THE CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY OF INDIA
(LEGISLATIVE) DEBATES

Official Report of the First Session of the Constituent Assembly (Legislative)

Volume I—1947

CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY (LEGISLATIVE)

Monday, 17th November, 1947.

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber of the Council House in New Delhi, at Eleven of the Clock, being the First Day of the First Session of the Constituent Assembly of India (Legislative), pursuant to sub-section (2) (a) of Section 19 of the Government of India Act, 1935, as adapted by the India (Provisional Constitution) Orders, 1947. Mr. President (The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad) was in the Chair.

DECLARATION BY MEMBERS.

The following members made the declaration under Rule 2C:

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty (Madras: General);
The Honourable Dr. John Matthai (U.P.: General);
Shri Mohan Lal Gautam (U.P.: General);
Maharaja of Parlakimedi (Orissa: General);
Shri Loknath Misra (Orissa: General);
Dr. Sir S. V. Ramamurthy (Udaipur State); and Shri Lal Mohan Pati (Mayurbhanj State).

ELECTION OF THE SPEAKER.

Mr. President (The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad): I desire to welcome Members to this the first session of the Constituent Assembly on its legislative side. As you are aware, under the Independence of India Act the Legislative Assembly as well as the Council of State ceased to exist after the 14th August last, and the functions of both Houses were to be carried on thereafter by the Constituent Assembly. This is the first occasion when the Constituent Assembly has met for that purpose. It was felt that it would be desirable to maintain the distinction between the constitution making function of the Constituent Assembly and its ordinary function of a legislature. For that purpose it was thought desirable to have some one to preside over the deliberations of the Assembly when it did its work as a Legislature because of certain anomalies which had arisen on account of my being the President of the Constituent Assembly and also a Member of the Government. You have, therefore, now to proceed to elect a Speaker, who will be independent of the Government and carry on the functions of Speaker and preside over your deliberations. The Secretary had announced a time for putting in nominations for the Speakership. The nomination only of one gentleman has come in and that is of Shri G. V. Mavalankar.

Therefore, in accordance with the provision of sub-rule (3) of rule 2B of the Constituent Assembly (Legislative) Rules, I have to announce to Honourable Members that nomination papers duly filled in have been received on behalf of Shri G. V. Mavalankar. The names of the proposers and seconders are as follows:

Proposers:

Shri Satyanarayan Sinha
Seth Govindas

Seconders:

Shri Mohan Lal Saksena
Shri K. M. Munshi

As no nomination papers have been received on behalf of any other Member, I declare Shri G. V. Mavalankar duly elected.

I would now invite Shri G. V. Mavalankar to occupy the Chair.

[Thereupon Mr. President (The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad) vacated the Chair which was then occupied by Mr. Speaker (The Honourable Mr. G. V. Mavalankar)]

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru (Leader of the House): Mr. Speaker, we meet in this room after a relatively brief interval and there are many old faces here and many new ones. But this interval has seen a sea change in the fate of our country and in the face of our country. We meet to-day in a new capacity—that of a sovereign legislative body. We meet as the representatives of a free and independent India. We meet, I regret to say, as the representatives of not the whole of India as we have known it, but minus a part of it. Not only have these great and historical changes taken place, but during the last few months other events have happened which have brought shame to our country and to us. Nevertheless, we have faced these events in the past and we have to a large extent overcome them, if I may say so. But the problems that face us are colossal in their magnitude and it is a happy omen that we should start our business here to-day by the election that has taken place and which has placed you, Sir, in that high office. You bring to us the accumulated wisdom of that high office and those of us who have had the privilege of knowing you, value you as a councillor, a friend and a guide, and a leader in this House. It is a matter of great gratification and pleasure to me, to my Government, and I am sure to every Member of this House, that you have accepted this high office, because in the difficult times ahead you will have to face also difficult problems in guiding us, and we shall have the satisfaction of knowing that our guide is a true and trusted guide.

Therefore, Sir, with deference, I congratulate not you so much, but the House on the choice that it has made. I trust that under your guidance all of us, whether we are members of the Government or not, or Members of this House, will discharge our duty without fear or favour, without affection or ill-will to anybody. We have started this new life of ours by taking a new oath of allegiance, not to any external authority but to the interests of India, and in taking that oath I have no doubt we hope to discharge that duty by every single citizen of India, whatever he may be, wherever he may be, to whatever creed, religion or caste he may belong, without any partiality or without any favour.

I welcome you, Sir, and I congratulate the House on this happy occasion.

Mr. B. Pocker Sahib Bahadur (Madras: Muslim): Mr. Speaker, I have great pleasure in associating myself with what has been said by the Honourable the Prime Minister and I join him in congratulating you in being elected as the Speaker of this august body. I trust that as the custodian of the rights and privileges of this House upon which depends the future destiny of this great country, you will do everything to protect such rights and privileges.

I once again congratulate you on this auspicious occasion.

Sir V. T. Krishnamachari (Jaipur State): I beg to associate myself wholeheartedly with the congratulations offered to you by the Honourable Pandit Nehru on your unanimous election as Speaker. No better choice could have been made for the Speaker of the first free Parliament of India than yours. You have already won our confidence and endeared yourself to us as President of the Legislative Assembly. We are extremely fortunate that we shall have the benefit of your wise counsel and invaluable assistance in the extremely difficult days that lie before us. I offer to you my most sincere congratulations.

Nawab Muhammad Ismail Khan (U. P. Muslim): I rise to offer you our heartfelt congratulations on your election to this high office. Our Prime Minister has congratulated the House on the choice it has made. May I add to that word "choice" and say "wise choice"? We who have worked under you in the last Legislative Assembly know fully well how courteous and just you are to every party and how you have by your judicious and impartial rulings won the confidence of every section of the House. I think the House could not have made a better choice. Indeed it is a great honour for any Indian to be elected the first Speaker of the sovereign legislature of a free and independent India. I offer you again my most sincere congratulations and I am sure that we shall work unitedly and with full confidence in you as our Speaker.

Shri V. I. Munishwami Pillai (Madras: General): Mr. Speaker, I rise to congratulate you heartily on your assumption to the gadi of the Speakership of the Dominion Legislature of India. Coming as I do from the South and representing the Scheduled Castes I wholeheartedly welcome your election to be the Speaker of this august body. Though a new member to this legislature we have seen in the press and have also heard what is told by others that you have always had a very kind heart towards the poor men of our great country. Being the first Speaker of this august body, I am sure you will extend your goodwill and kindness to all the members of this House who are representing here millions of our countrymen. I wish you good luck and a good time in the great Chair which you occupy.

Shrimati Hansa Mehta (Bombay: General): Mr. Speaker, I have great pleasure in associating myself with the sentiments expressed by the previous speakers in congratulating you on this great honour. We in Bombay are particularly proud of you, because you were our first Speaker in the new Assembly in Bombay. With your impartiality and your wise judgment you made a mark there. This House should congratulate itself on having you as its Speaker, because we are sure that you will bring here also your great qualities as a Speaker. Sir, I congratulate you.

Mr. Speaker (The Honourable Mr. G. V. Mavalankar): Honourable Members, I am deeply thankful to you all for the confidence you have reposed in me by electing me to this high office of the Speakership of the first Parliament of Free India. I am conscious that the honour conferred on me and the confidence reposed in me carry with them a heavy responsibility. I hope that it may be given to me to prove myself worthy of both. I can only say that I shall spare no pains for the purpose.

Many of the members assembled here as legislators of free India have had experience of Indian legislatures functioning under the British aegis. All the members have hitherto engaged themselves in the most difficult and intricate task of constitution-making. To-day, we are meeting under wholly different circumstances and with a different character of business. We have begun to function as a legislature or Parliament of Sovereign India, having an independent and distinctive place on the world map. We have aspired and will continue to aspire to maintain the best relations with all the powers of the world and we hope that India will be privileged to play an important role in the achievement of world peace and prosperity.

Free, frank and impersonal discussion of every question, viewed from the point of view of the betterment of the conditions of the masses and with an international outlook on world peace is, I may be permitted to say, the very soul of democracy, for which the last devastating war was said to have been fought. In order to work for the fulfilment of that democracy, we shall be required to lay down our own standards and establish traditions, and with the sincere co-operation of all the members of this august Assembly, I hope to be helpful in upholding the best democratic standards and traditions and the dignity and independence of this House. I thank all members once again and pray that the Almighty may help us all in our efforts.

DEATH ANNIVERSARY OF LATE LALA LAJPAT RAI.

Shri B. Das (Orissa: General): Sir, to-day happens to be Lala Lajpat Rai's death anniversary day. Our friends of the East Punjab are having a holiday to celebrate the memory of that great leader of India. Lala Lajpat Rai was a leader in this House: he was the leader of the Nationalist Party and also the deputy leader of the Swaraj Party before that. May I request you to mark our homage to that great leader in a fitting manner?

Mr. Speaker: I understand that we have a very short agenda before us and that the Honourable the Leader of the House is not going to move his resolution to-day.

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru (Leader of the House): I do not propose to move it. It is vitally important but not urgent.

Mr. Speaker: In that case, we will finish the whole business in a very short time and then we will adjourn.

Mr. Manu Subedar's starred question No. 1151 (b) to (d) of 21st March, 1946.

ILL-TREATMENT OF INDIAN PASSENGERS TRAVELLING BY M. S. Battery.

(b) to (d). Government understand that the general question of the allotment of accommodation to all types of passengers in the "Batory" has been the subject of close investigation by the Ministry of Transport and they have come to the conclusion that there was no question at all of any discrimination against Indian passengers in the allotment of berths. It has been stated that in general terms senior ranking officers and women and children were provided with the best cabin accommodation and that there is no evidence of any 'ill-treatment' of Indian passengers, as has been alleged, so far as berthing was concerned.

The Ministry have stated that the "Batory" was not altogether too suitable a ship to send into Eastern waters and that it was only because of the dire shortage of transports available at that time that this vessel was employed to India for one voyage. They have further stated that the payers of passage money for all passengers berthed on 'B' and 'C' decks were subsequently refunded a portion of their fare and it was hoped that this would do a great deal to remove any sense of grievance which arose with regard to the accommodation.

The Ministry have also pointed out that the P. & O. Steam Navigation, Co., merely acted as the Operating Line for the booking of civilian passengers and that they were not directly responsible for the berthing of passengers which was done at a Conference in Glasgow, attended by the Service Departments, the Sea Transport Officer and a representative of the Company and that it was the general opinion that the best possible arrangements had been made in very difficult circumstances.

No. 106.—Other countries have also destroyed many of their fighter aircraft for the reason that they are useless for civil purposes.

Fighter aircraft are of no use in Civil Aviation. These are designed for very high speed and are normally single seater aircraft with no load capacity except for the carriage of ammunition, etc. The engines are extremely high powered and the expense involved in maintaining these engines is very high.

A total of approximately 75,000 tons of Ordnance Stores and 4,200 tons of ammunition is stacked in the open in Central Ordnance Depot, Jubbulpore. The Ordnance stores are little affected by weather conditions, 31 per cent. of such stores are under paulins or temporary shelters, and of the remainder only 2 per cent. are of a type which might deteriorate due to adverse weather. Most of the ammunition is either unserviceable or awaiting repair.

The Government of India have agreed with the recommendations of the Enquiry Committee. In the circumstances, it is regretted that the suggestion cannot be given effect to.

Prof. N. G. Ranga's supplementary to Mr. Manu Subedar's starred question No. 534 of 14th November, 1946.

SUPPLY OF TIMBER FROM BURMA, ANDAMANS AND INDIAN FORESTS

Early this year the High Commissioner for India intimated that the Chief Forest Officer, Andamans, could supply to the United Kingdom about 100 tons of converted material and 750 to 1,000 tons of Gurjan logs every quarter. It was further stated that this type of timber had no market in India, and that His Majesty's Government were very anxious to obtain the same. The High Commissioner also enquired whether the Government of India would be prepared to grant an export licence. In view of the fact that the revised scheme for the Andamans Forest Reconstruction provides for export to the United Kingdom of 4,400 tons of Gurjan timber annually, made up of :—

	tons.
Gurjan planks and scantlings	2,700
Flooring strips	1,000
Padauk and silver grey squares	250
White Chuglam, Dhup, etc.	450

The Government of India agreed to comply with the wishes of His Majesty's Government. Taking the conversion wastage at approximately 40 per cent., the quantity of timber to be exported to the United Kingdom works out to about 2,700 tons a year in sawn form.

Up to the end of March, 1947, two licences have been issued against the quarterly quota, one for export of 300 tons of Gurjan logs from Calcutta on 12th February 1947 and another for 500 tons of logs of the same variety from Port Blair on 8th March 1947.

SHORTAGE OF MATCHES AND PROFITEERING BY VENDORS AND MIDDLEMEN.

The question of giving assistance to cottage match factories was gone into in great detail when the Tariff Board Enquiry into the Match Industry took place in 1926—28. Attention is invited to Chapter VII, and paras. 26 and 27 of Chapter X of the 'Report of the Indian Tariff Board regarding the grant of protection to the Match Industry'. The Tariff Board came to the conclusion that the 'manufacture of matches as a cottage industry had hardly any future' and that they could not therefore, 'recommend any special measures for the encouragement of cottage match factories'. The Board, however, recommended that in case 'an excise duty was imposed on matches manufactured in India, a reduction not exceeding 2 annas per gross should be made in the case of cottage factories in consideration of their limited resources'. Excise duty is at present being levied in accordance with Finance Department (Revenue Division) Notification No. 4 dated 11th May 1946. The rate of excise duty on matches depends upon whether the daily output of the factory exceeds or does not exceed one hundred gross of containers; in the case of smaller factories the duty being less.

In view of what has been stated above, it is very doubtful whether the cottage industry would be able to stand up to competition against highly organised, large-scale concerns.

Pandit Sri Krishna Dutt Paliwal's starred question No. 41 of 5th February, 1947.

SALE OF INDIAN MEDICINES IN MAURITIUS AND PROTEST AGAINST MR. RIDLEY'S STATEMENT RE ADOPTION OF FRENCH NAMES BY INDIANS.

As regards parts (a), (c), (d) and (e) information furnished by the Government of Mauritius is as follows :

(a) Some Indo-Mauritians desire to use Indian medicines because they have confidence in them and because they can be sure these medicines will not contain beef, alcohol, or other ingredients against which they may have religious objections. There are no restrictions on sale of Indian medicines in the open market in Mauritius provided the law regarding the sale of drugs is complied with. Two Indo-Mauritian pharmacists were recently consulted by the Mauritius Government. One of them said he was quite ready to order Indian medicines if there were sufficient demand but so far the demand had been feeble. The other said that he had sufficient demand and had ordered medicines from two firms in India but had received no reply. He proposed to try again.

(c) Change of name, religion and style of living was once considered progressive by some Indo-Mauritians. Since about 1936, however, when the centenary of Indian immigration in Mauritius was celebrated, the tide is said to have turned, and whilst quite ready to adopt what is useful and practical in European customs, the Indo-Mauritian in essentials wishes to stand by the culture and civilization of his ancestors.

(d) Uptill 1935 it was believed by some Indo-Mauritians that they had a better chance of promotion into the higher ranks of Government if they joined the general population. Whether there was any basis for this in the past or not, it is no longer thought by that Government to be true now.

(e) There are several Indians with Indian names holding high Government offices.

(b) and (f). If Indians elect to proceed to, and settle down, in overseas countries they can hardly expect that all the special facilities which people enjoy in India should be made available to them in their country of adoption, particularly if alternative facilities are available in the latter. It is also extremely doubtful whether Indian medical practitioners versed in Indian systems of medicine would care to proceed to Mauritius. Appointment of such Indian Doctors must obviously rest with the Government of Mauritius. It is open to the Indian community in Mauritius to make arrangements for the importation of Indian medicines and Indian Doctors. If and when any approach is made to Government for such purposes Government would give such assistance as they can.

CRIMINAL TRIBES IN AJMER-MERWARA.

(a) The number and the various kinds of Criminal Tribes Registered in the districts are as follows :—

3. Merats	15
4. Chakras	79
5. Naiks	101
6. Minas	98
	357
	Domiciled.

The total number is thus 1,102 The places of localities of various tribes are also shown below :

Sansies.—Nasirabad, Kekri, Sawar, Ajmer, Beawar, Pisangan, Pushkar, Bhinai, Srinagar.

Kanjars.—Nasirabad, Kekri, Sawar, Ajmer, Beawar, Goela, Todgarh, Bijainagar, Jawaja.

Nats.—Beawar.

Baori.—Mangliawas, Gegal, Pushkar, Pisangan, Beawar.

Rawat.—Beawar.

Merat.—Beawar.

Chakras.—Masuda, Bijainagar, Beawar, Ajmer.

Naik.—Masuda, Bijainagar, Jawaja, Bhinai, Goela, Pisangan.

Minas.—Kekri, Sawar (here only one Mina is residing).

(b) There are no regular settlements for criminal tribes in Ajmer-Merwara. The members of these tribes were rounded up and induced to live at certain Central places near police stations or outposts, as a measure of protection to the public. No policy for educating these tribes or for providing them with employment has so far been formulated. The late Deoli Regiments and Mina Corps provided some facilities for the education and employment of members of these tribes along with others.

The question of the establishment of a settlement in Ajmer-Merwara for these tribes has been engaging the attention of the Local Administration for some time and was also considered by the Advisory Council. The Council is however, opposed to the idea of calling any tribe a criminal tribe or segregating any class of persons in a settlement and is of opinion that no stigma should attach to any person by reason of his birth and no scheme should be prepared involving segregation of any tribe; but that special facilities for the education and advancement of backward tribes including the so called criminal tribes should be provided. Consequently the proposal for the establishment of a settlement for members of Criminal Tribes has been dropped and measures for their education and uplift are being considered.

(c) Yes. Sansies have been established not only at Bhinai but at Ramsar, Srinagar, Sawar and other places where there are Police stations so that they may be kept under surveillance.

(d) Some complaints were received in the past but nothing can be done to remove them as they are likely to be more dangerous at places where there are no police stations. As stated at (b) above, the question of the uplift of these Criminal Tribes is now under consideration.

PRICE COMMITTEE ON AGRICULTURE, FORESTRY AND FISHERIES

An enquiry was made from the U. P. Government who have clarified the position as follows:

The price paid in both the Agra and Muttra districts as well as in the rest of the Province under the Direct Procurement Drive was the statutory maximum price of Rs. 10-4-0 per month. Since this price was supposed to be the price at the primary assembling market in the village, an addition was made for catage to the purchasing centre. This additional percentage was also uniform throughout the Province.

If the question refers to Black Market price, U. P. Government have no accurate information as to the position last year. It may be that prices in the area in the immediate proximity of Agra town were higher than those in the neighbouring Muttra district but it seems unlikely that a price of Rs. 20 was reached.

CONVICTION OF PROFESSOR BASUDEO BISHEN DAYAL FOR PREACHING HINDU RELIGION IN MAURITIUS

According to the information now received from the Government of Mauritius the following is the position:—

First prosecution.—Professor Basudeo Bishen Dayal was first prosecuted on the 16th March 1944, for holding an illegal meeting on the 22nd February 1944. He was found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine of Rs. 150 and costs. After sentence had been passed, he refused to pay fine and was in consequence arrested and imprisoned on the 9th May 1944. He was released on the 22nd June 1944. Before prosecution he had been warned both orally and in writing of the consequences of persisting in his course of action.

Second prosecution.—On the 19th May 1944, Professor Basudeo Bishen Dayal was charged with holding three illegal meetings on the 11th, 12th and 19th March 1944. He was found guilty on all three counts. He was sentenced to a fine of Rs. 300 and costs on each of two counts. The first count was dismissed. The fine and costs were paid on this occasion by a sympathiser.

Third prosecution.—On the 20th October 1944, he was charged with holding an illegal procession on the 8th October 1944. He was found guilty on the 3rd November and was sentenced to twelve month's imprisonment. He was released on the 18th July 1945, having earned remission of the remainder of his sentence by good conduct in goal.

(a) During the hearing of the last mentioned case on the 20th October 1944, he refused to plead to the charge and informed the Magistrate that "he should know whether he was guilty or not". He was then sentenced to seven day's imprisonment for contempt of Court.

2. Professor Basudeo Bishen Dayal has not been arrested thereafter but his brother Sukhdeo Bishen Dayal was prosecuted for holding an illegal procession in contravention of law governing holding of public meetings and processions and was sentenced to 65 days' imprisonment for failure to comply with orders of Court.

He was enrolled as a Viceroy's Commissioned Officer (Jemadar) on the 28th January 1942 in the Indian Pioneer Corps, and promoted as a Subedar on the 5th November 1943.

In December 1943, when on field service, he was tried by Field General Court Martial and convicted on two charges of inciting a mutiny.

COURT MARTIAL OF SRI GOLLAKOTA RAMABRAHMANANDA RAO OF PEDDAPURAM, EAST GODAVARI.

No. 1177.—(a) and (b). Gollakota Ramabrahmanandarao of Peddapuram, East Godavari District was enrolled in the Army as a Grade III Hav. Clerk. He completed the Recruit's Course in Anti-Gas Training and the Table of Weapon Training the same year. In January 1945, while serving with No. 2, I.A.O.C. Training Battalion, he was tried by a Summary-General Court Martial on a charge of stabbing to death his wife, a Nursing Sister in the Auxiliary Nursing Service. He was found guilty of murder and sentenced to death. The C-in-C. confirmed the finding but commuted the sentence to transportation for life and dismissal from service. The prisoner is now serving his sentence in the Rajahmundry Jail.

(c) Yes, Sir. A defending officer was appointed for the prisoner. There was no suggestion during the trial that adequate opportunities were not provided for his defence. In fact, the prisoner admitted having stabbed his wife and the question for consideration was whether he was guilty of murder or of a lesser offence.

(d) There is no record of any appeal by or on behalf of the accused having been received either by the C-in-C. or by the Central Government.

(a) Coal allocations for the various industries etc., in a province are sanctioned from month to month on the basis of the availability of coal and transport and on the demands of the consumers during brick burning coal to the United Provinces during each of the first three months of this year were 33,067. tons.

(b) Figures of despatches of brick burning coal are not normally maintained Province-wise.

(c) In view of the reply to part (a) this question does not arise. But it is generally impossible to make up subsequently a short-fall in supplies in any particular month.

(d) and (e). The Hon'ble Member is presumably referring to the provincial quota, comprising the requirements for domestic consumption and small scale industries. The average monthly allocation of steam coal to the U. P. against this quota during the first quarter of this year was the same as during 1946, i.e., 381 tons a month.

(f) The allotment of steam coal to ice factories in the U. P. was 742 tons a month during the cold weather months of January and February 1947, and was increased to 1484 tons during March. Allocations to ice factories are made on the recommendation of the Provincial Coal Controller and if he advises that the present allocation is inadequate a request for enhancement will be examined on merits.

MOTIONS FOR ADJOURNMENT

ABOLITION OF B. A. RAILWAY.

Mr. Speaker: Notices of three adjournment motions have been received. The first is by Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra regarding the "abolition of the B. A. Railway and its fragmentation into three parts, based on the notional division, placing them under different administrative arrangements causing great dislocation of trade and inconvenience to the people".

The matter is no doubt important but I doubt the urgency of it. Further I find from the programme that Honourable Members will have the opportunity of discussing this question during the course of the Railway Budget, general discussion, as well as on the demands for grants.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra (West Bengal: General): I do not want to move the motion.

Mr. Speaker: I believe the Honourable Member accepts the same position as regards the second motion of which he has given notice?

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: What is the second motion, Sir?

Mr. Speaker: It is an adjournment motion on the same subject re "the failure of the Government of India in the department of Railways to take over charge of the portions of the B. A. Railway falling within the Indian Union under the award of the Bengal Boundary Commission and the consequent dislocation of traffic and loss of earnings to the Indian Union which continue to be sent to Pakistan since August 15th, 1947 under orders of the Railway authorities of the Government of India."

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: I do not want to move the motion. I shall take it up during the general discussion on the Railway Budget.

Mr. Speaker: There is another adjournment motion in the name of Lala Deshbandhu Gupta. I think that his object can be better achieved by a short notice question.

Is the Honourable Member keen on moving his motion?

Shri Deshbandhu Gupta (Delhi): No Sir, I will abide by your advice, and raise the question by a short notice question.

CONTINUATION OF BILLS PENDING IN THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Mr. Speaker: Before we proceed to the business I have to make two announcements.

Honourable Members will notice from the List of Business for today that the five motions in the name of Honourable Ministers relate to Bills which, immediately before the establishment of the Dominion, were pending in the old Legislative Assembly. Under statutory provisions contained in Section 30 of the Government of India Act, 1935, as adapted, these Bills are now being continued in the Constituent Assembly on its Legislative side. The object of the motions for the present is to continue these Bills as pending in the present Assembly.

SITTINGS OF ASSEMBLY ON HOLIDAYS.

Mr. Speaker: The second announcement I have to make is this. It has been the practice in the past that the old Legislative Assembly did not sit on days which were declared as holidays by the Delhi Administration. In accordance with this practice, no meetings have so far been fixed for 22nd November and 24th November on account of Moharrum. It has been suggested that in view of the heavy Government programme, the number of holidays to be observed may be reduced and only one holiday may be observed by the Assembly on account of Moharrum, namely, 24th November, which is the only holiday observed by the Government of India. If the general opinion in the House is in favour of this view, I will fix a meeting for Saturday, 22nd November, for the disposal of official business.

BANKING COMPANIES BILL

Mr. Speaker: Now, we shall take up Legislative business. The Honourable Mr. Chetty.

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty (Minister for Finance): Sir, I move:

"That the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Banking Companies be continued."

The Bill has passed the stage of the Select Committee in the last Legislative Assembly, and the Report of the Select Committee has also been submitted. It is my intention to move that this Bill be taken into consideration during the Budget Session. For the present I move that the Bill be continued.

Mr. Speaker: Motion moved:

"That the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Banking Companies be continued."

Mr. Naziruddin Ahmad (West Bengal: Muslim): Mr. Speaker, Sir, some of the members here suffer from certain difficulties in appreciating the motion. We do not know what the Bills were, how they have been changed and what their contents are. They have not been circulated to us. I hope they will be circulated and then we will be in a position to give our opinion on them. It is no doubt a formality but it should be strictly adhered to.

Mr. Speaker: I understand that copies have been circulated.

Mr. Naziruddin Ahmad: Many of us have not received them.

Mr. Speaker: As I understand the Honourable the Finance Minister, the point is that the present motion is only to continue the Bill. The actual consideration of it will be taken up in the next Budget session, that is the February session. It will not be taken up in the present session.

Mr. Naziruddin Ahmad: The point I was emphasising was whether we are consenting parties to the Bill, I think our consent is necessary and some kind of appreciation of the nature of the Bill is a condition precedent to our consent. If that is so I think the Bill should be circulated amongst us. It is a small formality as I have already submitted but it is a very necessary formality in a very formal House like this.

Mr. Speaker: The point is that this Bill was pending in the last Assembly, and under Section 30 of the Government of India Act, it has to be kept alive. The present motion is that it may not be allowed to die but be kept alive. It is absolutely a formal motion. It is only to keep it alive. It does not mean that we are proceeding with it at this stage. Members will have every right and opportunity of discussing its merits later on.

Mr. Naziruddin Ahmad: In that case we would be mere silent spectators without committing ourselves to the acceptance of its features.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Banking Companies be continued."

The motion was adopted.

INSURANCE (SECOND AMENDMENT) BILL

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil (Minister for Works, Mines and Power): Sir, I move.

"That the Bill further to amend the Insurance Act, 1938, be continued."

It is similarly situated with respect to its progress as was the first Bill which was moved by my Honourable friend, Mr. Chetty.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That the Bill further to amend the Insurance Act, 1938, be continued."

The motion was adopted.

LEGAL PRACTITIONERS AND BAR COUNCILS (AMENDMENT) BILL

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar (Minister for Law): Sir, I move:

"That the Bill further to amend the Legal Practitioners Act, 1879, and the Indian Bar Councils Act, 1926, be continued."

Shri Biswanath Das (Orissa: General): May I know the stage at which this Bill stands?

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: It was merely introduced.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That the Bill further to amend the Legal Practitioners Act, 1879, and the Indian Bar Councils Act, 1926, be continued."

The motion was adopted.

PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY (AMENDMENT) BILL

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar (Minister for Law): Sir, I move:

"That the Bill further to amend the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1920, be continued."

Mr. Speaker: Motion moved:

"That the Bill further to amend the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1920, be continued."

Shri Raj Krishna Bose (Orissa: General): I would like to know if this Bill also was referred to a Select Committee?

Mr. Speaker: It was only introduced.

Shri K. Santhanam (Madras: General): It can be newly introduced. What is meant by 'continuation'? Only if it has gone through the other stages of discussion or Select Committee there is a purpose in having a motion for its continuation. It can as well be newly introduced.

Mr. Speaker: I would invite the Honourable Member's attention to the provisions of sub-clause (2) of Section 30 of the Government of India Act, 1935, as adapted:

"A Bill which, immediately before the establishment of the Dominion, was pending in the Legislative Assembly of the Indian Legislature may, subject to any provision to the contrary which may be included in rules made by the Dominion Legislature under section 38 of this Act, be continued in the Dominion Legislature as if the proceedings taken with reference to the Bill in the said Legislative Assembly had been taken in the Dominion Legislature."

So the time and expenditure incurred in the previous stages—publication, etc.—are now dispensed with. That is the point in continuing the Bill.

Shri M. S. Aney (Deccan and Madras States Group): May I know, Sir, whether, in view of the wording of the particular clause, just read out—it is necessary that a motion for continuation should be made? The rule permits the Government to continue the Bill and take it through further stages if it wants to do so. Is a separate motion for its continuation therefore necessary at all?

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: If the motion for continuation is not made the Bill lapses. That means all the stages will have to be begun again.

Mr. Naziruddin Ahmad (West Bengal: Muslim): Sir, on this point of order the section which you were pleased to read says that a Bill which was pending in the Legislative Assembly 'may be continued'. It is thus discretionary on the part of this House to continue or not to continue it. Therefore a decision of the House is necessary.

Mr. Speaker: That is exactly why the motion is brought. The question is:

"That the Bill further to amend the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1920, be continued."

The motion was adopted.

HINDU CODE

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar (Minister for Law): Sir, I move:

"That the Bill to amend and codify certain branches of the Hindu Law be continued."

Mr. Speaker: Motion moved:

"That the Bill to amend and codify certain branches of the Hindu Law be continued."

Mr. Naziruddin Ahmad (West Bengal: Muslim): May I know the present stage of this very important Bill? I understand there has been a considerable amount of agitation among our Hindu friends over it and it is better we have a picture of the stage at which the Bill is at present.

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: It was only introduced. No further stage was taken.

Shri R. V. Dhulekar (U. P.: General): In the new set up we should have no Hindu Law and no Muslim Law. We should have a general law and therefore.....

Mr. Speaker: The Honourable Member is speaking on the merits. He will have an opportunity of saying it when the Bill comes before the House. At present the only question is whether the Bill should be continued or not continued.

Shri R. V. Dhulekar: So, Sir, I oppose; it should not be continued.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That the Bill to amend and codify certain branches of the Hindu Law be continued."

The motion was adopted.

FOREIGNERS (AMENDMENT) BILL

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel (Minister for Home, Information and Broadcasting, and States): Sir, I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the Foreigners Act, 1946.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That leave be granted to introduce a Bill to amend the Foreigners Act, 1946."

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: Sir, I introduce the Bill.

DOCK WORKERS (REGULATION OF EMPLOYMENT) BILL

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram (Minister for Labour): Sir, I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill to provide for regulating the employment of dock workers.

Mr. Speaker : The question is :

"That leave be granted to introduce a Bill to provide for regulating the employment of dock workers."

The motion was adopted.

ELECTION TO STANDING FINANCE COMMITTEE

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty (Minister for Finance) :

Sir, I move :

"That this Assembly do proceed to elect, in such manner as may be approved by the Honourable the Speaker, fourteen members to serve under the Chairmanship of the Finance Minister on the Standing Finance Committee for the remaining part of the financial year 1947-48."

Sir, Honourable Members who have been associated with the work of the Central Legislature are familiar with the scope and functions of the Standing Finance Committee. The functions of this Committee are derived partly from a resolution which was adopted in the Central Legislature in the year 1922, and partly as the result of conventions established on the initiative of the Committee itself. The functions of the Committee during the last few years have been as follows: "To scrutinise all proposals for expenditure in all departments of the Government of India."

Under this category, only proposals involving a recurring expenditure of Rs. 1 lakh and over, and non-recurring expenditure of Rs. 5 lakhs and over, were considered by the Standing Finance Committee.

As regards new items, in other words, extensions to existing services, a reference is made to the Committee only when a question of policy is involved, and not in cases of ordinary normal growth of departmental expenditure which do not involve any departure in the policy already accepted. All supplementary grants relating to new services or any new items in which substantial questions of policy were involved, were also referred to the Committee. The Committee was also invited from time to time to suggest retrenchment and economy in expenditure, and generally the Committee was intended to assist the Ministry of Finance and advise the Ministry in such cases as may be referred to it by the Ministry. As a member of this Committee for many years myself I know that it has played a very useful and important part and I have therefore no hesitation in recommending to the House the acceptance of this motion for the election of a similar committee for the remaining part of the current financial year. Sir, I move

Mr. Speaker : Motion moved :

"That this Assembly do proceed to elect, in such manner as may be approved by the Honourable the Speaker, fourteen members to serve under the Chairmanship of the Finance Minister on the Standing Finance Committee for the remaining part of the financial year 1947-48."

Shri B. Das (Orissa: General) : Sir, The Honourable the Finance Minister has pointed out that the functions of the Standing Finance Committee were derived partly from a resolution which was adopted in the Central Legislature in 1922 and partly as the result of conventions established on the initiative of the Committee itself. We then agitated that we should at the same time have an Estimates Committee which is in existence in England and in all free countries. While I do not object to the present motion as an interim arrangements till March 1948, I strongly urge on my friend the Finance Minister that we will now have to function as a free and sovereign Government where the representatives of the people should be associated with the Government; we should have an Estimates Committee of which the Finance Minister may be the Chairman and where the whole budget will be considered and passed. This is done in England. If the Honourable the Finance Minister finds any better system of associating the elected representatives of the people with the finances of the country, he may introduce that convention. We were fighting for an Estimates Committee when my Honourable friend was the President of the Assembly and Sir George Schuster was the Finance Member but the British Government did not permit the Finance Member then to have an Estimates Committee in India. Now, that we are free, we can have it.

44 CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY OF INDIA (LEGISLATIVE) [17TH NOV. 1947]

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar (Madras: General): Sir, I do not move my amendment but my object is to ask whether this matter may not be considered by the Finance Minister and taken up at the next Budget Session. Sir, I expected to ask him that he would try to enlarge the scope of the Standing Finance Committee. The scope of the Finance Committee, as we heard him read out the various functions of the Committee, is very limited. Those functions were laid down at a time when a foreign Government was in charge of this Administration. I expected naturally that he would devote his attention to the matter but the time at the disposal of the Finance Minister has been very short. I am sure, having regard to changed circumstances, he will consider if it is not advisable to place the various estimates that come before us by way of the Budget before the Finance Committee to be scrutinised in instalments so that within a period of three years all the various items may be under the searchlight of the Standing Finance Committee. This matter was raised by Sir James Grigg who was the Finance Member in 1937-38, and he circulated a memorandum to the Leaders of the parties in this House. It was our leader, the late Shri Bhulabhai Desai, who for a long time worked for it but later on he did not pursue the matter. He suggested in his memorandum that a non-official Chairman and not a Minister might preside over the deliberations of the Finance Committee and the Finance Minister may be an ex-officio member and all the items in the Budget before the Budget Session of the Assembly might be placed before the Standing Finance Committee. I believe, Sir, that the Honourable the Finance Minister will try to review his motion and try to suggest at the next Budget Session if it is not possible or desirable to enlarge the scope of the functions of the Standing Finance Committee so that the Standing Finance Committee might get to know details of the various items and suggest various methods of retrenchment, and not only those items alone which according to the Finance Minister might be placed before the Standing Finance Committee.

Automatically every item in the Budget must come up for scrutiny by the Standing Finance Committee. The previous Government was very chary of its power and did not want to discuss all matters. Some matters were by statute withdrawn from the purview of the Assembly and of what really was left many items were non-votable and even with regard to votable items it was left to the sweet will and pleasure of the Finance Member for the time being, who on all past occasions was not always of a dark colour but fair. He wanted to see that all items did not come to the scrutiny of the Standing Finance Committee which composed of a large number of Members of this House. I know, Sir, that the colour has changed but I do not want the colour both of the Administration and of the Committee to be the same.

Sir, I do not formally move my amendment, but I again request the Honourable the Finance Minister to take the facts into consideration and try to enlarge the scope of the functions of the Standing Finance Committee and in the revised form place it before the House before the next Budget Session and that before the Budget is actually presented at the next Session of the Assembly.

Shri Biswanath Das (Orissa: General): Sir, the motion that has been moved by the Honourable the Finance Minister needs explanation. Sir, under the old Act, we had only the Public Accounts Committee—the only statutory Committee under the Act. All the Committees were regarded as non-statutory with the result that the executive Government of the day which was not fully responsible generally brought such measures before the Committee as they liked or, of cases wherever and whenever they wanted taxation, they brought such proposals before these Committees for a justification.

Now, the conditions are changed. I therefore appeal to the Honourable the Finance Minister to expand the scope of the resolution not only with reference to the Resolution of 1922 but also to take a fresh lead and to see that the Committee so elected by this House is fully associated with the Ministry of Finance. Sir, the question has been adverted to by my Honourable friends that far deeper association and better kind of association is being effected in other countries. I do not see any reason why the programmes and policy of the Government should not be thoroughly and fully discussed in the Committee. If this is not accepted, namely full association of the Committee with the Ministry of Finance, I think there is every justification to have a Committee. If that is not the position I do not see any reason why there should at all be a Committee. I fully believe, Sir, that my Honourable friend would agree to expand the scope of the Resolution so as to bring within it real power and influence and association so as to make the Committee helpful to the Ministry and useful to the country and to this Assembly. Sir, the Honourable the Finance Minister and myself entered the Madras Council together; I think he will recollect how often he was anxious to see that these ad hoc Committees were elected and non-officials associated in the work of government. Now fortune has brought us a free India and I believe he will throw aside the Resolution of 1922 and begin a fresh leaf—absolutely a fresh leaf, in which the Committee is fully associated with the Ministry of Finance, forgetting all the past, forgetting even the links that connect the past and the present. The Budget for 1948-49 is near at hand, I think it is proper time that the Honourable the Finance Minister makes an announcement on the floor of the House that he would take this Committee into full confidence, making it a really useful and helpful Committee for himself and for the Honourable Members of this House so that it would minimise the discussion on the floor of the House and establish a link of co-operation between the Finance Ministry and this House.

With these words I support all that has been stated and I also fully support the point of view of my Honourable friend for a non-official Chairman of the Committee, unless my Honourable friend the Finance Minister feels that there will be loss of status. I fail to see why this question of status should at all come in. A Member of the House will be appointed as Chairman of the Committee or the Committee will have its own Chairman. If that position is accepted, I think we will fully and heartily congratulate the Honourable the Finance Minister and accept the motion with its changed outlook and form.

Shri K. M. Munshi (Bombay: General): Sir, I have a few remarks to offer more as a matter of suggestion to the Honourable the Finance Minister than as a matter of criticism. As has already been stated by the Honourable Mr. B. Das, the Select Committee now suggested is a very old and obsolete method of associating the members of the House with the financial affairs of the country. I would, if I may, draw attention to the developments in England on this question and I hope that if not now, at least as early as possible, the Honourable the Finance Minister will be able to see his way to adopt my suggestion.

Firstly, with regards to the Estimates Committee of the House of Commons. This Estimates Committee has generally been accepted as one of the most important Committees of the House of Commons. I suggest that this should replace our Finance Committee. Not only that, there is one important constitutional aspect of a new Committee which was brought into existence in the House of Commons in the year 1942, namely, the Select Committee on National Expenditure. In 1942 when the two-party system was given up and a Coalition Government was set up in England, it was found that the wholesome criticism of the Opposition in matters of expenditure was absent and in order to obviate this difficulty, this Select Committee on National Expenditure was set up, with a view to scrutinise the expenditure. It was felt that in the absence of a strong two-party system, it was necessary that the whole expenditure of the country should be brought under the scrutiny of such a Committee before whom all matters were to be placed. This Committee has been functioning since 1942 and has done very good work. If I may refer to May's Parliamentary Practice, page 642, it says:

"The practice was established whereby the departments affected by the recommendations in the Committee's reports submitted memoranda thereon to the Committee; these replies were periodically reported to the House, either in the same or in a following session. The Prime Minister also supplied the Committee, for their confidential information, with replies to recommendations contained in the memoranda addressed to him under the special powers described above."

In this way, the meetings of this Select Committee were always held in camera and their Reports were never published, but they went over all items of expenditure with a view to introduce economy on all Departments. I suggest that this constitutional method should be adopted in this country as early as possible.

Again, if I may draw attention once again to this book, this Committee was, among other things, authorised to "report, what, if any, economies consistent with the execution of the policy decided by the Government might be effected therein." This is a very important function and I am sure my Honourable friend the Finance Minister will agree with me that we require stringent economy in every Department and a Committee of this kind should be associated with the Finance Department. This is all I have to submit.

Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena (U. P.: General): Sir, with regard to the motion before the House, I associate myself with all that has been said by my Honourable friends Mr. Munshi and Mr. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar. There are three motions before the House for appointing Standing Committees similar to those that existed in the past. All that I wish to say is that our Ministers should not say that these are the functions which these Committees had in the past and they shall continue. I say that the new spirit of the new age should also be brought into the Committees. I want the Honourable the Finance Minister to tell us that now this Committee will have other functions also and he will thus be able to avail himself of the wisdom of the whole House to scrutinise the Budget and to advise him on all matters of financial importance. We are embarking on a new adventure. We have a nation to build and finance will be the most important thing on which we shall probably succeed or fail. We therefore urge that this is a very important motion and I would request the Honourable the Finance Minister to enlarge the number of members on the committee, as also to have a non-official as Chairman. This is all that I wish to say about this motion.

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: Sir, the Standing Finance Committee which I am asking this House to elect is intended to function only for the unexpired portion of the current financial year. In giving the scope and functions of the Committee, it was my intention just to give an idea to the Honourable Members as to what these were in the past, but I might assure Honourable Members that it is not my intention to confine the scope and functions of the Committee strictly to the four walls of those that I enumerated today. I may give the assurance that I shall take the Committee into the fullest confidence. I shall be prepared to place before the Committee any matter which it may desire me to place before it. I would suggest, however, that in the course of the work of this Committee, the Committee itself might take up the question of accurately defining the scope and functions of the Standing Finance Committee and when I make my next motion for the election of the Committee for 1948-49, we may more clearly define and enlarge its scope and functions. In the meantime, the House can rest assured that I shall place all facts and figures before the Committee and shall welcome their fullest co-operation.

Then, Sir, my Honourable friend Mr. Munshi made a reference to the Estimates Committee of the House of Commons. The functions of that Committee are somewhat different from those of our Standing Finance Committee. In one material particular, the Estimates Committee of the House of Commons has not got so many powers as our own Standing Finance Committee. Whenever there is any question of policy involved in a new expenditure, we place this matter before the Standing Finance Committee and it has a very definite say even in the formulation of policy, but the Estimates Committee of the House of Commons has only to suggest retrenchment in expenditure consistent with the policy enunciated by the Government. In other words, it has no power to shape or alter that policy. From that point of view therefore, I would submit that our Standing Finance Committee has really wider functions and powers. In fact, there is one important difference. We place the proposal for expenditure before the Standing Finance Committee before the Budget is actually introduced in the Legislature, whereas in the House of Commons the Estimates Committee considers the items of expenditure only after the Budget estimates have been presented to the House of Commons. As a matter of fact, the usual practice of the Estimates Committee in the House of Commons is simply to take one group of expenditure during a year and just suggest all the retrenchments that could possibly be made. In other words, they do not at all cover all the various demands for grants that come before the House of Commons in any particular year. In fact, many Parliamentarians have questioned the utility of the Estimates Committee. One famous writer on parliamentary procedure made a caustic observation that after weeks of deliberation the only substantial cut that the Estimates Committee was able to make in a particular year in the Navy estimate was to cut down the quantity of tobacco supplied to the sailors in the Navy.

Shri K. M. Munshi: It will not happen here.

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: I am only suggesting that although the British House of Commons is the mother of Parliaments, our Standing Finance Committee has got really wider functions than the Committees of the House of Commons. In any case, we need not necessarily be guided by what happens at Westminster. We shall establish our own conventions. And so far as the Standing Finance Committee of this House is concerned, I will give the categorical assurance to Honourable Members that it is my intention to make the work of this Committee really effective and useful, so that every possible item of expenditure might be scrutinised by this Committee and that this Committee might really act as the agents of the Legislature.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That this Assembly do proceed to elect, in such manner as may be approved by the Honourable the Speaker, fourteen members to serve under the Chairmanship of the Finance Minister on the Standing Finance Committee for the remaining part of the financial year 1947-48."

The motion was adopted.

ELECTION TO STANDING FINANCE COMMITTEE FOR RAILWAYS

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai (Minister for Railways and Transport): Sir, I move:

"That this Assembly do proceed to elect, in such manner as may be approved by the Honourable the Speaker, eleven members to serve on the Standing Finance Committee for Railways for the unexpired portion of the current financial year."

I do not think Mr. Speaker, it is necessary for me to explain at any length to the House what the scope and functions of this Committee are. The Standing Finance Committee for Railways originated as a result of the Resolution of 1924 under which railway finances were separated from general finance. What at present happens, therefore, is that the Standing Finance Committee for Railways performs the same functions in regard to Railway finance that the Standing Finance Committee performs in relation to public finance generally. There is hardly a matter of any importance relating to the financial policy and administration of railways which is not placed before the Standing Finance Committee for Railways. Their advice has to be taken before any decision is arrived at by the Railway Ministry, and as far as I am able to speak from experience since the Interim Government took office, I cannot think of any matter of any importance in relation to railway finance on which the Ministry has not accepted the advice tendered by the Standing Finance Committee. I am quite aware that the scope and functions of this Committee stand in need of change in view of the political set up under which we are now working, and the considerations which have been urged by my Honourable Colleague the Finance Minister are considerations which I believe mutatis mutandis apply in the case of the Standing Finance Committee for Railways. The only suggestion that I am making at present is that the arrangement which has prevailed so far may continue for the unexpired portion of the year, and if any suggestions are to be made by Honourable Members regarding the question of widening the scope of this Committee, I can give an assurance similar to that given by my Honourable Colleague the Finance Minister, that it will receive my fullest and most earnest consideration.

[Dr. John Matthai]

Mr. Speaker: Motion moved:

"That this Assembly do proceed to elect, in such manner as may be approved by the Honourable the Speaker, eleven members to serve on the Standing Finance Committee for Railways for the unexpired portion of the current financial year."

May I know if Mr. Ayyangar is going to move his amendment?

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar (Madras: General): No, Sir.

Shri K. Santhanam (Madras: General): While supporting this Motion, I want to make only two observations. The first is that hitherto the practice is that the Financial Commissioner presides over this Committee. I think it is time that the Railway Minister began to preside over the Committee.

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: Sir, I should straightaway correct my Honourable friend's impression. The Minister for Railways now presides over the meetings of this Committee. The old practice ceased some time ago.

Shri K. Santhanam: I am sorry, I am rather a little out of date. The other point is that the scope is confined only to the Railway financial policy. It should really become a Railway Standing Committee. Not only the financial measures but also all matters of policy including the grouping of railways and other matters should come before the Railway Standing Finance Committee. It is only then that it can perform its functions usefully. In fact there is another motion for the Central Advisory Council for Railways. So far as I know this is a nominal Committee and that Advisory Council has not played a very effective part. The functions of both the Committees should be combined and there should be only one Committee which deals with the entire problem of Railways so far as the Government of India is concerned. I think this matter will be borne in mind by the Member as he has promised and when he puts them forward next year the entire scope will be fully defined.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: I have been in the Standing Finance Committee for several years. Though technically the Standing Finance Committee deals only with financial matters, we have been trying to get into it for discussion various other matters relating to the general administration of railways. That is particularly due to the Honourable Member who is now in charge of the administration. I am much obliged to my Honourable friend Mr. Santhanam for having made this suggestion. For every other Department under a Minister we are having separate Standing Committee. The motion stands in the name of the Honourable the Premier and will come up for discussion tomorrow, that Standing Committees may be appointed for various Departments of the Government, consisting of ten non-official Members over which the head of the administration will preside. There is no similar Standing Committee for Railway Departments. There is one for Roads. Therefore there is a lacuna. Therefore instead of having a separate Standing Committee to deal with various matters, not directly financially, but other administrative matters having a separate Committee, the scope of this Committee may be enlarged so as to deal with all matters and the word 'finance' removed and any suitable name may be chosen. At this stage, I hope, therefore, the Honourable Member will take that into consideration. He may withdraw his motion and bring the matter during the course of this Session so as to bring in a motion for a more comprehensive Committee and set out the various functions of that Committee combining the functions of the Standing Finance Committee with the functions of Standing Committees for various other Departments as are set out in the Rules which have been circulated for consideration of the House. The Honourable Member may bring forward another motion later on to enlarge the scope of the powers of the Standing Finance Committee so as to include within its scope matters relating to the outside administration of the Departments concerned.

Shri B. Das (Orissa: General): I did not catch the side talk of my Honourable friend, Dr. Matthai. I doubt if he is seeking guidance under the old rules.

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: Ever since I was appointed Railway Minister, this has been the practice.

Shri B. Das: The whole rule has gone.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa (C.P. and Berar: General): I am sorry I am not in favour of suggestion made by the previous speakers to combine these Committees into one. From experience as I have of the Provincial Advisory Committees of the Railways, I think the Committees which are going to come hereafter will have very heavy work for the improvement of the Railways in this country. Therefore I do not want the burden to be put upon this Committee by such combination. I feel that if the Committees are combined into one, then they will not be able to do justice and look after the grievances of the travelling public. There are very many grievances and there are many improvements that are required to be made in the Railways and if this one Committee is appointed, I am sure the real difficulties and hardships of the travelling public will be entirely ignored. Therefore, Sir, I think that the Standing Committee of Finance should work for the finances of Railway only and should not assert the power of the other Committee. I therefore, suggest, Sir, that the motion moved by the Honourable Minister for the Railways should remain as it is.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: Sir, my Honourable friend Mr. Sidhwa has misunderstood the suggestion made by myself and Mr. Santhanam. It is not our intention that the Central Advisory Council for Railways or the Local Advisory Councils should be abolished. They have independent functions to discharge.

Mr. Speaker: The Honourable Member is not, I am afraid, giving a personal explanation but adding something by way of reply.

Prof. N. G. Ranga (Madras: General): Sir, I am not in favour of the suggestion made by my Honourable friend Mr. Santhanam that both these committees should be combined into one. The question of railway finance is not on all fours with that of ordinary general finance because the railways happen to be more or less a nationalised industry, and the industrial problems as affecting the general public have got to be viewed in a different way. Necessarily those who are interested in the welfare of the passengers and conveniences to be provided for them and also the general commercial public who utilise the goods traffic have got to be considered separately in a separate committee and have got to be given special consideration by members who are interested in it and who are elected to that committee. Therefore these two committees have got to be kept apart. At the same time the Railway Finance Committee should be given greater powers, and I am glad the Honourable Minister concerned has already given us an assurance that he will certainly try to extend the scope of the work as well as the powers of this committee.

The other suggestion that I should like to make is this: I am glad that the Honourable Minister has already stated that ever since he has come into the department he has been presiding over this committee. I should like him, as his other colleague has done, to put down here that the Minister concerned with the Railways should be the Chairman of this Committee.

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: Sir, there is only one point of importance which has been raised in the discussion on this motion and that is that there is need for separation between the consideration of problems of a financial character and the consideration of problems of a general administrative character. Speaking with some experience of railway administration I want to say that in practice this distinction does not hold. I am not aware of any important question of administration which does not arise in the course of the Committees consideration of financial matters. In a nationalised industrial concern like the railways you cannot raise any question which has any administrative importance without its financial repercussions being at the same time apparent. But I am prepared to give this assurance that when matters of this kind come up before the Standing Finance Committee I will give the Finance Committee the fullest latitude for examining not merely the financial but also the administrative implications of the proposals we bring before them. I am in entire agreement with my Honourable friend Mr. Sidhwa that there are many matters arising in the course of day to day administration which are of great importance to the travelling public and to the business community, and you cannot have the Standing Finance Committee going in detail into these matters. That could be considered only by the second committee the appointment of which, with your permission, Sir, I will move next.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That this Assembly do proceed to elect, in such manner as may be approved by the Honourable the Speaker, eleven members to serve on the Standing Finance Committee for Railways for the unexpired portion of the current financial year."

The motion was adopted.

ELECTION TO CENTRAL ADVISORY COUNCIL FOR RAILWAYS

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai (Minister for Railways and Transport): Sir, I move:

"That this Assembly do proceed to elect, in such manner as may be approved by the Honourable the Speaker, eight non-official members to serve on the Central Advisory Council for Railways for the unexpired portion of the current financial year."

I have already spoken on the general scope and functions of this Council.

Mr. Speaker: Motion moved:

"That this Assembly do proceed to elect, in such manner as may be approved by the Honourable the Speaker, eight non-official members to serve on the Central Advisory Council for Railways for the unexpired portion of the current financial year."

Shri M. S. Aney (Deccan and Madras States Group): Sir, I support this motion and in doing so I wish to make a few observations. In the course of discussion on the previous motion some of my Honourable friends who have experience of the working of the Railway Finance Committee as well as the Advisory Council suggested that the functions of these two bodies should be combined and that only one committee, viz, the Railway Standing Finance Committee, should be kept up and all the powers given to it. I personally think that the work of the Standing Finance Committee should be mainly concerned with the examination of the financial effect of the proposals placed before them or other proposals that they might like to take up. But the Central Advisory Council is an important committee although its importance was not sufficiently recognised by the old Assembly because the railway authorities were very chary and reluctant to convene meetings of that Committee and prepare the agenda. In the past the Railway Member and the Railway Board were mainly guided by the Resolutions adopted by a body known as the Railway Conference which mainly consisted of the different Railway Agents. They did not want to take the elected Members of this House and the Council of State who were members of the Central Advisory Council into confidence on many of these questions. That was one of the reasons why the Central Advisory Council was not able to function as effectively as it should have done. But I am sure all important questions of policy with regard to the railways are matters properly to be discussed by the Central Advisory Council, which again has created a network of provincial committees to which my Honourable friend Mr. Sidhwa referred; and a way has to be found out by which the railway administrations can be actually brought into close contact with the people who suffer or who have grievances against the administration. There are many other questions of policy which have to be discussed by the Central Advisory Council. I therefore think that in future the Honourable Minister should call more frequent meetings of this body whenever there are important questions of policy to be considered. If that is done much of the grievance which members feel about the work of this Council will be removed. In my opinion it is necessary that these two bodies should be kept separate and both should be kept functioning properly. Also hereafter the main source of guidance for the Railway Board and the Honourable Minister should be the advice given by this body and not the Resolutions passed by the Railway Conference in which Traffic Managers and Railway Agents only find a place and not others.

Shri H. V. Kamath (C. P. and Berar: General): On a point of information, under whose chairmanship will this Council function?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: Under my chairmanship.

Pandit Govind Malaviya (U. P.: General): Sir, May I suggest to the Honourable the Railway Member, to consider whether it will not be more useful and desirable to enlarge the size of this Advisory Council? The railways at present constitute the crux of literally all the problems facing every phase of our national life. Practically all the troubles which face us in whatever direction, if analysed, boil down to the one chief difficulty of the railways not working as we wish and need them to work. I do not suggest that they are not working as we wish them to work because of any inefficiency on the part, or unwillingness on the part of the Honourable the Railway Member. We know his difficulties. But Sir, whether it is the crisis in the Food Department or in the Industries Department or regarding the supply of cloth or whether it is the question of the carrying of the passengers or of refugees or of coal, steel, cement and other essential commodities or of goods—whatever it is—it is always a difficulty of transport. I feel, Sir, that a great deal of improvement in this hopeless situation may be possible if this Committee is enlarged, thereby making it possible for a larger number of people familiar with local difficulties in the various parts of the country to be able to advise the Committee and the Honourable Member as to what steps may help him to get over difficulties regarding the sections of the railways falling in the territories of these members respectively. Another point which I should like to submit for consideration is that we are now meeting today under changed circumstances and very happy circumstances in so far as we are now a national, sovereign and independent body. Our Government, under the brilliant leadership of our great leader is facing tremendous difficulties and problems, and I believe I am voicing the opinion not only of every Member of this House but of every sensible man in this country, when I say that they carry with them not only the support but also the admiration of every Indian for the manner in which they are tackling those difficult and great problems. Every one of us is at their back. My reading of history does not tell me of another instance where a newly born Government has been face to face with problems half so difficult or on half the magnitude of the problems which our Government is faced with. But our leaders are tackling these terrible problems that face them marvellously, almost superhumanly. We are grateful to them for it and wish them greater Godspeed and success. But, Sir, I am afraid there is a tendency in the Government Departments today—I am submitting this merely for consideration and not by way of criticism—to let things go on as they have been going on before: to let the wheels roll on as they have been rolling on before and to let things continue. I therefore, Sir, beg to submit for the considerations of the Honourable Member for Railways, and for the consideration of other Members of the Government also, that these Standing Committees, these Advisory Committees, though technically they must naturally be advisory committees, should now be called upon to really assist the Ministers to administer their departments expeditiously and effectively in as popular and liberal a manner as may be possible.

Sir, one thing which has often struck us has been the fact that these Standing Committees in the past have been treated—I hope I shall not be misunderstood more or less as mere formalities. They have been meeting sometimes once in a year: sometimes twice in a year and no more, and even in those meetings a loaded agenda is gone through almost in a formal manner and nothing more can be done. I hope, Sir, that hereafter the meetings of these Advisory and Standing Committees will be held oftener, indeed every month if possible, and that all problems facing the departments of the Honourable Members will be placed before these committees consisting of representatives from all parts of the country and that their opinions and suggestions will be consulted and the fullest advantage taken of their experience of local situations, difficulties and possibilities of improvement. I should like to support the view that instead of the Advisory Council we might have a Standing Committee for Railways with as widened a scope for it as possible.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra (West Bengal: General): I agree with Pandit Govind Malaviya on the question of the enlargement of the Advisory Council for Railways. I had the privilege of being associated with the Standing Finance Committee and the Advisory Council for Railways for a number of years. I have some idea of the nature of the work. It is indeed a mistake to suppose that the Standing Finance Committee and the Central Council for Railways can be amalgamated into one. It must be borne in mind by those who have to do their share in the Standing Finance Committees that the work is so heavy and so exacting in nature that I do not think that an unwieldy Committee, with numbers of heads added to it, can really function in an effective manner.

In my opinion, as I have found it, the relationship between these Committees is something like this: Standing Finance Committee discuss questions of policy, particularly those having a financial bearing; whereas the Standing Advisory Council for Railways is concerned with the execution of those policies. Therefore I do feel that there is necessity for the separate maintenance of each of these two Committees.

With regard to the Committee for which the motion has been moved, in the past this Committee seldom used to meet, and if it did meet at all, it would meet to discuss very unimportant subjects, though this is a Committee which must deal with very many important matters, matters which cannot be taken up in the Standing Finance Committee for railways for more than one reason. Then again the Central Advisory Council for Railways functions as a liaison between the Central Railway authority and the local railway administrations and the general public. The general public and the business community have their own problems and grievances and troubles. They have to be reflected through the local Advisory Committees with which the members of the Central Advisory Council are associated. I am afraid many of our new friends do not know the practice.

The practice is this: All members of the Central Advisory Council for Railways are called upon to serve on the local railway Advisory Councils in the different provinces. They carry out, as a matter of fact, the policy that is adopted by the Standing Finance Committee and by the Railway Minister here, they see that it is implemented in the local administration of railways. Therefore this Committee is of great importance. But in the past this Committee very seldom met: usually it met after the close of the Budget session and transacted very little business. I do suggest to my Honourable friend, Dr. John Matthai, that this Committee should be made to meet more freely and frequently, so that it may really prove a useful institution in the sense that it will serve the important purpose of enabling the public to have sufficient scope for ventilating their grievances as also help in the solution of the problems that confront the administration.

With regard to the question of the enlargement of this committee I am not opposed to it. But may I tell my Honourable friend Mr. Govind Kant Malaviya that all members of the Standing Finance Committee become ex-officio members of the Central Advisory Council for Railways. Therefore the net result is that even with the present proposed strength the Central Advisory Council for Railways will consist of 11 plus 8, 19 members. I do not think that is a very small number and I think the Assembly as it is constituted at the moment may very well be represented by 19 members in all. If the Honourable Minister for Railways is pleased to add to the number I do not object to it. Therefore I support the motion as it is with the request that the Honourable Minister should try to activate this Council more and more and endeavour to take it more and more into his confidence.

Shri Raj Krishna Bose (Orissa: General): Sir, though much has been already said by my Honourable friends, one thing has not yet been stressed. I personally feel that it is not really desirable that the number of members in this Committee should be increased, because in addition to the Central Advisory Committee, there are provincial advisory committees also. The real difficulty in the procedure of implementation of the recommendations of these Committees has been that there has not yet been created an effective agency either to give effect to or co-ordinate the recommendations made by the provincial committees and the Central Advisory Committee. That is a point which I would like to emphasize. Although the Advisory Committees sit very rarely, their recommendations are not implemented as much as quickly as they ought to be. Of course, I have never been on these committees, but from what I know about their work I really feel that they have been so far only nominal bodies and the railway administration does not very much care for their recommendations. What is really to be done is not to expand the scope of these committees, because even now they have very wide powers but to set up some agency, either of the Government or of the railway administration itself, to implement the resolutions of the provincial and Central Advisory Committees and to see that a system of priority is also introduced so that the first thing comes first.

Mr. Frank R. Anthony (C. P. and Berar: General): Sir, I have two suggestions to make to the Honourable Minister in charge in this connection. The first is that we should hold more frequent meetings of these committees. I have been a member of the Railway Standing Finance Committee for the last nine months but so far I do not think we have had a single meeting. The other suggestion that I would like to make to the Honourable Minister is in support of what Pandit Govind Malaviya said, that is, if it is possible the Honourable Minister should definitely enlarge the strength of this committee. I have always felt that in this House, even when the membership was much less than what it is today, the different sections of the community were not adequately represented, that only users of railways have been represented and that people who really understand the worker, because of the restricted membership of this House, have not been able to find a place on this committee. I suppose the Honourable Minister is aware of the acute problems that are facing the administration today. I have just returned from an extensive tour covering 15 main railway centres and I have been most unhappy about what I have seen everywhere. Forty per cent. of the men are carrying out the job done previously by a whole complement. These facts are not coming to the notice of the administrative members of the Railway Board and even the Honourable Minister may not really know what is taking place among the workmen. It is a most serious problem. I am more than perturbed by what I have seen and unless the Railway Minister promises to harness the experience and advice of the people in the House who actually know what is happening I feel that he will be out of touch with the spirit of the men. I am one of those who feel very perturbed about it and unless we get on top of this problem I feel that what is undoubtedly one of the most vital of our services is likely to fall down on the administration.

Shri Deshbandhu Gupta (Delhi): Mr. Speaker, we are pleased to find that the influence of the English is gone, but I am sorry to find that English still holds the same place in this meeting as it has hitherto received. For that reason we find the same old atmosphere. I hope that soon we shall be rid of this too.

I have risen to support the proposal made by my friend Mr. Govind Malviya. Up to this time the Central Legislature had twelve representatives on this Council; six represented the Central Assembly while six represented the Council of State. I see no reason why this number should be decreased. If the number can not be increased from twelve, it must not be decreased too. I think the Government will have no difficulty in accepting this proposal.

Shri K. Santhanam (Madras: General): Sir, my suggestion that this Council should be amalgamated with the Standing Finance Committee for Railways has created some sort of controversy. If this Council is to be enlarged on the lines suggested by the Honourable Mr. Aney and it is to be entrusted with real functions I have no objection whatsoever. But my experience is that it has worked as a nominal body. If Honourable Members were to look into the reports of the Central Advisory Council and the Standing Finance Committee for Railways they will find that the work of the Council has been most meagre. It used to meet for half an hour and some questions about catering and other minor matters used to be placed before it and then some resolutions used to be recorded which were never, so far as I know, implemented. I think we should set out face against all kinds of fictitious committees. Either we should have a real committee or no committee at all. Why I suggest the amalgamation of these two committees is this. Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra has explained how the position stands. All the members of the Standing Finance Committee are also members of the Central Advisory Council. Therefore if necessary you can enlarge the number of members from 11 to 15 or 19 and get one committee—a committee for all matters on railways. Let it sit every month for two or three days and discuss all questions. Otherwise the division of functions is likely to enable the Railway Department to say that certain subjects are within the purview of one or the other body and thereby between the functioning of these two Committees neither body will have jurisdiction over a range of subjects. That is what I want to avoid. I want to avoid dyarchy. Why should there be any dyarchy and why should there not be a single committee properly constituted. Why should it not discuss all problems.....

Mr. Speaker: The Honourable Member is again repeating the same observations about the amalgamation of the two committees. The House has heard the arguments on that point and it has decided to adopt the formation of one of the Committees, and the House has already voted upon it. That is closed now.

Shri K. Santhanam: I am not pressing for an amalgamation at all. I am only pleading that this Advisory Council should not repeat its past and that it should be a new council altogether, that it should have real functions and that it should meet at least once a quarter. Unless it does so, it will be a sheer waste and be merely a paper committee. I do not want any paper committee to be approved by this House. That is the only point I wanted to make.

(English translation of the above speech)

Shri Ram Sahai (Gwalior State): When I first stood I wanted to raise this point of order that there is no such amendment which envisages that the number of members should be increased by more than eight, or the Standing Finance Committee for Railways and Central Advisory Council for Railways should be amalgamated as one. Can there be any discussion on this point in such circumstances?

Mr. Speaker: It is perfectly competent for a Member to make whatever suggestions he may have to make, even though there is no amendment.

Shri Rohini Kumar Chaudhuri (Assam: General): Sir, I have listened carefully to the various observations which have been made by the Honourable Members of the House on this motion. I think I can make an humble suggestion. The wishes of the House, I think, will be well met if the word 'Advisory' is dropped. Sir, we all know very well that the advice which is given in these Council meetings is given gratis. And advice given gratis is never heeded much. Therefore I think if you drop the word 'Advisory' the wishes of the Members of the Finance Committee and the Central Council will be very well met. I had had the good luck or bad luck of becoming a Member of the Advisory Council of Eastern Bengal Railway for a considerable time. I found that as soon as you sit the President of the Council makes a curious attempt to divert the time and attention of the Members by giving each Member a small packet and that, by the time the Members open the packets and see what they contain, the whole proceedings of the Council are over. Sometimes it so happened that the Members managed to see the packets quickly, and then we heard different observations from members coming from different parts. Somebody was asking for a waiting room in a certain station; somebody else was asking for a change in the time table at a certain place or the stoppage of mail in a certain place, and so forth. All the discussion goes on in an unbalanced way with the result that it becomes very easy for the railway authorities to ignore them altogether. Therefore I agree with the Honourable Members who have put forward the view that it should be a real Council, that this advice given should not be neglected as advice given gratis, and efforts should be made to make it a real, working body. With these words I support the motion.

श्री जयनारायण व्यास : सभापति जी, मैं मालवीय जी के जो सजेसन्स (suggestions) हैं उनकी बहुत जोर से तारीफ़ करता हूँ। इन दिनों रेलवे बहुत ज़रादा अहमियत पकड़ गई है। फौजी लिहाज़ से भी रेलवे और ज्यादा महत्व रखती है। और फौजी एक्सपर्ट्स (experts) भी और ऐसे लोगों का भी जो इस मामले में राय दे सकें हमारी ऐडवाइजरी कमेटी (Advisory Committee) में रहना वाजिब होगा। साथ ही साथ आपके यहाँ स्टेट्स (States) भी आ गई हैं और स्टेट्स (States) के सरकारी और गैर सरकारी याने सरकारी रेलवे से ताल्लुक रखने वाले लोग और गैर सरकारी लोग जो स्टेट रेलवे के स्टाफ़ (staff) में इन्टरेस्टेड (interested) हैं उनकी तकलीफ़ में इन्टरेस्टेड (interested) हैं वह भी पसन्द करेंगे कि रेलवे की जो ऐडवाइजरी कमेटी (Advisory Committee) बने उसमें वह आएँ।

मैं इन शब्दों के साथ पंडित गोविन्द मालवीय की राय की तारीफ़ करता हूँ।

Shri Jai Narain Vyas (Jodhpur State): Mr. Speaker, I fully support the suggestions put forth by Mr. Malaviya. The Railways have assumed much importance in these days. From the military point of view too, Railways occupy a very prominent position. It would, therefore, be advisable to include in our Advisory Committee Military experts and others too who can express their opinion on such matters. Moreover the States have also now joined us and both the official and non-official members who are concerned with the Government Railways and non-officials who are interested in the State Railway employees will like to be included in the panel of the Advisory Committee.

Inter-alia the problem created by the refugees has also increased the importance of Railways. Owing to the partition of the country and the creation of Pakistan, many portions of the Railway lie in that country. This thing has also given importance to Railways. And to-day we are despatching Defence forces to places which are not connected by Railway. I am referring to Tripura State. Keeping all these factors in view, I will submit that not only I support what Pandit Govind Malaviya had said but I feel that its scope should be further expanded.

With these words, I support the views of Pandit Govind Malaviya.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa (C.P. and Berar: General): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have some experience of the working of Provincial Committees. I do not share the view that these Committees are paper Committees. It is true that they are advisory Committees. But much depends upon the Members who take interests in the Committees. In that way they would compel the Chairman to sit for six hours. I can assure you that I was making the Chairman of the Committee on which I was serving, sit for four and a half hours, and he dared not refuse to permit me to make the motions that I was moving in those Committees. It is true that the resolutions that are passed are merely advisory and even if they are passed by majority of votes it is for the Chairman to accept them or not. But the constitution provides that the matter be referred to the Railway Board. I do admit that the Railway Board generally accept the proposal of the Chairman and not the advice of the majority of the advisory Committee. But these were olden days. I am sure the present Railway Member dare not go against the advice of the people and accept the advice of the Chairman of the Advisory Committee. I am prepared to accept that an expansion of this Committee should be made and more powers given to it. But I do not share the view that this Committee has not been doing any work. It is incorrect. These Committees were the creation of a very long controversy and agitation in this very Assembly and on the clamour that the Members made. I remained for twelve years on the Provincial Committees and I can claim that I have been able to provide small facilities for the clamouring public. I attach a very great importance to these Committees. In the present changed constitution the Committee should no doubt have more power. We are still thinking of the olden days and probably feel that the same thing that transpired in the olden times under a bureaucratic regime will continue in the Committee. It is impossible to believe that. We must change our outlook and see how we are living, the atmosphere in which we are working. I would prefer some more powers to be given to the Committee. I do not mind even if its name remains 'Advisory'. The majority view of the members cannot be flouted by the Chairman, whosoever he is.

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: Sir, I must confess frankly that when I moved my simple motion I was not prepared for a discussion covering so extensive a field. I almost felt for a moment that I was back in the middle of a Budget debate.

There were two or three important points which were raised in the course of the discussion. The first point, a point to which my honourable friend

[Dr. John Matthai]

Mr. Santhanam obviously attaches a great deal of importance, was that there might be sacrifice of public interests if we made to clear-cut a distinction between administration and finance. To that point my honourable friend Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra has already made a reply, that under the existing practice, when this Committee meets, all the members of the Standing Finance Committee are admitted as ex-officio members on this Committee, so that, in practice, that distinction does not exist. Whatever administrative or financial matters may be brought by the Railways, the members of this Committee would be in a position to consider them as a whole.

Various appeals have been made to me not to continue the habits of the ancient regime. I have been asked to activate this Committee, to call for more frequent meetings of the Committee. With all these appeals I have the utmost and the most profound sympathy. If I say that I want to activate this Committee, that I want to have more frequent meetings of this Committee, I do not say it from a sense of duty.

From my little experience of these committees I find it is worth my while to take account of suggestions made by them. On many important matters during the last Budget session I was greatly helped by suggestions which had been made to me by members of this Committee so, from the point of view being able to do my own work a little better, I find it is worth while to take the committees seriously.

My honourable friend Mr. Anthony referred to the question of labour. I was impressed by the point that he made. In fact I have developed a strong feeling that the railways in this country, like every other industry of importance, depend for their future on the organization of a better structure of industrial relations. If it is possible for me to devise a composition for this committee which would bring into the committee people who represent the labour point of view, I should certainly give the fullest consideration to it. My Honourable friend Mr. Aney referred to the question of the Indian Railway Conference Association. To a large extent I agree with him. I have recently had under active consideration the question whether the functions which are now discharged by the Indian Railways Conference Association should continue. I feel that there is a great deal which is now being done by the Indian Railway Conference Association which are really matters that ought to be under the consideration of the Ministry rather than the Conference Association. As I understand it, there was justification for the Railway Conference Association at the time when most of our railways were company railways; but now that all the Class I railways are State railways, it seems to me that the composition and scope of the Indian Railway Conference Association stand urgently in need of revision and reorganization, and I have the matter as I say, under active consideration and I hope to come to a decision at a very early date.

Sir there was one point that was made—I forget by whom,—that recommendations on important matters which the Advisory Council make do not receive adequate consideration by Government. As far as the present Ministry is concerned there is not a matter on which recommendations are made by this Advisory Council which I would not go to any length to be able to accept. But there is one matter in this connection to which I should make reference. Even where important matters of administration or policy are raised—I am speaking with all respect—it is extraordinary how often members would switch discussion towards questions of purely local interest. I was anxious on more than one occasion to get them to consider certain important matters as question of principle and policy, but they went back to small matters such as what happened at the Trichinopoly railway station or the price at which fruits were sold at Egmore railway station. It is not always, if I may say so, the fault of the person who presides over these meetings.

Shri B. Das (Orissa: General): The fault of the past administrations.

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: My honourable friends can rest assured that if a question of importance is brought before the Council, there is no one from whom they would receive greater co-operation than myself. That is all I have to say.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That this Assembly do proceed to elect, in such manner as may be approved by the Honourable the Speaker, eight non-official members to serve on the Central Advisory Council for Railways for the unexpired portion of the current financial year."

The motion was adopted.

Mr. Speaker: I have to inform Honourable Members that the following dates have been fixed for receiving nominations and holding elections, if necessary, in connection with the following Committees and Council, namely:

	Date for nomination.	Date for election.
Standing Finance Committee.	19-11-47	21-11-47
Central Advisory Council for Railways.	19-11-47	21-11-47
Standing Finance Committee for Railways.	19-11-47	21-11-47

The nominations for these Committees and council will be received in the Notice Office upto 12 noon on the dates mentioned for the purpose. The elections, which will be conducted in accordance with the Regulations for the holding of elections by means of the single transferable vote, will be held in the Assistant Secretary's room (No. 21) in the Council House, between the hours 10-30 A.M. and 1 P.M.

RESOLUTION RE RATIFICATION OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE WORLD HEALTH ORGANIZATION AND THE PROTOCOL CONCERNING THE INTERNATIONAL OFFICE OF PUBLIC HYGIENE.

The Honourable Rajkumari Amrit Kaur (Minister for Health): Sir, I move:

"This Assembly is of opinion that the Constitution of the World Health Organization and the Protocol concerning the International Office of Public Hygiene be ratified."

I understand that the Constitution and the Protocol as well as a summary of the World Health Organization have already been circulated to members: but in view of the fact that perhaps many of them may not have had time to read that summary or anything about the World Health Organization, I feel I might say something in explanation of this ratification. There were originally two World Organizations concerned with dealing with world health problems. One was the International Office of Public Hygiene, and the other the League of Nations World Health Organization. Both these could not function during the World War. Their duties were taken up by an organization known as the UNRRA. Later in 1946, the Social and Economic Council of the United Nations, at the instance of several nations, called a Health Conference and appointed a Preparatory Commission, of which India was a member, to formulate proposals; and they recommended a World Health Organization whose objectives were to prepare International Sanitary Conventions, to prevent the spread of epidemic diseases, to promote research in all fields of health, to work for the improvement of nutrition, housing, sanitation, maternity and child welfare, industrial hygiene, medical education, standardization of food, pharmaceutical and biological products, etc. I may mention that all these are of vital importance to India. The Constitution, briefly, is allotting its work to three organs: one will be the World Health Assembly which will be meeting once a year: one will be an Executive Board which will meet twice a year composed of 18 member-states; and thirdly there would be a Secretariat of a Director-General and other staff. Now this Constitution was signed by all the 51 members of the United Nations, of which India was one, and it will come into force when members of the United Nations have ratified their signatures; and this is the ratification that I now seek from the Indian Legislature. I may mention that an Interim Commission was set up, on which India was represented, to carry on the functions of this Health Organization. Its headquarters are now at New York and it has a Branch Office in Geneva also. The Protocol deals only with the handing over of the duties and functions of the International Office of Public Hygiene. India, I may mention, has taken an active part throughout in the establishment of the Organisation and also in its work and deliberations and it is an Indian member who is now Chairman of the Committee for deciding the permanent headquarters of this Organisation. I would like to say that we are going to press for these permanent headquarters to be in India. The Indian member is also Vice-Chairman of a Committee on technical questions, is a Chairman of the Drafting Sub-Committee and is a Member of Priorities and Steering Committees.

In asking the House to ratify what has already been signed by the Indian representative at the World Health Organisation, I would like to say that India can gain in several ways by becoming a Member of the World Health Organisation. We can get technical assistance to our Governments in strengthening our health services. That assistance may include expert staff if we wish for it, equipment for training our people. We can also get advice and guidance on our health problems from expert committees. Then when it becomes possible to send out such teams India can also have expert teams for development of health programmes in co-operation with other Governments. We can also get fellowships for post-graduate studies and moreover results of research will all be available to us. We may even get financial help for our research organisations. As health matters are extremely vital to India and as it is the policy, and perfectly correct policy, for India to collaborate with other nations of the world in all good causes, I ask this House to ratify our Membership of the World Health Organisation and I am sure the House will have no hesitation in accepting the motion.

Shri K. M. Munshi (Bombay: General): Sir, I wish to submit that the House be now adjourned.

Mr. Speaker: I will put the motion before the House. Resolution moved:

"This Assembly is of opinion that the constitution of the World Health Organization and the Protocol concerning the International Office of Public Hygiene be ratified."

Shri K. M. Munshi: Sir, I submit that the House do stand adjourned till tomorrow because this motion might take some time. Many Members are anxious to take part in discussion and it is very inconvenient to the Members to meet at 3 P.M. because many of them are members of the All-India Congress Committee and will be busy in the afternoon.

Mr. Speaker: Apart from that consideration, Members may not have had copies of papers etc. early enough. Some one remarked that he received them only this morning. I, therefore, am of opinion that time may be given, so that Members may read the papers and have a discussion tomorrow.

Now that leaves practically no business before the House. I wish to invite Honourable Members' attention to one or two points. I understand that, on account of Members not intimating immediately, to the office, their arrival and the address in Delhi, similarly not intimating in advance as to when they are leaving their places, it has not been always possible to send their post to them in such a manner, that it would reach their hands at the proper time and the proper place. Members have come here and the packets have gone to their places, or they have not gone and it is not known where the Members are staying. It is, therefore necessary, for Honourable Members to keep in touch with the office and immediately contact the office and inform it of their arrivals, departures and the addresses to which their post may be sent to them.

Then I might invite the attention of Members to Circular No. 12 along with which copies of four Bills have been sent and copies of the Reports of the Select Committees in respect of some further Bills have also been sent. I have to request the Members to be so good as to preserve them for use whenever the matter is fixed for discussion here. As a measure of economy it is not possible to distribute every day about 300 copies of the same papers for an indefinite period. Whatever is distributed should be kept by Members carefully and brought to the House. That has been the practice followed during the last Legislative Assembly period. If anybody, just by forgetfulness, misses to bring his copy, he can get a copy in the Lobby for reference.

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Tuesday, the 18th November, 1947.

CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY OF INDIA
(LEGISLATIVE)

Tuesday, 18th November, 1947

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber of the Council House at Eleven of the Clock, Mr. Speaker (The Honourable Mr. G. V. Mavalankar) in the Chair.

DECLARATION BY MEMBERS.

The following members made the declaration under Rule 2C:—

- Rai Sahib Raghuraj Singh (Eastern States—Group II);
- Raja Saheb of Bobbili (Madras: General); and
- Shri V. R. Kalappa (C. P. and Berar: General).

Mr. Speaker: Unfortunately, Mr. Kalappa has lost his power of speech. Therefore, the Secretary will read the Declaration on his behalf and he will sign the Register.

(The Secretary then read the Declaration on behalf of Mr. Kalappa, who then signed the Register.)

STARRED QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

(a) ORAL ANSWERS.

REHABILITATION OF REFUGEES FROM PAKISTAN.

1. Shri Biswanath Das: Will the Honourable Minister of Relief and Rehabilitation be pleased to state:

- (a) the number of refugees that have come over to India from different Provinces and States of Pakistan and vice versa;
- (b) the number that is receiving aid from Government;
- (c) details of the arrangements made with the Government of Pakistan to keep the moveable and immoveable properties safe;
- (d) the number, if any, that desire to return to Pakistan and vice versa; and
- (e) any programme or arrangements made for their rehabilitation?

The Honourable Shri K. O. Neogy: (a) The number of evacuees who arrived in the territories of the Indian Union prior to the setting up of the Military Evacuation Organization on 4th September, 1947 cannot be accurately estimated. A very rough estimate suggests that the number was about 13 lakhs. The total number of Non-Muslims evacuated by the Military Evacuation Organization from West Punjab and North West Frontier Province between the 4th September, 1947 and the 11th November, 1947 is 20,19,126. About 2,40,000 Non-Muslims have been evacuated from Sind by sea and Rail. A rough estimate of migration from Bhawalpur is 80,000. No separate figures are available for Baluchistan. The number of Muslims evacuated by the Military Evacuation Organization from East Punjab and East Punjab States between 4th September, 1947 and 11th November, 1947, is 19,34,436. Figures prior to that date are not available.

(b) The number of Non-Muslim refugees in camps in East Punjab and Delhi

Province is about seven lakhs fifty thousand. Besides there are about three lakhs refugees in relief camps in the United Provinces.

(c) The Pakistan Government have issued two Ordinances for custody of evacuee property and its use for rehabilitation of refugees. The broad features of both Ordinances have been incorporated in the East Punjab Ordinance on the same subject. The East Punjab Ordinance has been extended by the Central Government to Delhi. The Ordinance provides for custody of moveable and immovable property and interim administration of industrial and business concerns of evacuees. Where this is essential the Custodian may sell immovable property. Representations to the Government of West Punjab that stock-in-trade of Non-Muslim shopkeepers may be sold subject to a reserve price on the basis of invoice value or on the basis of appraisal by assessors have not proved successful. In Delhi and East Punjab the Custodian is assisted by an Advisory Committee. The Government of West Punjab have refused to accept the suggestion from the Government of India for the appointment of an Advisory Committee to assist the West Punjab Custodian.

(d) Government have no information.

(e) East Punjab Government have set up a Department of Rehabilitation with a Directorate each for Rural Rehabilitation, and Urban Rehabilitation. According to a well organised scheme, Deputy Commissioners have been made responsible for allotment of land to agriculturist refugees, in their districts, in consultation with non-official Advisory Committees. Out of the total area of forty five lakh acres abandoned by Muslims in East Punjab, thirty three lakh acres are cultivable, of which twelve and a half lakh acres have been allotted and over one lakh seventy seven thousand families have been settled. For Urban refugees, residential accommodation is to be provided, by the Resettlement Staff set up in each District under the Deputy Commissioner, associated with Urban Resettlement Committees in each District town.

In response to an appeal from the Central Government nearly all Provinces and many States of the Indian Union have offered accommodation either for temporary care or for resettlement and rehabilitation of refugees. According to the latest estimates it seems likely that one half million refugees from West Punjab and N. W. F. P. cannot be resettled in East Punjab. The Government of India is very shortly starting a programme of dispersal of refugees to accommodation offered elsewhere in Provinces and Indian States.

So far as Urban rehabilitation is concerned the Government of India have asked the Provincial Governments and Indian States to examine quickly and report on the possibilities of suburban development schemes in the vicinity of big towns.

In Delhi the Government of India are exploring the possibility of reserving for refugees certain sites both in residential and industrial areas.

Arrangements have been made for the registration and placement of refugees through Employment Exchanges and for the training of a large number of refugees in technical and vocational trades in training centres which were started in the first instance for demobilised Services personnel.

The question of giving financial assistance to refugees is receiving attention. Sanction has already been accorded to the grant of loans to students and trainees whose parents and guardians are unable to find funds, having become refugees, in order to enable them to prosecute their studies or training in India or abroad.

The question of giving advances to women who have lost their husbands or supporters and to others is under active consideration. For those wishing to set up their own industries, assistance on the lines of the provisions contained in Aid to Industries Acts of certain Provinces and assistance in kind are contemplated.

A Loans Section has already been set up in the Ministry of Relief and Rehabilitation. The possibility of setting up a Rehabilitation Finance Corporation is under expert scrutiny.

Many other aspects of rehabilitation are under active examination. For instance, possibility of absorbing a large number of skilled workers in Railway Workshops after short periods of training is being examined. Centres are being started in various relief camps where refugees will be engaged on remunerative occupations like Spinning and Weaving, Hosiery knitting, Button making etc. Houses for women and children are being set up at Jullundur and Delhi. Schemes for vocational training of juveniles are being prepared. Altogether the rehabilitation programme will be a comprehensive one but any action that can be taken on particular aspects of rehabilitation is not being and will not be held up.

Pandit Balkrishna Sharma: May I know, Sir, if the Government are aware that recently the Pakistan Government have taken possession of all the safe deposit vaults and whether any reciprocal action is being contemplated by the Government here?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: I am afraid my Honourable friend's information is not quite correct. No safe deposit vault has yet been taken possession of by the West Punjab Government. What has happened is that a Notification has been issued under which the West Punjab authorities would be competent to take possession of safe deposit vaults unless the Managers-in-charge are prepared to operate them with effect from the 20th of this month. On this subject several representations have been made by this Government. I should like to read out the earliest telegram that was sent protesting against this proposal. This telegram was sent by the Honourable the Prime Minister to the Prime Minister of Pakistan on the 8th of November last. In view of the importance of the subject, I make no apology for reading out the entire text of this telegram.

"I understand that the West Punjab Government has passed an order requiring owners and managers of safe deposit vaults to resume work by the 20th November failing which that Government will take possession of the vaults. I shall be grateful for urgent information, as to whether this report is correct. If it is, I must lodge the strongest possible protest against the order of the West Punjab Government. Conditions in Lahore and other towns where safe deposit vaults are located are so insecure for non-Muslims that the managers and their staff will be incurring great personal risk in attempting to resume work by the 20th of November. Moreover I am reliably informed that the number of small depositors is less than 5 per cent. The Managing Director of one of the safe deposit vaults went to Lahore some time ago and tried to open the vault but was prevented from doing so. If in these circumstances the West Punjab Government take possession of the vaults that would mean expropriation of property worth an immense amount of money. Our Minister for refugees has telegraphed to you suggesting an inter-Dominion Conference on various matters on the 11th of this month. I understand that no reply has yet been received by him. I hope it will be possible for this Conference to be held soon and the subject of safe deposit vaults may be included in the agenda. Pending such discussion, I would ask that the order said to have been issued by the West Punjab Government should be withdrawn. I should be grateful for a very early reply."

The date of the telegram is 8th of November and no reply has yet been received to this telegram.

Another telegram was sent later. But meanwhile we had sent a Memorandum indicating the various points which we desired to be raised for purposes of discussion at the proposed inter-Dominion Conference, and the question of safe deposit vaults occupied a very prominent position in that Memorandum.

Shri M. S. Aney: May I suggest that the Honourable Member lays all these documents on the table instead of reading it?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: If that is the desire of the House I could lay on the table all relevant documents in this connection, but may I just wind up this particular point by mentioning that the Prime Minister sent another telegram on the 15th of November and there again the protest was renewed and a constructive suggestion was made. I would read out only that portion of the telegram which contains the constructive suggestion.

"If you must insist on opening these vaults within the next three or four days, I would ask that the vaults be opened in the presence of the Deputy High Commissioner and other officers accompanying him. Depositors now resident in Pakistan may open their lockers, but lockers belonging to persons now resident in India should not be touched. As soon as business of residents in Pakistan has been completed the vaults must be put under double lock, the key of one lock being detained by representative of the West Punjab Government and the key of the other lock being retained by the Deputy High Commissioner or an officer nominated by him for the purpose. We will be prepared to make available as many officers as may be necessary, so that one of our own officers will be present at each safe deposit vault to operate the double lock and afford access to persons resident in Pakistan during specified hours. I suggest that this arrangement is absolutely essential until the matter is discussed further at the next inter-Dominion Conference. I would emphasize that persons resident in Pakistan should be afforded locker space only after complete identification and with reference to entries made in safe deposit vaults registers."

To this telegram again no reply has been received.

Dr. B. Pattabhi Sitaramayya: May I know if as one of the items of long-range programme of rehabilitation Government have considered the building of one or two cities, notably at Kurukshetra and elsewhere, in order to provide immediate occupation to the thousands that are gathered there and also to provide amenities for the urban population to move among these refugees?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: That point has been under active consideration for some time. The specific question raised by the Honourable Member as regard the possibility of building a town at Kurukshetra came up, I understand, for the consideration of the Advisory Committee attached to our Ministry the other day. It does not seem, as far as I can judge, that it will be advisable from the technical point of view to have the idea of a city at Kurukshetra adopted. But we have not yet examined the proposal with the help of experts. As regards other towns, as I have indicated in reply to the main question, we are considering the possibility of extending suburban development near about New Delhi apart from reserving an area in an industrial locality. Then again, the most important point in this connection is the question of the capital of East Punjab. That question has been gone into by a committee appointed by the East Punjab Government, and I understand the report presented by that committee is under examination. As soon as a decision is taken as regards the location of the capital of the East Punjab Government the object that my Honourable friend has in view will be very largely achieved.

Shri Biswanath Das: With reference to part (c) of the question, have Government seen very serious protests in the press that refugees coming from Pakistan were subject to a search of their properties and that they were relieved of all their moveable properties before coming to India? This was also noticed by Mr. Suhrawardy who made a protest about it. Have the Government of India made any protest or representation about this to the Pakistan Government? If so, on what dates were protests made and with what result? Is there any possibility of these moveable properties which were taken away forcibly by the Pakistan authorities being restored to these refugees?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: I will request my Honourable friend to wait till another question which raises this specific issue is reached. I am going to answer that question when it comes up in some detail.

Mr. B. Pocker Sahib Bahadur: Sir, in view of so many facts and figures involved in these long answers and also in view of the importance of the subject matter of the question, may I suggest that the answers may be typed and circulated so that supplementary questions may be asked tomorrow?

Mr. Speaker: That, I am afraid, is not possible.

Shri Biswanath Das: Will the Honourable Minister be pleased to lay on the table all papers in this connection showing what action has been taken and also replies from Pakistan Government so that Honourable Members may know that Government are taking adequate and necessary steps in this regard?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: I shall certainly do so.

Shri Mohan Lal Saksena: May I know if in view of the importance of this subject Government will be prepared to allot a day for its discussion in the House?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: That is a matter for the Honourable the Prime Minister.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta: I have already written to the Leader of the House formally to allot a day for discussion.

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: Sir, Government are agreeable to allot a day for the discussion of this subject.

Mr. Speaker: I find that in some questions there are requests for information which involve long statements to be made and an unduly long time is taken over these statements. In such cases involving long statements, I would suggest to Honourable Members that they may first ask unstarred questions and any questions arising on replies thereto may be put as starred questions so that it would be easier for all honourable members to get the information and ask supplementaries.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Sir, in that case time will be lost in giving fresh notice of a starred question and getting an answer. If that suggestion were adopted I think it would be more convenient to circulate these answers in advance to Members—as agreed upon in the other legislature—and that will provide better opportunities for Members.

Mr. Speaker: In the changed circumstances, the former agreement will not do. I just made a suggestion; otherwise the difficulty is that we can never go through the list of questions. Two or three questions will take up the whole question hour and all the other questions will go in as unstarred. So I suggest that Honourable Members may first ask for a statement to be laid on the table of the House. It is for Honourable Members to consider the suggestion.

GEOLOGICAL SURVEY OF CERTAIN DISTRICTS OF THE DECCAN STATES.

2. Shri R. R. Diwakar: Will the Honourable Minister of Works, Mines and Power be pleased to state:

(a) whether an intensive geological survey of each District has been made by the Geological Survey Department;

(b) if the answer to (a) above be in the affirmative, when was such a survey made of the following Districts: (i) Bijapur, (ii) Belgaum, (iii) Dharwar, (iv) North Kanara, (v) South Kanara, (vi) Bellary, (vii) Coorg, and (viii) Nilgiris

(c) whether any such survey was undertaken by the Survey Department of the Government of India at the request of the Deccan States and the State of Kolhapur;

(d) if the answer to (c) above be in the affirmative, when was such a survey made and of which of the States;

(e) whether the Reports of all such surveys are published; if so, whether copies of the reports are available to the public;

(f) whether geological maps of different districts are published, if so, on what scale and whether such maps are available for sale to the public; and

(g) if the answer to (f) above be in the negative, whether Government are planning to undertake the work of such a survey and the publication of geological maps of different areas on 'an inch a mile' scale?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: (a) An intensive geological survey has been made only of some areas, but a geological reconnaissance survey of nearly all districts in India has been completed by the Geological Survey of India.

(b) Intensive geological survey of these Districts was carried out as mentioned below—

(i) Bijapur—In 1944-45, 1945-46 and 1946-47, but not yet completed.

(ii) Belgaum—In 1936-37, but not yet completed.

(iii) North Kanara—In 1927-28, partially.

Detailed survey in the districts of Dharwar, South Kanara, Bellary, Coorg and Nilgiris has not yet been taken up although reconnaissance survey in each of these Districts was done previously.

(c) Yes.

(d) The survey of a portion of Mudhol State was carried out during the Field Season 1946-47, at the request of the Resident, Deccan and Kolhapur States.

(e) Yes; copies of reports are available to the public except that unpublished reports can be had only through the local Government concerned.

(f) Yes, on various scales ranging between 1 inch = 32 miles and 1 inch = 1 mile, and they are available on sale to the public.

(g) The detailed survey of different areas all over India is contemplated to be carried out progressively according to the projected 5-year plan of the Geological Survey of India depending on the availability of modern 1" topographical sheets, on the geological importance of the area and on the availability of trained officers.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Is it contemplated that the whole survey will be completed in these five years?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: That is the idea, if the material, as suggested in answer to part (g), is made available.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Are any vigorous steps being taken to train the necessary surveyors and other scientists needed and also to manufacture the instruments needed for this purpose?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: As regards training the personnel steps are being taken; as regards manufacture of material steps are contemplated.

Shri V. I. Munishwami Pillai: Are Government aware that the Madras Government recently undertook a survey and unearthed the existence of many useful minerals such as lignum, etc.? Will they consider acting with the Government of Madras in this matter and doing something to complete the research?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: Whatever is possible to be done will be done by the Geological Department.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: May I know if private Indian companies will be permitted to go on prospecting surveys?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: Private Indian companies are not banned from doing private prospecting or surveying of minerals provided they get the necessary license from the local Governments concerned.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Will any efforts be made to get into cooperative relations with the Indian universities, in order to get a sufficient number of undergraduates trained in geological work so that they can be recruited by the Government of India?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: My Honourable friend may be pleased to know that only a fortnight before a circular had been sent to all the Indian Universities asking them to recommend such graduates or undergraduates as are willing to be trained under the direction of the Geological Survey of India.

Shri R. R. Diwakar: May I know whether there is perfect co-ordination in the efforts in this line between the Provincial Governments and the Central Government?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: So far as I am aware, Provincial Governments do not do much work in this connection, but if they do certainly there will be coordination on the lines indicated by the Honourable Member.

PUBLICATION OF THE RESULTS OF GEOLOGICAL SURVEY.

3. *Shri R. R. Diwakar: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Works, Mines and Power be pleased to state whether Government are contemplating to make available to the public all materials collected after investigation and research by Geologists in different centres in the provinces?

(b) What steps are taken by Government to create interest in the industrialists and the public for the utilisation of geological resources of their local areas?

(c) Is there any Bureau or a publicity branch of the Geological Department where free advice and information can be had on requisition by industrialists?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: (a) Materials collected after investigation and research by officers of the Geological Survey of India, are published regularly in the "Memoirs", the "Records", the "Palaeontologia Indica" and occasionally in special works such as the "Manual of the Geology of India", the "Bibliography of Indian Geology", etc. in special geological maps, and in books, published from time to time, by officers of the Survey on geology and allied subjects. A list of the publications of the Geological Survey is placed on the table. Besides the publications aforesaid, a Mineral Information Bureau was started in 1946 to supply information and advice to the public.

(b) The publications of the Geological Survey of India including their "Bulletins of Economic Minerals" and the quarterly journal "Indian Minerals" are intended to popularise utilization of local geological resources amongst industrialists and the public. The well-equipped Library of the Geological Survey can be freely used by the public and serves the same purpose. The Mineral Information Bureau in the Geological Survey is intended to give advice to the public in matters of development and utilisation of mineral resources. The Government of India have also addressed Provinces and States, advising them to control their mining concessions with a view to encouraging domestic utilisation and local processing, refining and treatment of ores and minerals.

(c) Yes. The Mineral Information Bureau in the Geological Survey of India is maintained for this purpose.

Shri B. Das: Is the Honourable the Minister aware that the previous Government had the habit of informing London and New York about the discovery of minerals first and the Geological Survey did not publish such news till ten years after.

*Not printed in the debates. A copy placed in the Library of the House.—Ed. of D.

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: I am not aware of any habit of the previous Government. I know about the present Government and its policy towards this.

Shri B. Das: Has the practice of the present Government so changed that the Indian public can know all about the geological and mineral discoveries since he took charge?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: Whatever information my honourable friend or other industrialists want will be readily available.

Shri K. Santhanam: Will the Honourable Member print a pamphlet for the information of this House giving the mineral position of India?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: I shall bear this suggestion in mind.

APPEALS FROM THE HIGH COURTS IN INDIA.

4. Shri R. R. Diwakar: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Law be pleased to state whether appeals from the High Courts in India still lie to His Majesty in Council?

(b) If the answer to part (a) above be in the affirmative, are they governed by the same laws and regulations and rules as before?

(c) If the answer to part (a) above be in the negative, what is the forum to which appeals are to be preferred from the decisions of the High Courts in different provinces?

(d) Are the appeals now pending before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council to be heard and disposed of by them?

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: (a) Yes.

(b) Yes.

(c) Does not arise.

(d) Yes, unless a provision to the contrary is made in the new Constitution.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: What sort of Court do the present Government propose to set up for appeals from the High Court?

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: That is not a matter for the Government to decide but for the Constituent Assembly.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: Is the Honourable the Law Member aware that in the new set up under the present Government of India Act and the Dominion Independence Act that with regard to appeals to the Privy Council the jurisdiction of the Privy Council may be abolished and vested in the Supreme Court?

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: I do not know if the Government can take a decision when the Constituent Assembly is sitting for the purpose of defining the Constitution.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: Did not the previous Law Member want to bring about a resolution to take action under Section 299 and other sections of the Government of India Act to avoid appeals going to the Privy Council in certain matters?

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: I do not know if that position remains as it was. I admit that the Law Member then was proposing action as referred to by my Honourable friend but there was nothing in contemplation with reference to the making of the new Constitution.

Mr. Speaker: Order, order. Will the Honourable Member, Mr. Ayyangar, ask for the information? This seems to be going into an argument.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: I did ask for the information. But the Honourable Member does not appear to know what has gone on before!

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: I said I am aware of it!

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: Does the Honourable Member propose to take action under the present Government of India Act?

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: I do not think such an action can be taken when we know that within a few months the new Constitution will be framed.

Shri K. Santhanam: Is the Honourable Member aware that if the establishment of a Supreme Court is delayed till the new Constituent there will be great transitional difficulties when the Constitution comes into force?

Mr. Speaker: Order, order. It is a question of opinion.

JURISDICTION OF THE JUDICIAL COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL TO DECIDE PENDING APPEALS.

5. Shri R. R. Diwakar: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Law be pleased to state whether it is a fact that the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council will have jurisdiction to entertain, hear and finally decide the appeals now pending before them and those that will be filed hereafter, so long as no changes are made in the existing enactments like the Civil Procedure Code?

(b) What is going to be the future policy of the Dominion Government with regard to the Privy Council?

(c) Do Government propose to consider the advisability of the early establishment of a Supreme Court with the jurisdiction of the Privy Council?

(d) If so, what is the approximate time required for the establishment of such a Court?

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: (a) Yes.

(b) The future policy of Government in regard to Privy Council appeals will naturally be in accordance with the decision of the Constituent Assembly as incorporated in the new Constitution.

(c) No; not until the new Constitution is brought into force.

(d) It is not possible to give an estimate at present.

Seth Govinddas: May I know if the Constituent Assembly decides that no appeals should be made to the Privy Council, what is going to happen to the cases which have already been sent to the Privy Council before that decision is reached?

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: I am sure the Constitution Assembly will make appropriate provision to cover such cases when coming to its decision.

DETAILS re LABOUR ORGANISATIONS IN THE INDIAN UNION.

6. Shri S. Nagappa: Will the Honourable Minister of Labour be pleased to state:

(a) the number of labour organisations in the Indian Union province-wise;

(b) the office-bearers of the organisations;

(c) the nature of labour; and

(d) the nature of protection given by Government to the labourers?

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: (a) I lay on the table a Statement (No. I) giving information, as far as available, regarding the number of trade unions registered under the Indian Trade Unions Act, 1926.

(b) The information asked for is not available.

(c) It is not understood what the Honourable Member means by 'nature of labour' but if he desires information regarding trade unions classified according to industry, the same has been furnished in the Statement (No. II) laid on the table.

(d) This can hardly be dealt with effectively in the form of a question and answer. The Honourable Member might, however, refer to the various Central and Provincial Acts which provide protection for workers in different ways. Many aspects of labour, as the Honourable Member may be aware, fall within the Provincial sphere.

Shri H. J. Khandekar: Does the Government know that the Scheduled Caste labourers in the Bombay Presidency are not allowed to work in the weaving department of textile mills?

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: I do not think that arises.

Mr. Speaker: Order, order. It is more or less a question which can be raised in the Bombay Assembly.

Shri H. J. Khandekar: It is a question relating to a department of the Government of India.

Mr. Speaker: But it is a question that should first be raised with the Bombay Government.

Shri S. Nagappa: Arising out of the answer to clause (c) of the question, when I referred to the nature of labour I meant both industrial as well as agricultural labour. I would like to know from the Honourable Minister what steps have been taken by the Government of India to relieve the troubles of agricultural labour?

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: The answer is there, already. If I may be permitted to deal in detail, I may inform the House and the Honourable Member that agricultural labour is also covered under the Trade Union Act. Agricultural labourers may organise and form their own trade unions under the Trade Unions Act. I am aware that the condition of the agricultural labourer is far from satisfactory and I may inform my Honourable friend that Government is not ignoring their problem. An enquiry is proposed and a questionnaire has already been sent to the Provincial Governments inviting their suggestions for necessary additions and amendments in it and as soon as their suggestions are received a pilot enquiry will be instituted.

Shri S. Nagappa: May I know if the Honourable Minister is aware that Provincial Governments have been taking shelter under the plea that the Central Government is preparing some legislation in order to relieve the distress of the agricultural labourers? If the Central Government is taking any steps in this direction, may I know at what stage such legislation is?

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: I may inform my honourable friend that soon after this question a question on that subject is coming up and if my friend will wait till then, he will have ample opportunity to know more on the matter.

LEGISLATION FOR PROVIDING AMENITIES TO LABOUR

7. Shri S. Nagappa: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Labour be pleased to state whether there is any scheme or proposal to bring in legislation (i) to redeem the debts of labourers; (ii) to form Wage Finding Boards in the case of agricultural labourers; and (iii) to insure the lives of both agricultural and industrial labourers and to provide old age pensions?

(b) If so, when will these measures be introduced?

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: (a) (i) No.

(ii) I am not clear whether the Honourable Member is referring to the establishment of Wage Boards. If so, I would refer the Honourable Member to the Minimum Wages Bill, now before the House, which provides for the constitution of Wage Boards and the statutory fixation of minimum wages for workers in agricultural employments.

(iii) There are provident fund schemes in operation in individual industrial concerns. Recently, as a result of the recommendations made by the Coal Conciliation Board, a decision has been taken to institute provident funds for the benefit of all workers in the coal mining industry. The question of instituting similar schemes for other industrial workers and of organising life insurance schemes for the benefit of workers is under my consideration.

(b) Answers to (a) cover the point.

Shri S. Nagappa: Arising out of the answer to part (i) of the question that no legislation is contemplated by the Central Government to redeem the debts of the labourers, may I know whether the Government is aware that especially agricultural labourers are not able to clear their debts in spite of their serving their creditors throughout their lives? Will the Honourable Minister please state what steps the Government is proposing to take in order to redeem them from their debts?

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: I may inform the Honourable Member that some of the Provincial Governments have already been taking the necessary steps in this direction. Some provinces have got debt redemption acts. If necessary, provincial governments should be induced to take further action in the matter.

Shri S. Nagappa: With reference to part (ii) of the question regarding Wage Boards, may I know whether in the fixation of wages the area or locality where the present wages are prevailing will be taken into consideration or will they make it uniform throughout, without taking local conditions into consideration?

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: I think this question could be more appropriately raised when the Minimum Wages Bill comes up for consideration.

Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena: With reference to part (ii) of the question, may I know whether the minimum wages will be fixed for agricultural labourers in different areas?

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: I have already informed the House that agricultural labour will be covered under the Minimum Wages Bill. As regards the details the Honourable Member will have the opportunity of making suggestions, when the Bill comes up for consideration in the House.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Is it not a fact that none of the provincial debt relief acts concerns itself with the indebtedness of agricultural workers and there is a case for at least relief to the agricultural workers from the burden of their inherited debts?

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: There is a necessity for that but the provincial assembly will be a better forum for that purpose than this House.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: Can the Honourable Minister give an idea to the House as to the volume or size of the indebtedness of agricultural labourers? Have the Government any idea?

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: It is very difficult to give an answer.

NUMBER OF CASES TRIED BY THE FEDERAL COURT AND PRIVY COUNCIL.

8. Shri S. Nagappa: Will the Honourable Minister of Law be pleased to state:

(a) the total number of cases tried by the Federal Court during the last three years—year wise; and

(b) the total number of cases that have gone to the Privy Council?

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: (a) The total number of cases heard by the Federal Court during the three years 1944, 1945 and 1946 was 34, 16 and 2 respectively.

(b) The total number of Indian appeals filed in the Privy Council during the same three years was 58, 69 and 61 respectively.

Shri B. M. Gupte: May I know how many cases of appeals were reserved by the Privy Council?

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: That does not arise.

Shri Biswanath Das: In view of the fact that none of the Commonwealth countries are allowing their litigant public to prefer appeals to the Privy Council will the Honourable Minister please state whether this Government is thinking of making any interim arrangement between the decision of the Constituent Assembly on this question and the present day?

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: I do not quite follow my Honourable friend's question but I can tell him that the Government is examining the matter and if they find it feasible they may take interim action.

Shri Biswanath Das: May I know what is the specific question that is being examined? My question is very clear and specific. What I said was that no Commonwealth country is allowing its litigant public to prefer appeals to the Privy Council. In view of the fact that India is one of the Commonwealth countries, will the Government please consider the question or have they considered this aspect of the question of making any interim arrangement between the decision of the Constituent Assembly and the present day?

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: I said that the Government is considering the matter and before any action could be taken Government have to see that the Federal Court becomes a Supreme Court and has got the full complement of judges to discharge the functions that will devolve on them if they were to discharge the functions of the Privy Council.

Mr. B. Pocker Sahib Bahadur: Is the Honourable Minister aware that the previous government was contemplating the question of providing appeals to the Federal Court, according to the option of the party, in addition to appeals lying to the Privy Council, in view of the fact that the Federal Court judges had not sufficient work to do and this measure could afford to facilitate the litigant public to pursue their appeals from the high courts?

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: The whole question is being considered.

MIGRATION BETWEEN INDIA AND PAKISTAN.

9. Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: Will the Honourable Minister of Relief and Rehabilitation please state:

(a) the total number of non-Muslim population in West Punjab as at present and also the total number of Muslim population in East Punjab;

(b) how many non-Muslims there are still in West Punjab who are waiting for migration to East Punjab and vice versa;

(c) the population of non-Muslims in the North West Frontier Province as at present and how many of them still require to be migrated from this Province;

(d) the approximate population of non-Muslims in Baluchistan and how many of them still remain to be migrated from that province; and

(e) the number of non-Muslims evacuated from Sind between 1st September upto date?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: (a) According to the 1941 census there were 36 lakhs of Non-Muslims in the West Punjab and 53 lakhs of Muslims in East Punjab including states.

(b) The number of Non-Muslims left in West Punjab Refugee camps was 9,76,356 on the 11th November 1947. There are also scattered groups of Non-Muslims whose exact number are not known. Muslims left in the East Punjab on the same date were 10,70,583 according to the figures supplied by the Military Evacuation Organization.

(c) According to the 1941 census there were 2.88 lakhs Non-Muslims in N.-W.F.P. and about 20,000 in tribal areas. On 1st November, the number of Non-Muslims in N.-W.F.P. and the tribal areas was 48,500. Reports suggest that all require to be evacuated to the Indian Union.

(d) The approximate population of Non-Muslims in Baluchistan in 1941 was 66,000. The number of Non-Muslims still to be evacuated is not definitely known.

(e) About two lakhs and forty thousand Non-Muslims were evacuated from Sind by sea and Rail upto the 6th November, 1947.

Seth Govinddas: May I know by what date the Government think the evacuation scheme will be completed?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: We very much hope that the process will be completed, in any case, by the middle of December.

Seth Govinddas: Have Government made an estimate about the cost of this evacuation?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: So far as any accurate estimate is concerned, it is not available. This point has been raised in another question and I was, hoping to be able to answer that.

An Honourable Member: Is it the intention to compulsorily evacuate the Muslims from East Punjab to West Punjab?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: No, Sir. This question arises with reference to the next question where I am expected to make a statement in this matter.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Will Government be able to say how many non-Muslims have been evacuated from Baluchistan, because they say that they do not know how many are there?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: Baluchistan evacuation is proceeding by air mostly, and we have certain information as regards the people who have come away. But having regard to the difficulty of communication there, it is rather difficult at the moment to make any definite estimate. But we are trying our best to see that everyone who is desirous of being evacuated is evacuated.

Shri Rameshwar Prasad Sinha: May I know whether adequate arrangements have been made by the Government for the safety of the lives and properties of such of the non-Muslims as have still to be evacuated from the Pakistan Dominion?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: I have already covered it partly in reply to part (c) of question No. 1, because that question covers the case of all evacuees from Pakistan. The question whether those who are still to be evacuated stand in a better position than those who have already been evacuated, with reference to the property owned by them, is rather difficult to answer because theoretically they may be in a position while there to dispose of their property. But I do not know whether in practice they are in a position either to dispose of all their property or make any special arrangements for the protection of their interests.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Are we to understand that poor people are also being given a chance of being evacuated from Pakistan by air, free of cost?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: In exceptional cases, they are. But in the beginning the people evacuated by air were those who could pay for the passage. So long as we could get full loads of that type of persons, we could only make an exception in favour of people who needed special attention due to their ill-health, old age and so on.

Shri Ajit Prasad Jain: What is the number of Non-Muslims still awaiting evacuation from Sind?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: I do not know what the Honourable Member means, because so far as Sind is concerned it is not our information that every non-Muslim is desirous or determined to get evacuated. I can give him the census figure of Sind of the non-Muslim population which is 12.65 lakhs according to the Census of 1941. The number of persons evacuated from Sind so far has been 2,40,000. I do not know whether it will be safe to assume that the rest, namely over 10 lakhs of non-Muslims in Sind, are all anxious to be evacuated.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta: May I know the number of persons who have been evacuated from Delhi?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: I am afraid I have not got the figures of Delhi in particular.

Dr. Bakshi Tek Chand: Arising out of the answer of the Honourable Minister, may I ask if the figures given by the Honourable Minister include the number of non-Muslims who have been evacuated, or are awaiting evacuation, from Bahawalpur State?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: As far as I can see, this question has nothing to do with Bahawalpur State.

Mr. B. Paker Sahib Bahadur: May I know the policy of the Government as regards this evacuation? Is it to encourage the evacuation of non-Muslims from Pakistan to Hindustan and to encourage the evacuation of Muslims from Hindustan to Pakistan, or is it their policy to discourage both these kinds of evacuation and to ask people to stick to their homes?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: This issue has been specifically raised in question No. 11. But if the House so desires, I am prepared to state in substance the answer which I was proposing to give to that question.

Mr. Speaker: I would prefer the answer to go in at this stage because there are only five minutes left in question hour and thereafter no supplementary questions can be put. The Honourable Minister may give the answer now.

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: The policy of Government in this matter has been stated more than once. On the 30th August 1947 this was the declaration that was made by the Government of India in agreement with the Government of Pakistan:

"Whereas they will do everything possible to facilitate the movement of those refugees who have decided to move from one side of the boundary to the other, they wish to appeal to the minorities in their areas not to move except under government auspices and proper guards."

Then, later, on the 3rd September, as a result of an inter-Dominion conference, a statement was issued from which I would like to read out an extract:

"The immediate task to which the Governments must devote all their resources and energy is to give protection to all refugees and evacuees in both West and East Punjab and to get safely across the border all those who desire to cross over from West to East Punjab or from East to West Punjab."

Again, as a result of an inter-Dominion conference held on the 19th and 20th September, the following declaration was made on behalf of both the Governments:

"The situation in the Punjab has developed in such a way that mass movement of Muslims from East Punjab and of non-Muslims from West Punjab is taking place. The Governments of India and of Pakistan have therefore decided that the movement of these people from East to West Punjab and vice versa is to have first priority. They have agreed to co-operate with each other in this matter to the fullest extent and to take all steps to ensure that the movements in both directions are completed with the greatest possible speed and with the greatest measure of security."

Shri Raj Krishna Bose: May I know whether anything was done to evacuate quickly the Harijans of Sind who sent frantic appeals to Government?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: This matter has been engaging our attention and recently it has been decided to appoint special officers from among the Harijans to look after their interests in regard to their evacuation as also in regard to their resettlement.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: May I know in what part of Baluchistan the non-Muslims are stranded, by which it is not possible for the Government to bring them either by rail or by road transport?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: I would like to have notice of that question as it will require examination.

An Honourable Member: What is the position in respect of non-Muslims in Bahawalpur State which has acceded to Pakistan?

Mr. Speaker: It does not arise. This question refers to West Punjab, North West Frontier Province, Baluchistan and Sind.

Shri R. V. Dhulekar: May I know why preference was given for evacuation by air for those persons who paid the fares and why urgency of the persons desiring to be evacuated was not taken into consideration and why they were not also evacuated by air free of cost?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: Air evacuation, although it is a very expensive process, is not very helpful so far as numbers are concerned. Therefore it was thought that when alternative methods of evacuation were being employed, there was no justification in the very first instance for providing absolutely free transport by air for all without any discrimination.

(b) WRITTEN ANSWERS.

EXPENDITURE ON MIGRATION BETWEEN INDIA AND PAKISTAN.

10. Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: Will the Honourable Minister of Relief and Rehabilitation please state the total expenditure incurred by the Government of India on account of migration of population from the province of one Dominion to the province of another Dominion and also maintenance of refugees camps in the Dominion of India, upto the middle of October 1947?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: The precise figures are not available, but it is estimated that the Government of India had incurred a liability of about five crores by the middle of October 1947.

POLICY OF GOVERNMENT OF INDIA re MIGRATION OF POPULATION

11. Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Relief and Rehabilitation please state what is the policy of the Government of India as regards migration of people from the province of one Dominion to the province of another Dominion?

(b) Is it left to each province to give relief to the immigrants?

(c) Have the Government of India contributed any amount for their maintenance?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: (a) The policy of Government of India is to discourage mass migration from one Province to another. In the case of Punjab, however, this Government in agreement with the Government of Pakistan have decided that the East and the West Punjab Governments will give the maximum assistance towards the evacuation of refugees from one province to the other and will make all necessary arrangements for refugees prior to evacuation. In all cases, however, individuals wishing to migrate are allowed to do so.

(b) Initially each province is meeting the expenditure on the migrants but most of these provinces have come to Government of India for assistance.

(c) Yes. The Kurukshetra Camp is being run directly by this Government, the East Punjab Government has also been given assurance of full support. All expenditure on evacuation is falling on this Government and the extent of this expenditure is likely to be considerable.

Honourable Member is also referred to my answer to starred question No. 10.

EXPENDITURE ON REFUGEE CAMPS AND NUMBER OF PERSONS AWAITING TRANSFER TO INDIA

12. *Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: Will the Honourable Minister of Relief and Rehabilitation please state:

(a) the amount spent over the refugees and their camps upto the end of October, 1947 by the Government of India;

(b) the amount allotted to provincial Governments and the name of such Governments for the purpose of refugees;

(c) the total number of refugees at the end of September, 1947 in Delhi;

(d) how many persons still remain within the Pakistan Government area who want to be transferred to the Indian Area;

(e) what arrangements are being made to complete this transfer; and

(f) how many persons still remain in the Indian area to be transferred to the Pakistan area?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: (a) It is not possible to estimate at this stage the amount spent by the Government of India on refugees and camps. It will be some time before even approximate figures become available. The magnitude of the task may be indicated by the fact that evacuation has been carried out by air, by sea, by rail, by foot convoy through various agencies at various places. Relief supplies of food, medicines, of warm clothing, of tents and numerous other items have been rushed by different Ministers to different points. So far as camps are concerned they have been administered by Provincial Governments prominently in East Punjab and United Provinces. In Delhi relief camps were administered under the control of the Delhi Emergency Committee. The big relief camp at Kurukshetra became the direct responsibility of the Central Government.

(b) The following allotments have so far been made to Provincial Governments: East Punjab—6½ lakhs; Delhi—7 lakhs.

For further information, the Honorable Member is referred to my answer to his question No. 10.

(c) The total number of Non-Muslim refugees in Delhi at the end of September was about twelve thousand in the refugee camps and approximately one and a half lakhs living with their friends and relations.

(d) The Honourable Member is referred to my answer to his question No. 9 (b) and (c). It is not possible to estimate the number of persons who still remain in the other parts of the Pakistan Government area who desire to be transferred to the Indian area.

(e) Co-ordination has been established between the Military organisations of the Indian and Pakistan Governments; joint committee has been formed for laying down train movements. Arrangements have been made for the proper guarding of refugee camps pending their movements and also of trains. Evacuation by air is also in swing; in addition to the planes owned by Indian Companies, a fleet of about 20 planes have been chartered from the B. O. A. C. Evacuation by sea is taking place from Sind.

(f) The Honourable Member is referred to my answer to his question No. 9 (b). It is not possible to give an estimate of the number of Muslims in other parts of the Indian Union who desired to be transferred to the Pakistan Government area.

PROVISION OF ACCOMMODATION TO THE EMPLOYEES OF GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

13. *Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Works, Mines and Power please state the total number of employees in the subordinate and inferior grade service of the Government of India in Delhi, who have not been provided with Government accommodation?

(b) Have Government any programme for providing houses to them? If so, within what period will they be completed?

(c) What provision for accommodation has been made for the Government of India employees who opted out from Pakistan and have joined their service in New Delhi?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: (a) The total number of employees in the subordinate and inferior services of the Government of India in Delhi who have no Government accommodation to live in, are 13,375 and 12,270 respectively.

(b) The Government of India have the following building programmes on hand with a view to relieving the acute housing shortage in Delhi:

Construction of 200 officers' flats, 1,000 clerks' quarters and 1,000 peons' quarters in New Delhi and 1,000 clerks' and 250 peons' quarters in Old Delhi.

Provided building materials are available, it is expected that the building should be completed within a year's time. However, the present supply position is extremely acute and uncertain.

(c) The following arrangements have been made for the accommodation of repatriated officials of the Government of India.

All accommodation classed as 'Special Accommodation' is being allotted exclusively to married officers drawing less than Rs. 600 p.m. while higher officers are accommodated in Constitution House and York Hotel. For single officers accommodation is provided in the Kitchner Road and Lodi Road Hostels. So far 1,177 quarters have been allotted to these repatriated staff and there are still 1,125 persons on the waiting list in addition to 675 employees of the Railway and Posts and Telegraphs Departments who are not eligible for accommodation in the General Pool. Attempts are made by the Custodian of Evacuees property to meet their needs on a priority basis as far as possible.

CONSTRUCTION OF DAMS ACROSS LAXMANATERTHA AND HARANGI RIVERS.

14. *Mr. C. M. Poonacha: Will the Honourable Minister of Works, Mines and Power be pleased to state:

(a) whether any schemes have been drawn up by the Coorg Administration to construct dams across the rivers Laxmanaterttha and Harangi;

(b) if so, whether these schemes have been approved by the Government of India;

(c) whether Mysore State Government have raised any objections to the construction of these dams;

(d) whether Coorg Administration has referred the matter to the Government of India for necessary action: if so when; and

(e) what action Government have taken in the matter?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: (a) Yes. The scheme with regard to the Harangi river was prepared by the Coorg Administration in 1907 and revised in 1910, but the papers are apparently not available in the records of the Coorg Administration. The scheme in respect of Laxmanatœrtha has been prepared in 1941. A fresh scheme will have to be prepared for the Harangi project.

(b) Yes.

(c) The Honourable Member is referred to the reply to part (b) of the starred question No. 853 given on 11 March, 1947 at the previous session of the Legislative Assembly.

(d) Not so far.

(e) The Chief Commissioner of Coorg, who was asked to furnish certain details for the purpose of addressing the Government of Mysore to withdraw their objections to the Laxmanatœrtha Project, gave a reply in April 1947 which was referred to the Central Waterways Irrigation and Navigation Commission. The Commission deputed two of their officers to visit the dam site and to collect further data. They have just returned from Coorg and their report is under consideration by Central Waterways Irrigation and Navigation Commission.

IMPORT OF MINERAL OIL

15. *Shri Debi Prosad Khaitan: Will the Honourable Minister of Works, Mines and Power be pleased to state:

(a) how much mineral oil is imported into India and how much of it is refined oil and how much raw oil;

(b) the number of refineries in India and the quantity refined per year; and

(c) if Government put up their own refineries to refine raw oil, how much saving can be made in terms of money on the refined oil imported and how would that saving affect our scarcity of Dollar and Sterling Exchange?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: (a) 2,549,856 tons of refined mineral oil was imported into India and Pakistan combined, during the year 1946. These are the latest figures available. No raw (crude) oil was imported. Figures for India alone are not available.

(b) There is only one refinery in India at Digboi in Assam and the quantity of refined oil produced in that refinery during 1946 was 183,998 tons.

(c) Government have been for some time considering the question of setting up refineries in this country with the object of manufacturing refined products from imported crude oil, and estimates of the costs involved are being worked out in consultation with the Oil Companies. Until such estimates are ready it is not possible to state, at this stage, what saving, if any, could be effected in foreign exchange, or, in the value of refined products as compared with the prices being paid for the imported oil.

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: (a) Yes.

(c) Government have no knowledge of the alleged talks in high Pakistan circles of fortifying their borders. As regards (b), the Government of India fully explained their point of view to His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom to whom the Pakistan proposal had been addressed.

(d) Since the correspondence which originated with the Pakistan Government was addressed to the United Kingdom Government, it is for the latter Government to decide whether it should be published and, if so, when.

re PAKISTAN GOVERNMENT'S CIRCULAR TO MUSLIM OFFICERS IN INDIA

17. *Shri Ram Chandra Gupta: (a) Will the Honourable the Prime Minister please state whether the attention of Government has been drawn to the news item published in the Hindustan Times, Delhi, dated the 20th September, 1947, that the Pakistan Government has sent a Circular letter to the Muslim Officers holding key-posts in the Dominion of India, asking them to stick to their posts in order to serve the cause of Pakistan?

(b) If so, do Government propose to urge on the Pakistan Government the necessity for issuing daily reports regarding communal situation?

(c) Do Government propose to devise their own agency for this purpose?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: (a) Yes, but there has been an improvement during recent weeks.

(b) It was agreed at a Conference between the two Dominion Governments that both the East and West Punjab Governments should issue daily reports about the situation in their areas. This is at present being done.

(c) There is a Deputy High Commissioner for India at Lahore and District Liaison Officers under him who also collect factual information regarding West Punjab.

19. *Shri Ram Chandra Gupta: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Relief and Rehabilitation please state what is the total number of non-Muslim refugees in India from the West Punjab, North West Frontier Province, Baluchistan and Sindh?

84 CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY OF INDIA (LEGISLATIVE) [18TH Nov. 1947]

(b) How many non-Muslims are still awaiting departure for India from the aforesaid provinces?

(c) How many non-Muslims were killed while in refugee camps or in transit from West Punjab to India?

(d) How many non-Muslims were killed in West Punjab from the 1st August, 1947 till the 30th September, 1947, and from the 1st October, 1947 to the 15th October, 1947?

(e) How many non-Muslim girls and ladies were kidnapped and how many of them have not yet been restored to their relations during the recent riots?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: (a) Total number of Non-Muslims evacuated by the Military Evacuation Organization from West Punjab and N.-W. F. P. between 4th September, 1947 to 11th November, 1947 is 20,19,126. About 2,40,000 Non-Muslims have been evacuated from Sind by sea and rail. Rough estimate of migration from Bhawalpur is 80,000. No separate figures are available for Baluchistan. The figures of evacuees who arrived in the territories of the Indian Union prior to the setting up of the Military Evacuation Organisation cannot be accurately estimated. A very rough estimate would suggest that the number was about thirteen lacs.

(b) The Honourable Member is referred to my answer to clause (d) of question No. 12.

(c) Reliable figures are not yet available.

(d) No figures on which any reliance can be placed are available.

(e) No definite figure is yet available.

LOSS BY NON-MUSLIMS IN PAKISTAN FROM ARSON AND SEIZURE OF PROPERTY.

20. *Shri Ram Chandra Gupta: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Relief and Rehabilitation please state how many houses and other buildings belonging to the non-Muslims in Pakistan were burnt during the recent riots?

(b) What is the total amount of loss of property of non-Muslims in the West Punjab?

(c) Is it a fact that the non-Muslims migrating from the West Punjab, North West Frontier Province, Baluchistan and Sindh are not allowed to bring their movables to India? If so, what action do Government propose to take in this connection to protect the rights of these persons?

(d) How many buildings belonging to the non-Muslims in West Punjab have been put in possession of Muslims in Lahore and other district cities?

(e) What action do Government propose to take to get the said properties returned to the non-Muslims to whom they belong?

(f) Is it a fact that non-Muslims who own factories, workshops, mills, etc., in West Punjab are not allowed to remove the machinery and other materials to India? If so, what action do Government propose to take in the matter?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: (a) No definite figures are yet available.

(b) Property falls in several categories. But broadly speaking it may be divided into Urban and Rural and secondly Movable and Immovable. So far as immoveable property is concerned, it is recorded in Revenue papers or in cadastral surveys. Property belongs to evacuees who are either in East Punjab or in Delhi. In Delhi the Central Government has appointed a Registrar of Claims whose jurisdiction is so far as the registration of claims of Non-Muslim refugees is concerned is not confined to persons now residing in Delhi (Delhi Province). A suggestion was made some time ago to the Governments of East Punjab, the United Provinces and Bombay to set up similar machinery for registration of claims. Governments of East Punjab and United Provinces have appointed a Registrar of Claims but no information is available about Bombay. Until comprehensive registration is completed it is not possible to give even a rough estimate of immovable property of evacuees in Pakistan.

So far as movable property is concerned there are again several categories. There is stock-in-trade of merchants in shops. In these cases no inventory is available. The Custodian of Property in West Punjab was auctioning this property from time to time. Representations made by the Government of India led to suspensions of auctions; but it is understood that property is now being disposed of by tender. A suggestion that a reserve price be put on these stocks on the basis of invoices to be furnished by owners or on the basis of appraisal by assessors was not accepted by the Government of West Punjab. Much movable property is in vaults of banks and safe deposits. No inventory is available in such cases. There are stocks of cotton and grain hypothecated with banks. Again no inventory is made in such cases.

So far as personal property is concerned evacuees in a large number of cases have locked up their premises and come away. It is not possible for Government to compile data and attempt a valuation unless this item is also included in the Claim forms. In some cases this information is given but not generally.

(c) Yes. Government have protested to the Government of Pakistan in some cases. The situation has improved, though complaints regarding searches still continue.

(d) Government have no information.

(f) This is correct. Government is negotiating with the Pakistan Dominion Government in this matter.

OBSERVATION BY INDIA'S HIGH COMMISSIONER IN CANADA Re INDIA REMAINING IN THE BRITISH COMMONWEALTH.

21. *Shri Dip Narayan Sinha: Will the Honourable the Prime Minister be pleased to state:

(a) whether the attention of Government has been drawn to a Press Report appearing in the Hindustan Times of the 3rd October, 1947, on page 4 at the foot of column 3, in which Mr. H. S. Malik, India's High Commissioner in Canada is reported to have observed that "India . . . would remain in British Commonwealth"; and

(b) whether it is a fact that the High Commissioner represented the views of the Government of India in making the above observation?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: (a) Yes. Mr. Malik was addressing the Canadian Club on the occasion of his first public appearance in Ottawa, and what he actually stated was as follows:

"It is a matter of great joy that Britain and India have parted as friends without bitterness. I am sure that our connections will continue to be friendly and goodwill will prevail. I do know that a good many of us hope that conditions in India and other places will make it possible that India may continue to be a member of the Commonwealth of British Nations. * * * One thing is essential. The public mind of India must be convinced that its members will be treated in the same way as other members in all parts of the Commonwealth."

(b) It will be clear from the quotation given in reply to (a) that the High Commissioner was not making a statement of the Government of India's policy.

APPOINTMENT OF INDIA'S HIGH COMMISSIONERS AND AMBASSADORS.

22. *Shri Dip Narayan Sinha: Will the Honourable the Prime Minister be pleased to state :

(a) the names of India's High Commissioners and Ambassadors so far appointed, with the names of countries of their deputation;

(b) the period for which each of the High Commissioners and Ambassadors will serve;

(c) whether it is a fact that India's High Commissioners and Ambassadors have got Indians on their staff; and

(d) whether it is a fact that Government have decided to replace all the non-Indians by Indians on the staff of India's High Commissioners and Ambassadors abroad?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: (a) A statement has been placed on the table of the House.

(b) The normal period of appointment is three years but most of our heads of missions have been appointed for one year in the first instance.

(c) All appointments in the grade of Officers are now held by Indians, except in the Office of the High Commissioner for India in London where some such appointments are still held by non-Indians. This is a legacy, from the past. As these non-Indian officers vacate their posts they will be replaced by Indians.

(d) The accepted policy is that all key positions abroad should be held by Indians. An exception may have to be made in respect of clerical and menial posts owing to the difficulty of finding suitable Indian personnel for such posts, except at disproportionately high cost.

ANTI-INDIAN PROPAGANDA IN BRITISH AND AMERICAN PRESS

45. *Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru: (a) Will the Honourable the Prime Minister be pleased to state whether Government are aware that the reports sent by correspondents of British and American newspapers in India about the Punjab disturbances to England and the Dominions, the United States and China have been one-sided and exaggerated and have tended to create a prejudice against India in these countries?

(b) What steps have been taken by the Indian Embassy in the United States and the Indian High Commissioner in England to counteract this anti-Indian propaganda in these countries?

(c) Have Government impressed on the correspondents concerned the imperative necessity of fairness and accuracy on their part?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: This question is the concern of the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting and will be answered by the Deputy Prime Minister on a day allotted to that Ministry.

APPOINTMENT OF INDIAN AGENTS IN BRITISH COLONIES

46. *Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru: (a) Will the Honourable the Prime Minister be pleased to state whether Government have made any efforts in the course of this year to persuade the British Government to agree to the appointment of Indian Agents in those British Colonies where there is a settled Indian population? If so, what has been their result?

(b) If Government's efforts have been successful, what are the Colonies where Government propose to appoint Indian Agents?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: (a) and (b). At the request of the Government of India, which was repeated this year, His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom have agreed in principle to the appointment of Indian Agents in East Africa, Fiji, Mauritius and the British West Indies subject to agreement being reached about their precise status and functions. Discussion is now in progress between the two Governments on the status and functions of the Agents.

MODIFICATION OF IMMIGRATION BILLS BY GOVERNMENT OF KENYA, UGANDA AND TANGANYIKA

47. *Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru: (a) Will the Honourable the Prime Minister be pleased to state whether the Immigration Bills which the Governments of Kenya, Uganda and Tanganyika proposed to place before their Legislatures last year have been modified in any respect in response to the representation of the Government of India, and if so, in what respect?

(b) Have Government received any representations from the Indian Communities in these Colonies regarding the new Bills? If so, on what points?

(c) What steps have been taken by Government to protect the interests of the Indians concerned?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: (a) Following representations from the Government of India, the 1946 Immigration Bills have been revised, and the new Immigration Bills published in April 1947 contain the following improved features:

(i) The definition of a "prohibited immigrant" has been modified so as not to apply to permanent residents so that a permanent resident as well as a person born in one of the East-African territories will not be liable to deportation.

(ii) A "permanent resident" of the colony will automatically be entitled to an entry permit or entry pass under the revised regulation.

(iii) The holder of a passport containing a certificate of permanent residence issued under authority will automatically be entitled to inter-territorial movement.

(iv) Requirements of capital from immigrants intending to engage in business or trade have been considerably reduced.

(b) Yes. Apart from raising objection to the basic principles of the Bills, representations have been made against the under-mentioned provisions in the Bills.

(i) Arrest without warrant of a person suspected of having contravened the immigration law.

(ii) The requirement of medical examination of immigrants at the will of the Immigration Officers.

(iii) Prohibition of a change of prescribed occupation within five years of entry.

(iv) Failure to provide for the constitution of the prescribed Authority for granting entry permits and of the Appellate Tribunal in the body of the Bills.

(v) Wide rule-making powers left to the local governments.

(c) Government have made suitable representations to His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom.

ESTABLISHMENT OF ADVISORY COMMITTEES OF THE ASSEMBLY

48. *Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru: Will the Honourable the Prime Minister be pleased to state whether Government propose to take steps during this session to establish Advisory Committees of the Assembly similar to those which existed before the 15th August, 1947, to advise them on matters concerning external affairs and the interests of overseas Indians? D

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: It is proposed to establish such Advisory Committees. N 2731 N 47

CONFLICT BETWEEN LANDLORDS AND AGRICULTURAL LABOUR

49. *Shri V. I. Munishwami Pillai: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Labour be pleased to state whether Government are aware that the relationship between landlords and agricultural labour is getting greatly strained due to the present low wages with the result that the sowing and harvesting operations yield smaller output of foodgrains? N 47-1/303

(b) What efforts do Government propose to make in order to create a contented labour?

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: (a) Government are aware that the relationship between landlords and agricultural workers is strained in some parts of the country.

(b) Suitable action is being taken by Provincial Governments to settle the differences between employers and workers. The Minimum Wages Bill, now before the House makes provision for the statutory fixation of minimum wages. Government are also in correspondence with Provincial Governments regarding the institution of an enquiry into the conditions of agricultural labour. It is proposed to start with a pilot enquiry. The object of this and a fuller enquiry that may be planned later is to obtain the data necessary for the formulation of measures for improving the conditions of agricultural workers.

RECRUITMENT OF LABOUR IN THE PLANTATION AREAS

50. *Shri V. I. Munishwami Pillai: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Labour be pleased to state whether Government are aware that a large number of coolies are recruited for labour in the plantation areas in the ghats and mountains for very low wages?

(b) Is it a fact that in some parts of India large number of coolies employed by certain landlords are being sold to other landlords who in turn sell them to owners and managers of plantations in the ghat areas?

(c) If the answer to part (b) above be in the affirmative do Government propose to make enquiries and to abolish such system?

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: (a) The question of wages for plantation workers was considered at the first meeting of the Plantation Labour Conference held in January last. Employers in Assam and Bengal then agreed to the payment of an additional dearness allowance. It was agreed at the Conference that a Family Budget Enquiry should be conducted to collect the data for fixing fair wages. The report embodying the results of the enquiry in Assam and Bengal is under print. The report in respect of the South Indian plantations is expected to be completed shortly. The second meeting of the Plantation Labour Conference will be held early next year and one of the important subjects that will come up for consideration at the meeting will relate to the fixation of fair wages.

(b) whether steps have been taken to implement even that offer allowing Indians in French Indo-China to remit upto Rs. 200 per mensem per recipient in India;

(c) whether the Debt Settlement Agreement which was hoped to be completed soon, has been reached, if not, whether the Government of India propose to move in the matter and instruct the Vice Consul at Saigon to conclude the Debt Settlement and to remove the blockade and facilitate free remittances to India;

(d) whether the Government of India propose to consider the advisability of arranging to distribute the sum of Rs. 45 lakhs of the frozen assets of the French Indo-China Government in India among the Indian Nationals in India proportionate to the amounts to their credit in Indo-China;

(e) whether the Government of India propose to advance to the Indian Nationals a sum of at least Rs. 15 lakhs, as in the case of Burma Evacuees, with a view to relieving the immediate distress of the Indian Nationals struggling in India; and

(f) whether any representations have been made by the Indo-China Association and other bodies regarding this matter and if so, whether any action has been taken thereon, giving relief to the Indian Nationals owning property and funds in Indo-China, either by releasing the frozen assets of Indo-China Government with the Government of India, or by making advances to such persons to be recouped out of their holdings in Indo-China, through the Agent of the Indian Government there?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: (a) and (b). The French Government have agreed to allow remittances by Indians in Indo-China subject to a maximum of Rs. 200 per head, and an overall limit of Rs. 50,000 per mensem. They have however stipulated that these arrangements will take effect only after the Debt Settlement Agreement is signed.

(c) Negotiations for the conclusion of a Debt Settlement Agreement are still in progress between the Government of India in the Ministry of Commerce and the French representatives in India. This matter has to be settled in India and not by the Indian Consul at Saigon. I understand that only one point now remains for settlement and it is hoped that the Debt Settlement Agreement will be signed in the near future.

(d) No, Sir. The course suggested by the Honourable Member would amount to the forfeiture of the French assets in India, which would not be justified.

(e) The Evacuee Relief Scheme is in process of being wound up and it applied in any case only to persons who were forced to flee from enemy occupied territories during the war. So far as persons dependent on remittances from Indo-China are concerned, the Government of India will be prepared to consider the grant of an advance in rupees, against a corresponding deposit in piastres in Indo-China, in any case of proved hardship. Each case will be considered on its merits and it is not possible to say what the amount involved would be.

(f) The Government of India have received representations from various individuals as well as organisations. As to the action possible on these representations, I would refer the Honourable Member to the replies I have just given.

DEBT SETTLEMENT ARRANGEMENT WITH FRENCH GOVERNMENT OF INDO-CHINA.

56. *Shri V. N. Pillai: Will the Honourable Minister of Commerce be pleased to state:

(a) the circumstances under which the debt settlement arrangement with the French Government of Indo-China have been delayed;

(b) whether it is a fact that in spite of representations made by various associations and interests to remove the ban of the free flow of funds into India, no action has yet been taken and if so, the reasons for the delay; and

(c) whether any suggestions have been made by the President of the Indo-China Association for solution of this problem of blocked up funds and if so, what action is proposed to be taken thereon and when?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: (a) The Government of India regret that in spite of the anxiety of both the Government of India as well as the French Government to conclude a Debt Settlement Agreement with the least possible delay, it has not been possible to sign an agreement owing to differences of opinion between the two Governments on certain points. Most of the difficulties have now been resolved and there is only one point outstanding on which a reply from Paris is awaited.

(b) The ban referred to in the question has not been imposed by the Government of India but by the French Government. Government of India have made strong representations to the French Government, and a provisional agreement has now been reached on the question of remittances. As soon as the Debt Settlement Agreement has been signed, the arrangement will come into effect.

(c) Some suggestions were made but Government of India are anxious not to take any steps without the agreement of the French Government. They are, however, making every effort to settle this matter satisfactorily with all possible speed.

AGREEMENT BETWEEN PRIME MINISTERS OF INDIA AND PAKISTAN re DISCONTINUANCE OF SEARCHES OF REFUGEES.

57. *Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Relief and Rehabilitation be pleased to state whether it is a fact that an agreement was arrived at between the Prime Ministers of India and Pakistan on the 14th September that the searches of the refugees should be discontinued?

(b) Is it a fact that the Government of India have discontinued the searches but not the Government of Pakistan?

(c) What is the reason given by the Government of Pakistan for continuing the searches?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: (a) Yes. In terms of a Press Communique issued from Government House Lahore on 3rd September 1947, after a meeting between the Prime Minister of India and the Prime Minister of Pakistan, the Provincial Governments of East Punjab and West Punjab agreed that evacuees will be permitted to take away at their discretion and within the limits of transport available moveable property, including licensed weapons, food, domestic animals, cars and vehicles which are not licensed for public use. There has been no explicit agreement in regard to N.-W. F. P. and Sind, but the Prime Minister Pakistan has on more than one occasion accepted the position that the agreement pertaining to West and East Punjab should apply to N.-W. F. P. and Sind also.

(b) Government of India have adhered to the agreement. But numerous cases have come to notice in which searches have continued in some parts of the Dominion of Pakistan.

(b) Government are not aware of the practice referred to by the Honourable Member.

(c) Does not arise.

INDIAN MILITARY MISSION IN GERMANY

51. Shrimati D. Velayudhan: (a) Will the Honourable the Prime Minister be pleased to state whether Government have received any complaint regarding the Indian Military Mission in Germany?

(b) Who was in charge of the Military Mission and when was it formed?

(c) Had Government given any instructions regarding the duties and responsibilities of the Mission?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: (a) I would invite the Honourable Member's attention to the answer given to Mr. G. B. Dani's question No. 718 on 4th March 1947 and to the Press Note dated the 28th February 1947 of which I placed a copy, on the same date, on the table of the House, in connection with my answer.

(b) The Mission began functioning in February 1946. Major General D. Stuart was Chief of the Mission until August the 15th of this year, when he was succeeded by Col. M. S. Wadalia.

(c) Yes.

52. *Shrimati D. Velayudhan: (a) Will the Honourable the Prime Minister be pleased to state whether Government have got out of Germany all the Indians who were imprisoned or put in concentration camps there?

(b) Are Government aware of the whereabouts of one Mr. Nambiar who was kept in German concentration camp?

(c) Has he been released from there?

(d) If so, what steps have Government taken to bring him back to India?

(e) Are Government aware that he had not even enough clothing and that the Military Mission did not care anything about his welfare?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: (a) The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to a press note issued by the Government of India on 28th February 1947, of which I placed a copy on the table of the House on 4th March 1947.

(b) The information of the Government of India is that Mr. Nambiar is in Switzerland.

(c) and (d). Do not arise.

(e) Government have received no complaint to this effect.

RESCUE OF ABDUCTED HINDU AND SIKH WOMEN FROM WEST PUNJAB AND REHABILITATION OF REFUGEES.

53. *Shrimati D. Velayudhan: Will the Honourable Minister of Relief and Rehabilitation be pleased to state:

(a) the measures Government have taken to get back the abducted Hindu or Sikh women in the Punjab;

(b) the number of abducted women till now rescued;

(c) whether Government have any idea of the number of Hindu and Sikh women abducted in West Punjab;

(d) whether Government have any scheme for the rehabilitation of the refugees;

(e) whether Government propose to take any measures to accept them as citizens of the Indian Union if they do not wish to go back to their old homes;

(f) the measures Government have taken to get back the movable property of the evacuees from West Punjab;

(g) the measures Government have taken to protect the landed property of the Hindus and Sikhs left in the West Punjab;

(h) whether they will be given any price for their property left there; and

(i) whether Government have taken any measures to allot them lands for the normal settlement of the refugees wherever lands are available in the Provinces?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: (a) Abducted Hindu and Sikh women in the West Punjab are being recovered through the agency of Military Evacuation Organisation and Liaison Officers, with the help of local authorities.

(b) and (c). Figures are not yet available.

(d) The Honourable member is referred to the answer given by me to clause (e) of Question No. 1 by Shri Biswanath Das.

(e) Yes.

(f), (g) and (h). The Honourable member is referred to the answer given by me to clause (b) of Question No. 20 by Shri Ram Chandra Gupta.

(i) Allotment of land will be done by the Provinces or States where the refugees are to be rehabilitated. The Honourable Member is further referred to the answer given by me to clause (e) of Question No. 1 by Shri Biswanath Das.

ABOLITION OF THE TITLE "HIS EXCELLENCY" USED BY INDIAN GOVERNORS.

54. *Shrimati D. Velayudhan: Will the Honourable the Prime Minister be pleased to state:

(a) whether Government are aware that titles such as "His Excellency" are used by our Indian Governors, and;

(b) whether Government propose to abolish such titles?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: (a) Yes.

(b) Government do not propose to take any action in this matter at present.

REMITTANCES FROM FRENCH INDO-CHINA TO INDIA.

55. Shri V. N. Pillai: Will the Honourable the Prime Minister be pleased to state:

(a) the stage at which the matter of the removal of the ban on remittances from French Indo-China to India, stands at present, subsequent to the interim offer made by the French Government to allow remittances upto Rs. 200 per mensem;

(c) The reason given is that search is needed for unlicensed arms and the ban on export of bulk merchandise and certain specified articles. Searches have been particularly severe in Sind but as a result of representations made by the Government of India the position has improved now. The Government of N.-W. F. P. have issued an Ordinance prohibiting the export of items like electric goods, sewing machines, watches, cycles, typewriters, woollen and silken clothes. Under the pretence of powers conferred by this Ordinance, local officials, in many instances, are carrying out harassing searches. The position regarding searches in West Punjab has also improved.

INDIAN ARMY AND THE INDIAN AIR FORCE (AMENDMENT) BILL [RECONSTRUCTION OF SELECT COMMITTEE]

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh (Minister for Defence): Sir I move:

"That the Select Committee on the Bill further to amend the Indian Army Act, 1911, and the Indian Air Force Act, 1932, for certain purposes and to make certain consequential amendment to the Administrator General's Act, 1913, be reconstituted with the following persons as members thereof, namely, Shri T. T. Krishnamachari, Shri L. Krishnaswami Bharathi, Shri U. Srinivasa Mallayya, Shri K. Santhanam, Shri Brajeshwar Prasad, Dr. V. Subrahmanyam, Shrimati Renuka Ray, Sardar Jogendra Singh, Shri Mohan Lal Saksena, Shri Jainarain Vyas, Col. Shri Maharaj Himmat Singhji, Shri Bikramlal Sondhi, Shri A. P. Pattani, Shri M. S. Aney, Shri Nandkishore Das, Mr. Hussain Imam, Shri S. K. Patil, Shri V. C. Kesava Rao, Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru, and the Mover.

Mr. Speaker: Motion moved:

"That the Select Committee on the Bill further to amend the Indian Army Act, 1911, and the Indian Air Force Act, 1932, for certain purposes and to make certain consequential amendments to the Administrator General's Act, 1913, be reconstituted with the following persons as members thereof, namely, Shri T. T. Krishnamachari, Shri L. Krishnaswami Bharathi, Shri U. Srinivasa Mallayya, Shri K. Santhanam, Shri Brajeshwar Prasad, Dr. V. Subrahmanyam, Shrimati Renuka Ray, Sardar Jogendra Singh, Shri Mohan Lal Saksena, Shri Jainarain Vyas, Col. Shri Maharaj Himmat Singhji, Shri Bikramlal Sondhi, Shri A. P. Pattani, Shri M. S. Aney, Shri Nandkishore Das, Mr. Hussain Imam, Shri S. K. Patil, Shri V. C. Kesava Rao, Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru, and the Mover.

May I know from the Honourable the Mover of the motion the period within which the Select Committee is to report and the quorum?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: If the Select Committee can finish its deliberations during the present session, the intention is to pass the Bill during this session.

