

THE MADRAS LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Friday, the 4th February 1949.

The House met in the Assembly Chamber, Fort St. George, at eleven of the clock, Mr. Speaker (THE HON. SRI J. SIVA-SHANMUKHAM PILLAI) in the Chair.

THE MADRAS HINDU RELIGIOUS AND CHARITABLE ENDOWMENTS
BILL, 1949.

MUHAMMAD RAZA KHAN SAHIB:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir,
I should like to make one submission before we proceed with the next item on the Agenda. The other day we were discussing the Madras Sugar Factories Control Bill, 1948, and we were almost at the end of it when the House adjourned and I submit, Sir, that if we take up that Bill now, I do not think that it will take more than an hour or so, for the House to finish it and pass it into law. I should like to know why we should not take up that Bill now, Sir."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Then we will have to change the order of business and it cannot be done unless on a motion for the purpose. Since no such motion has been made and approved by the House, the present order in the Agenda will stand."

* THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN: "Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to introduce the Madras Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Bill, 1949, and move—

Under rule 111 of the Madras Assembly Rules, the concurrence of the Legislative Council be obtained in setting up a Joint Select Committee of both the Houses consisting of thirty members to consider the Bill (twenty members from the Assembly and ten members from the Council)."

"Sir, in introducing this Bill, I know I am rather on very sensitive grounds, because it is a Bill which has caused a lot of anxiety in the public mind and especially in the minds of those who feel keenly that this Bill is going to interfere with religion. I just want to mention here that this is not the first time in the history of the Legislature of this Province and in fact of this country, that the Government have thought it necessary to interfere with religion and religious institutions. The present Hindu Religious Endowments Act which empowers the Government to appoint a Board to look after the various religious institutions in the Province and which has been on the statute book for quite a long time is a thing well-known to all of us. Therefore this Bill is not a new innovation brought in by this Government with regard to religious institutions of the Hindus of this Province. Time and again, Governments, both Indian as well as foreign were obliged to interfere with the management of all religious institutions in this Province. It is also known, that even long before, the East India Company took upon themselves the responsibility of managing religious institutions in India and they continued to do so for a very long time, when it was brought to their notice that it was not their duty to look after and manage Hindu religious institutions. It was also recorded that they as Christians, had nothing to do with religion and religious institutions, and their responsibility lay with the management of Christian institutions only. After a spell of years of mismanagement of these institutions by the Hindus themselves the Government of the day had been obliged to take upon themselves the responsibility of managing such institutions and interfering with their internal working.

"The institutions decayed and a long history of mismanagement is there. Subsequently when the Government came under diarchy the Hindu Ministers of that time felt that it was their duty to take up the responsibility and in doing so they got legislative sanction for bringing in the Hindu Religious Endowments Bill, which gave certain powers to the Government through the Endowments Board to manage those institutions. That is there in the Statute Book even now. Therefore the argument that the Government have not interfered with matters of religion and they should not do so now does not hold water. The Government have considered this to be their responsibility so far. In the meantime when the Congress Ministry was in charge of the Province in 1939, as the Minister for Hindu Religious Endowments, I felt the need and the necessity for overhauling the Religious Endowments Board which was functioning. I consulted legal opinion, the High Court, the Advocate-General and many others who could give an authoritative interpretation of the law in the matter and with their consent and co-operation I drafted a Bill called the Hindu Religious Endowments Bill. The Bill was circulated to the Cabinet of the time and had their approval, but before we could put the Bill into the Statute Book we resigned for political considerations and therefore the Bill lapsed. The responsibility for administering Hindu Religious Endowments fell to the Advisers who came after us and they also felt that a lot of improvements were to be made in order to see that the Act worked properly. In fact they brought in some amendments which did not seriously interfere with the constitution of the Board and its rights. Some minor improvements were made. The major improvements suggested were left over for a responsible and popular Government to come. Until such time the Endowments Board was allowed to continue. We have taken charge two years ago and the Hon. the Premier who is in charge of Endowments has after administering the department for nearly two years, again came to the conclusion that the present Board and its management must be thoroughly overhauled and the rules and regulations that are embodied in the old Act modified considerably. This draft Bill has been before the public more than once. It was proposed to be introduced last year and all the Members of the Legislature had a copy of the Bill. Since then the Government were very busy with legislations of various kinds, particularly the Zamindari Abolition Bill which had a bearing on the inams that were devoted for religious purposes. That Bill was on the anvil and we could not push through this Endowments Bill. The time has now come for pushing through the fresh Bill. That is the genesis of this Bill as I understand it and as the Cabinet understands it.

"Questions have been raised about the Secular State and it is therefore said that we should not interfere with regard to religious matters. In putting forward this argument reference has been made to the sections of the draft Constitution that is being framed. We have examined the question and we have been assured that we are within our rights to handle religious institutions and endowments that are contained in it. We have also the responsibility as a Government to discharge our duty towards those trusts. More than that, the zamindari legislation that has been passed has thrown upon us a further responsibility to take up things into our care and manage them. The question may be asked, 'why not ask the Hindu Religious Endowments Board to do it?' Yes, certainly the Hindu Religious Endowments Board may be trusted to do it. The Government are not satisfied that the Board during its existence has done any effective work to rectify the mistakes for which it was brought into being. The Board has done good work in the sense that according to the Statute under which it was created it has discharged its duties. They were not able to go beyond the provisions of that law. They did not have the power to carry out the wishes of the public or of the trust in the matter. It was a compromise legislation, if I could say so. At the time the Bill was introduced the position was nebulous. The trusts and endowments were such that the Government could not effectively frame laws because there was the fear that they would be interfering too much with religion. But the Government could not possibly keep quiet. Public agitation was insistent for some sort of control over those institutions and that was why the old Panagal Ministry framed this legislation for the constitution of the Hindu Religious Endowments Board. Though it has been in operation for quite a long time we find that the badly-managed temples and trusts still continue to be badly managed. And though there is a certain amount of auditing and restriction, the trustees of public funds provided for religious and charitable institutions have not been functioning in the sense in which they were conceived. Those people who endowed the trusts for the Hindu community in general and for religious purposes were not able to bring the necessary pressure upon those institutions except by a prolonged and tedious process in the carrying out of which much time was wasted and the institutions suffered badly and sometimes the trusts also ceased to exist. These things still continue. Therefore we felt that we should again come forward with a proper legislation which would control these institutions properly for the benefit of those for whom they were created. It is not as if we are rushing into a legislation. We are not very fond of rushing it simply because we want the legislation. We have felt the need for it and the Governments before us have felt the need for it and the Government which immediately preceded us felt the need for it. Feeling the need as we do, it is our duty to create an institution in such a way as to take away all the evil effects of the present Endowments Board. The fear of interfering with religious institutions has always been there with an alien Government, but with us it is very different. We may be called a secular Government and it is so. But it does not absolve us from protecting the funds of the institutions which are meant for the service of the people. It may be that it is looked down in the name of religion but after abuse has crept in and is continued in the name of religion can any Government look on and see the funds being misused or misappropriated. As elected representatives of the people we do feel that we have a responsibility in the matter. If we are to discharge our duties, in the way in which we propose to do we are doing a service which the public wants us to do. Whatever the future Constitution might say when it becomes an Act, under the present Constitution we have complete power to undertake a Bill as we have done. We have got every power to deal with Endowments Board as we want it to be. No question of interference with religion could ever be put forward. If in the event of the Constitution coming in and taking away the power which we possess and if we have again to come to this House for powers we shall not hesitate to do so. To-day we have the power to go into the question and with all its implications this Bill proposes to do that.

"Then the question may be raised: 'Has the Endowments Board satisfied you in its working?' To the extent that it has powers, it has satisfied. For every question of proper management or any action that it has to take to prevent bad management it is required to be controlled and subordinated by decisions of the High Court which sits in appeal over it.

"There are many decisions of the Endowments Board which got turned down completely by the High Court. There are some decisions of the Board that are supported by the High Court. What happens with regard to the Board is that it sits in judgment over cases, passes its own verdict, and it also has got an appeal to a full bench of its own. Two or three Commissioners constitute the full bench. There is no finality about it because it is open to the party to take the matter to the High Court. If this tortuous procedure is to be perpetuated for years together what happens is that the trusts become impossible of management. Because when once litigation takes ten years, fourteen years or twenty years, or two generations, what is to become of the trust that is involved. What becomes of the rights of those people who are to be protected by these trusts? Such lapses have invariably happened, and particularly with regard to the question of property vesting in the inalienable rights of some of those who are entitled to take part in those trusts, recourse to law has become the rule. It came to such an extent that the Endowments Board could function only by taking over some duties and employing men to discharge their duties and asking accounts to be kept and audited. All these safeguards put into the Board, have invariably become useless. They have never been able to put right the accounts, unless, under the extraordinary powers they possessed, they took over the whole management and put it under an officer of their own nomination. Unless they take upon themselves all these powers, these executive officers, under the rules of notification under the law, cannot do it. Even that can again be questioned in all courts and may be taken to the highest court of appeal. No management, however, valiant it may be, could function with this perpetual interference from courts. Most of these Endowments have been misused, and have always been badly administered. They have perpetually been held by people who have been benefited by these trusts. There are some temples which are taken over and managed well. For instance, I may say that the Tirupati Devasthanam which is now under the control of a committee and also indirectly under the Board itself, is discharging its trust to a certain extent satisfactorily. Before the Government interfered in it and made a committee responsible for it, the Tirumalai-Tirupati Devasthanam was absolutely in a chaos. One Mahant was sitting and ruling over the temple affairs for generations, and was bagging enormous sums from pilgrims who, out of devotion and faith, gave enormous sums of money to the temple as offerings. The Mahant used these moneys more or less as one sole heir who is entitled to dispose of the money as he liked. Things came to such a pass, that the Government were forced to interfere. Although the Mahant is now only a member of the committee, the working of the temple has become very, very difficult. The Tirumalai-Tirupati Devasthanam is a zamin property. I am sure the new zamindari legislation will take hold of this zamin and administer it according to law. The zamins that were administered by the Devasthanam Committee came to such a stage that revenue has fallen so short that it is not possible for them to run the zamin at all with the resources they get. The resources have been dwindling. Because it is God's property, the ryots refused to pay their dues. There was no control over the management of these zamins with the result that the cost of running the zamins far exceeded the resources and revenues of the zamins. The result was that hundreds and thousands of rupees in the hundies had to be shelled out for the maintenance of the zamin. More than once, the Devasthanam authorities appealed to Government to take over the zamins themselves and manage them. That is what we propose to do now under the new zamindari legislation. We have taken care to see that the charities born out of these endowments shall be maintained. We as a Government have taken, and committed to ourselves, the responsibility of taking charge of those charities which are born out of those endowments, and we have taken care to see that the amounts shall not dry up. The responsibility of the Government is to see that these trusts are saved. Is it not our duty to see that these trusts discharge their functions properly? The Bill wants to do that. We propose that the endowment Board shall go, and that the endowments shall be managed by a department of the Government directly. We claim that it would tend to better management of the trusts. I just want to say that this is not the first time in the history of the Hindu religion that the State has interfered and taken over the trusts. The States of Mysore, Cochin and Travancore have taken their temples under their control. That means, it has become the responsibility of those States to see that the temples are properly administered. That is exactly what we propose to do now. We propose to administer the Hindu Religious Endowments not for any particular group of people, but for all Hindus. We propose to utilize the funds so earmarked for all Hindus, high or low, without any privilege to particular individuals or groups of people. When once the State takes over all the funds and the management, they become the property of the State. Every individual Member who sits here is entitled to ask questions with regard to the management of these temples and endowments. There will be a budget, and all expenditure will be voted by the Legislature. This will mean a very effective control over the management of temples. The administration of the temples will not escape public control and criticism. As every department of the Government is under the control of the elected representatives of the people, we propose that these Hindu Religious Endowments shall be controlled by Hindus. To-day, we cannot control them. No member of this Legislature can ask any questions with regard to the expenditure of any Devasthanam or Trust. They are precluded from so doing by the Hindu Religious Endowments Board, which is working there under a separate Act. Members of the Legislature have no right of scrutiny of the expenditure of the endowments and trusts. They can only say that they are badly managed; beyond that they cannot have any individual criticism. In no district are the endowments and trusts properly managed. I can say that without fear of contradiction. There are roughly over 3,000 temples and 300 mutts in this Province. The moneys that are handled by these mutts and temples are enormous. All these are beyond the powers of the Legislature. We have created the Hindu Religious Endowments Board. This Board has got the responsibility, but not the backing of the electorate. Therefore, the reason for this legislation is very clear. We want to take charge of these trusts. It is often said that when trusts become public property, they will go to benefit everybody and anybody. It is not at all so. Nobody can say that it will be used for other purposes. The idea is that there shall not be a group of people who say that in all the endowments and trusts they shall have a share. Sir, after all is said and done, the Hindus are the majority in this Legislature. These trusts are for the benefit of the Hindus. We form the majority in this House. It really passes my comprehension to be told that these trusts and endowments will be misused. In fact, it is to prevent groups of people, who have been in charge of these trusts for generations, from misusing the trust funds, and to run the trusts in a better and efficient manner, that Government want to take over the trusts. Therefore, Sir, the trusts are taken over with a view to avoid unnecessary litigation and better management. Unnecessary litigation takes place in this land because of many provisions of law which have simply strangled society and institutions. Law in this land is in such a way that it takes generations to decide appeals. The moneys of the trusts are spent on unnecessary litigation. This Bill wants to put an end to this unnecessary litigation.

[Dr. T. S. S. Rajan] [4th February 1949]

"I may tell you, Sir, the depths to which these people have degenerated. While going to Kurnool—I remember very well—I visited a temple and I found to my amazement that a few days before, the temple was devastated and the image, the God that has been worshipped, has been removed and destroyed."

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA:—"Murdered! . . ."

THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN:—"Murdered. It may be that the God may not cry. The archaka or the priest there heard from some lawyer advising him that he would be the next reversioner of the God. Sir, such things happen and the rights are confused and there are many cases of disputes. Cases like the one have happened in many places. God after God and idol after idol have been destroyed. There is not a village and there is not a town in which there is not a temple and where a certain man is eating away the national wealth in the name of God. Therefore, Sir, it will be simply foolish on our part to close our eyes when such things happen. The time has come and history has marched on when things have to be looked at from the point of view of the human being. Sir, when there is starvation all round, there are some groups of people engaged in festivals and feasting. But, Sir, there are some people who denounce us for bringing forward this Bill. There is a propaganda carried on to-day by certain groups of people, calling themselves by whatever names, whether it be black-shirts or communists, against these temples and mutts. Because we have got freedom of speech and freedom of the Press to-day, people are carrying on all sorts of propaganda in the newspapers and the Gods are being abused. When such things go on, should we merely look on? This Bill only enables us to do something and to do that something, a machinery is created so that the temples may be taken over immediately without being perpetually abused, seeking protection under law. Can society go on looking at temples in this way leaving them in the lurch? Can we say, we shall not interfere with religion and keep these temples perpetually debased? Sir, I feel it is the responsibility of the Government to remedy that defect and such a position must be tackled. Should we allow the abuse to go on uncontrolled under all forms of legal protection and the like? That, Sir, we refuse to do. We say, we the Hindus, as representatives of the people who have attained their freedom, are forced to do the duty which has become incumbent upon us and to see that these trusts, these temples and these dharmsalas and a number of other institutions are better managed and effectively managed and controlled by the legislature as the legislature has control over everything else. It is the people's Government and, therefore, it is the responsibility of this Government to do so. There is no use of saying, 'I got it from God and, therefore, I manage it myself; you cannot interfere in these matters.' Sir, that sort of logic, that sort of argument will not pass current in these days. Nowadays people are awake; they demand explanation and they offer criticisms. If we do not do these things now, it may be that a deluge may overtake the temples also as it has overtaken the society in some other countries unless we act in time. So, let us tackle the position now so that there may not be any catastrophe on Hindu religion and Hinduism as a whole just as it has overtaken people in China and elsewhere. We say that insult of God and using the name of God for ulterior purposes and such other injustices cannot be tolerated. The rights of human beings have become so dominant in the political life of the world to-day that even empires are dwindling and crumbling to pieces. Before such a deluge overtakes this country also, should we not do something to see that our religious rights are well-established and these wrongs are remedied, whether they be in the mutts or temples or by some high priests? As long as people's money is being abused and the people's funds are being abused, we cannot sit quiet. We will have to go into the whole question and remedy those defects because we are responsible to society as a whole. If the mutts or temples had proper machinery or were taking pains to see that such wrongs were not committed, and that the institutions are maintained properly, then, we would have no quarrel. But, to-day, Sir, we see they are not. The old faith is being torn to pieces by new ideas and new interpretations are being offered to fundamental principles of our faith on which the whole religion is based. Therefore, Sir, we have to do this as Hindus also and it is our responsibility as Hindus. For this purpose, the Hon. the Premier, who is in charge of the department and myself who claim to be Hindus and who claim equally to be devoutly religious—though nowadays religion has come to be understood in so many ways and there are different manifestations of religion—have to bring in this measure. Sir, I am as good a Hindu as any other man. I am interested in this religion and I support this with religious faith. My faith is equally true as anybody else's. Because I have got full faith in these institutions, I have to bring in this Bill and not because I do not want these institutions but because I do not want these institutions to be destroyed, because I want to see that these institutions are maintained properly, because I want to reconstruct and strengthen these institutions. It is for that that I am bringing in this Bill.

"Sir, the poor man in the street has got to be protected, I find that when men are threatened with starvation and with death, the temples are celebrating festivals. While people are dying for want of food, some groups of persons are enjoying and celebrating festivals and wasting foodstuffs in the name of God. It is the duty of the Government to see that the surplus food wherever it is, is supplied to poor people. It is part of the religious duty of the man to do so. It is on these lines that I want this Bill to be understood."

"Then, Sir, some people ask, what guarantee is there that your Government will carry out the objects in view. Sir, at least, our Government is ready to do this and we have taken the responsibility to do this. The Members sitting in this House, the voters and the man in the street will look after this when the Bill is passed. It will be in their purview to see that it is acted up to. I cannot perceive any other Bill like this. I cannot see any other God except the suffering humanity which calls for our help. Because I realize this and because I feel that God can be realized only in this way, I have taken the responsibility for this Bill in the full faith that I am doing this correctly and for the benefit of the poor people of this land. This Bill aims at setting up an efficient agency for the proper utilization of the funds of the mutts and temples and for the better administration of these temples and mutts. Therefore, Sir, I am asking our hon. Friends to judge us fairly and well. It is the love of religion that has prompted us to bring forward this Bill and whatever the agency that is created, we have got to go before the agency of public opinion and the opinion of the people that are affected. It is they that should judge the action of this Government in matters of this kind including religion. Sir, after all, what is religion if it is not meant for the good of the people? It may be that this particular form of faith may not appeal to certain groups of people. If there are any mismanagements and if there are any mishandlings in the administration of this Act, there are two hundred and odd members sitting here and there are hundreds of newspapers which may flash the views of the public in a moment. It is not my business to say that such and such a man is mismanaging and that another man is doing this and that. There are, of course, some good heads of mutts but there are also bad heads who do not understand religion. Now, political rights have been assured to us by the State, and the right to control the property of these religious institutions. After all those people who have endowed these mutts or charities have endowed them with the full faith that their administration would be carried on efficiently and properly. I am bringing forward this Bill in the trust that I am discharging the duty in the sense in which I understand it. The essential principles of humanity have got to be understood and applied to the society as a whole and with that basic principle, and with the goodwill of the Members, I have brought forward this Bill.

"Sir, I make bold to say that the Hindu community to-day knows about this Bill for a very long time. The Bill has been before the public for over a year and nobody raised any objection. I had been in charge of this department for over two and a half years and I know what should be done. To-day the hon. Premier is in charge. He is a very orthodox and devout man and he feels that this Bill is absolutely necessary. He knows as well as anybody else the importance of the Hindu temples and he feels like that because he wants to see that the temples and mutts are better administered and there is no use of coercing the legislators by threats of starvation. That is not satyagraha. I know that certain men for the purpose of seeking the support of certain sections of Members of this House and to gain public sympathy for their movement, are doing this and they are trying to pour cold water on the Bill. But, public opinion is as strong as ever. I am yet to see an organized public opinion expressing itself against this Bill. The Bill was before the public for the last one year, but we have yet received any organized body of public opinion saying that this Bill is bad. Of course, there has been some protest. It is no wonder because that protest is from some groups of people who are unduly benefited by the present state of affairs at the expense of the common man and also from persons who think that faith consists only by maintaining these institutions in their present condition.

"But they cannot hold that view, Sir, when there is a case of abuse. These institutions figured in the law courts, and a lot of money was wasted. It is this tragic state of affairs that has made me feel that there should be some legislation on this matter and that should be the law of the land.

"Sir, this Bill is not an ordinary Bill or any financial legislation. It interferes with something that cannot be seen and ascertained. The gruesome mismanagement that has gone on for years together has not yet evoked the conscience of religious people; I do not know why. Sir, I was myself born and have grown in a temple-village in Srirangam, where there is the biggest Vaishnavite shrine in the whole of India. I have seen that the power of God has not risen up against the conflict that had been raging between two parties that were fighting in the law courts; God disappeared and God starved. The case was taken up to the courts, petitions were presented before foreigners from England who were acting as judges, in the name of God; English judges had to give judgment as to what God he was, and what he was not, when he should be present and when he should not, because the parties were fighting like dogs. Such has been the degradation of the observance of the Hindu religion. The public has not raised even a word of protest against this state of affairs. They simply go to the law courts again and again. That is the state of society we are in. In society alive or dead, is it conscientiousness that our Gods are disgraced and that our charities are being abused? I am sure, Sir, that this Government feel it, as also this House. Only there may be some faults in the present Bill, but the House may well scrutinize it, call evidences before a Select Committee duly constituted for the purpose of reporting on this Bill, and finally it, taking its own time. But anyhow the thing must be done. We cannot delay this legislation any longer. I know just now there was a reference to delay it. But how can I, feeling as I do and knowing the real state of affairs, be a willing party for further adjournment? If the Government of India pass a constitution for the country, we shall abide by it. But I cannot understand the argument that the Government should not take charge of the trusts and charities in this Province, for the purpose of better administration. I feel, Sir, that I have got the inherent right to move in this Bill, and pass it through the two Houses of this Legislature. I cannot certainly be coerced into doing anything which is not just and fair. Therefore, I want this House to report this Bill in this spirit. If the Bill is defective, let all improve it, offer criticisms, for it is a matter of faith and religion, and I shall not be a party to shutting out criticisms in this House. I invite now this House to consider this Bill in all its aspects and constitute a Select Committee consisting of twenty Members from this House, and ten from the Upper House, to report on this Bill, to investigate, scrutinize and finalize the same and bring it back to this House for final approval. With these words, I introduce this Bill."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Motion moved—

'that under rule 111 of the Madras Assembly Rules, the concurrence of the Legislative Council be obtained in setting up a Joint Select Committee of both the Houses consisting of thirty Members to consider the Madras Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Bill, 1949 (twenty Members from the Assembly and ten Members from the Council).'

"As this is an important Bill, I have allotted two days for discussion, for a large number of Members want to take part in the discussion. The Hon. Minister in charge of the Bill will reply either to-morrow evening or on Monday morning, after question-time."

SRI A. VAIDYANATHA AYYAR:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I move—that the Madras Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Bill, 1949, be circulated for eliciting public opinion thereon.

"The Hon. Dr. Rajan in charge of this Bill has said that this Bill is not a new one, but had been originally passed in a different form in 1925, and that Act has been in vogue in this Province for more than twenty years. Another point he mentioned was that the interference of Government with regard to religious institutions is not a new one, and said that even in the days of the John company, this has happened. The argument that has been adduced by him in favour of this Bill is that now there has come a stage when Government should take charge of the endowments.

"But my point is this. The Bill now has come at a time when new rights and principles have been evolved by the Constitution Act, some of the sections of which have already been passed. The rest of the Act will be finally passed before August 1949. These fundamental rights of the new constitution have already been passed by the Constituent Assembly which is a sovereign body, and any article that has been passed by it does not require the assent of the Crown or the Governor-General. The opinion of constitutional lawyers is that even before the whole constitution is finally put as a whole, sections of it which have already been passed become the law of the land immediately after the passing thereof. Even supposing that some of the sections have been passed, it is up to us to see that we, as a Provincial Legislature, should not do anything which will throw doubts on the validity of the Act."

4th February 1949] [Sri A. Vaidyanatha Ayyar]

"There is one difference which the Hon. Minister has not noticed, i.e., the fundamental change with regard to the law-making powers of the Legislatures, after the sittings of the Constituent Assembly. Prior to the constitution (that is now being framed), under the Government of India Act, the legislatures had power to interfere and pass laws with regard to religious and charitable institutions; as will be seen in Article 34 of list 2—called the Provincial list.

"Secondly, before the Consambly sat, the powers of the Parliament or the Indian Legislature were almost supreme and sovereign, and they could pass any Act, and even interfere with religion. And as Dr. Rajan has pointed out, I could also point out to as many as 120 such Acts that have already been passed. But now we have to consider the new position, whether in the light of the fundamental rights enunciated by the Constituent Assembly, we are justified in rushing through this measure just now.

"Sir, with your permission, I will take the House through the articles that have already been passed, which stand on the threshold of becoming final law of the land, and also their effect upon any law that we are making here, and also the substantial difference between the position of the legislature now, and that prior to the functioning of the Consambly.

"First, let us take Part III—Fundamental Rights of the citizens, under the constitution (proposed), and consider laws which have been made till now. Acts, which have already been passed, if they are in any way inconsistent with these fundamental rights, to that extent, will be void. This is Article 8 (1) of the Fundamental Rights Chapter. The next article states that the 'State shall not make any law which takes away or prejudice the rights conferred by this Part, and any law made in contravention of this Clause shall to the extent of the contravention be void.'

"As I said just a little while ago, before the passing of these articles on fundamental rights, the Legislature was supreme, the English Parliament was supreme with regard to its powers over us, and the delegated powers to the Indian Legislature were equally supreme. In that way, it had a supreme right to enact any legislation. But now the power to enact legislation by the Parliament or the State Legislature has been considerably restricted by the passing of the articles on fundamental rights. That is the first thing that is essential for any Popular Government or a self-governing nation. Of these fundamental rights, the rights relating to religion are enumerated in Articles 19 to 22. There are two kinds of rights. One relates to the individual rights—freedom of conscience and free profession, practice and propagation of religion. The article reads:

'19 (1) Subject to public order, morality and health and to the other provisions of this Part, all persons are equally entitled to freedom of conscience and the right freely to profess, practise and propagate religion.'

In exercising such fundamental rights a person may to some extent infringe upon what would be necessary to be prevented by law.

[Sri A. Vaidyanatha Ayyar] [4th February 1949]

Certain of these are enumerated in the section itself. For instance, the wearing and carrying of kirpans shall be deemed to be included in the profession of the Sikh religion. Again sub-section (2) enumerates some exceptions. For instance, if a man's religion requires that his child should be married between 7 and 12 years, in the interests of social welfare and reform he can be prevented from doing so. Throwing open of Hindu religious institutions of a public character to all sections of Hindus has been saved by sub-section 2 (b). Supposing a man says that his religious practice requires that no other man's house should be within a furlong, or that somebody has got to be pushed away from the public road, he cannot be allowed to do so. Sub-section (2) (a) says that the Legislature may pass laws regulating or restricting any economic financial, political or other secular activity which may be associated with religious practice. (Sri K. Bhashyam: 'Regulating but not taking away.') It is only here that we hear for the first time that regulating means taking away.

"Sir, Article 19 (2) (a) refers to the individual practice of religion, but the practice of religion may be not merely individual but sectional. A section of the public, a religious denomination it may be the Hindus or Muslims—may have their own sectional institutions. There are Vaishnavites, Saivites, Thegalais, Vadalais and so on. They may have their own sectional institutions. The Constituent Assembly says that they have freedom to manage their own religious affairs and to own, acquire and administer properties for religious or charitable purposes. This is referred to in Article 20. Mr. Speaker, I would request you to note the special stress laid on the words 'freedom to manage.' Article 20 contains the fundamental right to administer properties for religious and charitable purposes. If according to this article I shall have the right to establish and maintain institutions myself, I do not know how the Hon. Minister says: 'What can prevent this Government from taking charge of any temple?' He challenges for a legal duel or a constitutional duel. Unless you ignore altogether Article 20, you cannot do that.

Mr. Speaker, I am going to take you through some portions of the Bill to show that what is given by the Constitution as a fundamental right is sought to be taken away on the floor of the House, by the Hon. Minister in charge of the Bill as well as the Premier, who he says is a very religious gentleman and about whose religion and piety the Hon. Minister speaks highly. But, Sir, I am concerned here with my fundamental rights, namely, that every religious denomination shall have the right to own and acquire movable and immovable property and manage its own affairs in matters of religion. It is a well-known fact that the incidence of ownership of a property is the right of the owner to manage, enjoy and dispose of it. In the case of charitable trusts, the power of disposition may be subject to some restriction. But with regard to management it is a part of the ownership right. Hence there is the last sub-clause which says:

(d) to administer such property in accordance with law.

4th February, 1949] [Sri A. Vaidyanatha Ayyar]

It is a fundamental right to administer such property. It was stated that the words 'in accordance with law' mean that the Government may pass any law taking away the administration and vesting it in the Government. Administering the property in accordance with law does not mean that a law can be passed taking away the administration itself. That will make the fundamental rights a mockery. The rights may be regulated, but the substance of them cannot be taken away. 'In accordance with law' is a wise provision which has been introduced. While a particular denomination or a religious section has got a right to administer, if there is maladministration or mismanagement, a law may be passed laying down the way in which the administration should be carried on. This has been done in the past, but the Legislatures have always recognized the right of every denomination to manage its own institutions and administer its own properties. While doing so, they have passed laws preventing mismanagement from time to time. If there is mismanagement of a religious or charitable institution, any man may file a suit in the Court. If there are numerous cases likely to be started, in order to prevent vexatious litigation, section 92 of the Civil Procedure Code, provides that any two or more persons with the sanction of the Advocate-General or the Collector may bring in a suit for the purpose of removing a trustee or calling for accounts. It is that kind of law that is referred to. Another way in which you can understand the words 'in accordance with law' is you must administer the trust properties in such a manner that you do not infringe upon another person's properties or rights, or you do not trespass on another man's rights or take away another person's properties.

"Sir, there is also another remedy under the Charitable Endowments Act of 1890. Under that Act, if a person is not satisfied with the way in which an endowment is managed, he can simply file a petition in the District Court on twelve annas stamp-paper, asking for accounts of the trust for two years to be produced and audited. If the Court is not satisfied with the accounts or the management, it may take necessary action. This is a wise provision. Though there is sufficient latitude for the purpose of interfering with the administration where there is maladministration or mismanagement, it does not take away the elementary right of ownership and management of the denominations concerned. It is a well-established law. In India several sects and sub-sects are regarded as corporations. Subject to the trusts being there, the ownership and administration of them vest only in the particular denomination itself. If the Government are not satisfied with the remedies suggested by the Courts for mismanagement, it is open to them to add to them so as to make the remedies effective. But the administration should not be taken away from the denominations which own those institutions. The law that is expected to be made is one which can regulate the management but not take away the management, which is a fundamental right recognised by the Constitution. The Hon. Minister in charge of the Bill, Dr. T. S. S. Rajan, said that if the Government took over the management they would do it better, and that that was why they have introduced the Bill. Therefore it is perfectly clear that what is intended to be done is taking over the whole administration and management, root and branch. The question is whether such a Bill does not go against article 20. There are certain clauses of the Bill now before us which show beyond any possibility of doubt that this Bill sins against the fundamental rights. Clause 6 of the Bill makes no pretence that it maintains any fundamental rights. It says:

'6 (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the general superintendence of all religious institutions and endowments shall vest in the Provincial Government.

(2) Such superintendence shall include the power to pass any orders which may be deemed necessary for the proper maintenance or administration of any religious institution or endowment.'

Clause 15 says:

'15. Subject to the control of the Provincial Government and the provisions of this Act—

(1) the general superintendence of all religious institutions and endowments shall vest in the Commissioner;

This is secondary vesting, the primary vesting being in the Government.

MR. SPEAKER:—"The hon. Member may continue his speech at 3 p.m. after lunch."

The House adjourned for lunch.

(After lunch—3 p.m.)

SRI A. VAIDYANATHA AYYAR:—"I was mentioning, Sir, that it is the duty of the Commissioner under this Bill to see to the proper management of the secular affairs of the religious institutions. It is well-known that any person who establishes a religious or charitable endowment has got the right to provide for its management and to change it in the manner prescribed by law. Now that right should necessarily be with the denomination which has established these endowments. But, what the present Bill proposes to do is to take this right of management and administration from out of the hands of these denominations and place it in the hands of the Government, the Commissioner, the Deputy Commissioners and Assistant Commissioners appointed by them.

"Clause 18 of the present Bill provides: 'The trustee of a religious institution (and hereafter it will also include a charitable institution if the Government notifies it accordingly and the trustee includes also a matathipathi) shall be bound to obey all orders issued under the provisions of this Act by the Provincial Government, the Commissioner or the Deputy or Assistant Commissioner.' That means the trustee of the mutt is reduced to the position of a servant. Now, if you look into Dimond's famous book on Master and Servant, you will find that the servant is bound to carry out the orders of the master in any matter. So, clause 18 reduces the matathipathi to such a position. This, therefore, goes directly against the right that is to be conferred under the fundamental rights.

Again, this Bill also proposes to interfere in religious matters and make it the duty of the Commissioner and also of the Government to interfere in such matters. It is said to be a Secular Government from the day of the Independence at least. It is being time and again declared by the Prime Minister of India and accepted in Parliament and also by the Constituent Assembly that our State, including the State of Madras, is only a Secular State and yet this Bill proposes to invest the Government and the Commissioner with powers to supervise religious rights.

"Clause 15 (2) of the Bill provides: 'It shall be the duty of the Commissioner to see to the proper management of the secular affairs of religious institutions and to the due performance of rituals, ceremonies and other religious observances' in connection with religious institutions. That means the Commissioner shall prescribe how many water prokshnas should be performed, what kind of nivedyam should be made and what kind of 'thulasi' should be given first and in what manner. These are said to be the duties of the Commissioner. Again, you will find from Section 86 what kind of interference could naturally be carried out under the rules to be made by the Government. That is the clause which provides for the rule-making powers under the Bill. It is the logical result of the Government taking over the management of institutions. Section 86 (1) provides: 'The Provincial Government may make rules to carry out all or any of the purposes of this Act and for the methods by which religious institutions should promote the interests of the Hindu religious endowments.' This Government is expected to make rules with regard to promoting the interests of Hindu religious institutions. Is that the duty of a Secular State? Is it not inconsistent with that? Throughout the course of the proposed Bill we find everywhere interference with the affairs of the institutions.

"Then, clause 16 (1) provides for powers to enter anywhere into a religious institution. It is expected that wherever there are worshippers, with the exception of the archaka, no other person is entitled to enter the sanctum sanctorum, but according to the section any gentleman calling himself an Assistant Commissioner or an Inspector can get into the sanctum sanctorum of a religious institution by virtue of the powers given in section 16 (1).

"Again, clause 32 (1) provides for the dismissal of hereditary and non-hereditary trustees. That again is a matter which the particular section or the particular denomination alone ought to do. We find in the case of both mutts and other religious institutions powers to interfere have been given to the executive and how much shall be done or put up. Also clauses 38 (1) and 41 (1) provide for such interference in the case of mutts and temples. Another very curious kind of interference is in cases where there is a dispute about who is to be a matathipathi and the power of appointment in the interim is given to the Government in the case of mutts. I do not know whether they can appoint matathipathis and what kind of appointment they are going to make. What is found in the section is, they are to appoint matathipathis. That is what we find in the Bill.

"Further, there is a very vicious kind of interference with ordinary established rights of parties which is now obtaining, which is also found in the earlier Act, and is found in the present Act also, for which there is no justification. Where, for instance, an institution is a religious institution, assuming it comes under the present Bill, some other person or some other law Court must decide whether it is a religious institution or not. You cannot make the very person, that is, one of the parties who is entitled to take up the management if it is a religious institution, to be the deciding authority also as to whether an institution is a religious institution or not.

"Section 43 (a) gives power to the Deputy Commissioner to decide whether an institution is a religious institution or not. Then, a person may be a hereditary trustee who has got certain rights over the institution, but the question whether he is hereditary or non-hereditary shall again be decided by the Deputy Commissioner himself and whether a particular endowment or money is a religious endowment is again to be decided by the Deputy Commissioner. If the endowment is of a secular character, neither the Government nor the Commissioner should have any right of management over it, but to decide whether it is of a religious or secular character, power is given to one of the parties. I do not know how the authors of the Bill would like to do should there be a quarrel between the neighbours as to the ownership of a wall and whether they will give the right to decide that to one of the parties. An interested party should never be made the judge also. That is what we find in clause 43 (e). And what is more, sub-clause (d) of the clause says: 'whether any person is entitled by custom or otherwise, to any right, honour, emolument or perquisite in any religious institution and what the established usage of a religious institution is in regard to any other matter' shall all be decided by the Deputy Commissioner. The Deputy Commissioners will be the judges with regard to these matters.

"There is no doubt a kind of hierarchy is prescribed for appeals to the Deputy Commissioner, the Commissioner and the Provincial Government, but the power of interference of the Court is reduced to the minimum, because only on question of law or when the order is contrary to law or having failed to determine some material issue of law you have the right of resort to Court and that too to the High Court.

[4th February 1949] [Sri A. Vaidyanatha Ayyar]

"Then we find such an important thing as the Cypres doctrine, that is whether the fund of a charitable or religious institution can be diverted to other purposes. The Deputy Commissioner has to decide that under section 45. And what is more curious is, it may be the property of a temple and it can be appropriated to any educational or charitable purposes even though it is not the objects of the institution. You cannot rob Peter and pay Paul and therefore you cannot divert such funds for other purposes and then that power is conferred only on the Deputy Commissioner.

"Similarly the surplus funds of religious and charitable institutions can be diverted to other educational purposes under clause 45.

"There is one other very intimate interference and an all-embracing one which they have provided and that is the notification of all religious institutions, including mutts. As soon as such a notification takes place, all the previous schemes will lapse and the Government may appoint salaried officers and the more the number of institutions notified the more will be the number of executive officers whom they will appoint. According to the proviso to clause 58 (1) in the case of a mutt, only such powers and duties as appertain to the administration of its endowments shall be assigned to the Executive Officer. Apparently, the authors of the Bill thought that it was a mild way of giving powers in saying like that, but in fact, in substance it means that the administration of the endowments should be assigned to the Executive Officer. That is against the Fundamental Rights and apparently they have satisfied themselves that they are not going to take away the 'rudraksham' of the matathipathis. Of course, we are very thankful for that. But there it stands. This kind of interference is, I say, against the substance of Fundamental Rights that have been enacted. We have been told that article 19 would in some way help. I have already referred that article. Article 19, as passed by the Constituent Assembly, refers only to individual rights as would be seen from the reference to religious practice which is found in the proviso and we have to be guided by article 20. There are other serious inroads into the Fundamental Rights as we can find from other portions of the Bill. It is article 21 of the Fundamental Rights, which says—

No person shall be compelled to pay any taxes, the proceeds of which are specifically appropriated in payment of expenses for the promotion or maintenance of any particular religion or religious denomination.

Naturally, with such kind of articles and being a Secular Government, when we attempt to take over the administration of religious and charitable institutions, we are faced with difficulties. Clause 62 of the proposed Bill refers to contributions to be collected from every religious institution at a certain proportion and sub-clause (4) enacts that these sums collected, shall form part of the revenues of the Province. That means that they become taxes but nevertheless they should be used only for the remuneration of the Commissioner and the Deputy Commissioner and expenses incurred purely in respect of these religious institutions. If this is not a direct interference and flying in the face of article 21 of the Fundamental Rights and making the Government carry on sectional activities, I do not know what it is. The Hon. Minister Dr. Rajan said, 'We are after all a majority community and the Hindus being a majority community, we must take it.' That is forgetting the Constitution and forgetting the nature of the Government. It does not matter whether we are 99 per cent or 100 per cent. The law is the same and is expected to be the same for all especially in the case of a Secular Government and merely because the Hindus happen to be 90 per cent, it would not entitle the Government to take into their own hands the management of institutions.

"There is one other peculiarity that we find in this Bill. There is a definite provision in the Fundamental Rights that wherever there is a breach of the Fundamental Rights, there shall be a right to move the Supreme Court. That much-hated civil suit is provided for in the Fundamental Rights of the Constitution. Article 25 (1) provides 'the right to move the Supreme Court by appropriate proceedings for the enforcement of the rights conferred by this Act is guaranteed.' In due course the Supreme Court is expected to give or to delegate its powers to a number of other courts, so that they may be easily available for motions being made in the Subordinate Courts. It would not be surprising, therefore, if the powers conferred by this article are available even in the District Courts and Subordinate Courts. That is provided for in article 25 (2). There is a further provision in article 25 (4) which says, 'That the rights guaranteed by this article shall not be suspended except as otherwise provided for by the Constitution.' Therefore, this is an inviolable right. Unless you amend the Constitution, you cannot prevent the resort to courts for safeguarding the Fundamental Rights.

Clause 85 of the proposed Bill says:

Save as otherwise expressly provided in this Act, no notification issued, order passed, decision made, proceedings or action taken, scheme settled or other thing done under the provisions of this Act by the Provincial Government, or the Commissioner or a Deputy or an Assistant Commissioner

The words 'any other subordinate servant' alone are unfortunately omitted.

"Sir, it is an absolute attempt to give complete exemption, even the violation of the Fundamental Rights not to be brought before a Court of Law. That is hardly a matter for congratulation.

Similarly, clause 89 (1) says:

No suit or other legal proceeding in respect of the administration of a religious institution, or in respect of any other matter or dispute for determining or deciding which provision is made in this Act, shall be instituted in any Court of Law, except under and in conformity with the provisions of this Act.'

In this clause we find an attempt to deprive the people of their Fundamental Rights. The Hon. Minister in-charge of the Bill said, 'I have been legally advised that at present I am in a position to have this Bill brought before the Assembly and passed.' All right. But the question is, when we form part of the Union of India and certain fundamental rights have been declared in its constitution and in the light of which alone even the present laws have to be tested and future laws have to be passed, is it not the duty of this Legislature and of the Government who placed this Bill before this House, to wait and see how far we are within the Fundamental Rights in framing this Bill. At one stage, here and elsewhere I pressed the Hon. Minister Dr. Rajan what benefit does it give, if, by the time, it goes to the Select Committee and returns back in the course of five or six months—the Constituent Assembly passes the Constitution Act, then we will have to see whether this law is right or wrong. The Government may say, 'we are not afraid of being tested. Let this be decided by a legislation or law suits and if there is anything wrong, then some amendment will be made in respect of that.' That is not a proper attitude that this Government should take especially as they form part of the Union of India. I will take it that these are not absolutely clear. Some of the ablest lawyers in this land are within the City of Madras. A retired Federal Court Judge is here; and there are also retired Advocates-General and Law Members, who are all of opinion that this may go against the Fundamental Rights. But the Hon. Dr. Rajan is pressing home this Bill over the Assembly as he thinks that he has got the legal advice in this matter. In fact I was surprised when the Hon. Minister said that this Bill has been waiting for 12 years from 1937 or 1938. Sir, a thing which has waited for 12 years and three years after the present Congress Government took charge of the Province of Madras, can well afford to wait for another six months and this legislation need not be brought. It is the 'luggnasandhi' stage. It is well-known in astrology that a child born of such 'luggnasandhi' lives short. I know that the Hon. the Premier is very particular about the passing of this Bill and more so, Dr. Rajan and that is the reason why I ask them to wait till then when certain of the provisions at least are likely to be ripped open as soon as the Constitution Act is passed.

"As my next point is a question of policy, this is not the proper attitude to adopt. We are going to have the Constitution Act here. We are a subordinate State and we are bound to accept it whether it is good or not. Therefore, it is not right at all that we should ignore it. Of course, what is contained in the Fundamental Rights is being ignored and disregarded. As a sample, we can find it in respect of the employment under the State.

[Sri A. Vaidyanatha Ayyar] [4th February 1949]

Article 10 (2) of the Constitution Act says :

'No citizen shall, on grounds only of religion, race, caste, sex, descent, place of birth or any of them be discriminated against.'

But here, the Communal Government Order is not merely enforced but it has been extended in the last few days to temporary people also. So also in the educational institutions, we find discrimination with regard to the admissions on grounds of caste or creed. Is this kind of discrimination found in the Fundamental Rights? In the Engineering College, Medical College and in several other important institutions, the same thing is being well kept up.

There is a provision in the Fundamental Rights for the freedom of trade. But here we are still in the middle of the discussion on the Madras Sugar Factories Control Bill which restricts the freedom of trade. Doctor Rajan may say that that Bill is in the best interests of the people. The proof of the pudding lies in the eating thereof. But I say, Sir, that it is not fair for the Government to ignore the hand of the clock and then say we are going to do it.

Next, we find how harsh the Bill is. This Bill reduces 'madathipathi' to the position of a servant, when servant is a problem in these days as we know and we cannot treat workmen in a different capacity and every single fine of one anna provokes strikes with considerable trouble to all of us. In clause 80 of the proposed Bill, the 'madathipathis' or the trustees of the temple or the trustees of charitable institutions are treated as criminals. If a man refuses, neglects or fails to comply with the particular demands made under this Act—failure may be due to his wife's illness or may be he himself is ill—then he shall be liable to pay to the Local Government such penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees as they may determine. This is a penalty for failing to furnish such accounts, returns, reports or other information relating to the administration of the religious institution or its funds, property or income at such time and in such manner as may be required by the Government. I do not know whether this kind of legislation has been enacted in any country in the world. Now that the learned Advocate-General is here, I hope he would be able to enlighten us, and there again the onus of proof is thrown on the unfortunate trustee. 'Unless he shows reasonable cause to the satisfaction of the Provincial Government,' he shall be liable to pay them a sum not exceeding five hundred rupees."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The hon. Member has already taken an hour."

* SRI A. VAIDYANATHA AYYAR:—"I shall take a little more time. It is just reducing well-recognized principles to dust. When you swallow anything, you must swallow just that quantity which you will be able to digest. The definition of 'religious charity and charitable institutions' is rather wide and all-embracing and I am afraid that it will even take in cases where some money is provided for manjal kumkum on some such occasions in our household for navarathri. I wish to invite the attention of the House to clause 5 (11); the wording is 'occasion of a religious character' and supposing I say that on my father's anniversary half a dozen people shall be fed, not necessarily from my own community, it will become a charity. That is how it has been defined. Let us take clause 5 (3); the result of that would be that for the first time, charitable endowments will be brought under the Act and I do not know what the Government are trying to handle; I feel they are trying to handle hot coal. They must know that every community in every place has during the past hundred years built up large amounts by way of mahimai and they are keeping it apart for running rest-houses, schools and other charitable institutions. For instance, the Nadar Mahimai of Virudunagar amounts to 6 or 7 crores and the annual income alone goes up to 4 to 6 lakhs of rupees and other communities like the Sourashtra community and the Konar community have got this system of mahimai and with that they are running temples, rest-houses, schools and other charitable institutions. If the definition is to be accepted one-third of the property of the Province—that is the estimate that has been given to me—is likely to be taken hold of by the Government. Is it proper and is it right? Sir, profession and practice of the Government do not seem to go together. We have been told day after day that the Government would bring in the Panchayats Bill so as to enable people to manage their affairs themselves. Our ancestors were wise and they allowed sections of the people to have their own property and manage them to the best of their ability and they were left to themselves. Of course, mistakes may arise and people go to court and have them rectified. That has been obtaining in this country so long and I ask now, Sir, is it not a vote of censure on the five crores of people living in this Province now that the Government have in an implied manner charged them saying: "You have not managed and are not capable of managing your sectional affairs yourselves and I alone can do it best; as a matter of fact on account of the votes of the people and the franchise exercised by them, we have to run them and being a popular Government we are entitled to do it." To say that means that you will go your own way irrespective of the people and nevertheless want their votes when the time comes. The Hon. Minister asked us why the Government should be chastised on the assumption that they would be including all temples by notification. But experience indicates to us the other way. There are cases where notifications of some of the principal temples were challenged before the High Court and they were set aside and so it is difficult to say that the Government will not take over these things. Then, Sir, if the Government take over these institutions, what about their future? It was frankly admitted by the Hon. Minister in charge of the Bill that the Government are not going to build temples or establish mutts. But, when Government have got a stranglehold over all these institutions which men will come forward with endowments. The moment he endows, immediately, it goes to the control of the Government. Every man who endows does so in the belief that it would be managed according to his desire and tastes and what will happen if it is said that the wishes of the donor never come into the picture? As a lawyer, I may tell you, Sir, that time and again many have come to me asking me for advice in what way the endowment may be made so that it might not come under the control of the Board. That is how the donor views the question. The matter has also to be looked at in another aspect; would our religion improve and would the institutions improve? It must improve, in its own parental surroundings. If a child is unwell, it has to be taken to the doctor for a cure but it is wrong to say that the child should be handed over to the doctor because it is unwell. It can grow only in its own parental household and not with the doctor. The Hon. Dr. Rajan said that mismanagement of temples and mutts should be rectified. Right. But, has not mismanagement been rectified all these years? In England, for instance, there is the Board of Commissioners of Charity and if there is any difficulty, they can move in the matter of filing suits; in this Presidency also, the Advocate-General has sanctioned the filing of suits. But the Hon. Minister says that it would be a long process and there would be delay. Supposing, for instance, there are many cases of people occupying some others' property, would it be right for the Government themselves to take up the matter while in fact they had been directing the affected people to go to courts. If in the case of non-cognizable cases, the Police man merely makes an entry in the diary and asks the party to go to court, can the Government say that they will take up all cases of this nature as there are many in number. The Government can only lay down the law and they must act according to the law. In this connexion I can think of no happier comparison than that which my hon. Friend Mr. Viswanatham cited. He said: 'You can make laws saying how the household shall be conducted and the children treated, prescribe that the householder shall not beat his wife or his children and everything should go on in an orderly manner'. It is one thing embodying the details of these things in an Act but quite another to say that because these things had not been done, the Government will take over the management of the household—the wife and children of the householder. This is the best illustration that I can give of the process through which the Government are taking us just now.

"There is another danger that I foresee. Apparently the Hon. Minister feels that once the thing is departmentalized, the millenium will dawn. Has it come true with regard to the departments of Government; take the Food Department. I heard it said that there is corruption among the Supply Officers. During the period of the last control we were able to get rice at the rate of 2½ measures but now it has come down to 1½ and we are forced to go to the blackmarket for feeding our children; and regarding distribution of cloth, cloth selling at rupees two or two and a half is sent to the villages while the retailer is not taking bales and bales of the required quality from the wholesaler. Therefore, the larger the amount of bureaucratic control, the less is there the chance of the thing being properly and peacefully administered. That is why I suggest you to keep off. After all religion is what a man thinks about it and if I worship in a particular way, my Muslim brother might call it idolatry. I know as a matter of fact when people were prepared to admit Harijans into the temples, one section was not prepared to admit them, the then-galais or the 'vadagalais' and that is the kind of bitterness that we have. Let there be some kind of sectional control. And about the matathipathis, the Hon. Advocate-General knows 21 Madras, an outstanding judgment by Justice Subramaniya Ayyar and Bashyam Ayyangar. In the case of the idol, there are two, the one that is kept in mind, the impersonal God and the idol. But regarding the Gurus, the first Gurus, be it Ramanuja or Sankara, were considered as embodiments of God and their successors were considered on a like footing and God is supposed to live in every person who occupies that position and people who go there, however sophisticated they may be, prostrate themselves before them and give patha kanikkais and treat them as embodiments of God. What is the way in which this Bill proposes to deal with them if not as mere servants of the Assistant Commissioner? When you put a man in charge of them and say that they must obey all his orders, I ask whether it is not a slur cast on Matha Gurus. I ask the Government why don't they try it with regard to other people? I know they will not and they cannot, because the people know that to degrade your spiritual gurus is nothing short of sacrilege."

THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN :—"On a point of order, Sir. There is no question of degrading anybody. I never said in introducing the Bill that we meant any insult to anybody or put any restrictions upon the actions of others. I find that the hon. Gentlemen is visualizing a position which I never in any way intended."

MR. SPEAKER :—"It is not a point of order; it is only a personal explanation."

* SRI A. VAIDYANATHA AYYAR :—"I was not stupid enough to say that the Hon. Dr. Rajan ever really intended so. If he had intended it, I know he should have done it when he was in a perverse mood. The natural result of what he does will be what I have pointed out. The greater misfortune is that he still does not realize that it is the natural result of his action. When we go to a Minister's Chamber to get an interview, how much of oiling has to be done? For a Matathipathi to get an interview, how much he will have to pay to the duffadars and Assistant Commissioners? Formerly the payment to a peon in the Sub-Registrar's office was 4 annas. Now the cost of living is higher and therefore he demands 12 annas. Unless you pay 12 annas, you cannot get a document registered or get entry into the office. Fortunately not much of registration is going on on account of the income-tax business. I am in great trepidation. What I am really afraid of is that the moment a mutt or temple becomes a Government institution, the duffadar at the gate will hold out a hundi and say 'Pay 4 annas in this

[Sri A. Vaidyanatha Ayyar] [4th February 1949]

Otherwise you cannot enter. God is in the ante-chamber and you cannot see him. To get entry into it will be as difficult as it is to get entry into a Government office, and there will be a lot of difficulty for the poor.

"The Hon. Dr. Rajan was overflowing with sympathy for the poor and said that only in the interests of the poor he had brought forward this Bill. Many persons in this world have started their original propaganda under the guise of sympathy and tenderness for the poor. Hitler started his propaganda in that manner. Mussoloni did likewise and Emperor Hirohito also did likewise, and we all know where it has landed the people. This is an unwarranted interference with the life of the poor man.

"Then it is said: 'Blackshirts are there. Hindu faith has fallen from its ideals. There is the cry of 'Kadavul ozhigha'. In my own street there is an organization which started with saying 'Uchikudumi ozhigha' and ended with 'Kadavul ozhigha'. It is the sort of Government Bills that are enacted which as a matter of fact increases that tendency."

MR. SPEAKER :—"I will allow only ten more minutes to the hon. Member."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—"This is a very important Bill and I submit that sufficient time may be allowed to the hon. Member."

MR. SPEAKER :—"As many as 30 Members want to speak and I cannot allow any more time."

*SRI A. VAIDYANATHA AYYAR :—"A press note issued by the department of which the Hon. Minister is in charge says that there was not much opposition to the Bill except from the Hindu and one or two other newspapers. Such a casual manner of treating the Hindu is not right. Among the one or two other newspapers, the Swadesamitran also is included. Till now I have been of opinion that the Hindu is an established institution so far as English papers are concerned and the Swadesamitran is equally so among the Tamil papers. That is not the way in which a Minister should treat the opposition to this Bill. If I do an act or make a statement, the value of the criticism or commendation of it depends upon the person from whom it emanates. Sometimes error creates curious bedfellows and papers like Viduthalai, Puducherry and Kilguchi support the Hon. Dr. Rajan in respect of this Bill. I think that if a paper like Viduthalai supports me, it is the surest possible indication that I am in the wrong.

"It has been said that the object of the Government in introducing this Bill is not to interfere in religious matters but that they are likely to interfere only in civil matters. There is Article 35 of the Draft Constitution of India. Why I am emphasizing the Constitution is this. It appears that this Government are taking up an attitude as if they are surrounded by an ocean on all sides and that they are cut off from the Indian

Union. That should not be the attitude. Article 35 says that the State shall endeavour to secure for the citizens a uniform civil code throughout the territory of India. If you say that you are going to interfere only with the secular or civil side, why should not there be an uniform code for the whole of India? Though this Article does not come under Fundamental Rights, it is included in the Directive Principles of State Policy. In the light of this, I am unable to understand the attitude of the Government. We have got the Hindu Religious Endowments Act under which the courts have got something to do. There is section 93 with regard to non-religious endowments. Why should the Government single out the Hindu charitable endowments instead of enacting an uniform charitable endowments legislation for the whole Province which will bring us to the proper level and which will clearly indicate the line up to which the Government can interfere and beyond which they cannot.

"One of the other points of the Hon. Dr. Rajan was that this Bill would avoid litigation. On the contrary, I feel that this Bill will lead to a plethora of litigation, because every management will have to come forward with a suit for settling this or that question and contest whether any order passed against it is right or wrong. It will lead to the same amount of litigation and probably even more and on matters of more vital importance than what prevailed at the time the Hindu Religious Endowments Act was passed.

"Why should we rush through this legislation just at this particular time? We are faced with storm everywhere. On the industrial side, the Government are faced with strikes. They have nationalized a section of bus transport and they are faced with strikes leading to a number of arrests and dislocation to traffic. Then there is the food problem."

MR. SPEAKER :—"Let the hon. Member come to the subject proper."

SRI A. VAIDYANATHA AYYAR :—"I am saying that for these reasons it is better not to tread into this field. There are many more urgent matters requiring attention. With famine in Gujarat, Bombay and other places, there is hardly any likelihood of a sufficient quota coming into this Province. We have imposed restrictions on the inter-district transport of foodgrains and passed orders that lorries should not ply during nights. But lorries are plying during nights and are carrying foodgrains. When we complain to the District Magistrate, he says: 'What can I do? I have got only one Firka Supply Officer and a peon under him. What can that single officer do?' When we approach the Police, they say that they are helpless in the matter. Problems crying for solution are numerous. Even my Hon. Friend, Dr. Rajan, admitted that Communism is growing and there is propaganda everywhere. All these ills cannot be cured unless you deal with the root causes. People are not very much concerned with whether you administer the religious endowments or Mr. Chinaiya Pillai. They are more concerned with food. The price of foodstuffs is rising like a rocket. The Government are paying a higher price and still they are not able to procure enough quantity. When all these problems are there, the Hon. Food Minister is asked to spend his time on a Bill at this Lagna Sandhi time, the time between now and the coming into operation of the new constitution. Why should not we concentrate on items which will help the people? We, as a Government, are giving a wrong lead to the people. When the people are asking for food, the Government are giving them the Endowments Bill, the Sugar Bill and so on. As a matter of fact, the people who are affected by this Bill form only a small section of the population. The majority of the people want their day-to-day ills to be cured. Article 32 of the Draft Constitution provides for a number of things : provision of right to work, to education and to public assistance in case of unemployment, old age, sickness, disablement, etc. Cholera has become a regular feature every year. Blackmarket and corruption prevail in every department. Why should temples and religious institutions also be placed at the mercy of Government servants? Everybody says and even the Hon. Dr. Rajan admits that our administration is not as perfect as it ought to be. If you cannot obtain the maximum benefit from the existing departments, why should you take in new responsibilities and make confusion worse confounded? I submit that these religious institutions may be left alone for the present.

" There are about 25,000 charitable institutions, 27,000 temples and according to the Hon. Dr. Rajan, there are about 3,000 mutts including the small ones. If all these come under the control of the Government, there will be an epidemic of appointments everywhere. In the Central Assembly, it was said that when we wanted more food, we were given more Secretaries. The hon. Member who said so added something which was not complimentary and I do not propose to repeat it in this House. There will be a tendency to go on appointing Executive Officers and Assistant Inspectors. Let us not place ourselves open to the charge that instead of improving the endowments, we are improving the number of officers running the endowments.

" Only one more point and with that I will close. I ask the Hon. Dr. Rajan how many new temples the Hindu Religious Endowments Board has constructed and how many new endowments it has secured. If the Government want to kill Hindu religion, let them proceed with this Bill. "

MR. SPEAKER :—" Thirty members of this House want to take part in this debate and, therefore, I am going to fix 20 minutes as the time-limit for each speaker. "

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—" May I suggest, Sir, that, as this is a very important Bill on which many of the members want to have their full say, it is better that no time-limit is fixed. I am sure, Sir, that they are not going to repeat what others have said and, on a Bill like this, which the Hon. Premier is so anxious to see passed because of its importance and urgency, I submit that free expression of opinion should be allowed by the Chair and I am sure the House will co-operate with you in its speedy passage, even if 30 or 40 members desire to take part in the discussions of this Bill. "

4th February, 1949] [Sri T. Viswanatham]

MR. SPEAKER :—" I have no objection to members giving full expression to their views on this Bill, but that does not mean that I should not fix a time-limit. If some hon. Members wish to take one or two minutes more, I am, of course, prepared to allow them some more time. "

THE YUVARAJA OF PITHAPURAM :—" Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to second the amendment moved by my hon. Friend, Mr. A. Vaidyanatha Ayyar. After his exhaustive and brilliant criticism, there is not very much left for me to say. Therefore, I would only confine myself to a very few observations on this Bill.

" Sir, in seconding this amendment, I do not in the least question the bona fides of the Government and particularly that of the Hon. Premier. But intentions are not sufficient; and hopes alone will not do the trick, for when it appears, in black and white, what flows from it is the crux of the problem. Therefore, all that I say should be viewed from that angle and it is not with any obstructive intentions that I offer these observations.

" Sir, in the first place, I do not know why the Government are so keen at this stage to shoulder additional responsibilities, and more so, in a Bill of this sort. Being a secular State, should we not be doubly careful before we embark on an enterprise which cannot be called an enterprise of a secular nature?

" Sir, the Bill brings before us one very important question and that is this. Are we justified in interfering to this extent in the relationship between the two units, namely, man and god? Wisely or foolishly, men—at least a great many of them—have some sort of a belief in the existence of a god and have got some sort of a feeling towards god and all these trusts and endowments which fall within the orbit of this Bill are but expressions of the individual relationship between man and god. Therefore, to me, these institutions as a whole are but aspects of that concrete belief of the man in the existence of some supernatural power. After all, a number of endowments are made with the sole object of getting some spiritual solace and in making those endowments, people feel that those endowments ought to be used and managed in a particular way and by a particular set of people. The moment the State interferes, the moment the State comes into the picture, people begin to feel that it is a sort of usurpation, if I may use that expression, of the functions of the trustees concerned by the Government and so, I feel that the State would be taking a very grave responsibility on its shoulders in taking over these religious institutions. I will give the House, Sir, with your permission, a concrete example. My father, some time back, endowed to the tune of a lakh of rupees towards the Andhra Brahma movement. He had certain views of his own on that matter and he wanted that people of a certain kind should manage the trust. And now the Government steps in and says that it is going to take away that trust property or funds from that body and is going to manage the whole trust itself. In that case, would not the Government be nullifying the very objects and intentions which were in the mind of the creator of that trust? This is one of the very many examples which might have escaped the notice of the mover of this Bill. Therefore, in all humility, I submit that this sort of interference is almost a tirade, however unintentional it may be, against god and man. God can look after himself, but man cannot and, therefore, I appeal to the Government to pay more attention to the human aspect of this question.

"There is just another point, Sir, which I like to place before the Government. Whatever the legal aspect of the question might be at present, the fact remains that the Constituent Assembly has, as so brilliantly explained by my hon. Friend, Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar, adumbrated certain fundamental rights and that very soon the Constitution Act would be on the statute book. Is this the time, Sir, to rush through a legislation of this sort in total disregard of the intentions of the fathers of our constitution and creators of these trusts and other religious endowments?

"Sir, this precedent of trying to rush through a legislation in the face of what the Constituent Assembly has passed, is very potent. If we are going to nullify the spirit of the Constitution even before it is put on the statute book, I shudder to think what respect that constitution can command with reference to the Governments of the future.

"With these observations, Sir, I request the Government to go slow and concede this very modest demand for circulation of the Bill for eliciting public opinion, a process which is entirely parliamentary. Let us not ride the high horse, for, if we ride too high a horse, when the fall comes and if it comes, it will be a terrific bump."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Amendment moved—that the Madras Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Bill, 1949, be circulated for eliciting public opinion."

"The original motion as well as the amendment are before the House for discussion."

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, while I do not claim the legal knowledge that my learned and revered friend Mr. A. Vaidyanatha Ayyar possesses and which he has shown while discussing the provisions of the Constitution Act, I claim that I know sufficiently the mind of the Hindu public and I can assure the House that it does not want that the Government should now take upon themselves the responsibility of maintaining all these religious institutions. Let it not be misunderstood, Sir, that in supporting this amendment, we are either irreligious or that we want these institutions to go on in this haphazard way or that their funds should be misused and that their accounts should not be submitted for scrutiny. Far from that. One of my friends asked me, when I told him that I am going to support this amendment, 'Oh, what, you, who have been a Harijan worker all these twenty years, should think of supporting religion by favouring this amendment!' That is a thing, which I am not able to understand. If I had done any service for the Harijan cause, it was not out of disrespect for my religion. It is a wrong notion to suppose that a Harijan worker should not have any faith or belief in religion and its precepts. If anybody has taken up the cause of Harijan uplift merely with a view to bring the Hindu religion into contempt, then, Sir, I can only tell him that he has not understood Mahatma Gandhi. If Mahatma Gandhi had been pleading throughout his life for the entry of Harijans into Hindu temples, he did so, not with the intention of bringing down the Hindu religion or to disecrate the temples and the high ideals for which they stand, but because he intensely felt that God that is enshrined therein should be made available for worship to all people of the same religion and that the poor Harijans who also belong to the Hindu fold should not be excluded from worshipping God.

"Leaving aside that aspect of the subject altogether, I now come to the Bill itself. I really ask the Government, what is the hurry about this Bill? The Hon. Dr. T. S. S. Rajan himself said that the Bill has been there for twenty years and more. We all know that these mutts and these religious endowments have been in existence from time immemorial and if we want really to help them, improve their working and usefulness and put them on a sound basis, this is not the way to do it, nor is it going to be done within a period of a few months. If we really want the whole thing to be ransacked, thoroughly overhauled and placed on an enduring basis, then as my hon. and learned Friend, Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar has pointed out, we will have to go through the matter very carefully and slowly and devise ways and means of governing these innumerable institutions after consulting all the parties and interests affected and after obtaining the opinion of the public in a concrete manner. About 25,000 charitable endowments, 20,000 temples and 300 mutts are involved and these are not small things. Their income covers about one-third of the revenues of this Province and if these institutions are to be taken over by the Government, then they should think twice before launching upon such a big scheme.

"Another aspect of the question that I should like to place before this House is this, and that is our attitude towards the minorities. Claiming as we do to represent a major portion of the population of this Province, it is but fair and proper that we should respect the feelings of the minority, however few they may be. Even if there are only a few persons who believe that the taking over of these temples and other religious institutions by the State is not called for by religion, why not let them have a long rope?

[Sri L. N. Gopalaswami] [4th February 1949]

Why not hear what they have got to say in the matter? What are their arguments? They allege that the Constitution Act is now on the anvil. It is going to be enacted and passed into law in the course of a few months. If you will allow them some time, they will put, through a court of law, an injunction petition, stating that a secular State which India has been constituted to be, shall not and cannot interfere in religious institutions or with their administration and management. If the Government are so interested in these Hindu religious institutions and are so eager to rush through the legislation in this hasty manner, then they should do so only on two grounds. The first is that they should say that they have no regard for the feelings of the minorities.

"The second is they are afraid of the Constitution Act and are trying to get round the Constitution by passing this legislation just now in order that it may not affect this piece of legislation. In both these things the Government are not right. We should be charitable to our opponents. If they feel that they are going to gain their object by waiting for a few months we should be chivalrous enough to grant that. Nothing is going to be lost and in that brief period these mutts and institutions are not going to segregate their properties or sell them away.

"Another point is that if we are really going to abide by the new Constitution we should certainly give respect to the clauses passed already. We should not do anything now because we are at present within our rights under the present Constitution and because the new Constitution has not come into force.

"We all want our Hindu religion to be in its proper place. We should like to enliven it with fresh enthusiasm so that it may shine in all its glory and all the religious institutions can be models for any religious person to copy. But instead what are we now doing? We seem to think that by the golden touch of the Government everything will be improved. As my hon. Friend has pointed out we have already laid our hands on too many irons and we are now taking up another. Here, it is not merely a political or economic matter, but it is a religious one where we should fear to tread. But we forget that we are now treading upon the susceptibilities of religious people. If we are a secular State we should not interfere in these religious matters. As my friend has pointed out, if religion should thrive it should thrive in its own parenthood. However interested they may be, a Government which says it is secular, cannot interfere in these matters and say: 'I know how best to manage your institution, you please give it over to me.' It is just like saying 'You do not know how to manage your household, I will manage it for you'. That should not be the attitude of the Government.

"Thirdly, Sir, the respect that we give to our religion can only be measured by the way in which we treat our religious heads. No doubt there is a strong feeling that our religious heads are not up to the mark. But there are also so many other heads and ruling princes who are not up to the mark. What do we do with them?

4th February 1949] [Sri L. N. Gopalaswami]

We cannot reform them by simply disowning them. That reformation could be done only by our showing our proper respect to the matathipathis. Of course the respect should be mutual. But by merely saying 'You do not know how to manage', we will not be giving them the respect they deserve. If we really want to respect our matathipathis it cannot be done by passing a legislation like this stating that we are going to manage all the endowments and by putting them under some Commissioner, etc.

"Lastly, Sir, I would like to say only one thing before I close. By merely taking over the institutions the Government are not going to improve them at all. Let them point out a single instance where the Government have done better than a private institution in any walk of life. They have not been able to do that. After all what is a Government? The Government have not got the magic wand at their command. They have also got to deal with the same people that you and I have got to deal with. Unless the calibre of the general public is improved we cannot expect better results. Simply by making a motor driver or conductor an employee of the Government by taking over the bus, we are not going to make him a better man altogether showing greater respect to the people or doing greater service to them. Therefore I submit that this piece of legislation is rather very hasty and we can afford to wait for eight or ten months. We should give an opportunity to our opponents because we are not here to pass legislation by the mere strength of our majority. We should pass a legislation which is reasonable and people should be afforded an opportunity to get their grievances redressed. If these poor people think that the Constitution Act is going to help them why then should we deny them that privilege. I therefore request the Hon. the Minister to just ponder over the matter. If the Government have waited for 25 years they can certainly afford to wait for 10 months more. I request him to just postpone this Bill till the Constitution Act takes effect."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—Mr. Speaker, Sir, before I begin to speak, may I just ask whether the Advocate-General will intervene in this debate and speak on the legal points raised by my hon. Friend Mr. Vaithyanatha Ayyar?

MR. SPEAKER:—I wish to know from the Hon. Minister whether the Advocate-General will speak on this Bill.

4th February 1949]

THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN:—The Advocate-General is listening to the debate. He will say something to-morrow; but not to-day.

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—Mr. Speaker, Sir, certain points having been raised by Mr. Vaithyanatha Ayyar on the legal and constitutional aspect of the Bill, and the Advocate-General being present here, I thought it would add to the usefulness of the debate if the Advocate-General intervened at this stage. It would also enable us to proceed with the discussion on a better and enlightened level. But as the Hon. Mover of the Bill has said that the Advocate-General will reply in the end, we, with our own limited understanding of the constitutional position, will only proceed groping in the dark to find some light somewhere.

"The Hon. Minister in charge of the Bill in winding up his speech said 'we have got an inherent right to pass what legislation we can; Constitution Act or no Constitution Act we will do what we have got in our mind.' It is exactly to check this kind of assumption of powers—I do not say it is a deliberate and wicked assumption but it is an assumption which comes into the head of Governments which are run by big majorities—in all written Constitutions certain safeguards are provided. If proof of the necessity of such safeguards was needed at any time in the history of not only this country but of every other country where fundamental rights are reduced to writing in Constitutions, as they are in our draft Constitution, the assumption of the Hon. Dr. T. S. S. Rajan is ample proof of it. He speaks of inherent right! But the framers of the Draft Constitution also know that this inherent right that is adumbrated has an expanding tendency and becomes very much more particularly in these days not only in this country but in every country where the executive wants to try to assume to itself sovereign and independent powers. It is only to guard against the evils of such assumptions, these safeguards are provided in the Constitution and the framers of the Constitution know this. That is why, Sir, in Chapter V of this Draft Constitution certain fundamental rights have been enunciated and one of them is this:

"Any law which tries to abridge any of the fundamental rights secured in this Constitution shall be invalid to the extent of the repugnancy."

Why is it, Sir, that they thought it right to frame this clause? It is because, in matters of religion, people who have known the history of not only this country but the history of Europe and America, have known it to their cost that in matters of religion, differences tend to become very great and very acute leading to disruptions. The record of European history and the records of our own history bear witness to this. Wars have been fought on this land and in this world on the ground of religion or religious misunderstandings arising out of religious denominations or faith. To-day if you look around the world to certain of the conflicts that are going on in the Middle East you will find there again that religion is at the source of a great fight that is going on. Having had experience of these, and desiring to take advantage of examples of history and the warnings of history, the framers of our Draft Constitution have thought that with regard to religion, at any rate, in this country, the State shall have nothing to do. Sir, that is the spirit, that is the purport, and that is the object with which the fundamental rights with regard to religion have been incorporated in the Draft Constitution. It is said that every religious denomination—not merely of a particular faith like Muslim faith or Hindu faith or Christian faith, but even the denominations in it (which is very comprehensive)—or any section thereof shall have the right to establish and maintain institutions for religious and charitable purposes, to manage its own affairs in matters of religion, to own and acquire movable and immovable property, and to administer such property in accordance with law. Sir, this is the provision that has already been passed by the Constituent Assembly. It may be asked that the Draft Constitution has not yet become final, and therefore why should we bother about it now. But I submit, Sir, that we are at the beginning of a critical period in this country. Having got over certain difficulties, we are trying to set right our own affairs in our house. When we are trying to frame our Constitution, and when those who are in charge of the affairs of India have thought it fit to keep the State away from the troubles of religious faiths and religious denominations so that we can have a good secular Government based upon economic and political considerations rather than on religious grounds, is this the time for us—when actually the Draft Constitution is being discussed in the Constituent Assembly—to bring in a Bill like this? As if in a very innocent way, the Hon. Dr. Rajan made the suggestion and he also wanted us to believe that we are almost in a chaotic stage with regard to religious institutions. I think he used the word "chaos" and said that there is absolutely no law to govern these Matahipathis and trustees of the temples, and that we are all in a land where there are no laws regarding the trust properties. He spoke that people were mismanaging the endowments and trusts and yet they were not under the control of any law.

Then, his arguments would have been perfectly right and absolutely right and everyone of us would have supported, if really speaking, there was no law on this subject. If we are in a country where there is no law with regard to the administration of charitable or religious endowments, if we are in a country where there is no law with regard to acquisition of property or the disposal of property, if we are in a country where there is no law to rectify misappropriation or to punish misappropriation, then his arguments would have been perfectly right. But, he comes forward and tells us on the floor of this House with all naïveté that Government have been trying for the last so many years, more than twelve years, to rectify the defects of this kind. He says, 'There is so hurry, I am not anxious that this Bill should be passed at once. But the Bill must, however, be introduced.' As I have submitted before, going back to a very old period, when Government have in 1863 passed the Religious and Charitable Endowments Act, they gave the title to the Act like this: 'An Act to enable the Government to divest itself of the management of religious endowments.' That Government thought that Government is best which governs least. It is an old political maxim. I still believe it is very correct. The Hon. the Mover of this Bill should understand the implications of what the hon. Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar has said. The present lay tendency of the Government is not to divest themselves of the management of several things. In fact, they have taken in hand the administration of so many things, so many branches of human life and social life with the result that it has almost become impossible for the Government to go on with any sense of calmness or any capacity to regulate its Government. The hon. Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar pointed out as an instance the administration of the Food Department. I shall not isolate any single department in this matter. Because there are too many things in the hands of Government, the position has become so difficult that almost every department has got out of control. I submit, Sir, that it is not good for a Government to take more subjects into its hands than it can digest.

Then, Sir, when I was referring to the fundamental rights, I submitted that public opinion sometimes goes upon slogans, sometimes fleeting and transient considerations come and cloud our minds. It is only to guard against this that this particular provision has been made that the management of religious institutions shall be left to the persons composing that particular religious denomination or religious faith. Sir, Government has got the inherent right to regulate the laws regarding acquisition of property or disposal of property. It has also got rights to pass laws about the disposal of public revenues but I suppose it has not got the right to take upon itself the entire direct management of a person's home or property; or likewise of faiths and denominations. The Hon. the Mover has said, I have got the power to-day whatever it may be tomorrow. But, Sir, the position is this. In olden days there were religious sanctions. They ceased to exist with the advent of foreign rule. A foreign Government was ruling us. They made certain laws and they controlled the people who were in charge of these charitable and religious institutions. But, at the same time they were neutral in religious matters. As I submitted, Sir, the Act was passed in 1863; but it did not deal with Hindu religious or charitable endowments or Muslim or Christian religious or charitable endowments in particular. It was a general law. Until then, not only in this Presidency but also in other Provinces, the Board of Revenue had the power of management. Then, they found that it was all wrong to continue the management of these religious and charitable institutions. On the other hand, they found that it is of fundamental importance to repose faith in the people who are near and around these temples, people who contribute to the religious worship and the maintenance of those temples.

and people who form that particular denomination. They found that it is those people that must be given the voice in the management of those temples. Following this decision, in the year 1863, they thought that the Government should divest itself of the management of all these temples. What did they do? They did not leave it in the air. You will find the whole thing regulated in Sections 6 to 12 of that Act. It is for the first time they created a machinery whereby they vested the initiative in the local people and the devotees composing the particular faith or denomination, people who have more lawful interest, and gave them an effective voice in the administration of those temples, not merely on the religious side inside the temple but also in matters regarding the property and other questions pertaining to the temples. They also created electoral colleges. It is only these things that have been subsequently borrowed and incorporated in the Hindu Religious Endowments Act. In this connection, I would refer to the Statement of the Objects and Reasons of the present Bill. It is stated that the provincialization of the administration of the Hindu Religious Endowments of this Province was recommended on several occasions in the past since 1929. I really cannot exactly understand in what sense the word 'provincialization' has been used. I shall advert to that subject later on. Possibly Government means that instead of controlling by law the internal management of the temples, it was recommended that direct administration of temples should be taken over by the Government. Assuming that that was the meaning, I am offering my remarks.

"Sir, the Statement of Objects and Reasons says:
The provincialization of the administration of Hindu Religious Endowments in this Province was recommended to Government on several occasions in the past since 1929; but the recommendation could not be given effect to for one reason or another. It has been pointed out that the Madras Endowments and Escheats Regulation, 1817 (Madras Regulation VII of 1817), distinctly recognized the principle that it was the duty of the Government to keep a strict watch over religious trusts and endowments and that effect was given to this principle till 1840, by the exercise of efficient and stringent control over Hindu temples through Government officers. The Government have carefully considered the question and have decided to provincialize the administration of Hindu religious endowments; and the main object of this Bill is to give effect to it.

Sir, it is not denied that it is the duty or the responsibility of the Government to keep a strict watch over religious trusts and endowments. That is not the real point. Some amount of propaganda has been made that those who want that this Bill should be circulated for eliciting public opinion of those who have pointed out that there is some difficulty at this stage in passing this Act are against the purification of the managements of these temples or against keeping a strict watch over them. Certainly it is not so. I may make it very clear. No one is more anxious than myself to make these managements pure and more pure. May I ask what the Hon. Premier who was in charge of this subject for twenty months or the Hon. Dr. Rajan has done in improving the management of these temples? Absolutely nothing, so far as I know. I have not seen them come to my area; I have not seen them come to any temple there. I have only seen them giving directions to anybody whatsoever supinely and things have been going on because no living interest has been created in the minds of persons near and around the temples. In my place there are temples; but, I do not have any voice in the management of those temples. People there do not look forward to me or to those in that place because we are not their masters so far as temple administration is concerned. Administration is carried on by wires that are sent out from Madras. When such is the case, how can you expect the management of the temple to be good? Temple managements will be all right and will be bound to be all right when and only if those persons who are near and around the temples are given the power to have a strict watch and to exercise vigilance over them. I may submit that that is the only proper way by which temple administration can be purified. Only in that way he can keep these temples pure and the lives of those who are in their charge also pure. If he wants to ensure this, then he must give effective power to the people around who can easily keep a watch and an effective watch over them, because Government cannot control them from this place. I may submit to the Government that by concentrating these powers at Madras, they will not be able to control the temples or to purify them. It is easily understandable that there is prospect of patronage when there is concentration of power in the hands of the Government itself and there are people to be satisfied by the Government here and there and everywhere. I am not attributing any particular bad motive to any individual but in the final analysis, it comes to this, that the sources and distribution of patronage are being transferred to the seat of Government at Madras. It would mean nothing more. In this connection I would remind you of Government's replies on the floor of the House to supplementary questions on anti-corruption, anti-black-marketing and profiteering. They were to the utter dissatisfaction of most of the members of this House.

"Sir, I submit that provincialization or transfer of officers from one place to another will not lead to the improvement of the temples. The centralized form of control will only make the temple administration fail. Already the general public are almost tired of our incapacity to deal with the many problems which we have in hand and if we add to these problems, the temples and there are as many as 27,000 temples and 27,000 mutts, about 3,000 endowments and 3,000 charitable institutions—where shall we be? Of course, Government have got their own advisers on policy. I cannot, as a small man, offer any advice on the policy of the Government. But, I have got to express my opinion from the experience which I have in the management of these institutions. My experience is that this centralized form of Government from Madras will fail and will fail miserably. Sir, from that point of view, it is wrong for the Government to take over the management of these temples. Now that the Constitution Act is shortly to come into force, Government should stop interfering in these matters. The Hon. the Mover said that Government have shown their earnest desire for the last twelve years and after due consideration, they have come forward with this Bill. But, I may submit, Sir, this is the first time that they are coming with such a measure. If you go into the provisions of the Act of 1863, you will see that there are ample provisions to help the Government to control these institutions without any sense of partiality. But, Sir, the provisions of the present Bill seek to concentrate power in the hands of the Government. It enables them to shower their patronage. Therefore, Sir, I submit that it is better to put more life and to give more power to the existing Board rather than try to take the managements of these temples upon themselves.

Then, Sir, it is stated in the Statement of Objects and Reasons that Government have carefully considered the question and have decided upon the provincialization of the administration of the Hindu Religious Endowments. I submit, Sir, that provincialization is not the best method. At one stage of the argument, the Hon. Dr. Rajan appealed to the sentiments and said, "Shall I keep quiet when these Matadhipathis are mismanaging and when the people are starving while dinners are going on and sumptuous meals are taken inside the temples?" But, Sir, I may ask, whether day in and day out, morning and evening and at nights, tea parties and dinner parties, are not held in the Mount Road within Government House compound while we see hundreds of stragglers without any cloth at all and without any food, outside the compound? People are suffering like that, yet our dinners and feasts are going on galore in the Rajaji Hall. Sometimes we hear the cries of those who are unfed and are starving. Even hearing them, we go on with these things. Therefore, Sir, I submit that in order to consider the merits of a legislation, it is not right for Dr. Rajan or for me or for anybody else to refer to these starving millions as an argument. Sir, the starving millions are not going to be fed by the temples coming into the hands of the Government.

MR. SPEAKER:—"The hon. Member may continue his speech tomorrow. The House will now adjourn and meet again tomorrow at 11 a.m."

The House then adjourned to meet again at 11 a.m. the next day.

THE MADRAS HINDU RELIGIOUS AND CHARITABLE ENDOWMENTS BILL, 1949

THE MADRAS LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Saturday, the 5th February 1949.

The House met in the Assembly Chamber, Fort St. George, at eleven of the clock, Mr. Speaker (THE HON. SRI J. SIVASHANMUKHAM PILLAI) in the chair.

MR. SPEAKER:—“ Now, Mr. Viswanatham will continue his speech. Before he speaks, I must inform the hon. Member that he has already taken the time allotted to him. The hon. Member can take ten minutes more.”

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—“ With your permission I would take half an hour.

“ Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Hon. the Mover of the Bill wanted to persuade the members of this House by saying, ‘What is it, after all, I have done? The Government have, on several previous occasions, put on the Statute Book several Acts interfering or concerning the management, administration and governance of these religious institutions.’ And therefore, he said, ‘since the previous Government have done it, there is nothing wrong now for me to pursue the same policy.’ There is a particular distinction, Sir, between the measures taken by the previous Government and the measures which the present Government want to take in this behalf. Hitherto we had no written constitution. We had a foreign Government. That being so, they did not interfere in our religious matters. For example, the then Government was paying some money to the Ecclesiastic Department but on that account they did not interfere with the internal affairs of Christian churches. That is the kind of neutrality observed then. Now, what has really happened is the non-interference which was the policy of the Government as stated from time to time by mere announcements and statements, has been reduced to writing in the shape of the Fundamental Right of a citizen. It is not merely to the Christians; it is not merely to the Muslims but it is also to the Hindus that there is a fundamental right. We should not forget the very simple fact, the one fundamental fact, that these Fundamental Rights cannot be ignored by those who form the Government. In almost every country it always happens that those who form the Government generally represent the majority of the people of that country and yet these Fundamental Rights are always written in the Constitution. Therefore, the argument that Hindus being the majority community, the Government have got the right to interfere in the management of temples which are reserved to the members of the denomination, does not hold water. So also the argument advanced by the Hon. Minister that previous Governments have interfered or have enacted some measures in this behalf, does not hold water.

“ Sir, I may submit that the position has changed after the Constituent Assembly came into being. It may be argued by the Hon. Minister that the Constituent Assembly has not yet passed the Constitution Act and therefore, according to the Government of India Act, we have got every right to do whatever we want with regard to this matter. I may submit, Sir, that there is a difference between mere legality and constitutional propriety. We should see in what conditions we are now conducting our legislative business both in Madras as well as in Delhi. There is practically no parallel to this in the history of any country in the world. The Foreign Government has gone out of this country transferring the administration to us. Certain transitory provisions have been enacted but at the same time a Constituent Assembly has been set up and about 45 members of this House are also members of that Assembly. Therefore, I submit we cannot ignore the proceedings of the Constituent Assembly. We cannot ignore the Articles that have already been adopted by the Constituent Assembly. It does not matter if the Constitution Act has not been finally and fully accepted by the Constituent Assembly. We cannot get away from the fact that already some of the articles are there, and these 45 learned members of this House who go there and vote for the adoption of those Articles, cannot say, whatever might have been said at Delhi, here we will give our seal of approval to the Government in interfering and taking over the management of those institutions. I say it would be an act of incongruity and that is why I submit that apart from mere legalistic interpretation, the Hon. Mover of the Bill must take all these together into consideration. We cannot affirm one thing in Delhi and deny it on the floor of this Assembly. That is why, I say that the point raised by the hon. Mr. Vaidyanatha Iyer is perfectly a sound one.

“ The Hon. the Mover of the Bill also said that the constitutional aspect has been examined. I have no doubt that the Government must have examined it. But it was given out in the newspapers that eminent constitutionalists including a retired Chief Justice of the Federal Court of India were of the opinion that its validity would be doubtful. Apart from the question of validity, I am talking about the question of propriety. When legislation is going on there, in the Constituent Assembly we are contemplating here to contravene directly certain provisions of it and this amounts to nothing but contempt for the Constitution. There must be some propriety in any action the Government might take. Therefore, I submit that the legality and the constitutional propriety must be considered together rather than separately.

“ Then, speaking on the necessity for passing this Bill, the Hon. the Mover said that the Hindu Religious Endowments Board has failed in its purpose because there is a constant and perpetual interference by the Court. Here again, the Honourable Minister has betrayed the mind of the Government while the ostensible object of this legislation is to improve and purify the administration of temples and charitable endowments, the real object seems to be to see that whatever they do by executive administration, they shall not be questioned by anybody in a Court of law. But like King Charles's head, the plea of maladministration of temples comes up to oust jurisdiction of Courts. The Hon. Minister said that it is the perpetual interference of Courts, the tortuous procedure of Courts which does not enable the Executive to do whatever it likes and that is the reason why he is taking powers under this Bill. It is a wrong attitude. On several occasions we have made reference to it on the floor of the House and I do not know whether the Hon. Minister in charge of the Bill was present when the discussions took place. It is wrong to say that we will pass new legislation because we do not like the interference of Courts; the procedure followed in Courts is tortuous and therefore, we want to deprive the people of their rights and exclude the jurisdiction of the Courts. On his own admission, there are 27,000 mutts and temples and as for charitable institutions their figure goes to astronomical numbers. Is it open to him to suggest that he would deprive the people of their remedy rather than help them to achieve the object, namely, the purification of the administration of these institutions? From the beginning to the end of his speech yesterday, he was saying that the administration of most of these things was bad and corruption had crept in. It is true. But it is also true that when for the first time the Government directly want to take up the management of these private institutions as part of Government administration, it is just and proper that the Government should have a little introspection. We are in a privileged position and we make a sweeping suggestion, sitting on the Treasury Benches, that these charitable or educational institutions are corrupt and we want to take them ourselves. When we say all these, we must also be very certain and be very careful to see how the public are receiving our statements. At present, Sir, what is the credit that we have? We have read the statement of Sardar Patel on us, Congressmen. Pandit Jawaharlal tells us directly in Rajaji Hall that thus and thus is the credit that the Government and the legislature have in our Province and has pointed out to us our own mistakes; why should we forget our own mistakes and why should we forget the level of the credit which we are now commanding and why should we try to condemn others? The Hon. Dr. Rajan said: 'Why should they who submitted to the judgment of foreign judges to-day object to an enactment like this?' It is unfortunate that in those days our fathers had to submit themselves to the jurisdiction of foreign judges; but does that mean that our submission was of our own free will? It was not and that is the reason why, when we are framing our own constitution, we are trying to define what should be the powers of the Government and what should be the scope of Governmental activities, what should be the right of individuals and also of denominational groups. When we are doing that, it is not right for us to give as an example what we did some years ago when we had no control and no right to regulate our own affairs. To persuade us, the Hon. Dr. Rajan said: 'Can I, as a member of Government keep quiet when God is shut out; when God is starved and sometimes killed?' I submit that God is there; neither can he be shut out nor shut in nor killed nor created nor be made to live. That is a proposition that I need not labour; he has not become so helpless as to need the protection of this Government."

5th February 1949] [Sri T. Viswanatham]

MR. SPEAKER:—"I have fixed a time-limit and the hon. Member has taken more than the time allotted; he cannot be speaking for more than an hour."

* SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"I will not incur the displeasure of the Chair, I am only submitting, Sir, after all you can manage things very nicely. (Laughter.)

"God does not need the help of the Government to be placed in his own proper place; if there is such a God let me not have him. Statements like that will only tend to confuse things and people will misunderstand our faith. Our God is the same as the God of the Muslim, or of the Christian; there is only one God and there is no other and we also say the same thing: 'Ekameva Advitiyam'. For Dr. Rajan, who is not merely a Hindu but a pious Hindu, an orthodox Hindu according to his profession—it might have been by way of peroration or just meant to create an impression in the minds of the people—it is not right that he should have taken up that attitude and spread misunderstanding among the people about our religious doctrine and religion."

N. MUHAMMAD ANWAR SAHIB BAHADUR:—"From yesterday, Sir, God is very frequently quoted from this side and that. On a point of order, Sir, can He be freely cited as a witness? Can it be a matter for discussion here on the floor of the House?"

MR. SPEAKER:—"It is no point of order at all."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"As usual whenever my friend rises, it is not a point of order but a point of humour. (Laughter.)

"Gods cannot be made demonstrable witnesses here but he is within me and outside, nay in the entire Universe and let us not try to draw the red herring across the path and canvass support for the Bill saying that Gods have been starved or shut up by factions. Let us not spread false doctrines. In fact, it is to safeguard the propagation of wrong religious doctrines that these fundamental rights have been embodied in the Constitution and it has been accorded to the individuals and to people that compose a particular denomination and that is the reason why the Government should have no hand in dealing with the management of these institutions."

[Sri T. Viswanatham] [5th February 1949]

Looked at from the merits, the Bill is wrong. Let us look at it from another angle; it is not merely Muslims or Christians; there are many denominations and history has recorded various conflicts between one denomination and another. Dr. Rajan may be good and broad-minded but where is the guarantee that the person whom he may be appointing or transferring or whom I may recommend for transfer from Vizagapatam to Tirunelveli, does not belong to an altogether different denomination? If you only know the differences of opinion between, for instance, the Advaitins and the Visishtadvaitins and see how easily the temperature can be worked up even on the interpretation of a single sloka in the Bhagavadgita, you can realise the situation and judge what harm and damage it is going to cause and what quarrels it will engender. It will lead to quarrels and history has recorded it in the blood of those who had sacrificed their lives for the propagation of their faiths and beliefs. Let us not assume the role of Kumarila Bhatta coming again to restore lost things; the various philosophies of the various denominational groups are there and they are propagating their tenets and their principles and they know how to conduct their own affairs. The Hon. Dr. Rajan said that we would not interfere with all that. But if we refer to Clause 43, we see that Deputy Commissioner's decision or that of the Commissioner will be final. The Commissioner may be a Saivite and the dispute may be with reference to a Vaishnavite temple or the Deputy Commissioner may be a Thengalai and the temple may be a Vadagalai temple and it will not be possible for the Hon. Minister to be so vigilant as to see whether a particular officer posted to a place belongs to a particular denomination; it will be a colossal and impossible task for the Government. Why should the Government then invite this kind of extra trouble? The Hon. Minister said that the public are with him. May I draw his attention to the fact that it was the public that demanded the crucifixion of Christ? There are certain aspects of life which cannot easily be determined and it is not easy to say how the public feel about them and it is to guard ourselves against ill-considered opinions that in the Constitution safeguards have been provided, safeguards with regard to religion and the practice of religion. Let not Dr. Rajan think that public opinion is always with him in these religious matters. I will not labour that point except to say that we should not lay much store by it. He also said that we are perfectly within our rights in proceeding with the measure, but as I have said, Sir, we are committing a constitutional impropriety if not an actual illegality inasmuch as 45 of our own members are in the Constituent Assembly and they have given their approval to that Article and to-day we cannot say that they will deny what they have affirmed at Belhi. If we really want to purify our temples, let us have a general law. In this connection, I would in all humility request him to go through the provisions of the Act of 1863, which is a Central Act. They made provision there that power should vest in the devotees, in the people close and around the temples in the locality and they should have an effective voice; do it now and then only the temples will be purified. Otherwise, what happens? I have got five temples in my place and neither the archakas, nor the accountants nor the trustees will care for me because each has got a god-father here in Madras. We may be the worshippers and we will have to put up with him and we cannot control him because there is somebody else to protect him in Madras. It would, therefore, be proper and just and right and desirable to follow the provisions of the Act of 1863. I submit that this Bill may go back and that the Government should frame another Bill on the lines of the 1863 Act. We should purify the administration of religious and charitable institutions and endowments of not only the Hindus but also of all other denominations. I stand for purity in all branches of administration not merely of temples. I shall give my wholehearted support if the Bill is framed in a different manner. I hope the Hon. Minister will frame the Bill in such a way that these temples will once more become the centres of learning and culture from which light will flash to the various corners of the world, as they were in the past. Let us attempt to revive their past glory and pave the way for a more glorious future rather than pass laws which in the ultimate analysis are intended to concentrate more and more administrative powers in the hands of the executive."

VEDARATNAM PILLAI:—“கனம் அக்ரஸனாதிபதியவர்களே, இந்த தர்ம பரிபாலன சட்டத்தை ஒரு மகப்பற்றற்ற அரசாங்கம் கொண்டு வந்து நிறைவேற்றுவது கூடாது என்று பலமான ஆட்சேபணை இருந்து வருகிறது. மகப்பற்றற்ற அரசாங்கம் இதை நிர்வாகம் செய்கிற பொறுப்பை அடியோடு எடுக்காமலிருந்திருந்தால் இதற்கு ஆட்சேபணை ஒன்றும் கிடையாது. இப்பொழுது அரசாங்கம் எடுத்துக்கொண்டதாகவும் இல்லை, இல்லாததாகவும் இல்லை. இப்பொழுது தர்ம பரிபாலன போர்டு ஒன்றை நியமித்து அதன் மூலம் தர்ம ஸ்தாபனங்கள் நிர்வகிக்கப்பட்டு வருகிறது. அதனால் வருகிற நன்மை, தீமை பெயர்களுள்ளும் இந்த அரசாங்கத்திற்கு வருகிறதேயல்லாமல் அந்த போர்டை மாத்திரம் அது சேரவில்லை. இன்றைய நிலைமையில் அந்த பொறுப்பை ஏற்க தயாராக இருப்பவர்கள் இன்று போர்டில் தலையிட்டு எந்த விதமான காரியத்தையும் செய்வதற்கு சாத்தியமில்லாமலிருக்கின்றது. இன்றைக்கு அங்கிருக்கும் நிலைமையானது இப்பொழுது அதை எடுத்துக்கொள்ளவேண்டிய நிலைமைக்கு வந்திருக்கிறது. இப்பொழுது இருக்கும் போர்டின் நிர்வாகத்திறமையினால் இந்த தர்ம ஸ்தாபனங்கள் எல்லாம் நல்ல முறையிலில்லாமல் சீர அழிந்திருக்கிறது என்பதை நாம் மறுப்பதற்கு இல்லை. ஆனால், ஒரு சில ஸ்தாபனங்கள் மட்டும் நல்ல நிலைமையில் இருக்கிறது. மற்றவைகள் இன்னும் மோசமாகவும் கேவலமாகவுமுள்ள நிலைமையில் இருக்கிறது என்ற விஷயத்தை மறுப்பதற்கு இல்லை. சட்டசபை அங்கத்தினர்கள் அதில் தலையிட்டு சீர்திருத்தம் செய்வதற்கும் இல்லை. அதை நல்ல முறைக்குக் கொண்டுவரவேண்டுமென்றால் இப்பொழுது போர்டு இருக்கிற அமைப்பில் அதற்கு வேண்டிய அதிகாரம் இல்லை என்று சுற்ப்படுகிறது. இது சம்பந்தமாக சட்ட சபையில் கேள்விகள் கேட்டதற்கு அவைகளை அனுமதிக்கப்படுவதும் இல்லை. ஆகையால் போர்டு இப்பொழுது இருக்கும் நிலைமையில் அதிகாரச் சத்தை பூராவும் அரசாங்கம் எடுத்துக்கொண்டு அதை வகளை சீர்திருத்தம் செய்யக்கூடிய நிலைமைக்குக் கொண்டுவருவதனால் அதில் என்ன தவறு இருக்கிறது. ஆனால் இது சம்பந்தமாக இப்பொழுது டில்லியில் நடந்து வருகிற அரசியல் தீர்மான சபையில் விதி ஏற்பட்டிருக்கிறது. அதில் நம்முடைய மாகாண அரசாங்கம் தலையிட்டுச் செய்வதற்கு அதிகாரம் கிடையாது என்று ஒரு பெரிய வாதத்தைக் கிளப்ப

பட்டிருக்கிறது. அந்த அரசியல் நிர்ணய சபை 20-வது விதியில் இந்த விஷயமாக தலையிடுவதற்கு விதி இல்லை என்று கூறுவதாகக் கூறுகிறார்கள். ஆனால் அதற்கு ஒரு amendment வந்திருக்கிறது. அந்த விதியில் சொல்லியிருப்பது என்னவென்றால் 'to administer such property in accordance with law' என்று அந்த 20-வது விதியில் இருக்கிறது. இதைப்பற்றி அரசியல் நிர்ணய சபை கூட்டிக் கூட்டத்தில் விவாதம். வந்தபோது நம் முடைய மாகாண பிரதிநிதியான ஸ்ரீ அனந்தசுயானம் அய்யங்கார் இதற்கு ஒரு திருத்தத்தை அங்கே கொண்டு வந்தார். இந்த தீர்மானத்தை பல அங்கத்தினர்கள் படித்துப் பார்த்திருக்கலாம். அது என்னவென்றால் 'in accordance with law' என்பதற்குப் பதிலாக 'in accordance with custom and usage' என்பதுதான். ஆனால் இந்த திருத்தம் அங்கே நிறைவேற்றப்படவில்லை. அதன் காரணத்தால் 25 அங்கத்தினர்கள் கையெழுத்திட்டு மறுபடியும் அதை நிறைவேற்றவேண்டுமென்று அரசியல் நிர்ணய சபை கூட்டிக் கூட்டத்திற்கு அனுப்பியதை பண்டித ஜவஹர்லால் அவர்கள் இதற்கு ஆட்சேபித்து தோற்றுப்போனதின் காரணமாக இதை மறுபடியும் கொண்டுவர முடியாது என்று சொல்லிவிட்டார். அதனால் இந்த திருத்தத்தை வாபஸ் வாங்கிக்கொண்டிருக்கிறார் என்பதை உங்களுடைய கவனத்திற்குக் கொண்டுவர விரும்புகிறேன். ஆகையால் மத சம்பந்தமான ஆட்சேபணை இருந்திருந்தால் பண்டித ஜவஹர்லால் அவர்கள் ஆட்சேபித்திருக்கமாட்டார்கள். திருத்தம் நிறைவேற்றமுடியாதவே இருந்திருப்பார்கள். தோல்வி அடைந்ததும் உடனே வாபஸ் வாங்கிக்கொள்ளப் பட்டது. ஆகையால் இதில் சட்ட பூர்வமாக தப்பு இருக்கிறது என்பதாக எனக்குத் தோன்றவில்லை. நான் சட்ட நிபுணன் அல்ல. அங்கே நடந்த விஷயங்களை கவனித்துதான் நான் சொல்லுகிறேன். மத சம்பிரதாய விஷயங்களில் இவர்கள் புருந்து ஒன்றும் தவறு செய்வதற்கு இடம் இல்லாது செய்திருக்கிறார்களேயல்லாமல் மத சொத்து இவைகளை பரிபாலனம் செய்வதில் எவ்வித தப்பான விதியும் இந்தச் சட்டத்தில் இருப்பதாக எனக்குத் தோன்றவில்லை. எவ்வளவோ சட்ட நிபுணர்கள் கலந்தாலோசித்து Advocate-General அவர்களுடைய ஆலோசனையையும் பரிசீலனைசெய்து அதன் பிறகு தான் இந்த சட்டத்தை இப்பொழுது கொண்டுவந்திருக்கிறார்கள் என்பதாகவே நான் அறிகிறேன். இம்மாதிரியான தப்பு இருந்தால் அவர்கள் அதைக் குறிப்பிட்டு தடைசெய்திருப்பார்கள். எவ்வளவோ ஆலோசனைக்குப் பிறகு இந்த சட்டம் கொண்டுவந்திருக்கும்போது அதில் தப்பு இருக்கும் என்று சொல்ல முடியவில்லை.

“இன்னும் ஒரு விஷயம். தர்மஸ்தாபனங்களின் சொத்துக்கள் சம்பந்தமாகவும் மத சம்பந்தமாகவும் எந்தவிதமான வரியையும் விதிக்கக்கூடாது என்று விதி இருக்கிறதே என்று நண்பர் கனம் எ. வைத்தியனாதையர் எடுத்துக்கூறினார். தர்மஸ்தாபனத்தில் ஒரு மதத்தின் அபிவிருத்திக்காக ஒரு புதிய வரிபோட்டு அந்த மதத்தை பரிபாலிக்கக்கூடாது என்று இந்த சட்டத்தில் கூறப்படுகிறதேயன்றி தர்மஸ்தாபன சொத்திற்கு வரிவிதிக்கக் கூடாது என்றிருப்பதாகத் தோன்றவில்லை. இப்பொழுது இருக்கிற நிலையில் இந்த சட்டத்தைக்கொண்டுவந்ததை ஆட்சேபிப்பதற்கு ஒரு நியாயமும் இல்லை என்று எனக்குத் தோன்றுகிறது. இன்னும் இதை பொது ஜன அபிப்பிராயத்திற்கு விட்டுக்கொடுக்கவேண்டுமென்று கூறுகிற விஷயத்தைப்பற்றி இரண்டொரு வார்த்தைகளைக் கூற விரும்புகிறேன்.

“இந்த சட்டம் ஒரு ஆண்டுக்கு முன்பாகவே கொண்டுவந்த நிறைவேற்றி யிருக்கவேண்டிய விஷயம். இப்படியே பத்திரிகைகள் வாயிலாகவும் போதிய பிரசாரம் நடந்திருக்கிறது. ஆகையால் ஒரு அண்டாக அபிப்பிராயத்திலிருந்திருக்கிறது. ஏதோ சிலர் இதில் சிரத்தை உள்ளவர்களும் சயநல அக்கரையுள்ளவர்கள் மாததிரம் இதைப்பற்றி ஊக்கம் எடுத்துக்கொண்டு இருக்கிறார்களே அல்லாது சாதாரணமாக உள்ளவர்களுக்கு இதில் சிரத்தை இருப்பதாகத் தோன்றவில்லை. சொந்த சிரத்தையுள்ளவர்கள் இதை ஆட்சேபிக்கிறார்களே யொழிய வேறு ஒருவரும் ஆட்சேபிக்கவில்லை. இதை நிறைவேற்றினால் பின்னால் அரசியல் நிர்ணய சபை சட்டம் நிறைவேற்றிய பிறகு இதற்கு ஆபத்து வரக்கூடும்

இன்னும் இந்த மாதிரியான தர்ம ஸ்தாபனத்தின் சொத்துக்களில் சிலவு போன்ற உபாயங்களை இருக்கக்கூடிய மிச்சத்தை கெல்லாம் வேறு இனங்களுக்கு சிலவு செய்யாமல் புராதனபாடல் கேட்கிறவர்களுக்குள்ள ஆலயங்களுக்கு பழைய பார்த்த புராதனத்தாரணம் செய்து வரவேண்டுமெயல்வது வேறு விதமாக எந்த இனங்களுக்கும் சிலவிடக் கூடாது என்பதைக் கூறவிரும்புகிறேன். அதேசமயத்தில் தர்ம ஸ்தாபனத்திற்கு கொடுக்கப்பட்ட பொருள் போன்றவைகளைத் தவிர வேறு இனங்களுக்கு சிலவு செய்யாமல் அந்த ஸ்தாபனத்தா எந்த இனத்திற்காக ஒதுக்கினாலோ அந்தே இனத்திற்கே அதை சிலவு செய்யும்படி ஒரு ஏற்பாடு செய்யவேண்டும். அதனுடைய வருவாய், மூலதனத்தையோ வேறு இனங்களுக்கு சிலவு செய்யாமல் பாதுகாப்பளிக்க வேண்டும். இப்பொழுது இருக்கும் ஆலயங்களில் எவ்வளவோ கல்வெட்டுகளிருக்கின்றன. கல்வெட்டுகள் புரிந்த இராஜ இராஜேஸ்வரன் என்னுயிரம் என்ற ஒரு இடத்தில் தென் ஆற்காட்டில் ஒரு சீராமத்தில் ஒரு காலத்தில் அதாவது 1048 கி.பி.-யில் பெரிய கலாசாலை வைக்கப்பட்டு பல சாஸ்திர விஷயங்கள் யெல்லாம் அங்கே போதிக்கப்பட்டதாக நம்முடைய கல்வெட்டுகளிலிருக்கின்றன. திருப்பனந்தாளில் இராஜ இராஜேஸ்வரன் 1067 கி.பி.-யில் ஒரு தர்மம் ஏற்படுத்தியும் வைத்துக் கல்வெட்டு வைத்தாலும் அதை பராமரித்து வந்ததாகவும் கல்வெட்டுகளிலிருந்து தெரியவருகிறது. 1121 கி.பி.-யில் திருவாரூரில் வைத்துக் கல்வெட்டு வைத்து அதை ஆராய்க்குக்கு போதிக்கப்பட்டதாக கல்வெட்டுகளில்

"அதே சமயத்தில் பல தர்ம ஸ்தாபனங்களிலுள்ளவர்கள் இப்பொழுது சயநல முறைகளில் புகுந்தகொண்டிருக்கிறார்கள். அவர்கள் சர்க்காருக்கு எடுத்துத்தேவண்டிய கிஸ்தி முதுலியவைகள் செலுத்தாமல் அப்படியே விட்டுவிட்டு அதை சர்க்கார் தங்களுடைய கிஸ்திக்காக எடுத்திருக்கொண்டுவரும்போது செல்வாக்குள்ளவர்கள் தங்களுடைய ஆட்சி வைத்து அந்த சொத்துக்களை தாங்களே எடுத்துக் கொண்டுக்கொண்டிருக்கிறார்கள். அப்படி எடுத்துக்கொண்டு வந்த பிறகு எதிர் காலத்தில் தங்களுடைய பெயருக்கு மாற்றிக்கொண்டுமிருக்கிறார்கள். ஆகையால் இந்த மாதிரியான சயநலக்காரர்கள் இன்னும் சொத்துக்களை கைப்பற்றும்விருக்கும்படியாக பாதுகாப்பு அளிக்க சட்டத்தில் பாதுகாப்பு செய்யவேண்டுமென்ற விஷயத்தை நான் சுட்டிக்காட்ட விரும்புகிறேன்.

"இன்னும் பார்த்தால் இப்பொழுது இருக்கும் அதிகாரிகளில் பலர் தங்களுடைய உத்யோகம் இந்த சட்டத்தால் போய்விடும் என்று பல நாட்களாக முறையிட்டுக்கொண்டிருக்கிறார்கள். இந்த சட்ட சபைக்கு நான் வரும் போது கூட ரயிலில் ஒரு சில உத்யோகஸ்தர்கள் என்னிடம் வந்து தங்களுடைய உத்யோகம் போகாமல் தங்களுக்கு பாதுகாப்பு அளிக்க வேண்டுமென்று கேட்டுக்கொண்டார்கள். தான் எவ்வளவோ இந்த தர்ம ஸ்தாபனத்திற்கு பாதுகாப்பு கொடுப்பதற்கு எடுத்துக்கொண்டு வந்ததால் தனக்கு ஒன்றும் நேரிடாமல் தன்னை பரிபாலிக்கவேண்டுமென்று சொல்லிக்கொண்டு இருந்தி போய்விட்டார். அவர் இறங்கிப்போன ஓர் நிமிஷத்திற்கெல்லாம் அதே Compartment-ல் உட்கார்ந்திருந்த இன்னொரு நபர் வந்து என்னிடம் சொல்லுகிறார், அந்த ஆசாமி தங்கனிடத்தில் இப்பொழுது சொன்னை வார்த்தைகளை எடுத்துக்கொள்ளக்கூடாது என்றும் தன்னுடைய அடுத்த Compartment-க்கு வந்தால் அவர் வைத்து விட்டுப்போகச் சிகரெட் முதலிய லாகிரி வஸ்துக்கள் அப்படியே அங்கே இருக்கிறது நான் காண்பிக்கிறேன் என்றும் சொன்னார். இன்னும் அவருடைய ஹீட்டிற்கு காய்களிகள் போகிறது என்றும், ஸ்கூம் வாங்குகிறார் என்றும் சொன்னார். ஆகையால் நல்லவர்களாகவும் யோக்கியமுள்ளவர்களாகவும் ஸ்தாயிதர்களில் இப்பொழுதுந்தால் அவர்களையே நியமிக்கப்படவேண்டும் மென்றும் சொல்லியபடுகிறது. ஆகையால் அரசாங்கம் எதிர் காலத்தில் இதற்கு நியமிக்கப்படுகிறவர்களை தகுதியுள்ளவர்களாகவும் யோக்கியமுள்ளவர்களாகவும் ஆலயங்களில் பொறுப்புள்ளவர்களாகவும் நியமிக்க வேண்டுமென்று சுட்டிக்காட்ட விரும்புகிறேன். இவைகளுக்கெல்லாம் பாதுகாப்பு அளித்து சட்டத்தை அவசியமானபடி மாற்றி முக்யமாக அப்புவறுதல்கள் இல்லாமல் செய்யவேண்டும். அப்படிக்கொண்டுவந்தால் எந்தவிதமான ஆட்சேபமும் ஏற்படாது. இப்பொழுது இருப்பவர்களை வைத்துக்கொண்டாலும் தேர்ச்சி பெற்றவர்கள் வந்தவுடன் அவர்களை நியமித்துவிட்டு இவர்களை தாட்சணியமில்லாமல் பரிசீலிப்பெற்றுவரும்படி நியமிக்கவேண்டும். இந்த நிர்வாகத்தில் தேர்ச்சி பெற்றவர்கள் கைப்பதால் அவர்கள் உட்கார் நியமிக்கவேண்டும். இது விஷயங்கள் யெல்லாருக்கு அமிட்டி அளிக்கின்றனவர்களும் கனம் பேர்பார் இராஜேஸ்வரன் அவர்களுக்கு நன்றி தெரிவித்துக்கொள்கிறேன்.

செய்யக்கூடியவர்களாக இருக்கவேண்டும். சங்கரர் ஹிமயம் முதல் கன்யகுமரி வரையில் சென்று உபநிஷத் கீதை முதலியவைகளை பிரசாரம்செய்து மதத்தை ஆதரித்து வந்தார்கள். மதப் பிரசாரம் செய்யக்கூடியவர்களை நியமிக்க வேண்டுமெய்யல்லாது மதப்பற்றில்லாதவர்களை நியமிக்கவே கூடாது. இப்பொழுது மதத்திற்கு எதிர்ப்பு இருக்கிறது. இதற்கெல்லாம் காரணம் இப்பொழுது பிரசாரம் இல்லாதததான் முக்கியமான காரணம். சங்கரர் மதத்தை பரப்புவதற்கு ஹிமயம் சென்று அங்கங்கே மடங்களை ஸ்தாபிதம் செய்தார்கள். துவாரகையில் ஸ்தாபிதம் செய்தார். அங்கங்கே உபநிஷத்களையும் கீதையையும் பிரசாரம் செய்து வந்தார். அப்படிப்பட்ட காரியத்தை செய்தால்தான் அரசாங்கம் இதை எடுத்துக் கொண்டதற்கு பெருமை இருக்குமே யொழிய இப்பொழுது இருக்கும் நிலைமையில் இதை விட்டுவிட்டால் இன்னும் சீர் கேடான நிலைமைக்கு வந்து மேலேசொன்ன ஊழல்களும் வந்துவிடும். அந்தவிதம் வராமல் இந்த சட்டத்தில் பாதுகாப்பு அளிக்கவேண்டுமென்பது அவசியம் என்பதைச் சுட்டிக்காட்ட விரும்புகிறேன். அரசாங்கம் இதை எடுத்துக்கொண்டு சீர்திருத்தம் செய்து நல்ல முறைக்குக் கொண்டுவருவதாக இருந்தால் இந்த சட்டத்தினால் தப்பு இல்லை. தர்மபரிபாலனம் சரியாக நடக்கவேண்டும் என்பதுதான் அரசாங்கத்தினுடைய நோக்கம். சரியாக நடத்தினால் எந்தவிதமான ஆட்சேபனையுமில்லை. சரியாக நடக்காததை சீர்திருத்தம்செய்வது என்பதுதான் இன்றைய பிரச்சனை. தர்மம் சரியாக நடக்காததை கடவுள் சீர்திருத்தம் செய்யார். சரியாக நடத்தவதை மனித ரூபத்தில்தான் செய்யலாம். இவைகளை யெல்லாம் எடுத்துக் கொண்டு சீர்திருத்தம்முறையில் செய்யவேண்டுமெய்யல்லாது சீர்கேடானமுறையில் நடத்தினால் குளிக்கப்போய் சேறு பூசிக் கொண்டதைப்போலாகும். அதற்கு எடுத்துக் கொள்ளாமலேயே இருக்கலாம். இது ஒரு முக்கியமான வேலை. ஆகையால் பொறுகருக் கமிட்டி யாருக்கு ஒரு மகத்தான பொறுப்பு இருக்கிறது. நம் நாட்டில் சரியாக நடக்காத காரியத்தை சரியாக நடத்துவது என்ற காரியத்தைச் செய்யப் போகிற இந்த விஷயத்தில் பூர்ணகவனம் செலுத்தி நல்ல முறையில் எதிர்காலத்தில் நடக்கும்படியாகச்செய்ய முன்வருவார்கள் என்று நான் அவர்களைக் கேட்டுக்கொண்டு கனம் டாக்டர் இராஜன் கொண்டுவந்த இந்த பிரேரணையை முழுமனதுடன் ஆதரிக்கிறேன்.

SRI N. S. VARADACHARI:—“Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am glad that the motion moved by the Hon. Minister who introduced the Bill has evoked a free and frank discussion. At the outset let me say that I cannot honestly accept the motion, as its acceptance would mean the acceptance of the principles on which this Bill is framed. I wholeheartedly support the amendment that the Bill be circulated for eliciting public opinion. The fundamental principles of this Bill are entirely opposed to the democratic traditions that we ought to inaugurate in this country. It is said that religion is in danger. I am sorry the Hon. Minister raised this cry. Religion has never been in danger in this country for centuries and centuries past and will never be in danger despite the frantic efforts of the most irreligious people. It may be that a teaching might have come from this denomination or that denomination. But the sum total of all the teachings that have been left behind is sustaining us in the proud position in which we are. I do not object to control over religious institutions, and I shall deal with charitable institutions a little later. It should not be understood that those who want this Bill to be circulated for eliciting public opinion are opposed to any kind of control over religious institutions. There is a law already which in effect means partial control over the secular administration of every religious institution in the land. You say that from experience you find that that law is defective in certain respects. If that is so, why do you move from control to administration? Why not strengthen that control, why not correct the errors that have crept in, and why not put better personnel in charge of that control which you inaugurated years ago? If the working of the Hindu Religious Endowments Board does not satisfy you, there is no use in merely provincializing the service. You must find out in what respects the authority of the Board is ineffective, what errors have crept into the administration by that Board and then seek to correct them. There is a world of difference between control and administration, and this was very ably illustrated by my hon. Friend, Mr. T. Viswanatham, the other day. If you give me eight ounces of rice and ask me to manage my kitchen within that ration, it is control. But if you go further and say that you will prepare food for me within those eight ounces, it is management. There is a vital difference between these two positions and I would ask the Government to ponder over and find out for themselves whether this kind of taking over the administration of temples and charitable institutions is a matter of practical wisdom. Sir, I am not going to argue the legal aspect of this Bill. It is for lawyers to agree or to differ. The present Advocate-General of Madras might be in a position to say that this Bill does not conflict with the so-called fundamental rights already enacted in the Constitution Bill now under consideration by the Constituent Assembly at Delhi. But there may be other lawyers, other judges, and other eminent jurists who might take a different view. It is best to refer the matter to the Advocate-General of the Government of India, if the Government think it fit to do so. Let them take the highest legal opinion in the matter. The Government should not be satisfied merely with the legal opinion obtained from one source only, when they find themselves in conflict with the Constitution Act of this country. In the reference to public opinion, you may include judges of eminence. You may also ask for other opinion from constitutional lawyers as to how far this Bill would be in consonance or not, with the fundamental rights envisaged in the new Constitution. Even if the constitution in its entirety has not become law, we are morally bound to observe every one of the provisions of the fundamental rights already enacted at Delhi. If there is the slightest doubt in the matter, Government would do well to hesitate, and to go a little bit slower, rather than take a leap in the dark. I would suggest, that if they cannot wait until they refer the matter to eminent jurists all over the country and obtain their opinion, there are several retired judges in this Province who might be asked to give their opinions on its legal aspect. I do not wish to examine this Bill from the legal or constitutional aspect of it, because that has been very ably put before the House by my hon. Friend on the other side, Mr. A. Vaidyanatha Ayyar, but I would look at it from the point of view of practical wisdom. Sir, it was said almost in derision by the Hon. Dr. T. S. S. Rajan that the two denominations in a community quarrelled with each other and went to the highest court of law presided over by an Englishman. The Hon. Dr. Rajan ought to know, and I am sure, he knows it, that if the law of the land then said that these appeals would be heard only in India and that no appeals would be allowed to go to the Privy Council, no denomination or sect, however hostile the feelings between them might be, would have gone to that court. What is the object of going to a court? It is to get a judicial examination of any question by an impartial and disinterested judge. The judge does not know the caste or the community of the parties to the dispute and he decides the dispute in the most impersonal manner possible. May I remind my hon. Friend Dr. Rajan that in the most crucial moment in the history of our country, Mahatma Gandhi agreed to refer a dispute to Sir Maurice Gwyer, who was then the Chief Justice of the Federal Court, although he was an alien to this country, the object being that he was a person, who, apart from all our quarrels, would be expected to bring to bear upon that question a judicial mind. Therefore there is nothing wrong in adopting a procedure like that.

"In fact, the best administration of temples is assured by a system in which you keep control and leave the initiative and the enterprise of management to the skill of the local people. You have never done that up till now. That is my charge against the present Hindu Religious Endowments Board. Instead of controlling you are proceeding to nationalize Devasthanams, and the result is you are incurring losses. Sir, I am using a very familiar phrase in explaining these things. There is a peculiar order of things with this Government. They give priority in the matter of nationalization to the spending departments; and are very slow and hesitant in nationalizing departments where they could get ample revenues which would fill the coffers of the State. What is the hurry in provincializing the Hindu Religious Endowments Board. When the question of the nationalization of the bus transport was discussed in this House, a lot of objections were raised by members, although it is an income earning department. Here we are exactly reversing the order of things. The Government do not know which items should be given priority in the matter of nationalization. Where are you going to find the money to administer these religious endowments after this Bill is passed? That department is going to claim innumerable number of officers, like Commissioners, Deputy Commissioners, Assistant Commissioners, etc., and numerous other subordinate officers belonging to that hierarchy. What will be the result? There will be no incentive in the local people to chastise wrong trustees and nobody will come forward to complain even about very bad trustees. Therefore the best system of administration for these temples and religious institutions is somewhat on the model of local boards and panchayats, using, to the maximum extent possible, local people and their initiative. But then you will say that they will be as defective as the local boards and panchayats. On that score, you are not scrapping all the local boards and centralizing all power in the Treasury Bench.

"Further I submit that there must be some things which ought to be done by the people themselves. If they cannot do it efficiently elsewhere, let them at least keep a vigilant watch over these charitable and religious institutions. What does this Bill propose to lay down as policy? The Commissioners are the highest authority and their orders will be final even in respect of the determination of the intentions of the donors and founders of the endowments. I thought that Government will hesitate on such matters. There is nothing that keeps this Government away from the grip of these institutions, but there are enough provisions in it to grasp power of any kind and to extend patronage as they like. These, I say, are the fundamental objections to the principles of this Bill.

"Now, Sir, take for example how these charitable and other endowments are administered in England, or even in the Native States in our own country, like Travancore or Mysore or some other States. There you will find ample room for initiative and expansion by the local people to administer and control them. That State is best governed which is governed the least. We are hurrying up legislation after legislation, Bill after Bill and passing laws after laws, even without understanding the meaning or implication of such measures. The Hon. Dr. Rajan referred for instance to the Tirupati Devasthanam and the zamin lands in its possession to-day. He conveniently forgot that it was the Government at that time who asked that its surplus money should be invested in the purchase of that zamindari estate. It was not left to the option of the trustees. They gave permission to the trustees to do so and they did. What is the position to-day? The zamindari will be forfeited to the Government, subject of course to payment of some compensation, and only charitable inams are exempted from the operation of that measure. Is it the fault of God that things have been carried in this manner? I raised this very question at the time of the passing of the Zamindari Abolition Bill and no definite answer was given to it. The Hon. Dr. Rajan was not present in the House then and the Hon. Minister for Revenue conveniently answered 'We do not mean to apply this provision to the zamindaris but only to petty inam villages.'

"Sir, let me tell you that one effect of all that the Government are doing is this, which they have not noticed. The charitable impulses of the people will be dried up as a result of this measure. The Government will be regarded as the richest magnate in the country who can afford to spend any amount of money on temples. You know the fate of many temples in this Province already. How many temple properties have been sold in auction to realize some of the contributions to the Hindu Religious Endowments Board? I say that more temples have gone to ruin by such contributions than by the neglect of the authorities in charge of the temples. Hereafter nobody will agree to that principle of contribution. The Government will have to spend for everything themselves. If this Bill is passed into law. Is that a fair position that you can take up consistently with your finances? This Bill would throw heavier and heavier responsibilities on the shoulders of the Government, and these institutions will become a crushing burden on Government resources ultimately. Therefore my advice is that you should proceed with this Bill slowly, examine all the implications from the practical point of view and take decision also on its constitutional aspect, not depending upon the advice of one competent authority alone, but upon the cumulative wisdom of several competent authorities.

"Sir, my hon. Friend, Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar, used the word strangle-hold. He described this Bill as a strangle-hold over these institutions. I do not wish to use that word, but we know what sort of people you are going to put in charge of these institutions after they are taken over by Government. You have asked, 'what is the public opinion against this Bill?' 'What is the public opinion in favour of this Bill?' I ask. You have never given time for the public to examine this question as a whole."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Let not the hon. Member use the word 'you' as it means that the Chair has not given time for the public to examine this Bill."

SRI N. S. VARADACHARI:—"Sir, the Hon. Speaker is supposed to be outside this House and to only direct the House. What I have said does not mean that he has not given time. My reference is only to the Government. People outside are asking that all these implications should be fully examined. Are you going to dry up the wells of public and private charity by passing a measure of this sort? Are you going to close the door against charitable impulses of the people in the country? You may not intend it, but that will be one immediate effect of this Bill, which is meant not to control but to manage these charitable and religious institutions. Sir, the Hon. Dr. Rajan said that he was a devout Vaishnavite. I may not claim to be as devout as he is. But in my worship at Tirupati I visit that temple far more frequently than do the members of that wonderful Board which manage the affairs of that institution. (Interruption.) It is my own place, Mr. Bapineedu, even as Eluru is yours. Please do not interrupt me by such wrong statements. Who are the members of the Board and how do they function? I shall tell you, Sir. They come by the last train before the meeting takes place. They sit in the Committee Room, as it is called. The meeting is said to start at 10 o'clock. Cars are sent for them and they generally come at 10 and they transact business as it is done in the directorate of a public company. I grant it that they should not conduct endless discussion over every little subject. But you must know what happens. They will be higgling and haggling over this appointment and that appointment and finally all big questions—like the renovation of the temple and looking after the temple and the proper management of the properties—take a low place in the agenda. Then they go away in the evening suddenly. The trains are so conveniently arranged that they leave by the Bombay Express which leaves Renigunta at 6 o'clock and reach their places the next morning. I ask

"Is that a fair way of administering things? Suppose instead of this you had a panchayat at Tirupati of the learned people there, would it not be better? It is not as if character is wanting in Tirupati and is sequestered in the benches of this House. There is any amount of character available outside. We never make use of it. Don't make use of them for administration. Recruit your engineers as you like, recruit your professors as you like though that is the wrong way of going about the business. But why do you recruit these people merely on the ground of patronage? Have they any interest in the matter? Have they any local feeling in the matter? This is an institution not created by the Hon. Minister, but by the Great Ramanuja centuries ago. What a fine idea those old people had of religious reform and of secular administration! There must be a balance in all these things even as we want balanced food. In the administration of temples there must be a balance between sentiment and power; good feeling on the one hand and initiative on the other. What is fit for private enterprise and what is fit for administration by private people should never be sought to be vested in the Government of the day. That is my fundamental objection to the Bill and that is why I support the proposal that it be referred for public opinion. If the Government do not refer it for public opinion then they get committed to the substance of the Bill and afterwards it would look awkward to get over it. Take the struggle of the inamdars. At first the Government did not understand it. Why did they exempt them at the end, consulted the higher authorities so many times and took the mischief out of the Bill? It was because at first they did not examine all the implications."

"Sir, at another place we suggested that this Bill might be subject to a complete examination by a committee. It was not agreed to. What is this obstinacy in not agreeing to a complete examination of all the details of the Bill before the principles are accepted and the Bill is laid before a Joint Select Committee? It is said for instance that vested interests will rise and oppose every measure of reform. But they are about to create the biggest vested interest in the country, namely, the Government of the day being in charge of all private religious and charitable endowments. There are other Acts and there are other provisions and laws which give them enough powers to control. If the powers are not sufficient let them take more power, but why do they want their management? Is it their object to stifle all charitable endowments in future? Will anybody contribute anything hereafter when they come to know that the Government have taken over everything and that it is the duty of the Government to find funds to run particular institutions. Sir, prices may be low or prices may be high. The cost of running the administration may become top-heavy during a period of high prices but still private endowments somehow managed on and people collected together and did something because there was the community sense about the whole people which restored life to the endowment. But when Government takes it over, would they really add to every endowment at a time of high prices when the endowment itself falls very much short of needs. They should think about all these things. I am not examining article by article, Sir. It is not my function. I say the foundation of the whole Bill is wrong. Please do not put your house on a cracked foundation. Think well before you build on it.

"Sir, there was a reference to suffering humanity. I know, Sir, that the Hon. Dr. Rajan has gone and will be going always to the succour of suffering humanity. But he lives in the emotional paradise of purified religion. I am afraid with the over-centralization that becomes the important feature of the Bill, which takes away initiative of the common man and with the apprehension well founded in my mind, that it might well dry up all charitable impulses in the country, we will sooner or later be in the dark corners of a decadent religion and the wearing away of fine sentiments and cultural understanding. Are we going to improve the centres of religion by a change over from control to management? Please for Heaven's sake do not do it.

"The Hon. Minister finally asked: 'Where is public opinion against this Bill.' My answer to that is there is no public opinion either in favour of the Bill. If at all there is some opinion forcibly expressed against the principles of this Bill which leads from control to administration, it has been expressed by us the representatives of the people. There I may remind Mr. Kosalram that we have consulted our constituencies and we have known for ourselves that the public are certainly opposed to the Bill, at least a large part of the public. But there may be supporters for this Bill also. I do not say that we should thrash out all details in public. But what is the reference they have made. Have the Congress committees clearly expressed themselves on this Bill? Was it part of your election manifesto? Nothing of the kind. Of course everything cannot come into the election manifesto as an item. That is why, whatever is not part of that and whatever is opposed even by a small number of people,—it may be for the moment that the opposition is smaller than the support—must be given the consideration it deserves. Sir, reference to public opinion does not mean that you throw away the Bill. But it does mean that there is a considerable volume of opinion in the country which goes against the fundamental change involved in this Bill from control to direct administration. I do not want that on every section of the Bill the public should express an opinion. It is not usual. And I do not say that it should take very long. It may be done within a few months, even 2 months. You may ask every body to submit his opinion on this. But how is public opinion to be ascertained. Have you any definite practical idea that would satisfy the meaning of 'public opinion'? I mean public opinion to be the opinion of the common people which could be ascertained through the organisation which they have formed. The opinions of jurists, and the judges who are available to place facts to consult, should be ascertained regarding the constitutional aspects of the Bill. Then there is the enlightened volume of opinion which can examine the details of the Bill and codify its practical wisdom. Now, Sir, that is what I mean by reference of the Bill to public opinion. It is not shelving the Bill. It is not as if we do not want control over endowments or even charitable endowments to a little extent. But we want that the people should be left to themselves to manage by local initiative. The Government can guard and chastise but they should not do anything to make it all their own. The result will be they will lose the power of chastisement and the wild routine that will grow will be a convenient cover for corruption. If you want to get rid of fraud and corruption in most of these institutions the surest way to do it is to set up local committees composed of respectable men who could advise on these matters. It is not as if you should listen to every story that is said about the matadhipathis and others. Mr. Vedaratnam Pillai referred to certain people in the Tanjore district as bad people. But there are also many good people. And amongst us we have bad people also. I have often been accused as a very bad man, very obstinate and sometimes obstinate to the point of being chastised. I say it is good to be so, because it is only then that you draw public opinion clearly and forcibly and in all its intensity so that you may see what you are doing and so that you may realise the risks in the leap that you are taking. You have not thought about its consequences. You have not analysed the cost that the future generations may be forced to bear because of this punishment you inflict on them. I say punishment (Gong). I will take only five minutes more, Sir. If local initiative is left to itself and if you administer these things through some local board inefficiently constituted I say there will be ample room for proper management. Do you think that there is no chastisement for bad trustees these days? Are all the religious heads free to go about as they like. There are some people like that I admit. But such people will have less and less following. That is the way the law operates. Even a bad tree wears off slowly. First its leaves fall off and then its roots perish. What you do is to wait for the natural process of deterioration but slow chastisement which operates more surely in the case of religious institutions than in the case of others. In England have they nationalised all religious institutions? The Archbishop is appointed on the advice of the Prime Minister by the King. All the churches in the country count and have wholesome moral influence and no Archbishop will be appointed even by such a high authority as the King on the advice of the Prime Minister who clearly does not command the confidence of the various branches of the Church. Churches have been disestablished long ago, but still are all the properties of churches and charitable endowments taken over in England—a civilized country and a country where democratic administration truly prevails whatever Englishmen may have done in India. They do things honestly and with good care. Let us also take good care in what we do. I say up the first thing first. We saw the other day the food policy being criticized very severely in the Central Assembly. That is the urgent problem now. I do not now propose to deal with it. That is the one know, Sir, that the Ramana Maharishi Ashramam does not come under the purview of the Religious Endowments Act? Why, Sir? When there is a rule that all mutts and temples must be brought under the purview of the Religious Endowments Act, why this mutt alone should be left out? (Interruption by Sri R. V. Swaminathan.) It is not now; when you do so you can say so. The Treasury Bench is also having our esteemed friend, Mr. Avinashilingam Chettiyar, who happens to be a devotee of the great soul, Ramakrishna Paramahansa. He has started institutions in his (Sri Ramakrishna's) name. I do not know whether the Ramakrishna Ashram comes under the purview of the Endowments Act. Because the Ramakrishna Mission has its headquarters in Bengal the provisions of the Hindu Religious Endowments Act would not touch them. These are all matters which we have to look into. I shudder to think that all the mutts are sought to be brought under the purview of this new legislation. I know, as a matter of fact, that the officers administering the Endowments Act are not the people to administer mutts. You all know, Sir, that in the Nilgiris we have a mutt, and I am a humble student of that mutt. At the time when the Religious Endowments Commissioner came to the mutt without notice, he wanted to see the Guru, i.e., the head of the mutt. Unfortunately, it was 9 o'clock when the Guru was meditating. His disciples could not approach him then, because in our religion meditation is the greatest thing. What happened then? The officer returned and sent a notice saying: 'why not this mutt be notified for inclusion under the Act?'. This is the sort of people we are having. What more we are going to have when the new Bill becomes an Act? What will be the sort of people that we will have to control these religious charities and endowments? This point must receive greater consideration by the select committee which the Hon. Minister proposes to set up."

III.—GOVERNMENT BILLS.

* SRI V. I. MUNISWAMI PILLAY:—“ Sir, the chief reason why I feel that mutts are to be exempted from the provisions of this Bill is that they have got their own history behind them. It was on the lives of the great personages who were practising religion as set up by our ancestors that these mutts have been created in order to enable others to have an insight into the religion that has been practised by them. That being the case, it is but proper that they should be left out of the purview of this Bill. It is also known, Sir, that the great Upanishads, Brahma Sutra and Patanjali Yoga Sutra were imparted by the great rishis to their disciples and these have come to the knowledge of the world. So, Sir, it is the service rendered by some of the great sages in the past that has given rise to the establishment of these mutts. Apart from this, Sir, these mutts have not got endowments as in the case of temples. Either on account of the love that the disciples had for the guru or for the service rendered by him in the matter of giving religious education to disciples, the students and devotees made contributions which they called ‘guru kanikai’ to the rishis or heads of mutts and as such those contributions cannot be construed as endowments made to these mutts.

“ Secondly, Sir, I do not think that the various heads of mutts in this Province have been consulted regarding the efficacy of the provisions of the Bill that is before the Assembly. Moreover, it will be dangerous if the possessions in the hands of the gurus or heads of mutts and to what use they have to be put, are to be brought within the purview of this enactment.

“ Now, Sir, let us examine some of the provisions of the Bill. For instance, taking clause 5 dealing with definitions, sub-clause (8) defines ‘mutts’ as meaning ‘an institution for the promotion of the Hindu religion, presided over by a person whose duty it is to engage himself in imparting religious instruction or rendering spiritual service to a body of disciples or who exercises or claims to exercise spiritual headship over such a body and includes places of religious worship or instruction which are appurtenant to the institution.’ So, Sir, this definition further strengthens my arguments that mutts are not like ordinary temples but that they have come into existence for some special reason.

“ Again, when we come to sub-clause (12) of clause 5 it says: ‘religious endowment’ or ‘endowment’ means all property belonging to or given or endowed for the support of mutts or temples

7th February 1949] [Sri V. I. Muniswami Pillay]

... I do not agree that whatever is given to the head of a mutt can be construed as an endowment belonging to the mutt. It may be the personal property of certain heads of mutts who have come forward to give religious instruction to those who seek it.

“ Now, ‘religious institution’ is defined in sub-clause (13) of the same clause as meaning ‘a mutt, a temple or a specific endowment’. How can a specific endowment, though it has been described as such, become a religious institution? I am unable to understand the implication of the definition of a religious institution.

“ Sir, sub-clauses (13) and (14) of the main clause 5 are so ambiguous that it will not be possible to work up the provisions of this Bill with a definition contained therein which requires very careful examination and recasting.

“ Sir, in Chapter II, clause 6, it is said that in the matter of managing these mutts, temples, etc., the Government or the Hon. Minister who proposed this Bill, proposes to have the provincialization of the services. Sir, before this Government came into existence when the Advisers’ regime was functioning in the Province and previous to it also we had, what we call, the Ecclesiastical department. That department was abolished because there was no necessity. But, now, I feel that the present Government envisages to bring in a department similar to that description which, I do not think, will be in the fitness of things to-day. If the Government is anxious to have provincialization of these services, they must create, I may say, the pre-requisite for it and that is the creation of a college or institution where people who are willing to serve in the betterment of these mutts or temples must be given training as to the way they must act and also manage these institutions. We know, for instance, in the Himalayas under the Ramakrishna Mission, there are such institutions at Mayavathi and Almora where those people who are willing to take service under the Ashram, are given training and they themselves have to undergo concentration and other things for more than ten years and then, they are drafted to the various institutions to conduct these mutts. So, I feel that if the Government are anxious to preserve the sanctity of these mutts and other religious institutions, the pre-requisite is that they must start an institution whereby all these people can be given training so that they can be fit to keep these places sacred and also see that the philosophic side of Hinduism does not lose its value.

“ Now, Sir, we come to clause 15 in Chapter IV. It is said: ‘It shall be the duty of the Commissioner to see to the proper management of the secular affairs of religious institutions ...’ I do not understand the Commissioner supervising the secular or the spiritual side of a mutt. It will be always mixed up and confusing and greater confusion will be made if these people are allowed to interfere either with the secular side or the spiritual side of the religious institutions. So, this point also has to be examined and proper amendments made so that the affairs of temples or mutts need not suffer.

"In clause 16, it is said that 'if any such officer is resisted in the exercise of such power or discharge of such duty, the magistrate having jurisdiction shall, on a written requisition from such officer, direct any police officer not below the rank of Sub-Inspector to render such help as may be necessary to enable the officer to exercise such power or discharge such duty.' Sir, are we to allow the police to interfere in the affairs of religion? It is most unfair that we should call on the police to tackle either the person or any other thing in a religious institution. I think it is highly injurious to the well-being of any temple if this clause is allowed to stand as it is.

"Again, Sir, clause 39 drives people or those people who are in charge of religious institutions, to rush to a court if there is a difference of opinion. This very Bill also creates scope for litigation which you must avoid with all the force that this Assembly can command. If it is the desire of the Government to rectify the things in the temples and mutts, I feel, Sir, that the Select Committee and the Hon. Minister who is in charge of this Bill must take into account some of the suggestions which I have just now made. Also, those mutts like the Ramanu Maharishi Ashram or the Ramakrishna Mission Ashram, must be left out from the scope of this Bill. If it is not possible, at least all those mutts which are in receipt of a revenue of less than two thousand rupees per annum must be left out from the scope of this Bill.

"Again, in the matter of administering these mutts and temples, besides the officials which this Bill proposes to have, I strongly feel that a Board representing people who have got a clear insight into the various philosophies of Hinduism and also such people who have had enough and more experience of administering big temples, should be set up so as to assist those officers contemplated in the present Bill. Further, in our Province there are only three mutts that have been created by the Harijan Saints. There is one Nandanar Mutt—of which you yourself know—named after the great devotee Nandan and there are Datchinamurthi Mutts both in Madras and in Nilgiris and these have come into existence due to the greatness of the heads of these mutts. These mutts also must be left untouched. So, in the interests of the philosophy of Hinduism which has given a greater life to the western world—a great western philosopher said, 'The religion of "Vedanta" is the solace of my life and the solace of my death'—I say, let us not kill this Hindu religion by tampering with it in this manner. With these few observations, I support the motion of the Hon. Minister to refer the Bill to a Select Committee and express the hope that my suggestions may be taken into account."

MR. SPEAKER :—"நீங்கள் ஒருவருடைய motive-ஐ question பண்ணக்கூடாது."

