Army Headquarters clerks were ever reported to the North Western Railway staff and if so, how often ?

(b) Did the North Western Railway staff take any action on such reports ; if so, why did they take those steps for removing the aforesaid grievances ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I understand no such reports were ever made to the North Western Railway staff.

ARMY HEADQUARTERS SPECIAL TRAIN BETWEEN SUMMER HILL AND SIMLA.

921. *Sardar Sant Singh : (a) With reference to the reply to part (b) of the starred question No. 139, dated the 29th August, 1933, will Government be pleased to state whether on the 28th August last, Lieutenant Whitmars and other European clerks and several school-going children were occupying first and second class compartments by the 4-20 train which is not the clerks' Special ?

(b) Is it a fact that the said Europeans forced a small Indian boy of about eight years' age to get down from a compartment of the train on the ground that the boy held an intermediate class monthly ticket ?

(c) Is it a fact that the said European clerks and children travelling by the Bombay mail with Army Headquarters' passes in first and second class compartments were asked by the North Western Railway staff, on the intervention of other Indian passengers, to leave the compartments, and is it a fact that they refused to do so unless the North Western Railway staff brought the railway police ?

(d) If the answers to parts (a), (b) and (c) be in the affirmative, do Government propose to make a thorough investigation for verifying whether the facts stated in part (b) of the starred question No. 139, dated the 29th August, 1933, are correct ? If not, why not ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) and (c). On the 28th August, 1933, I understand some European gentlemen and several school boys and children, who did not possess tickets but were in possession of Army Headquarter passes, were prevented from travelling by the 16-20 train. They were accommodated in the Soldier Clerks Special leaving Simla at 16-29 hours. This action on the part of the Railway staff was not prompted either by the public or by the police.

(b) The Railway Administration is unaware of this.

(d) Government do not consider that any special investigation is necessary.

PROVISION OF FACILITIES FOR FREE CONVEYANCE TO THE CIVILIAN CLERKS LIVING IN SUMMER HILL QUARTERS.

922. *Sardar Sant Singh : (a) With reference to parts (b) and (c) of the starred question No. 140, dated the 29th August, 1933, will Government be pleased to state whether the civilian clerks of Army Headquarters living in Summer Hill Government quarters form the bulk of the Army

Headquarters pass-holders for free conveyance by the clerks' special train ?

(b) If so, is it a fact that such civilian clerks living in Summer Hill are not entitled to free conveyance under the military rules ? If so, will Government be pleased to state the reasons why other civilian clerks employed in other civil departments and offices of the Government of India other than the Army Headquarters are not allowed free conveyance by the said clerks' Special ?

(c) Do Government propose to remove this preferential treatment of one class of Government of India servants over another class ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : With your permission I shall answer questions Nos. 922, 924 and 925 together.

The number of clerks of the Army Headquarters who travel free by the special train running between Summer Hill and Simla is as follows :

(a)	Military clerks	24
	and their children (entitled to free conveyance under military rules)	12
(b)	Civilian clerks not entitled to free conveyance under military rules	44

The question of free train service for the clerks of Civil Departments in occupation of Government quarters at Summer Hill was examined in 1924. The Imperial Secretariat Association who were consulted in the matter stated that there was no pressing demand for free conveyance. The matter was dropped and Government do not propose to reopen it.

It is within the discretion of various Civil Departments to allow such of their clerks as may reside at Summer Hill and who arrive in office by 9-45 A.M. to leave office at 4 P.M. to take advantage of the special train which is run between Summer Hill and Simla.

GRANT OF HOUSE RENT TO CLERKS UNWILLING TO OCCUPY SUMMER HILL QUARTERS.

923. *Sardar Sant Singh : With reference to the reply to part (a) of the starred question No. 143, dated the 29th August, 1933, will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that those who are liable to be allotted Summer Hill quarters are being compelled to occupy them on pain of forfeiting their house rent allowance in Simla ? If not, will Government be pleased to state whether men governed by the new house rent rules and declaring to have adopted European style of living but not willing to occupy Summer Hill quarters will be entitled to house rent allowance admissible under the Simla Allowance Code ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Those Government servants, who are governed by the new rates of Simla house-rent allowance and who have claimed to be considered eligible for the European style of living quarters, cannot draw the allowance if they refuse to accept the offer of quarters at Summer Hill.

PROVISION OF FACILITIES FOR FREE CONVEYANCE TO THE CIVILIAN CLERKS LIVING IN SUMMER HILL QUARTERS.

†924. Sardar Sant Singh : With reference to the reply to part (b) of the starred question No. 144, dated the 29th August, 1933, stating that the special train was sanctioned and free passes granted to all Army Headquarters clerks allotted Summer Hill quarters, majority of whom do not enjoy military status, to ensure that they should reach office punctually in the mornings and return to their quarters at a reasonably early hour in the afternoons without being compelled to walk the comparatively long distance to and from Summer Hill, will Government be pleased to state the reasons why the same consideration is not shown to Government servants belonging to civil departments and offices living in Summer Hill Government quarters and whose office hours are from 10-30 A.M. to 4-30 P.M. and do not coincide with the office hours of the Army Headquarters offices which are from 10 A.M. to 4 P.M. ?

CHANGE OF TIMINGS OF THE ARMY HEADQUARTERS SPECIAL TRAIN OR OF OFFICE HOURS OF GOVERNMENT OFFICES IN SIMLA.

†925. Sardar Sant Singh : Do Government propose to change the timing of the clerks' special or change the office hours of the Government offices in Simla in such a way as to make the timing of the clerks' special from Summer Hill to Simla and vice versa suitable to all clerks living in Summer Hill quarters irrespective of whether they belong to civil offices or Army Headquarters offices ? If not, why not ?

SUITS INSTITUTED BY GOVERNMENT FOR THE DECLARATION OF THEIR PROPRIETARY RIGHTS IN RESPECT OF CERTAIN SITES AND BUNGALOWS IN THE RAWALPINDI CANTONMENT.

926. Sardar Sant Singh : Is it a fact that Government have instituted law suits for the declaration of their proprietary rights in respect of certain sites and bungalows in the Rawalpindi Cantonment ? If so, will Government be pleased to state the names of the owners of such sites and bungalows against whom such cases were instituted this year and last year in Rawalpindi Cantonment ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : With your permission, Sir, I will answer questions Nos. 926 and 927 together.

In 1932 Government filed one suit in Rawalpindi Cantonment ; this was against Sardar Sohan Singh for a declaration of their proprietary rights in the site of bungalow No. 193.

Judgment was delivered on the 10th July, 1933, upholding Government's claim.

† For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 922.

SUITS INSTITUTED BY GOVERNMENT FOR THE DECLARATION OF THEIR PROPRIETARY RIGHTS IN RESPECT OF CERTAIN SITES AND BUNGALOWS IN THE RAWALPINDI CANTONMENT.

†927. Sardar Sant Singh : (a) Is it a fact that a law suit was instituted by Government for the declaration of proprietary rights for certain sites and bungalows in the Rawalpindi Cantonment recently ?

(b) Is it a fact that the judgment of the said case was delivered by the judge in favour of Government on the 10th July ? If not, when was the judgment actually delivered ?

ABUSE OF DISCRETIONARY POWERS VESTED IN THE INCOME-TAX OFFICERS AT CALCUTTA.

928. Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury : (a) Are Government aware that the discretionary powers vested in the Income-tax Officers at Calcutta are highly abused ?

(b) Are Government aware that the Income-tax Officers at Calcutta do not give any reasonable opportunity to the assessees to enable them to comply with the notices under sections 22 (4) and 23 (2) and that efforts are generally made to make heavy assessments under section 23 (4) of the Indian Income-tax Act, depriving the assessees of their rights of appeal on merits ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : With your permission, Sir, I shall answer questions Nos. 928 and 932 together. Enquiries are being made and the results will be laid on the table in due course.

PETITIONS FILED UNDER SECTION 27 OF THE INDIAN INCOME-TAX ACT IN CALCUTTA.

929. Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury : Will Government be pleased to state how many petitions under section 27 of the Indian Income-tax Act were filed during the years 1930-31, 1931-32 and 1932-33 ? How many out of them were accepted and what were the amounts of tax refunded to the assessees by such acceptance ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : As regards the first part of the question, a statement is laid on the table. As regards the second part, the information desired is not on record and could not be compiled without the expenditure of time and labour disproportionate to the value of the results.

Statement showing the number of applications filed under Section 27 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, and those accepted during the years 1930-31, 1931-32 and 1932-33.

	No. of applications filed under section 27.	No. of applications accepted under section 27.
1930-31	9,733	2,331
1931-32	9,545	2,397
1932-33	12,613	3,056

† For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 926.

AMOUNT OF INCOME-TAX COLLECTED IN CALCUTTA.

930. *Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury : Will Government be pleased to state what was the amount of income-tax collected under section 23 (4) of the Indian Income-tax Act, during 1930-31, 1931-32 and 1932-33 in cases where returns were filed ? And what should have been the amount of tax if they had been accepted as correct ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : The information is not on record and could not be compiled without an expenditure of time and labour disproportionate to the value of the results.

INCOME-TAX CIRCULARS ISSUED BY THE CENTRAL BOARD OF REVENUE.

931. *Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury : Will Government be pleased to state whether the income-tax circulars issued by the Central Board of Revenue from time to time to the Income-tax Department are not made accessible to the assessees ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Income-tax circulars issued by the Central Board of Revenue that are of general public interest are incorporated in the Income-tax Manual to which the public have access.

ASSESSMENT OF INCOME-TAX IN CALCUTTA.

†932. *Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury : Are Government aware that the Income-tax Officers at Calcutta while making assessments to the best of their judgment or while exercising their discretion under section 13 of the Indian Income-tax Act, generally place reliance on the reports furnished by their secret informers and give absolutely no opportunity to the assessees to rebut them ?

UNSTARRED QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

RECRUITMENT OF MEMBERS OF MINORITY COMMUNITIES IN THE POST OFFICES AND RAILWAY MAIL SERVICE IN THE BOMBAY PRESIDENCY.

55. Mr. N. M. Joshi : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) whether the recruitment rules, regarding the communal composition of clerical staff in the Post Offices and Railway Mail Service in the Bombay Presidency, require every third vacancy to be reserved for communal preponderance ;

(b) whether the minority community for the purpose of recruitment in Bombay Circle includes Parsis, Christians, Muslims and the backward and depressed classes, or refers exclusively to Muslim community alone ;

(c) what are the supplementary instructions, if any, in connection with recruitment laid down by the Postmaster-General, Bombay, and whether they have the approval of the Government of India ?

† For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 928.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The fact is not exactly as stated by the Honourable Member but to prevent the undue preponderance of any one class or community, Government have laid down that one-third of all permanent vacancies to be filled by direct recruitment should be reserved for the redress of communal inequalities.

(b) The one-third reservation is not for Muslims alone but for the minority communities taken together.

(c) Government are not aware that any supplementary instructions are in force in the Bombay Postal Circle, but if the Honourable Member will give me particulars of any such instructions, I shall be glad to inquire into the matter.

OVERSEER AND SORTING POSTMEN UNDER THE CONTROL OF THE PRESIDENCY POSTMASTER, BOMBAY.

56. Mr. N. M. Joshi : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) the total number of overseer postmen and sorting postmen, since termed as Lower Division clerks, under the control of the Presidency Postmaster, Bombay, on 1st June, 1933 ;

(b) the total number of Lower and Upper Division clerks under his control ;

(c) the total number of reserve staff for the combined cadre of Upper and Lower Division clerks in accordance with 17 per cent. holding appointments in Bombay ;

(d) if the full percentage of leave reserve has not yet been sanctioned, and, if so, when it would be sanctioned and what instructions have been issued so that the leave to the staff for want of reserve may not be refused ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) to (c). Government regret that the information required for purposes of parts (a) to (c) of the question is not readily available.

(d) Government are not aware that a leave reserve of the full strength has not been sanctioned and that for this reason there has been any difficulty in granting leave to the staff. Should the facts be as reported by the Honourable Member it is for the Head of the Circle to represent the matter to the Director General ; a copy of this question is being sent to that officer.

FRAUDS COMMITTED BY THE DEPARTMENTAL AND EXTRA-DEPARTMENTAL STAFF IN THE BOMBAY POSTAL CIRCLE.

57. Mr. N. M. Joshi : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) the number of frauds committed by the (i) departmental, and (ii) extra-departmental postal staff in Bombay Circle during the period of six months from the 1st January, 1930 to the 30th June, 1930 ;

(b) the number of frauds proved and under enquiry committed by (i) departmental branch postmasters, (ii) extra-departmental branch postmasters, (iii) postmen, and (iv) gratuity agents, from the 1st January, 1933 to the 30th June, 1933 ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I regret that the information asked for is not readily available and it would involve undue labour to collect it.

ALLEGED MISMANAGEMENT OF THE CENTRAL PUBLICATION BRANCH.

58. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the report in the Delhi edition of the Statesman, dated the 27th August, 1933, under the caption " Rush to Buy Book on reforms—Busy Delhi Office " ?

(b) If so, will Government be pleased to state the amount earned by sale of publications of the Reforms Office from July to the 27th of August ?

(c) How many complaints against the Central Publication Branch were received during the last financial year from the Members of the Legislature, as stated by Mr. D'Eca, Officiating Manager, to the Press representative ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to state the circumstances of the complaints ?

(e) Who are those Members from whom complaints had been received ?

(f) What is the total number of indents received during the last financial year ?

(g) Did Mr. D'Eca invite the Press representative ?

(h) Is the present building, where the Central Publication Branch is located, four times as large as the one the Branch had occupied in Calcutta, as reported by Mr. D'Eca ?

(i) Is it a fact that lots of publications are lying in closed boxes in the verandahs ?

(j) If so, is it due to paucity of racks and space ?

(k) Is it a fact that the rains of late have done considerable damage to these publications ?

(l) Is it a fact that many publications are being damaged by white ants ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Yes.

(b) Rs. 454.

(c) The statement did not refer to the last financial year ; there are no records in my Department of any complaints being received from Members during that period.

(d) and (e). Do not arise.

(f) 64,359.

(g) No.

(h) On the basis of such information as it has been possible to obtain at short notice, rather over three times would have been more accurate.

(i) Yes.

(j), (k) and (l). No.

CENTRAL BOOK DEPOT, CALCUTTA.

59. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) How long has the Central Book Depot, Calcutta, been in existence ?

(b) Was it opened during the time of Messrs. Letton and D'Eca ?

(c) What is the average sale-proceeds at present at that Book Depot ?

(d) What is the oldest Government of India publication in stock in the Central Publication Branch ?

(e) Is it a fact that from sale point of view Calcutta was better than Delhi ?

(f) If so, was this fact given due consideration before the transfer was given effect to ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) About 9½ years.

(b) No.

(c) The average for the last 5 months is Rs. 2,568.

(d) Act No. II of 1834.

(e) Yes.

(f) Yes ; the Retail Book Shop was not transferred.

USE OF OFFICE LORRY BY THE MANAGER, CENTRAL PUBLICATION BRANCH.

60. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) What is the monthly expenditure on account of petrol consumption of the lorry of the Central Publication Branch ?

(b) Is it a fact that the lorry goes daily to the Officiating Manager's bungalow in New Delhi to bring his lunch ?

(c) If so, is the Manager competent to use the lorry for his personal use ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) About Rs. 144 a month.

(b) I am informed that this is not the case but that the lorry has brought the Manager's lunch from other places in New Delhi where it happened to be at the time.

(c) No.

INSOLVENCY OF MR. JAMES ROWLAND HOPPER, AN EMPLOYEE OF THE CENTRAL PUBLICATION BRANCH.

61. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) With reference to the issue of the Gazette of India, dated the 26th September, 1931, Part II, page 1134, will Government please state whether Mr. James Rowland Hopper, adjudged insolvent, is still an employee of the Central Publication Branch ?

(b) If so, did the employee obtain previous sanction of the Department concerned before filing the insolvency petition ? If so, when ?

(c) What are the rules that govern public servants in respect of filing insolvency petitions ?

(d) If the answer to part (b) above, be in the negative, what actio do Government propose to take in the light of part (c) above ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Yes.

(b) and (c). There are no rules requiring a Government servant t obtain the previous sanction of the Department in which he is servin before filing an insolvency petition, and so far as I am aware, no sanctio was sought in this case.

(d) Does not arise.

SCHEME OF REORGANISATION OF THE CENTRAL PUBLICATION BRANCH.

62. Mr. S. C. Mitra : Is it a fact that the Controller of Printing and Stationery has submitted a scheme of reorganisation of the Central Publication Branch ? If so, on what lines is the reorganisation proposed to be effected ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : The answer to the first part is in the negative ; the second part does not arise.

RECRUITMENTS MADE IN THE CENTRAL PUBLICATION BRANCH.

63. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that some new men have been recruited by the Officiating Manager, Central Publication Branch, in the grade of Rs. 45—140 ?

(b) If so, was any sanction for the appointments obtained ?

(c) Were the vacant posts advertised in any newspaper ?

(d) Did the men employed apply for the job ? If so, will Government please state the dates of the receipt of their applications ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Yes.

(b) Yes, in cases where sanction is necessary.

(c) No.

(d) A formal application dated the 17th July, 1933, was received from one candidate. Others presented themselves personally for employment.

POSITION OF TEMPORARY CLERKS IN THE CENTRAL PUBLICATION BRANCH.

64. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that a large number of temporary clerks employed in Calcutta in the Central Publication Branch, having considerable length of service, have been drawing Rs. 35 per mensem on being re-appointed at Delhi ?

(b) If so, will Government please state why these temporary clerks were not given preference over the new men ?

(c) Are Government aware that about 35 extra daily-paid men, in addition to the permanent strength, are doing clerical duties in the Central Publication Branch, Delhi ?

(d) Have Government received any report of paucity of staff in that office ?

(e) Did Government receive a report from the Controller of Printing and Stationery that with the removal of the Central Publication Branch to Delhi the office could be run with less staff and at less cost ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) No. The number of men so appointed is four only.

(b) Because they were not considered suitable for the posts to which the newcomers were appointed in an officiating capacity.

(c) Yes.

(d) Yes, in 1931.

(e) No.

CLERICAL DUTIES DONE BY THE RECORD SUPPLIERS IN THE CENTRAL PUBLICATION BRANCH.

65. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Are Government aware that in the Central Publication Branch office permanent Record Suppliers, possessing minimum qualification for clerical appointments are deputed to carry on clerical duties ?

(b) Is it a fact that the claims of these are ignored at the time when chances of promotion to clerical grades occur ?

(c) Is it a fact that two Record Suppliers are now maintaining Ledger Books of the Central Publication Branch ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a), (b) and (c). Government have no information on any of the points referred to by the Honourable Member which relate to matters of detail within the competence of the Head of the Department. It is open to any employee who considers that he has a grievance in the matter of promotion to make a representation to the proper authority in the ordinary way.

POLICY OF GOVERNMENT TOWARDS COMPANY-MANAGED RAILWAY SCHOOLS.

66. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will the Honourable Member in charge of Railways be pleased to state the policy adopted by Government towards the Railway schools under Company management ?

(b) Is it a fact that the whole question of education of the children of Railway employees is under the consideration of the Railway Board since 1926 and that no definite policy has been laid down as yet ?

(c) Is the Honourable Member aware that in the absence of a definite policy on the part of Government, the Railway authorities have been precluded from making any building grants to the Indian Schools ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) I would refer the Honourable Member to the memorandum placed before the Central Advisory Council for Railways on this subject on the 30th June, 1930, copies of which are available in the Library of the House.

(b) The Honourable Member is correct in the assumption that the question was first brought up for consideration in 1926 ; since then Government have been in correspondence with Local Governments and came to preliminary decisions in 1930 after consulting the Central Advisory Council for Railways. An officer of the Education Department was then deputed to investigate the cost of giving assistance to railway employees on the North Western, East Indian, Eastern Bengal and Great Indian Peninsula Railways towards the education of their children and to make recommendations for the introduction of improvements in the methods of administration. His report was received in 1932 and is still under the consideration of the Government of India.

(c) The instructions of Government to Railways are to the effect that no new railway schools should be opened except when it is clearly necessary to do so, for instance where the establishment of a school would cost less than the parental assistance or where the educational facilities of the requisite standard are lacking and the Local Government or local body is not prepared to provide the school or schools necessary.

AMOUNTS CONTRIBUTED BY THE BENGAL NAGPUR RAILWAY FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OF THE BUILDINGS OF CERTAIN INDIAN SCHOOLS.

67. Mr. S. C. Mitra: (a) Will Government please state the amounts so far contributed by the Bengal Nagpur Railway towards the construction of Indian, (i) H. E., (ii) Boys' Primary and (iii) Girls' School buildings at Khargpur, Adra and Chakradharpur ?

(b) Is it a fact that no school buildings have been provided by the Bengal Nagpur Railway for the Girls' and Boys' Primary Schools at Adra, though the schools were started in 1926 and 1928 respectively ?

Mr. P. R. Rau: With your permission, Sir, I propose to reply to questions Nos. 67 and 69 together.

Information is being obtained from the Railway Administration and a reply will be laid on the table in due course.

POSITION OF TEACHERS IN COMPANY-MANAGED RAILWAY SCHOOLS.

68. Mr. S. C. Mitra: (a) Will Government please define the position, in relation to the Railway Board, of teachers in Railway Schools under Company management ?

(b) Are they treated as regular Railway employees or employees under the local Fund as in the Bengal-Nagpur Railway, or as teachers of aided schools only ?

(c) Are they admitted to all the privileges to which a regular Railway employee is entitled ?

(d) Do the Railway Board exercise any control over these school teachers and regulate in any way their pay, grades, leave, promotion, etc. ?

(e) Will Government please state if they ever did, or do, contemplate placing the Railway schools under Company management on the same footing as those under State management ?

(f) In view of the centralised control of Railways, are Government prepared to consider the advisability of introducing one uniform system of control and the same scales of salaries for the teachers of both the State and Company-managed Railway schools ?

(g) Will Government please state the reason for introducing the percentage cut in the salaries of teachers in the Railway schools under Company management ?

(h) Will Government please state if they propose to direct the Railway authorities to refund the amount of the cut in their salaries to the teachers in schools under Company-managed Railway ?

Mr. P. R. Rau: (a) The Railway Board does not intervene in the relations between the Company-managed Railways and their servants.

(b) and (c). Government have no information.

(d) No.

(e) It is not possible for Government to take over the management of schools of Company-managed Railways.

(f) Government consider this unnecessary.

(g) The reason was the same as that for introducing a percentage cut in the salaries of railway staff in general, viz., the financial position of Railways and the Government of India.

(h) No.

CONSTRUCTION OF QUARTERS FOR TEACHERS OF BENGAL NAGPUR RAILWAY SCHOOLS.

†69. Mr. S. C. Mitra: (a) Will Government please state if teachers in Railway schools are entitled to free quarters ?

(b) Will Government please state the number of school teachers at Khargpur, Adra and Chakradharpur and the number of quarters built or made available for school teachers ?

(c) Are Government aware that no rented houses are available at Khargpur and Adra, specially at the latter place ?

(d) Are Government prepared to consider the necessity of providing immediate funds for the construction of quarters for the teachers in the Bengal Nagpur Railway schools ?

DEMOTION OF CERTAIN DRIVERS OF THE GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY.

70. Mr. S. G. Jog: (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that the following drivers of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, Bombay were demoted from A. and B. Grades to C. Grades in April, 1931 :

Messrs. T. W. Kelly, H. V. Douter, E. O. Harper, L. George, H. B. Kirk, H. S. Leader, J. C. Ellis, W. H. Terry, E. Turner, F. Rustamjee, H. Dinshaw, and J. Jacobs ?

If so, have they been re-instated in their former grades in accordance with the recommendation of the Murphy Enquiry, viz., retrenchment was not warranted and the persons should be taken back in the same order as they were retrenched ?

(b) Is it a fact that the orders contained in Railway Board letter No. 683-E. G., of the 3rd March, 1932, regarding promotion of demoted hands are not acted upon by the Agent, Great Indian Peninsula Railway, in respect of these drivers ? If so, why ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 67.

(c) Is it a fact that junior drivers from the multiple units at Bombay were transferred to up-country Divisions where they were promoted and the said demoted drivers' claims remained unattended ? If so, will Government please state whether the Railway Board letter No. 381-L. of the 19th August, 1932, is not applicable to the Agent, Great Indian Peninsula Railway, in respect of these demoted drivers ?

(d) Do Government propose to inquire into and rectify the error, if any ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no information, but I have sent a copy of the question to the Agent, Great Indian Peninsula Railway, for such action as he may deem fit to take.

RETRENCHMENT OF ANGLO-INDIANS BY THE SUPERINTENDENT, RAILWAY SCHOOL OF TRANSPORTATION, CHANDAUSI.

71. Mr. S. G. Jog : Is it a fact that the Agent, East Indian Railway, in one of his letters, No. A.E.-2427|3, dated the 13th July, 1933, stated that " there are at present no European or Anglo-Indian staff on the list of those to be retrenched " ? If so, when was this list compiled and how many Anglo-Indians are discharged under terms of retrenchment by the present Superintendent, Railway School of Transportation, Chandausi ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no information, but have sent a copy of the question to the Agent, East Indian Railway, for any action necessary.

UNIFORMS SUPPLIED TO TRAVELLING TICKET EXAMINERS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

72. Mr. S. G. Jog : (a) Is it a fact that Anglo-Indian Travelling Ticket Examiners under the Watch and Ward Department have been provided with decent white uniforms as compared with others under the Traffic Department ? If so, why ? Will Government please state whether the gaberdine grey purchased for the uniforms of the Travelling Ticket Examiners under the Traffic Department has by now been used up as stated in reply to question No. 1133 in the Legislative Assembly on the 2nd October, 1931 ?

(b) Was any indent for gaberdine grey placed after the 2nd October, 1931 ; if so, why ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I have called for information and will lay a reply on the table in due course.

NUMBER OF CERTAIN INDIAN OFFICERS ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

73. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government please state how many Indians are Loco. Foremen, Station Superintendents, Station Masters grade 6, 7, 8, Deputy Chief Controllers and Chief Controllers, etc., etc., on the North Western Railway ?

(b) What is the total strength of the above mentioned officials on the North Western Railway, and how many out of them have qualified from the Walton Training School ?

(c) Is there any exception to the rules that the existing incumbents, holding posts referred to in part (a) above can continue to work as such without qualifying from the Walton Training School ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) and (b). I would invite the attention of the Honourable Member to the statement contained on page 51 of the report by the Railway Board on Indian Railways for 1931-32, Volume I, which gives information regarding the total number of subordinates on scales rising to Rs. 250 per mensem and over on the North Western Railway on the 1st April, 1932. There were 1,005 Indians out of a total of 1,348. Government are not aware how many of these have qualified from the Walton Training School.

(c) An enquiry is being made and a further reply will be placed on the table of the House in due course.

RECKONING OF SENIORITY ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

74. Mr. S. C. Mitra : Will Government please state if the Europeans, Anglo-Indians, Christians and Parsees are reckoned as seniors to their Indian colleagues on the North Western Railway on account of the former's high start in pay, and will now give way to the latter for higher appointments ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no information, but I have sent a copy of the question to the Agent, North Western Railway, for consideration.

CONFIRMATIONS IN THE GRADE OF ASSISTANT STATION MASTERS ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

75. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government kindly state how many men of the Station Staff have been confirmed in grade 5 of Assistant Station Masters on the North Western Railway ?

(b) What is the total strength of these officials of each community on the said Railway ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no information.

DISCRIMINATION IN THE DISTRIBUTION OF QUARTERS ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

76. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that the Agent, North Western Railway, under his letter No. 961-E.|95, dated the 21st September, 1932, addressed to the General Secretary, North Western Railway Union, Lahore, had declared the policy for distribution of the Railway quarters to the subordinate employees in the following order :

(i) staff eligible for free quarters or house allowance in lieu thereof ;

(ii) staff not eligible for free quarters but who, it is considered desirable, should live close to their work ;

(iii) staff not covered by (i) and (ii) above ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government please state whether some Railway Controllers, who are eligible for the privilege of free quarters, are living at Delhi in houses which are below their cadres, while their colleagues paying house rent have been given a superior class of quarters for residential purposes by the North Western Railway authorities? If so, under what rules?

(c) Are Government prepared to order the Agent, North Western Railway, to abolish this sort of discrimination in theory as well as in practice?

Mr. P. R. Rau: The required information is being obtained from the Railway Administration, and will be laid on the table in due course.

PASSES FOR DEPENDENTS OF EMPLOYEES OF THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

77. Mr. S. C. Mitra: (a) Is it a fact that free passes to dependent relatives of the employees on the North Western Railway under rule 25 of Pass Rule Book of 1928 are admissible to an employee's widow, mother, sisters and step-sisters, unmarried or widowed, and not to the employee's son or sons of 18 years and above, who may be more dependent on their fathers on account of the present universal unemployment and trade depression?

(b) Are Government prepared to see that these pass rules are modified so that the son or sons of the employees are made eligible for free passes upto the age of 25 years?

Mr. P. R. Rau: (a) Yes.

(b) Government consider that the concession of free passes and the conditions attaching thereto are already sufficiently generous, and do not see reason to extend it further.

FORMATION OF AN INDIAN FORCE WING OF THE ROYAL AIR FORCE.

78. Mr. S. C. Mitra: (a) Is it a fact that it has been decided to form an Indian Air Force wing of the Royal Air Force? If so, when was the decision arrived at and what progress has been made towards it since then?

(b) Has the First Squadron of Indian Air Force been formed? If so, when was it formed and how many of its personnel are Indians at present and how many are eventually to be Indians in each of the various trades?

(c) When is the Second Squadron of the Indian Air Force to be formed and what will be the strength of Indians in its subordinate combatant ranks in the various trades separately?

(d) When were the rules, etc., for recruitment of subordinate ranks for Indian Air Force issued by Government, and when is it proposed to issue similar rules, etc., for the recruitment of Warrant Officers for the Force?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham: (a) and (b) The decision to form an Indian Air Force was arrived at some years ago, and after the necessary legislation had been passed, the Force, which does not form a part or wing of the Royal Air Force, was constituted on the 8th October, 1932. The present intention is to build up one squadron, consisting of three Flights, the first of which was formed on the 1st April, 1933.

The following statement shows the establishment of this flight and the number of Indians who belong to it:

General Duties Officers	9
Stores Officer	1
Other ranks	53

NOTE.—Six officers have completed their training in England, two of whom were killed in a recent flying accident. One was diverted to Stores duties and is serving in India as a Stores Officer. Eight cadets are at present under training at the Royal Air Force College and one has recently passed out of the College and is undergoing further training in a Royal Air Force unit in England.

Twenty-two other ranks have been enrolled. Seventeen of these are still being trained in India and five have completed their training.

It is intended that the Flight should eventually consist entirely of Indians.

(c) The question of forming a second squadron has not yet been considered, and must depend on the progress made by the first.

(d) Rules for the recruitment of subordinate ranks were issued in 1931. There is no directly recruitment of Warrant Officers. Vacancies in Warrant ranks will be filled by the promotion of men from the lower ranks.

SELECTION OF PERSONNEL FOR ENROLMENT IN THE COMBATANT RANKS OF THE INDIAN AIR FORCE.

79. Mr. S. C. Mitra: (a) When is the next selection of personnel for enrolment in the combatant ranks of Indian Air Force to be made and what is the number of applications so far received and the number of persons to be selected for each trade?

(b) Are any technical qualifications or workshop training essential for (i) trades involving apprenticeship and (ii) trades not involving apprenticeship? If so, what particular training or previous qualifications, in addition to general education and knowledge of English, are necessary for each trade?

(c) Can a candidate be enrolled direct for any of the "trades not involving apprenticeship" without first joining as an "aircrafthand"?

(d) Is it a fact that applications for "apprenticeships" have to be made direct to the Royal Air Force Headquarters but for "trades involving apprenticeship" have to be made through Recruiting Officers or Technical Recruiting Officers whose recommendation is considered necessary? If so, what is the reason for this distinction?

(e) Will Government please state when and how the final selection of candidates for enrolment in the subordinate combatant ranks of the Indian Air Force is to be made?

(f) When is the recruitment to be made for enrolment as Warrant Officers and will these ranks be open for promotion to the personnel in the subordinate combatant rank?

(g) Is there any non-combatant branch also of the Indian Air Force? If so, what does it consist of?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) Selection of personnel for enrolment in the combatant ranks of the Indian Air Force will be made during the next few months. Over 1,000 applications have been received. It is proposed to select about 27 apprentices for trades which involve training, such as :

Blacksmith and Welder,
Coppersmith and Metal Worker,
Electrician,
Wireless Operator Mechanic,
Wireless Operator,
Fitter Aero Engine,
Metal Rigger,
Fitter Armour,
Armourer.

About 13 men will also be required for trades which do not involve apprentice training, such as :

Carpenter,
Photographer,
Storekeeper,
Clerk,
Aircrafthand.

(b) Candidates for trades involving apprentice training should have received some preliminary technical education at a technical school or college, combined with some practical workshop training. It will be necessary for them to have sufficient knowledge of English to enable them to understand instruction imparted in that language. No preliminary technical or literary education will be required in the case of candidates for trades not involving apprentice training.

(c) No.

(d) Applications for enrolment as apprentices have to be made to Royal Air Force Headquarters. A list of technical schools and colleges which are considered likely to provide individuals with the necessary qualifications has been prepared and candidates from those schools and colleges have to apply through their Principals who have been furnished with full particulars regarding the enrolment of airmen in the Indian Air Force. Candidates for enrolment in trades not involving apprentice training should apply to the nearest Recruiting Officer. This is in order that they may be medically examined, interviewed personally, and reported upon.

(e) It is proposed that those who are recommended as suitable for training as apprentices by the Principals of Technical Colleges should be interviewed by a Board of Royal Air Force Officers.

Personnel for trades not involving apprentice training will be selected on the recommendation of Recruiting Officers.

(f) A reference is invited to the reply given to part (d) of question No. 99.

(g) Yes. The non-combatant branch of the Indian Air Force consists of certain technical workshop personnel and followers who are employed as ancillary personnel to Royal Air Force units and the Indian Air Force flights.

DEVICES ADOPTED BY CERTAIN PERSONS TO EVADE THE CHILD MARRIAGE RESTRAINT ACT.

80. Mr. Bhuput Sing : (a) With reference to my question regarding breaches of the Sarda Act by persons restoring to Chandarnagore and other places, answered on the 28th August, 1933, will Government be pleased to state whether proper enquiries were made from all places before the answer was given ?

(b) If so, was it verified whether the news published in the Amrit Bazar Patrika, Haldhar and Searchlight on this subject was incorrect ?

(c) If the news be incorrect, what action do Government propose to take against these newspapers for giving currency to false news ?

(d) If the news be correct, what action do Government propose to take against the departmental clerks who are responsible for furnishing these wrong answers in the Assembly ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : The question which the Honourable Member asked, by deputy, on August, 28, 1933, was whether the attention of Government had been drawn to a practice of evading the Sarda Act by resort to Chandarnagore and Indian States for a single day, and my reply was that the attention of Government had not been drawn to this. The reply was accurate. I did not say, as the Associated Press report wrongly represented me as saying, that no marriages had been performed in Chandarnagore and Indian States by British Indian subjects to evade the Act, and had the Honourable Member been in his place to ask his question he could have been under no misapprehension as to my reply. If the Honourable Member wishes in future to draw attention to particular newspaper reports and enquire whether they are accurate, I would suggest that he should specify these reports and in accordance with the procedure recently laid down by the Honourable the President forward copies of them to my Department.

THE INDIAN INCOME-TAX (AMENDMENT) BILL.

PRESENTATION OF THE REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON PETITIONS.

Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury (Mr. Deputy President) : Sir, I present the Report of the Committee on Petitions on certain petitions relating to the Bill further to amend the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922.

THE RESERVE BANK OF INDIA BILL.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The House will now resume consideration of the Reserve Bank Bill.

Sir Leslie Hudson (Bombay : European) : Not only from the speeches which we have heard during this Session but throughout the long discussions in 1927 and 1928, there has been overwhelming argument in favour of the establishment of a Reserve Bank. The opposition which has been voiced hitherto has been on the narrower issue of procedure in regard to three or four essentials. I would not wish to weary the House with reiteration of the points already made during the present debate except that it is necessary for me briefly to state the views of European commercial opinion in this country. First, as to the necessity of a Reserve Bank. It has already been stated that the Government have, ever since British Government has been organised in India, carried out the necessary functions in regard to the control of currency, employment of funds, revenue and so on from Central, Provincial, Railway and cognate sources, loans and the service of those loans and a host of other financial responsibilities which are in reality the duty and responsibility of a Reserve Bank. Such a bank would have a permanent and expert staff, instead of the position at present of a department of Government of which the personnel, however competent, may be transitional and which cannot have the opportunity of close contact with the money and other markets of the country. It has been asked why the Imperial Bank could not be extended in its scope in order to take on the functions with which it is proposed to invest the Reserve Bank. I give the House one reason which is simple and will be appreciated by all Members, namely, that the Imperial Bank is itself a competitor for business, such as re-discounting, which it is intended that the Reserve Bank should undertake and the Imperial Bank therefore would not command the confidence as a Banker's bank which an entirely independent Reserve Bank would do. I spoke of three or four points on which there is still a difference of opinion. The first is whether it should be a State or a Shareholders' Bank. This has been argued by almost every speaker so far and it has been discussed ad nauseam for the last five or six years. The report of the London Committee goes against a State Bank and I am prepared to agree with that view. At the same time I consider that the suggestion which has been made that a proviso should be inserted in the Bill enabling the State to buy out the proprietors at the expiry of a stated period at a stated price might reasonably be very closely considered. This of course would entail a revision of the present arrangements for the appointment of the directorate, a revision which should first and foremost recognise the sine qua non that the Bank must be entirely removed from political interference and influence. At the International Financial Conference held at Geneva and Brussels in 1920 and 1922, it was recommended that Banks and especially Banks of Issue should be free from political pressure and should be conducted solely on the lines of prudent finance.

The next important point which has been referred to by most speakers is the Ratio. Here I am in very considerable agreement with both my colleagues from Bombay who spoke yesterday and who pointed out the impossibility, without risking inevitable chaos, of even considering the operation of the present ratio until the present uncertain conditions of the world's currencies and monetary problems are clarified and stabilised. Secondly, tied to sterling, the rupee, on its present basis, has the undoubted benefit of the wide sterling field, and the stability of sterling backed as it is by the triumphantly re-established credit of His Majesty's Government. In addition I would refer to the Resolution of Empire delegates to the recent Economic Conference regarding currency stability within the Empire. Whatever may be the arguments in favour of altering the ratio, to do so at the present time, when what was before the war a strong and steady stream of exchange throughout the world is now a whirlpool of conflicting elements, and where a false step might easily mean financial destruction, would merely be to court disaster. Let the ratio wait until the current of that stream is clear, stable and smooth again and then weigh up the pros and cons and trust your Reserve Bank to give that advice to the Government which will enable it to fix the ratio at a point which will be for the benefit of the trade and commerce of India and for the benefit of the people of India. The main requirement of the present, and, indeed, of any time is a stable exchange and, with your permission, Sir, I would read an extract from the text of the joint statement on monetary policy issued by the Delegations from the leading countries of the British Empire to the World Conference. The statement was signed by Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Mr. R. B. Bennett of Canada, Mr. S. M. Bruce of Australia, Mr. G. W. Forbes of New Zealand, General J. C. Smuts of South Africa and Sir Henry Strakosch on behalf of India. The statement runs thus:

"The undersigned delegations now re-affirm their view that the ultimate aim of monetary policy should be the restoration of a satisfactory international gold standard under which international co-operation would be secured and maintained with a view to avoiding, so far as may be found practicable, undue fluctuations in the purchasing power of gold. The problem with which the world is faced is to reconcile the stability of exchange rates with a reasonable measure of stability, not merely in the price level of a particular country, but in world prices. Effective action in this matter must largely depend on international co-operation, and in any further sessions of the World Economic and Monetary Conference this subject must have special prominence.

In the meantime the undersigned delegations recognise the importance of stability of exchange rates between the countries of the Empire in the interests of trade. This objective will be constantly kept in mind in determining their monetary policy, and its achievement will be aided by the pursuit of a common policy of raising price levels. Inter-Imperial stability of exchange rates is facilitated by the fact that the United Kingdom Government has no commitments to other countries as regards the future management of sterling and retains complete freedom of action in this respect. The adherence of other countries to a policy on similar lines would make possible the attainment and maintenance of exchange stability over a still wider area."

The question of the Directorate has been raised on several occasions. I am inclined to agree with Mr. Mody that the Directorate should include representatives of the leading commercial bodies as being the best method of ensuring the presence on the Board of Directors of the highest commercial and financial qualifications. Sir, there were several other points made by other speakers and I think most of them, in fact, all of them can be dealt with in the Select Committee. There are just one or two points which I would like to touch upon before I sit down.

The question of the location of the Head Office of the Reserve Bank. It is laid down under clause 6 that the Head Office shall be in Bombay and that the meetings of the Board should be convened at least six times in the year, of which two meetings should be held in Calcutta. It is the opinion of some of this Group that the Head Office should perambulate in the same way as the Imperial Bank does. That is to say, the Head Office should be for five months in Bombay, six months in Calcutta, a fortnight in Madras and a fortnight in Delhi. That, again, is a matter which can be adequately considered in the Select Committee.

[Sir Leslie Hudson.]

Then, I would briefly refer to the clause in which the Bill exempts Directors of Co-operative Banks from the restriction that Directors and employees of other Banks shall not be Directors of the Reserve Bank. I do not yet see why this differentiation should be made. The abilities can be no greater in a Co-operated Bank Director and the disabilities are precisely the same so far as I can see.

Finally, Sir, I would pay tribute to the financial genius of the present Finance Member and also to his predecessor, Sir Basil Blackett, both of whom have laboured and, let us hope, not in vain to evolve a measure which, in spite of differences over details, commands the approval of everybody whose opinion is worthwhile in India. Also to His Majesty's Government who have given their approval to this Bill in spite of, so it is whispered, what was very strong opposition from the City of London. Now, Sir, I would emphasise once more that time is the essence of the contract and I would ask this House to get on with the business and let the Bill go to the Select Committee. Circulation can do no further good. The London Committee have reported favourably on the Bill and the Bill has been before the public of this country ever since the Currency Commission of 1926, and Sir Basil Blackett's Bill of 1928. It is part of the constitutional scheme for India's self-government—one of the pre-requisites for responsible government—and it is designed to place in India's hands India's financial control.

Mr. K. P. Thampan (West Coast and Nilgiris : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Mr. President, I welcome the proposal for a Reserve Bank as a measure for the better management and control of credit and currency and for the economic welfare of this country. But if the objective of the Government is to make this a measure for the further exploitation of this country by Great Britain, then I will not be a party to it. Sir, to be frank, I must say that there is a suspicion in the country that the object of the Government, in introducing this measure, is to forge another link in the chain by which Great Britain might bind this country and make it under subjection for all times to come. At the time when further political reforms are proposed to be given to this country, the fact that the Finance Minister does not at all come into the picture of a Reserve Bank makes us believe that perhaps there may be an element of truth in that suspicion. What I would suggest, therefore, is that instead of the Governor General in Council now, and the Governor General at his discretion afterwards, the Finance Member now and the Finance Minister, when the reforms are introduced, must be made the authority to recommend to the Governor General all the appointments made under this Bill. Then only the opinion of the people affected can control and prevail in the policy of the Reserve Bank. The Bill has to undergo radical alterations and, therefore, I must say that my support to this Bill will depend upon the shape that this Bill will take when it emerges from the Select Committee. But, in the meantime, it will be only proper if I venture to make certain suggestions with regard to the several issues involved in the Bill. I will confine myself for the present to the main issues alone and leave the details to be discussed at a later stage.

The question as to whether it should be a Shareholders' Bank or a State Bank has been discussed in detail and I do not propose to advert to it. But I will only say that the Joint Committee of 1927, composing as it did of several financial experts and patriots of this country, men like Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas, Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya, Lala Lajpat Rai, Mr. Birla, Mr. Jamanadas Mehta and last, but not least in importance, your good self, all these experts examined the question in detail and came to the deliberate conclusion that it should be a State Bank ; but it has been summarily brushed aside and a Shareholders' Bank is substituted in its place. The Government in 1927 acquiesced in a State Bank, and the Banking Enquiry Committee put forward their proposals on that basis. If they thought that the Reserve Bank which was to be constituted ought to be a Shareholders' Bank, they would have considered that aspect of the question and dealt with it in their Report. Therefore, it is up to the members of the Committee that met in London to satisfy us under what altered conditions and new circumstances they approved of a Shareholders' Bank in place of a State Bank, and, unless those facts are forthcoming, we are not prepared to accept their proposal. The country stands by the decision of the Joint Committee of 1927. Another difficulty is that we have been supplied only with a copy of the report of the Committee ; their discussions have been withheld. We are at a loss to know what grounds might have actuated them to come to a conclusion of that kind. There are diverse conflicting interests in this country which I need not refer to now and, under such circumstances my own opinion is that a State Bank would be more suitable to the country. I would, therefore, request the House that in sending this Bill to the Select Committee, it must be insisted upon that the whole question may be kept an open one for the Select Committee to decide. In this connection I wish to say that I had an informal talk with the Honourable Sir George Schuster on this subject and he only said that he might be trusted to give a generous consideration, but would not commit himself just at that stage. I wish to repeat once again that the question whether it should be a State Bank or a Shareholders' Bank should be entirely left open for the Select Committee to decide. The Honourable the Finance Member, in his opening speech, said that in moving this motion he was only following what his predecessor in 1927 did, namely, that it is to a Joint Select Committee of both Houses that this Bill was going to be referred to. What I say is that he should follow the example of 1927 in its entirety and leave it to the Joint Committee as before to decide whether it should be a State Bank or a Shareholders' Bank. If, however, it is decided to have a Shareholders' Bank, every endeavour should be made to guarantee that the Bank is not controlled by interested groups, particularly by the mercantile community of Great Britain who have come down to do business here. It was said that a Reserve Bank of this kind should be free from political and other influences. I am not as much afraid of the Indian political influence as of the British political and mercantile influences against which there is no proper safeguard.

Sir, I would, while on this point, venture to make, if I may, a few suggestions to ensure freedom from all kinds of influences. It is proposed that each share of the Bank should be of the value of Rs. 500. It is too large and should be reduced to Rs. 100 and then only the middle classes and the poor people can subscribe to it. If it is of a high value like Rs. 500, the chances are that rich men and big merchants and registered companies alone will be able to subscribe to it. If the Bank should be a popular one and, if the popular voice should have any controlling influence in the affairs of the Bank, then the share value should be reduced to Rs. 100. I would recommend that it might be more advantageously reduced to Rs. 50. There is the precedent of 1928 to adopt wherein the value of the shares was only Rs. 100. Another thing about which I am very particular is that only Indian nationals, including Englishmen and other British subjects who are permanently residing in this country, should be allowed to subscribe for it. I do not like the idea that Europeans, who come here as birds of passage and for the purpose of making money, should have anything to do with it. I went through the constitution of the Reserve Banks of several countries and I find that in most of them it is specifically provided that every subscriber should be their own nationals. Why should we not follow their example? In this connection I might refer to the history of the National Bank of India. It was started in Calcutta with a rupee capital and, subsequently, the capital was converted into sterling. Though it is called the National Bank of India I really do not know whether there are any subscribers, who are Indian nationals, in it. To a Japanese or Frenchman or any foreigner, who comes to India, it would appear as if the National Bank is a purely Indian national concern, but it is hardly so. It is only a misnomer. What I mean to say is that the Reserve Bank should not, though named the Reserve Bank of India, be a Bank controlled by foreigners in this country. It is indeed a very good thing that some attempt has been made to keep the Bank free from the influence of interested groups. The proposal of keeping regional registers has been made with this end in view; but unless it is provided that transfers from one register to another should be restricted and a minimum to the inhabitants of the locality is prescribed, the very purpose for which it has been provided would be nullified. A man living in Bombay might purchase a very large number of shares in Madras. There is nothing to protect the shares that are assigned to a province like Madras for instance from being held completely by Bombay people. To avoid a contingency like that, a minimum should be prescribed for the inhabitants of the locality concerned. Without that, it will not be of any use. My friend, Sir Leslie Hudson, said that like the Imperial Bank of India the Governors' office should not be permanently located in Bombay, but shifted in certain months to Calcutta, Madras and other places in rotation. That is an excellent idea and, I think, even if it is not taken to Madras and Rangoon, it must be held, as is done by the Imperial Bank now, in certain months in Calcutta. The fear is that if it is held permanently in Bombay, the Bombay magnates will have the upper hand over the destinies of the Bank.

As regards the Governors, you might remember, Sir, that in the last Bill it was provided that one of them should be an Indian. There is no provision like that in the present Bill. Government had agreed to that and it was a surprise to me that they have gone back on that arrangement.

Sir, with regard to the constitution of the Central Board, the appointment of four Directors to be nominated by the Governor General should be, and I said a little while ago, on the recommendation of the Finance Member at present and after the Constitution Act comes into being by the Finance Minister. I am very anxious that the nominations to the Board should not be like the nominations that are now being made to the Imperial Bank. Reference was made yesterday to the appointment of old men like Sir Dinshaw Wacha and other people. However estimable they may be, it can't be denied that they are old. It was said that the average age of the Directors of the Imperial Bank was something like 72 years. If a High Court Judge or any other Government servant has to retire in his 60th year, I do not see any reason why that principle should not be extended to responsible institutions like the Directorate of the Reserve Bank. In this connection I might point out that it is provided that people who are connected with any incorporated Bank or people who are connected with agriculture, commerce or any such business alone should be appointed as Directors. Sir, there are many eminent men in other fields as well. There are competent journalists, distinguished economists and professors in universities, who can do useful work on the Directorate. Nobody would object to a man like Sir Stanley Reed, for instance, who was editor of the Times of India, being appointed a Director. There are distinguished university professors, men like Dr. Mathai, the President of the Tariff Board, who would be an ornament to a Board of this kind. So I suggest that it should not be restricted to people who have had experience in banking, agriculture and commerce alone.

Then, Sir, the strength of Directors should be increased slightly. There ought to be one more to all the regions than is provided for at present, that is, instead of two for Bombay, I should have three, similarly for Calcutta also three. That is, one more for every province and, in addition to these, two from the provincial co-operative banks. In the Bill of 1928, it was provided that co-operative banks could elect two Directors. That provision has been deleted now. It is absolutely necessary that two Directors at least should be recruited from the provincial co-operative banks. Unless the Directorate is enlarged on these lines, it would not be possible to keep the balance even among all the conflicting interests that are bound to crop up in its working. That is the reason for making this suggestion. Then, as regards its election also, I would suggest that the local shareholders ought to elect a panel of 28 people, so that the Governor General, on the advice of the Minister, might select 14 from among these 28. That would have a wholesome result and the right kind of men could be ensured. I would also suggest that including the Governor not more than four should be Europeans or non-Indians. The fear is that otherwise, it would be an institution like the Imperial Bank. Instances are not wanting where the Imperial Bank has gone out of its way to assist European clients and done deliberate harm to Indians. It is not my purpose here to condemn the policy, the discriminative policy, of the Imperial Bank. All the same it is better to ensure that the Reserve Bank is always kept above such charges and should look to the interests of our nationals more than the interests of the foreign settlers in this country. The tenure of these Directors is contemplated to be made five years. I went through the constitution of several Banks and, except in one or two, I did not find such a long tenure provided in them. Three years must be ample. In the Bank of England, it is only one year, but in the conditions obtaining in India, it might be advantageously made three years. A longer period than three years will be harmful. Another thing to which I attach great importance in connection with the constitution is that the first board constituted by the Governor General under section 15 should exist only till the allotment of shares and the election of the local boards are over when it should be dissolved. The elected Board must begin to function immediately after that. The idea is that there is a tendency among our people to stick to their offices and keep out other deserving people from entering their portals. The point will be brought home if I refer you to the instance of a Company Managing Director in the U. P. or some other neighbouring province who installed his wife in his place when he was appointed a Minister in that Province. That is a contingency that should be avoided.

12 NOON. Another point of equal importance with reference to the constitution that I should like to insist on is that every shareholder, whatever number of shares he may hold, should have only one vote and not more than that. Then the manipulations that are now prevalent in the election of Directors could be avoided. In dealing with this aspect, I am anxious that a specific provision should be made in the Bill to enable the Government to purchase the shares at a fixed price after some time. That is done with regard to the railways; and I do not see why, as long as the State guarantees and gives advantages to the Bank, a provision like that should not be made. When the Bank expects help from the State, it is only proper that the agreement should be reciprocal and mutual. If some of my suggestions are adopted, I venture to hope that the evils feared may, to a large extent, be mitigated. That is all I have to say with regard to the constitution.

Let me now deal with the other main issues that arise on this Bill without going into the details. I will first deal with the standard of currency. With regard to current ratio, you will agree with me, Sir, that there has been such an outcry in the country, and it is no use shutting our eyes to it, that it is being bled white on account of the ratio policy of the Government; and I do not see why this opportunity should not be availed of to thresh out the whole question. I might also say that the Government have not discharged their duty by this country in allowing so much gold to leave the shores of India. That question has been raised several times in this Assembly, and it will bear any amount of repetition. The Government should have taken steps to strengthen their reserve instead of allowing such large quantities of gold to be exported. Government could have easily purchased at least a large portion of it and issued currency notes thereagainst.

Another aspect of vital importance and one of legitimate grievance is that in spite of the fact that in most countries the internal prices of primary commodities have been increased by depreciation of currency and other means, in this country the prices are still going down and the Government are sleeping. I refer particularly to the price of cocoanuts, paddy and pepper, the principal commodities with which I am concerned as these are the main products of my district, the prices of which have gone down considerably, by more than 60 per cent. since 1931. All countries have taken steps to increase the internal prices after they went off the gold standard and the dominions also have done it. It is unfortunately in India alone that that is not done. It is up to the Finance Member not only to explain the attitude of the Government in this matter, but also to do his level best to see that the internal prices are raised without any more delay.

With regard to the unsatisfactory character of the ratio, I make bold to challenge Sir George Schuster the Finance Member, to deny this if he can: between March and September, 1931, when they were getting gold from the public at the lower point, that is the level at which they should be selling gold, the ratio ceased to function properly. The ratio automatically receded from the parity of 1s. 6d. to a parity of 1s. 5½d. I ask, if it did not. The exchange is a matter into which the public at large are not allowed to have a peep. In this connection, I wish to read a sentence from "The Monetary Problems of India" by L. C. Jain: at page 47, he says, speaking about the gold value:

> "Since August, 1931, the British people themselves have not been allowed to know on what principles sterling is controlled. The maintenance of a sterling exchange standard therefore means that Indian currency is under the arbitrary control of unknown men in no way responsible to India, who do not even condescend to make any statement about their intentions with regard to its future purchasing power or gold value. This is not a situation with which India can be content."

I cannot improve upon that. The situation is very serious and I venture to suggest to the Government with all the emphasis I can command that an expert Committee, with a personnel that will inspire confidence to find out the true facts of the ratio in relation to the Resolutions passed at Ottawa on monetary matters and repeated at a Conference of Empire delegates of the World Economic Conference with a view to raising internal prices, be appointed immediately. Sir, the Honourable the Finance Minister can do it if only he cares. When I read the minute submitted by Sir George Schuster to the Monetary Conference at Ottawa, which, I dare say, you have read, I thought it was written by a nationalist of nationalists in this country. Sir George Schuster has eaten the salt of this country for some time, and I must say he acquitted himself loyally. I was agreeably surprised that an Englishman should have written that minute. It was all in our favour and it is up to him to continue that mentality under which he wrote that minute so long as he is in charge of the finances of this country.

As regards the issue of currency, I have to say a few words. It must be borne in mind that there are two kinds of currency notes in this country: One, of paper, and the other, of silver. Silver contained in one rupee is worth only five annas intrinsically. The paper currency comes to about 180 crores, and from a modest estimate of silver,—it was estimated to be about 400 crores or so, but, I am told large amounts have come back to the Treasury after 1927,—it will not be very wrong to estimate the silver currency or rupees with the public at 200 crores, and one can easily understand, if a fair portion of it comes back to the Treasury, what a huge loss Government will have to face. Therefore, Sir, due provision to cover that must also be thought of in regard to the reserve to be maintained.

The rupee redemption fund, inaugurated on the recommendation of the Hilton-Young Committee, is now proposed to be done away with, and so it is all the more necessary that Government should strengthen the gold resources of the country. I would, therefore, suggest, Sir, that 35 crores, which is contemplated to be kept in gold under this Bill, is too low and it ought to be increased to 70 crores at least. That is the minimum I would suggest. Sir, when I read the Report of the London Committee, particularly paragraphs 23 and 24, I was simply amused. In paragraph 24, they say that:

> "There is, moreover, a further argument that gold carries no interest, and any undue proportion of gold holdings would unjustifiably reduce the Bank's profits and so impose indirectly an unnecessary burden on the Indian taxpayer."

[Mr. K. P. Thampan.]

I can understand, Sir, English financiers, who abetted the flight of 150 crores worth of gold, becoming a party to such a statement, but there are several respectable Indians, some of whom are Members of this House, who are parties to such a statement.....

Mr. B. Das (Orissa Division : Non-Muhammadan) : But what can you expect from Modies and Cowasji Jehangirs ?

Mr. K. P. Thampan : Modies and Cowasjis are as much Indians as my friend, Mr. Das, and myself are.

Mr. B. Das : But they have vested interests.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : Sir, in England they have taken every care to accumulate the gold reserves. Gold in the Bank of England today is more than 170 millions. I believe, Sir, I am right in saying that it was only 120 millions or so two years ago, but since then they have increased the gold holding by 50 or 60 millions, and in the Treasury also, out of the 250 million exchange equalisation fund, a good proportion must be in gold alone. The details of this are confidential and not known to any one. On the whole, England has enormous quantities of gold in stock now. That is all to their good, I don't deny it, but my point is, why should not our Government also adopt the same principle, so far as India is concerned. If keeping or hoarding a large quantity of gold will only prevent the owner from getting interest, why should England forsake interest on all these large holdings of gold ? What is sauce for the goose must be sauce for the gander as well. I am reminded of a story of a Malabar Karnavan. The head of the tharwad or a joint family, who wields absolute control over the other members of the family, one morning found a junior member of his family eating a cucumber. He said : "My dear fellow, why do you eat the cucumber, you cannot digest it, give it to me", and so saying he took away the cucumber from him and ate it himself. Similarly, we are told by Englishmen : "Gold is not good for India, it is good only for us, come along and present it to us, you don't want it, because it is not good for you. Keep sterling securities, it will fetch interest". (Laughter.) That is a mentality, Sir, of which one ought to be ashamed.

Then, Sir, another point I have to urge is that sterling securities in the reserve should be the minimum that is absolutely necessary, and they should be confined to sterling securities of England alone. It is provided in the Bill that securities of all sterling countries may be purchased by the Bank. May I say a word about the loans raised by Australia and Ireland ? Last year, Sir, Honourable Members will probably remember, Mr. Lang repudiated the loan which Australia owed to England, and Ireland also similarly repudiated the loan which was advanced to her for purchase of land for the Irish peasants. Therefore, who knows what other sterling securities other than of Great Britain will not be repudiated in the future and where is the safety in them ? It is better to avoid them. My point is that sterling securities of Britain alone should be purchased by the Reserve Bank and of no other country. I would not allow even the sterling securities of Britain but for the fact that we have to remit every year more than 30 million sterling to England by way of interest, pay and pensions, and the large dealings of the commercial people in British sterling. Therefore, it should be specifically provided that sterling securities of countries other than that of Britain should not be handled by this Reserve Bank. The death knell of any form of exchange standard in Europe was rung when, on the 21st September, 1931, countries like Holland, Belgium and Switzerland found that in their greed to earn 1½ per cent. in interest they lost about 25 per cent. in the principal. Therefore, care should be taken to avoid such mistakes. That is all I have to say on that.

Now, Sir, with your indulgence, I shall briefly advert for a moment to the question of contract with the Imperial Bank. Sufficient has been said already, but I think it will bear a little more repetition, and if I am not becoming tiresome, I should like to say this. When the last Reserve Bank Bill was introduced in this House, the term of contract with the Imperial Bank was not over, there were still three more years to run, and it was only proper that, if, before the expiration of the period of the contract, we had to cancel the contract, sufficient compensation ought to have been given to them. That situation no longer exists, the contract is now over, and there is neither a moral nor a legal claim for this special treatment proposed to be given to the Imperial Bank. Already they have derived tremendous benefits and advantages on account of the large reserves which Government kept with them, and it is entirely on account of, and, with the assistance of, such huge sums of Government money that they have been able to build such a substantial reserve for that Bank. Sir, I hold that the Imperial Bank have no claim whatever for special treatment and should be dealt with on the same terms as the other Banks of this country. Another reason advanced was that, out of the several branches that were started by the Imperial Bank according to the terms of the agreement, some were not paying. They said categorically that most of those branches would begin to pay after the year 1930. That time is also over. We are now in the year of grace, 1933, and there is no reason why an argument like that should weigh with us. The Imperial Bank has had several restrictions imposed on it by Statute with regard to its dealings, and when those restrictions and limitations are removed, as is contemplated by the Amending Bill, it will become a formidable rival to all indigenous Banks in this country, and if it chooses to do so, it can crush any business. I would, therefore, suggest that that Bank should be left alone. Of course, it can be appointed as an agent of the Reserve Bank, provided it can compete on level terms with the other indigenous banks. So far as the agency is concerned, I would suggest that the Resreve Bank should invite tenders from all indigenous banks that satisfy certain criteria, and then appoint them as agents. If any particular bank satisfies the conditions that the Reserve Bank imposes for that work, and undertakes to transact the work on a minimum commission, then there is no reason why that bank should not be appointed as the agent for the area it operates. The very fact that a particular bank is an agent of the Reserve Bank goes a long way to inspire confidence in the bank amongst the public. Why should not Government give such help and patronage to all banks ? Then only the banking system can be fostered and will take deep root in the villages and other remote places. It is provided that all those banks, mentioned in the Schedule, should keep with the Reserve Bank a percentage of their deposits. I do not understand why it should be made obligatory on all banks. There are certain banks that might not want rediscounting facilities. That is the only help that is proposed to be given to these banks. Suppose, for instance, the Nedungadi Bank, in my part of the country, does not want any kind of rediscounting facilities, what is the compensating benefit that it gets by being forced to keep a few lakhs in the Reserve Bank ? It loses interest, and how is the bank or the shareholders benefited ? But if the Government will provide a machinery as recommended in the Banking Enquiry Committee's report for the check and scrutiny of the banks embraced in the reserve system, that will be another matter. Unless some thing of that kind is provided which will inspire confidence among its shareholders that the bank is looked after properly by the Reserve Bank and that it is functioning properly, this obligatory deposit would be a penalty and burden on those banks. It would be a real hindrance to the working of small banks. I would, therefore, request the Select Committee that due consideration is given before the proposal is adopted universally for all banks.

Let me refer to one more point ; it is with regard to keeping the banking department and the issue department separate. It is said by those who are competent to pronounce an opinion on this that this method is old, very inelastic and obsolete. In this connection I would invite the attention of the House to a paragraph written by the Economist of London in a recent issue. In the course of a large article criticising the proposals for the setting up of a Reserve Bank for India, it says :

"The Committee, however, has followed the analogy of the Bank of England, not merely by recommending a shareholders' bank, but in proposing, somewhat pedantically, the separation of the Issue Department from the Banking Department. It is difficult to see that anything is gained by reproducing in India a British tradition of 100 years ago which has never had anything much to recommend it, and is quite out of touch with modern central banking constitutions."

The Macmillan Committee, which was appointed in England to enquire into the finance and industry of that country, at page 143, paragraph 331, of their Report, say :

"The only solid reason, apart from the advantages of continuity and the dislike of changing ancient forms, has been of a different character, namely, that the separation of the Issue Department has provided a convenient formula for dividing the profits of the Bank of England between the Treasury and the Bank itself. This division might of course have been made in a different way and is so made in other countries."

Further on, they say :

"If, however, it is desirable to calculate the Treasury's share of the profits in this way, it is not necessary to have the paraphernalia of the Issue Department for the purpose. The same formula could be used without a separation of the departments."

In paragraph 335, the Committee say :

"... the separation of the Departments has not, in our opinion, led to a satisfactory formula for fixing the Bank's payment to the Treasury."

In paragraph 338, they give a form of schedule, for the publication of the Bank's Statements, which would satisfy all the conditions they think sufficient for the purpose. I do not understand why advantage should not be taken of the findings of the Macmillan Committee, not only in this respect but also in other respects, if their proposals will not conflict with the conditions of this country.

I find in the present proposals that the branch of the Reserve Bank in London which was provided for in the last Bill is now proposed to be dropped. I suggest that the London branch should be maintained. I may be told in reply that all central banks have their dealings in other countries only through their respective central banks, that, for instance, the Central Bank of France or the Bank of Belgium or the Netherland Bank has no agency in London. But the relations between India and England stand altogether on a different footing, and the position of India is unique. Unlike those countries we have got to make enormous remittances to England and a nominal percentage on the total amount would be a large fabulous amount. Economically also it would be better to keep a branch there. But there is another aspect which is more important. I am afraid that if the agency is entrusted to the Bank of England, the dominance of that Bank over the destinies of India will be very difficult to get over. The Bank of England is naturally bound to act only in the interests of Great Britain and not in our interest. Recent instances have proved it. So, we must avoid contact of this kind with the Bank of England. It is said that the Reserve Bank will have reciprocal arrangements with the Bank of England. It really sounds grand. What are those reciprocal arrangements ? I do not know whether the Reserve Bank, as the agent of the Bank of England, will be able to derive a profit of even one pie in a year. At any rate, there would be vast difference between the commission that the Bank of England might get as the agent of the Reserve Bank of India and that got by the Reserve Bank of India as the agent of the Bank of England in this country. As long as India is a dependency of Great Britain and until and unless Dominion Status with economic independence is given to this country, it is better to keep our own branch in London.

These are, Sir, the main points that I wished to urge before this House, but, before I sit down, I would like to say a word or two about the Joint Committee which is proposed to be constituted. There is a specific amendment on the Agenda to the effect that members who have attended the London Committee should be excluded. I myself had an idea of moving an amendment like that. They have had already their say in the matter and there is Sir George Schuster in the Committee to put forward their viewpoint. After all, we are going to have only 24 members in the Committee. Half of it will go to the Council of State. There will be thus only 12 from this House. If all the seven people, who were on the London Committee, get seats there, the new Members from the House will be only five and they will not be able to carry their point when the question of voting comes. I know it is entirely in the hands of the several Parties, but I must say, I am very anxious that those people who went to London should be excluded.

Mr. B. Das : Except Sir George Schuster.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : Of course he has to be there. Without the Prince of Denmark, there can be no play of Hamlet. Sir, let me warn the members of the Select Committee that the country is looking forward eagerly as to how they acquit themselves in this crucial matter. It is, I need hardly say, a matter of vital importance to the economic welfare of this country, a matter of life and death to every one of us. On the results of their deliberations and conclusions will depend the prosperity and welfare of the 350 millions of this land.

Mr. R. S. Sarma (Nominated Non-Official) : Sir, fools rush in where angels fear to tread. (Ironical Cheers.) In spite of the ironical cheers, I am not immodest enough not to appreciate that I find myself in that position today, but my friends will soon hear the reason why I have been emboldened to intervene in this debate and to put before this House one or two points of view. It is the boldness that I have acquired from a remembrance of the tragic difference between the conditions when the stage was set for a discussion of this character in 1927 and what they are today, the tragic difference between the gigantic financial brains that took part in those days in this discussion and those who have been taking part in it for the last two days, between the lively character and the excitement that debate generated and the dull and uninspiring manner in which the discussion has been going on and the lack of interest displayed in this debate as evidenced by the thinness of the non-official Benches during the debate on a question which Mr. Thampan just now characterised as a matter of life and death to the nation.

Sir, from the trend of the debates that has been going on for the last two days, it is obvious that there is some sort of unanimity of agreement and concurrence on the main outlines of this Bill which Sir George Schuster introduced in this House. Of course, Sir, there have been differences of opinion regarding the details of this Bill. It is noteworthy, Mr. President, that the Parliamentary Paper shows ample evidence of a great amount of unanimity at the London Conference, which, I want this House to remember, consisted of a financial pandit, a man who is acclaimed as the fittest man to be the first Financial Minister under the Swaraj Government, Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas, the Chairman of the Board of Directors of the premier Indian Bank, of which India is proud, the Central Bank of India, Sir Phiroze Sethna, the Editor of the best Nationalist and the most Swarajist Indian paper in this country, Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar. I want the House to remember that these gentlemen attended the Conference and signed the report.

Sir, the main attack on this Bill has been from the point of view that it is a Shareholders' Bank. When we buy Ford motor cars, we all know that the spare parts we get are all of standard specifications. Therefore, when we are going to establish a Reserve Bank, we have got, so to say, standard specifications available and, from that point of view, I will put a few questions to those critics who have been against the shareholders' scheme during the last two days. Is it or is it not a fact that the Bank of England is a Shareholders' Bank ? What about the Federal Bank of the United States ? What about the Bank of France, the Bank of Netherlands ? Some of my friends may say that there are other banks which are State Banks. To them I would say that these countries are already contemplating the change from a State Bank to a Shareholders' Bank. This is the condition prevailing all over the world and I do not understand why India alone should launch on a new and novel experiment of a State Bank. With regard to the abuses that have been pointed out about the Shareholders' Bank, has not this Bill provided against such abuses by means of provisions intended to check such abuses and prevent a caucus from getting control of this institution ? Is it not also significant that people like Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas and Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar, who were in favour of a State Bank in 1927, are now warm supporters of a shareholders' concern ? Is it not also significant that the people who initiated the agitation in 1927 for a State Bank should also be warm supporters of a Shareholders' Bank ? When that is so, why should we not send this Bill to the Select Committee and get whatever improvements we want from the popular point of view ? In this connection, a most fruitful suggestion has been given to the Members of this House who have had the benefit of listening to a very brilliant and illuminating address by the Editor of Finance given two days ago. Government should introduce a provision taking power to purchase the shares at a price specified from now, if it is found at the end of 10 or 15 years that there are abuses in a Shareholders' Bank. That ought to dispel all fears.

Mr. B. Das : Did you understand that speech of the Editor of Finance ? He was for a State Bank.

Mr. R. S. Sarma : I am not dealing with the other portions of his speech except the one where he dealt on this point. We have come to a stage when we have got to realise that Government want a Shareholders' Bank and nothing is going to change that. When we are faced with that necessary evil, what is the best compromise between Government and the popular side ? If, in the next 10 or 15 years, it is found that the Shareholders' Bank lends itself to abuses, Government can exercise their option to buy up the shares and convert it into a State Bank, but, if on the other hand, it is going to be a good concern and if it goes to be a confidence inspiring institution, then the Government may not exercise that option. The Government can easily provide a clause like that and it will be in keeping with the provisions contained in similar agreements. It is not a novel procedure at all. A clause like that is inserted in all the agreements between Government and the railway. I place this suggestion, Sir, before the Finance Member for his acceptance.

Sir, there is another thing to which I should like to refer. It is the criticism that has been levelled against the Imperial Bank. My friend, Sir Kenneth MacDonald, who had been a silent spectator, must have been tremendously amused at the criticisms and the heaps of abuses that were showered on him when Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya and Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad criticised his policy. Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad made a very novel complaint against the Imperial Bank of India when he said that it did not give money on land securities and buildings and things of that kind. From the mere point of view of the question of banking, I do not think anything more absurd was ever put forward.

Mr. B. Das : Do you borrow money from the Imperial Bank ?

Mr. R. S. Sarma : I have never done that. I have always had an honest living. I have never indented on any Party, on any Raja, on any Maharaja or on any other person for my trips either to England or to Simla or for doing my public business, like my friend, Mr. Das.

Mr. B. Das : Do you aspire to be a Governor of the Imperial Bank ?

Mr. R. S. Sarma : No, Sir ; I have no such ambition at all. To go back to my point. Do we find in England banks advancing money on land securities ? If my friend, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, wants money on land securities, he must bring a motion in this House for a land mortgage bank and he will find great support for his proposition in this House.

Secondly, with regard to the Directorate. Does my friend realise that even now, I think, I am safe in saying, 50 per cent. of the Directorates of the Local Boards are Indians and even today two out of the three boards have got Indians as their Chairmen ? Does he realise that the last annual meeting of the Imperial Bank of India was presided over by an eminent businessman, Rai Bahadur Badridas Goenka ? With regard to the question of the Indianisation, so far as I remember, I think Mr. Bunbury, presiding over the Imperial Bank annual meeting year before last, made it plain that they are resolved not to have any more recruits from England, and, for the last four years, all appointments have been made here. I have no brief for the Imperial Bank, but as there are certain misgivings about it, I thought I could correct them to the extent to which I have knowledge of the affairs of that Bank. From that I should not be understood to mean that the agreement which the Imperial Bank should have with the Reserve Bank should be of the same character as it was in 1927. Things have changed enormously since then, and, therefore, any agreement that the Reserve Bank should have with the Imperial Bank ought to be changed in the light of the new circumstances that have now arisen.

Sir, I have nothing more to say except a word or two on behalf of the party I have the honour to lead at the moment. The Central Party always stands for conciliation and a policy of Responsive Co-operation. We have never been the followers of a policy of abject servitude to Government or blind obstruction for obstruction's sake. Believing in that policy, our Party has decided unanimously that we must let the Bill go to the Select Committee and that it is no use accepting the motion for circulation. At the same time, we do ask Government and appeal to them that they must accept all reasonable amendments that may be brought forward by the popular party, so that, when the Bill comes out of the Select Committee, it will be a proof against the machinations and the manœuvrings of vested interests.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad (Patna and Chota Nagpur cum Orissa : Muhammadan) : Sir, I do not propose to go into the history of this case, nor do I wish to discuss the character and capacity in which our representatives attended the Committee in London. My motto has all along been : Let past be passed and be cautious for the future. I can only say that the majority of the members who went to London were invited by the Government. So, without wasting a single minute, I wish to say something in the shape of practical suggestions.

In the first place, I wish to say that whether we support or oppose the motion, it is immaterial ; this Bill is now going to a Joint Select Committee and there is no other alternative. It is also obvious that, under the present rules, there is no other alternative but to have an equal number of Members of both the Houses. My suggestion to Government, therefore, is that it is better for them if they would try to get more official members from the Council of State without giving them the right to vote. If this suggestion is accepted, then I think many troubles will be solved. It is for the Government now to consider this question. You can have 14 men from the Council of State out of whom seven should be elected Members and seven official Members, the official Members not having the right to vote. In that case, many grievances will disappear.

Now, I want to refer, Sir, only to paragraph 3 of the Report of the Committee. There they say :

> "We fully accept the principle that the Reserve Bank should be free from any political influence."

Sir, this is very objectionable. In the garb of this political influence, Government are taking away many things from the hands of a popular control. In the garb of this political influence, they want to have a Statutory Railway Board and, in the garb of this political influence, they want to have this Bank as a Shareholders' Bank. Had not the Postal Department been a loosing concern they would have a Postal Board as well, to keep it away from political influence. What I mean to say is that the idea of the Shareholders' Bank is in itself not out of political influence. The Committee themselves have said that they fully accept the principle that the Reserve Bank should be free from any political influence. For the acceptance of any scheme, there must be some suggestions. Without suggestion, there can be no acceptance ; and where have those suggestions come from ? The reply is obvious, from the political influences in England. If you will see the Bill, you will find that the Governor General has been given so many powers, that this Bill cannot be said to be out of political influences.

Now, I come to the question whether the Reserve Bank should be a Shareholders' Bank or a State Bank. I have studied this Bill very carefully and I could not decide whether this is a State Bank or a Shareholders' Bank. As the Governor General has been given so much power of control, I think it is true to say that it is not a Shareholders' Bank at all. At the same time, I do find that the shareholders have also been given some right and, in that case, it becomes a Shareholders' Bank. So, it is neither a Shareholders' Bank nor a State Bank. The Governor General will receive instructions from the White Hall through the Cypher Bureau of the Political Department and will control the Currency of India. (Applause.) It will be true if I say that this is a Bill for having a Governor General's Bank.

If you look to the Directorate, you will see that the shareholders will have no hand in this Bank at all. I will refer only to this much at this stage, namely, that there will be eight Directors elected on behalf of the shareholders and four Directors nominated by the Governor General in Council and one Governor who will also have the right to vote. So there will be five votes, one for the Governor who will be nominated by the Governor General and four votes for the Directors who will be nominees of the Governor as against eight votes for shareholders. So the proportion will be 8 : 5. Now, sub-clause (4) of clause 8 says :

> "The Directors nominated under clause (b) and clause (d) of sub-section (1) shall hold office during the pleasure of the Governor General in Council."

What will happen is that all these four nominated Directors will always be present just as we find in this House the nominated officials being present always. If any one is ill or goes out on business, then the Government take his resignation and nominate another man. What will happen in the case of elected Directors ? If anyone of the elected Directors falls ill or goes out on business or is sent out to some Conference, either here or in London, what will happen ? There will be one vote less on the elected side. After all, these elected Directors are all human beings and they may fall ill.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : May I point out to the Honourable Member that if an elected Director is absent, there is a special provision in the Bill that a substitute will be appointed by the local Board.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Certainly it is true. But there is one trouble. The local Board must have sufficient time to elect a substitute. Supposing an elected Director falls ill and sufficient notice is not given to the local Board to elect a man before a meeting of the Directors takes place, then the elected side will have one vote less. But there is no such difficulty for the Government. Their number will always remain the same. Another point is that many of these seats on the Directorate will go to Europeans and most probably they will support the other four Directors nominated by Government. Further, the Government will have the casting vote. So, Sir, the Government will always command a majority on the Directorate. I will leave this point for a minute.

[Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad.]

I will read out what the report says :

"The best device which the practical experience of other countries has evolved for achieving this object is that the capital of the Bank should be held by private shareholders, and we recommend that this plan should be adopted in the case of India."

First of all I want to say that other countries also are losing faith in the Shareholders' Banks. Greece and Bulgaria are thinking now to have State Banks. Further, in this connection, I want to say that the condition in India is quite different from that of other countries. In India, apart from Indians, there are Europeans and domiciled Europeans, there are Anglo-Indians and there are so many other interests that it is very difficult to say that the conditions in India are the same as those in Europe. In the Bank of England, as far as I know, not a single Indian holds a share. They have a convention that only British subjects can have a share. Here, in this Reserve Bank, many Europeans and Anglo-Indians will have a large number of shares.

Further, this Bill is worse than the Bill which was placed before the Assembly in 1927. You will find that the share value in the old Bill was Rs. 100, but, in the present Bill, it is raised to Rs. 500. Further, there is another restriction that there will be votes to the extent of only two shares. I do not understand the benefit of this arrangement. Why not have Rs. 1,000 as the share value for a vote ? I suggest that this question also should be considered in the Committee and that they should fix the value of each share at Rs. 100. India, after all, is a poor country and it is very difficult for statutory Indians to buy shares of the value of Rs. 500. It is only the Europeans, domiciled Europeans and Anglo-Indians who will be able to purchase shares even to the value of Rs. 10,000, but the statutory Indians will find great difficulty in purchasing shares of such high value. I suggest that the Government should be kind enough to consider this question thoroughly in the Select Committee. Another difficulty is that in the old Bill the Directorate was 16 elected as against 7 nominated, whereas in this Bill it is 8 elected as against 5 nominated. This question also should be considered in the Select Committee.

Now, I come to clause 4 of the Bill which is very important. In this connection, I will discuss only clauses 4 and 8 and I want to say something on these two clauses. I find that Rangoon also has been included in the operations of the Reserve Bank. My information is that the question of separation of Burma has not yet been decided and so there must be a clause in the Bill as to what will happen if Burma is separated. I do not agree that, even after separation, the representatives of Burma should be on this Reserve Bank Board. I want that this Reserve Bank should serve purely the interests of India, and only Indians should be on the Directorate. The Reserve Bank should be governed by Indians and not by foreigners, whether they are foreigners coming from 6,000 miles away or from a distance of 200 miles, it does not matter. I want that this Reserve Bank should be purely for Indians, administered by Indians and for the benefit of Indians. (Applause.) I do not agree that Rangoon should be included.

In this clause, the qualification for a shareholder is given as follows :

"No person who is not domiciled in India, or a British subject ordinarily resident in India, or a company registered, etc.....".

I suggest that the clause should run as follows :

"Shares will be held only by Indians and by company registered, etc.....".

I submit that this word "domiciled" is not a happy one and, therefore, I suggest it should be "Indians". The clause further says :

"....or company incorporated by or under an Act of Parliament or any law for the time being in force in any of His Majesty's dominions and having a branch in British India."

This provision is very objectionable. It is a different question if we afford facilities to England. But we are not prepared to give those facilities to the dominions. On several occasions, in reply to questions in this House, we have found what the attitude of the dominions is towards us. Unless those dominions are prepared to give the same facilities to us and unless they incorporate a similar provision in their Reserve Bank Acts, I am not prepared to afford them any facility unless they are prepared to reciprocate. This question also should be considered by the Select Committee.

Now, I turn to clause 8 and that is a very important clause, about the Directorate. In this connection I will say that the Directorate is very small. It should be enlarged in the Committee.

Further, I find that there will be four registers in India, that is, Bombay, Calcutta, Delhi and Madras. They have provided two Directors for Calcutta, Bombay and Delhi, but I say that instead of giving two Directors for these registers, they should be split up and there should be one Director from each register ; and if there be two Directors for Calcutta and if they combine Assam, Bihar and Bengal together, I do not think there will be any chance for Bihar in this. The other trouble is that if you have two Directors from one register, then the electorate will be very large and it will be very difficult for Indians to control this. There are, after all, 165 lakhs of rupees for the shares and the sharers will be too wide, the electorate will be too wide and it will be difficult for Indians to control such a wide electorate. I suggest that the electorates should be small, that these men may be in a position to know the local condition, and they may be in direct touch with the men who have elected them and they may know the real condition of agriculture, etc. So I suggest that these registers should be split up and, instead of two from each, there should be one. The other suggestion is that the elected Directors should be more than eight as the number eight is too small. Further, Sir, you will find in the report of the Committee that special mention has been made that agricultural interests should be kept in mind and in this case I will say that there must be direct representation of that interest just as it was given in the previous Bill. I am very sorry that I do not agree with the principle of nomination. I have protested against that on several occasions and now also I want to suggest that some means should be sought in the Select Committee stage to see that representation for the agricultural interests should be assured on that bank. Further, in this connection, I will say that I have got no alternative but to give some chance to our European friends to have shares in this Bank. I would have been very glad if there was a principle laid down here that only statutory Indians should have shares in this Bank, but, if that is not possible, I will request my Honourable friends, who will attend the Select Committee, to try and restrict it in this way that, beyond a certain percentage, no shares should go to foreigners.

Mr. B. Das : What percentage would you suggest ?

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : I think 10 per cent. is quite sufficient to safeguard their interests and, if Government want to give them more, in any case it should not be more than 15 per cent.

Further, Sir, they have mentioned the mode of election and said that the shareholders would elect five men and then the local Board would elect representatives to attend the Central Board. But what is the use of this double election ? The three nominees there will certainly influence the election to the Central Board. This is very objectionable. There is no harm if they may have local Boards as well for other purposes if they want, but direct election should be given and shareholders should be given a chance to elect their representatives in that Bank direct, and not in this way that the representatives should first be elected and then these five representatives cum three nominees should elect to serve in that committee.

There should be some provision in the Act that the future Government may purchase shares at a fixed price if they chose to do so.

Then, Sir, I turn to clause 10. I find that they have mentioned the qualifications and disqualifications of Directors and members of local Boards. In this connection, they have added a proviso to sub-clause (2) :

" Provided that an official of a State in India (not being a Government official on deputation in the State) may be nominated as a Director or as a member of a local Board."

Here I have got a serious objection. If they debar the Government of India officials from being Directors, what is the use of giving a chance to the officials of the State to be Directors in this Bank ? After all, these officials in the States are in no way better than the officials of my Government. When my Honourable friend, Sir George Schuster, has got no chance of being a Director in that Bank, why should the Prime Minister of Patiala or Hyderabad or any other State be given that chance ? (Laughter.) Then, about meetings also, I will say that they restricted the meetings to Bombay and Calcutta. But there I do not agree and I will suggest for my Honourable friend's consideration that at least one meeting must be held in all the centres.

Now, Sir, they have mentioned in clause 15, sub-clause (4) :

" A Director so nominated to represent shareholders on the Bombay or Calcutta Register shall hold office for two years, and a Director so nominated to represent shareholders on the Delhi, Madras or Rangoon Register shall hold office for four years ", etc.

I cannot understand why these Directors, who will represent Calcutta and Bombay, will be there for two years, and for Delhi, Madras and Rangoon it will be four years. The only reason that I can think of is that there are more Europeans and Anglo-Indians in Bombay and Calcutta and there is.....

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Sir, may I explain to my Honourable friend that that provision merely refers to the first Directors nominated ? Different periods have to be put in so that all the Directors may not have to retire at the same moment. That is in accordance with the recommendation of the Committee and the provision was put in so that the Directors may retire by rotation.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Then, if that idea is accepted by the Select Committee, I will suggest that instead of having Bombay and Calcutta to retire first, it is better that the Directors from Delhi, Madras and Rangoon should retire first and Bombay and Calcutta afterwards. (Laughter.) Further, in clause 17, sub-clause (1), you will find this :

" (1) the accepting of money on deposit without interest from, and the collection of money for, the Secretary of State in Council, the Governor General in Council, Local Governments, States in India, banks and any other persons ; "

Here if " Local Governments " mean the Local Governments of the provinces, I will say that local authorities like District Boards and Municipalities should also be given a chance to keep their money, and certain provisions should be made here for that.

I find in sub-clause (5) of the same clause :

" (5) the making of advances to the Governor General in Council repayable in each case not later than three months after the close of the financial year in respect of which the advance has been made ; "

It is not said whether the money will be advanced to them with or without interest. What is happening today is that these Local Governments are taking money from the Central Government and they are not paying a single pie as interest. And, even after closing the financial year, the amount remaining is taken as overdraft and then these Governments pay the interest. So I want that it must be clearly defined whether this advance under this sub-clause will be with or without interest.

One other point I have to say is this. I refer to clause 28 which says :

" Notwithstanding anything contained in any enactment or rule of law to the contrary, no person shall of right be entitled to recover from the Governor General in Council or the Bank the value of any lost, stolen, mutilated or imperfect currency note of the Government of India or bank note : "

I want to say in this connection that the Reserve Bank note should have numbers in more than one place ; and, further, there must be some clear mention that if, by any chance, some mutilation takes place, in that case there must be some provision that these notes must be taken up by Government and the money given to holders of these notes.

As regards the Imperial Bank, I support the idea which has been mentioned—I do not want to repeat the same argument—but I say that two things must be considered : Government should not try to have this Imperial Bank in a privileged position. All the banks should be treated in the same way ; and, further, the time which has been mentioned here, namely, 25 years, is too long ; and if, for any reason, Government want to have this Bank, then it should be for ten years for the present ; and we should not tie the hands of the Directors who will come afterwards ; we must give them sufficient chance to decide whether they want to have the Imperial Bank as their agents or not.

[Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad.]

Again, turning to page 26, Schedule III, I will say that the proposed compensation which is to be given to the Bank must be omitted. What for are we giving them compensation ? It was said in the year 1928, as I have come to know, that the proposal for compensation was raised, because the Imperial Bank of India had some contract with the Government of India and, as that period had not elapsed, compensation was proposed : but, in the present case, that is not so, and so I will request the Government to consider this point whether this Imperial Bank deserves any compensation or not. I request my friends who will attend the Committee to fight for this, that compensation should not be given to the Imperial Bank.

The only other point which I will press before I sit down is that this register should be split up : it should not be two Directors from one register, and the shares should not be transferable ; if shares are transferable, then there will be no use of having separate registers, because, within a few years, everything will be hotchpotch and the provision of the allocation of shares they have mentioned here will disappear. (Applause.)

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till Half Past Two of the Clock.

The Assembly re-assembled after Lunch at Half Past Two of the Clock, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) in the Chair.

Rai Bahadur Lala Brij Kishore (Lucknow Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, the establishment of a Reserve Bank for India will be a step forward in the development of India's financial machinery and will, I think, assist that gradual and silent revolution in India's economic life which promises to bring higher opportunities of life and higher standards of living to every one in the country. Sir, the interest of the country also demands the early creation of an institution which will be the central reservoir to which all pubilc balances should belong and the central fountain which will feed all fruitful national activities throughout the country.

It has often been argued that Indian interests demand a State Bank rather than a Shareholders' Bank.

It has been argued that a Shareholders' Bank will run, not on national lines, but in the interests of those capitalists who finance the Bank. This, I submit, Sir, seems to be an incorrect view. If the shareholders choose a selfish path, the Legislative Assembly is not barred from raising public opinion against this policy, and compel the shareholders to bow before the nation's demands.

Now, Sir, coming to the actual purchase of shares, I find that the Bill makes no provision to safeguard against an undue predominance of non-Indian interest. This point is of very great importance and is likely to be discussed at length in the Select Committee. I will not urge the closing of the door altogether for foreign capitalists—for, I believe that for at least some time to come we do require their help and guidance.

One word as regards the link with sterling. Since 1931, the rupee has been linked to the sterling. Whether that act was wise or not does not concern us at present : that exists today. The Bill very clearly and wisely states that the working of the Reserve Bank on the sterling basis is only provisional. Till the world returns to more stable economic conditions, it is undesirable to alter the standard of the currency or the exchange ratio. It is, therefore, inevitable that a Reserve Bank started today can work only on a sterling standard basis. There is no other alternative. I would make one suggestion and it is this, that the Reserve Bank should recognise the status of the Co-operative Banks. These Banks, I need hardly add, are more important to the common people, especially the agriculturist class, than other Banks. The Reserve Bank will thus be enabled to come into direct contact with the masses of India. The Reserve Bank will certainly prove much more beneficial to the agriculturists if it extends its recognition to the Land Mortgage Banks and Agricultural Banks. India is primarily the land of the agriculturists. Any scheme of Central Banking, which does not take them into account, cannot meet our requirements to the fullest extent. Any scheme, which makes the financial position of the agriculturist easy, must be welcomed. It is in this hope that I strongly appeal that the Select Committee may be pleased to consider favourably the recognition of Agricultural Banks and Co-operative Banks. Sir, with these few observations, I support the proposition of the Honourable the Finance Member who, I think, is unquestionably one of the ablest financial experts of India. I also appeal to him to give to India the benefit of his entire ability and wisdom in solving this correctly in the Select Committee.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Before other Honourable Members are called upon to speak, the Chair would draw the attention of the House to certain amendments that stand in the name of the Honourable Mr. Jog who has come back to his seat just now. The first amendment of Mr. Jog reads like this :

" Each House should have a Committee of its own. The Committee of the Assembly should consist of 14 members."

The motion that is before us is under a specific Standing Order for constituting a Joint Committee of both Houses, and the Chair would like to know what exactly is the meaning of this amendment.

Mr. S. G. Jog (Berar Representative) : Sir, I quite realise the point raised by the Chair, but this is an amendment. The motion before the House is that there should be a Joint Committee of both the Houses. This is an amendment to that in which I say that the selection of members of the Committee should be restricted only to this House, and it should not be a Joint Committee of both the Houses. That is the purpose of my amendment.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : But the Honourable Member says that at the end of the motion the following be added. The motion is a recommendation to the Council of State that a Joint Committee be set up. The motion, as worded by him, has absolutely no meaning, and, therefore, it is out of order.

The next amendment standing in the Honourable Member's name is like this :

" That at the end of the motion the following be added : ' The non-official Members who have already taken part in the London Conference should not sit on this Committee '."

[Mr. President.]

A Committee of this House, whether a Joint Committee or a Select Committee, is set up by a motion of this House, and every Honourable Member, whoever he is, has got the right to sit on that Committee, if he is elected to that Committee, and no Resolution of this House can debar any individual from sitting on a Committee like that, and, therefore, that amendment is also out of order.

Then, the third amendment is :

"That in the motion, after the words 'consist of 24 members' the words 'that out of the number allotted to the Council of State the majority should consist of elected Members' be added."

Under Rule 42, this House can only recommend to the Council of State that a Joint Committee be set up, and this House has no power to restrict the right of the Council of State to determine the composition of that Committee, and, therefore, this amendment is also out of order.

Mr. N. N. Anklesaria (Bombay Northern Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, in supporting the motion of the Honourable the Finance Member and in opposing the amendments to his motion, I wish to say a few words with the indulgence of this House. Of course, I do not wish to say anything, nor am I competent to do so about the various matters of banking technique which are connected with the Bill. I wish to restrict myself to a few observations on matters of general interest to which Honourable Members have directed their attention.

The first point which I will address myself to is as regards the remarks of certain Honourable Members in respect of the personnel of the London Committee. I would have avoided this subject, but unfortunately or fortunately I had myself the honour of serving on that Committee, and I think it is in the fitness of things that this House should hear me in connection with the remarks addressed against the personnel of that Committee and its activities in London. In the first place, I think every remark addressed against the personnel of the Committee is absolutely irrelevant and foreign to the present matter. It is the work of the Committee with which we are concerned. It is not the personnel at all. What matters if the report has been signed by X, Y, Z, or P, Q, R ? It does not matter in the least. Secondly, my Honourable friends who have criticised the personnel of the Committee do not seem to have noticed that on that Committee sat men of the widest possible banking and currency experience,—the best experts in currency and banking matters which the British Empire can claim, so far as the Europeans were concerned, and as regards the Indian element, I must say that the Indian element contained men who were in daily and intimate contact with banks and banking operations. I think the Honourable gentlemen, who criticised the personnel of the Committee, ought to have suggested a better personnel so far as the Indian element was concerned. My Honourable friend, Mr. Sarma, has already spoken about the Indian element in the Committee and I will say nothing more about it.

I could not understand what object could possibly have influenced my Honourable friend, Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya, in dilating on that topic. He talked of the personnel being a bridal party and so on, and the only thing I could think of which could have induced him to say what he has said is that he was dissatisfied at his not being himself on the London Committee. I may assure him that I would have been the very first man to vote for his inclusion not only in the bridal party, but for his inclusion in the palanquin and for his taking the place of the cat therein.

My Honourable friend, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, and others dilated on the topic whether the Bank should be a State Bank or a Shareholders' Bank. If my Honourable friends had asked themselves and explained to themselves what were the purposes for which a Reserve Bank was constituted, I think they would have approached the question from a more correct angle of view. We all know that banks have to do with credit, and the two most important topics which come to our mind when we talk of credit are firstly, the creation of credit, and, secondly, the distribution of credit. If you look at the history of banking in Europe and everywhere else, you will find that the functions of creation of credit and distribution of credit were all concentrated in one hand, but, subsequently, on account of several inconveniences, the State took upon itself the function of creation of credit and left the banks to deal with the ordinary business of banking and distribution of credit. So far as India is concerned, after 1862, the State monopolised the function of the creation of credit leaving the function of distribution of credit to the banks. The history of the last 100 years of banking in Europe and other civilised countries shows that this dual system of creation and distribution of credit respectively by two different agencies has led to very undesirable results, and those results have been summarised in the book from which my Honourable friend, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, read,—Keynes' Indian Currency and Finance, at page 235. There are three pages of it and I do not propose to read them. If we regard the question from that angle of view that the functions of creation of credit and distribution of credit in the best interests of the nation should be united in one hand, I think the point about the bank being a State Bank or a Shareholders' Bank would be very easy of solution. For, in the first place, the State can assume this dual function only by taking upon itself the function of the distribution of credit and other functions of a bank of deposit. This the State cannot do unless it believes in State socialisation as is the case in Australia. On the contrary, the ordinary bank can take upon itself the creation of credit as is the case with regard to the large majority of banks in civilised countries. Therefore, I say, if you create a State Bank, the functions which the State cannot properly carry on will have to be entrusted to the State, while, on the other hand, if you create a Shareholders' Bank, the functions which a Shareholders' Bank can properly carry on will be entrusted to that Bank. Again, my Honourable friend said that a Shareholders' Bank would be more open to influences, political and otherwise, detrimental to the interests of the nation than a State Bank would be. I categorically deny the correctness of that position.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai (Sind : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : On what grounds ?

Mr. N. N. Anklesaria : These grounds are mentioned—I have only a short time at my disposal, but if my Honourable friend does want to know the grounds, he will find them in Thakur's "Organisation of Indian Banking", very well summarised at page 107. Thirdly, my Honourable friend ignored that India is a dependent country and the dependence of India, under the White Paper scheme, far from being eliminated, will, I am afraid, be put on more secure foundations than it is today. This dependence means that a bank controlled by the State will be controlled by the Secretary of State for India, which means by the Lombard Street interests. Once in half a century you can get a Finance Member of the strong mind and broad views and Indian sympathies of Sir George Schuster, but, I am afraid, under the Constitution, he would be powerless to effect anything which the Secretary of State would like to do. I need not mention the incidents of the episode of the gold standard which happened in Simla in 1931. For all these reasons, I say a Shareholders' Bank is preferable to a State Bank, but my Honourable friend, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, says that under the scheme of the Bill you do not eliminate the influence of Lombard Street. You get this influence working in Indian affairs through the Governor General. I quite admit that the Governor General has got powers of appointment and removal of Directors, but when you consider India as a country in which many conflicting interests have got to be reconciled—economic interests, the interests of races and to them under the new scheme will be added the interests of Native States, you have got to resort to one impartial authority who would secure justice and fair play and I would challenge anybody to name any institution which would better function for such a purpose than the Governor General in Council.

Mr. B. Das: Challenge accepted.

Mr. N. N. Anklesaria: Let me know it. I think I am not disclosing any secrets with regard to the deliberations of the London Committee when I say that I was the first man to raise this point in the Committee there. I said I would agree to the powers given to the Governor General in Council if I was convinced that those powers would be used primarily in the interests of India and not of England and, I must say, to the credit of the European members there, they at once agreed with me and they said that some provision must be made to give effect to what I said, and one of them suggested and everybody agreed that a provision should be found in the Instrument of Instructions enabling the Viceroy to use his powers in the present connection primarily in the interests of India. That matter is not to be found in the report, but I think Sir George Schuster will bear me out and, if he does so, I am quite sure, many of the fears expressed outside and on the floor of the House will be allayed. Lastly, as regards the State Bank, my Honourable friend cited various authorities in favour of a State Bank. I will just quote seven lines from the report of Dr. Visering quoted in Mr. Thakur's book on page 107 :

"The dangers attending the establishing of a State Bank have during the course of time been so universally admitted that at all the great international economic conferences held during the past six years warnings have been sounded against a State Bank and it was recommended that in countries where a State Bank was established it should be converted into an independent private bank, naturally, however, under sufficient supervision by the State."

If you read the report, it contains sufficient provision which would enable the State to supervise the workings of the proposed Reserve Bank. It has been said that in future if it is found that a Shareholders' Bank is not in the national interest, the Act must contain a clause enabling the Government to buy up the shares. I believe, though I am not quite sure, that there will be a provision in the Government of India Act about the constitution of a Reserve Bank, which I do not believe, I speak, subject to correction by the Government Members, it will be in the power of this House to amend or alter. This provision may be availed of by the political party in power for party purposes to the detriment of the real interests of the nation. Therefore, I say, a provision such as that suggested will be not only useless, but will be harmful, because, if such a provision were inserted, it would considerably depreciate the value of those shares and it is absolutely unnecessary. I would leave the matter to the British Parliament. The Parliament of Great Britain is omnipotent. It might do everything except make a man a woman or a woman a man. If Parliament is convinced that, in the interests of India, it is necessary to convert this Shareholders' Bank into a State Bank, I am perfectly sure the Parliament of Great Britain has power to do so. As there are many other speakers yet, I propose to resume my seat.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav (Bombay Central Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : I rise to support the motion brought forward by the Honourable the Finance Member to refer this Bill to a Select Committee, but I do not accept his recommendation of a Joint Committee. This House should be left independent in determining what should be the changes made in the present Bill. The other House has got a very small number compared with the number of Members of this House and, therefore, they can very easily go into Committee and thrash out the Bill when that Bill is placed before that House.

I am not in favour of the proposal made in the Bill that the Bank should be a Shareholders' Bank. That the Reserve Bank should be free from political influences has been laid down as an axiom. I am not going to say that the Bank or the Bank's Manager and the Board should be from the ruling party in the House of Representatives. That is not my idea. But I may point out that it is almost impossible to keep out politics out of a Reserve Bank either here or anywhere else. The Directors are men and they have got their political predilections and, when there is a change in the Directorate, there is some change, at all events, in the political outlook of the Directorate as a whole. May I ask a question : whether the Directors of the Bank of England are without politics like the Speaker of the House of Commons ? They are not required to be out of politics and, therefore, I do not think it will ever be possible to keep politics entirely out of the administration of the Reserve Bank. It is well known that the Governor of the Bank of England has frequent interviews with the Chancellor of the Exchequer and it is also well known that the Chancellor of the Exchequer is a puppet in the hands of his party. The Chancellor of the Exchequer belongs to a party and has to change his politics along with his party. Even such a strong bank as that of the Bank of England has to take the assistance of the Ministry whenever any important change is to be introduced and thus the Bank has to bow down to the present day politics. This will show that even the Bank of England is not outside the influence of politics. I shall here point out why so much stress has been laid upon the dictum that the Reserve Bank should be outside the influence of politics. From the year 1924, the Swaraj Party came into power, and, since then, Government found it difficult to carry on whatever they wished to carry. So, in the year jarring note may yet be heard from this side in regard to the motion which is before this House. I would suggest that the measure should be thrashed out in the Select Committee and those who differ will place their views before the Committee and specially before the Honourable Sir George Schuster. I have no doubt whatever that, just as he was able to compose differences in London in the Committee, even so he will be able to convince the doubters in the Joint Select Committee.

3 P.M.

[Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer.]

It is good by the way that the amending motion for an Assembly Select Committee was not moved at all. Good, because in matters of this kind, momentous as they happen to be, involving the fate and the future of this country, such a controversial amendment should not be discussed in this House as we must carry the confidence of the Central Legislature as a whole which I believe represents all that is sanest and safest in the country. The importance in regard to the setting up of a Reserve Bank arises from two points of view, financial and political or constitutional. If we want financial autonomy as we have been clamouring for it for years from platforms of the Congress as well as from industrial and other Conferences, it is time that we create an atmosphere of confidence in this country and, to create that atmosphere, we must, with one voice and with one mind, vote for this motion and not press it to a division. (Hear, hear.) I hope nobody has the least idea of pressing it to a division. At the conclusion of this debate, I have no doubt, within the limited opportunity open to the Honourable the Finance Member, he will meet the arguments that are necessary to meet.

One question that has emerged in this debate, one controversy, one seeming cleavage is as to the wisdom of a State Bank or the unwisdom of a Shareholders' Bank. Listening as I have been rather closely to the argumentative side of the speeches of the advocates of a State Bank, I notice one thing and that is this. They were anxious to examine the contact that would be established between the Government, its Finance Minister and the Reserve Bank. And, as in the scheme before us, the Shareholders' Bank is not to be drifted into uncharted seas, as the Governor General and the Finance Minister will have contact with the Reserve Bank, the advocates of a State Bank may possess their souls in patience. Some one, in the enthusiasm of his argument for a State Bank complained that the Bill before us was setting up something in the nature of "a Governor General's Bank". Well, what can be a State Bank, if you read the White Paper scheme and note the Governor General's powers under it, but a Government Bank, dominated by the Governor General? That must, incidentally be an argument in favour of the present Shareholders' Bank. However, those who honestly want a Government Bank know the Governor General's connection has not been cut off from the new scheme.

Sir, every attempt has been made to compose differences which arose in London and sometimes threatened to blow almost like a loo. I was present in one or two of these controversial discussions when Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas, the great stalwart of Bombay, true to his traditions, stuck to his guns. Then the Finance Member argued, the experts from England argued, and after a heated argument they saw light, the light, namely, the Bill before us. Even so, I am sure, in the Select Committee, our friends, who have got so much of heated argument and suspicion, will see that there is plenty of light and plenty of wisdom in the Reserve Bank Bill.

We are essentially politicians on this side of this House and that leads me to the political, the constitutional issue. Every one has read the White Paper scheme. It may be a pity, it may be a tragedy, that the White Paper scheme has placed us on the horns of a dilemma, but we have got to face the realities. Those who want central responsibility to come pari passu with provincial responsibility cannot stand up on the floor of the House and put obstacles in the way of the establishment of the Reserve Bank. If you want central responsibility, says the White Paper, you must agree to the setting up of a Reserve Bank. Even without that provision, I would have agreed to a Reserve Bank. Our leaders in days gone by, the late Pandit Motilal Nehru, Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya, and others did not dispute the necessity for a Reserve Bank. They realised it even before the White Paper scheme was on the horizon ; and, therefore, if they did not dispute that fact, I do not see why we should dispute it by pressing this motion to a division. (A voice : "We do not dispute that fact.") It will not and it cannot be pressed to a division after this healthy confession of the organiser in chief of the new Democratic Party (Mr. B. Das) which I wish all success in the Select Committee.

Sir, I personally do not propose to labour the objection to the provision in the White Paper scheme, because India wants a Reserve Bank, India which is far and away in its financial conditions, in its financial possibilities, in its financial equilibrium, head and shoulders superior to many other countries in these times which can boast of a Reserve Bank. That being so, we must have a Reserve Bank, and if I advocate a Shareholders' Bank as preferable to a State Bank, it is because nothing that has been said in this House or outside, nothing that has been recorded in the Bill can prevent this country, if it so chooses, after the experience of a Shareholders' Bank, from going in for a State Bank. The State will always have adequate powers for that purpose. Instead of starting with a State Bank, and the State Bank failing to fulfil expectations and regenerating as a Shareholders' Bank, it will be far better to start with a Shareholders' Bank ; and if experience proves and suggests that we should have a State Bank instead, we can have State Bank. It is a matter on which there can be no dispute and, I am sure, when the Finance Member rises to speak in his seat or rises to discuss in Select Committee, he will make this point absolutely clear.

Sir, we have been attacked not only in prose, but also in poetry. It was that banking patriot or patriotic banker, Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya, who reminded this House of a procession in London, a bridal procession that wended its way from India across the black waters. Sir, I was in this bridal procession. I was not a member of the Reserve Bank Committee. I have no aspiration,—he said there were aspirants galore on the floor of this House,—for a place on the Joint Select Committee. Therefore, I can speak with a certain amount of disinterestedness. The attitude of the Honourable the Mover of the 1927-28, they found that the Opposition was a very strong one and, therefore, this theory of keeping the Reserve Bank out of politics was started. But, Sir, things have changed to a very great extent since then. We know what the politics of the present House are and how easily pliable the House is to the whims and wishes of the Government Benches and, in the future Constitution, as adumbrated in the White Paper, care has been taken to have this House at the beck and call of the Government Benches. There will not be the nominated block, but, in order to have a steadying influence in the constitution of the House, the condition of Federation has been laid down. So, when the reperesentatives of the States will sit in this House in order to steady the politics of the House, then it will always be certain that the Government in power will have almost an autocratic authority. Also, to guard against the whims of the popular vote, eare has been taken to keep special powers in the hands of the Governor General and the Governors. So, I do not think there is, with all these precautions and special powers with the Federation coming on, any necessity of fearing the advent of politics in the constitution of the Reserve Bank. However that may be, that is the point of view I hold. If the constitution of the Bank is to be a Shareholders' Bank, then I will insist that care should be taken that a very large majority, about 90 or 85 per cent. of the capital should be kept in the hands of the Indian subjects of His Majesty. Sir, the Bank of England has been constituted as a capitalists' Bank and the capitalists of England have been ruling the whole nation. The Labour Party has been raising its head and the socialist politics are coming more and more into the administration of the country. The trend of legislation during the last 25 years shows that even the Conservatives and also the Liberals have been adopting some of the doctrines of the Labourites. In England, the Labour Party was twice the ruling party and, in future years, no one can say that the Labour Party will not come into power. The main doctrine of the socialists is to nationalise the instruments of production and distribution and banks, as a class, are very prominent as instruments of credit and distribution. So, Sir, there is a move to nationalise the banks and, I am quite sure that in the near future even the Bank of England will have to be nationalised. We have to take note of the fact that, although during the past generations the nations of Europe have been organising their Reserve Banks on the principle of Shareholders' Banks, yet the new banks that are coming into existence, such as the Bank of Australia, are purely State Banks. The Honourable the Finance Member is shaking his head and I speak subject to correction. But I understand that even in Sweden there is a sort of a mixture of Shareholders' and State Bank. Some such expedient might be resorted to here also. I would recommend that there should be a clause kept in the Bill itself that the State should be at liberty to purchase all the shares from the shareholders in about 10 to 15 years. This option may not be exercised ; but then there should be that provision. Such a provision has been kept in the contracts with the Railways that were built with the capital borrowed from outside and Government have exercised that option of purchase. A similar provision should be made in the constitution of the Reserve Bank. This is what I have to say with respect to a Shareholders' Bank. I do not want to take up the time of the House in going minutely into the other provisions of the Bill. The Select Committee will look into that and it is their province. But I would insist that the Reserve Bank should have a branch in London, if not for any other purpose, at least to train our young men in finance and in the operations of the money market. London has become the centre of the world's money market, and training for our young men at that centre is very beneficial and that ought to be provided for by having a branch of the Reserve Bank in London. It will not be advantageous to us to give the agency to the Bank of England. As the operations of India with England cover very vast sums, the commission itself will be sufficient to maintain a branch in London. For this purpose I insist, with all the emphasis at my command, that a provision ought to be made for opening a branch in London. We shall have to borrow, in the first place, a Governor and one of the Deputy Governors from outside. This provision ought to be made to train Indians for that job. After taking all the training that can be had in India, it is necessary that our young men should have a training ground overseas in England and, therefore, this branch is absolutely necessary. I hope the Select Committee will take note of this. We have the India House with the High Commissioner at its head. We ought to have our banking centre there in order to control financial matters. With a branch office in London, we shall be in a better position to negotiate our loans directly without the intervention of the Bank of England. We have found that the help of the Bank of England has not always been of advantage to this country. The Bank of England naturally would look to her own interests and to the interests of England in the first place. We cannot blame the bank for doing it. But if India wants to preserve her interests in the markets of England and also in the markets of the world, she must have her own financial institutions to safeguard them and not trust to the work which is done by an agency of the Bank of England. I need not say anything about the ratio of 18d. or 16d. My Leader, Sir Cowasji Jehangir, has sufficiently dealt with this question. But I have to support the view placed by Dr. Ziauddin the other day. In order to improve the finances of our country, the raising of the commodity prices is absolutely necessary. Until the prices rise, the peasantry and the mercantile community cannot raise their heads. In order to raise the commodity prices, the lowering of the currency is a very good device. England adopted that device when she went off the gold standard two years ago and America has also done so very recently. India no doubt profited to a certain extent when England went off the gold standard, because, in proportion, her currency was depreciated, but that is not sufficient. The advantage gained has passed away and our peasants and our merchants are in a very deplorable condition. In order to improve their condition, some drastic methods are necessary and I support Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad in saying that the lowering of the currency will be beneficial in these circumstances.

[Mr. B. V. Jadhav.]

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer (Rohilkund and Kumaon Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : The Honourable gentleman who just concluded his speech has followed the very wise lead of the Acting Leader of his party whose representative character even the Honourable Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya cannot deny. These very expressive words : " I hope the Select Committee will take note of this ", that and the other, these words, I believe, express in one sentence the bulk of opinion on this side of the House. Even though this sentence sums up our view, yet a circulation motion who believes in delaying, "sweet, reluctant, amorous delay" (Laughter), is worthy of a bridegroom outside a bridal procession. These lines struck me as he rose and spoke.

"Fresh as a bridegroom and his chin new reap'd
Showed like a stubble-land at harvest time;
He was perfumed like a milliner
And 'twixt his finger and his thumb he held
Paper sheets which ever and anon
He gave his nose and took away again."

As for Sir George Schuster, he can have the satisfaction that towards the close of his official career as Finance Member, he is leaving for his and our country, he has served to the best of his ability and his light, a rich legacy. Well may he feel :

"When I'm not thanked at all, I'm thanked enough;
I've done my duty and I've done no more."

Mr. A. Das (Benares and Gorakhpur Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, at the fag end of this debate and suffering from the disadvantages of being furthest away from you and not belonging to any party, I am obliged to you for giving me this opportunity to speak a few words on this important subject. I wish, Sir, that everybody in this House had taken the hint which you gave the other day of fixing a time limit. That would have saved much of the time being wasted and prevented also much of the repetition, and other Members would have had no grievance. I for one strictly wish to follow it and that is why I have kept the watch before me and I am not taking more than 15 minutes, or less, if possible. Sir, I have been connected with several local banks in the capacity of a Director for a number of years, but I prefer to speak on this question more as a lay Member than as one who has had experience of details.

I rise to oppose this motion for circulation and, in doing so, I wish to thank the Finance Member for his efforts in England and here, in order to put our country under a sure financial credit and to safeguard it. I claim that it is due to his efforts and also to the Government of India that at one time when the securities of India had gone down about 50 per cent. and it was rather at a low ebb, now they have gone up to about 85 per cent.; and I think it is the credit of this country, guided by the able Finance Member and supported by the English banks, that no sooner a loan is opened than it is more than oversubscribed.

One thing is important : whatever the future constitution of this country may be, the important thing is the connection with England. I am one of those who think that for some time to come, however advanced India may be, in order to be a safe and financially sound country, it is essential that it should keep up its connection with England at least for a number of decades. If that is the correct view—and I hope others will agree with me in this view—then I think it is all the more important that a Reserve Bank should be established which would be independent of any political atmosphere and will be guided on safe financial principles. It would be necessary for a few moments to go into the history of legislation on this point. It is a fairly old one, and the question has been discussed in public and outside, and no object will be served by delaying this motion any further and passing the motion for circulation. The history of legislation for a Reserve Bank may be briefly summarised. It is as old as 1836 when a scheme was submitted to the Board of Directors of the East India Company in order to have a Reserve Bank. The idea was of a Central Bank of India, and certain advantages were pointed out for the scheme. They were that it would facilitate the use of English capital and finance English commerce, that it would give stability to the monetary system of India and that it would be convenient to the East India Company in connection with its own financial arrangements. That proposal fell through. Then, in 1920, there was an International Conference held at Brussels and they recommended that in countries where there is no Central Bank of issue, one should be established. This has been put in practice in various European countries, and I am glad that our country also is going in for it. In 1920, also, as we all know, this Imperial Bank of India was established and the three Presidency Banks were amalgamated into one. In 1925, we had the Royal Commission on Indian currency and exchange, and it was presided over by Mr. Hilton-Young. That Committee went into this question and the report of the Commission was submitted in August, 1926. The Committee recommended among other things the creation of a Central or Reserve Bank which, in their opinion, should be a Shareholders' Bank. We must bear this in mind when we decide whether it is to be a Shareholders' Bank or a State Bank; and they also stated another very important point which is also under discussion today, that the Bank should be immune from political influence. Lastly, they also said that no Member of the Council of State or of the Legislative Assembly should act as a nominated Member. Then, in 1927, we had the Bill of Sir Basil Blackett which was ultimately dropped. In that connection I would invite your attention to the fact that the question of the Reserve Bank formed the basis of discussion in the Session at Delhi in January, 1927, and the Gold Standard and Reserve Bank questions were discussed together. The then Finance Member moved the Bill for establishing a Reserve Bank for India and there it was brought out that the currency question was intimately connected with the Reserve Bank, and that is why I say that the two cannot be separated. One of the points urged then—and I think it holds good today—was that the establishment of a Reserve Bank will add enormously to the importance and influence of India's position in the financial counsels of the world when the Reserve Bank takes its place side by side with the other great central banks of the Empire and of the United States and elsewhere. It was also shown then that the Imperial Bank of India, which came into existence in 1920, when the three Presidency Banks were amalgamated into one. It has been in existence now for thirteen years; and can it be denied that it has helped considerably to foster many Indian industries, particularly sugar in my part of the country? I wish to say here a word against the criticism which has been pronounced against the Imperial Bank that the shareholders have no voice. I ask, whose fault is it? The Directors are chosen by the shareholders and if the shareholders do not wish to assert themselves, it is not the fault of the Bank. But look at the devidend they are paying. They are paying over 14 per cent., and the value of their shares has gone up four or five times. Does it or does it not speak for the good conduct of the Bank?

Coming back to that Committee, that Bill was opposed by Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas and Mr. Birla; and, if we are to keep our connection with England, it seems to be inevitable for the present that we will have to follow in the matter of the gold standard what England is doing. Having regard to the very large amount of foreign capital invested here, whether it be for good or otherwise of this country, we have to follow it.

Then there is the point about the share capital. The Bill provides that it should be subscribed in India and that the representatives of the shareholders should be the majority of the Directors. I should imagine that it will be more in the interests of the country than to have any foreign capital included in it.

You also, Sir, took part in that discussion in 1927, and although you did not agree about the going off from the gold standard, you were definitely of opinion that so far as the constitution of the Reserve Bank is concerned, you whole-heartedly welcomed the proposals in so far as it aims at co-ordinating the currency and the credit policies of the country. You further said that the control of the currency policy and credit policy should be placed in the hands of an independent bank, which this Bill also enacts. Then, in 1929, the Government appointed a Committee to enquire into the banking conditions in India and they made certain recommendations on certain assumptions which were to the effect: that the Reserve Bank should be established by an Act of the Indian Legislature; that the capital of the Bank should be provided by the State; that the Bank would be under Indian control, and that it would be free from interference, executive or legislative, in its day to day administration. Then, another attempt was made to introduce that Bill, but finally it was dropped. In 1933, we all know that a Committee was appointed and we have the report of the London Committee before this House. Here I wish to decry, as far as I can, the policy and utterances of those who want to go behind the sacred agreements and the debts which have been entered into by this country. Nothing, to my mind, is more detrimental to the sound financial position of any country than to decry and go back upon past solemn obligations. We have to state the facts as they are. We have to stand by all the obligations that have been made in the past. If we will do away with those obligations which were made by those who were in power at the time, how is it likely that the future obligations will be respected by those who will enter into them now.

Another important point is, we have to work the new Constitution, whether that Constitution be for good or bad,—many think it is for bad, but still some think it is for good. But be that as it may, it is certainly some improvement on the old Constitution, and we are going to have it in India, whether it be for good or bad, and so long as our connection with England continues, it is our duty to work it as best as we can and make it a success.

Sir, I have already submitted that the currency question and the question of the State Bank are very closely connected, and we cannot have one without the other. It was brought out very forcibly in 1927, and in the Select Committee there were many important Members. I am glad that Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas is also a Member of this Select Committee.

Then, Sir, I wish to say a word or two more—because I find I have got only five minutes more to finish. I do think that there should be proper safeguards introduced into the Bill in order to help industrial and agricultural concerns. One other thing which I see introduced in the Bill is that, the U. P. has been ignored entirely in that there is no local Committee mentioned in the Bill. The U. P. is a very important trading centre, and, especially with the development of the sugar industry, I think it is only fair that a local Committee should be appointed for the U. P., and it may be located in one of the important centres of the U. P., either at Lucknow or at Allahabad, I don't mind which, but I certainly think that the U. P. should have a local Committee of its own, because it is a very important trading centre, and particularly the sugar industry in the next few years will make such great developments that I trust members of the Select Committee will see that a local Committee is appointed for U. P. We have already spent much time on this Bill, and I commend it to the Members of the House. There is one other suggestion that I wish to make, and that is, the Select Committee should not be confined to Members of this House and the Council of State. This is a measure on which depends the future life of our country for a long number of years. I would, therefore, suggest that on this Committee there should be not only members of both the Houses, but there should be the best financial brains in the country that may be available; they should be co-opted as members so that we may have the benefit of their advice, and when the Bill emerges finally from the Select Committee we may have the opinion of not only the Members of both the Houses, but also the opinion of the best financiers in India. With these few words, Sir, I support the motion and oppose the amendment.

Mr. B. Das (Orissa Division: Non-Muhammadan): Sir, I am particularly gratified to speak at this stage, as I was very anxious to hear the four representatives who represent vested interests in this House. We heard our friend, Mr. Mody, Sir, and I take this opportunity on behalf of the capitalists and opportunists to congratulate him on his able defence of an indefensible proposition in defence of the Government of India. Then we heard our friend, Sir Cowasji Jehangir, who represents the vested interest of the Indian capitalists. Then came my friend, Sir Leslie Hudson, representing the vested capitalistic interests of Europeans. Sir, you and I were at Geneva, and we knew that when it affects the interests of the capitalists, the employers all over the world combine—against whom?—against the Governments, against the nations of the world and the people of the world. Then we heard the nominated representative Mr. Sarma... Well, he spoke in his Master's voice like a gramophone. His constituency is Government. I do not want to take any notice of the nominated Members of this House. I want Mr. Sarma to stew in his own juice.....

Mr. R. S. Sarma: You will also be nominated very soon.

Mr. B. Das : Now, Sir, speaking in Sir Cowasji Jehangir's words, as a democrat of democrats, I support the principle of the Bill. If it be the principle that there should be a Reserve Bank for India, I support it. At the same time, I want to know what my friend, the Finance Member, has to say, as to whether the idea to have a State Bank or a Shareholders' Bank, is also part of the principle of the Bill. If that is so, then we, democrats, oppose this motion before the House. Sir, this Reserve Bank which my friend had the privilege to introduce and for which he received so many congratulations, even from my friend, Mr. Ranga Iyer,—I have not got the time to quote his speeches which he made in 1927—is a bogus Reserve Bank. Is that the Reserve Bank with a Gold Standard Currency which Sir Basil Blackett introduced in 1927 ? My Honourable friend, the Finance Member, says there should be no political influence. Was there no political influence exercised on behalf of the Government of India in 1927 ? What happened when the Ratio Bill was seen through ? There was my friend, Mr. Jamnadas Mehta, and he repeated it on the floor of this House, that pettycoat influences, dancing girls and Shari influences were used by the Government to rush the Bill through. I am merely repeating what has been repeated so often on the floor of this House. Then what happened ?

Mr. K. C. Neogy (Dacca Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : That is no political influence !

Mr. B. Das : I am sorry, I thought it was political influence. Petticoat influence is part of the political influence exercised by the Government then through their whips.

An Honourable Member : It was social influence.

Mr. B. Das : All right, but I say that political influence was exercised then, and Sir Basil Blackett had to resign, because he agreed with the Joint Committee Report of 1927 that the Reserve Bank should be a State Bank. My friend, the Finance Member, knows it. If he does not know it, let him ask his assistants to look up the files. "At this statge",—this is from one of his eminent Professors whom he occasionally quotes on the floor of this House—"At this stage, the Secretary of State for India cabled from London and put his foot down firmly on the negotiations proceeding among the various groups in the Assembly. The Finance Member stated in the Legislative Assembly on the 8th September 1927, that the Government had decided not to proceed with the further consideration of the Bill during that Session." Sir, I shall quote another line. "Sir Basil Blackett tendered his resignation, which was refused, and a communiqué, dated 27th October, was issued from Simla to the effect that Sir Basil Blacket was proceeding on special duty to England on 29th October for the purpose of discussing with the Secretary of State the details of a plan for the constitution of the Reserve Bank on the basis of share capital" .....

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : What book is that ?

Mr. B. Das : Sir, I am quoting from the Economic Journal—December Issue, 1928. The writer is Professor G. Findlay Shirras, who is the official writer on many matters of finance. I do not know whether the present Finance Member is fond of quoting him as Sir Basil Blackett used to quote him very often on the floor of this House.

Sir, we all know that Sir Basil Blackett was against the 18*d.* ratio. He could not tender his resignation at that time, but he received a telegram from Whitehall or from the Bank of England and he had to fix the ratio at 18*d.* I am only illustrating how political influences are exercised from Whitehall. Political influence is contained in the White Paper proposals and under those proposals, my Honourable friend brings forward this Bill and yet he wants that there should be no political influence from this side of the House. My Honourable friend, Sir Cowasji Jehangir, whose absence I deplore, as everybody else deplores, has gone back after delivering his speech. He only talked of 1928 Bill. He forgot or probably he was out of India in 1927. He forgot the denunciation and condemnation of the action of Whitehall and the Government of India in refusing to go on with a State Bank. Much argument has been advanced why it should be a State Bank, but the last speech that was delivered for a Shareholders' Bank was delivered by my Honourable friend, Mr. Ranga Iyer. I tried to be convinced, because he is one of my most intimate friends, but I could not be convinced. I do not like to advance any argument from this side of the House ; I will only quote one paragraph from a person who is held in very high respect throughout India and by every Member of this House. I refer to you, Sir. (Cheers.) I only quote a few lines from your speech which you delivered on the floor of this House in 1927 on the 30th August. I hope my Honourable friend, Sir George Schuster, will have the same respect as he has for your views at other times and accept this opinion of yours. Or let him explain to us why he is going contrary to your opinion :

"Our apprehension against having a shareholders' bank is this ; we cannot keep members representing European commercial interests from being shareholders in such a bank. And whether our apprehension is right or wrong, the impression remains that the interests represented by European commercial men come very often directly into conflict with the interests represented by Indian commerce. And so long as that state of affairs continues it is not possible for us to agree to any scheme which would hand over the management of the entire financial system of our country to foreign capitalists. Even if the management of the financial system of the country were to be entrusted to Indian capitalists, I would still have some objection to such a course."

I am very grateful to you that you have tarred with the same brush the Indian capitalists :

"I do not want that on an important concern like this vested interests should be created. For we all know as a result of the experience of almost every joint stock concern, not merely in India but all over the world, that the control exercised by the small shareholder is absolutely negligible if not non-existent."

I would say that a Daniel has come to judgment :

"The managing agents or directors of any joint stock company will tell you how ineffective and unreal the general control of the shareholders of the affairs of a corporation is."

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya said the same thing, but my capitalist friend, Sir Cowasji Jehangir, himself a Bank Director, as his revered father, the Baronet, is one, pooh-poohed him :

"It is, therefore, no use to say that provisions might be made in the Bill to ensure that persons should not be allotted more than a certain number of shares, thereby safeguarding against the passing of control into the hands of a few capitalists."

I am very grateful for these few lines which sum up my own views in the matter as well as that of the Opposition.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : May I ask the Honourable Member if a similar view was not expressed by Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas ?

Mr. B. Das : Thank you. I was coming to my friend, Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas, and I thank you for it.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : As my Honourable friend thanks me for it, may I ask what authority he has got to presume that you, Sir, would not, in the changed circumstances, have held views that Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas now holds ?

Mr. B. Das : The Chair has no politics today and let us leave aside the Chair, and let us talk of ordinary mortal men. Why my Honourable friend, Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas, and Mr. A. Rangaswami Aiyangar adopted the course they have done is known to gods and to those who attended this London Committee. But Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas has not yet issued a statement to the country, to the Indian press to convince us as to his judgment in that cold atmosphere of the India Office and in that sweet, probably entertaining atmosphere that was provided by the British Government..... !

An Honourable Member : You suggest dancing girls in London ?

Mr. B. Das : .....and why he changed his attitude. But it has been a surprise to me, and I take my hat off to Lala Ram Saran Das for sticking to his gun, and that he has not been influenced by Whitehall or Mr. Montagu Norman who seems to be the miracle worker in London. Until Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas comes out publicly, I must think that he has been misled by the atmosphere that London brings.