Mr. Speaker: Whatever the intention, it has to be made clear in the motion itself, and even now the Honourable Member may add the date and the quorum.

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: I suggest that the quorum may be five, and the Select Committee may be directed to report by the 30th of November.

Mr. Speaker: The Select Committee will report by the 30th of November and the quorum will consist of five.

Shri Biswanath Das (Orissa: General): Sir, reference to a Select Committee means that the House accepts the principles underlying a Bill. The Bill in question has not been discussed on the floor of this House. It may have been discussed previously and the previous legislature may have accepted the principles underlying this Bill. But so far as this Legislature is concerned, it has not been discussed nor has the principle underlying the Bill been accepted. Under these circumstances I raise the point of order namely that the motion made by the Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh is out of order and cannot be referred to a Select Committee without this House going into the principles and accepting those principles and agreeing to a reference to the Select Committee.

Mr. Speaker: It is not possible to agree to the point of order raised. This House has succeeded the previous House. It has taken everything that has come before that House and the stage at which the Bill was, has to be taken as the stage at which it should be taken here. It is provided for by section 30 of the Government of India Act and I do not think the matter may be treated as a de novo subject coming here. It is only a question of reconstitution of the Committee. The principle has been accepted by this House.

Shri Biswanath Das: Am I entitled to make my submission to you in this regard?

Mr. Speaker: No, I have now given a ruling.

The question is:

"That the Select Committee on the Bill further to amend the Indian Army Act, 1911, and the Indian Air Force Act, 1932, for certain purposes and to make certain consequential amendments to the Administrator General's Act, 1913, be reconstituted with the following persons as members thereof, namely, Shri T. T. Krishnamachari, Shri L. Krishnaswami Prasad, Dr. V. Subrahmanyam, Shrimati Renuka Ray, Sardar Jogendra Singh, Shri Mohan Lal Saksena, Shri Jainarain Vyas, Col. Shri Maharaj Himmat Singhji, Shri Bikramlal Sondhi, Shri A. P. Pattani, Shri M. S. Aney, Shri Nandkishore Das, Mr. Hussain Imam, Shri S. K. Patil, Shri V. C. Kesava Rao, Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru, and the Mover, with instructions to report by the 30th November, 1947, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

The motion was adopted.

MINIMUM WAGES BILL

RECONSTITUTION OF SELECT COMMITTEE

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram (Minister for Labour): Sir, I move:

"That the Select Committee on the Bill to provide for fixing minimum wages in certain employments be reconstituted with the following persons as members thereof, namely, Prof. N. G. Ranga, Pandit Balkrishna Sharma, Shri R. R. Diwakar, Shri K. M. Munshi, Dr. B. Pattabhi Sitaramayya, Shrimati G. Durga Bai, Shri Rohini Kumar Chaudhuri, Shri Satya Narayan Sinha, Shri V. C. Kesava Rao, Diwan Chaman Lall, Shri T. A. Ramalingam Chettiyar, Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar, Nawab Muhammad Ismail Khan, Haji Abdus Sattar Haji Ishaq Seth, Pandit Hiralal Shastri, Mr. Frank R. Anthony, Shri Brijlal Nandlal Biyani, Shri Biswanath Das, and the Mover, with instructions to report on the first day of the next session of the Assembly, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

Mr. Speaker: Motion moved:

"That the Select Committee on the Bill to provide for fixing minimum wages in certain employments be reconstituted with the following persons as members thereof, namely, Prof. N. G. Ranga, Pandit Balkrishna Sharma, Shri R. R. Diwakar, Shri K. M. Munshi, Dr. B. Pattabhi Sitaramayya, Shrimati G. Durga Bai, Shri Rohini Kumar Chaudhuri, Shri Satya Narayan Sinha, Shri V. C. Kesava Rao, Diwan Chaman Lall, Shri T. A. Ramalingam Chettiyar, Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar, Nawab Muhammad Ismail Khan, Haji Abdus Sattar Haji Ishaq Seth, Pandit Hiralal Shastri, Mr. Frank R. Anthony, Shri Brijlal Nandlal Biyani, Shri Biswanath Das, and the Mover, with instructions to report on the first day of the next session of Assembly, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

Haji Abdus Sattar Haji Ishaq Seth (Madras: Muslim): Sir, as you know, as regards the constitution of these Committees, the practice of this House has been to refer to the Parties for members to be included in the Committees. I find that on these two motions that have been made, as far as I know, no reference has been made to any of the Parties. Names have been entered without getting the consent of the Parties. However, Sir, I do not want to raise the issue now. I do not know what the new practice is. I should like to speak to my colleague on the other side to find out the position, but for the present I accept this under protest.

Mr. Speaker: I wanted to refer to the point from a different point of view. Honourable Members know that I have not been able to make any allotment of seats. On account of not knowing many of the Members of the House and on account of Members changing their seats, it is difficult for me to find out who is desirous of speaking or putting a question. So it would be better if we could come to some arrangement on that; and then I think it would be possible to evolve the old procedure but at present we are just trying to proceed as best as we can.

I will now put the motion to the House.

The question is:

"That the Select Committee on the Bill to provide for fixing minimum wages in certain employments be reconstituted with the following persons as members thereof, namely, Prof. N. G. Ranga, Pandit Balkrishna Sharma, Shri R. R. Diwakar, Shri K. M. Munshi, Dr. B. Pattabhi Sitaramayya, Shrimati G. Durga Bai, Shri Rohini Kumar Chaudhuri, Shri Satya Narayan Sinha, Shri V. C. Kesava Rao, Diwan Chaman Lall, Shri T. A. Ramalingam Chettiyar, Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar, Nawab Muhammad Ismail Khan, Haji Abdus Sattar Haji Ishaq Seth, Pandit Hiralal Shastri, Mr. Frank R. Anthony, Shri Brijlal Nandlal Biyani, Shri Biswanath Das, and the Mover, with instructions to report on the first day of the next session of the Assembly, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

The motion was adopted.

UNITED NATIONS (PRIVILEGES AND IMMUNITIES) BILL

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru (Leader of the House): I beg to move, Sir:

"That the Bill to give effect to the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations be taken into consideration."

Sir, the Bill is more or less a formal one giving certain privileges and immunities to representatives of the United Nations, which are normally accorded to members of the diplomatic corps. India being a Member of the United Nations Organisation should give these privileges to the representatives of the U.N.O.

Mr. Speaker: Motion moved:

"That the Bill to give effect to the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations be taken into consideration."

Shri B. Das (Orissa: General): Sir, in free India we are today discussing a measure relating to the U.N.O. for the first time. It is not my object here to oppose the privileges proposed to be granted by this Bill. As proposed, representatives and officers of the U.N.O. will be entitled to certain privileges and immunities amounting to rights possessed by members of the diplomatic corps. But may I ask the Prime Minister what steps he will take to prevent the possibility of these representatives or officers or their families or guests acting as spies for their countries? Sir, during the recent Punjab disturbances, we had the painful experience of how the representatives of the B.B.C. of England circulated news in America and England—exaggerated news and false stories about India. I would like to be assured by the Government that they will see that the powers sought to be granted by this Bill are not abused by those who enjoy them.

My second point is in connection with India's position in the U.N.O. Sir, India is a Member of the U.N.O. and of the U.N.E.S.C.O. Only two days ago I read in the paper that there were only 14 outsiders and no Indian personnel employed there whereas 814 were either American or British. Is it going to be the privilege of the American swash-bricklers or the British bullies to monopolise all secretariat jobs in the U.N.O. or the U.N.E.S.C.O.? I believe India pays very heavily for the organisation of the U.N.O. But are we going to be treated as helots there? Why should we not have an equal share prorata to our financial contributions in the loaves and fishes? America and England have lost their colonies and empires; they want to control Asia through this U.N.O. organisation as they tried to do through the League of Nations now defunct. I may be told that it is not so, but from my past experience I know the attitudes of the Americans and the English. Therefore, I do hope that the Prime Minister will give an assurance to this House and to the country at large that in the organisation of U.N.O. and U.N.E.S.C.O. and any other organisations that may spring forth from the U.N.O. dreams, Asia and particularly India will have proportionate and prorata representation in the personnel of the staff of those bodies. Our old friend, Dr. Pillai, who is our representative in the U.N.O. was complaining publicly that Indians are not there. Sir, I am not against the ratification or acceptance of these privileges to representatives of the U.N.O., but I do not want the old idea to be accepted that because India was a colony or is a Dominion of Britain, she must foot the bill while the Englishman and the American wander all over the world and talk any nonsense that they like.

Shri K. Santhanam (Madras: General): Sir, I support the motion, but I want to make a point, which may appear technical but which is really a matter of principle. I do not think it is right that in any legislation the executive should be given the power to prescribe punishments. It is the natural prerogative of a legislature to prescribe punishments. Here in Clause 2 at the end there is a provision that "without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, provision may be made for the punishment of persons offending against the order." I understand that the real object of this provision is that the Government of India want to apply the sanctions or punishments which may be prescribed by the League of Nations, or otherwise they will come to the legislature for adding sections giving punishment. If that is so. . . .

Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava (East Punjab: General): May I raise a point of order, Sir? The Honourable Member is referring to the other Bill dealing with the provisions of the Charter of the United Nations.

Shri K. Santhanam: Oh, I am sorry.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar (Madras: General): Sir, I support the principle of the Bill and recommend to the House that it may be accepted as it stands even without an amendment. It is to our advantage to have this enactment passed into law as early as possible. The headquarters of the United Nations, as all the Members of the Assembly know, is in America and our officers, our delegates, our ambassadors, all have to go there. Ten to one, a provision like this will be to our advantage. There is no immediate chance of any of the officers of the U.N.O. being stationed in this country and the immunities that we are giving here may not be taken advantage of for a long time to come. It is only mutual and reciprocal and therefore there ought to be no difficulty about it at all. As a matter of fact, if I may remind such of the Honourable Members here who were in the previous legislature, we passed a similar provision regarding the International Bank. The International Bank has its branches in various countries and the Bank itself has been recognised to be a corporate body and a juridical personality with a right to own immovable property in various countries, the right to enter into contracts for purchase and sale of property and also a right to sue and be sued. Its officers and other

[Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru]

Asia or India, therefore we should not go there, I can understand that position, although I completely disagree with that. I think the United Nations as it is, is a very important organization. It is an organization which has, at any rate, some element of hope in it of pulling this world out of the morass in which it has sunk. It may fail, of course, but there is an element of hope in it and we have pinned ourselves to it and we should therefore co-operate with it and give it every possible facility. If we have any grievance against any employment or otherwise; we can take it up. If the grievances become so big that you want to come out of the United Nations you can do so, but so long as we are there we must treat it with the respect that it deserves. In fact we ourselves are members of it and if we talk in that fashion and without respect we ourselves lessen in our own respect in regard to an organization which we have joined. When we talk of the representatives of the United Nations we find that there are several Americans or Czechs or Russians; there may be Indians also going to other nations. Are you going to say that you will not treat the representatives of the United Nations in India as they should be treated as ambassadors and therefore, necessarily when your representatives go elsewhere they also cannot have their special treatment? It is an impossible position. This Bill, Sir, I submit is an obvious simple proposition which we must accept if we accept the United Nations. There may be some minor amendments which may or may not have been changed here and there. Some reference was made in the course of one or two speeches to them. But these documents are generally drafted in consultation with the United Nations Office and various countries adopt the same wording as far as possible. Two or three amendments have been suggested. May I say, Sir, that there are one or two formal amendments, just to change article 1 or 2 because the change has occurred since the Bill was introduced, a change in the whole status of India. Otherwise, I submit, Sir, that this Bill should be passed as it is.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That the Bill to give effect to the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations be taken into consideration."

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: Sir, I move:

"That in sub-clause (1) of clause 1 of the Bill, the brackets and figures '(1)' be omitted."

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That in sub-clause (1) of clause 1 of the Bill, the brackets and figures '(1)' be omitted."

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: Sir, I move:

"That sub-clause (2) of clause 1 of the Bill be omitted."

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That sub-clause (2) of clause 1 of the Bill be omitted."

The motion was adopted.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That clause 1, as amended, stand part of the Bill."

The motion was adopted.

Clause 1, as amended, was added to the Bill.

Shri K. Santhanam: I move:

"That in sub-clause (1) of clause 2 of the Bill, the word 'British' be omitted."

It is more or less consequential to the motion for deletion of sub-clause (2) of clause 1. There is no reason why in a matter concerning foreign policy we should make a law and confine it only to British India.

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: I accept the amendment.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That in sub-clause (1) of clause 2 of the Bill, the word 'British' be omitted."

The motion was adopted.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That clause 2, as amended, stand part of the Bill."

The motion was adopted.

Clause 2, as amended, was added to the Bill.

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: Sir, I beg to move:

"That in clause 3 of the Bill, for the words 'agreement or convention' in both places where they occur, the words 'agreement, convention or other instrument' be substituted."

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That in clause 3 of the Bill, for the words 'agreement or convention' in both places where they occur, the words 'agreement, convention or other instrument' be substituted."

The motion was adopted.

Shri K. Santhanam: Sir, I move:

"That in clause 3 of the Bill the word 'British' wherever it occurs be omitted."

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That in clause 3 of the Bill the word 'British' wherever it occurs be omitted."

The motion was adopted.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That clause 3, as amended, stand part of the Bill."

The motion was adopted.

Clause 3, as amended, was added to the Bill.

Clause 4 was added to the Bill.

The Schedule was added to the Bill.

The Title and the Preamble were added to the Bill.

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: Sir, I move:

"That the Bill, as amended, be passed."

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That the Bill, as amended, be passed."

The motion was adopted.

UNITED NATIONS (SECURITY COUNCIL) BILL

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru (Leader of the House): Sir, I move:

"That the Bill to enable effect to be given to certain provisions of the Charter of the United Nations, be taken into consideration."

This is an even shorter Bill than the previous one, and in effect it is to enable India to give effect to any general sanctions devised by the United Nations against any other country. In discussing this the only possible effect that might be considered is whether any punishment should be laid down at present or whether it should be left for future decision. It was pointed out by an Honourable Member who by mistake thought he was speaking on this Bill that normally power should not be given to Government to fix any punishment. That is perfectly correct and I have no doubt that when the time comes the legislature will do it. But for us at the present moment to fix any punishment would create difficulties. This Bill enables us to participate in economic sanctions against any particular country. It is not armed warfare; nevertheless it is an approach to warfare. At the present moment certain economic sanctions are functioning as between India and South Africa. Suppose we lay down some kind of punishment for those who offend against those sanctions, we can hardly lay down a very heavy punishment. There may be dignitaries have been granted similar immunities and privileges. We have passed that into law.

Article I of the United Nations Organisation says that it shall possess juridical personality. This is contained in Schedule of this Bill, Article I, Section I. Article II refers to its right to possess property, funds and assets, which follows as a natural consequence. The third Article refers to facilities in respect of communications for its Members. The fourth is in regard to the privileges of persons who can act as representatives of the members of the U.N.O. such as the right of entry into various places, the right to proceed from one place to another and so on. In Article V, the officials are allowed the same privileges as the representatives of the members in Article 4. Article VI extends the immunities to experts who come on particular missions on behalf of the United Nations. Therefore, Articles IV, V and VI relate to immunities to Members, representatives, officers and experts. They all stand on the same footing and are in the same category. Article VII refers to Laissez-passer, namely, visas on the production of which officers may move from country to country. That is only to facilitate easy passage of the officers and avoid delay. There is nothing wrong in it. Such visas are provided only to persons who come on business and not in their private capacity. Lastly, Sir, as regards disputes that might arise in relation to the property of the Organisation or its action in a particular country, a provision is made in Article VIII where it is laid down that such disputes might be referred to the International Court of Justice. This measure, I am sure, follows Articles 104 and 105 of the United Nations Charter which we all know is a model convention which has been adopted by various countries. It is therefore but befitting that we on our part should pass these conventions immediately. Then there is a provision which seeks to give power to the Central Government to modify these provisions in relation to similar International Organisations. Our Honourable Health Minister, Shrimati Amrit Kaur, presented to us yesterday a motion for adopting the Constitution of the World Health Organisation and circulated the same to us. Article 66 under Chapter 15 of that book relates to the legal capacity, privileges and immunities. Therefore, it is in the fitness of things that provision has been made in this Bill for extending these immunities and privileges to various other International Organisations. We are a member of the United Nations and what is expected of us is that we adopt the conventions laid down by the U.N.O. Therefore, the sooner we pass this Bill the better it will be for us, our officers and others who have to go to the U.N.O. and various other organisations.

Prof. N. G. Ranga (Madras: General): Sir, I wish the speech which has just come from my friend Mr. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar had come from the Leader of the House, because the convention has been till now for the mover of the Bill to state the general scope and objects of the Bill, so that the House would be helped to have a proper appreciation of the subject and then proceed to discuss the particular question before it. Secondly, Sir, I know that whatever we may say here today, we cannot freely move any amendments affecting any material portion or section of this Bill, because it is a Bill which is based on an agreement reached by the representatives of all nations at the United Nations level. Therefore, we are generally expected to pass it as it is. At the same time, it is relevant to make our observations in the hope that they will be taken into consideration by the U.N.O. at the proper time either at the initiative of our own delegates or the delegates of any other nation. I wish to make only one suggestion and that is in relation to part (b) of Section 5 in Article II which reads thus:

"The United Nations shall be free to transfer its funds, gold or currency from one country to another or within any country and to convert any currency held by it into any other currency."

I take it, Sir,—and I am speaking subject to correction—that these various monetary institutions that have been brought into existence by the United Nations Organisations will also be able to come under the provisions of this particular Bill and therefore would be entitled to all these various immunities and privileges. Therefore it will be possible for them to move their head office from one country to another. If the news of the movements of these funds were to be made public at any time, it is likely to upset the internal financial economy of that country and its credit also. Supposing some millions of pounds were to be deposited in our bank and it is published, then immediately it is quite possible that our credit goes up in the eyes of the other nations, but supposing for their own reasons they withdraw these funds and that news is also published, it is quite possible that some other nations might begin to think that there must be something wrong with the credit of our country. Therefore, Sir, I suggest that the news of such transfers of funds from one country to another belonging to the United Nations and on the initiative of the United Nations should not be published and should be known only to the Governments concerned and in regard to all other provisions I am in general agreement and I do feel that my Honourable friend Mr. B. Das if he were to take into consideration all the facts relevant to this matter will come to the conclusion that on the whole India stands to gain rather than would lose by passing this Bill.

Shri B. Das: I did not oppose it.

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: Sir, I am more or less a new-comer to this House and I am not used perhaps to talking on every possible occasion. I hope, Sir, that under your guidance and guidance of the House, I will improve in course of time. But I had always thought when anybody talked that there should be something worth talking about. On the other hand some of my Honourable colleagues think otherwise. I have just put forward a Bill which is essentially simple, everything that can be said about it has been said in the drafting of that which has been circulated. It is an obvious thing. Indeed it is inconceivable to me how anybody could not accept it in toto and yet I am reminded that I should repeat these clauses to this House and waste the very valuable time of this House. Well, if the House so desires, of course we can do that. But I do not think it will be advantageous to this House or the country to speak when it is not necessary to speak.

I listened with great interest to the speech which my Honourable friend Mr. B. Das delivered. My interest was heightened at every stage and into every expression he used. I could not connect it with the previous words. It became a jig-saw puzzle of ideas and words thrown about without any connection and without any relevance to the subject under debate. It is our business to see how many Indians are appointed to the United Nations and of Mr. Pillai who is representing India. Mr. Das referred to the nonsense that is talked by Members of the League of Nations or the United Nations. It was very interesting to have a glimpse into Mr. Das's mind and his opinions on the subject, but I should like to know what it had to do with this Bill in regard to the Immunities and Privileges to be granted to the Members of the United Nations. Either the United Nations are good enough for us to join them or they are not. If they are not good enough we should go out of it. If they are good enough then the inevitable consequences that must follow must be accepted. They are an International Organization and we must give them the same rank as we give normally to the representatives of nations, that is we consider them a juridical personality with all rights and privileges pertaining thereto. That means that any representative of theirs has a certain Ambassadorial status in regard to searches and other customs. It inevitably follows that the question is not whether an Indian should be appointed there or an Englishman or a Frenchman or anybody else. If it is said that the United Nations is not a worth-while organization, that it does not play fair towards

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: Sir, I move:

"That in sub-clause (1) of clause 1 of the Bill, the brackets and figure '(1)' be omitted."

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That in sub-clause (1) of clause 1 of the Bill, the brackets and figure '(1)' be omitted."
The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: Sir, I move:

"That sub-clause (2) of clause 1 of the Bill, be omitted."

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That sub-clause (2) of clause 1 of the Bill, be omitted."
The motion was adopted.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That clause 1, as amended, stand part of the Bill."

The motion was adopted.

Clause 1, as amended, was added to the Bill.

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: Sir, I move:

"That in clause 2 of the Bill, after the words 'make such provisions', the brackets and words '(including provisions having extra-territorial operation)' be inserted."

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That in clause 2 of the Bill, after the words 'make such provisions', the brackets and words '(including provisions having extra-territorial operation)' be inserted."

The motion was adopted.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That clause 2, as amended, stand part of the Bill."

The motion was adopted.

Clause 2, as amended, was added to the Bill.

The title and the preamble were added to the Bill.

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: Sir, I move:

"That the Bill, as amended, be passed."

1 P.M. May I say in answer to what Mr. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar said about an assurance to the Assembly that it will be consulted before decisions on matters like this are taken, that so far as I am concerned and also so far as the Government is concerned we gladly give the assurance that every matter will be brought before the Assembly at the earliest possible moment. In fact I can hardly conceive of such important matters being dealt with by the Government without frequent and constant reference to the Assembly and I hope that the convention may grow up that at least once in every session the Assembly will discuss foreign affairs in all their aspects. Sir, I move.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That the Bill, as amended, be passed."

The motion was adopted.

INDIAN TRADE UNIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram (Minister for Labour): Sir, I move:

"That the Bill further to amend the Indian Trade Unions Act, 1926, as reported by the Select Committee be taken into consideration."

At this stage I do not propose to make any long speech. The present Bill provides that where the trade unions are registered and fulfil certain conditions they should be recognised. If we were to analyse the number of strikes that we have had we will find that many of the disputes arose out of this question. When the workers organise themselves and present their grievances or demands to the employers, many of the employers are not in a mood to recognise the unions with the result that the relation between the employers and the employees start with some bitterness from the very beginning. The Bill provides that where the unions fulfil certain conditions, the unions should be given recognition by the employers and in case the employers fail to recognise the unions, the unions will have a right to represent their case to the labour courts and the labour courts will force the employers to recognise the unions. No doubt there is some element of compulsion in it but in the interest of the trade union movement in this country it is necessary that the workers are given some protection and that protection is there. viz., that the workers will get an opportunity to conduct negotiations with the employers and settle their differences as far as possible by mutual understanding. The Bill as it stands is no doubt in favour of the working classes to a greater extent but at the same time, we cannot say that it goes against the employers or the industry, because a contented labour force is in the interest of industry as well. So the Bill is not only in the interest of the working classes but it is also in the interest of industry and the employers as well. With these words I commend that the Bill be taken into consideration.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That the Bill further to amend the Indian Trade Unions Act, 1926, as reported by the Select Committee be taken into consideration."

The motion was adopted.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That clause 2 stand part of the Bill."

The motion was adopted.

Clause 2 was added to the Bill.

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: Sir, I beg to move:

"That in part (b) of clause 3 of the Bill, in the proposed clause (b)(i) to section 2, in the proposed definition of 'employer', for the words 'a Government in British India', the following be substituted, namely:

"The Central Government or a Provincial Government'."

The amendment is consequential to the constitutional changes in the country.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That in part (b) of clause 3 of the Bill, in the proposed clause (b)(i) to section 2, in the proposed definition of 'employer', for the words 'a Government in British India', the following be substituted, namely:

"The Central Government or a Provincial Government'."

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: Sir, I move:

"That for part (d) of clause 3 of the Bill, the following be substituted, namely:

"(d) after clause (k) as re-lettered by this section, the following clause shall be inserted, namely:

"(1) 'strike' has the meaning assigned to it in the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 (XIV of 1947), 'illegal strike' means a strike which by virtue of any law for the time being in force is illegal, and 'irregular strike' means an illegal strike or a strike declared by a Trade Union in contravention of its rules referred to in clause (d) of section 23D,"."

[Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru]

a fine or a month's imprisonment; I can very well conceive of offences which are very grave even in regard to sanctions as between India and South Africa. There may be black marketing; some Indian or other person may try to make money by sending gunny-bags from India to South Africa. I consider that a very serious offence against the nation's policy and liable to heavy punishment. How are you going to deal with such a thing, if you put it in, without knowing what the situation will be? Any punishment laid down in this Bill, as is suggested in one of the amendments, would I think be unfortunate. It is of course true that it is not desirable that Government should be given a free hand; that depends entirely on the Government, i.e., on the responsible character of Government. If an occasion arises when sanctions are to be enforced against a country it is obvious that this will be a very important matter nationally and internationally. The matter will have to come up before the Assembly and will be discussed in connection with foreign affairs, international relations, etc. It is hardly likely that this kind of thing can be done quickly and speedily and in secret. The ultimate decision may perhaps however have to be very speedy. When the United Nations begin to function it means that a large number of nations have to agree, and that takes time. But the final decision may be very speedy; the legislature may not be sitting and Government may have to take action. As soon as the legislature meets obviously it discusses the situation and lays down any further policy to be pursued and punishments to be inflicted, etc. I would submit that in a short Bill of this kind we should not limit the Government's power to lay down punishments, etc. Also in such matters, normally speaking, we are following a draft which is an agreed draft among other countries. Sir, I move.

Mr. Speaker: Motion moved:

"That the Bill to enable effect to be given to certain provisions of the Charter of the United Nations be taken into consideration."

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar (Madras: General): Sir, all Honourable Members will remember that Italy made war on Ethiopia. At that time India was a member of the League of Nations. A similar provision was there for economic sanctions in the League of Nations Charter against an aggressive party to be applied by the other members; the League Council passed such a Resolution. A similar enactment was not in the statute-book at that time but I remember that the then Finance Member Sir James Grigg brought forward a measure for imposing economic sanctions against Italy as both parties—Italy and Ethiopia were members of the League of Nations, and the former had started on an aggressive warfare. But things have so changed that in India today, after the 15th August, we have a responsible Government of the people. Under the League of Nations there is a similar provision for economic sanctions, it being obligatory on members to apply them as soon as the League Council passes such a resolution. But there is no such statute authorising it to impose economic sanctions like the present Bill. Previously there was a foreign Government in charge of the administration. We need not hesitate now to empower the present Government with powers to apply economic sanctions as and when necessary. We have heard the Leader of the House tell us how occasions might arise, when it may not be possible to approach the Assembly and introduce a particular Bill asking for permission to impose a particular kind of economic sanction. That must be left to the Government for the time being inasmuch as it is open to the House in an open session to take the Government to task if necessary. I am sure the Government will consult the Assembly before economic sanctions are applied. If it is not in session, I am sure the Government will place the matter before this Assembly when it meets for ratification. Whether the Government brings it forward for ratification or not, it is open to the Assembly to express its approval or displeasure and call upon the Government to withdraw these sanctions. It is in the nature of things that the Government will of its own accord come to the Assembly and explain its attitude when a matter of such serious consequence comes up for a decision and it takes the decision without consulting the Assembly.

Therefore, I thought these safeguards might be introduced, though if the Assembly is in session, the Government will not impose sanctions unless the Assembly is consulted and the vote of the Assembly is taken. If the Assembly is not in session, then immediately on a session being called, the matter must be placed before the Assembly for approval. Unless this is done it will lapse on the expiry of six months. These are the ways in which I wish to restrict the powers of the Government for the good of the country and to see that the vote of the Legislature is taken. Even without such formal amendments to this Bill and directions to the Government, the Government will I hope take steps to consult this House and carry this House from time to time along with it. Therefore, it seems that particular clause for ratification is unnecessary. Mr. Thakurdas Bhargava has given an amendment that this matter should be placed before the Assembly for ratification. I would appeal to him not to press this amendment at this stage.

As regards the last portion of Clause 2 for empowering the Central Government to make provision for the punishment of persons offending against the order, no doubt as the Honourable the Premier in his opening remarks suggested it is normally not a power vested in the Executive. If any particular sanctions are applied, the citizens of India or any other persons may act, in which case, a deterrent punishment may be called for. When we are not having the facts before us it may not be possible to adjudicate what kind of sanctions may have to be applied. Some matters may not require such serious sanctions. Therefore, I consider it would be safer to leave this power in the hands of the Executive to find out and prescribe sanctions in a general way. I am sure the Executive will not abuse its power and would not differentiate between man and man. General orders would be issued about the nature of the sanctions. Such a power was suggested to the Executive under the Defence of India Rules. It may be said that under the Defence of India Act, it was a black Act. Under the Defence of India Rules they were able to prescribe punishments. It might be said we are not in the same situation as when it was necessary to pass the Defence of India Rules or Act. It is not so. This Act will come into operation at such time and circumstances when normally one would expect the Defence of India Rules to come into operation. The Defence of India Rules are usually under contemplation on the eve of war. This will be provided in an emergency. On the other hand in the Articles of the United Nations Charter, Article 41 seeks to apply economic sanctions. If those sanctions do not apply, it will not be a sufficient deterrent. Articles 42, 43 and the following insist upon armed force being supplied by the particular nation. Therefore, as soon as the Government is called upon to take action with regard to the imposition of these sanctions, we must assume that a state of war practically arose, and therefore it is nothing normal. We are accustomed to such rules and such power being vested in the Executive under the Defence of India Act and Rules. When an emergency arises this will take its place. Therefore there is nothing objectionable in the Bill. I commend it to the acceptance of the House.

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: I have nothing further to say.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That the Bill to enable effect to be given to certain provisions of the Charter of the United Nations, be taken into consideration."

The motion was adopted.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That for part (d) of clause 3 of the Bill, the following be substituted; namely:

(d) after clause (k) as re-lettered by this section, the following clause shall be inserted, namely:

"(1) 'strike' has the meaning assigned to it in the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 (XIV of 1947), 'illegal strike' means a strike which by virtue of any law for the time being in force is illegal, and 'irregular strike' means an illegal strike or a strike declared by a Trade Union in contravention of its rules referred to in clause (d) of section 23D," "

The motion was adopted.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That clause 3 as amended stand part of the Bill."

The motion was adopted.

Clause 3 as amended was added to the Bill.

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: Sir, I move:

"That in clause 4 of the Bill, in the proposed Chapter IIIA, in the heading of the proposed section 23B, for the words 'Industrial Courts', the words 'Labour Courts' be substituted."

In the Industrial Disputes Act we have got Labour Courts instead of Industrial Courts. This amendment is necessary to be in conformity with that Act.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That in clause 4 of the Bill, in the proposed Chapter IIIA, in the heading of the proposed section 23B, for the words 'Industrial Courts', the words 'Labour Courts' be substituted."

The motion was adopted.

Shri K. Santhanam (Madras: General): Sir, I beg to move:

"That in clause 4 of the Bill, in the proposed Chapter IIIA, in the proviso to sub-clause (1) of the proposed clause 23B, for the words 'with the High Court' the words 'the Chief Justice of the High Court' be substituted."

Sir, my reason for the amendment is that consultation with the High Court is a thing to be elaborated upon and defined, whether it is to be a majority of the Judges or otherwise. I don't think such elaborate procedure is necessary. Consultation with the Chief Justice should suffice for the purpose. Sir, I move.

Mr. Speaker: Amendment moved:

"That in clause 4 of the Bill, in the proposed Chapter IIIA, in the proviso to sub-clause (1) of the proposed clause 23B, for the words 'with the High Court' the words 'the Chief Justice of the High Court' be substituted."

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar (Madras: General): I am surprised at the amendment moved by my friend Mr. Santhanam. I thought he was a greater democrat than any person professing himself to be so. It is unfortunate, I think, that our experience has not been so good as that of Mr. Santhanam. High Court means Judges of the High Court by majority. With regard to the Agricultural Relief Act passed in Madras, due to the whims and fancies of the presiding officer, judgments were coloured in favour of the lenders and the Act which was intended to benefit the borrower was stifled. I am not however casting any reflection against any judge. The Chief Justice might be a gentleman, but he will always choose a man according to his liking. I am not therefore in favour of giving absolute power in the hands of one Judge. After all he cannot escape human nature and his own associations. I think it is better to leave the clause as it stands without any particular amendment.

Shri K. Santhanam: Sir, I am not pressing the amendment.

Mr. Speaker: Has the Honourable Member leave of the House to withdraw the amendment.

The amendment was, by leave of the Assembly, withdrawn.

Shri K. Santhanam: I move:

"That in clause 4 of the Bill, in the proposed Chapter IIIA, for part (d) of the proposed clause 23D, the following be substituted, namely:

(d) that its rules provide for the procedure for ascertaining the opinion of the majority of the members of the Trade Union before declaring a strike;."

Sir, the clause as it stands says that the rules provide for the procedure for declaring a strike. This may mean that the Chairman or the President of the executive may declare a strike. So a mere declaration of procedure has no meaning. I have tried to give substance to this clause by saying that the procedure should be for ascertaining the majority opinion of the members. A strike should be declared after ascertaining the opinion of the majority of the members. I hope this amendment will be acceptable to the House.

Mr. Speaker: Amendment moved:

"That in clause 4 of the Bill, in the proposed Chapter IIIA, for part (d) of the proposed clause 23D, the following be substituted, namely:

(d) that its rules provide for the procedure for ascertaining the opinion of the majority of the members of the Trade Union before declaring a strike;."

Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena (U. P.: General): Sir, I am surprised at this amendment by my friend Mr. Santhanam. The reason is probably that he has not been in active labour work. Otherwise he would not probably have put in the amendment. In fact all Labour Unions, when they declare a general strike, have got elaborate methods for ascertaining the will of the members. But if this sort of provision is put into this Bill, for every small strike a referendum will have to be taken. Then probably all trade union activity will come to an end. Most strikes never take place. When the notice of a strike is given, the machinery of conciliation is put into operation, or the dispute is referred to some tribunal by the Government, and the strike never comes off. Lawful and regular strikes, if they are made so difficult as Mr. Santhanam wants them, will become almost impossible. I think the general clause as laid down here is quite good and it does give discretion to the unions to lay down their detailed method of ascertaining the opinion of the members. I do not think any very elaborate declaration should be necessary or will be helpful.

Mr. Speaker: The House will now adjourn for Lunch. Discussion will proceed at 2-30 p.m.

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till Half past Two of the Clock.

The Assembly re-assembled after Lunch at Half past Two of the Clock, Mr. Speaker (The Honourable Mr. G. V. Mavalankar) in the Chair.

Shri H. V. Kamath (C. P. and Berar: General): May I request you, Sir, to extend the Lunch recess from 1½ hours to 1¾ hours?

Mr. Speaker: The original practice here has been to have an hour and a quarter for Lunch, and I think we better work longer hours. Further it would become too late in the afternoon to carry on after 5 p.m. The Honourable Minister for Labour is not here. The House was proceeding with the Bill further to amend the Indian Trade Unions Act as reported by the Select Committee. Clause 4 was under consideration and the amendment of Mr. Santhanam was under discussion. I believe Professor Ranga wanted to speak before the House rose for Lunch.

Prof. N. G. Ranga (Madras: General): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am inclined to support Mr. Santhanam's amendment, but that is because I am anxious that no union which is interested in deciding upon a strike should be able to do so unless it has the consent of at least a majority of its own members for that strike. Otherwise Sir, it may so happen that a union may be representing only 20 or 50 per cent of all the labour employed in any one concern or industry, and if you do not provide at least for a majority of its own members to decide in favour of a strike, it would mean that the decision in favour of a strike can only represent a tiny minority of the total number of the workers employed in the concern or industry. We want to safeguard ourselves against such a contingency, but at the same time some of my friends brought to my notice one other difficulty and that is a union may not be representing the labour in any particular concern but in a number of concerns for a particular industry and if you were going to insist that all its members who are employed not in any particular concern where there is going to be a dispute, but in all other concerns where there is no difficulty at all and no dispute at all, then it may mean that an unnecessary amount of trouble may be caused to all those other people who are not interested in it at all. I do not think it is such a very relevant or insuperable difficulty because any strike, if it is to be a success, should first of all evoke the sympathy and support of the general body of the workers employed in any one industry, and if those people employed in other concerns where there is no difficulty at all are also of the opinion that in the particular concern under question there are such troubles caused to the workers that they should be helped to go on strike, then such a strike is sure to be a success because it is sure of the sympathy and support of all the workers in the other concerns.

An Honourable Member: Sir, the Government is not represented in this House and I rise to a point of order whether we can in such circumstances proceed with the present discussion.

Mr. Speaker: There is somebody on behalf of Government taking notes and the Honourable Rajkumari is here. The Honourable Member may proceed.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Therefore I do not think it is such an insuperable difficulty. I find this particular amendment has a special virtue of its own. Supposing a union which represents only 5 per cent or 10 per cent. of all the workers employed in any one industry—and that is so in the case of a large number of unions in our country—has this in one of its rules that if a majority of its working committee were to decide in favour of a strike, it should be empowered to go on strike, then I am afraid it is going to be an untenable position. Therefore, it is most essential that Government should stipulate the rules subject to which alone any union should be empowered to go on strike. Now it may be argued why not leave it to the Government then to make rules? Why stipulate this condition here alone? My answer to that question is this: that it is better to place on the statute the provision that until and unless the majority of the members of any particular union which wants to go on strike agree to that strike and to that decision, there should not be any strike, so that that strike can be sure of success. I do not think it needs very much argument. The only thing I wish to assure my friend who was opposing it in the morning is that some of us also have had some experience in organizing and running these unions and we know only too well that no decision is so popular with many unions—not with all, I do not even mean to say with a majority of the unions—as to go on strike because there are so many difficulties at any time that the workers are suffering from that if only their leaders could agree among themselves to advise the workers to go on strike, there will always be a certain amount of support for that suggestion to go on strike. We want to guard ourselves against such snap decisions. It is for this reason, Sir, that I am more in favour of this amendment than in favour of the points raised by my honourable friend this morning.

Shri Khandubhai K. Desai (Bombay: General): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on the amendment just moved by my honourable friend Mr. Santhanam I would like to offer a few observations. The amendment appears to have been moved through some misapprehension. The Select Committee's Report is very clear on the point. The condition precedent to the granting of recognition is that it provides for the procedure for declaring a strike. I think that should be enough. A union can only be recognised if it has got in its rules certain procedure for the procedure for declaring a strike: I think that should be enough. A union can only be recognised if it has got in its rules certain procedure for declaring a strike. Let that be left to the union and if in the course of working, it is found that the rules are abused, or the right that has been given is abused, then it may be a matter for amending the legislation in future.

Assuming the amendment is accepted, what will be the result? Say in a City like Bombay or Ahmedabad, there are very large industrial unions with membership ranging from forty to fifty thousand. Suppose there is a dispute in a particular mill on which the union decides—or the workers of that particular mill decide—that there should be a strike, to go and get the opinion of the majority of the members means that out of 50,000 members at least more than 25,000 should vote for the strike. I think instead of preventing a strike this procedure might mean that you might give a handle to foment a general strike. So I would very strongly urge my friend on this side to withdraw his amendment and not press for it.

Shri T. A. Ramalingam Chettiyar (Madras: General): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I for one am with Mr. Ranga on this question. Sir, the immediate past has shown us that strikes are resorted to for reasons and for no reasons. Any personal misunderstanding brings out a strike and there are such a large number of strikes that one does not know what the position of Industry is going to be in the future. Production has gone down very low and the situation is very critical. So it is up to everybody, Sir, who feels any responsibility about the future of our country to see not only that the labourers get their due but also that they realise their responsibility and they do their duty. What now happens is a Secretary or a President of a Union, when he has got a quarrel with the management, at once calls off and there is a strike; it goes on sometimes to the benefit of the labourers and very often to their detriment. Without any sense of responsibility this sort of thing is going on. So, Sir, if there is a ballot taken among all the persons who are likely to be affected and if there is a clear majority for a strike nobody objects that there may be a strike. But without it, to commit the labourers who are mostly ignorant and who are easily taken in by scheming men who force them into a strike, seems to me to be not doing any kindness to labour at all. If we are going to help labour, it should only be by adequate legislation which will really give power to labourers themselves and not to one or two people who may have their own axe to grind. So it is in that sense and in the interests of the country that we should avoid very hasty strikes and the resultant economic dislocation. Sir, I support the amendment moved by Mr. Santhanam.

Shri Ajit Prasad Jain (United Provinces: General): Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I listened to the speeches made in favour of the amendment, I felt that most of the speakers have hit beyond the mark. An examination of this Bill will show that a trade union can be recognised by the employer irrespective of the fact whether it lays down any procedure for going on a strike or not. So the main argument that the strike should not be resorted to in an irresponsible manner falls to the ground. It means that if a trade union is recognised by an employer of his own accord then the rules may or may not contain any condition prescribing the procedure for going on a strike. But if on the contrary, out of cussedness or for any other reason, the employer refuses to recognise the union by private negotiation and a trade union has to take the assistance of a court, then in that case clause 28D lays down that one of the conditions of the recognition would be that the rules must provide for the procedure for declaring a strike. A look at the heading of Section 28 D clearly indicates that this clause lays down conditions for the recognition by order of a labour court. Thus general and sweeping criticism that the amendment of Mr. K. Santhanam will provide against hasty strikes does not hold water.

CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY OF INDIA (LEGISLATIVE) [18TH NOV. 1947]

[Shri Ajit Prasad Jain]

Then, Sir, a look at clause 28F will show that the executive of the trade union has been vested with considerable powers. It can enter into negotiations about conditions of employment or non-employment or the terms of employment or conditions of labour of all or any of its members. India is a vast country. Labour conditions vary from place to place. In certain places the executive may be a very fully representative body and it should be very hard that we should be laying down any hard and fast majority rule by an enactment. I have known of some of the trade unions which lay down that a strike would be resorted to only when three-fourths of the members of the trade unions poll for a strike. Now an amendment of that nature rules out even a condition like that. I think that in a vast country like ours there must be considerable flexibility. We should not lay down any hard and fast condition. The clause as it stands, namely that the rules must provide a procedure for declaring a strike before a trade union could be recognised through a labour court is, I think, a sufficient safeguard and any more tampering with or narrowing down the liberty of the labourers would hamper the growth of trade union movement. I wish, Sir, that we should not behave in the manner of the old mother-in-law who lays down too many "Do this, Don't do that". It is a question which deals with the welfare of labour and since we want a strong and healthy labour movement to grow in this country I think it would be inappropriate to lay down too many conditions which may hamper the growth of a free and healthy trade union movement. With these few remarks I oppose the amendment of Mr. K. Santhanam.

Diwan Chaman Lall (East Punjab: General): Sir, the time of the House is precious and I do not want to waste much of it. The amendment which has been moved by my Honourable friend has apparently been conceived in a mood of thoughtlessness. The objections to this particular amendment are not only based on principle but also on procedure. I would like, first of all, my Honourable friend to look at the terms of his amendment. It says that "the rules of a trade union, before the trade union can seek and obtain recognition through a labour court, shall provide for the procedure for ascertaining the opinion of the majority of the members of the trade union before declaring a strike". Now, I want my Honourable friend to regard the words that he has used and to analyse them. As it is, a trade union declares a strike after wanting to obtain the opinion of its members. According to my Honourable friend's amendment, it must obtain the opinion of the majority of the members. Suppose only 30 per cent. of the union members vote in a strike ballot and 70 per cent. do not vote, then what happens? According to my Honourable friend, although there may be unanimity of opinion regarding the 30 per cent. who have actually participated in the voting, yet the strike cannot take place. You must compel, according to this amendment, the majority of the members to declare their opinion. Therefore 51 per cent. must declare their opinion before you are able to declare a strike. If I call for a strike ballot and only 80 per cent. of members participate in that ballot and all the 80 per cent. are in favour of the strike, even that verdict will not be accepted if this amendment is adopted.

Shri K. Santhanam: On a point of explanation, Sir. The words are: "the procedure for ascertaining". Whether they vote or not is not mentioned there.

Diwan Chaman Lall: "Procedure for ascertaining the view"—How are you going to ascertain the view or opinion except by getting 51 per cent. to declare it? I would like to know how otherwise it is possible to get them to declare their opinion. As I said, my Honourable friend has not really thought carefully over this particular matter. What he has really thought about is that he wants—and quite rightly in a democratic age,—that the majority should be allowed to declare their view, but this amendment does not cover that. Nor does it cover another important point.

Here we are dealing, as one Honourable Member has stated, with recognition not between a union seeking recognition from an employer of its own but with one where a dispute has arisen and the employer refuses to grant recognition to its union. My Honourable friend ought to remember that many a strike has taken place in this country on this very basis of the employer refusing to grant recognition to a particular union, and it is for the purpose of facilitating the grant of that recognition that the Honourable the Labour Minister has provided for a particular procedure for going before the law court. All that is needed is that the union that seeks recognition must be a registered union. It must have its own executive properly elected and it must have a particular procedure laid down according to the exigencies of the situation regarding the ascertaining of the opinion of its members in the case of the declaration of a strike. That is all that is necessary. My Honourable friend speaking on behalf of the employers found himself in the circumstances of adversity in company with my Honourable friend Prof. Ranga and went beyond the point in trying to emphasise the necessity of preventing strikes. He has used certain expressions which, I am quite certain, that in sober moments when he thinks about this proposition and regards the dignity of labour, the great necessity of organising labour, he would not employ. One of the expressions was "labourers led by scheming men who force them to a strike". Now, may I ask my Honourable friend when he expatiated on the evils of a strike 'led by scheming men' and when he said that it caused great hardship, did he not realise that no scheming man can keep men out of work and out of food and out of shelter not only for themselves but for their families, their wives and their children unless the men themselves are so hard hit that they must necessarily back the strike men? (An Honourable Member: They can do so by going on strike). Going on strike is not such an easy matter as my Honourable friend considers. Even last year when we were faced with a general communication strike it was the general body of the workers which prevented the strike. There were leaders who believe, not because they were scheming men but because they honestly believed it that it was right for them at that particular moment to go out on strike and yet the general body of the workers stood firm and did not go out on strike. My Honourable friend must consider that these judicial things are not going to prevent strikes.

But there is another aspect of this subject. It was referred to in general terms by another speaker. If we are going to deal with this matter in a proper manner, we must understand the particular structure of a trade union today. Trade unions in India are of various kinds. There are the particular occupational unions engaged in one particular industry or one particular factory. There are Federations of unions and combinations of unions. Now it is obvious that these little unions may form themselves into Federations as they have done in India in many places. According to this amendment if it is passed, it will be essential and necessary for the entire Federation to be involved in a particular local strike. A group of machine-men in the Government of India Press got out on strike over an absolutely local grievance, but if you accept this amendment, you will be compelling the entire Federation to go into action and instead of localising that particular strike to the machine-men, you will be involving every Government of India Press in that particular strike. I submit, first of all, that this amendment should not have been placed in this clause which seeks to obtain recognition through the agency of the Labour Court for the unions which are denied recognition by my Honourable friend's colleagues—the employers, and secondly, that it is a very dangerous principle to import into the recognition of a particular trade union. It may have most exceedingly adverse effects instead of the beneficial effects which my Honourable friend the Mover of the amendment contemplates. Therefore, Sir, I vehemently oppose the amendment both on principle and on matters of procedure.

Shri Gopikrishna Vijayavargiya (Gwalior State): Mr. President, I rise to oppose this amendment. We in the Indian States apprehend that the mill-owners generally create many obstacles in the formation of labour union organisations. Now when the country has achieved its independence there should be a government of labourers and agricultural workers—there being a great majority of people in this country who are labourers. At the present moment it would be quite improper to pass any legislation or amendment which may tend to impose more restrictions on the labour organisations. I think that time has come now when we should move day-to-day towards Socialism and thus add to the strength of the labourers. It is a matter of deep regret that such a law should be made by this Assembly which would be misused by the employers. And this would result in the passing of legislation imposing restrictions on the workers with the consent of the members of this House. Therefore then it is very imperative that the amendment should be opposed. It is said that there are frequent "lightening strikes" and labourers resort to strikes very easily. Dewan Chaman Lall has stated that it is not an easy job to go on strike. On the contrary it is a difficult task. It is very difficult to starve one's children by proceeding on strikes. Under these circumstances we should not approve this amendment here and every member should oppose it.

Shri H. V. Pataskar (Bombay: General): I have listened to the debate which have gone on in respect of the simple provision which is proposed to be introduced. I may first of all point out that if we went through the report of the Select Committee, then it is clear that this provision does not affect the question of recognition by mutual agreement. Therefore, as recognition could be had by mutual agreement between the parties the point would only arise when the matter comes to the labour court as a result of no agreement between the employers and employees regarding such recognition. The provision in this Act is that "Before a trade union shall be entitled to demand recognition by order of the labour court under section 28C, it must fulfill certain conditions" and one of the conditions is that it must make rules providing for the procedure for declaring a strike and I think that this is good enough in itself. For instance, whenever the rules are going to be framed by any union normally they would make a provision that its decision was arrived at not by the Chairman or by anybody else but by a majority of the members. What procedure in this connection should be followed and how it should be arrived at are matters of detail which need not be gone into at the time when such a provision is being made in the Act itself. The principal idea and motive underlying Mr. Santhanam's amendment is probably this that strikes may not take place unnecessarily. But I think his amendment goes into needless details which might create unnecessary complications. The provision as it stands is simple enough. What is to be seen is whether there is proper provision for declaring a strike; and we would normally expect that any trade union in making provision for such procedure would make rules which are sound and good. It may be another thing when the matter goes to court, but before that we expect that the procedure provided for will be for the good of all parties. The whole trouble is due to the fact that there is a good deal of mutual distrust between the employers and the works, and therefore the discussion has taken two extreme forms. So far as the object of this legislation is concerned I think the provision is quite simple and I think it only means that there should be some procedure for declaring a strike. We should presume that the procedure for declaring a strike would be a normal procedure, and it would prescribe that only if the majority of the members of the union wishes to go on strike then alone a strike can be brought about. Whether the authority in this regard should be with the Chairman or there should be some other method of ascertaining the wishes of the members of the trade union is a matter of detail in which I think we need not go. I therefore, think that the provision is quite good for the purpose for which it is intended, and the more we go into greater details, the more trouble we are likely to create and there will be greater misunderstanding between the two parties.

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: Sir, I sympathise with my Honourable friend Mr. Santhanam and I have every sympathy with the object with which he has moved this amendment. But I am afraid the purpose which he has in view will not be served if his amendment is accepted. I quite appreciate his anxiety that whenever any strike is to be started the majority of workers in the factory or industry should support the strike. But I am afraid that by making this provision that purpose is not going to be served. Suppose in a union the membership consists of 15 per cent. of the workers employed in the factory or industry; if a majority of this 15 per cent. has to decide whether a strike is to be declared or not, it will mean that if only eight per cent. decide to start a strike it will be started. That will defeat the very purpose that Mr. Santhanam has in view. There will be other complications as well which have been elaborately discussed by so many speakers. The provision is very simple; it provides that in the constitution of the union a provision is to be made as to how a strike has to be declared. And I think the labour court while granting recognition to the union will take into consideration all these factors. I may point out to Mr. Santhanam that this is only for such cases as are referred to the labour courts; it does not come in where there is voluntary recognition by the employers. And I think in this view of the matter he will withdraw his amendment.

Shri K. Santhanam: Sir, I beg leave of the House to withdraw the amendment.

Mr. Speaker: Has the Honourable Member leave of the House to withdraw his amendment?

The amendment was by leave of the Assembly withdrawn.

Shri K. Santhanam: Sir, I move:

"That in clause 4 of the Bill, in the proposed Chapter IIIA, in part (f) of the proposed clause 28D, the words 'and has been for at least six months prior to the date of the application to the Labour Court for recognition' be omitted."

Sir, I am afraid many of my Honourable friends have got a notion that I am against the trade union movement or that I want to make things harder for the workers. But it is just the reverse and my amendments will show that I am trying to make the Bill more consistent, precise and practical. In the report of the Select Committee the minority has rightly urged that this period of six months is wholly unnecessary and there should be recognition of trade unions already registered if they fulfil all these other conditions laid down in this clause. If the court finds that all these conditions are satisfied I do not see any necessity for insisting that it should be six months old. Sometimes in times of stress unions are properly formed and organised and to recognise them may be the best way to avoid an industrial strike, and therefore we may leave it to the court. I do not see why after registration this

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa (C.P. and Berar: General): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Select Committee Report on this Trade Union Bill is really very important. Unfortunately, Sir, all of us, new members, are at a disadvantage in not studying it thoroughly well and sending certain amendments, as Bills and copies of Select Committee Reports were received by us only yesterday. I do not want to make a grievance of it, but those of the Honourable Members who were old members have had the advantage of studying the Bill itself and the Select Committee Report. I do not want to say that they have not given due consideration to the conditions that exist in the country today as far as industrial labour is concerned.

Sir, let me tell you as far as the conditions of labour are concerned they are changing every day and this report which has been submitted and probably considered, a few months ago will have to be radically changed if it was to be considered to-day by the Select Committee. I am sanguine that in the next Budget I won't be surprised if some other important changes are to be brought if the Select Committee passes it as it is. Well, Sir, whatever it

3 P. M. may be the Select Committee's report is before us and we are considering this and this particular aspect of this clause which is under consideration, I am very very strongly opposing the amendment moved by Honourable Mr. Santhanam. Mr. Santhanam's amendment wants to stiffen the rights of the labourers as far as the question of strike is concerned. It is very clear from it that he wants the majority decision of the members, the total number of members, not the total number of members present at the meeting. It makes a world of difference and those who are interested in labour affairs they know that when a question of strike comes in they come in very large number. It is up to the trade unions to make what rules they like. Some I know are interested in the trade unions. Some make two-thirds majority, some three-fourths majority and some a bare majority. They are themselves very mindful of it. They are very particular that the strike weapon is not to be used lightly. Let me tell you, Sir, that there is a wrong belief that the question of strike is treated lightly. That conception is wrong. The heads of the labour unions know their responsibility and before taking a decision they thoroughly go into the matter and before they allow the labourers to take a decision on the strike they put all the pros and cons, the result of it and the consequences of that strike if it comes up and then eventually when they feel that a strike is an absolute necessity then they allow it to go on. Therefore to bring an amendment that only those unions who shall declare by a majority shall have the right of recognition is wrong. Sir, my view of recognition is absolutely different. I will come when the section B clause comes in. When the union is registered under the Trade Union Act, when all the provisions of this Act have been fully fulfilled by the labourers and is duly registered and its number is given by the Government. I see no reason why it should not be automatically recognised by the employers. That is our grievance, Sir and that would be in accordance with changed times. Sir, that will be a real and a modern measure in the interests of the labourers. I endorse what as my Honourable friend Diwan Chaman Lal stated there have been strike when employers refused to recognition. Notwithstanding every requirement being fulfilled they refuse to recognise the union and the consequence have been strikes. We want to prevent that. The Government must realize that today. Before a union is registered the Registrar scrutinises each and every clause—several clauses there are in one of the applications which is submitted to the Registrar for Trade Unions—many times he returns to the trade union officials if one mistake is made and I know in some instances these returns are returned half a dozen times to fulfil the requirements. After having done that I fail to understand why the employers should come in the way of the labourers by merely stating that they do not recognise because they consider it beyond their dignity to sit by their side and discuss labour problems. It is the co-operation that is wanted by the labourers with the employers. Several unions are working successfully by co-operating with employers. Some of the employers are very good and the recognition of the trade unions is done in an automatic way. But there are yet many who do not show these views. Those people should be taught a lesson. They are responsible for the breakdown of the social structure and not only that particular union and that particular factory suffers but it has an adverse effect upon other allied industries. Government, therefore, should see to it that they are automatically recognised after the registration, if they want to avoid such strikes. I am clamouring for this right of recognition for the last nine years whenever I had an occasion to do so, but in vain. Sir, therefore, I do submit that the Honourable Minister in charge of this Bill shall have to reconsider this matter if he really wants to avoid strikes. If the strike is to be avoided then the real method is the recognition of the union after it is duly registered. There should be no kind of interference by the employers and there should be no quibbling on this matter by the employers. They must see that the process goes through and therefore, Sir, I strongly oppose the amendment. I am rather surprised that Mr. Ranga who professes to be a champion of the labourers and agriculturists—he represents labour and presides over all India functions of the industrialists and he goes to the International Labour Conference—and he wants to curb the rights of the labourers.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Certainly not.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: What is it then. You want them to do certain things which is certainly against their right and their privileges. Show me any rule which is extravagant or rules which are going quite contrary to the provisions of the ordinary strikes. You have the experience in this matter. Can you show me any union where such a rule exists. You will not, I am sure. I can show you a number of such unions which have got two-thirds majority. Therefore, Sir, with these words, I strongly oppose the amendment.

श्री गोपीकृष्ण विजयवर्गीय : श्रीमान सभापति जी, मैं इस अमेन्डमेंट का विरोध करने के लिये खड़ा हुआ हूँ। देशी रियासतों में हम इसका अनुभव करते हैं कि मिल मालिक लोग अकसर मजदूरों का संगठन बनाने के काम में बहुत अड़गं लगाया करते हैं। आज कल जब कि देश स्वतंत्र हो गया है और अब मजदूर किसानों का राज्य होना चाहिये जब कि इस देश में अधिकांश लोग श्रमजीवी हैं। ऐसे समय में किसी ऐसे अमेन्डमेंट या कानून का पास होना जिससे कि मजदूरों पर ज्यादा बंधन लगाये जाय, बहुत ही अनुचित है। मैं समझता हूँ कि दिन प्रति दिन अब ऐसा समय आगया है कि हमको समाजवाद की तरफ जाना चाहिये और श्रमजीवियों को ज्यादा ताकत देनी चाहिये। यह बड़े अफसोस की बात होगी कि इस असेम्बली के द्वारा एक ऐसा कानून बनाया जाय और मालिक लोग उसका बेजा फायदा उठायें और इस असेम्बली के मेम्बरान की राय से मजदूरों पर बंधन लगाने वाले कानून बनें। इसलिये इस अमेन्डमेंट का विरोध करना बहुत जरूरी है। यह कहा जाता है कि बार बार Lightning strikes होजाती है और मजदूर बहुत आसानी से (strikes) कर डालते हैं। दोबान चमनलाल ने बतलाया कि हड़ताल करना बहुत मुश्किल होता है आसान काम नहीं है। हड़ताल long delay is insisted upon. I hope these amendments of mine will convince my Honourable friends that my intention is to help the workers against their own minority who want to drag them into strikes, and in other cases against employers who deny them their rightful privileges. Sir, I move.

Mr. Speaker: Amendment moved:

"That in clause 4 of the Bill, in the proposed Chapter IIIA, in part (f) of the proposed clause 28D, the words 'and has been for at least six months prior to the date of the application to the Labour Court for recognition' be omitted."

Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena: Sir, I congratulate my Honourable friend Mr. Santhanam on having brought forward this amendment. Unfortunately, as has been pointed out, we received copies of the Bill and the Select Committee report only this morning and we have had no time to give notice of amendments and we are thankful to Mr. Santhanam for giving this amendment. He has pointed out that after all the conditions are fulfilled there is no sense in giving six months' time to the employer to recognise a union. As one with experience I may say that if this condition is there the whole purpose of this Bill will be frustrated. This Bill relates to recognition to trade unions. If we read the whole Bill we will find it difficult to say whether labour has gained by it more rights or has incurred greater liabilities. Mr. N. M. Joshi who was a member of the Select Committee has observed that perhaps the advantages to labour accruing out of this Bill do not outweigh the disadvantages. If this provision about six months' time is insisted upon and the only right which a union gets after recognition is the right to receive replies to its letters from the employers, I do not see any use in the time of this House being taken up over this discussion. At present when no such Bill is in existence, the unions which are not recognised carry on negotiations with the employers; they make settlements and bargain with the employers. If the Bill is passed, the employers will stop taking any notice of the unions and they will stop replying to them; they will only say that you must get recognition first. If a union is registered say, for one month and satisfies all these conditions for recognition and still has to wait for five months more, the result will be that in spite of the fact that it represents 90 per cent. of the workers they will neither deal with it nor correspond with it. Thus the whole purpose of the Bill will be frustrated if this condition is imposed. Mr. Joshi has suggested that once a union is registered it should be entitled to be recognised and the other conditions which are being imposed should not be there. But if they are retained that is sufficient reason that no further delay should be caused in the recognition of a trade union after a trade union is registered and satisfies these conditions. Then there is the Labour Court. It is supposed to be composed of eminent persons. If in their collective wisdom they decide that a union satisfies all the conditions laid down by law and will genuinely serve the workers, then there is no sense in delaying its recognition. I hope, therefore, that the Honourable Minister will consider seriously whether by insisting on the retention of these words which Mr. Santhanam has asked to be deleted, he will not be frustrating the whole purpose of the Bill. I therefore request the House not to agree to the retention of these words. You have said that the unions will be recognised if they are representative of all the workers, if they have a procedure for declaring strikes and if they have an executive committee which meets at least every six months. I do not see then why further six months must pass after registration for the recognition of such a union. It is only when every condition is satisfied and when the inspectors have inspected all the registers that unions can get registration. If this Bill is passed today, all the unions which are functioning and which are responsible for much of the industrial peace in the country, will become useless. The employers will say, "We will not deal with you until you get recognition" and the whole of the present machinery will be upset. Labour will take the law into their own hands and they will go on strikes for the continuation of their existing privileges. If the Honourable Member is really in earnest that there should be industrial peace and that unions should be recognised, he should accept this amendment of my friend, the Honourable Mr. Santhanam.

Shri Jagat Narain Lal (Bihar: General): Unfortunately I do not see eye to eye with the Honourable Member Mr. Saksena who has just supported the amendment. I stand for the sub-clause as it is. As the Bill has emerged from the Select Committee, they have been well advised in putting this condition. The reason is that a trade union should be of some standing before it can claim recognition. Any trade union worth its salt, any trade union which has strength behind it, is bound to be recognised by an employer. Mr. Saksena evidently is wrong when he says that if this clause is accepted, all trade unions which are in existence will be defunct because employers will refuse to recognise them and they will have to wait for six months. I hope he knows that any labour union which has strength behind it is bound to be and already stands recognised by an employer. In any field where factories exist and labour work, often more than one labour union comes into existence. Several labour unions established by different organisations can come into existence at one and the same time and it is very necessary that labour unions should be allowed to develop strength to a certain extent. Any trade union which has become registered will require some time before it can send its application. It will naturally ask the employer for recognition. There may be correspondence. All that is bound to take a month or two and then there will be time for it to approach the labour court. Therefore, Government in putting this condition that a trade union should be registered six months before it makes that application have acted rightly and this condition ought to be insisted upon by Government before it can ask any employer to give due recognition to a trade union. Therefore, I support the sub-clause.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa (C. P. and Berar: General): I would be inconsistent if I opposed the amendment of my friend, Mr. Santhanam. It is a well-thought out amendment and it should be supported by the House. My Honourable friend, Mr. Saksena, has made out a very good case in support of this amendment. After all, the union having been duly registered, why should it be held over for six months? Therefore, as we are aspiring at a future date by another amendment to be brought by the Honourable the Minister to amend this clause automatical recognition after registration—I feel that this is a very happy amendment and it must be accepted. I do not want to say anything more on this matter because the amendment itself is very self-explanatory and I see no reason why it should not be supported by the Government. The Honourable the last speaker's argument did not appeal to me. It may be advantageous to the employer as he rightly remarked for waiting for six months, but what is the advantage to the employer by allowing the union to wait for six months. That he has not narrated. On the contrary the irritation between the employer and employee will increase within that period and the justification for a strike will grow and they will affect very many other institutions. Therefore, as it is stated in the amendment, it is very necessary that this sentence should be removed from the original draft. I therefore support the amendment.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar (Madras: General): I am in entire agreement with my honourable friend and the mover of the amendment that these labour unions must be recognised as early as possible. But they have ignored the later provision in 28(E) "Where a registered Trade Union having applied for recognition to an employer has failed to obtain recognition within a period of three months from the date of making such application....."

[Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar]

After its registration, three months are allowed for an employer to find out whether it is a union which has to be recognised. Thereafter there are only three months more and the union can apply to a court for recognition. Do my friends want that no time should be allowed to the employer and that as soon as it is registered the employer must recognise the union? On the other hand, they are agreed as set out in 28E that some time must be left for the employer to recognise a union. If those three months are left, as we contemplated, we have got three months more after the refusal by an employer and before an application is made. Does my honourable friend say that the latter three months period is too long and therefore ought to be curtailed? Or, the moment some rejection letter is received from the employer immediately they must rush to a Court? Though there must be sympathy for the labour union, it is really out-doing its local conceptions. I am afraid there is no benefit to labour at all. If my honourable friend thinks that six months is too long, should that be reduced to four months? I do not agree with this on principle, but there must be some time lapsing between one application and another. Therefore, Mr. Santhanam should consider whether it is worth while pressing the amendment.

Shri Ajit Prasad Jain: Sir, from the trend of the speeches opposing the amendment it appears that some of the Honourable Members think that the strength of a union arises from the duration that it has been in existence and not from its membership. Clause 28E lays down that one of the conditions for recognition of a union by an order of the Court is that it should be representative of all workmen employed by the employers. That makes it abundantly clear that no trade union which does not enjoy representative character and the confidence of the employees can be recognised by a court of labour. If you look at the opening paragraph of section 28E you will see that first the trade union has to apply to the employer for recognition and if for three months the employer does not give the recognition to the union, the union gets the right to apply to the court of labour for recognition, that is for compulsory recognition on the fulfilment of the conditions laid down under section 28D. The clause under discussion, viz., sub-clause (f) of clause 28D prescribes a further period of apprenticeship of six months after which a trade union can be recognised by a court of labour. I fail to see any reason why this double period should be laid down. It stands to reason that an employer should be given a reasonable time during which he may decide whether or not he should voluntarily recognise the union but then to lay down a second period of apprenticeship appears to be an anomaly. It is open to the employer to recognise the trade union on the first day of its inception. As for the status and position of the trade union sufficient provision has been made in clause 28D before it can be recognised through a labour court and as such I do not see any force in the argument that clause (f) should be retained in this Bill.

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: Sir, I feel inclined to accept the amendment and therefore I do not propose to make any speech.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That in clause 4 of the Bill, in the proposed Chapter IIIA, in part (f) of the proposed clause 28D, the words 'and has been for at least six months prior to the date of the application to the Labour Court for recognition' be omitted."

The motion was adopted.

Shri K. Santhanam: Sir, I move:

"That in clause 4 of the Bill, in the proposed Chapter IIIA, in sub-clause (3) of the proposed clause 28E, for the words 'is entitled to recognition by the employer under this section', the following be substituted, namely:

'has fulfilled all the conditions for recognition set out in section 28D'."

This is only to clarify section 28E, sub-clause (3). The words "entitled to recognition by the employer" involves not only the satisfaction of the conditions of section 28D but the court will be free to insist on other conditions not mentioned. I do not think it was the intention of the Select Committee that further conditions should be insisted upon and therefore the minority report have suggested that this might be clarified. I am doing so accordingly.

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: Sir, I do not accept the amendment.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That in clause 4 of the Bill, in the proposed Chapter IIIA, in sub-clause (3) of the proposed clause 28E, for the words 'is entitled to recognition by the employer under this section', the following be substituted, namely:

'has fulfilled all the conditions for recognition set out in section 28D'."

The motion was negatived.

Shri K. Santhanam: Sir, I move:

"That in clause 4 of the Bill, in the proposed Chapter IIIA, in sub-clause (2) of the proposed clause 28F, for the words 'arrived at' where they occur for the second time, the words 'intimated to the executive' be substituted."

The time between intimation and when the conclusion is arrived at is rather indefinite and there may be a long interval between the arrival of a conclusion and the intimation to the executive of the trade union. Therefore the proper time must be only the time when it is intimated. So I move the amendment.

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: Sir, I accept the amendment.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That in clause 4 of the Bill, in the proposed Chapter IIIA, in sub-clause (2) of the proposed clause 28F, for the words 'arrived at' where they occur for the second time, the words 'intimated to the executive' be substituted."

The motion was adopted.

Shri K. Santhanam: Sir, I move:

"That in clause 4 of the Bill, in the proposed Chapter IIIA, after the proposed clause 28F, the following new clause be inserted, namely:

'28F (A). The executive of a recognised Union shall be entitled to—

- (i) display notices of the Union within the premises where its members are employed;
- (ii) collect subscriptions from its members within such premises; and
- (iii) make through Union representatives personal investigation regarding complaints of its members by going within the premises of the establishment;

and the employer shall make reasonable arrangements for all these purposes'."

The reasons for this amendment are given in the minority report of the Select Committee. I understand that there is some opposition to this amendment. I suggest that each of the clauses may be put separately, so that those clauses which are practically non-controversial, as for instance clause (1) may be adopted. I do not think there can be any objection for the employers being asked to allow the union executive to display its notices within the premises: otherwise how are members to know what the union has decided? It is the most convenient way. I think it is quite necessary and is a reasonable thing.

[Shri K. Santhanam]

As for collecting subscriptions, there may be difficulties. If the general opinion is that it is not desirable, I should not like to press it.

As for the third clause, I think it is quite necessary, because if there is no such provision for investigation within the premises any allegation by the worker will be believed by the trade union and it may become the beginning of a strike. Therefore it is good in the interest of the employer to allow the accredited representatives of the trade union within the premises of the establishment and investigate. If that is done, I am sure in 99 cases out of 100 they will find that the mistake was with the complaining labourer and thus many causes of misunderstanding between the employer and the workers will be removed. I think this is as much in the interest of the employer as of the worker and I hope sub-clauses (i) and (iii) will be accepted and if there is any difficulty about sub-clause (ii) I am quite willing to drop it.

Mr. Speaker: Amendment moved:

"That in clause 4 of the Bill, in the proposed Chapter IIIA, after the proposed clause 28F, the following new clause be inserted, namely:

28F (A). The executive of a recognised Union shall be entitled to—

- (i) display notices of the Union within the premises where its members are employed;
- (ii) collect subscriptions from its members within such premises; and
- (iii) make through Union representatives personal investigation regarding complaints of its members by going within the premises of the establishment;

and the employer shall make reasonable arrangements for all these purposes."

Shrimati Renuka Ray (West Bengal: General): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I fully support this amendment. I should first like to say that the Members experience a little difficulty because these Bills were only sent to us this morning and unless my honourable friend Mr. Santhanam had brought these amendments and thereby helped many of the Members, these matters may have gone by default.

I think that the purpose of this Bill, which is the growth of healthy trade unionism in this country, will to a large extent be lost if these provisions are not there. I do not think I need recapitulate the fact that trade unionism in this country is not only weak but is hardly existent in many types of employment. It is true that in recent months there has been an increase in the tendency for strikes amongst labour which is well organised. But we should not forget that so far as the vast number of labourers are concerned they are extremely ignorant, unorganised and fully exploited by the employers. Take for instance the employment in tea plantations. Tea plantation labour, as the House knows is one of the most exploited types of labour. In such cases it is not possible to start trade unionism at all unless some such provision is put into the Bill. From my own experience I should like to say that about a year ago I went down with some other members on an investigation of tea plantation labour in Assam. Before we went into this area we had first to ask the tea planters Association for permission to go to these gardens and we were asked whether we had come on behalf of the Trade Union Congress. As we were going as social reformers we were given permission without any difficulty into these tea gardens in Assam. But the point remains that had we been going for the purpose of starting trade unions, however good they might have been from the point of view of the employees, and employers and the country in general we should have failed to obtain permission. Of course when we went there we tackled the tea plantation garden managers about this and we were put off with the excuse that irresponsible persons not really interested in the healthy growth of trade unionism who came were not really interested in the welfare of the tea plantation labour, and so they had to be careful. This is merely one example and the same thing is true of many other types of employment. We should bear in mind when we think of a Bill like this coming into effect, that it is not only the case of the labour where it is fairly well organised but the case of labour where it is still unorganised, to which we must direct our attention. In the later case it will just not be possible to have trade unions at all unless these provisions allowing facilities to trade union workers to enter premises and post notices and investigate conditions are embodied in this Bill, it will not be possible for trade unionism to grow properly in this Country. There is no point in a lengthy speech, as I feel that such a provision will and must be accepted even by such employers who desire the welfare of their labour. Organised and better informed labour will also lead to more efficient labour, and ultimately help national development in its many and varied aspects. These provisions are in keeping with the spirit of the objects and reasons of this Bill. I particularly wish to support the amendment and I hope the House will also support it.

Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena: Sir, I again wish to thank my Honourable friend, Mr. Santhanam for having brought this amendment. In fact in their Minute of Dissent to the Select Committee Report, the three members, Mr. N. M. Joshi, Miss Maniben Kara and Mr. S. Guruswami, wanted five conditions to be included. They say:

"We are of the opinion that the Bill even as it emerges out of the Select Committee places heavy restrictions on the Trade Unions seeking recognition and provides only a few advantages."

This Bill is putting some obligations on the Trade Unions. Henceforth Trade Unions will not be able to go on strike merely on their liking, but they will have to go through several formalities. I desire that labour should feel that while their freedom is being somewhat restricted, they are being given some rights without which trade unionism cannot spread rapidly. As these three experienced labour leaders have said, 'the only privilege allowed by the Bill to a recognised Trade Union is to receive replies to its letters and have interviews with management'. They say 'We feel that in addition to the above, facilities to enable it to do its work effectively should be provided by the employer to a recognised Trade Union. Some of the facilities we would like to be provided are given below; etc.' Of these five facilities, three are given in this amendment and two have been omitted, which I would have liked to be included. The two items omitted are:

- (c) Leave of absence to members of the executive for attending meetings and for negotiating with the employer; and
- (d) Consultation with representatives of the Union before making any change in the working conditions, particularly when the change happens to be to the disadvantage of the workers.

My Honourable friend Mr. Santhanam has taken only three out of the five conditions. I would request the Labour Member to extend the scope of Mr. Santhanam's amendment and to include in it all the five facilities which have been suggested.

My reason is simple. I know the Labour Member represents a class which is the labour class and I can certainly say that he has the welfare of labour genuinely at heart. But as one who has been devoting much time to this work for many years past I wish to say that so far trade unionism has not made many strides. Before the Ministry took reins in April 1946 there were in the United Provinces 34 registered Trade Unions. Today their number is about 300, so that with the coming of the new times the number of Trade Unions has increased to about nine times and probably it will go on increasing at an even more rapid stride. I want this progress should be maintained. But our experience shows that the reason why Trade Unions cannot go on with more rapidity is that the employers are putting so many obstacles in the way of the growth of trade unionism. I will give some example. In U.P. there are seventy working sugar factories. On the seventy factories there are registered unions in sixty. These Unions have for the last one year been struggling for better wages and have also got some. But the friction is there. The strikes are due to two things. The employers will not negotiate. They will try to victimize the workers who are the officers of the Union and find faults with them. The General Secretary of the U. P. and Bihar Chini Mill Mazdoor Federation in the U.P. was dismissed for the fault of collecting subscriptions inside the factory. If you do not permit him even to collect the subscriptions due to the Union from the members in the factory, I really wonder how they can function. In the Ahmedabad Textile Labour Union which Mahatma Gandhi founded and which today is one of the strongest unions the employers deduct the subscription from the workers' wages with their consent. I do not see why the officers of the Union should not be allowed to collect the subscription inside the premises. They are simple, honest persons and will not abuse their powers. And it does not take much time to take subscription from a member. There are so many other difficulties put forward in their way. The employer will not allow them to investigate complaints by visiting the spots where the incident occurred. If you are imposing so many obligations and conditions for recognition, the Unions must also have certain rights to perform elementary functions without which they cannot breathe and live. I therefore suggest that they must have the three rights mentioned in this amendment plus the two rights which Mr. Joshi, Miss Kara and Mr. Guruswami have suggested from long experience. Our sister has also just pointed out the condition of the tea gardens. She said that it is very difficult to proceed with trade unionism unless these rights are accorded. In every field of industrial labour, the conditions are the same. If these rights are granted, this Bill will be a sort of charter of freedom to them for uninterrupted work. Otherwise there are so many restrictions imposed in this Bill that it will become very difficult for Trade Unions to function. I am sure that if these rights are accepted and incorporated in this Bill, then by the end of the next year we shall have a much larger number of Unions registered and recognised, and labour will become much more organised. At present it is very difficult to organise it. Any worker who is a member of the union is victimized. Among the strikes in the sugar industry last year, at least 75 per cent. were caused on account of victimisation of active workers of the Trade Unions.

I have been connected with the O. and T. Railwaymen's Union and I know that there was recently a strike in Gorakhpur district for twelve hours. The whole machinery was upset because the representatives of the Union had not the right to go and inquire the complaints of the workers. As soon as the strike was there, in twelve hours the whole thing was put right. So what I say is that all these strikes which really occur on account of some small thing happening somewhere can be remedied if these facilities are given to the registered Trade Unions and unions which have gone through all the elaborate tests which have been put forward in this Bill. If you give these rights I can assure you the unions would welcome this Bill; otherwise this Bill would curtail their power of bargaining. I wish that this amendment of Mr. Santhanam should be accepted and I would request the Honourable Labour Minister to include the two other rights suggested by Mr. N. M. Joshi in his dissenting note. I think that in some places the leave demanded is already given. In the Railways, and the Postal Department for example, I know that whenever meetings of the recognised unions, are held the members are given leave, but I know that it is not given in other places. There is a Government Labour Committee holding enquiry in Cawnpore. Labourers come and attend meetings to give evidence; but they do not get leave with pay. I think, they must not lose wages for such days. I think it is very important in the interests of organising labour on a proper footing that the members should be given leave with pay for attending important meetings. These are the elementary rights which experienced labour representatives have asked for in the Select Committee. Probably the Committee is overweighted with persons who have no sympathy for the workers, but I know that our Honourable Minister has the welfare of labour at heart. On so many occasions he has given his own views about the welfare of labour and I am sure his heart beats in unison with us. I am sure the Labour Minister, by giving these rights, will earn the eternal gratitude of the labourers of this country and will promote the welfare and organisation of labour. I am also sure that at present organized labour is comparatively very small. The total number of unorganised labourers is much larger, but the reason is that it is impossible to organize unions in many places. When these rights are given, I am sure much of the labour will become organized and illegal strikes will become things of the past. I hope that the Honourable the Labour Minister will accept the amendment and in this way earn the gratitude of labour as a whole.

Shri Jadubans Sahay (Bihar: General): Sir, I join in the appeal just made to the Honourable Minister for the acceptance of the amendment moved by Mr. Santhanam. Had this amendment been moved before, I would have felt difference in lending my support to it, but after the 15th August, conditions have changed. Is it too much for us to beg of the Honourable the Minister for Labour to allow these privileges to a recognised union? I am not one of those who stand in defence of persons who have been condemned as scheming and misleading labour, but I submit, Sir, that it is not too much to ask this House and the Honourable the Minister to allow the labour union executives to display notices of the union on the premises. If you are going to give charge of the industries to labourers in the years to come, then Sir, would you not allow the executive of recognised unions to display notices over the premises of the unions; and for us to debate over this right in the year of grace 1947, Sir, rather seems ridiculous. I would also request the Honourable Minister to allow the executive of a union to collect subscriptions from its members within such premises. Is it very wrong, Sir, for us to ask that the union executives should be allowed to collect subscriptions within the premises of a union? Where should they go to collect subscriptions? There are some employers—I do not mean all, but I do say a majority of them—who are hostile to labour unions. They ask them to get out of the premises. They enunciate section 144. I shall not bother this House with the details of the sorrows which the labourers are suffering from in this country. Enough to say that this request is a very modest one, that the labour union executive should be allowed to collect subscriptions within the premises of such unions. When the entire control is to pass into the hands of labour, it is not too much to ask that they should be allowed to collect subscriptions within their premises.

Again, Sir, regarding the third amendment, it has already been said by one of the Honourable Members that if Union representatives are allowed to go into the premises and investigate into the complaints of its members, some of the strikes would not occur. It is wrong to suppose that in all cases those who work in the labour unions are always unreasonable. That is not the case, Sir. We know that these laws are not meant for the protection of those who have to work in the fields and factory. These are paper laws which are broken in a thousand ways by the employers as they have vast resources at their disposal. But so far as labourers are concerned they do not have the resources or the intellect at their disposal. Therefore it is always better that employers should know who the masters are; they should be made to know that labourers and the kisans are the real masters. And therefore, Sir, it is not too much to ask that Labour Union representatives should be allowed to go into the premises and try to investigate into the charges levelled by its members, certainly with the help of the employers. If this is given, if this responsibility is saddled over the shoulders of labour workers, Sir, then the labour workers will also be trained to take over the responsibility of the factory in the days to come. With these few words, Sir, I commend this amendment for the acceptance of the House.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, so far there has been no opposition to this amendment. Of those who have spoken, nearly four Honourable Members are in complete agreement with this amendment. That shows the very reasonableness of the three suggestions that have been made in this amendment and I am sure the Honourable Minister will feel the mind of the Members and accept the suggestions because their reasonableness is not one-sided. The reasonableness and fairness in these three suggestions are in the interest of both the employers and the employees. I will cite in a moment, Sir, how they are advantageous to both of them.

The first suggestion is "to display notices of the Union within the premises where its members are employed". It is a very healthy suggestion. Formerly and even now, the notices are displayed privately; instructions are sometimes given by the labour union representatives—some members give one instruction and others give another instruction. But according to the present suggestion the notice will be displayed at the premises where they are employed—open to the public, open to the employer and open to the employees. That is a great advantage to both of them. Employers do not have any complaints to make that any underhand or secret proposals have been made by the employees or that they have been taken by surprise.

Coming to the second proposal, namely, "to collect subscriptions from its members within such premises", it is certainly an advantage to the labour unions to be given facilities for collecting subscriptions from the premises because that really gives them a little advantage of collecting subscriptions on the salary day. What happens now is that some unions collect subscriptions outside often leading to subscriptions not being properly accounted for. Now it is laid down that the facility should be given to collect them openly in the premises so that there may not be any underhand game by any of the officials of the labour union. So from that point of view it is of advantage to both the classes.

The third one is a very important suggestion and much has been said on it. It allows the union representatives to enter the premises and enquire into any grievances and make a report. Many a times one-sided complaints are made and no opportunity given to the employees' representatives, with the result that it gives a one-sided view, although an enquiry has been made afterwards. The present suggestion is a good solution. By it, when a complaint is made the labour representatives ask for authority to enter the premises, see the labour union, see the employers' representatives, exchange views, and possibly come to a settlement on the spot and avoid a strike. That is the underlying idea of this suggestion and I am very glad to notice from the dissenting note of the previous Members—Mr. Joshi and others—that they also have suggested on these lines. They have also suggested another thing: leave of absence to members of the executive to attend meetings and for negotiating with the employers. As far as the first part is concerned, namely leave for attending the meetings, I am in agreement with it. Let me tell you, Sir, that our own Railway Board have recognised leave of absence for the North-Western Railway for members of the union attending the meetings. Their leave is granted and they are treated as present and passes also are given. People coming from far off places are given passes because it is recognised and the Government—even the bureaucratic Government of the post—have recognised this right of allowing the union members to be present at the meetings by giving due facilities, free railway passes and also marking them present.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra (West Bengal: General): Any allowances?

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: Why should there be any allowances? They spend from their own pockets or from the union funds. They are poor, but they spend for it. If the employer would give then any such facilities I would certainly support it. Some of the unions where the facilities are given are working very nicely. It creates a cordiality between the employer and the employee. Those days are gone when the worker had to beg for his rights.

Having explained all this, I do not know whether there may be any Member who would oppose this amendment. So far there is none but even if there are any, I hope it would be a negligible number and that the House would support it.

Dr. B. Pattabhi Sitaramayya (Madras: General): Mr. Speaker, I labour under the disadvantage of being quite new both to this House as well as to the labour problems. The only labour I have known is spinning 500 yards every day; but it is individual labour.

I find that the trade unions are being referred to here. Trade unions, on pondering over the subject, strike me as corresponding to the opposition parties in this House. It is a Government composed of the Party in power and the party in opposition. Really both form one composite whole. You cannot dissociate one from the other. The trade union looks after the interests of the labourers while the employers look after their own interests and also, in their view, the interests of the labourers; so that if the two form two halves of a composite whole, both must be regarded as forming one indivisible unity. Just as you provide, Sir, in this House for rooms for Parties, where Party notices are posted and where Party collections are made and where also Party investigations are made, even so it is up to the employers to give not merely these three facilities which my friend has categorized in his amendment but to give premises for the office of the trade union. Once that is given all these difficulties will disappear. The employers must look upon the Trade Union as really helping them from their own standpoint. If this organic relationship is recognised—and that is what I would understand by the recognition extended to Trade Unions by the employers of factories—then all this conflict will disappear and each will try to work in consonance with the interests of the other. Well, if they are to be given such premises, I wish the Honourable Minister in charge of Labour would rise to the occasion and incorporate some such provision and arrange for offices "at which they are able to display their notices, collect their subscriptions and even investigate". Otherwise I feel a little difficulty in accepting the third of these suggestions.

Well, my friend who has spoken just before me has suggested that there was no opposition to the amendment. I was going to ask him not to hallo till he was out of the wood. On the third point, unless the arrangements I have suggested are made, I find that as things stand, an investigation in the premises is likely to disorganise the work of the factory. What is meant by "within the premises of the establishment"? I think it is the place where the work of the factory is going on. If I am right, it may be the office of the factory; at any rate it may not be the actual place where the machinery is located for then it will certainly disorganise the work of the machinery were any person who claims to be an officer of the Trade Union, to go with his entourage, his typists and his writers and office machinery in order to hold an investigation in the midst of the work of the factory. He will be attracting the attention of all the workers and the work will be disorganised and it will be very demoralizing. But if the "premises of the establishment" mean the out skirts of the outer compound, then of course I would support the suggestion. If the Honourable Minister in charge would not accept my suggestion, I would like to cut out the third and request him to accept the first two.

Shri V. I. Munishwami Pillai (Madras: General): Mr. Speaker, Sir, coming as I do from a plantation area and knowing the difficulties of the plantation labourers, I can safely represent to the Honourable Minister for Labour that the amendment of my friend Mr. Santhanam is quite fitting with the conditions of the labourers in the plantations. During the past several decades, the European planters who owned the tea estates did not allow the representatives of the labourers even to approach their premises not to talk of representing their difficulties regarding habitation, facilities for drinking water, etc. When the Honourable Labour Minister paid a visit to the south, he was good enough to come to the plantations and he saw for himself the condition in which the labourers were living. I know as a matter of fact that he was flooded with representations not only from the plantation areas, but from other labour areas as well.

Sir, the very labour agents who are working for the betterment of the labourers are considered to be untouchables and the managements in the past did not, as I said, even allow them to enter their premises to know what difficulties the labourers were having. It was not possible for the labourers to come together and discuss their difficulties and to present a united case. Even in the matter of collection of subscriptions, the managements always stood against them and would not allow the subscriptions to be collected when their payments were made. Therefore, I entirely agree with the three points which my friend's amendment clearly lays down. Particularly, the third point about access to their very premises, I think is highly necessary. I feel, Sir, on the whole that this amendment is quite fitting and would request the Honourable Labour Minister to accept it.

Shri R. V. Dhulekar (U. P.: General): Mr. Speaker, I am surprised to see why the Honourable Minister for Labour has been silent all along. Why has he not accepted this amendment until now? Sometime it does happen that the Minister has some bombshell to throw as a last thing which makes the people who have spoken its target and finishes the debate. It is also noticed in assemblies that some of the Government members say on behalf of the Government some such things that go a long way to suggest why the Government is hesitating in accepting the proposals that have been put forward. The members are speaking in favour of the amendment from all sides but it is not yet clear from the Government side what hesitation they have. As far as I can understand there is something mysterious about it. But whatever two or three suggestions have been put forward do not indicate any thing in this respect. Dr. Pattabhai said that there should be an office for keeping the notices and collecting the monthly subscription. I think he is right. Therefore when from every side of the house this is being said I think the Honourable Minister should accept the suggestion at once.

Shri Jaipal Singh (Bihar: General): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have great pleasure in supporting the amendment that has been moved by Mr. Santhanam. In a way, the amendment removes the odour of untouchability from Trade Unions. There have been very few employers indeed who have permitted Trade Union activities to take place within their premises. I know in Jamshedpur, for example, there is one steel company which, recently, has been permitting Trade Union executive to collect all their subscriptions and also do other work within their premises, but that may be the only exception I can cite. In the vast majority of cases, Trade Union workers are considered as dangerous and they are not permitted to come within the premises. Whenever there have been Tri-partite Conferences convened by the Government of India, employers have never lost an opportunity to say that they were in favour of encouraging a healthy growth of Trade Unionism. To my mind, here is a way of their doing it. If the Honourable Minister will accept this amendment and if the House will accept it, it simply means this, that the Trade Union workers, without interfering with production, will be enabled by law to come into direct contact with employers. That is the value of the amendment. That part of it which concerns the collection of subscriptions, to my mind, is the least important aspect. 28F (a) (i) and (iii) are very important because, whatever may be done within the premises, has to be done in conjunction and in close co-operation with the employers. The phrase here used as "reasonable arrangements". I think that should dispel the fear of Dr. Pattabhi Sitaramayya that the activities of Trade Union executives would detract from production. "Reasonable arrangements" does not mean that the Trade Union executive will be sitting outside the premises like untouchable pariahs. The employers and workers representatives will be in a position to go right inside and see things for themselves. By an examination of facts on the spot everyone can be convinced. I think that is the method which is going to promote better industrial relationships between the employers and the employed and I feel that the House would be doing a great service to the labourers in this age of effective collective bargaining. After all, trade unionism stands for that, namely, to enable the unions to function more easily and with greater facility.

I have great pleasure in supporting the amendment.

Mr. Hussain Imam (Bihar: Muslim): Mr. Speaker, I do not wish to intervene in the debate or to talk much on the merits, because on that point much has been said in favour of it and I have not heard any serious opposition to these proposals. I am more concerned with the procedural aspect of the matter. I think, Sir, that it will shorten the labour of the Assembly if the Government could indicate what it proposes to do in connection with amendments by some method so that where the Government is prepared to accept an amendment, we may have a shorter debate, but if the Government is not willing to accept it, it need not stifle the debate by making a prominent announcement of its position because it will act as a party discipline to stifle the debate. I do not want to stifle the debate but where it is a useless debate it should be shortened. When the Government is prepared to accept it—Government and its members have much important work to do, it is no use to anybody if a thing which is already accepted should take up the time of the House. The Government should indicate its right and the present-day Government should behave in a manner, not the same as the former Government which had points of prestige and which had certain interests to serve. The National Government is supposed to look after the interests of the people and the use of the party machinery to defeat amendments is a wrong method. What I appeal, Sir, is that if the suggestion is reasonable, fair and justified, it should be accepted and the party machinery should not be used to defeat the Motion. You may accept or may not do so, but fact remains that there is a party discipline. There ought to be. I say it ought to be, but what I am saying is that the Government should not use that machinery. It should be amenable to reason and accept the suggestions which on the face appears to be reasonable and in the interests of the people.

Diwan Chaman Lall: The only reason why I rise to support my Honourable friend's amendment is because of the serious opposition raised by Dr. Pattabhi Sitaramayya. I do not think the fears which he expressed are really genuine fears. If he listened carefully to the speech of the Lady Member, who gave a history of her experiences in the tea plantations he would see the urgency for investigation of complaints made by union officials under reasonable conditions, so that those complaints may be properly investigated.

In 1929, when I was the President of the All India Trade Union Congress, I made it a point to devote my energies towards the organization of plantation labour in Assam and for that purpose we sent an organiser to examine the conditions but, unfortunately, he was not able to get inside the tea plantations. Evidently he was got hold of by the Employers' Association, given some sort of drug and the next morning found himself on the steamer on his way to Burma, where we rescued him in due course.

In 1930 on the Labour Commission we went to Assam and investigated tea conditions on the spot and you will find the investigation in 17 volumes of evidence that have been collected on various topics connected with labour in India, but I can say with confidence that in no part of India did I find such horrible conditions verging upon semi-slavery, almost slavery, as I have found in the tea plantations of Assam. There was a man, the Sardar, in charge of cooly labour in the plantations. Invariable he was armed with a whip and if any organiser dared to go into these plantations, he was arrested for criminal trespass and the man was tried by the managers themselves of these tea estates, who had magisterial powers, which they utilised in order to prevent any outsider going into these plantations. Knowing all that I think my Honourable friend Dr. Pattabhi Sitaramayya will agree that there is an urgent necessity for a direction being given so that a legal right accrues to the working classes to obtain permission to go into these premises and estates and investigate labour conditions. Then again, as my Honourable friend has pointed out very ably, there is no permission being given for anybody to go in at any time and make an investigation but it is only under reasonable conditions. There is a story that when "Man and Superman" was first performed on the London stage, a play by Mr. Bernard Shaw, the whole audience after the third act applauded, but there was one man sitting up in the gallery who hissed and shouted when Shaw came on to the stage to receive the applause. Bernard Shaw addressed himself to that one man in the gallery. He said, "My friend I may agree with you" (Dr. Sitaramayya in this case). But what we are two against all these others with their plaudits. May I suggest to my Honourable friend that he may accept this amendment?

Dr. V. Subrahmanyam (Madras: General): I support this amendment of Mr. Santhanam. If this amendment is accepted it will really help the employers, because the Managers of the Associations bring grave allegations against labourers. Once I was taken to a cement factory, near Trichinopoly and asked to interfere in a matter. I was not a labourer nor a member of that Association, but still I was refused admission and after all with great difficulty I managed to meet the Manager and he brought out grave allegations that such and such machinery were broken and certain other tools were thrown away. They gave reports of the happenings to their head offices. As regards the breaking of the machinery and other things, I think they are having some registers where they record that such and such a machine was repaired in such and such a year and some other things. If this amendment is approved and the Honourable the Minister accepts it, much misunderstanding can be removed and much help will be done to the labourers. So this will be very helpful matter for the labourers.

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: Sir, I have listened to the debate with all the attention that it deserves. It sometimes so happens Sir, that in our anxiety to do some good to the cause which is dear to us we lose sight of the dangers involved in the proposals. I for one, and more so when an appeal has been made from certain quarters to my class instinct, am one with the object of the amendment. Not only because I come from a class which is primarily the most exploited, but also I being to a party whose objective has always been to raise the common man to a higher level. As I have said I am one with the object of this amendment, but we have also to consider whether there is some danger in this proposal or not, and whether the proposal will work to the disadvantage of the working-classes. If after that through examination you find that it is only in the interest of the working classes, then I will not have the least objection in accepting the amendment.

I will take the amendments item by item and will take them in the reverse order in order to facilitate the argument.

"(iii) To make through Union representatives personal investigation regarding complaints of its members by going within the premises of the establishment and the employer shall make reasonable arrangements for all these purposes."

I find that Diwan Chaman Lall has left. But I am not in the position of Mr. Bernard Shaw and I do not take Dr. Pattabhi Sitaramayya to be the man in the gallery. If I am opposed to this amendment, Sir, I am not opposed on the ground on which Dr. Pattabhi Sitaramayya will oppose it. I do not oppose it. Rather I feel that it is superfluous. In view of the fact that in the Trade Dispute Act which the Legislative Assembly passed recently provision has been made for the constitution of works committees in every factory and industry, with a view that the day to day problems which may arise in the factory or in the industry may be smoothened by mutual discussion and negotiation between the employers and the employees. When a provision like that is already there on the statute book, I do not find any utility of this provision and I am sure the Mover of this amendment will withdraw it. The second item relates to the collection of subscriptions from the members within the premises. On the face of it this appears to be useful from the point of view of growth of Trade Unions. I am one of those who believe that the healthy growth of Trade Unionism is not only imperative but absolutely necessary in the interests of the industry of this country. But this Bill is not for organised labour; organised labour is in a position to take care of itself and will not wait for an Act like this where compulsory recognition is forced on the employers. Organised labour will fight out its own battles and settle with the employers; this Bill is primarily meant for disorganised labour which is not in a position to organise itself and face the employers or—if I may say so, coerce them to accept their reasonable demands. I know the condition of plantation labourers; I know that even if this provision is made in this Bill it will not help plantation labourers. Criminal trespass, for instance, will be there. In the tea plantation area the roads belong to the planters and I was told in Assam that people are not allowed to enter not merely the tea estate premises but even to use the roads; that would be criminal trespass.

Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena: Provision should be made to remove that disability.

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: I am coming to that, if my Honourable friend will have patience. It is not for the Trade Unions Act to remove that disability. But I may inform my Honourable friend that soon after I assumed office as Minister I convened a tripartite conference for plantation labour. I brought the facts to the notice of the planters and I may inform the House that I had reasonable success in persuading the planters not to behave as they had been behaving in the past; and I think the political change in the country is in itself a great change in the attitude of the planters and there will be no restrictions as used to be there in the past. There are other labourers; we have to think of labourers who are disorganised and whose condition is even worse than that of plantation labour. It may not be quite palatable to many labour leaders and workers when I say that very few labour leaders have given any attention to that section of labour which requires their attention the most, and that is agricultural labour. Nobody has taken the trouble to go to them because they are scattered; they are not so easy to organise and it is no easy to make collections from them. It may be, as I said, unpalatable to some sections but that is a fact. This Bill is primarily meant for that section of the working classes which are the most exploited and the most disorganised. You conceive only of factories and you then think of entering those premises. I conceive also of places where there are no factories and no premises.

The second thing is that if provision is made for collection of subscription from members within the premises, what will be the result? The result will be that the membership of the union may increase very soon, but there is another danger as well; and I want to point it out not only to the Mover of this amendment but to the supporters also. If even after that the House feels that this provision is necessary I as one representing a popular Government will have to mend before it. But I see a real danger in this, the development of yellow unions which will go against the working classes, the formation of unions which may be to the liking of the employers themselves, and the employers will have every advantage for the collection of subscriptions from the workers through their own agents who may be elected with their connivance to offices in the union. We have to guard against that. I as one who has the interests of the working classes at heart feel that that danger is there and that the employers will be in a better position to utilise the provision to their own advantage as against the interest of the workers. If I oppose this I do it on that consideration, that the interests of the working classes will not be promoted by this.

Then I come to the first item. There are some persons who may take undue advantage of this but I shall not have any serious objection to this clause being accepted.

There has been some talk about obligations being put upon unions in this Bill. I do not find that there is any serious obligation put on the unions; and if any conditions have been laid down I personally feel very strongly that are in the best interest of the working classes and of the growth of trade unionism itself. If I have put in these provisions I have not done so in order to safeguard the interest of the employers or of industry but to safeguard the interest of the workers and the trade unions. Any one who feels that these obligations have been put on the trade unions in order to prevent the growth of trade unionism, has not understood the spirit of trade unionism at all. There are obligations on the employers as well which will be found in clause 28-K and to which I will draw attention. If my Honourable friend Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena had taken care to go through this clause he would not have raised all those points about the executives being coerced, prosecuted, discharged, dismissed and fined, etc. All these provisions are there. I not only come from the working classes but I have also some experience of working among the working classes; and if Mr. Saksena speaks from experience I also speak from experience. So I say that if he had taken care to go through this clause he would not have raised all those points.

Sir, I do not propose to reply to all the points that have been raised. I have placed my views on these amendments before the House; if the House feels that the amendment as it stands should be accepted I will have some real difficulty.

I strongly feel that clause (ii) will go against the interests and the healthy growth of trade unionism and clause (iii) is unnecessary in view of the provisions of the Trades Disputes Act. I am prepared to accept clause 1.

Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena: Will the Honourable Minister appoint a sub-committee to go into this sector again and to amend it by providing safeguards against the points he made out?

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: I have given my view. I accept clause (i) and not (ii) and (iii).

Mr. Speaker: I should like to have one point clarified. In case the Honourable Member is prepared to accept (i), does he accept it as it stands?

Shri K. Santhanam: The language has to be changed.

Mr. Speaker: I am asking the Honourable the Minister that when he accepts the amendment, he will have to see how it fits in with the other parts of the legislation. Therefore it will be a question of language also.

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: Yes.

Mr. Speaker: I will put the amendment to the House. I shall now divide it into two parts: No. (i) to be taken first and Nos. (ii) and (iii) will then be taken together.

Shri K. Santhanam: I wish to ask leave of the House to withdraw parts (ii) and (iii).

Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena: Leave is not granted, Sir!

Mr. Speaker: Even when clause (i) is accepted, so far as the language is concerned, the words "and the employer shall make reasonable arrangements for all these purposes" will have to undergo a change.

Shri K. Santhanam: "For this purpose," and '(i)' will go.

Mr. Speaker: We will accept the language as it comes. I therefore wish to split the amendment into three parts, but meanwhile the Honourable Member wishes leave to withdraw parts (ii) and (iii).

Shri M. S. Aney (Deccan and Madras States Group): Is it permissible for a Member to withdraw parts of an amendment? If he must, he either withdraws the whole or none.

Mr. Speaker: I was considering that difficulty. But I made the suggestion because I thought that if an amendment could be put to the House in parts there is no reason why the Chair could not allow him to withdraw any part.

Mr. Naziruddin Ahmad (West Bengal: Muslim): The whole thing depends upon whether the amendment is divisible. The amendment in question is clearly divisible and can be withdrawn in part.

Mr. Speaker: Has he got leave of the House to withdraw parts (ii) and (iii)?

Some Honourable Members: No.

The Assembly refused leave to withdraw.

Mr. Speaker: I am putting the amendment to the vote in three parts. We will take the first part.

The question is:

"That in clause 4 of the Bill, in the proposed Chapter IIIA, after the proposed section 28F, the following new section be inserted, namely:

"28F (A). The executive of a recognised Union shall be entitled to display notices of the Union within the premises where its members are employed and the employer shall make reasonable arrangements for the purpose."

This is subject to the understanding that the language will be revised and that the revised language will come in as an amendment in the proper form in the third reading.

The motion was adopted.

Mr. Speaker: I will take the remaining two together.

Dr. B. Pattabhi Sitaramayya: Does the House give permission to do so.

Mr. Speaker: The permission to withdraw must be unanimous. If any one opposes it, I must put it to the House.

Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena: Put clauses (ii) and (iii) Separately, Sir.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That in clause 4 of the Bill, in the proposed Chapter IIIA, after the proposed section 28F, the following new section be inserted, namely:

"28F (A) (ii) The executive of a recognised Union shall be entitled to collect subscriptions from its members within such premises, and the employer shall make reasonable arrangements for this purpose'."

The motion was negatived.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That in clause 4 of the Bill, in the proposed Chapter IIIA, after the proposed section 28F, the following new section be inserted, namely:

"28F (A)(ii) The Executive of a recognised Union shall be entitled to make through Union representatives personal investigation regarding complaints of its members by going within the premises of the establishment, and the employer shall make reasonable arrangements for this purpose'."

The motion was negatived.

Mr. Speaker: The question is;

"That clause 4, as amended, stand part of the Bill."

The motion was adopted.

Clause 4 as amended was added to the Bill.

Clause 5 was added to the Bill.

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: Sir, I move:

"That for part (b) of clause 6 of the Bill, the following be substituted, namely:

'(b) in sub-section (2), after the words "that section" the words and figures "or in or from any return referred to in section 28I" shall be inserted'."

This is a formal amendment. Instead of 28K it should be 28 l.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That for part (b) of clause 6 of the Bill, the following be substituted, namely:

'(b) in sub-section (2), after the words "that section" the words and figures "or in or from any return referred to in section 28I" shall be inserted'."

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That clause 6, as amended, stand part of the Bill."

The motion was adopted.

Clause 6 as amended was added to the Bill.

Mr. Speaker: Clause 7

Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena: Sir, I have not tabled an amendment to this clause, as I got the Bill only this morning. The Honourable Minister said just now while he was replying to the debate on another amendment that he had provided certain obligations on the part of employers also. He has provided a penalty for unfair practices and here it is mentioned that unfair practices will be punishable with a fine to the extent of Rs. 1000. I should point out that this is an illusory provision, because for an employer the paying of a fine of Rs. 1,000 is nothing, the corresponding obligation upon the workers is that they cannot go on strike except under very stringent conditions and if they resort to an irregular strike the recognition of the union itself can be taken away. I should therefore think that some punishment of imprisonment should be provided as a penalty, for unfair practices by proprietors because that would be really effective and would act as some sort of deterrent to make them carry out their obligations. I would suggest that the Honourable Minister should provide the punishment of imprisonment up to one month to the proprietors if any unfair practices are found to have occurred in their concerns.

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: I have nothing to say except that the provision here is sufficient to meet the purpose. I do not think that for all employers the sum of Rs. 1,000 is nothing. My Honourable friend himself knows that there are many employers for whom Rs. 1,000 is quite a sufficient amount. Let this provision be given a trial.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That clause 7 stand part of the Bill."

The motion was adopted.

Clause 7 was added to the Bill.

Clause 1 was added to the Bill.

The Title and the Preamble were added to the Bill.

Mr. Speaker: The further motion, I believe, will have to be taken up tomorrow. Meanwhile the Honourable Member will have the language of the amendment settled.

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Wednesday, the 19th November, 1947.

CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY OF INDIA (LEGISLATIVE)

Wednesday, 19th November, 1947

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber of the Council House at Eleven of the Clock, Mr. Speaker (The Honourable Mr. G. V. Mavalankar) in the Chair.

STARRED QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(a) ORAL ANSWERS

DIVISION OF ASSETS BETWEEN INDIA AND PAKISTAN

58. *Shri Biswanath Das: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Home Affairs be pleased to lay on the table of the House a statement embodying the principles on which division of assets including those of the Defence Department are made between India and Pakistan?

(b) What is the basis underlying such principles, viz., population or mutual contribution of taxation or any other basis in deciding such principles?

(c) Do Government propose to place in the Library of the House a detailed account of population, area and also map or maps showing the respective Railway lines, canals and river courses etc., in the respective areas of India and Pakistan?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: (a) and (b). I lay on the table the terms of reference of the Expert Committee on the division of assets and liabilities which sets out the general principles. It is obviously impossible to have an uniform basis for all assets and liabilities as account has to be taken of all circumstances such as physical location, territorial distribution, and the requirements of the Dominions. I may however mention that the division of the assets and liabilities is not yet completed and as some of the outstanding issues are likely to be referred to the Arbitral Tribunal I am unable to give any further information at this stage.

(c) A statement and maps are placed in the library of the House.

Terms of reference of Expert Committee No. II.—Assets and Liabilities

- (1) To compile lists of assets by broad categories showing value and present location.
- (2) To make recommendations as to the division of assets between the two successor Governments. The general principle should be to secure the greatest good of the two States, but if there are disputed claims for fixed assets, like plant and machinery, the removal of which might be detrimental to the interests of the other Government, the facts of each case should be reported for consideration by the Partition Council.
- (3) When division is impracticable, to make recommendation either for mutual assistance or for joint administration or for any other arrangement for such period as may be necessary.
- (4) To make recommendations in regard to the financial settlement between the two Governments arising from the above as well as from an allocation of the public debt, pensions and other liabilities.
- (5) To recommend measures for giving effect to any transfer of assets after the recommendations have been accepted by the Partition Council.

* The 1941 Census saw a considerable extension of actual enumeration in the North-West Agency and tribal areas beyond the administered border. The simplified questions put did not cover community as such, only tribe, but it may be taken that the number of persons affected viz. 706,994 is Muslim.

* A population figure for the remainder was, as at past censuses, reached by estimate. No specific community information is therefore available. Here too however the conditions of the region indicate that the whole number, viz., 1,624,338 can be regarded as Muslim.

The N. W. F. P. figures does not include these.

Mr. B. Poker Sahib Bahadur: In view of the long statement that has been placed on the table of the House which does not enable Members to scrutinize it at this stage, may I suggest that an opportunity to put supplementary questions on this question may be afforded to the House tomorrow?

Mr. Speaker: I am afraid it is not possible to do so. In fact, I was thinking of requesting Honourable Members that in cases where they want information of this type, it is better that they put in unstarred questions. Starred questions always create a difficulty of this nature. Further, I felt from the answer given by the Honourable Home Minister that, any question on this matter would necessarily be relating to a matter which in the nature of sub judice. As the matter is referred to arbitration it is desirable that no further questions are put.

FIXATION OF BASIC VALUE OF CURRENCY

59. *Shri S. Nagappa: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Finance be pleased to state whether there is any scheme or proposal under contemplation of Government for fixing the basic value of the currency?

(b) What portion of the Indian Union finance is in the shape of paper currency and in coin?

(c) Do Government propose to consider the desirability of changing the design of the present currency to suit the Indian Union Government?

(d) What percentage of inflation were the Government able to check by withdrawal of Rs. 1,000 and Rs. 500 notes?

(e) What portion of the basic value of the currency is in Gold Reserves?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: (a) I regret I do not follow the question.

(b) Presumably the Honourable Member wants to know the total notes and coins in circulation. The total notes in circulation on 7th November, 1947 amounted to Rs. 1,200.75 crores. As regards coins, the exact amount is not known but the value of coins put into circulation since 1914-15 to the end of 1946-47 amounted to Rs. 243.32 crores.

The detailed information about notes is contained in the Weekly Accounts of the Reserve Bank which are published in the Gazette of India that as regards coins is contained in the Reserve Bank's Report on Currency and Finance for 1946-47.

(c) Yes. The matter will certainly be taken into consideration.

(d) The object of the demonetisation of high denomination notes was not to check inflation but, as explained in the Press Communique issued on the 12th January 1946, to bring the black market operations within the knowledge of the Government and the taxing authorities in particular.

(e) The value of the gold holding of the Reserve Bank, as given in its weekly Accounts, is Rs. 44.41 crores.

Shri S. Nagappa: Arising out of the answer to part (d) of the question may I ask the Finance Minister whether there is any scheme under the contemplation of Government to check inflation?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: With regard to this matter a complete answer cannot be given in the course of an answer to a question. But I may tell the Honourable Member that the problem of inflation today can be checked only by increasing the volume of production in the country. The Government is taking every possible step in that direction.

Shri B. Das: Is the Honourable the Finance Minister aware that one of his predecessors, Sir Jeremy Raisman, passed an ordinance withdrawing all the silver coins that were in circulation? Will the Finance Minister tell the House.

how much of the coins, valued Rs. 243 crores, were withdrawn from circulation? As far as I know, all the silver coins were withdrawn.

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: If the Honourable Member wants to have information as to the amount of silver coins withdrawn from circulation, I would like to have notice of that question.

Shri Ajit Prasad Jain: Will the Honourable the Finance Minister inform the House what was the total value of the Rs. 1,000 and Rs. 500 notes which were cancelled in 1946?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: The total value of high denomination notes in circulation on 11th January, 1946 was Rs. 143.97 crores and the total value of notes exchanged up to 10th October, 1947 is Rs. 134.94 crores.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: Will the Honourable Minister tell the House as to what is the value of the paper currency in circulation?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: The gold that we have in the currency reserve is valued at Rs. 44.41 crores.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: What about silver?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: With regard to the holdings of silver, Government do not generally publish any information on that point, and I regret I am not in a position to give the information.

Mr. B. Pocker Sahib Bahadur: Will the Honourable the Finance Minister be pleased to state how far the object of bringing to book black-marketeers, which is said to be the object of withdrawing high denomination notes, has been achieved by the order issued by the Government?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: At any rate a very fruitful avenue for black-marketing has been closed by the withdrawal of these high denomination notes. With regard to the examination of the notes surrendered and exchanged, the matter is still under the examination of the Central Board of Revenue and some of this will come out during the Tax Investigation Commission's work.

Shri M. Ananthasaynam Ayyangar: May I ask when the last valuation was made? The Honourable Minister said that the backing for this currency is in the form of gold of the value of Rs. 44.41 crores. May I ask when the last valuation was made, whether it is being made from year to year, or whether it has been made recently on the bloated prices that rule the market at present?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: No, Sir. Our gold in the currency reserve is very much under-valued. In fact we have not revalued the gold at all after the rise in the price of gold. As Honourable Members must be aware, the internal price of gold in India is very much more than the world price of gold. At the rate of the world price the gold as reserve for our currency will be worth Rs. 90.80 crores.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: When was this valuation—Rs. 44.41 crores—made?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: That was made years ago when the price of gold was stable.

Shri S. Nagappa: In view of the fact that black-marketing is still rampant, what further steps do Government propose to take?

Mr. Speaker: How does it arise out of the question?

Shri S. Nagappa: Sir, it arises out of the answer to part (d) of the question where the Honourable Minister has stated that the object was to check black-marketing. I wish to know what further steps Government propose to take as still there is black-marketing?

Mr. Speaker: I am afraid it does not arise out of the question. Next question.

DISHONOURING THE INDIAN UNION FLAG

60. *Shri S. Nagappa: Will the Honourable Minister of Home Affairs be pleased to state:

(a) whether Government are aware of any incident of dishonouring the Indian Union Flag anywhere in India;

(b) if so, where;

(c) what action Government have taken so far; and

(d) if no action has been taken yet, what action Government propose to take?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: (a) and (b). A few cases of disrespect to the Flag have been reported from Madras, Bombay, West Bengal, the United Provinces, Ajmer-Merwara and Delhi.

(c) and (d). In some cases, where Government servants were involved, suitable disciplinary action has been taken. In other cases action has been taken under the law.

Seth Govinddas: Is it not a fact Sir, that in several Indian States, on the 15th of August the Indian flag was dishonoured and one of those States is Mailhar in Central India?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: On enquiry made from the State concerned, the reply has been received that they hoisted the National flag and took part in the ceremony.

Seth Govinddas: Are there any other Indian States where the Indian flag was dishonoured?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: A reference was made to Hyderabad and they also denied the allegation.

Pandit Balkrishna Sharma: During the last session of the Constituent Assembly I brought to the notice of the Honourable the Leader of the House as also the Honourable the Home Minister that in my province the Army Command had issued a notice that on the 15th August if orders were to be received replacing the Union Jack by any other flag, no ceremony will take place. Is the Government aware that such an order was issued by the U. P. Command and that as the result of that order, no flag hoisting ceremony was performed in any Military Cantonment or establishment in the United Provinces? May I know if the Government are aware of these facts and whether any notice has been taken by the Government of these facts and whether the military officers have been proceeded against?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: I have got a report giving information so far as the United Provinces are concerned. One officer failed to hoist the national flag and he was dismissed. The Principal of a European School failed to hoist the flag on Independence Day. The grant to the school was suspended, as also in some cases where sufficient enthusiasm was not shown. There is no other case so far as the U. P. is concerned.

An Honourable Member: Does the Honourable Minister know that the R. S. S. and Hindu Mahasabha bodies are often maligning and staging against the National flag and delivering lectures? Is he aware of any such facts?

Mr. Speaker: Order, order.

An Honourable Member: May I know if the Honourable Minister is aware of the fact that exception was taken by a very high military official of Indian Forces to the wearing of National flag badges at a dinner given in honour of the Pakistan military personnel in Delhi?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: Government have no knowledge. In fact if any proof is given, enquiry will be made.

Shri S. Nagappa: May I know whether Government has received any representation from people of the Hyderabad State as regards the dishonouring of the National flag?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: As I have already stated, a reference was made to the State concerned and a denial was issued publicly by the Hyderabad Government.

Shri S. Nagappa: In practice if a particular State dishonours the National Flag and on enquiry if it denies the fact, what do the Government propose to do to investigate into the matter and see that proper honour is given to the flag?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: The denial is accepted.

NUMBER OF RADIOS IMPORTED AND BROADCASTING STATIONS IN INDIA

61. *Shri S. Nagappa: Will the Honourable Minister of Information and Broadcasting be pleased to state:

- (a) the total number of broadcasting stations in India province wise;
- (b) the total number of radios imported during the last 3 years—year wise; and
- (c) whether Government propose to provide the rural areas with more radio sets?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: (a) Six; 2 in Madras, 1 each in Bombay, West Bengal, United Provinces and Delhi.

(b) 1944-45—895.

1946-47—1,07,114.

(c) Provision of community sets for rural areas is undertaken by Provincial Governments and the basic plan of development covers this item.

Seth Govinddas: Are the Government aware that in the Central Provinces there is no broadcasting station and the Government several times promised that in Nagpur they are going to have one. May I know by what date the Nagpur broadcasting station will be established?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: Nagpur is included in the 5-year Plan, and steps are being taken to start broadcasting stations in all the five provinces covered by the new Development Programme, by the beginning of the next year.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: When is the promised broadcasting station for the Andhra area going to be started?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: Just about the same time as in Nagpur.

Shri Jadubans Sahay: In view of the fact that there is no broadcasting station in the province of Bihar, do the Government propose to take immediate steps for having such a station?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: The first broadcasting station that begins to function hereafter will be at Patna.

Shri S. Nagappa: Is it a fact that the Honourable Minister for Public Information in Madras has made a representation to the Central Government as regards the great importance of having a Broadcasting Centre at Bezwada for the Andhra public?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: It has been announced already that Bezwada is to be one of the stations under the new programme.

Shri Raj Krishna Bose: Is it contemplated to open a broadcasting station very soon in the province of Orissa?

(No reply)

NUMBER OF STATES ACCEDED TO THE INDIAN UNION

62. *Shri S. Nagappa: Will the Honourable Minister of States be pleased to state:

- (a) the total number of States that have so far acceded to the Indian Union;
- (b) the number of their representatives in the Constituent Assembly;
- (c) the total population of the States that have come under the Indian Union;
- (d) the number of States that are still neutral; and
- (e) the number of States that have joined Pakistan?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: (a) I refer the Honourable Member to the statement which I shall be laying on the table of the House in regard to the Instrument of Accession executed by States.

(b) 63.

(c) 72,000,000 (nearly).

(d) One (i.e., Hyderabad).

(e) We have no official information.

Shri S. Nagappa: Arising out of the answer to part (b), may I ask, Sir, out of the 63 representatives, how many of them are Harijans and why the States have ignored the Harijan representation?

Mr. Speaker: Order, order. The Honourable Member can ascertain himself.

Shri H. V. Kamath: How many of these representatives are elected and how many nominated?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: 50 per cent. are elected, according to the settlement made between the two negotiating Committees.

Shri Ajit Prasad Jain: Is the Honourable Minister aware that eight villages of the Hyderabad State have declared independence, and how do the Government propose to deal with those villages?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: I do not think the question arises.

Shri Vishwambhar Dayal Tripathi: Is Junagadh now included in the States that have joined the Indian Union?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: Junagadh State acceded to Pakistan and for that all this trouble arose. I thought the Honourable Member knew about this.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Is it not proposed to fix any time limit for these negotiations with Hyderabad in regard to the question of accession?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: Well, the date given this time, that is about the 25th of November, is probably the last.

Shri Jai Sukh Lal Hathi: Is the Honourable Minister aware that the Talukdars in the Thanas of Dabhoda and Nirmali in Western India and Gujerat States are not allowed to accede and have been kept attached to Baroda State?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: I promise to make enquiries. I have no information on the subject.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Is it not a fact that seven or eight villages of Hyderabad State, which have declared themselves independent of the Nizam's control, have asked the Government of India to let them come into the Indian Union?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: We have received no application for accession from any of the villages referred to.

FINANCIAL STABILITY OF INDIA

63. *Shri Biswanath Das: Will the Honourable Minister of Finance be pleased to state:

(a) whether the statement made by him at a reception accorded to him by the Indian Merchants' Chamber of Commerce at Bombay, as reported by the Associated Press of India from Bombay on the 29th September, 1947 that "in a war-torn world where financial foundations of many countries have been shattered, those of our country are very sound. Our capacity to borrow is as sound as that of the United States of America. We stand on firm foundations" represents the correct version;

(b) the extent and amount of money (in terms of rupees) for which currency notes were issued till the date of declaration of World War No. II in 1939 and the bullion backing which the currency note issue had for itself in India;

(c) the extent and amount of money (in terms of rupees) for which currency notes issue stand upto the end of June 1947 and also the bullion backing which the currency notes issue had in India upto the end of June 1947; and

(d) the respective silver and gold reserves of the Government of India and those of the Government of the United States of America on the 30th June, 1947?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: (a) Yes.

(b) Rs. 216.78 crores and Rs. 44.41 crores respectively.

(c) Rs. 1,265.17 crores and Rs. 44.41 crores respectively.

(d) Presumably the Honourable Member is referring to the reserves of the Central Banks. I would refer him to the statistics contained in the Reserve Bank of India Report on Currency and Finance for 1946-47 and Reserve Bank of India Bulletins which are published every month.

Shri Biswanath Das: Since the statistics for Provinces are not known and since it is not readily available to the Members of this House, will the Honourable Minister be pleased to lay on the table a copy of the reference he has just referred to?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: My Honourable friend is confusing the statistical publications. It is not the statistical Abstract of India. The Reserve Bank of India publishes a monthly bulletin which contains these statistics, which is easily available; and they publish an annual report on Currency and Finance, copies of which are available in the Library of the House and if they are not, I will see that copies are kept there.

Shri Biswanath Das: Sir, arising out of the reply the Honourable the Finance Minister has given in respect of (b), I should like to know the value of the silver and gold reserves that we have against our paper currency.

Mr. Speaker: That has already been answered in the first question.

Mr. Biswanath Das: I am sorry I could not hear it, Sir.

Mr. Speaker: The Honourable Member may refer to the proceedings.

SALARIES TO STAFF OF FOOD, TEXTILES AND INDUSTRIES DEPARTMENTS

64. *Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: Will the Honourable Minister of Finance please state the total amount of salaries paid to the entire staff for each of the years 1944, 1945 and 1946 under the heads 'Food, Textile and Industries', articles of which are under the control of the Government of India?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: The expenditure in each of the three financial years ending with 1946-47 was as follows:

Rs. 1,04,70,935	1,44,61,679	1,39,31,263

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: Sir, will the Honourable Minister also indicate what is the expenditure on the control of petrol, if he has figures?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: I want notice.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Is any effort being made, Sir, to cut down the expenditure under this heading?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: As controls are relaxed the expenditure will automatically go down.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Is the Honourable Minister quite satisfied that the expenditure that is now being incurred has got to be incurred and there is no possibility at all of its being reduced even under the present circumstances?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: Government always keep in view of the possibilities of retrenchment in every Department.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Sir, that does not quite meet my point at all. Is any serious effort being made to keep a close watch on this expenditure and is there any machinery whose business it is to review this expenditure from time to time and see that it is cut down?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: Sir, every proposal for new expenditure which is put up by a Department of Government is very carefully scrutinised by the Ministry of Finance. Only then the establishment comes into force, and thereafter it is the duty of the Departmental Heads to see that no surplus staff is retained when there is no need. That is the general principle governing all establishments of Government Departments.

Shri M. S. Aney: May I ask the Honourable Member whether he contemplates the possibility of the reduction of expenditure under this heading, and also the possibility of the de-control of these things in the near future?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: Sir, as the Finance Minister, I am always interested in reducing expenditure in every Department. Therefore, I am on the Honourable Member's side so far as that point is concerned. With regard to the possibility of decontrol, I am afraid a subject like that cannot be dealt with during question time.

Shri K. Santhanam: May I know, Sir, if the figures given by the Honourable the Finance Minister include the cost of the salaries of the staffs maintained by Provincial Governments for the same purposes?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: No, no. These are the expenses of the Central Government.

Shri K. Santhanam: Will the Finance Minister let the Members know the total expenditure incurred on this by the Central Government as well as the Provincial Governments?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: The figures regarding the provinces are not available.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: May I know, Sir, the expenditure of the Textile Commissioner's Office in Bombay as far as the Central Government is concerned?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: Expenditure on textile control as a whole was Rs. 46,59,679 in 1946-47. This includes the expenditure on the Textile Commissioner's Office.

Shri Raj Krishna Bose: Will the Honourable Minister please state what was the total expenditure on control of food only for the year 1946-47?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: The expenditure for the control on foodstuffs for 1946-47 was Rs. 35,38,887.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: A request was made by this House to the previous Government to appoint a Committee to investigate the possibilities of retrenchment in the staff of the Government of India. Is the Honourable Minister continuing the proposal?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: Sir, it was my intention soon after I assumed office to appoint an economy committee but we got such a shock on account of these communal disturbances that I thought I must wait for some time before I set up any machinery of economy for the purpose.

Dr. B. Pattabhi Sitaramayya: Will not the appointment of an economy committee add to the expenditure still further?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: The immediate effect will be an increase of expenditure.

LOAN BY INDIA TO PAKISTAN .

65. *Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: Will the Honourable Minister of Finance please state:

(a) the amount given on loan by the Government of India to the Government of Pakistan, after the division of India i.e., after the 15th August, 1947; and

(b) the conditions under which this loan is given and when it is repayable?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: (a) The Government of India have not given any loan to the Government of Pakistan.

(b) Does not arise.

Shri H. V. Kamath: Has the Pakistan Government asked for any loan from the Government of India?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: No, they have not asked me and they would not get it even if they asked for it.

Shri R. K. Sidhwa: May I know what amount was given to the Pakistan Government on the day when they separated and what amount out of it is to be repaid to the Government of India?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: From the cash balance, an amount of Rs. 20 crores was given to the Pakistan Government at the time of Partition for them to start the new concern.

Dr. B. Pattabhi Sitaramayya: Is the Honourable the Finance Minister aware of the fact that it was said in the Press sometime ago that the Imperial Bank made a loan of Rs. 10 crores to the Government of Pakistan?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: I have no information as to whether the Imperial Bank has made any loan to the Pakistan Government. I do not think that they have. But this Rs. 20 crores is the amount which was placed at their disposal when the partition was actually effected because the Pakistan Government must necessarily have a cash working balance to start its business.

Shri K. Santhanam: Was this amount of Rs. 20 crores given on loan or as advance, and to what account was it to be debited?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: The exact proportion in which the cash balance of the Government of India on the 15th August 1947 is to be divided is a matter which will come before the Arbitral Tribunal and if these Rs. 20 crores come within that limit, that means Pakistan gets these Rs. 20 crores.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Or otherwise?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: They may get more or they may get less. It all depends on the decision of the Arbitration Tribunal.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: May I know if these Rs. 20 crores is Pakistan's due share?

Mr. Speaker: It is obvious from the answer that it is only an estimate.

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: Their share of the cash balance is a matter which is to be decided by the Arbitral Tribunal.

GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES OPTING TO SERVE INDIA

66. *Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Home Affairs please state the total number of Government employees serving in various departments in Pakistan Government, who have desired to opt out and serve in the Government of India Departments?

(b) How many have actually been transferred and how many still require to be transferred?

(c) If the transfer is not complete, what steps do Government propose to take to send for them and within what period?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: (a) and (b). On the basis of available information the number of Central Government servants who were employed in the offices located in Pakistan areas and opted for service in the Dominion of India is 1,39,703; the number of such Government servants who have so far been transferred is 1,19,223; and the number of Government servants who are yet to be transferred is 20,480.

(c) The Government of India are trying their best to get the transfers completed as early as possible.

Seth Govinddas: Is it a fact that those Government servants who, in the beginning, desired to go to Pakistan now do not wish to go there and want that they should be retained where they are?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: Those who have opted for Pakistan will ordinarily be sent there or have gone there, but in some cases a person is entitled to finalise his option within a period of six months. If within the period of six months they do not change their mind, then the option stands, but if within those six months they change their option and want to go to the other Dominion then the question will be decided on their revised option.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: Out of the figure of 1,39,703 who have opted for service in the Dominion of India, may I know how many are in the Railways, how many in the Posts and Telegraphs and how many in the Customs?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: I am not in a position to give the figures per Department, but I will make enquiries and supply the information if so desired.

Shri M. S. Aney: Can this option be exercised by them after their going to Pakistan?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: Option is generally exercised in the initial instance before going. It is exercised by each individual officer or employee, but some did not make final choice. They gave an option subject to the condition that if within the period of six months any of them want to return, then they have a right to return.

Shri H. V. Kamath: Have any instance already occurred of officers who left India for service in Pakistan, and after disillusionment re-offered their services to India?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: Some of the officers thought that there was Heaven in Pakistan; they have later found that it was not so and wanted to come back and make declarations of their loyalty to India. I may make it clear that those who could change in this manner had only made a provisional decision initially.

BANNING OF INDIAN UNION FLAG BY HYDERABAD STATE

67. *Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: Will the Honourable Minister of States please state:

(a) whether it is a fact that the Hyderabad State authorities have banned the hoisting of the Union of India Flag by citizens on their buildings;

(b) if the reply to part (a) above be in the negative, the reasons why the State authorities pull down such flags and arrest persons;

(c) whether the Government of India have addressed the State authorities in this respect; if so with what result; and

(d) whether Government propose to place on the table of the House the correspondence exchanged between the Government of India and the Hyderabad State authorities in this matter?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: (a) According to the information given to us by the State, there is no ban on individual citizens flying the Union Flag on their houses.

(b) The State denies such allegations; if individual officers commit such acts, it is obviously in excess of their authority.

(c) and (d). The Government of India have enquired of H.E.H. the Nizam's Government regarding the incidents and have received the reply from Nawab of Chhatari, which I shall read for the information of the House. This is the text of the Telegram.

"Your telegram seventeenth. Reports that Indian Union Flag was pulled down by the State authorities or political workers were arrested on Friday for hoisting and saluting it absolutely baseless. Despite State's jurisdiction Indian Union flag was allowed to be flown on fifteenth August side by side with State flag on post offices and other Indian institutions continuing under standstill arrangements. Individuals were at liberty and actually displayed Indian Union flag on private buildings and otherwise without any let or hindrance. Hindustan Times report is being officially contradicted by us through the press."

Shri Basanta Kumar Das: May I know whether the Government are aware of the fact that a National Flag of our High Commissioner was insulted by the Pakistan Government or Pakistan people?

Mr. Speaker: It does not arise.

NAMES OF STATES ACCEDED TO THE INDIAN DOMINION

68. *Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: Will the Honourable Minister of States please state:

(a) the names of the States which have signed the Instrument of Accession and acceded to the Dominion of India; and

(b) whether Hyderabad and Kashmir States have acceded; if not, whether any correspondence has passed between them and the Government of India; if so, whether Government propose to place it on the table of the House?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: (a) I refer the Honourable Member to the statement which I shall be laying on the table of the House in regard to the Instrument of Accession executed by States.

(b) Kashmir has acceded to the Dominion of India. As regards Hyderabad, the matter is under negotiation and it will not be in public interest to place copies of the correspondence on the table of the House.

Mr. Speaker: Next question No. 69, Mr. Khaitan.

Shri B. Das: Might I be permitted to put this question, Sir? This and question No. 68 are both very interesting.

Mr. Speaker: There is no authority given by Mr. Khaitan. Even if there were, according to the usual procedure, these questions should come after the whole list is exhausted. So there is no chance of the Honourable Member putting these questions in place of Mr. Khaitan.

(c) the amount of the present debt owed by Burma to India showing how much was against the old debt and how much against the new debt incurred after the separation of Burma?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: (a) At the time of the separation, the Provincial Government of Burma owed Rs. 6,74,94,285 and the Shan States Federation Rs. 13,42,627 to the Central Government.

(b) Burma's debt to India on separation exclusive of the liability for Central Pensions and the assets and liabilities arising out of the currency system for both of which separate arrangements were made, was fixed at Rs. 50,79,81,000 repayable over a period of forty-five years.

(c) The repayment of this debt and the payment of Burma's share of pensions were suspended in 1942 when Burma was overrun by the Japanese and has not been resumed since. A sum of Rs. 48,14,55,147 is outstanding out of the original debt and Rs. 2,99,35,151 on account of pensions, the latter for the period ending the 31st March 1946 the accounts of which have been closed. No loan was given to Burma after separation.

PRODUCTION OF QUININE

†70. *Shri Debi Prosad Khaitan: Will the Honourable Minister of Health be pleased to state:

(a) the quantity of quinine produced at present in the country and the quantity required to meet its needs; and

(b) whether any new drug has been found to be more efficacious than quinine for the prevention and cure of malaria, and if so, what steps Government have taken for the production thereof in this country?

The Honourable Rajkumari Amrit Kaur: (a) The average annual production of quinine in India, in the last three years, was about 85,000 lbs. In pre-war years when quinine supplies were freely available the average annual consumption of quinine in India was about 210,000 lbs.

(b) A new synthetic drug called "Paludrine" is reported to be more effective than quinine in some respects in the treatment of malaria. The question of the production of synthetic anti-malarial drugs is under examination.

SANCTION FOR CAPITAL ISSUES

†71. *Shri Debi Prosad Khaitan: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Finance be pleased to state for how many companies and for what amount sanction for capital issues was given in 1946, and in 1947 (for as many months of the latter year as it is possible to give figures of), what amount of shares have actually been subscribed and what amount has been paid up?

(b) How many companies, and for what amount, have failed to secure the proper amount of subscription to start business for which sanction was granted?

†Answer to this question laid on the table, the questioner being absent.

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: (a) and (b) I place a statement on the table of the House.

Statement

Year	No. of companies for which sanction given	Amount for which sanction given (Rs. crores.)	Amount subscribed (Rs. crores.)	Amount paid-up
1946	682	240.49	18.241	Not known
1947 (till 30th September 1947.)	390	171.64	Not known.	Not known

1. Companies are required to report action taken regarding issue of capital only 12 months after the issue of consent orders. The figures for 1946 therefore relate only to the companies sanction for which was given between January and September 1946 and which have submitted a report (81 in number).

2. It has been made obligatory only since May 1947 for companies to report paid-up Capital. No figures are therefore available in respect of companies for which consent was given prior to that date.

LOYALTY OF OFFICERS AND RANKS IN DEFENCE FORCE AND POLICE TO GOVERNMENT

†72. Shri Debi Prosad Khaitan: Will the Honourable Minister of Home Affairs be pleased to state what steps have Government taken to ascertain as to which officers and ranks in Defence Forces and the Police of the country are loyal to the Governments in India?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: All officers and other ranks in the Defence Forces have voluntarily opted to serve the Government of India. They took the usual oath, including allegiance and loyalty to Government. Officers and other ranks in the Police Forces also took an oath of allegiance to their respective governments after the 15th August. Disciplinary action has been taken against the few who declined to take such oath of allegiance. Government have no reason to doubt the loyalty of those who are now in service and it is not considered necessary to take any special steps to ascertain the loyalty of individual officers. Specific cases of disloyalty can be always dealt with under the disciplinary regulations.

NAMES OF STATES ACCEDED TO THE DOMINION OF INDIA

†73. R. B. Lala Raj Kanwar: Will the Honourable Minister of States be pleased to state:

(a) the names of the States, the Rulers of which have acceded to the Dominion of India according to the standard form of the Instrument of Accession supplied to the members of this Assembly at its last session;

(b) whether it is a fact that the standard form of the Instrument of Accession has since been modified in the case of certain States; and if so, in what manner and for what reasons;

(c) whether the proposed modifications, if any, are based on understandings previously reached with the States during negotiations with their representatives;

(d) whether the proposed modifications, if any, are in consonance with the provisions of clause (b) of sub-section (1) of section 7 of the Indian Independence Act, 1947 and with the statement of policy in regard to Indian States issued by the Honourable Minister of States on the 5th July, 1947;

†Answer to this question laid on the table, the questioner being absent.

(e) the names of the States to which the modified draft Instrument of Accession has been sent for signature of their Rulers and the date of its transmission; and

(f) whether the Rulers referred to in part (e) above have raised any objection to the proposed modifications, and if so, on what grounds?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: The standard form of Instrument of Accession was signed by all Rulers who enjoyed full powers before the 15th August 1947 and whose accession was accepted by the Indian Dominion. Those States which did not enjoy full powers before the 15th August 1947 were given the alternative Instrument of Accession under which they ceded to the Government of India residuary criminal and civil jurisdiction. These States are mainly to be found in Kathiawar, Central India, Eastern States and Simla Hills. If all these small States were recognised as sovereign States with full powers the resultant position would be utter chaos. The Government of India adhere to the policy that these States should sign the alternative form of instrument of Accession and in fact practically all of them have done so.

COMMITTEE ON INDIGENOUS SYSTEM OF MEDICINE

74. Dr. V. Subrahmanyam: Will the Honourable Minister of Health be pleased to state:

(c) whether Government now propose to appoint only Vaidyas on the Committee relating only to the Indian systems of Medicine?

The Honourable Rajkumari Amrit Kaur: (a) Yes.

(b) There are on the Committee four Vaidas, four Hakims and two Allopaths excluding the Chairman. The number of members who belong to Pakistan on the Committee is only two. The question of their replacement is under consideration.

(c) The Committee is meant to investigate the usefulness of indigenous systems of medicine such as Ayurveda and Unani (Tibbi) and it is not possible to confine the membership to Vaidyas.

श्री आर० वी० धुलेकर : क्या गवर्नमेंट को मालूम है कि जो वैद्य इसमें मेम्बर रखे गये हैं वह सब एम० वी० बी० एस० हैं और वह अपने को वैद्य कहलाने से इन्कार करते हैं ।

Shri R. V. Dhulekar: Are Government aware that all the Vaidyas, who have been appointed members, are M.B.B.S. and they refuse to be called Vaidyas?

The Honourable Rajkumari Amrit Kaur: The Government is aware that the members of the Committee are not only Vaidas but Allopaths also. Government is not aware that they decline to call themselves Vaidas. As a matter of fact originally there were three Vaidas and three Hakims appointed but as a result of representations from important bodies like the All India Ayurvedic

Congress and individuals the number of Vaid and Hakims was increased to four each. In addition, the Committee has been empowered, if necessary, when it tours, to ask to co-opt local Vaid or Hakims during their visits to the Provinces, so that the views of prominent persons in the field of indigenous medicines may be given due weight.

An Honourable Member: Will the Government take the opinion of the All India, Ayurvedic Sammelan as far as the personnel of the members of this Committee is concerned?

The Honourable Rajkumari Amrit Kaur: Government is always willing to give weight to the opinions of anybody, but I submit that the Committee that has been formed is a representative one.

Shri Mohan Lal Saxena: I understand that there is no Ayurvedic practitioner, that is none of the members of the Committee is out and out an Ayurvedic practitioner?

The Honourable Rajkumari Amrit Kaur: I do not think that this information is correct.

Dr. V. Subrahmanyam: Will the Honourable Minister be pleased to state whether Government will consider the question of earmarking a substantial amount in the annual budget for Ayurvedic teaching and Research and spending the same on distributing grants recurring and non-recurring to teaching institutions in the country and also for establishing Ayurvedic Research Department of its own?

The Honourable Rajkumari Amrit Kaur: In view of the fact that Government has appointed a Committee to report on indigenous systems of medicine all these things will be taken into consideration when the report of the Committee is available to the Government.

Dr. V. Subrahmanyam: Will the Honourable Minister be pleased to state the amount the Central Government is now spending over the encouragement of Ayurvedic system of medicine and Ayurvedic Medical relief and research?

The Honourable Rajkumari Amrit Kaur: The answer is in the negative.

An Honourable Member: Will the Honourable Minister be pleased to state whether the Central Government is spending any money in regard for the purchase of Ayurvedic medicines or encouraging the Ayurvedic system in all manner possible?

The Honourable Rajkumari Amrit Kaur: The appointment of a Committee is indicative of the interest which Government bestows on Ayurveda.

K. T. M. Ahmed Ibrahim Sahib Bahadur: May I know whether there are any representatives of Unani and Siddha systems of medicine on the Committee?

The Honourable Rajkumari Amrit Kaur: I have already said there are four Hakims on the Committee.

श्री० आर० वी० धुलेकर : क्या गवर्नमेंट इसका कोई कारण बतला सकती है कि देशी चिकित्सा कमेटी के ऊपर एक एलोपैथिक डाक्टर क्यों चेयरमैन बनाया गया ।

Shri R. V. Dhulekar: Will the Government please state why an Allopathic Doctor was appointed as a Chairman of the Committee on the indigenous systems of medicine?

The Honourable Rajkumari Amrit Kaur: The Chairman was appointed because of the very valuable work that he had done in the matter of research in indigenous drugs.

(c) What is the attitude of the authorities of the Aligarh Muslim University about allowing the Pakistan Government to recruit officers for the Pakistan Army from amongst the University Teaching Staff and students?

(d) Is it permissible or desirable that citizens of India become Officers of an army in a foreign Government?

(e) Is it a fact that the authorities of the Aligarh Muslim University have actively helped or connived at the recruitment of commissioned officers for the Pakistan Army? If so, do the Government of India propose to consider the desirability of stopping all grants and contributions to the Aligarh Muslim University?

(f) What steps do the Government of India propose to take to ensure that the teaching staff and the students of the Aligarh Muslim University be, and remain, loyal citizens of India?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: (a) No, Sir.

(b) Does not arise.

(f) Has any enquiry been made by Government as to the source of supply of these? If so, with what result? If not, why not?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: The matter is under investigation and any statement at this stage will be premature and is likely to prejudice the investigation.

RECOVERY OF UNAUTHORISED AMMUNITION FROM MUSLIM HOUSES

†77. Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Home Affairs please state whether Government are aware, that as a result of Police raid on some Muslim houses at Burgi, 16 miles from Jubbulpur, Cartridge filling machines, Fire-arms, live Bombs and a huge quantity of ammunition, all unauthorized, were seized by the Police?

(b) Has any effort been made by Government to trace the source of supply? If so, with what result?

DECAMPING OF AN ARMED GANG FROM THE GENERAL HEADQUARTERS HUTMENTS WITH AMMUNITION.

78. Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Defence be pleased to state whether it is a fact that on the morning of Thursday the 16th October, 1947 a Gang of about 9 armed men came up to 'Q' Block of the Secretariat hutments in Delhi, walked into the General Headquarters Stores and holding up the sentry at the point of a pistol picked up the key, opened the Armoury and decamped with large quantities of arms and ammunition?

Inside the building, a small quantity of arms and ammunition had been held as an immediate reserve in case of an emergency. The rifles were locked in a rifle rack and the revolvers and ammunition were locked in an ammunition box. The building is not an armoury but a Signal Office.

(b) 10 rifles with bayonets, 17 revolvers, 170 rounds of .38 ammunition and 200 rounds of .303 ammunition.

(c) Yes.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: In regard to the answer just given relating to the number of arrests, will the Honourable Member kindly inform the House if the persons arrested are civilian or military people?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: Sir, I have no information on the matter. They are in police custody.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: There was one sentry placed in regard to the Store House?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: That is the normal guard.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: What is the number of sentries at present?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: At present as I have stated the place is guarded by a fully armed patrol.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: Do I take it that absolutely no resistance was offered to the raiders?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: Sir, I have already stated that the sentry on duty was pushed aside.

Shri Deshbandhu Gupta: Is it a fact that one of the raiders helped himself with the key as he knew where the key on the board was of the two vaults where these rifles were kept in custody? Is it true that some of the arrested men belong to the staff?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: It is just possible, Sir.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: The question was pertinent whether some of the men who were arrested belong to the staff.

Mr. Speaker: He says he has no information.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: Sir, it is a very important matter and the Honourable Member in charge ought to know who were arrested.

Mr. Speaker: The point is he says that he has no information at this time.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: How is it that the Honourable the Defence Member has been so careful as not even to enquire whether the members of the staff are among those who were arrested.

(No reply.)

AMOUNT COLLECTED UNDER THE BUSINESS PROFITS TAX

79. Shri K. Santhanam: Will the Honourable Minister of Finance be pleased to state:

(a) the amount of collections made up to the end of October 1947 under the Business Profits Tax;

(b) the total number of assesseees under this tax; and

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: (a) None.

(b) About two thousand.

(c) No special staff is engaged for this purpose.

Shri K. Santhanam: May I know, Sir why no steps have been taken so far and why there is so much negligence.

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: Sir, on account of a drafting defect of the Business Profits Tax Act, the rules could not be issued in time and steps are now being taken to effect the necessary amendment during the session and as soon as that is done the assessment will go on.

Shri K. Santhanam: May I know, Sir, why no notice of the amendment has so far been given if the matter has been so urgent?

CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY OF INDIA (LEGISLATIVE) [19TH Nov. 1947]

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: I do not exactly understand what the Honourable Member means.

Shri K. Santhanam: As no bill is introduced to amend the Act, I want to know whether the Finance Member is earnest about the collection of this tax.

Mr. Speaker: I think the Honourable Member referred to the rules under the Act. He said there was some defect in the Act which prevented the rules being made properly.

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: On account of a defect in the Act as I said the rules under the Act could not be issued, so that the officers might proceed with the assessment. Steps are now being taken to amend the Act and rules and in fact in the current Budget Estimate we are providing for a substantial collection under this head.

Shri K. Santhanam: My point is that as it was passed in March, why the Bill to remove the defect of the Act has not been introduced so far?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: I do not quite remember whether that amending Bill has been put down for this session or not. But my Honourable friend knows that after this Act was passed in March this is the first session of the legislature and so we could not have done it earlier.

Shri K. Santhanam: Could we not expect it to be introduced on the first day of the session?

Mr. Speaker: That is a matter of argument.

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: I understand that amendment is going to be introduced this session.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: May I know how in spite of the defect in the Act and the rules not having been promulgated the figure of two thousand has been arrived at? Have the assessments gone on still?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: No, the assessments have not gone on, but the Income-tax Department has sufficient information to know how many assesseees are likely to come under the provisions of this Act. That means that we have all the information ready for the assessment.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: Although it was not possible to introduce legislation what was the difficulty about issuing an Ordinance if there was any seriousness about collecting this money?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: We want to respect the legislature as far as possible

Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena: What is the loss that the Indian revenues will sustain on account of this neglect?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: There will be no loss at all. Even if the assessment is not made now it will be made next year. No one will be left free.

Shri B. M. Gupte: Can the Honourable Minister say which is the province from which the largest amount is collected?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: No amount has yet been collected.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: Is it a fact that under this Act assessment can be made only for the past four years and if the assessment takes place for the next year, one year during the war period is lost to Government?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: No, Sir, that is not so.

COLLECTION OF BUSINESS PROFITS TAX IN INDIA AND PAKISTAN

80. *Shri K. Santhanam: Will the Honourable Minister of Finance be pleased to state:

(a) the amount of arrears of Excess Profits Tax on the 1st April, 1947 and on the 1st November, 1947;

(b) whether it is a fact that the collections of arrears in India and Pakistan are made on an agreed basis and are brought into a common account; and

(c) whether there is any agreed basis for the division of the proceeds between India and Pakistan?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: (a) Presumably the Honourable Member has in mind the demand involved in the assessments awaiting disposal on the dates given. On a rough computation, the relevant amount as on 1-4-47, less amount already collected under provisional assessment, probable refunds, relief for double taxation and reduction in appeal, is about Rs. 10 crores. This figure does not include the tax assessable in respect of the last chargeable accounting period in cases in which the previous year for income-tax purposes ended after the 31st March 1946, as these cases would normally be assessable in 1947-48. The figure as on 1st November 1947 is not available but on 1st September 1947, including the tax on the last chargeable accounting period, it comes to roughly Rs. 12 crores.

INCOME TAX AND SUPER TAX PAYABLE IN THE FINANCIAL YEAR 1946-47

81. *Shri K. Santhanam: Will the Honourable Minister of Finance be pleased to state:

(a) the amounts of arrears of Income-Tax and Super-Tax payable in the financial year 1946-47;

(b) whether any of the assesseees have migrated to Pakistan; and

(c) the measures which are being taken by Government to prevent loss of revenues by such a migration?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: (a) The total demand estimated in respect of uncompleted assessments for 1946-47 and earlier years is Rs. 22 crores.

(b) Yes.

(c) In cases where it is possible to effect recovery of the tax due by attachment and sale of property left behind in India this will be done. Where it is necessary to invoke the assistance of the Pakistan Government for the attachment and sale of property located in Pakistan that Government has to co-operate with us under the decision reached by the Partition Council.

Shri K. Santhanam: What steps is the Honourable Minister taking to collect these arrears as quickly as possible?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: All possible steps.

Shri K. Santhanam: Is he contemplating the engagement of further staff?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: I should like to make the present staff itself collect the amount, but if necessary I shall engage additional staff.

Shri K. Santhanam: May I know if he is succeeding in his attempts to make the present staff collect quickly?

Shri Deshbandhu Gupta: With reference to part (c) of the question, is the Honourable Minister aware of the fact that big properties are changing hands every day under the very nose of the Government of India? Many of these people must be assesseees liable to pay income-tax and to my knowledge no attachment notices have been issued against these properties.

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: Of course a considerable amount of confusion is likely to arise as a result of the extraordinarily disturbed conditions, but we will do all that is possible and all that lies in our power to protect our revenues.

Shri Deshbandhu Gupta: Has the suggestion to freeze some of these properties been considered by the Government of India as a precautionary measure so that they could not be sold or at least the sale profits can be paid by these people who are likely to be assesseees?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: Now that the Honourable Member makes the suggestion, I will consider it.

Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena: In view of the information given to the Honourable Minister will he take care to see that assesseees are not allowed to sell their properties in future until all dues are realised from them?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: We will examine that question.

CURRENCY ARRANGEMENTS BETWEEN INDIA AND PAKISTAN

82. *Shri K. Santhanam: Will the Honourable Minister of Finance be pleased to state:

(a) whether it is a fact that the present currency arrangements between India and Pakistan will terminate on the 31st March, 1948; and

(b) the steps that are taken or are proposed to be taken for the complete separation of the two currencies?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: (a) and (b). I would invite the attention of the Honourable Member to the Pakistan (Monetary System and Reserve Bank) Order, 1947.

DIVISION OF ASSETS AND LIABILITIES BETWEEN INDIA AND PAKISTAN

83. *Shri K. Santhanam: Will the Honourable Minister of Finance be pleased to state:

(a) the total estimated assets and liabilities of India (including Pakistan) on August 14, 1947;

(b) the total assets and liabilities transferred to Pakistan up to the 1st November, 1947; and

(c) the respective claims of the Governments of India and Pakistan regarding the remaining assets and liabilities?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: (a) On a very rough estimate the total liabilities of the undivided Government on the date of partition are expected to be of the order of Rs. 3,200 crores and the total assets of the order of Rs. 2,800 crores. It is not possible to give a precise figure till the accounts of the undivided Government are finally closed and the basis on which certain liabilities like the outstanding debt and pensions should be valued is determined.

(b) I regret the information is not readily available and any computation at this stage would involve disproportionate time and labour.

(c) As the outstanding points are still under consideration and some of them may be referred to the Arbitral Tribunal it is not considered desirable in the public interest to disclose the claims of the respective Governments.

Shri H. V. Kamath: Is it a fact that as part of the assets even precious historical records and documents and also tables, chairs and other furniture had to be sliced up and divided for this partition?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: Precious records can have no comparison with chairs and tables.

Shri K. Santhanam: With reference to part (b) of the question, may I know what are the total assets, apart from liabilities, specially major assets like the railways, which have been transferred, as far as information is available?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: It is difficult to give the information because it is not readily available. Unless major and minor assets are defined it is not possible to answer that question.

DEVELOPMENT OF AYURVEDIC SCIENCE, LITERATURE AND INSTITUTIONS

84. *Shri R. V. Dhulekar: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Health be pleased to state whether Government are aware that the Ayurvedic system of Medicine prevails in India under various names—Kaviraji, Siddhi, Unani etc.,—throughout the various provinces and that a very large section of the population both in towns and villages get medical relief from Vaidyas and Kavirajes and Hakims?

(b) Are Government aware that the Ayurvedic science has a very large literature in Sanskrit and other Provincial languages and that there are several lakhs of Ayurvedic practitioners practising throughout the country successfully?

(c) Are Government aware that there is a large number of Ayurvedic teaching schools and colleges in the country and many of them have also been recognised and aided by Provincial Governments?

(d) Are Government aware that an Ayurvedic University has been established at Jhansi for higher studies in Ayurved and Research in Ayurvedic Science?

(e) What steps are Government taking to help and develop (1) Ayurvedic science and literature (2) Ayurvedic Schools, Colleges and University (3) the preparation of standard Ayurvedic Medicines and drugs and also (4) the spread of medical relief in the country on Ayurvedic lines?

The Honourable Rajkumari Amrit Kaur: (a) and (b). Yes.

(c) Government have no precise information regarding the number of Ayurvedic teaching institutions in the country recognised by Provincial Governments.

(d) Government understand that an institution for the teaching of Ayurveda called the Ayurvedic University has been established at Jhansi.

(e) The question will be considered after the report of the Committee on indigenous Systems of Medicine is received.

COMMITTEE FOR DEVELOPING AYURVEDIC SYSTEM

85. *Shri R. V. Dhulekar: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Health be pleased to state whether Government are aware that they appointed some months back a Committee on indigenous system of medicines to go into the question of developing Ayurvedic system and other allied questions?

(b) Are Government aware that almost all the representatives of the Vaidyas on the Committee are Doctors, that even the Chairman is an Allopathic doctor, that the whole work of the Committee was placed in the hands of a doctor who has now gone to Pakistan and that therefore great discontent exists among Vaidyas throughout India?

CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY OF INDIA (LEGISLATIVE) [19TH Nov. 1947]

(c) Are Government aware that the All India Vaidya Sammelan (All India Ayurvedic Congress) have objected to the personnel of the Committee on indigenous systems and that several prominent persons interested in Ayurveda and also Vaidyas have personally approached the Government to change the personnel?

(d) Do Government propose to consider the advisability of re-constituting the Committee composed of prominent Vaidyas alone and some members of the Dominion Legislature who are working for the uplift of Ayurvedic science?

The Honourable Rajkumari Amrit Kaur: (a) Yes.

(b) The four Vaidas included in the Committee are well known persons in the field of Ayurveda though one of them has also allopathic qualifications. The Committee asked one of its members, an allopathic doctor, to investigate a particular problem but the work of the Committee was not relegated to any particular individual.

(c) The wishes of the All India Ayurvedic Congress and other persons interested in the work of the Committee were given full consideration when the Committee was constituted. The Committee was constituted in consultation with Provincial Governments.

(d) The Committee is meant to investigate the usefulness of indigenous systems of medicine such as Ayurveda and Unani and it is not possible to confine the membership to Vaidyas only.

(b) WRITTEN ANSWERS

GRANT OF FUNDS FOR AYURVEDIC TEACHING AND RESEARCH

86. Shri R. V. Dhulekar: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Health be pleased to state whether Government will consider the question of earmarking a substantial amount in the annual budget for Ayurvedic Teaching and Research and spend the same on distributing grants recurring and non-recurring to teaching institutions in the country and also for establishing Ayurvedic Research Department of its own?

(b) Do Government propose to establish a Department of Ayurveda as a section of the Health Department with a view to employing qualified Vaidyas Health and Medical Officers for running Ayurvedic hospitals and doing other medical relief work which the allopathic doctors do? If so, when? If not, why not?

The Honourable Rajkumari Amrit Kaur: (a) The establishment of Ayurvedic Teaching Institutions is primarily the concern of Provincial Governments. The question as to how far the Central Government can help to further research in indigenous systems of medicine will be considered after the Committee on Indigenous Systems of Medicine has submitted its Report.

(b) There is no such proposal at present. The question to what extent the indigenous systems of medicine can be utilised as part of the Medical Services of the country will be considered after the report of the Committee I have mentioned is received.

APPOINTMENT OF ORIYA ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICER IN THE CENTRAL EXCISE

87. Shri Lakshminarayan Sahu: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Finance be pleased to state whether there is any Oriya administrative officer in the Central Excise in Orissa Division?

(b) If the reply to part (a) above is in the negative, are there no qualified candidates for it in Orissa?

(c) Did any one apply for it?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: (a) Yes: an officer in the grade of Assistant Collector.

(b) and (c). Does not arise, but it may be added that the province of domicile is not the main criterion adopted for judging a candidate's fitness for appointment as the charge of the Calcutta Central Excise Collectorate embraces more than one Province.

SEPARATE RADIO STATION FOR ORISSA

88. Shri Lakshminarayan Sahu: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Information and Broadcasting please state when will there be a separate Radio Station for the Province of Orissa?

(b) Are Government aware that at present the Province of Orissa gets only half an hour at the Calcutta Radio Station every day for relaying news and music and that too at 9-30 P.M. which is a very inconvenient hour?

(c) Do Government propose to see that the Oriya programme is relayed from the Calcutta Radio Station at least twice a day, one in the day time and the other in the night?

(d) Are Government aware that there is no Oriya Assistant at the All India Radio Station at New Delhi?

(e) If so, do Government propose to appoint an Oriya Assistant so that news from Delhi in Oriya may be relayed independently of the Calcutta Station?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: (a) A broadcasting station at Cuttack has been included in All India Radio's Development Plan; it is expected to be installed by the middle of 1948.

(b) Yes, Sir. The present time was fixed with the concurrence of the Provincial Government.

(c) With the existing transmitting facilities at Calcutta it is regretted that it is not possible to give more time for programmes in Oriya.

(d) No, Sir; but a post of Programme Assistant for Oriya Programmes has already been sanctioned at the Calcutta Station and steps are being taken to appoint a suitable candidate.

(e) No, Sir. It is not possible at present to arrange for the broadcast of a news bulletin in Oriya from Delhi.

TEMPORARY ACCOMMODATION FOR FORCES DURING WAR

89. Shri M. S. Aney: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Defence be pleased to state what is the total area of the land vested in the Crown in different provinces, for the purpose of providing temporary accommodation for the Army, Navy and Air Force during the War?

(b) How many of these temporary camps have been deserted and the temporary structures standing thereon dismantled since the end of the War?

(c) How much of the land which is no longer needed for defence purposes is capable of being brought under cultivation?

(d) What efforts, if any, have been made by Government to use it or allow it to be used for agricultural purposes, particularly for growing food-crops thereon?

(e) Have the Government of India prepared any scheme to utilise these deserted areas for cultivation and turn them into fields growing food-crops?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: (a) The total area of land hired and requisitioned outside cantonments for the purpose of providing temporary accommodation. Field Firing Ranges, and other needs of the expanded war-time army was approximately 9,09,504 acres. The classification of this area into land earmarked for temporary accommodation for the Armed Forces and that reserved for other requirements is not readily available.

(b) The total area of land released by Defence Services by 30th September 1947, is 4,25,483 acres. Information regarding the area under abandoned camps and structures is not readily available.

(c) The information is not readily available. The Ministry of Agriculture has asked the Provincial Governments to carry out detailed surveys of such areas.

(d) and (e). A scheme for bringing 6,00,000 acres of cultivable waste under cultivation has been drawn up in consultation with the U. P., C. P., Bihar, Orissa and Madras Governments. This programme is to be implemented over the next five years.

UTILIZATION OF DESERTED ARMY CAMP HOUSES AND SHEDS

90. *Prof. N. G. Ranga: Will the Honourable Minister of Defence be pleased to state:

(a) whether it is a fact that in many places of India there are big and small Army Camp houses and sheds which have not been in use for the last 2 or 3 years and which are no longer intended to be used by the Army;

(b) whether it is a fact that some of them are falling into bad repairs and are even collapsing;

(c) what objection Government have to give these houses to local Governments for being repaired and allotted for occupation by the very large number of poor people who are suffering from lack of even huts and sites for hovels; and

(d) whether Government propose to consider the advisability of having inter-departmental and inter-provincial conferences to save these properties and to arrange for their full utilisation by the local poor and houseless people through the Provincial Governments?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: (a) and (b). I do not think, Sir, it is correct to say that these buildings have been allowed to remain vacant for as long as two or three years. As soon as it is known that a building or a number of buildings are likely to become surplus to military requirements action is taken to dispose of them without avoidable delay. Some of the buildings have fallen into disrepair while awaiting disposal mainly because most of them are temporary buildings which were constructed during the war and which have considerably outlived their scheduled life.

(c) These war-time assets are normally offered to Provincial Governments before they are disposed of by sale. The Central Government have already placed at the disposal of various Provincial Governments and Indian States accommodation capable of housing approximately 2 lakhs of refugees.

(d) Does not arise in view of my answer to part (c).

GRANT OF SUBSIDIES TO PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENTS FOR DEVELOPMENT OF HOUSING

91. *Prof. N. G. Ranga: Will the Honourable Minister of Finance be pleased to state:

(a) whether it is a fact that the 1946-47 Budget provided an allotment for giving subsidies to Provincial Governments for the development of housing;

(b) if so, how much;

(c) how that subsidy was utilised as between different provinces;

(d) how many houses have come to be built with it;

(e) their number in rural and urban areas; and

(f) whether any funds are still outstanding and if so, how Government expect to utilise them in the light of their experience of the utilisation of such funds in the past?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: (a) Yes.

(b) Rs. 2 crores.

(c), (d) and (e). Owing to the continuance of very high building costs there was little response to Central Government's offer of assistance to pay 12½ per cent. of the total cost of approved schemes and no subsidies were paid under the terms of that offer.

(f) There is no cumulative fund for this purpose. The provision in 1946-47 was made in the usual manner and it has lapsed. Fresh provision of Rs. 50 lacs was made for the year 1947-48 but no expenditure has so far been incurred on this account.

PREVENTION OF AN ECONOMIC CRISIS IN INDIA

92. *Prof. N. G. Ranga: Will the Honourable Minister of Finance be pleased to state:

(a) whether Government are aware that several economists in England and America are expressing their fears of the early approach of an economic crisis all the world over;

(b) whether such a crisis is not likely to occur in India; and

(c) the steps that are being taken by Government either to step up production or to limit the creation of credit by Banks and in other ways to prevent the possibility of an economic crisis?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: (a) I have noted that some economists have given expression to this fear.

(b) and (c). Government are fully aware of the need for increasing production and for checking the inflationary tendency. Steps are being taken to bring about an increase in production of essential commodities. In close consultation with the Reserve Bank, all possible steps in the monetary field will also be taken if and when the necessity arises.

IMPLEMENTATION OF PAY COMMISSION'S RECOMMENDATIONS

93. *Prof. N. G. Ranga: Will the Honourable Minister of Finance be pleased to state:

(a) when the resolution of Government on the Pay Commission's recommendations will be published; and

(b) whether necessary provision will be made in the next Budget for the implementation of its recommendations?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: (a) Government have already given publicity to their decisions regarding the recommendations of the Central Pay Commission relating to pay and allowances by Press communiques and gazette notifications from time to time. They do not, therefore, propose to issue any resolution in the matter. The Commission's recommendations relating to leave, retirement benefits etc. are still under consideration and decisions thereon will be published in due course. Copies of the orders and Press communiques so far issued are placed on the table of the house†.

(b) Yes.

- (h) the number of Bihari Superintendents at present working in the above sections; and
- (i) whether the attention of Government has been drawn to the news and comments that have appeared in the Provincial Papers (viz., the Searchlight, dated the 30th August 1947, the 1st October 1947, the 6th October 1947 and the 12th October 1947, Dak editions, and the Sentinel, dated the 31st August 1947 and the 7th September 1947) regarding that office, and if so, what action Government have taken to ameliorate the grievances of the Biharis of that office?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: The information is being collected and will be laid on the table of the House in due course.

COLLECTION OF ARMS AND MOBILISATION OF MILITARY FORCES BY THE NIZAM

95. *Shri Jagat Narain Lal: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Defence be pleased to state whether Government are aware of (i) the huge manufacture and collection of Arms (ii) the recruitment and mobilisation of military forces, which are going on in different areas of Pakistan and in the Nizam's State in Hyderabad?

(b) If so, what steps do Government propose to take to cope with the imminent danger to the safety of the territories of India?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: (a) and (b). Government do not consider it to be in the public interest to discuss on the floor of the House alleged war-like preparations in neighbouring States or areas and the steps taken to meet a threat to the safety of India.

ADVERTISEMENT OF IMPORTANT POSTS IN INDIAN UNION IN ORISSA GAZETTE

96. *Shri Lakshminarayan Sahu: Will the Honourable Minister of Home Affairs be pleased to state whether Government propose to arrange that all important posts that are advertised in the Gazette of the Government of India are also advertised in the Gazette of Orissa so far as the services in the Union are concerned?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: The procedure suggested by the Honourable Member is already being followed.

APPOINTMENT OF ORIYAS TO CENTRAL SERVICES

97. *Shri Lakshminarayan Sahu: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Home Affairs be pleased to state how many persons from the Province of Orissa have been appointed in the following Central Services:

- (i) Accounts and Audit Department,
- (ii) Federal Secretariat,
- (iii) Survey of India Office, and
- (iv) Customs Department and other Departments under the Union Government?

(b) Do Government propose to see that sufficient number of persons from the Province of Orissa are appointed to these Services?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: (a) and (b). The information asked for is not readily available and its collection would involve an expenditure of time and labour out of proportion to its utility. The general policy of Government in the matter of recruitment is to make appointments as far as possible on the basis of merit. Where recruitment to any service is not by open competition, the vacancies are distributed among the different communities on a population basis. Government do not propose to complicate further the process of recruitment by engrafting the principles of territorial representation on that of communal representation.

GRANTS GIVEN BY GOVERNMENT OF INDIA FOR PUBLIC HEALTH SCHEMES

98. *Shri B. A. Mandloi: Will the Honourable Minister of Finance be pleased to state:

(a) the total amount of grant given by the Government of India to the various provinces including the Chief Commissioner's Provinces and to the States for carrying out schemes of public health in the years 1945-46 and 1946-47; and

(b) the amount Government propose to give in the year 1947-48?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: (a) and (b). Development grants to Provinces, including Chief Commissioner's Provinces, are not allotted separately for each subject, but for each Provincial programme as a whole. Full information is not available, as to how much was actually spent by Provincial Governments during this period on schemes relating to public Health. No grants were made to Indian States.

MONEY GIVEN TO GOVERNMENT OF PAKISTAN

99. *Seth Govinddas: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Finance be pleased to state how much money has been given to the Government of Pakistan and on what conditions?

(b) Do the Government of India propose to continue to give money piecemeal to the Government of Pakistan without settling the final accounts?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: (a) In accordance with the decision of the Partition Council a sum of Rs. 20 crores was allocated to Pakistan as a working balance from the cash balance of the undivided India.

(b) No piecemeal payments have been made and the question therefore does not arise.

DIVISION OF ASSETS AND LIABILITIES BETWEEN INDIA AND PAKISTAN

100. *Seth Govinddas: Will the Honourable Minister of Home Affairs be pleased to state:

(a) whether the division of assets and liabilities is completed between the Governments of India and Pakistan;

(b) on what basis the division of assets and liabilities between the Governments of India and Pakistan has been made; and

(c) whether the same ratio is being followed for division of both assets and liabilities?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: (a) No Sir.

(b) The terms of reference of the Expert Committee which dealt with the division of assets and liabilities is laid on the table.

(c) It is obviously impossible to have a uniform ratio for all assets and liabilities but as the total liabilities of the undivided Government are likely to exceed the total assets each Dominion will take over a debt equal to the assets taken by it plus its share of the uncovered debt.

Terms of reference of Expert committee No. II. Assets and liabilities

(1) To compile lists of assets by broad categories showing value and present location.

(2) To make recommendations as to the division of assets between the two successor governments. The general principle should be to secure the greatest good of the two states, but if there are disputed claims for fixed assets, like plant and machinery, the removal of which might be detrimental to the interests of the other Government, the facts of each case should be reported for consideration by the Partition Council.

(3) When division is impracticable, to make recommendation either for mutual assistance or for joint administration or for any other arrangement for such period as may be necessary.

(4) To make recommendations in regard to the financial settlement between the two Governments arising from the above as well as from an allocation of the public debt, pensions and other liabilities.

(5) To recommend measures for giving effect to any transfer of assets after the recommendations have been accepted by the Partition Council.

THEFTS FROM JUBBULPORE AND OTHER ORDNANCE DEPOTS

101. *Seth Govinddas: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Defence be pleased to state whether Government are aware of a number of thefts from Jubbulpore Central Ordnance Depot and various other Ordnance Depots in India after the end of the war?

(b) If so, how many cases are so far reported to Government and what action have they taken?

(c) What action do Government propose to take to stop recurrence of such thefts?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: (a) Yes, Sir.

(b) Three cases, in all of which suitable police and other action was taken. Petty cases of theft in Ordnance Depots occur not infrequently and are dealt with by the Security Staff. They are not normally reported to the Government of India but details have been asked for.

(c) Regulations exist to prevent all conceivable opportunities for theft and Ordnance Establishments have been enjoined to observe them strictly. Disciplinary action is taken in cases where laxity of security measures is

APPOINTMENT OF SPECIAL POLICE OFFICERS IN DELHI

102. *Seth Govinddas: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Home Affairs be pleased to state how many Special Police Officers are appointed in Delhi to meet the riot situation?

(b) Is there any proposal to make this arrangement a permanent one?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: (a) Two thousand of all ranks.

(b) No.

CASUALTIES AND LOSS OF PROPERTY SINCE PARTITION OF INDIA

103. *R. B. Lala Raj Kanwar: Will the Honourable Minister of Home Affairs be pleased to state:

(a) the total number of persons murdered or killed as a result of communal disturbances, province-wise and community-wise, since the partition of India into two Dominions;

(b) how many of them were men, women and children respectively;

(c) the number of buildings destroyed by fire or otherwise as a result of riots and communal disturbances during the same period;

(d) the approximate value of the property destroyed or looted during the same period; and

(e) the number of forcible conversions of (i) men, (ii) women and (iii) children, during the same period?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: The question covers a very wide and all India field of information. It is impossible to furnish a correct answer without detailed and elaborate enquiry through Special Staff. On the whole I consider that the time and labour involved would not be commensurate with the utility of the special effort involved.

STARRED QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

DISTURBANCES IN DELHI

107. *Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Home Affairs be pleased to lay on the table of the House a detailed statement of the disturbances that took place in the city of Delhi in the early part of September last?

(b) Is it a fact that a very large number of Muslims armed with cannons, machine guns, rifles and various other automatic weapons made a desperate bid to capture the city of Delhi by force?

(c) Is it a fact that the situation became so serious that the Military had to be called in, to cope with it and that tanks and armoured cars had to be used?

(d) Is it a fact that there had been pitched battles in several parts of the city for hours, between the Indian troops and the armed insurgents?

(e) What was the duration of these disturbances?

(f) Is it a fact that machine guns and other automatic weapons used by the rebels could not all be seized or traced?

(g) What steps have been taken by Government to prevent recurrence of such happenings in future?

(h) What were the casualties sustained on either side?

(i) How many of the insurgents have been taken into custody and how are they being dealt with?

(j) What categories and quantities of arms and ammunition have been so far secured from them?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: (a) A statement is laid on the table of the House.

(b) and (d). A large quantity of arms of various descriptions and ammunition have been recovered from Muslims. On several occasions Muslims in certain pre-dominantly Muslim localities aggressively used their fire-arms against the military, police and the non-Muslims of the locality. The military returned the fire and in certain instances owing to the difficulty in locating the sources of fire it took some time before the fire was silenced. This, however, cannot be said to be a desperate bid or pitched battle to capture the City of Delhi by force.

(c) Troops were called out in aid of the police but tanks and armoured cars were used for purpose of flag marches and patrolling only.

(e) The peak period was from the 6th to 15th September.

(f) Every effort was made to trace and seize the weapons and two sten-guns were actually seized.

(g) (i) Public Safety Act and the Punjab Disturbed Areas Act have been extended to the Delhi Province.

- (i) The total number of persons arrested in connection with the disturbances is about 4,000. They are being dealt with under the law.
- (j) A statement is laid on the table.

Statement referred to in reply to Part (a) of the question No. 107.

Prolonged disturbances in the Punjab particularly in Lahore and Amritsar and the influx of refugees had their inevitable reaction on the city of Delhi and tension developed. This tension was accentuated by the activities of the Khaksars who professed it as their aim that they would extend the boundaries of Pakistan to the Delhi and would prevent the flying of National Flag on the Red Fort. In August large-scale disturbances broke out in the Punjab and Delhi received an abnormal influx of refugees whose stories of atrocities created even more tension. Attacks then occurred on Muslims in neighbouring villages and in trains causing considerable loss of life. On the 25th August four Muslim employees of a Cotton Mill were killed following an alleged altercation between a Hindu and a Muslim in which the latter was alleged to have slapped the former. On the night of the 3rd September a bomb was thrown in a Hindu quarter in Karol Bagh; a Muslim was suspected to be the culprit. Serious rioting broke out in Karol Bagh involving loot, murder and arson including the death of an eminent surgeon. The trouble then spread to other localities, particularly Subzimandi, Turkman Gate, Pharagunj and Phatak Habash Khan. The peak period of the disturbances was roughly from the 6th to the 15th September when attacks on Muslims and looting of their property took place in many localities of the Capital including Connaught Place at New Delhi. On the 7th September troops had to be called out in substantial number. In several localities also attacks on Muslims occurred and prolonged firing from Muslim houses in Pahargunj, Subzimandi and Turkman Gate localities at the troops and Police and the inhabitants of the adjoining localities. The Police force became depleted as a result of desertions and resignations by Muslim members of the staff. Besides calling in the Military, Special Police Officers were enrolled. Carrying of weapons and assembly of five or more persons in public were banned and for several weeks curfew was imposed. The police and military fired on numerous occasions to disperse riotous crowds and looters. House to house searches were also undertaken to recover looted property. During the peak period of the disturbances steps were taken to search persons, vehicles and houses for illicit arms.

ACCESSION OF JUNAGADH STATE

108. *Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of States be pleased to lay on the table of the House a detailed statement about the situation created by the action of the Junagadh State against the neighbouring States acceding to the Indian Dominion?

(b) Has the Junagadh State agreed to the proposed referendum with regard to the question of accession?

(c) If the answer to part (b) above be in the negative, what action is proposed to be taken by the Government of India for safeguarding the interests of the Kathiawar States acceding to the Indian Dominion?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: (a), (b) and (c). The Government of India's stand on the issue of the accession of Junagadh to Pakistan has been made public in the press communiques issued on the 25th September, 5th October and 1st November 1947. The matter is under consideration at Dominion level and I do not think it would be in the public interest to make a detailed statement at this stage. The Junagadh Ruler has not agreed to a referendum on the question of accession.

TRAINING OF YOUNGMEN IN GOVERNMENT OF INDIA DEPARTMENTS

109. *Dr. P. S. Deshmukh: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Home Affairs be pleased to state whether Government are aware that the scarcity of efficient trained young men is a serious problem?

(b) Have Government considered the problem and if so, what steps they propose to take in the matter?

(c) Have Government evolved any plan for the intensive training of young men in the various Departments of the Government of India?

(d) If the answer to part (c) above be in the affirmative, what are the plans?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: (a) Yes.

(b) and (c). The Government of India appointed a Committee early in September this year to examine and make recommendations regarding the recruitment of administrative officers and to give them intensive training so as to overcome the existing shortage of trained man-power. The Committee has submitted its report on the 4th November. The report is under examination.

(d) A copy of the report is laid on the table of the House.*

EDUCATION IN ARMY, NAVY AND AIR FORCES

110. *Dr. P. S. Deshmukh: Will the Honourable Minister of Defence be pleased to state what steps Government are proposing to take for making available education in the Army, Navy and Air Forces in the country?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: It is not clear what exactly the Honourable Member has in mind, but on the assumption that he wishes to know what steps Government propose to take to provide military training to the public, I would reply that the Government are at present actively considering the recommendations of the National Cadet Corps Committee which would cover the youth of the country. Government consider that this is the first step to be taken.

If, however, the Honourable Member wants information about the facilities which at present exist for providing general education to the rank and file in the Armed Forces, it will be found in the statement which I lay on the Table of the House.

(i) Education in the Navy.—In the Navy it is proposed to maintain the same extensive educational facilities which have been built up in the past three years.

*Not printed in these Debates. A copy placed in the Library of the House.—Ed. of D.

In future boy entry will be the main source of recruitment to the Navy and educational subjects occupy about 50 per cent. of the time-table in the training programme of the Boy's Training Establishment.

All ratings afloat and ashore are encouraged to prepare for the Naval Educational Test One (short title E. T. 1) examination which is held three times a year.

This is a written examination and the subjects are :—

(a) Language and General Knowledge ; and

(b) Elementary Mathematics.

Either of these may be written in Hindustani (Roman Character) or English. This examination is roughly equivalent to the two years pre-matric standard.

Ratings who have passed this examination are encouraged to take the Naval Higher Educational Test (short title H. E. T.) examination which is also held three times a year. The subjects are :—

(a) Arithmetic and Mensuration.

(b) English and General Knowledge.

(c) History.

(d) Geography.

(e) Algebra, Geometry and Trigonometry.

(f) Mechanics.

(g) Magnetism and Electricity.

(h) Navigation.

According to Branch, candidates must qualify in five or six subjects to pass. This examination has been recognised as being equivalent to Matriculation by the Government of India for employment purposes and for purposes of admission by most of the Universities.

It is pointed out that a comparatively higher standard of educational attainment is necessary for advancement in most branches of the Navy. English continues to be the medium of instruction for the Naval Higher Educational Test, as this language is essential for the training of higher rates in the various Naval Technical Branches of the Navy.

School classes in preparation for these examinations are held in all ships and establishment carrying Schoolmasters, R.N. In the case of those smaller ships in which a Schoolmaster is not borne, educational facilities for the ship's Company are always made available in the various bases at which these ships call.

In addition to the above, Information Rooms, Fiction, General and Reference Libraries are maintained out of the Naval Educational Training Grant

Every opportunity is given to all ratings to utilise these facilities.

In addition to purely educational training, professional instruction is given in technical subjects such as Gunnery, Torpedo, Anti-Submarine, Visual Signalling and Wireless Telegraphy in specialist training establishments.

The knowledge so acquired is of considerable general educational value.

(ii) Army.—Educational training is an integral part of the soldier's training. The object of Indian Army Education is to educate the individual throughout his service as a man, as a soldier and as a citizen. This training will be carried out as a continuous process throughout the whole of a man's service.

Indian Troops are prepared for the following examinations :

Recruits Test;

Indian Army 3rd, 2nd and 1st Class Certificates of Education ; and Indian Army Special Certificate of Education.

Besides these, there are the Indian Army 3rd, 2nd and 1st Class English Certificates examinations. The Indian Army Special Certificate of Education has been recognised by most universities as equivalent to their Matriculation certificates.

Syllabus for the various examinations cover the following subjects:—

Hindustani in Roman Script.

Mathematics.

Various Vernaculars.

Geography.

History.

Citizenship and General Knowledge.

Physiology and Hygiene.

Everyday Science ; and General and Commercial Geography.

It is compulsory for trained soldiers to carry out educational training for 5 periods per week. At present special emphasis is being laid on instruction for the Recruits Test and the Indian Army 3rd Class Certificate of Education specially with recruits, as these examinations are designed to enable the soldier to read and write in Roman Urdu, learn elementary arithmetic and read and write in his own vernacular. Indian Army Educational Corps officers provide instructions up to the soldier standard and the IMA, Dehra Dun, for Cadets. Officers and VCO's of the Indian army are attached to Headquarters of Formations and major units for the training of Indian Troops.

(iii) Royal Indian Air Force.—This falls under two distinct headings:—

(a) Technical Education.—Imparted to officers and airmen and trainees to make them proficient in their trades. The major part of this work is carried out at the following Training Schools.

1. No. 1 Ground Training School.

2. No. 2 Ground Training School.

3. No. 3 Ground Training School.

4. Elementary Flying Training School.

5. Advanced Flying School.

6. Initial Training Wing.

7. Medical Training Centre.

8. Royal Indian Air Force Depot.

(b) General Education.—For the purpose of improving the general educational standard and providing a broad outlook and intelligent appreciation of current affairs, and creating interest in the cultural, scientific and political development of the present day civilisation. This is carried out at all units.

(i) Promotion of airmen is subject to attainment of minimum of general educational standard in addition to proficiency in their trades and administrative ability and for this purpose two Service Educational Tests are held every year. The lower of the two tests has received the sanction of the Home Department (Government of India) for recognition as equivalent to Matriculation examination for the purpose of employment for war-service candidates.

(ii) Besides, facilities exist for officers and airmen to take external examinations covering a wide variety of subjects, technical and non-technical, with a number of Institutes and Universities in this country and abroad.

EVASION OF PAYMENT OF INCOME TAX

111. *Dr. P. S. Deshmukh: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Finance be pleased to state whether Government are aware that a number of big financiers in the country dodge the income-tax Department?

(b) Have Government taken any steps to stop this?

(c) Are any further steps under contemplation?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: (a) The Government have reason to believe that there has been evasion of income-tax by big financiers, among others; it is possible that each of them has his own system.

(b) Yes; all possible steps permissible under the Income-tax Act have been taken to detect evasion.

(c) Yes; an Income-tax Investigation Commission has been set up to investigate specific cases of suspected evasion, and also to suggest amendments to the existing taxation laws in order to facilitate further the detection of tax evasion in future.

ANNUAL GRANT TO ALIGARH UNIVERSITY

112. *Shri Mohan Lal Saksena: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Education be pleased to state as to how much annual grant is being given to the Aligarh University?

(b) Are Government aware of the political activities of the students of Aligarh Muslim University, particularly the part taken by them in the last general elections and in the referendum in the North West Frontier Province and Sylhet?

(c) Are Government aware that most of the members of its Executive Council and Syndicate have been advocates of Pakistan and the two-nation theory and that some of them are holding high positions in the Government of Pakistan?

(d) If so, what steps are being taken to eliminate the anti-national tendencies before giving any additional or existing grants to the University?

The Honourable Maulana Abul Kalam Azad: (a) The Aligarh Muslim University receives an annual grant of Rs. 3,00,000. A sum of Rs. 1,05,265 was given to the University during 1946-47 as a dearness allowance grant. The University Grants Committee recommended an interim recurring grant of Rs. 2,50,000 in a full financial year to enable the University to adopt the scales of pay approved by the Government of India for the teachers of the Central Universities. The amount of actual grant is to be determined after the receipt of details from the University. An advance grant of Rs. 2,25,000 was paid to the University for this purpose in 1946-47. This amount has yet to be adjusted. The grant for the current financial year has not yet been paid.

(b), (c) and (d). Beyond what has appeared in the press, the Government has no information regarding the political activities of the students of the University, the members of its Executive Council or staff of the University. Government are, however, of the opinion that an institution should not be judged by the activities of any particular group of its members in a particular time for it has often happened that members of a different group of the same institution at a different time have acted differently in a different situation. It is, however, self-evident that any institution which receives or expects help from the public revenues cannot carry on any activity which is against the education policy of the Government.

PROTECTION OF PROPERTY AND FUNDS OF EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS IN LAHORE

113. *Shri Mohan Lal Saksena: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Education be pleased to state what steps, if any, were taken for the protection of the property and funds of various educational institutions at Lahore founded and maintained by Indians who have been forced to evacuate to India?

(b) Have Government considered the advisability of arranging for their being shifted to India till existing conditions improve?

(c) Have Government any information regarding the funds of such institutions?

(d) Have the buildings of any of the educational institutions been requisitioned by the Government of Pakistan? If so, whether they are paying any rent for the same and to whom?

The Honourable Maulana Abul Kalam Azad: The question should have been addressed to the Honourable Minister of Relief and Rehabilitation. It has accordingly been transferred to the list of questions for the 27th November 1947, when it will be answered by the Honourable Minister of Relief and Rehabilitation.

WORKING OF BOARD OF TECHNICAL EDUCATION

114. *Shri Mohan Lal Saksena: Will the Honourable Minister of Education please lay on the table of the House a statement about the working of the Board of Technical Education?

The Honourable Maulana Abul Kalam Azad: It is presumed that the Honourable Member is asking for information in regard to the All India Council for Technical Education. As desired a statement is laid on the table of the House.

Statement regarding the working of the All India Council for Technical Education

(e) the reasons for publishing South Indian Inscriptions in texts only from Volume IV onwards?

The Honourable Maulana Abul Kalam Azad: (a) The total number of Inscriptions copied by the Archaeological Department is—

Stone inscriptions—31,047,

Copper Plates—681.

(b) The total number of inscriptions so far published are—

Stone inscriptions—7,925,

Copper Plates—447.

(c) Whenever the members of the Epigraphical Branch of the Archaeological Department are not engaged in field work, they are busily engaged in transliterating the inscriptions already copied and getting them ready for the press.

(d) English translations are published in Epigraphia Indica and the Corpus Inscriptionum Indicarum, in which inscriptions of all India importance are edited. There is at present, no arrangement for having them translated into Hindi. The Government of India, however, understands that the Nagri Pracharni Sabha, Benares, is considering a proposal to get the important inscriptions translated into Hindi.

(e) Prior to 1921 only the texts were published in the South Indian Inscriptions Series from Volume IV onwards, with a view to expediting the publication of texts. The inscriptions published in this series are mainly in South Indian Languages and are of local importance only.

SUPPLY OF ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS IN ADVANCE:

Shri Biswanath Das (Orissa: General): Before you go on to the other items in the agenda, I wish to make a submission.

In the few days of experience that I have had, I see that we members are put to great inconvenience in putting supplementary questions in respect of the replies we want. This is because answers are not on the table and sometimes we are not able to hear the Honourable Ministers in full. Therefore to avoid these difficulties, I submit that typed copies of replies may be laid on the table of the House at least fifteen minutes before the question hour. If that is not possible, I would further suggest that at least copies of replies may be given to questioners themselves, so that they will be in a position to put supplementaries.

In this connection, I submit, Sir, that we under the old dispensation were having this course of action, namely that the replies were placed in the Assembly Chambers of the Provincial Legislatures. These replies were placed fifteen minutes before the question hour so that the Honourable Members were in a position to know the replies and frame their supplementary questions. Having enquired of the practice from my Honourable friends who have something to do with other Legislatures, I find that in the United Provinces this practice has been adopted in a modified form, namely that one copy is being supplied to the Honourable Speaker and another copy is supplied to the questioner himself. I therefore submit that this wholesome practice may be followed in this Legislature and this will be very convenient from all points of view namely that it will give us more time to go through all the questions, because reading of the replies take a lot of time; secondly, it will be a convenience for members and there will be no difficulty of inaudibility. In these circumstances, I submit that you may please advise Government to follow this practice.

Mr. Speaker: I may state to the Honourable Member the difficulties which I have been feeling.

We have got a large list of questions and I have noticed that it does not become possible to go through more than 20/25 questions, and all others go in as unstarred questions. So far as possible, it is my desire to give the person who puts the question—as presumably he has studied the subject—the first chance to put supplementaries. I would, therefore, request Honourable Members, so far as possible to restrain themselves and not put a supplementary on each and every question which they have not tabled themselves. That would curtail a good deal of our time and will give a better opportunity of thrashing out the subject if the questioner is allowed to put supplementary questions first.

Then there is another point, and that is as regards supplying these answers. Whatever practice formerly existed in certain Legislatures—such a practice did exist in Bombay when I was there—we have to consider whether that practice has to be taken into account in the new set-up of things now, when this House will have to deal with a large number of questions which will involve questions of world importance. We will have to see whether it is desirable to have all and sundry questions as are at present being put, on the smallest and biggest matters, and see whether that procedure can be followed now.

In the House of Commons, no written replies are supplied and the questions are disposed of very quickly. There are just a supplementary or two on points of importance and the matter proceeds. Here I am trying to give about three to four minutes to each question. That is too long a time, if the House wishes to function as a sovereign body and wishes to cover all fields on which information may be required. This is another consideration which has to be borne in mind.

However, I will consider the proposal which the Honourable Member has made and see what is possible. I have just stated my own reaction in the matter; and proceedings in the House to be really realistic should, as far as possible, be oral. I would therefore not, as I said before, commit myself to any decision. Yesterday Prof. Ranga referred to an agreement and then I said that there is no agreement. Even if there were, it is not binding.

LETTERS EXCHANGED BETWEEN THE LEADERS OF THE INDIAN AND THE U. K. DELEGATION ON STERLING BALANCES AGREEMENT

LONDON;

Dated the 14th August, 1947.

OFFICE OF THE HIGH COMMISSIONER FOR INDIA,

LONDON,

14th August, 1947.

PRIVATE BALANCES

DEAR SIR WILFRID EADY,

With reference to the Financial Agreement between our two Governments, which we have signed today it is necessary to record our understanding that Indian private sterling balances will not be subject, as the result of this Agreement, to any restrictions under Exchange Control Regulations in force in the United Kingdom which did not apply to them before the signature of the Agreement.

For the purposes of this letter, the expression "Indian private balances" refers to the sterling balances with banks in the United Kingdom owned by residents of India other than the Reserve Bank of India and the Authorised Dealers in Foreign Exchange in India; the balances of the Reserve Bank are dealt with by the Agreement itself and those of the Authorised Dealers in Foreign Exchange in India are covered by an understanding which has been reached between the Bank of England and the Reserve Bank of India.

I should be grateful if you would confirm that this correctly sets out the position.

Yours sincerely,

(Sd.) V. NARAHARI RAO.

"I should be grateful to have your confirmation that this is also the understanding of your Government."

I have pleasure in confirming that the understanding of your Government, as set out in that letter, is accepted by my Government.

May I on my part say how much we have appreciated the spirit of mutual sympathy and understanding which has pervaded the discussions between the two delegations?

3. The following subjects shall be laid before the Standing Committee:

(1) All non-official Bills introduced or proposed to be introduced in the Assembly, and legislative proposals which the Ministry concerned intends to undertake and on which the Minister in charge desires the advice of the Committee.

(2) Reports of Committees and Commissions (not including unpublished reports of departmental committees) on which the Assembly is not adequately represented.

(3) Major questions of general policy on which the Minister in charge desires the advice of the Committee.

(4) Annual Reports.

(5) With the approval of the Minister in charge, any topic of public importance within the field of the Committee which a member of the Committee may propose for discussion:

Provided that—

(i) in cases of urgency a reference to the Committee may be dispensed with by the Minister concerned, increase the number of each committee. I have suggested 10 for almost all the committees. Therefore it is desirable not to increase the number; otherwise there may be a good deal of overlapping. As it is it would probably be desirable that a member should not join more than two committees as far as possible.

There are a number of amendments to the annexed Rules and some of those amendments certainly improve the procedure which we have to follow and when the time comes I shall accept some of them.

Mr. Speaker: Motion moved:

"That this Assembly—

(a) do proceed to elect in such manner as the Honourable the Speaker may direct, members to serve until the end of the next financial year on Standing Committees to advise on subjects concerning the undermentioned Ministries of the Government of India the number to be so elected in respect of each Ministry, excluding the Chairman, being as follows:

Ministry of Labour	10

(ii) the following cases shall be excluded from the purview of the Committee:

(a) cases concerning appointments,

(b) all cases which the Minister in charge considers cannot be placed before the Committee consistently with the public interest.

[Mr. Speaker]

(b) do adopt the annexed Rules* to regulate the constitution and procedure of the said Standing Committees".

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar (Madras: General): Sir, may I suggest that this motion be put to the House in two parts—(a) the substantive portion and (b) the annexed Rules. There does not seem to be any amendment so far as part (a) is concerned and therefore it will be adopted unanimously. After that we will go on to part (b).

ELECTION OF STANDING COMMITTEES TO ADVISE MINISTRIES

229

Mr. Speaker: I have no objection to adopt the suggestion. I will put the first part (a) to the House.

The question is:

"(a) That this Assembly do proceed to elect in such manner as the Honourable the Speaker may direct, members to serve until the end of the next financial year on Standing Committees to advise on subjects concerning the under-mentioned Ministries of the Government of India the number to be so elected in respect of each Ministry, excluding the Chairman, being as follows:

Ministry of Agriculture	10
Ministry of Commerce	10
Ministry of Communications	10

Ministry of External Affairs and Commonwealth Relations	10
Ministry of Food	10
Ministry of Health	10
Ministry of Home Affairs	10
Ministry of Industry and Supply	10
Ministry of Information and Broadcasting	10
Ministry of Labour	10
Ministry of Law	5
Ministry of Relief and Rehabilitation	10
Ministry of States	10
Ministry of Transport (other than Roads)	10
Ministry of Works, Mines and Power	10

The motion was adopted.

Mr. Speaker: I will now take part (b) and the amendments to the Rules.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: Sir, I beg to move:

(i) "That in part (b) of the motion, in Rule 1 for the words 'any officer deputed by him the words 'any member elected by the Committee', be substituted."

With your permission, Sir, I shall move the other amendments also, viz., Nos. 2, 3 and 4 relating to the same rule, so that Honourable Members may have a comprehensive idea as to what my intention is.

I move:

(ii) "That in part (b) of the motion, in Rule 1 after the word 'Chairman' where it occurs for the second time the words 'for that meeting' be inserted";

(iii) "That in part (b) of the motion, in Rule 1 for the word 'he' the words 'the Minister' be substituted "and

(iv) "That in part (b) of the motion, in Rule 1 for the word 'Chairman' where it occurs for the third time, the words 'the Minister' be substituted."

My object in making these motions is this. As Honourable Members will find, the rule as it stands makes the Minister the Chairman of each Committee and if he is absent on any particular occasion, the rule provides that an officer deputed by him may officiate as the Chairman for that meeting. My amendment is that instead of an officer, any member of the committee (the committees consist of members of the House) may elect one from among themselves as Chairman for that meeting. We have passed the earlier part of this motion according to which ten members of the Assembly will be elected as members of each committee. My proposal is that instead of any officer deputed by the Chairman any member elected by the committee from among themselves may act as Chairman for that meeting, in the absence of the Minister concerned. Such a Chairman will not be the Chairman for all meetings that may be held from time to time but only for that meeting, when the Minister is unable to be present. For the word "he" I want the word "Minister" to be substituted so as to make it clear. The rule as amended with these four amendments which are of a formal nature consequent on the first amendment, will read as follows:

"The Chairman of each Committee shall be the Minister in charge of the Ministry to which the Committee is attached or any member elected by the Committee to act as Chairman for that meeting when the Minister is unable to be present, and an officer in that Ministry designated by the Minister shall be the Secretary to the Committee."

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

- (i) "That in part (b) of the motion, in Rule 1 for the words 'any officer deputed by him' the words 'any member elected by the Committee' be substituted ;"
- (ii) "That in part (b) of the motion, in Rule 1 after the word 'Chairman' where it occurs for the second time the words 'for that meeting' be inserted ;"
- (iii) "That in part (b) of the motion, in Rule 1 for the word 'he' the words 'the Minister' be substituted ;" and
- (iv) "That in part (b) of the motion, in Rule 1 for the word 'Chairman' where it occurs for the third time, the words 'the Minister' be substituted.,"

The motion was adopted.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: Sir, I move the next amendment:

- (i) "That in part (b) of the motion, in sub-rule (1) of Rule 3, the following be omitted, namely :

'and on which the Minister in charge desires the advice of the Committee'."

The other amendment of mine relating to the same rule may also be taken together with this. I move:

- (ii) "That in part (b) of the motion, in sub-rule (3) of Rule 3, the following be omitted, namely :

'on which the Minister in charge desires the advice of the Committee'."

The object of these amendments is this. The rule says "The following subjects shall be laid before the Standing Committee" and then at the end of sub-rule No. (1) Honourable Members will find that there is a limitation to the subjects that may be placed before the Committee,—all non-official Bills, legislative proposals either in the form of bills or resolutions and memoranda "on which the Minister in charge desires the advice of the Committee." I do not want this limitation on the subjects that have to be placed before the Committee. The same thing is repeated in sub-rule (3) which says "Major questions of general policy on which the Minister in charge desires the advice of the Committee." Those words also may be omitted. With your permission, Sir, and with the leave of the House I would add at the end of Rule 3 the words "and financial proposals", i.e., major questions of general policy and financial proposals. I want that each committee should have the opportunity of looking into the budget relating to that Ministry, and giving priorities and they should also be able to suggest retrenchment or additions relating to the general policies which are placed before the committee. All general policies will have to be implemented by financial commitments and therefore I feel that there is a lacuna. I would, with your permission, like to add the words "and financial proposals".

Mr. Speaker: Is it necessary to add those words? Every general policy will include financial considerations.

Shri K. Santhanam (Madras: General): But it will not be the case vice versa.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: Financial proposals will always involve scrutiny of the policy, whereas the converse need not be true. You know very well that we are in the habit of scanning them too closely.

Mr. Speaker: I was feeling another difficulty. There is also a Standing Committee for the Ministry of Finance. What will happen in case there is a conflict of views between that committee and the other committees so far as financial proposals are concerned.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: May I respectfully submit to you and the House that instead of there being a conflict, it will facilitate the work of the Standing Finance Committee? The Standing Finance Committee consists of fifteen members and subjects relating to all the Ministries come up for consideration before the Standing Finance Committee. They would certainly like to have the opinion of the Members of the House on the various Standing Committees with reference to each one of those Ministries. However clever the Members of the Standing Finance Committee may be they cannot be omniscient and it will be open to them to accept or reject the advice given.

Mr. Speaker: The only question is whether it is permissible at this stage to make an addition to the amendment.

Haji Abdus Sattar Haji Ishaq Seth (Madras: Muslim): On the observation from the Chair that these rules will govern the conduct of the Standing Finance Committee also, I find some difficulty. The motion of the Honourable Member is that these Rules will regulate "the constitution and procedure of the said Standing Committees". And, in the said Standing Committees the Finance Committee is not mentioned. I do not think these Rules will govern the conduct of the Standing Finance Committee.

Mr. Speaker: Any way, it will be a matter for the decision of the House on merits. What I am at present considering is whether I should permit the Honourable Member to add to his amendment, though he has not given previous notice of the addition. I think that the matter is of some importance and that I should not bar it by refusing to give my leave.

Amendments moved:

- "(i) That in part (b) of the motion, in sub-rule(1) of the Rule 3, the following be omitted, namely :

'and on which the Minister in charge desires the advice of the Committee';

- (ii) That in part (b) of the motion, in sub-rule(3) of Rule 3, the following be omitted namely :

'on which the Minister in charge desires the advice of the Committee'; and the words 'and financial proposals' be added after the words 'general policy'."

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty (Minister for Finance): With regard to the financial proposals being placed before these Advisory Committees, there is a possibility of very serious conflict, because every proposal for expenditure which comes before the Standing Finance Committee must necessarily relate to some Ministry or other. If, for instance, a number of items of expenditure are considered necessary by the Standing Committee of that Ministry, then the hands of the Standing Finance Committee are practically tied and the Standing Finance Committee cannot examine whether it is wise or necessary to include certain items of expenditure passed by the Standing Committees, and very serious conflicts will arise. In the alternative, the Standing Finance Committee will become absolutely of no use.

Mr. Speaker: I myself pointed out the difficulty. But I am putting the amendment just for the consideration of the House.

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: Sir, there is this difficulty which you were good enough to point out and which the Honourable Finance Minister has also drawn attention to. I think the difficulty, however, need not frighten us. Ultimately in regard to these financial proposals it is the Standing Finance Committee that will have the final word. As such I see no reason why it should be intimidated by any suggestion on financial proposals coming through any other Committee. No doubt the Standing Finance Committee will look into it, and if it does not fit in with the financial programme, it will negative the suggestion. In any event, whether you put those words or not, I have no doubt that any proposals which are to be examined by any of these Standing Committees will have to be examined in relation to their financial aspect. The whole picture has got to be considered by the Standing Committees.

[Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru]

The Standing Committees of the past have met normally twice a year and their meetings have often been formal meetings, restricted to problems placed before them. I am not myself conversant with these meetings—I have attended only one or two—and the meetings did not strike me as being very helpful. I hope in future the Standing Committees would perform much more important functions. We have said that they should meet at least twice a year, and I do not wish to change that wording in the Rules. But I hope that they will be able to meet oftener. I hope also that they will not only meet oftener but meet really to survey the whole scene of their activities and not merely confine themselves to the problem before them. I should certainly like to put the whole picture before them and take their help in the matter. There are, however, some exceptions to this. Obviously, sometimes something has to be done urgently, and the Standing Committee cannot meet. We must also have authority to do some things which cannot easily be placed before them for reasons of State policy or secrecy. Those things cannot be placed before them. Subject to that, I hope each Standing Committee will be given the fullest co-operation and information by the Minister concerned.

I am prepared to accept the amendment moved by Mr. Ayyangar. But there is one small matter to which I should like to draw the attention of the House. At the end of Rule 3 there is the Proviso "Provided that (i) in cases of urgency a reference to the Committee may be dispensed with by the Ministry concerned and (ii) the following cases shall be excluded etc." The second proviso is all right. It gives the protection I ask. But I am not quite clear, from the way it is printed, whether the first Proviso applies to the whole Rule or not. The way it is printed with the colon makes rather confusing. I hope it refers to the whole Rule. If so, I accept the amendment moved by Mr. Ayyangar.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"(i) That in part (b) of the motion, in sub-rule (1) of Rule 3, the following be omitted, namely:

'and on which the Minister in charge desires the advice of the Committee';

(ii) "That in part (b) of the motion, in sub-rule (3) of Rule 3, the following be omitted, namely:

'on which the Minister in charge desires the advice of the Committee'; and the words 'and financial proposals' be added after the words 'general policy'."

The motion was adopted.

Shri H. V. Kamath (C. P. and Berar: General): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I move:

"That in part (b) of the motion, in Rule 5, for the words 'twice a year' the words 'four times a year' be substituted."

My amendment is an extremely simple one. If the amendment be accepted, the Rule will read as follows:

"Meetings of the Standing Committees will be summoned by the secretary not less than four times a year.....etc."

The amendment speaks for itself and it is hardly necessary for me to expatiate on it. It may be argued of course, I realize, against this amendment that the practice so far has been to have meetings not less than twice a year. But I would submit that this practice, along with so many others, represents to my mind a hangover from the days of bureaucratic imperialism which it is high time we discarded, at any rate after the new set up since 15th August. I submit that my amendment has been tabled with a view to facilitating the work of the various Ministries. As Members of a sovereign Dominion Parliament I think we should work on these Committees earnestly, effectively and efficiently. I would therefore commend this amendment for the acceptance of the Honourable the Mover as well as of the House.

Mr. Speaker: Amendment moved:

"That in part (b) of the motion, in Rule 5, for the words 'twice a year', the words 'four times a year' be substituted."

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: I have just stated that I look forward to the Standing Committees meeting pretty frequently. But it will not be desirable to fix a number like four in these Rules. What the Rule says is they should meet at least twice a year. They may meet many more times. I think, however, that to lay down a statutory rule that every Committee should meet at least four times a year will perhaps be undesirable and might place some difficulty. As a matter of fact, apart from the administrative matters, if the Members of the Committee themselves want to meet at any time I am quite sure that they can meet. They will have the fullest co-operation of the Ministry.

I hope that the committees will work smoothly and frequently, but I would request the Mover of this to leave it at that and not have a hard and fast rule about every committee meeting at least four times a year.

Shri H. V. Kamath: In view of the assurance given by the Honourable the Leader of the House, I do not wish to press my amendment. I beg leave of the House to withdraw the amendment.

Mr. Speaker: Has the Honourable Member the permission of the House to withdraw his amendment?

The amendment was, by leave of the Assembly, withdrawn.

Mr. Speaker: I put the second part of the Motion, as amended, before the House.

The question is:

"(b) That this Assembly do adopt the annexed rules * to regulate the constitution and procedure of the said Standing Committees."

The motion was adopted.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

[Dr. John Matthai]

in this resolution, and that is as regards the allocations from this Fund to States. As Honourable Members will have noticed, the Resolution proposes that allocations to States will be confined to States which have acceded to the Union or to States which are eligible for these grants under existing agreements. With the exception of that, Sir, the resolution follows the policy which has been in force during the past seventeen years. The policy outlined in this resolution goes back to the time when a Committee was appointed by the old legislature to examine problems relating to the development of roads over which our distinguished countryman Dr. Jayakar presided. The old Government's policy based on those recommendations was announced in 1930, and ever since then, this particular policy has been in operation.

I will briefly sum up, Sir, the main features of the Resolution. First of all, there is to be a Road Fund which is to be fed by revenues derived from a duty of not less than 2 annas per gallon levied on petrol. I want to make it clear that the way in which para. 1 of the Resolution is stated does not authorise Government to levy this duty. The duty will be levied in accordance with the procedure followed in regard to finance bills. All that this Resolution does is to authorise the Government to earmark the funds derived from this duty for the purpose of road development.

The second feature of the proposals embodied in the Resolution is that out of the funds so derived, fifteen per cent. would be allocated to the Central Government for the formation of a Central Reserve. The purpose of the Central Reserve is to finance specified major projects in which two or more Provinces or States may be interested, or it may be used for purposes of experiment and research in regard to road construction and development.

The third feature is that funds will be allocated to Provinces and States from this Fund on the basis of the petrol consumption in the areas concerned.

The fourth feature is that the administration of this Fund and expenditure from it would be subject to the control of the Standing Committee.

Sir, I want to make it perfectly clear before I sit down that the object of this Resolution is simply to continue for the time being the policy which has been in force all these years. The Resolution does not commit the House to any permanent arrangements regarding the Road Fund or the Road Committee. My own intention is that as soon as the Committee has been appointed under this Resolution, they should take up the question of the lines on which the basis and the composition of the Fund and the Committee should be determined for the future. Therefore, I would suggest with regard to the amendments of which notice has been given that it would probably be a more satisfactory arrangement if the issues raised in these amendments were brought up before the Committee after it has been appointed. Sir, I beg to move.

Mr. Speaker: I also do not propose to read the motion. I take it that the motion is there before the Honourable Members and therefore put it to the House. Resolution moved:

"This Assembly hereby resolves that:

1. There shall continue to be levied on motor spirit an extra duty of customs and of excise of not less than 2 annas per gallon, and the proceeds thereof shall be applied for the purposes of road development.

2. (1) From the proceeds of such extra duty in any financial year there shall be deducted a sum as near as may be equivalent to the share in such proceeds arising from taxed motor spirit used in aviation during the calendar year ending in the financial year concerned, and such shall be at the disposal of the Central Government for allotment as grants-in-aid of civil aviation.

(2) The balance of the proceeds shall be credited as a block grant to a separate Road Fund.

(3) For the purposes of this resolution 'taxed motor spirit' shall mean motor spirit upon which the duty of customs or excise shall have been paid and in respect of which no rebate of such duty shall have been given.

RESOLUTION RE CENTRAL ROAD FUND AND STANDING COMMITTEE FOR ROADS

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai (Minister for Railways and Transport): May I ask you, Sir, whether you will be good enough to suspend the rule which requires a Member who moves a resolution to begin by stating the motion as set out in the List of Business? As you will see, it covers 3 foolscap pages and I think it would be a waste of time of the House to read it since copies of this resolution have already been circulated. I may say, Sir, that ten years ago when a resolution in these identical terms was moved in the old Legislature, the President extended a similar indulgence to my predecessor then in office.

Mr. Speaker: The resolution will be taken as read.

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: I beg to move the resolution standing in my name:

"This Assembly hereby resolves that:

1. There shall continue to be levied on motor spirit an extra duty of customs and of excise of not less than 2 annas per gallon, and the proceeds thereof shall be applied for the purposes of road development.

2. (1) From the proceeds of such extra duty in any financial year there shall be deducted a sum as near as may be equivalent to the share in such proceeds arising from taxed motor spirit used in aviation during the calendar year ending in the financial year concerned, and such sum shall be at the disposal of the Central Government for allotment as grants-in-aid of civil aviation.

(2) The balance of the proceeds shall be credited as a block grant to a separate Road Fund.

(3) For the purposes of this resolution 'taxed motor spirit' shall mean motor spirit upon which the duty of customs or excise shall have been paid and in respect of which no rebate of such duty shall have been given.

3. (1) The Road Fund shall be allocated as follows:

(a) a portion equal to fifteen per cent., shall be retained by the Central Government as a Central reserve;

(b) out of the remainder there shall be allocated by the Central Government—

(i) a portion for expenditure in each Governor's Province,

(ii) a portion for expenditure in the Chief Commissioner's Provinces,

(iii) a portion for expenditure in the Acceding States and

(iv) a portion for expenditure in such non-acceding Indian States as may be eligible thereto under any agreement for the time being in force, as near as may be in the ratio which the consumption of taxed motor spirit, other than motor spirit used in aviation, in each area for which an allocation is to be made shall bear to the total consumption in India and the States referred to in sub-clause (iv) above, of taxed motor spirit, other than motor spirit used in aviation during the calendar year ending during the financial year concerned.

(2) The portions allocated for expenditure in Governors' Provinces shall be retained by the Central Government until they are actually required for expenditure in the manner herein-after specified.

(3) If in the opinion of the Central Government, the Government of any Governor's province has at any time—

(a) failed to take such steps as the Central Government may recommend for the regulation and control of motor vehicles within the province, or

(b) delayed without reasonable cause the application of any portion of the Road Fund allocated or re-allocated as the case may be for expenditure within the province, the Central Government may resume the whole or part of any sums which it may at that time hold for expenditure in that province.

(4) All sums resumed by the Central Government from the account of any Provincial Government as aforesaid shall be re-allocated between the credit accounts of Provincial Governments and the reserve with the Central Government in the ratio of the main allocation for the financial year preceding the year in which the re-allocation is made:

Provided that the sum so calculated as the share of the province from whose account the resumption has been made shall also be credited to the reserve with the Central Government.

4. The balance to the credit of the Road Fund or of any allocation thereof shall not lapse at the end of the financial year.

5. No expenditure shall be incurred from any portion of the Road Fund save as herein-after provided.

6. The Central reserve with the Central Government shall be applied first to defraying the cost of administering the Road Fund and thereafter upon such schemes for research and intelligence and upon such special enquiries connected with roads and upon special grants-in-aid for such objects connected with roads as the Central Government may approve.

7. The sums allocated for expenditure in the Provinces may, subject to the previous approval of the Central Government to each proposal made, be expended upon any of the following objects, namely:

(i) on the construction of new roads and bridges of any sort;

(ii) on the reconstruction or substantial improvement of existing roads and bridges;

(iii) in special cases, on the maintenance of roads and bridges, constructed, reconstructed or substantially improved from the Road Fund, or from loans approved or sanctioned by the Central Government;

(iv) to meet charges, including the cost of establishment, connected with the preparation of schemes of road development or with the administration of provincial Boards of Communications;

(v) to meet charges including the cost of establishment connected with the control of motor transport; and

(vi) on the interest and amortization of loans approved or sanctioned before the date of this Resolution by the Central Government, and spent or to be spent on the construction, reconstruction or substantial improvement of roads and bridges.

8. In considering proposals for the construction, reconstruction or improvements of roads and bridges from the Road Fund, the Central Government shall have regard to the present urgent need for improving the efficiency and reducing the cost of transport by road of agricultural produce to markets and railways.

9. (1) A Standing Committee for Roads shall be constituted each financial year consisting of—

(a) the Minister in charge of the relevant portfolio, provided that should the said Minister be unable to be present at any meeting he shall nominate a person to deputise for him;

(b) twelve members elected by the members of the Constituent Assembly from amongst themselves; and

(c) the Chief Commissioner of Railways.

(2) The said Minister shall be the Chairman of the Committee: Provided that should he be unable to be present at any meeting, the person nominated to deputise for him under subparagraph (1) shall act as the Chairman of the meeting.

(3) No approval to any proposal for expenditure from the Road Fund shall be given by the Committee unless it is supported by a majority of the members present and voting.

(4) All proposals for expenditure from the Central reserve and all other proposals for expenditure from the Road Fund to be made in the Provinces shall be referred by the Central Government to the Standing Committee before the proposals are approved.

10. The functions of the Standing Committee shall be:

(a) to consider the annual budget and accounts of the Road Fund;

(b) to advise upon all proposals for expenditure from the Central reserve;

(c) to advise upon the desirability of all other proposals involving expenditure from the Road Fund in the Provinces;

(d) to advise upon proposals for the resumption of monies held by the Central Government as provided for in sub-paragraph (3) of paragraph 3 of this Resolution; and

(e) to advise the Central Government generally on all questions relating to roads and road traffic which the Central Government may refer to the Committee."

This resolution relates to two matters the constitution of a Road Fund and the constitution of a Standing Committee for the administration of the Road Fund. I may say, Sir, at the beginning that all that this resolution seeks to do is to continue a policy which has been in existence for the past seventeen years. The only changes which are made in this resolution are changes mainly of a verbal character arising from the constitutional changes which have taken place. There is one point of substance regarding which a change is indicated

[Mr. Speaker]

9. (1) A Standing Committee for Roads shall be constituted each financial year consisting of—
- (a) the Minister in charge of the relevant portfolio, provided that should the said Minister be unable to be present at any meeting he shall nominate a person to deputise for him;
 - (b) twelve members elected by the members of the Constituent Assembly from amongst themselves; and
 - (c) the Chief Commissioner of Railways.
- (2) The said Minister shall be the Chairman of the Committee: Provided that should he be unable to be present at any meeting, the person nominated to deputise for him under sub-paragraph (1) shall act as the Chairman of the meeting.
- (3) No approval to any proposal for expenditure from the Road Fund shall be given by the Committee unless it is supported by a majority of the members present and voting.
- (4) All proposals for expenditure from the Central reserve and all other proposals for expenditure from the Road Fund to be made in the Provinces shall be referred by the Central Government to the Standing Committee before the proposals are approved.

10. The functions of the Standing Committee shall be:

- (a) to consider the annual budget and accounts of the Road Fund;
- (b) to advise upon all proposals for expenditure from the Central reserve;
- (c) to advise upon the desirability of all other proposals involving expenditure from the Road Fund in the Provinces;
- (d) to advise upon proposals for the resumption of monies held by the Central Government as provided for in sub-paragraph (3) of paragraph 3 of this Resolution; and
- (e) to advise the Central Government generally on all questions relating to roads and road traffic which the Central Government may refer to the Committee."

Shri Biswanath Das (Orissa: General): Sir, I had given notice of three amendments but after hearing my Honourable Friend, I do not propose to move those amendments but it is fair that I should place on record that we do not like that petrol should go so lightly taxed. Time has come when the scale of taxation should be graduated equitably and in such a manner that the people who could pay more should be ready and willing to take their due burden of taxation. Looked from this point of view, there is no reason and much less justification why petrol should go with so light a duty and especially why aviation petrol should go with a very small duty. A duty on petrol has very little justification unless it is meant and utilised to develop the roads—in constructing new ones or maintaining existing roads.

Mr. Speaker: May I point out to the Honourable Member that the substance of the motion is really the constitution of the Committee, and that the point that he is making out now and which he included in his amendment, is really one which is not admissible at the present stage? I thought he would just invite attention to his point but then it seems he is trying to go into the merits of the whole case. I am afraid it is not permissible on this motion to do so. The proper place will be when the Finance Bill or the Budget comes up, when the Honourable Member will have ample opportunities of putting forward his views. If he has to say anything about the constitution of the Committee or the distribution of the Fund collected—as one of his amendment shows—it is perfectly all right. But I do not propose to allow discussion as to what the petrol duty should be or what the general structure of taxation in the country should be.

Shri Biswanath Das: Sir, I am highly thankful for your suggestion but I have to submit that I am only stating certain facts with a view that the Honourable Members of this House will be able to apprise properly the other points that I have placed before them. It is in this view of the question that I have to state these facts. I may also invite your attention to the fact that the Resolution moved by my Honourable friend includes the levy of a petrol cess. Considered from that point of view, the facts I have stated are not irrelevant.

Sir, my submission was that the time has come when we have to change the existing conditions and the system and method of taxation. Sir, if the petrol cess is intended to be utilised for the development and construction of roads, I wish to say that more money on this account is necessary to be utilised than the 15 per cent. allotted for the Central Reserve. My submission is that the Fund may be so adjusted that the Government of India may have more reserve with them so that the Central Government could go to the aid of Provinces and States to provide facilities of roads and communications in undeveloped areas.

Sir, in this connection I may bring to the notice of the Honourable Members of this House that the Provinces of Assam, Orissa and C.P. and Berar are the worst sufferers. Of course, there are other provinces, but of all the provinces in India the provinces I have mentioned are the ones having vast areas undeveloped. That is why I submit that this petrol cess should be considerably increased, so that the Government may get more money out of this proportion of 85 per cent. and 15 per cent. and the Committee that we are constituting may be able to devote more money to go to the aid of these undeveloped areas. With these words, I appeal to the Government to look to this aspect of this question before they bring forward their budget proposals and make up their mind to allocate more funds for being devoted for this purpose.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar (Madras: General): Sir, in view of the statement made by the Honourable the Mover, I do not propose to move the amendments to the various rules standing in my name, but I would like that a small amendment should be made. In clause 9 regarding the Standing Committee, it says:

"A Standing Committee for Roads shall be constituted each financial year".

Sir, you remember that the various committees for the constitution of which the Honourable the Premier moved today and which was accepted by the House just now, were constituted for the remaining period of the present financial year and till the end of the next financial year. Therefore, I would suggest that the words "each financial year" in clause 9 (1) may be omitted.

Then in the Resolution that was moved relating to the constitution of the Standing Committee for Roads. . . .

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: I have not moved it yet.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: If perchance that Committee which is to be constituted is to continue till the end of the next financial year, i.e. till the end of 31st March, 1949, then, if these rules stand in the present form, namely, that each financial year a fresh election shall take place, these two will conflict. Therefore I suggest the omission of the words "each financial year" in clause 9.

Mr. Speaker: The point is not clear to me. The Honourable Member refers to some kind of conflict between a motion that has come before the House and the words "each financial year". What I understand is that this Resolution refers to the constitution of that Committee and that Constitution will go on. This Resolution is not coming before the House from year to year. I understand it defines the constitution. Am I right?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: That is so, Sir.

Mr. Speaker: If that is so, why should it not provide that a Committee shall be constituted each financial year?

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: Because we are going by another Resolution. There are two Resolutions standing in the name of the Honourable Mover. He moved the first one relating to the constitution and set-up of the Committee with which we are dealing. The next Resolution, which he has not moved, says that "a Committee for Roads shall be constituted consisting of 12 [Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar] members in the manner prescribed by the Speaker" and so on. You will kindly see, Sir, that the period of tenure of that Committee has been limited under the terms of this Resolution to March 31st, 1948. That read with this, will mean that at the end of 31st March, 1948, for the next financial year there will have to be a fresh Committee brought into existence. There is no conflict between the rules as they stand, but I would urge upon him that in view of the fact that we have appointed various Committees moved by the Honourable the Prime Minister till the end of the next financial year, namely, till the end of March, 1949, the Committee for Roads may also be allowed to continue till that period and if that is so, this will militate against that, I mean if the words "each financial year" in the present rules are retained. If they are omitted, these rules may be applied to any Committee which is brought into existence at any time, whatever might be the period, and therefore I believe this amendment will be acceptable to the Mover himself.

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: I may perhaps, with your permission, Sir, say that this matter was discussed by my Honourable friend and me and I quite understand the position that he has explained. I agree with him in what he has said. If this Resolution is passed in the terms in which I have moved it, there would certainly be a conflict between the clause 9 of this Resolution and certain amendments which have been under discussion between me and the Honourable Member in regard to the next Resolution which is coming up for consideration before the House. In any case, Sir, the Resolution that I have moved sets out the basis and composition of this Road Funds Committee and it deals only with a temporary period. It is meant to be simply an arrangement for the provisional continuation of the existing system. It is quite likely that within the next few months, as soon as this Committee is appointed, the procedure set out in this Resolution would have to be altered fundamentally, so that the present Resolution deals only with a temporary situation. Thereafter, it may be possible for the Committee to go into the whole matter and discuss the lines on which a permanent constitution can be drawn up.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: Does the Honourable the Mover then suggest that he would bring up these rules for the Road Funds Committee before the next Budget session?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: Yes, that is what I told the House.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: Even then, the omission of the words "each financial year" here may not stand in the way of any Committee being appointed during the interim period.

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: I am sorry I was not clear. I am agreeing with the Honourable Member to the omission of the words "each financial year" and shall accept his amendment.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: Then, Sir, I may be permitted to make a few observations on the rules as they stand.

Mr. Speaker: First of all, the Honourable Member may move his amendment.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: Sir, I beg to move:

"That in sub-clause (1) of Clause 9 of the Resolution, the words 'each financial year' be omitted."

Mr. Speaker: Motion moved:

"That in sub-clause (1) of Clause 9 of the Resolution, the words 'each financial year' be omitted."

The Honourable Member may now proceed.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: In sub-clause (1) of clause 2, it is stated:

"From the proceeds of such extra duty in any financial year there shall be deducted as near a sum as may be equivalent to the share in such proceeds arising from taxed motor spirit used in aviation during the calendar year ending in the financial year concerned."

I do not know, why, Sir, a difference has been made between the financial year and the calendar year.

Then, Sir, I would like to know from the Honourable the Mover whether it is from this Road Fund that highways are going to be put up or are going to be maintained or whether there is a separate fund or whether this expenditure will be met from general revenues.

Then, Sir, I would like to draw the attention of the Honourable Member to Rule 3 sub clauses (3) and (4). There is a heavy penalty that is imposed on 1 P.M. Governors' Provinces which do not utilise for any reason the allocation of the Road Fund during that particular year. The provision that now stands is that those monies may be re-allocated at the end of the year to various Provinces including this province. I suggested that these might also be added to the reserve. There may be various undertakings which may be completed within two or more years or, a period of three years. Therefore provision must be made for accumulating this on behalf of any particular province as a reserve and kept as a Central reserve so that it may be utilised at the end of three years or any period by that particular Government.

I would like to know, Sir, from the Honourable Member if in the administration of this Road fund which has been constituted a long time ago there has been any default and there have been occasions for the Central Government to withdraw the contributions that have been made to any particular Government for not having expended those amounts within that period and if so whether they have tried to accumulate this reserve and what the attitude of the Central Government has been in that regard.

Then, Sir, in clause 7 it is stated that 'the sums allocated for expenditure in the Provinces may, subject to the previous approval of the Central Governmentto each proposal made, be expended upon any of the following objects'. I would like to know, Sir, if the Central Government has got any agency by which the allocation may be made. The Central Government must certainly have an agency by which it can go into individual matters. For instance my Honourable friend Dr. Subrahmanyam who hails from Trichinopoly just told me that there is a proposal to construct a bridge on the Cauvery at a cost of nearly 20 or 30 lakhs if not more. But the situation is such that the ordinary traffic is all one way and there is heavy traffic. The place that has been chosen is not a place over which the traffic would be ordinarily diverted. I would like to know what agency is consulted in a matter like this.

Then, Sir, in paragraph 8 so far as the transport of agricultural produce is concerned it appears to be the policy of the framers of this Constitution to help in facilitating the transport of agricultural produce from place to place. What are the rules which have been till now laid down for facilitating the transport of agricultural produce? Has there been a scheme evolved? The House will kindly refer to the last few lines in clause 8:

"The Central Government shall have regard to the present urgent need for improving the efficiency and reducing the cost of transport by road of agricultural produce to markets and railways."

I do not know, Sir, how the Honourable the Mover proposed to reduce the cost of transport of agricultural produce by road.

Then as regards the constitution I would urge that if the Honourable Member is not able to preside over this Standing Committee for any reason, it is not any officer of his Department that should be allowed to preside, but a member of the Committee who is a member of the Legislature.

Lastly, Sir, I would urge upon him that not only the matters that are brought up by the Honourable Member or the Department before the Committee should be considered, but any member must be allowed an opportunity to place all relevant matters relating to his Department before the Committee for consideration.

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: Well, Sir, most matters that my Honourable friend has referred are matters which, as I said before, would come before this committee that we are appointing and I do not think that it is necessary that I should take up the time of the House by discussing them on the merits. There are certain points of information which the Honourable Member has raised. As far as I am able to tell at present, Sir, the question of reducing the cost of transport of agricultural produce has been actively engaging the consideration of the Central Government. Of course it is not a matter in regard to which it is possible to lay down a principle which would be capable of universal application. It is a matter that would have to be discussed with reference to the circumstances of each case. Then my Honourable friend asked me what the position of the National Highways was. Now the expenditure incurred by the Central Government in respect of national highways is an entirely separate matter, which is not covered by the provision which is set out in this Resolution. I am not in a position at present to state whether in the past there have been cases where the Central Government was called upon to resume grants once made, but I am prepared to have the matter looked into. As regards the minor point raised as to the basis of the year which is taken into account in regard to the allocation of funds for development of Aviation that is a matter also that I would like to look into. Generally, Sir, I am in agreement with the suggestions which my Honourable friend has made.

With regard to what Mr. Biswanath Das said regarding the financial part of the Resolution, the point has been covered by what you have said. I entirely agree with you, if I may say so. As regards the other matters I think they would come up for consideration before the Committee very shortly.

Mr. Speaker : The question is.

"That in sub-clause (1) of clause 9 of the Resolution, the 'words each financial year' be omitted."

The motion was adopted.

Mr. Speaker : The question is :

"This Assembly hereby resolves that :

1. There shall continue to be levied on motor spirit an extra duty of customs and of excise of not less than 2 annas per gallon, and the proceeds thereof shall be applied for the purposes of road development.

2. (2) The balance of the proceeds shall be credited as a block grant to a separate Road Fund.

[Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru]

the Finance Minister regarding the financial agreement arrived at between the United Kingdom and the Government of India be supplied to every Member? They are such important documents that I am sure every member would like to have them. I do not know what the practice here is, but so far as I remember, in the Council of State, every such document was circulated to every member without any request on the part of any member.

Mr. Speaker: I do not know what the practice in the Council of State was but it was a much smaller House and it was easier to distribute copies. In a big House like this, it becomes a problem. However, these are important documents no doubt. They shall be printed in the reports. But if Members are anxious to have them much earlier, I will ask that they be printed.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa (C. P. and Berar: General): It is advisable to send them in advance. Reports sometimes take two to three months to print.

Mr. Speaker: Ordinarily it does not take as much as that. But it takes a sufficiently long time.

INDIAN TRADE UNIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL

Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena (U. P.: General): I wish to say how I feel about this Bill which we are going to pass into an Act. The purpose of this Bill is obvious and I think everybody will agree with the Honourable the Minister for Labour that the purpose is a laudable one. Strikes should be reduced to the minimum especially now when we are a free country. When we have to catch up with other countries far advanced of us, surely our industries must run smoothly. The only question is whether this Bill achieves the object for which it has been designed. I personally think that this Bill falls very far short of the purpose for which it has been designed. There are two ways to stop strikes. One is by muzzling labour, by repression as was done during the years 1942 to 1946; the other is by removing the causes of the strikes, and I think the National Government of free India must resort to the latter method. I therefore tried to go through this Bill and see whether it helps to remove the causes of strikes. I have studied the Labour Gazette for several months and tried to see the working of the Trade Union Act for the last three or four years and I have found that the main cause of strikes, besides wages, is victimisation of the personnel. From my own experience, in fact in the last one year I have had personally to represent labour in about 30 adjudications, I have found invariably that the main dispute was about victimization and that too merely for being office-bearers of trade unions. It was the same in railways, in the posts and telegraphs, in the sugar industry, in the jute industry. Whether they are the officers of the Government or the authorities of a factory, they all dislike the workers forming themselves into trade unions and they neither want them nor their office-bearers to take a prominent part in trade union work. I, therefore, wish to see in this Act some provision to safeguard the rights of the office-bearers in order to give these workers facilities to organise unions freely. I thank the Honourable Minister for the provision against some malpractices by the mill-owners. But I think that a fine of Rs. 1,000 for infringement of these regulations is nothing. I have known factories which have spent lakhs of rupees to win adjudications with a view to get active trade union workers expelled from their service. Even though the adjudication proceedings are costly still in most cases even after the award being in favour of workers the mill-owners would simply not have them back at their jobs. Until there is some stricter penalty for these malpractices by millowners, the thing will simply not work. The present provision in the Bill made in that respect is quite illusory. In the U. P. we have an ordinance to maintain industrial peace and in it the Government has provided three years' imprisonment as the penalty for not carrying out the awards of the Arbitration Courts or Adjudicators. This Bill in effect does not put on the employers any real obligation to permit the office-bearers of trade unions to carry on their work properly. Therefore, I think the real purpose of this Act, which should have been to enable the office bearers of the unions to organise themselves freely into strong, powerful, disciplined unions, will not be served. They have not been given even the very elementary rights for organising themselves into trade unions. Yesterday we requested the Honourable Minister to give these rights. He gave three reasons for refusal to incorporate these rights in this Bill. He said first of all that the Works Committees which have been formed under the Industrial Disputes Act will serve to investigate the complaints, but I have an experience of the working of that Act for the last two years.

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram (Minister for Labour): The Act has not yet worked for two years!

Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena: It is more than a year that it has been working. During the last one year I have felt that the Works Committees have not been and will not be able to perform the functions which the amendment of Mr. Santhanam was intended to enable the Trade Unions to perform by enabling them to investigate complaints on the spot of occurrence. In fact the Works Committees have not been authorised to do any such thing. I will read out the clause about the formation of Works Committees in the Industrial Disputes Act. It runs as follows:—

"In the case of any industrial establishment in which one hundred or more workmen are employed or have been employed on any day in the preceding twelve months, the appropriate Government may by general or special order require the employer to constitute in the prescribed manner a Works Committee consisting of representatives of employers and workmen engaged in the establishment, so however that the number of representatives of workmen on the Committee shall not be less than the number of representatives of the employer. The representatives of the workmen shall be chosen in the prescribed manner from among the workmen engaged in the establishment and in consultation with their trade union, if any, registered under the Indian Trade Unions Act, 1926."

"(2) It shall be the duty of the Works Committee to promote measures for securing and preserving amity and good relations between the employer and workmen and, to that end to comment upon matters of their common interest or concern and endeavour to compose any material difference of opinion in respect of such matters."

These committees were formed of an equal number of millowners' and labourers' representatives. The purpose of these committees is to promote goodwill and to try to secure amity. What happens is that there are two parties in every committee and the committee as such has no powers to make investigations on the spot of occurrence of a dispute. When there is a dispute there are always two equal sections in the committee—the labourers want something and the industrialist or the employer does not want to grant it. The result is that there is a deadlock and there is no power vested in the Works Committees to investigate the causes of the dispute and to remedy them. If they had such a power they might be able to find out the cause of dispute and try to serve some useful purpose. The present Works Committees will not serve such a purpose. There are sixty unions in the U. P. sugar industry and in spite of the existence of Works Committees it has not been

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram (Minister for Labour): Sir I beg to move:

"That the Bill as amended be passed."

Mr. Speaker: Motion moved:

"That the Bill as amended be passed."

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: Sir, I move:

"That in clause 4 of the Bill, in place of the amendment adopted by the House yesterday introducing a new section 28 F. (A), the following amendments be made in the proposed Section 28 F as permitted by you, Sir—

(a) in sub-section (2) for the words 'in this section' the words 'in sub-section (1)' shall be substituted;

(b) after sub-section (3), the following sub-section shall be added, namely:

'(4) The executive of a recognised Trade Union shall be entitled to display notices of the Trade Union in any premises where its members are employed, and the employer shall afford the executive reasonable facilities for that purpose.'

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That in clause 4 of the Bill, in place of the amendment adopted by the House yesterday introducing a new section 28 F. (A), the following amendments be made in the proposed section 28 F as permitted by you, Sir—

(a) In sub-section (2), for the words 'in this section' the words 'in sub-section (1)' shall be substituted;

(b) after sub-section (3), the following sub-section shall be added, namely:

'(4) The executive of a recognised Trade Union shall be entitled to display notices of the Trade Union in any premises where its members are employed, and the employer shall afford the executive reasonable facilities for that purpose.'

The motion was adopted.

Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena (U. P.: General): Sir, as I said yesterday, it is rather strange that this Bill originated in the last Assembly, the Select Committee on the Bill was also formed in the last Assembly and now we are called upon to pass the Bill as it has emerged from the Select Committee. Also, as I said yesterday, we got the papers in the morning only and could not go through the amendments. But after going through the Bill carefully and considering all that the Honourable Minister has said, I think I should state what I feel about it.

Mr. Speaker: I think the Honourable Member can continue after Lunch.

PANEL OF CHAIRMEN

Mr. Speaker: I have to inform the House that under sub-rule (1) of rule 3 of the Constituent Assembly (Legislative) Rules, I nominate Mr. Hussain Imam, Pandit Thakurdas Bhargava and Shri V. I. Munishwami Pillai on the Panel of Chairmen for the current session.

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till Half Past Two of the Clock.

The Assembly reassembled after Lunch at Half-Past Two of the Clock, Mr. Speaker (The Honourable Mr. G. V. Mavalankar) in the Chair.

PRINTING OF DOCUMENTS AND STATEMENTS LAID ON THE TABLE

Dr. B. Pattabhi Sitaramayya (Madras: General): Being new to the House, I do not know what is the position in respect of documents laid on the table. There are important documents like the Instrument of Accession of States, of which we should like to have copies in our hands.

Mr. Speaker: The usual practice is that copies are laid on the table: ordinarily they are printed in the reports. If a request is made, copies can be had but not necessarily of all the documents. And, in the case of very important documents which a large number of Members wish to have I can order them to be printed and distributed. There are a number of papers laid on the table and it is not always possible to distribute them all.

Pandit Hriday Nath Kunzru (U. P.: General): Will you please direct in this case that copies of the papers laid on the table today by Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel with regard to the accession of the States and those laid on the table by possible for them to resolve their disputes. I said yesterday that the mill-owners are chary of the union officials going into the mill premises to investigate complaints. After the rejection of Mr. Santhanam's amendment by the legislature, the millowners will become still more hostile. They will think that the legislature has refused to concede this right to trade unions. In fact this Bill should have been an advance on the prevailing practice. The present position is that in most of the sugar factories, unions have been given offices in the premises. This Bill has refused to give them that right which our friend Dr. Pattabhi wanted to give them, viz., to give them offices inside the factory premises.

In his minutes of dissent to the Select Committee Report, Mr. N. M. Joshi has suggested that reasonable leave should be granted to workers when they attend functions of their unions. In the Postal as well as in the Railway Departments when workers go to attend the meetings of their unions special casual leave is granted to them. When the Government itself has granted such a right to its employees, why should such a right not be granted under the Bill to workers of bona fide unions to enable them to attend the union meetings on special casual leave. I therefore feel that this Bill falls short of the accepted practice prevailing in Government Departments. The result will be that industrialists who are not so enlightened will take advantage of this Bill and say that the legislature itself has refused to allow the workers this right and therefore they would not give them that right. This will result in deadlocks and friction between the employers and workmen.

I was surprised by the observation of the Honourable Member that this Bill was really meant for agricultural labourers. I would have been glad if this Bill really applied to them and would have welcomed such a thing but I do not know how the Bill can apply to them. The preamble of the Indian Trade Unions Act, 1926 as amended by the Bill will read as follows:—

"Whereas it is expedient to provide for the registration and recognition of Trade Unions and in certain respects to define the law relating to registered and recognised Trade Unions and to certain unfair practices in industrial or trade employment; it is hereby enacted as follows:—"

So the scope of the Bill is limited to "industrial or trade employment". The definition of "workmen" in Section 2g of the Trade Union Act runs as follows:—

"And workmen means all persons employed in trade or industry". So "trade or industry" are the things that come under the purview of the Bill, and I do not think agriculture can be covered by these words, unless "trade" is interpreted so widely as to include agriculture or is defined in the Act to include agriculture also. I do not think unions of agricultural labourers can be registered under this Act. I know of one union whose registration has been hanging on for more than one year, because the Registrar objected that it did not come under the words "trade or industry". It is a union of farm labourers in a sugarcane plantation of a sugar factory. I do not know whether agriculture can be covered by the word trade. I would have wished that the matter be clarified, and the word "trade" should be defined to include agriculture, or in the preamble and in the definition of workmen, the word "agriculture" should also be included with trade and industry. I know that the Honourable Minister is anxious to give the benefits of this Bill to agricultural labourers but to do this he should widen the scope of this Bill to apply it also to unions of labourers who are working in the fields or in agriculture. That would very greatly extend the usefulness of the Bill by covering the agricultural labourers as well. I have studied the Bill and I know that at present it does not apply to them and therefore the argument that this is really intended for those labourers also is something which does not hold good. I would therefore suggest to the Honourable Minister that he should himself amend the Bill or bring another Bill to extend the scope of this Bill to include those workers who are not industrial workers but work in fields or farms or plantations.

My fear is that this Bill will encourage the formation of yellow unions, because under this Bill the millowners have been given the option to recognise the unions themselves voluntarily. What would happen is that the millowners will form yellow unions in their factories and they would give them voluntary recognition. There is no provision that they must satisfy certain conditions before they can recognise the unions voluntarily. In such cases the genuine unions will have to wait for three months to get a reply from the millowners in which they will invariably trot out some reason why they do not consider the genuine union to be more representative. The matter will then go before the labour court and there will be investigation as to the merits of the two rival labour unions. There is no provision in the Bill to decide the rival claims of the two unions. Only recently the Allahabad High Court gave a ruling that where there are two unions in a factory there should be a referendum. There is no such provision in this Bill before us here. So the yellow unions will be at a much greater advantage in the matter of recognition under this Bill than the genuine unions which will get involved in financial difficulties in contesting matters in labour courts.

As regards collection of subscriptions inside the premises it does not mean collection at the machine. I know many cases where workmen who live in quarters near the factories are not allowed to be approached by union officials. If the officials of registered unions are not permitted to go and collect subscriptions in their quarters, the work of the unions will become very difficult. When the employer wishes to have a yellow union, the officers of the yellow union would be allowed to collect subscriptions inside the factory or deductions will be made from the wages of workmen, whereas to the genuine unions this Bill does not give the right to collect subscriptions inside the factory premises. I therefore feel that the apprehension of the Honourable Minister that yellow unions will be encouraged by permitting collection of subscriptions inside the factory premises has really no valid foundation.

Then I feel that the adoption of this Bill will put upon the unions very big responsibilities which at the present stage they might not be able easily to fulfil. I know from experience of trade unions for the last so many years that about 66 per cent. of the unions are not able to submit their returns properly. In fact they do not know all the intricacies of law and therefore in spite of their best will they are not able to do so. Under this Bill so many further obligations have been put upon them that they will not be able to fulfil their requirements.

Secondly, the employer has been given the right under section 28G to apply to the Labour Court for withdrawal of recognition of the Union on any of the three conditions mentioned in section 28J. What will happen will be that any employer who is opposed to trade unions will always apply under this section for withdrawal of recognition, simply to harass the workers. There will be the application, and even if it is a false one, the workers will have to defend themselves against it. They do not have the resources and the money and they will be at a great disadvantage, with the application hanging over them. This power should not have been given to the employer but to the Registrar who, after due investigation, should have been empowered to move the machinery against the Unions. If the employers are allowed to do it, they will worry the unions who will then find great difficulty in carrying on their normal work under such conditions.

Again, the period of six months which has to elapse before a union can again apply for recognition is too long a period, as it will create a big gap. Our experience in the U. P. has been that the cause of many of the industrial disturbances has been delay in settling disputes. Things do not move quickly enough, in spite of the fact that in our province there is an ordinance more effective and efficient than the Industrial Disputes Act. If the views of our Ministry had been invited in this matter they would have also pointed out that the delay caused in disposing of disputes is one of the causes of the disturbances and it must be eliminated. The period of six months is too long. It should not be more than one month in any case. That itself is long because labour has not got the patience to wait. To my mind the periods of six months and three months appear very leisurely and they do not take account of the present conditions of industrial labour. Labour wants, and I hope that Government also wants, things to be done quickly. In other countries the position is quite different. In Australia which is a very new Commonwealth things are very different. I studied the Arbitration Act of New South Wales. I was arguing in an arbitration case, and there it was a question of the employers wanting to victimize the general secretary of the Federation. I found that our country has got no labour laws to guide us in defending such cases whereas other countries have got elaborate laws in this respect. I want that our Minister should supplement these Acts by elaborate legislation as regards the rights of members and office bearers of trade unions. In New South Wales the office-bearers of the unions have got many immunities. In fact there are provisions for severe and effective penalties to the industrialists if they victimized genuine trade union workers and they have got elaborate provisions for all contingencies. Although the purpose behind this Bill is very genuine and very sincere, that it must promote the welfare of labour and industry in this country, I do feel that this Bill may not be able to achieve its purpose because it falls short of the requirements of the situation. I hope that the Honourable Minister will invite the opinions of the various Governments who have been dealing with his problem, especially of our Government in the U. P. and also other Governments about this matter. I hope that the reports from them will convince the Honourable Minister that an elaborate piece of legislation by the Central Government to cover all these things is urgently needed. I hope this small Bill which has been introduced will be supplemented by that legislation very soon.

Shri Harihar Nath Shastri (U. P. : General): Sir, I rise to support the notion for the passage of this Bill and to congratulate the Honourable Minister for the same. I regret it was not possible for me to make my humble contribution to the discussion that took place yesterday on this Bill due to the fact that it was only when I came to the House that a copy of the Bill was handed over to me, and as such there was hardly any time for me to study the Bill or to propose any amendments. Now, at this stage when the Bill is passing through its final phase, it is hardly an appropriate moment to subject the Bill to any detailed criticism. All the same I shall crave your indulgence to permit me to make a few observations even though it may not be ordinarily permissible at this stage.

The reason for a measure of this kind has since long been felt by the working classes of this country. In fact in the year 1929 when the Royal Commission on Labour in India was set up the demand for compulsory recognition was pressed before it by Indian labour. But the Commission at that time shelved the issue. All the same, due to obvious difficulties and handicaps that the trade unions in this country have been experiencing, the demand for compulsory recognition, on their part has been persistent. For the first time any serious notice to this problem was taken by the Government of Bombay which in the year 1938 introduced the Bombay Industrial Disputes Bill and incorporated provisions regarding compulsory recognition in that Bill. That gave great impetus to the Indian working classes to agitate on an all-India basis for a measure of this kind. In the year 1942 the Tripartite Labour Organization was set up by the Government of India, and since then the question of compulsory recognition has been cropping up from time to time before that conference, with the result that in the beginning of the year 1946 the Labour Department of the Government of India produced a Bill which was later on referred to a Select Committee and that Report was considered by this House yesterday. I am glad to note, Sir, that the Bill, as it emerged from the Select Committee and as it was finally adopted by the House yesterday, does register a distinct improvement in the old Bill.

It confers rights of recognition to trade unions though in a restricted sense.

It makes the Bill still more effective by declaring certain actions or 3 P.M. certain steps on the part of the employers as unfair practices and by restricting the so called right of the employers to victimize workers at their sweet discretion. So, Sir, I feel that the Bill does afford an opportunity to the Indian working class to develop the trade union movement on sound and right lines though of course it is only a beginning. Now, Sir, I would be failing in my duty if while supporting this measure I do not say that this Bill does not adequately fulfil the expectations of the working class in this respect. I find that the Bill is vague and incomplete in certain respects. I shall here, instead of going into details, just point out one glaring defect that seems to have escaped the attention of the Select Committee. The Bill lays down certain conditions by fulfilling which a trade union can be entitled to secure recognition from the employers and from the Government. Now the defect is that according to this Bill, if in a particular industry there are more unions than one, even if there are half a dozen unions and all those unions fulfil the conditions for recognition as laid down in this Bill, all of them are at one and the same time entitled to be recognised by the employers under this Act. Now this, Sir, in my humble opinion, instead of stimulating the growth of a sound trade union movement in the country, will stand in the way of its healthy growth, and will be a great impediment. In the 1926 Act, Sir, which is sought to be amended by this amending Bill, there was provision for the registration of trade unions. Now in that Act, too, as many as 3, or in cities like Bombay and Calcutta, as many as half a dozen unions in one particular industry, were registered without any restrictions being placed on them. Now, instead of that defect being removed under this amending Bill, consciously or unconsciously, or for reasons best known to the Government, that evil has been further extended by this omission which entitles, two unions and more than two unions even, to be recognised under this Bill. All that I can say at this moment in this regard Sir, is that in due course of time the Government will scrutinize the Bill and will bring an amending Bill to do away with this evil.

Now coming to the privileges as conferred under this Bill, certain amendments were proposed yesterday. I was inclined to support one of the amendments that was proposed by my Honourable friend, Mr. Santhanam, and I thought it was only proper that facilities of that nature should be conferred on trade unions. All the same I did not support it for the simple reason that I felt that as long as this evil of dual unionism as introduced in this Bill is not done away with, any conferment of additional rights to trade unions in this country will, instead of stimulating their growth, add to further confusion. I would, therefore, suggest that, after that defect is removed, trade unions should be conferred additional rights as suggested in the Minority Report of the Select Committee. In fact such privileges are being enjoyed in certain provinces in this country—for instance in the province of Bombay where the Industrial Relations Act has been passed, almost similar provisions do exist with regard to compulsory recognition of trade unions and there is no reason why such provisions should not be introduced in the Central legislation.

Sir, as I said in the beginning, I do not propose to make any detailed observations on this Bill, and in conclusion I should only like to submit that the sole motive that has actuated me to support this Bill, to congratulate the Government, and also to offer certain suggestions or criticisms is that I stand for building up a strong and disciplined trade union movement in this country. Yesterday, in the course of speeches that were made on the floor of this House, references were made to unauthorized strikes or uncalled for strikes. I do admit, Sir,—I should be frank enough to admit—that there are disruptive tendencies in the trade union movement in this country and there are groups and parties that are exploiting the trade union movement for their party aggrandizement, and accentuating the situation for their selfish ends. But I might just submit, Sir, that I stand for a trade union movement which on the one hand should secure to labour their rightful place in the new set-up of our country, and at the same time which should make them realise their responsibilities to the country which is passing through an unprecedented crisis at the present moment. It is in fact the realisation of this very fact that has prompted genuine trade unionists in this country to take steps to form an independent, genuine trade union organisation only recently under the name of the Indian National Trade Union Congress and I am sure, Sir, that very shortly—in the course of a few months—that organisation will become the only representative organisation of labour that will promote the tasks that the working class of this country is faced with.

With these few remarks, Sir, I support the passage of the Bill and commend it for the acceptance of the House.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa (C. P. and Berar: General): Mr. Speaker, Sir, while supporting this motion, I congratulate the Honourable Member in charge of this Bill for having suggested so many improvements in the old Trade Unions Act. The many sound provisions which are included in this Bill undoubtedly go to prove that he is very sincere towards improving and ameliorating the conditions of the workmen. This is more or less due also, Sir, to his personal knowledge of the working of this class and as he rightly stated yesterday it is not that he has knowledge but he comes from that class. That is really the beauty of it that the Member is in a position to place a Bill which would be really a popular one.

With all that, Sir, I do feel that there are not in this Bill some provisions which are, considering the present conditions of the working class, ought to have been included and some of the provisions are still retrograde. I am sure while the portfolio is in charge of such an able and enthusiastic Member who takes interest in the labour class, he will himself in a very short time bring in a further amending Bill. And considering the present conditions, I do believe that he will give this matter his utmost and immediate consideration. Times, Sir, are changing so fast that in the olden days probably we thought a Bill or an Act that was passed a year ago could not be worthy of consideration for amendment even after a year or so. But today conditions as we know in India are so rapidly going ahead that that consideration has to be set aside.

One of the provisions over which there has always been conflict between the employer and the employee, has been provided for in Chapter III under unfair practices of both the union and the employer and I really give him a compliment for the courage that he has shown in adding this clause for telling employers as to what they should not do.

“The following shall be deemed to be unfair practices on the part of an employer, namely :—
To interfere with, restrain, or coerce his workmen in the exercise of their rights to organise form, join or assist a Trade Union and to engage in concerted activities for the purpose of mutual aid or protection.....”

There are some other clauses which I need not read, but this clause, Sir, has really been the main contention in the struggle that existed and exists between the employer and the employee and I should say between the trade union and the employer. I wish, Sir, that while this provision has been made, it will be made very effective. The Honourable Minister has also told the trade unions that they should not support any irregular strikes or submit false returns and I do feel from my own experience that there are some trade unions who really submit false and bogus reports and he has warned them that that also is to be desisted.

Sir, I have to make an observation, as I stated yesterday, about the recognition of the unions. This is a burning question for the labouring class and I do not understand why that has escaped the notice of the Honourable Member. This question is not of yesterday but is there for the last ten years. In the Provincial legislatures and even in this House, Sir, it has been stated times out of number that the union having been registered under the provisions of this Act, having complied with all the provisions, the Government having gone into the details of that union, it was most unfair on the part of the employer to find fault and not to recognise it. Employers do not recognise it not because there is any fault in the trade union but because they feel that if they recognise then they will have to submit to the other provisions of the State laws. From that point of view, Sir, there has been always a great deal of conflict between an employer and the trade unions. I know of instances where there have been strikes on this issue of non-recognition. We are all anxious to avoid strikes, we do not want strikes—we want more production today. I am not in favour of strikes for minor matters. So we do feel that if you really want to avoid the strikes this is one of the measures: that a trade union once registered must automatically be recognised by the employer. I have listened to the answers given yesterday as to why it should not be recognised automatically. I have yet to know why any period has to be given or even why any additional provisions have to be followed when the Government have seen that the provisions have been fully complied with. Under these circumstances I am not merely stating this view point on behalf of the labourers of the trade union but I am mentioning it in the interests both of the employers and the employees that this part of the question has to be tackled very soon if the strikes are to be avoided. From my personal experience I have seen, Sir, that wherever the employers recognise the union, there have been more or less no strikes. With common consent the initial stage, the initial path, has been made so smooth that a strike never arises over a minor matter. But fundamentally, if at the time of the recognition of a union a struggle arises, then you can very well appreciate what the position would be on other major questions of wages, etc. As I am sure the Honourable Member in charge will be very keen himself to avoid a strike—we all are interested—we want more production—I want to bring this matter to the notice of this Honourable House.

Sir, I would not take long on this matter because as I stated I was also under a disadvantage in not sending any amendment because the Bill was presented to us all abruptly, but I do not lose any faith; I shall have certainly another opportunity to bring in proposals if I feel necessary—I do feel I would not be given an opportunity—because the Honourable Minister himself will consider this question in passing the Bill.

[Mr. R. K. Sidhwa]

But what I would like to point out is that only the day before yesterday, the All-India Congress Committee met in Delhi and passed a Resolution setting out the objectives to be followed by the Congress after August 15. There is a paragraph in that Resolution which is worthy of consideration here, and I expect the Honourable Minister would follow it minutely and see whether he does not realise that the time has come when the workers' interests are to be safeguarded. The paragraph relating to industrial labourers runs thus:

"In the case of industries which in the nature of things must be run on a large scale and on Centralised basis, they should belong to the community and they should be so organised that workers become not only co-sharers in the profits but are also increasingly associated with the management and administration of the industry"

This, Sir, comes from an organisation like the A.I.C.C. to whom we have the honour to belong and to whom this Government has the honour to belong and most of the members of this House have the honour to belong. I am sanguine that this Resolution which was passed only the day before yesterday by the Congress would not be overlooked. The time has come when you cannot ignore the labourers and merely concentrate attention in paying them increased wages and a few small concessions. The employers have in their own time made enough money and they are making enough money today also. What does it matter to them if they share a little of this profit with the labourers. In whose interests would it be, if they share it? I say, it would be in the interests of the employers themselves. The Government nowadays realise that whenever they give a licence for opening a new factory or a new industry in some of the provinces—and I do hope they will do it in the Centre also—the workers' residential quarters must be provided in the factories and unless that is done, the licence would not be granted. They now realise this. I know that in the absence of these residential quarters the workmen who are living two miles or three miles from the factory have to leave their houses an hour or so before the factory opens, which adds to their working hours. Wherever the labourers' quarters have been provided, it has brought about happy results and I would therefore contend that this should be insisted upon. Of course, the paragraph that I have read out to you goes far far ahead, and we are merely asking for recognition here. I was mentioning the other day the illustration of the N.W.R. Union where the Railway Board of the previous regime have provided second class passes for the members to attend meetings and given leave as present in the service register. It is nothing new that they have done, but the result of it is there is a harmonious working between the railway employers and employees. The latter, though there is not complete unanimity between the two, surely feel that their employers are looking to their interests. When I was making this remark yesterday, somebody behind me remarked "They want also some allowances to be paid." That is the mentality of some of our friends who do not see eye to eye with the welfare of labourers. I ask if we could get allowances for attending meetings, I do not see any reason why those labourers attending meetings should not also receive allowances. However, I definitely feel, Sir, that facilities should be given to the trade union members and I do repeat that if these facilities are provided it would be in the interests of the employers themselves. I humbly request the Honourable Minister for Labour to bear this point also in mind and incorporate some of the facilities which I have mentioned in the Bills which he may bring hereafter.

Unfortunately, yesterday we had a little difference of opinion on this matter, but I am not very much worried about it. Fighting, we get our rights and we shall have to fight for the rights of the labourers also. I am confident that, having as we do an able Minister in charge of this Bill who is himself taking very keen interest in labour, he will in a very short time bring in another amending Bill giving facilities to the workers. Let me say, again, Sir, that while I advocate the cause of the labourers—and I have always advocated it in the Labour Unions—I have not ignored the other side viz., the view point of the employers because I feel that unless both go together the result will not be good and therefore the Congress has very wisely stated that time has come when the employers should share a little money with the labourers, they should also be urged to give them a right in the administration. With these words, I support the motion.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar (Madras: General): Sir, I move:

"That the question be now put".

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That the question be now put".

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: Sir, at the very outset I want to make it clear, as I did when referring this Bill to the Select Committee, that I do not take the credit for this Bill to myself. This Bill was introduced with the labours of my predecessor, the Honourable Dr. Ambedkar. As I made clear when this Bill was referred to the Select Committee, it requires improvement in several respects. Some improvements were effected in the Select Committee, but the whole Trade Unions Act requires a very thorough overhauling. If I have not been able to do this as yet, it is because the Department was engaged in rather more important and urgent Bills, some of which are still pending before the Assembly. However, I may assure my Honourable friends that the amendment of the Trade Unions Act is under my active consideration and I shall bear all the suggestions that have been made in mind when I bring a fresh amending Bill.

Certain points have been raised which I want to clear here. Mr. Saksena has raised the question of victimisation of personnel—especially office-bearers of the unions. I will again refer him to the section in this Bill and you will find as has been rightly pointed out by my Honourable friends Shri Harihar Nath Shastri and Mr. Sidhwa as well that the Bill does provide ample safeguards against the victimization of trade union officials and also the workers.

As regards the works committees which have been provided under the Trade Disputes Act, trial has not been given to the working of the works committees, I am afraid, in most of the sugar mills there are no works committees. The Act was passed only last year. Rules were framed and published and three months' time was given to the trade unions and other interests to suggest amendments to the rules. The rules have recently been finalized and in many of the factories and mills works committees have not been established as yet. So we have not given sufficient trial to the working of the works committees and it will be rather premature to pronounce any judgment over that. I believe, Sir, that mutual discussion and negotiation between the employers and the employees opportunity for which has been offered by the works committees is a thing which will avoid a lot of friction between them. Mr. Saksena has pointed out to me that I should see some of the labour legislations in other countries and try to adopt them according to the conditions in this country. I am thankful to him. But at the same time I may point out to him that in no other country there is any legislation providing compulsory recognition. It is the first Bill of this kind, but I feel, in this country there is a necessity for such a legislation. In other countries the workers are organised and enlightened enough to take care of themselves. But here we cannot leave this thing to the working classes themselves and therefore we had to come in. In other countries Governments have not come in to force the employers to recognise the trade unions of the workers.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: What about the United States?

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: No compulsory recognition.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: As far as my knowledge goes it is compulsory. However, we are not for recognition.

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: As Pandit Harihar Nath Shastri has rightly pointed out the Royal Commission suggested that the recognition of trade unions could be left to the employers and as far as possible there should be voluntary recognition by the employers. That has been given a fair trial and we found that the employers have not risen equal to the occasion and they have been creating all sorts of difficulties in the way of the recognition of a trade union. The one difficulty, as has been pointed out directly by Pandit Harihar Nath Shastri and my friend, Mr. Saksena, while giving a sort of reply to my speech yesterday, that the Bill may encourage the formation of various unions in a single concern, does not hold good. The Trade Unions Act, no doubt, gives ample scope for the formation of a number of unions in one factory or in one concern and if one were to accept the suggestion of Mr. Sidhwa which he has very vehemently urged that as soon as a union is registered it should be recognised, it will mean the recognition of a number of trade unions in a single concern or in a single factory.

I may point out to remove the misapprehension of Mr. Shastri that here the Labour Courts will see if the trade unions which apply for recognition is representative of workmen or not. I will refer him to sub-clause (b) of Clause 28(d) which reads "it is representative of all the workmen employed by the employer in the industry or those industries". It is my handicap, Sir, that I am not a lawyer and I cannot give a legal interpretation. But I think that the court while deciding whether a trade union should be recognised or not will take this matter into consideration and will see whether this particular trade union is really a representative one of the workmen in that factory or industry or not and if 'representative' has got any meaning it will certainly have the meaning as to what percentage of the workers in that concern are members of that trade union. Obviously there will not be more than one trade union which will be representative of all the workmen in that factory or that concern and naturally only one trade union will get recognition. I hold the opposite view that these will discourage the formation of more than one union in one industry or in one concern and I stand for that. I am one of those who always feel that in one concern or industry or factory there should not be more than one union. Unfortunately, Sir, under the Trade Unions Act there is scope for the formation of more than one trade union. Much can be said for and against that provision. I will not on this occasion go into the details of fact. That will be on some occasion when the amendment is brought to the main Act.

I wanted to have some further provisions in the Bill, but the difficulty was that according to the Legislative Department and according to the rules, no further section which was not concerned in this Bill could be amended by any fresh proposals. So I could not do what I wanted to do. But I will certainly bear in mind all the suggestions that have been made here in the next amending Bill, but I do certainly feel, Sir, that this Bill does go a long way in giving some rights to the working classes and if anyone feels here that it does not confer any right, I think he is not correct. There are provisions which confer certain rights on them.

Mr. Sidhwa has pointed out a paragraph from the Congress Resolution. I may point out to my friend, Mr. Sidhwa, that the present Government is always alive to the objective before it. I personally look up to that date when the workers will not be mere partners in the industry but when the distinction of the employer and the employee will be totally eliminated. Not only in the industry, I may inform my friend Mr. Saksena that not from today but for the last 12 years I have been striving for the principle that land belongs only to those who can work on land. Sir, I commend the Bill be passed.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That the Bill as amended be passed".

The motion was adopted.

PRESS (SPECIAL POWERS) BILL.

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel (Minister for Home, Information and Broadcasting and States): Sir, I move:

"That the Bill to continue certain special powers conferred on the administration in Chief Commissioners' Provinces for the better control of the dissemination of undesirable matter be taken into consideration".

In placing this Motion before the House, I wish to assure the House that we are conscious of the value and the importance of the sacred privilege of the liberty of the press which is one of the four freedoms which have been so much spoken of in international circles. But I must also inform you that since the time that I have been in charge of the Ministry of Home Affairs, the press in this country has enjoyed the widest possible freedom that it had ever enjoyed in the past and it is my desire that it should continue to do so and to enjoy even wider freedom than they are enjoying at present. Unfortunately the circumstances that have forced me to come to this House with this Bill are such that there is considerable justification for it. I will give a short background of the origin of this legislation. Sir, you are aware that the Interim Government came into existence at a time when the country was involved in a serious communal conflict resulting from the fixing or announcement of a "Direct Action Day" by the then Muslim League of India which pressed for partition of the country. A fortnight after the great Calcutta Killing we assumed office and subsequent events are an unfortunate history of reaction and retaliation from one stage and one place to another stage and another place; we have not yet seen the end of it. In consequence of these occurrences almost all the Governments were compelled in one form or another to adopt measures restricting the freedom of the press. The first province which was compelled to take action was the one in which the "Direct Action Day" was celebrated. After that its sparks flew rapidly from place to place; and then almost all provinces passed Ordinances or were compelled to pass Ordinances in one form or another to restrict the liberty of the press in this connection. Delhi was the only place where the mouthpiece of the protagonists of the "Direct Action Day" flourished. We were then accused of allowing the spread of violent propaganda of communal hatred and bitterness and of allowing this place to be used as a place for dissemination of undesirable information and literature. Then I was compelled to place an Ordinance before the Interim Government, but before I took that step I invited the editors of newspapers to a conference. That conference almost unanimously realised and recognised the necessity of controlling the liberty, which had become almost synonymous with license, in the matter of publication of undesirable news and undesirable criticism. In that conference even the editor of the Dawn had to agree that some sort of control was necessary. I felt it to the Editors' Conference to impose restrictions on themselves instead of forcing the Government to take action, because I considered it very undesirable for a popular Government to be compelled to take action to curb the liberty of the press. They themselves formed a committee in which Government had no hand and formulated a code of conduct which they undertook to obey. To my regret I found that the code was not honoured; they themselves in several cases agreed that several of them had been guilty of violating the code or the self-imposed restrictions which they themselves had accepted. When that situation arose I tried to negotiate with and influence those who were responsible for the violation of those restrictions which they themselves had formulated through the leading members of the community who had influence on them.

[Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel]

But I did not succeed. Eventually I got instructions or advice from several provincial Governments to take immediate action in the matter of putting restrictions on the press in Delhi. The first to come forward with this suggestion was the Governor of the Punjab who approached the then Viceroy and through him asked the Central Government to take some action in this matter. Then I took a copy of the Ordinance which was in existence in the U. P. and on the model of that Ordinance I formulated an Ordinance which was placed before the then interim Government. This Ordinance was passed by the Cabinet; and I thought that after it was passed it would not be necessary to renew it. Unfortunately that hope also was not realised. We were overtaken by the Punjab holocaust whose sparks flew rapidly all round and there was an influx of refugees from the Punjab into Delhi. We had to renew the Ordinance. I had very reluctantly to get this Ordinance through the new Government, and now that the legislature is sitting it is necessary to bring this piece of legislation forward for the approval of the House. Several papers have sprung up anew who hardly realise any responsibility as to the consequences of the matter that they publish. Apart from the scurrilous and scandalous attacks that are made against the head of the Government and the members of Government, the people who are in charge of publishing these pamphlets and newspapers are full of anger because of the sufferings that they have gone through in the part of the country from which they come. These are not people in whose hands a pen can be safely given. They are not in a fit state to handle a pen. Therefore, with all my sympathy for these people who want to ventilate their anger and ask their sympathisers to take to retaliatory measures, I as representative of a popular Government cannot help coming to you to utilise this opportunity of helping the Government in recognising the necessity of getting through this emergency legislation.

It is an emergency legislation, to meet with an emergency the like of which India has not seen in the past. You will all recognise that and you are aware of it. It is not necessary for me to dilate upon it. Let us hope that we shall get through this crisis much earlier than the period that might be fixed in this legislation. It is my hope and wish, and I hope it is the hope of all of you that we may not have to put into effect any section of this legislation.

I may tell you that when I assumed office I called a conference of the newspaper editors in India and put before them a proposal for a committee to frame proposals to bring in the existing legislation on a par, so far as freedom of the press is concerned, with the freedom of the press enjoyed in the most progressive countries in the world. That Committee is still sitting. But unfortunately, simultaneously, I have to come here for a piece of legislation which is intended to meet with a particular emergency.

There are undoubtedly some provisions in the existing legislation, which is called an emergency legislation also. But when that legislation was passed, the Legislature never contemplated that a catastrophe of this kind would overtake India and therefore the existing legislation is not enough to meet the requirements of the present situation. In fact the very evil which we want to prevent, that is the publication of undesirable news and comments, exaggerated and false news, if we have to take action under the ordinary existing legislation, the publicity gets much wider than the publicity by the newspapers. The offender is entitled to have recourse to courts, the Government has to file its case, and then the publicity that the proceedings get in a court of law is well known to all. Therefore we cannot evade the necessity of having legislation which avoids the procedure by which publicity becomes widened.

In this country where we have a secular State where different communities with different religions, different sects, have been residing for centuries and who we wish should reside in future, we have a responsibility to see that the gulf between the communities is not widened and nothing which is preventible or which can be prevented without violating the principles of justice and fairplay is done. Therefore, the purpose of this Bill is simply to prevent improper distribution of news which is undesirable, improper circulation of news and comments, exaggerated and false news which tend to create disturbances and violence: that is the only purpose of this Bill. I do not think there is anybody in this House who will challenge the necessity of this Bill or the recognition of the emergency that faces us.

We have with great difficulty been able to prevent a great catastrophe in Delhi. Remember that this legislation is meant for the provinces governed by the Chief Commissioners, that is the province of Delhi and the province of Ajmer-Merwara and some one or two other provinces. But really it is intended for these two small areas of Delhi and Ajmer-Merwara. In both these areas there is considerable communal tension and I must say that in both these areas there is the existence of a group of people who hardly realise their responsibility and who have started the profession of editors for which they are not fit. In Delhi there is a great number of responsible papers. Some of them also have erred but we have taken no action against them. But in both Delhi and Ajmer-Merwara considerable literature has come out recently because of the communal disturbances and because of communal tension existing in both these areas. Therefore, we have to be wide awake and I hope that in the consideration of this small piece of legislation, you will view its provisions in the light of the existing circumstances that surround us. You may be aware that there is no province in India where today a legislation of this kind is not in existence. We have put in a milder piece of legislation. A more drastic piece of legislation has been passed by the United Provinces, Bihar, Bengal, East Punjab and other provinces. Therefore, we cannot when we are surrounded by this atmosphere evade our responsibility. Provinces governed by Chief Commissioners are the special responsibility of the Central Government because they are centrally administered areas. Therefore, I move:

"That the Bill to continue certain special powers conferred on the administration in Chief Commissioners' Provinces for the better control of the dissemination of undesirable matter, be taken into consideration."

کے سامنے جسکا ایک ممبر میں بھی ہوں کئی اخبارات کی ایسی قابل اعتراض تحریریں آئیں جنکی بنا پر خود سنٹرل ایڈوائزری کمیٹی (Central Advisory Committee) نے گورنمنٹ سے سفارش کی کہ انکے خلاف کوئی کارروائی کی جائے۔ ایسے بھی موقعے آئے جبکہ گورنمنٹ نے باوجود سنٹرل ایڈوائزری کمیٹی (C. A. C.) کی سفارش کے بعض اخبارات کے خلاف کوئی کارروائی نہیں کی۔ سچ تو یہ ہے کہ دہلی پریس کا ایک سیکشن (section) متواتر ایسے اشتعال انگیز آرٹیکل (article) لکھتا رہا کہ ہم یہ نہیں کہہ سکتے کہ پچھلے چند مہینوں میں ملک میں جو کچھ ہوا اس کی ایک بڑی بھاری ذمہ داری پریس پر نہیں ہے۔ اسکے بارچرڈ اچھا ہوتا کہ اس طرح کا بل ہاؤس کے سامنے پیش کرنے سے پہلے پریس کو اس پر پوری طرح غور کرنے کا موقعہ دیا جاتا۔ آج جو بل ہمارے سامنے لایا گیا ہے وہ پہلے ایک Ordinance کی شکل میں جاری کیا گیا تھا۔ آرڈیننس (Ordinance) کے بارے میں یہ خیال ہوتا ہے کہ وہ ایک عارضی چیز ہے اسلئے اُسکی دفعات پر زیادہ دھیان نہیں دیا جاتا۔ لیکن جب آرڈیننس (Ordinance) کو قانون کی شکل دی جائے تو ضروری ہوجاتا ہے کہ اُسکی ہر دفعہ پر پوری طرح غور و خوض کیا جائے اور وچار کیا جائے کہ اُس میں پولیس کی آزادی کا کھانک لکھا رکھا گیا ہے۔ پریس کی آزادی کے نقطہ نگاہ سے غور کیا جائے تو مجھے یہ کہنے میں ذرا بھی تامل نہیں ہے کہ اگر یہ بل کوئی دوسری حکومت ہمارے سامنے لاتی تو ملک کا پریس اُسے ہرگز منظور نہ کرتا۔ اس بل میں سب سے بڑی قابل اعتراض بات یہ ہے کہ اخبارات اسکی زد میں آئے بغیر صحیح خبروں کو بھی نہیں چھاپ سکتے۔ آج ملک ایسے خراب حالات سے گذر رہا ہے اور ملک کے ہر ایک حصہ میں کچھ نہ کچھ ایسے شرمناک واقعات رونما ہو رہے ہیں جنکی صحیح رپورٹ شائع کی جائے تو فرقہ دارانہ منافرت پھیلے بغیر نہیں رہ سکتی۔

نہیں ہے کہ ہم جس نازک دور میں سے گزر رہے ہیں اُسکو سامنے رکھتے ہوئے administration کے ہاتھ مضبوط کرنا بھی ہمارا فرض ہے۔ اسلئے میں اس بل کی مخالفت بھی نہیں کر سکتا۔ مجھے بھروسہ ہے کہ دیھس کی بھلائی اور پریس کی آزادی کا خیال جناب ہوم ممبر صاحب کو ہم سے کم نہیں اور وہ آج اس بل کی ضرورت محسوس کرتے ہیں تو ہمیں اُنکی بات ماننی چاہیئے۔ مجھے خوشی ہے کہ انہوں نے یہ اطمینان دلا دیا ہے کہ اُس کا منشا پریس کی آزادی کو طلب کرنا نہیں ہے بلکہ اخبارات کو اس امر کا احساس کرانا ہے کہ اُن کے سر پر بھی ملک کے امن وامان کی ذمہ داری ہے اور ضرورت ہے کہ وہ سنبھل کر چلیں۔ میں نے ہوم منسٹر صاحب سے دریافت کیا تھا کہ کیا اسکے بعد بھی press advising کا طریقہ جاری رکھنا۔ جسکے جواب میں انہوں نے فرمایا کہ دھانے۔ اسکے معنی یہ ہیں کہ اخبارات کو خود اپنے ہی نمائندوں پر مشتمل کمیٹی کے سامنے اپیل کرنے کا حق ہوگا۔ اور اگر کوئی اخبار اس بل کی زد میں آتا ہے تو اُسکے لئے یہ گنجائش ہے کہ وہ سنٹرل ایڈوائزری کمیٹی کے سامنے اپنا case پیش کر سکے۔ یہ assurance ایک بہت بڑی assurance ہے اور اسکی موجودگی میں۔ میں بھی اسکی مخالفت نہیں کر سکتا۔ البتہ یہ بات میں آدریبل ہوم منسٹر صاحب سے ضرور کہونتا کہ پریس آفیسر (Press Officer) جو مقرر کئے جاتے ہیں عام طور پر ایسے ہوتے ہیں کہ انہیں پریس کا کوئی تجربہ نہیں ہوتا۔ اسلئے ضرورت ہے کہ ایسا انتظام کیا جائے کہ آئندہ تجربہ کار آفیسرز (officers) رکھے جائیں۔ میں اُمید کرتا ہوں کہ ایسا کوئی موقعہ نہیں آئیگا کہ اس بل کے ماتحت کسی اخبار کے خلاف حکومت کو کارروائی کرنی پڑے۔ میں ایک بات دو ایک شبدوں میں عرض کرنا چاہتا ہوں۔ بعض اخباروں کو یہ شکایت ہے کہ انکے خلاف ان دو مہینوں میں بہت سے مقدمات سنٹرل ایڈوائزری کمیٹی (Central Advisory Committee) کی رپورٹ پر ہوئے ہیں جو کانگریس (Congress) گورنمنٹ کی طرف سے مقرر کی گئی ہے۔ میں اس بات کی پر زور مخالفت کرتا ہوں اس لئے کہ سنٹرل ایڈوائزری کمیٹی (Central Advisory Committee) کے ممبر ملک کے سارے اخبارات جو آل انڈیا ایڈیٹرز کانفرنس (All-India Editors' Conference) کے ممبر ہیں منتخب کرتے ہیں۔ حقیقت یہ ہے کہ سنٹرل ایڈوائزری کمیٹی (Central Advisory Committee) کانگریس کے اخبارات کی نمائندہ نہیں ہے۔ وہ تمام اخبارات کی نمائندہ ہے۔ اس میں ہر خیال کے اور ہر وچار کے لوگ ہیں۔ اس میں مسلمان بھی ہیں اس میں ہندو بھی ہیں۔ کانگریس والے بھی ہیں اور non-Congress والے بھی ہیں۔ اس لئے یہ خیال کرنا کہ سنٹرل ایڈوائزری کمیٹی (Central Advisory Committee) پارشل (partial) ہے بالکل غلط ہے۔ سنٹرل ایڈوائزری کمیٹی (Central Advisory Committee) کی ہمیشہ یہ کوشش

 رہی ہے کہ وہ پریس کی آزادی کو جہاں تک ہو سکے برقرار رکھے اور اُس کی حفاظت کرے۔ میں اس اُمید کے ساتھ بل ہذا کی مخالفت کرنے سے اعتراض کرتا ہوں کہ حکومت کے لئے اس کے استعمال کا موقع نہیں آئیگا اور جس طریق پر پریس آرڈیننس (Press Ordinance) ایک مردہ آرڈیننس (Ordinance) رہا تھا۔ یہ بھی ایک مردہ قانون رہیگا۔

(English translation of the above speech)

Shri Deshbandhu Gupta (Delhi): Mr. Speaker, as a journalist, I am sorry to say, it is difficult for me to welcome the Bill presented by the Honourable the Home Minister before the House, though the arguments put forward in its favour have sufficient weight and deserve the attention of this House. There is no doubt that the Honourable the Home Minister, as soon as he assumed the charge of his office, by convening the Press Laws Committee, gave opportunity to the press of suggesting Press Laws like other independent countries, for Free India. But, in the country, arising of such a situation, which necessitated the presentation of such a Bill, is a matter of regret. However much I may disagree with the above Bill, I will say that I cannot overlook the facts which our Honourable Minister has said in its support.

It is a fact, that in the course of the last one year, before the Central Press Advisory Committee of which I am also a member, there came such objectionable writings from several newspapers on the basis of which the Central Advisory Committee itself recommended to the Government that some action should be taken against them. There were some cases also where the Government did not take any action against some of the newspapers inspite of the advice given by the Central Advisory Committee to do so. The truth is that a section of the Delhi Press went on writing continuously such inflammatory articles that we cannot, today, say that a very heavy responsibility does not fall upon the press for what happened during the last few months. It would have been better, had the press been consulted, before it was presented to the House.

The Bill brought today before us, was previously promulgated in the shape of an Ordinance, and the Ordinance is supposed to be a temporary measure, and therefore, its sections are not much considered; but when it is given the shape of a Law, each article of it is carefully examined and fully considered, to ensure the freedom of the press. If this Bill is considered from the point of view of the freedom of the press, then I have not the least hesitation to say that had it been brought forward before us by the alien Government, the press of the country would never have accepted it. The first great objectionable point of this Bill is that the newspapers cannot publish even correct news without being hit by it. Today, the country is passing through such bad times, and in every part of it some such shameful events are taking place which, if correctly reported, would certainly spread communal hatred. The present circumstances are so sad that even if the papers publish merely correct events and do not exaggerate and embellish them, peace of the country is bound to be disturbed. The second objectionable point in this Bill is that the writer's and the printer's intentions are not taken into consideration, though to prove the intention of the accused is compulsory, even under Sections 124A and 153 of the Indian Penal Code.

Moreover, the magistrates have been given such wide powers that they can stop the publication of any paper they like, and for whatever period they desire, and no appeal lies against their verdict. So, with these ends in view it is hard for any journalist to support this Bill. But, I feel and cannot deny the fact that keeping in view the critical circumstances through which we are passing, it is also our duty to strengthen the hands of our administration. Therefore, I cannot, even oppose this Bill. I am confident that the Honourable the Home Minister cherishes the country's welfare and the freedom of the press no less than us, and as, today, he feels the necessity of this Bill we ought to support him.

I am glad that he has assured us that the object of the Bill is not to nullify the freedom of the press, but it is to make the newspapers feel that they have also on their heads the responsibility to keep peace and tranquillity in the country, and they should therefore necessarily act warily.

I had inquired of the Honourable the Home Minister, as to whether the Press Advising system will also continue after this Bill, in reply he said yes. It means that the newspapers will have the right to appeal to the Committee comprised of their own representatives, and if any newspaper comes into the striking range of this Bill, it is free to represent its case before the Central Advisory Committee. Really, it is a very great assurance, and while it is there, I, also, cannot oppose the Bill.

However, I must point out to the Honourable the Home Minister, that the Press Officers are usually of a type who have no experience of the press at all. It is, therefore necessary that in future such arrangements should be made as to appoint officers who have experience of the press. I hope that under this Bill no chance would arise when the Government will have to take action against any newspaper.

I should like to say one thing in a word or two, that is, some of the papers complain that in the course of the last two months a number of cases have been filed against them on the reports of the Central Advisory Committee, which has been appointed by the Congress Government. I strongly oppose this view, as the members of the Central Advisory Committee are selected by all of the papers which are members of the All-India Newspapers Editors' Conference. The fact is that the Central Advisory Committee is not at all the representative of the Congress papers, but it is the representative of all the newspapers. As it has members of every shade of opinion: there are Muslims as well as Hindus, Congressmen and non-Congressmen, therefore, to say that the Central Advisory Committee is partial is absolutely incorrect. The Central Advisory Committee has always been endeavouring to maintain and safeguard the freedom of the press. I abstain from opposing the above Bill, with the hope that the Government will have no occasion of using it; and in the same manner in which the Press Ordinance remained a dead Ordinance, this may also, remain a dead law.

[पण्डित बालकृष्ण शर्मा]

वास्तव में हमने कुछ विचारों को उधार लेकर के, और कुछ विचारों से बंध करके एक अपनी धारणा बना ली है, और हम यह समझने लगे हैं कि प्रत्येक अवस्था में स्वतंत्र भाषण की और अन्य प्रकार की स्वतंत्रता बहुत अच्छी वस्तु है। किंतु मैं बहुत नम्रतापूर्वक सभापति महाशय आपके द्वारा, इस सभा की सेवा में यह निवेदन करना चाहता हूं कि यह एक तमाशा है जो हम बहुत ऊंची ऊंची बातें करते हैं, फ्रीडम आफ प्रेस, फ्रीडम आफ स्पीच और फ्रीडम आफ एसोसियेशन की। आज मैं देख रहा हूं कि हमारे देश की जैसी परिस्थिति होती जा रही है उसमें यह तीनों चीजें हमारे देश के लिए एक दावानल हैं।

आज यदि हम सभा सोसाइटियों की स्वतंत्रता के नाम पर षडयंत्रकारिणी संस्थाएँ प्रस्तुत करते चले जायं, आज यदि छापे की स्वतंत्रता के नाम पर अनर्गल बातें बकने वालों को प्रोत्साहन देते चले जायं और उनके प्रति कुछ न कहें, आज यदि हम भाषण की स्वतंत्रता के नाम पर विद्वेष और घृणा का राग अलापने का अवसर लोगों को दें तो मैं विश्वास दिलाता हूं कि हमारा सारे का सारा समाज, और हमारा सारे का सारा राष्ट्र एक दिवा स्वप्न भी नहीं होगा। और हमें बहुत सजगता पूर्वक यह बात देखनी है कि क्या वास्तव में इसी को हमें फ्रीडम आफ प्रेस, वास्तव में हम इसी को फ्रीडम आफ एसोसियेशन कहते हैं? वह कहीं एक ऐसी भयंकर वस्तु तो नहीं है कि हमें और समाज को नाश की ओर ले जा रही हो; और आज वह ले जा रही हो हमारे देश को विश्रृंखलता की तरफ, घृणा और विद्वेष की तरफ पतन की तरफ? और इसलिए मैं तो विनयपूर्वक निवेदन करूंगा आपसे कि यह जो आज माननीय गृह मंत्री ने हमारे सामने एक बिल उपस्थित किया है वह अत्यन्त आवश्यक है और उसके बिना हम अपने समाज में किसी भी प्रकार का कोई नियंत्रण रख नहीं सकते।

प्रदर्शन करने का एक मात्र उद्देश्य मनुष्य की बुद्धि को नीचा गिराना है, जहां प्रदर्शन का एक मात्र उद्देश्य आपस में लड़ाना है, खंड-खंड करना है, रक्त शोषण की वृत्ति है, वहां किसी अवस्था में हम इस विचार स्वातंत्र्य को, इस भाषण स्वातंत्र्य को, इस छापे की स्वतंत्रता को प्रोत्साहित नहीं कर सकते। ऐसी स्थिति में हमें उसके ऊपर बंधन लगाना पड़ेगा और मैं समझता हूं कि जो हाथ हमारे ऊपर, या समाज के ऊपर यह बंधन लगा रहे हैं वे हाथ इतने पवित्र हैं, वे इतना सन्मानित हैं और वे इतने संवेदनशील तथा इतने सजग हैं कि उनके द्वारा कभी भी मुझे अन्याय की आशंका नहीं है। इसलिए मैं इसका समर्थन करता हूं। निस्संदेह यदि आज इस प्रस्ताव को कोई दूसरी सत्ता हमारे ऊपर इस कानून को लादती, इस प्रकार की कोई विजातीय सरकार, जो हमारी सरकार नहीं होती, हमारे सामने ऐसा विधान उपस्थित करती तो, निस्संदेह हमें उसका विरोध करना पड़ता और हम उसको कभी स्वीकार न कर सकते। कारण कि सदुद्देश्य की जिस भावना से प्रेरित हो कर हमारे पिता और हमारी माता हमको चांटे लगाती है उस भावना से, सभापति महाशय, एक डाकू तथा चोर हमें चांटे नहीं लगा सकता। और जो बंधन हमें अपनी सरकार से स्वीकार्य हो सकते हैं, वे बंधन निश्चित रूप से पराई सरकार से हमको स्वीकृत नहीं हो सकते। किंतु आज इस प्रकार के कानून की, इस प्रकार के विधान की आवश्यकता है, यह तो इसी से स्पष्ट है कि यदि इस प्रकार के विधान का भय हमारे देश के पत्रकारों को न होता तो मैं आपको विश्वास दिला सकता हूं, सभापति महोदय, कि समाचार पत्रों द्वारा ऐसी-ऐसी बातों का प्रचार होता कि जो हमने यहां पर खून खराबी दिल्ली में देखी, कदाचित् उससे कई गुनी अधिक हो जाती। और इसीलिये मैं समझता हूं कि आज हमको संयम की आवश्यकता है, आज हमको नियमन की, बंधन की आवश्यकता है और यह वर्तमान विधान जो सरदार साहब ने हमारे सामने उपस्थित किया है, हमको एक नियमन की ओर, ऐसे स्वस्थ बंधन की ओर अग्रसर करता है, उसमें बंधने के लिए हमें प्रोत्साहित करता है।

निस्संदेह कभी कभी एक यह प्रश्न उठ जाता है कि जिन दिनों में मुकदमे चला करते थे, हमारे देश में, दफा १२४ के अंतर्गत तो हम लोग सब इस बात को कहते थे "कि भाई हमने एक सच्ची बात कही है, सही बात कही है तुम उसके ऊपर क्यों एतराज करते हो?" तो उस समय कहा जाता था "ट्रुथ इज़ नो प्ली फार सेडिशन" कोई सेडिशन बात कहे, कोई राज द्रोहात्मक बात कहे, और वह सत्य हो तो कोई बात नहीं है, लेकिन उसके लिए दंड भोगना पड़ेगा। आज, हमारे भाई, पूर्व वक्ता ने यह कहा कि इसमें, इस विधान में जो हमारे सामने है, इस बात की गुंजाइश है कि यदि हम सत्य बात भी कोई लिखेंगे तो हमारे ऊपर मुकदमा चल सकता है। मैं पूछता हूं कि क्या सर्वदा ऐसा अवसर होता ही है कि हम सत्य बात को कहें और बिना उसके हमें रोटी न पचे? बहुत से ऐसे अवसर होते हैं कि जिसमें हमें सत्य बातों को छिपाना पड़ता है, सार्वजनिक

हित में छिपाना पड़ता है। हम जानते हैं कि सत्य कभी कभी इतना प्रबल, इतना उद्दिग्नकारी होता है कि उसे सर्व साधारण सहन नहीं कर सकते। आज यदि हम मारकाट की, खून खराबी की सच्ची घटनायें भी छापें तो सर्व साधारण हमारे इस सत्य को ग्रहण करने के लिए उद्यत नहीं हैं। महात्मा गांधी के से लोग आज इस प्रकार के सत्य को अनुद्दिग्न भाव से स्वीकार कर लेंगे, हमारे गृह मंत्री को सद्दृश्य लोग उसे स्वीकार कर लेंगे, लेकिन सर्व साधारण जन इस रूप में सत्य वृत्तांत को ग्रहण करनेमें असमर्थ हैं। और इस कारण इस बिल के विरोध में यह तर्क उठाना कि इसमें सत्य बात नहीं छप सकती एक अशुद्ध तर्क है, “ए रांग लोजिक” (a wrong logic) है, क्योंकि हम जानते हैं कि इस समय जो हमारी अवस्था है उस में सत्य बात को कहकर अपने समाज की रक्षा हम नहीं कर सकते, और इसलिये सत्य बात के ऊपर भी हमें बंधन लगाना पड़ेगा। यह बात हमें समझ लेनी चाहिये कि जहां तक कि हम ‘फ्रीडम आफ प्रेस’ (freedom of press) की बात कहते हैं, इंग्लैंड (England) की ‘फ्रीडम आफ प्रेस’ (freedom of press) की, रूस की ‘फ्रीडम आफ प्रेस’ (freedom of press) की, फ्रांस की ‘फ्रीडम आफ प्रेस’ (freedom of press) की, तो मैं, सभापति महाशय, आप के द्वारा यह प्रश्न करूंगा कि ‘फ्रीडम आफ प्रेस’ (freedom of press) या छापे की स्वतंत्रता है कहां? यह एक हू-हू-चिड़िया है जिसके दर्शन नहीं हो सकते। क्या विलायत में ‘फ्रीडम आफ प्रेस’ (freedom of press) है? कोई समाचार पत्र आपकी बात को छाप नहीं सकते। कहीं है ‘फ्रीडम आफ प्रेस’ (freedom of press)? अमेरिका में है? ऐसी परिस्थिति में किसका साहस है कि ‘फ्रीडम आफ प्रेस’ का नाम ले? मैं कहता हूँ ऐसा अवसर राष्ट्र के निर्माण काल में आता है जब हमें ‘फ्रीडम आफ प्रेस’ को समाप्त करना पड़ता है; और आज वह अवसर है। और अवसर पड़ेगा तो सरदार वल्लभ भाई पटेल निर्ममता पूर्वक उसे समाप्त करेंगे यदि उनकी समझ में आ जायगा कि इस स्वतंत्रता से हम देश की क्षति कर रहे हैं और उसे हम नष्ट कर रहे हैं।

Pandit Balkrishna Sharma (U.P.: General): Mr. Chairman, I approve and fully support the resolution and the Bill presented by the Honourable the Home Minister in the House today and which we have been asked to pass.

My friend, who has just preceded me has said, that as a journalist he will not be able to support this Bill. He has said, at least, that it would be difficult for him to support the Bill. I am also a journalist and have spent a considerable time of my life in the accomplishment of journalism, but I can say, Mr. Chairman, with confidence, that in the capacity of a journalist I support this Bill in every respect and every word of it.

In fact, on borrowing a few ideas and influenced by other views we are holding that the freedom of speech and other kinds of freedom are good at all stages. But I most humbly through you, Mr. Chairman submit before the House, that it is all a show when we loftily speak of the freedom of press, freedom of speech, and the freedom of associations. Today, I find that in the present state of affairs in our country, these three will act like a wild fire.

If today, in the name of freedom of associations and societies we go on forming conspiring bodies, in the name of freedom of the press we go on encouraging those who utter poisonous speeches and we do not check them, and if in the name of freedom of speech we give an opportunity to the masses to sing their songs of hatred and enmity, then I can assure you that the whole of our society and our entire administration shall not last for a day. We have therefore got to judge it whether this was what we called the freedom of press, and the freedom of association, or it was something very dangerous that was drifting us away and our country towards bondage and hatred, enmity and downfall. I, therefore, submit that the Bill presented by the Honourable the Home Minister is very essential as without this Bill we cannot exercise any kind of control over our society.

There is no doubt that the freedom of thought is good, that the freedom of speech is good. In our country, in our civilisation and in our culture we never imposed any restriction on thought or its expression. If you examine the entire system of Hindu philosophy, if you study the different schools of thought that prevailed in our country, you will find that we never imposed any restriction on anything. Why? Because by doing so we understood and rightly understood, “The knowledge of reality dawns as you discuss more”. We acknowledge and we admit that man has to adopt different modes of truth to attain the ultimate truth. But when we see that the sole object of expressing the views is to debase the mind of the people; when we see that the sole purpose of demonstration is to bring the people into conflict with one another, have them cut into pieces, and there is a tendency towards bloodshed, then we cannot, in any circumstances, encourage the freedom of thought, freedom of speech and the freedom of the press. In that condition, we shall have to impose restrictions. And I know that the authority that is putting this restriction on us or on the society, is so pious, so highly respected, so experienced and so alert that I never expect any injustice from it. I, therefore, support the Bill. Undoubtedly if any other power had today, thrust this resolution on our shoulders—any other foreign Government—that had not been our Government, a Bill like ours, then we would have certainly opposed it and had not passed it. The reason being Mr. Chairman, just as our parents slap us with the feeling of doing good to us, a thief or a dacoit could not slap us with that feeling. The restrictions that would be acceptable to us from our Government could not be acceptable from an alien Government. That there is a need for this Bill today—this legislation today, is evident from the fact that if there were no fear of this legislation for our journalists, I can assure you, there would have been such a propaganda by the press that the incidents of bloodshed witnessed by us in Delhi had been given many times their proportions.

[Pandit Balkrishna Sharma]

For this reason, I say, we need restraint, we need discipline, we need a binding. The present Bill presented by Sardar Sahib prompts us to take steps towards that healthy legislation and encourages us to brace that binding. Certainly, sometimes, this question arises that the time when, in our country, cases were being tried under Section 124, we used to say, "We have said something that was true, that was correct. Why do you have an objection to it?" And then it was said, "Truth is no plea for sedition". If there is anything seditious, if there is anything revolting punishment will have to be suffered on that account while it did not matter if that was a fact. Today my friend who has just preceded me, has said that by this Bill which is before us it is possible that if we write even the truth it is quite likely that we may be sued in a court of Law. I may ask you, "Is it always necessary that we must tell the truth, as if we could not do without it"? On many occasions we have to conceal the facts, we have to conceal them, in the interest of the people. We also see that a fact is so potent sometimes, so agitating that a common man cannot bear it. Today if we publish the actual incidents of murder and blood-shed the public is not prepared to accept them. Men like Mahatma Gandhi will have them without any excitement, men like our Home Member will have them, but a common man is incapable of taking such a truth in this form. To raise an objection to the Bill on the ground that correct events cannot be published, is a wrong argument: it is a wrong logic. We know that in the present state of affairs we cannot protect our society by telling the truth. We will, therefore, have to censor even the truth. When we talk of the freedom of press—the freedom of press in England, the freedom of press in Russia, the freedom of press in America, I have to ask this question, through you, Mr. Chairman, where this freedom of press exists? It is something which exists only in name. It is something which you cannot see. Does the press enjoy any freedom in the foreign countries? You cannot have anything published in the papers there. Do you find the freedom of press in America? Who dares talk of the freedom of press in the present circumstances? Let me tell you that such occasions arise only during the period of formation of a Government when we have to finish the freedom of press. This is therefore the time for it. And if there be need, Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel will put an end to it quite dispassionately, provided that he thinks that this freedom is proving injurious to the country. I have, therefore, to request you that we should not be misguided by this propaganda. We should do our duty peacefully and fearlessly. I think, Mr. Chairman, I need not say anything more on the point. There are certain people in the country today who oppose and raise a hue and cry what the Government does. Let them do it—but we, who are the representatives of the people shall not be effected by their cries and shall always be ready to face everything.

Begum Aizaz Rasul (U. P.: Muslim): Sir, the very able and persuasive manner in which the Honourable the Home Minister has moved this Bill would ordinarily have left very little scope for any Member of this Honourable House to oppose this motion. But, Sir, the fact is that circumstances are such that we sitting in this House cannot forget our responsibilities and oppose this measure that the Honourable the Home Minister has brought forward.

It is indeed a sad thing that one of the first measures of legislation to be brought up by a popular Ministry after the advent of freedom for our country should have been a measure that suppresses the freedom of the press. But, Sir, we have to realise that the necessity for such a measure must indeed be so great that a responsible Minister of a popular Government is obliged to bring such legislation before this House. Sir, no one can deny that the responsibilities of the press are indeed great. They are always great, they will always be great but in the conditions that are prevailing in the country today and especially after the attainment of freedom when every individual has to weigh his actions and his words before uttering them, a great measure of responsibility falls upon the press which brings to the world news, good and bad, which shapes the policies of Governments and which holds in its hands the fate not only of individuals but of nations. Therefore, Sir, I say that the press should have been the first to have realised its great responsibilities after India had become a free country. It is a matter of great regret that such a necessity should have arisen which should have obliged the Honourable the Home Minister to have brought this measure before this House.

But we cannot in this House forget our responsibilities either and I feel that though reluctantly, though feeling that for a free country it is indeed a sad thing to have to pass such legislation, which curtails the liberties of the people we are obliged to give our wholehearted and full support to this measure. It is only to be hoped that no necessity would arise for this legislation to be put into effect and that saner counsels will certainly prevail amongst those individuals and proprietors and editors of papers not to disseminate matter which does not service to the country but only poisons public mind and worsens the conditions already prevalent. Therefore, Sir, it is right and proper that such legislation should be introduced. Drastic situations require drastic measures and no one can deny the fact that the conditions prevailing in our country today are such as require very careful handling and as little publicity as possible should be given to undesirable news.

One Honourable speaker remarked that it is a matter for regret that even the dissemination of correct news comes under the jurisdiction of this measure. I would remind him or a small Persian couplet which says:—

دروغ مصلحت آمیز به از راستی فتنه انگیز

(Darogh maslahat amez beh az راستی fitna angez)

Sir, it means that it is sometimes better to indulge in a little falsehood, in order to avoid mischief than to tell the truth which may be harmful. Today we are confronted with such a situation when even the dissemination of correct news will be harmful from the public point of view and if the Government consider it desirable that a particular piece of news should not be published then certainly it should come under this legislation. I would like to go a step further, Sir, and say that statements by individuals or by Members of Government either here or in the other Dominion, should certainly come under great control of the Government. We have found during these last two and a half unhappy months that statements coming from leaders of different Parties have unfortunately done more harm in spreading the unrest and contributed to the prolonging of the very unfortunate state of affairs that is at present prevailing in our country. Therefore those of us who are connected with public life and have some experience of the working of the minds of the people have to realise our responsibilities in that respect because we know how easily feelings can be inflamed and how a big conflagration can result from a small spark. But, Sir, if there are such amongst us who do not realise the responsibilities that today confront us and that today are laid upon our shoulders, and control our speeches and statements. Keeping in view primarily the necessity of creating peaceful conditions then it is certainly the duty of Government to see that our actions and our speeches and our statements are rigorously censored.

Sir, I should have thought that the press would have been the first to realise its responsibilities. The Honourable the Minister has told us that he gave every opportunity to the press not to oblige him to bring forward such legislation and it would have been in the fitness of things if this legislation should not have been brought here. This would have been so if responsible persons had realised their responsibilities and framed their actions accordingly, friend. Therefore I hope that the Bill which has been brought before the House should be rigidly enforced. My Honourable friend has stated here that probably such an opportunity may not come. I wish that such an opportunity must be brought about. Uptil now such matters are being published in the papers in a tacit manner in order to render every possible assistance to those portions of the country which have been partitioned and the portion which has been cut off. Such conditions are being created as may give rise to the apprehension that the people here are committing atrocities. I may be permitted to say that in my place, Jhansi, where a boy was stabbed and after that a girl killed, the very people who perpetrated this murder managed to publish in the papers that they were being subjected to grave injustice at the hands of the people of the majority community of that place. They gathered people from the surrounding areas and went on emphatically saying that they were being compelled to leave the place. A gathering of about two to three thousand persons was arranged and then it was declared that the local people were forcing them to migrate to Pakistan and creating such conditions which would render it impossible for them to live there. Such matters are published in the papers and it produces a very bad effect. These are published alike in the papers in the Province of U.P. and elsewhere. Many representations are made to the Government that there were certain members who wished that some of the people from this country should leave for Pakistan. I want to say that this measure which is being brought before the House should be passed and I would request the Honourable Minister of Home Affairs to prohibit publication of such papers in India as publish scurrilous headlines or headings and contain such matters inside which may bring slur on India before the world.

[Shri R. V. Dhulekar]

I feel that this Bill is quite inadequate to meet this necessity and a more rigid measure should be introduced, if possible. With these words, I wish that everyone should support this Bill and that it should be strictly enforced.