SRI R. V. SWAMINATHAN :—"ஆனால் நான் அறிந்தமட்டில் அவர்கள் பேசியதெல்லாம் அரசாங்கம் மதசம்பந்தமான காரியங்களில் தலைமிடக்கூடாது என்ற ஒரே காரணத்தைத்தான் திருப்பித் திருப்பி சொன்னார்கள். சட்டசபையில் மட்டுமல்ல, சட்டசபைக்கு வெளியே இந்த மசோதாவை எதிர்ப்பவர்களும் இத்தகைய காரணங்களையே சொல்லுகிறார்கள். இவைகளைக் கேட்டு காத சலித்துப்போய்விட்டது. இது மிகவும் பத்தாம் பசலிப் பேச்சாகவே இருக்கிறது. பதினேழாம் நூற்றாண்டில் இவ்வித காரணங்களை எடுத்துச் சொன்னால் பொருத்தமாக இருக்கலாம். இந்தக் காலத்தில் இத்தகைய காரணங்கள் கூறுவதை சகித்துக்கொண்டிருப்பது நமக்கு கஷ்டமாகவே இருக்கிறது. ஒரு காரணம் சொன்னார்கள். Constituent Assembly-ல் மதம் சம்பந்தமான ஒரு பிரிவு பரிசீலனையிலிருக்கிறது. அது முடிவு அடைவதற்குள் இங்கே இத்தகைய சட்டம் செய்யக்கூடாது என்றும் சொன்னார்கள். ஆனால் இந்திய பார்லிமெண்டில் பரிசீலிக்கப்பட்டுவருவது வெரும் Draft Constitution தான் என்பதும் அது இன்னும் சட்டமாக்கப்படவில்லை என்பதையும் மறந்துவிட்டே பேசுகிறார்கள். அது சட்டமாவதற்குள் இங்கே எவ்வித மசோதாவும் கொண்டுவரக்கூடாது என்று சொன்னால் அதை ஒப்புக்கொள்ள முடியாது. இப்பொழுது அங்கே Draft Constitution இந்திய பார்லிமெண்டில் விவாதத்தில்தான் இருக்கிறது. இவர்கள் கூறும் விதியானது வேறுவிதமாக திருத்தப்பட்டுவிடவும் எதுவிருக்கிறது. ஆகையால் நாம் இந்த மசோதாவை தைரியமாகக் கொண்டுவரலாம். இப்பொழுது இருக்கிற constitution பிரகாரம் நாம் இவ்வித சட்டம் செய்வதற்கு நமக்கு உரிமை இருக்கிறது. வார்ப்புகிற ஒரு சட்டத்தைப்பற்றி நாம் இப்பொழுது யோசிக்கவேண்டுமென்பதும் அதை எதிர்பார்த்து இப்பொழுது நாம் ஒன்றுமே செய்யக்கூடாது என்பதும் எனக்கு விளங்கவில்லை. Draft constitution-லுள்ள பிரிவுகளைக்கூட இங்குள்ள திறமைவாய்ந்த எக்ஸ்பர்ட்கள் சிலர் பரிசீலனைசெய்து தாராளமாக இந்த மசோதாவைக் கொண்டுவரலாம் என்று சொல்லுகிறார்கள். எனவே முன்னுக்குப் பின் முற்றான அபிப்பிராயம் தெரிவிக்கப்பட்டுள்ள ஒரு காரணத்திற்காக மிகவும் நியாயமான, நீதிவிளைவிக்கக்கூடிய ஒரு நல்ல மசோதாவை நிறுத்திவைக்கக்கூடாது என்றும் உடனே இது சட்டமாக்கப்படவேண்டுமென்றும் கருதுகிறேன்."

"அடுத்தபடியாக பொதுஜன அபிப்பிராயம் அறிவதற்காக பிரச்சிக்க வேண்டுமென்றுவெறு சொல்லுகிறார்கள். பொது ஜன அபிப்பிராயம் கிடைத்தபிறகுதான் நாம் இதைப்பற்றி யோசிக்கவேண்டுமென்ற ஆட்சேபணையைக் கிளப்புகிறார்கள். ஆனால் பொதுஜன அபிப்பிராயம் என்பது என்ன, எப்படி, என்பதைப் பார்க்கவேண்டும். இந்த சட்ட சபையில் உள்ள 215 அங்கத்தினர்களும் பொதுஜனங்களுடைய பிரதிநிதிகளில்லையா

என்று கேட்கிறேன்? நாம் லட்சக்கணக்கான வேட்டர்களால் தேர்ந்தெடுக்கப்பட்டு இங்கே வீற்றிருக்கிறோம். நாம் இப்பொழுது பொது ஜனங்களுடைய பிரதிநிதிகளாக இருந்துகொண்டிருக்கிறோம். பொது ஜன அபிப்பிராயத்தைத் தெரிவிக்கின்றோம். அவ்விதமிருக்கும்பொழுது எத்தனாக மறுபடியும் பொது ஜன அபிப்பிராயத்திற்குவிடவேண்டுமென்று கேட்கிறேன்? இந்த மசோதாவானது இன்று நேற்று வரவில்லை. இந்த மசோதா பல வருஷங்களாக பொது ஜனங்களுக்கு மத்தியிலிருக்கிறது. இதற்குமுன்பாக கனம் டாக்டர் இராஜன் அவர்கள் சென்ற 1937-ம் வடிகம் இராஜாஜி பிரதமராக இருந்தபோது Endowment இலாகா மந்திரியாக இருந்தபோது இந்த மசோதா நயமிக்கப்பட்டு பொது ஜனங்களிடத்தில் சமர்ப்பிக்கப்பட்டிருக்கிறது. பிறகு அந்த மந்திரி சபை இராஜினாமா செய்ததால் அதைக் கொண்டுமே முடியாமல் போய்விட்டது. ஆகையால் இந்த மசோதாவின் முக்கியமான கருத்துக்கள் பொதுஜனங்களுக்கு புதிதாக வந்தது அல்ல. பத்து வருஷங்களாகவே பொதுஜனங்களால் பரிசீலிக்கப்பட்டு வந்திருக்கிறது. அப்படி இருந்தபோதிலும்கூட மறுபடியும் இந்த மந்திரிசபை தேர்தலுக்கு நின்று பொதுஜனங்களிடத்தில் எராளமான வேட்டுகள் பெற்று இப்பொழுது இங்கே நிர்வாகத்தை நடத்திகொடுக்கிறது. அப்படி இந்த மசோதா கூடவே கூடாது என்றிருந்தால் பொதுஜனங்கள் மறுபடியும் நமக்கே வேட்டுகள் அளித்து நம்மை பிரதிநிதிகளாக தேர்ந்தெடுத்திருப்பார்களா என்று கேட்கிறேன். ஆகையால் மறுபடியும் இதை பொதுஜன அபிப்பிராயத்திற்கு விடவேண்டுமென்று சொல்வது எதற்கு என்று புரியவில்லை.

பரத்துடன் ஒரு பெரிய ஜமீந்தாரைப்போல் ரயிலில் நான் இருந்த வண்டியில் ஏறினார். அவரைப் பார்த்ததும் நான் உண்மையில் ரயிலில் பிரயாணம் செய்கின்றேனா அல்லது ஏதாவது சினிமாகாட்சி பார்த்துக்கொண்டிருக்கின்றேனா என்ற சந்தேகம் வந்தது. ஏனென்றால் அந்த வண்டியில் வந்து ஏறி எனக்கு முன்பாக உட்கார்ந்துகொண்டிருப்பவர்போன்ற ஒருவனு அதுவரு முன்னதாக நான் பார்த்த ஒரு சினிமாவில் கண்ட பண்டார சன்னதியோன்று இவர் காட்சியளித்தார். அவர் விசித்திரமான காட்சியளித்தார். காதில் வைரகுண்டலம், கழுத்தில் வைரமாலை, விரல்களில் தங்கவெணை ஜோலிக்கும் மிகப் பெரிய வைர மோதிரங்கள், ஜரிகை, பட்டினலான காலி ஆடை இத்தகைய ஆடம்பரத்துடன் காட்சியளித்தார். அவர் அணிந்திருந்த ஆடையாபரணங்கள் சுமார் லட்சம் ரூபாய் மதிப்பிருக்கும். சகலத்தையும் தூரத்து சன்னியாசம் பூண்ட, மதம் தெய்வம் முதலியவற்றிற்கு தொண்டு செய்ய தன்னை அற்பணித்த பண்டார சன்னதிகளுக்கு மக்களின் நன்மையே தன்னுடைய நன்மை என்று கருதுகிறவருக்கு அதிலும் ஒரு சந்தியாசிக்கு இவ்வளவு மதிப்புள்ள ஆடையாபரணம் எதற்கு என்று கேட்கிறேன்? இந்த பணம் யாரால் வந்தது? இவர்களுடைய தகப்பனார் பாட்டனார் வைத்த சொத்தா? இவ்விதம் ஆடம்பர வாழ்க்கை நடத்த? தர்மகர்த்தாக்கள் தர்மகாரியத்திற்குக் கொடுத்த சொத்தை இவர்கள் இவ்விதம் சுகபோகம் அனுபவிப்பதா என்று கேட்கிறேன். இந்தவிதமாக துர்விநியோகம் செய்கிறவர்களை தடைசெய்ய ஒரு சட்டம் வேண்டாமா என்று கேட்கிறேன். இவ்விதம் அக்ரமம் செய்கிறவர்களை தடைசெய்வதற்குத்தான் இந்த மசோதா கொண்டுவரப்பட்டிருக்கிறது. நாம் இந்தவிதமான அநியாயத்தையும் அக்ரமத்தையும் தடுக்காமல் எதற்காக அரசாங்கம் நடத்துவது? இவைகளை யெல்லாம் தடுக்காமலிருந்தால் இப்பொழுது நடப்பது பொது ஜன அரசாங்கம் என்று சொல்ல முடியுமா? மடங்களுக்கும் ஸ்தாபனங்களுக்கும் லட்சக் கணக்காக வருமானம் வந்துகொண்டிருக்கிறது. அதை அவர்கள் என்ன செய்கிறார்கள். மத அபிவிருத்திக்காக அவர் என்ன செய்திருக்கிறார்கள் என்று கேட்கிறேன்? மடாதிபதிகள் தங்களுடைய சுகவாழ்க்கைக்குதான் சிலவுசெய்து வருகிறார்களே யொழிய மத அபிவிருத்திக்காக சிலவு செய்யவே இல்லை. இந்நாட்டில் கிருஸ்தவ மிஷினரிகள் தங்களுடைய மதத்தை அபிவிருத்தி செய்வதற்கு எவ்வளவு பணம் சிலவு செய்துவருகிறார்கள் என்பதை நாம் பார்க்கின்றோம். அதனால் அவர்களுடைய மதம் எவ்வளவு தூரம் இந்த நாட்டில் பரவி இருக்கிறது என்பதையும் நாம் அறிவோம். கிருஸ்தவர்கள் தங்களுடைய மதத்தை விருத்திசெய்து வருவதற்கு அந்நிய நாட்டிலுள்ள கிருஸ்தவ மதாபிமானிகளிடம் பணம் பெற்று இந்திய நாட்டில் கிருஸ்தவ மதம் பரவ பாடுபட்டார்கள், பாடுபடுவருகிறார்கள். இவ்விதம் இந்த மடாதிபதிகள் ஏதாவது செய்திருக்கிறார்களா? மடாதிபதிகளும் பண்டார சன்னதிகளும் தங்களுடைய லீலாவிநோதங்களுக்குச் சிலவு செய்வதில் ஒரு பாசமாவது ஹிந்துமத அபிவிருத்திக்காக சிலவு செய்திருப்பார்களேயானால் இந்த நாட்டில் வேறு அன்னிய மதம் இவ்விதம் பரவி வேறுன்றியிருக்குமா? இவர்களுடைய போக்கிலே ஹிந்து மதத்திற்கே அழிவு வந்துவிடுமோ. என்று பயந்துதான் இந்த மசோதா கொண்டுவரப்பட்டிருக்கிறது. இன்னும் சில மடாதிபதிகளைப் பார்த்தால் அவர்கள் வெளியிலேயே வராமல் ஒரு கோட்டைபோன்ற மானிகை கட்டிக்கொண்டு அதன் நடுவில் வசித்துவருகிறார்கள். வெளியில் வருவதற்கு பயந்து கொண்டு அப்படி வசித்து வருகிறார்களோ என்று கருதவேண்டியதாக இருக்கிறது. இன்னும் அவர்கள் தங்களுடைய லீலாவிநோதங்களுக்காக வெளியே போகவேண்டுமென்றால் தங்களுடைய கோட்டைக்குள்ளிருந்தே ஒரு சுரங்கம் வைத்துக்கொண்டு அதன் மூலமாகவே போய் வருகிறார்கள். இந்தவிதமாக சுரங்கம் வைத்துக்கொண்டு அதன்மூலமாக வெளியே வந்து தங்களுடைய லீலாவிநோதங்களைச் செய்துவருகிறவர்களை அடக்குவதற்கு ஒரு சட்டம் வேண்டுமா? வேண்டாமா என்று கேட்கிறேன். இத்தகைய ஒரு நல்ல காரியம் செய்து சீர்திருத்தம் செய்யவேண்டுமென்றால் Democracy-க்கு விரோதம் எனவே ஒன்றும் செய்யாதே

“இன்னொரு முக்கியமான விஷயத்தைச் சொல்ல விரும்புகிறேன். இந்த சட்ட சபை அங்கத்தினரும், தமிழ் நாட்டு காங்கிரஸ் கமிட்டி தலைவருமான கனம் காமராஜ் நாடார் அவர்களை 'விடுதலை'ப் பத்திரிகை ரொம்பவும் பலமாக தாக்கி வருகிறது. இது சம்மந்தமரக விடுதலை பத்திரிகையைச் சேர்ந்த நண்பர் ஒருவரை இவ்விதம் தாக்குவதற்கு காரணம் என்ன என்று கேட்டேன். காரணம் ஸ்ரீ காமராஜ் பார்ப்பண சூழ்ச்சியில் அகப்பட்டவர். இந்த மடாலய மசோதா ஒன்றமில்லாமல் போய்விடப் போகிறது பாருங்கள் என்று நான் ஸ்ரீ காமராஜ் அவர்களுக்கு இந்த மசோதா உடனே அமுலுக்கு வரவேண்டுமென்ற ஆசை உள்ளவர் என்று சொன்னேன். இந்த நிலைமையைப் பாருங்கள். சட்ட சபையிலே இவர்களை எதிர்ப்பைத் தாங்கவேண்டியதிருக்கிறது. வெளியில் அவர்கள் எதிர்ப்பைத் தாங்கவேண்டியதிருக்கிறது. இந்த மசோதாவைப் பிரேரித்துள்ள மந்திரி டாக்டர் ராஜன் ஒரு பழுத்த வைஷ்ணவர். மதத்தில் எவ்வளவோ நம்பிக்கை கொண்ட பிராமணர். அவரே இந்த மசோதாவைக் கொண்டுவந்திருக்கும்போது இதற்கு என்ன எதிர்ப்பு இருக்கிறது என்று கேட்கிறேன்.”

SRI S. NAGAPPA:—“On a point of order, Sir. The Leader of the House is leaving the House and the Hon. Minister in charge of the Bill, Dr. Rajan, is not in the House.”

MR. SPEAKER:—“The Hon. Dr. Rajan has gone out and while going, he has told me that the Hon. Mr. Sitarama Reddi would be taking notes and he is here.”

SRI R. V. SWAMINATHAN:—“இந்த நிலைமையில் இந்த மசோதாவானது ரொம்பவும் அவசியம் என்பதைத் தெரிவித்துக் கொள்ளுகிறேன். இந்த மசோதா சீக்கிரம் அமுலுக்கு வருவதற்கு ஏற்பாடு செய்யவேண்டுமாய் மந்திரி சபையைக் கேட்டுக்கொள்கிறேன். இந்த மசோதா Select கமிட்டிக்குப் போகவேண்டியது அவசியம். அங்கே அதை நன்றாக பரிசீலனை செய்து மதத்திற்கு ஆபத்து வரக்கூடிய விதிகளைப் பரிசீலித்து திருத்தி நல்லமுறையில் அமைக்க முடியும். இந்த Select Committee-ல் கனம் வைத்யனாத்யயரும் அவருடைய நண்பர்களும் இருப்பார்கள் என்று நம்புகிறேன். எனவே அங்கு செலக்ட் கமிட்டியில் இருக்கக்கூடிய குறைகளை நிவர்த்தி செய்துகொள்ளலாம் என்று தெரிவித்துக்கொள்கிறேன்.

“அடுத்தபடியாக நம் மந்திரி சபைக்கு தலைவராக உள்ள கனம் ஓமந்தார் ராமசாமி ரெட்டியார் அவர்களே இந்த மசோதா வருவதற்கு முக்கிய மூலகாரண புருஷர். ஓமந்தார் மிகுந்த மத பக்தியுள்ளவர். அவர் இங்கு சபையில் வந்து உட்காரும்போதெல்லாம் நெற்றியில் விபூதி அணிந்துகொண்டுதான் வருவார். பார்த்தால் எப்பொழுதும் தெய்வபக்தி உள்ளவராகவே காட்சியளிக்கின்றார். ('A voice: உங்களுடைய நெற்றியிலும் விபூதி இருக்கிறது).’, ஆம், தலைவர் அவர்களுடைய ரூமில் இருந்தபோது யாரோ ஒருவர் கோலிலுக்குப்போய்விட்டு வந்து விபூதி கொடுத்தார். இட்டுக்கொண்டேன், அதைப்போலவே நண்பர் கனம் அண்ணாமலை-யின்னையும் இருக்கிறார். அவரும் எப்பொழுதும் நெற்றியில் விபூதி அணிந்து கொண்டுதான் வருவார். ஆனால் இன்று நெற்றியில் ஒன்றும் இட்டுக் கொள்ளாமல் வந்திருக்கிறார். எல்லோருக்கும் மதம் ஒன்றுதான் எல்லோரும் மதத்தில் பற்றுதல் உள்ளவர்கள்தான். எங்களுடைய எண்ணம் என்னவென்றால் ஹிந்து மதம் அழிந்துபோகாமல் தேசம் பூர்வரீதியே ஹிந்து மதம் பரவவேண்டுமென்பதுதான். ஹிந்து மதம் உலகம் பூராவும் பரவவேண்டும். அதற்கு வேண்டிய காரியங்களைச் செய்யவேண்டும். ஆகையால் இந்த மசோதா பிரசாரம் இந்த மடாதிபதிகளுடைய சொத்துக்களையெல்லாம் சட்ட பூர்வமாக ஒரு வழி செய்தால் தெய்வகாரியங்களுக்குச் சிலவு செய்து போக மீதம் உள்ள பெருத்த ஆஸ்தியைக் கொண்டு ஹிந்து மதத்தை தேசம்பூராவும் பரவுச் செய்ய உபயோகிக்கலாம்.”

SIRNA KANAR HAJI MOULVI S. A. F. IBRAHIM SAHIB BAHKUR:—“On a point of order, தேசத்தில் ஹிந்து மதம் ஒன்றுதான் வேறு மதம் இல்லை என்று கேட்கிறேன்.”

MAHIN SCHAMNAD SAHIB BAHADUR :—“ Mr. Speaker, the Hindu Religious Endowments Bill introduced by the Hon. Dr. Rajan denies to the Hindu community or sections of it fundamental rights of freedom of religion and religious worship in their temples in their own way. In the communal or sectional temples elected and endowed by a particular section of the community, other sections of the Hindu community have no right and as such have not been allowed any right of management or of performing pujas or of partaking in the religious feasts on festival days. This rule has been recognized from time immemorial by all concerned and even by the court of law. So, Sir, the Commissioners to be appointed under this Bill should have control only over the secular administration, maintenance of accounts and audit and they should have no control over the religious aspects and they should not interfere with the existing and long-established and lawful religious practices, customs, usages and rights of the institutions. If there is any doubt about this, it should be settled in the court of law. In the case of religious institutions belonging to a particular section the appointment of trustees or managers or any paid servants should be from qualified persons belonging to the same community, as it obtains in the case of mosques and churches. The income of these religious institutions should be applied only for the religious purposes for which they were founded and endowed and they should not be utilized for any secular purposes which are not intended by the donor or founder. In the case of the Muslim wakf properties the income should be only spent as intended by the donors and the appointment of trustees or managers should be made according to the directions of the donor or founder. The communal temples of Gowdaya are subject to the secular and spiritual jurisdiction of their own Swamijis and it is they who have got absolute rights and they enjoy special and exclusive privileges in the temples of their own community. The secular Government have no right to interfere with their religion and in religious affairs, and the Government should not interfere with religion and religious worship of communities and groups of different faiths and should not sponsor legislation against them in open violation of fundamental rights guaranteed to them in the constitution. In matters of legislation affecting religion which affects the conscience and rights of millions of people of different communities and faiths, legislation should not be embarked upon in different provinces and States in different ways as they choose. The States of Mysore, Cochin and Travancore do not interfere with religious administration of communal or sectional temples. Regarding this legislation, there is no urgency or hurry and therefore, I suggest that the consideration of the measure may be postponed till after the Constitution of the Indian Union is completely passed by the Constituent Assembly. You may ask me, Sir, whether this Bill affects the Muslim religion or mosques. I say, Sir, in my faith there is only one God and one religion in the whole world and therefore, I support the amendment.”

* SRI M. S. PATTABHIRAMIAH :—“ Mr. Speaker, the object of the Bill is the reform of the administration of Hindu temples and mutts and I welcome this attempt to reform the administrative aspect of the temples of our Province. But as drafted and published, the Bill goes far beyond the declared object and the consequences even if the Bill is passed with slight amendments at the Select Committee to which it is proposed to refer, would be disastrous not only to the Hindu religion for the promotion of which the Bill is brought forward but also to the Government and the people of this Province. Here and elsewhere the supporters of the Bill very often quote Article 19 pertaining to rights relating to religion in the Fundamental Rights adopted by the Constituent Assembly and they depend upon sub-clause (2) which says:

‘ Nothing shall . . . preclude the State from making any law—

and they say that the State has a right to interfere as they interpret the words here, namely, ‘ religious practice ’; and easily forget or exclude out of consideration the words ‘ regulating or restricting any economic, . . . or other secular activity which may be associated with religious practice.’ Under this Bill, you are not only regulating or restricting activities which are connected with religious practices but you are directly interfering with religious practices also. Provision is made whereby authority is given to Government to make rules prescribing rituals and ceremonies of temples and mutts. Is it not direct interference with religious practice? It is not financial or secular or economic activity connected with religious practice; rituals or ceremonies are directly connected with religious practice and it is religious practice itself. Let us take an analogy. A constable is posted at Round Tana to regulate traffic and just imagine, Sir, what it will mean if he takes into his mind to take over the whole traffic into his power and jumps into every car that goes there. You may easily imagine the consequence. Similarly also if the State is permitted to regulate or restrict certain activities which are intended for social welfare and for other beneficial purposes, what will be the result—if the Government take upon themselves the whole management into their own hands—will it not be absurd? Cannot any one with imagination foresee the terrible consequences which will ensue by the Government taking over thousands of temples and mutts—a task for which the Government are neither prepared nor equipped. Do we not find that there is lack of trained personnel in every nation building activity of the Government? You are going to take over the management of thousands of temples and mutts without any personnel whatsoever. You will have to establish colleges for them and colleges for the study of philosophy and theological doctrines. Really, Sir, mutts are not what they are defined in the Bill:

'an institution for the promotion of the Hindu religion, presided over by a person whose duty it is to engage himself in imparting religious instruction or rendering spiritual service to a body of disciples or who exercises or claims to exercise spiritual headship over such a body.'

"I submit, Sir, it is entirely wrong. Mutts are the continuation of institutions established by great philosophers who propounded a particular theological doctrine in their own way.

"Sir, Hinduism has many theological doctrines. Hinduism defines the conception of Godhood, the relationship between soul and God and how we can approach God in different ways and by following different theologies, enunciated by different sages and Acharyas. The great Acharyas of old who founded these mutts have propounded certain theological doctrines for their followers. Our great Guru Sri Sankaracharya, for instance, propounded the philosophy of Advaita, and our Acharya Ramanuja propounded the philosophy of Visishtadvaita, and similarly Sri Madhvacharya propounded the Dvaita philosophy, while various other great Saivite mutts of Tanjore have been propounding and elucidating their own doctrines and Saiva philosophy, namely, the Pasupathi doctrine. They are not there, as Christian missionary institutions are, to propound and propagate their particular brand of religion. These mutts are there for propounding and elucidating any doubts for people who seek to learn and know things from them. Now you are going to take over those mutts. The apology for taking over is that they are mismanaged. No doubt, it is true some of the Matathipathies are debaucherous and vicious. He denies that. But, is taking over the entire administration of these mutts into the hands of the Government and running them themselves, the remedy? Sir, we have heard of a story in the New Testament, which states that once when the Great Jesus Christ was passing along a road, he saw a group of people throwing stones upon a woman who was condemned to death by being stoned, for being unchaste. The great Teacher at once called these people to come by his side and addressed them as follows: 'Friends, if anyone of you had not been unchaste in your minds, let him throw the stone first.' You know the result of the admonition in the story. Every one dropped the stone from his hand. Sir, this is a story from the Bible. Do we not find men in Government departments who are as vile, if not more, and as notoriously corrupt as some of these Matathipathies. What have we done to put them down? If there is something wrong in this Government, do we ask the Central Government to take over this Government into their hands? No. We try to reform and rectify our mistakes. Simply because we find that one limb in the body is sick, we do not separate the head from the trunk and deprive the body of its life. The State has every right to regulate, restrict, and to punish any mutts or Matathipathies for mismanagement or for corruption. There are enough provisions in our existing laws to deal with such things. It has been argued very often and has been incessantly put forward before this House both by the Hon. Minister in charge of the Bill as well as by other members, that even the foreign British Government had introduced measures regulating the administration of religious institutions. For example, the Regulation of 1817 is one of such measures. It controls the mosques, the Muslim religious and charitable endowments and also the Hindu temples and Hindu charitable endowments. But now in this Bill we have restricted its scope and made it applicable only to Hindu religious institutions and endowments. At the same time, we say that this is a very urgent measure. How has it become so very urgent now in the case of Hindu religious institutions, and why it is not so urgent in the case of Muslim endowments? Are they paragons of virtue? Are there not complaints that even endowments made by Christian missions and charities appertaining to them are mismanaged and that some of the heads of such institutions have misappropriated their funds? I have heard many such complaints myself. We have not touched them and why? I am sure hon. Members would have read the leading article of the recent issue of the Hindu, wherein reference was made to the arguments advanced by the Hon. Dr. T. S. S. Rajan, who now pilots this Bill in the Legislative Council the other day, for referring the Muslim Wakfs Bill brought in by Mr. Abdul Latif Farookhi, for public opinion. The same arguments must apply to this Bill also. What is sauce for the goose must be sauce for the gander also! If we pursue this argument to its logical end, we must take up legislation in regard to the regulation of all religious institutions and endowments, including Muslim wakfs and Christian endowments. We cannot do that. That, Sir, is entirely against the idea and principle of a secular State. The definition of a secular State is clear and definite. What was our difference with the Pakistan State? Pakistan wanted to have a theocratic State, that is to say, a religious State, while we did not believe in it. We did not believe that it would do any good to the people of the country if the State whose ideal is to promote a particular religion wants its subjects to follow that religion. That is why we have become a secular State. One of the clauses of this Bill states that it will be the duty of the Commissioner to frame rules for the promotion of the Hindu religion. Sir, we have very often claimed and I have also referred to it many times in this Assembly that the Hon. Premier who is the sponsor and the Hon. Dr. T. S. S. Rajan, who pilots this Bill are, no doubt, very devout Hindus. But their being great devotees of the Hindu religion is itself a very great handicap and a drawback in this Government. If they take so much care for the reformation or the resuscitation of the Hindu religion, they must equally care for the reform and resuscitation of the Muslim religion and religious institutions, like the mosques and the Muslim wakfs. They cannot complacently say that because they belong to the Hindu religion, and are great Hindu devotees, they have no right to interfere with other religions and their institutions.

"Sir, the Bill says that the Commissioner, Deputy Commissioner, the Assistant Commissioner and every officer or servant appointed to carry out the purposes of this Act, shall be a person professing the Hindu religion. Has the Hindu religion only one particular faith? Has it got only one particular doctrine? Are all the temples and mutts preaching the same doctrine and asking us to worship the self-same image or idol. No. We have different doctrines, different methods of worship and different conceptions of God and images to worship. Sir, the other day, the Hon. Dr. T. S. S. Rajan referred to the murder of a God. From this, we can understand, what idea he has of these temples and mutts. He calls himself as devout a Hindu as any other, and I do not deny it. These are Gods according to him. But, Sir, his ideation of Hinduism as evidenced by his utterances here, in this Assembly on this occasion is not correct. They are but symbols of the various Prakrithies which are intended to help us to concentrate our thoughts upon the invisible form of the Almighty. Still he says that these Gods have been murdered or that they have been allowed to starve. Oh! what a tragic state, to which we have come to, and what a great and merciful heart has the Hon. Dr. T. S. S. Rajan.

"Sir, coming to the point, if there is a Vaishnavite temple, and if you put in a Saivite as a Commissioner or a Deputy Commissioner, what will happen? You know the great difference between these two sets of people. In the southern districts, there are, what is known as Veera Vaishnavites and Veera Saivites, and they are poles apart. Their ideas of nomenclature or nama-rupa of God are different and their methods of worship are also different. Such a great freedom is given in our Hindu religion, allowing people to follow their own theological doctrines, which are entirely opposed to one another. While such is the case, if we put a Vaishnavite Commissioner in charge of a Saivite temple, the whole thing will come to a collapse.

In the descriptive narration of the wars of the reformation in Europe we find that sectarians of one self-same religion fought each other with greater bitterness and hatred than in fighting the followers of a different religion. Motley, the historian, alludes in his history of the Rise of the Dutch Republic, how the partisans fighting against the Pope were using the Crescent for their banner to irritate the Catholics who were then fighting the Turks. Human nature being what it is, the same things would happen here also. We are all familiar with the feuds even between the Thengalais and the Vadagalais in some of the Vaishnavite temples. Then what will become the fate of these temples, if such appointments are made? They will desecrate these temples. These temples have been going on somehow all these days, with all the faults of the administrators and managements. They have been giving some spiritual solace to the people, who were devotees of the temples. These temples will now become deserted and in course of time, the temples themselves will be ruined, if such officers are placed in charge of them.

"Further, Sir, by taking over the administration of these temples and religious endowments into their own hands, the Government will have to employ thousands of people under them and it will be a very great responsibility for them to undertake, especially at this time, when the finances of the Government are in a straightened condition. But that apart, they will have very great power and patronage to distribute and they will be in a very enviable position. They would really wield very great power and influence in making these appointments and would be able to show their patronage to their own men. What guarantee is there that these things will not happen?

"Sir, the Hon. Minister said that the Government are not pushing on with this measure with any sinister motive. We do not attribute any motives to them. We believe that they are sincere and strong in their conviction that this reform is necessary. But who can tell what the result will be? Do they think that by taking over all these temples and mutts they will be reformed and people will become more religious and that this measure will bring in a millennium and that our country will become prosperous? If they think so, then I must say that they are in a fool's paradise. The results, on the other hand will be entirely different. The temples will be deserted; people will have no faith in temples and the temples will be desecrated, when the Government take over these temples. All be desecrated, when the Government take over these temples. Democracy of the foreign pattern will be surely ruinous, if it is introduced in a temple administration.

"Therefore for a secular state it is not at all proper to take over the management of religious institutions. Sir, Travancore was quoted as an example where an Indian State has taken over control of temples and administered them properly. That was the background of some of the arguments advanced. It was also suggested that because the matipathis have been corrupt and the temples here have not been properly administered Hinduism has lost a number of people to the Muslim and the Christian community. And some emotional speeches were made here and elsewhere, Sir, to the effect that we should take over the temples and mutts and stop these things. But, Sir, did they think of the population of Travancore and Madras Province and did they know that the largest number of Christians in any particular area was found only in that State. Were that Government able to stop the conversion to Christianity in Travancore by taking over the temples and mutts. Therefore it is wrong to say that by taking over and managing temples and mutts we would prevent Hindus going to other religions. Even in Travancore it is stated that the temples are under the direct control of the Maharaja. But I do not want to go into the legal aspects of the question.

"In the year 1817 when the British Government wanted to take over the temples in order to see that they were managed properly they viewed all the religions equally. They wanted to reform the administration of all the religious institutions. But are we doing that? No. The Hon. Dr. Rajan stated, Sir, in the Legislative Council that the Muslim community was an influential community, when he wanted that the Muslim Wakfs Bill might be circulated for eliciting public opinion. But are there not influential people amongst us, the Hindus? Do they not deserve this consideration? In 1863 when the British Government divested themselves of the power it was said that they did so because of the agitation by the missionaries. We cannot blame the British Government, Sir, in this. The British Government here had many sins to answer. But the East India Company and the British Government did not want to propagate the Christian religion in this country. If they had done so and if they had sided the missionaries the people of our country would have been entirely different. But they were commercial men. They cared only for profits and sometimes they were even against the missionaries. There was an agitation in the years 1830—39. After 1839 there was no agitation by the Christian missionaries and the British divested themselves of the power in the year 1863 after the Great Indian Mutiny. Before that in the year 1860 the Indian Penal Code had been passed and there were provisions to book the bad and mismanaging matathipathis, temple managers, etc. Why are we not using those provisions which are already available?" (The hon. Member had not finished when the Hon. Speaker called on the next Member to speak.)

SRI T. S. PATTABHIRAMAN:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to support the Bill that is before the House. It is my proud privilege, Sir, as a young Hindu to offer my solicitations to the Hon. Mr. O. P. Ramaswami Reddiyar and the Hon. Dr. Rajan who have had the tenacity and the courage to bring this revolutionary Bill before the House and place it for approval in the present session. It is really surprising, Sir, that a number of people within this House and outside are carrying on an agitation in a most undemocratic manner to scuttle this Bill even in its infant stage. This is not a new proposal, Sir, which has been sprung on the public as a surprise. In its published form the Bill has been before the public for more than one year and it is surprising that hon. Members in the House should say that public opinion is not yet moulded and that more time should be given.

"After all, Sir, this Bill has been long overdue and I submit that this Bill must be passed into law as soon as possible in deference to the wishes of the majority of the population of the Province. This Bill does not contemplate the abolition or the complete acquisition of all mutts and temples and their endowments and property. This wants only to regulate and ensure that the religious institutions and the endowments are properly administered and their income is duly appropriated for the purpose for which they were founded. I am surprised, Sir, that any Member of the House belonging to and interested in the great Hindu community should object to the very noble purpose which has been envisaged in the Bill. On the other hand this Bill should have been welcomed by one and all who call themselves Hindus. They should have been offering their co-operation for the speedy passage of the Bill. I am surprised that hon. Members in the House who are noted for their integrity, for their learning and who are noted for their patriotism and service for the poor should raise the slogan that religion is in danger in the country. Unfortunately in the pre-partition days it had been the proud privilege of the Muslim League to say that religion was in danger and attack all the issues in the name of religion and scuttle them. It is surprising that the very same people who attacked the Muslim League for raising the slogan that religion was in danger should now raise the same slogan. I must ask, Sir, with the greatest respect for the learned authorities who have propounded here that Hinduism will die or will be killed or become extinct if this Bill became law, whether it is a compliment to the Hindu religion or an insult, a religion which has stood like the rock of Gibraltar and like the lofty Himalayas. Sir, this has never been conquered by the successive invasions of the nomadic tribes and the Huns and the other successive generations of invaders who have passed through Hindusthan. Hinduism has not been subjugated and it will keep its head at a high level. I am afraid, Sir, that statements are being made here without understanding their implications. It is a religion which has been nurtured by the Great Acharyas, Sankaracharya, Ramanujacharya, Madvacharya, Raja Ram Mohan Roy, Ramakrishna Parahansa, Swami Vivekananda and Mahatma Gandhi. It is an insult to all to raise this cry if they are really interested in the Hindu religion. I may assure hon. Members who are opposing the Bill because they are afraid that the Hindu religion will be no more in the country, that they are living in a fool's paradise. The Hindu Religion shall never die as long as the world exists. They can be assured of that. Unfortunately, what is being done here in the name of religion? Atrocious things are being done by the matadhipathis and by the persons who have been given public properties to be managed like temples and others by public spirited persons. These matadhipathis have been a blot on the Hindu community, a scourge on the Hindu religion due to their activities, past and present. I am surprised, Sir, that my learned Friend, Mr. Pattabhiramiah, was telling us of things that are being done for the propagation of religion by the Saivite and Vaishnavite matadhipathis. The less said about the matadhipathis south of Chidambaram the better. All things are happening in the name of religion. It is regrettable, Sir, that this Bill should be opposed. After all this Bill does not want the matadhipathis or the mutts to be completely abolished.

"I am afraid, Sir, that the hon. Member, my respected Friend Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar, when he moved his amendment has shut his eyes to a section of public opinion, though they may be in a minority, yet who are a vociferous minority, that there should be no religion, no mutts and no charitable institutions in the Province. There is already a very strong opinion like that though now it may be in a minority. They may become powerful. They are doing much harm in the Province by propaganda that the religious places are not places of God, not places of religion but of all unearthly and unholy things that must be put an end to. I want to know whether Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar who opposed the Bill knows that public opinion in the Province is growing that all the mutts and temples should be abolished once for all if this Bill is not brought in and made law. After all this Bill does not contemplate the abolition of mutts, etc. Let nobody worry that the mutts will be abolished and their properties confiscated and that the matadhipathis will be made to starve. This Bill only contemplates the proper management of the properties. Why should there be any objection. If as my hon. Friend stated every thing is all right and every thing is in a beautiful condition and there is absolutely nothing to worry, and they are symbols of virtue and purity, why should they be afraid that this Damocles's sword is coming. Until they go wrong this will not touch them. If they think that the matadhipathis are doing all their duties properly and all the endowments have been properly managed there is no need to be afraid of this Bill. But because some of these persons have been blackmarketing in the religious endowments and these people have been going wrong and squandering public money and because these people have been doing things which have been a disgrace to Hinduism, they are going to be punished and not those who are doing things properly. Sir, I am not one of those who says that all matadhipathis are blackguards and rascals. But I must say that most of these matadhipathis are not very desirable persons at present. Their history, life, manners, customs and habits have been the subject of many a book and film in the Province. But did anybody dare criticise them. When the Bill came here it must have been welcomed by one and all who want our religion to thrive. It says that the present blot on our religion should be removed and Hinduism made purer, brighter and more lively so that more people can come and join the Hindu religion. I appeal to my friends not to break the Hindu religion by opposing this Bill. Sir, there are only two things to be done. It is a Hobson's choice. Either take it or reject it. My friends admitted while opposing this Bill that there are irregularities, that there have been variations, and that the matadhipathis have been very defective in their duties towards society, religion and endowments. This Bill only seeks to mend matters and put things in order so that Hinduism may live. If my learned friends should pursue their opposition to this Bill, there is only one way of ending these matadhipathis and endowments, and that is, to finish them once for all because, in this state of hopelessness, deterioration and rottenness, mutts cannot exist for long. The Black Shirt organization—the Dravida Kazhagam—is aiming at the abolition of the temples and massacring all the mutts. Aligning themselves with the Communists they are doing propaganda that these institutions do not deserve existence on moral, social, political, economic and ethical grounds. Are you going to allow this rottenness to continue and strengthen the hands of the Black Shirts? Or are you going to give a helping hand to this Bill which tries not to end but to mend matters. I must warn the persons who are proposing amendments that this Bill must be shelved or that religion is in danger, or that the State has no right to interfere in religion, that they are playing into the hands of the Dravida Kazhagam which aims at the annihilation of this religion, a religion which is the solace of millions of people. You are now strengthening the hands of people who are atheists like Communists. I must appeal to men who are fasting and who are making all sorts of allegations that their imagination is running riot with fears of all things. I must appeal to them, Sir, 'think twice before you act; you have two alternatives; either mend the situation so that Hinduism may live and prosper, and the endowments may serve their purpose, or end them'. There is no other choice. There is no half-way house. There is no via media. You must see that the institutions are useful to the society and to religion for which they stand. Otherwise they must be ended, and their properties should be confiscated. I request those people who oppose this Bill to ponder over these matters deeply. What will be the repercussions? What will be the state of things that will take place in the country in future? What will be the ultimate result? I appeal to my friends not to press the amendment for circulating the Bill for public opinion. Public opinion is already overwhelmingly in favour of this Bill. The minority of public opinion, I must say, is in favour of total abolition of all the temples and mutts. I must say that even a handful of persons should not oppose this Bill. I appeal to them not to kill Hinduism in this manner by trying to help that minority. It is not the way. The Bill is only trying to salvage Hinduism. It is only an attempt to purify and mould Hinduism into a better type. We expect your co-operation. I appeal to you to support this Bill.

[Sri T. S. Pattabhiraman] [7th February 1949]

"One word to the Hon. Minister. Clause 17 of the Bill is an insult to the younger generation. It says—

'No person may succeed or be appointed to, or hold, the office of the trustee of a religious institution—

(b) except in the case of a hereditary trustee, unless he is not less than thirty-five and not more than seventy years of age.'

I must very strongly protest against this injustice to the youth of this country. It is not as if elderly people alone are religious. The younger generation are more honest than elderly people. ('Hear hear.') (Interruption.) My friend says experience. It is experience only out of work. There should be no distinction between elders and youngsters. In foreign countries youngsters are entrusted with responsible work. So, let there be no distinction in the house of God. Let it not be a standing insult to the youth of this country that they are not to hold the office of trustee or manager. It is a very serious insult. I say it is not deliberate but that there has been some slip in drafting. I wish to appeal to the Hon. Minister not to insult the youth but entrust them with responsible work. We have trusted the youth in the fight for Freedom. Trust them in the proper and good administration of temples and mutts also. You please delete that clause and give scope to all people irrespective of age.

'I finally appeal to hon. Friends in this House to pass this Bill without opposition so that Hinduism may be saved before it is too late.'

SRI R. SUBBAYYAR:—“Mr. Speaker, Sir, at the outset, I propose to deal with some objections raised against this Bill, constitutional as well legal. This Bill has been opposed on two or three constitutional grounds by my esteemed and hon. Friend, Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar, as well as others. It is said, Sir, that this Bill offends against one of the clauses under the fundamental rights passed recently by the Constituent Assembly. The objection is that it offends against the clause guaranteeing freedom of religion, the practice of religion and the propagation of religion. But, I am afraid, Sir, having regard to the language used in one of the clauses of the Bill that this objection, although it may seem formidable at first sight, is not warranted. I refer to clause 6 of the Bill which contains the necessary words complained against. Clause 6 says:

Subject to the provisions of this Act, the general superintendence of all religious institutions and endowments shall vest in the Provincial Government.

Likewise, Sir, under clause 15 of the Bill, ‘this general superintendence of all religious institutions and endowments shall vest in the Commissioner’. I do not know, Sir, how this superintendence is construed to be direct management by the Government. To me it seems there is a fundamental misunderstanding of the scope of this Bill by many of the speakers. It would seem that the Hon. Dr. Rajan who introduced this Bill is also under a similar misapprehension. He also spoke in a strain which would warrant such a misapprehension. In fact, when I heard him, I also got the impression that the Government was going to take over directly the management of the temples and religious institutions. Well, Sir, with that background, I read all the clauses of the Bill a number of times with a view to convince myself whether the misapprehension that, under this Bill, Government is really going to take over directly the management of these religious and charitable institutions is warranted or not. And I am driven to the conclusion that after all, it is not the correct interpretation because these officers and these superintendents can in no circumstances be regarded as direct managers of those institutions. It means only control. To supervise is to direct or to control. It does not mean that you take away the entire management in your own hands under this section. There is no doubt that the sub-clause of this main clause may tend to create such an impression or give room for such an interpretation. Sub-clause of this main clause says:

Such superintendence shall include the power to pass any orders which may be deemed necessary for the proper maintenance or administration of any religious institution or endowments.

Here, the words ‘pass any orders’ may lend themselves to such an interpretation. No doubt, the words are too wide and rather capable of such interpretation. I am sure the Hon. Minister will take note of this and remedy the defect in proper time.

“Sir, in order to impress upon hon. Members of this House, I would like to illustrate my argument by one or two examples. We are all familiar with the kind of superintendence that Government officers exercise over many aspects of life. For example, recently we passed the Shop Assistants Act. Under that Act, Government have appointed Shop Inspectors and other categories of officers. Their duty is to superintend and check and to see how things are being done in the shops. Under that Act, they can regulate the hours of business; they can also enter any business premises and they can do so many other things. Now, Sir, can it be direct management of those particular shops or the coffee-hotels or other places of business by the Government? I am sure no man will say that it is direct management of these institutions by the Government. Likewise, Sir, there are School Inspectors. Everybody knows that there are institutions run by private management, by public trusts, by Government and others. Now they are all subject to one law. These Supervisors and Inspectors make periodical inspection and the hours are regulated. So also, this can be done in the case of temples. Periodical inspections are made, remarks are passed and in the light of those remarks, matters are rectified now and then. These Inspectors also inspect private institutions. Does it mean that the Government has taken over the management of these institutions directly in their own hands? Not at all. Likewise, courts appoint guardians to take charge of properties of minors. They also appoint Receivers and do so many other things. These people manage the properties of their wards. Now, Sir, these officers are practically under the control of the court and they work at the instance of the court. Does it mean that they are directly managing those properties? They are merely officers of the court and are carrying out the directions of the court. Likewise, these Endowments Officers, call them Commissioners or by any other name, are only officers of the Government who are given some powers to control the trustees and other people who are in charge of these institutions, so that these institutions may work for the good of the public. If you view it from that standpoint, it means only that Government is trying to take power in order to check and control these institutions. To say that this power given to the officers or commissioners to control them or supervise them is giving them rights of interference is, to my mind, not correct. That is not what the Bill attempts to do. To say that in a secular state, no Government can take such powers of control or direction over religious, charitable or public trust is against all known canons of political theories and even democratic practice. Such a power exists and has been exercised by every State. In our own Presidency, there are a number of Acts which go to show that such power was exercised not only by the East India Company but subsequently as well. This exercise of the power of the state to control these institutions is not to say that the Government is taking over the direct management of these institutions. It has been said time and again that a secular state has no business to interfere with the profession, practice and preaching of religion. It is a proposition with which nobody has any quarrel. But does this Bill in any way interfere with the practice of religion in its various aspects in these various charitable and religious institutions which exist to-day? To have a control over the budgets of these institutions, the expenditure of these temples, to pass the dittams and so on—is that taking over the management of the temples directly by the Government? Or is it only exercising control over the institutions for the good of the public? I can understand this argument, if in the guise of this Act, the Government sought to interfere and change the mode of worship in the temples or introduce innovations, as for example, in a predominantly Thengalai temple introduce Vadagalai forms of worship, in a Saivite temple introduce Vaishnavite forms of worship and vice versa, or if they interfered with the established customs and usage with regard to the utsavams and so on. Then it may be said that the Government is trying to interfere with the profession and practice of religion. Or supposing the Government said that no religious denomination shall hereafter preach such and such tenets which are opposed to the Government's way of thinking, then I can understand it being said that the Government is interfering with the profession and practice of religion. No doubt, there are certain provisions in the Bill which are too wide of the mark and which require to be modified in the light of the criticism offered on the floor of the House and elsewhere. But to say that no such Act should be passed because it would amount to interference with the profession and practice of religion is to say too much. So the first constitutional objection—that this Bill offends against one of the clauses of the fundamental rights conferring freedom of worship and practice and profession of religion—is altogether baseless.

"Sir, another argument is that the Bill offends against one of the clauses of the fundamental rights which says that no tax shall be levied on income from properties endowed for religious and charitable purposes. That seems to me to be a formidable objection, no doubt. But it can be certainly considered in the proper place and if legal opinion is of the view that it offends against one of the fundamental rights, I am sure the Government will take the necessary steps to modify it.

"Another objection is that in the new set-up,—whatever justification there was in the olden days for the State to interfere with religion in the matter of endowments and charitables,—it has been time and again stressed by no less a person than the Prime Minister of India and many other important leaders, that the State is a secular State and that it will have nothing to do with religion. True, a secular State has no right to interfere with the religious practices and beliefs of the people. But the whole question is: 'Does this Bill in any way seek to interfere with the practice or profession of any particular set of religious beliefs?' That is the crux of the problem. To me there seems to be absolutely nothing of the kind. It is the right of a secular State, more so of a modern democratic State, to have some control over public trusts and public expenditure. Otherwise there will be no check over the malpractices of many of these trustees and many of the despicable things that are being done in the name of religion. If such a control over temples and religious institutions should be deemed to be interference with religion, then I have no argument. But it is merely control or check, and not interference with religion and any modern State is justified in enacting laws in this matter and if it did not do that, it would be failing in one of its fundamental duties.

"Having said that, Sir, I should like to say a few words about the position taken up by the Government in placing the Bill before the House and moving for a reference to a Select Committee. Sir, before any Bill is placed before the House, I should expect the Government to have gone into full details, to have collected all the necessary statistics, taken expert legal opinion and satisfy this House that there is immediate necessity for the passing of this measure and that if no such measure is immediately passed, bad will go to worse and worse will go to worst. But neither in the Statement of Objects and Reasons to the Bill nor in the speech of the Hon. Minister who moved this Bill, do I find anything which shows the immediate necessity for the passing of the Bill. It has been stated that the provincialization of the administration of the Hindu Religious Endowments has been pending before the Government from 1929 onwards but for one reason or other it has been dropped and that the Government have taken it up now after 20 years. Is it a justification for passing this Bill now? Provincialization may be a laudable object, no doubt, but the Hon. Minister who introduced this Bill made a very sweeping remark about every religious endowment and charitable trust and said that everything is bad and, therefore it is, that he is coming forward with this Bill. What are the statistics with regard to this; how many religious trusts or maths or charitable institutions have been mismanaged or badly managed; how many trustees misappropriated funds from the charitable trusts; how many trusts or religious institutions are perpetrating those horrible and unutterable things said against them, and is the House in possession of any facts with regard to these matters? I fail to see any convincing argument coming forth from the side of the Government necessitating the immediate passage of this Bill. Therefore, I would urge that before the Government made any such sweeping statement as that of condemning every trustee in this Province, condemning every religious head and the head of every institution based upon charity, they collected statistics and put those things in our possession, so that we could judge and then decide as to what to do. They have not done that. Therefore, I am constrained to say that from the Government side there is not any valid argument for the immediate passage of this Bill.

"Now, Sir, hon. Members are aware that some time during last year a similar Bill was published and it was also discussed at the Party meeting. The Statement of Objects and Reasons in that Bill stated that the President of the Endowments Board felt some such thing and he wanted that the whole thing must be put on a different basis and, therefore, they published the Bill and were trying to introduce it before the Legislature. Now, the present Bill is the same Bill re-published with the deletion of those particular words and something else put in place of the original Statement of Objects and Reasons. Beyond that, and except for some minor changes, I do not find anything different from what the bill originally was. It amounts to saying that because the President of the Board felt that it should be abolished, the Government must take the entire thing in their hands and appoint Commissioners, and the Government are proceeding to do this. Sir, some time back in placing a particular Bill before this House, the Hon. Minister who introduced it said that High Court Judges wanted such and such a thing to be passed and so we are passing. Now, here it is a case of the President of the Endowment Board who wants such and such a thing to be done and, therefore, they are doing it. I am, of course, aware that that has been deleted from the present Statement of Objects and Reasons, but virtually it is so. That would not be a fair justification for the passage of the Bill or for placing it before us now.

"I am constrained to say another thing with regard to the departmentalization of this endowments branch. I agree with my learned friend, Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar, in the many things he said about the evils of departmentalization. We know, as a matter of fact, no department of Government . . ."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The hon. Member's time is up."

SRI R. SUBBAYYAR:—"Yes, Sir, I will close. No department of Government is free from charges of corruption, jobbery, nepotism and so on and this, Sir, will be adding one more department to Government and add to the evils already attaching to various departments. At any rate, that one argument at least must prevail on Government and they must think twice before they launch on this departmentalization scheme. It is not a question similar to nationalization or anything of the kind, but there are some provisions in this Bill which are objectionable from every point of view. Among them, I may state, as the main and the most important, the tendency to grab at the powers exercised by the ordinary civil courts of the land, and take all the powers vested in the law courts and confer them upon their officers without these officers being responsible for any malpractices or breaches of law or breaches of trust placed into their hands. Such a thing, I submit, is an unmitigated evil and must be resisted from every point of view. We have been seeing this tendency in every one of the measures that is being enacted now where all the powers are being taken away from law courts and vested in Government officers. That is a very objectionable thing and more so in a young democratic State like ours where the rights of citizens have to be safeguarded, these executive inroads have got to be guarded against. Therefore, Sir, it is one of the main objections to this Bill.

"Sir, there are also some other features in the Bill which require to be remedied. For example, the power to dismiss the trustees whether hereditary or non-hereditary; the provision for the notification of religious institutions and other charitable trusts; the power to pass any order which the Government deem fit and the power to divert excess funds in the hands of these charitable institutions to other purposes, no doubt of a similar nature. These, Sir, are dangerous things and if allowed to be there might be taken hold of by any set of godless people who may be replacing you in the future."

SRI P. KANDASWAMI PILLAI :—" Sir, on a point of order, I wish to know whether a member is entitled to use, during discussion, such words as 'sin' and other vulgar words? "

MR. SPEAKER :—" 'Sin' is not a vulgar word."

SRI N. ANNAMALAI PILLAI :—" கனம் கந்தசாமி பிள்ளை எனக்கு இங்கிலிஷ் தெரியாது என்று சொல்லுகிறார். நான் ஜெயிலில் இருந்த காலத்தில் கொஞ்சம் இங்கிலிஷ் கற்றுக்கொண்டிருக்கிறேன். அவர் சொல்வது என்ன என்பது எனக்குத் தெரியும். இந்த சந்தர்ப்பத்தில் மீ வைத்தியநாத அய்யரைப்பற்றி சொல்வதில் ஒரு தப்பும இல்லை. ஆகையால் தலைவர் அவர்களே நாம் இப்பொழுது அலட்சியமாக இருக்கக்கூடாது. காங்கிரஸ் தொண்டர்கள் பலமுறை சிறை சென்று பட்டினி கிடந்து காரியங்களை சாதித்துக்கொண்டிருக்கிறார்கள். ஒரு சந்திரன் நம்முன் பட்டினி கிடக்கின்றார் என்றால் நாம் அதை அலட்சியமாக விட்டு விடக்கூடாது. நாம் நம்முடைய தலைவரிடத்தில் மரியாதையாக இருந்து போல் பட்டினியாக கிடப்பவரிடம் நாம் கொஞ்சம் கவனத்தைச் செலுத்த வேண்டும். உங்களுக்கு நியாயம் செய்ய உரிமை உண்டு. மனிதனுக்கு தோன்றுவதை எங்கும் சொல்ல உரிமை உண்டு இப்பொழுது ஒரு தப்பான காரியத்தை செய்கிறார்கள். இந்திய சட்டசபை முடிவு செய்த பிறகு இதைப்பற்றி நாம் யோசிக்கலாம். Circulation க்கு விட்டு அதன் முடிவு தெரிந்தவுடன் இந்த பேச்சை எடுத்துக்கொள்ளலாம். ஆகையால் இதை circulation-க்கு விடவேண்டியது அவசியம் என்பதை நான் தெரி வித்துக்கொள்ளுகிறேன்."

"மற்றும் ஒரு வார்த்தை சொல்ல விரும்புகிறேன். நம்முடைய அரசாங்கமானது எப்பொழுது மத விஷயத்தில் தலையிடுகிறதோ அப்பொழுது அதற்கு ஆபத்தான நிலைமை ஏற்படும். ஆகையால் ஜாக்கிரதையாக இருக்க வேண்டும். பனகல் மந்திரி சபை காலத்தில் இந்த மாதிரி செய்ததால் அவருடைய கூட்டமே இல்லாமல் மறைந்துபோய்விட்டது. அதேபோல் காங்கிரஸ் சர்க்கார் இந்த சட்டத்தைக் கொண்டுவருகிறது. அதனால் என்ன கதி ஆகப்போகிறதோ தெரியவில்லை. ஆனால் நானும் காங்கிரஸ்காரன் தானே என்று சொல்லலாம். துரியோதனனிடம் விதர்ணன் ரொம்பவும் நியாயமாக நடந்து வந்தான். அவர்களை பாண்டவர்கள் அடித்தபோது எல்லோரும் சேர்ந்து அடிப்பட்டார்கள். எல்லோரையும் வெளியேற்றும் போது என்னையும் சேர்த்து வெளியேற்றிவிடுவார்கள் என்பது நிச்சயம் என்பது எனக்கு தெரியும். ஆகையால் பதராத காரியம் சிதராத என்பதுபோல் யோசித்து காரியத்தைச் செய்யவேண்டும். ஆராய்ந்து பார்த்த பிறகுதான் ஒரு காரியத்தை செய்யவேண்டும். ஆகையால் இந்த சட்டத்தை circulation-க்கு விடவேண்டுமென்று கேட்டுக்கொண்டு என்னுடைய வார்த்தையை முடித்துக் கொள்ளுகிறேன்."

words on it. This Bill has been introduced just to manage better all temples and charitable endowments which are being mis-managed now. But somehow our friends, our educated friends, the supporters of Hindu religion, said that their fundamental rights have been taken away by the introduction of this Bill. What is the fundamental right that is being taken away in this Bill? The fundamental right to mismanage these endowments is taken away in this Bill. I know there are certain fundamental rights in religion. What are the fundamental rights in Hindu religion? Only 5 per cent of the people rule 95 per cent of the people! Is this a fundamental right? Of these 95 per cent of the people, one-sixth of them are Chandalaras and all other people are Sudhras. They have been exploited in the name of God and religion by these people who form 5 per cent of the population of this country. They have been kept illiterate. That is the kind of Hindu religion which has hitherto been going on in this country. Our Hon. Speaker would not have come to this position, had it not been for Mahatma Gandhi. It was he who lifted the Harijans to a better place. In Malabar, there is a backward community called 'Nayadis'. They could not move about in the streets and they have to keep themselves two furlongs away from public roads even when they beg for alms."

MR. SPEAKER :—" Let the hon. Member speak on the Bill."

 SRI M. A. EASWARAN :—" Yes, Sir, I am speaking only on the Hindu religion. I am just saying that the fundamental right of a citizen is not taken away in this Bill. Hindu religion is there. A Nambudri Brahman can marry any number of times from any family. That is a fundamental right. Till very recently in the Travancore State, Brahmans even though they had committed murder, could not be hanged. Is this a fundamental right? "

MR. SPEAKER :—" The hon. Member is still deviating from the Bill."

 SRI M. A. EASWARAN :—" Sir, I am not deviating from the Bill."

MR. SPEAKER :—" But I am afraid, if the hon. Member continues to speak in this manner, I will have to ask him to sit down."

 SRI M. A. EASWARAN :—" Last year the Hon. Speaker and myself had been to a temple in Kumarapalayam in the Salem district. Though that temple has got vast property, it is not managed properly. We had to wade through thorns scattered all over the temple before we could reach the precincts of the temple. Thus in spite of various endowments, these temples are not properly managed. That is why this Bill has been brought in to stop this kind of mismanagement. Therefore, I support the motion moved by Dr. Rajan."

SHIMATHI K. LAKSHMI AMMAL :—“ தலைவர் அவர்களே, இந்த ஹிந்துமத தர்ம பரிபாலன சட்டத்தை நான் ஆதரித்து சில வார்த்தைகளைச் சொல்லுகிறேன். ஹிந்து மத ஸ்தாபனங்களில் சர்க்கார் தலையிடக்கூடாது என்பதாகத்தான் இங்கே அதிகம் எதிர்ப்பு இருந்து வருகிறது. சர்க்கார் தலையிட்டு அந்த சொத்துக்களை பூராவும் எடுத்துக் கொண்டு நடத்தப்போவதாக இந்த சட்டத்தில் இல்லை என்பதை நாம் நன்றாக தெரிந்து கொள்ளவேண்டும். இப்பொழுது ஹிந்துமத பரிபாலன ஸ்தாபனங்களை நடத்துபவர்கள் சரியான முறையில் நடத்தாததால் அவைகளை சரியாக நடத்தவேண்டுமென்று அதில் தலையிடவேண்டுமென்றால் இப்பொழுது இருக்கும் சட்டத்தில் நமக்கு இடமில்லை. அதற்காகவேதான் இப்பொழுது இந்த சட்டத்தைக் கொண்டுவருவதன் நோக்கமாகும். இப்பொழுதுள்ளவர்கள்தான் அதை சரியானபடி நடத்தப்போகிறார்கள். அப்படி நடத்தாவிட்டால் அவர்களை நீக்கிவிட்டு அந்த இடத்தில் வேறு ஆட்களை நியமிக்கவே இந்த சட்டத்தைக் கொண்டுவருகிறார்கள். அது இல்லாமல் இதற்குமுன் பேசியவர்களில் சிலர் ஏதோ காங்கிரஸ்காரர்கள் எலெக்ஷனில் நாம் இதைச் சொல்லிவருவதில்லை, அதைச் சொல்லி வரவில்லை என்று காரணங்கள் சொல்லிவருகிறார்கள். அது ரொம்பவும் கேலிக் கூத்து இடமான விஷயமாகும். காங்கிரஸ் என்றால் பொது ஜனங்களுடைய பிரதிநிதிகள்தான். காங்கிரஸ் வேறு, பொதுஜனங்கள் வேறு அல்ல. பொதுஜனங்களுடைய நன்மைகளுக்காகவே காங்கிரஸ்காரர்கள் வேலை செய்வார்களென்று பொது ஜனங்களுக்கு நம்பிக்கை இருக்கிறது. ஒவ்வொரு விஷயத்தையும் நாம் எலெக்ஷனில் சொல்லிவந்தோமர் என்று சொல்ல முடியாது. இதற்குமுன்கூட சில முக்யமான சில சட்டங்களைக் கொண்டுவந்திருக்கிறோம். ஒவ்வொரு சட்டம் கொண்டுவரும்போது மாறுபட்ட அபிப்பிராயமுள்ள சிலர் அவைகளை எதிர்த்து வந்தார்கள். ஆனால் அவைகளைப் பொருட்படுத்தாமல் நிறைவேற்றினோம். ஆலயப் பிரவேசம் ஒரு உதாரணம். மதுவிலக்கு, ஜரீன் ஒழிப்பு முதலிய சட்டங்களை இயற்றினோம். அவைகளை இயற்றி பிற மாகாணங்களுக்கு வழிகாட்டியாக நாம் செய்ததுபோல் இந்த சட்டத்தையும் தைரியமாக நிறைவேற்றவேண்டுமாய் கேட்டுக்கொள்ளுகிறேன். இந்த மாதிரியாக நாம் சட்டங்களை இயற்றியபோது மத்தியில் இருக்கிற ஊழல்களை சீர்திருத்தம் செய்வதற்கு இதுமாதிரியான நன்மைகளைச் செய்கிறார்கள் என்று சொன்னால் அது நன்றாக இருக்கும். மத்தியின் பெயரால் எவ்வளவோ அக் கிரமங்கள் நடந்துவருகின்றன. அது எல்லோருக்கும் தெரிந்த விஷயம். அப்படி இருப்பது தெரிந்திருந்தம்கூட இதை ஆட்சேபிப்பது ரொம்பவும் ஆச்சரியப்படக்கூடிய விஷயமாக இருக்கிறது. சர்க்கார் ஹிந்து மதத்தை ஆதரிக்கவேண்டுமென்றால் இதை நாம் சரியான முறையில் செய்ய வேண்டியது நம்முடைய கடமை. இதுவரையில் அப்படி செய்யாமலிருந்ததால் மற்ற மதங்கள் நம்முடைய மதத்தில் தலையிடக்கூடிய நிலைமைக்கு வந்திருக்கிறது. ஹிந்துமத பரிபாலன சொத்துக்களை மட்டுமே ஏன் எடுக்க வேண்டுமென்று கேட்கப்படுகிறது. பிற மதங்களில் நடத்தும் ஸ்தாபனங்களில் இவ்வளவு ஊழல்கள் இல்லை என்பது தெரிந்துகொள்ளவேண்டிய விஷயம். முக்கியமாக கிருஸ்துவர்களை எடுத்துக்கொள்ளுங்கள். அவர்கள் கல்லியம் பரப்புதல் மூலமாக நம் நாட்டுக்கு எவ்வளவு நன்மைகளைச் செய்து வருகிறார்கள் என்பது எல்லோருக்கும் தெரிந்த விஷயம். இதை மீளாமல் காந்தியவர்களே பலமுறை பாராட்டி சந்தோஷப்பட்டிருக்கிறார். ஹிந்துமத ஸ்தாபனங்களின் சொத்துக்களைக்கொண்டு ஹிந்து மதத்திற்காகவோ அல்லது மதக் கல்விக்காகவோ இதுவரை ஏதாவது செய்திருக்கிறார்கள் என்பதை ஒருவரும் ஒப்புக்கொள்ளமுடியாது. இதைப் பற்றி உண்டு என்று யாரும் ருசுப்படுத்தினால் நன்றாக இருக்கும். என்னை ஊழல்களை, உடனடியாகக் கொடுக்க ஹிந்து மத ஸ்தாபனங்களின் சீர்திருத்த வேண்டும், அரசியல் நிர்ணய சபையில் ஜவாஹர்லால் நேரு அவர்களின் தீவிர பிரவேச எடுத்தக்காடப்படுகிறது. அதே 19 (1) பிரிவின்மீது வார்த்தைகளைச் சேர்த்து விடுவதற்குத் தயார் to மயில் கொண்டு நல்லது வாய் மலர் என்று கூறப்பட்டிருக்கிறது. இந்த அம்சத்தை நினைந்துகொள்ளுங்கள் மத ஸ்தாபனங்களுக்கு நீங்கள் கொடுத்ததுகளை நினைக்கும் உரிமை உண்டு. ஒன்றிருக்கும் ஆதித்ய மத ஸ்தாபனங்கள் களில் இந்த அம்சம் இல்லை என்பதை எல்லோரும் ஒப்புக்கொள்வார்கள். எனவே இந்த மத ஸ்தாபனங்கள் தங்கள் செபத்தை நிர்வகிக்கும் உரிமையை இழந்துவிட்டன. மேலும் அதே சட்டத்தில் 19-வது ஷர்த்து இரண்டாவது உட்பிரிவில் மத விஷயங்களில் சர்க்கார் தலையிடும் உரிமையைப்பற்றி தெளிவாக எடுத்துக்கூறப்படுகிறது. மத சம்பந்தப்பட்ட எந்தப் பொருளாதார, அரசியல் அல்லது பண சம்பந்தப்பட்ட நடவடிக்கைகளிலும் சர்க்கார் தலையிட்டு ஒழுங்குபடுத்தி கட்டுப்பாடு செய்வதை இந்த பாகத்தின் எந்தப் பிரிவும் பாதிக்காது என்று கூறப்படுகிறது. அதற்கு அடுத்தபடியாகவே சமுதாய நன்மைக்காகவும், சமூக சீர்திருத்தத்திற்காகவும் சர்க்கார் எந்த சட்டம் செய்வதையும், இந்த உரிமை பாதிக்காது என்று தெளிவாகக் கூறப்பட்டுக்கிறது. எனவே நம் சர்க்காருக்கு இந்த புதுச் சட்டம் செய்வதற்கு முழு உரிமையும் சட்டமும் இருக்கிறது.

[Srimathi K. Lakshmi Ammal] [7th February 1949]

என்றும் சொன்னார். நான் அவரிடம் பேசிக்கொண்டிருந்தபோது இந்த காங்கிரஸ் வாழும் என்று கேட்டார். நான் அதற்கு நீங்கள் இந்த காங்கிரசினுட்தான் இப்பொழுது சுதந்திரமடைந்து இந்த கொட்டைக்கு முன்பாகவே ஒரு ஓலை குடிசை போட்டுக்கொண்டிருக்க முடிகிறது என்று சொன்னேன். சும்மா பயம் காட்டி உண்ணாவிரதம் இருந்து இந்த சட்டத்தை நிறுத்திவிடுவேன் என்று சொன்னால் அது முடியாத காரியம். அவர் தண்ணீரை குடிப்பது இல்லை என்று சொல்லுகிறார். அது ஆண்டவனுக்கத்தான் தெரியும். தண்ணீர் குடிக்காமலேயே 13 நாட்கள் இருக்க முடியுமா என்பதை யோசனைசெய்து பார்க்கவேண்டும். அது ரொம்பவும் சிரமமான காரியம். தண்ணீர் குடித்தால் நல்ல உயிர் 40 நாள் என்று சொல்வார்கள். அப்படி இவர் இருப்பதாகத் தெரியவில்லை. அந்த சுவாமிஜிக்கு அவ்வளவு சக்தியிருந்தால் எல்லாவற்றையும் மாற்றிவிடலாம். உண்ணாவிரதமிருந்து ஒரு நன்மையையும் செய்ய முடியாது. இந்த உண்ணாவிரதத்திற்காக நாம் சட்டத்தை நிறைவேற்றும் விட்டு விடுவது என்பது முடியாத காரியம். ஆகையால் எல்லா அங்கத்தினர்களும் இந்த சட்டத்தை ஆதரிக்கவேண்டுமென்று கேட்டுக்கொண்டு இத்தான் நான் முடித்துக்கொள்ளுகிறேன்.”

* SRI A. KAMESWARA RAO:—“ Mr. Speaker, I wholeheartedly support the Bill because in my opinion it is the only piece of legislation which comes at the proper time and has been brought in by proper people. If we do not take courage in our hands now and pass this legislation people will become dead against us. If you go to the country side you will see hundreds and thousands of acres of lands occupied by mutts and temples, are all mismanaged. Generally the mutts are the last resort of scoundrels and rogues and many of those who are socially and morally fallen, immediately change their clothes take to kashaya and become sanyasins.”

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA:—"On a point of order. If the speaker had mentioned any person in particular, I would have no objection but the speaker says that most fallen people usually change their dress into kashaya dress and become sanyasins."

[7th February 1949]

MR. SPEAKER:—"He is simply giving expression to his own impression of sanyasins, about people becoming sanyasins. He never said that all people wearing kashaya were rogues and he only said some fallen men and rogues had become sanyasins."

* SRI A. KAMESWARA RAO:—"The cultivators working on the lands get nothing out of them and these people usurp the produce. Further, Sir, when we have passed a measure of land reform like the Zamindari Bill, it is necessary that we should pass a legislation of this nature because thousands of acres of lands are in the hands of mutts where a class of parasites are fed but they do nothing and batten in the name of God. Is anything objectionable aimed at by the Bill? No. If I were put in charge of the portfolio, I will sweep off all these mutts and I will remove those Gods in whose name you are cheating the public and a class of parasites is growing."

SRI A. VAIDYANATHA AYYAR:—"Mr. Speaker, we are now dealing with legislation regarding madathipathis as well as temples. Can it be said on the floor of the House, 'I will sweep away the Gods.' To call madathipathis as scoundrels, is it proper and is it consistent with the dignity of the House?"

MR. SPEAKER:—"The hon. Member I believe said he would do it if he had the power; he has perhaps lost sight of these words."

SRI A. VAIDYANATHA AYYAR:—"That is only with reference to his capacity to do it; but, Sir, is it proper for him to say that he will do such a thing on the floor of the House?"

MR. SPEAKER:—"There is nothing wrong in saying like that."

* SRI A. KAMESWARA RAO:—"I would surely do that because it is in the name of God that all these things are going on. To me, Sir, what is good is God and what is truth is God 'Aham Brahmosmi.' I am myself God and what Mahatmaji said is God and it is not as if these things should be perpetuated in the name of God. What is aimed at is the proper and just management of the temples. We are not proposing to confiscate the lands of the mutts and temples; we are not trying to abolish the mutts or religious institutions. We are only appointing managers and executive officers to see that money is properly spent. You see the difference in the management of the affairs of the Tirupati temple. Now schools are built and money is utilized for the betterment and development of the people. Regarding the fast that is going on outside, can anyone put his hand on his heart, and say that the fast is not a bogus one? I know that particular person who is fasting there and also know what he is."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Let the hon. Member not refer to it."

7th February 1949]

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA:—"Is it proper to attack a person like that and is it decent to utter such words as: 'I know the person and I know what he is'?"

MR. SPEAKER:—"It is not unparliamentary. That much I can say but regarding the question whether it is decent, it is left to the speaker himself."

* SRI A. KAMESWARA RAO:—"I know parliamentary practice better than my hon. Friend, Mr. Raghavayya. I am saying with all the feelings that I have about it. There is another man who is also fasting who has lost some Rs. 80,000 in some contract business with the Government and why do not you show the same sympathy towards him also?" (Cheers from the galleries.)

MR. SPEAKER:—"Somebody in the galleries is clapping his hands; if he repeats it, I will have to clear the galleries."

SRI A. KAMESWARA RAO:—"When the people's Government is in power if time and again some Tom, Dick or Harry goes on fasting and misusing satyagraha, just like the R.S.S. people, we cannot govern the country, we must have courage to govern with an iron hand for otherwise you will not be worthy of the trust reposed in you by the people who have returned you to power. When you appoint people to manage these things, we must try to select the best men. My hon. Friend, Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar, was saying that there might be nepotism, corruption and therefore do not appoint people for this purpose. I say, Sir, when you have to govern, you have to appoint people but in appointing people you must see that good people are appointed and if the persons whom you appoint are bad, you must remove them at any moment. In the name of the people's government, you must come to the rescue of the toiling millions on those lands which are mismanaged; otherwise you will be doing great injustice to the people themselves. I am surprised that in this progressive legislature—it is not the legislature of the days of British imperialism—there are people who support the mutts. If there is mismanagement, they will see our hand but if the things are managed quite nicely, like the properties of the Ramana Maharishi Ashramam, we will have to do nothing but supervise things from the outside. I do not see the reason why there should be any objection to this progressive legislation."

"It being four o'clock, I will continue my speech to-morrow, Sir."

THE MADRAS LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Tuesday, the 8th February 1949.

The House met in the Assembly Chamber, Fort St. George, at eleven of the clock, Mr. Speaker (THE HON. SRI J. SIVA-SHANMUKHAM PILLAI) in the Chair.

THE MADRAS HINDU RELIGIOUS AND CHARITABLE

SRI A. KAMESWARA RAO:—" Mr. Speaker, Sir, yesterday I was referring to the fact that this is a progressive legislation for which there should be no objection from any quarter.

" Now, Sir, I should like to read a sentence from the Statement of Objects and Reasons to this Bill, which says, that power has been taken to extend the provisions of the Bill and the rules made under it with suitable modifications to any public charitable institution over which it may be found necessary to assume control. Sir, in my view, this is a very moderate Bill brought in by our pious and saintly Premier, the Hon. Sri O. P. Ramaswami Reddiar. I have gone through the whole of this Bill and I found nothing objectionable to raise a hue and cry in the country. It is only the interested parties who are affected by this Bill, probably the trustees and the management of the mutts and charitable endowments who are actually enjoying the fruits of those endowments, that are against this legislation and nobody else. Of course, some people are trying to make political capital out of this legislation and they instigate people to go on fast and write things against the Government. I think, Sir, that the Government is quite right in bringing forward this legislation, which is, as I said, a moderate one. They should have gone a little further and have liberated all the lands belonging to these mutts, and handed them over to the actual cultivators of the soil and given them pattas, and used the revenues collected from those lands for these charitable purposes. Such a bold step, such a revolutionary step, I do not find in this Bill. In spite of this Bill being a very moderate one, there is still opposition to it and I am only sorry for it.

"Then, Sir, as regards some of the provisions of this Bill, especially the clauses relating to the service inams, there is no mention about the Archakas, who have really kept up the temple in a good state, and who have been there doing service for years together. Provision has been made only for Devadasis whose inams will be enfranchised by the imposition of quit-rent. As regards Archakas who have been hereditary holders of the post, they are going to be displaced and no provision has been made for them. Some sort of compensation or some sort of right must be conceded for the Archakas in this Bill.

"Then Sir, as regards the abolition of the existing Boards and re-constituting them, I think that there must be some provision in this Bill to absorb those people who have put in a number of years of service, and all of them should not be discharged peremptorily. I hope that the Hon. Minister in charge of this Bill will see that none of the present office-holders is sent out or victimized without proper reasons. There are very intelligent and very upright persons who have been working in the present Religious Endowments Board, as Commissioner or as President or in any other capacity and they should also be absorbed in the future set-up.

"Sir, it is needless for me to quote many of the instances of mismanagement and corruption that is going on in these religious and charitable endowments. I know, for instance, that in Sattana-palli taluk, a man died, endowing about a hundred acres of land to a charitable institution, but after his death, the lands fell into the hands of some relatives and they are eating away that property and the purpose for which that property was endowed has not been carried out, and the endowment is almost decaying."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Let the hon. Member confine his remarks now to the general principles of the Bill. When we take up the clauses in detail at the second reading, he can go into all these details."

SRI A. KAMESWARA RAO:—"Sir, when speaking of these mutts, a painful incident comes to my mind. I remember, when

[8th February 1949] [Sri A. Kameswara Rao]

I was just out of the jail in 1921 after one year's incarceration, and my family was going through poverty, Sri Sankaracharya came to my village. My father who had then given up his Government service and all my brothers who had also given up their employments and suffering under poverty, were asked to contribute a sum of Rs. 101 to the Acharya, in the name of God, and in the name of the mutt. We could not resist the compulsion and we had to mortgage the last utensils to pay that contribution of Rs. 101. I therefore submit, Sir, that no mercy and no quarter should be shown to these mutts. They have lost all the human sympathy and fellow-feeling in them. They are simply grabbing whatever money they could get at from their disciples by way of Pathakanikas and Sambavanas. All these things should be stopped immediately. This Bill is aiming at the control of such mutts, which have plenty of lands and money, which are being wasted.

"Sir, I should like to see that after this Bill becomes law, all these cultivable lands are taken over from these religious and charitable endowments and brought under a system of collective farming by the State. The poor agricultural labourers who are now working on these lands should be given the patta. Such funds that you get as land revenue from these lands should be utilized for the maintenance of those institutions and a portion of it may be utilized for the general good of the public, for example, on some educational or health purposes.

"Sir, it is rather too late now when we introduce a Bill like this in our country. Look at some of the progressive countries of the world and see how the Government of those countries have taken over the administration of the charitable endowments into their own hands by passing legislations of this sort quite a long time ago. It is, in my opinion, merely foolishness and ignorance to oppose a good measure like this."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The hon. Member should withdraw the words 'foolishness and ignorance' unconditionally, because every Member has a right to oppose the Bill in the House."

SRI A. KAMESWARA RAO:—"I withdraw those words, Sir. I say, Sir, that it is not proper for some of the Members to oppose this Bill, which is a very beneficial measure. It is not proper for persons to oppose this Bill, which is full of beneficial provisions and which is aiming at the very rectification of the evils that are persisted in in these mutts and charitable institutions. I see no other thing in the opposition to this Bill than the making of political capital out of this and bringing the Government of the day into discredit. One of the arguments put forward by the people who are trying to oppose is this. Wait till the next elections take place and see who comes into power. I warn you, Sir."

MR. SPEAKER:—"You warn me?"

[8th February 1949]

SRI A. KAMESWARA RAO:—"I warn the people who are opposing the Bill, Sir. I would like to say that the next elections or the future elections that might come will only bring more progressive elements into this House. Certainly you cannot say who will come. They would say 'how can you tolerate such a legislation which gives a free hand to exploit the poor and unhappy toilers?' So the slogan 'wait till the next elections' will only go against those who are opposing the legislation. As regards the coercive methods that are being used in order to coerce . . ."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Member after member has referred to the coercive method. The hon. Member is repeating the same thing about the fast, etc. Let not the hon. Member repeat them again."

SRI A. KAMESWARA RAO:—"I only say, Sir, that if really people have understood these measures, they would come in large numbers and demonstrate against such methods. It is already happening in this City and there has been a popular protest against such fasts and to a great extent the people are proving that they are behind the Government in this legislation. I, Sir, would only like to conclude my speech with an appeal to the Hon. Minister that he should see that the poor archakas who are about 4 lakhs are taken into consideration and their rights are preserved, especially in the Andhra districts where they are not paid servants, but are people who are enjoying inams. They should be shown some concession because they are the poorest of the lot and they are people who have kept the Gods in spite of so many invasions by the Muhammadans and others. I appeal to the Hon. Minister to see that nobody is affected by the abolition of this Board and all those servants who are there are reappointed and absorbed in the department. With these words, Sir, I support the legislation and I congratulate the Government."

* SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, the motion before the House is to introduce the Bill and refer it to the Select Committee. And there is an amendment to the motion that the Bill should be published for public criticism. The question now for consideration is whether we ought to take the Bill at once or it should be taken a little later. That is the main question that has to be discussed on the floor of the House. But we are really transcending that point and going into the question as to who is really responsible for the wrong or the misdeed, whether it is the mutts or the matathipathis or even the temple trustees. When we say that the Bill should at least be referred for public opinion, it does not mean that we are opposed to any reform in the matter of the management of the temples or the mutts or any of the charities. There is still the idea that this thing is done in real haste and that this should be really published for the purpose of eliciting opinion. Let there be no mistaken impression about what we say. The real matter is whether this Bill was really published for public criticism. One point was made by the Hon. Minister, Sir, when he said that in September 1947 they had already published the Bill and for sixteen months now it has been before the public and if there was any criticism to be made it ought to have been made and when there is no criticism it can be taken that there is no criticism at all. That is one of the points that was made by the Hon. Minister and I say that it is thoroughly and wholly based on a misconception. We know that when this Government publish their Bills they do not take it for months together because they are not serious about them. So, they put them on and withdraw them also. If they published this Bill in September 1947 it does not mean that they were so serious about it. It is only when it is placed before the Congress Legislature Party and they give a mandate that the Bill might be pushed through in the Legislature, it can be said that the Government are serious about the Bill. So far as this Bill is concerned it was only the other day that it was considered in the party and they came to a certain conclusion on the matter. Therefore I respectfully submit that it is not correct to say that the people have not sent in their opposition before the Legislature. Congress Party has really said that this Bill may be introduced in the House. Therefore that argument that there have been sixteen months for the purpose of opposition is really without any foundation and cannot be taken as of any value or worth.

"In September 1947 a Bill was published. But, is this the same Bill that was published then? This Bill was published only a fortnight or 10 days ago. Though in the main it is the same Bill there are certain differences between the Bill published in September 1947 and this one that is now before us, especially in the case of the question of the abolition of the Board altogether. If I remember aright the proposal in the old Bill was that the Board and its Members and all the staff should be provincialized and put on a provincial line. Now there is the important proposition that the whole Board must go and all the persons who are really there must be sent away. I do not know what is to become of these persons. Therefore it is not correct to say that this Bill has been before the public in its present form for sixteen months or so."

"Another thing which I want to point out is this. It is said that there is no opposition and therefore 'let me go on with the Bill.' I ask the Government whether they have brought in this Bill because the public have demanded it. They only say: 'We introduce this Bill because there is no opposition. Therefore let us go on.' Sir, if at all any change is to be made in any law of the land, it must be on the demand made by the public in respect of the change. But that process has been reversed here. They seem to say: 'We think, sitting in the Secretariat here, that a change is necessary. We have put a Bill before you. Because there is no opposition we are entitled to carry on.' Is that the correct view to take on the principles of legislation? It is not so."

[Sri K. Bhashyam] [8th February 1949]

"Sir, reference has been made to the Regulation of 1817 for the purpose of safeguarding all the religious and charitable endowments. I know that in ancient times when a trustee was found guilty of offences against the temple and its property, he was burnt alive. That was the injunction. What did the Government do under the Regulation of 1817? They said—

'It shall be the duty of the Board of Revenue to take such measures as may be necessary to ensure that all endowments made for the maintenance of establishments of the description above mentioned are duly appropriated to the purpose for which they were destined by Government or the individuals by whom such endowments were made.'

They only said that 'the superintendence of all endowments in land or money granted for the support of mosques, Hindu temples or colleges, is hereby vested in the Board of Revenue'. They did not interfere in the internal management. They made a law which is applicable to all religions. You cannot tell a section of the people 'we will hit you in the first instance; you are guilty of offences.' It is not as if other people are angels and Hindus alone are sinners. That is hardly fair. You say when it is a question of endowments of other religions, there will be difficulty. You say 'I will await public opinion; I will circulate the Bill; I will publish it, and place it before the people.' But when it comes to Hindu endowments, you say, 'No, I must take it up at once.' Why this urgency, Sir? Why is this hurry when matters are really in the hands of your own Commissioners who are managing 22,000 temples and 300 mutts? The persons who are there are all appointed by your own Commissioners. If there is anything wrong in these temples, it is the Board that is to blame. How can the persons in charge of the mutts and temples be blamed? To blame the mutts and charitable endowments for mismanagement, is hardly fair. Therefore, I respectfully submit that the Government must submit this Bill to public opinion.

"Sir, this Bill is a very ambitious one. True there have been cases of mismanagement. True there has been some dereliction of duty on the part of some mutts and temples. For the fault of a few persons, to label all persons in charge of temples and religious endowments as persons who have been eating the Trust money, is hardly fair. There have been breaches of trust in some cases. I ask, Sir, are the Government so powerful as to put all things right? Are there not breaches of trust, embezzlement and misappropriation of public money? What do you do in those cases? You only punish the individuals. Government do certainly take care to see that things are put right. It is a fact that there have been breaches of trust funds and the funds of religious endowments. Say, that you want to exercise control over these endowments and trusts. That is the way to administer them properly and not by taking over their administration by Government themselves. You expose yourself to suspicion or even accusation that your servants are going to be put in charge of these endowments. There is corruption and embezzlement of public money everywhere. We are unable to drive out corruption. We are unable to put public servants on a proper footing. Why then should you take more and more work and expose yourself to the accusation that your servants are going to be put in charge of these institutions? Is there no competent person to manage these endowments properly? I know there is a saint at the top and there are satellites sitting around him. If these institutions are left in their own hands, they would look after them. But you are appointing officers and managers to 22,000 temples and 300 mutts. Are you going to manage these institutions properly? Past experience has shown that Government management is not so good. It is not even better than the management by the Board.

"It has been pointed out that these institutions are well managed in the Mysore State. There are two factors there. One is that these institutions have been handed down from generation to generation. It has been a tradition there. The persons at the top are Hindus who are known for their faith in temples. They are pious people and they believe in rites and rituals. But what are the persons whom the Government here are going to appoint? You are not going to give them any training in religious matters. You are not going to teach them what rituals are. It is said that persons must be well-versed in Agamas. How are you to get these persons? It will come to a question of a cadre of service, just like the cadre of Collectors, and persons will be pushed up from behind whether they are qualified or not for the post. You are not going to do better than what the Board has done. When Government take over the management, there will be an Ecclesiastical Department, and persons will be appointed to the posts whether or not they know anything of religion or mutts. It is so hopelessly a difficult matter for the Government to take up this work. It is said that there is need to deal with religion, because people are not pious. But I want to ask whether by passing this Bill we are going to make them better? It is said that Communism is spreading and irreligion is rampant. Sir, you believe in God and you believe in ceremonies. To-morrow who are going to be in power, we cannot say. Is it safe to entrust the working of these mutts and temples in the hands of Government? I respectfully submit that this Bill is wholly atrocious. This Bill is a very ambitious one. It seeks to take powers not only in respect of temples but also mutts and charitable endowments, private and public. How many charitable institutions are there? How many schools are run by charitable endowments? How many thannirpandals which are instituted by private men are to be taken over and managed by Government? How many officers the Government should have? Sir, sub-clause (11) of Clause 5 says—

'religious charity' means a charity associated with a Hindu festival, observance or occasion of a religious character, whether it be connected with a math or temple or not.

[Sri K. Bhashyam] [8th February 1949]

For instance, I leave a certain amount of money to my daughter so that on the Deepavali day she may distribute cloths to the poor. It is a Hindu festival. According to this sub-clause you may say 'I will manage this endowment myself, and I will put a man to manage it'. I ask, Sir, is that what is intended? If you are to take over religious charities like these, how many men you should have to administer them? All this officializing the mutts and temples shows the distrust in the people whom you rule over to-day. Cannot Government leave it to the people themselves? In the political field, you are trying to have panchayat administration. You want to make people self-sufficient. You want the people to administer public funds. Why not do the same thing so far as temples go? In olden days, these panchayats have been managing these affairs. Whether it was good or not, it was better management. Why take away the hereditary trustee and put in a new recruit who does not know anything of religion, but who comes there with his hat, boot, and cigarette in his lips? Is this man going to preserve religion? My experience has so far been that the hereditary man may have been guilty of small breaches of trust. He may take some garden produce or he may take some other help from the institution. But during the festivals, his prestige is involved. He puts thousands and thousands of rupees for the purpose of performing that festival. He is pleasing his Kuladaivam then. It is his family Daivam. Therefore, he says 'I will spend all the money'. Is it right, Sir, to dismiss that man? A man makes a charity and he entrusts it to persons who will carry out that charity in accordance with his wishes. Schools, colleges and thannirpandals are run on charities. Is it possible for Government to take over all these charitable endowments? It is too ambitious a Bill. Let Government at least restrict the Bill to temples for the present. The Government may postpone charitable endowments for some time. If the Hon. Minister is sincere, he should be prepared to accept basic changes in the Bill when it goes before the Select Committee. Let him not say 'I voted against the amendment' then.

"Sir, we are interfering with the internal administration. We propose to fix the dittam or scale of expenditure in the institutions. The dittam may provide for six worships. But Government may say one is enough. The dittam may provide for two or three measures of rice. But you may put it at one measure saying 'Does God eat food'? Therefore, if Government really want that these institutions should be administered properly, let them exercise control over the administration and not take over the institutions themselves. Let them develop local committees for the proper management of the temples. As regards maths, the disciples of the maths will take care of the maths. They will form a committee to advise the matathipathi on secular matters. What is being done in foreign countries in respect of trust properties? In England, there is the Trust Act under which charity commissioners are appointed. They have powers to investigate, check and inspect everything in trusts. If they notice any breach of trust, they bring it before courts. All schemes are scrutinized by these commissioners. There is budgeting, auditing and inspection of accounts. I can understand a Government taking up all these things. But it is quite a different thing to say 'I will interfere with private management; I will interfere by issuing a notification'. What will happen if you dismiss the trustee or Swami? Are Government going to appoint another Swami for that purpose. The whole principle of the Bill is based on the distrust of the people who are managing the institutions. Therefore, Sir, if you really change the Bill altogether, I will gladly support it. You have to take into account local sentiments, local interests concerned and local enthusiasm and then really organize and harness them for the purpose of managing these institutions. But, if you take upon yourselves, the management of those institutions at this stage, it will be very difficult for you and you will not be able to get out of the mesh.

"Now, Sir, what is being done to-day? The Board has collected about 16 lakhs of rupees by way of charities. These sixteen lakhs have accumulated all from temple money. Do the Government want to make a present of this to the Hon. the Finance Minister in order to help the Budget? Sir, these sixteen lakhs have been collected from some small temples also. Because they have to pay a certain percentage, they had to sell certain temple jewels. Therefore, Sir, there is a very great danger of these sixteen lakhs of rupees being used for purposes other than for which it is intended. If that happens, it will really be an act of vandalism, if I may say so. If at all you want to bring in a Bill for the improvement of the administration of the temples, do it properly and in a right manner. Consult the various denominations and also the persons who are really at present managing those temples and mutts. Let them offer their remarks; take their advice and make them really interested in the temples. Sir, you cannot compare these religious institutions and temples to schools. In every district, there are many schools and we send persons from here to inspect those schools but the village people have no control over the schools themselves. Any amount of representation by them in the matter of some improvement goes without avail, because there is a wide gulf between the persons who manage the affairs of those schools and the people of the locality. But, if you really want a harmonious relationship to be maintained and if you want the best results to be achieved, then you should take into account the opinions of the local people. The necessity is the more in the case of these religious institutions.

"Sir, at this stage, I do not want to go into the details because all the details have been gone into by various speakers. If in spite of what has been said that the Bill should be circulated for public opinion, if you really want to proceed with the Bill and refer it to the Select Committee, please have a good select committee which will go into the various suggestions and criticisms made in this House and modify the Bill in such a manner that it will conform to the constitution and will also make it effective against the embezzlement of public money. If that is to be done, Government should lend a willing ear to the various managements administering the temple affairs at present.

"I should also like to point out that Government should take into consideration not only my suggestions but also the suggestions of the various people concerned in the matter from outside and from the mufassal and then the Select Committee should go into the Bill and also through the various suggestions. Therefore, Sir, I support the motion for circulation of the Bill for the purpose of eliciting public opinion."

இன்னும் சட்டத்தினால் சமயம் கெடக்கூடாது. இந்த சட்டத்தில் சமய வளர்ச்சிக்கு இடமில்லை. மேலாட்டிலும் நம் நாட்டிலும் சட்டத்தால் மத்ததைக் காப்பாற்றவில்லை. இராமானுஜர், சங்கரர், புத்தர், கிருஷ்ண முதலானவர்கள் காந்தி முதலியவர்கள் ஆன்மார்த்த உழைப்பில் மத்ததை பரப்பினார்கள். நம் நாட்டிலுள்ள மடங்கள் வேதங்களாலும் ஆகாயங்களாலும் ஏற்பட்டன. சிவாகமம் தெரியாதவர் பூஜை செய்ப்புறமுடியாது. மதுபரிபாலன போர்க்கு பலமளித்து நடத்தலாம். கமிஷனரும் நிருவாக அதிகாரிகளும் ஆகமங்கள் படித்தவர்களாக இருக்கவேண்டும். துறவிகள் மீது அதிகாரம் வகிப்பதால் படித்த துறவிகளே கமிஷனர்களாக இருக்கவேண்டும். சில ஸ்தாபனங்களில் சுயமரியாதைக்காரர்கள் கமிஷனர்களாக வந்திருப்பது எனக்கு தெரியும். அவர்களுக்கு மதசபங்களைப்பற்றி என்ன தெரியும். மடாதிபதிகளின் சங்கம் நிறுவி அதன் மூலம் பரிபாலனம் செய்யவேண்டும். ஆகையால் பொது அபிப்பிராயத்தையும் மடாதிபதிகளின் அபிப்பிராயத்தையும் கேட்கவேண்டியது அவசியம். Select Committee-க்கு அனுப்பினாலும் அங்கே ஆகமம் தெரிந்த பண்டிதர்களும், துறவிகளும் இருத்தல்வேண்டும். ஆப்சர்களை நியமிக்கும்போது காமிக ஆகமம், ஆசார்ய லட்சணம் உரைத்த அத்தியாயத்தை அறிந்தாலொழிய அவர்களை கமிஷனர்களாக நியமிக்கக்கூடாது. காமிக ஆகமம், ஆசார்ய, லட்சணம் உரைத்த அத்தியாயம் 136-137-வது சுலோகங்கள் திசைகள் பெற்று ஆகமம் தெரிந்திருந்தாலொழிய பூஜை செய்யக்கூடாது. அந்த 136, 137 சுலோகங்களில் சொல்லுவது 'திசை இறுதியில் ஆதிசைவர்களுக்கு சிவாகமங்களில் செவ்வையாக பாண்டித்தியமிருப்பதால் பார்த்தாலய பூஜைக்கு யோக்யருவார்'. சிவாகமம் தெரியாவிடில் பூஜைக்கு அருகரல்ல. காமிகாகமம் ஆகையால் கமிஷனர்களும் நிருவாக அதிகாரிகளும் தருமகர்த்தாக்களும் ஐந்து வருஷம் வைதீகம் படித்தவர்களாக இருத்தல் வேண்டும். அப்படி படித்துவந்து இராமகிருஷ்ண மத்ததைப்போன்று நடத்தவேண்டும் ஆகையால் இந்த சட்டத்தை இப்பொழுது அவசரமாகக் கொண்டுவராமல் புது அர சாங்கம் வந்த பிறகு கொண்டுவரலாம். அல்லது கணம் வைத்யனாதய்யர் சொல்லுகிறபடி பொதுஜன அபிப்பிராயத்திற்கு விட்டு அதன் பிறகு கொண்டுவரலாம் என்று கேட்டுக்கொள்ளுகிறேன். ஆகையால் நமது கணம் வைத்யனாதய்யர் கொண்டுவந்த திருத்தத்தை ஆதரிக்கிறேன்.

* SRI D. V. RAMASWAMI:—“Sir, I am thankful to you and to the Hon. the Leader of the House for giving the Members of this House full opportunity to express their opinions on an important measure like this and I fully appreciate the object of the Government. Sir, this Bill has been brought forward in order to remedy the defects in the managements of the religious and charitable endowments in this Province. While agreeing to that proposition, I am one of those who believe that there are more serious problems which the Government have yet to tackle which are purely secular matters, like the prevention of corruption, hoarding and black-marketing. In these directions, we have not been able to achieve the object because the public have not been co-operating fully with the Government in all these measures. When such is the case, much more will be the difficulty to achieve such public co-operation when religious institutions are sought to be taken over by the Government.

“Sir, it has been ably pointed out by Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar and also by the Yuvaraja of Pithapuram that there is a fundamental objection to this Bill and their argument was, ‘Can a secular Government take upon itself the management of religious, and charitable institutions and trusts? Can our Legislature interfere or restrict the rights of individuals or persons who manage those religious institutions?’ Sir, that being the main question, the proposition is, ‘Can we at this stage, when the question of the fundamental rights and the section dealing with those fundamental rights in the new constitution have already been passed by a House wherein our Province has been fully represented by no less than 45 representatives—can we, at this stage, do anything which will take away that right which has already been conceded?’

“Secondly, Sir, it may be noted also that our Government as well as the Government of the Indian Union of which we form part, claim to be secular and not religious or theocratic states like Pakistan. There it is possible for people—I do not wish to use the word ‘molested’—but it is possible for people’s rights to be prejudiced on account of their religion. But, we should be very cautious in applying our minds to measures which interfere with such matters. For the first time, we Indians, feel that we are free to legislate for our good. But, in matters like this which are vital problems, there are the Leaders at Delhi to shoulder the responsibility. Important problems like securing food for the millions and also housing for the masses and guaranteeing a better health for the poor village folk are engaging the attention of the Government so much so Government have to find several crores of rupees for large measures like the improvement of irrigation, execution of river-projects, construction of hospitals, formation of linguistic provinces and so on. Sir, considering the present Indian State of affairs, we can say that matters are in utter confusion and by your action in bringing in a measure like this, you will only be adding to the confusion which is already prevailing. Only when there is an absolute and urgent necessity which justifies the taking up a Bill of this nature can the Government take up such measures in hand. But, now what do we find? People who are learned, people who are entitled to great respect and people who spent their lives in interpreting the law and the Sastras have given their definite opinion that this Bill need not be pursued at this stage but it should be deferred until such time that we are in a position to have a clear view both on the legal aspect as well as from the point of view that public opinion requires such a measure like this. Therefore I am very sorry that the Government are not able to see the sincerity and the strength of public opinion. By public opinion I mean the opinion of persons who have devoted some portion of their time and energy to serve the cause of religion, not merely in social reform or economic uplift. It is a vital matter for those who have built up these institutions. People like our hon. Friend Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar who used to be called to Wardha by the Father of the Nation for consultation in regard to temple entry and other measures of social reform intended to remove the encrustations in the field of religion, have earnestly pleaded for postponement of the consideration of the Bill till such time as public opinion is elicited on it. I feel it is quite proper that the Government should kindly reconsider their attitude and not rush through this legislation which is of doubtful value. Some gentlemen have spoken disparagingly about persons who have wanted that more time should be given to the consideration of a Bill of this nature. I am reminded of the saying of Socrates with regard to who are our friends. He said:

'Think, not of them as friends who simply say "Aye Aye" to what you say, but only those honest friends who will give their criticisms of your follies.'

Therefore, your friends are those who will suggest ways and means of carrying out your reformatory views in such a way and at such a time and with such safeguards that the reforms will be absolutely applauded by everyone who is interested in the institutions affected by the reform. In my humble opinion, it seems to me that it is neither necessary nor desirable to press the motion for reference to select committee which if accepted would mean that the House has accepted the very principle of the Bill. I therefore appeal humbly to the Premier and the Hon. Minister to reconsider the matter and see if they could not accept the motion of Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar."

* DR. D. S. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"Sir, it is with considerable reluctance that I rise to speak on this Bill. Very strong feelings have been engendered in the discussion of this Bill. While we profess that religion ought to bring us peace and goodwill, when questions bordering on religion are touched, unnecessary heat is being generated. Therefore I made up my mind not to speak. But since the occasion has arisen, it would be cowardice on my part not to say how I feel on this question. Sir, the Government is strong, powerful and has great backing and can do what it wants to do. That is the very reason why I appeal to the Government: let not the hour of success be the hour of defeat.

"I have known Dr. Rajan for many years and always admired him for his pluck and courage. When he was Public Health Minister in the previous Government, overnight he put an end to caste in the medical profession. It was done through his daring. All in the medical profession are greatly indebted to him. When he makes up his mind he can do big things. While in this Government, he has used the privilege and the right of his profession and told us when to starve and when to feed lightly. Occasionally when great people came to Madras he gave us enough for sumptuous lunches and dinners and told us that we ought to be happy and contented with our lot. Finally the task of piloting this Bill has fallen on him. I have waited with considerable interest to see whether the old Rajan would come here also. Though in his own Province, in his own field, he has been an expert, in dealing with the legal ramifications of this Bill he has proved almost a novice. Probably he has been asked to do a thing which as a medical man he cannot. We medical men have sometimes to cut to the quick to cure. There may be some difficulty in trying to bring his experience to bear upon this problem. He has not given us any adequate reason for this. He quoted authority. He said that since he is piloting this Bill and the Premier is in sympathy with it, everything must be well with the Bill. His conclusions and his method of approach to the legal point of view has been rather tortuous and not altogether convincing. The problem has to be approached from the practical point of view. I do not hold any brief for the madathipathis and those who are in charge of religious endowments in this country. I have often heard people being dissatisfied with the management of these institutions. But the remedy suggested seems to me to be worse than the disease. To teach the people to do the right thing in the right way at the right time is not easy. Legislative interference is not the solution. If the Government believe that legislative interference and ruthless way of dealing with it is the only way of solving the problem satisfactorily, I have not the slightest objection for the Government trying this experiment. But if it is merely a legal quibble, then when we quit the scene a new Government will come and undo everything that we have done. But when the question is social and moral and there are spiritual sanctions behind it and the feelings of those who are in charge of the religious faith of the people are involved, the approach must be quite different. You cannot compel a people or a group of people to be more moral than they really are. That does not mean you should be satisfied with things as they obtain today. When things go altogether wrong the Government have already got the power to interfere. But, Sir, interference is one thing and complete control is another. If you find that things have gone very wrong you can come down with all your might and crush the delinquent, but you cannot altogether do away with an institution which has enshrined the highest religious instincts of the people.

"Sir, I have heard the cry that religion is in danger. Any religion worth the name need not fear of being in danger. So long as there is truth, beauty and love in any religion, it can never be in danger. But it is in the aids that these religious mutts are going to be given by the state, that the danger lies. Religion has its enemies, but the worst enemies are from among its followers who do not live up to the highest ideals of the religion. I myself am conscious of the darker side of almost all the religions and Hinduism is no exception. At the same time I am conscious of the highest ideals of Hindu religion its conception of duty, love, goodness, etc. Whether you can supplement these by what you are advocating, I have my own doubts. Sir, the hon. Member Swami Sahajananda has just hinted at one way of solving this problem namely calling of a round table conference of all the religious heads and those who manage the affairs of these institutions. Sir, in spite of all that is being said, there is something that is best and highest that is preserved in these institutions. . . ."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The hon. Member may continue his speech after lunch."

The House adjourned for lunch.

(After lunch—2-30 p.m.)

DR. D. S. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"Sir, I would like to refer to an experience of mine in London. It was at the time of the Second Round Table Conference. Mahatmaji happened to be there then. An English friend of ours, greatly interested in India, has asked all the young men and young women in London to meet at a social gathering. A great many people, young and middle-aged, particularly young, assembled there. There were graduates, post-graduates and students who lived in that country for several years. This lady put it to them this way. 'Now, your elders including Mahatma Gandhi have come here to negotiate with the British Government as to what the policy of the Indian Government should be in future. As young men and young women, the hope of the future, have you got anything definite to contribute so that I can send a message to Mahatma Gandhi that Young India wants this thing to be done in the name of the country?' She asked the young men and young women to tell the audience and also come to a definite conclusion so that it might be sent to Mahatma Gandhi. Man after man rose and spoke, ably seconded by women, young and middle-aged. Their main dictum was that India had one grievance, one obstacle, that obstacle must be removed and if that obstacle is removed India would be free and India would be great. But, if that obstacle continues to exist, India could never lift up her head and never hope to do her duty. What was that obstacle, they were asked. It was, they said, religion. Religion had been the stumbling block of India and so long as people for religious reasons close to keep themselves apart and break their heads, even in the name of God, the nation can never be one. If you want India to raise herself, let religion go. That was the opinion given almost by everybody who spoke there. Then I went over to the United States. There young India was actuated by the same motive. But, Sir, all that is very best, highest and noblest in the country has been enshrined by religious ideals and spiritual enthusiasm. Mahatma Gandhi won because he kept up the spiritual fervour of the country, spoke with spiritual force and carried everything through it. And he won our freedom by spiritual force. Now, if that was the motive that actuated Young India some ten or twelve years ago, I want you to see for yourselves and judge whether there has since been any considerable change in the angle of vision."

[8th February 1949] [Dr. D. S. Ramachandra Rao]

"Sir, in European countries we have seen what irreligion has done and we have seen what religious fanaticism as well as religious disruption have created. But, to us now with all our communal differences, the only factor that could really keep us all together is not irreligion but religion, the fatherhood of God and brotherhood of man and into this holy sanctuary can the State with any propriety interfere, make any inroads and take away, as it were, the spiritual birthright of a nation. No doubt, religion is not as pure as it might be and many enervations have crept in through centuries of cupidity and stupidity on the part of those who should have known better and should have conducted it on better lines, but still there is a limit for everything. No doubt, mistakes have been made, and those who were in charge of the spiritual ideals of people have often desecrated those high ideals of fatherhood of God and brotherhood of man. How are we to deal with this problem? Is it by calling in the State to interfere? And what is the chance of India being one if you are going to remove altogether the brakes or the controls of religion? When religions go wrong or when religious heads prove unworthy of their calling, of course, it is open to the State to come to the help of the people by getting rid of them. You may make legislation strict if you like, but you should make people feel that it does not go over their heads in religious affairs. Sir, that is one thing. You cannot always keep things going. I suggest that the State has the right to purge and to purify. . . ."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The hon. Member's time is up. He has already taken 20 minutes. How many minutes more does the hon. Member want?"

DR. D. S. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"Five minutes more, Sir."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Yes."

DR. D. S. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"Thank you, Sir. But, you cannot possibly usurp and supplant, because spiritual growth is a growth from inside, and no external authority can change the heart or the angle of vision. Sir, we call ours a Secular State and pride in our State being a Secular State and a democratic State. A Secular State, cannot interfere in religious management. You may control but not usurp! Again we call ourselves a democratic State. What is democracy? It is the capacity to understand one another and to come to a compromise with one another. And, Sir, has our democratic State compromised with others' ideals? Even in our own Party, is it not simply the holding up of hands? Have we compromised with one another? Have we seen the other side of the picture at all, and have we taken the trouble to do it? Sir, when things are in that way, if you are going to let the State interfere in religion, have you got the means to do it? Of course, your ideals may be good, but you must have the means to carry them out. Pandit Nehru the other day said there is a dearth of getting A.I. . . ."

[Dr. D. S. Ramachandra Rao] [8th February 1949]

Sirdar Patel also said the other day that the chief obstacle to our Government is the lack of talent, lack of experience. But when in a Secular State to administer secular things you find it difficult to get A-1 men, what in regard to these religious institutions you are going to do so as to touch the hearts of the people? Have you got the men with requisite education, requisite culture and requisite spiritual touch and of moral enthusiasm? If you are asking the State to interfere in religion, religion won't be in danger, but the State would be in danger and our Government will expose the bankruptcy of the State to the public.

"Now, Sir, there is another question that you will have to consider. The Hindu community is a large community. To-day you may pass one set of rules or laws and to-morrow you may change them. By their great momentum the masses might do and undo things. But there are smaller minorities who may in the long run be affected and this very principle of interference by the State may affect them seriously. Can they break this? Therefore, when you once allow the thin end of the wedge to get in, can you give us the assurance that it would be stopped there and would not advance further and so also the so-called secular State in trying to use its influence will not gradually become fascist in its ultimate ramifications. I would, therefore, advise before it is too late that while you profess our State to be secular, keep it on secular lines. Again, if you want to be democratic, there is no harm in accepting the amendment of my hon. Friend Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar, because he asks for nothing more than the postponement of the consideration of the Bill by a few more months. You will not lose anything by accepting that amendment. It may be you are right, but why not see the other side of the picture? They want only a little more time to consider. Let things settle themselves. After all what is this breathless haste for? Is it democracy altogether? It is annihilation of the very principle for which we fought. We have fought against autocracy and we are now considering ourselves democratic, but we are simply plunging headlong towards fascism. Therefore, I trust that the Government would think twice and thrice before undertaking a principle which violates the very principle for which we fought hard and even died."

SRI P. KANDASWAMY PILLAI:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am really happy to be here on this important occasion to speak a few words on behalf of the Government and I am glad that they have introduced the Bill. The Bill can be divided into several parts. I wish to divide this Bill into three parts, the endowments, the maths and the temples. Several maths have got money enough to manage their own affairs. But all of us can agree that the amount they receive from the Government or from the estate, is not utilized for the full benefit of the society for which it exists to-day. I think, Sir, there will be no two opinion about this matter. Because all enlightened people are here in this august Assembly, every one of us can search our heart and say whether the amount is spent fully for the benefit of the society for which it exists or for the benefit of the administrators and people who are in charge of its affairs. I venture to say in this House to-day without any fear of contradiction, that it is misused for the benefit of the persons who are engaged in its affairs whether it is a temple or a math and whether it is a big 'swamiji' or a simple person. Of course, they give the account and they present the budget. But if you go into the matter, you will find out clearly that a lion's share of the amount is spent for their personal advantage. Therefore, there is every necessity why the Government must look into the matter and come to the rescue of the society. We have assured to our people that all privileges will be given to them after the advent of our freedom.

"Now, coming to 'pujas', we must see whether the temple pujas and rituals are performed according to Agamas. That is my question because all our habits and customs and rituals are enunciated in the temples for the uplift of the religion. What is religion? Scientifically, if you analyse religion, you will see that religion is there to mould the character of the people. To mould the character of the people, they must have a society in which they must live like brothers. All the human beings are sons of God. (At this stage the Deputy Speaker occupied the Chair.) Therefore, all the people must feel united and feel the brotherhood. In our present day customs and habits either in the temples or in the maths, there is enough disunity and there is enough fight between each other. There is not at all the recognition of brotherhood. These 'matadhipathis' and persons who are managing temples never care to know that they exist for the unification of the society. They are there to give religious education. They are there to educate the people either in the religious aspect or at least in 'bhakthi'. Therefore, when they do not realize their responsibility and the temple authorities do not execute their duties properly for the advantage of the people and when they do not care to educate the people in religious matters, then what is the purpose served by allowing them to continue in their own way. So, there is ample justification for our people's Government, the Congress Government, to take up the management of these religious institutions for the benefit of the society.

"Then, again it is stated on the floor of the House that this Government want to employ their own men in the religious institutions. Are they going to import people from China, Japan and England? Certainly not. Our own brothers and our own men who have got religious knowledge and courage to execute duties will be appointed there.

"It was pointed out that if a Saivite is appointed to Srirangam temple, he will not be able to execute the temple affairs properly and similar difficulty will arise if Vadagalai people are appointed to administer Thengalai temples. I am sure that in that matter the Government are more fully aware of the difficulties than a number of us who speak about them but do not practice the same. Regarding appointments, the Government, I am sure, will take every precaution to select persons who will be competent to discharge their duties to the fullest satisfaction of the people. Then it was said that the State should not interfere with religion. I may tell them, Sir, that even from the days of Akbar, they were taking care of religion and they have given several gifts to temples and if in the management the temple authorities did anything wrong, they interfered in order to set right things. When the Raja of Panagal introduced the Hindu Religious Endowments Bill, we opposed the measure tooth and nail because at the time there was the Britisher ruling the country and he belonged to another religion. After the Congress Government took charge, very happily our Rajaji put this portfolio in the hands of his best friend. We cannot be deterred simply because slogans are raised with the object of securing votes for the future. Srimathi Lakshmi Bharathi during the course of her speech yesterday explained how from the beginning the State was legislating; did not we have the Shop Assistants Bill, and the Harijan Temple Entry Bill? The Government legislate on all aspects of life but they do it for the good of the people. They do it all the world over and we are also copying it. The British Government when they were here did not allow us to do our duty properly. Now that we have undertaken a great responsibility we should not fear as what we are attempting is one-hundredth of our task ahead under Swaraj. We are adepts in the matter of managing temple affairs and we shall do it quite nicely and well and there need be no fear about that. We are a religious-minded people compared to any other people in the world and we need not despair of undertaking this business. Regarding the complaint that we wish to appoint our own men, I hasten to tell you, Madam, that we should not suspect the integrity of the member in charge of the Bill and the Premier is an earnest religious man and he is a disciple of the great Tiruvannamalai math and Dr. Rajan is highly religious and in spite of his being an England-returned man, he has not abandoned religion and he is following religion according to the strict spirit and letter of the Geetha; his is not a religion of antiquity but practical religion. I am sure the public are behind the Government in this measure. My hon. Friend Mr. Annamalai said that we have not mentioned about this in the election manifesto. But let me tell him that we have not stated so many things in the manifesto. As a Government we have to do things according as circumstances warrant, according to the needs of the moment; if an emergency arises, we have to legislate having an eye on the benefit to society and it does not mean that every one of our acts during the period of our Government, must have stated in the manifesto. Supposing rice is in short supply, have we mentioned in the manifesto that we shall supply wheat? It is not necessary, for it is dictated as a matter of urgency. I am sorry, I have to say that the Bill has evoked the opposition of my hon. Friend Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar, a very ardent Congressman and he and I are friends ever since 1921 when politics began in South India. I have been with him ever since then; he has been very good outside and he was representing popular opinion, but I am sorry after entering this Assembly he is acting against popular will in very important measures. He is a man associated with Harijan uplift and was the first to introduce temple entry in South India; I have got the greatest respect and regard for him and it is he who got a good name to this Province. But in spite of all that I am unable to support his view point. Nobody can stand against popular will. After all, what is the object of the Bill? What is the object of the Hon. Premier and Dr. Rajan to bring in a measure to ruin Hindu religion, as if they are not Hindus? On the contrary, with all sincerity, they want to rectify things. In the Vaishnava granthas it is said 'if there is pain and the doctor puts his knife on the spot, the patient will cry out or even abuse him, but when the pus is removed and he is relieved of the pain, he will thank him and he will praise the doctor.' So also eventually people will thank them. We have got very great responsibility after we have obtained freedom and we have so many problems. In the interests of the country, we have to take courage and take it up. As an instance of mismanagement, I can tell you of one within my knowledge. There is a math in Dhanushkodi. That is a place where we have no hotels and one cannot get food except from Spencers. A boy was carrying my bundles and he took me to the math. A Brahmin was provided with a leaf and given a square meal, but for me a ball of rice with some mixture was given along with other beggars. When I asked why I was given this, they told me it was so because I was not a Brahmin and that I was not entitled to be treated with respect like the Brahmins and they said the endowment was like that though the donor is a Nattukottainagarathar. I enquired about the management and I understood that a daily allotment was about Rs. 30, out of which they spent Rs. 5 or so and they merely wrote accounts for the balance and showed it as having been spent and the manager was making a daily profit of Rs. 25. This is but one specimen of how the maths are managed and there are thousands of them. It is not only a matter of my experience but of every Congress member; if he will search his heart, he will repeat the same thing; we have visited the villages and we have visited choultries and dharmsalas and we know how things are. It is not meant that immediately the Bill is passed, we will take up the management the next morning. Wherever there is mismanagement, the Government will very carefully watch them and only when they are convinced that there is something radically wrong, the Government will step in and enquire and as a punishment they will appoint their own men and precautions will be taken to see that the daily pujas and rituals are done in accordance with the agamas. We know, Sir, there is an agitation but it is all the newspaper variety because the papers are on the other side. The temples and maths should be correctly maintained in the manner the donors wished them to be, in the interests of the people for whom the donor endowed his properties. Several things might have been written in the documents and let us take into account how it will have to be viewed in the present conditions and we have to come to a decision on things not because Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar is opposing and Dr. Rajan is bringing it forward. If anything is good, we have to take it even from our enemies and if a bad thing is offered even by our friends, we have to reject it; we must have to decide on the merits of the question; we must not swallow it because it comes from a particular quarter. Every one knows the objects of the Bill and every one knows the present condition of most of the maths and they can well imagine what the consequence will be of the passing of the Bill. Nobody need have any doubt that it will not do good. Yesterday, Mr. Annamalai Pillai was lamenting very much and said that because his leader, Mr. A. Vaidyanatha Ayyar, said like that, he would support that. He said several things in his angry mood. I do not find fault with him. He is an elderly gentleman and he is lavish in the use of his language. Let him be content with it. My humble submission is that this Bill must be passed and the full benefit of the temples and maths must go to the people. Service to the people is the object with which we have come here and for which we are here. Mr. Annamalai Pillai said that we would be annihilated if we passed this Bill. That is not a correct view. My humble request to this august Assembly is that it should support this Bill "

SRI R. RAGHAVA MENON:—"Madam, when the Government are dealing with such an important subject as the religious life of the Hindus of this Province, they must take counsel from persons who are interested in, and are competent to speak about the Hindu religious institutions before passing any Act. On the strength that they are a popular Government, this Government have passed several laws. But those laws are entirely different in their nature from the Bill that is now before the House. It is a very serious step that we are taking a step that is going to affect the religious life and institutions and, to a certain extent, the spiritual life of this Province. This Government who say that they are a secular Government want to pass this Bill. Several religious-minded persons have endowed religious institutions which cater to the needs of this nation which is famous for its religion and spiritualism. We are not like the Western nations. If India counts for anything in the world and if she can boast of anything valuable and of which the rest of the world stand in need, it is her religious life and spiritualism. This Government have introduced a Bill which is going to affect those religious and spiritual aspects of life. Hence I say that this is one of the most important Bills. The electors never thought that the Government would deal with religious institutions and the Members were not returned to the legislature on that issue. Having been returned, the Members may now claim the power to legislate with regard to every aspect of life of the citizens. The Government want to pass an all-comprehensive legislation bringing all the Hindu religious institutions under their direct management without even providing for an appeal to a court of law. This is a very serious step, and before taking such a step the Government must think twice. They must take counsel from competent persons, persons who know the religious or spiritual side of our life. The hon. Members of this Assembly may be very able and very educated. But all of us cannot lay claim to much knowledge of religion. We must not be carried away by the idea that because we have been elected as Members of this august Assembly, we have got the power, that whatever we do is right and that there is no other side to the question. A spirit of irreligion and iconoclasm is sweeping over the world. (Abdul Hameed Khan Sahib Bahadur: 'A spirit of destruction.') Irreligion and iconoclasm have some destructive elements in them. We must not be guided by that spirit. Once we pass a Bill, it will be very difficult to go back or repeal it. The prestige of the Government will stand in the way. Since there is no hurry, it is but right that a Bill of this magnitude affecting the most essential aspects of our national life should be circulated and the advice of competent persons obtained. There is no use of consulting people who do not believe in religion and rules of social conduct. There is no harm in taking a little more time. When a secular Government take up the management of religious institutions, there is no limit to where the interference will end. The hon. Sri P. Kandaswami Pillai said that this august Assembly had got the right to pass any laws. True. But the people also have got the right to say that a secular Government must administer in a secular way. For a Government to say that they are secular and at the same time interfere in religious institutions is a bit ludicrous. I am not unmindful of the fact that some matathipathies may not be behaving properly. The maths under their control may not be properly managed and there may be diversion or misappropriation of funds. The Government are already taking action in such cases and they appoint executive officers. Why not strengthen that control instead of bringing in a Bill to supplant the institutions altogether and appoint your own men? As one Member complained, we have not got men to administer the work that we have already undertaken. Some of our most vital departments are under-manned, as we have not got adequate number of proper men. If you put young men who are not religious-minded in charge of temples and maths, they will say: "Let God wait. Let me have my iddly and coffee first." Administration by such persons will cause great havoc. So, let us improve the existing machinery instead of trying to superimpose a new set of officials and a new administration. When we are not able to do things satisfactorily in the directions in which we have already gone, let us not venture into new directions in our enthusiasm and anxiety to improve everything, especially in religious matters. Our young men are not very familiar with religion, they are brought up in an atmosphere of No-God, and they have no respect for law and authority. Under the circumstances, it is better that the Bill is circulated for public opinion instead of being sent to a Joint Select Committee. After all, a Joint Select Committee consists only of some Members of the Assembly and the Council. The subject on hand is such that on it we have to get the opinion of people who know something about religion, religious leaders, and men of ripe experience and mature judgment. Let us reform and improve the existing machinery. If maladministration persists in religious institutions even after that, then the Government can take over the management themselves, even though they may be a secular Government.

"The hon. Mr. M. Kanniappan said that the people were watching. If you do a wrong thing, the people may be silent because they have not got the power to check you. Once elected, we have got the power to legislate in the name of the people. Some of our actions may be such that when we ask the public, they may not give a glorified account. There is no use of saying that public opinion is watching the progress of this Bill. Opinion of the people who know the subject and are qualified to speak on it alone should count. Such people will not tolerate interference by Government in religious matters. We cannot say that all that we do is for the good of the people. Only those that are good can be said to be for the good of the people."

"The Hon. Minister piloting this Bill is an experienced Member. Still I submit to him that when we undertake such a measure on behalf of the people, let us not lay ourselves open to the accusation that by virtue of the majority strength the Bill was passed in the teeth of opposition. Let us allow sufficient time to the public to express their opinion especially that section of the public which is competent to express an opinion on this Bill."

* SRI A. KALESWARA RAO:—"Madam, Deputy Speaker, I do not like that the proceedings of this Assembly should, in any way, be influenced by the fast that is carried on by a Swamiji opposite to Fort St. George. It is wrong to fast for these things. We cannot be coerced. On any measure anybody may fast and try to evoke our sympathies, as also the sympathy of the public. But I consider it as a misuse of Satyagraha or of hunger-strike. At the same time, I also condemn the action of certain people belonging to the black shirt movement molesting that Swamiji by throwing stones at him. I do not think it proper to attribute motives to either side, when we are discussing this very important Bill. The Hon. Dr. T. S. S. Rajan has moved this Bill with the highest of motives in order to improve the administration and management of the religious and charitable endowments and my hon. Friend Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar has moved an amendment to send it out for eliciting public opinion and to consider it again after getting all the aspects of the question, legal as well as factual, thoroughly examined. On both sides there is no insincerity;

[8th February 1949] [Sri A. Kaleswara Rao]

there is no bad motive whatever. Both are actuated with the best of motives and to say that some people are opposing this Bill merely for political purposes or for election purposes is as wrong as it is to say that those who support this Bill do so in order to get favours from the Ministers. Both insinuations are equally wrong. I am a social reformer and I believe in what I do and I have never gone even once in my lifetime to get Thirtham from the Acharya-swami Sankaracharya. I shall not go to hell, on that score, but on the other hand, I have sufficient faith that I shall go to heaven if there is any merit in my acts and in my beliefs. I want to remind the House in this connexion that while a mere social bill like the Anti-Bigamy and Divorce Bill, which sought to confer equal social rights to both men and women with regard to marriage and divorce, was referred to public opinion by this august House, why a Bill like this which is much more drastic and much more revolutionary should not be referred for public opinion. My Bill was after all a social measure and the cry of religion in danger should never have appealed to us, when we were doing the right thing, a just thing and a reasonable thing. It related only to the personal laws of the Hindus with regard to marriage and divorce. Even that Bill was referred specifically for eliciting public opinion and two or three months' time was given to the public for expressing their opinion on it. There was no harm in having allowed that time and I do not think that any great harm will be done by referring this Bill also for public opinion. It may be said that this Bill had been published long ago and that it has been before the public for quite a long time. But nobody knew and even Members of the Congress Party were not aware when it would be taken up for consideration, whether it would be dropped or whether it would be postponed till the new Constitution came into being. We did not know any of these things. It was only the other day that it was seriously taken up by the Congress Legislature Party and only 60 members were present and 44 voted for its introduction while 16 voted against it. The same fate overtook the Zamindari Abolition Bill when voted upon by the Congress Legislature Party, with the same numbers voting for and against—44 against 16. Now it is for the first time that it is seriously before the public of this Province. When once you do something with regard to the Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments, you have every right to do the same thing, to extend the same authority, and to exercise the same jurisdiction over the charitable and religious institutions belonging to the other communities also, such as the Muslim mosques and wakfs as well as the Christian churches and Christian endowments, and so the whole public of this Province are concerned with regard to this Bill, as was pointed out by my hon. Friend, Dr. D. S. Ramachandra Rao. Therefore both the majority and the minority communities are equally interested in this Bill. Now, Madam, what is the nature of this Bill? Now that it has come before this House, every hon. Member is free to express his opinion on it and naturally my hon. Friend Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar has suggested that it may be referred to the public, so that they may be in a position to offer their clear and specific opinion on it. Many other hon. Members have expressed their views in favour of circulating it for public opinion, while certain other members have opposed it and supported the motion of the Hon. Mover of this Bill that it be referred to a Select Committee. Let us see what exactly the majority of the public feel in a matter like this.

“Madam, I would have supported this Bill, but for the fact that the State directly through its officials interferes with the religious customs, ceremonies and functions of these institutions, and taking power to use their extra funds in a cypres manner. This is the first time that the State seeks directly to interfere with the detailed administration and management of the religious institutions, temples, mutts and charitable endowments. To-day the Government are interfering with the Hindu religious institutions; to-morrow they may take up the mosques and the day after the churches. Is it safe, is it right? That is the question. We have proclaimed before the world and the constitution of this country has laid it down that ours is a secular State. We do not want to interfere with religious beliefs and with religious propaganda. We do not want to tax for purposes of religion. We do not want to collect funds for the upkeep of any religious institution. But what do we find in this Bill? There are provisions made for all these things. Since we are a secular State, is it proper for us to interfere with religion? I submit, Madam, that it is a dangerous innovation. Mere management of certain religious institutions is a different matter. We have already got a secular law in operation and that is the Civil Procedure Code. There are sections 92 and 39 and also rule 8 of Order I which regulate such things. They come into operation if any of the endowments or trusts are mismanaged. Those who are interested in the endowments or those who worship in temples might put in a petition before the court and after examining the whole position, the court might sanction a scheme for the carrying out of the duties of the temples. Under such new schemes, new trustees come into being and they manage these institutions. I have no objection to adopting a procedure like that. But to say that the Government should take the place of the courts, and attend to the management of the temples and administer the trust properties, etc., is a thing which passes beyond my comprehension. But this does not stop there. Clause 6 of the Bill states:

(1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the general superintendence of all religious institutions and endowments shall vest in the Provincial Government.

(2) Such superintendence shall include the power to pass and orders which may be deemed necessary for the proper maintenance or administration of any religious institution or endowment.

[8th February 1949] [Sri A. Kaleswara Rao]

Clause 7 says:

(1) The Provincial Government may call for and examine the record of the Commissioner or any Deputy or Assistant Commissioner in respect of any proceeding, not being a proceeding in respect of which a suit or an appeal to a Court is provided by this Act, to satisfy themselves as to the regularity of such proceeding or the correctness, legality or propriety of any decision or orders passed therein; and if in case it appears to the Provincial Government that any such decision or order should be modified, annulled, reversed or remitted for reconsideration, they may pass orders accordingly:

Provided that the Provincial Government shall not pass any order prejudicial to any party unless he has had a reasonable opportunity of making his representations.

(2) The Provincial Government may stay the execution of any such decision or order, pending the exercise of their power under sub-section (1) in respect thereof.

“Thus hon. Members may see that the Government are taking vast powers into their hands. They appoint their own officers directly, namely, the Commissioner, the Deputy Commissioner, the Assistant Commissioner and so on. These officers are given very vast powers. They can appoint new trustees or remove them as they please. The trustees themselves are given vast powers. They can appoint or remove any of the servants or office-holders of the temple as they please, whether they are hereditary appointments or non-hereditary appointments. All these employees in the temples are at the mercy of the trustees. No notice need be given to remove them from service, no enquiries need be made and no appeal is provided against the orders of the trustees to the higher authorities, or to the Government. Whatever irregularities are committed in the temples, or however bad the internal administration of the temples may be, all these will have to go up to Fort St. George. In that way, the whole Bill has been framed. The Bill, I say, vests too much power in the hands of the Government, and enables them to interfere with anything that they please.”

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA:—“They can interfere with God too!”

SRI A. KALESWARA RAO:—“I presume, if that could be done, they could have taken such powers. But let us see how such interference is sought. As I said, the Commissioner and the Deputy Commissioner who are officers of the Government are given vast powers. Clause 43 of the Bill states:

Subject to the rights of appeal hereinafter provided, the Deputy Commissioner shall have power to decide the following disputes and matters:—

(a) whether an institution is a religious institution;

[Sri A. Kuleswara Rao] [8th, February 1949]

- (b) whether a trustee holds or held office as a hereditary trustee;
- (c) whether any property or money is a religious endowment or a specific endowment;
- (d) whether any person is entitled, by custom or otherwise, to any right, honour, emolument or perquisite in any religious institution; and what the established usage of a religious institution is in regard to any other matter;
- (e) whether any institution or endowment is wholly or partly of a religious or secular character; and whether any property or money has been given wholly or partly for religious or secular use;

"Madam, so we see that the religious customs and usage in the temples are sought to be interfered with and they are left entirely to the discretion and decision of the Deputy Commissioner. Therefore what is the position of the temples under this Bill? They are reduced to mere departments of the Department and the Government officials are the masters in the temples and can decide what religious customs and usages are to be followed in the temples, whether a man in the temple should wear Namam or Veebuti, etc. What else is there for the State to interfere within these religious institutions. Every detailed item of administration of the temples is in their hands. That is why I say that the Government are taking unduly vast powers under this Bill.

"Then, Madam, clause 45 states that the excess funds of the temples may be utilized by the Deputy Commissioner according to his pleasure for certain other purposes. It may be a good purpose. But that is not the point here. Have the Government any right to change the purposes for which endowments are made by the donors? We have now attained Swaraj. Hitherto we were under a foreign Government. They never said that they were a secular State. Now it is the first time that we have a Constitution which is secular and now shall we take up the direct management of religious institutions? That is the question which is debatable and doubtful. That can be challenged in courts and the Bill may become ultra vires. Therefore I submit that before we plunge into the matter further and refer the Bill to a Select Committee, it is better to have public opinion before us completely and fully. So far as any telegrams or petitions that have come I learn that they are all against proceeding with the Bill. It looks like that. That is the Hindu public opinion. Therefore we should not go too much in this line. Therefore, Madam, Deputy Speaker, I support the amendment that it should be circulated for public opinion."

SRI S. NAGAPPA:—"Madam, Deputy Speaker, I generally agree with the principles of the Bill, but unfortunately I cannot subscribe to all the clauses of the Bill, for the simple reason that this Bill covers only the Hindu Religious Endowments. My point is that in a secular State there cannot be any distinction between the Hindu Religious Endowments or the Muslim Religious Endowments and the Christian Religious Endowments. I would have agreed if the Bill had mentioned this Bill as merely 'Religious Endowments Bill'. As our friends are aware, especially after the passing of Article 9 by the Constituent Assembly, every religion has the right to preach and propagate. We must also know that we are here existing in a secular State and the Madras Government are existing in order to govern not only a particular section of the people but to govern all the sections, whether Muslims, Hindus, Christians, Jains or Sikhs. I would request the Government to be a little radical and bring in such a legislation as will cover each and every religious section in the Province. No doubt in sub-clause (2) of clause 1 they say that they would bring in Jain temples also when it strikes them. Why should they wait until that strikes into their mind? Why not today itself? Many of my friends have been saying, Madam, how the mutts have been managed. I am sorry that neither have I been a matadhipathi nor have I known of the mutts. But I know trustees. No doubt now we are having a Bill in order to safeguard the Hindu Religious Endowments. But I say we are here not only to safeguard the Hindu Religious Endowments but also others. That is my impeachment against the Government. Why should not they include every other religion. Mr. Seethi Sahib has brought in the Muslim Wakfs Bill . . ."

SRI M. S. PATTABHIRAMIAH:—"Can the hon. Member impeach the Government, Madam?"

SRI S. NAGAPPA:—"My point is that we are here, Madam, in order to push the Government in the right direction. That is what I mean by my impeachment. If my hon. Friend cannot understand that I cannot help it. (Laughter.)

"So in the name of the people, in the name of the province, if we are governing here, we must govern every section of the province and safeguard all. Why should this Government be particular about the Hindus alone? That shows their selfishness. Are they not expected to be above all this and be impartial?"

"Coming to another point, Madam, there is a clause here which says that only people above the age of 35 and below the age of 70 should hold some of the posts in order to supervise the mutts and trusts. I ask, how the people who are below 35 disqualified. You talk of age. What is age? Was not Dhruva, who was supposed to have achieved moksha, within his teens? What about Markandeya who is supposed to be alive even today? You talk of age. What is there in age? My dear friend, you may not want me, but I am going . . ."

DEPUTY SPEAKER:—"Whom did the hon. Member call just now as my dear friend?"

[8th February 1949]

SRI S. NAGAPPA :—" I addressed the Member who interrupted me, Madam. "

DEPUTY SPEAKER :—" That is not the way to do it. "

SRI S. NAGAPPA :—" I addressed him only through you, Madam. "

DEPUTY SPEAKER :—" That is not the way. "

SRI S. NAGAPPA :—" We have been attempting to nationalize almost all the wealth of the country. The people of the country are the owners of the whole of the wealth of the country, whether they are political, religious, or economical or spiritual. So I would request the Government to bring in such legislation to include all the temples and mutts, trusts and endowments of every one that has an interest in the country. Today you can enter a mosque or church and nobody can prevent you. Whether you follow that religion or not you have the right to enter. But, Madam, the Hindu religion which has been boasting to be the purest religion, I am sorry to say, is the most impure religion. Because of its impurity 70 per cent or a good number of my people, the Harijans, have to seek shelter under other religions. Today I am ashamed to say but for the atrocities of the Hindu religion 60 to 70 per cent of the Muslim population would have been my people. And 99 per cent of the Christians today are my people. So the Hindu religion was responsible in driving out my brethren to other fields. But, Madam, I must say that I am not against the religion itself but the practice. It has been practised according to their own whims and fancies. This is the land where rishis, maharishis, rajarishis and brahmarishis have achieved moksha. In such a country atrocities have been committed in the name of God on the humanity the creation of God Himself. Now we are free citizens in a secular State and what rights the Hindu has the Muslim also has and what right the Muslim has the Hindu has. I think it is the duty and the responsibility of the Government to see that every one is safeguarded. There is one mutt called the Ahobilam mutt. You must know how it is administered. The Great Great Matadhipathi is in Srirangam and Ahobilam is in my place. I am a resident citizen of the district and I have no right to enter the temple there. I find no words, Madam, to express how atrocities have been committed in the name of religion. Nobody prevents those people from going to the Himalayas and doing penance there and attain moksha. What have they done here in the name of religion? They did not take the trouble of even preaching the gospel of the Bhagavat Gita. And more over if any Harijan is eager to learn, I am told, the veda says that lead should be poured into his ears. I cannot understand what that religion is. In the name of such a religion we have been doing all such atrocities. Those atrocities should not be continued any longer. I congratulate the Ministry, Madam for bringing the Bill, but I feel sorry that they have left the other religious institutions. If they had the courage they should have included other religious institutions also, the jains, the sikh gurudwaras if they happen to be in our province, etc. Instead of that why do they want to wait until the idea strikes them. That shows the weakness of the Government.

" Madam, I am glad the Government are taking power into their hands in order to see that they appoint the right person to supervise the mutts and administer the trusts. But in appointing them, they should not appoint worse people than the existing ones. I am afraid even that may happen because the Government are here only to favour X, Y or Z. If they are going to do that the result will not be good. There must be a college in order to train the pujari, the matathipathi and the acharyas and to tell them what their duties are and how they should administer. (Sri T. Viswanatham: You want to be a student in the college?) I am not eager to be a matathipathi or any such thing. Don't worry about that. Their subject must be philosophy. They must know our country's philosophy and interest themselves in religion and develop our country spiritually. Not all people should be appointed in the name of religion in the mutts and allow them to exploit the funds that are put at their disposal. Some matathipathis are very good people. But some people being sishyas inherit the property and everything. The sishya may not be as good as the guru. He may be worse. Yet he has the right to succeed to the whole trust. Are we to entrust the wealth of the country into the hands of people who would mismanage the funds? The country's wealth belongs to the whole population of the country and all sections of the people. (Interruption.) My hon. Friend, Mr. Raghavayya, wants my support. I do not know what sort of support he wants. If he wants my support in the name of the Brahmin religion, I am extremely sorry I cannot accede. I am prepared to help my friend if he is capable of helping himself. I think this Bill is going before the Select Committee. I hope the Select Committee will take all the views expressed by the various Members of the House and see that the Bill is redrafted in such a way that it will serve the purpose of the Government and also at the same time the needs of the people. There are so many mosques in my own district. They are having hundreds and hundreds of acres of land. Some Mullas have inherited these lands. They are dealing with these lands as they like. Somehow or other they are making use of this property. We do not know the intentions of the donors, and whether the object of the trust is being fulfilled.

" Once again I request hon. Members who will be nominated to the Select Committee to consider all aspects of this Bill, and see that the Bill is drafted in such a way that it is useful to the people of this Province and country at large. With these words, I support the Bill."

* SRI S. CHIDAMBARA AYYAR :—" Madam, Deputy Speaker, I rise to support the amendment moved by my hon. Friend, Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar, for referring the Bill to public opinion. In the first place let me clear the misapprehension in the minds of some hon. Friends that those who support the amendment of Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar are not for rectifying or bettering the condition of the administration of the religious endowments and charities. We are not for allowing maladministration to continue. On the other hand we are as much for removing the maladministration and for bettering the condition of the endowments as any other Member of this House.

"What I wish to point out is this. This Bill has not been constructively criticised by the public. It was no doubt published in September 1947. But for various reasons, it was dropped out of consideration by the party. Only for the first time steps have been taken now, and on the 14th January 1949, it was placed before the Party meeting. Now only the public are becoming aware that such a Bill is being introduced in this House. I submit that most of the villagers are not aware of all the implications and consequences of this Bill. They do not know how the implications of this Bill are going to affect the administration of temples. I do not deny, Madam, that some temples and mutts are not managed properly. But unless specific instances are brought to the notice of Government, I do not think it is proper or justifiable to denounce all temples and mutts as mismanaged. If there are any instances of mismanagement, there are enough provisions in law to suitably deal with the institutions. If a man has misappropriated moneys belonging to a trust, there is the criminal law or proceed against him. There are enough provisions in the Endowments Act to proceed against persons guilty of mismanagement of institutions. Under the Trust Act, breaches of trust are punishable in an ordinary court of law. Instead of attempting to more effectively enforce the provisions in the Endowments Act and Trust Act, to bring in this Bill at this stage especially when our fundamental rights are being forged on the anvil of the Constituent Assembly, is not correct. I submit that this Bill need not be rushed through now. It can wait for some time. In the meanwhile, public opinion may be canvassed on the provisions of the Bill. On the constitutional and legal position of the Bill, my hon. Friends Vaidyanatha Ayyar, Viswanatham and Bhashyam have already spoken. Therefore, I do not propose to deal with that aspect now. I only want to state that so long as this is a secular State, it is not safe to interfere in religious matters. We have made up our minds and have committed ourselves to a policy of non-interference in religious matters relating to Islam and Christianity. But, in the case of Hindu religion, simply because we are in a majority, it is not necessary that we should interfere in our own religion especially when the fundamental rights which are on the anvil of the Constituent Assembly now are likely to grant to institutions and individuals freedom of right in religious matters. Therefore it is, I say, that this Bill should be circulated for public opinion. I like to say that people in the mofussil do not know such a Bill is being introduced in this House. The Bill has not been communicated their views on this Bill. If they have, I can understand that public opinion has been ascertained. Some hon. Members opined that this Bill should go straight to the Select Committee. Madam, we are not opposed to any reform in the administration of temples and mutts. We only want that the Bill be circulated for public opinion. In the meantime, the Constitution will be ready, and then we can discuss the whole thing. We will then know what is our position in the matter, and then pass such measures as are necessary for the good administration of temples and mutts.

"One thing more. It is very difficult in these days to manage a large number of temples. It would mean a very large establishment. We are already not able to manage the various departments under our control. To add to that a new hierarchy of officers and try to manage temples, is a very difficult task.