I do not want to go very much into details, but I will only refer to one aspect of the question to which the Finance Member has referred. He was particularly happy that the present financial position of Government reserves was satisfactory. He said that the reserve which is provided in the Bill requires 89.88 crores, and, for that, he has got Rs. 44.49 crores in gold and Rs. 38.16 crores in sterling securities, a total of Rs. 82.65 crores, and he needed only Rs. 7 crores. I cannot understand the Finance Member when in one breath he says the Government are bankrupt and are running at a deficit, and in another breath he says the financial position, the banking position of the Government is very sound. The Bill of 1927 provided a reserve of Rs. 103 to 110 crores, I would like to be corrected by the Finance Member if I am wrong. It wanted to provide Rs. 110 crores of gold in reserves, and then Sir Basil Blackett was scratching his head, so to say, as to how to get that money. And in private he used to talk to us : "Let us float a Gandhi loan and get gold so that we may have the gold reserve necessary for a Gold Standard Reserve Bank." But my Honourable friend, who is responsible for the flight of Rs. 150 crores of gold from India, feels very happy that he has got Rs. 40 crores of gold, and out of those 40 crores he knows it well that Rs. 9 or 10 crores happen to be distress gold. And what has my Honourable friend done to keep the 150 crores of distress gold that took flight ? He is feeling very happy. On the silver tokens in the country for every rupee which is worth only five annas to the ordinary common man he has pocketed eleven annas, and no rupee redemption fund is to be provided. The assurances given by dozens of his predecessors were all set at nought. My friend gloats over it. He is happy he has got 44 crores of gold and only 9 crores is needed to have a sound Reserve Bank so as to ensure the credit of the successor of my friend, of the India Office with the British Government. They talk about the new Constitution. I would rather have no new Constitution for India when this sort of muddling of the finances of India goes on. What did Sir Malcolm Hailey, one of his predecessors, did ? He sold reverse councils and squandered away 200 to 300 crores of rupees. Sir Basil Blackett did no less in another way by his ratio policy. My friend himself has also squandered away Rs. 30 to 50 crores of paper currency reserve and also the money from the sales of silver. Yet, here, the Bill provides that part of the silver hoard will remain with the Government of India for the gambles of the future Finance Member or the future Financial Adviser who will be an omnipotent, sacrosanct, non-voted gentleman as provided in the White Paper. He will deal with finances in any way he likes. I would like the Government to justify their financial policy and show to this House whether they have got a consistent policy. Finance Members may come and Finance Members may go, but the poor taxpayer remains to foot the Bill of extravagance of every Finance Member.

Many of the details of this Bill will be gone into in the Select Committee. The little interlude between two capitalists, Sir Cowasji Jehangir and Mr. Mody, was a pleasant surprise to many of us. I do hope, the Honourable the Finance Member has read the editorial in the Statesman of Calcutta and also the Capital of Calcutta, where they said that they could not understand why there should be a fixity of ratio as stated in the White Paper proposals or as stated in the Reserve Bank Bill. Of course nobody wants to disturb the present conditions about exchange or currency. Here I should like to congratulate my Honourable friend on the action he took on the 17th September, 1931, before he got his master's order which asked him to tie the rupee to the chariot wheel of the sterling. I am very grateful to the Statesman and also to the Capital for suggesting to the English Finance Member of the Government of India to allow the rupee the same fluctuation as the Government of South Africa and Australia have for their currencies. Those are Dominion Governments. They can defy the British Government. But my Honourable friend at every stage follows the dictates of the British Chancellor of the Exchequer or the Bank of England whatever that might be.

I will now refer to the Imperial Bank of India. I agree with the criticisms that have been levelled against the Imperial Bank of India. The Imperial Bank of India may have Indian capital, but it is British managed. It has done very little to develop the trade and commerce of India. Very often it has been stated on the floor of this House that it finances mostly British businessmen in India. It seldom does that in the case of Indian industries and Indian trade. My Honourable friends of the Treasury Bench very often tell us that there will be a new Heaven when India gets provincial autonomy. Why are you allowing the Imperial Bank of India to continue its worse traditions of the past ? It has always stood against Indian industries and Indian commerce and Indian trade. Why do you allow it to perpetuate its vested interests for another 25 years ? Are there not co-operative banks ? Are there not Indian owned banks ? I would object to any concession given to the Imperial Bank wherever an Indian owned bank exists. They should have the same facilities as the Imperial Bank. Incidentally I will refer to Schedule II. No bank which is owned by Japan should be included in this Schedule and no foreign bank, French or any other bank, that does not belong to the British Empire, should be included in Schedule II of the Reserve Bank Bill. Lastly, I will say one word why I am opposed to a Shareholders' Bank.

[Mr. B. Das.]

The representative of the Democratic Party in the Joint Select Committee will oppose it tooth and nail. I do not know how my Honourable friend is going to have his 14 members elected by this House, but I am sure he will get it packed. If we fail in our fight to have a State Bank, the Shareholders' Bank should be so framed that it would not promote the vested interests of Bombay or Calcutta, and your speech, Sir, which I took the liberty of quoting, sums up the whole position. Therefore, I say, divide up India into provincial territorial units and do not allow the small shareholders in the villages to be influenced by the capitalists of Calcutta and Bombay and, even in the matter of choice of Directorate, I want there should be one Director to every province, besides the representation of provincial co-operative banks as was done in the 1927 Joint Select Committee report. We do not want to hand over our banking affairs to Calcutta plutocrats nor to Sir Leslie Hudson and Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas of Bombay, however intimate and personal friends they may be and however intimately I may be connected in business matters with one or other of them. I am very much indebted to my friend, Sardar Sant Singh, who reminded me that it was a strange coincidence that whenever the Government of India brought out a Reserve Bank Bill, there was a flood in Orissa. In 1927, when the House threw out the Reserve Bank Bill, it took the opportunity to send a message of sympathy to Orissa and my friend was asking whether, owing to the floods in Orissa this year, the Reserve Bank Bill will also be thrown out.

Sir, as I said at the beginning, I am for a Reserve Bank, but I loath the Shareholders' Bank which will be controlled by the capitalists, be they Indians or Europeans. They will never look after the industries, the trade and the commerce and the interests of the agriculturists for which the State must exist. Whatever my Honourable friend may do, let him remember that the Reserve Bank, be it a State Bank or the Government Bank, must be a national bank. The plutocrat friends of mine, including the nominated representatives of the Government, do not and cannot think in terms of nationalism. They always think as to how far their own interests will be safeguarded and how much money they will themselves be able to make. My Honourable friend, Sir Cowasji Jehangir, or his sacred clique or the European clique will manage to become the Directors of the Reserve Bank by using some subtle influence which my Honourable friend, Sir George Schuster, may not understand, but the country understands and the country knows how they have managed to be the Directors of the Imperial Bank. Sir, I loath that system and, therefore, I want a national Reserve Bank.

Several Honourable Members: The question may now be put.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty): The question is that the question may now be put.

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster: Sir, I think it is perhaps as well that you have not got a Mr. C. Das to call upon. (Laughter.) When my Honourable friend spoke about the floods in Orissa, I thought that a little bit of the Orissa flood has over-flown into this House. (Laughter.) But my Honourable friend's flood of eloquence now being concluded, the task falls to me in a very short time at my disposal to wind up this debate. Naturally, I would have liked to reply to a great many points that have been made in the course of this debate as they were being made. But obviously the time for that is the discussion in the Select Committee, when we can meet points as they are made, exchange views and, I hope, arrive at a general agreement. I think, reviewing the three days' debate, I have very little to complain of at least the quality of the speeches which have been made. As regards the quantity, perhaps I might have desired a somewhat shorter period for sitting through. If there is one speech that I would criticise—I am sorry that the Honourable Member who made it is not here—it is the speech made by my Honourable friend from Madras, Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya. I do not think it is unfair to describe that speech as a general exercise in mud slinging at Directors of Banks, past, present and future. Now, Sir, I think that there is very little to be gained by that sort of process. We do not want to discuss this matter in an atmosphere of ill-will and suspicion. If Honourable Members want to use those methods, they will find plenty of people to meet them with the same methods in England. But those who have been responsible for framing these proposals are, I think I may claim, those who believe in India and who honestly wish to work for those ideals which inspire all Honourable Members opposite. These proposals have been conceived and discussed in London in an atmosphere of trust and understanding and I should like to transfer that atmosphere to the discussions which are coming on here.

Sir, we have heard a good deal said about the London Committee. It has been described as a packed Committee. I do not think that anyone, who looks down the list of the names of the members of that Committee, can honestly sustain that charge. If we had gone out of our way to choose people who were bold enough to attack Government and who had the ability to attack Government effectively, I do not think we could have chosen better men than those who actually went to London. Now, Sir, one of the speakers opposite—I think it was Mr. Thampan—accused the Government of having brushed aside the recommendations of the Joint Committee which sat on the earlier Bill. We had in that London Committee three—I think I am fair in so describing them—three of the most able members of that former Committee—Mr. Rangaswami Iyengar, Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas and Sir Phiroze Sethna. All those three members took part in our discussions and, on the main issues, all were in complete agreement with the conclusions. We had other representative men from India, representing all interests, representing all Parties in this House, and they all agreed with the main conclusions. If now we come forward with a Bill based on those conclusions, then, Sir, it is not fair to accuse us of having lightly brushed aside the earlier recommendations. Then, Sir, there is another point arising out of the speech of my Honourable friend, Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya. I do not wish to deal with all his points, but there are certain points which I cannot let pass without some mention. He went through a list of the Imperial Bank Directors and drew conclusions for the future, very disparaging to the chances of this Reserve Bank, from the fact that a number of Directors maintained their posts as Directors of the Imperial Bank for a long series of years. Sir, I think that if the Reserve Bank of the future can obtain the services—I would say the long and continuous services—of men like Sir Dinshaw Wacha, Sir Maneckji Dadabhoy, Sir Rajendra Nath Mukherji and Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas,—then that Bank will be very fortunate indeed. One of the great practical difficulties in the future—and my Honourable friend, Mr. Mody, referred to it—will be to secure Directors of first class ability and experience for the Reserve Bank. With all the limitations that have to be imposed on their selection, that will be a very difficult task. I hope that if the Reserve Bank is able to secure Directors of the class of the four Indians whom I have mentioned, it will retain their services for the natural period of their lives or at least for the period of their activity and useful work.

Now, Sir, I do not think I need say much on this motion for circulation. My Honourable friend, who made the motion, told us a story. He said that it reminded him of the old story of people who were expecting to meet a bride in a palanquin and, when they withdrew the curtains, they found a cat. If this is a cat and not a bride, I do not think that the circulation of that cat will turn it into a bride. (Laughter.) But possibly my Honourable friend might be influenced by the opinions received, and if they all said : " No, you are wrong; this is not a cat ; this is a bride ;" he would have been prepared to accept their opinions. Sir, if my Honourable friend had been here, I should have liked to put it to him, though one does not like to refer to physical infirmities, that it was quite obvious while he was making his speech that my Honourable friend was rather short-sighted. (Laughter.) I would have suggested to him that perhaps with a change of spectacles and use of his own eyes, he might have discovered the truth, namely, that this is a very desirable bride and not a cat.

At least if my Honourable friend sits on the Select Committee, I hope to be able to persuade him that that is so.

Now, the main discussion has centred on this question of whether it is desirable to have a State Bank or a Shareholders' Bank or perhaps rather on the phrase that we have used, " freedom from political influence ". I do not want to say much on that, but I just want to put to the House in the very simplest terms what we understand by this phrase and what the essential purpose is which we have sought to preserve in this Bill. It is, of course, obvious that in modern life and in modern economic organisations, there are two important functions : they are the functions of those who have to raise and use money and there are the functions of those who are responsible for producing the actual tokens of money, the money in circulation. The basis of the whole proposal for setting up an independent Central Bank is to keep those two functions separate. The largest user of money in a country is the Government, and the whole principle of the proposal is that the Government, when it wants money to spend, should have to raise that money by fair and honest means in just the same way as every private individual has to raise money which he requires to spend for his own maintenance. If the Government is in control of the authority which is responsible for exercising the other function, then all sorts of abuses can intervene. I could spend hours taking Honourable Members through examples of what has happened very particularly in the concluding years of the War and the years since the War,—the many examples which there are of Governments which could not resist the fatal temptation of using the note-printing press to help them out of their difficulties or where banks were in control of currency, of forcing the Central Banks to make advances to them on terms which would never have been admitted as regards private individuals. History is full, recent history particularly is full of examples of countries being brought into the most serious trouble, in many cases into absolute chaos by that process ; and the experience of all countries has pointed to the same conclusion and has produced a practically universal public opinion that it is desirable that the control of currency and credit operations should be in the hands of an authority independent of Government. Now, Sir, I may be told that that has not been the case in India hitherto. It is no part of my purpose to defend the present system. I quite admit that in principle it is wrong and that was admitted when the original Reserve Bank Bill was brought forward. But the need, if I may say so, becomes much more urgent when the responsibility for finance is going to pass into the hands of a popularly elected ministry. A popularly elected ministry must be much more influenced—Honourable Members opposite are always basing charges against us on that face—a popularly elected ministry must be much more influenced by political feelings and by the play and manœuvre of political parties, while a popularly elected ministry cannot have that continuity which we, as an official Government, have had, and it is essential that if the monetary policy of a country is to be successful, it must be directed with a continuity of policy and I say, again, with independence from the sort of political influence which might be brought to bear. (Hear, hear.) Now, Sir, this is not a question of our attempting by this means to set up some sort of alien authority in the country which will diminish the legitimate powers of the Indian Legislature. We hope that this Reserve Bank will become a trusted part of Indian public life and that it will be a truly independent institution and that it will command the confidence of Indian opinion. We believe that that will be the result, and I would go further and say that, if that is not the result, then the whole purpose of these proposals will fail, because, if that institution has not got the support of Indian opinion, it will not be able effectively to act as a check on the operations of the Government of the day. It will be quite impossible for the Governor General in the new Constitution to give that institution the necessary authority to provide the check and the balance that we want unless it has the support of independent opinion behind it. I trust Honourable Members will consider this matter in the light of what are likely to be the conditions in the future. So many of the Honourable Members who have spoken have spoken under the influence of prejudices which have had their birth in the conditions of the past, but all that is going to be changed and it is in the light of the future that Honourable Members should consider this matter. (Hear, hear.) Now, Sir, if we want that independence, it seems to us quite obvious that the Bank should be independent of the Government of the day and there is no known device other than that of setting up a Shareholders' Bank which, according to the experience of other countries, can achieve that purpose. It is in the honest belief that that is the best device which can be provided that we have launched these proposals. But like all other human institutions, this also will not be perfect. It will have great difficulties no doubt in its early years. It must learn by experience ; but if it has Indian opinion behind it, then, I think, it will grow into the position which is desirable in order to give a proper balance to the general financial policy of the country. That, Sir, is the reason why we have put forward these proposals and I do not think I need say anything more on that subject.

Certain Honourable Members have put to me the question whether this idea of a Shareholders' Bank is part of the principle of the Bill. Sir, I think in its technical sense that is probably an issue which you will be called upon to decide if any point of order is raised at a later stage. But

[Sir George Schuster.]

I think possibly the practical side of the matter is of more importance than the theoretical side. As to that, I wish to leave Honourable Members in no sort of misunderstanding as to our position. On the one hand, we do not wish to put a pistol at the heads of Honourable Members opposite and say to them that, after three days' debate, they must regard themselves as committed to the principle of a Shareholders' Bank, or otherwise to vote against the Bill or to refuse to serve on the Committee which may be elected. On the other hand, I wish to leave them under no sort of misapprehension that we have considered this matter very carefully, we have not had three days but many months and even years to consider it and we can see no other way of achieving that purpose which I have just described except through the method of a Shareholders' Bank. Now, Sir, having said that, I want to say again that we certainly do not want to exclude from this Committee Members who take the contrary view. I should want them there for two purposes, first, I should want them there in order that I might have a chance of convincing them that this is the right idea, because, Sir, if we launch this measure, we want to launch it with the maximum support from Indian opinion. I should want them there for a second purpose and that is to discuss their objections to a Shareholders' Bank idea in the hope that by considering those objections we might find ways of meeting them. We do not claim that our proposals, as they stand, are absolutely perfect. We welcome the opportunity of discussing them with those who take the contrary view in the hope that out of that discussion some agreed measure, which is better than our own original proposal, may emerge.

Now, Sir, there is one other topic on which I feel it necessary to say something and that is the question of the monetary system itself. I think I have made it clear on every occasion that I have spoken on this Bill that we do not consider that the ratio question arises at all in connection with it. We consider that this Reserve Bank is a piece of machinery which is to be set up to administer the system which is how going to be determined by the present Bill. Sir, I had prepared some remarks in order to explain the position still more clearly, but I had put before me just before I came in a leader from a paper which, I am sure, will command the confidence of Honourable Members opposite, and, I hope, perhaps command from my Honourable friend, Mr. B. Das, a little more confidence than those papers which he is now so fond of quoting, the Statesman and Capital. This is a leader from the Hindu of the 22nd August. The general purport of that leader was to urge Indians to concentrate on the main points of our proposals and not to be diverted by side issues. Having started on this note the writer proceeds as follows:

"Take, for instance, the criticisms levelled at the 18*d*. ratio. It is not our purpose now to enquire whether that ratio has proved ruinous to the country and is still working havoc. It has been argued that a study of the price levels in India compared with those that have obtained in Britain, Europe, the United States and other parts of the world will show that the steeper fall of the commodity prices in India has been due to the artificially high eighteen pence ratio and that but for gold exports our international balance-sheet would have stood disrupted beyond recognition. Granting that this is so, how is that a reason for asking the Assembly not to agree to place the Bill on the Statute Book 'without adequate consideration of the various factors connected with the present ratio'? The constitution of a Reserve Bank, which will so regulate currency and credit as to subserve the best interests of the country, ought not to be delayed longer than is absolutely necessary; and for our part, we see no reason why a fresh decision on the ratio question, doubtless after a prolonged enquiry, should be insisted on as an essential preliminary to the starting of the Reserve Bank. Today, the entire international monetary machine has been thrown out of gear; and the World Economic Conference which, it was hoped, would restore something like stability to the disorganised currencies of the world only succeeded in making confusion worse confounded showing that he who waited to attain currency stability in order to improve his business would long have waited in vain. One has no means of predicting when the time propitious for securing monetary stability will arrive; the only thing one can say is that it will not be in the immediate future. Is it wisdom, in the circumstances, to postpone the inauguration of a Reserve Bank till after we succeed in our quest for stable money? We do not think so and we shall be only playing into the hands of those who—wrongly but for their own purposes—have asked with all the authority of British vested interests that the establishment and successful operation of a Central Reserve Bank are a condition pre-requisite for the transfer of finance into the hands of a responsible popular Federal Government, indeed, of any responsibility at the centre. If, however, the conditions for ensuring currency stability make themselves felt sooner than we anticipate, the passing of the Reserve Bank Bill and the establishment of the Bank would have made the stabilisation of Indian currency at the proper level not more difficult, but appreciably easier."

Then, there is one other passage which I should like to read. I apologise to the House for the length of the passages I am reading:

"One other point of criticism made of the London scheme is that by continuing the sterling-rupee link, Indian interests will stand subordinated to those of Britain. Now, this will be so if the Indian Legislature were impotent and the Bank itself becomes an anti-Indian body. But such a development is not contemplated under the reforms. As a matter of fact, the Reserve Bank will be constituted by an Act of the Indian Legislature and under its authority; and it will have full powers, subject to certain constitutional restrictions, to control and supervise its policy. Today, whether one wishes it or not, the rupee is linked to sterling; and, so long as the direction, course and volume of India's trade and financial transactions continue as they are at present, the rupee will and must show a strong tendency sensitively to react to changes in the pound sterling. One may link the rupee to any currency one likes, but the external value of the currency must continue to be dominated by the trade connections which it subserves. The linking can only help to regulate the oscillations where they are not uncontrollably violent, and should India's affinities show striking changes in the future, we have no doubt the legislature then will take the measures necessary to keep the currency in conformity with them, delinking it from sterling and linking it with gold or whatever may seem called for in the then circumstances. If these facts are borne in mind, the course of the discussions on the proposed Bill will be calculated to be more helpful and fruitful of results than if they are ignored."

Sir, I think that that is a very good statement of the case, made not exactly from my own position, but strongly reinforcing the point which I want this Assembly to keep in mind. So far as this Bill is concerned, that is all I think I need say on the matter; but, as the question has been raised in debate and as the Preamble to the Bill itself refers to this question, I wish to say just a few more words. The point of the passage in the Preamble is to indicate this—that if a time comes when the leading countries get back to an international gold standard, possibly at new parities, then the Indian position will obviously have to be reviewed and some basis different to that of our present basis will have to be adopted. That alone is the intention which is indicated in the Preamble. Now, Sir, I do not want to say anything on the merits,—I do not want to enter into a long discussion on the merits of our present policy. But I should like just to say this—that pending such review in the meanwhile and considering that our main trade relations are with England and that all our external obligations are in terms of sterling, there are such enormous advantages in maintaining stability of the value of the rupee in terms of sterling that no one, who is responsible for India's finances, can possibly contemplate with a light heart disturbing that stability. It is our duty, of course, as we are linked with sterling, to take every opportunity of

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Thursday, 14th September, 1933.

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber at Eleven of Clock, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) in the Chair.

MESSAGE FROM THE COUNCIL OF STATE.

Secretary of the Assembly : Sir, the following Message has been received from the Council of State :

"I am directed to inform you that, at the meeting of the Council of State, held on the 13th September, 1933, the Council rejected the motion that the Bill to prevent Juveniles from smoking Tobacco, as passed by the Legislative Assembly, be taken into consideration."

THE IMPERIAL BANK OF INDIA (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : Sir, I move:

"That this Assembly do recommend to the Council of State that the Bill further to amend the Imperial Bank of India Act, 1920, for certain purposes, be referred to a Joint Committee of this Assembly and of the Council of State, with instructions to report on or before the 20th November, 1933, and that the Joint Committee do consist of 28 members."

With your permission, I have inserted the number 28 in the motion which I have just moved instead of 24 which stands in the notice paper for today. Sir, I trust the House will consider it unnecessary to debate this motion, because we regard it as essentially part of the plan which was dealt with in the motion which was moved yesterday. Our purpose is to get a Joint Committee set up for dealing with the Imperial Bank of India (Amendment) Bill at the same time as the Reserve Bank of India Bill, and we trust that this House, when the time comes, will approve that the same Committee should deal with both Bills. Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Motion moved :

"That this Assembly do recommend to the Council of State that the Bill further to amend the Imperial Bank of India Act, 1920, for certain purposes, be referred to a Joint Committee of this Assembly and of the Council of State, with instructions to report on or before the 20th November, 1933, and that the Joint Committee do consist of 28 members."

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya (Madras : Indian Commerce) : Sir, before I speak on the merits of this Imperial Bank of India (Amendment) Bill, I feel that I owe an apology to the Honourable the Finance Member for being absent yesterday when he spoke on his motion. When I had made my criticisms on his Reserve Bank of India Bill the other day, it was my duty to be present to listen to what he had to say in reply, though, under the present constitution, I recognise that I had no right of reply. I had taken permission from the Leader of my Party to stay away, as representing to the British Government the Indian needs for a rise in the level of prices and to press them to pursue a policy to that end. That duty, I can say, we have done our best to discharge, and the speech of mine made at Ottawa which my Honourable friend, Mr. Thampan, quoted with approval is an illustration of one occasion of the way in which we have sought to discharge that duty. We have been fortunate enough to have two occasions recently, one at the Ottawa Conference and one at the World Conference in London, to meet in close consultation with the British authorities and with the representatives of the other Dominions. And, I am sure, some of our Indian colleagues, who were present on those occasions, will testify that India's case has been well represented and represented with some effect. I think I may claim that we have undoubtedly influenced the policy of His Majesty's Government, and I know that His Majesty's Government are so fully apprised of our position that they are taking our position into account in all that they do. In the meanwhile amid the uncertainty which prevails everywhere, if I look round the world, I find it difficult to see any surer refuge for money than the rupee on its present sterling basis. Now, Sir, if we are going to bring this scheme to fruition, if we are going to maintain the reserves which we have already accumulated and to accumulate further reserves, we must do nothing to disturb the surety of that refuge. We contemplate doing nothing of that kind and I should like to warn all those who are desirous of speculating on a contrary event that they will be singularly unwise to do so.

Now, Sir, I have covered the main topics which have been raised in this discussion. I think I may take it that the general feeling of the House is that this Bill should be referred for further discussion in the Joint Committee. I can only tell all those Honourable Members who have spoken that we shall do our utmost to meet the points which they have raised. All I ask for is that they should enter those discussions with the sole desire of devising something which will be useful to the new India and not with their minds filled with prejudices born in the past. With these words, I think I can ask the House to approve of this motion, without division. There is only one small point which I must make before I sit down and that is this : there stands on the paper an amendment to the effect that the number of the members of the Committee shall be 28. I think that amendment has not yet been formally moved ; but, on behalf of Government, we have already said that we are prepared to accept that amendment if it is the wish of the House to have a larger Committee. (Cheers.)

Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi (Madras ceded Districts and Chittoor : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I formally move the amendment :

"That in the motion, for the figures '24' the figures '28' be substituted."

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The original question was :

"That this Assembly do recommend to the Council of State that the Bill to constitute a Reserve Bank of India be referred to a Joint Committee of this Assembly and of the Council of State, with instructions to report on or before the 20th November, 1933, and that the Joint Committee do consist of 24 members."

Since which an amendment has been moved :

"That the Bill be circulated for the purpose of eliciting opinion thereon by the 31st December, 1933."

The question is :

"That the Bill be circulated for the purpose of eliciting opinion thereon by the 31st December, 1933."

The motion was negatived.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That in the original motion, for the figures '24' the figures '28' be substituted."

The motion was adopted.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That this Assembly do recommend to the Council of State that the Bill to constitute a Reserve Bank of India be referred to a Joint Committee of this Assembly and of the Council of State, with instructions to report on or before the 20th November, 1933, and that the Joint Committee do consist of 28 members."

The motion was adopted.

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Thursday, the 14th September, 1933.

[Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya.]

we were under the impression that the discussion on the Bill would continue till at least this morning. However, I made a mistake, and I apologise to the Honourable the Finance Member for my absence.

Sir, I do not propose to utilise this occasion to reply to some of the criticisms of the Honourable the Finance Member, but, as I speak on the present motion, I shall try to explain how he has misunderstood me in certain matters.

Sir, the Imperial Bank of India Act of 1920 is so badly drafted that when I had the occasion to ask two of the Finance Members of the Government of India as to what they thought about the Act, they both said that it was not possible for them to make either head or tail of it. It is so confusedly drafted that it is very difficult to be understood by lay men, and when even Finance Members of the Government of India find it difficult to understand it, you can imagine, Sir, how difficult it will be, for ordinary mortals, to understand it. In the present drafting of the Bill, though many important improvements could have been effected, I find that no attempt has been made to improve it at all. For instance, there are nearly 12 or 15 clauses which are absolutely redundant at present. It would have been better if they had overhauled the whole Act and re-drafted it wholesale. What is the use of retaining in the present Imperial Bank of India (Amendment) Bill the clauses which related to the original amalgamation and the first distribution of shares to the shareholders and other things which do not apply to the present position. All that should have been removed and the Bill should have been drafted in such a form that it could be understood by those who cared to read it. As such, I hope the Joint Select Committee, when they meet at Delhi, will give some attention to this matter and put the Bill in such a form that it will really serve the purpose for which it is intended.

Now, Sir, coming to the Bill and the clauses, it will be a sigh of relief to several banks—indigenous banks in India—that this mother-in-law of all banks.....

An Honourable Member : Step mother-in-law.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : All right, call it step mother-in-law if you like, of all banks in this country is now going to be deprived of some of her power and prestige which she was not using properly, because, in these days of reform, the daughters-in-law do not want to be governed in that high-handed manner in which the Imperial Bank of India has been treating them, especially the Indian banking institutions in this country. Now, the Indian Joint Stock Banks must be allowed to have a free hand in their working without the obstacles put by the Imperial Bank in the past. When the Indian banking institutions have asked for the bread, the Imperial Bank has given them a stone. Now, what I urge is that the Imperial Bank should no longer work under false colours. We must make it distinctly clear that the Imperial Bank, except that they are going to be the sole agents of the Reserve Bank of India, should not interfere with the Indian banking institutions, and the public should not get a false impression that it is still a Government Bank. Unfortunately, in India, we have got a weakness for things which are connected with Government, but, hereafter, all the business of local boards, municipalities, Courts of Wards, High Courts, etc., should be given either to all the banks alike according to their soundness and position, or entirely to the Reserve Bank. We do not want the Imperial Bank to be constituted in such a way that it will get all the Government business. Though in some matters there is no specific direction that the funds should be invested in the Imperial Bank, there have been occasions on which their friends in several places have taken advantage of even misrepresenting matters and compelling the parties to put their money in the Imperial Bank. If you will permit me, I will give you an instance. Two parties, when they quarrelled, went to the High Court of Madras, and it is usual that, when there is such dispute, the money is put in some bank till the case is disposed of. Now, one of the parties proposed that the money should be deposited in one of the Indian banks. The Judge said : " Well, it is the practice to put the money only in the Imperial Bank ". The Vakil for the other side said : " I agree to the money being put in the Indian institution where it will earn interest safely. Both the parties agreed, and the Judge then remarked, " I am also prepared to agree to it ". But the Registrar of the High Court said : " It has never been the practice to put such monies anywhere except in the Imperial Bank " ; he repeated that " the money can only be invested in the Imperial Bank and in no other bank ". The Judge told the Registrar : " I give you some time to look up the rules and show me any provision where, when both the parties agree and the Judge also agrees, it is provided that the money should be put only in the Imperial Bank and in no other bank ". The Registrar looked up the rules and regulations, but found nothing to support him. As a result of this, the money was deposited with an Indian institution while all along the impression was that the money should be put only with the Imperial Bank. Subsequently, I understand that there has been issued a confidential circular letter to some departments from some authority that parties should be made to keep their money with the Imperial Bank only. As such I request that the matter should be made so clear that the people may not be misled in these things and the indigenous institutions may not suffer on account of any wrong impression created by the close connection with the Government, and the old prestige the Imperial Bank has enjoyed for these so many years.

Now, Sir, the wording of the new amendment is such that practically the Imperial Bank will do the business of the Government though as the agent of the Reserve Bank. What I wish to know is, if, there is any mishap to the Imperial Bank, the loss would be recovered by the Government from the Reserve Bank or the Government stand to lose, whether it is the joint liability of the Imperial Bank and the Reserve Bank, for the Imperial Bank is going to be the sole agent of the Reserve Bank and the public must deal only with the Imperial Bank, it being the sole agents of the Reserve Bank. The position should be made absolutely clear so that the public may not misunderstand that the Imperial Bank is a Government Bank, as in the case of the Bank of Bombay, when it failed, the shareholders went up to the Privy Council and said that the Government had identified themselves so much with the Bank of Bombay that they were entitled to claim compensation from the Government for its mismanagement. I hope the Bank will also hereafter not style them in their advertisements, as they have been doing, " The Imperial Bank of India, Bankers to the Government of India ". I won't go to the extent of suggesting that there should be a change of name of the Imperial Bank, because, in other countries, the words " Royal ", " Imperial ", when attached to a bank, have been considered as if it is a Government or Central Bank. Only I want that there should be no misunderstanding in such matters in the future.

Now, Sir, the Imperial Bank of India, for the concessions they are going to get under the new arrangements, should be made to render some more national public service. Neither in the Reserve Bank Bill nor in the present Imperial Bank of India (Amendment) Bill is there anything to compel the Imperial Bank to give us remittances at any particular rates. In the matter of remittances they have been making distinctions. The Bank has till now been working under certain restrictions. Now, those restrictions are to be removed. We know how muzzling is helpful and saves the public from inconvenience and injury. Now, under the present Bill, they are going to be allowed to do exchange business without any hindrance. They can open branches, and some of the restrictions, regarding the investment of funds, have also been removed. As such, the Bank will be a very formidable rival to the Indian institutions. Added to that, they will get a commission calculated on the total of receipts and disbursements dealt with annually on account of the Government of India by the Imperial Bank on behalf of the Reserve Bank of India. We have heard about charging a certain commission on debit balances, but not on both debit and credit balances, as the Schedule now contemplates giving 1|16 per cent. on the first 250 crores and 1|32 per cent. on the remainder, on both payments and receipts. That is rather very unusual. In the past, they had been opening branches at stations where there were branches already of other banks. Formerly, they used to consult the Government of India before they opened any branches in any new places. Now, that restriction is being removed, and it will be open to them to go on opening branches anywhere they like and in some places it may be difficult for the indigenous banks to go on with their business in the face of the competition from the Imperial Bank which enjoys so many privileges and concessions.

Speaking about the connection with the Government, even in the clauses of this Bill, as amended, the notifications and other information which they have to give to the public is done only through the Government of India Gazette. All the notices of meetings and transfers of officers from one place to another are published by notifications in the Government Gazette. In one of the clauses, as it has been drafted, the notices are to be published in local newspapers in English and vernacular. I would suggest that these notices should be given entirely in the newspapers. Of course if they wish to insert notices also in the Gazette of India.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Chair would remind the Honourable Member that, under Standing Order 39, at this stage the House can discuss only the general principles of the Bill and not go into such details as to what papers must be chosen as the medium of advertisement.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : My object was to show that they wish to continue to exploit the prestige of their connection with the Government, by confining themselves entirely to the Government Gazette.

Then, I come to another complaint, and that has not been set right in the Bill. In a Shareholders' Bank, there are certain difficulties in obtaining the copies of the Shareholders' Registers. The cost at the rate of six annas per hundred words is prohibitive. The result is that it is not possible for the shareholders to take concerted action even if they so desire. As such, the Bill requires amendment in that direction so that the shareholders may be able to exercise their right to the full extent as they should.

I need not speak about the Directors of the Imperial Bank. I have already spoken enough. The Honourable the Finance Member yesterday accused me of ' a general exercise in mud slinging at Directors of Banks, past, present and future '.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai (Sind : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : He also accused you of shortsightedness.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : Yes, a reply to it will come in its proper place. I am sorry that the Finance Member should have misunderstood me completely. When I spoke of it, I was referring to the system and not to the persons. I have got the highest regard for gentlemen like Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas, the Honourable Sir Maneckji Dadabhoy and another gentleman whom he had mentioned. I have got the highest regard for them. What I was trying to explain was the system under which the seats on the Boards of the Imperial Bank became a life tenure and monopoly of certain firms and community. Some of the firms have for more than 50 years been sending up only their partners to fill up the gaps and nobody else. I do not think that all the banking experience and knowledge is a monopoly of only the partners of only seven particular firms on each Board. When I objected to certain nominations by the Government, I did it more on account of the way in which they were made, not on account of the persons. There is no reason why the Government of India should allow only superannuated gentlemen to continue so long. In all Government departments men retire after a certain age. Viceroys, Governors and Executive Councillors even go out after a certain period. Some of the Directors were not physically fit even to attend any meetings and they were being continuously nominated from year to year without any change. Now, I want to know how many of them regularly attended the meetings. These gentlemen are as old as 80 or 90 years.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Will the Honourable Member explain how all this is relevant to the present motion ?

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : The point is that in spite of the representation made by the Chambers on the matter, the Government have not amended the Bill to remove those objections in the working of the Imperial Bank.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Order, order. It is perhaps well at this stage that the House should understand what exactly is the scope of the motion that we are discussing. We are not discussing the entire affairs of the Imperial Bank, nor are we discussing the whole of the Imperial Bank of India Act. The House must understand that position. The scope of the present Bill is confined to three points—to remove the control of the Governor General in Council over the affairs of the Imperial Bank in certain respects, secondly to remove certain restrictions imposed on the Imperial Bank's transaction of business under the Imperial Bank of India Act and, thirdly, to enable the Imperial Bank of India to enter into certain agreements with the Reserve Bank. The constitution of the Directorate of the Imperial Bank and other matters, not covered within the scope of this motion, are not relevant to the issue at present before the House, and Honourable Members will not be entitled to discuss the whole of the Imperial Bank of India Act.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad (United Provinces Southern Divisions : Muhammadan Rural) : May I speak a few words on this point, Sir ? In view of the fact that we are sending the Reserve Bank Bill and the Imperial Bank Bill to the same Committee and also on account of the fact that the constitution of the Reserve Bank will be of the same type as that of the Imperial Bank, I think it is important that we should be allowed to point out that the Imperial Bank of India has been so much mismanaging their affairs that it is not worth our while to copy out its constitution, or even to mention its name in the Reserve Bank Bill.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Chair quite realises the argument of Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad that it is open to Honourable Members to say that in view of the way in which the Imperial Bank has managed its affairs, it ought not to be permitted to enter into this agreement with the Reserve Bank. But what the Honourable Member, Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya, was attempting to do was to analyse the constitution of the Imperial Bank and to suggest that no steps are being taken to amend the constitution of the Imperial Bank of India. Now, such a discussion will be entirely out of order.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : I bow to your ruling, but I beg to submit that the Bill contains an item constituting a new Board. Therefore, I submit, that it is quite relevant to discuss the working of the Imperial Bank in that respect. We should be allowed to speak as to how the Board was constituted formerly, how it failed to do its duty and how in future we should provide for a set of Directors who will be able to manage the affairs better ? Therefore, I hope, Mr. President, you will not over-rule me if I make any remarks about the constitution of the Bank. Of course, I do not want to make any remarks about the particular Directors who are at present on the various Boards of the Imperial Bank of India. I hope that part is quite relevant to the issue.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The scope of the Bill has been explained to the House by the Chair and the Chair wants to leave it to Honourable Members to confine their remarks to the scope as defined in the Bill. I will leave it to the Honourable Members to do it.

Mr. S. C. Mitra (Chittagong and Rajshahi Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I remember you ruled, that preamble does not necessarily govern all the clauses. If, in the clauses of the Bill, the Mover expressly deals with the re-constitution of the Directorate, I hope you will allow us to discuss it.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : It will certainly be within the scope of the discussion, but the enormous mass of details in which the Honourable Member is going will certainly be out of order.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I rise on a point of information, Sir. As just now stated by the Chair, we do realise that there are three questions that are involved as questions of principle in this Bill. But may I know that when we have been talking with regard to these questions, especially with regard to the removal of restrictions, and also making an agreement with the Reserve Bank, is it not within the purview of this House or the discussion that we should point out the defects that have been experienced in practice so that, when an agreement is made, notice should be taken of those defects and flaws. For instance, if you will permit me to say so, they have a certain principle, namely, if a shroff of the bank goes on leave, then he is to be made responsible for all the defalcations that may happen in his absence.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Certainly that point will be out of order.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : What I am submitting is that there are certain defects that have to be .....

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Order, order : The Honourable Member cannot make a speech now.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I am not making a speech, but I am speaking on a point of information. What I submit is this. Under this Bill, we are making a new agreement with the Reserve Bank and there are certain defects, of which we are aware, which should be removed or improved. I wanted to know from the Chair whether we could go into those points or not.

Mr. B. Das (Orissa Division : Non-Muhammadan) : May I rise on a point of information, Sir ? The Bill aims at the modification of the control of the Government of India over the Imperial Bank. As the Government of India failed in the past to properly control the action of the Imperial Bank of India and as they are going further to empower the Imperial Bank of India for a number of years to be bankers of the State in spite of that failure of proper control, may we not be permitted to discuss the past mis-control of the Government of India over the Imperial Bank ?

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : When the Honourable Member will rise to speak, I will see whether he is in order.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : I will bow to your decision and will not go into the clauses. But in such matters I feel that it is necessary that the old history as well as the traditions and the matters in which they have gone wrong should be mentioned and, in the light of our experience in the past, we should make a change. I hope, Mr. President, you will permit me to speak on those matters.

Now, Sir, the Imperial Bank is going to be the sole agent of the Reserve Bank and, for some years to come, it would not be possible for the Reserve Bank to open Branches to the extent that the Imperial Bank has done. Therefore, at least for five years or so most of the business will be done by the Imperial Bank of India and it has been our ideal and also the ideal of the Government of India that we should have this institution under the control of Indians, for India and to be run by Indians. The Government have recognised that the Indianization of the Imperial Bank shall continue. During the last few years the Imperial Bank has done something in that direction, though they did not do even a fraction of it for nearly a century. Still, we do feel that the sole agent which will work for the Reserve Bank should be an institution which is run by Indians and for Indians. I do not see how it will be possible for the Bank to be under the control of Indians when certain restrictions are removed. The new constitution is such that, if they institute any further Local Boards, only their Directors and the Secretary will come to the Central Board and to the extent that Indians are unable to exercise their franchise and elect the members according to their own choice, Indians cannot get in. The principle, which the Government have recognised, that is, the Indianisation of the Imperial Bank, has not been incorporated in the Bill. In fact, the Bank will be managed by Europeans only—European Directors in majority, European Managers, Governors and European Secretaries. Then, I want to ask, how it would differ from the Exchange Banks? If a foreign-managed institution is required, why not entrust the work of the Reserve Bank on behalf of the Government to the bigger institutions like the National Bank, the Chartered Bank and other Banks? Now, Sir, the Governor General in Council will have no hand in the choice of the Managing Governor and the Deputy Managing Governor and the Board will go on appointing Europeans.

Now, I come to a very important matter which has not been set right in this Bill in spite of protests by the Bombay Shareholders' Association and other Chambers also. Under the Act, it is open for one member with 199 proxies to carry on a meeting of the Shareholders. There is no limit prescribed for the number of persons to be present at a meeting. The way in which proxies are collected, either by the Bank or by their friends—it comes to the same thing—is such that there is great abuse of this system. In the Bill they have actually provided a clause with a view to making the use of proxies more easy. They have incorporated a clause here that in the case of power of attorny previously deposited, i.e., permanent proxies which are in the several head offices, they need not be brought to the place where the meeting is held, but it is enough if the Secretary of any such Local Head Office gives a certificate that he is holding these proxies at a particular place. This is a further facility for the use of these proxies. I think generally it ought to be the policy of a Bank not to interfere with votes, but, as I have shown from the figures, we find that there are certain number of standing proxies in the name of certain officers or directors. I know the case of one of the Presidency Banks—it is not then the Imperial Bank—where they sent printed and stamped form of proxies in favour of their Directors saying "I appoint Mr. so and so, a Director, as my proxy, failing him Mr. so and so, a Director, failing him Mr. so and so, a Director". Thus they adopted a new printed proxy form for the occasion and they defeated the object of free exercise of votes by the shareholders. So, under the constitution, we should provide that there should not be any canvassing by the officers or Directors or their friends specially among those who are indebted to the Bank and the shareholders should be allowed to make their own choice. In this connection I may draw the attention of the House to what an Association had said on the matter of collecting proxies. They say that unless the matter was made secure under the law, it would not be possible for the shareholders to exercise their rights properly. Another suggestion that I wish to make is that the bank officers should not indulge in any speculation in Government securities. I have not got a copy of the Bank Worker, the organ of the subordinate staff of the Imperial Bank where they have accused the officers of indulging in speculation in certain securities, because they were allowed to invest their provident fund in a particular way. I think the clause should be so amended that there may not be room for any such suspicion. I also suggest that some limit should be placed on the age of Directors. This provision is found in some of the European Banks on the Continent. Generally with age is associated certain experience and wisdom. Under the pretext of experience and sane wisdom some of the Directors are kept on indefinitely and they are re-appointed. Now, up to a certain stage, age and experience is good. But it is bad when it goes far beyond that stage, when it is not physically possible for them to attend a meeting and think rightly. My Honourable friend, the Finance Member, accused me of physical infirmity at the age of 57 and I wonder how he justifies the appointment at the ages of 80 and 90 years. Everybody is liable to infirmity and everybody has his weaknesses, and I never thought the Honourable the Finance Member will go to the extent of accusing me of short-sightedness. I wish to see things with my natural eyes and not through the official glasses. I cannot put on official green spectacles and see everything green when it is not so. I must decline to give up all my judgment and all my experience, and take the Government view only through these coloured glasses. With regard to my reference to the London Committee, the Honourable the Finance Member said that the Members who had gone there were "bold enough and had the ambition to attack the Government". A rare thing indeed. He mentioned two or three names, but if he had gone further up the list and mentioned the names of the other gentlemen, I do not think even those gentlemen will claim that they had any ambition of criticising, much less attacking, the Government and ruining all their chances of being ever appointed on the Select Committee and other Committees. Then, the Honourable the Finance Member, with reference to the bride I spoke of, said that it was not possible to turn a car into a bride....

The Honourable Sir George Schuster: Is my Honourable friend in order in replying to a speech which was made on a measure which the House has already disposed of? The arguments which my Honourable friend is referring to were advanced on a totally different measure and I suggest that my Honourable friend is entirely out of order in replying to a debate on a motion which this House has already passed.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad: Honourable Members on the Government Benches have always the last word to say and we non-officials have got no chance to reply to their criticisms. The only chance for us to reply to them is when a similar question is under debate.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya: The Honourable Member said that I had indulged in mud-slinging about the Directors and, in his speech, yesterday, he quoted very jubilantly the comments of the Hindu which is no doubt a leading paper, not only in Madras but in the whole of India and so ably edited by my old friend, my good friend, Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar. I have the highest regard for my friend and his paper. If the Honourable the Finance Member will kindly take the trouble of going through the old files of the Hindu and see what comments the Hindu has made about the working of the Imperial Bank in the past, he would find, it surpasses any socalled mud-slinging by anybody here. I hope he will bear those comments also in mind when, for the time being, it is very convenient to quote that paper. Sir, when one gets into the London atmosphere, he begins to think in that way, and I am not surprised that the learned and able editor of the Hindu was also somewhat carried away by the London atmosphere—the great show and pomp and the importance given to the Bill and the members and the minority in which he found himself. But I think, Sir, I can easily, within a few months, quote from any paper a leader to contradict its own remarks previously made ! Did not the learned Editor of the Hindu agree to the principle of a State Bank and fought for it in this very House ? I want to know why he has given up that and gone back to a Shareholders' Bank ?

Sir, before I close, I am very sorry to have to speak about one matter and that is about the age and experience of the Directors of the Imperial Bank. Here I may tell you a little story. At one of the Executive Council meetings in India, a very liberal Governor was presiding, and when a Council meeting was going on, one of the Executive Council Members was always dinning into his ears that he should not care about this press agitation and public criticism, but should be guided by his accumulated experience and other Members' accumulated experience of 30 years. And, whenever the Governor spoke, he trotted out this theory of his accumulated experience. Then the Governor lost his patience. "Well, Sir," he said, "if you attach so much importance to that, I may tell you that your accumulated experience of 30 years means that you are out of touch with the progress and public opinion and out of date by 30 years". So are these gentlemen, who are past 70, 80 or 90 years, with their infirmities, unfit to look after a Bank like the Imperial Bank of India which is performing the functions of a Bank to the extent they were allowed to do. It is a most scandalous part of the whole management that the Directorate should be confined to any particular firms or class or that the Directors should be allowed to sit there when they are really not fit for it.

Sir, I have some more points regarding the clauses of the Bill, but as the Honourable the President has ruled it otherwise, I will obey the order of the Honourable the President and will not take them up. Sir, I thank you for your indulgence.

Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi (Madras ceded Districts and Chittoor : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, before I agree to the motion before the House, I should like to make one or two observations with regard to it. In consequence of the proposed introduction of the Reserve Bank, necessarily certain privileges, that the Imperial Bank of India enjoyed, had to be withdrawn and, with the withdrawal of those privileges, the restrictions that were placed on the operations of the Imperial Bank have also to be withdrawn. That follows as a necessary consequence. One of the restrictions is that hitherto the Imperial Bank was not allowed to do any internal commercial business or foreign exchange business. All these years India's foreign exchange business has been financed by foreign banks that have established themselves in this country. Sir, it is estimated that the total volume of foreign exchange amounts to the extent of 600 crores of rupees annually and India had to depend upon the facilities that are provided by these foreign exchange banks. So it is quite essential that when the privileges so long enjoyed by the Imperial Bank are removed, the future Imperial Bank should be allowed to do foreign exchange business also and, with the prestige and position of the Imperial Bank, it will be in a very good position to compete with foreign exchange banks and offer facilities for India's trade. Of course these restrictions were hitherto necessary, because the Government were allowing large cash balances, something like 15 to 20 crores, to lie with the Bank without interest and consequently they expected that the bank should not enter into any risky or speculative transactions. And, further, the joint stock and other banks also had to deposit a portion of their cash balances with the Imperial Bank and hence it was not allowed to compete with these banks. Now that these restrictions have to be removed and cash balances are not allowed to the Imperial Bank, and that the Imperial Bank is relegated to the position of the other joint stock banks, it must be allowed free scope to do foreign exchange business as well as internal commercial business. So far, it is quite necessary.

Then, Sir, with regard to the agency business that is to be given to this Imperial Bank hereafter to do the business of the Reserve Bank, wherever the Imperial Bank has got its branches, I have to submit, as I said yesterday, that the Imperial Bank should not be given the sole privilege of acting as Agent of the future Reserve Bank.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Sir, may I rise on a point of order ? The last thing I want to do is to suggest that the discussion should be restricted, but the point that I want to make is that in the Bill, which was considered by the House yesterday, there is a clause to this effect that "the Bank shall enter into an agreement with the Imperial Bank of India, etc.". The House has already approved the reference to a Committee of the Bill laying down that the Reserve Bank shall enter into an agreement with the Imperial Bank of India. My point is that, in taking that action, the House has dealt already with the vital part of the matter which Honourable Members are seeking to discuss today. As far as the present Bill is concerned, all that it will provide is that it shall be lawful for the Imperial Bank to enter into an agreement with the Reserve Bank to undertake certain functions. I suggest that the points which are being made today could have been more profitably made in connection with the motion of yesterday, and I think Honourable Members took ample advantage of that opportunity. My Honourable friend, who just spoke, used the words "as I said yesterday", when he was commencing one of his remarks. Now, Sir, I do suggest that it really is out of order in connection with this Bill to enter into matters which have been discussed in connection with the Bill of yesterday. And, in taking the point of order, there is one point that I want to make to Honourable Members. I do suggest that it is not in the public interest that a discussion on these lines should proceed today. All these points can be discussed in Select Committee. I myself will be under the greatest possible difficulty in replying, in the present debate, to accusations made against the Imperial Bank, because, although, I think there might be very good replies, I do not want the Committee to take up anything but an impartial position. In the Committee we shall have an opportunity of hearing the case against the Imperial Bank and the case for the Imperial Bank, because I trust the Committee will agree to allow representatives of the Imperial Bank to appear before it. But that sort of thing is impossible in a debate of this kind in the House at the present stage. Therefore, in rising to make this point of order, I had a point of substance in my mind.

12 NOON.

Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi : My contention is not that the Imperial Bank should not enter into any transactions with the Reserve Bank or that the Reserve Bank should not enter into any sort of agreement with the Imperial Bank to act as its Agent : if that was my contention, then I will be out of court ; but that is not my contention. I emphasise again that the Imperial Bank will be in a very good position to act as agent of the Reserve Bank wherever it or its branches exist. I do not oppose that contention. On the other hand, what I was developing was that such privilege ought not to be the sole privilege of the Imperial Bank, but that it should be extended to other indigenous banks so that they might do business side by side. In places where there is a branch of the Imperial Bank and also other efficient banks working, we want that tenders should be called for for the work of the Reserve Bank to be done. That is all my contention. I have never said that the Imperial Bank should not enter into any relationship with the Reserve Bank. That was my contention yesterday and that is my contention today, and it is relevant to this point in issue whether the sole privilege ought not to be given to the Imperial Bank. It is only to the word " sole " that I take objection. I have no objection absolutely that it should act as an agent for the Reserve Bank in out of way places where no other banks exist. My only contention is that it should not be put in a position of undue advantage over other indigenous banks. My contention is also relevant for this reason : it is contemplated that some crores of rupees ought to be placed at the disposal of the Imperial Bank free of interest : you will find it in the Schedule.....

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Will my Honourable friend point out where the words " sole agent " occur in the Bill which is now before the House ?

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The House must recognise that the Chair would have considerable difficulty in defining the exact lines within which the discussion today on this Bill must be confined. In the face of that difficulty, I can only make an appeal to the House. The House had ample opportunities of discussing for three days the Reserve Bank of India Bill. Properly speaking, the discussion on the two Bills must have taken place simultaneously. It is because our rules do not provide for the consideration of a motion on two Bills at the same time, that the motion had to be split up. With regard to the details of the agreement of the Reserve Bank with the Imperial Bank of India, that was clearly within the scope of the Bill which we have disposed of, and I think Honourable Members will not be in order except just to make passing reference to that agreement ; with regard to the substantive point raised by the Honourable the Finance Member, I think the Chair also would endorse what the Honourable the Finance Member has said. I know that the House as a whole takes a very keen interest in the affairs of the Imperial Bank which, after all, is a public institution created by an Act of the Imperial Legislature, and the House is legitimately entitled to take an interest in the affairs of that institution. In fact, in spite of the attempts of this House on previous occasions, the House has not had very full scope for having such a discussion, and this Bill no doubt provides such an opportunity ; but I would also suggest this : that, as responsible representatives of the people, we must be very cautious in what we say with regard to the management of such a delicate institution as a Bank, because it might have serious repercussions in the financial world. The Select Committee is the proper place where a thorough investigation can be and ought to be made about the affairs of the Imperial Bank before this Bill emerges from the Select Committee ; and, I think, after giving the Select Committee the opportunity to go into the details, it will then be perfectly open and justifiable on the part of Honourable Members at a later stage to go into the details of the management of the Imperial Bank. I would suggest that at this stage Honourable Members will be well advised in the public interest not to go into too many details.

Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi : On that point my only contention was that the privilege of sole agency should also be extended to other banks.

We are now removing those restrictions that were hitherto imposed on the bank : it was because the bank was given certain cash balances free of interest, that certain restrictions were placed ; now this Bill seeks to remove those restrictions, and the privilege of keeping cash balances has been removed. But in its place it is contemplated to allow certain amounts to the extent of a five to six crores to be given free of interest, and hence I am opposed to all the powers of the Governor General being taken away from the Imperial Bank in the matter of nominating directors or governors. Some sort of control must continue in the working of the Imperial Bank even after the Reserve Bank is established, because the Bill contemplates that that Bank should act as an Agent for the Reserve Bank and certain facilities are going to be given to the Imperial Bank. With these remarks, I have no objection to supporting the motion for reference to Select Committee.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : Sir, the Imperial Bank of India (Amendment) Bill is a necessary corollary to the Reserve Bank Bill and, as such, it would not have taken even a couple of minutes to refer it to the Select Committee ; but as my friend, Mr. B. Das, has pointed out, though this is an amending Bill, really under cover of it, we are enacting an Imperial Bank of India Act for 25 years. By efflux of time, the life of the old Imperial Bank of India Act, enacted in 1920, is over, and it is not in the same position as in 1928, a mere amendment consequential to the introduction of the Reserve Bank Bill. I appeal to you, Sir, to look to this side of the question in allowing us to discuss about the principles of this Bill. I shall strictly follow your ruling. I shall not go into any detail ; but, at the same time, I think if we examine the Bill merely as an amending Bill, we will not be doing full justice to this Bill. Had there been no Reserve Bank, certainly Government would have come even earlier than this date with a new Imperial Bank of India Act to continue their agreement with the Bank. The experience of Indians of the way in which the Imperial Bank behaved is well known. The Presidency Banks which were later on incorporated into the Imperial Bank, which was the Bankers' Bank or the Central Bank for India, has not, all these years, done justice to Indians in general, and to Indian agriculture in particular. It was certainly helpful to the European industries, but not to the Indian industries even in the least degree. We have our complaint against the working and management of the Imperial Bank, but, Sir, as you have advised us, I shall not go into details at this stage. I myself introduced a Bill for amending the Imperial Bank Act during the last Session, but, through the whims of the ballot box, I did not get a chance to discuss the Bill till now. I wanted to introduce mainly two principles, one was about the statutory recognition of the Staff Unions by the Imperial Bank and the other was that, in the re-organization of the Directorate, there should be representation of the Indian staff also. I don't think I should now ventilate those grievances. If it is not beyond our scope, I shall try to raise those points in the Select Committee ; but, I think, when we are amending this Bill in name, really we are amending the Imperial Bank Act for another 25 years.....

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I am afraid, Sir, there is some little confusion in the mind of the Honourable Member about the agreement between the Imperial Bank and the Reserve Bank and the Imperial Bank of India Act. We are not enacting the Imperial Bank of India Act for another 25 years. I think my Honourable friend has got the question of the agreement in his mind.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : Is it not a fact, Sir, that the Imperial Bank of India Act has already expired, and that it has been given an extension of life, in view of the impending legislation regarding the Reserve Bank ?

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Chair thinks the Honourable the Finance Member has made the position clear. The Honourable Member has evidently confused the operation of the Imperial Bank of India Act and the operation of the agreement between the Government and the Imperial Bank. So far as the Chair understands the position, it is the agreement that has terminated, but the Act has not terminated, and it cannot terminate until it is repealed by this House.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : Was it not extended for another two or three years ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : It is the agreement that my friend has in mind. The agreement was made for ten years, and it is now running on from year to year, and not the Act.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : My point is whether we are not binding ourselves for another 25 years about the agreement ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : That has just re-inforced the point I have just made,—that the agreement which the Reserve Bank is to make with the Imperial Bank has already been provided for and it is dealt with in the other Bill.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : Now, Sir, as the Honourable the President has ruled, that we cannot discuss one Bill without the other, I shall not go into details. But as my friend, Mr. Reddi, has put it, so long as we agree to the other Bill being sent to the Select Committee with the clauses that the Imperial Bank will be the sole agent of the Reserve Bank in all places where the Reserve Bank will not start its own branches, I think we are very much interested to see, as long as those clauses are not suitably amended, so as not to give a complete monopoly to the Imperial Bank in the future, that the interests of Indians do not suffer. However, as the Honourable the President has said, there will be time enough to discuss these points in the Select Committee, and so I don't like to develop these points further at this stage.

Mr. B. Das : Sir, I rise to oppose the consideration of the motion (Reference to Joint Select Committee) before us. I do not think the Honourable the Finance Member will in any way be put in a delicate position if the House carries out the proposition which I am putting forward, because thereby only one particular clause (clause 33) contained in the Reserve Bank Bill will have to be omitted. Sir, I am not a financier, as the Honourable the Finance Member is, nor am I the conscience-keeper of the bankers, as the Finance Member is, and so I shall suffer from the same disabilities as the previous speakers have suffered, of course with the notable exception of my friend, Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya. I may speak things which may encroach upon the ruling which you have just given or it may affect matters which my friend, the Finance Member, does not want to be known in public interest. I do not know, Sir, what he means by public interest. It was very difficult for the Finance Member to explain what " distressed gold " was, but I would like to ask him what he means by public interest—whether it is the interest of the Government of India or the interest of the Imperial Bank of India. We, the representatives of the public, here interpret public interest as the interest that affects the 360 millions people of this country, whereas my friend, the Finance Member's idea of public interest is the interest of the hush hush policy of the banking interest of India, the interest of the capitalists' vested interest, and the interest of Whitehall. Sir, I will try to keep myself within the ruling you have just given. I am here reminded of the Imperial Bank of India Act of 1920 which was passed by the old Imperial Legislative Council where men of banking experience did take part and did fight valiantly, but I do not like today to refer on the floor of the House to the speeches that were delivered by the non-official representatives then. I shall merely quote the speech of the Honourable Mr. W. M. Hailey (now His Excellency Sir Malcolm Hailey) who is now the conscience-keeper of Whitehall. While he moved that the Bill be passed, he referred to the various doubts and suspicions that were expressed by the Opposition, and he replied to them encouragingly and piously stated his views in these words. I do hope, when my friend, the Finance Member, will rise to reply, he will reply point by point categorically to this statement which I am quoting from the speech of the Honourable Mr. W. M. Hailey and tell us how far the Government of India have exercised their control on the Imperial Bank of India and how far the Imperial Bank had given effect to the pious wishes of the then Finance Member of the Government of India in their day to day routine work. This is what he said :

" I am sure that time and experience will dissipate the apprehension that the new Bank will prove a danger to the private banks of this country. For my own part I have never been able to envisage the position that the new Imperial Bank is likely to serve the needs of one class of the community or of one section of bankers. We ourselves have regarded it purely as a measure to extend banking facilities, and to render the money resources of India more accessible to the trade and industry of this country ; thereby promoting that financial progress which is an indisputable condition of the social and economic advancement of India. It was in this belief, Sir, that we first set our hands to this measure ; it was in this belief that, in spite of some opposition and misunderstanding, of our motives, we continued to press it on the Council ; and it is in the belief that the measure will give to us a great national institution having ample resources for the assistance of trade, constituting itself an example of sound banking to other banks, an institution which will assist not only the State, but the public, and all sections of the public—it is in the firm assurance in this belief that I now ask the Council to pass the Bill."

[Mr. B. Das.]

Nobody on this side of the House, nor the teeming millions of India, except the few Indian or European capitalists that are Directors or Governors of the Imperial Bank, can say that the Imperial Bank is a national bank of India. I challenge here and outside this House any Indian to say that the Imperial Bank is functioning as the national bank of India. I further say that the Imperial Bank of India has gone against every indigenous bank, because it has been the protege of the Government of India, because it handles the huge finances of the Government. It has become a bloated up bank, and, with its big financial reserves, it might be benefiting a few shareholders, but it has done infinite harm to the national interests of India. It has done infinite harm to the Indian trade and commerce. My friend—of course he was my friend—Mr. W. M. Hailey, here says :

"For my own part I have never been able to envisage the position that the new Imperial Bank is likely to serve the needs of one class of the community or of one section of bankers. We ourselves have regarded it purely as a measure to extend banking facilities, and to render the money resources of India more accessible to the trade and industry of this country...."

He also mentioned that it will serve all sections of the Indian public. I do hope that the witnesses, who will appear before the Joint Committee, will prove that they have served all the interests in India. We have asked questions of the present Finance Member and his predecessors. Figures were produced to show that more money was advanced to the European interests in this country than to the Indian interests. My opposition to this reference to a Joint Committee lies in the fact that in spite of my having certain differences about the Reserve Bank, I have welcomed its establishment. I have supported that there should be a Reserve Bank, but why should the Reserve Bank, which is to be vested with the powers which at present the Government of India exercise through their Chancellor of the Exchequer, hand over all their resources, their liquid resources to the Imperial Bank ? Why should the Imperial Bank be at an advantage as against the Central Bank of India, or the Bank of India, or the Bank which my Honourable friend, Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya, controls ? We know the history of the Presidency Banks. They were European banks, though there might have been a large number of Indian shareholders. And the legacies of the Presidency Banks still continue in the management of the Imperial Bank. When we are turning a new leaf, when we are thinking in terms national, why should one particular bank receive these favours from the Reserve Bank and not the other banks ? If we throw out this Bill, no harm will be done to the Government or to the country. Government may bring a Bill to repeal the Imperial Bank of India Act, and they may bring forward another Bill for entering into business transactions with all banks,—of course, Indian, with Indian Directors, banks which satisfy the conditions laid down in the External Capital Committee's report about the Directorate, about the share capital. The Government of India would then enter into transactions with them, and wherever other indigenous banks exist, they should give equal opportunity, and no preferential treatment should be given to the Imperial Bank.

Sir, things have gone wrong. The financial Swaraj or control which we were dreaming of has slipped out of our hands, partly through our mistakes and partly through the rally of the diehards in England. I do not mind if my Honourable friend, the Finance Member, is a party to the financial safeguards in the White Paper ; it is his duty as a Britisher. But I would not like him to perpetuate this piece of injustice by permitting the Imperial Bank to squeeze out all other banks. I will only give one illustration. It is not a new thing ; it is well known to the House, especially to its older Members. When the Peoples' Bank of Lahore went into liquidation, did the Imperial Bank go to its rescue ? Rather there was a dinner party in Lahore celebrating the liquidation of the Peoples' Bank. But when the Alliance Bank went into liquidation, the Imperial Bank of India, though controlled by the Chancellor of the Exchequer of the Government of India, though controlled by this Legislature,—fiat went round and the Finance Member ordered the Imperial Bank to take over the whole burden of the Alliance Bank. We asked questions after questions ; I do not know how many hundreds of questions were asked on the floor of this House. The final reply never came, nor did we on this side know how much loss the Imperial Bank suffered. Of course, I must say that that loss is covered by the huge free deposit of 200 or 300 crores of rupees which the Imperial Bank handles every year without paying any interest on behalf of the taxpayers. It is said that the shareholders or creditors of the Alliance Bank got only eight annas to the rupee. Is that so ?

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : The Imperial Bank of India gave them funds to enable them to pay eight annas in the rupee to the depositors immediately.

Mr. S. C. Sen (Bengal National Chamber of Commerce : Indian Commerce) : The creditors got to the extent of about fourteen annas in the rupee.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : The creditors were paid eight annas immediately.

Mr. B. Das : The Imperial Bank, directed by the then Finance Member of the Government of India, came to the rescue of the Alliance Bank, and the scandals of Boulton Brothers and other European financiers, who controlled the Alliance Bank, did not see the light of day. This is the past history of the Imperial Bank of India, and today my Honourable friend asks us to hand over to it for a period of 25 years the control of the banking operations of the Nation ! Either the Reserve Bank is not going to be a national bank, or the intentions of the Government are not honest. If we vote for this Bill today, we shall be creating one particular vested interest against all other banking interests, and we shall be perpetuating all the evil aspects of the past history of the Imperial Bank. I appeal to my Honourable friends not to commit that mistake. I appeal to my Honourable friends to allow the Government time to think out and plan out, which they have not had time so far to do, amidst their other preoccupations. I appeal to my Honourable friends on this side of the House to criticise the Bill in such a way that all indigenous banks of India have a chance to be agents of the Reserve Bank wherever they have branches. With these few remarks I oppose the pernicious proposition which is contained in this Bill.

I wish to point out that section 10 of the Imperial Bank Act, 1920, which is to be amended by clause 4 of this Bill brings out the meaning of the words, "sole agent". Shall I read section 10 ? Section 10 says :

"It shall also be lawful for the Bank under any agreement with the Secretary of State for India in Council to act as banker for, and to pay, receive, collect and remit money, bullion and securities on behalf of the Government"— and the amendment says :

"for the words 'the Secretary of State for India in Council' the words 'the Reserve Bank of India' shall be substituted."

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : But where is the expression "sole agency" ? My Honourable friend said that he would show us where this expression occurred in the present Bill.

Mr. B. Das : What is in a word ? I am explaining how clause 4 confers the sole power to the Imperial Bank of India.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : My Honourable friend has not proved his point at all.

Mr. B. Das : It is very difficult to convince my Honourable friend, the Finance Member, but the Chair and every other Member of this House is convinced.

Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi : Will the Honourable Member make a statement that other banks will also work as agents to the Reserve Bank ?

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : That point really arises out of the Reserve Bank Bill. It is for the Reserve Bank to decide if they will have the Imperial Bank of India as their sole agents or they will have other banks also as their agents. This Bill only enables the Imperial Bank of India to enter into an agreement with the Reserve Bank, whereby the Imperial Bank will be the sole agent or one of the agents.

Mr. B. Das : I do not wish to prolong the agony of the Treasury Benches. Your ruling satisfies me, Sir. Those of us, who will be represented in the Committee, will see that the Imperial Bank does not become the sole heir of the State for millions of years. In consideration of that view, I can give my sanction if the Finance Member says that he will withdraw this Bill and bring out another Bill, whereby other indigenous banks will also be heirs to the funds of the Reserve Bank.

Mr. R. S. Sarma (Nominated Non-Official) : I move that the question be now put.

Mr. B. Das : Is he the Government whip ?

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I am not opposed to this Bill at all. I feel that it will be inconsistent if we did not send this Bill also to the Select Committee. This Bill, connected as it is with the Reserve Bank Bill, should automatically go to the Select Committee. I am not going to make a long speech on this motion, nor shall I go into details. I am thankful to the Honourable the Finance Member when he got up to say that he takes note of the defects and irregularities of the Imperial Bank and that he will consider them.....

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I really must reject my Honourable friend's praises. I never said anything of the kind.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Then I do hope that the Finance Member who has been hearing the defects of the Imperial Bank, not only now, but also at question times, will give his attention to this at the time when he is making an actual agreement with the Imperial Bank. There is only one point to which I wish to refer and it is this. I had no opportunity to speak on the Reserve Bank Bill, but what I want to emphasize is this—that some of us on this side of the House are against any indirect election of the Directorate. The Directors, as I understand them under the Reserve Bank Bill, have to be selected by Local Boards. I find here some attempt is being made with regard to that under clause 28 of this Bill. It is said that the Central Board shall consist of the following Governors and so on and then a reference is made to the Secretaries of the Local Boards established by this Act and it is further said that if any Local Board is hereafter established under this Act, there will be such number of persons to represent it as the Central Board may prescribe.

The Imperial Bank of India Act is not with me and I am not in a position to say how the Directors are at present elected. I am told that the Directors are elected by the shareholders. That is the direct method of electing the Directors. That method I want for both the Banks, and I want to draw the attention of the Finance Member to this point of direct election and ask that it should be considered at the time of the Joint Select Committees' meeting. I have nothing more to say.

Mr. S. C. Sen : I have no desire to enter into the details of this Bill. This Bill is necessary for removing certain restrictions which were imposed on the Imperial Bank, because they were dealing with the Secretary of State, but I ask the Honourable the Finance Member in removing those restrictions to consider how far they are consistent with safety for the very large sums of money which will be handled by the Imperial Bank of India on behalf of the Government of India. If the future Imperial Bank of India is to be allowed to trade in all classes of things, as it is proposed to be done, how far would that be consistent with the handling of large sums by the Imperial Bank of India on behalf of the Reserve Bank ? That is a point which should be considered by the Honourable the Finance Member when the Bill goes before the Select Committee. Much abuse has been showered on the Imperial Bank of India by my friend, Mr. Das. My experience in Calcutta is otherwise. When we approached the Imperial Bank on behalf of the Bengal National Bank, they immediately gave us 20 lakhs of rupees. I cannot forget the way in which the Imperial Bank came to our help on that occasion.

Mr. B. Das : One swallow does not make a summer.

Mr. S. C. Sen : As abuses have been showered on the head of the Imperial Bank of India, I have told the House what is our experience in this matter.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : They have declined to advance money even against Government paper.

Mr. S. C. Sen : They did not even look in our case into the securities which were being offered and they paid the money then and there.

Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi : Then they were not doing good banking business.

Mr. B. Das : Were the applicants Bengalees ?

Mr. S. C. Sen : Yes, the Directors of the late Bengal National Bank were all Bengalees. Then, another objection was raised by Mr. Pandya that the Bank Directors were guilty of sending proxies to the shareholders. Probably he has forgotten that that is a procedure which obtains in the case of every joint stock company in the world and that it is legalised is proved by decisions in the highest Courts in England. So there is nothing wrong there. If, for the purpose of the Bank and for the purpose of the business of the Bank, the Directors thought that they should approach the shareholders with proxies, there is nothing wrong in it. Sir, I need not go into further details. All I need say at this stage is that the restrictions, which are sought to be removed, should be carefully considered.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Sir, before I take up the general principles of this Bill, I would like to make some reference to two points mentioned by my friend, Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya. The first point refers to age. I remember when I was a small boy in a school, some person came to examine me and put a simple question of arithmetic : If the price of a horse, whose age is 4 years, is Rs. 15, what would be the price of the same horse when it reaches the age of 24 ? I immediately multiplied the price of the horse with 6 and 90 was the answer. Then, everybody laughed and I thought that I had made a mistake. Then I reconsidered the matter and found out that the value of every living being increases with age up to a certain limit and afterwards the law of diminishing returns begins, and price at a certain age suddenly collapses. I think this was really the point which Mr. Pandya was trying to bring out. The second point to which I would like to refer is about the persons who went to London. I was unfortunately one of the persons who went to London, but I was not a member of the Reserve Bank Committee ; I did not take part in the discussion nor I signed the report ; I was a member of the Railway Committee. I left India with the full determination that I would oppose tooth and nail the scheme relating to the establishment of the Statutory Board and in order to equip myself I went to Geneva to gather some more facts in addition to what I already possessed. But when I carefully examined the administration and the working of the various Railways in Europe, I changed my mind on account of the convincing facts which were laid before me. Let me tell the House that this did not happen in the hot climate of London—because my experience is that the climate of London at that time was certainly hotter than that of Simla now—but I changed my mind in the cool atmosphere of Geneva. And when the time comes to discuss this question of the Statutory Railway Board I hope my distinguished Leader will give the Assembly an opportunity to discuss it, and then I will be able to lay before the House the exact reasons and facts on account of which I changed my opinion. Therefore, the House should give some concession to the persons who went to London. They had some honesty about them. It is quite a different matter that unfortunately the majority of the members of the Reserve Bank Committee consisted of persons who believed in the State Bank, but their honesty is not in question.

Now, Sir, I come to the subject matter of this Bill. I would have very much liked to have this Bill consisting of only two clauses. The first clause ought to have been that the Imperial Bank of India Act of 1920 is hereby repealed; and the second clause should have said that the Governor General in Council may be empowered to transfer all the cash balances and also take the necessary steps to transfer the credit of the country from the Imperial Bank to the future Reserve Bank. These two clauses would have been quite sufficient to meet our case. Then we would have left it to the Reserve Bank to make such negotiations with the Imperial Bank and other banks as it might think fit. Sir, I would like, first of all, to ask the question whether the Imperial Bank is a private bank or whether it is a State Bank ? You cannot say that it is a private bank because we are enacting for the Imperial Bank. We are not enacting for the Simla bank or for other banks in this country. We are placing this Imperial Bank in a favoured position. So it is not a private bank. Is it a State Bank ? I suppose the answer will be that it is not altogether a State Bank because the shareholders have got enormous powers. I do not like to go into the details as they have already been described by my distinguished friend, Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya. The fact, however, is that it is neither the one nor the other. It is both a Shareholders' Bank and the Government Bank. Sir, this sort of thing you are demanding in the case of the Reserve Bank. Whatever irregularities they want to commit they may do without taking the risk of being criticised in the Assembly. You are creating a position in which neither the shareholders nor Legislature may be in a position to criticise. A shareholder as such has got no voice because one man's voice is always drowned by a shareholder who is holding 200 proxies in his pocket. It is not a case of one man and one vote. We cannot criticise it on the floor of this House. Therefore, I do not mind that it may either be a State Bank and its working criticised on the floor of this House, and its administration responsible to the Legislature, or be a private or a Shareholders' Bank. In the latter case we need not take the trouble of going into its affairs at all. If the Bank mismanages its business, it would suffer, and shareholders not the taxpayers would pay for mismanagement. Here what they are trying to do is this. The Imperial Bank is not doing anything for the benefit of the country and yet it is demanding the full benefit of the protection of Government. This is a very anomalous position and we should not allow it. I want to press that the question of the Imperial Bank ought to be left entirely to the consideration of the Reserve Bank when it is established and we, as Members of this Legislature, should not take part in its deliberations at all, except in one respect, if the Honourable the Finance Member may be willing to accept it, that the Act of 1920 may be repealed altogether and the Imperial Bank may be placed on the same footing as other banks. Sir, we have got the Act before us but no person either on behalf of the Imperial Bank or the Government has made out a case as to why the Bank should continue to receive the protection of the Government. If there was no Reserve Bank, then I could understand that the Government wanted a bank to look after its credit. But when the credit of the Government is going to be transferred from the Imperial Bank to the Reserve Bank, then there is no reason why we should continue to show the same favour which we have been showing for the last 13 years to this one particular Bank. It may be said that because we have been showing to this Bank special favour and because this Bank had been enjoying special privileges, it is accustomed to it and it should continue to enjoy them. If that is the argument which is brought in its favour, then the argument of my honourable friend, Mr. Pandya, will immediately come to the forefront, namely, that our experience is that the way in which you carried on the affairs in the past does not deserve the continuation of those privileges. Therefore I would very much like to be informed by those who are in favour of the continuation of these privileges to make out a case for the continuation of the privileges.

Another point I should like to refer to is this. If the Imperial Bank Act is to be enacted by us, and receive legislative authority, the Imperial Bank must be subject to the conditions of 'Services' laid down by the Home Department. If the Home Department make rules of appointment for the departments of the Government of India, then all departments which receive protection and favour from them should conform to those conditions. Similarly if the Imperial Bank is to receive legislative sanction, then they should submit to all the conditions laid down by the Home Department. This is one more point against the legislative enactment of the Imperial Bank if they refuse to submit to the conditions. Therefore, I strongly impress this fact that we ought to place all the indigenous banks in India on the same footing. We must not place one bank in a favoured position. If this principle is adopted then this legislation goes against that particular principle. We on this side of the House very strongly feel that no bank should be placed in a privileged position and therefore we cannot possibly agree to the continuation of the privileges enjoyed and misused so long by the Imperial Bank.

Another point that I wish to make out is this. India is no doubt an agricultural country. If any one wishes to give any advantage to India then he must take into the consideration the benefits of the agricultural classes. In this case the Imperial Bank has singularly failed. They may have failed on account of the provisions of the Imperial Bank Act. But they never demanded from the Government a change of that Act. The Imperial Bank never give any advance to the landlords on the security of landed property. I pointed out the other day that though the bank rate of interest has been reduced, it has been reduced only for the benefit of the industrialists and commercial men in Bombay and Calcutta. We, in Upper India, who pay very large taxes for the profits of the Imperial Bank, gain no advantage from them. They never give any advance on the security of agricultural properties and therefore the landlords are compelled to take money from the local bankers who have not reduced their rates of interest on account of the lowering of the bank rate of interest. Therefore, here also the Imperial Bank has singularly failed to help a very important class of India, namely, the agriculturists and the landlords and therefore this is another reason why they do not deserve any favour which we have been showing to them. No doubt the Imperial Bank was our favourite wife till now and the only wife till now, but now the Reserve Bank has come into existence and I think we should not have two. We should divorce the first.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster: Sir, my Honourable friend who has just spoken deserves, I think, the honour of the House in one respect above all and that is that he is not afraid of standing up in this Assembly and stating that he has changed his mind. I am glad in a way that my Honourable friend has made his speech. I am sure he will not take it amiss from me if I say this to him. I think his speech discloses that he has not made that careful study of the affairs and position of the Imperial Bank that he has made of the position of the Railway Board about which we hear so much from him. Now, I put it to my Honourable friend in all seriousness—he always takes a part and a very important part in the discussions on the floor of the House—and I put it to him that before he again intervenes in the later stages of this discussion, let him go not to Geneva but to Bombay, Calcutta and Madras and seek....

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad: In view of my experience in London, of which the Honourable Member is an eye witness, will he still advise me to go to Bombay?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster: I say let him visit those places and let him seek discussion with those who are responsible for running the affairs of the Imperial Bank and let him put before them some of the points which he has made today. Sir, it is not my object, nor is it a proper part for me to appear in this House as the advocate of the Imperial Bank. There are many things which I would like in common justice to say but as I have already pointed out on the occasion of one of the interventions which I have made in the discussion today, I wish to say nothing now which will create the impression that I am in the least biassed in my mind one way or the other as regards the statements that have been made as regards the Imperial Bank. There are many points which we shall have to enquire into in the Select Committee and there I trust Honourable Members will be willing to listen not only to one side but to both sides of the case. Sir, my Honourable friend, Mr. B. Das, asked me what I meant by reference to the public interest when I suggested to you that there were certain lines of discussion which it would not be in the public interest to permit today. Sir, what I had in mind was this. I was thinking of the public interest in an indirect way. I was thinking really of the cause of common justice and I do submit that it is in the public interest that the cause of common justice should be respected in this House. Many Honourable Members have spoken as advocates against the Imperial Bank but there is no one here who is competent to speak as an advocate for the Imperial Bank and I think it is just as well that that should be so because as I have already said I think the sort of case which has been made out is one which should be dealt with in the Select Committee and it cannot be dealt with properly in the course of a debate on the floor of the House. I still maintain that most of the speeches to which we have listened today ought to have been made, and in fact were made, in the course of the discussion on the previous motion and therefore I do not propose to deal with those speeches. The case of this motion I think is amply proved and, if I were to indicate, one way it has been proved, I am reminded of the days when I used to study Euclid and there was one method of proving a proposition which was called the reductio ad absurdum. I think the speech of my Honourable friend, Mr. B. Das, provides the reductio ad absurdum in the present case. My Honourable friend asked the House to reject this Bill altogether. I would ask the House to consider what that course would mean. The House has already approved the principle of a Bill which authorises the Reserve Bank to enter into an agreement with the Imperial Bank of India. The Imperial Bank Act, as it stands today, does not authorise the Imperial Bank to enter into an agreement with the Reserve Bank but merely to enter into an agreement with the Secretary of State in Council. One of the main amendments in this Act is to make it possible for the Imperial Bank to enter into an agreement with the Reserve Bank if a Reserve Bank is set up. That, Sir, my Honourable friend would seek to make impossible and thereby he would, if this Legislature followed his advice, be making this Legislature a laughing-stock in the eyes of the world. I need not say anything more on that and I do not think the House will want to hear me on any of the detailed provisions of the Bill. They are all matters which can be discussed in the Select Committee and I think if I might sum up the general sense of the discussion today, it is not that an Imperial Bank Amendment Act is not required but that the present Bill does not go far enough.

Mr. B. Das : Yes, that is so.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : That, Sir, is the view of the House and I think there is no one who can object to the motion that I have proposed.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That this Assembly do recommend to the Council of State that the Bill further to amend the Imperial Bank of India Act, 1920, for certain purposes, be referred to a Joint Committee of this Assembly and of the Council of State, with instructions to report on or before the 20th November, 1933, and that the Joint Committee do consist of 28 members."

The motion was adopted.

THE INDIAN MERCHANT SHIPPING (SECOND AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore (Member for Commerce and Railways) : Sir, I move :

"That the Bill further to amend the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1923, for certain purposes (Second Amendment), as reported by the Select Committee, be taken into consideration."

1 P.M.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That the Bill further to amend the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1923, for certain purposes (Second Amendment), as reported by the Select Committee, be taken into consideration."

The motion was adopted.

Clauses 2 to 34 were added to the Bill.

Clause 1 was added to the Bill.

The Title and the Preamble were added to the Bill.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : Sir, I move that the Bill, as amended by the Select Committee, be passed.

Mr. S. G. Jog (Berar Representative) : Sir, the object with which I stand up to speak on this motion is that I do not want to see this Bill passed without a word from this side. I do not want this House to put in their silent approval to this Bill. On the 12th April last, when our Honourable friend made a long speech on this Bill and there was a lot of discussion on it, the President on that night thought that the Bill was of a controversial nature and should be discussed at some later stage. We on this side of the House also thought that the measure was of a controversial nature and required further discussion, and on that night the motion for Select Committee, very much against the wishes of the Mover, had to be postponed. I had a talk with him immediately after that and I thought the Mover of the Bill had lost his temper for some time. But when the Bill came up before the House for the second time, the motion for the Select Committee was passed without much discussion. I also for some time thought, looking to the length of the Bill, that there must be some important questions involved which required some elaborate discussion.

Mr. A. Raisman (Government of India : Nominated Official) : Sir, may I rise on a point of personal explanation ? I think the Honourable Member said that, on the last occasion when this Bill was postponed, he spoke to me and I think he said that I lost my temper. I should like to explain that what the Honourable Member asked me was whether I would arrange for the meeting of the Select Committee to take place sometime before the present Session, and I must admit that as the motion had not yet been adopted, I said to him somewhat curtly that I was afraid it was not much use my collecting a Select Committee when the Bill had not been referred to one. That, Sir, is what happened.

Mr. S. G. Jog : I had no mind to criticise my Honourable friend, but I could see that he was very keen on this Bill and when he found that, it was postponed for some time, it appeared to me that he lost his temper. I absolutely had no mind to cast any aspersion on him. However, Sir, as it was given out, the whole principle of the Bill was safety first and safety last and all the clauses were introduced for ensuring the safety of the passengers and of the load that was to be put on the ships. There was some discussion when the Bill was before the Select Committee and there were some matters which, though not exactly relevant to the purpose of the Bill, were still matters of great importance from the public point of view ; and I am glad to find that recognition has been made of that in the Select Committee and I should like to read from it, otherwise the House may not take any notice of it. Of course I am also a signatory to the Select Committee's report :

"Some of us are of opinion that the rules to prevent overcrowding of deck passengers are not being strictly enforced in all cases and suggest that an inquiry should be held into this matter and any action taken that may be necessary."

I am very much thankful to the Chairman of that meeting and the official members in the Committee that they have taken a note of the suggestion on which we, the non-official Members, were very keen. The question of overcrowding, as in the Railways so in the ships, is a matter of grave concern to the general public, and I am glad to find that the official Members have taken note of it, and I only suggest to them that they should not stop here by merely making a note of it, but I hope they will make inquiries, and, wherever such a thing is found to exist, strict measures should be taken to stop this overcrowding. If they take this into consideration and put it into operation, I think the labours of the Select Committee will not have been in vain. This whole Bill refers to the safety of ships and, I think, in future, the safety of the ships will very much be assured. With these words, I support the motion that the Bill be passed.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : Sir, I will only detain the House for just a short moment. I really would like to see credit go where credit is due and I should like to say that the point to which my Honourable friend, Mr. Jog, referred was raised by my Honourable friend, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh. He raised it both in the shape of questions in this House and also during the discussions in the Select Committee, and I need only say that no recommendation coming from any member of the Select Committee will fail to receive the most careful consideration.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That the Bill further to amend the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1923, as amended by the Select Committee, be passed."

The motion was adopted.

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till Half Past Two of the Clock.

The Assembly re-assembled after Lunch at Half Past Two of the Clock, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) in the Chair.

THE MURSHIDABAD ESTATE ADMINISTRATION BILL.

Mr. B. J. Glancy (Political Secretary) : Sir, I move :

"That the Bill to provide for the appointment of a Manager on behalf of the Secretary of State of the properties of the Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad and to define the powers and duties of the Manager, as reported by the Select Committee, be taken into consideration."

I am glad to be able to say that the Select Committee, to which this Bill was referred, have sent in a unanimous report ; only very few amendments have been suggested in the Committee, and I do not think it is necessary for me to enter into them now. Certain members of the Select Committee have appended to the Committee's report a minute which runs as follows :

"A number of creditors of the Nawab Bahadur have obtained decrees in the highest judicial courts. We feel sure that these decrees will not be lightly re-opened by the Manager under the powers which this Bill confers on him, but will be accepted as prima facie proof of the respective debts."

That minute appears to Government to be a perfectly reasonable and unobjectionable statement of the position ; and Government are quite prepared to give an assurance that the Manager will act in accordance therewith. In the light of this assurance which I have now given, I venture to express a hope that Honourable Members may not find it necessary to move the amendments which stand in their names.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That the Bill to provide for the appointment of a Manager on behalf of the Secretary of State of the properties of the Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad and to define the powers and duties of the Manager, as reported by the Select Committee, be taken into consideration."

The motion was adopted.

Clause 2 was added to the Bill.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That clause 3 stand part of the Bill."

Mr. Muhammad Anwar-ul-Azim (Chittagong Division : Muhammadan Rural) : Mr. President, it is certainly not my purpose to embarrass the Official Benches by moving this amendment. My sole object is to discharge a moral duty to my constituency on the floor of this House. I am not in any way connected with the estate of Murshidabad and I have no brief on behalf of the Nawab Bahadur.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Honourable Member must move his amendment.

Mr. Muhammad Anwar-ul-Azim : Sir, I move :

"That to clause 3 of the Bill, the following further provisos be added :

'Provided that the salary of the Manager, so appointed, shall not exceed rupees eight hundred and fifty per month, or a sum equal to the pension of a retired member of the Indian Civil Service whichever is less.

Provided that the Manager so appointed shall be a person on whom the Nawab Bahadur has full faith, and the Manager so selected or appointed shall furnish securities which will be a reasonable sum in the opinion of the Secretary of State for India'."

The mandate of my constituency is this : in Bengal, the Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad is a big Zamindar : he has been occupying a big position amongst the zamindars of Bengal, but, in these days of retrenchment and things of that kind, perhaps Government will very seriously consider whether they will not like to suggest to the Nawab Bahadur to economise his expenditure. Personally I do not know who is the present holder of the coveted position of Manager to the Nawab Bahadur ; but this much I should say that he should not be getting any sum bigger than a first class City Magistrate in Bengal or, for that matter, the pension of a covenanted servant of the Crown, who retires after working in that province ; because we have precedents of estates perhaps quite as big—e.g., the estate of the Nawab of Dacca or of Mymensingh and other places in Bengal ; and if Government take a little trouble to ascertain really how much such Managers were getting there, I am certain they would not have any objection to accept this humble amendment. It seems that perhaps that bit of information is not available in the Department ; otherwise when they are going to do a good turn to the Nawab Bahadur, I am certain that they would have considered the sum of Rs. 850 or the pension of a Civil Servant, a very big sum indeed. If the present holder is getting more than Rs. 850, as against the debt to be discharged of nearly 20 lakhs, it seems to me that my amendment will not be a serious encroachment, rather a good saving. If Government have got a soft corner for the Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad, if they want to do him a good turn, I am certain they should feel that even if he could be helped to save ten rupees from his budget, it will be a thing worth considering very seriously by Government.

I also wish that the Manager so selected or appointed should be personally known to the Nawab Bahadur, because I understand that perhaps Government in their benevolence go out of the way sometimes to foist things on people which they do not really like ; and the second part of my amendment, therefore, is this : that when they appoint a Manager, it will be desirable even from an equitable standpoint to consult the Nawab Bahadur to see whether the gentleman, whom the Secretary of State may appoint as Manager, is one who would be able to pull on well with the Nawab Bahadur, because I do not think it is fair, least of all to the Government of India, to take advantage of the embarrassed position of the Nawab Bahadur and impose on him any one they like, simply because the Nawab Bahadur has gone to the length of contracting debts of doubtful considerations. The Nawab Bahadur may not dare to refuse anybody who might be foisted on him as Manager : so I say that when we are so solicitous, as it looks by the presentation of this Bill here, it would be as well to consult the Nawab Bahadur personally when they appoint the Manager.

I think that is all I need say on the present occasion with regard to the appointment of the Manager and the salary which he should draw. I am quite certain if a man who is not liked by the Nawab Bahadur is selected or appointed as Manager, things will not go on smoothly. Anyway, I know that there are very few chances of my motion being passed, but I have my responsibility to discharge in the matter, and, in answer to that, I have moved this amendment.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Amendment moved :

" That to clause 3 of the Bill, the following further provisos be added :

' Provided that the salary of the Manager, so appointed, shall not exceed rupees eight hundred and fifty per month, or a sum equal to the pension of a retired member of the Indian Civil Service whichever is less.

Provided that the Manager so appointed shall be a person on whom the Nawab Bahadur has full faith, and the Manager so selected or appointed shall furnish securities which will be a reasonable sum in the opinion of the Secretary of State for India '."

Mr. S. G. Jog (Berar Representative) : I have great pleasure in supporting the amendment moved by my Honourable friend, Sir Anwar-ul-Azim.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai (Sind : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : He has not yet become a " Sir " ; he expects to be one shortly.

Mr. S. G. Jog : Out of the whole bargain, Sir, if anybody stands to gain considerably, I think it is the Manager who will be appointed to look after this estate. I have not the least idea as to the income derived by the Nawab of Murshidabad from his estate and so I cannot say whether the salary of the Manager is proportionate to the annual income which the Nawab Bahadur gets. I do not think the responsibilities attaching to the post of Manager are so heavy as to require the appointment of a man on such a high scale. Moreover, we have to see, with due regard to efficiency, that whatever is saved goes to redeeming the debts which the Nawab Bahadur has incurred. The Political Department, I presume, is conscious of the sanctity of the payment of debts, and if my friend's amendment is accepted, I think it will go a great way to doing justice to a large number of creditors who have advanced large sums of money to the Nawab Bahadur.

While on this subject, Sir, I should like to point out that there are a large number of estates in India which can be similarly said to be encumbered. I have no idea whether they can properly be under the protection of the Political Department, but if the Political Department have shown their solicitude for this single estate, I feel that they should similarly extend their solicitude to other estates which are similarly encumbered, and adopt measures to protect those estates and other noble persons who are in the same position as the Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad. At the same time, I should like to give a fair and friendly warning to the Political Department that for a long time they sit quiet, simply watch the movements of these nobles and potentates,—probably the Political Department never care to give friendly advice in time not to exceed their annual limits of expenditure, and, when things reach beyond the stage of redemption, when these people incur heavy debts, only then the Political Department comes in.....

Mr. B. Das (Orissa Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Can they interfere legally in these matters ?

Mr. S. G. Jog : Well, my engineer friend has raised a point of law. So far as I know, my friend does not dabble in legal points.

An Honourable Member : Of course, he does.

Mr. S. G. Jog : I am glad to find that he dabbles in legal points also, but, Sir, this is not the time to go into the legal aspects of the question. The measure is before us ; it has been passed by the Select Committee, and it is no doubt the duty of the Government to protect the Nawab Bahadur, and as such, I must congratulate the Political Department for condescending to come in proper time to protect the dignity of this Noble Lord of Murshidabad. At the same time, they must take into account the question of equity in favour of the several creditors who have advanced large sums of money to the Nawab Bahadur. I have no exact idea of the age of the present Nawab, but I am told that he was born in the Sixtees or somewhere thereabout. Let us know what are the chances of all these creditors getting their money back. I know this amendent has nothing to do with that question, but I do think that the pay is quite disproportionate to the annual income of the Nawab Bahadur, and it considerably affects the position of the creditors, and, from that point of view, the amendment has been placed before the House.

With regard to the question of taking security, I do not feel inclined to support that amendment, because the person who is selected must be a man of means. I do not think that there is any necessity of taking any security from the person who will be appointed as Manager. With these few observations, I beg to support the amendment moved by my friend.

Mr. R. S. Sarma (Nominated Non-Official) : Sir, I strongly oppose this amendment, and my reason is very simple. A Bengal Minister, a friend of mine, replied very properly when there was a motion in the Bengal Council, I think, some years ago, that his salary should be reduced to one rupee per year. He very gladly accepted that, he was willing to accept one rupee a year, provided it was a suggestion that with the approval of the Government and with the approval of the Members of the Legislative Council he would be allowed to take bribes. The present motion is something like that. Here is the family of the Nawab Bahadur with an income of several lakhs of rupees, and a man who is going to administer the estate on behalf of the Secretary of State must be a very big man and must be above temptations. To expect a man on a salary of about

[Mr. R. S. Sarma.]

Rs. 850 a month which a Deputy Magistrate in Bengal gets and to take up such a huge responsibility is, to my mind, unthinkable.

With regard to the second part of the amendment, Sir, the present Manager who is administering the estate on behalf of the Secretary of State, and who will probably continue to administer it on behalf of the Secretary of State under the new Act, is a man who has made a mark for integrity and ability in the Indian Civil Service in Bengal. He had held all the highest positions open to an Indian Civil Service man. He held the office of District Officer, he was Secretary to the Government of Bengal for a long time, he was a Member of the Board of Revenue and he was also Commissioner of a Division, and to expect a man of that ability and experience to work on Rs. 850 as is suggested in the amendment is, to my mind, absolutely impracticable. On these grounds, I strongly oppose the amendment.

Mr. Muhammad Muazzam Sahib Bahadur (North Madras : Muhammadan) : Sir, I would also oppose this amendment. Although I do not hold a brief, as my Honourable friend, Mr. Sarma, does, for the Manager, my anxiety is that in so far as it is the desire of the Secretary of State for India to protect the Nawab Bahadur and with that end in view to devise means and put into possession of the estate a Manager who would be able efficiently to discharge the functions that would be assigned to him under the Act, I think the Government of India is the proper authority which should be allowed to fix a reasonable salary for the work expected of the Manager. If I may throw out a suggestion, I would say that if the person to be appointed happens to be a retired Government official and if he gets an additional allowance for acting as Manager in addition to the pension that he has earned, I think a good portion of the money which would otherwise have to be paid to a man who is not in receipt of such a pension would be saved. I am not one of those who would suggest a particular sum, for instance, Rs. 850 or Rs. 950, for the man to be put in charge of this office. But I do think that by appointing a retired official much of the temptation which would otherwise attach to posts of this character would be done away with.

I find the amendment consists of two provisos ; one of which relates to the fixing of the salary of the Manager. It may happen that some of my Honourable friends are in agreement with that proviso and they want to oppose the other proviso. They should have been separately numbered. But for myself, I am opposed to both. The second proviso reads :

"Provided that the Manager so appointed shall be a person in whom the Nawab has full faith, and the Manager so selected or appointed shall furnish securities...",

If it is the idea of the Government of India or rather the Local Government to appoint a person who is really in receipt of a pension, I do not think we need insist on his furnishing any security in the way in which my Honourable friend, Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim, desires. As for the confidence expected of the Manager, I would say, that unless the Manager has had relations already, for good or for evil, with the Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad, I do not think that that question can come up at all. If you insist that the Nawab Bahadur should have confidence in the Manager, then the question arises, that generalising that position you might as well insist that the Princes or Chiefs under the Court of Wards be first consulted as to the amount of confidence which they place in the Court of Wards. The Nawab Bahadur, as I can gather from the Act, is no better than a minor under the Court of Wards. As a matter of fact, the Manager will be in possession of the entire estate and he will exercise all the functions which, but for this Act, the Nawab Bahadur would have exercised, and as such I do not think that my Honourable friend is justified in demanding security from the Manager.

Mr. G. Morgan (Bengal : European) : I oppose this amendment and the grounds on which I oppose it have been already stated by the last two speakers. It is quite impossible to expect that for an estate of this size, with the responsibilities which would be on the shoulders of the Manager of this estate, a suitable Manager could be obtained for a salary of Rs. 850. We in the Select Committee had full details of the position, and there was no suggestion put forward that a limited salary should be given to the Manager. Sir, like the last speaker I hold no brief for the present incumbent of the post. I know him personally and I am sure he is quite suitable for the post, but I should not expect him to accept a post of this description on a salary of Rs. 850 with the responsibilities which are attached to that position. I understand that there would be about Rs. 3 lakhs after all payments under clause 7 with which he will have to deal.....

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know how much he gets now ?

Mr. Muhammad Anwar-ul-Azim : Rs. 2,000.

Mr. G. Morgan : I do not know. With regard to the second part, I do not know really what the Honourable Member has in mind, but, as the last speaker said, the Nawab Bahadur is in the position of a minor under the Court of Wards. He gets Rs. 9,583-5-4 out of the estate and the management of the estate and the responsibility for that management lies on the shoulders of the Manager. I am quite certain that the Local Government will exercise the greatest care in the selection of a Manager for an estate of this description and I personally would feel every confidence in the selection made by the Local Government. Sir, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt (Burdwan Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : It appears to me from the title of the Bill that the present amendment is wholly outside the scope of the present Bill. The title of the Bill is :

"A Bill to provide for the appointment of a Manager on behalf of the Secretary of State of the properties of the Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad and to define the powers and duties of the Manager."

That is all, and not emoluments, not to fix the emoluments. So, it appears to me that the present amendment is outside the scope of this Bill. However, as the amendment has been allowed, I beg to submit that I cannot agree with my Honourable friend, the Mover of the amendment. The first portion of the amendment wants to fix the salary of the Manager. Of course, I would be very glad if a Manager could be had not at Rs. 850, but even for Rs. 500 which is the maximum salary fixed for the Governor General under the Swaraj Government in future years. If my Honourable friend had moved his amendment on that ground I would have supported him. But, Sir, I cannot make out how he arrives at the figure of Rs. 850, and not Rs. 800 or Rs. 1,000.

The Honourable Sir Bepin Behary Ghose (Law Member) : Probably on account of the value of the gold mohur on the Original Side. I understand he is a Barrister.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : I am not a Barrister, I am an Indian Advocate for whose rights I have been fighting in spite of Government opposition. Probably 50 gold mohurs. I think his standard seems to me to be that of a member of the Provincial Executive Service. Even in that case, if my Honourable friend turns over the pages of any Civil List he will find that a selection grade Deputy Magistrate gets Rs. 1,000, and a selection grade Sub-Judge gets Rs. 1,200 now-a-days. So, Sir, he does not even go to the length of paying the highest salary of a member of the Provincial Civil Service and considering the responsible nature of the post and the halo and romance that hovers round the connection of the Government of India with that of Murshidabad, I think a more suitable salary is necessary, so long as the present state of salary continues in other departments of Government. (Interruption by Mr. B. Das.) About the romance every student of history knows. My friend being an Engineer does not probably know anything except Euclid. The salary provided here is certainly not adequate. I shall not enter into the personal question of whether the present incumbent deserves more or less but the sum suggested is insignificant. Then, Sir, the second proviso says

3 P.M.

"Provided that the Manager so appointed shall be a person on whom the Nawab Bahadur has full faith."

The present position to which the Nawab Bahadur has been reduced is partially, if not wholly, due to his having been guided by men in whom he had full faith. If he had other advisers then the estate would not have been reduced to the present position. What is wanted is that the man should be one in whom the Government has full faith. I cannot therefore support this amendment.

Mr. S. C. Mitra (Chittagong and Rajshahi Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : As a member of the Select Committee, I think it my duty to oppose this amendment. Very wide powers have been vested in the Manager under this Bill. I can appreciate the standpoint of any gentleman who may be opposed to vesting such wide powers in any man but once it is conceded that considering the exigencies of the situation the Manager must be entrusted with extensive powers, it will be unwise to fetter the discretion of the Local Government to settle the emoluments of the Manager, and an amendment of this kind is not necessary. A low paid man may fail to discharge the duties that have been enjoined on him in this particular Bill. As regards the other point, whether the Manager should be appointed after consultation with the Nawab, I make no secret of the fact that this Bill has been brought forward in order to protect the Nawab against himself. That was the reason why the Select Committee was induced to give such wide powers to the Manager, because in some of these decrees of the courts, there might have been the connivance of the Nawab himself. So under the circumstances it is against the spirit and the principles of the Bill to make the appointment of the Manager conditional to the approval of the Nawab Bahadur. On these grounds, the amendment will not be acceptable, I hope, to the House.

Mr. B. J. Glancy : With regard to the first part of the amendment, therefore, as my Honourable friend, Mr. Jog, has pointed out, a good many enactments which run on lines similar to this Bill, though I am afraid that the Political Department cannot take the credit for having invented them. There are, for instance, the Oudh Talukdars' Relief Act, the Chota-Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act, etc., and to the best of my knowledge none of these or any other enactments contain any provision on the lines of those which are now proposed and it does not seem to be necessary that they should be incorporated in this Bill. All matters pertaining to the salary or security, etc., of the Manager can, I think, be very safely left to the Local Government, the Government of Bengal. I would only point out that the claims against the Nawab now stand at Rs. 19 lakhs and it seems to me obvious that you must have somebody as Manager in whom perfect confidence can be reposed. It may be possible later on as things settle down to decrease the salary of the Manager and appoint somebody else on lower pay. As regards the second part of the amendment, after what my Honourable friend, Mr. Sarma, pointed out it is unnecessary for me to say anything at all, except that the Nawab Bahadur need have no cause for any apprehensions. In fact he has every reason to congratulate himself.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That to clause 3 of the Bill, the following further provisos be added :

'Provided that the salary of the Manager, so appointed, shall not exceed rupees eight hundred and fifty per month, or a sum equal to the pension of a retired member of the Indian Civil Service whichever is less.

Provided that the Manager so appointed shall be a person on whom the Nawab Bahadur has full faith, and the Manager so selected or appointed shall furnish securities which will be a reasonable sum in the opinion of the Secretary of State for India'."

The motion was negatived.

Clause 3 was added to the Bill.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That clause 4 stand part of the Bill."

Mr. A. Das (Benares and Gorakhpur Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I move :

"That in clause 4 of the Bill, to the paragraph beginning with the word "secondly" the following proviso be added :

'Provided however the clauses firstly and secondly hereinbefore mentioned shall not be applicable to cases where any court of competent jurisdiction has passed a decree declaring any charge or lien on any specified income or incomes'."

In moving this amendment, it is not necessary to go into the details of the previous history of the Nawab of Murshidabad beyond 1838. At that time his stipend stood at Rs. 16,00,000 a year out of which Rs. 7,50,000 were allotted for his personal expenditure. Later on this stipend was reduced and certain privileges enjoyed by the former Nawab were abrogated. The salute of 19 guns was also reduced to 13 guns in 1869. The Nawab went to England to represent his grievances to the House of Commons which in 1871 rejected his appeal, by a majority of 57 votes. He continued to reside in England and following the old traditions of the family became heavily involved on which a Commission had to be appointed to arrange with his creditors on the 1st November, 1880. He resigned his position and renounced all rights of interference with the affairs of the Nizamath in consideration of an annual stipend of £10,000 and on payment to him of 10,00,000 in settlement of various miscellaneous claims and a suitable provision for his children born in England. Thenceforward the title of Nawab Nazim was replaced by the title of Nawab of Murshidabad which was conferred on Syed Hasan Ali Khan, his eldest son. Subsequently Syed Hasan Ali Khan was given the hereditary title of Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad in 1882 and that of Amir-ul-Omrah. Subsequently Act XV of 1891 was passed and an indenture was attached to the Act for the support and maintenance of the Nawab Bahadur and of the honour and dignity of the estate. Since then he has been running recklessly wild in contracting debts in spite of the fact that he had sufficient income. Sir, from that time onwards to the best of my information he has been receiving a monthly sum of about 19,66,000 as a political pension. Besides this the income of the landed property ran to several lakhs annually. The House will easily see that the political pension and the private income is more than that of even the Viceroy of India and if any person cannot manage his household with such a large income whose is the fault ? He cannot be said to be a purdahnashin woman with no education. But on the contrary he has not only had Indian education but also European education and if a man cannot cut his coat according to his cloth whose is the fault ? I am of opinion that the passing of the Act of 1889 was itself a mistake and if anything the Government is responsible for inducing the habit of extravagancy in him by making him believe that his estate will be secure and giving him undue liberty to borrow as large as he can without any corresponding obligation of payment. Look at what was the result, although the protection provided was ample in 1891.

Mr. Muhammad Muazzam Sahib Bahadur (North Madras : Muhammadan) : I think my friend has strayed far away from the point at issue. What my friend has been saying is absolutely irrelevant to the amendment which he has moved.

Mr. A. Das : Still instead of having a check on his extravagancy it had the counter effect of increasing his habit of running into fabulous debts partly for consideration and it may be partly without consideration. The Government had paid him amply for relinquishing his title and estate and I do not know what further circumstances have come into light by which the Government have certainly become alive, as if by some prick of conscience, to wipe off his debts and pass another enactment of which the Bill is before the House without any regard to the just claims of those who have advanced money to him. When the money was needed the Nawab Bahadur adopted all sorts of cajolry and inducements to attain his immediate ends either by fair or foul pretences and he did obtain a certain amount of valid consideration. If he, in order to meet his immediate ends, when receiving the full consideration, entered into bonds and agreements for a larger amount, the fault was entirely his, particularly if it is looked at in the light of Act XV of 1891 from the point of view of the creditor, who had no security for his advance, because his immovable property was not liable to attachment under the said Act. Can a lender of money be blamed if, as an additional security for his debts, he took a bond of a larger amount than what had been actually advanced ? It is no argument to say that because some money-lenders have entered into a partly shady transaction, therefore even the amounts which they have actually advanced should not be looked into. If this position is conceded, I am afraid, then the majority of the Members of this House would like to be in the position of the Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad to borrow money and get out of their liabilities.

As to the private life of the Nawab, I am only to invite the attention of the House to a memorial submitted to His Excellency the Viceroy, copies of which I presume have been supplied to most Members of the House and since the information is more or less of a public nature, there is no harm in my inviting the attention of the House to the fact that the heir of the present Nawab Bahadur had married a Jewish girl whom he recently divorced and the Jewish wife had obtained a decree for Denamahar (for a dower debt of over a lakh of rupees) and the said heir-apparent, it is said, has again married an English girl lately divorced by her Bengalee husband. If a person chooses to enter into such matrimonial relations and after marrying once relinquishes her and thus involves himself in financial difficulties whose is the fault. How does the Bill propose to correct the heir-apparent of this habit, so far as such matrimonial connections are concerned so that he cannot marry as many wives as he likes and divorce them as early as he marries them and get out of his liability for payment of any dower debt and other debts that may be required for all such marriages and festivities concommitant on it with the result perhaps that after a few years another Bill of a more restricted nature will have to be passed in his favour.

Coming to the legal aspect of the case, the claim of one creditor Mr. Gunneriwala. It appears that in July, 1920, the present Nawab and his heir Murshada-Zaida Waris Ali Mirza took a sum of Rs. 5,00,000 as an advance rent of 21 years and gave a lease of certain immovable property and saw a third party. The persons who advanced the money in order to meet the liability transferred their lease rights to Mr. Gunneriwala for 5,45,000 from 1920 to 1927. The rents were regularly collected by the lessees and their representatives and, I am informed, that they made considerable improvements also in the property at their cost. In 1927 it appears that, in order to get out of this huge liability, the Nawab Bahadur filed a suit in the Calcutta High Court which was registered as Suit 1384 of 1927 for cancellation of the lease which was contested and finally Mr. Justice Page one of the well known High Court Judges of the Calcutta High Court passed a decree personally against the Nawab Bahadur for a sum of five lakhs which he had originally taken. Now, Sir, is it fair for one moment that this decree and suit which was contested should be reopened again by the Manager, however able he may be ?

In the first instance I wish to say what the Manager can do under section 9 of the proposed Bill. The argument which may be advanced in favour of the re-opening is that because this claim in the Appellate Court was compromised, therefore the Manager can re-open it. I say that it is a wrong position. I should say this is a wrong position. However, I do not wish to go into that question, but my submission is that when a decree has been obtained after contest that decree should certainly be respected and should not be allowed to be re-opened. Similarly, there are other claims which have resulted in decrees and which run to the tune of no less than 18 lakhs. I hope the House consisting as it does of people of sound mind and judgment who had considerable experience in business matters and many of them have or are having money dealings in banking will realise that if this Bill is passed into Act, which are the securities for the creditors whose debts extend to about 19 lakhs. Under the old Act the creditors cannot touch the personal or the movable property of the Nawab Bahadur and according to the present Bill, if passed, even no charge on the profits of the estate could be enforced and the litigation which ended in the High Court recently about which a Receiver was appointed for the estate of the Nawab Bahadur and the said Receiver was entitled to collect rents and profits of the leased property and which was confirmed by Privy Council, the highest court available in the land, all the proceedings which were not done behind the back of the Nawab Bahadur could be reopened by the Manager. So this security of appointing a Receiver no longer exists in favour of the creditor. The sacred person of the Nawab Bahadur is already exempt. Lastly all the decrees and claims to the extent of 19 lakhs would last only so long as the present Nawab Bahadur is alive. It is a very important point to which I would invite the attention of the House that he is already 60 years of age and in the interests of the creditors—I pray that he may have a life of over a hundred years—but from a business point of view when the average age in this country is not over forty there is no saying when an order may come from the Almighty to which neither this House nor any other authority in the world has any access and the whole debt of 19 lakhs will be wiped off in a moment. The heir-apparent will get into the estate without any debt and perhaps in a few years will run the same game as his father did and die leaving a large debt and with the death of the present Nawab Bahadur many of his creditors will also die a civil death in losing their money.

No doubt the Bill provides that the Manager can go into such debts and since his appointment is for the preservation and betterment of the estate his sympathies will always naturally be against the creditor and in favour of his present master, if as the saying goes in Hindustani he is at all true to his salt. There will be no judicial finding about it. He is given powers to sit in judgment over decrees even though they may have been passed after contest or consent by the highest court of competent jurisdiction. The appeal is not to any judicial authority but to the Board of Revenue. The Board would be more interested in supporting and maintaining the orders of its subordinate than in meeting its creditors. A pious wish has been expressed by seven members out of 12 who sat on the Select Committee that such decrees "will not be opened lightly" but the word "lightly" is a very flexible term. It has no legal meaning and it is not embodied in any part of the Bill. Therefore it is open to the Manager either to respect or to throw to the winds this pious expression of such opinion. The Bill provides no guarantee in this respect and unless it is embodied in the Act itself that such decrees will be taken as prima facie evidence of the respective debts, the creditor cannot be satisfied.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : But the Honourable the Political Secretary has given an assurance on behalf of the Government that these decrees will not be lightly re-opened by the Manager.

Mr. A. Das : Yes, he has given the assurance. But what is the objection to embodying this assurance in the Bill itself ? An assurance given by one Member of the House may not be respected by a subsequent Government.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : But it is an assurance on behalf of the Government.

Mr. A. Das : But it has no legal effect. It is not law. If it is embodied in the Act itself, then it will be legally binding on the Manager and decrees will be taken as prima facie evidence except in those cases where they were obtained by fraud or undue influence. I appeal to the fair sense of the House that in accepting this Bill they ought to be equally fair to the creditors, particularly when their security is so thin and limited to the life time of the present son. I do not know of any Act in India where the solemn decrees of a court of law based either on consent or contest can ever be challenged by any subsequent Act without its being shown that these decrees were obtained by fraud or undue influence. The decree in suit No. 1384 of 1927 which was passed for five lakhs by Mr. Justice Page and in appeal a consent-decree was passed for Rs. 6,50,000. What I want to submit is this. Even this Bill and the Act of 1891 went much further than Chota Nagpur Encumbered States Act or other similar Acts of any other province in limiting the liability to the life of the present Nawab Bahadur, the debtor.

So far as Act XV of 1891 existed although it limited the liability to the lifetime of the borrower, but it was under that Act that the lender had the right at least to the appointment of a Receiver who took the profits of the estate of the debtor and apply it towards the liquidation of the debt but even this small right is being taken away by the present Bill. I therefore think, Sir, that without the amendment which I have moved to be incorporated in the Bill it would be a very iniquitous piece of legislation and entirely one-sided for the benefit of a reckless and extravagant borrower without paying any regard to the hard earned money which the various lenders have advanced. I commend this amendment for the acceptance of the House.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Amendment moved :

> "That in clause 4 of the Bill, to the paragraph beginning with the word "secondly" the following proviso be added :
> 'Provided however the clauses firstly and secondly hereinbefore mentioned shall not be applicable to cases where any court of competent jurisdiction has passed a decree declaring any charge or lien on any specified income or incomes'."

Mr. R. S. Sarma : Mr. President, I must at the outset congratulate my Honourable friend, Mr. A. Das, on the masterly exposition of the legal implications of the powers that are conferred on the Manager under this Bill. Though he is a very quiet and unassuming Member of this House, my friend, Mr. Das, never touches any subject of which he does not make a very thorough study and I think this House ought to be grateful to him for the unselfish service which he has so ungrudingly rendered to the public interest so far as this Bill is concerned. I, for one, would not only have supported this motion but would have also moved an amendment of this character because I do not think there is one single Member of this House who does not feel that the Manager, according to this Bill, is getting extraordinary powers. Here is a Manager getting a couple of thousand rupees clothed with powers to re-open decrees of High Courts and of Privy Council and therefore, on the face of it, it appears we are giving him extraordinary powers even over the High Courts and the Privy Council. From that point of view, I am sure that there is a strong feeling that the Manager should not get so much powers and also there is a reasonable apprehension on behalf of the creditors that those decrees might be lightly re-opened and that they would suffer. But we had this afternoon a very thorough and unequivocal assurance from the Political Secretary on behalf of Government with all the responsibility due to his position that he is accepting the note of dissent or the terms of the note of dissent which myself and my colleagues have appended to the report of the Select Committee. On behalf of Government he has admitted that no Manager would lightly re-open any decrees under the powers which this Bill confers upon him but on the other hand these decrees will be accepted as prima facie proof of the respective debts. After this assurance which is made with absolute authority on behalf of the Government of India I think the purpose which my Honourable friend, Mr. Das, wants would have been served. Therefore, I should like to make an appeal to my Honourable friend to withdraw his amendment in view of the clear assurance given on the floor of this House. I think we owe it to ourselves that I should mention that in the Select Committee also the Government appreciated the apprehension of many creditors and also of those public men who really fear that there might be something in those apprehensions and the Government very gracefully came forward to make an assurance of this character. I think we are in honour bound to accept that assurance and withdraw the motion. Secondly, the Manager even if he should lightly re-open decrees, he is not the final authority in the matter. There is the Board of Revenue over him and there is the Bengal Government above them. If it is a Law Court, it may not take cognisance of assurances given in this Assembly by the Political Secretary. After all the Bengal Government is a subordinate Government to the Government of India and they cannot repudiate assurances given by the Political Secretary on behalf of Government of India on the floor of this House. Because of this, I will make an earnest appeal to my Honourable friend to withdraw his amendment and to thank the Political Secretary for his graceful assurance that he has given.

Mr. A. Das : Sir, may I ask one question ? Does this assurance confine itself only to those decrees which have been passed after contest or does it also apply to those decrees which have been obtained on consent ?

Mr. B. J. Glancy : It applies to all decrees.

Mr. A. Das : What is the legal difficulty in embodying this in the Act itself ?

The Honourable Sir Bepin Behary Ghose : The legal difficulty would be this that this Bill is not sought to be enacted with regard to a particular man but it is going to be a permanent legislation and will apply to all his descendants.

Mr. A. Das : Sir, I beg leave of the House to withdraw this motion.

The motion was, by leave of the Assembly, withdrawn.

Clauses 4 and 5 were added to the Bill.

Lala Hari Raj Swarup (United Provinces : Landholders) : Sir, I beg to move :

"That in sub-clause (1) of clause 7 of the Bill, in the paragraph beginning with the word 'fourthly' the words 'and improvements' be omitted."

My purpose in moving this amendment is very simple. In this Act and the former Act the liability of the estate is only confined to the lifetime of the present Nawab Bahadur and by including improvements we are giving very wide powers to the Manager and if he chooses he can put down any amount on improvements and so the creditors can be deprived of their rights to get a rateable distribution in the profits of the estate. In view of this I will request Government to delete these words.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Amendment moved :

"That in sub-clause (1) of clause 7 of the Bill, in the paragraph beginning with the word 'fourthly' the words 'and improvements' be omitted."

Mr. B. J. Glancy : I should like to explain, Sir, that this point was discussed in the Select Committee, and these two words were retained because it was felt that sometimes minor improvements may save a great deal of money. They may avoid a multiplicity of repairs. For instance it may be a question of replacing a kutcha roof by a pucca roof.

Lala Hari Raj Swarup : Then you may say "minor improvements".

Mr. B. J. Glancy : I am afraid there is a certain amount of difficulty in discriminating between major improvements and minor improvements. But here again I think things may very safely be left in the hands of the Local Government who are empowered under the Bill to make rules for the guidance of the Manager.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Sir, as one coming from Sind, where an Act like this is in force, I think I am in a position to say that this amendment should be accepted. We have in Sind an Act, which is called the Sind Encumbered Estates Act, which is on similar lines, perhaps substantially the same with rare variations. There also the Act was enacted for the protection of the zamindars and landholders who have property for which they pay an assessment of more than Rs. 300. I submit that if this word "improvements" remains in the Bill under discussion, the creditors will be very much affected and it is that point which the Members on this side have been urging. If this word is there, any amount of money may be spent on improvements and that will certainly minimise the funds so that the creditors will suffer. I may say that the word "improvements" does not appear in many of the other Acts. In section 11 of the Sind Encumbered Estates Act, it is said :

"From the funds received or recovered under section 10 the Manager shall pay, first, the cost of management including the cost of necessary repairs, etc."

I say that there is every sense in the amendment that has been put forward.

Mr. G. Morgan : Sir, may I ask a question ? Is this the sole power of the Manager under this Act that the Honourable Member has quoted ?

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : No, there are other powers also.

Mr. G. Morgan : Is it the Manager alone who has the power of repairs or has it to be approved by the Local Government or the Board of Revenue ?

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : There also schemes have to be sent to the Commissioner for sanction. Sir, I think Government have been very sincere in giving us the assurance about the decrees not being lightly treated by the Manager of the estate although I would have been more glad if they had agreed not to re-open the decrees at all. In this Act, the word used is " claims " to be re-opened. I maintain that claim does not mean a claim which has been declared and determined by a Court of law to be paid.

The Honourable Sir Bepin Behary Ghose : Are there no such words as " decretal claim " ?

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : The point is that it would have been more graceful for Government to have agreed to not re-opening decrees at all. But still we have accepted the assurance that the decrees will not be lightly treated and we have to thank the Political Secretary for it. But I submit that Government should not insist on retaining this word " improvements " and they should accept this amendment.

[At this stage, Mr. President (the Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) vacated the Chair which was then occupied by Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury).]

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : The question is :

" That in sub-clause (1) of clause 7 of the Bill, in the paragraph beginning with the word ' fourthly ' the words ' and improvements ' be omitted."

The motion was negatived.

Clause 7 was added to the Bill.

Clause 8 was added to the Bill.

Mr. A. Das : Sir, after the assurance given by the Honourable the Political Secretary in this House, I do not move my amendment.

Clause 9 was added to the Bill.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : The question is :

" That clause 10 stand part of the Bill."

Mr. Muhammad Muazzam Sahib Bahadur : Sir, I move my amendment which is not even a drafting amendment, but perhaps a printer's devil : it runs as follows :

" That in the proviso to clause 10 of the Bill, for the words ' the further period ' the words ' a further period ' be substituted."

I may point out that in that clause " the further period " would be all right if there was a further period referred to previously ; but there is no further period referred to previously. I really think it is a printer's mistake and I hope the Political Secretary will have no objection to accept it.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : Amendment moved :

" That in the proviso to clause 10 of the Bill, for the words ' the further period ' the words ' a further period ' be substituted."

Sir Lancelot Graham (Secretary, Legislative Department) : Sir, I am thoroughly confused, I must confess, by my friend, Mr. Muazzim's amendment, because when I read the proviso to clause 10, I find " the Manager may admit his claim within the further period of six months from the expiration of the period of six months specified in section 8 ". I understand that his trouble is that " the " and " a " do not refer to the same period : I think he is right : actually there is a further period specified in section 8 : and this clause refers to a further period after that. Is that his point ?

Mr. Muhammad Muazzam Sahib Bahadur : Yes.

Sir Lancelot Graham : So that is correct. It is a very easy slip on the part of the draftsman : that is what has happened : it is not the further period specified in section 8 referred to : it is a further period of six months from that. So we would accept it.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : The question is :

" That in the proviso to clause 10 of the Bill, for the words ' the further period ' the words ' a further period ' be substituted."

The motion was adopted.

Clause 10, as amended, was added to the Bill.

Mr. Muhammad Anwar-ul-Azim : Mr. Deputy President, I do not really know that it is at all necessary to.....

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : The Honourable Member must move his amendment first.

Mr. Muhammad Anwar-ul-Azim : Sir, I move :

" That to clause 11 of the Bill, the following proviso be added :

' Provided always that the Manager consulted the Collector of Murshidabad in this matter and his concurrence obtained thereon '."

From the trend of speeches on both sides of the House, I gather there are quite a large number of friends on both sides who are solicitous for the interests of the creditors, and I am glad to find that some sort of response has come from my friend, the Political Secretary, that these things will be considered by the Manager when they come up before him. But when I move this amendment, I can assure him that the report of the Select Committee is not my gospel, and I do not know that the Select Committee has said the last word for the benefit of the Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad. If the Government are so solicitous as to do a good turn to the nobleman from whose ancestors they got this vast empire, I am sure, they would not have accepted this thing so blindly. Great capital was made of the Manager's responsibility and that we should not grudge him a few thousands of rupees when his duty would be to handle 19 lakhs of rupees. I have had occasions to work with receivers in my part of the country and I know I had to give securities to the tune of Rs. 50,000 ; and here perhaps this gentleman—who I gather from my friend, Mr. Sarma, will be a retired member of the Indian Civil Service—will see that no wrong is done to anybody and that the policy underlying the Bill is faithfully carried out. But that is not my grouse. My grouse is this, that if Government want to be consistent in all matters, they should have asked this gentleman, the Manager, to find a decent security for himself and to give a personal security of a lakh of rupees, at least when he is to deal with this amount of money and the whole property. I, therefore, say that it will not be unfair of Government to consider this small amendment, that, in the determination of these debts, he should consult the Collector of Murshidabad who will be the live agent of the Government of Bengal at that centre.

[Mr. Muhammad Anwar-ul-Azim.]

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : Amendment moved :

"That to clause 11 of the Bill, the following proviso be added :

'Provided always that the Manager consulted the Collector of Murshidabad in this matter and his concurrence obtained thereon'."

Mr. B. J. Glancy : Sir, I should like to explain that, under the present Bill, an appeal lies from the Manager to the Board of Revenue. It appears to me that that is a much more appropriate arrangement than providing an appeal to the Collector of Murshidabad whose time is very fully occupied, and I am afraid that he would have no leisure whatsoever to deal with such matters. Nobody there has any useful knowledge on the subject, as most of these liabilities are not to people of the Murshidabad district, but to people in Calcutta.

Mr. Muhammad Muazzam Sahib Bahadur : Sir, I entirely agree with the observations made by the Honourable the Political Secretary. I believe that if the intention of the Mover of this amendment is carried into effect, every time the Manager comes to a decision on the amount that is due or on the rate of interest which is to be charged, he will have to consult the Collector whose hands, as I understand from the Honourable the Political Secretary, are already full with work. Sir, I oppose the amendment on the ground that it will create a lot of difficulty and will hamper the work of the Collector of Murshidabad on the one hand and it will not in any way be beneficial to the estate either.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : The question is :

"That to clause 11 of the Bill, the following proviso be added :

'Provided always that the Manager consulted the Collector of Murshidabad in this matter and his concurrence obtained thereon'."

The motion was negatived.

Mr. Nabakumar Sing Dudhoria (Calcutta Suburbs : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : Sir, in view of the assurance given by the Political Secretary, I do not want to move my amendment*.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : There is a similar amendment in the name of Mr. Muazzam Sahib Bahadur.

*"That to clause 11 of the Bill, the following proviso be added :

'Provided that the Manager shall accept the decrees obtained by the creditors of the Nawab Bahadur in the highest judicial courts as prima facie proof of their respective debts'."

Mr. Muhammad Muazzam Sahib Bahadur : Nor do I want to move my amendment*. I simply wanted to improve the amendment of my friend, Mr. Dudhoria, by substituting the word "evidence" instead of "proof". I do not want to move my amendment*.

Clauses 11 and 12 were added to the Bill.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : The question is :

"That clause 13 stand part of the Bill".

The motion was adopted.

Clause 13 was added to the Bill.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : The question is :

"That clause 14 stand part of the Bill".

The motion was adopted.

Clauses 14, 15, 16 and 17 were added to the Bill.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : The question is :

"That clause 18 stand part of the Bill".

The motion was adopted.

Clause 18 was added to the Bill.

Clause 19 was added to the Bill.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : The question is :

"That clause 20 stand part of the Bill".

Mr. Muhammad Anwar-ul-Azim : Sir, The amendment I wish to move is this :

"That to clause 20 of the Bill, the following further proviso be added :

'Provided always that the leases before they were finally settled had the approval of the District Judge of Murshidabad'."

Mr. Deputy President, it is common knowledge that anybody who handles leases and things of that kind, nay even in cases where big properties are administered by Mutawallis, they cannot ride rough shod over a District Judge. Even a Mutawalli, a privileged man of his position, has got to come to the District Judge and obtain sanction in cases of leases of wakf properties. Normally the time granted is five years. Of course, without prejudice to the unlimited power which is being given to the Manager under this Bill, I should like to suggest this much, that provision should be made to see that the District Judge of Murshidabad should see whether the leases granted by the Manager are in such form as to safeguard the interests of all concerned, because it is far from me to suggest anything with regard to the powers you propose to give to the Manager, but the outside public will laugh at the

*"That to clause 11 of the Bill, the following proviso be added :

'Provided that the Manager shall accept the decrees obtained by the creditors of the Nawab Bahadur in the highest judicial courts as prima facie evidence of their respective debts'."