श्री जय नारायण व्यास : महोदय, जो बिल होम मिनिस्टर साहब ने हमारे सामने उपस्थित किया है उससे ऐसा मालूम होता है कि इस बिल के जरिये वह प्रेस की आजादी छीन रहे हैं। लेकिन दरअसल वह प्रेस की आजादी नहीं छीन रहे हैं बल्कि प्रेस का लाइसेंस छीन रहे हैं। प्रेस के लाइसेंस की वजह से आज हिन्दुस्तान में खास तौर से चीफ कमिश्नर के प्राविंस के आसपास आग लगाई जा रही है और खूनी कार्य किया जा रहा है जिससे कि इस सरकार को उलटकर एक सामन्ती सरकार कायम कर दी जाय। यह षडयंत्र मैं देख रहा हूँ और मैं समझता हूँ कि इस बिल की यहां बहुत सख्त जरूरत है।

मैं एक चीफ कमिश्नर प्राविंस (Chief Commissioner's Province) के नजदीक रहने वाला हूँ। मेरा मतलब अजमेर मेरवाड़ा से है जिसके चारों तरफ देशी राज्य फैले हुए हैं। इसमें जोधपुर, मेवाड़ वगैरह दूसरी रियासतें भी आ जाती हैं। उस अजमेर मेरवाड़ा का इलाका भी बहुत छोटा है और इस अजमेर मेरवाड़ा को इस तरह सामन्ती राज्य बनाने का एक खास अड्डा बनाया जा रहा है और वहां से इतने गंदे और भद्दे अखबारात निकलते हैं और गंदा प्रचार किया जाता है और मेरी समझ में नहीं आता और मुझे तो होम मिनिस्टर साहब से शिकायत है कि उन्होंने अब तक इस तरह तबज्जह क्यों नहीं दी।

मैं ज्यादा वक्त नहीं लेना चाहता हूँ लेकिन थोड़े से अखबारात का एक आध नमूना मैं आपके सामने पेश करना चाहता हूँ, जिससे मालूम हो जाय कि इस तरह के बिल की जरूरत क्यों है। 'क्षत्री वीर', 'हिंदू संदेश', 'राष्ट्रीय पताका' जोधपुर से, 'छात्रधर्म' जयपुर से निकलता है। 'वीर भूमि' उदयपुर से निकलता है। 'तेज प्रताप' अलवर से निकलता है। और इन सब अखबारात के अंदर बहुत ही गंदे प्रचार हमारी सरकार के खिलाफ होते हैं। मैं एक दो नमूने आपके सामने रखूँ जिससे आपको मालूम हो जाय कि इस बिल की क्यों जरूरत है।

'हिंदू संदेश' ५ नवम्बर का जो कि जोधपुर से निकलता है ऐसा लिखता है :

"कहीं जाने वाली भारत सरकार केवल यह कहने के सिवाय कि 'यह कैसे हो गया, हमें तो इसका अन्दाज ही नहीं था', कुछ भी इन अत्याचारों के विरुद्ध ठोस कदम उठाने का साहस न कर सकी, आगे की रोक थाम का प्रबंध न कर सकी। अपनी आजाद सरकार को नपुंसक समझकर हिंदू जनता ने आक्रमणकर्ताओं का सामना किया, उन्हें मार कर भगाया ही नहीं बल्कि उनके दिलों में ग्रह भाव, कि हम ही सब में श्रेष्ठ हैं हमें सब तरह से काफिरों को प्रयोग में लाने का अधिकार है मिटा कर अपनी वीरता धीरता की धाक उन दुश्मनों पर जमाही नहीं दी अपितु वर्षों से घुसे, वे हमारे घरों को छोड़कर भाग निकले। आक्रमणकर्ताओं के समक्ष बनी वही सरकार, नपुंसक सरकार, अपने आकाओं को, जिनके वोटों पर वह बनी थी अपना तीसमारखांपन दिखाते हुए गोलीयों से भुनवाने लगी, जेलों के सीकचों में कस दिया, करोड़ों रुपया जुर्माने के नाम पर चूसकर पंगु बना दिया।"

but if that is not so, the Government cannot give up its responsibilities. As the Honourable the Home Minister has very rightly remarked, it is one of the sacred and fundamental responsibilities of Government to protect the rights of the people and see that every section of the people is well treated. Sir, it is also the duty of Government to see that no community gets the upper hand in disseminating news harmful to the public and make unjustifiable and unfair attacks in the press on any certain community. Therefore, this measure that has been brought forward today, sad though we may feel that necessity for it should have arisen, is a very important and urgent one and should have the wholehearted support of the House.

With these few words, Sir, I support the motion before the House.

श्री आर० वी० धुलेकर : सभापति जी, मुझे बड़ी प्रसन्नता है कि आज हमारे इस भवन की एक बहुत पुरानी मशहूर कार्यकर्त्री श्रीमती एजाज रसूल बेगम साहबा ने यह समझा कि इस तरह का बिल यहां पर पेश होना चाहिये। मुझे बड़ी प्रसन्नता हुई कि उन्होंने यहां पर खुले तौर से इस बात का इकबाल किया कि उन्होंने और उनकी पार्टी ने १५ अगस्त के पहले और कई साल तक बराबर यह बीज बोया था जिसके कारण इस भारतवर्ष में बहुतसी गड़बड़ पैदा हो गई। आज जब कि हमारी स्वतंत्रता आई है इस समय भी कुछ पहले जैसे बिल पेश करने पड़ते थे वैसे ही अब भी पेश करने पड़ते हैं जिनसे हमारे छापेखानों पर और कुछ हमारे अखबारों पर कुछ बंधन लगाये जायें। यह नतीजा इस तरह निकला कि आप खुद देखते हैं कि तमाम पाकिस्तान में लाखों आदमी मारे गये, बच्चे मारे गये, औरतें मारी गईं और लाखों की जायदाद का नुकसान हुआ। वह अखबार जिसने यह आग फैलाई वह देहली से ही निकलता था इसलिए मैं समझता हूं और उम्मीद करता हूं कि जो श्रीमती जी ने अभी कहा वह उसको आयन्दा भी याद रखेंगी और मैं समझता हूं कि वह इस बात का ख्याल रखेंगी कि आयन्दा कोई ऐसा मौका उनकी पार्टी की तरफ से न आने पावे जिससे कि हिंदुस्तान को नुकसान हो।

मैं यह कहना चाहता हूं कि यह बिल बहुत ठीक मौके पर पेश किया गया है। मेरे एक दोस्त यहां पर भी गड़बड़ पैदा करना चाहते हैं और मैं उम्मीद करता हूं कि शायद ऐसा कोई मौका न आये कि इस बिल को इस हाउस के अन्दर भी काम में लाना पड़े। क्योंकि इस भवन में हर शख्स को आजादी है। दिल्ली में जो आग फैलाई है वह आपको मालूम है और आप यह चाहते हैं कि यहां पर भी वही किया जाय। इसलिए मैं कहता हूं कि हमारे दोस्त की हरकत से हमारे जो कुछ भी प्रिविलेज हैं जिससे हम सब कुछ आजादी से कर सकते हैं वह भी छीन लिये जायेंगे। इसलिये मैं उम्मीद करता हूं कि जो बिल सामने लाया गया है वह बहुत सख्ती के साथ बरता जाय। मेरे लायक दोस्त ने यहां पर इस बात को कहा है कि शायद ऐसा मौका न आये। मैं तो यह कहना हूं कि मौका जरूर लाया जाय। अभी तक कुछ अखबारों में छिपी जवान से और दूरी तौर से इस तरह की चीजें शायद हो रही हैं जिससे जो मुल्क के टुकड़े हो रहे हैं वे बचकर बचे हुए हो गया है उसको हर किस्म की इमदाद दी जाय। इस तरह की

जिससे यह मालूम हो कि यहां लोग जुल्म कर रहे हैं। मैं आपकी इजाजत चाहूंगा और इस बात को बतलाऊंगा कि हमारे शहर झांसी में जहां पर कि एक लड़के को छूरा भोंक दिया गया था और उसके बाद एक लड़की को मार दिया गया था वहां जिन लोगों ने लड़के और लड़की को मारा उन्होंने ही अखबार में यह छपवाया कि हमारे ऊपर यहां के जो अक्सरियत वाले लोग हैं अर्थात् बहुमत वाले हैं, बड़ा भारी अन्याय कर रहे हैं और लोगों को इधर उधर से इकट्ठा करके जोरों से कहने लगते हैं कि हमको यहां से जाने को मजबूर किया जा रहा है। दो तीन हजार का मजमा इकट्ठा कर लिया गया और फिर कहने लगे कि हमको तो पाकिस्तान जाने को यहां के लोग मजबूर करते हैं और ऐसी हालत पैदा कर रहे हैं जिससे कि हम न रह सकें। इस तरह की चीजें अखबारों में छपती हैं और उसका असर बहुत बुरा होता है। बराबर हमारे यू० पी० के प्रांत में और दूसरी जगह अखबारों में छपी जाती हैं। बहुत सी दरखास्तें गवर्नमेंट के पास भेजी जाती हैं कि कुछ ऐसे मेम्बर हैं जो इस बात को चाहते हैं कि इस मुल्क से यहां के कुछ लोग पाकिस्तान चले जायें। मैं कहना चाहता हूं कि यहां पर जो बिल लाया जा रहा है वह जरूर पास किया जाय और होम मेम्बर साहब से इस बात की प्रार्थना करूंगा कि इस किस्म के जितने अखबार जो यहां हिन्दुस्तान में हैं जिन में हैड लाइन्स या सुर्खी दूसरी किस्म की दी जाती है और अन्दर ऐसी बातें लिखी जाती हैं जिससे कि हिंदुस्तान की दुनिया में बदनामी हो बंद किये जावें। मैं समझता हूं कि इस किस्म की चीज को रोकने के लिये यह बिल नाकाफी है और इससे भी सख्त अगर हो सके तो लाना चाहिये। इतना कहकर मैं चाहता हूं कि हर शख्स को इसका समर्थन करना चाहिये और इसको सख्ती से बरता जाय।

Shri R. V. Dhulekar (U. P.: General): Mr. Chairman, it gives me great pleasure to have to say that one of our old well-known members of this House, Begum Aizaz Rasul, has thought that such a Bill should be presented here. I have been very much pleased that she has frankly admitted here that she and her party had sown seeds prior to 15th August and many years before which have resulted in creating large-scale disturbances in India. To-day when we have achieved our independence we had to present some Bills—as we had been doing before—which tend to impose certain restrictions on some of our papers and presses. You will yourself observe that this is the obvious result of the orgy of murder of lakhs of men, women and small children and loss of property worth several lakhs which took place in the whole Pakistan. The paper that indulged in inflammatory writings was being published from Delhi. Therefore, I think and hope that my Honourable Lady friend will remember for future also what she has stated now. And I further hope that she will bear this in mind that there will not arise any opportunity in the future when her party may act prejudicially to the interests of India.

I may say that this Bill has been presented at the most opportune moment. One of my friends wanted to create disturbance here as well and I hope that there will not arise any contingency to bring into operation the provisions of this Bill in this House. Because everyone in this House has got liberty. You are aware of the sparks of trouble that have flown over Delhi and you want that the same thing should be repeated here. This is what I say that we will be deprived of all of our privileges with which we can act freely by the action of our

सरकार कायम की जानी चाहिये। ऐसा अखबारों में प्रचार किया जा रहा है। अजमेर-मेरवाड़ा जो कि आपका एक प्राविंस है, उसको राजपूताने के साथ मिला देना चाहिये। यह प्रचार भी उसी के साथसाथ किया जा रहा है। उसको मिलाने के लिये स्कीम (Schemes) बनी हुई हैं। एक अखबार 'राष्ट्र पताका' कहता है कि अजमेर मेरवाड़ा का वह हिस्सा जो देवली के पास है, उसको मेवाड में मिला देना चाहिये। और ऐसे अखबारों को बदकिस्मती से ऐसे २ लेखक भी मिल जाते हैं जो अपने को सोशलिस्ट कहते हैं और सामन्त शाही के साथ उनको मिलाने में अपनी मदद देते हैं। ऐसे-ऐसे प्रचारक भी आज अजमेर-मेरवाड़ा में भेजे गये हैं, स्वामी, सन्यासी न मालूम कितने। एक स्वामी माधवानन्द हैं जो अपने को जोधपुर महाराज का गुरु कहते हैं। वह कहते हैं कि मैं तो राजपूतों और क्षत्रियों का संगठन करता हूँ और मैं देश की रक्षा करने के लिये यह कर रहा हूँ। महाराज जोधपुर भी कहते हैं कि हमें सिर्फ राजपूताना ही नहीं, बल्कि सारे देश भर के हिंदुओं की रक्षा करना है और उसके लिये मैं आपका सहयोग चाहता हूँ। इसी तरह का अलवर, उदयपुर और दूसरी रियासतों में प्रचार किया जा रहा है। इस तरह के परचों से देश भर में प्रचार कर रहे हैं कि कांग्रेस खूनी है और इसको मिटा देना चाहिये और उसके बदले में दूसरे तरह की सरकार कायम करनी चाहिये। खुले तौर पर यह कहा जा रहा है कि क्षत्री लोग ही राज्य कर सकते हैं और उन्हीं का राज्य कायम करना चाहिये। यह मौजूदा सरकार राज्य करने के लायक नहीं है। मैं कोई क्षत्रियों से नफरत नहीं करता, लेकिन कोई यह चाहे कि मौजूदा सरकार को हटाकर, क्षत्री राज्य कायम करे, तो मैं अपना खून बहाकर उस राज्य को मिटाने की कोशिश करूंगा। सच्ची बात यह है कि जो प्रचार हो रहा है, वह प्रचार हम लोगों को, हमारी डेमोक्रेसी को, हम लोगों की आपस में मिलजुल कर रहने की जो प्रवृत्ति चल रही है, इन सब को खत्म करने के लिये हो रहा है और ऐसी बातों को रोकना, प्रेस की आजादी को रोकना नहीं है। मैं श्री देशबंधु जी को आपकी मारफत बतला दूँ कि मैं भी एक छोटा सा पत्रकार हूँ। पत्रकारों की जायज आजादी के लिये लड़ने के लिये मैं सदा तैयार रहूंगा। लेकिन यह आजादी नहीं है। यह तो गुन्डापन है। कोई अखबार गुन्डेपन का प्रचार करे तो मैं समझता हूँ कि हमें उसको रोकना चाहिये और अगर हम नहीं रोकेंगे तो हम अपने आपको रोक देंगे, अपनी आजादी को रोक देंगे और इन्सानियत, राष्ट्रीयता और अपनी डेमोक्रेसी और जनतंत्रवाद को खत्म कर देंगे। इन शब्दों के साथ मिनिस्टर साहब ने जो बिल पेश किया है, उस बिल की मैं पुरजोर तार्किक करता हूँ। -

Shri Jainarain Vyas (Jodhpur State): Sir, from the Bill introduced by the Honourable Minister for Home Affairs it appears that through this Bill he is trying to curtail the liberties of the press. As a matter of fact it is not the freedom of the press which he intends to restrict, but it is the licence of the press which he wants to limit. It is this licence of the press which is being used to inflame the feelings of the masses in India, particularly in the Chief Commissioners' provinces. It is this licence of the press which is responsible for the sanguinary happenings that are taking place these days. Its object is to overthrow the present Government and put a feudal government in its place. I am alive to this sinister design and I realise what grave necessity is there for this Bill.

I come from a place which is close to a Chief Commissioner's Province, I mean the province of Ajmer-Marwara which is surrounded on all sides by native States of Jodhpur, Mewar, etc. This province of Ajmer and Merwara is very small, and efforts are being made to convert it into a base for establishing a feudal government. Filthy and rotten papers are published in these states and evil propaganda is made. I am at a loss to understand, in fact, I have a complaint to make to the Hon'ble Home Minister, why he has not paid his attention to it so far. I do not want to take much time, but I do want to place before you a specimen or so from a few of such papers so that the Honourable Members may have an idea as to why this Bill is needed. The Khshatri Vir, The Hindu Sandesh, and The Rashtraya Pataka are published in Jodhpur; The Chhatra Dharm is issued from Jaipur, The Vir Bhumi comes out from Udaipur, and The Tej Partap has its offices at Alwar. Vicious propaganda is made against our Government by these papers. Let me give you a few quotations from these so that you may appreciate why we need this Bill.

The Hindu Sandesh of the 5th November which is issued from Jodhpur writes as follows:

"The so called Indian Government has only said that it was surprised to find how all this had happened. It has further said that it never could imagine that things would take such a turn. This Government could not dare take any strong step to suppress these atrocities. It failed to prevent further deterioration. Finding their independent government quite incompetent, the Hindu masses faced the attackers, and not only did they rout them but also made them realise that it was not Muslims alone who were the most powerful, and that they were mistaken in cherishing the idea that the Muslims have the right to treat the non-Muslims in whatever way they liked. These raiders were not only impressed by the valour and bravery of the Hindus, but they even fled from the houses they had been living in for years. The very government which had failed to suppress the raiders, started firing wantonly on the very people who had voted for its very formation; and it took pride in it. It put them behind bars; extracted crores of rupees as fines and reduced them to a state of utter helplessness."

Who knows how many more such things are being published. There is a motive behind all this. It should not be taken as something without an aim. The Honourable Minister for Home Affairs said that these pressmen are very irresponsible, and that they do not realise their responsibility. I do not agree with him there. I think that whatever these pressmen are doing, is being done to discharge another responsibility; and this another responsibility is to replace the present national government by a fascist government. The columns of these very papers are utilised for propagating to the public that our present government is impotent; that it is useless, and that it favours the Muslims and crushes the Hindus. Many such things are being written. It is said that this government has no experience of administration. It can never rule; it is bound to collapse and the British Government is sure to return. To establish an Indian Government, therefore, it is imperative that we should have a government comprising of landlords, jagirdars and princes. This sort of propaganda is being made by these papers. Propaganda is also being made for amalgamating with Rajputana States our province of Ajmer-Marwara. Schemes have been made for attaching this territory to the Rashtra Pataka suggests that the part of Ajmer and Marwara joins Devli should be annexed to Mewar.

CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY OF INDIA

Thursday, the 20th November 1947

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber of the Council House at Eleven of the Clock, Mr. Speaker (The Honourable Mr. G. V. Mavalankar) in the Chair.

STARRED QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(a) ORAL ANSWERS

GROW MORE FOOD CAMPAIGN

132. *Shri Biswanath Das: Will the Honourable Minister of Agriculture be pleased to state:

(a) the amounts budgetted and disbursed under the 'Grow More Food' activities for the past 5 years, ending March, 1948, for each Province separately;

(b) the general details of distribution to each of the Provinces under important sub-heads of Grow More Food Campaign;

(c) the additional acreage of lands brought under cultivation as reported by each Province for the past 4 years ending March 1947 and what proportion such additional lands bear to the total cultivated area each year; and

(d) the additional quantity of cereals (in tons) produced as a result of the above campaign as also the total cereal yield including the said additional quantity now grown?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: (a) No separate budget provision was made for each province. A statement (No. I) showing the amounts disbursed to each province is laid on the table.

(b) A statement (No. II), giving the required information is placed on the table.

(c) and (d). Two statements (No. III & IV) giving necessary information are placed on the table.

[Shri Jainarain Vyas]

Unfortunately, such papers get writers too of this type. These writers style themselves as socialists but in reality they contribute towards efforts for attaching these areas to the States. Many such propagandists have been sent to Ajmer-Marwara. Many Swamis and Sanyasis have visited this province. One such man is Swami Madhwa Nand who calls himself the Guru of the Maharaja of Jodhpur. He professes to bring together the Rajputs and the Khshatriyas, and he says that he is doing so in the interest of the defence of the country. The Maharaja of Jodhpur also puts in a few words saying that it is not Rajputana alone which he has to protect, but all the Hindus of this country; and for that he seeks this Swami's help.

Similar propaganda is being made in Alwar, Udaipur and other States. Newspapers of this kind are being used to propagate all over the Country that the Congress is stained with blood; it should be annihilated, and its Government should be replaced by a different kind of Government. It is being said openly that only the Khashtryias are entitled to govern and that only they should run the Government. This present Government is unfit for ruling the public. I do not hate the Khshtryias; but if it is desired to overthrow the present Government and boost up a Government by the Khshtryias, then I do not refrain from saying that I will not spare the last drop of my blood for putting it to an end. The fact is that all this propaganda is directed against us, against our democratic Government, against our desire to live united. To stem such evils is not to take away the liberty of the press. Let me, Sir, through you tell Mr. Deshbandhu that I am also a small journalist. I shall always be prepared to fight for the legitimate freedom of the journalist. But this is no freedom. This is goondaism. And if any paper preaches goondaism, I think, we must check it. If we don't do so, we shall be annihilating ourselves and losing our freedom. It will mean the death of humanity, nationality, our democracy and our socialism. With these words, I strongly support the Bill introduced by the Honourable Minister.

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: Sir, I have no doubt in my mind that the House is fully aware of the situation in the country and the necessity of having a legislation of this kind. I am glad the various speakers have spoken in an emphatic tone about the necessity of the measure. Now I wish to say a few words by way of digression and I hope with your permission the House will appreciate and tolerate it. I have the experience of this House for a short period only but outside the House also I have taken some interest in the proceedings of this House. I have no doubt that the proceedings of this House in the past have been utilised to serve the end which is the object of this legislation to prevent. In the past it has been so. This House has been used for the purpose of creating communal tension inside and outside, both in the matter of interpellations, speeches and often in the matter of Bills also. We have put in questions deliberately with the object of creating the situation for the purpose of canvassing the support of particular sections of communities. I appeal to the House also to take this matter into consideration that in a new India, in the new Parliament, this House is not the forum to be utilised for the purpose of creating any such situation or any such atmosphere. I appeal to all Members not to give interpellations in the manner in which they were giving in the past. I have seen some questions that have been received. I only appeal because all these questions and answers and all these proceedings that are taking place here are published in the Press and the Press will take advantage of the attitude we take here. Then they will be justified in saying that 'what we are doing is not worse than what you are doing. You are enjoying certain privileges. We are also enjoying certain privileges.' That is a digression by way of precaution. Now with the partition of the country the atmosphere of this House and the tone of the debate must have a different tune. We must be helpful in establishing traditions and creating conditions, an atmosphere in the country for harmony, unity and peace in the land, which is the greater responsibility of the members of this House.

Now so far as the Bill is concerned, I do not think that I can say more than those friends who themselves are editors and who know where the shoe pinches. As has been rightly said this Bill is a check not against the liberty of the Press, but against the liberty which has been turned into a worse form of licence. As has also been acknowledged that although this Ordinance has been in force for more than a year we have held our hands and rarely exercised the powers that are given by it.

Our friend from Ajmer-Merwara read out a passage from a newspaper. Even in an advanced province like Bombay the newspapers are carrying on in such a manner that an old liberal friend of mine sent me a cutting in which it was stated that as this Government had been bitterly criticized in the foreign press, particularly in England, the representative of the Home Department of Government has selected forty beautiful Sikh girls to send them to England and give one to each of the editors in Fleet Street. When that cutting was sent to the Home Minister of Bombay he said he could do nothing because there is no section of the law under which he could take action. Is the Home Member to go and file a suit of defamation for the publication of these scurrilous and malicious libels? You will see that there are many papers of this kind who realise that freedom has come and freedom can be used in this manner. If you do not teach people how to enjoy freedom you will lose that freedom because, as has been said, there are many people who have dreams that as the British power which was an established power and used to protect everybody has disappeared, the place of that power will be taken by anybody who can organise a few goondas. This Government is strong enough to resist any pressure from any quarter of that type. But in this House we must see that we protect every legitimate right and interest which must be protected in a free country. But we must not allow either the press or public assembly meetings or public platforms or privileged places like the Assembly to be used for the purpose of destroying freedom which is won after hard struggle and considerable sacrifice.

Sir, I am grateful for the support that has been given to this measure.

Mr. Chairman: The question is:

"That the Bill to continue certain special powers conferred on the administration in Chief Commissioners' Provinces for the better control of the dissemination of undesirable matter, be taken into consideration."

The motion was adopted.

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Thursday, the 20th November, 1947.

Shri Biswanath Das: Will the Government be pleased to state the present normal shortage of foodgrains and cereals in India?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: That question comes up in another question. I will answer it at that time.

Shri Biswanath Das: Do they realise that the present method of Grow More Food campaign has not been effective nor have the results been encouraging?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: That is a matter of opinion. But I am inclined to share the view that it has not been as successful as we all wished it to be.

Shri Biswanath Das: May I know whether the Government are aware of the fact that the essential necessities of agriculture and agriculturists, such as rims and agricultural implements are not being supplied to agriculturists at controlled prices, though each of these things is amply available in the black-market? Under the circumstances, would Government feel justified to expect that agriculturists could make an effective contribution to the Grow More Food campaign or to agriculture?

Mr. Speaker: What is the information that the Honourable Member wants? It seems that what he is asking for is either an opinion or an argument.

Shri Biswanath Das: Have they considered the question whether agriculturists can make an effective contribution to the Grow More Food campaign or to agriculture?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: We are aware of the fact that these things are required for helping the production of food and we are trying our best to supply them.

Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena: Does the Honourable Minister know that in the Gorakhpur district about two lakh acres of prepared land have remained unsown because seed was not available, even though wires were sent to the Honourable Minister?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: I am not aware of the fact that so much land has remained unsown for want of seed. As a matter of fact, the United Provinces supplied seed to other provinces.

K. T. M. Ahmad Ibrahim Sahib Bahadur: In view of the fact that effective results are not obtained on account of the haphazard distribution of these amounts, will the Government evolve a scheme for making a survey of the uncultivated arable lands and bringing them under cultivation as soon as possible?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: A survey has been made and a scheme prepared on the basis of that survey.

Shri M. S. Aney: May I know, Sir, whether the Government has thought proper to bring under cultivation large tracts of land which were hitherto occupied by military camps now deserted?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: They have not yet come under my Department and I am not in a position to answer that.

Shri Ajit Prasad Jain: Will the Honourable Minister state in what shape or form was subsidy or assistance given under the Grow More Food campaign?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: The scheme has been to give subsidy in respect of three or four matters and the Government of India contributes four annas out of one rupee spent on a scheme. Another four annas is borne by the province and the remaining eight annas has to be contributed by the particular cultivator. This has been scheme for irrigation projects, for improvement of seeds and for manures.

Shri B. A. Mandloi: Will the Government say whether these schemes are on a population basis or under the area under cultivation?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: The position of the province is taken into consideration. It will not do to divide on a population basis. So it is on the capacity of the province to absorb.

श्री आर० वी० धुलेकर : क्या सरकार को यह मालूम है कि 'ग्रो मोर फूड कैम्पेन' के जरिये से हजारों एकड़ जमीन सरकारी अफसरों ने अपने बंगलों की जमीनों में, सरकारी बागीचों में, और यहाँ तक कि इन्डिया गेट की जो टहलने की जमीनें हैं उसमें थोड़ी बहुत खेती करा कर यह सारी जमीन 'ग्रो मोर फूड कैम्पेन' में दिखला दी, लेकिन उसका कोई फायदा सरकार को नहीं हुआ और न पब्लिक को हुआ ?

Shri R. V. Dhulekar: Are Government aware of the fact that by means of "Grow More Food Campaign", the Government Officers have after bringing a portion of the land under cultivation, shown thousands of acres of land—viz., land attached to their bungalows, Government gardens and so much so even the walking grounds of India Gate—under the "Grow More Food Campaign". But neither the Government nor the public has derived any benefit from this.

आनरेबिल डाक्टर राजेन्द्रप्रसाद : मुझे इसका पता नहीं है कि इस प्रकार के से हजारों एकड़ जमीन 'ग्रो मोर फूड कैम्पेन' में दिखलाई गई है, लेकिन यह बात सही है कि बहुत जमीन 'ग्रो मोर फूड कैम्पेन' की स्कीम के अन्दर आई है और इसमें मुमकिन है यह जमीन आई होगी।

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: I do not know whether in this way thousands of acres of land have been shown under the "Grow More Food Campaign"; but it is true that large areas have been brought under the "Grow More Food Campaign". It is possible that such areas also have been included.

Shri S. Nagappa: Will the Government consider the desirability of forming collective farms on a co-operative basis in order to grow more food?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: That is a matter which has been under consideration. But we have not yet reached a stage of the work being undertaken by the Government in that respect.

Dr. B. Pattabhai Sitaramayya: May I add that the progress of the 'Grow More Food Campaign' has been impeded especially in Deltaic and irrigated lands on account of tyranny of the experts and the engineers who are not willing to relax their time-honoured and traditional rules, and if so, or if not, will the Government kindly give instructions that they should relax such rules consistently with efficiency?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: It is difficult for me to answer that. I do not know what is meant by the "tyranny of experts".

Mr. B. Pocker Sahib Bahadur: Have the Government considered the advisability of associating non-officials, preferably Members of the Legislature, in giving effect to the schemes for Grow More Food?

Prof. N. G. Ranga: How about the peasants' organisations?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: I understand that in some provinces they have got organisations on which non-officials are represented.

Seth Govinddas: Besides collective farming, have the Government thought and prepared any scheme of co-operative farming, which is much more easy than collective farming?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: I know that nothing has been taken up by the Government of India on that line. It may be that some provincial governments have done something in the direction but I am not aware of that.

SUBVENTION TO PROVINCES FOR MANURE-SUPPLY

133. *Shri R. R. Diwakar: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Agriculture please state the subventions granted to different provinces for the supply of various kinds of manures to agriculturists at rates lower than those ruling in the markets and the number of provinces which used the amounts for the purpose for which it was given?

(b) Do Government propose to place in the Library of the House copies of the Reports received from Provincial Governments with regard to the utilization of these amounts for the last six years?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: (a) A statement showing the subventions given to the Provincial Governments for the supply of various kinds of manures at subsidised rates to the agriculturists is placed on the table. The amounts sanctioned are not utilised for purposes other than those for which they are given.

(b) The Government of India have been sanctioning grants to the Provinces under 'Grow More Food Campaign' since 1943-44. Copies of the reports received from the Provincial Governments will be placed in the library of the House.

Shri R. R. Diwakar: May I know why some of the Provinces have not used all the subventions made to them in this behalf?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: It is not possible for me to say: the provinces will be in a better position to answer the question. One thing that has been brought to my notice is that some of the provinces were not able to get steel, coal and cement and that was responsible to some extent for holding up some of the schemes.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Will Government consider the advisability of publishing at least annual reports of the distribution of the grants under the Grow More Food Campaign, the results achieved in different provinces and also whether Government have got any machinery to see that these difficulties experienced by provincial governments in utilising the grants are removed and to what extent the Grow More Food Campaign is being developed in different provinces?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: We shall try to get a report of the kind suggested, prepared and circulated. As regards the question of having some officers for the purpose of helping the provinces, we have already got such officers who are in touch with them. It is a matter really for the provinces to suggest and it may be that some of the provinces may not like too much interference from the Centre.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Is it not a fact that some of the provinces are not able to get their due quotas of iron and steel and other materials from the Supply Department and would it not be better for the Government to use their good offices in helping the provincial governments in their dealings with the Supply Department?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: We in the Centre have been doing our best to get the supplies for the provinces. The system so far has been that the Government of India allocated the steel and other materials to the provinces and it was left to the provincial government to allocate out of the total quantity allocated to them to various items such as buildings, bridges, agricultural purposes, etc. A short time ago we arranged to allocate separately for agricultural purposes, so that what is allocated for agricultural purposes may not be used for other purposes.

SUPPLY OF FERTILISING MATERIAL

134. *Shri R. R. Diwakar: Will the Honourable Minister of Agriculture be pleased to state:

(a) whether it is a fact that our manure requirements fall short of the total quantity necessary for the area under the plough;

(b) if the answer to (a) above be in the affirmative, the steps taken by Government for making use of every source of fertilising material; and

(c) whether it is a fact that there is a ban on the export of oil cakes, oil-seeds, bones either raw or crushed or material, which can be directly turned into manure here?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: (a) The answer is in the affirmative.

(b) Government of India have been encouraging the development and utilisation of all local resources for preparing manure in the following manner:—

(1) Schemes have been initiated for increasing the quantity of Compost prepared in villages, in certain areas by the award of prizes and subsidies. 8,000 villages are at present operating this scheme, and their total production is about 12 lakhs tons of manure per year.

(2) Schemes have been started in some towns for converting urban refuse into manure. About 600 municipalities are at present preparing about 500,000 tons of Compost per year.

(3) A factory producing 7,500 tons of Sulphate of Ammonia is already operating in Mysore State. Another factory for producing 50,000 tons of Sulphate of Ammonia has recently gone into operation in Travancore State. The Government of India is establishing a factory at Sindhri with a capacity to manufacture 3,50,000 tons of Sulphate of Ammonia and this is under construction. Imported and indigenous supplies have been organised into a fertilizer pool to ensure equitable distribution of the available supplies among different areas.

(4) The Government of India are importing maximum possible quantities of chemical fertilizers allotted to us by the I. E. F. C. and available from other sources.

(5) The Government of India have banned the export of uncrushed bones and bone-meal and are encouraging the production and distribution of bone-meal and super-phosphates in the country. Rock-Phosphate is also being imported for conversion into super-phosphate.

(c) Only a limited quantity of oil-cakes, oilseeds and crushed bones and bone-grist is exported from India.

Shri R. R. Diwakar: Do I understand that the quantities of manure that were mentioned by the Minister are in addition to what was already being produced?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: These figures relate to what is being done under our auspices.

Seth Govinddas: Will Government consider the question whether it would not be better to have one factory for each province for producing Sulphate of Ammonia?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: The factory for producing Sulphate of Ammonia is a complicated kind of factory. Government has in hand the establishment of one factory at Sindhri and I do not know what time it will take to get it ready but I am told that it is not easy to start a factory.

Mr. Speaker: Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru wanted to ask a supplementary question.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru: Sir, my question has been anticipated and answered by the Honourable the Minister.

Shri T. T. Krishnamachari: May I know from the Honourable Minister if the Government of India has deputed a Bombay merchant to Soviet Russia for the purpose of securing supplies of Sulphate of Ammonia? If so, with what result?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: We have not heard anything in reply as yet.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Is it a fact that one company called Messrs. Parry and Co., in Madras has been given more or less a monopoly in the distribution of the manures got from the I. E. F. C. and as a result the price of chemical manure to the growers has been artificially inflated?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: I should like to have notice of that question.

Diwan Chaman Lall: May I know from the Honourable Minister whether it is a fact that special machinery was going to be imported from abroad for the Sindhri factory for the purpose of converting gypsum from the Khewra salt mines? Now that the mine has gone out of our hands, what is the state of affairs in regard to the machinery that is being imported for the Sindhri factory?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: I am not in a position to answer that question. It is a question which should properly be addressed to the Minister in charge of Industries and Supplies.

Shri K. Santhanam: May I know whether any steps are being taken to relate the prices of grains with the prices of manure, so that the manure may be used by the agriculturists?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: I may say that no particular step has been taken in the direction but I take it that the price of manure is such as to make it profitable for the cultivator to use it.

Shri K. Santhanam: Is the Honourable Minister aware that the prices of manure today are comparatively much higher than the prices of grain in relation to pre-war prices?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: That may be so. I am not in a position to answer the question off hand.

EDIBLE AND NON-EDIBLE OIL CAKES

135. *Shri R. R. Diwakar: Will the Honourable Minister of Agriculture please state:

(a) the total quantity of different kinds of oil-cake produced by—(i) expellers, (ii) rotaries, and (iii) country ghanies;

(b) the manurial value of non-edible cakes; and

(c) whether major portion of edible cakes could be spared for cattle-feeding in view of the fact that the area under cotton is decreasing with the consequence that there is great scarcity of cotton seed?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: (a) A statement giving such information as is available, is placed on the table of the House.

(b) The manurial value of oilcakes is generally proportionate to their Nitrogen content. The Nitrogen contents of non-edible oilcakes are:

Castor cake	..	4.37%
Neem cake	..	5.22%
Mahua cake	..	2.51%
Dhupak cake	..	1.13%
Karanj cake	..	3.97%
Undi cake	..	3.63%

(c) Extract statistics showing the proportion of oilcakes used as cattle-feeds and manure are not available. The distribution of oilcake is controlled by the Provincial Governments who no doubt take into consideration local factors such as urgency of the need of manure, alternative sources of cattle-feeds etc.

Statement showing the production of oilcakes by Expellers, Rotaries and Country Ghanies

* Separate figures for expellers and rotaries are not available.

† Production figure is not available. The annual production by village Ghanies is however negligible.

USE OF OIL CAKES AND BONE-MEAL AS MANURE

136. *Shri R. R. Diwakar: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Agriculture be pleased to state whether Government are aware that there is deficiency of nitrogen in the soil of many provinces and of phosphates in the tracts of Peninsular India?

(b) If the reply to part (a) above is in the affirmative do Government propose to take steps so that—(i) oil-cakes containing high percentage of nitrogen, and (ii) bone-meal containing high percentage of phosphates, are fully utilized for manuring the different areas and various crops for which they are suitable?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: (a) The reply is in the affirmative.

(b) Oilcake is used both for cattle-feed and manurial purposes and is not allowed to be exported except for small quantities to Ceylon. The export of bone-meal is also prohibited and all the available bone-meal is used for making manurial mixtures.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Have Government ever examined the possibilities of raising green manure on the railway linings and the road linings, as was done in certain parts of the Punjab on District Board roads?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: As I understand, green manuring cannot be raised in one place and transported to another place. It has to be raised on the plot where it has to be used. So, any green manuring raised on railway sidings will not be of use elsewhere.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Are not Government aware of the fact that in Southern India in very many areas green manure is being grown as a special thing for manurial purposes alone and it is cut and taken over to the fields where it is being used as manure?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: I shall have that matter investigated.

Shri A. P. Pattani: Is the Government aware that there are bone-meal factories in some states who are not receiving any quota from the Government for exporting the produce outside India and who are consequently not finding a market for their accumulated produce either in India or out of India?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: As I have said, our policy has been to ban the export of bone or bone-meal. We have allowed export only of a small quantity of about 40,000 tons and no more than that. If the factories that are in the country can utilise the bone available in the States I am sure they will take advantage of it. But I would request the Honourable Member to communicate this information to us so that we may take up the matter.

Shri Raj Krishna Bose: How many factories are there in the country for the production of bone-meal and what is the total amount of production?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: I would like to have notice of that question.

Shri Ajit Prasad Jain: Do Government intend to make a general survey and examination of the different soils in India with a view to finding out what are the deficiencies, as was suggested by the Royal Commission on Agriculture?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: We are trying to have some kind of survey made, but it is a very big question to survey the entire country for quality of the land. An attempt is however being made in that direction.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: Is the Honourable Minister aware that there is no effective machinery of Government in the country—either Provincial or Central—to disseminate the right type of information and knowledge about the utility of particular types of manure for particular plots of land?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: It is difficult for me to answer that because it is a matter of opinion whether the machinery is effective or not.

296 CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY OF INDIA (LEGISLATIVE) [20TH NOV. 1947]

NATIONALISATION OF RAILWAYS

137. *Shri S. Nagappa: Will the Honourable Minister of Railways be pleased to state:

(a) whether there is any proposal or scheme under the contemplation of Government to nationalise the railways;

(b) if so, what are the railways that are already nationalised and what are those which will be nationalised shortly; and

(c) whether Government propose to consider the desirability of increasing the number of III class compartments in view of the fact that they are more paying than the other classes and thus avoid congestion also?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: (a) It is the policy of Government to purchase Company-owned Railways, where contracts with Companies authorize Government to do so, provided their purchase is justified on both administrative and financial grounds.

(b) Barring certain small Narrow Gauge and Metre Gauge Company-owned branch lines, all the major Railways are already owned and managed by Government. Government have decided to purchase the Darjeeling-Himalayan Railway Extensions, a part of which will be converted to Metre Gauge for providing a through rail link between Assam and the rest of India.

The question of purchase of the following branch lines is under the consideration of Government:

1. Barsi Light Railway.
2. Pachora Jamner Railway.
3. Matheran Light Railway.
4. Darjeeling Himalayan Railway.

(c) It is the Government's policy to increase the accommodation provided for III Class passengers to the extent justified by public requirements. With this end in view, since the termination of the war, 173 Broad Gauge and 118 Metre Gauge coaches (in terms of 4-wheeled units) have been built. Over 600 III Class coaches, also in terms of 4-wheeled units, are under construction.

275 III Class coaches are with the Ministry of Defence yet in use on military movements. Their being returned and repaired will add to the accommodation available.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Are these figures of construction of new coaches, in addition to the coaches to be constructed and placed on the line to make up for wastage?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: These are coaches which have been ordered for the purpose of meeting the increased traffic requirements. The question of providing new types of coaches—that I think is what the Honourable Member is raising—is a different matter which comes up in connection with another question of which my honourable friend has given notice.

Shri S. Nagappa: In view of the fact that most of the third class coaches are packed to the maximum, will the Government consider the desirability of providing third class coaches with electric fans?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: There is a question on that point later, to which I propose to give a reply.

K. T. M. Ahmed Ibrahim Sahib Bahadur: Is the Government aware that many of these coaches, including even the upper class compartments, are very leaky and are in a state of disrepair, and will Government take steps to repair these coaches and compartments?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: As much repair work on coaches as our workshops are in a position to tackle is at present being done. Whether it would be possible for us to do the repair work more speedily is a matter which will depend on the extent to which we can increase workshop capacity, which raises a rather big issue.

Shri Raj Krishna Bose: At what point the Darjeeling-Himalayan Railway is to be bifurcated to link up Assam?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: That proposal has been accepted by Government and I have already appointed a senior Engineering officer to make the necessary survey. I expect that in the course of two working seasons, that is to say within a period of three years, we should be able to complete the project.

Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena: Are the Government aware that on the O. T. Railway there are half a dozen casualties daily on account of congestion?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: The question of the O. T. Railway is one which is a chronic headache to me as Minister for Railways. I am aware of the difficulties experienced by passengers. The question of remedying the present state of things on the O. T. Railway is a matter which is receiving my very anxious attention.

Shri Rohini Kumar Chaudhuri: May I know whether the Government propose to take the Tezpur Bal Para Railway under their management?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: That is a different question.

Begum Aizaz Rasul: Is the Honourable Minister aware that the engines of the O. T. Railway are so old that the trains never reach in time and are sometimes ten to twelve hours late in reaching their destination?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: The senility of engines is a consideration that applies not merely to the O. T. Railway but to other Railways also.

RICE DEFICIT IN MADRAS PROVINCE

138. *Shri S. Nagappa: Will the Honourable Minister of Food be pleased to state:

(a) whether Madras is a deficit province so far as rice is concerned; and

(b) if so, what steps Government have taken to relieve the shortage of rice in view of the fact that South India is a predominantly rice consuming area?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: (a) Yes.

(b) Attention is invited to the Memorandum on the Food Position circulated to the members.

PRODUCTION, IMPORT AND ALLOTMENT OF MILL CLOTH

139. *Shri S. Nagappa: Will the Honourable Minister of Industry and Supply be pleased to state:

(a) the total quantity of mill cloth produced in the Indian Union;

(b) the total quantity imported from outside the Indian Union;

(c) the quantity allotted to each province; and

(d) the basis on which the allotment is made?

The Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee: (a) The total quantity of mill cloth produced in the Indian Union averages 302 million yards a month.

(b), (c) and (d). Statements giving the required information are placed on the table of the House.

STATEMENT III

Alotments are made on the basis of the following per capita quotas, which are based on pre-war consumption. They make allowance for handloom production in each area

Assam	10
Baroda	13
West Bengal	10
Bihar	11
Bombay	13
Central Provinces	10
Central India	10
Orissa	10
East Punjab & Delhi	13
Rajputana	10
South	10
United Provinces	11
W. I. States	11

K. T. M. Ahmad Ibrahim Sahib Bahadur: Is it not a fact that the quota of cloth allotted to Madras is comparatively lower than that allotted to other provinces like Bombay, and in view of the fact that Madras is a comparatively poor Province and that the people wear only cotton cloth throughout the year while Provinces like Bombay and the Punjab . . .

Mr. Speaker: Order, order. I find that Honourable Members when seeking information are advancing arguments. That is not permissible during Question Hour. They should seek information without advancing arguments for or against the proposition. The Honourable Member may please put the question.

K. T. M. Ahmad Ibrahim Sahib Bahadur: Is it not a fact that the quota of mill cloth allotted per head to Madras is less than that allotted per head to provinces like Bombay and the Punjab?

The Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee: The total quota allotted to Madras is on the average all-India basis, namely 10 yards per head. Of course the handloom cloth in Madras is taken into account, and therefore mill made cloth is proportionately less.

K. T. M. Ahmad Ibrahim Sahib Bahadur: In view of the fact that the people are comparatively poor, will the Government consider the desirability of reducing the quota of handloom cloth and increase proportionately the quota of mill cloth per head to Madras?

The Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee: That depends on whether the handloom cloth can go from Madras to other provinces at the prices offered. In fact I discussed this question with the Madras Ministers about a week ago and certain alternative proposals have been made which are now under examination.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: Is it not a fact that the policy of distributing cloth to provinces is fundamentally defective and therefore are Government considering the question of removing control on cloth?

The Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee: The fundamental defect is shortage of cloth. So far as re-examination of the question of distribution is concerned, that also has been taken up and is under consideration.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: Are Government not aware that there have been complaints made that there have been a number of bales lying in some of the mills and the millowners are responsible for holding them?

Mr. Speaker: Order, order.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: May I ask what the total quantity of cloth imported from outside the Indian Union is and whether the quantity comes from Japan or from anywhere else?

The Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee: The total quantity imported in 1945 was 3 million yards: In 1946, it has been 14 million yards.

Shri Rameshwar Prasad Sinha: Are Government aware that out of the total quantity of cloth allotted to each of the provinces, the proportion of non-utility cloth is greater than the actual requirements, and if so, do Government propose to rectify this defect?

The Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee: It has been difficult to find a definition of the expression 'non-utility cloth'. What is 'utility cloth' in one province becomes 'non-utility' in another province, but I admit there has been some difficulty due to the allotment of particular kinds of cloth which are disliked by particular provinces; that matter also is under consideration.

QUANTITY OF IRON, STEEL AND CEMENT IN INDIAN UNION

140. *Shri S. Nagappa: Will the Honourable Minister of Industry and Supply be pleased to state:

(a) the total quantity of iron, steel and cement that was at the disposal of the Indian Union for the previous year and the current year; and

(b) the quantity of allotments made to each province and state?

The Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee: (a)

	1946	1947 (Up to September)
Iron and Steel for India and Pakistan	9,24,058 tons	7,81,210 tons
Cement (For India)	16,10,374 tons	10,95,789 tons.

(b) A statement showing allotment of steel for the year 1947 to Provinces and States for distribution to the general public, including small scale manufacturers of consumer goods, is laid on the table of the House. No Steel allotments were made Province or Statewise during 1946. Regarding Cement, allotments are made to areas which are not divided according to Provinces or States, each area being under the control of a Regional Honorary Cement Adviser.

N. B.—These figures include only allotments made to the Provinces and States for distribution to the general public including small-scale manufacturers on consumer goods. Besides this, steel is also distributed to Provincial Governments for their development schemes and to private industries in the Provinces and States for steel processing, industrial development and maintenance requirements. No figures are readily available for these, Province or Statewise.

Seth Govinddas: Are Government thinking of removing all control from cement and iron?

The Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee: There is no control under law with regard to cement now. So far as iron and steel are concerned, the question has not been examined. It will be examined when production increases.

Shri S. Nagappa: Is the quantity of allotment made to each province handed over to the provincial government concerned or is it distributed through some agency of the Central Government?

The Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee: Certain proportion is allotted to the provinces, and so far as that proportion is concerned, the provinces are entitled to do whatever they like. Other allotments are made through the Centre and distribution is made through the Iron and Steel Controller in Calcutta.

Shri S. Nagappa: May I know, Sir, whether in making iron and steel allotment, Government give preference to industrial or agricultural purposes?

The Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee: Both.

Shri S. Nagappa: May I ask, Sir, in view of the fact that there is food scarcity, whether Government will at least consider in future to give priority for agricultural purposes rather than for industrial purposes?

The Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee: As has been explained by the Food Minister in answer to another question this morning, we have made a separate arrangement with regard to the distribution of iron and steel for agricultural purposes for period I, 1948. The whole difficulty arises on account of non-availability of iron and steel. What we have done this year is this. We are going to fix a certain quota for agricultural purposes, and even though on account of non-availability the provinces may get less than what is allotted to them, they must spend the allotted quota for agriculture. That is being done from 1948.

Shri K. Santhanam: May I know what is the estimate of steel and iron required for the country to satisfy its full needs?

The Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee: Unfortunately our production has gone down in 1947. We are now short by about 29,000 tons per month so far as 1947 production is concerned. So we require at least that much in order to meet the minimum requirements of the country.

Shri S. Nagappa: In view of the fact that the Honourable Minister will allot quotas for both, may I ask Sir, what percentage of quota will he be pleased to allot for food purposes as it is more important than industry?

The Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee: In this matter we shall be guided by the advice which we shall get from the Ministry of Agriculture, and we shall make every effort to give priority to food and agricultural products.

Begum Aizaz Rasul: May I know, whether out of the quota allotted to provinces, the Government earmarks a certain percentage for government requirements and for the use of the public?

The Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee: What is done is this. There are certain quotas allotted to the provinces. In addition to that, there are quotas allotted for government purposes, and also separate quotas allotted for private industrial purposes.

Shri K. Santhanam: May I know, Sir, if the production is increased by 29,000 tons, there will be no need for control?

The Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee: There may be, because this quantity is required just for our minimum requirements.

Pandit Balkrishna Sharma: Sir, may I know if the Government are aware that there are only 14 concerns in the country which produce iron and steel goods, and that in order to take advantage of various control rules they produce defective more than perfect goods so that the defective ones may not strictly come under the control regulations and they might reap profits to their advantage?

The Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee: Well, I have no information on that. If the Honourable Member will supply me with details, and particularly the names of the factories which are doing this sort of thing, we shall take speedy action.

ALLOTMENT OF PETROL TO COORG

141. *Shri C. M. Poonacha: Will the Honourable Minister of Transport be pleased to state:

(a) the petrol allotment made to Coorg during the years 1942-43, 1943-44, 1944-45, 1945-46, 1946-47, and 1947-48;

(b) the actual consumption of petrol in Coorg during these years; and

(c) whether any quantity was surrendered out of the allotted quantity during these years; if so, how much and when?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: (a) The quarterly petrol quotas allotted to Coorg during the six rationing quarters ending January, 1948, are as follows:—

Quarter Ending.	Gallons (Quantities are in thousand gallons)
October 9	72
January 1947	76
April 1947	82
July 1947	82
October 1947	88
January 1948	62

For the February-April, 1942, rationing quarter, a quota of approximately 23,000 gallons was allotted. During the intervening period no specific quotas were allocated to any of the Provinces or States but an over all direction was given to all of them to achieve the maximum possible economy so as to result in a saving of 50 per cent.

(b) I lay on the table a statement showing the actual consumption of motor spirit in Coorg from the 1st February, 1942, to the 31st July, 1947. For the subsequent period figures of actual consumption are not available.

(c) Out of the allocation of 88,000 gallons, for the August-October, 1947, rationing quarter, 10,000 gallons were surrendered by Coorg. There were no surrenders in any of the other rationing quarters.

ELECTRIC FANS IN THIRD AND INTER CLASS COMPARTMENTS

142. *Shri Ram Chandra Gupta: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Railways please state whether it is a fact that Government have decided to provide electric fans in the third and inter class compartments of passenger trains on the State Railways?

(b) If so, when do Government expect to do it?

(c) If not, will Government do so now?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: (a) It has been decided to provide electric fans in compartments of all new third class coaches, subject to the availability of electrical equipment.

Electric fans will also be provided in any new Inter Class stock which is built.

(b) The provision of electric fans will be carried out as new coaches are built.

(c) Does not arise.

Seth Govinddas: By what time do the Government think, Sir, that they will be able to replace these old coaches by new ones?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: I am afraid, Sir, that is rather a difficult question but it is a matter which is receiving our attention. The position is that as regards the greater part of our existing coaches the generating capacity of the electrical equipment which is set up in these coaches, is not sufficient for the provision of electric lights in all the coaches. Therefore, if we want to equip the existing coaches it will be necessary to indent for a very large supply of electrical equipment in the shape of dynamos and batteries. But with the present limited availability of these materials the possibility of Government doing anything on the lines suggested by the Honourable Member is restricted.

Shri Ram Chandra Gupta: Will the Government be able to fit these third-class and inter-class compartments with electric fans by the next summer?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: All the third-class and inter-class coaches which are now being built will be equipped as far as possible with electric fans.

Shri K. Santhanam: Will the Honourable Minister consider the establishment of a factory under Railway Management for the manufacture of these electric fans?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: That, Sir, raises a very big issue on which it is impossible for me to give a reply.

Mr. Naziruddin Ahmad: Sir, it is in the experience of many that passengers are allowed to hang to door handles and windows. Will the Honourable Minister be pleased to consider the desirability of putting fans on the doors and windows for these hanging passengers?

Mr. Speaker: The question does not arise.

Shri Ram Chandra Gupta: Do Government propose to provide electric fans in the existing third and inter class carriages?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: Sir, that is a question that I have already answered.

Dr. P. S. Deshmukh: Does the Honourable Minister know, Sir, what percentage of the existing fans are in working order?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: A very substantial percentage.

Some Honourable Members: No, no.

Shri Raj Krishna Bose: What steps are Government taking to prevent the pilferage of electrical equipment in compartments?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: Every possible step is being taken.

Shri M. S. Aney: Are Government aware that some of the existing fans have no switches at all?

(No reply).

SUPPLY OF DRINKING WATER ON G. I. P. AND E. I. RAILWAYS

143. *Shri Ram Chandra Gupta: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Railways please state whether Government are aware that there is no adequate arrangement for the supply of water to passengers on the Great Indian Peninsula and East Indian Railways?

(b) Do Government propose to take steps to make adequate provision for drinking water on all stations throughout the day?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: (a) and (b). Government understand that existing arrangements for the supply of drinking water to passengers travelling on the Great Indian Peninsula and East Indian Railways are not inadequate. The Great Indian Peninsula Railway employ a permanent complement of 319 watermen at 208 of their 546 passenger stations. During the hot weather, over 700 watermen are employed at 346 stations. Arrangements for providing more taps on passenger platforms at stations where a pipe-water supply is available, are under examination.

On the East Indian Railway, permanent watermen are provided, except at very small stations at some of which, however, water can be obtained by passengers from water-stands; During the hot weather, the East Indian Railway also increase the number of watermen employed.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: Is it not a fact, Sir, that these employees who are employed for supplying water in the hot season are sometimes permanently attached to Railway employees and therefore do not get the advantage of serving water on the platform?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: In some cases, Sir, that sort of thing probably happens, but it is inevitable under the existing arrangements.

Shri Ram Chandra Gupta: Are not Government aware that at practically no station water is supplied to the passengers?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: As a matter of fact this question has been receiving a great deal of attention at our hands. (An Honourable Member: For years and years). There are two directions in which we propose to move: first of all, we want to provide more hydrants on station platforms; the other is that on long distance trains where the problem is particularly acute, we want to provide third class compartments entirely devoted to the provision of drinking water as well as travelling watermen. I hope, Sir, to get a definite move on with these proposals.

Shri Basanta Kumar Das: Do Government think it proper to allow the water suppliers to shout "Hindu water, Muslim water"?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: That, Sir, is a long standing trouble. The arrangement still exists but I think what has been altered is the label under which the water is distributed.

Shri H. J. Khandekar: Is there any 'Scheduled Castes Water'?

श्री० आर० वी० धुलेकर: क्या सरकार ने इस बात पर विचार किया है कि वजाय इसके कि नौकर रखे जायें और वह पानी ढ़िलायें हर ट्रेन में या जो हर गाडी में नल लगा दिये जायें या ट्रेन की केवल एक गाडी में एक स्थान पर नल लगा दिया जाय तो सरकार का खर्च कम होगा।

Shri R. V. Dhulekar: Have Government considered over this question that instead of employing watermen for supplying drinking water, water taps be installed either in each compartment of every train or a tap be fixed at one place in a particular compartment of the train? This would reduce Government's expense.

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: Interesting suggestion, which I would like to consider.

IMPORT OF FOODSTUFFS

144. *Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: Will the Honourable Minister of Food please state the total amount of loss sustained by the Government of India during the year ending March 1947 on account of import of wheat and other food articles from foreign countries and also the purchases of foodstuffs made so far from the Government of Pakistan?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: Rs. 20.59 crores. This represents the loss resulting from the decision to subsidize imported foodgrains so as not to increase the prices paid by the consumer in April 1946. About Rs. 8 Lakhs loss is expected from imports of condensed milk from U. S. A. as a consignment of 500 tons was received in a deteriorated condition.

Shri B. Das: In view of the heavy losses to the Government on account of the importation of foodstuffs from foreign countries and in view of the heavy expenditure incurred in importing foodstuffs from abroad, have Government considered the advice of Mahatma Gandhi that every citizen of India should fast one day in every fortnight and what steps have they taken to enforce this suggestion?

Mr. Speaker: The question does not arise. The Honourable Minister need not answer.

Mr. B. Pocker Sahib Bahadur: Will the Honourable Minister for Food please state whether the Government have considered the advisability of increasing the price of rice, so that agriculturists who produce rice may find it worthwhile to do so?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: The matter is under consideration at the present moment.

Shri S. Nagappa: In view of the fact that the imported wheat and other foodstuffs are very far from satisfactory from the point of view of quality, what steps have Government taken to ensure that before these are imported into India the quality is one fit to be consumed by the human beings in this country?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: We have got a staff which inspects the foodstuffs before they are imported and also after they are landed here, but such vast quantities are being imported that it is possible that in some cases, the consignments may not be satisfactory.

Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena: Is the Government aware that the District Magistrate of Gorakhpur asked for 2,50,000 maunds of wheat seed but that he was not given a single maund of wheat seed, with the result that one lac of acres of wheat land in the district have remained uncultivated, and a very large area of wheat land had to be sown with other crops.

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: I have answered that question already. I am not aware of this, but as a matter of fact I know this, that we have got some seed from the U. P. which was supplied to other Provinces.

Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena: Will the Government kindly make enquiries?

(No reply).

308 CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY OF INDIA (LEGISLATIVE) 120TH Nov. 1947

BOOKING OF DOGS IN PASSENGER COMPARTMENTS

145. *Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Railways please state whether it is a fact that Railway authorities have made rules allowing passengers to carry dogs in the compartments in which they travel?

(b) Are Government aware that several complaints have been made that this causes great nuisance to passengers and that the system should therefore be stopped?

(c) Are Government aware that prior to this rule being made, no passenger was allowed to carry dogs in compartments?

(d) Do the Government of India propose to take steps to amend this rule so that no passenger is allowed to carry dogs with him in the compartment in which he travels?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: (a) Yes, rules and conditions have been in existence for years permitting dogs being carried in compartments (except Air Conditioned) provided other passengers in the compartment do not object.

(b) Government have no reason to think that present rules cause inconvenience to the travelling public particularly as one of the conditions for allowing dogs in compartments is that other passengers do not object; if they do, the dogs have to be removed to the brake van.

(c) The present practice has been in force for many years and Government are not aware of any specific prohibition (except in Air Conditioned) of dogs being carried in compartments prior to a certain date as stated in the question.

(d) Government do not think that there is a case for modification of the rules.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: Is it not a fact that one of the members of the Railway Advisory Committee, on a specific grievance from the passengers that these dogs were not removed notwithstanding the passengers having objected to their presence, resolved representing to the Railway Board to remove the dogs?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: I remember that case very well, and, it was in connection with it that I went personally into this question. The conclusion that I arrived at was this: There are at present at least four safeguards in this matter. First of all, they have to get the permission of the Station Master at the starting station. Secondly, they have to get the concurrence of the passengers who are travelling in the compartment. Thirdly, a person who takes a dog in the compartment has to pay double fare. Fourthly, if the passenger objects and the dog is removed to the brake van, then he forfeits the excess fare. It seems to me that these safeguards are adequate and there is not at present an urgent case for modification of the rules. I would like to suggest to Mr. Sidhwa who is a very kind-hearted person judging from the efforts that he has been making on behalf of passengers, that he should not insist, if he knows the conditions under which these dogs have to travel, especially in hot weather in brake vans, on a proposal which would mean inflicting intolerable cruelty on these poor dumb creatures?

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: I would like to ask the Honourable Minister whether he is himself satisfied that the Station Master from where the dogs are embarked and the passengers get in insists upon these conditions, and whether the concurrence of the passengers is taken?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: If it is a question of one or two safeguards alone, I can quite understand the Honourable Member, but since there is a multiplicity of safeguards, I expect that at some point they must be effective.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: Is it not a fact that there are dangerous dogs also?

Mr. Speaker: Next question. Enough of these dogs.

RETURN OF ROLLING STOCK LENT TO MINISTRY OF DEFENCE

146. *Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: Will the Honourable Minister of Railways please state:

(a) the number of rolling stock, both coaches and wagons for passengers and goods still remaining with the Military authorities;

(b) the names of the Railways to whom these belong and when they are likely to be released for public use;

(c) whether Government are aware that due to shortage of passenger coaches, great deal of hardship is caused to passengers at present;

(d) the number of new coaches under construction in various Railway workshops and the time when they are likely to be placed on the rails for the use of passengers;

(e) the number of coaches belonging to each Railway which have been returned to the Railway authorities by the Military after war upto the end of July 1947, and whether all the coaches so returned were in the same perfect order as on the date when they were requisitioned; and

(f) if not, the steps that Government have taken to recover the damages?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: (a) 524 Broad Gauge coaches are still with the Ministry of Defence. This figure includes some stock belonging to the former N. W. and B. A. Railways.

No wagons are on loan to that Ministry.

(b) All the Broad Gauge Indian Government Railways have lent stock to the Ministry of Defence.

It is not possible to state with any certainty when all these coaches will be returned to the owning Railways. The Ministry of Defence are endeavouring to release these coaches as early as possible.

(c) Yes.

(d) 134 Broad Gauge and 97 Meter Gauge coaches are under construction in Indian Government Railways' Workshops for Indian Railways. These are expected to be put into traffic before the end of 1948. There are, in addition, about 300 Broad Gauge coaches expected from indigenous industry by the same time.

(e) The Ministry of Defence have released 977 of the 1,458 coaches placed at their disposal during the war. Information relating to the number of coaches returned to individual Railways is not readily available.

Few of the coaches returned by the Ministry of Defence showed undue deterioration having regard to wear and tear consequent on intensive use.

(f) Appropriate debits are raised against the Ministry of Defence for damages or deficiencies in the stock returned.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: Out of these 524 coaches which are still with the military authorities, may I know how many of these are for the transport of British troops to be removed from India or whether these are for some other military purpose?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: It is for troop movements of all kinds.

Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena: Has the Government made any estimate of the total number of coaches they will require to accommodate passengers comfortably and what arrangements they are making for them?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: It is very difficult to give an answer to this question, but we have got a very large number of coaches on order. I have given only the number of coaches in respect of which I expect deliveries within a short period. The whole question boils down to this. If we are in a position to get fabricating and manufacturing capacity in the country to deal with all the orders that we are prepared to place, we should certainly put in for a larger number. We are limited by this consideration.

Seth Govinddas: May I know how many coaches the military authorities have returned to the railways since the last three months?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: During the last three months I regret to say the position in that respect has deteriorated because, as Honourable Members are aware, we have had emergency conditions to face which required more movements of troops than before and therefore the rate at which the Defence Ministry has been releasing these coaches has slowed down. I think they are at present making further efforts to release.

Shri Raj Krishna Bose: Will the Honourable Minister please state with reference to answer to question (b) which of the workshops are engaged in the new constructions?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: They are distributed over all Indian Railways.

(b) WRITTEN ANSWERS

INSTALLATION OF LIGHTS IN RAILWAY CARRIAGES

147. *Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: Will the Honourable Minister of Railways please state:

(a) whether Government are aware that several of the lower and upper class passenger coaches on Railways are run without any light;

(b) if so, the reasons therefor and why no steps have been taken so far to instal lights in all carriages;

(c) whether Government are aware that public have made representations to various Railways in regard to this matter;

(d) if so, the steps Government intend to take to instal lights; and

(e) whether Government have any plan to overhaul several carriages, fittings of which are either missing or not working?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: (a) Government understand that every compartment is provided with one light as a minimum.

(b) and (d). Government are informed that occasional absence of any light in a compartment is due usually to vandalism or theft. The importance of ensuring that compartments are adequately illuminated is fully realised by railways, and there are indications that improvements are being effected in this respect. Unfortunately, wastage from theft and vandalism continues to impose a heavy demand, particularly as the supply position is not yet normal. The total bulb requirements of Indian Government Railways for 1946 had been met to the extent of only 89 per cent. by the middle of June, 1947.

(c) Yes. Members of the public have represented to railways the absence or inadequacy of lighting in compartments.

(e) Carriages are periodically overhauled on all railways, and when coaches leave the shops, they are reasonably well equipped, but sometimes within a few weeks they are found stripped of essential fittings. Difficulty in obtaining parts makes the replacement of these items a continuous struggle.

TRANSPORT SERVICE IN NEW DELHI AND OLD DELHI

148. *Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: Will the Honourable Minister of Transport please state:

(a) whether it is the intention of Government to purchase the G. N. I. T. Companys' bus service and the Tramways now plying in Old and New Delhi;

(b) if the answer to part (a) be in the negative, whether Government propose to take steps to see that the number of buses and trams are increased to meet the demand of the population of these two areas;

(c) whether Government have given monopoly to the present Companies, if so, the period of its expiry; and

(d) whether Government have received applications from any transport concern to run additional transport service in New Delhi and Old Delhi; if not, whether Government propose to consider such an application?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: (a) The matter is under consideration at present.

(b) Does not arise.

(c) No monopoly has been given to the G. N. I. T. Company. Majority of the permits for various routes, held by that company are temporary.

As regards Tramways, the Delhi Central Electric Power Authority is running the tramways by virtue of the terms of their electric licence granted under the Indian Electricity Act, 1910.

(d) Answer to both the parts of the question is in the negative.

GOVERNMENT METALLURGICAL INSPECTORATE

149. *Shri Dabi Prosad Khaitan: Will the Honourable Minister of Industry and Supply be pleased to state:

(a) whether there is, in important cities and centres of steel production, a Government examining and testing body called either the Government Metallurgical Inspectorate or by any other name;

(b) whether the said Inspectorate charge certain fees for inspection;

(c) what is the annual amount of fees, received by the Government Metallurgical Inspectorate and their annual expenditure; and

(d) whether there is any surplus over expenditure; if so, where it is credited?

The Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee: (a) Yes, the Government Metallurgical Inspectorate of the Directorate General of Industry and Supply.

(b) Yes.

(c) The annual amount of fees for the two financial years 1945-46 and 1946-47 are given below:—

1945-46	...	Rs. 12,54,099
1946-47	...	Rs. 6,26,919

It is difficult to give corresponding figures of expenditure as besides recurring expenditure pertaining to the Inspectorate, there is other expenditure of a general or non-recurring nature which has either to be averaged out over a period of years or to be distributed among various sections of the Inspection Wing of the Directorate General.

(d) For the reasons given under (c) above, it cannot be stated whether there is any surplus of fees earned over expenditure.

MANUFACTURE OF TELEPHONE PARTS IN INDIA

150. *Shri Debi Prasad Khaitan: Will the Honourable Minister of Communications be pleased to state:

(a) what parts of telephones used in India are manufactured in India and where;

(b) what is the difficulty in manufacturing in India those parts which are at present imported from abroad;

(c) what steps are being taken to manufacture in India the parts now imported from abroad; and

(d) whether Government could give some idea as to the period in which manufacture of the parts mentioned in part (b) above will be undertaken in India?

The Honourable Mr. Rafi Ahmad Kidwai: (a) I presume that the question refers both to telephone exchange equipment and to subscribers' telephone apparatus. The following equipment and apparatus is manufactured in India at Indian Posts and Telegraphs Department Workshops at Jubbulpore, Calcutta and Bombay:—

(i) Manual exchange equipment, and

(ii) all parts, except dials and inset transmitters, of subscribers' telephone apparatus.

(b) The technique of manufacture of certain vital parts is a monopoly of certain foreign firms from whom patent rights must be acquired and technical and other assistance sought if manufacture is to be established in India.

(c) With the formation of the National Government, this question has been receiving the active consideration and has also been discussed with some of the leading industrialists in India who have taken some initiative in this respect.

(d) If the negotiations prove successful, it is expected that the manufacture of the parts mentioned in part (b) will be started within three years.

MANUFACTURE OF TELEGRAPHIC EQUIPMENT IN INDIA

151. *Shri Debi Prasad Khaitan: Will the Honourable Minister of Communications be pleased to state:

(a) what parts of telegraphic equipment required in India are manufactured within the country;

(b) how much telegraphic equipment has to be imported; and

(c) the steps which are being taken for manufacturing within the country all such telegraphic equipment as has to be imported from abroad at present?

The Honourable Mr. Rafi Ahmad Kidwai: (a) The principal items of telegraph equipment manufactured in India are Baudot equipment, Morse sounders and keys. A large variety of small miscellaneous telegraph stores such as Switches, Irrestor and Heat Coil Strips, bells, Fuse Strips, Lightning Dischargers, Galvanometers, Cords and Plugs, Resistances are also manufactured.

(b) About 70 lakhs worth within the next five years.

(c) The question of making India self-sufficient in the matter of telegraph equipment will receive attention shortly.

PRODUCTION OF CONSUMER'S GOODS IN INDIA

152. *Shri Debi Prasad Khaitan: (a) Will the Honourable the Minister of Industry and Supply be pleased to state what are the general causes for reduced production or production not being increased of consumer's goods in the country?

(b) What steps are being taken by Government to obtain the maximum production of consumer goods to meet the needs of the country?

The Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee: (a) The recent decline in the production of consumer as of other foods, and the inability to create new capacity are principally due to un-settled labour conditions, civil disturbances in certain parts of the country, and shortages of transport to meet the present enlarged demands of the country, of coal and of certain essential raw materials.

(b) The aforesaid causes themselves suggest the remedial action necessary. New transport facilities must be created, existing ones must be geared up to maximum effort and an era of co-operation between labour and employers must be ushered. Government are giving earnest consideration to all these questions. Communal disturbances seem now happily to be receding to the background. Shortages of certain raw materials, mainly of imported origin, are inevitable owing to world shortages but Government are examining the possibility of utilising available supplies to maximum advantage by a rationalisation of production, wherever possible.

PRODUCTION OF CEMENT IN INDIA

153. *Shri Debi Prasad Khaitan: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Industry and Supply be pleased to state what is the present annual production of cement in India, and what is the estimated production of cement in 1947?

(b) What is the maximum annual production capacity of the present factories?

(c) Is it a fact that cement is not available in the market due to transport difficulty, and production is not being increased for the same reason?

(d) What steps are being taken by Government to have the maximum production?

The Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee: (a) The production of cement during 1946 in factories in the Indian Union was 15,42,326 tons. The production in these factories for the nine months ending 30th September, 1947 has been 10,29,812 tons. The estimated production for 1947 will, on this basis, be about 13,75,000 tons.

(b) 20,75,000 tons.

(c) Yes, Sir. Production has also been affected by inadequate supplies of coal and by labour troubles.

(d) In April of this year arrangements were made with the railway authorities to provide better transport facilities to cement factories. The cement industry was also asked to apply its organization to the study of transport conditions in the various Provinces and States and to closer co-ordination with the Railways. The cement industry responded well to the Government's request, and had it not been for their co-operation and the help rendered by the Railway authorities conditions would have been worse than they are now. These efforts, however, have been seriously impaired by the recent disturbances.

154. *Shri Dip Narayan Sinha: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Railways be pleased to state whether it is a fact that foot-passengers crossing Sonepur Bridge on the Oudh Tirhut Railway have to pay a toll?

(b) If so, what is the amount of toll which the passengers have to pay?

(c) Are Government aware that the Sonepur Bridge connects the rural parts of Tirhut and generally Kisans cross over the Bridge?

(d) Do Government propose to abolish the toll? If not, why not?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: (a) Yes.

(b) The toll is—

(i) Adult passengers 0-1-0 per trip.

(ii) Children under 12 years 0-0-6 per trip.

(c) Yes.

(d) Under the India (Provincial Constitution) Order, 1947 the responsibility for roads including footway over bridges is that of the Provincial Government, and "tolls" are also source of Provincial Revenue. The toll collected from this bridge is in lieu of the maintenance charges which the Provincial Government would otherwise have to pay, and was levied with the concurrence of the Bihar Government. If that Government decides to meet the maintenance expenditure from the Provincial Revenues the Central Government will have no objection to its abolition.

PROVISION OF LADIES' WAITING ROOM AND WATER AT HAJIPUR STATION

155. *Shri Dip Narayan Sinha: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Railways be pleased to state whether Government are aware that Hajipur is an important Junction Station on the Oudh Tirhut Railway, where passengers have generally to wait for about three hours for change of trains?

(b) Are Government aware that there is no waiting room for high class female passengers?

(c) Do Government propose to construct a waiting room for high class female passengers there?

(d) Are Government aware that there is no adequate arrangement for water supply at the Hajipur Station?

(e) If so, do Government propose to provide a few tube wells there for the present to increase the water supply?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: (a) Hajipur is an important station but not an important junction. Passengers generally do not have to wait for about three hours for change of trains. Passengers normally change trains at Sonapore, the station next to Hajipur.

(b) Government are aware that there is no upper class waiting room for ladies at Hajipur.

(c) Yes. Separate upper and inter class waiting rooms for ladies are to be constructed at Hajipur in 1949-50.

(d) Government are aware that existing arrangements are not altogether adequate, but watermen are constantly on duty to supply water to passengers.

(e) Orders have been issued to sink 3 tube-wells and on the platform one has already been sunk.

LATE DELIVERY OF POSTAL LETTERS AND TELEGRAMS

156. *Shri Gopal Narain: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Communications please state if it is a fact that postal letters and telegrams reach their destination very late?

(b) If so, what are the reasons therefor?

The Honourable Mr. Rafi Ahmad Kidwai: (a) There has been some deterioration in the Post and Telegraph services.

(b) The reasons for this are briefly as follows:—

(1) There is at present a large number of temporary employees some of whom do not even possess the minimum prescribed educational qualifications. These employees were recruited during the war when there was acute shortage of qualified men and the normal rules of recruitment had to be relaxed. It was not possible to give them adequate training prior to employment on operational duties owing to considerable increase in the volume of Post and Telegraph traffic and pressure of work. The work in some branches of the Posts and Telegraphs being of a specialized character, it takes a new entrant in those branches three or four years to acquire the necessary knowledge and experience. The inexperience of these temporary men has contributed largely to postal delays and missendings. Some of these temporary men are to be replaced by war service candidates, for whom Government have reserved 70 per cent. of the vacancies occurring between 29th June 1942 and 31st December 1945. Only about half of the reserved vacancies have so far been filled and it is expected that the balance will be filled by war service candidates within the next six months. The delay in recruiting war service candidates has been primarily due to the slow organisation of the Employment Exchanges.

(2) There has been a shortage of accommodation both for offices and residential purposes as also for mails in running trains, and it has been most difficult to secure adequate accommodation.

(3) The Indian Post and Telegraph Department have released nearly 9,000 employees who have opted for Pakistan. There has been considerable delay on account of disturbances in the arrival of staff from Pakistan who have opted for India, and even now many employees of the Department have not reported for duty. Further, employees coming from Pakistan are unfamiliar with the localities in which they are expected to serve. Postmen and telegraph messengers are not acquainted with the residents and beats of particular localities and sorters have to acquire familiarity with the new sorting lists. In the East Punjab Province and Delhi, the disturbances and floods leading to the suspension of train services and general dislocation of urban and rural life and certain difficulties experienced in maintaining telegraph lines have contributed to a large extent to the deterioration of the Postal and Telegraph services.

(4) Supervision has of late not been as effective as it should be. A concerted drive to improve matters has now been organised. A conference of Postmasters-General was convened recently and the decisions taken at this conference are being quickly implemented. Heads of Circles have been instructed to organise supervise visits to Post and Telegraph offices and check delivery and despatch of mails and telegrams and a Complaints Organisation has also been set up. It is hoped that as a result of the steps taken, there will be a marked improvement in the Post and Telegraph services within the next 2 or 3 months.

BRIDGE ACROSS CAUVERY RIVER AT PUGALUR

157. *Dr. V. Subrahmanyam: Will the Honourable Minister of Transport be pleased to state:

(a) whether it is a fact that plans and estimates have been prepared for constructing an entirely new bridge across Cauvery River at Pugalur in Trichinopoly District at a cost of over 20 lakhs of rupees;

(b) whether Government are aware that there is at present no regular river-crossing at Pugalur and the prospect of new traffic therein is not likely to be over 200 tons per day;

(c) whether Government are aware that the existing bridges across the Cauvery at Trichinopoly and across Vaigai at Madura (Madras Province), both on National Highways, are quite inadequate to tackle the very large volume of traffic thereon, viz., over 5,000 and 10,000 tons per day respectively; and

(d) whether it is a fact that high priority has been given to Pugalur Bridge and a low priority to the construction of an additional bridge at Trichinopoly, if so, why?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: (a) Yes, but proposals are still under consideration.

(b) So far as Government are aware, there is a ferry crossing near Pugalur at present. No information is readily available regarding the volume of traffic likely to use the proposed bridge.

(c) Government are aware that the bridges named are inadequate to meet the needs of traffic. The exact volume of the traffic is not known.

(d) The Government of India are awaiting the Provincial Government's proposals concerning the priorities they would like to be given to road works and bridge works on National Highways in Madras which reference to the resources available with the Provincial Government administrative convenience and other factors. After their proposals convenience and other factors. After their proposals have been received and considered by the Government of India, a decision will be arrived at regarding the relative priorities to be given to the three bridges in question.

MAINTENANCE OF NATIONAL HIGHWAYS

158. *Dr. V. Subrahmanyam: Will the Honourable Minister of Transport be pleased to state:

(a) whether Government are aware that ever since the Government of India resolved to maintain certain roads described as 'National Highways', the condition of such roads is steadily deteriorating;

(b) if the answer to part (a) above be in the affirmative, their causes;

(c) whether Government are aware that the cost of materials and labour for road construction have gone up by 200 per cent. in rural areas and 300 per cent. in urban areas over pre-war levels;

(d) whether Government are aware that the speed and weight of vehicles using all highways have increased appreciably in the last 10 years, resulting in excessive wear and tear to road surfaces and that the traffic intensities on highways have increased by 200 to 300 per cent. in rural areas and 300 to 400 per cent. in urban areas over pre-war figures; and

(e) if so, whether Government propose to take into consideration the facts enumerated above in allotting grants for the maintenance of Highways?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: (a) No.

(b) Does not arise.

(c) Government are well aware that the cost of labour and materials has increased considerably since 1939 and that the percentage rate of increase has been different in different localities.

(d) Government are aware that there has been generally speaking development in road vehicle design and increased traffic on and wear of roads in recent years. It is, however, not possible to assess these changes in the form of percentages.

(e) Government have taken all relevant factors into account and have made necessary provision in their Budget for the proper maintenance of National Highways.

GRANTS FOR MAINTENANCE OF NATIONAL HIGHWAYS

159. *Dr. V. Subrahmanyam: Will the Honourable Minister of Transport be pleased to state:

(a) whether Government are aware that portions of National Highways passing through big Municipalities are in a grave state of disrepair;

(b) whether Government are further aware that this is due to the Government of India refusing to accept responsibility for maintaining these portions and withholding allotments therefor;

(c) whether Government propose to take up this question and make suitable allotments in order that maintenance works may go on as usual without interruption; and

(d) whether Government propose to declare their policy in the matter of cement concreting the surfaces of National Highways in reaches where the traffic intensity is over 1,000 tons per day predominantly iron-tired?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: (a) The main roads passing through some urban areas may be in the condition described but no road passing through a large town or city is at present included in the National Highway system.

(b) The responsibility for the proper maintenance of any road lies with the Authority in whom the road vests: deterioration in the condition of any such road cannot be ascribed to the fact that the road is not being maintained by some other authority.

(c) The Provincial Governments were informed more than eighteen months ago that it was not proposed to include urban roads in the National Highway system. Urban areas would generally be by-passed. While I am prepared to re-examine this policy, I would observe that the provinces have been relieved of considerable financial liability for roads in that the Centre has already taken over responsibility for several thousands of miles of National Highways; and for this reason greater resources than would otherwise be the case are now available for roads not taken over by the Centre.

(d) The policy of the Central Government in the matter referred to in this part of the question is to provide road crusts, as far as funds will permit, to suit the traffic the road will be called upon to carry.

PERMISSION TO MADRAS GOVERNMENT TO RAISE PRICE OF PADDY

160. *Shri O. V. Alagesan: Will the Honourable Minister of Food be pleased to state:

(a) whether it is a fact that the Government of Madras made repeated representations and appeals to the Government of India to permit them to raise the price of paddy;

(b) whether it is a fact that they were invariably turned down;

(c) whether Government are aware that the present prices are such as to hamper the production of more food crops and the progress of the "Grow More Food Campaign";

(d) whether it is a fact that the Provincial Governments of the United Provinces and Bihar were permitted to raise the prices of food grains and sugar-cane to meet the increased cost of cultivation; and

(e) if the answers to (b), (c) and (d) above are in the affirmative, whether Government propose to reconsider their position and permit the Government of Madras to raise the prices of paddy in view of the fact that the cost of cultivation has doubled and even trebled in many places?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: (a) and (b). Yes Sir.

(c) Representations to this effect were received by the Government of India.

(d) As far as foodgrains are concerned the reply is in the negative. Regarding sugarcane it is in the affirmative.

(e) The matter is under consideration of the Government of India.

'GROW MORE FOOD CAMPAIGN' BY THE RAILWAY ADMINISTRATION

161. Shri O. V. Alagesan: Will the Honourable Minister of Railways be pleased to state:

(a) whether it is a fact that the various Railway Administrations were asked to grow food crops in all cultivable lands in their possession;

(b) if so, what steps have been taken by the Railway Administrations in accordance with those instructions; and

(c) how much was produced and at what cost?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: (a) The Railway Board have instructed the various Railway Administrations to take necessary steps to bring under cultivation all suitable land by encouraging Railway staff to grow vegetables and seasonal fruits on small plots and to arrange the leasing of other arable land for the production of food crops through the respective Provincial Governments.

(b) The Railway Administrations have given assurances that all possible steps are being taken by them in accordance with these instructions.

(c) Leasing of surplus land is within the competence of the various Railway Administrations and the Government have no detailed information on the extra quantities of crops thus produced and the cost involved.

RAIL ROAD BRIDGE OVER GANGA IN PATNA

162. Shri Phulan Prasad Varma: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Railways be pleased to state whether it is a fact that Government have abandoned the plan to build a rail-road bridge over the Ganga in Patna?

(b) If so, what are the reasons therefor?

(c) Are Government aware that the public in Bihar as well as the Provincial Government are strongly of opinion that the bridge should be built over the Ganga in Patna rather than at any other place?

(d) If the answer to part (c) above be in the affirmative, why have Government decided to ignore the public opinion as well as the opinion of the Provincial Government in this matter?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: (a) No, the matter is still under consideration.

(b) Does not arise.

(c) Yes.

(d) The matter is still under consideration as stated under (a) above.

EFFECT OF PARTITION BETWEEN INDIA AND PAKISTAN ON RAILWAY

163. Shri K. Santhanam: Will the Honourable Minister of Railways be pleased to state:

(a) the total railway mileage in India after the separation of Pakistan; and

(b) the respective shares of India and Pakistan of (i) broad-gauge and metre-gauge locomotives, (ii) passenger coaches, (iii) wagons, and (iv) the railway stores?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: (a) The total route mileage in India after the separation of Pakistan is 24,565 miles.

(b) The award of the boundary Commission has necessitated re-calculation of the respective shares of India and Pakistan of Locomotives, Carriage and Wagon stock and other stores. This re-calculation is in hand and the information will be laid on the table in due course.

LOSS OF RAILWAY REVENUES DUE TO PUNJAB DISTURBANCES

164. Shri K. Santhanam: Will the Honourable Minister of Railways be pleased to state:

(a) the estimated loss of railway revenue due to communal disturbances in the Punjab;

(b) the number of refugees who have been carried by train to and from Pakistan between August 15 and October 31, 1947; and

(c) whether the expenses incurred in the running of refugee trains are debited to the railway expenditure or to the account of the Government of India?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: (a) Rs. 2,33,37,000 for the period 15th August 1947 to 31st October 1947.

(b) The movement of refugees by rail started from the 27th August 1947. Between that date and 31st October, a total number of 12,56,000 refugees were carried between Pakistan and India in trains which actually crossed the border. In addition, 8,83,000 refugees were transported in trains within India, the majority of whom were either non-Muslims who had crossed the border into India on foot or Muslims who subsequently crossed the border into Pakistan, also on foot.

(c) To the General Revenues of the Government of India.

FOOD RATIONING IN INDIA

165. Shri K. Santhanam: Will the Honourable Minister of Food be pleased to state:

(a) the number of persons in India under food rationing on October 31, 1947:

(b) the number of persons in India estimated to be under semi-rationing on the same date; and

(c) the quantities of wheat, rice and millets supplied for: (a) areas under full rationing, and (b) areas under semi-rationing?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: (a) and (b). The total number of persons under rationing of all kinds is 148 million. Of these 54 million are under full rationing and depend for their total requirements on Government ration shops. The balance 94 million consists of three categories of consumers;

(1) nonproducers including agricultural labour;

(2) partial producers, who produce only part of their requirements; and

(3) surplus producers, whose produce is equal to or in excess of their requirements.

The third category is included under "rationed population" (i) in areas where individual assessment of surpluses is made and arrangements exist for ensuring that the surplus left after calculating their requirement on a specified ration basis is collected by a Government agency and (ii) in areas where assessment is on a group or area basis and such surpluses are taken into account in calculating the overall deficit of the group or area concerned.

(c) The average weekly offtake of the 54 million people fully rationed is 94,000 tons. The offtake of the rest varies at different times of the year. Variations are considerable. The offtake from Government shops of this class of population has been 2,614,000 tons during the year ending September, 1947.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF FOOD-GRAINS COMMITTEE

166. *Shri K. Santhanam: Will the Honourable Minister of Food be pleased to state:

(a) whether the last Foodgrains Committee have submitted their recommendations; and

(b) if so, whether Government have come to any decision thereon?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: (a) A Summary only of the interim recommendations has been received.

(b) The matter is still under consideration.

RESUMPTION OF RAILWAY SERVICE BETWEEN MORAPURI AND HOSUR

167. *Prof. N. G. Ranga: Will the Honourable Minister of Railways be pleased to state:

(a) whether the Government of Madras have recommended the resumption of the Railway service between Morapuri and Hosur in Salem District, after this question was raised in the Assembly in March last; and

(b) if so, whether the Government of India have considered this question and if so, with what results?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: (a) Yes.

(b) The Government of India have given due consideration to the question, but in view of the line having been unremunerative throughout its existence, they do not find sufficient justification for its restoration.

MANUFACTURE OF NEW MODEL THIRD CLASS CARRIAGES

168. *Prof. N. G. Ranga: Will the Honourable Minister of Railways be pleased to state:

(a) whether any efforts are being made to manufacture new model 3rd class carriages;

(b) if so, in what work-shops;

(c) how many of them have been so far put on the line and on what Railways; and

(d) for how many orders have been given?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: (a) Prof. Ranga is presumably referring to the new third class coaches exhibited on the 'Silver Arrow' train. The manufacture of the new design of 11 feet 8 inches wide coaches has not yet started as there still remains a considerable amount of design work to be finalized in the building of these coach bodies.

The 'Silver Arrow' exhibition train served the useful purposes of eliciting public reaction in regard to the various layouts. The coach bodies of the 'Silver Arrow' train were mounted on present standard underframes which involve unnecessary weight. The new design eliminates the use of underframes. Prototypes will be manufactured by indigenous firms and it is anticipated that they will be ready for testing in August 1948. After the tests have been completed and designs finalized, the Railway Ministry will place bulk orders for the new design carriages on indigenous firms.

(b) Does not arise.

(c) Does not arise.

(d) Does not arise.

LACK OF ADEQUATE TRANSPORT FOR COAL

169. *Prof. N. G. Ranga: Will the Honourable Minister of Industry and Supply be pleased to state:

(a) whether the Mine owners are complaining of over-production of coal and its non-transport to the consuming centres owing to transport bottleneck;

(b) whether any immediate steps are taken by Government to remove this bottleneck, and if so, with what results; and

(c) by what date Government expect to cope with this serious situation of coal shortage in consuming centres and over-production at the mines?

The Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee: (a) Complaints have been received from collieries in the Bengal-Bihar coalfields about the shortage of rail transport for lifting current production. In this sense only, but not in relation to the coal requirements of the country, there is at present a state of over-production in the coal industry.

(b) Every effort is being made to step up despatches from the Bengal-Bihar coalfields. Loading from the 1st November are showing a gradual improvement over the average for the preceding three months. Possibilities of coal transport by-road and river are also being considered.

(c) It is difficult to make predictions in this matter but the problems raised by the temporary over-production of coal are now under Government's examination.

CONSTITUTION OF NATIONAL COMMITTEE FOR F. A. O.

170. *Prof. N. G. Ranga: Will the Honourable Minister of Agriculture be pleased to state:

(a) why the National Committee for F. A. O. has not so far been constituted;

(b) whether the F. A. O. has sent any reminders about it and if so, when.

(c) when the Committee will be constituted; and

(d) whether Government intend inviting World F. A. O. to hold a Regional Conference in India in the same way as the I. L. O. is holding its own?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: (a) It has not yet been possible to set up this committee in view of the Constitutional changes. The proposal to form one is now under active consideration.

(b) Yes. A reminder was received in July 1947.

(c) The Committee will be constituted shortly.

(d) The F. A. O. are considering the question of setting up regional offices. After such an office for Asia is set up the question of holding a regional conference in India will be considered.

STATE INSURANCE OF CROP AND CATTLE

171. *Prof. N. G. Ranga: Will the Honourable Minister of Agriculture be pleased to state:

(a) whether Government have given any consideration to the resolution passed by the Assembly in April last in favour of the State Organising Crop and Cattle insurances and to the promise made by the Honourable Minister to get the feasibility of the schemes examined by an expert;

(b) if the answer to part (a) above be in the affirmative, what action has so far been taken by Government; and

(c) whether Government propose to get the schemes studied, which have so far been developed in Canada, Denmark, and certain states of America?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: (a) Yes.

(b) The matter has been examined in consultation with experts, and the Government of India have under consideration the appointment of an Officer on Special Duty for having a pilot scheme prepared for trying it out in certain selected areas.

(c) Yes.

DETERIORATION OF MANAGEMENT OF O. T. AND E. I. RAILWAYS

172. *Shri Jagat Narain Lal: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Railways be pleased to state whether Government are aware that the management of the Oudh and Tirhut Railway has deteriorated since they took charge of it and that frequent complaints have appeared in the press and were also expressed in the Bihar Legislative Assembly?

(b) Are Government aware of the growing deterioration in the management of the East Indian Railway as well?

(c) If the answers to parts (a) and (b) above are in the affirmative, what steps are Government taking to improve the management of both the Railways?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: (a) Government have been concerned for some time with the inadequacy of public service provided by the O. T. Railway and are aware of many of the complaints made in the press and in the Bihar Legislature, in this connection.

(b) General conditions in the country have resulted in the E. I. Railway, as well as most others, also deteriorating in operating efficiency.

(c) The improvement of service to the public on Government railways is closely connected with problems of general administration, the labour situation, output from workshops, and procurement of essential stores, and Government are taking all possible steps, including an appeal to the All-India Railwaymen's Federation to assist in every way in the economic interest of the country to improve railway services.

LIST OF RAILWAY CATERERS ON E. I., O. T. AND B. N. RAILWAYS

173. *Shri Jagat Narain Lal: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Railways be pleased to state the number and names of Railway Caterers on East Indian Railway, Oudh and Tirhut Railway and Bengal Nagpur Railway?

(b) Do Government propose to take steps to appoint more and better types of caterers and see that catering is satisfactorily carried on?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: (a) A statement furnishing the number and names of railway caterers employed by the East Indian, Oudh Tirhut and Bengal Nagpur Railways is laid on the table of the House.

(b) Existing catering arrangements are, on the whole, considered satisfactory having regard to the difficult food position. Additional caterers are not required by the East Indian and Bengal Nagpur Railways, but in this respect the position on the Oudh Tirhut Railway is still under examination.

Catering arrangements are under constant review by railways who are empowered to terminate existing contracts where this course is justified by substantiated complaints.

VALUE OF EXPORTED AND IMPORTED FOOD-GRAINS

174. *Shri B. A. Mandloi: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Food be pleased to state the total quantity of import of food grains and its total value in the years 1945-46 and 1946-47?

(b) Have any food grains been exported to any country outside India?

(c) If so, what is the total quantity and value of exported food grain in the years 1945-46, 1946-47?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: (a) During 1945-46, 9 lakhs and 31 thousand tons of foodgrains of the total value of 26 crores of rupees, were imported. During 1946-47, 26 lakhs and 58 thousand tons of foodgrains of the total value of 88 crores and 70 lakhs of rupees, were imported.

(b) Yes.

(c) During 1945-46, 76 thousand tons of the total value of 2 crores and 74 lakhs of rupees, were exported. This included 43 thousand tons of the total value of 1 crore and 73 lakhs of rupees, exported to Ceylon during a temporary emergency, the whole of which was subsequently made good by imports. During 1946-47, exports were completely stopped, but small quantities were allowed to go out of the country, in order to provide supplies for Indian seamen of the Merchant Navy in Indian Ocean Ports, for Indian personnel along the Air Line Routes, and for Indian Pilgrims going to the Hedjaz. The total quantity involved was about 600 tons of the value of 41 thousand rupees.

PAUCITY OF SALT IN PROVINCES

175. *Shri B. A. Mandloi: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Industry and Supply be pleased to state the reasons for the great paucity of salt in a number of Provinces and for the price of salt having gone high in spite of the abolition of the salt tax?

(b) What steps have Government taken to increase the production of salt within the last two years so that it may be had in sufficient quantity and at cheap rates?

The Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee: (a) The reasons for the paucity of salt in certain Provinces are:

East Punjab	Stoppage of supplies from Khewra.
U. P.	Stoppage of supplies from Khewra and transport difficulties due to shortage of wagons and locos.
Bihar	Stoppage of supplies from Khewra and insufficiency of imports due to shipping difficulties.
South C. P. and Bombay	Failure of Bombay factories this year due to cyclones, unseasonal rains, labour and communal troubles.

The price of salt has gone high in these areas owing to the shortage in supplies.

(b) To increase production of salt, the Government deputed an expert officer in June, 1946 to study the whole question of the salt-supply and demand in India and suggest the changes in the administrative machinery necessary to make India self-sufficient, to improve the quality of Indian salt and to lower its price. A complete survey of salt production, consumption, distribution, quality, imports and prices has been undertaken and a necessity for fostering and directing the salt industry having been established, the outlines of the methods of control have been drawn up. A committee of experts is being set up to advise on the potentialities for development of various sources, and the schemes of development which may be undertaken there as well as to recommend sites where new factories should be established.

The main sources of production in India are at Sambhar Lake and in Bombay and Madras. The factories at Sambhar are managed by Government. As a result of certain new schemes undertaken in Rajputana like utilisation of waste brine from the East Lake and of subterranean brine, production in these sources has been raised during this year from one crore and eight lakh maunds to one crore and forty lakh maunds. Similarly in Madras action taken to encourage production by private manufacturers has resulted in stepping up production from the average of 1 crore 33 lakhs maunds to 1 crore 65 lakh maunds.

PROVISION OF COLD STORAGE WAGONS ON B. N. RAILWAY

176. *Shri Lakshminarayan Sahu: Will the Honourable Minister of Railways be pleased to state:

(a) whether it is a fact that the East Indian Railway has provided cold storage wagons for fish transport; and

(b) if so, whether Government propose to provide cold storage wagons in the Bengal Nagpur Railway also?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: (a) No.

(b) There is no immediate proposal for the provision of cold storage wagons on the B. N. Railway. The whole question of refrigerated rail transport is, however, under active examination.

ORIYAS IN HIGHER SERVICE ON B. N. RAILWAY

177. *Shri Lakshminarayan Sahu: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Railways be pleased to state the number of Oriyas in the higher services of the Bengal Nagpur Railway?

(b) What is the total number of Station Masters in the Bengal Nagpur Railway giving separately the number according to different nationalities?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: (a) As particulars of staff according to their provincial or linguistic denominations are not recorded it is not possible to give the exact number of Oriyas employed in higher appointments on the Bengal Nagpur Railway, but it is understood that the figure is in the neighbourhood of 10. I would, however, state that promotions to higher posts on Railways are made on considerations other than the Province of origin.

(b) There are 540 posts of Station Masters on the Bengal Nagpur Railway.

By 'nationalities' the Honourable Member is presumably referring to linguistic or provincial groups. As has been stated in my reply to part (a), particulars of staff according to their linguistic or provincial denominations have not been recorded, and it is not therefore possible readily to furnish the information asked for in the latter part of the question.

SOURCES FOR MANUFACTURE OF SALT IN INDIA

178. *Shri B. A. Mandloi: Will the Honourable Minister of Industry and Supply be pleased to state:

(a) the sources and the places at which salt is manufactured in India;

(b) the total quantity of salt manufactured or prepared in India from all the sources, in the years 1945-46 and 1946-47;

(c) whether any salt was imported in India during the said two years;

(d) if so, what was the quantity of salt imported in the years 1945-46 and 1946-47;

(e) whether any salt was exported outside India in the above two years;

(f) whether the salt produced or manufactured in India is sufficient to meet the ordinary needs of the people; and

(g) the loss caused to Government on account of the abolition of the salt tax?

The Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee: (a) The sources and the places at which salt is manufactured in the Indian dominion are—

(i) Sambhar Lake, Pachbadra and Didwana in Rajputana.

These sources are Government managed.

(ii) Kharagoda in the run of Cutch which is also a Government managed source.

(iii) Nearly 400 privately worked factories within a radius of 40 miles of the city of Bombay.

(iv) 52 privately worked factories strung along the east coast from Tuticorin to Naupada.

(v) Two private factories in Ganjam district in Orissa.

(b) The total quantity of salt manufactured in the Indian Dominion and Pakistan from all sources, in the year 1945-46, was 5 crore 46 lakhs maunds and in the year 1946-47, 4 crore 92 lakhs maunds. The quantity manufactured in Pakistan was about one crore maunds leaving 4 crore and 46 lakhs maunds as the share of the Indian dominion in 1945-46 and 3 crore 92 lakhs maunds in 1946-47. These figures do not include production in Kathiawar and Travancore.

326 CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY OF INDIA (LEGISLATIVE) [20TH NOV. 1947]

(c) Salt was imported into India including Pakistan during the said two years

(d) The quantities imported in the years 1945-46 and 1946-47 were 85 and 40 lakh maunds respectively.

(e) Salt was not exported outside India in any appreciable quantity during the above two years.

(f) No.

(g) About 9½ crores of rupees.

SUBSIDY TO THE PROVINCES TOWARDS THE COST OF FOODGRAINS

179. *Shri P. Govinda Menon: Will the Honourable Minister of Food be pleased to state:

(a) whether the Government of India are giving any subsidy to the Provinces towards the cost of the food grains supplied to them; if so, the amount of subsidy;

(b) whether any request has been received from the States to extend the above concession to them also; if so, what is the decision taken by the Government of India; and

(c) if the answer to part (b) above be in the negative, whether the Government of India propose to consider the question of giving such subsidy to the States who have acceded to the Indian Union?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: (a) Yes.

Rupees 20.59 crores were paid as subsidy during the period 1-4-46 to 31-3-47 and rupees 17.35 crores are estimated as likely to be paid during the period 1-4-47 to 31-12-47.

(b) and (c). The answer to the first part is in the affirmative. As regards the second part, the Government of India have not extended to the States the same concession as in the case of Provinces. They do not consider this to be appropriate as a general rule, having regard to the distinction between Provinces and States, in their relation to the Centre. But they have been and are prepared to consider cases of exceptional hardship individually on their merits. Assistance has been given in certain cases, where the losses sustained on sale of imported grains are so large and the financial resources so small as to make it impossible for the State concerned to incur such losses without assistance from the Centre.

RATIONING OF RICE IN COCHIN STATE

180. *Shri P. Govinda Menon: Will the Honourable Minister of Food be pleased to state:

(a) whether Government are aware that the staple food of the people of Cochin is rice only;

(b) whether Government are aware that Cochin is a deficit area in regard to her rice requirements;

(c) whether Government are aware that the present scale of ration in Cochin is very meagre, viz., 6 ozs. rice and 2 ozs. wheat per adult per day;

(d) whether the local procurement of paddy in Cochin has not attained a high standard of efficiency compared to the other Provinces and States; and

(e) whether Government propose to increase the quota of rice to the State to enable it to give a higher scale of ration?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: (a) No.

(b) Yes.

(c) Government of India are aware of the present scale of ration in Cochin.

(d) The procurement in Cochin is satisfactory.

(e) The Government of India have been allotting maximum possible quantities of rice to Cochin.

INCREASE IN SUGAR QUOTA OF COCHIN STATE

181. *Shri P. Govinda Menon: Will the Honourable Minister of Food be pleased to state:

(a) whether Government are aware that the people of Cochin are accustomed to use sugar on a larger scale than the other regions of South India;

(b) whether Government are aware that Mr. Kirby, Rationing Adviser, recommended a minimum quota of 9000 tons per year to Cochin;

(c) the total allotment of sugar quota to Cochin State; and

(d) whether Government propose to consider the question of an increased quota for the coming year?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: (a) No.

(b) Yes.

(c) 4,230 tons.

(d) The question will be considered keeping in view the available supplies and requirements of other areas.

FOOD POSITION IN INDIAN DOMINION

182. *Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Food be pleased to lay on the table of the House a detailed statement on the present food position on the Indian Dominion?

(b) What is the extent of deficit in the current year and how it is proposed to be met?

(c) What are the Provinces worst affected?

(d) Are Government aware of the alarming food scarcity in the newly formed province of West Bengal due to the exclusion from West Bengal, by Radcliffe award, of the non-Muslim majority district of Khulna and the non-Muslim majority areas of Jessore, Backerganj, Nadia and Dinajpur which are surplus cereal producing areas?

(e) Are Government aware that there has been a large influx of people into the West Bengal Province from East Bengal involving additional strain on the food resources of West Bengal?

(f) If so, what special allocation, if any, has been made by Government to meet the increased requirements of the Province of West Bengal?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: (a) and (b). Attention is invited to the memorandum on the Food Position circulated to the Members.

(c) The deficit Provinces are Madras, Bombay, East Punjab, West Bengal, Bihar and U.P.

(d) The Government of West Bengal have supplied to the Government of India figures relating to the foodgrains deficits of the Province of West Bengal.

(e) The figures referred to in (d) above take into account the over use in population as far as it can be assessed.

(f) Allocations are made monthly after taking into account the opening stocks, the estimated local procurement and the offtakes.

RESEARCH IN SCIENTIFIC AGRICULTURE

183. *Dr. P. S. Deshmukh: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Agriculture be pleased to state whether Government propose to intensify Research in Scientific Agriculture?

(b) If so, what steps do Government propose to take in the matter in the immediate future?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: (a) Yes.

(b) To intensify research in scientific agriculture, Government have already taken steps (i) to increase the supply of technical personnel trained in agricultural sciences by the grant of over-seas scholarships and other measures, and (ii) to increase the facilities available for the prosecution of agricultural research, and they have laid down an over-all policy for agricultural research and development.

IRRIGATION IN BERAR AND MARATHI CENTRAL PROVINCES

184. *Dr. P. S. Deshmukh: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Agriculture be pleased to state what possibilities there exist for the extension of irrigation in Berar and Marathi Central Provinces?

(b) Have any projects been considered? If so, with what results? If not, why not?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: (a) Possibilities for extension of irrigation facilities in Berar and the Central Provinces lie in the direction of extension of surface storage by means of tanks and reservoirs, flood irrigation, field embankments and river pumping schemes.

(b) There has been an increase of 1.6 lacs of acres in the irrigated area in the Central Provinces and Berar between 1938-39 and 1946-47. One project in Balaghat for irrigating 5,000 acres was sanctioned for which a subsidy of 5.5 lakhs was given by the Government of India. The work is nearing completion. Two other projects are being prepared by the Central Provinces and will be considered when received.

NEED OF AERODROMES AT AMRAOTI OR AKOLA IN BERAR

185. *Dr. P. S. Deshmukh: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Communications be pleased to state whether it is under contemplation to have an aerodrome either at Amraoti or Akola in Berar?

(b) Are Government aware that such an aerodrome is a great necessity?

(c) Do Government propose to examine the possibility and the necessity of connecting by air Khandwa and Indore with Amraoti, the capital of Berar?

(d) Are Government aware that there are great possibilities of organizing regular air service between Indore and Hyderabad via Amraoti?

The Honourable Mr. Rafi Ahmad Kidwai: (a) An aerodrome is being developed at Akola to the standard of a minor aerodrome. The Government of India do not propose to develop an aerodrome at Amraoti.

(b) Does not arise in view of the reply to (a).

(c) and (d) Government will explore the possibilities of these two routes. If enquiries show that there is likely to be sufficient traffic on these routes, the various Air Companies will be invited to submit applications for a licence to operate an air service on each route.

BRIDGE BETWEEN KHANDWA AND INDORE ON NERBUDDA RIVER

186. *Dr. P. S. Deshmukh: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Transport be pleased to state when a bridge between Khandwa and Indore on the Nerbudda river would be constructed?

STARRED QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(b) What are the difficulties in the way of re-opening the existing bridge under the railway line on the Nerbudda river between Khandwa and Indore?

(c) Are Government aware that want of facilities for crossing the river is holding up the development of northern Central Provinces and causing inconvenience to the people?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: (a) I am not in a position to say when the bridge referred to will be constructed as it does not lie on a National Highway. Under the Constitution it is for the Provincial and State Administrations concerned to move in the matter of providing a road bridge at this site.

(b) This proposal will be considered by me if the Administrations concerned move in the matter.

(c) I have no information on the subject. Constitutionally this is a matter of primary concern to the Central Provinces Government who must be aware of the facts.

BUILDING OF NATIONAL HIGHWAYS CONNECTING NAGPUR WITH BOMBAY

187. *Dr. P. S. Deshmukh: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Transport be pleased to state the steps to be taken for building the National Highways connecting Nagpur with Bombay on the National Highway standard?

(b) Have Government made any provision for this construction in the next budget? If so, what is the amount provided for this, and if not, do Government propose to make a provision for the same?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: (a) The road connecting Bombay and Nagpur has been included in the National Highway system. The executive agency for carrying out works on this road will ordinarily be the Provincial Governments' concern; and these Governments are expected to make proposals concerning the priority of the works to be executed on the road with reference to the resources available with them, administrative convenience, etc. So far no proposals for large scale improvements have been received.

(b) Government's proposals for the next budget (1948-49) have not yet been finalized, as a number of provinces, including Bombay and the Central Provinces and Berar, have not yet intimated what they will be able to spend with the resources available with them.

GRANT OF SUBSIDY FOR IMPORT OF GRAINS

188. *Shri Mohan Lal Saksena: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Food be pleased to state the quantity of food grains imported from abroad during the last three years and the total amount of subsidy given by Government in financing the operations?

(b) What was the amount of money spent during this period in financing the agriculturists in India with a view to inducing them to grow more food?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: A statement is placed on the table.

Statement giving particulars regarding the formation, working and present position of the Indian People's Famine Trust.

The Indian People's Famine Trust was created under the charitable Endowment Act of 1890 by an endowment of Rs. 15 lakhs donated by His Highness the Maharaja of Jaipur in 1900. The Maharaja while making this offer wished that the interest which would accrue on this amount might be utilised for the following purposes:—

1. In supplementing the subsistence ration of the Famine Codes by the addition of small comforts, whether of food or of clothing, for the aged or infirm, for patients in hospitals, for children and the like.
2. In providing for the maintenance of orphans.
3. In relieving pardah nashin women and persons in distressed circumstances who by social or caste conditions are debarred from applying for State relief and from submitting to the ordinary tests of distress prescribed in the Famine Codes.
4. In helping to re-establish impoverished agriculturists and others who have lost their entire capital in the period of distress, and thereby giving them a fresh start in life.

To manage this fund the Government of India constituted a Trust consisting of the following persons:—

- (a) Five persons appointed by the Governor-General-in-Council of whom three shall be in the executive Service of the Government.
- (b) Five persons appointed, respectively, by the local Governments of Madras, Bombay, Bengal, the North West Provinces and Oudh (now U. P.) and the Punjab.

- (d) One person appointed by His Highness the Maharaja of Jaipur for the time being.
- (e) Any persons becoming life-members by subscribing a sum not less than rupees 3 lakhs.

The Endowment Fund of the Trust as per report for the year 1946 amounted to Rs. 33,65,350-11-11, out of which Rs. 32,78,400 were invested in 3 per cent. conversion loan for 1946. The balance was with the Imperial Bank of India either in current account or fixed deposit. During the year 1946 a sum of Rs. one lakh to the Government of Madras and Rupees fifty thousand to the Government of Bengal were paid out of the Fund for flood and famine relief. The following are the names of the persons who were serving on the Board of Management of the Indian People's Trust till the 15th August 1947:—

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: (a) A statement is laid on the table giving the estimated consumption of potatoes in different provinces during 1936-37. These figures include quantities utilised for seed as well. The quantity retained for seed varies from province to province but for India as a whole the percentage of total production utilized for seed purposes comes to 16.1.

Similar figures for 1945-46 are not available owing to restrictions imposed by a number of Provincial Governments on the movement of potatoes.

(b) and (c) Statements are laid on the table giving the information required.

(d) No.

(e) Yes.

(f) No.

(g) The volume of imports is comparatively too small to have any appreciable effect on the price of potatoes produced in different parts of India. Further, having regard to the shortage of food in the country it would be inadvisable to take measures to discourage the imports of potatoes.

DAMAGE CAUSED TO CROPS IN EAST PUNJAB BY DISORDERS

197. *Seth Govinddas: Will the Honourable Minister of Food be pleased to state:

(a) the amount of damage caused to the Kharif crop and Rabi sowings on account of the large scale disorder and vast movements of population in the East Punjab; and

(b) the effect of this loss on the food situation in the country?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: (a) and (b) The disorder and large scale movements of population in East Punjab has inevitably caused substantial damage to the standing Kharif crops; the Rabi sowings are also expected to be below normal. The extent of damage and the shortfall cannot however be estimated at this stage.

SUPPLY OF FOODGRAINS BY THE PAKISTAN GOVERNMENT

198. *Seth Govinddas: Will the Honourable Minister of Food be pleased to state:

(a) whether the Government of Pakistan have carried out their export obligations to the Indian Union with regard to food grains under the existing Basic Plan;

(b) whether it is a fact that the surplus grain which the West Punjab usually supplied to the East Punjab and which was not included in the quota of the Basic Plan, is not being supplied now and the supplies have been restricted to the quota previously fixed for the areas excluding the East Punjab;

(c) the reduction that will thus be made in the export quotas meant for the rest of the country; and

(d) whether there is any likelihood of making good this reduction by concluding barter agreements with the Government of Pakistan?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: (a) A statement showing the unfulfilled export commitments of Pakistan as well as of quantities loaned by Pakistan to India is placed on the table.

Out of these, India has recently sent 8,500 tons of imported wheat to Pakistan and Pakistan is supplying 6,000 tons rice to India from Sind.

(b) The statement also shows quantities of foodgrains which West Punjab had to supply to East Punjab and vice versa according to the recommendations of the Punjab Partition Committee. No despatches have taken place in either direction.

(c) The question of fulfilment of Pakistan's obligations as well as of the return of the loan by India is under discussion.

(d) According to the existing arrangements, status quo is to be maintained as far as possible in the matter of supply of foodgrains as well as other commodities up to 31st March, 1948.

PROGRAMME FOR DEVELOPMENT OF SALT INDUSTRY

193. *Shri Biswanath Das: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Industry and Supply be pleased to state whether Government are aware that after the remission of salt tax prices of salt have shot up and that the consumers are left in the hands of black-marketeers?

(b) Do Government propose to lay on the table of the House a copy of the programme of Government for the development of the salt industry, if any?

(c) Have Government considered the question of taking up salt manufacture as the first national industry to develop its manufacture and its side industries and bi-products?

The Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee: (a) There has been an increase in the price of salt in certain areas. But this is not the result of the remission of the Salt Tax. The main reasons are shortage of salt in certain areas resulting from low production in Bombay, the stoppage during the last three months of despatch of salt from Pakistan areas from which 35 lakhs maunds of rock salt per annum used to come, inadequate imports from overseas in the first half of the year, and transport difficulties. Since September, however, increased transport has been provided and imports from overseas are arriving in larger quantities.

(b) A tentative programme for the increase of salt production has been prepared and a technical committee is being appointed to examine it in detail.

(c) The Government are considering plans for the development of the manufacture of salt and allied products.

FLUCTUATIONS IN PRICES OF SALT

194. *Shri O. V. Alagesan: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Industry and Supply be pleased to state whether it is a fact that salt sells at much the same price now as it was selling before the abolition of the Salt Tax?

(b) Are Government aware that the benefits of the abolition of Salt Tax have gone solely to the producers and middle-men and not to the consumers, the majority of whom are poor?

(c) What action has been taken to bring down the price of salt?

The Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee: (a) The prices of salt are now less in Bengal, Assam, Orissa, Madras, Eastern and Southern parts of Bihar, Northern C. P., Gujrat in Bombay, Ajmer Merwara and Delhi than they were before the abolition of salt duty. In Western Bihar, some parts of U. P., East Punjab, Bombay and Southern C. P., the prices are higher.

(b) Yes, where supplies were deficient; but the reply is in the negative for the greater part of the country.

(c) Action has been taken to supply East Punjab and the deficiency caused in U. P. by the stoppage of imports from Pakistan, from Sambhar and to move the required quantity of salt to these markets. The requirements of Bihar and the shortage in C. P. and Bombay market is being met by importing the required quantity of salt by sea into Calcutta and Bombay. It is expected that these measures would soon result in lowering the prices of salt in these areas, so that the consumer would obtain the benefit of the remission of the Salt Tax.

ISSUE OF LICENSES FOR PRODUCTION OF SALT

195. *Shri O. V. Alagesan: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Industry and Supply be pleased to state what measures have been taken by Government to increase the production of salt?

(b) Do Government propose to consider the question of issuing licenses to persons to manufacture salt in all suitable places on the coast line?

The Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee: (a) To increase the production of salt in India, Government deputed an expert officer in June, 1946, to study the whole question of the salt supply and demand in India and suggest the changes in the administrative machinery necessary to make India self sufficient in the matter of salt. A complete survey of salt production, consumption, distribution, quality, imports and prices has been undertaken and a necessity for fostering and directing the salt industry having been established, outlines of the method of control have been drawn up. A committee of technical experts is being set up to advise on the potentialities for development of the various sources and the schemes of development which may be undertaken immediately and as part of a long term plan as well as to recommend sites where new factories should be established.

The main sources of production in India are in Sambhar Lake, Bombay and Madras. Factories in Rajputana are managed by Government. As a result of certain new schemes undertaken at Sambhar Lake like utilisation of waste brine from the East Lake at Sambhar and of subterranean brine, production at this source has been raised to one hundred and forty lakh maunds against the average of one hundred and eight lakh maunds. Similarly in Madras action taken to encourage production by private manufacturers has resulted in stepping up production from the average of 1 crore 33 lakh maunds to 1 crore 65 lakh maunds.

(b) Government propose to freely issue licences for salt manufacture in suitable places on the coast in the future and a Press note to this effect is being issued.

PRODUCTION AND CONSUMPTION OF POTATOES

196. *Shri V. I. Munishwami Pillai: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Food be pleased to state what has been the consumption of potatoes in the whole of India, provincewise, during the years 1936-37 and 1945-46?

(b) What was the production of potatoes in such of the provinces where it grows during the period referred to in part (a) above?

(c) What is the total quantity imported from outside countries such as Burma, Italy, and Kenya?

(d) Is it a fact that the Madras Presidency supplied potatoes to all the provinces in India from July to November in each year?

(e) Are Government aware that due to the high cost of fertilizers and cooly wages the cost of production of potatoes has proportionately increased?

(f) Do Government propose to consider the advisability of imposing a duty on all imported potatoes to avoid loss to the local growers?

(g) If the answer to part (f) above be in the negative, what are the reasons therefor?

Minus sign represents what Pakistan owes to India and plus sign represents, in the case of wheat, the actual loan taken from Pakistan and in the case of gram, the supplies that would have been made to Pakistan Provinces.

Subsequently, India has supplied Pakistan approximately 8,500 tons of imported wheat and Pakistan is supplying approximately 6,000 tons of rice from Sind to India.

GOVERNMENT PLAN FOR INCREASING FOOD PRODUCTION

199. *Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru: (a) Will Honourable Minister of Agriculture be pleased to state whether Government propose to lay on the table of the House a statement giving details of their 5 year plan for increasing the production of food by 4 million tons in respect of each province with special reference to irrigation facilities and the supply of artificial fertilizers?

(b) What steps have been taken to implement the plan?

(c) How much cultivable waste (i) has been brought under the plough during the last two years and (ii) is proposed to be cultivated in the next five years, in each province?

(d) Do Government propose to encourage large scale farming, state, co-operative or capitalist, in connection with their five year plan in order to make it easier to meet the needs of the towns for food?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: (a) Two statements showing (i) the targets fixed for each Province before partition together with their break-up, and (ii) the targets fixed for each province after partition are placed on the table of the House. A copy of the note on the ways and means of increasing the production of foodgrains in all the Provinces by 3.0 million tons within five years is also laid on the table. A target of one million tons has been fixed for the States, details of which have yet to be settled in consultation with the States authorities.

(b) The Provincial Governments have prepared their five year G.M.F. plans on the basis of the targets fixed for them. These plans are in the course of execution. No progress reports have so far been received. The Government of India watches and looks after the general co-ordination of the Provincial Schemes. An important side of its work is the assistance given to enable them to obtain materials on priority basis.

(c) (i) A statement showing the area under culturable waste in each province before partition and the increase or decrease during 1944-45 and 1945-46 as compared with normal period is laid on the table. Similar information for 1946-47 is not yet available. (ii) Under the G.M.F. programme of the Provincial Governments, it is proposed to reclaim about 7 lakh acres of land during the next five years. This area is divided amongst the various provinces as follows:—

Province	Thousand Acres
Bengal	50
Bihar	200
Bombay	30
C. P. and Berar	100
Orissa	60
U. P.	250
Total	690
	700,000 roughly.

*The entries represent the position as accepted by the Provincial Partition Committee.

†Not printed in these debates. A copy placed in the library of the House.

(d) This question is largely for the provinces to decide in the light of local conditions. They have, however, been advised to encourage large scale farming.

REORGANISATION COMMITTEE FOR DEPARTMENTS OF FOOD AND AGRICULTURE

200. *Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Food be pleased to state whether Governments are aware that the Reorganisation Committee for the Departments of Agriculture and Food has reported that there is considerable duplication of work in personnel in regard to statistics, marketing, inspection, storage, publicity and work relating to International Liaison Bodies and Advisory Bodies such as the Central Food Advisory Council?

(b) If so, has the Committee made any proposals for the reorganisation of the Departments of Agriculture and Food in order to increase their efficiency and eliminate the duplication referred to above?

(c) What action have Government taken on these recommendations?

(d) Have Government accepted the recommendation of the Committee that the Regional Food Commissioners' Organisation should be reduced and that the reduced organisation should continue in its present form for twelve months only?

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: (a) Yes.

(b) Yes.

(c) Government have generally accepted the recommendations of the Reorganisation Committee and to implement them they have in the first instance appointed a Joint Secretary in the Ministry of Agriculture to organise a common Services Division to deal with matters referred to the first part of part (a) of the question. The proposals submitted by the Joint Secretary are under consideration of Government.

In the Ministry of Food the recommendations of the Committee have been given effect to and organisation of the Common Services Division in consultation with the Ministry of Agriculture referred to in the previous para. is the only item to be seen through.

(d) It has not been found possible to carry out the recommendation of the Reorganisation Committee in regard to the Regional Food Commissioners' Organisation so far, firstly on account of the fact that there is no margin of officers at the Centre as contemplated in paragraphs 88 and 89 of the Committee's Report, who can be available for touring and thus help Government to do without the Regional Food Commissioners; secondly as a result of partition of India work in the Bombay Port for receipt, clearance and despatch of imported foodgrains has very largely increased which has rendered it impossible to reduce the Office of the Regional Food Commissioner at Bombay.

PURCHASE OF FOODGRAINS FROM ABROAD

202. *Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Food be pleased to state what is the total amount of food grains purchased from (i) all countries and from (ii) hard currency countries only last year?

(b) What is the estimated amount of the purchases to be made this year?

(c) What is the amount spent on subsidising food last year and how much is expected to be spent on it this year?

		Quantity in thousands of tons	Amount in lakhs of rupees

(b) 1947—48	(i) All countries	2573	10,788
	(ii) Hard currency countries	1362	5739

(c) The total amount spent on subsidising imported foodgrains supplied to Provinces during 1946-47 was Rs. 20.59 crores. The amount estimated to be spent upto the 31st December, 1947, to which date the scheme of subsidising foodgrains has been sanctioned, works out to Rs. 17.35 crores. The policy to be adopted in regard to subsidy on supplies to be made on or after the 1st January, 1948, is under the consideration of the Government of India.

DISCONTENTMENT AMONG JODHPUR RAILWAY STAFF

203. *Shri Jainarain Vyas: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Railways be pleased to state whether, in view of the fact that Jodhpur Railway runs both through Indian Union and Pakistan territories, Government consider that Railway as one of strategic importance?

(b) Are Government aware that there is discontentment among the staff of that Railway on account of the recommendations of the Pay Commission not having been applied to them and the suspension of staff that left Pakistan territories after the disturbances created by the Muslim Guards and others on Jodhpur Railway stations in Pakistan areas and in territories surrounding them?

(c) Have Government taken or propose to take any steps to allay the discontentment?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: (a) The Jodhpur Railway consists of two sections—the Indian State Section and the Section which was formerly owned by the Government of India but now owned by the Pakistan Government. The latter is being worked under a contract with H. H. the Maharaja of Jodhpur, but consequent on the partition of the country, a notice has been served that the contract would terminate from June 1948 after which the Pakistan Government will arrange for its working. The Jodhpur Railway will then cease to run through the Pakistan territory and will not be considered as of strategic importance on the grounds mentioned by the Honourable Member.

(b) and (c) The administration of staff matters on the Jodhpur Railway rests entirely with the Jodhpur Durbar and the Dominion Government have to control in such matters.

INSTALLATION OF RADIO SETS IN VILLAGES

204. *Prof. N. G. Ranga: Will the Honourable Minister of Industry and Supply be pleased to state:

(a) whether any, and if so, what steps are being taken for the production of cheap Radio sets for installation in villages;

(b) what would be their approximate prices; and

(c) whether all the machinery needed for the production will also be manufactured in India?

The Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee: (a) and (b) There are at present two firms in India which assemble electric mains operated radio sets. One of them is manufacturing what is popularly called the "People's Set", the price of which is Rs. 95/-.

The Council of Scientific and Industrial Research have financed several schemes of research in connection with the manufacture of cheap Radio sets in India. Research work on schemes relating to "manufacture of Condensers and Resistances" and "manufacture of Loud-speakers" has been completed, and non-technical notes have been prepared for the commercial utilisation of the results obtained. Research on the "design of cheap radio sets" has also been completed, and the question of commercial utilisation of the results obtained is being taken up by the Council. In addition, a fourth research scheme is being financed by the Council at the University College of Science at Calcutta on "the manufacture of Radio Valves". A pilot plant has been imported from America for this purpose and the experiments are still in progress.

The Panel on Electrical Machinery and Equipment has made recommendations with regard to the manufacture of cheap radio sets in India, which are now under the consideration of Government.

(c) At present, only assembly of radio sets from imported radio components possible. Attempts are, however, being made to manufacture as many radio components as possible, and it is hoped that in the next five years India will be well on her way to self-sufficiency in this regard. No highly specialised machinery is required for the manufacture of the majority of the radio components needed, and this machinery can be manufactured in India.

DISPOSAL OF QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS IN THE ASSEMBLY

Mr. Speaker: I would like to draw the attention of the Honourable Members again to the very unsatisfactory manner, to my mind, in which we have been disposing all these questions and answers. Out of a list of 72 questions today we have been able to go through only 15. There are a large number of questions left over every day and the only alternative, for giving time to other questions, at least those which ask for some important information, is for us to proceed quickly with these questions and supplementaries. I find that a large number of Honourable Members are either proceeding by way of argument or asking for opinions or making suggestions for actions. Strictly speaking, under Parliamentary practice all this is prohibited. Therefore, if they put their questions very shortly without a long preamble involving arguments or opinions, we shall be able to make much better progress, and if the Honourable Members restrain themselves from putting questions on comparatively small matters, we shall be able to make much better progress. That is all I have to say about these questions.

Mr. B. Pocker Sahib Bahadur (Madras: Muslim): In arranging the agenda of questions, the Speaker may exercise his discretion and allow more important questions of priority over the others.

Mr. Speaker: I myself will not be in agreement with that. It is the member's responsibility which no Speaker can ever shoulder. The importance is known to the Questioner and he is the best judge about it. Therefore even in supplementaries, I am leaving it to the Members themselves, not to put in questions at all unless some important information is really required. That is the only way of bringing before the House a larger number of questions which are perhaps more important. I really can not know myself which question is important and which is not.

Shri H. V. Kamath (C. P. & Berar: General): Before we proceed to formal legislative business, may I suggest that the walls of this Chamber which look so nude and bare, as well as your own chair and dais, be adorned and embellished with our National Flag in consonance with the grace and dignity of this Parliament on the same lines as has been done in the Constitution Hall?

Mr. Speaker: We will consider the question. But I will suggest that all questions of this type may rather be discussed with me in the Chamber rather than in the House.

ELECTION TO CENTRAL ADVISORY COUNCIL FOR RAILWAYS

Mr. Speaker: I have to inform the Assembly that upto 12 noon on Wednesday, the 19th November, 1947, the time fixed for receiving nominations for the Central Advisory Council for Railways, nine nominations were received. Subsequently one member withdrew his candidature. As the number of the remaining candidates is equal to the number of vacancies, I declare the following members to be duly elected:—

- (1) Mr. R. K. Sidhwa,
- (2) Shri Deshbandhu Gupta,
- (3) Shri R. R. Diwakar,
- (4) Shri Arun Chandra Guha,
- (5) Shrimati Amu Swaminadhan,
- (6) Shrimati Renuka Ray,
- (7) Shri Jaspat Roy Kapoor, and
- (8) Shri Ppendra Nath Barman.

Mr. Speaker: The House will now proceed to the consideration of the Press (Special Powers) Bill, 1947.

The question is:

"That clauses 2 and 3 stand part of the Bill."

The motion was adopted.

Clauses 2 and 3 were added to the Bill.

Mr. Naziruddin Ahmad (West Bengal: Muslim): Sir, on clause 4 I have put in a short notice amendment of a drafting nature.

Mr. Speaker: I generally do not allow last minute amendments unless they are substantially agreed to by all the parties. I should like to know if the Honourable Home Minister agrees to accept this amendment, in which case I will give permission to move it. The amendment is that in part (a) of the clause for the words "His Majesty's subjects" the words "subjects of the Dominion" be substituted.

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel (Minister for Home, Information and Broadcasting and States): Sir, I have no objection to the amendment being moved.

Mr. Speaker: Although as a general rule no leave is granted by me to move amendments of which due notice has not been given, I do not want to exclude any important amendment or an amendment which the House would like to discuss. So the Honourable Member may move his amendment.

Mr. Naziruddin Ahmad: Sir, I am grateful for the permission. The delay was due to the fact that I did not get a copy of the Bill in time.

I beg to move:

"That in part (a) of clause 4 of the Bill, for the words 'His Majesty's subjects' the words 'subjects of the Dominion' be substituted."

I think that after the 15th August last it is more appropriate in the new set-up of things that we should be described as subjects of the Dominion Government. There appears to be something of an anomaly which I want to remove by this amendment. I submit that by the Independence of India Act His Majesty's Government have given up all responsibility for Indian affairs or to pass or take part in any future legislation. So the amendment should be accepted or at least the matter should be clarified. Sir, I move.

Mr. Speaker: Amendment moved:

"That in part (a) of clause 4 of the Bill, for the words 'His Majesty's subjects' the words 'subjects of the Dominion' be substituted."

I should like to make one little observation with a view to curtail, as far as possible, these debates on different motions. If possible, I should like Government to state their case on any amendment or motion that comes before the House. The advantage, to my mind, would be that, if the amendment is acceptable it will save time; even if it is not acceptable to certain sections of the House, it will give Honourable Members the grounds on which Government are not accepting it, and the debate in that case will be conducted better and not in the rambling form that it sometimes takes. This does not mean that the Government Member will not have a right of reply; he will have a chance at the end of replying in full. This suggestion of mine does not mean that, if the Honourable Member of Government does not choose to speak in the beginning he must still do so. In this case, I should like the Honourable Home Minister to say what he has got to say, if he has no objection.

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: Sir, with regard to this proposed amendment I have to say that the Act under which we are governed today is the Adaptation of the 1935 Act, and there the words "His Majesty" occur in various places. Besides we know that the appointment of the Governor-General is also made by His Majesty; the Government of India is carried on in the name of His Majesty. This is a formality with which we need not quarrel, and I do not think there is much substance in the amendment. So long as we are a Dominion this formality may be there.

Shri K. Santhanam (Madras: General): Sir, I submit that the expression "subjects of the Dominion" is very unhappy; I do not think it is ever used. We should say "citizens" and not "subjects".

Mr. Speaker: The discussion is unnecessary in view of what the Honourable Home Minister said; he is not prepared to accept the amendment.

Mr. Naziruddin Ahmad: Sir, I beg leave of the House to withdraw the amendment.

Mr. Speaker: Has the Honourable Member leave of the House to withdraw his amendment?

The amendment was by leave of the Assembly withdrawn.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That clause 4 stand part of the Bill."

The motion was adopted.

Clause 4 was added to the Bill.

Clauses 5 to 16 were added to the Bill.

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: Sir, I move:

"That for clause 17 of the Bill, the following clause be substituted, namely:

Repeal of Ordinance X of 1947.	17. The Press (Special Powers) (No. 2) Ordinance, 1947, is hereby repealed."
--------------------------------------	--

Mr. Speaker: The words on the left side appear to be a marginal note.

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar (Minister for Law): Those words need not be put.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar (Madras: General): It is the title of the Clause—the substitution of The Press (Special Powers) (No. 2) Ordinance, 1947, as against for Repeal of Ordinance X of 1947.

Mr. Speaker: That is a marginal note.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: There is no marginal note in the Bill as printed. That is a heading.

Mr. Speaker: I think that is a marginal note. It is for facility of printing that it has been done. This thick black type means a marginal note. When I put the clause, the marginal note will not be included.

The question is:

"That for clause 17 of the Bill, the following clause be substituted, namely:
17. The Press (Special Powers) (No. 2) Ordinance, 1947, is hereby repealed."

The motion was adopted.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That clause 17, as amended, stand part of the Bill."

The motion was adopted.

Clause 17, as amended, was added to the Bill.

Shri C. M. Poonacha (Coorg: General): Sir, I move:

"That in sub-clause (2) of clause 1 of the Bill, the words 'excepting Coorg' be added at the end."

356 CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY OF INDIA (LEGISLATIVE) [20TH Nov. 1947]

Mr. Speaker: These amendments are merely verbal.

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: Sir, I move:

"That the Bill as amended, be passed."

Mr. Speaker: Motion moved:

"That the Bill as amended, be passed."

Mr. Naziruddin Ahmad: Sir, I move:

"That in clause 2 of the Bill for the word 'something' the word 'anything' be substituted."

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That in clause 2 of the Bill for the word 'something' the word 'anything' be substituted."

The motion was adopted.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: Sir, I move:

"That in clause 3, line 4, the words 'or discharged' be omitted."

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That in clause 3, line 4, the words 'or discharged' be omitted."

The motion was adopted.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That the Bill as amended, be passed."

The motion was adopted.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE REGULATION (AMENDMENT) BILL

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty (Minister for Finance):
Sir, I move:

"That the Bill to amend the Foreign Exchange Regulation Act, 1947, be taken into consideration."

This Bill seeks to add the Explanation to Section 8(1) of the Foreign Exchange Act. Under that Act the Central Government is empowered to prohibit the import of bullion into India, except under a license from the Reserve Bank of India. As Honourable Members may be aware, the price of gold in India is very much higher than the world price of gold. The Indian market, therefore, has a very great attraction for the import of gold bullion. But the import of gold bullion into India creates great exchange difficulties for us, because the balance of trade on account of the large volume of import of foodstuffs is against us and all foreign exchange is valuable to us.

In March last, on account of this consideration and the need for conserving our exchange resources, the Reserve Bank completely prohibited the import of any bullion into India. Notwithstanding this ban on the import of bullion it was discovered that our purpose was defeated where an adjoining territory imported bullion. Experience has shown that any bullion imported into an adjoining territory is ultimately smuggled into India and the foreign exchange for the payment of that bullion is ultimately found by the smuggling of goods from India into the adjoining territory. Now such a state of affairs is clearly against the economic interests of India and it defeats our purpose. It is therefore necessary that we should make the ban applicable to bullion being carried into India or brought into India in any ship or other conveyance intended for an adjoining territory. Since even such an entry can be construed as bringing or sending into India, Government have actually treated such cases as imports. In order, however, to leave no room for doubt, Government thought it necessary to make this amendment to the Exchange Regulation Act.

Sir, it is intended to give retroactive effect to this amendment because we have already dealt in this manner with some consignments of bullion that came into India but was intended for an adjoining territory. We do not want that any legal complications should arise as a result of the action that we have already taken and we want to avoid any such legal complication. That is why this amending Bill gives retroactive effect to the amendment.

I find that there is an amendment to clause 2, standing in the name of my friend Mr. K. Santhanam, to the effect that in the explanation to clause 2 of the Bill the words 'British' wherever it occurs be omitted. Well, this was exactly my reaction when the draft was submitted for my approval. I thought the use of the word 'British India' in our legislation is now out of date and incongruous and I therefore wanted that the word "British" should be omitted. But I was told by the legal experts that the term 'British India' in the Bill, under the Adaptation of Existing Indian Laws Order, means all the Provinces of India. As this Bill makes an addition with retroactive effect to the Foreign Exchange Regulation Act in which the term 'British India' has been used throughout, the draftsmen thought it necessary to keep the same terminology. But subject to what the Law Member might say, I have no objection to make any change that may be necessary. Sir, I move that the Bill be taken into consideration.

Mr. Speaker: Motion moved:

"That the Bill to amend the Foreign Exchange Regulation Act, 1947, be taken into consideration."

What has the Law Member to say about the position regarding the expression 'British India'?

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar (Minister for Law): I thought I would speak when the amendment was being moved, in reply to it. If you so desire, I shall explain the position.

Mr. Speaker: Yes, because it would save time.

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: Sir, we have got what is called an Existing Laws Adaptation Order in which certain terms are defined. In that order the term 'British India' is defined and is defined to mean 'all the Provinces of British India'. It is therefore open to the House to include in this particular Bill either of the two phrases which under the Adaptation Order mean the same thing. We could either use 'British India' or we could use 'all the Provinces of India' which would mean one and the same thing. The question of these two alternatives and as to which of them we should adopt really has to be determined by the phraseology which has been used in the main Bill to which this Bill is merely an amendment. In the original Bill dealing with foreign exchange regulation, the term used is 'British India' and my submission is that if this amendment is to be intelligible it must use common phraseology which is 'British India'. There is nothing to be lost, everything to be gained, by using the same phraseology. The amendment which is tabled is purely sentimental in my judgment and wishes to avoid the word 'British' from the text of the law.

Shri K. Santhanam (Madras: General): Not at all.

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: My submission is that in view of the necessity for uniformity between the main Act and the amending Act we should adopt the same phraseology which has been used in the main Act.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa (C. P. and Berar: General): May I know whether there is any legal difficulty if the word 'British' is omitted?

Mr. Speaker: That is exactly what the Law Member has pointed out. Without going into the merits of the case, and looking prima facie into what the Law Member has said, I shall curtail the discussion by saying that I refuse to give my leave to this amendment.

[Shri C. M. Poonacha]

Sir, as we listened to the speech of the Honourable Minister for Home, Affairs and Information the House was convinced of the necessity of a Bill of the type now being moved in this House in so far as the Chief Commissioners' provinces of Delhi and Ajmer-Merwara were concerned. But I am constrained to observe whether a Bill of this type is necessary so far as Coorg is concerned. We have been given to understand by the Honourable Minister, while placing the Bill for the consideration of the House that circumstances obtaining in the provinces of Delhi and Ajmer-Merwara compelled the Government to come forward with a Bill of this type. But in respect of the other Chief Commissioners' provinces, he himself made it clear that there was no such necessity. So far as Coorg is concerned, I may point out to this House that there is no necessity for a Bill of this type at all. We have been fortunate enough to enjoy communal harmony and there is no need to call for a Bill of this type as inter-communal feelings are very satisfactory in Coorg. Therefore, I suggest that so far as Coorg is concerned it be exempted from the scope of this Bill.

Apart from that fact I may point out for the information of this House that the control of newspapers, books and printing presses come under the purview of the Coorg Legislative Council which has exclusive jurisdiction over that particular subject. In item No. 31 of the Coorg Devolution Rules of 1924, it is specifically mentioned that the control of newspapers, books and printing presses come under the purview of the Coorg Legislative Council. Therefore, I am afraid that without sufficient reason for extending a drastic Bill of this type, whether it would not be advisable on the part of this House to extend the scope of this legislation to Coorg also. I feel the Coorg Legislative Council is competent enough to deal with this matter and therefore I urge that if any circumstances do arise, in future of the nature explained by the Minister in charge, the Coorg Legislative Council could be directed to take necessary steps in the matter, and that we from this end need not attempt to force a measure of this type.

Therefore, Sir, I submit that the scope of this Bill need not be extended to the Province of Coorg and Coorg be exempted from the operations of the Bill.

Sir, I move.

Mr. Speaker: Amendment moved:

"That in sub-clause (2) of clause 1 of the Bill, the words 'excepting Coorg' be added at the end."

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: I fully appreciate the sensitiveness of my friend the Honourable Member from Coorg, and I am glad that atmosphere of Coorg is such that he does not feel any necessity for a legislation of this nature. It is also a matter of satisfaction that there is a small spot in India where no emergency exists. But I am afraid it is difficult to conceive that a small area can permanently remain unaffected and it would be unwise for us to come up specially for a legislation of this kind if the atmosphere is vitiated a few months after in a province like Coorg. I can assure my friend from Coorg that if the atmosphere there continues as peaceful as it is, there will be no occasion for such powers to be exercised, and if there is any misuse of powers, he can always find a remedy by bringing it to the notice of Government. The matter will be set right immediately. Therefore I think the clause as it is should be retained.

Mr. Speaker: Before I put the amendment to vote, may I know what is the desire of the Honourable Member?

Shri C. M. Poonacha: Sir, I beg leave of the House to withdraw my amendment.

Mr. Speaker: Has the Honourable Member leave of the House to withdraw this amendment?

The amendment was by leave of the Assembly withdrawn.

Shri K. Santhanam: Sir, I move:

"That after sub-clause (2) of clause 1 of the Bill, the following new sub-clause be added, namely:

'(3) This Act shall cease to have effect after the 31st December, 1949'."

I request leave of the House to allow me to omit the latter half of the amendment, viz., the words "or after the date of commencement of the new constitution whichever is earlier."

Sir, I need not speak much over this amendment. I am not surprised that there have been no amendments at all to any of the clauses of the Bill. The Bill as a whole cannot be amended: it must continue as it is or must be ended and the sole justification for the Bill is the necessity for it. I agree with my friend Mr. Deshbandhu Gupta when he said that it is a black Bill and if conditions were normal there can be no justification for putting such a Bill on the statute book. The only thing we can do is to put a time limit and this is what I have done in my amendment. I hope by that time the necessity would have lapsed and this Bill also would lapse. Sir, I move.

Mr. Speaker: Amendment moved:

"That after sub-clause (2) of clause 1 of the Bill, the following new sub-clause be added, namely:

'(3) This Act shall cease to have effect after the 31st December, 1949'."

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: Sir, I accept the amendment.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That after sub-clause (2) of clause 1 of the Bill, the following new sub-clause be added, namely:

'(3) This Act shall cease to have effect after the 31st December, 1949'."

The motion was adopted.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That clause 1, as amended, stand part of the Bill."

The motion was adopted.

Clause 1, as amended, was added to the Bill.

The Title and the Preamble were added to the Bill.

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: Sir, may I suggest that the words "or discharged" in line 4 of clause 3 be omitted, as they do not fit in with the rest of the sentence.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: I would suggest that it would read properly if after "any power which is conferred" the words "or duty which is imposed", are added. In that case the word "discharged" occurring later in the sentence would not be inappropriate.

Mr. Speaker: As was pointed out by the Honourable the Finance Minister yesterday, the power of the Government may be challenged in respect of any duties which the Government may impose upon the Provincial Governments. Therefore I would suggest the other alternative.

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: In the circumstances I suggest that the words "or discharged" be omitted.

Mr. Speaker: I shall take up this amendment after the Honourable Minister has moved that the Bill as amended be passed.

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: Sir, may I with your permission go back to clause 2 and move that for the word "something" in the clause the word "anything" be substituted. That is the more appropriate word that should have been used. There was an amendment but unfortunately my Honourable friend did not move it.

Mr. Naziruddin Ahmad: I was too late and that was the reason.

Shri K. Santhanam: Sir, my object was not to improve the phraseology at all. If that had been the only object I would not have tabled this amendment. But my object is that smuggling can be done not only from British Indian ports but from ports of Indian States which have acceded to the Indian Dominion. I wanted to prevent even that smuggling. I thought it was the duty of the Finance Minister to have gone behind the technicalities and brought out an amendment of the whole Act if necessary to see that the whole Act is applicable not only to our ports but to ports of Indian States which have acceded. But he has brought a small amendment dealing only with gold smuggling. So far as gold smuggling is concerned I would include the ports of the Indian States which have acceded to India. If you drop the word 'British' it means India i.e. the Provinces of India, the Chief Commissioners' Provinces and the States which have acceded to India. It is a vast extension of the content that I was aiming at and not mere phraseology.

If you would permit me to extend my amendment not only to the Explanation but to the particular section concerned, Section 8, then it would cover my point. There would of course be, from the legal point of view, some anomaly as the whole Act uses the term 'British India'. But when we are out for remedying a big evil we should not care for verbal anomalies and it should be open to the Legal Dept. to bring an amending Bill. But I do not think the substance should be lost by technical difficulties, and I would leave it to you, Sir, to consider whether it is worth while to pursue the point. If the Finance Minister will give us an assurance that he will bring an amendment during this session extending the scope of this Act to all the Indian States that have acceded to the Indian Dominion I would not pursue the point. My point is one of substance and not of technical phraseology.

Mr. Speaker: I propose going into the substance only to the extent of deciding as to whether it will be proper to refuse leave. I have already said that I refuse leave.

The point really is about the legal position as the Honourable Minister supposed it to be. In the first place, it will not be possible on a Bill of this type to make amendments as regards those other Sections of the particular Act which are not included in the Bill and are not before the House. Therefore there is no question of amending the other Sections of that particular legislation. That is the first point.

As regards the other point, which he suggested I do not know whether it will be proper on my part to raise any difficulties, but the competency of this House to legislate for States and territories within States is a question which is not a simple one. I would not say further than that at this stage. That question also will have to be examined by the Legal Department, and then of course the proper legislation will have to be brought. It may not be supposed that because this House is sovereign so far as certain matters are concerned, it is sovereign in respect of all matters governing the administration of Indian States. We shall have to examine the position at every time. The best course would therefore be, in the light of what the Honourable the Law Member has said, not to touch this; and his attention having been sufficiently invited by the discussion in the House, the Honourable Member who wished to move the amendment in the House should feel satisfied that the Ministry would look into the matter and do whatever is necessary to safeguard the legal interests as well as other interests. That is why, even on a prima facie consideration, I do not think this amendment should be permitted and any further time of the House should be taken in raising the technical question. After all, it is a question to be decided by the legal experts.

Shri C. Prakasam (Madras: General): The Law Member gave his opinion. He made his statement. Soon after that, you were good enough to say that you would not permit the amendment. What would be the position if I do not accept the correctness of the position taken by the Law Member. This is a very important point. It is a technical matter and I would like to deal with that question with your permission.

Mr. Speaker: Perhaps there is some misapprehension about the facts and that is why this point of order is raised. It is not that due notice of this amendment is given and then I am preventing the Member from moving it. If due notice is given, whatever my view or the Honourable the Law Minister's view on this question, I would have permitted him to move this amendment. As a matter of fact notice of this amendment was received at 10-45 a.m. today. Therefore no amendment without sufficient notice can be moved in the House without the permission of the Chair, and considering the whole position I have come to the conclusion that leave for moving this amendment should not be given, because after all it would be dissertation of a legal argument in the House, and therefore I refuse permission, and any discussion on this question ends. Members may now address themselves on the merits of the Bill.

Shri C. Prakasam: May I say this. The Law Member in his statement referred to the reason. That is a point that has been placed before the House. The House is in possession of that matter and the House should have the opportunity to discuss whether this adaptation of the Act of 1935 enables this Government to use the words "British India" or "British Indian subjects". It is a very important matter. I leave it to you. This question has to be discussed in this House.

Mr. Speaker: As I pointed out, I requested the Honourable the Law Minister to state his case to enable me to decide as to whether I should allow the amendment or not, and though of course the House was in possession of whatever he said, it is entirely in the discretion of the Chair to hear arguments on any point of order or on any point which the Chair itself raises. I do not think the matter is before the House in the sense that every Member who wishes to speak is entitled to speak. It is enough for me to decide whether leave should or should not be granted.

Shri B. Das (Orissa: General): Sir, I support the objective of this Bill. I see the apprehension of the Minister of Finance about the smuggling of gold and the resultant less availability of foreign exchange to us. Since the last Bill was passed, things have changed. Although the objective of the Honourable the Minister of Finance will be fulfilled, smuggling of gold will not cease. Gold has been smuggled from Persia and Iraq and even from Pakistan: and a day or two ago, according to newspaper reports we could buy on the Western borders of the U. P. gold at Rs. 60 to Rs. 70 per tola. If that be so, the Honourable the Finance Minister should find other means of how best to control such gold being smuggled into India. Sir, already Indian States have been referred to. We know what happened in the past in the Indian States and how the Indian exchequer lost crores and crores of rupees in customs duty. But whatever mischief is being done today, it is being done through the Persian Gulf, and may be through Pakistan on which my Honourable Friend the Finance Minister may enlighten the House, and I think what he is aiming at will not be satisfied under the present Bill. He will have to go a little further. He may tighten his customs barrier: he may do something else. The mere passing of this Act will not help.

Shri Biswanath Das (Orissa: General): Sir, let it be clearly understood that we have absolutely no objection to the principles underlying the Bill. It is a very necessary one and I believe this should have come far earlier, even if necessary by means of an Ordinance. If we on this side of the House oppose and object to the Bill, it is not on that account. Sir, it is not legal; there is the question of sentiment. We for ourselves felt that we were free from England. No more it is British India. It is our India. I can never agree to any legislation or to anything done or stated on the floor of this House which will mean to say that it is British India. We have parted from Britain. We are friends of Britain on the same footing and with the same status and equality. That being the position, I think it will be impossible for us to agree to anything which is calculated to affect that sentiment. Looking from that point of view, I strongly protest against the use of the expression "British India".

Sir, regarding the point raised by my friend Mr. B. Das, it is not only the acceding States: there are also the French ports, the Portuguese ports from which gold could be smuggled and brought conveniently to India. Therefore a more comprehensive measure may be necessary. We have given our Ministers all our confidence. We have given them a blank cheque. Let them write anything, but expressions which will not be tolerated in the House or outside the House should not have been used, and I would appeal to the Honourable Minister to save us always from legislation and from the use of expressions such as these, expressions which would prejudice the harmony, lower our prestige and deeply affect our sentiments. Therefore I would appeal to him to withdraw this legislation and introduce another Bill in the course of a week or ten days, or have recourse to more comprehensive legislation by way of Ordinance. I am thankful to Mr. Santhanam for having drawn our attention, and I would appeal also to my Honourable friend the Finance Minister to withdraw the Bill without meaning anything. Otherwise we give our weeping support.

Prof. K. T. Shah (Bihar: General): Sir, I want to make a request for elucidation from the Honourable the Finance Minister to clear a doubt that I feel on this Bill. This amendment seems to me to be in the nature of a transit duty or restriction. If, as I read the section, gold or silver is brought into this country by some vessel, but not removed from it, and declared to be intended for some other sovereign state, would we be justified in restricting it and treating it as though it was imported into India, and apply our customs laws to it? I request the Honourable Minister to throw light on this point.