"Now, I want to say something about mutts. I specially plead that mutts should be excluded from the purview of this Bill. That is my main point. Mutts stand on a different footing from temples. Mutts are not to be treated in the same way as temples. In the Statement of Objects and Reasons, it is stated that the Government undertook the responsibility of controlling the Trusts under the Regulation of 1817. Mutts were not included in that regulation. In the 1863 Act also, mutts were not included. For the first time in Act II of 1927 mutts were included. They were included because some representations were made to Government that certain mutts were mismanaged, and that there have been misapplication of the funds of mutts. Even there, they drew a distinction between temples and mutts. The Select Committee in paragraph 6 of their report on the Madras Hindu Religious Endowments Bill (No. 12 of 1922) say—

'We recognize at the same time that the powers of the head of the math property, especially the income therefrom, are wider than those of an ordinary trustee, and that the Mata-thipathi, by virtue of the spiritual veneration in which he is held by his disciples, occupies a position which entitles him to privileged treatment. We have, therefore, provided that local committees shall have nothing to do with maths, that ordinarily the head of a math need send only a budget and an annual account and that he should maintain proper accounts and get them audited. It is only in cases where mismanagement is proved or where a number of disciples desire such a course that arrangements for greater control may be devised.'

This will show that separate treatment was accorded to mutts in the Act of 1927. In the present Bill, all distinctions are completely removed and mutts and temples are placed on the same footing. There is a difference between temples and mutts. In the temple there is the idol installed. But in the case of the mutt, the head of the mutt is a learned man. He is a highly spiritual man. He is the person to administer the affairs of the mutt. The mere fact that this man is learned, pious and spiritual is itself sufficient guarantee that he is not likely to mismanage or misuse the funds of the math. Further, large sums of money are given to the spiritual head of the math by way of personal gifts. Those gifts are the absolute property of the head of the math. Though they are all given for religious and charitable purposes, there is absolute discretion for the head of the math to spend the money because, the gifts are given by the disciples to that venerable head of the math. Therefore, there should be a distinction between mutts and temples. In case mutts are not completely exonerated from the provisions of this Bill, the funds given to the heads of maths as personal gifts should be excluded from the provisions of this Bill.

"In this Bill, the head of the mutt is made to occupy a position of inferiority. He is being humiliated. It may be that the Bill does not intend to humiliate him. But the effect of all the various provisions in the Bill will go to show that the head of a math is a subordinate of the executive commissioner. There is mention of impositions of fines and surcharges on the heads of institutions. I do not know how Matathipathis can be surcharged. The head of the math is a Sanyasi. He has no property. My submission is that the case of Matathipathis should not be brought under the provisions of this Bill. Even if included, they should be given a different treatment from trustees of temples. If the amendment to circulate the Bill for public opinion is not carried, I hope these aspects of the Bill will be carefully gone into by the Select Committee, and they will accord better treatment to the mutts and Matathipathis than to the trustees of temples.

"I am obliged to my hon. friend, Mr. Vedaratnam Pillai. He said that in Tanjore district there are two good mutts, one is Sri Sankaracharya Mutt and the other is the Dharmapuram Mutt. I know about Sri Sankaracharya Mutt personally, but not about the Dharmapuram Mutt. I am glad that the testimony comes from my hon. friend, Mr. Vedaratnam Pillai, who knows the ins and outs of these mutts. He said that these mutts are doing very good service in the Tanjore district. He said that there are some mutts which are managed properly and there are some which are not. Why should Government bring all the mutts—both properly managed and not properly managed—under this Bill is unintelligible to me. My submission is, in respect of those Matathipathis who are mismanaging their properties, take severe action. But in respect of other mutts, please leave them alone.

"With these words, I support the amendment of Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar to circulate the Bill for public opinion."

வில்லை என்று நினைத்து இப்பொழுது நம் முன்னால் இருக்கக்கூடிய இந்த மசோதாவைக் கொண்டு வந்திருக்கிறார்கள். இந்த மசோதாவில் இதுவரைக்கும் இருந்துவந்த கோவில்களோடு மடங்களையும் தர்மஸ்தாபனங்களையும் சேர்க்கவேண்டுமென்று யோசனைக் கூறப்படுகிறது. அத்துடன் இப்பொழுதுள்ள சட்டத்தில் எவ்வளவு அதிகாரம் இருக்கிறதோ அந்த அதிகாரத்துடன் கூட இன்னும் கொஞ்சம் அதிகாரம் வேண்டுமென்று கேட்கப்படுகிறது. ஆனால் இப்பொழுது கொண்டுவருகிற மசோதாவைக்கொண்டு வருவதற்கு அதிகாரம் இல்லை என்று சொல்லப்படுகிறது. இந்த மாதிரி சட்டம் கொண்டு வருவது சட்டத்திற்கு புரம்பானது என்றும் கூறப்படுகிறது. அதற்கு ஆதாரமாக இந்திய சட்டசபையில் அமைக்கப்பட்ட விதிகளின் 20-ஆவது பிரிவைக் காண்பிக்கப்படுகிறது. அந்த 20-ஆவது பிரிவுடன் நாம் 19-ஆவது பிரிவையும் சேர்த்துப்படிக்க வேண்டுமென்று கேட்டுக் கொள்ளுகிறேன். 19-ஆவது பிரிவின் இரண்டாவது உட்பிரிவை நாம் பார்த்தால் இப்பொழுது கொண்டுவரப்படுகிற மசோதாவைக்கொண்டு வருவதற்கு அதிகாரம் இருக்கிறது என்பதைத் தெரிவித்துக்கொள்ளுகிறேன். அகில இந்திய சட்டம் சட்டமானபோது இதைப்பற்றி அங்கத்தினர்கள் யோசித்து இவ்விதம் தீர்மானம் செய்யப்பட்டிருக்கிறது. அந்த 19-ஆவது பிரிவு வரும்போது அத்துடன் வேண்டுமென்றே இந்த இரண்டாவது உட்பிரிவையும் சேர்த்திருக்கிறார்கள். சட்ட நிரூபண சபையிலுள்ள நம் பிரதிநிதிகள் இந்த இரண்டாவது உட்பிரிவை தெளிவாகப் போடவேண்டுமென்று வற்புறுத்தியிருக்கிறார்கள். இவ்விதம் போடவேண்டியதின் அவசியத்தை உணர்ந்துதான் அவர்கள் இதைச் செய்திருக்கிறார்கள். ஏற்கனவே நம்முடைய மாகாணத்தில் இருந்து வரும் ஹிந்துமத பரிபாலன சட்டம் பாதிக்கக்கூடாது என்பதைத் தெளிவாகச் சொல்லி இந்த உட்பிரிவை சேர்த்திருக்கிறார்கள். ஆகையால் இந்த மசோதா சட்டத்திற்கு விரோதம் இல்லை என்றே நான் நினைக்கிறேன். நான் சட்டத்தில் தேர்ந்தவன் அல்ல. சட்டத்தைப்பற்றி எனக்கு அதிகம் தெரியாது எனினும் அங்கே இந்த உட்பிரிவை சேர்த்ததின் காரணத்தைக்கொண்டு தான் இங்கும் சட்டம் செய்வதற்கு அதிகாரம் இருக்கிறது என்பதைத் தெரிவித்துக் கொள்ளுகிறேன்.

"இதுவரைக்கும் ஹிந்துமத பரிபாலன சட்டத்தின் மூலமாகத்தான் காரியங்கள் நடந்துவருகின்றது. ஆனால் அதன் மூலமாக நிர்வாகம் சரியாக நடக்காததினால் மேற்கொண்டு கொஞ்சம் அதிகாரம் இருந்தால்தான் இந்த தர்மஸ்தாபனங்களை சீராக நடத்த முடியும் என்று நினைத்திருக்கிறார்கள். பல் வருஷங்களாக நினைத்து அவைகளை அனுபவித்துதான் இப்பொழுது இந்த மசோதாவைக்கொண்டுவரப்பட்டிருக்கிறது. இந்த மசோதாவைக்கொண்டுவந்து சட்டமாக்கினால் நம்முடைய மதத்திற்கும், தர்மஸ்தாபனங்களுக்கும் பெரிய ஹானி ஏற்படலாம் என்ற சந்தேகம் அநேகம் பேர்களுக்கு ஏற்படுகிறது. இந்த மசோதாவின் உட்கருத்தை தெரிந்துகொண்டால் அவ்விதம் சந்தேகப்படுவதற்கு இடமில்லை. மதத்தில் பிரவேசிக்கவேண்டுமென்று சர்க்கார் ஒருக்காலும் நினைக்கவே இல்லை. ஆனால் மத அபிவிருத்திக்காக ஏற்பட்டிருக்கிற ஸ்தாபனங்கள் சரிவர நடத்தவேண்டும் என்ற அந்த ஒரு தத்துவத்திற்காகத்தான் இந்த சட்டம் கொண்டு வரப்படுகிறது. மதஸ்தாபனங்களுக்கும் தர்மஸ்தாபனங்களுக்கும் பக்தர்களும், சிஷ்யர்களும், மதத்தில் நம்பிக்கையுள்ளவர்களும் ஆலயம் வழிபடுகிறவர்களும் ஏராளமான காணிக்கை கொடுத்திருக்கிறார்கள். மான்ய மனித்திருக்கிறார்கள் எவ்வளவோ தர்மம் செய்திருக்கிறார்கள். இந்தக் காரியங்களெல்லாம் சரிவர நடக்கவேண்டுமென்றும் தர்மத்தை ஆரம்பித்துவைத்தவர்களுடைய நோக்கம் எவ்வளவு காலமானாலும் கெடாதுபோகாமல் தொடர்ந்து நடைபெறவேண்டுமென்ற நோக்கத்துடனும் தான் சர்க்கார் இந்த மசோதாவைக்கொண்டுவந்திருக்கிறார்கள். ஆனால் மதக்காரியங்களில் பிரவேசிக்கவேண்டாம் என்று யாராவது நினைத்தால் அது சரியில்லை என்பதை நான் கூற விரும்புகிறேன். ஒருக்காலும் சர்க்கார் மத விஷயங்களில் பிரவேசிக்கவே மாட்டார்கள் அவ்விதம் பிரவேசிக்காதுபோல் அவர்களுக்கு காரியங்களைச் செய்ய முடியாமல் வெகு சீக்கிரத்தில் அவர்கள் செல்வத்தை இழந்து மிகவும் கேவலமான நிலைக்கு வந்து “இப்பொழுதிருக்கும் சட்டத்தை பூராவும் நீக்கிவிட்டு இவ்வளவு அதிகாரம் பொருந்திய சட்டத்தைக்கொண்டு வந்திருக்கிறார்கள் என்று பலர் ஆட்சேபித்திருக்கிறார்கள். வேண்டுமென்றால் இப்பொழுதுள்ள சட்டத்தில் இன்னும் கொஞ்சம்கூட அதிகாரம் வாங்கிக்கொள்ளலாம். நிறைய அதிகாரம் சர்க்காருக்கு இருக்கும்படி வைத்துக்கொள்வது தவறு என்று சொல்லப்பட்டது. அதில் ஓரளவு உண்மையிருக்கிறது. சர்க்கார் குறைந்த பட்சம் எவ்வளவு அதிகாரம் வைத்துக்கொள்ளவேண்டுமோ அவ்வளவு தான் எடுத்துக்கொள்ளவேண்டும். ஆனால் மதத்தில் பிரவேசிக்க விரும்பவில்லை. மடம் முதலியவைகள் ஒழுங்கான முறையில் நடப்பதற்கு வேண்டிய அதிகாரம் எடுத்துக்கொள்ள விரும்புகிறார்களாகையால் குறைந்த பட்சம் எவ்வளவு அதிகாரம் வேண்டுமோ அவைகளைத்தான் வைத்துக் கொள்ளவேண்டும். நாம் இப்பொழுது இருப்பது மக்களிடம் அதிகாரத்தைப் பெற்றுவந்துள்ள சர்க்கார் எனினும் நம்முடைய சகல காரியங்களையும் நாம் நினைத்தவாறு நடத்துவதற்கில்லை. எவ்வளவோ இலாக்காசுளில் எவ்வளவோ சீர்திருத்தம் செய்யவேண்டுமென்று விரும்புகிறார்கள் ஆனால் விரும்புவதெல்லாம் நடைபெறுவது இல்லை. இன்னும் பல ஊழல்களும் குறைகளும் இருக்கத்தான் இருக்கின்றன. அவைகள் அப்படி இருக்கும் போது இன்னும் அதிகாரம் எடுத்துக்கொண்டால் அவைகளை எவ்விதம் சரிவர நடத்தமுடியும் என்று நம்முடியவில்லை நிச்சயமாக பூராவும் மக்களுக்கு திருப்தி ஏற்படும் முறையில் நிர்வாகம் நடக்கும் என்று நான் நினைக்கவே இல்லை. ஆகையால் குறைந்தபட்சம் சர்க்காருக்கு எவ்வளவு அதிகாரம் வேண்டுமோ அவ்வளவுதான் எடுத்துக்கொள்ளவேண்டும். இந்த சட்டத்தில் பல அதிகாரங்களை சர்க்கார் வேண்டுமென்று கேட்கிறார்கள். அந்த அதிகாரங்களையெல்லாம் எவ்வளவு அதிகமாக குறைக்க முடியுமோ அவ்வளவையும் குறைக்கவேண்டுமென்று கேட்டுக்கொள்ளுகிறேன்.

“இந்த பொதுஸ்தாபனங்களெல்லாம் சிறிது காலத்திற்குள் ஏற்பட்டவைகளல்ல. நூறு வருஷத்திற்கு முன்னாலேயே ஏற்பட்டிருக்கிறது ஏற்படுத்தியவர்கள் உயர்ந்த நோக்கத்துடன் நல்ல முறையில் நடக்கவேண்டுமென்று ஏற்படுத்தினார்கள் அவைகள் சரியாக நடக்காவிட்டால் யார் அதை ஒழுங்குப்படுத்துவது, சர்க்கார்தான் அக்கரை எடுத்துக்கொள்ள வேண்டும். தனிப்பட்டவர்கள் எடுத்து நடத்தினால் அது சரிப்பட்டு வருவதில்லை எவ்வளவோ ஸ்தாபனங்கள் கருத்துக்கு விரோதமாக நடப்பதை தனி நபர்கள் அக்கரை எடுத்துக்கொண்டு அவைகளை திருத்தியமைத்ததாகத் தெரியவில்லை அதன் காரணமாகத்தான் சர்க்கார் அதில் பிரவேசித்து நடத்தவேண்டிய நிலைமை ஏற்பட்டிருக்கிறது நல்ல நோக்கத்தோடு ஏற்பட்ட ஸ்தாபனங்கள் அழிந்து போகாமல் நடத்துவதற்கு சர்க்கார் அதில் தலையிட இந்த மசோதாவைக்கொண்டு வந்திருக்கிறார்கள். ஆனால் மதத்திற்கு ஆபத்து வரும் என்று சில பேர்கள் தவறுதலாக நினைக்கிறார்கள் அப்படி இல்லவே இல்லை. சில வருஷங்களுக்கு முன்னால் ஹரி ஜனங்களுக்கு ஆலயப்பிரவேசம் கொடுக்கவேண்டுமென்று ஒரு சட்டம் கொண்டுவரப்பட்டது. பல தார விவாகத்தை தடை செய்வதற்கு ஒரு சட்டம் கொண்டுவரப்பட்டது. பால்ய விவாகம் செய்யக்கூடாது என்று ஒரு சட்டம் கொண்டுவரப்பட்டது. இந்த சட்டங்களையெல்லாம் கொண்டு வந்தபோது அநேகம் பேர்கள் ஆட்சேபித்தார்கள். அது மத சம்பந்தமானவைகள் என்றும் இவ்விதமான சட்டங்களைக்கொண்டு வந்தால் மதமே போய்விடும் என்றும் சொன்னார்கள். ஆனால் உண்மையில் இது வரையில் இயற்றிய சட்டங்கள் மதத்திற்கு நேர் விரோதமானவைகளல்ல. மதத்தை புருத்தப்படவே இந்த சட்டங்களைக்கொண்டுவரப்பட்டன. அதேமாதிரி இந்த மசோதாவிற்கும் விரோதமாக நினைத்தால் அது தவறு என்பதை சொல்லிக்கொள்ள விரும்புகிறேன் மதஸ்தாபனங்கள் சரிவர நடக்கும் பொருட்டே இந்த சட்டங்கொண்டுவரப்பட்டது எவ்வளவோ மடங்களும், ஸ்தாபனங்களும் இருக்கின்றன, அவ்வளவும் மோசமாக நடக்கிறதா என்று கேட்கலாம் அப்படி இல்லவே இல்லை. எவ்வளவோ மடங்களும், தர்மஸ்தாபனங்களும் நல்ல முறையில் நடக்கின்றன. கொஞ்சம்கூட குற்றமில்லாமல் நோக்கத்தை பூர்த்தி செய்யக்கூடிய நிலையில் நடந்தால் அதைப்பற்றி ஒன்றும் கவலை இல்லை. அப்படி நடக்காதவைகளுக்குதான் இந்த சட்டங்கொண்டுவரப்பட்டிருக்கிறது இந்த சட்டத்தில் தனிப்பட்ட மூலங்களுக்குமே வகுப்பிற்கும் சேர்ந்த சொத்துக்களையும் இதில் கொண்டு வரப்படலாம். அதனால் நம்முடைய மகானம் எங்கும் பெரிய கெஜிதி விளக்கலாம் என்று அஞ்சப்படுகிறது தனி வருப்பைச் சேர்ந்ததாக இருந்தாலும் சரி தனி ஜாதியைச் சேர்ந்ததாக இருந்தாலும் சரி, அவைகளையெல்லாம் சேர்க்க உடன்படலாம். அப்படி அவைகளைச் சரியாக நடக்கவிட்டால் அவைகளையும் ஒழுங்குப்படுத்த சர்க்கார் அதிகாரம் எடுத்துக்

கொள்வதானது எவ்வளவோ நல்லது என்று நான் நினைக்கிறேன். அதனால் எல்லா மடங்களிலும் கோவில்களிலும், ஸ்தாபனங்களிலும் சர்க்கார் பிரவேசிப்பார்கள் என்று நினைக்க காரணம் இல்லை. எங்கெங்கே தவறு தல்கள் நடக்கிறதோ அங்கெல்லாம் தான் எடுத்துக்கொள்வார்கள். நிர்வாகத்தை ஒழுங்குப்படுத்த சர்க்கார் அதிகாரம் எடுத்துக்கொண்டால் நம்முடைய மடம், கோவில், ஸ்தாபனங்கள் முதலியவைகளுக்கும் அவைகளில் மிச்சப்படுத்தும் பொருள்களுக்கும் அங்கே இருக்கக்கூடிய ஒரு கௌரவமும் மரியாதையும் போய்விடும் என்று சொல்லப்படுகிறது. ஆனால் சர்க்கார் அதில் சிரத்தை எடுத்துக்கொண்டு நடத்தினால் எவ்விதமான பயமும் கிடையாது என்று நான் நிச்சயமாக நம்புகிறேன். இவ்விதம் அரசாங்கம் மடங்களையும் ஸ்தாபனங்களையும் கோவில்களையும் எடுத்துக்கொண்டால் இப்பொழுது இருக்கும் மான்யங்கள் போவதோடுவரும் மான்யங்களும் வராது என்று கூறப்படுகிறது. எந்த நோக்கத்திற்காக ஸ்தாபனங்கள் ஏற்பட்டதோ அந்த நோக்கத்தை பூர்த்தி செய்து நிறைவேற்றினால் நிச்சயமாக பொதுமக்கள் மான்யங்களைக் கொடுத்து ஆதரிப்பார்கள். நோக்கத்தை பூர்த்தி செய்யாமலிருந்தால்தான் கொடுக்கும் மான்யங்களைக்கூட பொதுமக்கள் கொடுக்கமாட்டார்கள். சர்க்கார் எடுத்து நன்றாக பரிபாலனம் செய்தால் மான்யங்கள் வளர்ந்து கொண்டேதான் போகும்.

MR. SPEAKER :—“ Five more Members want to take part in the debate. Therefore, I think we can sit till 6 o'clock. (Some members rose up in their seats and raised some objections.) We may sit till 5-30. On Thursday, the Hon. Mr. Madhava Menon, the Hon. the Premier and the Hon. Dr. Rajan will speak. Then, the hon. Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar who has got a right of reply will speak, if he wants to do so. ”

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—“ May I submit, Sir, that we may rise up at 5 o'clock because we are tired of sitting here? At least, the Hon. Speaker is engaged in watching the speakers but we have absolutely no work. ”

THE HON. SRI B. GOPALA REDDI :—“ We are not meeting to-morrow and therefore, the hon. Member may have some little rest to-morrow. ”

MR. SPEAKER :—“ That is why, I have suggested a via media that we can sit till 5-30 p.m. to-day. ”

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA :—“ Mr. Speaker, Sir, at least this religious subject, I thought, would require some sort of patience. The kind of way in which some of our hon. Friends have disposed of the subject took my breath away. The Hon. Dr. Rajan assured us that he is a very pious man. No doubt, he was born in Sri-rangam and he is very pious indeed, and of course he has been brought up there. But the question to-day is not that. It looks as if some members have taken to oppose this Bill on the ground that Government want to take complete control over all the mutts and all the trusts. It is not the idea. The people welcome some interference; but the question is what that interference ought to be, whether it should be a wholesale management as in the case of the Food Department of the Government of Madras or the Cloth Department of the Government of Madras or whether it should be something wherein Government will have a paternal look and a supervising authority and will interfere only where interference is absolutely necessary. ”

“ Sir, I wish to remind the Hon. Minister—despite his age, he is lively and active—that religion is like a glass tumbler which must be handled with care. Or to put it more correctly, it is like a village virgin, who is not accustomed to too much coquetry. If you begin to hug too much, she is likely to. (Interruption.) I am not saying anything indecent, Sir. ”

THE HON. SRI B. GOPALA REDDI :—“ Let me hear the hon. Member. ”

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA:—"Sir, I said, religion is like a village virgin who is not accustomed to too much coquetry. Therefore, Sir, you ought not to interfere with religion. You must leave it to the people who are concerned. But of course, some interference is necessary, but that should be administered very gently and not with an indifference. I think the Hon. Minister for Food is put into a wrong box and asked to deal with questions of religion. He has not quite appreciated the temper of important sections of people in the case of these religious matters. The point is how far does this Government want to interfere with religion. I do not know why some people decry all mutts and monasteries. This Bill deals with temples also. Several people have spoken as if this concerns Brahmans. Because several speakers happen to be Brahmans, they have got the idea that all that is connected with these people should be decried. Some even went to the length of calling names and using very strong language. It is absolutely unwarranted. Some speakers have rightly pointed out that the Government are introducing the thin end of the wedge for destroying the entire religion. Now this Government want to take control of the temples, but another Government later on may outlaw religion altogether. The Government should adopt the middle-of-the-road policy in this matter.

"Sir, the Dutch Government in this country some time back passed a curious order and said that all those who did not believe in Christianity should be arrested and put in fetters. Do you want such a Government to rule here? Don't you allow some independence in this matter? Do you want to have your finger in every pie? If you let Government interfere with religion, then it becomes a red-tape business. Suppose some utsavam has to take place. A petition will have to be sent to the Government and the Premier might have to be approached. It is difficult to approach the Premier sometimes and by the time the red-tapism is over, it will be too late for the utsavam and the religious ceremonies. Innumerable difficulties are likely to crop up and we will be placed in a farcical position. I shall here quote the order passed by the Dutch Government from Mr. Ganapathi Ayyar's book, 'The law relating to Hindu and Muslim Endowments'—

'Of course the Dutch Government adopted altogether a different policy in their dominion. They prohibited worship in temples, etc. The following order of the Dutch Governor of Ceylon will show the policy adopted by the Dutch:—

"If either the inhabitants of this country within the limits of the Government or those who are detained for some days or permanently, or Christians, shall practice any worship of gods or ceremonies of devils, such ceremonies of whatever kind in whatever place, and honour to any idol by such ceremonies, or any Hindu ceremonies and if discovered they shall without mercy and regard to persons be put in fetters."

[8th February 1949] [Sri V. Raghavayya]

This is an extreme case. This is what is happening in Russia. Churches have been demolished, priests have been arrested. The places have been used as schools, libraries, dance halls and so on. Here the warning comes not from the other side, but from your own friends. Do not clutch at religion too much. Do not treat it like a hot house plant. I suppose even the Food Minister will not say that the Government departments are like Caesar's wife entirely above suspicion. They are human and liable to err. The Minister has been referring to mismanagement of temples and maths. Several times it has happened. The Hindu kings, the Muslim kings and the Christian kings interfered but they interfered only to the extent of visitorial interference. The means adopted were always through the Court of law, not through the Treasury Benches and the Secretariat Chambers, not through red-tape. If the Minister wants to apply this Bill to Hindu temples, why not he have the courage to apply the same law to Muslim mosques and Christian churches? Is it because the Muslims and Christians have been kicking? Hinduism has been suffering from a curse and the curse is its own followers. They have ruined the religion all along. The Britishers molested the Hindus because they are a mild and unoffending people, they do not make much noise and do not kick back. All legislation and persecution were against the Hindu and nobody had the courage to touch a mosque and pass a legislation against the interests of the Muslims.

"The Hon. Minister has been telling us about the virtues of Government administration and provincialization. He seems to think that this is something like provincialization of motor transport. If the virtues of provincialization are so great, I ask, why do you except the mosques and the churches? What is good for the grander must be good for the goose also. Why do you want to make any invidious distinction? Incidentally I notice that the Jains also are proposed to be brought in along with the poor, unoffending, tolerant and mild Hindus. You have been claiming to be a secular state; then it stands to reason and it is but equitable that any law you make should apply to all religions equally.

"I tell the Government: do not step unnecessarily on too many peoples' toes. You have offended the labourers. You have offended the Harijans by not spending even one-hundredth part of the one crore of rupees set apart for them. You have offended the capitalists, the traders and merchants. Why do you want to offend another class of people who have been tolerant to you and minding their own business without going to you on bended knees for this or that favour? No temple has asked for a Government grant. Somebody gives them donations and they have been building gopurams and conducting pujas. Why do you want to do this when the Government is divesting itself of all patronage for a particular religion? The British Government was supporting the Anglican Church in

[Sri V. Raghavayya] [8th February 1949]

Nellore. The Bishop was paid Rs. 800 a month by the Government of India. The missionaries themselves found that any help given by the Government was acting detrimentally to their interests and gave up the Government help. The touch of the Government brings with it red-tape and several odious things. It is the case with any Government, not merely this Government. Therefore leave religion alone, like a country lass, pure in her natural surroundings. Don't bring her into the vortex of politics unnecessarily, thereby spoiling her and spoiling yourself. Even the Hindu kings never thought it necessary to interfere with the administration of temples. Narada has made several rules in regard to the administration of temples. If you want to give property to the temples, you must obtain the consent of the ruler. The ruler must know what property is released from the obligation of taxation. The Hindu king should see that the property is protected, and for that purpose, the ruler's consent has to be obtained before property is made over to the temple. I commend the suggestion made by the hon. Member Swami Sahajananda to have a committee composed of persons administering these institutions. The Premier himself is a devotee of Ramana Maharishi. Then there is Sankaracharya another great man. These are people who have renounced all earthly pleasures long long ago. They are the fittest people to legislate for these matters. I do not say we are all inferior, but we are inferior to them in this respect. Invite them, have a board and take their advice and then legislate. Do not arrogate to yourself the right to legislate for all things and for all time. Somebody has been saying that he represents thirty crores of people. Everybody has been saying that. If you take the public opinion as expressed in the newspapers, it has condemned the Bill. The Hindu, the Indian Express, the Mail and the Indian Republic have all condemned the Bill. (Interruption.) There is no use of questioning it. Public opinion as mirrored in the press is against the Bill. The Government has not gone to the country with this Bill, nor have I gone to the country to find out what the opinion is. As regards the Members here, several Members have spoken this way and several that way. How are the Government to know which is public opinion? All that Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar asks for is to circulate the Bill for public opinion. Why should the Government be coy like a maiden and fight shy of eliciting public opinion? The Government is also fighting shy of courts of law. In any legislation that is brought forward by the Government it is provided that no court shall question the legality or the absurdity of anything that is done in the name of law. While the Government want to legislate for the country, why are they anxious that their action should not be questioned in a court of law? Then they have also got another section saying that if any difficulty arises in giving effect to the provisions of the Act, the Provincial Government may do anything which appears to them necessary for the purpose of removing the difficulty. I submit, Sir, this is not the way any civilized Government should function. In every country, for instance in England, owing to various differences of opinion and troubles, the Government have always been very very careful not to interfere too much with religion. After all, if you interfere with every walk of life, in what sphere can the Hindu breathe freely? Why do you want to throttle him and say that you should not be questioned in a court of law? What right have you to legislate in regard to the daily worship in the temples?

"Sir, there is another clause which is equally obnoxious and offensive from the legal point of view. The pity of it is there are lawyers on the Treasury Bench who are highly educated, but why should they shudder at the very mention of law courts and why should they, like the Touch-me-not, not like to be questioned by the courts of law and entrench themselves behind all these safeguarding devices.

"Here is another section, section No. 85, which says:

'Save as otherwise expressly provided in this Act, no notification issued, order passed, decision made, proceedings or action taken, scheme settled, or other thing done under the provisions of this Act by the Provincial Government, or the Commissioner or a Deputy or Assistant Commissioner, shall be liable to be questioned in any Court of Law.'

I think this looks as if the Government want to exist for a long time to come and they do not want . . . (The Hon. Dr. T. S. S. Rajan: 'No, no.') I do not want to be disturbed."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Order, order."

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA:—"What I wish to say, Sir, is, no Government which has a long programme before it and which has already to do many things should enter upon such safeguarding devices. It is there because they are afraid of courts, for the prince and the beggar will be held up equally before the judge and they know the consequences. Now, the other section which takes away the power of the court is section 83 which says:

'No suit or legal proceeding in respect of the administration of a religious institution, or in respect of any other matter or dispute for determining or deciding which provisions is made in this Act, shall be instituted in any court of law, except under and in conformity with, the provisions of this Act.'

Another section says whatever might be done by any servant of the department it shall not be questioned in any court of law but that it shall be deemed to have been done bona fide, but all these things clearly indicate that legislation is defective and being conscious of the defectiveness of legislation they want to take all these outside aids and so do not want the courts of law to interfere. Probably they seem to think that it reduces the prestige of the Government and will bring them into endless troubles. But that is not the way of meeting the wishes of the people.

"Finally, Sir, I would suggest that even so far as religion is concerned, all that Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar wants is that public opinion should be ascertained, and the Government may wait for some more time and not rush through the Bill. After all you have got the Indian Parliament's decision regarding the fundamental rights of citizens which will come into effect some time hence and there is no harm in waiting for another six months and then you may bring in this legislation once for all. Why not the Government tolerate the views of people, particularly when they have been telling time after time that they are democratic, they are tolerant, they do not offend people and that they do not want to do this or that? In this connexion, I may point out that even the British Government had some toleration for our religion. I do not know why the Indian Government should not act likewise. I am not of course going to refer to the Queen's Proclamation or canvass for that because it is too well-known. So, it has been said that as regards the nature of the right exercised by the Government the Judicial Committee in Raja Mulla Ramalinga Setupathi v Periyannayagam Pillai already referred to opined like this:

'It is evident that before that Regulation the British Government by virtue of its sovereign power asserted as the former ruler of the country had done, the right to visit endowments of this kind and to prevent and redress abuses in their management.'

It is a dictatorial power on the part of the Government. Even the Bombay Government gave to the Collector powers enabling him to enforce an honest and proper administration of religious endowments, but not to grab power and get sanction for interfering with everything that is going on there. On the other hand, the best way of administering these things will be to appoint, as is being done in every other connexion to-day, committees; let them nominate the members of the committees and through those committees have the administration of the endowments carried out. Instead of that, the action of Government in stepping in and forcing people will result in discontent and bring the fair name of the Congress into the mire which I, as a member of the Congress Legislature Party, will not allow to be perpetrated."

"இன்றைய தினம் மடாதிபதிகளுடைய நியமனங்களில் தகராறு ஏற்பட்டால் அவர்களுக்குள் எவ்வளவோ கொலைகள் நடந்துவிடுகின்றன. அப்படி இருக்கும்போது அவைகளில் அரசாங்கம் ஏன் தலையிடக்கூடாது. இன்றைய தினம் கட்டளை தம்பிரான் பட்டத்திற்கு வருவதற்கு எவ்வளவு குழ்ச்சிகள் நடக்கிறது என்று பார்க்கலாம்; கொலைகள்கூட நடந்து வருகின்றன. இவைகளைப் பார்த்துக்கொண்டிருக்க முடியுமா? அங்கே இருக்கும் சொத்து நகைகள் ஆடையாபரணங்கள் இவைகளின்மேல் ஆசை கொண்டு இளைஞர்களைக்கூட மடாதிபதிகளாக நியமித்து வருகிறார்கள். பழைய காலங்களில் சந்நியாசிகள் காலி வஸ்திரம் அணிந்து வீட்டிற்கு வீடு சென்று பிட்சை எடுத்து வாழ்ந்தார்கள். அவ்விதம் ஊர் ஊராகத் திரிந்து மதங்களையும் வேதசாஸ்திரங்களையும் பரப்பிவந்தார்கள். ஆனால் இன்றைய தினம் வீலை உயர்ந்த ஆடையாபரணங்களை அணிந்துகொண்டு மடமாணிகளில் இருந்துகொண்டு நேர்மாருன காரியங்களைச் செய்கிறார்கள்.

“இன்றைய தினம் தஞ்சை ஜில்லாவில் இரண்டொரு மடங்கள் நன் றாக நடைபெற்று வருகின்றன என்று சொல்லப்படுகிறது. ஏதோ சில மடங்கள் தவறுதலாக நடப்பதால் எல்லா மடங்களையும் அதேமாதிரி நினைத்து அவைகளில் தலையிடுவதா என்று கேட்கப்படுகிறது. அந்த இரண்டொரு மடங்கள் இன்றைய தினம் நன்றாக நடந்து வரலாம். அதற்காக இப்பொழுது மற்றவைகளிலும் கை வைக்கக் கூடாது என்று சொல்லமுடியாது. நாளைய தினம் அவைகள் எந்த நிலைமைக்கு வரும் என்று சொல்லமுடியாது. அதனால் பொதுவாக மடங்களை சீர்திருத்தம் செய்யவேண்டுமென்று கொண்டு வந்தால் அது எல்லாவற்றிற்குமாகத் தான் இருக்கவேண்டும். இப்பொழுது இரண்டொன்று நன்றாக நடக் கின்றன என்பதாக சட்டமியற்றாது விட்டுவிட்டு பிறகு சட்டம் கொண்டு வருவது என்பது முடியாத காரியம். மடாதிபதிகளின் விஷயங்களில் அரசாங்கம் தலையிடக்கூடாது என்று சொல்லுகிறார்கள். மடாதிபதிகள் நியமனங்களில் எவ்வளவு குழப்பமும் எவ்வளவு கொலைகளும் நடக் கின்றன என்பதை தெரிவிக்க விரும்புகிறேன். இன்னும் எவ்வளவோ ஆடம்பர சிலவுகள் நடைபெறுகிறது. அவ்விதம் தவறான சிலவுகள் செய் தால் ஏன் அரசாங்கம் தலையிடக்கூடாது. தலையிட்டால் என்ன முறையி் போய் விடுகிறது. எந்தவிதமாக வாதம் செய்தாலும் அதற்கு அர்த்தமே இல்லை. நமக்கு தலையிட சகல உரிமைகளுமிருக்கின்றன.

“நமக்கு இந்த சட்டம் கொண்டுவருவதற்கு என்ன உரிமை இருக் கிறது என்று கேட்கப்படுகிறது. அரசியல் நிர்ணய சபை சட்டத்திற்கு முன்னாக இப்பொழுது சட்டம் கொண்டுவரக் கூடாது என்றும் சொல்லப் படுகிறது. அதற்காக அதிலுள்ள 19, 20-வது பிரிவுகளை எடுத்துக் “இன்னொரு விஷயம். இன்றைய தினம் 16-வது பிரிவு (1)-வது உப்பிரிவின்படி கமிஷனர், டிபுடி கமிஷனர், சிப்பந்திகள் இவர்களெல் லாம் கர்ப்கரகத்திற்கும் மூலஸ்தானத்திற்கும் செல்வது தவறு என்று சொல்லப்படுகிறது. அப்படி செல்வதில் என்ன தவறு இருக்கிறது. ஆசார மாக போகவேண்டுமென்று சொன்னால் அதை ஆட்சேபிக்கமுடியாது பொதுவாகப் போகக்கூடாது என்று சொல்வது தப்பு. அங்கே போகக் கூடாது என்று வைத்திருப்பதால்தான் ஊழல்களும் தவறுதலான காரி யங்களும் அங்கு நடக்கின்றன அவைகளை கவனிக்க முடியாமலிருக்கிறது. ஆகையால் இதைப்பற்றி ஏதாவது ஆட்சேபணை இருந்தால் அவைகளை யோசித்து இவைகளை பொறுக்குக் கமிட்டியில் பரிசீலனை செய்து அதற்கு வேண்டிய திருத்தத்தைக் கொண்டுவந்து நிறைவேற்றுவதில் எந்த வித மான ஆட்சேபணையும் இருக்கமுடியாது.

[8th February 1949] [Sri S. A. Devanayaga Iyah]

“இன்றைய தினம் கருஞ்சட்டை இயக்கம் அரசாங்கப் போக்கால் வளருகிறது என்று சொல்லப்படுகிறது. இதுவரையில் மதத்தின் பேரால் தீய பழக்கங்களிலிருந்து விலகிவரவில்லை என்று கேட்கிறேன். அதற்காக விடுதலை, கிளர்ச்சி, புரட்சி முதலிய பத்திரிகைகளின்மீது ஏன் நடவடிக்கைகள் எடுத்துக்கொள்ளப்படவில்லை என்று கேட்கப்படுகிறது. இந்தப் பத்திரிகைகள்தான் இந்த சட்டத்திற்கு ஆதரவு கொடுக்கிறது என்றும் ஹிந்து, மெயில், மித்திரன், தார்மிக ஹிந்துபோன்ற பத்திரிகைகள் இந்த சட்டத்தை ஆதரிக்கவில்லை என்றும் சொல்லப்படுகிறது. இவைகளெல்லாம் அவரவர்களுடைய அபிப்பிராயம்தான். ஹிந்து, மெயில் முதலிய பத்திரிகைகள் ஆதரிக்கவில்லை என்றால் அது அவர்களுடைய துர் அதிர்ஷ்டம்தான். ஆனால் அந்தப் பத்திரிகைகளில் இந்த சட்டத்தை எத்தனை பேர்கள் ஆதரித்து பேசுகிறார்கள், எத்தனை பேர்கள் ஆதரிக்கவில்லை என்பதெல்லாம் சரியாக வெளிவருவதில்லை. ஆதரித்துப் பேசுகிற பேச்சு களெல்லாம் அவைகளில் வருவது கிடையாது. ஆனால் ரிப்போர்ட்டர்களை தப்பு சொல்வதற்கில்லை. அவர்கள் எழுதினான் அனுப்புகிறார்கள். ஆனால் அங்கேயுள்ளவர்கள்தான் அவைகளை பிரசுரிப்பது இல்லை. ஆகவே பத்திரிகை சொந்தக்காரர்கள் எந்த விதமாக அபிப்பிராயம் வைத்திருக்கிறார்களோ அவ்விதம் தான் அவர்களுடைய பத்திரிகைகளில் செய்திவெளி வருகிறது. புரட்சி, கிளர்ச்சி, விடுதலை பத்திரிகைகள் ஆதரிக்கிறது என்றால் அது அர்த்தமற்ற வாதமாகும். தினசரி பத்திரிகை ஆதரிக்கவில்லையா என்று கேட்கிறேன். ஹிந்து, மெயில், சந்தேசமித்திரன் பத்திரிகைகள்தான் உண்மை பத்திரிகைகள் என்று சொல்ல முடியுமா? அவைகளும் இனிமேல் ஆதரிக்கும்படியான நிலைமை ஏற்படலாம் என்று எதிர்பார்க்கிறேன். இன்னும் தார்மிகஹிந்து என்னும் பத்திரிகையைப் பற்றி கொஞ்சம் சொல்லவேண்டியதாக இருக்கிறது. அவர்கள் எழுதும் விஷயங்களைப் பார்த்தால் அது பத்திரிகை என்றே சொல்வதற்கு இல்லை. அது எழுதுவதெல்லாம் தார்மிகமில்லாமல் அதார்மிகமாகவே இருக்கிறது என்று தெரிவித்துக் கொள்ளுகிறேன். பத்திரிகை என்றால் தனிப்பட்டவர்களைப்பற்றி எழுதவே கூடாது. அந்த பத்திரிகை ஒரு தனிப்பட்ட நபரை குற்றம் சொல்லி எழுதுவதே நோக்கமாகக் கொண்டிருக்கிறது. அப்படியார் எழுதுகிறதே தெரியவில்லை. இது நம்முடைய மந்திரிகளுடைய பார்வைக்கு வந்திருக்கிறதோ என்னவோ அதுவும் தெரியவில்லை. வேண்டுமானால் இந்த சட்டத்தை எதிர்த்து பேசும் நண்பர்கள் அதை பார்க்கட்டும். தார்மிக ஹிந்து 30-ம் தேதி பத்திரிகையை பார்க்கட்டும். அதன் தலையங்கம் எவ்வளவு ஆபாசமாக எழுதப்பட்டிருக்கிறது என்று பார்க்கட்டும். இப்படியெல்லாம் ஒரு பத்திரிகை எழுதுமா என்று யோசிக்க வேண்டும். அதை இப்பொழுது வாசிப்பதற்கு நேரமில்லை. இந்த மாதிரி யான பத்திரிகைகள் சட்டத்தை ஆதரிக்கவில்லை, ஆதலால் சட்டம் கொண்டு வரக்கூடாது என்றால் அதில் அர்த்தமில்லை. உண்மையான கருத்துடன் இருந்தால்தான் வாதங்களை ஒப்புக்கொள்ள முடியும்.

The House then adjourned to meet again on Thursday, the 10th instant, at 2 p.m.

THE MADRAS LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Thursday, the 10th February 1949.

The House met in the Assembly Chamber, Fort St. George, at two of the clock, Mr. Speaker (THE HON. SRI J. SIVASHANMUKHAM PILLAI) in the Chair.

* THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—“ Mr. Speaker, Sir, apart from the various criticisms that we had in the Press about this Bill, there have also been differences of opinion in this House not merely about the amendment moved by Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar, but also about the fundamental principles of the Bill. Statements have also been made that those who work for this Bill will suffer the curses of God; such implications were uttered by Mr. Annamalai Pillai who said: ‘ Beware, if you are going to play like this with Hindu religion, you will suffer.’ Very good suggestions have been made by persons like Dr. Ramachandra Rao, whose speech was almost like a sermon, coming as it does, from his wide experience. My only appeal to this House is that let us not question the bona fides of each other in these matters. I entirely believe that those who have spoken for the postponement of the Bill or against the provisions of this Bill, were speaking with absolute sincerity and good feelings; hence it is, we have to be little more cautious and careful; I would only plead some charity towards us also, without any motives being attributed to us, if we feel that this Bill should be proceeded with.

“ I know, Sir, the dice is very heavily loaded against us. Some of the very prominent newspapers of this City and also journals have opposed this Bill. Leading lawyers, jurists, and law-makers as well as constitution-makers, eminent judges, retired judges of the High Court have expressed opinions against the legislation being undertaken now. I respect their opinions, Sir. But I have not been able to appreciate a good portion of their opinions. Some estimable gentlemen, have been, if I may say so, a little bit uncharitable. Mr. T. R. Venkatarama Sastri is one among them. For him, I have always had the highest regard, and I used to look to him with admiration while I was a lawyer practising in the mufassal; my admiration for him after close association with him in the courts, has only increased my respect and regard for him. I have admired his forensic talents; and closer acquaintance with him only revealed to me his lovable nature, and how he is ready to help any good cause. When such a person as Mr. Sastri makes a criticism against this Bill, and in the course of it, attributes motives to the Government, it really pained me. He said that the object of the Bill seems to be to create appointments and exercise patronage and distribute favours. When Mr. Bhashyam, who has been saying such things, had said that it did not pain me. Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar also said that there will be a plethora of appointments soon after the passing of the Bill. That was not very uncharitable. Will it be right, Sir, if I say that the opposition to this Bill is because those who enjoyed the patronage so far, fear that they will lose it? If I were to make such an allegation as that, it would be as false as the allegations made by some that the object of the Bill is to create appointments, and exercise patronage. I would only plead, Sir, that let there be a little more charity in these matters. A very important and prominent person who could make or mar Governments, and has got facilities to mould public opinion, asked me this question: 'My dear fellow, does your Premier expect Sankaracharya or Ramana Maharishi to come and render accounts to him?' I replied: 'The Premier knows sufficiently well that Sankaracharya and Ramana Maharishi are sanyasins, sarva sangaparithyagis; they do not care for the material or mundane aspect of things. I am sure the Premier does not require anybody to tell him that they are sanyasins that do not care for the worldly aspect of things. Do you think that he wants them to render accounts to him? Such an assumption is only making a ridicule of serious things. The Premier does not want the Swamis to come and account to him, or waste their energies or mundane and material matters; he wants them to work for our spiritual good, and for the good of the whole of the country.

"Sir, it is not Sri Sankaracharya or Sri Ramana Maharishi who are administering these estates, but they are administered by people who are employed by them for the purpose. Perhaps, these sanyasins do not even know how the estates are being managed, how their accounts are being kept and for what purpose their funds are spent. And therefore what the Hon'ble Premier wants by bringing in a measure like this is to see that these estates endowed to these mutts by our ancestors and kings and by very devoted persons are looked after properly, that proper accounts are kept of their income and expenditure and that the funds are spent for the good of these institutions and for good purposes and to prevent them from being misadministered. Our Hon'ble Premier is not so proud a man as to ask Sri Sankaracharya to attend to these material things himself and to render accounts, but the considered reason why he has brought in this Bill is really to relieve the Acharyas and Sanyasins of their worries in attending to these material things. But in spite of it, some people think that there is something very bad in this Bill.

"Sir, I want that we should keep out of our minds such considerations which are not germane to the Bill, but should confine ourselves to the provisions of the Bill and see how far the objections raised are relevant and how far this Bill goes against the fundamental rights envisaged in the Constitution that is being framed by the Constituent Assembly. The amendment of my hon. Friend Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar is that it may be sent out for eliciting public opinion, but I know that the objection is not meant simply for eliciting public opinion. As my hon. Friend Mr. Chidambaram Ayyar made it clear in his speech, if this Bill is circulated for public opinion, it would take some months to get public opinion and in the meanwhile the Constituent Assembly would have passed the Constitution Act, when, it is hoped this legislation would become out of order. Otherwise, I cannot understand the reason why this dilatory motion is moved. I ask those friends who supported this amendment what would be the result, if the Constitution Act is passed and a referendum is taken from among the Hindus, whether this Bill should be proceeded with or not? I am sure, Sir, that 90 per cent of the Hindus will be in favour of it. Suppose there is some constitutional objection to this Bill, will they agree to waive the constitutional objection in the face of such public support, after the referendum is taken? I really want the House to examine this Bill, assuming that the Constitution Act has been passed, and see where it offends that Act. I am sure in my mind, Sir, that this Bill, even if it is examined from that point of view, will not be ultra vires.

"My hon. Friend Mr. Bhashyam said that when first this Bill was published sixteen months ago, people did not look at it seriously, and that it was only when the Congress Party decided to bring it before this House, that public attention was drawn towards it, and people began to consider its implications seriously. I am afraid, Sir, that I have a better opinion of the public and their reactions to this Bill than Mr. Bhashyam and I can say that those who have sent us here are really watching what we are doing and they have certainly seen the Bill published sixteen months ago and have given their support, and therefore it is wrong to say that nobody has taken this Bill seriously till now.

"Now, Sir, I want the House to remember one thing. It was argued that certain clauses in this Bill offended against the fundamental rights envisaged in the Constitution Act. As I have already said, so far as I have examined this Bill, I see nothing of the sort, but if any improvements are required in this Bill, or if any of the clauses require re-drafting in the light of the provisions contained in the Constitution Act, I hope that hon. Members who know these things very well would help us in the Select Committee to rectify these mistakes and not try to postpone this Bill by asking it to be circulated for public opinion.

"Now, Sir, let me take the fundamental objection that has been raised here. Under the New Constitutions that is in the making, certain fundamental rights have been accepted. Those fundamental rights gave absolute freedom in the matter of professing religion, freedom of conscience, freedom to practice and propagate religion, freedom to manage religious affairs and to own, acquire and administer properties for religious and charitable purposes. Therefore it was contended that this Legislature has no right or jurisdiction to bring in legislation to regulate these religious institutions and so some friends advised us to wait till the Constitution Act becomes the law of the land. My hon. Friend Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar's argument was also on the above lines. With all due deference to him and with all due deference to the opinion of other constitutional lawyers, let me put this question, whether this Legislature has or has not a right to legislate in these matters and to pass a Bill like the one that is before this House. May I invite the attention of hon. Members to the preamble to this Bill, which runs as follows: 'Whereas it is expedient to amend and consolidate the law relating to "the administration and governance" of Hindu Religious and Charitable Institutions and Endowments in the Province of Madras; it is hereby enacted as follows:' I emphasize the words 'administration and governance of Hindu Religious and Charitable Institutions and Endowments.'

"Sir, in the Government of India Act, 1935, under which we are now functioning, in the Provincial Legislative List, the subjects that a Provincial Legislature can legislate upon, have been mentioned and section 100 (3) of the Government of India Act says that, 'Subject to the two preceding sub-sections, the Provincial Legislature has, and the Dominion Legislature has not, the power to make laws for a Province or any part of a Province thereof, with respect to any of the matters enumerated in List II, in the same schedule (hereinafter called the Provincial Legislative List).' And item 34 of the Provincial List (List II) under the Seventh Schedule says, 'Charities, and Charitable Institutions; Charitable and Religious Endowments.' It has been argued that mutts are not endowments, nor are they religious institutions. What else are they? Are they monasteries or monastic heads? I think, Sir, that the framers of the New Constitution that is now in the making in the Constituent Assembly perhaps wanted to include mutts also in the State List and I would invite the attention of hon. Members to item 43 in List II—the State List—under the Seventh Schedule in the Draft Constitution which states as follows: 'Charities and Charitable Institutions, Charitable and Religious Endowments and Religious Institutions.' Therefore, the new item 'religious institutions' has also been added in the State List in the new Draft Constitution.

"Sir, what I wish to submit before this House is this. When any new law is made, or when there is any addition to the existing law, every lawyer knows that the Legislature must have meant something and therefore when the present Drafting Committee which has prepared the new Draft Constitution has specifically added the item 'religious institutions' to the State List, which is corresponding to the Provincial Legislative List in the Government of India Act, and since section 100 (3) of the New Constitution states that the Provincial Government or the State Government has power to make laws for the administration and governance of the Hindu Charities and Charitable Institutions, Charitable and Religious Institutions and Religious Endowments, I cannot understand how it can be contended that the Provincial Legislature has no jurisdiction over these mutts, etc., according to the New Constitution Act. So, I do not think that it can be seriously argued by anybody that even under the New Constitution that is being enacted by the Constituent Assembly at Delhi, the State Legislature or the Legislature of a Province cannot legislate on religious endowments and religious institutions. Therefore the whole question resolves itself into this. We have got powers to legislate on these subjects. But that power should be in consonance with the fundamental rights enunciated under Article 20 of the New Constitution. If it opposes or goes against the spirit of the fundamental rights, then even the mention of it in the Schedule does not give us jurisdiction. Now let us see what are those fundamental rights. The fundamental rights should not be confused with the management of these institutions. I have a fundamental right guaranteed under the New Constitution to profess and practice Hindu religion. I have a fundamental right to propagate my religion. I can preach and propagate my religion in order to make my hon. Friend Mr. Moideen Kutti to embrace the Hindu fold. (Mr. P. K. Moideen Kutti: 'And vice versa,'). That is a fundamental right that is given to me by the New Constitution under Article 19 and no legislation passed in this Legislature can prevent myself or my friend from doing such a thing. My hon. Friend Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar refers to Article 20 and not Article 19, although I submit, Sir, that Articles 19 to 22 come under one Chapter entitled 'Rights relating to religion.' So all those Articles should be read together. Article 19 says, 'Subject to public order, morality and health and to the other provisions of this part, all persons are equally entitled to freedom of conscience and the right freely to profess, practice and propagate religion.' If anybody says that I cannot practice my religion or that I cannot propagate my religion, that would be ultra vires. But it does not take away our right, as a Legislature, to pass legislation to take over the management of temple properties or properties that are handed over to religious and charitable institutions, and to put down the malpractices found therein. As I said, Sir, this Bill only contemplates the consolidation of laws relating to the administration and governance of Hindu Religious and Charitable Institutions and Endowments. It does not refer to the practice or profession or propagation of one's religion.

"Sir, it has been argued by eminent persons and even by the Swamiji who is fasting there, that because we are a Secular State we cannot undertake any legislation on religion. But I say, Sir, that we should not make a fetish of things or we should not attempt to make things ridiculous by stretching things too far. It is a Secular State and it guarantees certain rights to the people but that does not mean that the management or mismanagement or the appropriation or misappropriation of the funds of a trust is religious and not secular. There must be a distinction and there must be a line drawn in certain matters as to where religion ends and where the management or secular or material aspect of a thing begins. If we look things like that then there will be no difficulty about a Secular State. Religious endowments have to be governed also under a Secular State and the State has a paramount duty to guard this fundamental right to see that the religious and charitable institutions are managed properly. That is also a fundamental right which everybody should demand and guard. The Crown in England has always been regarded as the protector of charities and charity includes religion.

"Sir, I was referring to Article 19 which guarantees the fundamental right to practice and profess and propagate religion and certain exceptions are made there. It is also said that nothing in that Article shall affect the operation of any existing law or prevent the State from making any law regulating or restricting any economic, financial—I want the House to remember this—regulating or restricting any economic, financial, political or secular activities which may be associated with religious practice. I am one following the religious practices of the Hindus, Sir. And I know there are certain secular aspects of that, that is, the management of funds of the endowments. This is not religious practice. The management of the property of some temple is like the management of any other man's private property for which the Transfer of Property Act would apply. We cannot say that the property placed under a Hindu temple or a mutt shall not be subject to the Transfer of Property Act because religious freedom has been guaranteed, or that the Contract Act shall not apply. If I say so I will be ridiculed. It is also provided in Article 19 that for social welfare and reform all Hindu Religious Institutions of a public character shall be open to all classes and sections of the Hindus. That also is protected. When the Temple Entry Bill was being discussed in the House when my illustrious Friend Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar out of his conviction entered the Mathurai temple along with Harijans . . ."

SRI A. VAIDYANATHA AYYAR:—"On a point of personal explanation, Sir. At that time it was done like that because it was open to the Legislature to pass Acts like this and there were no fundamental rights. Therefore it was, we argued and all the courts upheld the contention, that the Legislature had the right. Now our contention is that it is not open to us in view of the fundamental right."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"If my friend had wanted for me to complete the sentence, Sir, there would not have been necessity for this. I entirely agree with him that there was no fundamental rights then and it has been specifically provided now. Article 8 of the Constitution says, Sir, and those who sponsored the amendment know that also, that all laws in force immediately before the commencement of this Constitution in the territory of India in so far as they are inconsistent with the provisions of this Part, shall to the extent of such inconsistency be void. Therefore they say that under the fundamental rights you cannot pass a legislation like this and if you do so the legislation will be void. They ask: 'Why do you want to waste the time and energy of this House? You can pass it now because there is nothing to prevent you under the existing law but under Article 8 of the Constitution Act that is coming it will be void'. That is the argument of some people. I certainly agree, Sir, that if it will be void we shall not pass it. My submission is that it may be rejected on its merits. But let us not try to bring in dilatory motions for putting the Bill away for the Constitution to come. So let us argue on the footing that the Constitution Act has come into force. At the time the Temple Entry Act was passed, and when Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar went into the Mathurai temple, did not the whole Hindu community or a good portion of the Hindu community which now opposes the Bill, including great Sanyasins and even Sankaracharyas and matathipathis, think that religion was in danger and that Hinduism was lost. Of course they said that out of honest conviction, I certainly concede that. The argument of those people who supported Temple Entry was that untouchability was no part of Hinduism. So I say that the administration of a temple of the Hindu religion is no religion. My submission to Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar through you, Sir, is that this is also exempted under Article 20 of the Constitution.

"What I was saying was, Sir, that Article 19 has protected certain things done by this Legislature, the regulating or restricting the economic, financial and political and other secular activities that may be associated with religion. Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar was relying upon Article 20. Let us analyse and see Article 20. Article 20 says: Subject to public order, morality and health, every religious denomination or any section thereof shall have the right (1) to establish and maintain institutions for religious and charitable purposes. Under that I have a fundamental right to dedicate my property for religious and charitable endowments. You cannot by legislation prevent it. The Muhammadan Law prevents all your property being willed away. But under the Constitution that we are now to have the fundamental right has given every person the right to give his property to and establish and maintain religious institutions. Nobody can prevent it. He has the right to manage his own affairs in matters of religion. What is the fundamental right that has been granted under Article 20 (b); not to manage property, but to manage his own affairs in matters of religion. If rent is to be collected from a land belonging to a temple, it is not a matter of religion. The management of a trust property for the purpose for which the trustees meant it and the prevention of its mismanagement or misappropriation is not a matter of religion. I lay special emphasis on sub-Article (b), Sir. Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar insisted upon that, that to manage its own affairs in matters of religion, meant that the management of the institution should be done by him . . ."

SRI A. VAIDYANATHA AYYAR:—"On a point of personal explanation."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The Hon. Minister is not yielding."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"My hon. Friend will have not only one . . ."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Two Members are standing simultaneously."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"I am sorry, Sir. My hon. Friend will have a number of opportunities to offer his personal explanations. Let him not do it now, Sir, so that it may not prevent my trend of thought. I may not be quoting his words exactly, Sir, and with the same force as he did. I am only giving the substance of what he said. I was only saying that the fundamental right gave the guarantee only to manage its own affairs in matters of religion. Every religious denomination or section, Sir, is also given the fundamental right to own and acquire movable and immovable property. Nobody can prevent this. It also gives the right to administer such property 'in accordance with law.' What is the meaning of the words 'in accordance with law.' Sir? The property can be acquired, no body can prevent it. But when once it has been acquired the administration can only be in accordance with law. What is the law? That is what we have placed before you and with which we would like the properties to be administered. The Preamble of the Bill only says that it is for administering and governing of the properties of religious and charitable endowments. It would rather require a very big strength of the imagination to say, Sir, that the Bill before you offends anyone of the Articles 18, 19 or 20. I shall take certain examples. As I said, Sir, the mismanagement, maladministration or misappropriation of the funds of temples and charitable institutions and endowments are not religion. If they say that these are religion certainly nobody will believe them. If they are not religion then under Article 19 the interference by Government is warranted and that is what we are doing. Is it not necessary to regulate the management and administration of temples and mutts, Sir? Are we to allow others to mismanage them, Sir? It may be that my management may not be good in all cases. It is quite possible. Even if my management is wrong, it does not mean that it is not my duty to correct them.

"I wish to bring to the notice of the House one fact, Sir. We could not have come forward with a legislation like this, Sir, but for certain contingencies that have arisen. On the passing of the Temple Entry Act in Malabar at the instance of some trustees certain priests said that the Act was against religion and refused to perform puja and they went away. The trustees also who were of the same opinion refused to appoint other pujaris who were willing to conduct the puja. They simply allowed the temple to be closed. I know there are instances where the trustees felt that the Temple Entry Act was an encroachment upon religion. The priests went away and no pujari was appointed and there was no puja. What is the remedy, Sir, under such circumstances for any worshipper or devotee, not to speak of the Government, to see that the temple is opened for puja? Objection has been taken here that Government want to conduct and regulate the rituals. It is not the Government that is going to prescribe the mantras or things like that. If the priest or the trustee refuses to conduct the puja properly, what is the authority to ask him to go and open the temple? There must be somebody to say that. It is not that rituals are going to be prescribed by the Government or the Prime Minister is going to prescribe the mantras. Sir, you may remember that when both of us went to Tiruchirappalli for addressing a meeting before the temple, what the fate of the God that day was, because knowing that you and I were going to visit the temple, the trustee and the pujaris closed the temple and went away and nobody was available. Then you were not willing to come away without worshipping the God and so you waited the next day and even then the temple was not opened. The trustee and the poojaris were not present there. Then you persisted and waited till the night and the next morning you insisted on worshipping the God and the trustee had to yield because of your persistence . . ."

MR. SPEAKER:—"I do not want to intervene in the debate. I do not know whether the Hon. Minister knows what the result of my entry into the temple was. I received a letter from a responsible person later from that place that the mirasidars fined the Harijans who entered the temple along with me."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"That only makes my position stronger. I appeal to my hon. Friend, Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar, and others to help us in such cases. What are we to do when things like that happen and if there is no power to ask the trustee to obey the orders of Government? Objection has been taken that this legislation gives powers to the Government to ask the trustee to do certain things and that the trustee shall obey the orders of Government. "After all what are those powers? They are only lawful orders. Objection is taken to lawful orders of Government being enforced on trustees. It is said that the section offends Article 20. But, what shall we do if a trustee refuses to obey the orders of Government? So, we have to pass legislation like this and we are entitled to pass such a legislation to prevent such things. Otherwise, it is difficult for us to manage them and we will be perpetrating mismanagement of the temples.

"Sir, I will not be misquoting, but put in my own language, what some Members spoke about the question of the Constitution. Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar said that Article 8 (1) of the Draft Constitution already passed and Article 8 (2) provide that the State shall not make any law which offends the fundamental rights. He has stated that Acts which have already been passed, if they are in any way inconsistent with these fundamental rights, to that extent will be void. This is Article 8 (1) of the Fundamental Rights Chapter. The next Article 8 (2) states that the State shall not make any law which takes away or prejudice the rights conferred by this Part and any law made in contravention of this clause, shall, to the extent of the contravention be void. Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar may not have been exhaustive. Some instances were given by Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar which according to him offend the provisions of the Act. May I request the House to examine those sections. The words used in Article 20 are 'to administer such property in accordance with law.' It does not mean that any law can be passed taking away the administration itself. If I have understood Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar, I think that was his argument. Of course, I was not present when Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar spoke but read his speech from the official report and I am referring only to that. He said that according to clause (b) of Article 20 that is, administering properties according to law, no legislation can be passed taking away the administration itself. Sir, administration is an act, an act of a body and so legislation must be passed in respect of administration of properties. I wish to say that every section that has been framed here is only in respect of administration and I do not think any other interpretation is possible or to say that it is not for administration, but if there should be interference with religious practices we must certainly guard against it. If on the other hand, there is any provision in the bill which says we are encroaching upon religious practices of any particular community of Hindus, it must be corrected and I want hon. Members to help us in doing so. Law which is expected to be good is one which can regulate management and not take away management and that is the fundamental right which has been recognized by the Constitution. I do not at all say that the right of management cannot be taken away by legislation of this Legislature. Because, if there is mismanagement, the State should be given power to legislate for the proper management of religious institutions and charitable endowments. Otherwise, what is the remedy if a trustee refuses to manage an endowment? The only remedy is to take up the management on ourselves and manage it in the way in which the original donor wanted it to be managed. What other legislation you want to pass fails my comprehension.

"Then, Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar says that the Bill offends article 20 in clauses 15, 16, 18, 32, 38, 41, 43, 45 and 53. I must here crave the pardon of the House if I take them through those sections. I shall refer to them cursorily. Clause 6 is one of those sections which Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar says, offends section 20 of the Constitution. On the other hand, clause 6 says 'Subject to the provisions of this Act, the general superintendence of all religious institutions and endowments shall vest in the Provincial Government.' As I have said, we are supposed to legislate in respect of religious institutions. Then it goes on to say 'Such superintendence shall include the power to pass orders which may be deemed necessary for the proper maintenance or administration of any religious institution or endowment.' It says only 'maintenance or administration of any religious institution or endowment' and not to conduct religious practices. Again, Sir, the objection seems to be to the words 'vest in the Provincial Government'. I do not exactly see how the right is being taken away by the Provincial Government and that the management shall vest in the Government. Certain provisions are there that if a trustee mismanages or a trustee does anything else, to take over the management. It is probable that under certain circumstances, for instance, if a trustee will not manage an institution, in such cases, subject to the provisions of the Act, the superintendence and management of such religious institutions shall vest in the Government. The word or expression 'vest' is objected to be wrong. What is its meaning? The meaning which the framers of the draft Bill have is, in such cases where it is absolutely necessary that the management or administration of an institution is to be regulated, the Government shall have power to regulate it. That is only what is meant by it and that will not be against the Constitution. If my hon. Friends think that is not the proper expression, I want my hon. Friends who are jurists to help up in putting any other suitable word that will not make the Act void, Sir.

"The next section referred to by Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar relates to section 15, which says: 'Subject to the control of the Provincial Government and the provisions of this Act, the general superintendence of all religious institutions and endowments shall vest in the Commissioner; it shall be the duty of the Commissioner to see to the proper management of the secular affairs of religious institutions'—it should be noted that the words used here are 'secular affairs' and not any other affairs—and to the due performance of rituals, ceremonies and other religious observances therein or in connexion therewith.' Then it goes on 'The Commissioner may do all things which are reasonable and necessary to ensure that religious institutions and endowments are properly administered and that their income is duly appropriated for the purposes for which they were founded or exist.' Now, Sir, objection is taken as to whether a Secular Government can undertake to see to the due performance of rituals, ceremonies and other religious observances. It is a very big stretch of the language to say that this section gives power to the Government to prescribe rituals and to prescribe the methods for the performance or observance of rituals and so on. It is not so. With reference to proper management of the secular affairs and the due performance of rituals, etc. I should say they only mean what has been performed and what is to be performed are according to the Agamas and Shastras, but not that we should prescribe these. To say that we are to prescribe the rituals is to say something which is not intended by the language of the section.

"Then Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar said that section 18 offends against Article 20 of the Constitution. The section says: 'The trustee of a religious institution shall be bound to obey all orders issued under the provisions of this Act by the Provincial Government, the Commissioner or the Deputy or Assistant Commissioners.' Here the expression 'any order' means all orders. The objection to this is that tomorrow the Government may ask the trustee to stand on his head and so it is stated that any order should be obeyed and so it goes fundamentally against Fundamental rights. "All orders" only mean all lawful orders and we will not want to pass any ridiculous or unlawful orders. What is meant is only all lawful, legitimate and right orders for the proper management of the institutions. The Bill contemplates that all orders issued for the proper maintenance of the institutions should be obeyed and it does not mean all or sundry orders within the conception of the human mind. So, I do not think that this section offends article 20.

"Coming to sections 32 to 38, here there is a little difference between religious institutions and maths. Section 30 of the Bill says 'The provisions of sections 31 to 38 shall not apply to maths or specific endowments attached to maths.' It is because maths or specific endowments are supposed to be different from other religious and charitable endowments. Then, section 32 says: 'The Commissioner or the Assistant Commissioner, as the case may be, may suspend, remove or dismiss the trustee, whether hereditary or non-hereditary of a religious institutions.' When Article 20 gives a person the fundamental right to establish and maintain an institution and manage his own affairs in matters of religion, how can you take the power to dismiss a trustee, because it goes definitely against Article 20? That is the argument that has been advanced against the section. The Commissioner or the Assistant Commissioner can suspend, remove or dismiss a trustee, whether hereditary or non-hereditary, of a religious institution, not for any reason. For instance, it may be for a persistent default in the submission of the Budget. Suppose, for instance, a trustee who is a Hindu, suddenly converts himself tomorrow into a Christian or a Muslim? Because he is a hereditary trustee, do you expect such a person to manage the institution? And should we not have power to remove him and put some other person in his place. I ask? Will the Hindus tolerate it? In cases like that, what is the remedy? A man must be appointed. The other man must be removed. Only certain contingencies are provided for. Clause 32 says—

(1) The Commissioner or the Assistant Commissioner, as the case may be, may suspend, remove or dismiss the trustee, whether hereditary or non-hereditary, of a religious institution—

(a) for persistent default in the submission of budgets, accounts, reports or returns, or

(b) for wilful disobedience of any order issued under the provisions of this Act by the Provincial Government or the Commissioner, Deputy Commissioner or Assistant Commissioner, or

[10th February 1949] [Sri K. Madhava Menon]

(c) for any malfeasance, misfeasance, breach of trust or neglect of duty in respect of the trust, or

(d) for any misappropriation of, or improper dealing with, the properties of the institution of which he is trustee, or

(e) for unsoundness of mind or other mental or physical defect or infirmity which unfits him for discharging the functions of a trustee.'

It is only in cases like those mentioned in (a) to (e), power has been reserved to Government to change the trustee. Even there we do not change the religious practices. The Bill does not contemplate that any religious practice or rituals should be changed. Only the management of the secular affairs of the institution is taken away from the person who does not and cannot conduct them properly. So, Sir, I submit that there is nothing offending in clause 32.

"Then, Sir, objection is taken to Clause 38. It says—

38. (1) The trustee of a religious institution may, from time to time, submit to the Assistant Commissioner proposals for fixing the dittam or scale of expenditure in the institution, and the amounts which should be allotted to the various objects or ceremonies connected with such institution or the proportions in which the income or other property of the institution may be applied to such objects or ceremonies.'

(5) The dittam or scale of expenditure for the time being in force in an institution shall not be altered by the trustee except in accordance with the procedure laid down in this section.'

Objection is taken to fixing the dittam or scale of expenditure. The objection is, why should you take the power to dictate to the trustee when he can establish and manage the religious affairs of the institution? Sir, the trustee is asked to send the budget, and he is required to confine the expenditure provided for in the budget. The dittam cannot be on a haphazard scale. Sub-clause (5) says that the dittam shall not be altered by the trustee except in accordance with the procedure laid down in this section. The trustee is asked to prepare a budget for all the objects of the temple or institution. How does this offend the management of the religious affairs of the institution, I cannot understand. Mr. Bhashyam's argument rather took me by surprise. He said that 'there may be some small pilfering; why do you ask for dittam'. I am sorry my hon. friend is not here. He asked 'why do you ask for dittam.' He said 'some trustee may pilfer some; but trustees have got their prestige; at the time of festivals they spend thousands and lakhs of rupees'. Sir, I cannot understand this. We do not want that lakhs and lakhs of rupees should be spent, and we do not also like to see any pilfering, even if it is small. The trustee has to prepare and send a budget for the income and expenditure of the temple. There is no interference in religious practice. Suppose, the Commissioner says 'You shall have only this Deeparadhana and not the other one', then it may be called interference with the religious performance. You should spend only for ordinary expenditure. That is the object of preparing the budget. That cannot in any way be called interference in religious performance or rituals.

"Then, Sir, with regard to Clause 41. Here also the trustee of every math is required to submit to the Commissioner proposals for fixing the dittam or scale of expenditure. It is said that this goes against the fundamental rights, because under the fundamental rights any person is entitled to make endowments, establish and maintain institutions for charitable purposes. Maintenance does not mean that we should allow expenditure on a scale more than what is required. It does not mean that in the matter of income and expenditure you can do anything you like. It is a case of stretching things too far.

"Then, Sir, objection was taken to clause 43. Clause 43 says—

'Subject to the rights of appeal hereinafter provided, the Deputy Commissioner shall have power to decide the following disputes and matters—

(a) 'whether an institution is a religious institution.'

I cannot understand the objection to this clause. Somebody has to decide whether an institution is a religious institution or not. If the Deputy Commissioner is considered not competent for this purpose, we can think of the Commissioner or somebody else. Practical considerations are there. Somebody has to decide whether an institution is a religious institution or not. What has the legislature interfered with? If interference in the secular matters of religious institutions is not possible, the Wakfs Bill introduced in the other House will become void. Sir, how many people are there who have not tried to evade the provisions of law and tried to appropriate trust properties to themselves? How many people are there who have converted the trust properties as their own private property? Should not somebody decide which is a trust property and which is not? Should not somebody see whether trust properties have been converted into private properties? Therefore, Sir, I say that this does not offend any fundamental rights, unless fundamental rights mean the right to mismanage and misappropriate trust funds.

"Now, Sir, with regard to clause 53. It says—

'The Executive Officer shall hold office for such period as may be fixed by the Commissioner and he shall exercise such powers and perform such duties as may be assigned to him by the Commissioner.'

Sir, the appointment of the Executive Officer is by the Commissioner. The Commissioner delegates to the Executive Officer the powers of management of the properties. The Executive Officer must have those powers to ensure proper administration. Sir, even though this Bill has been drafted before the fundamental rights have been finally decided in the Constituent Assembly, the draughtsmen have been careful in drafting this clause. They say 'in the case of a mutt, only such powers and duties as appertain to the administration of its endowments shall be assigned to the Executive Officer'. What is the harm, I cannot understand. We legislate only for administering the math and not for the religious practice or rituals.

"Another objection has been raised by Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar, which I think may have a semblance of justification. He said that clause 62 of the Bill offends Article 21 of the Constitution. Article 21 of the Constitution says—

'No person may be compelled to pay any taxes, the proceeds of which are specifically appropriated in payment of expenses for the promotion or maintenance of any particular religion or religious denomination.'

Clause 62 of the Bill says—

- (1) In respect of the services rendered by the Provincial Government and their officers, every religious institution shall, from the income derived by it, pay to the Provincial Government annually such contribution not exceeding five per centum of its income as may be prescribed.*
- (2) Every religious institution, the annual income of which, for the fasli year immediately preceding as calculated for the purposes of the levy of contribution under sub-section (1), is not less than one thousand rupees, shall pay to the Provincial Government annually, for meeting the cost of auditing its accounts, such further sum not exceeding one and a half per centum of its income as the Commissioner may determine.'*

The argument against this clause is that Government are collecting money from the institutions, and that it is a tax on religious institutions which is prevented by Article 21. Apparently, it is so, but what the Premier wants is that for the management of the temples or institutions, some contribution has to be collected. It will be used only for the purpose of managing the institution and not for any other purpose of the State. Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar might argue as he has hinted that the money collected would form part of the general revenues, and that it might be spent on some other purpose. Sir, we cannot conceive of that; and it is not what is intended. Money is collected only for the purpose of meeting the cost of management of temples and mutts. If the words put in the clause lend themselves easily to the interpretation that the collection will amount to a tax, we shall certainly look into this and set it right."

Mr. SPEAKER:—"The time asked for by the Hon. Minister is over."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, I shall finish in a few minutes. What I say is that it is not intended to be a tax. If the wording is capable of that interpretation, we shall certainly change it.

"Sir, it is said by hon. Members that clauses 83 and 85 offend Article 25 of the Constitution, because Article 25 gives the right to every person to appeal to the Supreme Court in any case where he has been wronged by any other person. Clauses 83 and 85 make an exception in the case of certain actions of the Executive Officer. Certain actions of the Executive Officer have necessarily to be protected, because if every action of the Executive Officer is to be taken before a court of law, he cannot do anything at all. So, he has to be protected. We will examine this exception in detail in the Select Committee. That is all that I can say with regard to these two clauses.

"Then, Sir, with regard to Article 35 of the Constitution. Mr. Nagappa also made the same argument that there must be a uniform civil code. I also fervently pray that there should be a uniform civil court. That does not mean that we should wait till other religious faiths move in the matter. It may be that there is not as much mismanagement in other religions as in the Hindu religion. So, are we to allow mismanagement in the Hindu religion? We know as a matter of fact that there is mismanagement in trusts and institutions. Mr. Nagappa said that he entirely agreed with the Bill, but that it should apply to all religions, namely, Hinduism, Christianity and Islam. That also Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar had, perhaps, in his mind when he said about uniform civil code. It is all too much of exaggeration, if I may say so, to say that the Bill is very harsh, and that it reduces matathipathis to the position of servants of Commissioners and Deputy Commissioners, and that we are asking Sankaracharya to be a servant of the Commissioner. It is not all that.

"Sir, on reading Articles 19 and 21 together, it will be seen that this Bill cannot become void, if one or two sections are repugnant. Before the Fundamental Rights were drafted by the Constituent Assembly this Bill had been drafted. If one or two sections offend the Draft Constitution, can the whole legislation become invalid? Even if by any stretch of law, it can be interpreted so, we must try our best to improve it in the Select Committee. I would request Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar to serve on the Select Committee to rectify the mistakes, and not say that we should postpone this Bill, because the object of the Bill is to see that religious institutions, charities, and endowments are properly administered."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Mr. L. N. Gopalaswami has sent me a chit asking for information whether the Advocate-General is going to take part in the debate, as the Hon. Dr. Rajan said previously. I have enquired of the Advocate-General, and he has told me that he is not going to take part in the debate.

[10th February 1949] [Mr. Speaker]

"The House will sit till we finish this Bill. If necessary, we shall have a short break at 4-30 or 5 for coffee or tea."

THE HON. SRI O. P. RAMASWAMY REDDIAR:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, the House has been discussing this Bill for some time now and I daresay there has been a fairly full dress debate. Outside too, the press and the platform is fully seized of it. You, Sir, have been generous with time. No one, who wanted to speak, was denied an opportunity and no one is more happy about it than I. In fact, Sir, one hon. Member who with great fervour spoke in support of the amendment complained that we have been discussing it so long that his seat has begun to burn. I suppose, Sir, that settles the matter so far as free and full expression of views on the bill is concerned.

"Sir, my Hon'ble and trusted colleague Dr. Rajan, has already presented the case ably before the House. After that, one would naturally feel that there is very little to say on behalf of the Government. I attach particular importance to Dr. Rajan's presentation of the case, not merely because he represents the ancient and modern, the old and the new, but also because he, as a member in charge of the Hindu Religious Endowment portfolio in the Congress Cabinet of 1937, was largely responsible for shaping this Bill; but for the historic events that had led to the resignation of the Congress Ministry soon after, this Bill perhaps would have long ago been placed on the Statute Book by him and the credit or blame would have gone to another Premier namely our beloved Rajaji; but that was not to be. Since it is now my responsibility, Sir, both as the Minister in charge of the Portfolio and as Premier for bringing in this measure, I will be failing in my duty if I do not make a statement on it, however brief it be.

"It is a tragic irony of this country that whenever a measure intended to ameliorate the social, economic or political conditions of the masses at large is brought the cry of religion in danger is invariably raised. If a socio-economic programme like Prohibition the implementation of which is the salvation of the poor is launched, the cry is 'Individual freedom is in danger'. When we want to abolish bigamous marriages and root out the consequent social and economic evils which hold women in subjection, then again the cry is 'Religion in danger'. Sir, in the name of religion opposition was engineered to such measures like the Age of Consent Bill, the Devadasis Bill, the Bill for the entry of Harijans into temples, and a host of salutary measures without which we would be a people, steeped in rank superstition; and yet, Sir, we have survived all these crises. The world is moving forward and with it we too have to. Those who in the name of religion, try to halt the pace of our progress are doing a disservice to the very religion which they profess. I am not prepared to believe, Sir, as some hon. Members have here made out that what opposition there is to this measure is purely the work of vested interests. A considerable part is no doubt likely to be. The Bill does affect a large group of men in society, who in the name of God and religion, misuse the trust that is placed in their hands and find in the proposed measure an end to their scope for exploitation. I am not concerned about them. On the other hand, Sir, their very opposition is an eloquent testimony to the sound and wholesome principles of the Bill. The louder their agitation the greater is the reason for the Bill. But, Sir, it is not for those who directly or indirectly stand to lose materially by a reformist measure such as is now before the House and they are the vast majority comprising the opposing ranks; but to those few who rightly or wrongly believe that the proposed measure is a negation of religious rights—it is to them I seek to appeal. No doubt they know not what they are saying.

“What, Sir, is religion? And what, the concept of State in relation to religion? These are issues, fundamental and much germane to the present discussion. Sir, I ask you, does religion mean exploitation? Does religion mean the misuse of trust placed in your hands? Does religion mean that, in the name of God you must perpetuate the mismanagement of charities and trusts that have been so generously endowed by our forefathers? Does it mean that archanas, abishekams and pujas should be neglected and that no one should raise his little finger to stop it? Does it mean, Sir, that the temple properties should be leased out to intermediaries at nominal rates, resulting in the exploitation of the ryots on the one hand, and sharing in of the loot by a handful and not one pie going to the temple coffers? Does it mean, in the name of God you should let palm trees be tapped, get the poor drunk and bedrag them to eternal misery? This is what happened, Sir. The Thiruvannamalai Devasthanam has a large property of coconut gardens in Madras City. In 1937, when Rajaji Ministry was in power and when this same Dr. Rajan was in-charge of the Hindu Religious Endowment, I approached the Ministry and suggested that consistent with our ideals, God should not be propitiated with tainted money and that the tapping of the trees in the gardens belonging to the temple should be put an end to. Government fell in with my idea, took the matter up with the Hindu Religious Endowment Board, who in turn addressed the trustees. But, Sir, nothing came out of it. The trustees simply refused to free God of the tainted lucre. The Board could do nothing about it, neither the Government. The trees continued to be tapped and the people continued to get drunk, and all for God's glory. Sir, the matter did not rest there. After I became Premier, and after my assuming responsibility for the Administration of the Temple portfolio, I used all the persuasive powers at my command to stop this outrageous act committed in the name of religion. I confess, Sir, I too could do nothing about it. We had to wait for the Prohibition Act. I can cite instance after instance to show how gross the abuses are, how numerous they are and how helpless the present machinery is to correct them. Recently, the Government have appointed a Special Officer to take an inventory of the temple jewellery and treasures. The trustees are sabotaging his work and the officer could not make much headway. Many are the cases where the temple lands have not paid either the land revenue, or the contribution to the Board—all with the object of getting temple land auctioned and appropriated to themselves. I will not weary you with details. I have before me a long list^a of 65 cases extending Vizagapatnam to Tirunelveli where misappropriation or misapplication of trust funds have taken place ranging from a few hundreds of rupees to several lakhs; I invite all those who oppose the measure to have a look at that statement. That will be an eye-opener. The Vedaranyeeswarar Temple at Tanjore district possess 16,000 acres of lands in 45 villages; yet the annual income is shown only as Rs. 75,000. A mutt in South Kanara is indebted under pro-notes to about Rs. 1 lakh and all without the Board's sanction. In North Arcot all endowments of a certain temple have been converted to the Estate of a Jagirdar. In West Godavari lands have been alienated and funds amounting to Rs. 30,000 had been misappropriated. In the Swargapuram math in Tanjore, extensive misappropriation and alienation of properties worth about Rs. 15,000 cash and 26 acres of lands have taken place. The loss of jewellery in Thiruchengode and Vedaranyam are matters well known to everyone. Unauthorised pledging of Mutt jewels by agents occurred in the Pejavara mutt, Udipi. While these abuses are going on under our very nose, is Government to sit with folded hands and be a silent party? No civilized Government, no Government returned by popular will, no Government that has the material and spiritual welfare of its people at heart can abdicate that way.

“And yet there has been quite a volume of discussion on the powers of the State to regulate in matters of religion. At one time the slogan was ‘Religious Neutrality’ of the State. That was the slogan on which opposition to urgent reforms like the Sarada Bill and the Devadasi's Bill was organised. Remember, we had then an alien Government, hardly attentive in an active manner to our religious, social and cultural progress; but even then, Sir, we felt that this Religious Neutrality of the State was a dangerous doctrine. We realized and rightly, Sir, that it would put the clock back for ever. We realised that it was much too recent a doctrine to have any validity for our social environment and needs. At no time, in our history had we ever subscribed to it. Without taking you as far back as the Sanskrit Agamas and the Tamil Tirumantiram, which had laid elaborate rules, enjoining the secular arm of society to regulate its religious counterpart, I may say our Hindu Kings did know of no dichotomy as religion and Government. Religion was an end as well as a means to an end—the end being the social good. The temples functioned not merely as places of worship, but also as schools, orphanages, abodes of justice, centres of culture and pivot of socio-economic life. That was the spirit in which our Chera, Chola, Pandya, and Pallava Kings endowed large properties. That was the object with which they entrusted the religious heads with the management of those properties. The Vijayanagar Kings, the Nayak Kings and the Maharatta Kings who followed in their wake had not thought and acted differently. Even the Moslem Kings respected this time-honoured principle of integration. How else, Sir, can we account for Tipu Sultan endowing Hindu Temples and the Sringeri mutt with large benefactions? And last of all, the Britisher when he came, anxious to maintain the law and traditions of this land, realised that active interference in the affairs of the management and conduct of temples and religious institutions was his bounden duty. The whole period of the East India Company's rule from 1795 to 1848 was replete with this benevolent interference. It was in 1795 that Lionel Place, the Collector of Jagir (Chingleput) finding the administration of Kancheepuram temple woefully mismanaged straightaway proceeded to put the house in order, never taking a thought that he was a foreigner, that he was a Christian and that his Government was alien. Lionel Place wrote:—

[Sri O. P. Ramaswamy Reddiar] [10th February 1949]

'Inasmuch as essential interest in promoting the happiness of its subjects and as the natives of this country know none superior to the good conduct and regularity of their religious ceremonies which are liable to neglect without the interposition of efficient authority, such control and interference became indispensable.'

Other Collectors followed. The Regulation of 1817 was passed. Between 1795 and 1848 not less than 8,222 temples spread over the then 21 districts came under Government's active supervision. Corrupt trustees were dismissed; temples that had remained closed were opened for worship; pujas and festivals were regularly conducted; temple lands were looked after and the ryots welfare was attended to. Permit me to give an other quotation from the Company's records, this time from the Collector of Tirunelveli; 'The present control and interference of the district Government and authorities extends over everything connected with the temple; from the collection of its revenues and the management of its lands to the regulating of its daily usual expenses, its periodical festivals and repairs.' Such thorough-going was the control. Lionel Place had jewels made to the shrine at Kancheepuram which were exhibited by the people with pride. Peter Rous, the Collector of Mathurai, presented a pair of golden stirrups to the Minakshi temple. And the people welcomed it all.

'Unfortunately, the Christian missionaries sensed a danger in all this. They accused the company's Collectors of running after false Gods; and then came the Mutiny, and the end of the Company's rule. Under the Crown, Government became a bare Police power; the positive role of the State disappeared. Queen Victoria's famous Proclamation gave the Royal Seal to this negative concept. But people's wishes for an active regulation of temple affairs had to be met and as a concession the Act of 1863 was passed with a show of arrangement for control; but it was naturally ineffective. Temples relapsed into gloom. Mismanagement again became rampant. Corruption reared its head. Abuses abounded; religious apathy set in; Hinduism lost its grip over the people and large numbers deserted it physically or spiritually. And all this we owe to the doctrine of religious neutrality!

'This continued till the twenties of the present century; and although a draft Bill to amend the utterly inadequate legislation of 1863 was prepared by the Hon'ble Sri Rama Ayyangar as early as 1872, and revised by Sir Muthuswami Ayyar in 1894, and Sri Chensal Rao in 1889, it was not until a measure of self-Government was conceded that the situation could be tackled in earnest. The result was the passing of the Hindu Religious Endowments Act of 1927 thanks to the doughty championship of farseeing Hindu leaders like Sir T. Sadasiva Ayyar and the Raja of Panagal. With the passing of the Act passed away the doctrine of religious neutrality.

'Prejudices die hard. Interested parties find new slogans. 'Secular State' is the present cry. We are asked to refer to the clauses and sections of the Draft Constitution and I too have consulted legal pandits in the matter. I can confidently tell you, Sir, that I am on firm legal ground. It is not for the perpetuation of abuses of public property that the Secular State stands. Secular State stands for freedom of worship, freedom of conscience and freedom of religious propagation. It certainly does not stand for freedom to abuse temple properties and mismanage public charities. And in this we in the South have special responsibility. Our Province is peculiar. Nowhere else in the whole of India do we have so many so ancient, so extensive temples, mutts, religious and charitable institutions.

'Sir, it is then neither on the ground of religious neutrality, nor on the ground of 'Secular State' principle that this measure could be opposed. For the one is as dead as Queen Victoria who promulgated it and the other has a meaning and content far different from what interested parties would like to import into. Nor has any one denied that there are abuses in temple management or that the present machinery is adequate to tackle them. Even Gandhiji, than whom can there be no more devout Hindu, had to remark that our temples are dens of vices.

'Progressive States like Travancore, Cochin and Mysore have effected this reform long ago. To say that those are Hindu States while the Province is not is sheer casuistry. All are Secular States under the Draft Constitution. The temple and charitable endowments there are as much a trust as any in this Province. And certainly cannot it be said that the Bill has no popular sanction. The party with an overwhelming majority and with an overwhelming proportion of Hindus has given me the mandate.

'Even a section of the press, I find, has since shifted grounds. The criticism is no longer on principles. It is on the machinery.

[Sri O. P. Ramaswamy Reddiar] [10th February 1949]

They ask, has the Government adequate personnel; why not start a college to train administrators for the purpose? That is a helpful suggestion. I hope the Select Committee will give due attention to it. Some others ask, why not a Protector of Charities, instead of a Government department? We have tried that and that is the Board. We have found its limitations. It has bred litigation and delay. Lacking as it does the necessary power, it commands scant respect. It is a plaything of the lower courts. Chronic litigants drag on the Board from one court to another, all at the expense of charitable funds. The Board has got the power to call for budgets, but not the power to scrutinize it. It asks for accounts, but does not get them. It finds abuses, but has no power to reform them. It suggests reforms, but cannot enforce them. In short it is anomalous, powerless and hardly adequate. It cannot bear mending. It has to be replaced and that by a proper governmental machinery. And that, Sir, is the simple object of this Bill and a reference to the salient features of the Bill will amply bear this out.

"The present Act has been in operation for over 21 years now and yet no marked improvement has been effected, on the spiritual side of religious institution. If anything, things have gone worse. Courts occasionally take the view that the Act as it stands at present is powerless to regulate proper performance of ceremonies or enforce religious observances. Clause 15 (2) of the Bill before the House seeks to remedy this. By far greater time of the Board's attention has been taken up in the collection of contributions for its own maintenance and the Board is scarcely able to devote adequate attention to the religious side. The effect of Provincialisation will be to free the temple officers from the distraction involved in this process. Endless litigation is another source of distraction and expenditure to the Board. The Board constituted in Madras is called upon to defend its orders in almost all the district courts in the Province. The present Bill seeks to take away the power of the mufassal courts in most matters—taking care, however, to see, under clause 48, that the High Court retains the power to scrutinize the orders passed by the Commissioner. There is considerable delay in dispensation of justice in the present arrangement. Aggrieved parties have to travel hundreds of miles to Madras to obtain the Board's orders; and law delayed is law denied. The Bill under discussion seeks to remedy this. There is no protection to the pilgrim public, nor any scope for provision of amenities to them. Clause 25 of the Bill seeks to empower the trustees to incur reasonable expenditure on amenities to pilgrims. There is no provision at present to regulate the custody of jewellery. This grave defect which has resulted in considerable loss to the nation and to the institutions is being sought to be remedied by clause 37 of the Bill. No longer can ignorant, illiterate Archakas sell or purchase the claim to perform pujas. Clause 35 (3) provides for appointment of competent archakas when there is vacancy in the office of hereditary service. Effective control over the expenditure of religious institutions is sought to be made under clause 56. The purpose for which revenues of a temple could be spent is to be statutorily fixed. Adequate provision is made for the repair and renovation of the institutions. An attempt is being made to free the Madathipathis from their pre-occupation with mundane matters. They will have ample scope in future for single minded devotion to the spiritual side which alone can raise their position and prestige as heads of religious institutions.

"In bringing forward this Bill, Sir, let me make it clear that I have the highest interests of our faith at heart. It is my spirit's consolation and life's inspiration. It is dear unto me as breath itself. Hinduism is likened into the Ocean into which flowed the perennial rivers of the North and the South, the Vedas, the Upanishads, the Agamas, the Prabhandas and Thevaras. A long lineage of Seers, Savants, Rishis, Siddhas, Alwars and Nayanmars have assiduously fostered it. Out of it have sprung a great many religions like Buddhism and Jainism and in our own days the Arya Samaj and the Brahma Samaj. And yet the original faith ever remains virgin, tolerant and Catholic.

"Our temples were great cultural centres; they were not mere places of worship. Around the temple revolved the entire life of the community—social, political, civic, economic and ethical. As long as the temples pulsated with life, so long did the Hindu community continue to flourish; so long did it function with vigour and vitality. The regulation of the Hindu temples and mutts is the regulation of the community's life and conduct; the revival of our temples is the revival of our people. The temple is the invaluable link between Man and God, between society and religion, between public morality and private morality. The strength of the chain is its weakest link. If we do not make our temples a positive force, radiating a healthy, progressive, social and cultural outlook, we will be playing into the hands of the surging Godless crowd. This, Sir, is the true significance of this Bill. This is the basic principle and objective underlying it. Our Faith, Sir, is our greatest heritage. And may God give us the wisdom to cherish it as a living force now and for ever.

"Sir, a great work lies ahead. If the poojas and festivals in temples have to be conducted in the spirit of the scriptures, our Archakas have to be made familiar with the basic principles of the Agamas and the Thanthric sastras. The fast vanishing race of silpies should be saved from extinction and the ancient art of temple architecture be revived. The feeding of the poor so sadly neglected by charitable trusts has to be enforced. The propagation of a truly tolerant faith in a world rapidly plunging into materialism requires considerable planning and organization. No less formidable is the magnitude of the problem involved. There are 184 major maths and 12,232 major temples. The minor maths number 114 and the minor temples another 15,357. There are in addition what are known as, the specific endowments, 622 major and 109 minor. In all, there are 13,040 major institutions and 15,580 minor institutions. Nearly 8 lakhs of acres of landed property are involved and over Rs. 3.5 crores by way of annual income—property and income which are more than the resources of some of the States in this country. A problem of this size can be tackled only by an organized machinery entrusted with adequate power and responsibility, and that is what this Bill seeks to do. Many constructive suggestions have been made on the floor of this House and outside by way of improvement to certain features of the Bill; and perhaps more are still to be made. I welcome all these and I have every hope that the Select Committee will give their careful thought to every one of these suggestions, and that all reasonable demands consistent with the primary objects of the Bill will be willingly met. With these words, Sir, I appeal to the House to support the motion to refer the Bill to the Select Committee."

MR. SPEAKER:—"I hope the House would remember that we agreed to have fifteen minutes interval for tea. Instead of having it at 5 o'clock, I suggest we may have it now. The House will now adjourn and meet at 5 minutes to 5."

THE HON. SRI B. GOPALA REDDI:—"We may meet at 5 o'clock."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The Hon. Minister wants 20 minutes' interval. We will now adjourn and meet again at 5 p.m."

The House then adjourned for tea.

(The House re-assembled after tea.)

* THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am very thankful to you for the time given to the hon. Members for giving their considered opinions on this very important Bill. I know, Sir, this is a Bill which affects sentiments and long-cherished observances which have gone on through centuries and have gained rooted impression in the minds of the public on this question. We would be sorry, Sir, calling ourselves as representatives of a democratic Government to ride rough-shod over the views and sentiments of the people on whose franchise we were returned and to whom we owe our existence. Therefore, Sir, when we took up the responsibility of getting this Bill and presenting it before this House, we were not, as it were, in a triumphant mood. If anything, it is with a grave heart that we have made up our minds in the cabinet to push through this Bill for what it is worth during the time at our disposal. Therefore, Sir, it is some satisfaction to us that various parts of the House had the opportunity and were given the indulgence by you, Sir, to go into this very important question and to express themselves in the way in which they have done. As many as 26 members have taken part in this debate, each according to his light and according to his experience. In a measure of this sort which is discussed by lawyers, by politicians, by party members and by various groups of interests represented in this House, criticism directed against it cannot be expected to be uniform. It has been as varied as the members here and as varied as their convictions and their religious propensities. Sir, it is some satisfaction to me to see that important interests have been represented and various suggestions offered to enable the Government to proceed with the Bill. Discussion on this important question has been going on for a long time, for four days, I am also grateful for the wide publicity given to this measure in the various columns of newspapers of all sorts. I must here and now express our grateful thanks for the publicity which the Press unstintingly gave to this question. They have enabled us to read the public mind in a way through their columns and through their criticisms and more so, through these long discussions in this House. Sir, even after listening to the criticisms, both in the Press and in this House, we are still of the opinion that this Bill cannot be postponed or delayed any longer. Therefore, we are thankful to you, Sir, for allowing us to plead our case before this House and to enable us to proceed with this measure.

"Sir, in going through this legislation, we are not in a flippant mood. The Hon. the Premier has given full vent to his feelings in the matter in the beautiful speech that he delivered a little while ago. I have, in my own crude way, expressed my sentiments according to my own feelings in the matter. Well, Sir, we are thankful to those many members of this House who spoke on the provisions of the Bill. It is true that various provisions contained in this Bill could not be debated, nor gone into in detail at this stage. It is certainly left over, and rightly too, to the members of the Select Committee who could go into the question in greater detail and who could take into consideration the constructive suggestions, that were made. Sir, criticisms have been levelled against the Government for the inordinate delay which occurred before the introduction of this Bill. I have sufficiently explained reasons for the delay in my opening speech. I also then stated the need for having circumspection and for taking such precautions as may be necessary, so that it may not be stated by our critics that we proceeded with this measure in a light-hearted manner. Sir, we have listened to the criticisms from learned Friends who could speak with authority in this House. We have, for our own part, consulted such legal opinion as is available to us, while preparing this Bill. Sir, we also received many deputations which came to meet us in order to put forward particular difficulties with regard to the provisions of this Bill. Sir, we have had deputations from influential and great men, from reputed lawyers and constitutionalists and we have given ample opportunity and time to have their say in this matter. I am glad that the Hon. the Premier was himself present right through these interviews and has taken an active part in the consideration of this subject. So, it is not as if that people with certain ideas alone were received to offer their opinions. Therefore, Sir, it is our considered opinion that we cannot withhold the measure any longer but must go on with it. Sir, it is unnecessary for me to go into the details of the various deputations and interviews that were granted. Some of these deputations were from influential interests and we are thankful to those deputationists who have given us their considered views on this question.

" Sir, some gentlemen said that they were not so much concerned about our interference with temples but the right to manage mutts and charitable institutions should be left to them. That was the direction of argument of certain persons in regard to the proposal to control the mutts and charitable institutions thereof and they stated that the mutts stand on a different category altogether and that they are managed by certain individuals and therefore the mutts should not come within the purview of this Bill. Sir, the law as administered and conceived with reference to these religious institutions and mutts has been considered and also the law in regard to matters pertaining to their administration. During the interviews, we also heard, Sir, that these heads of mutts, at least some of the influential men among them, are such that they are not interested in the administration of those mutts and therefore, if Government took control over the administration of those mutts, it would be easy for them to shift their responsibility altogether and to take to their own pursuit or calling in life. Sir, these were the arguments that we have listened. I know, Sir, that whatever the Select Committee that may be formed, they will be interested in preserving the rights of those mutts and religious institutions and they will put forward such constructive suggestions and opinions according to their sentiments and views in the matter and will press their views sufficiently well in the Select Committee. Sir, after all is said and done, it is no mean Select Committee that this House proposes. There will be twenty members of this House comprising of good many of those who have criticized us and they will find a place in that Select Committee. So also, there will be representatives from the other House. I may even go to the extent of assuring that, if necessary information, very useful information, if found necessary, would be gathered and would be made available to the Select Committee either by calling for evidences or calling witnesses or advisers, if need be. While going through the clauses of the Bill, I am sure the Select Committee will have full information on the subject and also provide sufficient facilities for those people who come to record their evidences for what they are worth. The Select Committee will consider all this valuable evidence. It is because of that I still contend that circulation is superfluous. Circulation will not land us in any better place than we are in so far. It has been conceded by a responsible set of people that the Bill has long been before the public in various forms for the last 10 or 12 years. People concerned with religious charities had no manner of doubt that the Government were going to legislate in this matter and that more than once they have attempted to do so. If such a legislation could not be pushed through it was because the Government's hands were busy with heavy legislative and constitutional work. We will bring to bear as much as possible the considered public opinion on this question of vital importance. Having said that, we have made up our minds to proceed with the Bill with such support as may be available to us after giving full expression to the views of the Government in this very important matter.

" Sir, the question was raised whether the Advocate-General was going to speak on the Bill. He would speak on the Bill if the Government want him to, but we thought we need not involve him into a controversy of law in this matter beyond that of giving his advice to the Government. He is the law-keeper of the Government and he has put down in writing what he has got to say on this very important question. This House must be in full possession of the authority of law which the Government have in their possession. The Advocate-General has marked the opinion as ' confidential ', but we have taken it upon ourselves and taken his permission also to announce it to the House for the benefit of hon. Members. The opinion of the Advocate-General runs as follows:—

' Entry No. 43 in List II (State List) empowers the State Legislature to enact laws in respect of Charities and Charitable Institutions, Charitable and Religious Endowments and Religious Institutions. It will be observed that in fact Entry No. 43 in contrast with Entry No. 34 of List II of the Existing Government of India Act is wider in that it includes religious institutions as well. It is therefore impossible to contend even under the new constitution that the State Legislature has no power to enact laws relating to religious endowments or religious institutions on the ground that the State is a secular State and that Freedom of Religion is a fundamental right. The State has a paramount duty to see that Religious and Charitable institutions are being properly managed and not mismanaged; and that religious endowments are being properly applied for the purposes for which they were intended. The Crown in England has always been regarded as the protector of charity and charity includes religion.

The position then will be that the State can enact laws subject to the fundamental rights which are declared in Articles 19 and 20. There are two ways of looking at the fundamental rights which are declared, both in favour of individuals as well as in favour of religious denominations. One view can be that the very object of defining these fundamental rights is to secure freedom in respect of the right to propagate any religion in a secular State. Without such a provision, it may be open to somebody to contend that as the State is secular, nobody has any right to preach or propagate any particular religion in the exercise of a right as such; and from that point of view, one of the objects of a declaration of fundamental rights may be to ensure that every individual as well as every religious community has a right to preach, practise and propagate whatever religion he or it pleases, without interference by any other person or any other community; and approached from that point of view, the duty of the State would be to see that the various religious communities are assured of protection in that respect and that no law is passed which would entitle or enable one individual or one community to interfere with any other individual or community in matters of religion.

Another way of looking at fundamental rights is that it secures to individuals and religious denominations the rights to see that even the State does not pass any law which interferes with the practice by an individual or community of his or its religion according to his or its own liking. It will however be noticed that neither Article 19 nor Article 20 contains an absolute declaration. A sharp distinction is made between what is a pure matter of religion and what might be regarded as secular matters connected with religion. Article 19 (2) (a) contains a saving clause to the effect that the State can make any law regulating or restricting any economic or financial, political or other secular activity which may be associated with religious practice; and (b) contains a further saving clause in connexion with any law relating to social reform and welfare even in connexion with religious matters. Article 20 (d) expressly enacts that the administration of the properties will be according to law.

Further I can see nothing to prevent the members of any religious denomination from appealing to the State to pass laws for protecting its religion and religious endowments; and the State Legislature can well enact laws calculated and designed to promote and protect those religious interests.

It is therefore impossible to say that the Bill as such would offend the provisions of the draft constitutions relating to fundamental rights. The Bill deals with temples, mutts and charities. It goes without saying that charities and charitable institutions are clearly unaffected by Articles 19 and 20. As to temples, it is clear that they are public religious institutions and according to juristic conceptions, the idol is the owner. The same legal conception however does not hold good in the case of mutts which are monastic institutions in which particular religious cults are preached and propagated. But mutts are also religious institutions and matadhipathis are trustees. Both in the case of temples, as well as in the case of mutts, the distinction between matters of pure religion and religious ritual, and matters relating to the administration of properties and other secular matters will have to be kept in mind; and while the Constitution safeguards the fundamental rights in respect of the former without any restriction, the latter are subject to such laws as the legislature might enact.

A law which takes away or abridges a fundamental right is declared to be void, but a law, the object of which is to secure or establish or protect that fundamental right, will be a good law. The State cannot dictate how a man shall worship his God, but it can say how he should administer God's property.

I am therefore of opinion that the Bill cannot be rejected or condemned entire and wholesale, even after the declaration of fundamental rights. It is quite likely that some of the sections will have to be scrutinized at the Select Committee stage with a view to ascertain what sections fall outside the line and where necessary, and other suitable amendments or modifications will have to be devised within the limits of the new Constitution.'

"This, Sir, is the advice of the Advocate-General apart from other advice which we have received from lawyers competent to speak on the subject. We feel the responsibility of the Government with regard to the trusts and endowments. The Hon. the Premier has in his speech clearly shown how the Endowments Board has utterly failed in its purpose after a working of 21 years. I am not a lawyer, but even at the time I was in charge of the portfolio of religious endowments, I felt the need for some action with regard to these trust properties and in consultation with lawyers at that time, I drafted a Bill which has more or less been incorporated in this Bill with some modifications. After all these years, nobody can say that we are hurrying through this Bill. There is no hurry, in fact there has been delay and if I may say so, an unpardonable delay. Let me adduce another evidence. The Hon. the Premier who has been in charge of religious endowments for the last two years and more has found the same difficulty which I found some years ago. He has also come to the same conclusion like myself. He did not take the initiative in preparing the Bill; in fact the Bill was there in the archives of the Secretariat. It was simply taken hold of by the Premier and necessary alterations made in it. He agreed with the fundamental principles of the Bill, namely, the taking of responsibility by the Government for the proper carrying out of the trusts and endowments. He has also come to the same conclusion like myself. When two responsible Ministers of the Government have come to the same conclusion, it is the duty of the House to arm the Government with such powers as will justify the assumption of these portfolios and enable them to carry out the responsibilities involved in having charge of these portfolios. Sir, it is our justification for this Bill. I shall not waste the time of the House with giving further details about the mismanagement of these trusts and endowments and how it has become imperative on us, so imperative that we cannot do anything else than have a legislation like this and take charge of the situation which is becoming rotten day by day.

"Sir, the Premier has told us in so many words the figures and details of which will be in the hands of the hon. Members to-morrow the number of mutts which have been mismanaged for so many years, the properties that are in the hands of temples and those mismanaged and how after years of experience and effort nothing could be done to rectify the mismanagement. But what is worse, the properties belonging to these trusts have been dwindling and thinning day by day. When those who are in charge of these trusts came to know that the Government are going to act, they made feverish attempts to misuse and swindle these trust properties almost amounting to misappropriation and now you will realize why we are in a hurry to pass this Bill. I hope you will get the list to-morrow, giving you a correct picture of the whole thing and you will be in a position then to know the various amounts misappropriated. The Hon. Premier here says, it represents only a portion of it.

"The Endowment Board has not been able to have all the facts they require and it had almost become defunct by non-discharge of its duties and responsibilities. So we have got to rectify these things and see what can be done in that direction. It is said that we are getting interested in everything and that we abuse our powers. It was also said that the Government when they were not able to manage other Departments well, why they should be in a special hurry to set right things in temples and mutts. Is this an argument, I ask? It is no argument at all, because where grave injustices have been perpetrated and funds have been misappropriated, it is the duty incumbent upon the Government to go into the matter and take up the whole responsibility upon ourselves. In doing so, we will take the elected members of this House as well as the other House into confidence by explaining to them the reasons why we propose to take over these institutions. We are not doing it by passing immediate orders. This legislation has had to go through various processes. The press has also played its part and I look forward to the same agency for continuing the same help and I hope it will give publicity to the views that will be placed before the Select Committee, views favourable to the Government, hostile and indifferent. Of course, we have to adopt certain methods to overcome those difficulties experienced by us in working out these institutions, and you must give us full credit.

"Sir, two scares have been raised. The first scare is the interference of the State with religion which is not at all true. I can affirm, because actually we are not interfering with it. The other scare is that this Legislature has no power to enact this Bill because of the declaration that we are a secular State. But I say, we have taken this step knowing full well of this declaration. A threat has also been held out at two points. First of all, it is said that we cannot proceed with the Bill on the ground that the electorate has not been approached before with a declaration that the Government will take charge of religious and charitable institutions. I accept that it is not part of the Election Manifesto. The second point is that we are taking powers to do it. There again it is open to the public to come forward and say, 'you have mismanaged these trust properties and you do not deserve our confidence and therefore get out.' Till such time people come forward with such a declaration, we are perfectly within our rights to proceed with this Bill and we, as elected members, have to discharge our duties which the public expect of us and in doing so, we have to see whether we conform to the constitution and to the laws prevailing in the country and frame laws in such a way as will enable us to set right institutions which have not been managed properly for the last so many years. The people who are interested in these institutions have been callous about the abuse that has been going on there. When these people say that we are interfering with religion, I must say that it is too late for them to make that charge against us. If we want to serve God and the country, we have got to take the step the Government are now taking. It is no use for me to relate the many things that happened in the past. But I will give you one case, where the State had to interfere for the proper conduct of a mutt. I am the disciple of a mutt to which my father, grandfather and great grandfather in a way were interested as disciples. I know the very Acharya who did that purification ceremony for me, a Vaishnavite, and put Sangu and Chakram on my arms and mantrams were dinned into my ears. The very head of that mutt had committed a very, very grave offence. He had the courage to melt the gold palanquin called 'doli' and sent it to Pondicherry to be sold by one of his agents. This matter came to the Court and very able lawyers were engaged to defend the Swamiji, including one Mr. Norton. The Hindu Judge who delivered the judgment found him guilty of criminal misappropriation and he was sentenced to undergo two years' imprisonment. And Mr. Norton had to give his personal bail. Well, what happened the next day. Swamiji, under protection of the bail, travelled without food and without water, hundreds of miles from Salem. But on the way he died. The law of the land could not get hold of him and he solved the problem in his own way. What does that mean? How it would have reacted in the minds of the public. The matter had to go to the High Court who had to fix the successor for the mutt as the Swamiji did not nominate a successor. For six months there was no Swamiji for the mutt. The High Court constituted an electorate and within six months an election was held and as a result of that Swamiji who had secured the maximum number of votes was appointed. Finally the Government had taken over the mutt. I have that information before me.

"Again, I say that we have got to take the responsibility for the better and efficient administration of these institutions and it may be that what we want to do may not be quite suitable. But we do contend that in the past grave irregularities were found in these institutions and these are bound to happen as long as human prejudice and selfishness are there. Just as theft, murder, stealing, misappropriation and so many other things constitute a positive danger to the society, these irregularities and mismanagement also constitute a danger to the society. Therefore, I maintain that this Bill is an inescapable responsibility of this Government and in doing so, we will consider all the objections and complaints put forward by those people who are affected by this Bill and we promise them fair consideration. With that presentation of the case, I feel impelled to ask the House to support us in this measure.

"I have before me a huge file of documents secured from various sources which give a history of the various institutions and also a list of various acts of mismanagement and misappropriation."

"It will be in your hands to-morrow morning and when placed in your hands you will see in chapter I, mismanagement and swindling of properties and the other chapters give you details of cases where trustees have treated trust properties as their own. We have also given you an idea of the amount which was God's having lapsed into their hands. The other lists gives you instances of misappropriation of temple funds by trustees and the amount runs to lakhs and crores. The Premier mentioned only one instance; all the other instances here are arranged serially to enable the legislators to read and study and vote thereon if necessary. I wish I could engage the House some little time long upon the gruesome details but the statement I have given would impress hon. Members of the House with the imperative necessity for a Bill and they owe a duty to the country and to the religion to vote for this Bill and thus show that it is a right thing that we have been impelled to do. It is not as if there is anything like callousness in our minds. We want to serve God as any religious man would like to claim and a moral stand and true facts have a bearing upon this question. Let us judge the Swamis, the trustees and archakas by the same standard of human values which are necessary for the upkeep and honest maintenance of any institution as these alone will form the bulwark for any society to live and thrive on and I feel that it will be necessary and I want you to give me, strength enough to do it according to law. I know that people may have conscientious objections; I do not deny that. But I appeal to them. We as a Government have got to explain our position though it is open to them to say that we are all rogues. We are proceeding upon the facts and upon truth which will be presented to you in greater detail. I do not wish to tread upon religion or religious sentiment; far be it from us. The quantum of religion which I possess does not matter; I am what I am, a low brutal man who understands nothing; but I can understand truth and honesty and righteousness and the need for bringing them to bear in the administration of religious institutions. Another friend, Swami Sahajananda, in his vehement speech and with the fund of the knowledge of literature which he displayed, suggested that we are bringing in a most sacrilegious act. I do not think so. He eventually pleaded for sparing the small maths and he wanted his particular math to be spared. I am prepared to spare not only his math but any other's. But I only want ordinary commonsense, honesty and truth with regard to their maintenance; they will be judged by ordinary human standards of truth and honesty and not on the basis of some unascertainable evaluation of virtue which perhaps may be written in text-books or round-about the personality of the persons in charge of the trusts. You must remember that religious institutions cannot survive upon falsehood and false faith and if it has to live it has to live on real things and those that are sincerely carrying it out. I know it will mean any amount of difficulty but I would be a coward if I run away because the path of duty is difficult. I have been warned that it is too big and vast and that I may not be able to control them. I take the warning and I shall be forearmed, because I have been forewarned. This Bill, I am sure, will save the country from the deluge that is overcoming the country, I mean the increasing number of people who want to demolish God and religion and everything that goes with religion and God and I have faith in democracy and it will come to my rescue and save the temples and religious institutions. I am sure I will be able to command the services of people who will be able to save religion from the threatening onslaught of this unbridled tendencies among the people. I expect to give a background which is properly directed and utilized will restore the institutions to their pristine glory and will become a source of strength to the nation and to people and to the religion also. It is in that hope that I am bringing this Bill and I request hon. Members to help me. I am very thankful to you for the kind consideration you have shown and I am grateful for the very many valuable information they have given to the House, by those who are religiously inclined and those who are not who presented their point of view in their own way. The Government will consider both of them very carefully in working the details of the scheme, which contains great possibilities for good, and if I may say so, even of evil. If you give us help and unreserved help, we, as the trustees of the people will discharge our duty most faithfully and in the spirit of the man who in the name of our country and the nation has given us freedom and the strength to shape society and the spirit to carry it out. I hope, Sir, the House will carry this motion and allow me to go to the other House and seek their indulgence and come back again after their acceptance to this House and then constitute the Select Committee."

SRI A. VAIDYANATHA AYYAR:—"Mr. Speaker, I wish in the first place to state that a wrong turn has been given to the spirit in which the motion for circulation was made. Not merely the members supporting the Bill but also on behalf of the Government some of the Ministers, including the Hon. the Premier, spoke in such a way as to make out that those who wanted the Bill to be circulated wanted that there should be permanent mismanagement of the temples, and misappropriation of temple funds and all the persons in charge of the temple should not be moral men. That is the very bad impression which is likely to be created in the minds of the public at large. That is a wrong thing, however much it may help the Government in setting right the affairs of the Hindu Religious Endowments in this country. The first point was whether, after the fundamental rights had been declared by the Constituent Assembly, the Government can take up the management and administration of religious institutions. Nobody, as a matter of fact, denied the right of the Government to act under the provisions of the general law for the purpose of seeing misappropriation is prevented as in the case of any other misappropriation. Nobody suggested that it is not in the power of the Government to see that these things are safeguarded. In fact in my opening speech, I pointed out to you, Sir, that the general law afforded remedy. Section 92 of the Civil Procedure Code provides the civil remedy, for framing the scheme and for removal of trustees. There are acts previously enacted like the Act of 1890 which contains drastic provisions to this end. The only point at issue is whether the Bill which the Government has brought forward is in consonance with the fundamental rights. About the doubt whether it was proper for a State to try to introduce this kind of legislation, even the exponents of the Bill on the Government benches actually admitted that some of the sections were of doubtful nature and would require to be modified. Since the articles on fundamental rights have been passed by the Constituent Assembly, is it not a proper thing for the Government to wait till August 1949 by which time the Constitution Act would have been completed and then take up this Bill? That was the second point I urged. The third point was about the feasibility and the propriety of the Government taking over the administration of the religious institutions and endowments. We have declared ourselves a secular Government. Even in that part of the Constitution Act that has been passed so far, several articles have been introduced which prevent the Government from taking charge of the administrations of these institutions. These were the three points that I urged to make the Government pause and consider whether the Bill could not be introduced a little later.

"Some doubt was expressed whether the Constitution Act was binding on us since several articles had yet to be passed. This point was made out by the Hon. Dr. Rajan, the author, the main-tainer and the pilot of this Bill in this Assembly with the moral strength of the Hon. Premier behind him. The Government of India Act, 1935, as adapted is still in force and under it we have got the power and therefore we can pass this Bill. After the new Constitution Act emerges in its full form, there will be time enough to consider which sections should be scrapped as being repugnant to the Constitution Act and which should be retained. According to the information given by the Hon. Premier, there are about 22,000 temples and 300 maths. All these and innumerable charitable endowments are sought to be netted in. Is it proper to proceed with the Bill as if somebody is pursuing you from behind and as if you are racing against time? You want to pass this Bill in any form at present and leave it to the lawyers to contest it subsequently in the Supreme Court. Is that the responsible attitude of a State which promises to save the religion of our country?

"I was surprised when my friend the Hon. Dr. Rajan made it appear that all Hindus were immoral, indifferent and without virtue. I do not know whether he or the Hon. Premier or the hon. Members of this House do not come under that description. Both in his opening speech and the speech he delivered to-day, he created the impression that all the people were indifferent and careless. This is casting an unmerited slur. Even before he became the Minister for Religious Endowments, the Hon. Dr. Rajan may be aware that at a time when the endowments vested in the particular denominations to which they related, private persons, displaced persons and persons interested in the institutions spent thousands and lakhs of rupees and carried matters up to the Privy Council for rectification of defects, and for deciding issues relating to temple rights. For example, the Tirumalai-Tirupati Devasthanam went up to the Privy Council. I thought the complaint was that the people were too much interested and quarrelling too much about temple rights. While I thought the shoe was on the other foot, the Hon. Dr. Rajan says that the people are indifferent. I leave the charge of indifference at that.

"A misapprehension is prevailing about the constitutional position. Do the articles of the constitution so far passed become binding when the entire Constitution Act is yet to be framed? Yes, they are binding. That is the correct view."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"I accepted that."

SRI A. VAIDYANATHA AYYAR:—"I am glad the Hon. Sri Madhava Menon has accepted my view. If that is so, many of the arguments that have been put forward need not have been put forward. The Constituent Assembly is a sovereign assembly. Its Acts do not require the assent of the Governor-General or the Crown. Each article passed by such an assembly becomes a part of the constitution of the country. I am glad the Hon. Mr. Madhava Menon has very rightly conceded that. When that is the position, why not take note of it? We know how carefully the Constituent Assembly thought over the fundamental rights

[Sri A. Vaidyanatha Ayyar] [10th February 1949]

First the subject went up before the Fundamental Rights Committee, then it came to the Constituent Assembly, and after making some amendments the Constituent Assembly referred it to a drafting committee. That committee has sent it back to the Constituent Assembly for giving a final shape, and the Assembly has practically approved the draft except for some minor verbal alterations. There is absolutely no doubt that it is binding on us. A new situation has developed. Therefore why not wait for some more time?

"The Hon. Minister in charge of the Bill said that the John Company, even though it was a Christian company, took charge of, and saved, the endowments. I wish he had seen the other side of the picture. When John Company's Directors stole away the Alagar's idol and the Kallars pursued to recover it, they were massacred. John Company did several things which ought not to have been done. But John Company is no illustration for us. Then it was said that during the time of Diarchy also, the Government took action. In the interim period, the British Government thought: 'We should not meddle with other people's affairs. We are a Christian nation. Though we are the rulers, we should not take charge of either Hindu or Muslim endowments.' Look at the way how they respected the rights in the 1863 Act. I am saying this because this is the law which has now been upheld by the fundamental rights. The Hindus might have built a temple in a village. If there was any need to hand over the administration of that temple, it should be handed over only to that community which was responsible for raising that temple. The members of that community had to appoint a trustee and for that purpose they met in an assembly. They made provision for temple committees to which members were returned by election. The Government of the day, British albeit it might be, provided for handing over the administration of temples and endowments only to those communities which were entitled to administer them. Instead of following that policy, this Bill empowers a Government sitting in Fort St. George to issue ukases and ex-parte orders in respect of 50,000 and odd institutions. The local people know whether a person is doing things properly or not and how to manage an institution in consonance with the object of the founder. In 1926 they thought of setting up a board. I am not quarrelling with them, because I am not sitting in judgment over them now. The 1926 Act made provision for committees for administering the temples. That was the way in which they handed over the administration. They only saw whether the people were doing their duties properly or not. They did not take over the actual administration. In cases where the committee took over the management from the trustee, it was held to be an interference with the powers of the trustee and the committee was made to pay for the interference.

"Once you create a machinery, particularly a machinery sponsored by the Government, it grows like a Frankenstein. What begins as control for a village gradually becomes control for the district and finally it extends to the whole Province. So it grows. Gradually the powers of the Hindu Religious Endowments have been widened, the temple committees abolished and there are sections which say that in the committee's place, the Board shall exercise its powers. That was what the previous Government did. Even they kept up a show of respect for rights.

"Before August 1947, before our country became a Secular State, before the Fundamental Rights were passed by the Constituent Assembly, this Legislature was supreme and had powers to pass any Act provided there was no interference from the Central Government on subjects relating to them. The Hon. Dr. Rajan said that his Bill was prepared at a time when the Government had the power to take up the entire administration of temples and endowments into their own hands. After the country became a Secular State and after the passing of the Fundamental Rights, a different situation has arisen. In the light of this, we have to see whether we can actually take charge of the administration of these institutions. In moving for the circulation of the Bill, I drew attention to the background on which Article 20 of the Constitution had been based. I also drew attention to Article 19 which guarantees freedom to an individual to practise his religion in his own way, and provides that the State can control only any economic, financial, political or other secular activity which may be associated with religious practice. What I wanted to point out was that no religion could grow through individual efforts and this has been found in practice all over the world. Groups can do more for the advancement of religion than what any single individual could possibly do. Therefore it became necessary to form groups or denominations. No person, however wise, however honest and however pious, even if he be as pious as our Hon. Premier or as devout a Vaishnavite as the Hon. Dr. Rajan, can ever arrogate to himself the right to take away from a denomination the power to administer and develop its religion in its own way. This is a right which even law courts have recognized. Let us leave those people to do their jobs and let us not do it ourselves. The Hon. Dr. Rajan said that religion should grow and morality should grow.

"I think Sir, that the proper method for the Government is simply to lay down certain general laws and principles, making certain things as an offence punishable by law, but not to take over the management and control of these institutions into the hands of the Government themselves. That is not the proper way to legislate in these matters. Religion is so wide and so all-embracing a matter that the Government's interference in the very detailed administration of these temples and other religious institutions is never contemplated or called for. 'Let the mother take care of her own child'. That is the maxim on which Article 20 of the new Constitution has been drafted in laying down those fundamental rights. I was quite unable to follow the arguments of my hon. Friend Mr. Madhava Menon in his speech. In my original speech on my amendment as well as now, I have drawn a clear distinction between passing a legislation in regard to religious matters and the Government taking powers by means of legislation to try to take over the duties appertaining to religious rights and ceremonies in temples by appointing Commissioners and a host of other officers and making them responsible for each and every detailed item of administration therein. I have also explained how such interference would affect the sanctity and sacredness attached to such religious institutions. As I have already pointed out, immense difficulties would crop up when the Government take over the administration of sectional denominational institutions, whether they are religious or charitable. It is not known whether they will be maintained by the Government themselves or whether they will be placed in charge of the sectional denominations themselves, or whether some third party other than the particular sectional denomination would be asked to manage them.

"The next point I referred to was with regard to the properties appertaining to such institutions and I urged that such sectional denominations alone should have a right to manage such properties. That is what the article dealing with the fundamental rights says. Let me once again read Article 20 of the Draft Constitution dealing with the fundamental rights relating to the freedom to manage religious affairs, and to own, acquire and administer properties for religious or charitable purposes.

'Subject to public order, morality and health, every religious denomination or any section thereof shall have the right—

- (a) to establish and maintain institutions for religious and charitable purposes;*
- (b) to manage its own affairs in matters of religion;*
- (c) to own and acquire movable and immovable property; and*
- (d) to administer such property in accordance with law.'*

"Sir, when I heard the Hon. Minister, dealing with these fundamental rights, it seemed that he was arguing that the Government has a right to administer these things. If the management and maintenance of these institutions vests with the Government, according to his argument, then the learned Advocate-General who knows very well the meaning of the term 'vests' in this context, could very well see whether it is a thing that does not go against the very spirit of Article 20 (b) which says: 'to manage its own affairs in matters of religion'. Is the Government competent to manage the affairs in matters of religion? No Sir. This Article 20 (b) is another string to my bow. What does clause (d) of this article says: 'To administer such properties in accordance with law'. The very purpose of this legislation is not only to interfere with the administration and governance of the Hindu religious and charitable institutions and endowments and religious ceremonies, but also with regard to the administration of their properties. As I have just now pointed out, there is a right vested in that particular denomination under the fundamental rights which shall not be taken away by any laws made by the Provincial Government. I also referred to Article 8 (2) of the draft constitution dealing with the general fundamental rights which states, 'that the State shall not make any law which takes away or abridges the right conferred by this part and any law made in contravention of this clause shall, to the extent of the contravention, be void.' Now you are really cutting away the right. You cannot call the powers taken under this Bill as an extension of the spirit of the fundamental rights envisaged in the Constitution. It is the intention of the framers of the Constitution that these denominations or any section thereof shall have a right to manage their own affairs. Are not the powers given to the Commissioner, the Deputy Commissioner and the Assistant Commissioner under this Bill, intended to take away or abridge such rights?

"Sir, the Hon. Mr. Madhava Menon, while defending this Bill at one stage, pleaded that if there are any provisions in it which go against the fundamental rights, they can be remedied in the Select Committee. But the Hon. Dr. T. S. S. Rajan did not make any secret of it. He argued that the Government have full rights to take over the administration of these religious institutions. He used the words 'We have committed ourselves to take up their administration into our hands.' I do not know, Sir, who committed into the hands of this Government the administration of these institutions, or how the Government are committed in this matter. Therefore there was no attempt on the part of the Government to hide or screen the fact that they, of their own accord, wanted to take up these religious institutions into their hands and so they wanted to create a body for the purpose. I shall be troubling you, Sir, and the House, if at this late hour, I am to draw attention to the various clauses in the Bill in which the Government are taking powers purposely to interfere in each and every detailed item of administration of these institutions. They are, as it were, a mill stone round our necks. No public or private body or other religious or charitable institutions or any section of the public would approve of these provisions. That is why I moved my amendment that this Bill might be circulated for eliciting public opinion.

"Sir, it was said by the Hon. Minister that this Bill was first published in 1947 and so there was enough time for public opinion to express itself on this Bill. But I must state, Sir, that although it was published long ago, public attention was not specifically drawn to it until a few weeks before. It was consigned to a corner for a number of months and only about 12 days ago, when it was brought in another place for obtaining the sanction of the Congress Legislature Party that I came to know of this Bill and the urgency with which it was sought to be introduced. I then pointed out many of the defects in this Bill. I met the Advocate-General and had a number of conferences with him and I pointed out that there are defects not only in the wordings here and there, but that the fundamental basis on which the Bill was conceived was not correct. The Bill, as I have already pointed out, proposes to take over the entire administration of the religious institutions which, as a matter of fact, undermines the very fundamental rights enunciated under the Constitution. Even as a matter of policy this Bill should be circulated for public opinion. Now for nearly a year or so, we have not heard anything about this Bill and it is not fair to argue that the public could take note of this Bill, because it was before them for such a long time. It is a well-known fact that even hon. Members of the House study many of the Bills for the first time only after they have come to the Assembly Chambers. Unless the Bill is discussed threadbare, as it is being discussed now, we will not be in a position to know how many loopholes are there in the Bill and what defects there are in its various provisions. After a lapse of so many months, on the fine morning of the Pongal day, the Hindu published an article dealing with certain aspects of this Bill. Till then, I did not even get a copy of this Bill from the Government. There was some slight difference between the original Bill published in 1947 and this Bill. Therefore I borrowed a copy of it and rushed up here. There was not much difficulty in piloting this Bill through in this House. We are told that the sanction of the Congress Legislature Party has been obtained for introducing this Bill. When it was before the Party meeting, we were told that we had better discuss only the legal aspects and after three days' discussion, we did not proceed beyond the argument whether this Bill did not conflict with the fundamental rights embodied in the new Constitution. What happened afterwards? The Bill was put up in the agenda and it was sought to be introduced in this session. But then it was published in one of the papers that the Hon. the Leader of the House had stated that the Bill would come up for discussion only in the next session of this House. Many of the members who had gone back to their constituencies had to come up again when it was announced that this Bill would be taken up in this session itself. We have not sufficient time to go through this Bill in detail and in the present altered circumstances after Article 20 of the Constitution Act was passed by the Constituent Assembly, it goes against those fundamental principles. But then it was said that sufficient time and opportunity would be allowed to the members of the House to have a threadbare discussion on this Bill. May I point out, Mr. Speaker, in this connexion—perhaps it may not be quite relevant to mention it here—that when I sought to move an amendment to the original motion that it be circulated for public opinion, I got a bit of paper from the party whip asking me not to move the amendment at all. With bended knees, I approached the Leader of the Party and after a desperate fight with the party and after elaborate arguments with them that even the privilege of the members of the House from moving amendments had been sought to be taken away by party mandate, I got the permission to move my amendment and permission was also given to the members of the Congress Party to speak in support of my amendment if they so desired. Sir, this is what the Hon. Minister for Law referred to as the freedom given to members to speak on this Bill and the 90 per cent support which they have obtained for this Bill from the public. If the Government have so much faith in public support, if they could claim that they have got the full support of the members of this House for this measure, then why so much reluctance to permit me to move my amendment and to permit the members to support my amendment, if they so desired? Sir, I may submit that it is one thing to permit members to speak in support of my amendment, but it is another thing to issue directions to them to vote in a particular manner. I ask, what is the use of permitting members to support my amendment, but at the same time directing them not to vote for it, when it came to a question of voting? I must submit, Sir, that in this manner, legislation has been reduced to mockery and a farce, because what is given by one hand is taken away by the other, by means of party whip. Sir, it is the elementary right and privilege of the Members of the House to move whatever amendment they like for any measures introduced here, and there is nothing improper in my moving my amendment to circulate the Bill for public opinion. I would not have referred to this, but for the fact that the Hon. Dr. T. S. S. Rajan had made a great point in stating that we have had a full and exhaustive discussion over this Bill and that we made our speeches on it. It is rather unfortunate, Sir, that every Bill that is brought forward in this House by the Government, should, on principle, be regarded as a matter of confidence in the Government and that opposition to it is deemed as expressing want of confidence in the Government. I submit, Sir, that it should not be so in matters relating to social reforms and religion. Full freedom should be given to the members to speak and vote as they like on such measures. I submit, Sir, that unless a specific motion is moved expressing want of confidence in the Government, members should be given full liberty to move whatever amendments they like and vote in whatever manner they like. Otherwise, legislation, as I said, would become a mockery."

MR. SPEAKER:—"I think the hon. Member referred to some party whip. I have nothing to do with party whips in this House. For instance, the Hon. the Leader of the Independent Group might issue some whip to his party and so also the leaders of other parties. As far as the Chair is concerned, it cannot take notice of these things."

SRI A. VAIDYANATHA AYYAR:—"I was only pointing out, Sir, how things have happened and I would not have referred to it, but for the fact that the Hon. Minister has challenged that 90 per cent of the public are in favour of this Bill and that the majority of the members of this House had given their wholehearted support to it. If that was the case, what is the necessity for issuing an urgent party whip at this moment? We call this a Secular State. That itself places the Government in a peculiar position. The Hon. Dr. Rajan says that the Government have powers to enact laws even in regard to secular matters. He said, 'Here is a big Matadhipati who has stolen a diamond from the diadem of an idol in a big temple and he was brought before a law court and convicted'. Whatever that is, Sir, does it not show that our criminal law is long enough, and strong enough to grasp any malefactors, however great they may be? It is said that there were a number of misappropriations. Have we not got the same thing among Government servants? Of course the poor peons only are dismissed, but the big officers who are the actual offenders go scotfree. That is the case in every department of life. If some officers of the department are corrupt, you do say that the whole Ministry should go or that the whole Government should be placed under section 93. Are there not thefts going on in a number of places and misappropriations taking place in companies and other private institutions and blackmarketing going on among the business community? On that score does the Hon. Dr. Rajan suggest that all companies should be taken charge of by the Government, or that the businesses of the merchants should be taken over by the Government or that the Police department should be run by somebody else? The Hon. Dr. Rajan mentioned that there were some fundamental duties of the State. Yes. What are those fundamental duties? I agree it is to prevent misappropriation. There is a law against breach of trust and misappropriation. And if they want to prevent misapplication of funds, they have got other sections, i.e., section 92 and others. They have got several other Acts there, if they want to make for better management. In fact there have been several improvements from time to time. The real line of distinction is the thing. I cannot see how such eminent men who rule five crores of people are not able to pursue the small distinction that I want to make. You can make a law saying: 'Thou shall keep accounts.' If there is any misappropriation or mistake, anybody can make a complaint. Or the State shall launch a complaint. You may even dispense with section 92. Or as has been done in the past, the Advocate-General can file a suit. You may put in any kind of machinery with regard to the trust. That is, you can make laws with regard to the way in which the administration should be properly carried. It is one thing to make a law with regard to the proper administration of a thing and it is quite another thing to take the administration itself. That will amount to the story, Mr. Speaker, of the two cats quarrelling and the monkey taking the whole bread with a view to better administration. That should not be the law and that has been recognized not to be the law. That is the only thing about which we now complain. Let me say from the housetop—I am almost on the housetop here, or the Assembly top, I shall say—that we have no objection and we are all one with you in seeing that misappropriation is prevented and bad administration is prevented. But the Government shall not be entitled to take it and say what we should do. The law provides not for you or I or any person not interested in this connexion but for a denomination or any section of the denomination as the best judge of that. We cannot think of a better remedy for bringing up a child than the mother herself. We cannot think of a section or denomination not bettering at the cost of seeing that some other person taking charge. Let good administration prevail. But it is one thing to bring in a law for regulating that administration and it is quite another thing for the authorities saying that the entire administration of all the Hindu Religious Endowments shall vest in the Provincial Government, and subject to the Provincial Government in the Commissioner. That I say is against the very spirit of the fundamental right.

"I will immediately pass over, Mr. Speaker, to some of the things that were said which really curdled my blood. In one portion it was almost beautiful. It was said: 'We are not changing the usages and customs. All these things shall prevail.' I am reading from the excerpt of a speech of the Hon. Dr. Rajan. He said, it is well-known there are for instance, the Lingayath endowments, mutts, the Brahman mutts etc. Brahman mutts are very small and I do not even think there is anything like a Brahman mutt at all. There are any number of Saivite mutts and there are other mutts and institutions. When we come to these institutions, I do not know how the Government are at all going to tackle them. When the attention of the Hon. Dr. Rajan was drawn to the leader in the Hindu 'Sauce for the Gander and Sauce for the Goose', and how it was that the Wakf Bill was being circulated while this Bill was pressed for a Select Committee, it was said by him, 'As soon as this is done, we will later on come to take it ourselves'. That is what we find in the Press Note. Taking up all the Hindu Religious Endowments would mean that you would have to do all the duties. You will have to propagate Dwaitam, Visishtadwaitam, Adwaitam, the Vallabhacharya cults, etc. All that will have to be done by the Government and for that purpose they should make a law as to how it should issue rules with regard to Visishtadwaitam theory, with reference to one mutt, then the Vadakalai theory and the Thenkalai theory; and then will those who believe and those who do not believe in the idols. All this will be done under section 86, because it says that the Government shall make rules for the purpose of seeing how these things are done. For the purpose of doing these, vast sums will have to be put into their hands. Some one may say that idolatry is bad and sinful and that all the idols can go. The Hon. Dr. Rajan said in one part of his speech that 'the Hindu religion is very wide with many denominations and that has any number of countenances.

[Sri A. Vaidyanatha Ayyar] [10th February 1949]

Quite right. Suppose I can keep any number of countenances and I do not keep my countenance in a particular way—I do not get shaved to-day—does it mean that the Government can take hold of the countenance and say how the countenance should be kept? We cannot take charge of them, because we are a secular Government and it was in that position that the fundamental rights were enunciated and we would be running directly across. I was referring to the Government taking charge of all the endowments in one gulp. It is just like that individual Gundodara in our place who was the only man who was able to swallow all the mountains of food and drink even the Vaigai water. The Government beats that Gundodara. Not merely they want to swallow all the endowment and they want to take the selling power to the State. Then they assure us: 'We will not unnecessarily interfere.' But let me read the passage from his published speech. He says: 'We propose to administer the Hindu Religious Endowments not for any particular group of people but for all the people.' That means: 'Oh! Saivites or Smartas or Visishtadwaitins. I take charge of it in my abounding pity for the poor toiling millions.' Yesterday also I saw the Hon. Dr. Rajan pouring tears. Mr. Speaker, it has become the ordinary passion of the day to get support by saying that he is shedding tears for the suffering poor, and what are the suffering poor to do if they are not permitted into a temple? What has it got to do with the question of the administration of the several sections of the endowments? The same thing was repeated to-day. It was said: 'We are going to be very charitable.' You take one particular section and then go on being very charitable. Is it right? I was very much pained to hear some of the hon. Members who supported the Government and said that 'all these properties and villages are for the people, all these mutts shall be for the people, all these endowments shall be for the people.' If that is the spirit in which it is supported and if that is the spirit in which the Bill was brought, where is the hope that these sectional endowments could find their own place and justice? Let me hope that the Government in its desire to do justice will not be biased by things. One other argument was mentioned, Sir, and that was about the Tirupati Devasthanam. The poor Devasthanam used to derive some income from the zamin. Now the zamindar's tight grip is over. Who destroyed the tight grip? Who published those Bills which made all zamindars to become pieless? It was because of the Act which we previously passed that the Devasthanam was not able to get anything from its own lands. Therefore what is the use of blaming the poor Devasthanam about it?

"Another thing which exercises my mind is that this is the wrong time for bringing this Bill. Under the Zamindari and Inams Acquisition Bill, the Government have directed the acquisition of all inam properties belonging to these religious and charitable endowments. Of course, ultimately some officer is going to arbitrate with regard to the amount of compensation. In the case of the inams the Government are the losers. It stands to make good all the balance of the amount by means of this Bill. When as a matter of fact the question of acquisition comes in who can say that such and such should be the compensation? Who has the power? It will be the Government who will be entitled to compensation for the properties of these sectional endowments. If the Srirangam Mutt or the Kumbakonam Mutt or the Dharmapuram Mutt were in charge of its own inam, the authorities there can say, cash down, or this is not proper compensation, the Government should pay more. And they would be entitled to appeal as far as the Act permits them to do. By the time the acquisition will take effect, the Government would have taken over direct control over the endowments. The seller is taken up by the buyer. The seller shall have only what the buyer can give. On that day a general ukase will go saying that the Government cannot afford to pay more than that, so let not all the Commissioners and Assistant Commissioners and all the other Executive Officers put forward any demand which is more than what is paid by the Government. Therefore, Sir, would it not be a very unwise thing to take control over the very persons from whom we are compulsorily taking away property? I want the Hon. the Premier who time and again has been referred on the floor of this House and the Hon. Dr. Rajan whom the Hon. the Premier has been complimenting to look at the other aspect of the matter. They have taken on their heads a burden of nearly Rs. 75 lakhs on account of reduction of rent in the various religious and charitable endowments. Supposing a contingency arises under which the income may not be sufficient, will there not be a tendency on the part of the Government, as it is in other departments, to say that a certain thing cannot be done now and so, it can go under the 1952 arrangement and so on? Just like that, if the Government take over the endowments there would be a tendency to say: 'Why should there be six kala puja in the Mathurai temple? Why should there be nivaidyam? Why should they use ghee? Why should there be milk-pouring and honey-pouring when all of us are suffering and starving?' That, Sir, would be the direct consequence if the Government take over direct control of these endowments.

"Sir, one other point which I was making has not been sufficiently met. In fact a number of things have been conceded even by those who supported the Bill. They agreed that the functioning of the Government has not been as satisfactory as some of us feel it should be. Therefore there may be a kind of maladministration if the Government took over. When the Hon. Dr. Rajan moved his Bill he said: 'We may not be good enough to administer, but we shall try to get proper persons.'

"We know, Sir, that food is a more important thing than even getting into the temple so far as the poor are concerned. Yet is it not a fact that we have not been able to get enough grains in spite of the fact that we have very good supply officers? The Hon. the Premier will corroborate me when I say that even in the Government ranks it is admitted that they are not able to get good men.

[Sri A. Vaidyanatha Ayyar] [10th February 1949]

Is it not a fact that with regard to cement control and hardware control there have been any amount of exploitation? Is not the sulphate which is dealt with by a European firm going underground? The Hon. Dr. Rajan must be well-read and I would just relate what comes to my mind when I say all this. It is said that a man came to Socrates and wanted to rule the whole of Greece. He was asked whether he was managing his own family. He said in reply that his brother would not allow him to rule the family and there were difficulties. Then he was told: 'When you are not able to rule your own family and your brother, how can you rule and administer the whole of Athens?' The position of the Government is just like that. Even in a material article like food they feel diffident. Of course, the religious needs of the people are matters which cannot be touched and they cannot be easily handled. When we cannot have food for every single individual in this land, why should we risk taking charge of all the religious institutions? I do agree with Dr. Rajan's hope and wish that we may come to a millennium by virtue of propaganda that everybody shall be honest and nobody need be characterized on the floor of the House as being dishonest or not being moral or not having sufficient interest in matters relating to religion. There may come a time. Wait till that time. That is my modest request. We are only saying 'wait for four months and then let us consider the whole thing in its light then'."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The hon. Member wanted forty-five minutes, and the time is over."