[Mr. Muhammad Anwar-ul-Azim.]

wide powers which this Bill is granting to the Manager, because when lakhs and lakhs of rupees are involved in big estates, and they are administered in a fiduciary manner, the matter has to come up before the District Judge, and I do not know why the Manager should be exempted from bringing his draft leases to the District Judge in this case also. Permanent leases, when granted, should not be granted so light heartedly.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : Amendment moved :

"That to clause 20 of the Bill, the following further proviso be added :

'Provided always that the leases before they were finally settled had the approval of the District Judge of Murshidabad'."

Mr. G. Morgan : Sir, I only want to draw the attention of my friend, the Mover, when he says that this measure gives unlimited power to the Manager, that with the exception of those powers granted under 28 (c), the approval of the Local Government has to be obtained before leases are sanctioned and presumably registered. Sir, I oppose this amendment.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh (Muzaffarpur cum Champaran : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I also rise to oppose the amendment just moved by my friend, Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim. Clause 20 of the Bill seeks to clothe the Manager with the power of dealing with immovable properties, and it also gives him power to execute leases of immovable property. From what I can gather, I believe the power of the Manager in this matter is always subject to the approval of the Board of Revenue and ultimately to the Local Government. So I do not think it is either necessary or desirable to interpose the authority of the District Judge in all matters. In the first place, the District Judge is over-worked as the District Magistrate is, and, for the reason adduced in throwing out the last amendment, I think this amendment also cannot be accepted by this House, because the Bill gives power to the Board of Revenue to intervene in these matters when leases are granted, and in case an appeal has to go up, the final authority is the Local Government, and so I don't think it is necessary to add this proviso to clause 20 of the Bill. Sir, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. Muhammad Muazzam Sahib Bahadur : Sir, as a matter of fact, we have in clause 20 itself what I may call a dual check, a check which is referred to in this clause and embodied in clause 28 (c) as Mr. Morgan has just pointed out, and we again have it under clause 20 that if the settlement of the estate of the Nawab Bahadur by the Manager is such that it is in perfect accord with the provisions of clause 28 of the Bill, no difficulty arises, but if the settlement goes beyond those provisions, as I take it, he has to obtain the previous sanction of the Local Government,—in this case it is the Government of Bengal. For these reasons, Sir, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : The question is :

"That to clause 20 of the Bill, the following further proviso be added :

'Provided always that the leases before they were finally settled had the approval of the District Judge of Murshidabad'."

The motion was negatived.

Clauses 20 and 21 were added to the Bill.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : The question is :

"That clause 22 stand part of the Bill".

Mr. Muhammad Anwar-ul-Azim : I should like to place this also on record, I mean my amendment.....

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Why don't you read the amendment first ?

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : The Honourable Member will please read out his amendment first.

4 P.M.

Mr. Muhammad Anwar-ul-Azim : I move :

"That after sub-clause (3) of clause 22 of the Bill, the following new sub-clause be inserted :

'(4) And that the Collector of Murshidabad or the Commissioner, Presidency Division, shall audit the accounts every year and send a report to the Board of Revenue'."

Mr. Deputy President, I do not know why these amendments are so very touchy or act as a bugbear to my friends on the right. It seems, in their inordinate hurry to pass this Bill, they lose the common courtesy of not disturbing a Member who does not ordinarily take part in debates in season, and out of season. Nowhere in the Bill, from start to finish, do I see any provision as to how these accounts are to be kept as is kept by the Court of Wards. It appears as if the Government of India want to give a blank cheque to the officer. He will not be accountable to anybody and his actions and conduct will not be subject to any check. As regards the Court of Wards, the Manager will have to carefully keep his accounts in the prescribed form, because over him he has the District Magistrate, then the Commissioner, and then the Board of Revenue. In this case, there are no checks, and I should like very much to know from the Political Secretary what check he has provided in the body of the Bill over the vagaries of any Manager of this estate.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : Amendment moved :

"That after sub-clause (3) of clause 22 of the Bill, the following new sub-clause be inserted :

'(4) And that the Collector of Murshidabad or the Commissioner, Presidency Division, shall audit the accounts every year and send a report to the Board of Revenue'."

Mr. B. J. Glancy : Sir, I should like to draw the attention of the Honourable Member to clause 28 (2) (b) of the Bill which deals with the matter of audit. The Board of Revenue will, no doubt, make rules about the manner in which the audit shall be conducted, and when they come to do so, I should imagine it is more likely that they would entrust that function to the Accountant General or the Examiner of Local Fund Accounts than to a busy administrative officer such as the Collector of Murshidabad or the Commissioner of the Presidency Division.

Mr. G. Morgan : I have been looking through this Bill to see under what clause or rule this audit will take place. I did not catch the Honourable Member's reference.

Mr. B. J. Glancy : Clause 28 (2) (b).

Mr. G. Morgan : I am sorry. That is all right. I am satisfied and oppose the amendment.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Sir, I do not understand the head or tail of this amendment. If my Honourable friend had been a little more careful in studying the Bill, he would have found that the check which he likes to insert in the Bill has already been provided, and we in the Select Committee looked into the matter carefully. Clause 22 provides :

"All orders or proceedings of the Manager in the exercise of his functions under this Act shall be subject to the supervision and control of the Board of Revenue."

As has already been pointed out by my Honourable friend, the Political Secretary, under clause 28 (2) (b) :

"The Board of Revenue may, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, make rules for the purpose of carrying into effect all or any of the provisions of this Act.

(b) the procedure to be followed by the Manager in the discharge of his functions under this Act, the accounts which shall be kept by him, and the manner in which such accounts shall be audited."

I understand that the proper authority to audit the accounts will probably be the Auditor General or any authority subordinate to him. It is really meaningless to ask the Collector or the Commissioner of the Division to audit the accounts of a big estate like the estate of Murshidabad. This amendment is absolutely unnecessary, and I strongly oppose it.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : The question is :

"That after sub-clause (3) of clause 22 of the Bill, the following new sub-clause be inserted :

'(4) And that the Collector of Murshidabad or the Commissioner, Presidency Division, shall audit the accounts every year and send a report to the Board of Revenue'."

The motion was negatived.

Clause 22 was added to the Bill.

Clauses 23, 24, 25, 26, 27 and 28 were added to the Bill.

Clause 1 was added to the Bill.

The Title and the Preamble were added to the Bill.

Mr. B. J. Glancy : Sir, I move that the Bill, as amended, be passed.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : Motion moved :

"That the Bill, as amended, be passed."

[At this stage, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) resumed the Chair.]

Mr. B. R. Puri (West Punjab : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I come from a constituency which is within sixty miles of Peshawar, and, therefore, it seems rather a far cry that a Member interested in the affairs of the extreme north should feel interested in the domestic affairs of a Nawab who is flourishing in the interior of Bengal.

I would not have undertaken this unnecessary responsibility of addressing the House on this question had it not been for a conscientious objection which I have against this class of legislation. A piece of legislation of this kind does no credit to the Government who are promoting it or to the Legislature who are about to pass it. Sir, I take it that the basis of all sound legislation is a just and equitable recognition of the rights of the people whom that legislation affects. The present Bill appears to me to be a flagrant example of the rights established through Courts of justice being flouted and made subject to the whims and arbitrary decisions of a mere "Manager", no matter how lofty his position may be. I know, Sir, that the measure will in all probability go through, but that does not worry me in the least. I have to get my protest recorded against a measure of this kind, passing or not passing the measure depends upon the temper of the House. What really pains me is this, that a distinguished lawyer who has himself adorned the Bench of the premier High Court of the country and who moreover comes from a stock which has produced the greatest modern Indian jurist, the late Sir Rash Bihari Ghose, should be a party to a legislation of this kind, a legislation so fundamentally unjust and iniquitous. What is the principle of this Bill ? The principle of this Bill, put in ordinary plain English, appears to me to be nothing less than this. Here is a man who appears before you with a decree of a judicial tribunal and you turn round to him and say that in spite of the fact that you have got the best authority in your favour, we decline to do anything for you, because we feel bound to protect a person who is a waster and has led an extravagant life, if nothing worse. That, I understand, is the plain and honest truth. It appears to me that these judicial decrees are going to be ignored in order that the Nawab should continue to come out in the public in his "carriage and four", or that he may not be forced to cut down the number of his wives, and that he may still have 30 or 40 dishes on his table, while an ordinary mortal would be content with say $\frac{1}{20}$th of it. In order to maintain such artificial dignity, you are going to the length of flouting and throwing to the winds the judicial decrees of the highest tribunals in this country. If that is really the basis of this Bill, if that is the underlying principle of this Bill, the less we have to do with such a piece of legislation the better for the good name of this House. Look at it from the creditor's point of view. I am free to admit that when dealing with spendthrifts and people of extravagant habits, people do generally get their advances exaggerated in their deeds which they obtain from their debtors. That is common knowledge and one cannot shut one's eyes to that. This is done because there is always the possibility of some of these transactions being held to be unconscionable bargains in a Court of law or else the Court considers that the terms are exorbitant, or the rate is too high and thus sometimes the whole claim is thrown out or materially reduced. Such being the dangers and the risks to which the creditors are exposed, one cannot blame them for exaggerated amounts entered in their securities which they obtain from their debtors, but there must arise some stage or other when all such questions should be deemed to have come to an end. That occasion and that stage comes when the matter is brought up on the judicial anvil, and when both the parties, after having had a fair trial and after contesting the suit, the Court pronounces its decree. I think that all doubt should, thereafter, come to an end, and once a decree is passed, nobody has the right to say that the particular claim covered by the decree was in any way or to any extent tainted. That decree must be accepted as the final pronouncement of a Court of law and it will be an evil day if such decrees of judicial tribunals were ignored, because thereby people will come to lose their confidence in the impartiality of the Courts of justice and they will come to believe in the impotency of the Courts and in the ineffective character of judicial decrees. That will be an evil day for us, because there will be no peace and no order left in the land. Sir, the fabric of this Empire depends upon our perfect faith in the judicial pronouncements and I say that a decree passed by any Court of justice, even the lowest, is entitled to the same respect which you show for the decrees passed by the highest Courts. Need I remind my Honourable and esteemed friend, the custodian of the Legal portfolio of the Government of India, of the sacredness and sanctity of the decrees which he himself must have passed as a Judge of the High Court ? They are passed by the grace of God, and, in the name of our Sovereign, under my orders and seal of this Court. If ultimately the decrees are to be flouted, kicked at and ignored, why have this farce of judicial trials, why have all this comic show. You put up palatial structures. You build up your High Courts. You put there High Court Judges in scarlet robes with long wigs. You give them very high salaries and when, ultimately, after parties have had their trial and a decree is passed, instead of respecting that decree which a person has obtained after spending a good deal of money and labour and after having undergone a great deal of expense and worry, does it lie in your mouth to say that for the sake of benefiting an unworthy man, you will trample under your feet such judicial pronouncements as the judicial decrees ? This is from the creditor's point of view.

Now, Sir, with regard to the person for whose benefit all this legislation is being introduced. Let us try and get a clear idea of the person for whom this extraordinary solicitude is being shown by the Government. Sir, I take it that the Nawab is not a charitable institution and, therefore, need not be kept and maintained at public expense. If anything, he is a relic of what the ancient Nawabs and Rajas used to be. He is probably a sample of those Nawabs and Rajas who have contributed in no small measure to our present state of slavery. Why perpetuate such careers in order to put them up to the ridicule and contempt of the world outside ? Has not the time arrived when we should put an end to it ? Are not the past misdeeds of this gentleman your sole excuse for bringing forward this piece of legislation ? Does it lie in your mouth to help and encourage a man who cannot manage his own affairs and who is guilty of having carried on a most extravagant life, so that he may continue and perpetuate that sort of a career ? Sir, if, from higher Imperial considerations, such an exhibit must be preserved, then may I submit that he may be removed to the British Museum and let the British Exchequer pay for him. We have no necessity for him here. So far as we are concerned, we are sick of such-like Nawabs and such-like Rajas. These are the general considerations on the basis of which I conscientiously feel that it would not do us credit to pass such a measure nor will it do the least credit to the Government who are sponsoring this Bill.

Coming now to the measure itself, let us examine it on its own merits. We find it stated in the Statement of Objects and Reasons :

"That the machinery for the exercise of such management by the Secretary of State was not, however, provided for in the Indenture and it is to supply this that the present Bill is designed."

Now, I do not wish to read the whole Indenture as it is a very long-winded document, but the words which bear on the point with which I am dealing are these : in the event of the Nawab behaving or misbehaving in a particular manner, this will be the consequence and I will read that governing sentence. It reads :

"The net rents, issues, profits so to be received and taken by the Secretary of State as aforesaid shall be applied for the benefit of the said Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad."

Now, Sir, the power secured under this Indenture in favour of the Secretary of State is that on resuming and taking over the possession of the properties of the Nawab, he will proceed to realise all the rents and profits, and what will he do with it ? It shall be applied for the benefit of the said Nawab of Murshidabad. Now, Sir, what a convenient interpretation the Government are putting on these words. This phrase "for the benefit of the Nawab of Murshidabad" is now being interpreted by means of the present Bill to give the Secretary of State powers unheard of, namely, that he can altogether ignore and refuse to entertain or even consider any claim, no matter even if it is merged into a decree. Sir, I maintain that there is no justification for putting such flagrantly wide interpretation upon the word "benefit". Is it not to the benefit of the Nawab of Murshidabad that all his just claims were paid off ? Is not there a legal as well as a moral obligation even upon a Nawab to pay off his liabilities ? Are Nawabs and Rajas beyond the pale and outside the scope of the moral obligations to which we ordinary mortals are bound ? Can it be urged, on behalf of this Nawab, that it is to his benefit if all the people with their decrees in their hands passed by the High Court were kicked out and told : Go back, this Nawab must be maintained at public expense ; your decrees are of no use. Sir, there is no justification either, legal or moral, for putting such a convenient interpretation upon the word "benefit". All that the Secretary of State could ask was that, since he personally cannot manage, he should be given powers to have this estate managed through a Manager, a Deputy or an Agent. That would have been a perfectly legitimate claim. But, while asking for that, they have surreptitiously introduced most diabolical powers, most extensive powers, which this Bill is supposed to confer upon the agent of the Secretary of State when the Secretary of State himself does not possess any one of those. Where is it recorded in this Indenture that the Secretary of State shall have the power to ignore or to refuse to entertain the claims judicially determined by the highest Court in the land ? I would like to know—and I will wait with patience—on what principles of interpretation a case can be made out that this word "benefit" covers and entitles Government to do all sorts of acts of this iniquitous character ? I submit that neither on the broad principles is this Bill a sound measure, a just measure or an equitable measure, nor are on merits the powers, which are now being conferred upon the Manager, the powers which are either consistent with the words and the language of the Indenture upon which the whole superstructure is being built. On these grounds, I submit that this measure is bad from every point of view and should be thrown out.

Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen (Presidency Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I beg to support the view so eloquently expressed by my Honourable friend, Mr. Puri. I, too, am opposed to such legislations on principle. In spite of the redeeming features of this Bill, in consideration of the peculiar and extraordinary position of the person concerned, this Bill is to be regarded as an extraordinary one. Indirectly this Bill puts a premium on profligacy and extravagance. It is true that the Government have given some assurance in regard to the finality of the judgments passed by the highest Courts. But I understand these assurances have no legal value, and without these safeguards, I am constrained to say, this Bill is opposed to all sense of justice and jurisprudence. It grossly violates the principle of res judicata. When a judgment has been finally passed, it cannot be reopened by anybody. Sir, from the point of view of creditors, the consequence of such a legislation will be disastrous. Those people who, instead of taking up more fighting occupations, take up the rather peaceful occupation of money-lending, are, after all, to be regarded as important limbs of the social body, and if the money-lenders lose confidence in the people, as well as in the State, the consequence will be detrimental not only to the poor, but also to the wealthy, all of whom are having hard days at present. With these observations, I beg to record my opposition knowing full well that it will be of no avail.

Mr. S. G. Jog : Sir, I most heartily congratulate my Honourable friend, Mr. Puri, on the righteous indignation which he has shown over the measure before the House. I find he has not been taking any part in this measure, but I thought there was some deliberation behind it. It was a lull before a storm. After all, when the measure had reached the third reading stage, somehow or other a man from the Punjab would not resist the temptation of putting in his emphatic protest at this unrighteous legislation. My Honourable friend had discussed the question from all points of view. He has discussed it from the moral point of view, he has discussed it from the legal point of view and I, for one, have no mind to detain the House any longer. But, really speaking I would not have taken further part in this discussion except for some defects or flaws in this Bill to which I should like to draw the attention of the sponsors of the Bill even at this stage.

Sir, I should like to draw the attention of the House to clause 9 which refers to the presentation of claims and a further provision which relates as to when the claims are time barred. The law, as it appears to me, has ignored all the canons of other laws. I will take particularly one point, I mean the law of limitation. There is a particular provision in the law of limitation to the effect that any claim, so far as persons under disability are concerned, such as a minor, no claim is barred against him. I should like to ask the Honourable the Mover of this Bill whether there is any provision incorporated in this Bill so as to save the rights of minors and other persons under disability. There are a number of creditors who have got their claims against the Nawab and by this measure they are called upon, after due notification, to present their claims within six months and a further time is given for some reason for another six months. Supposing there are minors amongst the decree-holders or any persons under disability, is it to be understood that, after 12 months, if the minor does not come forward or any other person under disability does not come forward, his claim is barred. Has he no remedy and is he to get nothing out of the estate ? May I respectfully ask whether there is any provision in the measure before the House ? Is it not necessary that there should be some provision in the interests of the minors and other persons under disability or are you going to ignore all the laws ? You want to defraud the creditors by this arrangement and you also want to defraud the minors who may be innocent and who may not be able to present their claims. I hope that before we pass this Bill, I should like to know whether there is any remedy provided in this measure to meet this contingency.

Sir, nobody on this side of the House is happy over this Bill. We must admit that this measure has no moral back ground, but I should like to say that there is no evil without any good and there is no good without an evil. Once in a way this measure will serve as an eye-opener to the creditor class and once in a way it will also serve as an eye-opener to those persons such as Nawabs and Rajas who lead a profligate life. Let the money-lender know that, before having any dealing with these people, he would run great risk of losing his money entirely. If this measure has got the effect of killing the credit of the Nawabs, it will also make the money-lender more wise and teach him a good lesson. I think, to that extent, this measure will serve as a useful one.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad (United Provinces Southern Divisions : Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I intended to be a silent spectator in the discussion of this Bill and not to say a word, but the speech of my Honourable friend, Mr. Puri, especially when he appealed in the name of God, urged me to say a few words. Had he simply brought forward the legal point of view, probably I would have remained on my seat, but when he has appealed in the name of God, I thought I should say something about it.

In the first place, about the mismanagement of the estate of Murshidabad, I entirely agree with him. Had he and his ancestors not mismanaged their estate, then the history of Bengal and, I may even say, the history of India would have been different. Now, as regards the second part of his speech about the Princes, Nawabs and Rajas. I think probably he put down his note, for the Princes (Protection) Bill, and he delivered it at a wrong time. But I should like to draw his attention and the attention of the Assembly to one point which he as a lawyer ought to have considered. It happens in a large number of cases,—and they have come to my knowledge, and I know it has happened in the case of Murshidabad also as I stayed with the Nawab Bahadur some time ago when I was a member of the Calcutta University Commission,—that several persons secured pro-notes for very large amounts which really they never paid. That is a point which probably a lawyer cannot consider, but which we, who are not lawyers, cannot entirely overlook.

Mr. B. R. Puri : May I inform my Honourable friend that I was speaking on this very point for nearly five minutes ?

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Very often the pro-notes have been written, not on receiving the full amount, and sometimes on receiving no money or a very small portion. Such loans are not honest transactions, but they are speculations. I have no sympathy for speculators in currency or in loan advancing and this point we cannot overlook. And, in this case, I must congratulate—though I seldom congratulate—the Foreign Secretary for bringing a measure of this kind which was urgently needed. And I say that when it is the policy of the Government to protect landlords and other ancient families, I see no reason why that protection should not be extended in this case.

Mr. Muhammad Muazzam Sahib Bahadur : Sir, my Honourable friend, Mr. Puri, in his observations on the Bill referred first of all to the point of view of the creditor. I wonder if my Honourable friend knows that debts due from the Nawab Bahadur are only good for the life of the Nawab. The moment he dies, the creditors cannot recover a pie from his estate. Taking that as the basis of these debts, it is a matter which one can easily understand whether a creditor, who is prepared to advance money to a person in the position of the Nawab Bahadur, will really,—taking the risk that the debt is only good for the life of the Nawab Bahadur in any case,—pay the full amount of any debt. Although I would not ask the Manager to treat this general inference as the basis for his decisions, still one may fairly ask from the nature of the transactions which have been carried on by the Nawab Bahadur, on the basis, as I said, of the duration of the debt for the life of the Nawab Bahadur, whether the element of speculation and dishonesty does not enter into each one of these transactions.

Sir, my Honourable friend, Mr. Puri, when he began his speech, said that measures like these tended to shake the confidence of the public in decrees passed by the highest tribunals of the land. Does my Honourable friend, Mr. Puri, really think that we are legislating in respect of a matter which is of universal application ? It is confined to a single individual, a person who in days gone by,—or at least his ancestors,—had secured to the Government of the day the revenues of Bengal, Bihar and Orissa ; and, in consideration of the services rendered by the Nawab, the Government of the country, in gratitude for those services, if I may say so, allowed him a fairly decent pension to begin with, which from time to time has had to be curtailed and is now at the figure of Rs. 20,000 or so a month. I understand that when the pension was first fixed, it was something like a lakh and a half per month. Is it the idea of Mr. Puri that, in these days of so-called democracy, all high stations and all these princely distinctions should be done away with altogether and that, instead of having awarded to the Nawab Bahadur a monthly pension suited to his rank, Government should have treated him as any other person and should have denied to him what they have given ? I understood him to say at least that much. And am I to understand that even in these days of so-called democracy, we have democracy working to its full extent ? Sir, if the Government had gone out of the way to frame a legislation which might save the honour and dignity of the Nawab Bahadur by implementing the pledges given by the Secretary of State to him, I ask, are the Government doing anything wrong ? Is it not a duty which the Government owe to the Nawab Bahadur ? It is easy to argue on general lines and I personally would agree entirely with

Mr. Puri if this had been a measure of universal application. But it happens to be a restrictive measure and his remarks cannot apply to an extraordinary measure like this. Then, Sir, so far as insolvency proceedings are concerned, I may call my Honourable friend's attention to the fact that the bankruptcy Court has got certain powers which ordinary Courts do not have. The bankruptcy Court can go behind High Court decrees ; it can revise decrees passed by consent ; it can revise decrees passed on compromise. May I read a small paragraph from Halsbury's Laws of England, Volume II, page 57, dealing with non-compliance with bankruptcy notices ? This is what it says :

"Where such an act of bankruptcy is relied on, the judgment is conclusive in the bankruptcy Court, unless the consideration for it can be questioned ; the Court may, however, for the purpose of determining whether a receiving order should or should not be made, go behind the judgment and inquire into the consideration for it, and on finding that there was no valid or legal consideration for it, may refuse to make a receiving order. This may be done at the request of the debtor, even where the judgment was by consent, estoppel not applying as against the bankruptcy court. Even where the Court of Appeal has refused to set aside the judgment, the bankruptcy court may still go behind it and inquire into the liability on which it is founded. So if the judgment has been obtained by the compromise of an action, the bankruptcy Court may none the less inquire into the consideration and reject the debt, if it finds that the compromise, though not fraudulent, was unfair and unreasonable."

With these remarks, I submit that the Bill before the House is very reasonable and should be passed.

The Honourable Sir Bepin Behary Ghose : Sir, when I heard the Honourable Mr. Puri, I thought that I was present at a meeting of radicals. I may confess that I have a little bit of radicalism in me, but I must also point out that the policy of the British Government here in India and also, I may say, in their own country, is to maintain the dignity of ancient families.....

Mr. B. R. Puri : Not at the expense of others !

The Honourable Sir Bepin Behary Ghose : Now, what is the good of these many—I think there are about 20—Acts, Court of Wards Acts, in this country, under which the Court of Wards takes possession of the property of minors, widows and disqualified proprietors who are wasters and cannot manage their own property ? And then what is the good of all these Encumbered Estates Acts, and Acts which protect the Oudh Talukdars ? I do not think there is anything like these in the Punjab for, if there had been, then probably my friend, the Honourable Mr. Puri, when appearing on behalf of minors or widows or disqualified proprietors under the Court of Wards, would not have been so eloquent on behalf of the creditors. In my time I have heard many eloquent speeches, and I must say that the speech of Mr. Puri is a very eloquent one—but rarely did I hear such an eloquent appeal on behalf of money-lenders. Mr. Puri has been insufficiently briefed. He is holding in this matter a brief for the creditors. Now, what sort of creditors are they, advancing money to a person whose tenure is only for his life ? Whether rightly or wrongly, under the Indenture and under the Acts, under which the Nawab Nazim of Bengal surrendered his exalted position and his exalted title and obtained the humbler title of Amir-ul-Omrah and Nawab Bahadur—of course there are hundreds of Nawab Bahadurs, but Amir-ul-Omrah is the Premier Noble of Bengal—protection has been given to him ; and it has been the policy of Government that the Premier Noble of Bengal should not go about the streets begging money from this man or that. Therefore, all the property that has been conferred upon him by the Government which was purchased by sale of his own jewellery—and not at the public expense.....

Mr. B. R. Puri : What about the descendants of the Mughal Emperors who are going begging on the streets and starving ?

The Honourable Sir Bepin Behary Ghose : Quite true : when I came first into this Assembly, I heard people shedding tears for the descendants of Tipu Sultan ; but Tipu Sultan was conquered : he did not cede anything by treaty, while the Nawab of Bengal ceded his dignities and territories by treaties. The English did not really conquer Bengal by the battle of Plassey. Mir Jaffar was set up by the great landowners of Bengal and then, after subsequent treaty after treaty, the Nawabs surrendered the sovereignty rights to the English Company ; and, on account of that, the British Government, out of a sense of gratitude, gave them Rs. 64 lakhs at first as an annuity : it was reduced afterwards to a lesser sum of about 16 lakhs ; and, with regard to the State jewellery, these were sold and properties were purchased with that money, and not with our taxes ; and then those properties were given to the Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad for enjoyment for life only. Now, if a creditor knowing—and he must be supposed to have known this—advances money to a man who holds a life estate only, and knowing also the insecurity of life—what would you say of such a creditor ? If the Nawab Bahadur had died of an attack of cholera that night—would the creditor have had a single pice ? No. Then, what was he ? An honest creditor ? I should say he was a speculator or a gambler ; and if a lawyer of the eminence of the Honourable Mr. Puri stands up and says " Oh, these are just creditors ", I can only say that his heart is flowing with the milk of human kindness for those who do not deserve a single moment's pity.

Mr. B. R. Puri : Does my Honourable friend recognise that he is really putting a slur upon the High Court Judges who decided some of those cases ?

The Honourable Sir Bepin Behary Ghose : I should be the last person to cast a slur on High Court Judges : of course practitioners at the bar may. They are privileged to call a High Court Judge a fool ; and I might have been called so in my time ; but I cannot now question either the integrity or correctness of whatever may have been decided by a High Court Judge : I would not do it even if I had felt it. However, what can a High Court Judge do ? The Nawab is not an infant : he is not a lunatic. If he executes a bond of, say, five lakhs after getting only one lakh, can he stand before the Court and say : " No, I got one lakh, but signed for five lakhs ? " Which Court would listen to him ? Which lawyer would advise him to write such a thing in his written statement ? Therefore, any High Court Judge would say : " Yes here is the bond ; here is the promissory note..."

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Is not want of consideration often pleaded in law Courts ?

The Honourable Sir Bepin Behary Ghose : But you must remember this, that when there is an attorney and a barrister drawing up a written statement, these two lawyers, through whose hands the written statement passes, and any lawyer worth his salt would say : if a man, in the position of the Nawab Bahadur, desired to plead want of consideration, " No ; do not urge that plea, because it will at once be considered to be false ". Therefore, the Nawab Bahadur, in order to maintain his respectability, cannot urge such a plea.....

Mr. B. R. Puri : Is that the position, that the Nawab puts up a false plea merely to maintain his dignity ? We would like to know.

The Honourable Sir Bepin Behary Ghose : No, not the Nawab only : but I am speaking for a respectable lawyer, because no respectable lawyer would put his hand to such a written statement of a person who is neither a minor nor a widow nor a lunatic, but who would be considered a confounded liar. Mr. Puri himself is at the bar, and if I borrow money and give a note in favour of a Marwari and say : " Mr. Puri, I did not get that money ", would not Mr. Puri advise me and say : " No, my friend, do not say anything of the sort : I am not going to file a written statement that would at once be held to be false ". That is the position I maintain ; and I maintain the dignity of the profession of law, because I believe no respectable lawyer would encourage false pleas being set up in that way, and I should think any Judge.....

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Even when the plea is true ?

The Honourable Sir Bepin Behary Ghose : Who would believe that plea as I have said ? Now, the man who advances money to a person who might die the next day—because in the midst of life we are in death—would you believe that he is an honest creditor ? He knows that his security is absolutely uncertain. Those who advance money to Hindu widows without making any inquiry about legal necessity, would they be considered as honest creditors ?

Mr. B. R. Puri : May I understand, Sir, that people in Bengal advance money only to those people who are not capable of dying ? I would like to know that.

5 P.M.

The Honourable Sir Bepin Behary Ghose : My friend, Mr. Puri, notwithstanding my great respect for him as a lawyer, is absolutely fallacious, because in ordinary cases, where people die, their heirs are bound by their ancestor's debts. This is a very simple point. I wonder that my friend, Mr. Puri, has put that question to me. Evidently, on account of his recent criminal practice, he has forgotten his civil law. (Laughter.)

Then about the sanctity of decrees : as some Honourable Members pointed out, in insolvency matters decrees are liable to be re-opened. One of my Honourable friends quoted from Halsbury, but he might have quoted without going so far afield insolvency laws passed by the Indian Legislature. Decrees may be re-opened, but an honest decree-holder has no reason to fear, because he will be able to point out and say : " Here, Sir, is my decree, which is an honest decree ". Why so much profuse tears are being shed by my friend, Mr. Puri, with all the eloquence, which a renowned advocate like my friend commands, for a speculating creditor whose object it seems to be to catch an improvident waster in his net and gamble on the continuance of his life, I cannot understand. It is really a matter of wonder to me. Yes, Sir, decrees have their sanctity, but, as I have pointed out, in insolvency matters decrees can be re-opened.....

Mr. B. R. Puri : By whom ?

The Honourable Sir Bepin Behary Ghose : They can be re-opened by the Receiver.

And, in this case, although the decrees may be re-opened, there is an appeal, and a second appeal, and we have given an assurance through my friend, Mr. Glancy, that decrees should be taken as primâ facie evidence of the correctness of the debt, and that was in accordance with the opinion of several members of the Select Committee, and if I may say so without any disrespect to any person, we had a Select Committee as strong as this House could provide. There were men of all shades of opinion, and all of them discussed the Bill clause by clause and sometimes had great discussions about certain matters connected with the Bill, and after full consideration the Report is an unanimous one. Only an opinion was expressed by some Members, about which I gave them an assurance, that that opinion would be respected. I don't think I need say anything further about the solemnity of the decrees. I am quite sure, my friend, Mr. Puri, has not read the judgments. I do not know whether those were supplied in his brief. In the judgment of Sir George Rankin, which was affirmed by Their Lordships of the Privy Council,—the judgment, being delivered by Lord Macmillan,—it is said that the lien which was declared would ipso facto fall to the ground as soon as the Secretary of State takes possession. If I may read one passage from the judgment of Sir George Rankin, who adorns the Calcutta Bench as Chief Justice, this is what he says :

" As regards the course of extravagance by which a Nawab might cripple himself anticipating the future income to accrue in his own lifetime, it appears to me that contingency is one of the things contemplated by the concluding provision, a provision which enables the Secretary of State to step in if by a course of extravagance the Nawab of the day should disable himself from duly maintaining his dignity and position ".

Mr. B. R. Puri : You cannot go behind the Indenture.

The Honourable Sir Bepin Behary Ghose : These interruptions do no good. I would ask my friend, Mr. Puri, with all the respect that I owe to him, to go through these judgments, to go through the laws, and then say that this is not right. Of course, as a radical he is entitled to say : " Wipe out these ancient families, wipe out the Nawab of Murshidabad ", but that is another question. So long as there is the policy of the British Government which maintains the Zamindars—I think, as I have said, it is a question of gratitude in the case of the Nawab of Murshidabad, because he gave the British Government the first foothold in India—I should say,—so long as there is this policy of the British Government, we must protect these noblemen. This legislation, I submit, Sir, is necessary, and I have nothing to say further. (Applause.)

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

" That the Bill, as amended, be passed."

The motion was adopted.

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Friday, the 15th September, 1933.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Friday, 15th September, 1933.

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber at Eleven of the Clock, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) in the Chair.

MEMBER SWORN.

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler, C.M.G., M.C., M.L.A., (Foreign Secretary).

CANCELLATION OF THE EVENING PARTY IN HONOUR OF THE MEMBERS OF THE CENTRAL LEGISLATURE.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : I have to inform Honourable Members that His Majesty the King has commanded that flags will be flown at half mast on all the Government buildings throughout India today as a mark of respect on the occasion of the funeral of His Majesty the late King Feisal of Iraq. On account of this reason, Their Excellencies the Viceroy and Countess of Willingdon have asked me to convey to the Honourable Members that they have to regretfully cancel the Evening Party which was to have been held this evening in honour of the Members of the Central Legislature.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

REPRESENTATION FOR THE POSTPONEMENT OF THE AUTUMN SESSION OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

933. Mr. Bhuput Sing : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether any representation was made to them by Sir Hari Sing Gour, Leader of the Opposition, to postpone the autumn Session of the Assembly to October to enable him and other Members, who as delegates to the Joint Select Committee are in London, to partake in its deliberations ?

(b) What are the reasons for which the representation was turned down ?

(c) Are Government aware of the view held by some people that opportunity has been taken to keep them off their opposition to important measures which the present Session is likely to deal with ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to my reply to Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh's question No. 93, asked on the 28th August, 1933. I have nothing further to add.

EMPLOYMENT OF STATES SUBJECTS UNDER THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

934. *Mr. K. P. Thampan : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) whether it is a fact that a Christian candidate, who was the subject of an Indian State and stood very much below in rank in the results of the competitive examination held in last November for the recruitment of clerks in the Secretariat, was appointed in preference to a very large number of other candidates who did better in the examination ;

(b) if they are aware that the Indian States, such as Mysore, Travancore and Cochin, preclude British Indian subjects from entering their services ;

(c) whether they have considered the question of debarring States subjects from subordinate services under the Government of India ; and

(d) whether they have any definite policy in regard to this subject ; if so, what it is ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) Yes. This was done in order to redress communal inequalities by securing the appointment of a member of the Indian Christian community.

(b) I am obtaining the information and will lay it on the table in due course.

(c) and (d). I would invite attention to the reply I gave on the 25th February, 1933, to part (b) of starred question No. 516 and to paragraph 4 of the Home Department Resolution No. 1093 (Establishments), dated the 10th May, 1921, a copy of which is in the Library.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : Arising out of answer to part (a), I would like to know whether the Government think that the Christian community in Travancore and Cochin, from where, I understand, this particular candidate was recruited, is either a minority or a backward community ? So far as I know, from the population point of view, they are strong, they are wealthy and well educated, and in those States they are not a minority community. Under the circumstances, is there any justification for treating that candidate as one belonging to the minority classes and entitled to special privileges ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : Sir, the candidate was appointed, not because he belonged to the Indian Christian community of Travancore, but because he was an Indian Christian, and some department, taking account of the communal composition of its staff, required an Indian Christian.

Mr. B. Das : If the Government of India encourage the Christian subjects of Indian States to get jobs in the Secretariat, what will happen to the Indian Christian community that live in British India ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I do not think that there is any question of encouragement of subjects of Indian States. But this candidate happened to stand on the list in such a place that, when an Indian Christian was required, he was taken.

Mr. B. Das : May I enquire what will be the condition after the Federation ? Will the subjects of Indian States compete for the loaves and fishes of the British Indian provinces ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : Well, Sir, hitherto our policy has been not to bar the subjects of Indian States entering our services.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : There are only very few appointments in the Secretariat and it is the legitimate right and prerogative of the British Indian subjects of His Majesty the King Emperor to get employment in the Central and Provincial Secretariats and other offices in British India. Why should people, who owe their allegiance to Indian States, be imported to those offices ? Is it not a great injustice and hardship to His Majesty's British Indian subjects ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I notice that the Honourable Member, in one part of his question, to which, I am afraid, I was not able to give an answer, has raised the question whether certain Indian States preclude British Indian subjects from entering their service.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : They do, I know.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I think that might be a relevant point in considering our policy. I cannot at the moment say more than that.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : May I ask, will the Government of India consider the question whether the subjects of all those States, which do not recruit British Indians in their offices, should be excluded from employment in British India ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : Well, Sir, I was saying that that might be a relevant consideration which we would take up when we have got the information.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : Will the Government issue orders advising the several departments under them not to enlist hereafter at any rate the subjects of those Indian States which debar British Indian subjects from their service ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I have already undertaken that when information is available we will look into the whole matter.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : Thank you.

INDIANISATION OF THE CENTRAL CYPHER BUREAU OF THE FOREIGN AND POLITICAL DEPARTMENT.

935. *Mr. Muhammad Muazzam Sahib Bahadur : (a) Will Government please state what steps, if any, have been taken to Indianise the Central Cypher Bureau of the Foreign and Political Department ? Is it not a fact that pledges in this respect were given some years ago ? If no steps have been taken, will Government please state the cause of the delay ?

(b) Is it a fact that the typing and despatching section of the above Bureau does not contain any Indian ?

(c) Is it a fact that the duties of the typing and despatching staff of the above Bureau who are routine division clerks are typing and despatching of cypher telegrams after they have been paraphrased, and that they are not required to handle the codes ?

(d) Is it a fact that there are in the other sections of the Foreign and Political Department Secretariat Assistants and clerks who have a good knowledge and experience of cypher work and whose services have been requisitioned for such work in leave vacancies and who are also requisitioned in times of stress ?

(e) If the reply to part (a) be in the negative and that to parts (b), (c) and (d) in the affirmative, do Government propose to take steps to appoint Indians forthwith to the typing and despatching section of the above Bureau by the transfer of permanent and qualified clerks from the Issue Branch of the Foreign and Political Department, their places being taken by the present staff of the typing section of the above Bureau ? If not, why not ?

(f) Will Government please state whether they are prepared to fill the appointments in the typing and despatching section of the above Bureau in future through the Public Service Commission from amongst the candidates at their competitive examinations ? If not, why not ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : (a) Negotiations are in progress with His Majesty's Government in regard to the Indianisation of the Central Cypher Bureau. It is I regret to say impossible for me to divulge the nature of these negotiations which are of a highly confidential nature, but I can assure the Honourable Member that every effort is being made to open the Bureau as soon as possible to Indians.

(b) Yes.

(c) The typing and despatching staff are expected to familiarise themselves with the working of the cyphers in order to help the cypher-ing staff when work is heavy.

(d) At the present time there is only one such clerk who has a competent knowledge of cypher work working in a different section of the Foreign and Political Department Secretariat and he is now actually employed in the cypher bureau in a vacancy caused by sickness. His availability in times of pressure would depend on the state of work in his own branch.

(e) Until the negotiations referred to in the answer to (a) above are complete it will not be possible to take the action suggested by the Honourable Member.

(f) As soon as the negotiations referred to in (a) above are complete there will be no difficulty in appointing men to the typing and despatching section through the Public Service Commission when vacancies occur.

Mr. Gaya Parasad Singh : Is it a fact that Anglo-Indians are appointed in the Cypher Bureau without having to pass through the Public Service Commission ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : Yes, it is.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav : May I know whether the Honourable Members of the Executive Council know these cyphers ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : They do not know.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : May I ask how many cyphers are there besides the London Foreign Office cypher ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : I am afraid I could not give an answer offhand, but I should think there are 9 or 10 probably.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : What objection is there to employing Indians in the other cypher branches besides that of the British Foreign Office cypher ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : I think the difficulty there is that these cypher clerks take their work in order, that is to say, any clerk at any time may be required to use the Foreign Office cypher, and I do not think it would be possible to have a separate bureau for cyphers that are not in use in the London Foreign Office.

Mr. B. R. Puri : Does the Foreign and Political Department Code stand on a different footing from the other Codes, assuming that there are other Codes ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : The position is that there are certain Codes which are not ours and those Codes are governed by rules which are not ours either and up to now we have had to follow these rules, but Government recognise that these are very objectionable in certain circumstances to Indian sentiment. These are the rules which we are now altering and I can assure the Honourable Member and the House that Government have every sympathy with the point of view which has been expressed both now and before in this House on this subject.

Mr. B. R. Puri : So far as this particular Code is concerned, it may be that the Government of India are not directly responsible for it, but what about other Codes, for the decoding of which Indians have not been employed ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : The point there is that we should then have a separate Bureau which would be an extra expense. We will have to have separate people to use the Foreign Office Codes and a separate set of people to use Codes which are purely internal. That would add to the expense and I do not think it would conduce to practical working.

Mr. B. R. Puri : Is there any rule which debars the Indians for employment in the Cypher Bureau relating to the Foreign and Political Department ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : The Cypher Bureau is a Central Cypher Bureau. It does not relate to the Foreign and Political Department alone.

Mr. B. R. Puri : Am I right in assuming that there is some rule or regulation issued by the London Office, that none but British subjects should be allowed to handle the Codes which relate to their Department.

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : I am afraid it will not be in the public interest to disclose what the actual rules are. They were issued by the London Foreign Office. They are pretty obvious and Honourable Members can draw their own inference as to what they are. As I said before, we are doing our best to remove them and they will be removed before very long.

Mr. B. R. Puri : Assuming that there exists a rule which ignores the claim of Indians as such, may I know on what basis and on what principles those who are not British subjects are qualified for employment in that class of job, namely, Anglo-Indians ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : There, again, the Honourable Member is referring to rules which are, I am afraid, confidential and which I cannot divulge.

Mr. B. R. Puri : May I know if Anglo-Indians stand on a better footing than Indians ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : So far as the Government of India are concerned, certainly not.

Mr. B. R. Puri : So far as the Government of India are concerned, there ought to be no differentiation so far as their employment in the Cypher Bureau is concerned ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : Certainly.

Mr. B. R. Puri : Have the Government of India taken any steps to have this injustice remedied very expeditiously ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : That is just what I have been saying. We have taken and are taking steps and I hope that those negotiations which are going on will be complete inside the next twelve months.

Mr. B. R. Puri : Are the Government of India aware that apart from Anglo-Indians there are some Goanese actually carrying on work in the Cypher Branch of the Foreign and Political Department ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : I do not think there is anybody in the Cypher Bureau who is not a British subject.

Mr. B. R. Puri : Are the Government of India aware that most of the present personnel, who handle the Foreign and Political Department Code, has got complexions as bright as Mr. Kabeer-ud-Din Ahmed ? (Laughter.)

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : I have not studied their complexion.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know from the Honourable Member if any law or any rule can be confidential ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : Rules of this nature are confidential.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Is it under any law that these rules have been made ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : I do not think so.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Is it a departmental rule ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : It is a rule of the London Foreign Office, and in respect of the Codes, which belong to the London Foreign Office, the person who owns the Code is at liberty to make certain rules regarding the way that Code should be used.

Mr. B. R. Puri : I trust that the Government of India are not of the opinion that Indians as such cannot be trusted ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : That is so.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : Is it not a fact that Indians handle all the confidential files before and after the issue of the telegrams in cypher on their files.

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : I cannot hear the Honourable Member.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Honourable Members must speak up.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : Is it not a fact that Indians alone handle all the confidential files before and after the issue of the telegrams in cypher ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : I would not say Indians alone. There are Anglo-Indians as well.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : If all classes of Indians, other than Christians and Anglo-Indians, are handling those files, and are deemed to be trustworthy, where is the necessity to confine the Cypher Department to the Anglo-Indians alone ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : As I have already said, certain of these Codes which we use are governed by certain rules which are not ours.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : Are the Government aware that these clerks are heavily involved and are often taking advances of pay from office ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : I would ask you, Sir, whether that question arises out of the main question.

Mr. President : (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : How does that question arise out of this ?

Mr. K. P. Thampan : Because if people are in financial difficulties and have decrees against them, as I understand is the case with these people, they are liable to temptation and not trustworthy.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Is it the Honourable Member's point that they are enjoying special prerogatives and Government are at their mercy and they have to keep them in their posts by giving advances of pay ?

Mr. K. P. Thampan : It might or might not be that.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Is it not desirable that these people should be above temptation ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : I entirely agree.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : May I know when vacancies are likely to occur in the Central Cypher Bureau ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : Not for several years, but in the typing and despatching section there would probably be three or four fairly soon, though I am not quite certain on this point.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : You said you would take action within 12 months and now you say several years ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : My point is that within 12 months, I hope, the orders, which at present exist, will be repealed. Then there will be no objection to Indians being employed, but they cannot be employed unless there are vacancies.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it a fact that an Anglo-Indian lady typist has been confirmed within the last two weeks or so ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : I have no information on that point.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA DEPARTMENTS WITH NO SIKHS, INDIAN CHRISTIANS, DEPRESSED CLASSES AND PARSIS.

936. Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the names of the Department of the Government of India (including the Army Department and Branches of the Army Headquarters) in which no Sikhs, Indian Christians, Depressed Classes and Parsis have so far been appointed ?

(b) Do Government propose to appoint them in future vacancies ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) A statement containing the information available is laid on the table. I regret that information regarding the depressed classes is not in my possession.

(b) The policy of the Government of India in regard to the redress of communal inequalities in the public services is stated in the Home Department Office Memorandum No. F. 176|25-Ests., dated the 5th February, 1926, a copy of which is available in the Library. I would add that it is impossible to secure the representation of all minority communities in offices the staff of which is small.

HUNGER-STRIKE BY CERTAIN POLITICAL PRISONERS IN THE ANDAMANS.

937. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government please state under what circumstances the political prisoners in the Cellular Jail, Port Blair, gave up hunger-strike on the 26th June last ?

(b) Is it a fact that the hunger-strike was given up on assurances from Colonel Barker for the redress of the prisoners' grievances ?

(c) What are those assurances ?

(d) Was Colonel Barker consulted by Government before their decision was arrived at to introduce the recent changes in the treatment of prisoners ?

(e) If so, were the changes made in accordance with his recommendations ?

(f) From what date and after how many days of the termination of the hunger-strike the recent changes in the treatment of the prisoners were introduced ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) The hunger-strike was abandoned unconditionally on June 26, 1933.

(b) There is no truth whatever in this suggestion.

(c) Does not arise.

(d) and (e). I discussed matters arising out of his report with Lieutenant-Colonel Barker on his return from the Andamans but that report was confined to medical and sanitary arrangements and the diet of the prisoners and had no reference to such matters as the supply of lights and of newspapers or the grant of interviews in regard to which changes have been made.

(f) The changes were introduced from August 15, 1933.

NEWSPAPERS SUPPLIED TO POLITICAL PRISONERS IN THE ANDAMANS.

938. Mr. S. C. Mitra : Will Government please state the names of the newspapers that are being supplied to the political prisoners in the Andamans after the recent changes in the treatment of prisoners ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : The weekly editions of the Times of India and the Statesman and two Bengali papers—I am not sure how these Bengali names are pronounced and I hope the Honourable Member will forgive me if I do not pronounce them correctly—The Sanjibani and the Bangabasi, are supplied to the prisoners.

INTERVIEWS GRANTED WITH POLITICAL PRISONERS IN THE ANDAMANS.

939. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) How many interviews with the political prisoners in the Andamans have so far been granted ?

(b) Will Government please state what they mean by the term " More frequent interviews will be granted " as stated by the Honourable the Home Member in reply to certain questions on the 23rd August last ?

(c) At what intervals will interviews be granted ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) Two interviews with the terrorist prisoners in the Andamans have so far been granted.

again, and at that time on February 3rd, 1932, Sir James Crerar explained that the position had deteriorated very greatly during the intervening year. In consequence of that deterioration it was clear that much larger numbers were going to be sent to Deoli than had been originally contemplated and I cannot find that throughout the very lengthy debates of 1932 any further reference was made to the point raised by the Honourable Member. The Government of India do not examine each individual case, but there is a clear understanding on policy between the Government of India and the Government of Bengal that only those detenus who come within the category which Sir James Crerar had in mind should be sent to Deoli.

PERMISSION TO A DETENU IN THE DEOLI DETENTION CAMP TO PERFORM THE SRADH CEREMONY OF HIS FATHER.

957. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that the father of Mr. Sarat Chandra Dutt, a detenu in the Deoli Detention Camp, has recently died ?

(b) Is it also a fact that Mr. Dutt, being the eldest son, applied for leave to perform the Sradh ceremony of his father ?

(c) If so, was any leave granted to him for the purpose ?

(d) If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) Yes.

(b), (c) and (d). An application was received on behalf of the detenu but Government were not able to grant him leave to visit his home for the purpose. I understand that permission was given to him to perform the ceremony in the Deoli Detention Jail.

PROMOTION OF STOREMEN IN THE INDIAN ARMY ORDNANCE CORPS.

958. Nawab Major Malik Talib Mehdi Khan (on behalf of Khan Sahib Shaikh Fazal Haq Piracha) : Will Government please state if it is a fact that :

(a) at the inception of the Indianisation scheme of 'Storemen and Assistant Storekeepers' in the Indian Army Ordnance Corps, storemen who were graduates were promised in their appointment letters issued to them by the Director of Ordnance Services (M. G. O.'s Branch, Army Headquarters) 'quicker' promotion to the grade of Assistant Storekeepers and eventually to the grade of Storekeepers : 100—120|6|150—10 ;

(b) storemen who were graduates were exempted and those who were not graduates were not exempted from undergoing :

(i) a course of instructions at the Indian Army Ordnance Corps School of Instruction, Kirkee, or the efficiency bar examination in lieu thereof ;

(ii) a competitive examination ;

(c) those storemen who were not graduates were required to reach the minimum monthly salary of Rs. 80 before they could be eligible for the said competitive examination, as conditions essential for their promotion to the grade of Assistant Storekeepers ;

(d) all the conditions mentioned at (b) (i) and (ii) and (c) above have now been waived by the Director of Equipment and Ordnance Stores in respect of non-graduates, and even a matriculate storeman, thus bringing them at par with the graduates in respect of promotion ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) In the letter to candidates selected for appointment as probationary Storemen, no promise was made but it was stated that graduates would have the prospect of rising to the grades of Assistant Storekeeper and Storekeeper more quickly than others.

(b) The original orders did not contain any provision to the effect that graduates would have to pass an examination before being considered for promotion. Non-graduates had to pass both an efficiency bar examination and a competitive examination. In no case, however, could a man be promoted unless he was recommended by his Commanding Officer.

(c) Yes.

(d) Under the orders of Government, no person can now be considered for promotion unless he has passed a Trade test and also the efficiency bar examination for storemen, or the storeman course at the School of Instruction. It is open to a Commanding Officer to recommend for promotion any person who has passed those tests whatever his educational qualifications may be.

PROMOTION OF STOREMEN IN THE INDIAN ARMY ORDNANCE CORPS.

959. Nawab Major Malik Talib Mehdi Khan (on behalf of Khan Sahib Shaikh Fazal Haq Piracha) : (a) Will Government please state whether it is a fact that (i) henceforth only such storemen will be admitted to the competitive examination of the Indian Army Ordnance Corps as would be recommended by their immediate officers, and (ii) this condition did not previously apply to the graduates ?

(b) Will Government please state whether it is a fact that for the purpose of promotion to the grade of Assistant Storekeeper no regard will be paid to a storeman's seniority on the nominal roll, and a junior-most storeman can be allowed to supersede the most senior storeman ?

(c) Are Government aware that the changes in the prospects of service referred to previously are in violation of the promise given to the graduate storemen in their appointment letters, and are consequently greatly resented by them ?

(d) Will Government please state the reasons for effecting these changes ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) The competitive examination has been abolished. No person can be recommended for promotion unless he has the qualifications mentioned in my reply to the preceding question.

(b) Promotion is made by selection, due regard being paid to seniority.

REPRESENTATIONS MADE BY DR. BHUPAL SINGH AND MR. SATISH PAKRASHI, PRISONERS IN THE ANDAMANS.

943. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that Dr. Bhupal Bose and Mr. Satish Pakrashi, both prisoners in the Andamans, sent representations to the Government of India ?

(b) If so what are the dates given on those representations ?

(c) When were they received by the Government of India ?

(d) Will Government please place those representations on the table of this House ?

(e) If not, will Government please state what are the main points referred to in those ?

(f) How many pages did those representations contain ?

(g) Was any other representation made to the Chief Commissioner, Andamans, or Superintendent, Cellular Jail, by the prisoners ?

(h) If so, what action was taken on it ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) to (f). These two prisoners submitted a joint representation addressed to the Home Member on May 31, 1933. It was withheld by the Superintendent of the Jail under his ordinary powers.

(g) and (h). I have no information.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Are the powers of the Superintendent with respect to that to be revised by any authority ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : No, Sir. I think they are exactly the same as the powers of the Superintendent in any Jail in India.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Am I to understand that whatever the Superintendent does in the jail is not subject to any revision ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : If any representation is made which appears to be deserving of notice, he will undoubtedly refer it to higher authority. In various cases, of course, the Superintendent has referred complaints to the Chief Commissioner who is the final authority.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Is it also subject to the revision by the Superintendent of the Committee of Visitors attached to the jail ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I do not think there is such a Committee in the Andamans.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Is it not desirable that all these letters which the Superintendent may want to suppress may be sent confidentially to the higher authorities so that they may be able to judge that the Superintendent has acted in a bona fide manner.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : Higher authorities no doubt visit the jail from time to time and I do not think there is any probability that serious and important complaints are not investigated.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav : Is the Superintendent of the Jail the last authority in deciding whether a representation is proper or not ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : Well, Sir, we think it is important in jail administration generally to uphold the authority of the Superintendent of the Jail.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : Supposing the Superintendent in his discretion holds out any representation, is there any remedy for the prisoners to bring it to the notice of the Government of India their grievances if they are very serious ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I imagine they can represent it when the District Magistrate visits the jail.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : Will it not go against the discipline of the jail if the prisoners were to make any complaint against the Superintendent if he has already prohibited them not to make any complaints to the District Officer ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : If they make complaints about their treatment to any officer who is visiting the jail officially, he is bound to look into them.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Does the Superintendent of the Jail accompany the District Magistrate when he goes through the complaints ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : That is a general question to which, I am afraid, I cannot give a specific answer.

Sardar Sant Singh : Does the Honourable Member know that if a prisoner is bold enough to make a complaint to a non-official visitor or to the District Magistrate, he is punished later on by the jail authorities ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : No, Sir, I do not know that.

Sardar Sant Singh : Will the Honourable Member make an inquiry to find out if this is the case ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I am not prepared to make any inquiry on such a vague and, on the face of it, unlikely allegation.

Mr. B. Das : May I inquire from my Honourable friend, Sardar Sant Singh, what was his experience when he was in the jail ?

(No answer.)

DR. RABINDRA NATH TAGORE'S MESSAGE TO THE HUNGER-STRIKING PRISONERS IN THE ANDAMANS.

944. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that Dr. Rabindra Nath Tagore sent a message in June last requesting the hunger-striking prisoners in the Cellular Jail to give up the strike ?

(b) On what date was the message received by the Superintendent of the Jail ?

(c) Was it shown to the prisoners concerned ? If so, when and to how many of them ?

(d) Did the prisoners want to meet together to consider the Poet's message ?

(e) If so, were they allowed to do so ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a), (b) and (c). On June 1 1933, the Chief Commissioner reported that he had delivered to th prisoners such a telegram which he understood to have been sent b Dr. Rabindra Nath Tagore.

(d) and (e). Special facilities were given to the prisoners to con sider the telegram.

DISPOSAL OF DEAD BODIES OF CERTAIN PRISONERS IN THE ANDAMANS.

945. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) How were the dead bodies of the three prisoners—Sjs. Mahabir Singh, Mankrishna Namadas, and Mohit Moitra—disposed of ?

(b) Were the bodies thrown away in the waters of the Bay of Bengal ?

(c) If so, why were not the bodies burnt according to Hindu rites ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) The bodies of the three prisoners were cremated in accordance with proper Hindu rites at the public burning ghat in the settlement.

(b) and (c). Do not arise.

CHANGES IN THE TREATMENT OF PRISONERS IN THE ANDAMANS.

946. Mr. S. C. Mitra : Are Government aware whether the prisoners in the Andamans are now satisfied with the recent changes in their treatment ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I have no definite information on the point.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will the Honourable Member please enquire and have the information ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : No, Sir, because I do not think it is my business to satisfy the prisoners, but only to satisfy myself that the terms are reasonable.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : How is the Honourable Member going to be satisfied if the Honourable Member does not know what the changes are ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I do know what the changes are.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I want to know if the rules have been changed in consonance of the reasonable demands of these hunger-strikers ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : The changes have been made in accordance with what I consider to be reasonable demands, but whether the prisoners would consider themselves satisfied, I cannot say.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will the Honourable Member please place a copy of the rules on the table of the House ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : When I receive a copy of the rules, I shall be happy to place it on the table.

HUNGER-STRIKE BY CERTAIN POLITICAL PRISONERS IN THE ANDAMANS.

947. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government please place on the table two up-to-date statements showing :

(i) the names of prisoners detained under Regulation III of 1818, with dates of their arrest and periods of their detention ;

(ii) the number of occasions the prisoners in the Cellular Jail resorted to hunger-strike, and the period in each case ?

(b) Will Government please state if it is a fact that the denial of a right to bring their grievances to the notice of the Government of India is one of the main causes for the last hunger-strike in the Cellular Jail ?

(c) If so, what were the reasons for depriving the prisoners of this right ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) (i) I lay a statement on the table.

(ii) There have been two hunger-strikes. The first occurred in January, 1933 and lasted for about a week. The second began on May, 12 and ended on June, 26.

(b) One of the demands put forward by the prisoners was for facilities to petition the Central and Provincial Governments.

(c) In accordance with the normal practice the prisoners have a right to make representations to the Superintendent. If he considers that they raise any question of importance he would forward them to the Chief Commissioner for orders.

Statement.

The information required by the Honourable Member is contained in the statement laid on the table on the 12th September, 1932, in reply to his question No. 163. Since that statement was compiled, the State Prisoner, Subhas Chandra Bose, has been released and the State Prisoner, J. M. Sen Gupta, has died. The following have since been detained as State Prisoners under Regulation III of 1818, namely :

	Date of arrest.
1. Ranbir Singh	20th November, 1932.
2 Vidya Bhusan	1st February, 1933.
3. Kheali Ram Gupta	1st February, 1933.
4. Chaman Lal Azad	4th April, 1933.
5. Bhag Ram	5th July, 1933.
6. V. R. Vaishampayan	12th August, 1933.

ILLNESS OF PRISONERS IN THE ANDAMANS.

948. Mr. S. C. Mitra : Will Government please place on the table a list showing the names of the prisoners who are still suffering from illness in the Cellular Jail, with particulars of disease and present condition of health in each case ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I am afraid I cannot undertake to furnish information of the kind required by the Honourable Member. The prisoners who went on hunger-strike have all recovered from its effects.

INTIMATION OF THE DEATHS OF PRISONERS IN THE ANDAMANS TO THEIR RELATIVES.

949. *Mr. S. C. Mitra: (a) Was official intimation of the deaths of the three hunger-striking prisoners in the Cellular Jail sent to the relatives of those prisoners?

(b) If so, on what dates and after how many days of the deaths?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig: (a) and (b). The three prisoners died on 17th, 26th and 28th May and the Government of India asked the Local Governments on the 28th, 29th and 31st to inform their relatives. The delay in the case of Mahabir Singh was due partly to enquiries made by the Government of India for fuller particulars of the cause of his death and partly to atmospheric disturbances in the Bay of Bengal which interrupted telegraphic communications for some days.

Mr. S. C. Mitra: Are the Government of India aware that the Local Governments did not inform the relatives till very late? I know this personally from a relative.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig: I am afraid I have no information as to the precise dates on which the Local Governments communicated with their relatives.

ILLNESS OF STATE PRISONERS, MANORANJAN GUPTA AND BHUPENDRA KUMAR DUTT.

950. *Mr. S. C. Mitra: (a) Is it a fact that State Prisoners, Messrs Manoranjan Gupta and Bhupendra Kumar Dutt have been suffering from acute diseases for the last few months?

(b) If so, what are the diseases they are suffering from and what arrangements have been made for their treatment?

(c) Has the attention of Government been drawn to a press message that appeared in the Amrita Bazar Patrika of Calcutta on the 3rd June, 1933, reporting the possibility of the transfer of the above-named State Prisoners to the Andamans?

(d) Is there any truth in the above report?

(e) If so, when and why will they be transferred to the Andamans?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig: (a) and (b). The State Prisoners suffered from hydrocele in April last, and were operated upon in the Mayo Hospital, Lahore. They have been gaining in weight since the operations, and are at present in good health.

(c) I have not seen the message.

(d) and (e). There is no intention of transferring these State Prisoners to the Andamans.

NON-GRANT OF AN ALLOWANCE TO THE FAMILY OF STATE PRISONER, MR. MANORANJAN GUPTA.

951. *Mr. S. C. Mitra: (a) Is it a fact that no allowance to the family of State Prisoner, Mr. Manoranjan Gupta, has been granted by Government?

(b) Are Government aware that Mr. Gupta was the main supporter of his family?

(c) If so, why no such allowance has been granted to his family as yet?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig: (a) Yes.

(b) No. He is unmarried and his relatives were not dependent on him.

(c) Does not arise.

Mr. S. C. Mitra: Is it the conclusion of the Government of India that unmarried people cannot have any dependents?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig: Not necessarily so, but in this case the information is that his relatives were not dependent upon him.

NON-GRANT OF AN ALLOWANCE TO THE FAMILY OF STATE PRISONER, MR. ARUN CHANDRA GUHA.

952. *Mr. S. C. Mitra: (a) Is it a fact that no allowance is granted to the family of the State Prisoner, Mr. Arun Chandra Guha?

(b) Are Government aware that he had an income as one of the proprietors of the Saraswati Press of Calcutta and he used to maintain his family?

(c) Will Government please explain why this allowance has not been granted?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig: (a) Yes.

(b) He had an income from the Saraswati Press and Library in Calcutta, and I understand still has that income.

(c) In view of the answer I have given to part (b) this does not arise.

BENGALI STATE PRISONERS CONFINED IN THE RAJAHMUNDRY JAIL.

953. *Mr. S. C. Mitra: (a) Will Government please state the names of the Bengali State Prisoners now confined in the Rajahmundry Jail, Madras, with dates of their transfer to that jail?

(b) What is the present condition of health of those State Prisoners?

(c) Is it a fact that the present condition of health of Messrs. Surendra Mohan Ghose and Benoyendra Roy Choudhury, two State Prisoners in that jail, is serious?

(d) What are the diseases they are suffering from and what arrangements have been made for their treatment?

(e) Has the present arrangement of treatment made any improvement in their health and what is the present condition of the health of those two State Prisoners?

(f) Is it a fact that Mr. Benoyendra Roy Choudhury has applied for permission to proceed to Europe for treatment?

(g) Will permission be granted to him?

(h) If not, why not?

(i) Is it also a fact that the sister of Mr. Roy Choudhury applied for permission to nurse her brother in the jail ?

(j) Has permission been granted ?

(k) If not, why not ?

(l) Is there any restriction on Mr. Roy Choudhury's writing letters to his father or other inmates of his family ?

(m) How many letters has he so far been allowed to write during his confinement in the above jail ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) In addition to the State Prisoners mentioned in the Honourable Member's question No. 255 on the 31st August last the State Prisoner, Pratul Chandra Bhattacharjee, is also confined in the Rajahmundry Jail.

(b) to (h). The State Prisoner, Pratul Chandra Bhattacharjee, is keeping good health. As regards the other three State Prisoners, I would invite the attention of the Honourable Member to my replies to his questions Nos. 256, 259 and 638 on the 31st August and 5th September, respectively, to which I have nothing to add.

(i) to (k). A request for the sister and another member of the family to visit and nurse the State Prisoner was made in September, 1932 and permission to interview the State Prisoner on three days was accorded. Another similar request was received by the Government of India in March, 1933, and passed on to the Local Government for disposal under the rules.

(l) and (m). He is allowed under the rules to write three letters a week.

TRANSFER OF STATE PRISONER, MR. RASIK LAL DAS, TO SOME OTHER JAIL.

954. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) In which jail is the Bengali State Prisoner, Mr. Rasik Lal Das, now confined ?

(b) Is there any other Bengali prisoner, or a Bengali officer, in that jail ?

(c) If not, will Government please state why has he been secluded from other Bengali prisoners ?

(d) Is it also a fact that this secluded state of life has badly affected his health ?

(e) Do Government propose to transfer him to some other jail where there are other Bengali prisoners ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) The Peshawar Central jail.

(b) Another Bengali State Prisoner is confined in the same jail.

(c) to (e). Do not arise. But I may add for the Honourable Member's information that the periodical reports show that the State Prisoner is keeping good health.

ACQUITTAL OF MR. NIKHIL RANJAN GUHA ROY BY THE CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

955. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the fact that Mr. Nikhil Ranjan Guha Roy who was convicted for six years in the Kandi Bomb Case and is now confined in the Cellular Jail, Andamans, has been acquitted by the Calcutta High Court ?

(b) Will Government please refer to the interpellations on my question No. 523 of the 21st September, 1932, in course of which the Honourable the Home Member replied as follows :

> "It was on account of a breach of a definite condition that these two persons (Mr. Narendramohon Ghose Choudhury and Mr. Nikhil Ranjan Guha Roy) were sent back to complete their sentence. This is the condition—He shall take no part directly or indirectly in any thing that is an offence under the Arms Act or the Explosive Substances Act," and explain the reasons for his confinement in jail in view of his acquittal from an offence under the Explosive Substances Act ?

(c) Will Mr. Guha Roy be released now ?

(d) If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I am making enquiries from the Government of Bengal and will lay a statement on the table in due course.

DETENUS DETAINED IN THE DEOLI DETENTION CAMP.

956. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government please state the number of detenus now detained in the Deoli Detention Camp ?

(b) How many detention camps are there at present ?

(c) How many detenus can be accommodated in each camp ?

(d) Is it a fact that recently some fresh batches of detenus have been sent to Deoli Detention Camp from Bengal ?

(e) If so, how many detenus have been sent to Deoli from Bengal in June, July and August, respectively ?

(f) Is it not a fact that Sir James Crerar assured this House that the Government of India would make careful scrutiny of each case of transfer of the detenus outside Bengal ?

(g) Was careful scrutiny made by the Government of India in recent cases of transfer ?

(h) If so, what are the special reasons for transferring so many detenus within a short period ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) 217.

(b) and (c). Besides the Deoli Detention Jail, which has accommodation for 500 detenus, there are three camps for detenus in Bengal. I have no exact figures of the accommodation available.

(d) and (e). No detenus were transferred to Deoli in June or August. 97 were transferred in July.

(f) to (h). I have seen what was said by Sir James Crerar on January 19th, 1931, when the Bengal Criminal Law Amendment (Supplementary) Bill first came under discussion. He contemplated at that time that there were likely to be only a few cases, and he appears to have contemplated that each case would be examined by the Government of India. More than a year passed before the Bill came up in this House again, and at that time on February 3rd, 1932, Sir James Crerar explained that the position had deteriorated very greatly during the intervening year. In consequence of that deterioration it was clear that much larger numbers were going to be sent to Deoli than had been originally contemplated and I cannot find that throughout the very lengthy debates of 1932 any further reference was made to the point raised by the Honourable Member. The Government of India do not examine each individual case, but there is a clear understanding on policy between the Government of India and the Government of Bengal that only those detenus who come within the category which Sir James Crerar had in mind should be sent to Deoli.

PERMISSION TO A DETENU IN THE DEOLI DETENTION CAMP TO PERFORM THE SRADH CEREMONY OF HIS FATHER.

957. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that the father of Mr. Sarat Chandra Dutt, a detenu in the Deoli Detention Camp, has recently died ?

(b) Is it also a fact that Mr. Dutt, being the eldest son, applied for leave to perform the Sradh ceremony of his father ?

(c) If so, was any leave granted to him for the purpose ?

(d) If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) Yes.

(b), (c) and (d). An application was received on behalf of the detenu but Government were not able to grant him leave to visit his home for the purpose. I understand that permission was given to him to perform the ceremony in the Deoli Detention Jail.

PROMOTION OF STOREMEN IN THE INDIAN ARMY ORDNANCE CORPS.

958. Nawab Major Malik Talib Mehdi Khan (on behalf of Khan Sahib Shaikh Fazal Haq Piracha) : Will Government please state if it is a fact that :

(a) at the inception of the Indianisation scheme of 'Storemen and Assistant Storekeepers' in the Indian Army Ordnance Corps, storemen who were graduates were promised in their appointment letters issued to them by the Director of Ordnance Services (M. G. O.'s Branch, Army Headquarters) 'quicker' promotion to the grade of Assistant Storekeepers and eventually to the grade of Storekeepers : 100—120|6|150—10 ;

(b) storemen who were graduates were exempted and those who were not graduates were not exempted from undergoing :

(i) a course of instructions at the Indian Army Ordnance Corps School of Instruction, Kirkee, or the efficiency bar examination in lieu thereof ;

(ii) a competitive examination ;

(c) those storemen who were not graduates were required to reach the minimum monthly salary of Rs. 80 before they could be eligible for the said competitive examination, as conditions essential for their promotion to the grade of Assistant Storekeepers ;

(d) all the conditions mentioned at (b) (i) and (ii) and (c) above have now been waived by the Director of Equipment and Ordnance Stores in respect of non-graduates, and even a matriculate storeman, thus bringing them at par with the graduates in respect of promotion ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) In the letter to candidates selected for appointment as probationary Storemen, no promise was made but it was stated that graduates would have the prospect of rising to the grades of Assistant Storekeeper and Storekeeper more quickly than others.

(b) The original orders did not contain any provision to the effect that graduates would have to pass an examination before being considered for promotion. Non-graduates had to pass both an efficiency bar examination and a competitive examination. In no case, however, could a man be promoted unless he was recommended by his Commanding Officer.

(c) Yes.

(d) Under the orders of Government, no person can now be considered for promotion unless he has passed a Trade test and also the efficiency bar examination for storemen, or the storeman course at the School of Instruction. It is open to a Commanding Officer to recommend for promotion any person who has passed those tests whatever his educational qualifications may be.

PROMOTION OF STOREMEN IN THE INDIAN ARMY ORDNANCE CORPS.

959. Nawab Major Malik Talib Mehdi Khan (on behalf of Khan Sahib Shaikh Fazal Haq Piracha) : (a) Will Government please state whether it is a fact that (i) henceforth only such storemen will be admitted to the competitive examination of the Indian Army Ordnance Corps as would be recommended by their immediate officers, and (ii) this condition did not previously apply to the graduates ?

(b) Will Government please state whether it is a fact that for the purpose of promotion to the grade of Assistant Storekeeper no regard will be paid to a storeman's seniority on the nominal roll, and a junior-most storeman can be allowed to supersede the most senior storeman ?

(c) Are Government aware that the changes in the prospects of service referred to previously are in violation of the promise given to the graduate storemen in their appointment letters, and are consequently greatly resented by them ?

(d) Will Government please state the reasons for effecting these changes ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) The competitive examination has been abolished. No person can be recommended for promotion unless he has the qualifications mentioned in my reply to the preceding question.

(b) Promotion is made by selection, due regard being paid to seniority.

(c) and (d). Experience showed that if the substitution of Indians for British other ranks was to be effected without undue loss of efficiency, the original scheme of promotion to the higher grades required modification. No promise was ever made to graduates that they would be preferred to more suitable men with other qualifications ; and they can have no real grievance at the removal of conditions which, without having any bearing on a man's fitness for storekeeping work, delayed the promotion of non-graduates.

STOREMEN OF THE INDIAN ARMY ORDNANCE CORPS.

960. Nawab Major Malik Talib Mehdi Khan (on behalf of Khan Sahib Shaikh Fazal Haq Piracha) : Will Government please lay on the table a statement showing the number of graduates, undergraduates, matriculates, and non-matriculates at present in the cadre of storemen of the Indian Army Ordnance Corps and the number of Hindus, Muhammadans and Sikhs, respectively ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : A statement is laid on the table.

INDIANISATION IN THE INDIAN ARMY ORDNANCE CORPS.

961. Nawab Major Malik Talib Mehdi Khan (on behalf of Khan Sahib Shaikh Fazal Haq Piracha) : Will Government please state in how many years in pursuance of the policy of Indianisation is it proposed to completely replace the warrant and non-commissioned ranks of the Indian Army Ordnance Corps ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : The scheme of Indianisation now in operation contemplates the replacement of 25 per cent. of British other ranks by civilians, in about 16 years. In addition to this replacement, a beginning has been made with the experiment of substituting Indian Non-Commissioned Officers for British up to the extent of 8-1/3 per cent. ; if this experiment is successful, a further measure of substitution will be tried.

PROMOTION OF STOREMEN IN THE INDIAN ARMY ORDNANCE CORPS.

962. Nawab Major Malik Talib Mehdi Khan (on behalf of Khan Sahib Shaikh Fazal Haq Piracha) : Will Government please lay on the table a summary of the proposals received by the Director of Ordnance Stores from the Indian Army Ordnance Corps establishments from time to time on the subject of the method and conditions for promotion of storemen to the grade of the Assistant Storekeeper, and the decisions arrived at and communicated to them by the Director of Ordnance Stores from time to time on such proposals ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : No, Sir. Government are not prepared to lay such correspondence on the table.

SALARIES OF EAST INDIAN RAILWAY EMPLOYEES ON THE TRANSFER OF THAT RAILWAY FROM COMPANY-MANAGEMENT.

963. Mr. E. H. M. Bower : (a) Will Government please state whether the substantive salaries of the East Indian Railway Company's employees who were taken over by the State in 1925 are taken as the guiding factors in fixing their initial salary on transfer from one department to another save in cases of inefficiency, misconduct, abolition of the post or general retrenchment ?

(b) Will Government please state whether the principles enunciated in Fundamental Rules 15 and 22 are obligatory in so far as the East Indian Railway employees are concerned ?

(c) Will Government please state whether a State Railway employee's salary can be reduced without a charge being framed against him and the employee being given an opportunity to defend himself except in anticipation of the abolition of a post or due to retrenchment ?

(d) Will Government please state the remedy that is open to a State Railway servant whose salary has been fixed on transfer to another department contrary to Fundamental Rules 15 and 22 ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Yes.

(b) The East Indian Railway employees, who were appointed before the transfer of the management from the Company, remain under the rules that were applicable to them before ; the Fundamental Rules quoted do not apply to them.

(c) I am sure no disciplinary action is taken against an employee without his being asked for an explanation and given an opportunity to defend himself.

(d) When the salary fixed on transfer is contrary to Fundamental Rules, it would probably come to the notice of the Accounts Department, but in any case the railway servant concerned can bring the matter to the notice of higher authority.

WITHHOLDING OF APPEALS ADDRESSED TO THE RAILWAY BOARD.

964. Mr. E. H. M. Bower : (a) Will Government please state whether appeals addressed to the Railway Board can be withheld by Heads of departments without advising the appellant of the reasons for the withholding of such appeals ?

(b) Will Government please state what avenue is open to the aggrieved subordinate to submit his grievance if such appeals are withheld ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) No appeal can be withheld without the appellant being informed of the fact and of the reasons for it.

(b) Does not arise.

ARTICLE IN THE Bombay Chronicle UNDER THE HEADING " GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY AND WORKERS ".

965. Mr. S. G. Jog : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to a communication which appeared in the Bombay Chronicle, dated Tuesday, July 11, 1933, under the heading " Great Indian Peninsula Railway and workers " ?

(b) Will Government please state what action has been taken in the matter ? If no action has been taken in the matter, why not ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Yes, by the courtesy of my Honourable friend.

(b) I am sending a copy of the question and the reply thereto to the Agent, Great Indian Peninsula Railway, for such action as he may consider necessary.

MESSAGE FROM THE COUNCIL OF STATE.

Secretary of the Assembly : Sir, the following Message has been received from the Council of State :

" I am directed to inform you that the Council of State has, at its meeting held on the 14th September, 1933, agreed without any amendments to the Bill further to amend the Cotton Textile Industry (Protection) Act, 1930, which was passed by the Legislative Assembly at its meeting held on the 6th September, 1933."

STATEMENT LAID ON THE TABLE.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : Sir, I lay on the table the information promised in reply to starred question No. 672 asked by Sardar Sant Singh on the 6th September, 1933.

EXAMINATION FOR RECRUITMENT OF AUDITORS IN THE SUBORDINATE RAILWAY AUDIT SERVICE AND CLERKS IN THE OFFICES OF THE CHIEF AUDITORS AND STATE RAILWAYS.

*672. (a), (b), (c) and (d). Yes.

(c) The two clerks who were brought under reduction were the most junior of those holding officiating appointments. The orders of the Government of India regarding retrenchment according to length of service have reference to Government servants holding permanent posts and therefore do not apply to the cases in question. The circular issued by the Railway Board regarding the re-employment of retrenched personnel does not apply to the Railway Audit Department. Retrenched personnel of that Department would ordinarily be considered in connection with vacancies in the offices from which they have been retrenched ; but the outsider to whom the Honourable Member refers was given an appointment on the Rohilkund and Kumaon Railway where there had been no retrenchment.

(f) As the Director of Railway Audit has already issued instructions that retrenched men should be considered for re-employment wherever possible, Government do not consider it necessary to take any further action in the matter.

STATEMENT OF BUSINESS.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore (Leader of the House) : With your permission, Sir, I desire to make a statement as to the probable course of Government business for the remainder of the Session. Our business for the current Session cannot be completed by tomorrow, and, as indicated in my last statement, I now request you, Sir, to direct that the Assembly shall sit for Government business on Monday, the 18th and Wednesday, the 20th and, thereafter, if necessary, from day to day until the programme which I am going to announce is concluded. I may say that I anticipate that we shall finish our business on Wednesday at the latest.

On Monday, the 18th, leave will be asked to introduce a Bill to give effect in British India to the Convention concerning the protection against accidents of workers employed in loading and unloading ships. I may add, Sir, that no further motion in regard to this Bill will be made during the current Session. Subject to our receiving the necessary messages from the other Chamber, my Honourable colleague will make motions on Monday for the election of Members of this House to the Joint Committees on the Reserve Bank of India Bill and the Imperial Bank of India (Amendment) Bill.

The other items of business which will be brought forward are as follows :

1. Consideration of any business entered in the list of business for Saturday, the 16th and not concluded on that day, in the order in which it appears on the Agenda.

2. A Resolution concerning the age for admission of children to non-industrial employment adopted by the International Labour Conference.

3. A Resolution regarding the amendment of the Indian Legislative Rules in connection with the constitution of the Committee on Public Accounts, and

4. Consideration of the Report of the Public Accounts Committee for 1930-31.

THE INDIAN TEA CONTROL BILL.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai (Secretary, Department of Education, Health and Lands) : Sir, I beg to move :

" That the Bill to provide for the control of the export of tea from India and for the control of the extension of the cultivation of tea in British India, be taken into consideration."

It will be within the recollection of Honourable Members, Sir, that on the last day of the Delhi Session the Honourable the Leader of the House announced that the Government of India had decided to support the agreement which the representatives of the tea industry of the three principal producing countries, viz., Ceylon, the Dutch East Indies and India, had reached early in the year to regulate exports of tea and in certain ways to restrict the production of tea. Government, Sir, had reached this conclusion because they were satisfied that the catastrophic fall in prices which had taken place in recent years,—I may mention for the information of the House that prices had fallen from an average of 9 annas a pound in 1930 to 4 annas a pound in 1932,—that this catastrophic fall in prices threatened the smaller concerns, especially the Indian concerns and that some measures to establish equilibrium between supply and demand were absolutely necessary. The agreement, Sir, falls into two parts. First, the regulation of exports. The idea is that during the five years for which the agreement is to be operative there shall be an export quota fixed for each year at a percentage of the highest export figure during any of the three years 1929, 1930 and 1931. This quota is to be then distributed amongst the estates in India by a committee which is to be representative of all the tea interests in the country. The second part of the agreement, Sir, relates to the restriction of cultivation. The international agreement provides that there shall be no extension of cultivation, that is to say, no new virgin land brought under tea, except in the case of those estates whose economic existence would be otherwise imperilled ; and, further, that for the whole of India the extension so permitted shall be limited to half per cent. of the area actually under tea on the 31st March, 1933. The Bill which is now before the House has been drafted by Government in order to implement this agreement. Government have tried to observe three principles. The first is that the industry as the originator of the agreement shall provide the machinery for its administration, subject, of course, to the control of the Government of India, and that it shall also provide the funds for running the administration. If Honourable Members will look at clause 3 of the Bill they will find that we propose to set up a committee which will be responsible both for the issue of licenses for the purpose of export and for regulating applications for the extension of cultivation. The Committee will also have power to raise funds in order to defray the expenses of administering agreements. Then they are being given powers for keeping accounts, appointing officers and generally to carry out functions incidental to the implementing of the agreement. The second principle, Sir, which Government have kept in view is that it shall be worked equitably to all the interests concerned, be they large interests or small interests, be they Indian interests or European interests ; and for that purpose Honourable Members will find from clause 3 that special steps have been taken to give representation to Indian producing interests ; further, that the Governor General in Council is to have general powers of supervision and control over the actions of the committee ; that as regards the planting of tea areas the Local Governments are to be invested with similar powers ; and, finally, that the Governor General in Council has also the power, if necessary, to bring the committee to an end, that is to say, if it does not behave properly, which we hope will not be the case. The third principle which the Government have kept in view is that although the agreement shall be observed by India in the letter and in the spirit, the operation of the agreement shall not press more hardly upon India than it does upon the other countries ; and in this connection I would like to invite the attention of Honourable Members to the proviso to clause 25 which provides that so far as restrictions on cultivation are concerned, they would have retrospective effect only if the other countries which are parties to the agreement give it such effect.

[Mr. G. S. Bajpai.]

I do not think it is necessary for me to go into the details of each clause. The Bill has been drafted on a very simple and logical plan : Chapter I deals with the machinery ; Chapter II deals with the regulation of exports ; Chapter III with the extension of cultivations and Chapter IV with such penalties as may be necessary for non-observance of the Act. There are two facts, however, which I think I should like to mention for the information of the House before I conclude. The Bill as first drafted by us was circulated to Local Governments in order to elicit their views and the views of those representatives of the industry ; and the form in which the Bill has been placed before the House generally commands the agreement of all the interests concerned. The second point I would like to mention for the information of Honourable Members is that although constitutionally it is not possible for us to legislate for India as a whole, yet the Indian States primarily concerned, namely, Travancore, Cochin and Mysore, have agreed to observe and give effect to the agreement during its operation. There is nothing more for me to say. Yesterday I had hoped that I would be able to invoke the hour at which the discussion was likely to commence as an argument for according to this Bill a measure of acquiescent amiability. I refer, Sir, to the tea hour. That is no longer possible. But I still hope that the impression, indeed impelling weight of support which I have endeavoured to describe will secure for it prompt and unanimous support. Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Motion moved :

"That the Bill to provide for the control of the export of tea from India and for the control of the extension of the cultivation of tea in British India, be taken into consideration."

Mr. S. C. Mitra (Chittagong and Rajshahi Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I move :

"That the Bill be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Mr. G. S. Bajpai, Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury, Mr. T. R. Phookun, Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi, Mr. K. P. Thampan, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, Mr. F. E. James, Dr. Francis Xavier DeSouza, Mr. Muhammad Anwar-ul-Azim and the Mover, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

The purpose of my motion is not to delay this very beneficial measure even for a day. I agree with the Honourable the Mover of this Bill that it is necessary for the very existence of the tea industry, both here in India and outside. Government is really helping the tea growers by enacting this legislation. I also accept the general principle of this Bill ; but I have received several communications from tea growers from my constituency and from outside who place before the Government the special interest of the tea planters who have begun to start tea gardens from the year 1925 and 1926, who had not the occasion to have a full crop of tea, during these years—the typical years of 1929, 1930, and 1931, that will be considered as the standard years for the average production of tea gardens on the basis of which this quota will be fixed. I think it may not be necessary for me even to press my motion for referring the matter to the Select Committee

if the Government or the other tea interests are agreeable to consider favourably the view points of these small tea growers in different parts of India, by incorporating in the Bill some of the suggestions that have been made. Or it may even be provided afterwards, if the assurance is given, in the rule-making power providing for those suggestions in the rules themselves. I got this letter from the Secretary, Tippera Planters' Association. It runs thus :

"The Indian gardens which my Association represents are mainly new and undeveloped gardens with comparatively small output. There are a few which, although older in age could not for various difficulties before 1928 develop properly, and produce crops in proportion to their planted acreage. There are some gardens which began just before the depression set in, and have been struggling against tremendous odds all these times. In order to safeguard the interests of these gardens, my Association submits the following suggestions :

(1) Those gardens which could not be developed properly and show an inadequate output of crop in proportion to their planted acreage even in their hitherto best year of production should be allowed a minimum output on their entire plantations at least at the rate of yield per acre allowed for young plantations of 1928 with further allowances for crops in respect of re-plantations and replacements made since 1929 at the rate given in circular 4.

(2) Those gardens which would be imperilled without further extensions should be allowed to extend according to their needs after a thorough inquiry in each case.

(3) In the proposed Licensing Board there appears to be no room for representation of gardens which do not belong to any Association and particularly the Tripura State gardens which number about 50. In our opinion these gardens should have proper representation in the proposed Licensing Board. The Tripura State area should be regarded as a unit by itself for purposes of such representation and my Association begs to claim one representation for itself."

They further state :

"Those gardens which have not yet produced 1,500 maunds of tea or at least 5 maunds of tea per acre, as has been allowed even for the young areas of 1928, should be allowed their actual outturn of crop up to the limit of 1,500 maunds of manufactured tea or at the rate of 5 maunds per acre of the planted area both in respect of the export quotas and internal consumption instead of 10 per cent. allowances proposed to be allowed to gardens producing 1,000 maunds or yielding 4 maunds per acre, in the proposed tea restriction scheme—otherwise such small and undeveloped gardens will be seriously affected. The proposals made herein will not affect the restriction scheme to any appreciable extent."

I have received similar letters from Indian tea planters of Chittagong and a few from Jalpaiguri also. I had a long discussion with my friend, Mr. Phookun of Assam and also with my Honourable friend, Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhuri, who really represent the larger Indian tea interests in the whole of India. They also agree with the view that I have already quoted and I shall presently read a statement which has been sent to me by Mr. P. C. Borooch of Sibsaugor a statement of Mr. J. B. Challiha where in a very clear and succinct statement he has put the case of the smaller tea garden Indian owners. With your permission, Sir, I should like to read from that statement.

"Though the restriction scheme for exports of tea holds out hopes to save the industry from ruin, I am afraid the new gardens started after the last tea boom of 1923|24 are hardly getting an equitable treatment in the calculation of the crop basis, and consequently the export quota."

"I shall show below how the principle adopted for calculating crop basis of young gardens hits them hard.

1. Gardens started after 1925-26 never had had the chance to make full crop at any time during the years taken as base years, for the simple reason that the tea bushes were far too young to be full yielding, so the crop basis calculated according to the formula adopted will be too low and remain low even when the bushes are in a full yielding capacity than the crop basis of a garden similarly placed but started earlier.

2. In limiting the crop basis for young tea uniformly for all districts for the next five years, the assumption is that the average production for all districts, whether Darjeeling, Cachar or Upper Assam is the same, which is never the case. Districts with heavier crops per acre generally cannot pay their way with a low output, so gardens situated in locations where the average production per acre is ten maunds an acre will be hardly able to make a profit with maximum of five maunds an acre.

3. These new gardens were planted out at a much heavier cost per acre than the gardens long established, as labour and materials were dearer, and some had to pay as much as Rs. 40 per acre to Government for land alone as premium. This is aggravated by the fact, that having invested all the money they had to start the gardens, when an income was expected the tea and general trade depression set in, and they suffered heavy loss, and many ran into debt. Gardens long established got land cheap and on easy tenures and opening expenses were much lower and a comparatively small capital went a long way. They made profits for years and many had time to build big reserves. With gardens under European Managing agents they had cheap money, even if they had to borrow. All gardens who have got to depend for all their crop on their extensions after 1925-26 should be allowed to make tea at least upto the district average of production, and not limit the crop basis to a maximum of only 400 lbs. per acre which is hardly fair. Unless this is done these new gardens will get very little real benefit from the Government guaranteeing the restriction of exports. These gardens will not only have to cover their expenses but will have to find funds to liquidate the debts incurred during the recent years due to losses sustained. They will also have to be prepared for the next slump which will very likely come off if the restriction of exports is not continued after the present term of five years is over.

The following suggestions are put forward for calculating the crop basis for new gardens started after 1925-26 in order that they may have a fair chance for existence.

1. Take the best crop during 1929, 1930, 1931 and 1932.

2. Make an allowance of 400 lbs. for 1928 plantings, 300 lbs. for 1929 plantings and 200 lbs. for 1930 plantings for 1933|34.

3. Increase these allowances by 100 lbs. per acre, every year up to a maximum of the district average of production during the operation of the restriction scheme.

4. Then fix the export quota at the percentage to be decided for the particular year.

5. Should a new garden started in 1926-27, the crop of which should have been the heaviest in 1932, due to the young plants getting more mature than the previous years, be affected by hail, flood or other natural disaster, and its 1932 crop is lower than any of the previous years, its crop basis should be calculated for 1933 as follows :

(1) 600 lbs. per acre for 1926 plants, or the District average of production, if it is less than 600 lbs. per acre.
(2) 500 lbs. per acre for the 1927 plantings.
(3) 400 lbs. per acre for the 1928 plantings.
(4) 300 lbs. per acre for the 1929 plantings.
(5) 200 lbs. per acre for the 1930 plantings.
(6) For subsequent years, the above figures should increase by 100 lbs. per acre up to the district average of production.

The suggestion about allowing the young gardens to make up to the district average of production will not affect the quantity of tea allotted to the older gardens to any great extent for 1933, and in subsequent years the quota of the new gardens will increase progressively and the maximum allotment will be claimed only during the last year of the operation of the scheme, when perhaps consumption will increase considerably."

Sir, in this statement the tea planters have shown how they think that in the interest of the small tea gardens some special provision should be made within the quota as accepted in the International Scheme to give relief to these people, and I sincerely hope that Government as well as the tea interests will be agreeable to accept such a scheme. If that view is acceptable,—and I know I can speak on behalf of the Members on this side because I have discussed the matter in detail with Mr. Phookan and Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury, our general object will be served, and if we can have an assurance to that effect, I do not think it is necessary to refer this Bill to a Select Committee.

Then, Sir, the only other matter that I want to refer to is about clause 3. In sub-clause (b) I find that members who are to represent Assam and the Surma Valley are to be nominated by the Local Government, and similarly in sub-clause (d) the members representing the Southern India tea estates are also to be nominated by the Local Government, while in other cases there is provision for election by the tea growers of the locality concerned. I understand, Sir, there is a tea institution in the Surma Valley, but I am not quite sure if there is one such in the Assam Valley district, but in any case I do not understand why Government should not accept the policy of giving the powers of election to the local tea estates, because it will not be necessary to provide for an extensive electorate. It may be done simply by letters—and thus they can elect their own representatives—rather than making an invidious distinction, by nominating them, in those two cases alone. With these words, Sir, I support the motion.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Amendment moved :

"That the Bill be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Mr. G. S. Bajpai, Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury, Mr. T. R. Phookun, Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi, Mr. K. P. Thampan, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, Mr. F. E. James, Dr. Francis Xavier DeSouza, Mr. Muhammad Anwar-ul-Azim and the Mover, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Sir, I have ventured to rise so early in the debate because my friend said that if Government were able to explain their attitude in this matter satisfactorily, he would not press his proposal for reference to Select Committee. My friend has made three points. The first is that, so far as the export quota of certain Indian tea gardens is concerned, it shall be calculated on a more generous basis than is provided for actually in the agreement. Now, Sir, the position as regards that, is, that the Governor General in Council is taking power under the rules—I would refer my friend to sub-clause (a) of clause 23—to prescribe the manner in which the export quotas of tea estates shall be determined. This, Sir, is a matter of domestic regulation which is subject to the power of control of the Governor General in Council, and I said in the course of my remarks when moving that the Bill be considered, that the Government were most anxious to safeguard the interests of the Indian producer, and my friend may rest assured that the suggestions which he has read out will be most carefully considered, and that, so far as there is any legitimate grievance in the matter, Government will endeavour to have it redressed. I hope that that is an assurance which is satisfactory to my Honourable friend with regard to this matter.

The second point of my Honourable friend was that there shall be sympathetic consideration given to applications for extensions of certain gardens. As regards that, my Honourable friend will observe that there is a governing limitation under the agreement, namely, that extensions are to be subject to a limit of half per cent. of the area under tea on the 31st March, 1933. Now, the parties to the agreement—I am talking of countries other than India, namely, Java and Ceylon,—look upon that as a vital condition, so it is not possible for Government to promise that that limit will be exceeded. But subject to that limit, my Honourable friend may rest assured that the claims of those who are in the greatest peril will have the first consideration, and the most sympathetic consideration.

The third point was as regards the representation of the various interests. I am afraid I did not have timely notice that my Honourable friend was going to make this suggestion for amendment of the constitution of the Committee, but I would bring to his notice certain considerations. As regards South Indian plantations, the position is that South India includes not only Madras but also certain Indian States. We cannot legislate for areas outside British India. That is why power has been given to the Local Government and not to a general electorate to choose Indian representatives. I believe that as regards Assam also the position is that this appears to be the best method of securing proper representation because the Indian producers in the two valleys mentioned by the Honourable Member are not adequately organised. But I would say this for my Honourable friend's satisfaction that we propose to put the suggestion to the Local Government,—not that under the Bill, if it is passed, it will be possible for them to have recourse to election,—that they might make their nominations in consultation with any representative Indian organisation of the industry that might exist. I would also like to mention that both the Ceylon and the Dutch Governments have already passed legislation to implement the agreement. We are the only Government who, because of the programme of our legislative business, have not been able to do so. If there is any delay in placing this Bill on the Statute-book it might have an unfortunate effect upon the tea market which has been showing very healthy signs indeed since the agreement was announced. I hope, therefore, that my Honourable friend will not press his motion and that we shall be able to put this legislation on the Statute-book without any more delay.

Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury (Assam : Muhammadan) : I rise to support the motion moved by my Honourable friend, Mr. Bajpai. The export restriction scheme to which this Bill seeks to give legislative sanction is a very well thought out scheme, but it has its attendant dangers and my sole anxiety is that those dangers should be guarded against.

It is an obvious fact that the tea industry is passing through a period of depression. The depression is due to the fall in prices because of overproduction, and this scheme is designed to raise prices by restoring as my Honourable friend, Mr. Bajpai, explained the equilibrium between supply and demand. For this purpose the producers in all the tea producing countries like Java, Sumatra and Ceylon have entered into an agreement to restrict the export from their respective countries, and this Bill is intended to implement that agreement. With this object I am in whole-hearted agreement. According to this scheme 320 million lbs. have been fixed as the export quota for India. Now the estimated output for the year 1932 is, I believe, 429 million lbs. Now, the question is how the surplus is to be disposed of. The maximum consumption for India is 65 million lbs., while the surplus over the export quota is 109 millions. This will glut our Indian market. Overproduction produced the slump in the tea industry, and this Bill is intended to remedy that evil so far as the export market is concerned, but it will create slump in the Indian market, in an aggravated form. So, the only remedy for this state of affairs is, just as this export scheme is intended to restrict export, there must be some restriction of production also in order to save the Indian market as well.

In this connection I would like to bring before the House one fact with regard to Indian gardens. Most of the Indian gardens I think, practically all in Bengal and Assam, do not export their tea direct owing to the absence of proper banking facilities and having no agency of their own in England or the continent. They sell their tea by auction in the Calcutta market, and that does not fetch them the prices that the direct exporter gets in the London market.

Mr. E. Studd (Bengal : European) : May I point out that until about a fortnight ago the Calcutta market was selling between 1½ to 2 annas above the London market, and therefore the Indian who sold his tea in the Calcutta market got better prices than he would have got if he had shipped the tea to London.

Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury : Can my Honourable friend assure me that that state of things will continue ?

Mr. E. Studd : That, nobody can prophesy, but it is a fact that the prices realised in the Calcutta auctions are still quite as good as the prices realised in England.

Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury : The position with regard to Indians is that because they do not export directly many of them have to sell their produce in the Calcutta market and the advantages under this Bill are not available to them to the same extent as to the direct exporters. It may be said that the right of export is a right that is transferable and saleable. But it does not mean that it can be easily transferred or sold, and if and when that right is transferred or sold it is not always possible to get a fair price for the transfer of that right. I do admit that this right of transferring and selling this export quota is a valuable right, but it does not solve the difficulty of the Indian planters. The only remedy, as I suggested, is that restriction of production must follow restriction of export, and while I advocate restriction of production I do so with certain reservations. The European planters have been long established in the field and they own extensive acreage. The Indians have come into the field only in recent years and they mainly own very small tea gardens. If they have also to restrict their output it will affect their very existence. So, I suggest that under any scheme that may be devised for restricting production, at least those gardens which produce about 1,000 maunds or less should be exempted from the operation of this restriction scheme. I hope the Government will be pleased to tell us how they propose to deal with this menace to the Indian industry on account of the glutting of the Indian market with the surplus of the export quota. I have suggested one method for restricting the output, but I claim no originality for that suggestion. For I understand that the Indian Tea Association has taken up that matter. There is also another suggestion that I would like to make and that is as regards the expansion of the Indian market, to absorb the balance of the surplus quota. The Indian Tea Cess Committee was established in 1903 with a view to increasing the sale and use of tea in India and outside. There is a growing feeling among Indian tea planters, and I think it is shared by some of the European tea planters also, that this Indian Tea Cess Committee devotes disproportionate attention to outside market to the neglect of developing the indigenous market in India. As an illustration, I might refer to the money that they are spending on American propaganda. They are spending £40,000 a year for propaganda in America and the result has been that in the year 1931 the export to the United States of America was reduced by 100,000 pounds. From the year 1888 to 1908 Ceylon carried on a propaganda in the United States of America. They spent £12,000 a year and they had to give it up because the result was not satisfactory, but the Indian Tea Cess Committee does not seem to have profitted by the experience of Ceylon in this matter. As regards the possibility of the Indian Market, I should like to read out to the House the opinion of the Imperial Economic Committee on Tea. This is what they say :

> "As the greatest among the exporting countries, India is the most severely affected by the present necessity for an expansion of the market, and it is therefore important to realise that no market in the world offers such ultimate opportunities for an increase in tea consumption as India itself."

Further on they say :

> "This market at India's own door may yet prove the answer to the problems of the industry. While the slowness of the Russian recovery is one of the principal causes of the present depression, India may perhaps provide the remedy."

I should like the Tea Cess Committee to devote greater attention to India than they are doing just at present. With regard to the amendment of my friend, Mr. Mitra, for the reference of the Bill to the Select Committee, I am very anxious that this Bill should be passed this Session. I have received telegrams from planters in Jalpaiguri, from Assam, from the Surma Valley and from all parts of Bengal urging us that passage of this Bill should be expedited because otherwise it would be disastrous to the industry and my friend, Mr. Mitra, has himself said that his intention is not to delay the measure. He only wants an assurance that in the rules special provision should be made for the gardens started after 1925, with regard to making generous allowance for young clearings. I hope, Sir, that in making the rules this point will be borne in mind.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad (United Provinces Southern Divisions : Muhammadan Rural) : I support the principles of the Bill but I should like to draw the attention of the Honourable Member to one or two points. India is a peculiar country. The conditions here are different from the conditions in other countries. In other countries the conditions of production are uniform. Here we have got companies managed by Europeans, companies managed by Europeans and Indians combined, companies managed by Indians alone, companies managed by individuals and above all the very small farms which are just springing up in the nature of enterprise. This Bill appears to me to amply safeguard the interests of the big planters. All those persons who have just started their business have, to my mind, not been sufficiently safeguarded. Perhaps in the rules their interests will also be safeguarded. The other point is that the rules are not so important really as the methods by which the rules are put into practice. The manner in which the rules are carried out is much more important than the rules themselves and we should like to know whether the committee or any other body which will come into existence by virtue of this Bill will really exercise the powers conferred by these rules impartially and in the interests of the small planters and I think that in making the rules this point might be considered. Any person who is not satisfied with the decision of this committee, which might be set up, may perhaps appeal to a small committee which might be set up by the Government at their Headquarters. This can conveniently come under the rules, the framing of which is not really the business of the Legislature. Therefore when the Government frame the rules, they should see that the rules are not enforced to the disadvantage of the small tea planters. I hope that a copy of these rules will also be laid before the Legislature. The next point to which my friend, Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury, has drawn attention is the lack of propaganda in India. It is really much more important than propaganda outside. Propaganda outside may be useful but the propaganda in this country is still more useful. For some years ago after this committee came into existence they carried on a propaganda in every village and even village tradesman had stock of loose tea to sell in small quantities. All that has disappeared on account of the indifference of the Cess Committee. It is rather important that we ought to provide the Home market for over production and the only way in which we can do this is to have a large number of travelling agents and see that tea is available for sale even in small villages. This will increase the sale and find a market for the overproduction stock of tea of which Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury has already spoken. I hope this point will also be looked into. I emphasise once more that the safeguards of the interests of the small tea planters will be provided for in the rules and sufficient money will be spent in India for home propaganda.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai (Sind : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I have two matters in my view in speaking on this Bill. One is the interests of the consumer and the other is the interest of the small interests who are dealing in tea. I know that the bigger interests will take care of themselves. I note that an assurance has been given by Mr. Bajpai for whom I have regard and in whose assurance I have great faith. He said that this Bill is intended to vouchsafe the small interests and I think that in these days it is the small interests which should be protected first. As a result of the depression that is going on, these small interests are suffering. On account of the price being very low, the small interests are giving up their undertakings. It is very good for the consumer that the price has come down from 9 annas to 4 annas. This is specially helpful to people who take tea and India has now been taking more tea than it used to do. Some do it on account of necessity and some out of a mere fashion that is going on now-a-days. What I am submitting is this that if the interests of the smaller traders are protected there is no reason why we should not agree to this arrangement. Sir, in support of what the Honourable the Mover has said I find that in the Statement of Objects and Reasons it is said :

"The results of a referendum issued to all known estates have been examined and it appears that over 92 per cent. of the industry, reckoned in terms of production, have expressed themselves in favour of the scheme."

Sir, we are not, at any rate I am not, so very familiar with this trade business that I can offer myself any opinion. In that case we have certainly to rely upon those who are interested in it and who deal in it. Here is a statement that 92 per cent. of that industry have consented to the scheme. Then, Sir, it is further said :

"The Governments of Madras, Assam and Bengal, within whose jurisdiction bulk of the tea in British India is cultivated, are prepared to restrict the issue of fresh leases for tea cultivation and have also agreed to the restriction of planting of areas already leased."

Therefore we have got an assurance but I must say that this referendum and these opinions should have been given to the House in which case we should have been in a position to judge for ourselves. And I believe it is with that intention that an amendment has been moved for a Select Committee. If a Select Committee is appointed and all these papers and referendum are placed before them we will be fortified in giving our strong support and giving it without doubt or suspicion. But it appears that the object is to pass this Bill speedily through this House and it is pointed out that the people who are concerned with it have actually wired that this scheme should be accepted and that it should be given effect to. I therefore hope that the rules to be made under this measure will be made in consultation with those who are concerned in it, because we know that when an Act is passed here many a time all the good principles are whittled down by the rules framed under it and it sometimes deteriorates. Therefore I submit that rules should be made in consultation with those persons who are interested in this. I would in the end put two questions to my Honourable friend for my own information. I should like to know if the Honourable Member is really in possession of facts to show that since this price has gone down the smaller interests have actually suffered to this extent that they have given up their business or their cultivation of tea. The second question is whether the committee, that is going to be appointed, will have also power to fix the rates of the tea or whether it will be beyond them. These are the two points that are necessary for deciding the question that I have placed before the House, namely, the interests of the consumer and the small interests concerned.

Mr. F. E. James (Madras : European) : Sir, I should like in a very few words to associate myself with much that has been said by my Honourable friends, Mr. Mitra and Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury. This Bill gives legislative sanction to what is the first attempt in this country by any large industry at what is called planned economy. And I think it represents an example to other industries which they might well follow. But I suggest that in any such scheme there are three important questions which should be regarded both by the industry and by Government itself. While the scheme of planned economy may include a proposal to restrict exports of a particular production, great care should be taken to see that the smaller interests involved in that industry are protected. Now, my friend, Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury, has spoken, and so has Mr. Mitra, of small interests in Bengal and elsewhere which are in Indian hands. I have received similar representations to those he has mentioned from small concerns in South India which are in Indian hands and in European hands and in Anglo-Indian hands. There are a large number of small owner-proprietors of estates, particularly in the Nilgiris, and they are very anxious that in connection with the scheme for regulation of exports those who have invested money in gardens recently and whose continued existence may be imperilled by the operation of this regulation scheme should receive very special consideration at the hands of Government and at the hands of the committee. I therefore entirely join with my friend, Mr. Mitra, in asking that we should get some assurance from Government on this point.

Then, Sir, the second point that has been made by Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury is that there is little use in a regulation of exports scheme unless at the same time there is a scheme for the restriction of crop. I agree with him that the latter scheme is a corollary to the first and I also agree with him that in such schemes which may be proposed,—and I understand one is now under consideration, perhaps Mr. Miligan will give us that information later on,—special attention should be given to the small gardens which are in the hands of many of my friends and which depend entirely upon the local market for the disposal of their product.

And then the third point which was made, again by my friend, Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury, was in regard to the increase of the consumption of tea in this country. In any scheme of planned economy not only must you regulate exports and restrict production but you must take steps to increase local consumption. And I join on behalf of the United Planters' Association in Southern India with my friend, Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury, when he says that in the past the Indian Tea Cess Committee has spent far more money in the United States than the results have justified. Therefore I trust that the industry concerned will, as part of this general scheme of controlling its own production and export, take steps to increase as far as possible in the near future the consumption of the greatest market which it possesses, namely, the market at its very doors. If we can get that sort of assurance from the Government and the industry, I assume that my friend, Mr. Mitra, would be willing to withdraw his motion and expedite the passing of this Bill into law.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore (Member for Commerce and Railways) : Sir, in view of the general support which this measure has received it is unnecessary for me to detain the House for long. Lest there should be an impression that this measure is not approved by Indian tea interests, I should like to read just two or three telegrams which I have received recently. Here is one from the Indian Tea Growers' Association of Silchar :

"Strongly urge passing Tea Exports Legislation current Session otherwise tea interest will be imperilled."

Another from the Secretary of the Terai Indian Planters' Association, Darjeeling :

"My Association strongly support export regulation and restriction scheme and urge Tea Control Bill be taken up during current Session."

Another telegram from Jalpaiguri says :

"Indian Tea Planters Association generally approves provisions of tea control Bill introduced in Assembly would strongly urge for passage this Session."

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Please mention the name of the sender.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : These telegrams are from Associations. My Honourable friend, Mr. Mitra, I think, voiced a general feeling in the House that the small garden proprietors should not be prejudiced. I am entirely in agreement with him and I think we have taken special steps in this legislation by retaining powers to ourselves to see that those smaller interests are really safeguarded. In reinforcement of the assurance which my Honourable friend, Mr. Bajpai, has given and which I think has already satisfied the House, I would once again assure the House that if we are satisfied that any procedure under this Act is bearing heavily and unfairly on any section of the industry we shall most certainly consider the matter and shall not hesitate to make the necessary alterations in that procedure. There is very little further for me to say. I should like to refer to just one or two points raised by my Honourable friend, Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury. It is quite true that this restriction scheme may, by throwing larger quantities on the home market than at present, have a depressing effect on prices, but I would suggest to him that that very fact may prove a blessing in disguise and that it may help to popularise the use of tea in that enormous market at the very doors of the industry. May I suggest to those, who are interested, to remember the Biblical injunction to "cast your bread upon the waters and it will return to you after many days".

The only other point is the suggestion that Government should consider a scheme to regulate the production of tea. If the industry as a whole should put up any practical and workable scheme, I can give my Honourable friends the assurance that Government will most carefully consider it. I have nothing further to say beyond expressing the hope that my Honourable friend will withdraw his amendment.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : I am thankful to the Honourable the Leader of the House and to Mr. Bajpai for their assurance and I beg leave to withdraw my amendment.

The amendment was, by leave of the Assembly, withdrawn.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That the Bill to provide for the control of the export of tea from India and for the control of the extension of the cultivation of tea in British India, be taken into consideration."

The motion was adopted.

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till a Quarter Past Two of the Clock.

The Assembly re-assembled after Lunch at a Quarter Past Two of the Clock, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) in the Chair.

Clauses 2 to 10 were added to the Bill.

Clauses 11 to 20 were added to the Bill.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That clause 21 stand part of the Bill."

Mr. J. A. Milligan (Assam : European) : Sir, I rise to move the amendment that stands in my name :

"That in sub-clause (2) of clause 21 of the Bill, after the words 'in pursuance of the purposes of this Act' the following be inserted :

'and, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, to the payment of a contribution towards the maintenance of any international committee established in furtherance of the said purposes in tea-producing countries generally'."

This amendment speaks for itself. The wording of the clause as drafted restricts the right of the Committee to spend money only on objects which are mentioned in the Bill itself. The Bill makes no mention of the International Committee which was established within the last few days and that International Committee will depend on subscriptions from Java, Ceylon and India. Therefore this amendment has been considered essential. I move.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Sir, I accept the amendment on behalf of Government.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That in sub-clause (2) of clause 21 of the Bill, after the words 'in pursuance of the purposes of this Act' the following be inserted :

'and, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, to the payment of a contribution towards the maintenance of any international committee established in furtherance of the said purposes in tea-producing countries generally'."

The motion was adopted.

Clause 21, as amended, was added to the Bill.

Clauses 22 to 35 were added to the Bill.

Clause 1 was added to the Bill.

The Title and the Preamble were added to the Bill.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Sir, I beg to move that the Bill, as amended, be passed.

Mr. B. Das (Orissa Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I wish to make a few observations. I did not interfere while the discussion clause by clause was going on. This Bill has proved that the Ottawa Agreement is a failure. The Ottawa Agreement came into existence in order that the countries in the British Empire should rally round and adopt differential tariff to exclude other foreign States. Sir, while the Ottawa Committee was sitting at Delhi over which my Honourable friend the Leader of the House presided, the representatives of the tea industry were approaching the Honourable the Commerce Member about certain negotiations with certain foreign countries. I do not understand how the industrialists in India, who supported the Ottawa Paet, can discriminate between the various countries of the British Empire and within a few days can enter into negotiations with the Government of Java. Of course, it is well understood that the capitalists want to have everything in their own way. In one breath they wanted to ban the foreign teas from entering into British market or for the matter of that of the Empire market, and in the other breath they were negotiating with the Javanese people in order to restrict the protection so that tea can fetch a higher price. I only want to point this out to those who were so cock-sure at the time that the Ottawa Pact will bring large resources at the disposal of the British Empire, particularly to the representatives of the tea industry. My friend, Mr. James, is not here but he was very vehement in saying that the tea industry of India will profit enormously. If that was so, why are they entering now into this false pact with a foreign government like the government of Java ? I know it is not in the domain of my Honourable friend, Mr. Bajpai, to answer to this point which I have raised but I do hope that the Honourable the Commerce Member who in season and out of season is so emphatic in his assertion that the Ottawa Agreement has benefited enormously the British Empire and the Indian Empire, will now say that the Ottawa Pact has failed to benefit the producers.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : Sir, I do not wish to say anything except this that if my Honourable friend can not understand a patent fact, nothing that I can say will possibly cause the light to dawn on him.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That the Bill, as amended, be passed."

The motion was adopted.

THE FACTORIES BILL.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce (Member for Industries and Labour) : Sir, I beg to move :

"That the Bill to consolidate and amend the law regulating labour in factories be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury, Mr. S. C. Mitra, Mr. A. Hoon, Mr. H. P. Mody, Diwan Bahadur Harbilas Sarda, Mr. Amar Nath Dutt, Mr. S. C. Sen, Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi, Mr. G. Morgan, Khan Sahib Shaikh Fazal Haq Piracha, Mr. N. M. Joshi, Mr. S. G. Grantham, Mr. A. G. Clow, Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah and the Mover, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

Sir, my Honourable colleague, the Finance Member, in introducing the Reserve Bank Bill, told the House that it was the most important measure he had placed or would be placing before it during his term of office. I might have made the same claim for this Bill, for I do not think it will probably fall to my lot to ask the House to consider a measure of greater importance than this. The House may think that, in speaking of this Bill and the Reserve Bank Bill in the same breath, I am comparing great things with small. That may be so, but I myself am not prepared to admit that it is. I contend that it is as essential that the industrial development of the new India should be based on a contented labour as it is that its financial development should be based on a sound system of credit and currency, and I am convinced that this Bill should do much to bring about that contentment.

I have already given the House an account of the development of the Bill and it is unnecessary for me to cover that ground over again. There is, however, one stage in that development which I omitted to mention when I last addressed the House on this subject. I am glad to have this opportunity of acknowledging the valuable assistance my Department and I received from a Conference we had with the Chief Inspectors of Factories with whom we discussed the measure in detail last month. It is they on whom will fall the burden of administering the new Act and it is for this reason that we thought it desirable to consult them before placing the measure before this House. I would remind the House that although I am asking it to appoint a Select Committee now, it is not proposed that the Committee should meet until January. I have no doubt that if the House agrees to this motion, the Members appointed to the Committee will use the interval carefully to study the questions involved. As I said previously, my Department will be very glad to provide them with a very plentiful supply of literature on the subject.

This Bill embodies a mass of detail. There are, I think, over 70 clauses in it and, in asking the House to send it to a Select Committee, I should like to make it clear that I am not asking the House to commit itself to all and every change in the law that it involves. It is, I think, sufficient that the House should be satisfied that the law relating to labour in factories requires revision and as to that I do not think there can be two opinions. The Act which forms the frame work of the Bill that we are now submitting to the House was passed as long ago as 22 years, when factory industries were far from the state of development they have recalled today ; and when many of the problems now facing us were unexplored or even unknown. Extensive amendments were made in 1922, and there have been no less than three other amending Acts since then. As a result, few of the more important provisions of the 1911 Act survive in their original form. The present Act, it is not going too far to say, is a thing of shreds and patches, and it stands in urgent need of consolidation and also of clarification. But that is not the only need. Government have been aware of defects in the law in certain directions for a number of years past. We have realised, for instance, that the Act gives inadequate protection to workers in respect of safety, health and comfort. Experience of its working has revealed other defects and weaknesses. Further, it countenances hours of work, which, I think every one, even those who are not in favour of immediate change, realises, cannot be regarded with equanimity as a permanent feature of Indian industry, but which represented the limit to which it was thought desirable to go when the provisions in question were enacted.

Finally, the work of the Whitley Commission which probed more deeply into this subject than Government have naturally ever had an opportunity of doing, not only brought to light the need for other changes, but gave valuable guidance towards the framing of a new law. As I am not asking the House to commit itself to any particular provisions of the Bill, even those which relate to hours, it is not, I think, necessary for me to discuss those provisions in detail. I hope that, in respect of, at any rate, most of the sections, the Statement of Objects and Reasons affords a sufficient explanation.

I should like to deal specifically if very briefly with one clause, clause 35, which relates to the weekly hours of work, for it is in regard to that clause that I think there is, to say the least, a considerable possibility of some diversity of opinion. Briefly, our proposals are that, in seasonal factories, the limit of 60 hours should remain ; continuous process factories should be allowed a 56-hour week, which is the normal limit in such factories at present ; in the other non-seasonal factories, the week should be ordinarily limited to 54 hours. This, it is important to remind the House, was the limit already observed by the majority of the factories to which it is proposed to apply it. But there is a large minority of factories which still work up to the 60 hours limit. This minority includes the bulk of the mills in that very important industry, the cotton textile industry. Now, I should like to state the reasons which have led me to the view that this limit, if it were enforced, would be to the advantage both of industrialists and of workers. So far as employers are concerned, it seems to me that, as I have already indicated, stability in any industry must be dependent on a reasonably efficient and contented labour force. It is impossible to my mind to build a sound industrial structure in India or for that matter in any other country, on a foundation of inefficient work. It is unreasonable to expect any high degree of efficiency or any high degree of contentment from men who have to spend ten hours a day—indeed it amounts to eleven hours if the rest interval is included—within the limits of a factory. Shorter hours are, in my view, an essential condition for any substantial advance in efficiency. Further, I would remind the House that there has recently been a very radical change in the labour position. Formerly there was a constant scarcity of labour and many employers were, therefore, naturally anxious to keep the men they had at work as long as possible. Now, we have the spectacle,—to my mind a regrettable and pathetic one—of men sitting idle outside the factory gates, unable to get work, whilst others inside are required to work an unduly long period.

Turning to the workers, I recognise that for many of those in employment, that is those who are working a longer day, the reduction in hours must mean a definite sacrifice. Industry today in India is unfortunately not in such a position that, if production is reduced, it can pay the same wages as it did before, and until workers can make good this reduction by more intense labour, they must face a reduction from the level of earnings prevalent in the last few years. On the other hand, prices have fallen greatly, and any reasonable reduction that would be required on this account, would not bring the workers' purchasing power below the level of only a few years back. There are indeed signs that, in certain industries, particularly in the cotton textile industry, the employers are endeavouring to secure a reduction in wages before any reduction of hours has been offered or enforced. I believe that even from the point of view of those in employment a reduction in earnings would be a reasonable price to pay for a reduction in toil. The man who spends eleven hours a day in a factory throughout the year cannot be said to live at all. He is a machine and he has not the efficiency of the machine nor has he the incapacity of a machine for suffering.

But these are not the only facts that deserve consideration. There is a considerable measure of unemployment. Many men are idle. Many others have their lives shadowed by the fear of idleness. To the one, reduction of hours would bring new prospects ; to the other, greater security.

Now, I would conclude with a special appeal—and I much regret that my Honourable friend, Mr. Mody, is not here today to give the

[Sir Frank Noyce.]

House the point of view of the industry he so ably represents. Nothing would give me personally greater satisfaction than to find that in the time between now and the meeting of the Select Committee this issue has ceased to be a live one, because the principal interests concerned have agreed to accept the shorter hours. At present, as I said just now, there is only one industry which stands in the way, the cotton textile industry, and I am certain that, if the leaders of that industry would fall in line with the proposals embodied in this Bill, there would be little opposition from any other quarter. It is an industry on which re-organisation or, to use the more modern term, rationalisation has been long urged from various parts of this House and by important sections of public opinion outside it, and in which the need of increased efficiency all round is paramount. I venture to express the earnest hope that in the months that remain before the Select Committee meets, it may find itself able to introduce voluntarily a system which, after the initial adjustments have been made, will, I am certain, conduce to the benefit of all concerned, and will give new hope to its many supporters and friends. I realise very fully, and, as the House knows, I can claim some special knowledge of the industry, the difficulties against which it has to contend, especially in its most important centre, Bombay, in effecting a change of this character owing to the absence of leaders who can speak with any responsibility on behalf of labour. But I cannot believe that the ability and energy which built up that great industry are still not present today in such ample measure that they will enable it to make the concerted effort necessary to overcome those difficulties.

Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Motion moved :

"That the Bill to consolidate and amend the law regulating labour in factories be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury, Mr. S. C. Mitra, Mr. A. Hoon, Mr. H. P. Mody, Diwan Bahadur Harbilas Sarda, Mr. Amar Nath Dutt, Mr. S. C. Sen, Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi, Mr. G. Morgan, Khan Sahib Shaikh Fazal Haq Piracha, Mr. N. M. Joshi, Mr. S. G. Grantham, Mr. A. G. Clow, Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah and the Mover, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi (Madras ceded District and Chittoor : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I want to suggest a small amendment. I propose that, in place of my name, the name of Mr. K. P. Thampan be substituted.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I have no objection.

Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury (Assam : Muhammadan) : Sir, I rise to support this motion. It is very satisfactory to notice that labour legislation has become a regular feature of the Assembly Session. During the last 12 months we have passed the Tea Districts Emigration Bill, Pledging of Child Labour Bill, Payment of Wages Bill, Land Acquisition Bill and the Workmen's Compensation Bill. Now, there is another very comprehensive measure to amend and consolidate the labour legislation in India. This measure, Sir, marks an important land mark in the history of labour legislation in India. I do not know if the House realises that behind this steady flow of labour legislation from the Department of Industries and Labour, there lies the unremitting and unobtrusive work of my friend, Mr. Clow, and I want to take this opportunity of paying him my tribute of appreciation and admiration for the work which he has been doing for the amelioration of the conditions of labour in India.

Now, Sir, I should like first of all to deal with the scope of the Bill. This Bill deals with factories, and the factory is defined as a premise in which manufacturing process is carried on with the help of not less than 20 persons. But I should like to see this definition extended in the direction of reducing the numerical limit. I may remind the House that, as far back as 1877, when the first draft of the Factories Act was made, it included a wider definition of a factory. There a factory was defined as an establishment in which certain manufacturing processes were carried on quite irrespective of the number of persons employed, and now, Sir, more than half a century later, the Government of India seem to be content with a definition which limits the factory to an establishment employing not less than 20 persons. The need for the revision of the Factories Act is very urgent. In the evidence that has been adduced before the Royal Commission on Labour, witnesses have pointed out that the conditions in unregulated factories are generally worse than in the factories which come under the operation of the Factories Act. In these factories, the buildings are usually insanitary, and in the buildings themselves ventilation is very insufficient. Many of these factories work for unlimited hours, they employ children of tender age and working conditions are prejudicial to health and safety of the workers. It is, therefore, necessary, Sir, that as large a number of factories as possible should be brought under the operation of the Factories Act. Sir, as a particularly flagrant instance of unregulated factories, I may cite the instance of bidi factories working in Madras. The conditions there are revolting. In view of these conditions in the bidi factories in Madras, the Madras Youth League started an inquiry into the conditions of labour in these factories, and the report of their inquiry has been incorporated in the evidence volume of the Report of the Royal Commission on Labour. I should like to read a short extract from that Report to show the conditions prevailing in the bidi factories in Madras. This is what it says :

"In short, the condition of the boys in these factories is nothing short of slavery of the worst type. In the course of our surprise visits, not infrequently did we meet with the horrid of boys with their feet chained to logs of wood. On inquiries we found that this practice was quite common and was intended to keep the boys at work and not skulk away earlier than the master was inclined to let them go. And in some of the factories we actually saw the boys being subjected to corporal punishments of the most severe type, even for such ordinary acts of negligence as late coming or absence from work for a day or two. In one factory in Triplicane, which we happened to visit quite often owing to the proximity to the office of our League, with tears in our eyes, times out of number we stood aghast and wondered within ourselves whether nothing could be done to save these boys from the clutches of that inhuman and brutal task masteo. In the factory we are referring to, the manager just in the hottest part of the day takes up a cane and goes on indiscriminately thrashing every boy in the factory. For what fault of the boys ? For no fault. Simply because the manager of the factory apprehends that the boys may be inclined to feel drowsy and therefore his work is likely to suffer if they are not whipped up to activity with the help of the cane. This is a daily occurrence. We ask whether a similar treatment of children of school going age can be found in any civilized country ? What has the Government been doing ? What is the Labour Department for ? Is it not the duty of the Government to save these children from the perdition in which they are now placed ?".

I want, Sir, that factories, where conditions like these prevail, should be brought under the operation of the Factories Act, quite irrespective of the number employed.

[Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury.]

out on the second reading. Employers like Sir Sorabji Mehta and the Government of Madras favour an all-India legislation for compulsory maternity benefit, and I think provision should be made for that either by an amendment of the Factories' Act or by another separate all-India legislation. These are some of the points that I wanted to raise at present. As the Bill is going to be referred to a Select Committee, I reserve a more detailed criticism for that occasion.

Mr. G. Morgan (Bengal : European) : I must congratulate the Honourable Member in charge on the clear way in which he has placed the provisions of this Bill, before the House. At the outset I would say that I welcome this Bill as there is no doubt the time has come for a revision of labour conditions. I need not go back to the days when the last labour legislation was passed ; the world has changed so considerably since 1929, economic conditions have changed so enormously that the employers have at last come to the conclusion that labour is human and that labour cannot be utilised merely as a machine and wages paid simply on the number of people who come forward for employment, and the lowest wage possible given. That, I think, has entirely changed at the present day.

My Honourable friend, who has just spoken, has drawn attention to the position in the United States of America. There it is rather different. There, there is the idea of partnership between the employers in the industry and the Government in the first instance. The industry itself has to put up what it thinks it can do in the way of wages, labour, and so on ; the Government criticise their scheme and, if they are satisfied, they accept it. If not satisfied, the Government put up proposals of their own and they both come to an arrangement. However, it is impossible to work on those lines in India at the present moment, but, at the same time everything is tending to a reduction of the hours of labour, and a very important chapter in this Bill, Chapter IV, deals with that subject. My Honourable friend, the Deputy President, mentioned the Washington Convention. Now, the difficulty, with regard to the Washington Convention and other conventions of that description put forward by the International Labour Bureau at Geneva, is to get all countries to agree to them. Unless all countries work more or less on a comparative basis, it is very difficult for one country or two countries or three countries to say "We will work so many hours" when the other countries say : "We will work as long as we like". We cannot complain, if their costs are so low, that they compete with the products of our industries which are working on a lower scale of hours. At the same time I feel so strongly about the hours of labour, it is to be hoped that the other countries will adopt the attitude which many countries have adopted, that labour cannot work the hours that it has been working in the past.

Mr. B. Das : Which countries, do you mean, China or Japan or European countries ?

Mr. G. Morgan : At the present moment, Japan has not ratified the Washington Convention and we are up against various difficulties with that country at the present moment. I am not quite sure whether I caught the remarks of my Honourable friend, the Deputy President, correctly, just now about machinery. I understood him to say something about the regulation of machinery. If that is so, it is a point which will probably be brought forward in the Select Committee. I do not want to stress it at the moment, but under present conditions it is very evident that some steps may have to be taken in that direction. The Honourable Member in charge made a very pointed remark when he said that without an efficient and contented labour force, employers could not expect their industry to flourish, and I should like to endorse that with all the emphasis at my command. This Act provides for the safety, regulation of hours, and so on, which will go a long way to build up an efficient and contented labour force. There is no doubt that 10 to 11 hours a day of work for labour is too long and, if it were possible to come to an unanimous agreement among employers of labour throughout the world for shorter hours of work, it would be very welcome, but I must emphasize the fact that it cannot be done only in isolated cases, unless we are prepared to run the risk of our industries being so competed against that they cannot continue to work. I would like to endorse the remarks which fell from the Honourable Member in charge and express the hope that the cotton textile industry will really do their best to ameliorate the conditions of labour in that industry. The days are gone when labour was treated purely as a machine. Labour must be treated as human and employers must do their utmost to give labour a fair wage in return for its work, which must be regulated in accordance with prices and living expenses. I do not want to go into details which will be thrashed out in the Select Committee. There is no doubt that Chapters IV and V are a great advance in the legislation for labour in India and the provisions of Chapter III do the utmost to safeguard the health and safety of the workers in factories. With these remarks, I support the motion for Select Committee.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh (Muzaffarpur cum Champaran : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I join my friend, Mr. Morgan, in congratulating the Honourable Member in charge for having ushered in this important piece of legislation which is designed to secure humanitarian conditions for the labour population working in factories. I also associate myself with the remarks which fell from the Honourable the Deputy President when he coupled the name of Mr. Clow in connection with the labour legislation which has emanated so many times from the Department of Industries and Labour. My Honourable friend, the Deputy President, has subjected the provisions of this Bill to an exhaustive criticism, and he is quite competent to do so having made a special study of the subject. I do not want to cover the ground which has been traversed by him, but I recognise that this piece of legislation is an advance upon the present state of things so far as the labour conditions in this country are concerned.