Shri M. Anathasayanam Ayyangar (Madras: General): So far as the question raised by the previous speaker is concerned, I have no difficulty. The Bill, Sir, is intended merely to regulate the bringing into India of various articles some of which are gold and bullion and silver. Now, all that is required under Section 8 of the Original Act is, that permission from the Reserve Bank ought to be obtained before the article is brought in. I think that it is brought under other Sections relating to the Sea Customs Act etc. though under Section 3, the restriction imposed by Sub-Sections (1) and (2) shall be deemed to have been imposed under Section 19 of the Sea Customs Act. I do not think that any import duty will be imposed upon this. This is a matter of formality to assist detection when the article though apparently brought for a foreign state or territory is actually smuggled into India.

Sir, your ruling binds us so far as this matter is concerned. Apart from the ruling, Sir, I find there is much force in the suggestion made by my Honourable Friend Mr. Santhanam when he said that the original Act itself had to be modified in view of the Independence Act. You will see, Sir, that under Section 5 of the Government of India Act as adapted by the Indian Independence Act and the Adaptation Law, "the Dominion of India established by the Independence Act of 1947 shall, as from the 15th of August 1947, be a Union comprising of the Provinces called the Governors' Provinces, Provinces called the Chief Commissioners' Provinces and Indian States acceding to the Dominion in the manner hereafter provided". Therefore, the Dominion of India consists not only of the Governors' Provinces and the Chief Commissioners' Provinces but all those States which have acceded. Yesterday, the Honourable Minister in charge of States placed on the table a number of Instruments of Accession entered into with the States and my Honourable Friend Dr. Pattabhi Sitaramayya asked if copies of those instruments could be circulated to Members as they were of vital importance to the House. Sir, as soon as a State accedes it becomes a part of the Dominion. This House is the Dominion Legislature for those purposes which are contained in the Instruments of Accession—and subjects like customs are contained in the Instruments. But in so far as these matters are not regulated the Government of India should pass legislation and wherever under a particular Instrument of Accession a particular matter is not applicable to that State and jurisdiction is not conferred on the Dominion Government to that extent that law would not apply to that State.

Sir, yesterday the Honourable Prime Minister moved two Bills—one in connection with grant of certain immunities and privileges to representatives of the U.N.O. and the other authorising Government to impose restrictions in the shape of economic sanctions at a time of emergency, under direction from the U.N.O. or the Security Council. Well, these Bills were made to apply to the whole of India. The original Bills had the words "British India" but the Prime Minister himself tabled an amendment to substitute the words "British India" by "the Provinces of India". But later on he accepted the word "India" in its place and we passed the Bill. Therefore, my submission is that the original Act should be amended so as to make it applicable not only to the Provinces but to the whole of India thereby including all those States which have acceded and which by the Instruments of Accession have endowed the Dominion of India with jurisdiction over these particular matters.

Shri B. Das: But there should be an adaptation committee. All laws should be adapted.

Shri M. Anathasayanam Ayyangar: When we are on a particular Act we should deal with that Act alone.

Then, Sir, yesterday the Finance Minister told us that we had 1200 crores of currency but that we had only gold backing to the extent of 42 crores. Most of it is in the form of sterling. What proposals has he to have gold backing for the sterling that we have? May I ask him if in the near future he is going to ask Britain that so much of gold has to be given to us in place of sterling which is due to us? I believe a separate day will be allotted for discussion of the temporary arrangement which has been entered into with the British Government.

On this Bill, I would require some enlightenment on this question as to how he proposes to have sufficient backing by way of gold if he is seeking to impose all sorts of restrictions and try to extend these restrictions to the States.

Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena (U.P.: General): Sir, I suffer from a handicap. We are supplied with these amending Bills to minor Acts without the Acts themselves and it is very difficult for us to find the relevant Acts. Yesterday, I was told by the secretary to refer to the copy of the Indian Trade Unions Act in the Library but when I went there it was not available and I had to purchase it. In fact, when we are asked to amend an Act I request the Honourable Minister to supply us with copies of the Act which is sought to be amended, especially if it is a minor one.

In this particular case, I do not know whether the original Act makes some provision to stop the import of bullion through the Pakistan area. This amendment is being made to make it impossible for gold to be imported from neighbouring areas to India. I do not know whether any method has been devised to stop the import of gold through Pakistan. It is quite possible that gold may be smuggled through the Pakistan areas and sold at higher rates in India and the profits pocketed by the Pakistan Government. I ask, Sir, is there any provision in the original Act about it or does the Honourable Minister propose to deal with the matter separately?

Shri T. Prakasam: Sir, this amending Bill is fundamentally wrong. It starts with a Reserve Bank that came into existence before the 15th of August and has ceased to exist on the 15th of August. That Reserve Bank cannot be considered to be functioning today. A new Reserve Bank must come into existence to function since the present change of Government in the country. That is the first objection.

The second objection is the retention of the words "British India". It is wrong to go on using that term either in this Bill or any other Bill. It is now India proper belonging to the people. This is a matter which has to be considered by you, Sir, and the House. It was said by the Honourable the Law Minister that the 1935 Act had been adapted and we had therefore to let the old provisions continue. I say it is wrong to say so. Take the Indian Independence Act. It lays down that the provisions of the Government of India Act, 1935, may be adapted so far as they would not be inconsistent with the new status and new position attained by this country. It is really a tragedy that this expression should continue to be used in various measures and also the words "His Majesty's Government". The Independence Act clearly said that India had attained independence. If it had really confined itself to transfer of power to the millions of this country, it would have been different, but instead of doing that, it went out of its way to lay down certain provisions which are only advisory, not mandatory. Once the power is transferred to the Indian people, there is an end of the matter and the British Parliament, the British Cabinet and the British people have nothing to do with them. If I remember aright, the essence of the Independence Act was that the British Government would not be responsible for anything that is being done in this country after the power has been transferred. We are now absolutely free people. Therefore, the expression "British India" must be taken out of this amending Bill. It is really tragic that the Government should deem it proper to use it and the Honourable the Law Minister should give an explanation for it. We can only adapt the provisions of the Government of India Act, 1935, only in so far as it would not be inconsistent with the true independence that has been attained by the Indian people. Therefore, I say for more than one reason a fresh amending Bill should be brought and so far as the Reserve Bank is concerned, it is high time that the old Reserve Bank should be allowed to continue to function and become part of the law here that is passed by us.

Mr. Speaker: It is time for the House to adjourn now. I should have thought that the matter has been sufficiently discussed and I was just going to call upon the Finance Member. However, after Mr. Chaudhuri's speech the Finance Member may reply. The House shall now adjourn for Lunch.

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till Half Past Two of the Clock.

The Assembly reassembled after Lunch at Half Past Two of the Clock Mr. Speaker (The Honourable Mr. G. V. Mavalankar) in the Chair.

Shri Rohini Kumar Chaudhuri (Assam: General): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I confess I did not pay much attention to this Bill as it was purely a financial measure and I could trust our able Finance Minister to do the best for us in this matter. I must also confess, Sir, that my attention was drawn to this Bill first as I was aroused from my peaceful slumber when a reference was made to golden bullion—because however poor a man may be, he is certain to be attracted by a mention of gold bullion. But after all, Sir, it does not matter much for me whether one rolls on gold, or sleeps on it, or you bedeck yourself like our Honourable lady members of this House with any amount of gold and jewellery or you can eat, out of golden cups as some do. But I was painfully struck by the fact that although more than 3 months have elapsed since we declared our independence that we are still thinking in terms of 'British India' and 'British Indian subject'. Sir, why is it that you have not up till now been able to realize that we have achieved independence? Is it because we are having a British Governor-General to start with and to end with our Dominion Status, or is it because we have a British Supreme Commander to start with or is it because we have hosts of British officers still who hold the key positions in the administration of our country? Is that the reason why we want to retain our British Indian character? Sir, it has been said that it is merely a legal fiction. It has been said that it is a merely legal fiction when you use the word "British Indian Dominion". I am aware that in this country unfortunately or fortunately there is still a large number of people who like to dress themselves like Britishers, and who are still accustomed to the British mode of food, but that is not the reason for which anyone would like to call himself a British Indian subject. I am sure, Sir, not even a child in India would like to dub himself as a British Indian subject today, not to speak of legal fiction. I am sure that I am voicing the sentiments of this House when I say that nobody would like to think even in dream that he is a British Indian subject or that the country in which we are living is British India. Sir, my Honourable friend the legal expert Dr. Ambedkar said that there was no difficulty in using the word 'British India' in this Bill. I should have expected him to say that there is no difficulty whatsoever in taking that word out and using the word 'India' and even if there were any difficulty such difficulty could not be insurmountable. So, Sir, all I want to say is that I voice not only the sentiments of the Honourable Members of this House, but I voice also the sentiments of the country around, that it is too late in the day to think, that we make a law now where we use the words 'British India'. I would say that we should not look at this Bill even, unless the Honourable Member in charge of the Bill gives a definite assurance that he will not use this word 'British India' or 'British Indian subject' and disfigure an important statute.

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: Sir, I did not expect that this small amending Bill will furnish the occasion for so much debate covering such a wide variety of topics. The necessity for this Bill arose on account of the action of a company in an Indian State which attempted to import gold sometime back and evade the restriction imposed by the Reserve Bank.

A company in an Indian State imported 20,000 totals of gold and this gold was brought by a special chartered plane intended for the State. During its flight it touched Karachi, which then was a part of India. What we did was applying the provisions of the Foreign Exchange Regulation Act, we considered that this gold has been brought into India against the provisions of the Act and without a licence from the Reserve Bank, notwithstanding the fact that it was intended to be sent to an Indian State. So we confiscated this gold under the provisions of the Act. The State in question has challenged our authority to do so and has stated that they will take up this matter to the Supreme Court.

[Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty.]

With a view to avoid any legal complications arising out of this action of ours and with a view to prevent any such contingency happening in the future, we thought that we should amend section 8 of the Foreign Exchange Regulation Act, so that any gold which comes into India on its way to an adjoining territory would also be covered by the provisions of his Act. That is the genesis of the Bill.

The use of the term 'British India' in this amending Bill has been rightly questioned by certain Honourable Members. As I stated in my opening remarks I myself objected to the use of this term when the draft Bill was presented before me. But then, not being a legal authority myself, I had to submit to the opinion of our legal experts. They were of the view that since this Bill is intended to amend an original Act, in which the term 'British India' occurs, for the sake of consistency and uniformity, it will be appropriate to retain the same term in the amending Bill also. I may assure Honourable Members that it is not the intention of the Ministry of Finance by means of this Bill to make independent India once again a British dependency. I have no doubt that since this matter has been raised on the floor of the House, the Ministry of Law would examine this point and take suitable measures, so that this offending expression might be avoided in future legislation. I have been asked why I did not take this opportunity to extend the provisions of this Bill to the Indian States that have acceded to the Union. In fact here again it was my intention to see if I could apply the provisions of the Bill to such States. But then again I was told by our legal experts that we have not got the authority to do so, that this legislature in spite of its sovereign character cannot legislate for the Indian States except to the extent provided for and subject to the limitations contained in the Instruments of Accession of Indian States. I have been told that in the Instruments of Accession the Indian States have not given to the Indian Union legislature or the Dominion Government the power to enact any law applicable to the Indian States in this matter. In the absence of such power we have naturally to fall back upon the standstill agreements that we have made with the acceding States. Even in the standstill agreements I find that no provision has been made for the application of our exchange laws and import and export regulations to the acceding Indian States. We are now taking steps through the States Ministry to approach these Indian States and ask them to come in line with us with respect to all our exchange regulations and also the regulations regarding the import and export control. I have no doubt that all the acceding States will agree to this proposal and fall in line with us.

There is only one other point which my Honourable friend Mr. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar raised. If I have understood him rightly, the purport of his question was, why in view of the small gold holding in our currency reserve we should discourage the import of gold. It is not possible to give an adequate and full explanation in the course of this debate, but I might tell him this that the gold which forms a part of the currency reserve and which is called monetary gold has absolutely no relation with the gold that exists in the hands of the people. There is no means by which we can add to the currency reserves and increase our monetary gold by simply allowing the free inflow of gold into this country. The only manner in which the monetary gold can be increased is by our getting a favourable balance of trade in our favour and by creating a tender of gold to our monetary authorities in exchange for our currency. Whether that situation will ever arise I am not in a position to say. But I am sure my Honourable friend Mr. Ayyangar will realise that the free import of gold into India will not in any manner increase the monetary gold in our currency reserves.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: We will purchase gold in the market.

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: We cannot purchase in the Indian market for the simple reason that the price of gold in the Indian market is very much more than the international price of gold.

INDIAN PATENTS AND DESIGNS (EXTENSION OF TIME) AMENDMENT BILL

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: Will it not go down by a free inflow of gold if large quantities are purchased?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: There is absolutely no chance of the Indian price of gold going down because the hunger of our people for gold is so great that the more gold we get the greater is the desire of people to grab this gold even at this high price. Therefore in view of the ruling prices of gold in the Indian market it would never be possible for the Reserve Bank to add to its monetary reserve of gold by open purchases of gold in the Indian market.

Sir, I think I have covered all the points that were raised in the course of this debate, and I may assure the House that after this Bill is passed we will get into touch with the various acceding States and see that they also come into line with us in spite of all the restrictions imposed on the import of gold.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That the Bill to amend the Foreign Exchange Regulation Act, 1947, be taken into consideration."

The motion was adopted.

Clause 2 was added to the Bill.

Clause 1 was added to the Bill.

The Title and the Preamble were added to the Bill.

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: Sir, I move:

"That the Bill be passed."

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That the Bill be passed."

The motion was adopted.

INDIAN PATENTS AND DESIGNS (EXTENSION OF TIME) AMENDMENT BILL

The Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee (Minister for Industry and Supply): Sir, I move:

"That the Bill further to amend the Indian Patents and Designs (Extension of Times) Act, 1942, be taken into consideration."

This is a non-controversial measure. Its object is to extend the time for the operation of the Indian Patents and Designs (Extension of Time) Act, 1942, till 30th June, 1948. The time had expired on the 31st March, 1947. Several representations were then received by Government pointing out that in view of some international understanding it was necessary that a further extension of time should be given. Government was at first unwilling to grant any extension. Subsequently however that extension of time was given by means of an Ordinance which lapsed on the 31st Oct., 1947. It is now proposed in this Bill to extend the time to the 30th June, 1948, as has been agreed amongst 25 countries at the International Industrial Property Union Conference held in February last. Sir, I move.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That the Bill further to amend the Indian Patents and Designs (Extension of Times) Act, 1942, be taken into consideration."

The motion was adopted.

[Mr. Speaker]

Clauses 2 and 3 were added to the Bill.

Clause 1 was added to the Bill.

The Title and the Preamble were added to the Bill.

The Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee: Sir, I move:

"That the Bill be passed."

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

DELHI AND AJMER-MERWARA RENT CONTROL (AMENDMENT) BILL

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil (Minister for Works, Mines and Power):

Sir, I move:

"That the Bill to continue in force certain amendments of the Delhi and Ajmer-Merwara Rent Control Act, 1947, be taken into consideration."

In the budget session of the year 1947 the Ajmer-Merwara Rent Control Act was passed. That Act made provision for the control of rent but exempted buildings that were under construction and which were not completed and let out before that Act was promulgated, from the provisions of the said Act. After this enactment came into force the situation in Delhi, as is well known, became very acute from the point of view of accommodation; and those few buildings which came into existence and which were not covered by the provisions of the main Act were very much in demand. Business houses which closed down in Lahore and other towns in Western Punjab were very anxious to get some accommodation in Delhi in order to restart their business.

The result was that an ordinary room, say 15×20 was rented out for a monthly rent of Rs. 600. Numerous complaints were received and some of them were very serious and found to be true. The rent charges were so excessive that they bore no relation whatsoever to the capital costs of the new constructions. It was then thought necessary that this exemption which was given to new constructions under the main Act and which was expected to encourage building activities, should cease. There was good deal of pugree making and excessive rents were charged. It was decided by the Government that there must be some limit on the rent charged, and an Ordinance No. 18 of 1947 was promulgated on the 20th September 1947. The only change that was made by the Ordinance in the main Act was that the exemption that was given to new constructions was taken away and a certain procedure was laid down in the said Ordinance by which what is known as standard rent should be ascertained. For that purpose a Rent Controller is visualised and the provisions of the Rent Control Order that was in existence before the main Act was passed have been adopted. I think there is nobody in this House who would like to see that there should be no control on rent as such.

The exemption was made, as I said, with a view to encourage building activities in Delhi. But there is a limit to man's greed. Scarcity, should in ordinary circumstances call forth the best of virtues in the community such as self denial and consideration for fellow beings. But it has resulted in very undesirable things. Therefore it has become necessary, both on moral grounds, if the House can take notice of them, and on economic grounds and general grounds of giving a fair deal to all concerned that such an Ordinance should be passed. This Ordinance would ordinarily expire on the 20th March 1948. Therefore it has become necessary to introduce this Bill.

I have before me certain notices for amendments. One is for postponement of the consideration of this Bill: one is for reference to a Select Committee and one more to the effect that this enactment be limited in duration till the end of 31st December 1949. Some objection has been taken about the particular form in which this Bill is embodied, though there is not much substance in it, viz., the Bill does not give the provisions of the Ordinance which the Bill seeks to enact. I am however prepared to accept the motion for reference to Select Committee if it is moved on the condition that the report of the Select Committee is presented to the House before 1st December. Sir I move.

Mr. Speaker: Motion moved:

"That the Bill to continue in force certain amendments of the Delhi and Ajmer-Merwara Rent Control Act, 1947, be taken into consideration."

Shri Mohan Lal Saksena (U.P.: General) On a point of order. I think copies of the Ordinance should have been supplied to Members instead of bringing this Bill in this form. Copies have not been supplied and they have not been available in the Library.

Mr. Speaker: Of course I cannot accept it as a principle or point of order that the moment any amendment to a Bill is circulated, the piece of legislation which it seeks to amend must also be circulated. But there is a point. . . .

Shri Mohan Lal Saksena: This Bill only says that the provisions of such and such Ordinance should be enacted. It says nothing else.

Mr. Speaker: Even if it says nothing else, the Ordinance is there by reference and the book should be available to Members in the Library or otherwise. That would not be a point of order justifying the rejection of the Bill at this stage on the plea that it has not properly come forward. I can understand the ground of convenience—that members have not had the convenience of seeing the books of reference and therefore the consideration may be postponed by a few hours or by a few days. But since the Honourable the Minister in charge has stated that, if the Bill has to go to the Select Committee he has no objection, I do not think, inconvenience will be caused by the Ordinance not having been circulated to Members. Further, I am told by the Secretary that half a dozen copies were placed on the table of the Library and unfortunately Members removed those copies, and therefore they are now not available to other Members. It is difficult to ascertain who removed them. The fact is that the copies were placed on the Library table and the fact now is that they are not there. The Secretary says the copies were placed and the Honourable Member says that they are not there. So someone has removed them. I do not think that the point of order prevails.

Dr. P. S. Deshmukh (C.P. and Berar: General): I support the point of order.

Mr. Speaker: That point of order has been disposed of.

Dr. P. S. Deshmukh: I wanted to make a submission.

Mr. Speaker: That is too late.

Shri Mohan Lal Saksena: I only wanted that the Government Member should know the views of the Members of this House that we had difficulty in going through the Bill in the form in which it is presented. This is the first time that we are having a Bill like this. I think the Honourable Member should take into consideration the convenience of Members.

Mr. Speaker: That difficulty should be taken into consideration.

Does the Honourable Member propose to move his amendments?

Shri Deshbandhu Gupta (Delhi): I am moving the second one regarding reference to Select Committee. Sir, I move:

"That the Bill be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil, Pundit Thakur Das Bhargava, Pundit Mukut Bihari Lal Bhargava, Shri K. Santhanam, Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar, Shri Mohan Lal Saksena, Shri S. K. Patil and the Mover, with instructions to report by the 1st December, 1947, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

(After moving the amendment in English the Honourable member continued his speech in Hindustani.)

شری دیس بندھو گپتا : ادھیکش مہودے ! اس ترمیم کو پیش کرتے ہوئے میں یہ بات صاف کر دینا چاہتا ہوں کہ جہاں تک rent control کے اصول کا تعلق ہے میں اس کا مخالف نہیں ہوں۔ میں سمجھتا ہوں کہ اب سے آٹھ مہینے پہلے ہی ہاؤس نے Rent Control Act کو پاس کر کے اس اصول کو تسلیم کر لیا تھا۔ مجھے آپ شاکرینگی اگر میں اس اوسر پر اپنے لائق دوست کو جو ابھی حال میں ملسٹر ہوئے ہیں اور اس لحاظ سے بدھائی کے مستحق ہیں اس بل کے پیش کرنے پر بدھائی نہ دوں۔ اس کی وجہ یہ ہے کہ آج جبکہ سارا دیس کنٹرولوں سے تلگ آچکا ہے اور مہاتما گاندھی کہانے اور کہتے تک پر لگائے گئے کنٹرولوں کے خلاف بہت بھاری آندوان کر رہے ہیں ہمارے سامنے مکانوں پر جو تیسرے درجہ کی چیز ہے کنٹرول زیادہ سخت کرنے کی تجویز رکھی گئی ہے۔ بجائے اسکے کہ میرے لائق دوست آج اس ہاؤس (House) کے سامنے house building کا بڑا پروگرام رکھتے اور یہ بتلاتے کہ دھلی میں جس کی آبادی پہلے ہی دو تین لکھی ہو چکی تھی اور جس میں اب دو لاکھ سے زیادہ شرنارتھی اور آکر بس گئے ہیں جس سے دھلی والوں کا کچھومر نکلا جا رہا ہے ہزاروں کی تعداد میں مکان تعمیر کئے جائیں گے۔ انہوں نے اس ہاؤس کے سامنے ایک ایسا بل رکھ دیا ہے جو کسی صورت سے house problem کو نہیں کر سکتا۔ میرے لائق دوست کو چاہئے تھا کہ آج ہاؤس کو یہ بتلاتے کہ آئندہ چھ مہینے کے اندر کتنے نئے مکان سرکاری طور پر بنوانے کا فیصلہ کیا گیا ہے اور کتنے آدمیوں کو پرائیویٹ طور پر مکانات بنوانے کی ترغیب دی گئی ہے اور گورنمنٹ house building کے کام کو کس طریقے پر encourage کر رہی ہے جس سے دھلی کا housing problem حل ہو جائیگا اور جو آجکل مکانات کی کمی کی وجہ سے لوگوں کو جن مصیبتوں کا سامنا کرنا پڑ رہا ہے وہ دور ہو جائیگی۔ لیکن بجائے اسکے ایک ایسا بل لایا جا رہا ہے جس کا لازمی نتیجہ یہ ہوگا کہ جو تھوڑے بہت لوگ آجکل private مکان بنوانے کا حوصلہ کرتے ہیں وہ بھی ہست ہار بیٹھیں گے۔

Shri M. S. Aney : The Department is unhealthy.

شری دیس بندھو گپتا : You have described it rightly : ایک مرتبہ میں پھر یہ بات صاف کر دینا چاہتا ہوں کہ مجھے ان لوگوں سے کوئی ہمدردی نہیں ہے جو ناواجب کرایہ charge کرتے ہیں۔ میرے خیال میں ہاؤس کے کسی ممبر کو ان سے کوئی ہمدردی نہیں ہوگی۔ لیکن اس

قسم کا بل پیش کرنے سے پہلے ایک دو دن لگا کر یہ معلوم کر لینا چاہئے تھا کہ آخر دھلی میں کتنے نئے مکان بنے ہیں اور ان میں سے کتنوں نے ناواجب کرایہ چارج (charge) کیا ہے۔ جناب صدر ! جیسا کہ میں نے پہلے کہا تھا حال ہی میں دھلی کی آبادی میں دو لاکھ سے زیادہ refugees اور شامل ہو گئے ہیں اور اس طریق پر دھلی کی آبادی جو جنگ کے زمانے میں ہی کافی بڑھ چکی تھی اور زیادہ بڑھ گئی ہے۔ شری ایم۔ ایس۔ ایف : دھلی کی آبادی اسوقت کتنی ہے ؟

شری دیس بندھو گپتا : اس وقت دھلی کی آبادی آٹھ یا نو لاکھ سے کم نہیں ہے۔ میرے لائق دوست کو معلوم ہونا چاہئے کہ جو کرایہ کنٹرول کا بل (Rent Control Bill) پچھلے اجلاس میں ہمارے سامنے رکھا گیا تھا اسے پیش کرتے ہوئے مسٹر گوگلے نے یہ کہا تھا کہ سرکار کا ہرگز یہ مقصد نہیں ہے کہ مکانات کی تعمیر پر اس کا برا اثر پڑے۔ چنانچہ اسی خیال سے اس بل میں سلیکٹ کمیٹی (Select Committee) نے یہ ترمیم کی تھی کہ جو نئے مکان بنیں ان مکانوں کے کرایہ پر کوئی کنٹرول (control) نہ کیا جائے تاکہ موجودہ مشکلات کے باوجود جو لوگ مکان بنواتے ہیں وہ حوصلہ شکن نہ ہوں۔ لیکن میں دیکھتا ہوں کہ چھ مہینے کے عرصہ میں ایسی تو کوئی چیز نہیں کی گئی جس سے یہ پتہ چلتا کہ گورنمنٹ نے مکان بنوانے کے سلسلے میں جو یہ یقین دلایا تھا کہ ہم اس کام میں لوگوں کو encourage کوئینگے وہ کسی درجہ پوری ہوئی۔ برخلاف اسکے ان پر کنٹرول لگانیکا بل پیش کر دیا گیا۔ میرے خیال میں مشکل سے سو دو سو یا زیادہ سے زیادہ چار سو پانچ سو مکان ایسے بنے ہونگے جن پر اس بل کا جو ہمارے سامنے لایا جا رہا ہے اطلاقی ہوگا۔ ایسی حالت میں ہاؤس کے ممبران خود فیصلہ کر سکتے ہیں کہ اس سے مکان بنانے والے حوصلہ افزا ہونگے یا حوصلہ شکن ہونگے۔ جناب والا ! میں اپنے لائق دوست کو بتلانا چاہتا ہوں کہ راستو میں اس سے ایک بڑی کٹھن سمسیا (مسئلہ) ہمارے سامنے پیش ہے۔ اور دھلی والے مکانوں کی کمی کی وجہ سے بہت پریشان ہیں۔ اور اس پریشانی کو دور کرنے کا طریقہ یا اس مسئلہ کا حل یہ نہیں ہے جو میرے لائق دوست نے پیش کیا ہے۔ جناب صدر ! میں بدقسمتی سے مہاجرین کی جائداد کا محافظ (Custodian of Evacuees' Property) کی سنگت (Central Advisory Committee) کا ایک ممبر ہوں اس حیثیت سے مجھے کو کتنے ایسے آدمیوں سے ملنے کا اتفاق ہوا ہے جو کل تک ریست پنجاب میں لکھ پتی یا کروڑ پتی سمجھے جاتے تھے اور بڑے بڑے عالیشان مکانات میں رہتے تھے اور جو بڑی بڑی عمارتوں کے مالک تھے وہ آج Custodian of Evacuees' Property اور اینڈوائزری کمیٹی (Advisory Committee) کے ممبروں کے دروازوں پر لٹائے دن میں چار چار چکر لگاتے ہیں کہ کس طرح انہیں سر چھپانے کیلئے کوئی

[شری دیس بندھو گپتا]

مکان ملجائے۔ مگر یہاں حالت یہ ہے کہ انہیں for love or for money کسی بھاڑ مکان نہیں ملتا۔ میں اُن سے ملکر بہت شرمندہ اور پریشان ہوتا ہوں اور اپنے آپکو بے بس پاتا ہوں کہ آج popular government کے ہوتے ہوئے بھی ہم اُن کی مصیبتوں کو دور کرنے کیلئے کچھ نہیں کر پاتے اور کوئی راستہ نہیں نکال سکتے۔

میں اپنے لائق دوست کی اس بات سے سہمت ہوں کہ Connaught Circus میں مکان کا کرایا سو روپیہ ہونا چاہئے تھا۔ آج کچھ مکان دار اُسکی جگہ پانچ سو کرایہ لے رہے ہیں نیز اُن پر ہزاروں روپیہ پگڑی کا بھی دیا جاتا ہے۔ ایک دوکان خود میرے notice میں ایسی آئی ہے جسکے لئے پچاس ہزار روپیہ پگڑی کے ایک refugee نے ادا کئے۔

ہیں جہاں اینٹیں بنائی جاتی ہیں اور ایک بھتے کے لئے ایک ایک سو تن ماہواری کوئلہ درکار ہے۔ اس کے یہ معنی ہیں کہ کل ۲۷ بھتے ایک ماہ کام کر سکتے ہیں۔ اور وہ بھی اس حالت میں کہ سارا ۱۷۰۰۰ تن جو گورنمنٹ آف انڈیا دہلی کو دیتی ہے یہاں پہنچ جائے۔ اس میں سے پنہچتا کتنا ہے یہ کہنا مشکل ہے۔ سیمنٹ (cement) کی حالت اس سے بھی بدتر ہے۔ جو نئے مکان بن رہے ہیں اگر وہاں جاکر معلوم کیا جائے تو آپکو پتہ لگے گا کہ جو سیمنٹ دو روپیہ فی بوری کنٹرول ریت کے حساب سے ملنا چاہئے وہ ۱۱ روپیہ فی بوری دام دیکر خرید کی جا رہی ہے۔ اسی طرح مال گڑیوں کی کمی کی وجہ سے لکڑی سستے داموں پر دستیاب نہیں ہوتی۔ میں یہ جانتا ہوں کہ گورنمنٹ کے سامنے بھی بہت سی مشکلات ہیں۔ وہ کافی مقدار میں لوہا۔ سیمنٹ اور لکڑی وغیرہ مہیا نہیں کر سکتی۔ چنانچہ اس کا خیال کرتے ہوئے میں نے کمیٹی ہذا کے سامنے یہ سکیم پیش کی تھی کہ دہلی کے نزدیک ایک شہر کچی اینٹوں کے مکانات کا آباد کیا جائے۔ اندازہ کیا گیا تھا کہ فی مکان چار پانچ ہزار روپے سے زیادہ کی لاگت معہ زمین کے نہیں آئیگی۔ اور یہ مکانات دس پندرہ سال ضرور چل جائینگے۔ آخر ہندوستان کے سات لاکھ گاؤں میں بھی لوگ کچے مکانات میں ہی رہتے ہیں پھر کیوں نہ ایک شہر کچے مکانات کا بسایا جائے اور اس طریق پر شرنارتھیوں نیز گورنمنٹ سرونٹس کی بھی جو ادھر ادھر دھکے کھاتے پھرتے ہیں پریشانی دور کر دی جائے؟ خیال یہ تھا کہ ایسا کرنے سے اُن کے رہنے کا بندوبست ہو جائیگا اور پھر آہستہ آہستہ جب حالات بدلیں گے یہ مکانات پکے بنتے چلے جائینگے اور کچھ نہیں کم سے کم اسوقت سر چھپانے کے لئے تو کچھ انتظام ہو جائیگا۔ لیکن اس سکیم پر اب تک کوئی عمل درآمد نہیں کیا گیا۔

میں انریبل ممبر سے اپیل کروں گا کہ اگر وہ سچے سچے غریب طبقہ کی مدد کرنا چاہتے ہیں تو سستے داموں پر زمین دیجئے۔ سستے داموں پر اور دوسرا building material دیجئے تاکہ لوگ زیادہ سے زیادہ تعداد میں مکان بنوائیں اور اپنے سر چھپانے کو کوئی تھکانا کر سکیں۔ اس طرح سے دہلی کے گھر کی مشکلات (house problem) کا بھی حل مل جائیگا اور کرایہ داروں (tenants) کو بھی سچے معنی میں فائدہ پہنچے گا۔

اس بات کی طرف بھی میں گورنمنٹ کا دھیان کھیچنا چاہتا ہوں کہ امپروومنٹ ٹرسٹ (Improvement Trust) اول تو کوئی ترقی (development) کی سکیم بنانا نہیں۔ اگر بنانا بھی ہے تو وہ کئی کئی مہینے چیف کمشنر صاحب کے ہاں دفتر میں پڑی رہتی ہے : چنانچہ تین سالہ سکیم (Three Years' Plan) جو امپروومنٹ ٹرسٹ نے کئی مہینے ہوئے پاس کیا تھا ابھی تک وہیں دھکے کھا رہا ہے اور غالباً سرکار ہلد تک پہنچا بھی نہیں ہے۔

[شری دیش بندھو گپتا]

مکانوں کے مسئلہ کو حل کرنے کے لئے یہ بھی ضروری ہے کہ شہر میں ٹرانسپورٹ کا مناسب انتظام ہو تاکہ لوگ کافی دور تک پہنچ سکیں۔ جناب صدر! آپ کو تو شاید کبھی شہر میں جانے کا اتفاق نہیں ہوتا۔ مگر دوسرے مسبران جانتے ہیں کہ آج شہر میں ٹرانسپورٹ کا انتظام کس درجہ خراب ہے اور ایک جگہ سے دوسری جگہ جانے کے لئے بڑے بڑے شریف آدمیوں کو کتنی کتنی دیر تک لائن میں کھڑا رہنا پڑتا ہے۔ ابھی کل میرے پاس ایک پرنسپل صاحب آئے اور انہوں نے مجھ سے کہا کہ صاحب ایک کھنڈہ لائن میں کھڑے رہے تب کہیں دھکے دھکی کے بعد بس کے اندر جگہ ملی۔

(English translation of the above speech)

Shri Deshbandhu Gupta (Delhi): Mr. Speaker, in moving the amendment I desire to make it clear to the House that so far as the principle of the Rent Control Act is concerned I do not disagree with it. I understand 3 P.M. that only eight months ago the House accepted this principle by passing the Rent Control Act. You will excuse me if at this time I do not offer my congratulations to my able friend on his recent appointment as a Minister in this Government. It is because we find today that the whole of this country is fed up with the system of controls. Mahatma Gandhi himself is trying to foster a strong agitation against the controls even on food and cloth. In the face of this we have today a Bill proposing control over the houses, an item which comes third on the list of our necessities. My friend should have placed before this House a big programme for house building. He should have pointed out that many new houses should be constructed in this city. He should have told us that the population of Delhi had already increased to twice or thrice its normal before the refugees came in and that it has gone up by another two lakhs. He should have drawn our attention to this fact that this large number of the new comers has become a burden on the local residents. Instead of that he has introduced such a Bill which does not, in any way, solve the housing problem. He should have rather told us how many new houses the Government have decided to construct in the next six months, and how many men have been encouraged to erect their private buildings. He should have tried to bring to light in what way our Government was encouraging the programme of house building to solve the housing problem in Delhi. It would have been better if he had told us what steps are being taken to remove the difficulties which are confronting the people due to the present shortage of accommodation. But on the contrary a Bill is being presented to us, the obvious result of which would be that a wet blanket would be thrown on the aspirations of those few who intend to build new houses in these days.

Shri M. S. Aney: The department is unhealthy.

Shri Deshbandhu Gupta: You have described it rightly. At the same time I would like to make it clear to all that I have no sympathy whatsoever with those who charge exorbitant rents; and I am sure none of us present here has any admiration for them. Before this Bill was presented, it would have been better if data had been collected of all those houses that have been newly built and of how many of these have been let on unreasonable rents. Mr. Speaker, as I said before, the population of Delhi has recently increased by the influx of another two lakhs of refugees. This has further swollen the population of Delhi which was already overcrowded during the war days.

Shri M. S. Aney: What is the population of Delhi at this time?

Shri Deshbandhu Gupta: It is not less than eight to nine lakhs.

My learned friend should know that during the last Session, when the Rent Control Bill was brought before the House Mr. Gokhale assured the Assembly that in no case did the Government intend that this Bill should have a bad effect on the construction of houses. Consequently, keeping this thing in view, the Select Committee made amendments in that Bill to the effect that all the newly constructed houses should be exempted from the rent control so that they who wanted to make new houses in those difficult times were not discouraged. But I find that during the past six months no such things have been done by the Government which could enable one to judge how far the Government have succeeded in fulfilling those assurances which it gave regarding encouragement to those enterprisers who wanted to make new houses. To the contrary, however, a Bill has been introduced which proposes that the rents of these houses may also be controlled. I think there would be hardly a hundred or two, or at the most four to five hundred such houses to which this Bill, which is being brought before us, would apply. Bearing this thing in mind, the Honourable Members of the House can judge for themselves whether this Bill would encourage or discourage those who want to build new houses.

Sir, I want to tell my able friend, that, as a matter of fact, we are, at this time, confronted with a very difficult problem. The shortage of the houses has put the residents of Delhi on the horns of a dilemma; and the way to lessen this worry or to solve this problem is not as my wise friend has suggested. Sir, unfortunately, I happen to be a member of the Advisory Committee appointed to assist the Custodian of Evacuees' Property. As such I have had the opportunity of coming across many such men who till recently were counted amongst the millionaires of the West Punjab, who lived in palatial houses, and owned big buildings. Today we find these men knocking, some times even four to five times in a day, at the doors of the Custodian of Evacuees' Property and of the members of this Advisory Committee, in the hope of getting just a roof over their heads. We are in such a position that neither for love nor for money can we give them a house. I am both ashamed and worried when I meet them. I find myself in a state of utter helplessness. In spite of the fact that we have today a popular Government at the centre we have not been able to do anything for allaying their difficulties. We have failed to find a way out of it.

I agree with my intelligent friend that the rent of a house in the Connaught Circus should not have been more than one hundred rupees per month. But we find today that some of the landlords are charging not less than five hundred rupees for a house. Moreover, thousands of rupees are spent in the black market or are paid as, what is commonly called 'pugree'. I know of a shop for the procurement of which a refugee has paid fifty thousand rupees (Rs. 50,000) as 'pugree'. I have to ask the Government what steps it has taken to check this system of 'pugree'. In my opinion merely the enactment of a law of this kind will not help us. What is required is an overhauling of the Government machinery. It has been said that this Bill will benefit the tenants.

CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY OF INDIA (LEGISLATIVE)

[20TH Nov. 1947]

[Shri Deshbandhu Gupta]

But I want to ask, Sir, in what way the mere control of rents can help the new tenants if the system of 'pugree' is allowed to continue. No sooner do you try to control the rents than the landlords will demand still greater money as 'pugree'. The fact is that we should try to have as many more houses built as we possibly can; and to this the Honourable Member should pay a greater attention.

Sometime back the Government of India appointed a Committee named the "Improvement Trust Land Disposal Review Committee". I was also a member on it. This Committee made some important suggestions regarding the construction of houses. A few months back the report of this Committee was sent to the Government of India. As the Improvement Trust happens to be under the Health Department, I doubt if my wise friend has even received a copy of this report. Sir, from the figures that have been placed before this Committee one infers that there are many difficulties in the way of the construction of new houses. For building a house one requires cement, timber and steel; and for burning the bricks in the kilns one requires coal. And now just listen how the requirements of the Delhi public are met. A quota of only 500 tons of steel has been allotted to Delhi and even that is given in four instalments. Upto the month of July even this instalment had not been received. The quota of coal, as allotted to Delhi, is only 2,700 tons per season. From no point of view can we call it sufficient. There are about 156 brick burning kilns in Delhi. One kiln requires 100 tons of coal per month. This means that only twenty-seven kilns can work for a month with this coal; and that also depends upon the full delivery of 2,700 tons of coal, the quota sanctioned to Delhi by the Government of India. But how much of it does actually reach here? It is difficult to say.

The position of cement is still worse. If we go to the houses that are being built and enquire about cement, it will be found that a bag of cement is being purchased for Rs. 11 whereas the controlled price is just two rupees per bag. Similarly, the shortage of goods trains makes it difficult for us to obtain timber at cheap rates. I quite realise that the Government is also faced with many difficulties which do not enable it to procure timber, cement and coal in sufficiently large quantities. Bearing this in my mind, I had placed before the said Committee a scheme to build a new city entirely made of unburnt bricks. It was estimated that the total cost on a house of this kind would not be more than four to five thousands of rupees inclusive of the cost of land; and the house would easily last for ten to fifteen years. After all, people are living in 'katcha' houses in the seven lakhs of Indian villages. Why not, then, have a new town of 'katcha' houses and thereby lessen the worries of the refugees and of those Government servants who have to wander about for want of accommodation. The idea was that this would meet their immediate need of houses, and then by and by, when conditions improve, 'pacca' houses would spring up. This would at least provide them with a shelter. But no steps seem to have been taken to put this scheme into practice.

I have, therefore, to request the Honourable Minister that if he really wants to help the poor let him give them lands and building materials at cheap rates so that people may be encouraged to build the maximum number of houses for their own use. This would also solve the housing problem in Delhi and the tenants receive a help in the real sense of the word.

May I draw the attention of Government to this fact that in the first place the Improvement Trust does not evolve any development scheme, and if at all any such scheme is formed, it remains for months and months together in the office of the Chief Commissioner. Thus the Three Years' Plan, approved by the Improvement Trust several months ago, is still lying in that office, and I wonder if it has reached the Government of India even up to this time.

To solve the problem of housing it is also necessary to have adequate arrangements of transport in the city so that people can live even at far off places round it. Sir, you might not have had the occasion of going into the city yourself, but the other Honourable Members of this House know it well that the existing transport arrangements in the city are simply hopeless. For hours and hours together respectable citizens have to stand in queues to catch a bus. Only yesterday a principal of a college came to me and complained that he had to wait for full one hour before he could struggle his way into the bus. I hope my wise friend will attend to these fundamentals before everything else and suggest an appropriate solution for this shortage of houses in this city. Let me assure him that I have not spoken merely for the sake of criticism. It is because I have great hopes on him that I have made some constructive suggestions. I hope he will consider them sympathetically and will have no objection if the Bill be referred to a Select Committee. I must say one word more in this connection, that it would be better if such Bills as deal only with Delhi are referred to the Advisory Committee to the Chief Commissioner. This will save a lot of time of this House. Moreover, the House will also get the opinions of the local population.

Mr. Speaker: Amendment moved:

"That the Bill be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil, Pundit Thakur Das Bhargava, Pundit Mukut Bihari Lal Bhargava, Shri K. Santhanam, Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar, Shri Mohan Lal Saksena, Shri S. K. Patil and the Mover, with instructions to report by the 1st December, 1947, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa (C.P. and Berar: General): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to oppose the amendment moved by my friend Mr. Deshbandhu Gupta, and I strongly support the motion moved by the Honourable the Mover of this Bill. I have heard with very great patience the arguments advanced by my friend the mover of this amendment, and I must say, Sir, I am not at all convinced by the arguments that he has put before this Honourable House and that the alternative for this Bill is to build more houses. I have no objection to his argument as regards the number of houses to be increased and there could be no quarrel as regards that.

Mr. Speaker: May I suggest one thing to the Honourable Member? Just to save the time of this House, the Honourable Minister, while moving the motion for consideration, stated that he had no objection to agreeing to the Bill being taken to the Select Committee. The Select Committee is expected to report by 1st December. This House should be in session at least for a fortnight after that. So if he has to say anything now on the merits by way of opposition, if he reserves his remarks just at present and then offers them after the Bill comes to the House with the report of the Select Committee, we shall be avoiding discussion of the same subjects.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: Ordinarily I would certainly not have objected if the amendment were to be brought in this very Session. But I am very much opposed to the principle of sending this Bill to the Select Committee because there is nothing in this Bill which requires consideration in the Select Committee. The Bill is quite clear. Even if the mover agrees, I have my right to oppose it because there is a danger. If the Bill is sent to the Select Committee the Honourable Members in that Committee may bring in a proposal of such a nature which will be rather detrimental for acceptance to the majority of Members and it will not be proper, therefore, Sir, that in this case I should Shri Deshbandhu Gupta: I have no objection, Sir, if the Honourable Member's name is also added to the list suggested by me.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: It is so good of him to suggest my name but I am suggesting many new names.

Mr. Speaker: The Honourable Member is perfectly within his right in discussing the motion but even if he discusses it now the same discussion will take place again after the Bill comes into the House for reference to the Select Committee. He can give his names of the Select Committee.

An Honourable Member: Without a speech.

Mr. Speaker: I think it would be easily agreed upon between the Member who moved his motion and the Honourable Member who wishes to oppose it. My anxiety is to save time and not to curtail any Member's rights.

Shri Deshbandhu Gupta: I have no objection for any Member to be on the Select Committee.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: Sir, I have no objection. But I do submit this is a very important Bill—it affects the people as a whole. Let me tell you, Sir, that the tenants consider the rent measure as a blessing given by the Government. Therefore, I would emphasise its importance. Hold a meeting in Delhi and see whether the public wants this rent control to be retained or not. I say that from the public point of view rent control is a blessing to the poorer section, and the lower middle class.

Shri Deshbandhu Gupta: I have never opposed rent control. Perhaps my friend did not follow my Hindustani speech.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: I have followed every word of his speech. Now, Sir, with due deference to your wishes I reserve my speech for the time when the Bill comes in. I move that the following names.....

Shri M. S. Aney: Sir, my contention is this. Is my friend, Mr. Sidhwa, opposed to the very principle of sending the Bill to the Select Committee? He himself is suggesting names for the Select Committee.

Mr. Speaker: There is a misapprehension on the part of the Honourable Member who has raised this point. Mr. Sidhwa is not opposed to the principle of sending this Bill to the Select Committee. Now Mr. Sidhwa may mention names.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: The Honourable Minister in charge of the Bill, Prof. K. T. Shah, Shri H. J. Khandekar, Shri Deshbandu Gupta, Shri K. Santhanam, Shri V. I. Munishwami Pillai, Shri R. V. Dhulekar, Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena, Shri Khandubhai K. Desai, Shri M. S. Aney, Begum Aizaz Rasul and the mover.

Mr. Speaker: Has the Honourable Member consulted the various Honourable Members before suggesting their names?

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: No, Sir, I have not consulted them and they are free to withdraw.

Mr. Speaker: I want to know if the various Members whose names are suggested are willing to work on the Select Committee. The Honourable Minister is there, and Prof. K. T. Shah, Shri H. J. Khandekar, Shri Deshbandhu Gupta, Shri Munishwami Pillai, and Prof. N. G. Ranga, indicate their willingness to serve.

Mr. Dhulekar is not agreeable. Mr. Shibban Lal Saksena and Mr. Khandubhai Desai are not in the House.

Shri M. S. Aney: I am prepared to serve but not in supersession of the old committee.

Mr. Speaker: No this is in addition to the old committee.

Begum Aizaz Rasul (U. P.: Muslim): Sir, I am very grateful to Mr. Sidhwa for having included my name. I did not know of it before, otherwise I would have told him that I would be going out of Delhi on the 25th. If this Committee is to report on the 1st of December I am afraid I may not be able to devote much time for it. But I am prepared to serve for such period as I would be in Delhi.

Mr. Speaker: There is a common desire to have this Bill referred to the Select Committee. I shall therefore add the new names suggested by Mr. Sidhwa, and if Mr. Gupta accepts the amendment, then it will be all right.

Mr. Speaker: I now put the amendment of Mr. Sidhwa.

Amendment to amendment moved:

"That in Lala Deshbandhu Gupta's amendment the names of Prof. N. G. Ranga, Prof. K. T. Shah, Shri H. J. Khandekar, Shri V. I. Munishwami Pillai, Shri Khandubhai K. Desai, Shri M. S. Aney, Begum Aizaz Rasul, and Mr. R. K. Sidhwa, be added to the names of Members of the Select Committee."

These are the eight names to be added. I have taken out the common names

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta: So far as I am concerned, Sir, I have not the least objection in accepting the names suggested by Mr. Sidhwa, but I must make it clear that the names I suggested were not of my own selection. They were the party nominations. Probably, my friend being new to this House, did not know the procedure and did not consult the party regarding his names. In any case, I have no objection to his proposal.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: Sir, on a matter of personal explanation. I do not know anything of the party. I am more loyal to the party than probably my friend is. I suggest that this matter should not be brought here. I know the party discipline and I have always followed it. I know not what party has to be consulted. Some two or three people may have formed themselves into a party and they may have taken a decision.

Mr. Speaker: There is no question of any challenge to anybody's loyalty to any party. The point is that this amendment is accepted by the mover of the first amendment and I shall now put to the House the amendment with all the 16 names.

Mr. Naziruddin Ahmad (West Bengal: Muslim): Sir, I desire to speak on the motion.

Mr. Speaker: Which motion?

Mr. Naziruddin Ahmad: On the motion for the Select Committee.

Mr. Speaker: Is the Honourable Member against reference to the Select Committee?

Mr. Naziruddin Ahmad: Yes.

Mr. Speaker: But that was what I was labouring to make clear to Honourable Members. The House is in favour of reference to the Select Committee and in order to save time, I suggested that no speeches need be made on that.

Shri Mohan Lal Saksena (U.P.: General): Mr. Speaker, before you put the motion to vote, I would like to suggest that we wanted the Committee to be a small Committee. Since there are now going to be other persons who are anxious to serve on the Committee, I would like to withdraw my name.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar (Madras: General): I want also to withdraw my name, Sir.

Mr. Speaker: Withdrawals may take place later on if the motion is carried. The question is:

"That the Bill be referred to a Select Committee consisting of....."

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: May I know, Mr. Speaker, whether you are putting the motion of my friend Lala Deshbandu Gupta to vote?

Mr. Speaker: Yes.

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: In that case, I want to reply to some of his points. I shall be brief. Otherwise, if the motion is put to vote, I shall not have an opportunity to reply him.

Mr. Naziruddin Ahmad: I also desire to speak before the Honourable Minister speaks.

Mr. Speaker: I am asking him to reply.

Mr. Naziruddin Ahmad: That is why I am asking for an opportunity to speak, because after he replies I cannot speak.

Mr. Speaker: I am afraid I shall have to make the position clear again. I did not wish and do not wish to prevent anybody from having his say. I merely made an earnest request, if it was acceptable to Honourable Members, not to make speeches at this stage. Mr. Sidhwa accepted it and the position is the result of the honourable Member's own action. The object is—and I am sure even Mr. Naziruddin Ahmad will appreciate it—that we are going to have this whole Bill for a discussion and a thorough discussion, later on after it comes from the Select Committee. If speeches are made now, we shall be having two discussions. We shall be spending an hour or two now probably and more than three hours on that day. Therefore, I say: "Let us save as much time as possible". That is why I made the request to Mr. Sidhwa and he was good enough to accept it and Lala Deshbandu Gupta also was kind enough to accept the amendment of Mr. Sidhwa. Now, the only thing that remains is, the Minister will reply in short and I shall put the motion to vote. The Minister may now proceed.

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: Sir, my Honourable friend, Mr. Gupta, said that this Bill was the result of some machinations of the permanent officials. I want to assure him that the initiative was taken by me on representations received from various Tenants Associations and other persons. Most of the complaints were verified by me personally by visiting the places and having talks with those persons who had to pay more than fair rent. I did not forward the matter to the police for reasons which are obvious.

Then my Honourable friend referred to Mahatma Gandhi. He is the only person who can be quoted or mis-quoted by anybody in this country. I am very sorry that my Honourable friend had not followed the Mahatma in other respects but only in the respect of decontrol. Now, I agree with my Honourable friend that rent control is not the most radical remedy to remove the housing scarcity. He also referred to the Government not doing anything in order to put up a building programme. I want to bring to his notice a few humble efforts that I have made since I joined this Government. In the very first week of my assumption of office, I called a Conference of departmental heads and after having ascertained how much I could get by way of cement, steel and timber, I drew up a programme which will be completed within a year, by which time 200 officers' quarters, 1250 servants' quarters and 2000 clerks' quarters will be built. That is the official programme.

So far as the activities of the Improvement Trust are concerned, obviously they are more known to my Honourable friend than to me. He referred to profiteering by the Improvement Trust, but may I point out to him that there has been more speculation by private persons who have purchased plots from the Improvement Trust in recent years. Those plots are still there and no buildings raised on them, for the simple reason that the persons concerned are waiting for prices to go up and then they can part with the plots at higher price.

As regards his contention that many who constructed buildings very recently had to buy building material in the black market, well, that is a factor which

[Shri N. V. Gadgil]

I am sure the Rent Controller will take into consideration when he fixes the rent under the relevant provision. The relevant provision is:

"If, on a consideration of all the circumstances of the case including any amount paid or to be paid by the tenant by way of premium. . . . the Controller finds that the rent of the house is excessive, he shall determine the fair rent to be charged for the house."

I do submit that the Rent Controller will take all factors into consideration including the high prices of building materials before he finally fixes what is known as the 'standard rent'.

Sir, I agreed to a reference to Select Committee for two reasons. I, being a member of this House pretty long, thought that the way in which this was put was not very fair because the copies of the Ordinance were not distributed—I quite realize the difficulty. That was one reason why I agree. The second reason was that I was told that there is an Advisory Council for Delhi Province and that that Advisory Council ought to be consulted. There is no obligation as such, but even then I thought that it would be much better if I made a reference to the Select Committee and if its report is called ten days hence it will give enough time for the Members of the Advisory Committee to formulate their views as far as this matter is concerned. There is only one point in this Bill. That is whether you want the rents of newly constructed buildings to be controlled or not. There is nothing to go to the Select Committee. But the two considerations mentioned by me weighed with me and therefore, I would request Mr. Sidhwa not to oppose the amendment at this stage.

Mr. Speaker: I will first put the amendment of Mr. Sidhwa to the House. The question is:

"That in Lala Deshbandhu Gupta's amendment the names of Prof. N. G. Ranga, Prof. K. T. Shah, Shri H. J. Khandekar, Shri V. I. Munishwami Pillai, Shri Khandubhai K. Desai, Shri M. S. Aney, Begum Aizaz Rasul, and Mr. R. K. Sidhwa, be added to the names of Members of the Select Committee."

The motion was adopted.

Mr. Speaker: Now, I will put to the House the amended amendment. The question is:

"That the Bill be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil, Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava, Pandit Mukut Bihari Lal Bhargava, Shri K. Santhanam, Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar, Shri Mohan Lal Saksena, Shri S. K. Patil, Shri Deshbandhu Gupta, Prof. N. G. Ranga, Prof. K. T. Shah, Shri H. J. Khandekar, Shri V. I. Munishwami Pillai, Shri Khandubhai K. Desai, Shri M. S. Aney, Begum Aizaz Rasul and Mr. R. K. Sidhwa, with instructions to report by the 1st December 1947, and that the number of Members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

The motion was adopted.

DELHI PREMISES (REQUISITION AND EVICTION) BILL

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil (Minister for Works, Mines and Power):
Sir, I beg to move:

"That the Bill to confer certain powers in respect of premises in the Province of Delhi, be taken into consideration."

This is also a Bill which seeks to enact the provisions of the Ordinance which was promulgated in the month of August 1947. It seeks to give Government power in respect of requisitioning of the premises in Delhi and also power to evict those who are living unauthorizedly. This Ordinance became necessary because of certain problems arising out of partition and because of the large influx of refugees and the Government needs in the matter of accommodation for Government offices. With freedom came the duty to accommodate foreign embassies. All that made it necessary to have these powers. The only thing that is sought to be incorporated in the Bill over and above the provisions of the original Ordinance is that the definition of 'premises' is made wider. In the original Ordinance the definition excluded the requisitioning of any house which was required bona fide for the purpose of residence of the owner. We found after some experience that this was abused greatly. A person having more than one wife claimed that all the four or five places which belonged to him were places where he bona fide resided. Now that was too much for any Government and certainly too much for me. Then it was thought necessary that the requirements of every owner should be considered. I may tell the House that although this additional power is sought to be taken in this particular Bill, I have examined every case and I may take the House into confidence and tell that whenever any complaint was brought to me I actually visited the particular premises. Wherever it was possible I accommodated the owner. Most of the owners whose houses have been requisitioned in New Delhi are residents from West Punjab and owing to the tragedy to which I need make no further reference, most of them have come over here and their pathetic state, which has been so eloquently described by my honourable friend Mr. Deshbandhu Gupta, is amply justified. I am quite prepared as I have done in the past to examine every case on its merits and I can assure the House that this extension of power which it is sought to be taken under the Bill will not be abused in any way.

There is a motion tabled by Mr. Deshbandhu Gupta for referring this Bill to a Select Committee. As a matter of fact there is not much to be referred to a Select Committee. As I do not want to take up the time of the House and in as much as the other Bill is referred to a Select Committee, this may be appropriately referred to a Select Committee. Sir, I move.

Mr. Speaker: Motion moved:

"That the Bill to confer certain powers in respect of premises in the Province of Delhi, be taken into consideration."

Shri Deshbandhu Gupta (Delhi): Sir, I beg to move:

"That the Bill be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil, Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava, Pandit Mukut Bihari Lal Bhargava, Shri K. Santhanam, Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar, Shri Mohan Lal Saksena, Shri S. K. Patil, Shri Deshbandhu Gupta, Prof. N. G. Ranga, Prof. K. T. Shah, Shri H. J. Khandekar, Shri V. I. Munishwami Pillai, Shri Khandubhai K. Desai, Shri M. S. Aney, Begum Aizaz Rasul, and Mr. R. K. Sidhwa, with instructions to report by the 1st December 1947, and that the number of Members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

While moving this amendment I wish to draw the attention of my honourable friend and the House to one or two aspects, of this Bill. The first objection which I think on principle is the definition of 'public purpose' which my honourable friend has put in this Bill, because this is a somewhat fundamental thing. He has defined 'public purpose'. It means any purposes connected with the shortage of accommodation in the Province of Delhi. I have not been able to understand the real import of this sentence. Anything may be connected with the shortage of houses in Delhi. That is perhaps not the right way of defining 'public purpose' because there may be people whose presence in New Delhi is not necessary and they may also claim a right to be here and on that ground may say that they are as much covered by this definition of 'public purpose' as anybody else. So 'public purpose' when it is defined like that I think, Sir, we will have to make it more definite and say really what is meant by 'public purpose'. Then again, Sir, one other objection which seems to have escaped my honourable friend's attention is that he has made no provision in this Bill exempting at least one house—one residential house—to a man who has spent his life's labour and built a house and has been residing in that house for 20 years. This Bill makes no exemption in any case, not even one house is left to the owner of the house. I would very much like the Select Committee to consider this aspect of the Bill and make exemption in cases of those who own only one house and which is used for residential purposes. Then, Sir, there are other aspects of this Bill which I would not like to emphasise at this stage as it would take the time of the House, but there are certain other aspects. For instance it is provided that only 10 days' notice is given whereas my honourable friend is more aware than anyone else that in these few days it is not possible to get a house vacated with all the might of the coolies. I have been serving on the Custodian Committee and I may tell you and the House that we decided to get all unauthorized possessions vacated, but after 6 weeks' deliberations we had to revise our decision, and, all unauthorised possessions we decided to legalise rather than ask those people who were first in the field and had helped themselves with big palaces or buildings—to which they were not entitled—they were practically left there because we felt that perhaps it is a lesser evil than to ask them to vacate and put strain on the coolies or create good room for more bitterness or mischief by the disturbances and that sort of thing.

Then again in the Rent Control Act we provided that if a tenant is to be evicted after a long and arduous course of going through the courts or to the High Court, he gets a year's notice but in that Act it was provided that at least three months' notice would be given to the tenant after all these stages had been gone through to vacate the house. Whereas, in this Bill or the 4 P.M. Ordinance which has come in the form of a Bill my honourable friend seeks to eject the owner of a house within ten days. I hope the House will agree that this is much too short a period. Then there is a provision here that we can require a house-owner to make alterations and carry out repairs and whatever is wanted by the Government, without any regard to the fact that building material is not available and Government have not undertaken to supply that building material. Whether building material is available or not he must fulfil that obligation. I think in these days of hardship and stringency this is very unfair. All these aspects of the question should be borne in mind by the Select Committee. The question of the Legations coming here with consequent pressure on our housing accommodation was also taken into consideration when we passed the Bill six months ago.

An Honourable Member: And then there are the refugees.

Shri Deshbandhu Gupta: Not the refugees; they do not figure in this Bill either. It is mostly other people who have to be provided for.

All the same, Sir, I am not opposed to this measure. It is our duty as citizens of Delhi to help Government in finding more houses for their essential staff or for the diplomatic obligations which they have to shoulder. For these people we must make houses available, and I am prepared by all means to support this Government so far as billeting or rationing of houses is concerned. I should very much like my honourable friend to remember that this Bill should not work as an engine of oppression and due consideration should be given to these suggestions that I have made.

The Decontrol Board which was formed by the Government of India some time back held a meeting a week ago and these are the figures given to us:

Total houses requisitioned—366.

Houses requisitioned upto 25-1-47—35.

Houses derequisitioned from 25-1-47 to 1-11-47—22.

[Shri Deshbandhu Gupta.]

This only confirms my impression that inspite of the Ordinance which has been there it is perhaps not possible to get many houses vacated. And that brings me again to the same argument that if my honourable friend means business and wants pressure to be removed he must direct his attention to accelerating the housing programme.

Sir, with these words I move my amendment and I hope the Select Committee will take a reasonable view of things while making its recommendations.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That the Bill be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil, Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava, Pandit Mukut Bihari Lal Bhargava, Shri K. Santhanam, Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar, Shri Mohan Lal Saksena, Shri S. K. Patil, Shri Deshbandhu Gupta, Prof. N. G. Ranga, Prof. K. T. Shah, Shri H. J. Khandekar, Shri V. I. Munishwami Pillai, Shri Khandubhai K. Desai, Shri M. S. Aney, Begum Aizaz Rasul, and Mr. R. K. Sidhwa, with instructions to report by the 1st December 1947, and that the number of Members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

The motion was adopted.

INDUSTRIAL FINANCE CORPORATION BILL

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty (Minister for Finance):

Sir, I move:

"That the Bill to establish the Industrial Finance Corporation of India, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee, Shri K. M. Munshi, Diwan Charnan Lall, Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar, Shri T. A. Ramalingam Chettiyar, Nawab Muhammad Ismail Khan, Shrimati Sucheta Kripalani, Shri C. Subrahmanyam, Prof. K. T. Shah, Shri B. Das, Shri S. K. Patil, Shri Jaspat Roy Kapoor, Shri Ram Sahai and the Mover, with instructions to report on the opening day of the next session of the Assembly and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

[At this stage Mr. Speaker vacated the Chair which was then occupied by Shri V. I. Munishwami Pillai (one of the Panel of Chairmen)].

Sir, the question of establishing an industrial bank or corporation for supplying medium term and long term financial requirements of Indian industries has exercised public opinion in this country for several years past. The Indian Industrial Commission (1916-18) had recommended the appointment of an expert committee to examine the possibilities of establishing industrial banks in India, and the Indian Central Banking Inquiry Committee (1929-31) had recommended the formation of provincial industrial corporations and an All-India Industrial Corporation. The attention of the public has again been drawn to the question since the beginning of 1945 in connection with the schemes formulated by the Government of India for the post-war industrialisation of the country. In the Statement on Industrial Policy issued by the Government of India on the 21st April, 1945 with reference to their plans for the future industrial development of the country the Government stated that the question of the promotion of an industrial investment corporation or similar institution was under examination. Subsequently in the General Purposes Committee appointed by the Planning and Development Department it was decided that the subject should be examined by the Ministry of Finance in consultation with the Reserve Bank of India. In implementation of this decision a Bill was prepared by the Reserve Bank of India for the establishment of an Industrial Finance Corporation to provide medium and long-term credit to industrial enterprises in India where recourse to commercial banks or capital issue channels is considered inappropriate. Sir Archibald Rowlands intended to introduce it in the Assembly in the budget session of 1946 but could not do so owing to the crowded legislative programme. It was introduced in the autumn session of 1946 but could not be proceeded with both on account of the pressure of legislative business and the impending constitutional changes.

With the inauguration of the Independent Dominion of India and our anxiety to go ahead full speed with the industrial development of the country, the setting up of an industrial finance corporation has acquired a new significance and urgency which is further emphasized by the recent unfortunate occurrences which have dislocated economic life in certain parts of the country.

The financial requirements of industry may generally be classified under two heads, viz., block capital and working capital. Block capital is required by industry to finance fixed assets, such as land, buildings, machinery and other appliances of a more or less permanent character: while working capital is required for the purchase and working up of raw materials into finished products, for stores, for expenses incidental to the marketing of products, for the day to day requirements, etc. A part of the working capital is also of a permanent nature. Generally in industries, the stock of raw materials and manufactured or semi-manufactured materials never fall below a certain minimum and the capital required for these is more or less of the nature of permanent capital. Any working capital over this minimum falls within the category of short-term finance. It is also possible to distinguish in some cases capital requirements of a semi-permanent type which may be classed as medium term requirements of industry. According to orthodox British practice, commercial banks do not supply the capital required for financing fixed assets which is obtained by industries in Great Britain by public or private subscriptions. As a rule the banks there would be prepared to furnish the capital required to finance only the floating assets against the security of stock or other liquid assets after the industry concerned has established itself in a sound position. On the European Continent, however, and particularly in Germany, Italy, Belgium and in the United States, the banks generally used to engage in 'mixed' banking, combining short-term with long-term industrial financing until the great economic depression of 1929-33, which demonstrated the drawbacks and disadvantages of the mixed system. As a result of the experience gained during the course of the years of the economic depression, it has been generally agreed that long-term industrial finance should be eschewed by banks. Apart from the mixed type of banks which have declined since the depression, special industrial banks were established in some of the European countries. In France there were the 'Banques d'affaires' which specialised in the issue of securities and the floatation of industrial and financial undertakings. In Finland an industrial mortgage bank was floated in 1924 with capital supplied mostly by the joint stock banks to meet the long-term requirements of industry. The National Hungarian Industrial Mortgage Institute Limited was founded in 1928 for granting amortisation loans to industry, the Treasury contributing 80 per cent. of the capital and the National Union of Manufacturers the balance. A Provincial Mortgage Bank was also established in Saxony in 1925 to provide credit to industry, trade and handicrafts. It worked as an annexe of the Bank of Saxony which was an institution wholly owned by the State. In Poland, the National Economic Bank was brought into existence in 1926 which was empowered among other things to make industrial loans. The capital of this bank was subsequently acquired by the State. After the great economic depression, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was created in the United States with the object of extending financial assistance to agriculture, commerce and industry. The activities of the Corporation were considerably extended during the war to enable it to aid the defence programme. The most recent additions to the list of industrial banks are those incorporated in the British Commonwealth. In Great Britain, the Chancellor of the Exchequer announced in January 1945 the formation of two finance corporations, namely the Finance Corporation for Industry Ltd., and the Industrial and Commercial Finance Corporation Ltd. The purpose of the former company in brief is to provide finance for industrial businesses with a view to their quick rehabilitation and development in the national interest, and that of the latter to supply medium and long-term capital to the small and medium sized businesses in the country. In Canada an Industrial Development Bank has been brought into existence as a subsidiary to the Bank of Canada to ensure adequate credit to industrial enterprises which may be reasonably expected to prove successful: and in Australia a separate Industrial Finance Department has been created in the Commonwealth Bank to assist in the establishment and development of industrial undertakings.

The question of establishing separate corporations in India to supplement available facilities for financing industries was exhaustively studied by the Indian Central Banking Enquiry Committee and the various provincial committees. After reviewing the facilities available in the capital market, and the working of the State Aid to Industries Act and certain Finance Corporations established by Provincial Governments, the Central Committee recommended the formation of a Provincial Industrial Corporation in each province. At the same time they stated that they did not rule out the possibility of the formation of an All-India Industrial Corporation at the Centre for the purpose of meeting the requirements of industries which may fall within the scope of the Central Government. In view of the recent constitutional developments, the scope for an All-India Corporation is greater now than was envisaged in 1930-31 by the Banking Committee. The Bill which is now before the House, however, is not intended to meet the requirements of basic and nationalised industries but only to provide finance to meet the long-term needs of private industry.

Sir, I shall now briefly explain the main provisions of the Bill which, as I have stated, was introduced by the previous Government. Besides the drafting changes necessitated by the new constitutional position, it needs in my opinion certain minor modifications. But this can be dealt with in the Select Committee and it will be enough if I merely indicate them when referring to the particular provisions.

It is proposed in Clause 4 of the Bill that the capital of the Corporation shall be Rs. 5 crores, divided into 2,000 shares of Rs. 25,000 each fully paid up. Of this the Government and the Reserve Bank will each take up 400 shares and the balance of 1,200 shares will be offered to scheduled banks, investment trusts, insurance companies and other like financial institutions on the lines indicated in sub-clause 4 of Clause 4. In the present circumstances in India, it appears that an institution controlled by Government, the Reserve Bank and institutional investors will have the best chances of success.

Sub-clause (6) of Clause 4 restricts the transferability of shares to Central Government, Reserve Bank, scheduled banks, insurance companies, investment trusts and other like financial institutions. Clause 5 provides for a guarantee by Government of dividend on shares not exceeding 2½ per cent. I think this clause is not happily worded. The guarantee must be for a fixed rate and it will be best to leave the rate to be notified at the time of the issue of shares by Government who will naturally fix it at a reasonably low level.

Prof. N. G. Ranga (Madras: General): Without any maximum limit?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: I said not exceeding 2½ per cent. 2½ per cent. is the maximum.

I next come to Clauses 6 and 7 dealing with management. The general superintendence and direction of the affairs of the Corporation has been entrusted to a Board of eleven Directors of whom two will be nominated by the Central Government, three will be nominated by the Central Board of the Reserve Bank, one will be a Managing Director appointed by the Central Government after consideration of the recommendations of the Board, three will be elected by banks who are shareholders of the Corporation, and the remaining two will be elected by insurance companies, investment trusts and the other shareholders. The first Managing Director will be appointed by the Central Government after taking into consideration the recommendation of the Reserve Bank. The constitution of the first Board of Directors and the terms of office of the various classes of Directors are prescribed by Clause 7.

Clause 11 lays down an obligation on the Corporation to start four offices at Bombay, Calcutta, Delhi and Madras. Offices may be established at other places with the sanction of the Central Government.

Clause 13 is an important clause dealing with the Corporation's borrowing powers. It is provided that the Corporation may issue and sell bonds and debentures not exceeding four times the amount of the share capital. This limit seems to me to be inadequate and I propose to suggest in the Select Committee that it be raised to five times the aggregate amount of share capital and reserve fund. The principal and interest in respect of bonds and debentures is guaranteed by the Central Government, the latter at a rate not higher than 2½ per cent. Fixation of such a limit under the law seems to me inappropriate and I would suggest in the Select Committee that the rate should be fixed by Government at the same time bonds and debentures are issued. The Corporation is authorised under Clause 14 to receive fixed deposits for periods of not less than ten years, provided the total amount of such deposits does not exceed Rs. 10 crores.

The business of the Corporation is defined by Clause 15. The Corporation is authorised to grant secured loans to industrial concerns repayable within a maximum period of 25 years. It may guarantee loans raised in the market by industrial concerns for an agreed rate of commission. It has also the powers to underwrite the issue of stock, bonds, and debentures and of retaining, as part of its assets, such stock, bonds or debentures as it may have to take up in fulfilment of its underwriting obligations, but is required to dispose of any such stock, bonds and debentures within a period of seven years.

Clause 16 limits the maximum amount of accommodation it can grant to any single borrower, by way of loan, a guarantee undertaking or underwriting agreement in the aggregate to ten per cent. of its share capital.

In terms of Clause 19 of the Bill, in case of industrial concerns requiring loans in foreign currency the Corporation is authorised with the previous sanction of the Government to borrow such funds through the International Bank for reconstruction and development or otherwise.

Under Clause 21, the Corporation is empowered to recall loans within the agreed period under the circumstances defined in it. In view of its special position, the Corporation is proposed to be given, under Clause 22, certain privileges in the matter of the enforcement of its claims. In the event of a default by the borrower, the Corporation may, after due notice to the borrower, apply to the Court for attachment of property of the industrial concern, and the Court shall pass without delay an ad interim order attaching so much of the property of the industrial concern, as would realise an amount equivalent to the outstanding liabilities of the industrial concern to the Corporation together with the cost of the proceedings.

Clause 24 requires the Corporation to establish a reserve fund out of profits. So long as the reserve fund is less than the share capital, and so long as any amount is due to Government under a guarantee given by them under Clause 5 or Clause 13, the rate of dividend on shares shall not exceed the rate guaranteed by Government. When the reserve fund equals or exceeds the share capital, the rate of dividend may be raised to a maximum of 5 per cent. and the balance of profits shall be transferred to the Central Government.

Clauses 25 and 27 prescribe the period within which the annual general meeting must be held after the close of the financial year of the Corporation and prescribe the returns to be sent to Government, the Reserve Bank and other shareholders. These clauses are on the usual lines and call for no special comments. The next Clause 28 provides that the Corporation shall not be wound up without the sanction of Government.

The only other clause which requires an explanation is Clause 31, which exempts the Corporation from income-tax and super-tax. The clause is a logical sequence to Clause 24 which provides that the balance of profits, after the appropriations specified therein, shall be transferred to the Central Government.

Sir, as I have stated earlier in my speech, the object of the Bill is to supplement existing facilities available for the supply of medium and long-term capital to industry. Having regard to the inadequacy of the existing facilities in India in this regard and the necessity of rapid industrialisation to raise the standard of living of the people, I need hardly stress the importance of the present measure to the national wellbeing of the country. As I have said before, such corporations have been established in the United Kingdom, Canada, and Australia and the latest reports indicate that the two corporations started in the United Kingdom have already commenced their useful work. In view of the fact that the Bill before the House is overdue and is calculated to accelerate the progress of India towards industrialisation, I commend, Sir, the measure for the acceptance of this House.

Mr. Chairman: Motion moved:

"That the Bill to establish the Industrial Finance Corporation of India, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee, Shri K. M. Munshi, Diwan Chaman Lall, Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar, Shri T. A. Ramalingam Chettiyar, Nawab Muhammad Ismail Khan, Shrimati Sucheta Kripalani, Shri C. Subrahmanyam, Prof. K. T. Shah, Shri R. Das, Shri S. K. Patil, Shri Jaspat Roy Kapoor, Shri Ram Sahai and the Mover, with instructions to report on the opening day of the next session of the Assembly and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

Shri T. T. Krishnamachari (Madras: General): Sir, I would like to congratulate the Honourable Mover in bringing forward this Bill so soon after he assumed charge of his office. It seems to me, Sir, appropriate that a person like Mr. Shanmukham Chetty, with his background of industrial experience, should pilot a Bill of this nature.

At the outset, I would like to say that I am happy to find that the Mover feels that the resources of this institution which have been vouchsafed to it by this Bill are rather inadequate and he therefore proposes that in the Select Committee he would suggest an augmentation of those resources, by enlarging the scope of Clause 13. But I wonder if that would be all that has to be done. After all, in a country like ours, so big, with so many schemes awaiting financial support, I think an institution of this nature should be started in a much bigger way. It may be that the share capital need not all be taken up at one time. But would it not be necessary for this institution to be provided statutorily with facilities for expansion of the share capital? I hope the Select Committee will examine this point and, if necessary, alter the share capital structure of this institution. In fact, I am not sure that all the funds that will be available to this institution under Sections 13 and 14 would be adequate even after the proposal to alter the terms of Section 13 made by the Honourable Mover—proposal which he said he would make to the Select Committee. I think even in this matter there must be an expansion of the possible resources that this institution can command.

Another aspect of the Bill which I think had better be examined by the Select Committee is whether the institution should not be split up into two, following the British example, one institution for small industries and another for large industries, which will certainly help the concentration that will be necessary in the case of small industries.

So far as the clauses relating to the raising of shares are concerned, they have been fairly carefully drafted. Certain quantity of shares are to be given to banks and certain other to institutions like insurance companies, investment trusts, etc. But in this country we have only one class of people who serve as directors of the Reserve Bank, serve as directors of banks, serve as directors of investment trusts, serve as directors of insurance companies—the class is the same in all such institutions. And I find here no attempt made by the Government, unless perhaps they propose to nominate Directors representing other interests, to provide for people who don't fall within this category, to get into the Board of Directors of this institution. How it is to be devised is a matter for the Select Committee to consider. I do hope the honourable the Mover will bear in mind that as it is drafted—I am sure he has no hand in the drafting of it as it has been drafted by a previous administration, perhaps the Reserve Bank—the class bias is there definitely. Particularly when we want industrialisation on a large scale, industrialisation that will benefit the common man of this country, there is no use in perpetuating the domination of this class of people upon our economy by making this body more or less a monopoly of the privileged classes.

Again, Sir, we know in this country that those who control insurance companies control banks. Those who control insurance companies and banks, if they cannot themselves be directors of the Reserve Bank, have their own friends there. So, unless the classes of shares are earmarked A, B and C and transfer amongst people of the other categories banned, and a limit prescribed in respect of the maximum holding of each company, it is quite possible that ultimately the control or a large measure of control will pass into the hands of certain insurance companies and certain banks which would not be for the good for the future of this institution. I hope the Select Committee will take up this question for examination.

There is one other factor and I am rather nervous to tread on this ground particularly because of the better knowledge that the honourable the Mover has as his experience in the matter of company finance is perhaps unlimited. He has suggested, or rather the original draftsman has suggested, in Clause 24 that the dividend should not exceed 2½ per cent. until such time as the reserve fund grows up to an amount equal to the share capital and the debts to the Central Government are discharged. Considering that the capital stipulated is not very high, one might expect that the profits that will accrue and will be ultimately transferred to the reserve fund will perhaps enable a higher dividend than 2½ per cent. to be paid in a comparatively short time. (But it is quite possible that that might not happen. The Mover, the Finance Minister, has recently floated a loan at 2½ per cent. What is the object of asking insurance companies who depend entirely for their income on such investments, to invest at 2½ per cent. when they can get 2½ per cent. from the Government, other conditions being the same, because the dividends paid by this Corporation will be liable to income-tax and super-tax? It may be that big insurance companies would nevertheless come in partly for the reason that it will add prestige to their own firm and partly for the reason that they might ultimately get a voice in the distribution of patronage by this Corporation. But the smaller companies to whom even a quarter per cent. in their income would probably be a material factor would not find the investment worth while. I am not generally in favour of any large dividends and I certainly do approve of the fact that 5 per cent. has been fixed as the ceiling. But I feel that 2½ per cent.

[Shri T. T. Krishnamachari]
during a period which might be short or long will be unattractive to smaller institutions, smaller scheduled banks and smaller insurance companies.

One might very well ask at this stage whether it is at all necessary to create an institution of this nature as distinct and quite apart from the Reserve Bank. The Honourable Mover gave us a history of similar financial corporations all over the world and possibly he, or his predecessor did not feel it was worth while to start this institution as a department of the Reserve Bank. The Australian example seeks to make it more or less a department of the Commonwealth Bank in which case much of the trouble will be solved. Whether a separate entity, completely divorced from the Reserve Bank, should be maintained is a matter that will first suggest itself to any person who examines the scheme. But the position might be met by the fact that the control of the Reserve Bank on the Central Government is maintained to a degree which is perhaps as close as one can possibly make it. But, as I said before it seems to me that ultimately it will be the privileged classes who will control it. The Reserve Bank will undoubtedly have a say in the working of the institution. Whether it is at all worth while keeping it as a separate institution instead of making it something which is part of the Reserve Bank, branches to be started wherever there is a branch of the Reserve Bank, close supervision by local managers of the Reserve Bank as against the scrutiny of investments which has to be made periodically as provided in the Sections of the Bill—I think is a point that can be examined by the Select Committee.

Lastly I would like to emphasize this point, namely, in Section 15 which covers the advances to industrial concerns of capital and working capital, would it not be wiser to impose some kind of distinction in regard to financing industrial concerns so far as their working capital is concerned?—not in the same way as a normal trading bank will, but in a manner which is perhaps likely to be more generous but at the same time making a distinction between the help that the industrial corporation will give to concerns that are newly started and the help that the corporation will give by way of providing working capital repayable after a stipulated period or instalments spread over a period of time and distinct from the help which an ordinary bank will provide. This type of help seems to be fairly widely conceived inasmuch as section 19 gives power to the institution to finance even in respect of foreign currency requirements. One aspect of the work of this Industrial Corporation will be to help industries to start; another aspect will be to help them to carry on. I think these two aspects will have to be treated separately, and the Rules prescribing the Corporation's help to these two types of working of the institution must be clearly stated. An enlargement of section 15 is, in my opinion, therefore called for.

Sir, at this stage I do not think it is worthwhile labouring further about the details of this Bill which has been fairly well explained by the Mover. I draw consolation from the fact that the Mover himself feels that the Bill can be considerably improved upon, and I do hope the Select Committee will treat the opinions expressed on the floor of the House by Members asking for an examination and an enlargement of the scope of this Bill and the scope of the functions of the institution which it seeks to create as a mandate so that when the Bill comes back from the Select Committee it will be a better Bill which would be based on a broader foundation and would really contribute to the industrial prosperity of this country and the well-being of the common man. Sir, I support the motion.

Shri B. Das (Orissa: General): Sir, I agree with the Honourable the Finance Minister that the Bill is long overdue. The Honourable Finance Minister stated in a Bombay speech that the credit of India stands very high. I agree with him. I endorse his views. Time has moved fast and India is going to face an economic crisis in the very near future. I am not a prophet but that day is drawing nigh. The point is that the Bill ought to have been brought before the House six months ago. I quite agree with the opinion that my friend will manage the finances of the country soundly if things should come to the same mess that we were in 1930 or early 1931.

Sir, I would like to make one or two observations. This Bill was drafted with the concept that India and Pakistan would be one country. So I do think now that the number of Directors should be reduced and the Reserve Bank need not have three Directors. The Reserve Bank can have two Directors and I believe there will be a similar Banking Bill in Pakistan. They can have one or two Directors from their Reserve Bank. As regards the constituent shareholders, I am not satisfied that the shareholders should be confined to investment trusts and scheduled banks. The industrial prosperity of a nation is judged by three of its activities—namely; banking, insurance, and shipping activities. Insurance companies have to keep by a certain sum with the Government, and therefore have to be shareholders. I suggest to the Honourable the Finance Minister and I hope I will be able to convince my friends in the Select Committee, that the shipping companies, however small they are now, will be one of the biggest activities in the national prosperity of India and they should be permitted to be investors in the shares of this trust.

Sir, my Honourable friend the Finance Minister said that in some other countries agriculture was being looked after by similar types of industrial financial corporations. In India our original conception was confined only to financing big industries. Cottage industries have been given the go-by by the Reserve Bank although the great party to which I belong has always held that we should develop the cottage industries in the country as much as possible. The country is still following the slow coach policy of 1934-35, but we Congressmen stand committed and we stand by our great leader Mahatma Gandhi that we must develop our cottage industries side by side with other industries. With the hostility of the U.S.A. and the U.K. to supply capital goods to India in right time—U.K. having a deliberate policy of taking out huge orders and deliberately postponing delivery of those orders—unless Russia could supply heavy machinery at an early date, we wonder if India will ever get capital goods to start new industries. I am for it, because I belong to that circle. But at the same time I am asking the Finance Minister that if the Corporation cannot think of financing the cottage industries, it must think of it as a side activity of the Reserve Bank. A few minutes ago I said that the Reserve Bank was not a national bank. I have told on the floor of the old Assembly often that it was a branch of the Bank of England, and it has served the purposes of the Bank of England. One of the main activities of the Reserve Bank was to finance agricultural activities in the country, the co-operative movement in the country, not to speak of cottage industries. It did very little. This morning I had great sympathy with my revered friend Mr. Prakasam, who stated that the Reserve Bank was not a national bank. That is the idea that is worrying me and worrying many others. That Reserve Bank is at present functioning as the bank of the Government of India. It has yet to discard all the European employees that are there. They must be dismissed and their services terminated by payment of salaries for a few years. Why should they remain and bring in foreign ideas and curb our enthusiasm for financing our national activities? My honourable friend the Finance Minister was Speaker of the House in 1934 when the Reserve Bank Bill was passed. He will remember the herculean battles that were waged on the floor of the Assembly at that time. None of us were satisfied. The whole thing was dictated to us. We were told that if we would not have a Reserve Bank for India, we would not have the 1935 Act. We had to accept the Reserve Bank Act as it was thrust down our gullets, because we expected we would get a better constitution.

[Shri B. Das]

So, Sir, the time has come—and I take this opportunity to draw the attention of the Honourable the Finance Minister—the time has come when the Reserve Bank Act should be completely changed and every foreigner in the service of the Reserve Bank should be paid off the five years salary or pension and dispensed with and the Bank should be conceived as a National Bank so that India can prosper. Without the Reserve Bank functioning as the National Bank the Honourable the Finance Minister or we on this side may dream of prosperity but that prosperity will never come.

Sir, with these few observations, I support the reference to the Select Committee.

Dr. B. Pattabhi Sitaramayya (Madras: General): Sir, it is a matter for rejoicing that at last from mere pious advice we have descended to the practical plan of bringing into existence an institution of this character. For decades we have been speaking of industrial revival but nothing has been done so far in order to make a practical contribution by way of financial help to the nascent institutions of the day. I therefore welcome this measure but it strikes me as particularly inadequate, considering the size of the country, the long neglect to which the country has been subjected in the matter of industries as well as the requirements of the nation. Today from morning to evening we use five hundred chemicals at least and very few of them are being manufactured in this country. Institutions have to be brought into existence to manufacture the manufacturers and to finance the financiers and all these acts must be contemplated by this institution. That is the essential part.

Considering the magnitude of the task that lies ahead before this institution, I rather think that the effort is far too humble and too inadequate. Five crores of rupees capital for the Industrial Corporation looks almost childish. But I hope that it will grow with the lapse of time. The growth should not be on the basis of the rule of three, our progress in industrial matters must be on the basis of geometrical progression and not arithmetical; even on the basis of the accelerating velocity of a falling body not at 32 feet per second—but at 32 feet per second per second. It must go on increasing every year. The borrowing capacity of this Institution appears to be far too limited, though it is well within the bounds of safety and security. Four times the paid up capital proposed for one kind of borrowings, namely, debentures, is inadequate.

I am sorry I am labouring under the difficulty of not having looked into the Bill but only followed the speech of the Honourable Mover as he was tracing the development of the various sections one after another. I have taken that Bill from a friend and looked into it briefly but I feel that in any case I am right in saying that the borrowing capacity is somewhat limited. I particularly welcome one aspect of this Institution, namely that it contemplates only long term deposits. Financial purists and banking experts have been terrorizing the institutions of the country by prohibiting the taking of deposits of more than three years duration and even that three years duration has been accepted as a kind of concession to the clamour of banking amateurs like myself.

I have always said that to determine the area of cultivation you should not depend upon the rains of each monsoon which feed the waters of the river. You must count upon the succession of monsoons that feed the waters of the Godavari and the Ganges. If you are going to regulate the extent of land that is brought under cultivation on the basis of a year's monsoon you will fail. Next year there may be no monsoon at all, argue the Engineers. That is of course a purist's argument, logical but not reasonable. Here I am glad you have taken a ten years' deposit. This reform is long overdue in the co-operative movement but the co-operators have come to depend so much upon finance and so little upon co-operation that they would not think of financing the movement adequately and it has fairly been well-choked betimes. Now this period of ten years duration is a fairly long term though I would have preferred it to be 12 years but that is perhaps for the Select Committee to look into.

The next point is that the loan is to be of 25 years term. That is quite adequate. One cannot complain of the legislation which has given to a nascent industry financial help but the real difficulty arises in the measure of help that the legislation contemplated. It is a paltry sum, it is a trifle not worth mentioning, namely 1/10ths of the capital. If I can get ten lakhs for my business, do you mean to say I cannot manage to get another one lakh? This quantum of a tenth of the capital bears a disproportionately small ratio to the requirements of the institution and indicates the scale on which this Industrial Corporation is likely to work. Then there is the 2½ per cent. guarantee of dividend; the Honourable Mover himself has said whether it should not be a fixed figure. Well, I was thinking over the point. Perhaps a fixed figure is not so good as an elastic figure. They have made it particularly elastic in order to provide an incentive to effort and not merely to ensure a dividend. Now a word about the capital. You know that money has been going abegging for long. Zamindaries are being abolished and the security of land is being threatened; then banks have reduced their dividends from 4 to 3 and even to 2½ per cent. and only the money of Insurance Companies is waiting to be invested. There are large funds—particularly life funds available for Insurance companies have the law that 40 per cent. of the life funds must be invested in a particular manner and therefore this may come as a helpful source of investment for the insurance companies on the one hand and for the Industrial Bank on the other. But it strikes me as to why it is that the shareholdership or membership is being limited only to particular institutions, namely, banks, corporations, insurance companies and so on. Nothing would be lost by associating the common man with this new Institution. Perhaps you will get enormous amounts of money from him and that man is finding it difficult even to get a dividend of 2½ per cent. for his small savings. The Reserve Bank has not had reason to regret that it has taken money from the common man and their limitation on the individuals shares to Rs. 500 is not a bad restriction. Whatever that be, I would like you to extend the scope of the usefulness of the law not merely by way of loans but also by taking deposits from individuals. I believe I am right in saying that individuals are now excluded from the scope of this Institution.

Then I believe I have heard it stated that not more than 5 per cent dividend will be paid to the shareholders and the remaining profits will go to Government. That is a very intelligible proposal and the broad principles of the Corporation are correct. I hope that from the Select Committee the Bill will emerge much better and much bigger and more useful. I thank you, Sir, for allowing me this opportunity to speak on the Bill.

RAILWAY BUDGET

FOR

15TH AUGUST 1947 TO 31ST MARCH 1948

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai (Minister for Railways and Transport): Sir, my primary purpose in addressing the House this evening is to discuss the present financial position of the Railways and also to place before the House certain proposals arising therefrom. But before I do so, I know the House would like me to deal with certain current problems relating to the administration and the charges such as interest charges, sinking fund charges, depreciation charges and so on that each party will have to bear. Unfortunately it has not been possible for us to reach agreement on this question and the matter is going up to the Arbitral Tribunal for final decision. Since this matter is to be considered by the Arbitral Tribunal I do not want to say much about it at this stage. But I owe it to the House to state briefly what is the point at issue between us and Pakistan as regards the division of capital liabilities. We have taken the line that the correct basis for the division of capital liabilities is the book value less depreciation of the share of the assets both fixed and movable that has fallen to each side. That we consider is the correct principle to apply in this case. The representatives of Pakistan urge that it is not the book value but the earning capacity of the railway which is to be regarded as the correct basis. The two railways, substantial parts of which have gone over to Pakistan, namely, the N. W. Railway and Bengal Assam Railway have been for reasons into which I need not go probably the least profitable of our railways. If therefore the earning capacity of the railways is to be taken as the basis the capital liability that would arise in respect of these railways would be considerably less. Our contention is that in regard to public utility services like railways, the principle of earning capacity has no application, since the return on capital is fixed with reference to public interest rather than ordinary economic consideration. Pakistan has made another suggestion and that is that with regard to the strategic railways which fall mainly within their area, the liabilities should be divided between Pakistan and India and that in a proportion which would leave us with most of the liabilities in respect of these railways. If the final decision was made on the principle that we have put forward the division of capital liabilities would be somewhat as follows:—

[Dr. John Matthai]

India would have 660 crores.

Pakistan would have approximately Rs. 150 crores.

If the principle put forward by Pakistan is accepted the position will be as follows:—

India would have a capital liability of Rs. 757 crores and Pakistan would have a capital liability of 53 crores.

If the decision is made on the principle put forward by Pakistan and they get their 7,000 miles of railway on that basis, in my humble opinion, they will have got it at practically scrap value.

Thirdly I want to deal with some transportation problems which have arisen from partition. First of all, there is this question of the transfer of staff, which as the House is aware, has greatly dislocated and disorganised the railway services of the country. The approximate figures regarding the number of personnel who have been transferred are these:

Total number of persons who have opted for India from Pakistan (we have not got the final figures yet) approximately the figure is	126,000
Out of these the number of persons who have arrived in India or reported their arrival in India is	108,400
Out of these 108,400 people who have arrived, the number of people who have already received their posting orders is	104,000

These figures represent a huge problem of administration and of physical movement and the House will realize the strain that this has imposed upon the whole of our railway staff. I have no final information regarding the number of people from India who have opted for Pakistan, but from such statistics as I have seen, the number is approximately 83,000. I have no further information regarding that.

Next is the evacuation of refugees as a result of the disturbances which have occurred in Pakistan. The total number of refugees that the Indian railways have moved from and to and within East Punjab up to date is approximately 2½ millions. Now 2½ million people transported represent the normal capacity of roughly 800 passenger trains. The House will realise what an enormous diversion of railway resources that implies in rolling stock, in power and in personnel. The result of that is that a considerable number of passenger services in other parts of the country has had to be curtailed. The latest figure that I have is that the reduction of normal passenger services approximates to 3,800 train miles per day.

Then, I come to the question of goods traffic. The result of all these disturbances has been that goods traffic has been congested very severely in the Punjab area. When goods traffic is congested in that way two consequences follow. The first is that the line gets blocked because wagons are unable to move; therefore it is not possible for wagons freshly loaded to move. That is the first consequence. The second consequence is that since these wagons are standing idle and cannot be unloaded fewer empty wagons are available for fresh traffic. In both ways, therefore, traffic is seriously impeded. At the peak period of the disturbances between here and stations in the Punjab there were approximately 7,900 loaded wagons standing idle. And the result of the congestion caused by this large number of wagons on other railways was that at the same period there were on the E. I., the G. I. P. and the B. B. & C. I. Railways between four and five thousand wagons standing still. The position has considerably improved since but it still causes us considerable anxiety. What I should like to tell the House is that in view of depleted staff, lack of resources, the virtual breakdown of law and order, the large numbers of refugees—destitute and miserable but often very defiant and difficult—finally the wrath of the elements in the form of these unprecedented floods that have occurred, I suggest respectfully to the House that a word of appreciation is due to the railway staff for the valiant battle that they have waged against these terrific odds.

Lastly on the subject of partition I want to refer to certain organisation questions. In reply to certain questions addressed to me this morning in the House I referred to the question of linking up the Assam Railway with the Indian railway system. The Assam Railway is now completely isolated from the rest of the Indian railway system. Government have come to the conclusion that for administrative reasons, for business reasons and also for strategic reasons it is necessary that there should be through rail connection between Assam and the rest of the Indian railway system. We have sanctioned this project which will be taken in hand immediately. It will mean 156 miles of new work; out of that 70 miles would be conversion of the existing narrow-gauge Darjeeling Himalayan Extension Railway to metre-gauge and 86 miles new construction, the total cost of this is estimated at about 4½ crores. I have had a conference with the Ministries of West Bengal and Assam on this subject and the general alignment has been agreed to between us and the survey, as I said, will start almost immediately.

The next organisation question is the regrouping of railways affected by partition. The result of partition is that we have now five different units in the areas covered by partition. There is the East Punjab Railway which is now a separate administrative unit directly responsible to the Railway Board, the East Indian Railway, the Oudh-Tirhut Railway, the Indian portion of the old Bengal and Assam Railway and the Assam Railway. We have decided that there should be a regrouping of these railways. The question of regrouping involves three principles. First of all railways have to be arranged in such a way as to promote operational efficiency; secondly, it ought to promote administrative convenience; thirdly, it ought to effect economy in controlling and supervisory establishment.

working of our Railways which have been matters not merely of concern but of anxiety both to the House and to the country. The first of these problems that I want to deal with is the way in which the partition of the country and certain consequences that have flowed from partition have reacted upon the Railways.

I propose to deal with the subject of partition under three heads. Firstly, certain operating arrangements which partition has rendered necessary. Secondly, the important problem of the division of assets and liabilities, and thirdly, certain concrete problems of a current nature which we are called upon to deal with as a result of partition.

I shall indicate briefly the nature of the operating arrangements we have made to reduce to a minimum the interruption of traffic. First of all, we have made arrangements regarding what are called "running powers", that is to say, when one Railway runs its trains to the border of the other Railway, it is likely that at the terminal points on the border there would not be all facilities necessary for dealing with these trains. Before these trains come back, it is necessary that there should be stabling-room for trains, running room for the staff on the trains and arrangements for the inspection of wagons and coaches. It so happens that as a result of the territorial division, it is not possible always at these border points to have these necessary arrangements made. Therefore, it becomes necessary to run the trains beyond the border into the territory of the other Railway to points where the necessary facilities are available. We have given running powers to Pakistan; Pakistan has given running powers to us.

Secondly, where there are certain sections of the Railways which are completely isolated from the parent Railway, it is necessary not merely to provide running powers, but to provide what are called "working powers", that is to say, such sections are allowed to be worked by the other Railway under agreed arrangements. It is a well-known railway practice. We have given working powers to Pakistan over some of our sections; similarly they have given us working powers over some of theirs.

Thirdly, if you want to avoid interruption of traffic, it is necessary that through-booking of wagons and coaches should be provided for which also has been made under this arrangement. The point of that is that otherwise you would put yourself to the delay and the trouble due to transshipment.

Fourthly, it has been arranged that there would be no changes in fares and freights on one Railway without notice being given to the other Railway.

Fifthly,—and this is an important point,—as a result of the territorial distribution of the country, Workshops that used to work for a particular Railway happen to fall outside its border. If that happens, the original facilities which were available are no longer so and it is necessary, therefore to make special arrangements. In regard, for example, to the Eastern Punjab Railway, the arrangement is that the Moghulpura Workshop which now falls within the Pakistan limits would do the necessary work for us. Similarly, it has been agreed that the Kanchrapara Workshop which belongs to us would do work for the Pakistan Railway and also the Saidpur Workshop which is in the Pakistan area would do work for the Assam Railway. This arrangement has, on the whole, I regret to say, worked unsatisfactorily. We have hardly been able to get any work done for the Eastern Punjab Railway at the Moghulpura Workshop. I do not want to blame anybody. There have been disturbances of a serious kind and there has been considerable depletion of staff. In any case, the result is that we have been able to get little service out of the Moghulpura Workshop. It has been, therefore, necessary for us to make demands on the other Railways in India for the necessary service for the Eastern Punjab Railway. Similar difficulty has arisen also in regard to the Assam Railway. The Saidpur Workshop has not been able to render us the service that we had expected and it is our idea at an early date to set up a separate Workshop for the Assam Railway. That, however, is a matter that will take time. These arrangements are generally for a period of two years; in some cases there is no time-limit in others they are terminable at six months notice and so on.

Now, I come to the second problem arising out of partition, namely, the division of assets and liabilities. Assets present two problems in this connection. You have first of all to determine the shares which fall to each side. Having done that, you proceed further, and make a physical distribution of the assets on the basis of the shares. If we take the fixed assets,—the permanent way, the buildings, bridges and so on,—there should not be any great difficulty as regards the determination of shares, because that follows automatically the territorial distribution. Although that is so in principle, there has been in practice a certain amount of difficulty. One would have thought that where the determination of shares automatically followed the territorial division physical distribution would also follow automatically, but it has happened that in respect of the Bengal Railways it was not possible to effect in time the physical distribution of the fixed assets. I am referring to that point because my honourable friends from Bengal have rightly taken a keen interest in this aspect of partition. What has happened is that under the Boundary Commission's Award, certain additional sections of the Pakistan Railway have been ceded to us. But, all our running arrangements and working arrangements had been made with reference to the national division. Therefore, when the Boundary Commission's Award was given, it was necessary to revise the original arrangements and that took a certain amount of time—longer time than we had expected. The delay was regrettable. All that I can say about it is that the delay did not arise on our side. It was not till a fortnight ago, not till the 8th of November that these Sections of the Railways which ought to have come to us earlier under the Boundary Commission's Award were really handed over to us. It was a delay of somewhere about 2½ months; I know there was a great deal of anxiety about this matter in Bengal. The anxiety I think arose very largely from the fear that this delay might mean considerable financial losses to the Indian Railways. On that point I am in a position to set the minds of our friends in Bengal at rest. The financial risk involved has been nil. The position is that in regard to all through pre-paid traffic that passes from Calcutta northwards or southwards from Assam the collections are made by us out of which a considerable part naturally is due to Pakistan for the traffic that passes over their area. The share of these through collections which falls to Pakistan at present is in our hands, and as far as I am able to judge from the figures available to me, we have as much in our hands as is necessary to cover any payments due to us from them in respect of sections which have been ceded to us under the Boundary Commission's Award. It is not merely sufficient, but probably a good deal more. I want to assure my friends in Bengal, therefore, that there is no financial risk involved in it at all. That is as far as the fixed assets are concerned.

Regarding movable assets comprising generally rolling-stock and engineering stores the determination of the shares falling to each side was done under the notional division. But before we could revise that with reference to the Boundary Commission's Award the disturbances in the Punjab began and it became therefore impossible to proceed with the revision or to proceed with the necessary physical distribution. The preliminary work has now been completed and I am hoping at an early date to effect the distribution.

Then I come to the division of liabilities. I am referring to capital liabilities. The problem is this. Certain assets have come to us and certain assets to them. The problem we are faced with is what is the liability that each party is to assume for the assets it has received, that is to say, what is the capital cost that we are to incur in respect of the capital assets that we have received and vice versa. It is more than a technical or theoretical question, because on the division of these capital liabilities will depend the capital

[Dr. John Matthai]

I have on this question also had a conference with representatives of the Governments of West Bengal and Assam and we have come provisionally to certain agreed conclusions. The question of the investigation required for this regrouping has already been taken up and a senior railway officer with a great deal of experience of railway administration is being deputed to undertake that work. I hope it will be possible as a result of this regrouping for the railways which are now working in Bengal and Assam to be administered in a manner that would serve better the interests of these areas.

Sir, that is what I have to say regarding the problems arising from partition. I now go on to an entirely different subject which is the general movement of goods traffic on our railways,—a subject which has caused a great deal of concern in the country. The first thing that I want to say is that this problem is not so much a problem of the number of wagons as a problem of what in railway parlance is called the turn-round of wagons. What this phrase "turn-round" means—if I may explain it somewhat loosely—is the time taken by a wagon to perform a round trip and return to take up fresh traffic. The amount of wagon accommodation available at any particular time in the country depends not merely on the number of wagons in service but also on the rate at which the wagons 'turn-round.' Honourable Members who are familiar with economics will know that in what they call the Quantity Theory of Money the amount of money at any particular time is determined not merely by the quantity of money but also by the velocity of circulation. That applies also to the question of goods traffic. I want to give the House certain figures. Taking the number of wagons in service, the number that we have at present represents an increase of 15 per cent. over the number we had in 1938-39. As compared with that the quantity of traffic we are carrying now represents an increase of 20 per cent. over the traffic in 1938-39. There is therefore a slight gap. But the gap is not such as to make a material difference to the position. But if you take the figures with regard to the 'turn-round' of wagons, the pace at which wagons circulate the position is different. If you take broad gauge wagons in 1938-39, the average period of turn-round was approximately nine to ten days. Today, if you exclude South India, where the problem is somewhat different—we have not the difficulties there that we have in Upper India—the broad gauge wagons have an average 'turn-round' of 14 to 15 days. What that means is that there is a decline in the total quantity of wagon accommodation available of 40 to 50 per cent as compared with pre-war. That is the problem that we are faced with and I want to tell the House as briefly as I can what are the circumstances that have led to this slower movement of our wagons.

First of all, there is this question of civil disturbances. It is interesting that, when you look at the figures regarding the movement of wagon traffic, the decline starts from August 1946. It is clearly illustrated in the case of coal traffic. In the first half of 1946 the total quantity of coal despatched from the coalfields by railways was approximately 24 lakhs of tons a month. In the second half of 1946, the period about October-November, it dropped to 20 lakhs of tons. In other words, there was a drop over a period of six months of 16 per cent, which is a very considerable figure when it comes to the question of coal traffic. This has been greatly intensified by the disturbances that have occurred in the Punjab.

A point I think to which not sufficient attention has been given in public discussions on this subject is the vast changes which have occurred in the channels of traffic since pre-war days. First of all, there are these large shipments of imported foodgrains from western countries, particularly America, to the western ports of India, a traffic which was not known before the war, and now since partition a port like Bombay has to handle in addition the traffic which was formerly handled for India from Karachi. Therefore the pressure on Bombay in respect of import of foodgrains is at present very considerable. Secondly, since the outbreak of the war, there has been a large dispersal of industries in India. As a result of the war new industries had to be started in parts of the country where they had not been in existence before. I could illustrate it by one fact. In the days before the war, the coal that used to be despatched above Moghul Serai towards Upper India to feed industries there, was considerably less than the coal that is now going along that route. There is an increase as far as I can make out today of about 50 per cent. over the pre-war traffic in coal in that area. Another illustration is that most of the coal that used to go to Bombay and Kathiawar before the war went by sea. On account of the lack of shipping space today, by far the greater part of that traffic goes by rail.

The result of these various changes as regards the 'turn-round' of the wagons is this. The capacity of existing marshalling-yards, where as you know wagons are sorted out with respect to their ultimate destinations, was fixed with reference to the traffic that used to move over a long period along those routes before the war. Similarly also the track capacity of the railways. Now the new routes that trade is taking are routes along which the capacity of the marshalling-yards and track capacity have been fixed with reference to the thinner traffic that used to offer before the war. You may ask, why don't you improve the capacity? We would like to. But to improve the capacity of the marshalling yards and the track capacity is largely a question of building materials, and with whatever good intentions we may set about the business, the scarcity of building materials put a very severe limitation upon our resources.

There is still another cause, and that is our locomotive position which is serious. There has been a great deal of deterioration in the quality of the service rendered by our locomotives, partly as the result of the intensive wear and tear to which they have been exposed as a result of war traffic. Apart from that many of our locomotives have already survived their normal working life. The total number of locomotives we had before the partition was 8,400, both broad gauge and meter gauge. Out of that 2,900 were over-age which had done their normal period of service. If it were possible for us to replace these locomotives quickly, the problem would be eliminated. But locomotives are not made in India at present, nor even parts of locomotives and I am bound to say when I am faced with this serious problem—that the indifference which was shown to this essential requirement of the country in the old days constitutes a grave reflection on those who were responsible for the government of the country then. Then there is the question of our workshops. That again is a matter which gives us considerable anxiety. The output of our railway workshops has very perceptibly declined since the war. It is not only a question of the unrest among labour but also a question of the scarcity of essential parts of locomotives.

In 1938-39 the average number of days that a locomotive was detained in a workshop for overhaul and repair as regards broad-gauge railways was 40 days. In 1946-47 the number of days rose to 48, which shows a decline in output of 20 per cent.

If you take meter gauge locomotives in 1938-39 the number of days a locomotive was detained in a workshop was 31. In 1946-47 it was 51, a decline in output of 60 per cent.

I want to say a word with regard to coal. That problem has been causing anxiety recently. The importance of quick movement in respect of coal is twofold. First of all, unless you move the coal promptly, it reacts upon the production of the collieries, because otherwise all available stacking space is taken up. It means also so much working capital locked up. For both these reasons, therefore, it reacts upon production. It has also a great deal of importance from the point of view of the labour situation. If as a result of our inability to move coal promptly, production slows down, it may become necessary to discharge labour. That, under present conditions, would present a difficult social problem. All the general causes that I mentioned with regard to goods traffic apply equally in the case of coal. But recently there has been another development which has had a serious effect on coal. A large number of the engine crew, particularly on the East Indian Railway, have been for many years Muslims and when they opted for Pakistan, there was the likelihood of a considerable depletion and disorganisation of engine staff. The original arrangement which Government had made was that persons who had opted for Pakistan were to be released over a period ending about March 1948 and all the arrangements necessary for replacing them had been made on that basis. When the Punjab disturbances began the whole atmosphere altered. There was a great deal of nervousness and tension among both Muslim employees and non-Muslim employees, particularly the engine crew. Both from the point of view of the safety of Muslim employees and of increased confidence among non-Muslim employees it became necessary, therefore, for Government to alter the original arrangement and orders were issued by Government not merely in respect of railways but also of other departments that those who opted for Pakistan must be released by the end of September 1947. That meant a sudden drop in the staff available for the working of engines. On the East Indian Railway when this order came into force there was a shortage of engine staff of 47 per cent. The result of that was directly reflected in the figures of despatches of coal. On the 29th of September the East Indian and Bengal Nagpur Railways between them despatched 2,487 wagons loaded with coal in a day. On the 2nd October the number dropped to 1,410 and we were faced with what looked like a first class national crisis. Since then, the situation has improved as the result of prompt steps taken by the administrations concerned, these took three forms—the quick upgrading of lower classes of engine workers (cleaners and firemen) on a much shorter period of experience than we would have insisted on otherwise. That was one direction in which the problem was tackled. The second was a large number were diverted from other sections of these railways into the collieries. And, thirdly, we attempted a speedy recruitment from the India-opting staff. The result of all these arrangements has been so far that we have reduced the shortage on the East Indian Railway from 47 per cent to something under 25.

The result of this slow movement of coal has been an accumulation of stocks at the collieries. Today, I believe, the total stock of coal at the collieries is of the order of about 18 lakh tons. Out of that 8 to 9 lakh tons represent the normal working balance at collieries. Therefore there is a balance of about 900,000 tons of accumulated stocks which have to be moved. We have now reached a daily figure of somewhere about 2,600 to 2,700 wagons between the E.I. and B.N. Railways and my estimate is that that figure is sufficient for moving current production of coal. But if we want to move the accumulated surplus it would be necessary for us to provide about 200 wagons more. I am hopeful that the means that we are at present devising would enable us to do that in a short period.

The position that has resulted in regard to coal is accurately summed up in an extract from an article that appeared recently in a well known transport journal. I would read it to the House.

"The conclusion to be drawn from these hard facts is that unless further steps are taken to rehabilitate the railway system and particularly to improve freight locomotive and wagon capacity, it will definitely be unable to cope with the additional coal traffic, which must emanate from the collieries, if we are to achieve any sort of commercial stability. All the efforts to be expended for increasing the output of the mines will be frustrated, if the coal cannot be quickly cleared and transported. The problem therefore does not concern the mines alone but rail transport also and it is to be hoped that in tackling both these aspects, the Government will now exercise the necessary vigour and determination."

It is an accurate description of the situation. Government are prepared to exercise the necessary vigour and determination. But before I pass on, I want to tell the House that the article from which I have taken this extract is a description of railway transport conditions today in the United Kingdom and not in India! I make a present of this to the House, because I think it is important that in discussing problems of Indian railways we ought to develop a better comparative sense and a greater sense of proportion.

As regards general traffic and the prospects for the future, what we propose to do is this. There is a considerable amount of additional rolling stock which is on order for the Indian railways both here and abroad, of which however deliveries will not commence till after 1948. Secondly, we have taken in hand the expansion of marshalling yards and track capacity. But we are limited by the availability of materials. Thirdly, I hope for an improvement in workshop output due to a better and more co-operative atmosphere among our labour. And I believe also that it will be possible for us to get larger quantities of spare parts from India. Fourthly, we propose to depute a senior officer of our Railways with large experience of transportation almost immediately to proceed to the United States of America to study the latest development in the technique of railway transportation. In the United States of America, more than in any other advanced country I can think of, conditions of traffic approximate to ours. But the most important thing which will make a difference to the position is an abatement of civil strife and the maintenance of law and order in the country. My main conclusion I would put in these words: While we expect gradual improvement in the near future, the restoration of normal working conditions in India cannot be expected within a period of three years.

Now I come to the question of labour which in the Railways has always been a serious problem. Since May 1946 the All-India Railwaymen's Federation had been making demands for better wages and better living conditions. A temporary settlement was reached with them in June 1946. A certain amount of provisional relief was granted. Outstanding questions were left to be settled on the basis of the Pay Commission's Report. On the main proposals of the Pay Commission's Report a settlement has now been reached, and I am glad to be able to say that the threat of a general strike on our Railways with all its dreadful consequences to the economy of the country, has been averted. I would like to take this opportunity of expressing Government's appreciation of the co-operative spirit and the general sense of responsibility displayed by the leadership of the All-India Railwaymen's Federation in their negotiations with Government. Speaking as Minister for Railways I am encouraged by the relations which now prevail between us and our labour. We want to capitalise this good-will. We want to build on it a permanent and progressive spirit of mutual understanding and co-operation between the management and labour. To achieve this end I have already started discussions with the All-India Railwaymen's Federation which, I hope, will enable us to put behind us once and for all the ugly chapter of ill-will and misunderstanding which the recent settlement has fortunately brought to a close. In the present temper of labour throughout the country what gives me anxiety is not so much the possibility of prolonged open strikes, although that is had enough but the absence of a spirit of positive co-operation and enthusiasm for work which shows itself in such things as slow-down tactics, and sporadic stoppages of work in the form of lightning strikes. This to my mind is largely a psychological problem and it is to the solution of this problem that the Railways, like other industries, should mainly direct their attention. As far as I am concerned I regard this, so long as I hold my present office, as one of my most important responsibilities.

Next I come to the question of the superior staff. I want to refer particularly to a question in which the country has for long years taken a keen interest—the Indianisation of our superior staff. There has been no recruitment of non-Indians to the railway services since 1943. And of course there will be no further recruitment hereafter, except in regard to technical jobs for which personnel with suitable experience and training does not happen to be available in the country. But where such recruitment is concerned we propose to make it as far as possible on the basis of short-term contracts so that suitable Indians may be trained up for these jobs. Regarding the existing non-Indian personnel in our services, the policy which has been announced by Government is that their existing terms and conditions would be guaranteed to them and that no distinction would be made in the matter of promotion between them and Indian officers. While in principle this is still Government's policy we cannot overlook certain developments in this matter which have occurred since the recent constitutional changes came into force, and the consequent necessity imposed upon us for some re-orientation of the policy announced by Government. What these developments are would best be indicated by the following figures:—

On the 15th August 1947 the total number of European officers in Railway Services was 338. Out of this the number who have elected for Pakistan is 98. The number who have left our service since 15th August on retirement is 49. The number who have already announced their intention to leave shortly is 19.

Altogether making a total of 166 out of 338. That is, 50 per cent of the total strength of European officers have either left or are about to leave. This raises two considerations of importance. First, a large proportion of these European officers have been holding important positions and these positions have therefore been rendered vacant. Secondly, it must be presumed from this that a further depletion will take place, in the not distant future, of European officers holding key positions. It follows from these considerations that in the public interest it is necessary now to build up as quickly as possible a reserve of Indian officers with the training and experience required for holding key positions on the railways. This cannot be done overnight. Therefore a beginning in this direction must be made immediately. We propose therefore that when vacancies arise hereafter in key positions, preference should be given definitely to Indian officers of proved ability, irrespective of considerations of seniority. This would necessarily imply that individual claims of senior non-Indian officers would in some cases be overlooked. I am aware of the hardship that would be caused in such cases. But those who are affected thereby will, I am sure, realize that this is a matter in which the country's interests must come before the interests of individual officers. The extent to which non-Indian officers have left, or are leaving our service, leaves Government no option in this matter. A beginning in this respect has already been made with the Railway Board which is the chief executive authority of our railways. Early this year the Board consisted of five Members of whom four were Europeans and one Indian. Today we have a Board of six Members, including a temporary Member appointed for dealing with refugee work. Out of these six, five are Indians and one European.

I now come, Sir, to the main subject with which I want to deal, and that is the present financial position of the Railways.

Since the last Budget was presented, several factors have come into operation which have greatly increased our working expenses. The Pay Commission's proposals, increase in the price of coal, increase in the price of foodgrains, the award of the Adjudicator regarding working hours and leave conditions for railway staff; the nett effect of all these facts on the current year's Budget may be expressed as follows:

If no partition had taken place, that is on a pre-partition basis, the increase in working expenses on account of these various factors would be as follows: Pay Commission's proposals per annum, 31.71 crores. Under the arrangement that we have made with the Railwaymen's Federation, retrospective effect has to be given from the 1st of January 1947. So there is an extra period of three months to be taken into account, which would mean 7.93 crores. The increase in the price of coal would mean 1.60 crores. On account of the increases in the price of foodgrains, the grainshop concessions would show an increase of 7.50 crores. As far as the Adjudicator's award is concerned, I expect it would be possible by keeping more or less the existing staff, to provide for the shortening of working hours and the increase in leave provision which he has suggested. Therefore I expect over the present expenses we shall not incur any additional expenditure. This total figure, under the items that I have already read out, would mean an additional expenditure on a pre-partition basis for the year 1947-48 of 48.74 crores which is an increase of 36 per cent. over the working expenses estimated in the Budget. If these figures are worked out on a post-partition basis the position would be as follows for 1947-48:

Net loss up to the 14th of August 1947, up to which we worked on a joint account is 13.69 crores.

From the 15th of August 1947 to the 31st of March 1948, the increase would be 12.38 crores.

So, altogether this year the additional expenditure we have to meet is 26.07 crores. I will presently make certain proposals which Government have adopted for meeting this loss. The additional revenue from these proposals per annum would be—

Coaching traffic	22.27 crores.
Goods traffic	10.05 crores.

Altogether an additional revenue per annum of 32.32 crores. These proposals cannot be brought into force earlier than the 1st January 1948. That is the effect of it would be confined to the last quarter of the current year. The additional revenue therefore from these proposals for 1947-48 is expected to be 9.15 crores. I estimated a net loss for the year of 26.07 crores, which leaves us with an uncovered balance of 16.92 crores. We have at present in the Railway reserve 21.61 crores. If the loss is adjusted against the Railway reserve, the balance in the reserve at the end of the year would be 4.69 crores. That is roughly the financial position as it emerges from these proposals which I am going to explain to the House. The depreciation and betterment funds would be unaffected. None of this loss in revenue would be adjusted against these funds.

I have tried to get a rough estimate made, if these proposals continued for 1948-49, of what the financial position would be at the end of 1948-49. On a very rough basis I estimate that after meeting working expenses, depreciation and interest charges, there would be a net surplus at the end of the year of approximately 4 crores. That is not good enough as a surplus; and if I am asked what is the source from which I could expect additional revenue, I will say this: First increased economies. The Railway Enquiry Committee which has been looking into this question unfortunately has had to be suspended for a period of a few months on account of the disturbances and of the adjustments following from partition: but I hope they will reassemble within a short period and give us the benefit of their proposals in this matter. The other direction in which I look for increased revenue is the reduction of ticketless travel, about which I will have to say something later on.

I now come to the actual proposals which cover increases both in passenger fares and goods freight. Details regarding the financial position and these proposals are set out in a memorandum, copies of which will be in the hands of Honourable Members before the House rises. I propose only to mention the more important features. Under passenger fares, our proposals are:

First class fares to be raised to 30 pies flat rate per mile, the present rate being 24 pies per mile up to 300 miles, 18 pies thereafter plus a surcharge of 13 per cent.

Second class fares will be raised to 16 pies flat rate per mile, the general rate today being 12 pies up to 300 miles, 9 pies thereafter, and a surcharge of 13 per cent.

Inter class: 9 pies on mail trains and 7½ pies on ordinary trains from the present average rate of 5.47 pies plus surcharge.

Third class: 5 pies on mail trains and 4 pies on ordinary trains. If you take the weighted average rate, taking all our railways together, the present average rate for third class traffic is 3.6 pies per mile. Against that average rate, the ordinary train rate would be 4 pies. I want to make clear why we make this distinction between mail trains and ordinary trains. We have been anxious in these proposals not to put any additional burden on the lowest class passengers in respect of journeys of an essential character, and these journeys are relatively short distance journeys, generally about 100 miles or so.

We consider that in respect of these journeys ordinary trains might equally conveniently be used. Although it is true that the average rate of third-class fare today is 3.6, if you take the rates actually prevailing on the more important of our Railways like the B. B. & C. I., or the G. I. P., E. I., M. S. M. and S. I. the rates are already 4 pies or over 4 pies so that in practice those who have to perform essential journeys would pay no more than they are paying today. In several cases, the rate will be actually less because on some of these Railways that I have mentioned, the present rates are higher.

I should like to explain to the House the increase in earnings that we expect from these various proposals. As regards first-class the expected earnings would show an increase of 4/5ths over the present earnings. The second-class would show an increase of 2/5ths over existing earnings. Inter-class also would show an increase of 2/5ths. Third-class would show an increase of 1/3rd.

As regards season tickets in urban areas, the increases proposed are:

First class	... 50 per cent.
Second class	... 25 per cent.
Inter class	... 18½ per cent.
Third class	... 12½ per cent.

Season tickets for rural areas would be based on twelve return fares per month.

As regards goods freight, the main principle on which we have based our proposals is not to make any general increase in goods freight rates but to make such adjustments in specific rates as are called for. The real reason for doing it is that it will enable us to distinguish between commodities; that is to say, if you want to make a distinction in respect of essential commodities, an arrangement of this kind enables you to do so.

The main proposals in regard to these adjustments are these. The first is regarding schedule rates which are rates below the standard rates under the classification rules. Those schedule rates which are unremunerative will be eliminated. The reasons for this proposal are that these schedule rates were fixed at a time when conditions of traffic were different from what they are now. Also the cost of transportation at that time was very considerably lower than it is today. The total working expenses in 1946-47 are more than three times those in 1938-39. These schedule rates were fixed with reference to working expenses at an earlier period than 1938-39. The second proposal is that certain commodities would be upgraded from lower to higher classes; commodities which are of a non-essential character. Thirdly, we are going to introduce telescopic rates on the continuous mileage basis in respect of certain classes of goods, the rate beyond the first 600 miles being generally no higher than the existing rates. Fourthly, we propose to review the station-to-station rates, the minimum in such cases being generally 25 per maund per mile against the present minimum rate of somewhere about 175. Fifthly, we propose to make these adjustments in such a way that no increases are made on essential commodities such as foodgrains and relatively small increases on others such as cotton piecegoods. There are certain adjustments, we propose to make regarding coal such as the withdrawal of the rebate on coal shipped coastwise, increase in terminal charges and an increase in surcharge. The net result I expect would amount to about 4 annas per ton of coal. As regards steel, we have already issued orders raising the concession rates which have been in force for a long time on the Bengal Nagpur Railway.

All proposals for increases in fares and freights would be unpopular. I personally wish that it had been possible for me to avoid making these proposals. When I suggested a small increase during the last budget session I was so severely attacked that I had no mind to propose further increase, but circumstances have been altogether beyond my control. There is one difference between the last increase and the present increase. Last time the increase was made not in order to meet a deficit but to strengthen the surplus while this time we are making these proposals because it is the only way we can avoid a deficit.

I know it would be said against these proposals that they are of an inflationary character. I want to point out some facts with regard to that. I take the view that passenger fares, except in the case of those who travel on business and workmen who travel on suburban tickets, generally are of a deflationary character having the same effect as direct taxation. With regard to freight rates we are going to see that there is as little increase as possible—hardly any increase on essential commodities such as food grains. I have already pointed out that essential journeys made by our lowest class passengers would also bear no increase.

The problem of ticketless travel has assumed very acute proportions since the refugees traffic began. In the form in which it exists now it has not merely a Railway aspect, it has also a law and order aspect. From the purely Railway point of view, we undertook something like a sample survey a few months ago and on the results of that survey I have made a rough estimate that on the Railways situated in the Indian Dominion, the amount we are losing today on account of ticketless travel is not less than Rs. 8 crores per annum. It is possible for us to take various measures of a Railway character such as additional inspection staff, proper fencing of stations, increased facilities at booking offices and so on. But I personally think the problem has gone much beyond the limits of Railway measures and it has to be tackled now as a problem of law and order because if it is allowed to continue unchecked it is going to sap the sense of law on which alone an ordered society can function. This problem has been particularly acute in the United Provinces for various reasons and recently when I had an opportunity of visiting Lucknow, I discussed this matter with the Honourable the Premier of the U. P. and between us we are considering a proposal on the following lines. We want to start a concentrated drive against ticketless travel, with the aid of an additional police force appointed and set apart for this specific purpose and also in each of the Districts of the United Provinces we would secure the services of a Special Magistrate for dealing with this problem, who will have under him sufficient police staff for the purpose.

[20TH Nov. 1947.]

[Dr. John Matthai]

The question is still under discussion between us and the Government of the United Provinces, but I hope at an early date to take necessary action.

There is one more point, Sir, that I would like to mention. There has been in recent years a strong demand for the appointment of a Railway Rates Tribunal. In view of the fact that the increases that we are proposing on goods traffic take the form not of a general increase but adjustments of the rates on particular commodities, it seems to me essential that there should be provision for an unbiased examination of the rates. Government have, therefore, under consideration the question of setting up a Railway Rates Tribunal on the lines of the Tribunal in the United Kingdom, that is to say, an independent, judicial body with a much wider scope than the present Rates Advisory Committee and having a mandatory and not merely an advisory jurisdiction. I hope to be able to put a scheme on these lines into force by the 1st of April, 1948.

Sir, that brings to a close what I want to say regarding railway matters. I must apologise for having detained the House so long, especially at the end of a heavy working day. My excuse first of all is that I assume that the House and also the country, would be anxious to know the reactions upon the Railways of the very formidable developments through which we have passed during the last few weeks and months. My second excuse is that I know I am addressing a new legislature and they would, I thought, expect me to explain at greater length the background of our Railway Administration and finance than I would if I had been addressing the old House with its long and close acquaintance with these matters. What I have tried to do, Mr. Speaker, is to give the House a clear picture of the way in which the Railways are functioning under the extremely difficult conditions which prevail today—more difficult than any that I had anticipated in my most pessimistic moments,—as clear a picture as I could make it of the struggles, the failures, the achievements such as they are, and the hopes of this great national undertaking of which, for the time being, for no fault of mine, if I may say so, I happen to be the nation's custodian. I am grateful to you, Sir, and to the House for the patience and consideration with which you have listened to me.

Mr. Speaker: I would request the Honourable Members to wait for a few minutes and get their Budget sets of papers.

Mr. Speaker: The House may now adjourn and reassemble tomorrow at 11 a.m.

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Friday the 21st November 1947.

CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY OF INDIA (LEGISLATIVE)

Friday, 21st November, 1947.

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber of the Council House at Eleven of the Clock, Mr. Speaker (The Honourable Mr. B. V. Mavlangudi) in the Chair.

STARRED QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(a) ORAL ANSWERS.

EXPLOITATION OF MINERAL RESOURCES

205. *Shri S. Nagappa: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Works, Mines and Power be pleased to state the total quantity of coal, iron and other minerals that are exploited from the mineral resources in our country every year for the last 3 years?

(b) Is there any scheme under contemplation of Government to increase the exploitation?

(c) If so, what is it, and if not, why not?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: (a) A statement, showing quantities of coal, iron-ore and other important minerals produced in the country, during the last three years, for which complete figures are available, is placed on the table.

(b) Yes.

(c) As regards coal, the Government of India, with a view to implementing the recommendation of the Indian Coal Fields Committee, 1946, for stepping up production of coal, formed an interdepartmental committee to draw up a co-ordinated plan of coal production and transport, over the next five years.

With regard to minerals generally, exploitation is mostly in the hands of private concerns except production of coal from State Railways collieries, which are run by Government.

The following schemes are under contemplation of Government, and are intended, inter alia, to encourage and promote the exploitation of minerals:

(i) Expansion of the Geological Survey of India, to over five times its pre-war cadre, for an extensive search for minerals, with the help of modern instruments and methods. Several Sections which have recently been created in the Geological Survey of India for that purpose, are, the Geophysical Section, the Drilling Section, the Mineral Development Section, and the Rare Minerals Section.

(ii) Creation of a Bureau of Mines, manned by experts, in an advisory capacity for the present, for production, conservation and utilisation of minerals in the country.

(iii) Increasing the technical man-power in the country by reorganisation of the Indian School of Mines, Dhanbad, by implementing the recommendations of the Geological Education Committee, and by sending abroad on scholarship and on deputation, officials and non-officials, for higher education and training, in mining, geology, geophysics and allied subjects.

(iv) Encouraging domestic utilisation of ores and local processing, refining and treatment of minerals.

Shri S. Nagappa: Sir, may I ask, what sort of encouragement in the way of State aid Government will give to private agencies who will be responsible for exploiting these resources?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: Such advice as can be given by the contemplated Bureau of Mines.

Shri S. Nagappa: May I ask only advice will be given or any financial aid will be given?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: For the present the help is limited to advice, but in suitable cases where Government is convinced that by giving some financial help considerable result will accrue, that will be considered.

Shri S. Nagappa: May I ask, Sir, whether the Government is aware there was some investigation so far in Andhra Desa is concerned and it has been stopped now? May I know the reason for such stopping?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: One reason may be that they did not have enough staff to continue quantitative surveys of certain areas, but if the demand comes from the Local Government concerned, some assistance may be made available.

K. T. M. Ahmed Ibrahim Sahib Bahadur: Sir, is it a fact that certain coal deposits were found in the districts of South Arcot and Tanjore and may I know whether any attempts have been made to exploit these coal deposits?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: I require notice.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: Will the Honourable Minister be pleased to enlighten the House if the Advisory Body of Experts has already been established and where it is functioning?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: The Bureau of Mines is not yet established but the proposal for the constitution of the Bureau of Mines is before the Finance Ministry and in a few days' time it will come into existence.

Shri M. S. Aney: May I know, Sir, whether in pursuance of the scheme that have been read out to us, any students have been already sent to foreign countries for education?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: I require notice for this.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: Will the Honourable Minister of Works, Mines and Power be pleased to state if this Advisory Board will be part of the Annexe of the Geological Survey of India or an independent body?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: It will be a different body altogether.

Shri Raj Krishna Bose: Is there any scheme for the Expansion of the Indian School of Mines in Dhanbad under the consideration of Government?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: Yes; and the recommendations of the Committee will be implemented as far as possible.

MAJOR IRRIGATION PROJECTS

205. *Shri S. Nagappa: Will the Honourable Minister of Works, Mines and Power be pleased to state province-wise the names of major irrigation projects:

(i) in regard to which investigation has been completed;

(ii) which are under investigation; and

(iii) which will be taken up for investigation?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: (i) Investigations have not been completed on any of the major irrigation projects. In the case of the Damodar Scheme in Bengal and Bihar, the Mahanadi Scheme in Orissa and the Bhakra Dam in Punjab investigations have reached a stage when construction work could be started in the very near future. In the case of the Tungabhadra Project in Madras and the Mor Project in Bengal construction is already in progress.

(ii) The following are under investigation:

(a) The Central Waterways, Irrigation and Navigation Commission.—(1) Mahanadi Valley Scheme in Orissa, (2) Kosi Dam Project in Nepal and Bihar, (3) Narbada, Tapti and Sabarmati projects in Bombay, Central Provinces, Baroda, and Central India and Kathiawar States, (4) Indravati and Sabri Scheme in Bastar State, (5) Brahmaputra, Barak and Someshwari rivers valley development schemes in Assam, (6) Sone Valley scheme in Bihar, United Provinces and Rewa State.

(b) The Central Technical Power Board.—(1) The Damodar Valley Scheme.

(c) The East Punjab Government.—Bhakra Dam Scheme in East Punjab.

(d) United Provinces Government.—(1) Rihand Dam Scheme, (2) Nayar Dam Scheme, (3) Ramganga Dam Project.

(e) The West Bengal Government.—Mor Project.

(f) The Madras Government.—(1) Tungabhadra Project, (2) Ramapadsagar Project.

(g) The Coorg Administration.—(1) Lakshmanteertha Project, (2) Harangi Project, (3) Barapole Schemes.

(h) The Patiala State.—Dochi Dam Scheme.

(i) Kotak, Indore and Merwar States.—Chambal Scheme.

(iii) None else in view at present.

Shri S. Nagappa: Is it a fact that the Minister for Public Works in Madras has represented to the Central Government that the Krishnapennar project is more feasible and cheap and has more utility value than other projects that are now under investigation?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: The answer to the first part is in the affirmative. As regards the latter part, it is a matter of opinion and is still under investigation.

Shri S. Nagappa: In that case will the Honourable Minister be pleased to state whether he will sanction loans applied for by the Madras Government in order to execute these projects that have been already investigated and are ready for execution?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: Each case will be judged relatively on its own merits and as part of the overhaul scheme for the whole of this country.

Shri S. Nagappa: In view of the food scarcity, specially in Madras, will Government consider schemes of that province and give them preference so that they may be executed at an early date and save the people from the food scarcity?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: I only want to repeat what I said in answer to the question that was asked before this.

Shri Ram Chandra Gupta: What is the total cost of the projects that have been enumerated?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: That has been laid on the table.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: With the exception of the Damodar Valley scheme have all these other projects also been investigated with regard to the generation of hydro-electric power?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: Yes, Sir.

Shri Rameshwar Prasad Sinha: Are Government in a position to state as to how long it would take to finish up the investigation of the Kosi Dam project?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: I cannot give the time off-hand but all attempts will be made to complete the preliminary survey as early as possible.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Are Government trying to give preference or priority to those projects which are expected to give protection from famine in addition to being useful in regard to the Grow More Food Scheme? If so, do Government propose to give any preference to the Sangameswar project in the south?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: That is the most important factor that has weighed with Government. As regards the particular project it will be governed by the same consideration.

Dr. Pattabhi Sitaramayya: May I know the difference between "scheme" and "project"?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: "Scheme" is the first step; "project" is the second.

Shri Raj Krishna Bose: Has any time schedule been fixed for the completion of the Mahanadi Valley project of Orissa.

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: No time limit as such is fixed but our engineers generally think that the project can be completed within a period of seven years.

Shri M. S. Aney: May I ask what progress has been made as regards the investigation of the Tapti and Nermudda schemes?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: As my Honourable friend is very much interested in it I should like to tell him that the first preliminary survey has been sanctioned at a cost of 1 crore and 20 lakhs.

Seth Govinddas: Is it a fact that as far as the Nermudda project is concerned, the C. P. Government has written to the Government of India that it should now be taken in hand immediately as the whole scheme is ready?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: The C. P. Government as well as the Bombay Government and many other people have pressed us to expedite the scheme. I should like to state that just like a popular song the river valley projects have caught the imagination of the people but there are other limiting factors which have got to be taken into consideration, such as adequacy of technical man-power and finances.

Shrimati G. Durgabai: May I know what time limit has been fixed for the Ramapadasagar project and when it is to be completed?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: As already stated, it is under consideration. Once it is approved the time limit will come automatically.

HELP GIVEN TO REFUGEES BY GOVERNMENT AND PRIVATE BODIES

207. *Shri S. Nagappa: Will the Honourable Minister of Relief and Rehabilitation be pleased to state;

(a) the total number of refugees that are given shelter and protection by the Indian Government;

(b) the various places where they have been sheltered;

(c) the nature of shelter and protection given to them;

(d) the cost of shelter so given;

(e) the amount of voluntary contributions collected by public organisations and their names;

(f) the number of women and children among refugees;

(g) the number of deserters; and

(h) the nature of shelter or protection given to each category?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: (a) to (h). Detailed information is being collected and will be laid on the table in due course. Meanwhile, I am confining my reply to the Kurukshetra camp which is under the direct control of the Central Government.

On the 16th November the population of the camp was 2,46,000. For the most part the population of the Camp is given shelter in over 12,000 tents and a few cottages. The tents were supplied by the Army authorities and the cost cannot be determined yet. A great many voluntary organisations have been working to ameliorate the conditions of the refugees. Among them are the Ramakrishna Mission, the Marwari Relief Society and the Delhi Central Relief Committee.

The census of the Camp is being taken roughly, half the population of the Camp are women and children. Residence in the Camp is not obligatory and there is complete freedom of movement. It is therefore difficult to give an estimate of the number of deserters.

Shrimati G. Durgabai: What special steps are Government taking to recover abducted women and children?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: I am afraid this question does not arise. There is a question on this subject later on.

Shri S. Nagappa: Have Government taken adequate steps to see that medical help is given to these refugees, in addition to the proper sanitary conditions that are made to prevail there?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: Yes, Sir.

Seth Govinddas: Is it a fact that the Central Government has written to the various provincial Governments to take a certain number of refugees in their provinces? Is it also a fact that the C. P. Government has agreed to take 10,000 refugees and has created the Mehgaon Camp? Why are not the refugees sent out to these different provinces?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: As a matter of fact the movement of refugees from Kurukshetra and other transit Camps is expected to start within a week. I may remind my Honourable friend that due to limitations on the transport capacity of the railways, the places nearest to these Camps will be first of all tackled for the purpose of sending these refugees. The C. P. Camp, as the Honourable Member will realise, are stationed at a greater distance than many other places.

Shri Santanu Kumar Das: What is the number of refugees residing in India who are not getting shelter or help from Government?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: It is difficult to give a definite reply to this question because the number and location of the camps vary from time to time, and I might attempt an answer if my Honourable friend would give me written notice.

Begum Aizaz Rasul: May I know the number of refugees that the U. P. Government have agreed to take in their province?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: So far as the U. P. is concerned, the actual number of refugees there is approximately $3\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs already. I do not know whether this particular number was agreed to by the U. P. Government at any stage.

Shri H. J. Khandekar: Are there any people in Pakistan and the Bahawalpur State who are ready to be evacuated and have any arrangements been made by this Government to bring them to India?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: That question, I am afraid, does not arise.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: In regard to the voluntary organisations referred to in the reply who are working at Kurukshetra, are they subsidised by Government? If so, under what conditions?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: It is not a question of voluntary organisations being subsidised. The entire financial responsibility for running the Kurukshetra Camp has been undertaken by the Central Government. These organisations render help of various kinds in running the Camp.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: Have they got any initiative in the matter of policy or otherwise?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: They have to act in close co-operation with the Camp authorities. I do not suppose they have any direct initiative in regard to policies about the administration of the Camp.

Shrimati Renuka Ray: Apart from giving shelter and protection, what steps have Government taken to rehabilitate and absorb the trained personnel among the refugees in new projects for nation-building services, such as having training centers for teachers, nurses, etc?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: All that is under active consideration and some projects are about to be started.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: May I know if Government intend to provide shelters for the very large numbers of refugees in the Kurukshetra camp who are living under the sky?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: The capacity of the Kurukshetra Camp is two lakhs and it is on the basis of this estimate that covered accommodation has been provided for. Unfortunately, however, streams of refugees continue to come to Kurukshetra, making it difficult not merely for Government to provide covered accommodation for them but even to organise the camp properly.

Shri Ajit Prasad Jain: Is the Honourable Member aware that apart from the Kurukshetra Camp, in other places a very large number of refugees are lying under the sky without shelter and what do the Government propose to do about their shelter?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: As I said in a reply to another question, the refugees who have to live under the sky do not, I imagine, have to live under such conditions for a very long time. They are in the nature of transit camps mostly and the refugee population is a kind of a transitory population. But I regretfully admit that there have been instances in which refugees have had to live under the sky for a fairly considerable period. But my Honourable friend would realize that it is difficult, having regard to the limitations on our resources, to provide roof accommodation to consider all the refugees who are coming in very large numbers.

Diwan Chaman Lal: Has the Honourable Member considered the possibility of the Government of India taking over all the reception, transit and refugee camps?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: I do not think the question has yet come up for consideration, because the points of entry are in East Punjab and the responsibility of running the transit and reception camps primarily rests upon the East Punjab Government.

Diwan Chaman Lal: Does the financial responsibility rest with the Government of India?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: So far as the financial responsibility goes, the East Punjab Government has been given an assurance that financial help will be rendered by the Central Government. It does not necessarily indicate a direct financial responsibility in regard to every scheme that the East Punjab Government may adopt.

Shri Deshbandhu Gupta: Has the attention of the Honourable Member been drawn to the statement made by Mahatma Gandhi on the refugees lying on Panipat railway station after his visit there, and the fact that the trains are received at Panipat station without any previous intimation, with the result that refugees have to lie there in thousands without shelter under the sky?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: I have seen that report and as a matter of fact I had an enquiry made into the state of things in Panipat, the day before yesterday by deputing a responsible officer from our Ministry. His report indicated that there were about 10,000 persons who were actually living on the station platform in Panipat, but on the day that he visited Panipat he found 5,000 or thereabout left, the others having been removed to Jind State by train. Actually this is what happens. When people come and are deposited at a particular railway station, they have to wait for arrangements for their dispersal. In some cases these arrangements take rather long, as I regretfully admit. As regards the question of trains coming to different stations, like Panipat, without any previous notice, this is a fact and this is due to the arrangements that operate in regard to the transport of refugees from Pakistan to India. As a matter of fact, the destinations are agreed upon at Lahore, and they are communicated to us rather late, so that it becomes difficult for the local authorities to be promptly informed about the time-table. Besides, the time-table itself is very uncertain. In some cases the same distance has been covered in two days, and in other cases in four or five days. This question was taken up in a discussion with the East Punjab Government and the representatives of various departments recently, and now we hope to be able to make adequate arrangements for the reception of refugees at railway stations and we are hoping to get intimation about the time-table of these trains more promptly.

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: May I add a word to what my colleague, the Minister for Relief and Rehabilitation has said in answer to Diwan Chaman Lal's question? The Government of India is prepared to take up every responsibility in East Punjab not only for the camps and other accessory issues but with regard to all other things which are the results of this catastrophe. We have, in fact, practically speaking taken full responsibility for the financial consequences of everything done in East Punjab, and we are even prepared to take executive or other responsibility. The difficulty has been that we do not wish to come in the way of the East Punjab Government from functioning as it wants to function. We do not wish to limit their provincial autonomy under the Constitution. But if the East Punjab Government is willing, we are prepared to take up every responsibility.

Shri H. J. Khandekar: Has the Government any information regarding the discrimination made between caste and caste of the refugees in giving shelter, clothings and food, etc.?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: I never heard about any such complaints.

Shri Ajit Prasad Jain: Has the Government passed an order that no refugee from the East Punjab will enter the United Provinces except under a permit. But in spite of that order any amount of refugees are infiltrating irregularly by rail and road from East Punjab into the U. P.

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: No such order has been passed at all.

CITIZENSHIP RIGHTS OF INDIANS IN BRITISH COMMONWEALTH OF NATIONS

210. *Shri Biswanath Das: Will the Honourable the Prime Minister be pleased to state:

(a) the number of Indians living in other States and Colonies included in the British Commonwealth of Nations—(number in each case to be given separately);

(b) the States that have conferred citizenship rights on Indians;

(c) the disabilities that are still attached to Indians in each of the States constituting the British Commonwealth of Nations as also the British Colonies; and

(d) the action taken, in each case, by the Government of India with the concerned States and Colonies to confer citizenship rights on Indians since September 1946?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: (a), (b), (c) and (d). A statement giving the information available is laid on the table of the House.

No.	Name of country	Indian population (latest available figures)	Citizenship rights	Disabilities of Indians	Action taken by Government with the concerned states to confer citizenship rights on Indians since September 1946
1	Australia	4,544	Indians who are permanently settled in that country do not suffer from any disability in respect of the Commonwealth franchise.	There are a few disabilities in some of the States. E.g., certain sections of Widow's Pensions Acts, Family Endowment Act and Rural Workers' Accommodation Acts of New South Wales discriminate against British Indians as such. In Western Australia there are legal discriminations against British Indians along with other Asiatics and Africans with respect to Crown land, mining, certain occupations and employment. The Government of India instructed their High Commissioner to initiate negotiations with the Authorities concerned for the removal of these disabilities. The High Commissioner discussed the question of disabilities with the Premier of Western Australia and as a result of this discussion the Government of Western Australia have decided to take steps to remove the disabilities which attach to British Indians in that State.	No action was called for.

The only disability which Indians suffer from is in respect of municipal franchise in the Province of British Columbia. Recently the Union of British Columbia Municipalities passed a resolution in favour of municipal franchise for Indians in British Columbia. Legislation on the subject will, it is hoped, be introduced shortly.	No action was called for.

Discrimination is exercised in all important legislative and administrative measures by restricting benefits under them only to the "Ceylonese" who are defined as "persons of either sex domiciled in Ceylon and possessing a domicile of origin". Fisheries Ordinance, licences for plying of omnibuses under the Omnibus Services Licensing Ordinance, etc., are denied to Indians. Very few Indians can enter public service in Ceylon under the present administrative orders of that Government. Even in regard to the right of franchise, while the Ceylonese enjoy adult suffrage, Indian franchise is based on the difficult concept of domicile, or alternatively on property cum literacy qualification or the holding of a "certificate of permanent settlement".

5 United Kingdom Figures of the total Indian population are not available, but the total number of Indians who fall under certain well defined categories, like students, pedlars, seamen, professional men, business men, retired persons, persons on the High Commissioner's staff, persons in domestic, catering and industrial services, is estimated to be between 5,000 and 6,000. Under the Asiatic Land Tenure and Indian Representation Act 1946, Indians in Natal and the Transvaal provinces have been given communal franchise based on education and income or property qualifications, the right of franchise being extended only to males. The same Act provides that Indians in Natal and the Transvaal will jointly be represented by 3 members in the House of Assembly and by 2 in the Senate; the representatives must, however, be Europeans. The Government of India, however, understand that the Board of Education which was set up by the Colonial Government to consider the report of Mr. F. R. (4) The bulk of the Indian population in Fiji depends on the sugar industry and the price of sugar cane. This was painfully brought home to them during the strike of 1943. The whole trouble at the time arose as a result of the sugar cane farmers' demand for a higher price which the Colonial Sugar Refining Company was not prepared to concede. An enquiry by Dr. Shephard was ordered by the Secretary of State for the Colonies. Most of the recommendations made by Dr. Shephard in his report have not been finally implemented by the Colonial Government and are understood to be still under consideration.

GOVERNMENT'S PLAN TO ENCOURAGE INDIAN SHIPPING TRADE

211. *Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: Will the Honourable Minister of Commerce please state:

(a) whether the Government of India propose to enter the Shipping Trade in view of the break-down of conversation with the London Shipping Companies;

(b) what steps Government propose to take in view of the reluctance of the Shipping Companies in England to part with their tonnage to Indian Shipping Companies; and

(c) whether Government propose to purchase ships for plying on the Indian coasts; and if not, what are the plans of Government for encouraging Indian Shipping on Indian coasts?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: (a) to (c). Government have evolved a scheme of joint State-cum-private enterprise for the rapid acquisition of additional Indian owned tonnage and for the increased participation of Indian shipping in the various trades. These proposals have been placed before Indian ship-owners for their views and it is proposed to work out details in consultation with the interests concerned after the shipowners' views are communicated to Government.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: Is there a proposal that the Government should hold more than 50 per cent. of the shares of the Corporation?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: The policy of the Government has been issued in a press communique which is already placed in the Library.

Shri K. Santhanam: In such matters will the Honourable Minister place a resolution before the House and take the permission of the House before they are committed to any large expenditure?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: It is perfectly open to any non-official Member to move a resolution on that matter. However, I shall bear in mind the suggestion made by the Honourable Member.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: Is the Honourable Member aware that on a previous occasion when the last Government was in office, a similar proposal was put up for a corporation to operate road-rail transport was placed before the Government and we had discussions on it; and in view of that will the Honourable Member please bring forward the matter for the consideration of the House?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: As I said, I will bear in mind the suggestion made.

FUTURE OF ALL INDIA CONCERN IN VIEW OF INDIA'S DIVISION

212. *Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Commerce be pleased to state what measures Government propose to take, in view of the division of India, regarding those Corporations and Limited companies and other All-India concerns, which have their Head Offices in one of these two Dominions?

(b) If so, what is the plan of Government in this respect?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: (a) None, Sir, the partition of the country has had the result of making a company with its head office in a Province of Pakistan a foreign company so far as the Dominion of India is concerned, and vice versa. This is legally unavoidable.

(b) Does not arise.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: May I know what will happen in case the head office of a company happens to be in Bombay and its branches in Pakistan. Will the Branches in Pakistan have to open a head office in Pakistan as well?

Mr. Speaker: The question is not admissible. It is problematical and involves a matter of opinion.

IMMIGRATION OF INDIANS INTO BURMA

213. *Prof. N. G. Ranga: Will the Honourable the Prime Minister be pleased to state:

(a) whether any agreement has been reached with the Government of Burma in regard to the Indian immigration into Burma;

(b) whether any unilateral or bi-lateral immigration law or convention has been promulgated in Burma for the regulation of Indian immigration into Burma; and

(c) the facilities that are available for Indians, skilled and unskilled, to go to Burma and obtain employment and also civic rights?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: (a) and (b). On the 13th June, 1947, the Government of Burma promulgated the Burma Immigration (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1947. This is an emergency measure intended to check the unrestricted flow of immigrants into Burma. The Government of Burma have assured the Government of India that it will be replaced immediately an Immigration Agreement is concluded between the two Governments or when the emergency disappears. It is hoped to start negotiations with the Government of Burma in regard to the Immigration Agreement in the near future.

(c) The departure of unskilled workers from India for Burma was banned by the Government of India in July, 1941. Emigration of skilled workers is governed by Chapter IV of the Indian Emigration Act, 1922. Those Indian skilled workers whose emigration is permitted under this Act can enter Burma if they are in possession of immigration permits issued in accordance with the provisions of the Burma Immigration (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1947. There is no statutory restriction on Indians obtaining employment in Burma at present, nor do they suffer from any civic disabilities.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: In view of the fact that the Government of India is already taking steps to prevent unskilled workers from going over to Burma and also to discourage as many people as possible from going over there at all, how is it that this emergency is supposed to have arisen, as a result of which the Government of Burma had to promulgate the ordinance?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: It is for the Government of Burma to answer the question. The ordinance is not restricted to Indians alone, it applies to all.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: What steps are being taken by the Government to see that the Indians who are already there are being adequately protected from being molested or driven out of their homes as also the various other disabilities that are being imposed on them with or without the consent of the Government of Burma?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: We are taking every step that we can possibly take. There can be only two kinds of steps that the Government of India can take. Our High Commissioner there should protect the interests of Indians, which he is doing. He is fully reporting to us and is continually approaching the Government of Burma. The second step is for us to conclude some kind of agreement with the Government of Burma, which we propose to consider soon. I may mention for the information of the House that the Prime Minister of Burma Mr. Thakin Nu, at our invitation, is coming to New Delhi within a few days, early in December.