SRI A. VAIDYANATHA AYYAR:—"I will finish in a few minutes. There are two cries raised in this Assembly, time and again. One is the Communist bogey. None of the Communists are here. They are all gone. They have been packed into jails. The cry is 'the Communists may come and take away all these things; therefore please hand over them to us'. I am saying 'look at Nalgonda; look at the two districts of Hyderabad; have we been able to control the Communists?' Sir, I find my hon. Friend Mr. Kaleswara Rao mentioning to this House that about 25,000 persons have been killed in those places. We have not been able to control the Communists. Then, what is the use of saying that Communists will come and take away. I am pointing out that the proper course will be to leave things alone. Many invaders have come with iron, blood, and torches for the destruction of religion all over the land. These very communities who were in charge of these institutions have saved the institutions from destruction. Sir, if we call our forefathers as fools, our sons will certainly call us fools in their time. In the previous day, it was asked courageously on the floor of this House, what have these Matsadhipatis done and what have the temples done. My answer is they have preserved our religion. At a time when institutions were being exterminated, these people, small in number, with no political power, with no weapon, and without any violence, have been able to save our religion from destruction. We have to be eternally thankful to them. During every invasion, they have maintained our religion. I ask the hon. Government members whether it is not these people who saved religion. Look at Ramanuja who got his idol back from Delhi Datcha (r) and re-installed it at Srirangam. Look at the Bahar people who fought with a regiment and brought back Kaliaznagar. Look at the Mathurai Bhattars, who, when the whole country was attacked by Muslims, had the temple closed and kept on the pūja for a whole year inside the temple. Ultimately when the temple was opened one day, the king saw that pūjas were going on there. He said 'all right; let them have it; let us go away.' Is that not the way of preserving religion. If there are lapses, in certain institutions, why should we take up the whole administration of all the institutions? The other argument placed before us is that we should also take account of the modern conditions. Do we follow what our fathers and forefathers said. Do we follow all their injunctions? Do we not follow the other fold and say 'there is no God; and there is no idol'. Do we act according to what our forefathers have laid down? If not, how can we blame the heads of these institutions. We are now coming to a time when we are changing politically. The heads of mutts on coming to know that we are legislating for the management of religious institutions and mutts have been trying to see that things are in order. Government can say 'you can do this and not that; do not commit any misapplication of the funds'. That would have been the proper method. Instead of that, we are throwing the blame upon them.

"One argument that is frequently advanced in this House is that 5 per cent of the people are oppressing the other 95 per cent. I do not know how the 3 per cent became 5 per cent. I do not think we should take any serious notice of this. It does not deserve any serious consideration.

"It has now become too much of a fashion to-day to say that we are all sinners. Sir, we are purchasing rice at one and a half measures per rupee. Last year we were purchasing at two and a half measures. We have to supplement our rice. According to the statistics taken in the Swadeshi Exhibition, 48 per cent of the people are trying to fill up the deficit by purchasing rice at black-market prices, i.e., at 14 annas or Re. 1-2-0 a measure. Sir, are we all sinners? When we are all bad people, what is the use of saying there will be a deluge if we do not interfere in these religious institutions? On reading the papers, I am unable to understand what this deluge is. The question is there is no water. (Laughter). The other day, I found in a hospital the nurse saying that there is no water in the hospital, and that on the next day no operation would be done. Still we talk of deluge in these days. I wish there were a deluge even on account of sin. We shall be thankful to it for, at least for two or three years there will be plenty of water in the Red Hills. So, Sir, that kind of argument is not correct.

"Lastly, Sir, I would say that nobody questioned the bona fides of the Government. We never said that you do it for the purpose of making numerous appointments. We pointed out that this will result in a plethora of appointments, and that this will end in maladministration. Why take the cap and put it on your head when it is not wanted? At the same time, you also say 'I am a pious man; Hon. Dr. Rajan is a pious man; therefore let this Bill be passed'. Is that the proper argument? I do not question the motives, the morality and the propriety of the Government Members. We accept them. Otherwise, they would not be on the Government benches. Therefore, that kind of argument is not proper.

"Sir, to discuss this Bill a little more in detail at this stage will be futile. All I say is it is a matter of conscience. In fact, in the fundamental Rights, Article 19 provides for it. This matter affects numerous people. With regard to charitable endowments I have a bit of law. Sectional charitable endowments come under Article 20. It says any section or any religious denomination may have its own charitable endowments. How wrong it would be to place all the charitable endowments in the hands of Government? It is asked what is a religious endowment? Fortunately there is no figure given of these endowments. But what we say is that it would be very unwise to bring all charitable endowments under the provisions of the Bill. We find there is a provision in this Bill which says that the endowments be diverted for purposes of schools or colleges. Suppose, for example; there is the Visishtadwaita school of thought. Would it be consistent with this denomination to take away moneys from this school because there is no Dwaitam at all there. Therefore, Sir, this taking over of moneys is not proper. We do not want to postpone this Bill. We only say that it be circulated for public opinion, and let all people have their say in the matter.

"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am specially very thankful to you for the time given to me. Otherwise, there would be a feeling that all those people whom I represent could not make themselves heard in this House. In fact the contention was that there was no organized protest. Now we find people becoming aware of this Bill. They did not know until now how things were going.

"Mr. Speaker, I am thankful to you for allowing me to speak at length, and I move that the Bill be circulated for public opinion."

THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN:—"Sir, I have said all I had to say, and I do not propose to say anything now. I want the House to give its verdict on this debate."

MR. SPEAKER:—"I wish to know from the hon. Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar whether he is withdrawing his amendment."

SRI A. VAIDYANATHA AYYAR:—"Sir, it is a matter of conscience with me, and I cannot withdraw."

10th February 1949]

MR. SPEAKER:—"The question is—

That the Madras Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Bill, 1949, be circulated for eliciting public opinion.'"

The motion was lost.

MR. SPEAKER:—"The question is—

'That under rule 111 of the Madras Assembly Rules, the concurrence of the Legislative Council be obtained in setting up a Joint Select Committee of both the Houses consisting of thirty members to consider the Madras Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Bill, 1949 (twenty members from the Assembly and ten from the Council).'"

The motion was carried.

Sri Navaneetheswaraswami temple, Sikkil, Nagapattinam taluk, Tanjore district.	Non-hereditary trustee.	Infringement of misappropriation of temple funds by trustees. Audit reports brought to light very grave defects in the administration. The President inspected the temple and ordered a special investigation. As it was found that the trustee had misappropriated temple funds, charges were framed, he was suspended and subsequently dismissed. The Executive Officer of the temple was directed to take steps for the recovery of the various amounts due by the ex-trustee and a suit was filed for recovering Rs. 11,000 nearly but on the trustee agreeing to pay a consolidated amount of Rs. 10,000 in full quit, the Board, taking legal advice, agreed to the compromise.

1 Sri Keaswaswami temple, Tallarevu, Kakinada taluk, East Godavari district.	Hereditary trustee.	Temple governed by a scheme settled by the Board with a manager working under the hereditary trustee. When proceedings were started for modifying the scheme vesting more powers in the manager including power to lease lands, and the proceedings were pending, the hereditary trustee gave secretly and collusively a lease of a large block of temple land of about 100 acres for a period of five years even though the existing lease was to run for nearly two years. The existing lease was for a rental of about Rs. 2,500 which itself was very low and the fresh lease given in advance was for about Rs. 3,000 which was also very low, just to make a show of having given the lease for a higher rental. The hereditary trustee later relinquished his trusteeship. The Board directed the new trustees appointed and the manager to repudiate the subsequent lease as collusive and to lease out the land in public auction. As there was obstruction from the old lessee in possession and the new lessee under the collusive lease, the lands were given to the old lessee for one year who offered Rs. 5,000 and odd which was collected. In the next year, the lease was auctioned for about Rs. 7,000.	The action of the trustee in giving the collusive lease deprived the temple of an income of Rs. 4,000 a year.
1 Sri Vaidyanathaswami temple, Vaitheeswarankoil, Sirkali taluk, Tanjore district.	Madathipathi of Dharmapuram math, Tanjore district (hereditary trustee).	The temple owns 135 acres and odd in Adamangalam village, Sirkali taluk, Tanjore district. As there was no bid at the auction held to lease out the lands for lots 135A, 135B and 1360, tenders were called for and the tender for 3,000 kalamas of paddy was accepted by the trustee. As the procedure adopted was irregular, the order of the trustee was set aside, and a fresh auction ordered as per the scheme, with 3,000 kalamas as upset bid. In the re-auction, the same lands were leased out for 4,900 kalamas of paddy and 400 bundles of straw.	If the lease is granted by the trustee had been approved, the temple would have sustained a loss of 1900 kalamas of paddy and 400 bundles of straw.	The order of the Board approving the second lease was sought to be set aside by a writ in the High Court in C.M.P. No. 3892 of 1948. This was dismissed.

4 Sri Pasupathiswarar temple, Pandanallur, Kumbakonam taluk, Tanjore district.

677.24 acres of wet and 237.76 acres of dry not leased out in public auction. Trustees have divided the lands among themselves and cultivated them as if they were their own on the plea that no bidder comes forward. They pay 8,000 kalamas of paddy and Rs. 575 every year, whereas the lands, if leased out in public auction, will fetch 10,000 kalamas of paddy and Rs. 3,000.

The temple is put to a loss of 2,000 kalamas and Rs. 2,425 per annum.

The temple is governed by a court scheme and it authorizes the trustees to cultivate the lands if the lands could not be leased out. Attempts made by the Board to lease out the lands in public auction failed due to the local influence of the trustees. Proceedings to remove the trustees from office (a suit under section 73 and to notify the temple under section 65-A, are pending. Matter reported to Government in letter No. 144791/48-1, Adm., dated 4th January 1949.

The madathipathi of Thiruvadu-thurai math, Tanjore district.	137.65 acres of wet and 53.95 acres of dry lands belonging to charities leased out for five faslis from 1367 at the rate of Rs. 11,000 in cash and 250 kalamas of paddy per fasli nine months before the expiry of the subsisting lease in collusion with the lessees and the auction held at place far away from the place where the lands are situated.	Lands of similar quality and fertility adjoining these lands are found to be leased out for higher rentals causing a loss of Rs. 5,000 per fasli (vide Government Memorandum No. 55035, F.D.V/47-6, dated 11th September 1948).	The matter has been reported to Government ending with L. No. 76370/46-27, Adm., dated 12th November 1948. The Board was not able to take action in the matter and set aside the lease as the charities were on the date of the lease exempt from the operation of sections 18 and 77 of the Act.
6 Sri Karpuranathaswami temple, Uthamagalapuram, Salem taluk, Salem district.	Trustees	The temple owns a market. It is annually leased out. It was leased out recently by the trustees for three years for an annual rental of Rs. 3,005. It was released by the lessee for Rs. 1,20,005.	Rs. 9,000 per year	Scheme proceedings have been started. An interim Executive Officer has been appointed.
7 Sri Krutakritiya Ramaswaraswami temple, Gudimoola Ramaswaram, East Godavari district.	Do.	The temple possesses nearly 2,000 acres of valuable lands capable of yielding more than Rs. 50,000 a year. The lands were long ago unauthorizedly leased out by the archakas for low rentals to rich and powerful ryots who later began to claim occupancy rights. Trustees appointed by the Board failed to take action to recover the lands for the temple. The temple was decided by the Government notified the temple in the year 1940. The Executive Officer who proceeded to take action was confronted with a series of petition R.S. No. 57/41, etc., on the file of the Revenue Divisional Officer, Amalapuram, by the tenants for grant of patta under the Madras Estates Land Act. The petitions were after nearly five years decreed by the Revenue Court granting patta fixing a very low rent of Re. 1 per acre. The appeal filed by the Executive Officer to the District Court in A.S. No. 647 was dismissed and a further appeal in the High Court by the Executive Officer is pending.	As a result of unauthorized and collusive leases by archakas and the inaction or collusion of the trustees, the temple has been deprived of an income of over Rs. 30,000 a year and the temple with practically no income has been led to protracted litigation to obtain possession of its lands.

Board's directions issued to the trustee to keep the accounts and funds separate to invest the temple funds in a Bank and to lease out the temple lands in public auction have had no effect. Exemption granted to the temples has since been cancelled and proceedings have been started for the settlement of a scheme for the better administration of the temples and their properties.

MADRAS HINDU RELIGIOUS AND CHARITABLE
ENDOWMENTS BILL, 1949 (L.A. BILL No 10 of 1949)

THE MADRAS LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Monday, the 11th September 1950.

The House met in the Assembly Chamber, Fort St. George, at eleven of the clock, Mr. Speaker (THE HON. SRI J. SIVASHANMUGAM PILLAI) in the Chair.

THE MADRAS HINDU RELIGIOUS AND CHARITABLE ENDOWMENTS BILL, 1949 (L.A. BILL NO. 10 OF 1949).

THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN :—Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to present the report of the Joint Select Committee on the Madras Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Bill, 1949 (L.A. Bill No. 10 of 1949) and move—

That the Bill as amended by the Joint Select Committee be taken into consideration.

“The Bill has been before the public for quite a very long time and the Joint Select Committee had been at it also for a sufficiently long time. The Government have allowed sufficient time to enable the voters at large to express their opinion on the Bill. And the result of such examination has been the Bill which is now placed before the House. In placing it before the House, it is my desire to bring to the notice of hon. Members certain salient points contained in the Bill which require careful consideration by the House. It is also my desire to place the recommendations of the Joint Select Committee in a concise form to help a detailed study by hon. Members.

“Let me, express my grateful appreciation of the manner in which the Members of this House and those of the Upper House, who constituted the Joint Select Committee carried out the task entrusted to them. Voluminous written memoranda covering about 550 pages of printed matter were presented to the Committee, by various associations and individuals interested in religious institutions. In addition, a number of persons representing many schools of thought and important religious institutions including Maths gave oral evidence before the Joint Select Committee. The material thus gathered was then arranged and sifted, and further subjected to a detailed examination by the Committee. Some 50 issues were framed and the Committee discussed these issues at some considerable length and settled the principles on which the Bill should be amended. In the light of the decisions of the Committee on the several issues framed for its consideration, the Bill was re-drafted. The Committee then took up a detailed examination of the Bill clause by clause, as a result of which they suggested various amendments. These amendments were again duly incorporated in the Bill, and a second revised draft was printed and put up to the Committee for its consideration. For a second time the Joint Select Committee scrutinized the provisions of the Bill clause by clause and then suggested a few alterations which have been finally incorporated into the Bill as republished in the present form in February 1950. The House will thus see that the Joint Select Committee took great pains to examine every one of the clauses in the Bill with reference to the criticisms and suggestions for amendments made in the oral and documentary evidence before it. As a result of their labours the Bill has been amended and improved in various respects, which I shall refer to, later.

“Before I deal with the main features of the Bill and the important changes incorporated in it by the Joint Select Committee, I crave the permission of this House, briefly to review in retrospect what had already been done in the direction of improving the administration and conserving the resources of the religious institutions in this State. I do not propose Sir, to go into the past history of the legislation on the subject and trace the several infructuous attempts made since 1863. I will begin with Act II of 1927 by which the present Hindu Religious Endowments Board, which has now been functioning for a quarter of a century, came into being. After the Montford Reforms, when the dyarchic Government was introduced in this State and the subject of Religious Endowments came under the control of popular Ministers, the Government felt that legislation on this subject was necessary. The then Chief Minister, the Rajah of Panagal, conceived the idea of establishing a Board on the lines of the Board of Charity Commissioners in England, as best calculated to achieve the end. A Bill was accordingly drafted with the English Act as its model and it became law in 1925. The Government of the day were fortunate in inducing the late Sir T. Sadasiva Ayyar of honoured memory, to accept the office of the President of the Board, at its inception. Four Commissioners were appointed along with him and the system of supervision and control over temples and Maths came into being substantially as it continues till to-day.

“A number of defects were soon discovered in the working of the Act. In fact, the Rajah of Panagal himself in sponsoring the Bill did not claim either completeness, or perfection, for his Bill, and openly admitted on the floor of the Legislative Council that he was fully aware of its defects. Having regard to the political atmosphere of that time, he had to pilot that legislation very cautiously and to consolidate the varving and vested interests both inside the party and outside it, and to secure the greatest measure of agreement among the various conflicting interests. It is unnecessary, therefore, for me to dilate on these defects in the Act and the Board's short-comings and mistakes, during these 25 years. No one is more conscious of the Board's errors than I am, with my knowledge of its work as the Minister in charge of Religious Endowments both during the first Congress Ministry more than a decade ago as well as now. But we must not forget the fact that the Hindu Religious Endowments Act (Madras Act II of 1927) is the first piece of legislation of its kind in India; and I am proud, indeed, that in this as in various other matters, Madras has been the pioneer whose model has been copied years later by other States in India. Only a few months back, Bombay has enacted the Bombay Public Trusts Act, 1950, for dealing with religious and charitable endowments in that State. The Bihar Government has also published a Hindu Religious Endowments Bill. In the State of Travancore—Cochin, both a Travancore Devaswom Bill and Cochin Devaswom Bill have been enacted.

"In order to remedy the defects discovered in the working of the Act, several amending Acts, have been enacted since 1927. I will not weary the House with any detailed account of them, but will only refer cursorily to some of the more important ones. For some years at the commencement, it was felt that the greater part of the Board's attention had been devoted to the collection of contributions for its own maintenance, which prevented it from devoting sufficient time and attention to its more important and legitimate duties. The first President, Sri T. Sadasiva Ayyar, drew the pointed attention of Government to this defect. The procedure for the collection of the revenues of the Board was made simpler and more effective by Act XI of 1931 and ever since, the financial side of the Board's activities has ceased to be a source of anxiety to the Board and the Government as well. Next, it was found that certain schemes framed for the administration of individual temples by Courts in whom the sole jurisdiction for the purpose was then vested, were absolutely unworkable and were leading to deadlocks. The procedure for getting these schemes amended by applications to Courts entailed great delay and led to enormous wastage of public funds. Chapter VI-A, relating to notifications, was therefore added by Act XII of 1935. Under the new provisions of this Chapter, after a full notice to the general public as well as to all individuals concerned, a Court's scheme could be abrogated altogether and the temple could be notified by the Government on the recommendation of the Board. There has been considerable public criticism of the exercise of this power in individual cases. But I have no doubt that on the whole, these new provisions served a very useful and salutary purpose in reforming the administration of several important temples and placing them on a satisfactory basis.

"As the House is aware, a great and momentous change in the constitutional set-up of the country was brought about by the Government of India Act of 1935, and the Indian National Congress came, for the first time, into power in the states, where a large measure of self-government was introduced by that Act. As the Minister in charge of Hindu Religious Endowments in the first Congress Ministry, I took up the question of improving the machinery for supervision and control of religious institutions created by Act II of 1927 in a comprehensive manner. After consulting a number of legal pundits including the Advocate-General and the High Court, I drafted a Bill. It was circulated to the Cabinet and had their approval. But before it could be put on the Statute Book, we resigned for political considerations and therefore the Bill lapsed. I may perhaps state here in passing, that the present Bill is modelled substantially on the same lines as my Bill of 1939.

"The Advisers' Government established under section 93 of the Government of India Act of 1935, on the breakdown of the normal constitutional machinery, came to the conclusion, after due deliberation, that only a Government consisting of elected representatives of the people should proceed with a measure of this kind and decided to drop the Bill. A few months later, it was, however, pressed upon their attention that certain glaring defects in the Hindu Religious Endowments Act had to be rectified without any loss of time, in the public interest. But, as was only to be expected, they wanted to proceed very cautiously, and so they appointed a Committee presided over by Sri P. Venkataramana Rao, a retired Judge of the Madras High Court, to consider and report on the changes which they may take up without being accused of interfering with the religious institutions of the land. On some of the recommendations of that Committee, the Advisers' Government felt that immediate action was needed and Act V of 1944 was the result. By it the Temple Committees were abolished and the work was assigned to full-time subordinate officers of the Board appointed by Government called Assistant Commissioners. The other recommendations of that Committee were passed into law in 1946 before the Congress Government began to regard.

"Thus it is only by such piece-meal legislations that attempts have been made so far to improve the Hindu Religious Endowments Act. The time has now come not only to consolidate the several amending Acts and enact a self-contained Act, but also to make a thorough overhaul of the entire administrative machinery in order to secure more effective and efficient supervision over the administration of religious institutions. In fact, the idea of continuing where we left in 1939, was ever present in our minds, since the Congress Government took office in 1946.

"As the House is aware, the first draft of the Bill was published in September 1947 and all the Members of the Legislature had a copy of that Bill. But as the Government were then very busy with legislations of various kinds, particularly the Zamindari Abolition Bill, it could not be introduced in the House for a second time. Act X of 1946 was probably the most comprehensive piece of legislation on the subject, since Act II of 1927 was passed. By this Act, the City Temples were brought for the first time, under the jurisdiction of the Board. The powers of the Board over hereditary trustees were very much enlarged and the notification chapter was clarified so as to prevent the courts from interfering with the orders of the Government in this at that time. Very soon after the passing of the Zamindari Abolition Act, the Government republished the draft Bill and I introduced it in this House on 14th February 1949. After a full dress debate in both the Houses, the Bill was referred to the Joint Select Committee to whose arduous labours, I have already referred. Though the Bill, as amended by the Joint Select Committee, was ready by the beginning of February itself, it could not be placed before the House earlier, owing to the exigencies of other legislative business. The Bill has thus been before the public, in its main outlines, for about three years by now, and for over a year and a half, it has been constantly in our thoughts. Whatever criticisms may be levelled against its provisions and we welcome constructive suggestions even now it cannot be said that the public have not had ample opportunities of understanding and appreciating its main features. Opportunity was given to every school of thought, not only to submit written memoranda, but also to explain their case in person before the Joint Select Committee. Various shades of opinion were represented in the Joint Select Committee itself, and the Government have gone very far indeed to satisfy legitimate criticisms and reconcile opposing points of view, as much as possible, consistently with the public interest.

"I shall now proceed to describe the main features of the Bill and how we consider it to be an improvement upon the existing Act.

"The main and perhaps the most fundamental change is that the power of general superintendence will not remain with the Board as at present but will be vested in the State Government, which will be exercised through a Commissioner, Deputy Commissioners and Assistant Commissioners. It should not be misunderstood, as is done in some quarters, that the Government will take over the management of these religious institutions. There is absolutely no intention on the part of Government to manage any religious institution either directly or indirectly. All that they wish to do is to supervise the administration of religious institutions through a Commissioner and other officers who will constitute the Devasthanam Department of the Government.

"The present method of administration by a Statutory Board has been found to be defective in several respects. Owing to causes, which it is unnecessary to go into now, no Statutory Board in this country has commanded, or can command, the prestige of Department of the Government. Moreover, the Commissioners of the Board are appointed under the present Act, only for a definite period of five years; and though there is provision for reappointment, only a few have been fortunate enough to be so re-appointed for a second term. Quite a number of Commissioners have been discharged after their first term of office for five years. Such frequent changes in the personnel of the Commissioners, cannot certainly ensure a continuity of policy, and even tell on the efficiency of the administration. Hence, both in the interests of continuity of policy, and efficiency of the administration, it has long been felt that the subject of endowments should be made a Department of Government, and placed in charge of permanent Government officers. When once the tenure of officers entrusted with the work of supervision of the religious endowments and the staff working under them, becomes permanent and pensionable, there can be no doubt that the efficiency of the administration will be greatly enhanced. They will then have that sense of security created in them, which will, doubtless, make for greater efficiency.

"The administration by four Commissioners vested with fairly equal powers led to widely differing orders being passed on exactly similar matters by different Commissioners, and this resulted in grave doubt and uncertainty in the minds of the public as to what action would be taken by the Board in any particular matter. It has, therefore, been thought necessary to replace the present Board by a single Commissioner assisted by Deputy Commissioners. The advantages to be gained by this vital change are obvious. Firstly, the trustees and other members of the public from the mufassal now seeking redress at the hands of the Board, will find this change to be very convenient to them and to reduce their costs considerably. At present the Board has to function as a corporate body. Disputes such as, whether an institution is a religious one, whether any property or money, is a religious endowment, whether a trustee is a hereditary trustee or otherwise, whether a person is entitled to any honours or emoluments, etc., have to be settled by a committee of the Board. Similarly, questions connected with the framing of schemes for temples and the utilization of surplus funds, etc., have to be decided by a committee of the Board. The aggrieved parties have, therefore, to come all the way from the mufassal to the Board at Madras. But under the Bill, provision has been made for a Deputy Commissioner to inquire into and pass orders in all these cases. As the Deputy Commissioners will function at convenient centres in the mufassal and hold enquiries in the locality, it will no longer be necessary for trustees and other aggrieved parties to run up to Madras, to obtain redress in each and every matter. There is no doubt that by this arrangement, the costs of the parties will be considerably reduced and that they will therefore welcome it. Secondly, this decentralization by which the Deputy Commissioners are invested with the powers now exercised by the Board, will result in a speedy disposal of work and the elimination of delays. One real difficulty felt in the working of the Act of 1927, was the absence of a suitable local machinery to inquire into and grant relief in urgent cases. The Bill removes this difficulty. The Deputy Commissioner will hereafter hold immediate inquiries in the locality and pass orders on the spot expeditiously.

"But, if all the powers now vested in the Board are to be conferred on a single Commissioner, functioning with his deputies and subordinates, there is the possible danger of errors not being detected in time and corrected. Hence, the Government propose to take over the power of calling for records and revising the orders of the Commissioner.

[Dr. T. S. S. Rajan] [11th September 1950]

"In order to allay the apprehension of individuals vitally interested in these institutions like our Matadhipathis, I may at once declare that it is not our intention to probe into every detail of administration normally carried on by the Commissioner or his subordinates, still less to interfere with the work of the trustees. The system of administration in a modern State proceeds on the basis of the errors of one public authority being corrected by at least one higher authority, and our object is only to correct errors and give guidance and instructions where needed, and not to usurp to ourselves the ordinary functions of the departmental authorities.

"The second outstanding feature of the Bill, as the addition of the word "Charitable" to its title itself is meant to signify, is that while the existing Act applies only to religious institutions, an express provision is made in the Bill for its extension to charitable endowments as well. This has been a crying need all along. Mal-administration and misapplication of public funds have been as rampant in the case of charitable endowments in this State as in respect of temples and maths. The present law relating to charitable endowments is not sufficient to prevent mismanagement. Under Regulation VII of 1817, the control of charities is vested in the Board of Revenue. Owing to the multifarious duties which the Board of Revenue has to perform and owing to the very large number of charitable endowments scattered all over the State, the Board has not been able to exercise any effective supervision over the administration of charitable endowments. No doubt, there is a remedy open to the public in cases of misappropriation or misapplication of trust funds relating to charitable endowments by filing suits under Section 92 of the Civil Procedure Code, with the Advocate-General's consent. But the filing of a suit generally means great expense and trouble and so in practice, this provision has been rarely availed of by the general public. Charitable endowments are public trusts just in the same way as religious endowments are, and there is no reason why adequate arrangements should not be made for their supervision with a view to prevent misappropriation of funds. In England, the jurisdiction of the Charity Commissioners extends to secular as well as religious charities.

"When the Hindu Religious Endowments Bill was first sponsored by the Raja of Panagal, it was apparently considered that it would be enough at that time, to reform the administration of temples, because of the great veneration in which the temples and maths in this State are held by all Hindus. It might have been also partly due to the idea of restricting the sphere of action to a narrow field as they were venturing on a new scheme, the first of its kind in India. Whatever justification there might have been in 1922 for restricting the scope of the Act to the religious institutions alone and for excluding the charitable trusts, there is hardly any to-day for allowing them to be mismanaged. Now that we have gained a fair knowledge of the ground and have surmounted most of the initial difficulties in the way, the Government have thought fit to make an express provision for the extension of the provisions of this Act to charitable endowments. Though here also, we intend to proceed cautiously and certainly do not propose to bring in all charities, big and small, within the powers of the Commissioner at once, the Government expect to make a beginning in this direction fairly early. I am sure enlightened public opinion will be with me on this matter.

"The third salient improvement in the present Bill is the restriction of the scope for litigation and the consequent wastage of the funds of religious institutions. One of the unfortunate results of Act II of 1927 was the abundant crop of litigation that sprang up in regard to every conceivable matter dealt with by the Board. While the Board of Commissioners were vested with original jurisdiction in respect of all matters pertaining to religious institutions, the Act allowed parties fancying themselves to be aggrieved by its orders to appeal to law courts and to question the correctness of the Board's orders in almost every matter. The trustees of temples taking advantage of the fact that they are in possession of temple funds, indulged in endless litigation. Some of them revelled in it. I need not take up the time of the House now with a catalogue of the numerous instances in which this right of appeal to law Courts or to file suits before them, has been abused. In my speech while introducing the Bill in this House on the 4th February, 1949, I have described in some detail the ridiculous straits to which litigation was reduced, particularly in matters of ritual, some of which do not, in my opinion, affect in the least the fundamentals of religion. I have no doubt this House will agree with me that as a result of such reckless and cantankerous litigation, there has been enormous wastage of public funds, and there was also great and unconscionable delay in several matters in giving effect to the decisions of the Board.

"In this Bill, we have decided to restrict the scope for litigation in Courts, only to such matters as involve the adjudication of rights to private properties. Accordingly, we have removed the right to go to Courts in the following matters, which are all allowed under the present Act:—

- (i) Appointment and removal of hereditary trustees;
- (ii) Fixing of dittams, or standard scales of expenditure in temples;
- (iii) Utilization of surplus funds of religious institutions;
- (iv) Alienation of immovable trust properties; and
- (v) Questions such as whether a person is entitled, by custom or otherwise, to any honour or emolument, or perquisite, in any religious institution and what the established usage of a religious institution is in regard to any other matter.

"These are not matters involving any rights to private properties, and so in the interest of preventing wastage of trust funds in litigation, the right of suit in a Court has been taken away under this Bill. Since there is an appeal against the Deputy Commissioner's orders in these matters to the Commissioner, and since the Government have also revisional powers, there need be no apprehension that there will be any miscarriage of justice.

"The next important improvement that I would specially bring to the notice of the House, is the stricter control proposed to be exercised over the maths, particularly on the financial side. When I refer to maths I know I am treading on sensitive grounds. The question whether maths should be brought within the scope of the Hindu Religious Endowments Act raised a good deal of controversy in 1922, when the Hindu Religious Endowments Bill was introduced in the Legislative Council. The Select Committee, which went into the matter, came to the conclusion, after examining a number of witnesses, that it was but right that the affairs of maths should also be controlled. Yet the Act being the first of its kind, provided only for a limited control over maths. Since then we have had ample proof of criminal waste and extravagance and mismanagement in maths which warrant greater control over the secular affairs of the maths. The Venkatramana Rao Committee held the view that a good deal of reform was necessary and desirable particularly in the matter of inspection of maths, submission of budgets and appointment of managers to look after the secular affairs of the maths. Some of these reforms have already been carried out by amendments to the Act, without affecting the spiritual headship of the matadhipati. In the present Bill also nothing is proposed to be done which will interfere with or undermine the spiritual headship or authority of the matadhipati. As in the present Act, trustees of maths will be suspended or removed only by Courts and not by the Commissioner. A specific provision is made that nothing shall authorize any interference with the religious or spiritual functions of the head of a math including those relating to the imparting of religious instruction or the rendering of spiritual service.

"The real changes are in respect of dittam and notifications. Though Section 61 of the present Act envisages the existence of a dittam in a math, there is no provision in the Act for altering or modifying the dittam of a math or of a specific endowment attached to a math. In the absence of a provision in the Act for settling a dittam, trustees of maths have been incurring expenditure indiscriminately. In order to put an end to this unsatisfactory state of things, the Bill has introduced a specific provision [Clause 59] that the trustee of a math, or a specific endowment attached thereto, should send proposals to the Commissioner for fixing the dittam of the institution. The intention is that if the dittam is at variance with established usage, or is not justified by the financial position of the institution, it should be altered or modified after calling for and considering the remarks of the matadhipati. In view, however, of the position of matadhipatis as spiritual heads, the Joint Select Committee did not agree to invest the Commissioner with this power. In accordance with the decision of the Joint Select Committee, this power is now reserved to the Government. The Commissioner can only call for the remarks of the Matadhipati, and if on considering them, he still feels that the dittam has to be altered, he has to submit the case for the orders of the Government.

"Agam under the present Act, there is no provision for notifying a math. Chapter VI-A of the present Act, relating to notifications, applies exclusively to temples. But as I have said above, there are many instances of extravagance, mismanagement and misconduct in maths. The properties of the maths in many cases are scattered all over the State and matadhipatis are unable to give the attention required to administer the properties properly. In many cases, leases are given for low rents; the rents are not collected properly, collections made are not brought to account and the expenditure is not controlled. The only remedy open, in such circumstances, is to entrust the care of the properties of such maths, to a responsible paid officer. The Bill seeks to achieve this by taking power to notify maths and appoint paid Executive Officers for dealing with secular affairs. Let me emphasize once again that nothing will be done to interfere with the spiritual authority of the matadhipati.

"As in the case of the maths, the Bill seeks to tighten up control over the temples and specific endowments and rectify a number of other defects revealed in the working of the existing Act during the last 25 years. I will now briefly refer to the more important of these changes. One of the gravest defects in the existing Act, which has caused not a little vexation to all officers connected with its administration, is the procedure relating to the recovery of the endowments of an institution by a new trustee, or Executive Officer. The Act does not vest any power in the Board to compel obedience to their orders and directions. This led to dishonest trustees removed for misconduct still merrily spending public moneys in wasteful litigation and for their private purposes for years before the properties of the institution could be taken possession of by the new trustees or the Executive Officers. The Venkatramana Rao Committee which went into this vexed problem of putting trustees and Executive Officers in possession of the properties of religious institutions, suggested some radical alterations to the effect that Courts should have no option but to put the new trustees and Executive Officers in charge of the properties of religious institutions. But even these amendments have not had the desired effect; and the outgoing trustees could still cling on to the properties by taking advantage of other loopholes in the law. Till now only the District Court was constituted as the sole judicial authority to be resorted to, for the enforcement of the provisions of the existing Act. As the District Court is also the Sessions Court for the area and as it is vested with jurisdiction of various kinds, there were enormous delays in the passing of orders, even on simple petitions. We have decided to change the pattern in this Bill and constitute another authority for dealing with these matters. While the Civil Courts have been still retained as the forum for the decision of disputed claims to properties, which need detailed examination, we have provided for the Magistracy being empowered to direct delivery of ordinary trust properties to the trustee or manager. I had contemplated this change even in 1938. I have absolutely no doubt that this is a step in the right direction and would help towards the speedy rectification of defects in the administration at much less cost to the institutions and claimants alike.

"I would next refer to the modification of the law in regard to the resumption of inams proposed in the Bill. The question of the quantum of the interest conveyed by an inam grant has been the subject-matter of great controversy among lawyers for some decades in this State and different views have been expressed by different Judges of the High Court. I understand that it is very difficult even for trained lawyers to reconcile all the dicta found in the decisions of the High Court. The result seems to be that the Revenue Officers to whom a trustee has to resort for claiming the resumption of an inam in cases of non-performance of service or of improper alienation, preceded by a sort of rule of thumb and acting on the presumption that the inam consists only of the land revenue, resumed and re-granted only the melwaram.

"This has resulted in great loss of income to various institutions and sometimes even the expenditure for the daily Pooja could not be derived from the melwaram grant so made. The trustee had to resort to costly litigation in Civil Courts to get the order of the Revenue officials, varied, and in some places the Board has found it very difficult to get trustees who would shoulder this onerous responsibility. We have, therefore, provided, in this Bill for an initial presumption that an inam granted to a religious institution for any particular service in a temple or math, comprises both the warams. By this provision, the interests of the religious institutions are sufficiently safeguarded, while we have kept open the remedy by way of resort to Civil Courts to any party aggrieved by any order of the revenue authorities acting on this presumption.

"I may now refer to a few other provisions which, though of minor importance, go a great way for the upkeep and well-being of religious institutions. With a view to bring more effective control over the expenditure of religious institutions, the bill specifies the various purposes for which the revenues of a religious institution could be spent. It statutorily fixes that a certain percentage of its income shall be set apart for the repair and renovation of the buildings connected with the institutions, and that a working balance should be maintained for each institution. It is a well-known fact that several religious institutions in the State need repairs and renovations. But such repairs, or renovations, could not be undertaken by the authorities of the institutions, because the revenues had been spent away recklessly. The new provisions in clause 75 (2) (c) for the setting apart of a fixed percentage of its current income for repairs and renovations, and in clause 75 (2) (d) for the maintenance of a working balance will enable religious institution hereafter to undertake the very necessary work of repairs and renovations whenever needed.

"Under the present Act, there is no provision which prohibits trustees from utilising funds of temples in proceedings incidental to, or arising out of, their removal from office. So they have been recklessly spending temple funds in such proceedings, though they are purely personal matters arising generally from their misconduct. It has, therefore, been specifically laid down now in clause 26 (3) that a trustee should not, in the absence of permission from the Court or the Commissioner or the Deputy Commissioner, reimburse himself from the trust funds the expenditure that he may incur in such proceedings.

"The new provision in clause 37 relating to the custody of jewels, is another valuable improvement. Office holders and servants of religious institutions often put forward claims to be in possession of jewels and they are of no mean value and other valuables on the ground of usage or on the strength of orders of Courts. The result in some cases had been loss to the institutions. Consequently, clause 37 of the Bill prohibits temple servants and others from being in custody of the jewellery, except under such safeguards as the Commissioner may direct, notwithstanding any custom or usage, or order or decree of a Court or a Scheme framed by it, to the contrary.

"Lastly, I must not omit to mention the fact that this Bill will apply to the Tirumalai-Tirupathi Devasthanam also, unlike the existing Act, which does not apply to that Devasthanam. As the House is aware, the Tirumalai-Tirupathi Devasthanam Act, was enacted in 1932, in order to provide for adequate supervision and control over that Devasthanam, which was till then in charge of the Mahant. There is now no need for a separate Act. Nor is there any difficulty in bringing the administration of the Tirumalai-Tirupathi Devasthanam within the purview of the new Act. Moreover, it has been felt that it would be desirable to have a stricter and unified control over all religious institutions in the State under a single authority. No doubt, there are a few special provisions in the Tirumalai-Tirupathi Devasthanams Act such as those designed to secure the health of the pilgrims by notification of the Tirumalai Hills area as a Panchayat, and placing it in charge of the Executive Officer, to be appointed for the Devasthanam, and to utilize the surplus funds for certain purposes and for maintenance of certain educational institutions. These special provisions have been incorporated in Chapter X of the Bill in order to meet the special needs of the Tirumalai-Tirupathi Devasthanam.

"I have now dealt with almost all the important changes and improvements in the Bill which we claim to have made as a result of our experience during 25 years of administration of the existing Act. All these have existed in the original Bill, even when I presented it to this House in February 1949, and have not only survived the minute and critical scrutiny made by the Joint Select Committee, but have also met with their hearty approval, except for one modification in regard to the dittams of maths, to the effect that they should not be altered or modified by the Commissioner, but should be submitted to Government for orders.

" I shall now pass on to the important changes which the Joint Select Committee introduced into the Bill as a result of their deliberations. They have added several new features and I do not think it necessary to bore the members of this House with an elaborate account of all of them. Hon. Members can easily distinguish the contributions made by the Joint Select Committee as they are printed in bold clarendon type in the copies of the Bill appended to the Joint Select Committee's report now circulated to them. I will content myself now with bringing to the notice of the House only the more important of their contributions.

" The first and foremost improvement effected by them, is the constitution of Area Committees for associating representatives of the people with the administration of temples. I have mentioned earlier that as a result of Act V of 1944, the Temple Committees provided for in Act II of 1927 have been abolished. These Committees have caused many a head-ache to every person who has been in charge of this department. It is true that if we get a sufficient number of individuals of the right type Government could relieve themselves of a lot of responsibility which can be certainly better shouldered by local committees. But the whole difficulty has been the paucity to enlightened and disinterested public men willing to accept service on such committees. In actual practice, it has been found very difficult to induce respectable men to serve on them. (Sri V. Raghavayya: May I know why?) The hon. Member may wait and hear. During my previous term as Minister in charge of Religious Endowments I had not without much heart searching and mental anguish, to abolish committee after committee. By the time the Advisers' regime legislated on this subject, there were very few committees in existence and bitter complaints existed even against them. The Venkatramana Rao Committee recommended their total abolition. In our original Bills as published in 1947 and 1949, no provision was made for their restoration, but during the course of the discussions of the Joint Select Committee it has been pressed on us that we, as a popular Government, should not divorce the people from the administration of the temples but should make one more sincere efforts to associate the representatives of the people with their management. Accordingly, we have provided for the constitution of Area Committees, which would be vested with large powers of supervision over all temples whose annual income does not exceed Rs. 20,000. These committees will have an effective voice in the administration of temples, as they are empowered to pass orders on dittams, sanction budgets, scrutinize audit reports, appoint trustees, call for records, etc. But, I may inform the members of the House that we have taken the precaution to safeguard against their being merely the vehicles of local factions and private interests by providing that the Assistant Commissioner should preside over the meetings of Area Committees. In this form these Area Committees are new institutions and I do sincerely hope that they would be worked properly and that the experiment would meet with the success it deserves.

" In respect of the larger temples deriving an income of over Rs. 20,000 per year, the Joint Select Committee however felt that it would be better to have a separate Board of Trustees for supervising the management of each one of them instead of entrusting them to the Area Committees which are to look after a very large number of temples. They considered that these important institutions, instead of having trustees to function under the supervision of a body like the Area Committee should be managed by a Board of Trustees consisting of representatives of the public, in addition to hereditary trustees, if any. We have accordingly provided that for each one of these big temples there should be a Board of Trustees. We have found by experience that one common feature in all schemes for bigger institutions whether framed by law courts or the Board, is the appointment of a salaried Executive Officer or Manager. The Joint Select Committee has, therefore, decided that this should be made statutorily applicable to all institutions getting an income of over Rs. 20,000, whether or not, the institution has been the subject-matter of any decision by the Board or by the law Courts. There should be a salaried Executive Officer in charge of the day-to-day administration of all such temples, and he should work under the superintendence and guidance of the Board of Trustees, who would merely lay down the policy and would not be burdened with the details of the daily routine. We are of opinion that thereby we have secured that happy combination of the best that can be got from a salaried as well as an honorary agency which has been so marked a feature of the best systems of modern municipal and local administration.

" Another important change introduced by the Joint Select Committee relates to notifications. According to the provision made in the Bill a notification issued by the Government declaring an institution to be subject to the special provisions of the notification chapter, shall be in force for an indefinite period unless cancelled or modified by Government. In this respect, the Bill followed the provision in the existing Act. The Joint Select Committee, however, considered that a notification issued in this regard should automatically cease to have force at the end of five years, unless it is cancelled or modified earlier by Government. It was felt that notification being a special remedy resorted to for special reasons, normal administration could be expected to be restored in five years, and, therefore, there was no need to continue the notification beyond five years. It has also been made clear that the scheme, which was applicable before the notification was made, shall not be revived, when the notification is cancelled or has ceased to be operative owing to efflux of five years' time.

"A good deal of the time of the Joint Select Committee was taken-up with the examination of the provisions relating to maths to which they paid special attention. I have already referred to the change made by the Joint Select Committee in respect of dittams. Another modification made by it relates to the framing of schemes. In the Bill the power to frame schemes, both for temples and maths, was originally assigned to the Deputy Commissioner. But the Joint Select Committee felt that the Deputy Commissioner's powers should normally be restricted to temples and that he should not ordinarily be allowed to frame schemes in respect of maths. We have accordingly provided [clause 63 (8)] that the Commissioner alone should settle schemes for maths and specific endowments attached thereto and that if a Deputy Commissioner is to do this, the power should be specially delegated to him by the Commissioner. This is because of the importance of the maths.

"The Joint Select Committee has also made a new provision that the trustee of a math shall be entitled to spend at his discretion for purposes connected with the math, any pathakanika, that is any gift of property or money made as a personal gift to him as the head of a math, but that he should keep regular accounts of receipts and expenditure for production before the Commissioner or any other person authorized by him.

"The Joint Select Committee has also enlarged the jurisdiction of Civil Courts by providing for the right to file suits in respect of matters decided by the Deputy Commissioner in the first instance and by the Commissioner on appeal. In the Bill only an appeal against the orders of the Commissioner to the High Court was originally provided. The Joint Select Committee, however, decided that it would be better to provide a right to file a suit in the first instance instead of an appeal straightaway to the High Court. Consequently, a provision has been made that against the decision of a Commissioner in certain cases a suit may be filed in the Court of Original Civil Jurisdiction in the mufassal and in the City Civil Court in the Presidency town, and that against the decree of the said courts appeals may be filed in the High Court. Though a suit has been provided for from the orders of the Commissioner, the powers of the court have been restricted, so as not to stay the Commissioner's orders pending the disposal of the suit.

"Yet another improvement made by the Joint Select Committee relates to the alienation of inam lands. Clause 36 of the Bill makes null and void any exchange, gift, sale, mortgage, or any lease for a term exceeding five years of any inam granted for the support or maintenance of a religious institution or for the performance of a charity or service connected therewith or any other religious charity. This provision follows the existing one in section 44-B of the present Act. The Joint Select Committee, however, considered that cases might arise where it might be found that even in the case of an inam land such sale, gift, exchange, mortgage or lease for a term of over five years is necessary and beneficial, to the institution and that in such cases, there should not be an absolute bar, as now exists. In order to provide for such a contingency, power is taken by Government to sanction a sale, exchange, mortgage or long lease of an inam, if the Government were to consider it necessary or beneficial in the interests of the institution. These, Sir, are the most salient features of the Bill which were considered and decided upon by the Joint Select Committee and they are now before the House for discussion."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Motion moved—

'That the report of the Joint Select Committee on the Madras Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Bill, 1949 (L.A. Bill No. 10 of 1949), be taken into consideration.'

"I wish to tell the House that the hon. Member Sri Bhashyam has given notice of an amendment to the effect that the Bill be recommitted to the same Joint Select Committee. As far as the rules of this House are concerned, they are silent about the procedure to be followed here. There are two alternative methods by which this can be discussed. I understand from the Leader of the House that the Government is opposing the amendment. In such circumstance, this is the procedure followed in the House of Commons:

'If the motion to recommit the Bill is opposed the Speaker is directed by S.O. to permit a brief explanatory statement of the reasons for recommitment from the Member who moves and from a Member who opposes the motion, after which he must put the question without further debate.'

Shall we follow this procedure? In the alternative if it is the desire of hon. Members to take part in the debate, the motion might be made and both the main motion and the amendment will be before the House for discussion and in the end, I will put both of them—one by one—to the vote of the House. But in the procedure obtaining in the House of Commons, only two speeches are allowed, one by the member making the motion and another by way of reply."

THE HON. SRI B. GOPALA REDDI:—"We may have the House of Commons procedure; I think that will save time and later on hon. Members will have an opportunity of speaking on the merits of the provisions of the Bill; it is better we dispose of the amendment."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"I shall prefer that."

MR. SPEAKER:—"If such a procedure is adopted, the hon. Member will make a brief statement and the Hon. Minister will reply and I will put the amendment to the vote of the House."

[11th September 1950]

RAJA MUTHIAH CHETTIYAR OF CHETTINAD :—“ On the motion of the hon. Gentleman Mr. Bhashyam, it may be, Sir, that many Members may like to support him.”

MR. SPEAKER :—“ But they can support him by voting with him without expressing their views.”

RAJA MUTHIAH CHETTIYAR OF CHETTINAD :—“ Perhaps more votes may be canvassed by speeches which may be made by hon. Members in support of the motion.”

MR. SPEAKER :—“ But the thing is we must follow a certain procedure.”

JANAB ABDUL HAMEED KHAN :—“ May I submit, Sir, that the Hon. the Speaker wanted to know the opinion of the House. But, after hearing the Hon. the Leader of the House, the Chair is going to give its decision.”

MR. SPEAKER :—“ As soon as he finished, the hon. Member should have spoken; he has given his opinion and now, let me also hear hon. Mr. Hameed Khan.”

JANAB ABDUL HAMEED KHAN :—“ I would submit, Mr. Speaker, that there is a part of the House this side also and they should be heard.”

MR. SPEAKER :—“ I know it and the hon. Member need not remind me about it.”

JANAB ABDUL HAMEED KHAN :—“ If the opinion of the House is to be ascertained not by votes but by consultation, we may also have it by expressing our views and that is why I suggested to you that we are here also.”

MR. SPEAKER :—“ The hon. Member need not repeat it again. As soon as the Leader of the House had concluded, I allowed the leader of his party to speak and I have not taken a decision so far.”

JANAB ABDUL HAMEED KHAN :—“ I thank you, Sir, for the assurance. You were pleased to give us two alternative suggestions, one was following the procedure of the House of Commons. By that means, Sir, you prevent the Mover of the amendment from giving reasons fully why exactly he wants the Bill to go once again before the Joint Select Committee. A mere statement will not do. The Hon. Minister in charge of the Bill has made a lengthy speech presenting the report of the Joint Select Committee and the House, after that, is entitled to know why the hon. Mr. Bhashyam wants the Bill to be re-committed to the same Joint Select Committee. If the Hon. Speaker knows that there is no purpose served because you know what the nature of voting will be . . .”

MR. SPEAKER :—“ It is immaterial for me what the voting will be.”

11th September 1950]

JANAB ABDUL HAMEED KHAN :—“ We must talk of realities and, therefore, I am suggesting that we need not take the suggestion of the Hon. the Leader of the House as the ipse dixit of the whole thing.”

MR. SPEAKER :—“ The hon. Member Sri Bhashyam also wanted the same thing to be done.”

JANAB ABDUL HAMEED KHAN :—“ Evidently the hon. Gentleman Sri Bhashyam will revise his views just now.”
(Laughter.)

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—“ I will give another alternative to the House.”

JANAB ABDUL HAMEED KHAN :—“ I am glad to hear that he is prepared to modify his view, particularly in view of the fact that not only he but we, in this House, have a right to know why the hon. Member Sri Bhashyam wants a re-committal of the Bill and as a matter of fact, he may not be so keen on it as we are. (An hon. Member: ‘Despite your being a Muslim.’) Muslim or Hindu, that is our right and I will request you not to accept the suggestion of the Hon. the Leader of the House but to give us as ample an opportunity as possible to come to a decision on this question.”

MR. SPEAKER :—“ The position is this: The first proposal is that the hon. the Mover of the amendment will be allowed time to move the amendment at first without others being allowed to speak upon it and then the Leader of the House or the Minister who moved the motion will answer and then I will put the motion to the vote of the House. The second alternative is that Mr. Bhashyam will move his amendment and then both his motion and the main motion will be before the House and I will put the amendment and the main motion to the vote of the House. I have no objection to follow either.”

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—“ But there is a third alternative and that is this: I move the motion for re-committal and it may be replied to or not as the Government chooses and then this motion will be debated upon and then you can put the whole thing to vote. We are not concerned with the merits or demerits of the Bill, because with some of them we may agree. Let us not confuse the matter by referring to the whole provisions of the Bill but let us keep this question of re-committal to be decided by the House after a full debate.”

RAJA MUTHIAH CHETTIYAR OF CHETTINAD :—“ Mr. Speaker, Sir, on several occasions in the past, it has been the practice to have a fairly good discussion on such motions and many participate in the motion for re-committal of a Bill to the same Select Committee. The suggestion contained in the third alternative of the hon. Gentleman has been followed in the past.”

[11th September 1950]

MR. SPEAKER:—" But this is the first occasion so far as I am concerned."

RAJA MUTHIAH CHETTIYAR OF CHETTINAD:—" If you give me time, Sir, I shall quote to you the proceedings of the Madras Legislative Assembly. For the twenty years I have been here, I have had ten occasions where such Bills had been under discussion for re-committal to the same Select Committee."

MR. SPEAKER:—" As I informed the House, I have no objection to adopt any procedure the House wants. But I have to point out that the suggestion made by the hon. Member (Mr. Bhashyam) will involve time as both on that occasion and in connexion with the general discussion of the Bill, the same observations might be made. Therefore, the better suggestion seems to be to have both the main motion and the amendment discussed in the House."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—" That will be difficult, Sir. When speaking on the amendment, I have to speak on the provisions of the Bill and I do not want to do it. I do not want the attention of the House to be diverted to issues irrelevant to the re-committal."

MR. SPEAKER:—" In that case, I will give the hon. Member time and then I shall ask the Hon. Leader of the House or the Minister in charge of the Bill to reply and then I will put it to vote. Then of course we shall take up the main motion."

RAJA MUTHIAH CHETTIYAR OF CHETTINAD:—" According to this, Mr. Speaker, the mover of the amendment and the Government have an opportunity to speak. You cannot deny us reasonable opportunity to speak upon it. Only hon. Mr. Bhashyam, of course, will have it and we must not be denied the opportunity to speak on it."

THE HON. SRI B. GOPALA REDDI:—" Our preference is certainly for the House of Commons convention according to which the mover and the Minister will have an opportunity to speak on the motion and the amendment is thus disposed of. But we have no objection for the second alternative."

MR. SPEAKER:—" The Leader of the House has no objection and the Leader of the Opposition wants that both the main motion and the amendment might be considered by the House. So, I suggest that the motion of hon. Mr. Bhashyam might be moved and seconded formally and then both the main motion and the amendment will be for the discussion of the House and I will take a vote on both of them."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—" I should like to have a little clarification, Sir. Supposing I move this motion for re-committal, shall I have the opportunity to speak about the provisions of the Bill later on because I am not quite prepared for it now, Sir?"

11th September 1950]

MR. SPEAKER:—" It means repetition. When he makes the motion, he may speak on the main motion also."

" As far as I am concerned, we have not had any occasions when the House discussed a motion for re-committal of a Bill to the same Select Committee though there might have been such occasions during the fifteen years the hon. Member Raja of Chettinad had been in this House. That is why I wanted to suggest the adoption of the procedure of the House of Commons. Since the other procedure is adopted the hon. Member will speak both upon the amendment as well as upon the main motion."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—" Mr. Speaker, there is no other go than to obey your directions. It does not suit me at all but I have to make the best of it. Sir, I move—

'That the Bill be recommitted to the same Joint Select Committee.'

If I make this motion for the recommitment of the Bill to the same Joint Select Committee, it is not from frivolity or for want of reason and it need not be taken as a motion for the purpose of delaying the passage of the Bill. It has been before the public for some years but there are circumstances which have occurred now which make it necessary that the Bill should be re-considered. I am not going into the provisions of the Bill nor do I want to go into past history of the legislation enacted for the first time by Raja of Panagal of blessed memory . . ."

RAJA MUTHIAH CHETTIYAR OF CHETTINAD:—" Mr. Speaker, Sir, I take objection to the words 'blessed memory'; it is unparliamentary, undignified and unworthy of a friend of the status . . ."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—" I thought there is nothing wrong and I thought I was really giving him a compliment . . ."

RAJA MUTHIAH CHETTIYAR OF CHETTINAD:—" 'Of revered memory' is usual but not so 'of blessed memory'."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—" If it pleases him, I will use the word 'of revered memory'."

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA:—" Mr. Speaker, Sir, I want your ruling whether the use of the word 'Raja of Panagal of blessed memory' is wrong; the Leader of the Opposition said that it was unparliamentary . . ."

MR. SPEAKER:—" He meant that he might be a little bit polite and suggested the use of the words 'of revered memory'. Let the hon. Member continue his speech."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—" To cut short the whole controversy, I withdraw and use the words suggested by him. I thought it was a good word and I had no idea that it was objectionable. I wanted to use the same terms in connection with Sir Sadasiva Ayyar and therefore, there need not be any mis-apprehension on the part of any person in this House that I do not give that reverence which is due to a person of such eminence as the Raja of Panagal of revered memory. I do not want to go into past history from 1925 to this date. The reform in the matter of management of the various temples and charitable institutions has been entrusted to the Board all these twenty-five years but still we are far away from perfection. When the experiment that was tried all these years, the management being in the hands of the Board and it did no good, I am very sceptical if things are going to be better because we are putting them into the hands of Commissioners and others with the Government on the top, which may not look into the matter at all.

“ But what I want to point out is, that in the framing of this Bill, there are certain facts which have not been borne in mind. Sir, the Constitution Act has been passed recognizing certain fundamental rights. Some of these provisions have been overlooked in this Bill. Sir, it is true I was a member of the Joint Select Committee. I do not want to reveal what has happened there. But I will say this, that in the discussions that took place there, not sufficient attention was paid to the constitutional aspect of the question, with reference to Articles 25 and 26 of the Indian Constitution Act. No doubt this point was raised there; there was some discussion about it; and I think the Hon. Law Member made it clear that he could go on with the Bill further, in spite of Articles 25 and 26 of the Indian Constitution Act. Sir, may I point out to him, here, that since his decision to go on with the Bill, in spite of Article 25 of the Indian Constitution Act, there has been some decision by the Supreme Court bearing on this point, though not directly, but indirectly, declaring what the words, ‘according to law’ and ‘process of law’ and ‘by virtue of law’ really connote. Therefore some new light has been thrown as to how to interpret these phrases in the Indian Constitution Act. In view of those circumstances, I would like the Hon. Law Minister, as also his legal advisers, to look into this matter again, and see, if necessary, whether this Bill offends the Constitution Act.

“ Then, Sir, it may be asked, ‘why should this Bill be referred back to the Select Committee; how is it in a better position to decide matters than this House, here and now?’ Sir, I admit it is a legitimate question. But, I submit, the House cannot as such take a decision in a full dressed debate. What will happen in the Joint Select Committee is quite different from what will happen here, in this House. In the Joint Select Committee, it may so happen, that it may call upon the Advocate-General to give advice. It is quite possible that, there, members of the committee would put questions to the Advocate-General across the table and get necessary advice from him, and then shape their opinion according to his advice. Therefore, I say, the Joint Select Committee would be in a better position to revise this Bill than this House. Then, I have said, the same Joint Select Committee should be referred to. For that, I have a reason also. Because they have gone through the provisions of this Bill once; so, they know the effect of the clauses; they know the implication of the provisions; and they know what complications would arise if certain provisions are passed without a change. And so, when the law officers explain the Constitutional position of the Bill, they will be in a better position to understand and appreciate whether this Bill falls within the Constitution Act or not. So, Sir, this is a matter on which more attention should be bestowed by the law officers of Government.

“ Then, Sir, there are two other matters which have been overlooked, in the previous discussion, in this House as well as in the Joint Select Committee. It is the question, that this Bill does not aim at all religious institutions or applies merely to Hindu temples and mutts. If it is so, does not the Bill offend Articles 14 and 15 of the Constitution Act? Article 14 says that the State shall not deny to any person equality before the law or the equal protection of the laws within the territory of India. Article 15 (1) says that the State shall not discriminate against any citizen on grounds only of religion, etc. Now, Sir, I ask, why should the temples of Hindus alone be dealt with, while other religious institutions are not touched at all? Why should Hindu trustees be subjected to so many restrictions and their conduct regulated, while other trustees should go scotfree? It cannot be said that there is now such a lot of mismanagement only in Hindu temples and not in other religious institutions as to necessitate reform. So, I submit, this is really discriminatory legislation. For, when the Government single out Hindu temples and mutts for enactment, what they do is sort of discriminatory legislation. Sir, with regard to Articles 14 and 15 of the Indian Constitution Act, some light has been thrown on them, by the recent decision of the Bombay High Court. It has said, that, where a legislation excludes a certain section of people only, it is discriminatory legislation. If that is so, this Bill, then, discriminates against Hindus. And in so far as it does not relate to other trustees, that is, trustees of other religious institutions, this Bill is discriminatory of the worst kind possible, against Hindus. Therefore, this is also a question which has to be examined by the law officers, and for that reason also I suggest the Bill be recommitted to the same Joint Select Committee.

“ Then, Sir, there is a third point which I would like to bring to the notice of the House, and that is with reference to Article 31 (1) of the Constitution. It provides that no one shall be deprived of his property save by authority of law. The provisions contained in this Bill would be hit by this Article of the Constitution. Therefore, this Bill raises a number of vital issues which have to be examined further with great care.

“ It is true that there may be cases where the trustees of the mutt has no other property by himself. Legally he is the owner of the trust property; he is a hereditary trustee. It is proposed to send him out and some other person is proposed to be set up in his place as trustee. Now, I wish to ask what is the harm in continuing the hereditary trustee in office? The Joint Select Committee did not have much time to devote themselves to the case of mutts. I know many of the members of Joint Select Committee may not have gone into the temples at any time. They may not know the various ceremonies that are performed there. They may not know the various rituals performed there. Besides, I know a great number of them have never stepped into the mutts at all. I wish they had stepped into some of them just to see how they are being managed. So, when the question of mutts being taken up, came up for consideration before the Joint Select Committee, I brought home to the members this fact, but the Chairman was unwilling to defer the consideration of the case of mutts; and so, I had to keep quiet. I know there are a large number of mutts which are managed well. I know the majority of mutts are managed well. I know there are good and bad mutts; I know there are mutts which are managed well; I know there are mutts which are not properly managed. I submit if some members of the Joint Select Committee had been allowed an opportunity to go into some of these mutts, surely, they would have changed their opinion about them. That opportunity had been denied to them. Moreover my submission is that this question as regards mutts has not been before the public, sufficiently long, in the form in which it is to-day. The question of mutts was there in a restricted form all along, but not in the form in which it is now to-day. The whole question including the various drastic provisions of the Bill was never before the public long, except perhaps from the end of February 1950. Representative of mutts were not invited to give them an opportunity to have their say. So, I submit there is a good case for the recommitment of the Bill to the Joint Select Committee. I therefore say there must be a further consideration of the Bill in respect of its various provisions, and to see whether they offend Articles 14, 15, 25, 26 and 31 of the Constitution. (At this stage the Deputy Speaker occupied the Chair.)

[Sri K. Bhashyam] [11th September 1950]

“ Now, Madam, so far as the provisions of this Bill are concerned, for, Madam, the Speaker has said that I can speak now on the merits of the Bill also, my main objection to this Bill is that the Government have taken upon itself more than what it can manage. They try their best to improve matters. The present Board has been there for the last 25 years; and all along the Board has been in control of these Hindu temples. Have they discharged their functions satisfactorily? Is it contended that the temples are managed properly now? From my experience I can only say, there is still lack of control over them. True, the executive officer has his office; there are the leather-bound account books neatly bundled; there is the liveried peon with the dawali (laughter) to receive the officer. Important visitors are taken round the temple by the peon and the executive officer, and no pains are spared to give them all temple honours. (Laughter.) The same treatment is given to the inspecting officers. But who looks into the accounts? No doubt articles are purchased in the name of temples, there is an entry of purchase of articles in the accounts book and there are vouchers for purchases. But does anybody take the pains to see that the articles purchased enter the temple? (Laughter.) They disappear as soon as they are purchased without coming into the temple! It is to these officers the management of temples is to be left. I ask, why should they be preferred to hereditary trustees? Why not give more powers to hereditary trustees and ask them to manage these institutions? They would look after them much better than these present-day trustees. Because they have the sense of prestige, dignity and good name of their grandfather or probably great-grandfather who endowed these trusts to maintain. True, here and there, they may show some favour to their son-in-law or uncle-in-law (laughter), when it comes to a matter of money. But that does not matter; for, all told, it may not exceed one hundred rupees. When it comes to a matter of maintaining the prestige of the family, bound up with the temple, they are ready to spend fifty or a hundred or even two hundred rupees from their own pocket. If there is no money in temple for Brahmotsavam festival they would not stint to spend the necessary money from their pocket. I think it is the greatest mistake that Government have done in displacing hereditary trustees. The same is the case with mutts. This Bill has not been prepared after consulting the heads of these mutts. Even the nomenclature of ‘madathipathi’ has been omitted in this Bill. He is called only a trustee. He occupies in society a position much superior to that of an ordinary temple trustee. He is looked upon with great reverence by people. He is looked upon as a spiritual Guru by his disciples. I submit this is not the way of dealing with madathipathis, as is done in this Bill. It may be in some cases, there has been mismanagement. It does not matter, if it is so. That is no reason to remove him without consulting the whole community. The proper remedy lies in rectifying the defect, and not abolishing the whole class of madathipathis. It is from madathipathis that people expect spiritual benefit. It is not from ordinary trustees they expect spiritual benefit. Therefore, so far as mutts are concerned, I respectfully submit, that the provisions of the Bill should be revised on the lines of the amendment I have given notice of. I have taken care to give a chapter to it. They are provisions which have been drafted not by me but by Mr. Surya Rao, assisted by some others. They have been taken from an earlier Bill prepared for controlling mutts and providing for the purpose of their better inspection, better budgeting and better maintenance of accounts. I submit the proposed provision in the Bill dismissing madathipathis from their post and putting the mutts in charge of others and giving them wide powers in respect of the maintenance of mutts is bad. I have devoted a long chapter for the purpose of dealing with mutts generously. In this I have followed the lines of the Bill relating to wakfs sponsored by Janab Abdul Latif Farookhi. He has put the community practically in charge of wakfs and given scope for very little Government interference. Muslims are really clever and they do not want even the limited interference by Government. They say that the Government ought not to put their profane hands, if I may say so without causing any offence, on their religious institutions. When that feeling of the Muhammadan community was respected, I do not see any reason why a similar feeling of the Hindu community should not be respected. There is heavy discrimination which is against the Constitution.

"So far as maths are concerned, the Venkataramana Rao Committee are for some Government control. But they said that they could not agree to the Government control over everything. They wanted Government control only over three matters--inspection, account and budget. There was a recommendation by them that the manager of a math must be appointed by the madathipathi of that math and that the Government should not thrust a manager of their own choice. I respectfully submit that the provisions relating to maths are very drastic and go against the sentiment of the community affected by this Bill.

"The Hon. Minister, the Mover of the Bill, said that the Bill had been before the public, that everybody had accepted it and that the great Non-Brahman community had accepted it."

THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN :—"I did not say so. The hon. Member cannot draw upon my speech as he likes."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—"That is the way I understand it. That is my inference."

DEPUTY SPEAKER :—"The hon. Member must accept his explanation of what he meant."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—"I accept the explanation with the reservation I have made.

"He said that a vast majority of Hindus had accepted the Bill. The evidence of the witnesses who appeared before the Joint Select Committee, except one or two, was just the other way about. We in the Select Committee went against the evidence for the purpose of supporting the Bill in the Joint Select Committee. It is not correct to say that a vast majority of the witnesses were in favour. Most of the witnesses who took the trouble of giving evidence were against the Bill or at any rate very many provisions of it. It may be that they have not come in large numbers leading a deputation or delegation, shouting slogans and making a demonstration in front of the Secretariat buildings. That is not the basis on which the Government should judge the strength of public feeling.

"Under the Constitution, a religious denomination is entitled to manage the affairs of a religious institution of that denomination and the management cannot be left in the hands of the Government. No doubt committees composed of persons belonging to the same denomination as the religious institutions are proposed. But the members of those committees will be appointed by the Government or their hierarchy of officers—the Commissioner, Deputy Commissioner and a host of Assistant Commissioners.

There is no doubt that the members of these committees will be appointed by the Government. Who are the officers? They are Government servants belonging to the provincial service. They depend upon the Government for salary, allowances and promotion. They are not appointed by madathipathis and they do not depend upon madathipathis. The Government say that they are taking over only the general superintendence. But from the provisions of the Bill it is clear that they are taking over the entire control.

"The taking over of the administration of property is something more than taking over mere general superintendence. It is practically taking over the whole management. I submit the taking over of the administration of property is against the Constitution. The people of a religious denomination have the right to manage the affairs of a religious institution belonging to the same denomination according to law. I do not propose to deal with all the points raised on the floor of the House. I have given notice of a number of amendments and I shall speak on the points when the respective clauses are taken up. I say that the provisions of the Bill are really obnoxious and against the Constitution and the sentiment of the community affected.

"After the publication of the Bill with the provision for Temple Committees and all that, a respectable body of persons known as Saiva Siddhanta Nal Padippu Kazhagam met at a public meeting in Tirunelveli and passed a number of resolutions opposing the Bill. The members of such bodies are the persons who are really interested in the proper administration of temples and maths and the carrying on of worship, and not persons who do not go to the temples, who do not believe in God, and who are not disciples of any math. The body I referred to is distinctly against several provisions of the Bill. If the Hon. Minister has received a copy of the resolutions, he may look into them. After the publication of the Bill only, people are beginning to realize how it will affect daily worship and so on. If the Hon. Minister thinks it wise and necessary, some more time may be given.

"There is one more point and with this I will close. This question of improvement of religious endowments has been before the Government for a very long time. It may be that people do want some sort of improvement but certainly not to the extent of putting the whole management into the hands of the Government. By taking away the entire management, the Government are taking away the local initiative and local help that are necessary for running the institutions. The Government are taking away the capital of the institutions. Many charitable institutions have been established by Hindus, mostly Non-Brahmans. The Government are going to appoint an officer to administer each one of them. Will that be in consonance with the spirit of the founders of the various charities? I think the result of the Government appointing an officer who may not be connected with the founder's family and who may not be of the same religious persuasion as that to which the charity belongs will be that nobody will found a charity or give any money for charitable purposes hereafter. I think the Bill requires reconsideration on a considerable scale. Therefore, I request the House to accept my proposition."

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA :—" Madam, Deputy Speaker, I second the amendment. For the weighty reasons put forward by our learned Friend, hon. Sri Bhashyam, this Bill may wait for a few days more until a Select Committee will have another chance of discussing the new provisions that have been inserted and seeing how far it is stepping on the toes of the citizens of this country whose elementary right it is to follow a particular mode and manner of worship. It is impossible for us at this stage to distinguish between worship and the manner of worship. It may be that those with a modern bent of mind may say that God is not in the temple only, God is everywhere, and ask: 'Why then should we worry about temples?' To ninety per cent of the people of this country, the manner of worship is more important than the matter. Perhaps several people do not know what worship is and they may not care to go into the intricacies of Vedanta. But that does not mean that other people should not pursue the time-honoured traditional system that has been vouchsafed to them by the unwritten law of this country. I think that it is necessary, in the interests of the Fundamental Rights vouchsafed to us by our Constitution, that we should wait a bit before we rush through an important Bill like this which has far-reaching effects upon posterity.

"Coming to the Bill proper, I should like to impress upon this House that in matters religious, it is no good of the Government adopting a money point of view. The financial wizards of this State or other States should not see how much more money they can get from the temples. I believe the various clauses of the Bill have failed to take note of those essential aspects from which the people would like the Government to view them, that religious institutions are not expected to be mercantile and that to them the people resort to take shelter from persecution and to derive solace from the daily trouble and turmoil that affect human beings. There is nothing else which can offer that amount of solace which is absolutely necessary for every human being at some stage of life. If one rushes through the various provisions of the Bill, Madam, he finds that they seem to proceed on one assumption. They take it for granted that the temples and maths are at present mismanaged. No doubt there are several cases of gross mismanagement. They also take it for granted that the best way of putting an end to this mismanagement is by the Government taking over of the administration. If the Government put forward a very laudable claim to too much efficiency in management and to their fool-proofness of mismanagement, I demur and tell them that the House as it is to-day is not in perfect order. As hon. Sri Bhashyam put it very correctly, we cannot take more than what we can chew. Are the Government managing efficiently what they have already undertaken? It is common knowledge—I am not making a tirade against any particular department—that many departments of Government are not functioning as ably as they ought to. I am not going to say that all things all right and add a feather to my cap. If any Member of the Government is under the impression that things are all right, he is sadly mistaken. I submit that many departments of Government are not functioning so ably and cautiously as they ought to. Much of the revenue to which they are entitled is being thrown to the winds. I went to a high official recently and told him 'Here is a case where a sum of thirty thousand rupees has not been shown on the account side, though it is given in the details. Why don't you look into it and collect what is due to the Government?'. The ledger has been shown to the Income-Tax Department and the Sales Tax Department several times. The officer nonchalantly asked me 'Why don't you give a complaint about that?'. Having lost a considerable sum, the Government expect another gentleman to make a complaint about it. I do not think that a Government which do not take care of their revenue can be called an efficient Government.

"But there are similar cases like that wherein the Government are losing huge sums, while they are going in after pies and levying tax on even chillies and the like. If they had made their administration of the Sales Tax Act more fool-proof and more efficient, they would have got more revenues. That is the sort of go-easy policy which they are following in that department, and if it is so in that department, we cannot expect that the Government officials would be so very keen and so very careful about the incomes of various temples scattered throughout the State, after this Bill is enacted into law. Are the Government going to allow the various trustees to squander the temple funds as they please? My own feeling is that the ordinary Penal Code must be able to deal with cases of mal-administration and misappropriations as effectively as this Act. But, the Government have taken upon themselves the entire responsibility of carrying out all the functions of the temples themselves, and of closely supervising the management and also scrutinizing the expenditure, etc., and I am afraid they are only inviting further trouble because they are taking upon themselves more responsibilities than they could possibly shoulder. It has been tried, not once, nor twice but a number of times and at all times they were not able to discharge their duties properly and they have failed on all previous occasions. As my hon. Friend Mr. Bhashyam has put it, it is more than they could chew. The Government officials who will be put in charge of these temples and other religious institutions will have no interest in the conduct of the religious rites and rituals in the temples and I am afraid that the incomes and revenues of the temples would go down. As some friends put it, this taking over of the administration of these religious endowments, is like asking somebody to decide a matter in which neither of the parties are interested. If I am asked to choose the best agency which would be able to look after the administration of the temples and other religious endowments. I would unhesitatingly say that a great Guru like the Sankaracharya whose Peetam is not controlled by the Government, should be placed at the helm of the administrative machinery, because it is he who commands the confidence, the respect and the reverence of the millions of the devotees and religious-minded people. If these devotees and these people donate or endow so much to these temples and religious institutions, it is because of the greatness of the Matadhipathis and Gurus. I would even suggest that the Government might invite great people like the Ramana Maharishi when he was alive or Sri Aravinda Gosh to advise them on this matter. If they cannot come, the Government might go to them, sit at their feet and discuss with them as to how best they could manage these institutions. That is the proper way and the right way to proceed in regard to this matter. There are enough religious men in this State who would be able to give a proper lead in this matter. My hon. Friend the Minister for Law Mr. Madhava Menon and the Hon. Minister for the Hindu Religious Endowments might think that they pass this Bill into law after discussing it in this House and by making their intellectual contribution to this debate. But that will not do. This measure must have the support of people who are religious and who are devotees and the opinions of great men like Sri Aravinda Gosh should be canvassed in support and they should be consulted and their advice sought to make this measure a success. I would therefore suggest that the Government would do well to discuss the Bill with such eminently religious people as to what is the ideal form of controlling these institutions, and act according to their advice and suggestion.

“Madam, my hon. Friend Mr. Bhashyam has no doubt been very keen in safeguarding the known and unknown rights of the hereditary trustees. There are several hereditary trustees who I know, are dishonest and who are blackguards. They simply hanker after these places in order to feather their nest. They think that the religious endowment is their property. They think that they must have a right to civic receptions in the villages under their control. In fact, they take it for granted that the property of the Trust is their own and enjoy them at the expense of the institution for which it is endowed. In England and other western countries, though the conception of what is called the ‘Divine right of Kings’ still exists, even the son of a King cannot claim to succeed the throne as a matter of right and that is why, that divine right of kings has of late been thrown to the winds. That being the case even in advanced countries like England, why should we still cling to the wonderful system of hereditary trusteeship and want that the son of a trustee should succeed to the trust. I think, Madam, it is a sheer waste to perpetuate the system of hereditary trusteeship and to preserve it for posterity.

“Then, Madam, many of these temples derive a lot of money from pilgrims and devotees by way of padakanikas, and in particular the Tirupati Devasthanam gets the most of its incomes from such sources. One of our Assembly Members is an Acharya Purusha of that great temple and he comes of a family of Acharya Purushas of the temple for more than a century and he knows what is the income that the temple gets from devotees and pilgrims and how it is spent and how the affairs of the temple are administered by the devasthanam. No doubt, Madam, this is a temple which draws thousands of pilgrims and devotees from all over India. Even people from Benares and other places in North India come to this temple and give their offerings, in money, in jewels and in several other ways. Are the Government going to take over the control of these institutions and utilize their incomes in the manner laid down in this Bill without consulting the authorities of the devasthanam and the devotees and worshippers? I do not know whether we are justified in not consulting the devasthanams, the worshippers and the donors who are thousands in number and make our own proposals and enforce our own will and spend the temple funds according as we please. What I wish to submit, Madam, in all earnestness is that these are religious matters and the temple funds should be spent essentially for religious purposes because it is with that object that devotees and donors have given their money. I would therefore suggest that priority should be given to the encouragement of religion and religious instruction, so far as the utilization of the surplus temples are concerned. The Government have their own notions and their own ideas about religion and religious education, and they have not as much regard for it as people would like them to have, and that is why they have stopped religious instruction in all schools and colleges as a matter of Government policy and so we cannot expect them to do much in this direction, even out of the funds of these religious endowments, although the present redoubtable Minister for Education is still clinging to Sanskrit being taught as an optional language in the schools because his zeal for Sanskrit is unparalleled. But several people do not think of Sanskrit now-a-days and nobody comes forward to encourage Sanskrit education and Sanskrit scholars who want to expound the rites, the rituals and the religious teachings enshrined in the various Sanskrit literature, Vedas and Upanishads. Why should not the Government make these temples and religious institutions the seats of Sanskrit culture and language which opens the doors to our great scriptures and teachings of our ancient seers and sages? Why should not some of our great Sanskrit Pandits be asked to translate these scriptures and religious works in the mother-tongue for the benefit of the common people who do not know anything about them? I therefore submit, Madam, that religious instruction not only from the academic point of view, but also from the point of view of our rites and rituals should be encouraged, and temple funds, which are essentially intended for the purpose should be utilized. We know that in most of these temples, poojas and worship according to our strict sastras and rituals are not performed and most of the people in charge of temples and worship do not know anything about them at all. Therefore the encouragement of Sanskrit both for academical purposes and also for studying the sastras and rituals should be the primary concern of these temples and this should be the first charge on the surplus temple funds. It is only then the Government might think of utilizing the funds for the various other purposes mentioned in the

Bill, as for instance, the establishment of hospitals and encouragement of architecture. Perhaps somebody might suggest the inclusion of poultry-keeping or horse-breeding for the enlightenment of race-goers and the like, but, I submit, Madam, that the temple funds should not be diverted for such purposes. I do not say that those objects provided for in this Bill are in any way an illegal diversion of temple funds, but it is better that they are primarily spent for religious purposes. Madam, it might so happen that a person from Mangalore might be posted as a Commissioner of the Tirumalai-Tirupati Devasthanam and he might come there with his hat and boots and think that it is all a waste to spend temple funds for offerings to God and for religious purposes and he might squander them for his own purposes. Then how could these pilgrims and devotees who come to the temple from distant places be willing to give their offerings and moneys to the temple? Perhaps a Commissioner of a temple might think that the putting up of a cement road from Nellore to Madras would be better and suggest that temple funds could be used for such purposes. I submit, Madam, that although the objects mentioned in clause 64 are good in themselves, the object with which the donors and pilgrims have given their moneys should be kept in mind and the surplus should be utilized for those purposes alone. The medical and educational and other needs are no doubt important and good in themselves, but they should take only the next order of precedence, on the temple funds.

"Madam, let me just say one word about art and architecture which has been mentioned in the Bill. Temples are no doubt the greatest works of art and architecture. If you go to Muthra and see the temple there, you will be simply astonished at the finest pieces of art and the greatest architectural skill with which that temple had been built, although it is now more than a century old. In South India too, there are many such temples whose art and architecture would excite the admiration of the lovers of art. They speak of the greatness of our ancient civilization and the encouragement that people gave to men of art who built these great temples. I was told that a big temple in South India still retains a family of temple builders from generations past, because it is the members of that family who had built such beautiful temples in the South. I want that such things should continue and such people to be encouraged out of these temple funds.

"Madam, I have got only one word more to say and I shall finish my speech. To-day the sort of officials we are going to appoint under this measure are not persons who will improve the conditions in the temples or enhance their sanctity and prestige, nor will they enhance the prestige of the Government by their administration of the affairs of these temples. Madam, please excuse me for my blunt statement. They are bound to prick the hornets nest. It is not a welcome thing. If a private temple-trustee misbehaves with temple funds, he could be punished and dismissed. But if a Government servant so misbehaves or misappropriates any of the temple property, a great deal of odium will be directed by the public on the Government administration and that would have very bad repercussions in the country." I would therefore suggest that before the Government appoint their officials for these temples, they should choose only such men who are religious-minded and who are pious and god-loving and who are interested in the improvement of the affairs of the temple and who have enough experience of men and things and who would not wound the religious susceptibilities of the people in the country and of the pilgrims and devotees in particular. With these words, Madam, I commend the Bill, but at the same time, I support the amendment of my hon. Friend Mr. Bhashyam that it may be recommitted to the same Joint Select Committee for a fuller and a more thorough study of the various points raised by him."

The House rose to meet again at 2-30 p.m.

(After lunch—2-30 p.m.)

SRI P. KANDASWAMI PILLAI :—"Madam Deputy Speaker, I am here to oppose the amendment of hon. Mr. Bhashyam, and I wish that this Bill passes through this Assembly and becomes law as early as possible. My hon. Friend Mr. Bhashyam, advanced some arguments in support of his contention. He took shelter under the provisions of Constitution of India. He said that this Bill was opposed to several articles in the Constitution. Nowadays, Madam, it has become a fashion with everybody to take shelter under the provisions of the Constitution for anything and everything done in this part of the country. Madam, the Constitution is intended for the people, and people are not intended for the Constitution. ('Hear, hear'.) That attitude must govern our policy when we take into account the provisions of the Constitution. My hon. Friend Mr. Bhashyam was in the Joint Select Committee. He might have put forth all his arguments there to convince the other Members. I am sure he could not convince them, and that in spite of his opinion, the Bill has emerged from the Joint Select Committee in the manner and form in which it is now presented before us. No further argument is required after hearing the very thoughtful and learned speech of the Hon. the Minister. He has explained categorically all the defects of the Act which was brought into existence by the efforts of the late Raja of Panagal. Of course, at that time every one of us, who was doing Congress work, very strongly opposed that Act. Because we thought that interference by the State when the country was under foreign yoke, was not in the interest of the country. It was thought wrong to entrust our religious institutions in the hands of the Government. Afterwards when our leaders like Sri C. Rajagopalachariar and our Minister in charge of this Bill came to power, they adopted the Act, as it was, thinking that it would help to mend matters in our religious institutions. Time and again, Madam, on the floor of this House, we have pointed out the wrongs which are being done by the heads of mutts and trustees of temples. I can quote a number of instances in this regard. People, who were entrusted with public properties, have simply squandered them. Several acres of land were disposed of in favour of their friends and accountants to enable them to construct buildings on them. I am told that several temple poojaris have misappropriated the temple funds, and have also made use of the temple jewels to their own advantage. In ancient days, our great Rishis inculcated the idea of religion in the minds of Indians only to mould their character. Religion is not far away from the character of man. His mind and body should be well trained for the peaceful life of the country. That is the object with which our religion is founded. Now, religion and religious institutions became a simple formal affair. They just satisfy the letter but not the spirit of it. Whoever interferes with the work of the trustee when he does a wrong, is at once found fault with. The trustees rush to the Court. They seek shelter under the law. Under the provisions of the old Act, the Government cannot effectively interfere. That is the reason given by the Hon. the Minister for the present Bill. The present management of temples is not at all satisfactory. There is no doubt about it. Regarding the argument of my hon. Friend Mr. Bhashyam, we are not bothered. It is entirely left to the lawyers. He spoke much about the hereditary trustees. As has been stated by the supporter of the amendment, hon. Mr. Raghavayya, hereditary trustees think that temples are their own properties, and that they can utilize the temple funds as they like, not for the protection or the improvement of the trust property, but for their own purposes. When anybody adopts this attitude, surely the State must interfere. Of course, as the hon. Mover of the amendment stated, the trustees are wealthy and influential people. They can do things by spending their own money. That is very rare indeed. Rarely do people spend their own money for charity. This Bill says that only when a trustee does wrong, the Commissioner will step in, and the law will be set in motion, and not when trustees are discharging their duties properly to the satisfaction of the authorities. If the monetary side of the temple affairs is properly conducted the State will not step in. The Government are there only to give all support to all right-minded people and to all who do things in the right manner. It was stated in this House that most of the trustees were Non-Brahmans. I ask what is the wrong if they are Non-Brahmans. Brahman or Non-Brahman is not the criterion. The criterion is 'whether he does the right thing or the wrong thing, whether he does it in the interest of the people or whether he does it in the interests of the country.' The trustee may be a Jain, he may be a Brahman, or he may be a Non-Brahman. Even Jain temples are included in the Bill. When the trustee commits mistakes, the Government will step in.

"Madam, the properties that have been endowed to the maths have been ear-marked for a particular purpose. Mr. Raghavayya said that they were intended not for breeding leghorns. I do not know how he selected leghorns. Perhaps he has got some mania about them. Anyway that is not the object of the contributions. The object of the Bill is to prevent anyone from doing anything against the intention and spirit of the institutions.

"It is appropriately stated that there will be a Commissioner, an Assistant Commissioner and other authorities who will be appointed by the Government. That means the Government will take up the whole thing. Then only well-trained people can be put in and Matadhipathis can be prevented from spending money as they like.

11th September 1950] [Sri P. Kandaswami Pillai]

"Regarding 'padhakanika', it is said that it may be used as the Matadhipathis like, but they are bound to maintain accounts, with regard to this. All the devotees and all the people who have got faith in God come and pour the money thinking that it will be utilized for the betterment of the people and moulding of the minds and character of the people for the use of the society. Therefore, although the money is received as 'padhakanika', when it is used for very unreasonable and wrong purposes, it must be prevented. For this purpose, it is provided that they are bound to render accounts in this respect. If the Government are satisfied through the accounts that the money is being utilized in the right way, then there will be no interference. But if the money is used to spoil society and to purchase liquor, etc., surely the State must step in. Therefore, considering every aspect of this Bill, this legislation is very essential.

"The religious institutions entertain a fear about their inam rights. This is not a Communist State to forfeit anybody's property as it likes. This is a secular State where every one must be interested in the welfare of the society. So, there need be no fear that the daily rituals of the temples will be spoilt. There is a general provision in this Bill that all the employees under this Bill must be Hindus. In this connexion, I wish to point out that there are Hindus who have no faith at all in the temples and engender hatred towards these institutions but call themselves Hindus for the sake of inheritance. There are black-shirts also who call themselves 'Hindus'. Such people should not be employed under any circumstances. We can make any good enactment but the success of it depends upon the person who administers it. The best of laws will prove bad in the hands of a useless man. Therefore, in the selection of officials to administer this Bill, the Government must be very careful to select the right-minded man who has a religious inclination.

"Madam, regarding the performance of rituals, I want to say one thing. There are Siva's temples. Suppose a Vadagalai Ayyangar is put in charge of such a temple, I do not think he will discharge his duties efficiently because his ideas and inclinations will be quite different. Similar is the position of a Saivite in a Vaishnavite temple. All these things should be considered before the Bill is passed into law.

"Again now-a-days religious institutions have become merely places of interest to be visited. Our people are forgetting the real object of religion. Black-shirts are preaching day and night against all religious activities. They think religion is no more useful to them. This should not be the view of nasthikas. Of course, I do not want to oppose their views. But religion is intended for the betterment of the people. I have already said that the object of religion is to mould the character of society. A religious man will not utter falsehood, will not rob others' property and will not hurt or wound anybody's feelings. Mahatma Gandhi was a pure religious man. Some people decried him because he preached the removal of untouchability. When he preached the entry of Harijans into temples, these people thought he was not a religious-minded man.

[Sri P. Kandaswami Pillai] [11th September 1950]

They said that he had killed our religion, but now they are convinced that he was a first-rate religious man. He did everything in the interests of our people. Therefore, I suggest that when people are selected for these posts, they must be religious-minded people and men of character.

"Preventing the enactment of a legislation is not good. I am told that some of the matathipathis are making arrangements to go to Delhi to file a suit in the Supreme Court and get some injunction against this Government. I assure them these are all vain attempts against a very big wave that is flowing. The people of the State feel that such a Bill must be passed into law as early as possible. Therefore, if any rich man or matathipathi or self-interested person wants to take any steps against this enactment, I am sure he cannot succeed in his attempt. All his money will be wasted in that direction. They must set right matters in religious institutions where there are wrongs. They must try to mend their ways. All the matathipathis must become real matathipathis to inculcate the religious spirit in the minds of the people. The matathipathi should set an example to others by his character. Example is better than precept. It is easier to preach than to practise. There is a saying of Valluvar 'சொல்லுதல் யாதிக்குமெனிய அரியவாடு சொல்லிய வண்ணாடு செயல்'.

So, when a man expects others to do a certain thing, he must set an example himself. Our religious heads must rise to the occasion. They must become real Gurus of our people. They must mould the character of the people. Then the national character will be raised. Blackmarketing will be put down."

DEPUTY SPEAKER:—"The hon. Member may confine himself to the provisions of the Bill."

SRI P. KANDASWAMI PILLAI:—"Madam, the object of the Bill is to prevent mismanagement of our religious institutions. The Government are not anxious to have control over them for their own purposes. These trustees who are in charge of these endowments are not doing their duties properly. Hence the necessity for the Bill. It has been brought before this House and I wish it is passed as early as possible. With these words, I oppose the amendment of Mr. Bhashyam and I support this Bill entirely."

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI:—"Madam, Deputy Speaker, I rise to support the amendment of my learned Friend Mr. Bhashyam. After having given my enthusiastic attention to the long written speech of the Hon. Minister, I find that there has been no convincing argument as to how the Government have been able to get over the legal difficulties experienced by my hon. Friend Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar when the Bill was originally introduced in this House. The difficulties have been pointed out to them. The Advocate-General was brought into this House. But he kept his mouth shut. Some opinion was expressed in writing. It was circulated to the Members. In my honest opinion, I am not able to make out what definite view he has committed himself to in that legal document that was placed in our hands. I am only reminded of the story where when there was a trouble as to whether a horse belonged to a Mussalman or to a Brahmin, the witness said the front side looks like the horse of the Mussalman and the back side to that of the Ayyar. (Mr. Raza Khan: 'Why?') (Laughter.) It is in that way that we are quibbling over the provisions of the Constitution. I see a definite intention on the part of this Government to overlook the provisions of the Constitution, leaving the matter to be decided as and when it comes by the Judges of the High Court, as if we here are not legislators and are not to discuss the pros and cons of the provisions. I am not able to understand this policy of the Government. Definite propositions have been laid, definite objections have been taken by hon. Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar to different points and definite notice of this Government has been drawn to the various provisions of the Constitution. I thought the Select Committee or the Hon. Minister, after having had the benefit of the evidence in the Select Committee, would be able to give us a clarification. A week back I saw in the papers that the Hon. Minister was in correspondence with the Central Government. I thought he was discussing the legal consequences with the Central Government. But suddenly another report appeared that this Bill was to be introduced into this House. That secret he has not let in. I do not know why he corresponded with the Central Government, what reply they gave and whether the provisions of this Bill transcend the provisions of the Constitution or not.

"Under these circumstances, I ask whether it is not necessary that this Bill should be recommitted to the Select Committee to go into the constitutional merits of this question. It may be as my hon. Friend Mr. Bhashyam expressed that the Select Committee itself may not be able to know the exact position, I mean the legal position in the matter. But, just as the Select Committee has been able to get evidence as to the dittams and various other rituals that are being observed in these mutts and temples, they could easily have obtained the legal opinion. For instance, they could have called the Advocate-General and even cross-examined him and found out whether the provisions of the Constitution have been infringed or not. I feel that the matter could have easily been referred to the Advocate-General of India also whose opinion might also have been of great assistance and use to this House in this problem. Last time, when this Bill was sought to be introduced, we were afraid that the Bill would become law in two or three months or even within that period. Now much water has flown under the bridge. It was then thought that the Bill could not wait even for a few months till the Constitution Act was passed. Anyway, it has not been brought before this House. Now the Constitution has been passed, and the Bill has been brought forward. But I must say that we are in the same position. Here again, I wish to say that it is much better for us to thrash out the constitutional matter beforehand prior to getting into dangerous grounds which may after all be not in our jurisdiction. It is very clear in the Constitution. Though I have not much to do with law, I can easily say that the secular Government cannot do anything which affects the Hindu temples as such. Does this Government feel that all the other religious institutions except the Hindu ones are well-managed, o

has this Government no courage to take over the other institutions as well so that there may be a common legislation for the whole State instead of the present one affecting the members of a particular religion only. Even in the case of Jains, it is said that if the Government so feels they can make this enactment applicable to Jains institutions also. Do the Government believe that every other temple and institution than the Hindu temples and institutions are all right? Have the Government courage to bring forward legislation to cover all institutions belonging to all religions? I only wish to point out the hurry with which we have been going and the hurry with which are going to pass this legislation. The Hon. Minister said that the whole matter was discussed in the Select Committee. No doubt, they received witnesses, examined them, got the reports of the matathipathis and others interested in the matter. But, how far it has served our purpose is the question. We will have to see how far it has gone to meet the requirements. In this enactment, I am not able to see any change which is very useful. The only change that I find is the one relating to the maths and matathipathis. In my opinion, the whole thing has been a fundamental repetition of the Hindu Religious Endowments Act with greater powers by which everything is sought to be vested in the Government. They probably think that for all the ills, the only remedy is to entrust everything with the Government and they will look after all the affairs. To a limited extent they have taken over the management of all religious institutions by the Religious Endowments Act sponsored by the regime of Mr. Panagal. I would like to ask how far these executive officers whom the Government have appointed been able to make the necessary improvements in the temples taken over by the Government. Even to-day, persons who have no faith in Hindu religion and no interest in the institutions are being appointed as executive officers. I can quote one instance. It was suggested that matathipathis have misappropriated the math funds and all that. I can without fear of contradiction say that in many cases, the executive officers whom the Government appoint and many other officers of the Endowments Department have absolutely no faith whatsoever in the Hindu religion. They ask, why should so much of food be offered to God, why should the temples be electrified and so on. They go inside the temple and take their bath in the very well, the water of which is intended for the deity of the temple. Is this the way in which you enlarge the scope of the Hindu religion? Is this the way in which you seek to purify the many impurities that you say are noticed in the Hindu religion? Is this the way in which your executive officers should behave? The Government appoint these executive officers to take control of these institutions from the private bodies. Here, I would like to observe that the mere taking over of these institutions by the Government and entrusting the work to such executive officers and others who have no faith in the religion would never solve the problem that you want to solve. For instance, I may be permitted to mention the case of food. This problem has been taken over by the Government and they have introduced rationing everywhere in the State. What is the result? We are now hearing complaints and cries from every nook and corner that the rationing system has not been working properly and there are many people who are left without anything to eat. So it cannot be presumed that simply because the Government take over certain things under their control everything would be managed better. Hon. Dr. Rajan said that many people are not forthcoming to take up this kind of management of temples. I would like to ask him whether he had gone into the question more thoroughly. As a matter of fact, the non-official trustees are not given discretion in the management of the affairs of temples and other institutions. You never give them power and always interfere with their normal working and never allow them to use their discretion. If this state of affairs is to continue, I am afraid it would not be possible for you to get any self-respecting gentlemen to take up the post of honorary trustee, especially when you want to restrict his powers and duties. If you give him more powers, more scope and allow him to use his discretion, then certainly there will come respectable gentlemen to take up this post. Already party politics is playing its role in the matter of appointments in this department. Only such persons who are likely to be amenable to the party is appointed to the various posts and others are tabooed. If you adopt this method, then you cannot find or hope to find any charitably-disposed and religious-minded gentlemen to take up posts in the department. When you are not able to find the right type of men for taking up the various posts from among the public, how do you expect to get them from among the restricted number of Government servants? Attenders, clerks or head clerks of the Revenue department or some other department will have to be promoted to such posts. Nothing else could be done. Don't you think that religious minded and charitably-disposed people can look after the affairs of these institutions much better than those people who have to be promoted from various posts which they may have been holding under the Government. That is why the Constitution has provided that they will have only to supervise and not manage or administer. The Hon. Minister while introducing this Bill said that nowhere have the Government made any provision for the management of these temples and they only wanted to supervise. The first duty that enjoins upon the Commissioner is given under Chapter IV under Clause 22, which says:

'Subject to the control of the Government and the provisions of this Act, it shall be the duty of Commissioner to see to the proper management of the affairs of religious institutions and he may do all things which are reasonable and necessary to ensure that religious institutions and endowments are properly administered and that their income is duly appropriated for the purposes for which they were founded or exist'.

In the Explanation under this section, it is said:

'The Commissioner shall have power to pass such interim orders as he deems necessary for the proper maintenance of a religious institution or the proper administration of a religious endowment'. Under this section the Commissioner can even close a temple if he should think it necessary. Your control should only be by way of supervision and nothing more. Supervision in one thing, control is another and management is a third thing. As was pointed out by hon Mr. Vaidyanatha Iyer when he opposed this Bill last time, if the Government feel that a particular institution is not properly working and a particular thing is not properly done, it has got powers to supervise the work of such institutions and can check such institutions whenever they go wrong; but has this Government no courage to take over the other institutions as well so that there may be a common legislation for the whole State instead of the present one affecting the members of a particular religion only. As was pointed out by hon Mr. Vaidyanatha Iyer when he opposed this Bill last time, if the Government feel that a particular institution is not properly working and a particular thing is not properly done, it has got powers to supervise the work of such institutions and can check such institutions whenever they go wrong; but surely, the Government cannot say, "Well you have not done this, you have not done that; so we will take over the management of your institution as you people cannot manage the affairs as we do".

So it is not correct to say that the Government do not propose to take the management of these institutions. By this enactment, they want to take the very management of these institutions upon themselves. I would like to ask the Government rather seriously whether they hope to manage the affairs of the lakhs of religious institutions in this State with the help of the staff that they have on hand. The Government want to appoint persons to the various posts in this department on Rs. 30 or Rs. 40. Do you think that such persons who are willing to take up posts for this amount will have the instinct and capacity to manage the institutions? Such officers who may be appointed for this purpose have to deal with various topics of religious functions in these temples and institutions. If an ordinary school-final man who has nothing to do with religious affairs and who might have worked in some of the offices under the Government is promoted to such posts, he will not be in a position to understand the A, B, C of the duties that he may have to discharge. He would just go into the temple and on seeing a tank which is supposed to be a sacred one, might say, 'Well, this is a nasty tank, it should not be here and should be closed and there should be a garden over it'. Again when he goes round the old prakarams of the temple, he will remark, 'Oh, there is no proper ventilation: so the whole structure should be remodelled'. Like this he will go on giving suggestions which would be quite out of place. The whole point is he cannot understand the various implications of his suggestions with respect to religious matters, unless he has faith in the religion and ancient customs. One clause is, however, provided that only Hindu gentlemen can be appointed to such posts. I would like to ask how many of these have real faith in the tenets of the Hindu religion. My point is that people who have no faith whatsoever in Hindu religion have taken up these posts. I have come across many instances. If you are not able to get from among the public the right type of persons who are very enthusiastic to run these temples and institutions, how are you going to get them from among the Government servants to take up this responsibility. When you are not able to get men from a larger field, how are you going to get them from a very restricted field? I, therefore, submit that in the interests of the provisions of the Constitution being saved and in the interests of saving a lot of discussion, money and worry, in the interests of the poor people who are managing these Trusts and saving them from rushing to the High Court and other Courts and in the interests of avoiding endless and unnecessary litigation in this matter, I would suggest that the Bill be referred back to the Select Committee especially with a view to find out, preferably after getting expert opinion in the matter as to whether this Bill does not infringe the provisions of the Constitution.

"Now, coming to the Bill itself, Madam, I would like to say that the Bill has far-reaching consequences. By taking over the management of these temples and other religious institutions, you are going to spoil even the small spark of religious faith in these places. Everything will be commercialized and you will begin to look at these as economical concerns. Under the name of economy, your officers will begin to do so many things. The reason for this is not far to seek. Even now, the executive officers have closed the festivals in the village temples. No cars are being driven in the streets. These cars of the temples remain where they have been that is in their own places and there is nobody offering to take them round. The executive officer does not take any interest in the matter. If, however, the local management had these temples under their control, will they ever allow such a state of affairs to continue? I understand that the big temple of Tiruvalur, which is one of the best temples in the south and which has got a large amount of money for its fund is not able to take the car once a year round the temple. This has not happened for centuries till now. I ask, is it because of the executive officers appointed by you?

"Again, the powers that you have entrusted with the Commissioner are excessive. To-day, everywhere there is a cry for the separation of the judiciary from the executive even in the case of the ordinary law. But here we find that both the judiciary and executive functions have been vested with this Commissioner. He is all in all in matters relating to these institutions. He himself will decide questions affecting these institutions and it is only in exceptional cases, appeals will be taken to the Government. We should not invest this Commissioner, who is an executive officer, with judicial powers. I should think as that these executive officers do not know anything about the judicial aspect of such matters and it is only right and proper that judicial aspects relating to such matters should go before a competent court or Tribunal which should be constituted for this purpose. Otherwise, we will not be achieving any purpose by entrusting all these endowments into the hands of those who are not competent to decide on the judicial matters.

"Then, we have got a provision by which it is said that the persons who will be entrusted with this work should be of 35 years of age. I do not know how wisdom dawns on a person only after 35 years. I know there are many young men who are perhaps more competent to run the administration of these institutions than persons between 35 and 70 years. I hope this age-limit may be all right in the case of appointments for the post of Judges and others. These executive officers would have to run about from place to place in connexion with the affairs of the institutions under their charge. For doing such jobs, it would be much better to have young people rather than having old people. I don't know why 35 years age-limit is fixed. I have got some amendments to be moved with regard to this and also other sections and I shall do so when we come to the discussion of clauses. When we deal with this matter of taking over the administration of such religious institutions, you should be rather careful. These endowments have been instituted by certain philanthropic Hindu gentlemen for a certain specific purpose and as such the persons whom you appoint to positions in this department should not only profess Hindu religion but should have sufficient faith and experience in the precepts of the Hindu religion. Otherwise there will be difficulty and trouble. I should think that there should be adequate provisions in the Bill itself for the removal of the executive officers as well as the Commissioner immediately it is brought to the notice of the Government and proved that they do not profess the Hindu religion or ceased to have faith in that religion. Otherwise there will be no meaning in it and we will not be achieving our object.

“Then, there is another clause which says that any surplus money of these mutts and endowments can be diverted to other purposes. In the clause relating to the Tirumalai-Tirupati Devasthanam, there is provision for the training of archakas from out of the Devasthanam's funds. This provision is not made in respect of other temples. I do not know why. If we look into clause 61 we will find that grants can be made for the establishment and maintenance of a university or college or other institutions in which special provision is made for the study of Hindu religion, etc. The university may provide for it but really there may not be any persons who would like to join. In that case also, this provision will entitle the university to get a grant and any Deputy Commissioner may be ‘pleased’ to make the grant. Provision exists also for the establishment of asylums, orphanages and many other things. I cannot by any stretch of imagination concede that this is just. Just like the funds of the Harijan Welfare Fund which are diverted to other channels—to help the Christians and others and not the Harijans alone—these funds will also fall into the hands of persons with no scruples who will use them—these sacred funds belonging to God—in such a way as to fill their coffers, i.e., by undertaking to run hospitals, asylums, etc.

“There are other arbitrary provisions also which entitle the Commissioner to have access to any portion of the temple. In one clause it is said that he can go right to the place of worship. I do not know whether custom will allow it. If the executive officer happens to be a person who is not entitled to the right to offer puja, if he happens to be a Commissioner who is not entitled to access to the sanctum sanctorum of the temple in normal times, this Bill will enable him to go there and see whether the archaka or the poojari performs his duty properly and whether he has placed the flowers properly on the deities. I hope the Government will go into this matter thoroughly and bring forward suitable amendments so as not to offend our ancient customs. All these matters like dittam, etc., should be left to the local people to be looked into. They know what is to be done, what is necessary and what is not. We cannot arrogate to ourselves the right to appropriate the funds of an endowment for other purposes than for which they were intended nor go against the sentiment of the people, simply because we think that a particular religious endowment is unnecessary and out of date. To quote an instance, in my village there is a temple where we have a sixth kalam (time) pooja. Five kalam had already been in vogue and a sixth is added. A certain fixed quantity of rice has to be cooked, offered to the deity and then distributed. Now if an Assistant Commissioner is appointed, he would say, ‘the God is already eating five times and why eat another ten or twenty measures of rice by way of a sixth kalam; this is unnecessary and, therefore, divert the funds to some other purpose.’ Unless the officer belongs to the locality, unless he is able to understand the provisions made already for the pooja, he will not appreciate the sentiments of the people of the area. Probably the Government will put an officer from Cape Comorin in charge of a temple in Visakhapatnam and an officer from Visakhapatnam near Cape Comorin and he will not be able to understand the A, B, C of the customs of the local people nor the way in which the affairs of the temple is to be conducted. The Government must see that they take steps to improve the state of affairs in temples and not do anything that will make the remedy worse than the disease. If the Government really want to set right matters, this is not the wise way. If extraneous and foreign elements are brought in they will be able to do justice neither to themselves nor to the religious institutions. Madam, these are the points that I wanted to place before the House for its consideration and I hope that the Government, in spite of the fact that they have not been used to that habit, will give some consideration to the opinions expressed and bring in necessary amendments to meet some at least of the points raised by the Members.”

SRI T. S. PATTABHIRAMAN :—“Madam, Deputy Speaker, it is with very great pleasure that I rise to support the Government Motion for introducing the Bill as reported upon by the Joint Select Committee. In doing so, I must say that I was rather surprised and amused when I heard the speeches of my hon. Friends, Mr. Gopalaswami and Mr. Bhashyam attacking the fundamentals of the Bill. I hope the country has now become conscious of the cobwebs that have peeped into our Hindu religion and shrouded its glory that had been the pride of our past. The object of the Bill, as every one knows, is not to strike at the roots of the Hindu religion but to remove the cobwebs and make it healthy and new and worthy of the great sages whom this nation could boast of. Madam, it was surprising that a great lawyer like hon. Mr. Bhashyam and a person like hon. Mr. Gopalaswami, who has been instrumental for eradicating the evil of untouchability which has been the greatest drawback of the Hindu religion, should express fears about this measure. We believe that public opinion has already moulded itself very strongly and very favourably towards the Bill and we have also seen violent and exuberant expressions of the same in the streets, in the Press and on the platform. If further proof is needed I would ask my hon. Friends to go and address public meetings attacking this Bill and they will see the results. They will see the consequences of such attacks. Let me deal with the fundamentals of the Bill referred to by my hon. Friends. Strangely enough, Madam, it has been our privilege in recent times to see the people of our State rushing to the court for all sorts of frivolous things. To-day we heard a warning from hon. Mr. Bhashyam, a great lawyer as he is, that this Bill will be declared ultra vires of the Constitution if passed into law, that it was illegal and unconstitutional to proceed with it and so on. It is more surprising that hon. Mr. Gopalaswami also would say that this Bill is ultra vires of the Constitution, and, therefore, will be declared void by the High Court. Madam, the Bill was published for the first time more than three years ago and for a full three years it has been before the public. Various objections had been received during this period and suitable changes in the original Bill were made as a result. With such improvements made, the Bill was before the Select Committee for a full one year from February 1949 to February 1950. Granting, for the sake of argument, that the Bill had not succeeded in moulding public opinion during this period, did they care to put forward their objections for the consideration of the Government in time? If they had not cared to do so, it is not the fault of the Government but of those who having deliberately kept quiet then seek the present opportunity of ventilating their personal and political animosities under the guise of legal and moral issues. Members have now, after the inauguration of our independence on the 26th January, come forward with objections saying that 'Religious institutions' is a concurrent subject and that this State has no power to legislate on it. May I submit, Madam, that the Select Committee on this Bill, which went into it thoroughly and exhaustively, met for the last time on the 4th and 5th of February, i.e., after the inauguration of our independence, and would have given considerable attention to the legal aspect of the provisions of the Bill? I am sure the Legal Department would have also considered these points in the interval between the inauguration of our independence and the last meeting of the Select Committee. I am sure the Department would have given their minute attention to these factors and only on their advice this Bill has come up before the House again. If hon. Mr. Bhashyam had not cared to bring the defects he has pointed out to-day, to the notice of the Select Committee at its last meeting then it means that he has some other reasons to oppose this measure and not the ones he has expressed.

"Madam, it has become the fashion of the day to raise the Fundamental Rights clause in the Constitution for everything, in season and out of season, inside the Legislature and outside of it. It is a pity that that clause is being used as an instrument to retard the progress of our nation, the progress of legislation and the progress of the community. To-day we saw hon. Mr. Bhashyam quoting Articles 14 and 15 of the Constitution. He said with reference to those articles that the present Bill makes a discrimination. What is that discrimination? What is the discrimination that is sought to be made by the Bill? What is the discrimination that is alleged? Hon. Mr. Bhashyam is a clever lawyer but unfortunately his arguments are not so convincing here as they used to be in courts. He pointed to maladministration and mismanagement of non-Hindu trusts and endowments and said that those that are responsible for it are let scot-free. If this is the discrimination he alleges and if this is considered a discrimination, then I am sure no legislation can ever be passed affecting Hindu life. For example, the Hindu Code Bill cannot be pushed through. It is a Bill which deals with our rights, privileges, customs, etc., including the question of inheritance. That Bill prohibits a Hindu marrying more than one wife, whereas the Muslim can have four wives. Can we call this a discrimination? These are all frivolous objections and if they are entertained, there can be no limit to 'discrimination'. Unfortunately our legal pandits use their talents, use their brains and their capacity, to retard the progress of the nation and I am afraid the present objection is one of the methods for delaying the legislation. If our Legal Department is to be trusted, I can say that the Bill does not violate any of the Fundamental Rights adumbrated in the Constitution and is quite in order. And it is really strange, Madam, that hon. Mr. Bhashyam should make a motion for recommitting the Bill to the same Select Committee for further examination. It is enough if we have public opinion behind us and this public opinion we have had in abundant measure. Even the Dravida Kazhagam which is anti-Congress in every way has supported the measure. It has not only supported the measure but has gone to the extent of praising the Minister who has piloted it. ('Hear, hear'.) If in spite of these, persons like hon. Mr. Bhashyam and hon. Mr. Gopalaswami, refuse to read the writing on the wall, it is only their misfortune and not of any other individual or the Government. Hon. Mr. Gopalaswami asked 'what have the executive officers done to improve the condition of our temples and mutts'. I wonder if he has gone into a temple after these executive officers have been appointed. If he had gone into a temple after the appointment of these officers he would have found what work they have done. Let me remind him that the temples and mutts have been places of public robbery. Persons who go there are robbed in a constitutional way, and the persons who rob them are let scot-free. If you go to Srirangam temple, you will be fleeced to the skin and robbed of all the money in the name of God and religion. If you go to Tirupanandal or Tiruvaduthurai, you will have to give to the matadhipathi not paper money, but sovereigns. And where do these go, to charity, to the improvement of Hindu religion? No. Certainly not. We have done all our best to improve our religion through these matadhipathis but we have failed in our attempt.

"Madam, I do not want to make public accusations about the matadhipathis. They have brought enough disgrace for Hinduism by committing atrocities in the name of religion. The sooner they are wiped out the better for our religion and our country.

"This Bill is only trying to purify the Hindu religion. Power is vested in the Board only to see that things are done in a proper manner and in a proper spirit. It will not allow the matadhipathis to take money and enjoy personal pleasures. It will make them real symbols of Hinduism, which they have now ceased to be. When the Bill becomes law, it will be a landmark in the improvement of Hinduism and in the glorification and revival of Hindu religion which has now lost all its glory on account of the un-controlled action of the matadhipathis.

[Sri T. S. Pattabhiraman] [11th September 1950]

"Madam, we must be sparing in our criticism and we must not be unfair to our political opponents. The Justice party with all its faults and its omissions must be congratulated for the one measure which they passed for taking over the control of the religious institutions and temples. But for that, Madam, Deputy Speaker, the facilities that you are now getting at Palni, Srirangam, Tiruchendur and other places, where an individual can go and have darshan freely without the annoyance of the archakas and the other parasites of the temples, you could not have had. To-day Hinduism is better than what it was in the past and if we remove all the cobwebs around it now, it will be still better. Therefore I am confident that every well-wisher of the Hindu religion will be able to support this Bill.

"But Madam, it is rather strange to see learned persons arguing that religious interference is bad. Unfortunately these people have not studied other constitutions. To-day we look to the House of Commons in England as a supreme example of what democracy stands for. In the United Kingdom, the Crown is not only the secular king of the people, but he is also the head of the Church. There is a combination of the Church and the State. What is wrong with that? Is it not right on our part to see that the religious institutions keep within certain limits and help the people rather than hinder them in the name of religion? This Bill is certainly not interference with religion in any way. It is only interference with maladministration, swindling, cheating and humbug going on in the name of religion. It is what is being done by a number of sanyasis, matadhipathis and temple priests. They are doing all sorts of objectionable things. They are making the temples into gambling houses and pleasure houses. These things are to be washed away by this Bill. Does it mean that it is interference with Hindu religion? I am sorry to speak all these things rather bluntly but unfortunately some of my hon. Friends in their anxiety to save the matadhipathis and the feudal lords from annihilation are trying to plead for them and glorify them. I was rather amused when hon. Mr. Bhashyam said that we must not speak in disrespectful language about these people and that we must worship them. But what are these people? Have they not gone out of their way and brought down Hinduism? May I ask whether these great institutions have built one hospital for the Hindu patients? Have they built one college for Hindu students? Have they built one orphanage for the Hindu children? They have not done anything. They have been swindling away the money, committing robbery and doing all sorts of things to satisfy their own whims and fancies. They have failed in their duty.

"Madam, hon. Mr. Bhashyam asked, 'What is the fun of taking away the administration of the maths from the hands of the matadhipathis? What is the fun of allowing them to attend to only religious duties?' Certainly, Madam, if my hon. Friend wishes that the matadhipathi should be a religious head, he must welcome this feature of the Bill. It is not the duty of the matadhipathi to look after the secular and mundane affairs of the math,

11th September 1950] [Sri T. S. Pattabhiraman]

He need not concern himself with the rupees, annas, pies, lands, money and jewels. It is for him to cater to the spiritual needs of the people. It is his duty to help the people to attain spiritual good. For that purpose he must have full time at his disposal. If the Bill becomes an Act, it will relieve the matadhipathi of all mundane, secular and worldly duties concerned with the administration of the math and he will be in a position to spend his full time—all the 24 hours of the day—for religious purposes and for doing religious propaganda, and for purifying Hindu religion. On that account at least, I hope hon. Members will be able to welcome the Bill with enthusiasm.

"Madam, finally, although I have differed from hon. Mr. Gopalaswami in many things, I think there is one thing on which I have to agree with him. In clause 24 (b) it is said that no person can be appointed to the office of the trustee of a religious institution unless he is not less than thirty-five and not more than seventy years of age. I hope I am not mistaken when I say that senility is usually associated with old age. Certainly youth is necessary for carrying out reforms. The youth are the best persons for this kind of work. At 35 years of age, man becomes burdened with so many things. People of that age will not have so much interest or zeal or fervour. It is only persons between the ages of 21 and 35 who will have the necessary zeal for this kind of reform. I would urge the Hon. Minister to reconsider this provision; otherwise it will amount to an insult to the youth of the country who are the pride of the country and on whom the future of the country depends. It will therefore be a tragedy if only old men should be selected for these places. The work requires energy, drive, enthusiasm and crusading spirit."

DEPUTY SPEAKER:—"Does the hon. Member consider people of 35 years to be old?"

SRI T. S. PATTABHIRAMAN:—"Sufficiently old, in my opinion, Madam."

JANAB M. S. ABDUL MAJID:—"What about the Hon. Minister himself?"

SRI T. S. PATTABHIRAMAN:—"At least let the Hon. Minister reconsider this age-limit. He must be able to justify the position that people above 35 years alone will be suitable. The Hon. Minister may say that people who have attained the age of 35 will have much experience. In fact, it is the young people who have got as much experience as people of 35 years, for there are a number of propaganda machines now working—newspapers, magazines and broadcasting. The people also have got social contact and even at 25 years, people get a lot of experience. Therefore the argument of lack of experience will not hold good to justify this provision. I request the Hon. Minister to reconsider this. Otherwise it will be an insult to the youth of the country. You must have confidence in them. When the Bill becomes law, all that we want to be achieved can be achieved.

[Sri T. S. Pattabhiraman] [11th September 1950]

only by the crusading spirit of the youngsters. With these words, I strongly support the motion which has been moved by the Hon. Minister.

“Madam, we are already late in passing this Bill. People are already complaining that we are trying to stop this Bill and to sabotage it. There are already rumours afloat and a propaganda machine has been set working against us saying that we are not sincere about this Bill and that the capitalists and the matadhipathis have gained an upper hand through some source. Let us show that they are mistaken. The Bill will do good to the great Hindu community and the Hindu religion. Let us therefore march on. As the late lamented Mr. Satyamurthi said, let the ravens croak in Mount Road and Coom—and may I add also at Tanjore and at Tirupanandal,—let this Bill march on until it is passed into law.”

SRI K. VARADACHARI:—“Madam Deputy Speaker, I am very glad to support the Bill as reported by the Select Committee. It is a happy augury that a gentleman of great experience and of his age, Hon. Dr. Rajan, is piloting this legislation; and belonging to a very orthodox family of Vaishnavites as he does, he knows where the shoe pinches and where it is that he as a surgeon should apply his knife for reforming our institutions, religious and charitable. He has been a really expert surgeon in his line, and he now uses his skill and experience in this matter also. The Select Committee has adjusted some of the conflicting claims of different sections of people with regard to these endowments; religious and charitable, and while it has on the one hand introduced a democratic principle in the administration and the management of these institutions by the establishment of area committees and boards of trustees, it has also established a check in the bureaucratic way over these institutions, so that the two views may work in a balanced way and there may not be much of a complaint or grievance from the public with regard to the administration of these institutions. All the criticism that is directed against the Government that they are taking too much into their own hands and they will not be able to do what they are trying to do, etc., will be really not called for in this case, in view of the amendments made by the Select Committee, and such a charge is not sustainable. Of course we have got the threatened legislation by the Government of India and they are seeking to take away some of our very important shrines which are said to be of all-India importance under their own management and are making separate provision for their administration. I am really very sorry that the Government of India should take it into their mind that these temples should be directly managed through a separate legislation of their own; I do not know what sort of provisions they will be making and how far they will be divergent from the principles and objects of the legislation we are now seeking to pass in this House to-day. When that legislation comes, I do not know how far our legislation will have to be brought into line with the objects and principles underlying that legislation; but so far as this Bill goes, I am really emboldened to say that the measure is one about which there cannot be much complaint, at any rate so far as the benefits that are sought to be conferred on the management of these institutions, both religious and charitable, are concerned. In the first place, Sir, the establishment of area committees and boards of trustees is really a happy idea which the Select Committee has put into this measure and people will certainly be satisfied to express their opinions about the administration through these representative bodies. No doubt here and there perhaps these bodies may be nominated, but certainly they will be local people who will be interested in the institutions which they are called upon to supervise, and the bureaucracy cannot do much in the way of impairing the administration of these institutions in the face of the existence of such boards and committees. Of course, over-democratisation or management of religious institutions directly may lead to secularisation also, a thing which we ought to prevent; but I do not think that so far as this Bill is concerned, the democratisation is too much or that any danger of over-secularisation would result by this legislation.

"Sir, one aspect of this Bill which struck me as rather curious was to place the trustee under three authorities, firstly, the area committee or the board of trustees, secondly the Assistant Commissioner or the Deputy Commissioner and thirdly the Commissioner. These trustees are called upon to submit themselves to the jurisdiction of three authorities, and I do not know how the trustees will be able to survive the authority and supervision of these three authorities. In a way perhaps it cannot be helped and there is no other way of providing for a better administration; probably one way out will be that first of all you must make the trustee amenable to the supervision of the local committee itself, and then if the local committee also does not do its duty properly, to subject the whole thing to the supervision of the bureaucracy. Anyway, in the working of this legislation I am sure sufficient experience will be gained and certainly any popular Government will be ready in the future to amend this legislation if need be, to see that the trustees are not victimised by too much of supervision and control over them by various authorities.

11th September 1950] [Sri K. Varadachari]

"Another thing that struck me as curious is that the Select Committee has taken some sort of lenient view to improve the working of these maths. It wanted them to secure as much of income as possible without any control from any authority and has reserved the pathakanikas to the maths. This is a very important source of revenue to the math, and so far as my experience goes, the major part of the fluid resources of any math comes from the pathakanikas. If these pathakanikas are to be simply left unaccounted for in any manner, it will be really not doing the real thing for the improvement of the administration of these maths. While on the one hand this Bill seeks to impose the responsibility of preparing budgets of income and expenditure and submitting them to the concerned authority by these maths, we find the Bill also gives unfettered discretion to them of disposal over income which is coming in in this manner. There are maths where pathakanikas are utilized properly and there are also maths where these pathakanikas are frittered away and misspent. This income is really a very lucrative income in every math, and if it is not to be accounted for, I cannot understand the reason why. Anyhow, the Joint Select Committee has accepted this legislation of controlling maths, as a beginning for the first time in this State, and therefore I think it is better to go slow rather than be drastic even now in an attempt to control them. I take it that it must be in that view only that the Joint Select Committee should have taken this line and introduced control in some respects, leaving off these pathakanikas completely.

"Now, Madam, one thing this Government and this Legislature have always to look to is the preservation of the sanctity of our religious and charitable institutions, both temples and maths and other institutions. If any legislation is trying to cut at the root of sanctity, it will not be worth having at all. Especially the Hindu community is a very pious and religious community and if this community loses faith in our religious institutions to-morrow by provisions which are over-secularising in their effect on a par with our secular State, then very soon our temples also will become secular institutions. This has to be prevented. But, so far as this Bill goes, it does not verge on that danger and, therefore, I heartily support this measure."

SRI S. NAGAPPA :—"Madam, Deputy Speaker, it gives me very great pleasure to support this Bill that has been so ably moved by my Hon. Friend, Dr. Rajan. A section of the State has successfully tried to sabotage this move and as they could not do it, they wanted to defer this Bill, somehow or other. However, we have to appreciate the courage with which the Hon. Dr. Rajan has been able to come forward with this measure in spite of the fact some members of this House were eager to see that the Bill was deferred. I need not say what were the conditions that were existing in all these maths and temples and these have been adumbrated by the Hon. Minister in his opening speech. Madam, as a Harijan, no doubt, I have not seen many temples and maths and yet I have heard about their vagaries and mismanagements and how the funds collected in the name of God and religion from innocent people have been misused. Leave alone the question of funds. What about the lands? Vast acres of lands have been endowed to these temples by some people in good faith that those lands should be cultivated and their proceeds utilized for the maintenance of temples and for giving religious instruction to people who are not aware of the greatness of the Hindu religion. But, I am sorry to say that nothing has been done in these directions. On the other hand, we see to-day Muslim Moulvis are going about here and there preaching their religion and also Christian preachers go from village to village, slum to slum and preach about the greatness of their religion. But, I ask, what has Hinduism been doing in regard to this matter? They have been looting people in the name of religion and have not done anything in the case of people who have left the Hindu fold and expressed a desire to come back to Hinduism again. (Interruption by Sri Raghavayya.) I am not asking the Government to do it, nor am I asking Mr. Raghavayya to do it. I am only pointing out the defects in the Hindu religion. It is true, if you are a true Hindu you must check yourself and check your religion. Madam, it would have been better if this piece of legislation had been introduced earlier than this. Now, I think, after the 26th January when we have adopted the Constitution and stated in unequivocal terms that ours is a Secular State, I would like to know whether this House is competent to pass this legislation which covers only a particular section of this State, namely, the Hindus. I would prefer the Government coming forward boldly and enacting an Act by which they would be able to bring in other religious institutions also, be they Muslim institutions or Christian institutions or other institutions. Especially when we have declared ourselves as a Secular State, I do not think, we are competent to pass a legislation affecting only one section of the people of the State, that is Hindus. That is why, I would prefer that the word 'Hindu' should be omitted from the Preamble and the wording changed as follows: 'The Madras Religious and Charitable Endowments Act' instead of 'The Madras Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Act.'

"Now, Madam, coming to the motion of my hon. Friend, Mr. Bhashyam, to refer the Bill again to the same Joint Select Committee, which sat over it for months together, went through each syllable and each section of this Bill thoroughly, I should say, it is merely an attempt to gain further time. It is one of the tactics for gaining time that they have been following for three long years. Now they want to take some more time, so that the term of the House may be over and the Bill may not see the light of day. It is a wonderful and a clever move. Whatever it is, I am extremely sorry."

JANAB ABDUL HAMEED KHAN:—"The hon. Gentleman has used the word 'tactics'. So far as I know, I think, it is unparliamentary."

11th September 1950]

DEPUTY SPEAKER:—"I think it does not sound unparliamentary. Anyhow, I shall verify it."

SRI S. NAGAPPA:—"My hon. Friend may ask the Hon. Law Minister if he wants. He says one can indulge in tactics, but I cannot say what tactics are. I cannot help it. Anyhow, the fact is there. My hon. Friend, Mr. Bhashyam, by moving his motion, wanted to gain some more time so that the Bill may not be passed by this Legislature. I say, it would have been better for him and for the House, if he had stated in unequivocal terms, please defer this Bill because the country is not prepared for it. I think, such a thing would have been better instead of taking a roundabout course by asking this House to refer the Bill to the same Joint Select Committee, which as I have already said, sat for months together, thought over it and in the end presented their report. Now, it is for the House either to accept it or reject it. If the House feels that the Bill can be amended, it can do so, but there is no use referring it again to the same Select Committee."

"Madam, as I have already said, it would have been better if this Bill had been called the Religious and Charitable Endowments Act. I hope the Hon. Minister would consider this point and try to amend the Bill. Coming to the Bill proper, what does it say. The Bill does not come in the way of religion or in the performance of acts either by archakas or the matadhipatis or by the maths themselves, but it wants only to control and see how the funds that are collected are utilized for the purposes for which they were collected, whether the budget is prepared and accounts are kept properly and audited. The Commissioner or the Area Committee or the Deputy Commissioner or the Executive Officer will not go there and stand in the way of the archaka from performing his duties, but on the other hand, if there is an agency appointed by the Government, that agency will be there in order to see to the comforts of pilgrims and to the orderly behaviour of the people and that the funds collected are utilized for the purposes for which they were collected. So, Madam, when the Government have come forward with a measure of this nature, it is for the members of this House to wholeheartedly support it. Instead of doing so, I do not know for what reason certain sections of this House are trying to oppose it. I think, all those who oppose this Bill, are trying to qualify themselves to become matadhipatis . . ."

DEPUTY SPEAKER:—"Will the hon. Member repeat what he said."

SRI S. NAGAPPA:—"I myself have forgotten what I have said."

DEPUTY SPEAKER:—"Then the hon. Member is not sure of his own arguments."

SRI S. NAGAPPA:—"I am sure of my arguments, but I cannot repeat the same sentence, Madam."

[11th September 1950]

DEPUTY SPEAKER :—" At least the sense of what he said? "

SRI S. NAGAPPA :—" I do not know what makes you, Madam, to ask me to repeat what I said. It is generally in cinemas or dramas, people are asked to repeat once more."

DEPUTY SPEAKER :—" Does the hon. Member consider himself as being on the same level as that? "

SRI S. NAGAPPA :—" I do not consider myself on that level, nor do I consider you, Madam, as a member of that audience."

DEPUTY SPEAKER :—" I did not catch the sense of what the hon. Member has said. I want it for my information and the hon. Member should simply repeat it and not remark upon it."

SRI S. NAGAPPA :—" What I said was this. Some of my hon. Friends who oppose this Bill, I do not know, whether they wanted to qualify themselves as matadhipatis."

DEPUTY SPEAKER :—" It is not right to impute motives to Members of this House."

SRI S. NAGAPPA :—" If that is so, Madam, I have no hesitation in withdrawing those words."

" Now, coming to the regular Bill itself, the Government are going to appoint a good number of Assistant Commissioners, Area Committees and trustees. I hope the country and the State have realized that the Harijans are also Hindus. It is stated that for every one of these appointments, only Hindus should be appointed. As I said, here also, it would have been better if the word 'Hindu' were omitted. Why should the Government think that only Hindus are interested in Hindu religion. On the other hand, there are people belonging to other religions who have very great respect, regard and reverence to Hindu religion and there are also people with modern ideas of these temples and their administration. My point is, most of the Hindus are losing their faith in Hinduism. We know that by the influence of Communism, how many people have faith in God or religion. So, now that we are going to appoint people to manage these temples, I think they need not be Hindus alone, but whoever is interested in these things may be appointed."

" There is also another thing, Madam. The Bill refers to hereditary trustees. We have seen how even members of the royal family who had a right to inherit their parents' gadi have been prevented from their inheritance. Such being the case, why should a trustee's son be again made a trustee? Why not he go to other walks of life, instead of being a trustee of a temple or math? Why the Government try to tie him down to that post? I, therefore, think that this hereditary system should go."

" Madam, I have said already that the State has recognized Harijans as Hindus. I think, that if all these temples and maths are entrusted to Harijans, they will be better managed."

11th September 1950] [Sri S. Nagappa]

" They are the people that have had full faith in the Hindu religion in spite of the tyrannies and harassment that had been practised upon them. These people will, I am sure, be able to maintain the idea of this legislation. What is the use of giving powers to people who have lost faith in the Hindu religion? There is no use of entrusting powers to them. I would plead that every section of the people, be it Muslims"

DEPUTY SPEAKER :—" They may not have lost faith in the Hindu religion; you mean to say they are not good Hindus."

SRI S. NAGAPPA :—" As you please, Madam."

DEPUTY SPEAKER :—" That is perhaps what you meant."

SRI S. NAGAPPA :—" I said what I meant but if you have taken it in that spirit, I do not object."

DEPUTY SPEAKER :—" The hon. Member must finish his speech in five minutes."

SRI S. NAGAPPA :—" Why has the time-limit come in my case alone, Madam? "

DEPUTY SPEAKER :—" There was no time-limit with reference to others because perhaps they knew but you do not know when you should stop and that is why I am obliged to have the time-limit."

SRI S. NAGAPPA :—" Please give me 25 minutes. I have much to say, Madam."

DEPUTY SPEAKER :—" Let not the hon. Member lose something out of his five minutes in arguing for more time."

SRI S. NAGAPPA :—" Madam, I would plead that when this legislation is passed, the Hon. Minister will see that temples are managed not only by Hindus but by all sections of the people. Let them be managed by Harijans; that would be much better and the proper thing. They have much faith in the Hindu religion otherwise they would not have been sticking to the Hindu religion in spite of the many hardships and tyrannies to which they had been subjected to."

" Coming to the powers of the Commissioner, I find that he is given very wide powers; he can even supersede the orders passed by the Assistant Commissioner or the Committee and the trustees. Instead of vesting so much powers in the Commissioner, I suggest that the Government should reserve some powers in their own hands for themselves."

" As my hon. Friend Mr. Pattabhiraman pointed out, he will also be appointing trustees and there is the question of the age-limit and for the trustees, the age-limit is thirty-five years. It is too high. When the average life of the Indian is 22 to 24 (an hon. Member : '28') or even twenty-eight as my sister says, why should the age-limit of thirty-five years be fixed? I say, Madam, that is too high. Then the upper limit is seventy years. A man of seventy is an old man; he cannot move about, or think and his brain will refuse to work. What is the good of continuing such people in service, while denying opportunities of service to young men? At fifty-five, you are asking Government servants to retire from service, however capable or hard-working or intelligent they may be. When that is the case, what is the use of continuing persons of seventy for managing these institutions? I would suggest that the maximum limit may be sixty and the minimum may be 21.

"Coming to the auditing, accounting and budgeting of these institutions, nobody knows at present how much income is derived from the people in the name of temples. If we take only the Tirupathi Devasthanam, I think that temple would be getting more than the annual income of the Madras State and nobody knows how it is being spent. They are performing marriages to the Gods as though God is a bachelor every time. Instead of doing such things and wasting funds

"ఈ బిల్లులో రెండు ముఖ్య భాగాలున్నాయి. అందులో ఒక భాగము ఈ హిందూ దేవాలయాల ధర్మదాయాలను సంబంధించిన భవమును సాగా వ్యయం చేసే విషయానికి సంబంధించినది. ఇది secular భాగము ఈ భాగము గురించి Dr. Rajan గారు వారి ఉపన్యాసములో దేవాలయాల, ధర్మదాయాలను చెందిన భవమును సక్రమంగా ఉపయోగపరచడం తద్వారా హిందూ మతాన్ని దానికి చెందిన మతాలను, దేవాలయాలను అభివృద్ధిపరచడం ప్రభుత్వంవారి ఉద్దేశమని, అందుకుగానే ఈ హిందూమత సంస్థల పరిపాలన నిమిత్తమే ఒక ప్రత్యేక సంస్థను ఏర్పాటుచేయుచున్నామని ఇకముందునుంచి మతాలు, దేవాలయాలు, Hindu Religious Endowments Board, ప్రభుత్వశాఖలలో ఒక భాగంగా ఉంటుంది అని అన్నారు. వారి ఈ ఆధిపత్యం ప్రస్తుత రాజ్యాంగ కట్టిన సూత్రాలకు అనుగుణంగా ఉన్నదా అనే విషయం సందేహస్పదమైయుంటుంది. ఇదివరలో మన దేశము అంగ్లేయ చేతులలో ఉన్నప్పుడు నా చిన్ననాటి రోజులలో Ecclesiastical Department అని ఒక ప్రత్యేక ప్రభుత్వశాఖ ఉంటూఉండేది. ఇదేమిటి ఒక్క క్రైస్తవ మతానికి ప్రత్యేక శాఖ ఉండడమేమిటి, దేశంలోని ఏ ఇతర మతాలకు ఏ విధమైన శాఖలు లేకపోవడమేమిటి అని ఎవరైనా ప్రశ్నిస్తే అనాటి ప్రభుత్వంవారు క్రైస్తవ మతము Religion of the state అని అందువలననే ఒక ప్రత్యేక ప్రభుత్వ శాఖ ఇవ్వకూర్చి క్రైస్తవులు చేయబడిందని వేస్తే వారు. అటువంటి ప్రత్యేక మతశాఖల ప్రభుత్వంవారి ఆధీనంలో ఉండడం హిందూ దేశవంటి Secular State లో సాధ్యమే అనే విషయం ప్రభుత్వంవారు గమనించాలి. ప్రత్యేక మతశాఖలను ఏర్పాటుచేయడం పాకిస్తాన్ మొదలైనవివలన, మతమే ప్రాతిపదికగా తీసుకొనిబడి స్థాపించబడిన, దేశాల్లో శాస్త్రీయమేమోమోగాని మత విశిష్టత చూపున మన భారత దేశంలో న్యాయవిద్వంసని తెలిసిన న్యాయవాదులు చెబుతున్నప్పుడు ప్రభుత్వంవారు పెడచెవిని బెట్టరాదు. ఈ సందర్భంలో నేను చిన్నప్పుడు వదల్చుకొనిన Sir Walter Scott రచించిన నవలలోని అంశాలు జ్ఞాపకము వస్తున్నాయి. ఎలిజబెత్ సుజానాకి సస్పెన్స్, సెన్సేటివిటీ అనే ఇద్దరు స్నేహితులుండేవారు. ఆ విషయం ఎప్పుడైనా కోపము వస్తే దగ్గర ఉన్న స్నేహితుడు సస్పెక్టు అయితే 'I entreat' అని సెన్సేటివిటీ అయితే 'I command' అని అంటూ ఉండేది. దీని భావమేమిటంటే ఎలిజబెత్ రాణి సస్పెన్స్, సెన్సేటివిటీ పట్ల కొంత విశిష్టత చూపేది అని.

"ఇప్పుడు మన ప్రభుత్వంవారు కూడ రాష్ట్రములో ఉన్న ఒక్క హిందూ మతం వారికి ప్రత్యేక శాఖను ఏర్పాటుచేసి తదితర మతసంస్థలను సమ హయాములోనికి తెచ్చుకొని పోయినట్లైతే మతరీత్యా విశిష్టత చూపుతున్నారనే ఆధిపత్యం ప్రజలలో కలగవచ్చు. కాబట్టి ప్రభుత్వంవారు సూతన రాజ్యాంగ కట్టినట్లైతే ఏర్పడిన సూతన పరిస్థితులకు అనుగుణంగా సవరిస్తారని ఆశిస్తున్నాను.

"దేవాలయాల ధర్మదాయాలను సక్రమంగా నిర్వహించేందుకు కమిషనర్లను, అని స్టేటు కమిషనర్లను తదితర నిబ్బందిని ఏర్పాటుచేయడంవలన. ఈ నిబ్బందిని ఎన్నుకొనే సందర్భంలో హిందవమతంపట్ల, పాదీని సాంప్రదాయాలపట్ల భృద్ధివిశ్వాసము కలిగియుండవలసిన ఎన్నుకోవడం వుంచుంది. లేనియడల మన మతం, మన సంస్కృతి బెద్దరినై అవకాశాలు కలుగవచ్చు. ఈ విషయంలో ప్రభుత్వంవారు తగిన శ్రద్ధవహించవలసిందని కోరుతున్నాను.

“ముఖ్యంగా ఈ బిల్లు యొక్క ఉద్దేశాలు ఎంత మంచివైనప్పటికీ వెంటనే అదరగొట్టాలి. పెట్టడము అవసరమా అనే విషయమై ఆలోచించవలసివచ్చినా దేశంలో ఈ నాడు అనేక అత్యవసర సమస్యలు వికారిత పరిస్థితులు ఏర్పడినవి. కేంద్ర ప్రభుత్వం వారు Foreign policy (వైదేశిక విధానము) పాకిస్థాన్ వివాదాలు, కాందిశీ పునరావాసము (rehabilitation of refugees) మొదలైన సమస్యలను ఎదుర్కొన సత్మతమై పోతున్నారు. ఇటు యుద్ధరాజ్యంలో అహంకారం ఏర్పడి ప్రజలు కిటు కటించుతున్నారు. ఇటువంటి పరిస్థితులలో ఈ బిల్లు వెంటనే శాసనము అవ్వడము అంత అవసరము కాదు. పరిస్థితులు అనుకూలించిన తరువాత సకాలంలో సక్రమమైన మార్గాలలో ఒక చక్కని బిల్లు ప్రవేశ పెట్టవచ్చు. ప్రభుత్వంవారి ఉద్దేశ్యము చాలా మంచిది అనడంలో ఎంతమాత్రం సందేహంలేదు. కాని ప్రస్తుత పరిస్థితులు ఇటు వంటి మత తవడర్తనానికీ అనుకూలమైనవా అనే విషయము ఆలోచించవలసివచ్చింది. కాబట్టి ఈ విషయాల నన్నిటిని తిరిగి పరిశీలన చేయవలసిన కోరుకూ ఇంతటితో విరమించుకున్నాను.”

SRI T. K. T. N. R. TATACHARI :—“ Madam, Deputy Speaker, there are several poochies shown to an infant Government, whenever a legislation is presented to this House. One of them is the Indian Constitution Act, the principles of which are interpreted according to each man's light, and precedents have yet to come, whatever be the letter of the law we have to accord to the spirit behind it. If we analyse the speeches made to-day on the floor of this House by various Members, they fall under three categories. One is that this Bill interferes with religious institutions which interference is not sanctioned by the Constitution. The second is, that it will not be quite proper for the Government to take over the administration of religious institutions; that is what Mr. Bhashyam and hon. Mr. Raghavayya have pointed out. They say, that the Government, though it has got broad shoulders, has already got on itself more than what it can hold! Sir, I am one of those who believe that in other respects, Government has taken on hand more than what it could mouth that it has mouthed more than it could munch and that it has munched more than it could swallow and it has swallowed more than it could digest, with the result that there is a sort of torture at one end and diarrhoea at the other. (Laughter.) In a way this Bill may seek to disturb age-long institutions, because it goes to the root of a society, wherefrom most of the institutions have grown up from very ancient times for various reasons. Now, when those reasons have disappeared, the mere formalities have remained. They impede the path of reorientation of society and regimentation of the individual view. For instance, most of the maths are relics of old theocratic states, when religion was almost the basis of political rule. If only one looks into the history of these maths, he will find that they were formed for the propagation of Hinduism, but have since become nothing but abode of so-called Sanyasins. May be those Sanyasins may be very learned people. I do not disrespect them, for there are really very learned people among them; but they are living out of time, and they have no place in society, because any institution which is not useful to the body politic has no right to exist in its pristine or rather primitive form. For instance, the gentleman who is performing your functions in the Indian Parliament, Mr. Anantasayanam Ayyangar got a letter while in Amroati prison, from an old relation informing him that His Holiness of the Ahobilam mutt had ordered him to arrange for his 'Bikshai' costing Rs. 300 daily to be offered to him during his transit through his district when he went to worship Shri Venkateswara at Tirumalai. Now, what is the purpose and effect of all this pompous theocratic marches? What are the fundamental principles underlying them? That, the heads of the religious institutions should realize. But, so long as they are there managing monies, it is difficult to persuade them, and also, it is difficult to persuade those in charge of these Holiness, because they profit by these practices involving huge waste of money. Such a demand did make poor Anantasayanam lie flat on his back. These institutions, as I said earlier, were started for the spread of Hindu religion for which this pompous upkeep was thought necessary; but, such are still thought in some quarters to be part of religion. So, the argument in favour of maths will not hold good. Anything which does not confer the necessary religious instructions to society has no place to-day under law. Otherwise people will lose respect for religious institutions and the faith they propagate. There had been great mal-practices consequent on the accumulation of money in these maths. Large funds were misappropriated and misapplied for purposes which were not authorized by the trust or foundation. There have been very glaring examples of them nearer my home. I need not cite them. They are still before the Court. They are nearer to us and yet far away from heaven. So it is very necessary to get at these funds, and hence to say, that the State should not control them, is something which appears to be fallacious and also very fantastic. Because the State must see that there is no fraud in whatever field, whether it is in secular or religious institutions or in business concerns. We have to set right these things, so that they may serve the public well. Mahatma Gandhi once said, there may be a time when people will refuse to recognize God unless He appears in the shape of bread. So it is very necessary that the trusts should function very strictly for the purpose for which they were founded. But when a trust has failed, law has enjoined, under the rule of Cypres, that it may be used to some other beneficial purpose.