This Bill provides among other things for the medical inspection of the workers, and the proper ventilation of the premises where the workers are employed. Clause 18 refers to the provision of cooling apparatus, and clause 19 seeks to prevent overcrowding of workers in a labour factory. Clause 21 refers to the provision of adequate water supply, and clause 25 refers to fencing of machinery, and so on. Clause 29 gives power to the Local Government to prohibit a child from work-

[Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury.]

There is another direction, Sir, in which I should like that the operation of the Act should be extended. Mr. Adams, the Chief Inspector of Factories in Bengal, in his memorandum before the Royal Commission on Labour, suggested that the workers in docks, jetties, and railway sidings should also be included under the Factory Act. His argument was that their work involved great hazards, and there was no reason why these workers should not get the benefits of the protection which is given to workers in factories. I hope, Sir, the Select Committee will give due consideration to these suggestions. So much, Sir, about the scope of the Bill.

Now, the most important change that has been made in the Bill is with regard to the hours of work. At present the legal hour is 60. In the Bill, it is proposed to reduce the hours to 54. I may remind Honourable Members that when the Washington Conference adopted 48 hours for workers for all industrial countries, 60 hours limit was fixed for India having regard to the special condition that is supposed to exist in this country. Now, Sir, many industrial countries have adopted the convention of 48 hours a week. This recommendation of the Royal Commission of 54 hours a week is not an unanimous recommendation. My friend, Mr. Joshi, and Mr. Chaman Lall and Mr. Cliff have supported 48 hours a week for India. Now, whatever justification there may have been for the recommendation of the Royal Commission of 54 hours a week, I think, as the Honourable Member in charge has pointed out, circumstances have changed since the Commission made its recommendation. A normal industrial condition was the basis of the recommendation of the Royal Commission, and that normal condition has been disturbed very seriously by the world wide depression. It has aggravated the problem of unemployment, and also the question of reducing the hours of work has become a burning question with the workers all the world over. This question is now being examined not merely in its social aspect, to afford more leisure to workers, but it is being seriously considered in its economic aspect as a means of relieving unemployment. Considering the gravity of the situation, the International Labour Conference at Geneva summoned a Tripartite preparatory Conference in the early part of this year to deal with this question. I think in that Conference all the States except India were represented, and there they passed a resolution recommending 40 hours a week as a means of relieving unemployment. I am not going to discuss the social consequences of unemployment or its pernicious effects. But I think it will be generally recognised that every effort should be made to afford opportunities of employment to as large a number of workers as possible. In every country very serious efforts are being made to collect statistics about unemployment and to deal with this problem. In our country the unemployment is chronic; is on a titanic scale, and it baffles statisticians, and it is necessary that the problem of reducing hours of work should be viewed, not merely as a temporary expedient, but as a permanent measure. While the whole world is moving towards a 40 hours a week, I think the Government should give serious consideration to our suggestion of at least making 48 hours a week for India. Here I want to anticipate one argument which is usually employed by the employers with regard to the reduction of the hours of work. It is always urged that the reduction of hours of work should be accompanied by a reduction in wages also. The Labour Commission, which recommended a reduction in the hours of work, did not recommend a simultaneous reduction, in wages also. Reduction of wages means a reduction in the purchasing power of the worker; it means a reduction in his standard of life; and surely, this is not the object with which the Factories' Act is being amended. The Geneva Conference, which dealt with this problem, have specifically recommended that in any measure, that might be adopted for giving effect to 40 hours a week, the standard of life of workers must be maintained.

Mr. B. Das (Orissa Division: Non-Muhammadan): May I just enquire from my Honourable friend whether he does not wish to accept a reduction in wages of workers in view of the low level of prices prevailing in the country?

Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury: Just to show how higher wages are compatible with reduced working hours, I may draw the attention of my Honourable friend, Mr. Das, to what is happening in America today. They have passed the Industrial Recoveries Act, and General Johnson has been appointed the Administrator of that Act. He has called upon all industries to furnish codes for increasing wages and reducing the hours of work. The first code that has been produced under that Act is the Cotton Textile Code, and, under that code, the wages have been increased by 30 per cent., and the hours of work have been reduced by 25 per cent. Again, in the case of the steel industry, they have fixed working hours at 40 hours a week. When it was suggested to General Johnson that he should adopt 48 hours a week, he refused to consider that proposition and said it was too long. In view of all these facts, it sounds like an anachronism to suggest 43 hours a week for India, but, our conditions being what they are, we should be grateful if even this modest suggestion of ours is adopted.

Coming next to the question of health and safety, it is satisfactory to find that the Government have invested the Factory Inspector with power to adopt measures for mitigating excessive temperature in factories. It is also satisfactory that they have given power to the Local Government to demand a certificate of stability when new buildings are constructed or any structural alteration is made. But I have not been able to understand why the Government have declined to give the Local Government power to issue welfare orders. The Royal Commission was very much impressed with the usefulness and efficacy of these orders from their experience in England and they recommended that the Local Government should be given power to issue welfare orders in matters pertaining to the welfare of the workers. The reason given in the statement of Objects and Reasons is unconvincing. With regard to health and safety, there is another amendment that I should like to suggest in the Factories' Act, which has not been made—I am referring to the question of compulsory provision for maternity benefit. In the Bombay Presidency, the maternity Act is in force.

Mr. A. G. Clow: (Government of India: Nominated Official): And elsewhere.

Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury: In the Central Provinces, I understand, the one non-official Member introduced a Bill, but I do not know if it was passed there. In the Bihar and Orissa Council a non-official Resolution was passed by that Council to the effect that compulsory maternity benefit should be introduced. In this House also, my Honourable friend, Mr. Joshi, introduced a Bill which was unfortunately thrown ing in a specified class of factories. This is also a very important provision in this Bill, and is calculated to secure the health and the well-being of young children who are made to work in the factories at a very early age. With regard to clauses 35 and 37, I feel that the hours of work is a little longer. I do not know whether it would be possible in the Select Committee to go into this matter very carefully, and to see whether more relief to the labourers could be given in this direction. I am speaking, of course, off-hand without studying the labour conditions in the legislation of other countries. But this is a matter which should be threshed out in the Select Committee.

Now, clause 47 prescribes that extra pay should be given to workers for working over-time or for working on Sundays which are declared as holidays. I am sorry that the cotton textile industry in this country has not seen it fit to introduce wholesome labour conditions in their factories. The warning which has been uttered by my Honourable friend, Sir Frank Noyce, will, I hope, have the desired result, and labour conditions in this industry will generally improve to an extent which will secure adequate humanitarian conditions to the labour population working in factories. This Bill is based on the recommendations of the Royal Commission on Labour. I regret that my friend, Mr. Joshi, is not here as he would have spoken with some authority on the subject. But I find that, on the whole, without committing myself to all the provisions at the present stage, I am prepared to let this Bill go to the Select Committee.

An Honourable Member : If you let this Bill go to the Select Committee, you are accepting the principle of it.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Yes, I accept wholeheartedly the principle of this Bill which aims at securing a humanitarian improvement in the conditions of the labour population of this country. I find from the preamble of this Bill that it aims to consolidate and amend the law regulating labour factories ; and the provisions which I have read out are designed to secure improved conditions for the labourers who are working in the factories at the present moment. I, therefore, wholeheartedly support the principle of the Bill. I hope that whatever deficiencies there might be in some of the clauses or whatever other improvements may be deemed to be necessary will be carefully looked into by the Select Committee, and, when the Bill comes out from the Select Committee, I hope, it will be an acceptable piece of legislation in the interests of the labour population of this country.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad (United Provinces Southern Divisions : Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I am neither a capitalist nor do I represent labour. I represent the poor tax-payer and consumer. Therefore, I will take a dispassionate view of the whole situation. Since I came to the Assembly, we have been bombarded with all kinds of labour legislation, legislation for restricting the freedom and liberty of the people, legislation for increasing the taxation and the cost of living of the poor consumers. I have not seen a single Member of the Treasury Benches producing any legislation by means of which the people might become more prosperous, by means of which the nation-building departments might be strengthened and also by means of which the economic condition of the people might be improved. Sir, much has been said and good many Members have posed themselves as the champions of labour. But when they began to define their attitude, they simply concentrated their attention on labour engaged factories and Government Service. But a very large number of labourers in India are really the agricultural labourers and I would like to ask my Honourable friend on the other side of the House what have they done to improve the condition of the agricultural labourers. The number of the labourers in factories is very small not even one in ten thousand as compared to the number of labourers working on the agricultural fields. Now, those people are not getting even one meal a day. You are looking after the health of factory workers so that these persons may not suffer from diseases, but what have you done for the agricultural labourers who are starving in millions ? Whenever any question with regard to the agricultural labourers is brought on the floor of the House, the Members on the Treasury Benches remain silent. I would like to say one thing and I don't mean to make any reference to Mr. Clow, for whom I have great respect, not only because he represents my province, but also because he is a brother mathematician and we were contemporaries in Cambridge. I emphasise the fact that the recommendations of Commissions, must be examined on behalf of Government by persons who have neither been members, nor the Secretaries of Commissions. They must be examined by disinterested men. Commissions sometimes take one sided view and outsiders can interpret in the two perspective. As an illustration, I would like to give in example a case given by my friend, Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury, about the employment of child labour. But, before I give that illustration, I would like to narrate a story. A person dreamt something and said that half of his dream was correct and half was incorrect. People asked him what his dream was. He said : " One man gave me a slap and also a rupee. But, when I got up, I had the mark of the slap, but the rupee was missing." The same is the case with this question of child labour. Commissions and supporters of labour always emphasise, following the example of Europe, that children should not be employed in labour, but they forget one important thing. In Europe they have compulsory education. Boys are expected to visit ordinary schools and industrial schools, and they are not expected to work in factories. The case is different in India. We have no provision for compulsory education. Places are provided in school for about 7 per cent. of the children, the remaining children remain at home or waste time in unhealthy Societies. So, if you do not employ them in factories, their morals will be spoilt. If you provide schools for them, then I will certainly endorse all these recommendations about child labour. But you provide no occupation for them, no schools, no healthy recreation ; yet, at the same time, you come forward and say that they should not even take some work. Then you are not showing any kindness to them. You will be spoiling our children and they will not be good and industrious labourers afterwards. Sir, one very important point has been ignored by all the speakers who have discussed this question. In European countries, the work is done by means of machinery. In India, the work is done by means of hand. The work done by means of machinery in India is infinitesimal as compared to the work done by hand. If you increase the cost of labour, then the cost of production will be increased. Then we will not be able to compete with other countries which are producing in large quantities by means of factories. The next thing which also should be borne in mind is that the strain on a labourer working in factories is much greater than the strain on a man who is working in cottage industries by means of his hands.....

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I am sorry to interrupt the Honourable Member, but that is exactly the reason why we are considering this legislation.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : The strain is much less in the case of cottage industries than it is in the case of machinery. So it is not fair to apply the same rule about the hours of work in the case of cottage industries to the labourers in these factories.

I should like to draw the attention of the House to clause 5 of the Bill which perhaps the Select Committee might alter. The clause reads :

Power to declare small ventures to be factories.

"(1) Notwithstanding anything contained in clause (j) of section 2, the Local Government may, by notification in the local official Gazette, declare any premises whereon a manufacturing process is carried on, whether with or without the aid of power, and whereon, on any one day of the twelve months preceding the notification, ten or more workers were employed, to be a factory for all or any of the purposes of this Act.

Even if you employ ten persons even for one day in a year, then it becomes a factory and all the rules of this legislation will be applicable to it. This is a very hard provision, because we always employ ten persons even in a very small undertaking of domestic nature. Sir, I am not opposed to giving facilities to labour and I do not stand to oppose this measure. But for goodness sake, I do beseech that we should have certain principles on which we should proceed to legislate. In the legislation before us I see lack of principles. What is the principle underlying this Bill ? Do you want to unite all the labour in India and make them work against the capitalists so that there may be collision between the two, capitalists dragging on one side and labour dragging on the other ? Is this the situation that you visualise for this country ? You have planted on our soil a number of western institutions. This tug-of-war between capital and labour was unknown in India before the advent of the British institution. Formerly there were no troubles between the employer and the employee. Their interests were identical and they helped each other as if members of the same family. It is only after the European institutions were implanted in our land that these troubles arose. Hitherto the capitalist and labour were living in peace. The capitalist looked after the interest of labour and the labour worked loyally for the employer. It is only now that the tug-of-war has increased day by day between the employer and the employee. There should be certain principles that should guide us in the matter of this legislation. I submit that we should work on two principles. The first is this. If the labourers work harder and more profit is realised by the capitalists, then the profit should not be the sole property of the capitalists, but it should be distributed proportionately amongst all persons who have contributed to earn the profits. That is to say, the capitalists may have a certain proportion of the profit, say, equivalent to the bank rate of interest or slightly higher, and the balance should be given as bonus to all the persons who were engaged in that particular trade and who helped to secure that profit. That, I consider to be one way in which this problem could be solved. But no attempt has been made till now in any Legislature so that the excessive profits of the capitalists could be divided among the workmen and others who helped to earn this excessive profit. If this is done, the workers would willingly come forward and do the work cheerfully and thereby reduce the cost of production which will result in the increase of profits to the employers and labourers. That profit will be divided not only by the owners of factories, but also by the persons who help in producing the things. This is one method by which you can really solve the problem of capitalists and labour. Can my Honourable friend, the Labour Member, even think of imposing 48 or 54 hours on himself ? The second way in which we can solve the problem is by the method followed by Hitler in Germany. There he is trying to unite capital and labour. It is rather a curious thing that he does not believe in these international labour unions uniting together, nor in international capitalists uniting together. He wants all the people in Germany to unite together, capitalists and labour. I would not preach the example of Russia, because this example, to my mind, is bound to fail. It will never succeed in any part of the world. Some people believe that Bolshevism may find its way into this country. But I never believe that it will. I think Bolshevism will get itself drowned sooner or later in the Baltic Sea. I have got my own reasons for thinking so and, if necessary, I can substantiate what I say. These are the two methods by which we can solve the problem of capital and labour. The method which the Department of Labour is pursuing is not the right method. They are simply following the recommendations of a Commission which they appointed. The Commission has simply copied the drawbacks of capital and labour in European countries and attempted to plant all those drawbacks on our soil. It is a fundamental mistake that the Government, instead of going forward, should be going backward and we ought to be very careful about the methods we pursue in this country in the matter of the solution of the labour problem. We have already had enough of these labour legislations, and let us have some legislation to improve the economic prosperity of our country and let us have some legislation so that we may have our daily bread, which we are not having. Let us have some legislation so that agricultural labourers can get two meals a day which is denied to many. The Government are doing nothing for them. The Government are really raising the cost of production and making life more complicated than it is at present. My Honourable friend may say that if you do not have any legislation, then the workers will go on strike. I submit that this strike is itself a western institution which was unknown to us before the British came to this country. First you have produced a situation and then you want to find a solution.

Mr. B. Das : Sir, I wish to refer only to one passage in the speech of my Honourable friend, Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury. I congratulate him on his able defence of the cause of labour and I regret that my Honourable friend, Mr. Joshi, is not here to speak on the floor of this House in the cause of labour and put forward his views. My Honourable friend, the Deputy President, said that we in India should follow the American practice and reduce the working hours of the workers and, at the same time, increase their wages. Sir, I do not know if India today or ten years hence or twenty years hence—even if we have a socialist Government as advocated by Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru were set up, —I do not know if India would adopt the American method. I understand the

Mr. B. V. Jadhav: That will be out of place on this occasion.

Sir, I was saying that in these circumstances it is very difficult to ask the labourers to accept a lower scale of wages. If an appeal is to be made, it ought to be made to the capitalist to accept lower dividends and lower profits. My Honourable friend, Dr. Ziauddin, wants to have factories working on the co-operative principle. I do not think, Sir, that the climate of India is suitable for the co-operative principle. We have got in operation here the principle of co-operation of the wolf with the lamb. The wolf said to the lamb : " Come on, let us make a pact and we shall work together." The foolish lamb accepted the proposal and the next day the lamb was found inside the wolf. That is the sort of co-operation that is prevalent in India, and my friend, Dr. Ziauddin, has been extolling the present situation and he wants to bring about a millenium. He said that in ancient India there were no strikes, there were no quarrels among the employers and employees. But what was the condition of the employees ? They did not know their rights ; there was nobody to tell them what their rights were. They worked merely as slaves and they ultimately died as slaves. They could not raise a voice; they could not unite, because they were not allowed to unite. The condition of slaves in America and other parts of the world, where slavery was rampant, was also of the same sort. The slaves were not allowed to unite ; the slaves were not allowed to go on strike, and so the labourers in ancient India were not allowed to go on strike and were not allowed to unite.

I remember the days when in Bombay a mill labourer was obliged to work for sometimes 13 or 14 hours a day, and Sunday was not at that time prescribed as a compulsory holiday. The first Factory Commission introduced some benefits, but even now the legal hours of work are ten a day. You can imagine what the effect is when the labourer has to work in a warm atmosphere continuously for twelve or ten hours. I welcome the change that is now introduced in the Bill that the weekly number of hours of work should be reduced to 54 ; and I join with my Honourable friend, Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury, in urging that the hours should be reduced still further to 48, and not stop at 54. I should like to say something about the word " factory ". In clause 2, the definition of " factory " has been modified so as to cover those establishments which, although they employ more than 20 persons, do not employ that number simultaneously. What is the definition put in here ?

" ' Factory ' means any premises whereon a manufacturing process is carried on with the aid of power, and whereon twenty or more workers are working, or were working on any day of the preceding twelve months but does not include a mine subject to the operation of the Indian Mines Act, 1923."

I do not think that the word " simultaneously " has been introduced in that definition.

Mr. A. G. Clow: It has been omitted.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav: I see. The condition of the labourer is very bad indeed, and the Members of the Labour Commission drew the same conclusions. It is a matter for congratulation that Government are taking seriously to labour legislation and doing so much for ameliorating the condition of the poor labourers. Maternity benefits are now allowed by legislation in Bombay and the same thing has been done in some other Provinces. I wish that the Government of India would undertake legislation on this subject and make the benefits available for labourers all over the country. With these few words, I support the motion.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt (Burdwan Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I rise to support the principles of the Bill and am of opinion that it should go to Select Committee for consideration. Men of different widely divergent views have spoken about the merits and demerits of the Bill. The labour leader, the Honourable the Deputy President, who adorns the Chair at the present moment, has stated his views before the House. Unfortunately, though I was not present at the time of his speech, still I can well imagine what was uppermost in his mind, considering his activities about the welfare of the labour population. That great social reformer from the province of Bihar, my friend, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, has also stated his views. We know his activities have always conduced to the benefit of the people at large in this country and his zeal for social reform has kept him away from his home for months and years. He has been attempting of late to humanise the Penal Code by doing away with capital punishment : I do not know whether he will lay his hand on other obnoxious sections of the Penal Code and also have them eliminated from our Statute-book. Then we have heard that great engineer who now claims to be a socialist, Mr. B. Das. He has asked us to reduce the wages as we have reduced our own standards of living. If I may be permitted to say anything personal, without meaning any offence, I may say that example is better than precept. I have seen Mr. B. Das for the last ten years, and I can say that his wants have increased day by day and his luxuries also. I saw him with a dirty khaddar coat when he first came to the Assembly, but now I find him .....

Mr. B. Das : Only in party meetings.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : In party meetings and in the Assembly also in that blue khaddar. He has asked for lowering the wages of labour. That is not a socialist point of view. I beg to submit that we must raise the standard of living of labour. Then, we have heard that great economist, a great mathematician, and a Wrangler to boot, who has pleaded for the agricultural population. Indeed, here, I am at one with him. Although I am giving my full support to the principles of the Bill, I wish that the Bill had covered the case of agricultural labour also, because as every one knows they form at least 80 per cent. of the labour of India .....

Mr. B. V. Jadhav : How to approach them and deal with them ?

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Of course not by introducing legislation, which you intend to introduce, of doing away with the provisions of the Penal Code about miscarriage and by legalising them, but by giving them more food and better lodging and more wages.....

Mr. B. Das : Do not forget that Mr. Jadhav was Minister of Agriculture.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : I know that. My friend, Mr. Das, has reminded me that Mr. Jadhav was Minister of Agriculture ; but he has given us a vivid picture of the slum population of Bombay ; and he has asked us to give them better wages and other things.....

Mr. B. V. Jadhav : Many of my relations are there.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : In the slum population, I do not think ?

Mr. B. V. Jadhav : Yes ; I am not ashamed to own that.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : It must be a very democratic society where we find one gentleman getting Rs. 64,000 a year and another of the same family getting only Rs. 200 a year living among the slum population—one living in a palace and another living in a hovel : that must be a very strange society.

Sir, he has pleaded with all the earnestness at his command as a social reformer for the saving of life in maternity cases. I am entirely at one with him, and I hope that some means will be found to reduce the mortality in maternity cases, but I am not one of those who can agree with him—for I have not yet cut my cables from the orthodox community,—when my friend says that there should be no punishment for miscarriage.....

An Honourable Member : He wants to legalise it.

Mr. B. Das : Birth control.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : My friend believes probably in birth control having had experience of it from his short married life of a few years, but I am not one of those who can agree with him.

Then, Sir, it was said by the Honourable the Ex-Minister from Bombay that the climate of India was not suitable for co-operation, and that co-operation would be the co-operation of the wolf and the lamb. I could not exactly follow my friend.....

Mr. B. V. Jadhav : I said co-operative factories.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : What he means by co-operative factories, I do not know.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav : If my friend does not know that, I think he should sit down.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : I think my friend is perfectly right in asking me to sit down so that he may have a safe passage for his revolutionary social legislation. Sir, co-operation is the one thing needed in every matter,—co-operation between the rulers and the ruled, co-operation between the Minister and those ministered, co-operation between capital and labour, in fact co-operation is necessary in all matters in this world, but I do not know what my friend has in his mind, when he asked me to sit down. However, what I was submitting was that all these safeguards which are meant for labour in factories are equally necessary for agricultural population on which my friend, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, laid so much stress. Cleanliness, ventilation, artificial humidification, cooling, prevention of overcrowding, light, water and all these things are as much necessary for the agricultural labouring population as for the factory labourers. However, if we cannot get the whole loaf, we should be satisfied with at least quarter of it, and, therefore, I accord my wholehearted support to the motion that the Bill be referred to Select Committee.

Mr. A. G. Clow : Sir, I must acknowledge with gratitude the very kindly reception which has been given to this Bill. There is a saying among those who have been brought up as labourers that no one who has not worked with his hands can really enter into the skin of labour or feel as labour feels, and I suppose that is the position of every one here, except perhaps my friend, Mr. B. Das.

Mr. B. Das : I have worked with my own hands.

Mr. A. G. Clow : I excepted you ; But I think it is a very happy augury for the new India that is coming that a Bill of this kind has evoked so much interest and has received so much support in a House of this character.

You, Sir, raised the question of the small factories and I admit that that is a very pertinent, if also a very difficult, question. There is in clause 5 of the Bill a provision which enables Local Governments to bring certain small factories within its scope, but that would not suffice to deal with the factories which you, Sir, had in mind. I think the answer to the suggestion that they should be dealt with here is that, as the Labour Commission have suggested, it really requires a separate Act. It is an extraordinary difficult subject for many reasons ; whereas a millowner cannot remove his factory from one spot to another, nothing would be simpler than for the small bidi factory owner, if you were to detect him of improper practices, to move to some other place. Nothing is simpler also than to split up those factories. You cannot split up the ordinary factory using machinery without incurring a loss. After we have made some progress with the question now under discussion, it will be necessary to consider what is to be done about those factories.

You suggested also, Sir, that docks should come within the scope of this measure. That is a matter which has been considered, but the problems in docks are distinctly different, and it is proposed to tackle them separately. The Honourable the Leader of the House this morning said that he intended to introduce a Bill in the current Session to provide for safety in docks, and that will represent an important step on behalf of labourers of that kind.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : So another Bill is coming.

Mr. A. G. Clow : You suggested also that a 48-hour week is preferable, and other Honourable Members agreed with that view. I am not going to try and defend the hours suggested in the Bill as ideal ; but I suggest that, even from the point of view of labour, the attempt to introduce 48-hours just now might be extremely dangerous. There were those who expressed the opinion, it was perhaps more of a hope than an opinion, that a reduction in hours need not involve a reduction in wages. But I think even they would agree that if we went straight to a 48-hour week, it would mean a reduction in wages, and one that would appreciably affect the standard of living which our workers enjoy.

My friend, Dr. Ziauddin's speech I found a little difficult to follow. His charge, as far as I could understand him, was that whereas we do a great deal for labour, and particularly industrial labour, we do nothing for the improvement of the bulk of the peolpe in the country....

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I meant agricultural labourers.

Mr. A. G. Clow : Including agriculture. Well, Sir, Government must work in the sphere allotted to it. He seemed to traverse, if I heard socialist doctrines of Pandit Jawaharlal not in the way that my Honourable friend, Dr. Ziauddin, does. If I understand Pandit Jawaharlal properly, he wants the income of all people to be equal and that people should adopt the simplicity of rural life. But my Honourable friend, the Deputy President, wants less working hours and, at the same time, higher wages for the working classes. He does not understand why the Honourable Sir Frank Noyce referred to the fact that wages also should be rationalised if in no industry, in the Cotton Textile Industry. Sir, I have no defence for the millowners in this country, but, I submit, if the millowners today are suffering from certain diseases, one of the diseases happens to be the high wages that they pay to their workers.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav (Bombay Central Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Is that really so ?

Mr. B. Das : That is my view, but I should like to be corrected by my Honourable friend when he speaks. If we look at the index prices of food stuffs and other commodities that the working classes need today, we find that although a few months ago it was almost the same as the pre-war level, today it is something above 10 to 12 per cent. higher. But what are the wages in the factories ? There also the wages have gone very high. I do not say that the wages should go to the pre-war level. That is not my intention. At the same time, I say those high rates of wages came into existence owing to strikes in factories and also high level of prices after the Great War. The wages should be revised and the employers have the right to seek the co-operation of the representatives of labour in India. The labour in India can accept a rational basis of wages so that the industries do really prosper and so that the industries do not come so often to my Honourable friend, the Commerce Member, for protection. If industries clamour for more protection, one of the evils today is that the Indian workers are getting a scale of wages which is not commensurate with the standard of living of all the people in the country and which is not commensurate with the efficiency of the particular industries. Three years ago, we clamoured for retrenchment in all departments. The salaries of high officials of Government were also reduced, but I have not found that the representatives of labour, either in Bombay or Calcutta or Coimbatore or Madras, have accepted or have come forward themselves to say that the price level has gone down and they will accept a low scale of wages. I am not offering any criticism to throw cold water on my Honourable friend, Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury, or on the representatives of the workers, but I think the time has come when we have to face fairly and squarely the fact that the high wages that are prevalent in the factories and mills do contribute to the present clamour among the industrialists for protection or for not improving the condition of the working classes or for not reducing the prices of articles produced. My Honourable friend, Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury, knows that even the prices of cotton piece-goods are today almost at the same price or 10 or 15 per cent. higher than they were before the war or in the early period of the war. Prices have gone down and the working classes, I believe, are really "national". They do not live on foreign articles, so far as the price level has gone down as low as possible. If we in our daily life have accustomed ourselves to adopt a lower standard of living than we were accustomed to three or four years ago owing to the great economic depression that is affecting the world and India, I do appeal to the working classes that they will see their way to accept a lower rate of wages so that the industries can be self-supporting and, at the same time, those who control these industries can give them the benefits which my Honourable friend, Sir Frank Noyce, has provided for them in this Factories Bill. Sir, I join in congratulating the Honourable Member for Industries and Labour and also my Honourable friend, Mr. Clow, for bringing out this Factories Bill so expeditiously. I hope it will receive unanimous support from all sides, from the representatives of labour as well as the veteran fighters on behalf of the capitalists in this House.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav : Sir, I am sorry that the President of the Millowners' Association is not at this time present in the House. Had he been here, my friend, Mr. B. Das, would have been a thorough democrat. Now he realises the responsibility of assuming the role of a democrat and a plutocrat at the same time.

[At this stage, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) vacated the Chair which was then occupied by Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury).]

And his speech just now has convinced me of the truth of the allegation by Mr. Mody that Mr. B. Das is at heart a capitalist.

Mr. B. Das : I am only an engineer, I am not a capitalist.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav : All that Mr. Das urges is that the labourers in the factories, specially the weaving factories in Bombay and Ahmedabad I think, should accept a lower scale of wages. It is a very good suggestion indeed ! But has my Honourable friend, Mr. B. Das, ever laid his feet in the chawls occupied by the labourers ?

Mr. B. Das : I lived in Bombay for ten years.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav : In Malabar Hill ? Most of the capitalists are living in Malabar Hill as Mr. B. Das once did ; and from that high hill perhaps he looked at Parel and other localities inhabited by mill hands and is now drawing a very rosy picture of the splendid condition in which they are living and he considers that a reduction of 10 or 20 per cent. of the wages would not matter very much.

Mr. B. Das : I did not say that, I only appealed.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav : You may appeal, but the empty stomachs cannot accept that appeal. If you want to appeal, appeal to the capitalists who are rolling in Rolls-Royces and are living in expensive bungalows on Malabar Hill. These poor men do not get a decent room to live in ; the rents in Bombay are very excessive, and the labourers and their wives and children have to huddle themselves together so much so that the area they inhabit is the slum area. There is a very heavy mortality from tuberculosis, and the infant mortality and the mortality among the maternity cases is simply appalling.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : May I ask the Honourable Member one question ? Have the Government done anything to solve the housing problem in Bombay ? It is certainly not the business of millowners.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav : That is a different question altogether. I am neither an advocate of Government nor an accuser of Government.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Is it not the legitimate duty of Government to solve the housing problem and not of the capitalists ?

[Mr. G. S. Bajpai.]

opportunity to watch the reaction of the Muslim public generally to the Bill as it had emerged from the Select Committee and watch also the subsequent events. So far as the reaction of the Muslim community to the Bill is concerned, if Muslim newspapers are an index of it at all, it would appear that a considerable number are in favour of our proceeding with the Bill, some of them want changes made in the Bill, and two say that the Bill be not proceeded with at all. As regards events, we have had information that pilgrims, especially pilgrims from up country, continue to suffer at the hands of at least some of the more unscrupulous muallims. We had, for example, a report from Bombay that last February some pilgrims went from up country. They were met at the station in Bombay by a relation of theirs. There were rival factions of these muallims who were competing for the favour of these gentlemen, but inasmuch as the relation happened to be conversant with these muallims and their ways, he wanted to choose somebody who would really look after them. The disappointed muallims set upon him, belaboured him, and, I believe, he was actually hurt, though I do not know whether he went to a hospital. That being the position, we thought the best thing would be to send back the Bill to the Select Committee in order to enable them to take into account the suggestions for amendment that had been made, to reconsider the doubts which they had themselves felt as regards certain provisions in this Bill, and also to take account of the fact that there is really a necessity, at any rate, to some extent, to provide for the regulating of the activities of these persons. That is all I have to say at this stage. I hope the House will accept my motion.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : Motion moved :

"That the Bill to regulate the activities of persons in British India who offer to assist Muslim pilgrims to the Hedjaz, as reported by the Select Committee, be recommitted to the Select Committee."

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad (Patna and Chota Nagpur cum Orissa : Muhammadan) : I cannot understand why Government are so keen in the matter of muallims. We have suggested many things on the floor of this House for the benefit of pilgrims, but I always found that Government were not prepared to accept them. The Government, in spite of our opposition, want to thrust down upon us this kind of legislation. My Honourable friend has just now suggested that some newspapers have supported this Bill. I say that only those newspapers who get advertisement from Government have supported it, and I believe that those newspapers who have supported Government in this connection have not opposed any Government measure for a year or more.

Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan (Meerut Division : Muhammadan Rural) : What about Sir Abdur Rahim ?

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : He is not a newspaper. (Laughter.)

Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan : What about his opinion ?

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : That is his personal view. You would have seen in the papers, Sir, that a Hedjaz Day was observed throughout India, and so far as Bihar is concerned, I can say that about 75 meetings were held in different places. I have got the paper Muslim with me. In the Al-Jamiat as well the names of the places and the President who presided over the meetings have been published. They protested against the measure. The Al-Jamiat and other papers have written long articles. The Jamiat-ul-Ulema, which is the representative body of our religious men, passed long resolutions in Moradabad against this Bill.

It is true that the Haj Inquiry Committee has recommended such a measure, but as I said long ago, there were two kinds of reports. In spite of our demand, Government are not prepared to submit that report. We asked the Government to keep a copy of what is called the confidential report in the Library, but Government are not prepared to do so. On a previous occasion the Honourable Member, who was a member of the Haj Enquiry Committee, admitted in his speech that there were confidential recommendations written at the suggestion of Government.

[At this stage, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) resumed the Chair.]

Sayyid Murtuza Sahib Bahadur made that statement. He called it a recommendation, but my information is that this is a report. I do not know what has been written in that report about this measure. The other day, my Honourable friend, Mr. Bajpai, said that he was not aware of that report. It is not good on the part of my Honourable friend, being a part of the Government, to say that he was not aware of that report. If he is actually not aware, he has no right to speak any more on this subject. Further, I put a supplementary question the other day and my friend said : "If there is such a report, ..." I did not want those qualifying words. I wanted to know whether there was such a report or not. Then, my friend said that he was not prepared to add anything. That means that there is some confidential report, but for some reason, best known to them, they are not placing it in our hands. We want to know what has been written there about these muallims. Unless we see that report, we cannot accept this Bill at all.

You will find that people who will give any sort of advice without having a licence will be punished under this Bill. The Bill says :

"Whoever, not being a licensed pilgrim guide, for a consideration or in the hope of a reward, advises or assists or offers to advise or assist, any pilgrim other than a relative or friend, in any matter connected with the pilgrimage other than the performance of religious rites and ceremonies relating thereto, shall be punishable with imprisonment which may extend to three months or with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees or with both."

Government do not stop there. They want something more :

"Where it appears to any Court before which any person is being tried for an offence under section 6 that the accused has advised or assisted, or offered to advise or assist, any pilgrim who is not his relative or friend, and no consideration is proved the Court may presume that the accused acted in the hope of a reward."

This is very hard. If they do not succeed in proving that a man has taken a reward, then, instead of giving the benefit of doubt to the accused, they say that the Court will presume that the man has advised in anticipation of a reward.

A further objection is that the Jamiat-ul-Ulema and other people in the country fear that Government want to control not only the activities of these bogus muallims, but that they want to control the real muallims. They want some sort of control over the Hedjaz by licensing them, and this we cannot allow at the moment. All the Muhammadans in this House and outside are all unanimous on this point, that Government should not take the control of the Hedjaz.

Sir, when a muallim will not be agreeable to them, no licence will be issued to him. Government want some sort of control and influence over these people. There is not absolutely a single case of cheating against a muallim. Then, what is the foundation on which you say that this Bill is required ? All Muhammadans say that this Bill is a bad measure and it is an interference with religion.

My Honourable friend, Sir Brojendra Mitter, once said : " They want to have a Bill for those who do not want it ". I want to present the same sentence to my friend. They have now brought forward a Bill for those who do not want it and for those who do not require it. The Mussalmans do not want it. Those, who are habitual supporters of Government, will support the measure. Government should not rely on their support.

(Major Nawab Ahmad Nawaz Khan rose to interrupt.)

You will have your own time to speak and I know what you will say. Sir, if Government want to demolish a mosque, certainly a section will come forward and say that this is not an interference with religion, but they should not rely on such support.

Major Nawab Ahmad Nawaz Khan (Nominated Non-Official) : What is the opinion of your own Leader, Sir Abdur Rahim ?

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : I say there are many Mussalmans here who shave their beards. I myself keep small beard. There are others who drink and who do not say their prayers, but what can we do of them ? We are not responsible for all. Some one do intentionally, others do by mistake. My Leader, being a man like others, can commit errors. He is my Leader in politics, but not a religious head.

Now, Sir, India is advancing very rapidly. Rightly it was said the other day by my Honourable friend, the present Law Member, that the reformers wanted to swallow the Hindu religion. This is not the case with our Hindu friends only, but there are Muslim friends also who want to swallow the Muslim religion.

Sir, Government are not ready to circulate this Bill. There is much difference between circulation and publication. Had they circulated it and had they got opinions from Muhammadans that they supported this measure, I would have nothing to say. But the mere sending of this Bill to the Select Committee will not be of much use, because it will go to the same Select Committee which has suggested that this measure should not be proceeded with, I think Government hope this time to carry the day. As far as I remember there was a definite understanding that this measure would not come before the Assembly again. I hope, my Honourable friend will remember that when the proceedings of the Select Committee were written, the man who wrote those proceedings had to cut out all the provisions which you find now. I do not think my Honourable friend can dare to contradict me on that point. The whole thing was cut out and the only thing left was that there was no need to proceed with this Bill. Afterwards, my friend requested me and others to recall that, as we had spent so many hours on this Bill, it was better that they had all these things for the guidance of the Government. I myself told him that if Government were not proceeding with the Bill, there was no harm in having any thing, they liked. On this suggestion this note was added.

Now, Sir, we do not know whether Government are having this measure again on the recommendation of the Conference which met in Simla or for any other unknown reason. We have got great grievances against that Conference. Sir, a Conference was held in Simla in early August, 1933, to consider certain questions about the pilgrimage to the Hedjaz and for that Conference some nominees were invited by the Government. This Assembly has elected certain Members to advise Government about matters concerning the Haj pilgrimage. But Government, fearing that there were certain elements amongst the elected advisers who might oppose their desire did not consult that Committee at all. They ignored the Standing Committee for Haj Pilgrimage. They selected a new set of men who, they thought, would support them, and who were safe in their opinion.

Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan : May I know if that Conference discussed the Muallim's Bill ?

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : I do not know whether Government have brought this measure or their recommendations. If it is on their recommendation, then we have many things to say. Then, Sir, Government prepared a new list of several Members of the Assembly suiting their desire, and called them to attend the Conference. We do not know what matters they discussed with them. We do not know why the representative Members of this House were ignored on that occasion. The right thing for the Government to do was to take advice from the representative Members of this House and not from the nominees of their own. Government, Sir, were afraid that if they consulted the representative Members of this House, they might submit minutes of dissent. But let me say to Government : " Do not play with our religion any longer ; we cannot tolerate your interference with our religion for a moment. We have lost everything, but we are not prepared to allow you to play with our religion ". Sir, this measure is one of those which will certainly interfere with our religion and it will decrease the number of pilgrims who go to the Hedjaz. These muallims are the proper persons to give them assistance. We do not know anything about the Hedjaz.

My friend is not going to have a Haj Committee for the province of Bihar and Orissa. Sir, in the Haj Inquiry Committee it was decided that there should be a Haj Committee for the province of Bihar and Orissa also. Even in this House, when Chaudhri Zafarullah was sitting on the Government Benches, he himself said that there was no need for the representation of other provinces on the Haj Committee as they will have a Haj Committee in each province. I was ready to give them hundreds of M. A.'s and Barristers to act as the Secretary of the Haj Committee free of charge, but even that suggestion was not accepted by the Government.

Sir, I say that these muallims are the proper persons to give us necessary guidance. Without them, how a man can go to perform his Haj and have the necessary comforts ? The Hajis do not want any kind of control.

[Mr. A. G. Clow.]

him correctly, considerably into transferred subjects. I do not think that any one can say that within the sphere allotted to the Government of India, they have not tried to do their best to improve the material prosperity of the country in every direction. We have been dealing even in this short Session with such matters as the cotton textile industry, the tea industry, and I think the lac industry.

An Honourable Member : All for the benefit of capitalists.

Mr. A. G. Clow : For the benefit, I would say, of the country, and not merely of the capitalists.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Not for the benefit of the consumers.

Mr. A. G. Clow : He then went on to deal with a number of matters in the Bill. He suggested that we were doing a grave injury in excluding children from factories. But the Bill does not do so. The ages of children in factories remain exactly as they were in the old Act. All that we are seeking to do is to make a small reduction in working hours from 6 to 5 in any day. We sit in this House, at least those who sit continuously, for 4½ hours a day, and I suggest that that time, with another half an hour longer, is quite long enough for any child to work in a factory. I do not know what limit my friend, Dr. Ziauddin, would consider suitable.

He then went on to criticise clause 5 which gives the power to extend the Act to smaller factories, and he seemed to be under the impression that it was a new clause. It is an old clause existing in the present Act, and the only difference we are making is, instead of giving the Local Governments the choice between applying the whole of the Act or none to these small factories, we are proposing to give them the power to apply the Act in whole or in part. I do not think there is any fear of any large extension at present. This is a power used by Local Governments very sparingly, and any large extension would involve such demands on the inspecting staff as to make it impossible for them to agree to it. He then went on to suggest that we were proceeding entirely on the wrong lines, that we were in some way imitating the West, and I think I heard suggestions of profit sharing, co-operative factories, and the methods of Herr Hitler, I should have thought that all these emanated from the West. In fact, industrialism has come upon us from the West. In any case industrialism is here. We have got to face the problems arising from it. We are not slavishly imitating anything in the West. We are using its experience; we are modifying its methods. We are doing our best, in the light of the facts that we have here, and not of the facts in the West, to ensure that those who are doing an important work for India in carrying on its industries, do so under humane and reasonable conditions. (Cheers.)

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I have very little to add to what Mr. Clow has already said. I should like to say that I appreciate very heartily the tribute which has been paid to the part he has played in this legislation. I am almost always in a very fortunate position whenever I introduce labour legislation in this House, the main, almost only criticism against it is that it does not go far enough, and it was with a sigh of relief that I heard a discordant note from

Dr. Ziauddin. I think Mr. Clow has dealt with him very thoroughly and effectively. His main criticism was that the labour legislation we were introducing had no principle behind it and that we were blindly following the recommendations of the Labour Commission. Even if that is so, it does not seem to me a very serious charge. The Labour Commission was composed of experts, representatives of capital, representatives of labour, and people who had great experience in other countries in dealing with labour problems. Why should we be accused of doing something wrong if we accept the recommendations of that Commission? I think the House will have observed from the measures we have brought before it that we do not accept the recommendations of the Labour Commission blindly. They are examined by us very carefully; they are examined by Local Governments very carefully; and again they are examined very carefully by Select Committees of this House. Instead of that course, Dr. Ziauddin suggests that we should bring forward profit sharing legislation. He also suggests that we might adopt the methods followed in other countries of securing peace between capital and labour by knocking their heads together. I must confess that I personally, for the time being at any rate, would prefer to follow the safer course.

I would like to assure the House in conclusion that all the points of criticism that have been brought forward during the course of the very interesting discussion we have had this afternoon will be most carefully examined in the Select Committee, as they always are, and to thank the House for the support it has given to my motion. (Applause.)

4 P.M.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : The question is :

"That the Bill to consolidate and amend the law regulating labour in factories be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury, Mr. S. C. Mitra, Mr. A. Hoon, Mr. H. P. Mody, Diwan Bahadur Harbilas Sarda, Mr. Amar Nath Dutt, Mr. S. C. Sen, Mr. K. P. Thampan, Mr. G. Morgan, Khan Sahib Shaikh Fazal Haq Piracha, Mr. N. M. Joshi, Mr. S. G. Grantham, Mr. A. G. Clow, Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah and the Mover, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

The Motion was adopted.

THE HEDJAZ PILGRIMS (MUALLIMS) BILL.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai (Secretary, Department of Education, Health and Lands) : Sir, I beg to move :

"That the Bill to regulate the activities of persons in British India who offer to assist Muslim pilgrims to the Hedjaz, as reported by the Select Committee, be recommitted to the Select Committee."

Sir, I hope the good fortune which has attended the Honourable Member in charge of Industries and Labour in his motion for referring his Bill to a Select Committee will also attend my perfectly innocuous motion.

The facts of the matter may be briefly stated. The Select Committee considered this Bill last year and they made a report by a majority to the effect that the Bill be not proceeded with. That report was laid on the table of the House, I think, on the 6th February last. The Government considered the recommendation of the Select Committee and said that they would not come to any final conclusion in the matter until they had had

[Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad.]

Further, Sir, they say that the Haj Inquiry Committee has recommended this, but the evidence is not before me. I asked my Honourable friend in a question that the evidence of persons who appeared before the Haj Inquiry Committee should be supplied to us or should be kept in the Library, but he was not prepared to do that. I do not know why they are treating that evidence as confidential. If you have not got a printed copy, may I ask, if you are prepared to show us the typed copy ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I can tell my Honourable friend that if any typed statements are available, I shall be only too ready to place them before the Select Committee.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Why are you not giving them to all the Members.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : My Honourable friend is a member of the Select Committee and he will be welcome to make a transcript of what I place before the Select Committee and circulate it to Honourable Members.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Will you allow me to communicate it to other Honourable Members ? Will you not say that it is confidential as you said on previous occasions ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : It must be left to the Chairman of the Select Committee to decide as to what should be treated as confidential and what should not be.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : I am thankful to my Honourable friend that after all I have received an assurance from him for the first time that the evidence will see the light of the day. I hope my Honourable friend will not mind even placing the confidential report before us. May I ask, if the Honourable Member is prepared to place that report also before the Select Committee ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I shall deal with that point when I reply to my Honourable friend's reminiscences as well as imaginary references ?

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Still they maintain, Sir, that this is an imaginary thing. I have no hesitation to put a question in the next Session of the Assembly with a block of the title page of a report, called confidential report, if they will allow me to do so. What is the other alternative. Government are still saying after such clear proofs that it is an imaginary thing. We also have our secret department and that department may supply at least a title page.

I suggest that instead of recommitting this Bill to the Select Committee, the Government should not press this motion ; but that they should circulate the Bill for eliciting public opinion. If public opinion is obtained, Government would come to know the real feeling of the Muslim public with regard to this measure. If the Government do not care for Muslim feelings and if they want to thrust this Bill on the Muslims like the Ordinances, they can do so. If this Bill is circulated for public opinion, then the Government would come to know whether I represent the real Muslim feeling or whether the supporters of Government represent Muslim feeling. I, therefore, suggest that the Honourable Member should either move a motion for circulation of this Bill or he can do so by executive order. I do not mind which course he adopts. The Select Committee must have certain new information to consult before they decide one way or the other about the measure. On what basis will the Committee proceed if they have not got the public opinion ? The Select Committee have once expressed their opinion on this Bill and, unless you give them new material, what is the use of sending this Bill again to them ? I, therefore, submit that this Bill should be circulated for public opinion either by an executive order or by a motion of this House. (Applause.)

Shaikh Sadiq Hasan (East Central Punjab : Muhammadan) : Sir, my Honourable friend, Sir Frank Noyce, has been congratulated on the Labour Bill, but I am afraid I cannot congratulate my Honourable friend, Mr. Bajpai, for presenting this Bill. I would say that the considered opinion of the Ulemas is against this Bill. I am not speaking only about the Jamiat-ul-Ulema which the Government consider as a hostile body to them. When I consider the opinion of the Maulvis in different provinces, the Maulvis in the Punjab, the Maulvis in my own city of Amritsar, I find that they are all dead against this measure. They consider this Bill a great interference with religion. My Honourable friend, Mr. Bajpai, told us that there were some people who were supporters of this Bill. But, I am afraid, their number must be very small as compared to the number of people who attended public meetings which were held against this Bill. I submit, this Bill is nothing less than an interference with the religious principles of Islam. The Islamic religion is a proselytising religion and the one of the fundamental principles of Islam is to preach and inform the public as to what are their duties. In this Bill what do we find ? Clauses 6 and 7 say :

> "6. Whoever, not being a licensed pilgrim guide for a consideration or in the hope of a reward, advises or assists, or offers to advise or assist, any pilgrim other than a relative or friend, in any matter connected with the pilgrimage other than the performance of religious rites and ceremonies relating thereto, shall be punishable with imprisonment which may extend to three months, or with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees, or with both.
> Penalty for acting as pilgrim guide without a licence.
> 7. Where it appears to any Court before which any person is being tried for an offence under section 6 that the accused has advised or assisted, or offered to advise or assist, any pilgrim who is not his relative or friend, and no consideration is proved, the Court may presume that the accused acted in the hope of a reward."
> Presumption regarding motive.

What a perversity of ideas ! The presumption is against a person who is going to advise or assist a man in his pilgrimage. Supposing I advise or assist any pilgrim, the presumption is that I am going to take money from that man. I submit, Sir, we Mussalmans are certainly going to defy this law and I say it on the floor of this House that, if this measure is passed into law, it will be defied not only by extremists, but also by moderate people. You cannot prevent us from advising or assisting those people who are going for pilgrimage to Hedjaz. Do you mean to say that you are going to make a law that if any Mussalman advises another Mussalman and puts him in the right direction, the law should presume that that man is going to do so only for the sake of money and you are going to prevent a Mussalman from discharging his fundamental duty of assisting another Mussalman which is enjoined upon him by his religion. Sir, I find the name of my revered Leader, Sir Abdur Rahim, associated with this Bill. I do not say that he is a type movement among the enemies of Islam to disrupt Islam. Islam is too strong for all that ; it has stood many onslaughts and will stand many more onslaughts. Though we have not got any proofs of this, yet it is in the air that there is an international movement against Islam and that they are trying to minimise the international importance of the Muslims. The Haj has got a great unifying influence. The motive behind all this is to put a stop to that, as far as possible. I do not say my Honourable friend, Mr. Bajpai, is a party to all that. But why has he, in the face of the recommendation made by enlightened and religiously minded Muslims, not to proceed with this Bill, come back to this House with a motion to recommit it to the Select Committee ? What is the necessity for Government to come up with this motion ? We do not want your protection and we do not want your Bill. Save us from our friends. Mussalmans have been suffering at the hands of these muallims for centuries ; we are prepared to go on suffering if this is the sort of legislation that is to be offered to us. We are prepared to take the suffering. Where our religious duties and our religious performances are involved, we refuse to take your previous permission. We will do without it. I say, on the floor of this House, that no Mussalman who has a spark of religion in him will be a party to such a Bill or support it in any way. With these words, I oppose the Bill altogether.

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Saturday, the 16th September, 1933.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Saturday, 16th September, 1933.

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber at Eleven of the Clock, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

GRANT OF PENSION TO TELEPHONE OPERATORS.

966. Mr. S. G. Jog : (a) Is it a fact that before the 31st January, 1919, the posts of all telephone operators were pensionable like those of other employees of Government.

(b) Is it a fact that after these posts were declared non-pensionable, the operators were asked to state whether they accepted the condition of being non-pensionable ?

(c) Will Government please state whether memorials were received from time to time from the telephone operators for their case to be reconsidered, and to declare their posts pensionable ? If so, were they informed that the Telephone Department was on an experimental basis, and so the staff could not be confirmed as pensionable, and that their case was under consideration ?

(d) Is it a fact that the employees were eventually informed that the case could not be considered favourably on account of financial stringency ?

(e) Is it a fact that in reply to one of the questions in this House, Government stated that employees in service before 31st July, 1919, were pensionable ? If so, why was this date fixed against the 31st January, 1919 ?

(f) Is it a fact that the telephone operators are permanent employees of Government ?

(g) Is it a fact that telephones have now been extended to the whole of India ?

(h) Is it a fact that the Department is no longer on an experimental basis ? If so, why ?

(i) Are Government aware that telephones are being extended now even to the other countries of the world ?

(j) Is it a fact that Railway and Posts and Telegraphs Departments are running at a loss ?

(k) Is it a fact that only the telephone branch is running at a profit and its revenues are increasing every year ?

[Shaikh Sadiq Hasan.]

of man who will run after the Government and do what the Government ask him to do. But sometime even very wise people err and I do think that, in this case, Sir Abdur Rahim has erred,—I do not say intentionally, but unintentionally.

Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan : Do you mean to say that others have done so intentionally ?

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : No, about other man's intention nothing can be said.

Shaikh Sadiq Hasan : I say they have also erred unintentionally. The point is this that the feeling we Mussalmans have got in our minds is that the Government are going to spread this octapus limbs even in Hedjaz. They want to control the activities of the muallims. The Government want to extend the activities of their spying department in Hedjaz also. We were informed the other day by the Army Secretary that, after 90 bombs were thrown on the Frontier, only one man was injured and 15 mud houses were destroyed. This is the sort of work that the spying department does and the muallims also are to be utilised for such purposes. I would only suggest that, if this Bill is re-committed to the Select Committee, I hope that the members of the Select Committee will rise to the occasion and that they would consider their primary duty towards Islam and towards their fellow Muslims and that no sort of prestige will stand in their way. The question of prestige should be left to the Government. The Government, whatever may happen, whether right or wrong, always stick to their prestige, My Honourable friends on the Select Committee, most of whom are elected Members, should think what is in the interest of their fellow Muslims and they should record their opinion accordingly. It is rather difficult to say about my Honourable friend, Major Nawab Ahmad Nawaz Khan. He, being a nominated Member, must always support the point of view of the Government....

Major Nawab Ahmad Nawaz Khan : I supported and followed your Leader, Sir Abdur Rahim.

Shaikh Sadiq Hasan : Again what do we find in this Bill ? If a man advises another person about pilgrimage and if the latter does not even make a complaint, the man who advises him is going to be punished. Here, in this case, a magistrate having jurisdiction may just find with the help of the police what has been happening and he may catch hold of a man who has advised a pilgrim and punish him for having done so. In this way, I consider that this Bill is no better than the Ordinance Bill which was passed last year. In the Ordinance Act, there is a provision on the same line. According to the Ordinance Act, if the brother of a police sub-inspector wants eggs free and he goes to a man who sells eggs, and if he refuses, he just lodges a complaint that eggs were not sold to him and the result is that the man is punished. In the same way, any policeman who has got a grudge can ask his brother to go and report against a man that he was advising about the Haj and get the man imprisoned. I think it is a most reactionary type of Bill and the least we can expect from Muslim Members is to be sensible and not to do any such thing which may involve other Muslims in trouble and prevent them from advising and guiding their co-religionists in the matter of Haj.

Mr. Uppi Saheb Bahadur (West Coast and Nilgiris : Muhammadan) : Sir, after reading the note of the Select Committee on this Bill, we have to suspect the intentions of Government in this matter. The Select Committee, which consisted of very respectable Muslim Members of this House, in a majority recommended to Government after serious deliberation not to proceed with this Bill. Now, what is the hurry and urgency for Government to bring forward this Bill ? Why are they so anxious to provide their armoury with another weapon to prevent Mussalmans, who take it as a religious duty to advise brother Muslims who intend to perform the Haj, from doing so ? There is something up their sleeves. Let them tell us plainly why they want to go against the deliberate opinions of those pious and respectable Muslims like Sayyed Murtuza, Rajan Baksh, Hajee Wajihuddin, Nawab Ibrahim Ali and others in the Select Committee who recommended to them not to proceed with this Bill. I again want to know what is the urgency and hurry for proceeding with this Bill ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Sir, I do not wish to interrupt my Honourable friend, but I should like to point out that I am not making a motion that the Bill be taken into consideration or proceeded with. I am merely suggesting that the Bill should go back to the Select Committee.

Mr. Uppi Saheb Bahadur : The Select Committee recommended not to proceed with this Bill. As it stands now, it seems to be the thin end of the wedge with regard to this pilgrimage to Mecca, one of the five essentials of Islam. Now, the definition of the word " pilgrim guide " is given thus :

> " any person who, for a consideration or in the hope of a reward, advises or assists, or offers to advise or assist, any pilgrim in any matter connected with the pilgrimage, " etc.

For Muslims this pilgrimage is a religious right and duty and we want all sorts of advice, as to the ships, the charges and expenses and the accommodation, etc. ; and this advice we will only get from people who have performed the Haj and have some experience of the country and practice there. According to this Bill, however, no Muslim can ever advise other Muslims ; he cannot open his mouth on this matter unless he obtains a licence from the Government. Is it not the thin end of the wedge ? They are going to drive a wedge into this, one of the fundamental principles of Islam. Can any Mussalman approve of that ? Sir, under clause 6, if I go to Mecca and come back and advise my Muslim brethren as regards their stay and other things, the next day I may be prosecuted. I must get a licence previously from Government to help my brothers by such advice, with regard to my holy place, to my brother Muslims. Is that not curtailing my religious freedom ? Next year they may probably bring another Bill preventing us from performing the Haj itself without previous permission of the Government which is one of the five essentials of Islam. Can the Mussalmans be a party to this Bill ? I do not doubt for a moment that there is not one Mussalman in this House who will give even his silent support to this measure. We will rather go to the gallows than be a party to such Bill. Instead of being a party to any Act which will prevent us from going to Mecca and perform our religious duties, we will rather face your bullets than submit to it. Now, Sir, this Bill is not so innocuous as it appears to be ; there is something international in this. There is a general movement to discourage Haj, and I warn the Government not to be a party to that great international sacred

(b) Will Government be pleased to state the dates on which he proceeded to Mecca on different occasions ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state whether Mr. Ismail Ghuznavi was convicted on the two previous occasions before his going for Haj pilgrimage for the first time or after that ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to state what were the fresh facts in their possession for not allowing a Muslim, Mr. Ismail Ghuznavi, to proceed to Mecca for Haj pilgrimage ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : (a) Yes. But 18 was a mistake for eight.

(b) Government have no precise information as to the dates.

(c) The answer to this would depend on the exact date when Mr. Ismail Ghuznavi proceeded on Haj for the first time, as to which, as already pointed out, Government have no precise information.

(d) The Honourable Member is referred to the reply given to part (b) of Maulvi Sayyid Murtuza Saheb Bahadur's starred question No. 1166 on the 10th April, 1933.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Are Government sure that this eight is also not a mistake, just as 18 was a mistake ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : I understand, Sir, that eight is correct.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : My information is that it is not so. Very well, but will Government be pleased to give the dates on which he proceeded to Haj ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : I have already said, Sir, that Government have no precise information.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : When Government have no information on what date this gentleman proceeded to Haj, how do they say that he went to Haj eight times ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : I understand, Sir, that this information was given by Mr. Ismail Ghuznavi himself.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a copy of his letter in which he has stated that he has gone to Haj eight times ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : I believe, Sir, the information is correct.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : May I know, Sir, whether this information was given to the Honourable Member who is now answering these questions ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : The information was not given to me.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : May I know whether the information which was given orally to some other gentleman was written on any paper, and does the Honourable Member say that it was orally mentioned by Mr. Ismail Ghuznavi ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : The information, Sir, I understand, was given orally and was passed on to the Honourable Member who answered this question in April in writing.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : I want to know whether the information given by Mr. Ismail Ghuznavi to some other gentleman orally stating that he had proceeded eight times to Haj was recorded on paper ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : I understand it was, yes.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Government have said that, because he was convicted on two occasions, he was not allowed to go to Haj. May I know whether these convictions took place before he left for Haj for the first time ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : I have already answered that question, Sir.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : What was the reply ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : The reply was to part (c) of the question, that the answer to this would depend on the exact date when Mr. Ismail Ghuznavi proceeded on Haj for the first time, as to which, as already pointed out, Government have no precise information.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : May I know, Sir, when Government allowed him to go eight times to Haj after his conviction, what were the fresh grounds for not allowing him to go to Haj for the ninth time ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : My reply to that is given in part (d). The Honourable Member is referred to the reply given to part (b) of Maulvi Sayyid Murtuza Saheb Bahadur's starred question No. 1166 on the 10th April, 1933.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Do Government propose to consult the Ulemas on this question of not allowing Muslims to perform their Haj pilgrimage, this is a kind of interference with our religion ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : Sir, the position is, I think, that Government have a certain duty to perform in respect to their responsibilities to the State in a matter of this sort.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : I want to know whether Government would now allow Mr. Ismail Ghuznavi to perform Haj in the next season ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : I cannot give a guarantee about that, but if Mr. Ismail Ghuznavi makes an application for the passport, it will receive the fullest consideration of the Government.

RE-EMPLOYMENT OF RETRENCHED STAFF OF THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

972. Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether there are two kinds of retrenched servants of the Indian State Railways in general and the North Western Railway in particular—one retrenched during the last economy campaign and the other retrenched before that campaign ?

(b) Are both kinds of retrenched Railway servants kept on the waiting lists for re-employment when vacancies occur ? If not, why not ?

(c) Is it a fact that the Government of India have laid down, without making any distinction between these two classes of retrenched Railway servants, that the staff retrenched or to be retrenched would be re-instated ?

(d) Is it a fact that Government have issued orders that the said reinstatement should be made in the inverse order in which these two classes of servants were discharged ? If so, what were the reasons for it ?

TRANSFERS FROM AND TO NON-FAMILY AND UNHEALTHY STATIONS IN THE TRANS-FRONTIER IN THE PUNJAB AND NORTH-WEST FRONTIER POSTAL CIRCLE.

976. *Bhai Parma Nand : (a) Is it a fact that the Secretary, All-India (including Burma) Postal and Railway Mail Service Union, has brought to the notice of the Director General, Posts and Telegraphs, that transfers from and to non-family and unhealthy stations in the Trans-Frontier in the Punjab and North-West Frontier Circle are not being carried out in accordance with the Government orders ?

(b) If reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government please state what action has been taken against the present Superintendent, Post Office, Derajat Division, for not observing Government orders ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) A complaint was received from the Secretary of the Union regarding the non-observance of the Director General's orders on the subject.

(b) None. The orders referred to are not absolute but only lay down the procedure that should ordinarily be followed : the representation of the Union is however being considered with a view to the adoption of measures which may make exceptions from the general rule more infrequent.

EXPENDITURE INCURRED FOR CONVEYANCE OF MAILS BY THE SUB-POSTMASTER, STAFF COLLEGE, QUETTA.

977. *Bhai Parma Nand : (a) Is it a fact that the Sub-Postmaster, Staff College, incurred, in spite of repeated warnings, more expenditure for conveyance of mails or remittances to Quetta Head Post Office, than that incurred in two or three previous years taken together ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government please state what action has been taken by them in the matter ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) and (b). Government have no information. The matter is one with which the Head of the Circle, to whom a copy of the question is being sent, is competent to deal.

ALLEGATIONS AGAINST THE LATE ESTABLISHMENT CLERK, SIMLA HEAD POST OFFICE.

978. *Bhai Parma Nand : (a) With reference to the reply given to Question No. 433, in this House on February, 21, 1933, will Government please state if it is a fact that the Establishment Clerk, Simla Head Post Office, was found to have forged the signatures of the late Postmaster, Simla, on an order of appointment of a Muslim Runner who was engaged in excess of the sanctioned establishment and that he ante-dated the said order to give it the appearance of genuineness ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government please state the full facts of the case and the punishment, if any, meted out to the offending official ?

(c) Is it also a fact that the same official has since been transferred from Simla to Ludhiana Head Post Office as an Accountant ? Does not this position involve greater responsibility and trust ? If so, are Government prepared to consider the advisability of removing him from his present responsible post ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a), (b) and (c). Government have no information. The matter is one with which the Head of the Circle, to whom a copy of this question is being sent, is competent to deal.

PROCEDURE FOR RECRUITMENT OF ENGINEERING SUPERVISORS IN THE POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS DEPARTMENT.

979. *Bhai Parma Nand : (a) Will Government please state what is the procedure followed in recruiting Engineering Supervisors in the Indian Posts and Telegraphs Department, and since when was this procedure introduced ?

(b) Will Government please state whether the Departmental candidates for appointments as Engineering Supervisors, in view of their service in the Department, are accorded any preferential treatment over outsiders ?

(c) If the reply to part (b) be in the affirmative, will Government please state if any preference is also given to the Departmental candidates in assigning positions on the seniority list before appointing them as Engineering Supervisors ?

(d) If the reply to part (c) be in the affirmative, will Government please state if the concessions have been uniformly shown since the time the appointments have been thrown open to qualified departmental men ? If not, are Government prepared to consider the desirability of redressing the genuine grievances of the staff adversely affected ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) and (b). The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the regulations published in the Director General's General Circular No. 31, dated the 16th December, 1930, a copy of which has been placed in the Library of the House. The system of recruitment and training described therein came into force from the 1st January, 1929.

(c) So far two groups of candidates have been recruited under this system. No preferential treatment was accorded to the departmental candidates in the first batch, but in the second batch, telegraphists and other departmental candidates were given seniority over outsiders.

(d) The reply to the first part is in the negative. As regards the second part, Government do not consider that the candidates have any genuine grievance.

VACANCIES OF POSTMEN, ETC., IN THE SAHARANPUR AND DEHRA DUN HEAD POST OFFICES AND THEIR SUB-OFFICES.

980. *Bhai Parma Nand : Will Government please state (i) the number of vacancies, temporary and permanent separately, in (a) postmen's grade and (b) inferior service in Saharanpur and Dehra Dun Head Post Offices and Sub-Offices attached to them which occurred during 1931, 1932, 1933 and (ii) the number of those given to Hindus and other communities ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I regret that the information is not readily available.

DECLARATION OF HINDU COMMUNITY AS MINORITY COMMUNITY FOR RECRUITMENT IN THE PUNJAB AND NORTH-WEST FRONTIER POSTAL CIRCLE.

981. Bhai Parma Nand : (a) Will Government please state if they have laid down certain principles for recruitment in the Posts and Telegraphs Department and fixed a certain percentage for minority communities ?

(b) Will Government please state the criteria for determining minority communities and whether each Postal Division or a District, a Revenue Division, or a Circle is to be taken as a unit ?

(c) Will Government please name the community which has been declared as a minority community in the Punjab and North-West Frontier Circle in respect of different classes of officials such as clerks, postmen and inferior servants ?

(d) Will Government please state the number of (i) postmen including mail guards, (ii) inferior servants, and (iii) line staff in Engineering employed in the Punjab and North-West Frontier Circle on 31st March, 1933 ? If the number of Hindus is less than Muhammadans, are Government prepared to declare the Hindu community as minority community for the purpose of recruitment to these classes of officials ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) In the case of new recruitment Government have laid down that every third vacancy is to be reserved for minority communities in order to prevent the preponderance of any one class or community in Government service. This is a general rule applicable to all Departments under the Government of India and not only to the Posts and Telegraphs Department.

(b) The Honourable Member is referred to the reply to part (a) of his own starred question No. 671 in this House on the 7th March, 1933.

(c) The Honourable Member's attention is invited to part (d) of the reply given to Sardar Sant Singh's starred question No. 566 in this House on the 21st September, 1932.

(d) The latest figures in possession of Government which are up to the 31st December, 1932, are as follows :

(i) Postmen including Mail Guards	3,482
(ii) Inferior servants	4,185
(iii) Line Staff in Engineering	888

As regards the latter part, Government regret that they are unable to accept the Honourable Member's suggestion for reasons stated in the reply to part (a) of his own starred question No. 671 in this House on the 7th March, 1933.

POSTINGS OF POSTAL OFFICIALS IN THE PUNJAB CIRCLE TO THEIR HOME DISTRICTS.

982. Bhai Parma Nand : (a) Are Government aware that under the Punjab Government officers belonging to certain places are not posted for official duty in those places or districts ?

(b) If so, are Government prepared to adopt a similar policy in the Posts and Telegraphs Department in the matter of such postings, at least in the Punjab Circle ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Government have no information.

(b) Government do not see any reason to accept the Honourable Member's suggestion.

APPOINTMENT OF HINDU SUPERINTENDENTS IN THE PUNJAB POSTAL CIRCLE.

983. Bhai Parma Nand : Is it a fact that in the Punjab Posts and Telegraphs Circle there is an over-whelming majority of Muslim Superintendents ? If so, are Government prepared to consider the advisability of appointing a few Hindu Superintendents ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : As regards the first part of the question, the reply is in the negative, since though the number of Superintendents in the Punjab Circle belonging to the Muslim community is greater than that belonging to any other single community it is less than the number of such officers belonging to all other communities taken together.

As regards the second part of the question, the attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the reply given in this House to part (b) of his starred question No. 461 on the 22nd February, 1932.

ALLEGATIONS AGAINST KHAN SAHIB MALIK KARAM DIN, TELEGRAPH MASTER, GOVERNMENT TELEGRAPH OFFICE, LAHORE.

984. Bhai Parma Nand : (a) Are Government aware that Khan Sahib Malik Karam Din, Telegraph Master of the Lahore Government Telegraph Office, his son Malik Khurshed Ahmad, a clerk in the same office, and Mohammad Khurshed Ahmad, Telegraphist, in that office, made assaults in July, 1933 on certain members of the Hindu staff employed in that office ?

(b) Are Government aware that complaints by Hindu staff have been made to the higher authorities against the assaulters concerned ? If so, will Government please state what action, if any, has been taken against the assaulters ?

(c) Is it a fact that Khan Sahib Malik Karam Din was the cause of serious troubles at Peshawar Telegraph Office at the time when Mr. E. C. Moore was in charge of that office and also at Lyallpur when he himself was in charge ?

(d) Is it a fact that Khan Sahib Malik Karam Din is the same official who has already been given warnings by higher authorities for his undesirable communal activities ? If so, have Government considered the question of his removal from Government service for his continued undesirable activities ? If not, do they propose to do so now ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Government have no information. The matter is one with which the Head of the Circle, to whom a copy of the question is being sent, is competent to deal.

SURVEY OF THE KARACHI-BOMBAY PROPOSED BROAD GAUGE LINE.

985. Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if the Railway Board have completed the final survey of the Karachi-Bombay proposed broad gauge line, which they had undertaken to complete by July, 1933 ?

(l) Is it a fact that nearly all the employees of the Posts and Telegraphs Department, from the highest to the lowest, are pensionable except the telephone operators and the mechanics ?

(m) Is it a fact that the telephone operators are performing the same duty hours as, and on some occasions much harder work than, some other officials of the Department ?

(n) Will Government please state the reasons for declaring the operators as non-pensionable ? Are they aware that in the absence of any pension in their old age after retirement from service, they will lead a very miserable life so far as their financial resources are concerned ?

(o) Are Government prepared to consider the grant of pension to the operators in view of the increasing revenues of this branch ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Certain enquiries are being made and I shall place a reply on the table in due course.

RULES FOR SUING GOVERNMENT FOR BREACH OF TRUST IN RESPECT OF SERVICE CONDITIONS, ETC.

967. Mr. S. G. Jog : (a) Will Government state whether there are any rules under which a Government servant can sue them in a court of law, whilst remaining in service, for breach of trust in respect of service conditions or loss of prospects ? If so, will Government kindly lay a copy of those rules on the table ? If not, will Government kindly state the avenue of redress for a Government servant after he has exhausted all the appellate authorities in regard to a grievance ?

(b) Are Government prepared to make any rules on the subject ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) The answer to the first clause is in the negative. The second clause does not arise. As regards the third clause, Government are not prepared to give an opinion on what is in effect a legal question.

(b) No.

HOLIDAY HOMES MAINTAINED BY THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY AT HILL STATIONS.

968. Mr. S. G. Jog : (a) How many Holiday Homes do the North Western Railway maintain on hill stations ?

(b) What are the conditions for the lodgers, and for how many days are they allowed to stay there, and at what rent ?

(c) What do Government spend on the maintenance of these Homes ?

(d) Is it a fact that there is one such Home in Simla ?

(e) Will Government please supply the particulars referred to in the two preceding parts in respect of the Simla Home ?

(f) Is it a fact that it is maintained out of the Fine Fund ?

(g) Is it a fact that the majority of the subordinate and menial staff who are responsible for the maintenance of the Home are not eligible for making use of the Home ?

(h) What is the pay limit of those who can stay in the Home ?

(i) Are Government aware of the impression that officials who stay there impose heavy fines on the subordinates in order to find sufficient funds for the maintenance of the Homes ?

(j) Is it a fact that there is a proposal to extend the Simla Holiday Home during next year ?

(k) What rent do Government pay at present and why do they intend extending it, and at what rent ?

(l) Does the extension depend upon the amount of the Fine Fund at Government's disposal ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am obtaining information from the Agent, North Western Railway, and will lay a reply on the table in due course.

RELEASE OF WORKERS OF THE JAMIAT-UL-ULEMA-I-HIND, DELHI.

969. Maulvi Sayyid Murtuza Saheb Bahadur : (a) Are Government aware that the Jamiat-ul-Ulema-i-Hind, Delhi, which had adopted civil disobedience as their politico-religious creed have given it up now and have drawn up a constructive programme ?

(b) Are Government prepared to release all the Ulemas and workers of the Jamiat, who are undergoing imprisonment ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) and (b). I have seen a report in the Press of the proceedings of a meeting of the Working Committee of the Jamiat-ul-Ulema-i-Hind held at Moradabad from the 19th to the 21st August. From this it would appear that the Working Committee have suspended the programme of civil disobedience, but there is nothing to indicate that they intend really to abandon it, or that there is sufficient reason for Government to take the action suggested in part (b) of the question.

REMOVAL OF MR. DEVIDAS GANDHI TO MULTAN JAIL IN A THIRD CLASS COMPARTMENT.

970. Maulvi Sayyid Murtuza Saheb Bahadur : (a) Is it a fact that Mr. Devidas Gandhi, an A class prisoner was, while being removed to the Multan Jail, put in a third class compartment ?

(b) Are A class prisoners invariably allowed only third class ?

(c) Is there no rule to guide the authorities on the subject ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) It is probable that Mr. Devidas Gandhi was accommodated in third class compartment as that would be in accordance with the rules applicable to prisoners in the Delhi Province. I have, however, made enquiries and will place the result on the table of the House in due course.

(b) and (c). There are rules which are made by the Provincial Governments and vary from province to province.

REFUSAL TO ALLOW MR. ISMAIL GHUZNAVI TO PROCEED TO MECCA FOR HAJ PILGRIMAGE.

971. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether they have stated that Mr. Ismail Ghuznavi has already proceeded to Mecca not less than 18 times ?

(b) If so, will Government be pleased to state whether they will start the construction work this year, as was promised to the Federation of Indian Chambers ?

(c) If the survey be not complete, what is the reason for the delay and how long are Government likely to take to come to a definite decision ?

(d) Are Government aware of the urgency of this Railway and the anxiety of the people of Sind and Bombay to see this railway opened for traffic soon ?

(e) What action do Government propose to take to bring into being this railway at an early date ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a), (b) and (c). Government are not aware of having given any undertaking or promise regarding the date of the completion of the survey or the starting of construction work, but the revised traffic survey which was in hand has been completed, and the report of the officer employed on it has been submitted to the Agent, North Western Railway. When it is received by the Railway Board, along with the considered views of the Railway Administration, the question of taking up the construction of the line will be carefully considered in all its bearings. I regret it is not possible to say at present how long it will take to come to a decision. The expenditure involved is about six crores of rupees and the matter is not, therefore, one that can or should be disposed of without very thorough examination.

(d) and (e). Government are aware that certain sections of public opinion are strongly in favour of the construction of this line and consider it an urgent necessity, but it appears that there is also a not inconsiderable body of opinion who consider that there are more important lines in that area which should have precedence. In any case, Government cannot undertake to start work on it until they are satisfied that it will be remunerative, with which object in view the recent survey was carried out.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I did not quite follow the answer of my Honourable friend with regard to the position which Government take as regards this railway. What is the view that Government hold with regard to this railway ? Are they in favour of its being constructed or not ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : It depends on the results of the traffic survey.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know who have been deputed for that survey ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : It was done by an officer of the North Western Railway. I am sorry I do not remember the exact name.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know if the report of that survey will be scrutinised by the Agent, and whether he will be the deciding authority ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : No, Sir. It will be scrutinised by the Agent and will be sent to the Railway Board with his comments.

DISCHARGE OF CERTAIN HINDU CLERKS FROM THE OFFICE OF THE CHIEF ACCOUNTS OFFICER, NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

986. Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact :

(i) that on the 15th August, 1932, on the withdrawal of certain temporary posts from the Office of the Chief Accounts Officer, North Western Railway, about 15 permanent Hindu clerks of that office, who had been appointed as a result of an all India competitive examination held in 1929, were discharged from service ;

(ii) that these permanent Hindu clerks were, as per rules, granted all leave due to them on the date of discharge, and, while still on leave, taken back in service about a month afterwards on the intervention of the Controller of Railway Accounts, on the return to their parent Department of about 20 commercial clerks of that Railway ;

(iii) that the specific work for which these 20 commercial clerks had been taken on to the administrative control of the Chief Accounts Officer, North Western Railway, had ceased from 1st August, 1932, and that the Chief Accounts Officer nevertheless continued to retain these men in his office against posts sanctioned for Accounts work ;

(iv) that the Chief Accounts Officer, North Western Railway, was fully aware, on the date he absorbed these 20 commercial clerks in the Accounts establishment of the Railway even after the work for which they had been loaned from the Commercial Department of the Railway had ceased to exist, of the reduction in his own establishment that he was to effect on 15th August, 1932 ?

(b) Will Government please state why the Chief Accounts Officer, North Western Railway, retained against Accounts posts, staff of much inferior qualifications recruited mainly for work at railway stations, and, brought under reduction staff who had been recruited specially for the Accounts Department through an all-India competitive examination, with service in the Accounts office extending to three years and who had been declared by a Chief Accounts Officer, North Western Railway, to be as a class, far superior to others ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state further whether these 15 clerks are, on re-appointment, being treated as temporary clerks and threatened with new scales of pay, etc., simply on the technical plea that they did not hold a lien on their posts during their leave ?

(d) Do Government propose to cancel their discharge on 15th August, 1932, or post-date to about 14th September, 1932, the retrenchment of the temporary posts that led to their discharge and restore them to the permanent status that they held before discharge on 15th August, 1932 ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) (i) Certain temporary and permanent posts of clerks were brought under reduction, with effect from the 15th August, 1932, and 11 permanent Hindu clerks recruited through competitive examination were discharged along with others, the discharges being made in accordance with the orders regulating retrenchment.

(a) (ii) The permanent Hindu clerks referred to above were granted the leave admissible under rules and were re-appointed during the currency of leave on the occurrence of vacancies in the following circumstances :

110 clerks selected from among the station staff at several stations and belonging to the Commercial Department were working under the control of the Chief Accounts Officer, North Western Railway, in connection with a scheme which aimed at relieving the station staff of the responsibility of preparing accounts returns. The scheme in its final form required the employment of no more than 33 clerks in the Accounts Office. Consequently, the excess of the staff taken over from the stations over the number required was returned to the Department to which they belonged. Subsequently, however, it was arranged to send back 20 more of the clerks originally taken over from the Commercial Department. This last incident provided an opportunity for re-appointing 20 of the clerks discharged from service from the Accounts Office.

(a) (iii) As explained above the work did not cease from the 1st August, 1932, and the second portion of the question does not arise.

(a) (iv) In view of my answer to clause (iii) above the question does not arise.

(b) In the reply to clause (a) (ii) I have already explained the reason for taking some of the Commercial Department clerks into the Accounts Department.

(c) and (d). The questions are under examination with reference to certain memorials received from the staff.

CONTRIBUTION TOWARDS THE BUILDING FUND OF THE PRINCE OF WALES SEAMEN'S INSTITUTE.

987. Mr. K. C. Neogy : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) whether a substantial amount of the Building Fund of the Prince of Wales Seamen's Institute was contributed by the Indian public ;

(b) whether that Institute has been receiving an annual grant from the Government of India ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : (a) Attention is invited to the final reply to parts (a) and (b) of Mr. B. Das's question No. 1058, which was laid on the table on the 7th November, 1932.

(b) Yes.

ADMISSION OF INDIAN OFFICERS AND CADETS IN THE PRINCE OF WALES SEAMEN'S INSTITUTE.

988. Mr. K. C. Neogy : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) if it is a fact that Indian officers and cadets, up to very recently, were not admitted to the Prince of Wales Seamen's Institute ;

(b) if it is a fact that the Prince of Wales Seamen's Institute is now prepared to admit only such Indian officers and cadets as are of " European habits of life " ;

(c) if it is a fact that no restriction is imposed by the Mayo Marine Club at Rangoon in regard to the admission of Indian officers and cadets as imposed by the Prince of Wales Seamen's Institute ;

(d) if the answer to parts (a), (b) and (c) be in the affirmative, the circumstances which have led the Prince of Wales Seamen's Institute to impose such restrictions on the admission of Indian officers and cadets as referred to above ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : (a) and (b). Yes.

(c) Government have no definite information on this point.

(d) The Prince of Wales Seamen's Institute caters for those who can adapt themselves to the ordinary social usages of a Club of this kind. Government have made enquiries into the matter and they see no reason to apprehend that in practice there will be any restrictions or disabilities on the use of the Institute by Indian officers and cadets.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Will the Government be pleased to enquire on the point referred to in clause (c) of the question ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : In regard to the Mayo Marine Club at Rangoon ? Certainly, if my Honourable friend is anxious to have it I shall get the information for him.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Will the Honourable Member see to it that no discriminatory treatment is meted out to Indians in this particular matter ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I think, Sir, I have said enough to satisfy my Honourable friend that we do not apprehend any discriminatory treatment will result in actual practice.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Are the Government aware that this question of the Mayo Marine Club at Rangoon came up before the Standing Finance Committee more than once, and that the Standing Finance Committee allowed certain expenditure to be incurred on the distinct understanding that Indian officers would be allowed into this Club without any restriction being imposed ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I am much obliged to the Honourable Member for the information.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Is there any authoritative definition anywhere of the expression " European habits of life " ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : No, Sir. I do not think there is, but if my Honourable friend would do me the honour next time he is in Delhi to come to a Club with me I will give him a practical illustration of its meaning.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Shall I be permitted with these clothes on ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : Yes, most certainly.

STATUS OF BERAR IN THE FEDERAL CONSTITUTION.

989 Mr. S. G. Jog : (a) Will Government please state whether the negotiations which were in progress between the Government of India and His Exalted Highness the Nizam as regards the exact method of bringing in Berar into the Federal Constitution have been concluded ?

(b) If so, will Government please make a statement on the general position as it stands now ?

(e) Is it a fact that the Agent of the North Western Railway has issued orders, disregarding the aforesaid Government orders, that the names of the men retrenched before the present economy campaign cannot be registered for re-employment ?

(f) Do Government know of such an order having been issued by the Agent, North Western Railway, under his No. 50-E/507, dated about 14th August, 1933, in the case of Mr. Ramdas T. Chugani, ex-Fireman and Shed Clerk, North Western Railway ?

(g) Do Government propose to point out to the Agent their policy on the point for due effect being given to it ? If not, why not ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Government are not aware of any general retrenchment that took place on Indian Railways otherwise than during the economy campaign of 1931 and 1932.

(b), (c) and (d). The instructions issued in connection with the retrenchment during 1931-32 were that employees discharged should be borne on a common waiting list for the whole Railway and be appointed in the inverse order of discharge, subject to communal adjustments, to any suitable vacancy that may occur on the Railways in preference to others. The reason was that the discharges were to be made in a definite order and it followed from these that re-appointments should be as in the reverse order.

(e) Government are not aware that the Agent has disregarded these orders but I am sending a copy of this question and the answer to him for guidance.

(f) No.

(g) Government consider that existing instructions are sufficiently clear and do not consider any further instructions necessary.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know, Sir, why this system of inverse order was adopted ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I have just explained it. I said the reason was that since the discharges were made in a definite order, it followed that re-appointments should be made in the reverse order.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Has the Honourable Member got any information with regard to clause (f) of this question ? One Ramdas was retrenched and then put on the waiting list, and he was again thrown out of the list for no reason ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I have no information on that point.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will the Honourable Member kindly send a copy of this question and its answer together with other supplementary questions and answers to the Agent, so that he might go into this matter ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I shall forward all these questions and answers to the Agent.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Thank you.

TRANSFER OF INSPECTORS AND POSTMASTERS IN THE PUNJAB AND NORTH-WEST FRONTIER POSTAL CIRCLE.

973. Bhai Parma Nand : Will Government please lay on the table of this House a statement showing particulars of the officials in the Inspectors' and Postmasters' cadres in the Punjab and North-West Frontier Circle, whose periodical transfers, although due, have been suspended owing to existing financial conditions, and of those who have been transferred without any such consideration, giving the reasons for this distinction ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Government have no information. I may, however, point out that there are no orders for the periodical transfer of Postmasters ; and that the orders suspending such transfers of Inspectors, referred to by the Honourable Member, are not absolute and may be departed from at the discretion of the Head of the Circle.

TRANSFERS IN THE INTEREST OF SERVICE IN THE POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS DEPARTMENT.

974. Bhai Parma Nand : (a) Will Government please state what is meant by " interest of the service " generally used in cases of transfers made in the Posts and Telegraphs Department ?

(b) Can an official be transferred from a higher scale of pay to a lower one in the interest of the service at a loss of pay to the official without any fault on his part ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The expression " interest of the service " when used in relation to a transfer is intended to distinguish it from a transfer ordered at an official's own request or in consequence of his misconduct.

(b) Government regret that they cannot give a general reply with reference to a hypothetical case, as each case has to be dealt with under the rules and orders that may be relevant to its circumstances, e. g., the Fundamental and Supplementary Rules or the Civil Service Regulations.

IRREGULAR ACTION OF THE LATE DEPUTY POSTMASTER, AMRITSAR.

975. Bhai Parma Nand : (a) Is it a fact that the late Deputy Postmaster, Amritsar, was allowed to leave his Headquarters for Lahore (his home) daily at 15-30 hours thereby leaving his legitimate duties to be performed either by the Assistant Postmaster or by a Supervisor ?

(b) Was this delegation of duties of the Deputy Postmaster to junior officers approved by the Postmaster General ?

(c) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, and to part (b) in the negative, will Government please state why this irregular practice and undue concession was allowed to the Deputy Postmaster by the Postmaster, Amritsar, to the detriment of service involving additional work for the subordinate staff ?

(d) Do Government propose to take due notice of this irregular action and undue favouritism on the part of the Postmaster ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) to (d). Government have no information. The matter is one with which the Head of the Circle, to whom a copy of the question is being sent, is competent to deal.

(c) Will Government please state whether, and if so, when and how an opportunity will be given to the representatives of Berar to discuss the terms of that negotiation before any final decision is taken ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : (a) No.

(b) The question does not arise.

(c) Government regret that they are not yet in a position to make a statement on the points raised.

Mr. S. G. Jog : Is it not a fact that in London there was a Committee appointed under the chairmanship of the Under Secretary of State for India very recently and they have considered the question ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : My Honourable friend must give me notice of that question.

INQUIRY UNDER CERTAIN PARAGRAPHS OF THE PROPOSALS IN THE WHITE PAPER.

990. Mr. S. G. Jog : (a) Will Government please make a statement as regards the result of any inquiry under paragraphs 45 and 61 of the proposals in the White Paper ?

(b) If the inquiry is not yet finished, will Government please state when it is likely to be completed ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : Paragraphs 45 and 61 of the White Paper Proposals do not suggest any enquiry. If the Honourable Member will indicate what enquiries he has in his mind, I shall be glad to see whether there is any information which Government could give him.

INDIANS IN THE INDIAN CIVIL SERVICE APPOINTED AS EXECUTIVE COUNCILLORS IN THE PROVINCES.

991. Mr. S. G. Jog : (a) Will Government please state how many Indians belonging to the Indian Civil Service have been appointed in each province, whether major or otherwise, as Executive Councillors, since the year 1920, i.e., the year of working of the Montford Reforms, till August, 1933 ?

(b) Will Government please state what is the proportion of Indians in the Indian Civil Service as compared with Europeans in each province ?

(c) Will Government please state what part the Local Governments and the Government of India and the Secretary of State take in the said appointments ?

(d) Will Government please state the authority who makes the final appointment ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) So far as I am aware no Indian member of the Indian Civil Service has been permanently appointed to a Governor's Executive Council, but three have been appointed in temporary vacancies, one of them after resigning from the Indian Civil Service.

(b) A statement is placed on the table. I am afraid, however, the Honourable Member will not be able to base any argument on these figures with reference to the point raised in (a) of his question, as the great majority of the Indian members have entered the service within the last 15 years, and clearly would not be considered for appointments of this nature.

(c) and (d). Members of a Governor's Executive Council are appointed by His Majesty under section 47 of the Government of India Act. Appointments to temporary vacancies are made by the Governor in Council under section 92 of the Act.

Statement showing the number and proportion of officers in the Indian Civil Service on 1st January, 1933.

Province.	Number.			Proportion.
	Total.	Europeans.	Indians.	Europeans.	Indians.

Bihar and Orissa	118	77	41	65	35
Central Provinces	102	61	41	60	40
Assam	44	33	11	75	25

* Including Burmans.

Mr. S. G. Jog : Is there any particular reason why permanent appointments have not been made during the last ten or twelve years ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : No, Sir. There can be no general reason. It is a question of individual selection.

Mr. S. G. Jog : Is there any tendency to make a distinction between the European element in the I. C. S., and the Indian element ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : No, Sir. There is no such tendency.

Mr. S. G. Jog : Have any cases been brought to the notice of the Government of India of supersession in the Central Provinces Government in the case of appointments to the Executive Council ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : There is no question of supersession. These are very essentially selection appointments.

Mr. S. G. Jog : What are the qualifications that weigh with the Government in making selections ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : Suitability.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Not seniority ?

Mr. B. V. Jadhav : Is it not a fact that an Indian member of the I. C. S. was not found suitable for a permanent appointment as Executive Councillor, but he was subsequently found suitable to fill a temporary vacancy ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I am afraid I do not know what case my Honourable friend is referring to.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav : Mr. J. N. Ghosal's.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I must ask for notice of that.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Is there not a tendency in some provinces at least to shunt off the Indian members of the I. C. S. into the judicial line so that the executive line may be the monopoly of the Britishers ?—

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : No, Sir. I do not think that is the case, nor do I think that that question arises out of the point that we are considering at the moment. So far as selection for the judicial line is concerned, I think as a rule Local Governments try to make their selections in accordance with the wishes of the officers.

CLERKS EMPLOYED ON WORK CONNECTED WITH HOURS OF EMPLOYMENT REGULATIONS ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

992. Mr. Uppi Saheb Bahadur : (a) Will Government please state whether it is a fact that some 20 clerks have been employed on the North Western Railway on work in connection with hours of employment regulations ?

(b) Is it a fact that all these clerks were given promotion to a higher scale at the time of their appointment to those duties, class II clerks being put in class III and class III clerks in class IV ?

(c) Is it a fact that in addition to higher rate of pay these clerks generally earn travelling allowance while on tour ?

(d) Is it a fact that no selection was made by a proper selection board for appointment to these posts which involved arbitrary and out-of-turn promotion ?

(e) Is it not the declared policy of Government not to give increase of pay for work of a special or different character ? If so, why was increased pay given in this case as a matter of course ?

(f) Are Government prepared to consider the question of regrading all these clerks in their substantive grades ?

(g) Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that in promoting all these to the next higher grades they were given the minimum pay of such higher grade ?

(h) Is it a fact that there was one case, namely that of Mr. Khub Chand, in which the clerk was given nearly the maximum pay of the higher grade ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : With your permission, Sir, I shall answer questions Nos. 992, 993 and 994 together. Government have no information but I have sent a copy of these questions to the Agent, North Western Railway, for such action as he may deem necessary.

WELFARE CLERK IN THE RAILWAY WORKSHOPS AT SUKKUR.

†993. Mr. Uppi Saheb Bahadur : (a) Is it a fact that a class IV welfare clerk is in the Workshops at Sukkur whereas there is only a class III welfare clerk in Loco. Shops, Moghalpura ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Loco. Shops, Moghalpura, have nearly four times as much staff as the Sukkur Shops ?

(c) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government please state the special circumstances which warrant the appointment of a senior grade man in the smaller workshop ?

SINDHI AND NON-SINDHI CLERKS IN THE LATE CONSTRUCTION OFFICE, NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

†994. Mr. Uppi Saheb Bahadur : (a) Will Government please state the number of Sindhi and non-Sindhi clerks in the Construction office, North Western Railway, before the dissolution of that office in 1932 ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state the number of Sindhi and non-Sindhi clerks who were retained and confirmed after the dissolution of Construction Office ?

(c) Is it a fact that some of these Sindhi Hindu clerks who were below the educational standard required for the appointment and confirmation as office clerks have been confirmed in contravention of the existing rules ? If so, why ?

(d) If the reply to part (c) be in the affirmative, are Government prepared to take steps to remedy matters and to avoid a recurrence of such preferential treatment ?

NON-POSTING OF UNQUALIFIED GUARDS AS ASSISTANT STATION MASTERS ON INDIAN RAILWAYS.

995. Mr. Uppi Saheb Bahadur : (a) Is it a fact that those Guards who are once sent to the Training School and disqualify themselves are never posted to work as Assistant Station Masters under the general rules on Indian Railways read with subsidiary rules of 1929 ?

(b) Are there any exceptions to these rules issued by the Railway Board ? If so, upto what extent ?

(c) Are Agents empowered to deviate from these rules without prior approval of the Railway Board ?

(d) Are any divisions of the North Western Railway exempt from the operation of these rules ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 992.

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) I have not been able to discover any rule in the General Rules for Indian Railways which has this effect.

(b) and (c). Agents are bound to follow the General Rules issued by the Railway Board, but are empowered to frame subsidiary rules which they can alter so long as they are not inconsistent with the General Rules.

(d) No Railway or Division of a railway is exempt from the operation of the General Rules.

RULES OF EXAMINATION FOR RECRUITMENT TO THE SUPERIOR COMMERCIAL AND TRANSPORTATION SERVICES.

996. Mr. Uppi Saheb Bahadur : (a) Is it a fact that the Railway Board recently revised the rules for the competitive examination held for recruitment to the superior Commercial and Transportation Services ?

(b) Is it also a fact that the classical languages, like Sanskrit, Arabic and Persian, do not find a place in the syllabus for that examination ?

(c) Is it a fact that these languages form part of the syllabus of practically all non-technical examinations, for example Indian Civil Service, Indian Audit and Accounts Service, Imperial Custom Service, Railway and Military Accounts Service, etc. ?

(d) If so, are Government prepared to consider the advisability of including these three subjects, viz., Sanskrit, Arabic and Persian, in the syllabus for the recruitment examination of the superior Commercial and Traffic Service ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a), (b) and (c). Yes.

(d) The syllabus was revised in consultation with the Public Service Commission and the reason why so wide a choice was not proposed for this examination was that the experience of the Public Service Commission had shown that the number of options allowed was excessive. It was also held that these Departments were unlikely to require candidates possessing the qualifications resulting from a prolonged study of the classical languages. My Honourable friend will no doubt have observed that a large number of other subjects with probably as good a claim as the classical languages have been excluded from this syllabus.

UNSTARRED QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

RECRUITMENT OF INDIANS TO THE INDIAN AIR FORCE.

81. Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah : (a) Will Government be pleased to state what are the various "trades" in the Indian Air Force to which they have decided to recruit Indians and what is the sanctioned strength for each ?

(b) How much recruitment of Indians for the Indian Air Force has so far been made and how much remains to be made in the near future ?

(c) What are the addresses of the various Recruiting or Technical Recruiting Officers through whom applications for recruitment for technical and non-technical trades should be submitted ?

(d) How, by whom and when is the final selection of personnel to be made ?

(e) What are the various training centres at which the selected apprentices, etc., will be trained and where will the offices and Headquarters of the Indian Air Force be located ?

(f) What is the minimum period for which candidates for "trades not involving apprenticeship" must work as aircrafthands before they can be mustered into the trades chosen by or specified for them ?

(g) Are free rations, free quarters (single or family), railway warrants and leave concessions allowed to airmen before attestation ?

(h) What are the rates of pay and rules for recruitment for (i) Warrant officers, and (ii) Mechanical Transport drivers for the Indian Air Force ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a)

Trades.	Sanctioned strength.
Aircrafthand	5
Armourer	1
Blacksmith	1
Carpenter	1
Clerk, General Duties	2
Clerk, Pay Accounting	1
Clerk, Stores Accounting	1
Coppersmith and Metal Worker	1
Electrician	1
Fitter Aero Engine	8
Fitter Armourer	1
Metal Rigger	7
Photographer	1
Storekeeper	2
Wireless Operator Mech.	2
Wireless Operator	2

(b) Twenty-two have already been enrolled. The balance required to complete establishment will be enrolled in the near future.

(c) Applications for enrolment in highly skilled trades should be submitted to Royal Air Force Headquarters. Applications for enrolment in other trades should be submitted to the Army Recruiting Officer at Rawalpindi, Peshawar, Kohat, Lahore, Jullundur, Delhi, Ajmer or Lucknow.

(d) By merit, by the Air Officer Commanding, Royal Air Force, India.

(e) Karachi.

(f) No minimum period has been prescribed.

(g) Free rations, free quarters (single) and leave concessions are allowed to airmen after enrolment. Railway warrants to join the unit at Karachi are allowed to accepted recruits.

(h) (i) Rates of pay for Warrant Officers have not yet been fixed. Warrant Officers are not recruited direct but are promoted from the junior ranks.

(ii) Mechanical Transport Drivers are selected by the Indian Army Service Corps and trained at Chaklala. The rates of pay are laid down in Pay and Allowance Regulations for the Royal Air Force in India and Indian Air Force.

INTRODUCTION OF LEAVE RESERVE AND NEW SCALES OF PAY IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA OFFICES.

82. Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah : (a) Is it a fact that all Departments of the Government of India Secretariat and some of the Attached Offices have a leave reserve for their establishment ?

(b) Do Government propose to introduce a leave reserve in all the Attached Offices and thereby stop the practice of appointing in-experienced officiating men in short vacancies when any permanent incumbent goes on leave ?

(c) When do Government propose to introduce new scales of pay in the offices of the Government of India ?

(d) Is it a fact that the introduction of new scales of pay will also involve some changes in the strength of staff in the various Divisions in the case of Attached Offices ?

(e) Do Government propose to avail themselves of this opportunity to introduce a leave reserve along with the introduction of the new scales of pay in those few offices in which it does not exist at present ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) Yes.

(b) No such proposal is under consideration.

(c) Scales of pay for new entrants to the Governor General's Services are in course of publication.

(d) Yes.

(e) As the question of the provision of a leave reserve has no connection with the introduction of new scales of pay Government have not considered the suggestion made.

REVISED EDITION OF THE MOORE'S FAMILY MEDICINE.

83. Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah : (a) Will Government please state when was the book " Moore's Family Medicine " last revised and what is its price for Government servants ?

(b) When do Government propose to print its up-to-date edition ?

(c) Do Government propose to ascertain from all Government servants by means of a general circular as to the number of copies required by them when the book is re-printed ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) In 1920. The price of the present edition was recently reduced and is now Rs. 2-8-0 per copy for Government servants whose salary is below Rs. 500 per mensem and Rs. 3 for those whose salary is Rs. 500 and over, per mensem.

(b) The matter is under consideration.

(c) Government consider that when the book is reprinted, it would be sufficient to bring that fact to the notice of Government servants through Local Governments and Heads of Departments.

APPOINTMENT OF DOCTORS AND OPENING OF A DISPENSARY IN NEW DELHI.

84. Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah : (a) Will Government please state :

(i) the names of doctors appointed for duty with the Government of India at New Delhi for the next winter for various grades of Indian employees ;

(ii) the time and place at which they will be available for consultation ;

(iii) prescribed rates of fees for their visiting the houses of the Government employees ?

(b) Are Government aware that last year both the time and place of consultation of the doctors was not convenient for those for whom they were intended ?

(c) Do Government propose to fix the time of consultation before office hours in the morning and after office hours in the evening, and the place of consultation near the Indian Clerks' quarters, viz., Gol Market, or Baird Road ?

(d) When do Government propose to open a dispensary, like the Civil and Military Dispensary of Simla, at a central place (Indian clerks' quarters), in New Delhi from where Government servants may get medicines without unnecessary loss of time ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) (i) Indian employees of the Government of India Secretariat and their Attached Offices will be attended to by the following medical officers :

Those drawing pay of Rs. 500 per mensem and upwards by Major R. S. Aspinall, I.M.S., Civil Surgeon, New Delhi.

Those drawing pay from Rs. 150 to Rs. 499 per mensem in migratory offices by Dr. N. F. Masters, Civil Assistant Surgeon in charge of Junior Secretariat Establishments.

Those drawing pay from Rs. 150 to Rs. 499 per mensem in non-migratory offices by Dr. D. Deish, Civil Assistant Surgeon attached to the Civil Hospital, New Delhi.

Those drawing pay of Rs. 149 per mensem and under by Dr. Randhir Singh and Dr. Muhammad Yunus, Sub-Assistant Surgeons attached to the Civil Hospital, New Delhi.

Indian employees of the Army and Royal Air Force Headquarters drawing Rs. 250 per mensem and upwards will be attended to by the Surgeon to His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief and those drawing less than Rs. 250 per mensem by Dr. N. F. Masters.

(ii) At the Civil Hospital, New Delhi, between 8 A.M. and 10 A.M. and between 4-30 P.M. and 5-30 P.M. After these hours at their residences.

(iii) All Government servants and the families of those employed in the Army and Royal Air Force Headquarters, if too ill to attend the hospital, are entitled to free attendance at their residences. When a Government servant's family is not entitled to free attendance the appointed medical attendant is permitted to charge a fee not exceeding, in the case of an Assistant Surgeon, Rs. 2 for each day visit and Rs. 4 for each night visit, and, in the case of a Sub-Assistant Surgeon, Re. 1 for each day visit and Rs. 2 for each night visit.

(b) No.

(c) and (d). The time of consultation has always been before office hours in the morning and after office hours in the evening. As the Civil Hospital, New Delhi, is situated at a central place, not far from the Indian Clerks' quarters, the question of opening a new dispensary as suggested by the Honourable Member does not arise.

RATIO OF THE NUMBER OF SUPERINTENDENTS TO ASSISTANTS AND CLERKS IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA OFFICES.

85. Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah : Will Government please state what is the ratio of the number of Superintendents to Assistants and Clerks in the Home Department and in other Departments of the Government of India and Attached Offices ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : A statement containing the information is laid on the table.

NOTE.—(i) There are no superintendents in the offices of the A. M. S. (P.) and the J. A. G.
(ii) In preparing the statement, the total number of Assistants and clerks has been taken into account, though in a few cases Assistants and clerks are in charge of Sections and many clerks are employed in isolated posts of a special nature not under the charge of Superintendents.

OCCUPATION OF QUARTERS IN NEW DELHI BY THE STAFF OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA AFTER THEY BECOME OUT OF CLASS.

86. Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah : (a) Is it a fact that the members of the non-migratory establishments of the Government of India at New Delhi are permitted to remain in occupation of the quarters once allotted to them when they become out of class, until a quarter of the proper class becomes available for them ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government please state if the same practice is followed in the case of the migratory staff as well ?

(c) Are Government aware that great difficulty is experienced by those who are ousted from their old quarters in finding private residences for themselves after their move down from Simla and that their case is harder than of those who remain throughout the year in New Delhi ?

(d) Do Government propose to consider the desirability of making the practice in this respect uniform for migratory and non-migratory staff ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the reply given by me on the 20th March, 1933, to starred question No. 799 by Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad.

LOCATION OF CERTAIN ATTACHED OFFICES IN NEW DELHI.

87. Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah : (a) Will Government please state how does the question of the stoppage of the move of the Government of India, and particularly of the Attached offices, stand at present ?

(b) Is it a fact that the installation of metres has solved to a large extent the shortage of water problem which was a great obstacle in the way of the Attached Offices being permanently located at New Delhi ?

(c) Have Government considered that some of the Attached Offices, e.g., Public Service Commission, Indian Stores Department, Director General of Indian Medical Service (excepting the Branch dealing with Indian Medical Service and Military Department), and Director General of Archæology, can be easily detached from the Government of India and located at New Delhi during summer ?

(d) Do Government propose to announce their final decision in the matter sufficiently before the move-down of the offices to enable the establishments concerned to make their future arrangements (regarding lease of houses at Simla for the next year and removal of their household effects from Simla to Delhi) accordingly ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) and (c). I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply given by me on September 5, 1933, to part (b) of Mr. Bhuput Sing's question No. 607.

(b) I understand that the recent installation of meters has had a very marked effect on the consumption of filtered water.

(d) It is unlikely that any decision will be announced before the offices move to Delhi next month.

NEW SCALES OF PAY FOR ARMY HEADQUARTERS STAFF.

88. Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah: (a) Will Government please state whether the new scales of pay for Secretariat and Attached Offices of the Government of India will also apply to the Army Headquarters? If not, what will be the system of recruitment in future for the Army Headquarters?

(b) Is it a fact that the clerks of the Indian Army Corps will be appointed for duty in the Army Headquarters, and if so, what will be their scales of pay and allowances?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham: (a) and (b). The matter is under consideration, and no decision has yet been reached.

CERTAIN POSTS IN EACH POSTAL DIVISION OF THE BOMBAY CIRCLE.

89. Mr. A. Das: (a) Will Government please furnish the following information in respect of each Postal Division of the Bombay Circle:

Number of posts of—

(i) Departmental Branch Postmasters,
(ii) Overseers,
(iii) Overseer Postmen,
(iv) Head Postmen,
(v) Reading or Sorting Postmen,
(vi) Postmen,
(vii) Village Postmen,
(viii) Runners, and (ix) Other inferior servants, on the 31st March, 1931 and on the 30th June, 1933?

(b) How many of the posts in the categories (vi), (vii) and (viii) of part (a) above, were abolished altogether between this period, i.e., between 31st March, 1931 and 30th June, 1933, and how many were substituted by employment of extraneous agents to do the duties attached to their posts?

(c) In how many cases, in respect of each Postal Division of the Circle, were the permanent holders of the posts in the categories of (vi), (vii) and (viii) of part (a) above, retired compulsorily during the same period for purposes of employment of extraneous agents in their places?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce: (a), (b) and (c). Government regret that the information required for a detailed reply to the various parts of the question is not available and could not be obtained without much time and labour; but a statement showing the number of posts in each of the first five categories on the 31st January, 1931 and the 31st January, 1933, respectively, in the Bombay Circle, as a whole, is annexed. In this connection the Honourable Member's attention is invited to the reply given in this House on the 31st August, 1933, to his starred questions Nos. 295 and 296.

Statement.

BOMBAY CIRCLE.

Category.	Number of posts on 31st January, 1931.	Number of posts on 31st January, 1933.
(i) Departmental Branch Postmasters	144	27
(ii) Mail Overseers	40	37
(iii) Overseer Postmen	61	56
(iv) Head Postmen	57	31
(v) Reader and Sorting Postmen	114	107

POSTING OF HINDU SUPERINTENDENTS IN THE PUNJAB AND NORTH-WEST FRONTIER POSTAL CIRCLE.

90. Seth Liladhar Chaudhury: (a) Will Government please state the number of Superintendents of Post Offices of different communities in the Punjab and North-West Frontier Circle? Is it a fact that the Hindus are in very poor minority and the Muslims in very great majority? If so, will Government please state the action they propose to take to avoid the preponderance of the Muslim community in the posts of Superintendents of Post Offices in the Punjab Circle?

(b) Will Government please state the names of the Postal Divisions in the Punjab Circle the charge of which has not been held by a Hindu Superintendent during the last 15 years?

(c) Do Government propose to consider the advisability of posting Hindu Superintendents to these Divisions as soon as suitable opportunity occurs in future?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce: (a) As regards the first part of the question, there are at present nine Muslims, four Hindus, five Sikhs, one European and three Anglo-Indian Superintendents of Post Offices, including Assistant Postmasters-General, in the Punjab Postal Circle. As regards the second part, the attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the reply given in this House to part (b) of Bhai Parma Nand's starred question No. 461 on the 22nd February, 1932.

(b) Government have no information as such postings are made by the Postmaster-General.

(c) Does not arise in view of the reply to parts (a) and (b).

PREPONDERANCE OF MUSLIMS IN THE PESHAWAR POSTAL DIVISION.

91. Seth Liladhar Chaudhury: (a) Will Government please lay on the table a statement showing different kinds of allowances attached to all classes of appointments in the Peshawar Postal Division of the Punjab Circle, and how many of the posts carrying such allowances were held by (i) Hindus, and (ii) Muslims on 31st March, 1933?

(b) If the statement referred to in part (a) above, indicates that the number of Hindus who held the posts under reference on 31st March, 1933, was much less than those of Muslims, will Government please state the reason for this discrimination?

(c) Are Government aware that no Hindu Superintendent has held charge of the Peshawar Postal Division during the last 15 years ? If so, are Government prepared to order the posting of a Hindu Superintendent to the Peshawar Postal Division ?

(d) Will Government please lay on the table a statement showing the names of Sub-Offices and of the Sub-Postmasters in charge of the Peshawar Postal Division, together with their length of service on 31st March, 1933 ?

The Honourable Sir Fank Noyce : (a) to (d). Government are not in possession of the information asked for and do not consider it necessary to call for it as appointments to allowanced posts are not made on communal considerations.

PREPONDERANCE OF MUSLIMS IN THE PESHAWAR POSTAL DIVISION.

92. Seth Liladhar Chaudhury : (a) Is it a fact that junior Muslims are working as Sub-Postmasters, while senior Hindus are working as clerks in the Peshawar Postal Division ?

(b) Is it a fact that the number of Muslim Sub-Postmasters far outsteps the number of Hindu Sub-Postmasters in the Peshawar Postal Division, and if so, are Government prepared to order the replacement of junior Muslim officials working as Sub-Postmasters by senior Hindu officials in the Peshawar Postal Division ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) and (b). Government have no information and do not consider it necessary to call for it as such postings are not made on communal considerations.

PREPONDERANCE OF MUSLIMS IN THE PESHAWAR POSTAL DIVISION.

93. Seth Liladhar Chaudhury : Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing the number of posts sanctioned in the Peshawar Postal Division in each scale or cadre, viz., Postmasters, Clerks, Overseers, Head Postmen, Departmental Branch Postmasters, Postmen, Menials, Runners and others, and how many of these posts are held by Hindus in each cadre or class of scale ? What action do Government propose to take to remove the Muslim preponderance in the Peshawar Postal Division ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : As regards the first part of the question, a statement giving the information available is annexed. Although it is not precisely on the lines asked for by the Honourable Member, Government hope that it will meet his requirements.

As regards the second part, Government do not propose to take any special action as existing orders already lay down that in making fresh recruitment one-third of the vacancies are to be reserved for the adjustment of communal inequalities with the object of preventing the preponderance of any one class or community in Government service. In this connection the Honourable Member's attention is invited to the reply given to Bhai Parma Nand's starred question No. 671 on the 7th of March last.

Statement.

PESHAWAR POSTAL DIVISION.

	Total.	Hindus.
Clerical staff in the Upper Division and Higher Grades	141	44
Clerical staff in the Lower Division (including Branch Postmasters, Overseers, Head Reader and Sorting Postmen)	15	3
Postmen and Mail Guards	158	12
Inferior Staff	127	9

PREPONDERANCE OF MUSLIMS IN THE PESHAWAR POSTAL DIVISION.

94. Seth Liladhar Chaudhury : (a) Will Government please state which is the minority community in the Peshawar Postal Division for the purpose of recruitment ?

(b) Will Government please state the number of outsiders of each community employed in the Peshawar Postal Division in each class or cadre since March, 1927 ?

(c) Is it a fact that the Hindus are considered a minority community for the purpose of recruitment in the Peshawar Postal Division and that the Hindu community has not been given the adequate share in accordance with the orders of the Government regarding recruitment ? If so, will Government please state the action they propose to take to set matters right and to enforce further recruitment in accordance with their orders ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) In all Divisions, Muhammadans, Anglo-Indias, Indian Christians and Sikhs are regarded as minority communities for the purpose of recruitment to the Posts and Telegraphs Department.

(b) I regret that the information is not readily available.

(c) Does not arise in view of the reply to part (a) above and as no definite share in recruitment for Hindus, as presumed by the Honourable Member, has been laid down in the orders referred to.

DISCHARGE OF CERTAIN HINDUS IN THE DEHRA DUN HEAD POST OFFICE.

95. Seth Liladhar Chaudhury : (a) Will Government please state the criteria laid down by them regarding the discharge of officiating or temporary officials in connection with the General Retrenchment Scheme ?

(b) Is it a fact that the discharge of officials should be according to seniority and length of service beginning with the juniormost officials ? If so, will Government please state why senior Hindu and Sikh officials have been discharged, such as Messrs. Jagat Ram and Bir Singh, while junior Muslims, such as Messrs. Rashid Ahmad and Rafi Uzman, have been retained in service in the Dehra Dun Head Post Office ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The criteria laid down for the discharge of officiating or temporary officials are the same as for permanent officials so far as applicable—that is to say retrenchment should be effected by the discharge of selected men from among the officials in each distinct category of Superintendents, Stenographers,

Clerks, and Typists, etc., in the following order, subject to the maintenance to the nearest practicable figure in each category of the ratio between the various communities represented by their present numbers in that category :

(1) by the discharge of officers whose work is considered to be so consistently unsatisfactory that to retain them in preference to others would be unjustifiable ;

(2) discharge of selected officers who have attained the age of 55 or have 30 years' service or more ;

(3) discharge of selected officers with less than 10 years' service ;

(4) discharge of selected officers with 10 years' but less than 25 years' service.

(b) For the first part of the question reference is invited to the reply to (a) above. As regard the second part, Government have no information. If any of the individuals mentioned consider that they have a grievance, it is open to them to make representations to the proper authorities through the usual official channel.

BAUDOT SUPERVISORS IN TELEGRAPH OFFICES.

96. Seth Liladhar Chaudhury : (a) Is it a fact that there are three classes of Baudot Supervisors in Telegraph Offices, viz., (i) those who have passed the Baudot Supervisors' examination and also the Higher Baudot Technique examination, (ii) those who have passed only the Higher Baudot Technique examination, and (iii) those who have passed only the Baudot Supervisors' examination ?

(b) Is it a fact that whenever a permanent or temporary vacancy of a Baudot Supervisor occurs, men in category (i) of part (a) are given preference over those in category, (ii) for filling such an appointment ? If so, why ?

(c) Is it a fact that in some Telegraph Offices men in category (ii) are supervising Baudot, while those in category (i) are not doing so ?

(d) Is it a fact that if a telegraphist in category (ii) of part (a), holding a Baudot Supervisor's post, proceeds on leave, he resumes, on return from such leave, his former appointment of Baudot Supervisor even if it involves displacing a telegraphist in category (i) ?

(e) If the replies to parts (b), (c) and (d) be in the affirmative, will Government please state the reasons for giving preference for Baudot Supervisor's appointments to men in category (i) at one time and to those in category (ii) at another time ?

(f) Is it a fact that when telegraphists holding the appointments of Testing Telegraphist or Desk Supervisor (carrying special pay) proceed on leave, they do not on return from leave resume their former appointments on the score of having held them previous to going on leave, but can only claim them if entitled by reason of seniority ?

(g) If the replies to parts (e) and (f) be in the affirmative, will Government kindly state the reasons for not applying the same rule in both cases ?

(h) Is it a fact that when recently rules of seniority for Desk appointments were revised, those, who were classified as juniors according to the revised rules, were ordered to make room for their seniors immediately ?

(i) If the answer to part (h) be in the affirmative, will Government kindly state if a similar procedure was observed when rules for seniority among Baudot Supervisors were revised in March, 1932 ? If not, why not ?

(j) Is it a fact that this question was referred to the Director General of Posts and Telegraphs by the All-India Telegraph Union about 15 months ago ? If so, will Government kindly state why the position has not so far been rectified ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Yes,

(b) The reply to the first part is in the affirmative. As regards the second part, the reason is that the qualifications of the men in the first category referred to in part (a) of the question are superior to those in the second category.

(c) and (d). Government are not aware of any such cases.

(e) and (g). As I have explained above Government are not aware of any cases such as those referred to by the Honourable Member, but if he will give me the necessary particulars I will have enquiries made.

(f) It is a fact that telegraphists holding the posts referred to by the Honourable Member do not, when proceeding on leave, retain any absolute right to return to those posts.

(h) Government have no precise information, but the facts may be as stated by the Honourable Member.

(i) The orders of March, 1932, contained no definite instructions on the subject, it being left to the Heads of Circles to select the most suitable men subject to certain general principles.

(j) It is presumed that the Honourable Member refers to the question of fixing the order of preference for filling appointments of Baudot Supervisors—if so, orders have recently been issued on the subject.

NON-OBSERVANCE OF CERTAIN ORDERS OF THE POSTMASTER GENERAL, PUNJAB.

97. Seth Liladhar Chaudhury : (a) Is it a fact that the Postmaster General, Punjab, has ordered that :

(i) no combined hand should be employed in the office of the Superintendent, Post Offices, and (ii) no time-scale clerk should be retained in the office of the Superintendent continuously for a period of more than five years ?

(b) Will Government please lay on the table a statement in the form given below showing the particulars of the combined hands and the officials working in the Superintendent's office for more than a period of five years ?

Name of the Division.	Name of Superintendent.	Name of combined hand working in the Divisional Office.	Name of the official working in the Divisional office for over a period of 5 years.

(c) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative and reply to part (b) indicates contravention of these orders, will Government please state the steps they propose to take against the Superintendents concerned for the breach of the orders and to ensure that the orders are strictly observed in future ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) to (c). Government have no information. The matter is entirely within the competence of the Postmaster General to whom a copy of the question is being sent.

REPLACEMENT OF A FEW MUSLIMS BY HINDUS IN THE INFERIOR ESTABLISHMENT OF THE JHELUM HEAD POST OFFICE.

98. Seth Liladhar Chaudhury : Will Government please state the number of Hindus and Muslims in the delivery and inferior establishments of the Jhelum Head Post Office ? Are the Hindus in a minority, particularly in the inferior establishment ? If so, do Government propose to order the replacement of a few Muslims by Hindus in that office ? Are Government aware that the Hindu staff feel much inconvenience in getting even drinking water on account of the absence of Hindus among the inferior establishment, and that this is a cause of genuine grievance to the Hindus ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I regret that the information asked for is not readily available. As, however, the matter is within the competence of the Postmaster General, Punjab and North West Frontier Circle, a copy of the question is being sent to him.

GRANT OF PENSION TO TELEPHONE OPERATORS.

99. Seth Liladhar Chaudhury : (a) Is it a fact that the service of the classes of officials in the Post Office, Railway Mail Service and Traffic Branches of the Posts and Telegraphs Department corresponding to telephone operators in the Engineering Branch of the Department, is pensionable whereas that of telephone operators is not ? Will Government please state the reason for this discrimination ?

(b) Is it a fact that the question regarding the pensionable status of telephone operators has been under the consideration of Government for several years past and several memorials have been submitted to them by the telephone operators concerned, but that no order has yet been passed ?

(c) Will Government please state when final orders are expected to be issued ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) As regards the first part of the question, the position is that the services of the majority of officials in the Posts and Telegraphs Department on the same scales of pay as telephone operators are pensionable, whereas the services of telephone operators appointed after the 8th July, 1919, are non-pensionable. As regards the second part, the discrimination was made on administrative grounds.

(b) and (c). The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the reply given by Sir Thomas Ryan on the 29th November, 1932, to parts (a) and (b) of Mr. Muhammad Anwar-ul-Azim's starred question No. 1514.

SUPERSESSION OF TELEPHONE OPERATORS IN THE LAHORE TELEGRAPH ENGINEERING DIVISION.

100. Seth Liladhar Chaudhury : (a) Is it a fact that a number of lady telephone operators have superseded a number of male operators in the Lahore Telegraph Engineering Division ?

(b) Will Government please state the reasons for these supersessions causing discontentment among the male operators superseded ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) and (b). Government have no information. If any officials have been superseded and consider that they have a grievance it is open to them to represent it to the proper authority through the usual official channel.

POSITION OF AN OFFICIAL APPOINTED IN A NEW OFFICE AFTER THE ABOLITION OF HIS POST IN HIS FORMER OFFICE.

101. Seth Liladhar Chaudhury : Have Government issued any orders to the effect that an official, whose post is abolished in one office and is consequently provided in another office, should be shown as junior to all officials of his class in his new office ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : It is presumed the Honourable Member refers to re-employed retrenched personnel. Such personnel, if re-employed, are regarded as having entered Government service for the first time on the date of re-employment, which means that they start at the bottom of the time scale.

RAISING THE STATUS OF THE DHOORIA POST OFFICE IN THE RAWALPINDI DIVISION.

102. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that a circular was issued by the Director General, Posts and Telegraphs, in 1925 in which Postmasters-General were instructed to keep in view the policy of the Government of India for extension of postal facilities, as much as possible, to rural areas where it was justified by circumstances ?

(b) If so, will Government please state :

(i) how many new village post offices have since then been opened in the Punjab ;

(ii) how many village post offices have since then been raised to regular Branch or Sub-Offices in charge of whole-time Branch or Sub-Postmasters ?

(c) What is the population of village Dhooria in Rawalpindi Division ?

(d) Is it a fact that a large number of the residents of the village are Government officials, including retired civil and military officers, some of whom are holding the King's commission in the Indian Army ?

(e) Is it a fact that a large number of the residents of the village have trade connections in the United Provinces, etc. ?

(f) Is it a fact that the village has got a well-attended District Board Middle School also ?

(g) Is it also a fact that Government have provided it only with a village post office run by a part-time stamp vendor ?

(h) Do Government propose to raise the status of the village post office to a combined Post and Telegraph office in charge of a whole time Branch or Sub-Postmaster ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Yes, but as a result of the unsatisfactory financial position these instructions had subsequently to be modified.

(b) (i) The number of new post offices opened in the Punjab and North West Frontier Postal Circle was approximately 940.

(b) (ii) Government regret that the information is not readily available.

(c) to (h). Government have no information. The matter is within the competence of the Head of the Circle concerned to whom a copy of the question is being sent.

SHORT NOTICE QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

MINTUE OF DISSENT OF SIR PURSHOTAMDAS THAKURDAS ON THE REPORT OF THE LONDON COMMITTEE ON THE INDIAN RESERVE BANK.

Mr. B. Das : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the extracts from the minute of dissent of Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas on the report of the London Committee on the Indian Reserve Bank, as published in the Statesman of the 15th September, 1933 ?

(b) With reference to the following observations of Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas, will Government be pleased to state how they justify the statement that Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas was against a State Bank ?

"If His Majesty's Government is not prepared to agree to the complete immunity of the Reserve Bank from political influence from or through the Secretary of State for India in London, it is only fair to meet the strong feeling in India in favour of making the State Bank the Central Currency authority. There should be only two alternatives : either a Shareholders' Bank completely free from political influence on both sides of the seas ; or a State Bank directly subject to the control of the Federal Government. I am convinced that the qualification introduced by the Secretary of State in his reply to question No. 8599 undermines the foundations of the agreement arrived at, and if it is persisted in, it makes the consideration of the alternative of a State Bank an imperative necessity."

(c) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table all the minutes of dissent in connexion with the London Committee on the Reserve Bank ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) Government's attention has been called to the publication referred to. But it cannot be accurately described as a minute of dissent, because all the notes of dissent recorded by Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas are included in the published report of the London Committee.

(b) He accepted without reserve or qualification the recommendation contained in paragraph 3 of the Committee's report from which I quote the following sentence :

"The best device which the practical experience of other countries has evolved for achieving this object is that the capital of the Bank should be held by private shareholders and we recommend that this plan should be adopted in the case of India."

(c) All the notes of dissent which any member of the London Committee expressed a desire to record are included in the published report of the Committee.

Mr. B. Das : Has the Honourable the Finance Member read the full note published in the Statesman ? Did he notice that the wording of that statement was in the present tense ? I will just read one sentence :

"From certain recommendations of the report, I am compelled to dissent. I feel it essential to explain these differences more fully than they are set out in the brief minutes appended to, or forming part of the Report."

Does not that show that he changed his opinion a day or two after he signed the report in London and submitted this minute of dissent ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I think, Sir, that my Honourable friend reads too much in the present tense to which he has referred. I can state as a definite fact that nothing of this kind was handed in in London.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Were the minutes of the discussion of the London Committee recorded and, if so, are these minutes likely to be published ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : No, Sir. There was no full record of the London discussions and all that will be published is a report which was signed after full consideration by all the members of the committee.

Mr. R. S. Sarma : Is it not the past experience of Government that they have found that Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas' private views and the views that are published are totally different on many occasions ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : That, Sir, is a question which I do not think I am called upto to answer.

MINTUE OF DISSENT OF SIR PURSHOTAMDAS THAKURDAS ON THE REPORT OF THE LONDON COMMITTEE ON THE INDIAN RESERVE BANK.

Mr. B. Das : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the following lines in the note of dissent of Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas ?

"Every major country has either been at its pre-war parity for exchange or has been forced to go lower. India is the one country which is above it. Comprehensive measures have been taken in the U. S. A. to raise prices by the inflation of the currency ; further the Executive has been armed with the power to devalue the dollar to the extent of 50 per cent. of its gold content. For India there is a strong and strengthening opinion that a lowering of the existing ratio of 1s. 6*d.* will give much-needed relief to the cultivator. It is axiomatic that it will put less strain on the currency system of India should world conditions be slow in improving.''

(b) Are Government prepared to accept these recommendations in the interests of the Indian people ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) Yes.

(b) No. Government are pursuing the policy which they consider to be best in the interest of India as a whole, and they cannot accept the premises on which the statement referred to in part (a) is based. For example, it is not true to say that India is the only country whose currency is above the pre-war parity of exchange. The pre-war parity of the Indian rupee was 1|4*d.* gold. The present exchange value of the Indian rupee is about 1|- d. gold.

Mr. B. Das : May I inquire if the Honourable Member will allow the Joint Committee to discuss this note of dissent by Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas ?

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Chair does not think that question arises.

ELECTION OF MEMBERS TO THE SALT INDUSTRY COMMITTEE.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : I have to inform the Assembly that the following Members have been elected to the Salt Industry Committee, namely :

(1) Mr. E. Studd,

(2) Mr. Lalchand Navalrai, and

(3) Mr. B. N. Misra.

RULING AS TO WHETHER A MEMBER OF THE EXECUTIVE COUNCIL OF THE GOVERNOR GENERAL WHO IS NOT A MEMBER OF THE ASSEMBLY HAS THE RIGHT OF RAISING A POINT OF ORDER ON THE FLOOR OF THE HOUSE.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : On the 8th April, 1933, the Honourable Member, Mr. S. C. Mitra, raised a point of order whether a Member of the Executive Council of the Governor General, who was not a Member of the Assembly, had the right of raising a point of order on the floor of the House. The Chair undertook to give a ruling on this point. On consideration, the Chair gives the following ruling :

Under section 63-E (4) of the Government of India Act, every Member of the Executive Council, who is not a Member of the Assembly, has the right of attending in and addressing the Assembly. This provision must be construed as conferring on such Executive Council Member the right to take part in any debate in the Assembly. Therefore, it follows that, when so speaking, such a Member is subject to all the restrictions and limitations imposed on Members of the Assembly by the rules and Standing Orders. Under rule 15 (2), any Member may raise a point of order. This rule should not be strictly applied only to Members any more than the rules and Standing Orders referred to above. If a Member of the Executive Council, who is not a Member of the Assembly, has the right to take part in the debate, he should also be permitted to draw the attention of the House to any point of order which arises out of the debate, for example, irrelevancy or misrepresentation of any part of his speech or the attributing to him of any motives, etc., or rising to make a personal explanation. The Chair, therefore, holds that a Member of the Executive Council, who is not a Member of the Assembly and who exercises his right of addressing the Assembly on any occasion, has also the right of raising any point of order during the debate in which he takes part.

STATEMENT LAID ON THE TABLE.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce (Member for Industries and Labour) : Sir, I lay on the table the information promised in reply to part (c) of starred question No. 711 asked by Mr. K. C. Neogy on the 6th September, 1933.