Shri Biswanath Das: May I know whether the Government would consider the question of convening a conference of the representatives of Madras, Orissa and Bengal, from which provinces people go to Burma, to know the actual conditions now prevailing in Burma, because people in these areas get letters from their friends and relations who are in Burma and the information they receive is fairly horrible?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: I do not see what such a conference would do. We receive much more accurate and precise information from day to day from Burma through our High Commissioner than what we can get from odd letters from people in Burma to their friends and relatives in various parts of the country.

Mr. B. Paker Sahib Bahadur: May I know whether Government is aware that there are many thousands of Indians who had their business and other concerns in Burma and who had to run away from there on account of the war and who are now desirous of going back but that they do not get facilities to go back? What steps are Government taking either to enable them to go back to Burma or to protect their properties and business concerns there?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: During postwar years many steps have been taken to send back people to Burma after finding out that they had properties or business concerns there and a very large number of them have returned to Burma. But we have not encouraged others to return to Burma, because generally the Government are not in favour of sending a large number of Indians abroad unless they have definite occupations there because if it happened that people had to return, it does not redound to our credit there.

POSITION OF INDIANS IN INDEPENDENT CEYLON

214. *Prof. N. G. Ranga: Will the Honourable the Prime Minister be pleased to state:

(a) the latest position, civic and otherwise, of Indians in the new set up of Independent Ceylon; and

(b) whether Indians are assured of equal citizenship rights along with all other peoples of Ceylon?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: (a) and (b). The new Constitution of Ceylon promulgated by the Ceylon (Constitution) Order in Council, 1946, has made no difference to the position of Indians in regard to franchise and other citizenship rights from what it was under the 1931 Donoughmore Constitution. Under the latter Indians were eligible for franchise on the basis either of domicile or of the possession of a certificate of permanent settlement, apart from property cum literacy qualification. In accordance with the Soulbury Commission's Report, His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom left the question of Indian franchise to be discussed between the Governments of India and Ceylon, and we hope to start negotiations on this subject very early.

Shri M. S. Aney: May I know whether there was any assurance given by the Honourable gentleman who is now Prime Minister in Ceylon that immediately after the new constitution comes into force, attempts will be made by him to revive negotiations, with a view to come to a settlement with regard to Indo-Ceylon matters?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: The Honourable Member should be able to answer that question even better than I can, because he has been our distinguished representative in Ceylon. I do not know about any assurance but repeatedly statements have been made that as soon as the elections were over they would like to raise this question. In fact, they are desirous of doing so and so are we.

Shri M. S. Aney: Will the Honourable Prime Minister tell us whether he has received any communication that the Prime Minister of Ceylon is going to come here shortly for the negotiations?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: So far as I can remember we have received no official communication direct but our representative in Ceylon has been approached by the Government of Ceylon and has been informed to that effect.

FORMATION OF INDIAN NATIONAL TRADE UNION CONGRESS

215. *Prof. N. G. Ranga: Will the Honourable Minister of Labour be pleased to state:

(a) whether Government are aware of the formation of the Indian National Trade Union Congress and also of the fact that some of the biggest Trade Unions are affiliated to it; and

(b) whether Government propose to recognise it as a nationally representative labour organisation; if so, when?

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: (a) The reply to the first part of the question is in the affirmative. As regards the second part, Government have no precise information about the Unions affiliated to the Indian National Trade Union Congress.

(b) I presume by the term 'nationally' is meant the most representative organisation of workers in the country. If so, the Indian National Trade Union Congress have not so far made any claim to be recognised as a 'nationally' representative labour organisation. The Ministry of Labour has however, been consulting the Indian National Trade Union Congress along with all-India Organisations of workers on labour questions coming before the Indian Labour Conferences and Committees and the International Labour Conferences.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Is it not a fact that this organisation was not asked to send its representatives to the Asian Regional Labour Conference of the I.L.O. which was held in Delhi recently?

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: Under the conventions of the I.L.O. the most representative workers' organisation in a country is allowed to send its representatives. At present the Indian Trade Union Congress stands as the most representative organisation, and as such it was invited to send its representatives.

Shri Harihar Nath Shastri: In view of the fact that most of the genuine trade unions in this country particularly those run by Congressmen, have seceded from the All-India Trade Union Congress are the Government aware that the All-India Trade Union Congress is reduced to the status of a mouth-piece of the Indian Communist Party?

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: Obviously the strength of the All-India Trade Union Congress has suffered a reduction due to the secession of a number of trade unions which were affiliated to it but we are not yet in a position to state precisely whether the All-India National Trade Union Congress is the most representative organisation. However, we will take up an enquiry as we did in the case of the All-India Trade Union Congress and the Indian Federation of Labour to ascertain the relative strength of the all-India organisations and it is only after such enquiry that we will be in a position to say which of the organisations is the most representative.

Shri S. Nagappa: May I ask whether Government will be pleased to consult the Depressed Class League so far as agricultural labour problems are concerned?

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: In the tripartite organisation the Government nominates some independent persons to represent unorganized labour, and since I have been in office here I have been inviting some persons to represent agricultural labourers as well.

Shri S. Nagappa: If that is the case may I ask whom the Government has consulted from the Depressed Class League so far as agricultural labour problems are concerned?

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: The Depressed Class League as such was not consulted.

REMOVAL OF CONTROLS

216. *Prof. N. G. Ranga: Will the Honourable Minister of Commerce be pleased to state:

(a) whether Government have given any consideration to the Cut Motion passed by the last Assembly on de-controlling all commodities excepting food;

(b) if so, what controls have been so far removed; and

(c) what are the plans of Government to de-control other commodities, and how long do Government propose to take before de-controlling the internal production and trade of essential commodities of daily consumption?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: (a), (b) and (c). The question should have been addressed to the Honourable the Minister of Industry and Supply. It has accordingly been transferred to the list of questions for the 26th November 1947 when it will be answered by the Honourable the Minister of Industry and Supply.

IMPOSITION OF CONTROL OVER IMPORTS AND EXPORTS

217. *Prof. N. G. Ranga: Will the Honourable Minister of Commerce be pleased to state:

(a) whether Government have imposed a strict control over exports and imports, and if so, for what purpose;

(b) whose advice Government seek in deciding how these controls are to be imposed, relaxed, removed or worked;

(c) whether it is a fact that there used to be Imports and Exports Advisory Committees; and

(d) whether Government propose to consider the advisability of reconstituting these committees and providing thereon, representation of the organisations of rural people, Kisan and Mazdoor masses?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: (a) Yes, Sir, Control over exports is retained in order to conserve commodities in short supply in the country and to ensure equitable distribution among the importing countries of Indian goods, in the long term interests of India's export trade. Import control is being strictly enforced with a view to making the best possible use of India's limited foreign exchange resources.

(b) These questions are generally decided at high level Inter-Departmental Conferences and in the case of export control in consultation also with the Export Advisory Council which has recently been reconstituted.

(c) There is an Exports Advisory Council with Port Committees also at Bombay, Madras and Calcutta. There is also a Cotton Piecegoods and Yarn Advisory Committee at Bombay. There are no Import Advisory Committees, except the Cotton Import Advisory Committee at Bombay.

(d) The Export Advisory Council has recently been reconstituted. The question of setting up an Import Advisory Council is under consideration. Government do not consider it necessary to include on these Councils representatives of the organisations mentioned by the Honourable Member, as they have no special interests which are not already represented on them.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Is it not a fact that in regard to imports, for instance in helping Government to decide which imports are to be given high priority and which discouraged, and also in regard to exports, the agricultural masses and the rural people have a special interest, and therefore they ought to be taken into special consultation by Government?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: There is no need because this Government feels that it adequately represents both the Kisan and Mazdoor masses.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: The Honourable Member has raised a very important question over which I do not wish to argue. But in view of the fact that Government, in spite of their claim that they represent Kisans and Mazdoors, have thought it fit to constitute these Advisory Councils, would it not be more equitable that these Councils should not be packed by merchants and industrialists alone but representatives of.....

Mr. Speaker: I am afraid it is an argument.

Mr. B. Pocker Sahib Bahadur: May I know whether Government is aware that there is a great deal of discontent in the mercantile community about the manner in which these export licences are distributed, and whether Government will institute an enquiry into the matter?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: The discontent is the legacy of the previous Government. So far as the present Government is concerned, all efforts are made to reduce discontent to a minimum.

Dr. P. S. Deshmukh: May I know what the Honourable Minister considers himself to be, whether a Kisan or a Mazdoor?

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Neither.

APPOINTMENTS IN FOREIGN SERVICES OF INDIA

218. *Shri B. A. Mandloi: Will the Honourable the Prime Minister be pleased to lay on the table of the House a statement showing:

(a) the different grades of foreign service;

(b) the strength of the present personnel in different grades with the scales of pay of each grade and the number of non-Indians, if any; and

(c) the qualifications required for this service and the method of selection of candidates?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: A statement has been laid on the table of the House.

Statement relating to the Indian Foreign Service

Grades of the Service.

The proposed grades of the Indian Foreign Service, which have not yet been finalised, are as follows:—

Grade 1 will consist of the Foreign Secretary and heads of certain major Missions.

Grade 2 will consist of Heads of other major Missions and Additional Secretaries in the Foreign Office.

Grade 3 will consist of Heads of certain Missions.

Grade 4 will consist of Heads of other Missions and Joint Secretaries in the Foreign Office.

Grade 5 will consist of Heads of Minor Missions, Senior Consuls General, and Selection grade Trade Commissioners.

Grade 6 will consist of Consuls General Counsellors, Trade Commissioners, and Deputy Secretaries in the Foreign Office.

Grade 7 will consist of First Secretaries, Consuls, Assistant Trade Commissioners and Under Secretaries in the Foreign Office.

Grade 8 will consist of Second Secretaries and Senior Vice Consuls.

Grade 9 will consist of Junior Vice Consuls, Third Secretaries, and Paid Attaches.

Present strength and Scales of Pay.

The scales of pay for the members of the Indian Foreign Service are still under consideration. It is intended that the basic scale of pay of the Indian Foreign Service will be on a par with that of the Indian Administrative Service and that in addition the officers of the Indian Foreign Service should be granted representation and other allowances when serving in posts outside India.

So far, only ten officers have been appointed to the Indian Foreign Service as probationers and their pay has been tentatively fixed in the scale of Rs. 300—350—400—450—500 (for the first six years of service) pending final decision of Government in the matter. They are all Indians.

Qualifications and method of selection.

The normal method of recruitment to the Indian Foreign Service is through a competitive examination to be held by the Federal Public Service Commission. The candidates should possess a degree of a recognised University or its equivalent and should satisfy the conditions in regard to age limits, usually prescribed for such competitive examinations.

The age-limit prescribed for the last examination held in July 1947 was 21—25, as will be seen from the attached copy of the advertisement (enclosure I) issued by the Federal Public Service Commission.

It must be recognised, however, that the new Service cannot be built up entirely by direct recruitment of young men from the Universities and that at the beginning at any rate it will be necessary to provide for an intake of candidates of higher age-groups from different walks of life. The method of selection being adopted for this intake are as follows :—

- (1) selection from amongst Emergency Commissioned Officers who had been recommended by the Federal Public Service Commission for appointment to the I. C. S. and I. P. S.
- (2) selection by the Federal Public Service Commission from candidates from the general public, between the ages 26 and 45 whose applications have been received in response to the attached copy of their advertisement (Enclosure II).
- (3) selection by the Federal Public Service Commission from persons belonging to the Provincial Services and those holding temporarily posts on or equivalent to posts borne on the cadres of Central Services Class I.
- (4) selection by the Board of Departmental Representatives, constituted for the purpose, from officers who belonged to the Secretary of State's Services and from officers of the Central Services Class I.

Since recruitment from the above sources is not likely to prove adequate to the needs of the Service, Government have also recently decided to set up a special Board consisting of the Secretary General, Ministry of External Affairs, Secretary, Ministry of Commerce, a representative of the Federation of Indian Chambers of Commerce and Industry, the President of the Inter University Board and a member of the Federal Public Service Commission to tap fresh sources, especially in the business community and the liberal professions.

INDIA'S ANNUAL CONTRIBUTION TO U.N.O.

219. *Shri B. A. Mandloi: (a) Will the Honourable the Prime Minister be pleased to state what annual contribution the Government of India is required to pay to the United Nations Organisation?

(b) Has any Indian been employed in any of the responsible posts of the United Nations Organisation?

(c) If not, have Government made any representation?

(d) If the answer to part (c) above be in the affirmative, what is the result of such representation?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: (a) The annual contribution to the United Nations Organization is fixed for each year separately. The contribution for 1947 for the whole of India, since divided, was paid in May 1947 and amounted to United States $ 1,084,275 or about Rs. 35,91,800.

No intimation has yet been received of the exact amount to be paid for 1948. The contribution payable both by India and Pakistan has been jointly assessed at 3.95 per cent. of the total United Nations budget for 1948, and on this basis the combined liability of both India and Pakistan is expected to be approximately Rs. 46,00,000. In view of the complications involved in determining the share of the Government of Pakistan, it has been decided that for 1948 India will pay for both the countries, the relative share of each being determined later in accordance with the proportion fixed separately for 1949 for each country by the United Nations. The payment made on behalf of Pakistan during 1948 will, therefore, be recovered during 1949.

(b) Yes, there are eight Indian Nationals holding responsible posts in the United Nations Secretariat. A list of Indians at present employed in the United Nations Secretariat is laid on the table.

(c) Government of India are not satisfied with the existing position and have made representations to the United Nations Secretariat from time to time.

(d) The number has doubled; in February last there were only eight Indians employed in the United Nations Secretariat and now there are 16.

Mr. B. Pocker Sahib Bahadur: Has there been any response from the United Nations as a result of the appeals made by the Government of India for better representation of Indians in their staff?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: I have already answered that: I have given the figures of increase.

Shri B. Das: May I know whether the contribution of Rs. 46 lakhs for India and Pakistan represents all the contributions that are made to the U.N.O. and its associated organisations, such as the Institution of Public Hygiene, UNRRA and other such bodies?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: I imagine there are some other contributions, possibly. But I do not know exactly.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Is any effort being made by the Government of India to assess the total amount of money that is being paid to the various organisations associated with the United Nations Organisation, as well as the United Nations Organisation itself?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: I should try to find out and give the figure to the House, if it so desires.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: May I know if the Honourable Prime Minister has received a request from the Pakistan Government to make their contribution for the time being?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: This is a matter, I suppose, that fell within the purview of the Partition Council. I cannot say if any request was received, but normally speaking, India as the continuing body has assumed all obligations that came to the whole of India, to be adjusted later, because otherwise difficulties—legal and constitutional—might arise. We assumed all those obligations and proceeded as the continuing international body, as we are. Subsequently these matters can no doubt be financially adjusted.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: I want to know from the Honourable the Prime Minister whether we have taken for the time being, all responsibilities only for the liability and not for assets, incomes and all that?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: I do not quite understand the Honourable Member's question. We have taken the responsibilities that attached to the Government of India previously in regard to international obligations except such responsibilities as were automatically removed by virtue of the partition and the geographical facts following from that partition. For instance every treaty that India had engaged in is continued by us. But if there is some agreement which applies to Afghanistan and the Frontier Province we cannot fulfil it because of the partition, and it goes, otherwise every international treaty obligation continues to exist so far as we are concerned.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: In view of the fact that U.S.A. was willing to raise her own contribution of the usual 25 per cent. to the U.N.O. as well as the associated organisations, has the Government of India made any claim for a substantial reduction in her own contribution towards these organisations?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: These contributions are fixed on a percentage basis. As a matter of fact the percentage for 1947 has been reduced. The more the members that join the United Nations, the lesser the percentage falling to the lot of each nation: but while the percentage is reduced, the actual expenditure of the United Nations is going up, so that actually we have to pay more. The percentage now, I believe, is 3.95 per cent. so far as India is concerned, and I do not know whether it would be in the

there are certain difficulties about appointing women, and most Foreign Services do not employ women except sometimes in the highest grades of individuals whose services might be distinguished, but there is no bar at all.

Shri Deshbandhu Gupta: May I know, Sir, if the Selection Board referred to also deals with selections for Cultural Relations Services?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: What are the Cultural Relations Services?

Shri Deshbandhu Gupta: There are some representatives appointed for instance, for cultural relations between Iran and India.

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: I do not understand the Honourable Member's question. There are persons in the Diplomatic and Consular Regular Service. They are chosen by a competitive examination except for top rank people who come from public life. The Attaches and others may be appointed. They may be members of the Service or they may be outsiders. For instance there may be a Scientific Attache, a Cultural Attache or a Military Attache. If they are members of the Service, of course they are there. If they are chosen from outside, they are members of some other Service.

(b) WRITTEN ANSWERS

ANTI-INDIAN PROPAGANDA IN MIDDLE EASTERN COUNTRIES

221. *Seth Govinddas: Will the Honourable the Prime Minister be pleased to state:

(a) whether Government are aware of the anti-Indian propaganda in the various Middle-Eastern countries; and

(b) the action the Government of India propose to take to save those Indians, whose life and property are in danger in those countries, on account of that propaganda?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: (a) Reports of such activities have reached the Government of India from time to time.

(b) The only request for protection came recently from Indians in Iran. Suitable representations were made immediately to the Iranian Government and India's Ambassador-designate to Iran has been instructed to look into the matter personally. As regards anti-Indian propaganda in the countries referred to by the Honourable Member, nothing systematic has been possible so far, but, with the opening of Indian Embassies in Teheran and Cairo, it is hoped that effective action will become possible.

AGREEMENT BETWEEN INDIA AND PAKISTAN TO FEED REFUGEES

222. *Seth Govinddas: Will the Honourable Minister of Relief and Rehabilitation be pleased to state the terms of the joint agreement entered into between the Governments of Pakistan and India to feed the refugees in their own territory?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: The terms of agreement pertaining to the Provinces of East Punjab and West Punjab is contained in the Press Communique issued from Government House, Lahore on 3rd September, 1947 are as follows:—

"The Governments of East and West Punjab have undertaken the responsibility for running refugee and evacuee camps for Muslims as well as non-Muslims in their own areas and will provide food and other necessities in equal measure to all refugees."

This agreement would apply also to the North-West Frontier Province as the Province is included with West Punjab in the agreement for mass transfer of population, but in practice the obligation to supply free food to refugees has not been carried out fully by the North-West Frontier Province Government.

PAYMENT OF REPARATIONS BY GERMANY AND JAPAN

223. *R. B. Lala Raj Kanwar: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Commerce be pleased to state whether any reparations in connection with the last Great War have since been claimed from—

(i) Germany; and

(ii) Japan?

(b) If the reply to part (a) above be in the affirmative, what is the amount recoverable in each case and how much out of it has since been recovered in cash or in the shape of materials and how much still remains to be recovered?

(c) If the reply to part (a) above be in the negative, when do the Government of India propose to take up this matter?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: (a) Yes, Sir.

(b) So far as Germany is concerned, division of reparations among claimant countries was decided at the Paris Conference held in 1915 at which India was represented. In terms of the agreement reached, India is entitled to receive 2 per cent. of general reparations called Category 'A' and 2.9 per cent. of industrial and other capital equipment called Category 'B'. India has been allotted as her Category 'B' share German plant and machinery of an aggregate value of R.M. 12,000,514.27 up to 30th September, 1947. So far as Category 'A' share of German reparations is concerned, no items have so far been received.

The question of Japanese reparations is still under discussion in the Far Eastern Commission at Washington and India has claimed 12.5 per cent. as her share. The total amount of the reparations recoverable from Germany and Japan is not however yet known and it is not possible therefore to say how much is due for recovery.

(c) Does not arise.

APPOINTMENT OF INDIA'S AMBASSADORS, ENVOYS AND HIGH COMMISSIONERS

224. *R. B. Lala Raj Kanwar: Will the Honourable the Prime Minister be pleased to state the names of Ambassadors, Envoys, High Commissioners and other persons holding similar position, who represent India in foreign countries, and the date of appointment and emoluments of each?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: A statement is placed on the table of the House.

Statement showing name of country, name of the Ambassador etc., date of appointment and emoluments.

Name of the Country	Name of the Ambassador, etc.	Date of appointment	Emoluments fitness of things for us to plead for a reduction of the percentage which has been laid down in accordance with certain rules.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: May I have an idea from the Honourable the Prime Minister as to the method of machinery by which we could hope to recover the money due from Pakistan?

Mr. Speaker: Does not arise.

RECRUITMENT TO FOREIGN SERVICE

220. *Seth Govinddas: Will the Honourable the Prime Minister be pleased to state:

(a) whether Government are aware of an announcement made by the Federal Public Service Commission calling for applications for recruitment to Foreign Service;

(b) whether it is a fact that no selection has been made upto now;

(c) the number of persons sent abroad to work with Indian Embassies in the meantime;

(d) how these persons are selected; and

(e) when do Government propose to hold selection for the proposed Foreign Service?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: (a) Yes. The Honourable member presumably refers to the advertisement issued by the Commission on the 27th February, 1947.

(b) A few selections have been made.

(c) Since the issue of the advertisement mentioned in the answer to part (a), eight gazetted officers have been deputed to serve with our Diplomatic Missions abroad.

(d) Two of them, who were officers with war-service were selected on the recommendation of the Federal Public Service Commission, five are members of the Indian Civil Service and one a member of the Indian Political Service. These last six were chosen by a Selection Board of Departmental Representatives constituted for the purpose with the approval of the Cabinet.

(e) The Federal Public Service Commission is still interviewing candidates from among those who applied in response to the advertisement of the 27th February, 1947. Since recruitment from this source is not likely to prove adequate to the needs of the Service, Government have recently decided to set up a special Board consisting of the Secretary General, Ministry of External Affairs, Secretary, Ministry of Commerce, a representative of the Federation of Indian Chambers of Commerce and Industry, the President of the Inter University Board and a member of the Federal Public Service Commission to tap fresh sources, especially in the business community and the liberal professions. These are exceptional measures designed to meet the most urgent needs. Normal recruitment will, as in the case of other public services, continue to be made by means of a competitive examination conducted by the Federal Public Service Commission.

Seth Govinddas: With respect to the qualifications of these candidates, Sir, will this new Board or the Government keep in mind that the degrees of their educational qualifications taken from various important non-official institutions like Shantiniketan and Gurukul Kangra will also be taken into consideration as the Honourable the Prime Minister had promised last year when this question was discussed that he would consider this question?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: So far as this Gurukul is concerned, it is not bound down by the strict terms of the advertisement which the Federal Public Services Commission issued. For instance that Commission said that a person must hold a first class university degree. That was done because we want men of the highest merit. Nevertheless it is conceivable that a person who gets a first class degree is not very competent for this particular work and a person who might get a second class degree subsequently gets other qualifications which make him more competent. Anyhow, in answer to the question put by Seth Govinddas I would say that it is open to the new Board to consider such questions.

Shri Ajit Prasad Jain: May I know, Sir, whether a competitive examination for recruitment to the Foreign Service was held in June last and whether any candidates appeared at that examination, and if none of them have been so far taken, why?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: No competitive examination specially for the Foreign Service has been held: but out of those who were selected in the competitive examination for the All-India Administrative Service, some persons were selected for the Foreign Service.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Why is it, Sir, that representation is provided for the Indian Merchants Chamber and no representation at all for this House?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: This House is represented by quite a number of Members there. We are all Members of this House representing this House in those Committees. The Diplomatic Service is divided into two parts: One is purely Diplomatic Service and the other Consular Service. More or less they are taken together now, not separate as they used to be. Because there was this consular aspect, which deals with trade and commerce to a great extent, we thought we might have some representative of the Indian Chambers of Commerce.

Shri B. Das: Is it a fact that one or two persons have been sent abroad in the Diplomatic Service who have foreign wives, and is it not a fact that no other country sends out persons who have foreign wives in the Diplomatic Service?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: I cannot speak for other countries. Normally it is not considered desirable for diplomats, at any rate holding very responsible posts, to marry foreign wives as the Honourable Member puts. But there is no bar to that. It may only be the reason for reconsideration of the appointment. This matter was examined and it was considered that it should not be a bar, but that the question can be considered on individual merits.

Seth Govinddas: Will the Government under these circumstances see that no bachelor is sent?

(No reply)

Begum Aizaz Rasul: May I know if women with the requisite qualifications, are eligible for recruitment to Foreign Service through the Federal Public Services Commission?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: Yes, certainly in theory. I hope also to some extent in practice. Certain difficulties arose when this matter was being considered last year when we were framing our rules. I may tell the House that the rules as originally framed excluded women, but I struck out that clause and said women should not be excluded. The fact remains

INDIAN SUPPLY MISSION IN LONDON

229. *Shri Mohan Lal Saksena: Will the Honourable Minister of Commerce be pleased to lay on the table of the House a statement about the Indian Supply Mission in London as to its personnel, working and annual expenditure?

The Honourable Shri N. V. Gadgil: A statement containing the required information is laid on the table.

Statement

With the termination of the war and the release of the pent-up world demand for capital goods on U. K. manufacturers, it was felt that, if India was to secure her due share of U. K.'s exportable surplus of these goods which were so vital to her economy and for the encouragement and orderly development of Indian Industries in the post-war period, it was most essential that she should have a separate organization on the spot to arrange for and finalise the purchase of all her requirements. With this object in view, the India Supply Commission came into being in November 1943. The work of this organization covers registration, co-ordination and processing of all imports on non-Government account, sponsorship of shipments, programming and progressing of requirements of machinery, plant equipment and their civil requirements.

The staff of the India Supply Commission in London consists of an India Supply Commissioner assisted by one Deputy and three Assistant Commissioners and the necessary complement of subordinate staff. The last incumbent of the post of India Supply Commission having opted for service under the Pakistan Government, the Indian Trade Commissioner, London, is, at the moment, as a temporary measure, in charge of the post in addition to his own

The annual expenditure on the Commission as budgetted for the year 1947-48 is Rs. 4,92,000

(c) If so, what action have Government taken to counter-act it, and what action they propose to take against the Raja?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: (a) There are approximately 500 Indians in Iran.

(b) and (c) We have received various telegrams from the Indian community in Tehran and Zahidan to the effect that their lives and property were in danger because of propaganda carried on against them. This was brought to the notice of the Iranian Government who have given assurances that the lives and property of the Indian community in Iran will be protected. Our Ambassador to Iran will shortly arrive there and will consider whether any further action is required to safeguard the interests of Indian nationals.

POST-WAR DEVELOPMENT SCHEMES

234. *R. K. Sidhwa: (a) Will the Honourable the Prime Minister be pleased to state what progress has been made by the Government of India in putting into operation, various post-war development schemes?

(c) If the answer to the latter part of (b) above be in the affirmative, when do Government propose to give effect to the schemes?

(d) Do Government propose to give priority to the construction of roads in various parts of the country for the betterment of the life of the masses of India?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: (a) A start, but only a start, has been made both in the Provinces and in the Centre in putting these schemes into execution. A sum of approximately Rs. 13 crores has been paid to Provinces upto 31st March, 1947 as Central Government grants for Provincial schemes. The expenditure on Central Government schemes during the same period was estimated to be 11½ crores. Actuals are not yet available.

(b) and (c) Government have no intention of abandoning or retarding the progress of development schemes.

(d) 15 per cent. of the total cost of development plans is allocated to roads. Government consider this adequate.

(b) if the answer to part (a) above be in the affirmative, what will be its strength, functions and powers?

(b) whether and, if so, when it is proposed to introduce the Bill as recommended by the Committee?

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: (a) Yes.

(b) A Government Bill in exactly the same terms as the draft Hindu Code prepared by the Hindu Law Committee was introduced in the late Indian Legislative Assembly on the 11th April, 1947. A motion for the continuance of the Bill has also been adopted by this House on the 17th November, 1947.

(c) the number of Hindus and Sikhs who have declined to avail of the facilities of evacuation and have decided to continue in their old places?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: (a) The Honourable Member is referred to my answer to question No. 19 (a). The number of persons evacuated between the 11th November, and 15th November, 1947, is not yet available.

(b) The Honourable Member is referred to my answer to Starred question No. 9 (b) on the 18th November. Figures subsequent to the 11th November, 1947, are not yet available.

(c) The reports suggest that all desire to be evacuated to the Indian Union.

(b) How many of them are Harijans?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: (a) The Honourable Member is referred to the statement placed on the table of the House in answer to Question No. 224.

(b) None.

240. *Shrimati D. Velayudhan: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Labour be pleased to state whether there is any Labour Officer in the Cochin Port at present?

(b) Was the post of Labour Officer sanctioned at any time?

(c) If the answer to part (b) above be in the affirmative, when was it sanctioned?

(d) If the answer to (a) above be in the negative, why was the appointment not made?

(e) Are Government aware that the majority of the workers there belong to the Scheduled Castes?

(f) If so, do Government propose to appoint a qualified Labour Officer in the Port preferably from the Scheduled Castes?

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: (a) No.

(b) Yes. A temporary post of Labour Officer has been sanctioned for the port for a period of three years in the first instance with effect from the date it is filled.

(c) On the 6th January 1947.

(d) It is proposed that the post should be filled by an officer from the pool of Labour Officers which the Ministry of Labour intend to constitute. The Federal Public Service Commission was asked to select suitable candidates for this pool on the basis of the requirements intimated to this Ministry by various Central Government Departments. A list of candidates suitable for appointment has been furnished by the Commission but no posting has yet been made as it has become necessary to consult the Departments concerned again as to whether their requirements as previously intimated have altered due to the partition of India, and this information is not yet complete.

(e) It has been ascertained that the majority of workers at the port do not belong to the Scheduled Castes.

(e) How many officers are selected for the Diplomatic jobs?

(f) How many of them are Muslims, and how many Harijans?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: (a) Eighteen.

(b) It is not quite clear what the Honourable Member means by "jobs". According to the Oxford English Dictionary a job is a "piece of work; especially a small definite piece of work in one's own calling." Appointments in the Foreign Service are not jobs of this kind, but are selections of suitable and competent men for a career or calling which is highly specialised and requires the best talent available. Full information about our foreign representatives has been placed repeatedly before the House. A further list of persons holding posts of Ambassadors, Representatives, High Commissioners and Consuls is placed on the table of the House.

(c) Four.

(d) None. I regret that no member of the Scheduled Castes has so far been selected for appointment in this service. The criteria for diplomatic appointments are merit, capacity and suitability for a particular post.

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: (a), (b) and (c) Lord Addison spent a short time in Delhi en route from Canberra to London. He had no particular purpose in visiting India except to meet some people here. The Government welcomed his visit as that of a distinguished statesman. There were no formal discussions with him and no record was kept of informal talks.

EVACUATION OF HINDUS AND SIKHS FROM PAKISTAN

247. *Giani Gurmukh Singh Musafar: (a) Will the Honourable the Prime Minister please state whether the possibility of evacuation of the minorities, Hindus and Sikhs, was visualised by the Interim Government before the Partition of India into two Dominions India and Pakistan was agreed upon?

(b) If the answer to part (a) above be in the affirmative, what steps were taken to safeguard the life and property of such Hindus and Sikhs who were then living in that part of India which fell into the Pakistan area? If none, why?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: (a) and (b). No large scale evacuation of minorities was envisaged or thought desirable before the partition of India. The kind of political and communal convulsions that took place in the Punjab and some other areas could hardly be predicted. No large scale evacuation could possibly be arranged before the 15th August.

MAINTENANCE OF REFUGEE CAMPS IN INDIA

248. *R. B. Lala Raj Kanwar: Will the Honourable Minister of Relief and Rehabilitation please state:

(a) the number of refugee camps opened in India from the commencement of the operations with the name of the camp and the number of refugees placed in each camp;

(b) the number of wounded and disabled persons brought into these camps; and

(c) the approximate monthly or daily expenditure incurred on the maintenance of such camps?

The Honourable Shri K. C. Neogy: (a) Detailed information is being collected and will be laid on the table in due course. Refugee Camps are opened and maintained by Provincial Governments and Indian States. There are a great many camps all over India of which a full list is not yet available. It will be realised that in a fluid situation the numbers of camps and the population of such camps are subject to rapid change.

(b) This information is not available, but an attempt will be made to collect it as far as possible.

(c) Roughly the daily expenditure per adult on food alone is about eight annas. There are a great many other items which count for expenditure on maintenance of camps. They pertain to matters like shelter, warm clothing, medical arrangements, sanitation, water supply, watch and ward and administration. The total number of persons in Non-Muslim refugee camps all over India may be about 1½ millions of which about 5 lakhs are in East Punjab, 2½ lakhs at Kurukshetra, about 18,000 at Delhi and the rest spread over other parts of India including Provinces and States.

(b) 8,145 refugees have so far secured employment under some of the Ministries of the Government of India and some of the Provincial Governments. Replies from the Government of Bombay, East Punjab and Bihar are still awaited. Besides employment under Government a large number of refugees have found employment in mills, factories and other commercial establishments, whose number cannot be estimated at present. This does not include the persons settled on the land whose numbers are increasing daily.

In addition 22 doctors, 9 medical students and 2 personnel of the St. John's Ambulance are working honorarily in different places.

Besides, the Director of Health Services, Delhi and the Medical Relief Commission, Punjab, have appointed some doctors details of these are not available.

(a) the names of the countries, in which Indian Embassies have been opened, the names of the Ambassadors, the strength of the staff under them and the expenditure incurred on each Embassy; and

(b) the number of persons from the province of Bihar serving in the different Embassies already opened?

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: (a) A statement is placed on the table of the House. As regards expenditure incurred on Embassies, the attention of the Honourable Member is drawn to my answer given on 18th November, 1947 to the Honourable Professor N. G. Ranga's starred question No. 31.

INDUSTRIAL FINANCE CORPORATION BILL—Concl'd.

Mr. Speaker: The House will now proceed with further consideration of the following motion moved by the Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty yesterday:

"That the Bill to establish the Industrial Finance Corporation of India be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee, Shri K. M. Munshi, Diwan Chaman Lall, Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar, Shri T. A. Ramalingam Chettiyar, Nawab Muhammad Ismail Khan, Shrimati Sucheta Kripalani, Shri C. Subrahmanyan, Prof. K. T. Shah, Shri B. Das, Shri S. K. Patil, Shri Jaspal Roy Kapoor, Shri Ram Sahai, and the Mover, with instructions to report on the opening day of the next session of the Assembly, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

Prof. K. T. Shah (Bihar: General): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I associate myself with the other Honourable Members who have welcomed this motion by the Honourable the Finance Minister to establish an Industrial Finance Corporation. There can be no two opinions about the necessity and desirability of such a motion and such a corporation being instituted at this time in this country. I would have wished indeed that instead of being as it is a piecemeal legislation, taking up one problem by itself, it had been part of a well-knit and co-ordinated plan for the entire national development on all fronts of our economic and social life. As it is, however, I recognise that there are certain urgent problems that cannot be deferred until a proper plan has been formulated of a comprehensive character that I have mentioned; and as such I would welcome this proposal with all the sincerity that I command.

At the same time I would like to point out that there are some features or provisions of this Bill which will require very careful scrutiny and revision, as indeed the Finance Minister has himself admitted. The Bill is an attempt to establish a semi-public organisation sponsored by the State, and not an entirely State enterprise as I would have wished. No private enterprise can succeed in this field, as I am sure the Honourable the Finance Minister knows from the history of the Tata Industrial Bank started some 25 years ago, which had to be amalgamated with an existing commercial bank after a short career of three or four years. There is in a private Corporation of this kind not only the danger of its being associated with and involved in the existing concerns with which the founders or promoters may have connection, but also the risk of its bringing one-sided or sectional development, rather than working on a truly national aspect and outlook which an organisation of this kind must maintain. An organisation on the lines of the Australian Commonwealth Bank, to which the Honourable the Finance Minister had himself referred, is far to be preferred over that which has been proposed in the Bill. I trust when the Select Committee goes into the matter in detail this point will meet with favourable consideration from the Committee as a whole.

There are several lacuna, moreover, in the scope and activities or functions of this Organisation to which also I would, with your permission, Sir, like to draw attention of this House. The operative clauses seem to confine the assistance to be rendered by this Organisation only to industrial concerns, which manufacture goods or which are engaged in processing and the production and distribution of electricity. Only one kind of power is mentioned, and no services are mentioned. As such I think a very important field of our economic life is left out of the purview or scope of the activities of this Bill. I hope it was not the intention of the authors to exclude such essential items in the economic life of this country from the help that it will be absolutely necessary for such an Organisation to extend. For instance, services like shipping or other transport services may come in, perhaps, in so far as the production or the manufacture of the goods—the vehicles—with which those services are to be operated; but not the operation of the service itself. Some weeks ago Government have declared their policy of organising two or three shipping corporations, for instance, which are not primarily intended to build ships but rather to run them. If that is so, then I do not see why the scope of a measure like this should be confined so as to exclude such important industries or services. The same may be said with regard to the automobile industry, which will not only produce the automobile vehicles, but also operate the road transport service; and thus would have to be on a sufficiently large scale to require Government aid or financial assistance from a semi-public Corporation like this.

I would like to mention in this connection another service which seems not to receive the attention that is its due, namely the Press—publications or journalism. There is a very considerable danger of the Press, particularly the Daily and Weekly Press, falling into the hands of private monopolists to the serious detriment of the nation's public interests. The Press may not doubt be a small scale enterprise but a large scale enterprise also is unavoidable especially if in the regime of free competition it is to make a success. I do not know if it is the intention of the authors of the Bill; but, as I read it, it seems very likely that enterprises of this character may not receive the aid that the Corporation is designed to extend. If so, I hope that suitable changes would be made in the Bill, when it is enacted, to include also such enterprises as these.

[Prof. K. T. Shah]

A still more considerable omission as I read the Bill is in regard to Agriculture. There is, no doubt, a department or branch of the Reserve Bank of India which is supposed to extend financial assistance to agriculture; and there is also the system of co-operative credit which it is believed is intended for assistance to the agricultural growth of this country. But agriculture also tends to be industrialised and mechanised, and large scale of cultivation is not unknown even as it is in this country. I am sure the Honourable the Finance Minister is aware of such ventures as exist in some parts of the country which specialise not only in the cultivation of land by mechanical aid in large blocks of 35,000 to 40,000 acres—but which also develop industries from the raw materials produced by this cultivation to the finished product ready for consumption of the general public.

These are not entirely agricultural operations but also agriculture and industry combined, and as such if only some of these are to be aided and others are not qualified for receiving the aid, I think the measure would be lopsided. It is therefore to be hoped that in this case also the Select Committee will scrutinise the provisions carefully and make appropriate changes, if they meet with their approval.

The danger, in my opinion, of confining the operations of the Bill only to industrial concerns pure and simple as defined in Clause 3 of the Bill would be that inasmuch as industry is in private hands and mutually competing, inasmuch as there are various competing establishments in the same industry, there is a risk that while some may receive the aid the others may not. Those who cry the loudest, those who are able to command the ear of the powers that be, may receive the assistance; while those who are perhaps not so loud in their demands may go unheeded though their need may not be less urgent. This consideration is all the more important with regard to the differences in the various provincial or regional developments in this country. It is well known, Sir, that not all provinces in this country are equally advanced in their economic development, notwithstanding the availability of very considerable natural resources in their midst. Some provinces, which are much more advanced in industrial matters than others, are able to wield influence, in my opinion, disproportionate to their population or even to the initial natural endowment of those provinces. Care should be taken, therefore that an organisation like this is of uniform and universal benefit and not restricted in a large proportion, at any rate, to one or other region or industry as against the other provinces. To avoid this danger it would be necessary to have this organisation wholly as a State enterprise rather than a semi-private or statutory body which would be predominately under the influences of private capitalist. I do not think that there would be any difficulty in obtaining not only the initial capital provided for in this Bill for founding and working this organisation, but if proper instruments are devised, if proper means are taken so as to make the instrument issued for this organisation easily negotiable and easily recognisable, the small savings would be attached. Incidentally, the problem of what we call today "inflation" may also be solved. I think if the bonds of this organisation not only as regards the initial share capital, but also as regards the guarantee given to industrial corporations or concerns assisted by it, are issued guaranteeing the securities of those Corporations, in forms or denominations which are easily accessible to small savers, then I think the benefit and utility of this Corporation would be very much wider than is perhaps likely to be the case if the provisions stand as they are today. The problem of associating the small man, whether as industrialist or as the saver of capital, is much more important, especially in these days of almost uncontrolled inflation which meets the eye. I am not going to enter into any controversy just now about the relative chances in the future of the small scale as against the large scale mechanised industry.

But whatever that might be, I think if proper steps are taken and if proper instruments are issued by this body, the small worker, handicraftsman and even the ordinary middle-class or lower middle class worker who has some savings would be very much more benefited than is the case today.

These are points which I hope will be duly considered in the Select Committee when it meets and when the Bill finally comes before this House for further consideration and many of these, if not all, would have been duly attended. I again support the motion made by the Honourable the Finance Minister which is all the more remarkable in that he has brought forth a child which has been conceived by another.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru (U. P.: General): Mr. Speaker, I agree in principle with the Bill that has been placed before the House by my Honourable friend the Finance Minister. It is a Bill which we have been expecting for a long time, but it has seen the light of day only today. We hoped last year that it would be brought forward at an early date, but as my Honourable friend Mr. Chetty told us yesterday, it had been laid aside on account of constitutional difficulties.

Sir, while I recognise that the Bill deals with a very important matter and that it is a matter of satisfaction to all of us that the Government are at last going to take steps to take an active part in promoting the industrial development of the country, there are a few remarks which I should like to make in regard to the capital and character of the Bank, which I hope will receive from the financial authorities the consideration which they deserve.

As regards the character of the Bank Sir, I should like to ask my Honourable friend the Finance Minister why he has restricted the subscription of the share capital practically to the Banks and Insurance Companies and the larger Investment Trusts. As industrial development is a matter which concerns the whole country, I think it is a matter of psychological and practical importance that the ordinary man should be associated with it to as large an extent as is possible. I see no reason why the ordinary investor should not be given a chance of taking up shares in this Bank.

In these days when we want that industry like other things should be democratised—indeed it should be socialised—it is rather strange that the Finance Minister should ask us to accept the provisions which would make the bank entirely a capitalists bank. I think, Sir, that even now it is not too late for him to accept changes which would make the ordinary man feel that the bank is his own, and that it is not merely the big, capitalists who are going to derive substantial benefit from it.

The second point that I should like to urge is in connection with the share capital of the bank. Had this Bill been brought forward when the Central Banking Committee reported or even before the war, it would have been hailed with delight all over the country. But coming as it does at a time when we feel that there is urgent need for the rapid development of the economic resources of the country, it seems to me that the capital which will be at the disposal of the bank will be small in comparison with the needs of the country. The share capital will amount to about five crores and as the bank can in various ways allow accommodation to the extent of 20 crores, that is, four times the share capital, it means that it will be able to provide assistance to the tune of 25 crores. I am sure that my honourable friend the Finance Minister will be the last person in the country to claim that this is an adequate sum for the promotion of the industrial development of the country. I suggest, Sir, that the share capital of the bank should be increased, or at least that following the precedent set by the Reserve Bank of India Act, power should be taken to enable the bank, or power should be conferred on the bank to increase the share capital with the sanction of the Government and the approval of the Central Legislature. I hope that both these suggestions for which I claim no originality, will receive the consideration of the Government and the Select Committee.

Sir, there are questions relating to the management of the bank and its connection with the planned development of the country which should receive as much attention as those which I have already pointed out. In consonance with the character which Government have assigned to the bank, the management will be in the hands of the capitalists, that is, particularly the banks and the insurance banks, subject to the control of the Government.

Now, Sir, I think that the points which I urged in regard to the democratization of the bank apply with greater force to the management. I think it is not merely desirable, but necessary that the management should not be wholly in the hands of the larger capitalists. Though this bank is intended to provide credit facilities, to industries I am afraid that the constitution will place overwhelming power in the hands of the bigger banks and insurance companies and the more powerful industries. I am not sure whether according to the preamble the bank will be in a position to give help to minor industries. But assuming that it will be in a position to do so, I should like to ask Government what measures they have got under consideration for assisting such industries. If, however, this bank may help all kinds of industries, it is absolutely necessary that its management should be such as to inspire confidence among all classes of industrialists and all sections of the population general. I cannot suggest the specific means by which popular control though not uniformed control over the affairs of the bank might be brought about. I am not asking that the directors of the bank should be men who have no knowledge of industry or commerce or business of any kind. It is possible to lay down qualifications which would effectively ensure that the Directors are men who are well acquainted with trade and commerce and yet to so alter the character of the management as to make the common man feel that the bank will be managed not in the interests of big capital or of any particular class of business but in the interests of the country as a whole.

Sir, I have already said that I am unable to make any specific suggestion which would enable us to achieve this. But I am prepared to say that if the Government and the Select Committee are together unable to devise suitable means of achieving the purpose that I have in view, the bank should be completely under the control of the Government. It should be a Government bank so that we might feel fully assured that it would look after the interests of the country as a whole and would not restrict its attention either mainly or wholly to the needs of the larger industries.

Sir, Even if the share capital of the Bank were to be increased, as some of those who have spoken on the Bill have suggested, I think it will still be necessary for Government to ask the provinces to start industrial banks with a view to helping small industries. While there is no reason why the all-India Industrial Finance Corporation should not take an interest in such industries it is obvious that provincial banks which will be in touch with local needs and conditions will be in a much better position to provide the credit facilities which smaller industries—particularly the cottage industries—will need. I was rather disappointed when my Honourable friend Mr. Chetty made no reference to this point in his excellent speech yesterday. I hope his silence on this point does not mean that he will not bear it in mind and that he is not already considering measures for assisting the smaller industries whose operations are usually of a provincial character.

There is just one more Sir that I should like to say before I conclude. This Bill will enable us to set up an organisation for promoting the industrial development of the country; but it will not be in a position to lay down the lines on which future development should take place. The Planned development of the country is a matter which can be suitably dealt with only by Government. It is they alone who after a full consideration of the problem and consultation with the interests concerned as to the industries to which priority should be given with in a position to determine the channels in which the capital of the country should flow. It is for them to devise suitable means to collect the savings of the people and utilise them for the promotion of the best interests of the country. In order to be able to discharge this responsibility I think it is necessary, as suggested by Sir Archibald Rowlands last year, that a national investment board should be set up. I do not know whether the inquiries that were to be made in connection with this matter have been undertaken, but I have no doubt that the establishment of such an authority is one of our urgent needs. And if my Honourable friend Mr. Chetty democratises the bank, urges the provincial Governments to start banks of their own which will be complementary to the all-India bank and establishes a national investment board, I think he may well claim to have laid the foundations of the future economic development of the country and to have laid down the lines along which the country might safely advance, to promote the standard of living of the people and produce all those things which a free country like India would need in an ever-increasing measure in the days to come.

Shri K. Santhanam (Madras: General): Sir, I, like other previous speakers, welcome this Bill. I wish, however, that the Honourable Minister for Finance had devised it according to his own conceptions and brought in a Bill in his own name instead of taking it over bodily from his predecessor. As the present motion is only for reference to a Select Committee I shall not take the time of the House by going into details. I want to make a few suggestion on the main principles underlying the Bill. The idea governing the Bill is not quite clear. Is it intended to finance all industries in the country? Is it primarily intended to finance and assist large-scale industries or the medium industries or the small-scale industries? In my view the large-scale industries do not require the help of this Corporation; they should be able to go to the investing public directly. Therefore I think its scope should be confined to medium industries. I think an all-India institution cannot effectively assist small-scale industries and some other machinery should be devised to assist them. I therefore suggest that the present Industrial Finance Corporation should be confined to assisting medium industries. Of course any definition would be arbitrary, but I suggest a limitation of a minimum capital of 10 lakhs and a maximum capital of 2 crores for the definition of medium industries. If a company has got a capital of more than 2 crores it must be asked to go to the public direct; if it is less than 10 lakhs some other machinery should be devised. That machinery also should be of the same nature. It should be a provincial or a State Finance Corporation.

And this leads me to a matter of fundamental principle. I think, Sir, it should not be a purely unitary concern. This Industrial Finance Corporation should consist of a federal structure. It should have a central body but affiliated to it should be an industrial corporation in every province and acceding State, and its constitution should be so framed that this affiliation is organic. It should not be forced. It should not be a sort of unintegrated structure—as if connected by accident. For this purpose I suggest that a certain part of the share capital should be allotted to the provinces and States as well. It is only when the Provincial Governments and the State Governments are offered a share that they will naturally come to take a vital interest in the Corporation, and I make this suggestion for another purpose. There is a terrible lack of economic and financial knowledge on the part of the provincial Governments and the association of all these Governments in the Reserve Bank, in this Corporation and in all other central concerns will give them that atmosphere, that background which they so badly need today.

Prof. N. G. Ranga (Madras: General): Sense of co-operation and co-ordination!

[Prof. N. G. Ranga] of democratisation, especially in this direction. One or two suggestions have already been made. I am inclined to agree with my Honourable friend Prof. Shah when he said that the smaller investors should be encouraged to place their money in this corporation. Every possible step should be taken by the Government to adopt the suggestion. Here it is put that the price of each share should be not less than Rs. 25,000. Who can buy these shares except big capitalists. I want it to be reduced to Rs. 100. I do not see any reason why smaller people who have got Rs. 100 or more should not be encouraged to come into this corporation.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar (Madras: General): Only banks are allowed and not individuals.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: That is another point which my Honourable friend Mr. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar has brought to my attention. I want that lacuna also to be removed. I want that individuals also should be allowed to come into this corporation. Why should it be restricted to institutions alone. Speaking about institutions, I do not see any provision being made for co-operative banks to come into this Corporation. I want Presidency and District Co-operative Banks to be encouraged to come into this Corporation. I want also representation to be reserved for these co-operative concerns on the Management Board.

Shri Raj Krishna Bose (Orissa: General): Have they capital enough to invest in this Corporation?

Prof. N. G. Ranga: They have got crores and crores of rupees. I know that it is in Madras and they would be quite willing to place as much of it as possible at the disposal of this Corporation.

As regards the purposes for which this Corporation is to function, I cannot agree with my Honourable friend Mr. Santhanam that it should not extend its operations to the development of agriculture and cottage industries. Agriculture and cottage industries must be the most important aspects of industrial development, which should come in for protection and help from this Corporation. I am not satisfied with this proposal that there should be only one Corporation. There ought to be two—one for all those concerns which have been suggested by Mr. Santhanam such as middling concerns—those with a share capital of ten lakhs to two crores of rupees. But there are so many other concerns with only a share capital of less than that, may be 5 lakhs to 50 lakhs. All those concerns also are badly in need of assistance and what is more, there is much greater need for the development of these middling or smaller concerns in this country. Thus we want more and more decentralisation. We are all in favour of decentralisation of power not only in politics but also and perhaps more so in industry. It is no good encouraging these bigger concerns to get all this encouragement and assistance and guarantee from this Corporation in order that all industrial power should be concentrated in the hands of a few handful who in times to come will be able to control the political destinies of this country also. Therefore I am in favour of establishing two corporations or rather the same corporation having two wings, one separately from the other. I am in favour of the suggestion of Mr. Santhanam that there should be a federal structure but I wish to make the suggestion that every province, every provincial government and its legislature should be free to float their own provincial organisations or corporations but those corporations should be welcome to be affiliated or federated with this central federation, not that they should only be mere units to be dovetailed into this central federation.

I am also anxious that the Indian States as well as the provincial governments should be encouraged to contribute the share capital as well as to debentures and also that they should be given separate allotted representation on the Board of Management of this industrial corporation. It is for these reasons that I am anxious that the strength of the Board of Directors should be increased from 11 to 15 or 16 or some other suitable figure, so that the Indian States and Provinces, cottage industries and co-operative banks should all be accommodated and suitable representation might be given to them on the Corporation.

I am not satisfied with the quantum of representation sought to be given to the Central Government. I want it to be more. It may be argued that the Reserve Bank also would be more or less representing the point of view of the Central Government on this Corporation and therefore in the proposed Board of Directors of 11 the Central Government would be having five Directors. I do not think that is quite satisfactory. Government should be able to have a majority of the Directors to represent their case. The representatives coming in as directors on behalf of the provincial governments should also be taken into consideration and if thereafter Government sees to it that there is a majority of representation for the Government point of view on this Corporation, I shall be quite content.

There is one feature which is particularly welcome to me and it is this. If this Corporation was to be properly strengthened with a suitable amount of share capital, not as it is proposed here, which is a small share capital, it should be much bigger. I am not even satisfied with what my Honourable friend suggested, viz., that it should be 100 crores. It should be a much greater figure, only then it would be possible for the State to have some direct control over the management as well as the direction of a large number of industrial concerns that are likely to be brought into existence under the aegis of the Corporation. We want this sort of control of the state over as many of these industrial concerns as possible. One thing more has got to be proposed and that is that when this Corporation advances money to any industrial concern it should also seek to insist upon its right of representation on the Board of Management of these concerns. Many industrial magnates are doing it even today in this country as well as elsewhere. They contribute the share capital to the various companies. They have what is known as holding companies and various other devices by which they come to have effective control over a large number of associated industrial concerns. I do not see any reason why the Government through this Corporation should not be able not only to finance these concerns, assuring them of minimum rates of profits, but also to have an effective say in their Board of Directors, so that they will be able to see how industrial production is being carried on in various concerns, to what extent these profits are being distributed and in what manner in the shape of salaries and others, how labour is being treated in all these concerns, etc. Therefore I do not know whether it will be quite possible from a legislative point of view to bring in any such provision into this Corporation but I would like the Select Committee to keep this idea before them and see whether they cannot possibly incorporate a suitable provision in this Bill.

Then there is the question of the total amount of capital. I do not think 100 crores will be anywhere near our needs at all. The Bombay Plan had planned for 12,000 crores worth of industrial development in this country. Even if we think of 1,000 crores worth of industrial development as was proposed by the previous Government within the first five years after the war (and already two years have passed), we will need not less than 200 crores. Therefore this is more or less an apology to what we are expected to develop in this country rather than being an earnest attempt to help the industrial

Shri K. Santhanam: In this manner, I would like to extend the scope in such a way that it will be the centre of a federal structure consisting of many industrial corporations. I do not agree with Professor K. T. Shah that the scope should be widened to include distributive concerns and agricultural concerns. I do not think any single institution can tackle the entire economic problem of the country. To undertake it is to undermine the solidity of the institution and it will break down. It will require such a huge capital that 1,000 crores or even 2,000 crores will not be sufficient to finance all aspects of economic planning. Each aspect must have its own separate specific institution.

Then, Sir, I wish to make a concrete suggestion regarding the function of this Industrial Corporation. It is said that it will give advances, it will underwrite the shares and give such financial assistance. But I think it is not sufficient. Supposing, a concern to which loans or advances have been made fails, or is in difficulties, the only provision is that this Corporation can apply to a District Judge, or attach its property or sell it. But I suggest it should be taken over and managed for two or three years, and then when financially solvent it may be restored. If it cannot be made solvent, liquidation proceedings must be taken. But that must not be only way to deal with these concerns. We are in an infant stage of industrialisation. Of course industrialists promote concerns hoping that they will succeed but there are difficulties such as non-arrival of plant and the lack of skilled labour. In all such matters the Industrial Corporation will be better able to provide the facilities needed. It may be possible for the Government of India to acquire the equipment which a private company is not able to. It may be able to import technical skill which a private concern is not able to get. Thus it should be a constructive concern. It should not be merely a lending concern. We do not want there moneylenders whether in the form of industrial corporations or otherwise.

Many speakers before me have suggested that the capital is not sufficient. I agree with that view and I made the positive suggestion that the capital should be increased to 15 crores, of which half should be contributed by the Reserve Bank and the Central Government, one-quarter by the Institutional Investors mentioned in the Bill and the other quarter by the Provinces and States: in this way it will become a much more national institution than as it is now proposed.

Shri M. S. Aney (Deccan and Madras States Group): You mean by provinces; Provincial Governments?

Shri K. Santhanam: And the Government of States which have acceded to the Indian Union.

And having made the share capital 15 crores, I would like that it should be able to float debentures and get loans for five times the capital amount. That will give about 90 crores, and with 10 crores of deposits its finances will be of the order of 100 crores which I think is a minimum to start with for a bank of this type.

Then, Sir, it is provided that in helping those concerns, no single concern should get more than 10 per cent. of the share capital. But I do not think share capital is a proper basis for determining the percentage.

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty (Minister for Finance): This point has been repeated. The 10 per cent. refers to 10 per cent. of the capital of the Corporation.

Shri K. Santhanam: That is to say it should not give more than 50 lakhs to any company. That is exactly what I am referring to. I contend that it should not be more than one per cent. of the entire assets of the Corporation. It is not the capital that should be the criterion but the total assets. What does it matter whether you get the money by capital, or debentures or other ways. We do not want just a few to monopolise the capital of the Corporation. Therefore it should be confined to one per cent. of the total assets at any amount of the Corporation. No single industrial concern should be given assistance which exceeds this percentage.

Lastly, a word about the management. I do not see any purpose in having an executive committee. You have a Board of eleven members of whom at an ordinary meeting, only five to six people may attend: and then you have an executive committee of five. I think the whole thing is unworkable. If you had a Board of 30 members, I could see the reason for an executive committee of five. This is wholly unnecessary. I would rather that you should have a Deputy Managing Director or a General Manager, and these two people should be directly responsible to the whole Board, and the Board should meet as often as necessary. I do not think this sort of hierarchical management contributes to efficiency. It will make the ordinary Directors quite indifferent. They will say that the executive committee is there, which will manage the affairs of the Corporation and they will not read the papers at all. The Directors must be given direct responsibility to the public, to the Reserve Bank, and to the Government of India as to the proper executive management of the bank.

Sir, I have made all these suggestions for the consideration of the Select Committee. I hope they will be given due consideration. I have made the points very brief so that I should not waste the time of the House by going into them in detail. If any further argument is needed, I shall be glad to assist the Select Committee by submitting a memorandum for their consideration.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Mr. Speaker, there is no doubt whatsoever that all people are agreed in welcoming this proposal. But let us understand the real significance of this. This proposal means that today the capitalist structure of this country is not able to provide all the capital that is needed for the industrial development of this country: that our capitalists are so keen on making assured profits that they are not prepared to take sufficient risks for developing the industrial structure. Therefore, there is the need for the Government to come forward with this proposal and offer also to the capitalists that if only they agree to invest funds in these various industries they would be assured of their minimum profit of 2½ per cent., their capital would not be lost and all they are asked to agree to is not to claim any more than 5 per cent. maximum profits. My honourable friend, Mr. Krishnamachari, was yesterday wondering whether this limit would be enough, in view of the fact that many people have been willing to subscribe to Government loans carrying 2½ per cent. interest. I wish to assure him that there are plenty of people in the country who do not know where to put their money, but who at the same time are anxious not to take too great risks, and therefore they are anxious to put their money in Government loans. But those who are keen not only in putting their money in Government loans but also in having the satisfaction that their investments would go to the industrial development of the country would be quite happy to accept this offer of the Government. What is more, there is the question of control over this concern. They will gain control over this great corporation to be developed in our country.

Then there is the limit proposed to be fixed, viz., the maximum limit of 5 per cent. profits. I am very much satisfied with it. I think 5 per cent. is about the highest maximum profit that it will be possible to agree to. Various provincial governments have already fixed 6 per cent. as the maximum rate of interest that can be taken by moneylenders.

Next comes the question of the democratisation of the control of this corporation. Should we or should we not democratise this? I am all in favour

CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY OF INDIA (LEGISLATIVE) [21ST NOV. 1947]

development of our country. We must take every possible care to see that this Corporation does not become the private property of a few concerns. Mr. Krishnamachari has already made one point, that one class of people should not be given major control over this Corporation. We should see that a few concerns in a few Provinces are not allowed to control this.

1P. M. Some provision should be made whereby as large a number of people will be brought into direct contact with this as shareholders and contributors to debentures and no few individuals will be able to corner the shares or debentures and control this Corporation.

Mr. Speaker: The House may now adjourn and reassemble at half past two.

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till Half-Past Two of the Clock.

The Assembly re-assembled after Lunch at Half-Past Two of the Clock, Mr. Speaker (The Honourable Mr. G. V. Mavalankar) in the Chair.

Shri Khandubhai K. Desai (Bombay: General): Sir, while supporting the motion for reference of the Industrial Finance Corporation Bill to the Select Committee, I would like to make a few observations for the consideration of the Select Committee. The Bill that has come before this House, I think, has been prepared under the old setting and, under these circumstances, it has naturally got the defects which are bound to arise from the old setting, and I am quite sure that had our present Finance Minister drafted the Bill himself, he would have brought before us an entirely new Bill. Sir, the criticisms that have been offered in the course of discussion, if carried out in the Select Committee would, I am quite sure, result in the Bill being entirely scrapped and the Finance Minister would certainly bring before us a Bill incorporating most of the important criticisms that have been made on the floor of this House. Assuming for the sake of argument that the Select Committee is not prepared to redraft or to bring before us entirely a new Bill, then I would make a few suggestions for the consideration of the Select Committee.

The Board of Directors, as it has been set out in this Bill, consists of about eleven Directors, out of which the Government is to nominate only two Directors. Apparently the idea behind it appears to be this, that the Government is making a contribution of about 25 per cent. of capital, and therefore in that proportion the number of Directors to be nominated by the Government has been made two: but the Bill appears to ignore the fact that Government is taking on itself very huge responsibilities. It has taken upon itself the responsibility of guaranteeing the whole capital and also the minimum interests of 2½ per cent. So when the Bill is going before the Select Committee, the present structure of the director's board should be so amended as to include at least 50 per cent. of the Directors, nominated by the Government. It has been said that the bank's structure and constitution should be made democratic: but as far as I can see, a democratic government functioning under the democratic franchise would certainly be responsible to the people, and the persons nominated by that Government would certainly reflect the opinions of the people and therefore the nomination would lose much of the old odium. As it is, the Bill contemplates a structure for the Industrial Finance Corporation, which is going to be a sort of close preserve for the big business, and as it is, the industrial development of the country is not delayed because there is lack of capital. There is a lot of it available and therefore there is no need for creating a corporation for the benefit of only big business. The Directors coming on behalf of the Reserve Bank, as well as those on behalf of the scheduled banks or other industrial corporations are naturally going to be those who will represent the big business in the country.

My friend Mr. Santhanam has suggested a sort of federation to assist the cottage industries or the development of agricultural industries, but as a separate entity. I should think that the Industrial Finance Corporation should be the one body. This should deal with finances both of the big industries to the extent that is necessary in the interests of the country, and cottage industries as well as agricultural development. Otherwise, what may happen is that the cottage industries or small industries or agricultural development will get under the present circumstances a stepmotherly attitude. The economy that our country wants to develop should be by its very nature in a decentralized form, and unless there is a centralized Industrial Finance Corporation or whatever name one may give it, should, while investing money, have in view the development of large industries as well as small industries. Otherwise what may happen, and it is bound to happen as we have seen, is that it would be lop-sided development which it has been our misfortune to see during the last generation.

Then there is one other point to which I want to refer, and that is that certain obligations appear to have been thrown upon this corporation under section 21, that is if a particular industrial concern has misused its finances or if its efficiency has gone down or the administration has been very inefficient, it should apply to the District Judge. But I think it is imperfect. How is the Finance Corporation to know whether the particular industry concerned has mismanaged? For ought we know, most of the industrial concerns continue to be mismanaged for a series of years by window-dressing its financial position. So what I would suggest is that this Industrial Finance Corporation should be statutorily asked to have a continuous audit and inspectorate for the concerns to which finance has been advanced. Otherwise, I should think that at the end of 20 or 25 years for which a long term loan is given, probably the Financial Corporation would have nothing to take from the companies.

In this connection, I feel that if the Select Committee is not able to bring in a Bill properly amended by taking into consideration all the criticisms and comments made on the floor of this House, I would very earnestly request the Finance Minister, even before taking it before the Select Committee, to redraft the whole Bill taking into consideration all these criticisms so that when the Bill comes up before us again it will be under an entirely new setting, under a new psychology. Because, as it is, Sir, to make an improvement on the Bill for a different purpose is very difficult—it will be expensive or it will be something which we do not want. So even though I support the motion to refer the Industrial Finance Corporation Bill to the Select Committee Government should reconsider the Bill in the light of criticisms. I think some time is being given to the Honourable the Finance Minister and the Select Committee to see if they can build up on this basis something that will be acceptable to the country.

With these few words, Sir, I commend the criticisms which were made on the floor of this House to the Select Committee.

Mr. Naziruddin Ahmad (West Bengal: Muslim): Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the large variety of criticisms which have already been made in the House, I propose to be very brief. In a word, I welcome the principles of this Bill but I think that the Bill requires to be altered and amended; as the last speaker has said, it should be an entirely new Bill in keeping with the new set up; indeed it should be changed lock, stock and barrel. The Bill was drafted under circumstances entirely different from those prevailing to-day. I do think that the most important problems before the country is the production of consumer goods. We should industrialise the country and finance follows as the corollary for the proper development of industry and of our natural resources.

So far as the general principles are concerned, I am in full agreement but then, as has been repeatedly pointed out here from authoritative quarters, the Corporation should be democratized. First of all, its capital structure should be entirely re-cast. In fact, the share value is placed too high: the share value should be reduced as much as possible, even to Rs. 100. Then again, share-holding should not be confined to a capitalistic class. The Bill was drafted under entirely different circumstances when capitalism prevailed over other considerations. The Bill should be democratized so as to introduce some popular element in share-holding. It is no good confining this vast capital within a powerful class so as to enable them to entirely dominate the entire situation. As has been pointed out, the largest corporations and companies do not directly require any help from this Corporation; it is the medium sized companies, by which I mean a much smaller companies than have been suggested, which deserve and require financial assistance. A group of big capitalists can hardly inspire confidence in this respect.

Then with regard to the Directorate, the popular element should be largely represented. I do not agree with the suggestion that it should be entirely a Government concern. In fact there should be some amount of autonomy in the Corporation so as to allow it to develop on natural lines; the Government should only have some voice in the affairs of this Corporation. Much should be left to individual initiative and to democratic principles. The control should pass from a financial aristocracy to a real democracy.

With regard to the amount of capital, I should submit that I agree with the suggestion that the capital should be vastly increased. There should be practically no limit to the share capital. It may be 10, 15, 20 or 25 crores or more; that would not be too much. In increasing the capital, if we err, we would be erring on the right side. The borrowing power should also be practically unlimited. In fact, the share capital and the borrowed capital, together, minus the amount locked up in the block account of the Corporation, that is, the amount that is left as the working capital, would be the measure of its utility. If the share capital is left at a very small sum of 5 crores and the borrowed money at only 10 crores, then from this 15 crores if we set apart the capital expenditure, then very little will remain for feeding the growing needs of our industrial concerns. In these circumstances I should suggest that the capital structure should be so arranged and the borrowing power so enhanced as to leave a very large margin in the hands of this Corporation to enable it to adequately finance small, medium and big concerns. This, to my mind, is the very essence of the undertaking.

Then, the amount which may be lent to any particular concern, as has been explained, is 10 per cent. of the share capital of the Corporation, not of the borrowing companies. That would, I think, be too large. We should democratize the Bill and give help to a larger class than is possible under the scheme suggested in the Bill.

In these circumstances, I suggest that the capital structure, the Directorate and the shareholding should be made available to the common man. After all the people should feel that they have some interest in this national concern.

The illustration of the Reserve Bank has been cited, namely that there the share capital was brought down to Rs. 100, that each applicant was limited to five shares, and that the entire share-holding was rationed out to the different Provinces. I should suggest something of that sort. The share capital should be made available to the public, to corporations and others and shares should be rationed out on a provincial basis. If that is done, I think more good will follow than harm. These, Sir, are the few broad suggestions which I hope the Select Committee would take into consideration in revising the Bill. There is consensus of opinion in the House on this aspect of the case. With these few words, I suggest that the criticisms made in this House be fully considered and a new Bill—a practically new Bill—is made out of the Bill under consideration.

Shri P. Govinda Menon (Cochin State): Sir, to the loud chorus of compliments paid to the Honourable Minister in charge of Finance I wish to add my humble voice of appreciation in his having brought this Bill before the House. I intervene in this debate to urge one and only one point for the consideration of the Honourable Minister and of the Select Committee. The Bill as laid before the House seeks to help industrial concerns in the provinces of India. It does not appear from the provisions as they stand, that industrial concerns started in the Indian States will get the benefit of the provisions of this Bill. The Preamble of the Bill as also the definition of the expression "industrial concern" make this clear. From the statement of objects and reasons of the Bill, I find that the Bill was prepared on the 1st of November, 1946. Government in the then context of affairs were probably justified in framing a Bill of this nature, but, Sir, things have changed subsequently and the word "India" has a different meaning and significance now. The territories of India include the territories of the acceding Indian States as well at the present time. The very fact that Government thought it fit to bring a legislation of this nature is evidence to show that the industries in our country require to be helped financially. This is all the more so in Indian States, which are comparatively backward industrially. The Governments of Indian States will not be in a position to sponsor such institutions in order to promote industries in Indian States. The Scheduled Banks and the Reserve Bank of India are some of them in Indian States also and the Insurance Companies whose funds will go to finance this Corporation derive, in no small measure, their revenues from the people of the Indian States. Under the circumstances, I would request the Honourable Minister to consider whether he would not enlarge the scope of the Bill in order to extend its helping hand to industries in Indian States also.

I can imagine, Sir, several objections which may be raised against this suggestion. It may be stated that this House is incompetent to legislate for Indian States, but what I suggest is not a legislation for Indian States; it is only a suggestion to make provisions to enable the Corporation which will come into existence in India to extend its operations to Indian States as well. I can also see another difficulty. There are certain special provisions in clause 22 of the Bill. The Finance Minister in his speech yesterday explained that an institution of this type would require some special power to enable it to realise its debts when they fall due. Under clause 22, the district courts are under an obligation to do certain things when an application is made by the Corporation against an industrial concern which has defaulted to pay its dues. Probably, if this Bill becomes law, that provision in the Act may not bind the district courts in an Indian State. There are one or two ways in which this difficulty can be removed. For example, it can be provided that the Corporation will help industries in those States only which will enact a similar provision as is contained in clause 22 of this Bill, or it may be provided that those industrial concerns in Indian States which would seek the help of this Corporation should have the backing of the Governments of those States, so that the amounts due from such concerns can be realised through the Governments of those States. Whatever the device adopted, I would submit before this House that it would be highly improper to bring into being a Corporation for promoting industries in the provinces of India alone. This is the only point I have to submit at this stage and I am sure the Honourable Minister and the Select Committee will go into this question and so modify the provisions of the Bill that the industrial concerns in Indian States would also be able to get the help sought to be given by this Bill.

With these words, Sir, I support the motion before the House.

Shri B. M. Gupte (Bombay: General): I rise, Sir, to support the motion moved by the Honourable the Finance Minister. The speakers who preceded me have congratulated the Honourable Minister and I should like to join in those congratulations. It is indeed remarkable that he should have thought of this long-term measure in the midst of distractions, anxiety and the burdens of the troublous times in which we are living. I therefore congratulate him all the more sincerely. As with congratulations, I also agree with some of the criticisms that have already been levelled against this measure. I shall not repeat those points. I shall merely confine myself to one point which I think is more important and deserves to be considered by the Select Committee.

My Honourable friend Mr. T. T. Krishnamachari had a complaint against the minimum rate of dividend. He wanted that it ought to be raised to 2½ per cent. from 2¼ per cent. I shall not grudge him that small increase; but I was surprised that my Honourable friend Prof. Ranga was satisfied that the maximum is to be at 5 per cent.

I am surprised that a Kisan leader like him should have consented to this figure of 5 per cent. In my opinion the maximum should not exceed 4 per cent, and I take my stand on the analogy of the Reserve Bank of India. The Reserve Bank shareholders do not get more than 4 per cent. In the beginning they did not get more than 3½ per cent. and the maximum they got was 4 per cent. I do not see any substantial reason why there should be any difference between these two rates of dividends. This Industrial Finance Corporation would also be a monopolistic concern. There is no competitor in the field today and there is likely to be none coming into the field, because this Corporation is endowed with special privileges, and I do not think there will be any competition in this matter. Thus practically this is also a Semi-Government monopolistic concern. Moreover in this business also there is no risk. As is evident from the provisions of this Bill, all the finance would be on security. It will be entirely a secured business and nothing on credit. In the circumstances there does not seem to be any likelihood of any loss being incurred. I personally, therefore, think that in the circumstances, there is no reason why a departure should be made from a similar lower rate obtaining in a similar institution. I may be told that there is this difference that for some years they will not be getting this 4 per cent. It will be some years no doubt, because the reserve has to be built up and possibly therefore some years might elapse. I do not think at that time the rate will be even what it is today. We do not know what it will be and therefore it is not necessary to put that larger figure. I am not complaining against what the shareholders will actually get then, but I think once the standard is set commercial magnates will take advantage of it now. Well, they may argue this semi-monopolistic Government concern says 5 per cent. is reasonable. Why should we not then get 8 or 10 or 12 per cent.? Therefore in setting the standard care should be taken that no mischief is done. Therefore I think that there is no reason why this rate should be fixed at 5 per cent. It is possible, of course, as I said, that in the course of years perhaps the rate might go even below that. Then I might be again told that the shareholders of the Reserve Bank of India were getting 3½ per cent. from the beginning. That would not be the case in respect of this concern. But I think that even those shareholders were getting what was the ordinary borrowing rate of the Central Government in those years. At that time 3½ per cent. was the Government borrowing rate, and shareholders of this concern would also be getting what is the Central Government borrowing rate. I therefore think that there is no difference and I therefore suggest that it should be considered by the Select Committee whether the rate can be reduced to 4 per cent. With this, Sir, I support the motion.

Shri S. V. Krishnamurthy Rao (Mysore State): In supporting the suggestion that this Bill should be extended to the States also I would like to put before this House one other reason. No province or State can afford to start a heavy industry without an All India Planning. Heavy industries have to be started on an All India basis to prevent overlapping and working at cross purposes and this Industrial Corporation will have a large part to play in promoting the starting of heavy industries in India. So I suggest that if it is not possible to extend the operations of this Act, some such provision like Section 85 in the Bill for providing better facilities for workmen, which extends the operation of that Bill to the States may also be provided in this Bill, so that the benefits that may be conferred on the heavy industries by this Bill may be available to these industries to be started in the States also. That is my suggestion and I support the reference of this Bill to the Select Committee.

Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena (U. P.: General): Sir, I am unable to congratulate the Honourable Minister on this Bill. As my Honourable friend Mr. Khandubhai Desai has pointed out the Bill needs to be scrapped and be substituted by an entirely new Bill. For the last three or four days I have been feeling that the Ministers have not tried to incorporate the new spirit into the Bills. We hope that the New India will have planned development, industrial as well as agricultural, and I am rather surprised to find that this Bill which was prepared by the Honourable Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan has been bodily taken over and put here. I had wished that it had not been done. Really what is needed is a planned development of our own country and the labour devoted by the Planning Commission and its Committees for so many years should now have been utilised in framing these Bills. Here we have this Industrial Corporation Bill brought before us and we are required to ratify it. I do not know when the Planning Commission sits and makes a plan how this will fit in with the final plan. I therefore think that the Honourable Minister would be well advised to accept the suggestions which have been made in this House and withdraw this Bill at this stage and bring a new Bill when the plan for the new development has been drafted and submitted to the House for approval. As it is, the Bill has got very glaring defects. The shares are valued at 25,000 rupees and 2,000 shares have to be sold. Now none but the capitalists can purchase these shares. This will only mean that 2,000 persons in the country will control this Corporation. I was reading sometime back an analysis of the industrial corporations in the United States and I found there that 60 families in the United States own 56 per cent. of the total wealth of the United States.

Mr. Hossain Imam (Bihar: Muslim): What is the percentage in India?

Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena: I cannot definitely say. If this Bill is passed, these 2,000 families will really control the destinies of the country. Therefore I think that this clause should not be allowed to stand as it is. My Honourable friends have suggested that Rs. 100 should be the value of each share and 5 shares should be the maximum that each man should be allowed to purchase. I would suggest that the limit should be reduced in our poor country and Rs. 10 should be the minimum value of the share, though the number of shares which each man should be allowed to purchase should be increased. Then every cultivator and labourer will be in a position to purchase these shares, and they shall be able to control the policy of the corporation. This will remove the fear that this corporation will become the monopolistic concern of only 2,000 families. About the appointment of Directors, criticism has already been voiced in the House. At present out of eleven directors, eight will belong to Big Business. I would suggest that this should not be so. My friend Mr. Khandhubhai Desai suggested that more than half should be Government directors. I would say that if the shareholders become smaller then probably the Bill will become more democratic; still, the Government must have a controlling voice to see that this does not become a Monopolistic Corporation. I also support the suggestion that the interest of 5 per cent. is too high and it must not be more than 4 per cent. I would have probably made a detailed criticism, but I feel that the Bill is not what it ought to be and it should be substituted by a new Bill and should come after we have got before us the whole picture of what we plan to be the industrial future of India. But the complete plan for India's future development must come before us very quickly. We are already at war with Pakistan in Kashmir. We have already probably also other very important engagements in other states and unless we show the spirit which a country must show in war we cannot probably survive and therefore I say that an immediate beginning must be made by putting the new plan for India's future development before this House and if this Bill or some Bill of this sort becomes a part of this plan, I shall be very willing to support it and I hope the House will also support it.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: Sir, I do not agree with my Honourable friend, the previous speaker, nor with Mr. Khandubhai Desai that this Bill is to be scrapped and a new Bill introduced. I am very sorry that both my Honourable friends have overlooked this matter that for a long time before the advent of the British in this country we were one of the most highly industrialized countries of the world but after that we had practically been the producers of raw materials and importing machines from foreign countries. Our economy has become absolutely agricultural and it is why our standard of life has been very low. Our national income is not more than Rs. 100 per year, per head. Are we to be still waiting until a new plan is set up? My Honourable friends are not aware that plans are already there and recently a Committee was appointed over which Mr. Neogy presided who co-ordinated all these plans and evolved a plan. I am sure that this is the plan which is being adopted by the Government for the purpose of industrialization of this country. The Honourable the Finance Minister referred to the Policy Committee which was enunciated on the 25th November 1945 by the then Government. There is not much to change. It is true if my honourable friends said that the whole of the United Kingdom is also swinging towards the left and introducing nationalization of industries and if that is their intention, I would certainly agree with them. But what are the industries that ought to be Nationalised? It is agreed in this Policy Committee report that the Defence industries must be nationalised. I am sure that all the defence industries in this country are in the hands of the State. There are other industries which come under the Provincial control. But even there the Policy Committee lays down that some industries by their very nature have to be taken charge of by the centre because they have got an all-India importance and they are largely used in various provinces. One single province may not sustain or support a particular industry though there may be branches in various parts. That is why they have divided industries into two viz. central and provincial. So far as central industries are concerned they have laid down in paragraph 5 that:—

"they attach particular importance to the development of these industries which constitute the foundation of modern industrial life, such as the iron and steel industry, the heavy engineering industries, the machine tool industry, heavy chemical industry and so on.

They also do not forget that so far as consumption goods industries are concerned they must also be helped to a large extent, but while the development of these industries must take high priority it must form part of a balanced plan in which due place is given to consumption industries also."

Now therefore the policy of Government is clear. These industries which the State itself has taken, it is running; there are other industries which the State may promote by advancing its capital and taking a large share in the management. And so far as single industries are concerned, like the shipping industry, our Government is contemplating bringing into existence a separate corporation for that industry alone, because it requires a separate corporation to manage its resources. It is not only in the field of industry; we have, for instance, got irrigation projects to increase the agricultural output of the country. The Honourable Minister for Works, Mines and Power said the other day that the Damodar Valley Project Corporation is being sponsored by Government. Therefore both in relation to agriculture and in relation to industry wherever a particular industry or a particular source of irrigation has to be tapped, if they are very big, instead of having a centralised corporation of this kind which must cater to lesser industries, they will bring into existence particular corporations to deal with particular sets of industries. That is the policy of Government. Therefore they are also attempting to have a corporation for the air transport industry,—transport from this country to foreign countries.

Then after these State-owned and State-managed industries come those other industries which will be left to private enterprise and management but in which Government is rightly interested, and on account of the hugeness of an industry they establish particular corporations to manage that industry. The basic industries necessary for the growth of the country as a whole are the iron and steel industry and the heavy chemical industries. If finance is not available for these the State may have to advance finance. Honourable Members are aware that the existing banks, including the scheduled banks and the Reserve Bank, have been so incorporated that they cater to short-term loans and by their very foundation do not advance long-term loans. A Banking Amendment Bill is also on the anvil of the legislature. It may come up during the budget session after the Select Committee has reported. One of the important clauses of that Bill is that no bank shall engage itself directly or indirectly in any trade and it shall give only short term loans. Take a commercial bank. The definition of a bank shall be applied only to such institutions as admit demand liabilities. Therefore the essence of a bank according to the Banking Act is fluidity. And so various restrictions have been imposed on the manner in which money can be lent. It can never be contemplated that money can be lent for a period of more than three years or five years; and even if immoveable property is purchased it shall never be owned by an ordinary bank. Therefore commercial banks as they are constituted were modelled on western banks whose essence is liquidity, who depend mainly on demand liability and current liabilities. Such banks do not cater for long-term loans for industrial concerns. It is to complete that part and to fill up that deficiency that this Industrial Corporation is being sought to be brought into existence. There is an analogy in this respect with respect to agricultural banks. To improve agriculture in this country and to finance agricultural enterprises cooperative societies have been established under the Central Cooperative Societies Act and also under the provincial Cooperative Societies Acts. The cooperative credit societies are working; there are provincial cooperative central banks. The Reserve Bank has a particular department to cater to this and give advice from time to time and also to give financial aid. It is not generally large and I believe that is why Government instead of making this Industrial Finance

CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY OF INDIA (LEGISLATIVE) [21ST NOV. 1947]

[Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar]

Corporation merely a branch of the Reserve Bank have thought it wise to introduce and establish a separate industrial bank. I know, of course, as I hear Prof. Ranga saying, that the Reserve Bank unfortunately has not done all that was expected of it, so far as agricultural finance is concerned. That is an argument for separating that portion and starting an apex bank for agricultural needs is one part of the Industrial Corporation that is sought to be introduced here. Honourable Members are also aware that to give long-term credit for agricultural operations like digging wells or repairing irrigation sources there are land mortgage banks established in the various provinces. For short-term credits the ordinary cooperative credit societies are there; and for long-term credits there are these land mortgage banks. So far as agricultural credit is concerned, we have got these two institutions. No doubt at the apex for cooperative purposes on an all-India basis there is no central bank which is specially devoted to agricultural purposes. I am sure my Honourable friend Prof. Ranga with his enthusiasm will induce the Finance Minister to bring into existence some such corporation. So far as the present Corporation is concerned it is long overdue. It is good and it can certainly be improved in the Select Committee. I therefore do not agree that this ought to be taken back. Once it is taken back we do not know how long it will be kept away and once gone it will be put into the waste paper basket. This does not stand in the way and I would like the Honourable Finance Minister to make a statement. I have already read in the Policy Committee Report that this will be utilised. Therefore, to say that this relates only to big business is not true. We want big and small business. I am not an industrialist nor even a capitalist. There appears to be a kind of apathy in two opposite sides and there is a warfare between big and small business. I am sorry to see the repercussions of it in the share market. It goes against the good of industry. I believe that the imposition of the excess profits tax had its own reactions on the growth of industry in this country. We must make up our mind that if the State takes various industries, avoid big business. If on the other hand, the State takes up a particular kind of industry, allow a sufficient margin for other industries to grow up. The want of a definite policy has made all these industrialists hard. They are not coming forward to start these industries. I know that there are floatations but they are only in the air. In the monthly statements and statistics of various joint stock companies, especially in the monthly statements of August and September, if 25 companies came into existence, 20 companies have closed down.

Dr. B. Pattabhi Sitaramayya (Madras: General): No material!

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: It is not a question of material. The money is not forthcoming. For large scale industries, there ought to be a Corporation of this kind. For small scale industries provincial Governments may start provincial Corporations. Therefore when we are starting one kind of Corporation in big industry, there is no need to say I will help only smaller industries. They will have their own turn. Till now cottage industries have not been helped. From the time an application is made for aid, by the time the budget comes when the application matures, the cottage industry closes down. As far as the Cottage Industry Act is concerned in the provinces, the Finance Minister will have his eye on various aspects of the industrial structure. It is true that he must have a federation. As a matter of fact Mr. Santhanam suggested that there must be a federation. The bank must have a federation of various units. I hope the Finance Minister will have this in mind and try to add many more units to this federation.

As regards the persons that are allowed to be shareholders in this Corporation: I do not agree that the shares should be reduced to Rs. 100 or Rs. 15 and should be sold in the market along with other shares of various joint stock companies. The object of this measure is to provide capital wherever it is not available. In the day to day work there are other departments, to help the industries concerned. For enlarging the scope of it, purchasing capital goods and buildings which do not repay immediately, a long-term loan is necessary. A central institution should be made to be the shareholders of an institution of this kind. For other loans there will not be sufficient money coming forward. If the Provincial Governments want to bring into existence smaller corporations to cover smaller industries, and if the ordinary man is also tapped, from where can you get the money? When provincial loans are floated then they have to be under-written. Money does not easily flow. Therefore it is not for the purpose of competing. It is not the intention of this Bill to make this institution compete with the others in the open market. As a matter of fact, insurance companies do not know what to do with their monies. Therefore for insurance companies there will be an outlet. They depend on their statement of policy when they settle the premium which has to be paid. They say one of the important elements is the amount of interest they can get on their investments. Insurance companies and financial corporations are those who are tapped for the purpose of subscribing to this Corporation by way of shareholders. I do not agree that the share value ought to be lower. It is not as if some big business or industrialist will capture. The institution will capture. Let there be no alarm with this institution. It has come into existence. It must come into existence early.

Then as regards the volume of business. I agree with Mr. Santhanam. I find that the textiles themselves—some of the important industries—have a capital of 80 crores: iron and steel 40 crores: sugar 20 crores. In all the volume of their share-capital and the debentures they have floated come to 700 crores. If that is the amount that is floating in this industry, what is this amount of 20 crores for which my honourable friend, the Finance Minister, is responsible in calculating. It was originally in the hands of a gentleman who was not a financier himself.

Pandit Balkrishna Sharma (U. P.: General): Finance Minister!

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: I am sorry. It is because we are still in a Dominion that I am feeling that we are not yet independent! I am glad to see that I am correct in assuming that they are really Ministers! The Honourable the Finance Minister is eminently suited for this task. No doubt he did not want to waste time. He is very suited for this business because he is an industrialist himself and he was at one time President of the Tariff Board. I am sure he will modify it.

I would make one or two suggestions. It is necessary that an industrial planning commission ought to be established immediately; otherwise the money here may be flittered away in cosmetics. A cosmetic, or tobacco or cigarette industry may be established. The persons who are in charge of this Corporation may be interested in getting quick returns in that industry which is first stabilised. For instance, cosmetics and tobacco sell much more freely than foodstuffs and they yield larger profits. I would ask that he should immediately plan out and have a plan which would suggest to this Corporation what those industries have to be, otherwise this money may not go to that field or industry which is really in need of it. In that way he must prescribe priority.

I would also urge that the scope of this measure is a little small. It has to be enlarged. It is not merely financial but technical advice also that has to be given. I shall now read for you the scope of a similar institution in Australia. Under the Commonwealth Bank Act of 1945, of Australia, the functions of an

-478

CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY OF INDIA (LEGISLATIVE) [21st Nov. 1947]

[Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar]
Industrial corporation of this kind are as follows:

"(a) to provide finance for the establishment and development of industrial undertakings, particularly small undertakings;

(b) to assist in the establishment and development of industrial undertakings; and

(c) to provide advice on the operations of industrial undertakings with a view to promoting the efficient organization and conduct thereof."

It seems as if they have not only efficient technical men such as engineers, etc. to give them advice as to stability but also persons who have enormous experience in industry to advise them as to whether a particular industry would prove useful to the community.

Then again there is a suggestion in the statement of the Government's industrial policy that in a particular place alone all industries should not be located. That was referred to by my honourable friend Prof. Shah. I agree with him. One way to avoid is by introducing a system of licenses, whereby the location of these industries will be distributed in places where raw materials and the men are available. The Industrial Corporation must have such a plan before it and try to help the establishment of industries according to localities. Let there be industries whether by Birla or the Tatas. We have absolutely no industries in this country. Today from a pin to aeroplanes we have to depend on foreign countries. I request these industrial magnates to start industries. After all 98 per cent. of the people are poor like myself and Prof. Ranga and ultimately it is up to us to deprive them of their property and take it over. Therefore let us not have an eternal bias or prejudice against these people. Let us take advantage of them as much as possible.

I also want this institution to come into existence to train up the men for purposes of administration. We are having a centralised civil service. We should pick up the best of men for industries. I was very anxious during the war that the state itself should take up all these mills and run them, because even though there is a shortage of cloth the mills are producing 500 and odd varieties to make money.

Who are to man these mills? The I.C.S. man may be the best product of the university and he may be a double graduate but is he competent immediately to take charge of a mill? Therefore it is equally essential that we must have men who are competent to give advice to industry. Let us not have the eternal impression that there is an undeclared war between us and the industrialists. They are bringing in the money and the country as a whole will benefit by it. It is only a question of distribution. I therefore welcome this measure and I also want that the scope of this Corporation ought to be enlarged in the terms that I read out from the Commonwealth Bank Act 1945 of Australia.

I would like to make one or two other suggestions. I want that before this Corporation lends to various industries they must make sure that the industries are run properly, that labour is paid properly and treated properly, their wages are decent and are provided with housing accommodation etc. As regards the prices of the commodities manufactured by the industries they must have a controlling voice. Not that they must strictly control it but they must have an influence or voice in it. They must also see, when they are gathering public money, that the industries do not pay exorbitant dividends to their shareholders. After all industry is a risky concern. It is not a savings bank. All industries which are to be helped should not pay more than nine per cent. dividend to their shareholders. Only those industries should be helped. When industries are developed in this country we should be equally careful that they do not exploit the ordinary man. The man that pays is the poor consumer ultimately. Therefore these are all the things that the Industrial Corporation should address itself before helping an industry. They should also see that the consumer is equally well protected.

As regards audit, I want that the Government itself must audit. There is a provision that two auditors appointed under the Company Law should audit such a big concern as that. Government audit alone will satisfy the public. Enormous funds of the public are invested in a corporation of this kind.....

Shri B. Das (Orissa: General): That is a very funny idea.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: I see fun in the talk of my honourable friend but not in what I have said. I do want Government audit for this purpose. My honourable friend was not a member of the Select Committee on the Banking Bill. Even there I insisted that the Government alone should audit. The audit must be through the agency of the Government.

As regards management there seems to be alarm that the management of this concern will be in the hands of big business. I find that they have not calculated the number. Under clause 7 two directors are nominated by the Central Government, three by the Central Board of the Reserve Bank and that makes five. The total number is eleven. Three directors are elected by the banks, that is scheduled banks, and two directors by the shareholders of the Corporation, other than the Central Government, the Reserve Bank, etc. Thus there are five against five. The Managing Director is a person who is appointed by the Central Government.

The predecessor of the Honourable the Finance Minister, who was called the Finance Member then, said that he was going to introduce legislation very soon in this Assembly to nationalise the Reserve Bank. I expect that the Reserve Bank will be soon nationalised. There is no meaning in having small shareholders and run a shareholders' bank. Similarly the Bank of England was also nationalised. I expect that all these reforms will be introduced by the Honourable the Finance Minister who has had experience in this direction. Sir, I welcome this measure and I feel that it can be improved in the Select Committee.

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty (Minister for Finance): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am glad to find that the debate has disclosed a perfect unanimity about the need for an Industrial Finance Corporation in our country. My Honourable friend, Prof. K. T. Shah, used an unnatural metaphor and said that I brought forth a child which somebody else had conceived. If I may be permitted to use a more natural metaphor, I might say that I found an orphaned and abandoned child and I adopted it. When I examined the child before deciding to adopt it, I found that it was not perfectly to my liking. But I thought that the child as I found it had immense possibilities and under the care of the eminent nurses of the Select Committee it could be improved! In view of the fact that the Bill is going before a Select Committee, I am sure the House does not expect me to answer the various criticisms and suggestions that have been made.

Apart from the criticisms relating to the detailed provisions of the Bill, the main criticisms might be classified under three categories: the scope of the Corporation, the adequacy of its resources and its constitution. All the suggestions made during the course of the debate may be classified under one or other of these three heads.

With regard to the scope of the Corporation some criticism was made that the activity of the Corporation will not extend to helping service concerns and to helping small scale industries. Sir, this criticism misses the entire point relating to the scope of the Bill as I conceive it. I must frankly say that the object of this Bill is to set up a finance corporation for the purpose of financing the large scale industries in our country. When I make this deliberate statement it does not mean that I ignore the need for having similar corporations to help agriculture or to help the small scale industries. If we believe that there is need for large scale industrialisation of this country and that for some considerable time to come we must give scope to private enterprise also in addition to the State's enterprise in the building up of large scale industries, then we must accept the logical corollary that we want an industrial corporation to help these industries. The object of this Bill has got that restricted scope and I would very much like that the Select Committee will confine the scope of this Corporation to that limited purpose. As I said, I frankly recognize the need for other corporations. In fact it is my intention, after this Bill has been placed on the statute book, to persuade the Provincial Governments to set up similar industrial finance corporations in each Province, and also to persuade the acceding States—at least the major States—to set up corresponding corporations within their jurisdictions. Such Provincial and State corporations will be expected mainly to finance the small scale industries. I would also make an attempt to do something definite and concrete for the helping of our agricultural economy. Criticism was rightly made that the Reserve Bank has not achieved very much in this direction. Without being an apologist of the Reserve Bank I am bound to say that the Reserve Bank of India was not expected directly to finance agricultural operations. I happened to be a Member of this House when the Reserve Bank Bill was passed and I also at one stage sat on the Joint Committee of both Houses which shaped that measure. The object of asking the Reserve Bank to set up an Agricultural Credit Department was to give a guidance in the direction of setting up the necessary machinery for helping our agricultural economy.

[Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty]

Shri B. Das: Section 54 went further.

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: It is quite true that even in this restricted field enough has not been done. But in any case there is no use our bemoaning of what has not been done in the past. We have now got the power to do what we like. There is no outsider who stands in our way. We may therefore go ahead. Apart from the co-operative credit societies, whose main function is to help the agricultural economy of the country, we must do something to set up a Central Agricultural Finance Corporation on the lines of the Industrial Finance Corporation. When these have been set up we would then have the necessary machinery for tackling the entire economic activities of our country. At this stage I want Honourable Members to realize that this Bill does not aim at creating a corporation which will help all the Industrial and economic activities of the country; it has got a restricted scope. In fact, in view of the recent catastrophe that has overtaken the country, especially in the East Punjab, I find that over and above the Industrial Finance Corporation, the Provincial Finance Corporation and the Agricultural Finance Corporation, there is a need for a special Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The problem of the rehabilitation and resettlement of refugees is of such a tremendous magnitude that it would require all the energy, expert knowledge and resources of a special Reconstruction Corporation to tackle that problem. I hope, Sir, that in the coming months, with the help and co-operation of this House, I might be enabled to set in motion the machinery for all these purposes.

With regard to the adequacy of the resources at the disposal of the Corporation I am afraid there has been some misconception. This Corporation is not intended to supply all the finances, or even a substantial part of the finances, necessary for the large-scale industrialisation of the country. We contemplate that the Government itself, as State concerns, will set up some of these large-scale industries. In such a case there is no need for any help from this Corporation. This Corporation is intended to help the large scale industry started by private enterprise. Even in this field, normally a private industrial concern is expected to raise all its capital requirements from the market and to obtain from the commercial banks the accommodation necessary for the day to day running of the concern. But anyone with industrial experience will tell you that whatever might be the capital structure of a private industrial concern, occasions do arise when substantial help for meeting capital expenditure is required, and it is difficult to raise such additional capital in the open market. The raising of that capital may mean prosperity or decay for that concern. It is at such a critical time that an Industrial Finance Corporation of this type is expected to come to the rescue of the industrial concern. If you compare the capital requirements for the industrialisation of the country which will run into many hundreds of crores, you will probably go away with the impression that the paltry amount of 30 or 40 crores which this Corporation will command as its resources is a totally inadequate figure. But I might assure you that 30 or 40 crores at the disposal of a centralised corporation of this kind can finance industries which have got a capital of probably 700 or 800 crores of rupees. But it will be open to the Select Committee to increase the resources available to this Corporation.

And now, Sir, I would say a word regarding the constitution of the Corporation. The aim of this Bill has been deliberately to restrict the shareholding to certain categories of institutions. I am in agreement with the purpose of the original Bill regarding the constitution of the Corporation. We want a responsible corporation to finance our industries which will not become the monopolistic concern of any group of individuals, which will guarantee state control in public interests, and which will at the same time utilise all the experience and efficiency of private business men. The running of a Finance Corporation of this kind is a very technical and complicated process. A layman cannot manage this concern. It requires the expert knowledge and efficiency of men who have been long engaged in business and in industry. By deliberately restricting the shareholding to certain specified institutions, it was the intention of this Bill to bring to the service of the State under the control of the State the experience gained by private captains of industry.

Sir, my honourable friend Mr. Anathasayanam Ayyangar asked us not to carry the prejudice against the capitalist. I think he has given very sound advice to us. I do not want the House to be under the impression that I am an apologist for any capitalist. I am not myself a capitalist. I do not consider myself a capitalist.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Who else can be a capitalist?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: Every workman who earns Rs. 60 a month and saves two rupees a month and puts it in the savings bank is a capitalist. That is the scientific and technical meaning of the word capital. I think we must frankly recognize that whatever might be our ultimate objective in shaping the economy of our country, for a long time to come we would do well to utilise the experience gained by private individuals in the management of industry and business. I do not think that a Sovereign Legislature like ours need have any apprehension that any individual or group of individuals will be allowed to exploit the common man. If we allow anybody to exploit the common man, I would blame ourselves, and not the man who exploits. A modern State has got ample resources and ample powers to curb exploitation of any kind. If we are to follow a wise economic policy, what I would suggest is, Sir, that the Indian Government with a popular backing should exploit in its turn all the resources, the ingenuity, the experience, the knowledge, and the efficiency of every individual in this country, whether he is a capitalist or a workman. All this is aimed at achieving the good of the common man. There is really no difference of opinion. At any rate I have no doubt Honourable Members would feel satisfied that whatever they might think about the individual Ministers of the Government, the Government as a whole can be trusted to look after the interests of the common man.

As this measure is going before the Select Committee, it is not necessary for me to answer the other detailed points of criticisms that were made in the course of debate. I have no doubt the Select Committee will take note of all these criticisms, and so far as I am concerned, I may give the assurance that I am not committed to any particular course of action and that I would be prepared to fall in line with the opinion of Honourable Members of the Select Committee, and I hope that I might be in a position to bring again before this House a measure which will be more acceptable to them.

Before I conclude, I would propose an amendment.

Mr. Speaker: Let some other person propose.

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: With these words I commend the motion to the House.

Shri Mohan Lal Saksena (U.P.: General): With your permission, Sir, I move:

"That in the motion the names of Mr. Hossain Imam and Dr. B. Pattabhi Sitaramayya be substituted for the names of Nawab Muhammad Ismail Khan and Shrimati Sucheta Kripalani."

Mr. Speaker: I will first take the amendment to the motion.

The question is:

"That in the motion the names of Mr. Hossain Imam and Dr. B. Pattabhi Sitaramayya be substituted for the names of Nawab Muhammad Ismail Khan and Shrimati Sucheta Kripalani."

The motion was adopted.

Mr. Speaker: I now put to the House the amended motion.

The question is:

"That the Bill to establish Industrial Finance Corporation of India be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Honourable Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee, Shri K. M. Munshi, Diwan Chaman Lall, Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar, Shri T. A. Ramalingam Chettiyar, Mr. Hossain Imam, Dr. B. Pattabhi Sitaramayya, Shri C. Subrahmanyam, Professor K. T. Shah, Shri B. Das, Shri S. K. Patil, Shri Jaspat Roy Kapoor, Shri Ram Sahai, and the Mover, with instructions to report on the opening day of the next session of the Assembly, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

The motion was adopted.

FOREIGNERS (AMENDMENT) BILL

Mr. Speaker: The next business to be taken up will be item No. 5 of the List of Legislative Business.

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel (Minister for Home Affairs, Information and Broadcasting and States): Sir, I move:

"That the Bill to amend the Foreigners Act, 1946, be taken into consideration."

This is a short measure. The necessity for the Foreigners Act was amply proved by the passing of the Bill in the last Assembly, and the amending Bill which is now proposed to be put before the House is necessary on account of certain verbal changes as necessitated by the partition of the country and of some changes found necessary on account of a further examination of the section of the Act which gave general powers. The first is that the words "Indian State" wherever they occur in clause (a) of section 2 of the Act be substituted by the words "acceding State".

Then, where there is mention of "Tribal areas", we propose to use "Assam tribal areas" because that is the only area with which we are concerned here.

The other amendments which we propose, arose out of the fact that Section:

3, which we thought gave ample general powers, would not give us

4 P.M. powers to exercise the control contemplated by the amendments now proposed. If a ship or vessel has in it a foreigner who has been brought here, and if we want to compel the Master of the ship to take the foreigner back, Section 3 as we have it does not give that power. So also, if a foreigner is brought in an aircraft and we want to return him, the present Act does not give the powers to compel the pilot to take him back.

Then you will all agree that it is necessary to have full and detailed information about the movements of foreigners—at least a certain class of foreigners—in this country, and the only source from which we can generally get the information is the occupant of the premises in which the foreigner lives or makes his temporary stay. At present there is nothing in the Act which would compel the owner or the occupier or the manager of the premises to give us that information and the amendment proposed is to secure powers to fill up that lacuna.

There are certain places where undesirable activities are carried on by foreigners—some places such as disreputable houses, gambling dens and other places—where power is necessary to close down such houses. In the Act that has been passed no such power has been given.

Then, if a foreigner is to be deported, under the present Act there is no provision to recover the expenses of deportation although that foreigner has considerable assets in this country, and the Government has to bear all the expenses. We consider it only reasonable that if the foreigner has got his assets, the Government would have the power to recover the expenses of deportation.

These, in general, are the powers that are proposed to be given by the amendments. It is a short Bill for which I do not propose to take up the time of the House. Sir, I move.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That the Bill to amend the Foreigners Act, 1946, be taken into consideration."

The motion was adopted.

Clause 2 was added to the Bill.

Shri M. S. Aney (Deccan and Madras States Group): Sir, here for the words "Tribal areas", the words "Assam tribal areas" are proposed to be substituted. I really do not see the propriety of this thing at all. Now the only tribal area that exists is the Assam tribal area; the other tribal areas are outside the Indian Union. Therefore the words "Tribal area" in any Act of the Union Government can only mean tribal areas that exist inside the Union and not any tribal area which has altogether been taken out of it. I therefore submit that there is no need to qualify the word "Tribal" by adding "Assam" to it.

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: If, as the Honourable Member says, there is no other tribal area in the Union except the Assam tribal area, is there any harm in keeping the word "Assam" there?

Shri M. S. Aney: There is no harm.

Dr. B. Pattabhi Sitaramayya (Madras: General): Sir, to single out Assam tribal areas would be to suggest that there are other tribal areas.

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: If mention of "Assam tribal areas" suggests that there are other tribal areas, they are not included here.

Dr. B. Pattabhi Sitaramayya: Therefore omit "Assam".

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That clause 3 stand part of the Bill".

The motion was adopted.

Clause 3 was added to the Bill.

Clauses 4 to 7 were added to the Bill.

Clause 1 was added to the Bill.

The Title and the Preamble were added to the Bill.

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: Sir, I move:

"That the Bill be passed."

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That the Bill be passed."

The motion was adopted.

[At this stage Mr. Speaker vacated the Chair, which was then occupied by Mr.

Hossain Imam (one of the Panel of Chairmen)].

WORKMEN'S STATE INSURANCE BILL

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram (Minister for Labour): Sir, I beg to move:

"That the Bill to provide for certain benefits to workmen employed in or in connection with work of factories in case of sickness, maternity and accident and to make provision for certain other matters in relation thereto, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Honourable Rajkumari Amrit Kaur, Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra, Shri K. Santhanam, Shri Mohan Lal Saksena, Shri T. T. Krishnamachari, Haji Abdus Sattar Haji Ishaq Seth, Shri Biswanath Das, Shri H. V. Kamath, Prof. N. G. Ranga, Shri Harihar Nath Shastri, Dr. Bakshi Tek Chand, Shri S. V. Krishnamurthy Rao, Mrs. Renuka Ray, and the Mover, with instructions to report on the opening day of the next session of the Assembly, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

Sir, the Workmen's State Insurance Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 6th of November 1946. The provisions of the Bill were the result of a prolonged study extending to about three years in the course of which different interests concerned were closely consulted. The Bill provides for a unified scheme of insurance for workers in perennial factories and provides for medical care and treatment and up to certain limits cash benefits during sickness and maternity, cash benefits in the form of periodical payments in case of employment injury which in the event of permanent, total or partial disablement, takes the form of a pension. Where death arises on account of employment injury, a pension becomes payable to the family of the deceased. The Bill is a beginning of a scheme of Social Security on the lines followed in countries much more advanced economically.

The scheme of insurance will be financed mainly by contributions from employers and workers except that workers in the lowest category, that is, those drawing below ten annas as average daily wage will be exempted from contributing, though eligible for the benefits. Provincial Governments will, as their share, bear one-third of the total cost incurred within the respective Province, on medical care and treatment. The Central Government will, for a period of five years in the first instance, bear two-thirds of the cost of administration of the Fund. The incidence of cost on account of employment injury benefits and maternity benefits will fall wholly on the employer, this being the position in existing laws relating to such benefits.

Workmen insured under the Act will, besides getting facilities for medical care and treatment on efficient standards, also get cash benefits during periods of certified sickness for periods not exceeding in the aggregate eight weeks during a year. The amount of payments will be approximately half the average earnings of the workman. Women workers will get maternity benefits at a flat rate of twelve annas per day for a maximum of twelve weeks in all, partly before and partly after confinement. In case of both cash and maternity benefits, there is a qualifying period prescribed.

Employment injury benefits are a substitute for the lump sum payments now payable under the Workmen's Compensation Act in cases where a workman suffers injury arising out of his employment. Payment of a pension for life and to the family in case of death of the bread-winner affords obviously better security than a lump sum payment. In case of complete permanent disablement, the pension is approximately equivalent to half the average wages of the preceding twelve months.

An insurance scheme of this nature should be on a country-wide basis and this is what the Bill provides. The administration will vest in a statutory Corporation which will include, among others, representatives of employers, workmen and of the medical profession. The medical administration will vest in the Provincial Governments though, in view of the contributions paid by the employers and workmen, the standard of medical care and treatment provided will be of a much higher standard than is available to the general public.

Workers in perennial factories number about two million. If the Bill is enacted, it will apply to all perennial factories four months from the date of commencement of the Act. The administrative machinery including medical personnel and equipment needed for efficient functioning of the Act will be of a large magnitude. It may not be easy to apply the Act within the time indicated to factories in outlying areas and power of exemption has therefore been provided to deal with such cases for periods not exceeding one year at a time. This is necessary as it is unjust to make a levy on a section of the public until Government are certain that the services for which the levy is made are available at the same time.

The Bill, as I said before, was introduced in the Assembly just over a year ago. It was the pressure of legislative business that prevented its further progress till now. But the Ministry of Labour, to save time, has departmentally circulated the Bill for expression of opinion to all those included in the usual circulation list of the Legislative Assembly. Most replies have come in and copies of all replies are expected to be ready by the end of this month and if the motion for appointing a Select Committee is carried, the members thereof will have time to go through these replies before they meet. There has been some misunderstanding in some quarters and there have been criticisms—obviously wrong—that this scheme has been cold storaged. I do not, of course, attach any importance to that when I am satisfied that the delay was wholly unavoidable, but I do feel that any further long delay might invoke justifiable criticism. The Select Committee will have before it all material that is possible to obtain and which will enable it to improve on the provisions of the Bill to the maximum extent.

I may add, Sir, as I have remarked previously, that this is just a beginning of the social security measures for the working classes of this country and as the task before the Corporation will be of tremendous magnitude only the industrial labourers and rather a fraction of them are to be covered in the first instance. The intention of the Government is gradually to extend these benefits to all the industrial workers and to other categories of workers in the coalfields, in in the plantations, in the docks and also in agricultural pursuits, but in the present conditions of our country it will take some time and the working classes might have reasonably to wait for some time before all of them are in a position to be given all these facilities. I would like to repeat, Sir, once again that this is just a beginning and we must have this beginning as early as we can.

With these words, I move that the Bill be referred to the Select Committee.

Mr. Chairman: Motion moved:

"That the Bill to provide for certain benefits to workmen employed in or in connection with work of factories in case of sickness, maternity and accident and to make provision for certain other matters in relation thereto, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Honourable Rajkumari Amrit Kaur, Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra, Shri K. Santhanam, Shri Mohan Lal Saxena, Shri T. T. Krishnamachari, Haji Abdus Sattar Haji Ishaq Seth, Shri Biswanath Das, Shri H. V. Kamath, Prof. N. G. Ranga, Shri Harihar Nath Shastri, Dr. Bakshi Tek Chand, Shri S. V. Krishnamurthy Rao, Mrs. Renuka Ray, and the Mover, with instructions to report on the opening day of the next session of the Assembly, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

The motion is now open for discussion of the House.

Shri Harihar Nath Shastri (U. P.: General): Sir, both as a member of the House and as a humble representative of the Indian working class, it is my privilege to offer my hearty congratulations to the Honourable Minister of Labour for bringing forward this measure, which is a big step towards realising the goal of Social Security in this land. I am sure, Sir, the Honourable Minister will earn for himself the deep gratitude of the working classes of this country for this measure.

In the life of very human being, Sir, there are two stages of dependency child-hood and old age and between the intervening period there are occasions during which a man or a woman is unable to earn his or her living. In the life of a worker such occasions include unemployment, sickness, accidents while working—I mean disability and maternity. Now so far as accidents are concerned, the Government of India moved in the matter as far back in the year 1923 when they passed the Workmen's Compensation Act. As far as unemployment is concerned, that too is an urgent problem. But no serious efforts have been made in this direction so far. I am sure, Sir, with the genuine sympathies as is possessed by our Honourable Minister a bill on unemployment insurance will also be brought forward before this House in near future. Sir, apart from maternity and compensation for disability that are to a certain extent already covered under the existing laws prevalent in some of the Provinces and the country as a whole, the main problem that this Bill seeks to tackle is the problem of sickness. Now, Sir, the object of sickness insurance are two-fold. Firstly, it provides opportunities to workers of a curative nature, that is to say, it provides medical benefits, so that it may be possible for them to meet or to do away with diseases or occasions for sickness. Now, the other object of this Sickness Insurance is to provide suitable compensation to workmen to enable them to make both ends meet, while they are unfit to work as a result of sickness. Now Sickness Insurance in our country is a new thing. But it has been in existence in most of the European countries since the close of the 19th century. The system of compulsory Health Insurance was for the first time introduced in Germany in the year 1883 and since then and particularly between the war that ended in 1918 and the last war this system of Sickness Insurance spread in most of the countries and the result is that at present it is in existence in 29 countries with a population of about 50 crores. Now so far as our country is concerned, Sir, the question of Sickness Insurance for the first time came up for consideration before the Royal Commission of Labour that was set up in the year 1929. The Royal Commission on Labour considered over this question and it came to the conclusion that in view of the fact that incidence of sickness in our country was much higher than in other countries, it was necessary that Sickness Insurance scheme should be introduced. They made two suggestions. They suggested a long-term plan and a short-term plan. Their long-term plan was that the question of Sickness Insurance should be entrusted to an Expert Committee which should go into the details of the question and formulate schemes on an All India basis. Their short-term plan was that the schemes for Sickness Insurance should be split into two parts. Firstly, so far as medical benefits were concerned, they should be tackled by the State, and so far as the question of compensation was concerned, it should be tackled voluntarily by contribution from the employers, and from the workers. Now the Government of India later on considered these schemes and elicited the opinions of Provincial Governments. The Provincial Governments gave their opinions and then it was referred to the Advisory Committee of Industries and Labour of the Government of India. That Committee came to the conclusion that a scheme of Sickness Insurance would be formulated only after a close study of the problem was made for a number of years; The Government of India thought that the expense and labour that was likely to be incurred for such a study was much more than the benefits that were likely to be conferred as a result of that scheme, and for some time the scheme had to be given up. Again the question was reopened in the 1937 and the opinion of various Provinces was again elicited and the Government thought that the best course was that instead of making any detailed investigation, a beginning should be made by making an experiment in certain industries and in certain Provinces on a voluntary basis. But that too ultimately proved a failure. Then in the year 1940 there was a conference of Provincial Ministers convened by the Government of India and that Conference decided that the opinion of labour and employers should be ascertained in connection with the question of Health Insurance. These opinions came forward. Labour readily agreed and so far as the employers are concerned, they too agreed, subject to certain conditions, i.e. that such a scheme should cover the whole country including the Native States and that the expenses of the scheme should be met equally by the Government workers as well as the employers.

In the light of those observations and those suggestions this problem was considered afresh in 1941 and 1942 by conferences of Labour Ministers, and it was then decided that the whole question should be referred to an experienced economist who could go into the details of the question and formulate a scheme. Accordingly they appointed Prof. B. P. Adarkar who was assisted by an advisory committee which also consisted of certain experts besides representatives of labour and employers. And this Bill that is now before us is in fact based on the findings that were arrived at as a result of investigations carried on by Prof. Adarkar.

Now, Sir, this is not the stage to offer any detailed criticism on the Bill or to go into the merits of every clause in it, but with your permission I shall just deal with two or three points for consideration of the Honourable Minister and the Select Committee. I was a little disappointed when I came across the Bill a few months ago. In the very first clause I found that the Bill is not applicable to a class of workers known as seasonal workers. Now seasonal labourers in this country are quite big in number and most of them do a certain nature of work which is of supreme importance from the point of view of the community as a whole: for instance, workers in the sugar industry. In other countries where this scheme of health insurance is in operation not only seasonal labour but even farm labour, i.e., agricultural labour and domestic labour also are covered by the health insurance scheme. I was very carefully listening to the speech of the Honourable Minister and I was happy to know from him that he is willing to extend the scope of this Bill later on as a result of experience. What I might suggest at this moment is that no such discrimination as between seasonal and perennial should be made in this Bill. The best course would be that in the first instance it may be left to Government to decide the categories of workers to whom this Bill will first apply and then later on it should be left to them to decide how this Bill will operate. I humbly suggest that the discrimination that is proposed to be introduced in this Bill between seasonal and non-seasonal workers should be done away with.

The second point is about composition. The Honourable Minister just said that representatives of employers and workers are included in the proposed board that will be set up after this Bill is passed. Sir, you will see that the board is to consist of 29 members of whom there are only 3 who will be labour representatives. I feel that in a measure which is primarily, rather exclusively, concerned with the welfare of workers it is only proper that adequate representation of labour should be assured so that the board may enjoy the confidence of the people for whom it is meant. Similarly in the standing committee that is proposed to be set up we find that out of eleven members only one labour representative is proposed. I suggest that this point may also receive the attention of the Honourable Minister.

The third point is about exemptions. In the Bill it is provided that workers who get ten annas per day will be exempt from the payment of any contributions to this fund. Sir, if this Bill were introduced before September, 1939 I would have been quite content with an exemption up to a wage limit of ten annas a day. But, as everybody is aware, the times have changed since then and what was ten annas in September 1939 is hardly equivalent now to 2½ annas. Perhaps there are no workers in this country—even if there are they are very few in number—who get ten annas or less. So this exemption in fact has no meaning if it is confined to workers who are getting only ten annas. I shall even draw the attention of the Honourable Minister to the report prepared by Dr. Adarkar in which he has suggested 13 annas as the limit for exemption. I personally suggest that the minimum should be at least Re. 1 per head,—the basic wage which has already been introduced in certain industries. And I think it is the intention of Government that Rs. 30 should be the minimum wage in all the industries of this country. Under the circumstances I feel that if any exemption is to be given the workers to be exempted should be at least those who get Rs. 30 per month.

Coming now to the total period for which the benefits under this fund are permissible to workers, the Bill provides that the maximum period for which a worker will get sickness benefit will be eight weeks. I shall explain the position.

In most of the countries whether this Bill is in operation, for instance in Germany and in various other countries, the maximum period for which a worker is entitled to get benefits under a scheme of health insurance is 26 weeks. There are certain countries where 39 weeks are provided whereas there are certain countries like Czecho-slovakia, Hungary and Brazil, where a worker is entitled to get benefits under schemes of health insurance as long as he is unfit to work or as long as he absents himself as a result of sickness.

Shri B. Das (Orissa: General): Is it pre-war practice or present day practice?

Shri Harihar Nath Shastri: Pre-war.

Shri B. Das: But Germany does not give anything now.

Shri Harihar Nath Shastri: Anyway, that question does not arise at the present movement.

Even with regard to conditions in other countries I may put only two points before you. In the first place, as I said in the very beginning, incidence of sickness in our country is much higher than in other countries. Secondly, it may be noted that wages in our country are extremely low as compared to other countries.

Shri H. V. Kamath (C. P. & Berar: General): I submit that members of the Select Committee will do well to cut down their speeches.

Shri Harihar Nath Shastri: I shall accede to your wish and conclude in a few minutes.

Now, the other point is Mr. Adarkar's report, which forms the basis of this Bill. I would draw the attention of the Honourable Minister to this report in which he has said that the maximum period should be 90 days, which come so about 13 weeks. I should suggest humbly that if the European standards are not accepted, at least the suggestions which have been made as a result of close study by a very qualified and competent economist, who has thoroughly gone into the problem, should be accepted by the Government.

In accordance with the wishes of my honourable friend, Mr. Kamath, I will not pursue the matter further. I would conclude by once again congratulating the Honourable Minister, especially for two of the clauses in the Bill, presumably Clause 62 and Clause 63, in which it has been laid down that during the period of sickness no employer shall be competent either to reduce the wages or to punish or to dismiss any of the workers.

I hope, Sir, that after the Bill emerges from the Select Committee, it will come back in a form that will enable it to rank amongst the model schemes or model legislation that is prevalent in this connection in other parts of the world.

With these few words, I once again support the motion.

Shrimati G. Durgabai (Madras: General): Mr. Speaker, it is with great pleasure I rise to congratulate the Honourable Minister in charge of this Bill for having brought such a measure which promises great boons and benefits to the workmen employed in various factories. It is really a pity that we could not have this kind of legislation earlier when the other progressive countries in the world had made a great onward march in this direction of having social securities of this nature. I do not know whether I should say that it would go to the credit or discredit of the regime previous to ours.

But the fact is there that we could not have a measure of this kind. So I congratulate the Member who is the author of this Bill in bringing forward a Bill which is intended to give great benefit to the workmen.

Of course I have had an occasion to go through some of the provisions of this Bill. I find that it has been very well planned out and very well conceived and it really speaks of the very sympathetic attitude taken and the great vision which the Honourable Minister has shown in planning out the whole thing. Of course it deals with the matter quite extensively and also very liberally. But some of the clauses in the Bill, I feel, require some kind of reconsideration by the Honourable Minister and also by the Select Committee which is going to scrutinise this Bill. My difficulty is this. I just wanted to bring to the notice of the House and also to the Honourable Minister some clauses, for example, clause 40, sub-clause (3)—relating to maternity benefit. I wonder how the rate of twelve annas a day, a period of twelve weeks, of which not more than six weeks shall precede the confinement, was arrived at. My friend, the honourable Member the previous speaker, has just said that ten annas in the olden days would only mean two and a half annas now. I stand subject to correction but he has said that that is the value of the money today. Applying that to the case of a lady who has to undergo a confinement or who comes under the benefit of this clause, she would not really be well provided by the rate given to her, that is twelve annas. But in considering this, I really feel, Sir, that she has to be counted as two and not one, because she not only has to be provided for but also the child whom she is to give to the world as a national fortune or wealth. Therefore, I feel Sir, that the Honourable Minister may please consider this suggestion and see that the rate of twelve annas may be a minimum rate and not the maximum. I hope that the Honourable Minister and the Select Committee would give due consideration to this aspect.

Another consideration which has troubled me as much is that some kind of limitation is placed on the ability of women coming under the benefit. She is required to fulfil certain conditions in order to come under this benefit clause, namely, sub-clause 3 which says:

"A woman shall not be qualified for the maternity benefit unless—

- (i) not less than 26 weekly contributions in respect of the woman have been paid within a continuous period of twelve months immediately preceding the week in which she is confined or in which she gives notice of pregnancy before confinement, etc."

But if this is to be applied I do not know how many women will really be able to benefit under this. Many women may have to go without having the benefit of this legislation. Even men may not be really conversant with the law, the rules and the technicalities. That being so, how many women will be conversant with the rules and regulations so that they would know that they should pay their premiums regularly in order to take advantage of this legislation and that it is only when they duly comply with all the formalities that they would be entitled to the benefit under this legislation and not otherwise. I request the Honourable Minister and the Select Committee to see that they are exempted from the operation of this qualification imposed upon them for at least a period of two years. Otherwise many women who have not registered their pregnancy or who have not given notice of it may be excluded from the benefit of this clause. That is another essential point which I would bring to the notice of the Honourable Minister and the Select Committee for consideration.

Then, I notice here that in the case of maternity benefit not less than 26 weekly contributions are to be paid but in the case of sickness under clause 39 sub-clause (b) not less than 17 weekly contributions in respect of workmen should have been paid. I do not know why in the case of sickness it has been only 17 weekly contributions and in the case of maternity it is 26 weekly contributions. I would suggest for the consideration of the Honourable Minister and the Select Committee that they should see that this kind of imposition of a rule, which is not going to work to the benefit of the women is removed or relaxed to some extent or at least for a period of two years.

Clause 86 of the Bill says.

"At any time when the funds of the Corporation so permit, the Board may enhance the scale of any benefit admissible under this Act and the period for which such benefit may be given."

I do not know what the future would be like. But if the Corporation so permits and if the fund so permits I would urge the Honourable Minister and the Select Committee to provide for some kind of recreation, for some kind of vocational activities and also for the establishment of some training institutions for enabling the women and children to equip themselves with the necessary knowledge and also to have some kind of enjoyment through the recreational activities provided for them.

There is one other important point that I want to bring to the notice of the Honourable Minister. In the Preamble it is stated that the benefits of this legislation will be open only to workmen working in the factories. As the previous speaker pointed out, the benefits should be open not only to the workmen in factories but to all kinds of workmen in any occupation, such as workers in agricultural operations, domestic servants, etc. India is predominantly an agricultural country and roughly a crore of people are employed in agricultural operations. I do not know why this very useful social security measure should give the benefit only to the workmen in factories but not to the large number of workmen in other occupations and institutions other than the factories. With these few observations I would request the Honourable Minister once again and the Select Committee to give due consideration to these facts and I once again congratulate the Honourable Minister.

Shri S. Nagappa (Madras: General): Sir, I rise to join the previous speakers who congratulated the Honourable Minister for Labour. I find in the Statement of Objects and Reasons that the sickness benefit given to a man will not exceed eight weeks. In a year of 12 months after all there is every likelihood of a man falling sick for more than eight weeks. Even if he recovers he will require sometime, at least some weeks, to become fit enough to resume work. For this period nothing is given to him. When the man is on the way to recovery he requires more money in order to recoup himself and become fit to work again. No doubt the Honourable Minister has done a good deal in the interest of the workers but I would request him to do a little more. I would suggest that instead of eight weeks it should have been twelve weeks per man and 15 weeks per woman.

An Honourable Member: Why?

Shri S. Nagappa: My Honourable friend asks, why make a distinction between man and woman.

A woman is a tender creature and requires more care than a man. A man can take care of himself better than a woman.

An Honourable Member: Question.

Shri S. Nagappa: My Honourable friend says that ladies are capable of taking care of themselves and can do so better than men. However, I do not want to enter into a controversy over that.

The Honourable Minister has not been kind enough to include in the scope of this Bill seasonal labourers. The Honourable Members who spoke before me were kind enough to emphasise this particular point. I hope the Select Committee will go into this matter and try to include seasonal labourers also, so that they may also get the benefit.

I do not find any clause in this Bill as regards old age pension. A man or woman is expected to work during her life time but there is a time in old age, if a man or woman has no children who is to take care of them. They have been working all their lives in order to produce more and more national wealth. They have been exploited so long as they were strong and sturdy enough to work but when they grow old what will happen to them? In all countries, especially the Western countries there is the system of old age pension prevailing. The Honourable Minister was kind enough to say that we have only made a beginning and I would request him to include this particular benefit in the Bill in order to give old age pension benefit to those poor workers. As the Honourable Lady Member said the scope of the Bill need not be confined to the workers in industrial concerns only but it should be extended to other workers, especially agricultural labourers, who have been responsible for producing the main essentials of our day to day life. Without agricultural labourers you cannot have raw materials, without the raw materials you cannot have industrial magnates and then only you require industrial labour. Therefore first of all you have to take care of the agricultural labourer who is responsible for the whole production of the national wealth. The Honourable Minister said that he has made only a beginning and I hope he will not stop with the beginning but would go further in order to give benefit to all classes of labourers in whatever walks of life they may be working in this country. With these few remarks I once again congratulate the Honourable Minister for having brought in such a beneficial measure before this House. One more point, Sir. Now there are 29 Members on the Board. But very few representatives belonging to the labouring classes have been put on the Board. There is another thing I wish to mention. While making selection of Members to the Select Committee I do not find Members belonging to the labouring classes, who can understand labour problems better than others. There are only a few who will I think can do some thing. I have however full confidence in those Members who have been appointed to the select Committee and I hope they will be able to see that the Bill is made more beneficial to all classes of workers.

With these few observations I once again congratulate the Honourable Member.

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Saturday, the 22nd November, 1947.

CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY OF INDIA (LEGISLATIVE)

Saturday, 22nd November 1947.

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber of the Council House at Eleven of the Clock, Mr Speaker (The Honourable Mr. G. V. Mavalankar) in the Chair.

Mr. Speaker: Honourable Members might have noticed that I stepped in here, according to the clocks in the Chamber, at 10 minutes past 11. When I came here I found that the clocks were going a bit too fast. I have, therefore, asked the office to adjust them. I came at the exact hour of 11. I hope, in the meanwhile, before we adjourn for lunch, the clocks will be set-right.

SHORT NOTICE QUESTION AND ANSWER

ACCUMULATION OF MAILS ON RANAGHAT RAILWAY STATION

Shri Rohini Kumar Chaudhuri: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Communications be pleased to state whether Government are aware that heaps of mails have been lying in uncovered platforms of Ranaghat Railway Station for a long time and mails from India to Assam are being held up?

(b) If so, what actions do Government propose to take to despatch these mails to their destinations?

(c) Do Government propose to introduce an air mail service from Calcutta to important towns of Assam? If so, from what date?

The Honourable Mr. Rafi Ahmed Kidwai: (a) Government are aware that there has been at Ranaghat a heavy accumulation of mails including those for Assam.

(b) Arrangements have been made in collaboration with the Pakistan authorities to clear existing accumulations in the next few days and to prevent further accumulations. An Inspector of the Railway Mail Service is being sent to Ranaghat to assist in this operation.

(c) Government are examining the possibilities of organising air mail services between Calcutta and important towns in Assam and expect air transport will operate in near future.

Shri Rohini Kumar Chaudhuri: May I know, Sir, by what time Government expect to clear up the mails which are now lying in Ranaghat?

The Honourable Mr. Rafi Ahmed Kidwai: About a fortnight ago there was an accumulation that was cleared up. Now we came to know there was great deal of accumulation. Our officers are already there and I hope in the next few days the accumulation will be cleared up.

Shri Rohini Kumar Chaudhuri: May I know, Sir, what towns of Assam planes carrying air mails will touch?

The Honourable Mr. Rafi Ahmed Kidwai: All the air mails will be carried to important towns in Assam, and we will be able to send mails by air to Gauhati.

Shri Rohini Kumar Chaudhuri: May I know, Sir, whether the mails carried by air will be carried on ordinary postage or whether extra postage which is prescribed for air mail will have to be paid?

The Honourable Mr. Rafi Ahmed Kidwai: As I have said in my reply, im- by air, and as much more of ordinary mails as there is accommodation in the planes.

Shri Rohini Kumar Chaudhuri: May I point out to the Honourable Member that the same result will take place if all the mails are not carried by air because ordinary mails will again be accumulated in Ranaghat or some other station?

The Honourable Mr. Rafi Ahmed Kidwai: That is why I said that even ordinary mail would be carried by air, but it will be limited to the space available in the plane.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: Is the Honourable Member aware that at Ranaghat station which I had occasion to visit about 10 days ago there is still a huge accumulation of mails not only bound for Assam, but also for Darjeeling and Jalpaiguri, and that notwithstanding our best efforts we could not persuade the Pakistan Government to take them over to Darjeeling and Assam?

The Honourable Mr. Rafi Ahmed Kidwai: That has been admitted in the reply and I said a special officer has been deputed to see that the accumulation is cleared.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: Is he aware that this difficulty has been mainly due to the fact that without reference to the Indian Union the Pakistan Government suddenly abolished the District Headquarters and the Postal Divisional Headquarters at Krishnagar Nadia, and that as a result of the sudden abolition by the Pakistan Government of the Postal Divisional Headquarters without reference to the Indian Union, the whole distribution of postal business has been dislocated?

The Honourable Mr. Rafi Ahmed Kidwai: That may be.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: Does not the Honourable Minister know that I addressed a personal communication on the subject that this sudden abolition by the Pakistan Government of the Divisional Headquarters which is within the Indian Union has caused this entire dislocation of postal business and the Honourable Minister promised action. What action has the Honourable Minister taken so far to re-establish a Postal Division there so as to facilitate postage of mails from Ranaghat to Assam and other parts of the Indian Union?

The Honourable Mr. Rafi Ahmed Kidwai: I have said we have decided to send mails from Calcutta to important towns in Assam by aeroplane and in the meanwhile arrangements are being made to clear the accumulations.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: I may also refer to Darjeeling, Jalpaiguri, Cooch Behar and other parts of the Indian Union.

The Honourable Mr. Rafi Ahmed Kidwai: Yes, in reply I have said that mails will not be confined to Assam, but other places as well.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: Is the Honourable Minister aware that at the present moment Ranaghat happens to be the station where the Pakistan and Indian Governments exchange their personnel for transit of mails. If so, will the Honourable Minister consider the suggestion of having a special establishment at Ranaghat for the time being for the speedy disposal of mails to other parts of the Indian Union?

The Honourable Mr. Rafi Ahmed Kidwai: That is also being arranged.

Shri Rohini Kumar Chaudhuri: Sir, is it a fact that air mails are today being taken from Calcutta to Dibrugarh and Jorhat and not to Gauhati? I have received unofficial information to that effect. May I know if there is any truth in it?

The Honourable Mr. Rafi Ahmed Kidwai: I have not received any information.

Shri Rohini Kumar Chaudhuri: If my information is correct, Sir, may I ask the Honourable Minister to particularly lay stress on Gauhati because Gauhati is the nearest place to Shillong?

The Honourable Mr. Rafi Ahmed Kidwai: In my reply I have said that Gauhati is one of the places where the mail will go.

Mr. B. Poker Sahib Bahadur: Mr. Speaker, Sir, may I make a suggestion regarding these short notice questions? I suggest that they may be included in the list of business for the day and a copy circulated to the Members of this House so that the Members may know what question is being moved.

Mr. Speaker: That suggestion is not possible. Ex hypothesi it is a short notice question—notice may have been given the previous evening after the agenda is issued. The Honourable Member may have noticed that, while other questions are not read to the Assembly, these short notice questions are read by the Questioner and then answered by the Minister.

MOTIONS FOR ADJOURNMENT

VALUABLES OF NON-MUSLIMS IN LAHORE SAFE DEPOSIT VAULTS

Mr. Speaker: Now, I have received notices of three adjournment motions, one of which is not going to be moved. They all relate to the position regarding the safe deposit vaults at Lahore and happenings in the Western Punjab about those vaults. I will read to the House the two motions. They practically cover the same ground with a slight difference as regards the emphasis on the points raised.

One is from the Honourable Member Shri Har Govind Pant, which reads:

"That the business of the Constituent Assembly (Legislative) be adjourned for the purpose of discussing a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the treatment meted out to non-Muslims from India who went to Lahore on Thursday to collect their valuable belongings lying in various safe deposits there".

The other stands in the name of Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena. I have amended the motion slightly with reference to words which I think are unparliamentary to be used. The motion is:

"That the House do adjourn to discuss a matter of urgent public importance namely the misgovernment in Lahore and the deliberate humiliation and insult offered by the Pakistan police and authorities to Hindu and Sikh nationals and the military guard of the Indian Dominion which had gone with our nationals who had gone to take their safe deposits in the vaults of the Punjab National Bank in Lahore and who were forced to re-deposit their valuables by use of criminal force as published in the Hindustan Times to-day and to decide the measure which should be taken to put a stop to such occurrences in future by their Government."

The matters are of course, of grave importance and they are urgent. I should like to know what the Government have to say about this. Personally I should have liked the Honourable Members to put in, first, short notice questions to Government to obtain information on the points and then see whether there is any occasion for moving such motions. As, however, they have sent me notices in a matter prima facie important and urgent, I am asking the Government to state what they have to say and then I will decide about the admissibility of the motions.

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel (Minister for Home Affairs, Information and Broadcasting and the States): Sir, I do not think that these adjournment motions are in order because they refer to incidents that have taken place in a foreign State. Therefore on behalf of the Government I would object to the discussion of this matter in this House. I do not think that what has happened in a foreign State can be discussed on the floor of this House by means of an adjournment motion.

Mr. Speaker: May I clarify the position as I see it? It is perfectly correct to say that whatever has happened in Pakistan cannot be the subject matter of discussion here. As I understand the motion, what is sought to be raised here is, the steps this Government are expected to take with reference to the incidents and the interests of the nationals of this country. That is the question as I see it. Of course from the point of view of expediency, I shall not express an opinion but I may say that these are not matters fit for discussion at present on the floor of the House. But then I have to go by the rules of admissibility.

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: The question as to what steps Government should take about this matter can only be considered after we have got full details of the incidents that have taken place. Government cannot take any action merely on Press reports. The Government has been carrying on telegraphic communication on this matter, since before the incidents took place, about the attitude of the Pakistan Government regarding the safe deposits and we are still making efforts to settle this question amicably. I do not know what actually has happened and the Government therefore cannot decide what steps should be taken. I can only give an assurance that all that is possible will be done by the Government to safeguard the interests of their nationals.

Mr. Speaker: As there is no information on which the correctness of the facts could be vouchsafed, I do not give my consent to these adjournment motions.

ELECTION TO COURT OF UNIVERSITY OF DELHI

آنریبل مولانا ابوالکلام آزاد : جناب میں یہ تجویز پیش کرتا ہوں -

دہلی یونیورسٹی امدد ملت ایکٹ نمبری ۲۳-۱۹۳۳ کے سیکشن ۱۸-سب سیکشن ۱-دفعہ ۱۳ کے ماتحت جسے یونیورسٹی کے Statute ۲ دفعہ ۵-مدرجہ Schedule کے ساتھ ملا کر پڑھا چاہیئے۔ اس اسمبلی کے ممبروں کو چاہیئے کہ ایسے طریقہ سے جسے آنریبل Speaker منظور کریں اپنی تعداد میں سے ۱۲ اشخاص کے چناؤ کی کارروائی اختیار کریں۔ یہ ۱۲ اشخاص دہلی یونیورسٹی کورٹ کے ممبر ہونگے۔ اس سلسلے میں مجھے استقدر اور کہنا ہے کہ دہلی یونیورسٹی کے کورٹ کی بناوٹ ایسی ہوتی ہے کہ اس میں ۱۲ ممبر Central Legislature سے لئے جاتے تھے چار کونسل آف اسٹیٹ سے - اور آٹھ Legislative Assembly سے - اب چونکہ ۱۵ اگست کو وہ دونوں ختم ہو گئے اور اسکی جگہ اس Dominion Legislature نے لیلی اسلئے اسکی ضرورت ہوئی کہ نئے سرے سے ان ۱۲ آدمیوں کا چناؤ کیا جائے۔

The Honourable Maulana Abul Kalam Azad (Minister for Education): Sir, I move:

"That in pursuance of clause (xiv) of sub-section (1) of Section 18 of the Delhi University Act, 1922 (VIII of 1922) as amended by the Delhi University (Amendment) Act, 1943 (XXIV of 1943), read with clause (5) of Statute 2 of the Statutes of the University set out in the Schedule to that Act, the members of this Assembly do proceed to elect in such manner as may be approved by the Honourable the Speaker 12 persons from among their own number to be members of the Court of the University of Delhi."

In this connection I have to say further that the Court of the University of Delhi is so constituted that it included 12 members of the Central Legislature; viz., four from the Council of State and eight from the Legislative Assembly. Now because both these Houses have ceased to function with effect from the 15th August, 1947 and have been replaced by the Dominion Legislature, the necessity for the de novo election of these twelve members has arisen.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That in pursuance of clause (xiv) of sub-section (1) of Section 18 of the Delhi University Act, 1922 (VIII of 1922) as amended by the Delhi University (Amendment) Act, 1943 (XXIV of 1943) read with clause (5) of Statute 2 of the Statutes of the University set out in the Schedule to that Act, the members of this Assembly do proceed to elect in such manner as may be approved by the Honourable the Speaker 12 persons from among their own number to be members of the Court of the University of Delhi."

The motion was adopted.

ELECTION TO THE CENTRAL ADVISORY BOARD OF ARCHAEOLOGY

آنریبل مولانا ابوالکلام آزاد : جناب میں تجویز پیش کرتا ہوں -
 وہ اس اسمبلی کے ممبروں کو چاہیئے کہ ایسے طریقہ سے جسے آنریبل دی اسپیکر منظور فرمائیں اپنی تعداد میں سے سات شخصوں کے چناؤ کی کارروائی اختیار کریں۔ یہ سات اشخاص سنٹرل ایڈوائزری بورڈ آف Archaeology کے ممبر قرار پائیں گے جسے گورنمنٹ آف انڈیا نے قائم کیا ہے۔

The Honourable Maulana Abul Kalam Azad (Minister for Education): Sir, I beg to move:

"That the members of this Assembly do proceed to elect in such manner as the Honourable the Speaker may direct, seven persons from among their number to be the members of the Central Advisory Board of Archaeology in India constituted by the Government of India."

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

((That the members of this Assembly do proceed to elect in such manner as the Honourable the Speaker may direct, seven persons from among their number to be members of the Central Advisory Board of Archaeology in India constituted by the Government of India."

The motion was adopted.

Shri M. S. Aney (Deccan and Madras States Group): May I suggest, Sir, that when a motion is being read in Hindi or Urdu it is necessary that the members should have a copy of the Hindi or Urdu motion on the table?

Mr. Speaker: The Honourable Members have copies of them in English and they are conversant with the particular motion that is coming before the House.

Mr. Speaker: I have to inform Honourable Members that the following dates have been fixed for receiving nominations and holding elections, if necessary, in connection with the following Court and the Advisory Board, namely:—

	Date for nomination	Date for election
Court of the University of Delhi	2-12-1947	5-12-1947
Central Advisory Board of Archaeology	2-12-1947	5-12-1947

The nominations for the Court and the Advisory Board will be received in the Notice Office up to 12 noon on the dates mentioned for the purpose. The elections by means of the single transferable vote will be held in the Assistant Secretary's room (No. 21) in the Council House between the hours 10-30 A.M. and 1 P.M.

ELECTION TO THE STANDING COMMITTEE FOR THE MINISTRY OF COMMERCE

Mr. Speaker: I have to inform the Assembly that up to 12 noon on Friday the 21st November 1947, the time fixed for receiving nominations for the Standing Committee for the Ministry of Commerce, ten nominations were received. As the number of candidates is equal to the number of vacancies, I declare the following members to be duly elected:—

Shri Satyanarayan Sinha, Shri U. Srinivasa Mallayya, Shri Suresh Chandra Majumdar, Shri T. A. Ramalingam Chettiyar, Shri B. A. Khimji, Shri M. C. Veerabahu Pillai, Shri N. Mahadava Rau, Sir Padampat Singhanian, Dr. B. Pattabhi Sitaramayya, and K. T. M. Ahmed Ibrahim Sahib Bahadur.

CHANGE IN THE PROGRAMME OF BUSINESS IN THE ASSEMBLY

Mr. Speaker: Before the House proceeds with legislative business, I have to announce a little change in the programme, which I trust the members will appreciate. In the programme sent to them, Tuesday the 25th is fixed for general discussion of the Railway Budget. The time allowed is up to lunch. I am extending that time for the whole day; so the whole of Tuesday the 25th will be allotted for general discussion of the Railway Budget. The question-hour will, of course, be there as usual. This also leads to another change, namely, that the voting on demands for grants which was to take place after lunch on Tuesday the 25th will now take place on Wednesday the 26th up to about 4-30 P.M. At 5 P.M. there is the presentation of the General Budget, which time is fixed by the Governor General. So the voting on the demands for grants has to be completed before 5. This necessitates fixing the voting on demands for grants a little earlier and therefore I am fixing it up to 4-30 P.M. I hope the House will be able to finish the voting on demands within half an hour.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar (Madras: General): May I request you, Sir, to dispense with the question-hour on both the 25th and the 26th in view of the fact that the general discussion on the Railway Budget will normally take three or four days and it has now been confined to only one day and a number of cut motions have already been given notice of?

Mr. Speaker: I am afraid I am personally not inclined to consider this suggestion favourably. However, I am entirely in the hands of the House. This is not a full Railway Budget; it is a supplementary revised Budget. That is one thing. Of course the revised Budget includes the whole railway policy but that is another matter. Apart from that the question-hour, to my mind, is an important item and many honourable members who have tabled questions would like to have information by way of supplementaries on the questions they have put. The previous practice was, that if the House was unanimous, then only the question-hour could be dispensed with. At this stage, I do not find unanimity. So the question-hour will stand.

DELHI AND AJMER-MERWARA LAND DEVELOPMENT BILL

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad (Minister for Food and Agriculture): Sir, I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill to provide for the preparation and execution of land development schemes, the reclamation of waste land and the control of private forests and grassland, in the Provinces of Delhi and Ajmer-Merwara.

Mr. Speaker: Motion moved:

"That leave be granted to introduce a Bill to provide for the preparation and execution of land development schemes, the reclamation of waste land and the control of private forests and grassland, in the Provinces of Delhi and Ajmer-Merwara".

Shri Raj Krishna Bose (Orissa: General): May I submit, Sir, that copies of this Bill have not yet been circulated?

Mr. Speaker: As usual this is a motion for leave to introduce a Bill and there is no discussion whatever. It is only a matter of formality. Therefore the practice has been to distribute the copies of Bills after the introduction. The Honourable Members will get these at their residences this evening and copies will also be available in the lobby.

The question is:

"That leave be granted to introduce a Bill to provide for the preparation and execution of land development schemes, the reclamation of wasteland and the control of private forests and grassland, in the Provinces of Delhi and Ajmer-Merwara".

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Dr. Rajendra Prasad: I introduce the Bill.

INDIAN NURSING COUNCIL BILL

The Honourable Rajkumari Amrit Kaur (Minister for Health): Sir, I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill to constitute an Indian Nursing Council.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That leave be granted to introduce a Bill to constitute an Indian Nursing Council".

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Rajkumari Amrit Kaur: Sir, I introduce the Bill.

PHARMACY BILL

The Honourable Rajkumari Amrit Kaur (Minister for Health): Sir, I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill to regulate the profession of pharmacy.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That leave be granted to introduce a Bill to regulate the profession of pharmacy".

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Rajkumari Amrit Kaur: Sir, I introduce the Bill.

Mr. Speaker: The House will now proceed with the further consideration of the following motion moved by the Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram on Friday, the 21st November, 1947, namely:

"That the Bill to provide for certain benefits to workmen employed in or in connection with work of factories in case of sickness, maternity and accident and to make provision for certain other matters in relation thereto be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Honourable Rajkumari Amrit Kaur, Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra, Shri K. Santhanam, Shri Mohan Lal Saxena, Shri T. T. Krishnamachari, Haji Abdus Sattar, Haji Ishaq Seth, Shri Biswanath Das, Shri H. V. Kamath, Prof. N. G. Ranga, Shri Harihar Nath Shastri, Dr. Bakshi Tek Chand, Shri S. V. Krishnamurthy Rao, Shrimati Renuka Ray, and the Mover with instructions to report on the opening day of the next session of the Assembly, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

Haji Abdus Sattar Haji Ishaq Seth (Madras: Muslim): Sir, I have to move a slight amendment to replace my name in this motion. It is an agreed amendment. In the place of my name, I propose the name of Begum Aizaz Rasul.

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram (Minister for Labour): I have no objection.

Haji Abdus Sattar Haji Ishaq Seth: Sir, I move:

"That in the motion for the name of Haji Abdus Sattar Haji Ishaq Seth the name of Begum Aizaz Rasul, be substituted".

Mr. Speaker: Amendment moved:

"That in the motion for the name of Haji Abdus Sattar Haji Ishaq Seth the name of Begum Aizaz Rasul, be substituted".

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa (C. P. and Berar: General): Sir, the question of Health Insurance for the working classes has been receiving the attention of the general public and particularly the labouring classes since two decades. Many a time this question has come up before the various Legislatures also, but without any result. We are therefore, Sir, very glad to find to-day this measure, which has come from this popular ministry after the achievement of freedom in this country and at its very first session we are further gratified to learn that the Honourable Minister has thought it advisable to bring it so that the condition of the toiling working classes could to a certain extent be redressed. With this end in view, I heartily congratulate the Honourable Minister for bringing this Bill so that to some extent relief could be given to this class of workers who have been denied all these facilities, all these centuries in this country under the Bureaucratic Government.

Sir, the Bill provides that relief will be granted under this Bill to all the factory labourers including factories belonging to the Crown, but other than the seasonal factories. The Honourable Mover of this Bill stated that while he would have preferred his Bill to be made applicable to all the workers, he would like to start it with a particular class of labourers so as to see the result of its working and then he might bring in subsequently an amendment to apply to all classes of workers. Sir, with due deference to him, I do not share that view. When a start has to be made after such a long period—I should say about twenty years since this demand has been placed before this country—the start should have been more liberal and the start should be perfect, particularly when we are in the free country today and I do feel the seasonal factory labourers who are excluded should be included in the provision of this Bill. Before the War there were 11,080 factories in this country. Sir, out of this 6,941 are perennial factories and 4,023 are seasonal factories. From this you would be pleased to see that nearly 50 per cent. are the labourers who work in seasonal factories and so a fairly good number of the working classes will be denied this right. I would therefore ask the Honourable Mover whether he feels justified to exclude 50 per cent. of the workers from the operation of the provision of this Bill. I would submit, Sir, that when he is going to make a start, the start should be liberal. I would not, of course, I use the word 'liberal', but I do say that justice demands that this class of relief ought to be given to the seasonal workers in the factories. They are also working for a number of years and for some reason or the other they are working in the seasonal factories and there is no reason why there should be a distinction between workers in the perennial factories and workers in the seasonal factories. If it had been a small number I would not have given much importance to it but when the number, as I have mentioned, is nearly 50 per cent. I hope, Sir, the Honourable Minister, sympathetic as he is always, will reconsider this matter and himself move an amendment in the Select Committee rather than allow any Select Committee Member to move such an amendment. That is one part of the Bill.

Sir, there is to be a Workmen's State Insurance Corporation for the purpose of giving relief to the labourers under this Bill and here also niggardly treatment, if I may use the word has been meted out, by fixing up the total relief to be given to the labourers. As one of the Speakers yesterday stated, the labourer who earns ten annas and under will be exempted from making any contribution towards this Fund. Ten annas today means, Sir, three annas. The value of a Rupee being five annas you can very well understand what the value of ten annas would be and under these circumstances the minimum wage to an ordinary labourer should be nowhere less than a Rupee. It varies between Rs. 1/4 and Rs. 2. This 10 annas might have been appropriate in former times but now that the value of the rupee has gone down so much I feel that the Select Committee should substantially raise this amount; it should be Rs. 1/8 according to present conditions.