"Now it is a very redeeming a feature, that this rule has been applied in the case of the Tirupathi Devasthanam. Government and the Hon. Dr. Rajan have made use of that principle of law for making power to bring into being several useful institutions. But it is doubted by some friends, whether State control of these institutions may give that incentive to the officers, whom they select, to devote that attention and have the faith to keep up the traditions of those maths. It is not a very difficult matter for the Government to find such persons. For, nobody can say that hereditary trustees alone can manage them efficiently? I am myself a hereditary acharya purusha but never a trustee! (Laughter.) I still claim to be a hereditary acharya purusha. But hereditary trusteeship is no insurance against freedom from fraud. Fraud, wherever it exists, should be done away with. So it is proper for Government to get in certain other persons and ask them to carry on the secular side of trusts. I am not a trustee, but I do own certain functions, which I must say, I am not doing for many reasons, both economic as well as political. But still, we must see there is somebody who performs it under some organized system. To administer them, it is not very difficult for Government to choose proper officers. Hon. Members of this House have spoken that the existing trustees are not functioning properly. To replace them by officers of the Government would lead to a type of worse corruption. Madam, corruption was born with God. Even God is corrupted daily, so that we may escape from being caught in our unlawful acts. I am telling you out of experience. So, even Gods are not above corruption. But let nobody mistake me and think I do not believe in God. I am a believer in God. All I say is, nobody can root out corruption. Only we can keep it at its lowest. So all the argument about the possible loose administration by any set of officials that Government may choose is only in the stage of suspicion. Let them not think that Government intend by this Bill to set up bad and faithless people to be in charge of temples and religious institutions. Let all understand and believe that Government is intending to do its best for the better management of these institutions. It would be a redeeming feature even if the administration, as proposed under this enactment, is run by ordinary men, by men of mediocre capacity. In fact, it does not need men of extraordinary capacity to run them. Even a cow or hippopotamus with a sufficient amount of virtue and diligence, I submit, can manage these religious institutions. (Laughter.) So, it will not be difficult to find so many ordinary men to run them. It may be, after some time, when that is found in practice, those who are now opposing Government would give their full support to Government, if need be, for further reform.

"A feature of this Bill, in respect of which, it falls short, is, that according to me, there is a very primitive form of worship, which is an insult to our civilization and that still exists in some of these Hindu religious institutions. I am referring to the fee levied in temples with regard to worship. A fee for worshipping God! It is a premium on worship. Does this not detract the liberty of the individual to worship God as he likes? Does it not offend the provisions in the Constitution, quoted by some hon. Members? If a man has to pay Rs. 13 for God's darshan during a particular ritual, is this not an infringement of the right of an individual to worship. I cannot say this levy of Rs. 13 is religion. It is only exploitation. None of the devotees are going to cheat God without paying Rs. 13; because this thirteen rupees will be put into the hundi in some form or other by the devotees in the course of their worship. The genesis for this fee is not far to seek. Originally these temples were able to maintain themselves from the offerings of the worshippers. But at the time when the iconoclasts came down to rule, the system of that type of levy was invented to persuade the rulers to spare these temples in consideration of the large returns to their Exchequer. So this device of a fee or a premium was devised, and they still exist in our temples to-day. Therefore I say, this premium is a primitive practice, which has to be stopped. I request the Hon. Dr. Rajan to make suitable provisions if not in the present Bill at least under the rules for this. It is all sheer usage; it has no religious basis, and so, it has to be put an end to, being opposed to public policy. With these words, Madam, I commend this legislation, and congratulate the Hon. Dr. Rajan for having spared no pains and utilized all his mature experience and zest in the matter of bringing about this legislation, which will certainly, I do hope, meet the needs of society."

KUPPUSWAMI:—“கனம் உதவி சபாநாயகி அவர்களே, கனம் சுகாதார மந்திரி அவர்களால் கொண்டுவரப்பட்ட அறநிலைய பாதுகாப்பு மசோதாவை நான் முழு மனதுடன் ஆதரிக்கிறேன். அவ்வாறு ஆதரிக்கிற முறையில் முக்கியமாக இரண்டொரு விஷயங்களைக் குறிப்பிட விரும்புகிறேன். அவ்விதம் குறிப்பிடும்பொழுது இந்த ஹிந்து மத ஸ்தாபனங்கள் மூலமாக வரும் வரும்படிக்களையெல்லாம் இந்த தேசத்தினுடைய நன்மைக்காகவே உபயோகப்படுக்கூடிய முறையில், அதற்கு அடிப்படையான கல்வி அபிவிருத்தி என்பது போன்ற முயற்சியை அம்சங்களிலும் அதயார் வசியமான வகைகளிலும் சிலை செய்க்கூடிய முறையில் இம்மசோதா இருக்கவேண்டியது என்பது பொது ஜனங்கள் மிகவும் போற்றக்கூடிய விஷயமாகும். அப்படிப்பட்ட ஒரு செய்கையையும் பொது ஜனங்கள் மிகவும் வரவேற்பார்கள். இந்த மசோதாவை சட்டபூர்வமாகக் கொண்டுவருவது ரொம்பவும் எளிதாக இருந்தாலும்கூட அதை அனுபவரீதியாக பொது மக்களுக்கு உபயோகப்படுமபடியான முறையில் அமுலுக்குக் கொண்டுவர வேண்டும். அதற்காக அதிகாரிகளை நியமிக்கும் விஷயத்தில் சர்க்கார் கொஞ்சம் கவனம் செலுத்திப்பார்க்கவேண்டும். இந்த மசோதாவின் அடிப்படையான நோக்கங்களில் அமைக்கப்படும் கமிஷனர், டிபுடி கமிஷனர், அசிஸ்டெண்டு கமிஷனர் இவர்களை நியமிக்கும்பொழுது அவர்கள் இந்த மசோதாவின் கொள்கைகளை நன்றாகத் தெரிந்துகொண்டு அதில் அக் காரையுடன் கவனம் செலுத்திவரும்படியாகவும், பொது மக்களுக்கு உபயோகப்படுக்கூடிய முறையிலும் அவர்களை நியமித்தால்தான் இந்த மசோதா வெற்றிகரமாக நடைக்கும் முறையில் இருக்கும். அம்மாதிரி அதிகாரிகளைப்போடவேண்டுமென்கிற அளவில் சாதாரணமாக இந்த மசோதாவின் கொள்கையில் நம்பிக்கையிலில்லாதவர்களை நியமித்தால் அவர்களுடைய ஒரு தன்மை பொது மக்களுக்குள் ஒரு மாற்றிதத்தை ஏற்படுத்திவிடும். பொது மக்கள் இம்மசோதாவின் கொள்கைகளை அனுபவிக்கமுடியாமலும் போய்விடும். ஆதலால் அதிகாரிகளை நியமிக்கும் விஷயத்தில் சர்க்கார் கவனம் செலுத்தவேண்டியதவசியம்.

“மற்றும் இந்த மசோதாவிலுல் வரக்கூடிய சொத்துக்கள் குறிப்பாக தேவஸ்தானங்கள் சம்மந்தமாக ஏராளமான நிலங்களுக்கின்றன. அந்த நிலங்களில் இப்பொழுது சரியான முறையில் கவனம் செலுத்தப்படவில்லை. அதில் வரக்கூடிய வரும்படியை அநேகமாக உதாசினம் செய்யப்பட்டு வருகிறது. அதில் சர்க்கார் கவனம் செலுத்தி அதிலிருந்து வரக்கூடிய வரும்படியை நன்கு பயன்படுத்திக்கொள்ளும்படியாக இந்த மசோதாவை அமைக்கவேண்டும். அதற்காக அங்கங்கே பிரதேசவாரியாக கமிட்டிகளை நியமித்து வருவதாக ஒரு திட்டம் இருப்பது எல்லோரும் அறவேறாத தக்க விஷயம். அவ்வாறு கமிட்டிகளை அமைக்கும்பொழுது அவர்களுக்கு இன்னும் அதிகப்படியான சில அதிகாரங்களைக் கொடுக்கவேண்டும். இப்பொழுது இந்த கமிட்டிகளுக்கு அதிகாரம் இருப்பதாகவே தெரியவில்லை. ஆலோசனை சொல்வதுபோன்ற முறையில் தான் அமைக்கப்பட்டிருக்கிறதே யொழிய அதிகாரத்தைக்கொடுத்து அங்கங்கே உள்ள குறைபாடுகளை அறிந்து அவைகளை நீக்குவதற்கு வேண்டிய அதிகாரங்களைக் கொடுத்து ஒரு நல்ல முறையில் பயன்படுத்தவேண்டுமென்று நான் கனம் மந்திரி அவர்களுக்கு தெரிவித்துக்கொள்ளுகிறேன்.

NATARAJA GOUNDAR :—“கனம் உப சபாநாயகி அவர்களே! கனம் சுகாதார மந்திரி அவர்களால் கொண்டுசெல்லப்பட்ட அரசு நிலய பாதுகாப்பு மசோதாவை நான் முழுமனதுடன் ஆதரிக்கின்றேன். கனம் நண்பர் பாஷ்யம் அவர்களால் கொண்டுவரப்பட்ட திருத்தப்பிரேரணையை நான் முழு மூச்சாக எதிர்க்கின்றேன். இன்றே பல ஆலையங்கனெல்லாம் அழிந்து போய்க்கொண்டிருக்கின்றன. ஒரிந்து தரம் மடங்கனெல்லாம் ஊழல் மலிந்து நலிந்து வருகின்றன. இந்த நிலைமையில் நண்பர் பாஷ்யம் அவர்கள் சொல்வதுபோல் இந்த மசோதாவை மீண்டும் பரிசீலனைக்கு எடுத்துக்கொண்டேயிருப்போமானால், மீண்டும் மீண்டும் பொறுக்கு கமிட்டிக்கு அனுப்பி கால தாமதம் செய்துகொண்டேயிருப்போமானால் நிச்சயமாக அழிந்துபோய்க்கொண்டேயிருக்கும். பிறகு ஆலையங்களை யெல்லாம் பாதுகாக்க முடியாது. இன்று மடாதிபதிகளால் செய்யப்படும் அக்கிரமங்களைத் தடுத்தும், அவர்களால் அழிக்கப்படும் பெருவாரியான பணங்களையும் பாதுகாத்து மக்களுக்கு நல்ல முறையில் செலவிடவேண்டுமானால் இந்த மசோதாவை உடனடியாகக் கொண்டு வருவது அத்தியாவசியமானது. இன்று பல நண்பர்கள் இந்த மசோதாவை எதிர்க்கவே வேண்டுமென்ற நோக்கத்துடன் எதிர்க்கின்றார்களேயொழிய இந்த மசோதாவானது பெருவாரியான மக்களால் எதிர்க்கப்படுகின்றதா என்றால் இல்லை. மடாதிபதிகளுக்கு வகாலத்து வாங்கிக்கொண்ட வழக்கு அறிஞர்கள் வேண்டுமென்றே இந்த மசோதாவை எதிர்க்கிறார்களே தவிர மக்களால் இந்த மசோதா எதிர்க்கப்படுவதில்லை. எல்லா வகுப்பு மக்களாலும் இந்த மசோதா ஆதரிக்கப்படுகிறது என்று சொல்லிக்கொண்டு இந்த

Sri A. VEDARATNAM PILLAI :—“கனம் உப அக்கிராசனாதிபதி அவர்களே! நமது ஹிந்து ஆலையங்களை சீர்திருத்தும் மசோதாவை இந்தச் சட்ட சபையில் கொண்டுவந்ததற்காக கனம் மந்திரி அவர்களை நான் பாராட்டுகின்றேன். ஆலையங்களை இன்று இருக்கக்கூடிய நிலைமையில் இப்படியே விட்டுவைப்பதென்பது சாத்தியமில்லாத விஷயம். அதைச் சீர்திருத்தவேண்டியது அவசியமென்ற விஷயத்தில் யாருக்கும் எந்த விதமான ஆகேஷ்டமும் இருக்க முடியாது. அந்த நிலைமையில் அரசாங்கம் இதை திருத்த முன் வருமுன் பல ஆண்டுகளுக்கு முன்னரே H.R.E. போர்டு நியமிக்கப்பட்டு அந்த வேலையை எடுத்துக்கொண்டார்கள். இன்னும் அதைத் திறமையாக நடத்தவேண்டுமென்ற காரணத்துக்காக இன்று தன் மேற்பார்வையில் கொண்டு வருவதற்கு அரசாங்கமே இந்த மசோதாவைக்கொண்டு வந்திருக்கிறது. இன்று அப்பொறுப்பை அரசாங்கம் ஏற்றுக்கொண்ட பின்னரும் அதில் குறைபாடுகள் இருக்குமேயானால் அந்தக் குற்றம் அரசாங்கத்தைச் சாரும். ஆகையால் அந்தக் குறைபாடுகளை அவர்கள் நிவர்த்தி செய்யக் கடமைப்பட்டிருக்கிறார்கள். இந்த முறையில் ஆலையங்களை திறமையான முறையில் இயங்கும்படி சீர்திருத்தம் செய்யவேண்டியது அத்தியாவசியம். கனம் மந்திரி அவர்கள் எடுத்துக்கொண்டிருக்கின்ற முயற்சி பூர்ண வெற்றி அடையவேண்டுமானால் இங்கே எழுப்பப்படுகின்ற ஒவ்வொரு ஆகேஷ்டமையையும் கனம் மந்திரி அவர்கள் கூர்ந்து கவனிக்கவேண்டுமென்று நான் கேட்டுக்கொள்ளுகிறேன். இப்போது எதற்கெடுத்தாலும் இந்த அரசாங்கம் செய்கின்ற தீர்மானம் அனைத்தையும் ஹைகோர்ட்டில் அப்பீல் செய்யப்பட்டு அவர்களால் நிராகரிக்கப்படுகின்ற ஒரு நிலை ஏற்பட்டிருக்கின்ற காரணத்தால் நாம் இப்போது இங்கே நிறைவேற்றப்படுகின்ற இந்தச் சட்டத்திற்கும் அதே கதி ஏற்பட்டுவிடாமல் பார்த்துக்கொள்ளவேண்டியது அத்தியாவசியம். அம்மாதிரி ஹைகோர்ட்டால் அரசாங்கம் செய்கின்ற ஒவ்வொரு சட்டமும் நிராகரிக்கப்படுமேயானால் அது நம்முடைய அரசாங்கத்தின் கௌரவத்தைப் பாதிக்கக்கூடிய விஷயமாகும். ஆகையால் இவ்விஷயத்தில் சர்வ ஜாக்கிரதையாக இருக்கவேண்டுமென்று முன்னெச்சரிக்கையாக நான் இதைச் சொல்லுகிறேன். நிச்சயமாக இந்த பிஸ்ஸை நாம் சட்டமாக்கினால் இது ஹைகோர்ட்டு அப்பீலுக்குப் போகத்தான் போகிறது என்ற விஷயத்தை நாம் எதிர்பார்த்தே இருக்கவேண்டுமென்று கனம் மந்திரி அவர்களுக்குச் சொல்லிக்கொள்ளுகிறேன். இப்பவே அதற்கான யோசனையுடன் தகுந்தபடி இந்த மசோதாவை திருத்தி, ஹைகோர்ட்டாரால் நிராகரிக்கப்படாத வகையில் சட்டமாகத் தக்க ஏற்பாடுகள் அனைத்தையும் எடுத்துக்கொள்ளவேண்டுமென்பது என் வேண்டுகோள்.

"நேற்று நான், அரசாங்கம் தன் மேற்பார்வையில் எடுத்து நடத்துகின்ற ஆலயங்களெல்லாம் முன்னிருந்ததைக்காட்டிலும், இப்பொழுது சிறப்பாக நல்ல முறையில் நடக்கின்றது என்ற விஷயத்தைக் குறிப்பிட்டேன். அதற்கு உதாரணமாக எங்கள் ஊரில் ஒரு கோவிலைப்பற்றி ரொன்னேன். அது சிறிய ஊராக இருந்தாலும் அங்குள்ள கோவிலுக்கு 20 ஆயிரம் ஏக்கர் நிலமிருக்கிறது. இதுவரையிலும் கடனில் மூழ்கியிருந்த அந்தக் கோவிலை சர்க்காரின் மேற்பார்வையில் வந்தவுடன் நல்ல முறையிலே வேலைகள் நடந்துவருகின்றது என்று நேற்றே குறிப்பிட்டேன். மீண்டும் அதைக் குறிப்பிடுகின்றேன். இம்மாதிரி அவர்கள் செம்மையாக நடத்திவருகிறார்கள் என்பதற்காக அதில் குறையே கூறுவதற்கு ஒன்றுமேயில்லையென்று கூறுவதற்கில்லை. குறைபாடுகளும் சில இருக்கின்றன. அவற்றையும் நான் எடுத்துக் கூறவிடில் நான் என் கடமையைச் செய்யத்தவறியவனாகேன். ஆகையால் நான் கண்ட குறைபாடுகளைக் கூறவிரும்புகின்றேன்."

"ஆலயம், கோயில்களை பாதுகாக்க வருகின்ற அதிகாரிகள் இந்த ஆலயங்களிலும், கடவுள் வழிபாட்டிலும் நம்பிக்கையுள்ளவர்களாக இருந்தால்தான் அந்த இடத்தில் உரிய மரியாதையோடு காரியங்களை நடத்துவார்கள். அப்படியின்றி கடவுள் ஆராதனையில் நம்பிக்கையற்றவர்களை அவர்கள் நிர்வாகத்தில் திறமையுள்ளவர்கள் என்பதற்காக மாத்திரம் நியமிக்கக்கூடாது. எதற்காகச் சொல்லுகிறேன் என்றால் எங்கள் ஊரில் அந்த அதிகாரிகள் நிர்வாகத்தை ஏற்றுக்கொண்டு பின் அந்த ஆலயத்திலுள்ள செப்பு விகிரகங்கள் எல்லாம் கலம்பேறி, எண்ணை அழுக்கு படிந்து இருந்ததை சுத்தம் செய்வதற்கு அவர்கள் எடுத்துக்கொண்ட முறையை மாத்திரம் நான் சுட்டிக்காட்ட விரும்புகிறேன். இந்தச் சிலைகளை யெல்லாம் சுத்தம் செய்வதற்கு ஒரு பெரிய அண்டாவை எடுத்து அதில் புளியைப்போட்டு கரைத்து கொதிக்க வைத்து இந்த விகிரகங்களை யெல்லாம் சாம்பார் பண்ணிவிட்டார்கள். இம்மாதிரியான செய்கையினால் விகிரக ஆராதனையில் நம்பிக்கையுள்ள பலரின் உள்ளங்கள் வேதனையால் கஷ்டப்பட்டது என்ற விஷயத்தை நான் குறிப்பிட விரும்புகின்றேன். அதனாலேயே விகிரக ஆராதனையில் நம்பிக்கையற்றவர்களை அதிகாரிகளாக நியமிக்கக்கூடாது. ஆகையால் கடவுள் ஆராதனையில் சிரத்தை people that it was in the interests of the Hindu community that the temples were sought to be controlled by the Government with reference to their revenue and expenditure. It was with great foresight and thought that the first set of Commissioners were appointed, after having been selected by a specially constituted committee. It must be said to the credit of those Commissioners and the various Presidents that followed them that the religious endowments, etc., entrusted to their charge have been efficiently administered although the Hon. Gentleman the Minister for Health and Hindu Religious Endowments Board said there were certain defects in the administration. I can say, on the whole the Hindu Religious Endowments Board has done its best to administer the endowments committed to its charge properly in spite of individual grievances, that may exist. Madam, it is a very complicated portfolio for any Minister and it has remained so for the last thirty years. In its complications, it is only next, or even equal, to Local Administration. Influential people, as trustees connected with temples used to be ranged on either side, one side favouring Governmental control and the other against. Thus it has not been an enviable task for any of the Ministers. From my own experience as Minister in charge of Hindu Religious Endowments Board, I can say it is not an easy job to hold the portfolio. Notwithstanding these handicaps, the present Minister for Hindu Religious Endowments Board has successfully held this portfolio for a second term and he deserves our congratulations on having steered this department clear of all controversies that have arisen from time to time. Madam, we are now concerned mainly with further improvements to the Board. I am one of those who have given the wholehearted support to all measures connected with the improvement of the Board. I may point out here that I was asked during the Advisers' regime to be the Chairman of the Committee that was then constituted to go into the working of the Board on the lines proposed by the Hon. Dr. Rajan when he was the Minister for Hindu Religious Endowments for the first time. As I do not possess that legal acumen that is required for presiding over the deliberations of such committees, though I knew the problems connected with the administration of temples, I implored the Government to seek the assistance of a distinguished Judge of the Madras High Court, Sri Venkataramana Rao, who subsequently agreed to serve as Chairman of the Board. It was largely due to his untiring efforts stretched over a period of nearly eight months that a very fine report was drawn up. Very many distinguished citizens helped us in this job. We proposed an alternative Bill also in the report and we also accepted most of the recommendations proposed in the Bill drafted by Dr. Rajan in 1938. I am glad that some of our recommendations were implemented by the Advisers and the rest have been incorporated in the present Bill. While I am in general agreement with the provisions of the Bill, I have certain observations to make by way of helpful criticism.

12th September 1950] [Raja Muthiah Chettiyar of Chettinad]

"Madam, one of my observations would relate to the motion to recommit the Bill to the Joint Select Committee for further examination. I am in entire agreement with the view expressed by certain hon. Members that it should be recommitted to the Joint Select Committee. When I say this I want to make one thing clear. I am not at all for any delay in passing this legislation. But I know pretty well that this Bill is not going to be taken up clause by clause in the present sitting. The Bill may come up again before the House only when we sit next, some time next month, and meanwhile it will be certainly possible for the Select Committee to consider the aspects on which doubts have been expressed by the hon. Gentleman, Mr. Bhashyam, who had devoted great attention to the various provisions of the Bill. I would support the motion for recommitting to the Select Committee with the reservation that it should not end in delay. If it is possible to consider the Bill clause by clause in this sitting itself, I will not be in a position to support the recommitment proposition of hon. Mr. Bhashyam. I would ask hon. Mr. Bhashyam himself to help us with his views though we may not have the advantage of the opinion of the Advocate-General and other legal opinion.

"Madam Deputy Speaker, with regard to these trustees, I may not be accused of any partiality towards them. I am not sparing any trustees. I agree that the actions of the hereditary trustees should be controlled and checked, but ordinarily a hereditary trustee should be given a better place than other trustees. The one main question is, 'Do you want to retain the temples or not?' If you do not want to retain the temples it is a different matter. Once we decide that the temples should be retained, we should consider how the administration of these temples should be controlled, and whether it is not in the interests of the temple themselves to leave the administration of certain temples in the hands of the members of the old families who have been responsible for the establishment of these temples. These people have deep piety and a sentimental and psychological feeling towards these temples. Their feeling is such, that if any child or anybody in the family falls ill, they imagine that as trustees they have done something wrong. That is the kind of sentiment that is attached to these temples. We are still living in the land of sentiment and psychology. Therefore, it is worth while giving more power and more duties to the hereditary trustees. At the same time, the very chapter should contain complete provisions for the control of the actions of these trustees if they do wrong. Where it is a question of the recognition of the hereditary trustees, I would suggest that they should be given full recognition. It should not be easily possible to dislodge their claims for succession as hereditary trustees. With regard to appeals, the Hon. Minister said that there are appeals from the Deputy Commissioner to the Commissioner and from the Commissioner to the Government. I may respectfully submit that with regard to points of law, though I may be a Minister with some knowledge of law, my knowledge of law may be imperfect, and if I have to decide the question of the succession of hereditary trustees, I should certainly provide for the decision of the Government to be appealable to one court, say the High Court. This is only with regard to the rights of hereditary trustees for the office of trusteeship and not for anything else. I do not want to provide for any appeal with regard to the other actions of the hereditary trustee, such as submission of false accounts, improper management of temples and so on. These matters, let the Deputy Commissioner and the Commissioner decide. But, if it is a question of the removal of a trustee, of recognizing the successor of a hereditary trustee, in such cases, the person aggrieved by a decision of the Government should have a right of appeal to a court. That will be a safeguard for him. I would implore the Hon. Minister to look into this suggestion. If there is already a provision in the Bill, I shall only be too happy.

Madam Deputy Speaker, I want to say a few words on the inclusion of charitable endowments in the scope of the Bill. If charitable endowments are of a big nature, they may call for control from the Government. But there are many charitable endowments which are not big enough to be controlled by the Government. If such small endowments are controlled now, what will be the net result? The net result will be that there will be no charity forthcoming. Already charity has dried up and it will dry up still more. If there is a small charity which is not administered properly, there are ever so many persons who are likely to set it right by taking the matter to court. They are not public places of worship with which the people are concerned. Suppose a family has set apart Rs. 10,000 or the income from a village for a kattalai—a puja at a particular time—what does it matter if the Government do not control it? It is only the affair of one family as compared with the entire population. I therefore suggest that the Government should reconsider the inclusion of all charitable endowments. If the charitable endowments are of a big nature, if the public have the advantage of it, then I think there may be some justification for controlling them. Otherwise, the control of these small charitable endowments would dry up charity. Besides there are many other persons besides the Government who will take steps to rectify the irregularities if any. And lastly it is not necessary for the Government to worry about all the items of public activity. I would request the Government to seriously consider the omission of the portion relating to the control of charitable endowments. If it is not possible to omit that portion, I would request the Government to amend that portion as far as possible to see that private charity is encouraged and not discouraged. In these days religious institutions require private charity and private bounty. I therefore implore the Government to omit such small endowments which will be controlled by the members of the families concerned.

12th September 1950] [Raja Muthiah Chettiyar of Chettinad]

“Madam, Deputy Speaker, now I come to a very important point. I have always held a middle view with regard to the control of maths all these 25 years. I know about the Saiva Siddantha maths in this State—the Tiruvaduthurai math, the Dharmapuram math and the Tirupanandal math. I have no personal knowledge about the maths in the Udipi area and about the maths in Tirunelveli. The maths are institutions representing the various subsets of the Hindu community. As far as possible, they should be left alone. I am not now going into the vagaries of the matadhipathis. The life and actions of the matadhipathis have not been free from vagaries. I have always been pleading for the retention of the maths. My fear is that if the Government begin to control these maths, they may lose their significance and importance with reference to the various religious sects and their sentiments. But in the year 1950 I have begun to wonder whether I am right in the indulgence shown to them and in the trust reposed in them. In the Bill which was considered by the Venkataramana Rao Committee, my friend Mr. T. A. Ramalingam Chettiyar suggested that there should be a committee of fifteen persons—five persons representing the matadhipathis and ten persons nominated by the Government—with headquarters at Madras. I said that it would savour of exercising too much control if there were ten members nominated by the Government. I then thought that the institutions would prosper and cater to the needs of the sects for which they were intended. But I am sorry to say, Madam Deputy Speaker, that those hopes have been falsified. The information that we have so far is that most of the matadhipathis have very little to do with religious activities. If they appear on the show-days, it is only by virtue of necessity. On other days they are just looking after the property of the maths just like the Tanjore mirasdars. I have heard it said: ‘தஞ்சாவூர் மிராச்தார் வரவு செலவு கணக்கு பாப்பது போல் இந்த மடாதிபதிகளும் பார்த்துக் கொண்டிருக்கிறார்கள்’.

“They are looking after the mundane affairs—giving out leases and administering the property just like the mirasdars. The Hon. Dr. Rajan in his introductory speech said that the leases given on behalf of the maths have been for lower amounts. That statement must have been based on the information that he has received through the Hindu Religious Endowments Board. I would like to know what action the Hindu Religious Endowments Board as a representative of the Government has taken against matadhipathis for such alleged low leases. The public have a right to demand that the Government should take proper action. It is widely known that the large incomes that have come from the lands as a result of the high prices of paddy prevailing during the last ten years in Tanjore district and other parts of South India have not gone into the coffers of the temples concerned. The matadhipathis are not in touch with the movements in the country in favour of their own maths and religious sects, e.g., Saiva Siddantha which some maths represent. They do not keep abreast of the times. They confine themselves to their dens and they are always surrounded by their own satellites. I am not for the abolition of the maths. I am not for the abolition of the matadhipathis. Mr. Vedaratnam Pillai with his intimate knowledge of Tanjore matadhipathis has said that proper persons should be chosen for matadhipathis. I would ask him whether it is not a fact that uneducated persons wearing kavi, persons always living near the matadhipathi, are chosen as successors. Very few of these persons wearing kavi are educated. There is of course a school there, but none of the persons wearing kavi reads there. They are not at all educated, much less cultured. It is a matter of great regret for some of us to point out that these maths have not at all gone up. I now feel that my support of these maths during the last few years has been a mistake, for the information that I have had during the last few years and months is so disparaging to these maths; and I am compelled to withdraw my support to them. But while I withdraw my support to them, I do not want their abolition. I want their incomes to be secured properly. Executive officers approved by the Hindu Religious Endowments Board or the Government should be compulsorily appointed for these maths. It should not be left to the matadhipathi to choose the executive officer; it should be left to the Government entirely. Incomes of lakhs of rupees are involved. If the hon. Mr. K. Ram had put forward his proposition in the manner in which I have suggested, it would have been accepted even in the earlier stages of the Bill. As there is provision for the control of temples with incomes exceeding Rs. 20,000, Rs. 60,000 and so on, I want similar provisions here also. I want the power not merely to be mentioned but to be operative also. Every math with an income above a certain amount should have an executive officer appointed. After all the matadhipathi cannot object to the appointment of an executive officer if he claims to be a real religious head. The duty of a Saiva Siddhanta Matadhipathi is to propagate Saiva Siddhanta. He need not pay his attention to income from lands, the administration of the lands, their lease and so on. A retired Collector or a Deputy Collector can do the work and we can even pay Rs. 1,000 a month. Some maths can afford to pay so much. They are big enough. The pay should be more attractive than the pay of a Deputy Commissioner. Except the Tiruppanandal math, I do not think any other Saiva Siddhanta math has justified its existence in the last few years. I would, therefore, entreat the Hon. Minister to seriously consider the question of compulsorily appointing executive officers of decent status for all maths. Let us first of all ensure the income of these maths and then let the matadhipathis draw up the scheme and fix the dittams and so on. With regard to the spending of the excess income, the income that is left after meeting the expenditure on the pujas and so on, I held the view in that Committee itself, that that money should be spent for religious propaganda, for Saiva Siddhanta propaganda so far as Saivite maths are concerned. I am totally against these excess moneys being spent for medical relief, for leprosy relief and so on. That is not the duty and that is not the purpose of the people who endowed these properties and that is not the object of the worshippers who are likely to come up in future. Of course, medical relief and leprosy relief are very laudable objects, but they may be left to other private charities. That is one of the several duties of the Government and we need not put it on the shoulders of the temple authorities. Even with regard to the Tirumalai-Tirupati Devasthanam which is now included in this Bill, I would entreat the Hon. Minister to see that its funds are not spent on colleges and institutions in which English education is imparted. I now understand that the Tiruvaduthurai math is coming a little too much in the eye of the public, and public agitation is going on against the math. It is said that the head of math was taken to Tanjore and given a municipal address there. Why should there be a municipal address given to a matadhipathi, I want to know? He is simply going out of the way; he has been befooled and blackmailed, I may openly say; he was taken to Tanjore and a municipal address was given to him and he was requested to start a college or a school up to the S.S.L.C. standard which may later on grow into a regular college. I submit it is not his duty to start schools and colleges; that may be the duty of the Government or it may be left to private people to start such institutions. I can understand if the matadhipathi is going to start a college for the propagation of Saiva Siddhanta, but it having been started, I would now ask the Government to order the matadhipathi to close down the school. If the Government do not do it, the contagion will spread. I have no objection, for instance, if in bringing up the list of dittams, etc., the executive officer takes the directions and the suggestions of the matadhipathi, then draws up the budget and sends it up to the Commissioner or the Government and consults him also in the various stages adumbrated in the Bill, and if the Government find any items of money spent on institutions which are not connected with the objects of the math, they should not approve of such expenditure. I do hope that the Government will reconsider the clauses of this Bill which refer to the funds of the math being spent on non-religious institutions and purposes. What the Government are anxious to see is that the matadhipathi himself does not spend or fritter away the moneys on such objects, that is the idea; but on that account there is no case at all for spending the money on items unconnected with these temples and maths. My earnest appeal and request to the Government, therefore, is that they should seriously consider the feelings of the people in this respect. The public will not give any more money, and they will not make any endowments to these institutions if they come to know that later on, the income from the endowments would be diverted to purposes other than those for which the endowments were meant to be utilised. On that ground, Madam, I would plead with the Government for making the necessary change in the concerned clauses of the Bill.

[Raja Muthiah Chettiyar of Chettinad] [12th September 1950]

"Madam, Deputy Speaker, while I make these suggestions—and I do so fervently—I would like to assure the Government that I make them in the full hope that they are necessary improvements to the Bill. I am now giving my full support to this Bill and I will always be supporting any good measure intended for the proper maintenance and control of all religious institutions. If I have pleaded for the exemption of charitable endowments, it is only with a view to see that more and more charities come up. If I have pleaded for the better treatment and rights of hereditary trustees, it is also with a view to ensure that more and more people come forward with offers of charities to the various temples. And if I have again pleaded that the maths should be better controlled so far as their income is concerned and that the matadhipathis should not be allowed to follow their own vagaries, it is also with a view to improve the objects and methods of expenditure. Therefore, Sir, all the criticisms that I have levelled with regard to this Bill are only in the best interests of these institutions, and I may be allowed to repeat, particularly in view of the fact that the Hindu Religious Endowments Board as such, as a quasi-Government body, is going out officially.

"I would now like to pay my tribute to the work of the Board during the last 27 years, and to the work of the various Presidents and Commissioners who have adorned the Board in the past. It must be said to their credit that but for their tactful administration, co-operation and management, it would not have been possible for this measure to have been on the Statute Book all these years. All these 27 years there has been a demand for the entire abolition of this body, but at the same time there has been a counter-demand always made, that the body should be made permanent. I am indeed happy to-day that permanency is given; instead of merely making permanent some of the officers' posts. I am glad that the whole department is now being provincialized. I am really happy to note that the public are taken into confidence through their representatives in the Legislature, in the administration of this department by the Government. I have no doubt, Madam, that the public will give their full support to this measure and also that the House will give its unstinted support to the Bill when it is being considered clause by clause."

DEPUTY SPEAKER:—"I have been asked by the Hon. Speaker to announce to the House that the half-an-hour food debate will be taken up at 5 p.m. and not at 1 p.m."

JANAB MAHIN SCHAMNAD:—"Madam, Deputy Speaker, I have given notice of my intention to move certain amendments to this Bill which are necessary in view of the provisions in Articles 13 (1) and (2), 16 (5) and 28 of the Indian Constitution. All laws passed in any State inconsistent with the fundamental rights of a group of persons or community are void under the Constitution; no such law can be passed in any State after 26th January 1950 which takes away or affects the fundamental rights of a group of persons or community. The amendments of which

[12th September 1950] [Janab Mahin Schamnad]

I have given notice are necessary in order to prevent particular clauses of this Bill being declared by the High Court as ultra vires of the Madras Legislature. The rights which are guaranteed under Article 26 are now sought to be abridged and removed by the proposed Bill. The Joint Select Committee has practically accepted the substance of most of the amendments I am going to move. There are many communal temples in the South Kanara district, in Mangalore, Manjeshwar, Karkal and other places. The Government may supervise, audit the accounts and control the administration generally, but they should not take away the management of the institutions from the community. The Hindu Religious Endowments Board in their Order No. 291 of 1949 has recognized the Karkal temple as a communal temple falling under a different category from those coming under the Endowments Act. Therefore, the Government should consider well before taking over charge of these communal temples, whether their action can be justified from the public view-point."

[Sri N. S. Varadachari] [12th September 1950]

in most cases, as to what constitutes the best management and the best method of control of religious institutions and temples to which they are attached. I am not, Madam, pleading for exemption because it is by a healthy cultural co-operation, and cultural co-operation is a very difficult thing, that we can demonstrate to these very people who may now be opposed to control and superintendence of religious institutions and win them over ultimately and make them see the good in such control as we seek to exercise, it being mostly in regard to secular matters. I admit that religious persons are not necessarily assiduous accountants or even correct accountants; they do not know the modern world but they are quite aware of the changing circumstances and they are prepared to adjust and suit themselves to the rapidly changing conditions where people urge large amount of control over their institutions. I know several instances of matadhipathis who have far in advance of this legislation instituted committees of respectable persons, at any rate I know one instance, the Mysore Math which has a number of Mysore civilians on its committee and all the accounts, and all the details of the secular management of the math are never looked into by the head of the math but by that committee which is invested with full authority by him. If maths here are willing to do the same, why should we not commend this course to the Government? If amongst the disciples of the math, there are people who to the satisfaction of the Government can discharge their duties, efficiently and in a responsible manner, why not the wishes of the head of the math be fulfilled by making that the real committee of management? I submit, Madam, there is much to be said for such a course. I would ask the Government: 'Is it not right to take all these men into confidence and put before them such ideas as to make them feel that while there is no damage to sentiment or to their own dignity, there would be secured to them all the advantages of modern management?'. If I were in their position, I would gladly agree provided the Government does not wait for the offer to come from them but the Government make the offer and takes their acceptance from them. I remember, Madam, the beautiful principle that Mahatma Gandhi laid down for the administration of the All-India Spinners' Association. Once while I had the honour of proposing to Government a bounty scheme on behalf of the association which is now declared by the Privy Council judgment to be a charitable endowment, it was pointed out to me by him that the Government should themselves come to the Spinners' Association with proposals for a bounty and that we should never go to them and ask for the bounty and request that this and that favour should be given to us; they should be able to recognize the services which we have rendered to the country and come to us with offer of assistance in order that the goal which is common to us may be fulfilled. That, Madam, is the attitude which I recommend to the future Commissioner or to the Deputy Commissioner in regard to matadhipathis.

[12th September 1950] [Sri N. S. Varadachari]

"Madam, I wish to say a word with regard to inams. As a result of various legislations of the past, you have already taken away whole inam villages from the archakas or from the worshippers; you have taken them away from them without knowing the consequence. But where it is not a whole inam village it is still open to him to have the inam and why don't you, when he has no other landed estate or other income, offer to him to enfranchise the inam from service and make it his sole property? That is a matter on which I would like some thought to be applied and the Government should come to a decision before the various clauses are taken up.

"I have a word to say about the Tirupathi Devasthanam in particular. I find that there is a long section in the Bill dealing with it. Of course it is going to be administered like other temples; there will be Deputy Commissioners and such other safeguards as would be provided for the proper maintenance of the whole of the Devasthanams. May I point out that not only in respect of the Tirupathi Devasthanam but in respect of all Devasthanams, the first charge on the funds of the religious institutions should be in this order. The first item should be the renovation of the temple and the maintenance of temple property. Then only can you get all the other income which you are now getting in the temples. There is a beautiful practice, of which you may not be aware, Madam. If you present an elephant to the temple, they do not receive it except when you pay the cost of maintenance of the elephant, if you want the Devasthanam to make use of the elephant. Similarly also if you present a cow and even if it is a piece of cloth which you may like that God should be dressed in. It is a very salutary and wholesome rule made years and years ago with great thought and care in order that the Devasthanam may not get crowded with valueless gifts, onerous gifts which would become a charge on the income of the Devasthanams. So, the renovation of the temple and the maintenance of temple properties must first find a first place in the list of expenditure; then you may apply the doctrine of Cy pres and go to the rest in the order, the object being that demonstrably the first order should be the one which would attract pilgrims in hundreds and thousands to visit the temples. There is only one more thing, Madam."

“ஹிந்து மதம் மிகப் புனிதமானது என்று ஹிந்து மதஸ்தர்கள் சொல் லுகிறார்கள். இஸ்லாமியமும் அப்படியே; கிருத்துவமும் அப்படியே புனிதமானது என்று அவர்கள் சொல்லுகிறார்கள். புனைத்தர்களைப் பற்றி சொல்லவேண்டியதில்லை. இப்படி எல்லோரும் தங்கள் மதம் உயர்த்து என்று சொல்லிக்கொள்ளுகிறார்கள். ஆனால் அந்தந்த மத கர்ம ஸ்தாபனங்களுக்கு நுழைந்து வாவு செலவு களைக்குப் பார்த்தால் நிறைவு ஊழல் மலிந்து விடக்கூடியன. அங்கங்கே சண்டைகள்; அதே மாதிரித்தான் ஹிந்து மதத்திலும் ஓரண்டு மடங்கள் வேறுபாடு நடக்கின்ற தது. இன்றைக்கு காங்கிரஸ் சர்க்கார் நடக்கின்றது. அதைத்தான் எடுத்த துக் கொள்ளுகிறேன். எவ்வளவோ திறமையாக சர்க்கார் நடந்தாலும் அங்கங்கே எவ்வளவு ஊழல் இருக்கிறதென்பது நம் எல்லோருக்கும் தெரி பும். சர்க்காரின் கீழுள்ள அதிகாரிகளும், மற்றவர்களும் எவ்வளவு மோச மாச நடந்துகொள்ளுகிறார்களென்று நம் எல்லோருக்கும் தெரியும். உதா ரணமாக பல அதிகாரிகள் குற்றம் செய்யப்பட்டு தண்டிக்கப்பட்டிருக்கி றார்கள். பல பேர்கள் பிளாக் மாரக் கொட்டிலே செய்துவரும் குற்றங்களைக் கண்டுபிடித்து அவர்களை இன்னமும் தண்டிக்க முடிய வில்லை. அதேமாதிரி பல நிர்வாகம் அப்படியே ஆலயம் என்று ஒன்று இருக்கு மேலானால், தேவஸ்தானமென்று இருக்குமேயானால் அதில் அங்கங்கே சில குற்றபாடுகள் இருக்கத்தான் செய்யும். அதை நாம் பாரக்காவி லில்லை. ஆகவே இந்த மசோதாவில் கண்டபடி சரியான முறையில் எல்லா இடத்திலும் உபயோகப்படுத்தி அதனால் பொது ஜனங்களுக்கு நன்மை ஏற்படும்படி செய்வேண்டியது அவசியம்தான். இந்த மசோதாவை கொண்டுவரப்பட்ட நோக்கத்தைப்பற்றி நேற்று கனம் மந்திரி அவர்கள் தன் துடைய பிசங்கத்தில் பேசும்போது பல மடங்கள் அநியாயமாக, அக் கிரமமாக பணத்தை வியாபம் செய்து வருவதாலேயே இதைக் கொண்டு வருவதாக குறிப்பிட்டார். நான் சொல்லுகின்றேன் மடாதிபதிகள் அங்கு மிகவும் ஓடுவர், இருவர் தவறு செய்திருக்கலாம். அதற்காக ஹிந்து மதக் தலைவர்கள் எல்லோரையும் ஒன்று சேர்த்து கேலாப்படுத்து பேசுவது ஹிந்து மதத்திற்கே ஹானியை உண்டாக்கிவிடுவதாகும். இந்த அரசாங்கத் தில் பல மதஸ்தர்கள் இங்கே கூடியிருக்கும்போது ஹிந்து மதத்தின் தலை வர்களைத் தாக்கிப் பேசுவது ரொம்ப வருந்தக்கூடியது. ஹிந்து மதத்தின் தலைவர்களாக இருப்பவர்களிடம் நாம் மரியாதை செலுத்தக் கடமை யிருக்கிறோம். ஹிந்து மதத் தலைவர்கள் யாராவது தவறு செய்திருக்க லும், அந்தத் தவறை அவர்களிடத்தில் தனியே சொல்லி அதற்குப் பி ளாபம் செய்யவேண்டும். அல்லது அந்தந்தக் கசுதியினர் அவர்கள் தங்கள் கசுதிக்கூடத்தில் அதைப் பிரேரித்து பரிகாரம் தேடிக்கொள்ளவேண்டுமே தவிர அது இஸ்லாமில் அரசாங்கச் சட்ட சபையில் தாக்கிப் பேசுவது ரொம்ப விசனிக்கேட்கக்கூது. நான் ஹிந்து மதத்திலுள்ள நண்பர்களைக் கேட்டுக்கொள்ளுகிறேன். இந்த மசோதாவின் விவாதத்தின்போது பல மதஸ்தர்களும் உள்ள இவ்விடத்தில் நம் ஹிந்து மதத் தலைவர்களை அவ மரியாதையாகப் பேசாதீர்கள் என்று; அது எங்கள் மனதைப் புண்படுத்து கின்றது. உங்கள் வார்த்தைகளுக்கு எதிர்வாதம் ஆடவேண்டுமென்று தூண்டுகிறது. அந்த உணர்ச்சி என் மனதில் உண்டாகாவிட்டாலும் ஹிந்து மதப் பற்றுள்ளவர்கள் மனம் அதனால் சொல்லொனது துன்ப மடைகின்றது. அதனால் ஒரு சில மடாதிபதிகள் ஒழுங்காக நடந்து கொள்ளவில்லை என்றதற்குப் பொதுப்படையாக எல்லோரையும் தாக்கா தீர்மானம் எடுத்துக் கேட்டுக்கொள்ளுகிறேன். காஞ்சி காமகோடி பீடாதி பதினின் மடம் நன்றாக நடந்துவருவதற்காக அவர்களைப் பாராட்டவேண் டும். இன்னும் நன்றாக கனம் வேதாத்தினம் பிள்ளையவர்கள் திருப்பணந் தான் மதத்தைப்பற்றி பேசினார்கள். இம்மடங்களெல்லாம் தமிழகத்திலும் தமிழ் வளர்ச்சிக்காகவும் பல அரிய தொண்டுகள் செய்துகொண்டு நேர்மை

(With Deputy Speaker in the Chair.)

SRI N. ANNAMALAI PILLAI:—“கனம் தலைவர் அவர்களே! ஹிந்து மதஸ்தர்களை பிற மதஸ்தர்கள் மதமாற்றம் செய்து கொண்டிருந்த காரணத்தாலும், அன்னியர் ஆதிக்கியம் இந்நாட்டில் இருக்கின்ற காரணத்தாலும் ஹிந்து மதத்திற்கு ஹானி ஏற்பட்டுவிட்டது என்ற பயத்தால் அரசாங்கம் மத விஷயங்களில் தலையிடக்கூடாது என்று ஒப்பந்தம் ஏற்பட்டிருந்தது. ஆனால் அந்த நிலமை இப்போது மாறிப்போய்விட்டது. அன்னியர் ஆகித் தொலைந்துபோய்விட்டது. இந்தியர்கள் ஆகி இப் போது ஏற்பட்டு குடியரசு ஸ்தாபனம் செய்துவிட்டோம். நம் குடியரசு ஆகியின் அரசாங்கம் இதில் தலையிடுவது என்பது பொறுத்தமாகாது என எங்களுக்குத் தென்றனில்லை. புராண காலங்களிலேயே தேவாலயங்களையும், தேவஸ்தானங்களையும், ஆசிரமங்களையும் பெரிய பெரிய அரசாங்கமும், அந்த ராஜாங்கத்தாரும் தான் அதற்கு வேண்டிய ஆதரவு அளித்து அவைகளை நிர்வகித்து வந்திருக்கிறார்கள். ஆகையால் அதேமாதிரி குடியரசு ஏற்பட்டு ஜனங்களாலேயே ஆகிச் செய்யப்படுகின்ற இக்காலத்தில் சர்க்கார் அந்த ஸ்தாபனங்களை தங்கள் மேற்பார்வையில் வைத்துக்கொள் வது உசிதமானது. அது அனுசரிதமென்று சொல்வது தகாத காரியம். சர்க்கார் இவைகளை எடுத்துக் கொண்டால் பல அரிய காரியங்களைச் செய்ய முடியுமென்று நினைக்கிறேன். இன்று மடாதிபதிகளால் என்ன காரியங் கள் செய்யப்பட்டு வருகிறதோ அந்தக் காரியங்களை யெல்லாம் இன்னமும் அவர்கள் செய்துவரலாம். வாவு செலவு நிர்வாகத்தைத்தான் தற்போது அவர்களிடமிருந்து அரசாங்கத்தார் தங்கள் மேற்பார்வைக்குக் கொண்டு வருகிறார்கள். அவ்வாறு கொண்டு வரும்போது அந்தப் பணத்தை ஆஸ்பத்திரிகளுக்கும், பள்ளிக்கூடங்களுக்கும் உபயோகப்படுத்தக்கூடாது என்று சிலர் சொன்னார்கள். அதை நான் விரும்பவில்லை. மடாதிபதி கள் இந்த தேசத்தின் தலைவர்கள். அவர்கள் சர்வ பரித்தியாகம் செய் தவர்கள். ஜனங்களின் வாழ்க்கைக்காக தங்கள் வாழ்வை அர்ப்பணம் செய்துவிட்டு, பிறம்மாசாரியாகவே இருந்து ஹிந்து மதத்திற்கு அரும் பெரும் தியாகம் செய்துவந்த உத்தமர்கள். இன்னமும் அப்படியே செய்துவருகிறார்கள். ஒன்றிரண்டு இடங்களில் தவறு நிகழ்ந்து போ யிருந்தால் அதைப்பற்றி நாம் சிந்திக்க வேண்டியதில்லை. ஹிந்து மதம் புராண பெருமை மிக்கதாகும். அரசாங்கத்தார் இதில் தலை யிட்டு முன்பிருந்த அந்த மடங்களின் நிர்வாகம் இன்னும் திறம்பட வேலை செய்யும்வகையில், ஹிந்து மதம் தழைத்தோங்க அவைகள் சீர்படும் முறையில் இருத்தி அமைக்கவே கனம் மந்திரி ராஜன் அவர்கள் இந்தச் சட்டத்தைக் கொண்டு வந்திருப்பாரென்று நான் நினைக்கிறேன். இப்போது திருப்பதி, திருமலை போன்ற இடங்களில் தேவஸ்தான டணத்தை வைத்துக்கொண்டு ஹை ஸ்கூல்களும், பள்ளிக்கூடங்களும், ஆஸ்பத்திரி

[Sri N. Annamalai Pillai] [12th September 1950]

தனம் நடத்துகிறார்கள். அதை ஆதிவசியிலும் பார்த்துக்கொண்டிருந்து விட்டு, இன்னொருபுறம் அம்மாதிரி தேவஸ்தானங்களிலே பணத்தை எடுத்து ஆஸ்பத்திரி, பள்ளிக்கூடம் போன்றவகையில் செலவிடக்கூடாது என்பது முன்முயற்சி பின் முறையை ஒத்திருக்கிறது. உதாரணமாக திருப்பணந் தான் மட்டும் தகுதியும் ஆதிமை, சன்மை மட்டும் இவைகளைவிடவும் தமிழ் வளர்ச்சிக்காக அல்லாத பண்பாட்டின்கீழ் செலவிடக்கூடாது என்று ரூபாய் களை மரிக்க வைத்து வருஷம் வருஷம் தமிழ் மொழியின் வெற்றி பெற்ற வர்களுக்கும் பண்பாடு கொடுத்து உற்சாகம் அளித்து வருகிறார்கள். இப் போது அவர்கள் சொன்னால் வேலையோ, அந்த கொத்துக்களின் நிர்வாகப் பொறுப்பை அவர்கள் ஏற்றுக் கொள்ளும்போது தமிழ் வளர்ச்சிக்காகவும் தமிழ், ஆனால் பாடசாலைகளுக்காகவும், செலவிடவதை என் எதிர்க்க வேண்டுமென எண்ணத் தெரியவில்லை.

[12th September 1950] [Sri N. Annamalai Pillai]

“கனம் கோசல்ராம் அவர்கள் என் நண்பர் ஸ்ரீமான் நாடிமுத்து பிள்ளையைப் பற்றி நேற்றையதினம் தப்பாகச் சூறிப்பட்டார்கள். அதை நான் மறுக்க வேண்டியதாக இருக்கிறது. ஸ்ரீமான் நாடிமுத்து பிள்ளை அவர்கள் தன் மனதில் என்ன தோன்றியதோ அதைச் செய்ய முயற்சிப்ப தில் தவறு ஒன்றுமில்லை. அவ்வாறு அவர் செய்யக்கூடாது என்று நிர்பந்தப்பதும் கூடாது. அப்படி நிர்பந்திப்போமானால் அது ஜனநாயகம் ஆகாது.

“மற்றும் பல மெம்பர்கள், இந்த பில்லை பெரும்பாலான மக்கள் ஆதரிக்கின்றார்கள். இந்த பில்லை யாராவது எதிர்த்தால் அவர்கள் பொது மக்களிடையே போய் பேசுவதன் தெரியும் என்று சிலர் ‘சாலஜி’ செய்வதை நான் கேட்டேன். அவர்கள் அம்மாதிரி சவால் விடுவது சரியல்ல. இந்தச் சபையில் இரண்டு கஷ்டக்காரர்களும் பேசுவதற்கு உரிமை யுண்டு. ஜனங்களால் எல்லாரும் ஓட்டுப் போடப்பட்டு தோந்தெடுக்கப்பட்டு வந்திருக்கிறார்கள். அவரவர்கள் அப்பிராயத்தைச் சொல்வது குற்ற மாகாது. இங்கே யுள்ள ஜனநாயகப் பிரதிநிதிகள் சொல்லும் வசியம் யாவையும் சர்க்கார் கூர்ந்து கவனமாக வேண்டுமென்று கேட்டுக்கொள்ளு கிறேன்.”

DEPUTY SPEAKER:—“There are still 17 more hon. Members to take part. I am fixing a time-limit of ten minutes for each speaker, hereafter.”

SRI R. RAGHAVA MENON:—“Madam, Deputy Speaker, this Bill on religious and charitable institutions, as it has come to this Assembly after the deliberations in the Select Committee is certainly much better than what it was when it was introduced. But at the same time I feel obliged to place a few ideas before this House. I support to a certain extent my hon. Friend Mr. Bhashyam's amendment to send back the Bill to the same Select Committee, as the Bill offends the Constitution Act. But if, on the other hand, it has already been examined by the law officers and the Advocate-General, and if they had declared that it does not offend the provisions of the Constitution Act, I have nothing to say on that point.

“But, on the merits of the Bill, I have got very grave misgivings about its success, unless the Government is particularly careful in the administration of this Act. The measure, as it is now, is taking over religious institutions which have come into existence, not as a result of public revenues collected and expended on them. They are institutions endowed by rich families and rich persons; and their idea was that temples must be established, spiritual institutions must be established in our country, which will promote the religious and spiritual welfare of the people. It was with this intention that these institutions were endowed. Now, this Government is laying its hands at the very root of these institutions; true, perhaps as a result of these institutions being not properly managed by the present persons who are in charge of them, being hereditary trustees or being successors of the persons who endowed them. Still, the fact is there, that these religious institutions which are not to be controlled by the Government are not thought to be controlled by them. Madam, it is said that ours is a secular Government. It does not mean by that that such a Government will not advance religious ideas and principles. It means that that Government will do things without caring for the several religions which constitute the religion of the citizens of that Government. So, why should such a Government take over the complete management of these Hindu religious institutions? Would it not be better for the Government to appoint a committee of retired high officials, who, by their pious nature, by their learning and by their knowledge will be the proper persons to manage these religious institutions? For instance, a committee of five members, consisting of two or three retired High Court Judges and one or two high officials, who are noted for their capacity of administration, for their religious tendencies, for their high culture and for their cleverness in managing things, may be appointed. If they are given unfettered freedom with a nominal control of the Government over them, that would be much better than this rigorous administration as proposed in the present measure, with the Government at the top, assisted by a Commissioner, Deputy Commissioner, a body of Government officials and an area committee nominated by the Government. Under this system no temple will have, in its management, the whole-hearted co-operation of the villagers. For, whom do you think the Government officials nominate to committees of this nature. They generally nominate only those who come into close contact with them and they generally happen to be unpopular with the villagers. Already we have experience of that in our food committees. Can anyone say that the food committees have worked well? What is there now not to presume that this same thing will be repeated in the case of area committees? If the Government could not satisfactorily administer food, which is most important for our very existence on earth, which is a material more important than spirituality, and which is all-absorbing—if that could not be properly administered, are they going to administer religious institutions successfully by adopting the same method? Madam, I say, the method is not correct. This method will not give us the right sort of officials. They are mostly young people fresh from college; they are mere infants in administrative field, and their ideas will certainly collide with the ideas and sentiments of the villagers; and so, the necessary co-operation from the villagers will not be forthcoming. There is also this fact: that whatever such officers do will have to be supported by the higher officials by way of prestige; and so, whatever they do will be approved—however much we, here, in this Assembly, may cry hoarse declaring that we are the representatives of the people, that this is a popular Government, and so what we say should carry weight. Thus, you will find in effect, the administration will not be conducive to the benefit of these religious institutions. So, I suggest the method of selection to area committees should be changed. There should be a salutary change in the method of selection. We have already had experience in seeing Tahsildars and Deputy Collectors selecting only men who are unpopular in their villages. That will certainly happen here also, in the case of these area committees, with the result that these area committees will be condemned by all people. When such sort of people are thrust on these religious institutions to manage them, do Government seriously think that things will go on smoothly. You may take it from me, Madam, it will not improve matters. I request the Hon. Minister to bear this in mind. Suppose, you may say, 'I will throw the area committee open for election.' But, still there will be trouble, though it may be to a less degree.

"Then, Madam, there is provision for appointment of Assistant Commissioners. Who will be those officers except the Tahsildars, Deputy Tahsildars and Deputy Collectors? What is their religious inclination to administer these religious institutions, I ask? Perhaps the Government may say, 'they are good as administrators.' To administer in the secular executive field is quite different from administering in the religious field. Both are entirely different. We are confusing the two here; and there is an element of totalitarianism present in this Bill. When I say this, I should not be misunderstood. I am not against having temples. I have got my own view of religion. I am only saying the machinery that is devised by the Government is not a salutary one for the proper administration of temples. I am also eager, like the Government, to set right the corrupt practices and inefficient administration that is going on among temple authorities and matathipathis. This sort of provincialization of religious institutions is not done anywhere else except in Western countries. There, we know what it is; they have got a separate department for it; that is not what we are doing here. Why should the officials in charge of these institutions be influenced by the Government of the day. So I would suggest to our Government to wait and see what the Central Government are going to do in this matter for the whole of India. Let us wait and see what will be the machinery they will devise for religious institutions.

"Then, Madam, I have another matter to mention. No amount should be taken from the funds of these institutions except for the promotion of religious and spiritual matters. Should there be no funds to manage them, the Government should not borrow funds, for, nobody would come forward to repay them. And then, the entire funds of maths and temples should be spent for religious purposes only; and, then, it is only the surfeit after that, which may be taken away. As my time is over I resume my seat."

SUBBARAMAN :—"கனம் சபாநாயகி அவர்களே, கனம் மந்திரி அவர்கள் Select Committee-யார் கொடுத்த அறிக்கையை பிரேரேபித்தார். அந்த பிரேரேபணையை நான் பொதுவாக அகிரித்து. இவ்வார்த்தைகளைச் சொல்லவேண்டுமென்று விரும்புகிறேன். இந்திய அரசியல் சட்டத்தில் மத சம்மந்தமாக நம் சர்க்கார் பிரவேசிக்க ஒருவிதமான அனுமதியும் இல்லை என்று விவாதிக்கப்பட்டது. சென்ற தடவையில் விவாதம் நடந்தபொழுது கனம் மந்திரி அவர்கள் அதற்கு பதிலளித்த விட்டார். ஆனால், இப்பொழுது கொண்டு வந்தள்ள மசோதா மத சம்மந்தமாக பிரவேசிக்க வேண்டுமென்ற நோக்கத்துடன் கொண்டுவரப்பட்டது.

[Sri N. M. P. Subbaraman] [12th September 1950]

மத சம்மந்தமான தர்ம ஸ்தாபனங்களின் நிர்வாகத்தில் சர்க்கார் கவனம் செலுத்த வேண்டுமென்பதற்காகவும் அவைகள் சரியாக நடக்கின்றனவா என்று அவைகளை மேற்பார்வையிட வேண்டுமென்பதற்காகவும் இந்த சட்டம் கொண்டுவரப்பட்டிருக்கிறது. இந்த விதமான சட்டத்தை நாம் கொண்டுவருவதற்கு இந்தியா சட்டம் அனுமதிக்கிறது. ஆகையால் இந்த விதமான விவாதத்தை மறுபடியும் மறுபடியும் சிளப்பி ஆட்சேபிப்பதில் சிறிதும் நியாயம் இல்லை. அத்துடன் இன்னொன்றும் கூறப்படுகிறது. இப்பொழுது நடப்பது ஒரு லென்கை சர்க்கார் அதாவது லென்கை கமிட்டி மெண்டு. ஆகவே ஒரு பிரிவாகிய ஹிந்துக்கள் சம்பந்தமான ஸ்தாபனங்களை மட்டும் தான் இதன் கீழ் கொண்டுவரப்படுகிறது. எல்லா மத ஸ்தாபனங்களையும் ஒன்று சேர்த்து நாம் நிர்வகிக்க வேண்டுமென்று இந்த சட்டத்தை கொண்டுவரவில்லை என்று கூறப்படுகிறது. இவ்விதமாக பொது ஸ்தாபனங்களை சர்க்கார் எடுத்து நடத்தவேண்டுமென்ற எண்ணம் கிருஸ்தவர்களிடத்திலோ அல்லது இஸ்லாமியர்களிடத்திலோ அதிகமாக இல்லை. அவர்களுடைய ஸ்தாபனங்களை சர்க்கார் எடுத்து நிர்வகிக்க வேண்டும், பொது மேற்பார்வையில் இருக்கவேண்டுமென்ற அபிப்பிராயம் அவர்களிடத்தில் இல்லாதால் ஹிந்து மதம் சம்பந்தப்பட்டமடில்தான் கொண்டுவரப்பட்டது. தவிர இன்னொரு காரணம் கூட சொல்ல முடியும். கிருஸ்தவர்களோ முஸ்லிம்களோ அவர்கள் தங்களுடைய தர்ம ஸ்தாபனங்களை ஒருமாதிரியான நல்ல விதத்தில் நடத்துகிறார்கள் என்று சொல்ல வேண்டும். ஆனால் ஹிந்துக்கள் சம்பந்தப்பட்டவரையில் அவ்விதம் சொல்வதற்கில்லை. எல்லா ஸ்தாபனங்களும் நல்ல முறையில் நடக்கவில்லை என்று சொல்லவில்லை. ஒன்றிமைய ஸ்தாபனங்கள் சரியான முறையில் நடக்கின்றன, பெரும்பாலான ஸ்தாபனங்கள் நல்ல முறையில் நடக்கவில்லை என்று தான் தெரியவருகிறது. இவ்விதம் சர்க்கார் எடுத்து நடத்தாமல் வேறு யாருடைய கவனத்திலாவது வைத்து நடத்தலாம் என்று நினைப்பதற்கு ஒரு ஆதாரமும் இல்லை. ஆகவே சர்க்காரால்தான் இவைகளை எடுத்து நடத்தமுடியும் என்ற முடிவிற்கு வந்திருக்கிறது. இப்பொழுது ஹிந்து மத தர்ம ஸ்தாபனங்கள் சரியான முறையில் நடக்கின்றனவா என்பது பார்க்கவேண்டும். ஹிந்து சமூகம் தாங்களாகவே தங்களுடைய தர்ம ஸ்தாபனங்கள் ஒழுங்கான முறையில் நடக்கின்றன வென்று சொல்லியிருந்தால் நிச்சயமாக சர்க்கார் இந்தக் காரியத்தில் பிரவேசித்திருக்கமாட்டார்கள். பொது மக்களுடைய ஆதரவு இதை ஸ்தாபனங்களுக்கு இல்லாதிருந்தாலும் அவைகளுக்கு இப்பொழுதுள்ள நிலை ஏற்பட்டதாலும் சர்க்கார் இதில் பிரவேசிக்க முன் வந்தார்கள். ஆகவே இந்த சட்டத்தை பொதுவாகவே எல்லோரும் வரவேற்கிறார்கள்.

“எந்தென்கே தர்ம ஸ்தாபனங்கள் சரியாக நடக்கவில்லையோ அந்தத் ஸ்தாபனங்களைமட்டும் இந்த சட்டத்தின் கீழ் கொண்டுவரவேண்டுமென்று நான் சர்க்காரிடம் தெரிவித்துக்கொள்ளுகிறேன். உதாரணமாக இப்பொழுது இராமகிருஷ்ண மடம் இருக்கிறது. அதையும் ஒரு அழகான நடத்தை சிறந்த அப்பிடிப்பட்ட ஸ்தாபனங்களை நம் சர்க்கார் தங்களுடைய அதிகாரத்திற்குள் கொண்டுவர வேண்டுமென்று நினைக்கவே கூடாது. அந்த ஸ்தாபனத்தை பார்த்து மற்ற ஸ்தாபனங்களும் நடக்கும்படியாக சர்க்கார் செய்யும் பட்சத்தில் அது ஒரு பெரிய உதவியாக இருக்கும்.

“இந்த சட்டம் முக்யமாக இன்னும் ஒரு நோக்கத்துடன்தான் கொண்டுவரப்பட்டிருக்கிறது. இப்பொழுது ஹிந்து மத தர்ம பரிபாலன போர்டு இருக்கிறது. அந்த போர்டின் மேற்பார்வையில் இப்பொழுது ஸ்தாபனங்கள் நடந்துவருகின்றன. ஆனால் சட்டப்பிரகாரம் அதற்கு சரியான அதிகாரம் கொடுக்கப்படவில்லை. முக்யமாக இப்பொழுது மடங்கள் அநேகமாக தமது தலாக நடக்கின்றன. அந்த மடங்களைப்பற்றி விசாரித்து விஷயங்களைத் தெரிந்து கொள்ளவோ, அவைகளை ஒழுங்குப் படுத்தவோ முடியாத நிலைமையில் இப்பொழுது போர்டு இருக்கிறது. ஹிந்து மத போர்டு தர்ம ஸ்தாபனங்களை நல்ல முறையில் நடத்த முடியாமலிருப்பதால் அதை உத்தேசித்துதான் சர்க்கார் இந்த புது சட்டத்தை கொண்டுவருகிறார்கள். அதிகமான அதிகாரத்தையும் எடுத்துக் கொண்டிருக்கிறார்கள். இவ்விதம் செய்வதால் நிர்வாகத்தை ஒழுங்குப் படுத்துவதும், சரியாக

[12th September 1950] [Sri N. M. R. Subbaraman]

“மத ஸ்தாபனங்களைத் தவிர தர்ம சொத்துக்களையும் இதில் சேர்க்கப்படுகிறது. அது மிகவும் அவசியம் என்று நினைக்கிறேன். நம் முன்னோர்கள் நல்ல நோக்கத்துடன் பல தர்ம ஸ்தாபனங்களை ஏற்படுத்தினார்கள். ஆனால் அந்த ஸ்தாபனங்கள் எந்த நோக்கத்துடன் ஆரம்பிக்கப்பட்டதோ அவ்வாறு இப்பொழுது நடப்பது இல்லை. ஆகவே இவைகள் விஷயத்திலும் சர்க்கார் பிரவேசித்தது மிகவும் அவசியம். சர்க்கார் கவனம் இல்லாமல் அந்த தர்ம ஸ்தாபனங்கள் சரியாக நடந்துவருகின்றனவா என்று பார்த்தால் அது இல்லை. தர்ம ஸ்தாபனத்தின் நோக்கத்தை நிறைவேற்ற முடியாமலிருக்கும் நிலைமையில் அரசாங்கம் அவைகளை எடுத்துக் கொள்வது மிகவும் சரி என்று நான் நினைக்கிறேன். தர்ம ஸ்தாபனத்திற்கும் பெரிது ஜனங்களுக்குமுள்ள தொடர்பு நாளுக்கு நாள் வளர்ந்து கொண்டே வரவேண்டும். அதற்காகவே ஸ்தாபனங்களை நல்ல முறையில் நடத்த வேண்டும். தர்ம ஸ்தாபனங்களுக்கும் மடங்களுக்கும் பொது ஜனங்கள் வருகின்றார்கள். எவ்வளவோ பணம் கொடுக்கிறார்கள். சொத்தை அளிக்கிறார்கள். ஆனால் அந்தப் பணத்தையும் சொத்தையும் உபயோகிக்கும் முறையில் பொதுமக்களுக்கோ அல்லது தர்மம் செய்வதற்குக்கோ எந்த விதமான உரிமையும் இல்லை. பொது ஜனங்களுக்கு சொத்துகளை கொடுப்பதற்குதான் உரிமை இருக்கிறதேயொழிய அவைகள் நல்ல முறையில் சிலவழிக்கப்படுகின்றனவா என்று கேட்க உரிமையில்லை. ஸ்தாபனங்களை பொது ஜனங்கள் எடுத்து நடத்துவதற்கும் உரிமையில்லை. இந்த நிலைமையை அவசியம் மாற்றியமைக்கவேண்டியதாக இருக்கிறது. இப்பொழுது பெரும்பாலான தர்ம ஸ்தாபனங்கள் கெட்டுப்போய்விட்டன. ஆனால் கிருஸ்தவ ஸ்தாபனங்களை நாம் பார்த்தால் அங்கே அவர்களுடைய ஸ்தாபனங்களும் பொது ஜனங்களிடமிருந்து பணத்தை வாங்கி நடந்துவருகின்றன. அவ்விதம் நடத்தும்பொழுது பொது ஜன பிரதிநிதிகளால்தான் அவைகளின் நிர்வாகம் நடத்தப்படுகிறது. இவ்வாறுதான் நம்முடைய ஸ்தாபனங்களுக்கும் பணம் வருகிறது. அவ்வாறுகே நம்முடைய தர்ம ஸ்தாபனங்களையும் நடத்த வேண்டும்.

[12th September 1950]

SRI V. KURMAYYA:—"Madam Deputy Speaker, to-day the House is discussing the report of the Joint Select Committee on the Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Bill. This is a most important Bill which requires the attention of the whole of India. From the history of the temples and maths, we are not able to know for what purposes and by whom and when the maths were founded or the great temples of South India were constructed. The Government call themselves a secular Government and this State a secular State. Such a Government are sponsoring a legislation to take over the supervision of the ancient temples constructed long long ago by religious teachers with the help of the rich people, the zamindars and the Rajas. Every ancient temple in South India reveals the greatness of India's past. I personally think that by interfering with them by a legislation like this, we are only going to see that the temples do not exist for ever. Once a secular Government begin to set their hands on religious institutions, I do not think there will be any limit to it. Any Government other than a Congress Government, say a Communist Government, may come into power in future and pass an order to destroy all temples. We know that the Communists have no faith in religion. That is why I say that once we begin to interfere with religious institutions, there is no end to it. We have not been elected by the people on the definite issue of interference with religion and vesting the administration of the great and ancient temples in the Government. Our religious gurus like Ramanujacharya, Sankaracharya and Ramakrishna Paramahansa dedicated their lives for the spread of the great Hindu religion not only in this country but in other countries also. Swami Vivekananda, who was a disciple of Ramakrishna Paramahansa, went to America, spread the greatness of Hindu religion, built Hindu temples, and converted some Americans to Hinduism.

"Provision is made in the Bill for every religious institution to pay to the Government annually a sum not exceeding 5 per cent of its annual income. In view of this provision, I do not think that hereafter any temple-goer or worshipper will contribute anything for the construction of new temples or the renovation of old temples or for offering pujas in these holy temples. Before the Madras Temple Entry Act came into force, I had a vague idea about temples. But after that Act came into force, I have visited almost all the big temples in South India. These temples really serve the needs of the orthodox and the conservative people. We know that our country is not a materialist country; our country is a religious country. Religious people have constructed great temples and maths. It is not fair for a secular Government to lay their hands on them and take over their administration. I know that the funds of some temples and maths are misappropriated. What is the reason for the misappropriation? Before the Hindu Religious Endowments Act, 1928, came into force, the trustees were either hereditary trustees or people appointed with the consent of the matathipathis or religious people and people who contributed to temple funds. They were rich and respectable people. But after the Act came into force, the people nominated to be trustees by the Commissioner, Deputy Commissioner or Assistant Commissioners were irreligious people and people who did not deserve. I know that many of the trustees nominated by the Government or their officers are irreligious. Is it not the duty of the Government to see that such people are not nominated to be trustees of religious institutions? During my visit to several temples, many people have told me that people who have no faith in religion are appointed as trustees, and they arbitrarily reduce the amount that can be spent by the pujaris or archakas on the various offerings to God. It is not right on the part of the Government to interfere with religious institutions. The other day a member from the Muslim bloc said that the Government should not interfere with Muslim and Christian religious endowments. Then, what justification is there for this House to pass a legislation to interfere with Hindu religious institutions alone, when its members have been elected mainly for the purpose of wrecking the constitution under the 1935 Act and framing a new Constitution through a Constituent Assembly?

"The Hon. Dr. T. S. S. Rajan, the mover of the Bill, and my friend Sri T. S. Pattabhiraman said that this Bill had got the support of the public. I say that this Bill has not got public support. Did they ascertain the opinion of the temple-goers and people who have contributed to the funds of temples and maths? I say that a majority of the members of the Joint Select Committee which considered this Bill are irreligious. I know the Hon. Minister who moved this Bill has no faith in religion or caste. He is an atheist. All religions are the same to him."

THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN:—"I am here to contradict that statement."

DEPUTY SPEAKER:—"The hon. Member should not indulge in personal attack. He may criticize the Bill if he likes."

SRI V. KURMAYYA:—"What I want to say is that the Hon. Minister has no faith at all in any religion. He is above all religions."

"The officers that are going to be appointed by the Government like the Commissioner, Deputy Commissioners and Assistant Commissioners will not be imbued with a spirit of service to temples. They will be responsible to the Government only for the proper maintenance of accounts, and not for bringing forward measures to improve the temples. I request the Hon. Minister to see that only people well-versed in Sanskrit, people who have read the Vedas and who can recite the Vedic hymns and mantras well are appointed as Commissioner, Deputy Commissioners and Assistant Commissioners."

(Deputy Speaker sounded the gong.)

[12th September 1950]

SRI V. KURMAYYA:—“Madam Deputy Speaker, please allow me five more minutes.”

DEPUTY SPEAKER:—“The hon. Member must conclude now.”

SRI V. KURMAYYA:—“Madam Deputy Speaker, why I oppose this Bill is that the Government should have no control over religious institutions, so long as they claim to be a secular Government and our constitution has laid down that a secular State should not interfere with religious matters and religious institutions. Therefore this Bill is opposed to the principles laid down in the Constitution Act because it seeks to take control of the properties of mutts and temples and manage their affairs. I submit, Madam, though the Government boast themselves as a secular State, in practice and in reality, they are not a secular Government.”

SRIMATHI K. LAKSHMI AMMAL:—“கனம் உப தலைவர் அவர்களே, இந்த ஹிந்து மத அற நிலைய மசோதாவை நான் முழு மனதுடன் வரவேற்று சந்தோஷத்துடன் ஆதரித்து சில வார்த்தைகள் பேச விரும்புகின்றேன்.

“இந்த மசோதா மூன்று வருஷத்திற்கு முன்னாலேயே வந்திருக்க வேண்டியது. சில முக்கியமான சட்டங்கள் அந்த சமயத்தில் செய்ய வேண்டியிருந்ததினால் இவ்வளவு தாமதமாக இதைக் கொண்டுவரவேண்டியதாயிற்று. இன்னும் இதை தாமதப்படுத்தாத முறையில் ரொம்ப சீக்கிரத்தில் கொண்டுவரவேண்டியது நம் எல்லோருடைய கடமையாகும். இந்த மசோதாவை சிலர் எதிர்த்து வர்தாடி வருவதன் நோக்கம் அதை மீண்டும் தாமதப்படுத்தவேண்டுமென்ற எண்ணத்தினால்தான் என நினைக்கின்றேன். இன்னும் சிலர் இந்தச் சட்டமானது இந்திய அரசியல் சட்டத்திற்கு விரோதமானது என்று சொல்லுகிறார்கள். ஆனால் இதில் சமீபத்தில் நிறைவேற்றப்பட்ட அரசியல் சட்ட விதிகளுக்கு இந்த மசோதா விரோதமாக ஒன்றுமில்லையென்று நம்முடைய சர்க்கார் சட்ட நிபுணர்கள் சொல்லுகிறார்கள். இதை செலக்ட் கமிட்டிக்கு விட்டு அங்கு பரிசீலனை செய்யும்போது கூட சர்க்கார் வக்கீல் அட்வகேட்-ஜெனரல் அவர்களும் கூடவே யிருந்தார்கள். இங்கு பேசியபோது கனம் பாஷ்யம் ஐயங்கார் அவர்கள் இந்த பில்லை மறுபடியும் செலக்ட் கமிட்டிக்கு அனுப்பவேண்டுமென்றும் அதை மீண்டும் அட்வகேட்-ஜெனரல் அவர்கள் பரிசீலிக்கவேண்டுமென்றும் சொன்னார்கள். செலக்ட் கமிட்டியில் பாஷ்யம் ஐயங்கார் அவர்களும் இருந்தார்கள். அட்வகேட்-ஜெனரலும் இவ்வொரு நாளும் வந்து தகுந்த யோசனைகளைச் சொல்லியிருக்கிறார். ஆகையால் மறுபடியும் இதைக் கூட்டு செலக்ட் கமிட்டிக்கு அனுப்பவேண்டுமென்று சொல்வது வீணாக காலதாமதம் செய்வதற்குத்தான் என்று எண்ணுகிறேன். இந்த அற நிலைய மசோதாவும் அரசியல் சட்டத்திற்கு விரோதமானது என்று எங்குத் தோன்றவில்லை. என்னென்றல் பம்பாய் ராஜ்யத்திலும் இதற்கைய சட்டத்தை நிறைவேற்றியிருக்கிறார்கள். நம்முடைய ஜனாதிபதி ராஜேந்திரப்பிரகாஷ் அவர்களுடைய சொந்த மாகாணமாகிய பீகாரிலும் கூட இதுமாதிரி பில்லைக்கொண்டு வர ஏற்பாடு செய்திருக்கிறார்கள். இந்த மசோதா சட்ட விரோதமானதென்றால் அந்த மாகாணங்களிலெல்லாம் இந்த மாதிரியான பில்லைக் கொண்டுவருவார்களா வென்று நான் எல்லோரையும் கேட்கிறேன். இது ரொம்பவும் அவசியமான, அவசரமான, நியாயமான சட்டமென்று நம் எல்லோருக்கும் தெரியும். ஆகையால் இதை எல்லோரும் வரவேற்கவேண்டுமென்று நான் கேட்டு கொள்ளுகிறேன். ஹிந்து மதத்தில் நம்பிக்கையுள்ளவர்களும், ஹிந்து ஆய்வுகள் புனிதப்படுவேண்டுமென்ற எண்ணமுடையவர்களும், மடாதிபதி

[12th September 1950] [Srimathi K. Lakshmi Ammal]

“நாம் எல்லோருமே நன்றாக யோசித்து நமக்குள் ஒரு கேள்வியை கேட்டுக்கொள்ளவேண்டும், அதாவது இன்று ஆலயங்களும், மடங்களும் அவற்றின் சொத்துக்களும் சரியான முறையில் பரிபாலிக்கப்பட்டு வருகின்றதாவென்று கேட்டுக்கொள்வோமேயானால் நமக்குச் சிறிது வெட்கம் தான் வற்பும். இன்று ஒன்றிரண்டு இடங்களிலே நிர்வாகம் கொஞ்சம் ஒழுங்காக நடக்கிறதென்றால் அது 25 வருஷங்களுக்கு முன்னாலே ஏற்படுத்தப்பட்ட ஹிந்து மத பரிபாலன போர்டு சட்டத்தினாலேயாகும். அந்தச் சட்டத்திலுள்ள குறைபாடுகளை நீக்கி சரியான முறையில் நிர்வகிக்க வேண்டுமென்பதற்காகத்தான் இந்தச் சட்டத்தைக்கொண்டு வந்திருக்கிறோம்.

“இந்தச் சட்டத்தின் அடிப்படையான நோக்கம் தர்மஸ்தாபனங்களை யும், அவற்றின் சொத்துகளையும், சரியான முறையில் பரிபாலனம் செய்வதேயாகும். மேற்படி சொத்துக்களை சர்க்காரே நேரிடையாக எடுத்து தரங்களே மாணேஜ்மெண்டு செய்வது என்பதல்ல. அப்படி இந்தச் சட்டத்தில் கிடையாது. இதை கனம் டாக்டர் ராஜன் அவர்கள்கூட தனது உபநாயகியில் நன்றாக விளக்கிச் சொல்லியிருக்கிறார். இதற்கு உபமானமாக ஒன்று சொல்லவேண்டுமானால் மைனருக்கு கோர்ட்டு கார்டியன் போலச் சொல்லலாம். இதில் கமிஷனர் சரியான மாணேஜ்மெண்டு நடக்கின்றதா என்று தான் பார்த்துக்கொள்ளவேண்டும். ஆனால் நண்பர் கோபால் ஸ்வாமி அவர்கள் பேசியபோது கனம் டாக்டர் ராஜன் அவர்கள் சொல்லியது தவறு என்றும் 22-வது விதிப்பிரகாரம் கமிஷனர்களே மாணேஜ்மெண்டு செய்வதாகவும் படித்தார்கள். ஆனால் அந்த விதியில் கமிஷனர் தாங்களே மாணேஜ்மெண்டு செய்வதாகக் கூறப்படவில்லை. சரியான மாணேஜ்மெண்டு நடக்குமாறு பார்த்துக்கொள்ளவேண்டுமென்றுதான் கூறி இருக்கிறது. அதாவது to see to the proper management என்பதுதான் அங்குள்ள வார்த்தைகள் to manage என்று அங்கிலை.

[Srimathi K. Lakshmi Ammal]

[12th September 1950]

என்பதன் பொருள் ஜனங்களால் பரிபாலிக்கப்படவேண்டியது என்பது தான். ஆனால் அது திறமையாக நடப்பதும் நடக்காததும் அப்பொறுப்பை ஏற்கின்ற மனிதர்களைப் பொறுத்தேதான் அமையும். மத விஷயங்களில் நம்பிக்கையுள்ளவர்கள்தான் அந்த ஏரியாக் கமிட்டியில் வரவேண்டுமென்று நான் நினைக்கிறேன். ஆனால் இப்போதுள்ள சூழ்நிலையில் அந்த ஏரியா கமிட்டி வெற்றிகரமாக நடக்குமா என்று எண்ணும்போது நான் சற்று பயமாக இருக்கிறது.

“அதிகாரிகளை நியமிப்பதில் ஒரு வார்த்தை சொல்ல விரும்புகின்றேன். அதை முன்னாலேயும் சொல்லியிருக்கிறேன். அந்நிகு மத்ததிலும், ஆலய வழிபாட்டிலும் நம்பிக்கையுள்ளவர்களையே நியமிக்கவேண்டுமென நான் கேட்டுக்கொள்ளுகிறேன்.

“எந்தச் சட்டமும் பொது ஜன ஆதரவுடன் செய்யப்படவேண்டுமென்பது வாஸ்தவம்தான். இந்தச் சட்டத்தை நாம் 1948-ல் இங்கு கூடி விவாதித்தபோதும் கூட அனேக பொதுக்கூட்டங்களிலும் வளைக்கப்பட்டிருக்கிறது. இதற்குப் பொது ஜனங்களுடைய ஆதரவு பெருவாரியாக இருக்கிறது என்பது எனக்குத் தெரியும். இதை எதிர்ப்பவர்கள் மிகச் சிறுபான்மையோர்தான். அதிக மெஜாரிட்டி மக்கள் இது எப்போது வரும் என்று எதிர்பார்த்துக்கொண்டோனிருக்கிறார்கள். இதை எதிர்ப்பவர்கள் நண்பர் கோசல்ராம் சொன்னதுபோல பொதுக்கூட்டத்தில் சென்று மக்களுக்கு எடுத்துக்கூறி பார்க்கட்டும். அப்போது மக்களுடைய கருத்து எப்படி இந்த மசோதாவிற்குச் சாதகமாக இருக்கிறது என்பதை அவர்கள் தெரிந்துகொள்ளமுடியும்.

“எனவே புனிதமான ஹிந்துமதம் சீரும், சிறப்புமுற்று வளர்ந்து வருவதற்குச் சாதகமான இந்த மசோதாவை நான் முழுமனதுடன் ஆதரிக்கின்றேன்.”

SRI S. CHIDAMBARA AYYAR:—“Madam, Deputy Speaker, so far as this Bill is concerned, it is said that there is some legal objection to it, in that some of its provisions offend the Constitution Act. My hon. Friend Mr. Bhashyam has put that point very clearly before the House. But opinion is divided on that point. The Government are of the opinion that this Bill is perfectly constitutional and that it does not offend any of the provisions of the Constitution Act. Able lawyers like hon. Mr. Bhashyam differ from this view and think that if this matter is taken before a court of law, it might set aside this legislation as ultra vires of the Constitution. As my hon. Friend Mr. A. Vedaratnam Pillai suggested, in order to make ourselves doubly sure on this point, it is better to thrash it out again by the Select Committee, instead of taking it before the High Court. Anyway, I also agree with him that it is better to examine that point again and I support the motion moved by my hon. Friend Mr. Bhashyam for remitting this Bill back to the Select Committee.

“Now, Madam, coming to the Bill proper, my humble submission is that there are a large number of temples which are not managed properly. Only a few temples are managed properly, but a very large number of them, and particularly village temples, are not properly managed at all. In several village temples, the drastic amount is generally made use of by the trustee for his private purposes and is not spent on the services of the temples.

[12th September 1950]

[Sri S. Chidambara Ayyar]

There are, as I said just now, several temples in which mal-administration and misappropriation of funds has been going on and any amount of Government control would be of no avail. The Select Committee has also introduced area committees and Board of Trustees in between the Commissioners and the trustees. No doubt the committees are in the nature of old local committees which existed some years back, but I should like to suggest that it would be much better if the elective principle had been introduced by the Select Committee both in the constitution of the Board of Trustees and also in the Area Committees, because they will be the real representatives of the people in those committees and as such they will act as a liaison between the Government officers on the one hand and the trustees on the other. They will also be in a position to appoint proper trustees to the various temples. Madam, one more thing that I find in the Bill, as it has emerged from the Select Committee, is that powers have been given to the Commissioner to appoint a number of non-hereditary trustees in order to give them a majority of one in the Board of Trustees. Clauses 41, 44 and 45 provide for the appointment of both hereditary and non-hereditary trustees but the Commissioner has been given the power to appoint to the Board a number of non-hereditary trustees exceeding the number of the hereditary trustees by one, so that the majority may be the non-hereditary trustees. That means the hereditary trustees will have no voice either in the Board of Trustees or in the Area Committees. I think that such a provision is not desirable. There are certain hereditary trustees who are really doing very good service in the temples and I submit that the Select Committee should not have treated the hereditary trustees in the way in which they have treated them in this Bill and they should not have placed them in any less or subordinate position as compared to the non-hereditary trustees because they would not be in a position to do all that they want to do for the benefit of the temple on account of their subordinate position in these committees. These hereditary trustees have been for a very long associated with the affairs of these temples and they have been carrying on the administration of the temples all along and so they would be in a much better position to understand the needs and conveniences of the devotees and worshippers in these temples and that being the case, they should not in any way be placed in a subordinate position. I submit, Madam, that the whole scheme bristles with nominations and appointments of trustees by the Commissioner who are to carry out the orders of Government. The Area Committee members and the members of the Board of Trustees are all nominated and even the hereditary trustees are not allowed to have their own way, because they occupy only a subordinate position in these committees. There is thus a world of nominations in this Bill and I submit that it is not a sound principle to do so. I would, therefore, suggest that the members of the Area Committees as also of the Board of trustees might be elected, so that they might represent public opinion in their locality.

[Sri S. Chidambara Ayyar] [12th September 1950]

"Madam, in clause 62, the Deputy Commissioner has been entrusted with powers to inquire into and to decide whether a person is a hereditary trustee or not, whether he is entitled to any honour, emolument or perquisite in any religious institution, and what the established usage of a religious institution is in regard to any other matter. The Deputy Commissioner has to deal with a number of other matters which involve questions of law as also of facts. In fact, provision has also been made for suits and appeals against his orders. I suggest that the Deputy Commissioner should be a judicial officer who is well acquainted with the conduct of disputes and that he should be at least of the rank of a Subordinate Judge. Otherwise, there is no use of entrusting such powers to a person who is simply an executive officer not acquainted with legal matters. In fact, the Deputy Commissioner is initially to make inquiries as a judicial officer and, therefore, his office should be given the status of a judicial officer.

"Clauses 67 and 79 provide for suits and appeals against the orders of the Commissioner, but no power is given to the courts to stay such orders. I doubt if these provisions will be valid, especially in courts. When one goes to a court, the court is entrusted with the power to hear the case and give its decision and so it must have the power to stay the proceedings of the Commissioner. If a person is asked to file a suit or take an appeal to a civil court, it is only fair and proper that the courts should be given discretion to pass suitable orders in law. I really doubt, Madam, whether these clauses will be valid, especially in courts.

"Now, Madam, I come to the next subject, namely maths. I want that maths should be eschewed from this Bill altogether. If it is not possible, I would even suggest that a separate section may be introduced in the Bill granting exemption to maths and their administration. My hon. Friends Mr. Vedaratnam Pillai and Mr. Annamalai Pillai have said that there are very good maths in the Tanjore district which are doing very good work and which are very well-managed. They have testified to the efficient and useful way in which the Tirupanandal Math is being administered and how it has opened a Tamil College in the Tanjore district. Madam, in my own district of South Arcot in Mailam, there is a math and it has opened a Tamil College which has sent out Vidwans employed in several schools. At the same time, there are bad maths also and it is only just and proper that in respect of those, the Government should have full control over their affairs in order to see that they are conducted properly and their incomes are properly accounted for. If the Government proceed to take all the maths under their management, then I submit that the dignity of these maths and the matadhipathis will be lessened and even some of the excellent maths which are now doing very good work lose their enthusiasm and become indifferent. We should not, therefore, interfere with the affairs of very good maths. That is why I submit that a new clause may be introduced in the Bill where the Commissioner may be empowered to investigate into the existing maths and take over only such maths which are ill-managed and those which are doing excellent work may be exempted. The Select Committee has no doubt made some difference between temples and maths, and has placed maths on a higher level than temples. I submit, Madam, that the matathipathis should be given the respect due to them as some of them are the religious heads and are best suited to preach religion and they should be placed on a higher level than others. No doubt, clause 94 (b) states, 'Save as otherwise expressly provided in or under this Act, nothing herein contained shall authorize any interference with the religious and spiritual functions of the Head of a math, including those relating to the imparting of religious instruction or the rendering of spiritual service.' Therefore under this clause, even an officer appointed to control these maths should not interfere with the religious performances and duties of the heads of the maths. As my hon. Friend Mr. N. S. Varadachari pointed out, the margin between religious and secular powers is rather thin and it is difficult to define the scope and limit of their functions or to lay down as to how far the functions go in the religious sphere and how far in the secular sphere. My submission therefore is that well-managed maths which are doing very good service to the society should be exempted altogether from the purview of the Bill.

"Madam, clause 59 (1) provides that the trustee of every math or specific endowments attached to a math may, from time to time, submit to the Commissioner proposals for fixing the dittam or scale of expenditure in the institution, and the amounts which should be allotted to the various objects connected with the institution or the proportions in which the income or other property of the institution may be applied to such objects. I submit, Madam, that this provision is unnecessary in the case of maths although it may be necessary in the case of temples. There is already a manager appointed at the instance of the Matathipathis and he is responsible for the maintenance and submission of proper accounts to the Commissioner. I think that is enough safeguard to see that the funds of the maths are properly accounted for and their affairs properly administered. I also think that in the chapter on the notification of inclusion of maths is unnecessary and maths should be exempted altogether from the notification chapter.

"So far as the utilisation of the surplus funds of these temples are concerned, my submission is that so long as surplus funds are available they must be spent only on objects for which the trust or charity had been founded. But if after spending so much for such of the objects as are mentioned in the Trust, there still remains a surplus, perhaps it can be utilised for the other purposes mentioned in the Bill. But my own view is that so far as charitable endowments are concerned, we must administer them according to the original intention of the donors and that we must go slow in such matters, as otherwise it will dry up charity among people who are charitably disposed.

"With these words, Madam, I close."

SRI M. A. EASWARAN :—“Madam, Deputy Speaker, I welcome the Madras Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Bill. This Bill is brought forward just for the proper management of the religious and charitable endowments relating to temples and maths and not for any other purpose. This Bill does not interfere with the endowments except in respect of the management of the endowment funds. The object of the Bill is to divert the surplus funds of the endowments for the improvement of hospitals, orphanages, and for imparting education. These three are its objects for diversion of the endowment's surplus funds. Some hon. Members including the hon. Raja of Chettinad opposed the spending of the surplus money of the endowments for education, improvement of hospitals, and orphanages. They said that the funds should be used exclusively for religious purposes. Swami Sahajananda, the champion of the oppressed community, opposed the spending of the endowment fund for education, hospital, and orphanages. I do not know what God means or what Religion means to the devotees of that Religion. Are they to be kept in ignorance? Are they to be kept like beggars? Are they to be kept just like lepers walking along the streets to the temple and sitting on both sides of the front portion of the temple and beg of the devotees? Does our Religion want our people to remain like that? Take the charity funds of the Christians and Muslims. The funds entrusted with Christians are well managed. The St. Joseph's College in Tiruchirappalli has produced thousands of scholars. The Loyola college in Madras has produced thousands of scholars, and they have raised the standard of the mission. They have done yeoman service to humanity at large. The same is the case with regard to Muslim endowment funds. They are well spent and well managed. The Roman Catholic Church and the Loyola College are managed well. Their funds are well spent. The object of God is to see that all the devotees are well kept and brought to a standard, and are made to lead a respectable life. In this manner money should be spent. Therefore, if the endowment money is spent for the uplift of the devotees, it is in no way wrong. It is right. The surplus fund is to be spent for education, hospital and orphanages. This will be the wish of God. If that is not the wish of God, I do not know by what name the Hindu religion is to be called. Swami Vivekananda went to America and preached our Hindu religion there. He was welcomed by all there. The hon. Member Mr. N. S. Varadachari said that a large number of religious institutions are in South India and that North Indians are visiting places in the South like Rameswaram. No doubt there are very many big temples in South India. Many North Indians go to the South to worship in the shrines. But there are very many evils in Hinduism in the south. For instance, in Malabar there is this evil of 'unseeability.' A Nayadi in Malabar should not walk in the street. He has to lead his life as a beggar. When Gandhiji came to Malabar, at about noon he heard the voice of a Nayadi in the field, and he enquired who that man was who was crying at noon time. Somebody told him that he was a Nayadi, and that he was an unseeable. Gandhiji came down and talked to that Nayadi. Gandhiji asked 'have you ever walked in the street.' He replied 'No'. Gandhiji asked again 'why don't you walk.' He said 'If I begin to walk, I will be beaten to death by the caste Hindus.' Gandhiji asked him what his profession was, in reply to which he said 'begging.' Would you come with me and stay in my ashram, Gandhiji asked. He said that he should consult his people in the matter. At the while that Nayadi did not know that he was talking to Mahatma Gandhi. Gandhiji that evening spoke about this evil in Hindu religion. 'This evil must be eradicated if Hinduism is to survive,' Gandhiji said. When Swami Vivekananda visited Malabar, he characterised the place as a 'lunatic asylum,' because this evil was prevalent. There are very many evils like this which have to be eradicated from Hinduism if it is to survive. I oppose the motion to refer the Bill back to the Select Committee. Swami Sahajananda said that the word 'Hindu' should be removed and in its place the word 'India' should be substituted. I oppose this also. The Christian endowments and Muslim endowments are well administered. Their funds are well spent. There is one London Mission Hospital in Erode. It is there for the past thirty years. It has done very good service, and has earned a very good name. Most of the ryots in Coimbatore district and the adjoining districts go there for treatment and for delivery. My hon. Friend Mr. Subbanna Gounder knows this. There is a big math in Nerinjipatti in Bhavani taluk. It has vast property the income of which is worth nearly one lakh of rupees. Its funds are badly spent. Even when the devotees asked the trustees about the spending of the money, they were discourteously treated and sent out. There is one temple by name Angalamman temple in Erode town, endowment for which has been made by the Mysore kings 150 years ago. Out of the income, the temple must be maintained. But the pujari began to sell small pieces of land. In 1916 he sold about two or three pieces of land and appropriated the money for his own purposes. In 1949-50, ten pieces of land were sold out either by the trustee or the pujari. The sale-proceeds were used for their own purposes. This Bill is intended for the proper management of the temple funds. I can say that the Ramakrishna Math has done very good service and is doing good service among all the Hindu maths. All other maths must follow their example.

"Madam, I welcome this Bill wholeheartedly."

SRI S. C. BALAKRISHNAN:—"கனம் சபாநாயகி அவர்களே! ஏற்கெனவே பெரிய ஸ்தலங்களான பழனி சுப்பிரமணியஸ்வாமி தேவாலயம், மதுரை மீனாட்சி, சுந்தரேசர் கோவில் முதலியவைகளிலெல்லாம் நல்ல முறையில் நிர்வாகம் நடந்துகொண்டிருக்கிறது என்பது நாம் எல்லோரும் அறிந்த விஷயம்.

"ஆயினும் கூட இந்தச் சட்டத்தை ஏன் கொண்டுவர வேண்டிய அவசியம் ஏற்பட்டதென்றால் பல பெரிய கோயில்களிலும், மடங்களிலும் நிர்வாக ஊழல் நிறைந்துவிட்டதாலும், H.R.E. போர்டின் நிர்வாகத்தில் இருக்கின்ற கோயில்களையும் அரசாங்கத்தின் நேர் பார்வைக்குக் கொண்டுவந்து அவைகளின் நிர்வாகத்தைச் சீர்படுத்த வேண்டியது கர்க்காரின் கடமையாக இருப்பதாலும் இந்தச் சட்டம் செய்யவேண்டியது மிகவும் அத்தியாவசியமாக இருக்கிறது. இருந்தாலும்கூட இந்தச் சட்டத்தை ஹிந்துக்களுக்கு மாத்திரம் ஏன் கொண்டுவரவேண்டும். இல்லாமல், கிருஸ்துவ மதஸ்தாபனங்களையும் ஏன் இந்த பில்லிற்குட்படுத்தக்கூடாது என்று கேட்கப்படுகிறது. ஆனால் ஹிந்துக்களாகிய நாம் நமது ஹிந்து மதத்திலுள்ள ஊழல்களை நிவர்த்திக்க வேண்டுமென்ற ஆர்வத்துடன் இம் மாதிரி ஒரு பில் வேண்டுமென்றோம். ஆகையால் இந்தச் சட்டத்தை ஹிந்து மடாலயங்களுக்காக நம் சர்க்கார் கொண்டுவந்தார்கள். கிருஸ்துவர்களும் முஸ்லிம்களும் இம்மாதிரியான சட்டத்தை தங்களது கொண்டுவருவதற்கு அவர்கள் விரும்பவில்லை. ஆகையால் ஹிந்துக்களாகிய நாம் அவர்களுடைய தர்ம ஸ்தாபனங்களையும் இந்த பில்லிற்குட்படுத்தக் கொண்டுவர விரும்பவில்லை.

"அப்படியிருப்பதால் இந்தச் சட்டப்படி இந்த H.R.E. போர்டின் நிர்வாகம் நடத்தக்கூடிய எல்லோரும் ஹிந்துக்களாக இருக்கவேண்டுமென்று சர்க்கார் சொல்லுகிறார்கள். ஆனால் H.R.E. போர்டின் நிர்வாகத்தை எடுத்து நடத்தின்ற கனம் மந்திரி அவர்களும் ஒரு ஹிந்துவாகத்தான் இருக்கவேண்டுமென்று அதிகாரப்படுத்தவில்லை. ஆனால்

[Sri S. C. Balakrishnan] [12th September 1950]

யால் ஹிந்துக்களின் தர்மஸ்தாபனங்களை எடுத்து நடத்த ஏற்படுத்தப்பட்ட இலாகாவின் நிர்வாகத்தை எடுத்து நடத்துகின்றவரும் ஒரு ஹிந்து மந்திரியாகவே இருக்கவேண்டுமென்று நான் விரும்புகின்றேன்.

“அடுத்தபடியாக இப்போது எதற்கெடுத்தாலும் ஒரு பூச்சாண்டி காட்டுகிறார்கள். அது என்னவென்றால் இப்போது எந்த சட்டத்தைக் கொண்டு வந்தாலும் அது அரசியல் நிர்ணய சபை சட்டத்திற்கு முரணானது என்ற கூச்சலைக் கிளப்புவதுதான். அரசியல் சட்டத்தில் பல நூற்றுக்கணக்கான கிளாஸ்கள் இருக்கின்றன. எந்த சட்டத்தை யெடுத்தாலும் அது அந்த கிளாசிற்கு முரணானது—இந்த கிளாசிற்கு விரோதமானது என்று சொல்லிக் கொண்டேயிருந்தால் இந்த மாகாண சர்க்கார் எவ்வித சட்டமோ, நிர்வாகத்திட்டமோ செய்ய முடியாது. ஆகையால் இந்தச் சட்டத்தைக் கொண்டுவரும்போது அது கோர்ட்டுக்குப் போகாத வழியில் செய்யவேண்டும்.

“அடுத்தபடியாக பரம்பரை டிரஸ்டிகள் விஷயமாக ஒரு வார்த்தை சொல்ல விரும்புகின்றேன். இப்போது சில private charitable endowment களும், சில public charitable endowmentsகளும் இருக்கின்றன. எனக்கு அதிகமாக private charitable endowment-ஐப் பற்றி தெரியாவிட்டாலும், public charitable endowment-ஐப்பற்றி ஒன்று சொல்லப்படுகிறது. இராமேஸ்வரம் போன்ற சில ஸ்தலங்களிலும் பரம்பரை டிரஸ்டிகள் இருக்கிறார்கள். அம்மாதிரியான இடங்களில் மறுபடியும் டிரஸ்டிகள் வந்தால் அவர்களுடைய வாரிசுதாரர்களை வரவேண்டுமென்று இந்தச் சட்டம் கூறுகிறது. ஆனால் இது விஷயமாக சர்க்கார் நன்றாக கவனிக்கவேண்டும். இராமேஸ்வரம் ஸ்தலத்தை எடுத்துக்கொண்டால் அங்கேயுள்ள டிரஸ்டிகள் பெரிய மனிதர்களாகவும், படித்த ஞானவான்களாகவும் நல்ல மத அறிவு உடையவர்களாகவும் இருக்கிறார்கள். ஆனால் என்னுடைய ஊரில், அதாவது நான் பிறந்த ஊரில் ஒரு லக்ஷம் ரூபாய் சொத்துள்ள கோவில் ஒன்று இருக்கிறது. பரம்பரையாக ஒரு வம்சத்தார் அதை மேற்பார்த்து வருகிறார்கள். அதன் நிர்வாகத்தில் நிறைந்த ஊழலிருக்கிறது. அந்த வம்சத்தில் படித்தவர்களே ஒருவருமில்லை. இந்தமாதிரி சந்தர்ப்பங்களில் அவர்களுடைய வாரிசையே டிரஸ்டிகளாக நியமிக்கவேண்டுமென்றால் படிக்காத, மத அறிவே இல்லாத ஒருவனைத்தான் நியமிக்கவேண்டும். அது கோவில் நிர்வாகம் தற்போது நடப்பதற்கு முட்டுக்கட்டையாகும். அம்மாதிரி பொம்மை டிரஸ்டிகள் நியமிக்காமல் நல்ல அறிவாளிகளை நியமிப்பதற்கு அனுசூலமாக இந்தச் சட்டத்தை திருத்தவேண்டுமென்று நான் கேட்டுக்கொள்ளுகின்றேன்.

[12th September 1950] [Sri S. C. Balakrishnan]

“அடுத்தபடியாக மடாதிபதிகளைப்பற்றி நேற்று பல நண்பர்கள் பல அபிப்பிராயங்கள் கூறினார்கள். மடாதிபதிகள் அனேக இடங்களில் பல நல்ல காரியங்களைச் செய்கின்றார்கள். கனம் அண்ணாமலை பிள்ளை அவர்கள் சொன்னார்கள் திருப்பணந்தான், தருமபுரம் மடங்கள் நல்ல முறையிலே நடந்துவருகின்றன என்று. இருந்தாலும் கூட ஆங்காங்கு சில மடங்களில் ஊழல்களிருக்கின்றன. அதைப் பொருள்படுத்த முடியாது. இப்போது கிருஸ்துவ மிஷன்கள் இருக்கின்றன. அந்த கிருஸ்துவ மடபாதிரிமார்களுக்கு கிருஸ்துவர்கள் நல்ல மரியாதை கொடுக்கிறார்கள். அதேமாதிரி நம்முடைய மதத் தலைவர்களுக்கு உரிய கௌரவத்தைக் கொடுக்க நாம் கடமைப்பட்டிருக்கிறோம். ஆனால் அதே சமயத்தில் மதத்தின் பெயரால், கடவுளின் பெயரால் தர்மத்தின் பெயராலே வரக்கூடிய பணத்தை நல்ல முறையிலே மதப்படிப்பினைக்குரிய பாடசாலைகளுக்கும், ஆஸ்பத்திரிகளுக்கும் செலவிடவேண்டுமென்பதுதான் என் விருப்பம்.

“நான்கூட பழனி கோவிலிலே அட்வைசரி கமிட்டியிலே ஒரு தீர்மானம் அனுப்பினேன். அதாவது பழனி தேவஸ்தானத்தில் வருகின்ற பணத்தைக்கொண்டு ஒரு பெரிய கல்லூரியை ஏற்படுத்தி நடத்தவேண்டுமென்று அந்த தீர்மானத்தை நிறைவேற்றினோம். ஆனால் தலைவர்களுக்கு பிடித்த மில்லாத (அதாவது சட்டம் இடம் கொடுக்கவில்லை யென்ற காரணத்தால்) அந்த தீர்மானத்திற்கு என்னகதி வந்ததோ தெரியவில்லை. அதைத் திருத்தி அதிகுப் பணங்களை மக்கள் சமூகத்தின் நன்மைக்குச் செலவிடுவதென்பது நல்லதென்பது என்னுடைய அபிப்பிராயம். (At this stage Mr. Speaker resumed the chair.) கடைசியாக இந்த விஷயங்களை யெல்லாம் நன்றாக கவனிக்கும்படி கனம் மந்திரி அவர்களைக் கேட்டுக்கொண்டு சர்க்கார் கொண்டுவந்த இந்த மசோதாவை நான் ஆதரிக்கின்றேன்.”

“MR. S. PATTABHABANAH:—“Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is one of the outstanding Bills of this Congress Ministry which have been brought to this House. I am sure this Bill will be of benefit to the people of our State.

“I oppose the amendment moved by my hon. Friend Mr. Bhashyam because whatever might be the precedents of this House, it will be simply a waste of time to send back the Bill to the same Committee. That Committee could have taken into consideration those aspects also which were pointed out by hon. Mr. Bhashyam. I do not think that there was any technical difficulty in considering the controversial matters raised to-day by hon. Mr. Bhashyam. However, when we see that there is an urge for such a Bill all over the State, we must see that it is passed or amended suitably according to the ideas and views of the various sets of people composing our State. This Bill in the form in which it has emerged from the Select Committee contains a provision for the creation of Area Committees for temples with an annual income of below Rs. 20,000. The intention of the advocates of this particular provision is certainly quite good, but the constitution of the Area Committees as adumbrated in the Bill is, I think, not in the right way. The members of these Committees as provided in the Bill are simply nominees of the Government. They will be selected from the area in which the temples are situated. But no note has been taken of the particular kind of temple or the particular community worshipping in particular temples. Unfortunately it has been assumed by the Government that Hinduism is quite uniform and homogeneous and that the observances and usages and opinions and beliefs of the Hindus are the same everywhere in our State. It is not at all so. The temples in our State are not of the same variety; they are dedicated to different deities. The usages and observances in temples dedicated to the same deity in different places are quite different. There are also people who believe in certain doctrines or tenets of a certain sect. Most of these temples, whatever might have been their origin, are being maintained by particular sects and sectarians. Those people are spiritually attached to that particular temple. If the Government nominate persons to the Area Committees, will they take into consideration the particular community to which those persons belong and the particular usages and observances of the various temples over which the Committee will exercise control? I think Government must take note of this matter. A suitable amendment should be made and incorporated in the body of the Bill that the particular usages and observances now in vogue in the various temples should be kept up. Otherwise, there is a great danger of the main object with which the Bill has been brought forward being nullified. I quite agree that, in spite of the provision contained in Article 26 of the Constitution, we have a right to regulate the activities other than spiritual activities of the temples in our State. But we should not do anything against the spirit and fundamental object with which Article 26 has been incorporated in our Constitution. Accordingly, the management of these temples should, as far as possible, be left in the hands of the particular community or sect who have beliefs in the customs and usages of those temples.

"When we consider the maths, they are of different denominations in our State. There are Saivite, Vaishnavite, Advaitic and also dualistic maths. If these maths are brought under the control of people who have no faith in the particular doctrine, then they will destroy the spirituality of those maths. If the trustees or other authorities appointed by the Government to have supervisory control over the maths are of different persuasions, surely the disciples of the particular math will consider it a dishonour and it will affect the feelings of the followers of that math. Now-a-days people are very sensitive in this matter and we know that there is no homogeneity in Hindu religion. We cannot define Hindu religion in a sentence. We can only say negatively that Hindu religion as practised in India is non-Moslem and non-Christian. A wide latitude is given to the people of our land to have their beliefs as they please, but they should conform to certain moral laws which are essential for the welfare of the society in which they live; that is the fundamental principle of Hinduism. If they conform to those moral laws, they can have any idea of philosophy which their contemplation may lead them to. But our methods of contemplation and our methods of approach to God also differ. There are different schools of thought even in philosophy. The bhaktas approach God in different ways. Even in temples rituals vary from temple to temple.

[12th September 1950] [Sri M. S. Pattabhiramiah]

It is quite essential that we should take note of all these things. We should not ignore the existence of these differences in our religion.

"I then wish to point out that what is stated to be a salient improvement in the present Bill is not really an improvement. I refer to what is called the third salient improvement, that is, the restriction of the scope for litigation and the consequent wastage of the funds of religious institutions. In this connexion the Hon. Minister has stated in his speech as follows:—

"We have removed the right to go to Courts in the following matters, which are all allowed under the present Act:—

- (i) Appointment and removal of hereditary trustees;
- (ii) Fixing of dittams, or standard scales of expenditure in temples;
- (iii) Utilization of surplus funds of religious institutions;

"With regard to item (i) above, that is, appointment and removal of trustees, a point made by some of the speakers including the Leader of one of the Opposition Parties is worthy of being taken into consideration. We should be very careful in this matter and we cannot leave it in the hands of a Government servant.

"With regard to item (ii), that is, fixing of dittams, or standard scales of expenditure in temples, will the Commissioners be people who have studied the rituals of Panchathantra, etc., systems? Will the study of these texts be prescribed as qualification for a Commissioner? If this is done and if the Members of the Area Committees are tested in this respect, I have no objection to the present provision.

"Coming to the question of utilization of surplus funds of religious institutions, they may be utilized for purposes which are not diametrically opposed to the spirit and intention of the original donor. It is, of course, open to the Government to enact any legislation they like but it should be seen that those laws do not go against the moral laws prevalent in the land. Therefore, I consider this change is not at all an improvement in this Bill. I hope suitable amendments will be brought forward and the Bill will be made more acceptable to the people.

"With these words, I welcome the Bill as modified by the Select Committee, Sir."

SRI M. R. APPA RAO:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, some of my hon. Friends here have raised some doubts as regards the Bill being ultra vires of the Constitution. I do not think it is so. In this connexion, I would like to read Article 25 (1) of the Constitution which says, 'Subject to public order, morality and health and to the other provisions of this Part, all persons are equally entitled to freedom of conscience and the right freely to profess, practise and propagate religion'. Sub-clause (2) of the same article says, 'Nothing in this article shall affect the operation of any existing law or prevent the State from making any law—(a) regulating or restricting any economic, financial, political or other secular activity which may be associated with religious practice.' If we examine the Constitution and the provisions contained in the proposed Bill from a common sense point of view—I do not know much of the legal aspects—it will be seen that the proposed Bill is intra vires of the Constitution. When the main spirit of this legislation is to preserve the spiritual and religious aspects and for the purpose of encouraging those if the State is to interfere in such matters relating to religious institutions, then I think the Government are perfectly in order. With this idea, the Government have made a Bill 20 or 25 years ago and the present Bill, I should think, is an improvement with necessary amendments and changes that are found to be necessary at the present time, after gaining some experience. As has been said, the staff of the Religious Endowments Board are now temporary and it is now proposed to make them permanent. It is really very necessary that this Board should be made permanent so that it may have the same status as any other Department of the Government. I am glad that under the present Bill this is going to be done and I should think that it is a great improvement and it will make the service really more efficient. Instead of the Committee of the Board, the Commissioner has been made responsible for the administration. This will no doubt increase the efficiency of the Department and will raise its standard to that of the other Departments of the Government. In the matter of removing the trustees, I think the power should vest in the court and not the Commissioner alone. Because, the trustees are very responsible public men. As it has been made in the case of maths, even in the case of temples, the court should be made the final authority to remove the trustees. As regards the maths, certain remarks were made by some of the hon. Members. These maths are at present managed by religious heads who are very learned men. In my opinion, they should look after all the spiritual and religious functions relating to the maths. As regards financial and other matters, I think even at present the religious heads themselves do not look after these, but some secretary or some other person is in charge of such matters. According to the proposed legislation, I think wherever the Government thinks necessary they will appoint a Government officer to manage the properties and look after other financial matters relating to such institutions. Again, it is found that the trustees of maths are removable by courts, that is, of course, a necessary precautionary measure. These trustees are very important public men and every aspect relating to their affairs should be considered rather carefully, before they are removed.

“Regarding the resumption of inams, I know from my experience that when some of these inams were resumed the Revenue Divisional Officers were under the supposition that the inams rights include melwaram only. According to the present Bill, I find that both the warams are given to the temple at the time of resumption. I should think that this is a very good improvement on the previous Bill. In some cases we find that the trustees are spending the proceeds of the trust properties for their own personal ends. To combat this, it is very necessary that adequate provisions should be incorporated in the Bill and I am glad to find that there are such provisions in the proposed legislation according to which a trustee should not, in the absence of permission from the court or the Commissioner or the Deputy Commissioner, reimburse himself from the trust funds, the expenditure that he may incur. This is really a very good improvement.

“Regarding the constitution of Area Committees, many of the hon. Members have said more than once that the members of this

[12th September 1950] [Sri M. R. Appa Rao]

Committee should be elected and not nominated by the Government. Because, if the members are merely nominated by the Government, then I am afraid such persons are not likely to command public respect or public esteem. Of course, I do not mean any reflection on such persons, but sometimes it so happens that these people are not at all popular with the public. So I think that some kind of popular election, say, by the temple-worshippers or some such thing will be much better and proper indeed. I think the trustees must also be elected. I am sure the Hon. Minister will consider this matter.

“In the matter of appointment of the executive officers and Commissioner, etc., I think there should be some special qualifications for their recruitment. The Government should prescribe that at least they should have interest, belief and faith in Hindu religion and God. So anybody and everybody from among the Government servants who do not have at least these qualifications should not be appointed. This is a very serious and important matter wherein the cultural heritage of our religion is involved. I request the Government to examine the possibilities to see whether it is possible to have some qualifications prescribed, say like the Government Servants Conduct Rules and some other rules, so that the right type of executive officers and Commissioner may be recruited to man these religious institutions.

“If a great matadhipathi or a religious teacher is there and some disciples of his present to him certain personal gifts, then it is provided in the Bill, that such gifts and presents can be disposed of at his own will and that accounts should be rendered. I think that this is a very good piece of legislation.

“Sometimes, it is necessary to dispose of the lands, as in the case of those in cities, if an acre is disposed of in the City an agricultural area of about 20 acres of land can be purchased in the mufassal. In such cases alienation of lands is necessary. By such transactions, the maths and other religious institutions can get thousands of rupees. In such cases, the Government should not take away the extra amount in the name of surplus money for any purpose other than a religious one. It is very important that the money gained by the temples should be utilized on these temples only. No amount of money can be surplus in the case of a religious institution. These temples have to spend a lot of money in renovation. Various construction works will have to be undertaken. For example, they may have to establish schools, colleges and patasalas. So there could be no limit to the activities of the temples for which they require enormous sums. The Government should not therefore take away any money that is given for religious purposes. I know the Government and the Minister in charge are very anxious to see that they do not interfere with the math funds. I hope they will not even unwittingly interfere with the religious matters of the maths and temples. I am sure the Government will consider all these matters and see that they do their best and confine their attention only to religious matters and also see that this Bill contributes to the development of spiritual and religious matters."

முது வேலைசெய்கின்ற நிலங்களும் கூட மடத்தைச் சேர்ந்ததாகும். மடத்திற்கு விரோதமாக இந்த ஜனங்கள் நடந்தால் உடனே அவர்களை அப்பறப்படுத்தி விடுகிறார்கள். ஒன்றும் காரணமேயில்லாமல் அவர்களைத் தன்புறுத்துகிறார்கள். இந்தக் கேவலமான நிலமை இன்றைய தினம் உட்பல மடங்களிலே நடந்து வருகிறது. அது சம்பந்தமாகப் பல கஜர்கள் வந்திருக்கின்றன. இன்னும் செர்ல்ஸ்ப் போனாலு பல மடங்களின் சொத்துக்கள் பல தாசில்களின் பெயரிலே மாற்றப்பட்டிருக்கின்றன. வேண்டுமானால் எனக்கு அதிகாரம் கொடுங்கள். அந்த கிராமத்தைச் சேர்ந்த வே. எலியன் என்ற ஒரு காங்கிரஸ் ஊழியன், அவன் செல்வாக்கு உடையவன், மடத்திற்கு எஜமனாக ஒரு சமயத்தில் இருந்தான். ‘அந்த மடத்தின் சொத்துக்கள் இன்று எங்கெங்கேயிருக்கின்றன என்று அவன் டீனரி விவரங்களோடு கூட கொடுக்கத் தயாராயிருக்கிறான். அந்த விஷயம் நம்முடைய மத்திய அரசாங்கத்தின் முதன் மந்திரி ஜவஹர்லால் நேரு அவர்களுக்கும் இன்னும் பல கவர்ன்மெண்டு அதிகாரிகளுக்கும் சரியான விதத்தில் தகவல் கொடுத்திருக்கிறார்கள். அந்தத் தாக்கீதின் பேரில் அதை விசாரிக்க வலி. ஐ. டி. கள்கூட அனுப்பப்பட்டதாக அறிவிக்கிறேன். அப்படி அனுப்பியும்கூட என்ன ஆயிற்று என்று தெரியவில்லை. எனக்கு அதிகாரம் கொடுத்தால் அந்த செய்திகள் அனைத்தையும் கண்டு பிடித்துக் கொடுப்பதற்கு நான் தயாராயிருக்கிறேன் என்று சொல்லுகிறேன்.

“அதைப்போலவே தர்மபுரம் மடமிருக்கிறது. அந்த மடத்திற்கு பல சொத்துக்கள் இருக்கின்றன. அங்கே பள்ளிக்கூடம் வைத்து நடத்துகிறார்கள். அந்தப் பள்ளிக்கூடத்தில் ஹரிஜனங்களைச் சேர்ப்பது கிடையாது. ஏன் சேர்ப்பதில்லையென்று கேட்டால் அங்கே அவர்கள் வரமாட்டார்களென்று சொல்லுகிறார்கள். இந்த விதமாக ஹிந்து மடத்திலே அந்த மடாதிபதிகள் செய்துகொண்டிருக்கிறார்கள். தலைவர் அவர்களே! ஸ்ரீ அண்ணாமலை பிள்ளை அவர்கள் மடாதிபதிகள் பற்றி பேசுவதைக்கண்டு வருந்துவதாகச் சொன்னார்கள். அந்த மாதிரி மனம் நொந்து பேசும்படியான நிலைமையை மடாதிபதிகள் பண்ணிவிட்டார்கள். அவர் பெரியவர். உங்கள் காலிலே விழுந்து நமஸ்காரம் பண்ணுகிறேன். மதகுருமார்களைப் பற்றி இழிவாகப் பேசவேண்டாமென்று கேட்டுக்கொண்டார். இம்மாதிரி யான் அக்கிரமங்களையெல்லாம் செய்து வருகின்ற அவர்களா மத குருமார்கள்! அவர்களா கடவுளின் பிரதிநிதிகள்? இல்லவே இல்லை. அவர்களிடம் நாம் விசுவாசம் காட்டுவதே பாவம். அதை நான் மிகவும் மனவருத்தத்தோடு தெரிவித்துக்கொள்ளுகிறேன். இன்று இருக்கக்கூடிய மடாதிபதிகள் உண்மையான மடாதிபதிகள் அல்ல என்பதை பல வருஷ காலமாக அந்த மடாதிபதிகளால் செய்யப்பட்டுவந்திருக்கின்ற காரியங்களைவிருந்து நன்று விளங்கியிருக்கின்றன. ஆனால் அவர்களிடத்தில் பணம் இருந்ததால் கோர்ட்டுக்குச் சென்று பல ஆபாசமான கேஸ்கள் அனைத்தையும் கூட ஒன்றுமில்லாதபடி செய்து கொண்டு வந்துவிட்டார்கள். அது நம் அனைவருக்கும் தெரியும். அதைப்போல இன்னும் பல அக்கிரமங்களை அவர்களைச் செய்யவிட்டுவிட்டு நாம் ஏன் அவைகளைப் பார்த்துக் கொண்டிருக்கவேண்டும்.

“மேலும் இந்தப் பணத்தைக்கொண்டு சீர்திருத்த கோவில்களை கோபுரங்களை எல்லாம் பழுது பார்க்கவேண்டுமென்றும் சொன்னார்கள். கோபுரங்கள் அமைக்கும் விஷயத்திலும்கூட தற்போது பார்த்தால் மிக கேவலமான முறையிலே அவைகள் அமைக்கின்றார்கள். ஆதிகாலத்தில் அமைக்கப்பட்ட கோபுரங்களைப்பற்றி நான் சொல்லவில்லை. இந்தக் காலத்தில் அவைகள்

[Sri M. Kanniappan] [12th September 1950]

கப்படும் கோபுரங்களைத்தான் சொல்லுகின்றேன். மிகக் கேவலமான, ஆபாசமான முறையிலே அவைகள் அமைக்கப்படுகின்றன; அங்குள்ள பொம்மைகளைப் பார்க்கும்போது எல்லோரும் வெட்கப்படும்படியான முறையிலே அமைக்கப்பட்டிருக்கின்றன. வேண்டுமானால் சென்னைக்கு அடுத்ததுள்ள திருவொற்றியூரில் சென்று பார்க்கலாம். அங்குள்ள கோபுரத்தைப் பார்த்தால் தெரியும். ஆண்களும், பெண்களும் வெட்கித்தான் தலை குனியவேண்டுமென்று சொல்லுகிறேன். அம்மாதிரியான பொம்மைகள் அமைப்பதை கண்டனம் செய்யவேண்டும். அப்பேர்ப்பட்ட பொம்மைகளை உடனடியாக அப்புறப்படுத்துவது மிக அவசியம். அவ்வாறு செய்தால் மிக நன்றாக இருக்குமென யோசனை கூறுகிறேன்.

SRIMATHI V. LAKSHMI AMMAL :—“கனம் அக்கிராசனாதிபதி அவர்களே, கனம் பாஷ்யம் அவர்கள் கொண்டு வந்த திருத்த பிரேரணையை ஆதரித்து இரண்டொரு வார்த்தைகளைப் பேசுகிறேன். ஆனால் இந்த சட்டத்தில் அடங்கி இருக்கும் கருத்துக்களை அநேகமாக நான் ஒப்புக்கொள்ளுகிறேன், என்றாலும் முதலில் ஒன்றை நான் நினைப்புகொள்ளவில்லை. அதாவது இந்த சட்டத்தினால் கவர்ன்மெண்டுக்கு பரிபூரண அதிகாரம் வந்துவிடுகிறது. கவர்ன்மெண்டின் மற்ற டிபார்ட்டு மெண்டைப் போலவே இனி இந்த ஹிந்து மத தர்ம பரிபாலன விஷயமும் கவர்ன்மெண்டின் டிபார்ட்டுமெண்டர்க் வந்துவிடப்போகிறது. இதைத் தவிர நாட்டில் அநேகம் பேர்கள் ஆதரிக்கவில்லை. ஆனால் இந்த தர்ம பரிபாலன முறையில் அநேக விதமான கெடுதல்கள் இருக்கின்றனவென்பதை நமது மந்திரி கனம் டாக்டர் இராஜன் அவர்கள் எடுத்துக்காட்டியிருக்கிறார். ஒவ்வொரு கனம் அங்கத்தினர்களும் அதையேதான் பேசி வந்திருக்கிறார்கள். அதில் ஒன்றும் தப்பிதமிழில்லை. அவைகளை யெல்லாம் சீர்திருத்தம் செய்யவேண்டியது மிகமிக அவசியம்தான். அந்தக் காலங்களில் எதற்காக அந்த தர்ம கொத்துக்கள் விடப்பட்டு இருக்கின்றனவோ அவைகளை சரியான முறையில் பரிபாலிக்கவேண்டும். ஆனால் அதற்காக பூரா அதிகாரத்தையும் ஜனநாயக கவர்ன்மெண்டு வைத்துக்கொண்டுவிட்டால் அதில் நிச்சயமாக பாதகம் ஏற்படும் என்பதில் சந்தேகமில்லை. இதை அநேகமாக தமிழ்நாட்டில் எல்லோரும் ஆதரிக்கவில்லை என்பதை நான் தெரிவித்துக் கொள்ளுகிறேன். இது எப்படி இருக்கிறது என்றால் இரண்டு சேகர்தார்கள் தங்களுடைய ஆஸ்தியைப் பொருத்து சண்டை போட்டுக் கொண்டிருக்கும்பொழுது அவர்களை சரியான முறையில் கொண்டுவர

[12th September 1950] [Srimathi V. Lakshmi Ammal]

வேண்டுமென்று பூர்ண அதிகாரத்தையும் நான் வைத்துக்கொள்ளுகிறேன். உங்களுக்கு என்ன செய்யலாம், செய்யக்கூடாது என்று சொல்லி நான் தான் அதிகாரம் பெற்றவன் நாங்கள் சொல்லுகிறபடி நீங்கள் நடக்க வேண்டும் என்று சொல்லுகிற மாதிரி இருக்கிறது. தர்ம ஸ்தாபனங்களில் இவ்விதம் தலையிட்டால் அந்த தர்ம ஸ்தாபனங்களுக்கு நாளுக்கு நாள் கெடுதி வரும் என்பது கனம் இராஜன் அவர்களுக்கு தெரிந்த விஷயம் தான். இதை இவ்வளவு அவசரமாகக் கொண்டு வரவேண்டியதே இல்லை. ‘எண்ணித் துணிவதே கரும்பம், துணிந்தபின் எண்ணுவது என்பது இழுக்கு’ என்பது எல்லோருக்கும் தெரிந்த விஷயம். கனம் டாக்டர் இராஜன் அவர்கள் டில்லியிலிருந்து வந்தவுடன் ரிபோர்ட்டர்களிடம் சொன்னதை பத்திரிகைகளில் படித்தபோது இந்த மசோதா இந்தக் கூட்டத்தில் வருமோ வராதோ அது சந்தேகம்தான் என்று தெரியப்படுத்தினார்கள். ஆனால் இதை வாசித்த மறுநாள் இந்த சட்டமானது இந்தக் கூட்டத்திலேயே கொண்டுவரப்படும் என்பதாக தெரியவந்தது. இவ்வளவு துரிதமாக இந்த சட்டத்தை இப்பொழுதே கொண்டுவர வேண்டியது அவசியமில்லை. அநேக சட்டங்களை நாம் ஆத்திரப்பட்டுக்கொண்டும் அவசரப்பட்டுக்கொண்டும், துரிதப்பட்டுக் கொண்டும் நிறைவேற்றி யிருப்பவைகளை யெல்லாம் அநேக சட்ட நிபுணர்கள் பார்த்து அவைகளில் இன்னும் தவறுதல்கள் இருக்கின்றன வென்று சொல்லுகிறார்கள். அநேக சட்டங்கள் Federal Court க்குக்கூட போக வேண்டுமோ என்பதாகவும் சந்தேகப்படுகிறார்கள். ஆனால் சந்தேகப்பட்டுக் கொண்டேயிருந்தால் அதற்கு முடிவு இல்லை என்பது வாஸ்தவம். அவைகளெல்லாம் எப்படி இருந்த போதிலும் ஒரு பெரிய சட்டத்தில் ஒரு பெரிய மாறுதலை செய்யவேண்டுமென்றால் ஆர அமர செய்தும், அநேகம் பேர்களை நாம் யோசனை கேட்கும் அவர்களுடைய கருத்தை கிறிதனவு ஏற்றுக்கொண்டும் சட்டத்தை செய்யவேண்டுமென யொழிய வெகு பரபரப்புடன் இதைச் செய்யவேண்டியதில்லை, செய்யவும் கூடாது. சில பேர்களுடைய யோசனையின் பிரகாரம் இதை நடத்தினால் நாட்டில் அநேகம் பேர்களுக்கு பிடித்தமிருக்காது. ஜனநாயகம் என்றால் அநேகமாக majority அதாவது ரொம்பப் பேர்களுடைய கருத்து அதில் அடங்கி யிருக்க வேண்டும். அநேகம் பேர்கள் பேசினார்கள் இதற்கு ரொம்பப் பேர்கள் சம்மதம் கொடுத்திருக்கிறார்கள் என்று. சம்மதம் கொடுத்த பேர்களைப் பற்றி இங்கே சர்ச்சைப்பண்ணிப் பேசுவது முடியாது. அங்கங்கே போய்ப் பார்த்தால் ஒவ்வொருவரும் ஒவ்வொரு ஆட்சேபணையை தெரிவிப்பது நன்கு தெரியும். தர்ம ஸ்தாபனங்களும், கோவில்களும் நடைபெற்றுவருவதில் இருக்கும் குறைகளை தீர்க்கவேண்டுமென்று ரொம்ப காலமாக நினைத்தது உண்டு. அவைகளை நல்ல முறையில் ஒரேமாதிரியாக நடத்துவதற்கு ஏதாவது ஒன்றை கவர்ன்மெண்டு செய்யவேண்டியதுதான். ஏதாவதும் தகராறுகள் ஏற்பட்டால் ஜனங்களுக்கு கோர்ட்டுக்குப் போக உரிமை இருக்க வேண்டியது அவசியம். அதிகாரத்தை கவர்ன்மெண்டிற்கு மாற்றுவது ஆல் மத ஸ்தாபனங்களில் ஏற்படும் கேஸ்கள் கோர்ட்டுக்கு போய்க் கொண்டிருப்பதைத் தடுத்துவிடலாம். அவ்விதம் கோர்ட்டுக்கு இப்பொழுது கேஸ்கள் போவதால் நிர்வாகத்தில் தாமதங்கள் ஏற்படுகிறது. கவர்ன்மெண்டு எடுத்துக்கொண்டால் அவ்விதம் கோர்ட்டுக்குப் போவதை நிறுத்திவிடலாம் என்று அவர்கள் சொல்லுகிறார்கள். ஆனால் கவர்ன்மெண்டின் டிபார்ட்டுமெண்டுகளில் எத்தனையோ தவறுதல்களெல்லாம் இருக்கின்றன. அதன் நிர்வாகிகளில் ஒருவர் இருவர் சரியான முறையிலிருந்தாலும் எத்தனையோ பேர்கள் சரியான முறையிலிருந்துகொண்டிருக்கவில்லை என்பது எல்லோருக்கும் தெரிந்த விஷயம். தாமதப் படுவதை நிறுத்திவிடலாம் என்பதிலும் அர்த்தமில்லை. கவர்ன்மெண்டிற்கு ஒரு பேர் போய் வருவதற்கு எத்தனையோ காலதாமதமாகிறது. சில சமயங்களில் ஆறு மாதம் ஒரு வருஷம்கூட ஆகிறது. Red Tapism என்று சொல்லக்கூடியது இன்னும் ஒழிந்தபோகவில்லை. இந்த முறையிலிருக்கும்பொழுது இந்த மத சம்பந்தமான அதிகாரத்தை எடுத்துக் கொண்டு துரிதமாக நடத்த முடியாது.

“அடுத்தபடியாக Area Committee என்று போடப்பட்டிருக்கிறது. அந்தக் கமிட்டிக்கு அசிஸ்டென்ட் கமிஷனர் தலைமை வகித்து சட்டத்தை நடத்தவேண்டுமென்பதாக இருக்கிறது. கவர்ன்மெண்டே மெம்பர்களை

[Srimathi V. Lakshmi Ammal] [12th September 1950]

தெரிந்தெடுக்கவேண்டுமென்றிருக்கிறது. அது சரிதான். ஆனால் அசிஸ்டென்ட் கமிஷனர் தலைமை வகிக்கவேண்டுமென்றிருக்கிறது. ஆனால் அவருக்கு வேட்புரிமை இல்லை என்பதாக கண்டிருக்கிறது. அதற்கு பதிலாக தேர்ந்தெடுத்த நபர் ஒருவர் தலைமை வகித்து நடத்தலாம். இன்னும் Trusteeகளை அக்கமிட்டி நியமிக்கலாம் என்று இருக்கிறது. அவர்களே அந்த நிர்வாகத்தை நடத்தினால் போதுமானது. ஆனால் Trusteeகளுக்குமேல் Area Committee அசிஸ்டென்ட் கமிஷனர் இருக்க வேண்டியதில்லை. இம்மாதிரி அந்த டிபார்ட்மெண்டு பெருக்கிக்கொண்டே போனால் 'ஆட்டிஸ் பாதி ஓனாய்க்கு' என்பது போலாகிவிடும். இந்த மாதிரி மத சம்பந்தமான ஸ்தாபனத்திலிருந்து வரும் வரும்படியிலிருந்து பாதிக்கு மேல் இப்பொழுதிருக்கிற உத்தியோகஸ்தர்களுக்கு கொடுக்கும்படியாகிவிடும். அவர்களுக்கு ரூ. 50 சம்பளம் போதாது என்று ரூ. 100 கொடுக்கும்படியும் வரும். அதுவும் போதாது என்று இன்னும் அதிகமாக கொடுக்கும்படியும் வரும். அதன் பிறகு Dearness Allowance, பென்ஷன் இந்த மாதிரி அந்த டிபார்ட்மெண்டை பெருக்கிக் கொண்டே போனால் அவைகளிலிருந்து வருகிற வரும்படி அந்த கோவில்களில் சிலவு செய்ய பணம் போதாதாகிவிடுகிறது. ஆனால் அந்தக்காலத்தில் இந்த மாதிரியான கோவில்களையும் ஸ்தாபனங்களையும் பரிபாலிக்க சம்பளமாகக் கொடுக்காமல் மான்யமாக நிலங்களை விட்டிருக்கிறார்கள். அவ்விதம் மான்யங்களை ஏற்படுத்தி ஸ்தாபனங்களை சிலவில்லாமல் பரிபாலிக்கக்கூடியவர்கள் கட்டிச் சொகு இருந்து கோவில் சொத்துக்களை நன்றாக கவனித்து பாதுகாக்கவேண்டுமென்ற எண்ணத்துடன் அவ்விதம் ஏற்படுத்தப்பட்டது. மத சம்பந்தமான கருத்துக்களை யுடையவர்களாகவும் கடவுள் பக்தியுள்ளவர்களாகவும் இருக்கவேண்டுமென்ற நோக்கத்துடன் தான் இம்மாதிரியான ஸ்தாபனங்களை ஏற்படுத்தப்பட்டது.

THE MADRAS LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Wednesday, the 13th September 1950.

The House met in the Assembly Chamber, Fort St. George, at eleven of the clock, Mr. Speaker (THE HON. SRI J. SIVASHANMUGAM PILLAI) in the Chair.

SRIMATHI V. LAKSHMI AMMAL :—“கனம் அக்கிராஸ்திபதி அவர்களே, நேற்று நான் முடிக்கும்பொழுது இந்த மத ஸ்தாபன டிபார்ட்மெண்டின் மாதச் சம்பளம் கொடுக்கவேண்டியது அதிகமாக ஏற்பட்டு அவைகள் விரிந்துகொண்டே போனால் இந்த மத ஸ்தாபன கோவில் மடங்களின் பணங்களிலிருந்துதான் செலவு செய்யவேண்டியதாக இருக்கும். அந்த மாதிரி பாதிப்பணம் இம்மாதிரியான மாதச் சம்பளத்திற்காகவே போய்விடும் என்பதாகச் சொன்னேன். அந்தக் காலங்களில் அந்தந்த ஊர்களிலுள்ள பெரிய மனிதர்களையும், யோக்கியமானவர்களையும் பார்த்துதான் அங்கங்குள்ள கோவில்களுக்கு தர்மகர்த்தாக்களாக நியமித்து வந்தார்கள். அந்த முறையில் அவர்கள் நியமிக்கப்பட்டு அவர்களுடைய நிர்வாகத்தின்கீழ் உத்சவா திகளும், காலாகாலங்களில் பூஜைகளும் நடந்து வந்தன. ஆனால், நாளடைவில் இவைகளெல்லாம் சீரழிந்து போயிருப்பதால் நாம் இப்பொழுது அதற்கு ஒரு வழி தேடுகிறோம். அதை நாம் வரவேற்கவேண்டியதுதான். இப்பொழுது ஒரு டிபார்ட்மெண்டாக இதைச் செய்து ஒவ்வொரு கோவில்களுக்கு Paid Executive ஆபீசர்களை போடவேண்டுமென்றிருக்கிறது. இது இப்போது இருப்பதைவிட இன்னும் அதிகமாகலாம். அதனால் செலவும் நாளுக்கு நாள் ஜாஸ்தியாகிக்கொண்டே போகலாம்.