THE HEDJAZ PILGRIMS (MUALLIMS) BILL.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The House will now resume consideration of the motion moved by Mr. G. S. Bajpai :

" That the Bill to regulate the activities of persons in British India who offer to assist Muslim pilgrims to the Hedjaz, as reported by the Select Committee, be recommitted to the Select Committee."

Haji Chaudhury Muhammad Ismail Khan (Bakarganj cum Faridpur : Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, in connection with this motion, I think I should deal with the stage in which the Bill was referred to a Select Committee in 1932, of which I had the honour to be a member. At that stage, Sir, we came to the conclusion that the Bill should not be proceeded with, though I must take this opportunity of congratulating my esteemed friend, Sir Abdur Rahim, who had a better foresight than ourselves, because he, in his minute of dissent, disagreed with the majority in the Select Committee and recommended that the Bill, in its altered form, was harmless and absolutely necessary. In his opinion, the Bill, as amended by the Select Committee, considerably narrowed the opportunity for making mischief of the muallims. Though I unfortunately disagreed with him in 1932, I have had to revise my opinion.

Sir, I am a member of the Standing Central and also the Provincial Haj Committees. In the course of our deliberations in those committees, certain facts came to my knowledge which convinced me of the necessity of such a Bill as the present one before the House. The muallims or the pilgrim guides, in the majority of cases, induce the poor and illiterate pilgrims to purchase return tickets for benefiting the shipping companies from whom they get certain concessions by way of free travelling facilities. The system of muallims as pilgrim guides has got no religious sanction and there is no mention about this institution in the Shariat. I do not understand and sometimes feel puzzled as to the reason why a section of the Maulanas, who are supposed to be learned, should take up the cause of these muallims, but, in any case, to meet their views and wishes, I would like that the Bill be re-committed to the Select Committee, though, so far as I am concerned, if I had been given a free choice, I would urge the Government to proceed with the consideration of the Bill instead of its re-committal to the Select Committee. Sir, I have changed my views and have come to this firm attitude, because two of the Local Governments, such as Bengal and Bombay, have so strongly pleaded for the passing of such a measure, which, in their opinion, is a necessity for the protection of the poor pilgrim. In this connection it will not be out of place to mention here that the Governments of Bengal and Bombay are more vitally interested in this question as they handle the bulk of the Haj pilgrims through their ports. So far as this measure is concerned, public opinion seems to have been mobilised in favour of the measure as is evident from the support given to the Bill by a vast majority of vernacular newspapers all over India.

Before I conclude, Sir, I would like to bring to the notice of the House that the Bengal Government is so much convinced about the mischievous doings of these muallims that they suggested to the Government of India to give them necessary permission to have a provincial legislation on this subject in case the Government of India found it difficult to have an All-India legislation. Last, but not the least, important factor to be taken into consideration by this House is that about two-thirds of the total number of pilgrims from India that visit Hedjaz annually go from Bengal alone and, therefore, the opinion of the Bengal Government on this subject deserves the most serious and careful consideration. I think, Sir, when this measure is passed, it will be a landmark in the history of the Haj pilgrims.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad (Patna and Chota Nagpur cum Orissa : Muhammadan) : May I know whether the information about new facts which my Honourable friend has got was received through the Cypher Bureau of the Political Department or through the Education Department ?

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Order, order.

Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan (Meerut Division : Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I rise to make my few observations on this Bill. Much has been said from the other side that they are not going to accept the principle of the Bill by accepting the motion that it be re-committed to the Select Committee.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : The House has already accepted the principle of the Bill.

Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan : I am glad to hear that my friend has now admitted that he has accepted the principle of the Bill. The other point which my Honourable friend, Mr. Maswood Ahmad, made was about the Simla Conference which took place here a short time ago. Many Conferences have taken place in Simla, and I do not know to which Conference he was referring. So far as my knowledge goes, there was one Conference under the Merchant Shipping Act. When I interrupted my Honourable friend and asked him if the Conference discussed the Muallims Bill, he definitely said that he did not know, although we discussed that matter in the Standing Haj Committee and papers were supplied to all the members of the Standing Haj Committee and my friend also got them. Mr. President, the Simla Conference was absolutely beyond the scope of this Muallims Bill.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : God knows.

Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan : You also know it and I also know it. All the Members who have seen the copy of the Government Gazette which is supplied to every Member know what happened in the Simla Conference.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : We know only that much which Government wanted to disclose.

Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan : The proceedings of the Conference were confined to the framing of the rules which were published for public criticism. If my Honourable friend, Mr. Maswood Ahmad, has got any serious objection to them, we can change those rules in the Standing Haj Committee. But one folly was committed by our responsible Government that foolishly they invited in that ad hoc Committee our other Bihari friend, Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi, with whom unfortunately my friend cannot see eye to eye, and this is the chief reason of his grievance that there was no representative of the Assembly. Sir, he questioned the representative capacity of those Muslim Members who supported the Government in this measure. I want to inform the House that it is very unfair to criticise like this. All the Muslim Members, who were on the Committee, were elected ones and they represent a vast majority of the Muslims and, mind you, they are not elected by the Joint Electorate, but by Separate Electorate.

The argument has been advanced by my other friends about the publication of this Bill. Sir, we discussed this Bill on several occasions. I discussed this Bill on two occasions in a different capacity. When it came before us on the 3rd April, 1933, in the Standing Haj Committee, we recommended that we should invite the Muslim opinion thereon, and Government accepted our recommendation. The Bill was circulated to the editors of 56 Muslim newspapers, a vast majority of whom is in favour of it. Some of them have suggested certain amendments. Those newspapers, which want certain amendments, are only two in number—the Star of India, Calcutta, and the Eastern Times of Lahore. The Star of India has suggested that the definition of "Muallim", as given in the Bill, is too elastic and that it should be amended so as to set apart regular Muallims as a professional class. The Eastern Times of Lahore has expressed the opinion that a good deal would depend on how the new restrictions are worked in practice and that, when the Bill comes before the Legislature, the Muslim legislators should see that the rules are such as to preclude unfair and unduly rigorous operation of those directions. Sir, these things we can do in the Select Committee. I think, therefore, that the motion which is now before us is the most innocent and simple one. The motion is not for consideration of the Bill, but for recommitment of the Bill to the same Select Committee. About the personnel of the Select Committee, when my Honourable friend, Shaikh Sadiq Hasan, was speaking, he said that sometimes even wise people might err and he said that Sir Abdur Rahim also erred, not intentionally, but unintentionally. When I interrupted him and asked him whether he meant to say that other members of the Select Committee erred intentionally, my Honourable friend, Mr. Maswood Ahmad, jumped over and said "Yes, they have done this intentionally". It does not look well on the part of my Honourable friend, Mr. Maswood Ahmad, to question the motives of Honourable Members of this House and make personal attacks on Members who may honestly differ from him in their opinions. My Honourable friend cannot say that I am supporting this measure, because of my usual habits of supporting Government any more than I can say that my Honourable friend, Mr. Maswood Ahmad, is opposing this measure, because of his usual habit of opposing the Government and with his usual sense of publicity. My friend also suggested that only those newspapers, which got Government advertisements, supported this measure. For the information of my Honourable friend, I can mention the names of a few papers like the Inqilab and the Siyasat, the well-known papers of Lahore, which do not get Government advertisements.

[Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan.]

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : The Siyasat gets Government advertisements.

Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan : It may be, but there are other papers which support this Bill and yet they do not get Government advertisements. There is another important point which my Honourable friend said about the Bihar and Orissa Haj Committee. He said that the Government did not accept the proposal to form a Bihar and Orissa Haj Committee. It was absolutely beyond the purview of this Bill to mention that point. But I may submit for the information of the House that the Government of India consulted the Bihar and Orissa Government who said that it would be very expensive for Government to maintain a Haj Committee in Bihar and Orissa at a cost of Rs. 3,000 per year and the other side we should consider is about the actual number of pilgrims who went from Bihar and Orissa in previous years ? In 1931, the number was only 108 ; in 1932, it was only 247 ; and, when such numbers are performing Haj from Bihar and Orissa, how is it possible to form a Haj Committee ?

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : What about the year 1930 ?

Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan : My friend did not mention any figure for 1930. So far as I remember, the number might be about 500 or 600 and not more than that. What income can you get from 500 pilgrims to enable the Government to form a Haj Committee ?

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : This is not a commercial concern.

Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan : But who will pay the expenses of this Committee. Surely the Honourable Member won't pay. This proposal of forming a Haj Committee in Bihar and Orissa was not accepted in the Standing Haj Committee. I again cannot understand the criticism of my Honourable friend as regards the personnel of the Select Committee. On the Select Committee there were independent members like Sir Abdur Rahim, Maulvi Sayyid Murtuza Saheb Bahadur and Maulvi Shafee Daoodi, and you cannot suspect these gentlemen to have joined hands with the Government.

Shaikh Sadiq Hasan (East Central Punjab : Muhammadan) : What about yourself ?

Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan : I am an humble servant of my community, and the Honourable Member can form his own opinion about myself. There was a recommendation in the report of the Select Committee that the Bill should not be proceeded with at present. But there was a minute of dissent by Sir Abdur Rahim and Major Nawab Ahmad Nawaz Khan and I cannot solve the mystery why a "habitual supporter of Government" like my friend, Major Nawab Ahmad Nawaz Khan, should join hands with Sir Abdur Rahim who cannot be accused of being a supporter of Government, or vice versa.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh (Muzaffarpur cum Champaran : Non-Muhammadan) : Extremes sometimes meet.

Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan : Yes. The view of Sir Abdur Rahim was once expressed before this House when we were discussing the Port Haj Committee Bill. He said :

"I understand that these two other Bills will be brought up before the Legislature next session. Without these I do not think this committee will be able to do much to benefit the pilgrims because the Indian Merchant Shipping Act has to be amended and we have got to make provision for the protection of pilgrims against the wiles and mal-practices of pilgrim guides and brokers who sometimes call themselves muallims without being muallims at all."

My Honourable friend also attacked those who are supporting the Government saying that they were not voicing Muslim opinion at all. I can challenge my Honourable friend on this point. Whenever he divided this House on previous occasions on the two Bills in connection with the Hajis, he could not secure more than two Members of this House on his side.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : That is not correct ; not on every occasion, but only on one or two occasions.

Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan : I will give the House the exact figures. On the 16th September, 1932, when my Honourable friend divided the House, there were two on his side and 47 on the other side. Immediately after that, when he challenged a division, some one raised a point of order and requested the President that there was no necessity of going into the Lobby, but that the Honourable Members could be asked to rise in their places. When the President asked the supporters of Mr. Maswood Ahmad to rise in their places, only three persons stood up, whereas a large majority of the House were against my Honourable friend.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : If all the opinion on this measure will be in favour of Government, then why they do not circulate this Bill ?

Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan : I have said in the early part of my speech that it was already done. If this Bill is sent to the Select Committee again, they will have full power to get Muslim opinion on this Bill. With these few words, I resume my seat.

Maulvi Badi-uz-Zaman (Bhagalpur Division : Muhammadan) : I rise to oppose this motion. The Government have already forced upon us a most objectionable piece of legislation and this is another dangerous by anybody. This Bill will clear the position of the bona fide muallims—Religious preceptors in general, and others working in the Holy Lands will not be touched. It will also at the same time help the poor and unwary from being fleeced by cheats in the guise of muallims. This Bill is a move in the right direction. The Port Haj Committees alone will take cognizance at the first instance. But it seems very puerile that Mr. Sadiq Hasan, Mr. Maswood Ahmad and last, but not the least, Mr. Azahar Ali should take upon themselves to digress from the main line and bring in unnecessary things which do not form part of the religious question. It is said that the Bill is very wide. I think it is not only not wide but on the other hand it is too restricted. What trouble is there for any of these gentlemen, who occasionally pilfer men and women who go to the Haj, to get licence just to show that he is not one of those pilferers and not guilty of malpractices against whom this Bill is directed? My humble submission is that if my friends consider this matter from that point of view they would not oppose the Bill with such vehemence. It is so very easy to excite the mass mind.

1 P.M.

Certain friends have asked why Government are so solicitous about the welfare of the pilgrims and not of the pandas, and thakurs at Hindu shrines. Of course the answer is obvious, that Government as a result of great agitation and representation formed the Haj Inquiry Committee. They went to the length of spending several lakhs of rupees, and if that Committee came to the decision that some laws must be made with regard to regulating the conduct of these muallims, I am certain their objection falls to the ground. Sir, I do not think it is necessary for me to take the time of the House but my impression is that if my friends go thoroughly through the report of the Haj Inquiry Committee and look at it from a detached point of view they would not clamour so much with regard to the main provisions of this Bill. Last but not the least, Sir, it is not my business to defend Sir Abdur Rahim; I know him as a Leader of the Independent Party and a great Indian, and as a matter of fact the de facto Leader of the Opposition in this House now. And if my friends had any respect for their Leader they would not raise so much objection to this Bill going back to the Select Committee. The opinion of a gentleman like Sir Abdur Rahim is certainly to be respected, at least by Members of the Independent Party. And what does he say here? He says that perhaps it may not be possible by this Bill to stop the nefarious activities of the muallims fully. No laws are perfect and as such it is more or less a trial, and if my friends think it will injure them or that it may not be effective, it might be considered fully later on in the Select Committee. I think, Sir, Government should not have asked for recommittal of this Bill to Select Committee but they would have been wise to move that the Bill should be passed forthwith. With these words I support the motion.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai (Secretary, Department of Education, Health and Lands): Sir, after what has fallen from the Honourable the Education Member, there is nothing for me to say as regards either the merits of the motion or the merits of the Bill. If I have risen it is only to deal with one point which was made by my Honourable friend, Haji Wajihuddin. He suggested that there should be certain additions made to the Select Committee. I would repeat to him the words of my Honourable friend, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, that the Committee is already sufficiently representative and independent not to need any further addition. That is all I have to say.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad: Sir, I have to offer one word of personal explanation. Yesterday I did not object to the personnel of the men who attended the Conference, but I objected to the principle, because Government did not consult the representatives of this House, i.e., the members of the Standing Committee for Haj Pilgrimage but they took certain other people in that Conference. I did not intend to say that they were not representatives of the people; they were certainly representatives of the people, but they were not the representatives of this House. I objected yesterday to the principle and not to the personnel.

Mr. S. C. Mitra (Chittagong and Rajshahi Divisions: Non-Muhammadan Rural): Sir, I should like to submit that as Mr. Rajan Bakhsh Shah and Mr. Sayyid Murtuza Saheb are ill and have not come this Session, they may be replaced by Maulvi Badi-uz-Zaman and Mr. Uppi Saheb Bahadur.

The Honourable Khan Bahadur Mian Sir Fazl-i-Husain: I trust that the Honourable Member does not mean that they are going to be ill during the whole of the next year. This Select Committee is not intended to sit straightaway; as a matter of fact, it is intended that it should meet some weeks and possibly some months hence. And, in fact, it is intended to consult the new Port Haj Committees as well. Therefore, the deliberations of this Committee will really commence some weeks or months hence and will not be over for the next six months or so. In case the Honourable Member has information that the illness of these two gentlemen is likely to be protracted, that is of course a different matter. But otherwise I do not think there is any need to replace them.

Mr. S. C. Mitra: What I say is that Mr. Rajan Bakhsh has written to say that he has been ill for a long time and it may not be possible for him to attend, and the same is the case with Murtuza Saheb. So, I think, they may be replaced.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty): But the Honourable Member cannot assert that they will continue to be ill.

The question is:

"That the Bill to regulate the activities of persons in British India who offer to assist Muslim pilgrims to the Hedjaz, as reported by the Select Committee, be recommitted to the Select Committee."

The motion was adopted.

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till a Quarter to Three of the Clock.

[Maulvi Badi-uz-Zaman.]

measure which is going to be thrust upon us, inspite of our vehement protest against the measure. I have carefuly gone through the Bill as it has emerged from the Select Committee, and I do not find in the Bill anything which is calculated to give service to the Hajis. On the other hand, I find that it will discourage people from performing Haj.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : That is quite correct.

Maulvi Badi-uz-Zaman : Instead of doing service to the Muslim cause, this Bill is calculated to create hardship and difficulties in the way of pilgrims. The public do not want this Bill, the Muslim Ulemas do not want it and the majority of the members of the Select Committee do not want it. Some of the members of the Select Committee might have changed their opinion now, but that is a different matter altogether. But, in the Select Committee, a majority of the members did not want this Bill. Even then, it passes my comprehension why the Government are anxious to rush this Bill through this House. The Bill has been seriously condemned, both by the public and by the Muslim Ulemas, I mean the Muslim authorities on religion. I see no justification whatsoever on the part of Government to push through the Bill with so much indecent haste. For my part I am opposed to the very principle of the Bill. It is curious that the person who offers to assist any person in any matter concerned with the Haj should be considered as an undesirable person. I do not know why there should be this suspicion against this class of people. Is there any regular case against any muallim to show that a particular muallim cheated or defrauded a Haji ? I submit there is no such case. I myself happened to go to the Holy Land to perform my Haj and I am expected to have some experience regarding the activities of the muallims. There are muallims in Mecca also. Their duty is to look after the comforts of the Hajis and also to assist them in the performance of their duties, I mean their religious rites and ceremonies, connected with the Haj. They are a recognised class of persons there. In consideration of their services to the Hajis, they are paid some sort of fee. If I remember aright, it is something like Rs. 6 per head. So far as my province of Bihar is concerned, there is a registered muallim there, and it is that person only who can serve the Bihar Hajis. But, for other provinces, there is no registered muallim, but there are muallims who are recognised by the Hedjaz Government and whose fees are prescribed by the Government there. Now, the muallims, who come to India to assist the Hajis, are either these persons or their agents or relatives. My experience is that they render invaluable services to the Hajis. They regularly attend the Hajis, they look after their comforts, make arrangements for their departure to the Holy Land and sometimes they do the work of coolies also. In short, they afford all possible facilities to the Hajis in their journey, and they not only afford these facilities, but they are also helpful in giving instructions to the Hajis regarding the performance of their religious duties, because the Haj does not consist of a single prayer or anything of that kind, but it is a combination of many acts from the time of the departure to the end of the Haj. The combination of all these acts is the Haj. My experience is that these muallims who come to British India do not take anything from the Hajis in India. I happened to go to the Holy Land in 1930. They did not charge anything in India. In my company, there were lots of poor Hajis. None of them made any complaint to me about these muallims ; but, on the other hand, they were very thankful to them. So my submission is that : without the assistance of these people, it is very difficult for the Indians to perform Haj. So, if this Bill be passed into law, it will only discourage Muslims from performing Haj which is a most essential thing for Muslims who can afford to go to the Holy Land.

It is one of the four duties which are enjoined upon the Muslims. One of them is the regular prayer for five times, another is fasting, the third is zakat which means giving away one-fortieth part of savings to charity, and the fourth is this Haj which is incumbent upon those who can afford to do it. It is strange that on this class of people you are going to impose restrictions and numerous conditions and you are giving both to the Central Government and to the Local Governments extensive powers regulating the activities of the muallims, on whom, they are at liberty to put any sort of restrictions. First, they have to obtain a licence. I fail to see what is the necessity for this licence. And, then, in order to obtain this licence, they have to go here and there, which is a cumbrous process ; and for that they have to pay some fee. It is strange that this bona-fide class of persons who are really very helpful to the Hajis should be made to pay fees. Sir, I am told that the number of Hajis in Bihar has decreased to a great extent on account of these restrictions and registration of muallims. My Honourable friend, Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan, who was a member of the Select Committee, has chosen to change his views. He says there was sufficient circulation of this Bill as it was published in various papers. Sir, we know very well that each paper has got a certain policy of its own. Some papers are habitual supporters of Government, while some are supporters of the nationalist movement ; and, certainly, the papers which my friend relies upon are those which are pledged to support the Government. It is curious that although the Select Committee did not find its way to recommend this Bill, but, on the other hand, recommended its withdrawal ; yet Government have brought it up again with so much indecent haste. Now, looking at clause 6, we find, it is intended to punish persons who employ themselves in advising or assisting pilgrims. This is what it says :

> " Whoever, not being a licensed pilgrim guide, for a consideration or in the hope of a reward, advises or assists, or offers to advise or assist, any pilgrim other than a relative or friend, in any matter connected with the pilgrimage, " etc.

The words " any matter connected with the pilgrimage " are very significant. Even if a person advises or assists a pilgrim in any matter connected with the pilgrimage, he will come under this clause and be punished and his punishment is three months' imprisonment. Another thing is clause 7 of the Bill which reads thus :

> " Where it appears to any Court before which any person is being tried for an offence under section 6 that the accused has advised or assisted, or offered to advise or assist, any pilgrim who is not his relative or friend, and no consideration is proved, the Court may presume that the accused acted in the hope of a reward."

This is a very mischievous piece of legislation. It is curious that any service, which a man thinks fit to offer to the Hajis, raises a presumption that he did it in the hope of getting some illegal gratification. This is the most objectionable feature of the Bill. Every Muslim has some sort of respect for his own region, and it is quite possible that the person, who offers himself to help and assist the Hajis at the port of embarkation, may do so out of 12 Noon.

[Mr. Muhammad Muazzam Sahib Bahadur.]

Now, Sir, looking to clauses 6 and 7, I think I shall be failing in my duty if I do not point out to the House that those clauses, as they stand, are a piece of positive mischief and not a piece of legislation. Clause 6 reads thus :

"Whoever, not being a licensed pilgrim guide for a consideration or in the hope of a reward, advises or assists, or offers to advise or assist, any pilgrim other than a relative or friend, in any matter connected with the pilgrimage, other than the performance of religious rites and ceremonies relating thereto, shall be punishable with imprisonment," etc.

Now, Sir, my objection is, you have not attempted to define the word "friend". That is a word which carries a certain significance in our minds. Whether you circumscribe certain limits, within which a certain person could be called a friend or whether anybody or every body or any one who meets you for the first time you could call a friend, is not evident from the clause, so that it comes to this, that unless you attempt a definition of the word "friend" in clause 6, it will continue to be, as I said, a piece of positive mischief and not a piece of legislation, and, if the clause, as it stands, is incorporated in the Statute-book, it will be a standing disgrace to the legislation of this country. I would illustrate my point this way. My friend, Maulvi Badi-uz-Zaman, has just told us that he has performed the Haj pilgrimage. He is a Hajee. He is fully conversant, not only with the religious rites and ceremonies, but with everything that matters on the journey to and from Mecca. If I happen to have a friend, who intends proceeding on a pilgrimage to Mecca, seeking my advice—though I am quite willing to help him, but not having performed Haj myself,—I take my friend to Maulvi Badi-uz-Zaman who sees him for the first time, and the Maulvi Saheb offers my friend some advice as to how he should conduct himself on the voyage to and from Mecca. Now, as the clause stands at present, my friend, Maulvi Badi-uz-Zaman, will come under its purview that moment. That is exactly the position. I am not exaggerating the position at all. That is the only possible position under this clause. I ask my friend, Mr. Bajpai, whether he would allow this clause to stand as it is ? I understand from the speech he made that that is not his desire. His idea is that the clause should be so recast by re-committing the Bill to the Select Committee that, when it emerges from the Select Committee, the stigma or the slur that attached to it now may be removed. That is his idea. On that ground, I support the motion for re-committal of the Bill to the Select Committee. I don't think I need say anything further, so far as the present motion is concerned. I heartily support my friend's motion.

Khan Bahadur Haji Wajihuddin (Cities of the United Provinces : Muhammadan Urban) : Sir, while I support the motion moved by my Honourable friend, Mr. Bajpai, to re-commit the Bill to the Select Committee, I would suggest that a few more names should be added to the Select Committee so as to remove the differences as regards certain provisions of the Bill and, with a view to solving the problem more satisfactorily, I propose that the names of Sir Abdulla-al-Mámún Suhrawardy, Maulvi Badi-uz-Zaman, Mr. Uppi Saheb Bahadur and Khan Sahib Shaikh Fazal Haq Piracha be added to the same Select Committee. With these few words, I support the motion.

Mr. Muhammad Azhar Ali (Lucknow and Fyzabad Divisions : Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, in this unfortunate question of muallims, some principles have been enunciated which, I think, can be regarded as interference with our religion. Why all this anxiety, and all this haste on the part of the Government to legislate about the agency of Muslim Haj and its ceremonies ? I do not see any restrictions or any rules or any legislation about the agency which carries on the performance of such ceremonies either in Jerusalem or in Baghdad. Even here, in India, have Government legislated for any of the agencies for pilgrims proceeding to Puri or to the Ganges ? Sir, I shudder to find that such legislation is intended merely to restrict the performance of Haj for Mussalmans and it is nothing less than that. This is not the first time that I rise to speak on this question, but, when an allied question was before the House on the last occasion, I repeated the same thing, and from the figures that we find quoted elsewhere and I know it also for a fact that the number of pilgrims proceeding to Hedjaz is getting very small. If there are muallims who give their advice to people proceeding on Hāj or if there are muallims created by the Hajis themselves, how does it matter to the Government or to any people, and why should they show so much anxiety ? Sir, the duty of a muallim is merely to guide the people from India to Mecca and other places of pilgrimage, to tell intending pilgrims what are the regular rites and what are the ceremonies which they have to perform, and so on, at the Haj in Hedjaz. Therefore, I ask, how does it affect any relation of the Government of India with any power or even the international relations with the Government of Hedjaz ? Sir, a muallim has got his own clientele, just as a panda or a mahant in this country has his clientele. What those pandas and mahants do, I leave it to my Hindu friends to tell this House. If you want to hang them here, I shall have no objection whatever, and if the Government of Hedjaz want to hang these muallims in their own country, I shall have not the least objection. I am neither a friend of the muallims nor of the pandas, but I want to know why the Government of India should be so anxious to restrain the movements and actions of those people who come to assist in the pilgrimage to the Hedjaz. Such restrictions on the muallims and the pandas, or, for the matter of that, on any people who wish to assist, are very objectionable, not only from the legal point of view as my Honourable friend, Mr. Muazzam Sahib Bahadur, has suggested, but also because they affect the freedom of action of the citizens of this country generally and of the Muslims of India especially. By these restrictions, you create a class of people who will have to hang on the members of Government, whether they be members of the Government of India or members of Provincial Governments. They would have to seek their assistance for nomination, for appointments, for licences, and every other blessed thing. You know in what way these things will be worked. Why don't you give the pilgrims the liberty to decide upon their own agents, their own men to assist them in their pilgrimage ? For example, you see how the agents of hotels, etc., come to the station in Simla and at other railway stations to canvas for their clientele. Have you framed any rules against these people ? I submit, not. Then, where is the necessity for you to regulate for those who want to go to the Haj ? Let the Government of the Hedjaz make their own regulations and frame their own laws on the subject. If this action is persisted in by the Government, the Mussalmans of India will be forced not to take any help from those whom they like ; but they may also say : "We shall go and search out our own agents in the land of the Hedjaz". I am not to be guided in my religion by my Leader, Sir Abdur Rahim, or by Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan ; it is a matter of right with me, I have my own rights and my own beliefs. There may be people appointed by the Government as muallims, qazis or muftis, but I have the right and the liberty to regulate my own religious actions and civil rights. Nothing should come between my God and myself. It is indeed also a matter of charity to a Mussalman. A Mussalman thinks that if he supports a certain muallim, it is a religious act. It is not a question of performing ceremonies only ; it is also a question of doing charity and thus doing a religious act. With these words, I submit, that the Bill should not be re-committed to the Select Committee, but that it should go for circulation.

The Honourable Khan Bahadur Mian Sir Fazl-i-Husain (Member for Education, Health and Lands) : Sir, I did not expect that the motion that is before the House would evoke the discussion that it has done, and I did not realise that now-a-days memories were so short that the history of this measure would be more or less as it were a matter of archæology.

Sir Abdulla-al-Mámún Suhrawardy (Burdwan and Presidency Divisions : Muhammadan Rural) : Like the history of the Constitution.

The Honourable Khan Bahadur Mian Sir Fazl-i-Husain : Yes. Therefore, I would ask the indulgence of the House just for a few moments to state how we have reached the present stage in this particular matter. I think it was in the year 1928 that this House appointed the Haj Enquiry Committee. That Committee took about a year or so to make a report. It consisted of Members of the Central Legislature and one outsider. They were all Mussalmans except for the Chairman. Their report was mostly unanimous. One part of the report was to the following effect. There are serious complaints as to the pilgrim guides' operations in India, that is to say, before embarking, inasmuch as it is alleged that some of them cheat and maltreat the ignorant class of Hajis. That cheating and maltreating is not with reference to any religious rites, but with reference to purchasing of tickets, railway or ship tickets, with reference to purchases of food, and purchases of other things, and in the matter of accounts. I think I am right in saying that as to the existence of these complaints there are no two opinions. There may be differences of opinion as to the cause of these complaints. I have tried to find out what possible explanation there can be as to the existence of these complaints, and why these complaints exist. I have been able to find one man who says that these complaints are altogether unfounded. All guides are good, helpful, honest and straightforward, and that complaints do exist but they are due to the fact that the average Indian pilgrim is very miserly and stingy. He welcomes all the services these pilgrim guides render to him but when the time comes for paying them, he is very miserly and would like to pay half the sum that is really due, with the result that the pilgrim guide is offended and when he is offended he makes a row and he extracts the balance of what he considers his due and the Haji says, the pilgrim guides are a bad lot. This gentleman was, I should say, an advocate of pilgrim guides, saying that they are perfectly in the right, that the Hajis are in the wrong and the existence of complaints is due to what he calls the inherent defect of character in the average Indian pilgrim who wants to receive services but not make adequate payment for them. I am not in a position to say whether this gentleman who represented the cause of the pilgrim guides very, strongly to me is in the right or not but the vast majority I came across have said that there are pilgrim guides and pilgrim guides. Some of them are good. Some of them are bad. The bad ones do maltreat the pilgrims. They do cheat them and such instances have occurred and they are given currency to and the pilgrim guides have got a bad name. Therefore, I assume that so far as the existence of complaints goes, the Haj Inquiry Committee were in the right, that in all probability the explanation that there are some who are good and some who are not good is also the correct one. So we arrive at the position that there is certain grievance based on really unsatisfactory pilgrim guides operating in India, that it is desirable in the interest not of the Muslims of the status, knowledge and position of the Members of this House but of their ignorant poor brethren who are not in a position to cope with men with wide experience, sharper intellect and greater knowledge of the world who can impose themselves upon these untravelled ignorant Indian Muslims who in their anxiety to go to Hedjaz fall victims to the unscrupulous character of some of these pilgrim guides. I think, Sir, on this point also there will be no difference of opinion even amongst those who have spoken on the subject, that is to say the desirability of taking such action as is possible or as it is practicable to take in order to remove this defect. There are some who feel that it is not possible to eradicate this defect by legislation. There are others who feel that no doubt legislation may not eradicate it altogether but it may go some length in counteracting the fraudulent acts or deceitful acts of these pilgrim guides. I do not think I am really called upon now to say that a law, if eventually passed, will stamp it out altogether, but I think the House will agree with me that it is a matter which is worth trying.

This Bill was introduced as long ago as March, 1932. It was referred to a Select Committee and a very strong Select Committee, which sat in the summer of 1932 and thrashed out the whole thing. They arrived at their decisions which are incorporated in the revised Bill that was laid on the table of the House but when we had finished our labours some of us, in fact most of us, felt that the Bill was not as definite as we desired it to be. It appeared to us that it probably would cover many cases that we would rather exclude from the purview of the Bill and in the second place that there were cases which we would like to provide against which were not covered by the provisions of the Bill. Therefore, the majority of the Select Committee said that the Bill that we had eventually brought out be not for the present proceeded with. Some thought that the Bill, as it had been thrashed out, was a good Bill and, therefore, they wanted to proceed with it, with the result that Government decided to act on the advice of the majority, and not forthwith proceed with the Bill. It was laid on the table of the House I think last February and then the question for Government to decide was what to do with it. The advice was " do not proceed with it for the present ". A strong minority consisting of Sir Abdur Rahim and another Member said " Proceed with it as it is ". The next step that Government took was to consult the Standing Haj Committee. Their advice was, " let us have the opinion of the Muslim Press and the Muslim public ". So the Bill was sent round to all the papers whether they were in receipt of Government advertisements or not, whether they were pro-Government or anti-Government. How can you say that the Press like other public people are pro-Government or anti-Government without referring to a particular date. Is that not so ? People with open minds, as we are in India, can change our minds like other people. We may hold an opinion for a measure today and next week we may hold a different opinion. Therefore it would have been rash on the part of my Department to refuse circulation of this measure to a paper on the assumption that yesterday it was anti-Government, for who knows that it may not tomorrow be pro-Government. I am not one of those who are pessimistic about change of opinion. I always hope and trust that if my opinion is the right one, those who do not share my views today may do so tomorrow.

Mr. B. R. Puri (West Punjab : Non-Muhammadan) : You may change your view also.

The Honourable Khan Bahadur Mian Sir Fazl-i-Husain : Yes, but I would prefer to put it the other way. The result was that when all these opinions were actually received we found that those who stood out against the Bill were not more than three. One of them was the Al Jamiat of Delhi which some people allege has been for a long time non-co-operating and holding views about civil disobedience of a very extremist nature, though I hear that recently it has had occasion to modify its views in the light of the new circumstances that appear to have come into being. Therefore, there was a very strong opinion in support of the Bill and yet at that time there were two courses open to Government to adopt. One was to proceed with the Bill and the other was not to proceed with it but to have it recommitted to the Select Committee with a view to enable all the suggestions that had been made during this canvassing of public opinion to be discussed in the Select Committee in the light of the criticism received and to see if it were prepared to modify the Bill or not. I thought, as I said, at the very beginning of my remarks, that this was a reasonable course to adopt and that there would hardly be any objection from any part of the House to this being done. Why, then, this occasion has been availed of to enter into a discussion in which two or three things have been prominently brought out. One is the usual argument that the Shariat is in danger ; you are legislating about religion and therefore we are on principle opposed to any legislation of the kind. Well, Sir, I understand this line of argument but I must frankly state that I do not agree with it nor do I want to encourage it. Situated as Muslims are in India, for us to take the line that everything relating to Haj even though it be a case of transport from the home of the Haji to Bombay is a religious matter, neither for the present Government nor for any other Government that one can conceive of in India, would it be possible to make any proper and suitable arrangements. The matter of this Pilgrims' Guides Bill is not a religious matter ; it is a matter of protecting the ignorant against the professional men, some of whom are strongly believed to be not what they ought to be. Therefore, the legislation contemplated is one of the ordinary kind protecting the weak against the more clever to such an extent as the State can. The second argument is that Haj has a great significance of which the British Government is very much afraid and therefore the British Government has conceived a plan of having a number of laws made relating to Haj, the effect of which would be that people will not go to perform their Haj. The Haj will die out and the Muslims will not proceed to Hedjaz. It is really to make a statement on this point that I ventured to ask you, Sir, to let me speak. So far as I know, as a Member in charge of this Department, there is not the slightest foundation for this suspicion. My policy is to do all that can reasonably be done to afford comfort and protection to the pilgrims, to give them all facilities that it is possible to give and to make their trip to Hedjaz as comfortable and as little expensive as possible. And why ? Firstly, because it is the religious duty of the Mussalmans who can afford to perform the Haj and why should I or the Government of which I am a Member stand in the way of that being done. Secondly, I, in common with most of the Members of this Assembly, believe that a travelled person is a much better citizen than an untravelled person.

Tá bá du'kkàn-i-kháná dar girvi.

Hargiz aí khám ! ádmi nah shavi.

As long as you are confined within your own house, you will never never really attain maturity. That is the reason why this House always likes a large number of its Members to proceed to England now and then.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt (Burdwan Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : At the expense of the Government.

The Honourable Khan Bahadur Mian Sir Fazl-i-Husain : No, no ; you must not indulge in insinuations. And Haj affords unique opportunities of benefiting by travel by making people come in contact with people of other countries. If you simply go as Cook's tourists, you can only visit particular countries, one after the other, at a tremendous expense to yourself. But if you go to perform your Haj, inasmuch as a very large number of people from different countries have travelled to the same destination, you have the benefit of meeting not only the people of Hedjaz but people from all parts of the world. Now, that is a civic advantage, an advantage which all Hajis bring back to India not only for their own personal benefit, not only for their own religious benefit, but I call it also a civic benefit. In other words, their horizon and outlook are widened by rubbing their shoulders with people from different countries, which, in itself, is a great asset to them. Therefore, how is it possible that I or this House should countenance in any way the policy of restricting the movements of Muslim Hajis to Hedjaz ? There is not the slightest sense in that policy.

Mr. Muhammad Azhar Ali : Are you afraid of Pan-Islamism ?

The Honourable Khan Bahadur Mian Sir Fazl-i-Husain : The Honourable Member from the United Provinces is talking of Pan-Islamism.

Mr. Muhammad Azhar Ali : I do not talk.

The Honourable Khan Bahadur Mian Sir Fazl-i-Husain : You have put me that question. There is nothing to be ashamed of in that.

Mr. Muhammad Azhar Ali : I am not at all ashamed to have put that question.

The Honourable Khan Bahadur Mian Sir Fazl-i-Husain : I turn from him to the right and look at my Honourable friend, Sir Abdulla Suhrawardy, who was believed at one time to be the prophet of Pan-Islamism in India and, with whom, I have been in intimate touch ever since this young prophet came from London via Egypt to Lahore where I had the pleasure of having him nominated as the Principal of the Islamia College of which Institution I was the Secretary. Therefore, so far as the Pan-Islamic movement in India and, for the matter of that, in the world is concerned, probably in this House, after Sir Abdulla Suhrawardy, I know more than any other Member does. When I say I know more, I mean not only the outward expression of it, but the inward significance too. Sir, Pan-Islam of which young Muslim India dreamt years ago was never more than a myth and today, there are not even the ashes left of that myth. Therefore those Honourable Members who imagine that there is a bogey of Pan-Islamism of which Europe is frightened, I am afraid they are suffering from some hallucination or delusion. I assure the House, I do not think the House needs that assurance, but if a few Members are still dreaming of Pan-Islamism, I say they had better make up their minds to stand on their own legs in India as Indians. (Hear, hear.) The utmost they can do in that line is to make up their minds to proceed to Haj as soon as they have enough money to do so.

[Khan Bahadur Mian Sir Fazl-i-Husain.]

Shaikh Sadiq Hasan : Will the Honourable Member do the same ?

The Honourable Khan Bahadur Mian Sir Fazl-i-Husain : When I see the Honourable Member come back safe and an improved man after performing the Haj, I shall do so. I trust these few observations I have made will assure the Honourable Members, that there is no foundation for the suspicion of those who have been saying that Government want to stop people proceeding to Haj. I trust these suspicious Members possess the zeal and enthusiasm for Haj more than is possessed by others. When I, on the floor of this House, ask them to take the earliest opportunity of proceeding to Haj surely it cannot be said that the Government of India want to discourage pilgrimage and I trust that the request I have made to them, they will in their turn make to those outside this House who can afford to make the pilgrimage. Having said that I need say nothing more and I trust that the motion before the House will be passed unanimously and I further hope that the committee will be in a position to thrash out a Bill which will save the ignorant Indian Muslims from such losses to which they have been liable in the past and thus encourage others to proceed to Haj instead of discouraging them. (Applause.)

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Honourable Member, Mr. Muhammad Azhar Ali, has just handed in notice of an amendment. But the Honourable Member knows that he has already taken part in the debate and he has lost the right of moving his amendment.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad (United Provinces Southern Divisions : Muhammadan Rural) : I say at the very outset that the Honourable Member in charge of this Bill has as much right to speak on behalf of Muslim community as any other elected Muslim Member of this House. (Hear, hear.) He commands the confidence of the Muslims as much, if not more, as any other person. I also say at the outset that those Members of the Legislature whose names are found amongst the Members of the Select Committee are as much true representatives of Muslims as others whose names are not there. We have as much confidence in them as we have confidence in those who are not members of the Select Committee. Therefore, this point is quite clear that there is no question of confidence or no-confidence in the members of the Select Committee. All of us have got at heart the interests of Mussalmans for whose benefit this legislation is intended and there is no question of attributing motives. One thing I always emphasised that, it is the duty of every Government to protect the interests of its subjects, their lives, their properties and their personal rights, in India and outside India ; and it is on account of this plea that we always demanded that life and property and other rights of Indians in South Africa and other places should be protected. I think a Government will fail in its duty, if it did not protect the life and property and privileges of its own subjects in every part of the globe. That I think is quite legitimate. But the wordings of the Bill as it is drafted really go much wider than what was intended and I hope that the Select Committee would look into the matter. As far as I can see I suggest that the operation of this Bill should be restricted to the legitimate protection of the rights of the pilgrims and their lives and properties during their pilgrimage, and not interfere in personal laws of Mussalmans. I hope that this point will be taken into consideration by the Select Committee and I hope that the terms of the Bill which are so wide will be restricted. I believe we should give an opportunity to our colleagues in whom we have full confidence to consider this matter, and take into consideration the views that have been expressed on this Bill by Muslim public. There was a suggestion made by my friend, Khan Bahadur Haji Wajihuddin, that if the Honourable Member in charge of the Bill may find convenient, he may add three more members to the Select Committee. I do not object to this proposal. But I find that the Select Committee, as it is constituted at present, has got a sufficiently large number of trustworthy Muslims on the Committee. So, if we add more members it would be adding more sugar to a thing which is already sweet and I would welcome it.

Mr. Muhammad Anwar-ul-Azim (Chittagong Division : Muhammadan Rural) : It is hardly necessary for me after the Honourable Member in charge of the Bill has spoken and has replied to the various objections raised by some of my Honourable friends to speak at length. I am very much grateful to my Honourable friend, Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan, for clearing up certain matters with which I too was connected. I am told that both my Honourable friend, Shaikh Sadiq Hasan, and our new friend, Mr. Maswood Ahmad, questioned the propriety of Government in calling my humble self, Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan and Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi for advice in the matter of draft rules under the Merchant Shipping Act passed in Delhi this year. It was very nice of my Honourable friend, Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan, to have told Mr. Maswood Ahmad that the remarks which the latter made on the floor of this House at Delhi were considered by the ad hoc Committee of which we were members. It was unfortunate for us and for Government that my Honourable friend, Mr. Maswood Ahmad, could not spare time at home to come and join this Committee. Before my Honourable friend, Mr. Maswood Ahmad, said so many unkind things with regard to that Committee I should have liked him very much to see first of all whether the objections that he raised during the last Delhi Session were not gone into by Government and how far they were modified and whether the objections for which my Honourable friend, Mr. Maswood Ahmad, put up such a bold fight during the last Delhi Session were not substantially removed and the suggestions made by him embodied in the rules that we framed. Coming to the subject matter of this small Bill it appears that my Honourable friend has confused the whole issue altogether. It has absolutely nothing to do with Muslim religion. I am an humble follower of that religion and hailing as I do from Eastern Bengal, which is not unknown to my friend, Shaik Sadiq Hasan, he knows how orthodox we are and how bitterly we feel if anything touching our religion is done by anybody or even hinted at religious consideration ; and, if they give any advice or any instruction to the Hajis, that action would be construed as an offence. Certainly this is the most objectionable feature of the Bill. So far as I have been able to gather from the provisions of this Bill and from the unlimited power which the Central and Local Governments are going to have under this Bill, the object of the Government seems to be to discourage Haj for the Muslims in India. Except that, there is no other motive. With these remarks, I oppose the reference motion.

Major Nawab Ahmad Nawaz Khan (Nominated Non-Official) : Sir, I wish to say a few words in support of the motion. It was said yesterday by some of my Honourable friends that there was some special intention of the Government in introducing this Bill. It is well known to many Members of this House that this Bill was taken up on the recommendations of the Muslim Members of the Haj Enquiry Committee. Evidently, Government have nothing to do with this question, whether religious or social ; and every Member of the House can see that it deals with the religious question of the Muslim community only. Politically, the Government cannot have any advantage whether this Bill is passed or is thrown out. It is the first impression which I wish to remove from the minds of Mussalmans who are labouring under this delusion that it is not the Muslim community who wish to have this Bill passed, but it is the Government. It is sometimes said by those people who are working under the influence of some propaganda that the Government wish to stop the pilgrims from going to Mecca. But, I say, it is politically wrong to think so. If you stop a few hundred or thousand pilgrims, the majority of whom are illiterate and poor, evidently what advantage can the Government have ? None at all. The Government are not so foolish as to do any political action without getting any advantage from it. If a few persons, illiterate and poor, do not go to Mecca, what advantage can the Government have, especially when the King of Mecca is very friendly with us ? So, it is a wrong impression to have, and the history of the case shows that it was the Muslims only who pressed the Government to do something for them ; and, if the Government would not have done it, then they would all have blamed the Government for sitting silently and doing nothing. But, if the Government do anything, then another class of people, who are not the champions of Islam, but the advocates of some Maulvis—I do not say all the Maulvis—come and blame the Government again for doing these things.

The aim and object of this Bill is so good that every Muslim or even a non-Muslim will agree that the object is to save the poor people from cheating, deception and robbery. It is, in the opinion of every one, a greater sin to deceive a person under cover of religion, especially if he is illiterate. If a man comes under the guise of a friend and then turns out to be an enemy, it is more miserable and objectionable than if he plainly comes to you and tells you that he is an enemy. If the muallims or guides, whose duty it is to help the poor people, start cheating and robbing people, then, in my humble opinion, they should be dealt with more strictly than the ordinary cheat. This Bill does not interfere with good muallims or others who are good. The object of the Bill is simply that those persons who do all such objectionable things must be punished. It is quite simple. If the Muslims or Maulvis do not like this thing, it shows that they are more sympathisers with Islam : they have no sympathy with good thin

I say, it is the duty of us, Mussalmans, to make the law and those who become reformers must have the courage to be criticised by Maulvis or others who are taking undue advantage of the pilgrims. We are not going to stop the Muslims from doing what is their religious duty. This Bill is not going to interfere with bonâ fide people at all. This Bill is so good that every Muslim and non-Muslim should support this motion and this Bill. Those Honourable Members, who have opposed this Bill, do not have one-tenth of the confidence of the Muslim community as is possessed by persons like Sir Abdur Rahim and Sir Fazl-i-Husain. These two persons are too well known to Muslims as their supporters, and, when you find them supporting a measure, it is a guarantee that that Bill or law is very useful to our community.

The present motion for sending this Bill back to Select Committee is such a good proposal that there can be no objection to it. If anybody thinks that some words should be altered or modified, it can be done in the Committee after discussion and something better can be put in. Mr. Maswood Ahmad, who was a member of that Committee, himself says :

"We think that the Bill has not been so altered as to require re-publication."

He himself said this two months ago and now advocates that it should be circulated. No useful purpose would be served by re-circulation at all, and these people, who oppose mostly, are priest-ridden ; they have not got the moral courage to go against the few priests or the Press. I, therefore, support the motion for sending this Bill to the Select Committee.

Mr. Muhammad Muazzam Sahib Bahadur (North Madras : Muhammadan) : Sir, if there was one motion made in this House for reference to a Select Committee on which there could be no two opinions, I think it is the one before us and, as such, I say, it is pre-eminently deserving of our support. After all, what is it that the Bill is attempting to do ? It attempts to carry into effect the unanimous conclusion at which the Clayton Committee or the Haj Inquiry Committee had arrived. That Committee, in coming to that unanimous conclusion, pointed out that muallims or pilgrim guides were fleecing intending pilgrims, and the effect of such fleecing was that intending pilgrims found that before they could embark on the journey, they had lost even the little they had saved for the journey, and so, to provide a check against the activities of such pilgrim guides, the Haj Inquiry Committee very rightly came to the conclusion at which they arrived.

Sir, in the course of the debate on this motion, my friend, Mr. Maswood Ahmad, unfortunately strayed far beyond the scope of the debate and made certain remarks which, I should have thought, he should not have made on any account, at least on the floor of the House. He went the length of making very strong remarks against Mussalmans who were in the habit of shaving their beard. He even went the length of saying that Muhammadans, who shaved their beards, were not Mussalmans. I wonder, Sir, whether my friend himself is in the category of Mussalmans, and I say this, because I believe that, if I am using the Valet Safety to have my shave every morning, my friend, I think, uses the Zero Number Clipper—that probably is the only difference. Such remarks on the floor of the House, Sir, in matters relating to religion, are to be deprecated very strongly, and I wish that my friend, Mr. Maswood Ahmad, refrains from making such remarks in future.

The Assembly re-assembled after Lunch at a Quarter to Three of the Clock, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) in the Chair.

THE NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : Sir, I beg to move :

"That the Bill further to amend the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881, for a certain purpose, as passed by the Council of State, be taken into consideration."

Sir, this is a very small measure which has, however, a somewhat long history. I think if my friends opposite would study the measure carefully and the recommendations of the Banking Inquiry Committee on the subject, they would find that the Bill, as at present drafted, gives exact effect, or as nearly as possible, exact effect to the recommendations of the Banking Inquiry Committee. The object of this Bill is to protect Banks and the public in respect of endorsements on cheques which are on the face of them payable to bearer. It says :

"Where a cheque is originally expressed to be payable to bearer, the drawee is discharged by payment in due course to the bearer thereof, notwithstanding any endorsement whether in full or in blank appearing thereon, and notwithstanding that any such endorsement purports to restrict or exclude further negotiation."

The necessity for a measure of this kind to protect bankers really dates from a judgment given by the Bombay High Court in 1924, a judgment which decided that a Hundi which on the face of it was payable to bearer but bore an endorsement restricting its bearer character had thereby changed its character. That judgment was a very upsetting judgment to Banks which had hitherto only regarded the nature of the document as it appeared on the face of it. The decision was then taken to legislate and to make the provisions of the present Bill applicable both to Hundis and to cheques. That led to a great deal of discussion, and eventually after the measure had come forward on several occasions, it was decided to withdraw it and await the recommendations of the Banking Inquiry Committee on the matter. The Central Banking Inquiry Committee dealt with this matter in paragraph 564 of their Report, and their recommendation is as follows :

"The question has been fully considered by the Provincial Committees and some of them have recommended that the Negotiable Instruments Act should be amended so as to provide that cheques originally drawn to bearer would, despite any endorsement, retain their character as bearer instruments. We concur in this recommendation. We also approve of the recommendation made by the Madras Committee that any holder of a cheque should have the right to alter the character of the cheque from 'bearer' to 'order' on the face of it and that the alteration should be supported by the name of the drawer or holding endorser who makes the alteration. It should not, however, be altered by endorsement on the back of the cheque. We further recommend that Hundis which are drawn in the form of cheques should be treated similarly. We are not, however, in favour of interfering with the existing practice in regard to other Hundis and do not recommend that the practice 'once a bearer, always a bearer' should be made applicable to such Hundis."

Now, Sir, in making their final recommendation the Banking Inquiry Committee were really meeting the objections which have been raised to the measure which had been formally proposed by the Government, and in substance we have in this Bill given exact effect to the recommendations of the Central Banking Inquiry Committee, that is to say, this Bill which embodies the principle of 'once a bearer document always a bearer document' only applies to cheques and not to Hundis. Now, Sir, I believe that, having met that point, there is nothing which any Member of the House could object to in this Bill, but I see that there is down on the Order Paper an amendment in the name of my friend, Mr. S. C. Mitra, to the effect that the Bill should be referred to a Select Committee. This measure has waited for a long time to come to birth, and as it has waited from 1927 to 1933 and as the whole of the banking machinery of the country has not been paralysed by the defect in the present position, I do not think it can be argued that a further delay of two or three months would be of very serious import. Therefore, if there is any feeling on the part of Honourable Members opposite that they want more time to consider this Bill and they would like to examine it in detail in the Select Committee, I on behalf of the Government would not object to that course. But I would put it to the House that I am quite satisfied in my own mind that the delay is unnecessary and that the hour or so which the Select Committee will spend in going into this question will really be wasted ; but if Honourable Members feel that they would like the delay, I am quite prepared to accept the motion for reference to Select Committee. I do not think I need say any more on this motion in order to explain its object. Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Motion moved :

"That the Bill further to amend the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881, for a certain purpose, as passed by the Council of State, be taken into consideration."

Mr. S. C. Mitra (Chittagong and Rajshahi Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I move :

"That the Bill be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Honourable the Finance Member, the Honourable the Law Member, Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya, Mr. B. R. Puri, Mr. Muhammad Muazzam Sahib Bahadur, Mr. K. C. Neogy, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah, Sir Leslie Hudson, Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan, Dr. Francis Xavier DeSouza, Mr. Lalchand Navalrai and the Mover, with instructions to report before the 30th November, 1933, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

Sir, I agree with the Honourable the Finance Member that the scope of this Bill has been much curtailed by excluding Hundis from coming under the scope of the present Bill. I also thank the Finance Member for saying that he has no objection to this Bill being referred to a Select Committee. I have consulted some friends on this side of the House and they feel that this matter should be further considered. The main point is this. Here, in India, we have two kinds of cheques, one, the order cheques and the other bearer cheques. As regards order cheques, they do not come under the purview of this Bill ; it only deals with bearer cheques. The custom in countries, where there is an advanced system of banking, is that a bearer cheque is negotiable even without a signature. But here, even though it be a bearer cheque, the banks require endorsement with a signature on the back of it. Not to say of cheques, even Government currency notes for Rs. 10, not to speak of notes of higher denomination, people demand to be signed and endorsed on the back. It has become almost a custom with the public even in bearer cheques to require endorsement on the back. In the interests of the banking system, it may be necessary that we shall have to gradually go back to the more advanced practice of the West that once a bearer cheque should always remain a bearer cheque. But, so far as I understand, even the Banking Enquiry Committee has said that if a bearer cheque has been changed into an order cheque on the face of it, that should be accepted as an order cheque. But in this Bill I think the intention of the Government is to make a bearer cheque always a bearer cheque even if it is changed on the face of it into an order cheque. These are matters which I think should be considered in a Select Committee, because it is a question of changing the habits of our people which are almost ingrained in them. I do not want to go into the earlier history of this legislation. I do not want to quote from the speech of the Finance Member himself when he moved on the last occasion for sending a similar Bill to a Select Committee. The Bombay High Court's final decision was given in 1924, but it has not put the banks in such a position that they are not able to carry on their business, as has been admitted by the Honourable the Finance Member himself. I hope the House will agree to my motion of reference to the Select Committee.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That the Bill be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Honourable the Finance Member, the Honourable the Law Member, Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya, Mr. B. R. Puri, Mr. Muhammad Muazzam Sahib Bahadur, Mr. K. C. Neogy, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah, Sir Leslie Hudson, Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan, Dr. Francis Xavier DeSouza, Mr. Lalchand Navalrai and the Mover, with instructions to report before the 30th November, 1933, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

The motion was adopted.

THE INDIAN ARBITRATION (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Sir Bepin Behary Ghose (Law Member) : Sir, I beg to move :

"That the Bill further to amend the Indian Arbitration Act, 1899, for a certain purpose, as passed by the Council of State, be taken into consideration."

The matter is very simple and I hope it is not controversial. I may shortly state the case for the information of my lay friends. The Indian Arbitration Act of 1899 applies to a certain class of cases. In section 19 of the Act it was provided that if one of the contracting parties after agreeing that their dispute shall be referred to arbitration brings a suit in a Court, then the defendant may apply that the suit be stayed in order that the matter in dispute may be referred to arbitration. With regard to that, section 4 of the Act defines a Court, in the Presidency Towns as the High Court, and elsewhere the Court of the District Judge. It so happens if a suit of the nature is brought in a Presidency Small Cause Court, that Court has no power to stay proceedings. The defendant has to apply to the High Court and the High Court has no seisin of the suit itself and it has been found to be rather disadvantageous. The present amendment only says that for the words "the Court" the words "the judicial authority before which the proceedings are pending" be substituted. If this amendment is carried, then much of the inconvenience to the parties will be removed, so that the Court which has seisin of the suit will have the right to stay proceedings. The party will not have to go to the High Court, or in a mofussil, the suit may be in a Munsif's Court, and the party will have to go to the District Court in order to have it stayed. Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Motion moved :

"That the Bill further to amend the Indian Arbitration Act, 1899, for a certain purpose, as passed by the Council of State, be taken into consideration."

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai (Sind : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : I fully agree. It is only reasonable and fair that when a certain matter has been referred to arbitration, the Court should not go into the question involved in the arbitration proceedings until the arbitrators have decided it. Then it could come up before the Court if objections, if any, are lodged against the award. Therefore, it would be an anomaly if the arbitration proceedings should be carried on and also the Court should at the same time be investigating and determining the same matter. So long as the arbitration proceedings go on, the matter in Court should remain in abeyance. The next point is which is the Court to which application should be made for stay of proceedings. The law at present is not definite, and anybody can go to any Court and ask that the proceedings be stayed. Suppose a case is pending in a Subordinate Court, one can go to the Small Court and ask for stay of proceedings. That is not reasonable or legal. Therefore, both the points that have been covered by this Bill are absolutely necessary and I support the Bill.

3 P.M.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That the Bill further to amend the Indian Arbitration Act, 1899, for a certain purpose, as passed by the Council of State, be taken into consideration."

The motion was adopted.

Clauses 2, 1, the Title and the Preamble were added to the Bill.

The Honourable Sir Bepin Behary Ghose : Sir, I move that the Bill, as passed by the Council of State, be passed.

THE CANTONMENTS (HOUSE-ACCOMMODATION AMENDMENT) BILL.

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham (Army Secretary) : I beg to move :

"That the Bill further to amend the Cantonments (House-Accommodation) Act, 1923, for a certain purpose, as passed by the Council of State, be taken into consideration."

This, Sir, is a small Bill which I hope will not detain the House for more than a few minutes. It arises from a representation that was made to us by the All-India Cantonments' Association who pointed out that under the Act, as it stands, at present, the owner of a house which it has been proposed to appropriate under the Act might be put to certain inconvenience and unnecessary expense for the reasons explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons.

Briefly the position is that when the Commanding Officer proposes to appropriate a house, he serves a notice under section 7 of the Act on the owner of the house. Then the owner of the house, in the first place, may appeal to the General Officer Commanding the District against the appropriation of the house and, in the second place, may make a reference to the civil Court on the questions of rent and repairs to the house. The owner is allowed 21 days to make his appeal to the General Officer Commanding and he is allowed 30 days to make his reference to the civil Court ; but at present both those periods run from the same date, that is the date on which the notice was served on him under section 7. Therefore, in nine cases out of 10, the owner has to make his reference to the civil Court before he has received orders on his appeal to the General Officer Commanding : and if his appeal to the General Officer Commanding is successful, the trouble and expense he has gone to in making the reference to the civil Court is wasted. Therefore, we propose in the present Bill to allow the time for making a reference to the civil Court to run, not from the date on which the notice is served on him, but from the date on which he receives orders on his appeal to the General Officer Commanding. I think that everybody will agree that that is entirely reasonable. It will, however, to some extent, lengthen the whole proceedings, and therefore, we propose also to make a slight reduction in the time allowed for the owner to make his appeal to the General Officer Commanding and to reduce that period from 21 days to 10 days. That will give the owner ten clear days in which to make up his mind whether he wishes to appeal against the appropriation of the house. That, Sir, also I think is reasonable ; but in order to make quite sure I took the precaution of consulting the All-India Cantonments Association on the point and they replied as follows :

"I have to acknowledge your letter and to convey the sense of the Association's grateful appreciation of the Government's acceptance of the suggestion made by the Association. The Association has no objection to the proposal to reduce the time for making an appeal to the District Commander to ten days."

Those of us who are acquainted with the All-India Cantonments Association know that it is an extremely efficient body which keeps a most vigilant eye on the interests of the house owners. I think we may, therefore, rest assured that this proposal will be acceptable to the house owners in cantonments and I have no hesitation in recommending it also to the acceptance of the House. Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Motion moved :

"That the Bill further to amend the Cantonments (House-Accommodation) Act, 1923, for a certain purpose, as passed by the Council of State, be taken into consideration."

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai (Sind : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : I am very glad that better sense is returning to the Army office now. I am glad to see that what is proposed now is to give reasonable facility of time to the person who comes as an aggrieved party against a decision to an appellate Court within the time allowed. The limitation law prescribes this already. It does provide that time for an appeal runs from the date of the decision of the lower Court. That limitation time which is a general law was foreign to the Army Department and not such as the Army office would accept and I am, therefore, very glad that the general law is now being accepted and I hope that by and by the Army office would go on acceding to the reasonable demands which the Indian people put forward. I, therefore, support this portion of the Bill.

Coming to the next point, in which time is being shortened I would certainly be against it but there is one consideration that weighs with me. Those who live in cantonments are intelligent people and they also know the law. On account of the drastic way in which the army regulations have been worked, they have been wide awake. So this shortening of time also will not affect them much as they are sure to remain vigilant of the period of appeal. I support the whole Bill.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That the Bill further to amend the Cantonments (House-Accommodation) Act, 1923, for a certain purpose, as passed by the Council of State, be taken into consideration."

The motion was adopted.

Clauses 2, 3, 4, 5 and 1 and the Title and the Preamble were added to the Bill.

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : I move that the Bill, as passed by the Council of State, be passed.

The motion was adopted.

THE DANGEROUS DRUGS (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : I beg to move :

"That the Bill to amend the Dangerous Drugs Act, 1930, for certain purposes, be taken into consideration."

This is a very small measure which, as my Honourable friend the Army Secretary said just now, I hope, will not detain the House for more than two minutes. The object of the Bill is clearly explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons. The provision in section 2 is merely intended to make effective the Government's adhesion to the International Convention on the subject and the second provision in section 3 is intended to give Provincial Governments greater powers of restriction than they enjoy at present. At present they have powers of restricting the amount of raw opium that may be lawfully possessed by one person at a time but not of restricting the amount of prepared opium made from raw opium, and this Bill gives power to restrict the amount of prepared opium in the possession of any individual. The restriction has been asked for by the Provincial Governments themselves and I need say no more on the subject. Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That the Bill to amend the Dangerous Drugs Act, 1930, for certain purposes, be taken into consideration."

The motion was adopted.

Clauses 2 and 3 were added to the Bill.

Clause 1 was added to the Bill.

The Title and the Preamble were added to the Bill.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Sir, I move that the Bill be passed.

The motion was adopted.

MOTION RE FUTURE ADMINISTRATION OF ADEN.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore (Leader of the House) : Sir, I move the motion which stands in my name, namely :

"That the Government of India communiqué, dated the 20th June, 1933, regarding the future administration of Aden, be taken into consideration."

The opportunity for discussion which this motion affords is given in fulfilment of an undertaking by the Political Secretary so far back as 1922, an undertaking which has at least implicitly if not expressly been subsequently endorsed, that the Government would come to no final conclusion without giving the Legislature an opportunity for the discussion of this matter. The communiqué sets out the considerations in favour of the transfer of control, the arrangements proposed by His Majesty's Government should it be eventually decided to transfer control and the financial consequences to India of such a transfer. I need hardly assure the House that the views expressed here will be most anxiously and carefully considered by the Government of India and they will, of course, be forwarded for the consideration of His Majesty's Government. In addition, regard will also have to be paid to the views expressed outside this Chamber and to the views expressed by interests concerned both in India and in Aden. Before discussion begins I ought, however, to take an opportunity of removing possible misapprehensions and of giving certain information to the House which may assist it in coming to a conclusion. I noticed during the course of discussions on a similar motion in another place that the suggestion was made—I would put it no higher than that—that Government had gone back on a declaration made by Sir Denys Bray in 1929 that all idea of the transfer of Aden from India had long since been abandoned. Now, Sir, anybody who studies the remarks of the Foreign Secretary in their proper context will, I am sure, not persist in that suggestion. He could not possibly do it. What obviously the Foreign Secretary meant was, that the transfer of Aden had been abandoned as a solution of the post-war controversy in regard to the future of Aden because this question had been settled by the decision of His Majesty's Government in December, 1926, and the transfer of the civil administration was, therefore, in 1929, not a live issue. Obviously, the Foreign Secretary's undertaking that the House would be given an opportunity of prior consultation would have been entirely meaningless if he had meant that the idea of transfer would never be considered at all. That brings me to another point. The Foreign Secretary, Major Fraser-Tytler, in answering a question put by my Honourable friend, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, gave an undertaking to furnish the House with the views of those interests which were concerned in this matter. As the House is, I think, fully seized of the views expressed in India, I will confine myself as far as possible to the views expressed in Aden.

The House is aware that the Indian population of Aden numbers 7,287 out of a total of 46,638, and I may say at once that Indian opinion is definitely opposed to the separation of Aden from India. We come next to the Arabs. The Arabs number 29,820 out of a population, as I have said, of 46,638 according to the census of 1931. The Arabs are content with the existing system of administration which they would like to see continue ; but, since constitutional developments in India would make this impossible, they would, on the whole, prefer that the administration of Aden should be controlled by His Majesty's Government. They fear, under the Federation, the subordination of Arab interests and a progressive increase in the commercial domination of Indian firms. On the other hand, they desire that the following existing conditions should be continued if transfer takes place, namely, (a) Aden should remain a free port, (b) taxes and other dues to remain as they are, (c) laws and local regulations to remain as at present and (d) all existing civil rights of inhabitants to be maintained. If these are not to be maintained, they are opposed to transfer. They are also apprehensive lest the annual contribution of 20 lakhs should, in the event of transfer, be recovered from them by His Majesty's Government. On this point I take this opportunity of assuring them that their apprehension is groundless. In this event, that is to say, of transfer, the charge would be borne by His Majesty's Government.

Now, Sir, I think I have given the House as much information as I am in a position to do. I need only say that Government will take no part in the discussion except to remove misapprehensions and to provide any relevant information which they may have in their possession.

Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Motion moved :

"That the Government of India communiqué, dated the 20th June, 1933, regarding the future administration of Aden, be taken into consideration."

There are a number of amendments on the Order Paper and the Chair proposes to inform the Honourable Members the procedure which it would like to follow in the discussion. The amendments fall into various classes. The amendment of Mr. Bhuput Sing not only objects to the transfer of civil control of Aden but wants that the military and political control should be re-transferred to India. The amendment standing in the name of Mr. S. C. Mitra and Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad only protests against the transfer of the military and political control and objects to the transfer of civil control. The amendment that stands in the name of Messrs. Ranga Iyer, Mody and A. Das acquiesces in the transfer of military and political control but objects to the transfer of civil control. The amendment of Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh does not express any opinion about the military and political transfer but objects to the transfer of civil control. There is a further amendment in the name of Mr. Jehangir K. Munshi which advocates the transfer of civil control. What the Chair proposes to do is this. The Chair would first call upon Mr. Bhuput Sing to move his amendment and, then, if they are so advised, Messrs. Mitra or Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad may move the amendments that stand in their name. Afterwards the amendment that stands in the name of Mr. Ranga Iyer can be moved if he so desires. Then Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh will have a chance of moving his amendment and lastly Mr. Munshi. The discussion will be thrown open on all the amendments and the original motion and when the time comes for putting the question, the Chair will put the most comprehensive amendment of Mr. Bhuput Sing first to the vote and, if that is lost, the amendment of Mr. Mitra and Dr. Ziauddin will be put to the vote and, if that is lost, the amendment of Mr. Ranga Iyer will be put to vote and, if that is lost, the amendment of Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh will be put to vote and, if all these are lost, the amendment of Mr. Munshi will be put to vote.

[Mr. President.]

Mr. Bhuput Sing (Bihar and Orissa : Landholders) : Sir, I beg to move :

> "That for the original motion the following be substituted :
> 'In view of the fact that the Military and Political Control of Aden have been transferred to the Home Government without obtaining the consent of the Indian Legislatures in spite of the promise by the Government of India in 1921 to the contrary and in view of the fact that Aden formed an integral part of the British Indian Administration for about a century this Assembly requests the Governor General in Council to convey to His Majesty's Government the emphatic protest of this House about the transfer of the said control and the desire of the people of India that the proposed transfer of further control should not be effected and that the Military and Political control should be retransferred to the Government of India '."

Sir, India, as a whole, feel very strongly on this subject, as this has all along been mishandled by the Government of India. To my mind, no words are too strong for criticising Government in this respect and I would say that the Government of India have all along not only mishandled but bungled on this question. They have all along made themselves subservient to the Colonial Office and the British Cabinet. If I am to quote the innumerable promises made to the Indian Legislature and the Indian public outside, from time to time, then, Sir, it will be a volume of history by itself. The origin of the discussion on this subject was on the 26th September, 1921, when a Resolution on this very subject was moved in the other House by the Honourable Sir Phiroze Sethna and the Government, on that occasion, just as in the present discussion, desired to remain neutral and desired to know the views of the representatives of the people of this country on the subject. Sir, the Members of the other House made it clear to the Government that considering the status and position of hellots assigned to the Indians living in different parts of Africa under the Colonial Administration, they would never agree to the transfer of Aden which is mostly populated by Indians and would not like it to be transferred to the Colonial Office. In the course of that debate, on that occasion, Government stated that they had not yet pronounced in favour of this transfer, and, until they do, no Honourable Member had any right to assume that the Government of India were in favour of that proposition. Their position was as announced by the Honourable the Foreign Secretary one of benevolent neutrality. Sir, that benevolent neutrality brought in the bolt from the blue in the shape of the announcement in this House on the 3rd March, 1927, by His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief that the military and political administration of Aden had been definitely transferred to the Home Government. The amendment adopted by the other House, only the other day, demands the retention of only the civil administration of Aden under the Government of India. On the present occasion also, the Government of India have adopted the attitude of the same benevolent neutrality of 1921 and, as a result of such a neutrality, I will not be surprised, if a few months later, the civil administration is also transferred to the Home Government at our back just as the political and military administration was transferred surreptitiously. It is no wonder, Sir, that the people of this country have lost all faith in the bona fides of the present bureaucracy as well as of the British Parliament. This question of the transfer of the control of Aden is only one link in the chain of multifarious false hopes and promises made to the people of this country never to be redeemed by actions. Sir, I am not one of those to believe only in the retention of the civil administrative control of Aden under the British Indian administration. The amendment, which was accepted by the other House, if adopted by this House, as well, will give the world outside the impression that Indian opinion will be fully satisfied if only the civil administration is kept under the Government of India.

Sir, I do not believe in half measures. My objection to this transfer of military and political control in 1927 without our consent is more serious than that of the proposed transfer of civil administration. Aden is one of the most important strategic points in the sea route between India and the West. I hope I will not be taken as a wild visionary, if I say that I believe, and believe it sincerely, that a day will come when India will have the dominion status like the other dominions and the future Government will certainly have the control of their own navies, mercantile marine and the Army. Consequently, the future administrators of the Indian Government must desire to have the controlling power over such strategic points like Aden. Sir, this transfer of control of Aden, to my mind, is another link in the chain of manœuvres of the British Government to have British control over all strategic ports between Singapore and Gibraltar. I am not going to narrate here how the British Government got the control of Soudan and Egypt and also gradually obtained a partial control of the Suez. This transfer of control of military and political administration of Aden to the Home Government without our consent shows clearly the lurking suspicions in the minds of the British politicians that India may at any time get dominion status or even independence and, with that suspicion in their minds, they have taken away the control of military and political administration in the teeth of Indian opposition. Sir, I do not for a moment see any other reason than the one just now stated by me for the British Government and bureaucracy to adopt the hush hush methods when the military and political control of Aden was transferred in 1927. Since the transfer of military administration in 1927, another rumour was afloat for the transfer of civil control in 1929, when Government reiterated their promise stating that all idea of such transfer had long since been abandoned. Again, in 1931, when the Aden administration was transferred to the Government of India, an apprehension was raised in the minds of the Indian public, that it was the thin end of the wedge for its subsequent transfer to the Home Government. Immediately a deputation of those, vitally interested in the Aden trade, waited on His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General, and it was definitely stated on that occasion that the proposals for the transfer of the control of Aden from Bombay Government to the Government of India were complete in themselves and were made on their own merits. Further on, the Foreign Secretary stated on that occasion that the changed administrative control of Aden from the Government of Bombay to the Government of India was not a step towards any other change. In the course of the discussion with the said deputation, His Excellency the Viceroy, Lord Willingdon, intervened and emphatically endorsed the Foreign Secretary's statements in connection with the apprehended transfer of control of Aden to the Colonial Office and, in order to allay the misgivings of the deputationists, he stated further that no such suggestion had been considered and gave a definite undertaking that, should this question be re-opened in future, all interests and parties would be consulted. In spite of such an assurance, just after the lapse of about two years, the White Paper saw the light of day with a small cryptic reference made therein regarding the question, in which it was stated, that the question of the future administrative arrangements for Aden were under consideration. Immediately a few British Indian delegates to the Joint Select Committee, who were then present in London, waited on a deputation to the Secretary of State on the question of the future of Aden, and they were told that Aden, being neither a province nor an Indian State, the question of its being included in the future Indian Federation was a very difficult one, but however, he did not think that the difficulty was of such a nature, as not to admit of a satisfactory solution. After all these false promises, the Government of India had the courage to issue the Press Communiqué in June last. Sir, the Press Communiqué starts with the fact that Aden is already to some extent under Imperial control. But may I ask the Government of India, whether they were or were not a consenting party to the transfer of military and political control ? Then, I would further ask them, how far they committed India to that portion of the control already transferred to the Home Government and whether they obtained the views of the Indian public and of the Legislature to the partial transfer of control already made and which has been mentioned in the Communiqué. If they have not committed themselves to such transfer, this House, to my mind, should unanimously repudiate the whole action of the Government of India in this matter.

In coming to the next argument of geographical remoteness of Aden from India, may I ask the Government whether such geographical remoteness of Gibraltar from England stands in the way of its control by the Home Government ? Sir, if, owing to remoteness of Aden from India, it is to be transferred to the Home Government, then I would say that Aden should be transferred to the Arabs, and Gibraltar to the Spaniards. I thought, Sir, that there was bankruptcy in British statesmanship, but it is a new experience to me that there is bankruptcy of common sense amongst the members of the British Cabinet, but for which, they, who are governing Singapore, Malta and Gibraltar from their headquarters in Great Britain which is geographically so distant and remote from those places, would not have raised objections to India's administering Aden, owing to geographical remoteness.

Before I conclude, I think I should put it in a nutshell that Great Britain is very keen and bent upon getting the control of Aden to make it another naval base in the west of India as they have made Singapore a naval base in the east of India so that India may always be kept between these two fires. Considering all these factors I hope that the House will agree with me when I say that arrangements should be made for the retransfer of the military and political control to the British Indian administration with whom the civil administration is existing at present. With these words, I move my amendment and commend it to the House for its acceptance.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Amendment moved :

"That for the original motion the following be substituted :

'In view of the fact that the Military and Political Control of Aden have been transferred to the Home Government without obtaining the consent of the Indian Legislatures inspite of the promise by the Government of India in 1921 to the contrary and in view of the fact that Aden formed an integral part of the British Indian Administration for about a century this Assembly requests the Governor General in Council to convey to His Majesty's Government the emphatic protest of this House about the transfer of the said control and the desire of the people of India that the proposed transfer of further control should not be effected and that the Military and Political control should be retransferred to the Government of India '."

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Does the Honourable Member, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, wish to move his amendment ?

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad (United Provinces Southern Divisions : Muhammadan Rural) : Yes, Sir. I beg to move :

"That for the original motion the following be substituted :

'While recording their emphatic protest against the complete transfer to the Colonial Office of Aden Settlement which has for about a century been an integral part of British Indian Administration, the Assembly requests the Governor General in Council to convey to His Majesty's Government the strong desire of the people of India that the proposed transfer should not take place '."

Sir, at the outset I should like to make clear the distinction between Aden Administration and Aden Protectorate. Now, the Aden Settlement consists of a very small tract of land, about nine miles long and two miles wide, and it is practically an island just like Bombay, because at one place it is only about a furlong wide and the sea water goes over it. Now, as regards the Protectorate of Aden, we have nothing to say ; that is a question for the Imperial Government to settle and India is not directly connected in the Aden Protectorate. But we are directly concerned with what is called the Aden Settlement. It should not be confused with the Aden Settlement. This Aden was occupied by Major Bayley in 1839 with the help of Indian forces taken from Bombay. The population of Aden at that time was only 3,000. The Honourable the Leader of the House has given the latest figures of the population. I have got also the round figures. On account of the development of the port, the population of Aden increased from 3,000 in 1839 to about 56,000, out of which about 30,000 are Arabs, 10,000 are Indians, 4,000 are Jews, 5,000 are Europeans and 7,000 are Somalis. Now, Aden has got a very peculiar position about the port. It is well protected and surrounded on all sides by rocks and hills and we have to go through a narrow strip in order to reach the port of Aden. This port of Aden was developed almost entirely by Indian capital. The Indians spent something like five crores of rupees in order to build wharves, godowns and warehouses and a large number of buildings. At the same time, the Indian Government spent large sums of money in developing the fortress and barracks and for carrying on the civil and military administration. I have got no accurate knowledge of the amount which the Indian Government spent on this account, but Mr. Cook, in a speech, in the year 1921, said that the expenditure was in the neighbourhood of 50 lakhs a year. Taking the statement of Mr. Cook, in 1921, I can safely conclude that the expenditure of the Government of India must have been between 30 and 40 crores of rupees ; and, considering the expenditure both by the Indian people and the Indian Government, I can safely say that the Aden Settlement was developed by incurring an expenditure of between 35 and 40 crores of rupees by the people and the Government of India. Now, whenever any question of a transfer comes in, the question of 40 crores should not be overlooked. We should get the amount back with compound interest. The vast expenditure both by the people and by the Government, and the hard work of Indian Merchants developed favourable situation and the safety attracted a large number of foreign people, the Arabs, Jews, Somalis, and Europeans. They came to Aden to enjoy a prosperous life which the Indian money and Indian brain created for them.

[At this stage, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) vacated the Chair which was then occupied by Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury).]

Now, this increase of population from neighbouring countries naturally developed their trade relations with the countries from which these people came, and the Indians of Aden were the first to open trade relations between Aden and Africa and Aden and Arabia, and they built up their country crafts and their country steamers in order to carry on their trade. They went further ; they also built up an Indian steam navigation company which is now carrying goods from Aden to the neighbouring places in Arabia and in Africa.

Sir, the civil administration has always been under the Government of Bombay till the year 1931 and the taxes were collected on behalf of the Bombay Government. The administration was carried on on the same lines as the administration in the Bombay Presidency. They opened schools, they built hospitals and they had the same system of administration as is carried on in the Bombay Presidency. Changes occurred during the war and, as a war measure, the War Office occupied and took possession of the whole administration of Aden. But that was only a war administration and it was handed back to us as soon as the war was over in the year 1919. Sir, we, Indians, had no personal quarrel with Germany or other enemy countries. We really fought, because of the British Government as we formed part of the British Empire. After the war was over, the various countries, who had taken part in the war, were given rewards. Lands taken out from Germany were given to East Africa, West Africa and to South Africa and so on, but may I ask what India obtained for large sums of money she spent in the war, and also for the loss of lives ? We always urged on the floor of the House that in return for the services which India rendered to the British Government we should have been given some share in the war indemnities of the allies in the shape of a Colony in Africa, but instead of that, something is taken away from us ; we are supposed to be good and loyal subjects of the British Empire and we are made to believe that we can always count on their help ; but when the question of distribution of reward comes in, we are passed over. We naturally expected that India would be given some territory for her war services, but, instead of that we are threatened to lose what we ourselves built by our own money. Our services, our sacrifices in men and money are all forgotten, and without any reference to Legislature the military control was transferred from the Indian Government to the Home Government. This is a question, Sir, on which we have strong views, and we strongly protest such a course of action and I agree with my friend, Mr. Bhuput Sing, in his strong protest. We had not forgotten the high handed policy of the Home Government in transferring military control, they raised the question of the transfer of civil administration of the Aden Settlement. One can argue that the protectorate does not form part of the Indian Government, and the army is required for the broader purpose of the protectorate, and not for maintaining order and peace in the Settlement. But, at the same time, I do maintain that even if the proposed transfer was to be made, it ought to have been made with the consent of the Indian Government and Indian Legislature and this House should have been given an opportunity to discuss the whole question, before the transfer of the military control from Indian Government to Home Government. I consider such transfer as breach of contract. The story did not end here. In 1927, Honourable Members will probably remember that Sir Denys Bray, replying to a question in this House, said : " I hasten to add that all idea of such a transfer (transfer of Aden Settlement) has long been abandoned ". The Commander-in-Chief also, in the year 1927, on the occasion of the Budget debate in the Council of State, said :

" As Honourable Members are aware, the Settlement of Aden itself is peopled to a very great extent by our fellow Indian subjects. The Government of India have thought it right that their welfare and interest should not go outside the pale of the Government of India. It will accordingly be retained as part of the Settlement and the Municipality of Aden will remain under the Government of India."

Now, Sir, these assurances were given to us by responsible Members of the Government of India, and we thought that the Government would honour those assurances. If the Home Government really wish that the administration in India should be stable and the people should trust the Government, then it is the duty of the Government at Home to abide by the assurances given by responsible Members of the Government of India, but, if the Home Government are not going to honour the utterances of responsible officers here, the administration will be placed in a very difficult position indeed.....

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I do not want to interrupt my Honourable friend, but I did, in my opening remarks, explain what the real meaning was of the Foreign Secretary's remarks made on the occasion to which my friend refers.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : My friend really is a politician, and all politicians use words which they can interpret in their own way ; but unfortunately the people of India will naturally interpret the simple English in its true meaning : my friend cannot change the feelings of the people by the quibble of words. In 1931, when this transfer was made from the Bombay Government to the Government of India, we scented that there was going to be further trouble in store, and immediately a deputation, led by Mr. Mehta, waited on His Excellency the Viceroy, and the Political Secretary gave us to understand that it was only being transferred for the sake of convenience. We then thought that probably it was the first step to the second transfer from the Government of India to the Colonial Office. But, at that time, we were given an assurance that nothing would be done to prejudice the interests of this country, and we naturally trusted the Government. What hidden interpretation can my Honourable friend put on it ?

Sir, the question of Aden is somewhat different from the question of Burma. In regard to Burma, I can quite understand that the whole decision should be left to the people of Burma. If they want separation, let them have it ; but if they don't want to separate themselves from us, we will always welcome them and we are ready to help them ; but, in the case of Aden, it is a different proposition. The people of Aden do not want a transfer. Those Indians who have got their investments in Aden do not want a transfer, Arabs don't want a transfer, the Jews don't want a transfer. No one wants a transfer. The Home Government desired to confiscate it simply because we are weak. The Honourable the Leader of the House quoted the resolution passed by few Arabs who really belong to the protectorate and he did not mention the resolution passed by 500 Arabs residing in the Settlement. Sir, in reply to a deputation led by His Highness the Aga Khan, to which reference was made by my friend, Mr. Bhuput Sing, the Secretary of State gave a clear reply that the difficulties were not " insurmountable " ; no political problem is insoluble, if we put our heads together. The Members of the Round Table Conference and of the Joint Select Committee, who are now working in London, will not find difficulty to find a solution, and I hope they will do so. It may be said that it is very difficult to secure their representation in the Federation. I do not know when the Federation is coming. It may not come in the lifetime of any of us who are now present in the Assembly, and it is somewhat premature to discuss this question. But even if the Federation comes into existence immediately, the position of the Aden Settlement will be similar to other important places like Secunderabad, Bangalore and other towns which have only Municipalities under the control of the Government of India and which will always remain under the Government of India, and, therefore, I see no difficulty in keeping the Aden Settlement also under the Government of India, like those small places which I have just mentioned and which will continue to remain under the Government of India.

Now, Sir, coming to the financial side, at present Aden is a paying concern to the Government of India. Aden was a source of great expenditure for a very long time, but now it is the other way round. The income from Aden is about 18½ lakhs and the expenditure is about 10½ lakhs, and so, really speaking, Aden is not a burden to the Indian Budget. As regards the military expenditure, if we take the military expenses, from a broader point of view and not only from the point of view of India, only for the purposes of protecting the routes, I should say, the expenses ought not to be borne by India alone, but also by all those countries who are benefited by the position of Aden. Sir, we are now suffering from a great deal of unemployment, and any measure, making the problem of unemployment more acute, will always be a source of trouble to India and will always be resented by us. If the administration of Aden is transferred, then all those people who are now employed there, and all those people who carry on trade there and also their relations here as well as in Aden will be hard hit. Their number should not merely be calculated from the number that actually reside and carry on trade in Aden, but it must include a large number who now reside in the Bombay Presidency and other places in India; and so, if this transfer takes place, a very large number of people will suffer. Therefore, I would sincerely request the Honourable the Leader of the House to convey to His Majesty's Government that the proposed transfer will produce very great resentment throughout India and that the people of this country would regard it as a breach of faith. We expected substantial reward for the services which this country rendered during the great war, but, instead of that, we are having a punishment. First the military control was taken away, then the civil administration is going to be taken away. This will certainly produce great disappointment throughout the length and breadth of this country. Sir, with these few words, I move my amendment.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : Amendment moved :

> " That for the original motion the following be substituted :
> ' While recording their emphatic protest against the complete transfer to the Colonial Office of Aden Settlement which has for about a century been an integral part of British Indian Administration, the Assembly requests the Governor General in Council to convey to His Majesty's Government the strong desire of the people of India that the proposed transfer should not take place '."

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : Does Mr. Ranga Iyer want to move his amendment ?

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer (Rohilkund and Kumaon Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : No, Sir, I don't want to move it.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh (Muzaffarpur cum Champaran : Non-Muhammadan) : I also don't want to move my amendment.

Mr. B. Das (Orissa Division : Non-Muhammadan) : I was fortunate enough to be present at a dinner which the non-official Members of the Central Legislature gave to the Secretary of State in London. My Honourable friend, the Finance Member, also was present there. The Secretary of State tried to talk to us heart to heart and told us that he would like to see the atmosphere of misunderstanding to be removed so that Britishers and we Indians can approach the constitutional problems in a spirit of fairness and goodwill. Since then, and also for a few months before that, I have been trying to approach the constitutional problems that face us with all the goodwill as if the Government of India were our own Government in spite of their being a subordinate branch of the British Government. I have been trying to see if, by my action, by my criticism and by the influence we wield in the country we could remove that atmosphere of misunderstanding. But when I approach the problem of Aden and see the way in which it is surreptitiously brought before this House, I question myself whether those who are controlling the destinies of the British Government are also trying to remove the points of misunderstanding that are always occurring in the discussion of problems between India and England. The previous speakers have made it clear that India is not getting her constitutional rights about Aden. Sir, facing the problem of Aden, I have to ask the question, not of the Government of India, because I am grateful to them for being neutral in this matter whether in the debates in the other House or today on the floor of this House, but of the British Government. If I can interpret, I feel that it is always an atmosphere of mistrust of the Britishers against the Indians. The ill treatment of Indians by the Colonial Governments has already been referred to. That is one reason why we do not want Aden, where so many thousands of British Indians live, to be transferred to the Colonial Secretary of His Majesty's Government.

I miss here my Honourable friend, Mr. Bajpai, and the Honourable Sir Fazl-i-Husain who always speak for the administration of Indians overseas in the British colonies. Sometimes I find Mr. Bajpai's heart flows with the milk of human kindness when he describes the distressing circumstances of those refugees from South Africa who are living in great difficulty at Budge Budge in Calcutta and also says that their condition is not so bad as described by questioners like Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh or Mr. Maswood Ahmad. Sir, we know what happened to the Indians who went to Natal, who went to South Africa, how these barren lands were tilled and made arable by the Indian settlers, and how today they have been hounded out from South Africa. The same is the condition in Kenya, in Tanganyika. In Kenya, Indians have lost their wheat trade. In Tanganyika, they have got their cotton trade, but Indians are treated there as pariahs ; they have not got the same status as the post-war British settlers who are demanding today advantages and privileges that are denied to the British Indians. So, if we feel distrust at the proposal of the transfer of the civil administration of Aden to the British Government, we have precedents. The precedents are written in the blood and suffering of millions of Indians that are suffering today in the colonies of South Africa, Tanganyika, Kenya and East African territories. That is one aspect.

I want to examine a little in detail where lies the confidence of the British Government and the Britishers in the Indians. Do they trust us ? I say they do not. They want us to trust their words, but they do not trust us. If Aden had been administered for nearly 70 years by the Bombay Government and the Government of India, what has happened today to transfer or to propose the transfer of the civil administration of that territory to the Colonial Government ? At this stage, I wish to make it clear that I am supporting the motion which has been moved by my Honourable friend, Mr. Bhuput Sing. It is a most comprehensive one and reflects the real feeling of the Indians who are sitting on this side of the House and who represent the teeming millions that are outside this House. If, during the War, the military administration of Aden was transferred to the British Government, there was no necessity for the transfer of that administration perpetually. It has been done, and the Government of India, as I observed a few moments ago, is a subordinate branch of the British Government and had to agree. When they trot out the saving of a few lakhs of rupees, one laughs at such an argument. It is often said that Aden is the Gibraltar of the British Dominion of Australia, the Malaya Peninsula and other British territories in the far East. The Britishers today do not want to trust Indians with the control of the military and civil administration of Aden. England has got us under her thumb. England can do anything. Can she, in the name of justice, say that Aden must be transferred from India to England ? Although we are original members of the League of Nations, those who represent us there have not the courage to take up this question before the League of Nations. I ask Britain to take this case to the League of Nations. Let there be a committee appointed by the League of Nations and let it give its verdict. If the verdict is that Aden, which is the Gibraltar of Asia, should be in the hands of Britain, I would be the first to agree to it, but will my Honourable friend, the Leader of the House, say that the Government of India would insist on his Majesty's Government that the whole question should be referred to the League of Nations ? He dare not. They are the subordinates of the mighty British Government.

4 P.M.

My Honourable friend, the Leader of the House, talked of the representation received from the Arabs. Do they belong to the Aden town or do they belong to the protectorate ? Today we have no control over the British policy in Afghanistan. If the British Government want to have an Arab protectorate, let it be administered from Indian Aden. We are ready to provide a site for the British plenipotentiary or the Ambassador who will control these Arab protectorates, but it is no use trotting out that these Arabs do not want to remain under the Government of India, but would prefer to go to the Colonial Government. They have sufficient knowledge of the maladministration of the Colonial Office. What happened ? 30 Arabs met at a meeting. None of them were residents of Aden. They suggested that Aden should be transferred to the British Government. Afterwards, 500 Arabs, residents of the town of Aden, met and protested against this managed meeting of 30 Arabs and they demanded that the present administration of India should continue for ever. No argument is necessary even to convince a child.

Now, Sir, I will take up the six points that have been mentioned in this Government communiqué about Aden. I would only say that they are not worth the ink with which it has been printed. I know, the Honourable Members of the Treasury Benches will not take part in the debate, but can they say that any of the pledges given to India by either Britain or the Dominion Governments or the Colonial Administrations have been fulfilled ? The Secretary of State for India has assured the deputation that waited on him at London that the cases of the Aden people would come to the Bombay High Court. Why should it come to the Bombay High Court ? Why should a Colonial Secretary of His Majesty's Government correspond with a subordinate Government like the Government of India and the Government of Bombay which is still much more subordinate ? Why should they do it ?

Now, I will take up point No. 1. I have already referred to it and I do not want to discuss it again. As regards point 2, no Suzerain Government has ever tied itself down to any pledges to a subordinate Government. As regards point 3, it is said : His Majesty's Government would maintain the existing policy of making Aden a free port unless some radical change in the present economic situation should take place. That is no solace to us. Aden might be a free port, but once the control passes out of our hands, similar pretexts will be brought out as happened in the case of East Africa or South Africa and Aden will be closed to the trade of India. Incidentally, I am reminded of a little stir created by the Anglo-Indian Press. As far as I can remember, it was the Statesman which published an editorial inciting the feelings of the Bengalis who have got a little feeling towards Aden, because their taste is for Cheshire salt. I do not wish to refer to that sort of managed agitation carried on particularly by the Statesman. It has been ably replied to by a prominent business magnate, my esteemed friend, Mr. Husseinbhoy Laljee of Bombay, and, I am sure, the Government have read it. I hope they will send a copy of it to the Secretary of State for his perusal. Then, point 4 says that His Majesty's Government would do their utmost to maintain the present standard of administration and would not impose any additional taxation unless such a course became, in their opinion, absolutely necessary. Every sentence begins with a rider and a qualifying clause. Suppose there is a war and the King of the Hedjaz invades Aden, then there will be further taxation. This kind of pledge cannot satisfy us. We all know the policy of His Majesty's Government in other Colonies, how Indians were asked to pay the poll tax even, which happens to be a most inhuman tax. We are asked to trust to the mere verbiage. My friend, the Honourable the Foreign Secretary, is present here, and may I ask him what were the traditions of the Foreign Offices before the war? Hush hush policy, intrigues, secrecy, these were the things with which they started the Great War. I do not blame the Foreign Office of His Majesty's Government alone. I blame the Foreign Offices of every Sovereign Government. I do not think my Honourable friend, the Foreign Secretary, is carrying on those intrigues, but that has been the tradition of other Foreign Offices. Their policy had been to set one nation against the other. I expect that, in the near future, we will also have our Foreign Office and if we will have our control over it, we will start with a clean slate. Our policy will be the policy of truth and righteousness and not of intrigues.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav (Bombay Central Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Utopia.

Mr. B. Das : My Honourable friend, Mr. Jadhav, might have had an inkling of the Political Department of the Bombay Government while he was a Minister in that Government.

An Honourable Member : He was not allowed to see anything.

Mr. B. Das : It may be thought to be an Utopia by some of my friends here. But the Great War, with its massacre of millions of people, cost the world billions of money, the gold for which my Honourable friend, the Finance Member, is so very anxious to retain in his Reserve Bank. The Great War taught us one lesson. Abolish these intrigues and do away with these Foreign Offices and their satellites and the world will live more peacefully and more amicably. So, Sir, this point 4 is an expression which not only my Honourable friend, the Foreign Secretary, but even the lowest paid clerk in his office can set aside as valueless.

Now, let me examine point No. 5—the proportion of Indians would be retained in the Aden Service for some years. Sir, once the transfer fakes place, not only those Indians, who are in service, but even those who have settled down there would be turned out from there bag and baggage. Even martial law may be declared there on the pretext that the Indians are agitating there and are a seditious people.

Then I come to point No. 6—no racial legislation or segregation would be permitted by His Majesty's Government. Sir, If I understand the English language, the word " would " does not indicate that there is any guarantee that no racial legislation would be permitted by His Majesty's Government. Has it not been permitted in South Africa, in Kenya, in Tanganyika and other places? Can we even read with a grain of confidence this point No. 6, which His Majesty's Government have advanced and which my Honourable friend, the Leader of the House, wants us to swallow and to believe in the pledges of His Majesty's Government. As my Honourable friend, Mr. Bhuput Sing, said a few minutes ago, Britain has broken so many pledges that India cannot believe in any of these pledges. Sir, these are no pledges, they are mere pious expressions put in the sophistic language of the Foreign Department or the Colonial Department.

[At this stage, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) resumed the Chair.]

Sir, I must now refer as to why Britain has changed its policy. Gentlemen administering the Foreign Office of the Government of India started the Russian bogey and the Afghan bogey. Russia has now settled down to its 10 years plan of economic and industrial development and so the British Foreign Office cannot bring out any stunt about the Russian bogey. So, now we are having the bogey of Japan and America. How would they come? They will come through the Pacific Ocean. Therefore, there will be a Singapore base and an Aden base. Hence, Aden must be transferred to the control of British Government. And what is happening here? My Honourable friend, the Foreign Secretary, cannot even have an Indian to read the cypher messages lest the subject nation may come to know too much of the secrets of the Government of India and of the British Government and create revolt or war in India.

Sir, I began my speech by saying that I was ready to trust if I saw the signs of trust, but unfortunately I see the signs of mistrust all over as time passes. I trust, Sir, that if the British Government at all want to take away Aden from India, they will agree with the proposal of the people of India and of the Government of India to refer the matter to the arbitration of the League of Nations. One point more and I have finished. What about the crores and crores of rupees which have been sunk on the development of Aden and its port and harbour? Is Great Britain willing to pass over a cheque of these crores of rupees to my Honourable friend, the Finance Member? As a business man I would like to know if all these moneys would be forthcoming to us from Great Britain and I may examine as a business proposition if a huge sum comes towards the reserve of the Reserves Bank which my Honourable friend, the Finance Member, is creating. Sir, I am afraid it is going to be the policy of the lion and the lamb. If the lion wants to take away Aden, we cannot do anything, helpless as we are. But justice demands that Britain should not transfer Aden. If Britain wants to be honest, she should transfer immediately the military administration of Aden to India.

Mr. N. N. Anklesaria (Bombay Northern Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I support the amendment of my Honourable friend, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, and oppose the amendment of my Honourable friend, Mr. Bhuput Sing.

At the outset I must express my surprise at the attitude which the Government Members propose to take up in connection with the present motion. Sir, very telling arguments, based on facts and reasoning, were addressed on the present matter in the other place by Sir Phiroze Sethna and those arguments do require an answer from the Government Benches. That answer not having come, we are left to our own conjectures as regards the case which the Government Benches have on the present matter. The Government of India are the guardians and protectors of the interests of India, and in a matter like the present, which is vitally concerned with the interests of India, we should have expected that the Government would have given us advice and guidance, but they propose to be silent. I can understand their position if there was some written or unwritten rule of constitutional practice which debars them from giving expression to their honest opinions on the floor of the House. I am quite sure that no such rule exists, because had it existed, it would have applied equally to the Provincial Governments, but what do we find ? On the last occasion, when the question of the transfer of Aden was before the Bombay Council, Sir Ernest Hotson expressed himself in unmistakable terms as to the real wishes and desires of the Bombay Government. In the other House, in 1922, the Honourable Mr. Pratt, who represented the Bombay Government there, expressed in unmistakable terms his opposition to the proposal of separation of Aden from India. I say, why should the Government of India not come forward and express their opinion on the floor of the House on the present occasion and give us advice and guidance. If the Government of India are silent, because they believe that the argument on which His Majesty's Government base their proposal for the separation of Aden from India has neither reason nor justice behind it, then, I say, my Party and myself wholeheartedly agree with that opinion and belief and we earnestly and respectfully invite the Government Benches to express themselves clearly on the floor of the House today. The arguments, in support of the proposal for transfer of Aden from India, are fourfold. The arguments are based on constitutional grounds, on geographical grounds, on grounds of economy and, fourthly, there is the argument of the fait accompli. As regards the geographical arguments, it is based on the difficulty of administering Aden from such a distance as separates Aden from India. Now, in the first place, this presupposes that there has not been up till now good administration of Aden. But what are the real facts ? The communiqué contains the opinion of His Majesty's Government as regards the present standard of administration of Aden. In fact, His Majesty's Government propose to take the present standard of administration as their own standard of administration in the future. Secondly, His Majesty's Government ought to have known that Whitehall is more distant from Aden than India. As regards the argument based on constitutional grounds, it is said that it is very difficult to fit in Aden in the coming Indian Federation. I can understand this argument if it is a question of fitting in the whole of the Aden protectorate in the Indian Federation, but the question involved on the present occasion is simply that of fitting in of the settlement of Aden in the Indian Federation and I see absolutely no constitutional difficulty about it. It is then said that the transfer of Aden will save India from the burden of about 20 lakhs of rupees. As Sir Phiroze Sethna pointed out in the other House, this is of course an exaggeration. I am sure, the Honourable the Finance Member will be able to correct the facts of His Majesty's Government on the present topic.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : As my Honourable friend has referred to me in the matter, I should like to take this opportunity of pointing out that the statements made by the Honourable Sir Phiroze Sethna in the Council of State were calculated to give a somewhat misleading impression of the position. The position is this, that the contribution, from which India would be saved, if this transfer took place, amounts at present to something like £120,000 on the past year's estimates. We have not yet got the final accounts for the year. But it might in any year be as much as £150,000 and, in fact, in past years, it was as much as that. That is clear gain to India, a sum amounting to something like £150,000. On the other side, there will be no loss on the scale indicated by the Honourable Sir Phiroze Sethna. At present, the Aden budget almost, one might say exactly, balances. Taking the average from 1927-28 to 1933-34, the average showed a deficit of about two-third lakhs a year. At present, there is a slight favourable balance of a few thousands, but the present position is precarious, because the balance is obtained by maintaining special economies which probably cannot be maintained indefinitely. I think the fairest way of looking at it is that the Aden budget is practically evenly balanced. I think if we take it in that way, there is no gain or no loss one way or the other on account of the ordinary administrative expenditure and that the military contribution will be a clear gain. This is the most accurate way in which to regard the effects of this proposal for transfer of Aden.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : There seems to be some confusion. Out of the budget of £120,000 for civil administration, a portion is for military expenditure. It was stated on one occasion that no military was required for the civil administration, but it was really required for preserving the trade routes. My submission is that the military is required for the benefit of all the countries affected on the trade route and, therefore, the whole amount should not fall on India. Had the military been required for the Aden Settlement, then it would have been a legitimate charge on Indian finance, but if it is required for the Aden protectorate or for the defence of the trade routes, then it is not correct that India should pay the entire expenditure.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : My Honourable friend is under a misapprehension, if he thinks we are paying the whole of the expenditure. India is paying one-third of the expenditure with a maximum of £150,000 a year.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : In view of the importance of the financial consideration, the Honourable the

[Mr. President.]

Finance Member will be well advised to intervene in the debate and make a full statement about the financial implications.

Mr. N. N. Anklesaria : Sir, if the statement of the Honourable the Finance Member has convinced the House that I am incorrect in the statement which I made, I will simply say that I stand corrected.

Passing now to the fourth class of arguments, namely, the arguments based on what they call a fait accompli, I am a very humble individual, but I cannot help saying that His Majesty's Government have not shown good sense in giving expression to such an argument in support of their proposal. Sir, the argument of j'y suis et j'y reste is an argument which a strong man, when he has got no reason or justice in support of such an argument, addresses to the weak man. It never carries conviction ; it irritates and it creates discontent and it also creates, if the discontent is prolonged, disaffection. Sir, when I say all this I am not oblivious of the fact that every Indian is interested in the upholding and the maintenance of that glorious phenomenon which we call the British Empire,—as much interested as any other member of the British Empire. And I further say that there is none in this House so very unpatriotic and so very lacking in the pride of his British citizenship as not to whole-heartedly vote in support of a proposal like the present, if it could be proved that such support was necessary for the maintenance of the British Empire. I have looked through the arguments in the communiqué and I fail to find any argument which would show that if the support, such as I mention, were withheld, the British Empire would dissolve into nothingness. Sir, on the other hand there are arguments which ought to carry great conviction to His Majesty's Government and induce them to refrain from further prosecuting the present project. The prospect of separation has created a good deal of discontent in this country, discontent which no good Government could possibly ignore. I will not indulge in exaggerated language and talk of " the rape of Aden ", or of " the open day loot " or of " the scandalous act of expropriation ", but this much I may say that it is hard on the British Indians, who have by investment of capital and energy in the development of Aden acquired vested interest in it of which they cannot easily and advantageously divest themselves if they choose to leave Aden. I must also say that it is not fair to British India, after it has spent enormous sums of money amounting to crores of rupees in the development of Aden and when that sacrifice and that investment are on the eve of bearing fruit, to take away Aden from India.

Thirdly, Sir, there is the question of the pledges given by responsible British Indian statesmen. My Honourable friend, the Leader of the House, tried to explain away the pledge given by Sir Denys Bray. If his explanation has carried conviction to the House, I have nothing further to say. Sir, I also share the fears of Indians who have made Aden their home about their position under the jurisdiction of the Colonial Office. Those fears are by no means imaginary as would be shown by the plight of Indians in the different British possessions under the jurisdiction of the Colonial Office. The present condition of the neighbouring places like Berbera, Bulhar and Zaila furnish significant instances of what Aden may have in store for her if she is transferred completely to the Colonial Office. No doubt, Sir, the communiqué of His Majesty's Government does give assurances against racial discrimination, but I am afraid the assurances cannot reassure Indian opinion. On the plea of once bitten twice shy, we Indians would simply decline to believe in the ability of His Majesty's Government to carry out those assurances, however much we may believe in the sincerity and bona fides of the present advisers of His Majesty's Government who have given those assurances. How many times similar assurances for safeguarding the interests of Indians as against the unreasonable demands of the white settlers have been honoured in the breach rather than in the observance by His Majesty's Government ! If the Government Members wish, I am prepared to give them a list of instances in point.

In conclusion, Sir, I would appeal to His Majesty's Government not to press the matter any further at the present time lest, small as it may appear to be, it may act as the proverbial cloud which may darken the momentous issues which are now before the two countries. I would also appeal to the Honourable Members of the Government of India to come forward and express on the floor of this House their complete agreement with the non-official Members in the present connection. By so doing they would, in my opinion, command more regard and more confidence from this side of the House than they would be doing by remaining silent ; and also, in the words of my friend, Mr. Ranga Iyer, " that way lies statesmanship ".

Mr. B. R. Puri (West Punjab : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, on behalf of my Party, I entirely endorse the amendment proposed by my Honourable friend, Mr. Bhuput Sing. I, however, do not wish to inflict any lengthy speech, because most of the matter is already within the cognisance of the House. The matter was thrashed out in the Council of State, and most of the arguments addressed on the floor of this House have been more or less a repetition of what has already been said elsewhere. Therefore, I do not wish to follow that course. It seems to me, Sir, that a very light view should be taken of the matter.

This question of Aden reminds me of a well known saying of Lord Charles Beresford who received on one occasion an invitation to stay in a country house, and he sent the following telegram in reply : " Sorry, cannot come, lie follows by post ". The fact of the matter was that he could not possibly go, and in the telegram he stated candidly also promising to send the usual false excuse by post. Sir, it seems to me that Aden is already taken away, and the present ceremony corresponds to the lie which we have received by post. This is an empty form through which we are going. As a matter of fact, if the British Government, in spite of their assurances and undertakings, solemn as they were, are guilty of having committed acts of breach of faith, how can we now expect that, in compliance with our wishes, they are going to reconsider the whole programme regarding Aden which they must have already chalked out ? Therefore, it seems to me that it is a barren ceremony that we are going through. The British people have already made up their minds to take away Aden, and they are not going to reopen the question just because of the opinions expressed by my friend, Mr. Bhuput Sing, or Mr. Puri or anybody.

But, Sir, I am inclined to take, as I promised, a lighter view of the whole thing, and that reminds me of the story of a servant of a Commander of a ship who, while the Commander was sitting in his office, rushed up to him and said : " Sir, would you call a thing to have been lost if you know where it is ?" Kindly mark the words "Sir, would you call a thing to have been lost if you knew where that thing was ?" So the Commander turned round and said : "Certainly not". "Well, Sir, if that is so, then your tea kettle is at the bottom of the sea." He had already dropped it, and having done so, resorted to this philosophic method. Why should we consider that Aden is lost ? We know where it has gone to ; we know where to find it. We may not have the power to recover it back, but why cry and weep over it ? They have got the power to take it, and they have taken it. I heard, Sir, a whisper in some quarters that we practically created this Settlement ; as a matter of fact, we have fed it, we have nursed it and brought it to its present prosperous state. Therefore, it is urged in certain quarters that even if the thing is taken away from us, we are entitled to some sort of compensation. I will advise my friends on this side of the House not to say a word about it. Bargaining with a powerful opponent is always a losing game. Even if there is any offer made, please be careful. That offer would be more or less like the offer of a stingy aunt who asked her little nephew :

> Auntie : "Well, John, will you let me kiss you if I give you a penny ?"
> John : "What only a penny ? Why, I get more than that for taking castor oil."

Therefore, be careful. If any kiss of that kind even on a payment is offered, you will ultimately find that it is not so very delicious. The best thing is to take a philosophic view of the whole matter and to submit to the will of the powerful and the mighty. But if you ask our honest opinion, I say you have no right to take Aden away, you have no right to touch it. By the usual nibbling process and by instalments you have done us out of it and now when you say : "Please discuss the matter and send us your final opinion", don't we know what you are going to do ? Thanks, we understand the game. We don't want half-measure ; either take the whole or give the whole.

Major Nawab Ahmad Nawaz Khan (Nominated Non-Official) : Sir, the great war has brought about numerous changes in every country, and it is well known that Aden was primarily taken under British possession for strategic purposes. After the war, on account of the numerous changes that have taken place all over the world, it has been found necessary now, not only for the sake of India, but for the sake of other countries as well, to separate Aden from India and to transfer it to the control of the Colonial Office. If Aden had been taken merely for the sake of trade and commerce for the Bombay Presidency, then all the objections urged by Honourable Members would have been perfectly justifiable, but it is well known that originally Aden was taken for military and political purposes, and for the safety and protection of India ; but, after the war, things have so much changed that Aden is now required for the same purpose for other countries.....

Mr. B. V. Jadhav : Which other countries ?

Major Nawab Ahmad Nawaz Khan : I may say South Africa, Egypt, Arabia and the Near East. If you have a little time tomorrow, we can discuss what those countries are, and what effect the transfer of Aden will have on the Near East ; it will take hours and hours to discuss these questions. I think, Sir, it is really the Imperial interests and prudence of His Majesty's Government which demand separation of Aden from India. ("Hear, hear", from the Nationalist Benches.) People who have got some experience of administration and also of military interests know well, that there is a necessity for the Imperial Government for separating Aden from India. I believe that many Honourable Members know it very well in their heart of hearts, but they want to oppose Government proposals as a matter of practice.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I do not want to interrupt the Honourable Member. Is he speaking on behalf of the Government of India or of the Home Government ?

Major Nawab Ahmad Nawaz Khan : I am a Member of the Assembly and I have as much right to express my opinion as you have. I am going to say a little bit further to my Mussalman friends, that we must have sympathy with the interests of Arabs there.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Since the Honourable Member has referred specially to the interest of Arabs, may I mention that the Arabs of Aden do not want separation from India ? I have got a resolution in my pocket which I could not read out because I understand that there was a time limit of 15 minutes.

Major Nawab Ahmad Nawaz Khan : I have the same authority from the Arabs who say that Aden ought to be separated from India. I tell you, it is in the Bible and we see also in practical life, that one man cannot serve two masters. The Arabs cannot serve two masters, the British and the Indians. They must serve the British master and they want not to be under the Indians.

(At this stage, Mr. B. Das rose in his seat.)

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Honourable Member has listened to the expression of opinion on this side of the House very patiently and it must give a patient hearing to the other side.

Major Nawab Ahmad Nawaz Khan : If Aden is separated, the Arabs will have a better chance for their trade, commerce and other things. I have a great sympathy for the losses which the people of Bombay and other Indians have to suffer, but you cannot avoid it. We patiently suffer sometimes the losses which occur when there is an earthquake, and, in order to satisfy ourselves, let us consider it as a political earthquake which has separated Aden from India. We cannot keep Aden with India and sacrifice the Imperial interests of the British Empire for the sake of commerce of the people of Bombay or the money which the Government of India spent there. By the separation of Aden, the Government of India or the British Government do not feel any pleasure, nor they do it merely to tease the Indians or to bring some losses on the people of Bombay. They have to consider primely the Imperial interests and the interests of many other countries which is a far more important matter, and they have to look at the thing from that point of view. Our mistake is that we see our side only and do not see the other side. If we see the other side also, then we shall be in a real position to judge properly. If Aden is separated from India,

5 P.M.

[Major Nawab Ahmad Nawaz Khan.]

we will have the advantage of an addition of Rs. 24 lakhs on account of salt duty, in addition to Rs. 20 lakhs stated in the Government communiqué, because at present Aden salt is treated as Indian salt, and if Aden is separated, the Aden salt will be taxed as foreign salt. I admit, by the separation of Aden there would be losses to some people in Bombay, but that loss is inevitable. The Government here or the Home Government cannot avoid these things, and we will have to bear gladly all these losses. I have a better experience than other Honourable Members here. because my province is a province which is called the frontier province. There we have to sacrifice many of these things for the sake of administration, political and military matters. So, I can realise better the position of the Government than people coming from far off provinces where they enjoy a life of peace, pleasure and happiness. I respect the Honourable Members who are hundred times abler than myself, and are more well read, but it is a question of experience. I realise the wants and necessities of the Government more than them, because it is our daily experience there.

Sardar Sant Singh (West Punjab : Sikh) : The Government Benches are not cheering you.

Major Nawab Ahmad Nawaz Khan : Because you have to cheer me this time and they are waiting. I want to have cheers from you, my friend, and you have cheered me many a time. I, therefore, support the motion moved by my Honourable friend, Sir Joseph Bhore (Laughter), for the complete separation of Aden from India as stated in the Government communiqué.

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Monday, the 18th September, 1933.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Monday, 18th September, 1933.

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber at Eleven of the Clock, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

ALLEGATIONS AGAINST THE POLICE IN CALCUTTA AND BOMBAY.

997. Maulvi Sayyid Murtuza Saheb Bahadur : (a) Are Government aware that both Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya and Maulana Ismail Ghuznavi accused the police of excesses, the former in connection with the lathi charge during the Congress session at Calcutta and the latter in connection with the lathi charge during the embarkation of Haj pilgrims at Bombay in the month of March, 1933 ?

(b) Is it a fact that Government have made their own enquiries with regard to the excesses and arrived at one and the same conclusion in each case ?

(c) If the answer to part (b) be in the affirmative, viz., that the accusations were false, will Government be pleased to explain why no proceedings were taken against Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya and why Maulana Ismail Ghuznavi is being prosecuted and a warrant has been issued for his arrest ?

(d) Are Government aware that the accusation in the one case relates to a political movement and in the other to a purely religious movement ?

(e) Are Government aware of the belief in the minds of Mussalmans generally that the policy of the Government is to discourage the Haj pilgrimage which is incumbent on those who can afford to undertake it ?

(f) Have representative Mussalmans addressed Government on this subject ? If so, with what result ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) to (d). The attitude of Government in regard to the general allegations made by Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya against the Calcutta Police has already been stated to the House in my reply to Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh's question No. 18, dated the 22nd August, 1933. Maulana Ismail Ghuznavi made a specific allegation against a certain Deputy Commissioner who applied for permission to prosecute him under section 500 of the Indian Penal Code. Permission has been granted by the Government of Bombay in accordance with Rule 24 of the Government Servants' Conduct Rules.

(e) No.

(f) An Honourable Member of this Assembly addressed Government on the subject and his letter was forwarded to the Government of Bombay. Several other Honourable Members have also mentioned the matter to me.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Were the allegations made by Pandit Malaviya of a specific nature ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : They were general charges.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : May I know in this connection whether the Bombay Government consulted the Central Government about bringing this case ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : No, Sir.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Who will pay the cost of the prosecution in this case, the Local Government or the Deputy Commissioner himself ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I understand that the Local Government will bear the cost.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Might I know from the Honourable Member if the intention of the Government was to make a regular inquiry with regard to the allegations by Pandit Malaviya, and is it not a fact that Government said that some official inquiry would be made ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I am not quite sure that I have got the purport of the Honourable Member's question. I answered questions about Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya at very full length at an earlier stage of this Session.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Those were the answers that the Honourable Member gave, but the point is whether Government are going to rely upon the information which they have got or whether a regular inquiry is going to be made, in which the allegations made by Pandit Malaviya should be gone into.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I understand that the question relates not primarily to Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya, but to Mr. Ismail Ghuznavi and the action which the Bombay Government are taking with regard to him.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Was there any official inquiry made in this connection before allowing the Deputy Commissioner to bring this case ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : The Government of Bombay no doubt satisfied themselves that there were reasonable grounds for according sanction to this officer to prosecute Maulana Ismail Ghuznavi.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : I want to know whether any inquiry was made or not before this sanction was given. I did not ask whether the Government of Bombay were satisfied.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : At an earlier stage of this Session, we discussed the question of what was meant by an inquiry, and I think we came to the conclusion that there was some doubt and that the word has been used with different meanings.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know from the Honourable Member whether the question with regard to these allegations has come to rest where it is or whether any inquiry is going to be made or will be made ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : No further action is contemplated by Government with regard to Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Did Government consult the Standing Haj Committee on pilgrimage in connection with the subject-matter of this question ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : No, Sir.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : May I know why Government did not consult the Standing Haj Committee on this matter, when other allegations of Mr. Ismail Ghuznavi were discussed ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : That, Sir, is a personal matter, not a matter for consideration by the Haj Committee.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will the Government of Bombay inquire from this Committee ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I do not think there is any necessity for the Government of Bombay to take any further action. A particular officer applied to them for permission to vindicate his character by prosecuting Mr. Ismail Ghuznavi. Sanction was given by the Government of Bombay and, so far as they are concerned, there ends the matter.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Are Government prepared to lay on the table the list of the allegations which have been made by Mr. Ismail Ghuznavi and which have been sent to the Government and the information which they have collected on those allegations ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : No, Sir. The matter is before the Court and I do not think it would be proper to take such action.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : I am not talking about those allegations in regard to the lathi charge. A list of allegations has been submitted to Government, and my information is that a certain sort of inquiry was made. Some information has been collected. I want to know whether Government are prepared to lay on the table a list of those allegations or not.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I have already answered at some length a question about various allegations made by Mr. Ismail Ghuznavi, and I have nothing to add to what I said on that occasion.

Shaikh Sadiq Hasan : When serious allegations are made and there is excitement in the country, is it not due to the Government to make public inquiries ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I have answered that question last Session and informed my Honourable friend that the Government of Bombay believed that there was no foundation for those allegations. Since then the matter has advanced to a further stage in that the particular officer against whom specific allegations have been made has been given permission to prosecute Mr. Ismail Ghuznavi and the case is now, I understand, before the Court.

Shaikh Sadiq Hasan : May I know why Maulana Ismail Ghuznavi has been prosecuted after such a length of time ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I am not sure that the sanction was given after a very long time. I have not the date with me. There might have been some delay in bringing the matter before the Court.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Was the action taken only on the ground that he belongs to a community which is supposed to be loyal and did nothing against the Government ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I think it is a reasonable principle that when Government servants consider themselves maligned, they should have an opportunity of seeking redress before a Court.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : I believe that my Honourable friend, Mr. Bajpai, would be in a better position to reply on this point. Is he prepared to lay on the table a list of those allegations ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : No, Sir ; I am not in a better position to answer these questions than the Honourable the Home Member.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : May I know if these allegations are also of a confidential nature ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I am not aware of any allegations apart from those which have been referred to by the Honourable the Home Member.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Was it not the legitimate duty of the Department to look after the accuracy of these allegations ? When some other person exposes them, another Department comes forward and asks to explain his action.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I do not admit the suggestion that any Department has treated Mr. Ghuznavi unfairly. If he goes out of his way to make suggestions which are unfounded, then he must take the consequence.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Is it not for the reason, that the Department, whose legitimate duty it was to take action, took no action and was silent about it ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Not at all, Sir.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Does my Honourable friend say that there was nothing confidential in the allegations made ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I have already said that my Department is not in possession of any allegations which are not already before the Court.

REGISTRATION OF THE CORDITE FACTORY LABOUR UNION, ARAVANKADU.

998. Mr. K. P. Thampan : (a) Are Government aware that the Cordite Factory Labour Union, Aravankadu, applied for registration in August, 1931, and submitted bye-laws as required by the Registrar of Trade Unions at Madras ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Army Department in their letter No. 4452|M.G. 1 (A.D.-3), dated 20th November, 1931, advised the Union not to press for registration ?

(c) Are Government aware that the Union at its last annual conference passed a resolution regretting that the Government of India had not by that time accorded sanction to the registration of the Union ?

(d) Are Government prepared to issue instructions for the early registration of the Union ? If not, why not ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a), (b) and (c). Yes.

(d) No, because the Government of India have no power to issue instructions to Registrars in matters of this kind.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : May I know, Sir, why this Union has not been allowed to register itself. Are there any special reasons for it ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : It is not, Sir, that it has not been allowed to register itself. The fact is that, as I said in answer to part (b), the Government of India advised the Union not to get itself registered in 1931. That was in accordance with the policy of Government at the time regarding the recognition by Government of Government Servants Associations.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : Do Government persist in the same policy ? What harm is there in allowing this Union to be registered now ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Personally, I see no harm whatever in allowing this Union to be registered. I will consult the other Departments of the Government of India concerned and see whether we cannot inform the Union that it can be registered.

PROMOTION TO THE RANK OF CHARGEMEN AT THE CORDITE FACTORY, ARAVANKADU.

999. Mr. K. P. Thampan : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that labourers of long service are not promoted to the rank of chargemen at the Cordite Factory, Aravankadu ?

(b) Are Government aware that one Ari Gowder who acted as a chargeman on three occasions was reverted to supervisor's post without being made permanent ? If so, why ?

(c) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the resolution No. 10, passed at the annual conference of the Cordite Factory Labour Union in 1933 on this subject ? If so, what steps do Government propose to take in the matter ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) There is no bar against the promotion of qualified labourers to chargemen.

(b) Certain supervisors, who had begun their service as labourers, were tried as chargemen, but much to the regret of the authorities, they did not prove a success and were therefore reverted to their previous posts.

(c) The answer to the first question is in the affirmative. Government are always prepared to consider the claims of qualified persons but they are not prepared to reserve posts for individuals who are not qualified to fill them.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : Is it not a fact that this particular individual, Ari Gowder, acted as a chargeman on three previous occasions and was given rewards for good work ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : I am afraid, I am unable to give any particular information about this individual, Ari Gowder, but I am told that he was among a number of men who were tried in a superior post and ultimately the authorities decided that they were not suitable for it.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : Will you take it from me that he was doing his work efficiently and that he was given rewards for the good work that he did during the war time ? Besides, he belongs to the depressed class community.

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : I am prepared to take that from the Honourable Member.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : Will the Honourable Member inquire whether it would be possible to re-instate him as a chargeman ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : I will make further inquiries about this individual if the Honourable Member so desires.

DUTIES OF THE DIVISIONAL PERSONNEL OFFICERS ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

1000. Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Will Government be pleased to state what duties are entrusted to the Divisional Personnel Officer in the Divisional Offices of the North Western Railway ?

(b) Are the Divisional Officers, viz., the Divisional Transportation Officer, the Divisional Commercial Officer and such others subordinate to the Divisional Personnel Officer ?

(c) Is it a fact that in practice everything is in the hands of the Divisional Personnel Officer in the Karachi Division Office who exercises control over the work of the Divisional Officers and disposes of it ?

(d) Has the Divisional Personnel Officer any power to give a final decision on any matter and can he order transfers or promotions or appoint new entrants ?

(e) Is it a fact that the clerks of the Divisional Officer, North Western Railway, Karachi, submitted a memorial on the 23rd January, 1933, complaining against the doings of the Divisional Personnel Officer of that office ?

(f) What orders, if any, were passed on it by the Divisional Superintendent, Karachi ?

(g) Is it a fact that the Divisional Superintendent in his interim reply to the clerks memorial said that the representation should have been first made to the Divisional Personnel Officer ? If so, under what rule was such an order justifiable ?

(h) What relief do Government propose to give to this generally discontented staff of the North Western Railway Divisional office at Karachi ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) The Divisional Personnel Officer deals with all personnel work in the Division, viz., cases referring to pay, salaries, mileage allowance, promotion, leave, passes, transfers, postings, appointments, termination of service, appeals, Provident Fund and gratuities, compensation to staff under the Workmen's Compensation Act, etc., directly or in consultation with other Divisional Officers to the extent to which he is authorised by the Divisional Superintendent.

(b) No.

(c) Government are not aware that this is the case, but are bringing this question to the notice of the Agent, North Western Railway.

(d) The Personnel Officer exercises such powers as the Divisional Superintendent may entrust to him.

(e) An unsigned printed copy of a letter purporting to be addressed by the clerks of the Divisional Superintendent's Office to the Divisional Superintendent has been received in the Railway Board.

(f) to (h). Government have no information, but I have sent a copy of the question to the Agent, North Western Railway, who is competent to deal with these matters, for any action that he may consider necessary.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : As the reply to part (b) is in the negative, therefore he is supposed to be an officer not above the Divisional Commercial Officer and others. What I am told is that he is doing all the business. In fact, they cannot do any business without consulting him.

Mr. P. R. Rau : I will bring this matter to the notice of the Agent, North Western Railway.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I might assure the Honourable Member that the original of the copy that I sent to his office was signed by the clerks and that they are very much discontented. Therefore, it will be reasonable that the Agent should inquire into this matter thoroughly and come to some conclusion whether this Personnel Officer's conduct is not such as to have made all the clerks discontented ?

Mr. B. R. Puri : I will be glad to send a copy of these supplementary questions and answers from my Honourable friend to the Agent.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : May I know the name of the Personnel Officer ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I do not know his name, Sir.

IMPORT OF "EDIBLE OIL" INTO INDIA FROM JAPAN.

1001. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : (a) Are Government aware that "edible oil" is being imported into India from Japan in large quantities ?

(b) Are Government aware that the said material is being used here as an adultrant for ghee ?

(c) Do Government propose to take steps to put a stop to such practice ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) and (b). Yes.

(c) Adulteration of foodstuffs is a provincial transferred subject, and as such it is for Local Governments, who have their own Food Adulteration Acts, to take steps to prevent the use of edible oil as an adulterant of ghee. The Government of India enquired from all Local Governments in April last whether any steps in this matter had been taken by them or by the local authorities under their control. The replies are not yet complete.

Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : May I know the price of this edible oil ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I am afraid, I am not in a position to answer that question.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : May I ask, whether it is the policy of the Government to encourage adulteration of ghee in this country ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Not at all, Sir. As far as I have been able to gather from such replies as I have received, some Local Governments, at any rate, are taking action to prevent adulteration.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Then why did not the Government of India take action to stop the import of this oil altogether ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Because, as the Honourable the Leader of the House explained when a question on the subject was put during the last Session, the oil is used not merely to adulterate ghee, but also as a lubricant and for certain other purely legitimate purposes.

PAYMENT ON HALVES OF CURRENCY NOTES.

1002. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the total amount for which halves of ten-rupee notes as also mismatched halves of notes of the same denomination have been refused payment since the beginning of the financial year 1930-31 to July 31, 1933 ?

(b) Will Government please state the total amount of hundred-rupee notes and notes of higher denomination, of which the halves have been reported as lost, stolen or destroyed, for which half payments have been made since 1930-31 to the end of July, 1933 ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : The information is not available and will take about one month to collect. I have already undertaken in the recent debates on an un-official Resolutions on this subject to arrange for the consideration of the Currency Note (Refund) Rules by an Expert Committee, if that course is approved by the Joint Committee on the Reserve Bank Bill. I have given instructions for this information to be collected so that it may be laid before the Expert Committee.

UNSUITABILITY OF THE NEW FIVE-RUPEE AND TEN-RUPEE CURRENCY NOTES.

1003. Lala Rameshwar Prasad Bagla : Has any representation been made to Government regarding the unsuitability of the new five-rupee and ten-rupee notes ? If so, what action do they propose to take to satisfy the public complaint ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I would invite the attention of the Honourable Member to the reply given to starred question No. 338 asked by Mr. Badri Lal Rastogi on the 1st of September, 1933.

INCOME SINCE THE INCREASE IN THE PRICE OF THE POSTCARD.

1004. Lala Rameshwar Prasad Bagla : Is it a fact that since the price of postcard was raised last time, there has been a fall in the income from that source ? If not, has it resulted in increased income and if so, by how much ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : As a separate account of the sale proceeds of postcards is not maintained, accurate information of the kind required by the Honourable Member is not readily available. It is estimated, however, that the value of postcards issued from treasuries to post offices during 1932-33 exceeded that during 1930-31, the last full year in which the old rate was in force, by approximately 6 lakhs of rupees.

ALL-INDIA ROYAL AIR FORCE EXAMINATION.

1005 Mr. Jagan Nath Aggarwal : (a) Is it a fact that the All-India Royal Air Force competitive examination consists of written papers and of what is called ' record ' and ' interview ' ?

(b) What is the object and policy underlying the record and interview parts of the examination ?

(c) Is it a fact that the candidates who happen to be sons and relations of persons in military or other Government services are given more marks than other candidates, regardless of their intellectual merits ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to state what facts are covered by the term ' record ' and to what extent they weigh with the examiners in giving marks ?

(e) Is it true that sometimes candidates who get the highest marks in written papers fail in record and interview, and vice versa ?