Then, Sir, sickness benefit is provided for eight weeks. While in other services—Government, commercial as well as private—there are casual leave, medical leave, privilege leave, furlough, etc. which can be taken by any one from a subordinate to the highest officers who get full pay during these periods of leave, the workers are denied any of these kinds of leave although they are the backbone of all our industrial concerns. They do not ask for furlough or even for casual leave, but in sickness also they are limited to eight weeks. Specially in maternity cases, a woman after child-birth is not supposed to work, according to custom, for 40 or 50 days; and from the point of view of her health she should not be made to work for that period. Poverty of course compels them to do domestic and other work after about 30 days but Government should not allow them to work for two months after confinement. I submit that this is very essential in the interest of the health of these women workers. Before confinement also they should undergo ante-natal treatment, and medical opinion prescribes three months' ante-natal treatment in order to prevent infantile mortality which prevails to such a great extent in this country. I therefore submit that at least one month's leave should be given before confinement to undergo this treatment, and the period provided in the Bill should be increased. I am glad to find a provision in the Bill that provincial Governments will be asked to set up hospitals and dispensaries for this purpose. Today workers falling sick have to depend on the free dispensaries maintained either by the local bodies or by Government, and the burden on these dispensaries is so heavy that this class of workers does not get the treatment that it should have. I am therefore happy that the provincial Governments will be asked to establish these "special" hospitals and dispensaries; I say "special" because I hope they will be established exclusively for this class of people so that they may get the kind of relief that they are entitled to.

[Mr. R. K. Sidhwa]

Then with regard to the proposed constitution of the corporation I find no provision made for a woman member though there is only one seat provided for a woman on the Standing Committee. As there are 2½ lakh women workers employed in factories I feel that women should have proper representation in the working of this Corporation. I feel that women are the proper persons to look after the health of the workers, even male workers; and women should therefore be in large numbers in the executive of the Corporation. Membership is surely not restricted to the Assembly Members.

An Honourable Member: We have them on the Select Committee; we will follow that up.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: I am not thinking of the Select Committee; there you can get in by favour or through ability. I am thinking of this permanent body, viz., the Corporation. I appeal to the Honourable Minister that the same class of work should be distributed between man and woman and there should be a large number of women on this body.

Then I find that labour representation also is very small, only three being provided. The Bill is meant for the benefit of labour and I must say that the number of workers' representatives is insignificant,—only three out of something like 22. I feel that the Honourable Minister should bear this point of increasing this number in mind when the Bill is discussed in Select Committee.

Sir, I will not go into the details of this Bill at any length because I am told that every minute of this House costs a few hundred rupees. I have of course to do my duty and offer the views of the people whom I have the honour to represent here; but still I will not take the time of the House by discussing each clause of the Bill. I would have done that if the Bill was not to go to the Select Committee, but there are very able men in this Committee and they hold liberal views and I hope when they do go into Committee they will bear in mind the real injustice that has been imposed by the bureaucratic Government for the last 20 years on not being in measures for insurance fund. They will see to it that they are liberal enough, no matter if this is going to cost some money to employees. My honourable friend on the Select Committee will bear in mind that a share has to be given by the employers and there is a contribution also from the labourers. What a fine thing, that both combined go together! The labourer contributes in this fund and also the employer and the labourers have been saying that in your profit you also give us some little share. Now the labourers have said that in our own benefit and in your own benefit, we do not want necessarily to depend upon you. We pay also one pie and you will pay one rupee. That is real co-operation that this Bill provides for it. I congratulate the Honourable Minister for making this co-operative system in a fund that is proposed to be moved so that the labourers and employers also may feel that this is not a one-sided fund but brought about with the co-operation of both, and when it is co-operation of both, I do hope the Honourable the Select Committee Members, when it is presented to them, will bear in mind that no argument that this will cost the Government a good deal of money should be allowed to arise, because Government has not to incur any expenditure. The employers should be asked to take out from their pockets which they have filled for a number of years, something more for the benefit of the people, so that there may be more production and good co-operation between the employers and employees and we could see the factories making larger profit in the near future. I have congratulated the Honourable Minister for the initiative and courage that he has shown.

Shri Rohini Kumar Chaudhuri (Assam: General): Is the Honourable Member in order for clapping?

Mr. Speaker: It is a mis-statement of fact. He is not clapping.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: There is a section that relates to the benefit to be given to workmen who sustain temporary disablement and during the period of such disablement. We have a Workmen's Compensation Act also and for the various kinds of injuries and accidents certain amounts are set aside under the Workmen's Compensation Act. But I do hope when the provisions of this section are considered, it will be borne in mind that the amount that is provided in the Workmen's Compensation Act is quite different. It will not be understood that because a labourer for a certain accident gets compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act, therefore he will not get the benefit of this. Therefore, the Honourable Minister has rightly made a provisions for this in this Bill but it is not very clear. It is likely to cause some friction between the operation of the Workmen's Compensation Act and this Act when it comes to giving any relief to the labourers. Under these circumstances, Sir, this clause will also require serious consideration of the Select Committee.

There is nothing more I have to say, although I could have said much more. I only hope when this Bill comes out in the next session, it will be a Bill for which we ought to be proud. Every honourable member of this House should be proud that whatever our belief, it has been our creed and principle. I have said that the workmen's interests will be near our hearts at all times. This we have said in our election manifesto. Only few days ago the A.I.C.C. meeting in Delhi reminded legislators to do their duty towards labourers by treating them liberally. When the Honourable Minister has given us an opportunity for considering this Bill, I hope the honourable members will bear in mind not to grudge a few rupees here or there, but that they will be very liberal for making this Bill really worthy of being on the Statute Book.

With these words, I again congratulate the Honourable the Minister and support the motion.

Shri Khandubhai K. Desai (Bombay: General): I have great pleasure in congratulating the Honourable Minister for Labour in bringing in this Bill, at the very first session of the free Parliament of this country. The working class has been expecting some sort of relief in regard to health for the last decade. I need not go into the history of the growth and the consciousness, particularly with regard to health insurance for the last 20 years. Anyway it is better late than never. The Bill that has been brought before us is certainly very comprehensive and it does consolidate into one legislation relief for various disabilities, a workman is liable to in the course of his work. The maternity benefit that has been contemplated under this Act now will apply to all the women workers working in the Dominion, irrespective of the fact whether a particular provincial Ministry has enacted a law with regard to it or not.

As far as the Bill is concerned, there have been one or two criticisms levelled against it, and I think definite exclusion of workers working in seasonal factories is not proper and we should not enact the law on these lines. If Government feel that in the initial stages it would not be possible to set up an administrative machinery to administer relief and medical aid to the workers working in seasonal factories, it may say that in the first instance it will apply to all the factories excluding the seasonal factories. But the scope of the Bill should be comprehensive enough so that whenever the Government thinks that a further application of the law is necessary, or it can be done, it should be provided accordingly.

Apart from this, there is a very serious omission to which I would like to refer. The Bill does not give any relief either in the way of medical aid or cash allowance to the clerical staff. I think the clerical staff working in the factories are as much entitled to get this relief as any other workman and particularly now when most of the provinces are enacting or have enacted legislation with regard to the Shop Assistants' Act, there is no reason why the Shop Assistant should be excluded from the operation of this law. I hope the Select Committee would take into consideration this aspect and make adequate provision for the inclusion of the clerks in the scope of the Bill. In offering my remarks on the Bill I do not propose to go into details. However, I would like to point out that as far as the working classes are concerned they are not very much concerned with what cash allowance they will get during the period of disability due to illness. The most important part of this 12 Noon Bill is the medical relief that is going to be granted to the workers. As is today, well known, there is very limited medical relief granted to the workers, either by the employers or by the municipalities or by the provincial Governments. We have to consider whether the obligation that is being placed on the provincial governments will be carried out properly. It has been said that every insured worker will be entitled to get medical relief and the provincial government under this law has been called upon to make adequate facilities for indoor and out-door medical relief of the insured workers. There is only one clause which is somewhat important in this connection and it is this. If in a particular provincial area the incidence of sickness cash benefit is much more than the average, the contribution may have to be made by the provincial government to the general insurance fund. That may give an impetus or encourage or impose a sort of obligation on the provincial government to give adequate medical relief.

There is one great omission in this. I think the health of the citizen is primarily the obligation of the State, whether it is the Centre or the Provinces. As far as this particular Bill is concerned it does not take into consideration the health of the dependants of the workers. Medical relief, both indoor and out-door will be given to the worker who is insured but as long as the worker has not got a living wage (and in a living wage is included the expenditure which a worker has to incur for the medical treatment of the members of his family) I should think, when the provincial governments have been called upon to institute dispensaries, hospital and such other medical institutions for medical aid to the working classes, it would not be too much—in fact I should think it would be economical—to provide for the medical relief of the women and children of the workmen who have been insured under this law. There is reason for this also. Generally all industries are located in big cities and it is one of the obligatory duties of the municipality to start medical aid for the citizens living in its jurisdiction. Under this law nothing is laid down as an obligation on the municipality. In my opinion, if the present fund will not be sufficient to give relief to the members of the family of the workmen, a contribution can certainly be asked for from the local bodies and they may be associated with this insurance fund and its management also. To that extent I should think the burden on the municipalities will be relieved. In cities like Bombay, Ahmedabad, Cawnpore, Calcutta, etc., more than 30 per cent. of the population belong to the working classes. In some cities it is more than 50 per cent. and it is the bounden duty of such local authorities to look after the health of the citizens living under their jurisdiction. We know that if there is any class of people in the urban areas who have been neglected in the matter of medical relief, it is this particular class. Under this law no provision has been made with a view to make medical relief available to the members and dependants of the insured workers. I think the Government should have gone a step further and provided for this. On the other hand, it will also give a sort of experience to Government as to how medical relief can be managed and can be made available to every citizen in the country, because I do think that in the very near future the Government would have to consider the possibility of extending medical relief to all citizens. The experience which may be gained, particularly in the administration of this act, will go a long way to give helpful suggestions in the matter of general medical relief.

Then some sort of liability or obligation has been placed on the occupier or the owner of a chawl, if it is insanitary, because the more insanitary the chawl, is, there will have to be more medical relief and more medical cash allowance. In this context I would suggest that if the municipality is also brought into the scheme, the purpose will be served better, because as is well known in big cities the employers do not provide houses for more than 10 per cent. of the workers working in their own respective factories. 90 per cent. of the chawls are more or less managed by private landlords and it is there that the local authorities should make the chawls sanitary. A sort of indirect deterrent liability should be placed on the municipal corporations of big cities to make additional contribution if the municipality fails to do its duty to look to the sanitation of the chawls owned by private landlords. Otherwise not only public health suffers but the corporation would have to pay larger cash benefits and they will have to provide a bigger amount for medical relief. Therefore I would recommend to the Select Committee to explore this suggestion which I have placed before the House.

A criticism has been made and rightly too that once this corporation is instituted, the persons concerned are the main beneficiaries under the Act, that is the working classes and the Government. The labouring classes have been given representation of three in the medical relief council, which in my opinion is very important. As I said in the beginning I attach more importance to the medical relief than the cash benefit. A worker does not want his cash relief if his health is insured. Therefore, even in the statutory constitution of the Insurance Corporation I should think that the workers should be given more representation; instead of three they must have five seats. Even keeping the constitution as it is, it is provided that the eleven Provinces will provide eleven representatives. Now there will be only nine Provinces. I would therefore suggest that the two remaining seats can very well go to labour, as they ought to.

As far as the question of cash relief to a worker, as an indoor patient is concerned, it has been provided that if a worker is so ill as to be admitted in the hospital as an indoor-patient, the relief will be half. It ignores the fact that whatever compensation for sickness is paid to the worker is not paid to him alone. That amount is also for the maintenance of his dependants and his family. It appears that the Bill assumes that all the members of the family of a working class person will be earning. When the worker is so ill as to go as an indoor-patient into the hospitals, how is his family going to be maintained? I should feel that he gets the unfair treatment because he is very seriously ill. If he is not given the treatment as an indoor-patient it is likely that his illness will be aggravated and it may prove fatal. But what is going to happen to his family? There is no justification whatsoever, when a worker goes as an indoor-patient, to reduce his allowance to half. With these words, Sir, I commend the motion to the House.

Shri Ajit Prasad Jain (U. P.: General): Sir, it is a matter of no small pleasure for me to welcome this Bill. It is an important piece of social legislation. In fact it marks a milestone in our onward march to make up the lag in labour laws. For the first time in the history of labour legislation the State has taken upon itself the responsibility for safe guarding health of the labouring classes.

This Bill is applicable only to factories, and that too only to perennial factories. We are on the eve of an industrial revolution. Unfortunately on account of the difficulties in the import of machinery and capital goods our industrial progress has not assumed the pace that it should have otherwise done. Therefore this measure has come none too soon so far as the factories are concerned. But a complaint has been made by a number of speakers who have preceded me as to why seasonal factories have been excluded from the operation of the Bill. I join hands with those Honourable Members in taking up that grievance. So far as these seasonal factories are concerned, there is one aspect which perhaps has not been emphasized before the House so far. Even in seasonal factories there are a certain number of workmen who work permanently. In the sugar factories practically 20 to 25 per cent. of the workmen are on the permanent list and if this Bill remains as it is, namely that the seasonal factories are excluded from its operation, it will mean that not only workers who are employed during the working season in our seasonal factories but even the workmen who are permanently employed in the seasonal factories will be excluded from the benefits of the Bill. Whatever may be the reasons for excluding the seasonal factories, at least these workers stand absolutely on a par with workers who work in permanent factories.

An examination of the preamble of the Bill will show that it provides for insurance against sickness, maternity and accident. In case of seasonal factories it may be reasonable to make a differentiation in respect of maternity cases, because the seasonal factories work only for a short time. The sugar factories work only for 100 to 120 days, and one could say that if during this short period a woman gets leave for 3 months for maternity, it may not be proper to employ her altogether. But so far as the other two things are concerned, namely sickness and accident, it would be improper to make a differentiation between the workers who are employed only during the season and workers who are permanently employed. Even under the Workmen's Compensation Act, if a worker labouring in a seasonal factory suffers an injury during his employment is entitled to compensation. I would submit that that the provisions of this Bill by which the worker gets higher compensation than what he gets under the workmen's Compensation Act for accident, should be made applicable to seasonal workers also. Similar to this is the case of workers who suffer from sickness.

Apart from all these, a very large number of workmen are employed in transport, in agriculture and as domestic servants. I can well understand that there will be some difficulty in applying the provisions of this Bill immediately to unorganised labour in agriculture and to domestic servants, but there may not be the same difficulty in the case of transport workers. At any rate, I would wish that provision should be made in this Bill that all these classes of persons, namely transport workers, domestic servants and agricultural workers may be included within its compass but the provisions of the Bill may not be made applicable to them immediately but extended to those classes of workmen as conditions permit.

I would like to make some comments on a few aspects of the Bill for the consideration of the Select Committee. An observation was made by the Honourable Member, Shri Harihar Nath Shastri, which has had the support of several other speakers, that the ten annas limit of exemption from payment of contribution in the case of workers is very low. This ten annas in these days are really equal to about $2\frac{1}{2}$ or 3 annas and I join hands with those speakers that this limit should be raised to at least Re. 1. But I find a much worse case than that. It is that the benefit to women in case of maternity is limited to a flat rate of twelve annas. Section 40 (1) says that "maternity benefit shall be payable to a woman, who is or has been an insured person at the rate of twelve annas a day for a period of twelve weeks". I fail to understand why a flat rate should have been prescribed in the case of women. This Bill covers cases in which the maximum pay of a workman might be Rs. 400 a month. And to pay a paltry sum of twelve annas a day to a woman in confinement who gets Rs. 300 or 400 per month is I think no relief.

What I would wish is that this 12 annas may be kept as the minimum, and in other appropriate cases a higher rate of maternity allowance may be paid.

There is another provision in section 39, sub-section (4), clause (a), which says that no cash benefit shall be paid until six months have elapsed after his,

that is the worker's, entry into the insurance scheme. I would submit, Sir, that a similar condition is not laid down in the case of an accident, and if any compensation is permissible in the case of accidents during the first six months there is no reason why a distinction should be made in the case of sickness, and more so because sickness has been definitely defined in this Act. It excludes any sickness arising out of drunkenness or voluntary participation in any brawl, riot or affray, or injury or condition voluntarily brought about by a worker, or any condition attributable to his wilful misconduct. Now after the exclusion of these cases, sickness is a misfortune and an accidental misfortune not brought about by the worker himself. Why should you treat such sickness differently from an accident and I would commend it to the consideration of the Select Committee that they may delete this condition.

There is another important section in this Bill, namely 45, which deals with medical benefit. As a previous speaker has observed, medical benefit is even more important than cash benefit. Clause (5) lays down that treatment as an in-patient in a hospital or other institution shall be available to an insured person in need of such treatment only so long as he is entitled to sickness cash benefit, disablement benefit or maternity benefit. It would mean that after 8 weeks during which a worker is entitled to cash benefit under section 39, he will be turned out from the hospital. That I consider, Sir, would not be a proper thing. Only those persons, who are suffering from any very serious ailment, will be admitted in a hospital, and unless they are fully recovered, it would be cruel that they should be deprived of treatment as an in-patient merely because eight weeks have expired. I also, Sir, do not agree with the provision that the amount of the cash benefit should be reduced to half in the case of persons getting in-patient treatment. A worker has to support his dependants, and if he falls ill, surely his dependants cannot go half-stomach, I would very respectfully suggest to the Honourable Minister to put it before the Select Committee to consider whether this provision will not work as a very great hardship upon the workmen.

There is one more provision, Sir, to which I would like to draw the attention of the Honourable Minister, and that is sub-clauses (i) and (ii) of clause (3) of section 40, which deals with maternity benefit. It says that a woman must have made 26 weekly contributions before she is entitled to maternity benefit. Of course I do not agree with what was said yesterday by the honourable member Shrimati Durgabai, who objected that if men have to pay only 17 contributions in case of sickness or accident why a woman should pay 26 to earn maternity benefit. The reason is a woman gets benefit for 12 weeks; a man gets benefit for 8 weeks. It is a very simple principle that the larger the amount of insurance the more and larger contributions you have to pay. But there is another condition in sub-clause (ii) that five out of the said twenty-six contributions must have been paid before thirty-five weeks preceding the week in which the confinement takes place. I have not been able to understand the logic of this double check. It may be that there is some reason for prescribing that, but I will await the reply of the Honourable Minister to understand this provision.

Now, Sir, this Bill is a great measure in so far as it provides curative treatment against diseases. But more important than the curative relief of it is the positive health of the nation. India has a low longevity. The incidence of sickness is very high. The general health of its people is very poor. I would request the Government to bring in another bill at an early date by which the positive health of the nation may be built. It is good to provide for medical relief when a workman falls ill, but it is even more important to provide healthy conditions of living, nutritive food and good working conditions for workmen so that the necessity for curative relief may be lessened and lessened and be ultimately obviated. I hope that the Honourable Minister will pay increasing attention to measures for ameliorating the conditions of the working classes and for building the positive health workmen.

[Shri Algu Rai Shastri]

In that resolution of ours which is popularly known as the Bombay Resolution of 1942, we agreed that we want freedom for India, freedom of the kind we find in other countries. This freedom would mean the power of Government vesting in the hands of the people, in the hands of those who are responsible for the formation of the Government. The clear definition of "The people responsible for the formation of the Government," as given then, was "workers in the factories" and "workers in the field." But what actually happens is that whenever we talk of reforms or of providing amenities to the labourers, we let our attention rest only on mills and factories. No doubt, as the greatest friend and benefactor of the labourers, Marx, says in his book entitled "Capital," the difficulties which a factory worker comes across and the troubles which he has to bear are worse than those which confront a worker in the field. The workers in the fields have fresh air to inhale, and consequently they are healthier than the workers in the factories. The fields belong to them and they work according to their will. But the labourers of the mills toil only to add to the wealth of the capitalists. You have seen men and women working in knee deep water with little clothing on their persons. From this point of view the field workers are much better off. And those labourers who work under the feudal lords, the owners of these farms, and those who work under such petty Zamindars and husbandmen, have comparatively greater amount of freedom than those who work in the factories. But it is the former who can be called labourers in the real sense of the word. In the age we are passing through, the Trade Union Movement will assume different forms; and these forms will make us feel it our bounden duty to advert to those who work in the mills and factories. We intend providing many facilities to the Industrial labourers. I do not want to go into the details of these. Mr. Sidhwa, another friend of mine pointed out some of the short comings of this Bill. The experts of the factory labour know what points deserve special attention. I have some knowledge of the difficulties of the peasantry today, I would like to draw the attention of the Honourable Minister for Labour to this poor class so that amenities and protection be provided to them.

The complete history of the labour after the Industrial Revolution has been recorded by Marx in his book entitled "Capital". He writes that for a hundred years after the French Revolution the French workman had to labour for about eighteen hours a day. By and by the labour was rid of this strain of work. This is the history of a very great struggle, it is a monumental record of people's collective work.

If we survey the growth of this struggle, then it can be said that I am very impatient. Let me first of all discuss that point about the factory labour which even the most progressive countries of the world have failed to attain. We do not desire to imitate others in this way. Ours is an agricultural country. They are mostly the workers in the field who are responsible for the formation of this Government. Who is there whose heart will not overflow with the milk of human kindness when he sees peasants, men and women, planting the seedlings in rice fields? Who is there whose heart will not be torn with compassion when he sees the women tanners working in thigh deep water? With what great difficulties they have to pull on. Diseases like Malaria etc. pounce upon them.

Mr. Speaker: While the Honourable Member would be in order, as he has done, to invite attention to the necessity for providing benefits to workmen and speak on the motion before the House, it is not permissible for him to go into further details. He should make a point of only inviting attention and that he has already done. But if he wants to go into any further discussion on the miseries or disabilities of agricultural labourers, I am afraid, though the subject is important, it will be out of order.

Shri Algu Rai Shastri: With a word or two, I would like to finish my speech. My object is only to draw the attention of the Select Committee to this aspect of the problem so that it may be able to give some thoughts to it. It would thus be discharging the obligations which it owes to this big class of the poor.

Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena (U.P.: General): Sir, I have very great pleasure in thanking the Honourable the Labour Minister for having brought forward this great measure. It is a measure for which I congratulate him and it is worthy of the new times into which we have emerged. I know these provisions have been in existence in the free countries for long but in our country they were totally absent so far, and so the measure is really a great one and one worthy of the first Labour Minister of free India.

I wish, while congratulating him, to point out the limitations of this measure which have taken away very greatly from its utility. While discussing during the last three or four days other labour legislation, I heard some honourable friends here say, "You people think only of labourers, who are very few in number, and do not think of the population. You provide the labourers with so many amenities and benefits and cry for more." I want to tell them that I am not one of those who do not wish all these benefits to be provided to all people. In fact, I think in our Constituent Assembly we have provided for every person who is fit for work full employment plus other benefits. We have also provided that he shall get sickness insurance, maternity and other benefits, and when we are able to do it, I think there will be nobody left whether in agriculture, or in industry or in other walks of life, who shall be denied these benefits. But at present we have only come into our own and I think anybody will agree that we cannot immediately adopt all these measures which you would wish to be adopted. I therefore think that even though I would insist for the immediate extension of this Bill to all the agricultural labourers, although I feel that theirs is a very big class and that they are probably worse off than anybody else, still I do not think it will be fair on my part to demand from the Minister an immediate application of this Bill although I am sure he is very keen and that he is alive to their disabilities and will do all he can to ameliorate their conditions.

But when I say that even organised labour and labour organised in trade unions or otherwise, has not been given the benefits of this Bill, then I feel I have the right to ask the Labour Minister to go a bit forward. The Bill in the Preamble says,

"to provide for certain benefits to workmen employed in or in connection with work of factories".

I wish to point out exactly the position about labour in this country. In our country (though the figures are for the whole of India and Pakistan), the total number of labourers in 1943 was:

Factory—Industries	... 24,36,312
Plantation Group	... 11,69,618
Communication Group	... 9,91,046
Mines Group	... 3,49,391
Total	... 49,46,367

These 50 lakhs of people is really industrial labour. Some work in factories, some in plantations, some in communications and some in mines. We have to give priority to them because, as everybody knows, it is industry which provides the key to the life of a nation. Out of the population of the country, these 50 lakhs are the key-men. We have had experience in the revolution in our own country as to what serious consequences may flow if a key industry is controlled. General strikes have brought even a democratic country like Britain to a standstill and they have played a great part in our own revolution.

[Shri Ajit Prasad Jain]

I will not take any more time of the House, and with these few remarks I resume my seat.

श्री अलगूराय शास्त्री : अध्यक्ष महोदय, मजदूरों को तरह तरह की सुविधा देने के लिए जो यह बिल आज सेलेक्ट कमेटी में भेजा जा रहा है, उसके लिए मैं श्रम सचिव को बधाई देने के लिए खड़ा हुआ हूँ और इसके साथ ही उनसे एक छोटी सी प्रार्थना करनी है। भारत में भी यह है कि जब हम मजदूरों को सुविधा देने का विचार करते हैं और कोई विधान उसके लिए बनाते हैं, तब हमारा ध्यान केवल उन मजदूरों की ओर जाता है जो फैक्टरीज (Factories) में काम करते हैं, कारखानों में काम करते हैं। मजदूरों की समस्या एक ऐसी समस्या है जिसमें मजदूरों का केवल एक ही वर्ग नहीं आता। जो कारखानों में काम करते हैं सिर्फ वह ही श्रमिक हैं, ऐसा हम नहीं मानते।

हमने अपने उस प्रस्ताव में जो बम्बई का सन् ४२ का मशहूर प्रस्ताव है, यह स्वीकार किया था कि हम भारत में स्वतंत्रता चाहते हैं, वैसी ही जैसी दूसरे स्वतंत्र देशों में है और उस स्वतंत्रता का अर्थ होगा शासन सत्ता का उत्पादक जनता के हाथ में हस्तांतरित होना। उत्पादक जनता का साफ साफ अर्थ अंग्रेजी में Workers in the factories and workers in the field किया था। लेकिन होता यह है कि जब कभी हम सुधारों की बात करते हैं, जब भी मजदूरों को कोई सुविधा देने की बात करते हैं, तब हमारा ध्यान कारखानों की तरफ जाता है। इसमें संदेह नहीं कि मजदूरों के सबसे बड़े मित्र और सब से बड़े कल्याणकारी मार्क्स ने 'Capital' नामक ग्रंथ में कहा है कि जो मजदूर कारखानों में काम करते हैं, उन्हें जैसी असुविधाओं से दुःखित होना पड़ता है और कष्ट उठाना पड़ता है, खेतों में काम करने वाले मजदूरों को वैसे कष्टों का सामना नहीं करना पड़ता। खेत में काम करने वाले मजदूरों को अच्छी खुली हवा मिलती है और वह उनसे अपेक्षाकृत अधिक स्वस्थ रहते हैं। उनके अपने खेत होते हैं। और वह आजादी से काम करते हैं। लेकिन कारखानों में काम करने वाले मजदूर अपने श्रम से पूँजीपतियों की जेब भरते हैं। आपने नंगे, घुटने तक पानी में डूबे हुए औरतों और मर्दों को काम करते हुए देखा है। इस हिसाब से देखा जाय तो खेतों में काम करने वाले मजदूर बहुत कुछ सुविधाएं प्राप्त करते हैं और Feudal Lords के अधीन जोकि खेत के मालिक हैं, ऐसे ही छोटे छोटे खेतीहरों तथा जमींदारों के अधीन काम करने वाले मजदूर कारखानों में काम करने वाले मजदूरों की अपेक्षा अधिक स्वतंत्र होते हैं। लेकिन सच्चे मजदूर वही हैं और आज हम जिस युग में चल रहे हैं उसमें ट्रेड यूनियन मूवमेंट की चाहे कोई शकल रहती हो और उसके हिसाब से हम खाली कारखानों में काम करने वाले मजदूरों की तरफ ध्यान देने में अपने को कृतकृत्य समझ लें, लेकिन मैं नम्र निवेदन करना चाहता हूँ कि जो सुविधाएं कारखानों के मजदूरों को आप दे रहे हैं—उनके details में नहीं जाना चाहता हूँ। सिध्वा साहब ने और एक मित्र ने बिल में कुछ खामियां बतलाईं। उन खामियों को

दूर करने की तरफ सेलेक्ट कमेटी ध्यान देगी। वे लोग जो Factory Labour के माहिर हैं जानते होंगे कि किन किन चीजों पर विशेष ध्यान देना चाहिये। मैं खेतिहर मजदूरों के सम्बन्ध में कुछ अपनी जानकारी रखता हूँ आज मैं माननीय श्रम मंत्री का ध्यान इस तरफ दिलाना चाहता हूँ कि वह उस गरीब तबके की तरफ ध्यान करें और उनको भी वही सुविधाएं प्रदान करें और उनकी रक्षा करें। लेबर का पूरा इतिहास Industrial Revolution के बाद इस तरह का है और उसका पूरा इतिहास 'Capital' नामक ग्रंथ में मार्क्स ने लिखा है कि फ्रेंच रिवोल्यूशन के बाद एक सौ वर्ष तक फ्रांस के मजदूर को लगभग अठारह घंटे काम करना पड़ता था। धीरे धीरे करके मजदूरों को उनके बोझ से नजात मिली है और वह एक बड़े भारी Struggle का इतिहास है और वर्ग संघर्ष का महान् इतिहास है। और अगर हम इस तरफ देखें तो आज हमको कहा जा सकता है कि मैं एक बड़ा भारी अधीरवान पुरुष हूँ, मैं बड़ा impatient हूँ। Factory Labour के बारे में दुनिया के बड़े बड़े समुन्नत देशों ने जो बातें नहीं कीं, आज मैं पहले उस चीज को लेना चाहता हूँ। दुनिया की हम इस तरीके से नकल नहीं करना चाहते हैं। हम कृषि प्रधान देश हैं। यहां ज्यादातर उत्पादक जनता खेतों में काम करती है। उन लोगों ने जिन्होंने धान के खेत में रोपनी करते कृषि मजदूरों और मजदूरियों को देखा है, जिसने जांघ भर पानी में डूबे चमार औरतों को काम करते देखा है, उनमें कौन ऐसा है जिसका हृदय द्रवित न हुआ होगा। किस तरह कष्ट से उनको गुजारा करना पड़ता है। और मलेरिया जैसी दूसरी बीमारियां उनको होजाती हैं।

Mr. Speaker: While the Honourable Member would be in order, to invite attention, as he has done, to the necessity for providing benefits to agricultural workmen and speak on the motion before the House, it is not permissible for him to go into further details. He may mention the point only for inviting attention and that he has already done. But if he wants to go into any further discussion on the miseries or disabilities of agricultural labourers, I am afraid, though the subject is important, it will be out of order.

श्री अलगूराय शास्त्री : केवल दो शब्द कहकर अपनी स्पीच पूरी करना चाहता हूँ। मेरा विचार सिर्फ ध्यान दिलाने की तरफ है कि इसकी तरफ सेलेक्ट कमेटी गौर कर सके और इस तरह एक बड़े भारी गरीब तबके के प्रति वह अपने कर्तव्य का पालन करेगी।

Shree Algu Rai Shastri (U.P. General) Mr. Speaker, I rise to congratulate the sympathisers of the labourers for the Bill which is being referred to the Select Committee for providing amenities to the Working Class. I have also one small request to make to the members of this Committee. In India also we find that whenever we think of providing amenities to the labourers, and make a law for it, our attention is drawn only towards those who work in the factories and in the mills. The labour problem is such as does not include only one class. I am not prepared to accept that only they are labourers who work in the mills and factories.

So if we want to build a great nation as we all wish to do and if we want to achieve our ideals, we must give priority to these key labourers and my answer to those friends of mine who complained that we always think of these industrial people is that it is not because we are partial to them but because we feel that these are the key-men and without making them more healthy and happy, we cannot make the whole nation more efficient and more happy. In my opinion, we must give these men the first consideration, because that will result in enabling all workers to get the benefits. I therefore appeal that this Bill which extends to factory workers alone should extend to industrial workers also.

In this connection, I wish also to mention the existence of what is called "seasonal labour" employed in Seasonal factories. Out of these five lakhs, the seasonal labour amounts to the following figures. It is divided into two categories, the first one consisting of cotton ginning and pressing, jute pressing, indigo, shellac, tea, coffee and rubber factories etc., and the second group consisting of rice mills, oil mills, sugar mills, tobacco factories, flour mills and others. The number in the first group is 248,398 and in the second group 93,172. As regards the latter, I find the figure is an under-estimate because I know from my experience that in the sugar industry alone the total number of labourers is 1 lakh 50 thousand. In other words, I would put the latter category at about 2½ lakhs. In view of the large number of this seasonal labour and in view of the fact that they are performing a very essential function for the country, I see no reason why we should exclude these seasonal factories from the benefits sought to be given by this Bill. Cases of the type mentioned by my friend Mr. Jain may happen, but when our aim is to provide maternity benefits for the whole of the nation, I do not see any reason why the women labourers in seasonal factories should be excluded from the maternity benefits.

Again, I would like to refer in particular to sugar factories in U.P. which employ nearly 1½ lakhs of people. There are no women workers there. Out of these 1½ lakhs, at least 50,000 are permanent labourers, i.e. those who are retained even in the off-season. If this Bill is passed as it is, then seasonal factories would include even these 50,000 workers. I therefore think that the Select Committee must take care to extend this Bill to these people also, so that the nation as a whole may gain by the advantages which these people will derive and the consequent better and happier state in which they will work.

Besides, we have got the plantation group, the communication group and the mines group. My friend who preceded me has pleaded for the extension of this Bill to agricultural labour. If this Bill is extended to the plantation group, that will be a beginning with agricultural labour. I know the Honourable Minister feels for them very much and I wish to repeat my hope that he will try to extend the operations of this Bill to include plantation workers. If the Bill is extended to them, they have experience of the agricultural aspect in these plantations and the difficulties of agricultural labour will also be brought out.

Then, coming to the communication group, there are about 9 to 10 lakhs of people. They are organised concerns, e.g. the railways, the tramways and the buses. I think the bottleneck at present in our development is the delay and trouble prevalent in the communication services. One of the main reasons for this is that labour is not fully satisfied and therefore not fully efficient as it ought to be. I think it is most important in the interests of the nation as a whole that this group should get all the benefit that we can give. They are the key-men and we should not grudge them. Without them we cannot function as a great nation.

So also the mines. In their case, I am glad to inform the House, that from 1941 most of the people in the mines have begun receiving maternity benefits already. I submit, therefore, that it will not be very costly to extend to them these two other benefits, compensation and accident sought to be given by this Bill. It is not a very big thing, especially as we remember what the Honourable the Railway Minister said the other day when introducing the Budget that how important is coal to the life of the nation. Without coal, the velocity of the wagons becomes so small that a very large proportion of our wealth becomes choked. I therefore think that if this Bill could be extended to the mines also, it will be a very good thing. The preamble of the Bill limits its utility to only factory workers. I would therefore request the Honourable Minister for Labour to kindly extend its operations to these 50 lakhs workers.

Then there are other difficulties which have been pointed out by my friends which I shall not repeat again. I merely wish to extend my support to the suggestions made by my friend Mr. Shastri and my sister Mrs. Durgabhai and other friends. I do hope that the Select Committee will take all these things into consideration and amend the Bill accordingly.

I only want to say at the end that in our country labour legislation is in a very primitive stage. In fact there are only 9 Labour major Acts which are at present in existence and this will be the tenth Great Act which will be on the statute book. I know our Labour Minister is very keenly conscious of the deficiency of these necessary essential legislations which alone can put labour on a proper footing. May I draw his attention to the Australian Labour laws in which labour is given all rights. I would request the honourable Minister to see that our labour legislation also comes on a par with that of the most advanced countries and the next thing I would expect him would be to provide Unemployment Insurance. This is probably the most difficult and also the most important and the most necessary measure and I hope that he will see that very soon our country becomes in the van-guard of all those nations who are at present great nations. In fact as a matter of right, we must be the greatest nation in the world. By population we are the greatest nation. China probably is not at present in a position to come to the most advanced position. Then our resources, our civilization and our leadership are such that we may easily attain the highest position and that is only possible when we are able to carry on a planned programme and catch up with America and Russia and come to the forefront and for that also I think that labour which consists of keymen will be to do their bit to realize their dream. My honourable friend the Minister of Labour has therefore got great responsibility in his hands and on him and on his wisdom will depend the pace at which we can progress. Once labour is contented, I can assure him there will be no strikes and no more industrial disputes and we shall have a very smooth and calm running of the industry in our country and our country will really become great and we shall have all we want. The Philadelphia declaration says that "poverty anywhere constitutes a danger to prosperity everywhere". That famous phrase in that great declaration is and should be our ideal. Recently there was the Asian Labour Conference held here and there was an item—Social Security—and in that our Great Prime Minister said that these were the two ideals which he wanted to achieve and the ideals were that "if there is poverty anywhere it constitutes a danger to prosperity everywhere" and secondly "all human beings irrespective of race, creed or sex have the right to pursue both their material well-being and their spiritual development under conditions of freedom, dignity, economic security and equal opportunity." I think these two great principles laid down in the Philadelphia Charter, which the Honourable the Prime Minister declared to be the guiding principles of this nation shall very soon be realised and our labour shall then thank our great Labour Minister for his achievement.

Shri V. I. Munishwami Pillai (Madras: General): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I heartily welcome the introduction of the Bill of this nature which goes to give some benefit to the labourers in the factories. I do not wish to take the various clauses that are in this Bill, but I would like to confine myself to a few observations that will affect the labourers in the factories and in the plantations. In the first place, Sir, I must welcome the provision under Section 63 of this Bill. Hitherto, Sir, the labourers in the plantations, either in the field or in the factory were dismissed without any rhyme or reason. Now, Sir, this provision will go a long way that some justice is done to the labourers in the factories. Sir, in plantations during the time when recruitment takes place, labourers from the plains are taken to the ghats where the management selects a few people for the work in factories and drafts other people to the field. When the Objects and Reasons of this Bill is known in the plantations, we must know what will be the reaction. Out of 100 people who are recruited for tea plantations or tea estates, it will be only 15 or 20 people who will be taken to the factories and the rest are left in the field. We can very well know what will be the invidious distinction that is made between labour and labour and the few labourers that are drafted to the factories will get all the benefits that are provided in this Bill, but 90 per cent. of the labourers who are drafted to the fields will go without any of these benefits. So naturally there will be great disappointment in the minds of those labourers who are drafted to these tea fields.

Secondly, Sir, as it is provided in this Bill, the seasonal factories are left out. Take for instance the coffee estates which have factories of their own and they do not come exactly as factories, but they are called 'pulp houses' and these labourers who have to do this technical work are drafted to these factories in coffee estates since they do not come under the category of the factories, they also will be left alone. So also if you take cinchona plantations where they do not have several factories for doing the bark work and other things they too will not be happy with regard to the benefits provided in this Bill. I know, as a matter of fact the Honourable Minister has got in his mind to do something for the agricultural labourers. I would also like him to take into account the plantation labourers other than the factory labourers so that it may also have some benefit, if not today at least in the future date.

Sir, in the Objects and Reasons under clause 5, sickness cash benefits—it is said that if a man or woman works for 12 continuous months they will be entitled for 8 weeks' leave but what happens now for the labourers in plantations is the able-bodied men are all retained in the plains but only the weaklings and the poor people generally go to these plantations. As soon as they go from the plains to the plantations, where generally Malaria is prevalent, these people immediately become sick and are laid up. So I wish the Honourable Minister during the discussion of this Bill in the Select Committee will make some provision for compulsory medical benefit for those people who are taken in the estates immediately after their arrival. Sir, in the composition of the Committees under Section 6, I find enough representation is not provided for the representation of workmen. 'It is said only one'. I would urge on the Honourable Minister to reconsider this and give better representation for the workmen in the factories. Another thing, Sir, is that no provision has been made for the children in the estates. As we know and as the Honourable Minister himself saw in many of the estates on the Annamalais during his recent tour in South India, we found several of the children rolling in the cooli lines in the mud and in several bad places. I would request that all the children of the labourers either in the factory or in the estates should be looked after at the Child Welfare Centres which should be opened. I am sure Sir, the Select Committee will take into consideration these suggestions and do something for the benefit of the Labourers in the factories.

Shri Rohini Kumar Chaudhuri: Sir, I hope you will permit me a little digression. I have succeeded in getting this chance to speak at the fifth attempt, thus proving the shastric injunction, Panchama Shubha. In our part of the country we do not make the fourth attempt, we call it Teen Bar NEEBAR. I was following my own provincial doctrine when an honourable friend intervened and said that the fifth attempt was bound to be successful.

Mr. Speaker: The Honourable Member has succeeded much earlier.

Shri Rohini Kumar Chaudhuri: Sir, I will not congratulate the Honourable Minister on this Bill at this stage. I believe in praising the fair day at night, and I will congratulate him only after I have seen what kind of Bill emerges out of the Select Committee after he has been able to meet successfully the fiery arguments of my honourable friends like Mr. Kamath or Mrs. Renuka Ray. If the Bill survives their criticism it is only then that I will congratulate the Honourable Minister.

Sir, even at the risk of repetition I will draw the pointed attention of the honourable Minister to the definition of the word "sickness" in this Bill. I know it is very natural for a man to fall sick if he is assured of half the wages. I remember that in boyhood—other honourable Members who were wicked in their younger days in school will also remember it—it was very easy to pretend sickness like colic pain. You have simply to struggle with your arms and feet or lie inert and there is no medical man on earth who can say that you are not suffering from colic. My friend Dr. Khare if he were here would support me but my honourable friend Dr. Sitaramayya will admit the truth of what I am saying. Even then, Sir, I consider that the definition given here is rather too strict. It is provided here that you are entitled to the benefit of this clause only in case of a breakdown in health. Now breakdown in health is a very serious matter, and if the workers are to get the benefit of wages only if there is a breakdown in health I am sure it will be very difficult for them to get these Concessions at all. Would you say that a man suffering from malarial fever or from typhoid has got breakdown in health. He certainly does not necessarily suffer a breakdown in health although in such cases, everybody will admit, the man or woman should be entitled to sickness benefit. I do not also understand the third sub-clause which refers to conditions attributable to "wilful misconduct". Causing voluntary injury has been already met in sub-clause (ii) and drunkenness in sub-clause (i); but what kind of wilful misconduct can it be which gives rise to sickness? I know that if you want to show a little fever you have only to put a few onions under your armpit and then you get fever. Is that the wilful misconduct? Our honourable Minister is referring to in this Bill.

Then I turn to clause 40 of the Bill and I think the lady Members of the House will appreciate my doing so. In sub-clause (3) it is provided that a woman shall not receive maternity benefit unless—

"Not less than twenty-six weekly contributions.....immediately preceding the week in which she is confined or in which she gives notice of pregnancy before confinement,..."

Is there any woman who will give notice of her pregnancy My Honourable lady friends here may enlighten us on this. I think the clause should run as follows:

"the week in which she is confined or in which she or her relations give notice of her pregnancy..."

I remember the honourable Dr. Pattabhi Sitaramayya saying once that in law "he" embraces "she". But that would not be applicable to this clause because both "he" and "she" are there. In any case I think the Honourable [Shri Rohini Kumar Chaudhuri].

Minister will agree that some amendment is called for in this clause. One should be careful about this clause because it is the only clause in which a discrimination is sought to be made in law between man and woman.

Then it is stated that leave for women during maternity should be given for six weeks before confinement. In that case what assurance is there that her husband or her relative will not employ her for domestic work during this period? She may be made to draw water or do various kinds of work; the husband will get the benefit of her labour though the wages have been paid by the employer. In our part of the country woman in an advanced stage of pregnancy are asked to work on a dhenki which is supposed to be beneficial for her,—a dhenki being a substitute for an aeroplane in which the great Rishi Narada came down from heaven to earth. If a woman is given six weeks before confinement to spend at home she may be employed there more cruelly than in the factory. I personally think one month would be better than six weeks. Then I come to clause 63. Let us turn to sub-clause (c) particularly. The first two sub-clauses (a) and (b) deal with workmen.

“No employer shall dismiss, discharge or reduce any workman or punish him in any other manner—(i. e., here the workman does not include woman).”

- (a) during the period he is under medical treatment or is in receipt of sickness cash benefit or maternity benefit; or
- (b) while he is in receipt of disablement benefit, except in accordance with the regulations made under this Act; or
- (c) in the case of a woman worker during such period of her absence from work as a result of illness medically certified to arise out of pregnancy or confinement and rendering her unfit for work, as may be specified in the regulations.”

In the three clauses you think of the workman and the benefits to be given to him. In the last clause you speak of woman and there you write as if the only illness a woman can suffer from is the illness arising out of her pregnancy and confinement. This ought to be made more clear so that the woman also gets the benefits of the previous two sub-clauses.

Shri Harihar Nath Shastri (U.P.: General): There is a definition of “workman” in the Bill.

Mr. Speaker: His point is not about a woman being described as woman: but the specific mention of “a woman” might lead to the interpretation that a woman be excluded in the other clauses.

Shri Rohini Kumar Chaudhuri: Yes, that is my point. I hope the Select Committee will consider the points raised by me. Although I cannot congratulate the honourable Minister at this stage, I am sure the labour population of India will bless him if he can bring this into law.

Dr. B. Pattabhi Sitaramayya (Madras: General): I shall confine myself to one or two points only and will therefore finish very soon. I had a chance to cast my glance upon two sections. One is a definition and the other is Section 40. In the definitions there is the term ‘confinement’ defined. I looked up as to what it was made to mean. Under ‘Confinement’ it is said that the childbirth must be after 28 weeks’ of pregnancy; that is to say, seven months roughly. Therefore any maternity benefit will accrue to a woman only when she has carried her gestation seven months or 28 weeks. That would really be less than seven months. In this country it is well known that abortions are very common, and as one who has examined tens of thousands of cases of insurance policies, I find that many of the deaths of young women occur from post-partum difficulties, mostly in cases of abortion. Abortion is the name given to the failure of pregnancy within three months, and thereafter it is called miscarriage. But whether it is abortion or miscarriage, the dangers of abortion and miscarriage and of the post-partum affects act much more adversely upon a parturient woman who has aborted or has had a miscarriage than on one who has run her gestation to full term. Therefore the maternity benefits must also be made possible for women who have not run quite upto 28 weeks. The second point is this.

Shri M. S. Aney (Deccan and Madras States Group): What is meant by post-partum?

Dr. B. Pattabhi Sitaramayya: It means after birth.

Mr. Speaker: If the second point is to take some time, we may adjourn till after lunch.

Dr. B. Pattabhi Sitaramayya: I shall finish in two minutes. Section 40. (3) (ii) says:

“A woman shall not be qualified for the maternity benefit unless—

(i)

(ii) at least five out of the said twenty-six contributions have been paid before thirty-five weeks preceding the week in which the confinement takes place.....”

Confinement takes place in a particular week. Thirty-five weeks before that she must have paid five weeks’ contributions. That is to say, the total number of weeks have come to forty. But the total duration of pregnancy is only 39 weeks or 273 days. Therefore the Honourable Member for Labour—(and here the Labour obviously) is economic labour and not midwifery labour,—would do well to consult a doctor with regard to these figures. It is difficult for the woman to know when she is pregnant unless she misses her first period, and many women imagine that they are pregnant although they are not. But many do not know that they are pregnant until two or three months elapse. Therefore there is a mistake in computing these terms as nobody can possibly make five weekly contributions thirty-five weeks prior to the confinement,—i.e., make the first contribution a week before pregnancy commences!

The third point is about the eight weeks illness. There are cases in which enteric and typhoid may be the illness contemplated. I have treated a case of typhoid which went on for 180 days. My next case went on for 150 days. Sixty and seventy days are very common. Such cases must be provided for, also where there are tubercular cases in which the people are likely to suffer from low temperature and progressive decline in weight. These are the reasons why the whole business must be made as elastic as possible.

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till Half-Past Two of the Clock.

The Assembly reassembled after Lunch at Half-Past Two of the Clock, Mr. Speaker (The Honourable Mr. G. V. Mavalankar) in the Chair.

Shrimati Purnima Banerji (U.P.: General): Sir, I wish to say a few words. I join with my other friends in their congratulations to the Honourable Minister for the legislation which he has introduced in this House. I would rather congratulate him for doing a thing which was long overdue, because I think that the benefit that labour get out of this legislation is their elementary rights which they should have got much before the passing of this measure. Knowing as we do the conditions of labour that one of the first acts of this Government should be the introduction of this form of social insurance is a very happy step and right step which we all welcome.

I will not repeat the many points that have been raised by the other speakers, with which I am in agreement but I would only refer to one difficulty with which I am faced and I wish to bring it before the House so that when the Select Committee meets it is able to pay attention to that point. Where it has been said that dependants of disabled workers will get compensation the wording used is "he". Under the ordinary law "he" stands for "she" as well and it follows that the dependants of the woman worker will also get the benefits, should she be disabled. But it has been said in the Act that the dependants are those dependants who have been defined in the Workmen's Compensation Act, which is already in force. It is true that in the definition the wife's husband has been mentioned and also her legitimate children. But I would like to suggest that when a woman goes to a factory to earn her living, she does not do so to earn pocket money or pin money in order to indulge in some luxuries with that earning. She subscribes to the domestic budget and even though she only supplements the income the whole family depends upon such supplementary income. If she is disabled she should be entitled to the pension that the ordinary workers will be entitled to. Therefore even if her husband is already working and is not disabled, if the woman has been disabled and the family has been deprived of that amount of money which she would have ordinarily earned had she been well, she should get it under this Act. I hope that the honourable Minister will keep this in mind.

The other point which I would like briefly to refer to is that the weekly contributions which a woman worker or a married worker has to pay before she could get the benefit of this legislation should be further examined. Sir, I commend this Bill to the House.

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: Sir, one naturally feels elated when volleys of congratulations are offered to him from different sides of this honourable House but to tell the truth I feel rather overburdened by these congratulations and if I have decided to say a few words, it will not be in the nature of a reply to the various criticisms that have been advanced against this Bill. not because I am not in a position to meet these criticisms or not because that my case is indefensible but my weakness is—if that may be regarded as a weakness—my sympathy for the working classes. So I will not attempt a detailed reply of the various criticisms that have been made on this Bill. I know that anybody who has a genuine sympathy for the working classes will feel that this Bill falls short of expectations in various respects. One may very well point out that the Bill is not adequate. But as I said, while referring this Bill to the Select Committee, this is just a beginning and if we view the measure from that point of view, we will find that most of the criticisms are not justified.

The scope of the Bill, I admit, is limited, limited to the factory workers and even in the case of the factory workers it is for those workers who are engaged in perennial factories. Even in the case of perennial factories provision has been made in the Bill authorising the provincial Government to exempt certain factories from the scope of this Bill. One may very well infer that in that case the benefit which will accrue to the working classes will be limited to a fraction of the workers even in the factories. I admit that the position is as such. But while considering social security measures and especially measures of the present nature, we will have to keep in view the various limiting factors which we have to face, not only in the case of the working classes but for the country as a whole. Primarily the Bill intends giving medical facilities to the working classes. In this respect it will not be out of point if I were to emphasise the paucity of qualified medical men and medical facilities available in this country. I may just quote one instance: for the coal mines we have made a provision that where female workers are employed, the employers should maintain creches for the children of the female employees, but that provision has not been given effect to in the coalfields—not because the employers are unwilling to give effect to it, but because qualified nurses are not available and whenever we impress upon the employers the necessity of giving effect to that provision they ask us to supply them with qualified nurses who will take charge of those children. Howsoever I wish and howsoever the present Government wishes that these social security measures, and especially measures relating to medical facilities that are to be made available to the working classes should be implemented we find that the limiting factor is there. It is no use placing a measure on the statute book which will not be given effect to in the near future. If it were only to satisfy the wishes of some of the honourable Members in this House or to satisfy the working classes, it is very easy to widen the case of the Bill not only to seasonal workers but to all categories of workers, whether in plantations, mines, docks or in agriculture. But we will simply have the consolation of putting an Act or the statute book without giving effect to that in the near future. My intention is not, however, that other categories of labour should be deprived of these benefits.

As regards labourers employed in the mines we have got the Coal Mines Labour Welfare Fund created out of a cess which we levy on the production of coal, and with that Fund we are already having a programme of medical facilities for the coal miners. Already some hospitals, regional and central, have been constructed and I hope in the coming few months those hospitals will be functioning fully. More than that, recently I have been able to institute a compulsory contributory provident fund for the miners. That will go a great way in relieving their difficulties in time of emergency.

As regards plantation labour I feel that they have been the most neglected one. As soon as I took charge of this Department I convened a tripartite conference on plantation labour. As a result of that we instituted an enquiry into the condition of the labourers on the plantations in Assam, Bengal and Madras. The report of the enquiry is now before the Government, and we are considering that. For January next I have already invited a tripartite conference on plantation and I am sure I will be able to persuade the planters to agree to the realisation of a welfare cess on the lines of the Coal Mines Cess, and out of that cess to create a Welfare Fund. With that Fund I am sure we will be able to provide better housing accommodation, and better medical facilities. Effort shall also be made to institute a compulsory contributory provident fund for the plantation labourers as in the case of the coal mining labourers. So that covers the case of labourers in plantation and in mines—not only coal mines but other mines, as for instance mica.

Then comes the question of agricultural labour and the labour engaged in transport services. As I said on a previous occasion the question of other categories of labour are already before us. The only point is whether we will be in a position to cope with the situation, whether the Corporation that we envisage in this Bill will be in a position to keep pace with it. When we think of the health of the working classes we should not lose sight of the health of the general population of this country. It is a problem not only of the working classes. It is a problem of the entire population. I need not emphasise and dilate on the point that we have, as a result of foreign rule in this country for so many years, been deprived not only of health but of many things, and it will be a herculean task for any Government to regenerate the nation in all directions. We are short not only of funds. Here the question of the cost does not arise. Some of my friends have pointed out that the question of funds should not come in because the contributions are to be made by the workers and employers. It is not the question of cost which arises. The Government is prepared to meet the cost which will accrue on account of the administration of this Corporation and this Fund. The question of funds does not come in. But questions of qualified medical personnel and the medical accessories necessary for this purpose are the greatest hurdles that stand in the way. If one were to quote facts and figures, which I do not propose to do on this occasion, one will find [Shri Jagjivan Ram] : How short we are of qualified medical personnel. That is the one factor which stands in the way of extending the scope of this Bill to all categories of labour. Other points were also raised in the debate. Pandit Algu Rai Shastri has been very vehement in espousing the cause of agricultural labour. I am glad that the problem of agricultural labour has begun to receive the attention of our honourable Members in this House and also of the public workers in the country. It is a happy sign. These vast multitudes of toiling millions have long been neglected, not only by the Governments but also by the public workers, and it is therefore a happy sign that we have now come to realise that unless we do something substantial for these people who are the mainstay of agricultural products we cannot think of economic progress in all directions in the country. But I may point out to Pandit Algu Rai Shastri that a man from India need not go to Marx in order to compare the condition of agricultural labour with other labour. He said that the condition of agricultural labour was like that of the cattle which plough the fields. I may point out to him with some personal experience that the condition of agricultural labour is worse than that of the cattle which plough the fields. It is not the absence of any appreciation of this on the part of the Government which stands in the way of doing something substantial for them. As their condition is the most miserable, they deserve the first attention. But there are certain difficulties in the way. In this case the primary difficulty is whether the Provincial Governments will be in a position to make available to these vast multitudes of agricultural labourers the medical facilities envisaged in this Bill in the near future, or whether it will be simply a pious hope to include agricultural labourers within the scope of the Bill and not to give them any of the facilities provided in this Bill within the next few years.

The general scheme of improving the public health in the country and making available to the general public the medical facilities required for a man will certainly cover the agricultural labourers; but that will naturally take some time before we are in a position to launch upon that scheme. A modest beginning however may be made and I will certainly consider in the Select Committee with our friends who are there whether we can do something for them in this Bill or not.

The other suggestions regarding the inadequacy of the allowances for women workers in case of maternity, the unreasonableness of the exemption of only such workers as get only 10 annas a day and other points which have been raised will be naturally considered sympathetically in the Select Committee. I do not want to give a reply in the way of a reply to all these points. As I have already pointed out, Sir, I have a weakness and that weakness is my sympathy for the working class. I hope the House will unanimously adopt my motion for referring the Bill to the Select Committee.

Mr. Speaker: I formally put the amendment first to the House, which was moved by Haji Abdus Sattar Haji Ishaq Seth. The question is:—
“That in the motion for the name of Haji Abdus Sattar Haji Ishaq Seth the name of Begam Aizaz Rasul be substituted.”

The motion was adopted.
Mr. Speaker: I now put the amended motion.
The question is:—

“That the Bill to provide for certain benefits to workmen employed in or in connection with work of factories in case of sickness, maternity and accident and to make provision for certain other matters in relation thereto be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Honourable Rajkumari Amrit Kaur, Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra, Shri K. Santhanam, Shri Mohan Lal Saksena, Shri T. T. Krishnamachari, Begam Aizaz Rasul, Shri Bishwanath Das, Shri H. V. Kamath, G. Ranga, Shri Harihar Nath Shastri, Dr. Bakshi Tek Chand, Shri S. V. Krishnamurthy, Rao, Shrimati Renuka Ray and the Mover, with instructions to report on the opening day of the next session of the Assembly, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five.”

The motion was adopted.

DOCK WORKERS (REGULATION OF EMPLOYMENT) BILL

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram (Minister for Labour): Sir, I beg to move:

“That the Bill to provide for regulating the employment of dock workers be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Shri R. R. Diwakar, Pandit Govind Malaviya, Shri Nandkishor Das, Shri V. C. Kesava Rao, Shri Khandubhai K. Desai, Shri Arun Chandra Guha, Shrimati Sucheta Kripalani, Pandit Mukut Bihari Lal Bhargava, Shri Damodar Swarup Seth, Shri Jaipal Singh, Shri O. V. Alagesan, Shri Gokulbhai D. Bhatt, Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena, Mr. Naziruddin Ahmed, and the Mover, with instructions to report on the opening day of the next session of the Assembly, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five.”

This Bill, Sir, is a simple one, but at the same time urgent and important one. The nature of the employment of the labourers in the docks depends upon the arrival of ships and upon the cargo which they bring. As there is uncertainty and irregularity in the arrival of ships and also in the cargo which they bring, the employment of the labourers employed in the docks is not regular. The dock authorities may call on a certain date a number of workers only a fraction of whom may get employment on that date and the remainder of them might have to return unemployed. As the result thereof many of the workers do not get any employment on that day either in the docks or elsewhere, and this has been a cause which leads sometimes to bitterness among the labourers and sometimes gives rise to serious trouble. We have been thinking for some time past whether we can evolve some scheme by which we can stabilize the labour force required in the dockyards. This measure is a simple one which provides that in respect of major ports the Central Government may have the power, and in the case of smaller ports the provincial Governments may be authorised to prepare suitable schemes for the registration of workers and thus to see that as many workers are called for as are required in the docks, and those for whom employment is not available on the date on which they have been called, some wages—say half of the wage or a portion thereof—may be given to them in order that they may be in a position to maintain themselves. The Bill also provides for the formulation and execution of such schemes as may be necessary for social and welfare measures for the working classes. The Bill is a very small and simple one, and I hope the House will accept the motion.

Shri B. Das (Orissa: General): May I enquire why the Commerce Minister is not a Member of the Select Committee, as he is in charge of docks and harbours. He is the employer of most of the labour that would be engaged in dockyards: so it is better he is included in the Select Committee so that we may know his difficulties. There is difficulty in Bombay even now.

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: As a matter of fact this Bill is the result of consultations between the Labour Department and the Transport Department, and at every stage that Department will be kept in touch with developments in the Bill: but I will have no objection if the Commerce Member is also made a Member of the Select Committee.

Prof. N. G. Ranga (Madras: General): The only difficulty in adding one more Minister is that when meetings of the Select Committee are to be arranged, his convenience also has to be provided for.

Mr. Speaker: As the Honourable Minister has said, this has been proceeded with in consultation with him, and he will continually keep in touch. I do not think we need include him at this stage.

I will now put the motion to the House:
Motion moved:

“That the Bill to provide for regulating the employment of dock workers be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Shri R. R. Diwakar, Pandit Govind Malaviya, Shri Nandkishor Das, Shri V. C. Kesava Rao, Shri Khandubhai K. Desai, Shri Arun Chandra Guha, Shrimati Sucheta Kripalani, Pandit Mukut Bihari Lal Bhargava, Shri Damodar Swarup Seth, Shri Jaipal Singh, Shri O. V. Alagesan, Shri Gokulbhai D. Bhatt, Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena, Mr. Naziruddin Ahmed, and the Mover, with instructions to report on the opening day of the next session of the Assembly, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five.”

Shri Harihar Nath Shastri (U. P.: General): Mr. Speaker, Sir, very few remarks are called for in support of the present motion. I have had some knowledge of the problems of dock labour due to my intimate contact with the trade union movement of this country for the last 22 years. The main hardship that the dock labour suffers from is in regard to the system of recruitment which has all along been done through contractors. In the year 1929 when the Royal Commission on Labour was set up, this problem was placed before it and the Commission very vehemently condemned this system and recommended its abolition. But for a number of years nothing could be done. During the War when the importance of this kind of labour gained considerable importance, the then Government had also to move in the matter and they felt it necessary to do something to appease labour. In the year 1943 when the Government set up a Labour Investigation Committee, one of the industries that was entrusted to that Committee for investigation was Docks. The Committee made necessary investigations for a certain number of years and only last year it submitted a report. A perusal of that Report will reveal that the system, which received condemnation at the hands of the Royal Commission on Labour in 1931, although it has improved in some of the Ports including Calcutta, still continues with no appreciable change.

The system as it prevails in Bombay and as it persists even today is like this. To put it in a nut shell, there are a number of contractors employed by the Port Authorities, who are known as toliwallas and these toliwallas are registered by the Port Authorities as approved contractors. Each of these toliwallas has got 10 to 15 gangs and there are about 15 to 20 men in each gang. It is in fact these toliwallas that are responsible to the Port Authorities who have nothing to do directly with labour.

Now, the main defects of the system as it prevails, are that in the first place the Port Authorities have got no control over the conditions of work with the result that serious complaints have from time to time been brought against the contractors and against the unsatisfactory conditions of work to which labour working under these contractors are subjected.

The second difficulty is that these contractors employ a much larger number of men than is actually and ordinarily needed. The result is that, generally speaking, most of the workers have to remain idle for a considerable number of days every month. That means reduced earnings and unemployment.

The third defect is that there is no security of tenure and the labour employed is left to the complete mercy of the contractors who can dispense with their services any time they choose at their sweet discretion.

Then the Port Authorities have got no voice in the wages of labour which is ordinarily determined by these contractors. Of course, the Port Authorities have fixed some minimum but, generally speaking, they have got no voice in the wages permissible to the various categories of workers. Now, in a City like Bombay, I should say the average earnings of a Port worker is Rs. 40, provided he works throughout the month. But in view of the fact that he has to remain idle for a number of days in the month, the wages are much less. Now with regard to the wages, what actually happens is that the Port Authorities pay to the contractors a certain amount based on tonnage—piece-rates—and the contractors in their turn pay to the labour on time-scale.

The next point worthy of consideration is that whereas in determining the rates on tonnage the Port Authorities take into consideration the number of men in each gang as 14, the work actually is taken by ten persons; the rest of the money goes into the pocket of the contractors. So, these contractors derive maximum profits and the workers in their turn suffer.

Sir, I am glad that this Bill has been brought forward. As has been explained by the Honourable Minister, the cardinal provision of this Bill is that one scheme or more schemes than one will be formulated by the Government and according to that scheme labourers will be registered with a view to ensuring regularity of employment to them and also with a view to regulating their conditions of work including holidays, remuneration, absence, and so on and so forth.

One other provision of the Bill that I should like to appreciate is that so far there has been no provision about payment of any compensation for the period of idleness, but in this Bill it has been provided that in course of unemployment workers will get certain amount of compensation.

The Bill, as I said, in the beginning, calls for very little comment. In fact, my own personal view is that it should not have been referred to any Select Committee but should have been passed outright. But as the proposal has been made by the Honourable Minister and it is only a question of a few weeks, I support this motion and congratulate the Honourable Minister for the same.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa (C.P. and Berar: General): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the condition of dock labourers is quite different from the labourers in the ordinary factories. When I say the conditions are different, I mean the privileges and the rights that are conferred under the various Trade Union Acts and the other measures are not enjoyed by the dock workers in many respects. The main principle of this Bill, as the previous speaker made out, is to regularise the unjust practices which are prevalent in the recruitment of labour. That is the main principle and also to improve the condition of dock workers generally.

In some of the port areas, Sir, the system of labour is that the Stevedores and Dubashis who are the agents of the Steamship Companies have the greater part to play for the recruitment of labourers and these Stevedores and Dubashis connive with the Port Trust authorities and between them create an agency for recruitment. They in turn entrust the work to a contractor of labour, who is known as Jamedar. The Jamedar brings in a certain number of labourers and for that he is supposed to be paid something like 6 annas to 8 annas for each labourer per day. When the labourer gets his wages at the end of the day in the evening, or at the end of two or three days' work in some cases, the Jamedar has to be paid at the rate mentioned. I might tell you also that the labourers' wages in the docks are not very low wages as are given to the other factory workers. They sometimes get from Rs. 2 to Rs. 3 per day, but the point there is that the work which they have to do is really very arduous. There is no system fixed for their wages and there is no protection to them. Therefore these Dubashis exploit them because they have a lot to do for the purpose of this labour, being responsible for discharging and loading cargo from the steamer to the wagons in the railways or on the port. Both the Port Trust Authorities and the Steamship agents employ them and they, as we all know, make a huge amount of profit. Notwithstanding what they earn from the Steamship Companies they try to earn as much as possible from the poor labourers as well. Some of them charge very heavy bills to the ship-owners, which indeed exceed what they actually pay. The system is so defective that there have been strikes and we know that even today there are strikes in some docks. I may tell you, Sir, these strikes are not strikes organised for the purpose of strikes only but they are very legitimate because these dock labourers suffer from two or three directions. First of all they have to suffer at the hands of the contractor. Nobody listens to them if they go for direct recruitment. There is no agency for recruitment. Secondly, the Stevedores come in. They go and induce the Port Authorities to employ their services. Of course, the Port Commissioners, or Port Trustees in various ports etc. who have a final say in this matter are all preponderantly officials. The Collector of Customs is a Member, the Railway Manager, the Military Officer are ex-officio members and then there are seats given to various mercantile Chambers

CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY OF INDIA (LEGISLATIVE) [22ND NOV. 1947]

[Mr. R. K. Sidhwa] both European and Indian. That is the composition of the Port Trust at various ports and whenever a complaint arises, it goes to the Port Trust Board and the Commissioners and Trustees come to know of it. But I know, Sir, of many instances where they have not been helpful to the workers for the reasons I have stated before. What I would suggest, therefore, is that—while it is true that the recruitment system provided herein is very good, we must see that this underhand practice of these contractors and also these Stevedores and Dubashis intervention as far as labour recruitment is concerned should be done away with.

It may be argued that these Dubashis have to be there because they are the agents of the Steamship Companies. That is true. Actually speaking, the Stevedores are supposed to provide provisions and other things for the crew of the ship from the period they are in the port or up to the next discharging port that they have to go to, but, Sir, let me tell you frankly, there are many duties entrusted to the Stevedores for the purpose of making money and in this money-making everybody—I won't say everybody, I may say several of them, right down from the Managers and the staff of the Ship Companies, Port Trust people and the Captains and some of the high officials of the ship take part. If one scrutinises their bills, one will be simply horrified. Once upon a time, this matter came up for consideration before certain Steamship Companies and one of the Stevedores offered to the London Office that he was prepared to do the same job at 65 per cent. less charge than what it is charged by the present Stevedores. You can understand from this the hopelessness of the situation. The Stevedore did not get a certain Steamship Company's business, therefore he was in competition and offered to do it at such a reduced charge. All the same, Sir, I may assure you that he was making 25 per cent. profit on the reduced offer. This is not a new thing that I am placing before you. Those who are connected with these people—I am not a Stevedore nor am I interested in being one—but as one having acquaintance with the dock workers, I know these people. We have brought this matter to the notice of the Port Trust authorities several times, but to my regret nothing has happened. I hope, therefore, that this point will be borne in mind by the Select Committee and it will remove these underhand methods. If the Select Committee do not give attention to them, let me tell you, Sir, the improvement sought for will not be achieved.

Then, Sir, as is stated rightly in the Bill, hardly 20 per cent. of the labourers working in major ports get work for 12 days in a month. I have known of instances where for a number of months, on the average, workers got 14 days or sometimes only 12 days in the month. Therefore, although their wages are higher, since they do not get work for the month, you can imagine what their monthly salary would work out to.

Therefore this discontent remains even between the labourers and the system is so very defective and I know, Sir, for the purpose of employing of labourers for the only purpose—no question of wages, no question of relief, no question of leave or any other concession—that they should be given work, there have been strikes and legitimate and right strikes. Some of the labourers are residing near the docks—the harbours in Bombay, Madras and Karachi are an exception and some places are not. That also is a burning question. The Port Trust authorities have built houses for them in some Port areas—of course they charge reasonable rent. Therefore one of the conditions should be that these dock labourers in all the ports must be provided with houses by the Port Trust authorities. That is a legitimate duty. The Government must compel these local bodies. The Port Trusts make a good deal of profit.

I can tell you of only one port, Sir, where the income of a port is much more than the income of the Municipal Corporation because the Port trust charges, the wharfage, the Port Trust demurrage and other charges, the crane charges, landing and shipping—all these are very high and naturally the Port Trust Budget is very much higher than that of the Municipal Corporation of that city. From that point of view, I remember Sir, one of the Committees recommended to the Port Trust to build houses for the dock labourers and some have started. I imagine there is no provision in this Bill to this effect but if it is within the scope of this Bill, I do hope that the Select Committee will kindly bear it in mind, because that is one of the greatest complaints of the labourers and on account of it there have been strikes that the houses should be provided near the harbour, as some of the harbours are two or three or four miles away from the city. In Madras, Bombay and Calcutta the harbours are situated just in the heart of the town. I do hope that this facility will be provided and the remarks that I made will be borne in mind; otherwise the object of the Bill which is very good will be simply frustrated if the Select Committee does not consider it. With these remarks, I support the motion.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am very glad that this Bill has at long last been introduced. It is long overdue. Forty years ago a similar scheme was inaugurated in London and we have had to wait till today to see this Bill. Sir, as our friends have already suggested that until and unless the contract system of recruiting labour and employing them is done away with, this Bill or any schemes that may be inaugurated thereunder cannot be of much use at all to the dock labour. Sir, there is an Act called the Payment of Wages Act by which every employer is charged with the responsibility of paying the wages directly to the worker. But it has been made absolutely nugatory in so far as the great majority of the dock workers are concerned, because of the existence of this vicious system of contract recruitment of labour. Some of us had strongly pleaded for doing away with that system at the time when the Payment of Wages Bill was on the anvil but we could not succeed. I sincerely hope that the Honourable Minister will see to it that one of the many schemes that he is likely to inaugurate under this Bill will provide for the effective abolition of the contract system and of recruiting labour in these dock-yards.

Secondly, Sir, there are four curses from which these dock-workers suffer. One is the contractors, the other is casualness of labour. The third is chronic indebtedness and the fourth unemployment being the result of large reserves of labour. Larger reserves of labour do exist in dock-yards than in any other employment and this has naturally weakened the bargaining capacity of the workers for higher wages and better facilities. This evil can be got rid of only if labour exchanges are started in every part for the benefit of these workers, and employers are made to recruit their labour only through the labour exchanges and also through the registration that is provided for here and not by any other means. There is the question of indebtedness also which has been referred to at great length by the Royal Commission on Labour and one cannot really come to grips with it until and unless the casualness of the character of recruitment for dock-yard labour is done away with. That reform can be effected only when registration is insisted and only a minimum amount of reserve of labour is allowed to make itself available for employment whenever called upon by the Port Trust authorities and not otherwise. If you allow the present system of labour going through being entirely free to make themselves available on call and to be at the disposal of these Port Trust authorities and shippers, then it will be impossible to remove this casualness and that will always bring about this chronic disease, of indebtedness. Therefore, the Government has got to see to it that this system of recruiting this labour will minimise the total quantities of reserve of labour that will be made available for the Port Trusts and other authorities.

Sir, I am glad there is a provision here for the appointment of a Port Advisory Committee on the national level. But I wish to suggest that such committees should be appointed in every major port. While the National Committee may be expected to make definite suggestions in regard to various schemes that may be inaugurated or any alterations that may be proposed to be made in these schemes, those local committees must be expected to look after the interests of labour on those areas and to aid effectively the Port Trust authorities in seeing to it that the labour exchanges that have got to be brought into existence, the system of registration and various other means that have got to be adopted in order to eliminate casualness of labour will be able to play their role and aid the workers. I am glad, Sir, my honourable friend, Mr. Sidhwa has referred to the question of housing. This housing problem is a very serious thing to any kind of labour and more so in the case of those dock-yard workers and early attention has got to be paid to them. Then, Sir, I am anxious that at an early date, whatever schemes that may come to be inaugurated under this Bill will also be extended to the minor ports also and especially the workers who are employed in the inland navigation and shipping.

Lastly, Sir, it is essential that the Government should take care to bring in within its net the shipowners and win their co-operation either voluntarily or otherwise and see to it that they will not encourage any longer any of these evils that my honourable friend, Mr. Sidhwa has already referred to and that they will not continue to encourage these contractors. The biggest difficulty in this is that the shipowners themselves are so much unmoved with the contract system because they find it much more easy to exploit the workers and also to escape from the provisions of the various labour legislations that Government bring forward from time to time. For instance, the Payment of Wages Act has had no terrors at all to the employers because the workers that have been employed have been there under the contract work under the contractors and naturally shipowners could always claim that they were not responsible for the payment of wages to their workers. With these remarks, I wish to support this Bill.

Shri K. Santhanam (Madras: General): Sir, I rise to make just two points which are more or less of a formal nature. I think clause 3 should be divided into two parts, one part consisting of those provisions which every scheme must contain and the other part containing provisions which a scheme may contain. As the provision stands, it will be possible for a scheme to contain any of these provisions or not. My own view is that apart from registration clauses (c), (d) and (e) should form part of every scheme for dock workers; the other provisions like training and welfare of dock workers may or may not form part of a scheme. It depends upon the size of the port, the number of dock workers, and so on. You cannot say that for every small port if you form a scheme all these provisions should be there.

An Honourable Member: It is only for major ports.

Shri K. Santhanam: In any case as the provision stands everything is optional. My point is that some of these provisions must be compulsory.

My second point is that the provisions regarding Advisory Committee are far from clear. The heading of the clause is "Advisory Committees" but in the body of the clause it looks as if they contemplate a central Advisory Committee alone. My own view is that the provisions have been so framed as to fit in with an advisory committee for each scheme. For instance, representation is given to Government, the dock workers and the employers of dock workers. I do not think on a national level this representation can be fitted in; it is good for a local scheme. Again I should like to know who are the employers of dock workers; are they the contractors or the port authorities? The matter must be made clear. Suppose the port authorities are the employers of dock workers, Government and the port authorities are the same. Therefore it will mean over representation of Government and the workers will be in a permanent and insignificant minority. I think the whole question of the composition of the local Advisory Committees and the Central Advisory Committee tee—if one is to be started—should be made very clear. Prof. Ranga has suggested that there may be a Central Advisory Committee and local Advisory Committees. I do not know if the Central Advisory Committee will be much good because there will be many schemes and I do not see how one Central Advisory Committee can go into the working of every one of these schemes. Therefore the right procedure according to me is to attach an Advisory Committee to each scheme, and let it be more or less a self-contained business. There is no need for an Advisory Committee on a national level.

Sir, I suggest these two points for the consideration of the Select Committee.

Mr. Speaker: I should like to invite the attention of honourable Members to one little point. Among honourable Members who are trying to catch my eye with a view to be able to address the House, I notice there are some whose names have already been proposed as members of the Select Committee. To my mind, it will be a better convention to set up that those whose names are on the Committee do not make any such attempt. It saves time and also gives an opportunity, of addressing the House, to others who might make suggestions which would be useful to the Committee.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar (Madras: General): I suggest, Sir, that the views of these Members also may be invited so that all these things may be taken into consideration by the Select Committee, although preference may be given to non-select committee members. But I submit that they should not be excluded altogether because their views also may be of much use to the select committee.

Mr. Speaker: I just expressed to the House what is passing in my mind, so that if they are unable to catch my eye they may not misunderstand the position; and my eyes ordinarily will not be open to them.

Shri B. Das: Sir, I consider this Bill a very half-hearted measure. As far as it goes to improve the working condition of dock labourers I have my sympathy and support for it. But today we have a national Government and I should not like this national Government to attempt to solve the problem of dock workers in the way it has been attempted in this Bill. Already there is a strike of dock workers in Bombay and the military has been called out to clear the ships. This phase of labour attitude is not an isolated instance. It will continue, because Indian labourers have got the habit of imitating their Western comrades and do not like to imitate their comrades in Asian countries. They try to follow what is happening in far richer countries of Europe and America and they want India to repeat all that; they are at times very cheap imitations.

When I suggested that the Honourable Commerce Minister should be associated in this I had a larger viewpoint in mind. The Port Trusts are all State-owned; they are utility concerns, though the predecessors of this Government have so framed the Port Trusts Acts and created bodies of Port Commissioners that the whole thing was isolated islands in the administration by the Government of India of the major Port Trust and they were controlled by British capitalists, British shipowners and British interests. And the Port Trust Commissioner was inevitably a European who served best the U.K. interests in commerce and trade. The full measure should be to have all the Port Trust Acts revised; all major ports as they are owned by the Government of India should devise measures in such a way that there should be no undue hardship on dock labourers. At the same time there should be no undue hardship on the business community and the consumers. My Honourable friend Mr. Sidhwa pointed out the institution of Dubashis and Stevedores in Bombay, Calcutta and Karachi. We know some of them are millionaires or rather multi-millionaires. They came into existence with the advent of the British Government and with British shipping companies who have been enemies of Indian shipping interests, and are so even today. So it is high time for the Government of India to revise their attitude. The Port Commissioners must be nationalised, the Port Trusts should be nationalised and the dock labourers

Mr. Speaker: Motion moved:

"That the Bill to regulate the profession of dentistry be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Shri Ramnarayan Singh, Shri L. Krishnaswami Bharathi, Shrimati G. Durgabai, Shri Mihirlal Chattopadhyaya, Shri Deshbandhu Gupta, Shri P. Kunhiraman, Mr. Hussain Imam Prof. Yashwant Rai, Shri N. C. Mehta and the Mover, with instructions to report on the opening day of the next session of the Assembly, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

Shri M. S. Aney (Deccan and Madras States Group): May I ask the Honourable Minister whether the opinions of the local and provincial governments to whom the Bill was circulated are also available to the members of this House and are they circulated to them?

The Honourable Rajkumari Amrit Kaur: I do not think the opinions have been circulated. They were taken into consideration of course and they will again be taken into consideration in the Select Committee.

Shri M. S. Aney: Will they be circulated to the members of the Select Committee?

The Honourable Rajkumari Amrit Kaur: Yes, they will be circulated, if desired.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar (Madras: General): How many of the Honourable Members whose names have been given for the Select Committee are doctors or dentists?

The Honourable Rajkumari Amrit Kaur: The election of members to the select committee is in the hands of the House itself. I asked how many doctors there were in the Assembly and was told that there were not more than one or two and I do not think there are any dentists in this House.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: Sir, I move:

"That in the motion the names of Dr. B. Pattabhi Sitaramayya and Dr. V. Subrahmanyam be added to the names proposed for the Select Committee."

Mr. Speaker: Are the names acceptable to the Honourable Minister?

The Honourable Rajkumari Amrit Kaur: Certainly.

Dr. B. Pattabhi Sitaramayya (Madras: General): Sir, here is a series of Bills, one relating to the constitution of the Nursing Council, another on the regulation of the profession of dentistry and a third to regulate the profession of pharmacy. These three are of an allied nature. I wish all the three could be taken together and I do not see why public money should be wasted in the setting up of three separate committees. They are merely three branches of the medical organisation and if it would be possible to refer all these three Bills to one common Select Committee business would be expedited, expenditure would be saved and man or woman power conserved. That is one point I would like to suggest for the consideration of the Honourable Mover. I am not particularly anxious to serve upon this committee nor do I think will be able to make any contribution to dentistry. I might perhaps like to be on the later committee on pharmacy, if there are to be separate committees.

An Honourable Member: What about nursing?

Dr. B. Pattabhi Sitaramayya: Nursing, I am not an expert in. If at all you are inclined to put in an amendment, I would put Dr. Subrahmanyam in this Select Committee and I would come in in the committee on Pharmacy.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa (C. P. and Berar: General): I am sorry I cannot approve of the suggestion of Dr. Pattabhi Sitaramayya that there should be one committee for all the three Bills, for the simple reason that the nursing council is absolutely different from dentistry and pharmacy.

Mr. Speaker: We need not spend any time over that. In short what Dr. Pattabhi Sitaramayya said was that he would not like to serve on this committee, and there is only the name of Dr. Subrahmanyam to be added to the list.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: What about his suggestion that there should be only one committee for the three Bills?

Mr. Speaker: It does not arise on this question. It is only a casual remark of his which we might not consider. I am putting to the House the amendment to this motion. Motion moved:

"That in the motion the name of Dr. V. Subrahmanyam be added to the names proposed for the Select Committee."

Shri Mohan Lal Saksena (U. P.: General): Sir, Dr. Pattabhi Sitaramayya's name may also be added. He says that he has no objection to serve on this committee but he would like to serve on the other committee on pharmacy.

Mr. Speaker: I understood him differently.

Dr. B. Pattabhi Sitaramayya: I am prepared to abide by the verdict of the House if they know better what I meant than what I said.

Mr. Speaker: The proposition before the House is not a test of the understanding of the House.

Dr. B. Pattabhi Sitaramayya: Sir, please cut out my name.

Mr. Speaker: That is how I understood him.

Shri Raj Krishna Bose (Orissa: General): As this is a Bill to regulate and control the profession of dentistry, I would like to know from the Honourable Minister whether there is any institution at present in the country where special training in dentistry is provided?

The Honourable Rajkumari Amrit Kaur: There is one in Bombay and there is also one in Calcutta. There was one in Lahore but that has now gone into Pakistan.

Shri Rohini Kumar Chaudhuri (Assam: General): Sir, I had no intention of speaking on this motion but I certainly must say that all people, young or old, man or woman, who suffer from dental troubles are sure to welcome this beneficial measure. I am afraid I have a quarrel with the Honourable Minister in charge of this motion. Instead of going about for medical men or dentists to serve on this committee she should have tried to include in this committee persons who have really experienced dental troubles. When you suffer from dental trouble, often you go to a medical man and he paints some tincture iodine or something of that sort which does not really alleviate the pain. That has been my painful experience. Go to a dentist and he simply pulls out a tooth and makes you look prematurely old. Although none of the members of the Select Committee would like to own it I dare say that many of them are chronic sufferers from dental trouble and we can therefore expect that the work of the Select Committee will be very smoothly gone through.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That in the motion the name of Dr. V. Subrahmanyam be added to the names proposed for the Select Committee".

The motion was adopted.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That the Bill to regulate the profession of dentistry be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Shri Ramnarayan Singh, Shri L. Krishnaswami Bharathi, Shrimati G. Durgabai, Shri Mihirlal Chattopadhyaya, Shri Deshbandhu Gupta, Shri P. Kunhiraman, Mr. Hussain Imam, Prof. Yashwant Rai, Shri M. C. Mehta, Dr. V. Subrahmanyam and the Mover, with instruction to report on the opening day of the next session of the Assembly, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

The motion was adopted.

[Shri B. Das]

should be nationalised, so that there is no undue hardship on the business community. Any extra charge that my Honourable friends Mr. Shastri and Prof. Ranga have in view will fall on the business community as goods will be charged much more in docks and clearing houses. That means that the consumer will pay. So we are all at one in that and we do not want the consumer, already hard-hit as he is with these high prices in the country, to be still more hard-hit. Therefore while I will not raise now or hereafter any serious objection to this half-hearted measure, I think it is high time that the Port Trusts should function as national institutions and all contracted labour and all full time labour should, as employees of the State, be employed by Government. The strategic importance of these ports demand State control of all labour. Sir, I am alive to the demands of dock labourers in ports. During the monsoons, in Indian ports, less labour is employed there being few ships to unload or load. Then again, it all depends on the number of ships that come from foreign climes to these ports. Then there is the problem of making double arrangements for the wholtime employment of a certain kind of labour and for seasonal employment of others. I hope the question of dock labour and stevedores will vanish and services like dock labourers and port employees must be controlled by the Port Commissioners and the State.

I hope this point will be examined in the Select Committee. I do not think that this Bill can entertain all the points which I have mentioned, and I hope that in time the Commerce Minister and the Minister of Labour will combine to introduce proper Bills in this House for the control of all major ports and their employees in the national service of India.

The Honourable Shri Jagjivan Ram: I speak with a view to remove some misapprehensions under which some Members in this House are labouring.

Primarily, this Bill aims at de-casualization of dock labourers and this is clear from the title of the Bill. De-casualization does not mean anything if it does not mean the abolition of the contractor's labour. We have been trying to introduce some welfare measures in the major ports. But it was not possible because all the short-comings that have been pointed out by the various speakers, are inherent in the system of contractor's labour, and any welfare measure is not possible unless the recruitment and control of labour is directly under the employers. That has been the handicap in introducing welfare measures in the major ports and even in the minor ports.

Mr. Sidhwa has spoken about housing problems and other welfare measures, but so long as labour is not stabilized and regular, one cannot think of housing and other welfare measures. That was the primary object with which this Bill has been brought forward.

Mr. Das says the Bill is half-hearted. But he has not indicated what items should have been included in the Bill, in order to make it whole-hearted. He talked of nationalising the docks. I do not think this was the appropriate opportunity for that point. It would have been for the consideration of the Transport Member who is in charge of major ports. In any way, I am not in a position at the present moment to say anything definitely on that point. But while talking of nationalization of docks, he talked of nationalization of labourers. I do not know where the implication of this leads him to! There is not much to say on other points. The welfare measures will be worked out. The schemes will be prepared and certainly we have the intention to introduce all the welfare measures that we propose to give the other categories of workers and labourers in the docks as well. And certainly as far as I am concerned, I stand for the total abolition of contract labour, not only in the dock-yards but everywhere, where it is possible and feasible.

DOCK WORKERS (REGULATION OF EMPLOYMENT) BILL

529

I can assure the Honourable Members that I will try to give as much benefit to the dock labourers as it is possible.

Mr. Speaker: The question is:

"That the Bill to provide for regulating the employment of dock workers be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Shri R. R. Diwakar, Pandit Govind Malaviya, Shri Nandkishore Das, Shri V. C. Kesava Rao, Shri Khandubhai K. Desai, Shri Arun Chandra Guha, Shrimati Sucheta Kripalani, Pandit Mukut Bihari Lal Bhargava, Shri Damodar Swarup Seth, Shri Jai-pal Singh, Shri O. V. Alagesan, Shri Gokulbhai D. Bhatt, Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena, Mr. Naziruddin Ahmed, and the Mover, with instructions to report on the opening day of the next session of the Assembly, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

The motion was adopted.

DENTIST BILL

The Honourable Rajkumari Amrit Kaur (Minister for Health): Sir, I beg to move:

"That the Bill to regulate the profession of Dentistry be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Shri Ramnarayan Singh, Shri L. Krishnaswami Bharathi, Shrimati G. Durgabai Shri Mihirlal Chattopadhyaya, Shri Deshabandhu Gupta, Shri P. Kunhiraman, Mr. Hussain Imam, Prof. Yashwant Rai, Shri N. C. Mehta and the Mover, with instructions to report on the opening day of the next session of the Assembly, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

Sir, in placing this Bill before the House, for acceptance for reference to a Select Committee. I just wish to make a few remarks regarding the present extremely unsatisfactory position of the profession of dentistry in India.

Honourable Members may or may not be aware that except in Bengal no legislation exists in India for the control of this profession. Persons practise without adequate qualifications, without adequate training. Indeed, I may say, sometimes without any qualifications and without any training. Surely this is a very hopeless position for an arm of medicine which is extremely important. And as always happens, it is the poor and ignorant who suffer at the hands of unskilled persons.

Then there is no provision whatsoever for the registration of qualified persons. There is no authority to prescribe any minimum standards of training or again to negotiate with foreign countries in the matter of reciprocal recognition of qualifications.

This Bill is brought forward in order to remove this sorry state of affairs.

Proposals for legislation, as the honourable Members are aware, were prepared in consultation with Provincial Governments. The Bill provides for setting up a Central Dental Council as well as Provincial Dental Councils. It will be the duty of the Central Dental Council to provide minimum standards of qualifications, to keep an All-India register, and to negotiate for reciprocal recognition and qualifications. The Provincial Councils will in their turn keep provincial registers and also exercise jurisdiction in the matter of professional discipline.

This Bill was introduced in the Central Legislative Assembly in 1947. Subsequently in order to avoid delay it was circulated for opinion departmentally to Provincial Governments as well as to local administrations and replies have been received from most of the provinces.

The Bill, Sir, is wholly non-controversial in principle and it is a matter of urgency for us that it should come on our Statute Book. Therefore, I do ask the members to accept the motion that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee and that the report be placed before the House on the first day of the next session.

RESOLUTION RE. RATIFICATION OF CONSTITUTION OF WORLD HEALTH ORGANISATION AND PROTOCOL CONCERNING INTERNATIONAL OFFICE OF PUBLIC HYGIENE—concl'd.

Shri B. Das (Orissa: General): Sir, I feel like congratulating the Minister of Health and ourselves that at last India has been able to persuade the U. N. O. to locate an office in India and I hope that it is in its final stage and not in the talking stage. One thing that has made me very critical when I read the report of the Ministry of Health in the note that was circulated to us is that we will have to pay more money to the U.N.O. or rather the International Office of Public Health Hygiene.

[At this stage Mr. Speaker vacated the Chair which was then occupied by Mr. Hossain Imam (one of the Panel of Chairman).]

The other day I asked a question of the Honourable the Leader of the House and he said that in addition to the contribution of Rs. 47 lakhs to the U. N. O. which India pays, contributions to the other organisations associated with the U. N. O. will also have to be paid for. My painful experience of 25 years in this House has shown that we always pay through our nose and we pay everything, but afterwards we stand neglected in the international forum, be it, U. N. O., the UNRRA or be it this little social welfare organization referred to in the resolution moved by my friend the Honourable Minister for Health.

From paragraph 6 of the Ministry of Health Report, I find that on the question of ratification of the Constitution of the World Health Organisation and of the Protocol concerning the International Office of Public Hygiene the late Standing Advisory Committee of the Legislature for the Department of Health was of the opinion that the Constitution and Protocol should be ratified, but that it considered that "the financial contribution of India to the organisation should be fixed on the basis of the national income or the expenditure on health measures and not on a population basis." Of these three alternatives mentioned by the Members of the Standing Committee I do not like two. I would rather go out of the institution than pay always on the population basis. It will result in more Yankees and Englishmen—getting more employment in it and trying to play the part of adviser—superior to Asiatics. I would think that the basis of national income is rather better and our contribution could be fixed on the basis of our national income. But I should think that at present we should not go to that extent. I would therefore suggest to the House and to the Honourable Minister of Health that India should pay her contribution on the basis of her expenditure on public health matters. The world knows, as we ourselves know, that the expenditure on public health in India has been infinitesimally small. The foreign Government never bothered about public health or social justice to the people of India. Let us therefore pay on a pro rata basis. Because we have a few American or German or English doctors standing here and assuming superior airs, talking about their country and their system of hygiene, which is so unnatural to the climate and tempo of this country, we are not going to pay more than is necessary. This point of paying more than is necessary according to our paying capacity has been worrying me all along, and I do hope that the Honourable Minister for Health will, when these international Protocols, U.N.O. and similar high organisations, come for discussion in the Cabinet, pay more attention to the financial aspect instead of being extra-generous. We, Indians, are very generous and hospitable. That does not mean that we should always pay to the maximum tune and remain just the same old hewers of wood and pariahs in Western hierarchy.

CONSTITUTION OF WORLD HEALTH ORGANISATION AND PROTOCOL CONCERNING INTERNATIONAL OFFICE OF PUBLIC HYGIENE 533

Now, Sir, I have distinct objection to associate myself with Netherlands which is a signatory to this Protocol. India is well-known for its malnutrition and for its deficiency diseases. Had the Dutch Government allowed the export of quinine from Java we would not have suffered much. Had it allowed a fraction of the accumulated sugar stocked in Java, which the Indonesian Government were so willing to send to India, the Honourable Minister of Health would not be worrying her head for the poor man's health.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar (Madras: General): What about rice?

Shri B. Das: I accept that amendment. If they had helped we would not have been troubled with rice shortage and would not have to pay high prices to U. S. A. and Australia for rice. Therefore, why should I associate myself with an institution where the Netherlands Government is also a constituent? Let the world know that we condemn as much the action of the Netherlands Government as we condemn the action of the South African Government in insulting Indians in South Africa. Unfortunately I have not seen in the press that in the U. N. O. General Council or in any of the Security Councils the Indian representatives—our permanent Minister or the Delegation sent there—ever raised the issue of these bad manners of the Dutch Government in starving India.

Shri K. Santhanam (Madras: General): On a point of order, Sir. The Protocol is to terminate the International Office of Public Hygiene.

Shri B. Das: No. My friend is mistaken. We are ratifying the Convention. Unfortunately I got a snubbing the other day from the Honourable Leader of the House that I have raised the issue of the League of Nations which is a defunct old body. We find that everything is a legacy of that defunct body in the measure under discussion. America and Russia which are refusing to participate together and co-operate as world power, are so very well-off; while in the poor countries of China and India poverty and malnutrition prevail. I would particularly refer to the Annexure in the last page of the booklet, to item 9 in it—'Convention on Traffic in Opium and Drugs, Geneva, 19th February 1925'. India has suffered the greatest humiliation owing to the Englishman's actions at the League of Nations Office in Geneva. There was one Campbell in the employ of the Finance Department. He was an Opium Master or something of the kind. That Campbell goes there and insults the Indian people and talks of her opium eaters and opium addicts. It has been affirmed by many Indians, by me many times on public platforms and on the floor of the predecessors to this House, that opium in small quantities is as much a necessity to do away with mosquitoes and other maladies of the poor man who walk 25 or 30 miles a day than a peg of whisky is to the Englishman and his European guests. And this Campbell became one of the greatest opium authorities in Geneva at India's cost! I am not convinced with what has been done by the League of Nations for Asiatics. If I correctly interpret it, even this very Protocol, the Health Organization, is also a legacy of that League of Nations. The westerners, including Americans, want to show, they are great servants of humanity. Humanity is a word that they cannot spell and cannot understand. They represent I would say destruction of humanity and destruction of culture and civilization of Germany and not to speak of Asia, and they talk of humanity. They came to Asiatic countries and talk of humanity! So I support my honourable friend the Minister of Health. I am not very happy that this particular office should be located in India, for American doctors and English doctors to talk about the system of sanitation, and hygiene prevalent in their countries. While the per capita income of the American is 1,500 dollars and the per capita income of the English is £100, the per capita income of my nation, my people, is no more than 100 rupees. We have been bled white by our former enemy, the Englishman. I must say that doctors that are represented here—and doctors are not politicians (except of course my esteemed friend Dr. Pattabhi Sitaramayya) do not hit out. They will not dare to say to the European doctors and American doctors what they are. So I do hope that the Honourable the Minister of Health, who is a great patriot, will see that India and Asia are in no way insulted by the location of the particular office in India.

[Shri B. Das]

Shri V. I. Munishwami Pillai (Madras: General): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I rise to support the motion on the floor of this House. While doing so, Sir, I would like to bring home to the notice of the Honourable Minister of Public Health that Government, by ratifying these declarations and conventions of this Organization, is taking on a very great responsibility as to the state of health in India. Among the various nations and countries in the world, I think India is in a very low ebb of public health. Several states that formed the International Health Conference have unequivocally declared,—I would like to bring it to the notice of the Honourable Minister,—the enjoyment of the highest attainment of standard health is one of the fundamental rights of every human being without distinction of race, religion, political belief, economic or social condition. Also Government have a responsibility for the health of the people, which can be fulfilled only by the provision of adequate health and social measures. This country is full of villages, and for any casual observer it is crystal clear to know that standard health and proper nutrition to the various people that live in the villages is still wanting. Unless this Government takes up a dynamic programme of uplifting the masses in the villages, it will not be in the interests of this country joining the various countries in propagating or carrying out what is said to be an organized effort to improve the public health.

Sir, it must be within our knowledge that every village in India has with it a small place or a hamlet inhabited by the Harijans. This portion of the village forms an eye-sore not only in the matter of public health, but in all respects. If there is an outbreak of any epidemic, it is in this part of the village that it starts: and due to the exploitation of the foreign government, and due to what I may call the provicious system of caste distinction, a certain section of the people have all along been kept in dungeons and places where no beasts will ever live. Now, Sir, the Honourable Minister, in a motherly approach, has taken up this important work of bringing India along with other countries to improve the lot of the masses in matters of health. Sir, I may tell you there are millions of our people we have no habitation and no drinking water facilities. The very habitation of these poor people is the abode of beasts. The cattle they have, have to be accommodated in their very habitation. These things do not talk much of the civilization of our country. It might have been very well in years gone by that our villages were noted for acharam, cleanliness and all that, but as days went on, all these have been neglected and we are in a hopeless condition. The primary need when any country is thinking of improving the lot of the people is to take care of the children in these villages and to promote the well-being of the masses by seeing that they have proper nutrition, housing, sanitation, recreation, all of which form a part of the functions of this agreement by the various nations. I would urge upon the Honourable Minister for Public Health that she should take up this cause of the Harijan hamlets known as cheries in South India, and Harijan hamlets in various other provinces by affording facilities in the matter of habitation and drinking water. Sir, in chapter V, under clauses 11 and 12 are given the composition of the Board, delegates and their associates. What I would request of the Honourable Minister is that if at any time we were to send representatives from this country to these international conferences, we must pick up people who are in these miserable conditions so that they may point out at the world conference the state of affairs obtaining in India.

There is one other point I want to refer to. I find that having declared all these functions and all these points about the welfare of the masses, there is no clause as to the penalty that will be imposed on any countries that have joined this conference and have not followed the principles as set out in the conference note. I would request the delegates that might go from India to take this point and see that something is done in this matter. But in article 7 of Chapter III it says that if a member fails to pay subscription, the voting privilege will be taken away: but I would rather like that the principles set out are carried out than losing the vote in the International Conference.

With these words, Sir, I support the motion.

Shri H. V. Kamath (C. P. and Berar: General): Sir, I am very well aware that it is too late in the day to alter or amend either the Constitution or the Protocol, because we are more or less faced with a fait accompli and here it is before us merely for ratification. After a cursory perusal of this Constitution and the Protocol, I could not but put to myself the question as to what part our representatives from India—Dr. Lakshmanan and Major Mani—played in the drafting of the Constitution and the Protocol. Of course, I do not intend to lay the fault at the door of the present Government, because I find from the relevant papers that the Constitution and the Protocol were drafted and signed at the International Health Conference held in New York from the 19th June to the 22nd July, 1946; that is to say, even before the Interim Government took office—let alone the present Government. So, then the present Government had no hand whatsoever in selecting the representatives to this International Health Conference held in 1946.

Yet, Sir, I felt on reading the Constitution that certain points could have been better elucidated and clarified. Especially here I feel that our Indian representatives in spite of their background perhaps played no part whatsoever in the drafting of the Constitution. (An Honourable Member: How do you know?) How do I know? Well, I cannot get the information from the present Minister of Health and must proceed only on hypothesis. Well, Sir, on page 1 of the Constitution, health is defined as “a state of complete physical, mental and social well-being”. I fail to understand, Sir, what is meant by the definition of health as “social well-being”. I can very well imagine social health as social well-being, but to define mere health as social well-being certainly beats me. I could have put it better by saying that health is a state of complete physical, mental and spiritual well being, because, Sir, it is realised more and more that the ultimate basis of well being is the spiritual. Time was when the Greek doctors or psychologists or moralists laid the dictum mens sana in corpore sano; that is, a sound mind in a sound body. But recently our friend George Bernard Shaw has amended it to this effect—he might have been half in jest and half in earnest. He remarked that the criterion or basis of health is “a sound body in a sound mind”. I feel, Sir, that with our ancient spiritual background we in India, who developed our systems of Hatha Yoga and pranayam recognise the nervous and mental system; and behind that, the spiritual as the true basis of all well being.

Therefore, Sir, it was in the fitness of things for our representatives at the Health Conferences to have stressed the spiritual aspect of well being. In any case, health cannot be defined as social well being; health certainly is physical and mental well being; social health is of course social well being. Over and above that, Sir, I should like to say that the malady from which the world is suffering at the present day is at bottom spiritual and nothing else. It is only a transvaluation of values and a return to the spirit that can save the world and therefore it would have been very well indeed if health, meaning health in the comprehensive sense, had been defined as physical, mental and spiritual well being, giving priority to the spiritual well being of the individual as well.

536 CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY OF INDIA (LEGISLATIVE) [22ND NOV. 1947]
as of humanity. In the Gita, Sir, it is stated that struggles and conflicts arise

[Shri H. V. Kamath]
because certain men take it into their heads to behave in a particular manner. There are some well known verses in the Gita which with your indulgence, Sir, I would like to quote. In the sixteenth Chapter of the Bhagvad Gita it is stated that men with asura prikriti—devilish or demonic nature—bring about these wars and conflicts and thus ruin the well being of humanity. It is necessary, Sir, that these tendencies should first of all be curbed and eliminated before we proceed to build the well being of humanity. The important verse from the Gita, which is very well applicable to the present day, is:—

Asatyam apratishtham te jagadahuranishwaram.
Apāraspara sambhutam kimanayat kama haitukam.

That is exactly the state in which we find the world and humanity today, and unless that is remedied and unless these tendencies are eliminated from human society, I see no salvation for men, and homo sapiens will go under as many other species have gone under in the past.

There is another point which I would by your leave, Sir, like to make out. The second Article or second sub-clause of the Preamble to the Constitution says that "the highest attainable standard of health is one of the fundamental rights of every human being, without distinction of race, religion, political belief, economic or social condition". I fail to see, Sir, how if economic and social conditions are bad, health is at all attainable by any human being. I could have very well understood it if the word had been "status" instead of "condition", because after all we are living today in a class society. But I cannot understand how you can say that irrespective of social and economic conditions health is the fundamental right or the birthright of every human being. Put a man in a chawl in Bombay or a slum in London and then say, "You must be healthy". I fail to see, Sir, how anybody can be told to become healthy living in slums. I feel, Sir, that this idea does not represent the point that is sought to be made out in this, that is that health is the fundamental right of every human being irrespective of social and economic conditions. I do not see what they had in mind but this Constitution has come before us only for ratification; we have not got the time or the opportunity to amend or alter it at this stage.

One more point, Sir, and I have done. In Hindi or Sanskrit there is one word which very aptly, very comprehensively, very completely defines what health is; and that is the word swastha from which you derive swasthya—health. Swa is self, and stha means to stand—poise; poised in the self; that is health. That point I tried my very best to find elucidated or even mentioned in this Constitution—I was very much disappointed.

The last point, Sir, that I want to make out is that in Chapter 2—Functions—there are various functions assigned to the Organisation. I would have very much liked, Sir, that this International Health Organisation had some active contact and association with the various Governments of the world in a particular direction, namely, the direction of education. I mean to say the World Health Organisation should have called upon the various educational institutions like colleges and schools through the respective Governments to promote health instruction as an integral part of the curriculum during the formative period of boyhood, youth and adolescence. That I find, Sir, has not been done. Of course, I am speaking subject to correction. It may have been included indirectly in some other clause, but I tried my very best to see if it could be comprehended in some other clause, but I could not. This is very necessary at the present day when all educationists and psychologists realise that education is the only way to practically every kind of prosperity and happiness, provided you give the proper bias to it, whether in schools or in colleges or in universities. The International Health Organisation has an active role to play here, because with it all the Governments are associated and certainly it could have been embodied in its Constitution that the Organisation should ask the various Governments of the world to see that proper instruction is imparted to the pupils in all the educational instructions in this direction of promoting health by means of sports of all kinds, pastimes, recreation and cognate activities of that sort.

Sir, unfortunately, for good or for ill, this Constitution and the Protocol are before us only for ratification. I have therefore only to request that in future at least the National Government of our Free India would take care to see that our representatives who attend these International Conferences are properly instructed from time to time.

Begum Aizaz Rasul (U.P.: Muslim): Sir, I have great pleasure in supporting the motion which the Honourable the Minister for Health has moved for the consideration of the House. I do not think that a long speech is necessary to support it, because it is a matter which I think will have the unanimous approval of the House. In fact, Sir, it is one of the most fundamental and necessary requirements of our life that this motion seeks to bring into existence and I am glad that the Honourable Minister for Health has brought forward this motion here.

Sir, the basic principles that have been enunciated by the World Health Organisation in its constitution lay out very clearly the principles on which this Organisation will work and I hope that every single principle that has been laid down here will be followed both in the letter and in the spirit. Our country, Sir, most unfortunately, as it is backward in most other respects, is, I am sad to say, very backward in the matter of health also. There was a time when India was very high up in standards of health, when people in this country compared very favourably in the field of physical strength in comparison to other countries and won prizes in physical contests but that is now a story of the past. Misfortunes betook our country and took away among other things the health of the country also. The health of our people has gone down most considerably and it is a matter for great regret that today our men and women are physically very much inferior as compared to peoples of other countries. This is a matter which must engage the attention of every one who has the good of the country at heart and of the Central and Provincial Governments. Therefore, the constitution of this World Health Organisation is more necessary from the point of view of the needs of our country than of any other country. As I said, I only hope that the principles enunciated and the objectives laid down will not merely remain on paper but will be followed both in the spirit and in the letter.

Sir, we can confidently hope that this world organisation viz. the International Health Organisation, the signatories of which hail from most of the countries of the world, will be popular, and will, it is hoped, get the unstinted and undivided support of all countries of the world. Unfortunately, the world today is so much torn by factions, rivalries and jealousies that any world organisation that is set up, founders on the rocks of international rivalries and intrigues. We have the example before us of the League of Nations. We also see what is going on in the United Nations Organisation, and how groups of different powers are intriguing against each other. Therefore, the organisation World Health Organisation, to me, seems a very happy augury for at least in its case there is a principle on which every country in the world, irrespective of its importance or non-importance in world affairs, will contribute very heartily and sincerely. That is one reason why we can look forward to the successful attainment of the basic principles laid down by this Organisation.

[Begum Aizaz Rasul.]

Sir, the Honourable Mover when moving this Bill told the House that she hopes that the Head Office of this Organisation will be established in India. With all the emphasis at my command, I would request her that she should try that this should be so, because more than from any other point of view, the reason why India should be the headquarters of this international organisation, is that tropical diseases are mostly rampant in this part of the world and need the greatest attention from the medical institutions and technicians of the world, and therefore if India is made the headquarters of this Health Organisation this very important branch of medical research will receive better attention. India being the heart of Asia, will be able to supply not only facilities for research and other things but also the very much needed medical facilities that are so much required in this part of the world.

From another point of view, Sir, and some reference of this has been made by previous speakers, the nutrition conditions in India and in other countries of Asia are such that they require special attention and therefore also it is necessary that India should be made the headquarters of this Health Organisation.

Sir, I support the suggestion made by my Honourable friend the previous speaker that attention should specially be given to physical culture. That is one of the most necessary things which go towards the making of a healthy body and no amount of medicine or medical research can have the desired effect until and unless due attention is paid to the physical development of human bodies and it goes without saying that a healthy body is necessary for a healthy mind and that can only be achieved if we pay more attention to our physical well being, by improving not only our food, which unfortunately is not so much in our hands but is due to the economic conditions of the country, but by physical exercises and physical culture. For this government should make as much provision as possible and encourage means of imparting physical education. I may inform the Honourable House that in the United Provinces such a council has been in being for some time, as this is one of the principles laid down in the Constitution of the World Health Organisation. I should like to draw the attention of the Honourable Minister for Health that she should kindly keep this in mind and that as soon as it is possible a Council of Physical Culture for the whole of India may be established to cater for this very necessary item of the human requirements. With these words, Sir, I have great pleasure in supporting the Motion.

Shri K. Santhanam: (Madras: General): I do not propose to take the time of the House for long. I cordially support the motion before the House. I am convinced that nothing but good can come to this country out of this organization. Its objects and generally the constitution are altogether unexceptionable. But I have got one or two points on which I seek some light from the Honourable Mover.

Sir, if you turn to Article 56 it is stated that the World Health Organisation may approve the Budget estimates and according to Article 59, it is said that important questions will be decided by two thirds majority and other questions by a bare majority. I want to know whether the Budget appropriations are considered to be important questions and whether they will be decided by a two-thirds majority or by a mere bare majority, because if it is by a bare majority, there is a chance of all small nations joining together and putting on us a very disproportionate burden. I do not see why such an ambiguity was left in this Constitution.

Again Sir, if you take Article 74 it is said the Chinese, English, French, Russian and Spanish texts of this Constitution shall be regarded as equally authentic. I cannot understand the rationale of this linguistic combination. I think in all world organisations there should be some principle adopted in relation to language. I would suggest that our representatives hereafter should suggest the adoption of some such principle, for instance they may suggest that the language which is the mother tongue of not less 200 millions of people may be taken as a world language or some such principle. Now it is said English, French, Chinese, Spanish texts of this constitution etc... Why should it not be a Hindustani text? And why not there be other texts? While we ratify it now, I hope our representatives will take up this question of language and see that we get a proper recognition that is our due.

Again, Sir, in the Executive Board there are to be 18 members. I want to know if it is the World Health Organisation that pays for all the travelling and other expenses of the Executive Board of the Member nations. I ask this question for this specific purpose because the chances are that the headquarters of this organisation will be somewhere in Europe or America, so much so if the Member nations have to meet this expenditure, the poorest countries will have to bear much greater burden. So if all the expenses are met by the World Health Organisation, I do not mind if it is situated in America or Europe or anywhere because our Members will get an opportunity to go at the World Health Organisation's expense to other countries; otherwise our taxpayers have to pay heavily for every world organisation and then it would become an unnecessary and rather unreasonable burden upon our country. I hope I shall get some information on these points. Otherwise generally I approve of the constitution I congratulate the Minister on the motion and I hope our country will play an adequate part in this World Health Organisation.

The Honourable Rajkumari Amrit Kaur (Minister for Health): There are not many points to which I have to reply after the discussion to which we have all listened. I am aware as well as anybody else what very poor conditions of health are obtaining in this country and it was for that very reason that I suggested to our Government that we should ask that the headquarters of the World Health Organisation should be in India. I think that health has been neglected and it is my hope that if this proposition of India is accepted a very great impetus will be given and more attention than has hitherto been concentrated will be given to a solution of health problems. As far as Village India is concerned if the Organisation is here and I have no doubt that medical relief to Village India will constitute one of the things that we in India can put forward before the Health Organisation. As far as removing of slums in Bombay or cheris in Madras, I would suggest to the speakers that they are primarily Provincial questions, but with the help of the World Health Organisation, these questions would certainly be brought before the public eye in a larger measure.

Now one of the things was in regard to finance. I would like to assure Members that I do not think in any case will India have to pay more than the scales that have already been settled at the Fourth Interim Commission. The decision that was arrived at there was that they should be based provisionally on the scales approved by the General Assembly in 1947 for the 1948 budget of the United Nations adjusted as necessary with the membership of the World Health Organisation. For the information of Honourable Members I should like to say that the total expenditure of the World Health Organisation for the years 1946 and 1947 on the basis of 3.95 per cent. representing the contribution from India and Pakistan was Rs. 1,69,455; and for the financial year 1948 it will be about the same or perhaps a little more. But that means India and Pakistan, and Pakistan will not pay itself and therefore that contribution will be less. Then, it may be even less than that because the expenditure was distributed among 54 States who are members of the U.N.O. and 63

[Rajkumari Amrit Kaur]

States actually have signed the Constitution of the World Health Organisation. And if the number of States which accept the Constitution exceeds 54, then the percentage contribution from India along with that of other countries will also be correspondingly lower. As far as whether we should join this World Health Organisation or any other organisations that are off-shoots of the U.N.O. is concerned, I think the Prime Minister very clearly put forward the Government of India policy, and I need say no more about that. In regard to the question about Hindustani this really rests of course with the United Assembly. We can certainly raise this point and it can be dealt with later.

There was some criticism as to what part our Indian representatives had played in framing this Constitution. I think I said in my opening remarks when I moved this Resolution that the Technical Committee which drafted the original Constitution in Paris in March 1946 included our representative and he was a member of a committee of four who drafted the bulk of the Constitution; so that they did not play an unworthy part in the drafting of the Constitution as a whole.

Then one honourable Member talked about no reference having been made to health education. I think if he were to read the functions more carefully he would see that clauses (h), (g), (q), (r), and (v) would include all that he wants in the sphere of education. And the travelling allowances of members as they go will be paid by the World Health Organisation.

Sir, I think I have answered most of the questions that have been raised; and as far as our own health programmes are concerned they are really not relevant to this Resolution because here we are only ratifying what has in fact been signed on our behalf by our Indian delegation. The question that I myself wish to emphasise is that we shall benefit by becoming a member and a party to this World Health Organisation, and I hope the House will now proceed to ratify the Constitution and the protocol.

Mr. Chairman: The question is:

"This Assembly is of opinion that the Constitution of the World Health Organisation and the Protocol concerning the International Office of Public Hygiene be ratified."

The motion was adopted.

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Tuesday, the 25th November, 1947.

STARRED QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(a) ORAL ANSWERS.

NUMBER OF INDIANS APPOINTED AS CHIEF JUSTICES.

252. *Shri S. Nagappa: Will the Honourable Minister of Home Affairs be pleased to state the number of Indians appointed as Chief Justices in the several High Courts in India?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: The number of Indian Chief Justices of High Courts including the Oudh Chief Court is five.

Shri S. Nagappa: Sir, may I know whether these Judges are posted in their own provinces or in different provinces?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: I can give you a statement from which you will be able to find out. For example in—

Bombay—Mr. Muhammad Ali Chagla is the Chief Justice and he belongs to Bombay:

Allahabad—Mr. Kamala Kant Verma is the Chief Justice and he belongs to the United Provinces:

The Chief Court of Oudh—Mr. Ghulam Hasan who is probably from the same province:

The Punjab—Diwan Ram Lal:

Patna—Sir Clifford Mohan Agarwala.

Shri S. Nagappa: Will the Government at least see in the future that the Chief Justices are posted only from that province to which they belong and not from outside the province?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: Am I to understand that in future the Chief Justices should be appointed from outside their own provinces?

Shri S. Nagappa: No, from their own provinces.

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: The question of the Honourable Member is that Chief Justices should be appointed from the same provinces?

Mr. Speaker: That is the suggestion.

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: But why in future? The present procedure is the same.

Seth Govinddas: Is the Honourable Member aware that in the Central Provinces the Chief Justice is not only not of that province, but a foreigner? Will the Honourable Member see that no foreigners are made Chief Justices in India now?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: If the Government of the province makes a recommendation, certainly it will be considered.

Shri B. A. Mandloi: Will the Honourable Member please state how many non-Indians hold the office of Chief Justice in the Union of India?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: Three.

Shri Mihir Lal Chattopadhyaya: Will the Honourable Minister be pleased to state whether an Indian will be posted Chief Justice of the Calcutta High Court instead of an European now holding the post?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: In the Calcutta High Court the present Chief Justice is a European. You want an Indian. We will gladly consider the recommendations of the Bengal Government.

STRENGTH AND EXPENDITURE OF INDIAN AND NON-INDIAN ARMY PERSONNEL

253. *Shri S. Nagappa: Will the Honourable Minister of Defence be pleased to state:

- the total number of divisions in the Indian Army;
- the total number of non-Indian Regiments;
- the expenditure that is incurred annually on an Indian soldier and a non-Indian soldier;
- the difference in pay of an Indian and a non-Indian officer of the same rank;
- the total number of non-Indians sent to their homeland after 15th August 1947; and
- the savings so effected?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: (a) Four.

(b) Presumably the Honourable Member's enquiry is whether there are still British units serving in the Indian Army. If so, the answer is in the negative.

(c) The average expenditure incurred annually on an Indian soldier and a non-Indian (British) soldier is roughly Rs. 1,200 and Rs. 3,000 respectively.

(d) I lay a statement on the table of the House.

(e) 18,762 non-Indians (British Officers and men). This figure is in respect of India and Pakistan. It is regretted that separate figures are not available.

(f) It is regretted that the savings effected cannot be computed as an analysis of the British officers and men by various ranks who have left India is not available.

STATEMENT

There is no difference between the pay of a King's Commissioned Indian Officer and that of a King's Commissioned British Officer paid under the Indian Pay Code. The rates of pay admissible under the Indian Pay Code to a K.C.B.O. and an I.C.O. are however not identical and compare as follows:

Rank	Monthly Rates of Pay.
	I.C.O.	K.C.B.O.
2/Lt.	Rs. 350	Rs. 385
Lieut.	400 to 450	435 to 470
Captain	450 to 700	555 to 855
Major	700 to 1050	915 to 1035
Lt.-Colonel	1100 to 1400	1525

plus the allowances shown in the notes below.

Note: In addition, cost of living allowance is allowed at the rates admissible to civilian officers drawing the same rates of pay, but no command pay, staff pay, additional pay, corps pay, family allowance etc. is admissible.

- The rate of pay for a Lt.-Col. includes Command/Staff pay of Rs. 300 p.m. which is admissible to all officers on the old pay code while holding Command or Staff appointments.
- The following additional pay and allowances are admissible:—
 - Indian Army Allowance varying from Rs. 75 for a 2nd Lt. to Rs. 200/- for a Lt.-Col.
 - War Service Increments depending on rank and length of war service. The maximum rate for Majors and Lt.-Cols. is Rs. 138 p.m. and for Captains and below Rs. 102 p.m.
 - Single officers receive lodging allowance varying from Rs. 20 p.m. for a 2nd Lt. to Rs. 75 p.m. for a Lt. Col. Married officers receive family allowance the amount of which depends on the rank of the officer and the size of his family.
 - Certain other additional pay and allowances, e.g., Corps pay, Staff pay, Adjutant's pay, etc., depending on the rank and arm of service, are admissible.

Shri S. Nagappa: Arising out of the answer to clause (f), may I ask the Government whether they will considerably increase the Indian Army from the savings so effected?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: It is quite clear from the answer. When the British officers and men go we will have plenty of money.

Shri S. Nagappa: When do the Government expect all the British personnel to go?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: By the end of March next.

Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena: May I know whether any discrimination between Indian and European soldiers in our Army will still continue to be made in the future?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: There will be no British soldier. So the question does not arise.

Shri S. Nagappa: Will the Government allow the continuance of British personnel even if they offer to serve after 31st March 1948 in the Indian Army under conditions prevailing?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: I am making a statement in reply to another question on the terms offered to British personnel who will volunteer for employment in the Indian Army.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: What is the position of the new recruitment of British officers?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: It is all clear in the statement issued by the Government a few days ago.

Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena: Will the Honourable Minister assure the House that in future there will not be any discrimination between the Indian and British personnel in the Army?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: The question does not arise.

Mr. Speaker: It is unnecessary also.

SCHEME FOR MODERNISATION OF INDIAN UNION ARMY

254. *Shri S. Nagappa: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Defence be pleased to state whether there is any scheme or proposal under the consideration of Government to modernise the present Armies of Indian Union with up-to-date armament and ammunition; if so, when will it come into force?

(b) If the reply to part (a) above is in the negative, what is the reason thereof?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: (a) and (b). The Indian Army was considerably modernised during the last war but, as the Honourable Member will appreciate, modernisation is a continuous process and the intention is to keep pace with the development of arms and equipment in other countries.

RECRUITMENT TO VACANCIES CAUSED BY DIVISION OF ARMY BETWEEN INDIA AND PAKISTAN

255. *Shri S. Nagappa: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Defence be pleased to state what portion of the Army has been sent to Pakistan as a result of the division of the country into Pakistan and the Indian Union?

(b) Do Government propose to fill up the vacancies so caused by recruiting from the demobilised soldiers?

(c) If so, when, and if not, why not?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: (a) The question is not quite clear. Of the combined Army roughly about one-third has gone under Pakistan Government. This did not, however, involve the despatch from India to Pakistan of one-third of the Army located in India. More troops have come or are due to come to India from Pakistan than the number of troops which have left or are leaving India for Pakistan.

(b) No, Sir.

(c) It is considered that the forces allotted to India are adequate as India's peace-time Armed Forces.

Shri S. Nagappa: In view of the fact that we are experiencing disturbed conditions throughout India, and in view of the fact that one-third of the army has gone to Pakistan, will the Government consider the advisability of filling up the one-third deficiency by fresh recruitment?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: If the Government so decides we will have to recruit more soldiers. As I have already stated, at present the existing forces are considered adequate for the defence of the country.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: By what time will this movement of troops between the two Dominions—our troops which are to come from Pakistan and their troops which are to go from India—be completed?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: Latest by the end of December.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: Is it a fact that there are large quantities of military equipment in Pakistan which could not be brought to India?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: Some equipment is in Pakistan, but whatever is our share, is coming to India.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: I am asking the Honourable Minister if it is not a fact that large quantities of equipment are in Pakistan which the Indian Government has not been able to bring back so far?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: That may be so, but we have also in India vast stores which we have not been able to despatch to Pakistan.

Shri H. V. Kamath: In view of the fact that vacancies have been caused in the Indian army by sending some of the men to Pakistan, may I know if any of the vacancies have been filled by men of the Indian National Army?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: The question of filling up the vacancy does not arise, as we do not propose to start fresh recruitment at this stage.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Is there any ban on the recruitment of I.N.A. men into our army?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: The question has not arisen so far, because we have not recruited any new men.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: Have Government laid down any policy in regard to that? This question has been so much debated on the floor of this House during the past, may I know from the Honourable Minister if his Department has gone into the whole question and has issued a directive or enunciated any policy with regard to the future recruitment of these men?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: The question of the employment of the I.N.A. men in the regular army is under the consideration of the Government. No decision has been taken as yet.

Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena: How long will it take them to come to a decision?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: There are several factors involved. If we have to employ the I.N.A. men in the regular army, we have to declare them as prisoners of war and all the facilities that are due to prisoners of war would have to be given to them. That question is under examination. When all the details are available, the question will come before Government for a decision.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Has any effort been made to expedite the matter and come to an early decision?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: Yes, Sir.

NUMBER AND EVACUATION OF EMPLOYEES IN PAKISTAN OPTING TO SERVE INDIA

256. *Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: Will the Honourable Minister of Home Affairs please state:

(a) the number of Government employees with the names of Departments in the Dominion of Pakistan who agreed to opt out to the Dominion of India;

(b) the number of employees who have actually arrived in the Dominion of India, up to the end of October 1947;

(c) how many still require to be evacuated from the Dominion of Pakistan;

(d) how many of them have actually joined the services; and

(e) whether all the Departments now work normally; and if not, when Government intend to bring them to normal level?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: (a), (b), (c) and (d). A statement is laid on the table of the House.

(e) All the ministries are working normally though they are not yet upto normal strength.

ANTI-INDIA PROPAGANDA IN AMERICAN PRESS.

257. Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Information and Broadcasting please state what steps have Government taken to counteract the one-sided report sent by American Correspondents in India to the American Press about the situation in India?

(b) Has our Ambassador in the United States taken steps to contradict this one-sided report?

(c) If not, do Government propose to do the needful in the matter?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: (a), (b) and (c). In the absence of any specific mention of the report and the correspondent concerned I regret I am unable to reply to this question.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: Is it a fact that only one-sided reports have actually appeared in various foreign newspapers, of which the Government must be already aware?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: Government is aware of the fact that several foreign correspondents have sent unfortunately tendentious, exaggerated and one-sided reports.

Shri B. Das: Is there any truth that when Pakistan and India were separated the B.B.C. representatives in India took photographs and circulated gruesome false tales in America about atrocities in India? What steps have Government taken to represent to the British Government that the B.B.C. representatives should not tell such lies?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: If reporters have taken photographs there is no censorship in our country so far as foreign correspondents are concerned. There is complete freedom in external publicity. We cannot prevent it.

Shri B. Das: I have been alluding to the fact that the B.B.C. representatives circulated in the American press false informations. That is what I have been alluding to.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Have Government been sending out any daily news bulletins to all our embassies abroad, so that it may be possible for them to make them available to as many papers in other countries as possible as well as correspondents on that side?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: We do supply correct information. Daily cables are being sent to our Information Officers and to our ambassadors in the countries concerned. Apart from the daily information that is supplied by cable, steps have also been taken to remove misunderstanding and to spread correct information. Foreign correspondents have been contacted here by me personally and by the Prime Minister and we have often drawn the attention of foreign press through their accredited representatives to the necessity of giving factual and objective information and not to put false or exaggerated colours on news in order to create a wrong impression. Besides press conferences have been held by the Prime Minister and considerable publicity is given to these press conferences where correct facts are stated.

Shri Deshbandhu Gupta: May I know if the Honourable Minister's attention has been drawn to the fact that the Associated Press of India, which is a part of Reuters, has been sending out different versions of the same happenings to papers in Pakistan and in India; particularly in regard to Kashmir the reports emanating from the A.P.I. appearing in the "Dawn" and other papers published in Pakistan are a different version of the same happenings as they appear in the Indian papers?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: Once it is agreed that Pakistan and India have different angles of vision and different points of view that two representatives naturally send out different reports.

ERADICATION OF CORRUPTION AND BLACK-MARKETING

258. Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Home Affairs please state what steps have Government taken to stop corruption and black-marketing?

(b) Have Government adopted a definite policy to eradicate this evil?

(c) If so, what steps have been actually taken by Government in this direction, beyond few periodical incidents detected by officials?

(d) Do Government intend to adopt a definite policy in this matter?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: (a), (b), (c) and (d). I would invite Honourable Member's attention to the existence on the Statute Book of the Special Police Establishment Act 1946 and the Prevention of Corruption Act 1947. These Acts implement a definite policy in the matter and if the Honourable Member will care to study the debates leading to the passage of the respective Bills, he will appreciate that Government have a definite policy in the matter and also the means of implementing that policy.

DIVISION OF ASSETS AND LIABILITIES BETWEEN INDIA AND PAKISTAN

259. Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Finance please state whether Government have laid down any policy and adopted any principles in connection with the division of assets and liabilities between the two Dominions?

(b) How do Government propose to meet the liabilities of the Government promissory notes, postal certificates and other assets between the two Dominions?

(c) Will the Currency and Government papers held by the people of one Dominion be exchanged and cashed by the people of the other Dominion?

(d) If the answer to part (c) above be in the affirmative, what conditions would be imposed on them?

(e) Up to what period, the Indian money in coin or paper, will be common to both the Dominions?

(f) What will be the conditions under which each Dominion can use its own Currency after the cessation of the period referred to in part (e) above?

(g) How will the people of both the Dominions be affected by the new Currency conditions?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: (a) A copy of the terms of reference of the Expert Committee which dealt with the division of assets and liabilities giving the principles of the division is laid on the table.

(b) Under para 9 of the Indian Independence (Rights, Property and Liabilities) Order all loans, guarantees and financial obligations of the late Central Government have been placed on the Indian Dominion subject to Pakistan making an equitable contribution. The amount of this contribution still remains to be determined. In regard to Postal Savings Bank deposits and Postal Cash and other certificates it has been agreed that each Dominion will take over liability for the outstandings in its area on the date of the partition.

(c) to (g). I would invite the attention of the Honourable Member to the Pakistan (Monetary System and Reserve Bank) Order, 1947. The position briefly is that there is no change till the 31st March 1948 after which separate notes and coins will issue in Pakistan although India notes and coins will continue to be legal tender in Pakistan in accordance with the provisions of the said Order. Arrangements and conditions in regard to the exchange of currency between the two Dominions after 31st March 1948 are under consideration.

Terms of Reference of Expert Committee No. II—Assets and Liabilities.

- (1) To compile lists of assets by broad categories showing value and present location.
- (2) To make recommendations as to the division of assets between the two successor Governments. The general principle should be to secure the greatest good of the two States, but if there are disputed claims for fixed assets, like plant and machinery, the removal of which might be detrimental to the interests of the other Government, the facts of each case should be reported for consideration by the Partition Council.
- (3) When division is impracticable, to make recommendation either for mutual assistance or for joint administration or for any other arrangement for such period as may be necessary.
- (4) To make recommendations in regard to the financial settlement between the two Governments arising from the above as well as from an allocation of the public debt, pensions and other liabilities.
- (5) To recommend measures for giving effect to any transfer of assets after the recommendations have been accepted by the Partition Council.

Shri Ajit Prasad Jain: Arising out of the answer to part (e) may I ask whether the Honourable Minister is aware that citizens of the Indian Dominion who are in possession of defaced or mutilated notes of one rupee, five rupee, ten rupee or hundred rupee denominations issued by the Lahore Office are told by the Reserve Bank here that they should present them at Lahore for exchange with good ones. If so, in view of the conditions prevailing at the moment, whether Government do not think that it is not possible for such note-holders to present them at the Lahore Currency Office and that there is consequently a good deal of nervousness in the market?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: If the Honourable Member will pass on that information to me in writing I will make enquiries.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: Has the Honourable Minister got with him figures relating to the postal cash certificates and national savings certificates that have fallen into Pakistan?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: That information is not available with me just now.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: Will the Honourable Minister place before the Standing Finance Committee the proposed standing agreement between India and Pakistan on currency and exchange matters, before it is finalised?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: These are matters for the Partition Council and finally for the Arbitration Tribunal to decide. But I have no objection to place the information before the Standing Finance Committee if desired.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: Do I take it that the Honourable Member's Department would be collecting the necessary data regarding the total holdings of savings bank cash certificates and national savings certificates, before the next session?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: If the Honourable Member will put down the question I shall endeavour to get the information.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: The Honourable Minister said that even after 31st March 1948 the Indian currency will be freely allowed in Pakistan. May I know whether the currency of Pakistan will be legal tender in India after the 31st March 1948?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: The Indian notes will be legal tender in Pakistan only up to 1st October 1948 and not indefinitely. After that period they will be accepted only in treasuries for exchange for another six months. They are not intended to be legal tender indefinitely at all.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: What about Pakistan currency?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: It would not be legal tender in India.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: Cannot the defaced notes from Pakistan be accepted in the Indian Dominion until the Stand-still Agreement exists?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: I do not see how this difficulty has arisen, because no notes have been issued by the Dominion of Pakistan. I think there are some rules of procedure for getting a defaced note exchanged. As I told the Honourable Member, if he will pass on the information regarding any difficulty experienced in this direction I will certainly make an enquiry about it.

Shri Ajit Prasad Jain: I have got a one rupee note with me on which is stamped that it should be presented at the Lahore Office, and I want to make a representation of it to the House.

Mr. Speaker: The Honourable member may do so, but that would not be a question.

NATIONAL MILITIA FOR DEFENCE OF INDIA AND HER BORDERS

260. *Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Defence please state whether Government of India have adopted any policy for giving training to those who intend to join the Military Force?

(b) What steps Government propose to take to start National Militia?

(c) What steps have Government taken for the purpose of defending the Borders of India and also the Dominion of India, as a whole, in the event of an attack?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: (a) and (b). The question is under consideration of the Government.

(c) Government are alive to their responsibilities in regard to the defence of the Country and the adequacy of defence arrangements is all the time under examination. It is however considered not desirable to disclose defence plans.

EXPANSION OF UNIVERSITY TRAINING CORPS AND AUXILIARY CORPS

261. *Shri Debi Prosad Khaitan: Will the Honourable Minister of Defence be pleased to state:

(a) whether Government are considering the desirability of extending the activities of the University Training Corps to include every college-going boy to join it;

(b) the steps which Government are taking to establish a National Militia to help the Government both against foreign aggression as well as for the maintenance of peace inside the country, and also to give training in discipline to adult boys according to their capacity, in the various branches of military requirements; and

(c) the steps which Government are taking to utilise the services of girl students and other suitable women by forming Auxiliary Corps and introducing other supplementary activities to help the various branches of Defence?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: (a) and (b). The whole question is under the active consideration of Government.

(c) There is no such proposal under consideration at present.

LOANS TO PAKISTAN BY INDIAN BANKS

262. *Shri Debi Prosad Khaitan: Will the Honourable Minister of Finance be pleased to state:

(a) under what procedure and guarantee loans have been given by Indian Banks in Pakistan under the standstill Agreement up to 31st March 1948; and

(b) under what procedure and guarantee loans can be given by Indian Banks including the Reserve Bank of India to Pakistan for periods extending beyond 31st March 1948?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: (a) Government have no information regarding loans if any made to the Pakistan Government by Indian banks.

(b) So far as the Reserve Bank is concerned, loans are subject to the provisions of the Reserve Bank Act and the Pakistan (Monetary System and Reserve Bank) Order, 1947. As regards loans by other banks, it is presumed that they will be on usual business principles.

WORKING OF ARMAMENT FACTORIES IN INDIA

263. *Shri Debi Prosad Khaitan: Will the Honourable Minister of Defence be pleased to state:

(a) whether it is a fact that, before India got Independence, the Armament factories in the country were interfered with by the removal of equipment and of personnel;

(b) whether all the armament factories in India are still in a working condition, and if not, the number of factories that are in good working condition;

(c) whether Government propose to consider the desirability of working the armament factories to their full capacity, either by the manufacture of defence materials, or by the manufacture of goods required by the civilian population; and

(d) whether Government propose to consider the possibility of permitting, under suitable conditions, private enterprise to manufacture arms and ammunition?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: (a) There has been no such interference with any factory selected for postwar retention.

(b) All postwar factories are operating satisfactorily and in sound working condition under the supervision of civilian technicians except Ordinance Factory, Khamaria, which is a reserve Small Arms Ammunition and Shell filling factory and which is retained on a care and maintenance basis.

(c) The matter is receiving attention.

(d) Yes, Sir.

SUBSTITUTION OF "INDIANS" OR "BHARTIS" FOR "NON-MUSLIMS"

264. *Shri Debi Prosad Khaitan: Will the Honourable Minister of Home Affairs be pleased to state:

(a) whether Government are aware that even now Indians who are not Muslims continue to be called non-muslims in official circles;

(b) whether Government are aware that Indians in general resent being called non-muslims; and

(c) whether Government propose to consider the question of calling Indians in general by some more suitable name e.g., Indians or Bharatis?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: (a) As far as I am aware, persons resident in India, irrespective of the community to which they belong, are referred to in official documents as Indians unless in any particular context it is necessary to specify the community.

In view of this reply, clauses (b) and (c) of the question do not arise.

EDUCATION OF INDIAN STUDENTS ABROAD

265. *Shri B. A. Mandloi: Will the Honourable Minister of Education be pleased to state:

(a) the names of places in foreign countries at which educational facilities exist for the Indian students;

(b) the number of students receiving education at these centres during the years 1945-46 and 1946-47; and

(c) the number and value of scholarships given by the Central Government to students for studies in foreign countries?

آنریبل مولانا ابوکلام آزاد : اس سوال میں جو باتیں پوچھی گئی ہیں - انکے لئے دو ۲ اسٹیٹمنٹ تیار کر رکھ دیئے گئے ہیں - ایک سوال (a) اور (b) سے تعلق رکھتا ہے - اور دوسرا (c) سے -

The Honourable Maulana Abul Kalam Azad: Two statements showing the required information, one in respect of the portions (a) and (b) of the question and the other in respect of the portion (c) are placed on the table of the House.

सेठ गोविन्ददास : क्या माननीय मंत्री यह बतालायेंगे कि जिन लोगों की सिफारिश अलग अलग प्रान्तों से इस बात के लिए आई है कि वह विदेश में पढ़ने के लिए भेजे जायें उनमें से अधिकांश अभी तक नहीं भेजे गये हैं। उनकी बाबत गवर्नमेण्ट क्या इत्तजाम कर रही है ?

Seth Govinddas: Will the Honourable Minister please state, if it is a fact that out of the number of the people whose names were recommended by different Provinces for study overseas, quite a large number has not been sent abroad so far? What do Government propose to do in the matter?

آنریبل مولانا ابوالکلام آزاد : کئی دفتین اس میں پیش آرہی ہیں یونیورسٹیوں میں جگہ ملنے کی دقت اور کچھ شیعہ کی دقت گورنمنٹ اس پر غور کر رہی ہے۔

The Honourable Maulana Abul Kalam Azad: Many difficulties are being experienced in this connection—want of seats in the Universities and lack of shipping facilities. Government is considering over the matter.

STATES ACCEDED TO PAKISTAN AND INDIA'S RELATIONS WITH STATES NOT JOINING EITHER OF THE DOMINIONS

266. *Shri B. A. Mandloi: Will the Honourable Minister of States be pleased to state:

(a) the names of the Indian States, which have acceded to the Pakistan Union;

(b) the names of the Indian States which have not acceded either to the Union of Pakistan or to the Union of India;

(c) the status of such States which have not joined any of the Union; and

(d) whether any political or other ties exist between such States and the Government of India and on what basis their relations between the State and the Union Government are regulated?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: (a) We have no information.

(b), (c) and (d). Hyderabad is the only State which has not acceded to either Dominion, and discussions are still proceeding between His Exalted Highness the Nizam's Government and the Government of India.

Shri B. A. Mandloi: Is it permissible or open for any State not to join either of the Dominions?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: It is open to any State even to commit suicide.

ACCESSION OF NIZAM'S STATE TO INDIAN UNION AND EXODUS OF MUSLIMS TO THE STATE.

267. *Shri B. A. Mandloi: Will the Honourable Minister of States be pleased to state:

(a) whether the Nizam's State has acceded to the Union of India;

(b) whether there has been an exodus of Muslims on a very large scale from the units of the Union of India to the Nizam's State; and

(c) whether the large scale exodus of Muslims from the units of the Union of India and migration to the Nizam's State has the concurrence of the Government of India, and if not, what steps have been taken to stop such migration?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: (a) No.

(b) There has been some exodus of Muslims mainly from the United Provinces, Central Provinces, Indore and some of the Central India States.

(c) The Provincial Governments and the States concerned are actively discouraging this exodus and have taken measures to check it.

Shri H. V. Kamath: Arising out of the answer to part (a) of the question, may I know whether Government have fixed any deadline for the negotiations with the Nizam?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: The date of the deadline is very near.

Shri Deshbandhu Gupta: May I know whether the leader of the Ittehad-ul-Muslemin was invited by the Honourable Minister for negotiations?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: Where—in this Assembly?

Shri Deshbandhu Gupta: In New Delhi.

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: I have not extended an invitation, but if the Honourable Member so desires I shall consider it.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: There is the movement in Hyderabad to send out all Hindus and replace them by Muslims from outside Hyderabad from the various Provinces. What steps are taken by the Central Government to discourage such a movement?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: I do not think there is any such official movement.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Are not Government aware of the fact that there is a large exodus of non-Muslims from the Hyderabad State owing to the troubles created there by the Ittehad-ul-Muslemin as well as the Administration?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: There is some exodus. I cannot say whether it is due to the movement or the organisation concerned. But there is some exodus due to some trouble, and due to panic.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Have Government received any plan from the Indian Provinces adjoining the Nizam's State to the effect that border incidents are being created by the people of Hyderabad and also the agents of the State, as well as this organisation?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: Government have received no complaints, but they have received reports. We have also been informed by them that they are capable of dealing with the situation.

Prof. Shibbanlal Saksena: Has the Honourable Minister drawn the attention of the Nizam's Government to these happenings?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: Yes, we have done so.

Shri S. Nagappa: May I ask the Honourable Minister why Government has been particularly so lenient as regards the Hyderabad State in granting time from time to time?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: Because it is the biggest State in India and it is in the interests of the people of India as well as of the people of the Hyderabad State to deal with such questions gently, delicately and in a statesmanlike manner.

Shri S. Nagappa: As the time-limit granted has not been in the interests of the people, will the Government at least assure the House that it will not grant any more time so far as Hyderabad is concerned?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: I do not think the House needs any assurance because the House knows that no more time will be given than is necessary.

NUMBER OF BRITISH OFFICERS SERVING THE INDIAN ARMY

268. *Seth Govinddas: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Defence be pleased to state how many British Officers in the Indian Army have agreed to serve in the Indian Army as volunteers under the Supreme Commander?

(b) How many British Officers have offered to serve in the Indian Army after the Supreme Command is liquidated?

(c) What conditions have been offered by Government to those British Officers who want to stay on in the Indian Army?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: (a) 1,204.

(b) and (c). The terms and conditions of service to be offered to British Officers are contained in the Press Communique which was issued on the 20th November 1947. It is too early to say how many British Officers will volunteer for service under these terms.

Seth Govind Das: With reference to clause (c) of the question, Sir, will Government see that first the option of taking officers is given to Indians and not British officers? If Indian officers are willing to come in the vacancies created, first Indians should be appointed and not British officers.

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: Yes, Sir, that is the policy of the Government.

STRENGTH OF STANDING ARMY AND RAISING OF NATIONAL MILITIA IN INDIA

269. *Seth Govinddas: Will the Honourable Minister of Defence be pleased to state:

(a) the strength of the standing army the Government of India propose to maintain in the Indian Union; and

(b) whether there is any proposal before the Government of India to raise a 'National Militia' soon?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: (a) and (b). The future strength and composition of the army, including requirements for second-line defence, are under consideration.

INDIA'S MEMBERSHIP OF 'EMPIRE DOLLAR POOL'.

270. *Seth Govindas: Will the Honourable Minister of Finance be pleased to state:

(a) whether Government are aware that India is still a member in the Empire Dollar Pool;

(b) whether there is any proposal to liquidate the above pool as a whole;

(c) the share India will get if the Empire Dollar Pool is abolished; and

(d) whether the Government of India propose to continue in the Empire Dollar Pool any further?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: In view of the complexity of this subject and of the fact that there is more than one question on the Order Paper today relating to it, I should like, with your permission, Sir, to make a full statement on the subject of the Empire Dollar Pool, which will cover this question and parts (b) and (c) of Question No. 277 and parts (a), (b) and (c) of Question No. 284.

2. The Empire Dollar Pool is a popular way of describing certain exchange arrangements which were in force between members of the Sterling Area. It was customary before the War for a large number of countries (generally referred to as the sterling bloc) to hold almost all their foreign exchange balances in London in the form of sterling. Sterling was then freely convertible into other currencies and therefore countries which held sterling balances could convert them at will into any currency which they happened to need for fulfilling their international obligations. With the outbreak of war and the increasing difficulty caused in securing the convertibility of sterling, this system assumed a degree of rigidity which had not been previously contemplated. By mutual agreement those members of the sterling bloc who continued to be members of what is now known as the Sterling Area sold all their surplus exchange to the Bank of England for sterling and agreed to impose restrictions on the expenditure of non-sterling foreign exchange in order to ensure that the limited resources of the Sterling Area in foreign currencies were utilised to the best advantage in the prosecution of war. The whole of the Sterling Area's holdings of foreign exchange were thus held in one Pool in the custody of the Bank of England and the British Treasury. As the United States dollar was the most important foreign currency in this Pool, this whole arrangement came to be known as the Empire dollar Pool.

3. The restrictions imposed on the expenditure of foreign exchange followed more or less a similar pattern in the whole of the Sterling Area and in this matter the members of the Sterling Area were guided largely by the advice of the Bank of England and the British Treasury. Individual members including India were however free to vary their policy within limits and the final judge of the essentiality of foreign expenditure was always the member country itself. When the Exchange Control of a member country granted the necessary authorisation, the British Treasury never questioned the decision that was taken.

4. From what I have stated above, it is obvious firstly that there is no definite date on which the Empire Dollar Pool was constituted, secondly that as long as the Sterling Area continues in the sense that a certain number of countries Pool their foreign exchange resources in London, the Empire Dollar Pool will also continue in existence and thirdly, that a country's connection with the Pool can only be terminated by its withdrawing from the membership of the Sterling Area.

5. India is still a member of the Sterling Area. It follows therefore that it is still a member of the Empire Dollar Pool. I should like however to point out that there is, as far as India is concerned, a quantitative difference between the incidents of India's membership of the Pool now and her membership of that pool before the coming into force of the Sterling Balances Agreement of the 14th August, 1947. Previously, though India could draw foreign exchange theoretically without limit of amount for all current transactions which she herself regarded as essential, she was bound in practice to abide by the convention for judging essentially common to the whole of the Sterling Area and in practice therefore her liberty to spend the more difficult currencies was often substantially restricted. Now India is free to follow her own independent policy with regard to what she will or will not purchase from countries outside the Sterling Area without regard to what the general policy of the Bank of England or the British Treasury may be. By virtue of this agreement however our right to withdrawal of dollars and other foreign currency is now limited to the amount of Sterling we may at any time have to our credit at the Reserve Bank's Account No. 1 at the Bank of England.

6. We have no information about the contributions made to or withdrawals made from the Dollar Pool by other members of the Sterling Area. We have however kept an account of India's earnings and expenditure of United States dollars and other difficult currencies, figures regarding which have been given to the House from time to time and more details regarding which I shall give to the House in my Budget Speech tomorrow.

7. As there is no likelihood of the Sterling Area being dissolved, it follows also that the Empire Dollar Pool will not be dissolved. If and when India decides to leave the Sterling Area she will also cease to be a member of the Pool and it will then be a question of negotiation as to the number of Dollars or other currencies she may take into her own possession at the time of her withdrawal. Whether or not India should leave the Sterling Area is a matter which will constantly engage attention.

Seth Govinddas: Will the Honourable Minister be pleased to state whether under the present circumstances the Government has considered whether it would be in the interests of India to remain a member of the Dollar Pool or to leave it?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: If the Honourable Member's question means whether it is in India's interests to remain a member of the Sterling Area, my answer is that just at present it is to our advantage to remain in the Sterling Area.

Mr. Speaker: In view of the technical nature of the subject and the long statement made in reply, and also in view of the fact stated just now by the Honourable Finance Minister that he is going to make a reference to it in his Budget speech tomorrow, I would request Honourable Members to study the statement rather than go into supplementaries now. That will save time for other questions. I do not mean to suggest that Members are not entitled to put supplementaries but I suggest this to save time.

RECRUITMENT TO INDIAN ADMINISTRATIVE SERVICES AT THE CENTRE AND IN PROVINCES

271. R. B. Lala Raj Kanwar: Will the Honourable Minister of Home Affairs be pleased to state:

(a) the total number of posts created in the Indian Administrative Service at the Centre and in the various Provinces;

(b) the distribution, so far made, at the Centre and each of the Provinces of members of that service; and

(c) the number of vacancies still remaining to be filled?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: (a) The fixation of the cadre strength of the Indian Administrative Service is still under consideration in consultation with the Provincial Governments. The Centre has no separate cadre but draws the officers required from provincial cadres.

(b) Officers who have so far been recruited to the Service have been allotted as follows: Assam 2, Bihar 7, Bombay 6, C. P. and Berar 6, Madras 14, Orissa 5, U. P. 20.

(c) The number of vacancies cannot be determined until the strength of the cadre is finally settled.

Shri H. V. Kamath: Sir, may I know on what basis the Provincial cadres have been created?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: The Provincial cadre is fixed on the basis of Provincial requirements including deputation reserve for the Centre.

REPRESENTATION OF ORISSA IN THE CENTRAL BOARD OF REVENUES

272. Shri Lakshminarayan Sahu: Will the Honourable Minister of Finance be pleased to state:

(a) whether there is any representative of Orissa in the Central Board of Revenue; and

(b) if the answer to part (a) above be in the negative, whether Government propose to have one representative from Orissa so far as Income-tax, Customs, and Central Excise, are concerned?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: (a) and (b). There is no officer in the Central Board of Revenue to represent any particular province as such. It is neither practicable nor desirable to have representatives in the Board on a provincial basis.

INCOME FROM SALE OF OPIUM IN ORISSA

273. Shri Lakshminarayan Sahu: Will the Honourable Minister of Finance be pleased to state:

(a) the total income from Opium in the Province of Orissa; and

(b) whether Government propose to give back to the Government of Orissa the whole income from the sale of Opium?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: (a) The Government of India do not derive any income from opium consumption in the provinces. The opium is sold to the Provincial Governments by the Central Government at cost price. The Provincial Governments derive revenue from the sale of opium by levying excise duty, licence fee etc., and the amount of revenue derived by the Government of Orissa during the calendar year 1946 was Rs. 55,36,414.