“இவ்விதம் கோவில் நிர்வாகத்தை கவர்ன்மெண்டு எடுத்துக்கொண்டால் கோவில் கட்டளைகள் சரிவர நடக்காது. ஒரு கோவிலின் Executive Officer-ஐ எனக்கு நன்றாகத் தெரியும். கோவில் சூடம் கொடுத்தவேண்டுமென்றால் பணமில்லை என்றும், போர்டை கேட்டால் அவர்கள் அதற்கு provision இல்லை என்று சொல்லுகிறார்கள் என்றார். நெய்யில் திரியை முழுக்கி சூடம் காட்டவேண்டியதாக இருக்கிறது என்றார். ஆகவே, இவைகளெல்லாம் சரியான முறையில் நடத்தப் பணம் அனுமதிக்கப்படாதுபோய் விடுகிறது. மேல் ஆபீசர்கள் கடவுள் பக்தியும், தேச பக்தியுமுள்ளவர்களாக இருந்தால்தான் இவைகளெல்லாம் நன்றாக நடக்கும். ஆகவே, இந்த மாதிரியான டிபார்ட்மெண்டுகளுக்கெல்லாம் அதிகம் செலவு செய்யாமல் ஒரு Honorary Committee—அதாவது அந்தந்த ஊரிலுள்ளவர்களைக்கொண்டு trustee-களாக நியமித்தால்தான் நன்றாக இருக்கும். இப்பொழுது Area Committee நியமித்து அதிலிருந்து trustee-களை நியமிக்க வேண்டுமென்று Select Committee Report-ல் கண்டிப்புகிறது. ஆனால், ஒவ்வொரு கோவில்களுக்கும் ஒரு Executive Officer-ஐ நியமிப்பது அனாவசியம் என்பதாக நான் கருதுகிறேன். எங்கள் ஜில்லாவில் பாபநாசம் என்று ஒரு புண்ணிய கேஷத் திரம் இருக்கிறது. அங்கே ஒரு கோவில் இருக்கிறது. அந்தக் கோவிலுக்கு வருவாய் ரொம்பவும் குறைவு. இம்மாதிரி குறைந்த வருவாய் உள்ள அநேகம் கோவில்கள் நம்முடைய தமிழ் நாட்டிலிருக்கின்றன. வருஷத்திற்கு ரூ. 200-க்கு குறைவாகவுள்ள கோவில்கள் அநேகம் இருக்கின்றன. அவ்விதம் சுமார் 11,000 கோவில்களிருக்கின்றன. இன்னும் ரூ. 200-க்கு மேலும் ரூ. 300-க்கும் குறைவான வருவாய் உள்ள கோவில்கள் 11,000 இருக்கின்றன. ரூ. 60 ஆயிரம், 50 ஆயிரம் வருவாய் வரக்கூடிய கோவில்களெல்லாம் சுமார் 52 கோவில்கள்தானிருக்கும். அந்தந்த கிராமங்களிலுள்ள கோவில்களுக்கெல்லாம் முன்னோர்கள் ஒவ்வொரு உத்சவ காலங்களிலும் இன்னென்ன கட்டளைகள் அவரவர்கள் செய்யவேண்டுமென்று ஏற்பட்டிருக்கிறது. ஆனால், இப்பொழுது அநேகம் பேர்கள் அவர்களுடைய கட்டளைகளை எல்லாம் செய்யாமல் நிறுத்தி விட்டார்கள். இப்பொழுது

அந்தந்த கோவில்களுக்குள்ள உதாவங்களை நடத்தவேண்டுமென்றால் அதற்கு வரும் வருவாயிலிருந்து நடத்துவது என்பது முடியாமலிருக்கிறது. அதை சரிவர நடத்த ஏற்பாடு செய்யவேண்டும். Executive ஆபீசர்கள் போட்டிருக்கும் கோவில்களில் சிப்பந்தி செலவுகளைக்கூட செய்யமுடியாமல் இப்பொழுது அநேகம் கோவில்கள் இருக்கின்றன. இன்னும் அநேகம் கோவில்களை நல்ல முறையில் அமைத்து அவைகளை சீர்திருத்தம் செய்யவேண்டியதாக இருக்கிறது. அவைகளை அவசியம் செய்யவேண்டும். ஆனால், மாதச் சம்பளம் உள்ள ஆபீசர்களைப் போடுவதை நான் அடியோடு ஒப்புக்கொள்ளவில்லை. (At this stage the Deputy Speaker took the chair) அடுத்தபடியாக charitable institutions-களையும் இதில் சேர்த்துக்கொள்வதாக இருக்கிறது. நம்முடைய தமிழ் நாடு பூராவிலும் ஒவ்வொரு சின்னச் சின்ன கிராமங்களிலும்கூட அனேக பெரியோர்கள் தங்களுடைய குடும்பத்திலிருந்து சத்தியம் நடத்த வேண்டுமென்றே அல்லது கோடையில் தண்ணீர் பந்தக் கவத்து தண்ணீர் ஊத்த வேண்டுமென்றே அல்லது துவாதசி, அமாவாசை முதலிய தினங்களில் சாப்பாடு போட்டுமென்று கோவில்களுக்கு படித்தார்கள் வைத்து நடத்த வேண்டுமென்றே சொத்துக்களை வைத்திருக்கிறார்கள். அவைகளை அவர்களுடைய குடும்பத்தார்களே வைத்து நடத்தி பரிபாலிக்க வேண்டுமென்றும் அவ்விதம் செய்துவிட்டு மீதியை அவர்களே உபயோகித்து கொள்ளலாம் என்பதாக பெரியோர்கள் சொத்துக்களை எழுதி வைத்துவிட்டு போயிருக்கிறார்கள். அப்பேர்ப்பட்ட சிறு சிறு திரம் சத்திரங்களை யெல்லாம் இந்த மத ஸ்தாபனம் எடுத்துக்கொள்ளாமல் அவைகளை விட்டுவிட வேண்டுமென்பதாகக் கேட்டுக் கொள்ளுகிறேன்.”

DEPUTY SPEAKER:—“I wish to remind the House that each member will be allowed to speak only for ten minutes.”

SRI V. M. RAMASWAMI MUDALIYAR:—“Madam Deputy Speaker, to a Hindu, his faith in religion is more than his food. Since the East India Company divested itself of its responsibility towards religious institutions in the middle of the last century, enlightened Hindu thought concentrated upon effecting reforms even as early as 1862. After a chequered career, Act II of 1927 was placed on the Statute Book. Thanks to the late Raja of Panagal who, with great foresight, took the enlightened Hindu opinion into confidence and placed on the Statute Book this Act for the proper supervision and superintendence of the religious institutions of our State. The working of the Act has achieved some progress. Thanks to the ability and tact of the successive presidents and commissioners of the Hindu Religious Endowments Board who, in spite of the many handicaps inherent in the Act itself and the newness of the venture, set a very good record of work. I take this opportunity of placing on record my appreciation of the very valuable services rendered by them. The Government of this State are now taking upon themselves the new responsibility of direct supervision and superintendence through a system of Commissioner, Deputy and Assistant Commissioners and Area Committees. The Government have taken power to appoint the officers and to nominate members of the Area Committees. Speaking for myself, I would very much like that the superintendence over religious and charitable institutions is not taken over directly by the Government but left to an independent body which will be amenable to public opinion and not amenable to political influence of whatever nature. The Board as at present constituted satisfies that condition to a certain extent. On account of defects in the Act, supervision by the Board was not effective in many instances. There are far too many loopholes and lacunae in the Act with the result that there is wasteful and colossal litigation even in respect of petty rights.

“Wide powers are given to the Commissioner and Deputy and Assistant Commissioners under this Bill. But no qualification whatever is prescribed for them except that they should profess the Hindu religion. Under the existing Act (Act II of 1927) certain qualifications like legal training and a certain number of years of standing at the bar are prescribed. Since these are responsible officers who are called upon to discharge quasi-judicial functions and even functions of a judicial nature in many cases, minimum qualifications like proper judicial or legal training and a certain period of standing at the bar should be prescribed. People possessing the above qualifications and who have earned by their service the confidence of the public and the Government alone should be chosen for appointment to the posts. I would very much like the minimum qualifications to be embodied in the Bill itself. We are in power to-day and we do not know who will be in power some years hence and these posts should not be made the plaything of political patronage or nepotism.

“I find that there are certain other lacunae also in the Bill. There is no definition of the term ‘hereditary trustee’. In my professional capacity I have had occasion to appear before courts and even before the Board when the question of who a hereditary trustee was agitated. Suppose A is a trustee of a temple. After him, his son B becomes a trustee. Is C, the son of B, a hereditary trustee because his father and grandfather were trustees? This and similar questions have been agitated before. The term should be defined, especially as it is used in very many places in the Bill.

“Even with all the very good work done by the Hindu Religious Endowments Board through its officers and the executive officers appointed for several big temples, there is a feeling of dissatisfaction in the minds of the people which I am bound to express on this occasion. Though secular administration like the proper maintenances of properties, endowments and jewels is taken care of, there is not that personal interest and intensive supervision devoted to religious aspects like rituals and other functions connected with worship and this has to a certain extent affected the proper atmosphere for the conduct of worship in temples. Since the Government have taken the power of nominating trustees, I hope they will bear this aspect in mind and nominate persons who not only profess Hindu religion but also know the rituals and the conduct of worship in temples.

“Then there is the vexed question of maths. I am surprised that the Government should feel apologetic about bringing maths under proper and effective control even at this stage of the day. I think we are shutting our eyes to the realities. As a matter of fact, it is only the great many abuses and sacrileges perpetrated by several matadhipathis in our State that have highlighted and forced the Government to bring forward this Bill. I do not think the Government need be apologetic for including maths for more effective and closer supervision. A separate chapter is devoted to maths. A matadhipathi is expected to be a spiritual teacher, a centre of spiritual culture and a repository of all that is best in the tenets of various branches of Hinduism. If such a person abuses his position and becomes utterly unfit to hold that exalted place, there is no provision for his removal except through a decree of a court. The Board can remove a temple trustee, hereditary or otherwise, but it cannot remove a matadhipathi who abuses his position unless it goes to a court and gets its verdict. Six grounds are given on anyone of which a matadhipathi can be removed. But I do not find any provision made for his removal when he becomes unfit to hold the exalted position because of his profligacy and drink and gambling habits. I think that a clause on this line may be usefully added to the grounds mentioned in the Bill.

"Anticipating this Bill, I understand that various madathipathis are trying to fritter away the accumulated surpluses of maths by various devices like buying very valuable properties in the City of Madras. Where is the necessity for matadhipathis to buy properties in Madras? Is it for their own pleasure or for the purpose of spreading the culture of the school of thought over which they preside? Before such acquisition of property is allowed, the Government must interfere and find out whether it is for the benefit of the math or not.

"Clause 67 provides that any party aggrieved by an order of the Commissioner can file a suit in the Court. If he is dissatisfied with the decision of the Court, he is given the right of appeal to the High Court. This is a very cumbersome procedure. We have had experience of courts. Let the Government realize that very wasteful litigation is going on in the courts. I ask the Government to consider seriously the desirability of appointing an independent tribunal, on the lines of the Income-Tax Tribunal, consisting of three or four retired Judges or other judicial officers to enquire into the disputes. Its decision should be made final. I am sure there will be many among retired Judges or other judicial officers who will be willing to give their services for the Hindu cause. Thank you, Madam."

SRI G. KUMARASWAMI :—“Madam, Deputy Speaker, I wholeheartedly support the Bill that is brought before this House by the Hon. the Minister in charge of Religious Endowments. Provincialization of the administration of maths, temples and other religious institutions and charitable endowments was intended to be made in the past on several occasions, but the recommendations of the Government could not be given effect to for one reason or another. The present Bill seeks to provincialize the administration of temples, maths, etc. A separate Devasthanam Department of the Government is intended to be established to supervise the administration of the religious institutions, temples and maths. There is the Hindu Religious Endowments Board which is looking after these institutions, but as the very working of the existing Act was found defective, and as measures have to be introduced to rectify the defects, the present Bill is brought forward by the Government. There are some imaginary fears in the minds of the people that the whole management will be taken over by the State. It is far from the truth. It is only supervision and administration of the religious institutions that is taken over. It is for that purpose that the posts of four Commissioners will be abolished, and one Commissioner for the whole State will be appointed. There will be Deputy Commissioners throughout all the rural areas to supervise the work done by the religious institutions, maths and temples. The constitution of area committees and trust boards also is there. The constitution of these committees and boards is to assist the Commissioner and the Government to look after these institutions properly. It, of course, guarantees sound running of the administration and efficiency. There are fears that the whole question of administration and the conduct of the affairs of the religious institutions, temples and maths, will be taken over by the State. As I already pointed out, this is far from the truth. There are peculiar customs and manners observed in the religious institutions and temples. The religious sentiment of the institutions has to be respected, because sentiment plays a very important role in the life of a nation. For instance, there are various Saivaite temples where a particular methods of worship is followed. That practice should not be disturbed. Persons in charge of these temples may insist that certain lights should be put off at a particular time, and that certain other things should not be issued during particular religious ceremonies. The administration should not interfere in all these matters. The Saivaite and Vaishnavaites temples should have their own way of observing religious ceremonies and festivals. In this respect, the Hon. the Minister has already stated that the Bill only seeks to supervise the administration of the religious institutions, temples, and religious endowments. Some of the maths have already shown some signs of progress in the way of starting colleges and beggar homes. There are other institutions where Sanskrit is taught, and other educational courses are started. It is quite right that the Government should not interfere with such things.

"Regarding the fixing of dittams or standard scales of expenditure in temples, it is really proper that the financial aspect should be controlled by the Government. Mismanagement can be checked as far as possible.

"Regarding appointments, it is but necessary that certain conditions should be laid down. One need not be an M.A. or a member of the I.A.S., but the appointees should be persons who have visited the temples and who know the ways of worship prevalent in them. Only such people should be encouraged and appointed to the posts under this Bill, because the sentiments of the worshippers of these temples should be respected.

"Then, there is the question of Area Committees. Apart from these committees, there will be so many factions in the rural areas. It is to see that no such thing creeps in that the Government have suggested that the Commissioner should see to the appointment of proper trustees. The formation of Area Committees to appoint Boards of Trustees and to attend to certain other things is a welcome provision.

"There are also other provisions to restrict the scope of litigation. The Deputy Commissioners and other officers are spread throughout the whole State. So, the trustees need not go to Madras with their records in case of disputes, etc. They can simply approach the Deputy Commissioner in charge and when necessity arises, they can prefer an appeal to the Government themselves. All these provisions are intended to see that the administration of religious institutions is carried on on right lines.

"I wholeheartedly welcome this Bill once again."

SRI V. C. PALANISWAMI GOUNDER :—"Madam, Deputy Speaker, I rise to support wholeheartedly the Bill which has been brought forward by the Hon. Dr. Rajan and in doing so, I want to say a few words both as a public representative and as trustee of a temple. There seems to be a section of people who think that this Government should not interfere in matters of religion and charity. There are also other sections of equally strong opinion that the Government are the proper authorities to exercise control in matters of religion. There are also precedents with regard to the latter school of thought. In Tamil Nad the three Rajas who are called the 'Moovendars' have taken very great interest in the proper administration of our temples. Therefore, this Government who are the successors of our past Hindu Government have got every right to take proper care in the matter of religion and charity. This Bill has been very carefully framed so that the Government will not interfere with the religious sentiments and religious functions of the matadhipathis and the temple heads. The Government take the main responsibility of exercising control over financial matters and of seeing to the proper administration of the temples according to Hindu religion. I, therefore, welcome this Bill.

"Our ancestors have endowed lots of properties and extensive lands for charitable purposes. As has been said by our Tanjore friend, one-fourth of the Tanjore district has been assigned to matams. The Tanjore District Board has got a separate department called the 'Chatram department' for this purpose. Large areas of lands have been endowed for charitable purposes. Therefore, it is right that this Government should take care of those properties and vast areas of arable lands and see that their incomes are utilized in the proper manner. There is also a section of opinion that these lands and properties should not be used for any purpose other than the religious purpose and the purpose of the endowment. Taking a broad view of our Hindu religion, God is pleased only when humanity is served by His devotees. If the funds of the temple or of the math are spent for the uplift of poor humanity and for the relief of the sick, the God of Love, the God of Truth, will be all the more pleased. I, therefore, have no objection to the surplus funds of any math or temple being utilized for the purposes mentioned in clause 64 of the Bill, viz., spread of education, establishment and maintenance of orphanages for Hindu children and of asylums for Hindus suffering from leprosy, etc. I may mention that the starting of tuberculosis sanatoria may also be considered in this connexion.

“Madam, this Bill brings within its purview the charitable institutions also. These institutions may be big or small, but as has been pointed out by some of the previous speakers, there are innumerable small charitable funds mainly of families and certain societies. These funds are managed by those families and their heirs. These trusts have been legally registered. My request is that this Bill may not rope in those small charitable institutions also such as small chatrams, feeding houses, water pandals, etc. These institutions may be allowed to be managed by the families concerned who are likely to augment their funds if left to their management.

“Another point that I want to bring to the notice of the Government is about the appointment of Commissioner, Deputy Commissioners, Assistant Commissioners and trustees and the formation of Area Committees. The Government should take proper care and circumspection in appointing these officers. The success of the scheme and the fair name of the Government depend upon the proper selection of these bodies and individuals. They must prescribe certain qualifications for selection to these posts. Especially in the matter of selection of trustees, the Government or the authorities concerned should steer clear of local factions and political influences. The Government should be above all politics in this matter.

“Then, in the matter of management of temples, the trustees should be given the greatest respect and freedom usually given in the case of honorary and sacred work. Too much interference in the management of the trustees and too much pin-pricks should be avoided. Otherwise, good and pious trustees will not come forward to take up the responsibility of management. Nowadays there seems to be a scramble for appointment as trustees. I do not think this is a happy sign for real service and devotion. Even in respect of appointments of officers in matters of religion, people are hankering after power. Therefore, the Government should take special care to see that only pious and real devotees and men with a feeling of self-sacrifice are appointed. Then only the temples and maths will be well managed.

“With these few words, I wholeheartedly support the Bill.”

SRI G. RAJAMANNAR CHETTI :—“Madam, Deputy Speaker, I propose to talk only on certain relevant clauses which give an opportunity for the maths to be not controlled in the manner in which other religious institutions are proposed to be controlled. I do not know what the reasons are that have compelled the Government to exempt them from the operation of this Act. Although these maths have been brought into existence with very laudable motives and best of intentions, in practice they have been so criminally mismanaged that their very existence is abominable, though of course there may be a few exceptions. Madam, the finances of the maths are being frittered away and more so they are being accelerated on account of the coming Bill, which will be enacted shortly. I do not see why executive officers should not be appointed even in the case of maths. I would suggest that there must be executive officers in order to manage the properties and utilize the money so available in the interest of the people in general. It is well known that these estates are not properly managed and the percentage of revenues spent for general or educational purposes is very low. Therefore executive officers must be appointed with powers to control the finances of the maths, subject of course to the suggestions of the experienced matadhipatis, if necessary. The matadhipatis should only give suggestions and the executive officers must be asked to take complete control to collect and spend.

“Apart from this, by way of a warning if possible, the matadhipatis must be ordered not to spend their bank balances and other properties in order to divert the funds for other purposes in their own interest. I am told that some matadhipatis are purchasing properties in Madras which must be immediately prevented. These matadhipatis are sauntering away their lives in secluded palaces not knowing the realities of the situation and not knowing the changes of times. They are sauntering away their lives listening to buffoons and what not. Such a state of affairs ought to be prevented in the interests of the country.”

DR. D. S. RAMACHANDRA RAO :—“Madam, Deputy Speaker, it is held that a secular State should not interfere in religion, and if you must interfere, interfere as little as possible. That dictum would be a very safe policy for any State to follow up to a limit. But conditions might change and the object of particular charities might at times miss the mark and occasions might arise when the State will have to interfere. While the conception of a religion changes sometimes from decade to decade, it might have been so in olden times from century to century. There is therefore nothing very definite about a religion. But religion itself is very comprehensive, though a great many people would like to define it or explain it in terms which are not positive, but which is possible only in negative terms. Yesterday, an hon. Member was able to define Hindu religion as one which is not Muslim or Islam or Christian or one or two other religions which are not indigenous to the country. But hitherto, we have been looking at things from the negative point of view. Some of the difficulties that arise in any country might be by trying to look at the negative side and consequently by emphasis being placed upon the differences rather than the points of unification and commonness. But you cannot satisfactorily define things in a negative way. You must have a positive content if religion is to be understood in all its wider and higher implications. We are gradually coming to realize though perhaps slowly that one of the main principles of modern religion should be in a way to recognize the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. So long as these principles are realized however feeble be the attempts made in charities, in culture and in spiritual development—and so long as our aims are not diametrically opposed to these great principles, I think the State has no right to interfere. But when these cardinal principles are, either implicitly or explicitly, directly or indirectly, defeated or not completely realized, the State may interfere positively putting its feet on it and say, 'Thou shall not do it', or negatively by discouraging it in every possible way so that the moment a brake is put upon it, it may make the devotees realize the defects and see the problem in its proper light. This Bill has now come before us for a second time bereft of many shortcomings with which it came some two years ago. Many things that would have created difficulties in the administration of the law have been removed and therefore my congratulations are to Hon. Dr. Rajan for having piloted it so far with commendable success. At the same time, there are new difficulties which are cropping up to-day. When once the great problem of fundamental rights of individuals and also the sacred rights of religious faith of individuals are being recognized by our Constitution, the points raised by hon. Mr. Bhashyam two days ago have got to be considered and should not be brushed aside. A Bill like this might be brought to be examined before a Tribunal and so it is very necessary to take into account the practical difficulties that would crop up in its application so that the force and influence that this Bill should have is not taken away. Therefore looking from an impartial point of view, everything that would go against the real spirit of this Bill should be considered and as far as possible we should try to get out of the clutches of the law.

"Secondly, Madam, there is an attempt made to bring it up to the level of direct interference. I do not know how far any direct interference would be a success. We have the human material to deal with. We have our regular officials who find it difficult to manage even secular affairs. There is a cry everywhere that corruption and incapacity are preventing our Government to achieve what they really want to achieve. Take for instance the food problem, the prohibition scheme and many other similar problems which the Government have taken up with the best of intentions, to realize great principles. But with the human material which is inexperienced and beset with so many limitations, we have not been able to do what we want to do. Here, we want to tackle a great spiritual problem. I want you to consider whether we can really succeed or whether we are only crying for the moon. No doubt, when things are going wrong, there ought to be control. You must prevent evils being done. But at the same time, we cannot supplant the original agencies which are working. In no country in the world, the State has been successful in attempting to take the place of the spiritual initiative of the people and of the ecclesiastical agencies who ultimately will have to shoulder the great responsibilities of the spiritual development of the country.

"At the same time, Madam, I am for the Bill but it must be proceeded with very cautiously and very carefully, so that even with the best of intentions we will not be driving the finest elements in the country against us. There is also a fear expressed in certain quarters that there is a political motive behind the introduction of this Bill. This fear was not expressed when the Bill was first introduced in the House. But somehow or other that feeling is growing stronger and stronger and it is up to the Government to see that this illusion or delusion is completely dispelled and that whatever we do our actions are above board. We cannot do things by mere legislation. (At this stage the Deputy Speaker sounded the gong.) I am finishing, Madam. We are finding it day by day how impossible it is to achieve things by legislation. We may by means of legislation prevent or banish one hundred and one flaws and mistakes but we can never secure a single spiritual beauty and I think we have come to a time when we have to recognize that so long as there is recognition of a broad principle for things to be done we should be rather slow in our pursuit. While we avoid force we should try to focus the spiritual forces in the country in such a way as to enable the people to do things which the State in its very nature cannot accomplish."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—“ Madam, Deputy Speaker, my hon. Friend Sri Bhashyam, in moving his amendment, referred to me and said—though he is not entitled to disclose what happened in the Joint Select Committee—that I told the Select Committee that the Constitution did not prevent us from proceeding with this Bill and so we have come forward with this Bill again. When he moved for the recommitment of the Bill to the Joint Select Committee he made three points and all of them were based on the provisions contained in our Constitution. The first point was that India is a secular State and as such matters relating to religion cannot be legislated upon. He said that on the definition and connotation of the term ‘according to law and due process of law’ there was considerable doubt still, that this point had not been properly gone into by the Government when they framed the Bill and as such it was not clear whether we could proceed with the Bill. Secondly, he said that this legislation was discriminatory. He cited Articles 15 and 16 of the Constitution and said that this being a legislation for the Hindus alone, it was repugnant to the provisions of these two Articles. He asked, ‘why should the trustees of Hindu temples alone be brought under control while there are other trustees like Christians and Muslims whose powers in respect of the Missions and Mosques committed to their charge are not sought to be restricted?’ The third point that he made was under Article 31 of the Constitution which prohibits forfeiture of one’s property. He felt that proper attention might not have

[Sri K. Madava Menon] [13th September 1950]

(a) regulating or restricting any economic, financial, political or other secular activity which may be associated with religious practice.'

This Article definitely provides that we can bring in legislation 'restricting or regulating any economic, financial, political or other secular activity associated with religious practice', of course 'subject to public order, morality and health'. Article 26 again says:

'Subject to public order, morality and health, every religious denomination or any section thereof shall have the right—

- (a) to establish and maintain institutions for religious and charitable purposes,
- (b) to manage its own affairs in matters of religion;
- (c) to own and acquire movable and immovable property; and
- (d) to administer such property in accordance with law.'

In effect, therefore, this Article makes provision for the administration of the properties of such institutions according to law. If we go on stretching the language to such an extent, as to say that 'because fundamental rights are guaranteed under the Constitution therefore you should not make any legislation affecting those rights', then you will be making things ridiculous. Under Article 19 any person shall have the right to 'acquire, hold and dispose of property'. Does that mean that a person must have the right to pick another man's pocket or take away another's property and claim that it is a 'fundamental right'? It will be ridiculous if you say so; you cannot interpret a Constitution like that. As a matter of fact, when you see here that any person residing in India can 'acquire, hold and dispose of property', it means naturally that he can acquire property according to law, hold property according to law and dispose of property according to law. But if you say he can simply 'acquire, hold and dispose of property' and we cannot bring in any legislation to regulate the acquiring, holding or disposal of such property, you can realise how ridiculous such an argument will be. If we analyse hon. Sri Bhashyam's arguments, they refer only to three points, viz., that under Article 14 the State cannot 'deny equality before the law or the equal protection of the laws', but this Bill denies it because it relates only to Hindus; secondly that Articles 25 and 26 relate to religious practice and therefore the State has no right to legislate on that; and thirdly as Article 31 says that 'no person shall be deprived of his property save by authority by law' this Bill is out of order. I have read through hon. Sri Bhashyam's speech; he says that matadhipathis are practically owners or proprietors of the math properties and you cannot take away those properties without offending Article 31.

"In the first place, with my limited knowledge of things and perhaps of law, I cannot admit the contention that the matadhipathis are the owners or proprietors of the properties which they are administering. According to the Hindu Religious Endowments Act as it stands to-day, these matadhipathis are as much trustees of the properties as trustees of temples, perhaps with a little more of power to deal with or dispose of such properties, than in the case of trustees of temples. Some of our great ancients or kings endowed properties to the math for the particular purpose of advancing the study of religion and by certain conventions which were having the force of law—persons were succeeding to the trust, not necessarily by inheritance, but by whatever means that were being followed as a result of convention. Anyway, the matadhipathis, in the conception of law, are as much trustees of the math properties as the trustees of temples, with, as I said, a little more of power to use the property. It is admitted that we are not taking away by this legislation one iota or one grain of property belonging to any matadhipathis or math; we are simply saying that the expenditure of the math should be regulated in a particular way, that the matadhipathi cannot dispose of the property which is trust property, as he likes and he must deal with such property in a way which will advance the intentions of persons who donated the property or the purpose for which it was donated; any sort of misappropriation of the amounts or improper spending of it cannot be allowed in the name of religion. That is all that the Bill seeks to do, and the Government are not taking away property which belongs to somebody else; they want to see that if there is any mismanagement of the property, some manager is appointed; and even the power to appoint a manager is given to the matadhipathi. I can understand if you can point out one provision in the Bill where the property of any person is being deprived 'save by authority of law'. Any general statement to the effect that property is being deprived is no good at all. Throughout the discussion, I submit there has been only a general allegation that property is taken away. If, in the course of the consideration of the clauses of the Bill, my hon. Friend Sri Bhashyam, with all his reputation as a lawyer and his knowledge of law, can point out anything which amounts to taking away of anybody's property, we shall certainly consider whether it offends the Constitution.

"Madam, I do not want to go into the other details of the discussion except to say that most of the speeches have been generally in support of the Bill; about half a dozen hon. Members also said that we have been too liberal and we must go further. My only appeal to you now, Madam, is that the House need not have the oppressive feeling that because my hon. Friend Sri Bhashyam has said that the Bill is likely to offend the Constitution, therefore it should be sent back to the Select Committee. My hon. Friend Sri Bhashyam has been careful in his speech; he knows that the Select Committee's deliberations were held only after the Constitution was passed; he only mentioned that the question had not been discussed sufficiently well, that there have been some interpretations by the Supreme Court or other Courts of the Articles in the due process of law. I do not feel there is any necessity that this Bill should go back to the Select Committee for the particular purpose of considering whether certain clauses of the Bill offend the Articles of the Constitution or not. We will discuss the clauses of the Bill threadbare and try, if necessary, to take as much legal advice as we can, because it is not advantageous to anybody to pass a legislation which is going to be ineffective. As I said, it is simple jugglery to trot out the words 'discrimination', 'fundamental rights', 'expropriation' and things like that; it does not do any good to anybody to always refer to such words, in regard to anything and everything that is brought forward."

JANAB MOHAMED ABDUL SALAM:—"On a point of clarification, Madam. May I know from the Hon. Law Minister whether it is a fact that the Hon. Dr. Rajan, when he returned from Delhi, while saying something to the press reporters, expressed that the Central Government had told him that it is likely that this may be questioned in a Court of law; he was in doubt about it but he was not sure of his ground."

DEPUTY SPEAKER:—"If that is so, he would have known about it."

JANAB MOHAMED ABDUL SALAM:—"I would like to know from the Hon. Law Minister if it is a fact."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"I would like to ask the hon. Gentleman what is the meaning of asking me a question about a thing which Hon. Dr. Rajan is alleged to have heard from Delhi and which he is alleged to have told newspaper men. If some correspondence had come to the Government directly, I can understand or if it is a point of law, I can understand."

JANAB MOHAMED ABDUL SALAM:—"The question is, Madam, whether the Hon. Mr. Madhava Menon . . ."

DEPUTY SPEAKER:—"But he does not know anything about it. The Minister in charge of the Bill will now reply."

THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN:—"Madam, Deputy Speaker, after two days and a half of general discussion of this very important measure and after the detailed examination of it by those who are interested in it, I do not think there is much for me to say. For one thing, I am not an authority on law nor have I developed the capacity to interpret the law even as an ordinary citizen. I have been a professional man, a very prosaic professional man and even so, I have not lost interest in religion which my forefathers professed, which my countrymen profess and which is practised by millions of my brothers and sisters. I have only to remind the House that we cannot escape our responsibility in the matter. It is a matter for us to take responsibility for—Is it possible for us to-day in the year of grace 1950, after the passing of the Constitution and after calling our country an independent republic, legislated and controlled by voters exercising their franchise under adult suffrage, to stand up here and say as did those who held sway over us and there were so many who for reasons of their own allowed us to wallow in our dirt and commit mistakes as much as possible so that they might say: I am not responsible for it and I never did it. (At this stage Mr. Speaker occupied the Chair.) I ask, Sir, whether we can honestly say so. I contend that no intelligent man can ever argue that he has no responsibility in matters of religion, particularly when religion is so much mixed up with things so real, on which every citizen has got to exercise his thought and his vote as enormous sums donated to the temples and maths and other charitable institutions by the public are involved. It is left for lawyers to interpret and for Courts to give a decision upon it but in so far as I was responsible for introducing this Bill two years ago, I have tried my level best to take the opinion of the Advocate-General of the day who has candidly and clearly said that it is within our rights to proceed with the measure, on the lines that we have thought out and that it is neither legally wrong nor impossible. The House knows the opinion of the Advocate-General which he gave here for the benefit of the House. I am just reminding hon. Members of the House that it is only on the assured authority of the accredited law advisers of the Government that we pursued the Bill further and further. A Joint Select Committee consisting of Members of both the Houses of Legislature took ample time for the consideration of this measure for months together even to the extent of being told that they slept over it and that they have not been energetic about it. We allowed the Select Committee to do whatever improvements they liked with regard to the Bill in the best interests of the country. They sat for days, not merely in one place, but in a number of places, at Ootacamund and in the City of Madras and in such other places where it was found necessary that they should hold their sittings. We afforded opportunity for every Hindu who has got any thought about it, to express his opinion before the Select Committee. We also invited heads of maths and of religious institutions to send their representatives; we gave them time and invited them and gave them full opportunity to send their written representations and about 500 written representations were received. We invited them again to give their evidence also in addition to their written representations. I am glad to say that quite a large number of them appeared before the Select Committee both at Ootacamund and at Madras. It is not as if this we have adopted any hole-and-corner method. Knowing very well that it affected a large number of people, it was our duty to see that they had their say and had that in an effective way in regard to this measure. I can claim on behalf of the Government that we have prevented any one of them from giving expression to his view in the best manner possible and we have taken all that into our consideration in framing the measure. In the sittings of the Select Committee, I know that gentlemen like my hon. friend Sri Bhashyam and others took a very, very keen interest on it and I do not know whether there was any clause of the Bill that was not debated upon by them and on which they had not given their opinion. I am mentioning this in the House not to divulge any of the proceedings of the Select Committee but to show that the Select Committee wanted to give all the attention that could possibly be given to a Bill of this nature.

[Dr. T. S. S. Rajan] [13th September 1950]

Whatever may be said, Sir, about my personal faith or conviction, I declare here that I still maintain that I am an orthodox Hindu; my family has been so for generations. My grandfather held the post of responsible officer of a math and even my own father was an executive servant of one of the biggest maths of the State. Claiming that as my heritage, it is not in me to attempt to blast up hoary religious institutions. Being so closely associated by contact and by heritage with very many of these institutions and after having lived and spent the best portion of my life in one of the biggest religious centres in South India, Srirangam, with its famous temple with enormous properties, it has been my chance in life to observe their working perhaps at very much closer range than would have been possible for many hon. Members of this House and to see the dire consequences which some of those good institutions have suffered on account of mismanagement. These have left a very painful impression upon me. It is against that background of history behind me that I have taken up this responsibility and continue to shoulder it in spite of what has been said by the orthodox section of the people against this Bill. I honestly wanted to go into the spirit of orthodoxy and understand it as best as I could but beyond the safeguards that we have been able to provide in this Bill, I was unable to see any justification for giving more than what has been provided for. Criticisms have been made on the floor of the House that we have been very soft where we ought to have been strict and energetic in the matter of the recommendations that we have made. I know it; if it comes to the point of considering it, I shall certainly consider it again when amendments are moved. The opportunity of moving amendments provides a long vista for discussion by Members who may feel aggrieved. We have not rushed through the Bill. We have heard and considered the representations made on behalf of the heads of maths themselves; we have heard their representatives in person and we have given full consideration to their representations. But on the question of law, I can only quote the Law Officers of the Government in my support and I fully believe that we have not gone into forbidden ground either in the moral sphere or in the religious sphere. First of all, we, the people of the State are entitled to see that the fabulous amounts donated to the maths and bequeathed to our care, are properly used and we, as citizens, must see whether we are discharging our trust in the manner we are expected to do and whether we justify ourselves before God and Man. I know the extreme views expressed by some hon. Members saying that we have been partial in the matter of certain recommendations we have made and I invite them all to bring forward their suggestions to improve the Bill by way of amendments if need be. But after we have spent so much time upon it and have heard all the people who are possibly affected by it either as citizens or as associated with religious organizations, to say that the Bill must go back to the same Joint Select Committee to consider a few points is something beyond my comprehension. True, I am not a lawyer. But I am sure in the light of what all has been said by the Legal officers of the Government and our Law Department and the Hon. Law Minister we are not treading upon forbidden ground. Therefore, I believe it is the duty of this State to deal with this question. Perhaps this State has got the largest number of religious institutions in India, institutions which have got a lot of trust and wealth at their disposal. Bearing all these things in mind, I feel, if there is any State in this country which should come first and foremost to deal with this question, it is this State; and so, I feel this State is eminently entitled to do so. Therefore, we have not been slow to move in this respect. Previous Governments, having quasi or partial administrative control over affairs, not entirely republican, as we are to-day, even to the limited extent where people's will did prevail then, in the previous Ministries in this State, they have lost no time to tackle this subject in the best possible way to carry out reforms in consonance with the public opinion of the time. So, then, a statutory board like the Endowments Board was created. It was vested with the power to interfere, wherever it was deemed necessary, with the administration of temples, and it was also given power to carry on judicial proceedings before it. That was how the Endowments Board came into existence. They have survived now twenty-five years of their life. But then, there was this trouble: the Endowments Board were only a smaller judicial body subordinate to the final appeal of the High Court of Judicature. That meant, their orders, in effect, could not be enforced, as their decision was liable to be reversed on appeal. So, during the last twenty-five years, even with the enormous amount of safeguards, we have found it impossible to carry out what in our opinion is bare justice—fair and honest justice—because there was a loophole in the Constitution of this Board for an appeal against their orders. We have seen how that provision has worked. Here, we found a temple unfit to manage its affairs. The Board interfered and passed orders; but could they enforce their order? No. Because the other litigant affected by the Board's order upset it on appeal to the High Court. So the whole difficulty was whether the decision of the Endowments Board could be prevailed upon. The administration of justice was so intricate that it was not possible for a right to prevail. That was our experience. So, while we know that the Endowments Board have done very good work all these years, it was the Constitution made for them that made it impossible for them to display better work than what has been done all along. I know, and it stands to reason also, that the Endowments Board did display a great amount of tact and talent in the management of all these very very troublesome institutions, which were absolutely litigious to the very core. For, every man who had anything to do with these institutions, who was affected by the Board stepping in, thought that he had nothing to do but take the matter to the court of law. So, for nearly quarter of a century, the Board could not be very effective. That we have noticed. So, now when we, have got power in our hands, we thought that we must assert the people's will in such a way that there will be no room left for any doubt in the matter. So this

13th September 1950] [Dr. T. S. S. Rajan]

[Dr. T. S. S. Rajan] [13th September 1950]

Bill is brought forward to secure that these things are in consonance absolutely with the people's will. Therefore, there is no justification to say 'you have not tackled other communities; you have not tackled other religions'. Sir, certainly this is not the way to argue. The question before us is, 'should the Hindu community as it is constituted to-day take note of the defects in the institutions and provide for necessary reforms, particularly of religion'. If you say, 'Yes', and if the majority of the State are Hindus, then, no Hindu can escape responsibility for the mismanagement of these trusts and maths. It is high time we take it up; we admit the matter has been delayed; we admit the object with which the Board has been constituted has been defeated. That is a matter which we have to tackle; that is a matter which the Hindu community has to tackle. There is no good saying that other communities may not follow us. They may or may not do it. If we, form the majority of the community and if we feel that we should acquire control over property of temples to look after them properly, and when we see by past experience and by knowledge of things in the past, that things are not piling well and that in the name of law, justice has been defeated, then it is time enough for us now to bring this legislation. It is that motive alone that prompted me, not during the last one or two years, but for the last fourteen years, to bring forward the present legislation. Because, in fact, the Congress Ministry, in their first regime, took up this matter, this Bill was then framed, but on account of the exigencies of politics, we had to resign and go out of office. Now, we have come back, and having come back, we thought it worth while to proceed with the legislation. We have gone into the Bill with the utmost care that we are capable of."

MR. SPEAKER:—"May I inform the Hon. Minister that he should face the Chair and address."

THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN:—"Sir, I am replying to the debate now, and so I thought I should address the House. Sir, I did not mean any insult to the Chair."

MR. SPEAKER:—"I never took it as an insult. The rule is hon. Members should face the Chair and speak. If need be, the Hon. Minister, if he wants, may come nearer, to this mike and speak from here."

THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN:—"I do not wish to keep the House long. But, in piloting a Bill of this sort and in replying to the various issues raised by several speakers, I thought at least as a matter of courtesy, I should devote myself to what all they have said."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"I am not able to hear the Hon. Minister well."

THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN:—"Here is an hon. Member who wants me to speak louder. I am doing my best to make myself heard. I do not know what else I can do. I have tried to speak loudly; and I shall still do it to the best of my ability."

13th September 1950]

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"I only said, I cannot hear the hon. Member; I never said anything more."

THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN:—"The hon. Member should know I cannot raise my voice because of my physical capacity, and like several other Members, I should be shown a certain amount of courtesy by hon. Members, as has been shown by the Hon. Speaker. I simply plead for justice and nothing more. And if my hon. Friend, Sri Bhashyam is just, as I am sure, he is just, he will certainly excuse me if I am not able to reach his ears."

"I have now taken pains to deal with the fundamental motive of the Government which prompted them to move this Bill, and from the sympathy and support I have had from this House, I feel convinced that we are not too early to go into this question. In fact, we are spending more time on it, because of the importance of the subject and because of our anxiety to give due consideration to such group of people, whose views have to be heeded and not ignored. For, I do not want to be told that we did not listen to or ignored any point of view. In fact, every item of criticism was considered at the Committee stage. After having done so far, after having had the hon. Mover of the amendment himself on the Committee—and I wish to inform the House that the hon. Member was very regular in attending the meetings of the Select Committee, and he took such keen interest in every detail of the Bill, it is a bit of surprise to me, that he should come here and move the amendment he moved for recommitment on account of certain considerations that came to light subsequently. That, I am unable to accept as an argument. I may say here that the Select Committee had been very considerate and had taken all the time necessary to consider the Bill in all its details. The mover of the amendment said that the Select Committee members were not taken to sacred places to be shown what was being done there. It cannot be stated that we the Hindus who constituted that Select Committee have not seen the temples and that we have not watched the worship going on there or the members of that committee were not educated enough in that field. They have the capacity enough to understand the spiritual meaning and the esoteric meaning of those various observances observed in the temples. So what is the use of going and seeing those things and be told what they were. Sir, the committee examined the Bill in the several sittings held in the very cool atmosphere of the Blue Hills (Ootacamund). All the coolness and freshness necessary for the members to devote themselves to their task were there. In spite of all that, there were still some subjects left, on which they had to examine witnesses, after coming over to Madras; and we had them examined also. Therefore it is not as if the whole Bill was rushed through without proper thought and without care. And as regards the evidence taken, many eminent lawyers like Mr. V. V. Srinivasa Ayyangar gave evidence. Orthodox men who could speak with authority were invited, and every one of them who came was given all the time he wanted to give evidence, so that it shall not be said later on that the Select Committee rushed through the Bill. We studied new issues, because the Select Committee raised fresh subjects, we framed fresh issues, had them circulated; and they were discussed very thoroughly, and the results of all those deliberations are incorporated in the Bill now presented to the House, and they have been shown in Clarendon type. After doing all this, to ask the Bill to be sent back to the Select Committee, is something which passes my comprehension; I cannot understand the logic of it—I am incapable of understanding the logic of it. I will simply say as far as this Government are concerned, we have acted fairly and justly to all interests concerned and to every thought of opinion, both hostile and sympathetic with regard to this Bill, by giving them full opportunity for discussion. So I really do not feel it at all just or fair to accept the proposal to refer this Bill back to the same Select Committee. I regret I cannot accept the amendment of my hon. Friend Sri Bhashyam.

“With regard to the other points raised in the debate, I shall not say here much. I can assure the hon. Members that we shall keep our ears open and our eyes open to the suitable amendments suggested by them. I would like them to put them in writing and move them, if necessary, as amendments, if they want those things to be incorporated in the Bill, so that it shall not be said afterwards that we did not pay heed to them. We shall certainly examine them. What was necessary we have already provided in the various clauses of the Bill. So I want them to consider that; and if need be, we are prepared to consider all such amendments which they may think is necessary.

“Now, I wish to mention one point more. And it is with regard to the age of trustees as it was mentioned by more than one hon. Member. Somebody suggested it must be twenty-five, somebody else said, ‘No, it must be thirty’. Various limits were mentioned. Fortunately, nobody said it must be over seventy! (Laughter). Whatever it is, I am prepared to take into consideration their suggestions. But let it be a discriminating age. The amount of discrimination that is necessary for trustee to face his problems, we have to consider, and so, if such a suitable age is suggested. I am prepared to consider.

“Finally, Sir, I may assure hon. Members that it is still open to them to suggest amendments wherever necessary so that posterity may not say that this Bill was rushed through because a fanatical fellow (Laughter) happened to be in charge, but it shall be the verdict of our people and the verdict of all good Hindus, who have now the honour and privilege of being citizens of this honoured republic, that this Bill was enacted after a very careful consideration.”

MR. SPEAKER:—“The House will now rise and reassemble at 2-30 p.m. Then, hon. Mr. Bhashyam will reply. His amendment would be then put to vote, and after that the motion of the Hon. Minister would be put to vote.”

13th September 1950]

(After lunch—2-30 p.m.)

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—“Mr. Speaker, Sir, before I begin to reply to the main points, I should like to say a few words about the reference made to me both by the Hon. Minister for Law and the Hon. Minister in charge of the Bill. They were good enough to refer to me as a person who knew something about law and who could speak with some authority. If they sincerely thought so, then I should have expected them to accept my advice. But what they did however was to praise me and at the same time damn me by not accepting my advice. The Minister in charge of the Bill was good enough to say that I was very helpful to him. According to me, it means helpful in obstruction. Whenever a clause or amendment was discussed, I saw more objections to it than things in its favour and at the end of it all, the Government had their own way. While I render thanks to both the Ministers for giving me the praise they did, I certainly complain that they did not follow my advice or suggestion either on the floor of this House or in the Select Committee.

“The Hon. Minister for Law charged me with jugglery of words. He used the word ‘jugglery’ at least half a dozen times in the course of his speech. I think it is more correct to say that he juggled with the word ‘jugglery’ than to say that I juggled with that word. All that I did was to merely read Article 14 as it stands and I did not perform any jugglery at all. I did not import anything that was not there in the Article. Let us not think that the Judges are super-men. They are after all common people with some discrimination. They hear the arguments of both sides and decide in favour of whichever argument appeals to them as just. I request the hon. Members of the House to put themselves in the position of Judges and decide whether what I say is according to the spirit of the law or whether his interpretation of the law is correct. With your permission, I will read Article 14—

‘The State shall not deny to any person equality before the law or the equal protection of the laws within the territory of India.’

Under this Bill the Government want to take the property of certain trusts into their own hands or make arrangements in respect of its administration. Am I getting the protection to the same extent as any other person is getting? Is everybody in the same position? That is the question that I ask the Government to consider seriously. If a trustee of a Muslim or Christian charity commits a breach of trust, he goes scotfree, whereas, because I am a trustee of a Hindu charity coming under the operation of this Act, my property is taken away from my management and put in charge of somebody else. Is that equal protection? My respectful submission is that the Mover of the Bill, in spite of his arguments and in spite of the Legal Department behind him, is not correct. If he wants to deal with breaches of trust, he must deal with all breaches of trust irrespective of whether they are committed by a Hindu, Muhammadan, Christian or Jew. It, is in that sense that I understand the Article. If I am wrong, the Government need not accept my advice. After all I am not able to decide the matter. It is only the High Court that can speak with authority and decide. What I say is not law but only argument. I only advise the Government to ask their Law Officers to view the Bill from the point of the view of the grounds that I have urged, not apriori grounds but grounds which appeal to common sense. The Bill has not been considered on these grounds in the Select Committee or in the earlier stage of the Bill. It may be asked why I did not urge this point before the Select Committee. Perhaps I am wiser now after reading the Bill with a little more care. That is one reason. The other reason is that this point suggested itself to me because of some recent decisions of the Supreme Court and the High Courts. Suppose the Legislature passes this Bill and the Bill becomes an Act. If a person files a suit in the High Court questioning the validity of the Act and if the High Court decides that the Act is ultra vires, then the Government will cut a sorry figure. The judgment will be published all over and the public will read it. That is why I ask why a little more care should not be exercised before the Government commit themselves to the Bill. I do not ask that the Government should accept my advice. I am not an Advocate-General and I cannot speak with the authority of an Advocate-General. The Advocate-General is the Government's law adviser and they follow him. But the people have the right to move the Court and the Advocate-General is heard there not so much because he is the Advocate-General but because he is an Advocate representing a party like any other Advocate.

[Sri K. Bhashyam] [13th September 1950]

"Article 15 of the Constitution says:

'The State shall not discriminate against any citizen on grounds only of religion'

Are not the Government discriminating on the ground of religion? This is another point which I am going to adopt as my argument. This ground was suggested to me by the judgment of the Bombay High Court, which I read in the newspapers, in which one section of the Bombay Prohibition Act which discriminated between one set of citizens and the other was held to be against the Constitution. I say here this whole Bill discriminates against the whole community and as such there is much more and heavy discrimination. On this ground also, I want the Government to look into the Bill carefully.

"According to Article 26, every religious denomination or any section thereof has the right to manage its own affairs in matters of religion, to own and acquire movable and immovable property and to administer such property in accordance with law. If legislation says: 'You shall not administer the property and the Government shall administer it for you.' Does it not offend the fundamental right to freedom to manage that has been guaranteed by the Constitution? It is against the Fundamental Right and therefore it cannot be supported.

[13th September 1950] [Sri K. Bhashyam]

"Under Article 31 (1), no person shall be deprived of his property save by authority of law. A lawyer will understand that even trusteeship is property under the Limitation Act. If the Government deprive a person of his trusteeship, they are depriving him of his property also. It is unnecessary to argue the matter in this House, as it may appear too technical. In the light of Articles 14, 15, 26 and 31 (1), the Government cannot take over the entire administration of the property to themselves, but they can certainly regulate the administration. The whole scheme of the Bill is to vest the administration of property in the Government through a hierarchy of officers and Area Committees whose members will be appointed by the Government. Do the Government consult the wishes of the religious denomination concerned? I suggest to the Government that they must at least provide for election to the Area Committees by persons who resort to the institution and who take an interest in it. Are the Government allowing the trustees to administer the property according to law or are they taking it over? The Assistant Commissioner is to preside over the committees. Every petty item will be decided by the Assistant Commissioner and his superior officers. The right of appeal to court is taken away except for one or two matters. Why? They say that there is long delay and heavy litigation. I say that matters are pending for many years before the Board as they are before the court. I say this from experience. I do not know what it is going to be under the new dispensation. But I believe that even hereafter one officer will have to refer a question to his superior officer and that superior officer will have to refer to the still higher officer and this will take time. I do not think there will be expeditious disposal.

"The Hon. Mover of the Bill took pride in the fact that he has provided for the jurisdiction of the court in regard to the removal of a trustee of a math. Even the fixing of dittams and the scale of expenditure are not left to the trustees. If a trustee says that ten rupees is necessary for a puja, the Commissioner or Assistant Commissioner may say that five rupees will do. Is that not interference with the day to day administration of the temple? Cannot such matters be left to the trustee or the decision of civil courts? The whole scheme of the Bill is to vest the whole administration in the Government. To say that the Government are only taking over the superintendence is all a bunkum. A secular State is going to have an ecclesiastical department to manage the affairs of temples. It is a paradox to me. Is it not ridiculous? The position is worse in respect of maths. The trustees of maths have a beneficial interest. They are not like temple trustees; matathipathis are trustees in a very narrow and attenuated sense. As I said, the trustees of maths have got beneficial interest in the properties. Is it not proper for the matadhipatis to spend the money of the maths for purposes on which they have been spending so far. To say 'I am not taking over the whole administration, but I am taking control over the secular management alone' is not correct. When the Government say that 'dittam' must be sent to them for approval, are they not interfering with the discretion of the matadhipati? If the matadhipati wants to present two shawls to two pandits, and if the Government say that one will do, is it not interference with the internal administration of the math? Merely to say that we are not interfering with the internal administration and that we are only supervising the secular affairs of the institutions is wholly wrong and misleading. It is really a pretension. The person who will supervise will be appointed by the Government. The Area Committees will be appointed by the Government. The person to deal with appeals will be appointed by the Government. These officers will be drawing their salaries and dearness allowances from the Government. Is it not a case of pretension to say 'Oh; we are not interfering with the temples and maths; we are leaving them to their own selves; we want to stand out and see that things are properly done'. No pretension can go further than this. I strongly hold that it is wrong to do so. The Hon. Minister said that he is an orthodox Hindu. So am I, perhaps more orthodox than he is. Perhaps some of the orthodox Hindus will not take me and less him as orthodox. If his grandfather served in temples, I may say that I am a Swayamacharya Purusha. As a matter of fact a person who calls himself a matadhipati may not have maths. I may call myself a matadhipati, if I care to, without a math, and I may not have disciples. If the Hon. the Minister feels so much in the matter and thinks that there should be control over the maths, I, more than he, do feel that control over maths should go. It is not good for the State. It is really a control for the purpose of diverting the temple funds for other purposes which the Government have in view. Can I not say this? It is no good merely to say 'I am orthodox'. Have the Government taken all the views placed before the Joint Select Committee? They never did. Many suggestions were given by the orthodox gentleman Mr. V. V. Srinivasa Ayyangar? Did the Government accept his view? He gave excellent suggestions. The Government complain that the existing provisions in the Civil Procedure Code are not enough to take up the cases of the trustees before a Court. He suggested the appointment of a Director of Charities who will be entitled to go into the accounts. There is nothing wrong in that suggestion. He can be appointed on the analogy of the Director of Public Prosecutions. It will also be in consonance with the decisions in English law. Charity Commissioners are there in England. They do not take upon the management themselves. They take the matter to the court for the purpose of framing a scheme in respect of any trust or charity badly managed. Here, as soon as an officer of this Government find a little mismanagement, the institution will be taken over by the Government. The Government say that they will frame a scheme. It is the Commissioner or the Deputy Commissioner that has to frame the scheme. Will the Government go to the court or an independent body, for the purpose of framing a scheme? I submit that it is too much to claim that temples are not interfered with in any manner and that supervision of the secular affairs alone is proposed to be taken. I think hon. Members will understand this Bill more fully only when it is considered clause by clause. They want provincialisation of the service. They want control over temples to be in their own hands. Am I not entitled to ask why it should be so? All the orthodox people believe that these temple funds are going to be interfered with and that they will be diverted for purposes other than those for which they were intended by the founders. The Cypres doctrine is there. The Commissioner is going to apply this Cypres doctrine. This is not correct. The municipalities are responsible for the maintenance of roads and the health of the people. Are municipalities, on that account, entitled to share the temple funds which are not intended for that purpose but are meant for the purpose of worship in temples and for the greater glory of God. To say that this point has been raised by Mr. Bhashyam and two others have merely echoed all that he said, and, therefore, it does not deserve any consideration, is wholly wrong. The hon. Member Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar made out a strong case against this Bill."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—"Sir, the hon. Member Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar was not at all here after the report of the Joint Select Committee was presented."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—"Sir, I want to point out that hon. Mr. Vaidyanatha Ayyar did speak on this Bill before it was sent to the Joint Select Committee. He raised so many questions. What is the answer given by the Hon. the Minister? What steps did he take to answer those questions. He only treated them with contempt. Is it correct to adopt the attitude 'we do not want lawyers; they juggle with words; therefore lawyers are to be treated with contempt'. That is the attitude of the Government. Therefore, I submit that if Government find themselves later in trouble, I tell them here and now that they have been warned. It is open to the Government to examine the position afresh. It may be placed before the departmental officers and the new Advocate-General. If the Advocate-General says that the position is correct, they may act as he says."

"A reference was made to the Hindu Code Bill. There are still some persons who believe that this is also unconstitutional. I believe it is only a social reform, and it is not at all a question of religion. It deals with the question of the property of the Hindus, and does not touch religion at all. Therefore it is justified. Dr. Ambedkar said that he held strong views about the Hindu Code Bill. Sir, even after careful analysis of the provisions of the Constitution, detentions of persons proved futile before Courts of Law. Whatever care was taken, therefore, was not sufficient. Any person who really sees the words and understands them must know how to apply them to the present Bill. If on the merits of the Bill they can tell me that I am wrong, and if they are advised by the new Advocate-General that they are right they can as well proceed with this Bill. But I tell the Government that they take the risk upon themselves. That is what I want to say. I have not much to say on the merits of the Bill.

"One other matter I wish to point out, Sir, before I close. The Hon. the Minister in charge of the Bill was good enough to say at the end of his reply that any amendments which might be moved would receive his careful attention. He did not say that they would be approved, but that he would consider them. A number of amendments has been given notice of by hon. Members. There are some more amendments which we would like to move, but we had not given notice of them as we were under the impression that the Bill would not be reached, as it was kept as the last item on the agenda. We thought this Bill would not be considered clause by clause in this session at all. Therefore, I appeal to you, Mr. Speaker, to allow us to give notice of amendments . . ."

MR. SPEAKER :—" This Bill has been before the House for a very long time."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" I do not question your ruling, Sir. . . ."

MR. SPEAKER :—" I told the hon. Member that this Bill had been before this House for a very long time, and nobody prevented him from giving notice of amendments."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" Sir, you are stating one fact, and I am stating another fact. This Bill was on the agenda for a number of days, and many of us doubted whether it would be reached at all as a number of other Bills were put on top of it. And, therefore, it has not been possible for us to give notice of amendments. I respectfully point out that the question of privileges of hon. Members to give notice of amendments has been taken away by the procedure now adopted. May I say further, Sir (though it is an aside to this question), that some of the hon. Members thought and expected that the second reading of the Bill would not be taken up this session? I would beg of you and request you to give us some time to give notice of amendments."

MR. SPEAKER :—" Three days' notice is necessary to give amendments."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" There are two rules bearing on the subject, Sir. I wish to point out that rule 94 says :

' When a motion has been agreed to by the Assembly that a Bill be taken into consideration, any member may propose an amendment of such Bill.'

The motion that the Bill be taken into consideration must be agreed to in the first instance."

MR. SPEAKER :—" The amendment of the hon. Member has already been moved. The amendment which the hon. Member gave notice of is what is meant in this rule. I do not quite know whether he has understood me. What this rule 94 means (himself a clever lawyer he should know this) is that when a motion that the Bill be taken into consideration has been agreed to, any member may propose amendments."

13th September 1950] [Mr. Speaker]

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" By calling me a clever lawyer, please do not put off my argument. The rule is ' When a motion has been agreed to by the Assembly that a Bill be taken into consideration). Then only I can move my amendment. But you a Bill '. That stage is not yet. Even my amendment will be wrong according to you. ' When a motion has been agreed to ' (means the House should agree to the motion that the Bill be taken into consideration. Then only I can move my amendment. But you have allowed to move it earlier. Now, Sir, I would like you to fix three days after the motion is put and carried to enable us to give notice of amendments. This we are entitled to under rules 94 and 95 of the Assembly Rules. The stage contemplated in rule 94 has yet to come. Rule 95 says :

' Notice of a proposed amendment shall be sent to the Secretary at least three clear days before the sitting of the Assembly at which the Bill is to be considered.'

" Taking the two rules together, I submit that we are entitled to three days' notice from the time the motion is put and carried. As a matter of fact, if the motion that the Bill be taken into consideration is passed by the House, three days' notice should be given to us to give notice of amendments. Even if this is not agreed to by you, I appeal to you to allow us three days' time to give amendments. The Hon. the Minister was very reasonable in his introductory speech, and we also wish to move some more amendments. Sir, I request you to give us three days' time to enable us to give notice of some more amendments."

THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN :—" Sir, I was carefully listening to the hon. Member to see what arguments he was going to advance in support of his motion. But to my regret I saw more of passion and anger displayed in his speech rather than any argument, as I could understand it. I can say that he simply lost the trend of the discussion. What is it that he wanted? He wanted the Bill to go before the very same Joint Select Committee once again. That was the amendment he moved. I told him the way in which the Joint Select Committee which was appointed by both the Houses went into the provisions of the Bill in great detail, in order to show him what amount of fairness and time has been devoted by that Committee in dealing with this question. I was expecting an answer to all my arguments. It is not a question of competition in orthodoxy between me and my hon. Friend. I am absolutely out of the picture in that respect. What I said was that I was a Hindu and was dealing with the Bill. When I mentioned it, I never had the hon. Member in my mind. Considering my status and position, I am not a very discreditable person of the Hindu society. I said that I was conversant with the feelings of the Hindu community and I felt that the Hindu community was strongly in favour of making some amendments to the existing Act.

[Dr. T. S. S. Rajan] [13th September 1950]

Since the time we came to power in the early days, this view has been put forth by the late revered Raja of Panagal, later by the late Sir Sadasiva Ayyar and again by the Raja of Chettinad who sought the help of Mr. Venkatramana Rao in this respect. The House will see that after every five years or so we found difficulties in working the Act and several amendments had to be made to it. Also no other religious community took the initiative. We were obliged to take up this legislation because we had repeated attention drawn to it by our people. Being in power and in view of the demand of the people, we took it up. In my arguments, I laid claim to make alterations as a Hindu, not because I was more, or less orthodox than any other Member of this House. Therefore, I do not want my orthodoxy to be cited as a point by any other Member. I only want the Members to see whether the alterations made are good or bad. When I move an alteration or amendment to an Act, I know very well what I am doing. So, there is no question of competition in orthodoxy between me and the hon. the Mover of the amendment.

"Now, my hon. Friend pleads for time to give notice of amendments. He has already given notice of some amendments. He now wants three days' time. This Bill is not going to be voted upon finally to-morrow. Discussion will continue for a number of days until the last clause in the amended Bill is taken up. There will be plenty of time for moving amendments and if you, Sir, approve of them and if the House gives permission, there will be no objection to their being taken up. Therefore, there is no question of whether immediately three days' time will be necessary or not.

"Sir, I may tell you that I give this privilege to my hon. Friend to move such amendments as he may consider necessary and important and which he might have forgotten to give notice of. Certainly I do not think the House will be uncharitable enough not to listen to him. They will certainly welcome such amendments as are consistent with the rules. If my hon. Friend wants three days' time to move as many amendments as he likes, I wish the matter is referred to the House itself. If the House is pleased to give him, not 3 days, but 30 days' time, I will not stand in the way. But as far as I am concerned, I am obliged to say that I have given enough time and even more time than is justifiable. I want to point out there is still some more time for him to move amendments. If he wants some more adjournment, let us leave the matter to the decision of the House. As far as I am concerned, I want to proceed with the Bill immediately."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—"Sir, when I insisted upon the rule being observed, I did so not for me alone. After hearing the Hon. Minister, certain further amendments suggested themselves to me, but that is a different matter. There were also other Members who wanted to give notice of amendments. Therefore, I pleaded not only for myself but for others. The question is not one to be left to the vote of the House but it is one of privilege of each individual Member. You cannot put to the vote of the House a question whether a Member is entitled to time or not to give notice of amendments. It rests solely on the rules in the first instance, then on your interpretation and thirdly on the indulgence you are going to show to the Members.

"Sir, I do not want to delay the consideration of the Bill. Three days are not going to cause any great delay and no trustee or matadhipati is going to be affected by this. It should not be imagined that I am asking for time only to delay the Bill. I only want to make such amendments to the Bill as would make it a good Bill and would lead to public good. I do not think my hon. Friend Dr. Rajan thinks that I want to obstruct him. I am not a matadhipati or trustee anywhere. Therefore, he may not run away with the idea that I want to delay the Bill."

MR. SPEAKER :—"I believe the hon. Member is not pressing his amendment."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—"The Hon. Minister has not made a request for the amendment to be withdrawn, Sir."

THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN :—"I would certainly request my hon. Friend to withdraw his amendment. I have been working at this Bill for so many years and am anxious to get it through as early as possible. Further, the charge which the House laid on me was that we had taken too much time and had delayed the Bill. Therefore, it will be just and fair if I ask the hon. Member not to ask for more time but to avail himself of opportunities as often as may be necessary to move amendments."

MR. SPEAKER :—"What the hon. Member wants is that I should give him some more time."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—"Sir, in view of the appeal made by my revered Leader for whom I have the greatest respect and with whom I have worked very often, I beg leave of the House to withdraw my motion for recommitting the Bill to the Joint Select Committee. I have said something in the heat of the moment but my respect to him has not become less than what it was before. But I insist upon your ruling for giving three days' time."

The motion of Mr. Bhashyam was withdrawn, with the leave of the House.

MR. SPEAKER :—"The hon. Member Mr. Bhashyam wants three days' time for giving notice of amendments. It is merely a request. I want to know what the Hon. Minister wants to say on this."

THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN :—"Sir, I have already said that I do not want to delay the passing of the Bill unless I am legally prevented from proceeding with the Bill."

MR. SPEAKER :—"The Hon. Minister is not legally prevented from proceeding with the Bill."

[13th September 1950]

THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN :—" What I want is that the House may not charge me with delaying the Bill but may allow me to get it through as early as possible unless I am prevented from doing so by any legal difficulties. I was anxious that this Bill should be taken up first and passed as early as possible. Hence I wanted this Bill to be taken up in preference to others."

MR. SPEAKER :—" I will put the original motion to the vote of the House. The question is—'That the Madras Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Bill, 1950, as amended by the Joint Select Committee, be taken into consideration.'

The motion was carried.

MR. SPEAKER :—" I will put clause by clause to the vote of the House. I will put the Preamble and clause 1 in the end."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" Sir, the Preamble may be put first. I do not want to be misunderstood when I say this. I have already been misunderstood that I am trying to delay the Bill. I do not want you also to misunderstand me. In the Preamble the word 'charitable' is used. It means the Bill will cover charitable institutions also. I want that charitable institutions should be taken out of the purview of this Bill. So, if this word is deleted, possibly some of my amendments will go."

MR. SPEAKER :—" The hon. Member must know that if he omits the word 'Hindu', the scope of the Bill will be extended."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" Sir, my amendment is to delete the word 'charitable'. Some other Member has given notice of an amendment for the deletion of the word 'Hindu'."

MR. SPEAKER :—" Any amendment should be such as to come within the scope of the Bill."

Clause 1.

MR. SPEAKER :—" The motion is—

'That clause 1 do stand part of the Bill.'

"Regarding the amendment for the deletion of the word 'Hindu', I want to point out that the statement of objects and reasons to the Bill says, 'The Government have carefully considered the question and have decided to provincialize the administration of Hindu religious endowments.' If the word 'Hindu' is deleted, it will mean that the Bill covers other religious institutions also. That will be outside the scope of the Bill.

"However, let the hon. Member formally move the amendment and let it be seconded."

SRI S. NAGAPPA :—" Sir, I beg to move—

'That in clause 1 the word "Hindu" may be deleted.'

13th September 1950]

[Sri S. Nagappa]

"The clause as at present reads, 'This Act may be called the Madras Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Act, 1950.' If my amendment is accepted, it will read, 'This Act may be called the Madras Religious and Charitable Endowments Act, 1950.'

"The scope of the Bill will be extended not only to Hindu religious institutions . . ."

MR. SPEAKER :—" If it is to extend the scope of the Bill, then the amendment is clearly out of order."

SRI S. NAGAPPA :—" Sir, my point is, we are aware that our State has already declared itself neither as a Hindu, Muslim or other religious State. So long as the Britisher was here, he did not interfere with any religion of this country. He was maintaining religious neutrality and at the same time, he allowed every religion to prosper on its own lines. We have reached a stage when we have definitely accepted the Constitution by which we have declared ourselves as a secular State. But, we find that here is a Bill to reform a particular religion only. Strictly speaking, we should legislate for the whole community of people in this country, whether they are Hindus, Muslims, Christians, Parsis or Jains."

JANAB M. S. ABDUL MAJID :—" Sir, on a point of order, may I know how the hon. Member can discuss on the general scope of the Bill while he is moving an amendment to particular clause?"

MR. SPEAKER :—" The hon. Member is moving his amendment and while so doing he can make a few observations. So let the hon. Member move his amendment, and let it be seconded. I will hear what hon. Mr. Bhashyam and the Hon. Law Minister have to say in the matter. Then I will give my ruling on the amendment."

SRI S. NAGAPPA :—" My amendment is very simple and if it is accepted, I think, it will go a long way to rectify not only one religion, viz., the Hindu religion, but also other religions and other religious institutions, where also there has been mismanagement. So I formally move the amendment and request that it may be accepted."

MR. SPEAKER :—" I have to inform the hon. Members that I need not everytime ask the mover of the amendment, who is seconding his amendment. It is the duty of those who want to second such amendments to get up spontaneously and say that they second the amendments."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" Our trouble is that you are seeing only on that side and not this side. That is our complaint. I have been standing in my seat, but the Chair did not see me."

THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN :—" The Hon. Speaker should have two faces one on either side, in that case."

[13th September 1950]

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—“ If it is possible for an eminent Surgeon like Hon. Dr. Rajan to create two faces, let him do that.

“ Sir, I second this amendment for this simple reason. I am not out to reform any religious institution, because I am convinced that the religious institutions can well take care of themselves and the Government should not have anything to do with such institutions. When I want to second the amendment and say a few words on it, it is only with the object of helping the Government in achieving their object. Because, as I argued before you, this question of discriminatory legislation will bring the Bill within the difficulties raised by the Constitution. Therefore, I must point out that in order to save the Bill from being attacked in Courts of Law, it would be better to accept this amendment, so that all institutions without any discrimination as to whether they are Hindu, Muslim or Christian, might be brought within the scope of this legislation. It is only in that spirit I am looking at the amendment and nothing else. Therefore, I would like the amendment to be accepted and I suggest this more in the interests of the Government than in the interests of anybody else.”

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—“ Sir, in this particular case, the hon. Mr. Bhashyam has said that it is more in the interest of the Government, and as a friend of the Government he would suggest the acceptance of the amendment. I could only wish, ‘ Let us be saved from such advice and friends ’. In this connexion, I would like to draw the attention of the hon. Member to rule 64 of the Assembly Rules. Rule 64 (1) says, ‘ An amendment must be relevant to and within the scope of the subject-matter of the Bill or motion to which it relates.’ Rule 64 (2) says, ‘ An amendment may not be moved which has merely the effect of a negative vote’. If we read the various provisions of this Bill, it would be clearly seen that it relates to Hindu religious institutions, Hindu temples and Hindu maths. If you omit the word Hindu and enlarge the scope of the Bill to Muslims, Christians and others, it makes the whole thing ridiculous. If we are to accept the contention put forward by the mover and seconder of the amendment under question, I am afraid it would make the whole thing nugatory and so the amendment is out of order.”

THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN :—“ Sir, if the House is willing to withdraw the Bill altogether, it may be possible to accept the amendment and not otherwise. The Bill has been brought forward under the designation and title, ‘ Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Bill ’ and it has been considered by this House as such all these years. Just at the moment when we want to make this Bill into an Act, we find that an objection has been raised and a suggestion made that the Bill should include all the religions in the country. Such a suggestion at this stage could not be accepted by any legislator. Therefore I regret that the amendment cannot be accepted and I should also say that it is out of order.”

[13th September 1950]

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—“ Sir, we are now in the second reading stage. The first reading is over and as such we are committed to the scope and principles of the Bill. So, when once the scope and principle of the Bill are accepted by the House, the present amendment which is sought to enlarge its scope is therefore hopelessly out of order.”

MR. SPEAKER :—“ Even before the Hon. Minister said that it is out of order, I have also pointed out this. In the ‘ Statement of Objects and Reasons ’, it is stated, ‘ The Government have carefully considered the question and have decided to provincialize the administration of Hindu religious endowments; and the main object of this Bill is to give effect to it.’ Again, the title of the Bill says, ‘ A Bill to provide for the better administration and governance of Hindu Religious and Charitable Institutions and Endowments in the State of Madras’. Further, if we read the Preamble, we find that it says, ‘ Whereas it is expedient to amend and consolidate the law relating to the administration and governance of Hindu Religious and Charitable Institutions and Endowments in the State of Madras . . .’. So, the amendment of the hon. Member seeks to enlarge the scope of the Bill and as such it is against the rules. In these circumstances, I rule the amendment of the hon. Member out of order.”

THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN :—“ Sir, I move, that—

For clause 1 (3), the following be substituted :—

“ 1 (3)—It shall come into force on such date as the Government may, by notification in the ‘ Fort St. George Gazette ’, appoint.”

This is really the way in which we proceed with in respect of any Act. We have to notify in the Fort St. George Gazette as to the date from which this Act will come into force, and that is why I have brought forward this amendment.”

MR. SPEAKER :—“ The motion is—

1 (3)—It shall come into force on such date as the Government may, by notification in the Fort St. George Gazette, appoint.”

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—“ Sir, I feel that the Government are placing themselves in inconsistent positions. For my modest request to wait for a few days, they said that heavens would fall down if the Bill was not passed at once. They must first of all see whether such a Bill could be brought into force at all either now or at a future date. But what they said just now is inconsistent with their previous statements and there is no justice or reason behind their present policy. I hope the Government will give better attention to the amendments that are moved.”

THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN :—“ Sir, I am surprised at the argument put forward by the hon. Member. What we want is that the consideration of the Bill should not be delayed in the discussion stage and at the enactment stage. That is what we were contending for. As regards the amendment, there must be an announcement in the Fort St. George Gazette as to the date from which the Act shall come into force and this procedure has been followed regularly in every enactment. So it is in the usual course of legal procedure, the present amendment has been brought forward. So there is nothing inconsistent with regard to what I have said regarding the urgency of introducing this Bill or the reasons that are given for my inability to accept certain amendments."

The amendment was put and carried.

Clause 1 as amended was put and carried.

Clause 2.

MR. SPEAKER :—" The motion is—

' That clause 2 do stand part of the Bill '."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" Sir, I move the following two amendments standing in my name :—

' Omit clause, 2 '.

In the alternative

The first amendment is for the deletion of clause 2 and the alternative amendment is for giving more time. Now I will speak on both the amendments as I want to save time so that the Government may be able to quicken the passing of the Bill.

" According to this clause, the Government want to take power for issuing a notification to bring all the Jain temples under the provisions of this Bill at a later date. So far as these Jain temples are concerned, they are scattered all over the State and their number is far less than that of the Hindu temples for which we are now legislating here. The question to be considered now is whether the various provisions of the Bill relating to the appointment of area committees, temple committees, executive officers, Assistant Commissioners, Commissioner, etc., which we propose to apply in the case of the Hindu temples should also be applied even in the case of the small number of Jain temples, or only some of these provisions would be made applicable in the case of Jain temples. This is a matter which requires very careful consideration. Therefore if you straightway say that the Government will have power to take over all these Jain temples at a later date and apply some of the provisions, it is likely to embarrass the Government. Secondly, there is always great difficulty when such a notification is to be issued. I mean the difficulties in using the proper words, phrases and construction. So we have to be rather careful in such a matter. The third point which I would like to mention is this. Why should this Government, when they are not themselves prepared to take over the Jain temples straightway, commit the future Government for the purpose of legislating in respect of these temples. On these three grounds I think that it is not desirable to have clause 2. This is not a small matter which can be decided without going into the details and without taking into consideration all the relevant facts. Therefore I request the Government to reconsider this matter and see if we should really notify that the provisions of this Bill will be applied to the Jain temples at a later date, especially when we are not legislating in respect of any other religious institutions. In case this clause 2 cannot be deleted, I request that my alternative amendment may be accepted. As will be found in the alternative amendment, I want that the period of two months given in the proviso to this clause should be raised to three months. The reason for my putting three months is this. I think only a few persons representing the Jain temples appeared before the Select Committee to give evidence. As such, the provisions of this Bill might not have been made widely known with the result that many may be in the darkness and may not know anything about the proposed legislation. In these circumstances, I think two months is too short a period and it should at least be raised to three months. These are all my submissions and I do not know what is going to be the fate of these amendments."

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI :—" Mr. Speaker, Sir, I second the amendment moved by my hon. Friend Sri Bhashyam for the simple reason that the Government have not yet made up their mind as to whether these temples of Jains should be taken over or not. They have left their policy to hang on the thread. Do the Government think that all the Jain temples are at present properly managed or not? If they think that these temples are properly managed, why should they think of including them even at a later date? If they think that there are impurities in the administration of these temples, why not try to purify them, as you contemplate doing in the case of Hindu temples, by straightway applying the provisions of the proposed Bill? The Government should decide either one way or the other. I do not think that the Government have any sufficient and sound reasons for exempting the Jain temples and institutions now. If the Government think that the Jains form part of the Hindu religion, then there is no necessity to bring in their name separately under clause 2. If you think that the Jains are different from Hindus, even then the introduction of clause 2 is quite wrong. Because when there are so many other religions other than Hindu religion, why should you particularize the Jain institutions alone for being taken over at a later date? You could have mentioned the names of all the other religions also for which you may want to legislate at a future date. You need not have mentioned the name of only the Jains. So I am not able to understand the inclusion of the Jain institutions under this clause looking from any point of view. I only say that the Government have not yet made up their mind as to whether they are going to take only the Hindu temples and institutions or whether they are going to take the cudgels against all other religious institutions. I want a satisfactory explanation from the Government to this point."

[13th September 1950]

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" Mr. Speaker, Sir, I really do not know whether my hon. Friend Sri Gopalaswami seconded both the amendments of hon. Sri Bhashyam or the first amendment alone, because the first amendment of hon. Sri Bhashyam is to delete the clause altogether. In the alternative amendment hon. Mr. Bhashyam wants to substitute the words 'three months' for the words 'two months' in the proviso. Hon. Member Mr. Gopalaswami does not want that anything should hang by the thread. Sir, it is also the Government's intention that nothing should hang by the thread. He wants that the Government should make up their mind as to whether this measure will be made applicable to all the Jain temples in this State; or not. Let me submit, Sir, that it is the very thing about which the Government do not want to make up their minds now. They only want that such of the Jain temples as circumstances warrant, should be brought under this Act. My hon. Friend evidently does not know that almost all the laws applied to the Hindus also apply to the Jains and that for all practical purposes, Jains are treated as Hindus, and that in the Hindu Law, the definition of Hindus covers also the Jains. Explanation II under Article 25 of the Constitution says :

'In sub-clause (b) of clause (2), the reference to Hindus shall be construed as including a reference to persons professing the Sikh, Jaina or Buddhist religion, and the reference to Hindu religious institutions shall be construed accordingly.'

Therefore even the Constitution says that any reference to Hindus should be construed as reference to Jains and Buddhists also. As a matter of fact, in the Madras State there are many Hindu temples which are being managed by Jains and there are many Jain temples under the management of Hindus. In both these temples, both the Hindus and Jains worship without any discrimination. I know for myself that there are certain Hindu temples, the proprietors or the Matadhipathis of which belong to the Jaina community and vice versa. They get money for their temples both from the Hindus and Jains. Therefore in this matter, the question whether a temple is a Jain temple or a Hindu temple has first got to be decided and until then, the matter has to hang by the thread, because we do not know whether a particular temple is a Hindu or a Jain temple. It is only when we are satisfied that a particular temple is such as to warrant its being brought under the provisions of this Act, that we take steps to ascertain whether it is a Hindu or a Jain temple, and if it is a Jain temple we publish a notice in the Fort St. George Gazette of our intention to notify it under Clause 2 of this Bill. Why have we made the provision for the notice? We do not want to take over the management of Sikh or Buddhist temples, because there are not many such temples in our State. We have to examine and discriminate and say whether this Act should apply to that particular temple, and that is why this clause is kept loosely worded, and not because that we want that the matter should hang by the thread or that we are unable to make up our minds or anything of that sort. So far as the first amendment relating to the deletion of this clause is concerned, the Government oppose it, because that clause is very necessary.

13th September 1950] [Sri K. Madhava Menon]

" About the question of extending the period of notice to three months from two months in the proviso to Clause 2, all I have to say is this. The proviso says :

'Provided that before issuing such a notification, the Government shall publish in the Fort St. George Gazette, a notice of their intention to do so, fix a period which shall not be less than two months from the date of publication of notice, for the persons interested in the institutions and endowments concerned to show cause against the issue of the notification, and consider their objections, if any.'

" Therefore, what the proviso says is that a notice of the Government's intention to notify a particular temple will be published in the Fort St. George Gazette in order that persons interested in the temple might consult among themselves and raise their objections to the notification, if any. The period prescribed is 'not less than two months'. It may be three months or four months or more. It all depends upon the nature of the temple and the nature of the circumstances. Therefore, what is prescribed is the minimum time and that is, it should not be less than two months. I submit, Sir, that this period is ample enough. It is up to the Government to extend it if they like and if there are reasons for it. My hon. Friend Mr. Bhashyam's amendment to extend it to three months is already implicit in it, because if the Government think that circumstances warrant to extend it to three months, they would certainly do so, but the clause as it stands is quite all right and there is no need to amend it simply for the sake of amendment."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" Mr. Speaker, Sir, the explanation given by the Hon. Minister makes his case rather worse than it was before. We know that these Jain temples and Hindu temples are so mixed up that it is impossible sometimes to find out whether one is really a Hindu temple or a Jain temple. The Government must either include the Jain temples in the Bill or leave them out of consideration altogether. I respectfully submit, Sir, that this is a legislation by notification. If they want further investigations in respect of Jain temples, then let them by all means do so; let them take their own time and also let them give these people sufficient notice. But to say, 'I am going to include your temple by notification and I will give only two months for the purpose of hearing your objections, if any', is a thing which I am not able to understand. If there are no abuses in these Jain temples, and if they are administered well, then there is no urgency and there is no justification for bringing all these temples under the purview of this Act. But if there are some abuses in certain temples, you must notify them at once. There can be no intermediate position and therefore it is, I say, that this clause ought to be omitted altogether.

" Now Sir, as regards my alternative amendment, what I wish to say is this. The Government have prescribed a period of two months' notice for hearing objections, etc. The Government are, as we know, always hard-hearted. Perhaps the Hon. Sri Madhava Menon may be a good man and he may give three months' or four months' time, because the wording of the proviso is 'not less than two months'. But his successor may not give such a liberal interpretation and it is left to his sweet will and pleasure either to extend or not, the period of notice. I have suggested a period of not less than three months for the purpose of enabling the Jain temple authorities to call for a Conference, to have their confabulations and come to a decision whether they should oppose the Government notification or not, and if so, how they could place their case before them. I submit, Sir, that this two months' time is hardly sufficient. People from all over the State have to come and meet in a conference. This period, I think, is too short and perhaps three months is a little more reasonable. If the Government accept this suggestion and extend this period to three months then they would be doing a just act towards the Jain temples."

MR. SPEAKER :—" I will put the first amendment of hon. Sri Bhashyam. The question is—

'That clause 2 be omitted.'

The amendment was lost.

MR. SPEAKER :—" The alternative amendment is—

'Substitute the words "three months" for the words "two months" in the proviso.'

The amendment was lost.

SRI S. NAGAPPA :—" Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move the amendment standing in my name, namely—

'In clause 2 for the word "Jain" substitute the word "any".'

MR. SPEAKER :—" I want to tell the hon. Member Mr. Nagappa that his amendment is outside the scope of the Bill. I have heard the speech of the Hon. Minister for Law and he has told us that the object with which the Government have put in the word 'Jain' is that there are certain Hindu temples managed by Jains and certain Jain temples managed by Hindus and the intention of the Government is also to bring in Jain temples under the provisions of the Bill, if they are badly managed. It is with that object that the word 'Jain' has been put in this clause. The amendment of hon. Sri Nagappa seeks to defeat the entire object of the Bill by bringing any temple under the Bill.

"Sometime in 1925 a Bill for the protection of bamboo paper was introduced in the Central Assembly. At that time Sir Hari Singh Gour moved a similar amendment as the hon. Sri Nagappa has now moved, namely, to substitute the word 'any paper' for the words 'bamboo paper'. The then President of the Assembly, Mr. V. J. Patel ruled it out of order, because that amendment sought to defeat the very purpose of that legislation. This is only for the information of hon. Sri Nagappa. This amendment, in my opinion, is out of order. If he wants, let him speak on his amendment and we shall hear what he has got to say, but his amendment should be seconded before it could be put to vote."

13th September 1950]

SRI S. NAGAPPA :—" Sir, the object of my amendment is this. If the Government are only going to notify Jain temples, what about the Buddhist temples which are also Hindu temples? Are the Government going to exclude them from the purview of this Bill?"

MR. SPEAKER :—" The Hon. Law Minister has already given his reasons why he has used the word 'Jain' and why he had excluded Buddhist temples from the provisions of this Bill."

SRI S. NAGAPPA :—" That is why, Sir, I want to widen the scope of the Bill to bring in Buddhist and other temples under the purview of this Bill."

MR. SPEAKER :—" That is entirely outside the scope of the Bill and I rule it out of order."

Clause 2 was put and carried.

Clause 3.

MR. SPEAKER :—" The motion is—

'That clause 3 do stand part of the Bill?'

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" Mr. Speaker, Sir, I move—

'That clause 3 be omitted.'

or in the alternative

'Substitute the words "six months" for the word "two months" in the proviso.'

"Sir, clause 3 relates to legislation by notification in respect of all charitable endowments all over the State."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" Sir, this amendment is consequential to the previous amendment to clause 2, which has just been voted down. Clause 2 relates to Jain temples and clause 3 relates to charitable endowments. If clause 2 remains, then clause 3 also must remain. Therefore this amendment automatically goes, Sir."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" I submit, Sir, that the Hon. Minister is making a mistake here, although he is always a careful man. This clause says that the Government may, by notification, extend to any Hindu or Jain public charitable endowment all or any of the provisions of this Act and of any rules made thereunder and thereupon the provisions so extended shall apply to such charitable endowments as if it were a specific endowment. While Jain temples are provided for in clause 2, this clause relates to Hindu or Jain charitable endowments which are really different from temples. If the Bill relates to one single matter, then it should have been provided for in clause 2. But here by a separate clause the Government want to notify all Hindu and Jain charitable endowments. If you look at the definition of the term 'charitable endowments', you will find that it is so wide and so comprehensive that it would be impossible to say what is and what is not a charitable endowment. If it is the Government's desire to take up all charitable endowments in the State under their control and supervision, then I am afraid they are taking over a large responsibility on themselves for their number would run to several lakhs. If a private person makes a will leaving something for public charity, it will certainly come under charitable endowments. There have been wills and there are wills endowing some property or some money or other for charity by a number of persons during the last 100 years. Are the Government going to take them all and bring them under the provisions of this Act? It would be a colossal task indeed. Therefore I want that this question of charitable endowments must not be taken up by the Government under this Bill at all. They might bring in a separate Bill for them, if they want. As I said, they have taken upon themselves the management of Hindu temples which in itself is more than what they can do.

[Sri K. Bhashyam] [13th September 1950]

"I do feel it will be a total failure in the case of management of charitable endowments which run to lakhs in number. Therefore, I submit that so far as charitable endowments are concerned, it will be much better if they are left out at present. One point I wish to mention here is that where the endowments are managed by the families of the founders themselves, where the sons and daughters of the founders are trustees, it gives prestige and dignity to the families. And where difficulties or disputes arise as to the management of such endowments they are settled by the parties themselves. If such endowments are to be brought under Government control I am afraid thousands of officers—commissioners or executive officers—may have to be appointed which is a huge waste of public money. I, therefore, feel that the clause must be omitted. If, however, this cannot be agreed to I press my alternative amendment to the proviso under clause 3 that six months be allowed for the filing of objections. In the case of endowments scattered all over the State it would be very difficult to file objections within two months. This is too insufficient. I think six months will be fair and reasonable and I hope the Government will accept it."

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA :—"Sir, I second the amendment."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—"Sir, I wish to invite the attention of the hon. Member to clause 5 which gives a list of Acts under which charitable endowments are being dealt with now, viz., the Charitable Endowments Act, 1890, and the Charitable and Religious Trusts Act, 1920. We are repealing these Acts along with several other Acts under this clause. If we omit clause 3 and if clause 5 remains then there will be no law for the administration of any kind of endowments. It is only with a view to the better administration of charitable endowments that the Preamble to the Bill itself has been amended as 'A Bill to provide for the better administration and governance of Hindu Religious and Charitable Institutions and Endowments.' Therefore, Sir, this clause must stand."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—"Sir, I am perhaps repeating myself when I say that it is not fair to rope in all charitable endowments. But the point is this. The reference made by the Hon. the Minister for Law to clause 5 is premature. He said that if my amendment was accepted control over charitable endowments would go in view of the provision in clause 5. Of course my hon. Friend is assured of the following in the House and is sure of getting clause 5 passed. But the reference, however, is hardly fair in the present context. I feel that the Charitable Endowments Act of 1890 and the Charitable and Religious Trusts Act, 1920, are sufficient and they exercise sufficient control over charitable endowments. If need be let a separate provision be made for the repealing of the other Acts mentioned in clause 5 and let that clause as it is at present be omitted. Sir, I ask, 'how are the Government going to appoint committees to administer these endowments which number over 20,000.' It is not fair or reasonable to bring them within the purview of this Bill."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—"My hon. Friend, Mr. Bhashyam, has given notice of amendments to clause 3, clause 4 and clause 6 and not to clause 5. He wants clause 5 to remain and clause 3 to go!"

THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN :—"Sir, time is of great essence in dealing with charitable endowments. I have narrated already how charitable endowments come into being and are kept up. It is simply to ensure that the children of the person that founds the endowment enjoy the benefits accruing therefrom that they are made trustees, so that they may escape the clutches of law. So many lakhs of rupees have been used by the so-called trustees for their personal comfort. There is also another reason behind the creation of such endowments. That is, to cheat the creditors and those who have a claim to the properties. We are aware of ever so many cases like this and we want to prevent this sort of cancer from spreading into society. That is why we have included charitable endowments also in the Bill. If objections are raised at this rate, I feel that the whole Bill may as well be dropped."

MR. SPEAKER :—"The question is—
'That clause 3 be omitted'."

The amendment was lost.

MR. SPEAKER :—"The question is—
In the alternative—

'the words "six months" be substituted for the words "two months" in the proviso'."

The amendment was lost.

MR. SPEAKER :—"The motion is—
'That clause 3 do stand part of the Bill.'"

SRI N. M. R. SUBBARAMAN :—"Sir, இந்த மூன்றாவது பிரிவு பிரகாரம் ஓர்ந்து ஐந்து பொது தரம் சொத்துக்களையும் இந்த சட்டத்தின் கீழ் கொண்டு வரலாம் என்றிருக்கிறது. கொண்டு வரவேண்டுமென்று சொல்லவில்லை; கொண்டு வரலாம் என்றுதான் சொல்லியிருக்கிறது.

ஏனென்றால் அங்கே எல்லா சொத்துக்களும் சரியாக நடக்கவில்லை என்று சொல்ல முடியாது. சில சொத்துக்களின் நிர்வாகம் தவறுதலாக நடந்தாலும் பல சொத்துக்கள் சிறப்பாக நடந்து வருகிறது. அந்த சொத்துக்களை இந்த சட்டத்தின் கீழ் கொண்டு வருவதாக இருந்தால் அவர்களுக்கு அறிக்கை விடுத்து அவர்களுடைய சமாதானத்தைக் கேட்டுத் தான் சட்டத்தின் கீழ் கொண்டு வருவதாக இருக்கிறது. இந்த விஷயத்தில் சர்க்கார் ஜாக்கிரதையாக இருக்கவேண்டும். சொத்துக்களில் பெரும்பான்மையானது தவறுதலாக நடந்த போதிலும் அதிகமான சொத்துக்கள் நல்ல முறையில் நடந்து வருகிறது. அப்படிப்பட்ட சொத்துக்களில் சர்க்கார் பிரவேசிக்காமலிருக்கும்படியாக கேட்டுக் கொள்ளுகிறேன். இந்த விஷயத்தை விளக்க மாக்கினால் அதில் ஒன்றுமில்லை. ஆகையால் அதற்குத் தக்க விதிகள் செய்யும்படி அவசியமிருந்தால் அதைச் செய்து அவைகளை எடுத்துக் கொள்ளாது முறையில் பார்த்துக்கொள்ள வேண்டுமென்று சர்க்காரை நான் கேட்டுக் கொள்கிறேன்."

THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN :—" We shall certainly take into consideration the points raised by the hon. Member. The provision regarding time-limit is intended only for enabling the Government to consider such claims as have been mentioned by him. We shall certainly see that those charitable endowments that are well managed are given adequate protection under the Act."

Clause 3 was put and carried.

Clause 4.

MR. SPEAKER :—" The motion is—

'That clause 4 do stand part of the Bill.'

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" Sir, I move—

'That clause 4 be omitted.'

The first reason for making this motion is that the Government have not taken powers nor will they take powers to exempt even those charitable endowments which are doing good work from the operation of this Bill. In fact such an exemption was asked for especially in the case of maths. We know there are good maths and bad maths. I said, 'if a temple or a math is doing good work, do not interfere with it'. But the Government would not take my advice. That being the case, I see no justification in granting an exemption in the case of trusts committed to the charge of the Official Trustee and Administrator-General. Perhaps the Government think that because the person in charge is a Government servant everything must be allright with him. There is one member of that office present here to-day who, if you consult him, will tell you that even in the Official Trustee's office they make mistakes. If trusts in his charge are to be exempted, all other trusts and endowments must also be given similar exemption. Otherwise it is nothing but discrimination which is against the Constitution. If the Government really want to grant exemptions they should do so in all deserving cases and not just confine those things to some properties and not to others. It is in this spirit, Sir, that I have proposed the amendment."

13th September 1950]

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA :—" Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to second the amendment. The power to exempt certain temples or institutions sought under this clause is going to land the Government in many a mire. I feel that when the original Act to control temples and other religious institutions was passed in this State the Government of the day were guilty in exempting certain temples on the ground that they were excepted temples merely and solely for purposes of encouraging certain people. I know of a case in my own district. Everybody knows, every official knows, that there is a particular temple in Buchireddipalayam owning a vast expanse of land—yielding annually about a lakh of rupees—which is exempted and excepted. On what grounds this exemption or exceptions has been made, God only knows and perhaps the originators of the move. Simply to perpetuate the selfish and irreligious interests of some X or Y the Government have given their seal of approval to this exemption. If the Official Trustee is made to be in charge of certain properties it only means or it guarantees that he being a representative of the Government will see to the proper administration of the trusts as per the Acts in force. If a temple is in his charge it is because he will take proper care of it and put it in order. When such is the belief of the Government it is all the more necessary that they should exercise direct control over the endowments and trusts placed under him by making this Act apply to them also. Perhaps the Government have a few favourites of theirs in charge of such trusts and feel, 'we have our man there and so we need not touch that property'. If that is the intention of the Government, I am afraid, such loopholes, by-ways and blind alleys in the Bill will land us in ignominy."

SRI S. NAGAPPA :—" Sir, I rise to support the amendment moved by my hon. Friend, Sri Bhashyam. I feel there should be no exemptions at all for the simple reason that if we begin to exempt a certain category of trusts then it will lead to a perennial headache for us. So far as sales tax is concerned, for example, we have seen that the moment an exemption is granted in respect of a particular commodity dealers in other commodities whether they are essential or not begin to agitate for similar exemption in respect of those commodities. Therefore, it would save us a lot of trouble if we give up the provision relating to exemption."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Hon. Sri Bhashyam said that he was opposed to exemption being granted in the case of trusts under the Official Trustee and the Administrator-General because a suggestion that he put forth before the Joint Select Committee that well-managed estates and temples should be exempted from the provisions of the Bill was not accepted. This is not a convincing argument. Then my hon. Friend, Sri Raghavayya had something else—the case of a temple in Buchireddipalayam—working in his mind which has nothing to do with the amendment proposed by hon. Sri Bhashyam but which will be covered by the other provisions contained in the Bill. The Official Trustee or the Administrator-General has nothing to do with that temple. So far as this clause goes, there are certain endowments whose administration vests in the Official Trustee under the Official Trustees Act of 1913. Where such institutions come under the Official Trustee under the Official Trustees Act of 1913 or where for various reasons under the law, institutions come under the management of the Administrator-General, for obvious reasons there will be difficulty in applying the provisions of this Bill, because the Official Trustee is a statutory authority under the Official Trustees Act and he will be bound by the High Court so far as discipline and control go, and he is not bound to work under the Commissioner or any other authority. The very idea of this Bill is that the management must come into proper hands. Even under the present Hindu Religious Endowments Act, there are temples belonging to the Travancore Government and to the Cochin Government in the Madras State. The ownership of the temples belongs to the State of Travancore or the State of Cochin while the temples themselves are situated in this State. Since they are not being maintained by any private individual or private trustee but are maintained by the Travancore Government or the Cochin Government, this Government exempted those temples from the provisions of the Hindu Religious Endowments Act. The idea on the whole is that they should all be properly managed. These institutions referred to here are under the Official Trustee who is a Government servant appointed under Act II of 1913, and the Administrator-General is a Government servant working under the High Court. So, there is no purpose in bringing the temples under their management under this Bill. My hon. Friend Sri Nagappa was running riot when he said that a general power to give exemptions will give headache to this Government. There is no general exemption here at all; there are only exemptions in cases where the institutions are under the Official Trustee or the Administrator-General."

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA :—" May I know, Sir, from the Hon. Minister what is the legal bar for the measure being applied either to the Administrator-General or the Official Trustee. Simply because they are now controlled by other Acts, cannot this measure be made applicable to them? "

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" The Official Trustee gets removed only by the Government, but any trustee under this Bill can be removed by the Commissioner or the other authorities. Again, the Official Trustee is the sole trustee under section 7 of the Official Trustees Act, and his accounts have to be audited by a Government auditor under the Official Trustees Act and it cannot be done under this measure. So, Sir, I request my hon. Friend Sri Bhashyam to withdraw his amendment."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" I shall explain my idea, Sir, before I withdraw my amendment. A point was made against me that because my suggestion to take power for exempting certain temples and mathe was not accepted in the Select Committee, I now move for the omission of the clause and that my present amendment is inconsistent with my views. True, I admit that. It was as a protest against the Government's action that I did that, and I said so at the very beginning. If you want to exempt, exempt everybody, but do not say 'I will confine the exemption to a few people whom I shall choose'. Stick to the logical principle that no exemption should be given to anybody; I am sure that is the principle which the Government want to go upon; and consistent with that principle, my amendment should be accepted. If my amendment is not to be accepted, I know it will be defeated, and in order to make a virtue of my defeat, I shall withdraw it."

The amendment was, by leave, withdrawn.

Clause 4 was put and carried.

Clause 5.

MR. SPEAKER :—" The motion is—

'That clause 5 do stand part of the Bill.' "

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI :—" Mr. Speaker, Sir, I move—

'That item (e) of sub-clause (3) of clause 5 be deleted.'

"The simple reason I want to advance is that the very basis of this Bill is that there is mismanagement of temples and of charities, and it should be checked. Now we want to make an enactment by which we preclude the civil courts from entertaining suits of this nature. Already under the common law, where a person feels that a particular temple property or trust has not been properly managed, he can under the Civil Procedure Code, bring in suits for framing schemes for the trust. But simply because the Government are taking possession of the trust and the Government appoint a Commissioner to look after its management and all that, do you mean to say that this right should be taken away? Is it that the Government servants can make no mistakes and that in whatever they do or decide, not even the highest courts in the land should interfere? I submit, Sir, it should not be so. It may be correct to say that this clause already exists in the previous Act; but it does not at all stand to reason that on the basis of the underlying principle of this Bill, viz., that we want to control these institutions more efficiently and properly, you should now try to get round sections 92 and 93 of the Civil Procedure Code which confer the right on any citizen in the country to go to a court of law in order to get matters remedied and set right mistakes made and see that these institutions are put under proper management. I cannot really understand why, if the Government's idea is to prevent maladministration, this provision should be omitted. I do not know if the Hon. Law Minister would allow me to quote authority; but it is certainly a matter for consideration whether Indian Acts can be repealed or particular sections of such Acts can be amended or modified by a provision made in this measure by the State Legislature and whether they can be over-ridden by the provisions of an enactment of this State Legislature—that is a thing which I am not able to understand. I hope, Sir, the Hon. Law Minister will be able to explain that position also."

[13th September 1950]

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" Sir, I beg to second this amendment. One reason which the Government gave for the enacting of this measure is that sections 92 and 93 of the Civil Procedure Code were insufficient; under that Act, the beneficiaries under the endowment can go to a court of law, complain of breach of trust and ask for directions for the framing of a scheme of appointing new trustees, etc. If those provisions are inadequate because sufficiently public-spirited men do not come forward for the purpose of taking the matter to the courts either because of their fear of delay or because they are afraid of the lawyers' fees, whatever it may be, and if therefore you have put in here a more expeditious method in this Bill, it will be accepted on all hands—although I say it with some hesitation—that going before the civil courts is a better thing because you will have better hearing given to you and better justice also can be got at the hands of the court, instead of going before a person appointed by the State Government, who may not hold a public court but who will settle the matter sitting in his chambers, perhaps after hearing or not even hearing the parties at all. While for the purpose of argument, I am willing to grant that the remedy under sections 92 and 93 of the Civil Procedure Code may not be adequate, I do not see if there is any reason for abolishing them altogether. Those provisions may well co-exist with the remedy under the Act, that is to say, if a person chooses to take the matter to a court of law if he has the time and the money to do it, let him do so; but where persons are not able to adopt that method, let the Government interfere. I do believe that in matters of adjudication, a civil court is certainly much better and much more satisfactory than a Commissioner who is a servant of Government. Therefore, Sir, while the present provision may stand, sections 92 and 93 of the Civil Procedure Code also may stand, so that any person who wants to complain may have two remedies before him and he may choose either of them for getting the satisfaction which he wants."

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA :—" Sir, from what I understood from the speech of the Hon. Minister, the object of this Bill is more the efficient conduct and management of the affairs of the temples and maths and to reduce litigation rather than to promote it. I was not a member of the Select Committee and so I cannot say what the object was in putting in this provision; but if the object is to expedite things and put them on a better basis than now, since the present state of affairs gives room for endless litigation, beginning with the lowest court and ending with the Supreme Court, what is wrong in trying to restrict the licence of individual parties who may be putting up a fight for having one namam here or not having it there? I am told, Sir, in Tirupathi, people waste much time and several thousands of rupees, I mean the Acharyapurushas—and if my hon. friend were here, I am sure he would give a lucid history of the case—Acharyapurusha No. 1 saying that he should get the thirtham first and No. 2 gentleman saying that he must get the thirtham first. If these small points are to be the bone of contention in many of the suits, where is it all to end? After all is said and done, we know one thing clearly: that all these gentlemen who come forward to manage these temples as trustees are not actuated always with the best of motives; there are several people who want to utilize the temples as pivotal posts for their own selfish advantage. By this legislation, for the first time, the Government want to take the administration of these institutions into their own hands, and if every authority goes wrong and if the Government also go wrong at every step, do you mean to say the courts are going to be in any way better. The Government are the source of all things in respect of every institution. My learned Friend Mr. Bhashyam seems to forget that several friends have been making a lot of fetish of this argument that in matters like this, a Hindu alone should have the right to judge. And if such cases are allowed to be taken to a court of law, how can they allow a European or a Muslim or a Christian District Judge who may be presiding over the Court to interfere and give his judgment on such matters; he will be naturally said to be more incompetent to judge on such things. I therefore, feel, Sir, taking into account the very object of this measure, the structure of it and the main intention underlying it, viz., to expedite things as much as possible and make them more efficient, going to the civil courts will be tantamount to setting up a parallel administration to what is being done by the Government under this Bill and may hinder any step to be taken by the Government in the interests of efficiency. I therefore oppose this amendment and support the main clause."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" Sir, this amendment is a subtle sabotaging of the entire Bill before the House. I shall first answer hon. Sri Gopalaswami's second point, viz., whether the State Legislature has power to legislate on the Civil Procedure Code. The Civil Procedure Code is in the Concurrent List of the Constitution, in Schedule VII. So, we can make amendments to the Civil Procedure Code; only they will have to be reserved for the approval of the President, even as this Bill has to be reserved for his approval for various reasons. Hon. Mr. Raghavayya has already explained the position. Section 93 only relates to the application of powers under section 92. Section 92 is this:

In the case of any alleged breach of any express or constructive trust created for public purposes of a charitable or religious nature, or where the direction of the Court is deemed necessary for the administration of any such trust, the Advocate-General, or two or more persons having an interest in the trust and having obtained the consent in writing of the Advocate-General, may institute a suit, whether contentious or not, in the principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction or in any other Court empowered in that behalf by the local Government within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the whole or any part of the subject-matter of the trust is situate to obtain a decree—

- (a) removing any trustee;
- (b) appointing a new trustee;
- (c) vesting any property in a trustee;
- (d) directing accounts and inquiries;
- (e) declaring what proportion of the trust-property or of the interest therein shall be allocated to any particular object of the trust;
- (f) authorizing the whole or any part of the trust-property to be let, sold, mortgaged, or exchanged;

[Sri K. Varadachari] [13th September 1950]

have provided that all those that are provided under section 92 of the Civil Procedure Code shall hereafter be decided by the Commissioner, a person who, from the very nature of the case may not always be a lawyer who can go into the question properly and adjudicate upon it. Evidently the Government want that some rough and ready justice should be rendered in matters like this instead of putting people interested to the necessity of spending out of their own pocket and that is why several of the institutions escaped from the purview of the courts by reason of the fact that private persons however much they may be interested, will be discouraged from going to court to get justice done for the sake of the good management of an institution. It seems to be that for several reasons, it is necessary that people should have freer resort to any tribunal which can do justice in these matters. The natural thing that the Government can do in these matters is to see that the Commissioner who has not only to exercise powers on the lines of section 92 of the Code of Civil Procedure but also under the other provisions of the Bill requiring adjudication by him, should be a highly competent person, not only in respect of administrative matters but also in matters of dispensation of justice. He must be at once a good lawyer as well as a great administrator and I hope the Government will manage to do this because it is not as if we in this state have a dearth of such big men, great men and experienced men to discharge this sort of work. Of course, we can trust the Government doing its best in the matter of securing the services of a good officer for appointment as Commissioner but whether they would continue to do so for all time is a matter that must also be left to the discretion of the Government. The Government have thought it fit that they would get these functions discharged through a Commissioner appointed by them. But there is one danger that may be felt by the public and in several sections of the House and that is that the Commissioner may be swayed by political considerations or considerations of the party in power whoever it may be for it is not as if the Congress will remain for all time in power and a day may come when they will be displaced by other parties in this country. Therefore, it is not as if it is being done for the purpose of securing any party advantage. Another point is who are judges now; they are the people that owe their appointment ultimately to the Government; the District Munsif is selected by the Government through the Service Commission and whether they are competent to do so or not is another matter and I need not dilate upon it. If the party in power can influence the Commissioner, they can as well influence the judges also. If we get a man of great attainments, of independence of judgment and independent of Government control or influence, we should be satisfied and we need not distrust the Government in these matters. Therefore, we wholeheartedly support the clause as it stands."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not wish to say anything than to point out to you, Sir, that according to the provisions of the Bill even a scheme approved by the courts and trustee whose appointment has been upheld in the Privy Council, can be set aside by the Commissioner. From that, is it not clear, Sir, that we do not render to the courts the dignity that is due to them. Anyhow, it is not there and that is the scheme of the Act; and whether we accept it or not, it does not matter and it does not seem as if they realize that it is not a correct stand.

"The second point I wish to place before the Hon. Law Minister is what happens after the repeal of section 92 and before the date of notification. If anybody wants to file a suit under section 92 and circumstances warrant it, what is he to do? From to-day up to the date of the issue of the notification what remedy has a person who wants to file a suit with the intention of seeing that a particular trust, say a Jain temple, is properly administered. Therefore, Sir, unless the words 'sections 92 and 93 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908' are there, there will be an interregnum. Take a concrete case. As soon as this measure is passed, sections 92 and 93 of the Code of Civil Procedure will cease to apply to religious institutions. Suppose there is a Jain. He wants to see that certain Jain temples are made to function properly. Now, he cannot move in the matter under sections 92 and 93 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Nor can he approach the Commissioner in this Bill, as such temples have not been brought under the purview of this measure. So he is left without any remedy. Therefore I would like this hiatus to be filled by a suitable amendment."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, my hon. Friend Sri Bhashyam expects that the enactment would come into force immediately and the notification would be issued subsequently, and thus there will be an interregnum between the two dates. May I point out to him that it is with this idea, that we have amended clause 1 (3) and said that 'it shall come into force on such date as the Government may, by notification in the Fort St. George Gazette, appoint.' If necessary we shall see that the Act comes to force and the notification is issued simultaneously, so that there may not be an interregnum. This will ensure that when the clause 5 comes to force there is no interregnum."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Sir, this is a mere point of law. There will be a notification in the first instance in respect of Hindu temples and then only to the Jain endowments. During this interregnum period, that is to say, between the time when Hindu temples are taken over and the Jain endowments are brought under this measure, there is no remedy open to a Jain to set right the mismanagement of the endowments; for sections 92 and 93 cannot apply, as they are repealed from the date of the coming into force of this Act, and nor can he approach the Commissioner under this Act, as they have not yet been brought under this Act."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, may I point out to hon. Sri Bhashyam that clause 2 begins to operate only from the date which the Government fix by notification in the

[Sri K. Madhava Menon] [13th September 1950]

(g) settling a scheme; or
(h) granting such further or other relief as the nature of the case may require.

"Whatever is mentioned in section 92 of the Code of Civil Procedure has been completely carried out in this Bill. If anybody wants to sabotage action under this section, he has only to take action under section 92 of the Civil Procedure Code. Apart from that, it is there in the original Act and identical provisions have been brought in here. Therefore, Sir, you cannot have both; only one of them must remain for the reasons I have explained."

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not at all convinced by the arguments of the learned Law Minister though I will yield to him so far as legislation by the State Legislature with reference to the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure is concerned. To say that we have ourselves usurped all those functions and we are the only masters and no court shall interfere and the interference by the courts will be interference with the Government is a thing which I am unable to understand. I shall take the question of the appointment of trustees; they may be appointed by anybody whatsoever, even by the Chief Minister of the State. But he has to perform certain functions and discharge certain duties and there are the worshippers in that particular religious institution who have a right to see that he does his duties properly and where they feel that he is not performing his duties properly, it is just that the civil courts should step in. I cannot understand the line of argument of the Hon. Minister which amounts to this. 'We have framed the constitution and everything has been done in respect of the good management of the State; the fundamental rights have been guaranteed to the people who have been assured of their rights.' Why then should the courts be brought in to interfere with them. That is arguing in a vicious circle. Section 92 of the Civil Procedure Code is a safeguard to ensure that the trustees do not get puffed up with their powers but they should feel that however powerful they may be they have got a duty to perform towards the worshippers and they cannot transgress the limits for which the trusts and endowments have been made."

"I have a word to say about the observations of my hon. Friend Sri Raghavayya wherein he referred to courts being presided over by persons belonging to other communities than Hindus. Does he for a moment think that this is a Hindu Government; if he says so, I have no objection to his remarks. If they can appoint trustees, remove them, frame schemes and modify them, why should we fight shy of having judges who have been appointed by the Government themselves for carrying on judicial functions matters? I beg to submit, Mr. Speaker, that I am not at all convinced by the arguments of the Hon. the Law Minister."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Mr. Speaker. I am afraid I can only supply argument but I cannot supply convictions. I read to the House the provisions of section 92 of the Code of Civil Procedure . . ."

13th September 1950]

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"On a point of order, Mr. Speaker. The Hon. Minister is not in charge of the Bill and he is not replying on behalf of the Government. He replied and he is speaking again after my hon. Friend the mover of the amendment has spoken. I do not mind indulgence being shown to him but I hope, Sir, that the same indulgence will be shown to those who want to speak twice over."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Any Minister can speak and reply on behalf of any other member of the Government."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"You may interpret very liberally, Sir, in favour of the Government but I appeal to you, Sir, to do the same thing for non-Government members also."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"I read out to the House, section 92 of the Code of Civil Procedure to show that identical provisions have been embodied in the Bill. There is also another clause in the Bill to the effect that the Commissioner notwithstanding any law or decree of the court, can remove any trustee. That can be done even if he is appointed by the court. Action can be taken under section 92, a trustee may be appointed and he is likely to be removed and what is the purpose gained by that?"

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA:—"On a point of personal explanation. As a lawyer, Sir, I do not like to be misinterpreted. I did not want to suggest that the courts should not be presided over by any one other than Hindus; that is far from me. Some of the Members suggested that the matter should be left to Hindus only to manage. But my point was why, when we submit ourselves to courts which are presided not only by Hindus but also others and are ready to abide by their orders, we should say such a thing as that."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The question is—

'That item (e) of sub-clause (3) of clause 5 be deleted.'

The amendment was lost.

SRI K. VARADACHARI:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, clause 5 is really one on which there must be a lot of differences of opinion as a very valuable right has been taken away which enabled people interested to resort to courts, when they find that a trustee is mismanaging the properties of the temple or religious institution, or the accounts are not being properly maintained. Circumstances have so changed that a regular scheme has to be framed for the guidance of the trustees in charge of the institutions. But it has to be borne in mind that section 92 of the Civil Procedure Code takes care to see that some questions which could be plausibly brought under that section are not permitted as is the case when a person wants to recover anything from the trustee; he cannot do so. There are certain valuable things left out of the purview of the section and only limited powers to grant relief under that section are available to the court under section 92 of the Civil Procedure Code. We have provided that all those that are provided under section 92 of the Civil Procedure Code shall hereafter be decided by the Commissioner, a person who, from the very nature of the case may not always be a lawyer who can go into the question properly and adjudicate upon it. If anybody wants to file a suit under section 92 and circumstances warrant it, what is he to do? From to-day up to the date of the issue of the notification what remedy has a person who wants to file a suit with the intention of seeing that a particular trust, say a Jain temple, is properly administered. Therefore, Sir, unless the words 'sections 92 and 93 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908' are there, there will be an interregnum. Take a concrete case. As soon as this measure is passed, sections 92 and 93 of the Code of Civil Procedure will cease to apply to religious institutions. Suppose there is a Jain. He wants to see that certain Jain temples are made to function properly. Now, he cannot move in the matter under sections 92 and 93 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Nor can he approach the Commissioner in this Bill, as such temples have not been brought under the purview of this measure. So he is left without any remedy. Therefore I would like this hiatus to be filled by a suitable amendment."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, my hon. Friend Sri Bhashyam expects that the enactment would come into force immediately and the notification would be issued subsequently, and thus there will be an interregnum between the two dates. May I point out to him that it is with this idea, that we have amended clause 1 (3) and said that 'it shall come into force on such date as the Government may, by notification in the Fort St. George Gazette, appoint.' If necessary we shall see that the Act comes to force and the notification is issued simultaneously, so that there may not be an interregnum. This will ensure that when the clause 5 comes to force there is no interregnum."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Sir, this is a mere point of law. There will be a notification in the first instance in respect of Hindu temples and then only to the Jain endowments. During this interregnum period, that is to say, between the time when Hindu temples are taken over and the Jain endowments are brought under this measure, there is no remedy open to a Jain to set right the mismanagement of the endowments; for sections 92 and 93 cannot apply, as they are repealed from the date of the coming into force of this Act, and nor can he approach the Commissioner under this Act, as they have not yet been brought under this Act."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, may I point out to hon. Sri Bhashyam that clause 2 begins to operate only from the date which the Government fix by notification in the

[Sri K. Madhava Menon] [13th September 1950]

Fort St. George Gazette. So until then, these Jain endowments are not governed by this enactment; and so, sections 92 and 93 of the Code of Civil Procedure will continue to apply to them."

MR. SPEAKER :—" The question is—' Clause 5 do stand part of the Bill.' "

The motion was carried.

Clause 6.

MR. SPEAKER :—" The motion is—
' That clause 6 do stand part of the Bill.' "

" Before the hon. Member Sri Bhashyam moves his amendment, I wish to point out to him that I have certain doubts regarding his first two amendments, namely, to omit the words ' or the Jain ' and ' or any section thereof ' in sub-clause (4). He can only move for the deletion of the words ' and includes the institution concerned '."

* SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" Yes, because I am defeated in my amendment to clause 2, so, my motion now to delete the words ' or the Jain ' and ' or any section thereof ' are out of order."

MR. SPEAKER :—" Yes, I rule them out of order and so, the hon. Member will move only his last amendment, namely, the omission of the words ' and includes the institution concerned '."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" Sir, I beg to move—

' That in sub-clause (4) omit the words " and includes the institution concerned '."

Sir, the profession of Government is that they are not going to deal with the internal management of religious and charitable institutions. They are going to exercise only supervisory control. All the clauses in the Bill proceed on the basis that the Government or the Commissioner to be appointed by the Government will have only control over these endowments. But the definition clause here, now under consideration, seeks to give not only control of the property of the endowment but also over the very institution in the sense that schools and colleges, rest houses, houses for feeding the poor, or any buildings like these, will be practically taken over by the Government under this Bill. This is interfering with the internal management of these institutions. If the idea of Government is to take over the whole control over them, let them say so; but their profession is not to interfere with the internal management. But this amendment seeks to give them power over the rites and ceremonies connected with the endowments. So unless my amendment is accepted it will lead to a lot of difficulties in the practical working of the enactment, which I mentioned in the earlier part of the discussion of this measure, namely, interfering with the provisions of the Constitution Act.

13th September 1950] [Sri K. Bhashyam]

" I shall illustrate my point with an example. Supposing there is a charity established by a private founder for the purpose of a Mantakapati. The Mantakapati is for taking a particular deity on an elephant, Yanavahanam, on a particular day. This Mantakapati is endowed with property. Now, when Government take over the management of that property, under this section, they may say that in conducting this Mantakapati, that only five persons shall be needed to take the vahanam in procession; they may also say that no vanavedikai is necessary. These are details of management. These may be left to the trustees to do as they like. After all it is money that is to be utilized, and so long as they are able to adjust the accounts, they may be left a free hand; the Government need not interfere with them. So what is sought to be given by the words now in question is power to interfere with the internal management. Therefore I move those words may be deleted."

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA :—" Sir, in seconding the amendment of hon. Mr. Bhashyam, I wish to state that the object of his amendment may be achieved by having the words ' and includes the supervision of the institution concerned ' instead of the words ' and includes the institution concerned '. This will bring it in accord with the profession of Government as stated in the Preamble to this measure. But from the fact that they seek power to take over choultries, patasalas, housing for feeding the poor, it looks that the Government are trying to grab at these institutions and want to control everything. I do not know whether they are not offending the provisions of the Indian Trusts Act. I wish they do not go into the details of the administration of these religious institutions, but confine themselves to their supervision. For, with the limited machinery at their disposal it will be taking too much burden, it will be taking unnecessary burden and avoidable burden also. Therefore I suggest that the Government be content with the supervision of the institutions concerned."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" Sir, I do not know exactly what purpose will be served by the word used by my hon. Friend, Sri Raghavayya, when he said that Government are grabbing at these institutions."

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA :—" If you do not like that word, I shall say, ' embracing '." (Laughter.)

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" ' Grabbing ' or ' embracing ' there is no use served by words like that. The danger which hon. Mr. Bhashyam contemplates is that it might include maths. Let us not have in our mind anything about maths here. This sub-clause defines what a charitable endowment is, and it deals with it only. Suppose there is an endowment for the benefit of an institution. Should that not also come under the provisions of this Act. So, let us not be misguided that it will include the institution itself. Maths are given a separate chapter. Chapter V deals with them separately. So let the House be under no misapprehension that the words 'includes the institution concerned' will cover maths."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Sir, the Hon. Law Minister is taking a very optimistic view in the interpretation of this clause. I will give an illustration. Suppose there is a patasala endowed for the purpose of imparting religious instruction. I do not say 'Veda patasala' because it may be said that Brahmans want it."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Why do you think that Veda patasalas are not necessary for Non-Brahmans?"

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"When I say anything, you attribute some motive to me. I have heard such remarks from various members. That is why I want to guard myself from being misunderstood."

"The Government will take over the endowment. The Commissioner may say: 'There is only one student for a particular branch of study and it is not worth while continuing the section for the sake of one student. Let it be closed down' as was said in the case of some other institution. Or he may say for instance that Saiva Siddhanta or a particular portion of it need not be taught. While the Government can take over the secular administration, take over the endowments and get more income let them leave the actual management of the institution according to the founder's will to the people of the religious denomination to which the institution belongs."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, hon. Sri Bhashyam cited the instance of patasalas. There are similar institutions for which properties have been endowed. Suppose the trustees are not utilizing the income from the endowment on the purposes of the endowment. Should not this Act apply to such cases? If we omit the words 'and includes the institution concerned' such difficulties will arise."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The question is—

'That in clause 6, sub-clause (4), omit the words "and includes the institution concerned".'

The amendment was lost.

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Sir, I move—

That in clause 6, sub-clause (6) (iii), for the words "the Court" substitute the words "the Subordinate Judge's Court" and at the end of the sub-clause, add the words "or if there is no such Court, the District Court having such jurisdiction".'

According to sub-clause (6), 'Court' means—

(i) in relation to a math or temple situated in the Presidency—the Madras City Civil Court;

13th September 1950] [Sri K. Bhashyam]

(ii) in relation to a math or temple situated elsewhere, the Subordinate Judge's Court having jurisdiction over the area in which the math or temple is situated, or if there is no such Court, the District Court having such jurisdiction;

(iii) in relation to a specific endowment attached to a math or temple, the Court which would have jurisdiction as aforesaid in relation to the math or temple.

"The Court which would have jurisdiction as aforesaid' does not bring out the meaning clearly. The substitution of the words 'the Subordinate Judge's Court' for the words 'the Court' brings out the meaning clearly. If this amendment is accepted, the other amendment is necessary. Where there is no Subordinate Judge's Court, the District Court should have jurisdiction. The amendment only clarifies the position and does nothing more."

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA:—"I second this very just and very formal amendment."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, there is no justice or formality in this matter."

"I am afraid the hon. Member Mr. Bhashyam has moved the amendment under a misapprehension. Sub-clause (6) (iii) reads:

'Court' means in relation to a specific endowment attached to a math or temple the Court which would have jurisdiction as aforesaid.

"As aforesaid' means as said in item (ii), that is to say, the Subordinate Judge's Court having jurisdiction over the area and if there is no such Court, the District Court having such jurisdiction. The clause as it is worded is quite clear."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"I said that my amendment was intended only for the purpose of clarification. It may be said that the subtlety of a lawyer is illimitable. The clause as worded gives room for arguing what 'as aforesaid' means. We can repeat the words of item (ii) in item (iii) and avoid all scope for doubt and argument. That is the object my amendment seeks to achieve."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The question is—

'That in clause 6, sub-clause (6) (iii), for the words "the Court" substitute the words "the Subordinate Judge's Court" and at the end of the sub-clause, add the words "or if there is no such Court, the District Court having such jurisdiction".'

The amendment was lost.

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Sir, I move—

'That in clause 6, sub-clause (9), omit the word "specifically".'

This is a very important amendment and I want to draw the attention of hon. Members to it. Let not the Members be carried away simply because the Government say that the clause as worded is quite correct. I will take the hon. Sri Kandaswami Pillai for the purpose of illustration. Suppose his great grandfather had left some property for carrying on a charity with some oral instructions but not reduced them to writing. If the charity is being carried on from generation to generation by his descendants, why should not Sri Kandaswami Pillai continue to be a hereditary trustee? Such charities might have been carried on for centuries. The inclusion of the word 'specifically' looks as if some deed or document is insisted upon. Such insistence will lead to difficulty and a lot of heart-burning. Therefore even endowments which have been in vogue by custom or tradition may also be recognized. My amendment only clarifies the position which perhaps the Government also have in view."

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA :—" Sir, I second this amendment, particularly when all the doubts are cleared by the last clause 'so long as such scheme of succession is in force'. May I ask what the Hon. Minister for Law has in view in using the word 'specifically' at this part of the clause, whereas he has not used that word before in the same clause? The clause occurring at the end, which I quoted, is all-embracing and makes the meaning of all the clauses explicit. Therefore I see no necessity for the word 'specifically'."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" The contingency referred to by hon. Sri Bhashyam and all other contingencies have been anticipated. The provision reads :

'hereditary trustee' means the trustee of a religious institution succession to whose office devolves by hereditary right.

If the succession goes by right from father to son, the son will be trustee. We have provided for that contingency.

"or is regulated by usage"

By usage, the trusteeship may devolve upon some elder member of the family. In certain Malabar families, by usage the succession falls upon the eldest female member. We have provided for that contingency also.

"If a person who has endowed specifies in a document that a particular person shall be the trustee of his endowment, why should we not provide for that contingency also?"

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" I have nothing to say."

MR. SPEAKER :—" The question is—

'That in clause 6, sub-clause (9), omit the word "specifically".'

The amendment was lost.

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA :—" Sir, I move—

'That in clause 6, sub-clause (10), line 3, for the word "duty" substitute the word "function".'

This is a very literary amendment. 'Duty' is what is imposed or enjoined by an Act. Imparting of religious instruction is not a 'duty' laid down either by-law or by any written code. Several institutions are headed by adipathis, matadhipatis or others. The clause refers to the functions exercised by them till now. The word 'function' is more readable and more sensible. Therefore I move the amendment."

13th September 1950] [Sri V. Raghavayya]

SRI S. NAGAPPA :—" I second the amendment."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" Sir, I wish the hon. Sri K. Bhashyam had seconded the amendment and given us the difference of meaning between 'function' and 'duty'. 'Function' is more wide if I understand it properly."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" Sir, since the amendment is not going to be accepted by the House, I did not think it worthwhile to speak on it. Duty means a compellable obligation. A person must be under an obligation to do so. If a 'sishya' goes to a person and says 'please instruct me, he cannot refuse that instruction'. But if it is a case of function, it is not of an obligatory nature. He may or may not do so. If a person refuses to give instruction, then it means it is not obligatory on him. There is difference between duty and function. Suppose, I want spiritual instruction, and I go to a certain person whose function it is to give me instruction. He is my Acharya no doubt. But it is not his duty to give me instruction. Therefore there is difference between function and duty."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" Function is much wider, and it is not our intention to make the scope wider."

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA :—" Sir, the very intelligent Law Minister should have grasped the importance of this word. Further, when we use this word to great people who are religious heads and saints, we should not employ the ordinary work-a-day language of the Secretariat. We must rise above this, and use more dignified language. That is why I suggested the word 'function'."

MR. SPEAKER :—" The question is—

'That in clause 6, sub-clause 10, line 3, for the word "duty" substitute the word "function".'

The amendment was lost.

MR. SPEAKER :—" The House will now rise and meet at 11 a.m. to-morrow."

The House then adjourned.

ENDOWMENTS BILL, 1949—cont.

THE MADRAS LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Monday, the 13th November 1950.

The House met in the Assembly Chamber, Fort St. George, at eleven of the clock, Mr. Speaker (THE HON. SRI J. SIVA-SHANMUGAM PILLAI) in the Chair.

THE MADRAS HINDU RELIGIOUS AND CHARITABLE ENDOWMENTS BILL, 1949—cont.

THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN :—“ Sir, I wish to proceed with the Bill from where it was left at the end of the last session. Since some time had elapsed in the interval, I thought I could just draw the attention of the hon. Members to what has been done so far and incidentally explain the cause for the delay. I would like to remind hon. Members that this Bill was drafted long before the Constitution was framed and it has been so long on the anvil even before the Constitution was framed and came into effect. Therefore, it became necessary to reconsider many of the sections of the Bill in view of the great change that has come over the country and as one who has got to move the Bill, I have to consider points of law connected with the question. We were therefore very busy with the matter and took necessary advice in the matter both from the Government of India and our legal advisers with regard to the various matters concerned. Necessarily some alterations have got to be made. In fact, we have omitted two clauses and removed a chapter itself from the Bill and notices relating to these have already been given. These had to be made simply to legalise the procedure in regard to the constitutional difficulties that may be brought forward. We wanted to avoid such difficulties and get through the work without any legal obstacles. The consideration of these things took some time and that was really the cause of the delay in proceeding with the Bill. Having taken the time, it would be wrong on our part not to proceed with the Bill as early as possible. That is why the Bill has been given the first place in the agenda. There are smaller Bills on the agenda which may not take much time to be disposed of. Therefore, they may be passed first and the consideration of this Bill may be reserved to the last stage so that we may have the necessary time to go on with the Bill continuously. I may also inform the House that the Hon. Leader of the House has assured me to give the necessary time for the Bill to go through and pass this Bill during this session, so that I can take the Bill through its further stages either here or in the other House without causing any delay.”

MR. SPEAKER :—“ The hon. Member, Mr. Bhashyam, has given notice of a motion under Rule 67 of the Assembly Rules that the business of the House relating to the continuance of the discussion of the Hindu Religious Endowments Bill, be adjourned.”

* SRI K. BHASHYAM :—“ Sir, I move—

‘ That under Rule 67 of the Assembly Rules the business relating to the consideration of the Hindu Religious Endowments Bill be adjourned.’

“ I do so with a great responsibility and it is not with a view to obstruct the passage of the Bill or with a view to delay in the process of going through it, but I feel that some consideration should be given to Members. One reason is that the Government have taken a long time for putting in their own amendments, which are made necessary by the fact that the Constitution Act has been passed. I find there are nearly as many as 54 amendments which have been given notice of by the Government and all these amendments have been served upon us as late as Saturday night and as such only one day has been left to hon. Members either to suggest their amendments or to understand the implications of the amendments proposed by the Government. Therefore, Sir, since the time at our disposal is short and the matters raised in the various amendments are fairly important, I think it is necessary that some more time must be given to us for considering the matter. That is one thing which I would like to point out and it is not that I want to delay this Bill. I want also to understand what the Government want to do and what the Government mean by their proposed amendments. In fact, Sir, I may tell you that I spent nearly three to four hours studying the amendments and I am not yet quite clear as to what is the principle on which these amendments have been made. I am now moving my motion in the hope that the Government will be able to place before this House in reply to the motion the underlying principles in respect of the various amendments which they seek to put in. True, Sir, there is only one clause I think it is clause 94-A—which says that nothing in this Act shall be deemed to confer any power or impose any duty in contravention of the rights conferred on any religious denomination, etc., by Article 26 of the Constitution. Such a general provision is really without any necessity for it. After all, if it is contrary to Article 26 of the Constitution, it is contrary to it and it is not necessary to express it in so many words. Probably such a clause is put in to save the face of the Government in a court of law. That is a mere dream of the Government itself. Along with this, while going through the clauses of the Bill the Government have also suggested various amendments omitting, for instance clauses 43, 45, etc. What do these things lead to, I am not able to understand. I may point out that when the matter was before the Select Committee most of these points were raised by us, but the Government would not listen to us then. Perhaps wisdom has now dawned upon them. But I would like to state that it would have been better if the wisdom had dawned on them earlier.

"Therefore, Sir, in view of all these, I am not able to come to any definite conclusions—but only tentative conclusions—within the short time at my disposal. Then again, I think I have to give a number of amendments to the amendments proposed by the Government, but where is the chance for me to do so. Therefore, it is hardly fair to ask hon. Members to consider the Bill at such short notice. For instance, I would like to point out, that the Government want to amend clause 3, which has already been passed. I would like to ask the hon. Minister in charge of the Bill or somebody on behalf of the Government to give us an idea of what is it they have done and on what principle they want to amend the clause again, as also other clauses in the Bill. I would also like to have an opportunity to be given to us for the purpose of moving amendments. Now, there is no chance for us. As I told you, the amendments proposed by the Government come to about 54 covering 11 pages of matter concerning the various clauses of the Bill. For these reasons, Sir, I would like the Government to consider the interests of Members—of course many persons may or may not take interest and they may have perfect confidence in the wisdom of the Government and take what they have done is correct—we also have confidence in the Government, but would like to know where they are leading us to and that is what I am really interested in.

"Therefore, even though I have not made the motion earlier, I thought it necessary to move the motion. Of course, it might have been brought to your notice earlier, but yesterday being Sunday, I could not do it. That was the reason."

* SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—"Sir, in seconding the motion of my hon. Friend, Mr. Bhashyam, I wish to add a few remarks of my own. I hope most of the Members of the House will agree with me that we have had no time to go through the long list of amendments circulated to hon. Members, to some on Saturday, to some on Sunday, that is yesterday and to the rest, it appears the amendments were circulated only this morning. Of course, I am not finding fault with the office, but I am only submitting to you that there has been practically no time for Members to examine the amendments proposed by the Government. I need not say that these amendments are coming from the Government after the report of the Select Committee and after consideration actually of some of the clauses. In fact these objections to the constitution were raised at the discussion also and they were not prior to the framing of the Constitution, but they were raised after the promulgation of the new Constitution, but the Government took the risk of introducing the report of the Select Committee and going through some clauses even after the Constitution came into force. That is why several hon. Members raised several objections. It is good now that the Government are willing to abide by the Constitution. In fact, in one of the amendments proposed I find it is declared that the Government are not going to violate the Constitution, but what I submit is a declaration that any of the provisions of the Bill will not be deemed to confer powers in violation of the Constitution, is not enough. But, what we have to see is that the wording of the Bill or the amendment is actually in conformity with the Constitution or not. I wonder whether the Hon. Minister has gone through the existing clauses and the wording of the various amendments in the light of the declaration that they are not violating the Constitution.

"In spite of the declaration, there are several provisions of the Bill which are in my opinion against the Constitution. I submit, Sir, that it is only fair to the Members of the House to allow some time. In fact, if you interpret the rules a little more favourably, I would even suggest that the Bill may be republished with the amendments proposed by the Government. There is nothing wrong in it; if we are intent upon doing a good thing, let us do it in a good way. If that is so, Sir, I would even move if you permit me, a separate motion that the Bill may be republished incorporating all the amendments which the Government have proposed. The thing is the Government must make up their mind in regard to the Bill before us. After the Select Committee, they have come forward with 54 amendments, some of which are very long and I am afraid they have not yet made up their mind in regard to several matters and in my opinion the implications of several things have not been properly understood. I submit, therefore, Sir, that some time is wanted and the consideration of the Bill may be adjourned to another day which will be convenient."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, it may be said plausibly that there are a large number of amendments and the amendments themselves reached hon. Members yesterday or the day before yesterday and thus, therefore, there was very little time. True, Sir, the amendments have been given notice of after the first reading is over and after the Select Committee has reported upon the Bill. It was done not merely to bring certain clauses in consonance with the provisions of the Constitution but various suggestions were made during the first reading of the Bill that some of the clauses were unnecessary or some of the clauses should be amended in such a way that they should not offend against natural justice. For instance there were clauses under which in respect of religious institutions, charitable institutions or maths, the Commissioner can pass orders taking over their management without assigning any reasons. After hearing the discussions in this House, the Government have come forward with certain amendments saying that the Commissioner or the Deputy Commissioner can act only if there is mismanagement and even if they are satisfied about it they can do it only after giving notice to the parties concerned and hearing them. The summary powers that have been given to the Government under the original Bill we have changed in such a way as to give notice to the parties and in some cases appeal to the courts is also provided. These are the main amendments proposed. During the course of the discussion, doubts were raised that some of the provisions may also offend the Constitution; we examined the matter with our legal officers and have proposed amendments with a view to see that such objections may not be there for people to doubt but still should there be any such loophole, we have made an allround clause saying that the Act shall not affect rights under Article 26 of the Constitution. Most of the amendments were proposed in the Select Committee, some of which were accepted and some turned down. But after hearing the suggestions in the House during the first reading stage, it was thought that it is better to accept some more of the suggestions. These are not new amendments; they are practically the amendments which had been suggested by hon. Members and they in no way increase the power of the Government or of the Commissioner. It is only intended to limit the powers as much as possible in the interests of the institution and also so that we may not offend the Constitution. There is nothing strange that we have done and I do not see any particular reason why there should be an adjournment of the consideration of the Bill. My hon. Friend Mr. Viswanatham went to the extent of suggesting that the Bill may be republished incorporating the amendments which have been proposed. I am afraid there is no provision for adopting such a course under which the Bill could be republished and come again before the House. The Government will have to withdraw their first motion and the Bill will have to come afresh. There is no such procedure nor can we accept that position. I have consulted Hon. Dr. Rajan and he tells me that if the House so thinks and if you are so inclined, we can take up the Bill to-morrow and not to-day."

MR. SPEAKER:—"I think that that will satisfy hon. Mr. Bhashyam."

* SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I should be thankful for small mercies but really, Sir, I do not feel that a day is enough to study the implications of the amendments and propose amendments in respect of the amendments that have been proposed by the Government."

MR. SPEAKER:—"To-morrow before eleven o'clock, he can do it."

* SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"We are after all human beings, Sir. The Government with all the staff at their command have taken three months for bringing forward these amendments covering eleven pages of closely printed matter. We have to study the scope of the amendments and the time you have allowed is not enough, Sir. So, I would suggest to you, Sir, to give a week in order to enable us to make a thorough study and find out what the defects are that had been rectified and how the position could be improved. After all, Sir, I am not a trustee nor a matadhipathi and I am doing this in the general interests of good legislation. If the Government do not care for it, I do not know what to do. I would ask that this may be taken up next week."

THE HON. SRI B. GOPALA REDDI:—"We have no objection, Sir, for the Bill being taken up on Wednesday."

18th November 1950]

MR. SPEAKER:—"Amendments to the amendments will be received till one o'clock to-morrow."

* SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"The Government have given us some indulgence and I would request you, Sir, to extend your indulgence also. We are busy people and we are not professional politicians. We should devote some time over it and therefore, I beg that we may be allowed some more time till next week."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The Government proposal is there and we can have the discussion on Wednesday; there seems to be no other alternative."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"The Government have given us some indulgence and I am suggesting that you also allow us a little more indulgence in giving amendments. There is indulgence from the Government side and I want a little further indulgence from you in that matter, Sir."

MR. SPEAKER:—"To-morrow till five o'clock hon. Members can send their amendments to the amendments. If they are verbal the hon. Member can raise them at any time."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"I shall do it without being asked and in fact, you yourself will do it yourself. If the amendments proposed by the Government occasion an amendment in the general clauses of the Act, in respect of them also, I must be given some time; I want also to suggest amendments to certain clauses of the Bill."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The hon. Member can do it."

SRI K. RAJARAM NAYUDU:—"You have ruled, Sir, that he can move amendments to the general clauses."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"I am sorry, Sir, I shall have to challenge the hon. Member if he can give out now and here the implications of the various amendments."

MR. SPEAKER:—"What the hon. Member says is in relation to consequential amendments in respect of the other clauses; the Government have already moved some amendments to other clauses also. The question is—

'That under Rule 67, of the Assembly Rules, the consideration of the Bill be adjourned.'

The motion was carried.

THE HON. SRI B. GOPALA REDDI:—"I now move, Sir, that the House be adjourned because the Hon. Minister in charge of the next Bill is not ready with the Bill. It will give hon. Members more time and it will satisfy Mr. Bhashyam better if we adjourn the House."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The House stands adjourned till eleven o'clock to-morrow."

ENDOWMENTS BILL, 1949 (L.A. BILL
No. 10 OF 1949)—Discussion continued.

THE MADRAS LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Wednesday, the 15th November 1950.

The House met in the Assembly Chamber, Fort St. George, at eleven of the clock, Mr. Speaker (THE HON. SRI J. SIVASHANMUGAM PILLAI) in the Chair.

MR. SPEAKER:—"The Government have given notice of an amendment to clause 3. Since the clause has already been passed in this House, the Hon. Minister will now move a motion that the clause be re-opened."

THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN:—"Sir, I move—
'That clause 3 be re-opened.'"

MR. SPEAKER:—"The motion is—
'That clause 3 be re-opened.'"

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Sir, I wish to move an amendment to the motion seeking to re-open not only clause 3 but all the clauses from clause 1 passed by this House up till now, because some of us did not have the opportunity to send in our amendments in time."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The hon. Member wanted time till yesterday evening and I allowed it."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Please allow me to finish. On the last occasion when the matter was taken up, I complained that we had not enough time to give notice of amendments to the few clauses that had already been passed. When the Government think that they can go back, reconsider the matter and come to a better decision and want to re-open clause 3, I think we are also entitled to move as an amendment to that motion to re-open not only clause 3 but all the clauses from clause 1 that have already been passed so that we can also think over and suggest amendments. We did not have enough time to give notice of amendments. It is not as if I am making this complaint for the first time. I made this complaint in this House even on the last occasion."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Let the hon. Member move a separate motion."

* The consideration of the Bill was adjourned at the meeting of the Assembly on 14th November 1950.

15th November 1950]

RAJA MUTHIAH CHETTIYAR OF CHETTINAD:—"What is the chance of success of such a motion?"

MR. SPEAKER:—"I cannot help it."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"I think it is open to me to move my proposition by way of an amendment to the motion."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The hon. Member cannot move an amendment to the motion. Let him move a separate motion."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"May I ask for your ruling?"

MR. SPEAKER:—"My ruling is that, if the hon. Member wants to re-open all the clauses that have been passed, he will have to move a separate motion."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Then I have nothing to say."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"We have passed clauses 1 to 5. After disposing of the remaining clauses of the Bill, the motion to re-open clause 3 may be moved."

SRI N. S. VARADACHARI:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, the motion to re-open clause 3 arises from the fact that the Government have modified certain clauses of the Bill as amended by the Select Committee. Some of the changes made may be of far-reaching importance and others may be of less importance. It is better that the Hon. Minister in charge of the Bill summarises the changes made and their effect. It will help discussion as to why clause 3 should be re-opened, clause 7 should be omitted or clause 8 should be re-cast in another form and put in in another place. The objection has been that certain clauses are contrary to the Constitution. The Government seem to have recognized the force of this objection, and come to the conclusion that certain clauses may not fit in with the scheme of things as envisaged by the Constitution."

MR. SPEAKER:—"I will ask the Hon. Minister to explain."

SRI N. S. VARADACHARI:—"Instead of giving the explanation under each clause, I suggest that the Hon. Minister summarises all the changes made and their effect even at the very beginning. Then the discussion will be more informed than it would otherwise be."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The question is—
'That clause 3 be re-opened.'"

The motion was carried and clause 3 was re-opened.

Clause 3.

THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I move—

'That for clause 3, substitute the following:—

"3. Where the Government have reason to believe that any Hindu or Jain public charitable endowment is being mismanaged and are satisfied that in the interests of the administration of such charitable endowment, it is necessary to extend thereto all or any of the provisions of this Act and of any rules made thereunder, they may, by notification in the "Fort St. George Gazette", extend to such charitable endowment the said provisions and thereupon the provisions so extended shall apply to such charitable endowment as if it were a specific endowment:

Provided that before issuing such a notification, the Government shall publish in the "Fort St. George Gazette", a notice of their intention to do so, specifying the reasons for the action proposed to be taken by them and fixing a period which shall not be less than two months from the date of publication of the notice, for the persons interested in the endowment concerned to show cause against the issue of the notification, and consider their objections, if any."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Amendment moved—

'That for clause 3, substitute the following:—

"3. Where the Government have reason to believe that any Hindu or Jain public charitable endowment is being mismanaged and are satisfied that in the interests of the administration of such charitable endowment, it is necessary to extend thereto all or any of the provisions of this Act and of any rules made thereunder, they may, by notification in the Fort St. George Gazette, extend to such charitable endowment the said provisions and thereupon the provisions so extended shall apply to such charitable endowments as if it were a specific endowment:

Provided that before issuing such notification, the Government shall publish in the Fort St. George Gazette, a notice of their intention to do so, specifying the reasons for the action proposed to be taken by them and fixing a period which shall not be less than two months from the date of publication of the notice, for the persons interested in the endowment concerned to show cause against the issue of the notification, and consider their objections, if any."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I submit that legislation by notification in this manner has been objected to by certain High Courts in this country and I think it has also been adversely remarked upon by the Supreme Court. If the Government really want to treat charitable endowments also on the same level as the religious endowments, they might do so now. After all, we are discussing the entire Bill as it is, and the Government want to make this a comprehensive measure covering charitable institutions also. It is only a matter of historic accident that differences have been made with regard to the treatment of the various trust properties, such as temple endowments and other charitable trusts, but the underlying idea in all these endowments is that they are public charities and public trusts, in which the public have an interest. I submit, therefore, that when we are considering certain strict and stringent measures with regard to the administration of institutions of the same nature, we should not make any difference in respect of the treatment of charitable endowments alone. It also, in a way, offends the provision of the Constitution, giving equal protection to all such institutions. I submit that the Government should not have this power of notification under this clause. If there is any mismanagement in any charitable endowment, the Government have ample powers to bring it under their control. I therefore submit that a separate treatment need not be given to charitable endowments.

"Moreover, Sir, I have got another great objection to this clause, which makes a certain discrimination with regard to charitable endowments. These charitable endowments may be for Jains, or Hindus or Christians or Muslims and there must be some law governing these public endowments satisfying the intentions of the founders of such endowments. It is also the duty of the Government to see that the general laws relating to trust properties are properly observed and that such properties are not mismanaged and that the beneficiaries get the benefit of the trust. I submit, it is not fair or proper to make a distinction between endowments made by members of one religion and endowments made by members of another religion. It offends almost all the principles for which a modern Government stand. In this amendment, a discrimination is sought to be made between one religious endowment and another, and it also provides legislation by notification, which is wrong in principle. I therefore oppose this amendment and I submit that neither this amendment nor the original provision be accepted by this House."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, apart from any legal question involved in this procedure, on principle also I object to the amendment, because it seeks to extend the provisions of the Act, the regulations and even the rules made under this Act to certain specified classes of cases by notification. We cannot anticipate what will be the nature of mismanagement in these charitable endowments and perhaps each case will have to be dealt with in a particular way. To say that in all such cases only the provisions of this Act should be applied, will not meet the needs of a particular situation. There may be other laws and other provisions which should be brought into operation to meet certain situations created by the mismanagement complained of in certain specific charitable endowments. Why should the Government limit themselves by saying, 'Where we have reasons to believe that there is mismanagement in any charitable endowment, we shall extend by notification all or any of the sections of this Act or the rules made under this Act', and thus deny themselves the right of bringing to their aid other laws and other provisions of law, for the purpose of dealing with such cases of mismanagement? I submit, Sir, that this amendment is wholly unnecessary and uncalled for, because, if the Government think that there is a widespread and large-scale abuse or mismanagement of charitable endowments and trust properties, they can bring forward any legislation at any time to deal with such cases, because they are all powerful and command the majority in this House. At the same time, I may submit, that so far, there has been no investigation made in the matter and the Government have no idea as to the total number of charitable endowments which would come under this legislation and how many of them are treated as family trusts and how many of them are hereditary trusts and how many are mismanaged and so on. In fact, they have no information and no statistics in regard to any of these things. To say in general terms that a lot of mismanagement is going on in these endowments is just like some people saying that everybody is corrupt, that every Member of the Legislature is corrupt or that every Minister is corrupt and so on. Unless an investigation is made, we cannot make such a sweeping statement like that. I think it is a dangerous principle to entrust the Government with the power to extend this Act by notification. If there is widespread abuse of trust properties, let them bring in a separate legislation. But this sort of legislation by notification is wholly wrong in principle and against all canons of law. I therefore oppose the amendment."

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA :—" Mr. Speaker, Sir, while I am not very keen on making a distinction between a charitable endowment and a religious institution, to which this Bill may be applied, I want to draw the attention of the Government to one thing and that is, that in the amendment, they want to give some reasons for their intention to apply the provisions of this Bill to charitable endowments and to specify the reasons for the action proposed to be taken by them, and also to fix a period and give an opportunity to the persons concerned to make their representations and so on. I ask, Sir, what is all this farce, for? If the idea is to treat the charitable endowments on a different basis and run to the rescue of the various charitable endowments which are mismanaged, and if they want to appear to be just, fair and reasonable to them and give an opportunity for them to make their representations, does it not also follow that they should put in a judge to give a decision on these matters? Here, the prosecutor, the complainant and the judge are one and the same, namely, the Government. If the Government have made up their mind to extend this Bill to the charitable endowments also, let them do so plainly. That is why my hon. Friend Mr. T. Viswanatham said, let the Government straightaway apply this Act here and now to the charitable endowments also. That would be a very good thing, because then the Assembly will have an opportunity to discuss threadbare the various aspects of that question. When once the Government have given an opportunity to the parties concerned to state their reasons and make their representations against the Act being extended to these endowments, is it not fair that they should leave the matter to be decided by the tribunal which has been provided for under this Bill? If these charitable endowments deserve to attract the provisions of this Bill, then by all means, let the Government appoint a tribunal to decide whether the reasons given by the parties concerned are adequate for proving the mismanagement of the endowment, or whether there is at least a ghost of a chance of its being proved in a court of law and then apply the Act. That will be the proper way to deal with the matter and therefore I oppose this amendment."

SRI K. VARADACHARI :—" Mr. Speaker, Sir, I support the amendment moved by the Hon. Minister. So far as this clause is concerned, we are committed to the principle that charitable endowments should get under the control of the Government, and that the provisions made for religious endowments in this Bill should be made applicable to them also. If hon. Members who opposed this amendment want to have this clause redrafted, they must have given notice of their amendments to the Government amendment itself. So, when the matter has been re-opened and when the Government have moved an amendment to the original clause, my hon. Friends who have now opposed it, should have taken the opportunity and given their own amendments to the Government amendment. Therefore it comes with very much less force from them, when they are simply opposing this amendment without suggesting an alternative to it. Suppose this amendment goes, what happens? The original clause 3 as passed by the Assembly will remain. Then what will be the consequence? We will have the same unsatisfactory provision which has been already there, and we will not be any the better for that. That should not be our purpose. In the original clause, which has been passed by the Assembly, the Government said that they would apply the provisions of this Act to any charitable institutions, even without their being any reason to believe that there is mismanagement there. Now they have restricted the scope of this clause and have taken only limited powers to extend the provisions of this Act to such charitable institutions in which they have reason to believe that there is mismanagement. To that extent, we must be thankful to the Government for the small mercy they have shown and in having reconsidered this clause and in having brought forward this amendment. Therefore, Sir, I support this amendment of the Government and request all Members to support this amended clause moved by the Hon. Minister."

SRI N. S. VARADACHARI :—" Mr. Speaker, Sir, I submit that the clause as amended is very much an improvement on the original clause. But, at the same time, I would ask the Government to consider whether it is necessary to centralize the control over all these charitable endowments and keep it in their hands. Even if they want to take up only limited powers of control over these public trusts, the psychology that would be left behind these institutions will be this. The Government are going to control all types of charitable endowments, and so let them look after the things which are now looked after by the private charities. That would be the kind of feeling that would be created in the minds of those people who are charitably disposed. But my objection is not to the redrafting of this clause as such, because, in substance, it seeks to mitigate the evil contained in the original clause for I suppose, the Government will not lightly notify any charitable endowments unless there has been some flagrant mismanagement or grave frauds having taken place in their administration before such notification. No doubt, the clause relates only to any Hindu or Jain public charitable endowments. I suppose it means that such endowments should have been founded by a Hindu or a Jain, although the beneficiaries might belong to all communities. If that were so, I am afraid, that sometimes the character of the charitable endowments themselves would be altered or changed in order to escape the provisions of this legislation altogether. That is a point that strikes me, which the Government might consider, although it is a very small one.

"But my main and fundamental objection to any change in the present position, so far as these public charities are concerned is this. Please, do not at this stage of our country's progress and development, introduce any legislation which might create an atmosphere where private charities would get stifled altogether and where there would be no incentive whatever for people to create more private charities than have hitherto existed.

"It is difficult to get at money. It is difficult to appeal for charities and raise funds. Money is wanted for colleges. But money collections have fallen short and those attempts have become infructuous. I know of at least one institution in the City suffering very much for want of funds, and in spite of the most influential citizens going round to collect funds for that institution, they have not reached even a quarter of the measure of success which they had hoped to reach. If we want that public charity should be developed, and if we want to see that the flow of public charity is unceasing and that there should be enough response from the public to appeals made for charity, it is but natural that people should expect that they should be allowed to manage the very gifts they made, and that the Government should stand at as far convenient a distance as they would expect. There are other remedies for mismanagement. Even to-day there are remedies in the law provided for setting right mismanagement of private charities. If people are not taking advantage of those remedies, it only shows that they are not blind to the mismanagement going on, but that they really do not think that the mismanagement is of such a grave character as to justify its being taken to a court of law. My objection is only this. That is that Government should not take more power than they can digest. The Government should not create a centralized administration for everything leaving nothing for private effort, as it were, in the country. In fact there should be one sphere of activity for the Government and another sphere of activity for private enterprise and public charity. And if these two spheres are practically delimited, then there is bound to be co-ordination and a constant interflow, and then the State's resources will be augmented. What the Government say is that, if there is mismanagement, and if after the enquiry is made, the mismanagement is proved to their satisfaction, they will extend any or all the provisions of this Bill to that endowment. Sir, I am afraid that Public charity will get very much stifled, and that is not a good thing. That will happen under the circumstances. So, I would ask the Hon. the Minister to consider whether the provisions of this Bill should be made applicable at all in the present circumstances to public charities. Of course, private charities are not covered by this Bill at all. I want a clear answer on this point and the opinion of the Government as to what its general effect will be on the flow of public charity."

SRI M. S. PATTABHIRAMAIAH:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I quite agree that the language of this amendment is more liberal, and I welcome it. But I am not very happy over it, because this Bill is a Religious and Charitable Endowments Bill. According to our Constitution we have less right to interfere with the religious institutions. There is not that great objection to see that the management of the charitable endowments is properly carried out. Charity is common to all religions. If the charitable endowment is not properly conducted and administered, it should be the consideration of the Government to reform or control it, and see that it is properly administered. When the Government take over all the religious endowments, Jain and Hindu, of the State, why should they not take over all the charitable endowments also? Many of the charitable endowments made by the original founders, whether they are Hindus or Jains, were intended, I believe, for all people. For instance, I know of a charity in my district founded by Queen Mangammal of those days. The beneficiaries of her charity belong to all religions. Because it was founded by a Hindu will it be called a Hindu charitable endowment? Or is it to be defined as the Hindu endowment only if the beneficiaries are Hindus? This is a point which should be clarified by the Government. Further, these charities, as was pointed out by my hon. Friend Mr. N. S. Varadachari, will not freely flow, if Government go against the will and intentions of the original founders. But charities which are already in existence with large funds at their disposal, and which are not properly administered, should be taken over by the Government. The Government have a duty in this regard. Government are more bound to take first the charitable endowments than the religious endowments. Religion is entirely a private matter. Charity is intended for all people. Therefore, charity is a non-religious subject. I say that this liberalising provision for taking over the charitable endowments should not in the end develop into a neglect of the charitable endowments by the Government. While I support this amendment, I wish to say that the original provision is not really so bad, as it was pointed out by my hon. Friend Mr. K. Varadachari. The charitable endowments should be properly administered, and the Government have a duty to see that they are properly administered. With these words, Sir, I support the amendment."

SRI V. M. RAMASWAMI MUDALIAR:—" Mr. Speaker, Sir, having already agreed to clause 3 of the Bill, and the principles underlying that clause having been already accepted, I think it is not necessary to re-open the underlying principles of this clause. Two objections, so far as I could follow the debate, have been raised, namely, 'why include charitable endowments in clause 3; it will dry up, so to speak, private charities'. The psychological aspect of the question was raised. I would like to draw the attention of the House to the fact that in England, Charity Commissioners have taken ample powers for the proper administration of public charities in that country. Public charity in that country has not dried up. They flow in large numbers. That I understand is due not to the fact that the State has interfered. But it shows that it is the death duty levied by the administration in that country that is prompting the people to endow their moneys to go to specific charities instead of to the State Exchequer. The whole law embodying the proper administration of charities is in existence in England. In this country also we have endowments dedicated for charitable purposes. Something has to be said against the management of these endowments. No doubt the donors of these charities have founded the endowments with all good intentions. They made endowments for laudable and charitable purposes. But the persons who succeeded them may not have the same motive, the same sense of duty or the same sense of public benefit. The misdeeds of the successors, I believe, have prompted the Government to bring them under the provisions of this Bill. In cases where there is proven mismanagement, the Government take the power to extend the provisions of this Bill to those charities. After all, the Government are responsible to the legislature. No Government can have the hardihood to do a wrong thing when they have to face the legislature at some time or other on that question and get exposed to public criticism. Therefore, I say that the Government, where there is proven mismanagement, can extend the provisions of this Bill to those charities. No serious objection can be taken to that. My hon. Friend Mr. Bashyam suggested 'why not bring a separate legislation in respect of those charities where there is mismanagement'. Legislation, Sir, as we know, is a cumbersome process. It has to go through the first reading stage; then there is the select committee stage; then the Bill has to pass through its second reading stage, and so on. For instance take this very Bill. This was introduced some eighteen months ago. Still, we are on the discussion of first few clauses. That is why I say that legislation is a cumbersome process. Separate legislation in respect of each charity, where there is proven mismanagement, is not called for. And I do not also think that it is practical politics. Therefore, I think that, where there is proven mismanagement, the Government should have the power to apply the provisions of this

15th November 1950] [Sri V. M. Ramaswami Mudaliyar]

Bill, and bring that charity under the administration of the Commissioner. My hon. Friend Mr. Viswanatham and some others suggested that this amendment went against the fundamental right affecting Hindu temples and Jain temples. The hon. Member Mr. M. S. Pattabhiramiah said that it interfered with the freedom of religion. I do not think this administration or control of the management of Hindu temples or maths or charities can be said to go against the fundamental right. Nor the question of describing charities as Hindu charities or Jain charities, can be stated as discriminatory legislation. Even in the Indian Parliament, there is the Hindu Code Bill. It affects the Hindus only of the Indian Union. Such legislation cannot be stated to be discriminatory and likewise when legislation is brought forward to bring within its provisions a certain type of charities. I, therefore, Sir, think that clause 3, as amended, is an improvement. I support the amendment."

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI:—" Mr. Speaker, Sir, at the outset when the Hon. Minister yesterday spoke on the introduction of the new amendments, he was kind enough to say that, because of the Constitution which he alleged had crept in after the framing of this Bill, he had to make certain amendments so that the provisions of this Bill might not contravene the provisions contained in the articles relating to fundamental rights and other articles of the Constitution. If that were so, I am afraid that this clause 3 which offends the fundamental rights guaranteed in the Constitution—as I shall presently show—is again brought in, in spite of the provision at a later stage in the Bill which runs as follows:—

'Nothing contained in this Act shall be deemed to confer any power or impose any duty in contravention of the rights conferred on any religious denomination or any section thereof by clauses (a), (b) and (c) of Article 26 of the Constitution.'

Clause 3 that is now proposed wants power to extend the provisions of this Bill to Jain or Hindu charitable endowments. I may point out to the Hon. Minister and also to my hon. Friend Sri Ramaswami Mudaliyar that this conflicts with Article 15 of Part III of the Constitution which says that the State shall not discriminate against any citizen on ground only of religion, the only exception being as follows:—

'Nothing in this article shall prevent the State from making any special provision for women and children.'

In no other case can there be any discriminatory legislation on the ground of religion. I am really surprised how they are able to argue that this clause does not contravene the provisions of the articles relating to fundamental rights.

" My hon. Friend Sri Pattabhiramiah said that these endowments had nothing to do with religion. I am really not able to understand it. Most of our endowments have been made by persons possessing religious faith, in favour of a particular religious sect and, if I may go further and say, they have provided endowments for the particular sub-sect in our communities. As such, I am at a loss to know how these endowments can be said to have nothing to do with religion and therefore these endowments can be interfered with by the Government as and when they please. Therefore, I would like to point out that we must see that this legal difficulty does not once again crop up and when we make an attempt to pass a legislation we should also safeguard ourselves. I am thankful for all the small mercies that the Government have shown us. We made some protests once or twice long ago regarding clause 22 of this Bill. I want the Government to go into the articles relating to fundamental rights once again and find out whether any discriminatory legislation can be made on this point. When I make the suggestion, it should not be understood that we are all opposed to the proper management of religious or charitable institutions or that we want people to misuse the funds of these endowments. Far from it. What this Government should do is not to discriminate the Hindu and Jain institutions only but should take up all charitable endowments in the State and have the courage to say that no man on this earth shall misuse the Trust entrusted to him, be he a Jain, Hindu, Mussalman or Christian. If that were the case, I will wholeheartedly support this Bill. But if we are to discriminate and confine it to particular religions in our State, then I beg to submit that it not only offends the Constitution but it offends the principles of common justice between man and man. While a man of another religion can do whatever he pleases with the endowment of which he is a Trustee, a man because he happens to be a Hindu or a Jain is sought to be brought within the provisions of this Bill. This is far from any reason, and the purpose of which I am not able to understand."

SRI V. I. MUNISWAMI PILLAY:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to support the motion made by the Hon. Dr. T. S. S. Rajan. The mismanagement of charitable endowments has given rise to a lot of criticism in this country especially in our State. So, the Government thought it necessary to bring a Bill of this nature. It is admitted on all hands that the charitable endowments have been mismanaged for a very long time in this country and people connected with religious institutions have thought it necessary that there must be some law whereby these endowments may be properly utilized for the purposes for which they have been endowed. Though many of us have taken objection to the inclusion of maths in this legislation, I do not think for a moment that the management of charitable institutions should be left alone. I think the passing of this clause will go a long way to purify the management of these endowments and the objects with which they were endowed will be properly served. I think under the control or management of the Commissioners that may be appointed under this Bill the purposes for which these endowments were made will be served. With these words, I support the motion, Sir."

SRI K. LINGA RAJU:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, this provision seems to be too wide and sweeping and gives rise to a possibility for misuse. Under the present law, I understand that if the Government want to interfere with a religious or charitable endowment, they will have to obtain a certificate from the Advocate-General. Under the provisions in this Bill, it looks as though the

15th November 1950] [Sri K. Linga Raju]

Government can come down on any endowment rather arbitrarily. There is no provision for appeal or opportunity for the parties to make adequate representations in any Court. I, therefore, feel that such a power in the hands of the Government will be too wide. I am afraid that the net result of such legislation will be to check the tendency on the part of individuals to give substantial charities. I am afraid that this law may interfere with the management of educational institutions and things like that. Therefore, I am unable to support this amendment."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, as my hon. Friend Sri Ramaswami Mudaliyar pointed out, we have already accepted the principle of taking power to control the administration of charitable endowments, in the original clause 3 that was passed. We have only sought to make certain changes in the original provision. The principle has not been changed. Most hon. Members have agreed that the proposed amendment is an improvement on the original clause that was passed. I do not think it is necessary for me to go into everything that was spoken about on the last occasion when the original clause 3 was passed and to repeat the same answer."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"On a point of order, Sir. The Hon. Minister says that clause 3 has been passed. I understand that his motion is for the substitution of another clause. So, he has reopened the matter. When the matter has been reopened, why not he reply to the points raised? The original clause is not here."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, either he has not heard me or I have not made myself clear. (Interruption.) Sri Prakasam says it is sharp practice. I do not know very much about that. What I said was this. Clause 3 was once passed. The matter has been reopened now. The question of the principle involved, viz., having control over the administration of charitable endowments, was discussed then and it has been reopened. So, I have nothing more to add to what I said then. It may be that there is difference of opinion on the principle between the hon. Members who objected to it and the Government. I did not say that the original clause 3 is still there."

"According to the original clause, it was open to the Government to extend the provisions of this Bill to any charitable endowment, without assigning reasons. Now, in order to make it absolutely clear, we have proposed that the Act can be extended to charitable endowments only if there is mismanagement, unlike in the case of religious institutions. That is the principle of the amendment that has been proposed. Whether it is wise or right to take power to control the administration of charitable endowments is a matter on which there may be considerable difference of opinion."

"My hon. Friend Sri Viswanatham said that the extension of an Act by notification was wrong, and that it had been held so by the Supreme Court. As regards the principle of this objection, we have already passed clause 2 also. It has got the identical wording. (Interruption.) My hon. Friend says it is equally bad. But I want to point out to him that what the Supreme Court held about the extension of legislation by notification was this. The Government can, by notification, extend a legislation for one, two or three years. In the particular case, it said that the Government can, by notification, modify the legislation passed. It was this that was objected to by the Supreme Court. I refer my hon. Friend to that latest decision. Regarding the Civil Courts (Amendment) Act, the Government have been given power to extend the jurisdiction of the City Civil Court from Rs. 3,000 to Rs. 10,000. The Bombay Government extended a provision like this by notification. The Bombay High Court by a Full Bench set aside that legislation by notification. But it has been reversed by the Supreme Court. Though I have not got a copy of the judgment here, I inform my hon. Friend that I am also conversant with the decision.

"According to the original clause, the Government may, by notification, extend the provisions of the Act to any Hindu or Jain charitable endowment. It might give room to arbitrary discrimination between public charitable endowments. To avoid that, we have now proposed as follows:—

"Where the Government have reason to believe that any Hindu or Jain public charitable endowment is being mismanaged and are satisfied that in the interests of the administration of such charitable endowment it is necessary to extend thereto all or any of the provisions of this Act and of any rules made thereunder, they may"

So, it is only under the above condition that the provisions of the Act can be extended.

"My hon. Friend Sri Gopalaswami spoke about the fundamental rights. Some can say that this offends the fundamental rights and I may assert that it does not offend them. However much the strength of the assertion may be, the final decision does not rest with us. Somebody else only can say whether it offends or not. Article 16 of the Constitution only says that every citizen shall have equality of opportunity and that there shall be no discrimination against anybody. But that is not applicable in this case.

"Apart from that, according to the advice that we have at our disposal, we feel that it does not offend the fundamental rights. That is all what I can say. Regarding the objection of hon. Sri Linga Raju that we are trying to interfere with the management of the Charitable institutions, I would like to put it the other way and say that we want to interfere with the mismanagement of these institutions and not with the management as such. I do not want to go into more details as this is a question of principle whether we should have control over the administration of charitable endowments. That is all what I wish to say with regard to this amendment."

15th November 1950]

MR. SPEAKER:—"The question is—

For clause 3, substitute the following clause:—

"3. Where the Government have reason to believe that any Hindu or Jain public charitable endowment is being mismanaged and are satisfied that in the interests of the administration of such charitable endowment it is necessary to extend thereto all or any of the provisions of this Act and of any rules made thereunder, they may, by notification in the Fort St George Gazette, extend to such charitable endowment the said provisions and thereupon the provisions so extended shall apply to such charitable endowment as if it were a specific endowment:

Provided that before issuing such a notification, the Government shall publish in the Fort St. George Gazette, a notice of their intention to do so, specifying the reasons for the action proposed to be taken by them and fixing a period which shall not be less than two months from the date of publication of the notice, for the persons interested in the endowment concerned to show cause against the issue of the notification, and consider their objection, if any."

The amendment was carried.

Clause 3, as amended, was put and carried.

Clause 6, Sub-clause (10).

SRI N. S. VARADACHARI:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I move the following amendment standing in my name:—

"That in sub-clause (10), after the word 'institution' in the first line, add the words 'recognized as such'."

"This is a very simple change. In the definition for the word 'math' it is said a Hindu religious institution with properties. I want that the words 'recognized as such' may be added. I do not want that we should make any mistakes in this matter. The definition says religious institution with properties attached thereto and presided over by a person. Such institution need not necessarily be a math. Every institution should not be made to come under this clause. It is only such institutions which are well-known in the country and which are recognized as such should be brought under the clause. There may be some little property attached to some of these institutions which may not be managed by the person who is presiding over the institution, but may be managed by other people. I want that the words 'recognized as such' should be added as everybody will know the well-known maths in the country. There may be cases and I know many of them, where certain institutions have come into existence for a specific purpose and which may not be recognized as maths. That is why I want that the words 'recognized as such' should be introduced so that it may be easy to operate."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, I second the amendment."

[15th November 1950]

MR. SPEAKER:—"Amendment moved—

'That in sub-clause (10), after the word "institution" in the first line, add the words "recognized as such".'

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, it is very difficult to accept this amendment. Hon. Sri Varadachari wants that the words 'recognized as such' should be added after the word 'institution'. I do not know which is the authority to recognize these institutions and what rule or laws have to recognize them. Unless we understand the implication and meaning of the words 'recognized as such' and know what is the recognition that is intended, we cannot consider the amendment. The wording is very vague. Who will recognize these institutions and what is the law to recognize them? Sir, these are matters which will lead to endless disputes and troubles once we leave the wording vague. The words 'recognized as such' have no meaning as it is. So the amendment cannot be accepted."

SRI N. S. VARADACHARI:—"I do not wish to say any thing more in this matter. I beg leave to withdraw the amendment."

The amendment of Sri N. S. Varadachari was, by leave, withdrawn.

SRI N. S. VARADACHARI:—"I beg to move the following other amendment to the same sub-clause (10):—

'In sub-clause (10), for the words "whose duty it is to engage himself in imparting religious instruction," substitute the words "who engages himself in imparting religious instruction".'

This amendment relates a formal change in the wording to make the language polite. The dignity of the person who is at the head of the math should be protected. In fact I do not like the definition which says, 'presided over by a person whose duty it is to engage himself . . .'. Who are you to prescribe the duties for such people? If, however, the Government want to give a description of the person concerned, I would suggest that a more polite language should be used. I will read the original clause so that the hon. Members may understand the full implications. It says—

"math" means a Hindu religious institution with properties attached thereto and presided over by a person whose duty it is to engage himself in imparting religious instruction or rendering spiritual service to a body of disciples or who exercises or claims to exercise spiritual headship over such a body; and includes places of religious worship or instruction which are appurtenant to the institution."

My objection is that the Government are using a language which is not very pleasant. Why not they make it more agreeable and pleasant by saying, 'presided over by a person who engages himself in imparting religious instruction'. We should not say, 'whose duty it is . . .' and all that. Let the definition remain as it is, but let the language be pleasant. The Government cannot prescribe the duties for these persons. My amendment only seeks to alter the language so that it may be proper and in accordance with the rules of courtesy and culture."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Who is seconding the amendment?"

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA:—"Sir, I second the amendment."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, with regard to these amendments, you can take it that one of us will second the amendments."

MR. SPEAKER:—"We have to observe certain formalities. At least to enable the reporters to record who is seconding the amendment, the name of the hon. Member who seconds the amendment must be known."

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA:—"While seconding the amendment moved by my hon. Friend Sri Varadachari, I wish to observe that the Government have forgotten for a moment that they are dealing with the religious institutions and in most cases very venerable and sacred persons are the heads of such institutions. Simply because there are a few black sheep here and there, the Government ought not to mete out the same treatment to all the dignitaries. While they are very careful to recognize the temporal greatness, I do not see any reason why in such matters they should not be more polite, and I may even say over-polite. The purpose which is sought to be imported into this amendment by hon. Sri Varadachari can very well be satisfied by changing the word 'duty' into 'function'. The Government may be anxious to define their control over certain institutions. Even for that purpose they could say, 'presided over by a person whose function it is . . .'. Duty is different from function. Duty is one imposed by the Government or defined in the law, whereas function is a more comprehensive thing which includes not only duties which are cast upon him by external authority but also duties which are imposed upon him by the position itself. I think there will not be any difficulty in accepting this suggestion."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I want to oppose this amendment. I will now tell the reason why I do it. If only the words suggested by hon. Sri Varadachari are to be inserted in the clause, it will include cases those where the Professor of Philosophy or Professor of Spirituality founds a College and wants to teach Philosophy and Spirituality to all persons concerned. Of course the Professor concerned will be engaging himself in imparting instruction in those institutions. Now according to the amendment, it will not be his duty to do so and he may stop giving instruction to-morrow. Take a further instance. There is the Theosophical Society. It engages itself in religious and spiritual teaching. We do not call that Society a math. It is only a Society registered under the Societies Act. Therefore I would like hon. Sri Varadachari to leave things as they stand at present, as I feel that his purpose will be served by leaving things as they stand and by not asking for such an amendment which will really mean that a large number of institutions, which are not really intended to be brought under the Bill, will have to be taken up by the Government."

SRI M. S. PATTABHIRAMIAH:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to support the amendment moved by my hon. Friend Sri Varadachari. If we have the sub-clause as it stands, it will be derogatory to the head of the math. The heads of the maths are generally people who explain the doctrines which they propagate. They are not Government officials or Ministers who are bound to answer questions. In this connection I wish to quote a Sanskrit sloka from Santhi Parva in Mahabharatham which says—

यश्चाधमेण वे ज्ञयात्

यश्चाधमेण पृच्छति ।

तयोरन्यतरः वैति

विद्वेषं वापि गच्छति ॥

Our religious heads are not bound to answer questions which are not properly put and they may refuse to answer questions; but our Ministers are bound to answer questions. (Interruption.) If they do not do that to-day, it is a different thing. The Government are simply trying to prescribe duties for the heads of maths who are held in great veneration and who are viewed with great respect as the Pope is viewed by the Roman Catholics. Therefore, if the Government say that it is the duty of these religious heads to do a particular thing, it is not desirable. These religious heads will explain things only when they are pleased and only when they find that the man who approaches them for the purpose of learning is a suitable person. So the whole matter should be left entirely to their discretion. For these reasons I think that the amendment moved by my hon. Friend Sri Varadachari is quite reasonable and I hope that the Government will not find any difficulty in accepting it."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, the term 'math' itself is a well-known term throughout India. It is a Sanskrit term. It has got a special meaning. When we say Sringeri math, everybody knows what it is. We do not find the definition of math. It is only translated into three words, Hindu religious institution. It need not necessarily be a religious institution. Sometimes, it happens to be merely a philosophical institution. For instance, my hon. Friend Sri Pattabhiramiah has quoted some slokas from the Mahabharatha. In Naimisharanyam, the sage Vyasa used to hold gatherings for the purpose of imparting instruction to his disciples. Surely that cannot be called a religious institution. As I said, the word "math" is only translated as a Hindu religious institution. It is an English term and it is not defined here. I am unable to get the proper English translation for it because the idea of math is foreign to English. I strongly feel that 'math' itself cannot be translated as 'Hindu religious institution'.

"The other point which my hon. Friend, Mr. Bhashyam, raised is a very important one. It is necessary that we should understand the implications of the point not because we rely on him generally for enlightenment on matters of this kind (laughter) but because there is considerable force in it. For example, he brought in the case of the Theosophical Society. Whether it is a math or not under the provisions of the Bill we cannot say and it is not easy for us also to say. But we always think of it as a seat of religious instruction although it has got cultural activities and had some twenty-five years ago political activities also. And yet we are unable to say whether it is a religious institution in the sense in which we understand, for example, the Meenakshi temple at Mathurai as a religious institution. Now, what will happen if my hon. Friend, Mr. Varadachari's amendment is accepted? A philosophical association will automatically become a religious institution. There is the Aryan Path Society in Bombay which deals generally with matters which, after a particular level change their names; it deals with matters religious which after a certain stage change into philosophy. After all, the difference between religion and philosophy is little because religion in its higher, sublime stages becomes mere philosophy which is but a sublimated portion of the religious practices and religious observances. Therefore, if the amendment is accepted societies like the Aryan Path Society may become religious institutions. Then there are the colleges of Philosophy. Let us assume there is one such college now. It may also come within the mischief of the definition if it is amended. While this secular State seeks to constrict religion to the four corners of certain well-known stone structures called temples, etc., the amendment would enlarge the scope of the definition which will then apply to every society, every college and every other institution engaged in teaching philosophy although it is not their duty to do so. Such associations and colleges have disciples of their own who are not necessarily Sadhus. They are just disciples in the same way as the hon. Mover (Mr. Varadachari) himself is a disciple of my hon. Friend, Mr. Bhashyam (laughter) in several matters. The fact that they have disciples cannot mean that they are regular religious institutions. There is also a famous institution in Bangalore, whose advertisement we see almost daily in the newspapers, which practises Hata Yoga according to Hindu religious principles. Are we to declare such bodies also as maths? Sir, I may point out in this connection that it is for this reason that such definitions would raise a crop of difficulties in the administration of the measure, hon. Mr. Bhashyam suggested the exclusion of maths from the scope of the Bill. The word 'math' as I have said, has no English equivalent. The maths are sacred institutions and certainly it cannot be the duty of the head to impart religious instruction. The head is a big man and is always one who has reached a high level in religious practices. Take, Sir, the case of Ramanamaharishi. Is it our intention to bring his Ashram within the purview of 'math'? Surely, it is not, I know, the intention of the Government. But yet the definition would include it and most certainly it would if we remove the words 'whose duty it is'. There is no duty cast upon the Matadhipatis to teach anything. On account of their religious, cultural and philosophical attainments people go to them and become their disciples. They do not teach anything. They simply sit in meditation and contemplation. By merely observing them meditate, the disciples learn something and develop their own inner mind. The Matadhipati, therefore, need not teach anybody, and this is the reason why I say the present definition is unhappy. At the same time I oppose the amendment also since it will make it more unhappy. In the circumstances, I submit that though the existing expression 'whose duty it is' is not quite happy, there is substance in what my hon. Friend, Mr. Bhashyam, has said. I would go even a step further and say, though I have not given notice of any such amendment, that 'math' may be excluded from the list of definitions under clause 6."

SRI R. V. SWAMINATHAN :—" Sir, while I rise to oppose the amendment moved by my hon. Friend, Mr. N. S. Varadachari, I would like to say a word about the remarks made by the hon. Member, Mr. M. S. Pattabhiramiah. He said that the matadhipatis should not be made answerable to anybody. In support of this, he quoted certain slokams from the Mahabharatha. His line of argument may be correct according to Mahabharatha but my idea is anyone who manages public funds, whether in an honorary or paid capacity, should be made answerable for his actions to the people or their representatives. Let us take the case of this House. Though no outsider can come into this Assembly and put questions to the Hon. Ministers, yet the public have a right to question the Ministers while they are out on duty and the Ministers are bound to answer them. In the same way the Matadhipatis who are responsible for the proper administration of public trusts should be made answerable to the Government. With these words, I oppose the amendment."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" Sir, I oppose the amendment. The arguments put forth by my hon. Friends, Mr. Viswanatham and Mr. Bhashyam in support of the original sub-clause strengthen me in my belief that the amendment, if accepted, will widen the scope of the provision. There is also another objection to the amendment. The sub-clause says '... a person whose duty it is to engage himself'. Suppose it is the duty of the head of a math to impart religious instruction and he does not do so himself. According to the sub-clause such a math also will come within its purview since there may be other persons who may impart instruction under directions from the head. But according to the amendment the head must himself give instruction so that a person who may have a duty to do so may not do so and thus escape. So, there is room for such a danger. Even Naimisharanyam would become a math if the amendment is accepted. Therefore, it would serve no purpose if we say that the head of a math should engage himself in imparting religious instruction, etc."

SRI N. S. VARADACHARI :—" Sir, I am very sorry that the Government have not been able to understand the meaning of my amendment. I am really sorry for it. I am more sorry, Sir, for my hon. Friend, Mr. Bhashyam, who could not understand even this very simple thing. We are here concerned with the definition of the word 'math'. If my first amendment had been accepted, viz., the addition of the words, 'recognised as such' after the word 'institution' it would have avoided all this trouble. But the Government having overruled it, I have moved the second amendment which seeks to substitute the words 'who engages himself' for the words 'whose duty it is to engage himself'. This is a simple thing, and I feel that the analogy of the Theosophical Society here is sheer nonsense. . . . (Sri T. Viswanatham : 'If it is nonsense, I am willing to withdraw my statement'.) I shall presently explain how. Neither the Theosophical Society nor the Ramanashramam has any place here nor even the Aurobindo Ashram will ever become a math. They have never claimed to exercise spiritual headship. Even Mahatma Gandhi has declared so on many occasions. It is only those who are to exercise spiritual headship that will come within the purview of this definition. How would we describe a zamindar, for instance? Would we say that a zamindar is a person whose duty it is to go round and collect rents? No. We would say that he is a person who collects rents on behalf of Government, which is the simpler language. That is the polite language. Is a professor to be defined a person on whom is cast the duty of studying his lessons beforehand pouring midnight oil, coming to the classes and explaining the lessons? Certainly not. We would say that a professor is a person of culture who teaches his students. There is another difficulty also. Suppose a math is so clever as to say that there is no duty cast on its head and that he does not claim spiritual headship. Is it not then for the Government to go to a Court and disprove that fact? Are they to take the onus of proof on themselves? The hon. Member, Mr. Bhashyam, nods his head. I see the trick he is playing on the Government. I warn the Government not to be caught in his net (Laughter). The Government must be polite when they describe a matadhipati. I would have convinced people who were determined to be convinced. But I cannot convince those who refuse to be convinced. Let us try to understand what it is that is sought to be done by this amendment. The sub-clause says '... who exercises spiritual headship' but not 'whose duty it is to exercise spiritual headship'. This being so, I ask, what is the objection in saying 'who engages himself' instead of 'whose duty it is to engage himself'? Then, there was the talk about the Theosophical Society. It is not a Hindu religious institution at all. It is a conglomeration of various peoples, Hindus, non-Hindus, Whites, non-Whites, in fact every nation in the world is represented there. It is a convention. It is a school of thought. Similarly, there are hundreds of schools of thought. There is the Visishtadvaitam school of thought which belongs to no math. My unfortunate difficulty is that the Hon. the Law Minister does not know what a math is. (Laughter.) Let me give an instance. There is a small place of worship at which students gather and study. Kalakshetrams on important and valuable treatises in Sanskrit are offered there and it is presided over from generation to generation, from master to master, by various individuals. There is a beautiful garden attached to it and the person who presides is one who engages himself in imparting religious instruction. There is no duty cast on him or for the matter of that on anybody. Yet, it cannot be said that the man will escape saying there is no duty cast upon him. If we want to control such institutions properly let us call the matadhipatis by dignified names. The definition should be more dignified. Because these men are all men of culture who engage themselves in imparting religious instruction, rendering spiritual service and exercising spiritual headship, I have proposed the amendment. "Why are the Government prescribing a duty in the first clause and cast it on him? No vital or important change is asked for. The Government need not press such unimportant things. All I can say is there will be more advantage in the language being respectful, polished and refined."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"I concede, Sir, I have not as much knowledge about maths as my hon. Friend Sri Varadachari has but I have only this much to say, that a similar legislation passed in Bombay in May 1950 has practically copied out definition of 'math'. The definition in the Bombay Act is "Math" means an institution for the promotion of Hindu religion presided over by a person whose duty it is to . . . etc.", more or less identical wording as is used in this Bill. This is therefore fortified by a similar legislation passed elsewhere with similar wording."

The amendment was by leave of the House withdrawn.

15th November 1950]

(After lunch—2-30 p.m.)

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Sir, I move the amendment standing in my name, viz:—

'That in sub-clause (10) to Clause 6 omit the words "and includes places of religious worship or instruction which are appurtenant to the institution".'

"Sir, I want to make my position clear so far as the temples of the heads of maths or matadhipathies are concerned. These heads of maths or matadhipathies are also trustees of various temples such as the matadhipathi of Sankaracharya Math is also the trustee of the Kancheepuram temple. There are many other cases like these. I am not speaking about these trusteeships. I am not saying that the Government should not take up the temples for which these heads of maths are trustees or have hereditary rights. What I am thinking of or what the clause speaks of is a sort of temple inside the math. I think the Hon. Minister in charge of the Bill knows that in the case of all heads of maths there is a sort of a 'Vigraha', or a 'Lingam' which is intended for the personal worship of the head of the Math. If only we make a little research into it, we can know how these maths came into existence. Justice Muthuswamy Ayyar has said how these Maths came into existence. He says—he did not think of this Bill then,—as a matter of research he says: 'The best men, learned men originally gathered round him for the purposes of religious instruction and they wanted to put up a shelter for him, which started with a hut; then a house and finally it became a sort of a big building'. Thus these Math buildings came into existence. So it started as a cottage or a hut for what he had, a sort of a 'Vigraha' or a 'Saligraha' or even a 'Lingam' in his hand for the purposes of personal worship, just as there is a prayer room in every householder's house in which a small 'Vigraha' is placed and worshiped every day either by the householder or a priest employed for the purpose and the 'prasadam' is taken every day. It is the belief among the Vaishnavites that no food which has not been consecrated by being offered to God shall be taken by him. So much so it is necessary at any rate for Vaishnavites—I do not know about others—that there should be the worship of the idol at home. It is in that way that the head of the math has also got the 'Vigraha' or the 'Lingam' or 'Saligraha' for his personal worship and because it is a big math he consecrates a room and puts his idol there and worships. Now you say in the definition of the math 'places of religious worship or instruction which are appurtenant to the institution.' The Government want to include the temple or the place of instruction. The Government say they are not interfering with the personal belonging of the head of the math. But when the Executive Officer is appointed he will take possession of these things. Of course the Government say that in the later portion of the Bill there is provision to see that he does not interfere with the religious portion of it and something of that kind. Why then are the Government anxious to include it here?

[Sri K. Bhashyam] [15th November 1950]

If the profession of the Government were true, if they are sincere in their statement that they do not want to interfere with the religious or internal affair of the maths or these religious institutions, they ought to accept this amendment. The personal rooms or other places reserved by the head of a math where he has placed his idol and dedicated for the purpose of personal worship should not come under the scope of the Bill. In some cases, as the Hon. Minister in charge of the Bill himself knows, the idol itself is carried from place to place with the head of the math. Alagiasingar, the titular deity of the math of Ahobilam is being carried along with the Swami whenever he goes on pilgrimage or for instructing his disciples. The worship is a personal worship as much as in the case of the householder having a prayer room in his own house. According to the definition contained in the Bill it would be very difficult to say that the Bill will not be interfering with the sanctity or the inner management of the worship of the idols.

"As regards religious instructions, the point is this. The heads of maths are persons selected for special knowledge on particular philosophy or religion and they are there. People gather round them to get religious instructions. It is not like a modern college where you get admission by putting in an application and paying an admission fee. But here a definite atmosphere is necessary for the imparting of the religious instruction and the person must be prepared to receive it. Every man cannot go into it. The teacher is not bound to instruct anybody unless he finds the man fit to receive instructions. The teacher may refuse to give instructions if the pupil is not qualified to receive his instructions. Therefore I say the Government ought not to take possession of these, what I call the personal effects and buildings of the maths. They are really part of the daily life, that is to say, as soon as he gets up every morning, finishes his bath and ablutions and 'Sandhya' he has got to worship the idol which is carried with him or has dedicated it in a portion of the building, call it a temple or anything you like. It is a private place of worship for personal salvation or purification. Nothing more than that. In this case the head of the math is not bound to admit even his own disciples into it. So I appeal to the Hon. Minister in charge of the Bill who knows something so far as these maths are concerned to exclude from the definition of the maths, the whole of the math temples. I have nothing to quarrel with the Government in regard to other temples. But these are idols that are put in the temples and worshipped not only by the Swami but so many others who congregate there. That is the point."

THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN :—"I should like to point out this. If the hon. Member says that the temple should not be considered as part of the math, there is no special temple built for the special purpose . . ."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—"If the head of the Math by virtue of his office is also the trustee of a particular temple I have no quarrel with the Government. These temples may be taken up by the Government. But what I am actually concerned with at present is that portion of the math which is utilized for locating the Personal God only for the purpose of his own personal purification. Therefore, so far as this is concerned, if the Government are sincere that they are only trying to improve the administration, they must accept my amendment. I strongly appeal to the Hon. the Minister in charge of the Bill to accept the amendment."

THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN :—"I just want to explain, Sir. Most of the heads of the maths receive all their emoluments during the time when they worship the Personal God. The Personal God is worshipped in the presence of so many people. Immediately after the worship is over, the Archaka or whoever is responsible for the job makes collections from all those who attend the worship. Most of the income of the temple is derived in front of the God he worships, and it is not meant for his personal benefit but for his trust and for the discharge of whatever duty is cast on him, and he has got to do that as the head of the math. The place of seclusion and the place of worship is all there. I wish to inform my hon. friend that in the case of the Vaishnavas, the very branding instrument with which the people are branded is kept near the God so that it could get the sanctity of the God by constant contact with Him. After the worship in the presence of the devotees, the silver plate is taken round and collections are made and kept before the God. Then, the branding instrument is taken from the seat of the God and the people are branded with it. These are religious ceremonies which only Vaishnavites could ever appreciate or understand. As my attention was drawn to it I wanted to inform the House the actual facts, and how these good people derived their income. There they worship an image which they call as Personal God. But from the point of view of the discipline, it is worshipped by all as it is considered glorious and great. Offerings are made; one gives Rs. 5 another Rs. 50 and so on. It is only a fee voluntarily raised from the people and it is considered that such offerings will bring greater income. Can it be said by any stretch of imagination that this public income should be considered as personal income, and nothing can be done by law with regard to it?"

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—"Mr Speaker, Sir. I am glad that the Hon. the Minister has explained his point of view as a Vaishnavite."

THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN :—"Sir, I am not a Sri-vaishnavite and I do not claim to be one in this House."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—"It does not require the Hon. the Minister to make a declaration for everybody knows it, and everybody proclaims from the housetops that he is not a Vaishnavite. What I was pointing out is that, if as a matter of fact a Gurukul or an Archaka in a particular temple for the purpose of carrying on the worship is paid 2 annas, 4 annas or 10 annas, you exclude them from the religious endowments. Let me explain the position further. So far as the matadhipathi is concerned, even if he is unconnected with worship, people give him some gifts and they come under math endowment. But, when one worships in a private room on a Deepavali or Pongal day, persons from other houses come, attend the worship and pay some small moneys to the Brahmin. But, this is for the Brahmin who worships and gives some prasadam or sacred water to the disciples. And I do not understand why you want to take those amounts which are really paid in the presence of God and which is really a personal gift, as part of the math income. You may say "I have no objection to any money received in the temple for the purpose of worship being included" because it adds to the temple funds. I do not mind it at all. But, I do not want the definition of 'math' to include places where personal worship is carried on.

"So far as the place inside a math is concerned (in which the matadhipati personally worships every day), it may be excluded from this definition. If this place were to be excluded from the scope of the Bill, it will be a test of the sincerity of the Government in saying that they will not interfere with the internal management of the matadhipati, and that all that they were concerned with was only in regard to the secular management of the institution."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Hon. the Minister has said that although the gifts are made to the matadhipati, they become the public property. I am deeply interested in the gifts given to the matadhipatis which the Hon. Minister would said become public property. I have now got in my hand certain memoranda presented to the Joint Select Committee on this Bill—which are 9 or 10 in number, which say that such gifts need not be treated as public property. For example, Sri G. Vaideludham Pillai, M.A., Professor in Tamil, American College, Mathurai, says—

'The personal wearings of the matadhipathis and the presents by way of patha-kanikka have not been spared in the Act. Patha-kanikka or Guru-kanikka are presents or offerings by the disciples or devotees to the Guru as personal gift, in appreciation of his spiritual achievements or as a return to the spiritual services rendered.'

So, Sir, opinions are not clear and the Government cannot all of a sudden say that these gifts are public property. Besides, the points raised by the hon. Member Sri K. Bhashyam are very clear. It is all right if you define the 'math' without the appurtenances. Therefore, I second the amendment."

SRI N. S. VARADACHARI :—"Mr. Speaker, Sir. In supporting this amendment, I wish to say a few words. What is a 'math'? It is a Hindu religious institution including places of religious worship or instructions which are appurtenant to the institution. In fact, Sir, if the whole object of the legislation is to keep a proper check and control in the case of certain institutions and not to disturb the other side of the administration with which the Government are not concerned at all, I think the omission of these words would very well serve the purpose. What is this place of religious worship, which my hon. Friend Sri K. Bhashyam referred to. It is not a temple. It is a place where personal meditation is done for the purpose of meditation. In it are included disciples also; and it may stand. It is not the same religious teaching that takes place in an ordinary temple. It is not aradhana done to the Swami himself. There is no person employed and there is no service rendered. It is not a place where one comes and performs the puja to the Swami and attends to the temple service. In fact, Sir, the place of religious worship is the place at which these things take place. I am surprised to note that at these places of worship, the gifts that are given, go to the matadhipatis who use them as their personal gifts. Even if it does take place, no such gifts are collected. So far as I know, there are no such places in this State. There may be some outside the State. But the custom is the same throughout.

"The idea is that a 'math' is supposed to hold some classes on philosophy. It is generally presided over by a learned scholar who has renounced the worldly things and has taken to sanyasam. He has no property of his own. Whatever he collects, he collects as a trustee for others. He performs the duties better than most of the so-called secular trustees. I must say that without fear of contradiction.

"It may be that there are some exceptional cases or some mismanagements here and there. But, in general the disciples assert and even without their assertion, the sanyasi or the scholar will see that the worship is properly carried on, that the moneys are properly accounted for and the use to which these gifts are put is in conformity with the traditions and the usages of the 'math'.

"Then, Sir, what is the particular thing you want? There is no such thing as 'pathakanika'. So far as I know, we do not give 'pathakanika'. I am not a disciple of a 'math'. But, I know the usage in 'maths'. And I can tell you that, if you put these also, it will lead to much misunderstanding amongst the people. If you exclude the places of religious worship inside a 'math' and the places of instruction, which are usually used as places for kalakshepam and where important books on philosophy or treatises and commentaries on the original vedic literature, are read, you will perhaps have a more cultural body passing the legislation which will only touch the secular side and leave absolutely untouched the religious side of worship. The exclusion of these does not mean that you do not exercise your control over the property. The 'math' has property and they are endowments. You will have full control over that property and if you want to exercise your control, the provisions relating to the 'math' may be amended. You don't see the susceptibilities of those who in their own right and in their own responsibility are expected to discharge their duties in a pleasant manner. Don't disturb the peaceful life in these places.

[Sri N. S. Varadachari]. [15th November 1950]

At times, they may take, for instance, the idol of Srilaxminarayana along with them and then worship at the places where they visit. Then disciples may flock and give some small moneys at those places. Why do you wish to include them also in the definition which will give rise to misinterpretation and perhaps misunderstanding in the actual working of the Act. If you exclude these, there is no harm done. The control over 'math' is there and nobody escapes it. On the other hand, you will be saving yourselves being called unhelpful and uncertain. That is my point.

"The Hon. the Minister is kind enough to explain that he is careful enough that gifts made at such places should not escape control. Now, by putting them in the definition, you do not bring them under your control. On the other hand there are ways and means of escaping from the control of Government.

"Pathakanika' is non-existent. I don't know anything about it. I am a Vaishnavite and I am not ashamed of saying so here. I wish to remain so. I, therefore, feel very strongly for the exclusion of these words. By excluding them, you don't exclude your control and so there is all the more reason why you should agree to the modest and most reasonable proposition which does not in any way take away your authority and the jurisdiction that you want to exercise over certain Hindu Religious institutions."

SRI M. S. PATTABHIRAMIAH:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I support this amendment. I agree that these words 'and includes places of religious worship or instruction which are appurtenant to the institution' should be omitted. From the explanation given by the Hon. the Minister and from what was pointed out by the hon. Member Sri N. S. Varadachari, it is clear that the Government are particular to take only the kanikkas or gifts given in the Vaishnava maths. But, so far as I know, in the Ahobila and other maths, there is no such ritual performed where any such money is collected. For instance, in the Sringeri math, to which I am bound to owe my allegiance in spiritual and religious matters, this practice is not observed. We invite the matadhipatis to our homes and offer worship and make gifts or pathakanikas by placing some specific sums such as Rs. 108 or Rs. 1,008 at their feet. It is an offering made to them. It is not offered to any deity. I am not here elaborating on the spirituality or the rightness or wrongness of any particular theory. You say, 'the appurtenances to the place where religious worship is being conducted by the matadhipati.' If the Government take possession of the appurtenances, it will be going entirely against the Constitution of our land. I am sure that can be reversed by any court of law. Of course, our Government do not care very much for the proper or prospective findings of any court. But they have very wisely or unwisely put in a Clause towards the end which reads: 'Anything offending the Constitution would be null and void.' Such a provision would be unnecessary if they exercise a little more care and avoid such phrases where it really affects the Constitution and offends our moral sense also.

MR. SPEAKER:—"That amendment will be moved later. Only the first part of the amendment has been moved. When the second part is moved, the hon. Member may speak on it."

SRI M. S. PATTABHIRAMIAH:—"The dropping of the words I have referred to are necessary and such dropping will not affect the effect of this legislation. Those words are an unnecessary addition and can be dropped. I only appeal to the Hon. the Minister to accept the amendment."

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI :—“ Sir, I wish to say a few words in support of this amendment. This sub-clause (10) deals with the definition of 'maths'. So far as I can see, a math includes a religious institution. But here we are begging the question. In sub-clause (15) we have the definition of 'religious institution'. It says: 'religious institution' means a math, temple or specific endowment.' This carries us nowhere. I wish the Government had taken pains to say what really they want to include under 'maths'. From what the Hon. the Minister told us it is clear that the Government want to grab at all moneys offered in the name of religion to a matadhipati. I am not able to agree with my hon. Friend Mr. Kosalram that whatever money is given to anybody should be accounted for and that the Government should have the right to ask for accounts in all such cases. The Constitution says, and the same has been referred to at the end of this Bill itself, in Article 26, 'Subject to public order, morality and health, every religious denomination and section thereof shall have the right to establish and maintain institutions for religious and charitable purposes and manage its own affairs in matters of religion.' That being so, when it is a religious matter, and acceptedly religious as mentioned in sub-clause (10), and includes places of religious worship. I do not see how, by bringing in places of religious worship under a math, the Government can lay their hands on a math and on the funds that the person in charge of it has been offered in the name of religion. It would be a different matter altogether if it is a question that does not relate to religion. But in so far as it relates to religion, irrespective of what my hon. Friend Sri Kosalram may say, the religious head of the institution is entitled, as per Article 26 of the Constitution, to gather such moneys as are offered to him for his worship and manage them as he pleases. Nobody, in spite of what the hon. Member Sri Kosalram may say, can have any right or access to it. If anybody wants to dispossess the matadhipati of that right to dispose of the money offered to him as the head of a religious denomination he will be certainly violating of Article 26 of the Constitution.

“ That apart, I do not see why the Government should include in the definition of 'math' the places where the matadhipatis go in any part of the State. This definition as it stands will bring within its scope the places or houses where the head might have his pūja including that even a poor man who has invited the matadhipati to his abode. If the matadhipati were to deliver a lecture at the Victoria Hall for instance, even that place will be brought under the category of 'place of religious instruction' and included in the definition of 'math'. Let there be a limit put on this temptation to expand the scope. Let us not interfere too much in religious matters. The Government are a secular Government and what we are concerned with is only the proper management of the maths. Even to this there is a limit, under the Constitution, up to which the Government can go. I request the Government to drop the definition of the word 'math'.”

SRIMATHI V. LAKSHMI AMMAL :—“ கனம் அக்கிராசனாதிபதி அவர்களே! கனம் பாஷ்யம் அவர்கள் கொண்டு வந்த திருத்தப் பிரேரணையை நான் ஆதரிக்கின்றேன். அதை ஆதரித்து இரண்டொரு வார்த்தைகள் சொல்ல விரும்புகிறேன்.

“ மடம் என்பதற்கு விரிவான அர்த்தம் இதில் கொடுத்திருப்பதால் எல்லாவிதமான மடத்தையும் ஹிந்து மடங்கள், ஜைன மடங்கள் எல்லா வற்றிற்கும் விரிவான அர்த்தம் கொடுக்கிறது. மடத்திற்குள்ளிருக்கும் விகிதாசனாதிபதி பூஜை பண்ணுகிறவர் மடாதிபதி. இப்போது சிருங்கேரி மடத்தை எடுத்துக்கொண்டால் சிருங்கேரி மடத்தில் சாரதா தேவியை பூஜை பண்ணுகிறவர் ஸ்ரீ. சங்கராச்சாரியார். அவ்விதம் பூஜை நடக்கும் காலத்தில் நிறைய ஸ்திரீகளும், புருஷர்களும் போய் கற்பூர ஹாரத்தி சமயத்தில் ஏராளமான காணிக்கைகளைக் கொடுப்பார்கள். பெண்கள் நகைகளைக்கூட கொடுப்பார்கள். விசேஷமான பூஜை நடக்க வேண்டுமென்றும், விசேஷமான அன்னதானங்கள் செய்ய வேண்டுமென்றும் அவர்கள் நினைத்து பொதுவாக காணிக்கைகளை சமர்ப்பிப்பார்கள். இது மாதிரி அல்ல. இன்னும் மடாதிபதிகளுக்குப் பாத பூஜை செய்கிற காலத்தில் ஆங்காங்குள்ள எழும் எளியவர்களுக்கு சாப்பாடு போடுவதற்கு செலவு செய்வார்கள். ஆகையால் இவ்விதமான பாத காணிக்கைகளை இதில் சேர்க்காமல் இருப்பது தான் உத்தமம். அதில் போய் தலையிடுவதென்பது முற்றும் பிசுபென்பதை நான் தெரிவித்துக்கொண்டு முடித்துக் கொள்ளுகிறேன்.”

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA :—“ Sir, I have a great mind to tell the Government that they must make a distinction between gifts made to a temple and gifts made to a person. The Government motion seems to smack of a little predatoriness. Some disciple thinks it necessary—perhaps not as wise as the hon. Member Mr. Kosalram Nadar—out of his little or great wisdom, to go and offer something to God or to a divine man. He offers pathram (leaf), pushpam (flower), phalam (fruits) or thoyam (water) or perhaps a thousand rupees. One cannot assess the piety of a person from the value of the offering he makes. There is an invisible contract between the person offering and the person offered. It is not the medium of communication that matters much in these contacts. What I wish to know is what is the power of this Government to stretch out their hand like a beggar and go about scrambling over offerings that come in the way and lay their hands, as it were for plunder, on everything that looks like money?

“ Is it the idea of this Government—God forbid that it should be so—that they should post a man at the grave-yard, like Veerabahu in the story of Harischandra, and collect all the coins that are thrown there? There must be some limit to the avarice and greed of the Government. Simply because it is the Government, it cannot escape certain laws of decency prescribed for all decent men. Sir, my submission is this. Here is a gift given to a person. You are not maintaining the matadhipati. You are not contributing a pie towards his welfare. Enough if you save him from income tax, profession tax, sales tax and all the other taxes. The matadhipati simply says: 'I am here by dint of my piety. I am here because God made me so. I do not want any help from the Government. I only want to be left in peace. There are some people in the world who somehow or other like me, who have got some respect and devotion to me and who flock to me now and then with their offerings. I may use that money for charity or for any purpose I like.' Sir, were not the Hon. Ministers promising many things that have been given, that are yet to be given and that have not been given? When a human being of a Minister's type can go about promising so many things, why not a religious head do the same? At any rate he does not promise anything in this world; he promises something only in the other world. There may be people and there are gullible persons who believe him when he says that a seat is reserved for them in the other world. Let them believe in it. There is no harm.

"I say, Sir, it is too much for the Government to try to grab at everything. They should halt at some stage and say that these are the things which will be left to others. For instance, how is this great man to equip himself first? Is he not to purchase the literature, and the books on the subject? Do you want him to take a spade and go and work in the fields? The hon. Member Mr. Kosalram was very eloquent about podu makkal (common men). Nowadays everybody seems to canvas the podu makkal for his own purpose. The podu makkal are the only people who say, 'Leave the matadhipati alone. Why do you touch him?' Sir, speaking for the podu makkal, let us not deprive them of a little satisfaction in the feeling that they get some temporal or spiritual benefit here or elsewhere. My submission is that the Government should not touch all these offerings. There are certain individuals whose dignity—I am not speaking of worldly dignity but spiritual dignity—must be preserved in a manner which will not compel them to go about begging for bread telling people, 'I have been impoverished. The Government have taken away everything. Give me alms.'"

SRI P. KANDASWAMI PILLAI :—"கனம் தலைவர் அவர்களே, இது ஒரு சின்ன திருத்தம். இதற்காக பெரிய வக்கீல்கள் இவ்வளவு தூரம் வாதம் செய்யவேண்டியதவசியமில்லை. இந்த ஒரு சின்ன திருத்தத்தை வைத்துக் கொண்டு பிரமாதப்படுத்த வேண்டியதவசியமும் இல்லை. இது ஒரு முக்கியமான சட்டம். அதைப்பற்றி விவாதிக்கும்பொழுது ஒரு பழமொழி உண்டு. அதாவது 'மடத்தை விட்டுப் போகும் சந்நியாசிக் கு பூந்தோட்டத்தைப் பற்றி என்ன கவலை' என்பதைப்போல் Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowment-ஆக உள்ள எல்லா Charitable Endowment-ஆயும் எடுத்துக் கொள்ளும்படி சட்டம் செய்யும்பொழுது இந்த மடாதிபதிகளையும் மடத்தையும் எடுத்துவிட வேண்டுமென்று சொல்லுகிறார்கள். கனம் ஸ்பீக்கர் அவர்கள் கார் நினைப்பதைப்போலல்லாமல் இவைகளை இனிமேல் சர்க்காரே எடுத்து நடத்தப்போகிறார்கள். அவ்வப்பொழுது நடத்தப்படும் சர்க்காருடைய மனப்பான்மையைத்தான் பொறுத்திருக்கும். ஆகவே, அதைப்பற்றி சட்டத்தில் மாறுதல் செய்யவேண்டியதவசியமே இல்லை. இது ஒரு சின்ன திருத்தம். இந்த திருத்தம் ஒரு பிரயோசனத்தையும் அளிக்காது. யாருக்கு சந்தர்ப்பம் கிடைக்கப்போகிறதோ அவர்களுடைய மனப்பான்மையைத்தான் பொறுத்திருக்கிறது. இப்பொழுது இருக்கிற டாக்டர் இராஜன் மாதிரியல்ல, கனம் ஸ்பீக்கர் மாதிரி மனம் மாறாமல், யார் இருந்து நடத்தப்போகிறார்களோ"

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member Mr. Raghavayya said that the Government had no sense of decency."

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA :—"I never said that. I said, 'not enough decency'."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—"I stand corrected, Sir. I thank him for small mercies. He says that the Government have at least some decency. I request him also to have some little sense of decency in using words like 'plunder, greed, grab' and so on as if that is the business that we have to do here. I appeal to him, Sir, 'Physician, heal thyself; have a little bit of decency in the language you are using'. The Hon. Dr. Rajan of course referred to pathakanika. But it has nothing to do with this Clause. With due deference to hon. Members Srimathi Lakshmi Ammal, Sri Gopalaswami, Sri Kandaswami Pillai and Sri Kosalram, I have to say that this Clause has nothing to do with pathakanika. Because, unfortunately, pathakanika was referred to the hon. Member Sri T. Viswanatham wanted to know what it was. I invite his attention and the attention of the hon. Member Mr. Raghavayya who spoke about 'greed' and so on to Clause 60 of the Bill which refers to pathakanika. This Clause does not refer to it." (Sri T. Viswanatham rose to interrupt.)

MR. SPEAKER :—"The Hon. Minister is not yielding."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—"If he does not yield, I request him that he may be clear enough."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—"The gifts received by the matadhipati which are commonly known as pathakanika are referred to in Clause 60 of the Bill."

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI :—"There are gifts other than pathakanika."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—"The hon. Member Mr. Bhashyam's amendment does not refer to gifts at all. It only refers to places. I do not know whether gifts include places of religious worship and instruction."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—"Places may be property."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—"If places which may be property are given as gifts, then it is the object of the Government that they should be included in the definition of 'Moth'. Sir, let us not confuse the issue. The hon. Member Sri N. S. Varadachari spoke about the idol of Narasimhaswami which a particular matadhipati always took with him. The hon. Member Sri Bhashyam referred to a particular matadhipati personally worshipping a Sivalingam or Saligramam in a particular place. They said that these places were like the puja muris in our houses. These are not at all intended to be touched. There are shrines inside the premises of certain maths where people will be allowed to worship. The hon. Member Mr. Bhashyam said that this was a case of the test of sincerity of the Government. Really it is a test of sincerity of the Government, for if the hon. Member Mr. Bhashyam's amendment is accepted, these shrines within the maths will become temples, because the people are allowed to go and worship there. When they become temples, it is open to the Government or the Commissioner to appoint trustees. But we have specific provisions for maths and these are not controlled like temples. Only a very little administrative control is proposed to be had over them. But if the amendment is accepted and if these shrines become temples, it will be open to the Government or the Commissioner to appoint trustees for them. It is to avoid that exactly, so that these shrines may not be treated as temples but may be treated as part of the maths that they are included in the definition. Therefore all the imaginary things about the pathakanika and the greed of the Government are out of place here. There is a proverb that to the eyes of a jaundiced person everything will appear yellow; similar ideas of plunder, greed, etc., will occur only to some people. But that is not at all the case here. No question of greed or pathakanika comes in here. This Clause says that a math includes places of religious worship or instruction which are appurtenant to the institution. By including these places in the definition of a math, it does not mean that they will all go to the Government. There are other Clauses in the Bill relating to the control of the administration of maths. This is only a definition of a math.

"Sir, I may be accused of quoting precedents and bad precedents. The hon. Member Mr. Gopalaswami has become a Constitutional expert and he has been saying at every stage that this will infringe the Constitution and that will infringe the Constitution. I have not become a Constitutional expert. At least the hon. Member Mr. Bhashyam did not say that this would infringe the Constitution. (Interruption.) It is open to us to become wiser. We do often become wiser and sometimes vice versa also. In the existing Act of 1927, the definition is the same. It may be said that it is bad enough. It says that it includes places of worship and instruction which are appurtenant to the institution. We have not found any difficulty so far. The Bombay Act of May 1950 also includes places of worship and instruction. It is nothing very strange that we have done. Therefore references to pathakanika and gifts have nothing to do with this Clause."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Sir, I think the Hon. the Minister for Law who is practically in charge of this Bill is more specious than sound in what he has said. He says that we have been beating about the bush in talking about pathakanika. I agree with him, Sir. But who started it, Sir? It is the Hon. the Minister who is in charge of the Department who started it. He said that in places where worship goes on when the swami goes round, he collects any amount of money and puts them in his pockets. (The Hon. Sri K. Madhava Menon rose to interrupt.) I do not yield to him as he did not yield to my hon. Friend a little while ago. My point is, it is not as if all this money is put into the pocket of the swami, if he has a pocket, and it is all mis-spent altogether. This point arose because it was started by the Hon. Dr. Rajan. When he raised the question, I at once recognized that there is a separate provision about it and we know that it allows the person to spend it as he pleases. What I am concerned with is not with the money collected, but with the portion of the math which is used for the purpose of personal worship by the swami. It should not be touched. That is what I am anxious about. When the swami goes round on sishyadanam as it is called, the idol is always carried with him in a palanquin. Wherever he goes, there is a temple at once and he really worships there. Money is presented to him there. Do you want to say that a temple inside a math is a temple and when he goes out to other places and when money is presented to him in connexion with the worship of the idol in those particular places, then those places also must be considered to be temples? It is so illogical to assume that such things could be done. I also want to quote in this connexion what one Santanagopalan and Rajagopala Pillai say. If I quote a Brahman, it may be stated that the opinion is prejudiced. I want you to see what a Pillai says about it—

"The definition in the present Bill includes within the term mutt "places of religious worship or instructions which are appurtenant to the institution". This again is based on a wrong conception. The Guru, who occupies the Gurupeta, has a murti, to which he performs pooja in the same manner as has been performed for generations. The places where such murti is kept for the time being is its place of worship. Hence, it will be a mistake to think these places as being appurtenant to the institution. . . . It is a tragic irony and very deeply to be deplored that, in the name of preventing mismanagement of endowments, things and places held as sacred by Hindu traditions and scriptures should be treated with deliberate indifference as is done in several provisions of the Bill."

This exactly describes what the feeling of an ordinary Hindu is or of a disciple of a math is. It is found at page 236 and is stated to be the memorandum submitted by Sri G. Rajagopala Pillai, Sri Santhanagopalan and others.

"I only want to say a word or two in regard to what hon. Mr. Kosaram said. He said that apparently I am trying to delay the Bill as much as possible. But this is an important Bill affecting the religion of every Hindu. May I ask him whether he has got a copy of the Bill in his hands, whether he has studied all its provisions and whether he knows what are all its implications? May I ask him whether he keeps an account for the Rs. 150 that he gets, how he spends it and all that? I do not know what he means by saying all the bad things he has said. It is really wrong. I think, for him to speak in this irresponsible manner, and it is indeed very regrettable that you should not extract an apology from him in regard to this matter. That is all I have to say to him, Sir."

[15th November 1950]

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" Sir, in spite of the compliment given to me that I am more specious in my argument than sound and whatever may be my capacity to be specious, I did not get a reply from hon. Mr. Bhashyam to what I said. I said that if these words are omitted, there is a likelihood of a wrong interpretation and it may be held that such places are temples. We want to avoid such misinterpretation. Secondly, hon. Mr. Bhashyam read the memorandum of Mr. Rajagopala Pillai. I may say that is as much a mistaken argument as what hon. Mr. Gopalaswami said, that is, that if a matadhipati brings his idol and keeps it in the Victoria Public Hall, it will become his property. Sir, I may say at once that even if the Bill is passed and even if the Victoria Public Hall becomes a place appurtenant to a religious institution, the law will not permit the Government to treat it as such, because that place belongs to somebody else and the matadhipati will be only a guest in that place for some time. So, I say that the argument of Mr. Rajagopala Pillai is as mistaken as that of my hon. Friend Mr. Gopalaswami."

MR. SPEAKER :—" Is the hon. Member withdrawing his amendment? "

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" No, Sir; this is the most important portion in the Bill; I feel very strongly about it, I will therefore press it before the House and I may even think of demanding a poll, if necessary, as it is a matter affecting the religion of the people and I may know who vote against it."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" Sir, as an elderly Member himself, I expected that these threats will not come from hon. Mr. Bhashyam."

MR. SPEAKER :—" The amendment is—

'That in sub-clause (10), omit the words "and includes places of religious worship or instruction which are appurtenant to the institution".'

The amendment was lost.

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" Sir, I move—

'That the Explanation under sub-clause (10) be omitted.'

"This is a matter in which nothing important is involved; it is a mere matter of convenience, and that is why I place it before the House untrammelled by any consideration of respect due to a matadhipati or anything like that. The explanation says that when the headquarters of a certain math is not in the Madras State but outside it, some of its properties situated within this State should be governed by these provisions. I may submit there are certain maths called the Veerasaiva maths situated in Dharwar and there are certain temples attached to them in Bellary, etc. I do not want to refer to any Brahman math because there will be a prejudice attached to it. In respect of such maths, the Bombay State has passed some legislation. That Bombay Act is one which was passed after our Bill was framed, and so it is all a question of one copied from the other. The Bombay Act does not give us any special sanctity because after all it has been copied from our Bill, and probably there was no Bhashyam or Kosalram in Bombay to object to it, as we see here. That is, however, a different matter. What I particularly have in mind is the case of the Sringeri math which has its headquarters in the Mysore State and which owns a lot of property in the Madras State. Mysore has all along been a Hindu State—at any rate up to recently—and in Mysore they have a Mozrai department which controls all religious institutions, but the Sringeri math has been treated all along with the greatest respect. As a matter of fact, the State gives the head of that math all kinds of honours including military honours and receptions are arranged for him whenever he goes to any cities in the State. The Mysore State has also appointed a person to look after the math properties as its agent. When there is such a good arrangement in regard to foreign maths—or maths with a foreign domicile, if I may say so—why should this State concern itself with their management, I ask? Suppose there is some difficulty felt by the agent of the math because he is far away, why should this State concern itself with that? That will only be inviting trouble. You have enough maths and their properties to look after in this State; then why burden yourself with other maths? It really means expanding your responsibility without any benefit. I think this explanation has been put in by the department because probably they thought that if they roped in these foreign maths, they could get some 4 or 5 per cent by way of commission. It may be a small matter; but still, why interfere with the control and superintendence of these properties by another equally good Government? Let us leave it to them to make their own arrangements for their proper management. That will bring about the utmost harmony and the closest relation between one State and another neighbouring State."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—" Sir, I second this amendment. Incidentally, I should like to know from the Hon. Law Minister whether he said that there would be no contributions from maths. If we look at clause 81, we will find that contributions have got to be paid by 'every religious institution' and 'religious institution' includes maths. Apart from that, on the basis of the other arguments advanced by Mr. Bhashyam also, I second the amendment moved by him."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" Sir, the Explanation comes in only where, as hon. Mr. Bhashyam said, the headquarters of a math is outside this State and it has properties here. Whatever administrative control this Government may exercise over properties of maths within the State must necessarily apply to them also. In fact, this amendment is more or less connected with the amendment of hon. Mr. Varadachari which comes next. That amendment is to the following effect: He wants an additional explanation that—

'except in so far as they do not contradict the provisions of similar Acts passed in the State where the math is situated.'

[Sri K. Madhava Menon] [15th November 1950]

That practically means that he wants that properties belonging to foreign maths situated in this State should be governed by the law of this State. It is quite reasonable and I think it should be so."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" Sir, if the Government think that by exercising some administrative control over them, they should get some income from these maths, let it be so; but I think it will be only ordinary courtesy to the other States that we should respect their laws so far as their properties are concerned. I think Hon. Mr. Madhava Menon asked : ' Why not our laws which are prevailing in our own State be made to apply to properties situated in our State? ' ' Why should the laws of other States prevail in respect of their properties here? ' I can only say it is a sort of courtesy to be shown to a sister State that we should respect their laws in respect of their own properties."

MR. SPEAKER :—" I wish to know whether hon. Mr. Bhashyam is withdrawing his amendment."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" No, Sir."

MR. SPEAKER :—" Then I shall put the amendment to the vote."

The amendment to omit the Explanation under sub-clause (10) was put and lost.

SRI N. S. VARADACHARI :—" Mr. Speaker, Sir, my amendment has been summarily dismissed by the Hon. Minister without even caring to see what its effect is. My amendment says—

' except in so far as they do not contradict the provisions of similar Acts passed in the State where the math is situate.'

Supposing there is a law here and a law there in relation to this matter. There may be one set of obligations imposed under this law and quite a different set of obligations under the other law, so far as the same math is concerned. There will thus be duplication in the arrangements for management of properties, etc. On the other hand, if my amendment is accepted, it saves the control in so far as their properties situated within our jurisdiction are concerned; and our control over them will be only in accordance with your law, except in those rare cases where their law is not the same as your law. In fact, your Bill was published in 1948 and your Select Committee reports must have been available to the Bombay Government before they passed their law, and we find that almost all these definitions are simply copied there, as hon. Mr. Bhashyam pointed out. Again, we know there are not many maths in Bombay, at any rate not so many as we have in Madras. Our legislation was taken up first and Bombay followed us, and therefore there is no use quoting Bombay. We should see that our State law is made in such a manner as not to roughen our control—I am using this phrase deliberately, I am coining this phrase anew in order that the Government may understand the effect of what they do in regard to this matter.

15th November 1950] [Sri N. S. Varadachari]

" My argument is very seriously made and it is made in this way; the Government will have control over these properties. Supposing the Government are levying a contribution but there the other Governments contribution is a little less; there is no meaning in saying that we will take more; why not be lenient and show some kind of tolerance? The position is that when the laws are contradictory, we would prefer the other law, because the other law makes it obligatory to control the management of properties outside their own jurisdiction, the State jurisdiction in which they are situated. It is for the convenience of such people that I am pressing this amendment. I suppose the Hon. Mr. Madhava Menon will see the difference between the two proposals; if we omit the explanation, we lose control over maths whose headquarters may be outside the State. I do not say that we should lose control over the math properties in so far as they are situated here. We are not going to lay down the principles of management by this Act only; we will be making rules and regulations with a view to close supervision and control and one thing might differ from another and it would only mean imposing additional burden on the management of the math. That is why I am saying that this should not be so lightly dismissed. If we take the State of Mysore they have a separate department dealing with religious institutions and they do not even levy contributions and I know it they subsidize maths and they pay certain sums of money to maths according to ancient usage and custom. The Maharajah himself is a disciple of one of the maths. In such a case why don't the Government recognize that there would be differences and why should we want to take control over such institutions when the other States themselves are looking after them in a particular manner. It may be they may have full autonomy and it is also true to say that whatever control exists there should also continue here in so far as the laws do not contradict each other. I submit that this is a very reasonable amendment; it is no use brushing aside every amendment as it comes. I am not asking for the deletion of the explanation because I want that the Minister should have control even with regard to them in so far as they are here. It is a very modest amendment and I would request the Hon. Minister to re-consider his very summary decision in this matter. I move that in sub-clause (10) of clause 6, the following be added at the end of the Explanation :—

' Except in so far as they do not contradict the provisions of similar Acts passed in the State where the math is situate.' "

SRI M. S. PATTABHIRAMIAH :—" Mr. Speaker, Sir, in modern political life, we find that properties are not taxed twice. Supposing in Mysore State in the case of Sringeri Math, they pass a law like this and want some contribution from the math then they will have to pay to that State and also to Madras. Even criminals are not tried twice for the same offence and why should a person, for the crime of being made the religious head of a particular denomination, pay the contribution twice? Its headquarters may be in Mysore and it may have some properties in our part of the country and why should it be administered according to our law; it is not administration, as has been generally conceived, in the matter of contribution but it includes superintendence and control according to our own ideas which may not be quite right in their view and it may be considered to be harassment; why should they be subject to our laws? As has been pointed out by my hon. Friend, Mr. Bhashyam, there is a department in Mysore which takes care of the properties and it will be good for our State at least to copy this part of the administration of Mysore. The Sringeri Math has been in existence for a very long time, since the days of the Vijayanagar Empire and during the time of Bednur Nayak, a feudatory of Vijayanagar, the grant was consolidated and properties were given to the Sringeri Math and a jagir was also formed. Even the Muslim Rulers that followed continued the old traditions and of course the Mysore Government is maintaining the properties of the math. When that is so, why should a new innovation be brought in to harass the particular math which is quite unnecessary? I have given this only as a typical instance and there are some of our maths which have headquarters in our State but properties are situated outside, as for instance the Dharmapuram Math in Tanjore which has got the Kedharghat in Benares which I quite well remember. If the U.P. Government makes a law like this and requires contribution from that math, it will not be just. If the Government are pleased to see the justness of the amendment, they may accept the amendment and I wish they will."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Speaker, Sir, my amendment has been defeated and I hope at least the more reasonable amendment of my hon. Friend, Mr. Varadachari, might be accepted. I foresee many complications by not accepting this amendment. Apart from the question of courtesy in the matter of inter-State law, there is this complication. There is a math in Pondicherry and there are properties in Madras State. Supposing succession takes place in the headquarters in Pondicherry, are you going to recognize that person as the head of the math here, or will the Government make their own enquiries and come to a decision? Supposing the head of a math in Mysore is of unsound mind; according to law the mere fact that the head of the math is of unsound mind does not entail forfeiture of matadhipathiship; he cannot be put aside on that ground and just as in the case of royalty somebody has to be appointed regent and in the same way also this thing will have to be disposed of. It is just in the same way as is being done in the sections. Supposing he commits default or breach of trust, he can be removed; supposing he commits default like this and others come and ask you to take possession of the properties. As a matter of fact, you will hold your own enquiries whether the person is entitled to do it or not. If sections 57 to 61 are made applicable to all these cases of control, I am sure complications will certainly arise. If it is a foreign State, I can say that the provisions of International Law shall apply according to which if it is immovable property, it must be according to the law of the place where it is situated and otherwise, the law of the place where the person is born applies. I submit, Sir, that we can avoid all these question of International and Inter-State law, if we only accept the position placed before the House by Mr. Varadachari. It may be a matter of pride for our own institutions and our law and it is asked 'Why should not our law be supreme in our own country in preference to the law of other States?' I agree and I share in the pride. Apart from the question of courtesy to the laws of a neighbouring State, what I mean to say is, 'Should we apply a certain portion of our Act to them?'. There is this question of contribution; Madras leads in everything and they have this system of contribution and there they may also levy contribution as we have a secular State established in Mysore; if they levy a contribution there, are you really going to ask for contribution here also? I know a case which has come to my notice in my professional capacity where the present Board has been levying contribution from matadhipathis on their lands in Hyderabad and income which was secured by way of pathakanikas in that State has been taken as part of the income for contribution. Therefore, all these complications will vanish if the amendment moved by my hon. Friend, Mr. Varadachari, is accepted. He is a very, very reasonable man and never wants to go against the Government's policy. It may be I am a person opposing the Government on many matters; I am a critic no doubt but I want to help them to see the other point of view. I believe Mr. Varadachari is much more reasonable than myself according to the Government's opinion and therefore, I should like the Hon. Minister to accept the amendment."

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, apart from the question of reasonableness or otherwise of the Explanation, I would request the Government to throw some light on the necessity for the Explanation itself. To my mind, it seems to me that if some person extraneous to our State has some properties in our State, he is at best the owner of some property as any other member of the State. The intention of this Act is to administer and regulate the conduct of endowments. I am asking why on earth the owner of that property for whose endowment and for whose other things we have not done nor propose to do anything, simply because he happens to be the owner of some properties here, why should the owner of such properties be brought under this Explanation, I wish to ask what will be the purpose that will be served by this provision apart from the emoluments that may be realized by the Government from such properties by the Government. Otherwise, the reasonableness or otherwise of the Explanation cannot be easily understood."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Hon. Minister was good enough to say that there is an Act in Bombay where they have similar provisions. I want to know what would happen to the properties of maths, the headquarters of which are here but certain of its properties lie within the State of Bombay and similarly if the Mysore law has got a similar provision, we can have the inter-State legislative and administrative courtesies as they have been narrated by my hon. Friend Mr. Bhashyam. The question that really arises is that there will be conflict of jurisdiction as hon. Mr. Bhashyam has explained by the Government exercising control over such properties within the State under this Act which is a special piece of legislation which provides for certain special remedies and imposes certain disabilities upon owners of properties. It does not, however, refer to the general law of property, to the Transfer of Property Act or the general provisions with regard to the acquisition, enjoyment or disposition of properties; it does not refer to the general law of testamentary dispositions but it refers to certain special disabilities. Therefore, the point raised by my hon. Friend is a point for very serious consideration, whether we have a conflict of jurisdictions. If, we refer to the chapter which deals with maths separately, we will find there is no particular clause dealing with immovable properties. I believe the property the Hon. Minister has in his mind is only immovable property. If I remember right, in the special provisions relating to maths, there is no mention of immovable property. Therefore, I am not able to see what purpose is served by this Explanation. What is the sort of control sought to be exercised over properties situated outside this State? Is it with regard to their transfer; is it with regard to the acquisition of properties; is it with regard to the disposition of properties? Such things are all governed by other Acts. So, I want to know what exactly is the scope of this Explanation? Unless he explains the position I am not able to comprehend the discussion now going. My hon. Friend, Mr. Bhashyam—of course there is no reflection on other lawyers—who is an eminent lawyer, has put forth certain difficulties. My hon. Friend, Mr. Varadachari, has said that we should not interfere with the control of properties in other States, that there should be a law of reciprocity. If it is reciprocity, it is good. But what about conflict of jurisdiction; what about conflict of laws of one State with those of the other States regarding the removal of trustees and other disabilities upon trustees? I shall be glad if the Hon. Minister will explain the intention of Government in this Explanation."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" Sir, it must be understood that we are now dealing with the definition clause. So, it should be remembered we are now only defining what particular words used in the main body of the Act do mean. This Explanation was added by the Select Committee deliberately, because there are certain provisions in the Act which refer to property. Hon. Mr. Viswanatham wanted me to state in what particular purpose this Explanation is used. I cannot now make a roving examination at this stage. I can only say that the properties of a math, the headquarters of which is not in this State, will be governed by the provisions of this Bill. Whatever applies to other maths in this State will apply to these maths also. It was suggested that there might be contributions to maths situated outside this State. Clause 51, I think, governs cases of services rendered by Government or their servants to such maths. So that, the question of compensation can arise only if Government render a service to an institution. In case the Government does render the service to such a math, it is only then that contribution can be claimed. When that contribution is given, then, those maths would be subject to the same administrative control as other maths in the Province.

5th November 1950] [Sri K. Madhava Menon]

"The amendment of hon. Member Sri Varadachari, is certainly different from that of hon. Member Sri Bhashyam. Hon. Sri Bhashyam wants the Explanation to be omitted altogether. Hon. Sri Varadachari wants the Explanation should not conflict with the provisions of similar Acts passed in other States where a math belonging to this State is situated. As was pointed, it is a matter of mutual courtesy. There are temples belonging to other States in this State. Travancore has got such temples, Cochin has got such temples. There are big temples in Malabar owned by Travancore. Now, with regard to them, it is a matter of courtesy; and such courtesy we are bound to exchange. It is a thing we can do by executive orders. In that way we can see that our law does not work any hardship on another person. It is a matter of arrangement, which can be achieved by executive orders, and so there is no need for an amendment of the Explanation."

SRI N. S. VARADACHARI :—" Sir, I will not take more than a minute, my amendment does not seek to subtract even a little of the control which Government seek to exercise. My amendment only seeks to make the position clear so as to render the working of the Act smooth. There is a special chapter relating to maths no doubt. But that enables the special officer empowered by the Commissioner to call for accounts and similar acts of details of management. There is nothing in that chapter with reference to maths situated outside this State or maths belonging to other States situated in our State. I do not think the Explanation, as it stands, will enable people to understand things properly. When did Government discover the need for this Explanation? Why do they think that my amendment is far-reaching? The Hon. Minister said that my point can be clarified by executive orders. Sir, I would prefer my amendment to be carried out rather than be embodied in an executive order. I have already explained the purpose of my amendment, and so, I need not repeat it. I do not want an executive order for this. I have suffered very much from the promise of executive orders in respect of inams when the Estates Abolition Bill was on the legislative anvil. Government then said that many things could be clarified by executive orders. I could quote chapter and verse on this point. Only I do not want to do it now. But later on not only did they not fulfil that promise; they withdrew from their position, and amended the Act in a different way. Therefore I can attach very little weight to their promise of relief by executive orders. In view of these reasons, I would urge for the acceptance of my amendment. There is no harm in accepting my amendment. There is no liability involved in accepting it. The control to be exercised by the Government over maths will be rendered full. So there is every reason for Government to accept my amendment."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" Sir, I forgot to mention to hon. Mr. Viswanatham, that in the Bombay Act, there is no 'Explanation'."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—" Why not you write to the Bombay Government to put it? " (Laughter.)

[15th November 1950]

MR. SPEAKER :—" The question is—

'Add the following at the end of the Explanation to sub-clause (10) :—

"except in so far as they do not contradict the provisions of similar Acts passed in the State where the math is situate."

The amendment was lost.

Sub-clause (11).

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" I beg to move—

'That in sub-clause (11) (a), omit the words " or a person of the religious persuasion to which the math belongs "'.

Sir, if my motion is carried, then the sub-clause will read as follows :—

'(a) In the case of a math, a disciple of the math.'

I have done this to make the working of the math smooth. If we are to have the words ' or a person of the religious persuasion to which the math belongs ', then, any person who belongs to the same religious persuasion of the math may be appointed a trustee or may bring a suit with respect to the math. Such a person need not necessarily be a disciple of the math. I am a Vadagalai, and so is Dr. Rajan. I may be a disciple of a math or may not be a disciple of it. Still I will be classified as one who has an interest in a Vadagalai math, as I belong to the same religious persuasion of that math."

MR. SPEAKER :—" What about the other amendment relating to sub-clause (11) (c), of which the hon. Member has given notice? "

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" I am not moving it. Now, Sir, in the case of a disciple, one can believe that he is really interested in the math of which he is a disciple. But can that be said of any person who belongs to that same religious persuasion. Sir, in fact there has been in the past some sort of trouble between the disciples and those who are not disciples but all the same they belong to the same religious persuasion of the math. So to ensure the smooth working of the math I have moved for the deletion of those words in the sub-clause. Of course, there will be the difficulty felt as to who are the disciples. If you will look at the amendments I have given under Chapter V, you will find that I have suggested a way for this. Therein I have suggested that every matadhipathi should give a list of disciples as soon as this Act comes into force; and, if, within six months he does not give such a list, the Collector of the district should call for a meeting and prepare a list of disciples. And, then, year by year, or at stated intervals, that list may be revised, new disciples added or existing disciples being deleted from the list. This would ensure smooth working of the math and will lead to absolute confidence in the head of the math by the disciples. All this is in harmony with the doings and practices of ordinary maths; and therefore I request my amendment may be accepted."

[15th November 1950]

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—" In seconding the amendment, I want to draw the attention of the Government to the fact that a matadhipathi is confused with a trustee. Somehow or other it has been taken for granted by the Government that a matadhipathi is a trustee. (Interruption by the Hon. Sri K. Madhava Menon.) The High Court has not said that. On the other hand, the High Court, in one of its old judgments, has said that a matadhipathi is not a trustee in the ordinary sense of the term because he is one of the beneficiaries and that a trustee is not a beneficiary. There is a fundamental difference between a matadhipathi and a trustee. That is the reason why from the beginning hon. Sri K. Bhashyam was insistent on excluding maths altogether from the purview of this Bill. Having decided on retaining the provisions relating to maths, we are trying to make the Bill as innocuous as possible. The Government, on the other hand, want to make it as injurious as possible. The definition given to a ' person having interest ' is too wide. I have gone through some of the memoranda which drew the attention of the Select Committee to the point that a trustee of a math is not beneficiary. If we include any person because he belongs to the same religious persuasion as the math, I think we are simply opening the floodgates of unnecessary litigation and giving a handle to interested persons to move the Government to take coercive steps against the institution. In one of the speeches in Tamil—I did not properly understand it—it was said that some matadhipathis were misusing the funds of the math for political purposes. Already there is that feeling engendered. In the light of that speech, I say there is very good reason for accepting Sri Bhashyam's amendment. A man may be a Smartha, Saivite, Veerasaivite or Visishtadwaithin and yet he may have absolutely no interest in the math representing his school of thought. Now-a-days, generally speaking, people are not very religious though they claim to be religious. Anybody who has a political animosity may say that he belongs to the same religious persuasion as the math and that therefore he is entitled to institute a suit for the removal of the matadhipathi and so on. When we are vesting enormous powers in the Government to deal with property, we ought to be very careful. It was quite a different matter if the same definition had been adopted in the legislation of 1863 relating to religious and charitable institutions. Under that legislation the Government had no power to deal directly with properties. Under this Bill, the Government are taking vast powers to deal directly with properties; and Government means party Government. Particularly after the statement made by my hon. Friend that some matadhipathis are misusing the math funds, I have no doubt that this provision will be misused by several persons who have got political feeling against matadhipathi. Therefore I very strongly support the amendment of hon. Sri Bhashyam to confine the definition to disciples only."

SRI N. S. VARADACHARI :—" Sir, I urge the Hon. Minister to consider the advisability of accepting this amendment. A person having interest to move for the better management of a math or for Government interference must be a person who is a disciple of that math. There are already quarrels in respect of rituals, etc., between, say for example, Vaishnavites who belong to a math and Vaishnavites who do not belong to any math and are absolutely independent. If we say that a 'person having interest' includes any person of the same religious persuasion as the math, there will be eternal confusion. There will be a chance for petty rivalries and jealousies to prevail and there will not be smooth-sailing. Maths have got very enlightened disciples and it is their concern to see that the maths are properly managed. If this system is not in vogue, then it is a quite a different matter. Belonging to a math carries with it certain obligations. In matters like ritual, mode of worship and order of recitation, there may be differences of opinion. These differences may become more and more pronounced and people, taking advantage of the present definition, may lodge frivolous and vexatious complaints against matadhipathis. The disciples take a lively interest in maths and the Government can trust them to move for the better administration or care of these maths."

SRI V. I. MUNISWAMI PILLAY :—" Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not in agreement with what has been expressed by my hon. Friend Sri K. Bhashyam. Every math has got on its management its disciples and students. The disciples are mostly brahmacharis. (An hon. Member : ' No '.) Some of them may be married people. According to my experience, these two categories of people carry on the management of maths. If we delete from the definition the words ' or a person of the religious persuasion to which the math belongs ', we are deleting altogether that category of people who have taken initiation from the Guru and are following the dictates of the maths. Moreover, the disciples have to carry on certain functions on the religious side that have been taught by the Guru and followed by the math. Persons other than disciples and who have taken to married life following other avocations collect the sums due to the math and their work also is conducive to the welfare of the maths. Therefore it will be a great hardship if we delete a section of the people who, though not disciples, carry on work pertinent to the math. So I feel that it is better to leave the definition as it is."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" Sir, the Government feel that it will be very dangerous to accept the amendment and particularly so after hon. Sri T. Viswanatham's saying that its object is to make the Bill innocuous. The Government cannot sponsor a Bill and make it innocuous. The object of the Government is that the Bill must be effective.

" The Select Committee took evidence from the disciples of various maths. The trend of the replies to the questions put to them repeatedly was that they believed in the infallibility of the head of their math and that they would not go against his orders. Whether his orders are right or wrong, there is a feeling of infallibility in the judgment of the head of the math. Generally, disciples feel that their Guru can do no wrong. Even assuming for argument's sake that a disciple does not agree with his Guru, he does not like to go to the extent of offending the Guru. No disciple of a math will incur the displeasure of its head by doing anything against his wish or desire. If we say that a ' person having interest ' means only a disciple of the math, that means nobody else can take any action, and we are giving the power of initiative only to those who feel that their Guru is infallible in his judgment. The hon. Member Mr. Bhashyam himself said that he was a Vaishnavite though he was not a disciple of any particular math. If he is charitably inclined and imbued with a sense of religious devotion and gives a donation to a math, should he not have a voice in seeing that the donation is spent on the purpose for which it was given? The effect of restricting the definition to disciples only will be, in the words of Sri T. Viswanatham, to make the Bill innocuous so far as maths are concerned and that is not the object of the Government.

" The definition is similar to the one in the existing Act and we have not had any difficulty about it so far. The wording in the Bombay Act also is similar. It is not a case of the definition in the existing Act being found to be bad. As I said, it will be very dangerous to accept the amendment."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" Sir, I think the Hon. Minister has been over-clever in his reply. I will take his latter point first : should not the donor of a math be allowed to have a voice and be construed as a person having interest in the math. If his assumption is granted, why then should we restrict the definition to persons of the same religious persuasion as the math? A Saivite may develop an attachment to a Vaishnavite saint or matadhipathi, though he may not subscribe to the Vaishnavite philosophy, and he may contribute a lot of money. According to the argument of the Hon. Minister, he also must have a voice in the management of the institution to which he has made contributions. Why should we say that a person having interest should be of the same religious persuasion as the math? He is proving too much by his argument. That was why I said that he was over-clever. I hope he will excuse me for using that expression.

" As regards the argument about ' infallibility ' that he made does he not know the theory that the King can do no wrong? As a matter of fact, we know that a number of suits filed by the disciples against the heads of maths disfigure the pages of the Law Reports, though it is said that the trend of replies to the questions put by the Select Committee to disciples of various maths was that they believed that the heads of their math could do no wrong. Ask the servant of a house whether his master is always right. Even though the master goes wrong some times, the servant will not admit it out of respect for the master. That is a respectful way of saying things. It does not mean that the people will not complain if there is anything seriously wrong. Besides even if there is mismanagement, who are the Government to ask if the disciples are prepared to put up with it? I will give one instance which occurs to my mind. There was an Acharya of South India who went to North India. He was an Acharya of the Maharaja of Indore, Gwalior and a number of rich persons. He was very learned and ascetic in his ways. He had a son, but he was quite free in his ways. But he was not put away on that account. When asked some disciples and they said 'There are different avatars, like the Rama avatar and the Krishna avatar of Maha Vishnu.'

"Therefore we must put up with all these things. After all, Sir, our Acharyas and Matadhipathis are very respected people and their sentiments should be respected. Sir, as I told you at the beginning, there are millions of people outside the maths who will not agree with the Matadhipathis in their views in certain matters or observe the math practices and acharams. Therefore, if you put in the words 'or a person of the religious persuasion to which the math belongs' in this sub-clause, you will be only introducing disharmony in these maths. If you want that the administration of these maths should go on peacefully and smoothly, please do not create difficulties in their way by passing definitions like this. The Government will only be getting kozhi petitions and frivolous complaints about the things going on in maths from all and sundry. I would only request you to avoid this. There may be various kinds of mismanagements going on in maths and sometimes even the Matadhipathis might be responsible for such mismanagements. But who are we to question them, if the disciples of the math, who are the interested persons, do not complain about such things? Sir, I do not want to talk about these things at any great length, but I submit that it is not proper and healthy to bring in communities and communal denominations in a legislation of this kind. I think also that it is against the spirit of our constitution to encourage communal and sub-communal denominations and bring them within the provisions of a law. I think it is better that we confine ourselves to disciples, for the purpose of the definition of the term 'person having interest' in the case of a math.

"Sir, there is another point that I want to mention in this connection. Mention was made about the Catholic priesthood, and one hon. Member went to the extent of saying that our Matadhipathis are somewhat like bishops in churches with a number of celibates surrounding them. I may inform him, Sir, that neither in the Sankarar math nor in any of the Vaishnavite maths, for that matter, are there any permanent residents who are celibates or bachelors surrounding the Acharyas. People simply go there for worship or for getting blessings from the Acharyas and most of them are family people and are married. But there may be some few persons attached to the math who seek spiritual guidance from the Matadhipathis and they might be living in the math itself, just as some of the disciples of the math. But all others, as I said just now, simply go there for initiation and for getting blessings. So far as the Vaishnavite maths are concerned, there are no bachelors at all and to say that these Matadhipathis are like bishops surrounded by a number of bachelors, only shows that the hon. Member has not properly understood or known what is taking place in these maths. Therefore, Sir, my object is that the Government should not introduce complications and create difficulties within the math.

itself by putting in definitions of this kind. I submit that this question of getting petitions from persons against the Swami or the head of the math, should be confined to persons who are the disciples of the math and they are the people, who are interested in the math and who can give the necessary information for taking proper action in the case of any grave mismanagement in the math and persons outside the math should not be brought in at all. That is all my submission, Sir, in regard to this matter."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, my hon. Friend Sri K. Bhashyam said that I was rather too clever, for I said that he should not have committed that mistake of using the word 'donor'. But, if I may so say, he has proved himself much too clever by taking his own case as an example and saying that although he is a Vaishnavite, he is not a disciple of any math. That is exactly the reason why we have put it in the definition that the 'person having interest' in the case of math, means a disciple of the math or a person of the religious persuasion to which the math belongs. We have not put in there, that any person in the street may claim as the person having an interest in the math. We have definitely restricted the scope of persons entitled to claim an interest in the math and it is only those people who can make complaints about mismanagement in the math and not all and sundry."

SRI V. I. MUNISWAMI PILLAY:—"Sir, on a point of personal explanation, what I said was with reference to what is happening in our own math, namely, the Dakshinamurthy math and the Ramakrishna math, and not to these Vaishnavite maths, which my hon. Friend Mr. Bhashyam has referred to just now."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Now let me put the amendment of the hon. Mr. Bhashyam to the vote of the house. The amendment is—'in sub-clause (11) (a) of clause 6, omit the words, "or a person of the religious persuasion to which the math belongs".'

The amendment was lost.

Sub-clause (13).

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I move the amendment standing in my name, namely—

'That for sub-clause (13) of clause 6, substitute the following:—

"(13) 'Religious charity' means charity associated with religions or a religious practice, observance, worship or prayer."

"Sir, the definition as given in the Bill is this. 'Religious charity' means a public charity associated with a Hindu festival or observance of a religious character, whether it be connected with a math or temple or not. I submit, Sir, that it is stated in the first clause that this Act applies to all Hindu public religious institutions and endowments and that only after a notification is made that it will be extended to other endowments. My point is that this discriminatory language need not be used in each and every clause in the Bill, when once it has been made clear that the Act applies to all Hindu religious endowments in the first section. Sir, I maintain, that in spite of all that has been said by the Hon. Minister to the contrary, this is a discriminatory piece of legislation and I have no doubt that this matter will have to be thrashed out later on in another place. According to the constitution, we can have only one general law relating to all public charities and religious endowments. We cannot have one law for Hindu religious endowments and another law for Muslim or Christian religious endowments. I therefore submit, Sir, that the word 'Hindu' occurring in this clause may be dropped, because it does not in any way injure the object of the Government, although my object in doing so is entirely for a different reason.

"Then Sir, the rest of my amendment is only to make a slight verbal change. I want also to include 'worship or prayer' along with religious observance to make the definition more comprehensive. There are so many places where religious gatherings are held and if we really want to control public trusts, we must include such gatherings also, because they are also associated with religious practices and observances. That is the reason why I have moved my amendment, Sir."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—"I second the amendment, Sir."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—"I oppose the amendment, Sir. I do not know whether my hon. Friend Mr. T. Viswanatham has really understood the implications of the insertion of the word 'public' and 'Hindu' in the definition by the Select Committee. Sir, it is the Select Committee which made certain changes in the definition of the term 'Religious charity' in the original Bill and according to them, 'Religious charity' means a public charity associated with a Hindu festival or observance of a religious character, whether it be connected with a math or temple or not. Now, if my hon. Friend's amendment seeks to omit the words 'public' and 'Hindu' from that definition, then I think it would alter the entire nature and character of the charity, which is not the intention of the Government. The word 'public' is absolutely necessary, as otherwise the danger is that it may cover any kind of charities, including private charities also."

MR. SPEAKER :—"In the first place, I want to know whether the amendment is in order at all. If the object of the amendment is to bring within the scope of this Bill all kinds of charities, including private charities, then, I am afraid, it would be out of order. The Hon. Minister may examine that aspect of the matter also."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—"It is only just for the sake of argument, Sir, that my hon. Friend wants that the word 'Hindu' should be omitted, because in the preamble and in the first section, there is already the mention of 'Hindu public charities'. As I have already said, Sir, if we accept the amendment and if the word 'public' is omitted, then the definition would cover any kind of institutions. It is not the intention of the Government to bring private charities also within the scope of this measure.

"Then Sir, my hon. Friend wants to add the words 'worship or prayer'. The words in the present definition are 'observance of a religious character'. The addition of these words would only make the definition too wide and cover everything and every form of worship. I submit, Sir, that there is no necessity to make the definition too wide and therefore I cannot accept the amendment, Sir."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—"Sir, if the object of the legislation is to get the control of all charitable endowments also, then why not let us have a full-blooded legislation and why should we be content with a half-hearted measure like this? It is not as if the Government want to touch only some kind of charitable institutions and leave the rest untouched, by means of this legislation. The whole underlying principle of the legislation is that the Government should have complete control over all religious and charitable endowments, so that they might, on behalf of the people of this State, act as persons having interest and to see that such endowments are properly administered and their funds properly utilized, with the authority of the law behind them. That is, I think, the real intention of the Government behind this legislation. But the Hon. Minister now says that it is not their intention to bring in all charitable institutions within the scope of this legislation. Sir, a little while ago, when I moved an amendment to remove certain provisions connected with the control of charitable endowments, the Hon. Minister said 'No, the Government must have control over all charitable endowments also.' But now, if I move an amendment saying, 'have full and complete control over all charitable endowments', he says, 'No, it is not the intention of the Government to control private charities'. I submit, Sir, that the Hon. Minister is contradicting himself. The Government must have one mind, one purpose and one determination in these matters. There should not be a half-hearted or incomplete piece of legislation, Sir. That is why, Sir, I want to press my amendment."

MR. SPEAKER :—"The amendment is—

'That for sub-clause (13) of clause 6, substitute the following :—

"(13) 'Religious charity' means charity associated with religions or a religious practice, observance, worship or prayer." "

The amendment was lost.

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I move the amendment standing in my name, namely—'That in sub-clause (13) of clause 6, omit the words "whether it be", and also the words "or not".'

[Sri K. Bhashyam] [15th November 1950]

"Sir, I submit that the arguments just now advanced by the Hon. Minister for rejecting the amendment of my hon. Friend Mr. T. Viswanatham, will exactly hold good in favour of accepting my amendment, because I am only asking the Government to restrict the definition to all public religious charities alone. What happens if the words 'whether it be connected with a math or temple or not' are added on to the definition?"

MR. SPEAKER :—"Let the hon. Member read the definition as he wants to amend it. Then he will make his point clearer."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—"Sir, if my amendment is accepted, then the definition of 'Religious charity' will be this—

" 'Religious charity' means a public charity associated with a Hindu festival or observance of a religious character connected with a math or temple."

Sir, I want my hon. Friend Mr. Kosalram to hear me carefully, because he has been having some wrong notions about public charities to be associated with Hindu festivals. Now take for instance the Hindu festival Deepavali, which we have just gone through. Suppose my hon. Friend Mr. Kosalram has instituted a fund to give aid to the poor people on the Deepavali day in the form of distribution of cloth. This is certainly associated with a Hindu festival and the Government may come forward and say 'This is a religious charity' which comes within the terms of the definition.

Then again, take another instance, like this. Suppose you donate a fund for the supply of water during the hot weather to the public. Suppose you want to put up a Thannir Pandal or a water-shed during the hot months and endow some money, for the purpose, what happens?"

SRI K. RAJARAM NAYUDU :—"It is a private endowment."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—"Sir, it is not the person who endows the money that determines the character of the endowment. The persons who receive the benefit are the public and it is that fact that determines the character of the endowment. I think, Sir, it requires some little instruction in these matters, if I may respectfully say so, in order that my hon. Friends Mr. Kosalram and Mr. Rajaram Nayudu may be able to understand the legal implications of these charities, because I know it is going to hit them and others who are charitably disposed, if the present definition is retained. Suppose a person institutes a charity, it is not for himself that he does it. It is for the public benefit that he does and so it becomes a public charity, although it is a private person who is a donor. So long as the recipients of the endowment are the public, the endowment becomes a public charity. The supply of water to the public by putting up a water-shed is a public charitable endowment and the suggestion that though it need not be connected with any temple or math, it should come within the Act, is too much to accept. Under the Act as it stands it becomes a public charity. When it becomes a public charity, it need not be connected with any temple or math. Therefore the Government's amendment is correct. I want hon. Members to understand the implication of this sub-clause. Suppose on the sraddha day a man has to feed about one hundred people, and for this purpose an amount of Rs. 2,000 had been left with him by the deceased, it becomes a religious charity not connected with any temple or math. It is of a religious character, and that person has to feed a number of people according to the wishes of the person who made that endowment. Under this sub-clause that also becomes a public charity subject to the provisions of this Bill. I want hon. Members to understand that the provision in the sub-clause is too wide. Therefore, let us confine it to charities connected with a temple or math. Suppose it is laid down by the founder that on the Deepavali day, Archana should be done in the temple and that the prasadam should be distributed to the people. I can understand that it is a charity connected with a temple. Therefore I say that the provisions of this Bill should be applicable only to charities connected with a temple or math. Otherwise, it will widen the scope of the Bill. On Pongal day, in our place clothes are distributed by people to their servants. This also will come under the provisions of this Bill, because it is of a religious nature connected with a Hindu festival. Suppose on a festival day in a temple some pani (kattalai) is set apart for distribution of prasadam to people. It is a charity connected with a Hindu festival, and therefore it becomes a public charity. That charity comes under the provisions of this Bill. I can understand cases of charities which are connected with the temples or maths. One may give money for a thalikai and distribution of food to paradesis. But the provisions of the Bill cover also private charities like feeding a number of people on the sraddha day or making presents to a number of people on the Deepavali day or on the Pongal day. This is very oppressive. While I may agree that Government have full control of religious charities connected with a temple or math, I say that they should not bring private charities, not connected with temples or maths, under the provisions of this Bill. The Government should not exercise control over private benefactions connected with Hindu festivals or religious observances if they are not connected with temples or maths. The sub-clause, as it stands now, is too wide. The Government must generously accept my amendment which will go far to mitigate the evils and difficulties that may arise."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I second the amendment. I see from the Hon. the Minister's face that he is not going to accept the amendment. Whatever it is, he did not exactly understand the word 'innocuous' that was used. I used innocuous in the sense that it should not be injurious to any one. I want to make it as little injurious as possible. It does not mean that I want to make the Bill ineffective. Therefore, I want the Hon. the Minister to understand the hon. Member Mr. Bhashyam in the proper spirit in which he has moved the amendment. The whole object of the Bill is to exercise control over Hindu temples and maths, and religious institutions. Therefore, it stands to logic and reason that we should include only such charities as are connected with temples or maths or religious institutions. It is only a corollary to the purpose and object of the Government. All of a sudden, we cannot come forward and say 'whether it be connected with a math or temple or not, we still will exercise control over it.' That is why I say that the Government must have a clear object. The amendment that has been moved by the hon. Member Mr. Bhashyam is the most modest one. I hope Hon. the Minister will accept it."

SRI K. T. KOSALRAM :—" Mr. Speaker, Sir, கனம் பாஷ்யம் அவர்கள் சொன்னபோது தீபாவளி, பொங்கல் போன்ற தினங்களில் ஒரு தனி மனிதன் தன்னுடைய சொந்தப் பணத்தை எவ்வளவுக்குக் கொடுத்து அதை சர்க்கார் control செய்வதுபோன்ற நிலைமையிலிருக்கிறார்கள் என்று சொன்னார் என்று நான் நினைக்கிறேன். அவ்விதம் இப்பொழுதுள்ள சட்டத்தில் இல்லை என்றே நினைக்கிறேன். அவர்கள் சொல்வதுபோல் இல்லை. பொது மக்களிடமிருந்து பணத்தை வசூலித்து அதை யாரோ ஒரு சிலருக்கு பங்கிட்டுக் கொடுப்பது என்றிருந்தால் அது சரியானபடி பங்கிட்டுக் கொடுக்கப்படுகிறதா என்று பார்ப்பதற்குத்தான் இந்த சட்டம் வருகிறதென்பதையே எல்லோருடைய பணத்தையும் தனிப்பட்ட முறையில் பத்து அல்லது அயிரம் பேர்களுக்குக் கொடுப்பதை அரசாங்கம் கட்டுப்படுத்த முடியாது என்றே நினைக்கிறேன். அவ்விதம் கட்டுப்படுத்துவதற்கு சட்டத்தில் சர்க்காருக்கு அதிகாரம் இருந்தால் அவ்விதமில்லாமலிருப்பதற்கு இந்த திருத்தத்தை நிச்சயமாக ஒப்புக்கொள்ள வேண்டியதுதான். அவ்விதமான அதிகாரம் நிச்சயமாக இச்சட்டத்தில் இல்லவே இல்லை. பெறு மக்கள் பணத்தை வசூலித்து அதை சரியான முறையில் பங்கிட்டு செய்து கொடுப்பதற்காகவே இந்த சட்டம் வருகிறது என்ற நிலைமையில் இருப்பதால் இந்த amendment-க்கு அவசியமே இல்லை என்று நினைக்கிறேன். ஆகையால் இந்த amendment-ஐ ஒப்புக்கொள்ளவே முடியாது."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" Sir, in spite of the very sweet reasonableness of the hon. Member Mr. Bhashyam, I feel that, in effect, this amendment will negative the very object of this sub-clause. (Interruption.) If every amendment is to negative the objects of the Government, the Government cannot commit suicide and allow themselves to be killed."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—" It is only the object of the clause, and not the Government."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" If the amendment is accepted, it will read like this—

"(13). "religious charity" means a public charity associated with a Hindu festival or observance of a religious character connected with a math or temple."

This means only charities of a religious nature which are connected with a math or temple will come under the purview of this Bill, even though the charity is of a public nature. The hon. Member Mr. Kosalram was right. Suppose a person at the time of his death endowed a large amount of money for the purpose of reciting some mantras on a Deepavali day, and the persons who are entrusted with this endowment do not do it, What is to be done? I know of a case where an old gentleman long ago made an endowment for reciting the Sahasranamam of the Lord on a particular day under a particular banyan tree. The children of that person are to collect the interest on that endowment and see that Sahasranamam is recited on that day. That is being continued even to-day. It has been in existence for a very long time. Suppose Sahasranamam is not recited, and the trustees are devouring that money, is it not the duty of the Government to see that Sahasranamam is recited, and that the trustees do not misappropriate the endowment? This is not a charity connected with a temple or math. But still it is a religious charity, and it has got to be protected. It is the object of the Government that even if the religious charity is not connected with a temple, or math, that charity should be properly administered, and that must be governed by the provisions of this Bill. The amendment goes against the very principle of the Government. It goes against the fundamentals of this Bill, and so I cannot accept the amendment."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am very sorry that my words have not had any effect. What I want to point out is that in sub-clause (4) we already have a provision dealing with charitable endowments like schools and colleges. But where persons have endowed charities for a definite purpose not connected with temples or maths, should they also be brought under the provisions of this Bill? If Sahasranamam is to be recited under a banyan tree, it is only a personal matter. The public are not interested. Sahasranamam for whom? (The Hon. Sri K. Madhava Menon: 'It is for the common good.') Take the case of Catholic Churches. There is recitation at the Mass. What is the public good in that? (Interruption by the Hon. Sri K. Madhava Menon.) It is merely asserting without knowing anything about it. Suppose the hon. Member Mr. Kosalram in his own life-time leaves property for the reciting of Sahasranamam. Is it to be taken over by the Government? Are the Government to exercise control over it? That is the only point to be decided. I am asking, Sir, whether the Government should do it or the persons to whom it is entrusted or their descendants should do it. It is not as if Government should interfere with every charity. It is not a charity as such. It is a religious service for the spiritual good of the person. It is not for public good that Sahasranamam is recited."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" Sir, one word with reference to what the hon. Member Mr. Bhashyam stated. I cannot agree that the recitation of Sahasranamam is only personal and not for the public good. It is not so. Even the recital of 'Gayatri' by my hon. Friend is not personal to him. A person who recites 'Diyoyonaha Prachotayat' says 'give us the benefit'. It is not the person alone but the people at large should be benefited. Therefore, Sir, how can it be said that recitation of Sahasranamam is only for the benefit of the person who made that endowment, and not for the good of the community? So, I cannot agree with the hon. Member Mr. Bhashyam on this point."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" One word of explanation, Sir. 'Gayatri' was called in question. It says 'give us wisdom; give us, . . . ' (Interruption.) 'Us' means only the person and his

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—"Sir, one word with reference to what the hon. Member Mr. Bhashyam stated. I cannot agree that the recitation of Sahasranamam is only personal and not for the public good. It is not so. Even the recital of 'Gayatri' by my hon. Friend is not personal to him. A person who recites 'Diyogonaha Prachotayat' says 'give us the benefit'. It is not the person alone but the people at large should be benefited. Therefore, Sir, how can it be said that recitation of Sahasranamam is only for the benefit of the person who made that endowment, and not for the good of the community? So, I cannot agree with the hon. Member Mr. Bhashyam on this point."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—"One word of explanation, Sir. 'Gayatri' was called in question. It says 'give us wisdom; give us, . . . ' (Interruption.) 'Us' means only the person and his family. The Hon. the Minister seems to be wiser than the commentators. 'Give us' means give the persons who are really interested. I am interested in myself and my family. Of course 'Naha' is plural, but it does not mean the whole world in general. Perhaps this particular case of Sahasranamam is peculiar to Malabar. There is no such thing anywhere else."

[Sri K. Bhashyam] [15th. November 1950]

MR. SPEAKER:—"The question is—

'That in sub-clause (13) omit the words 'whether it be', and also the words "or not".'

The amendment was lost.

THE MADRAS LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Thursday, the 16th November 1950.

The House met in the Assembly Chamber, Fort St. George, at eleven of the clock, Mr. Speaker (THE HON. SRI J. SIVASHANMUGAM PILLAI) in the Chair.

THE MADRAS HINDU RELIGIOUS AND CHARITABLE ENDOWMENTS BILL,

MR. SPEAKER:—"The House will take up consideration of clause C, sub-clause (14).

[At this stage some hon. Members were leaving the House and there was some noise.]

"Hon. Members who want to leave the House may do so without making noise."

Sub-clause (14).

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Will it not be convenient, Sir, if the Government move their amendment first?"

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"I submit, Sir, there is no connexion between the amendments to be moved by hon. Mr. Viswanatham and by the Government. The amendment to be moved by me is more or less a formal amendment."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Hon. Mr. Viswanatham may move his amendment."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, I move—

'That in sub-clause (14), delete the words "maths or temples", in line 3.'

"This is a very simple amendment."

MR. SPEAKER:—"I see the hon. Member Sri Varadachari rising in his seat. He has not given notice of any amendment to sub-clause (14)."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"He has got an amendment to Explanation 1."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, my amendment only seeks to fulfil the object of this Act. I want the maths and temples to be excluded from the definition of 'Religious Endowments'."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"I second the amendment."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"My hon. Friend wants that maths and temples should be excluded. That is not the object of the Bill. The Bill seeks to include maths and temples. I regret, therefore, that I cannot accept the amendment."

16th November 1950]

MR. SPEAKER:—"I shall now put the amendment to vote."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"I did not hear the reply, Sir."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"My hon. Friend said that his object in moving the amendment was to exclude maths and temples from the endowments. The object of the Government, on the other hand, is to include them. His amendment, therefore, cannot be accepted."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, maths and temples are not omitted from the operation of the Act. If my motion is accepted it will serve the purpose the Hon. Minister has in view, because if from the definition of temples and maths the particularity is excluded, there is the general definition which includes every religious charity. Therefore, his object is the same as mine. I do not see any reason why it should be confined to maths and temples. I am seeking to enlarge the thing and therefore the Hon. Minister may please reconsider the matter before he says 'No'."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"I am not reconsidering the matter."

The amendment was put and lost.

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Sir, I move—

'Omit the words "and includes the institution concerned and also the premises thereof."'

"This amendment which I have moved will conduce to the harmonious working of the several stringent provisions of this Bill. What happens is, particularly in the case of maths which I have in mind, even the habitations or places where the matadhipathi lives and has his being and also the premises of the maths, which are not really required for the purpose of the administration, will come under this definition. What I say is that the premises of any person should be left untouched. That is why I have moved this amendment. Really we should exclude all places in a math which are connected with the day-to-day living therein. I would be glad if those things which are used for the personal comforts of the persons living there are excluded and left untouched. If an executive officer is appointed it would look as if he will drive out the matadhipathi from the math and take possession of it leaving him to find a habitation elsewhere. You will say that the Government will not do things so unreasonable. Of course, there will be strong public opinion against it. But I want to make it a sort of right of the matadhipathi to retain such portions of the math as he has been using for his personal comforts and for imparting lessons to his disciples. My object, Sir, as I said, is to exclude definite portions of the math which are not in use for public purposes."

[16th November 1950]

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"I second the amendment. In doing so, I would ask the Hon. Minister to look at sub-clause (15) in which 'Religious institution' is sought to be defined. According to that definition 'religious institution' means a math, temple or specific endowment. In the definition for 'specific endowment' you say it means any property or money. This has been dealt with in a separate clause already, and there are other provisions concerning the institutions. Therefore, it is proper that this amendment should be accepted."

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA:—"Sir, apart from the personal considerations that should be taken into account in excluding personal apartments of the matadhipathis, there is also another consideration, viz., the sanctity attached to the apartments. A person goes to the Tirumalai Hill, not because God cannot be found elsewhere, but because there is a sanctity attached to the sanctum sanctorum and people go there with great piety. Take for instance, Sri Sankaracharyar. He has got a matam at Sringeri and people wait there for days together to get a glimpse of him at the math. Seeing him when he goes on tours is one thing, but special sanctity attaches to the institution, a sanctity which may not be visible to the mundane eyes. I, therefore, request the Government to accept the reasonable suggestion of hon. Mr. Bhashyam."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, the hon. Member, Mr. Bhashyam, and other hon. Members who supported his amendment were only thinking about the maths. The amendment of hon. Mr. Bhashyam wants to omit the words 'and includes the institution concerned and also the premises thereof.' A religious endowment does not consist of maths and temples alone, but it consists of the endowments of property for the support of the maths and temples. The endowments given for the purpose of service in these temples also come under the definition. In the existing Act, 'premises' are not mentioned. Take for instance the Tirupathi temple which hon. Mr. Raghavayya mentioned. If the institution of the temple is not part of the endowment, if supervision cannot be exercised over it, what happens? It is not the property alone that has to be considered. The administration of the institution also has to be done properly. If we want to have things done properly in the institution, the Commissioner or the trustees or the area committee will have to go into the question and see whether they are done properly. There is a lacuna in the original Act and we are now adding the words 'premises' here."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Sir, whatever the merits or the demerits of the contention of the Hon. Minister for Law, I should like him to appreciate the difficulties in the case of the maths themselves. If he will make an exception in respect of these maths at least by a proper amendment later on, I shall be satisfied."

[16th November 1950] [Sri K. Bhashyam]

The Hon. Minister may have other difficulties, because from the point of view of the policy of the Government that they should take everything into their hands, possibly what he says may be correct. But I should like him to examine the case over again. As many hon. Members have stated, in the temple there is the God and in the math there is the Swami. Therefore, the precincts or the premises of a math should not really be touched. For that purpose, if the Hon. Minister would introduce a proper amendment, I shall be extremely glad and thankful to him."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Since it included maths and temples, the amendment as it is, could not be accepted. But with regard to the institution of a math, what exactly the implications are, we shall examine, Sir."

MR. SPEAKER:—"In view of the assurance of the Hon. Minister, is the hon. Member prepared to withdraw his amendment?"

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"In view of the promise made, Sir, I beg to withdraw my amendment."

The amendment was, by leave, withdrawn.

Explanation (1) of sub-clause (14).

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, I move the following amendment:—

'Delete Explanation (1).'

Sir, this Explanation relates to inams, the scope and content of inams, what are inams and what is to be deemed to be the subject-matter of inams. I submit, Sir, that it is not covered by the objects and reasons of this Bill. It is beyond the scope of this Bill to determine or seek to determine the nature and content of inams by legislation. The whole purpose of this Act is to bring under control the properties belonging to religious institutions if the property is there. It is not the intention of the Bill to go into the nature of the property. The nature of the property has got to be decided by another tribunal. Suppose the Government are of the opinion that a particular inam is an endowment in favour of a temple or a charitable institution, then it is for the Government to go to a court of law and establish that point. They cannot straightway say that whatever the nature of the property relating to the endowment, it shall be treated as the property belonging to the temple. The distinction between the two is this. In one case, if my amendment is accepted, the Government can lay claim to the property and can establish their title to the property as belonging to the temple before a court of law. If, on the other hand, this Explanation is retained as it is, the Government would not have the necessity to go to a court and all the claims of others in the property are denied at one stroke by this legislation. It is very wrong in principle. Even assuming it is a case of movable property, the Government cannot straightaway say that such and such movable property belongs to the temple. They have to make their claim before a proper authority and establish their claim. In the case of immovable property, we really do not know the position. This Explanation is opposed to the existing position. When the matter is in doubt in regard to the content of the inam, it is always left to the decision of the courts. It is not at all a matter for presumption either way. Each grant has to be decided on its own facts, as to whether the inam was only the melvaram or both the varams. The Government are well aware of the position and they cannot always say that these inams are the property of the temple. But they want to bypass the present position and bypass the existing state of the law which has been in force for the last 150 years or so by one stroke of legislation saying that these shall be treated as endowments. It is not a fair way of doing things to come forward with one legislation and include in it another legislation. Sir, I had occasion in connexion with another Bill to point out that there is legislation in some of the States of America to the effect that the subject-matter of the Bill should never exceed the objects and reasons or the title of the Bill. There is a legislation like that as over-enthusiastic Ministers or over-enthusiastic draftsmen might combine every possible subject which they have in their minds in one piece of legislation. Here it is certainly a case of over-enthusiasm and I submit it is far beyond the scope of the Bill to say by way of an Explanation that this shall be the scope and content of an inam. For years and years, for 150 to 200 years, it has all along been understood by Government and by this Government even now in connexion with some other legislation, and it has been recognized that when a dispute arises as regards the content of an inam it is a matter for the courts to decide. Now by a side-wind as it were, the Government want to close the matter by this piece of legislation; and without giving an opportunity to the persons concerned to prove their claim they want to say straightway that the inam shall be treated as a property belonging to the temple.

"Sir, the Government are certainly aware of the decisions of the High Court in several cases which have come up from Guntur district. In several cases the court has held that the property does not belong to the temple but to the incumbents themselves. With all these decisions before the Government, it is not fair on their part to straightway wipe them out and wipe out all the claims of others without going into the merits of the cases and to say that they shall be treated as the property of the temple. Sir, I submit it is a matter extraneous to the objects of this legislation and it should not be there. I request the Hon. Minister to consider carefully whether it is legislative propriety to mix up inam tenure with the object of controlling religious endowments. I submit that my amendment is very reasonable and it will lead to clarity. Whenever the Government want to lay claim to an inam, they could certainly go to a court of law and if the property belongs to the temple, the court will grant it to the temple."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"I second the amendment, Sir. Most of the arguments I had in mind have been advanced already. The stated object of this legislation is to protect the properties of the religious institutions. It is not the purpose of the Bill and I take it that it is not the purpose of the Government also to acquire properties afresh for these institutions. The Government must keep the properties that are there, but they ought not to go and grab other people's property for the purpose of getting properties for these institutions. The Government cannot say by a side-wind as it were, 'We will raise a presumption in regard to these inams. These have been made 100 or 200 years ago. There will not be evidence one way or the other. We will grab them.' Is it not a case of confiscatory legislation without provision for adequate compensation? I want you to think about it very seriously. There are specific cases where there will be hardship. I will point them out later on. In the present case, this is something which is wholly foreign to the scope of the Bill itself. When you say that you want to conserve the property of the institution, it is quite right and you may do all things necessary for the purpose; but if you really say that you will also go further and acquire property which is not already the property of the institution, by a side-wind like that, by raising a presumption, I submit it is something which is wholly unjustified. I will therefore say it is confiscatory and expropriatory. This is what I would like the Hon. Minister to think about.

"These grants were made 400 or 500 years ago. You say in the first portion of the clause that all property given for the performance of any service or charity is a religious endowment. If it is a religious endowment you can ask an officer to take charge of it and ask him to submit returns and give the budget and so on. But consider the grants made to these archakas on the merits of the case and in justice to them. These grants were made 400 or 500 years ago and at the time they were granted, we do not know the state of the country. We do not know whether there were already some cultivators on these lands and whether only the melvaram was given to these persons. If there was a person already cultivating the land, all that could be given to the service-holder was the melvaram. The grantor was entitled only to the melvaram and melvaram alone was given to the service-holder for service. I only want you to visualize the state of things which might have existed when the Raja for instance gave these lands 400 years ago. The Raja was in possession of the melvaram, the Government dues, and he should have given it to the service-holder. Then suppose, Sir, in the olden days a land was granted, that is both the varams were given. The whole land was granted. Naturally it must have been uncultivated when the grant was made. The Raja cannot take away the land which is cultivated by another tenant and give it to other persons. It will not be fair to do so. The grantee or the service-holder might have brought the land under cultivation, improved it and added to it and has been enjoying the benefit of it all these years. Now by calling it a religious endowment, you have taken away from him all the benefits of the improvements which are due to his own exertions and not to the original grant. Therefore, it is I am asking, 'Is it fair, is it just that you should really say in this case that the whole land must be taken away as part of the endowment?' That will cause difficulty. I should like this matter to be considered. I do not want to give particular cases, for you do not care at all for courts of law or for Judge-made law. You say that you make the laws here and you are supreme. What I say is when you make laws, make them properly. I have no objection to your claiming supremacy in matters of law-making. You are quite right in your claim and I grant it. You are a giant in the matter of making laws and you can do anything you like. You may have the strength of a giant but you should not use it tyrannously to deprive poor persons of the property to which they are really entitled. In all fairness and in justice, I am asking you to consider this. You are, no doubt, thinking of the institution; you want to protect it no doubt, but look at the other party who is affected. Do the archakas all belong to a wealthy class? They are entirely dependent upon these lands and they have been enjoying these lands for more than 400 years. What will be their position if you all of a sudden throw them out into the streets tomorrow? The service of these archakas is practically one of the important functions of the temple and if you want to have this kind of control over them, you will be simply throwing them out; they will simply have to come and beg before you with, so to say, their tails between their legs, and ask you for your favour for this and that. And if that is the idea at the back of your mind, then I can only say it is base."

SRI K. VARADACHARI:—"Sir, I never thought that the Government would go to the length of trying to acquire property for religious institutions by calling them religious endowments. You cannot under cover of this Bill appropriate another man's property by merely calling it a religious endowment, by a definition in this Bill. Service inams have always been considered to be owned by the persons to whom the inams have been granted. Services are of different kinds—they may be temporal or they may be spiritual. The mere fact that a man is asked to perform service in a religious institution and for his support some inam is granted to him, should be deemed to be a gift of land made for the support of the temple itself. In the case of property given to an archaka for performance of service in a temple, as long as he performs the service, he will be the owner of that property. If you call that 'religious endowment' it would mean that all the provisions of this Bill would be applicable to it, and he can be asked to say how much he has got, how much he has eaten, how much he has saved, whether he has put any money in the bank, and all that. Is that the way to treat lands given to service-holders? It is really uncharitable on the part of the Government to introduce this by way of an explanation to a definition of the word 'religious endowment' and say that he can be ousted from his place at any time and another man may be brought instead and thereby you can misappropriate the property. That is not fair. I would therefore request the Government to consider this aspect, that it is really expropriatory and will even go against the intention of the Constitution, that it is likely to be held ultra vires and that it will be completely outside the scope of the Bill itself."

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA:—"Sir, all the sympathies showered on the matadhipathi need not be showered upon a service-holder. It will be expanding your sympathy too far. My submission is that in all these matters, the original intention of the grantor has to be considered. When a grantor gives the property to a particular person and says you must perform such and such service, it is the service that the grantor has in view more than the person to whom it is given, because the person does not last long. Suppose the service is 2,200 years old, can you say that the grantor thought that the man to whom it was granted would live for ever? In the case of a math, there is some sort of succession; for instance, Sri Sankaracharya is succeeded by an eminent string of scholarly people; and in that case, a grantor of a gift may have the math in view. But here in the case of service like supplying garland to the deity or some such thing, the grantor has the service in view and the person is only a medium for that service. So, to extend to that person the importance that you attach to the head of a math is, I submit, a waste of too much sympathy upon a man who does not deserve it. Further, knowing as we do how these service inams are being managed, how can we say the grant is personal? It is not always correct to say that an arachaka will have his son as an archaka. Very often their sons take to other jobs and leave the service itself to their proxies. Suppose a proxy archaka is let in here, can we say that the idea of the original grantor was that the proxy also should enjoy the sanctity and the importance attached to the person of the original grantee? It is absurd. Again, if you want to treat it as personal property, is it to be divided and subdivided among the descendants? For instance, take the karnam's job. If the karnam fails to do the service expected of him, he loses his job. If his son is not qualified for it, or if he goes in for a Deputy Collector's job instead of a karnam's job, is the service to be retained in his family for ever and for ever?"

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"It is retained, Sir."

[16th November 1950]

MR. SPEAKER:—"Before giving my ruling, let me hear what the Government have to say."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, in the first place, I do not at all concede that it offends against the Zamindari Abolition Act. Apart from the question whether it affects the Zamindari Abolition Act or not, so far as my knowledge of legislation goes, if a Legislature passes a law which is inconsistent with, or which goes against, the provisions of any other law, the effect will be that the later law will have effect over the former law, that is the subsequent law prevails over the former law, unless there is any specific mention to the contrary."

SRI N. S. VARADACHARI:—"But, what I say is, the Government will be well-advised to consider the policies laid down in one Act and in another before bringing in such amendment in the light of the new policy. I ask, is it right on the part of the Government to lay down two policies at one and the same time?"

MR. SPEAKER:—"I want to know whether there is any discrepancy between the two."

SRI N. S. VARADACHARI:—"Whether there is discrepancy or not, we have a right to proceed with the enactment of this law, the effect of which will be to amend a totally different Act and this would prevail with reference to the general law."

MR. SPEAKER:—"I have not got a copy of the other Act and so let us now proceed with this matter and I shall deal with the point of order later."

SRI N. S. VARADACHARI:—"Then, Sir, I shall proceed with one or two more important aspects of the matter. I want to make two things clear. It is always assumed that the grants made to the archakas are really not personal gifts according to this Explanation. This is absolutely wrong. The personal gifts the archakas may be of various kinds. In a temple, for instance, the archaka has no other emoluments and he is not permitted to take anything and the only emolument he would get for the entire service would be from the village or villages granted to him under service tenure. Obviously certain hon. Members do not know that in very big temples the archaka is denied any personal gifts made by any worshipper and he cannot take even a copper coin once he sets his foot inside the temple and begins his service. That is so in the great temple at Tirupathi, which is the richest temple and where service is of such an onerous character that it has to be carried on from early morning up to very late at night and particularly during festival times, the service is almost continued all the 24 hours of the day with perhaps only three hours at his disposal for rest. So, Sir, let us not talk lightly of the archakas, thinking these are small people and can be dealt with lightly. But, these people are needed for the very upkeep of the solemnity and the grandeur of the temples. You forget the person altogether. But, you must remember the importance of the service, the dignity attached to the temple and the sacred atmosphere created by the continuance of the service which is performed under very difficult circumstances from day to day. Take a case like the temple at Tirupathi, there it is very bitter cold at times, but still the archaka has to get up at 4 o'clock in the morning, go to the temple and recite the beautiful verses in the morning and open the doors of the temple and continue the service which now takes him right up to 1 or 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Then he has time only to go home and take a little food before he comes back again to do service till late at night, that is, up to 10 or 11 o'clock. For all the service, what does he get? He gets no cash emoluments; not even a pie whatsoever. He may get some prasadam or perhaps 'Sripadarenu' and a few other gifts which are not material gifts. Then, Sir, what does the service depend upon? The service depends upon gifts made to this class of people by donors, who are worshippers of God and who gave these gifts out of their own property. Perhaps the ancient Rajas or other families were intent on keeping up the grand worship in such places. These people have to do service in the temples, and for doing this service in the temples, I may tell you there are at least 20 families stationed on the hill at Tirupathi. If one falls sick, the other family has to take up the service and so they have a sort of turn and he who goes in the morning has to go out late in the afternoon. And, sometimes, they have to employ substitutes, as was pointed out by hon. Mr. Raghavayya. These latter do not act free, but they are paid for the service and they are fully qualified people to do service in the temple and they are well looked after by these archakas. Have they the time to keep a ledger and accounts as if they are living on religious endowments? The effect of this Explanation is, the Hon. Minister makes it as though the gifts are not deemed to be personal gifts. On the other hand, these gifts have been enjoyed by these archakas for ages. It is very insulting. Then after depriving him of all that, and after having not made it the personal gifts, you want to make it all religious endowments . . ."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The hon. Member should avoid using the word 'you' except when he refers to the chair."

SRI N. S. VARADACHARI:—"Sir, I am thankful for the correction. Then, Sir, the service rendered by these archakas depends entirely on the income derived from the villages. How can either the Government or the public expect that these people could find sufficient time to keep an organization for maintaining an account of all they get from the villages? Even to-day they are finding it difficult to collect the rents from the villages. The laws made by the Government have created such tremendous difficulties that for the last few years they have not got even one-fourth or one-eighth of the total income which they should get from the lands. Such being the case, how do you expect them to carry on with their service in the temples? People do not realize that temples might be closed down if the service is interfered with. These inams are subject to service being continued. If therefore, the archaka ceases to do service, the inams can be resumed and Government have of course the right to resume such inams. If the archaka gave up service altogether and retired to some other profession, then the family would lose the inam and so they are very careful in seeing that the service is rendered from day to day whatever difficulties there may be in the way of the service being rendered.

“ Now, Sir, they are controlled in three different ways. I have never come across a case where such controls are sought to be exercised. First, the archaka is controlled by the executive officers of the religious institution. For instance, he is asked, ‘ why do you come late, why not begin work at 4-30 ’ or so, though the officer himself might have come at 8 o’clock after having had coffee. It is all very disgusting for me to tell the Government that I have seen such remarks addressed to the archakas. The officer himself comes at 10 or 12 and ask the archaka ‘ why do you come late? ’ Then he sits there as if he were the lord of the entire place and gives his dictation as to how the entire service should be proceeded with. In fact the old practice was that there were some learned people who participated in the worship; they were honorary people and they were in charge of the entire service. But, to-day the practice is different. Your executive officer seeks to control him. That is the first control. Then, the second control over the archaka is, we have said that the archaka should not receive any emoluments at all as personal gifts and courts also have upheld that contention. It is a very severe control and worshippers will not part with money. So, he cannot collect anything from them. Then, the third control which you are introducing is, you are treating all religious endowments as specific endowments and the Endowment officers will say, ‘ we are endowment officers, bring your accounts and let us see whether you are properly utilizing the amount or not ’. They may even ask, ‘ why did you employ this person or that; why did you travel to such and such a place to bring a substitute or why not you go to some other place and fetch a substitute or get a substitute from your own place? ’ and so on. There will be so many meticulous enquiries which might cause embarrassment and hardship of a character which I cannot approve of. I say, let these controls go. Leave alone the archakas; there are others whose service may be entirely of a permanent character. For instance, offering flowers in the temple the whole day. In Tirupathi there are gardens for this purpose. I know the Tirumalai-Tirupathi Devasthanam has never done this service satisfactorily. I have the good fortune to look after today one of the institutions which is making the entire supply of flowers from day to day from only one acre of land well cultivated and there is vast acreage which the Tirumalai-Tirupathi Devasthanam has in its possession—and I challenge whether the Devasthanam is discharging its duty of supplying flowers in a satisfactory manner. Now, what is to happen to these service-holders? Now, we have introduced considerable difficulties for people to come and settle in this hill from different parts of the country, take a portion of land, go over the land and employ labour on their own account and eke out their livelihood. How can these people plant trees, sell the produce in the bazaar and raise flowers for worship to the God every day? I ask, would you like to penalize such people? These are small services rendered, from the archaka down to the last man, who may even be the watchman or a man who has to recite the song, for instance, songs that are sung in the Tirupathi temple. Do you think that these are not necessary? Do you want to say that that is a specific endowment, so, stop your singing, bring your account and let me see, whether you are keeping accounts properly and so on? I tell you, Sir, this is tyranny of a character which I cannot approve of. Of course, we may control religious endowments and we may have control over the management of the properties connected with religious endowments, but why do we seek to control in this manner? I want to know whether the Government have got control over the entire individuals in the country, including their own services? Such being the case, why do you seek to impose that kind of control over these unfortunate people and by so doing, dissuade people from coming and taking service in the temples. Even at present we find difficulty in getting men well-versed in Agamas.

“ We know nothing about the difficulties; it is a course of seven years and eight years sometimes, it is an elaborate course. Should we not attract suitable men to this kind of service? Many people are living on this because to-day they have no other occupation to take to and we introduce all sorts of controls; cut down their income in one Bill, destroy their properties in another Bill and by a third Bill we seek to retain a stranglehold on what little that comes to them. I say, Sir, this is tyranny of a character which the Government would do well to keep away from. In view of the importance of the service and in view of the fact that the service-holder is left with very little and his work leaves him no time to attend to such secular affairs, as maintaining regular accounts, I request the Government to drop the ‘ Explanation.’ ”

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI:—“ Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have only a few words to say in support of the amendment and I shall only confine myself to the moral and equity aspect of the matter as much has been said about the legal aspect of it. I believe it is not the contention of the Government that there can be no personal gift to the archakas or service-holders. In sub-clause 14 there is a provision that a gift of property as a personal gift to the archaka or a service-holder shall not come under this category.