(f) Is it not a fact that the object of what is called the ' record and interview ' part of the examination is to pull up certain candidates and pull down others ?

(g) Is it true that in the last examination some candidates who were given very high marks in record and interview failed to get the minimum pass marks in the written papers and on the other hand, there were candidates who got very high marks in the written papers but failed to get the minimum pass marks in record and interview ? If so, was it purely accidental or due to any settled policy of Government ?

(h) If the latter, are Government prepared to take steps to remove the above state of things ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) Yes.

(b) To test the personality of the candidates.

(c) Not necessarily.

(d) The ' Record ' comprises the family history of the candidate and his career at school and college both in work and games. To what extent it weighs with the examiners is left entirely to their discretion.

(e) Yes.

(f) No.

(g) The answer to the first part of the question is in the affirmative. Neither of the suggestions made in the second part is correct. It is the Public Service Commission that conducts the examination and is responsible for the marks awarded to the candidates.

(h) Does not arise.

REPRESENTATION OF MINORITY COMMUNITIES IN THE ZOOLOGICAL SURVEY OF INDIA.

1006. Haji Chaudhury Muhammad Ismail Khan : With reference to the answer to question No. 48 (d) asked by Mr. Muhammad Rafique in this House on the 14th July, 1930, will Government be pleased to state the result of their enquiry about the adequate representation of minority communities on the staff of the Zoological Survey of India ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The Honourable Member is aware that this is a technical department and appointments to it cannot be made on a communal basis. Government, however, realise the desirability of recruiting Muslims, as vacancies occur, provided that candidates possessing the requisite qualifications are forthcoming.

OFFICER IN CHARGE OF THE ANDAMANS FISHERIES.

1007. Haji Chaudhury Muhammad Ismail Khan : (a) Is it a fact that the present officer in charge of the Andamans fisheries has no qualification in marine biology ?

(b) Is it a fact that Mr. Muhammad Sharif, temporary Assistant Superintendent, could not be given the charge of the fishery work in the Andamans for want of qualifications in marine biology ? If so, why was the present officer given the charge of fisheries ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) No, the present Officer-in-Charge of the Andaman Fisheries has had a great deal of experience of marine biological work both in this country and in Europe.

(b) In asking the Public Service Commission to recruit an officer for the temporary post of Research Officer, Andaman Fisheries, the Government of India specifically asked them to consider the claims of Muslim candidates who might apply for the post. The Commission, however, recommended a Sinhalese who was appointed. The temporary post has since been abolished as a measure of retrenchment and an Officer on the staff of the Zoological Survey of India, who is fully qualified, is continuing the fisheries work in the Andamans.

UNSUITABILITY OF THE NEW FIVE-RUPEE AND TEN-RUPEE CURRENCY NOTES.

1008. Mr. Nabakumar Sing Dudhoria : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) whether their attention has been directed to the fact that the new notes of five-rupee and ten-rupee denominations are flimsy, very small in size and easily liable to damage and deterioration ;

(b) whether they are aware that people in the interior of the country hesitate to take them because they are easily lost or spoilt ;

(c) whether they are aware that the printing of the number at one corner is an inconvenience to the trading community ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) Government have received certain complaints regarding the new five-rupee and ten-rupee notes.

(b) Government have no information on this point.

(c) Payment can be made on a mutilated note even if the number is not identifiable provided that the missing portion is too small to be used in support of any other claim under the Rules. It is only in the case of a cut half note that the number must be clearly identifiable on the portion presented by the claimant. The new design will therefore not adversely affect people whose notes suffer accidental damage.

DEMOTION OF CERTAIN INSPECTORS OF CREWS, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

1009. Mr. Muhammad Azhar Ali : (a) With reference to the information laid on the table of this House in reply to starred question No. 646 of 6th March, 1933, will Government be pleased to state whether any notice of discharge or order communicating the terms of abolition of the Crew system was ever served on the Inspectors of Crews, East Indian Railway, in terms of their agreement of employment ? If not, why not ?

(b) Was any option to serve on reduced pay and allowances ever given to these Inspectors of Crews as an alternative to discharge ? If not, why not ?

(c) How long can a system be treated as temporary and is it a fact that the Railway Board at one of their meetings with the All-India Railwaymen's Federation expressed the opinion that no temporary or probationary period would exceed three years, so that the person recruited as such may not be turned out as over-age and his future career marred for any other Government service ? If so, what consideration was given to those of the Inspectors of Crews, who have exceeded the age-limit, in respect of their age, in the new appointments under the Moody-Ward scheme ?

(d) Is it a fact that the Divisional Superintendent, East Indian Railway, Howrah, confirmed the appointments of Inspectors of Crews—vide his letter No. E.H.C.-202|13|28, dated 25th April, 1930, which reads " Please note that you are confirmed as Line Inspector of Crews on Rs. 150 in the grade Rs. 150—10—200 " ? If so, how far is the answer given to question No. 646 (b) (ii), i.e., " none of them were confirmed " correct ?

(e) Is it a fact that there is a break in the services of these Inspectors of Crews covering the period between the date of the abolition of the Crew system and that of their appointment under the new system on reduced pay ? If so, how do Government propose to condone it ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : With your permission, Sir, I propose to reply to questions Nos. 1009 and 1010 together. I have called for information and will lay a reply on the table in due course.

DEMOTION OF CERTAIN INSPECTORS OF CREWS, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

†1010. Mr. Muhammad Azhar Ali : (a) Are Government aware whether there is any difference between the nature of duties and responsibilities of the Inspectors of Crews under the Crew system and the Inspectors of Tickets under the new scheme on the East Indian Railway, which warranted the abolition of the former and the creation of the latter ? If not, what were the specific reasons for not confirming these Inspectors of Crews from the date they entered the Government service under the Crew system ?

(b) Is it a fact that the temporary service of these Inspectors of Crews under the Crews system is reckoned as continuous with their present permanent service under the new scheme towards leave and gratuity ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 1009.

(c) Is it a fact that the normal channel of promotion and recruitment of the ticket checking staff is as laid down in the rules for the recruitment and training of subordinate staff issued by the Railway Board ? If so, what were the special reasons for appointing these Inspectors of Crews on the abolition of the Crew system in grades higher than the lowest open under the new scheme ?

(d) Is it a fact that the following Inspectors of Crews under the Crew system were absorbed under the Moody-Ward scheme on salaries equivalent or higher than those drawn by them in the Crew system :

(i) M. Latif, Chief Inspector, Crews, fixed as Chief Inspector, Tickets ;

(ii) A. G. Khan, Inspector of Crews, fixed as Senior Inspector, Tickets ;

(iii) C. Dunwell, Inspector of Crews, fixed as Senior Inspector, Tickets ?

If so, why ?

MEMORIAL OF THE INSPECTORS OF CREWS, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

1011. Mr. Muhammad Azhar Ali : (a) Is it a fact that an advanced copy of a memorial from the Inspectors of Crews, submitted in April, 1933, has been received by the Agent, East Indian Railway, Calcutta ? If so, what action had been taken by the said officer ?

(b) Is it a fact that the memorial addressed to the Agent, East Indian Railway, Calcutta, submitted by these Inspectors of Crews in April, 1933, through the proper channel has been withheld by the respective Divisional Superintendents ? If so, why and under what rules ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no information, but are sending a copy of the question to the Agent, East Indian Railway, for any action that may be necessary.

MODIFICATION OF RECRUITMENT RULES OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA SECRETARIAT STAFF.

1012. Mr. Uppi Saheb Bahadur : (a) Is it a fact that in temporary or officiating vacancies in the First and Second Divisions in Departments of the Government of India Secretariat, men holding permanent posts in the lower grades, who have qualified for the higher grades at one of the examinations held by the Public Service Commission, are promoted to the higher grades ?

(b) Is it a fact that these departmental men, who have thus been promoted to the higher grades in the temporary or officiating vacancies, are required to perform work of a much higher responsibility than that required in their permanent posts ?

(c) Is it also a fact that these men generally continue to officiate in the higher grades for a number of years ?

(d) Is it a fact that, when these temporary or officiating vacancies become permanent, they are given to young nominees of the Public Service Commission who have had absolutely no past experience of Secretariat work, and the experienced departmental men, who had actually officiated in those temporary or officiating vacancies for a number of years, have thus to revert to the lower grades ?

(e) Are Government prepared to consider the desirability of modifying the recruitment rules as early as possible ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : Departments have a large measure of discretion in filling temporary and officiating vacancies, and I understand that in the great majority of cases they give these vacancies to departmental men. I have no reason to suppose, however, that such vacancies usually last for a number of years, nor can I accept the implication that all the men promoted temporarily prove fit for the higher grades. Under the rules a proportion of permanent vacancies in the First and Second Divisions are filled by the promotion of departmental men and the rest by direct recruitment. These rules in the opinion of Government provide adequately for the interests of departmental men, and it is not proposed to alter them.

RULES FOR RECRUITMENT AND TRAINING OF SUBORDINATE STAFF ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

1013. Mr. E. H. M. Bower : (a) In connection with the reply to Lieut.-Colonel Sir Henry Gidney's starred question No. 908 (b), given on 24th March, 1933, will Government please state whether the Agent of the East Indian Railway has since decided to publish in the East Indian Railway Gazette, the rules for the recruitment and training of subordinate staff on the East Indian Railway ?

(b) If the answer to part (a) be in the negative, will Government please state why these rules are withheld from the staff concerned ?

(c) Do these rules govern the posting of subordinates to officiating appointments ?

(d) If the answer to part (c) be in the negative, do Government propose to issue instructions to the railway authorities concerned to frame the necessary rules ? If not, why not ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : With your permission, Sir, I propose to reply to questions Nos. 1013, 1014 and 1015 together. Government have no information, but have forwarded a copy of these questions to the Agent, East Indian Railway, for any action that may be necessary on the points raised in these questions.

RULES FOR RECRUITMENT AND TRAINING OF SUBORDINATE STAFF ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

†1014. Mr. E. H. M. Bower : (a) Is it a fact that no provision has been made in the rules for the recruitment and training of subordinate staff on the East Indian Railway, for the appointment and promotion of Assistant Trains Examiners and Trains Examiners ?

(b) If the answer to part (a) be in the affirmative, do Government propose to issue instructions to the railway authorities concerned to frame the necessary rules ? If not, why not ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 1013.

RULES FOR RECRUITMENT AND TRAINING OF SUBORDINATE STAFF ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

†1015. Mr. E. H. M. Bower : (a) Is it a fact that in the rules for the recruitment and training of subordinate staff on the East Indian Railway under the caption "Guards and the normal channels of their promotions", mention of Gunner Guards and Pilot Guards has been omitted ?

(b) Is it a fact that there are different scales of pay for Gunner Guards, Pilot Guards and Guards ?

(c) If the answer to part (b) be in the affirmative, will Government please state the salaries of these posts, Company and State scales being set down separately ?

(d) Will Government please state why vacancies in the Guards' list are filled in Divisions by recruitment :

(i) of outsiders without previous experience, and

(ii) sometimes by railway staff from other departments to the exclusion of Gunner Guards and Pilot Guards ?

(e) Do Government propose to issue instructions to the railway authorities concerned to frame the necessary rules for the promotion of Gunner Guards and Pilot Guards ? If not, why not ?

IRREGULARITIES IN CHARGING SALARIES OF THE SUBORDINATES ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

1016. Mr. E. H. M. Bower : (a) Is it a fact that there are cases on the East Indian Railway where subordinates whose salaries are charged against one post, but whose services are utilised for the duties of a different post other than in an officiating chain of arrangements or on deputation ?

(b) Do Government propose to issue instructions to the authorities concerned to put a stop to such irregularities ? If not, why not ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Government have no information, but are making enquiries.

(b) There are instructions already in existence laying down that the salary of a Government servant should not be charged against any post other than that in which he is working.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Ten days notice is given in order to get information and not to say that Government have no information.

Mr. P. R. Rau : The information which Honourable Members want sometimes takes much longer time than ten days to collect.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Is it quite legitimate for Government to say that they are collecting information, but it is not correct to say that they have got no information ? Government is supposed to have information on all matters under their control.

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am not aware that the Government ever pretended to be omniscient.

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 1013.

SENIORITY LIST MAINTAINED ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

1017. Mr. E. H. M. Bower : (a) Is a common seniority list maintained on the East Indian Railway in order that promotions to posts as they fall vacant may be filled by the senior employees instead of by promotion being confined to subordinates in any one particular Division in which the vacancy occurs ?

(b) Is it a rule that vacancies in any one Division must be filled by employees in that Division to the exclusion of other suitable employees working in other Divisions and in the Head Office at Calcutta ?

(c) If the answer to part (b) be in the negative, will Government please state which posts are to be filled from among the employees on the several Divisions and the Head Office staff ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I have called for certain information and will lay a reply on the table of the House in due course.

WELFARE SCHEMES ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

1018. Mr. E. H. M. Bower : (a) Is there a welfare scheme operating on the East Indian Railway by means of welfare committees posted on the Divisions for the benefit of subordinate staff ?

(b) Is it a fact that the subordinate staff of the Calcutta Head Office do not participate in the welfare scheme ?

(c) If the answer to part (b) be in the affirmative, do Government propose to issue instructions to include this category of employees in the welfare scheme ? If not, why not ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Government are aware that a system of Welfare Committees is in operation on certain Mechanical Workshops and on certain Divisions of the East Indian Railway.

(b) and (c). Government have no information on this point. But I am sending a copy of the question and the reply thereto to the Agent, East Indian Railway, for such action as he may consider necessary.

SURRENDER OF THE POST OF TRANSPORTATION INSPECTOR, COMMERCIAL, ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

1019. Mr. E. H. M. Bower : (a) Will Government please state whether the Deputy Chief Commercial Manager, Claims and Refunds, of the East Indian Railway, surrendered, as a measure of economy, the post of Transportation Inspector, Commercial, grade Rs. 280—20—500, attached to his office ?

(b) Is it a fact that on the recommendation of the same official, the Agent has sanctioned the creation of two new posts, namely,

(i) Clerk Grade I Rs. 170—218 ?

(ii) Clerk Special Grade Rs. 160—220 ? If so, why ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no information. These matters are entirely within the competence of the Agent, East Indian Railway, to whom I have sent a copy of the question.

FORCIBLE ACQUISITION OF A BUNGALOW BY MILITARY ESTATE OFFICER IN PESHAWAR.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Have Government received the following telegram on or about the 16th September, 1933, from Mrs. Tekooram, Peshawar ?

"In absence my son Harichand ill at Murree Military Estate Officer forcibly taking possession our bungalow, 5 Fort Road, turned out myself and servants posted military guard all my jewellery and valuables in bungalow, pray stop such high-handness allowing us reasonable time according section 18, clause (2) Land Acquisition Act and section 38, Revenue Circular No. 54 to make other arrangements."

(b) Are Government prepared to make an enquiry and state the facts of the case, and the steps taken to prevent hardships ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) Yes.

(b) Government have no information as to the facts, but I may inform the Honourable Member that, as soon as I received the telegram on Saturday, even before receiving notice of his question, I telegraphed to the Military Estate Officer asking for a full report, and adding that the occupant of a house which was being acquired under the Land Acquisition Act must be shown every reasonable consideration. If the Honourable Member wishes, I will lay a further statement on the table as soon as the report has been received and considered.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : I have also received a similar telegram ; and I shall be very grateful if the Honourable the Army Secretary will communicate the result of the enquiry, at a later date, on the floor of the House, and see that such preventable hardship do not occur in cantonment areas ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : I am certainly prepared to do that.

UNSTARRED QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

CERTAIN ALTERATIONS IN " D " TYPE ORTHODOX QUARTERS IN NEW DELHI.

103. Maulvi Muhammad Shafi Daoodi : (a) Are Government aware that the inner court-yards of the " D " type orthodox quarters in New Delhi are very small and the presence of a latrine on one side of them makes them still smaller and inconvenient for those who occupy them during the summer months ?

(b) Is it a fact that there is no separate room for servants in these quarters ?

(c) Is it also a fact that the question of the stoppage of the Simla exodus is under the consideration of Government ?

(d) If the replies to parts (a), (b) and (c) be in the affirmative, do Government propose to consider the desirability of enlarging the court-yards and providing a room for servants on the opposite side of the latrine in the new quarters that are going to be built in New Delhi ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The smallest courtyard in the " D " type orthodox quarters in New Delhi has an area of 400 sq. feet, an area which is considered to be sufficient for all reasonable requirements during the summer months.

(b) No.

(c) Government have reached no decision beyond that stated on page 23 of the Summary of the Results of Retrenchment Operations in Civil Expenditure, copies of which are in the Library.

(d) The suggestions received from tenants regarding these quarters have been incorporated in the new plans so far as they are consistent with reasonable economy.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR MEDICAL TREATMENT OF INDIAN CLERKS IN NEW DELHI.

104. Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah : (a) With reference to the reply given to the starred question No. 1216 in this House on the 22nd March, 1929, will Government please state what improvements have since then been made in the arrangements for medical treatment of Indian clerks in New Delhi ?

(b) Is it a fact that a civil and military dispensary specially for Government servants like the one at Simla, has not been opened and that the small dispensary opened near the Indian clerks' quarters in 1929 has been closed ?

(c) Do Government propose to open a separate dispensary for out-door patients at a central place near the Indian clerks' quarters ? If so, when ? If not, why not ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) The Combined Hospital, New Delhi, has since been transferred to its new building in a more central place and is now called the Civil Hospital, New Delhi. It has accommodation for indoor patients, both Indians and Europeans. A new wing to be called Travancore Wing is being added to this Hospital for better class Indian and European patients and is expected to be ready for occupation by the 1st November, 1933. It has also been decided that the Military Assistant Surgeon and the Civil Assistant Surgeon, who attend on Government servants in Simla, should move down to Delhi during the winter months to attend on the migratory staff of the Government of India. Owing to the increased population in the Barakhamba area, a dispensary has been started under the charge of a Sub-Assistant Surgeon from the Civil Hospital.

(b) Yes.

(c) The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the reply given to parts (c) and (d) of his unstarred question No. 84 on the 16th September, 1933.

ELECTRIC LIGHT IN " D " TYPE QUARTERS IN NEW DELHI.

105. Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah : (a) With reference to the reply given to the starred question No. 707 in the Legislative Assembly on the 23rd September, 1929, will Government please state whether an extra electric point has been installed in the " D " class quarters in New Delhi ? If not, when do they propose to do it ?

(b) Is it a fact that electric points have been provided in the bath-rooms and lavatories in the lowest class quarters for Indian clerks at Simla ?

(c) If the reply to (b) be in the affirmative, when do Government propose to provide similar points in the New Delhi quarters ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) No. The additional electric points will be provided when funds are available for the purpose.

(b) A certain number of clerks' quarters are supplied with electric points in bath rooms.

(c) The answer is contained in the reply to part (a) of the question.

CONSTRUCTION OF QUARTERS IN NEW DELHI.

106. Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah : (a) With reference to the reply given to unstarred question No. 484 in the Legislative Assembly on the 3rd April, 1929, will Government please state whether unorthodox quarters have been constructed in New Delhi for clerks drawing less than Rs. 225 ? If not, when do they propose to construct them ?

(b) Is it a fact that Government have sanctioned the construction of new residential quarters in New Delhi ? If so, how many of each class, where and when are they to be constructed ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The reply to the first part is in the affirmative ; the second part does not arise.

(b) Yes ; Government have sanctioned the construction of 670 quarters of the following types :

A	.. ..	9
B	.. ..	61
C	.. ..	151
D	.. ..	299
E	.. ..	150
		670

It is proposed to build the quarters, as soon as possible, on vacant sites in the developed area in New Delhi and in the undeveloped area between the old city wall and the main railway line in the vicinity of the Government Press.

LIQUIDATION OF THE INDARPRASTH STORES, DELHI.

107. Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah : With reference to the reply given to the starred question No. 719 in the Legislative Assembly on the 23rd September, 1929, will Government please state whether the liquidation of Indarprasth Stores, Ltd., Delhi, is now complete ? If not, do Government propose to enquire into the cause of ten years' delay ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : An enquiry has been made and the result will be furnished to the House in due course.

NEW PENSION RULES OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

108. Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah : With reference to the reply given to the starred question No. 721 in the Legislative Assembly on the 23rd September 1929, will Government please state how the question of new pension rules stands at present ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : It has been decided that the proposal to frame new pension rules for present members of the Services is impracticable but new pension rules for those in the category of new entrants are now under consideration.

HOUSE RENT ALLOWANCE GRANTED TO THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA STAFF IN NEW DELHI.

109. Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah : Will Government please state if they allow house rent allowance to the clerical establishments of the Government of India offices if they make their private residential arrangements in New Delhi for want of Government quarters ? If so, what are the rules for it ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : Yes. Clerks residing in private houses in New Delhi who unsuccessfully apply for Government quarters, or who, if residing singly, are unable to obtain accommodation in the Chummeries in New Delhi, are eligible for a house rent allowance. The amount of the allowance depends on the amount by which the rent paid by the clerk exceeds 10 per cent. of his emoluments and is subject to a maximum laid down in the Home Department Resolution No. 1089-C., dated the 23rd February, 1918, a copy of which has been placed in the Library of the House.

SHOPS ON BAIRD ROAD, NEW DELHI.

110. Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah : (a) Will Government please state :

(i) What is the number of municipal shops on the Baird Road in New Delhi ; (ii) how many of them were vacant on the 1st January, 1933, and on the 1st August, 1933 ; (iii) how many of them have not yet been let for the year commencing from September, 1933 ?

(b) Are Government aware that all the private shops in the same line were occupied last year and have been let for the next year also ?

(c) Are Government aware that the vacancy of municipal shops is due to rents being higher than their worth ?

(d) Is it proposed to reduce the rents of the municipal shops to prevent loss of revenue to the municipality due to vacancies ? If so, when ? If not, why not ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the reply given to Mr. S. G. Jog's starred question No. 739 on the 7th September, 1933.

INCOME-TAX AND SUPER-TAX PAID BY THE TEA-PLANTERS IN ASSAM.

Lala Rameshwar Prasad Bagla : Will Government kindly state the total amount paid by the tea-planters in Assam as income-tax and super-tax ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : The information is being obtained and will be laid on the table in due course.

RE-INTRODUCTION OF THE COUPON SYSTEM ON THE RAILWAYS.

112. Lala Rameshwar Prasad Bagla : (a) Are Government aware that during the General Discussion on the Railway Budget some Members suggested the re-introduction of the coupon system for the benefit of both the Government and the public ?

(b) Will Government please state if they have paid any attention to the abovesaid suggestion ? If not, have they considered whether it is desirable to give effect to the suggestion now ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Yes.

(b) The coupon system is in operation on certain railways. Government are not prepared to press for its extension on the other railways, most of whom have tried it out and discontinued it both on account of certain abuses that had arisen and because they were of opinion that the grant of this concession did not bring them any additional traffic.

In this connection, I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply given to Mr. Thampan to question No. 646 on the 22nd September, 1932.

PROVISION OF AN ORTHODOX RESTAURANT AT CAWNPORE CENTRAL STATION.

113. Lala Rameshwar Prasad Bagla : (a) Is it a fact that representations for a restaurant at the Cawnpore Central Station for the benefit of the orthodox community have been made to the Railway authorities by Cawnpore people ?

(b) If the reply to the above question be in the affirmative, what action have the authorities concerned taken or propose to take in that respect ?

(c) Are Government aware that such a restaurant has been provided at Moghal Sarai ? If so, are they prepared to consider the desirability of making the same arrangement at Cawnpore central station as at Moghul Sarai ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no information but have sent a copy of the question to the Agent, East Indian Railway, for any action that may be necessary.

INCOME FROM INCOME-TAX AND SUPER-TAX FROM EACH PROVINCE.

114. Lala Rameshwar Prasad Bagla : (a) Will Government kindly inform the House of the amount of the income from the income-tax in each province separately during the last three years ?

(b) Will Government kindly state the income from the super-tax for the last three years from each Province ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state the increase in the revenue from the surcharge ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a), (b) and (c). A statement is laid on the table.

Statement showing income from income-tax, supertax and surcharge in each Province during the years 1930-31, 1931-32 and 1932-33.

FILLING UP OF VACANCIES IN THE IMPERIAL COUNCIL OF AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH.

115. Haji Chaudhury Muhammad Ismail Khan : (a) Is it a fact that in the officiating vacancies in the First and Second Divisions of the clerical establishment of the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research, departmental promotions are made from Lower Divisions ?

(b) How many such vacancies have occurred in the Department during the last two years, and what are the names of the clerks who were appointed in those vacancies ?

(c) Is the seniority in service or in the Department or the fact of their having passed the prescribed test for the Division in which such vacancies occur taken into consideration whenever such vacancies occur ? If not, why not ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) Yes, whenever possible.

(b) A statement is laid on the table.

(c) In making departmental promotions due regard is always paid to efficiency and seniority.

STAFF SERVING UNDER THE IMPERIAL COUNCIL OF AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH IN CONNECTION WITH LOCUST CAMPAIGN.

116. Haji Chaudhury Muhammad Ismail Khan : (a) What is the total number of clerical and technical establishment serving in connection with the locust campaign under the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research ? How many are Muslims ?

(b) How many members of the staff hold permanent appointments under Government ? How many of them are Muslims, and how many Hindus ?

(c) Is it a fact that the present Locust Research Entomologist holds a permanent post under the Madras Government ? What is his substantive pay under that Government, and what increase in pay has he been given on his temporary transfer under the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research ?

(d) Is it a fact that since last year there have been few locust invasions in the country ?

(e) If the reply to part (d) be in the affirmative, on what work are the Locust Entomologist and his staff employed ?

(f) Do the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research propose to finish the locust campaign, and disband the staff employed in connection therewith as early as possible ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) The total strength of clerical and technical establishment is 13 ; eight Hindus and five Muslims.

(b) Four : two Muslims and two Hindus.

(c) Yes. His substantive pay under the Madras Government at the time of his transfer to the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research was Rs. 625 and he was given an increase of Rs. 375 which included compensation for the high cost of living in Baluchistan. His present substantive pay under the Madras Government is Rs. 675.

(d) Yes.

(e) The Locust Research staff is engaged on a biological and ecological study of the Desert Locust in those of its permanent or semi-permanent breeding grounds which lie within the frontiers of India. The object of this work is to ascertain the conditions which lead to the swarming and migration which result in locust visitations ; to ascertain to what extent the locusts which periodically cause damage in Northern India are bred within Indian limits and where the invading swarms originate ; to devise methods by which warning of coming visitations may be obtained in future so that control measures may be organised in good time ; and, if possible, to devise means of dealing with future locust visitations before they become wide-spread. Improved control measures are also being studied so far as conditions permit. Information of locust movements, and the results of research on locusts, in other countries, are regularly obtained and studied with reference to Indian conditions.

(f) The Imperial Council of Agricultural Research has not financed a campaign of locust control operations at any time but, as explained in the answer to part (e), finances only a locust research scheme. It is not proposed to discontinue this work at present which has proved very beneficial. Expenditure of money on locust research in the period between visitations is well justified.

RESEARCH WORK ON BEHALF OF THE IMPERIAL COUNCIL OF AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH DONE AT AGRA.

117. Haji Chaudhury Muhammad Ismail Khan : (a) Is it a fact that certain research work on behalf of the Imperial Council is being done at Agra ?

(b) What is the nature of that work, and under whose supervision is it being done ? How many are being employed thereon, and how many of them are Muslims ?

(c) Does the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research satisfy itself periodically that the work is being done on proper lines ?

(d) In what way does the Imperial Council satisfy itself that the grant given by it to private individuals, bodies, or Indian States is spent in the proper manner ?

(e) Are the Imperial Council prepared to consider the advisability of having such accounts audited more fully ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) and (b). The Imperial Council of Agricultural Research has given a grant to the United Provinces Government for mycological research work on cereal Rusts at Agra. The work is being done under the supervision of Dr. K. C. Mehta, M.Sc., Ph.D., Professor of Botany, Agra College, Agra. There are five Assistants and one clerk employed under the scheme, none of whom is a Muslim. It is reported that no Muslim Assistants with necessary qualifications in Mycology were available.

(c) Yes.

(d) The Council receive annually progress reports on all schemes financed by it and these reports are examined by the Advisory Board and laid before the Governing Body of the Council with the Advisory Board's recommendations. The Vice-Chairman and Expert Advisers of the Council visit from time to time the research institutions and stations where schemes financed by the Council are in progress.

(e) Accounts are audited in accordance with the bye-laws of the Council which are considered quite sufficient for the purpose. A copy of the bye-laws will be found in the Library of the House.

TOURS OF OFFICERS OF CERTAIN DEPARTMENTS.

118. Haji Chaudhury Muhammad Ismail Khan : (a) Is it a fact that the officers of the following departments are constantly touring :

(i) Indian Stores Department ;

(ii) Audit Office, Indian Stores Department ;

(iii) the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research ; and (iv) the Central Board of Revenue ?

(b) Will Government please state the number of occasions on which each officer of the above offices has gone on tour during 1932-33, and the period for which each has remained absent from the Headquarters each time ? What was the purpose of each tour ?

(c) Will Government please state the reasons for the enormous expenditure on such tours in these days of financial stringency ? How far have the recommendations of the Retrenchment Committee been observed in this respect ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) Some of the officers of the Departments mentioned do tour but not constantly.

(b) Government do not consider that the value of the information asked for would be commensurate with the labour and time which would be involved in its collection.

(c) The General Purposes Retrenchment Sub-Committee did not make any recommendation as to restricting touring as a general proposition, but as a result of the retrenchment campaign budget provisions for travelling allowance were reduced and touring has consequently to be restricted to the reduced budget provision. Government consider that touring is absolutely essential in certain cases and they are satisfied that unnecessary touring is not done.

STAFF EMPLOYED ON THE "RESEARCH SIDE" OF THE IMPERIAL COUNCIL OF AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH.

119. Haji Chaudhury Muhammad Ismail Khan : (a) What is the number of the Headquarters staff employed on the 'research side' of the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research ?

(b) Is it a fact that some of this staff are getting Rs. 100 per mensem, and others Rs. 75 per mensem ?

(c) Is it a fact that a clerk of the 'research side' who was getting Rs. 100 per mensem has recently been given an increment of Rs. 20 in his pay ? If so, has this increment been given to him for some additional duties or responsibilities ?

(d) Is it a fact that another clerk on the 'research side' who was drawing Rs. 75 per mensem has recently been given an increment of Rs. 5 in his pay ?

(e) Is it a fact that a third clerk who is drawing Rs. 75 per mensem and who had an equal claim for an increment, has been given no increment at all ?

(f) Have the increments referred to above been given according to some definite scales ? If not, on what basis or on what merit have they been given ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) Twenty eight (two gazetted officers, 17 clerks and nine inferior servants).

(b) Yes.

(c) A clerk who was drawing a pay of Rs. 100 was promoted to the more responsible post of an Assistant on Rs. 120.

(d) Yes ; the increment was granted in consideration of particularly good work.

(e) No.

(f) The post of Assistant referred to in the answer to part (c) was newly created. In the case referred to in the answer to part (d) the increment was fixed at a figure considered suitable.

STATISTICAL SECTION OF THE IMPERIAL COUNCIL OF AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH.

120. Haji Chaudhury Muhammad Ismail Khan : (a) Is it a fact that under the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research, there is a separate Statistical Section ?

(b) What are its functions ?

(c) Is it a fact that the section is composed of a highly paid Statistician, an Assistant Statistician, and a clerk ?

(d) Are Government satisfied that the statistical work of the Imperial Council sufficiently justifies the existence of these three officers ?

(e) Did the Imperial Council consider the possibility of getting the work done through the office of the Director-General of Commercial Intelligence and Statistics ?

(f) Is it a fact that the rate of increment of the pay of the Statistician is Rs. 50 ? Is this the rate of increment ordinarily allowed to a member of an all-India Service or a Central Service ?

(g) Has the post of the Statistician been considered as important and responsible as any of the services referred to at (f) above ?

(h) In view of the fact that Government are seriously considering the question of a general reduction in the scales of pay of every service, was not a lower rate of increment in the pay of the Statistician considered sufficient or desirable ? If not, why not ?

(i) Are Government prepared to consider the advisability of keeping a close watch over the manner in which funds of the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research are being administered ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) Yes.

(b) The functions and duties of the section are :

1. The mathematical and statistical interpretation of the results of agricultural experiments with special reference to field experiments, yield trials, manurial experiments and the working up of other biological data.
2. To assist agricultural research workers, whether employed under Provincial Governments or on research schemes of the Council, in the proper planning and interpretation of field experiments.
3. The Statistical examination of data connected with live-stock.
4. To render general statistical assistance to the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research Department in the course of its work.
5. To enquire into problems of agricultural statistics.

(c) The section is composed of one Statistician on Rs. 600, one Statistical Assistant on Rs. 180, one clerk on Rs. 75 and one peon on Rs. 15 per mensem.

(d) Yes.

(e) Yes. The section was established after consultation with the Director-General of Commercial Intelligence and Statistics.

(f), (g) and (h). The Statistician whose post is important and responsible was recruited in 1930 on Rs. 450 per mensem and was granted an increment of Rs. 50 on completion of one year's service. He was placed in charge of the Statistical Section established in 1932, and his pay was fixed at Rs. 550—600 with due regard to the nature of the duties to be performed by him.

(i) Government are satisfied that the grant made by them to the Council is properly administered.

BONUS PAID TO POLICY-HOLDERS BY POSTAL INSURANCE.

121. Rao Bahadur B. L. Patil : (a) Will Government please state what bonus they have paid from time to time to policy-holders of postal insurance during the last 12 years ?

(b) What amount (all told) has so far been paid to policy-holders since the establishment of the postal insurance and what amount has been kept in reserve out of the profits ?

(c) How do Government propose to dispose of these profits kept in reserve ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : The information is being collected and will be laid on the table of the House in due course.

MESSAGES FROM THE COUNCIL OF STATE.

Secretary of the Assembly : Sir, two Messages have been received from the Council of State. The first Message is as follows :

"I am directed to inform you that the Message from the Legislative Assembly to the Council of State desiring their concurrence in the Resolution recommending that the Bill to constitute a Reserve Bank of India be committed to a Joint Committee of the Council of State and of the Legislative Assembly, with instructions to report on or before the 20th November, 1933, and that the Joint Committee do consist of 28 members, was considered by the Council of State at their meeting held on the 16th September, 1933, and that the Resolution was concurred in by the Council."

Sir, the second Message runs thus :

"I am directed to inform you that the Message from the Legislative Assembly to the Council of State desiring their concurrence in the Resolution recommending that the Bill further to amend the Imperial Bank of India Act, 1920, for certain purposes, be committed to a Joint Committee of the Council of State and of the Legislative Assembly with instructions to report on or before the 20th November, 1933, and that the Joint Committtee do consist of 28 members, was considered by the Council of State at their meeting held on the 16th September, 1933, and that the Resolution was concurred in by the Council."

STATEMENTS LAID ON THE TABLE.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore (Member for Commerce and Railways) : Sir, I lay on the table the information promised in reply to starred questions Nos. 308, 309, 310, 311, 312 and 313 asked by Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad on the 31st August, 1933.

THE INDIAN DOCK LABOURERS BILL.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore (Member for Commerce and Railways) : Sir, I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill to give effect in British India to the Convention concerning the protection against accidents of workers employed in loading and unloading ships.

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

THE RESERVE BANK OF INDIA BILL.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : Sir, I beg to move :

"That the following Members of the Legislative Assembly be nominated to serve on the Joint Committee to consider and report on the Bill to constitute a Reserve Bank of India, namely, Sir Cowasji Jehangir, Mr. S. C. Mitra, Mr. Muhammad Azhar Ali, Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, Mr. Bhuput Sing, Mr. B. Das, Sardar Sant Singh, Rao Bahadur S. R. Pandit, Sir Leslie Hudson, Mr. Muhammad Yamin Khan, Sir Abdulla-al-Mámún Suhrawardy, Sardar Nihal Singh and the Mover."

The motion was adopted.

THE IMPERIAL BANK OF INDIA (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : Sir, I beg to move :

"That the following Members of the Legislative Assembly be nominated to serve on the Joint Committee to consider and report on the Bill further to amend the Imperial Bank of India Act, 1920, for certain purposes, namely, Sir Cowasji Jehangir

[Sir George Schuster.]

Mr. S. C. Mitra, Mr. Muhammad Azhar Ali, Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, Mr. Bhuput Sing, Mr. B. Das, Sardar Sant Singh, Rao Bahadur S. R. Pandit, Sir Leslie Hudson, Mr. Muhammad Yamin Khan, Sir Abdulla-al-Mámún Suhrawardy, Sardar Nihal Singh and the Mover.''

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad (Patna and Chota Nagpur cum Orissa : Muhammadan) : May I know what will be the quorum ? I do not find anything in the motion. On previous occasions the quorum used to be mentioned ?

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Under Standing Order, there is no provision made for mentioning the um in the case of a Joint Select Committee of both Houses.

Mr. R. S. Sarma (Nominated Non-Official) : May I ask whether any rts are going to be associated with this enquiry ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I have already made a state- t on the general intention as regards consulting experts in one of speeches that I made in the course of the debate on the Reserve k Bill. The exact procedure will have to be determined by the mittee itself and an early meeting will be arranged for considering it.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai (Sind : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Have Government decided with regard to the experts who will be called ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : No, Sir, it is implied in the answer which I have already given that the matter will be discussed by the Committee itself.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The uestion is :

"That the following Members of the Legislative Assembly be nominated to serve he Joint Committee to consider and report on the Bill further to amend the mperial Bank of India Act, 1920, for certain purposes, namely, Sir Cowasji Jehangir, Mr S. C. Mitra, Mr. Muhammad Azhar Ali, Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya, Mr. Gaya Prasad Sin h, Mr. Bhuput Sing, Mr. B. Das, Sardar Sant Singh, Rao Bahadur S. R. Pandit, Sir Leslie Hudson, Mr. Muhammad Yamin Khan, Sir Abdulla-al-Mámún Suhrawardy, Sardar Nihal Singh and the Mover.''

The motion was adopted.

MOTION RE FUTURE ADMINISTRATION OF ADEN.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The House will now resume consideration of the motion relating to Aden.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav (Bombay Central Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, the question about the transfer of Aden was dealt with in the communiqué published by Government on June 20, 1933. The communiqué shows that the British Government intend to take over the administration of Aden from the Government of India, and, in order to induce the people of India and the Government of India to comply with this request, they have offered in the communiqué a small bait of about 20 lakhs of rupees which is at present payable towards the military and political administration. Now, Sir, I think this sum of 20 lakhs is not the actual sum which the Government of India have to pay towards the military expenditure in Aden. Very recently, in the other place, a question was answered by the Honourable Mr. B. J. Glancy in which it was said that the contribution for political and military expenditure in 1930-31 was £1,50,000, in 1931-32 it was £1,36,499 and, for the year 1932-33, up to March, 1933, it was £1,19,959. It will thus be seen that the charge which the Government of India have to bear is gradually diminishing, and at present stands at Rs. 16 lakhs.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : I would remind my Honourable friend that that is not the final figure. I will take an early opportunity of intervening in the debate to explain the financial position.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad (United Provinces Southern Divisions : Muhammadan Rural) : I hope the Finance Member will take an early opportunity of laying the final figures before the House and also before the Standing Finance Committee for discussion of those figures.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav : Now I have to point out that, according to the figures which have been supplied, the civil expenditure and income are as follows. In 1930-31, the expenditure was Rs. 12,45,500 and the income was Rs. 10,27,558. In 1931-32, the income was Rs. 12,04,100 and the expenditure was Rs. 11,39,000 ; so there is a small profit. In 1932-33, the revised estimates show an income of Rs. 13,64,000 and an expenditure of Rs. 11,01,700 ; so there is a profit of considerably over two lakhs. So, if these two lakhs are deducted from the amount of 16 lakhs, the net charge which the Government of India have to bear comes to about 14 lakhs. Further, we have to take into consideration that the trade of Aden is in the hands of the principal merchants of Bombay and Calcutta and as their head offices are in those cities, they have been paying income-tax on the profits they make in the Settlement of Aden, at their head offices. If that is computed, the loss to Government, if Aden is transferred, will be about four lakhs. So, if that amount of four lakhs be again deducted from the amount of 14 lakhs, then the loss will be only 10 lakhs. Therefore, the bait offered to the people of India and the Government of India of a saving of 20 lakhs comes down, on further examination, to about 10 lakhs. At the same time, I have to point out here that the royalty on salt imported from Aden at the rate of eight annas per ton on about 2,80,000 to three lakh tons annually amounting to Rs. 1,50,000 payable to Government is not shown in the answer given there. In the details of income, the income from salt has been shown at Rs. 1,01,000, but I think this is the amount which the inhabitants of Aden have to pay on account of the salt consumed and I am not certain under what item this amount of royalty is included. Then there is the amount of ground rent payable by salt works to the Government of India amounting to Rs. 25,000 approximately annually, and there is also another item which I do not find in the details given, and that is that the salt works have also to pay a toll tax at two annas per ton of salt exported, amounting annually to roughly Rs. 38,000. Then the salt works have to pay a house and property tax of about Rs. 75,000, and so on. So the administration of Aden at present is not so expensive as it was previously, and, as we have seen, the military expenditure also is being reduced year by year. The æroplanes have come to stay and the expenditure on garrisons has been considerably reduced both in Mesopotamia and in Aden.

Then, Sir, this was the inducement or bait offered to Indians in respect of the transfer of Aden from India to the Colonial Office. Another bait has also been offered to the people of Aden to induce them to consent to the transfer. This is not given in the communiqué. But if I understood the Honourable the Leader of the House the other day, he said that if Aden was transferred to the Colonial Office, the citizens of Aden would not have to pay Rs. 20 lakhs, but the Imperial Government would pay it. The plain meaning of this statement is, as the Imperial Government have been charging the Government of India a part of the military expenditure, so Aden, when separated from India, would naturally be expected to meet that expenditure. But the Government of Britain was going to be very considerate and generous and remit it to Aden. That was the impression I gathered the other day. This means, in other words, if Aden is under the Indian Government, the people of India, including the people of Aden, will have to pay this amount, but, as soon as Aden is transferred to the Colonial Office, that Settlement will not be asked to pay, but the burden will be borne by the Imperial Government.

I may here point out, Sir, that India today is financially not in a good position. Certain reforms have been promised. Federation is looming large on the horizen, and India is said to be on the way to dominion status. I am afraid, Sir, that, under the White Paper Scheme, dominion status is a very very far contingency. However that may be, the British Government is taking care to clip the wings of India. First they are clipping the eastern wings of India by trying to separate Burma, and, now, the western wing, which is the Aden Settlement, is also going to be clipped.

Now, Sir, arrangements are being made to separate Burma, and what is the ground advanced in justification of this action? It is said that the people of Burma desire to have separation from India; but this is not quite correct. No doubt, there is a section of the Burmese people who want separation of Burma and to have dominion status for Burma, and though that section is in a minority, it is a very strong minority. But the majority is against separation. But, in the case of Aden, the same principle of self-determination is not applied. If the people of Aden are consulted, I am sure, a very large majority will be in favour of remaining with the Government of India. They have expressed their will in public meetings and in every possible way they could. The other day the Honourable the Leader of the House flung in our face a representation by certain Somali traders in Aden, but somebody has whispered to us that those traders are only 30 in number, and they were not even permanent residents of Aden.

Sir, Aden has a population of 53,000, and it consists of Arabs, Jews and Indians, both Hindus and Mussalmans, who have made their homes there and who are the real residents of Aden, and, therefore, it is their voice which must prevail and which ought to be respected. Of course, there are certain people who are casual visitors for the purposes of carrying on trade. I do not mean to suggest that they cannot have any voice in the matter, but at all events the voice of the permanent residents of Aden ought to prevail, because they have got everything at stake there, while the others are mere birds of passage who merely go to Aden, remain there for a time for the purpose of trade and, as soon as their pile is made, leave the place, and as such they cannot have as much interest in the Settlement as the permanent residents who have settled there for years.

Sir, the Settlement of Aden had been for nearly a 100 years with the Government of Bombay, and the merchants of Bombay have made Aden what it is today. They have their vast godowns, their wharves, their buildings and their salt pans and everything that makes Aden what it is today is due to the exertions and sacrifices which the Bombay merchants have made. Sir, a public meeting was held the other day at Aden of all the citizens of the place including Arabs, Jews and Indians, and they strongly protested against Aden being transferred to the Colonial Government, and they strongly expressed a desire to remain with the Government of India, as they have been for nearly a century, and they appealed both to the Government of India and to the people of India not to forsake them, and, above all, they strongly resented being handed over to the Colonial Office which is so notorious for its anti-Asiatic policy. They further pointed out that the Settlement of Aden had prospered under the Government of India, and the civil administration was not a burden on India, but it was self-supporting, and the Settlement promises to be more prosperous which was also in the interest of Indian trade and commerce. They pointed out the miserable condition of the neighbouring Somaliland ports of Barbara, etc., which were transferred to the Colonial Office, and this condition they attribute to the anti-Asiatic policy of the Colonial Administration. Sir, this is the opinion of the people of Aden, and I think, if a plebiscite were to be taken, it would be preponderating in favour of remaining with India.

An Honourable Member the other day, while speaking on this question, said that the transfer was in favour of the Arabs there. The Arabs, Jews and other communities, which make the total population of Aden, are enjoying equal rights. There is no discrimination under the rules of the Government of India, but the people of Aden, as well as the people of India, know that as soon as Aden is transferred to the Colonial Administration, in spite of the promises made in this communiqué that discrimination will not be made, there is genuine apprehension in the minds of the people that injustice is sure to be done to the people of Aden. We know from bitter experience what value to attach to these promises. The Colonial Office and the British Government often times made large promises that justice would be done to the Indians in South Africa, but we know, Sir, what their condition is. The Indians in Kenya and other Settlements.....

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore (Member for Commerce and Railways): I do not want to interrupt my Honourable friend, but, since the matter has been referred to by more than one Member, I would like to state for his information that the figures I gave, namely, 29,820 were the figures of the Arab population of Aden.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav: Yes, but do they form part of the 53,000 and odd?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore: Yes, Sir, certainly they form part of the 46,638 which is the number recorded in the Census of 1931.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav: The condition of the Indians in Tanganyika is also the same. The Arabs and other inhabitants of Aden know that, if they are transferred to the Colonial Office, their status and their position will be greatly prejudiced and they will not get as much freedom as they are getting under the Government of India. The people of Bombay and the people of India do not wish that Aden should be transferred. The Indian Legislature has been reiterating and discussing this question from the year 1921 again and again. I need not read to the House the various discussions that took place and the conclusions arrived at and the various promises made by responsible officers of Government. I shall say cursorily that in 1921 when it was proposed to transfer the administration of the Settlement of Aden to the Foreign Office, not only Indians, but also the Arab and Jew residents of Aden protested against it and claimed their right of self-determination and demanded that they should remain with India. At that time, the Government of Bombay, through their official representative in the Council of State, supported the Resolution of the Honourable Sir Phiroze Sethna. At that time, Sir Denys Bray stated that the idea of transfer of Aden has long since been abandoned. That was in 1921, but now the abandoned idea seems to have been taken up again. In 1927, the Commander-in-Chief announced the transfer of the military administration of Aden to the Imperial Government. At the same time, he said :

[Mr. B. V. Jadhav.]

"Honourable Members are aware that the Settlement of Aden itself is peopled to a very great extent by our fellow Indian subjects. The Government of India have thought it right that their welfare and interests should not go outside the ken of the Government of India. It will accordingly be retained as part of the Settlement and the municipality of Aden remains under the Government."

Now, this Legislature has been given an opportunity of saying what the voice of the country is. Although these assurances were given that it was not the intention of the Government to transfer the control of Aden, I now understand that the Government of Great Britain has become alive to the necessity of the transfer and the reason they give is this :

"The reasons which suggest that Aden should not remain linked with India under the new constitution are that it is an area geographically remote from India ; that it would not naturally fit into the new federation, that it is already to some extent under Imperial control and that it is inseparable in practice from the Aden Protectorate, which has already passed wholly out of Indian control."

Now, Sir, the chief reason given is that Aden is geographically remote from India. It has been geographically remote for the last 100 years and this point, that it will not fit into the new Federal Scheme, surprises me. We have in this vast country of India French Settlements at Pondicherry, at Chandernagore and at Mahe, and France, as is well known, is a republic. These Settlements fit into the administration of France and their representatives sit in the House of Deputies there. Portugal has also some settlements on the West Coast of India. There is Goa, Diu and Daman. In the old Constitution, it was a monarchy and, under the new Constitution, it is a republic. Still these possessions fit into the administration of the republic. Is it so very difficult, is it so much impossible to find out a scheme under which Aden can be fitted into the scheme of the Federation. I ask, whether the statesmanship of England is so very bankrupt that they cannot find out any other way than to separate Aden and put it under the colonial form of Government ? This Federation is no insuperable difficulty. Other nations have solved such a difficulty. The possessions of France and Portugal are more than 5,000 miles away. Aden is only 1,500 miles and the distance, owing to æroplanes and other things, has been dwindling very perceptibly every year. So, this excuse about Federation is not a very sound one.

I shall now refer briefly to the history of Aden and how it came under the administration of India. It is well known that from time immemorial India, Arabia, Persia and Iraq were closely connected with each other by trade and commerce. Indian ships were visiting the ports of Arabia, Persia and Iraq, and Arabian ships were visiting the ports of India even before the British people or any Europeans set their foot on the Indian coast. When Britain acquired vast tracts of territory in India, they had to look to the politics of the neighbouring nations, such as Afghanistan, Persia and Arabia. They had trading interests in the Persian Gulf and in Arabia and the Government of India thought that it would be a very great advantage to have the possession of Aden which was a very important strategic position. So, the troops of India and the money of India achieved the conquest of Aden. Ever since the year 1839—94 years ago—Aden has been under the Indian rule. Ever since that time, India had been sending the military forces there. The expenditure incurred by India on that account from the year 1839 has been variously computed. According to Sir Denys Bray and Mr. E. M. Cook, the Secretary who gave these figures in 1921, it is computed that from 1839 to 1921—a period of 82 years—India has paid at the rate of about 50 lakhs annually. From the year 1921 to 1927—a period of six years, according to the figures given in 1927 by the Commander-in-Chief, the expenditure amounted to about 35 lakhs a year. From 1927 to 1932—a period of five years, the expenditure amounted to at the rate of Rs. 20 lakhs annually. So, if we capitalise the amount of money spent year after year according to this scale, it amounts to the enormous amount of 758 crores and 16 lakhs at the rate of 4½ per cent. The figures given by the Welby Commission in the year 1900 are very very moderate. I shall give those figures. From 1839 to 1914—a period of 75 years—India spent at the rate of 15 lakhs annually and from the year 1915, 50 lakhs annually and then 16 lakhs annually. This amount also comes to 169 crores approximately.

12 NOON.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Could my Honourable friend give me the reference in the Welby Commission's report which he is quoting ?

Mr. B. V. Jadhav : I think I shall be able to give that reference later on.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : My Honourable friend cannot give it now.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav : No. So, it will be seen that, from a moderate computation, the amount India has spent amounts to Rs. 758 crores and, from another calculation, it comes to about 300 crores. So, I think the real amount must be somewhere between these two figures. I shall claim on behalf of India that, if England wants to take the Settlement, then all this money ought to be re-imbursed. Some may say that, although the Indian troops took possession of Aden, the policy was dictated by the Government of Britain. I am not going to dispute that point. The only question I would ask is : Did the Indian troops conquer Aden in the interests of India or in the interests of England and for her benefit ? If it is disputed that it was conquered for England and in England's interests, then the latter country would have immediately taken possession of it and would have met all the expenses incurred in the conquest and would have conducted its administration since that time. Instead of doing so, they have allowed India to administer the country as if it belonged to India for the last 94 years and to spend on its garrison. Therefore, the presumption is that the conquest was in the interests of India and for the benefit of India. But, for argument's sake, I allow that the conquest was for the benefit of England, and England has a prior claim to the possession of Aden. Then, it follows naturally that the position of India from the year 1839 to the present day is the position of an Agent. And, as this Agent has expended the money for the improvement of Aden and for its protection with the approval of the British Government, it stands to reason that even in that case England ought to come forward and pay the whole amount which India has spent in protecting the country and doing everything necessary. If India is to be looked upon as the owner, then, of course, the question of transfer does not arise. India is not at present in a position to enforce the reimbursement of the money spent upon the advancement of Aden. But if it is to be held that India was in possession of Aden as an Agent, then, I think, when the principal wants to take over the possession of the property, he ought to re-imburse the Agent for all the expenses he has rightfully incurred in the interests of the property.

Then, Sir, certain promises are here made for the satisfaction of the people of Aden—no racial legislation or segregation will be permitted by His Majesty's Government. All such promises were made previously in the case of South America, Kenya or Tanganyika, but we know what the worth of those promises is.

I wish to urge another point, namely, that the Government of Bombay themselves have spent certain amount of money on the public works of Aden and I think it would be right on the part of that Government to claim compensation for the works they have executed and the money they have spent.

In conclusion, the Government of India conquered Aden and have held it, administered it and paid the military expenses for its protection. As a matter of fact, the military force required for the protection of Aden alone will not be a heavy one. The tribes that surround Aden are not very powerful tribes and a powerful garrison is not necessary. But, as Aden stands on the trade route of the whole Empire, it has become a place of very great strategic importance. Therefore the interests of the Empire as a whole requires that Aden should be adequately garrisoned and protected. For that purpose a very heavy force has been stationed there from the very beginning. As a matter of fact, the military protection of that place ought to be a charge on the Imperial Government. By the promise that has been held out to the people of Aden that after the transfer of Government, the Government of Great Britain will undertake the 20 lakhs of expenses required for the military protection of the settlement itself shows that Great Britain admits that the charge is legitimately hers and it has been laid on the shoulders of India rather unjustly. The protection of Aden is in the interest of the whole Empire and, if necessary, the contribution ought to be levied from all the countries benefited by the retention of that station. India will willingly bear her share of the burden and up to this time India has been bearing the entire burden. India has spent about 400 crores or 500 crores on the protection of Aden for the past 94 years and, if England wants to take possession of Aden and administer it through the Colonial Office or through the Foreign Office or in any other way, in justice she ought to refund this sum of 400 crores or 500 crores. Several British officers have made promises at various times that Aden will not be transferred. The population of Aden is not going to accept a transfer and they have unequivocally shown, at least a majority of them, that they are in favour of remaining under the Government of India. The Indian people also are not very anxious to get rid of Aden. They want Aden. They want to assist their own merchants in Aden and also in East Africa and Somaliland in their trade. India has great cotton piece-goods and wheat and rice and jawar and other food grains for which she wants a market outside. Therefore, it is in the interest of India and Indian trade that Aden should be retained although it may be a burden on the resources of India. But India is willing to bear this burden and, therefore, I recommend that this House should unanimously declare its decision that Aden should be retained under the control of the Government of India.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster: Sir, I think it would be well to intervene at this stage to say something on the general financial aspect of this question. Very full details of recent expenditure and revenue of Aden were provided in answer to a question asked in the other House by the Honourable Mr. V. V. Kalikar on the 29th August and my Honourable friend, who has just spoken, referred to that information. I think, in order to see this question in its proper perspective, it is just as well to say something of the past history. I am afraid, I cannot, however, if I go back into the past history, meet my Honourable friend on the ground which he himself has chosen, a ground which leads him to calculate the value of the cost of the investment in Aden in what I think I can fairly describe as astronomical figures. I am totally unable to find out how my Honourable friend made his calculations, or on what they were based. But I do suggest for the consideration of this House that it is not very profitable to attempt to calculate the value of Aden by going back a hundred years and then adding up the expenditure and allowing it to accumulate at compound interest. If my Honourable friend likes to calculate his own value, that is to say, the cost which has been expended annually on his maintenance, education, etc., and allows that to accumulate at compound interest, I should imagine that, on his own methods of calculation, he would find himself to be worth something like five crores. But I doubt if my Honourable friend would command that price in the market. I think also it is fair to point out, when we are looking at the matter in that way, that there is something to be said on the other side. I think every one who lives in India recognises that the value of India's trade very largely depends on the existence of the British navy. Now, Sir, there—just to take one example,—is one field of expenditure which is to be entirely borne by the British taxpayer. If we were to go back to the early years of development of India's trade and reckon what the value of the services of the British navy to India had been,—adopting my Honourable friend's methods of calculation—we should find an item in the balance sheet on the other side which would balance anything that my Honourable friend has had to put forward. Some of us on this side see the matter, when we are talking in terms of financial burdens, from the point of view of the people who have to pay taxes in England, and I venture to say that the English taxpayer is the most heavily burdened individual in the world, and that if we take a broad view of the cost of maintaining the British Empire and all that it means, the British taxpayer certainly bears a lion's share of that burden. Sir, I do think it is necessary to bear these broad considerations in mind in order to examine a question like this in its proper perspective. But, having said that, I wish to make it clear that we, representing the Government of India, in this debate, do not wish to appear in any sense as advocates of a particular side. We merely wish to give what assistance we can in presenting the true facts to the House.

Now, Sir, until 1900 the entire civil and military expenditure in connection with Aden was borne by India; but on examining the evidence, given before the Welby Commission, I have found that a certain share of the cost of fortification of Aden was actually borne by His Majesty's Government. However, that is a small amount, and, generally speaking, it is true to say that, until 1900, the entire civil and military expenditure was borne by India. As early as 1886, the Government of India had been actively urging the propriety of part of the expenses of Aden being borne by His Majesty's Government on account of the Imperial importance of Aden. In 1895, as Honourable Members know, the Welby Commission was appointed to examine this and other matters. They recommended that possibly an equitable solution would be for His Majesty's Government to pay half of the military cost and, as a result of that recommendation, from 1901, His Majesty's Government contributed annually £72,000. I find at the time, when the Welby Commission reported, the actual military expenditure was 21½ lakhs per annum. I suppose £72,000 was fixed for the contribution as being something near half the cost. From that date the military expenditure in Aden rose very considerably and I find that in 1926-27 the actual cost of military expenditure borne by India was no less than 47½ lakhs. That was the position when the arrangement was made that His Majesty's Government should become responsible for the whole political and military expenditure of Aden. As from the 1st April, 1927, His Majesty's Government became responsible for the whole of that expenditure, but the arrangement was that the Government of India should contribute £250,000 a year for three years and then £150,000 a year or one-third of the actual cost whichever was the less. I think it is important to call attention to that past history because, owing to the fact that His Majesty's Government have taken over already a major part of the responsibility for Aden, the taxpayer in India is being saved a very substantial amount indeed. It is not merely a question of 10 or 15 lakhs, but actually in 1926-27 we were spending 47 lakhs a year on Aden. The position now is that we have reached the second stage of that arrangement and our contribution is, as I have just said, £150,000 a year or one-third of the cost whichever is the less. And, as my Honourable friend, who has just spoken, pointed out, we paid the full £150,000 in 1930-31. In 1931-32, we paid £136,000 odd and in 1932-33, we have paid just under £120,000. I interrupted my Honourable friend to point out that the last figure was not yet the final figure, but I have no reason to suppose that that figure will be substantially altered. So we may take it that our liability now is in the neighbourhood of £120,000, but it might, at any time, rise to £150,000. That is our contribution to the military expenditure. The reduction which has been effected since 1930-31 has been brought about, as my Honourable friend pointed out, because His Majesty's Government are experimenting on a fairly large scale in the substitution of air force defence for land forces at Aden. Possibly they may reduce the expenditure still further, but we have no information on that point; and I think it is important that the House should bear in mind that our liability at present may go up to £150,000 in any one year. Then we have to consider what has to be set against that as regards the balance of the revenue and expenditure on the account of the civil Government for which we are at present responsible. My Honourable friend pointed out that in the year 1932-33 there actually was a small surplus on account of Aden, a surplus of about 2½ lakhs. But if we take a broader view of the situation and take the average figures for a period of years, for instance if I go back to the year 1927-28 and take the average figures for seven years including the budget estimates of the current year, I find that there is actually a small debit balance on the average of about Rs. 66,000 annually. I do not think we can take the surplus of 1932-33 as a reliable figure, because, at present, as Honourable Members know, we have imposed very severe cuts on expenditure and we were able in the case of Aden to make some special economies. I do not think we can count on being able to maintain that position. Therefore, if one tries to put a fair picture before this House I think the fairest thing to do is to say that as regards the civil expenditure we can count on revenue and expenditure about balancing. Honourable Members must remember that, if there was a regular surplus, we should certainly have very urgent claims from the Resident at Aden that that surplus should be expended for the benefit of Aden, and it would be very hard to resist those claims, because there are very urgent works which they have been pressing for several years. I do not think, therefore, that we can maintain the position better than an even balance. Therefore, so far we have got this. We save the military contribution which at present is about £120,000 a year and may amount to £150,000; and as regards the civil expenditure we hand over an even balance.

Now, Sir, my Honourable friend has referred to certain other items which he says are not included in the full statement that was provided in the Council of State. I find it rather difficult to follow exactly what my Honourable friend had in mind, but as soon as possible I will get a shorthand copy of his speech and verify what he has said. I do not think that any of the items to which he referred would in any case have appreciably affected the position, and I think that the statement which I have just given is really substantially correct. But there is one item to which he referred which I think one must put before this House. In calculating what is the revenue of Aden, we have included the annual income-tax receipts which come in under the heading of Aden. But, as my Honourable friend pointed out, there may be merchants who make their returns for income-tax in India and who include in those returns profits which might after separation become liable to income-tax in Aden; and in that case of course, under our provisions for double income-tax relief, we should have to lose part of that income-tax. It is quite impossible to give any reliable estimate as to what that figure might be; I do not think myself that it could be a very substantial figure.

[Sir George Schuster.]

I think my Honourable friend reckoned something like four lakhs under that head. I think that must be a very considerable over-estimate, but if Honourable Members wish to have an exact figure, then they must bear that possibility in mind. There may be some slight loss on our income-tax under that head. That, Sir, I think is the position as fully and fairly as can be put as regards revenue and expenditure. We shall save something like between 15 and 20 lakhs a year on the military contribution as against which we may lose a lakh or two under the head of income-tax in the manner which I have just explained.

Then, Sir, my Honourable friend, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, made on Saturday last the same point that has been made by the last speaker as to the value of the assets which have been or may be handed over ; and the feeling I suppose was that some sort of claim should be made against His Majesty's Government if they take over the whole administration of Aden. I have already rejected my Honourable friend's method of compound interest calculation and I have tried to find out exactly what the capital value of those assets might be. But I am afraid it is impossible at this stage of history to get back into the past and get an accurate figure. I would only just like to ask the House to consider what the various classes of assets are. There is first of all the harbour and the port. That belongs to the Port Trust. The Port Trust was set up in 1888, and as far as I can ascertain, when it was set up they took over the existing assets at a valuation and took over the liability on that account. Since then they have been entirely independent. They have been raising money on loans and they are responsible for those loans and there will be no change in the beneficial interest as regards the Port Trust as a result of this transfer. So that class of assets goes out ; the Government of India cannot make any claim under that head.

Then, as to the question of buildings, as regards Provincial Government buildings, we had, as a matter of fact, quite recently gone into that particular question when the administration of Aden was taken over by the Government of India from the Government of Bombay. A claim was made by the Government of Bombay and figures were gone into, and it was ascertained that the cost of the buildings amounted to something like nine lakhs, but we resisted that claim in the Government of India, because we said that we had already in other cases adopted the principle that when responsibility in administration in any sphere passes from one authority to another, the assets and liabilities connected with the ordinary administration should also pass free of payment. That is the sort of principle on which discussions as regards the separation of Burma, for example, have always been based, and I think perhaps my friends are inclined to take what is a misleading view of the situation in considering the possibility of making claims on account of assets of that kind. They are really part of the ordinary equipment of Government ; they have been provided out of revenue, and they have to be maintained out of revenue, but, ordinarily speaking, when an administration is handed over, it is not so much an asset as a liability, or at least one must take into account the fact that there is a liability as well, and we certainly have always taken the line in the Government of India that any claim based on account of the cost of buildings, which, as I say, are only part of the ordinary equipment of administration, is a mistake. Rightly or wrongly, that has been our view. Therefore, we resisted the claim of the Bombay Government to that nine lakhs, and we have maintained that position.

Apart from provincial buildings, there are a few Central Government buildings—I have not got any details of their cost,—but their cost would be negligible.

Then of course, there is the question of military buildings, and here I must point out that when the control of the military administration was taken over by His Majesty's Government in 1927, all military buildings were transferred to His Majesty's Government, free of cost, on the basis of the principle which I have just explained,—the principle being, as I said, that they cannot be assessed at a commercial value, that they carry liabilities with them, and in this case of course the transfer of the military responsibility carried with it a very heavy liability which at the time of the transfer amounted to nearly 50 lakhs per annum. That, Sir, is the position as regards these liabilities.

There is only one other class of assets, and that is the Water Works, and there, according to the information which I have got, about three lakhs was spent on an aqueduct, and about 5½ lakhs was spent on water tanks. This expenditure was undertaken a very long time ago. The information which I am giving was taken from the Imperial Gazetteer of 1908, and apparently that expenditure was undertaken as a grant to the Municipal Committee.

That, Sir, I think, covers what we call all the assets which are to be taken over. I do not think that I have got anything further to add, but I can only say this, that if any other points are made, such as have been made just now by my friend from Bombay, we will most carefully check all statements that the Honourable Members make. If they want themselves to get the results of our investigations from checking these statements, I should be very pleased to forward them to them, and if we find that we have been wrong in our figures, we will certainly take t into account in considering the matter on behalf of the Government India after this debate, and we will see that correct information forwarded to His Majesty's Government.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh (Muzaffarpur cum Champaran : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I am thankful to the Government for giving us an opportunity of discussing this important question. I also recognise with appreciation the decision of the Government to observe an attitude of neutrality and to confine the discussion only amongst non-official Members of the House. My friend, Mr. Anklesaria, in the course of his speech, said that he was looking for guidance and advice from Government. Sir, my friend is accustomed to look for guidance and advice from the occupants of the Treasury Benches, but those of us, who sit on this side of the House claim to judge every question on its own merits, and come to a decision irrespective of what the views of the Government Members may be.

Sir, as Honourable Members are aware, Aden was captured in 18 by Major Baillie, who was sent out on behalf of the Government of Bombay. Even before that time, Indians were in Aden under the Sultan of Lehaj ; and, since the acquisition of Aden on behalf of the Government of India, it remained under the Government of Bombay, and a expenditure in connection with its administration was borne by Government. What was then, Sir, a mere barren rock at the time of its capture was converted, in course of time, by Indian labour, Indian capital and Indian industry into a flourishing port of first rate strategic and commercial importance, a first rate harbour and a distributing trade centre. Sir, the question of the transfer of Aden had been loomimg large on the horizon since the year 1921, if not before. On the 28th of February, 1921, the Prime Minister of England stated in the House of Commons, that the responsibility for administration and policy in Palestine, Mesopotamia and Aden was to be transferred to the Colonial Office ; and then, later on, the Right Honourable Mr. Winston Churchill, speaking in the House of Commons on the 14th July, 1921, made the following statement. I shall read out only one paragraph from his statement, as giving an indication of the working of the mind of the Cabinet in England, and the motive which prompted them to arrive at this decision. This is what he said :

" There is another possibility of a reduction of expenditure in Aden. The India Office has very kindly handed over Aden to the Colonial Office, and my acceptance of the gift ; " —please mark the words carefully—

" the India Office has very kindly handed over Aden to the Colonial Office, and my acceptance of the gift has only been delayed by the financial negotiations because India has hitherto played a great part, and I certainly should not be serving the interests of the British taxpayer if I assumed the whole burden without any of the funds which are necessary to maintain a fortress of first consequence to India..... "

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Will you please read it out again, I mean the portion relating to the gift—it is a very important point.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh :

" There is another possibility of a reduction of expenditure in Aden. The India Office has very kindly handed over Aden to the Colonial Office, and my acceptance of the gift has only been delayed by the financial negotiations because India has hitherto played a great part, and I certainly should not be serving the interests of the British taxpayer if I assumed the whole burden without any of the funds which are necessary to maintain a fortress of first consequence to India, but I hope for a happy solution. In fact, I think very few days we shall have reached an agreement and the moment that Aden is transferred to the Colonial Office, it will be possible to amalgamate the administration of Aden and Somaliland. Somaliland and Aden are really the most happy marriage that could be made. They are really necessary to one another. The high ground, five or six thousand feet high in Somaliland, will afford a Hill station to which the British soldiers in Aden under the most trying conditions all through summer could go company by company, in night's journey across the sea to Somaliland. You could not have a more economious minor proposition, and if this amalgamation be carried out in such a way as to effect perhaps, a saving of £200,000 to £300,000 a year in the reduction of military expenditure, it will repay the trouble which it takes to arrive at such a conclusion. "

This is what Mr. Winston Churchill said in the House of Commons on the 14th July, 1921.

Then, again, on the 26th September, 1921, the Honourable Sir Phiroze Sethna moved a Resolution in the other place which stated that the administration of Aden be continued under the Government of India and not be transferred to the Colonial Office. Speaking on that occasion, the Honourable Mr. Pratt, who was then, I believe, the official representative of the Government of Bombay in that House, stated as follows :

" Mr. President, the transfer of Aden to the Colonial Office is a question in which the Government of Bombay is deeply and closely interested. Towards that question the attitude of the Bombay Government cannot under any circumstance be one of neutrality in the future Government. It is also stated that Aden is already to some extent under the Imperial control, and so we should not object to the transfer of the civil control of the Settlement. This step was taken in the midst of the Great War, and only as a temporary measure, and now, we are to be deprived of the remnant of control over the administration of Aden which we were having all these years. Some people recognised at that very time that the partial transfer of the control would lead to the British Government was only the thin end of the wedge, and that has now come to be true. It is stated in the communiqué that Bombay would be relieved of the annual contribution of approximately 20 lakhs at present payable towards the military and political administration. I refer ... to the Honourable the Finance Member for having given us a statement of the financial position of Aden, and its implications. ...ation of the question. I do not want to speak with regard ...ut I would like to say very clearly that in this calculation ...h the Government of India has been deriving from salt ... and super-tax has also to be taken into account. I am ...t to correction by the Honourable the Finance Member that ...hich is being derived by India from these and other sources ...nts to something like 10 lakhs of rupees. If this is so, then out of ... lakhs we shall be losing 10 lakhs of revenues if the civil administration ... Aden is taken out of our control.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I think my Honourable ...iend is definitely incorrect. We have included in the revenue statement ... the income-tax receipts from Aden. As I explained, there is only one ...all marginal receipt from income-tax we might lose, that is to say, to ... extent we now get income-tax from business men assessed in India in ...spect of profits made in Aden. To that extent we may find that we ...se a little income-tax, but it will be quite a small sum.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : I am glad to stand corrected. However ... may be, this 20 lakhs is not much when considering the position of ...en with regard to the future constitution of India, as it is regarded ... the Gibraltar of the East.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir (Bombay City : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : ... is not 20 lakhs ; it is 15 lakhs.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : It is about 16 lakhs this year.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : However that may be, is it the contention of the Government that every administration which has a deficit budget, or which is being carried on at the expense of the Government of India should form no part of our territory ? For instance, the North-West Frontier Province is a deficit province, and it has been swallowing about a crore of rupees every year. Will that be the reason for taking it away from India and putting it under the Colonial Government ? Sind is also going to be a deficit province, and so I think Orissa for some years. But that is no reason for taking away those portions of our territory and annexing them to the Colonial Office. The same is the case with the Andamans. Will His Majesty's Government give back all the money we have spent in Aden for nearly a century ?

Now, Sir, it is stated that the right of appeal in judicial cases to the Bombay High Court would be maintained. Is that a very great concession ? If the right of appeal to the Bombay High Court is not retained, what will be the result ? The right of appeal will go to His Majesty's

[Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh.]

It is further stated in the communiqué that His Majesty's Gover...
1 P.M. ment would do their utmost to maintain the prese... standard of administration, and would not impo... any additional taxation unless such a course became in their opini... absolutely necessary. Sir, this stipulation is not worth the pa... on which it is printed. We know the condition of our countrymen ... the Colonial Office. We know how Indians are being treated in So... Africa, in Kenya, in Fiji, in Mauritius and in so many other pla... overseas inspite of the assurances of the Government. I do ... not pin much faith in the assurance that the imposition of any additional ... taxation will not be undertaken unless such a course became absolutely ... necessary. I take it, whenever additional taxation is imposed, it is ... assumed that such a course is necessary, so the value of this stipulation ... is nothing. Only tomorrow fresh taxation might be imposed upon Aden, ... and it may be pleaded in justification that such a course was necessary. ... It is again stated in the communiqué that the proportion of Indian ... service administrative personnel would be retained in Aden for some ... years after the transfer takes place. It is to be noted that it is only a ... proportion of the Indian service administrative personnel and not the ... whole personnel which will be retained, and that also for some years only ... after which the Indian personnel will very likely be eliminated altogether ... from the service in the Aden administration.

Now, the last point which has been urged in the communiqué is that no racial discrimination or segregation would be permitted by His Majesty's Government. We know the value of such promises with regard to the fate of our countrymen overseas. The history of British India is strewn broadcast with fragments of broken promises and unredeemed pledges; and this is likely to be the inevitable fate of our fellow countrymen in Aden if it is snatched away from India and transferred to the control of the Colonial Office. This proposal has evoked unprecedented opposition from all quarters both amongst the people in India and in Aden. The other day, we read that a meeting was held in Calcutta presided over by Sir P. C. Ray recording the protest of the citizens of Calcutta against the proposed transfer. I also received a telegram from Mr. A. K. Aziz, Secretary, Muslim Chamber of Commerce, Calcutta, which states:

"The Muslim Chamber of Commerce, Calcutta, strongly protest against the separation of Aden from the Indian Government as it will be greatly detrimental to commercial interests of India in which the Bengali's share is quite important."

The Imperial Indian Citizenship Association, Bombay, the Indian Merchants' Chamber, the Buyers and Shippers Chamber, Karachi, the Indian Chamber of Commerce, Calcutta, ... all protested against the proposed transfer. A public meeting was held in Aden on the 16th April last which was attended by the Arab and the Indian citizens of Aden in which resolutions of protest were passed. A representation has been addressed to the Chief Commissioner, Aden, and His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief by 500 Arab residents in Aden protesting against the proposed transfer. The Jewish residents of Aden, in a meeting held there on the 25th May last, have similarly protested. It will, therefore, be seen that all the communities and interests concerned, whether in India or in Aden, are united in offering their vehement protest against the proposed transfer.

Sir, with regard to the amendments that are under discussion, there is one amendment of my Honourable friend, Mr. Bhuput Sing. Personally I would have thought that it was the best amendment, inasmuch as it not only records our protest against the contemplated transfer, but also demands retransfer of the political and military control which has already passed into the hands of the Colonial Office. The other amendment is that of my Honourable friend, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, which limits itself to a condemnation of the military and political control of Aden passing out of our hands, and protests against the contemplated step of transferring the civil control to the Colonial Government. I think, as he has himself suggested that my Honourable friend, Mr. Bhuput Sing, will not press his motion; and we should concentrate our attention upon the amendment of Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad and pass it unanimously without any dissentient voice. (Cheers.)

Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi (Tirhut Division: Muhammadan): Sir, for the last two days, I have been ill and I feel very weak now, but the great importance which this question of transfer of Aden has assumed in the country has compelled me to come to this House for a few minutes and say a few words on this question. The few words that I will say would mean a great deal. I would confine myself only to the great feeling that is prevailing in the country on this question. A growing suspicion has arisen in the minds of both Indians, of all creeds and castes, as well as Adenese of all creeds, Muslim, Jew, Christian, etc., that the transfer of Aden to the Colonial Office would mean a decline of all those relations which have developed between India and Aden during the last so many years while it had been under the control of India. Since this question has been actively discussed in the country, the evidence has been so great that I would only be surprised if the Government ignore them and have their own way of dealing with this question. I have correspondence with so many people both in Aden as well as in India that I can undoubtedly say that the feeling is genuine, it is by no means engineered. The feeling is that the conditions of Indians as well as the Adenese will be much worse when they go to the Colonial Office. The feeling has gained ground and I do not believe any amount of argument on the part of British Government could remove those feelings from their minds. If a genuine man could give any advice to the Government on this question, it will be not to disturb the minds of Indians and Adenese at such a moment on such a vital question. They should remember that it is sentiment which plays a great part in such questions rather than financial considerations which the Honourable the Finance Member has chosen to put before the House. On the question of finance, many Honourable Members who are of better health than I am will be able to reply, but I know there is very little in that question. I, therefore, lend by wholehearted support to this question.

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till Half Past Two of the Clock.

The Assembly re-assembled after Lunch at Half Past Two of the Clock, Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) in the Chair.

Mr. Jehangir K. Munshi (Burma : Non-European) : Sir, I had given notice of an amendment which I cannot move, because the time prescribed for it is past, but, with your permission, I shall refer to it as part of my speech. My amendment reads as follows :

" That for the original motion the following be substituted :

' This Assembly, after duly considering the Government of India Press Communiqué of June 20th, 1933, resolves and recommends that Indian interests as well as indigenous Arab interests should be sacrificed, and that the Civil Administration of Aden should be transferred to the Colonial Office with a view to safeguarding and promoting Imperial interests '."

(Laughter and Cheers.)

Sir, there are two Members of this House who are specially qualified to speak on this subject. One is my Honourable friend, Nawab Ahmad Nawaz Khan who hails from the North-West Frontier Province, and the other, I venture to suggest, is myself representing the North-East Frontier Province of Burma. I am in agreement with the Honourable Nawab that Honourable Members who hail from Bombay and Madras and who lead lives of, I think the Honourable Member said, licentious ease (Laughter), can never realise the difficulties of frontier people. The Nawab's province, Sir, stands between India on the one side and Afghanistan and Russia on the other side ; similarly my province stands between India on the one side and China and Japan on the other side. And we have cultivated a mentality which can think in Imperial terms, whereas my Honourable friends sitting on the Opposition Benches can think only in parochial terms. (Laughter.) We, Sir, the Honourable Nawab and myself, are capable of rising above parochial thoughts and, on this occasion, we have done so.

Sir, the communiqué of the 20th of June, 1933, issued by His Majesty's Government, I think, has, in a great many parts, been misunderstood by the Opposition Benches and more particularly by my Honourable friend, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh. In that communiqué he has read a number of pledges. I think he is doing injustice to His Majesty's Government. In that communiqué, Sir, I read no pledges. I think it is a very honest communiqué, which gives plain warnings (Laughter and Cheers), and I shall now try to convince my Honourable friends sitting on the Opposition Benches that it is so. Amongst the various reasons given in that communiqué for the transfer of the Civil Administration of Aden to the Colonial Office, the first reason is that " Aden is an area geographically remote from India ". I think, Sir, nobody can quarrel with that proposition. Aden is certainly geographically remote from India. It has taken His Majesty's Government more than a century to discover this profound truth (Laughter and Cheers), but, having discovered it, surely it is their duty to place the truth before the country. They have done so and I really fail to see what grievance this House can have about it. The second reason given in the Communiqué is that " the Aden Protectorate has already passed wholly out of Indian control". This reason, Sir, if properly elaborated, should read as follows : " the Aden Protectorate has already passed wholly out of Indian control by an act of God ". The Aden Protectorate was taken out of Indian control without our consent, and, therefore, I think it should be treated as an act of God. (Laughter.) In that Communiqué, Sir, His Majesty's Government contemplate that certain conditions will be established as a result of the transfer of Aden to the Colonial Office. First of all, a reference is made to the financial relief which will be afforded to India. Whether the annual saving to India will be 20 lakhs or only 16 lakhs, as my Honourable friend, Sir Cowasji Jehangir, insisted this morning, it will be a substantial relief. Now, Sir, when His Majesty's Government shows so much solicitude for the welfare of the people of India and when they desire to save annually for the Indian taxpayer 16 lakhs of rupees, should the Opposition Benches in this House condemn it or praise it ? (Laughter.) The Opposition Benches may rightly or wrongly accuse His Majesty's Government and the Government of India of having misspent or wasted large sums of Indian money in the past. It may or may not be so ; but that His Majesty's Government have developed a different mentality and are very anxious to see that not a single penny of the Indian taxpayers' money is wasted, so far as Aden is concerned, I think it is a change of policy which should be welcomed by the Opposition Benches. (Laughter.)

Then, Sir, coming to the third condition, His Majesty's Government, I think, have made it clear that radical changes in the economic situation are taking place and further radical changes will undoubtedly take place in the near future ; and, therefore, they give a warning.—they give no pledge but a warning, and a very honest warning,—that, as a result of radical changes in the economic situation, which are bound to take place, the existing policy of keeping Aden a free port cannot be maintained,

Mr. Muhammad Muazzam Sahib Bahadur (North Madras : Muhammadan) : May I know if my Honourable friend is a nominated Member ?

Mr. Jehangir K. Munshi : No, Sir, I am an elected Member, but there are occasions when elected Members should think in Imperialistic terms. (Laughter.) Furthermore, Sir, there is no bar to an elected Member indulging in satire or sarcasm. (Cheers.)

Then, Sir, coming to the fourth condition, His Majesty's Government have sounded another warning that it will be necessary for them to impose additional taxation on the people of Aden. His Majesty's Government are perfectly honest. They say that they will impose additional taxation and they give us ample warning about it.

The fifth condition is that the present Indian Service Administrative personnel cannot be retained in future and that it will be abolished as quickly as possible.

The sixth condition is that "no racial legislation or segregation would be permitted by His Majesty's Government"—what they mean is that "no racial legislation or segregation would be willingly permitted by His Majesty's Government". If they are unwillingly forced to permit racial legislation or segregation, that cannot be helped. Now, take the case of South Africa. His Majesty's Government are not willingly permitting racial legislation or segregation in South Africa, but unwillingly they are forced to permit it, and, in the case of Aden also, they sound a warning, a very honest warning, that they will not be a willing party to any racial legislation or segregation, but if that course of action is forced on them, they will have to permit it unwillingly. So far as this particular communiqué is concerned, I think it is one of the most honest communiqués ever issued by any Government Department. (Laughter.)

Now, Sir, to my Honourable friends sitting on the Opposition Benches who think in terms of the parish pump (Laughter), I commend a memorable passage from the speech of my Honourable friend, Mr. Anklesaria, who preached a novel doctrine of patriotism ; and I apprehend that certain Honourable Members have missed the full significance of that doctrine. Mr. Anklesaria said that if he was convinced that the transfer of Aden to the Colonial Office was necessary in Imperial interests, if he was convinced that it was necessary in Imperial interests to hand over Aden to the Colonial Office or to the Foreign Office at the sacrifice of Indian interests, he would be prepared to support that action. He went further and exclaimed : "Is there any Member in this House lacking in Empire patriotism ?" There is no such thing as Indian patriotism according to my Honourable friend, Mr. Anklesaria. His doctrine of patriotism places the Empire first and India last. (Laughter.) Now, Sir, let us translate Mr. Anklesaria's doctrine of patriotism and apply it to our Honourable friend, Mr. James. If Mr. James was called upon to give up England to Germany so that the rest of the Empire may prosper, will Mr. James or any Member of the European Group in this House agree to part with England to Germany so that the rest of the Empire may prosper ?

Mr. F. E. James (Madras : European) : No, certainly not.

Mr. Jehangir K. Munshi : This is disappointing. I felt that Mr. James and Mr. Anklesaria always thought alike on Imperial questions. (Laughter.)

Mr. F. E. James : Not after lunch.

Mr. Jehangir K. Munshi : Since my Honourable friend, Mr. James, does not agree with Mr. Anklesaria, may I express the hope, a hope which is entertained by the overwhelming majority of the Members of this House, that he will take part in this debate and tell us what views the European Group holds with regard to the contemplated transfer of the Civil Administration of Aden to the Colonial Office. I think Europeans in this country are as much interested in Aden as Indians, and it is only right and fair that their able spokesman should proclaim their policy in this House. (Applause.)

Now, Sir, it has been urged by the Opposition that Aden has been built up by Indian enterprise and Indian capital, and that the Indian taxpayer's money has also been spent by the Government of India to build up a large and prosperous port from a barren rock. But following the line of argument which I have taken up, and in which I have the support of my Honourable friend, Major Ahmad Nawaz Khan (Laughter), that is no reason whatever why the British Empire should not have the benefit of something which India has built up, even though such benefit be at the sacrifice of Indian interests. (Laughter.) Moreover, how is it possible for India to have an increasing measure of control over Aden which is an important strategic link in the chain of the Empire route ? I, therefore, feel, Sir, that the arguments which have been advanced against the transfer of Aden to the Colonial Office are all of a parochial nature, and if my friends on the Opposition Benches try to think seriously and take a broadminded view, they will come to the conclusion, that although, at the first blush, His Majesty's Government's action may seem to be wholly indefensible on any grounds, and particularly indefensible on moral grounds (Laughter), still on grounds of high Imperial morality, this is the only step possible for His Majesty's Government. Sir, it seems to me that Aden is already lost to India and that this debate is of purely academic value. (Applause.)

Mr. B. Sitaramaraju (Ganjam cum Vizagapatam : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Mr. Deputy President, after a debate on this motion for a day and a half on the floor of this House, after the debate in the Council of State, and after the very exhaustive review of my friend, Mr. Jadhav, the Ex-Minister from Bombay, and the flood of literature which has been brought to bear upon the discussion by my friend, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, and the biting sarcasm of the last speaker which has enlivened this debate, ordinarily I would have considered that enough has been already said and that I should not take part in the debate, but the intense feeling which His Majesty's Government's proposals have created in this country, which is as profound as it is intense, has compelled me to say a few words. Furthermore, Sir, this morning, the Finance Member was pleased to make one or two remarks about which I am a little disturbed. Sir, a few months ago, we were discussing a similar question, and that question was with regard to the separation of Burma. This morning when the Honourable the Finance Member said that there were certain principles which guided us for assessing the assets and liabilities of Aden, I thought that we were guided today on this motion by a different set of principles from this which we had followed in regard to the separation of Burma. Sir, with regard to the question of Burma, Honourable Members are aware that the Standing Finance Committee was asked to go into the question of the settlement of accounts, I mean into the assets and liabilities both of this country as well as of Burma, and the whole question of financial obligations involved was to be taken into consideration. But, Sir, we find today that the methods of approach for a proper assessment of the assets and financial liabilities involved are not the same. However, when I refer to the financial aspect on this motion, I should like to say a few words.

Turning now to the question of the Settlement of Aden, one thing cannot be gainsaid, that this Settlement had been won by Indian arms, that it had been developed by Indian labour, that it had been maintained by Indian enterprise, and that it had been sustained by Indian money. That cannot be gainsaid. All that was not the work of His Majesty's Government. A barren rock across the bay was not converted into a prosperous Settlement in a day. It was the work of nearly a century attended with grave risks—and that was the work of Indians in this country. Sir, for what end was all that done? Was it done merely for the purpose of providing a link in the Imperial chain of aggression? No, Sir. The cautious Indian merchant, in his affluence, the groaning tax-payer of India, in his poverty, would not have contributed but for the assurances given by the then Government that Aden would ever remain a part of the Indian Empire. This question of separation of Aden from India was not a question of yesterday or today. It has been a live question from the day when popular control was sought to be introduced into the Legislatures of this country. When the reforms of 1919 were introduced, it was contemplated that Bombay should be deprived of Aden, because, under the Constitution, the Provincial Governments would have an admixture of popular element. But the actual transfer was only made after the report of the Simon Commission when it was found that provincial autonomy was at any rate inevitable under the Constitution. The transfer from Bombay to Delhi was made in the teeth of opposition of the Bombay people and the rest of the country. It was openly said by the public of this country that this was only a step in aid to take it ultimately under the control of the Imperial Government. We were then assured that it was not so. But today we find that that apprehension was not misplaced. His Majesty's Government would have us believe that we should have trust in them. I would like to ask why that trust should be on our side alone? Why do not they extend the charity of their confidence a little to us when they expect some trust from us? They were always speaking of self-determination. Only a few hours ago, Mr. Jadhav referred to it. When they wanted to separate Burma, they impressed upon us the virtues of self-determination. Where is that self-determination now? Do they propose to give self-determination to the people of Aden? The Arabs, the Jews, the Somalis and the Indians, one and all have been repeatedly protesting against the transfer of Aden to the Colonial Office. Why is there no self-determination for them now? When it suits their purpose, the Government talk of self-determination. If it does not suit them, they hunt for excuses and reasons. What is the most formidable reason that they advance today for transfer of this possession?

As a bait to us, as an inducement to us, for favourable consideration of their proposal, they say that it will relieve a portion of the burden upon the taxpayer of this country, because, by the transfer of this settlement, we will be saved so much money under military expenditure. May I respectfully ask, did His Majesty's Government think that there was such a person as a taxpayer in this country whose burden had got to be relieved when crores and crores of rupees were being spent upon, what is called, the military expenditure in this country, an expenditure which is out of all proportion to the actual requirements of this country, and certainly out of all proportion to the capacity of this country to bear? Where was this taxpayer then? Why did they not think of the taxpayer's burden? Why are they thinking of a few lakhs now? The reason is not far to seek. A few years ago, Mr. Wedgwood Benn, ex-Secretary of State, admitted that the military expenditure that we had been incurring, and had been found charged upon the revenues of this country for the purpose of keeping a big army of this country, might be, to some extent, a legitimate charge upon the Imperial revenues. He wanted to give an assurance that the whole question would be examined, and that only such portion as India could legitimately bear would be apportioned to her. A tribunal was constituted for that purpose; but we do not know what the award of that tribunal was. But if an impartial judgment is given by that tribunal, there can be no doubt that much of this expenditure, whether it is incurred at Peshawar or whether it is incurred at Aden, would be a legitimate charge upon His Majesty's Government rather than upon the taxpayer of this country. Therefore, it is a bit complicated to bring in the question of the Imperial aspect of the defence of Aden into the profit and loss account of this possession. However, when we come to discuss the financial aspect of the question, we can give it due consideration. This morning, Sir George Schuster was pleased to state that up till 1900, the entire cost of the civil and military administration of Aden was borne by India. The fact is admitted that so far as the civil expenditure is concerned, that civil expenditure has been more or less evenly balanced. Assuming for the moment that the figures for 1933-34 which would show even a favourable balance to us should not be taken into account, taking the average which was given by the Finance Member for the last seven years, even then, it would show that it is evenly balanced. Therefore, the civil expenditure need not trouble us. The question, then, is the question of military expenditure. When we consider it, we have to consider the purpose for which the Settlement was founded. Honourable Members are fully aware of the fact that Aden is just across the Bay. Without India there is no Aden, and there can never be an Aden. That Aden is very vital to the defence of India, cannot be gainsaid. Whatever may be its position, whatever may be its importance for the purpose of protection of the trade routes passing that way, it cannot be gainsaid for a moment that its position is such that it is mainly essential for the defence of India. Then, why should we be deprived of that possession, and why should we be told that we need not pay or incur any expenditure in that behalf. When it is so essential for the Defence of India, it is our right to possess that defence post, and it is our duty to incur expenditure on that account. And we are prepared to do that. If it is not the concern of India, and if it is not an essential part of our defence, may I ask, what right had they to spend all these years the taxpayer's money for a purpose which was not India's? Even according to Sir George

[Mr. B. Sitaramaraju.]

Schuster, several lakhs of rupees have been spent every year on military expenses and the figure was Rs. 47½ crores one year.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : As my Honourable friend is mentioning my name, I must ask him to speak up. I have not heard even five words of what he has said so far in his speech.

Mr. B. Sitaramaraju : I was stating, Mr. Deputy President, that according to the figures which were given by Sir George Schuster, the expenditure that was incurred for military purposes at Aden was sometimes even as much as Rs. 47½ crores.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I never used a figure of that kind.

Mr. B. Sitaramaraju : Then my note is incorrect, because I have got here Rs. 47½ lakhs.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Lakhs, yes, and not crores.

Mr. B. Sitaramaraju : I made a mistake, I meant lakhs ; it is Rs. 47½ lakhs.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : That was the figure in 1926-27.

Mr. S. C. Mitra (Chittagong and Rajshahi Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : For these years it will be crores.

Mr. B. Sitaramaraju : Since 1839, from 16 lakhs of rupees to the peak figure of Rs. 47½ lakhs can be said to be the expenditure that had been incurred for the purpose of military control there.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : That was not expenditure in 1839. The expenditure in 1839 was a mere fraction of that.

Mr. B. Sitaramaraju : I am afraid I am misunderstood. What I am saying is this, that from 1839, up to the present moment, whatever may be the variations, the figures range from Rs. 16 lakhs to Rs. 47½ lakhs at the highest.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : No.

Mr. B. Sitaramaraju : Was it ever less than Rs. 15 lakhs ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I have no information as to what the expenditure in 1839 was. The expenditure in 1900 was about Rs. 20 lakhs a year.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : Was it not in one year something like Rs. 60 lakhs also ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I have already said to my Honourable friend that in 1926-27 the net cost to India was about Rs. 47½ lakhs. Therefore, as His Majesty's Government was paying £72,000, the total cost must have been very nearly Rs. 60 lakhs.

Mr. B. Sitaramaju : There is a little difficulty about these figures. Mr. Jadhav gave certain figures which were not admitted by the Honourable Sir George Schuster, who, in his turn, gave some figures. I have a third set of figures with me. To reconcile them is rather difficult. The difficulty is due to the fact that we have not gone fully into these figures in any Committee. But nobody can dispute that large sums of money have been spent on the military expenditure at Aden. If the total amount is to be taken, assuming that we are not to calculate compound interest, it would go to several crores. If the control of the Settlement is going to be taken over, what right has England to ask us to bear this money which was spent ? If they want to take it away, they must refund every single pie that had been spent by the taxpayer of this country. We are not claiming compound interest or even simple interest. We simply claim that the money that had been taken from the exchequer of this country should be refunded to us. I venture to submit that the assets which have been taken from this country should be assessed on the same principle that had been followed in the case of the separation of Burma.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : The Honourable Member refers to the separation of Burma. When I addressed the House this morning, I pointed out that, as regards Aden, we have followed exactly the same principle, which has been proposed in connection with the separation of Burma, that is to say, when the military and political administration was taken over, the buildings which were part of the normal equipment of the Government were transferred without any charge. That is the principle which is being suggested as regards Burma.

Mr. B. Sitaramaraju : I heard this morning Sir George Schuster to say that they made a free gift of the barracks and other buildings to His Majesty's Government.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : What I stated was that when His Majesty's Government took over the responsibility for the military and political administration of Aden with all the cost that that involved, the buildings necessary for carrying out such functions were transfererd. But what we transferred to His Majesty's Government was not an asset, but a very heavy liability.

Mr. B. Sitaramaraju : There is one other aspect of the question. Unless we have a proper profit and loss account, we cannot properly consider the financial obligations really involved.

I now come to the civil administration of Aden. I for one consider that the question of the civil administration is not so important as the military control Important as it may appear to a few merchants in Bombay, I think the question does not assume the same proportion as the military control does. Without the military control, the possession is not of much use to this country. It is essential that for the defence of this country such an important outpost, which is so vital to us, should be with us. It may be that that post also protects the trade routes of other colonies, in which case we are entitled to get a fair conribution from those who get the benefit of this port. So I venture to submit that the military control and the civil administration are inseparable and, so far as we are concerned, we are not going to accept anything short of that. The argument advanced for transfer is that Aden will not fit into the Federation that we are going to have. The reason advanced about its geographical position has been already dealt with by other speakers. The Secretary of State has said that Aden does not form a province and, therefore, it will be a misfit in the Federation. If Aden does not form a province or a part of the province, whose fault is that ? It was till lately a part of the Bombay Presidency. It was deliberately transferred from the province of Bombay to Delhi. We were not parties to it. We protested against it. It is the Government that brought about this situation by separating it from Bombay and, having brought that about, they find fault with it. It is not fair. With all these autocratic Princes coming into the Federation, I do not know if the Federation is going to be a proper fit, but if Aden, being a non-provincial unit, is a misfit in the Federation, the remedy is to restore Aden to the province of Bombay from which it has been taken. I am glad to note from the reply that the Secretary of State has given that the difficulty about Aden was not insurmountable. I do hope that the obstacle will soon be surmounted. One thing more and I have done. It is said that Aden is so far away and remote from India. Why, in that case, I ask, should it be linked with the judicial administration of Bombay still ? That would go to show that the connection of Aden could not be separated altogether from Bombay, however much they may want it. Further, it will not pay them to do so. With these few remraks, I venture to submit that it is the unanimous opinion not only of this House, but of the whole country that the administration of Aden, civil and military, should never be separated from India with which it has been connected so far.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer (Rohilkund and Kumaon Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I had given notice of a motion which I do not propose to move, but which I certainly proposed to place on record, after hearing the speech of the previous speaker :

"This Assembly, after duly considering the Government of India Press Communiqué of June 20th, 1933, submits that whilst no longer objecting to the transfer to Imperial control of the political and military administration of Aden, as it exists at present, it is definitely of opinion that its civil administration be continued with the Government of India or, if thought necessary, to be retransferred to the Government of Bombay, but that such civil administration not be transferred to the Colonial Office."

Sir, I personally am not very much charmed by the motion of my Honourable friend, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, which begins by saying :

"While recording their emphatic protest against the complete transfer to the Colonial Office of Aden Settlement, etc."

But if I propose to support it, it is because it is a compromise between Mr. Bhuput Sing's motion which wants the re-transfer to India of the military and political control and the motion that was moved in the Council of State which I wanted to be repeated in this House. Therefore, as an agreed proposition, I hope that it will be put to vote and carried unanimously. If I do not record my emphatic protest against the transfer of military control and political control of Aden to Great Britain, it is because I do not believe in doing things too late. Six years ago, this transfer took place. This Assembly has been in existence for the last six years and it wakes up today. Six years ago, the matter came up for discussion. We have been quoting the reply of Sir Denys Bray and criticising that reply today and reading meanings into it which are not accepted by the Government. This Assembly, which is competent and has been clever and sometimes even clumsy in making motions for adjournment on matters of great or trivial importance, could certainly have moved all these six years or, after the accomplishment of the transfer, an adjournment motion of protest. Not having moved it, I do not personally like to protest : I like to bow to the inevitable. We, with open eyes, missed our opportunities. We have shown silence of which we have not been generally capable on matters on which we felt deeply. Having acquiesced in the transfer of military and political control, I personally am willing to bow to the inevitable. What I would not agree to is the transfer of civil control and I shall tell you why. The civil control is necessary for our trade purposes. Aden is an important factor in the promotion of India's trade. It is also necessary from a sentimental—Indian as well as British—and a military point of view. Sir, I believe in British connection ; I believe in Dominion Status : I tore away from a national organisation when it was committed to a policy of independence.

Captain Sher Muhammad Khan Gakhar (Nominated Non-Official) : Suppose there is a dispute between the civil and the military administration, what would my friend suggest ?

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : I am coming to that. Sir, I tore away from an important political organisation when it declared war on British connection. If I say that Aden should be under India's civil control, it is because Aden is under England's military control. My gallant friend over there, who is always anxious to know the connection between civil and military matters, can be easily answered. When there are emergencies and crises, naturally the military control dominates the civil control. The master of military and political affairs is certainly the master of the situation when civil authorities will not be powerful. As for the question of distance between India and England in this world, where we can cover long distances by air, the distance between England and Aden has shrunk. It has also shrunk between England and India. Aden is an important centre between India and England, and it must remain so, so far as military and political affairs are under England's control, for it is England's Gibraltar of the East. I am willing to place England in that position knowing as I do that my country has a large seaboard and no navy of her own. We are very much dependent upon the British navy, for we have a vulnerable seacoast which many of us oftentimes choose to forget. But trade is of very great importance to us. The money that we have invested in Aden is of equal importance. Indian brain and Indian money has improved the Aden of today and it is but fit and proper that Great Britain, which believes in British connection, should leave the civil control in our hands so that we may feel that, in some sport in the middle, Great Britain and India are working together. It is, from this point of view, to illustrate the Indo-British connection, that I would insist that the civil control should rest with us. I am not chasing the will-o'-the-wisp of military control. Some one said that Aden was like a kettle which had gone into the sea. Aden is not under the sea. On the contrary, it is, as it were, the watch tower of the East and, from there, it views and surveys the sea. Sir, as these are the times of depression and as the trade of India is important to Aden as well as to India and to countries from which our goods are distributed, I would suggest to His Majesty's Government that they should not, against the unanimous wish of this House and of the Council of State, take away the civil control from our hands. I hope they will not take away the civil control, for I believe they will not like to estrange us on an important matter like the civil control of Aden. Sir, the Honourable the Leader of the House mentioned, I believe, the question of constitutional changes which are probably worrying either some people in Aden or His Majesty's Government. But there are no constitutional difficulties in re-transferring Aden to Bombay's control if Aden must come under the Federation. Aden was under the control of Bombay before, and the Bombay Government could carry on the civil administration. It is provided even in this communiqué of the Government that the Bombay High Court will be of use to Aden subjects even after the completion of the transfer. I think I am right in saying so, because I have not got the communiqué before me, and I am speaking from recollection. If that is so, and if distance does not come in the way in this particular respect, I canot see why civil control should not be in Bombay's hands as it has been hitherto. I hope and trust that, in the constitutional adjustment, Aden will not be taken away from us so far as the civil affairs are concerned.

Dr. F. X. DeSouza (Nominated Non-Official) : Mr. Deputy President, with your permission, I should like to intervene for a few moments in this debate, because I am interested in Malabar and, to some extent, in the trade of the West Coast. You are aware that Aden is the distributing centre for a considerable portion of the produce of Malabar consisting of pepper, tobacco, spices, plantation products and timber. The trade in these articles is handled by Arab merchants who are financed by Indian bankers resident in Aden who allow them credit from three to six months at a time. They buy these articles in Malabar and carry them in Arab bottoms built at Aden out of Malabar timber and distribute them in Persia, Iraq, Arabia and the east coast of Africa. This trade has been roughly estimated to amount to something like half a crore.

When it was announced by His Majesty's Government that the control of Aden was to be transferred to the Colonial Office, considerable perturbation was caused in Malabar among traders as well as producers as to what was to happen to this trade. We all know that trade follows the flag, but it has been the unfortunate experience of Indian trade that it has never flourished under the Colonial Flag. On the contrary, whenever a Colonial Administration has taken charge of Indian trade, a blight seems to have overtaken that trade. You have only to look across the water and you will find that Somaliland, when it was administered by the Government of Bombay, had a flourishing trade and its seaports of Barbara, Zaila, Bulhar were thriving ports ; the port of Barbara had a population of 20,000 with busy docks, wharves and warehouses. After the Somali war, the Government of that Colony was handed over to the Colonial Office and the result was that these ports are now practically dead. Indian merchants, unable to bear the heavy taxation and the discrimination against them made by the Colonial Administrators, gradually left the Colony and in their wake followed the Jewish and the Arab merchants. For the same reasons, in Kenya, it appears that the Indian wheat trade has been practically eliminated; that the Indian transport trade has been suppressed and that attempts are being made to eliminate the Indian maize trade. The reason seems to be that the Colonial Administrator does not understand the Indian settler at all. He knows the European trader and settler. He knows the native of the Colony which he is administering ; but the Indian settler, an Asiatic who claims equality of opportunity with the European, has no place in his philosophy. In the result, we find that whenever the Colonial Office has taken over the administration of territory where Indians are settled, the trade of India suffers very severely.

The Aden trade with Malabar will suffer for another reason, viz., that the neighbouring African Colonies of Kenya, Tanganyika and Uganda are very serious rivals to Malabar with regard to the produce which Malabar exports. Only the other day, I heard that there was a trade mission sent under the ægis of the Government of Kenya to Aden to negotiate an agreement for the sale of the plantation produce of Kenya. As it happened, the Indian bankers at Aden refused to give credit to the merchants and the English bankers also refused to give credit, because their credentials were not satisfactory. We all know that the planters in Kenya have very powerful connections and have friends at Court and there is no doubt that they will in a short time be able to eliminate the Malabar produce from the Aden market if Aden is transferred to the control of the Colonial Office.

This debate has been initiated by my Honourable friend, the Leader of the House, with a motion that this House do take into consideration the communiqué of the Government of India. The communiqué contains the following words :

"Already Aden (Settlement) to some extent is under Imperial control and it is inseparable in practice from the Aden Protectorate which has already passed wholly out of Indian control."

If I understand these words rightly, they seem to imply that if the Settlement of Aden continues to remain under the control of the Government of India, there would be divided control—a sort of dyarchy—which, in time of war, will be unworkable. That seems to be the most reasonable interpretation to be placed upon this communiqué. If that is so, it is clear that the mind of His Majesty's Government is already made up with regard to the transfer of the civil control of the Aden Settlement. Unfortunately the Honourable Members on the Treasury Benches have their lips sealed under an Ordinance, whether it is a self-denying Ordinance or an Ordinance imposed by the Secretary of State, I do not know. We do not know what really are the reasons which have prompted His Majesty's Government to take the course which they propose to do. Therefore, not knowing the reasons underlying the action of His Majesty's Government the arguments advanced by the several speakers in this House against the measure seem to be more or less like tilting at a wind-mill. But, being a Subordinate Legislature, we have no reason to complain.

Be that as it may, it seems to me that the most reasonable explanation to be placed upon the action of His Majesty's Government is this. During the war, the strategic importance of Aden, as a military and a naval base, in case of a future war, was discovered. His Majesty's Government is unwilling to disclose the implications of this discovery, because it would not be in the public interest to do so, and I venture to think that that is the reason why they have imposed a seal of silence upon the lips of the occupants of the Treasury Benches. If that is the correct explanation, it seems to me that it is idle to charge either the Government of India or His Majesty's Government with breach of faith or violation of pledges. Because, as my Honourable friend, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, pointed out, here we are functioning not in the moral plane but in the plane of high politics ; and we all know that to a politician as well as a diplomat, language is given to conceal his thoughts. Then, again, it is idle to urge our moral claims to the retention of Aden, claims based upon Aden having been developed from a barren rock with a population of 3,000 to a flourishing port, the entrepot for the trade of the middle east, with a population of more than 50,000. It seems to be idle to urge our moral claims, because, if it is Imperial policy that dictates the transfer of Aden to the Colonial Government, there is no answer. Salus patriae suprema lex.

What then should this Assembly do ? Should we, as was said by my Honourable friend, Mr. Puri, whom I am sorry not to see here, fold our hands in silence and offer Satyagraha ; because, as he said, it is useless to try to bargain with an opponent with overwhelming strength ? Or shall we say, as my Honourable friend, Major Nawab Ahmad Nawaz Khan, suggested, that the people of Bombay and Karachi and the other ports affected should look upon this as a loss caused by an act of God, say by an earthquake ? Of course, it is very easy to preach resignation under other people's misfortunes. But these seem to me to be counsels of despair. I do not think that that is an attitude of mind with which we should meet the situation. A similar situation on a vastly larger scale offered itself to the British Government in framing a scheme for the Federation of India. They had to hand over the immense trade of the British nation with India to the future Federal Government. Did they fold their hands and say : " We do not care what happens to this trade ; let it take care of itself " ? No ; they insisted upon constitutional safeguards being inserted in the Constitution that no discrimination shall be allowed against British trade by the future Federal Government. I wish our Honourable friends, the Members of the European Group, would help us and tell us how a similar guarantee may be inserted in the Instrument of Transfer, transferring the administration of Aden from the Government of India to the Colonial Government. It is true that there are certain vague promises which are offered in this communiqué. But, as pointed out by every speaker on the Opposition Benches as well as on these Benches, these are hedged round with so many " ifs " and so many " ans " that they are certain to be treated as mere scraps of paper.

[At this stage, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) resumed the Chair.]

What we want is a categorical guarantee, specially with regard to clauses 3, 4 and 6 of the communiqué, viz., that Aden will be maintained as a free port, that no further additional taxation will be imposed and that on no account will any racial legislation or segregation be permitted by His Majesty's Government.

Sir, enough has been said about compensation which ought in justice be paid to India and I do not wish to dilate further on this point.

But whatever the compensation granted may be, I feel certain that there will be deep and sullen resentment in the mind of political India caused by the action proposed to be taken by His Majesty's Government. Sir, at a time when every other country and every other nation is endeavouring to capture foreign markets by appointing Trade Commissioners and otherwise to develop the trade of their country, here we are asked to sacrifice a large market amounting to eight crores of rupees, at our very door, created by our enterprise. And while unemployment is acute, we are asked to sacrifice a not inconsiderable field for the employment of our nationals, not only in the service of Government, but also in mercantile houses. And, above all, we are asked to give up to an unsympathetic administration a flourishing Colony which has been developed at the expense and by the enterprise of Indian nationals. And when, in course of time, the Colonial Office takes charge of Aden, and, in the picturesque language of the Statesman newspaper, the Indian population exchanges the whips of the Government of India for the scorpions of the Colonial Office there will be one more cry raised from Indians overseas and that cry will stir political India deeper than any other cry of a similar kind has stirred it before ; because, it will be a cry raised not from the descendants of indentured coolies as in South Africa or from segregated hawkers and shopkeepers as in Kenya and Tanganyika, but it will be a cry raised by powerful mercantile interests with influential connections in Karachi, Bombay, Rangoon and all the other important ports of India. And, therefore, in all humility, I ask His Majesty's Government to pause before they decide to take the action they propose, and if the blow is inevitable, then, so far as lies in their power, to soften the blow.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : Sir, I rise to support, I believe it is a Resolution moved by my Honourable friend, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad. I understand, the intention of Government in allowing the non-official Members of this House to express their opinion is to enable Government to realise the feelings of all Indians on this question. I should have thought that by now, Mr. President, all Honourable Members on the opposite side had fully realised the strong feelings,—you may call it sentiment if you like or you may, if you like, call it bad argument combined with sentiment,—that exists throughout the country ; that the step now proposed by His Majesty's Government, namely, the transfer of the civil administration of Aden to the Colonial Office is strongly resented. Sir, every one of us has been supplied with a considerable amount of literature. I have got it in front of me, and, I am sure, my friend, the Honourable the Leader of the House, must have got two copies each sent to him. (Laughter.)

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : Not even one.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : Then, Sir, may I present him with this bunch of pamphlets on the question of the transfer of Aden,—and every one of these pamphlets protests against the proposed transfer. Sir, my friends who have already spoken have left very little for any one else to say, but the fact that, even after what little I shall have to say many more will rise to their feet, will, I trust, convince Honourable Members opposite, if they are not already convinced, that the proposed transfer of Aden has not got the approval of the people of this country. Now, Sir, the latest contribution that has been made to this subject is this communiqué. I think my friend, Mr. Munshi, from Burma was rather enamoured of this communiqué, and, lest anybody might misunderstand him, he candidly said that it was one of the worst arguments ever put forward by Government, but his sarcasm went to such an extent that it was liable to be misunderstood ; as a matter of fact, I quite agree with him that this was one of the worst arguments ever put up by Government to my knowledge with regard to the transfer of Aden. Now, Sir, what are the reasons given in this communiqué which we are seriously asked to consider ? The first point is that Aden does not naturally fit into the new Federation. Well, Sir, I presume there are other Federations in this world like Germany, United States, and so on—they all have colonies. Do Government seriously mean to contend that if India is to be a Federation in the future, she should give up all hopes of having colonies, or do they mean that it will be difficult to attach Aden to any one province ? Sir, I honestly say that when the administration of Aden was transferred from the Government of Bombay to the Government of India, we never realised that it would be brought up as an argument in favour of transferring Aden to the Colonial Office,—for that is the meaning of this argument. If it had remained with Bombay, there would have been no justification for putting forward this argument that Aden will not fit into a Federation. Shall we be said to exaggerate when I say that we had apprehensions of some such thing when Aden was transferred from Bombay to the Government of India ? As a matter of fact, I know very well that many of my friends in Bombay said that this was merely a thin end of the wedge, and the next step would be that it would have to go to the Colonial Office ; but the very strong language, in which we were told that Government had no such intention, allayed our apprehensions. I do not want to worry this House by reading again the words of the then Foreign Secretary uttered in the presence of the Viceroy to a deputation that waited on him in 1931, when he told the deputation that Government had no ulterior motives in making the transfer from the Government of Bombay to the Government of India, and that it was only a question of administration. Now, Sir, personally I did not really even then fully understand the great difficulty of administration. I had something to do with the administration of Aden for several years, and although there was some delay on account of the Bombay Government having to get the approval of the Government of India in many of their proposals, it was not an insuperable difficulty. Such delays occur every day in the administration of this country. Provincial Governments have to get the orders of the Government of India on many questions which cause delay and inconvenience, but it is no use crying over spilt milk. The transfer was made, but we never expected that that transfer would be flung in our faces as an argument in favour of again transferring the administration of Aden to the Colonial Office. Sir, it is a poor argument to put forward after what fell from the lips of responsible officers of the Government of India.

Then, Sir, we are told that to some extent the control has already passed into Imperial hands. Now, who agreed to that transfer ? We were never consulted. And what is much more, an undertaking was given that we would be consulted. Mr. President, not even the Government of Bombay was consulted. Far from being consulted, they heard of it for the first time when the Home Member for the Bombay Government was actually on his feet moving a Bill in the Legislative Council of Bombay for Aden—he heard of it for the first time in the Legislative Council when he was actually moving a Bill, and he was taken by surprise. His only answer was that all he could say was that the Government of India had approved of his moving the Bill, and he was not responsible. Now, Sir, if that is an argument for the transfer of the civil administration to the Colonial Office, my answer is, retransfer the military and foreign control to the Government of India, and you will get rid of this argument. If you have caused a difficulty for yourself, then undo the wrong you have done already, but don't bring it up as an argument at this stage, for it was your action and not ours, your action without our approval.

Then, Sir, we come to this question of money. We are told that we shall be let off £150,000 a year, that is what it comes to. If I have understood the Finance Member correctly, the budget of the civil administration balances itself and the contribution of £150,000 we pay a year to His Majesty's Government will be saved if we agree to the transfer of Aden to the Colonial Office. In these matters we do not look at all questions from the point of view of pound, shilling and pence. Suppose it does cost us £150,000, it is much less than what it cost us in 1926-27, which was Rs. 47 lakhs, and if against our will and against our wishes this burden was taken off our shoulders, it is no use now coming forward and telling us, " We will relieve you of a further burden of £150,000 ". We did not pass any Resolution in the Imperial Legislative Council, or in the Legislative Assembly, or in the Council of State, asking for this relief. It was a relief given to us because it was convenient to somebody else. We did not ask for such reliefs. No. 2 is too absurd for words, that the right of appeal in judicial cases will remain with the Bombay High Court. Take it, for goodness's sake, to the High Court in England. We do not want it. If you are to transfer Aden to the Colonial Office, I think the Government of Bombay would be justified in saying, " We shall have nothing further to do with you and we shall not have our High Court helping you to administer justice ". It is a convenience to yourself ; it is not a convenience to us. Why put it down as an argument in favour of transferring Aden to the Colonial Office ? If it is put here as a bait to my friends in Aden that they won't have to go so far to England for their justice, then they might reply, " We shall have to go 1,600 miles, as we do now, for our appeals. We shall all the same have to go 6,000 miles when we want justice in all other directions ". It is said that Aden will remain a free port if it is transferred to the Colonial Office. Has it ever been contended that it would not be a free port if it remained under the administration of India ? What is this ? Is this an assurance given, or is it meant to be said that if Aden remains with the Government of India it will no longer be a free port ? What is this assurance to us ? It is qualified. My Honourable friend, the Leader of the House, can, without even consulting his colleagues, give exactly the same assurance on behalf of the Government of India that if the status quo is maintained Aden will remain a free port so far as it is possible, and I am sure that there would be no objection, without consulting even a single one of his colleagues, to his giving us such an assurance and giving the Adenites that consolation. The same thing applies to taxes. But No. 5 is much more important. Sir, I hear from Aden that notwithstanding no action having been taken, no decision having been arrived at, still some officers in Aden have taken it for granted that the administration is to be transferred to the Colonial Office, and all appointments that were given to Indians are now being given to others. I have heard that for the last two years, for certain for the last one year, but I refused to believe it. I do not know where these orders emanated from ; they may not have emanated at all ; but I am distinctly given to understand from Aden that posts that would ordinarily have gone to Indians are now being filled by others. This assurance means that all Indians in service in Aden will be sacked as soon as possible, that some Englishmen whose services have been lent to Aden by the Government of India may continue to retain their posts so long as they are wanted, and then all appointments will be made by the Colonial Office as they are made for the other colonies. And in these hard times when unemployment is rampant we are asked to accept the position that many Indians should be sacked to make room for others.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : May I interrupt my Honourable friend just for a moment ? So far as my information goes, I can assure him that no orders have emanated from the Government of India on the lines suggested by him just now.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : Will my Honourable friend then issue orders that posts that have been held by Indians up to now should be filled by Indians, until at least this transfer is decided on ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I have no doubt that the normal practice which has prevailed in the past will prevail in the immediate future.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : I am glad to hear that, and I trust that my Honourable friend's words will reach the administration in Aden and that no further Indians will, I do not say, be dismissed, but when vacancies occur, Indians will get those posts as they have got them for the last number of years.

Sir Leslie Hudson (Bombay : European) : On a point of information, Sir. May we be told what those posts are which have been taken away from Indians ?

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Education Department.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : I am not talking of the Education Department ; I am not going to enlighten my Honourable friend and I tell him why. For a simple reason. One post was brought to my attention a fortnight ago. I know it. It was in the Port Trust.

Sir Leslie Hudson : Is that a Government department ?

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : It is a semi-Government department. If my Honourable friend wants to know the posts, what they are, and what people in Aden are saying, I will refer him to those who will be able to give him the names of the men who have been employed. I do not desire to bring these personal matters before the Assembly. It is against my principles to talk about any posts, but I make the statement, a general statement, and I say it is a correct one.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : May I bring to the notice of my Honourable friend that appointments under the Port Trust are not under the control of the Government of India ?

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : That may be so. I know it is so. But the idea prevails that Aden is going to be transferred to the Colonial Office and preparations should be made for that purpose.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Only a fortnight ago, many persons spoke to me about it when I was in Aden.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : Now, Sir, as to racial discrimination No. 6. I have not the slightest doubt of the bona fides of this assurance. Government do intend that no racial discrimination shall take place but I have my strong suspicions that Government will not be able to do it. We have had bitter experience, Mr. President. What is the use of repeating those experiences over and over again here. They have been brought to the attention of Government, of the Colonial Office. Commissions have been appointed. People have had to go out to the colonies to investigate the injustice to our countrymen. Do we desire to add one more grievance to the many grievances that this country has with regard to the preferential treatment shown to others, as compared to Indians in the colonies ?

4 P.M.

Major Nawab Ahmad Nawaz Khan (Nominated Non-official) : There is a Persian proverb which says :

"Een ham bar sari alam."

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : Translate it. If I am interrupted in Persian, I cannot reply.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Reply in Gujerati.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : You will rule me out of order, Mr. President, if you find out the meaning of my Gujerati. (Laughter.) At any rate, Sir, we do not desire to take any further risks with regard to Aden, because a good percentage of the population of Aden are Indians and if after all anything went wrong and there was discrimination against Indians, I am afraid the trouble would assume a character which I do not like even to visualise. This bitterness between our two countries has increased greatly on account of the ill-treatment of Indians in some of the colonies. We do not want to add another cause of bitterness. Sir, we have heard a good deal about discrimination in India. Nobody wants to discriminate but we do ask those who ask us not to discriminate in India to help to see that there is no discrimination against Indians in the British Empire and if they cannot help us effectively, which they cannot with all the desire in the world, let them at least stand side by side with us in fighting, to see that we do not have another colony where there will be discrimination, a colony which has been administered by India. If there was discrimination in that colony, it would never be forgiven in this country and for that reason alone it would be to the interests of both countries that Aden shall never be transferred to the Colonial Office. It is not discrimination against Indians in favour of Englishmen. It is discrimination against Indians, because they are Asiatics, in favour of Europeans. The English population of Aden is next to nothing. There are Frenchmen, Italians and Germans in Aden. Do you desire that there shall be discrimination in their favour against Indians ? We know that in some of the British colonies, there is discrimination against the British citizens of this Empire in favour of men who are citizens of other countries because they happen to be Europeans. That is the strongest argument against this transfer. I am not going to repeat how Aden became a part of the British Empire but let me remind Honourable Members opposite that if the administration of Aden remains with India, Aden shall remain a part of the British Empire, at the service of not only England and India but at the service of Australia, the Straits Settlements and other countries in the Far East, colonies in the British Empire, which Aden serves just as well as it serves India.

Now, Sir, I will just refer to one more point. It has already been made. That is, that if this transfer is inevitable, if as rumour has it, it is an accomplished fact,—personally I do hope and trust it is not an accomplished fact,—then I do appeal to the Government of India to see that justice is done to the taxpayers of this country. I have just now said that Aden serves not only India but it has been of equal service to Australia and the Straits Settlements. We have paid out of our monies for the defence of Aden up to the year 1926. A contribution was paid by Great Britain. We shall still continue to pay a contribution, while a major portion of the expenditure will be borne by the British exchequer but if Aden is transferred, then I think it is only justice and equity to the taxpayers of this country that the monies that we have spent out of their money for the protection of Aden should be refunded to us, not with compound interest but so far as can be ascertained without any interest at all and my main argument for that is, and I will repeat it, that Aden is and has been maintained as a fortress not only for India but for the Empire as well and for certain parts of the Empire in particular and all should put their hands into their pockets. Why should India be called upon to contribute £150,000, even if the administration remains with India ? Why not Australia ? Why not Straits Settlements ? I would like that point to be considered by the Government of India. In any case, whether it is left with the Government of India or whether it is transferred to Great Britain, in both cases all parts of the Empire should contribute. Why should England alone bear the burden ? Why should England pay a contribution or why should we pay a contribution ? Are there no other parts of the Empire which are benefiting and are there no other parts of the Empire which are being protected ? Sir, I have nothing else to say except to reiterate that I do not think there is a single Honourable Member, an elected Member, of this House who is in favour of this transfer. I confidently say that not one elected Member is in favour of the transfer, and we do hope that the Government of India will convey to His Majesty's Government the strong resentment that this country will feel if the transfer does take place. (Applause.)

Sardar G. N. Mujumdar (Gujrat and Deccan Sardars and Inamdars : Landholders) : Sir, I rise to support the amendment moved by my Honourable friend, Mr. Bhuput Sing. Though I represent the Landholders of the Bombay Presidency proper, I have to look to the welfare of India in general and of the Bombay Presidency in particular,

I think it, therefore, my duty to protest against the transfer of Aden from the Government of India to His Majesty's Government. Not only the people of Bombay, but also of India and even of Aden are strongly against this transfer. On the 13th September last, a big public meeting was held at Calcutta which unanimously protested against the transfer. It is a very sad thing that Aden is being snatched away from us after our very long and happy connection with her for about a century. The people of Aden, comprising of Arabs, Jews and Indians, live in Aden together as brethren, and there has never been any sort of inequality of status, which state of things we prize the most. Even with regard to commerce, industry and employment, every one in Aden feels secured. The present prosperous condition of Aden is only due to the efforts of the Bombay Government and the people of Bombay and India, who went and established themselves there. The tax-payers of India in general and of Bombay in particular have annually contributed lakhs of rupees for a number of years to make it what it is today. I know very well of what great importance our connection has been with Aden and how, therefore, in the mutual interest of Aden and India, every endeavour has been made by Indians to make Aden a prosperous port and a market for our produce. Whenever any question came before our Legislature regarding the improvements at Aden, we have been most sympathetic and I must say we have all along felt that Aden was a part of our own. Aden is about 1,600 miles from Bombay, yet with the recent improved shipping, it has come nearer to us than many parts of India for the transport of our produce, and hence it is very valuable to us.

Sir, we felt very much when Aden was transferred from Bombay to Delhi and Simla, but we felt safe on the assurance given by His Excellency the Viceroy to Sir Chunilal Mehta's deputation in November, 1931, that the transfer would not cut off Aden from India and that our trade and commerce would be the special care of the Government of India. Sir, on such an assurance, we, in the districts, did feel and still do feel that our Government will not let us down. To us this proposal of transfer has come as a surprise. It is really unthinkable, after so much sacrifice on our part, and when the Settlement of Aden has become prosperous, that our Government could be a party in Aden being taken away from us and that, too, against the desire of the people. I am sure, Sir, our Government will respect the feelings of the people and will also take into consideration our sacrifices. Sir, Aden is a central distributing port and through Aden our produce is being distributed in the whole of Arabia and even Africa. Aden has been our valuable market and, in these days of depression, when the condition of our agriculturist is so miserable, I ask, is it not the duty of this Legislature and of this Government to do all they can to encourage Indians and the people of Aden to keep up and even improve their connection with India ?

Sir, what is going on everywhere in the world ? Every nation is doing its best to find out markets for its produce and to try to find out employment for its people. Why was the World Economic Conference held ? Why did the President of the United States make his first duty to improve the depression and increase the value of its produce ? I ask, Sir, why the Japanese and Lancashire deputations are coming to Simla ? When the nations of the world are doing all this, what do we find here ? Our people are being driven away from South Africa and from East Africa, and now it is proposed that we should be a party to an action which would drive away Indians from Aden and Arabia. Is this position not pitiable ? Should we be a party to such an action and thereby create more starvation ? I think it is the duty of our Government not only to retain Aden, but, as often promised by them, to try and improve the condition of Indians outside India and to establish connections in the world at large for the disposal of our produce and thus improve the half-starving conditions in India.

Sir, when in 1921, an attempt was made to transfer Aden, the Bombay Government strongly protested, as will be seen from the proceedings of the Council of State. Again, in 1927, when the question of Aden came up in this House, not only Members of this House, but all the important bodies strongly protested against the transfer and even the Government of Bombay, through its Honourable Member, Sir Ernest Hotson, and its Chief Secretary, expressed surprise at such an action in the Bombay Legislative Council. Sir, this is our position. I appeal strongly to Government to consider seriously our position and take courage in their hands and tell the British Government that they cannot be a party to their desire, as it is entirely against our wishes and interests. Sir, after all, the Government of India is also a part of the British Government, and what is the fear if Aden is with us ? Why should they have any kind of suspicion ? The people of Aden have stood by the Empire at all times and have contributed to the exchequer as willingly as the Indians. Even during the Somaliland war and the Great War, their sacrifices have been as great as those of any part of the Empire. If not for anything else, for the sake of sacrifices that the Aden people have made and for what Indians have done, I appeal to Government to respect their wishes and their trade relations. I assure Government that, if they respect them, they will always be having their good sympathies and it is that alone, I believe, Government must prize the most. Sir, with these words, I protest against the transfer of Aden. In conclusion, I may be allowed to ask our Finance Member to enlighten as to the total amount the Government of Bombay and the Government of India have spent on Aden for the last 80 years. I know it is a very big amount. Several crores of rupees have been spent by the Bombay Government and the Indian Government too. Will the British Government pay this large amount back to us ? So far as civil population is concerned, we will lose crores of rupees. The Honourable the Leader of the House had made a very important statement, the day before yesterday, with regard to the payment of annual contribution by India, towards the military expenditure at Aden, and, if this side of the House has rightly understood him, with the transfer of Aden to the Colonial Government, the citizens of the Aden Settlement will be relieved of this payment and the Imperial Government will pay it. May I ask, why this discrimination ? Is it right that India should pay this amount if Aden stands connected with India and if it is transferred to the Colonial Government, the Imperial Government should come to the rescue of the Colonial Government ? I say, Sir, India is not rich enough to bear this burden and Indians hope that the Imperial Government will not look after her with a step-motherly affection. This is really an expense for the safeguard of Imperial trade-routes, and justice demands that it should be borne by the Imperial Government hereafter and, I hope, the Imperial Government will be generous enough to refund the enormous amount collected on this account from poor India for all these years. Sir, with these words, I support the amendment.