(b) The question of giving back to the Government of Orissa the whole income from opium sale, therefore, does not arise.

RECRUITMENT AND TRAINING OF CADETS AT DEHRA DUN

274. Prof. N. G. Ranga: Will the Honourable Minister of Defence be pleased to state:

(a) the procedure to be adopted by the parents who are anxious to send their sons to Dehra Dun to be trained there as Cadets;

(b) whether the political suffering and opinion of parents are any longer a bar to the admission of their children;

(c) whether it is proposed to recruit a larger number of Cadets and if so how many; and

(d) what is the total capacity of the college at Dehra Dun to train the cadets?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: (a) Parents who are desirous of sending their sons to the Indian Military Academy, Dehra Dun, have to submit their applications to the local military authorities.

(b) No, Sir.

(c) 210 Cadets will be admitted to the next course.

(d) 680.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: Sir, arising from the answer to clause (b), when the various cadets have the same qualifications, will the Government consider the desirability of choosing those persons who suffered for the cause of the independence of India?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: Sir, there is no bar—previously there was some kind of bar against those who had taken part in the political agitation—but there is absolutely none now.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: I am asking the Honourable Member if, instead of being merely satisfied with the passive removal of the bar, whether Government will actively consider helping those persons or choosing them as cadets, provided they have got the same qualifications as others, if their parents had suffered for the cause of India's freedom.

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: Well, Sir, I have stated the policy which is followed at present. The question raised by the Honourable Member is a matter of policy. If the Government adopt it, I will of course have no objection.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Will Government consider the advisability of taking such a decision?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: If it is the desire of the House, Sir, I will certainly put it before the Government.

Shri M. S. Aney: May I ask, Sir, whether admission is confined to the qualification of the candidates to be admitted or the qualification of the parents or guardians of the candidate?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: I have not followed the question.

Shri H. V. Kamath: Sir, do Government propose to train suitable women in the future?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: There is such scheme at present.

Diwan Chaman Lal: May I know whether the total number of vacancies to be filled at the Dehra Dun College are sufficient to meet the requirements of the Army?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: No, Sir. We are short of officers and this 210 is the maximum number we can take at present.

Diwan Chaman Lal: May I ask my friend what arrangements Government are making to provide facilities in order to get the requisite number of cadets?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: The House will remember there is another Report—the National War Academy Report—which will come before the Government very soon which if adopted will meet the total requirements of the Army.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: What is the maximum age limit and other qualification required for the cadets?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: Cadets should be between the age of 18 and 21 and should have passed the Matriculation examination in 1st or 2nd division.

MEASURES FOR PROTECTION OF BORDER AREAS.

275. *Prof. N. G. Ranga: Will the Honourable Minister of Defence be pleased to state:

(a) whether any attempts are being made to develop the border areas' protection policy in the post August 15th set up;

(b) whether any Committee of experts has been appointed to examine the matter; and

(c) whether any special steps are being taken or are proposed to be taken to constitute Civic Guards and invite the voluntary co-operation of the youth of the provinces of the border areas to join the Civic Guards?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: (a) Yes, Sir. The adequacy of the defence of the new frontiers is constantly under examination and suitable steps are being taken.

(b) The Defence Committee of the Cabinet assisted by the Chiefs of Staff Committee is considering the matter.

(c) The constitution of Civic Guards and voluntary youth organisations for internal security duties is primarily a Provincial responsibility. The question of creating an adequate secondling defence capable of supplementing the regular Armed Forces in the event of an emergency is, however, under the active consideration of the Government of India.

Shri Balkrishna Sharma: May I know if the Government are aware that a few weeks ago the Provincial Governments were always complaining that they did not receive any assistance by way of supply of arms for the home guards which the Provincial Governments were recruiting?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: All the requirements of arms of all the Provinces have been met, Sir.

گیانی گورمکھ سنگھ مسافر: کیا گورنمنٹ اس بات کی ضرورت محسوس کرتی ہے یا اس پر غور کریگی بارڈر کے اضلاع میں ہر ایک بالغ مرد کے لئے فوجی ٹریننگ لازمی قرار دی جائے؟

Giani Gurmukh Singh Musafir: Do Government feel the necessity or will it consider over the matter for prescribing compulsory military training for every adult residing in the border districts?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: That is the responsibility of Provincial Governments.

Shrimati G. Durgabai: May I know from the Honourable Member as to what steps Government are taking to utilise the services of women in the various branches of the defence of the country?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: I am afraid, Sir, it is not possible for me to give a reply to this question, but wherever Government can make use of the services of women they are doing it.

INDIAN RESEARCH SCHOLARS SENT TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES

276. *Prof. N. G. Ranga: Will the Honourable Minister of Education be pleased to state:

(a) whether Sir Ardeskar Dalal's scheme of sending 400 Indian scholars each year to other countries for research is still being pursued;

(b) if so, how many scholars were sent and to what countries in the years 1946-47 and 1947-48 and at what cost; and

(c) whether there are any scholars chosen to be sent to U.S.A., who are still being held up in India for want of shipping facilities or seats in American Universities, and if so, how many?

MEASURES FOR BUILDING UP OF INDIA'S FOREIGN EXCHANGE RESOURCES

277. *Prof. N. G. Ranga: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of Finance be pleased to state what steps are being taken to build up our Foreign Exchange resources?

(b) What have been the results for India on account of the dissolution of the Empire Dollar Pool?

(c) What is India's present position in regard to her Dollar Exchange?

(d) Are any negotiations being carried on with U.S.A. for any lend and lease agreement?

(e) Are the World Bank and Monetary Fund being approached by India for suitable accommodation in order to make large scale purchases of industrial machinery in America?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: (a) Government are considering every possible method of building up foreign exchange resources by expansion of export trade and suitable restriction of expenditure of foreign currency and remittances. The Honourable Member is no doubt aware of the enactment of the Foreign Exchange Regulation Act earlier this year and of the series of orders revising our import control policy. The object of all these measures is to ensure the utilisation of our foreign exchange resources economically and to the best advantage of the country.

(b) and (c) I would invite the Honourable Member's attention to the statement I have made in reply to starred question No. 270.

(d) No.

(e) The matter is receiving the attention of Government.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Is any effort being made by Government to represent to the Government of the United States of America to see that the Marshall's Plan for assistance to European countries in regard to their industrial development is also extended to the Eastern countries?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: Sir, Government will examine in due course whether it is necessary and advisable to approach the Government of the United States for any help in implementing the industrial or economic programme of our country.

Shri K. Santhanam: May I know if it is the policy of the Government of India that all foreign exchange earned by this country should be held in the Bank of England only?

The Honourable Shri Shanmukham Chetty: That was explained by me in the Statement that I made. So long as we are the members of the Sterling Area, they are all credited in the first instance as sterling in the Bank of England.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Is there any statute which binds us down to this arrangement that all our resources in sterling should be kept with the Bank of England merely because of our membership of the Sterling Area?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: There is no statutory obligation. It is purely a voluntary arrangement amongst certain countries.

Prof. Shibban Lal Saksena: Will the Honourable Minister state whether it is to the best advantage of India now to remain a member of the Sterling Pool?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: As I explained in the Statement, Sir, we are constantly examining whether it is advantageous for us to continue to be members of the Sterling Area and the moment we find that it is against our advantage we shall, at that moment, leave it.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: It is not one of the obligations of membership of the International Monetary Fund that our sterling should be pooled like this?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: No Sir.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Is the Honourable Member aware of the fact that his predecessor had definitely stated in this House that as soon as our negotiations in regard to this World Monetary Fund were over, India's membership of the Pool would cease?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: I am not aware, but I take the Honourable Member's word for it.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Then, how is it, that inspite of those assurances given by the previous Finance Member, the Government of India even today consider it incumbent on herself to remain a member of this Empire Dollar Pool?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: When the International Monetary Fund was created, so many economic consequences were expected to follow from it, but the actual consequences that have followed are very different from the expectations.

Shri K. Santhanam: May I know if it is not one of the conditions of the Anglo-American Dollar Agreement that the Empire Pool should be abolished within one year of a certain date?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: But does the Honourable Member know that the clause relating to Multi-lateral convertibility of sterling arising out of the Anglo-American Agreement has now been suspended?

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Will Government consider the advisability of convening a meeting of those members of this House who happen to be members of the earlier House and who happened to be members of a separate Committee appointed for the purpose by the previous Finance Member?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: Do I understand the Honourable Member to mean that he wants me to convene a Committee of this House and discuss with them the question of the advisability of remaining in the Sterling Area?

Prof. N. G. Ranga: Yes.

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: I am always willing and ready to take the advice of the members of this House and if such a standing committee had been constituted, I shall certainly convene a meeting of such members of that Committee as survive in this House.

An Honourable Member: Why only they? With more members from this House.

CONSTITUTION OF THE COMMODITIES PRICES BOARD

278. *Shri K. Santhanam: Will the Honourable Minister of Finance be pleased to state:

(a) when the Commodities Prices Board was appointed and who were the members;

(b) when and why the members resigned;

(c) whether the Board has been abolished;

(d) whether any report was submitted by the Board; and

(e) if the answer to part (d) above be in the affirmative, whether the report will be published?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: (a) The Commodities Prices Board was constituted in February 1947 with Mr. A. D. Gorwala, C.I.E., I.C.S., as President and Professor D. R. Gadgil as Member with provision for the appointment of another Member.

(b) Mr. Gadgil submitted his resignation on the 15th July 1947 and Mr. Gorwala on the 29th September 1947. The reason given by the Members for their resignations, was, among other things, that their views in respect of certain points were not accepted by Government.

(c) The resignations of the Members of the Board have been accepted and the Board has accordingly ceased to function for the present.

(d) The Board submitted in all ten reports.

(e) One report about the prices of rabi-grains and pulses has already been published. Another report on the control of prices of Vanaspati is under print and will shortly be published. Their general report regarding integrated controls has been released for publication. The advisability of publication of the other reports is under consideration.

Shri K. Santhanam: May I know, Sir, if the Honourable Member is aware that a Commodities Prices Board was one of the vital recommendations of the Famine Enquiry Commission?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: Yes. I have not read the Famine Commission report, but I am willing to admit the statement made by the Honourable Member.

Shri K. Santhanam: Will the Honourable Member consider whether it is not desirable for the country to have a Board and re-establish the Board, if necessary with new Members?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: The need for examining the question of commodity prices is certainly recognised, but it is quite possible that Government might refer this question to other bodies who are already at the service of Government. For instance, there is a Tariff Board, and in fact, recently the question of textile prices has been referred to that Board.

Shri K. Santhanam: Is the Honourable Member of the opinion that the Tariff Board is competent to deal with agricultural prices?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: It is competent to deal with any relevant question referred to that Board.

Shri K. Santhanam: Is the Honourable Member of the opinion that the qualifications of the Members were fixed with a view to consider such matters?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: The qualifications of the Members were considered from the point of view of their ability to discharge their duties.

Shri M. Ananthasayanam Ayyangar: Will the Honourable Minister of Finance be pleased to state why it was considered necessary to appoint a separate Board when the Honourable Member was the President of the Tariff Board and was quite competent to deal with this matter?

The Honourable Shri R. K. Shanmukham Chetty: Because I had no hand in the appointment of the Commodities Prices Board.

Mr. Speaker: The Question Hour is over.

(c) Do Government propose to consider the advisability of asking the Provincial governments to set up suitable committees to dispose of the material by sale or by giving them free to houseless people and scheduled castes in their respective provinces?

The Honourable Sardar Baldev Singh: (a) No, Sir. If in any particular case materials are strewn about, they are probably the property of the purchaser pending removal.

(b) Does not arise.

(c) Disposal in different ways is already taking place. Several military buildings and camps, not immediately required by the Defence Services, have lately been transferred, as a temporary measure, to Provincial Governments and other authorities for housing refugees.

(c) and (d) Yes, Sir. The whole question is under the consideration of Government.

(e) In the early stages of the fighting in the Srinagar Valley, Mr. M. Z. Kiani of the Indian National Army was reported to be in general control of the raiders but we have not been able to substantiate this report.

308. *Shri Basanta Kumar Das: Will the Honourable Minister of Home Affairs be pleased to state:

(a) whether a distinction is still being made between graduates, diploma-holders and certificate holders of the National Colleges, Schools and other educational institutions started without seeking Government recognition during the different national movements such as the Swadeshi and non-cooperation movements and those of the universities and other Government recognised institutions in the matter of appointment in service; and

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: (a) and (b) Minimum standards of educational qualifications have been prescribed for appointment to different services. 310. *Pandit Mukut Bihari Lal Bhargava: (a) Will the Honourable Minister of States be pleased to state the conditions on which certain villages formerly included in the British province of Aimer-Merwara were retroceded to the Mewar and Marwar States in the year 1938?

(b) Was it one of the conditions that these retroceded villages will continue to be governed by laws in force in these tracts while being a part of Aimer-Merwara?

(c) Was it also one of the conditions that all the beneficial and reformist laws enforced in Ajmer-Merwara, from time to time, shall be made applicable to these retroceded tracts also?

(d) If the answer to parts (b) and (c) above be in the affirmative, are Government aware that these conditions are being violated by the Mewar and Marwar States, and that there is great resentment and dissatisfaction amongst the inhabitants of these tracts against the treatment accorded to them by the Mewar and Marwar states?

(3) That the existing revenue staff, from Tehsildar down to Patwari, and the Police staff, from Inspector down to constable, will be taken over by the Darbar under the usual terms applicable to Government lent servants and all who continue to serve satisfactorily will be kept in service till they are qualified for pension and their successors in office will also be duly qualified persons.

(b) Do Government propose to take up the question of the abolition of this tax with the Sirohi State?

The Honourable Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel: The matter relates entirely to the internal administration of the State.

EFFICIENCY OF POLICE FORCE IN AJMER-MERWARA

(b) Are Government aware that the efficiency of the Police Force has been weakened owing to the resignation of a very large number of Muslim officials, Head constable and constables?

(c) If so, what steps have been taken by Government so far to see that the efficiency of the Police Force is not affected in any way?

(g) Do Government propose to consider the advisability of organising Home Guard in the province on the lines similar to those in other provinces? If not, why not?

In spite of the depletion the police forces have however been able to cope with emergencies that have arisen satisfactorily. Military aid has been, and can be, called in wherever necessary. Fresh recruitment to the police forces is being carried on vigorously and Government have every hope that the deficiency in the force would be soon made up.

(g) The question is being examined.

SHORT NOTICE QUESTION AND ANSWER

STATEMENT ON EVENTS IN KASHMIR

Diwan Chaman Lall: Will the Honourable the Prime Minister be pleased to make a statement regarding the events in Kashmir?

Mr. Speaker: I may make one point clear to the Honourable Members. It has been the practice followed by me in this House that, in cases of requests for statements, no supplementaries are allowed when a statement is made.

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru: I am glad to have this opportunity of explaining to the House the course of events that have led to our intervention in Kashmir with the aid of armed forces, and the attitude of the Government of India to the grave problems that have arisen in that State.

2. The House is aware that on the lapse of Crown Prerogative on the 15th August, this year, Kashmir did not accede to either Dominion. We were of course vitally interested in the decision that the State would take. Kashmir, because of her geographical position with her frontiers with three countries, namely, the Soviet Union, China and Afghanistan, is intimately connected with the security and international contacts of India. Economically also Kashmir is intimately related to India. The caravan trade routes from Central Asia to India pass through Kashmir State.

3. Nevertheless we did not put the slightest pressure on the State to accede to the Indian Dominion because we realised that Kashmir was in a very difficult position. We did not want a mere accession from the top but an association in accordance with the will of her people. Indeed we did not encourage any rapid decision. Even in regard to a standstill agreement no speedy steps were taken by us although the matter was under consideration, even though Kashmir had entered into a Standstill agreement with Pakistan soon after the 15th August.

4. We learnt later that serious external pressure was being applied on Kashmir by the Pakistan authorities refusing to send to Kashmir supplies vital to the needs of the people, such as foodgrains, salt, sugar and petrol. Thus an attempt was being made to strangle Kashmir economically and force her to accede to Pakistan. This pressure was serious because it was not easy for Kashmir to obtain these essential supplies from India on account of the difficulty of communications.

5. In September news reached us that tribesmen of the North West Frontier Province were being collected and sent to the Kashmir border. In the beginning of October events took a grave turn. Armed bands moved into Jammu Province from the neighbouring districts of West Punjab, committed serious acts of depredation on the local inhabitants, burnt villages and towns and put a large number of people to death. Refugees from these areas poured into Jammu.

6. On the Jammu side of the border the local inhabitants, who are chiefly Hindu and Rajput in that area, took retaliatory measures and drove out the Muslims living in those border villages. In these border conflicts a very large number of villages were destroyed or burnt by both parties on either side of the frontier.

7. The raiders from West Punjab into Jammu Province were increased in numbers and spread out over that Province. The Kashmir State Army which had to meet these raids at numerous points soon found itself broken into small fragments and gradually ceased to be a fighting force. The raiders were highly organised, had competent officers and modern arms. They succeeded in occupying a considerable part of Jammu Province, more especially in the Poonch Area Poonch town, Mirpur, Kotli and some other places held out.

8. About this time the State authorities asked us to supply them with arms and ammunition. We agreed to do so in the normal course. But in fact no supply was made till events took a more serious turn. Even at this stage no mention was made of accession to India.

9. The leader of the popular organisation in Kashmir, Shaikh Mohammad Abdullah, President of the Kashmir National Conference, was released from prison during this period and we discussed the situation in Kashmir with him as well as with representatives of the Maharaja of Kashmir. We made it clear to both of them that while we would welcome the accession of Kashmir we did not want any hurried or forced accession and we would rather wait for the people to decide. Shaikh Abdullah was himself of this opinion.

10. On the 24th October we heard that large armed bands consisting both of tribesmen from the Frontier and ex-service men had broken through Muzaffarabad and were marching to Srinagar. These raiders had crossed Pakistan territory and they were equipped with Bren Guns, Machine Guns, Mortars and

20. In order to establish our bona fides we have suggested that when the people are given the chance to decide their future this should be done under the supervision of an impartial tribunal such as the United Nations Organisation.

21. The issue in Kashmir is whether violence and naked force should decide the future or the will of the people. The raiders encouraged by Pakistan have sought to enforce by the sword accession to Pakistan against the obvious wishes of large numbers of the people in Kashmir. We cannot permit a success of this method to achieve political ends. It is a tragedy that Pakistan should ally itself to such methods instead of devoting herself to the urgent tasks of economic and social reconstruction.

22. Kashmir has gone through fire and I am sure that the House would like me to communicate their sympathy to the people of Kashmir for the tribulations they have been going through in recent weeks. This fair land which nature has made so lovely has been desecrated by people who have indulged in murder, arson, loot and foul attacks on women and children. The people have suffered greatly from shortage of the most vital necessities of life and yet, under the inspiring lead of Shaikh Abdullah, they have stood together in the hour of calamity and showed to the rest of India an example of what communal unity can achieve. Whatever the future may hold, this chapter in the history of Kashmir will be worth reading and we shall never regret that in their hour of distress we have been able to be of assistance to this gallant people. Kashmir and India have been bound together in many ways from ages past. These last few weeks have forged a new link which none can sunder.

New Delhi, the 30th May, 1947

DECLARATION OF EXEMPTION

In exercise of the powers conferred by section 6 of the Registration of Foreigners Act, 1939 (XVI of 1939), the Central Government is pleased to declare that the provisions of the Registration of Foreigners Rules, 1939, except rule 3 and such of the provisions of rules 4, 14, 15 and 16 as apply to, or in relation to, passengers and visitors, who are not foreigners shall not apply to, or in relation to, Miss Marie E. F. SINGH,

Assistant Secretary to the Government of India

Flame-throwers and had at their disposal a large number of transport vehicles. They moved rapidly down the Valley, sacking and burning and looting all along the way. We gave earnest consideration to this situation in our Defence Committee on the 25th and 26th October. The position on the 26th morning was that the raiders were marching towards Srinagar and there was no military detachment capable of stopping them. They had been stopped for two days near Uri by the State forces under a gallant commander who resisted this advance to the point of death. These two days thus gained were very valuable.

11. We were asked at this stage both on behalf of the Maharaja and Shaikh Abdullah to accept the accession of the State to the Indian Union and to intervene with the armed forces of the Union. An immediate decision was necessary, and in fact it is now clear that if we had delayed the decision even by 24 hours Srinagar would have fallen and would have suffered the tragic fate that befell Muzafarabad, Baramula and other places. It was clear to us that we could not possibly accept under any circumstances this ruin of Kashmir by brutal and irresponsible raiders. This would have been a surrender to frightfulness and fanaticism of the worst type and it would have had the most serious consequences all over India. To intervene at that stage was no easy matter and was full of risks and danger. Yet we decided to face this risk and intervene because any other course would have meant ruin to Kashmir and greater danger to India.

12. In accepting the accession however we made it perfectly clear to the Maharaja that his Government must be carried on in future according to the popular will and that Shaikh Abdullah should be charged with the formation of an interim government on the new model adopted in Mysore. Shaikh Abdullah, in our opinion, had undoubtedly the support of the large majority of the people of Kashmir, Muslims, Hindus and Sikhs. Further we made it clear that as soon as law and order had been restored in Kashmir and her soil cleared of the invaders, the question of the State's accession should be settled by reference to the people.

13. I shall not detain the House by dealing with the course of the military campaign that followed. The facts are well-known and redound to the credit of our military organisation, our troops and our airmen. It must be remembered also that our operations have been very largely based on air transport in difficult circumstances. Our civil air-lines and their air-crews functioned with remarkable success.

14. One fact however which contributed to our success at least as much as the military operations was the maintenance, under the leadership of Shaikh Abdullah, of the civil administration and the morale of the civil population. The civil population, completely unarmed, with the enemy within a few miles of the city, behaved in a manner which showed extraordinary courage and coolness. They did so because they had a great leader and because Hindus, Muslims and Sikhs all joined together under him to throw back the enemy and to save Kashmir, their common heritage. This fact is one of the most remarkable events of recent times in India and one from which the rest of the country may take a profitable lesson. It was certainly a factor of the most vital importance in the saving of Srinagar.

15. The present position is that our troops have relieved Poonch and are within 8 miles of Kotli. The terrain in which they are functioning is difficult and mountainous and the roads and approaches have been destroyed by the raiders. Progress is therefore slow. In this Poonch area occupied by the raiders several massacres of the non-muslim inhabitants have taken place involving large numbers of persons.

16. I should like to say here that certain events happened near Jammu early in November which I regret very deeply. The Muslim convoys of evacuees were being taken away from Jammu when they were attacked by non-muslim refugees and others and a large number of casualties were inflicted. The troops escorting them did not play a creditable role. I might add that none of our troops were present or had anything to do with this. We have issued the most stringent orders to our troops to protect the people, to function with impartiality and indeed to make friends with the local population. I am glad to say that they have carried out these instructions.

17. The House is aware that the Pakistan Government has protested emphatically against our action in Kashmir. In doing so they have used language which is not becoming in any government and have alleged fraud and conspiracy on our part. I need only say that I am completely convinced that every action that the Government of India have taken in regard to Kashmir has been straight and above board and I can defend it at any time before the world. We have indeed been over-scrupulous in this matter so that nothing may be done in the passion of the moment which might be wrong. The behaviour of our army has all along been good and worthy of our traditions.

18. I cannot say this of the Pakistan Government. Their case is that the genesis of the trouble was extensive killing of Muslims in Eastern Punjab and Kashmir and that the raid on Kashmir was a spontaneous reaction to this on the part of the tribesmen. I think this is completely untrue. I regret deeply that in parts of Jammu province Muslims were killed and driven out. This of course has had nothing to do with our government or our forces. But this mutual killing has been a very tragic feature during these past months in the Punjab, and Jammu was powerfully affected by this. We have sufficient evidence in our possession to demonstrate that the whole business of the Kashmir raids both in Jammu province and in Kashmir proper deliberately organised by high officials of the Pakistan Government. They helped the tribesmen and ex-servicemen to collect, they supplied them with implements of war, with lorries, with petrol and with officers. They are continuing to do so. Indeed their high officials openly declare so. It is obvious that no large body of men could cross Pakistan territory in armed groups without the goodwill, connivance and active help of the authorities there. It is impossible to escape the conclusion that the raids on Kashmir were carefully planned and well organised by the Pakistan authorities with the deliberate object of seizing the State by force and then declaring accession to Pakistan. This was an act of hostility not only to Kashmir but to the Indian Union. It is only necessary to see the semi-official organs of the Muslim League and the Pakistan Government to find out the attitude of that government. If we had allowed this scheme to succeed, we would have been guilty of betrayal of the people of Kashmir and a grave dereliction of duty to India. The results of these on the communal and political situation all over India would have been disastrous.

19. The Pakistan Government have proposed a simultaneous withdrawal of our forces and the raiders from Kashmir. This was a strange proposal and could only mean that the raiders were there at the instance of the Pakistan Government. We cannot treat with free-booters who have murdered large numbers of people and tried to ruin Kashmir. They are not a State although a state may be behind them. We have gone to Kashmir to protect the people and as soon as this duty is discharged our forces need not remain there and we shall withdraw our forces. We cannot desert the people of Kashmir till danger is passed. If the Pakistan Government is sincere they can stop the entry of these raiders and thus accelerate the return of peace and order. After that let the people of Kashmir decide and we shall accept their decision. But if this armed conflict continues no opportunity is given for the people to decide by peaceful means and the decision gradually takes shape by the sacrifice and power of the people in this conflict.

[सेठ गोविन्ददास]

है। मैं इन कठिनाइयों को महसूस करता हूँ और मंजूर करता हूँ कि कठिनाइयाँ हैं। लेकिन अनेक चीज़ें ऐसी भी हैं जो इस समय उपलब्ध हैं, काफी तादाद में और उन चीज़ों का उपयोग इन पुरानी बोगियों में हो सकता है।

फर्स्ट क्लास अब तक चल रहा है। मेरी समझ में यह बात नहा आता कि माननीय मंत्री के इस बात के वचन देने के बाद भी कि फर्स्ट क्लास वे बहुत जल्द समाप्त करेंगे, और इस एसेम्बली के वर्षों तक यह मांग करने पर भी कि फर्स्ट क्लास की इस देश में आवश्यकता नहीं है अब तक फर्स्ट क्लास क्यों चला जा रहा है? कम से कम जब कि हवाई जहाज चल रहे हैं और जो ऊँचे क्लास के लोग कहलाते हैं उन्हें हवाई जहाज से यात्रा करने की सुविधा है तो ऐसी दशा में फर्स्ट क्लास की यात्रा जारी क्यों रखी जाय। मैं आशा करता हूँ कि फर्स्ट क्लास जल्द से जल्द समाप्त किये जायेंगे और उनके स्थान पर दूसरी बोगियाँ बढ़ाई जावेंगी जिसमें भीड़ भाड़ में कमी हो सके।

जहाँ तक शरणार्थियों की यात्रा का सवाल है, मैं कहना चाहता हूँ कि शरणार्थी एक प्रांत से दूसरे प्रांत ले जाये जायेंगे। मेरा माननीय मंत्री से इस संबंध में कहना है कि जहाँ तक शरणार्थी लोगों के आवागमन का संबंध है वहाँ शरणार्थी स्पेशल ट्रेनों द्वारा ही ले जाये जायें। वे साधारण ट्रेनों द्वारा न ले जाएँ।

एंजिन बनाने की क्या व्यवस्था हो रही है मैं नहीं जानता। विदेशी सरकार ने केवल एंजिन ही नहीं बल्कि किसी प्रकार की मशीनरी इस देश में न बन सके इसका सदा ध्यान रखा है। मैं आशा करता हूँ कि जो एंजिनों की हालत इस देश में हो गई है, उसे देखते हुए इस बात का प्रबंध किया जायगा कि इस देश में जल्द से जल्द ही एंजिन तैयार हों। इस समय जो गाड़ियाँ बहुत बिलंब से पहुँचती हैं और कुछ गाड़ियों की देर से पहुँचने की शोहरत हो गई है, जैसे "ग्रैंड ट्रंक एक्सप्रेस" इसका प्रधान कारण एंजिनों का ठीक अवस्था में न होना है। मैं आशा करता हूँ कि स्वतंत्र भारत में नई मशीनरी के साथ एंजिन भी बनाये जायेंगे।

नई लाइनों का भी सवाल है। मेरे प्रांत में कई ऐसी जगह अब भी मौजूद हैं जहाँ पर बहुत दिनों से यह कहा जाता है कि नई लाइनें डाली जायेंगी, मोटर गेज की जगह पर ब्राड गेज का इस्तेमाल किया जायगा। माननीय सदस्य शायद जानते होंगे कि मध्य प्रांत के दो प्रधान नगर नागपुर और जबलपुर के बीच में नजदीकी रास्ते से मोटर गेज है। वहाँ ब्राड गेज नहीं है। इसका फल यह है कि जब जबलपुर और नागपुर के बीच में मोटर सिर्फ छः घंटों के अंदर पहुँचती है तब ट्रेन से कोई जाना चाहे तो उसको पूरे १६ घंटे लगते हैं। आप स्वयं सोच सकते हैं कि कितना बड़ा अंतर दोनों प्रकार की यात्रा में है। मैं माननीय मंत्री से निवेदन करना चाहूँगा कि जबलपुर और नागपुर के बीच में मोटर गेज के स्थान पर ब्राड गेज होना चाहिये। कितने ही स्थान मध्य प्रांत में ऐसे हैं जहाँ नई लाइनों की नितांत आवश्यकता है। स्टेशनों में परिवर्तन होने की जरूरत

है। मेरे प्रांत में नागपुर स्टेशन को छोड़ कर, सारे स्टेशन पूर्ववत् हैं, जबलपुर स्टेशन भी। मेरी उम्र इस समय ५० से ज्यादा है और करीब चालीस वर्ष से, जब से मुझको होश आया है तब से मैं देखता हूँ कि जबलपुर स्टेशन की हालत आज तक वही है जो पहले थी। इस वक्त जबलपुर की आबादी ६० हजार से बढ़कर करीब तीन लाख तक पहुँच गई है। कई बार यह कहा गया है कि जबलपुर में एक नये स्टेशन की आवश्यकता है और

माननीय मंत्री ने यह आश्वासन भी दिया था कि जबलपुर में बहुत जल्दी ही एक नया स्टेशन बनाया जाने वाला है। मगर इसकी अवस्था वैसी ही है। और जल्दी कोई स्टेशन के कार्य आरंभ होने के आसार नहीं दिखाई देते।

माननीय मंत्री जानते हैं कि सागर में एक विश्वविद्यालय स्थापित हो गया है। वहाँ का स्टेशन अजीब तरह से बनाया गया है। शहर जाने के लिए पहले लाइन को फाँदना पड़ता है। जिस प्रकार का विचित्र स्टेशन सागर बना हुआ है शायद ही हिंदुस्तान में ऐसा कोई स्टेशन बना होगा। इस स्टेशन में परिवर्तन की बड़ी आवश्यकता है। मैं सभा का बहुत अधिक समय नहीं लेना चाहता। शायद एक दो मिनट मेरे रह गये हैं। मगर मैं एक बार फिर माननीय मंत्री को इस स्वतंत्र भारत के प्रथम यातायात बजट को पेश करने के लिए बधाई देता हूँ और आशा करता हूँ कि स्वतंत्र भारत में यातायात में बहुत शीघ्र सुधार किये जायेंगे।

(English translation of the above speech)

Seth Govinddas (C. P. and Berar : General): Mr. Speaker, in this free India today, after attaining our freedom, I am delighted to speak in Hindi, our national language. For about 23 years I have been a member of this Legislative Assembly, and all this time I have had to constantly speak in a foreign language. Today I have the good fortune of speaking in my national language, in my free country.

I congratulate the Honourable Minister for Transport for being the first to present in Free India the Budget for the Railways, the most important means of transport.

So far as the budget is concerned, we can examine it from different points of view. Some people object to the repeated increase in the railway fares. Last budget also included an increase in the fares. At that time I said that it was not fair to increase the fares of the different classes in the same proportion. I am glad to find that my suggestion has been put into practice, and that the new increase in fares takes into consideration the different classes. It would have been better if the fares of the third class had not been increased at all. But, if it was not possible, the third class passengers would at least have the satisfaction that if they have to pay something in excess, the Inter class passengers have to pay more than they, while those who travel in second class pay still more and those who make journeys in the first class pay even more than those who go by the second.

So far as it is the question of making good the deficit, I would like to say that increase in the railway fares should not be the only means. We should use other means too. We are no doubt of the opinion that so far as the low paid staff is concerned we should not make any reduction in their salaries; but with regard to the higher posts I would like to request the Honourable Minister that first of all he should retrench the very old employees, and secondly that new recruits to the superior services should be given lower salaries than are admissible to them at present. The difference of salaries between the senior

THE RAILWAY BUDGET—GENERAL DISCUSSION

FIRST STAGE

Mr. Speaker: The House will now proceed with the General Discussion of the Railway Budget. Before the General Discussion of the Railway Budget commences, I have to announce to the House that under Rule 46, I fix the time limit for speeches as 15 minutes for each Honourable Member excepting the Honourable Minister of Railways for whom 45 minutes or more will be allowed, if necessary.

सेठ गोविन्द दास : सभापति जी, इस स्वतन्त्र भारत में स्वतन्त्रता प्राप्त करने के बाद आज राष्ट्र-भाषा हिंदी में बोलने से मुझे बड़ा आनंद हो रहा है। मैं लगभग २३ वर्षों से इस धारा सभा का सदस्य रहा हूं और इन २३ वर्षों से लगातार विदेशी भाषा बोलते बोलते आज स्वतंत्र भारत में मुझे राष्ट्रभाषा बोलने का सौभाग्य प्राप्त हो रहा है।

मैं यातायात के मंत्री महोदय को, उन्होंने यातायात के मुख्यसाधन रेलवे का जो बजट स्वतंत्र भारत में सर्व प्रथम उपस्थित किया है, उसके लिए वधाई देना चाहता हूं। जहां तक बजट का सम्बन्ध है, उसे अलग अलग दृष्टियों से देखा जा सकता है। कई लोग जो किरायों में फिर से वृद्धि की गई है उस पर आपत्ति करते हैं। गत बजट में भी किरायों में वृद्धि ई थी, और मैंने उस समय यह निवेदन किया था कि सब दरजों के किरायों में एक सी वृद्धि होना उचित नहीं है। मुझे यह देखकर हर्ष हो रहा है कि मेरे उस सुझाव पर ध्यान दिया गया, और अब जो वृद्धि किरायों में हुई है वह दरजों में भेद रख कर की गई है। अच्छा होता यदि तीसरे दरजे के किराये में कोई वृद्धि न की गई होती। परन्तु यदि यह संभव नहीं था तो कम से कम तीसरे दरजे के यात्रियों को इस बात पर संतोष होगा कि यदि उन्हें कुछ अधिक देना पड़ रहा है तो उनकी अपेक्षा इन्टर में मुसाफिरी करने वालों को उनसे अधिक 'सेकेन्ड क्लास में मुसाफिरी करने वालों को उनसे अधिक' और फर्स्ट क्लास में मुसाफिरी करने वालों को उनसे भी अधिक देना पड़ रहा है।

जहां तक घाटे को पूरा करने का सम्बन्ध है, वहां तक मैं यह कहना चाहता हूं कि किरायों में वृद्धि के अतिरिक्त और भी कुछ उपाय काम में लाने चाहिये। हम लोग इस पक्ष के तो अवश्य हैं कि जहां तक नीचे दरजे की नौकरियों का संबंध है वहां तक उनके वेतन में कोई कमी न हो, परन्तु जहां तक ऊंची नौकरियों का संबंध है, मैं माननीय मंत्री से निवेदन करना चाहता हूं कि कुछ तो उनमें से जो बहुत पुराने नौकर हैं उनकी छंटनी होनी चाहिये और ऊंचे दरजों की नौकरियों पर जो नियुक्ति की जाय उनको वेतन जो इस समय मिल रहा है उससे बहुत कम होना चाहिये। नीचे दरजे और ऊंचे दरजे की नौकरियों के वेतन में इस देश में जितना अंतर इस समय सब विभागों में देखा जाता है वह वांछनीय नहीं है। हमें नीचे दरजों और ऊंचे दरजों दोनों को निकट लाना है। नीचे दरजों को उठाना है, ऊंचे दर्जों को गिराना है और इस प्रकार दोनों में जो अन्तर रहता है उसको कम से कम कर देना है।

जहां तक यात्रियों की सुविधा का संबंध है मैं माननीय मंत्री से कहना चाहता हूं कि इस संबंध में अभी कुछ भी नहीं हुआ है। आज कल ट्रेनों में भीड़ भाड़ अवश्य कम हो गई है, परन्तु इसका कारण कुछ दूसरा ही है। इसका कारण यह नहीं है कि ट्रेनों की संख्या में वृद्धि हुई है या ट्रेनों में जो बोगियां लगाई जाती हैं वे अधिक लगाई जा रही हैं। इसका प्रधान कारण यह है कि सांप्रदायिक दंगे जो चारों तरफ हुए उनके कारण लोगों ने यात्रा कम कर दी। मैं माननीय मंत्री जी से कहना चाहता हूं कि परिस्थिति के साधारण स्थिति पर आते ही फिर से वे देखेंगे कि भीड़ भाड़ का वही हाल हो जायगा जो अब तक रहा है। इसलिए इस संबंध में कुछ और होना आवश्यक है। इसके सिवा यात्रियों की दूसरी सुविधाओं का भी अभी वही हाल है। बहुत कम बोगियां ऐसी रहती हैं जिनमें पूरी बत्तियों का प्रबंध है। ऊंचे दर्जों की बोगियों में स्विच बहुत कम पाई जाती हैं। यह कहा जाता है कि बल्बों की चोरी होती है। यह कहा जाता है स्विचों की चोरी होती है। परन्तु बल्बों के न रहने और स्विचों के न रहने की यह कोई ठीक दलील नहीं है। ऐसे उपाय काम में लाये जा सकते हैं, उन बल्बों पर ताले लगाकर, या उन स्विचों को इस प्रकार से फिट करके जिससे उनकी चोरी न हो। मैं कहना चाहता हूं कि दो तारों को मिलाकर पंखों या बत्तियों का चलाना और जलाना यह एक बड़ी भयानक बात है। इसमें कई बार यात्रियों को धक्के लगे हैं, और मैं यह भी कहना चाहता हूं कि इसमें बड़ी दुर्घटनाएं हो जाने का भय है। इसलिए मेरा यह निवेदन है कि जहां तक बत्तियों और स्विचों का सवाल है वहां तक सबसे पहले इस ओर ध्यान देना चाहिये।

पानी की ट्रेनों में और स्टेशनों पर विशेष रूप से कमी है। यह गरम देश है और गरम देश में लोगों को खाना अलग रहा, यदि पानी भी पीने को न मिले तो इससे अधिक खराबी की बात नहीं हो सकती। बार बार भाषणों में यह बात कही गई है कि ट्रेनों में और स्टेशनों पर दोनों में पानी की ठीक व्यवस्था होनी चाहिये और मेरा विश्वास है कि यदि इस ओर थोड़ा भी ध्यान दिया जाय तो यह ऐसी चीज नहीं है, पानी कम से कम ऐसी वस्तु नहीं है, जो कहीं से लानी पड़ती हो, उसकी व्यवस्था ठीक तरह से हो सकती है।

नई बोगियों के संबंध में मेरा माननीय मंत्री से कहना है कि हम उन के लिए नहीं रुक सकते। नई बोगियों के आते आते न जाने कितना समय लग जायगा और तब तक यदि हम नई बोगियों के भरोसे ही बैठे रहें और पुरानी बोगियों को न सुधारें तो लोगों को जितनी उनको उचित सुविधाएं मिलनी चाहियें उतनी नहीं मिल सकेंगी। इसलिए मेरा निवेदन है कि नई बोगियां तो बनाई ही जा रहीं हैं और नई बोगियां बनते बनते काफी समय लग जावेगा इसलिए हमको पुरानी बोगियों का भी सुधारना शुरू करना चाहिये। कितनी बार यहां कहा जाता है कि इन बोगियों को सुधारने के लिए जिन वस्तुओं की आवश्यकता है वह वस्तुएं इस समय प्राप्त नहीं हो रही हैं। उनकी प्राप्ति में कठिनाई

and the junior employees, as exists today in the various departments is not desirable. We have to bridge this gulf, we have to bring these classes closer to each other, we have to pull up the lower class and bring down the upper; and in this way we have to reduce this difference in pays to a minimum.

With regard to the facilities to the railway passengers I would like to tell the Honourable Minister that nothing has been done for them so far. Of course, the overcrowding in the trains has lessened a little; but it is due to another reason. It is not because the number of trains has been increased or because the rakes contain greater number of bogies. It is because on account of these communal disturbances people have stopped travelling frequently. I want to tell the Honourable Minister that with the return of normal conditions he would find the same overcrowdings as has been witnessed before. Something must be done, therefore, for diminishing this overcrowding.

The same applies to the facilities to the railway passengers. Very few compartments are such which have all the lights functioning. Switches are seldom found in the upper class coaches. It is said that the bulbs and the switches are removed. But that is not the right argument for their absence. Means can be devised for the safety of these things. Bulbs can be fitted under locks; switches can be fixed in such ways that they cannot be removed. I want to say that it is a very dangerous thing to light the bulbs and to let the fans go by just putting together two wires. There have been cases where people have received electric shocks. I want to tell you that this practice is fraught with dangers. I have, therefore, to suggest that so far as the lights and fans are concerned we must first of all attend to this side.

Scarcity of water supply is acute on the trains, particularly at the railway stations. India is a tropical country. Leave aside the question of food, nothing can be worse than this that people should not get water to drink. Over and over again, it has been emphasised in our speeches that adequate arrangements should be made for the supply of water, both on the trains and at the railway stations. And I believe, if we pay a little attention to it, we can improve the situation, for, after all it is not such a thing, water at least is not so, that has got to be imported.

With regard to new bogies I have to tell the Honourable Minister that we can no longer wait for them. Who knows how long will it take them to come, and if we depend upon them and do not overhaul the old ones, the public will be deprived of the facilities to which they are entitled. The new bogies are under construction and it will take sometime before they are placed at the disposal of the people. Why should we not in the meantime overhaul the old ones? Often it has been said here that the things required for their amelioration are not available at present. It is difficult to obtain them. I realise these difficulties and I admit that difficulties are there. But there are many things which can be obtained now and obtained in good numbers. They can be used in the old bogies.

First class compartments are still moving. For years this Assembly has been demanding that there is no need for first class travels in this country and that this class should be eliminated. I cannot understand why, inspite of the assurance given by the Honourable Minister that he would shortly put an end to the first class journeys, it is still allowed to linger? Aeroplanes are flying; and those who are called the upper class have the privilege of travelling by air. Why should, then, we have first class on the railways? I hope that soon first class compartments will be replaced by third class so that overcrowding on the trains may be reduced.

With regard to the movement of the refugees, I want to say that they will be transported from one province to another. So far as it is the question of their transport, they can be transported by means of special trains and not by the public trains.

I do not know what is the position with regard to the manufacture of locomotives. The alien Government have always taken special care to see that, not only engines, but even machinery of any kind is not manufactured in this country. Seeing the present condition of the locomotives, I hope arrangements will be made soon to manufacture locomotives here.

There is also the question of new lines. There are many places even now in my own province where it has been said for a long time that new tracks would be laid, that the meter gauge would be replaced by the broad gauge. The Honourable Speaker might be knowing that the shortest route between two prominent places of the C.P., from Nagpur to Jubbulpore, is via the meter gauge. There is no broad gauge. This means that if it takes only six hours to go from Nagpur to Jubbulpore by means of a bus, not less than sixteen hours are required to travel by train. You can see for yourself what big difference there is in the two modes of conveyance. I would request the Honourable Minister that he should replace the meter gauge by broad gauge between Jubbulpore and Nagpur.

Many places are there in the C.P. which require new lines. Changes are required to be made in the railway stations. Leaving aside Nagpur, all stations in the C.P. are as of old. Jubbulpore is no exception. I am more than fifty years old; and for the last 40 years or so, from the time I have begun to understand things I have been seeing that the railway station of Jubbulpore remains unchanged. The population of this city has increased from 60 thousands to about three lakhs. Many a time it has been pointed out that Jubbulpore needs a new railway station. The Honourable Minister gave assurances also that in the near future a new railway station would be constructed at Jubbulpore. But matters stand where they have been; and no signs are yet there of its being shortly rebuilt.

The Honourable Minister might be knowing that a University has been established at Saugor. The railway station of this city has been made in a peculiar way. One has to cross the railway lines before one can enter the city. There would hardly be a railway station in the whole of India which could be compared with this odd station. Changes are badly required to be made in this building.

I do not want to take much time of the House. Perhaps only a minute or two of my time now remain. Let me once again congratulate the Honourable Minister for being the first to present this railway budget in Free India; and I hope that soon improvements would be made in the railways.

Mr. Hussain Imam (Bihar: Muslim): Mr. Speaker, I do not wish to take up the time of the House in making a detailed examination of the Railway Budget. That is a thing which can be more profitably done while discussing the demands for grants. I simply wish to say a few words about the general position.

Before we congratulate the Honourable Minister in charge of Transport for his budget, let us examine if we have done what was due from us. This is the third time that an increase has been suggested by the Minister or a Member in Charge. Every time the House has stopped him from making the necessary increases. The immediate predecessor of the Honourable Minister was more fortunate in getting a part of his demands satisfied but Sir Edward Benthall could not get anything. We have to realise one thing which the Honourable Minister stressed in a passing way, that is what part the Railway plays as a tax-gathering agency of the Government. People are prone to regard the railway simply as if it were the property of private persons like other utilities which must conform to the proposition that their cost should be equal to their disbursement. If we visualise the railways as a method of taxation on the users, we will get better results both for the public who utilise them and for the Government which has to administer them and the other departments as also discharge other functions of the State. The State—I should not say the owner—as the representative of the people, which runs the railways owes a duty that it shall so spread out the rates as to keep them in consonance with the general level of prices. If you examine the cost of other commodities like food, cloth, etc., you will find that there has been an increase of 200 to 250 per cent. in their prices in comparison with the prices that prevailed in August 1939, whereas in the case of the Railways the increase in fares has been not more than 15 to 20 per cent. in different categories. I am referring to coaching as well as passenger traffic. Is it proper that a state organisation whose disbursement of wages has more than doubled in this period and the prices for whose raw materials in the shape of coal have gone up by about 150 per cent., should be compelled to charge a rate which is not in keeping with either of these two increases? I personally would prefer even a higher increase in the fares and coaching rates than has been recommended by the Honourable Minister, but I would make it conditional on two things. Government owes a duty to the travelling public to give it a better deal than it has been giving so far. I know the difficulties which the Honourable Minister has to confront with. He is short of wagons, of coaches, of personnel and he is short of everything which is required. But cannot the difficulties be met by means of road transport aided and run by the state. The previous speaker mentioned, and I have my own experience, that there are places where rail journey takes longer than road journey. In those places it is necessary in order to reduce the congestion on railways to run road services for meeting the convenience of the people. In places where you cannot run a sufficient number of train services it is your duty to have alternatively road services to take passengers. I would like to say this without making any revelation. I think it is well known that there is a controversy whether the state is bound by a contract not to reduce the higher salaries of those who are already in government employment. Last time it was held by the Government of India when we had retrenchment in 1931, that all those who were then in employment could rise up to the highest salaries without any reduction in the emoluments being made. This question was considered by the Pay Commission. We thought that the better course would be to leave the matter to the Government because there was difference among ourselves. I think that considering everything, the changed atmosphere, the accelerated promotions, the higher opportunities available to the people in service, it is meet and proper that all higher salaries should be reduced to the level fixed by the Pay Commission. There should be no privilege attached to those who were employed pre-1931 that they must continue, whenever they are promoted to higher posts, to draw a higher salary. If we bring down the higher salaries to the level suggested now it will not mean any great deal of economy in costs. It should be realized that it is more as a sort of consolation to others, to remove the discontent between a pre-1931 and post-1931 man working in the same position but drawing different rates of pay. I want to remove that discontent, and I would suggest that the recommendations of the Pay Commission about higher salaries should be accepted for all those who were in the employ of the Government, whether pre-1931 or post-1931.

I should like to stress one aspect, namely that the third class fare is the lowest in the world. If we wish our people to have comfortable travel it will be well nigh impossible to supply them with the amenities without a little further increase in the fares. I should invite the attention of the House to the fact that reserves built during the years of prosperity from 1924 to 1929 were finished up within a year and a half of depression. That is a thing which the House must take cognizance of, and whenever we should build up a reserve we should not hesitate to increase fares if increase is justified. I suggest that when we ask for increase in wages, when the capitalist asks for increase in the price of coal due both to high cost of wages and to demand, it is proper that a national government should have the courage of its conviction and charge the rate which the traffic will bear. In spite of the fact that India is the poorest country in the world—the rupee has lost its value—in real wages or real wealth India is still as it was in 1939; but in terms of money it will be idle to say that any part of the population from the meanest wage-earner to the highest capitalist has not benefitted by the devaluation of the rupee. But we have continued to charge from our passengers the same old rates which were prevailing before the war. It is unscientific and I suggest, not now but for future consideration, that when the Honourable Minister brings forward a budget for the full year he will keep in view the necessity of building a reserve in order to give better service to third class passengers. I would have them fitted with fans. But can you do so if you do not increase the fares? You want to have better water facilities. It is very necessary to provide more amenities in this direction. Water supply is very deficient and troublesome. The way people are packed in the compartments is deplorable. It is a slur on the fair name of India to have third class passengers huddled like that in a compartment. We must remove all these anomalies. But we cannot do it without money. It is therefore better that a national government should increase the fares and freight without discrimination and only as much as is necessary for the ultimate objective of giving a better deal to the travelling public.

Shri A. P. Pattani (Western India States Group): I would like to confine my remarks to only two or three observations in as few words as possible. The first thing I wish to suggest to the Honourable Minister is that in his statement he has said that the deficit of Rs. 16.92 crores can be adjusted from the railway reserves at the disposal of Government of Rs. 21.61 crores. I would like to know, or rather to be assured, that the sum of Rs. 21.61 crores is merely a very rough estimate and that we shall know our actual reserves after the accounts with the Pakistan Dominion have been settled.

The next observation I wish to offer is in connection with the turn-round position of the wagons. The turn round position actually is—I am speaking as one who has had something to do with the railway system in my own State, small as it is—that when a wagon loaded at, say, Bhavnagar goes to, say, Okha, it is ready again for re-loading at Okha station. If the period of this time, which normally used to be 9 to 10 days has increased to 14 or 15 days, it is really a very serious position, and I submit that not merely the civil disturbances, but also lack of locomotive power and labour troubles are responsible for the over all decline of some 40 to 50 per cent. of our wagon power.

And lastly about the locomotive power itself. I think everyone will agree with the Honourable Minister that it is a great reflection on the late Government that they did not provide for the manufacture of locomotives and parts in this country. But now that we are in a very serious crisis about locomotives—again I speak as one who is connected with a small system of railways and we have realised the difficulty of how an engine between two stations will stop because workshops have not been able to put them in proper repair and there are no essential parts available in the country—I would like the Honourable Minister kindly to state how soon we shall be able to manufacture locomotives and parts in this country; and also, since this is likely to take some time, how soon we can import from England or America or any other country the locomotive power that we require. I believe, Sir, that this locomotive power will greatly reduce the increase in the turn round time of wagons.

This is all I want to say now.

Prof. N. G. Ranga (Madras: General): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wish to congratulate the Honourable Minister for Railways for one of the best speeches I have heard delivered in this House on this subject, and I am also glad, Sir, that he has taken the House into his confidence in regard to many of the adjustments that the Government has had to make owing to the division of the country: but I am sorry that the Honourable Minister has not taken the trouble to provide us with an explanatory note on these Demands for Grants. These figures relate to their proposed expenditure for a period of 7½ months. How they compare with similar figures for the last year, we do not know, with the result that we are unable to know whether Government proposes to spend much more than they need have to on these various sections of their railways and their railway expenditure. For instance, Sir, I find that they have today five Members on the Railway Board. There used to be only three. Why they have increased the strength of it, I do not know, although for a fact it cannot be contended that the railways are obliged to work much harder now or the strain on the Railway Board is very much more than it used to be during the war. That is only an instance, and I am rather afraid it is rather illustrative of what might be occurring in various other departments of the management of the railways.

I cannot agree, Sir, with my Honourable friend Mr. Hussain Imam, that the railways should be used as a sort of tax-gathering agency. That is what the last Government tried to do. If you want more money for the general revenues, it is better to be more honest about it and go to the public through this House at the time of the budget and say you want 20 crores and then tell the people how the additional 20 crores of rupees are expected to be collected by the Government so that the people would know what to do about it.

I am glad, Sir, that the Railway Minister does not propose any general raising of the rates of railway fares or freights, and I am also in agreement with the method that he seeks to adopt in order to raise the additional revenues that he wants, so that only those people who can be expected to pay will have to pay and the ordinary people need not have to pay. But at the same time I wish to sound a warning in regard to the proposed change in fixing the railway freight rates. There will be every possible opportunity for interested railway officials either to lower the classification of certain goods or to over-charge for certain classes of goods as between one station and another. Of course I am glad that the Minister proposes to make the Railway Rates Tribunal a more permanent one and to make its recommendations also mandatory. Too much care cannot possibly be taken in this regard and I hope the Honourable Minister will try to associate the commercial public as well as others, including agriculturists: I hope he will see that they are associated at every stage with those authorities who have got to make decisions in this regard.

I am sure, Sir, the House will be in agreement with the stand taken by the Government of India in regard to the distribution of assets and liabilities over the strategic railways. This budget does not hold out any bright prospects either for the year to come. The Honourable Minister has already stated that there cannot be any improvement before the end of 1948 owing to shortage of spare parts for construction of rolling stock, etc. That is indeed a very unfortunate thing. It only shows that the constructive side of the railways has not been very active. Reference has already been made to the construction of locomotives, and I hope the Honourable Minister will have some heartening news to give.

In regard to the manufacture of locomotives and rolling stock, and specially the improved special coaches that we have been promised for so many years and in vain for third class passengers, I am glad that at least one expert is being sent to the U.S.A. It is a good decision, but we should send not one, but two or three, and we should charge them also with the task of studying all those things and coming back as early as possible so that it would be possible for the Government to give effect to their recommendations in this country.

Again there are dark prospects regarding new projects. I find here on pages 6 and 7 some mention of some of the railways in regard to which they are having some survey projects. There is plenty of scope for many more projects and I do not know when Government is going to give any sort of satisfaction in regard to the more important of them. That is why I welcome the suggestion that railways should try to take over the road traffic also by placing on the roads their own buses in as many places as possible and thus placing their services at the disposal of the public.

Then coming to third class passengers, what is it that one can say? My Honourable friends have already stated how many things have yet to be done. I can only mention a few things. We want more carriages for them, waiting rooms, and latrines especially have got to be improved. They are in a hopeless condition. Raised platforms we have always wanted, and we want departmental catering on trains as well as stations. For a number of years this has been a sort of burning topic with us, and until now Government has not been able to come to a decision in regard to this matter. I wish to tell them that departmental catering on the South Indian Railway has been a great success and it ought to be tried on other railways also.

Then I wish to come to the question of raising railway revenues. Sir, I have already stated that I am in favour of the proposals made by the Government. In addition to that I want them to explore the possibilities of putting to very good use the vast expanse of land which today lies fallow all along the railway lines. They can certainly raise on them fodder, food and also green manure and they can get any amount of additional revenues thereon.

Then there is the question of season tickets. I am not at all in favour of this particular proposal. The real difficulty in most of our towns today is 1 P.M. that there are too many people, and too great a shortage of housing. We must disperse people and help them to disperse as far away from the towns as possible; we can better do that by inducing them to travel away from their places of work in the towns, by season tickets, farther and farther away from the towns. That is why I consider this proposal to be rather a retrograde one and a very unfortunate one.

Then, Sir, the Honourable Minister wants to raise about eight crores of rupees from ticketless travel.

Shri M. S. Aney (Deccan and Madras States Group): To save, and not to raise.

Prof. N. G. Ranga: It is a sort of leakage; it is being lost and therefore he wants to gain it. I suggest that he can save just as much by trying to have a better administration in regard to goods traffic also. There is any amount of corruption going on in that direction. Many goods are classed rather too low and there is under-weighting in very many places: if only he can stop these things and if he can have proper administration in that direction, he will be able to save easily eight crores of rupees if not more.

Then, Sir, there is the question of corruption—the public also wants to expect something from the Railways. Any amount of corruption there is, especially among the officer ranks—even some of those who can be classified as station masters or goods clerks and upwards. It has got to be stopped. Government have been saying that vigorous steps have been taken but I am afraid with very little effect. Why not cut off the 1st class carriages? Convert them—have only 2nd class and 3rd class and nothing more. Then you can certainly save, by way of the manufacturing of these costly vehicles and also the equipment thereon. Supposing you develop electrification of the railways, will it not be possible for the Government to save quite a lot on coal traffic?

Sir, I wish to congratulate the Government on the very good relations it has at last come to develop between itself and labour, but I wish to make a suggestion—that it ought to try to welcome labour of different ranks, from the lowest paid to the highest paid, to associate itself at every stage, wherever decisions have got to be taken, with the Railway Administration, and expect them to make suggestions from time to time as how to increase their own incentives for better work, more efficient work and more continuous work, than has been forthcoming till now. Unless and until the railway labour is encouraged to come into direct participation or partnership with the Railway Administration, I am afraid it would not be possible to get over the hiatus of discontent and psychological nexus that there is today between the Administration on the one side and labour on the other. My Honourable friend the Railway Minister himself is well aware of the fact that the level of efficiency is going down, has been going down for some years, and railway labour really has not been so very keen to co-operate with the Railway Administration in getting better results as it ought to. Why is it so? It cannot be merely because there are lower wages; now according to the Pay Commission's recommendations higher wages are going to be paid. But are higher wages alone the only guarantee for higher efficiency, greater production and greater work? That is where any amount of research will have to be made by Government and experiments tried. In this direction, Sir, I think Government have much to learn from some of the successful experiments made in Soviet Russia. They call it a "triangular management" of the Railways and various public utilities and also of publicly owned enterprises—the Administration, the supervisory staff and the labour are on it. Now I would like the Government to study the various possibilities in this direction.

Shri B. Das (Orissa: General): Will our Communist friends in India enjoin Railway Workers to work?

Prof. N. G. Ranga: It is much better, Sir, instead of bewailing that the communists are in charge of Railway Administration, to say that our nationals are in charge of labour in India. Let them gain a majority of office on the Railwaymen's Federation so that it is possible for us to show the maximum amount of co-operation between the Railway, Labour and the Government itself.

Sir, in conclusion I wish to say that although prices have gone up in all other directions, Railway fares have not gone up. It is true, but at the same time, if there is to be any experiment to be made at all at the time of the next Budget by way of raising the railway rates, I would like that a beginning should be made with the railway freights and not with railway fares because we must know what is likely to be the incidence of any sort of a general increase that may be made. I admit at the same time that there is every need for increasing the revenues of the Railways and I am rather a little alarmed at the prospect of our Railway Reserve being more or less exhausted because these are the times when we should be able to build up our reserves in anticipation of the coming economic depression that is in the offing. On the other hand we are simply exhausting these reserves. The only solution is that my Honourable friend should not seek to raise on the Amortization Fund or the Depreciation Fund. Sir, I conclude.

Shri Rohini Kumar Chaudhuri (Assam: General): Mr. Speaker, Sir, it was only in the last Budget Session of the Central Assembly that we had amidst great misgivings agreed to an increase in the fares of passengers. At that time we had some sort of an assurance that better arrangements will be made for the travelling public. I think I am correct in saying that it will be hoping against hope to have better facilities for the passengers, particularly for the third class. Nevertheless, Sir, in presenting this revised Budget, the Honourable the Minister in charge had received an ovation which should be the envy of everyone in this House. Sir, I take it that these cheers were given for three reasons. Firstly, for the promptness with which he had been able to carry the refugees both from Pakistan and the Indian Dominion. Secondly, for the decision to give effect to the recommendations of the Pay Commission's proposals so far as the railway labour is concerned. Thirdly—which concerns me vitally—his decision to have direct railway communication between Assam and the rest of India. As a Member from that Province I pay my special tributes to the Honourable Minister for his quick decision in this matter.

Sir, it must have been known to the Members of this House that those of us who have to go through the Pakistan railways have to suffer a good deal of harassment; our baggages and luggages are searched by persons who belong to the officials of Pakistan—not only by them but also by the Muslim National Guards and by other unauthorised persons. Various acts of extortion have been committed on the passengers when they have to go through these Railways, particularly at Parvatipur and Santahar.....

An Honourable Member: How much you paid?

Shri Rohini Kumar Chaudhuri: My Honourable friends are asking me how much I had actually paid. Well, Sir, I had escaped somehow because of my general set-up. But there is no real security to other passengers to India.

Then, Sir, I have heard that there are three different proposals for having this new railway line from Assam to India. The three proposals are:

- (1) to start from the station of Kokrajhe through Rajabhatkh.
- (2) to start from Jipkain.
- (3) to start from Sapatgon.

In my humble opinion, the proposal from Kokrajhe Khevowa should be accepted because that passes through the various forest areas and it will enable the people of that locality to export a large quantity of timber which is so urgently wanted in other parts of India. Secondly, this line would be farther away from the Pakistan territory than the other two lines and therefore greater measure of safety to the passengers may be ensured. I would like to know very much from the Honourable Minister which of the three proposals he has already accepted.

Then the other question which naturally arises in this connection is whether the headquarters of the Assam Railway should be in a town in Assam or in Calcutta as at present. At the present moment, the General Manager's office is in Calcutta but there is a Deputy General Manager's office in Pandu. We must now realise the importance of Assam, being the eastern Frontier province. It is frequently necessary for the Government of Assam to come in touch with railway authorities and experience has shown that the Deputy General Manager stationed in Pandu cannot pass orders or take prompt action without reference to the General Manager in Calcutta. When you remember that about 1,300 miles of the Railway is in Assam and only 650 miles in Bengal, the case for the location of the General Manager's office in Assam is obvious. I hope, Sir, the Honourable Minister in charge of the Railways will give particular attention to this matter, because we have a large quantity of tea and petrol and other goods to export from Assam and therefore compared with Bengal and Calcutta, the importance of having the General Manager's office of the Assam Railway in Assam is certainly very great.

Another point to which I would like to draw the attention of the Honourable Minister is the proposal to have another line from Bongaigaon to Golpara through Jogighopi and then connect with Pandu railway station near Gauhati. So far as this proposal is concerned, Sir Edward Benthall when he was in charge of the Railways said on the floor of this House that it would receive high priority and he also said that the construction of the bridge near about

[Shri Rohini Kumar Chaudhuri]
Golpara town on the Brahmaputra was under consideration. I know only this much that certain engineers went to these localities, I mean Golpara, Pandu and Amingaong, but I do not know more. It appears that the whole proposal has been shelved. I would like to know from the Honourable Minister whether the idea of the construction of the Brahmaputra bridge has since been given up or whether it is still in progress.

Mr. Speaker: I believe the Honourable Member has almost finished. If he wants we can stay a minute or two.

Shri Rohini Kumar Chaudhuri: I can speak later, Sir.

Mr. Speaker: If he can finish in a couple of minutes, then the House can wait.

Shri Rohini Kumar Chaudhuri: Trains are always so late, but speakers are being required to be so punctual.

There is one other important point I would like to mention in this connection. That is, if a line from Bongaigaon to Pandu through Golpara is constructed, then we can connect this line through Lakhipur or Krishna to Garo Hills. In Garo Hills there is a large area which has been leased out to the Associated Cement Company for manufacture of cement and this Company had given an assurance to the railway authorities formerly that if the railway line was constructed they would be able to supply one lakh tons of coal every year. Coal being now so important, I would humbly suggest to the Honourable Minister in Charge of Railways to take up this line immediately and give it A-1 priority, so that we can get all the coal which is going to be available there. In the ordinary course of things, this Company might agree to give that coal to the Pakistan Railway and Pakistan being so much in need of coal at the present moment will certainly grab it by having a line through that place.

Mr. Speaker: I think we better adjourn. The speaker has about three minutes more, which he shall have after Lunch. The house will re-assemble at 2-30.

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till Half Past Two of the Clock.

The Assembly re-assembled after Lunch at Half Past Two of the Clock, Mr. Speaker (The Honourable Mr. G. V. Mavalankar) in the Chair.

Shri Rohini Kumar Chaudhuri: In connection with my suggestion to connect the Garo Hills, I may mention here that we had one Company. The Assam Bengal Cement Company, which supplies cement to India and that Company operated on the lease given by the Government of Assam. But now it has gone, to the Pakistan area of Eastern Bengal. And if you do not now take the cement, manufactured by the Associated Cement Company in the Garo Hills, the whole of India will suffer for want of cement and therefore that proposal, as I have already said, should get the first and highest priority.

Sir, another question to which I would like to bring to the attention of Government is about the Tripura situation. What has been called an administrative problem may not prove in the long run to be an administrative problem. The same situation may arise as it has arisen in Kashmir and Tripura is hemmed on all sides by Pakistan. There is no access to Tripura except through Pakistan Railways. Now there is a railway from Karimganj station to Kolkulighat to Tripura border the distance is only 20 miles. If this is linked up then there might be access to Tripura from Assam independently of the Pakistan railways and I would therefore commend this particularly to the attention of the Government of India.

Now, Sir, I want to say a few words about the conditions of travel. I have already said about the difficulties of third-class passengers coupled with the question of ticketless travel. You complain against the public for ticketless travel, but I would ask whether the public cheat you or the Railway cheat you? Most of the cases of travel are bona fide cases. People do not get tickets now.

You have not got railway tickets for sale and you should also remember this that you are now carrying passengers three times more than your capacity. You have no right to ask for this money. On behalf of the ticketless travellers I would say that you should leave them alone, because you have not been able to provide accommodation for all the persons to whom you sell tickets. Why bother about ticketless travellers now? They are finding their way and they are travelling. Why are you fighting with them?

The Government has been pleased to increase the first-class and second-class fares to a great extent, but what have you given in return. Sir, this is a very serious matter. I was travelling in a first-class compartment and two of the posts of the bunk broke down. It is not an invention. I made a complaint to the Honourable Minister. The bunk simply collapsed.

Mr. Speaker: The Honourable Member must speak now in a hurry. His time is up.

Mr. Nazirudin Ahmad (West Bengal: Muslim): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to congratulate the Honourable Minister sincerely and heartily for his excellent Budget speech. The excellence of the speech may have been due to its synchronisation with another happy and popular event which was happening at the very centre of the Commonwealth, i.e., in London. I refer to the happy wedding of Princes Elizabeth and Prince Philip the ceremonies of which were being actually performed at the time that the Honourable Member rose. The marriage ceremony was being performed by the Archbishop of Canterbury in the famous Westminster Abbey and the Prince and the Princess were declared man and wife at 5.15 Indian Standard Time when the Honourable Member was fully on his way. This may be, cinics may say, a coincidence but would prefer to call it a happy augury.

Sir, with regard to various questions that have been raised, I have only to touch upon a few small points. For reasons which have been carefully explained by the Honourable Member, namely, the effect having had to be given to the Central Pay Commission's recommendations, the rise in commodity prices, the price of coal and various other reasons, the administration has become costly and I believe that the public—I mean the travelling public and those who send their goods through the railways—have got logically to pay for the increased cost. I do not agree with the suggestion of Prof. Ranga that the Railways are being converted into a tax-gathering body. I submit that in asking the people to pay for their journey and the cost of carrying their goods is not the same thing as making the railways a tax-gathering body. Like the post office the institution of railways should be made self-sufficient and made to run on business lines. Their Budgets must be squared. If that is not done a large number of complications would follow. Prof. Ranga has suggested that the deficit should be borne by the public exchequer. I submit that it would be unfair to ask the public at large to contribute towards the cost of the travel enjoyed by those who do the travelling. In a large number of cases we find that the tax is levied—and levied justly—on the consumers; e.g., taxes on matches and sugar, kerosene, customs duties, etc. Then there are the provincial sales tax and electricity tax and various other taxes which fall on the consumer. In asking the railway using public for the personal services rendered to them the railways would not be creating a new or unheard of precedent but rather following a very scientific and well-established principle of taxation—that of taxing the consumer. I therefore support the Honourable Member's claim that travelling should be a little more costly to make up for the deficit. The enhanced cost has got to be met by those who enjoy the service. If you ask the general public to pay, it may be that a man who has never travelled in his life will have to pay and the man who travels all the 365 days in the year will escape the additional taxation. That I submit would not be fair and proper. The question then is whether in allocating the tax between the general public and the railway-using public the principle is sound that the travelling public should be asked to pay. That is why the Railway Budget was separated from the General Budget. I think the justice of the Honourable Minister's proposition is only self-evident. Then the question is how the increased cost is to be distributed. The Honourable Minister has tried to allocate it between the different classes of passengers from Third class upwards. In the memorandum which accompanies the budget papers it is said that the increase is proportionately upwards from Third and Inter to Second and First. But I find that there has been some little disparity between the Inter class and the Third class as compared with the Second class. On calculation I find that the increase in the receipts from Third class passengers would be a little over 32 per cent., from the Inter class 46 per cent. On this basis the increase in the Second class should have been a little more but it is actually 42 per cent.; so there is a drop of 4 per cent. here. In first class it is 81 per cent.; it should be double the increase of the Second class but it is slightly below that. I submit that the Inter class passengers have been neglected; they have been asked to pay a little more than they really should. The interest of the Inter class passengers has been always overlooked. There are many Honourable Members who are champions of Third class passengers but Inter class passengers consist of middle class people of moderate means who have their grievances. Sometimes it happens that in order to get accommodation they buy Inter class tickets and they find to their surprise that the Inter class compartments are more than overcrowded while the third class compartments go practically empty. So these Inter class passengers require some kind of relief. In fact it will be found from the statement that the Inter class passengers have been asked to pay more than 50 per cent. over Third class passengers. I think the proportion between the rate of the Third class passengers and Inter class passengers should not exceed 50 per cent. over Third class passengers. Then again the Second class passengers' rate should be about double the Inter class passengers and the First class passengers should also be asked to pay double Second class rate, because they can afford to pay for luxurious travel. These are some slight adjustments which I suggest in the interest of fair-play and justice, specially justice to Inter class passengers.

Then, Sir, there appears to me to be some anomaly in the nomenclature used in the various headings in the books circulated to us. In the green book which is the Demands for Grants it is described as Expenditure of the "Central Government". In the Explanatory Memorandum it is described as Railway Budget of the "Government of India". This difference in the terminology does not matter. But what seems to be a little material is that in the actual budget we are told that it is the Budget of the Railway Revenue and Expenditure of the "Governor-General". I do not see any reason for this difference in the nomenclature. Does the Honourable Minister mean that the railway revenue and expenditure are those of the Governor General? In the new set-up I think the Governor General is merely a constitutional head. In these circumstances I think the terminology which suits the present situation namely, the "Central Government" or the "Government of India"—I prefer the "Central Government"—should be used.

Sir, these are the few points that I want to suggest for the consideration of the Honourable Minister. The Honourable Minister's speech was remarkable for its clarity and grasp, particularly when it related to a subject of such intricacy as railway finance. The Honourable Minister, as has been pointed out, approached the question with an open mind and took the House fully into confidence. That is the proper thing to do in a democratic House and the result is the willing support which I hope the House will give him. A democracy is the strongest support to the Government provided it is taken into confidence and approached in the right spirit, and I congratulate the Honourable Minister on his approaching the House in the proper spirit. I have never had the good fortune of listening to budget speeches in this House but I have experience of reading them; and I think the Honourable Minister's speech will go down in history as a very remarkable performance. He has not been too long; if he has erred it was rather on the side of brevity. The House was rather thin but his speech was listened to by a very attentive and appreciative House.

Sir, I hope the Honourable Minister will consider the points I have made and give them due effect.

Mr. Speaker: I find that a large number of Honourable Members are desirous of addressing the House on this question. There are therefore two alternatives.—either a select number should attempt to speak or the time-limit should be curtailed from 15 to 10 minutes. If the original time-limit of 15 minutes is adhered to only 5 speakers can speak; and I have to tell them also to be brief. So I think Honourable Members should confine their remarks to ten minutes from now.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa (C. P. and Berar: General): Sir, the Honourable Minister has very lucidly placed before us the whole picture of the assets and liabilities of our railways after partition. So far so good. But I am sorry that so far as the amenities of passengers are concerned, and as far as the proposed increase in the railway fares go, I am not in a position to agree with what he has said. Leave aside for the time being the amenities for the passengers: today the bare necessities which are due to the passengers are denied to them. The conditions of travel are most deplorable. We know the extraordinary conditions in which we are living today. With all that every year we are told that efforts are being made to improve the conditions and every year and every day we find the conditions are getting worse. Take the instance of the safety catches, the windows and planks of the railway coaches: the lights, the drinking water, the taps in the coaches. I am not referring to the drinking water on the platform but in the coaches: the pegs, the looking-glasses, the basin: all these are in a most wretched condition, and with due respect to the Honourable Minister, I maintain, Sir, that no serious effort has been made to improve them. If you travel in any coach today, you will find something or the other very defective: either a safety catch is not there with the result that there is no safety in travelling, particularly in women's compartments. Then when you have to open the shutter in sun or rain, you will find that half the shutter is broken. Then going to the drinking water in the lavatory, you will find that the tap is missing or if it is there, there is no water properly flowing through it. Coming to the lighting we have been told that there have been thefts and particularly that the passengers steal away these bulbs. It is most astounding. As we all know, these bulbs are manufactured for the particular type of railway carriages and these bulbs are useless for any domestic purpose in any house or any shop because they are of a certain voltage manufactured specially for these railway carriages. These bulbs are under lock and key within the globe. I would like to know, in the case of third class carriages where there 50 to 100 passengers, from where the thief brings a key to open the bulbs and how can he steal those bulbs in the presence of so many passengers. Is it thinkable that these bulbs are stolen by the passengers? Let me tell the Honourable Minister that I have made thorough enquiries into this matter. I am telling him with all the evidence in my possession that the thefts occur in his railway yard. Systematic thefts are going on and no efforts are being made to check them and those very bulbs are resold to the manufacturers who are contractors of the Railway Board—I have come across them—and then they are replaced. These are some of the things that should not go unnoticed. These are the difficulties of the third class passengers. The first and second class compartments also have no lights. But the condition of the third class carriages are very bad.

Mention has been made of ticketless travel. But when there is no light, how can your Inspector catch those passengers travelling without tickets? That is one of the important points that the Honourable Minister should bear in mind, and efforts should be made to see that all the coaches are provided with lights. These excuses of the officers are not tenable for one moment. They are taking shelter under the war conditions. The war has been over for three years and yet the conditions are worsening instead of improving. A serious hint from the Honourable Minister to all the officials in this respect is overdue and he must tell them that they should not allow these things and they must see that the bare necessities, leaving aside the amenities for which we have been living for ages, are provided. Heaven knows when these are going to come. The Arrow train has been exhibited as a specimen. Their third class coaches are beautiful. I do admit that they are very fine. But God alone knows when we shall see them working on the lines. There is the third-class: fans are provided: cushions are provided: the water arrangements are good: the lavatory is good. One class is being done away with and the second class has been converted more or less into Inter-class and when these new coaches come into running the Honourable Minister will see to it that the second class fare is equal to the Inter-class because the comforts of the second class have been materially reduced. I do not mind this because it will give some relief so far as fares are concerned.

These are the conditions of the travelling public. I do not blame the Honourable Minister for this. He takes an interest in it. But he should not rely too much on the officers when they say conditions are beyond their control. I asked how many coaches are still with the military. I was told that all the coaches for disembarkation and for other pressing needs of the military would be handed back to the Railway Board by June last, and when we asked the question the other day we were told some three hundred odd are still lying with them and we are not told when they are coming back. We were told this morning that the British troops are going away by February. There may be some movements of the Indian troops. But those movements take place in ordinary cases. Even before the war there were such movements and there are military trains for them. I do not understand why such an impediment has been caused and why so many coaches are still left with the military. If all these are brought over then some kind of relief can be given. The overcrowding is most deplorable and I do feel that something really serious should be done. The last time when there was a clamour on the floor of this House the Honourable Minister said "I will supply one crore for amenities". What has been done we do not know. He may have provided a little hall here or a passenger ticket house there. But let me tell him that many improvements are necessary: third class halls and ticket offices are far off from the main office and the upper classes. Why should there be differential treatment for third class passengers? Third class passengers must have ticket houses and windows just near to the upper classes so that they may have access to the platform. Some of the ticket offices are far off from the station platform. If you were to see Ahmedabad Station and even Delhi station, the upper classes are near the main hall while the third class passengers ticket rooms are far away. Take the Victoria Terminus station in Bombay, where it is far off. There must be many windows so that the passengers can have access to purchase their tickets. The result is that delay takes place, pick-pocketing takes place and the passenger has to pay Rs. 2/- for a ticket that costs only Rs. 1/4/-. About corruption.....

Mr. Speaker: Order, order. The Honourable Member has only half a minute.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: I am the President of the All-India Railways Passengers' Association. If you can give me five minutes more I will be grateful.

Mr. Speaker: It is not a question of my favouring one Member and not the other. The House, by common agreement, has agreed that ten minutes should be enough, so that every Member may have an opportunity of expressing his views.

Shri Biswanath Das (Qrissa: General): Let me request you that for myself I would not like to talk. So that this time could be utilised by another member.

Mr. Speaker: It is not that the Honourable Member is the only one in the list of speakers. I call upon Giani Gurumukh Singh Musafar. I first rang the two minutes warning bell. Perhaps the Honourable Member was so much engrossed in his speech that he could not hear. But he was referring to the point of corruption. That he has mentioned already.

Mr. R. K. Sidhwa: You said there was one minute left. Sir, I will only mention one point viz., that it is very necessary to inform the passengers about the arrival and departure of trains and loudspeakers should be installed at important stations for this purpose. Sir, I have got many more suggestions to make, but my time is up.

(English translation of the above speech.)

Giani Gurmukh Singh Musafar (East Punjab: Sikh): Mr. President, I admire the Honourable, the Minister for Railways, for his ability and industry in presenting the Railway Budget before the House, and really he deserves to be congratulated. I rise to tell other facts as, upto this time, no other member has drawn the attention of the House to the same. Had I been sure that Mr. Sidhwa would mention my facts in the House, I would perhaps, have given the whole of my time to him, and had withdrawn myself.

But the fact is that there is a great difference between seeing and hearing. So far as the Punjab is concerned, it is correct to point out that there is no railway worth the name. If at all there is a Railway Department, it is then probably, engaged in some other duty; it is not discharging its obligations properly. Had anybody gone to the Punjab on the two holidays falling on Sunday and Monday respectively, in the hope that he would be able to return to deliver his speech on Tuesday, I am sure, he would not have been here before the end of the Budget, and thus he would have been saved from the trouble of speaking, and the hearers from that of hearing. The situation of the Railways in the Punjab is just as described above, and those who come from there tell the same story. Unfortunately, I was born in that part of the Punjab, which is now called the West Punjab and those who have migrated to the East Punjab and thence to this place, and I have hardly come across any such individual who said that he reached Delhi in time. The journey from Amritsar to Delhi takes two to three days and some times even four. On the way the train halts where it pleases. On arriving at the platform the guard or other railway authorities keep it standing at their sweet will for whatever period they like, and thus the passengers who are to reach their destinations cannot do so in time. Such a state of affairs does not exist only these days, but it has been going on continuously for the last three months. Therefore, in my opinion, the most immediate attention should be paid to this side of the management. The speech of the Honourable Minister has been listened to and carefully read by me. The speech is good, but it has not encouraged us and has asked for three long years to set the present situation right. I cannot say who will survive these three years. It is, therefore, necessary to devote utmost and immediate attention to chastise the Railway Administration of today.

Before, our country was free, rightly or wrongly or on account of our slavery or due to the efficiency of the British regime, this idea prevailed in our country that a person who is not punctual in reaching the place used to offer the excuse that he took it that Indian punctuality would be observed and so came late. Similarly, if anything is wrong, defective, and irregular, it is commonly said that since it is Indian arranged, therefore mismanagement has taken place.

[Giani Gurmukh Singh Musafar]

Now, when we have attained freedom, we must endeavour to prove this notion wrong. I feel, that though the troubles are great, difficulties are great, and obstacles are great, yet in spite of all these we should try to prove such notions to be untrue and established the fact that even in the face of these obstacles we are competent to set the management in order. It is a pity that on looking at the trains people say to us, in a joke, that now the Indian Government has come. Due to late departures and arrivals of trains, this affair has totally fallen into disorder.

Besides all this, I have noticed for myself that very little attention has been devoted to sanitation. There is so much dirt on the platforms that, as a result, diseases have broken out. Two months ago, I saw with my own eyes two men dying of Cholera in the waiting room at the Ambala Railway Station. Therefore to pay attention to these matters is very necessary.

The catering arrangements at the stations are not satisfactory. Even the Hotels, at the principal junctions, do not function, and the man who is unfortunately left there remains hungry. There are disturbances in several places, and the cities are under curfew orders, the people who are left at the stations have to pass their nights on the platforms. And even if the curfew is lifted for some time, they do not find any conveyance and have to remain hungry on the platforms for two or three days.

In addition to these defects, one thing which is more or less seen in every department, and which is rampant on Railways specially, is bribery. Novel ways of taking bribe are invented here. Today, just now a friend of mine has told me why the trains were running late was that the guards get overtime allowance. Therefore, to get overtime allowance they keep the trains standing at the stations.

Besides all these facts mentioned above, and after quoting an instance in connection with the permit, I am closing my speech. These days, the permits that are issued for coming to Delhi involve taking of heavy bribes. At Jagadhri, the train is made to halt, and those who have not got permits, are allowed to pass on payment of some money. The man, who has a permit, gets a railway ticket. To save themselves from getting a permit, people do not buy tickets, and the result is loss to the Railways.

These are a few facts to which I must draw the attention of the Honourable Minister so that consideration should be given to them. And, the third class passengers' waiting rooms in particular, must be reformed, arrangements at least for protection against inclemency of the weather should be made, so that the passengers may protect themselves from heat and cold.

Shri S. K. Patil (Bombay: General): Sir, after the very remarkable performance of the Honourable the Transport Minister it is difficult to criticise the Railway Budget. If in spite of the pressure of time I have stood up to speak on the budget, it is to raise, what is according to me, a very fundamental issue. That there have been inconveniences, or want of amenities is a very woeful tale on which I do not want to waste the time of the House. The Honourable the Railway Minister was kind enough to give us the reasons, among which the three principal reasons were the difficulties of partition, difficulties of the refugee problem and the difficulties of labour and that these were responsible for the deficit that has occurred in the Railway Budget. We can quite understand those difficulties and the House will have utmost sympathy with the Railway Minister so far as these difficulties are concerned. But the point I am raising is not in regard to those difficulties: it is in regard to a fundamental issue which I am sure the Railway Minister will not forget. It must be remembered that the Railways are the first largest nationalised concern in this country of ours. There is no other concern of such gigantic scale which has been nationalised. Therefore, the country has been awaiting with great expectancy the result of this nationalised concern. We were told during all these years that the improvements could not be secured because there was the war. We could understand that there was the war and there was the non-availability of materials and therefore improvements could not be made. But surely it was expected that immediately after the cessation of hostilities or at least after a couple of years thereafter some reforms would be made which would tell us that a nationalised industry of this country is going to be an industry which would bring not only comforts and conveniences but an assurance to the public that other industries have also got to be nationalised. Does the Honourable Minister realize—and I am quite sure he does—that much hangs on the success of our railways. The country is waiting today for the nationalisation of many industries. What is the purpose of nationalisation? It is not an end in itself but only a means to an end. Nationalisation means that after the industry is nationalised the maximum good to the largest number of people will be secured out of that process of nationalisation. It is that good is not secured then woe be to all chances of nationalisation. We are anxious that not only railways but other systems of transport have got to be nationalised; our other key industries have also got to be nationalised. When the atmosphere in the country today is one full of nationalisation and everybody's eye is on the railways, how are they working? Surely I do not characterize what the Honourable Minister has said as excuses because I know that he has done the best of a bad bargain. In spite of that we are not concerned so much with what has happened and what are the difficulties. What the people want today is how early are all these conveniences which they have been waiting for all these years coming. Therefore I sound a note of warning that when there is talk of nationalisation going on in the country and when everybody points to the railways—I have seen it in public speeches and I have myself used that argument—if nationalisation is going to follow the same process which the Railways in this country are following, then surely that is not the nationalisation which will make an appeal to the common man. There are two big concerns, the Railways and the Telephones, that have been nationalised, and what is the result today? People have been telling that this is wanting and that is wanting. I have been a frequent traveller in railways. But for the ceiling and floor I do not know what conveniences exist in the railway compartments. If I were to tell my tale of woe, possibly it will take a long time and I do not want to take the time of the House. If the millions of our people who travel by the railways do not get the elementary conveniences, if that is the tale of these big national industries, namely the Railways and Telephones, how are you going to convince the common man that nationalisation is ultimately in the best interests of the people of this country? Therefore, I would humbly appeal to the Honourable Minister that it is not a question of his making up this year or the next what he has lost. The issue is much greater. The implications are far wider. If we fail in the conduct of our Railways and Telephones, woe be to all chances of nationalisation of key industries in this country. As I said, much hangs on how we succeed in conducting our Railways. That is according to me a very fundamental question and that is why, as I said, I thought it my duty to raise it in spite of pressure of time.

Pandit Balkrishna Sharma (U. P.: General): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I hope I will not be guilty of tautology if I say that the speech of the Honourable Minister for Railways and Transport is really a remarkable and wonderful performance. Its lucidity of expression, its facility, all have a charm of their own. At the same time the realism which one can see in every line of the speech of the Honourable Minister is very disturbing. He has a poet's imagination to present before us a panoramic view of our transport system. The picture which he presents to us is not very enchanting, it is not enthralling; the picture is rather depressing. Yet I can say that his words give us courage and hope and determination to overcome the difficulties which have fallen to our lot. When we passed our Railway

[Pandit Balkrishna Sharma]

Budget last year we did not know what the future held in store for us. Since then we have seen and suffered indescribable agonies. Here in this land of broad humanity we have seen humanity uprooted. We have seen the brute in man rearing its head in all its ferocity, and we have seen that brute shaking its goary claws in our face. And may I ask if there is any wonder that all this upheaval and carnage should have shaken to its very foundation our railway transport system? Not only man's bigotry and sub-human intolerance but even nature conspired against us. But we are thankful to providence that we have come out of it, though badly battered, yet alive and kicking and determined to do our job well. Naturally the partition issue that we had to face has created many a problem before us. The Honourable the Minister has very lucidly pointed out to us the various problems that were involved as a result of partition. As he has said in his own speech so many things had to be done. Operating arrangements resulting from partition, the problem of division of assets and liabilities and the concrete problems of current nature had to be taken into consideration. The operating arrangement naturally involved many things and the workshop arrangement did not work well as has been admitted by the Honourable the Railway Minister. He has said at one place that the Moghulpura workshop did not give us any service. For his consideration I would like to place before him a suggestion. At the time when we were one railway system, Moghulpura was all right. But before Moghulpura there was a workshop, and a very good workshop, near Saharanpur, hardly a mile and half from the Station, Khan Alampur and that workshop was giving us very good service. I would beg of him to consider the proposition whether it will not be desirable to revive that workshop for our railways of the East Punjab and other adjoining territories.

Then again, at another place, in regard to the division of assets and liabilities the Honourable the Minister for Railways has said that a hitch has arisen on the issue of shouldering all liabilities in lieu of the assets which have been given over to Pakistan. Though from the speech it is not clear as to what principle in notional division was kept in view, yet I think the principle that was adopted must have been of a nature which did not unnecessarily put us at a great disadvantage. Broadly speaking, three principles could be taken into consideration while dividing our assets and liabilities. Firstly the entire length of the permanent way, in divided territories, secondly the ratio of population in the divided territories, and thirdly the ratio of square mileage of the entire divided territory.

I do not know which of the three principles have been accepted while partitioning our assets and liabilities and yet I shall be failing in my duty if I did not point out that the division of liabilities cannot be settled in a way which will, as I said, put us at a disadvantage. The Pakistan Government, we have been told, has raised the issue that the division of liabilities should be on the basis of the earning of the railways. That certainly cannot be accepted by us. The question has not been settled simply because of the unwillingness of the Pakistan Government not to assume capital liabilities for the capital assets received by them. Let it be clearly understood that we shall not tolerate any extra burden on our exchequer resulting from liabilities not in consonance with our capital assets. The correct basis is the one which has been pointed out in the speech by the Honourable the Railway Minister and we are not going to accept any other basis in its place. The problem of transport difficulties and the problem of inconvenience to our passengers has been raised by so many members in this House. I may be forgiven when I say that when we are raising these problems and these difficulties, we really are shutting our eyes to the actualities of the situation because even a cursory glance through the pages of the Honourable the Railway Minister's speech will convince us as to the tremendous work which our railways have been able to perform during these difficult three months. They have transferred 1,08,000 of our opting staff and during that period we have transported as many as 25 lakhs of refugees, and if all this has resulted in congestion, has resulted in the holding up of wagons and thus has slowed down the movement of goods from one end of the country to another, we shall really be ungrateful if we lay the blame at the door of the Minister for Railways and Transport. In him I can say we have a man who has very ably handled the situation.

There are one or two things more which I would like to point out to the Honourable Minister. In the United Provinces the Government of the United Provinces have banned the entry of refugees from the Punjab. Now the Deputy Commissioner of Ambala informed the railway authorities there that they should not book any refugees for the U. P., but you will be surprised to know, Sir, that as many as seven trains were waiting, full of refugees, in each train about 1500 of them, at a station called Kalanaur in my province from the Punjab, and those trains were goods trains to which open trucks were attached. The District Magistrate of Saharanpur telephoned to the Deputy Commissioner of Ambala saying that these refugees cannot be taken by us and the poor Deputy Commissioner of Ambala said he had already written to the railway authorities but that his orders are not being obeyed. I would request the Railway Minister through you, Sir, to look into this matter.

Then again there is the question of . . . /

Mr. Speaker: The Honourable Member's time is over.

Honourable Members will note that the time-limit is 10 minutes.

Mr. Frank R. Anthony (C.P. and Berar : General): Sir, I shall endeavour to touch briefly on four points which the Honourable the Minister for Railways raised in his Budget speech. They relate to the regrouping of certain railways, the shortage of staff, particularly loco and engine staff, the absence of a certain sense of law and order which has led to ticketless travel and other activities involving the railways in the loss of a considerable sum of money, and last but not least, the labour question.

I appreciate, Sir, the need for the regrouping of certain railways, particularly as certain railways such as the Bengal and Assam and the East Punjab have been truncated as the result of division. There is one urgent problem which I would ask the Honourable Minister to bear in mind when dealing with this question of regrouping. I was addressing a few weeks back, a meeting of railwaymen at Kanchrapara. The Honourable Minister is aware that Kanchrapara is part of the B. & A. Railway which now falls into India. Members of the staff told me that on the B. & A. Railway they have a pernicious system of not making any of their employees permanent, and that in this regrouping they will be seriously affected; that all the other railways as a rule, and quite rightly, make an employee with one year's service permanent, but on the B. & A. Railway a man with anything from 10 to 15 years' service, a man who has risen from the subordinate to an official position, even he is not confirmed even in the original position to which he was recruited on the day he joined the railway. This is a serious problem because the men feel that if this peculiar position is lost sight of in regrouping, then the men on the B. & A. Railway with 10 to 12 years' service, men who have risen to an official position, will be placed subordinate to a man on another railway with one year's service who has been confirmed, because on the railway seniority is counted from the date of confirmation.

The Honourable Minister referred to the question of the shortage of staff, and particularly of loco and engine staff. I did an extensive tour of the East Indian Railway a few weeks back and I was not only amazed but I was very gratified when I found that while on the one hand as much as 60 per cent. of the loco staff had gone out with the option to Pakistan, yet the remaining 40 per cent. of the loco and engine staff were running up to 80 per cent. of the pre-division number of trains. This, I think, is a remarkable feat. And in this connection, Sir, I have a suggestion to make to the Honourable Minister for Railways. I am aware that a fair number of non-Muslims—Hindus, Sikhs, and members of my own community had opted for Pakistan before all these disturbances occurred. Since the disturbances they feel that they have no place in Pakistan. A number of loco people came to me the other day from Moradabad and they said they have no intention of going to Pakistan and that if necessary they would resign their jobs if they were not allowed to reopt for India. I would ask the Honourable Minister to consider this matter sympathetically. There are a number of non-Muslims who, when conditions had not reached the serious position they did in September had opted for Pakistan, not because of any political leanings but because perhaps they had some relatives in Pakistan or because of the very natural human reason that they thought transfer might improve their prospects. These people today have no desire to go to Pakistan. They are people in the loco and engine staff who I feel would be invaluable in filling the void which the railways are seriously suffering from in the matter of dearth of loco staff.

The third point, Sir, which the Honourable Minister made was the absence of a certain sense of law and order, which, the Honourable Minister felt, was largely responsible for ticketless travel. I also agree with him largely in this matter. I feel that a certain absence of a sense of law and order is also responsible for other activities which are costing the Railways very considerable financial loss. I refer to what I regard as sheer vandalism: when I travelled on certain lines recently, and particularly on branch lines, I found that carriages had come out from the workshops upholstered, reconditioned, completely renovated; the staff complained to me that within a week the upholstery was either torn or stolen, mirrors, bulbs and even fans were being torn out indiscriminately and regularly from these various carriages. I feel that while the Honourable Minister is considering measures to restrict this evil of ticketless travel, he might also well consider some measure for trying to restrict this organised vandalism and this organised theft with regard to Railway property.

Another matter to which I feel the Honourable Minister might give some attention is the not inconsiderable theft of coal. I was at one of the large—perhaps the largest—yards on the East Indian Railway the other day and I was told by the people in charge that on an average 100 tons of coal were being stolen each month. This coal was being stolen either in transit from uncovered wagons, or even more so in broad day light. I myself saw literally scores of little boys and women waiting to steal the coal with their bags. As soon as the men went off duty, these people would come there, steal maunds of coal and either sell it directly in the market or even unload it in vehicles which had been supplied to them by certain merchants.

Finally, Sir, I want to deal with this question of labour. To my mind, I feel this is the most important aspect of the Railway administration. I feel that there is little point in talking of financial rehabilitation, of development and of progress unless the Railway Administration is able to evolve some measure for both guiding and controlling Railway labour. I was gratified that the Honourable Minister has expressed a word of appreciation to the Railway worker. Quite frankly, I would like to have seen a more emphasised tribute. I feel that this House and the public do not realise the tribute that is due to the railwaymen. I have already mentioned how in some parts 40 per cent. of the loco staff are today, or since division, keeping 80 per cent. of the trains running. The tendency is for most of us to consider our personal comforts and discomforts: to complain all too generally and all too easily about some incident in a waiting room, or in a refreshment car or in some carriage. I am not for one moment advocating that we should condone shortcomings where they exist, but I do say that the railwayman has done yeoman service and a tribute—an emphatic tribute which is highly publicised—should be rendered to him.

In the two minutes that I have at my disposal I want to advert to some thing which I feel is both a serious and complex matter. I visited fifteen centres of the East Indian and B. N. Railways and I got one general complaint; that was this, that there was not a sense of sufficient obligation among members of those who are called "Inferior Staff". As a matter of fact, I was told at the largest workshop centre on the East Indian Railway that an expert had assessed that the average output of a member of the "inferior staff" amounted to two man-hours a day. This, as I have said is a serious and complex matter. I feel that the fault can be largely laid at the door of the Railway administration: the fact that there is no sufficient understanding and contact between the officers and men—this is a bad legacy of a bad past. Men do not trust the officers, they trust the supervisory and subordinate staff to a greater extent; the supervisory and subordinate staff feel they cannot take firm measures because they cannot get the support of the senior officers. The men are left today completely in the hands of incendiary and subversive elements who are feeding them on the slogan of more and more pay for less and less work. I would ask the Honourable Member deliberately to see to it that the senior Railway officials make greater contacts with their men. I talked to the senior Railway officials; they said, "We have no contact with the men. That is largely due to the fact that we are tied down to our desks, that we are involved in red-tape and routine and spend all our time going through mountains of unnecessary files. We have no time at all to contact the men".

The second suggestion I have to make is that we should depute somebody to talk to the men to tell them that under the terms of the Pay Commission recommendations, we have sought to do substantial justice—particularly to the men in the lower wage brackets—against the background of the capacity and resources of the country.

And finally, I feel that the supreme need of discipline must be brought home to the men. Today among the "inferior staff" independence is being interpreted as licence to do what each one likes; there is no discipline—discipline is the supreme need today. I say, "Do not enforce the petty dictatorship of the past, a dictatorship which made the official not only feared but hated; let there be discipline informed by a sense of liberality". I have asked repeatedly that the Railway Administration appoint an ex-Judge of the Federal Court or a High Court; let all appeals go to him. But having once told your railway men that we have done everything possible to give them fairplay—we are continuing today to do everything possible to give them fairplay—we now demand in return adequate work and we will take all necessary measures to enforce salutary and necessary discipline.

Shri M. S. Aney: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not want to make a long speech and I wish to finish my observations within the time allotted. In the first place, I do not want to offer any congratulations to the Honourable the Railway Minister. He has had a surfeit of them from a large number of Members but in my opinion he stands in greater need of sympathy than of congratulations, because he had had a very difficult job to do and a very unpleasant budget to present for adoption by the House. It is very kind of the House no doubt that they have taken a very sympathetic view of the proposals for additional taxation which he has imposed upon the people in the form of increase of railway fares—and for very good reasons also.

I congratulate him for another reason—not for this so much. He is one of the fortunate Ministers that is presenting a Budget to this House which is not opposed at all by the Benches on this side. It has been a tradition, Sir, of this House that whenever a Railway Budget or annual Budget was presented, Members on the Nationalist Benches and the Congress Benches have had a convention of throwing it out on the constitutional issue. रात भर जंगलों में पड़े रहते हैं जहां शेर और चीते जैसे जानवर उन्हें खतम कर सकते हैं। यह परिस्थिति आज थर्ड क्लास के पैसेंजर्स की है जिनके ऊपर सरकार ने किराया बढ़ाया है।

इसके अलावा मैं रेलवे के बारे में और एक बात कहूंगा, और वह सार मेम्बरों ने बात कही है, वह है घूसखोरी की। अपना भाषण देते वक्त आनरेबल मेम्बर साहब ने कहा कि कितने ज्यादा 'विदाउट-टिकिट' पैसेंजर जाते हैं। इसका कारण भी बहुत से सदस्यों ने बताया। मुझे खास कारण बताना है। जो बगैर टिकिट पैसेंजर जाते हैं उसका पैसा रेलवे डिपार्टमेंट में नहीं आता बल्कि उसमें काम करने वाले जितने नौकर हैं उनकी जेब में जाता है। मैंने अपनी आंखों से देखा है कि गेट की तरफ से आते हुए पैसेंजर्स को टिकिट देने की जरूरत नहीं, अगर वर्धा से बम्बई पहुंचने के आठ रुपये लगते हैं, टिकिट कलेक्टर के हाथ में एक या दो रुपया देकर वह सब बाहर निकलते हैं। यह परिस्थिति रेलवे की है और इसकी तरफ मैं आनरेबल मेम्बर का ध्यान आकर्षित करना चाहता हूं। टिकिट खरीदते वक्त भी घूसखोरी का यही हाल है।

इसके अलावा एक दूसरी बात मैं कहना चाहता हूं और वह यह कि सी० पी० के अंदर खास नागपुर में संतरा उत्पन्न होता है। मैंने यह देखा है कि संतरा इतना बाजार में आता है कि जो बाहर भेजा जाना बहुत जरूरी है। जो कि संतरा व्यापारी और काश्तकार रेलवे के जरिये बैगन्स में दूसरी जगह पहुंचाना चाहते हैं उसके लिए बैगन्स नहीं मिलती हैं। नागपुर के बाजार में आकर संतरा सड़ जाता है। लोगों के उपयोग में नहीं आता। उपयोग में आ सकता था अगर उसे बाहर भेजने के लिए रेलवे सहूलियतें देती। जिन काश्तकारों ने संतरे के बगीचे लगाये हैं रेलवे के जरिये बाहर न जाने के कारण सारी की सारी काश्त बेकार हो जाती है। उनको पैसा नहीं मिलता है। मेहनत बेकार जाती है और वह भूखे मर जाते हैं। मैंने कितनी बार रेलवे को लिखा मगर कोई जवाब नहीं। और सालों बाद जवाब आया भी तो यह कि बैगन्स नहीं हैं। जब कि हमारी पापूलर सरकार किसानों की भलाई करने का दावा रखती है तो संतरे के काश्तकारों का माल बाहर भेजने की व्यवस्था करना भी उसका कर्तव्य है। मैं इसकी ओर भी आनरेबल मेम्बर का ध्यान आकर्षित करना चाहता हूं। संतरा एक फल है और वह दस पांच दिन से ज्यादा नहीं रह सकता। अगर आपने वक्त के ऊपर बैगन न दिया तो वह सड़ जायगा और हिन्दुस्तान के लोगों को संतरे का आनन्द नहीं मिलेगा और काश्तकारों को नुकसान होगा। इस लिये नागपुर और उसके अतराव वाले सब रेलवे स्टेशनों पर संतरा बाहर भेजने के लिये बैगन्स का इन्तजाम होना जरूरी है।

तीसरी बात, सी० पी० के अन्दर नैरो गेज रेलवे है जहां अगर नागपुर से बैठ कर चलें और ९० मील छिंदवाड़ा जाना है तो दस घंटे लगते हैं। तो मैं आपसे प्रार्थना करूंगा कि जब आप किराया बढ़ा रहे हैं तो आपको पैसेंजर्स को सुविधा देनी चाहिये। अगर छिंदवाड़ा से आदमी ८०-९० मील मोटर पर आना चाहे तो तीन घंटे लगते हैं। लेकिन जिस रेलवे में दस घंटे लगते हैं उस रेलवे की क्या जरूरत है। छः बजे चलना है तो कभी तो पांच ही बजे चल देती है, कभी दस बजे तक भी नहीं चलती। यह भी मैं आनरेबल मेम्बर के ध्यान में लाना चाहता हूं कि इन नैरो गेज रेलवे का कोई टाइम नहीं है और ना आराम। इसलिये मैं तो कहना चाहता हूं कि जितनी नैरो गेज की रेलवे हैं, हिन्दुस्तान में वह सब बन्द कर दी जायें और सारी की सारी ब्राड गेज कर देनी चाहिये क्योंकि इसमें टाइम कम लगेगा। स्टेशनों पर जैसा मैंने कहा ठंडा पानी का इन्तजाम नहीं है। वह हो जाना चाहिये। इसके अलावा मैं एक मुख्य बात आनरेबल मेम्बर के ध्यान में लाना चाहता हूं और वह यह है कि आपका जो कैटरिंग (Catering) डिपार्टमेंट है उसका इन्तजाम तो आप देखें। न तो कभी चाय में शकर है और न गाय या भैंस का दूध है। मैंने तो यह देखा है कि कहीं डब्बे का दूध जिस में बहुत सारा पानी मिलाया जाता है वह हमारे सामने रेलवे में आ जाता है और उसका वही दाम लिया जाता है जो दाम पहले हम गाय और भैंस के दूध के साथ चाय पीते थे वह देते थे।

इसके अलावा आपके कैटरिंग डिपार्टमेंट में एक और बात आपको बतलाऊंगा जिसके ऊपर आनरेबल मेम्बर को फौरन ध्यान देना होगा। आज भी हिन्दुस्तान के अन्दर जब देश स्वतंत्र हो गया है उसके बाद अनटचैबिलिटी (Untouchability) आपके कैटरिंग डिपार्टमेंट में मानी जाती है। हरिजनों के लिये अलग कपवशिया रखी गई हैं। आज भी बरहानपुर और नागपुर के बाजू में जितने स्टेशन हैं आप देखेंगे कि रेलवे में काम करने वाले और प्रवास करने वाले हरिजन लोगों के लिये अलग कपवशिया रखी गयी हैं। आज जब कि देश स्वतंत्र हो गया है और महात्मा जी के नेतृत्व में कांग्रेस का राज्य है, हरिजनों के लिये अलग कपवशियों की व्यवस्था की जाती है। साधारण हरिजनों की हालत तो ऐसी है ही लेकिन मुझे रेल वालों का ध्यान उसकी ओर खींचना पड़ा जब कि मुझे महार जाति का समझ कर रेलवे की चाय की दुकानों में चाय नहीं दिया गया और अलग कपवशि के तरफ उंगली बतायी गयी। मैंने अपना हक प्रस्थापित करने के लिये बीसो बार चैन खींच कर गाड़ी खड़ी रखी और इस नीच व्यवहार के लिये रेलवे बोर्ड को लिखा। उसका जवाब रेलवे बोर्ड से मेरे पास आया कि ऐसी कोई बात नहीं है कि पैसेंजर्स को चाय देनी ही चाहिये। यह जवाब मेरे पास आया वह भी तीन साल बाद। आज की परिस्थिति में अस्पृश्य और स्पृश्य का भेद रेलवे के कैटरिंग डिपार्टमेंट

[श्री ऐच० जे० खन्डेकर]

में माना जाता है उसकी ओर मैं माननीय मंत्री महोदय का ध्यान दिलाना चाहता हूँ। और आशा रखता हूँ कि वे इस भेदाभेद को मिटाने की कोशिश करें।

इसके अलावा मुझे एक बात और कहनी है। शायद मेरे दो ही एक मिनट मेरे लिए रहे हैं। आनरेबिल मेम्बर तो सुन ही नहीं रहे हैं। वे तो किसी से बातें करने में मग्न हैं और शायद उन्हें हिंदी नहीं आती है। लेकिन मैं दूसरी भाषा बोलना नहीं चाहता। मैं अंग्रेजी जानता हूँ लेकिन देश हमारा है, और हम आजाद हैं, हम अपनी भाषा बोलेंगे। उनको चाहिये आजाद भारत में वह हिंदी सीखें, मेरे भाषण का उत्तर देने के लिए अन्य किसी के हाथ से नोट लेलेंगे मगर दुःख है, सभापति जी, कि वे अब भी, बातों में ही मशगूल हैं। मैं तो इतना और बताऊंगा कि गवर्नमेंट आफ इंडिया ने हरिजनों के लिए छोटी नौकरियों का साढ़े सोलह प्रतिशत और बड़ी नौकरियों का साढ़े बारह प्रतिशत जगहें रिजर्व रखी हैं। मगर रेलवे डिपार्टमेंट में मैंने अभी देखा वह कोटा पूरा नहीं किया गया। लायक हरिजनों की अर्जियां नामंजूर हो रही हैं। रेलवे डिपार्टमेंट में जो दो चार हरिजन काम करते होंगे उनको आज तक तरक्की नहीं मिली। बीस बीस साल नौकरी करने के बाद भी बी० एन० आर० और जी० आई० पी० आर० में हरिजन असिस्टेंट स्टेशन मास्टर तरक्की नहीं पाया। उनसे जितने कम सविस के दूसरी जाति के लोग हैं वह उनके सर पर जा कर बैठ गये। अगर कोई असिस्टेंट स्टेशन मास्टर हरिजन है तो उसको तरक्की नहीं मिली। मालूम नहीं वह हरिजन है इसलिए नहीं मिली या और कोई कारण है। मगर मैं तो यही समझता हूँ कि वो हरिजन है इसी कारण वह बढ़ नहीं सकता। मैं आनरेबिल मेम्बर का ध्यान इस बात के ऊपर जोरों से खींचना चाहता हूँ कि जब हमने निश्चय कर लिया है, कांस्टीट्यूट असेम्बली में हमने कानून पास कर लिया है कि "Untouchability will be an offence in India" ऐसी हालत में जो रिजर्वेशन Reservation गवर्नमेंट आफ इण्डिया ने दिया है उसको स्वीकार करना आपका फर्ज है। इस ओर भी मैं आपका ध्यान आकर्षित करते हुए अपना भाषण समाप्त करूंगा।

(English translation of the above speech.)

Shri H. J. Khandekar (C.P. and Berar: General): Mr. President. I have carefully listened to the speech of the Honourable Minister of Railways on the Railway Budget and also read his printed speech. His knowledge in this respect is really praiseworthy. He deserves to be congratulated for the ways and means found by him to ensure proper working of his Department in the difficult times ahead.

Sir, the country got freedom on the 15th August, but the Railway Department does not appear to have become independent. Because whenever I happen to travel on the Railway I find the same old names of the stations which existed during the days of British slavery, for instance, our sacred name "Mathura" is still written as "Muttra". "Mumbai" is still named as "Victoria Terminus". The Honourable Minister may kindly devote his attention towards this and change the names of such station, in the Indian language at an early date. The Honourable Minister has referred to certain difficulties in his speech and to remove these he has also suggested remedies; and simultaneously he has presented some proposals for increasing the passenger fares in this scheme.

I have nothing to say in regard to the first and second class passengers. But he has mentioned the same thing in respect of third class passengers also. I am somewhat pained over the increase in passenger fares proposed by him. The fare has been increased but no facilities have been provided for the third class passengers so that these passengers may gladly pay the fare. On the one hand they are placed in a bad financial position and on the other they are asked to pay more money.

There is no change in the former difficulties of third class travel. And if I place these difficulties before you, Sir, you will be surprised that where a compartment is to seat 19 persons, it is huddled up with forty, forty five or even sixty passengers like a herd of sheep and goats. If a railway compartment is meant for nineteen passengers, the Railway authority is in duty bound to issue only the same number of tickets. But this does not happen. They issue as many as 500 tickets while there are only six compartments with carrying capacity of 19 passengers each; and the condition of animals is much better than that of the third class passengers as the Honourable Member would have seen. But despite the money they spend, the plight of these passengers to-day is by no means better. They look eagerly for water at the stations, but there is no cold water for them to drink. There are no platform on flag stations. The third class passengers get down from the trains arriving at these flag stations without platforms which are situated in jungles. They pass their nights in the jungles where there is every likelihood of their being devoured by leopards and tigers. This is the plight of third class passengers to-day who have been made to pay increased fare by the Government.

Besides this I will talk about another matter concerning the Railways which has also been referred to by all the members and that is corruption. In the course of his speech the Honourable Minister referred to the increased number of ticketless travellers. Many members explained the reasons for this. I have to tell the particular reason and that is—the amount saved by the ticketless travelling passengers does not go to the Railway Department, but it falls into the pockets of the entire Railway staff. I have seen with my own eyes that the passengers while passing through the gate need not make over their tickets. All of them are able to secure exit by taking out rupees one or two from their pockets and tipping this to the Ticket Collector—when it costs rupees eight to travel from Wardha to Bombay. This state of affairs exists on the Railways and I wish to draw the attention of the Honourable Minister towards this. The same state of corruption prevails while purchasing the tickets.

Besides this the other thing which I want to say is that oranges are grown in Nagpur proper in the Central Provinces. I have seen that the oranges are brought to the market in such a large quantity that it seems essential to export these. The growers and traders are not able to secure wagons for despatching oranges to other stations by rail. The oranges therefore rot in the Nagpur market. They cannot be used by the people. They would have been used if the railway had afforded necessary facilities for their transport to outside stations. The growers who have planted orange-orchards are thus not able to procure any return for their crop which is thus wasted for lack of Railway transport facilities. Their labour is lost and they starve. I have so many times written to the Railway Department but no reply could be elicited. And if at all the reply came after years it was that there were no wagons. When our popular Government claim to be the benefactor of the farmers, it becomes its duty to make necessary arrangements for the transport of produce of the orange growers. I should like to invite the attention of the Honourable Minister to the fact. Orange cannot keep for more than 5-10 days. If the wagons are not supplied by you in time, the fruit is likely to rot. This would deprive the people of India of this one enjoyment and make the cultivators suffer. Therefore it becomes all the more necessary that arrangements should be made to supply wagons at Nagpur and other Railway stations situated in its suburbs for the transport of oranges to other places.

[Shri M. S. Aney]

is no Opposition".) He has been the first Minister to be able to present a Railway Budget in the first Sovereign Legislature, which is being accepted by the Members on this side and considered and criticised on its merits and not rejected on constitutional procedure.

Sir, apart from that there are two or three points to which I wish to invite the attention of the Honourable Minister. He is aware that when the War was going on, several lines were dismantled on account of the necessity of war. Of course there was no promise made then that the lines so dismantled would be re-laid but I want the Honourable Minister to look into the point and see whether it is not necessary that the persons who have undergone the suffering of losing their travelling by railway during the war, are not entitled to get back the advantage which they had before. In fact, when this point of dismantling was first considered in 1940-41 by the Central Advisory Council, the point of restoration was brought to his notice. I may tell him by the way that the Honourable Sir Andrew Clow who was in charge of the Railways then had gone through the whole matter very carefully but before anything could be done, out of a list of 13 lines six were already dismantled and nothing could be done in regard to them. But there was, in my opinion, a moral obligation upon the Railway Department, that those six lines which had been dismantled ought to be restored unless it is found to be extremely unremunerative and of no use at all.

Shri H. V. Kamath (C.P. and Berar General): Were you in the Government then?

Shri M. S. Aney: I was not.

Mr. Speaker: The Honourable Member should address the Chair.

Shri M. S. Aney: I have mentioned this point because the fate of these lines lies more or less upon the decision which the Railway Board will take. It is the duty of the Railway Board to consider this matter and decide as a matter of policy whether they should not seriously tackle the question of restoration of railways dismantled during the war as a war measure. The total mileage involved is 305 and the capital required is Rs. 190 lakhs. The Honourable Member will find all the details in the proceedings of the Central Advisory Council meeting held on the 2nd December, 1940. I bring this point particularly to his notice.

Then the second point is, I find that there is a reference to the restoration of one dismantled railway in the speech as well as in the Memorandum that has been submitted to us. In part II, he has stated:

"The Bhimsen-Khairada Section of the G. I. P. Railway which was dismantled during the war, is under construction."

I want to know whether this restoration is dealt with at random or whether the Government have arrived at any policy in regard to it. In my opinion, they should decide it as a matter of policy that railway lines which were dismantled during the war should be restored and the people who were deprived of the advantage of railway travel should be given back the advantage. One of these dismantled branch lines is Darwha-Pusad which runs through Yeotmal district.

I desire the Honourable Minister to particularly consider the point in regard to its restoration. Another point I wish to touch upon and to which a reference is made in the memorandum is the "Investment in road services". A very large amount has been allotted for this purpose. The memorandum says:

"For 'Investment in road services' requirements during this budget period are estimated at 69.5 lakhs, of which 2 lakhs are required to meet calls on shares held by the G. I. P. Ry. in the C. P. Transport Services, Ltd., operating in C. P., and the balance of 67.5 lakhs for investment in new Companies being formed in the United Provinces, Madras, Orissa and Bihar."

I thought, Sir, that there will be some reference to the policy behind the allotment that has been made, but unfortunately in the course of his budget speech, the Honourable Minister did not mention anything about it. It is a matter in which lakhs of people are interested, and I would like to hear something from the Honourable Minister when he rises to give his reply.

Sir, I have promised not to take very long. So I shall stop here and thank you for giving me an opportunity to speak on the Railway Budget.

श्री एच० जे० खण्डेकर : सभापति जी, रेलवे बजट पर माननीय मंत्री महोदय का भाषण मैंने ध्यान से सुना और छपा हुआ भाषण मैंने पढ़ा। इस ओर जो उनका अभ्यास है वह प्रशंसनीय है और आज की कठिनाई की परिस्थिति में उन्होंने अपने काम काज को ठीक प्रकार चलाने के लिए जो जो मार्ग निकाले हैं उसके लिए वे धन्यवाद के पात्र हैं।

सभापति जी, १५ अगस्त को देश स्वतंत्र हो गया मगर रेलवे डिपार्टमेंट स्वतंत्र हुआ सा मालूम नहीं होता। क्योंकि जब ज़ब मैं रेल में चलता हूँ तो स्टेशनों के वही अंग्रेजी गुलामी के नाम देखता हूँ जैसे कि हमारा पवित्र नाम "मथुरा" अभी तक 'Muttra' नाम से लिखा है। "बंबई" अभी तक 'Victoria Terminus' नाम से है। मंत्री महोदय इस ओर ध्यान दें और ऐसे स्टेशनों के नाम देशी नामों में जल्दी बदल दें। अपने भाषण में मंत्री महोदय ने बताया है और यह दिक्कतें दूर करने के लिए उन्होंने अपने भाषण में उपाय भी सुझाये, और इसके साथ साथ उन्होंने पैसंजरो पर किराया बढ़ाने के कुछ उपाय इस स्कीम में पेश किये। फर्स्ट और सैकिड क्लास के पैसंजरो के बारे में मुझे कुछ नहीं कहना है। मगर थर्ड क्लास के पैसंजरो के बारे में भी उन्होंने ऐसी ही बात कही है। जो किराया उन्होंने बढ़ाया है उसके लिए मुझे कुछ दुःख मालूम होता है। किराया बढ़ाया गया मगर इसके साथ थर्ड क्लास के पैसंजरो को कोई सहूलियत नहीं दी है जिससे वह पैसंजर खुशी से किराया दे सकें। एक तो उनकी माली हालत बुरी है दूसरे यह है कि उनसे कहा जाय कि ज्यादा पैसा दीजिये। जो उनकी दिक्कतें पहले से थर्ड क्लास में ट्रैवेल करने की हैं, उन दिक्कतों में कोई तब्दीली नहीं हुई। और अगर मैं यह दिक्कतें आपके सामने रखूँ तो, सभापति जी, आप ताज्जुब करेंगे कि जहाँ १९ आदमियों का एक कम्पार्टमेंट रक्खा गया है वहाँ ४०, ४५, ५० यहाँ तक कि ६० पैसंजर भेड़ों और बकरियों की तरह ठोंसे जाते हैं। अगर १९ आदमियों के कम्पार्टमेंट वाली गाड़ी चलती है, वहाँ रेलवे का फर्ज हो जाता है कि १९ ही टिकट इसू issue करें। मगर यह नहीं होता। टिकट तो जारी करते हैं ५०० और कम्पार्टमेंट होते हैं १९ वाले छः और सारे थर्ड क्लास के पैसंजरो से, सब सदस्यों ने देखा होगा, जानवरों की हालत अच्छी होती है, मगर इन पैसंजरो की हालत पैसा देते हुए भी आज अच्छी नहीं है। स्टेशनों पर पैसंजर पानी के लिये ताकते हैं लेकिन उनके लिये ठंडा पानी पीने को नहीं है। फ्लैग स्टेशनों पर प्लेटफार्म नहीं हैं। जंगलों में जो फ्लैग स्टेशन रक्खे गये हैं वहाँ वह गाड़ी पहुंचती है, और थर्ड क्लास के पैसंजर वहाँ उतरते हैं। प्लेटफार्मस हैं नहीं।

CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY OF INDIA (LEGISLATIVE) [25TH Nov. 1947]

[Shri H. J. Khandekar]

Thirdly, I have to say that there is a narrow gauge Railway in the C.P., where it takes ten hours to travel a distance of 90 miles between Nagpur to Chhindwara. I have, therefore, to request you to kindly afford facilities to the passengers when you are increasing the fare. If a person travels 80-90 miles by motor from Chhindwara, it takes him three hours. But existence of the Railway which takes ten hours does not any longer seem to be necessary. If its departure time is scheduled at six o'clock, some times it leaves at five, and at times it does not start till ten o'clock. I should like this also to be brought to the notice of the Honourable Minister that this narrow gauge Railway has neither any regular timing nor does it provide any comfort. I would, therefore, suggest that all the narrow gauge Railways in India should be wound up and the entire system should be converted into broad gauge, because it will take lesser time. I have already mentioned that there is no arrangement for the supply of cold drinking water at the stations and this should be made.

Besides this, I want to bring another important matter to the notice of the Honourable Minister and that is: your Catering Department—the management of which you may kindly see for yourself. At times there is neither sugar in the tea nor cow or buffalo milk. I have personally seen this that at places on the Railway we are to use the tinned milk which is adulterated with a large quantity of water and we are to pay the same price for this as we used to pay before for the tea which we took with cow and buffalo's milk.

Along with this, I would refer to another matter relating to your Catering Department which would require the immediate attention of the Honourable Minister. Even to-day after the dawn of independence in the country, untouchability is existing in India in your Catering Department. Separate cups and saucers are maintained for Harijans. You will find even to-day that at all stations situated near Burhanpur and Nagpur separate cups and saucers have been maintained for Harijans—working and travelling on the Railway. To-day when the country has achieved freedom and there is the Congress Government under the leadership of Mahatma Gandhi a separate establishment for maintaining cups and saucers has been set up. This is no doubt the condition of the ordinary Harijans. But I have got to draw the attention of the Railway people towards this—when I was not provided with tea at Railway tea stalls being taken as a member of the 'Mahar community', and my attention was drawn towards the cup and saucer kept separately by raising of the finger. On this I pulled the chain for about twenty times and stopped the train with a view to establish my right. I wrote to the Railway Board about this maltreatment meted out to me and in reply the Board informed me that it was not obligatory that the passengers should be supplied with tea. This reply I got and that too after the lapse of three years. This differentiation between the touchables and untouchables is existing in the Catering Department of this Railway even in the present day conditions. I would like to draw the attention of the Honourable Minister towards this and hope that he would try to remove this distinction.

Besides this I have to say another thing—perhaps there are only one or two minutes left for me. The Honourable Minister is not listening to this—he is busy in talking to somebody else and perhaps does not know Hindi. But I do not want to speak in any other language. I know English but it is our country and we are independent—we will speak in our own language. He should try to learn Hindi in free India. To enable him to reply to my speech he should ask someone else to take notes thereof. But, Sir, it is a matter of deep regret that he is still busy in his talk. Further I will only say this that the Government of India have reserved for Harijans 16½ per cent. and 12½ per cent. of subordinate and gazetted posts respectively. But in the Railway Department I have found that this quota has not been filled up. The applications of capable Harijans are being rejected. Whatever little number of Harijans are working in the Railway Department they have not been given promotions till today. The Harijan Assistant Station Masters having put in about 20 years service on the B. N. and G. I. P. Railways have not been able to get promotions. They have been superseded by people of other communities but an Assistant Station Master who is a Harijan is not granted promotion. It is not known whether he has been precluded for promotion for the reason that he is a Harijan or there is any other cause.

With all the emphasis I would like to draw the attention of the Honourable Minister to the fact that when once we have decided and enacted a legislation in the Constituent Assembly that "Untouchability will be an offence in India" it becomes your duty to accept the reservation earmarked by the Government of India. While inviting your attention towards this aspect, I will end my speech.

Shri H. V. Kamath. Sir, I had better begin without the customary note of congratulation, because I find it has tended to become very hackneyed. As I listened to the speech of the Honourable the Railway Minister I went back in my memory over twenty years when I had listened to him in Madras when he was a Professor in the Presidency College, not as a pupil of his but as an occasional listener to his very interesting addresses. I found that years had added charm to his manner and mellifluousness to his speech. But in spite of this, Sir, there are certain points in his address which I feel are open to a little criticism, and I hope he would certainly not mind this little criticism.

I may at the outset say I am at a certain disadvantage because I am speaking at the far end of the discussion and most of the points have been made out by previous speakers who have participated in the discussion. My Honourable friend Mr. Anthony has referred to the lack of a sense of discipline. I want to reinforce this point that has been made out by my Honourable friend. Permit me, Sir, to point out a concrete instance in this connection. Coming by road from Nagpur to Delhi, I had to cross the railway bridge at Chambal near Dholpur. The Chambal Bridge is a deck bridge for military traffic, but it is open to civilian traffic on special permission. I found on reaching the bridge that there are three gates at the bridge. One gate was opened by a cooly and the second gate was absolutely unattended to and there was nobody there. I had to walk all the way along the bridge, go to the other end of the bridge and fetch the Controller from the other end and bring him to this side and get him to phone to the Jhansi Head Office after considerable difficulty. He said he had no instructions, but after some considerable wrangling and arguing he agreed to telephone and it was nearly after an hour and a half's delay I was able to pass over the deck bridge at Chambal. The other points, Sir, like the overcrowding, insanitation and the lack of water facilities, tea facilities and such cognate matters have been touched by the previous speakers.

There is one point which has been missed by some of them and that is the problem of water, which formerly had assumed a communal aspect, in the sense that it was called "Hindu and Muslim water" (Hindu Pani and Muslim Pani). Since perhaps last year it had changed to "orthodox water" and "general water", so far as I can remember. Either at the end of last year or early this year, when I was passing through Allahabad, at the station I saw big boards "orthodox water" and "general water". (Khas Pani and Am Pani). I did not comprehend what it meant at first. I just wanted to test what difficulty there would be in having "orthodox water". At that time, Sir, fortunately or unfortunately I had a beard and I went up to the men who were giving "orthodox water". They said: "You cannot have this

[Shri H. V. Kamath]
 "orthodox water". I said: "Why not"? They said: "This 'orthodox water' means only Hindu". I said: "That is abolished now. There is no Hindu or Muslim water".

I asked what general water was and was told that it was Muslim water, orthodox water being Hindu water. After considerable discussion and argument in which many of my co-passengers joined me, I succeeded in getting even this orthodox water in spite of my hirsute appendage.

The Honourable Minister referred to ticketless travel in the U. P. He was quite right in this respect because last year when I travelled on the O. & T. Railway I saw people crowding on the roof tops of coaches in such a precarious position that I was at times wondering whether they would not fall over. On inquiry I found that accidents had happened and many people had perished by travelling on the tops of these coaches. Then overcrowding and congestion inside the third class carriages is extremely bad. The other day my Honourable friend Mr. Sidhwa raised the question of dogs in trains. I think dogs in airconditioned and other coaches are better off and more comfortably provided for than third class passengers in their compartments. This is a thing which puts humanity to shame and the condition of these third class carriages beggars description. I hope that with the advent of nationalisation of this important undertaking and with our National Government in office this sort of thing will be put an end to at a very early date.

Sir, there are just one or two points that I should like to deal with before I conclude. There is one little bit of tract in this country which is devoid of any railway line and that is between Kadur in Mysore State and Mangalore. The only way to link up Bangalore and Mangalore—unless it be circuitously by way of Madras—is through Hassan. That would add to the convenience of passengers from Mysore State who want to proceed to Mangalore instead of having to go all the way round Madras or by bus via Kadur. This I know is a very difficult terrain for the railway to negotiate but I hope that with modern contrivances and scientific advancement this would not be a difficult undertaking to accomplish.

Then there is the question of electrification. I think that with electrification of railways much of our expenses on coal would be saved and it would also result in the speeding up of trains and add to the convenience of passenger traffic.

Lastly, Sir, I should like to see in our country as soon as possible a very fine underground system as obtains in Europe, Russia and England. I know it is a very difficult thing but an underground system would add to the convenience of railway travelling.

In conclusion I would like to say that the common man must be made to feel that the railway is his own, that it is a national asset and not merely an instrument of exploitation and oppression. The railways can be made an instrument of national happiness and national prosperity, and I do hope that with the Honourable Minister in charge of this national undertaking we will see our railways at the head of all other railway system, in the world.

Shri S. Nagappa (Madras: General): Sir, I join the previous speakers in congratulating the Honourable Minister on his presenting a very able budget. The first budget presented by independent India is a deficit budget. But anyhow I realise the difficulties of the Honourable Minister in these days due to the division of the country. I was glad to see that this has resulted due to the cost of coal and due to the increased wages that are paid to the labourers.

[At this stage Mr. Speaker vacated the Chair which was then occupied by Pandit Thakurdas Bhargava (one of the Panel of Chairmen).]

I am glad that Government have established a kind of contact with these labourers and I hope this contact will continue for ever and the good will between the labourers and Government will prevail for all time to come. I was particularly glad to note that fourth class and third class employees of the railways were given the maximum benefit out of the 22½ crores of raised wages.

As regards the difficulties of the travelling public I have heard Honourable Members making a catalogue of their grievances; I hope the Honourable Minister will try at an early date to redress as many of them as possible. As to the raising of fares and freights I find that there has not been much of a justification. A good deal of discrimination has been made, specially the second class passenger has been hit hard while the third class passenger has been less burdened. For instance, the difference between the first class passenger and the second class passenger seems to be great. The second class passenger rate has been raised by 33 1/3 per cent. whereas the first class passenger has to pay an excess of 25 per cent. only. I should like to know why there should be so many classes at all. Is it necessary? As in England, I think there should be two classes only,—Upper and Lower,—instead of the First, Second, Inter and Third classes.

Then the Honourable Minister drew a sad picture as regards our locomotives. It is of course true that we could not produce enough locomotives. As Mr. Kamath suggested, I think by electrifying our lines the cost may be reduced. And instead of depending on coal, we could have, as in Southern India, oil-fired locomotives in order to economise and curtail the expenditure.

As regards ticketless travel the Honourable Minister referred to the U.P. alone. I do not think other provinces are in the same line. But I hope he will realise the difficulties of these people who travel without tickets. At times they are not able to get tickets at all. If you go to a station you find only one booking centre and the tickets are not issued properly and the booking clerks indulge in all sorts of tricks in order to avoid giving a ticket. I do not want Government to encourage ticketless travel but I want them to take better steps so as to prevent it. Moreover, as compared to other countries we find more men employed here than are necessary. I suggest to the Honourable Minister to make retrenchment as much as possible. I find that 166 Britishers are still serving here; they should be replaced by Indians at the earliest possible moment. Now, Sir, the superior posts that are still occupied by the other personnel, such as British personnel, may be replaced by Indians.

As regards the other point, that is expenditure on coal, the Honourable Minister has said it is about Rs. 5 to 6 crores. I do realize the Honourable Minister's difficulty. Because of the cost of labour it might have gone high. But I would request him to find out other means in order to reduce the cost. I hope, Sir, the High Power Committee which enquired recently into the railway problems, might have thrown some light on this point, especially the examination of other fuel than coal or the oil-fired locomotives, as it has proved in Southern India a success, and at the same time the electrification of railways.

As far as possible, I would request the Government to try to manufacture almost all parts in India itself instead of importing.

As regards the revision of scales and revision of freights and fares, the Honourable Minister has not considered the other aspect of it. It will also have its own reflections and reactions on other necessities of life as a result of the increase of freights.

Along with the stoppage of the leakage in ticketless travel, I would request the Honourable Minister to take particular care in stopping all the discrimination in weighments or as regards goods or classes of goods, especially now that other friends have described their difficulties in getting wagons. It is a fact that it is very difficult, unless and until we act according to the tune of the officials concerned, to get wagons in these days.

With these few remarks I support the budget proposals that are before this House.

شری دیش باندھو گپتا : سہا پتی جی! میں آرہیل منسٹر کی توجہ ایک دو باتوں کی طرف کھینچنا چاہتا ہوں۔ دہلی خوش قسمتی سے یا بد قسمتی سے ایسی جگہ ہے جہاں گورنمنٹ آف انڈیا کے ہر ایک ڈیپارٹمنٹ کا امتحان ہو جاتا ہے۔ چونکہ یہاں پر گورنمنٹ آف انڈیا کے براہ راست ریسیانسیبل ہونے کی وجہ سے ہمیں اپنے سب منسٹروں کی کارگزاری کا کچھ اندازہ کرنے کا موقع ملتا ہے۔ دہلی میں اگر انتظام ٹھیک نہ ہو تو اس کا مطلب یہ ہوگا کہ چراغ تلے اندھیرا ہے۔ اس میں کوئی شک نہیں ہے کہ اتنے محکموں کو آپ اپنے وقت کا بہت سا حصہ دیتے ہیں۔ قسمت سے پہلے سے ان کا کم واسطہ ہے اس لئے زیادہ وقت ان کو ڈیپارٹمنٹ کو دیکھنے کا ملتا ہے۔ اس لئے میں توقع کرتا ہوں کہ آج جتنی باتیں میں عرض کرنا چاہتا ہوں ان کی طرف ان کا دھیان کھینچے۔ دہلی میں اس وقت سب سے بڑی مصیبت یہ ہے کہ دہلی ایک بہت بڑا ٹرانسپورٹنگ سنٹر ہے۔ ریلوں کے لحاظ سے تو ایک بہت بڑا چلکشن ہے۔

(English translation of the above speech.)

Shri Deshbandhu Gupta (Delhi) : Mr. Chairman, I desire to draw the attention of the Honourable Minister to one or two facts. Fortunately, or unfortunately, Delhi is so situated that every department of the Government of India is put to the test. Here in Delhi, due to the Government of India, being directly responsible, we get an opportunity of forming some estimate of all our Ministers' Services. Absence of proper management in Delhi, means darkness under the lamp. There is no doubt that you devote much of your time to departmental work and as things stand the public has little concern with you and the Ministers have therefore more time to devote to their departments. I hope, therefore, that the attention of the Ministers should be drawn towards all of the facts which I want to mention today. One of the greatest difficulties in Delhi, today is that it is a very great transporting centre. It is the one of the biggest Railway Junctions, where the Railways of the whole of Northern India meet. My learned friend knows that for the last few months it may be a legacy of the war but at least for a few days it has been a general complaint that if any necessary commodity is required to be sent either from Karachi, Bombay or Calcutta to Delhi, it will first be booked to Delhi—Shahdara or Firozabad and thence to Delhi. The cause for this is that there is a great scarcity of the wagons in Delhi, and due to this scarcity a very great quantity of goods is left lying in Delhi for months together.

My personal experience has been derived from transactions in connection with my newspaper The Tej. My men went to the Railway Station, and there they have ascertained this; my men still have been going there daily for the last two months. When enquiries about wagons are made and complaints are lodged at the station, no definite reply is given.

A great many men will suffer loss if the Honourable Minister does not take measures to remedy these defects. I think, the Honourable Minister will see for himself, if he goes to the Railway station.

I want to draw the attention of the Honourable Minister towards another defect, and I hope it will be remedied. It is that in Delhi, Transport arrangement should be done properly. I am given to understand that some negotiations in this connection, are being carried on between the Government and the G. N. I. T. Bus administration. If this arrangement is made it will be good and if the number of buses is increased the difficulties of the people which are many in these days, will be reduced.

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai (Minister for Railways and Transport): Sir, if I may say so, the discussion that has taken place on the Railway Budget today does credit to the House. It is my privilege as Minister in charge of the Railways, to know things from inside and on that knowledge to size up the relative importance of the problems which the railways are facing. To me it is a cheering fact that Honourable Members who have taken part in the discussion today attach the same order of importance to specific railway problems as I do.

The discussion has ranged over so vast a field that it is a little difficult for me to know either at what point to begin to reply or the portion of this wide field which I should cover in my replies. What I will do in the time that has been allotted to me is to take some of the more important problems that have been raised and offer such replies as I can to questions put to me by Honourable Members.

One question in which this House and its predecessors have always taken a keen interest, is the conditions under which our lowest class passengers travel. Ever since I took charge of the Railways as Minister, it has been brought home to me in many ways that unless we can make a real difference to the conditions of third class travel we shall not have justified the nationalisation of the railways. There is a fundamental point which my Honourable friend Mr. Patil raised and to which I want to reply a little later. I do consider that the extent to which we are able to improve the conditions of travel of our lowest class passengers is a test by which our management of the railways would, to a large extent, be judged. I am well aware of that.

[Dr. John Matthai]

The conditions under which I have to face this problem today, as I explained in my Budget speech, are conditions so difficult and so largely beyond my control—that for the present, except to express my determination to do all that I can, there is little that I can do. I do not want to make promises or to give undertakings to the House in this respect, because over such time as I might have charge of this office I doubt whether there would be such an improvement as would make a material difference to the position.

As I understand this question—it is a question to which I have given a good deal of thought—the right point from which to begin to tackle the conditions of travel of our lowest class passengers, is overcrowding. Unless we are able to relieve the terrible overcrowding which at present prevails we cannot make any contribution to the solution of the general problem of amenities. When you consider this question of overcrowding you will find that it has many sides to it. First of all, I want to draw the attention of the House to a patent fact which somehow does not receive the attention it deserves. There is more money in the country than there are goods and services on which the money can be spent. A person with money to spend cannot spend it on food, because there is a limit to the quantity of food that he can buy: he cannot spend it on clothes, because there is also a limit to the quantity that he can buy: he cannot spend it on other classes of consumer goods, because we are not producing them and we can hardly import them either. But there is one kind of service, one class of goods on which he can spend it, as much of it as he wants, at practically the price he used to pay before the war. And that is railway transport—I am inclined to think that this has had a great deal to do with the tremendous increase that has occurred in the amount of passenger traffic. If you compare the amount of passenger traffic today with what it was in 1938-39 you find the increase is a little over 100 per cent. The extent to which we have been able to increase the number of passenger coaches since 1938-39 is somewhere about 10 per cent. That gives you the problem in a nutshell.

But it is not merely that people can get their railway service at something like the prices which they used to pay before that accounts for this. There is the question of ticketless travel, to which a great deal of reference has been made. Honourable Members have perhaps misunderstood me. They think that I attributed this problem of ticketless travel entirely to the misdoings of people, to bad citizenship. Bad citizenship is only a part of the problem. Part of it is the responsibility of the railways. During the past year I know that the facilities available at our booking offices have not been adequate. Over a long period of months there were not enough tickets available. Our Printing presses were not working, it was impossible to get private presses to do the work and for a considerable time it was a serious factor which contributed to ticketless travel. Whatever it be, whether it is the fault of the railways or whether it is a certain deterioration in standards of citizenship, ticketless travel has greatly accentuated this problem of overcrowding.

Therefore the way in which we can deal with the problem is this. First of all, we have to increase the transport capacity. We have a large number of coaches on order but I do not expect that we shall be in a position to get the bulk of it executed and delivered before the end of 1949. Before the end of 1948 I expect to get somewhere about 600 additional coaches put in service—not a small number. If every thing goes well, if our programme works all right, I expect to be able to get about 250 or 270 III class passenger coaches returned by the Defence Department; that is to say that in the course of about 6 to 12 months from now I think we should be able to put in service over 800 passenger coaches and I think that would make some difference.

But you have to tackle the problem not merely from the side of transport capacity but also from the side of the number of passengers who want to travel. What I mentioned in the course of my budget speech about ticketless travel I think would reduce overcrowding. We are going to do what we can in the way of improving railway facilities (which are relevant to the question of ticketless travel) and I hope also to enlist sufficient support from those responsible for law and order in the provinces, to prevent unauthorised travel.

Mr. Sidhwa challenged me on certain statements that I made in the course of the budget debate in the old Assembly. I made certain promises, which I have not been able to carry out. I do not propose to make any promises today. But I want to tell Mr. Sidhwa what actually happened. In the course of the discussion reference was made to what is called the Betterment Fund, which is the fund out of which all improvements which are not of a directly remunerative character are financed. In the analysis of the expenditure from the Betterment Fund the House found that out of about Rs. 5 crores only 1 crore was set apart for the provision of additional amenities for passengers. In the course of the debate I said I would make arrangements for an additional expenditure of Rs. 1 crore. Immediately the session was over I issued instructions to the Railway administrations to send up estimates for the provision of additional amenities for third class passengers up to a total figure of Rs. 1 crore. We got proposals and instructions were given to railways to proceed with them. Then the question of partition came on, and the energy and resources of the Railways were largely directed to it. I believe nevertheless that a substantial addition was made to the expenditure which was originally contemplated in regard to amenities. My latest information is this. According to my promise to the Assembly Rs. 2 crores was to be the amount expended during 1947-48. That, on a post-partition basis, would be somewhere about Rs. 170 crores. I believe arrangements have been made by the Railway administrations to spend about Rs. 150 crores out of this. It is as far as we have been able to go. I want therefore to submit to the House that in view of the severely limiting conditions under which we worked we have done our best to implement such promises as I have given.

I come now to the fundamental point which my friend Mr. S. K. Patil raised, a point that has often caused me worry. The point was this. Here is this outstanding nationalised concern in the country. There is at present a great deal of demand for nationalisation. If this large industry which stands out as the typical example of a nationalised concern in the country gives so little satisfaction, then it knocks the bottom of the case for nationalisation. I want to make it perfectly clear that I am not advocating the universal adoption of nationalisation. That has never been my view. I believe in the end you will find there is a fairly large case—larger than many of us have thought—for nationalisation in India. But the question has to be considered with reference to the circumstances of each industry. I think we are in the habit in these matters of generalising too hastily. It is somewhat like the question of free trade and protection. There is no such thing as a universal 'yes' or universal 'no' to this question. It all depends upon the circumstances of the particular country and the particular industry. That is also the view I take with regard to nationalisation. I want to take the point that Mr. Patil raised. If this concern, the Railways, had been a private concern and not a state one, owned and managed by the state, then one of the first things it would have done would have been to raise the prices of its goods to an extent that would adequately cover the increased costs that it has to bear and the reserves it has to provide. As a nationalised concern it has not been able to do that. Even with all the increases that I have proposed, I take it that compared with pre-war figures the increases might be of the order of not more than 25 to 30 per cent. In a country like the United Kingdom where the increase in the cost of living has not been anything so high as it is here the increase that has taken place since pre-war is 55 per cent. If the House is going to restrict the extent to which business methods can be applied to a nationalised concern, then I submit the reason why the nationalised concern is not able to do its job properly is a reason which the House has to share with me.

We have nationalised all the class I railways, all the major railways in the country. Today I believe there are only 25 small narrow gauge and meter gauge lines that have not been taken over by the state. The principle of nationalisation has not been applied to them. It is extraordinary that hardly a week passes when I do not get an appeal from large groups of people asking me to take over these lines. If nationalisation is such an objectionable thing why is it that people are so anxious that these few remaining small lines should also be taken over by the state? There must be something behind it.

I want to go further. One of the biggest problems in this country is the shortage of essential consumer goods. The textile industry, next to agriculture, is the industry which produces consumer goods. Are we satisfied that we are getting the best possible service out of the textile industry? If we are not, why is it that this charge is not being brought in regard to them? Obviously when it comes to an industry, every detail of which is subject to the scrutiny of the Legislature and subject to public opinion, tests are being applied which are not altogether fair. That is the real point.

I now come to the general question of economy which naturally is exercising the minds of Honourable Members. I am alive to this problem of economy because, on the basis of the increased fares and freights only I do not think I should be able within a reasonable period to bring the Railways into a satisfactory financial position unless I can effect further economies than we have been able to achieve so far. I am very well aware of the importance of economy. The trouble is this: if you take the total working expenses of our railways, nearly two-thirds is expenditure on staff and labour. There are two ways in which you can economize on staff and labour. One is to reduce the rates of salaries and rates of wages. The other is to reduce the number of people employed. It so happens that I am not in a position to do either, because the scales of salaries and the scales of wages are fixed for me by outside agencies in whose decisions I have no voice. We are now basing all our scales of remuneration on the recommendations of the Pay Commission. It is perfectly true that there is a considerable number which is at present surplus to our requirements on the existing basis. But along with that we have to consider a substantial extension of the process of liberalisation that has gone on in regard to working conditions, in regard to periods of leave, in regard to hours of work. As the House knows, Mr. Justice Rajadhyaksha who was appointed Adjudicator in these matters has sent in his report which is now under consideration by Government.

That report makes various recommendations regarding reduction of hours of work and provision of more leave. My examination of the question, as I told you in the course of my Budget speech, has led to the conclusion that in order to meet the recommendations of the Adjudicator it would be necessary to keep more or less the existing staff, including that part of it which is surplus to requirements judged on the present standard. Therefore I am not in a position to reduce the personnel. If I cannot reduce the salaries and wages, and if I cannot reduce the number of personnel, how am I to effect economy in regard to this item of expenditure which covers two-thirds of our total working expenses?

The other question is the question of coal, the question of power. So far the trouble with power is that, the increase in expenditure has been entirely due to a rise in prices. It is possible that by measures of fuel economy, we can reduce the quantity of coal that we use. We are doing everything that we can. I am quite serious about it because I have had a good deal of experience of the possibilities of fuel economy. When I was in charge of the Tata Iron & Steel Company where the question of coal is of live importance, I became aware of the economies which it is possible to achieve. There has been a good deal of complaint in recent years that the railways are consuming an undue proportion of the better class coal in the country. The railways need coal for making steam. For that you do not need to use the kind of coal used by the steel industry, that is to say metallurgical coal. It is much too good for our purpose. Therefore we have been asked to reduce our consumption of high class coal. We are trying to do that. In fact on several of our railways now we have made sufficient progress in direction of dispensing with the use of metallurgical coal. But that raises its own problems. The cost of coal in a country of vast distances such as ours is measured by freight rather than by the price at pit's mouth, for example coal conveyed to Bombay, coal conveyed up to the Punjab, coal conveyed to the U.P., the price that you pay at pit's mouth is relatively a small part of the total cost. When you use inferior coal, you pay the same freight. Actually you pay more because inferior coal means there is more ash, etc. and so you are paying freight on a lot of things mixed with coal which have no calorific value. Therefore really the moment you go down to inferior coal, instead of reducing the expenditure of the railway industry you are probably increasing its cost.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra (West Bengal, General): Has this aspect been technically examined by experts? It is more or less theoretical.

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: I am simply putting forward my personal view which has not been technically examined as far as I know. But in my opinion it is a commonsense view. I should like to assure my Honourable friend that the question of coal is something with which I have been brought into contact over a period of many years since I had the honour of doing a Tariff Board enquiry into coal somewhere in 1926.

With regard to the number of people we have employed, a reference was made to the size of the Railway Board, why we have six Members now instead of five as before. I explained in my Budget speech the point of having a sixth Member. The problem of evacuating refugees became so difficult and so complicated that we have had for a few months to set apart a Member to give his whole time to this question. But that Membership would be abolished in the course of a week or so. During the past two months we have abolished 12 superior posts in the Railway Board, amounting to an annual expenditure of somewhere about 2 lakhs, and that process is going to continue. We are going to look into every branch of administration. There is a large number of posts which were created under war conditions, and as you know the inertia of bureaucratic organizations is such that once a post is created, it continues unless you apply your mind to it and prune them. Now that we have started this process, I am determined to see that that process is carried out up to the total extent possible.

There has been a great deal of reference to the question of electrification. As a matter of fact we have various schemes of electrification in hand and we propose to go through with that. There again, subject to what my friend Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra might say, I think there is a limit up to which you can achieve economy by electrification.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: Only if you can link up hydro-electric with thermal energy.

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: I was going to say that the best way in which you could economize by means of electrification is where your electricity—I am speaking of conditions in this country—is thermal electricity and produced near the coalfields so that the coal has not to bear any freight. If

[Dr. John Matthai]

Honourable Members have examined the financial position of hydro-electric concerns in India, the greater number of them, they will find, include an amount of overhead expenditure, which in the end makes the cost of hydro-electricity greater than the cost of thermal electricity provided you generate the latter right on the coalfields.

My Honourable friend Mr. Chaudhury from Assam raised a number of questions regarding the Assam Railway. I made a reference to this problem in the course of my Budget speech. One of the points that he raised was where the headquarters of the Assam Railway was going to be. At present it is at Pandu, but I think my Honourable friend said that the administration is in the hands of a Deputy General Manager. That is not so. The administration is in the hands of an officer called the Chief Administrative Officer who is directly responsible to the Railway Board. Where the headquarters of the Assam Railway are to be permanently, is a question which must wait for a decision till we have completed the present investigations regarding the regrouping of the Bengal and the Assam Railways. But the problem that my Honourable friend raised is a problem which has received already a great deal of attention at my hands and I shall not lose sight of the points that he mentioned.

Then as regards the question of the starting point of the through rail connection—that again is a point which must await the investigations which are now being carried out as regards alignment. I believe there is a considerable difference of opinion even in Assam as regards where the starting point should be. So, I am not in a position to make any statement on that; it necessarily is a technical matter and must await engineering investigations.

As regards the question of the new line to Pandu the position is that the project has been finalized and I expect to have it brought up at a very early date before the Central Transport Advisory Board and reach a decision. As to what we should do with the Brahmaputra,—whether we should put a bridge over it, that is a big issue. A bridge over the Brahmaputra would be a very expensive proposition and would take a very long time to construct but it is likely that if the main project goes through, it may be possible for us to put that into operation and negotiate the crossing of the Brahmaputra by means of a ferry.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: Why do you not make arrangements similar to those which prevailed during war time under the administration of the Americans?

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: It was a ferry service. I am speaking of the ferry service as an alternative to a bridge.

Pandit Lakshmi Kanta Maitra: Not a steamer ferry.

The Honourable Dr. John Matthai: I suppose it was a Bailey Bridge.