Sir Leslie Hudson : Sir, neither I nor any of my Group have had the advantage of being supplied with the library of pamphlets which the Honourable the Leader of the Independent Party, Sir Cowasji Jehangir, has exhibited to the House. I am sorry because I have no doubt that I should have been able to add to my knowledge of the history of Great Britain's taking possession of Aden and the reasons for which it was taken.

My recollection of it is that it was consequent on the wreck of an Indian sailing vessel from the coast of Madras, belonging to the Nawab of Carnatic, at Aden, and the plunder of its cargo and the robbing of its crew and passengers, the survivors of whom managed to reach the port of Mocha where they got into contact with the agent of the Government of Bombay, that in due course an expedition was sent from Bombay to Aden, an expedition consisting of 700 British and Indian troops under the command of Commander Haines. That was the reason given for taking possession of Aden, but the actual reason for gaining a foot-hold in the port and harbour of Aden was to furnish a harbour and a coaling station for those early steam vessels that have just begun to ply in the ocean between Bombay and Suez. Such a depôt was necessary, because those vessels could not take sufficient coal for the long voyage between Bombay and Suez. Aden was the place chosen upon and the real reason for taking possession of Aden was for the formation of a coal depôt there. Ever since that time, for nearly a hundred years, Aden has been one of the main fuelling stations of coal and oil throughout the world and, while I agree that large sums of Indian capital have been invested in Aden, there have also been very large sums of British capital invested in Aden. I should like Honourable Members to recollect this, for we have heard quite a number of Honourable Members opposite saying that, because of these Indian investments in Aden, there is a very strong case for India to retain civil control of Aden.

When I heard Member after Member getting up and making use of that expression, it brought to my memory almost exactly similar arguments which I frequently heard when I was in England, namely, that in view of the vast amount of British capital invested in India, Great Britain should retain her control in India. I wonder, if Honourable Members opposite will agree that the same argument should, with justice, apply. Although there appears to us on these Benches to be an obvious advantage in the unification of the control of Aden we do recognise and sympathise with the obvious desire in India that she should continue to control the civil administration of Aden. There is considerable strength in that sentiment. There is also something else besides sentiment behind that desire and that is the financial interests of Indian merchants, and that too will carry weight with Honourable Members opposite.

I repeat that we have considerable sympathy with the desire of India to retain the civil control of Aden, and no doubt His Majesty's Government will take full note of the debates in this House and in the Upper House. So, while we cannot support the motion of Mr. Bhuput Sing, we shall not oppose that of Dr. Ziauddin.

There is just one other point I should like to make. Ever since the late lamented Dr. Woodrow Wilson gave expression to the word " self-determination ", that has become one of the hardest used phrases throughout the world and I wonder whether Honourable Members opposite have realised that possibly there may be a certain amount of desire for " self-determination " on the part of those inhabitants of Aden who do not happen to be Indians.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt (Burdwan Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir (Laughter), the complete unanimity of the House in protesting against the transfer of Aden to the Colonial Office should set the question at rest. The Leader of the European Group is also in sympathy with our sentiment and that is a matter for congratulation. Sir, I don't know why my rising to take part in this debate should create laughter even amongst my friends, Messrs. Mitra and Singh.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : We laughed because three or four Members stood up at the same time, and not because the Honourable Member got up to speak.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : I was rather a little surprised, because I was never given such a reception in the House before. Be that as it may, the reason for my standing up is this. There has been an appeal to the feelings of the Bengalis in this matter by a certain paper which calls itself " the friend of India " and also the " Statesman ". It was really a friend of India in its infancy when it was nursed by Indian milk, but I cannot say that it is so now. It has tried to rouse the feelings of the Bengalis in these words :

" The sooner Aden is cut loose from India, the better will Bengal be placed. It is hard to avoid using libellous language about the extra 4½ as. salt duty imposed over two years ago in the interest of a handful of merchants working from Aden."

Sir, I take this statement as a libel upon Bengali patriotism. Sir, Bengal has always given the lead in every matter in India formerly, but unfortunately at the present moment we have not got such outstanding personalities as Messrs. W. C. Bonnerji, Mano Mohan Ghose, Lal Mohan Ghose, Ananda Mohan Bose, Sir Surendra Nath Banerjea, and others. Sir, some years ago, that great politician and patriot of Bombay, the late Mr. Gokhale, remarked that what Bengal thinks today India will think tomorrow. That was the compliment paid to Bengal in those days. He said : " Do not try to trifle with the feelings of the Bengalis. A race which can produce a scientist like Sir J. C. Bose, a jurist like Sir Rash Bihari Ghose and a poet like Rabindra Nath Tagore is not a race to be trifled with." That the editor of the Statesman, having lived so many years amongst us, could think that the Bengalis can be induced to support a motion like this, namely, the transfer of the port of Aden to the control of the Imperial Government, I consider nothing but a libel upon the posterity of that race of stalwarts and patriots. Sir, as I have said, I am at one with every one of the speakers who have opposed this proposal of transfer ; and there are two amendments and I may make it clear that I would have willingly supported the amendment of Mr. Bhuput Sing, for I believe that, by remaining with India for nearly a century, Aden is and has become a part and parcel of India and we have a right to demand that Aden should be linked with India.

Sir, I think my friend, the Leader of the European group, gave rather a little incorrect history of the Protectorate of Aden as also Aden itself. Here I find in an authoritative book, the authenticity and the correctness of which cannot be challenged, namely, the Indian Year Book, that :

" Aden was the first new territory added to the Empire after the accession of Queen Victoria. Its acquisition was the outcome of an outrage committed by local Arabs upon the passengers and crew of a British Indian buggalow wrecked in the neighbourhood."

Sir Leslie Hudson : I think that is what I said.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt :

" Negotiations having failed to secure satisfactory reparation the Government of Bombay despatched a force under Major Baillie which captured Aden on January 19th, 1839."

My Honourable friend wanted to give us an idea that it was in order to get a harbour and a coal depôt, but here we find a different reason given. The troops were mainly composed of Indians and not, as my Honourable friend would make us believe, Indian as well as European. Sir, I shall not repeat what has been said by other speakers about the reason why Aden should be with India, and the criticism, that has been levelled against the so-called advantages that might be gained by separation, has also been dealt with amply. So I do not think it is necessary for me to go over the same ground again and, if I have taken up a few minutes of the time of the House, it is in order to show that we Bengalis do not lag behind any of our Indian fellow-countrymen in protesting against a measure like this, although I am painfully aware that at times Bengal is not fortunate enough to get the same support from the people of other Presidencies.

Mr. Muhammad Muazzam Sahib Bahadur : Mr. President, before I address myself to the question of the transfer of Aden, I wish just to read out a few lines from the column of the Statesman of the 16th instant where you, Sir, have been referred to as the dumb President. The opening paragraph reads :

" It was unfortunate that, throughout the discussion of the Reserve Bank motions, the only non-official Member of the Assembly who really understood the subject was the necessarily dumb President."

Then towards the end, referring to the debate on the question of the transfer of Aden, the paper says :

" Perhaps it is fortunate for everyone that the Assembly so seldom has time enough to take stock of what it is doing and saying from one day to the next. The Opposition, for instance, urges that the press should be completely at liberty to plague the rulers of Indian States but should be prosecuted with all rigour if it says what it thinks about Mr. Gandhi. The same will probably happen on Monday in the discussion of Aden's future. The Opposition will use precisely those arguments for whose employment they most bitterly criticise their opposite numbers in England. The parallel will run somewhat after this fashion :

Opposition M. L. A. : Aden has been under British Indian rule for nearly a century.

Lloyd-Churchill : India has been under British rule for over a century.

Opposition M. L. A. : Indians have put crores of money into Aden's development.

Lloyd-Churchill : The British have put hundreds of crores of money into India's development.

Opposition M. L. A. : The separation of Aden will be a blow to Indian trade.

Lloyd-Churchill : Self-government for India will be a blow to British trade.

[Mr. Muhammad Muazzam Sahib Bahadur.]

Opposition M. L. A. : The Arabs who want Aden's transfer are not really representative.

Lloyd-Churchill : The vocal Indian politicians who talk of Swaraj are not really representative of the masses.

Opposition M. L. A. : Aden and India are ours and must remain ours.

Lloyd-Churchill : Aden and India are ours and must remain ours."

That is how it concludes. I think, Sir, that what is really meant is the Home Government and that, instead of using the words " Lloyd-Churchill ", it would have been much more appropriate to have said " The Home Government ".

I have very closely followed the debate on the motion of the Leader of the House and I think three ourstanding facts emerge from what has actually happened regarding Aden during all these years for nearly a century and from the communiqué which we are asked to discuss. The first one which strikes me as the most important is that the Home Government have long had an eye on the Settlement of Aden. But the idea in their mind appears to have been that, in this particular case, it was better to play a waiting game. They did not like the idea of taking possession of a lean calf. On the other hand, they said : " Let it grow fat and then we shall have it."

Then the next point that occurs to me is that whenever the Government of India profess to express a defined policy which the Home Government is pursuing or is going to pursue, their statements can only be taken as an expression of opinion which might or might not be carried into effect. Specially is this so when the matters relate to foreign and colonial policy. The third is that the burden of the annual contribution by India has been steadily on the decrease. There can be no two opinions on this aspect of Aden's finances.

I think, Mr. President, we have now reached a stage at which Aden, instead of her being a burden to India, which it has been for so many years, will begin to show ever increasing returns on the credit side of India. As a matter of fact, I can say with confidence, that, in the space of another five or six years, the debit side will be completely wiped out, and the credit side will begin to swell. Mr. President, I am not going to enter into a controversy with my Honourable friend, Sir George Schuster, in relation to the financial effects of the transfer of Aden. I shall take the figure which the Honourable the Finance Member has stated to be almost a correct one representing the burden to India this year—1932-33—and he put that figure at 15 lakhs and 60,000. As against that, we have to bear in mind that India will be losing every year something like one lakh and sixty thousand by way of loss in income-tax earnings on the principle that there cannot be double assessment to income-tax. I believe, if I have understood the Honourable Member correctly, the loss would come to about one lakh and sixty thousand rupees.....

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I told my friend that it was impossible to give an exact estimate, and that all I could say was that it would not be a large sum.

Mr. Muhammad Muazzam Sahib Bahadur : Conceding, then, Mr. President, that the burden to India is something like 15 lakhs this year,—that at the present moment the expenditure and the income balance each other so far as the civil administration is concerned, that the income to India is steadily rising, and that India is entitled to claim from the Colonies for the safety of their trade route to the East a share of her annual contribution to Aden,—is it too much to expect that henceforth from year to year the revenue income to India from Aden will begin to swell to an extent that the necessity of a subvention by India will cease to exist ?

Mr. President, I shall not devote any time in dealing with the ancient history of Aden. I shall refrain from paying my tribute to Major Bailey and to the other Colonel to whom my friend, Sir Leslie Hudson, referred. But, I think, I shall have to point out, that, in the course of the discussion on this motion, when my friend, Dr. Ziauddin, said that Sir Denys Bray had made two statements which could not be reconciled, the Honourable the Leader of the House stood up and said, that the statements taken together purported to convey what we exactly were doing now. Now, Sir, this is what Sir Denys Bray said. I shall quote his very words :

" I repeat my promises that the transfer of Aden will not be effected without the House being consulted."

Then, Sir, in the same speech, the Foreign Secretary has also said :

" I hasten to add that all idea of such a transfer has long since been abandoned."

—referring to the civil and municipal administration of Aden. Now, taking those two statements together, I am in entire agreement with the Honourable the Leader of the House that opportunity has in fact been given to us to discuss this motion, and if I have to reconcile with the communiqué under discussion the other statement made by Sir Denys Bray, namely, that the Home Government had given up all ideas of a transfer, then, it appears to me that I need only repeat what I said just now, that on questions where the Government of India professed to speak on matters relating to foreign and colonial affairs, the last word lay with the Home Government and not with the Government of India, and their statements and utterances in this House could at best be taken only as mere expressions of opinion and no more. As a matter of fact, they reflect the utter helplessness of the Government of India in these matters.

Sir, I shall now address myself to the obstacles which have stood so far in the way of the Home Government effecting their purpose. It was only the day before yesterday that my friend, Mr. Puri, while speaking on this motion, said,—what is the use of discussing this motion, the Home Government have already come to a certain decision, and all our talk here will be a waste of time,—indicating thereby that the Home Government had already made up their minds and the matter which we are discussing now has already once for all been settled. Sir, while I am confident on the one hand, that what the Home Government have done already will not now be undone, that is to say, that the military and political control of Aden will not be retransferred to India any time, I do trust, on the other, in spite of what my friends, Sir Cowasji Jehangir and Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, have said regarding the entertainment of Europeans in place of Indians in Aden for the last few months and the permanent establishment there of the National Bank two or three months ago replacing the small banks which were doing business formerly and the employment further in the Education Department of a European in place of an Indian who was holding that office for a long time,—although all these things may tend to show in a way that the Home Government was contemplating a transfer, I do hope that, when the point of view of this House and that of the Council of State is placed before that Government, they will see the reasonableness of our demand, and that they will give up pursuing the line which they appear to have taken.

Now, Sir, I shall not go deep into the whole case, but I shall just say a few words on what I feel, in regard to three or four points. As regards the grounds which are set out as points indicating the desirability for the transfer of the civil and military administration of Aden, I find that the first ground deals with geographical remoteness. Sir, arguing on those lines, I submit that Ceylon is very close geographically to India, and, as such, would the Home Government be prepared to make a sporting offer to India of that small island ? Can India expect that Ceylon would be given to us in exchange for Aden ? It is geographically closer to India than Aden, and so, I ask, would they ever make that sporting offer ? Then, again, where at all is the Colonial Office ? Not at Suez surely, nor at Malta, but as many as 5,000 miles away in Downing Street. Sir, in these days of conquest of speed over distance, geographical remoteness for purposes of administration has no meaning at all. The next point made is that Aden will not naturally fit into the Federation. I wonder what those words " naturally fit " precisely mean. I ask, do those tiny little Indian States in the north naturally fit into the federating structure ? Is the dovetailing of the Federation so very perfect ? The last ground taken is that Aden is already to some extent under Imperial control. To this, I retort, " Was that of our making ? " Was not the transfer of the military control thrust upon us suddenly by His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in 1927 when he made the announcement on the floor of this House that the control of Aden had been definitely transferred to the Colonial Office ? That was a bombshell that His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief dropped in this House. After 1927, deputations have been coming up to Simla and Delhi to wait on His Excellency the Viceroy, the last one, I believe, waited on His Excellency Lord Willingdon in 1931, a few months after His Excellency assumed the reins of office. There had been references and resolutions in both Chambers suspecting that the announcement of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief was but a first step towards the transfer of the entire control of Aden to the Colonial Office.

The communiqué is very cautiously worded. Mr. President, if you will only turn to the last sentence of the first paragraph, which I shall read out :

" If it should be decided that the administration of Aden should be separated from that of India, His Majesty's Government contemplate that the following conditions would be established "— they would not commit themselves to saying that—" these conditions will prevail ",— or that—

" His Majesty's Government vouchsafe to Aden the following conditions."

They simply contemplate that the following conditions would be established. And what are those contemplated conditions ? The first of them is the relief afforded to the Government of India in the matter of the annual contribution of £150,000 sterling or about 20 lakhs a year. I need not further develop that point, because, I have already pointed out how in the coming years there is a very real prospect of Aden yielding to India an income which would cover the expenditure which India might have to incur for carrying on the military as well as her civil and municipal administration. The present has been found to be the most opportune moment for the Home Government to take over the control of the civil and municipal administration, because they are afraid that, if Aden is allowed to continue any longer under the Government of India, the effect will be that the income from Aden will go on increasing and it might be that, in the course of a few years, the Indian Government may be able to pay the cost of the military expenditure also from the revenues derived from Aden. One thing which makes me feel what I have just said is that in the matter of income-tax, the law that is prevalent in Aden is not the law which is prevalent in India. I am quoting it from a book, Sir, it is not of my own imagination.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I may inform the Honourable Member that the income-tax law in Aden is the Indian income-tax law.

Mr. Muhammad Muazzam Sahib Bahadur : May I know from the Honourable the Finance Member whether the average for six years is not calculated in assessing income-tax in Aden ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I do not know what my Honourable friend has in mind, but the Indian income-tax law applies to Aden.

Mr. Muhammad Muazzam Sahib Bahadur : I think I have got the pamphlet. However, for the present, I shall not dilate on that point. Another thing which has struck me as rather remarkable is that the Home Government have consciously or unconsciously waited for nearly a century after the conquest of Aden, without having cared to take up the entire administration from the very beginning. It is only now, after as many as 93 or 94 years since it came into the possession of Great Britain, that any attempt is being made to take over the civil and municipal administration, and why they have delayed taking action earlier is not at all explained. On the floor of this House, the Commander-in-Chief stated in 1927—I am probably quoting his very words—that in consideration of Indian welfare and Indian interests the control of the civil and municipal administration of Aden would continue to be exercised by the Government of Bombay. That statement was made on the floor of this House by His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, and I think the Home Government felt it rather awkward that, in the face of such a definite statement by a responsible Member of the Government, in the face of definite public opinion which had gathered round this question both in Aden and in Bombay, and of the attitude of the Bombay Government itself on this question which had expressed itself rather strongly,—because of these three things, Mr. President, the Home Government thought that they should delay the matter until people had to some extent forgotten what had happened and until the Home Government could find a much stronger weapon than the ones at their disposal at that moment. That weapon they had discovered now—I mean the weapon of Federation. That is the main ground that is now advanced for a transfer. The second condition is the maintenance of the right of appeal to the Bombay High Court. But I need not discuss this matter at length, because as Sir Cowasji Jehangir has already said, it simply maintains the status quo and does nothing more. The third condition is : " His Majesty's Government would maintain the existing policy of making Aden a free port ". But, Mr. President, there is a grim

[Mr. Muhammad Muazzam Sahib Bahadur.]

" unless " tacked on. It reads : " unless some radical change in the present economic situation should take place ". Mr. President, even without the " unless " and the rest of it, what is it that they are doing ? They are doing nothing in advance of the prevailing conditions. With the " unless " and what follows it, it is indeed worth nothing. In the fourth condition also, they use the word " unless ". It says, " unless such a course became in their opinion absolutely necessary ". We all know what is the significance of this word " unless " in Parliamentary papers and documents. It is so easy to create the desired causes and then say that the step sought to be taken is absolutely necessary and they have got to do it. The fifth one deals with retaining in the Aden Service a proportion of Indian Service Administrative personnel for some years, which, when paraphrased, only means that at the end of a few years, you would not have one Indian in the Aden Administrative Services. The last one, Mr. President, is much more definite than all the other conditions, and it says :

" No racial legislation or segregation would be permitted by His Majesty's Government."

Sir Cowasji Jehangir has already dealt with this point and I need not dilate on it over again. I shall merely say this, that from our experience of Kenya, the Fiji Islands and other Colonies, the treatment accorded to Asiatics in those countries is something which every Indian resents. That, Sir, is a matter of common knowledge. There is no doubt that the Indians in the colonies are segregated and if tomorrow severance of control does take place in regard to Aden, what is there to prevent the European element there from insisting on a uniform law with regard to the Whites in all the Colonies. The European population which is sure to grow in Aden, if transfer is effected, will doubtless claim that the law which prevails in the other colonies should be made applicable to Aden and I doubt whether the Home Government would be able to resist the claim of the European element.

5 P.M.

Lastly, I would refer to the strategic position which Aden occupies on the principal trade route to the East. Who are all the people who are getting the benefit of that most important station ?—Australia, Ceylon, East and South Africa, the Federated Malay States and some other Colonies. I ask my Honourable friend, Sir Joseph Bhore, why then the expenditure incurred on Aden should not be treated as an Imperial charge. Should not the other Colonies such as Australia, who share the benefit of this trade route, be called upon to bear a share of India's annual contribution equally with India, and let me assure you, Mr. President, that that is exactly what is going to happen once the transfer of control is effected.

I do not think I need take up the time of the House any more except, with your permission, to digress a bit and to point out, that, for the past few months, the trend of legislation and communiqués that are brought forward before this House has taken a most reprehensible turn. Only the other day we were discussing a Bill to prevent the activities of the British Indian press and the Indian public in regard to the Rulers of Indian States. The principal reason stated in its Statement of Objects and Reasons, as necessitating such a measure, was that the Federation was being set up in the near future and a Bill of that kind was absolutely necessary and we are now told that for the same reason a step, like the one that is now contemplated in the Government communiqué, has become desirable.

Both these have a common presiding deity, namely, the Goddess of Federation. Mr. President, I feel I cannot do better than invoke the aid of that dubious Goddess and say to her " Federation, what sins are committed in thy name ! "

Several Honourable Members : I move that the question be now put.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is that the question be now put.

The motion was adopted.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : I like to make the point clear about the voting on this closure motion. Let those who had a chance to speak vote against us. There are others who feel very strongly that they should get a chance to speak on this important motion.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Chair would remind Honourable Members once again about the rule relating to closure. The Standing Order says that, where a closure has been applied, the Chair shall accept it, unless it is satisfied that there has not been a fair debate. Therefore, unless the Chair is satisfied that there has not been a fair debate, it is a mandatory injunction on the Chair that the closure shall be accepted. Twenty Non-Official Honourable Members have already spoken for a day and a half. The Chair finds that the number of Non-Official Members present is, on the average, about 30 or 32 and, under these circumstances, the Chair is not prepared to say that there has not been a fair debate. The Chair would like those Honourable Members who want a division on the closure to stand up in their seats. (After counting.) There is no general consensus of opinion in favour of continuing the debate and the Chair proposes that the division be not taken.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : Is it your ruling that I cannot claim a division ?

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Not on closure. So far as the closing of a debate is concerned, the Chair, even without the application of a closure motion, can always put the question, when the Chair is satisfied that there has been a full and fair debate. Therefore, applying that principle, the Chair does not think that it is bound to put the closure to a division, when only one or two Honourable Members wanted a division.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : It is more than half a dozen Members that are claiming a division.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Even half a dozen Members wishing a division on a closure motion is not indicative of a general desire on the part of the House to have the division taken up.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : There is a large number of Members on this side who are likely to speak ; so, if there is a division, it should be confined to Members on this side only, because Official Members are not going to speak on this motion.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Chair is paying consideration only to the non-official side. Does Mr Bhuput Sing want his amendment to be put to the vote ?

Mr. Bhuput Sing (Bihar and Orissa : Landholders) : No, Sir. As the purpose of my amendment will be equally served by Dr. Ziauddin's amendment and, in order to concentrate attention on one motion, I ask the leave of the House to withdraw my motion.

The amendment was, by leave of the Assembly, withdrawn.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The original question was :

"That the Government of India communiqué, dated the 20th June, 1933, regarding the future administration of Aden, be taken into consideration."

Since which the following amendment has been moved :

"That for the original motion the following be substituted :

'While recording their emphatic protest against the complete transfer to the Colonial Office of Aden Settlement which has for about a century been an integral part of British Indian administration, the Assembly requests the Governor General in Council to convey to His Majesty's Government the strong desire of the people of India that the proposed transfer should not take place'."

The question is that that amendment be made.

The motion was adopted.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Honourable the President of the Council of State has been requested to convene a meeting of the Joint Select Committee on the Reserve Bank and Imperial Bank Bills tomorrow afternoon at 2-30 P.M. Honourable Members will get due notice of this meeting.

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Wednesday, the 20th September, 1933.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Wednesday, 20th September, 1933.

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber at Eleven of the Clock, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

MUSLIM GAZETTED OFFICERS IN THE UNITED PROVINCES POSTAL CIRCLE.

1020. Mr. S. C. Mitra (on behalf of Mr. Muhammad Anwar-ul-Azim) : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the number of permanent Muslim Superintendents of Post Offices and Railway Mail Service in the United Provinces Postal Circle ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state the number of Muslim Deputy Postmasters General and Assistant Postmasters General in the United Provinces Postal Circle ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state the number of Muslim gazetted officers in the United Provinces Postal Circle ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to state the communal composition of the permanent holders of the following appointments in the United Provinces Circle :

(i) Deputy Post Master General ;

(ii) Assistant Post Master General ;

(iii) Superintendent, Post Offices ; and (iv) Superintendent, Railway Mail Service ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) One, who is, however, employed at present in the Director General's Office as Assistant Deputy Director General.

(b) None.

(c) It is presumed that the Honourable Member refers to the Postal Branch of the United Provinces Posts and Telegraphs Circle ; if so, the number of Muslim officers is two.

(d) The permanent holders of the posts of Deputy Postmaster-General, and of Superintendents, Railway Mail Service, are all Hindus. Of the three permanent Assistant Postmasters-General, two are Hindus and one is an Anglo-Indian. Of the thirteen permanent Superintendents of Post Offices, eight are Hindus, four are Anglo-Indians, and one is a Muslim.

COMMUNAL COMPOSITION OF THE HOLDERS OF SELECTION GRADE POSTS UNDER THE POSTMASTER, ALLAHABAD.

1021. Mr. S. C. Mitra (on behalf of Mr. Muhammad Anwar-ul-Azim) : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the number of selection grade posts under the Postmaster of Allahabad, and the communal composition of the holders thereof ?

(b) Is it a fact that for the last two decades not a single Muslim was appointed as Head Clerk or Assistant Head Clerk or Accountant or Assistant Accountant in the Allahabad General Post Office ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The information is not readily available. I may, however, state that appointments to selection grade posts are by promotion and promotions are not made on a communal basis.

(b) Government have no information but postings of officials are not made on communal considerations.

PROMOTION OF TWO NON-HINDUS AS TOWN INSPECTORS IN THE GENERAL POST OFFICE, ALLAHABAD.

1022. Mr. S. C. Mitra (on behalf of Mr. Muhammad Anwar-ul-Azim) : (a) Is it a fact that in the General Post Office, Allahabad, two junior non-Muslims have been promoted to Town Inspectorship ?

(b) Have these newly appointed men had any previous experience of Town Inspector's work, and have they worked on that post before ?

(c) Were senior fit Muslim clerks available for Town Inspectorship ? If so, why were they not appointed ?

(d) Is it a fact that there are Muslim clerks and Sub-Postmasters under the General Post Office, Allahabad, who have experience of Town Inspector's work and are senior to the non-Muslims who have been recently appointed ?

(e) If the reply to the above questions be in the affirmative, what action is proposed to be taken to safeguard the interests of Muslims ?

(f) Will Government be pleased to state the length of service and tenure of the office of the two recently appointed Town Inspectors in the Town Inspector's line and of those referred to in part (d) above ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) to (f). Government have no information. The matter is within the competence of the Head of the Circle concerned to whom a copy of the question is being sent.

NON-APPOINTMENT OF MUSLIMS AS EXTRA-DEPARTMENTAL POSTMASTERS AT ALLAHABAD.

1023. Mr. S. C. Mitra (on behalf of Mr. Muhammad Anwar-ul-Azim) : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the number of extra departmental Postmasters appointed recently under the Postmaster, Allahabad ?

(b) Is it a fact that none of these posts has been given to a Muslim ?

(c) Is it a fact that representations of Muslims for the posts were not entertained, and their names were not even registered ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) to (c). Government have no information. The matter is one within the competence of the Head of the Circle to whom a copy of the question is being sent. I may explain, however, that Government orders as to recruitment do not apply to the posts of extra-departmental agents since these are not included in the cadres of whole time Government posts.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : May I ask, Sir, whether they will get any information from the Department concerned ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : If the Honourable Member is anxious to have it, I will do so.

COMMUNAL REPRESENTATION OF THE INFERIOR SERVANTS IN THE ALLAHABAD GENERAL POST OFFICE.

1024. Mr. S. C. Mitra (on behalf of Mr. Muhammad Anwar-ul-Azim) : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the communal representation of the inferior and lower-grade staff in each scale in the Allahabad General Post Office and its Sub-Offices ?

(b) How many vacancies in each cadre occurred during the years 1928 to 1932 in the Allahabad General Post Office and its Sub-Offices and how many of these were given to Muslims in a permanent, officiating and temporary capacity ?

(c) Were Government orders about the third vacancy rule followed in the General Post Office, Allahabad, and if not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Government regret that information as to communal representation in each scale of the inferior service in the Allahabad General Post Office and its Sub-Offices is not available. There were, however, altogether 74 inferior servants in these offices on the 31st December, 1932, of whom 65 were Hindus and 9 Muslims.

(b) and (c). Government regret that the information is not readily available. If, however, the Honourable Member will bring to my notice any specific and authenticated instances of the non-observance of the recruitment orders in recent years I will gladly enquire into the matter.

ADH-KUMBH MELA, HARDWAR.

1025. Mr. Muhammad Azhar Ali : (a) Will Government please lay on the table a statement showing :

(i) the total expenditure incurred by the East Indian Railway Administration on the Kumbh Mela, 1927, and Adh-Kumbh Mela, 1933 at Hardwar ;

(ii) the total inward traffic (excluding Rishikesh Branch) at both these Melas and the Solar Eclipse Fair, 1933, together with the corresponding figures of the said period in 1932 ;

(iii) the strength of the staff at these three Melas and the period of duration of the posting of extra staff for the purpose, with the total expenditure incurred on each Mela ?

(b) Are Government satisfied that the expenditure incurred during Adh-Kumbh Mela, 1933, was justified ? If not, what action do Government propose to take against such squandering of the public money ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : With your permission, Sir, I shall reply to questions No. 1025 to 1027 together. I shall collect whatever information is readily available with regard to questions Nos. 1025 and 1027 and lay a reply on the table in due course. As regards question No. 1026, the number of Melas, regarding which information is required cannot be small, and Government do not consider that the expense involved in collecting these reports and printing them in the debates of the House is justified.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : May I know, Sir, what is the reply of the Government with regard to part (b) of question No. 1027 ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am collecting the information.

MELAS HELD AT PLACES IN THE MORADABAD DIVISION, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

†1026. Mr. Muhammad Azhar Ali : Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a copy of the working reports of the Melas held at places situated within the jurisdiction of the Divisional Superintendent, Moradabad Division, East Indian Railway, during the period from the 1st January, 1933, to the period ending the 31st August, 1933 ?

ADH-KUMBH MELA, HARDWAR.

†1027. Mr. Muhammad Azhar Ali: (a) Are Government aware whether it is a fact that the Adh-Kumbh Mela, 1933, was held at Hardwar, East Indian Railway on the 13th April, 1933 ? If so, (i) who was directly in charge of the Railway administration at Hardwar ; (ii) what classes and number of staff were employed there ; (iii) what was the net loss to Administration, and (iv) what was the number and nature of complaints, if any, received from the public with the result of their disposal ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a comparative statement of the earnings and expenditure under each head of the Melas of Adh-Kumbh, 1927, 1933 and Kumbh 1927 showing separately, (i) pay and allowances of the staff under each group, i.e., Traffic, Commercial, Power, Engineering, etc., (ii) hire of tents, chouldaries, etc., (iii) construction of temporary quarters for staff, (iv) haulage of officers' carriages, (v) haulage and hire of four wheel first class carriage for Mr. Amar Nath Logwany and family for the days it remained at Hardwar, (vi) consumable stores, (vii) kerosene oils, (viii) purchase of high power kitson are lamps, (ix) electric installation and current consumption, (x) temporary construction of cabins, platforms, etc. ?

(c) Is it a fact that the passenger traffic was only 65,000 (sixty-five thousands) in excess of ordinary traffic for the corresponding period during the year 1932 ? If it is not so, (i) what was the inward and outward traffic respectively at Hardwar excluding side traffic to and from Rikhikesh, (ii) what was the inward and outward traffic at Rikhikesh, (iii) what was the number of Special trains which arrived at Hardwar, and (iv) what was the number of Special trains which left Hardwar, with the number of passengers in each train, together with the number of engines attached to each ?

(d) Is it a fact that 17 engines remained on steam for more than 48 hours and that due to lack of traffic no Special could be arranged ? If it is not so, will Government please lay on the table a copy of the time table of the Specials which were to be run during Adh-Kumbh Mela, 1933, issued and circulated under the signature of Mr. A. H. Hollis, in which no less than 26 Specials were to run during 24 hours each day ?

(e) Is it a fact that the time table of Special trains was never adhered to and that the public was put to much inconvenience and harassment ? If so, who is responsible for an unworkable time table and what action has been taken against the officer for such gross inefficiency ?

(f) Is it a fact that the Sawan and Solar Eclipse Mela 1933 was much more successful than the Adh-Kumbh Mela, 1933 ? If not, what was the expenditure incurred and the earnings, derived from these two Melas respectively, and what was the strength of the staff employed during these two Melas respectively ?

RECRUITMENT OF BENGAL MUSLIMS IN SERVICES UNDER THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

1028. Mr. S. C. Mitra (on behalf of Mr. Muhammad Anwar-ul-Azim) : (a) With reference to the replies to starred questions Nos. 636 and 637 by Mr. S. C. Mitra, will Government please state whether they did not accept the resolution of Sir Devaprasad Sarbadhikari on the 10th March, 1923, with regard to the recruitment of the subordinate staff in the Government of India offices and that no province or a class of people should have preponderance in any branch or office thereunder ?

(b) Is it a fact that there is a preponderance of any province or class in the Government of India offices ? If so, what measures have they adopted to remove the same ?

(c) Is it a fact that the Bengal Musalmans form 35 per cent. of the Muslim population in India ? If so, what steps have Government taken so far for the representation of the Bengal Mussalmans in the services subordinate, judicial and administrative under the control of the Government of India ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) and (c). In the Resolution adopted by the Legislative Assembly on the 10th March, 1923, it was recommended that Government should take steps to prevent the preponderance of any one community or province in the services under their control. After careful examination, the Government of India decided that it was not practicable to take special measures to redress inequalities of provincial representation in Central Services which are recruited on an All-India basis. As regards the first clause of part (c), I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply given by me to Mr. S. C. Mitra's starred question No. 636 on the 5th instant.

(b) As regards the preponderance of any class in the Government of India Offices, I would refer the Honourable Member to the annual statements showing the communal composition of the staff which are placed in the Library of the House.

ABOLITION OF THE EMPIRE MARKETING BOARD.

1029. *Sir Leslie Hudson : (a) Are Government aware of the decision of His Majesty's Government to abolish the Empire Marketing Board ? Is it not a fact that the Board's activities have been of increasing benefit to India in recent years ?

(b) Have Government made any representations to His Majesty's Government in connection with this decision, and if so, what are those representations ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) Yes.

(b) No, Sir ; I may, however, state for the information of the Honourable Member that although the Empire Marketing Board will cease to exist after the 30th September, 1933, some of the important functions performed by it, viz., (1) the preparation of periodical market intelligence notes, and (2) the carrying out of world surveys of production and trade, will after that date be carried on by the existing Imperial Economic Committee. The question of agricultural research activities which might in future be conducted on a co-operative basis will be considered by the Executive Council of the Imperial Agricultural Bureaux. In this connection, I would invite the Honourable Member's attention to paragraph 358 of the Report of the Imperial Committee on Economic Consultation and Co-operation, 1933, a copy of which is in the Library.

Mr. F. E. James : Am I to understand that all the propaganda activities associated with the Empire Marketing Board are to be discontinued ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : So far as I am aware, that is the position except to the extent that the Imperial Economic Committee may take over the work.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : May I ask, Sir, whether there was any Indian in this Marketing Board and whether there would be any Indians on the Committee which this Marketing Board would replace ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The Empire Marketing Board works through various Committees and the High Commissioner for India in London or his Trade Commissioner were associated with its important Committees or in the Board itself.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Will the Government of India inform the House of the reasons for abolishing this Marketing Board when it is admitted that it has been doing important work ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The position is explained in the report of the Committee to which I have referred. The main reason is that the Empire Marketing Board had been financed exclusively by His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom and they feel that they are not in a position to continue the burden of financing it alone.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Did they approach the Government of India to share the cost ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The matter was considered, as a result of recommendations made at Ottawa, by a Committee which was representative of the various Empire Governments and the conclusion reached was the one which is set out in the report.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Did they approach the Government of India to pay the proportionate cost of the Marketing Board ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The position is that the report of this Committee is under consideration by the various Governments at the present moment, but the representatives of the various Empire Governments in London appear to have made it clear that they were not prepared to finance the Empire Marketing Board on the basis on which His Majesty's Government have been doing it.

Mr. F. E. James : Did I understand the Honourable Member to say in answer to part (b) of the question that the Government of India have made no representations in the matter to His Majesty's Government ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : That is perfectly true. The Government of India did not represent that the Empire Marketing Board should continue.

Mr. F. E. James : Were the Government of India consulted either through the High Commissioner or through their representatives on the Economic Committee ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The Government of India were represented by Sir Atul Chatterjee and Sir Padamji Ginwala on the committee of the representatives of the various Empire Governments which considered the whole question of the activities of these various imperial bodies such as the Empire Marketing Board, the Economic Committee, the Imperial Agricultural Bureau, etc.

Mr. F. E. James : Did they report to the Government of India and is there any available information as to the views which the representatives of the Government of India put forward in connection with the abolition of the Empire Marketing Board which is of very great importance to India ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The report of the Imperial Committee on economic consultation and co-operation is unanimous and represents the views of all the Empire Governments including the views of the representatives of the Government of India.

Mr. F. E. James : May I take it that the Government of India have acquiesced in the proposal to abolish the propaganda activities of the Empire Marketing Board ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I have said that it does not imply the complete cessation of the publicity activities of the Empire Marketing Board. Some work which was being done by the Empire Marketing Board will continue to be done by the Imperial Economic Committee.

DELAY IN THE ISSUE OF THE REPORTS OF LOCAL RAILWAY ADVISORY COMMITTEES.

1030. *Mr. J. Ramsay Scott : (a) Are Government aware that the reports of Local Railway Advisory Committees for the quarters ending the 30th September, 1932 (No. 13), and the 31st December, 1932 (No. 14), have only been issued this Session ?

(b) Will Government please state the reason for the delay in issuing these publications ?

(c) Will Government please state when the quarterly reports for March 31, 1933 (No. 14) and for June 30, 1933 (No. 15) will be issued ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Yes.

(b) Government regret the delay in the issue of these publications and have taken steps to expedite them in future.

(c) The report for the period ending March, 1933, is in print and that for the next quarter is under compilation.

RUNNING OF A THROUGH BOGIE BETWEEN LUCKNOW AND BOMBAY.

1031. Mr. J. Ramsay Scott : (a) Have Government received a copy of a letter dated the 24th August, 1933, from the Upper India Chamber of Commerce, Cawnpore, addressed to the Agent, Great Indian Peninsula Railway, Bombay (Receipt acknowledged in the Deputy Director, Railway Board's No. 4013-T. of September, 1933) ?

(b) Have Government seen the reply from the Secretary to the Agent, Great Indian Peninsula Railway, Bombay, No. 14041, dated the 29th August, 1933, to the Secretary, Upper India Chamber of Commerce, Cawnpore ?

(c) Are Government aware that no reply is given to the specific enquiry for information regarding a first, second and third class composite bogie which was promised to be put on Bombay-Lucknow mail ?

(d) Is the Agent, Great Indian Peninsula Railway, due to arrive in Simla in the first week of October ?

(e) Do the Railway Board propose to see the Agent, Great Indian Peninsula Railway, when he is in Simla, regarding the reply ?

(f) Are the Railway Board aware of the great inconvenience caused to the public of Lucknow and Cawnpore by having to change at Jhansi when travelling by the Mail between Lucknow and Bombay and vice versa ? If so, do they propose to inform the Agent, Great Indian Peninsula Railway, about the same ?

(g) Are Government aware that in view of the number of passengers travelling and the large amount of merchandise given to the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, the public of the United Provinces consider that the Great Indian Peninsula Railway should improve the service between Lucknow and Bombay ? Are the Railway Board prepared to take this matter up with the Agent, Great Indian Peninsula Railway ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) and (b). I am obliged to my Honourable friend for copies of these communications.

(c) The Agent's reply shows that he is prepared to meet a deputation in Bombay and his intention is no doubt to discuss the matter fully on that occasion.

(d) Yes.

(e), (f) and (g). The Railway Board have already been in communication with the Agent on this subject, and I shall be glad to bring these questions again to his notice.

REVISION OF THE TIMINGS OF THE GRAND TRUNK EXPRESS BETWEEN MADRAS AND DELHI.

1032. Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that it is proposed to revise the timings of the Grand Trunk Express between Madras and Delhi and vice versa ?

(b) Is it proposed to take a longer time during the journey between Bezwada and Madras ?

(c) Is it proposed to start the Express from Delhi much earlier than at present ?

(d) Will Govenment please state if the saving in time proposed to be obtained is mostly spent in stopping at a larger number of stations en route ?

(e) Do Government propose to consider the question of speeding up the trains so that they may leave Madras or Delhi at least two hours later than they do at present and arrive at Delhi or Madras an hour or two earlier, not stopping at unimportant places en route ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Yes ; from October 1st, the journey each way will take about 2¼ hours less than at present.

(b) The time will be the same as at present.

(c) 1½ hours earlier.

(d) From the reply to part (a) of this question, my Honourable friend will notice that this is not so.

(e) The proposed timings are as follows :—

North bound.		South bound.
Madras departure	9.20	Delhi departure	16.30
Delhi arrival	10.00	Madras arrival	15.20

MUNICIPAL ADMINISTRATION OF AJMER CITY.

1033. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the proceedings of a public meeting held in the Ajmer Town Hall on the 2nd September ; and published in the Hindustan Times, dated the 5th September, 1933, severely condemning the municipal administration of Ajmer City ?

(b) Do Government propose to appoint an enquiry committee, as suggested, or take any other step in the matter ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : (a) Yes.

(b) An enquiry on the subject has been made from the Local Administration, and a reply will be laid on the table in due course.

DISCHARGE OF RAILWAY EMPLOYEES IN CERTAIN DEPARTMENTS IN THE DINAPORE DIVISION.

1034. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : (a) Is it a fact that quite a large number of non-gazetted Railway servants have been discharged during recent years in Traffic, Engineering, and Locomotive Departments in Dinapore Division ?

(b) If so, what is the approximate number in each Department during 1932 and 1933 ?

(c) How many of the discharged servants have been re-instated ?

(d) How many of them have been discharged on suspicion and how many under specific charges against them ?

(e) In how many of such cases as mentioned in part (d) were joint enquiries made and appeals allowed under the rules framed by the Railway Board ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) to (e). I shall obtain whatever information is readily available and shall place a reply on the table.

INADEQUATE REPRESENTATION OF MUSLIMS ON THE CANTONMENT BOARD, POONA.

1035. Maulvi Sayyid Murtuza Saheb Bahadur : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) the population figures of the following communities in the local area of the Poona Cantonment Authority :

(i) Hindus,

(ii) Muslims,

(iii) Christians, and

(iv) Parsis ;

(b) the number of seats allotted to the four communities on the Cantonment Board, Poona ;

(c) whether it is a fact that the Hindus whose voting strength is 500 are given three seats, while the Muslims with a voting strength of 400 are given only one seat on the above Board ;

(d) if so, the reasons for the poor representation of Muslims on the Board ;

(e) whether it is a fact that some representations have been made to the Officer Commanding, Poona Brigade Area, for at least nominating a Muslim on the Board with a view to give adequate representation to this important community ; and (f) if so, the action taken or proposed to be taken by Government in the matter of rectifying the anomaly of the inadequate Muslim representation on the Board ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) to (d) and (f). Government have no information and do not propose to call for a report. Under section 31 (a) and (b) of the Cantonment Act, the question of the division of the inhabitants of the Cantonment into classes and the determination of the number of members to be elected by each class of persons, is the concern of the Local Government to whom a copy of the question is being sent.

(e) The proviso to section 14 (1) (e) Cantonment Act does not allow the nomination of a person to represent any community which is already represented.

ARTICLE IN THE Indian Railway Gazette AGAINST THE STANDING FINANCE COMMITTEE FOR RAILWAYS.

1036. Mr. K. P. Thampan : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether their attention has been drawn to an article in the July issue of the Indian Railway Gazette on the Standing Finance Committee for Railways ?

(b) Are Government aware that the members of the Standing Finance Committee are stated by the writer to be " ignorant of Railway needs ", " that they are very stupid people " and require " more intelligence " and that they should append to reports their " assinine observations " ?

(c) What action do they propose to take against the editor of the Gazette ?

(d) Are Government paying any subsidy to the Indian Railway Gazette either by cash payment or by way of subscription and advertisement charges ? If so, what is the amount paid during the last three years ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Yes.

(b) Government are aware of these criticisms which they consider to be unjustified. As Chairman of the Standing Finance Committee I can testify to the valuable help I am constantly receiving from the members of the Committee and to the great care and attention which they bestow on the examination of all questions placed before them.

(c) Government consider that the article is deplorable in tone and would like to add that in their view it should always be possible to indulge in criticism without at the same time offending against the canons of ordinary courtesy and good taste. They consider, however, that in all the circumstances it is best to take no notice of the article in question. I may add that the members of the Standing Finance Committee at their last meeting were unanimously of the same opinion.

(d) Government do not pay any subsidy of any sort to the Indian Railway Gazette, but subscribe for one copy of it, the subscription being Rs. 10 per annum. I have noticed certain railway tender notices in the advertisement columns of the paper.

PROPOSED TRANSFER OF ONE SUDHANSU RANJAN SEN, A POLITICAL PRISONER, TO THE ANDAMANS.

1037. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that one Sudhansu Ranjan Sen, a political prisoner, is being sent to the Andamans ?

(b) Is it a fact that the said prisoner is at present suffering from pharyngitis and tuberculosis ?

(c) Is it a fact that he is suffering from serious eye troubles also ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to state whether the said political prisoner was sent up for medical examination before it was decided to send him to the Andamans ? If not, why not ?

(e) Is it a fact that the jail authorities asked the father of the prisoner to supply spectacles for the said prisoner ?

(f) Is it a fact that the said prisoner has lost 25 pounds weight due to suffering from tuberculosis while in the Rajshahi jail ?

(g) Do Government propose to cancel the order of his transfer to Andamans ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a), (d) and (g). Sudhansu Kumar Sen Gupta was selected for despatch to the Andamans but was held back on the recommendation of the Medical Board because he was temporarily unfit.

(b), (c), (e) and (f). No.

CONVERSION OF THE NOAKHALI POST OFFICE INTO A SUB-POST OFFICE.

1038. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that the Head Post Office at Noakhali has been converted into a Sub-Post Office ?

(b) Is it a fact that the District Bar Association, Noakhali, made several representations to the postal authorities including the Postmaster General, Bengal, against such conversion ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state the reasons why this Head Post Office has been converted to a Sub-office ?

(d) Are Government aware of the difficulties and hardships to which the public of Noakhali has been subjected by such conversion ?

(e) Do Government propose to remove the grievances of the Noakhali public by restoring the Head Post Office to that town ? If not, why not ?

(f) Are Government aware that a large number of District Board and landlord fee money orders, landlord fee notices and civil court notices are received at the post office for postal money orders and registration ? If not, do they propose to enquire as to the number of such tansactions in a year ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Yes.

(b) to (f). Government have no information. The matter is within the competence of the Head of the Circle concerned to whom a copy of the question is being sent.

ALLEGATIONS AGAINST THE CALCUTTA PORT TRUST.

1039. Mr. S. C. Mitra : Are Government aware that there is a strong feeling amongst the public that Port Trust, Calcutta, ignores the Government of India control ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : Government are not aware of any such feeling. The Commissioners for the Port of Calcutta exercise the powers conferred upon them by the Calcutta Port Act, 1890, in accordance with the provisions of that enactment.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : Are not the Government of India aware that even as regards policy of Indianisation the Port Trust is not following the general policy of the Government of India ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : That is rather a difficult matter to pronounce an opinion upon. I would not like to pronounce an opinion.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : Are not the Government of India aware of the strong feeling among Indians on this point in regard to Indianisation ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I think that matter has been more than once brought to notice.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I take it that the Honourable Member is considering this matter.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : My Honourable friend has to realise that the Port Trust is given certain powers within which they are at liberty to act, and the power of the Government of India to interfere is limited.

ECONOMY AND RETRENCHMENT IN THE CALCUTTA PORT TRUST.

1040. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the article headed " Economy and Retrenchment in the Calcutta Port Trust " published in the Advance, of July 5th, 1933 ? If so, what action do Government propose to take against the Calcutta Port Trust to remove the grievances noted therein ?

(b) Do Government propose to redress the grievances of the staff mentioned in the said article ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : (a) I presume the Honourable Member refers to the letter published under that caption on the date mentioned. That letter deals with two matters, namely, the stores purchase policy of the Port Commissioners, Calcutta, and the labour contract given by them to Messrs. Bird and Company, Calcutta. As regards the former, Government do not propose to take any action as the Port Commissioners have full power to make their own purchases without interference by Government. As to the latter, the attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the reply given to Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh's starred question No. 375 in the Legislative Assembly on the 1st September, 1933.

(b) I have not been able to discover any reference to the grievances of the staff in the letter in question.

ALLEGATIONS AGAINST THE CALCUTTA PORT TRUST.

1041. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the article headed " Port Commissioners and Stores purchase, Government explanation of non-protective policy " published in the Advance, dated the 26th May, 1933 ?

(b) Do Government propose to enquire into the allegations and remove the grievances mentioned therein ?

(c) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the article headed " Retrenchment in the Calcutta Port Trust " published in the Advance, dated the 14th July, 1933 ? If so, will Government be pleased to state whether they propose to investigate the allegations made therein and remove the grievances mentioned ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : (a) Yes, Sir.

(b) The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the answer given by me just now to part (a) of his starred question No. 1040.

(c) Yes, Sir, the attention of Government has been drawn to the article or rather the letter referred to, but the power to appoint, dismis or dispense with the services of the clerical and menial staff in question vests entirely in the Port Commissioners and the Government do not propose to interfere.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION EXAMINATION FOR RECRUITMENT OF CLERKS FOR THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

1042. Mr. S. C. Mitra: (a) Is it a fact that the Public Service Commission propose to hold a competitive examination for the recruitment of Government of India clerks? If so, is it a fact that nine posts are reserved for ladies? If so, what is the number of total vacancies expected to be filled on the results of this examination, out of which nine vacancies have been reserved for ladies?

(b) Is it a fact that Government have laid down that candidates who have failed at two previous examinations will not be allowed to sit at the forthcoming examination, even if such candidates are otherwise eligible? If so, do Government propose to remove this bar? If not, why not?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig: (a) The answer to the first two parts is in the affirmative. As stated in the notice issued in the Supplement to the Gazette of India, dated the 12th August, 1933, the number of vacancies to be filled on the results of the examination is not yet known definitely, but it is expected that it will not be less than fifteen.

(b) The answer to the first part is in the affirmative. The restriction referred to by the Honourable Member was imposed after due consideration and Government do not propose to remove it.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad: Are the lady candidates to be included among the minorities who share one-third seats reserved for the minority communities?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig: I think, if my Honourable friend wishes to pursue this question, he had better address it to my Honourable friend, the Army Secretary, who is the expert on this matter.

Mr. S. C. Mitra: May I take it that lady candidates include not only Anglo-Indians, but also Indians?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham: Indian ladies are also equally eligible.

ECONOMY AND RETRENCHMENT IN THE CALCUTTA PORT TRUST.

1043. Mr. S. C. Mitra: (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to an article "Economy and retrenchment in Calcutta Port Trust—Fairness sacrificed at the altar of favouritism", published in the Advance, dated the 28th June, 1933?

(b) Are Government prepared to enquire into all the allegations made therein and state how far the statements made therein are correct and how far incorrect? If not, why not?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore: (a) Yes, Sir.

(b) Government have already enquired into the question of the appointment of an outsider as Assistant Yard Superintendent. It appears that the Commissioners for the Port of Calcutta found it necessary to revive this post and though they are usually opposed to filling appointments by outsiders they considered such action necessary in this particular case. As regards the other matters referred to in the article mentioned by the Honourable Member, I would invite his attention to the reply I have just given to part (c) of his starred question No. 1041 and the reply given by me on the 1st September, 1933, to Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh's starred question No. 375.

ILLNESS OF PROFESSOR J. C. GHOSH, A POLITICAL PRISONER.

1044. Mr. Bhuput Sing: Has the attention of Government been drawn to the article headed "Condition of professor J. C. Ghosh—Bengal Government's statement", published in the National Call, dated the 7th September, 1933? If so, will they be pleased to state whether Professor J. C. Ghosh, a political prisoner under Regulation III, is suffering from paralysis, and if so, when did he get it, and do Government propose to release the said political prisoner for better medical aid and treatment?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig: I have seen the newspaper report to which the Honourable Member draws attention. My inquiries from the Local Government show that the State Prisoner is not suffering from paralysis. The other parts of the question do not arise.

RECRUITMENT OF DEPUTY FINANCIAL ADVISERS.

1045. Mr. Bhuput Sing: (a) Is it a fact that five Deputy Financial Advisers have been recruited from the Military Accounts Department? If so, are Government aware that all these officers overlook the claims of the men of the Military Finance Secretariat in favour of the men from the Military Accounts Department?

(b) Do Government propose to appoint one of the Assistant Financial Advisers, who does not belong to the Military Accounts Department, as the Establishment Officer by transferring the present Establishment Officer to some other branch of the Military Finance Department?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster: (a) The reply to the first part is in the affirmative and to the second part in the negative.

(b) No.

AUDIT CONTROL OF FURNITURE, ETC., OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA DEPARTMENTS.

1046. Mr. Bhuput Sing: (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether there is any rule by which junior officers of the Government of India are entitled to take office furniture and carpets to their private residences either in Simla or Delhi?

(b) Is there any system of audit control of the furniture, carpets and durries of the different Departments of the Government of India? If so, what are the methods of control used by the Government of India?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state how many carpets and durries were purchased by the Military Finance Department since 1921 and how many have been sold and how many are being used in the office of the Military Finance and how many are unaccounted for?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster: (a) No.

(b) No, as regards the first part. As regards the second part, the Heads of Departments are expected to maintain inventories of furniture, etc., in possession of the Department.

(c) Sixteen carpets (the last purchased in 1926) and 29 durries. None have been sold. All except three carpets and five durries are actually in office use. All are accounted for.

TENDERS FOR FURNITURE SUPPLIED TO THE MILITARY FINANCE DEPARTMENT.

1047. Mr. Bhuput Sing : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether tenders are invited by the Military Finance Department when furniture is purchased for the office and whether Messrs. Gopinath and Company, the contractor for the Military Finance Department, became a contractor by the tender system or whether the firm was appointed by the Establishment Officer ?

(b) Is it a fact that the record boxes were supplied by Messrs. Gopinath and Company, to the Military Finance Department in the year 1932 ? If so, what was the number of such record boxes and the total cost of such boxes ?

(c) Is it a fact that in the first journey from Delhi to Simla most of the boxes were broken and had to be rejected ? If so, what steps did the Establishment Officer take against the firm for such loss to Government ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) Furniture is rarely purchased by the Military Finance Department. Such articles as may be required from time to time are usually made by the office carpenter. Within recent years certain small stationery cabinets and chairs were purchased from Messrs. Gopi Nath and Company, Delhi, as their rates were the cheapest obtainable in the market. This firm is not the contractor for the Military Finance Department, but it is believed to enjoy a considerable patronage among the offices of the Government of India. It is not the practice to call for tenders for petty and occasional supplies of furniture.

(b) The reply to the first part is in the affirmative. As regards the second part, 50 record boxes at a total cost of Rs. 550 were ordered. The rate, viz., Rs. 11 per box, which included painting and numbering was considerably lower than the quotations of various office carpenters which were in the region of Rs. 16 per box.

(c) Certain boxes were damaged owing to rough handling in transit ; and the Establishment Officer succeeded in having them repaired by the firm without any extra expense to the Government.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir : Will the Honourable Member kindy tell me what proportion of the cost of the articles referred to in the answer is the cost of the reply to this question ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I am afraid the Honourable Member must wait until the next Session for a full reply.

EXTENSION GIVEN TO THE ESTABLISHMENT OFFICER OF THE MILITARY FINANCE DEPARTMENT.

1048. Mr. Bhuput Sing : Is it a fact that the present Establishment Officer of the Military Finance Department is under extension ? If so, will Government be pleased to state why in these days of retrenchment he has been given an extension when Government is seriously thinking of retiring the men serving under the old rates of pay at the earliest possible date provided in the rules?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : The reply to the first part is in the negative. The question in the second part does not arise.

DEPUTATION OF MEN FROM THE MILITARY ACCOUNTS DEPARTMENT.

1049. Mr. Bhuput Sing : (a) Is it a fact that a large number of men of the Military Accounts Department are being employed in the Military Finance and that they are shown on deputation ? If so, will Government be pleased to state whether such men are paid deputation allowance over and above the pay and other allowances such men are entitled to in the Headquarters of the Military Accounts ?

(b) Is it a fact that the men on deputation from the Military Accounts Department to the Military Finance draw more salary than they would have been entitled to if such men would have been recruited permanently in the Military Finance ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state the different kinds of allowances and the different sums of each of such allowances that are paid to those men shown on deputation at present from the Military Accounts Department to the Military Finance Department over and above their actual pay ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) Five men of the Military Accounts Department are on deputation in the Military Finance Department, which has a total staff of over 100. They receive no deputation allowances.

(b) Yes.

(c) I lay a statement on the table showing the pay and allowances admissible to men on deputation in the Military Finance Department.

The section to which these men are on deputation was transferred en bloc from the Military Accounts Department in 1925. They draw the rates of pay to which they would be entitled under the rules if serving in the office of the Military Accountant General. The only exception is the Assistant-in-Charge who gets the usual special pay of Rs. 100 per mensem for the control of a section, in addition to his emoluments in the Military Accountant General's office.

Statement showing the pay and allowances admissible to men on deputation in the Military Finance Department.

APPLICATIONS FOR LEAVE BY THE GUARDS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

1050. Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury : (a) Is it a fact that the application for leave by the Guards over the East Indian Railway are always to be made through the Station Master of their Headquarters ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state the number of applications for leave by Guards which were received by the Station Master, Gaya, during the year 1932, and the number of cases in which leave was refused by the said Station Master ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state whether in such cases of refusal of leave to the Guards by the Station Master, the applicants cannot under the rules apply direct to the Divisional Superintendent for grant of leave and whether under the rules the Divisional Superintendent can grant leave to subordinate staff when they apply direct to him for such leave ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to state whether the application for leave direct to higher railway authorities contravenes any of the Railway Servants' Conduct Rules ? If so, will Government be pleased to quote the rule ?

(e) Is it a fact that for such a technical offence as applying for leave direct to the Divisional Superintendent, a Guard at Gaya station has been dismissed ? If so, will Government be pleased to state whether the applicant for such leave violated the Railway Servants' Conduct Rules, or whether the officer granting leave on such direct applications violated the Railway Servants' Conduct Rules ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a), (b), (c) and (e). Government have no information but have sent a copy of the question to the Agent, East Indian Railway, for any action that may be necessary.

(d) The Government Servants' Conduct Rules do not deal with questions of procedure about applications for leave ; but ordinarily a Government servant's application for leave is made to his immediate superior.

RETIREMENT OF SUPERANNUATED MEN FROM GOVERNMENT SERVICE.

1051. Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury : (a) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing the number of men with 30 years' service or more and of 55 years age or more (i) in the different Departments of the Government of India and Attached Offices, (ii) in each of the different Railway Offices, and (iii) in the Posts and Telegraphs Department ?

(b) Do Government propose to retire such men from all Government posts for relieving to a certain extent the hardships of the unemployed young men of India ? If not, will Government be pleased to state the reason why they do not propose to retire all such superannuated men from Government service ?

(c) Are Government aware that by adopting the suggested course in all Government services a great opening will be made for educated young men throughout the country, and that it may lead to removing to a great extent the general cry of unemployment ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to state whether they have under consideration a proposal to retire compulsorily all persons who have put in 25 years' service or more ? If so, have they come to any decision in the matter ? If so, what is the decision ?

(e) Will Government be pleased to state whether there will be any actual saving to the country by adopting the procedure of retiring men with 25 years' service or more on half pension and by recruiting men in their places on new and lower rates of pay ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) Government have not got the information readily available and do not consider its collection would be worth the time and labour involved.

(b) No. Officers of the first category cannot be compulsorily retired before they reach the age of superannuation unless reductions are being made in the number of posts in the cadre of their service or they are personally inefficient. As regards officers of the second category, I would refer the Honourable Member to clauses (a) and (b) of rule 56 of the Fundamental Rules, a copy of which is in the Library of the House.

(c) Government are unable to express an opinion.

(d) Government have no such proposal under consideration.

(e) In most cases the immediate saving in salaries would be counterbalanced by the addition to pensionary charges. Government have no power to retire officers on half-pension as a means of economy and furthermore it is not part of Government policy of retrenchment to discharge officers and replace them by officers of the same grade on lower rates of pay.

ASSAULT BY A GURKHA SEPOY ON SOME PROFESSORS OF A BARISAL COLLEGE.

1052. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : (a) Is it a fact that on or about the 2nd September, 1933, some Professors of the B. M. College, Barisal (Bengal), were assaulted by a Gurkha sepoy on a public road in the town ?

(b) Has any enquiry been made into the case ?

(c) If so, by whom and with what result ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) to (c). The Government of India have no information. No troops are stationed at Barisal.

CERTAIN ALTERATIONS IN THE " D " TYPE ORTHODOX QUARTERS IN NEW DELHI.

1053. Mr. S. G. Jog : (a) Are Government aware that the floor area of ' D ' type orthodox quarters in New Delhi is hardly as much as that of the floor area of garage and servant quarters of big bungalows for officers ? If not, will they please state its proportions ?

(b) Are Government aware that owing to the allotment of very small area for this type of quarters, the court-yard of the quarters is left comparatively very little after providing the necessary living accommodation ?

(c) Are Government aware that in a corner of this small court-yard there is a latrine provided for the inmates of the quarters ?

(d) Are Government aware that owing to the very close proximity of the latrines in the ' D ' type quarters, it becomes very difficult to sleep in the court-yard during summer season ?

(e) Are Government aware that owing to the above mentioned difficulty some of the tenants are compelled to sleep in the front common space and thus leave the quarters open to theft, etc., from the back side during the nights ?

(f) Did Government consider the above defect of the quarters when preparing the new plans of this type of quarters, and tried to widen the inner court-yard ? If so, with what result ?

(g) Are Government prepared to remove this great difficulty of the tenants of this type of quarters ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The information is not immediately available and I do not think that any public purpose would be served by collecting it. Its collection would further entail considerable labour which I consider would not be justified.

(b) The smallest courtyard in the ' D ' type orthodox quarters has an area of 400 square feet, which is considered sufficient for all reasonable requirements.

(e) No ; further all doors can be locked and iron bars are provided to all windows.

(f) Government do not consider the size of courtyards in the ' D ' type orthodox quarters as a defect. The suggestions received from tenants regarding these quarters have been incorporated in the new plans so far as they are consistent with reasonable economy.

(g) Does not arise.

Sardar Sant Singh : What trouble can there be in finding out the area of a garage in officers' bungalows in order to compare it with the area of the ' D ' type orthodox quarters ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : The reason is that there are various types of officers' bungalows and it will involve trouble to collect the information for all of them.

Sardar Sant Singh : Where is the difficulty of comparing it, specially when the question mentions the ' D ' type orthodox quarters and the floor space therein ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : If the Honourable Member is anxious to have a comparison made, I am prepared to ask my staff to collect the information.

Mr. S. G. Jog : Have Government consulted the persons for whom these quarters are meant as to what their requirements are ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I doubt whether their requirements, as stated by them, would be quite the same as those Government would be prepared to give them. But I would point out that, in the reply to part (f) of the question, I have said that the suggestions received from tenants regarding these quarters have been incorporated in the new plans so far as they are consistent with reasonable economy. The Honourable Member will see from that that the tenants of these quarters have been consulted.

Mr. S. G. Jog : May I know if Government took steps to consult their wishes in this matter ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I have said that their suggestions have been incorporated. It is, therefore, obvious that they must have been consulted ; or, at any rate, if they were not consulted, they made representations which were duly considered.

DISMISSAL OF PUBLIC SERVANTS IN MILITARY EMPLOY.

1054. Mr. S. G. Jog : Is it a fact that under Rule (V), Appendix XI, Regulations for the Army in India, no permanent public servant in military employ is permitted to be dismissed from service unless he has been allowed an opportunity to know the charge against him and to submit his defence to the same ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Yes.

INDIANISATION OF THE CENTRAL CYPHER BUREAU OF THE FOREIGN AND POLITICAL DEPARTMENT.

1055. Mr. Bhuput Sing : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the following statement published in the Hindustan Times, dated Friday, the 8th September, 1933 ?

"Might and Right :

An Indian can become the Governor of a Province, a Member of the Governor General's Executive Council and even be the Chief Justice of a High Court, but he cannot be appointed even as a clerk in the cypher branches of the Foreign and Political Department of the Government of India. The difficulty, Sir George Schuster told the Assembly, was that the cypher codes were issued by His Majesty's Government on the understanding that they would be used by British subjects only, the implication being that Indians were not British subjects. But the more important point is that by a ruling of His Majesty's Government, Indians are excluded from appointments, in a Department of the Government of India. And still this very same Government insist on all sorts of commercial and financial safeguards because there is just the possibility of the new Federal Government discriminating against British subjects in India. But consistency is not the virtue of politicians whose only conception of right is their own might."

(b) If so, will Government be pleased to state whether, in view of the said inconsistency as complained of therein, Government propose to remove the anomaly ? If not, why not ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : (a) The answer is in the affirmative.

(b) The answer is also in the affirmative. I may refer the Honourable Member to my reply to the Honourable Mr. Muhammad Muazzam Sahib Bahadur on the 15th. Every effort is being made to open the Central Cypher Bureau as soon as possible to Indians.

Mr. Uppi Sahib Bahadur : May I know if the typists of this Department are drawn only from one particular community ?

Major W. K. Fraser-Tytler : I am afraid I have no information on that point and shall require notice.

UNSTARRED QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

PROPOSED SHIFTING OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESS, CALCUTTA, TO DELHI.

122. Mr. Bhuput Sing : (a) Is it a fact that Government intend to shift the Government of India Press, Calcutta, from its present location to Delhi ?

(b) Is it a fact that the shifting of the printing machines and establishment from Calcutta, the present location, to Delhi will entail heavy expenditure ?

(c) If the answers to (a) and (b) be in the affirmative, have Government considered whether it is advisable to remove the said Press from Calcutta to Delhi at an abnormal cost ? Is there any difficulty in managing the work at Calcutta ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a), (b) and (c). It is the policy of Government to concentrate their ordinary printing work at New Delhi, as they are satisfied that this is desirable both on administrative and on financial grounds. But any wholesale transfer would involve substantial capital expenditure and the transfer is likely to be effected by gradual stages. The Honourable Member will find further particulars in the proceedings of the Standing Finance Committee, Volume XIII—No. 2, pages 45-46.

INTRODUCTION OF LINO MACHINES IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESSES.

123. Mr. Bhuput Sing : (a) Is it not a fact that with the introduction of mono lino machines in 1914 in the Government of India Presses, Calcutta, Delhi, Simla and Aligarh, a large number of compositors and distributors have been reduced ?

(b) If the answer to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the exact number of the compositors and distributors reduced from 1922 to 1932, respectively, year by year ?

(c) Is it a fact that the mono machines caused to the Government a loss of 40 per cent. ?

(d) Is it a fact that matters composed in mono have to be melted away after printing, and that such melting can go on for five times only ?

(e) Is it a fact that hand-composed matter lasts 90 lakhs of impressions ?

(f) Is it a fact that hand compositors are entitled to remuneration after the first reading, second reading, third reading, revised corrections and rule dress-up are finished ?

(g) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a comparative statement showing the cost of composing by hand 44 × 72 Em non-pareil type 15 column statement, and that of having it in a mono machine, noting specially the charge of :

(i) Operator,
(ii) Caster,
(iii) Arranging,
(iv) First reading corrections,
(v) Second Reading Corrections,
(vi) Third Reading Corrections,
(vii) Revise corrections,
(viii) Rule Dress up,
(ix) Gas,
(x) Electricity,
(xi) Water, and
(xii) Metal ?

(h) If the replies to parts (a) and (c) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state why Government have replaced hand composition by mono machines and why these have not been abolished ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) A large number were reduced in the Presses at Calcutta, Delhi and Simla during the years 1914—1924.

(b) No record giving this information has been maintained in my Department or in the office of the Controller of Printing and Stationery.

(c) No.

(d) Matter cast in monotype is ordinarily melted after printing and this saves distribution charges. It can be melted many times and can then be rejuvenated at a very low cost for many more remeltings.

(e) Yes.

(f) Yes, if the various operations are necessary.

(g) Owing to the varying factors it is not possible to prepare such a statement in respect of monotype or hand composition.

(h) Does not arise.

PRINTING CLEARING OFFICE.

124. Mr. Bhuput Sing: (a) Will Government be pleased to state:

(i) When the Printing Clearing Office was started;

(ii) What is its function;

(iii) What is the number of men working in it; and

(iv) The number of officials which compose the management, their respective designations and salaries?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state how and by whom the work now done by the Printing Clearing Office was managed before its creation?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state the total annual cost for the maintenance of the Printing Clearing Office?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce: (a) The Honourable Member is referred to the answer to Mr. S. C. Mitra's identical question No. 249 asked on the 2nd February, 1931. Since that date the office has been merged in the office of the Controller of Printing and Stationery.

(b) The Honourable Member is referred to the answer to Honourable Srijut Lokenath Mukherjee's identical question No. 74 asked in the Council of State on the 23rd August, 1926.

(c) This office does not now exist as a separate office: it is merged in the office of the Controller of Printing and Stationery; but the approximate annual cost of the staff engaged on the work formerly done by the Printing Clearing Office is Rs. 73,000.

MEMORIAL OF INKMEN OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESS, CALCUTTA.

125. Mr. Bhuput Sing: (a) Is it a fact that the inkmen of the Government of India Press, Calcutta, submitted a memorial to the Honourable Member in charge, Department of Industries and Labour, through the proper channel in May, 1933?

(b) If the reply be in the affirmative, will the Honourable Member in charge, be pleased to—

(i) furnish this House with the contents of the said memorial;

(ii) state what action has been taken or is intended to be taken in the matter? If not, why not?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce: (a) and (b). I understand that a memorial addressed to the Government of India by certain inkers of the Government of India Press, Calcutta, praying that their service may be classified as superior has been received by the Controller. The question is at present engaging his attention and will be considered by Government when his proposals are received.

MEMORIAL OF TEMPORARY PIECE-WORKERS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESS, CALCUTTA.

126. Mr. Bhuput Sing: (a) Is it a fact that the temporary piece-employees of the Government of India Press, Calcutta, submitted a memorial to the Honourable Member in charge, through the proper channel in May, 1933?

(b) If the reply be in the affirmative, will the Honourable Member in charge be pleased to—

(i) furnish this House with the contents of the said memorial; and

(ii) state what action has been taken or is intended to be taken by the Government in the matter?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce: (a) and (b). Memorials from temporary binders of the Government of India Press, Calcutta, praying that they may be granted permanent status were received. The question is at present engaging the attention of the Controller, and will be considered by Government when his proposals are received.

PRINTING OF THE ARMY DEPARTMENT TRAINING MANUAL IN PRIVATE PRESSES.

127. Mr. Bhuput Sing: (a) Is it a fact that the rate of the private firms for printing the Army Department Training Manual and the binding charge of Army form No. A.-64 were considerably higher than that of the Government Presses?

(b) Is it a fact that Mr. H. I. Macdonald, Special Officer, Central Revision Section, Army Department, Government of India, in his note, dated the 1st July, 1931, expressed the desirability of the said work being done at the Government Presses on economic grounds?

(c) Is it a fact that the Government of India have five well-equipped efficient presses—two presses in Calcutta, one in Simla, one in Delhi and one in Aligarh?

(d) Is it a fact that Government received a resolution passed in the All-India Press Employees' Conference held in June, 1926 under the presidency of Mr. T. C. Goswami, a Member of the Assembly, as well as in the second session of the said conference held in Calcutta in August, 1927, under the presidency of the Honourable Sayyed Muhammad Padshah Saheb and moved by the Government Press employees that the present practice of giving work to outside presses was detrimental to the interest of the Government Press employees and urging the Government of India and the Provincial Governments to abandon the practice as early as possible?

(e) Is it a fact that many employees of the Government of India Presses, Delhi, Calcutta, Simla and Aligarh, lost their jobs due to paucity of work in 1922 to 1924 and the years following and are Government aware that even at the present moment a large number of thrown out employees of the Government Presses are sitting idle ?

(f) Is it a fact that the Government of India Press, Calcutta, can easily manage printing Posts and Telegraphs Forms whose value is about Rs. 2,20,000 ?

(g) Are Government aware that private contractors make a profit out of the order placed with them by Government ?

(h) If the answers to parts (a) to (g) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state if they are prepared to consider the advisability of discontinuing printing orders with private contractors and having them done in the Government Presses instead ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) During a short period when Training Manuals were printed at private presses without the intervention of the Stationery and Printing Department the cost of their printing was considerably higher. The printing of these Manuals is now arranged for through the Controller of Printing and Stationery either at Government or private presses at rates which compare favourably with those of Government Presses.

There is no Army form No. A-64. There are, however, Army Books, 64-M and 64 for which a slightly higher rate than that of the Government Press was allowed. This was discontinued as soon as the matter came to notice.

(b) I have not seen the note to which reference is made, but all opinions recorded in notes are confidential.

(c) and (d). Yes.

(e) The answer to the first part is in the affirmative. As regards the second part, I have no figures of the number still unemployed.

(f) No.

(g) I assume that unless the contractors secured some profit they would not undertake the work.

(h) Does not arise.

LINO AND MONO OPERATORS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESSES.

128. Mr. Bhuput Sing : (a) Is it a fact that the lino and mono operators of the Government of India Press are salaried hands ?

(b) Is it a fact that the compositors of the Government of India Presses are piece-rated employees ?

(c) Is it a fact that the outturn of the lino and mono operators as well as of the compositors is systematically checked and calculated ?

(d) Is it a fact that when the outturn of the lino and mono operators is found to be greater in volume than the standard outturn fixed, the operators are awarded a special bonus over and above their pay ?

(e) Is it a fact that when the outturn of the compositors is found to have increased in volume over the fixed outturns, it results in the hands being penalised for the same ?

(f) If the answers to (a) to (e) be in the affirmative will Government be pleased to state the reasons for what is stated in part (e) ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Yes.

(b) In the Calcutta and New Delhi Presses, compositors are employed on piece-rates.

(c) and (d). Yes.

(e) There are no 'fixed outturns' for compositors on piece-rates. They are paid full rates for all work done on piece.

(f) Does not arise.

DECREASE IN THE EARNING OF THE PIECE-WORKERS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESSES AT CALCUTTA AND SIMLA.

129. Mr. Bhuput Sing : (a) Is it a fact that the earnings of the piece-workers of the Government of India Presses at Calcutta and Simla are daily decreasing ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Government of India Resolution No. A.-31, dated the 15th July, 1920, stated that the compositors of the Government of India Press used to earn from Rs. 35 to Rs. 90 according to the old class-rates ?

(c) Is it a fact that by the said resolution an increment of 40 per cent. was given to all workers in the Government of India Press ?

(d) Is it a fact that according to the rates of increment given by Government in pursuance of the resolution, above referred to, the earnings of the compositors worked out at from Rs. 49 to Rs. 126 ?

(e) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing the minimum and maximum earnings of the compositors in the Government of India Presses in Calcutta, Simla, Delhi and Aligarh per month during the years 1930, 1931 and 1932 year by year ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) I have no reason to suppose that this is the case.

(b) This statement was made in respect of the piece-work compositors in the Government Presses at Calcutta, Delhi and Simla only.

(c) Piece-rates were raised by the percentage stated in the presses at Calcutta and Delhi.

(d) Provided that their output had remained unaltered piece-workers who were receiving between Rs. 35 and Rs. 90 would have drawn, on getting a 40 per cent. increase in rates, wages varying within the limits mentioned by the Honourable Member.

(e) I have not the particulars of the maximum and minimum earning during the three years mentioned in the question in the Calcutta and Delhi Presses, but the figures for 1931-32 are as follows :

Calcutta : minimum Rs. 41 ; maximum Rs. 82.

Delhi : minimum Rs. 48 ; maximum Rs. 131.

There are now no piece-work compositors in the Simla and Aligarh presses. The compositors in these presses are salaried hands and the maximum and minimum pays during the years in question were in Simla Rs. 90 and Rs. 55 and in Aligarh Rs. 45 and Rs. 25.

FAULTY CHECK OVER COMPOSITORS' WORK IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESSES AT CALCUTTA AND SIMLA.

130. Mr. Bhuput Sing: (a) Is it a fact that the compositors of the Government Presses are employed on the piece as well as on the hour system ?

(b) Is it a fact that work—both piece and hours—are distributed among the compositors by the respective Section-holders under their immediate supervision who issue certificates accordingly ?

(c) Is it a fact that the checkers check the outturn of the compositors on the basis of the papers forwarded to them being certified by the Section-holders ?

(d) Is it a fact that the checkers of the Government of India Presses, Calcutta, Delhi and Simla, deduct almost daily something from the actual hours of work of the compositors in spite of the certificates from the Section-holders ?

(e) Is it a fact that the majority of the Piece-workers' Committee of 1922 stated in paragraph 22 of their report that the differences among the checkers were serious ?

(f) Is it a fact that these deductions by the checkers seriously affect the earnings of the compositors and thereby the class-rates and the pensions ?

(g) If the answers to parts (a) to (f) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state if any action has been or is being taken or is contemplated to be taken at an early date to remedy the present faulty checking system in the said Government of India Presses at Calcutta, Delhi and Simla ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce: (a) Only in the Calcutta and New Delhi Presses.

(b) Yes.

(c) Yes.

(d) Deductions are made when necessary.

(e) No. The Piece-Workers' Committee stated that the difference of the compositors with the checkers were more serious than with the computors.

(f) No.

(g) Does not arise.

FAULTY CHECK OVER COMPOSITORS' WORK IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESSES AT CALCUTTA AND SIMLA.

131. Mr. Bhuput Sing: (a) Is it a fact that the piece-works of the compositors of the Government of India Press, Calcuttta, are distributed by the Section-holders and are done under their immediate supervision and that a register is maintained for that purpose ?

(b) Is it a fact that computors are engaged for the purpose of calculating the outturn on the basis of the certificate issued by the Section-holders ?

(c) Is it a fact that differences in calculation occur often even on a specific piece of work ?

(d) Is it a fact that Mr. Jagadesan, the Examiner of Press Accounts, admitted before the Piece-workers' Committee of 1932 that no two computors would arrive at identical calculations in respect of a specific piece of work ?

(e) Is it a fact that compositors are not evenly paid even for a specific piece of work due to this difference in calculations ?

(f) If the answers to parts (a) to (e) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state what steps have been or are being contemplated to be taken to remedy the evils of the present system of computing in the said Government of India Press ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce: (a), (b), (c) and (d). Yes.

(e) and (f). As recognized in paragraph 21 of the Majority Report of the Piece-Workers' Committee, 1922, the differences in computing are ordinarily infinitesimal, and no action to remedy this has been considered necessary.

NON-PAYMENT TO PIECE-WORKERS IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESSES ON CERTAIN BANK HOLIDAYS.

132. Mr. Bhuput Sing: (a) Is it a fact that in 1931 the Government of India Presses, Calcutta, Delhi and Simla, were entirely closed for 22nd, 23rd and 24th August by reason of all the banks being closed ?

(b) Is it a fact that the piece-workers of the Government of India Presses, Calcutta, Delhi and Simla, were not paid for those three days ?

(c) If the answers to parts (a) and (b) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the reason therefor ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce: (a), (b) and (c). There is no record in my Department of the days on which the presses were closed in August, 1931, or of the payments for such days ; but one of the days mentioned was a Sunday and the presses are ordinarily closed on that day. Piece-workers are not ordinarily paid for holidays on which a press is closed, but they can at their option get payment for the holidays actually enjoyed by them by having them counted against the leave with pay admissible to them ; and I have no reason to suppose that the ordinary rules were not applied.

SENIORITY LIST OF STAFF IN THE MORADABAD DIVISION, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

133. Mr. Muhammad Azhar Ali: (a) Is it a fact that the seniority is counted according to the grades and not according to class ? If so, how are combined seniority lists made up on the East Indian Railway, especially in the Moradabad Division ?

(b) Is it a fact that the instructions contained in the note under section II—Recruitment and Training of the Rules for Recruitment and Training of Subordinate Staff—circulated by the Agent under his No. 548|A.E.-2460, dated the 1st October, 1932, are not adhered to by the Divisional Superintendent, Moradabad Division, East Indian Railway ; for instance, Assistant Station Masters (Higher Grade) or Guards are selected as Transportation Inspectors, viz., Mr. A. N. Logawney, T. K. Reilly, etc. ; and similarly Station Masters (Lower Grade) are not promoted to Assistant Station Masters (Higher Grade) ? If not, what are the percentage of promotions of persons from Station Masters (Lower Grade) and Guards (Goods or Passenger) to Assistant Station Master (Higher Grade) during the preceding three years ?

(c) Is it a fact that senior most Assistant Station Masters, Class "C" in Moradabad Division are deprived of the privilege of officiating appointment in Assistant Station Masters (Higher Grade) ? If not, what are the rules prevalent in Moradabad Division regarding the normal channel of promotion to Assistant Station Master (Higher Grade) ?

(d) Is it a fact that the Moradabad Division in violation of Agent's Circular No. 548|A.E.-2460, dated the 1st October, 1932, maintained a panel for "F" Class Assistant Station Masters (Higher Grade) and they place in and place out any subordinate according to their will and pleasure or discretion ? If not, what are the correct interpretations of the following letters issued by the Divisional Superintendent, Moradabad Division :

(i) (a) 12|88|E.T.-2, dated the 14th July, 1928 ; (b) Order, dated the 9th December, 1930, signed by Superintendent, Transportation ; (c) 12|88|27-E., dated the 9th March, 1928 ; 16th March, 1928 ; 24th April, 1929 ; (d) Circular letters No. 11|31-E.T., dated the 16th November, 1931 ; 19th November, 1931 ;

(ii) 11|31|E.T.-2, dated the 22nd April, 1932 ; 20th September, 1932 ; 2nd November, 1932 ; 19th November, 1932 ; 17th January, 1933 ; 15th February, 1933 ; 27th February, 1933 ; 16th March, 1933 ; 20th April, 1933 ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no information but have sent a copy of this question to the Agent, East Indian Railway, for any action that may be necessary.

RECRUITMENT OF GUARDS IN THE MORADABAD DIVISION, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

134. Mr. Muhammad Azhar Ali : (a) Is it a fact that the following persons were recruited as Guards in the Moradabad Division direct on Rs. 140—10—230 as "C" Class :

Messrs. T. K. Reilly, C. N. Logawney, D. MacLeod, J. H. Bond, W. D. Hayde, P. L. Pearce, A. H. Luders, J. N. Vanspall, E. R. Blackford, and L. O. Mantheroo ?

If so, under what circumstances were the rules for the recruitment and training of Transportation (Traffic) Group infringed ?

(b) Is it a fact that the following employees are qualified Guards and worked as such for different periods, and were denied recruitment to permanent vacancies to which direct appointments were made :

Messrs. M. V. Bhawnani, T. T. E. ; Kanhaya Lal Pandey, Parcel Clerk ; Syed Karar Hussain, Parcel Clerk ; R. D. Pandey, Free Service Clerk, Moradabad Division ?

If so, what are the reasons for the appointment of persons direct or of those who are junior in service ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no information, but have sent a copy of the question to the Agent, East Indian Railway, to see whether any action is necessary.

FILLING UP OF VACANCIES OF SUB-HEADS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

135. Mr. Muhammad Azhar Ali : Is it a fact that the Controller of Railway Accounts in his letter No. 77-E.-31-C.R.A.-III, dated the 20th July, 1932, prescribed that the vacancies in the grade of sub-heads are to be filled up by the promotion of clerks who have passed either Appendix "D", "E" or S. R. A. S., Part II, examinations and are awaiting their chance for promotion to the rank of Accountants ? If so, under what circumstances was this authority superseded by the Chief Accounts Officer, East Indian Railway, vide his No. 11-T.A.|33|R.K.Kaul, dated the 24th August, 1933 ? Do Government propose to inquire into the matter ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no information, but have sent a copy of the question to the Controller of Railway Accounts to see whether any action is necessary.

WITHDRAWAL OF DAILY ALLOWANCE OF INSPECTORS OF STATION ACCOUNTS, ETC., ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

136. Mr. Muhammad Azhar Ali : Is it a fact that the daily allowance of the class of Inspectors was based on the pay drawn subject to a minimum of Rs. 2-8-0 per day, vide Railway Board letter No. 6087-F., dated the 9th March, 1931 ? If so, under what circumstances was this privilege only withdrawn from the Inspector of Station Accounts, Stores and Stock Verifiers, and not from the other class of Inspectors, vide Railway Board letter No. 5239-E., of 11th July, 1932 ? Do Government propose to extend the old privilege to Inspectors of Station Accounts, etc. ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no information, but have sent a copy of the question to the Controller of Railway Accounts to see whether any action is necessary.

GRANT OF INCREMENTS TO THE OFFICIALS OF THE SORTING OFFICE, MADRAS GENERAL POST OFFICE.

137. Mr. N. M. Joshi : (a) With reference to the reply given by Sir Thomas Ryan to question 1169 put by me on the floor of the Assembly on the 10th April, 1933, will Government be pleased to state whether any action has been taken for the grant of increments without any stoppage to the men affected ?

(b) If the answer be in the negative, will Government be pleased to state the reasons for the same ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The matter is under consideration, and a decision has not yet been reached.

(b) Does not arise.

ALLOWANCE TO THE STENOGRAPHERS OF THE CENTRAL TELEGRAPH OFFICE AND GENERAL POST OFFICE, MADRAS.

138. Mr. N. M. Joshi : (a) Will Government be pleased to state when the allowances to the stenographers working in the Central Telegraph Office, Madras, and in the General Post Office, Madras, were suspended and restored in the year 1931 ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state whether they have restored the grant of allowance to the stenographer of the Central Telegraph Office, Madras, for the suspended period ?

(c) If the answer be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state why the said allowance was not simultaneously restored for the suspended period to the stenographer working in the General Post Office, Madras ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The special pay in both cases was held in abeyance on the 16th August, 1931, and was restored on the 1st October and the 15th November, 1931, respectively.

(b) Yes.

(c) Because the official concerned did not actually work as a stenographer during the period from the 16th August, 1931, to the 14th November, 1931.

POSTAL RECRUITED TELEGRAPHISTS.

139. Mr. N. M. Joshi : Will Government be pleased to state whether they have taken any action on the speech of Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen made on 10th March, 1933, at the time of Budget discussions regarding postal recruited telegraphists, and if so, will Government be pleased to place on the table a copy of their decision ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : No. The case of the telegraphists referred to was re-examined by the Director General as promised by him in this House on the 10th March, 1933, but he found no reason to make any recommendation to Government to re-open it.

GRANT OF PENSION TO BAUDOT MISTRIES.

140. Mr. N. M. Joshi : (a) With reference to the reply given to my question No. 181 on the 4th September, 1928, regarding the grant of pension to Baudot mistries, will Government be pleased to state whether they have come to a final decision on the matter and if so, what are the decisions ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state whether they now propose to consider and grant compensation in lieu of pension as is given to the Railway servants by the Railway Department and in view of the suggestion given by the Government of India in Circular No. 5042, dated the 8th July, 1919, to consult the Railway authorities ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) and (b) The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the reply given by Sir Thomas Ryan on the 5th April, 1933, to his starred question No. 1124. There has been no change in the position since that date.

RETIREMENTS IN CERTAIN GRADES IN THE POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS DEPARTMENT.

141. Mr. N. M. Joshi : Will Government be pleased to furnish a statement showing the number of retirements (i) compulsory, and (ii) voluntary in each of the following grades after the introduction of Sir Cowasji Jehangir's report ?

(i) Telegraphists ;

(ii) Telegraph Masters ;

(iii) Deputy Superintendents ;

(iv) Officers of the First and Second Divisions ;

(v) Officers of the Engineering Branch ; and (vi) Clerks.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : The Honourable Member is referred to the reply given in this House by Sir Thomas Ryan on the 5th April, 1933, to his starred question No. 1125. The information available regarding the numbers of compulsory and voluntary retirements effected since then are as follows :

	(i) Compulsory.	(ii) Voluntary.
Telegraphists	none	61
Telegraph Masters	none	5
Deputy Superintendents ..	none	none
Officers of the 1st and 2nd Divisions of the Superior Traffic Branch.	none	none
Gazetted officers of the Engineering Branch	none	none

The total number of clerks (including Head Postmasters, Sub and Branch Postmasters, Inspectors and Town Inspectors of Post Offices, Sorters, Supervisors, etc.) retrenched between the 1st December, 1932 and the 31st May, 1933 (up to which date information is available) is 1,214 but no information is available as to the number who retired voluntarily or were compulsorily retrenched.

COMMUNAL COMPOSITION OF CERTAIN GRADES OF SERVICES IN THE ACCOUNTS DEPARTMENT, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

142. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the present communal composition of the following grades of services in the Accounts Department of the East Indian Railway :

(i) Accountants ;

(ii) Inspector of Station Accounts ;

(iii) Inspector of Stores Accounts ;

(iv) Sub-Heads ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state the number of vacancies filled in, in each of the grades specified above, since 1926 and the number of Moslems and non-Moslems recruited either directly or by promotions ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) and (b). Government regret they are unable to supplement the information given about the communal composition of Railway Staff in the Administration Reports by particulars about individual offices or classes of staff.

PROPOSAL FOR THE AMALGAMATION OF THE MUNICIPALITIES OF OLD AND NEW DELHI.

143. Mr. Bhuput Sing : Have Government any proposal to amalgamate the municipalities of the Old and New Delhi ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : No.

ESTABLISHMENT OF A DEVELOPMENT DIRECTORATE FOR OLD AND NEW DELHI.

144. Mr. Bhuput Sing : Do Government propose the establishment of a development directorate for Old and New Delhi ? If not, why not ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : No. Government do not consider it necessary to establish a Development Directorate for Old and New Delhi.

DANGEROUS CONDITION OF TIMARPUR QUARTERS, DELHI.

145. Mr. Bhuput Sing : (a) Has a telegraphic representation been received by Government from Government employees living in Timarpur quarters inviting Government's attention to the dangerous state of their quarters due to the recent rains in Delhi ? If so, what action do Government propose to take ?

(b) Would the Timarpur quarters be demolished and new ones built ?

(c) Do Government propose to abandon the Timarpur site due to its low level proximity to the Jumna and the terrible malaria that ravages there ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Yes. The repairs which were considered necessary have since been carried out.

(b) and (c). No.

MOTOR AND ELECTRIC OMNIBUS SERVICE IN DELHI.

146. Mr. Bhuput Sing : (a) When is the motor and electric omnibus service sanctioned for the Delhi Electric Supply and Traction Company Ltd., to start ?

(b) Are Government aware that this company does not propose to run the sanctioned electric trolley omnibus service due to the overhead line having to run through Azadpur, which is almost double the route requiring considerable additional capital on a very large section, where there is no traffic, which will be unremunerative for some years to come ?

(c) Do Government propose to alter the route as desired by the Electric Company ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Enquiries have been made and the result will be communicated to the House in due course.

INTRODUCTION OF A FASTER TRAIN via LOOP LINE FROM HOWRAH TO DELHI.

147. Mr. Bhuput Sing : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether any steps have been taken to introduce the running of a faster train via Loop Line from Howrah to Delhi, for the convenience of passengers travelling from stations on this line ?

(b) What are the difficulties in the way of running a fast through train over this line ?

(c) Are Government aware of a very strong public feeling over the matter for the last several years ?

(d) Does not the traffic on the line justify such introduction of a fast through train ?

(e) Have Government considered that the train can be made to run via Dhulian (B. A. K. Section), if any of the bridges over the corresponding section of the Loop Line is not able to withstand the running of a faster train over it ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Enquiries have been made from the Agent, East Indian Railway, and I will place a reply on the table in due course.

TENDERS FOR SUPPLY OF FURNITURE TO THE ZOOLOGICAL SURVEY OF INDIA.

148. Mr. Bhuput Sing : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether tenders were called for by the present Director of the Zoological Survey of India for the supply of office furniture ? If not, why not ?

(b) Is it a fact that he has given the contract to a Chinese furniture dealer ? If so, do Government propose to enquire why instead of Indian furniture dealers, a Chinese has been appointed ? If not, why not ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Enquiries have been made and the information will be furnished to the House in due course.

RETRENCHMENT IN THE ARCHAEOLOGICAL DEPARTMENT.

149. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Is it a fact that Government orders contemplated the appointment of a Board to select personnel for discharge ?

(b) Did the Director General of Archæology appoint such a Board ? If so, will Government kindly state the names of the members of the Board ?

(c) Was any Muslim member appointed on the Board to safeguard the interests of Muslims ? If not, why not ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) Yes.

(b) Yes. The names of the members of this Board are :

1. Rai Bahadur Daya Ram Sahni, Director General of Archæology in India.
2. Mr. J. A. Page, Deputy Director General of Archæology in India.
3. Mr. K. N. Dikshit, Deputy Director General of Archæology for Exploration.

(c) No, because there was no Muslim officer attached to the Head Office at the time. Every possible precaution was, however, taken to safeguard the interests of all communities in the Department.

RETRENCHMENT IN THE ARCHAEOLOGICAL DEPARTMENT.

150. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Will Government kindly lay on the table a statement showing the number of Hindu and Muslim employees and their percentage before and after retrenchment in the subordinate service of the Archæological Department ?

(b) Was any assurance given to this House that the percentage of the various communities would remain the same before and after retrenchment ?

(c) Is it a fact that the percentage of Muslims has diminished in that service ever since ? If so, why ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Information is being collected and will be laid on the table in due course.

FREE OCCUPATION OF GOVERNMENT QUARTERS BY CERTAIN EMPLOYEES OF THE ARCHAEOLOGICAL DEPARTMENT.

151. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Will Government kindly lay on the table a statement showing the names of the subordinates in the Archæological Department who occupy Government quarters and pay no rent ?

(b) On what basis have these concessions been allowed to them ?

(c) Have Government considered the desirability of charging rent now ? If not, why not ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The information is being collected and will be laid on the table of the House in due course.

RETRENCHMENT IN THE ARCHAEOLOGICAL DEPARTMENT.

152. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Is it a fact that in the Eastern Circle of the Archæological Department the post of a Hindu was abolished, but actually a Muslim was retrenched ?

(b) Is it a fact that disciplinary proceedings were in progress against the Hindu subordinate in question ?

(c) If the answer to part (b) be in the affirmative, will Government please state the reasons for keeping this man in service and for retrenching the Muslim ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) and (c). One post on the ministerial establishment in the Circle named was abolished and the Muslim employee who was the most junior member of the ministerial establishment was discharged in accordance with the general instructions laid down for the selection of personnel for discharge in connection with retrenchment.

(b) Disciplinary proceedings were in progress against two Hindu subordinates. Both have been degraded to lower posts on the minima of the scales of pay attached to them.

ALLEGATIONS AGAINST MR. CHANDRA, ARCHAEOLOGICAL SUPERINTENDENT, POONA.

153. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Is it a fact that a certain firm known as Messrs. Gorachand and Sons secured huge contracts from Mr. Chandra, Archæological Superintendent, while at Poona and had its office in the very house of Mr. Chandra ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state if this action on the part of Mr. Chandra was not considered seriously objectionable ?

(c) Did Government order an enquiry into the conduct of Mr. Chandra ? If so, when, and who were the members of the Enquiry Board ?

(d) Was Mr. Chandra's case referred to the Public Service Commission before passing final orders, as was done in similar other cases in the Department ? If not, why was this preferential treatment shown ?

(e) Do Government propose to consult the Public Service Commission now ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) The firm referred to by the Honourable Member did obtain certain contracts.

(b) and (c). An enquiry was conducted by the Director-General of Archæology in India and Mr. J. F. Blakiston, Superintendent, Archæological Survey of India. Government came to the conclusion, after considering their reports, that although Mr. Chandra's conduct in the matter was objectionable, the requirements of the case would be met if an expression of their dissatisfaction were conveyed to him.

(d) No reference to the Public Service Commission was necessary.

(e) Government do not consider such reference to be necessary.

TRANSFER OF THE ASSISTANT SUPERINTENDENT OF ARCHAEOLOGY, CENTRAL INDIA AND RAJPUTANA, TO SOME OTHER CIRCLE.

154. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Is it a fact that the post of the Assistant Superintendent for Central India and Rajputana remained vacant for considerable periods during the past, and his work was done in the Director General of Archæology's office during his absence ?

(b) If so, are Government prepared to consider the desirability of transferring the present Assistant Superintendent to some other Circle ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) Yes.

(b) The services of this officer are required at the Headquarters to assist the Director-General of Archæology in India in Archæological matters relating to the Indian States in Central India and Rajputana. It is not possible, therefore, to transfer him to a Circle.

IGNORING THE CLAIMS OF MUSLIMS IN THE ARCHAEOLOGICAL DEPARTMENT.

155. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Will Government kindly state what is the length of the service of the present Director General of Archæology ?

(b) Will Government please state how many Hindus and Muslims the Director General has appointed permanently during his service ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state how many Muslims during his long tenure were permanently appointed ?

(d) Is it a fact that he held charge of the Lahore Circle of the Archæological Department for a considerable period ?

(e) Is it a fact that in the Punjab where there is such a large population of Muslims he did not appoint any suitable Muslim under his control ?

(f) Is it a fact that when the present Director General of Archæology was Superintendent of Lahore or other Circles, the Director General at the time issued instructions to Archæological Officers for keeping regard of the representation of the minority communities ?

(g) Did the gentleman even then appoint any Muslim in his office ?

(h) What action did Government take against the officer for ignoring the orders referred to ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The information asked for is being collected and will be laid on the table of the House in due course.

GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY TRACTION DEPARTMENT.

156. Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi : With reference to the Financial Commissioner's reply to Mr. B. Das's questions Nos. 729 to 732 on the 13th March, 1933, regarding the Great Indian Peninsula Railway Traction Department, are Government now in a position to place before this House the particulars promised ? If so, will they please lay on the table all the available information ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The information was laid on the table of the House on the 1st September, 1933.

ASSISTANT DIVISIONAL TRANSPORTATION SUPERINTENDENT (TRACTION) ON THE GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY.

157. Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi : (a) With reference to Mr. B. Das's question No. 729 (c) on the 13th March, 1933, and in view of the Financial Commissioner's assurance that if there is over-staffing in the superior officer's cadre of the Electric Traction Branch of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, it will certainly be reduced, and recent confirmation of the Assistant Divisional Transportation Superintendent (Traction), are Government satisfied that the retention of the post is absolutely necessary in the interests of the Railway ?

(b) Are the qualifications of the present incumbent of the post of Assistant Divisional Transportation Superintendent (Traction) considered adequate for expert technical supervision of the three branches of the Electric Traction Department, viz., Generation, Distribution and Rolling Stock ?

(c) Apart from his having held the position of Traction Engineer (Rolling Stock) on the Railway, what special claims does he possess to assume technical and administrative control of the generation and distribution section as well of the Traction Department ?

(d) Has he qualified himself in the usual manner in train operation, block signalling, etc., to discharge effectively the duties of a Transport Officer ?

(e) Is it the professed policy of Government to secure economy by eliminating wasteful duplication of labour ? If so, why is the Bombay Division of the Transportation Department of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway saddled with two officers at its head in grade Rs. 1,950 plus allowances and overseas pay ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) and (b). Yes.

(c) and (d). His qualifications are considered sufficient for the post.

(e) In the Traction Branch there is only one Assistant Divisional Transportation Superintendent on Rs. 1,950 per mensem.

ELECTRIFICATION OF THE MAIN LINE OF THE GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY.

158. Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi : (a) Is it a fact that Government contemplate the extension of the electrification of the main line on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway ?

(b) In view of the doubts expressed relative to the satisfactory working of the section of the line electrified at present, will Government please state what reasons have induced them to consider a scheme for extension ? Is the scheme financially and technically justifiable ?

(c) If the answer to part (a) be in the affirmative, do Government propose to have the project carried out by contractors or by the Railway themselves ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) The question of extension of the electrification is not under serious consideration at present.

(b) and (c). Do not arise.

STAFF OF THE CHOLA POWER HOUSE, GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY.

159. Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi : (a) Will Government please furnish a comparative statement showing the scales of pay and number of all grades of staff in the Chola Power House, Great Indian Peninsula Railway and of establishments belonging to other power stations of equal capacity in other parts of India ?

(b) Have Government considered that it is impossible to reduce the overhead costs of this power station ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I have called for certain information and will lay a reply on the table of the House in due course.

SUPPLY OF ELECTRIC POWER ON THE GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY.

160. Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi : (a) When does the Great Indian Peninsula Railway's agreement with Tatas for the supply of power to the suburban section terminate ?

(b) Is it proposed to take power from Chola Power House after that date ?

(c) If the answer to part (b) be in the affirmative, what is likely to be the cost of change-over ? Will this be given adequate consideration in computing the economies derivable from Chola supplying the entire power requirements of the Railway ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The agreement does not expire till the 31st December, 1939, and it is far too early yet for Government to consider seriously what should be done when it expires, but I can assure my Honourable friend that the comparative cost of alternative sources of supply and all other relevant considerations will be carefully considered in arriving at a decision.

CABLE REPAIR WORK ON THE TRACTION DEPARTMENT, GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY.

161. Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi : Does the Distribution Section of the Traction Department of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway still get its cable repair work done by contractors ? If so, why ? Is it a fact that the Senior Foreman, Overhead Equipment and Transmission Line, Lonavla, Great Indian Peninsula Railway, is supposed to be an expert in the line ?

Mr. P. R Rau : Government have no information but have sent a copy of the question to the Agent, Great Indian Peninsula Railway, for any action that he may consider necessary.

BREAKDOWNS TO THE ELECTRICAL MULTIPLE UNIT EQUIPMENT ON THE GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY.

162. Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi : (a) Is it a fact that most of the serious breakdowns to the Electrical Multiple Unit equipment on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, are due to the incompetent technical direction of the present Superintending Foreman ?

(b) In view of these, and referring to Mr. B. Das's question No. 730 of 13th March, 1933, will Government please state what action they propose to take ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no information but have sent a copy of the question to the Agent, Great Indian Peninsula Railway, for any action that he may consider necessary.

MESSAGES FROM THE COUNCIL OF STATE.

Secretary of the Assembly : Sir, three Messages have been received from the Council of State. The first Message runs thus :

"I am directed to inform you that the Council of State has, at its meeting held on the 18th September, 1933, agreed, without any amendments, to the following Bills which were passed by the Legislative Assembly at its meetings held on the 14th and 15th September, 1933, namely :—

13. The Honourable Mr. Hossain Imam, and
14. The Honourable Mr. J. B. Taylor."

DEATH OF MR. B. N. MISRA.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore (Leader of the House) : Sir, death has again removed with tragic suddenness yet another sitting Member of this Assembly. Mr. B. N. Misra was, I believe, a Member of the first Assembly and also of the third Assembly. I personally will remember him best for his ardent advocacy of the claims of Orissa, his own home. Unhappily he has not been spared to see what we hope will be the fruition of his desires. It will be unnecessary for me to say much about one who was in such recent touch with us all. I need only say that his quiet unassuming presence made him liked by every one with whom he came in contact. May I ask you, Sir, to convey to his relatives our deep sympathy with them in their bereavement ?

[Sir Joseph Bhore.]

Sir Cowasji Jehangir (Bombay City : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : Mr. President, on behalf of myself and my Party, I rise to associate ourselves with the words that have fallen from the Leader of the House. Mr. Misra was one of those quiet unassuming Members in this Honourable House who had not a single enemy amongst us. His great mission was fulfilled, namely, the separation of Orissa ; but most unfortunately he did not live to see a Governor and Council in his own province. Mr. Misra, I believe, was writing the history of his province which perhaps we may be privileged to read in the future—whatever he left on paper. Mr. Misra was attached to his province and came here to represent faithfully the views of his constituency, and he never missed an occasion to do so. We regret—most of us—that we were not able to be present yesterday at his funeral which we should certainly have done had we been informed in time. May I also suggest that you, Sir, should convey to the family of the deceased our sincere sympathy with them in their bereavement ?

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer (Rohilkund and Kumaon Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I rise to associate myself and my Party with all the sentiments that have fallen from the lips of the Honourable the Leaders of the House and of the Independent Party. When Mr. Misra came to my room in the Cecil Hotel a week ago, with the manuscript of his new book, "The History of Ancient Utkal", which he wanted me to revise, I little knew that I would be standing on the floor of the House to speak out my feelings about the passing away of a good man and true, or that I would have been going yesterday to Sanjauli to stand by the funeral pyre amidst pouring rain. He was one of those good men who pleased those with whom he came in contact. His good manners, his sweet temper and his great sense of humour always made him very likeable, always made him the best friend in politics in which friends are few. He was one of the pioneers of the new Orissa movement, and, as the Leader of the House has truly said, the great tragedy in his passing away at this time lies in the fact that he did not have the privilege of enjoying the fruit of his labours. Sir, we express our deep regrets here and our deepest sympathies for the bereaved family.

Mr. Jagan Nath Aggarwal (Jullundur Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, on behalf of my friends in this part of the House I wish to associate myself with all that has fallen from the previous speakers. It is a matter of great regret that Mr. Misra, whose last appearance we all remember in this House on the non-official day when he moved the Resolution relating to the Military Academy, was suffering from blood pressure. We all remember the painful experience we had that day. It was with great difficulty and simply out of a sense of duty that he did not flinch from moving that Resolution—it was with difficulty indeed that he could manage to carry out his wish and we all felt that there was really something wrong with him ; but he stuck to his duty to the last and it is with deep regret that we learnt rather late in the day yesterday that he had passed away. In fact this last event in his life has proved what we all knew so well during the years we had been in contact with him, that he cared more for his duty than for his own comfort or convenience. As has been truly said by the Leader of the House, he did not live long enough to see the fruition of his endeavours in the creation of an independent Orissa province. He was, as we all know, a kind and unassuming figure who made more friends than enemies, and there is hardly a man in this House or outside who can say that on any occasion Mr. Misra had spoken ill of anybody or had done harm to any one. We will all miss him, and I would request you, Sir, to convey to his family the sentiments of all of us that we share their loss and to express our deep sense of sorrow and regret at his tragic death on this occasion.

Mr. N. N. Anklesaria (Bombay Northern Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Mr. President, it is a great pity that at the very fag end the even tenor of this Session should have been marred by the tragedy of Mr. Misra's death. To every one of us death must come sooner or later ; but to Mr. Misra death has come in somewhat painful circumstances, removed as he was far away from his home and family and from his community of which he was a very prominent and very honoured member. To most Members of this House, who did not know Mr. Misra well, he might have appeared a somewhat perplexing personality ; but to those who knew Mr. Misra intimately, as I claim to have done, Mr. Misra was possessed of very good qualities of head and heart. He was not a great speaker or politician ; but what is much better than being a great politician or a great speaker, he was a thoroughly good natured man, simple hearted, almost like a child, pleased with everybody and almost incapable of being displeased with anybody. Sir, on account of his lack of mastery of the English language, many may have formed an incorrect idea of Mr. Misra. He was, however, well versed in Hindu philosophy and Hindu religion, and it may be of interest to know that he was actually engaged in writing a work on the comparative History of Religions at the time of his death. He was a barrister, and that he was held in high esteem by his community and his province is shown by the fact that he was an elected Member in the first Assembly and that he lost the election in the second Assembly against the Swarajist candidate only by one vote. Sir, in spite of his conservatism in religious matters, he had very progressive ideas, and he was the first man in his community to cross the black waters. I have nothing to add except to say that I join in the tribute of respect for our departed colleague and in the request to you to convey our sympathy and condolence to his bereaved family.

Sir Leslie Hudson (Bombay : European) : Sir, on behalf of myself and my Party, I wish to add my tribute to the memory of our late fellow Member, Mr. Misra, and to associate myself with the remarks which have fallen from the Honourable the Leader of the House and other Honourable Members in regard to the regret which we all feel that he has not been spared to see the fulfilment of his life's labours and desire in the separation of Orissa. By his kindly disposition, he had endeared himself to every one of us in the House, and we shall all miss him.

Nawab Major Malik Talib Mehdi Khan (North Punjab : Muhammadan) : Sir, I associate myself on my own and my Party's behalf with what has been said by previous speakers. I well remember the day when I first came to this House, Mr. Misra asked me to help him in his scheme for the separation of Orissa and I promised to do so. He had a very quiet and unassuming nature and his qualities of head and heart were very great. Again, Sir, after he made his last speech the other day, on the Indianization of the Army, he came out of the House and told me that he could not very well render his speech on account of illness which was afflicting him that day. It is a pity that he has not been spared to see his pet scheme of the separation of Orissa fructifying and to take part in the new order of things to be brought about by it. Sir, we all mourn the loss of a friend who was a jewel covered with slugged stone. Sir, I also request you to convey our sympathy and condolence to his bereaved family.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh (Muzaffarpur cum Champaran : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, as one coming from the province of Bihar and Orissa, I should like to associate myself with all that has been said by the Honourable the Leader of the House, and by other Honourable Members. I remember very well the last illness of Mr. Misra, and when he was suffering from high blood pressure I told him repeatedly to leave Simla and to go down. I even asked my friend, Dr. Dalal, to give him the advice to leave Simla, which Dr. Dalal did ; but his consciousness of duty kept him in Simla and he has died practically in harness. Sir, Mr. Misra was a man of very amiable disposition and of loving nature ; he was very regular in his attendance at the meetings, a lesson which many of us might learn. I would request you, Sir, to convey to the members of the bereaved family an expression of our sincere sorrow and regret at his death under circumstances under which it has taken place in Simla far away from his family members.

Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi (Tirhut Division : Muhammadan) : Sir, it is really an irreparable loss that Orissa has suffered. I know how the people of Orissa had confidence in Mr. Misra and in his labours to bring about the separation of Orissa. He did his very best, and it is a pity that he has not been spared to see the fruition of his labours. I feel very much that I was not able to be present at the funeral pyre, for, had I known about his death a little earlier yesterday, I would have tried to be present in spite of my indisposition. Sir, I wish to associate myself with every word that has fallen from the previous speakers.

Mr. Bhuput Sing (Bihar and Orissa : Landholders) : Sir, being a representative of Bihar and Orissa, I beg to associate myself with all the remarks which have fallen from the previous speakers. Sir, Mr. Misra comes from a very respectable Brahmin family of Orissa, and the people of the new proposed Province of Orissa owe a deep debt of gratitude to him for all that he has done for the creation of a separate Province. He was a very noble soul, and a typical Brahmin with the ideals of plain living and high thinking. I sincerely feel sorry that he could not see the fruition of his work which he had almost completed on ancient history and ancient culture of Orissa which dates many centuries back and which was his life's ambition. He was also a master of Oriya language. Sir, I express my heartfelt condolence to Mrs. Misra and the bereaved family.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : I wish to associate the Chair with the tribute that has been paid to the memory of our late colleague, Mr. B. N. Misra, who was so well loved by all parts of the House. His devotion to duty, of which his regular attendance in this House was an ample proof, may serve as an example to all of us. It shall be my duty to convey to the members of the bereaved family our sense of loss and sympathy on this occasion.

MOTION RE DUES IN RESPECT OF LIGHTHOUSES AND BUOY IN BRITISH INDIA.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore (Commerce Member) : Sir, I move :

"That this Assembly do signify its opinion in pursuance of sub-section (2) of section 670 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894 (57 and 58 Vict., Ch. 60), that the dues imposed by the Order in Council of His Majesty, dated the 17th December, 1931, in respect of the Lighthouses and buoy specified in the Schedule thereto ought to be levied in British India."

This is a motion, Sir, which, I think, will command the acceptance of the House. The position is quite simple, and I think I can explain it very shortly. All civilized maritime nations provide lights where necessary on their coasts for the greater safety of navigation, but it is not fair that the countries themselves should bear the entire cost of this service. It is only fair and equitable that shipping passing by these lights and enjoying the benefits of these aids to navigation should pay a contribution. This is a principle which is accepted by all nations. These dues are collected in the shape of light dues calculated on a tonnage basis. But it is not always easy to collect these dues. Take the particular case with which we are concerned. Ships passing the Leeward Islands and the Bahamas, if they call at a port in the United Kingdom, could and would be made to pay these dues ; but if, for instance, they called at an Indian port and then returned to their home port, it would not be possible to secure the collection of these dues since at the present time we are not authorised to make such collection on behalf of the British authorities. A bar is imposed by clause (2) of section 670 of the Merchant Shipping Act of 1894. That bar, however, can be removed by the House acquiescing in the motion which I have placed before it. I need only add that so far as the collection is concerned we shall levy a commission or charge for making it and the commission will be, I understand, in the neighbourhood of 7½ per cent. I hope the House will accept my motion.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That this Assembly do signify its opinion in pursuance of sub-section (2) of section 670 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894 (57 and 58 Vict., Ch. 60), that the dues imposed by the Order in Council of His Majesty, dated the 17th December, 1931, in respect of the Lighthouses and buoy specified in the Schedule thereto ought to be levied in British India."

The motion was adopted.

THE INDIAN MEDICAL COUNCIL BILL.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai (Secretary, Department of Education, Health and Lands) : Sir, I beg to move :

"That the Bill to establish a Medical Council in India and to provide for the maintenance of a British Indian Medical Register, as reported by the Select Committee, be taken into consideration."

[Mr. G. S. Bajpai.]

that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee, I ventured to remark that the constitution of the Council should not be determined by any pre-conceived notions of political theory but that we should try to give it such a form that it will be able to discharge its functions of educational supervision and educational negotiation with efficiency, and with harmony. We think that ideal is recognised or realised even with the constitution that the Select Committee has proposed. It preserves the correct or the just balance between what might be called the demands of democracy and the demands of education. The third question with which the Select Committee concerned itself was the question of reciprocity. I do not think I can do better than refer Honourable Members to what the Select Committee have to say on the subject in the body of the report. They found that the provision in clause 9 of the Bill as introduced was not sufficiently precise. They have made it more precise. The Indian Medical Council will immediately after its constitution take up with outside bodies the question of the recognition of Indian qualifications and we earnestly hope that the result of its efforts will be a satisfactory solution of the unfortunate differences and difficulties that have arisen in the course of the last few years. Then there is one minor point which might also be mentioned. Honourable Members, especially the representatives of the Andhra Province and the Province of Bihar and Orissa were aggrieved that in the original Bill no attention was paid to the medical qualifications conferred by the University of Patna and the Andhra University.....

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh (Muzaffarpur cum Champaran : Non-Muhammadan) : And Rangoon.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I am confining myself to the qualifications conferred by Patna and the Andhra Universities, because I see two Honourable Members, belonging to these provinces, are anxiously waiting to hear what we have done in this Bill for the recognition of these qualifications. I see also my Honourable friend over there from the land of silk and sunshine waiting to make sure that the interests of his province are not overlooked and therefore I am glad to say that Rangoon also has come within the purview of the Select Committee. The position was this. We felt that on a certain date—1930—certain qualifications were internationally recognised. Others were not internationally recognised. Since then no machinery has been in existence in this country which could testify to the present quality of these medical standards. We do not say that they are not up to the standard. We do not say that the quality is open to objection but the fact nevertheless remains that the task can best be entrusted to and be most competently discharged by a scientifically competent body and that, Sir, is the position which we have expressed in the report, namely, that the position of these qualifications is anomalous and that it will be one of the duties, the first duty indeed of the Council, after it has been constituted, to take up the question of the standards of examination and studies and so on in these Universities. Then let us hope they will include them in the first Schedule to the Bill. There is very little for me to say but I think it is right that I should remind Honourable Members that, in the footnote to paragraph 123, of the proposals for Indian Constitutional Reform there is a reference to the Bill which we are now considering. This is how the reference runs :

"A question which will require separate consideration is with regard to the registration in India of medical practitioners registered in the United Kingdom. A Bill which has an important bearing on this question is at present under the consideration of the Indian Legislature."

Now, Sir, I wish to explain the situation vis-a-vis the Joint Select Committee of Parliament which is seized of the proposals for Indian Constitutional Reform, from which I have just now quoted. The Committee has still to consider the position of British commercial and professional men and they will be entirely free to consider the subject in all its bearings. This is the constitutional position and I have mentioned it, so that there may be no possible misunderstanding on this subject. Before I resume my seat, Sir, I should like to express appreciation on behalf of those who sat on the Select Committee from this side of the House as also on behalf of Government, appreciation of the very legitimate criticism and the impartial effort made by Honourable Members who sat on the Committee from the opposite side for the solution of a very difficult and a very important problem and I believe that the Council, which we are about to bring into being, if it discharges its duties in the spirit in which the Select Committee did it, then there is no reason to doubt that it will discharge its duties with steadfast efficiency and with staunch loyalty to India's honour.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Motion moved :

"That the Bill to establish a Medical Council in India and to provide for the maintenance of a British Indian Medical Register, as reported by the Select Committee, be taken into consideration."

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad (United Provinces Southern Divisions : Muhammadan Rural) : I congratulate the members of the Select Committee for producing a unanimous report on a problem in which the opinion not only in the country but also in this House was hopelessly divided. The amendments that have now been put down are really no amendments, but they only elucidate what is implicitly provided in the Bill itself.

I take this opportunity to draw the attention of the House to a few points. The first question I take is the question of hospitals which are attached to the Medical Colleges. We now find in practice that the hospitals attached to the Medical Colleges are of the same type as the hospitals maintained for charitable purposes either by the Government or by local authorities or individuals ; but it should be clearly understood that the hospitals attached to Medical Colleges are not hospitals in ordinary sense but they are scientific clinics. They ought to be very different from the hospitals maintained for charitable purposes. Now, we have a very good example of these scientific clinics in two or three places. In the first instance, I mention Vienna whose hospital is really a scientific clinic. Then I mention Edinburgh and a few Universities in America, especially Harvard University. These are really very good examples of scientific clinics and we should make every effort that our hospitals should approach these institutions. They should not compete the ordinary charitable hospitals. The kind of cases which ought to come in these Medical College hospitals should be the cases, whose diagnosis and treatment may form the history of the medical science, and they ought to keep up a very high standard in equipments, treatments and comforts. In this connection, I would like to refer to a book written by Mr. Flexner who himself is a medical man and who has compared the Universities of America with those in the United Kingdom and Germany. He has in his book mentioned the differences between the hospitals which are charitable institutions and the hospitals which are maintained by the Medical Colleges. I hope that this Medical Council, when it is established, will take these points into its consideration and try to maintain a very high standard in all the hospitals attached to these Medical Colleges. In order to do so, I would like to emphasise two facts. In the first place, the Medical College staff should not be entitled to receive any fee for any service rendered to the patients. I think this is a very important point. Any money that might be paid by the rich patients must go to the general fund. It should be deposited in a box and should not be the property of individuals. When I will move my amendment, I will cite cases to show how this privilege is misused in one particular University and in one particular Medical College. At the present moment I shall confine myself to the general remark that the staff of the Medical College should be paid sufficiently well. They should be paid with consideration that they are not entitled to any kind of fee or remuneration for services rendered to any patients inside the Medical College. The only fee to which they should be entitled is the fee which they get when they are invited by ordinary medical practitioners for consultation. I press these points for two reasons. In the first place, it is important in the interests of the efficiency of the Medical Colleges, if we really want to make them scientific clinics. In the second place, it is unfair to make the staff of the Medical College compete on unfair terms with private practitioners. The private practitioners are already handicapped and should not be further handicapped by unfair competition with the staff of the Medical Colleges who have got up-to-date expensive equipments at the expense of the Government at their disposal.

The next point to which I would like to draw the attention of the House is the question of inspection. In this connection also my remarks will be rather of a general nature and will be applicable not only to the teaching of medicine but to the teaching of all other subjects. In the Universities Act of 1904, there was a provision about the inspection of colleges by Universities. Now, this was a very wholesome provision. These Colleges after five years were inspected by the University Inspectors. They gave friendly advice and thus the standard of teaching was maintained at fairly high level. This provision continued to work satisfactorily, but unfortunately in the modern Universities which we enacted on the recommendation of the Calcutta University Commission this wholesome provision was entirely omitted. It was omitted because the Grants Committee came into existence in the United Kingdom in 1919, that is to say, two years after the report of the Commission was published. In the United Kingdom in the year 1919 under the influence of Sir William Carmick, the Grants Committee was established and this Committee is now doing very useful work in connection with the British Universities. This Committee consists of members who have got great University experience but none of them is directly connected with any University. Now, this Committee periodically inspects every University, gives friendly advice and by the timely advice the defects which the Universities may have are at once removed. The Government gives grants to various Universities on the recommendations of this Committee. I have reason to believe from my personal knowledge that this Committee is doing very useful work in raising the status and general level of the University education. In place of this periodic inspection provided in our Universities Act of 1904, we have got provision of Committees of Inquiry in our Mordern Acts. This Committee of Inquiry is quite different from the Inspection Committee which visits Universities periodically as a matter of routine. It examines very carefully and gives friendly advice to the Universities in time, and their defects are removed. On the other hand our Committee of Inquiry is a punitive measure and is administered as a kind of punishment to the Universities and instead of doing any good to the Universities they do them positive harm. I do not want to go into details at this stage but if any one will challenge me on this statement, then beginning from Calcutta University to the Punjab University, I will illustrate by facts the harm they have done. As we are not concerned with the Universities in general in this Bill but we are concerned with the Medical Faculty only, I would like to emphasise that the Medical Council should institute Inspection Committees very much on the lines of the Grants Committee. It should consist of Inspectors who may periodically inspect these various Medical Colleges and submit their periodical report. It is essential that the Inspectors should be men with plenty of University experience and should not be men engaged in teaching in any University. This has been found to be practical in other countries and there is no reason why it should not be found practical in India. This provision may either be made in the Act itself or perhaps it might be made in the by-laws that may be framed under this Act.

The third point to which I would like to draw the attention of the House is the question of administration of these colleges. I am very strongly of opinion that all academic matters such as the prescribing the courses of studies, the teaching, the conduct of examinations and the standard of education, should be left in the hands of the academic men, but the administrative matters, such as, the appointment and the promotion of the staff, should be left in the hands of the non-academic men who should be persons who are not themselves the teachers in the same University. This remark applies not only to the Medical Colleges but also to Universities in general. We have got the example of one Medical College in India where we have tried this experiment of handing over the administration of the college to the academic officers which has singularly failed. I will refer to it in detail when I move my amendment on the subject. The Lucknow University is the only example, not only in India but probably in the whole world which is administered entirely by the staff of the University and the illustrations which I will give to the House when I move my amendment will show that it has singularly failed, and that the administration like other Medical Colleges should be taken over by the Government. I have studied University administration of practically every University in the world in connection with my book and I can find no example where the appointment of the staff is left in the hands of the teachers themselves except perhaps the examples of Oxford and Cambridge where the appointments are made by the members of the staff. But the conditions there are entirely different. In the first place, they first elect a fellow and the fellowship is very much like the scholarships which are awarded to men of their own colleges, and very often on the result of a rigorous examination. As the fellowships are practically reserved for men of their own colleges the selection could not be in the hands of any person except the staff of their own college. From these fellows they elect one or two teachers of the colleges and there also the selection is very close but when they come to appointments which are wide open namely professorships, they are made by the King and not by the staff of the University except in certain cases....

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce (Member for Industries and Labour) : I must correct the Honourable Member on that point. Very few Professors at Oxford and Cambridge are appointed by the King.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I do not challenge the statement of my Honourable friend about number. I was speaking from memory. Professors are usually appointed by the King. I quite admit that there are certain professorships in which the special conditions are laid down by the Donors. The Donors have mentioned that appointments should be made in a particular manner and these are exceptions. As regards the Chairs created by University or endowed by Government, the case is different. I leave the detailed discussions because the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge are in a class by themselves and they have a tradition of 700 years. The Universities, like the British Houses of Parliament, cannot be copied by any other country. There are other Universities in the United Kingdom, such as the Midland Universities. There we find that they don't have in the Executive Council even the Vice-Chancellor if he is a paid officer. The President of the Executive Council which controls the finances is the person who is not engaged in actual teaching work of the University and is often a business man of great reputation.

Coming to France and Germany you will find that all appointments in the University are made by the Minister of Education. In France, all the major appointments are made by the Minister of Education. Though it is very important that all academic matters should be left in the hands of teachers, but it is equally important that all financial matters and all administrative matters must be left in the hands of persons who are not actually engaged in teaching work in that particular University. The points to which I have drawn the attention of the House are, (1) the standard of hospitals attached to Medical Colleges should be raised ; (2) that inspection should be similar to the inspection by the Grants Committee in the United Kingdom and it should not be a punitive measure like the Enquiry Committee in modern Indian Universities of India ; (3) that financial administration should be in the hands of persons who are not actually teachers in that particular college or University. In conclusion, I will congratulate once more all the members of the Select Committee for solving the vexed question of the registration of medical graduates. In my first speech I said that it was not desirable to register the individuals but we should try to recognise the Universities. The Select Committee acted really in a more generous way and the decision arrived at is really one with which I entirely agree. Coming to the constitution of the Medical Council, since the report is unanimous I accept its deliberation but personally I would not agree to a constitution which they have presented. But I do not raise any objection simply because the opinion of the Select Committee is unanimous. I have full trust in the members who formed the Select Committee and I am perhaps alone with a minority of one in not agreeing with the proposed constitution of the Council. As regards inspection I entirely agree with the recommendation of the Committee. I have got two or three amendments which are really of a verbal nature and they only mention explicitly what is implicitly provided for, but I will not press any of my amendments to vote.

Dr. R. D. Dalal (Nominated Non-Official) : Sir, on the motion to refer the Medical Council Bill to a Select Committee, I travelled so thoroughly over most of the ground that it is unnecessary to weary the House with any long speech. In my previous speech on the Medical Council Bill at the Delhi Session I paid a just tribute to the General Medical Council for the important part the Council had played in bringing University medical education in India to its present high standard ; and I was then taken to task and subjected to a chorus of denunciation, and poisoned darts were thrown at me. Sir, I have not one word to say in derogation of those who may hold opposite views ; but I would point out that it often happens that small minds can be most bitter in speech, and they count it no derogation to be so. However that may be, it is a relief to turn from this unpleasant point and to say that I rejoice that there seems a good prospect of the formation of a self-governing and independent organisation for the regulation of University medical education in India, which in the past had been subjected to outside control by the General Medical Council, and that the creation of a competent body such as the Medical Council provided for by this Bill will remove what has admittedly been the chief obstacle to restoring the reciprocity between India and Great Britain, which obtained until February, 1930. Sir, in this connection may I be permitted to remind this Honourable House of the lesson which the Free State of Ireland teaches us. It is interesting to study the history of the negotiations which have taken place between the Free State of Ireland and the General Medical Council. The Free State of Ireland desired to be completely independent of the General Medical Council ; but very soon the medical profession in Ireland discovered that it was very much in their interests to retain that connection. If rash and misguided counsels will prevail, India will undoubtedly have the same experience.

Sir, everyone must recognise the devoted services rendered by the licentiates—the men who come into contact with suffering and who come to the relief of the poor and who carry the torch of western medicine into remote corners of rural areas. But, I must confess that I feel much relieved that the Select Committee have avoided one peril. That is the peril of inclusion of licentiates within the scope of the Bill ; and I need hardly point out that that peril would have proved the grave of this measure. Section 11 of this Bill secures that there shall be no bar to the admission of an improved licentiates' qualification ; so the proper line of action for

[Mr. G. S. Bajpai.]

It will be within the recollection of Honourable Members that this Bill as introduced, was, not only exhaustively, but, if one might be flippant, exhaustingly discussed in the last Session of the Assembly. Every aspect of the subject, whether it was medical ethics or medical education, came under searching scrutiny. The three vital points which emerged from the discussion were, first, whether licentiates should be included or excluded from the scope of the Bill; second, whether the constitution of the Council needed any modification; and third, whether the provision made in the Bill in respect of reciprocity was adequate. I shall take these points in the order in which I have enumerated them. First, the question of licentiates. It was made abundantly clear on behalf of the Government during the discussion that the limitation of the scope of the Bill to higher medical education, that is to say, the education of medical graduates, was due to constitutional and financial reasons. Constitutionally the position was that Local Governments were unwilling to part with their powers except in respect of higher medical education.

The financial exigencies of extending medical relief to our vast rural areas made it impracticable that the standard of education of the licentiates should be brought up to the level of the education of medical graduates. Nevertheless, we undertook, as a sign of our goodwill towards this important body of medical practitioners in this country, to sound Local Governments and ascertain whether there was any way in which we could assist them in the task of the educational reform for licentiates, assuming that there was a consensus of desire that there should be such a reform. In pursuance of that undertaking we consulted Local Governments. We asked them first whether they wished the Government of India to undertake an enquiry in order to ascertain whether the standards of education of licentiates in the different provinces were uniform, and secondly, if they suggested or favoured such an enquiry, to indicate whether they thought that there was any way in which the Government of India could assist them to establish uniformity where diversity existed. We were anxious further that the replies of the Local Governments should be available to the Government of India before the Select Committee met so that they should be in a position also to consider the replies of the Local Governments and make suggestions to us whether any action on our part was necessary. The replies fortunately were received in time and we put them before the Select Committee to which the Bill as introduced in this House was referred. With the exception of two Local Governments none was in favour of an enquiry because they thought that in the financial circumstances of the country it would be impossible for them to take any action upon any recommendations which the Committee of Enquiry might make. The two Local Governments which were in favour of the enquiry also recognised this difficulty, but on the principle that if somebody else pays they need not deny themselves the advantage or the credit of having had an enquiry into the question. They said that they would be quite willing if the Government of India undertook the enquiry.

An Honourable Member: Who were they?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai: The Government of Bombay was one, and I think the Government of the Punjab was the other. Well, Sir, the Select Committee were in agreement with the view of the representatives of the Government on that Committee that this kind of commitment, namely, expenditure from central revenues in our financial situation upon an investigation the results of which would lead to no practical advantage for an indefinite period, was hardly justified. The question, Sir, then which the Committee had to apply themselves to was, whether there were any provisions of the Bill which needed modification or omission in order to remove all sense of legitimate grievance from the minds of the licentiates? The view of the Government had all along been that the fact that we proposed to maintain an all-India Register from which the licentiates would be excluded was neither intended, nor would it have the effect of imposing any hardship or disability upon them. But, Sir, the Committee came to the conclusion that even though the objection of the licentiates might be sentimental, if the register was not vital to the main scheme or structure of the Bill, there was no reason why the register should be kept. Therefore, they came, after a careful scrutiny of the Bill, to the conclusion that all provisions in the Bill as introduced, relating to the maintenance of a register, and provisions incidental thereto should be deleted. The Bill which is now before the House, the amended Bill, gives effect to the recommendations of the Committee in this respect. I may say on behalf of the Government that we accept the proposals made by the Select Committee in this respect, and I hope that this will afford ample proof that we are animated by no desire to hurt or hamper this important body of medical practitioners, namely, the licentiates.

The second part of the Bill which needed close examination related to the constitution of the Council. Objection had been taken to the Bill as introduced on three grounds; first, that it provided for a perpetually nominated President; secondly, that so far as medical faculties of Universities were concerned, instead of making each British Indian University with such a faculty the constituency for electing to the Council, we intended to make the province, even though there were more than one such University, the constituency for this purpose, and further that we intended to keep the constituency extremely official by limiting the choice of representatives to the Council to members of the Medical Faculties; and thirdly, the ground on which objection had been taken to the provisions for the constitution of the Council was that medical graduates were not getting direct representation but that we were, instead, resorting to indirect election and a very narrow channel at that, namely, Provincial Committees which it was proposed to set up from the Provincial Medical Councils. The Bill, Sir, as amended and now before the House has made important changes in regard to each one of these points. After the first four years the Council will elect its President. Then, instead of the province being the unit, every British Indian University which has a Medical Faculty, will elect its representatives and the election will be made not by the Medical Faculty but by the Senate or whatever the corresponding body of the University may be. Thirdly, the medical graduates enrolled on the Provincial Registers, in fact all people who hold recognised qualifications under this Act if it becomes law, or qualifications of British Indian Universities, will be able to participate in the elections to the Council. When I made my motion the licentiates is to press for improvements in the standards of their course of training and examinations ; and the Medical Council provides the best prospect for the improvement of their status.

12 NOON.

I hope nothing will happen to mar the progress of this Bill. After this Bill is passed and has received the assent of the Governor General, I would suggest that the Government of India should get the Medical Council into operation as soon as possible with the least possible delay ; and they should institute a minute inquiry into the existing standards of education of licentiates in various provinces. After the report of the Committee is considered by the Medical Council, the Council should lay down a minimum standard of education of licentiates—a standard which will be acceptable to other countries with which reciprocity is to be claimed. The provinces will then work up to that standard ; and if any province has reached that standard, it will apply to the Council for recognition. Sir, at first apparently this Bill had hardly any prospect of passing ; now suddenly and unexpectedly harmony prevails. It may be asked, what is this singular phenomenon due to ? Let me explain. The licentiates organised opposition and resisted to the utmost a measure which they felt and believed constituted a deadly blow to their prestige. Against this formidable opposition the Honourable the Education Member employed talents of persuasion, and displayed qualities of courage, resilience, and resource ; and owing to substantial changes in the character of the Bill the probability of this Bill becoming law amounts almost to certainty. I congratulate the Honourable Sir Fazl-i-Husain on the prospect of securing the passage into law of this useful Bill ; and I hope the success the Honourable Member is likely to achieve in this instance will be an encouragement to him to pursue his efforts on behalf of the medical profession and the public, and to initiate legislation as to Drugs Act, Pharmacy Act, Ministry of Health Act, and so on, and to exercise the same energy and pertinacity. Sir, every one will admit that the Honourable the Education Member has taken a deep interest in this Bill, and has all along striven hard to settle this difficult and long-vexed question. I am a graduate in medicine of the University of Bombay ; and on behalf of the medical graduates in India and on behalf of myself, however strenuously I endeavour to express our thanks to the Honourable Sir Fazl-i-Husain, I feel that my words must be inadequate to represent the depth and sincerity of our feelings towards him. I can only say that we are deeply grateful to him, and that we warmly appreciate his kind efforts on behalf of the medical profession in India. Sir, I support this Bill on account of the strong belief I hold that it will confer great benefits upon the public generally and on the whole medical profession in India ; and I feel confident that this Bill will prove worthy of its place on the Statute-book.

Now, Sir, if you will permit me, I shall just say one word as regards the allegations made by my Honourable friend, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, in respect of the Medical College Hospital at Lucknow.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad has given an undertaking to refer to that matter when he moves his amendment.

Dr. R. D. Dalal : Then I will speak on the amendment, Sir.

Mr. S. G. Jog (Berar Representative) : Sir, I must confess at the outset that I am not a doctor. At the same time, I must say that I have got much to do with the medical profession as a patient, and I hope the House will not be impatient, and will bear with me for some time.

This Medical Council Bill has for the last two years provoked much discussion throughout the length and breadth of the country. It has given a sort of convulsion to this medical profession at large and for the last two years they have been practically flooded with so many suggestions and so many amendments that the medical profession at large wanted to condemn us if the House did not throw out the Bill. They all along said that this was an aggression on the medical profession in India and, instead of giving medical Swaraj to India, Government were practically having their own way and setting up a body mostly at the dictation of the General Medical Council in England with a view to killing the medical profession in India. How far this attitude of the medical profession is justifiable is really open to grave doubt. The real criticism of the Bill came on account of the policy of segregation of the licentiates who form a great number in this country and who have rendered great medical services to the people ; and this was considered by the people at large as a great injustice to such a big class. It is no doubt true that Government had and have still got a step-motherly attitude towards the licentiates. They have got some prejudices against this class in general and I think their prejudice was more or less responsible for the views expressed in England by the General Medical Council. I find that in this matter dictation has come not only from above, but the Government of India, instead of asserting their wishes, are also getting pressure from below, I mean the Provincial Governments. I find that the Government of India have surrendered their wishes to the Medical Council and to the Provincial Governments. The Provincial Governments have raised many difficulties and they did not take up the case of the licentiates as they ought to have done. It is no doubt true that now, since this Bill has emerged from the Select Committee, this bone of contention about the licentiates has been skilfully removed by the surgeon in charge of this Bill ; but I think it has still left some poison behind it. You will find that the licentiates have not been given any recognition in this Bill. In the provincial registers, both the provincial graduates as well as the licentiates appear. If the medical advancement of India is desired by the Movers of the Bill, is it not necessary that these medical licentiates should have some voice in the election of persons to the Medical Council ? The Member in Charge is shaking his head and showing a sort of denial. But these licentiates have rendered great services to the country and they have been held in very high esteem, not only by those who do not belong to the profession, but even by those who belong to the profession. I would like to read only one certificate and that will convince the House. The opinion of Sir Abdulla Suhrawardy, the Vice-Chancellor of the Calcutta University and the Chief Medical Officer of the East Indian Railway, will show you that the licentiates of India are in no way inferior to their brethren in the foreign countries who are being enrolled on the Indian Medical Council Bill, and a grave injustice is being perpetrated on the licentiates of India, due to vested interests. This is what Sir Abdulla Suhrawardy said.....

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Sir Hasan Suhrawardy, not Sir Abdulla Suhrawardy.

Mr. S. G. Jog : Anyway he is his brother and must be airing his views also. He said :

"There may be diversity of opinion on the point, but still, from my own experience, the opinion that I have formed about licentiates is this..... Now, what I have formed is that amongst what we call the sub-assistant surgeon class, there are men whose knowledge of medicine, surgery and midwifery is as good as that of any product of any University. I can now clearly see that my colleagues today who are called sub-assistant surgeons have gone up more than 200 per cent. in their efficiency and standard of education. I feel that they are just as good as any L. R. C. P. the product of extra-mural institutions of British Isles.....if they are on Provincial Council's registers, then, for the sake of uniformity, why they should not be on the all-India register."

I do not see any reason why, if these licentiates are on the provincial register, they should have no voice in the election of people. This is one grievance which I want to be remedied.

Another point I would like to raise is this. Even as regards the medical graduates, the attitude of the Government and of this Bill is not at all satisfactory. What is the provision concerning them ? I find various barriers put in the way of their election and nomination. What is the result of that ? If this Bill is meant to be on democratic lines, what is the provision for the medical practitioners ? I am reading from clause 5. You have imposed a condition that :

"No person shall be eligible for nomination or election under clause (a) or (b) of sub-section (1) of section 3 unless he possesses a recognised medical qualification or a medical qualification granted by a British Indian University and no person shall be eligible for nomination under clause (a) of sub-section (1) of section 3 unless he resides in the province concerned, and, where a Provincial Medical Register is maintained in that province, unless he is enrolled on that register."

To this I have no objection. But, then comes (3) :

"No person shall be eligible for election under clause (b) of sub-section (1) of section 3 unless he has had at least four years' experience as a Professor, Assistant Professor, Lecturer or Reader in Medical Colleges or Schools."

I say, these people, the private medical practitioners, have to put in four or five years in a Medical College and then they have to earn something for their existence. It is very difficult for these medical graduates to get any professorship or lecturership in order to make themselves eligible for this election. They have to take to private practice as soon as they finish their course, and I need not tell you what is the number of medical practitioners throughout India. What will happen to them ? After four or five or six years in practice, what is their position ? Will they be ever eligible for nomination or election to this body ? They will never be eligible. In four or five years do you expect them to become professors or lecturers ? In the beginning it is not possible for them to get any job like that ; and, after they are settled in practice, they will not take to any lecturership or professorship. Therefore, so far as these practitioners are concerned, they will have absolutely no voice in this Medical Council.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I think my Honourable friend has not looked at sub-clause (c) of clause 3 (1).

Mr. S. G. Jog : I do not know whether (c) is to be read as subject to 5 (3).

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : No.

Mr. S. G. Jog : Then I stand corrected. I have given a few amendments, and I will take a little more time to consider whether I should move them when the proper time comes ; but I should like to tell the House that the purport of my amendments is, as I have said just now, that the licentiates, although they may not be eligible for election, even if they are on the register, should at least have the right of vote for selecting a man in whom they have confidence. There is nothing strange in this suggestion. In many bodies there are provisions like this. A man may not be eligible to be elected himself ; but he should have a voice at least in selecting a man in whom they will have confidence and we will be doing a great service to the licentiates if this could be done. If this suggestion is carried out, I think we will be rendering some useful service and showing some recognition of these licentiates as a whole. They should certainly have a voice in the medical advancement of India. My friend has pointed out that section 11—Recognition of medical qualifications granted by medical institutions in British India—does this. But the medical licentiates do not figure at all in this Bill and it is without doubt a grave injustice. But I for one have got faith in the future, and I for one have got faith in the good wishes and intentions of Government. When the matter comes to be reviewed and revised, I hope your angle of vision and attitude towards these licentiates will and should undergo a change and that you will take a more friendly view and, when the time comes, you will recognise these licentiates. So far as their course is concerned, I personally know that many of them hold very good qualifications. It is difficult nowadays to get admission into the Medical Colleges, and students who have passed the Previous and Intermediate attend these schools : unfortunately, they do find it difficult to get admission into the colleges ; but the course is for four years and at Poona and many other places the training is very efficient. There is no ground, therefore, for denying them these facilities. There are many licentiates who have risen to the post of Assistant Civil Surgeons and I can safely give this assurance that many of these Sub-Assistant Surgeons are far superior to these people of five or ten years' standing who come from the Medical Colleges. Therefore, your angle of vision must be changed so far as the licentiates are concerned, and when the time comes, I am sure, their merits and their qualifications will be fully recognised. With these few remarks, I commend the Report of the Select Committee. Sir, I may tell the House that there is great commotion in the country, there is great commotion among medical men in this country, and I must offer my thanks to those members of the Select Committee who laboured hard for bringing about a unanimous Report. Sir, I strongly support the motion that the Select Committee's Report be taken into consideration.

Mr. B. Sitaramaraju (Ganjam cum Vizagapatam : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Mr. President, as a member of the Select Committee, I have to thank my friend, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, even for the left handed compliment he paid us, but if any compliment has to be paid to anybody, I think it is due to my Honourable friend, Mr. Bajpai, who has successfully piloted this Bill, and to his able chief, the Honourable Sir Fazl-i-Husain (Applause), not so much because of the provisions of the Bill as recommended by the Select Committee, because we claim, we have as much a share in their shaping as they have, but because they have been able to carry the opposition with them in this matter, and, I am sure, it must be a source of great gratification both to Mr. Bajpai and to his able chief. Sir, nothing in this world appears to be quite happy always. Even in this debate, my friend, Mr. Bajpai, has introduced a disturbing element, I should say, when he referred to the following passage, a footnote in the White Paper proposals. It is not necessary for me, Sir, to read again the little footnote, but this much I have to say that this footnote says that the question which will require separate consideration arises in regard to the registration in India of medical qualifications. This footnote occurs after a provision made in the White Paper proposals regarding the reciprocal treatment to be accorded to Indians. Paragraph 123 of the White Paper proposals says as follows :

"The Federal Legislature and the Provincial Legislatures will have no power to make laws subjecting any British subject domiciled in the United Kingdom to any disability or discrimination in the exercise of certain specified rights. If an Indian subject of His Majesty or a company, etc., constituted by or under a federal provincial law as the case may be would not in the exercise of his right in the United Kingdom a corresponding right be subject to any disability or discrimination....etc."

Further, Sir, with regard to companies, a similar provision in regard to reciprocity is made. Here this footnote says, when these White Paper proposals were drafted, the Government in England took note of the fact that we had before us this legislation, and they say that the question will be separately considered. Beyond that, it does not say anything.

Sir, Honourable Members are aware that reciprocity, absolute reciprocity, is the basis of this measure. We claim that we should be treated in the same manner by other countries as they would like us to treat them. When these White Paper proposals were made, no doubt His Majesty's Government was well aware of the fact that this legislation provided a scheme of reciprocity. At the same time, it must be remembered that when we referred the provisions of this Bill to the Select Committee, we were equally well aware, as the Government were, what the White Paper proposals were, because those proposals were published before the motion to refer the Bill to Select Committee was passed by the House. I do realise, Sir, our constitutional position. I cannot deny the right of His Majesty's Government and the British Parliament to pass any legislation that they may think proper, but I do say this much, that, on the question of reciprocity, we are all at one, the whole country is behind us, in holding that we will not be prepared to accept any scheme which does not confer on us absolute reciprocity. We are not prepared to accept that, and I would like to inform the Government Members, and, through them, His Majesty's Government, that they should take note of the fact that we in this country are absolutely determined to have absolute reciprocity in this matter without which, Sir, this Bill is not worth the paper on which it is written. After all, the Provincial Governments, who were consulted in this matter, laid stress on the fact that there should be absolute reciprocity if the provisions of the Bill were to be of any use at all, and the Madras Government, in particular, has drawn pointed attention to the fact that if you do not give effect to the recommendations of the Simla Commission, where they claim absolute reciprocity from the day on which the Act is to come into existence, they would rather have the Bill dropped. What did the Select Committee do ? They did not go even the length to which the Madras Government was prepared to go. The Select Committee did realise that if tomorrow we insist upon absolute reciprocity, there may be difficulty to people actually following the profession here now who possess European degrees and other foreign degrees, because those men will have to be disqualified for want of simultaneous treatment forthcoming from those countries, and, therefore, a period of four years was given. That was the most reasonable thing that we on the floor of this House could do, and that was done. I need not dilate on the point raised by my friend, Mr. Jog, about the licentiates. Honourable Members are perfectly well aware that when we accepted the motion to refer this Bill to the Select Committee, this Assembly accepted one principle, and that principle was accepted, whether rightly or wrongly. And what was that principle ? To provide an All-India Register and Council for higher medical education. I am not going into the question whether the Assembly was right in making it the principle, but that was the principle of the Bill, which was accepted, and, therefore, owing to the limitation placed upon the members of the Select Committee, they had to follow that principle which was accepted by the House, whether any in the Committee approved of it or not. Therefore, when the question of the Register has been dropped absolutely, I think all that could be done had been done so far as the status and recognition of the licentiates were concerned. More cannot be expected under the circumstances. Sir, I have done.

Mr. K. P. Thampan (West Coast and Nilgiris : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I wish to say a few words at this stage, and, in doing so, I shall be as brief as possible. Honourable Members of the House might remember that at the Second Reading of the Bill, I said that the Council, as it was originally proposed to be constituted, would be a packed body of officials. Of course, certain alterations have been made in the Select Committee. But, Sir, I am not yet satisfied. You will find four classes of members according to clause 3 of the Bill. The first is : "one member from each Governor's Province, to be nominated by the Local Government of the province." It is obvious that members who are nominated by Local Governments would be officials. The second class of members is dealt with in clause 3 (1) (b) which says : "one member from each British Indian University, to be elected by the members of the Senate of the University from amongst the members of the Medical Faculty of the University." On the face of it, it looks all right, but, further down, if you look at sub-clause (3) of clause 5, it is stated :

"No person shall be eligible for election under clause (b) of sub-section (1) of section 3 unless he has had at least four years' experience as a Professor, Assistant Professor, Lecturer or Reader in Medical Colleges or Schools."

That means that at least, so far as the Madras Presidency is concerned, no non-official member will come in. You know that in the Presidency from which we come there are no private medical institutions. All the Medical Schools and Colleges are owned by the Government, and naturally it is only Government servants that are engaged there for the purpose of teaching. No non-official medical practitioner, however efficient he may be, is allowed to do any kind of teaching in those schools or colleges. So far as Madras is concerned, with which I am familiar, I am certain, there are no private medical practitioners coming under clause 3 (1) (b). The effect of that would be that men like the late Dr. Nair, who was a distinguished medical practitioner, would have no chance of coming into the Medical Council. There are distinguished men like Dr. Rangachariar, Dr. Guruswami and others who are acknowledged experts in surgery and other branches of medical science, but so long as they have no teaching experience they will have no place here according to these provisions. That is an aspect of the matter against which I must enter my emphatic protest. The third class of members of the Council is dealt with in (c) of clause 3 (1), and it lays down " one member from each province where a Provincial Medical Register is maintained ". Probably some people elected under this clause may be non-official medical practitioners, but one cannot be certain about that also. The last class is dealt with in (d) : " three members to be nominated by the Governor General in Council ". They are sure to be officials.

[Mr. K. P. Thampan.]

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Why ?

Mr. K. P. Thampan : Because Government have their own purpose to serve and there is a brotherhood among the service. I am, therefore, afraid that the Bill, inspite of the changes made in the Select Committee, aims again to create a packed body of officials. It does not at all liberalise the constitution. Further, sub-clause (2) of clause 4 says :

" Where any dispute arises regarding any election to the Council, it shall be referred to the Local Government whose decision shall be final."

Generally, in all elections, such disputes are referred to a special tribunal consisting of people who have got some kind of judicial experience. Here it is entrusted purely to the Local Government. That, again, aims at entrusting such matters into the hands of officials, and, naturally, as our experience tells us, the chances are, whenever there is a dispute between an official and a non-official, the Local Government will prefer only the official. So, on the whole, I am afraid that it is not a very happy constitution which is provided in this Bill. One does not feel any enthusiasm over it. So much with regard to the constitution.

It ill becomes one to criticise the details of a measure on which there has been a unanimous agreement in the Select Committee. I will not, therefore, raise any new issues at these stage, but I must say one word with reference to the lack of any specific provision for the fund for defraying the expenses of this Medical Council. I am told the cost of this Medical Council would be about Rs. 60,000, and it has to be taken for granted that the general taxpayer.....

The Honourable Khan Bahadur Mian Sir Fazl-i-Husain (Member for Education, Health and Lands) : Will the Madras Government be willing to pay ?

Mr. K. P. Thampan : Did the Honourable Member consult the Madras Government or the Madras University ? I want a categorical answer.

The Honourable Khan Bahadur Mian Sir Fazl-i-Husain : No.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : Both education and medicine are Provincial matters and if you ask, they may probably give. Apart from that, I am very much against the taxpayer being mulcted with these expenses. In the first place, as long as the step-motherly treatment that the Government have been giving to the Unani and Ayurvedic systems of medicine is continued, I am against making any distinction in favour of allopathic system of treatment. The Unani and Ayurvedic systems are indigenous systems and more suitable to the conditions of the country, but, on account of the neglect of the Government, they have very much deteriorated. As a matter of fact, no progress has been made during the last three or four centuries. On the other hand, the allopathic system, belonging as it does to the ruling class here, is given every kind of patronage and encouragement. That is an objectionable thing, and I am against making any contribution from the general taxes for the allopathic system of treatment. Further, this Bill benefits only a few students who go for higher studies to England. The proper body to foot the bill is, therefore, the University, and I trust that Universities and Local Governments will not be indifferent in this matter.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : University's money is taxpayer's money.

Mr. K. P. Thampan : Not entirely ; they have their own resources such as examination fees, endowments, etc. There are a few other minor matters also which have to be remedied. Sir, you will find I have given notice of relevant amendments in connection with these aspects, but, as I said, the matter being one on which an unanimous agreement was arrived at in the Select Committee, I do not want to sound a discordant note. They can be amended afterwards in the light of the experience we gain by working the Act for some time.

(At this stage, the Honourable Khan Bahadur Mian Sir Fazl-i-Husain rose in his seat to speak.)

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Will the Honourable Member finish in five minutes, or would he prefer to speak after Lunch ?

The Honourable Khan Bahadur Mian Sir Fazl-i-Husain : I may take about ten minutes,—not more than that.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Sir Fazl-i-Husain.

The Honourable Khan Bahadur Mian Sir Fazl-i-Husain : Sir, I very much appreciate the spirit in which today's debate has been conducted. The House has very successfully entered into the spirit in which the Select Committee set to work and achieved the result—an agreed report. Various explanations have been given of the way in which this result was achieved. All the explanations given up till now are very wide of the mark, and I should not like the House to remain under any misapprehension as to the real cause. The real cause is this. This legislation has been in hand for the last four years. It was opposed by provinces, by the profession and by non-official bodies. There was no one really who stood for it except perhaps the Department which was responsible for it four years ago. Then, how is it that we have arrived at an agreed report and a report which the House has honoured by treating as an agreed report acceptable to it, and possibly without subjecting it to amendments. I must confess that it has been entirely due to my weakness. Seeing the stalwarts of the Opposition ranged against me in the Select Committee, there was no course open for me but to retire all along the line and the result has been an agreed report. That is an achievement of which one cannot be very proud, but still it is much better to tell the truth rather than take credit for something which one has not done. For instance, the Opposition were very keen that the Council shall not have a nominated President. I had to give way and say : " All right, have your way ". They were very keen that they shall have direct representation of the medical graduates to the Council. I felt that that was not the correct thing to do, but, under pressure, I gave way again. Again I felt that representatives of the Medical Faculty should be elected by the Faculty. They again pressed hard and said, the Senate shall elect. I again gave way.

Mr. B. Sitaramaraju : Did you give anything more than what you gave in your last speech ?

The Honourable Khan Bahadur Mian Sir Fazl-i-Husain : I gave nothing away in my speech. I never make speeches to give away anything. In my speech I only tried to explain matters. However, Sir, this is a story of surrender from point to point, but, when I make that confession, I further wish to add that I am not ashamed of it. I felt that the object I had in mind was also the object which Honourable Members opposite had in mind. With that identity of object, we had just to modify the usual principle of give and take by my giving and their taking. Still I think the result is on the whole not unsatisfactory. The measure which will be passed with the unanimous support of the non-official section of this House stands a much better chance of making a success of itself than would have been the case, had I resisted these amendments and carried them by a majority. It was not worth it and that was really the reason how I justified to myself this retreat all along the line. The object of the Bill is efficiency at home and honour abroad. (Applause.) We want our medical institutions to be run efficiently, to be run in a way as to attract scholars of medicine from abroad, if not in all subjects, at all events in some subjects. Given that efficiency at home, is there any reason why we should not command honour abroad ? I am sure, Sir, we will.

Something has been said about the vexed question of licentiates. Let me once more give an assurance to the House that there is no one in the House more anxious to make sure that the licentiate education is on a sound basis than myself. And why ? Because, licentiates deal with a much larger section of the Indian population than graduates do ; and no one would be true to his duty who did not make sure that their instruction was as high as the circumstances would permit, and that those who rendered this service to such a large section of Indian people would be placed in as good and honourable a position as circumstances permitted. I will not detain the House by reviewing the speeches made this morning. I am sure, my friend, Dr. Ziauddin's observations will be read with great interest by Provincial Governments so far as their administration of hospitals and colleges is concerned and I have no doubt that scholars interested in education generally will benefit by his observations. As to the desire to improve the lot of the licentiates, I think I have made Government's position clear. As regards my friend, Mr. Thampan's ideas about finances, I may remind him that when we made an inquiry from the Madras Government as to whether they would be prepared to tell us what form their co-operation will take as to the inquiry to be made into the education of licentiates, they expressed readiness to co-operate with us fully provided it was clearly understood that if finances were involved in the matter the Government of India would pay. That does not strike me as very hopeful. As to Mr. Thampan's suggestion that, in the matter of inspections, they will be willing to contribute.....

Mr. K. P. Thampan : Both are different matters.

The Honourable Khan Bahadur Mian Sir Fazl-i-Husain : Quite so, and I can assure the House that under the very very vigilant financial supervision of my Honourable friend, the Finance Member, if we can make even a pice out of a province, we seldom fail to make an effort. So his view point is quite safe. To conclude, I very much appreciate the observations made by Mr. Sitaramaraju as to the constitutional position and the jurisdiction of the Joint Select Committee over it. The House has felt that the Bill has been under consideration for a long time, that it meets what the House considers are the just and fair requirements of the case and would proceed with it. Let us hope that it receives the careful consideration of the Joint Select Committee and the essential principles of the Bill meet with their approval. There may be principles which the British Parliament may feel called upon to alter and we all know they have a right to do so and we cannot question that right. Sir, once more, expressing my gratitude to the House for the kindly reception it has given to this measure which, in the past, has been so very contentious, I venture to express the hope that it may secure the object we have all in view—efficiency at home and honourable recognition abroad.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

" That the Bill to establish a Medical Council in India and to provide for the maintenance of a British Indian Medical Register, as reported by the Select Committee, be taken into consideration."

The motion was adopted.

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till Twenty-Five Minutes to Three of the Clock.

The Assembly re-assembled after Lunch at Twenty-Five Minutes to Three of the Clock, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) in the Chair.

Clauses 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14 and 15 were added to the Bill.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is that clause 16 stand part of the Bill.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Sir, I beg to move :

" That at the end of sub-clause (1) of clause 16 of the Bill, the following be added :

' inspectors appointed under this clause shall be persons having experience of University administration but not actively engaged in teaching in any university '."

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I hope my Honourable friend will see his way not to press his amendment. If my Honourable friend will see sub-clause (h) of clause 18, he will find that the Council is going to regulate such matters as appointment, powers, duties and procedure of medical inspectors, under the rules. I have no doubt that they will consider the suggestion of my Honourable friend.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : In view of the assurance given by my Honourable friend I beg leave of the House to withdraw my motion.

The motion was, by leave of the Assembly, withdrawn.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is that clause 16 stand part of the Bill.

The motion was adopted.

Clause 16 was added to the Bill.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is that clause 17 stand part of the Bill.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I have got an amendment to this clause. It is really not an amendment, but an explanation. Really speaking, the courses of study always include hospital practice, but this question was doubted in one University and, therefore, I thought I had better put it explicitly. But if the Honourable Member will say explicitly that the course of instructions would include hospital practice, then I would not move my amendment.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I must say.....

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Honourable Member does not move his amendment, but he wants some explanation from Government before he makes up his mind as to whether he will move it or not.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The course of study in the Universities does include hospital work.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : In view of the assurance, I do not propose to move my amendment.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is that clause 17 stand part of the Bill.

The motion was adopted.

Clause 17 was added to the Bill.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is that clause 18 stand part of the Bill.

Sir Lancelot Graham (Secretary, Legislative Department) : I beg to move :

"That in sub-clause (1) of clause 18 of the Bill, item (f) be omitted and the remaining items be re-lettered accordingly."

Sir, in the Bill, as it is now before the House, item (f) of sub-clause 18 runs : "The conduct of business of Provincial Committees". The Provincial Committees were provided for by clause 11 of the Bill as introduced, but that clause was struck out by the Select Committee and this, Sir, is accordingly a consequential amendment.

The motion was adopted.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is that clause 18, as amended, stand part of the Bill.

The motion was adopted.

Clause 18, as amended, was added to the Bill.

Clauses 19, 20, and the First and Second Schedules were added to the Bill.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I have got an amendment to the First Schedule. Really I did not want to move the amendment, but only I want to draw the attention to irregularities in our University.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Honourable Member will have a later opportunity to make a speech.

The question is that clause 1 stand part of the Bill.

The motion was adopted.

Clause 1 was added to the Bill.

The Title and the Preamble were added to the Bill.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Sir, I beg to move that the Bill, as amended, be passed.

The motion was adopted.

RESOLUTION RE DRAFT CONVENTION AND RECOMMENDATION CONCERNING THE AGE FOR ADMISSION OF CHILDREN TO NON-INDUSTRIAL EMPLOYMENT.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce (Member for Industries and Labour) : Sir, I beg to move :

"That this Assembly having considered the Draft Convention and Recommendation concerning the age for admission of children to non-industrial employment adopted by the International Labour Conference at its Sixteenth Session, recommends to the Governor General in Council that he should not ratify the Draft Convention nor accept the Recommendation."

Sir, in the course of the discussion on the Pledging of Child Labour Bill, I put forward the proposition that, where children were concerned, all the Members of this House were Members for Labour. That proposition received such general support from all sections of the House that the House will, I am sure, sympathise with me in the position in which I find myself today in asking it to recommend to the Governor General in Council that it should not ratify a Convention, the underlying motive of which is the amelioration of the lot of children. I trust I shall be able to convince the House that there are compelling reasons why I have to bring forward this motion.

I am not sure whether the House remembers that, in September last, my Department circulated to all its Members the report prepared by Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra and Sir Atul Chatterjee, who represented the Government of India at the 16th Session of the International Labour

[Sir Frank Noyce.]

Conference, on the proceedings of that Conference. Probably very few Honourable Members have brought copies of the reports with them, and I have here a few copies which I am prepared to pass on to any one interested in this subject. I have also had circulated,—I think Honourable Members will find them in their places,—copies of Article 1 and Article 9 of the Convention with which we are primarily concerned.

Sir, I think it will facilitate the discussion of this motion if I indicate very briefly how this Convention came to take its present form. When the proposals first came before the Government of India, they very naturally consulted the Local Governments about them and the replies they got went to confirm their own provisional view that it would probably not be possible for India to go very far in the direction suggested. However, they were very anxious, if possible, to meet the Conference half way and they therefore instructed their delegates to press for certain special conditions for India. There are only two of these with which I need trouble the House now. The first was that the age limit contemplated for the Convention should be reduced to 10. The Conference was contemplating an age limit of 14 years below which the employment of children in non-industrial occupations should be prohibited. We suggested that, in the special circumstances of India, it should be reduced to 10. I wish to remind the House at this stage that this Convention applies solely to the employment of children in non-industrial occupations. Our second suggestion, which was a much more important one, was that, as far as India was concerned the Convention should only apply to certain specified occupations. Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra put our case very forcibly before the Committee preliminary to the Conference which was considering these proposals and, as this House will remember, he can argue a case very forcibly. It received support from a very valuable,—I will not say unexpected,—quarter, that of Mons. Albert Thomas, the Director of the International Labour Office. I am sure the House will share the regret expressed in the report by Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra and Sir Atul Chatterjee that, shortly after this Conference was over, Mons. Thomas died. In him, the International Labour Office lost, as Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra and Sir Atul Chatterjee said, a valuable public servant, one who combined idealism with a very practical turn of mind. India also lost a good friend for, throughout his connection with the International Labour Office, he had shown sympathetic co-operation and a very keen understanding of our special problems. He brought that practical turn of mind of his to bear on the proposals submitted by Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra and Sir Atul Chatterjee and warned the Committee that their only hope of securing India's ratification of the Convention was to accept those proposals. The Committee did so, but unfortunately, when their recommendations came before the full Conference, they were met with a certain amount of criticism and different proposals were put forward in regard to India by a lady from Spain. How much she knew about India I am not able to say, but it would seem that the Conference was carried away by her eloquence, and in spite of Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra's protests, her proposals were carried by a small majority. In the result, the Indian Government delegates and the Indian Employers' delegate—you, Sir, whose support I should have been glad to have on the floor of the House now,—naturally found themselves unable to support the Convention with their votes. I should add that, in this attitude, they were supported by a number of other Government delegates including the Government delegates from Great Britain and from Japan.

Now, Sir, I turn to the text of the Convention itself. As I have already pointed out to the House, the Articles with which we are really concerned are Articles 1 and 9. Article 1 merely defines the scope of the Convention and indicates that it applies to non-industrial employment. Article 9 is the important one. If the House will turn to Article 9, they will find that it is proposed that in India three things should be done. In the first place and the most important, it lays down that all children below 10 should be excluded from all non-industrial employment. It lays down, in the second place, that older children should be excluded from certain street occupations and also from itinerant trading; and it lays down, in the third place, that children should be excluded from occupations involving certain dangers to life, health and morals. It is on the first of these stipulations that I would ask the House to concentrate its attention. If we adopt this Convention, all children under 10 will be excluded from all non-industrial occupations. Now, Sir, I would ask the House to consider in what non-industrial occupations children below 10 can be employed. Possibly some Members of the House may be able to throw light on the subject but, as far as I know, there are very few of them and I can only think of tennis chokras and golf caddies. The only really important occupation in which any child below the age of ten is likely to be employed is domestic service. My Honourable friend, Mr. Clow, reminds me that agriculture is excluded,—it is regarded for this purpose as an industrial occupation. As I was saying, the only really important occupation in which children below 10 are likely to be employed is domestic service, and I would ask the House how, if we adopt this Convention, we are going to enforce it. What sort of staff should we want? How are we going to find out whether children below 10 are employed or not, without a host of inspectors and inquisitorial inspection? I submit, Sir, that it is absolutely out of the question to enforce the Convention and that is the position I place before the House. Even if it were possible to do anything in this direction, I would remind the House that there are other and much more important questions which demand our first consideration. The House will remember that the Royal Commission on Labour specially investigated the case of children working in non-regulated factories. They drew an extremely lurid picture of the evils to which children are subjected in factories in which carpet weaving, the manufacture of bidis and mica splitting is carried on, and they suggested that the first step to be taken should be to exclude children under 10 from that kind of workshop and to limit the hours of older children. The House knows that I and my department have a big task before us in the coming months in piloting the Factories Bill safely through this House. As soon as we have finished that, I hope successfully, we propose to turn our attention to the non-regulated factories. They are going to be an extremely difficult proposition and it will take us some time to work out a satisfactory measure for dealing with them. I submit to the House therefore that they should occupy the first place in our attention and that they should also occupy the first place in the Local Governments' attention. We are not justified in asking the Local Governments to employ a staff to deal with abuses in regard to children in non-industrial employment before we deal with the far more urgent case of children in industrial employment in non-regulated factories. I trust, Sir, that I have convinced the House that I had no option but to bring forward this motion today.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Motion moved :

"That this Assembly having considered the Draft Convention and Recommendation concerning the age for admission of children to non-industrial employment adopted by the International Labour Conference at its Sixteenth Session, recommends to the Governor General in Council that he should not ratify the Draft Convention nor accept the Recommendation."

Mr. S. G. Jog (Berar Representative) : Sir, I can see the mood of the House at just the tag end of the Session, but this is a sort of trust which I have accepted. As you will probably see from the amendment that stands in the joint name of Mr. Joshi and myself, this is the child of joint creation of the two of us, and, in the absence of Mr. Joshi, I for one am not prepared to withdraw it. However, the House cannot expect me to treat this child with the same affection with which probably my friend, Mr. Joshi, would have done—but I must do some justice to the amendment.

3 P.M.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Will the Honourable Member move his amendment ?

Mr. S. G. Jog : Sir, I move :

"That at the end of the Resolution, the following be added :

'but, at the same time, recommends that the Governor General-in-Council should take steps to give effect to the proposals contained in the amendment proposed by Sir B. N. Mitra, Government of India's Chief Delegate at the Sixteenth Session of the International Labour Conference'."

Generally, the Government come before this House for ratification of Conventions ; and, at times, they come before the House with a proposal that such and such a thing should not be ratified. Government are both consistent and inconsistent many times. In this particular case Government say that this Convention should not be ratified by India. Before this matter came before the International Labour Conference, questionnaires were issued to the Government of India—I will not tire the House by reading all the questions and answers by the Government of India—but on the whole the attitude of the Government of India, so far as age was concerned, was really very sympathetic ; and, as a matter of fact, when the matter came up before the Conference, the Leader of the Delegation, in consultation and in agreement with you, Sir, moved an amendment which for the information of the House I will read, so that they can understand what the amendment was and to what extent the Government of India were prepared to go ; and now they want to go back behind the position which their own delegates took in the Conference there. As partial ratification of a Convention is not permitted by the Treaty of Versailles, Sir B. N. Mitra, on behalf of the Government, in agreement with Mr. R. K. Shanmukham Chetty, the Indian Employers' delegate, moved the following amendment at Geneva :

"The provisions of Articles 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8 of this Convention shall not apply to India but in India—

(1) Children under ten years of age shall not be employed—

(a) in shops, offices, hotels, restaurants and places for the sale of drink,

(b) in places of public entertainment,

(c) in street trading,

(d) in any other non-industrial employment to which the provisions of paragraph one of this article may be extended by the competent authority :

Provided that in the interests of art, science or education, national laws or regulations may, by permits in individual cases, allow exceptions to the above provisions in order to enable children to appear on the stage, in cinematographic films and in other public entertainments.

The minimum age prescribed under this article shall not be less than that laid down in National Laws or Regulations as the minimum age for the admission of children into factories not using power, and which are not subject to the provisions of the Indian Factories Act.

(2) Persons under fourteen years of age shall not be employed in any non-industrial employment which the competent authority after consultation with the principal organisations of employers and workers may declare to involve danger to health or morals.

(3) National laws or regulations shall provide for the due enforcement of the provisions of this article and in particular shall provide penalties for breaches of the laws or regulations by which effect is given to the provisions of this article.

(4) The competent authority shall, after a period of 5 years from the date of passing of legislation giving effect to the provisions of this Convention, review the whole position with a view to increase the minimum ages prescribed in this Convention."

This amendment was lost in the plenary session of the Conference, but at any rate it gives an idea of the attitude of the delegates of India so far as the minimum age in non-industrial occupations is concerned. When this matter came up before the Council of State for discussion, the Honourable Mr. Clow said :

"The reason, which prevents the Government of India from ratifying the Convention, is the administrative difficulty in the way of enforcing a Convention which, in its scope as defined in Article 1, includes all employment not dealt with in the three age-of-employment Conventions adopted by the 1919, 1920 and 1921 Sessions of the International Labour Conference."

By way of illustration of Government's practical difficulties, Mr. Clow pointed out that the Convention included children in domestic service, and if India were to ratify the Convention in its present form, the inspection services of the Government would have to be increased to an extent, and expenditure entailed, beyond the resources of the Government. At the same time, he admitted—on the admission of the representatives of the Government of India at the Sixteenth International Labour Conference, that there are however, no such insurmountable administrative difficulties in the way of the enforcement of the Convention, if provision is made in it, so far as India is concerned, to specify the occupations in which the minimum age principle should be applied, instead of laying down that the Convention is to cover all children not covered by the minimum age Conventions of 1919-21, but, as partial ratification was not considered practicable, this amendment was not moved.

Further, Sir, the Government have not brought forth any excuses on financial grounds. Whenever they do not want to do a thing or shirk their responsibility, they always bring up a number of difficulties, but whenever they are inclined to do a thing, financial difficulties never come in the way. This is the attitude the Government generally take. As regards the partial ratification or giving effect to such Conventions, if the Government have any difficulty, I for one think that such difficulties can be solved. I am told that on previous occasions when any labour Convention used to be discussed in the Assembly, the Government rejected that Convention, but announced that they were prepared to give practical effect to the declarations made at Geneva by their delegates. Therefore, I suggest that although it might not be possible to give full effect to the Convention, still, taking into consideration the special circumstances of India, it might just be possible to give effect to the suggestions to which the delegates of the Government of India were prepared to go, and include some such suggestions in their proposals regarding the restrictions on age. At least it is time that we made a beginning; if we cannot include all occupations, we ought to include such occupations where this Convention might advantageously be used. Sir, I make these suggestions, and I hope that the Government will give effect to their own suggestions and will not shirk their responsibility which they have themselves accepted in the International Conference. Sir, I commend my amendment for acceptance by this House.

[Mr. S. G. Jog.]

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Amendment moved :

"That at the end of the Resolution, the following be added :

'but, at the same time, recommends that the Governor General-in-Council should take steps to give effect to the proposals contained in the amendment proposed by Sir B. N. Mitra, Government of India's Chief Delegate at the Sixteenth Session of the International Labour Conference'."

Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury (Assam : Muhammadan) : Sir, I rise to support this amendment. While this Convention lays down 14 years as the age limit for admission in respect of children of other countries, they make an exception in favour of India and fix the age limit at 10 years. When the question was being discussed in the International Labour Conference, the Workers' delegates were opposed to this exception being made in favour of India. It was only to accommodate the Government of India with a view to facilitating ratification of the Convention by India that the Conference went out of its way and incorporated Article IX and fixed the age limit for India at 10 years. As the Honourable Sir Frank Noyce has pointed out, Mr. Albert Thomas took the unusual course of attending the Committee meeting and persuaded the Committee to accept this amendment, because, he said, that that was the only chance of getting India to make the ratification. You, Sir, were the Employers' delegate when this question was discussed, and, with your permission, I should like to read out from your own speech which you made on that occasion. This is what you said, Sir :

"I made it plain in the Committee, and let me reiterate with all the emphasis that I command in this conference, that in the consideration of this question of ameliorating the condition of the children of my country, the Indian employers yield to no working class representative in this conference. Purely from the humanitarian point of view, I should like to see the children of my country enjoying the same measure of protection as the children of every other civilized country in the world. Happily for us, this is one of those subjects in which the conflict between the employer and the worker can be reduced to an absolute minimum. When we consider the social legislation embodied in the various Conventions that come before this Conference, there naturally arises a great conflict between the points of view of the employer and the worker. But I maintain, Mr. President, that (at least in India) in the consideration of this problem, the Indian employer will not yield to the worker of any country in his desire to protect and ameliorate the conditions in his country."

My only regret is, Sir, that you are not on the floor of the House to espouse the cause of the children of this country. But, as you very rightly pointed out, this is one of the rare occasions on which the employers and the workers are in agreement, and yet the Government of India refuse to ratify this Convention. I think this Convention has been welcomed as the Children's Charter, and this humanitarian measure, I am surprised to find, the Government of India are not willing to ratify. They are trying to resile from the position they had actually taken up when the questionnaire was sent out by the International Labour Office. On that occasion, the Government of India showed a very conciliatory and a very reasonable attitude.

Now, I will examine the provisions of this Article in the light of the reply that was sent by the Government of India, and show to this House that this Convention, in all essentials, is based on the reply of the Government of India. The only Article that deals with India is Article IX, and that Article says :

"Clause 1. The employment of children under 10 shall be prohibited". This is what the Government of India say in their reply to the questionnaire :—"If a general age limit is prescribed in a Draft Convention, it should not exceed 10 years for India."

It is entirely in accordance with the reply sent out by the Government of India that this clause has been drafted.

Then, Sir, there is the proviso with regard to arts, science and education making an exception, and that proviso was moved by Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra himself in the Committee and in the Conference.

Then, Sir, there is another proviso which says :

"Should the age for the admission of children to factories not using power which are not subject to the Indian Factories Act be fixed by national laws or regulations at an age exceeding 10, the age so prescribed for admission to such factories shall be substituted for the age of ten for the purpose of this paragraph."

This was the amendment that you yourself moved, Sir, in the Committee and that amendment was accepted by the Committee.

Then, there is clause 2, which is also in entire agreement with the views expressed by the Government of India, and it was moved by Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra himself. This is how the clause stands :

"Persons under fourteen years of age shall not be employed in any non-industrial employment which the competent authority, after consultation with the principal organizations of employers and workers concerned, may declare to involve danger to life, health or morals."

This is exactly what the Government of India recommended, and their reply to the questionnaire is given at page 118, and this is what they say :

"The employment of children in occupations which are dangerous in character or likely to be injurious to their health or morals should be entirely prohibited. But it should be left to the competent authority in each country to determine what occupations are dangerous in character or likely to be injurious to the health or morals of children. A specific list of such occupations should not be incorporated in a Draft Convention.

A special minimum age would appear to be desirable. If the general minimum for India is fixed at 10, the special minimum age should be 14, which may be raised at the discretion of the competent authority."

These replies, Sir, and the Government of India's reply are in agreement.

Then, Sir, there is another clause, clause 3, which gives power to the Government of India to raise the age from 10 to 14 if they consider it necessary.

[Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury.]

Clause 4 deals with the question of enforcement, and it has been left to the competent authority in each country to deal with the matter as they think best, and this clause was also moved by Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra and was accepted by the Conference.

Then, Sir, there is the fifth clause which you yourself moved, and that clause says :

"The competent authority shall, after a period of five years from the date of passing of legislation giving effect to the provisions of this Convention, review the whole position with a view to increasing the minimum age prescribed in this Convention, such review to cover the whole of the provisions of this Article."

I do not find any difference in the replies given here and that given by the Government of India, and, therefore, I do not understand why they should resile from the position they had taken up. The only objection raised against it is in regard to the enforcement of this Convention. Sir, I do not minimise the difficulties of enforcing this Convention, but if any one recognises that there is a difficulty, that should not stand in the way of giving legislative effect to these Conventions, because I quite admit that this Convention cannot be enforced in the sense that every violation of this Convention shall be followed by prosecution. But, Sir, that is a characteristic which is common to all social legislation. We have got our Factories Act, and I think my friend, Mr. Clow, will agree with me that every infringement of the Factories Act is not followed by a prosecution. We have got the Workmen's Compensation Act, and I do not think that every victim of an accident gets the compensation to which he is legally entitled. In many cases the claims are not preferred at all. We have got the Sarda Act also, and there many instances, in which the provisions of that Act are violated and such cases are not followed by a prosecution. I maintain, Sir, that the main object of this social legislation lies in its educative value, in the restraining influence that it exercises,—because it operates as a check ; but it is a step forward in social progress notwithstanding all that, the Government of India do not seem to move in this matter.

With regard to the amendment of Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra, just as my friend, Mr. Jog, read out in the House, he enumerated certain categories of workers who were to be specified in the Convention, and that was agreed to in the Committee. When it came before the Conference, just as the Honourable Sir Frank Noyce has pointed out, Mrs. Palencia, a Spanish Workers' Delegate, moved an amendment that, instead of specifying the category of worker, there should be a general prohibition and that amendment was accepted by the Conference. Because the Conference accepted her amendment, there is no reason why the Government of India should go back upon their own recommendation. If they are not going to ratify this Convention, they should at least give us an assurance that they are prepared to go as far as they went in their reply or as far as the amendment moved by Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra.

Mr. N. R. Gunjal (Bombay Central Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : (The Honourable Member spoke in the vernacular.)

Mr. G. Morgan (Bengal : European) : Sir, after the very clear statement made by the Member in charge, there is very little for me to say with regard to the Resolution before the House. As regards the amendment, I have every sympathy with it, and I would be prepared to support it if the wording were slightly different.

The Mover of the amendment says : "take steps to give effect to the proposals contained in the amendment proposed....". That might not be feasible after the question was thoroughly examined. Had the wording been, "proposals on the lines contained", I should have supported the amendment. The idea of the Mover is perfectly right, but I should not like to be a party to tying the hands, even though this is only a recommendation, of the Government to the proposals actually contained in the amendment of Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra. If I remember rightly, this was discussed in a Committee of which I was a member, and, in discussing the details of Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra's amendment, we came to the conclusion that the administrative and financial difficulties would be enormous and we could not possibly light-heartedly agree to the ratification of the Convention. The department has got its hands full at the moment with the Factories Act, and the Honourable Member in Charge has given an assurance that after that Bill is, I hope, successfully passed by this Assembly, the question of this child labour in non-industrial employment will be taken up and I feel perfectly certain.....

Mr. A. G. Clow (Government of India : Nominated Official) : May I correct the Honourable Member ? That was not the assurance at all. The assurance related to children in industrial employment in non-regulated factories, not to children in non-industrial employment.

Mr. G. Morgan : Still I have every sympathy with the idea underlying this amendment. Nobody wants to see child labour exploited in any country, nor do we want to see young children working long hours and in industries which are unsuitable for persons of tender age. That is the last thing anybody wants. In America, they have taken steps already to do away with child labour on certain lines. The amelioration of the lot of children in regulated factories is receiving our attention, and that of children in non-regulated factories must receive attention as soon as the Department has time to consider the subject. With regard to the amendment which has been moved, I regret that I cannot support it in the actual wording in which it is couched, but if the Honourable the Mover would accept the words "on the lines contained", I should be very glad to support the amendment.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad (United Provinces Southern Divisions : Muhammadan Rural) : I thought, after the lucid speech and the clear and convincing arguments of my Honourable friend, Sir Frank Noyce, Mr. Jog would not come forward with his amendment. I think the greatest argument in support of this Resolution is that even our Labour Department which is so liberal in labour legislation opposes this particular recommendation. As regards the argument brought forward by my friend, Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury, I say, that I would have supported his suggestion wholeheartedly if there had been compulsory education in this country. But, unfortunately, our children have no schools to attend. They have no occupation at all, and if you legislate that they should not have any occupation, I think we will be unfair to our children and we shall be really forcing them to spend their time in unhealthy surroundings and idleness and become bad citizens of our country. With these words, I support the original motion moved by the Honourable Sir Frank Noyce.

Mr. F. E. James (Madras : European) : Mr. President, I would only like to mention two things about this matter. The first is to rebut the statement made by my Honourable friend, Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury, that the present Government, in their labour legislation, are very slow. As a matter of fact, I may say that the Government of India, on their labour side, are regarded by some people in this country as perhaps the most revolutionary Government in the world.

Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury : I said in this particular instance. I never said, as a general proposition.

Mr. F. E. James : I do not think that it will be accepted even in this particular instance. I may inform the House that, in certain circles of this Assembly, there is a well-known rhyme which describes the situation graphically ; I am sorry that Mr. Joshi is not here to hear it. The rhyme is :

> "Joshi had a little lamb
> Whose name was Mr. Clow ;
> And everywhere that Joshi went
> The lamb was sure to go."

I suggest, Sir, that it does not give the indication that the Government are behind most other civilized Governments in connection with labour legislation. But there is one point to which I should like to draw the attention of the Honourable Mr. Jog and that is in connection with the nature of the conventions which are passed at these International Labour Conferences. As my Honourable friend no doubt knows, these Conventions are International agreements under the peace treaties which must be applied to all Governments that have ratified them. Yet a Convention does not necessarily remain inoperative unless it is ratified. Certain countries, for example, have not yet ratified some of the most important Conventions that have been passed. I may mention as an illustration the 8-hour Convention which was passed at Washington and which many countries have not yet ratified ; and yet those very countries have been greatly influenced in their legislation by the existence of that Convention.

Mr. S. G. Jog : That is exactly my point.

Mr. F. E. James : I am again in agreement with my Honourable friend. I suggest to him that the non-ratification by this Legislature of this Convention does necessarily mean that the underlying principles of this Convention will remain for all time inoperative in this country. I would have been glad, like my Honourable friend, Mr. Morgan, to have supported his amendment, if it had been worded in a somewhat different form. I suggest to him that if Government give him an assurance that they will examine very carefully the proposals contained in the amendment of the High Commissioner at Geneva, he should withdraw this particular amendment. If, however, he presses his amendment, it will have the unfortunate effect of driving some of us to vote against him. We do not feel that we can tie the Government down to a promise of this legislation. Government will be in the position of every other Government if they are not able to ratify this Convention ; they will have a free hand. So long as the present Member of the Industries and Labour Department holds his office, I am quite sure that this point will be given the most careful attention. Therefore, I would suggest that my Honourable friend should withdraw his amendment and allow the House to vote on the main proposition.

Mr. S. G. Jog : Sir, I have no special fascination for any particular form of my amendment. I am quite prepared to alter it as suggested by my friend, Mr. James, and, if the Government come forward with some hopeful assurance, I will be inclined to withdraw my amendment.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Sir, I must profess to a feeling of considerable surprise that this amendment should have been brought forward by my Honourable friend, Mr. Jog. He has charged the Government with inconsistency in this matter and in labour matters generally. His memory seems to be shorter even than that of Government. I should like to refer the House to what he said during the discussion on the Pledging of Child Labour Bill. He said :

> "At the time when this Bill was introduced I had an occasion to talk on this measure and even at that time I gave a warning that they were rather going too fast so far as the welfare of children is concerned."

Mr. S. G. Jog : The Government are stationary ; they must move.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : We have accepted Mr. Jog's advice ; we are not going too fast in this matter and he is the first to cast a stone at us for doing so. I much regret that it is not possible for me to accept the amendment even in the modified form in which my friend, Mr. Morgan, would like it recast. It seems to me that there may be some misapprehension in the minds of some Members of this House as to what it is exactly that we are dealing with. I thought I may make it quite clear that we are dealing with non-industrial employment not with employment in factories. The position of the Government of India is that this question is neither urgent nor important. They were prepared to co-operate in securing an international agreement, and if their amendments had been accepted, they would have been willing to discuss the question with Local Governments with a view to the adoption of the Convention, if possible. Their efforts at compromise were rejected. I submit that when we go half-way and the other side does not meet us half-way, we are discharged from any obligation. I think the House knows me well enough to know that I am behind no one in my desire to ameliorate the lot of children and it is just for that reason that I object to this amendment. I would submit that our first duty lies to the children in non-regulated factories, children who are engaged in splitting rice, carpet weaving and making bidis. Until we have dealt with them, I submit that it is merely window dressing to legislate for the children in non-industrial employment. We have quite enough to do. We have to utilise all the energy and resources that we and the Local Governments have to solve the question of factory labour and of labour in non-regulated factories. The only assurance I can give to the House and I give that assurance gladly is that when we have got these two major problems out of the way, then we will examine this question further and see what can be done. Further than that, I regret, I am unable to go, and, I hope that will be sufficient to satisfy my Honourable friend, Mr. Jog.

Mr. S. G. Jog : I am satisfied with the assurance given by the Honourable Member in charge which, I think, is quite enough for the time being. Therefore, I feel inclined to withdraw my amendment.

The amendment was, by leave of the Assembly, withdrawn.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is that the following Resolution be adopted :

"That this Assembly having considered the Draft Convention and Recommendation concerning the age for admission of children to non-industrial employment adopted by the International Labour Conference at its Sixteenth Session, recommends to the Governor General in Council that he should not ratify the Draft Convention nor accept the Recommendation."

The motion was adopted.

RESOLUTION RE AMENDMENT OF RULE RELATING TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC ACCOUNTS.

Sir Lancelot Graham (Secretary, Legislative Department) : Sir, I beg to move the Resolution that stands in my name, which runs as follows :

"This Assembly recommends to the Governor General-in-Council that Rule 51 of the Indian Legislative Rules should be amended so as to provide that when the duration of the Legislative Assembly is extended beyond the period of three years fixed by section 63-D (1) of the Government of India Act, a new Committee on Public Accounts shall be constituted at the end of the said period of three years and shall be subject to all the existing provisions of rule 51 relating to the constitution of the Committee on Public Accounts."

Sir, Honourable Members, who are or who have been members of the Public Accounts Committee, will be aware of the purpose of this Resolution. Rule 51 of the Indian Legislative Rules, as it now stands, contemplates an arrangement by which changes are effected in the personnel of the members of the Public Accounts Committee from year to year. But, Sir, that provision automatically comes to an end at the conclusion of the third year of the life of the Assembly. The result is that if the life of the Assembly is extended by the Governor General, there is no provision for bringing new blood into the Public Accounts Committee. Sir, Members of this House are well aware that a message was received from His Excellency the Governor General in Delhi on the 6th March intimating that it was his intention to extend the life of the present Assembly. That being so, the question arose as to what action we should take in respect of rule 51 of the Indian Legislative Rules. It appeared to us that there were three ways of dealing with this question, but as Honourable Members have not for the most part got copies of the rules in their hands, I do not propose to trouble them with all these three ways. The Public Accounts Committee were consulted and they definitely prefer the proposal which we now put before the House which is that in January next we should proceed as if we were a new Assembly and should elect a new Public Accounts Committee and the result will be that rule 51 of the Indian Legislative Rules will then apply and, should the life of the Assembly be extended beyond the year, the necessary proportion of elected Members will retire as they do now at the conclusion of the first year of the life of the Legislative Assembly. Sir, I move.

Mr. S. C. Mitra (Chittagong and Rajshahi Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : This is also a recommendation of the Public Accounts Committee unanimously passed during the last meeting. So I support this motion.

Mr. N. R. Gunjal (Bombay Central Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : (The Honourable Member, speaking in the vernacular, supported the Resolution.)

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"This Assembly recommends to the Governor General-in-Council that Rule 51 of the Indian Legislative Rules should be amended so as to provide that when the duration of the Legislative Assembly is extended beyond the period of three years fixed by section 63-D (1) of the Government of India Act, a new Committee on Public Accounts shall be constituted at the end of the said period of three years and shall be subject to all the existing provisions of rule 51 relating to the constitution of the Committee on Public Accounts."

The motion was adopted.

DEMAND FOR SUPPLEMENTARY GRANT.

CIVIL AVIATION.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : Sir, I beg to move :

"That a supplementary sum not exceeding Rs. 2,63,200 be granted to the Governor General in Council to defray the charges which will come in course of payment during the year ending 31st March, 1934, in respect of 'Civil Aviation'."

Sir, on this matter as far as any general explanation is required by the House, my Honourable colleague, Sir Frank Noyce, who is in charge of the subject will speak. I only desire to make two points of purely financial significance in support of the motion. In the first place I would like to explain that the sum referred to does not represent anything in the nature of an increase in the current expenditure of the Government. It is composed of two items, an item of Rs. 95,200 which is classified for technical purposes as a subsidy to the new air service but which in fact only represents the remission of certain customs charges, landing charges, etc. The charges would not be earned unless the service operated, and we are not out of pocket in any way on account of this arrangement. The other part of the sum is a sum of Rs. 1,68,000 which represents the Government investment in the new company of Trans-Continental Airways. That we hope may eventually prove to be a profitable investment. It does not represent recurrent expenditure. That is my first point. My second point is this that we are moving this motion on the express recommendation of the Standing Finance Committee. The Standing Finance Committee considered the whole proposal very fully a few days ago and approved the proposal. But they put in a special recommendation that as a payment on account of the subscription to the Trans-Continental Airways had to be made on the 1st October the matter should be referred to this House before any further financial payment was made. Therefore we have followed out that recommendation in asking the House to consider this supplementary grant specially today. Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Motion moved ;

"That a supplementary sum not exceeding Rs. 2,63,200 be granted to the Governor General in Council to defray the charges which will come in course of payment during the year ending 31st March, 1934, in respect of 'Civil Aviation'."

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce (Member for Industries and Labour) : Sir, I am very glad indeed that the request—a proper request if I may venture to say so—of the Standing Finance Committee that this demand should be placed before this House this Session has given me this early opportunity of explaining to the House its full significance. I do not think it necessary for my present purpose to delve into ancient and, perhaps, in view of the long delays involved, I might say rather melancholy history, especially as we are, I am convinced, at the dawn of a far brighter era as far as civil aviation in this country is concerned. (Hear, hear.) But I do wish to remind the House of two salient facts. The first is that, for a short period from December, 1929, to December, 1931, there was a chartered air service between Karachi and Delhi which cost the Government of India over 4½ lakhs a year whilst the revenue from it did not exceed Rs. 50,000 a year. I would ask the House to bear those figures in mind in considering the arrangements we are now discussing. The second is the recommendation of the Retrenchment Committee that the scheme for the inauguration of an Indian State Air Service should be held in abeyance.

Unfortunately, it is not possible to keep aircraft in cold storage and the aircraft which had been purchased for this service had to be sold at a loss of £13,000 on an outlay of about £45,000. When the inauguration of the Indian Air Service was postponed (it had not been started ; the aircraft for it had merely been purchased), the best that could be done for the time being was to contract with the Delhi Flying Club for the carriage of mails from Karachi to Delhi. Whilst India was practically standing still, other countries were not idle. The Dutch and the French Air Services were operating across India and, in the circumstances, it was not unnatural that important interests in places east of Delhi, Cawnpore, Allahabad and especially Calcutta, began to get restless and to ask why they were denied facilities which were being given to Western India, not very complete facilities it is true, but still facilities.

I should perhaps remind the House that under the Air Convention, a country has the right to give or to refuse permission to the operation of an air service across its territorial limits but that most countries, certainly all the prominent civilised countries, have given this permission. It was in accordance with this practice that permission was given to the Dutch and the French services to operate across India. The question was raised why use could not be made of these services. Apart from other considerations, it should be obvious, Sir, that if this had been allowed, all hope of India having an air service of its own would have receded to the dim and distant future. That sums up the position as it stood about eighteen months ago. A proposal was being worked out for the extension of the Karachi-Delhi mail service to Moghalserai, when the question became of urgent importance owing to the fact that Imperial Airways found themselves ready to expand their service to Singapore and on to Australia, the Australian Government having agreed to bear their part in the extension of that service to that country. As permission to operate across India had been granted to the Dutch and the French services, it would have been impossible to discriminate against Imperial Airways ; and once the Imperial Airways service was in operation, there would have been nothing for an Indain air service when it started, but the internal mails. This being the case, it became a question of great importance to secure to India, as large as possible, a share of the air service on this important link. It was very fortunate for India that my Honourable Colleague, the Leader of the House, was in England last year and that he was willing to devote no small part of his very short leave to negotiations with the authorities in England to that end. I am sure the House will agree that the interests of India could not have been in better hands. (Applause.) The result of his efforts—I hope I shall convince the House, it will be my fault if I do not—that they were very successful efforts, are embodied in the somewhat colourless terms of the Press Communiqué which was issued on the 9th May, 1933. The House may wish to refresh its memory and I will, therefore, read to it the greater part of that Communiqué :

"Arrangements have been made for the inauguration of an air service between Karachi and Singapore as a joint enterprise to be worked by an Indian Company (Indian Trans-Continental Airways, Limited), to be formed as explained below, together with Imperial Airways, Limited, and simultaneously for the formation of a second Indian Company, Indian National Airways, Limited, for the operation of feeder and other services in Northern India. The capital of Indian Trans-Continental Airways, Limited, will be rupee capital and will be subscribed jointly by the Government of India, Indian National Airways, Limited and Imperial Airways, Limited. The directors will be selected by the shareholders and the majority will be Indians. Indian Trans-Continental Airways and Imperial Airways will each provide one-half of the fleet required for the service. Indian Trans-Continental Airways will employ the largest percentage reasonably possible of Indian personnel as soon as individuals of the requisite standard are available, and Imperial Airways will arrange for the training of a limited number of Indians in their commercial and engineering departments, while the fleet and equipment for Indian National Airways and Indian Trans-Continental Airways are being procured. The arrangement for the joint working of the Karachi-Singapore Service will continue till the 31st March, 1939, the date on which the existing agreement between His Majesty's Government and Imperial Airways for the England-India Air Service expires. By means of this agreement, the participation of an Indian company employing Indian personnel, not merely in a service operating within India, but on an important section outside India (viz., from Rangoon to Singapore) of the Imperial route to Australia will be secured.

Indian National Airways, Limited, will be formed with rupee capital, and plans for operating certain branch services are already in preparation."

That, Sir, represents the outcome of the negotiations. As I explained in reply to a question asked by my Honourable friend, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, in this House a few weeks ago, the authorised capital of Indian Trans-Continental Airways is Rs. 10 lakhs of which Imperial Airways hold Rs. 5,10,000, Indian National Airways Rs. 2,50,000 and the Government of India Rs. 2,40,000. It is to meet the first call on the Government of India of Rs. 96,000 and the further call of Rs. 72,000 which will be required during the current year and also the cost of certain customs and other concessions which they have agreed to grant to Trans-Continental Airways and to Indian National Airways that this demand has been brought forward.

Now, Sir, I wish to dwell for a few minutes on the reasons which led the Government of India to adopt this scheme and to subscribe capital in association with Imperial Airways and Indian Trans-Continental Airways. It is perfectly clear that the air service as at present organised could not be operated without a subsidy. The House knows the financial position of the Government of India as well as I do and they know that the Government of India are quite unable in present conditions to subsidise such a service. The Government of the United Kingdom on the other hand, are able and willing to provide annually for a period of about six years terminating on the 31st March, 1939, a subsidy divisible between the two companies operating the services. As was stated in the note supplied to the Standing Finance Committee, the maximum subsidy in respect of the Karachi-Singapore service, if a regular weekly service is maintained, is £40,000 for the first year of through service to Australia, £30,000 for the 2nd and 3rd year of through service and £20,000 a year for the remaining period. These maxima are, it should be noted, allocated in definite proportions for the various sections of the route. In these circumstances, I trust the House will agree that the Government of India would not have been justified in withholding consent to the establishment of a service which they themselves were not in a position to provide. The extension was, in fact, long overdue and the effect of the delay in establishing it was being increasingly felt in the form of pressure not only, as I have said, from interests in this country but also from the foreign services operating over India, in which India had no part and no opportunity of taking part. But, even if the Government of India had been in a position to revive the project of a State Air Service over the Indian portion of the route, there can be no doubt that such a service, lacking as it would have done the close co-ordination provided by unified technical management, would have fallen so far short of the efficiency which will be provided by the present arrangement that it would not have offered an acceptable alternative. The fact that the present Trans-India service makes it possible to employ a unified fleet from Karachi to Singapore, instead of there being an Indian section and an extra Indian section within those limits, is a factor of the utmost importance.

I trust that the House will also agree regarding the desirability of the Government of India themselves taking a share in this most important scheme. By so doing, they have secured a more effective control of the development of air services across India. I should perhaps inform the House—I do not know whether the Standing Finance Committee elicited the facts in the course of their close cross-examination of the representatives of my Department—that the shares held by Indian National Airways may not be disposed of without the consent of the Government of India and further that the interests of the Government of India are safeguarded by an undertaking that the shares held by Imperial Airways will not be disposed of in any manner which would materially change the character of the present arrangement.

Those, Sir, are the financial considerations. I now turn for a moment to other considerations and, from that point of view, the arrangements we are now discussing provide benefits to India of very great value. Instead of an Indian service growing up independently, in advance of technical development in this country, and learning by its own mistakes to solve the problems which have already been overcome in other countries, the Indian participation in Indian Trans-Continental Airways provides for development under the guidance of one of the most experienced air transport companies in the world which has an unsurpassed record of efficient and economic operation. Throughout the negotiations the Government of India have attached the utmost importance to the employment and training of Indian personnel and, as the House will have observed from the terms of the communiqué, I read out just now, the arrangements we have made provide for these. Again, the advice and experience of Imperial Airways in the development of internal services will be at the disposal of Indian National Airways, and that is an additional factor of much significance in the development of Indian aviation.

To sum up, Sir, the position is that India is getting a first-class air service already working, and I think working satisfactorily, though the Indian climate has been very far from kind to it in the last few weeks ; it is getting that service for a capital expenditure of Rs. 2,40,000 on which, as my Honourable colleague the Finance Member said just now, we hope to get a dividend in due course. In addition to that Rs. 2,40,000, there are the concessions that he mentioned in the way of remission of customs and excise duties and exemption from certain charges for landing, housing, wireless and meteorological facilities which are estimated to cost about Rs. 1,40,000 per annum. As Sir George Schuster said, we should not be getting the money in any case if the service were not there, but there is a further reason why this concession is far more apparent than real. In fact, it is set off by a very substantial benefit. As a result of granting these concessions in the form of a subsidy to the Indian Trans-Continental Airways, India is regarded by the authorities in England as contributing to the England-India-Australia service and is, therefore, permitted to settle the charges for the conveyance of Indian air mails on the main service in sterling. It has hitherto had to settle these charges in gold. The financial effect of this change in the basis of settlement depends of course on the gold value of the rupee. The payments on the gold basis have in the past involved additional payments amounting to more than 1½ lakhs of rupees per annum over what we should have had to pay if the payments had been made in sterling. The House will observe that the figure of Rs. 1½ lakhs per annum, that we have saved as a result of this change, is considerably more than the estimated value of the concessions with regard to customs and excise duties and the provision of other facilities. As a result of the elimination of this extra payment, we have been able to reduce the rate of surcharge on air mail correspondence from India.

4 P.M.

Now, Sir, so far as I am aware, there have been only two criticisms which have been brought against this arrangement. One is the fact that 51 per cent. of the capital in the Indian Trans-Continental Airways is held by Imperial Airways and only 49 per cent. by the Government of India and Indian National Airways together. It has been contended that it should have been the other way round. The answer to this contention is that the holding of 51 per cent. by Imperial Airways was a fundamental condition of the whole arrangement, specially of the grant of the subsidy, and, if it had not been accepted, it would not have been possible to start the service. I would remind the House that Indian interests should be sufficiently safeguarded in this matter by the fact that the majority of the Directors of Indian Trans-Continental Airways are Indian gentlemen of high standing who are perfectly competent to look after Indian interests. Let me mention their names once again. I mentioned them in reply to my Honourable friend, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, the other day, but it is possible the House may have forgotten them. They are Lala Ramsaran Das, Chaudhri Zafarullah Khan, Lala Badridas Goenka and Sir Hormusji Mehta.

The second criticism is that Indian capital ought to be given an opportunity of investing in this industry. So far as I am aware, Sir, with the exception of the inauguration of the very successful Tata service from Karachi to Madras, there has been no indication of any special readiness on the part of Indian capitalists to come forward and invest in civil aviation enterprises. It was not until the arrangements we are discussing today had been concluded that such readiness became apparent. Indian National Airways has attracted capital from widespread Indian sources. It is now actively in consultation with Government in the organisation of feeder air services and other air services to serve internal needs. Plans are being worked out for the establishment of three services ; one from Karachi to Lahore for mails, another from Calcutta to Rangoon to supplement the weekly service, and the third from Calcutta to Dacca. It is hoped that these will be established in the early future and I understand that Indian National Airways propose to invite applications from the public for, at any rate, part of the capital required. It will thus be clear to the House that so far from limiting the opportunities for investment of Indian capital in Indian civil aviation, the present arrangement has already done much to stimulate them.

There is one other point with regard to which I should like to remind the House before I conclude. It is a very important point and that is that these arrangements are subject to the provision that, in 1939, the Government of the day will be at perfect liberty to reconsider the whole position.

I trust, Sir, that I have given the House all the information necessary to enable it to judge of the merits of this proposition. I have dealt with the matter almost entirely from the business aspect, that is, from the point of view of the benefits which India will receive. But there are I think other considerations of a more intangible nature on which other speakers, more eloquent than I am, may care to enlarge. It is no small matter that India should now be in a position to play a worthy part in an Imperial enterprise of the first magnitude.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer (Rohilkund and Kumaon Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I believe my Honourable friend, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, will contribute very much to this debate as he has been making a special study of this problem. All that I wanted to say was this that we are very grateful to Government for having taken the step that they have taken in the promotion of civil aviation. We want them to go further and if any support for monetary contribution by Government is necessary from this side of the House, I am perfectly certain that such support will not be lacking. We want our country to be as forward in the matter of civil aviation as any other country in the world and as the Honourable the previous speaker has pointed out, the Leader of the House while in England took every opportunity that came in his way to push forward the scheme the beginnings of which we are seeing in this demand for supplementary grant. No country in the world, at any rate few countries in the world, present the same facilities for civil aviation as India does. In a land of long distances the promotion of inter-provincial aviation is very necessary, so that our President may sometimes be able to fly to Coimbatore for a week end dinner and come back to preside here in good time. And the Leader of the European Group Sir Leslie Hudson who has heavy work in Bombay will not constantly complain of delaying tactics on this side of the House as he can descend down to Bombay and come back to take part in the proceedings of this House. Sir, we want that the distance between the north and south of India should shrink as the distance between India and Great Britain has shrunk, and I hope and trust that the 10 lakhs of rupees of which the Honourable Sir Frank Noyce spoke will be multiplied many times so that India will be behind no country in the world in the matter of civil aviation. (Applause.)

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh (Muzaffarpur cum Champaran: Non-Muhammadan): Sir, I welcome the inauguration of the Indian Trans-Continental Airways operating from Karachi to Calcutta, and, further on, to Singapore, in the near future ; and I am obliged to the Honourable Member in charge for the very full information which he has given on this subject to the House. The General Purposes Retrenchment Committee has done very valuable work in the matter of finding out avenues for retrenchment in the public expenditure of India ; but there were two recommendations of that Committee with which I never agreed, and I gave expression to my views on the floor of the House on a former occasion—one was their proposal to stop the State Broadcasting Service in India—that proposal was after all not given effect to, and we are having the broadcasting system in this country which, I hope, in course of time will flourish and will produce a very wholesome effect, which the system is intended to produce. The other recommendation with which I disagreed was the proposed curtailment in civil aviation in this country.

As my Honourable friend, Mr. Ranga Iyer, has pointed out, India is a country which is peculiarly appropriate for the purpose of civil aviation. It is a country of long distances where it is very difficult to travel from one place to another for busy men except by means of the aeroplane, which I hope will become a common feature in the daily life of this country in course of time. I find from the paper which has been circulated to us that the authorised capital of the Company agreed to by the Government of India is Rs. 10 lakhs of which Rs. four lakhs has been called up, and Rs. three lakhs will be called up on the extension of the air service beyond Calcutta about the 1st October, 1933. I do not know whether this authorised capital of Rs. 10 lakhs is quite sufficient for the purposes which we have in view, and, as suggested by my Honourable friend on my right, if necessary the share of Government in this Company should be increased in the near future if required ; and we in this part of the House will not grudge any legitimate expenditure which may be incurred in connection with the development of civil aviation in this country. There is only one point to which I should like to draw attention and that is with regard to the employment of Indian personnel. That is a point which has been kept in view by the Government and my Honourable friend, Sir Frank Noyce, has also just now repeated the promise of the Government that the subject of the employment of Indians as officers will be steadily kept in view. There are many other Departments of Government in which Indians have been kept behind, and the excuse which has been pleaded is that we have not got the necessary training or experience to take charge of those Departments. Here, fortunately for us, civil aviation is a branch of national activity which is still in its infancy, and it is quite up to the Government to train Indians so that they may be able to occupy almost all positions as officers from the very beginning of this service. I must here also put on record my appreciation of the way in which the Delhi Flying Club has been carrying on the work of conveying mails between Karachi and Delhi during the period they have been in charge of that branch of the work. During this period they have been doing their work with the utmost efficiency and with remarkable regularity of service.

There is one point on which I should like to have some information from the Honourable Member. I remember, while in the Standing Finance Committee, we were told that there were four aeroplanes which had been purchased by the Government of India before there was any talk of curtailment in the scope of civil aviation. There were four aeroplanes of the "Avro Ten" type—I remember one was presented to His Excellency the Viceroy.....

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad (United Provinces Southern Divisions : Muhammadan Rural) : There were five in all.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Two were sold off at a considerable loss : I should like to know what has become of the others.....

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I cannot tell the Honourable Member off-hand. I am not quite sure how many there were altogether : my Honourable friend, Sir Joseph Bhore, knows the facts better than I do. But if there were four, one was transferred to His Excellency the Viceroy, and the other three were sold : the total loss, as I mentioned in my speech, was about £13,000.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : So, as I was saying, with regard to the development of civil aviation, the scheme which has been presented to this House is a satisfactory one, and I think the House should accept the proposal before us. I should also express our sense of appreciation that we have got a majority of Indian Directors on the Company, and also that the Company has been floated with rupee capital. With these few words, I heartily support the motion. (Cheers.)

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Sir, this question was carefully examined by the Standing Finance Committee. I myself went into all the details and I was very unhappy about the distribution of shares 49 and 51 : I very much wanted that our share should have been 51 or at least half and half, but, considering the enormous advantages that we get otherwise in the number of Indian Directors as also in the promises about the training of Indians and in the saving of expenditure that we were incurring, I thought that it was the best possible arrangement that could be made, and I could not think of anything better. But there were two things which really troubled our minds, and I do not mind mentioning them on the floor of the House. One was that I thought the Finance Committee could not take the responsibility of giving their final consent to it and this for two reasons : in the first place this is a question of new policy and I thought the Assembly should have a chance of expressing its opinion : the second reason was that the opinion of the Retrenchment Committee was very definite about it, and I thought that the only body which could go against that opinion was this House and not the Standing Finance Committee. For these two reasons I myself insisted that the Assembly should have an opportunity to discuss this matter before the amount was actually paid and not merely as a post mortem examination. I am very glad that the Finance Member gave an opportunity to this House to express an opinion. The second thing about which I was very unhappy was, what would happen in the year 1939, that is, when the contract ceases ? I insisted in the Committee and I insist now that the Assembly and the Finance Committee, whatever it may be then, should have a full opportunity to express their opinion, and no transaction should be made behind their backs, and there should be no extension of time without the explicit permission of the Assembly that may be in existence at the time. I know very well that most of the money would be spent on the ground, etc., which nobody can take away from India. That will all be permanent in this country, but the only things which can be taken away are the aeroplanes which, being in a dilapidated condition, may not fetch a good price. Therefore, the major portion of the value of those things will remain in our possession. We will be in a very fortunate position to dictate our own terms, but I do insist that in 1939, when we come to consider the whole position, the then Assembly should be given an opportunity to express an opinion before any final action is taken by the Government. With these few words, Sir, I support the motion.

Mr. N. R. Gunjal (Bombay Central Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : (The Honourable Member spoke in the vernacular.)

Mr. Muhammad Muazzam Sahib Bahadur (North Madras : Muhammadan) : Sir, I have only got one or two observations to make. The Honourable the Finance Member has just now said that this arrangement of the remission of the customs duties would not cause any loss to this country, but I could not exactly follow his line of argument. Would he be prepared, I ask, to extend the same concession to any other enterprise which is positively beneficial to this country if such an enterprise is set up in India ? Would he go the length of remitting the customs duties which that enterprise would have to pay but for the express remission in the shape of a subsidy ? As a matter of fact, when I endorsed my approval to the demand as a member of the Standing Finance Committee, I really thought that I was right in taking that step well knowing that we were going to be a party to something like ninety thousand to a lakh of rupees being forgone in the next five or six years, and I thought that, after six years, some other arrangement would be come to which would go a great way in reducing this remission of customs duty.

Then, Sir, the next point to which I would invite the attention of the Honourable the Finance Member is that, although the Government of India are contributing 24 per cent. towards the capital of the Indian Trans-Continental Airways, and although the right has been given to the Indian National Airways to nominate two members on the Board of Directors, how is it that the Government of India have nominated only one member to represent the Government of India on the Board ? That is my objection so far as the composition of the Board is concerned. There are four members nominated on the Board of Directors by the Imperial Airways, two by the Indian National Airways, and only one by the Government of India, although the difference in the matter of contribution of shares is only one per cent. between the Government of India and the Indian National Airways. The Indian National Airways contribute 25 per cent. and the Government of India contribute 24 per cent., but is that any reason, Sir, that the difference of one per cent. should bring about such a large difference in the right of the Government of India that it can nominate only one member and not two members on the Board of Directors ? These are the only two points that struck me.

Then, as regards the point raised by my friend, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, I should like to draw his attention to paragraph 3 of the communiqué where it expressly states that the Indian Trans-Continental Airways will employ the largest percentage reasonably possible of Indian personnel as soon as individuals of the requisite standard are available.....

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : I have already said so in my speech.

Mr. Muhammad Muazzam Sahib Bahadur : But I thought my friend had some doubts as regards the Indianization of the personnel.

There is one other matter, Sir, to which I should like to invite the attention of the House, and that is about the procedure. Sir, I have found in some cases, and, particularly, in the present case, the procedure adopted by some of the Departments of the Government of India in placing their proposals before the Standing Finance Committee embodied in the shape of demands is not what one would in fairness desire. As a matter of fact, in the present case, negotiations have been going on between the Government of India and the Imperial Airways for a very long time, and decisions were reached a few months ago. Sir, we knew nothing about the negotiations, and we knew nothing about the decision, and then the Government of India, to implement the decision which they had arrived at, made an actual payment without our knowledge of about a lakh of rupees, or probably more. Even at that stage we were not informed of what had taken place. Then an agreement was reached between the Government of India and the Indian Trans-Continental Airways that the Government of India should grant a subsidy to the concern in the shape of a remission of customs duties on petrol, on aeroplanes and spares. We knew nothing about this agreement either. As a matter of fact, the remission was given and the subsidy was granted on their own responsibility. Then the first time we were apprised of the steps that had been taken was when there was a call on the Government of India after the allotment of shares was made. I believe even that call has been paid, and, now, when the second call has to be paid, they come to us. I think that in matters which involve payments of this type, the proper procedure would be that the proposals should be placed before the Standing Finance Committee in the initial stages and the Government of India should not delay doing so for such a long time until the whole thing had almost developed fully. I think if the Standing Finance Committee is to carry out its functions as indicated at the time it was first set up, the Finance Member will kindly see to it that the procedure which they have adopted in the present case is once for all given up.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Sir, I only wish to deal with two or three points which the last speaker has raised ; otherwise this has been a satisfactory debate, a debate of almost complete agreement. My Honourable friend raised three points. First of all, as regards the exemption from customs duties, I do not want my Honourable friend to draw any implications from what I said. All that I said was, in order to explain the financial significance of this particular proposal to the House, that as far as the so-called subsidy was concerned it did not represent a real outgoing in cash, it merely represented a foregoing of receipts which we would not otherwise have had. But I would remind my Honourable friend that the point made by Sir Frank Noyce was that by giving this nominal subsidy the Government of India do secure a much better arrangement as regards charges paid for the carrying of mails, an arrangement which on the present gold value of the rupee actually means a saving,—a real saving—to us of about Rs. 1½ lakhs a year, so that we get something very substantial in return.

Then, my Honourable friend raised the point as to why there was only one Government Director. We do not feel that the actual number of Directors matters very much. We have one Government Director who can represent the Government point of view and who can keep us informed of what is going on. The point which impressed us most was that the majority of the Directors from whatever side they came were to be Indians. I would also remind the House that in addition to the Government Director we have made arrangements according to which the Director of Civil Aviation will be entitled to attend the meetings of the Board. Therefore, I think the House may rest assured that the Government will be well represented in all discussions.

Lastly, my Honourable friend voiced a complaint as to the delay in putting this proposal before the Standing Finance Committee. As regards that, strictly interpreting our duties and our position my Honourable friend is perfectly right, and I should be the last person to desire to defend any delay in placing matters before the Standing Finance Committee. My Honourable friend will realise why I should be the last person to do that because we so frequently, acting as a Committee, have to whip up the departments of the Government of India into putting forward their proposals in good time. But one has to take into account the practical situation, the practical difficulties. This arrangement, I think I am correct in saying, was not actually reduced to a form in which we could put it before the Standing Finance Committee until after the Standing Finance Committee concluded its sittings during the Delhi Session. It came up between the two Sessions, and we did really take the first possible opportunity after this proposal had been worked out for putting it before the Standing Finance Committee. But I quite agree that some sort of preliminary notice might have been given to the Standing Finance Committee in the course of the Delhi Session. I am sure that my Honourable colleague, Sir Frank Noyce, will agree and take note of the point as regards future proposals of this kind. We are only too anxious to give the Standing Finance Committee an opportunity to consider all proposals of this kind before actual decisions are taken.

The only other point to which I may refer is that my Honourable friend, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, told us that he insisted on certain things being done in 1939. There, again, speaking on behalf of my colleague in the Industries and Labour Department, I feel sure he will agree to leave a note on record which will be brought to the attention of the

[Sir George Schuster.]

Prime Minister of India in 1939 (Laughter), and I have little doubt that, if he is not my Honourable friend himself, the Prime Minister will give due weight to those considerations on which my Honourable friend has insisted. (Laughter.)

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That a supplementary sum not exceeding Rs. 2,63,200 be granted to the Governor General in Council to defray the charges which will come in course of payment during the year ending 31st March, 1934, in respect of 'Civil Aviation'."

The motion was adopted.

REPORT OF THE PUBLIC ACCOUNTS COMMITTEE.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : Sir, I beg to move :

"That the Report of the Public Accounts Committee on the Accounts of 1930-31, Parts I and II, be taken into consideration and that the Assembly do approve the expenditure of Rs. 25,388 incurred in 1930-31 representing the share of the Government of India on behalf of the Centrally Administered Areas of the cost of materials purchased for locust operations, in that year."

In the ordinary course this motion would have simply consisted of the first one and a half lines, but for particular reasons it has been necessary to add the second part of the motion. If any Honourable Member is interested in the technical reasons for doing this he will find them explained in paragraphs 30, 31 and 32 of Volume I of the Public Accounts Committee's Report on the Accounts of 1930-31, and in paragraph 29 of Part II of that Report. It is a quite simple point. According to the rules of procedure that exist at present there is some difficulty in dealing with an excess grant where that relates to what is technically a new service. The formula which we have adopted was settled after consultation with you, Sir, and I trust that Honourable Members will be satisfied with the procedure which we are adopting. Otherwise I have nothing to say on this motion except to express an apology that it has come before the House so late. But Honourable Members who have sat through the number of days occupied in legislative business during the last two Sessions will realise how little time there has been and how much urgent business there has been, which has meant a delay in bringing forward this matter. This particular Resolution for the consideration of the Public Accounts Committee was one in which the House took very considerable interest before we adopted this procedure but I regret to say that since we adopted it, the Resolution has become what I might describe as the Cinderella of Government business, which has always been crowded out by her ugly sisters. If any Honourable Member has any point to raise on the Report of the Public Accounts Committee, I should be very pleased to deal with those points in reply.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Motion moved :

"That the Report of the Public Accounts Committee on the Accounts of 1930-31, Parts I and II, be taken into consideration and that the Assembly do approve the expenditure of Rs. 25,388 incurred in 1930-31 representing the share of the Government of India on behalf of the Centrally Administered Areas of the cost of materials purchased for locust operations, in that year."

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad (United Provinces Southern Divisions : Muhammadan Rural) : May I suggest that the consideration of this be postponed till the November Session. My reason is, if the Honourable the Leader of the House agrees that the report on the Reserve Bank Bill will be laid before the House on the 13th November, discussion cannot take place before the 20th. We will, therefore, have a week, and some time may be found for discussing this report. I, therefore, suggest that the discussion on this report may be postponed till the November Session.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : We on the Government side would have been very glad to take account of the suggestion of my Honourable friend, but it is more than probable that there will be other business of an urgent nature to occupy the House during those few days which will be available at the beginning of the special Session. We also think, and I believe, you, Sir, will support me in this, that it is desirable that in the first week the sittings of this House should be limited in order that Honourable Members may have time to study the report of the Select Committee on the Reserve Bank Bill. I would also remind my Honourable friend that this particular motion has been already delayed and, before we know where we are, we shall be faced with the necessity of considering the report of the Public Accounts Committee on the Accounts for 1931-32. I would suggest to my Honourable friend that we take advantage of such time as is available now and that we dispose of this very much delayed Resolution once for all.

Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury (Assam : Muhammadan) : We are now discussing the accounts of the year 1930-31 and most of the Honourable Members must have forgotten what was said in the report presented some time ago, but in the proceedings of the year we are now discussing, there was a very important departure from the proceedings of the previous years. In that year, for the first time, three non-official Members were elected to serve on the Military Accounts Committee to examine them in detail, and I understand that in the beginning the military authorities were a little bit suspicious of the arrangement, but I hope they found afterwards that the Members of the Assembly were not such villains as they are painted to be. We, on our part, were impressed with the straightforwardness with which the military witnesses gave evidence before us and the readiness with which they acknowledged their mistakes and agreed to rectify them. Speaking from the point of view of accuracy of accounts and control of expenditure, I think we can say that the military accounts are on a par with the civil accounts.

There is, however, one item of expenditure in the accounts of the year under review in which the House might feel interested. I am referring to the expenditure on the Indian Territorial Force. In that year, the Finance Department sanctioned 15 lakhs of rupees for the expansion of the Indian Territorial Force. The Army Department could not find it possible to spend the full amount and they surrendered five lakhs to the Finance Department. This raises a very important issue, namely, the attitude of the Army authorities with regard to the expansion of the Indian Territorial Force. It was started with a very ambitious object—of giving opportunities for military training to what are known as the non-martial races. It was said that they would form the neucleus of the citizen army of India, so that a self-governing India may be in a position to undertake the responsibility for defence, but this original objective seems to have receded into the background and the army authorities are now giving it step-motherly treatment. Instead of spending the money on the expansion of the Territorial Forces, they have surrendered the money to the Finance Department, while there is a growing demand in India for the expansion of the Territorial Force. While attending a meeting of the Aligarh University Convocation, the Vice-Chancellor Mr. Ramsbotham, I heard complain that they could not raise the Aligarh detachment of the University Training Corps to a Company on account of lack of funds, though there was plenty of keenness and plenty of material available. If the Indian Territorial Force has not been as popular as was anticipated, and if there are difficulties in the way, the military authorities should look into the matter and try to remove those defects.

I now come to the question of the Posts and Telegraphs Department. In regard to the recommendations made by the Committee over which my friend, Sir Cowasji Jehangir, presided, the Government decision was communicated to us this year and we found that the Government only accepted some minor and subsidiary recommendations and the most important recommendation about the constitution of the Capital Account and the Depreciation Fund was rejected by the Government of India. Honourable Members might remember that, in the year 1924-25, the accounts of the Postal Department were commercialised. It was decided that the capital at charge of the department should represent the depreciated value of the assets and that the depreciation fund should be started with nil balance, and arrears of depreciation should be met from capital advances. Sir Cowasji Jehangir's Committee recommended that they should start a Depreciation Fund with 875 lakhs as balance, that being the amount of accrued depreciation in 1925. They also recommended that capital at charge should represent the original value and not the depreciated value of the assets. If this recommendation had been accepted, the result would have been that the Postal Department would be paying interests at 3.3 per cent. up to the year 1917 and at the current rate for the other years for their capital borrowing, and would have earned interest at the current rate for their Depreciation Fund balances.

Now, Sir, the difference between the interest they would have paid and the interest that they would have earned would have been a gain to this Department. Government rejected it on the ground that its position is anomalous, but I have not been able to understand where the anomaly lies. However, the Government have made their decision and it is no use discussing it any further. I only bring this to the notice of the House as the prospect of the Postal Department balancing its budget seems to be as distant as ever.

I want to say a few words about the Railway Department also. The Honourable the Commerce Member said in his budget speech that he was going to appoint a Committee to inquire about the rate of contribution to the Depreciation Fund and the question of assumed life of the existing assets. We of the Public Accounts Committee have been agitating on this point for a long time. We now find that adversity has forced upon the Railway authorities the wisdom of accepting our recommendation which, in their spendthrift days, they used to ignore. There is one aspect of Railway finance to which I wish to draw the attention of the Honourable the Commerce Member. There is a tendency on the part of the Agents of some of the Railways to throw more of the expenditure on the capital than on revenue. Under the rule of allocation, capital bears the cost of new work, additional rolling stock, etc., while ordinary renewals and replacements are met from revenue. The Railway Agents take advantage of the interpretation of this rule to throw on capital what should be met from revenue. This is what the Auditor General remarked in this connection :

"There is a justification for believing that the present rules lead to considerable inflation of the Capital Account and if the financial position of the Railways are not to be prejudiced it is necessary to ascertain the truth in connection with this matter and to take necessary measures for the future."

I should like to give a few instances to show how capital expenditure has been increased out of all proportion to gross earnings. Take the Great Indian Peninsula Railway. In the year 1918-19, the total capital outlay was 67 crores. Ten years later, that is, in the year 1928-29, it was 116 crores. The capital outlay was increased by 71 per cent. whereas the gross earnings were increased only by about 30 per cent. Again, take the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway. In the year 1918-19, the total capital outlay was 25 crores and, in the year 1928-29, it was 50 crores. The capital outlay was increased by 100 per cent. while the gross earnings were increased by about 28 per cent. only. Now, let us contrast this with the Nizam's Guaranteed Railway. During these 10 years, the capital outlay increased by 12 per cent. and the gross earnings by 44 per cent. This, I think, corroborates the remark of the Auditor General that there has not been a disproportionate growth of the capital outlay which is not reflected in increased earning capacity and this is a matter which requires careful consideration.

Mr. S. C. Mitra (Chittagong and Rajshahi Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, at this time of the day and at the fag end of the Session, I do not like to take much time, yet, I think, it is my duty to draw the attention of the House to some of the remarks made by the Public Accounts Committee. I shall be glad to hear from Government what they have to say on these matters. It is admitted that the accounts in other departments have much improved during the course of these years. But, in the report on page 3, the Committee had made it clear that they could not speak so highly of the Postal Department. This is what they have said :

"Our view in regard to the Posts and Telegraphs Department is not, however, so favourable as the detailed appropriation accounts indicate that there is still great room for improvement in the methods and practice of financial control. We are informed by the Director General of Posts and Telegraphs that steps have already been taken to remove the defects in the existing procedure of financial control. The Accountant General, Posts and Telegraphs, has undertaken at our instance to bring to notice in his subsequent reports whether the steps now taken have led to the improvements hoped for."

[Mr. S. C. Mitra.]

Since then, Sir, we had the occasion to pass through another appropriation report of this Committee and unfortunately we find therein that the position is not far better. Even as early as 1923, the Incheape Committee said that the system of accounts in the Postal Department was far from satisfactory and they recommended that there should be a special financial adviser attached to this Department. So far as I remember, the present Director General, Sir Thomas Ryan, was the first Financial Adviser. But when he appeared before the Public Accounts Committee this year, he said that during the period he acted as the Financial Adviser he had to do more secretariat work and very little financial work. And the present incumbent of the post, Mr. Varma, who is also a very competent officer, had to complain before the Committee that he had no staff. Perhaps he had only his chaprasi and none else to help him. The House will desire to know from the Department what steps they have taken since this report to see that the system of accounts in the Postal Department may improve in the future.

Then I pass on to another question that deals with the large stock of quinine in the Department of Education, Health and Lands. This matter also had been coming before the Committee for consideration from year to year since 1926 when we dealt with a large stock of quinine valued at more than 50 lakhs of rupees. The Public Accounts Committee repeatedly drew the attention of the Government to the fact that, even in the shape of interest, we were losing between two to three lakhs of rupees every year. The Committee said that as public health was a provincial transferred subject, Government should take steps to see how to dispose of this very big stock of quinine. So far as we know, the Central Government approached the Local Governments as late as 12th March, 1932. Although it is now a year and half, we do not still know whether they have been able to dispose of the large stock of quinine or not. In the current year's report also, the Public Accounts Committee drew particular attention to this fact and the Department as usual said that they were taking the necessary steps and might be able to dispose of this large stock in the near future. I should like to know from the Government as to what is the exact position with regard to this large surplus stock of quinine valued at more than 50 lakhs. Another question that was particularly noted was with regard to the stores balance. I quote from page 9 of the report which says :

"We observe from the appendix for the year 1930-31 that the balances of stocks of stores held by the various commercial concerns on the 31st March, 1931, were still unduly high. We were assured by the departmental witnesses that the stores balances were being closely watched and reduced wherever possible. For example in the mathematical instrument office, Calcutta, home indents have been entirely suspended and manufacture is being reduced by short time employment of workmen. The maintenance of excessive stocks involves the taxpayer in a two-fold loss : There is the loss of interest on capital unnecessarily locked up and there is the further loss arising from the danger of the stores becoming obsolete and having to be disposed of at a sacrifice later."

I should like to hear from Government what steps they have taken as regards these large stores balance and how far the condition has improved by this time.

Further on, at page 11, the Committee again deals with the Department of Posts and Telegraphs. It was found that the Department was working at a deficit and the Director General suggested that in the near future there was a chance for this Department balancing its assets and liabilities. I should like to quote from the report. It says :

"But we obtained from the Director General, Posts and Telegraphs, a memorandum giving an up-to-date survey of the general position and prospects of the department. The commercial loss which amounted to Rs. 91 lakhs in 1930-31 is expected to come down to about Rs. 52 lakhs in the current year and the Director General is convinced that with the return to reasonably normal conditions the Department would very soon be working again at a profit. The latest information now available is, as observed by the Auditor General, not such as to justify optimism or to warrant relaxation of effort on the part of Government. We do not agree with the Accountant General that the year 1930-31 might be taken as closing an important chapter in the history of the department and we cannot agree to be satisfied except by the test of actual results."

The actual results proved that our anticipations were correct and not the anticipations of the Director General. It is really a deficit budget and perhaps it will continue for a long time to be a deficit budget, I mean the postal budget. We should like to hear from the Honourable Member in charge how he thinks he would realise his expectations that the postal budget will be a balanced budget. I do not want to weary the House any further, but my Honourable friend, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, will speak on the railway budget.

Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi (Madras ceded Districts and Chittoor : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, at this stage, I should like to raise a point of order whether this Resolution is in order or not, because, in one and the same Resolution, two things are combined and put up for the consideration of this House. The first part of the Resolution is with regard to the consideration of the report of the Public Accounts Committee of 1930-31, and the second part is a demand for grant for a certain expenditure. Sir, it looks to me that it is something like what we call in law, "misjoinder of causes of action". That is how it appears to me. The object of any motion, as I understand it, is to concentrate the attention of the House or to concentrate the attention of the Member to a certain particular question involved in it. But, in this Resolution, there are two separate and independent things that are being coupled in one and the same Resolution. So, I should like to draw the attention of the Chair so that we may have a ruling on the matter. In this Resolution, with regard to the first part, we may accept the report of the Public Accounts Committee, but with regard to the second part, we may reject the grant. We can't accept one part of the Resolution and reject the other part. My difficulty is that two distinct matters are involved in one and the same Resolution and so I want a ruling from the Chair whether this is correct.

5 P.M.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Chair quite realises the difficulty with which the Honourable Members might be faced at the time when the question is put. But they should realise that when the motion is put to the vote, it is open to the Chair to split up the motion into two or three parts and put each part separately so that Honourable Members will have the opportunity of voting on each part separately. But, in this particular case, the Chair might explain to the Honourable Members that the usual parliamentary practice, when a motion to take into consideration the Public Accounts Committee report is made, is that no question is put after discussion. The motion, that the report of the Public Accounts Committee be taken into consideration, is simply made with a view to giving an opportunity to the

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Thursday, 21st September, 1933.

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber at Eleven of the Clock, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) in the Chair.

MESSAGE FROM THE COUNCIL OF STATE.

Secretary of the Assembly : Sir, the following Message has been received from the Council of State :

"I am directed to inform you that the Council of State has, at its meeting held on the 20th September, 1933, agreed, without any amendments, to the Bill to amend the Dangerous Drugs Act, 1930, for certain purposes, which was passed by the Legislative Assembly at its meeting held on the 16th September, 1933."

DEATH OF MRS. ANNIE BESANT.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir (Bombay City : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : Mr. President, the House, I am sure, will hear with the deepest regret of the death of Mrs. Annie Besant, and it is the general desire of the House that we should express our condolence with the Theosophical Society and with her relations.

I think that there is no one in India who has not heard or who has not known of the work of Mrs. Annie Besant. It might truly be said that she was the greatest woman of her generation, not only the greatest Englishwoman, but I make bold to say, the greatest woman in the world of her generation. She was perhaps one of the greatest orators of her time, and I well remember in the days of my youth hearing Annie Besant speak, with awe and admiration, although perhaps when we got home and reflected on all she had said we might not be able to agree with all her theories and all her principles : but that she excelled all men and women as an orator there can be no doubt. I have heard it said in England by Englishmen that Annie Besant excelled all men in oratory, including the great Gladstone. Her knowledge of India and her love for this country was of a character we have never seen in any one person before. We may not be able to agree with all her views, but we cannot doubt her honesty of purpose, her love for this country and its peoples, and we cannot but acknowledge today the deep debt of gratitude that India owes her—an Englishwoman coming to this country from her home six thousand miles away, devoting all her time, her energy and her wealth for the well being of a people, millions of them, who were no connection or relations of hers, but merely for the love of humanity. I am not going to enlarge on Mrs. Annie Besant's political life. But there can be no doubt that she was the first in India to rouse the masses as to their responsibilities to their own country, social and political. I have had the pleasure of meeting her, but there

[Mr. President.]

House to have a full and thorough discussion on the points arising within the report of the Public Accounts Committee and no question is put. Following that practice, what the Chair proposes to do is this. The question relating to excess grant has been coupled with the first part, because it arises out of the report with which the first part deals. So no question will be put relating to the first part. The only question that will be put will be that the Assembly do approve the excess expenditure.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Sir, I just have in my hand a copy of part II of Volume I of the report and I find that it deals with the entire administration of Indian railways and, therefore, a review of the entire administration from "A" to "Z" will be within the purview of this Resolution.

Sir, the first question which I will take up here is the capitalised value of the Indian railways. I remember a story. Once a person asked the value of the shoe which he was wearing and at what price he could sell it. The latter said that he would calculate. He said: "I paid 10 shillings for it when I purchased it and I had to resole it ten times and paid half a crown each time. Therefore, it cost me 35 shillings. Now, I am quite willing to sell it at half the price, that is, 17 shillings". This is just the point with regard to capitalisation of our Indian Railways. We have been spending money from time to time and this is all added to the Capital at charge. This is rather an important point and I hope, before the new Railway authority comes into existence—I hope it will come into existence in the near future,—the assets of the Indian railways will be revalued. The whole thing should be revalued by some expert committee so that the railways in future will not be saddled with the interest charges with which they are saddled at the present moment. We are in a very unsatisfactory position just now as regards the Indian Railways. Now, I will just give a simple question of arithmetic and I hope my Honourable friend, the Leader of the House, will be able to give me an answer. My question is this that there is a business, called the Indian Railway Administration. The income of this business is about 87 crores. Out of these 87 crores.....

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Order, order. If there is a general desire to continue this discussion, the Chair would have no objection to direct that the House should sit tomorrow till Lunch time. But if it is desired that we should sit late today and finish it off, the Chair would be agreeable to that course also. (Some Honourable Members : "Tomorrow morning will be better".) If at all it is the desire to continue the discussion, the Chair will direct that tomorrow we shall sit only for half the day and finish it by Lunch time.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I will finish before Lunch time. (Laughter.)

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Sir, on a point of order. Is my Honourable friend in order in reviewing the Railway administration from "A" to "Z", as he himself described it, in the course of this discussion, or should he properly limit himself to points which are actually raised in the report of the Public Accounts Committee which is before this Assembly?

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I will confine myself strictly to the points raised here and this was one of the points raised in this report. If I review the entire system, I cannot finish even in a week, but I will take about three hours only by confining myself to the points raised in the report.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : On the whole, it will perhaps be better if the Chair directs that tomorrow the House will sit till Lunch time, and the Chair directs accordingly.

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Thursday, the 21st September, 1933.

[Sir Cowasji Jehangir.]

must be other Honourable Members in this House who have known her better. Of course she chose Madras as her home, and those from Madras will naturally speak with much greater authority on the life and work of Mrs. Annie Besant. Mr. President, I believe it is the general desire of the House that you should convey to the Theosophical Society and to her relations our deep condolences and our firm conviction that India has lost in her one of India's greatest friends from abroad.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer (Rohilkund and Kumaon Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, the Honourable the Leader of the Opposition has expressed the feelings of this side of the House and the House as a whole and the country outside when he said that in the passing of Mrs. Besant a great friend of India and of humanity has passed away. Mrs. Besant illustrated in her great life, greatly lived, that life is a great calling, not a mean and grovelling thing to be shuffled through as we can. When she broke away from Christianity after seeing the sufferings of her child before its death, when she wondered why God should have inflicted on that innocent thing so much suffering, and took to atheism for a while or agnosticism, she was really embarking upon a severe quest after the truth. Great were the days when she fought the battle of freedom in England with Charles Bradlaugh—days which made the late Mr. Stead truly say that she was the greatest platform speaker of the English speaking world. And then, when she came into contact with Hinduism and studied Hindu philosophy and realised that there was such a thing as transmigration of the soul and that the sins of past life were visited by way of suffering in this life on young and old alike, she plunged into the study of that religion and became its great master and interpreter ; it is from Hinduism that she learnt the great truth of theosophy, for she felt that Hinduism was the mother of religions and that various religions were like various rivers which took their start from various mountains flowing, crooked or straight, going and mingling their waters in the common sea, the sagara, the realisation of God himself. Mrs. Besant thought she owed a great debt to her own country when she started the Home Rule for India movement. Before her there have been independence movements in this country, climaxing in violence of an ugly kind. She thought the greatest message that an Englishman or Englishwoman could give to this country was to make the Indian people love India as an Englishman would love England ; and she founded, to educate the youth of this land on right lines, the Central Hindu College, Benares, on which rose the great Hindu University. So long as Hinduism lives, the name of Mrs. Besant will live, and even though she has passed away, she can never pass away, for she has joined "the Chair invisible

Of those immortal dead who live again
In minds made better by their presence."

Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi (Madras ceded Districts and Chittoor : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, on behalf of my Party and on behalf of myself, I heartily associate myself with the sentiments so eloquently expressed by the Leaders of the Independent and Nationalist Parties regarding the passing away of Dr. Besant. Sir, we Indians owe a deep debt of gratitude to Dr. Besant. It was she who started the Home Rule movement for the attainment of self-Government for India and it is a pity that she did not see the fruition of her labours. She helped not only the political movement, but also the educational movement by starting the Central Hindu College at Benares and, subsequently, she transferred her activities to the Madras Presidency and made Adyar as the headquarters for her work. After she became President of the Theosophical Society, she made the society a world-wide movement and established branches all over the world. Sir, Madras Presidency is more grateful to her than other provinces, because she started what is called the Y. M. I. A. Association where young Indians find a place for living and for carrying on other social activities. Coming nearer home, I am deeply grateful to her for having started educational institutions in my own place, Madanapalle, where she started an Arts College and Jijnasa Lodge, and she is also responsible for starting what is called the Rishi Valley Educational Trust and made Madanapalle the Santi Niketan of Southern India in the words of the great Poet Tagore. Sir, I associate myself with all the sentiments that have fallen from the previous speakers.

Mr. N. N. Anklesaria (Bombay Northern Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, on behalf of the Central Party, I entirely associate myself with the sentiments expressed by the previous speakers. Sir, among the many English names which have endeared themselves to Indians the name of Annie Besant will be always in the forefront. So far as I know, she acknowledged no ties of blood or race. India was her mother and Indians were her brothers and sisters. Mr. President, I think, therefore, it would be in the fitness of things if our condolence and sympathy were broadcasted throughout the whole country which is now mourning her loss.

Sir Leslie Hudson (Bombay : European) : Mr. President, in the passing away of Dr. Annie Besant, a remarkable personality has been lost to India. She identified herself in her later years with the Home Rule movement in India and she gave that movement life and purpose in politics, in religion and in philosophy. She has made her influence felt throughout the world, and more particularly throughout India, and there are many, apart from those who have listened to her silver tongued oratory, who will mourn her loss. I wish to associate my Group, Sir, with the tributes paid to her memory by previous speakers.

Nawab Major Malik Talib Mehdi Khan (North Punjab : Muhammadan) : Sir, I wish to associate myself and my Party with what has been said by previous speakers about the loss that India has sustained on account of the passing away of Dr. Annie Besant. She was one of those Englishwomen who tried to bring the East and West together. She gave a very great part of her life to the service of India. She was quite unselfish and had no thought for any kind of reward for the work she did for this country. Sir, her death removes a link which aimed at uniting India and England together, and we mourn her loss, because we have lost a true friend.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore (Leader of the House) : Sir, I would like to associate myself with the tributes that have been paid to a truly remarkable personality. Mrs. Besant spent the best years of a very long life in what she passionately believed to be the best service of this country. I am sure that there will be a widespread feeling of regret throughout the country at the loss of a great personality who was a citizen of the world, as much as he was a citizen of India.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : I would like to add my own tribute to the memory of one of the greatest personalities that the world has ever seen. In the passing away of Mrs. Annie Besant, the world has lost a remarkable personality. It has been my privilege to enjoy the friendship of Annie Besant, and it was my privilege also to work with her in the public cause for some time. When the future historian of India writes about the progress of the national movement in this country, he would undoubtedly give a place of honour to Annie Besant. To my mind, the greatest service that Annie Besant rendered to this country and to England lies in the fact that she, more than any other person, has been responsible for bringing about better understanding between Englishmen and Indians. She was eminently fitted for this task, because she, more than any other person, understood Indian ideals and aspirations. Her knowledge of Indian culture and Indian philosophy was unique. That foundation enabled her to bring about a better understanding between Englishmen and Indians. I well remember the year 1924 when I proceeded to England as one of the members of the Home Rule Deputation and addressed various public meetings along with her, and I can recall to my mind the enthusiasm which Annie Besant stirred up in the minds of Englishmen and women about the Indian Empire. Both Englishmen and Indians will for many generations to come revere the memory of one who strove so hard to bring about a better understanding between these two countries. Probably those outside her own intimate circle may not realise that, apart from her public services, in her private life she was the very embodiment of charity and philanthropy. I know myself of hundreds of Indian students who owe their educational career and their career in later life to the generosity of Annie Besant. It shall be my duty to convey to the members of the Theosophical Society and to the relations of Annie Besant the deep sorrow that this House feels with the world as a whole in the loss of a great personality, and the greatest friend that India had.

REPORT OF THE PUBLIC ACCOUNTS COMMITTEE—concld.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad (United Provinces Southern Divisions : Muhammadan Rural) : The Public Accounts Committee is one of the most important statutory Committees of this House, or, I can say, perhaps the most important one. Its report is always of a technical nature, and the object of discussing it in the House is that the Members of the Assembly, who have not been members of the Public Accounts Committee, should know something about the administration of the various Departments of the Government, and hear something about the efficiency or otherwise of those Departments. The object is not simply to pass the Report in a formal manner ; the intention is that we should know something about it. So, it was unreasonable on the part of Government to have a Report of this kind fifteen minutes before the time scheduled for the termination of the proceedings of this Assembly, and when a suggestion was made by the Opposition that the subject should be taken up in the Delhi Session, the reply of the Government was still more unreasonable, and the Opposition had no other alternative but to exercise its prerogative.

I frankly admit that I did not even know till yesterday afternoon that the Railway Department also came within the purview of the Public Accounts Committee till the Deputy Secretary passed on the second volume of the Report to me. Many Members on this side of the House are absent and I should not like to detain the House very long. I shall take the advice of my Honourable friend, the Finance Member, and confine my attention to those particular portions which are mentioned in the Report and leave the consideration of all points from A to Z.

Taking up Appendices IV and V of this Report, they deal with a matter in which I had been taking great interest, that is the question of Moody-Ward report and the treatment meted out to travelling ticket inspectors. I daresay, much water has flown since those pages had been written and the position today is much better. There are, however, one or two points to which I would like to draw attention. It is asserted that this was the most feasible scheme that could be devised. If it is supposed to be very efficient, may I suggest that the crew system which has been so much condemned in this Report should now be abolished even on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway where, I understand, it does exist from Khandwa to Manmad. The other thing is that they have sketched out very nicely the defects of the Moody-Ward system. They say that, under the crew system, 30 per cent. of the tickets were missing, as against nine per cent. missing under the Moody-Ward system. The only relic of the crew system that has now been left is the Hayman-Mohindra punch. I respectfully submit to the Honourable the Financial Commissioner for Railways that all these punches should be sold out now like waste iron and the whole thing written off as a dead loss to the Indian railways in memory of those who have gone away.

I take this opportunity to repeat four points to which attention has already been drawn. In this connection I should like to take this opportunity to thank my friend, the Financial Commissioner, who is taking a personal interest in the matter, and on account of his personal sympathy to a just cause this vexed question has been partially or, I may say, to a large extent, solved. Those points still left are (1) that the consolidated travelling allowance should be fixed in proportion to the salary and not fixed for each grade, (2) if the vacancies may be in a higher grade, then.....

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore (Member for Commerce and Railways) : Would my Honourable friend kindly refer me to the part of the Report with which he is dealing ?

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : It is connected with the Moody-Ward Report which is referred to in Annexure A to Appendix IV. I need not waste the time of the House, but I would like to read only one sentence from this Appendix :

> "The Auditor General concurred in this opinion and added that the function of the Accounts Department was, through the accounts, to check whether the Traffic Department was doing its work properly."

[Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad.]

And, I think, some machinery ought to be provided to give effect to this suggestion. Some machinery should be provided to check the work of the Transport department.

Now, I come to the next Appendix, namely, V, dealing with publicity. Here, I understand, that a large sum of money had been given to one press in India, both in advance and also recurring. It would probably have been better if the money had been spent in improving the Railway Printing Works, instead of giving it to one press. Another complaint is, the advertisements of the Railway publicity office are invariably given to the English Press and omit altogether the Indian papers. As regards Appendix VI, I have got nothing to say.

Now, I come to the very important Appendix, namely, VII, which deals with construction. Here our Public Accounts Committee go into very great detail and lay down certain conditions so that the old mistakes, I think I am entitled to use a stronger word, follies may not be repeated. I must draw attention once more to the Kangra Valley Railway, the original estimate of which was four crores of rupees and we have already spent Rs. 14 crores over it.

Mr. P. R. Rau (Financial Commissioner, Railways) : Certainly not. The original estimate was between 130 to 140 lakhs, and we have spent on the whole less than Rs. 3 crores I think. I do not know where my Honourable friend got the figure of Rs. 14 crores.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : The important thing is not the actual figures, but that the actual expenditure was three times the original estimate, this my friend cannot deny. Is it or is it not a fact that certain office records were all destroyed ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I understand that there was a fire and the records were destroyed.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : If they were destroyed, it is believed that they were destroyed intentionally and the person, who was responsible, I do not like to mention his name, immediately left, and no explanation was called for. Is it not a fact ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : This is news to me.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : My friend will have more news. I can give you proof of what I am saying now, but I do not like to mention it on the floor of the House. In this particular case, the Railway Department has mismanaged the affairs. My Honourable friend's predecessors, who were responsible for this, took the matter lightly, and no enquiry has been made and no report of a satisfactory nature has been laid before the House.

I should like to have some explanation also about the Salem-Mettur Dam, as to why the total expenditure is about ten times the original estimate. This is another instance in which they have been guilty of mismanagement, the expenditure was much greater than the original estimate. I pause for a reply.

Mr. P. R. Rau : I do not think it is correct that the expenditure was ten times the estimate.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : If my friend denies it, I leave the matter here. I now turn to Appendices VIII and IX. There you have a list of number of persons who are shown in one particular place, but who are employed in another place. We know that the audit is restricted to 10 per cent. cases. To find out the real number, you have to multiply it by ten. I do not like to read the whole list, but anybody who reads pages 73—77 of this report will see how the railways have been mismanaged. Cases have been given here in very great details. I may remind the House that in a particular farm in the Ambala district, a large number of coolies and railway servants were employed. I do not like to go into details, but I would refer Honourable Members to the pages of this report.

Then I come to the case of the Bengal Nagpur Railway. You find here that the expenditure, which ought to have been debited under reserve or depreciation, was really debited under capital, and the capital was increased enormously. This is mentioned on page 79, and the result would be that, in 1935, when the State would acquire the Bengal Nagpur Railway, we would have to pay the increased capital. I hope that the Committee would look into the matter and would adjust the accounts.

Then I turn to the purchase of certain things in Appendix XV. This is the electric scheme. It is a big thing, and I do not like to speak about it now. I would deal with this later on. In this connection, a beautiful pamphlet has been written by a railway expert. I hope this pamphlet would be laid before the Public Accounts Committee on some future date.

Mr. P. R. Rau : May I know what is the pamphlet the Honourable Member is referring to ?

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : It has been written by some railway officer.

Mr. P. R. Rau : Is it by the Director of Railway Audit ? That is the pamphlet which the Public Accounts Committee was considering.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I have not seen the report myself ; but the author promised to send it to me.

The next thing I will refer to is the stores purchased in England. We know that we pay large sums for the inspection and, then, we find that about 20 or 25 per cent. are incorrectly sent.

Mr. P. R. Rau : I do not think it is 10 per cent. It is much nearer one or two per cent.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I think they order one thing and get something else, and this is a thing which requires to be looked into. Your inspection should be more thorough and you should see that, whatever things are actually ordered are actually received.

The next thing is about the despatch of coal from Calcutta to Rangoon.

Mr. P. R. Rau : To what particular paragraph of the report is my Honourable friend referring ?

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I will give it later, but first let me mention the facts. May I ask, if it is not a fact that we have been paying Rs. 4-14-0, while the actual rate has been Rs. 4-4-0 or Rs. 4-0-0, and we are paying about eight annas per ton extra. A protest has already been made by the Burma Railways about this excess freight from Calcutta to Rangoon.

Mr. P. R. Rau : I cannot find any reference to this in this Report. Will my Honourable friend give me the reference ?

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : First consider the facts. Do you admit the facts ? Don't change the issue.

Mr. P. R. Rau : We must consider relevancy before we come to test.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I understand that the Burma Railway Administration has already protested against this practice and gave chapter and verse in proof of that statement. I do not like to waste the time of the House on this occasion and probably we will have a full dress debate on this subject when the discussion on the budget of the Indian Railways comes up before the Assembly.

I will also mention here one thing about the purchase of the finished articles by the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway. They always purchase the articles in a finished form and, afterwards, when they are not used, they are disposed of at 15 per cent. of the original price.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : On a point of order. I am sure that every one in this Assembly is interested in making this debate on the report of the Public Accounts Committee a useful one, but what my Honourable friend is really trying to do is to carry out on the floor of the House a sort of examination which the Public Accounts Committee itself has to conduct and I understood that you, Sir, agreed yesterday that this debate should confine itself to points which have actually been brought to notice by the Public Accounts Committee. I think my Honourable friend is going beyond that although no doubt he would be doing a valuable service if he called attention to points which had escaped the notice of the Public Accounts Committee.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Now, about the stores it is discussed in the committees' report.....

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : What paragraph is my Honourable friend referring to ?

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : One thing which should be looked into is whether the store balances of a particular railway are not much greater than they are in the case of other railways.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : May I perhaps assist my Honourable friend. I think possibly he has in mind paragraph 21 of Part I of Volume I of the Report.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I have Part II in my mind. I again lay stress on the fact that in one particular railway the store balances are much larger than they are under normal conditions which is due to the fact that they purchased a large quantity of stocks which were afterwards sold at 15 per cent. of the cost price.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I suggest that my Honourable friend is again quoting from his memory, and what we have to deal with is not my Honourable friend's memory, but this printed Report.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I am talking about the store balances mentioned at page 102, Chapter XIX.

Now, the next thing that I wish to say is about the Vizagapatam Harbour which is a big problem by itself. But the less we say about it, the better it is ; the Railway Department alone is not responsible for its mismanagement.

There is one thing more to which I should like to draw the attention of the House and that is the last point which I wish to make. It has been pointed out that there has been a great irregularity about locating the exact persons who have been responsible for irregularities. Very often the irregularity is attributed to a person who has left the service. Now, on this point, special stress has been laid in the Report and I hope we will have better accounts next year. I think the best course would be not to allow the person who is supposed to be responsible for some irregularities to go on leave and receive all the bonus to which he is entitled unless and until he has explained all those irregularities. In conclusion, I protest once more that this Report ought to have been brought before the House when it was full and when we could have a better opportunity of hearing the criticisms on the report of the Public Accounts Committee from members responsible for this Report.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Sir, it is always a very difficult task to reply in a debate of this kind and I would like at the outset to make one suggestion to the Honourable Members who are interested in this subject which, if this debate is to be taken seriously in the future, might be of great advantage. If it were possible for Honourable Members, who intend to take part in a discussion on the Public Accounts Committeee's Report, to let us on the Government side have notice of the points which they intend to raise, I think it would be possible to have a very much more satisfactory debate. It is, of course, possible to raise points in connection with every department of the Government arising out of the Public Accounts Committee's Report, but I am sure, Honourable Members opposite will appreciate that it is impossible for us on this side to come prepared to deal with every possible point that may be raised. Therefore, if this discussion is to become a useful feature in our proceedings, I think the suggestion which I have made is worth considering. As, however, we have not had notice of the points which have been raised and as it is very difficult for me to speak on behalf of every department on every detail which has been mentioned, I hope the House will excuse me if I do not reply fully on the present occasion. All that I can do is to say that we in the Finance Department will see that copies of the relevant portions of Honourable Members' speeches are forwarded to the departments which they concern and that due notice is taken of the suggestions made. There is, however, one point of general financial significance which was referred to in the speech of my Honourable friend, the Deputy President. He there complained that Government had not followed the recommendation of the Committee that was set up on the Posts and Telegraphs Accounts as regards creating a capital account and as regards allowing interest on the Department's balances. That is rather a complicated question and I only want to point out to my Honourable friend one practical aspect of that recommendation which recent developments have brought to light. Very briefly, the suggestion was that a fictitious balance should be created and credited to the Posts and Telegraphs Department covering the imaginary accumulations of depreciation fund over a long period of years before commercialised accounts were started and that as against that the Department should be treated as having borrowed money to cover the whole of its capital expenditure at an average rate of about 3½ per cent. The Department would then have been in the position of being liable for interest at 3½ per cent. on about 8¼ crores. As against this the Department would have had a book balance standing to the credit of the depreciation fund of the same amount on which it would have earned interest at the current rate. As the rate at the time when the recommendation was made was something like 5.7 per cent., the Department would have benefited to the extent of about 2⅛ per cent. on the sum of 8¼ crores, that is to say, the department would have been benefited to the extent of about 18 lakhs per annum. That was suggested as one way to make the department a paying proposition. Well, Sir, in the first place I had to object on behalf of the Finance Department to such an arrangement as it was a purely fictitious reconstruction of the past which would have put the Posts and Telegraphs Department in an extremely favourable position. It was to have been treated as having borrowed money at 3½ per cent. and as having that money to its credit and being able to earn 5.7 per cent. on it.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir (Bombay City : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : May I ask if the existing conditions were not most unfavourable to the Posts and Telegraphs Department ? If the suggestion is that the new arrangement was going to put the Posts and Telegraphs Department in a favourable position, were not the existing conditions most unfavourable to the Posts and Telegraphs Department ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : No, Sir : I do not think I can admit that at all. According to our arrangements we were allowing a very substantial rate of interest on all the balances standing at their credit. The point I want to make is this and I do not wish to enter now into the argument as to the merits or demerits of our decision. But the value of that arrangement to the Posts and Telegraphs Department depended entirely on the fact that the rate of interest which would have been allowed on the balances was much greater than the rate of interest at which it was to be assumed that the capital had been raised. Under present conditions instead of the balances being able to earn 5.7 per cent. interest we could not possibly treat them as earning more than about 4 per cent. interest. Therefore, the benefit which the Posts and Telegraphs Department would have received is reduced to a very few lakhs instead of 18 lakhs. It would have been reduced to about 4 or 5 lakhs. The point is that it is purely an accidental circumstance that it was possible to regard the money which had been spent in the past as having been borrowed at a very low rate and being able to earn a very high rate of interest today. If the charges which are to be levied by the Posts and Telegraphs Department from the public and if the attempts to reduce expenditure on the other side are to be regulated by purely accidental conditions of that kind, then I submit we should not get to the results that we are all aiming at, namely, making the Posts and Telegraphs Department really self-supporting. If it had been possible to accept that arrangement, it would have been an accident that it happened to be a beneficial arrangement, and moreover it would be a benefit, the permanence of which could not have been foretold. In fact if the rates of interest happen to go down still further, as they very well may, that arrangement might actually in the future have been found to be costing the Posts and Telegraphs Department money and to be producing a debit balance, which would, of course, entirely upset the purpose of the recommendation. That is an important financial point and I am glad to have had this opportunity of dealing with it. Otherwise, I do not think that there are any points on which I can be expected to give an immediate reply. I think we may say that this discussion has had one definite advantage and that is that it has forced my Honourable friend from ' A ' to ' Z ' to forgo his dinner and to read the Public Accounts Committee report. (Laughter.) That, Sir, is a result on which I submit this Assembly can congratulate itself.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : When I mentioned the fact that I had to forgo my dinner for the purpose of reading this Report, I thought that the Honourable Member would say that he would in future lay a Report of the Public Accounts Committee in good time for discussion and at a time when the House is full, and I am rather sorry that only the humorous side had appealed to him and the serious part did not appeal to him.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I am quite ready to accept my Honourable friend's suggestion and I can give him the assurance that we will do our best to give due notice of the business in future and provide proper time for its discussion. But if we accept that suggestion, then, I think, we are entitled to claim on the other side that Honourable Members who ask for time to discuss this Report should take the matter seriously and should, as far as possible, help us to deal with the points which they have raised.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That the Assembly do approve the expenditure of Rs. 25,388 incurred in 1930-31 representing the share of the Government of India on behalf of the Centrally Administered Areas of the cost of materials purchased for locust operations in that year."

The motion was adopted.

The Assembly then adjourned till eleven of the Clock on Monday, the 13th November, 1933, at New Delhi.