[Sri L. N. Gopalaswami] [16th November 1950]

But suddenly under this Explanation the Government want to take away the right of a particular service-holder over his inam. They themselves have said that if it is a personal gift made to him, it shall not form part of the religious endowment. Service inams have been granted to the service-holders from time immemorial, hundreds and hundreds of years ago and nobody can now at this distance of time say whether it was a personal gift to him or not. I can quite understand the position if the Government were to say: 'We are not aware whether it is a personal gift or otherwise; so, let it be decided by a court of law'. But on the other hand, the Government want to take the position not only of the plaintiff but also of the Judge himself. They say that he should not only be not presumed to have had it as a personal gift but the contrary should be presumed, namely, that it is a religious endowment. I beg to submit, Sir, that this is uncharitable, unjust and immoral. In this connexion, I wish to say that not long ago, only in the previous sitting, the House passed a Bill on the question of service inam tenure; they said that the service inam of an artisan of a village should be presumed to comprise not only the emoluments therefrom but also the corpus also. When it has been said that not only the income but the corpus also has been vested in the service-holder in the case of the village artisan. I do not know why there should be this distinction in the case of the archakas and holders of inams for religious service or charity. This has nothing to do with the endowment and I am not able to understand how it is presumed to be an endowment. If the person is able to establish his right for it and prove that it was given as a personal inam, I feel, he ought to be entitled to it and the Government will not be justified in treating it as an endowment; it is not right that a personal property should become part of the endowment by a stroke of the pen and I, therefore, request the Government to reconsider the matter in spite of whatever they may contend against it."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have not been able to understand the relevancy of the various remarks made in the House about the question of acquisition, compensation and personal property and so on, apart from its being unmoral or immoral or inequitable, nor have I been able to understand the relevancy of the question whether the melvaram has been granted or the kudivaram. As far as I could understand, Sir, the explanation only says that whatever may be the varam, whether it is kudivaram or melvaram, if an inam has been granted for the performance of service or charity in a temple, it must be treated as and included under the definition of 'religious endowment'. My hon. Friend Mr. Varadachari, himself said that if a service inam holder does not perform the service, he forfeits the inam. Therefore, when an inam is granted to him for the purpose of performing a service or charity in the temple, it is necessary to see that he does that service. There is no attack or encroachment on any of the rights of the service-holder except this; we only say that we have to see to it that the service-holder performs the service he is expected to do and for which the inam has been given to him. I rely, Sir, on what hon. Mr. Varadachari himself quoted in the point of order that he raised. Section 17 of the Madras Estates (Abolition and Conversion into Ryotwari) Act says—if the service to be rendered is personal or private service to the landholder, not being a religious, educational or charitable institution, the land shall be discharged from the condition of such service and the holder of such land shall be entitled to a ryotwari patta.'

I invite the attention of the House to the words 'if the service to be rendered is personal or private service to the landholder, not being a religious, educational or charitable institution'. That is, if the service for which the inam is given is not for a religious or educational or charitable institution, and if the service is personal to the landlord, that property becomes his own and he is granted a patta. But if the service is for religious, educational or charitable institution, a distinction is made and they are not discharged from the obligation to perform the service. The hon. Member Sri N. S. Varadachari referred to the very good work put in by the archakas; I concede that very good work is done by the archakas and he said they work at a very great sacrifice, rising up early in the morning at 4 o'clock and do duties in the temple till noon and then return after some food and remain in the temple till 10 in the night; that is a very arduous work but it is imagination running ryot to suggest that they would have to come to us with the tail between their legs; otherwise they would be driven out. My submission is, Sir, that if the property of a particular person is an inam property given for the purpose of performing certain services in the temple, then that property is an endowment, because it has been endowed for the purpose of doing charity or service to the temple. It is an endowment that is given as wages or as compensation for the work that he has to perform for the institution and so long as it is endowed for that purpose, it is the duty of the public or the Government or anybody to see that he does that service. If he does not do it, then even according to law, he forfeits his right to hold the property. There is nothing new in this and no new law is necessary. Further, Sir, it cannot be deemed to be a personal gift to the archaka for this reason. Can the archaka give up his service and alienate the properties? That is the test; if he is entitled to give up the service and at the same time sell away the property, it is no longer a service inam. With due deference to the views of hon. Mr. Bhashyam, I wish to submit, Sir, that if an inam is given for the purpose of doing a particular charity or service or a particular work in a temple, there is a presumption in law according to this definition that it is an endowment. My hon. Friend,

[Sri K. Madhava Menon] [16th November 1950]

Mr. Gopalaswami, asked why the thing should not be settled in a court of law. Clause 67 says that if it is disputed that it is not an endowment, it is open to the person affected to take the matter to the court of law and get a decision upon it. But prima facie, if the property is given as an inam for the purpose of service in a religious institution, or a charitable institution or for the performance of charity, the presumption is that it is an endowment. It is however, open to that archaka who is affected by the presumption to go to a court under clause 62. There is thus no question of acquisition, or things being done without compensation and there is no question of immorality. Therefore, Sir, I am unable to accept the amendment."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Hon. Minister said that he has not understood the relevancy of most of our remarks. It is most unfortunate that he has not understood the relevancy of our remarks and that is our complaint, because the subject-matter is so extraneous to the object of the Hindu Religious Endowments Bill that the Hon. Minister has not bestowed any attention upon service-tenure and inams. He has been reading nothing but the mismanagement of religious endowments and properties belonging to endowments and has been bestowing his thoughts as to how to control them, whether it is through executive officers or through some other agencies. These things have been engaging his attention and that is the reason why he has not been able to understand the relevancy of our remarks and that is why we were not able to understand why by an executive stroke the scope and content of the subject of inams could be brought under a legislation of this kind, a legislation which does not deal with the principles of inam tenures and which by its very nature cannot deal with interpretation of grants whether for the archakas or for anybody else. That is the reason why he has not been able to understand our remarks. With your permission, Sir, I shall take some more time to explain the matter further."

MR. SPEAKER:—"If the hon. Member can finish his remarks within five minutes, I have no objection."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"I may take a little more time, Sir."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Then we shall adjourn. The House will rise and meet again at 2-30 p.m."

(After lunch—2-30 p.m.)

There was no quorum, the bell was rung and the quorum was formed.

MR. SPEAKER:—"The hon. Member, Sri Viswanatham, will now continue his speech."

16th November 1950]

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, as I already submitted, the subject of inams is unrelated to the religious endowments. My contention is, Sir, that legislation should always be confined to the object which is stated in the title and in the preamble of any legislation. Otherwise the persons affected will have no notice as to what is happening. Now, people really are thinking that we are having discussion on religious endowments. People in the State and people affected will not know and do not know the nature of inams included in this Bill. They would be right in thinking so. And, therefore, Sir, it is well for us to always confine to the object in view, and that is one of the reasons, a chief reason, why the question of inams should not be dealt with in the legislation.

"Sir, in reply to my argument, the Hon. Sri Madhava Menon said that he did not see the relevancy of my contention. As I submitted, I do not see the relevancy of this 'Explanation' either. My argument becomes relevant, because he puts in a clause, which according to me is irrelevant. If the substance of my argument becomes irrelevant, it is because it is based upon this provision, which is irrelevant to the purpose of this Bill. There are other pieces of legislation, as the hon. Mr. Varadachari pointed out, where we are considering the same question of inams. In fact there is another Bill where the nature and treatment of these inams are being considered. That is at the Select Committee stage now. Then, under the Zamindari Abolition Act, there is an inquiry about so many other kinds of inams. In all these cases, whenever there is any doubt with regard to the nature of the inam, till now, it was left to the courts of law to decide as per the language of the grant. But the Hon. Sri Madhava Menon seems to be under the impression that the words 'shall be deemed' should be understood as 'shall be presumed.' The whole basis of his argument is that after all we are not taking away the property of anybody and this is not a confiscatory legislation. He says, instead of leaving it to a court to decide, when a dispute arises, we only presume that it is part of an endowment, we are not doing anything more, and therefore the question of confiscation does not arise. I want him to go through the language in this provision. It runs thus:

'Any inam granted to an archaka . . . shall not be deemed to be a personal gift to the archaka . . . but shall be deemed to be a religious endowment.'

I ask in all earnestness what does the term 'shall be deemed' mean? I deny the contention that it means 'it shall be presumed.' When the Bobbili Ministry passed a legislation in 1936 giving occupancy right in certain kinds of inams, they did not go to this extent. They simply said it shall be presumed to include both warams. Then in another piece of legislation which we passed a few months back with regard to artisan inams, the word 'presume' was used (in the Act of 1895, which referred to emoluments consisting of something) and extended to include also the land. Even there we objected that all presumptions should not be statutorily made. It should all be left to ordinary provisions of the Evidence Act. If I understand English aright, the words 'shall be deemed' are not 'presumption,' and the inam granted to an archaka is not his personal property but is the property of the endowment. And what is the result? Property till now treated as personal property by the archakas, has by statute, been converted into property belonging to the religious endowments and converted so without paying any compensation. Certainly it is confiscatory! Possibly it is not the intention of the Hon. Minister to do it. If it is not the intention of the Government to take away the property of the archakas, I ask the Hon. Minister to change the language of the Explanation. I am not asking him to do anything more than that. I am only asking him to give the religious institutions all the properties that are legitimately due to them. The question whether an inam belonging to an archaka is really an inam which is his or belongs to the endowment is a matter to be decided on the merits of the case. Each case has to be decided on its merits according to the language of the grant or according to the practice obtaining in a particular locality or according to the practice and enjoyment of the endowment which has been obtaining from time immemorial. It should not be the province of the Government or it should not be the province of legislation to say that every inam which is now in the name of an archaka shall hereafter belong to the temple. This Government have had no compunction in introducing legislation taking away properties without giving just compensation. It has always prided that it is doing it; it is taking pride in moving with the times, in taking away property without just compensation. I submit this Government may be taking a 'forward move.' But unfortunately the Constitution Act is not so forward as the Government of Madras is. The entire Constitution Act is based on individual property and individual freedom, and it declares that no property shall be taken without paying compensation. The Government of Madras and those of us who are supporting its measures may be proud that we are taking a forward step in giving good-bye to the sense of private property and individual property; whenever we feel that it is in public interest to take away property without paying compensation, we may do so. But at the same time our enthusiasm should not take us off our feet, for the Constitution binds us down; we have taken the oath of allegiance to the Constitution on the floor of the House; and when we show all sincerity in standing up here and speaking, it is not because we have no other business—in fact I am anxious to go away in a day or two. When we raise objections here to the provisions of measures, we do so, because we feel they are wrong; we do so, because we are anxious that things should be done in a right manner. May I remind the Hon. Minister what happened when the Criminal Law (Amendment)

[16th November 1950] [Sri T. Viswanatham]

Bill was being passed in this House? The Hon. Minister, Mr. Madhava Menon was in charge of that Bill. What did he say then; what language did he use then? What did we say then? And what has happened to-day? I do not want to say that every one of my contention is right, or every contention I raise will be right; but I only say, when I raise a matter of objection, I feel that it is a matter for consideration. When my hon. Friend, Sri Bhashyam raises any point of objection, he does so, because he feels that it is a point for consideration before the provision is passed. Government should examine what it is, and it is not right for the Hon. Minister to say, he does not understand the relevancy of the contention. Have those of us who sit here come here to bandy words? Is it correct to say, so and so alone is an expert and so and so is not an expert? I submit in all earnestness that all unrelated subjects have been clubbed together in this Bill."

MR. SPEAKER:—"If they are all unrelated subjects, then the Bill is out of order. The hon. Member could have raised it as a point of order."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Unfortunately, Sir, I did not raise it as a point of order, as there is no legislation on it. So, it is a matter for our understanding and commonsense. In some of the States of America there is a legislation that if unrelated subjects are brought in in one enactment, it shall be declared void. But, here, we have no such legislation. So we have to proceed upon our commonsense. I believe I have made it clear that the subject-matter of inams is quite different from the subject-matter of management of religious properties. Therefore the persons who are affected by this provision are not at all aware of what is happening here. Everybody thinks that we are legislating for the better management of temples. I myself, until I came to this explanation, when I gave notice of amendments, did not know that we are dealing with inams in this Bill. Therefore, Sir, I submit it is not right we should legislate about inams in this Bill. Hon. Mr. Varadachariar said that we are actually considering in another Bill about inams. I happen to be a member of the Select Committee of that Bill. Government also intend to bring in a comprehensive legislation about inams after the inquiry under the Zamindari Abolition Act is over. So, I submit Government should not take away the property—I assert they are taking away the property, they are taking it away without compensation! If the Hon. Minister thinks that the words 'shall not be deemed' mean only 'shall not be presumed' and the words 'shall be deemed' mean only 'shall be presumed', I wish just to ask him what the following words mean:—

"The Act shall be deemed to have come into force on such and such a date."

It means the Act comes into force on that specified date. It is not a presumption. It is a positive mandate. I submit, under these circumstances, it is wrong to convert one man's property into the property of an institution. By all means, if the Commissioner appointed under this Act, feels that there is a good case for taking away the inam given to an archaka as per his title, let him do it. Do you think the donor would be such a fool as not to mention to whom the land should go? Sir, it all depends upon the merit of each case. Sir, a number of such cases of inams from Guntur district have come up before the High Court and settled. Particularly in the matter of an inam relating to an archaka there was great doubt and a decision has been given by the High Court on it. Now, there is another point which I did not mention till now. The Explanation does not say whether it holds good even against a decree of court. Suppose in 1949 the High Court had decided that a particular inam standing in the name of an archaka belongs to him and not to the temple; what happens to it under this Explanation? Does this take away the property from the archaka?

"I submit that this is very wrong, unjust to the persons concerned and unjust to ask the House to agree to it. I once more submit that, if the Hon. Minister feels that 'shall not be deemed to be' is only a presumption, let him move an amendment. The acceptance of that amendment is the farthest limit to which a person of my stamp can go, though I do not agree even with the use of the word 'presumption' as each case must be decided on its own merits in a court under the general law of the country. Let him not misunderstand that the wording used connotes a presumption. This provision bodily takes away the property of a person, property which stands in his name and has been in his enjoyment for years and years, and vests it in the religious institution. Therefore, I submit that my amendment may be accepted."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, when I said that I could not understand the relevancy of introducing the question of inam tenure, I was not under the impression that I was bandying words. Anyhow, I had no such intention at all. When stones are thrown at me, I try to defend myself. If this is construed as bandying words, I cannot help it. I still maintain that the explanation has nothing to do with inam tenure. My hon. Friend said that there was a Select Committee considering about inams. That is true. But this Explanation has nothing to do with inam tenure. If there is an endowment for the performance of any service in, or a charity connected with, any religious institution, that is deemed to be a religious endowment. That is the presumption there and I maintain that it is a presumption. Hon. Mr. Bhashyam said in the course of his speech that it was a presumption. I felt he was right. Clause 62 of the Bill says—

'Subject to the rights of suit or appeal hereinafter provided the Deputy Commissioner shall have power to enquire into and decide whether any property or tenancy is a religious endowment.'

16th November 1950] [Sri K. Madhava Menon]

This clause provides for a suit or appeal against the decision of the Deputy Commissioner.

"I cannot understand the point about taking away one's property and vesting it in another. When a service, for rendering which an inam has been granted, ceases to be rendered, the Government or the Collector can resume the inam. There are inams registered in the name of a temple and in the possession and enjoyment of the archaka. There may be service inams of which the archaka himself is the pattadar. An inam granted for doing a religious service is presumed to be an inam for the religious institution. I want the House to consider this with reference to sub-clause (16). The sub-clause says—

"'Specific endowment' means any property or money endowed for the performance of any specific service or charity in a math or temple, or for the performance of any other religious charity, but does not include an inam of the nature described in Explanation (1) to clause (14)."

The words 'but does not include an inam of the nature described in Explanation (1) to clause (14)' were added by the Select Committee. The effect of the addition is that an inam of the nature described in the Explanation will not be a specific endowment. When that is not a specific endowment, what is the power that the Commissioner has got? He cannot call for accounts, claim any contribution or appoint a trustee, as the provisions conferring these powers do not apply to it. When the archaka is not performing the service, the only power that the Commissioner has is to move the Collector to resume the inam.

"I still think that there is no question of any tenure involved in this Explanation."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"I just want to ask for some clarification."

MR. SPEAKER:—"I have already given enough time. The question is—

'Delete Explanation (1).'

The amendment was lost.

SRI N. S. VARADACHARI:—"Sir, I move—

'In Explanation (1) omit the words "shall not be deemed to be a personal gift to the archaka, service-holder or employee, but."'

This amendment is very different from the previous amendment to omit the Explanation. Even if the Government think that inams should not be excluded from the purview of this Bill and the control which it aims at, they should not draw the presumption that these were not personal gifts. If that presumption is drawn, what happens? I shall come to that later.

"The Hon. Minister Sri K. Madhava Menon has a very nice way of dealing with irrelevant objections. But when relevant objections are raised, he simply shuts his mouth and does not even attempt to answer. I raised two relevant objections. Let me point out that this is grossly misinterpreting section 17 (1) of the Madras Estates (Abolition and Conversion into Ryotwari) Act. The section says—

“Where any land granted on service-tenure, whether to an individual or institution, falls under section 3, clause (16) (c), of the Estates Land Act, then, irrespective of whether such land consists of only a portion of a village or of one or more villages—

(a) if the service to be rendered is personal or private service to the landholder, not being a religious, educational or charitable institution, the land shall be discharged from the condition or such service and the holder of such land shall be entitled to a ryotwari patta in respect of the land”

If I ask a learned man to write a slokam about me every day as some ancient Rajas did, that is purely personal service. The land given for rendering that personal service shall be discharged from the condition of that service irrespective of what the Inams Commission might have said, and the holder shall be entitled to a ryotwari patta in respect of that land. But if the land has been given for doing other than personal service, the holder shall have the same rights and liabilities in respect of that land as the inamdar of a minor service inam in a ryotwari village. Minor inam means only this. I do not know very much about it. It may have a favourable rate of assessment so far as the landholder is concerned. The land does not carry any obligation over and above what a ryotwari patta land is carrying. The inamdar of a minor service inam is a ryotwari pattadar in every sense of the term except for this one condition that he must continue to perform the service. That is all. If he does not continue the service, the Government can resume the inam. I agree to it. But that is a matter which is wholly irrelevant to this Bill. Even if there is no provision in this Bill, an inam can be taken off the list of inams when the service ceases to be rendered. Service inam means that.

“I come to the second objection I raised. The Hon. Sri Madhava Menon has been good enough to point out that it does not matter since the inam taken away from an archaka or serviceholder is only vested in the religious institution to which he renders service, and to admit: ‘There is no control at all. We do not ask for the accounts or any contribution or the power of appointing trustees. The archaka is the trustee. He carries on his work and he really does very hard work.’ Then, what is the control left and why do the Government want it? This is, to use a very appropriate expression, a very perverse control. I can understand control over management, effective control against mismanagement and other kinds of control. You say you do not want accounts, you do not want any contribution and you do not want to appoint the trustee and yet you want control. I say this control is a hobby horse which you are riding.”

16th November 1950] [Mr. Speaker]

hence, the word ‘you’ may be construed to refer to the Chair. Please, for goodness’ sake, let hon. Members avoid using the word ‘you’ when referring to a Minister or the Government.”

SRI N. S. VARADACHARI:—“By ‘you’ I mean the Hon. Minister. There is no control and yet the Hon. Minister says that he wants control. The effect of this very perverse control will be that the archaka will be subjected to harassment and tyranny by petty officials who run after him asking for petty emoluments. If the Government want to deprive the archaka of his dosais, by all means let them have that satisfaction. That is the only kind of control that is left. I believe that this House does not want that kind of thing to occur. We must think in large terms, in terms of service honourably and voluntarily rendered. We should not at every turn in our life think that the whole world will misbehave if we do not keep our hands on the control machine. It is not control that makes an archaka work; it is the force of public opinion and the general moral law that makes him work. As the Hon. Minister himself admitted that essentially there was no control at all, why should he not be good enough to respond to my request to recast the clause so as not to include inam?”

“Sir, let me now come to another point. Till now the archaka has all the rights of a full pattadar. His tenant has no occupancy rights. We created a doubt by section 17 (1) of the Madras Estates (Abolition and Conversion into Ryotwari) Act, 1948 and that doubt has been decided in his favour by courts of law and also by the Hindu Religious Endowments Act. But now that section is sought to be amended by an amending Bill which is now before the Select Committee. I submit, Sir, that it is a most unhappy amendment and I shall have to deal with it later on when an opportunity comes. But, having got all rights of property, an attempt is now being made to make these inams part of Hindu Religious Endowments by means of this Explanation. I cannot understand the reason behind it. This is as it were a double-edged sword. First, the Government have taken away his rights to property and secondly, they are forcing an imaginary control, while in fact, there is nothing for any control being exercised. I ask the Government, why should they stick to this imaginary control, which will only lead to misunderstanding in the institution and not conduce to the efficient upkeep of the services concerned. Of course, the right of resumption of an inam is always there and the Government can exercise that right at any moment. It means that the officers of the Government are not blind. They are vigilant enough and so are the public also. Does the Hon. Minister think that when there is no worship in a temple, or when the services in a temple are not carried on properly the public would sit quiet with folded hands and allow such a state of things to continue? The Hon. Minister must be fully aware that if such a thing happens, the public would not only rush to the Government and intimate to them what is happening, but at the same time they would take upon themselves to see that the services are performed in the temple then and there, because, temple service is considered to be most important and it will not be allowed to be stopped even for twelve hours. That is the position even in these days. Then where is the question of control, I am unable to understand, except that it is in the imagination of the Hon. Minister which he is sticking to, because he has already resolved about it."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"May I know, Sir, the exact wording of the amendment of the hon. Member?"

SRI N. S. VARADACHARI:—"My amendment, Sir, is this—

'In Explanation (1) under sub-clause (14) of clause 6, omit the words, "shall not be deemed to be a personal gift to the archaka, service-holder or employee, but."'

SRI M. S. PATTABIRAMIAH:—"I second the amendment, Sir."

SRI K. T. KOSALRAM:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, கனம் வாத்தாச்சாரியார் அவர்களுடைய amendment-ஐ நான் எதிர்க்கிறேன். ஒரு கோவிலுக்கோ அல்லது மடத்திற்கோ ஒரு மனிதன் ஏதாவதும் சொத்தை எழுதிவைத்திருந்தால் அந்த தர்மத்தை அவன் செய்யாமலிருந்தால் பொது மக்கள் சம்மா இருக்கமாட்டார்கள் என்பதை நான் அவருடைய கவனத்திற்குக் கொண்டு வருகிறேன். எவ்வளவோ கோவில்களுக்கும், மடங்களுக்கும் எவ்வளவோ மனிதர்கள் தனிப்பட்ட முறையிலும், இன்னும் அவர்களுடைய மூதாதையர்களும் இன்னும் பலபேர்கள் தங்களுடைய சொந்தமுறையிலும் தர்மங்களை நடத்துவதற்காகவும் இன்னும் சத்திரங்களுக்கும், மடங்களுக்கும் அவைகளை நிர்வகிக்கும் பொருட்டு பல சொத்துக்களை எழுதிவைத்திருக்கிறார்கள். எந்தக்காரியங்களுக்காக அந்த சொத்துக்களை எழுதிவைக்கப்பட்டதோ அந்த தர்ம காரியங்களை நடத்தாமல் இருக்கிறார்கள். இன்னும் கோவில்களிலிருக்கும் அநேகம் வெள்ளி, தங்கம் முதலியவைகளையும் விற்கும் முறையிலிருக்கிறார்கள். கோவில்களிலிருக்கும் விற்கக்கூடியவற்றையும் விற்பது வருகிறார்கள். இன்னும் சில இடங்களில் கோவில்களிலுள்ள சில பாகங்களை கலைத்தும், பிடுங்கியும் அவைகளை விற்பதுகொண்டும் வருகிறார்கள். அதை இப்பொழுது பொதுமக்கள் பார்த்துக்கொண்டு தானிருக்கிறார்கள். ஆனால் சர்க்கார் இப்பொழுது ஹிந்து மத தர்மத்தை அழிக்க பிரயத்தனப்படுகிறது. தர்மங்களும், கோவில்களின் பூஜைகளும் ஒழுங்காக நடக்க வேண்டுமென்பதற்காக யாரோ ஒருவர் தன்னுடைய சொத்தை எழுதிவைத்திருந்து அது சரியானபடி நடத்தப்படாமலிருந்தாலும், எந்தக்காரியங்களுக்காக எழுதி வைக்கப்பட்டதோ அந்தக் காரியம் நடைபெறாமலிருந்தாலும் அதை அரசாங்கம் பார்த்துக்கொண்டிருக்க முடியுமா என்று கேட்கிறேன். குறிப்பாக சொல்லவேண்டுமென்றால் எங்கள் ஜில்லா சம்பந்தப்பட்டமட்டில் பல கோவில்களுக்கும், பல சத்திரங்களுக்கும் எத்தனையோ பேர்கள் தங்களுடைய சொத்துக்களை எழுதிவைத்துப்போயிருக்கிறார்கள். ஒருநாள் ஒன்றுக்கு இவ்வளவுபேர்கள் சாப்பிடவேண்டுமென்று எழுதிவைத்திருக்கிறார்கள். ஆனால் இப்பொழுது எவ்வளவு பேர்களுக்கு சாப்பாடு போடுகிறார்கள் என்பதைப் பார்க்கவேண்டும்.

(Sri. N. S. Varadachari: 'அங்கு அநேகம் சோம்பேரிகளுக்குக் கலாம்'). திருநெல்வேலியில் சோம்பேரிகளுக்குக்கிறார்கள் என்று சொல்லுகிறார். நான் சொல்வது என்னவென்றால் அங்கு இருப்பதுபோலவே பல ஜில்லாக்களிலும் அப்படித்தானிருப்பார்கள் என்று நான் சொல்லுகிறேன்.

16th November 1950] [Sri K. T. Kosalram]

எங்கள் ஜில்லாவில் 96 கிராமங்களிருக்கின்றன. குறிப்பாக எங்கள் ஜில்லாவில் பல மடங்களும், பல கோவில்களும் இருக்கின்றன. அவைகளுக்கெல்லாம் பல பெரியோர்கள் சொத்துக்களை எழுதி வைத்திருக்கிறார்கள். ஆனால் அங்கு நடக்கும் நிர்வாகத்தைப் பார்த்தால் டேக்கனாக் தர்பார் நடப்பதாகத் தான் தோன்றும். அங்கிருப்பவர்களெல்லாம் சோம்பேரிகளாகிவிட்டார்கள். அவர்களுடைய வேலைகளை அவர்கள் பார்ப்பதே இல்லை. அவர்களுடைய சொத்துக்களை கவனிப்பதைப்போலது பிரமாதமாக வாதாடுவது அத்யாவசியமில்லை. வன்னென்றால் எந்த மனிதன் குறிப்பாக எந்தக் காரியத்தைச் செய்யவேண்டும் என்று சொத்துக்களை எழுதிவைத்து அந்தக்காரியங்களை செய்யாமலிருந்தால் அரசாங்கம் அதைப் பார்த்துக் கொண்டிருக்க முடியாது. ஒருவனுக்குக்கொடுத்த காரியத்தை அவன் செய்யாமலிருந்தால் அவனை அரசாங்கம்தான் அடக்கமுடியும். சரியான நிர்வாகம் நடைபெற்றால் அதை தடை செய்யவேண்டியதவசியமில்லை. இன்றையதினம் கொண்டு வரப்பட்ட சட்டத்தில் அவ்விதம் தடை செய்வதற்குள்ள அதிகாரமில்லை. அந்த நிலையில்தான் இந்த சட்டமிருக்கிறது. சில இடங்களில் எவ்வளவோ தர்ம சொத்துக்களெல்லாம் சரியானபடி நிர்வாகம் செய்யப்பட்டு அர்ச்சகர்கள் ஒழுங்காக நடத்தி வருகிறார்கள் என்று சொல்லுகிறார்கள். அவைகளைப்பற்றி நமக்கு கவலை இல்லை. அவைகளில் அரசாங்கமும், அதிகாரிகளும் தலையிடவேமாட்டார்கள். அவ்விதமேதான் இப்பொழுதுள்ள சட்டமும் நிச்சயமாக இருக்கிறது என்று சொல்வோம். ஒரு தர்மசொத்தை துர்வநியோகம் செய்தால் அதை அரசாங்கம் எடுத்துக்கொண்டுதானாகவேண்டும். இப்பொழுது இருக்கும் நிலைமையில் பொதுமக்கள் அந்த சொத்துக்களை எடுத்துக்கொள்ளவேண்டுமென்று சொன்னால் அவைகளை எடுத்துக்கொள்ள முடியாத நிலைமையிலிருக்கும் என்ற நிலைமையில் இப்பொழுது நாயிருக்கிறோம். இப்பொழுது பொதுமக்களுடைய அபிப்பிராயம் அவைகளை எடுத்துக்கொள்ள வேண்டுமென்பதுதான். இப்பொழுது எந்தக்கூட்டத்தில் போய் பேசினாலும் ஹிந்து மத தர்ம பரிபாலன மசோதாவை வைத்துக்கொண்டு இரண்டு வருஷமாக சட்ட சபையில் அவர்கள் வாதாடிக்கொண்டிருக்கிறார்கள், என்ன விளையாடுகிறார்கள் என்று கூட கேட்கிறார்கள். ஆனால் தர்ம சொத்துக்கள் அக்கிரமமாகப் போய்க்கொண்டிருக்கின்றனவென்றும் சொல்லுகிறார்கள்."

MR. SPEAKER:—"நீங்கள், இப்பொழுது இருக்கும் amendment-ஐப் பொருத்ததான் பேசவேண்டும்."

SRI K. T. KOSALRAM:—"Amendment-ஐப் பொருத்ததான் பேசுகிறேன். இப்பொழுது மடாதிபதிகள் ஸ்சக்கணக்கான தர்ம சொத்துக்களை வைத்துக்கொண்டு குரையாடிக்கொண்டிருக்கிறார்கள். அதைப்பார்த்து மக்கள் கொதித்துக் கொண்டிருக்கிறார்கள். ஆகையினால் அவைசியமாக இப்படிப்பட்ட amendment-களை கொண்டு வரவேண்டாம். ஆகவே அரசாங்கமும் இதை எதிர்க்கும் என்றே நம்புகிறேன்."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"May I request you, Sir, to permit me to speak in Tamil."

MR. SPEAKER:—"I have no objection."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"கனம் அக்கிராசனாதிபதி அவர்களே! ஸ்ரீ கோசலராம் அவர்கள் ரொம்ப தெளிவாக, ரொம்ப ஸ்பஷ்டமாக, ரொம்ப விமர்சனமாக கோவில் டிரஸ்டிகளும், மத குருமார்களும் எப்படி இப்பொழுது நடந்து கொண்டு வருகிறார்கள், அவர்கள் எப்படி நடந்துகொள்ள வேண்டுமென்பதைப்பற்றி சொல்லிவிட்டார்கள். அது பற்றி நமக்கும் அவருக்கும் கொஞ்சம் கூட வித்தியாசமே கிடையாது. அவ்வாறு யாராவது இருந்தால் கடவுள் தண்டனை அளிப்பதோடு கூட அரசாங்கத்தாரும் தண்டனை அளிப்பார்கள் என்பதெல்லாம் வால்தவமானதுதான்."

[16th November 1950]

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—"Sir, on a point of order, my hon. Friend Mr. K. Bhashyam says that he is not speaking on the amendment of hon. Mr. Varadachari, but that he is only replying to what my hon. Friend Mr. Kosakram has said. May I submit, Sir, that it is not relevant to the subject matter of the present discussion?"

MR. SPEAKER :—"The hon. Member may confine his remarks to the amendment under discussion."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—"இந்தத் திருத்தப் பிரேரணைக்கும் தர்ம பரிபாலனத்தைப் பற்றிய பொதுப்படையான ஒழுங்குகளைப் போன்ற விஷயங்களுக்கும் என்ன பொருத்தமிருக்கிறது என்று எனக்குத் தெரியவில்லை."

"அது போகட்டும். என்ன இருந்தாலும் கனம் கோசல்ராம் அவர்கள் நமக்கு புத்தி சொன்னதைப் பற்றி ஆசேஷனை எதுவும் கிடையாது."

"இப்போது விவாதிக்கப்படுகிற விஷயம் என்னவென்றால்: கோவில் அர்ச்சகர்கள் அல்லது மாலைகட்டிகள், ஓதுவார், மேளகாரர், இம்மாதிரி கோவில்களுக்கு தொண்டு செய்பவர்கள் இருந்தால் சர்க்கார் என்ன சொல்லுகிறது என்றால் அவர்களுக்கு சொத்து இருக்குமேயானால் அது அவர்களுக்குச் சொந்தமானது அல்ல. ஆதலால் அதில் அவன் பாட்டன், தகப்பன் யாராவது கோவிலில் பணிவிடை செய்வதற்காக அந்த சொத்தை மானியமாக பெற்றிருப்பான். ஆதலால் இப்போது அந்த சொத்து Religious Endowment-ஐச் சேர்த்துவிட வேண்டுமென்று சொல்லுகிறார்கள். உதாரணமாக சிதம்பரத்தில் தீக்ஷிதர்கள் இருக்கிறார்கள். அவர்களுக்கு சொத்து கிடையாது. அவர்கள் வேலைக்கு போவதும் கிடையாது. பின்னர் அவர்கள் எப்படி பிழைக்கிறார்களென்றால் மாதம் 5 ரூபாய், 10 ரூபாய் என்று வெளியிடங்களுக்குச் சென்று அர்ச்சனை செய்ய பணம் வாங்கி அர்ச்சனை செய்து ஒரு கவரிலே அந்த பிரசாதத்தை அனுப்பியும் ஜீவித்து வருகிறார்கள். இப்போது இந்தச் சட்டத்தின் வாசகப்படி இம்மாதிரி தீக்ஷிதர்களிடம் எண்க்காக அர்ச்சனை செய்துவா என்று யாராவது 'நிலம் எழுதி வைத்திருந்தாலும், சொத்து வைத்திருந்தாலும் அது Religious Endowment-க்கு சேர்ந்து விடுகிறது என்று இருக்கிறது. கனம் கோசல்ராம் அவர்கள் இந்த விளக்கத்தில் (explanation) சொல்லப்பட்டிருக்கக்கூடியவார்த்தைகளை அதாவது (any other religious charity shall be deemed to be a religious endowment . . .) என்றிருப்பதைச் சுர்ந்து பார்க்க வேண்டும். Deemed என்ற வார்த்தைக்கு எவ்வளவு power இருக்கிறது என்று பார்க்கவேண்டும். ஆகையால் இந்தமாதிரி வார்த்தையை போட்டதினால் அவன்டம் உள்ள மானியம் கோவில் Endowment-ஐச் சேர்ந்ததானது என்று விசாரிக்கவே இடமின்றி அது கோவில் Endowment-ஐச் சேர்ந்தது என்று முடிவுசெறி விடுகிறது. அது சரியல்ல—நியாமம் அல்ல என்பதுதான் எங்கள் வாதம்."

"இப்போது அர்ச்சகர்களை வேண்டுமானாலும் தள்ளிவிடுங்கள். உங்களுக்குப் பிடித்தமான கோவில் ஓதுவார் ஒத்தி ஊதி, மாலைகட்டி மற்ற பலருடைய தலையிலே இந்த சட்டம் கைவைத்து விடுகிறது. ஆகையால் நீங்கள் எல்லோரும் இதை நன்றாக யோசித்து இந்த திருத்தத்தை ஒப்புக் கொள்ளவேண்டுமென்பது எனது அபிப்பிராயம். அவ்வாறு ஒப்புக் கொள்ளும்படியும் உங்களை தயவு செய்து கேட்டுக்கொள்ளுகிறேன்."

SRI N. ANNAMALAI PILLAI :—"கனம் தலைவர் அவர்களே, கனம் N. S. வரதாச்சாரி அவர்கள் கொண்டுவந்திருக்கிற திருத்தத்தை ஆதரித்து சில வார்த்தைகளைச் சொல்லப்போகின்றேன். நான் இப்பொழுது பேசும் பொழுது திருத்தத்தை ஆதரித்துப் பேசுவது எல்லோருக்கும் வேடிக்கையாகவும், விந்தையாகவும் இருக்கும். ஏனென்றால் பொது மக்கள் ஜனங்களிடத்தில் ஒரு பரபரப்பும், கோவில்களைப் பார்த்தால் ஒரு விருகிற்ப்பும் ஏற்பட்டிருக்கிறது. கோவிலிலிருக்கும் கல்லை கழுவ

கிறார்கள் என்றும், இன்னும் கடவுள் இல்லை என்றும், அவைகளுக்கு மான்யம் எதற்கு என்றும், விளக்குப்போடுவது எதற்கு என்றும், பூஜை எதற்கு என்றும், மணியடிப்பதும், கற்பூர ஹாரத்தி முதலியவைகளைச் செய்வது மிகவும் பைதயக்காரத்தனமாக இருக்கிறது என்றும் இப்பொழுது கருப்புச்சட்டைக்காரர்கள் வெளியே டேசுகிறார்கள். அவர்கள் பேசுவதற்கு ஏற்றாற்போல் இம்மாதிரி சட்டம் செய்வது ஹிந்து மதத்தைக் கேவலப்படுத்துவதாகும். எங்கள் ஜில்லாவில் திருவண்ணாமலை கேஷத் திரத்தில் சுமார் ஆயிரம் வருஷங்களாக ஒரு பரம்பரை குருக்கள் வேலை செய்துகொண்டு இருக்கிறார்கள். அங்குள்ள கோவில்களில் அர்ச்சகம் செய்கின்ற குருக்கள்கள் ஆயிரம் வருஷமாக இருக்கிறார்கள். பிரிட்டிஷ் சாம்ராஜ்யம் ஏற்பட்ட காலத்திலிருந்து வெகு நாட்கள்வரையிலும் கூட அந்தக் கோவிலுக்கு அர்ச்சகர்களே தர்மகர்த்தாவாக இருந்தார்கள். அந்தக் கோவிலில் சுமார் ரூபாய் இருபது டீசம் மதிப்புள்ள நகைகளிருக்கின்றன. அதிக தொகை மதிப்புள்ள நகைகள் இருக்கின்றன. எனக்கு அவ்வளவாக மதிப்பு தெரியாது. அவ்வளவு பெரிய மதிப்புள்ள நகைகளையும், சொத்துகளையும் அந்த அர்ச்சகர்கள் தான் பாதுகாத்து வந்தார்கள். அது மாதிரமல்ல. ஆகமங்கள், புராணங்கள், ஸாஸ்திரங்கள், விதிகள் எல்லாவற்றையும் அவர்கள் பாதுகாத்து வந்தார்கள். அவைகளை யெல்லாம் இன்றைக்கு நம்முடைய கையில் கொடுத்திருக்கிறார்கள். அதை நாம் சீர்திருத்தம் செய்ய ஆரம்பித்து இருக்கிறோம். இவ்விதம் நாம் ஆரம்பிப்பதற்கு முன்னால் ஒரு கோவிலுள்ள அர்ச்சகர் ஒருவருக்கு சம்பளம் ரூ. 4. பூஜை செய்கிறவர்களுக்கு அதாவது சின்ன குருக்களுக்கு சம்பளம் ரூபாய் மூன்று பிரிட்டிஷ் சர்க்கார் வந்த பிற்பாடு பெரிய குருக்களுக்கு சம்பளம் ரூபாய் எழு. சின்னக் குருக்களுக்கு சம்பளம் ரூபாய் ஆறு என்று ஏற்பாடு செய்திருக்கிறார்கள். அவ்விதம் செய்ததினால் அவர்களுக்கு வருமானம் என்னவென்றால் அவர்கள் கோவில் அர்ச்சகம் செய்து சரிவர காலங்களை நடத்துவதற்காக நவாப் காலத்திலும், கரிகாலசோழன் காலத்திலும் மான்யம் விட்டார்கள். அந்த மான்யம் இன்னும் அவர்களிடமே இருக்கிறது. அதற்காக கோவிலுக்கு தொண்டு செய்துகொண்டு வருகிறார்கள். அதே மாதிரி மத்தளம் கொடுப்பவர்களுக்கும், மேளமடிப்பவர்களுக்கும், ஒத்து வாசிப்பவர்களுக்கும் இன்னும் இதர தொழில் செய்கிற எல்லோருக்கும் மான்யம் விட்டிருக்கிறார்கள். அவர்களுக்கு சம்பளம் கோவிலில் ரூ. 1, 2, 3 தான் கொடுக்கிறார். அதற்குமேல் கிடையாது. அந்த மான்யங்களையெல்லாம் இப்பொழுது எடுத்துவிட்டார்கள். இன்னும் கோவில் களுக்குள்ளே தேவதாசிகள் இருக்கிறார்கள். அவர்களுக்கும் மான்யம் ஒதுக்கி வைத்திருக்கிறார்கள். அவர்களுக்கெல்லாம் கோவிலில் கொடுப்பது ஒரு ரூபாய்தான் சம்பளம். அதனால்தான் அவர்களுக்கு மான்யம் விட்டிருந்தார்கள். இப்பொழுது தேவதாசி முறையை எடுத்துவிட்டார்கள். இப்பொழுது இருந்திருந்தால் அந்த மான்யங்களையும் எடுத்துக்கொண்டிருப்பார்களோ என்பதுதான் எனக்கு சந்தேகமாக இருக்கிறது. அந்தமாதிரியான சொத்துக்களை எந்தப்பலனை அடையவேண்டுமென்று ஒதுக்கிவைத்திருக்கிறார்களோ அந்த சொத்துக்களை இன்றைக்கு நாம் எடுத்துக்கொண்டால் அதாவது அரசாங்கம் எடுத்துக்கொண்டால் அதற்குள்ள உத்யோகஸ்தர்களுக்கும், அர்ச்சகர்களுக்கும் ரூபாய் ஐந்து சம்பளம் கொடுக்கும்படியாக இருக்கும். இன்னும் பஞ்சப்படி ரூ. 25 வேறு கொடுக்கவேண்டும். இந்த மாதிரியான நிலைமை தேவஸ்தானங்களுக்கு ஏற்பட்டு, கயிவுனர்களுக்கும் Endowment மந்திரிக்கும் இந்த வேலைகளைச் செய்யத்தான்முடியும். அதனால் கோவில்களெல்லாம் அஸ்தமித்துப்போய் மூடப்பட்டுவிடும். அவ்விதம் மூடப்பட்டால் என்ன நஷ்டம் என்று சொல்லலாம். நான் சொல்வது என்னவென்றால் அதனால் கருப்புச்சட்டைக்காரர்களுக்கு வெற்றி ஏற்படும் என்பதுதான். ஆகையால் நான் சொல்வது என்னவென்றால் இந்த கோவில் சொத்துக்களையெல்லாம் மைனர் சொத்துக்களாக பாவித்துவைத்து, தாய் தகப்பன் இல்லாத குழந்தைகளின் சொத்துக்களை பாவிப்பதுபோல் இந்த மைனர் சொத்தாகிய கோவில் சொத்தை பாவித்து பாதுகாத்துவைக்கவேண்டாம் என்று கேட்டுக்கொள்ளுகிறேன். கடன் தீவரண சட்டம்

[Sri N. Annamalai Pillai] [16th November 1950]

SRI P. KANDASWAMI PILLAI:—“கனம் தலைவர் அவர்களே, கனம் வரதாச்சாரியார் அவர்களுடைய திருத்தம் என்ன வென்பதை புரிந்து கொள்ளாமல் எனது நண்பர் கனம் அண்ணாமலை பிள்ளை அவர்கள் ரொம்ப தூரம் பேசி இருக்கிறார்கள். கனம் இராஜாஜி காலத்தில் தான் சொன்னது என்ன விஷயம் என்பதை அவர்கள் புரிந்து கொள்ளவில்லை என்பதை நான் பகிரங்கமாகக் கூறுகிறேன். அவ்விதம் புரிந்து கொள்ளாமலேயே அதைப்பற்றி பேசிவிட்டார்கள். இப்பொழுது Service inam என்றிருக்கிறது. ஒரு கோவிலுக்கு ஊழியம் செய்யவேண்டுமென்றிருந்து அந்த ஊழியத்தை அவன் சரியாக செய்யாமலிருந்து அதனுடைய பலனை அடைய முடியாமலிருக்கும்படி செய்து விட்டாலும், அல்லது அந்த ஊழியத்தை அவன் செய்ய தவறிவிட்டாலும் அல்லது அந்த ஊழியத்திற்கு என்று ஏற்பட்டுள்ள காரியத்திற்கு மாறாக காரியங்களைச் செய்தாலும் அந்த சொத்துக்களை அவனால் அனுபவிக்க முடியாமல் செய்து பொது சொத்தாக எடுத்து கொள்ளப்படும் என்பது தான் இப்பொழுது கொண்டுவரப்பட்டிருக்கும் சட்டம். அந்த விஷயத்தைப்பற்றி சொல்லும் காலத்தில் கனம் பாஷ்யம் அய்யங்கார் அர்ச்சகர் என்றால் கோபம் வரும் என்றும் மற்றப்படி மேனக்காரர்கள் என்றும், மாலை கட்டி என்றும், ஒதுவார் என்றும், பிரித்துக்கட்டி பேசினார். அவர் அவ்விதம் பேசும் போது மனதில் எதையோ வைத்துக் கொண்டு தான் பேசினார். காளி கோவில்களில் பூசாரிகள் இருக்கிறார்கள். அங்குள்ள பூசாரிகள் பிராமணர்களல்ல. என்பதை அவருக்குத் தெரியப்படுத்துகிறேன். ஒவ்வொரு ஊரிலும் அப்படித்தானிருக்கிறார்கள். எங்கள் ஊரில் ஒரு கோவில் இருக்கிறது. அங்கு பூஜை செய்யவேண்டுமென்று நிலம் கொடுக்கப்பட்டு பட்டாவும் கொடுத்திருக்கிறார்கள். அவ்விதமிருக்கும் பொழுது அங்குள்ளவர்-தான் செய்யவேண்டிய ஊழியத்தைச் செய்யாமல் அந்தக் கோவில் இடத்தில் ஒரு ம. கலையை வைத்து நடத்தினார். இப்பொழுது யார் வந்தாலும் அதைப் பார்க்கலாம். இவ்விதமான நிலைமையில் தூற்றுக்கணக்கான கோவில்களிருக்கின்றன. இவைகளை யெல்லாம் தடை செய்ய வேண்டாமா வென்று கேட்கிறேன்.

“மற்றப்படி சிதம்பரத்திலுள்ள தீட்சதர்கள் ஒரு வேலைக்கும் போவதில்லை என்று அவர் சொன்னார். அது முற்றிலும் பிசுரு, அங்குள்ள தீட்சதர்களுக்கு வேதனாக்களை வாடகைக்கு ஒடுவதுதான் வேலை. இன்னும் கோழிச் சாண்ட விடுவதும், பந்தயம் வைப்பதும் தான் அவர்களுக்கு வேலை.

16th November 1950] [Sri P. Kandaswami Pillai]

இன்றைய தினம் என்னுடன் வந்தால் அதை நான் காண்பிக்கிறேன். அவர்கள் வேறு வேலையில் ஈடுபடவில்லை என்று சொல்வது தவறு. ஆகவே இம்மாதிரியான அபிப்பிராயங்களை புதுத்த வேண்டாமென்று கேட்டுக் கொள்ளுகிறேன். ஆகையினால் இப்பொழுது கனம் வரதாச்சாரியார் அவர்கள் கொண்டுவந்த திருத்தத்திற்கே அவ்விதமில்லை. அது நியாயமும் இல்லை. ஒரு தொழிலைச் செய்யவேண்டுமென்று ஒரு பொருளை எழுது வைத்திருந்து அந்தத் தொழிலை சரியாக செய்யாவிட்டால் அதை மெது ஜன சொத்தாக சர்க்கார் மாற்றியமைக்கவேண்டும். அவ்விதம் செய்வதுதான் பொது ஜன சர்க்காரின் கடமையுமாகும். பொது ஜன நன்மைக்காகவும், கேஷமத்திற்காகவும்தான் அந்த சொத்துக்களை கொடுத்தார்கள். தர்மங்களைச் செய்ய வேண்டுமென்பதற்காகத்தான் அவைகளைக் கொடுத்தார்கள். எந்தக்காரியத்திற்காக அவைகளைக் கொடுத்தார்களோ அதைச் செய்யாமலிருந்தால் அதை நல்ல முறையிலுள்ள காரியங்களுக்கு உபயோகப்படும்படியாகச் செய்யவேண்டியது அரசாங்கத்தினுடைய கடமை. ஆகவே இந்தத் திருத்தம் பொறுத்தமானது அல்ல. இதை ஏதே அங்கீகரிக்கவே கூடாது என்று கேட்டுக்கொண்டு கனம் வரதாச்சாரியார் அவர்கள் கொண்டு வந்த இந்த திருத்தத்தை நான் எதிர்த்தேன்.”

SRI R. V. SWAMINATHAN:—“Mr. Speaker, Sir, I should also like to speak in Tamil.”

MR. SPEAKER:—“I have no objection to the hon. Member speaking in Tamil, but the difficulty is that we have got only two reporters and they will find it difficult to take down if all the Members go on speaking in Tamil. Let the hon. Member make his remarks very briefly.”

SRI R. V. SWAMINATHAN:—“I shall be very brief, Sir. I am going to speak only two or three sentences.

“தலைவர் அவர்களே! கனம் பாஷ்யம் அவர்கள் பேசும்போது மிக அழகாகப் பேசினார்கள். அவர்கள் மிக்க காரசாரமாக எல்லாவற்றிற்கும் பதில் சொன்னார்கள். அவர்கள் பிரகாரம் பார்த்தாலேயே எனக்கு ஒரு சந்தேகம் வருகிறது. அதை நிவர்த்திக்கவேண்டும். சிதம்பரம் தீக்ஷதர்கள் அல்லது கோவில் மாலை கட்டி, மேனக்காரன் முதலியவர்களுக்கு இப்போது மானியம் கொடுத்திருப்பதாக வைத்துக்கொள்வோம். இப்போது இந்த சட்டப் பிரகாரம் அவர்களுக்கு முன்பு கொடுக்கப்பட்ட நிலங்களும் (Endowment) போர்டையே சேர்ந்ததாகிவிடுமென்றால் அந்த ஏழை எளியவர்களின் கதி என்ன ஆகுமென்று கேட்டார்கள். ஆனால், ஒன்று கேட்கிறேன். அவர் சொல்லும் விஷயம் நியாயமானதுதான். இந்தந்தக் காரியத்தைச் செய்யவேண்டுமென்று மானியம் கொடுக்கப்பட்டிருக்கும்போது அவர்கள் அந்தக் காரியத்தைச் செய்யாவிட்டால் என்ன செய்வது என்று கேட்கிறேன். அந்த மாதிரி குறிப்பிட்ட காரியங்களைச் செய்யத் தவறினால் அவர்களை டிஸ்பீஸ் செய்துவிட வேண்டுமெனலாம், உண்மை. ஆனால், குறிப்பிட்ட ஒரு காரியத்தைச் செய்யவேண்டுமென்று கொடுக்கப்பட்ட மானியம் தனிப்பட்ட மனிதன் பேரில் இருக்கிறது. அவன் அம்மாதிரி காரியங்களை சரிவர செய்யவில்லையென்று அவனை டிஸ்பீஸ் செய்தாலும், அவன் பேரிலுள்ள பட்டாவை எப்படி மாற்றமுடியும். இவனை நீக்கிவிட்டு வேறு ஒருவனை அந்த இடத்தில் கொண்டு வந்து அமர்த்தினால் அவனுக்கு அதே காரியத்தைத் தொடர்ந்து நடத்த அந்த மானியத்தையே கொடுக்க வேண்டுமென்றால் எப்படி சாத்தியமாகும்? இந்தச் சட்டத்தின்படி அவன் அந்தக் காரியத்தைச் சரியாக நடத்தவில்லையென்றால் அவனைத் தொகுத்து மத ஸ்தூபன இலாகாவுடன் சேர்த்துக்கொண்டு விடுவதால் மறுபடியும் அதே வேலையைத் தொடர்ந்து நடத்த வேண்டுமென்று யாரையாவது போட்டால் அந்த மானியத்தை புதிதாக வருஷவாசகங்களுக்குக் கொடுத்து வேலை சரிவர நடக்கும்படி செய்யமுடியும். இப்படிச் செய்யாவிட்டால் ஒருவன் குறிப்பிட்ட காரியத்தை

[Sri R. V. Swaminathan] [16th November 1950]

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI :—“கனம் தலைவர் அவர்களே! எனது நண்பர் ஸ்ரீமான் கந்தசாமி பிள்ளை அவர்கள், ஸ்ரீமான் அண்ணாமலை பிள்ளை அவர்கள் இந்த திருத்தத்தைப் புரிந்து கொள்ளவில்லையென்று குறிப்பிட்டார். ஸ்ரீமான் கந்தசாமி பிள்ளை அவர்களும் இந்த திருத்தத்தைப் புரிந்து கொள்ளவில்லையென்பதை நான் உங்களுக்குத் தெரிவிக்க ஆசைப்படுகிறேன்.

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—“Mr. Speaker, Sir, the amendment moved by my hon. Friend Mr. N. S. Varadachari is not for the omission of the Explanation as some hon. Members have taken it to be. It is not intended to take away the private property of the archakas as my hon. Friend Mr. Annamalai Pillai was led to believe by the very persuasive and humorous speech of my hon. Friend Mr. Bhashyam. I am sorry, Sir, I cannot speak as good a Tamil as some of my other hon. Friends, otherwise I should have preferred to talk in Tamil in order to clear any misapprehensions which some of my hon. Friends might have entertained with regard to the actual intention of the Government so far as Explanation (1) to this sub-clause is concerned. Sir, I was watching very closely the Tamil speech of my hon. Friend Mr. K. Bhashyam in order to find out what his arguments are and whether he was really supporting the amendment of Mr. N. S. Varadachari or not. But I may say, that apart from the pleasing and humorous way in which he was trying to say something in reply to the remarks of my hon. Friend Mr. Kosalram, for obvious reasons, he did not actually speak anything about the amendment itself, nor has he uttered a word in support of or against the amendment, and when I deliberately got up and pointed out to you, Sir, that he was not speaking on the amendment, he simply retorted by saying that it was for the Chair to call him to order, if he was not relevant. Sir, the amendment moved by my hon. Friend Mr. N. S. Varadachari to the Explanation is for the omission of these words,—‘shall not be deemed to be a personal gift to the archaka, service-holder or employee, but’, from that Explanation. If that amendment is accepted, the Explanation will read as follows:—

‘Any inam granted to an archaka, service-holder or other employee of a religious institution for the performance of any service or charity in or connected with a religious institution shall be deemed to be a religious endowment.’

He wants the retention of the words ‘shall be deemed to be a religious endowment’ at the end of the Explanation. He wants the omission only of the negative portion of the explanation, but has no objection to the retention of the positive portion. Sir, I remember that in the Select Committee my hon. Friend Mr. Bhashyam moved an amendment for the deletion of the positive portion of the Explanation which was not accepted, but which if it had been moved here would have cut at the root of the whole thing. But Mr. Bhashyam knows that even if the amendment for the omission of the negative portion is accepted, it would not make much difference and would not affect the explanation very much, so long as the positive portion is retained. That is why, Sir, I suppose, he was not very serious in either speaking in support of or against the amendment of Mr. N. S. Varadachari. But I submit, Sir, that so long as the positive portion is there, there is nothing wrong in having the negative clause also there.

“Sir, in this connection, I want to say one thing about the Explanation itself. Neither my hon. Friend, Mr. Bhashyam, nor Mr. Kosalram, nor Mr. Swaminathan has really understood the true implication of the Explanation or the amendment of my hon. Friend Mr. N. S. Varadachari. Mr. Bhashyam was explaining as if the Explanation implies that if a blower of the conch or the Nathaswaram, or the person who makes garlands or the person who rings the bell or beats the drum in a temple or religious institution, has any inam or property, that property will be deemed as the property of the endowment, if he does not perform or ceases to perform the duties and services, which he has been doing in that institution. I am afraid, Sir, that that is not at all the idea of the Government and that is not a correct understanding of the Explanation. It is not the intention of the Government to touch any of the private properties of these people. It is wrong to presume that the private property of the archakas or the service-holders of the temple will be deemed as the property of the temple of the services are not performed. There is a condition precedent to this presumption, in this Explanation which must be satisfied. It is not any property which a service-holder possesses that will come within the scope of this Explanation. I want my hon. Friend Mr. Annamalai Pillai to understand this point clearly, because he seems to have been led away by the speech of my hon. Friend Mr. Bhashyam that the Explanation takes away even the private property of the archaka, if he does not perform the duties assigned to him. Sir, my hon. Friend Mr. Bhashyam said in Tamil—‘ஏதாவது சொத்து இருந்திருந்தால் அந்த சொத்தை யெல்லாம் பிடுக்கி விடப்படும்.’

That is exactly where he is wrong, and that is the point which I want to make clear to my hon. Friends. The explanation says—

Please mark the words ‘for the performance of any service or charity in or connected with a religious institution’. That is the condition precedent to the presumption, ‘that it shall be deemed as a religious endowment’, so that in every case of an inam granted to a service-holder, if it is to be deemed as a religious endowment, it must be examined whether it has been granted for the purpose of service or charity in that institution. It is not any property which an archaka has, because he is an archaka, that is deemed to be the property of the religious endowment. It is only the inam granted for the performance of a particular service or charity that comes within the scope of this explanation and it shall alone be deemed as a religious endowment, if the specific service is not performed. Therefore this first condition, that the inam has been granted for the specific performance of a service, must be satisfied and then only the other things follow. Then where is the harm in retaining this provision? Is it not right to say that if an inam is granted to an archaka or a service holder for the specific performance of a service to a religious institution, it shall not be treated as a personal gift to the service-holder? That is why, Sir, I cannot accept the amendment of my hon. Friend Mr. N. S. Varadachari, so long as the condition is there.

“Sir, hon. Mr. Varadachari asked, where is the power to resume the inam under this legislation? He said that all that we can do is, we can ask the trustees to keep accounts under clause 60 of this Bill and it is only a question of contribution. Sir, if an archaka does not perform his duties, if as my hon. Friend Mr. Kosalram has said, there are hundreds of cases in his district where the service-holders had not performed their duties, but have sold away those endowment properties, and if as my hon. Friend Mr. Kandaswami Pillai has said that he had known of a case where a person had actually converted a particular institution into a tea-shop—in all these cases if it is proved that that property was given to that person for the specific performance of a service or charity, the Commissioner of the Hindu Religious Endowments or the authorities of the temple concerned, will be entitled to move the Collector of the district to resume the inam, and that is why, Sir, control is necessary and that is the only control we have, over these religious institutions and religious endowments. Sir, my hon. Friend Mr. N. S. Varadachari was so much obsessed with the conditions that are obtaining in the Tirupathi temple which is one of the best Hindu religious institutions where ideal conditions exist, that he thinks that the same ideal conditions would prevail in every place. I submit, Sir, that the Commissioner of the Hindu Religious Endowments has the power to move the Collector to resume an inam, provided it has been granted for the specific performance of a service in a religious institution, and if that service is not performed by the service holder.”

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—“A word of personal explanation, Sir. I think the Hon. the Minister for Law has not been fair to me when he said that I did something which was not quite correct or that I exaggerated a bit. All that I said related to the case that the present service holder in a temple was given some service inam for performing archana (any private person may give an inam to the archaka for performing archana in a temple). He may tell the archaka ‘you really perform archana every day in the temple, and for that purpose you enjoy this manyam property’. The archana is for the benefit of the person who makes that inam. I ask, is it open to the Commissioner to say that it is a religious endowment, and, therefore, it should come under the provisions of this Bill. I want to know whether that property is really subject to the control of the Commissioner. That is all I want to know. (Interruption.) Sir, I will repeat what I said. What I said was not that every property which an Archaka or service holder had got, would be taken over by the Commissioner. No such thing can happen or will happen. If the Hon. the Minister understood me that way, it is because either he did not understand Tamil properly or that my Tamil was not clear enough for that purpose. My intention was only this. Suppose a person is now doing work as a service holder in a temple. I give that man one acre of land and tell him ‘you take the income from this land; do some service in the temple in the sense that you remember me to God every day; you go to the temple, stand before the deity and utter a few mantrams, and say “May Bhashyam and his family prosper”’. This is what is being done in Tirupathi temple every day. There are so many manyams made by the Maharaja of Mysore in Tirupathi. He has endowed lands for the temple. The lands are given to the Archaka or the person who renders the service. Are those lands to be brought under the provisions of this Bill under cover of religious endowments? If that is so, I stand corrected. If it is not intended to be so, I think it requires a little modification."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, the instances quoted by the hon. Member Mr. Bhashyam of particular individuals making endowments for worshipping God for the benefit of themselves and their families can never become a service or charity connected with a religious institution. It is a charity connected with the individuals concerned. If the hon. Member Mr. Bhashyam wants X, Y or Z to pray in a temple for his own good, it is not a charity or service connected with the religious institution. Therefore, it cannot come under the provisions of this Bill."

SRI N. S. VARADACHARI:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wish to reply to the Hon. the Minister at some length. I wish to reply to all the points raised by the Hon. the Minister. My appeal to him is to drop the Explanation altogether. But failing that . . . (Interruption). I am not asking the Government to do that now, though they have the right, on their own initiative, after being convinced of the soundness of the case, to withdraw it altogether at any stage of the proceedings. Let me answer all the points one by one. I am aware that it applied only to inams given on service tenure. It does not refer to the other private property which the Archaka may hold. I do not also agree that there is no other power, if the service is not rendered, for the Government to resume the lands. There is abundant power reserved for Government in other Acts to resume the inam in case the service is not performed. If Government have not done so even on proved suspension—or absolute neglect of the service—the blame is more on Government than on the person rendering the service or is expected to render the service. Sir, through you, I want to inform the hon. Member Mr. Swaminathan that if a service holder of an inam does not render the service, he cannot continue in possession of the service inam. There is ample power for the Government to expel him from the inam which he holds. Even if that inam has been alienated in favour of another man, the burden of service will devolve on the alienee. He cannot escape the burden of service. That is the law as it stands to-day. It is the law and the practice also. If for instance a sharer in a village has alienated the lands in favour of a third party, who may not be the person who performs the service to-day, the burden of performing the service equally rests on the other man along with the members of his family. These points being absolutely clear, there is every case for the service holder to ask for these small mercies at the hands of the Government. The Commissioner need not move in the matter, and there is no need also for the Commissioner to move in the matter. The Commissioner is already overburdened with various duties. Why should we burden him with this empty duty of looking into the service tenure holders' records? It is not a proper thing for him to do. I would ask the Government to desist from that path.

"The second point raised by the Hon. the Minister is this, namely, 'why do you want the negative to be omitted when you concede the positive'. I say, Sir, 'if you do not give the whole bread, at least give one-half'. If it is specified in an inam document that it is a personal gift to the Archaka, I tell the Hon. the Minister that in spite of the declaration contained in the document itself, a new interpretation will be given to it on account of this provision that it shall not be deemed to be a personal gift. It does not apply to the cases cited by the hon. Member Mr. Bhashyam. If one wants to perform Sahasranama Archana every day in Tirupathi temple, and he has got an agent for the purpose there, there is no inam behind it. If it is a few hundreds of rupees given to him, or it is a common contribution, or even if it is a question of a few acres of land, it will certainly not be an inam. There is no grant in that case. But the case I am pointing out is different. Sir, the hon. Member Mr. Annamalai Pillai drew pointed attention to the fact that Archakas and other temple servants got only a nominal salary. Why was this low salary fixed? I will explain to the Hon. the Minister. In those days there were no communications, no roads, and no bus transport. People had to render service under very difficult conditions. It was just possible that they ran away from one place to another. So, it was the intention of the original donors not to tempt the temple servants with cash which could be dropped and the service abandoned, but to tie to them a piece of land and make them render service in the temple from day to day and from generation to generation. What a good and noble object! Why are the Government looking at all that with a very bad eye? I say these Archakas are good people. The other service holders also are good people. They are very honourable men who have taken upon themselves the duty of rendering service in the temple not from the paltry income which they got from the inam village they possessed, but from other collections and income which the other members of their families were getting towards the upkeep of the service. I am sorry that the Hon. the Minister did not understand the force and the significance behind my appeal. The force of the argument is really this. If really the Government do not want any control of any character, administrative or financial, then why call it control and why include it as a religious endowment? It would be better to leave it severely alone. The other argument is that the Government unwittingly would have prevented many people from seeking this kind of noble service. It is as good a service as any that is being attempted by us. The attempt now made is to convert every such village into a religious endowment. Even a future owner (who is not the present owner of that inam) will think one hundred times before he enters any such service. The Government are really detracting

him from the dignity of the temple service. They really have obstructed the progress of worship in temples, if ever they believe in temple worship. I say this in the interests of peace, harmony and well being of the people. The hon. Member Mr. Annamalai Pillai rightly raised the question of minors; not those who have come of age, but those who are unprotected; those who seek the Government protection; those who are at present helpless and have no representation anywhere; those who made no representation to the Government when this Bill was passed, and who are not influential. I say that the Government should really go back on their original decision and exempt all such inams from being brought under 'religious endowments'. The other Act deals with land tenures. It even seeks to deprive them of whole village inams. I do not object to that. But if it is a minor inam, it seeks to make them the sole proprietors. Thus there is considerable anomaly between the two. As I pointed out the other day, even if it be the Government's intention, I still forcefully appeal to them to withdraw this Explanation altogether, if not now at least at a later stage, and then come to the conclusion that all our people are not so bad. There is still hope for us. There is still good sense and good feeling in the country. There are still people anxious to render service of a difficult and very unattractive character. It is not all who aspire to get to these small things. Mr. Speaker, Sir, many of these Archakas are regarded as inferior even in their own sect. Nobody intermarries with them, and sometimes people even do not interdine with them. They are considered as something apart from the community to which they belong. It is very unfortunate. My conscience revolts against such treatment being meted out to such good, respectable and honest citizens. I know at least of some Archakas in Tirupathi who, after the grant of the village to them, have developed beautiful gardens. They have devoted their whole time and attention to agriculture and improvement of the soil. Now the Government are trying to lay their hands unnecessarily on their shoulders. The Government should not frighten them. They should be gentle and deal with them in a very honourable manner. I say there is nothing wrong in leaving out this Explanation. What would happen if the Explanation is left out? If this negative presumption is left out, what would happen? The Hon. the Minister said nothing in reply to that. The positive would be there, and he should be content with that. Why should the negative be there? The check reminds me of things happening even in temples. We go to the temple with all sorts of strange dress. Yet the Archaka does not refuse to honour the man who goes in his whimsical way. There are ways prescribed. But the person goes there in his own dress and in his own way. He may even insult the Archaka inside the temple. But still the Government want control over him. I do not know what control it is—empty control and useless control which may result in petty harassment. There is nothing else in that control. If all that control is taken away, I will be glad. I am glad that the Hon. Mr. Madhava Menon has made it clear that there is no control of any sort except the only control that the Commissioner may move for the resumption of the endowment if the service is not performed. I hope that will stand as law and not as mere obiter dicta."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, my hon. Friend Sri Varadachari mentioned by way of answer that if this amendment were not accepted and if there was a document containing a statement that it was a personal gift to a particular Archaka, this Explanation would deem it as a religious endowment. It is not so, Sir, because we are talking forgetting the main clause that we have already passed. The main clause says that 'religious endowment' or 'endowment' does not include gifts of property made as personal gifts to the archaka, service-holder or other employee of a religious institution. We have already passed it.

"Hon. Sri Varadachari asked me what the objection was to remove the negative thing. It is because we have already said that personal gifts of property shall not be deemed to be religious endowments. Now we only say that gifts made for the purpose of a service shall not be treated as personal gifts. It is necessary because the other thing has already been passed."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The question is—

'That the words "shall not be deemed to be a personal gift to the archaka, service-holder or employee" shall be omitted.'"
The amendment was lost.

Explanation (2).

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, I move—

'That Explanation (2) may be deleted.'"

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, in view of the Government amendment to the proviso to substitute 'before the commencement of this Act' for the words 'before the 2nd day of April 1946', I do not think my hon. Friend is pressing his amendment."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"It is only in view of the Government amendments that we have given notice of our amendments. Somehow in spite of our greatest attempt both on the part of myself and my hon. Friend Sri Bhashyam, we have not been able to persuade the Hon. Minister and get the language modified. He believes that he is right. We are at pains to show him that his explanation is not borne out by the language. That is why I want the deletion of both these Explanations. We have done with one Explanation and come to Explanation (2). We must be very clear as to what is a religious endowment. In the main Clause, as the Hon. Minister has now pointed out, it is said that personal gifts of property do not constitute religious endowments. He has given it with the right hand and in Explanation (1) he has taken away with the left hand what he has given in the main Clause.

"Now we are dealing with Explanation (2) which runs as follows:—

'All property which belonged to, or was given or endowed for the support of a religious institution, or which was given or endowed for the performance of any service or charity shall be deemed to be a "religious endowment" or "endowment" within the meaning of this definition, notwithstanding that, before or after the commencement of this Act, the religious institution has ceased to exist or ceased to be used as a place of religious worship or instruction or the service or charity has ceased to be performed.'

Even if the institution has ceased to exist and even if the man is willing to perform the services, still the provision says it shall be deemed to be a religious endowment. In this connexion, I might point out that these grants are generally divided by persons who have written some text-books into four classes. The question of resumption depends upon the terms or nature of the grant in each particular case. That is the general proposition on which I want to lay emphasis. For 150 years the documents which made the grants have been investigated, closely scrutinized and commented upon by the Courts in this country and they have all come to the conclusion that in the case of these inam grants, each grant must be investigated on its own language and a decision arrived at. No general proposition such as the present one can be laid down. Of course, Hon. Sri Madhava Menon may say that it may be Courts have thought that for 150 years people have followed a particular doctrine but that to-day as Members of a Legislature we have a right to change it. But when we want to change long-established titles, usages, customs and legal presumptions, we must be very careful that we do not hurt people. Why? Because people have relied upon the laws and those who have relied upon the laws of this country shall not be prejudiced or affected on account of subsequent legislation. That is why whenever any prejudice occurs on account of subsequent legislation, the Constitution provides for something to compensate that man. I submit that this definition and these Explanations trench upon the language of Clause 2 of Article 81 of the Constitution. There are four classes of grants. The first class relates to grants of a public nature, i.e., grants which involve police or magisterial duties. The second class consists of grants for services, private or personal. Private or personal grants may again be of two kinds. Either the grants may be burdened with services or the grant may be in lieu of remuneration for services. There is a great difference between these two which I want the Hon. Minister to appreciate. These are certain types of cases which are familiar to us who belong to this portion of the State and which people coming from Malabar are not very familiar with. I do not suggest that the Hon. Minister does not know these things as much as we know. But just as we do not understand, although we were all students of law, the difference between kanamdar and kuzhikanamdar and all those as clearly as the Hon. Minister does, so also we who have been dealing with these inams, who have been in the midst of these inams and observing the practice here, want him to understand that there is a difference between grants of estates burdened with services and grants given in lieu of remuneration for services. It is there the confusion has arisen because that difference has not been appreciated. Of course, it is a matter for interpretation and unless you see the terms of the grant, it is impossible to say whether it is a grant burdened with services or one given as remuneration for the performance of some duties. Different consequences are produced in the two cases. Unless these things are clearly noted from the terms of the grant, the law cannot say that it is an endowment. Here it is a matter of interpretation. If it is a matter for presumption, although I am not willing, I shall reconcile myself because there will be a chance for the other side to show whether it is a grant burdened with services or grant in lieu of wages. Here the Government give him no option at all. For 200 years they have given that option in the Hereditary Village-offices Act, Proprietary Estates Act and the Estates Abolition Act. That option is given even in the other Amending Bill which is before the Select Committee. In the face of all these things, we are now going to this position and say that 'all these shall be deemed to be religious endowments.' I am not able to understand it.

"As regards the Government amendment, only the date is changed to the date of commencement of this Act, when passed. Therefore, I move my amendment, Sir."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"I beg to second the amendment, Sir."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Amendment moved—
'That Explanation (2) be deleted'."

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI:—"Sir, in supporting this amendment, I would like to place before you a few facts. This seems to be an omnibus Explanation. Anything connected with religion seems to come within the terms of this Explanation which says—

'All property which belonged to, or was given or endowed for the support of a religious institution, or which was given or endowed for the performance of any service or charity of a public nature connected therewith or of any other religious charity shall be deemed to be a "religious endowment" or "endowment" within the meaning of this definition,

Therefore, I do not think anything is let out of this Explanation. I am unable to understand how any Government, however powerful it may be, will be able to properly supervise all these endowments. To my mind it seems that it will be misused more than properly used. I will only say that so far as these charitable endowments are concerned, the Government are not taking them all at once. Under the amended Clause 3 which we have now passed, the Government have to state whether a charitable endowment has been mismanaged or not and if they are satisfied that it is mismanaged, then it can be brought within the scope of this Bill. But the Government are not going to have enough machinery to supervise all these various kinds of endowments. The only thing is, if there are some opponents to the Government who will be in power at any time, the Government will simply lay their hands on some property, charity or endowment of the party who is not amenable to the Government and say, 'Your endowment is mis-managed and, therefore, I bring it under the clutches of law.' This I want to avoid. It is better that the Government now take up only such of the endowments as they want to bring under their control and not any charity or anything connected in any way with religion on the face of it. If they think of bringing under the clutches of law all kinds of charities connected with religion, however small they may be, in spite of the fact that they may not be able to cope with all the work, I submit that it is likely to be misused by Government for political ends. I shall quote one instance here. There is a temple in my district where the Executive Officer mismanaged the whole property. By bringing this temple under the Religious Endowments Act, we have not been able to prevent it. The Government have appointed trustees for the temple. The trustees were asked, 'What has happened?'. They said that the Executive Officer had misappropriated. At once an order was received by the trustees that they had been removed from service because they had not been able to control the Executive Officer and make him discharge his duties properly but allowed him to misappropriate the property. On the other hand, no action was taken against the Executive Officer himself. He was simply transferred. This seems to be the sort of control which the Government are going to have over these endowments.

"One word more regarding the proviso. Hon. Sri Madhava Menon said that in view of what is contained in the proviso and the proposed subsequent amendment of the Government, everything would be all right. It is not so. I do not think that this proviso will ever confer any rights on any person. It is just like a Clause which comes at the end of this Bill and says, 'Nothing contained here shall be deemed to be in contravention of the fundamental rights of the Constitution . . . and so on. Even if the Government did not say so, the position will be the same and nothing can be in contravention of the Constitution. Similarly, even if you do not say in the Explanation that the Clause shall not be deemed to apply in respect of any property which had vested in any person before a particular date, by the operation of the law of limitation and all that, the position will be the same, and the law of limitation will certainly be there and the Government cannot do anything even by statute that is in contravention of the same. I do not think that we are going to say that a property that is already vested in a person will be taken back."

SRI D. V. RAMASWAMI:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, when the Hon. Minister for Law justified the retention of Explanation (1) I was able to understand that. Because he refers specifically to the provision that an inam is granted to an archaka for a specific service. There, the service is linked with the grant of inam. When the grant is so very clear, certainly there is some force in the argument that when the service is abandoned or is not done or is neglected, the person must not be entitled to the inam as it cannot be taken as a personal gift. But, when we come to Explanation (2), it is a matter of great surprise to me that any inam granted to a person for a particular charity should be taken away from the persons concerned once the religious institution ceased to exist and so on. When it is not possible to prove that he has neglected his duty, the person concerned should not be penalised for no fault of his and he should not be deprived of the properties that he might have been enjoying. He might have been rendered incapable of performing the service. In line 5 of this Explanation it says, ' . . . shall be deemed to be a religious endowment or endowment within the meaning of this definition, notwithstanding that, before or after the commencement of this Act, the religious institution has ceased to exist or ceased to be used as a place of religious worship or instruction or the service or charity has ceased to be performed'. My submission is that when a particular service could not be rendered by a person, this Explanation should not militate against that person and he should not be deprived of the enjoyment of the inam. Centuries ago, when these inams were granted, as hon. Member Sri Varadachari said, it was the essentiality of the service that was counted and not the paltry sum that was given to them as wages. Because, such positions were considered to be dignified and valuable they have also become hereditary. Hence I feel that even though the religious institution has ceased to exist or ceased to be used as a place of worship, this Explanation should not militate against the rightful enjoyment of the inamdar or the employee of the institution. I therefore feel that the second Explanation does not hold water and may be dropped."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, coming soon after Explanation (1), many of us are only reminded of inams and so Explanation (2) is also taken as something related to inams. The question of inam may come in here. But I should say that Explanation (2) is really based on this principle. If a person has misappropriated money or property or if a person is in possession of property which belongs to some other person, he should not be allowed to continue to be in the enjoyment of that misappropriated money or property, and that he must be disgorged of what he has unlawfully taken. The last speaker, hon. Member Sri D. V. Ramaswami said that this Explanation should not apply to the inamdars and they should not be made to suffer. Suppose there is a temple for which there is some property and some trustees are appointed for the purpose of managing this property, and something is given to the archakas for performing pujas, etc. If this temple is destroyed at a future date and there was no prospect of its being re-erected what should be done with the properties attached to this temple? Should not the Government or somebody have the right and power to take these properties so that they could be utilized for the public instead of their being enjoyed by a few individuals? Is there any justification or fairness in people keeping the property which was intended for a particular purpose and which was in their possession by accident of circumstances? When a property was endowed for the support of a religious institution or for the performance of any service or charity of a public nature, nobody should be allowed to continue to be in the enjoyment of that property if for any reason the service or charity could not be performed. That is the principle on which this Explanation is based.

"Now coming to hon. Sri Viswanatham's remarks, his dictum is this. The Constitution provides and the jurisprudence demands that those who have relied upon the previous legislation should not be made to pay for and penalised for having done so. That is the principle on which hon. Sri Viswanatham based his argument. But I should point out to him that this Explanation is only a reproduction of the previous legislation. Even in the old Act, we have got the same Explanation, except the words 'of public nature' which we are adding in the present Explanation now under discussion. So there is the existing legislation with regard to this matter and people have relied upon it. Hon. Sri Viswanatham said that those who have relied upon the previous legislation should not be made to pay for and penalised for having done so. We have followed that principle suggested by him in having the same Explanation as in the original Act."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, there was apparently some misunderstanding of the position that I have taken. At present there are some laws. Do the Government want to abrogate all those laws and propound new laws? Whenever they wanted to make any special provision, they used to have a Clause saying, 'Notwithstanding anything in so and so, this shall be the case and so on.' What is to happen after the passing of a particular legislation? Here the Government do not wish to make any reference to the existing laws. They do not make any reference to the existing Standing Orders of the Board of Revenue. The Board of Revenue and the Revenue Department have been dealing with this subject very intimately and elaborately year after year. They have been dealing with cases where inams might have been endowed for charitable and religious purposes."

the Hon. Minister to be clear about his object, so that I can understand his viewpoints clearly, and criticise his proposal. Now there are laws. The Hon. Sri Madhava Menon goes on speaking as if there is no law at present. Don't we have laws with regard to this matter? The Board of Revenue have been passing their Standing Orders from time to time, and they have been in force for a number of years. I may be permitted to read the relevant Standing Order of the Board of Revenue. It says:

'Religious and charitable inams when resumable.—Religious and charitable inams may be resumed on the ground that the whole or a portion of the land in respect of which the title-deed was issued has been alienated or otherwise lost to the institution or service to which it once belonged or that the terms of the grant are not observed. The alienation of the land specified in the title-deed by sale, lease, mortgage or otherwise will not however be treated as an alienation of the inam, if such alienation is subject to the payment to the institution or in support of the service of a sum not less than the net assessment on the land. If an inam is alienated and the service is performed by the alienee, the alienee will be recognized as the inamdar and the inam will not be resumed.'

During the discussion, it was asked by some hon. Members, 'what is the present position of law in regard to this matter?'. If any particular inam is alienated and the service for which the inam was granted was performed by the alienee then the alienee will be recognized as the inamdar and the inam will not be resumed. If, however, he does not perform the service, the inam can be resumed. If the alienee is willing to continue the service, it cannot be resumed. Supposing the institution itself disappears, the properties that might have been granted for performing some specific services in respect of that temple, should be credited to the general revenues. My submission is that these properties would then become part of the general revenues and part of the Consolidated Fund of the State. The Government should bring appropriate legislation by a Money Bill. That is the position, Sir. It is not as if there is no law at present. If an institution has ceased to exist, I do not mean to suggest for a moment that some private individuals should be allowed to take the properties attached to such institutions. The whole position is being canvassed by the Government on a wrong principle. I would only wish to point out that there are provisions even now to deal with cases where the institution might have ceased to exist and with regard to the utilization of the properties attached to such institutions. Are the Government making this provision in supersession of the existing provisions? If it is also to be there side by side with the existing provisions, let there be some correlation between the two. That is what is wanted. I think according to the existing law, it is provided that in certain cases such properties should be handed over to the local bodies, if there were no other parties. So, the local bodies have got a reversionary claim on it were, upon the assets of such institutions. If nothing else has happened, I think it is part of the general revenues. In view of all these, I feel that my amendment is quite in order and the Explanation must be deleted and some full-fledged legislation should be brought forward to cover all these things."

[16th November 1950]

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, there is something new in what the hon. Member, Sri Viswanatham has said. What he said originally was that those who relied upon existing laws should not be made to suffer. Sir, this sub-clause is identical to the existing sub-section in the Act but without the words 'public charity'. Then, he pointed to the Board's Standing Orders. Even under the provisions of this Bill, resumption can be done only by the Board. All that this sub-clause does is that it enables the Commissioner or the Deputy Commissioner to move the Collector to take appropriate action in accordance with the Standing Orders of the Board of Revenue. It does not mean that the property will come into the possession of the Commissioner or the Deputy Commissioner."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The question is—
'Delete Explanation (2) of sub-clause 14.'"

The amendment was lost.

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, I move—
'In the proviso at the end, for the expression "before the 2nd day of April 1946," substitute "before the commencement of this Act."'

The object with which this amendment has been moved is that whatever rights that have accrued under the Statute now in existence, i.e., before this Bill becomes law, should not be affected. It was suggested here during the general discussion of the Bill that the interests of those who had proceeded in the belief that the existing Act would continue should not suffer. This is in deference to that wish expressed by hon. Members."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Amendment moved—

'In the proviso at the end, for the expression "before the 2nd day of April 1946," substitute "before the commencement of this Act."'

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Sir, I am glad that the Government have recognized the justice of making the proviso read 'before the commencement of this Act'. I would, however, like to invite attention to certain specific cases which even this amendment will not cover. Suppose there are properties divided among the members of a family and sold and fall consideration for the same taken. Do the Government take into consideration such cases (P). I feel that such cases will also be covered if the proviso reads 'property which lawfully vested in any person before the commencement of the Act'. That would be more gracious. I would request the Government to amend the proviso in the manner suggested by me, if it is possible for them to do so."

16th November 1950]

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, I submit that it is not necessary to say 'lawfully vested'. The term 'law of limitation' is there because any decree has to be executed within twelve years. When we use the words 'vested in any person' it means 'vested in any person by decree, estoppel or res judicata'. This proviso will apply to all property in whatever manner it vests. After all, it can vest only lawfully and not unlawfully."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The question is—

'In the proviso at the end, for the expression "before the 2nd day of April 1946," substitute "before the commencement of this Act."'

The amendment was carried.

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, I want to raise a point of order. Now that the whole sub-clause stands amended I have got a point to make."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The hon. Member may raise his point of order in the end when the whole clause (clause 6) is put to vote."

Sub-clause (15).

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, I move—

'Delete sub-clause 15.'

I feel that this sub-clause is not necessary, because 'math' has been defined already, 'temple' has been defined already and there is a definition about 'specific endowment' also, all the three meaning 'religious institution'. Yesterday, while discussing a previous sub-clause relating to maths, we said that a 'math' was a religious institution. So also in respect of the other two terms, there is a similar definition. When we have defined these three as a religious institution, where is the need now to define 'religious institution' as math, temple or specific endowment? Why this repetition? Here I am reminded of a discussion which took place once upon a time between two philosophers. One philosopher asked the other 'What is "mind"?' The other man said 'no matter'. Then the first philosopher asked what is 'matter'. The reply came 'never mind'. (Laughter.) This sub-clause looks like that."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"I second the amendment."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Amendment moved—

'Delete sub-clause 15.'

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, the amendment moved by my hon. Friend, Sri Viswanatham, says that the sub-clause is not necessary. I am afraid I cannot accept this view. On the other hand, I feel it is very necessary. In this

[Sri K. Madhava Menon] [16th November 1950]

Bill, we have used the words 'maths,' 'temples' and 'specific endowments' in very many places. Unless we have a simpler expression such as 'religious institution' we have to be repeating these three terms often and often. So, in order to avoid the repetition of such terms in the various clauses, we have adopted the simpler term for all the three, viz. 'religious institution'."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The question is—

'Delete sub-clause 15.'"

The amendment was lost.

MR. SPEAKER:—"The next amendment standing in the name of hon. Sri L. N. Gopalaswami seeks to delete the word 'math' from this sub-clause. There is also another amendment, standing in the name of hon. Sri K. Bhashyam, which is identical to and even more comprehensive than the one proposed by Sri Gopalaswami. I suggest that he withdraws his amendment in view of the more comprehensive one suggested by hon. Sri Bhashyam."

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI:—"I have no objection, Sir. However, it may be that the Government will be inclined to accept my amendment and throw out his." (Laughter.)

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Sir, though I have given notice of only one amendment, it deals with two distinct points and my arguments for one will differ from those for the other. So, I would like to split it into two amendments and move them separately."

MR. SPEAKER:—"In that case, the hon. Member, Sri Gopalaswami, may move his amendment."

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI:—"Sir, I move—

In sub-clause 15, delete the word "math".

My reasons for moving this amendment are these. 'Math' has already been defined as something more than a religious institution. Now a religious institution is sought to be defined as a 'math'. I do not know how the Government reconcile themselves to these things. When we say $X = Y + Z$, how could we say again in the same place $Y = X$ only. I do not understand the meaning of such definitions. 'Math' has been accepted by this House as meaning a Hindu religious institution with properties attached thereto and presided over by a person whose duty it is to engage himself in imparting religious instruction, etc. That being so, to bring 'math' under this sub-clause also, is, if I may use the term, utterly, mischievous. No doubt, the Government have been somewhat kind towards these maths in providing a separate chapter for them in the Bill, where they are dealt with somewhat leniently. But even there, there are certain provisions which are repugnant to the Constitution. So far as the secular activities of a math are concerned, the Government can interfere and there is provision to this effect in the Constitution. But so far as the religious activities of a math are concerned, it is not open to the Government to interfere since the Constitution says, 'you shall not tread on that ground'. By defining 'religious institution' as a 'math' the Government will get certain powers. Even under the limited powers that they will get under Clause 57, the Commissioner or any two persons can put in a petition to the Court for the removal of the trustee of a math. The only condition laid down for this is that the two persons must have 'interest' and this word 'interest' has been defined to include anybody. It was declared here yesterday as a very vague term. All that needs to be satisfied is that they should belong to the Hindu religion, no matter whether they believe in God or worship God. If they tell the Court that the trustee is of unsound mind, then he can be removed. This is what that clause says and what great havoc it will work on the heads of maths is a thing which the Government should realise. It is not as if, as my hon. Friend, Sri Viswanatham, pointed out yesterday, all these matadhipatis are simply trustees of maths. Our religion has a certain aspect in it which is more than a trust. For some of the Matadhipathis, we have very great regard and respect. It may be that certain matadhipatis do not deserve any respect or regard from us. But there are certainly some who never care for property, who have never thought of property all their lives and have remained so with the firm conviction that their lives are dedicated to the propagation of the Hindu religion. Such being the case, with what conscience, I ask, are we to interfere with these maths? The Constitution clearly says—

'Subject to public order, morality and health, every religious denomination or any section thereof shall have the right—

- (a) to establish and maintain institutions for religious and charitable purposes;
- (b) to manage its own affairs in matters of religion;
- (c) to own and acquire movable and immovable property; and
- (d) to administer such property in accordance with law.'

Sir, the appointment of a matadhipati is certainly a matter of religion. Nobody can have a voice in it, not even the Commissioner and not even the Government who appoint this Commissioner. There is another curious thing about the provisions in clause 57. A trustee can be removed from the math not only if he is of unsound mind but also if he has ceased to profess the Hindu religion or the tenets of the math. I ask, who are these persons, the so-called 'interested persons' to say that the matadhipati is of unsound mind or has ceased to have faith in Hindu religion? Who are the Government to say so? It is here that the Constitution says, 'you keep aloof; you shall not have anything to do there'. This is the reason why I have confined my amendment to the deletion of 'math' alone. I have no objection to charitable endowments under the control of these maths and temples being brought within the purview of this Bill. But to bring the math advantage tried to bring them here. Otherwise they won't be clubbed in here. I beg to state that it is not necessary. It is a matter which indicates the mind of the people in charge of this matter.

"Then, Sir, the only other point I wish to put before the House is this. The Hon. Mr. Madhava Menon is capable of enlivening the discussion so that we may not get too serious in respect of these matters. He gets up to pull us down from the heights and now and then comes down to the level of the discussion. I am thankful to him for that. My point is that these maths are not ordinary temples. These are colleges of learning. These are institutions for the purpose of religious instructions. It is not as if it is a public place of worship. It is not open to everybody to go into the math. Only persons of that persuasion are entitled to go there and not all of them either. It is intended only for those disciples of the math who acknowledge the matadhipati as his 'Guru' to whom they look up for initiation. To go into the math is not just like temple entry. Every temple is now open to anybody, the temples are open to the public. But the math is not so open. These are what I call colleges of learning. Suppose the Government institute a chair for the purpose of oriental philosophy and appoint a certain person for it with an endowment for it. He continues there and after some time the Principal appoints his successor, a person who is well qualified for teaching the particular philosophy. Then what happens is this. I am only saying that according to the definition you have of a math, it will be a math. We have got maths which are really 'Somberi maths', solely for the purpose of feeding people. There are also maths presided over, not by the ascetics but by those who are called 'Vellai Vettikattara Matadhipatis' persons who have families and these are supposed to initiate people. They are also married matadhipatis. Many people may not know this. That person marries, begets children and so on. This is not like the Catholic clergy. The Catholic Bishops do not marry and their disciples also do not marry. Heads of maths are persons who are held in esteem and these should be kept intact. Our religion is tolerant, that is why it suffers most. It is more or less a conformist religion. If you have 'namam' and 'kudumi' it is enough and you can claim to be a Hindu. Why all this, even simply call yourself a Hindu and it is enough. So the question of defining this math is very difficult. I should like the Government to think very seriously in making a law for these maths.

"Again I have been more than once told that the country is behind the Government in this matter. I cannot fully agree with the statement. I may be right or wrong. But I would like the Government to take the sense of the people who believe in temples, who wish for the continuance of these temples, who believe in matadhipatis and disciplehood and not persons who do not believe in these things but feel that these idols are mere stones and the temples are only costly buildings of no utility. At least to the extent of preservation of these works of architecture, one would want the retention of these maths."

MR. SPEAKER:—"It is already 5 o'clock. How long does the hon. Member want to continue."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"I want another 10 or 15 minutes, Sir. I will continue to-morrow."

MR. SPEAKER:—"I adjourn the House till 11 a.m. on Friday, the 17th November 1950."

The House then adjourned.

THE MADRAS HINDU RELIGIOUS AND CHARITABLE
No. 10 OF 1949)—*cont.

17th November 1950] [Sri K. Bhashyam]

essential difference between a temple and a math and it has been recognized by courts of law from very early times. While any member of the public is entitled to go into a temple and have darshan of God, in the case of the math there is no such right at all. In fact, it is only the disciples of maths that will have such a right and even then it is not as if every disciple is entitled to initiation or even instruction for it is open to the matadhipathi to say that he is not yet ripe for it and that he would not count him as one of his disciples for many reasons, one of which may be that he has not the respect that is due to acharyaship. So, Sir, you are not dealing with the vested rights of anybody. Of course the math has properties; of course he is not a trustee in the sense that a trustee is a trustee of a temple. In England, you call it naked trustee, it is a case of a sort of trustee who has got a beneficial interest in the properties and the income therefrom. I said, Sir, I can quote a number of cases but in a legislature like this, it is not necessary to quote cases for after all this Legislature is supreme and may override the existing law. But I would submit that Members must realize that maths are different from temples. I do not say that there ought to be no control for that is a different matter because we have passed that stage; I tried for it and the Government was against it and I have been over-ruled in the Select Committee and elsewhere so that I have reconciled myself to some sort of control but it must be one in conformity with the law as it exists. With the traditions as they obtain and the general wishes of the people who are disciples, I have framed certain clauses to take the place of the clauses in Chapter V which will truly serve the purpose for which the Government feel interference is necessary. They profess and they say so (but certainly they do not carry it out in practice) that any person appointed by them or by any other authority subordinate to them should not interfere with the internal management of maths. Many of the clauses in the Bill do really allow officers to interfere with the internal management of the institutions. I should like to quote in support of my proposition some influential opinions. Sir, on page 168 of Volume I of the Memorandum, you will find this is what the President of the Saiva Vellala Mahasabha, Mathurai, has stated—

'Maths and matadhipathis should be treated under a separate Chapter consistent with the history and tradition of a particular math or institution concerned.'

A matadhipathi is the guru of certain devotees and followers and properties have been endowed to them personally to further the spiritual needs of his followers and as a reward for their benedictions on the particular donees concerned. That cannot be concluded as a public fund, though the matadhipathi in his discretion may use it for the spread of philosophy or for particular forms of worship. The matadhipathi should not be considered as an ordinary trustee, but he must be considered as a religious head with temporal authority, like the Pope. He has to provide for the spiritual learning and advancement of his followers.

THE MADRAS LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Friday, the 17th November 1950.

The House met in the Assembly Chamber, Fort St. George, at eleven of the clock, Mr. Speaker (THE HON. SRI J. SIVASHANMUGAM PILLAI) in the Chair.

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, in seconding the motion of my hon. Friend Mr. Gopalaswami, I was on the point that you must omit maths altogether from the definition of 'religious institutions'. I also stated, Sir, that there is an

[Sri K. Bhashyam] [17th November 1950]

It is, therefore, not proper to make him a non-temporal religious head. Then, Sir, one Mr. Shanmughanayanar, Advocate, Tenkasi, at page 56 of the booklet, says—

‘The governance of the math may be left in the hands of the members of the community for whose benefit the math was founded, the Government retaining a power of general supervision and control.’

I have strictly followed this idea and that is why in my amendments to Chapter V, I have said that there should be a council of Sishyas or council of disciples, who will look after the management and the general administration of the math and they will bring to the notice of the Commissioner any lapses that may occur and ask him to rectify them.

‘Then, Sir, a Tamil pandit from Mathurai, whose words may carry weight with us, at page 275, says this. He refers in Tamil to the Sastras, and he knows the religious practices and canons well, and therefore, he is not like you or I (referring to Mr. S. Nagappa) who speak here without knowing facts in full.’

MR. SPEAKER:—“Order, order, the hon. Member should not address as ‘you’.”

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—“Sir, this ‘you’ does not refer to you, Sir; those words were intended as an aside to my hon. Friend, who was doubting about the weight of the authority I am about to quote.”

MR. SPEAKER:—“It is unparliamentary to speak in ‘aside’.”

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—“I am sorry I have been deflected from my speech. I was referring to the opinion of Sri G. Vadi-velayudham Pillai, Professor in Tamil, American College, Mathurai. This is what he says—

‘In conclusion we are of opinion that like the previous Act and consistent with the tradition of the Maths and Madathipathis, the present Bill should judiciously avoid undue interference with those institutions and allow the management independently perhaps subject to certain restrictions and safeguards which may be deemed necessary for the future good governance of those institutions. The position and status of the Madathipathis as spiritual heads, their honours, their rights to manage the properties and the beneficiary rights they have in them should be duly respected.’

Sir, I would like to quote one more opinion. This is in volume II of the opinions printed in the form of a book.”

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—“There are several opinions also in favour of the Bill!”

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—“Sir, I do not want to be interrupted. But since the Hon. Minister wants to score a victory over me I would like to point out to him, that if he goes through the opinions published in the form of a memorandum, more responsible opinion and more informed opinion is against the Bill. It may be there are several persons who favour this Bill. But it is not so responsible or reliable; but I quote the opinions of learned people, of men who have a stake in the country, and whose opinion commands respect in the country that we should take into account. Therefore, Sir, I have selected only the opinion of persons who hold responsible position, whose view will carry weight, and therefore whose view may be considered fairly as correct.

“Sir, the Mathurai District Saiva Vellala Conference says as follows:—

‘The entire administration of the various maths of Saivites, Vaishnavites, Madhwas, etc., must be left in the hands of a committee elected by the respective sects in the area where the maths and the properties are situated. The right to disburse the funds of a math of a particular sect must vest with the committee elected and not with the Government. Interference by the Government as to the mode of disbursement will only lead to degradation of these institutions. The only power that should vest with the Government is the power of supervision and to check and to audit accounts.’

“Then, Sir, I would quote another opinion, which I think my friends opposite cannot set aside. This is by the Coimbatore District Saiva Conference. It appears at page 7 of volume III of the memorandum of opinions received. The conference was opened by Sri C. K. Subramania Mudaliar. This is what the conference says—

‘மடாலயங்கள் அந்தந்த சிஷ்யர்கள் அடங்கிய நிர்வாக குழுவினால் பல பிரிவுகளாக வகுத்து நிர்வகிக்கத்தக்கன என்றும் அரசாங்கத்தார்களோ வேறு எந்த பிரிவின்றோ அதில் பிரவேசிக்கலாகாது எனவும் எடுத்துக் காட்டினார்கள்.’

I will quote also one other opinion—

‘மடாலயங்கள்:—இவை அந்தந்த குரு சிஷ்யர்களின் தனிப்பட்ட பாத்தியமுடயவை. கிருஸ்து, மகமது, பௌத்தம், லோகாயதம் எல்லா மடங்கிய பொது ஜனங்களுக்கு இவைகளில் எவ்வித பாத்தியதையுமில்லை. அரசாங்கத்தார் இவற்றின் சொத்துக்களின் பராமரிப்பு விஷயத்தில் மட்டும் முனிசிபாலிட்டி போன்ற தனியாட்சியுள்ள ஏற்பாடுகளை திட்டம் செய்து கண்காணித்து அந்தந்த குரு, சிஷ்யர் கூட்டங்களின் தனியாட்சியில் விட்டுவிட வேண்டியது. வேறு எவ்விதமாகவும் இவற்றின் நிர்வாகத்தில் பிரவேசிக்கக்கூடாது. சிஷ்யர்களின் ஜாப்தா ஏற்படவேண்டும்.’

(ஒப்பம்) இராவ பகதூர் லி. எம். இராமச்சந்திரன் செட்டியார்.

This is signed by Rao Bahadur C. M. Ramachandra Chettiyar. He is a person well known for his erudition in Tamil; he was for some years Commissioner of the Religious Endowments Board. He is a learned man; everybody respects him. The same also may be said of Mr. Subramania Mudaliar. I quote these opinions, not because I say, these opinions will carry weight with the Government, for they have already made up their mind one way on this matter. I only want to make clear that such respectable persons also feel that Government should have only power of supervision and that they should not interfere with the day to day administration of these maths. It is not as if I plead that Government should have no control over them. I have reconciled myself to the fact that they may have some control. And that is why, I have suggested in my amendment to have a council of disciples for each math, who will carry on the day to day administration of the math and who will bring to the notice of Government irregularities, for them to take action. Therefore, Sir, I strongly urge upon the Government the desirability of not setting aside all this responsible opinion. It is not as if their opinion is against this Bill. It is the Government who are opposed to their opinion; it is the Cabinet, the thirteen people who constitute it, who are opposed to it. They propose to decide the matter by a vote. But what about the persons who are affected by the vote, i.e., the disciples? Have they no voice in the matter? I would like the disciples to decide this matter. For if at all there is any beneficiary to these maths, it is they. Let Government take a list of disciples and get their vote in respect of this matter. If that is done, I am sure the majority will vote against this absolute control; they will only vote for general supervision. Why should Government unnecessarily go against the wishes of the beneficiaries?

"Here, Sir, I will refer to one other matter. Though I may get another opportunity, still I prefer to deal with it here, as it will save time. That is about the Constitution Act. I am not talking now as a lawyer. (Laughter.) I want to talk only as a layman. Under the Constitution Act every denomination is entitled to establish, maintain and manage their institutions according to law. That law may be any law, even ordinary law. Under the Constitution Act that is conceded. So under the law, every denomination is given some right to manage its institution. If Government were to pass this Bill, those denominations will have nothing to do with maths. So I submit this is not the proper way of dealing with denominational institutions. There are specific endowments for purposes of special sects or denominations; they are specially set apart for them. Therefore the views of the denomination must be obtained before their management is taken over by Government. That is what I have provided for in my amendment. Therefore, Sir, I submit Government will be doing not only a fair and just act, but also doing the right thing under the Constitution Act, if they accept my amendments given under Chapter V."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I support the amendment that maths should be excluded from this definition clause. Hon. Mr. Bhashyam has explained in some detail the nature of the math and why it should be excluded. Sir, I want the Hon. Minister to look at this question, not from the point of view whether the Government or the public should have the right to interfere in the administration of maths simply because they have ample powers to do anything they like, but to view the question, whether Government have got the right to do things, which they propose to do with respect to maths. First of all the Government are proceeding on the assumption that the maths are trust properties, of which the public are beneficiaries. I submit Government representing the people have no right to interfere with any property in which the public have no beneficial interest. This Government have no right to interfere with the private life and properties of an ordinary citizen, because they are not in the nature of a public trust and when the public have no beneficial interest. I get a salary of Rs. 150 for doing my duty in the legislature. Have the public any beneficial interest in that Rs. 150? So, before we decide to take a particular course of action or impose certain restrictions we have to see whether we have power to do so. We should see what the nature of the property is with respect to which we seek to impose restrictions. Just as the public have no right to touch the salary of Rs. 150 of the members of the Legislature, likewise the public have no beneficial interest in the property belonging to maths. The unfortunate feature of the whole thing is that the word 'math' has been translated in English to mean a 'trust', and the matadhipathi has been translated as a 'trustee'. In that way the original sin began. So it is not a question to be decided by counting of numbers for and against. I want to know whether the hon. Sri Madhava Menon can by counting numbers for and against decide whether a man's private property is private property or not. Can anyone decide that by taking votes in this House? Voting in the House is always based on other principles. When we want to know the nature of a particular property, it is not by counting of votes that we should decide that point. I am not going into that aspect of the question just now. Because, hon. Mr. Bhashyam has taken great pains to read out to the House the opinions of people of eminence on this question. It is not the number of people who favours or not favours this legislation that counts. Even if there are only a hundred people of eminence and learning who disavour this legislation against several hundreds of ordinary people, it is the opinion of the former that should decide the point.

"Sir, I submit, we have to know what is the nature of the property of the math. There are people who have before the present controversy arose, before the controversy whether Government should take over the management of the property of maths—this question was carefully considered by a very competent body of men. At that time there was no political controversy about the maths to colour opinions. At that time the question of the nature of math property was taken to a court of law for decision. It happened at a time when there was no political controversy to colour the opinion. So, I submit that opinion is of great weight. I submit that happened so long ago as 1904, when a careful investigation was made by eminent lawyers. A certain dispute arose relating to certain math property and the matter went up to the High Court. I shall presently read out extracts from that judgment of the High Court to show what the nature of the math property is. For unless we know the nature of that property, the House may not be able to appreciate why some of us are incessantly pleading that maths should be excluded from the Bill.

In the case of the mutts, however, though there are idols connected therewith, the worship of such is quite a secondary matter, the principal purpose of such an institution being the maintenance, in circumstances likely to command due respect and estimation, of a line of competent religious teachers, who, as already shown, are given for the welfare of the foundation itself, a real and, so to speak, beneficial interest in the usufruct, the restrictions governing the disposition whereof by them being of the nature of a mere moral obligation. Having regard to these facts, it is obvious that the correct view to be taken is that in the case of mutts the ideal person is the office of the spiritual teacher Acharya, which, as it were, is incarnate in the person of each successive Swami who, for the time, is a real owner and not a mere trustee.

NO. 10 OF 1949)

After careful consideration of the arguments of both the parties, this is the opinion expressed by the learned Judge, Sir Subrahmanya Ayyar. It is found on page 442 of the Indian Law Reports, Madras Series 27 (1904). Sri Bhashyam Ayyangar also dealt with the position of the head of a math. In the case to which the judgment relates, the Advocate-General sought strenuously to prove that the head of a math was equivalent to a trustee. After careful consideration of the arguments of both sides and the position placed by the Advocate-General, the learned Judge Sri Bhashyam Ayyangar has expressed the following opinion and it is found on pages 447 and 454-455 of the Indian Law Reports, Madras Series 27 (1904):—

‘I am, however, of opinion that the head of a mutt, as such, is not a trustee in the sense in which the term is generally understood in the Law of Trusts.

The origin and growth of mutts in this country is thus described in the two judgments of this Court already referred to: “A preceptor of religious doctrine gathers around him a number of disciples whom he initiates into the particular mysteries of the order and instructs in its religious tenets. Such of those disciples as intend to become religious teachers renounce their connection with the family and all claims to the family wealth and, as it were, affiliate themselves to the spiritual teacher whose school they have entered. Pious persons endow the schools with property which is vested in the preceptor for the time being and a home for the school is erected and matam constituted. The ascetics who presided over them were held, owing to their position as religious preceptors and often also in consequence of their own learning and piety, in great reverence by Hindu princes and noblemen who, from time to time, made large presents to them and endowed the mutts under their control with grants of land. Thus a class of endowed mutts came into existence, in the nature of monastic institutions provided over by ascetics or sanyasis who had renounced the world.” The object of these mutts is generally the promotion of religious knowledge, the imparting of spiritual instruction to the disciples and followers of the mutt and “the maintenance and strengthening of the doctrines and tenets of particular schools of philosophy. These institutions have thus exercised considerable influence over the laymen in their neighbourhood, becoming centres of classical and religious learning.” The two classes of institutions, viz., temples and mutts, are thus supplementary in the Hindu Ecclesiastical system, both conducing to spiritual welfare, the one by affording opportunities for prayer and worship, the other by facilitating spiritual instruction and the acquisition of religious knowledge—the presiding element being the deity or idol in the one, the learned and pious ascetic in the other. The position of the head of the mutt is thus not the same as or analogous to that of managers or dharmakartas of devasthanams and temples In the case of temples, the endowments, whether in the shape of landed property or tasdik allowances, have to be devoted to the carrying out for the specific purposes connected with the temple, i.e., the daily worship and the periodical ceremonies and festival—purposes defined and settled by usage and custom and generally recorded in what is known as the “dittam”—and the dharmakartas are mere trustees for the carrying out, or executing of such trusts. In the case of mutts, however, such defined and specific purposes immediately connected with the maintenance of the mutt as an institution, are, in the nature of things, very limited and a large part of the income derived from the endowments of the mutt as well as from the money-offerings of its disciples and followers—which offerings as a rule are very considerable—is at the disposal of the head of the mutt for the time being, which he is expected to spend, at his will and pleasure, on objects of religious charity and in the encouragement and promotion of religious learning. His obligation to devote the surplus income to such religious and charitable objects is one in the nature only of an important moral obligation resting in his conscience and regulated only by the force of public opinion and he is in no way, whether, as a trustee or otherwise, accountable for it in law In legal contemplation, therefore, the head of a mutt, as such, has an estate for life in its permanent endowments and an absolute property in the income derived from the offerings of his followers, subject only to the burden of maintaining the institution.

It is clear from the judgment that the learned Judges were of the opinion that the math property was one in which the matadhipathi had got a beneficial interest and that he was not in the position of the trustee of a temple.”

SRI P. KANDASWAMI PILLAI:—“On a point of order, Sir. I wish to know whether this House is bound by the judgments of the High Court. The hon. Member is reading from judgment after judgment. Are we to be bored by this reading?”

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—“I am reading for the benefit of those who can understand the implications. The hon. Member need not get angry, because it is boring to him. I quoted the opinion of persons who have gone into the question so that we may profit by it. If Mr. Viswanatham expresses it as his opinion without quoting the authority of learned men in support of it, it will be said that Mr. Viswanatham is not an authority on the subject. We have had enough and more of such arguments. I am glad that you, Sir, appreciate the reason which prompted me to quote from the judgment.

“In 1913 or 1914, i.e., about ten years later, Sir Sankaran Nair in a Full Bench case reported in 38 Madras says—

‘The fact that a matadhipathi cannot alienate the land does not mean that he holds it for the benefit of the public.’

I was at great pains to read from the judgments to show the nature of the property which a matadhipathi has in his possession. If the opinion expressed by the Judges after careful investigation is right, I submit that nothing has happened between 1904 and 1950 to change the concept or nature of the property of a matadhipathi. Therefore I submit that the opinions given by them do bind us. They may not bind us as judgments of a High Court because we are a legislature. They bind us because they are judgments given by learned men who knew the topic with which they were dealing. They did not give a mere arm-chair or academic opinion. Persons having interest agitated the matter, they heard the arguments of interested parties, went through evidence and gave their judgment after careful investigation. In view of these weighty pronouncements, I submit the amendment must be accepted.”

SRI R. V. SWAMINATHAN:—“Mr. Speaker, Sir, sub-clause (15) defines religious institution. Sub-clause (10) defines math as a religious institution. By passing sub-clause (10) we have committed ourselves to the position that math is a religious institution and conversely religious institution includes a math. Why should we now say that math should be excluded from the definition of religious institution? The Mover of the amendment, the Second Mr. K. Bhashyam and the supporter Sri T. Viswanatham know the effect of the amendment. Their object is to take away maths from the purview of this Bill whereas our object is to retain them. Inclusion or exclusion of maths is a fundamental point. When the Government prepared the Bill, they included maths. The Bill passed through the first-reading stage in this House with the retention of maths. The Select Committee which went into the Bill also approved the retention of maths. Why then should we now attempt to exclude maths? I do not say that members should not object to the retention of maths. They are free to put forward their case.

[Sri R. V. Swaminathan] [17th November 1950]

Hon. Members Sri K. Bhashyam and Sri T. Viswanatham said that matadhipathi and math should not be treated as trustee and trust respectively. Hon. Sri Viswanatham said that unfortunately matadhipathi and math were defined as trustee and trust in the English language. Anyhow, when the British undertook legislation in this country, they brought maths within the scope of their legislation and defined matadhipathi and math as trustee and trust. A matadhipathi is the head of a math and he has got absolute right including the right of sale over the math property. That is the contention of Sri T. Viswanatham and the substance of the judgments quoted by him. He said that math property was not public property and that therefore the Government could not interfere. The question we have to consider is whether math property is private property or not. A person does not become a matadhipathi by virtue of any hereditary right. When a matadhipathi vacates the gadi or dies, his son cannot succeed. Any one of his sishyas by virtue of his piety, learning and asceticism can succeed. Once a person becomes a matadhipathi, he continues to be so for life. The Bill makes provision for the removal of a matadhipathi in certain contingencies. We do not intend any disrespect to the head of any math; we are prepared to give respect so long as he continues to be a respectable religious head. We only want to have a check over maths to see that matadhipathis do not act according to their will and pleasure or mismanage the math properties. So far as religious functions and rituals are concerned, they are dealt with in later clauses and I shall express my opinion when those clauses are taken up.

Hon. Members Sri T. Viswanatham and Sri K. Bhashyam have not made out a convincing case to show that a matadhipathi should not be treated as a trustee even after quoting several judgments of the High Court. How else should he be treated and the math property managed has not been explained. No matadhipathi has till now agitated in a court of law that he should not be treated as a trustee. (Interruption by Sri K. Bhashyam) Anyhow, math property is there. It should not be left to be treated as hereditary property. It is public property. Though Hon. Sri K. Bhashyam said that a matadhipathi's right over the math property is a personal right, he admitted in the course of his speech speeches that the sishyas should have a voice in its management. A math may have 100, 200 or even 500 sishyas. How is the voice of the 100 or 500 sishyas to be represented in the management of the property?

"I am not able to agree with my hon. Friends and I definitely agree with the Government that math and matadhipathi should be treated as trust property and trustee. Of course, a matadhipathi must be given due respect as the head of a math. I strongly support the sub-clause as it stands. I appeal to the Members to accept it as it is and reject the amendment."

SRI M. S. PATTABHIRAMIAH:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to support the amendment moved by my hon. Friend Sri L. N. Gopalaswami and very ably seconded and explained by hon. Sri Bhashyam and supported by hon. Sri T. Viswanatham. I speak as a layman who takes some interest in the matter. I am one of those who support the Bill and want that it should be passed in the interests of the religious institutions of the State. But I object to the inclusion of 'math' in this sub-clause."

It is really interesting to study the origin of the word 'math'. 'Math' is the Sanskrit word. In Hindi and English it is called 'math' and in Tamil 'matam'. In the judgments which were quoted—the quotation was boring to some Members but it was interesting and illuminating to some of us—it was clearly stated that a math was not a place of worship and prayer where the devotees directly prayed to a diety, but was a place where they got spiritual instruction, spiritual solace and spiritual calmness from the preceptor, the head of the math. A math, as generally understood in our country especially in Tamilnad, is not what is defined in sub-clause (10). I think there is no math anywhere coming under that definition. If 'religious institution' is defined as a math as defined in sub-clause (10), there need not be this amendment. I think the Hon. Minister is not prepared to enlarge the definition as I suggest."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"It can mean only that."

SRI M. S. PATTABHIRAMIAH:—"Then the words 'as defined in sub-clause (10)' may be specifically added. I think that there is no math coming under the definition in sub-clause (10) whose control the Government can take over."

"Sir, in the Kanarese language, a Mata means a place of instruction and it has been confirmed by a Kanarese-speaking gentleman that Mata is a place where children are taught. In Mysore it is known as a school. In every place of pilgrimage, such as Palni and Tiruparankunram, we have got Matams, but I know that there are no religious heads over these matams. Perhaps those matams are quite different from the maths that are described here, which are to be brought under this legislation. Those matams are simply rest houses for pilgrims who visit these sacred places, and in the Tamil districts, we call them by the name of chatrams. There are hundreds and thousands of matams like these in all the districts and it is evidently not the intention of the Government to bring them under their control by means of this legislation. Our object in bringing in this legislation is to control only religious endowments and temples and maths which are Hindu religious institutions, and places of religious worship or instruction. There is no doubt about that.

"Sir, let me just say a few words about the origin of these maths. I may state at the outset that most of these maths had no connection with any of the temples at all. Probably these maths were established in India long before the temples had been built. Anyone who has studied the ancient history of our country will agree with me that many of these maths were started at the time when Buddhism was spreading in this part of the country and when the Buddhist monks were going about preaching that religion. These maths were originally established by them and since then these places became the refuge of the Buddhist bikshus. These bikshus used to go about the villages and towns in the mornings for biksha and take their shelter in these maths during nights. They preached their religion and taught their disciples anywhere either within or outside the villages and towns, sometimes under the shade of trees or in public parks and sometimes in the forests near the town and sometimes in the natural caves in the mountain regions. They used to preach the great truths contained in the Buddhist religion and in the Buddhist doctrines. They used to preach about the philosophy of life explaining the sufferings and miseries of the world and the various doctrines contained in their religion for the removal of these miseries and sufferings. The rich men of those days became the sravakas or disciples of these bikshus and they helped them to build such places of rest and resort, where they could live during nights and especially during what were called Chaturmasas, that is to say, rainy and winter months. Sir, I may, in passing say that the present day Chaturmasas of the Hindu matadhipathis had their origin from among the customs and habits of these Buddhist bikshus. Lord Buddha himself had stated in a particular place, that during rainy seasons his sravakas or disciples used to build maths or asramas or places of rest, in order to make his stay comfortable and listen to his teachings during those months. Sir, the Sanskrit meaning of the word asrama is a place of rest and comfort. These asramas were not big buildings, but were simple cottages built in forests near the villages, free from public haunts. These forests were not the forests of the type that we now see in hills and mountains. They are called upavanas or tiny forests that we see in cities, where a number of big trees had grown, and which are free from the public bustle.

17th November 1950] [Sri M. S. Pattabhiramiah]

"Sir, it was only during the days of Sri Sankaracharya, the first and the great expounder of Advaitism that maths were established all over this country. He was the first great Acharya who went about the country preaching the gospel of the Hindu religion and establishing maths everywhere. In an authoritative work known as Sankaravijayam it is stated that during his lifetime, he had established maths all over India."

MR. SPEAKER :—"The hon. Member may continue his speech after lunch. The House will now rise for lunch and meet again at 3 p.m."

(After lunch—3 p.m.)

MR. SPEAKER :—"The hon. Member Mr. M. S. Pattabhiramiah will continue his speech."

SRIMATHI V. LAKSHMI AMMAL :—"Sir, I request you to allow the hon. Member to speak in Tamil."

MR. SPEAKER :—"I have no objection to allow the hon. Member to speak in Tamil."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—"Sir, it is for the hon. Member concerned to make that request and not for others."

SRI M. S. PATTABHIRAMIAH :—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was tracing the origin and the establishment of maths in our country from ancient days and I propose to continue from there. I stated, Sir, that during the time of Bhagawan Buddha, his disciples built and founded asramas, which were his refuge and his disciples' refuge also. His disciples were celibates. They were bikshus. They followed him wherever he went. Buddha taught his doctrines to the common people in the asramas or in groves. His first preaching was in Benares in a place called Deer Park."

THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN :—"Sir, I just want to know what all this has to do with the Bill under discussion."

SRI M. S. PATTABHIRAMIAH :—"Sir, as I told you already, I am just tracing the origin of the maths. I am not argumentative."

MR. SPEAKER :—"The hon. Member will not take much time of the House in tracing the origin of the maths."

SRI M. S. PATTABHIRAMIAH :—"Sir, I cannot stop with a distorted view or distorted picture. When I want to paint the background . . ."

MR. SPEAKER :—"But it should be relevant to the subject."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—"Whose view is distorted view, Sir?"

[17th November 1950]

SRI M. S. PATTABHIRAMIAH :—“ If I stop at this stage, it will be an unfinished picture. Maths began from Buddha's time and his disciples built many aramas. When that religion was propagated, that began to spread not only in India but also outside India. This must be kept in mind. Even during the time of Buddha, there was another reformation of the Hindu religion and that was started by Jaina, the founder of Jain religion.”

MR. SPEAKER :—“ He is called Mahavira. Let the hon. Member come to the subject proper.”

SRI M. S. PATTABHIRAMIAH :—“ His followers and disciples founded maths. His disciples were bikshus and they practised celibacy. I want to mention about Mahavira, because our present day Hinduism and its tenets of ahimsa and other things are more in tune with the Jaina religion than with Buddhism. That is a fact. Ahimsa was preached by Buddha to the people. Buddhist disciples were not forbidden from taking meat or animal food.”

MR. SPEAKER :—“ What have we to do with ahimsa and other tenets? In tracing the history of these maths let not the hon. Member take much of the time of the House.”

SRI M. S. PATTABHIRAMIAH :—“ I shall be as brief as possible, Sir. When Buddhism spread to foreign countries and when many disciples came to this country from other countries, some people thought that they were losing Indian nationalism. There was even a revolt among the people. Buddhists were exhibiting patriotism of an extra-territorial kind. But Jainism was of a different kind. When Sankaracharya founded his math, he also preached his doctrines. When Ramanujacharya came, he also preached his doctrines. In this connection I want to say that, Sankaracharya preached Advaitism. This is very much allied to Buddhism and Sankaracharya came to be called by later reformers as Pracchanna Buddha, because he followed, in many respects, the doctrines of Buddha. He was not so rigid. Later on when Ramanujacharya taught Visishtadwaita to the people, he followed Jaina tenets and his doctrines were more exclusive. Ramanuja was called Ethiraja. Ethiraja Mudaliar, Ethiraja Naidu, etc., are all Ramanuja's names. Originally those Ethirajas were heads of maths. What did this Ramanuja do during his time? He is stated to have lived for 100 years. He taught his Bashyam on Vedanta Sutras more than one hundred times. Here I am subject to correction of course, because there are so many Vaishnavas here who may know the correct number. He thought it was his duty to teach. Not only did he think so, but he did it. I am simply giving a typical example of what a matadhipathi was expected to do. Other matadhipathis later on founded maths. All these matadhipathis have propounded certain doctrines. As it is wellknown, they were not succeeded by their sons.

[17th November 1950] [Sri M. S. Pattabhiramiah]

The office was not hereditary. It is not as if they have no right over the math or the arama from which they were teaching and propagating their doctrines. I want here, Sir, to emphasize this fact. These matadhipathis did not emphasize the religious aspect of the teaching. They were philosophers and they were teachers. Their maths were colleges and even now they are simply colleges. In support of my view, I shall quote the essentials given by the glossary of administrative terms used by the Madras Government, published in the year 1893. This is a Government publication. Mutt is defined as—

‘ Mutt : From (math, Sanskrit, to dwell). Cloister. A species of college where a celibate Hindu priest lives with disciples making the same profession, one of whom becomes his successor.’

It is not described as a religious institution. Simply because the matadhipathi is a Hindu, we cannot call that math a Hindu religious institution. That is what I want to stress. Sir, what are the teachings of Jaina? ”

MR. SPEAKER :—“ It is a controversial thing. I do not understand what relevancy it has to this Bill. How is ahimsa relevant? ”

SRI M. S. PATTABHIRAMIAH :—“ Sir, they were san-yasis. They did no kind of ritual.”

MR. SPEAKER :—“ The hon. Member need not introduce any controversial subject. Ahimsa, for instance, is a controversial subject.”

SRI M. S. PATTABHIRAMIAH :—“ I am not introducing any controversial subject, Sir. Ahimsa is an old term. I simply mentioned it. What did the Ethis do? What did they practise and preach? They preached right intuition, right knowledge and right conduct. (Samyak darshanam. Samyak nyaunam, Samyak chauritram.) They have got these five vows. The first is ‘ Do not kill or injure ’. I do not wish to take the time of the House by reading all the five vows. The Yaty dharmam is of ten kinds. I want the House to see whether any particular deity worship is mentioned here. The Yaty dharmam says—

‘ Aurjvam to follow the right way and teach it to others : Maurdavam, to behave with reverence to superiors, and carefully to instruct disciples ; Satyam invariably to speak the truth ; Showcham, mentally to renounce hatred, affections, or passions, and evil desire, and outwardly to act with purity ; Tyagam, to renounce all bad conduct ; Ushamay, to bear patiently like the earth in time of trouble ; Tapas, outward and inward self-mortification ; Bramhacharyam, to relinquish all sexual attachment even in word or thought ; Akinchanatva, to renounce the darkness of error and to follow the light of truth it means the vow of poverty which every hermit should take.’

These are all followed by them. Though ahimsa is not mentioned here, ahimsa is the basis of all dharmas that followed.”

MR. SPEAKER :—“ The hon. Member will finish his speech soon.”

[17th November 1950]

SRI M. S. PATTABHIRAMIAH :—“ These are the important vows which they practised and professed. They gave spiritual instruction to the people. They belonged to the Hindu religion. But that has no connection absolutely with what they practised and preached. They might have worshipped some aspect of God somewhere as an aid to contemplation. That is immaterial. It is not for directing or for promoting any particular kind of religion at all. It is not a religious institution where people worship a deity or where any prayer is conducted. It is a place for self-purification. In the Hindi Pramanik Kosh, the meaning of ‘ mutt ’ is given thus

- (1) निवास-स्थान ।
- (2) साधुओं के रहने का मकान ।
- (3) आश्रम ।

It means that it is a building where sadhus live. In other words, it is the place of a hermit. It cannot be translated as a monastery. It is not a place where monks live as in western countries. Why do they want to bring under this Bill the hermits who want to live outside the town limits and who are simply propagating and expounding abstruse tenets of the religion? If they are bad people—as human beings everywhere become bad—are there not other provisions of law under which they can be brought? Therefore, the deletion of the word ‘ math ’ will make the Bill less controversial and more acceptable to the people. Of course, people in the State have accepted that there should be a reform of the religious institutions. But if you want to disturb the lives of those people who want to lead a retired and quiet life preaching piety to the people, it will be an unfortunate feature of our scheme and it will hinder the attainment of a welfare state which we want to achieve. Therefore, Sir, the word ‘ math ’ may be deleted.

“ Sir, even if it is taken to be a religious denomination—because there are different kinds of maths preaching different doctrines—Article 26 of the Constitution says—

‘ Subject to public order, morality and health, every religious denomination or any section thereof shall have the right—

- (a) to establish and maintain institutions for religious and charitable purposes ;
- (b) to manage its own affairs in matters of religion ;
- (c) to own and acquire movable and immovable property ; and
- (d) to administer such property in accordance with law.’

Sir, regarding public order, morality and health, there are other laws governing them. In this Bill, the Government are taking over the management of affairs. When they are permitted to own and acquire movable and immovable property, the Government want to bring them under their control. Then the right is given to administer the property in accordance with law. This law which you can make should conform to the Constitution. We may pass a law with some object but that law may not be quite valid morally. So, the law we pass must be acceptable to the people of the State. I request the Government to accept the amendment and make the Bill less controversial.”

SRI P. KANDASWAMI PILLAI :—“ Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a very important clause wherein my hon. Friend Sri Gopalaswami has introduced an amendment to delete the word ‘ math ’. If we exclude the word ‘ math ’, I think we can simply drop the whole Bill. In a temple there is the deity and the trustees perform all the functions. In a math the matadhipati carries out all the functions. My hon. Friend Sri Pattabhiramiah narrated the history of the growth of maths. Whether it is relevant or not is left to the Chair to decide. Now the point is whether we can exclude maths. In support of the amendment, my hon. Friend Sri Bhashyam quoted several gentlemen intended to be matadhipathis and disciples also. I do not question it. But in answer to all the quotations of Sri Bhashyam, my hon. Friend Sri Viswanatham said, ‘ No use of quoting a hundred quotations. One correct quotation is sufficient.’ ”

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—“ I have not said it, Sir.”

SRI P. KANDASWAMI PILLAI :—“ He has said it, Sir. It is in the record ; it can be perused. Therefore, one correct quotation is sufficient. I am citing one such quotation, Sir. The late Raja of Panagal in all sincerity wanted to purify these institutions. So, he brought forward a Bill in 1927. People protested and cried that religion was being spoilt. However, the Bill was passed, and the Raja of Panagal selected a suitable person at that time. The late Sir T. Sadasiva Ayyar was selected as the President of the Hindu Religious Endowments Board. He has said in a judgment in the case of a temple in Salem district, ‘ All the temples and religious endowments must come under public control.’ It is not private property, Sir. The matadhipathi has not inherited the property. All public property should be administered in a public manner. The matadhipathis are there to impart spiritual knowledge and mould the character of the people or disciples. A Bengali writer has written that Hindus are a dying race. That book is a monumental example of all the work done by the matadhipathis. I have not seen the gentleman, Sir, but I have seen the book. The society to which these matadhipathis are imparting the knowledge must be elevated spiritually. That means they must be elevated in the moral, physical and social spheres. To put it in a nutshell, the matadhipathis must look after the progress of human society. A man who never attends to his physical duties cannot go to the spiritual sphere. He cannot understand what these matadhipathis teach. During the time of the British Government, these people were not educated and so they did not attend to the educational aspect. I feel that these matadhipathis have not discharged their duties properly.

“ Regarding the judgment, some years ago some gentleman expressed his opinion in a court of law. Here we must note that time is an important factor in all these things. In 1920 if a Harijan entered a temple, he would be almost killed. In several places people have beat the Harijans. Swami Sahajananda and a few other people were invited to Salem. . . ."

SRI A. KAMESWARA RAO :—" Is it all relevant to the Bill, Sir? "

MR. SPEAKER :—" What the hon. Member says is that times have changed. "

SRI P. KANDASWAMI PILLAI :—" Times have changed, Sir. According to Manu, a Sudra may be kicked and beaten and his property may be taken away by a Brahman. Do you admit that now? "

SRI M. S. PATTABHIRAMIAH :—" On a point of order, Sir. Can any hon. Member quote from his imagination? "

MR. SPEAKER :—" How is it a point of order? "

SRI M. S. PATTABHIRAMIAH :—" Can any hon. Member say that a quotation is from a book when he cannot quote the sloka? "

MR. SPEAKER :—" It is not a point of order. "

SRI M. S. PATTABHIRAMIAH :—" Can he say that there are certain words or clauses in a Bill passed by the Government while they are not found there? "

MR. SPEAKER :—" It is only his own opinion. I allowed the hon. Member to have his say on the matter. Let him be allowed to proceed. "

DR. S. SUBRAHMANYAM :—" Opinion may be different from extracts quoted, Sir. "

SRI P. KANDASWAMI PILLAI :—" Sir, if any hon. Member doubts the correctness of my quotation, I shall take him to the library and show him the verses. My point is what is said in them is not binding on us. Times have changed, and we must move with the times. Some 50 years ago the people were brought up in a particular way. Gandhiji has now moulded and changed that way of life. I want to give one instance.

" Mahathma Gandhi has once said, ' When big leaders like even Jawaharlal Nehru tour the various places, people used to pour money at their feet. These leaders are not entitled to make use of these moneys as the moneys are not their private moneys. They are given large amounts by the people for utilizing in a public cause. The leaders are only tools and instruments of the Congress to receive money from the public in the name of the Congress and they should not mistake that it is their private property. ' That is the advice and idea inculcated to us by our great leader Mahathma Gandhi. We should not forget his advice so soon after his disappearance. When such a small Bill comes before the Assembly, it is not proper for anybody to suggest the deletion of maths from the scope of the Bill on the ground that the properties attached to the maths are the private properties of the heads of such maths which have been given to them for the purpose of imparting some extraordinary knowledge to their disciples. The main idea that lies behind these institutions is this. They are primarily intended for the utility of the public. They must care for the benefit of the public and for the moral, physical and religious and educational uplift of the society; all departments of human life should be attended to by these people. Now, why do the Government come in here? Are the members of the Government not Hindus? Do they want to destroy all these maths and take away by force all the moneys belonging to these maths into the Government Treasury? That is not at all the object. My hon. Friends evidently seem to forget that. The Government want to maintain these maths in a proper manner and they want to prevent any possible abuse. They want to make use of these institutions for the benefit of human society as a whole and not only the Hindus.

‘ நெல்லுக்கு இறைத்த நீர் வாயக்கால் வழியோடி, ’ என்பதைப்போல,

All other people will also enjoy it. Our religion is such a generous one that it will help everybody. We really feel proud of it because of its wide generosity. Our religion is not based on narrow-minded principles. I want to know what will be the gain if these maths were not included in this Bill. The supporters of the amendment for the deletion of maths have not made the position very clear as to why they want their exclusion. Do they fear that all these matadhipathis will be imprisoned to-morrow? Nothing of that kind will happen. The Government are only seeking to check these matadhipathis against any possible abuse of powers. If any deliberate wrong was committed by these people, there should necessarily be some check to prevent them from doing so. Here, we are providing for the Government check, and there is nothing wrong in it. Therefore, I request my hon. Friends who have introduced these amendments to withdraw them as they serve no useful purpose. If they withdraw the amendment, it will help the Government to finish the business speedily and quickly; because every day of our stay here costs Rs. 2,000 and we must not waste time."

MR. SPEAKER :—" We are not wasting time here. The hon. Member should not say that the House is wasting time. "

SRI P. KANDASWAMI PILLAI :—" I never meant that time is wasted in this House. If that idea was formed in your mind, Sir, I request I may be excused. I also want to eradicate that idea from your mind. When Sri Rajagopalachari was the Chief Minister, I am told that he used to finish every business very quickly. I know that we are spending time very usefully in this House by raising all minor amendments and discussing everything very thoroughly and fully. We have discussed every point concerned in great detail. Therefore I only request the movers of the amendments to withdraw the amendments and thus help the Government in getting through this Bill expeditiously."

SRI V. M. RAMASWAMI MUDALIYAR :—" Sir, Speaker, Sir, I am not going to go into the details as to whether the maths should be retained and other things. Already we have had learned discussions on the point. So far as I can see, we are concerned with certain definitions in this particular clause. This Bill seeks to replace Act II of 1927 which has been on the Statute Book for the last 23 years. I think even under this Act II of 1927, there is a definition of the terms 'math', 'religious endowments', etc. I am yet to learn how the inclusion of maths under the scope of the Act II of 1927 has worked to the detriment of either the functions of the heads of these maths or the spiritual efficacy which they are supposed to confer upon the disciples. I do claim that this definition has fairly stood the test of time and the present definition in the Bill under discussion is an improvement upon the old definition of the term 'math'; clause 6 (15) of the present Bill says: 'religious institution' means a math, temple or specific endowment'. Hon. Member Sri Bhashyam said that the term 'math' should be deleted. Other Friends have said that temples and maths are the twin things of Hindu religion—the temples being the places of worship and prayer whereas maths are really places where spiritual instruction and spiritual light flows from the head of the math at the time being. It is said that due to the efforts of these maths Hindu religion has been made the Catholic religion that it is to-day and we should be thankful to them. I have reasons to believe that we should be thankful to them. Then Government 25 years ago took grounds which prompted the of control over the dittams allowed to the powers to exercise a sort administration of the affairs of the temples, and the general during the 25-years. We have seen what has been gained force various religious institutions and maths. We have gained in the and additional grounds and reasons for exercising this control, not over the spiritual teachings and spiritual message and qualities of the matadhipathis, but over the temporal management of the properties attached to these maths. If I may say so, we have had many cases where the maths' moneys have been mis-spent and mis-used. It was only the other day one Friend said that a particular matadhipathi was trying to purchase properties worth 3 to 4 lakhs of rupees for his convenience in the City of Madras. Some other Friend was saying that a Matadhipathi had set apart several lakhs of rupees for carrying on political propaganda in order to defeat this Bill and so on. Sir, we are not, however, concerned with all those things here. Some of the heads of these religious institutions, namely, maths are really very good men. But there are quite a large number of bad men also among them. After all, laws are not meant for the good people only. The present Bill is only intended to check any possible abuse. My learned Friend, Sri Viswanatham, referred to the judgments in 27 Madras and 38 Madras. We find that in that judgment it is said, 'His obligation to devote the surplus income to such religious and charitable objects is one in the nature only of an imperfect or moral obligation resting in his conscience and regulated only by the force of public opinion and he is in no way, whether, as a trustee or otherwise, accountable for it in law.' It was said that these matadhipathis are in a sense-absolute owners of these properties and have absolute power of disposition of the income from these properties. With all respect to them, I should point out that there have been several abuses. Reference had been made to these abuses in a critical manner by the then Chief Minister, Sri O. P. Ramaswami Reddiyar, when introducing this Bill then. He was very vehement and he gave a catalogue of the abuses committed by these matadhipathis in respect of the math properties. He said that after seeing all these abuses one could not sit quiet with folded hands. I do not wish to re-catalogue those abuses here. Even in the judgment quoted by Sri Viswanatham reference has been made to the moral obligation resting on their conscience. I ask in all seriousness whether my Friends who have introduced these amendments for the deletion of the term 'math' can sincerely say that there have not been several cases where this high standard that has been prescribed by the ancient customs and usage and ancient texts has not been maintained by these matadhipathis. I think it has been prescribed that these people should be ascetics and celibites. Celibacy has been prescribed in most cases. Can we say seriously that there has not been any dereliction from that high standard prescribed? I am of opinion that there has been considerable deviation from the high standard prescribed. Times are changing and reforms also should change. Already there is some control over these institutions. Under the legislative powers, we are seeking to have some more powers to control these institutions in an effective manner. That is all what is contemplated in this Bill. With the little acquaintance that I have about the law relating to the maintenance of these temple properties, I have reasons to say that the Act II of 1927 does not confer sufficient powers to exercise control over the maths. I find in the present Bill the Board is replaced by the Commissioner. I only want to say that we are deliberately taking powers for the better governance of the affairs of these maths. In this connexion I also want to say that the framers of this Bill have been somewhat hesitant over this question. Even under this Bill, certain special privileges have been accorded to the maths. In Chapter V, certain special privileges have been given in respect of padha kanika. The matadhipathis are given absolute rights of disposal of these padha kanikas which are considered as personal gifts. They are only to maintain an account of how much has been received and how much has been spent. Nobody can question a matadhipathi about his utilizing these padha kanikas in any manner that he may choose. It has also been provided that for the administration of the secular affairs of a math the trustee of the math shall, when so required by the Commissioner, appoint a competent person as manager. It is but right and proper that every spiritual head should have a secular manager. The spiritual head is an ascetic and he must have nothing to do with the secular administration. In the case of temples, the Commissioner can appoint the executive officers or managers. But with regard to maths, it has been provided that the matadhipathis shall appoint the managers, of course with the previous sanction of the Commissioner.

"I do not think we are interfering unduly with the religious or spiritual activities of the matadhipathis. I am yet to see a case being made out why we should not interfere. If the concepts have to be changed, we shall take the responsibility of changing them by enacting the necessary laws. With due respect to the Judges who presided over cases 27 and 38-Madras, I may say that it is wrong to interpret them as having said that the law must be constant and should progress no more. It is always open to the law-makers to change the concept in the light of the changing conditions in our society. As I have said, it will be our duty then to give the Government powers, to invest the Commissioners or other authorities who exercise superintendence over the maths with necessary authority to prevent abuse of the math properties and endowments connected therewith."

SRI V. I. MUNISWAMI PILLAY :—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, if I rise to-day to support the amendment moved by my hon. Friend, Sri Gopalaswami, it is because I am quite conversant with the duties and functions of Matadhipathis. In the Hindu religion, there are two sections; the philosophical section is one and the other is the ceremonial side. I would have no objection whatever if temples and endowments connected with a math are sought to be controlled. But when we touch the maths, we will be touching the very live wire of the Hindu religion. Most of the hon. Members who preceded me have given in clear and plain language the history of the maths and how true Hindus were taken to the philosophical side of life by the preachings of the great Gurus, the Matadhipathis. Many people fail to think how the true head of a math lives. They imagine that such men are ordinary men. Those of us who have sat at the feet of a Guru and studied the great vedic teachings and the philosophy which Hinduism teaches know with what respect and veneration such men are treated. We know the sanctity attaching to such maths. The heads of such maths by their divine knowledge and wisdom come into possession of certain properties mostly endowed to them for the propagation of the Hindu religion. The Bill seeks to exercise control over these properties. It does not stop even there. It affects the very fountain from which knowledge flows. Sir, this piece of legislation has been resented greatly by the heads of maths. That being so, I feel that the inclusion of 'math' in this definition is not fair. The Government are definitely treading on a dangerous path. These maths have risen out of the voluntary efforts of great men who have not thought of properties either for themselves or for others. They went to forests; they went to the cities and towns, put up small huts and explained the greatness of the religion. Such endowments came into being out of the efforts of such great men. A true and real matadhipathi does not feel the pinch for money. Money is given to him by people because of the great reverence in which they hold in order to enable him to continue his religious work. An hon. Member said that the late Raja of Panagal did a bold thing in having brought about this reform. Yes. We accept it is a bold piece of work that he did. But even that great man did not touch the maths, but . . . (The Hon. Sri K. Madhava Menon : 'No, no. The existing Act covers maths also.') He left the case of maths nebulous. I strongly feel, Sir, that if maths are included in the definition, the Hindu religion will disappear from our State. Those people who are earnest about learning the Hindu philosophy will not have any chance of acquiring such knowledge at the feet of the Guru. As a matter of fact, I find that some maths have been excluded from the scope of the Bill. For example, the Ramakrishna Math has been excluded. So also, the Ramana Ashram has been omitted. Why? Because the framers of the Bill felt they should not be touched. Similarly, as one who has been connected with maths for a long time, I feel it would be a wise thing if other maths are also excluded from the scope of the Bill. I would request the Hon. the Minister in charge of the Bill to think over the matter very seriously. If he wants really to preserve the greatness of the Hindu religion, he must do something to see that maths at least are exempted from the operation of this Bill. With these words, Sir, I support the amendment before the House."

SRI A. KALESWARA RAO :—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is true that the Hindu Religious Endowments Board, as it has worked these twenty and odd years, has not administered the endowments and trusts properly. It has not become famous for impartiality, purity and good administration. People have no high opinion of the Board. But the great Raja of Panagal—he was a great man—conceived of the idea boldly and acted boldly in setting up a Board in spite of the cry raised by a large section of the Hindu community then that religion was in danger, that a secular Government should not touch any of the religious institutions, and that they should not try to control them. He took courage in both his hands and got this famous Act passed. I call it a famous Act because it marked a great change in the management of the affairs of religious institutions. The whole question now is whether the Government should or should not interfere with the management of such institutions. If we concede the principle that the Government can interfere, then there will be no distinction made between temples and maths. If we consider that the principle is wrong, then the whole Bill is wrong and I could then understand the opposition to the whole Bill. I know, Sir, that there used to be a great deal of opposition to the Government entering into this field. But gradually, however, the opposition died down and the very Congress party which raised this opposition in the years 1926 and 1927 and made it an election issue, accepted the principle as good. The party also worked it during the regime of Sri C. Rajagopalachari in 1937-39. Therefore, it is only following in the footsteps of the previous Congress Governments that the present Government want to recast the whole measure in order to make certain things clearer and improve upon them. Excepting this, there is no difference between the existing Act and the proposed Bill. It is true, however, that there is a lot of difference between a temple and a math. The distinction is real. Temples are places for congregational worship. People go there and worship God, i.e., the idol there whatever its denomination be, whether Siva, Vishnu or Sakthi. And now, thanks to the great work done by Mahatma Gandhi, Harijans are also admitted to the temples and they are also worshipping God along with other Hindus. Even non-Hindus also can go into the temples just as Hindus can go into churches and mosques. Christians, Muslims and all others are welcome and there is no such thing as untouchability now. The temples have been made cosmopolitan and universal. But the maths are no doubt different. Certain holy men, certain philosophers and founders of particular religious schools of thought have come and stayed in certain places which are now called maths. According to the degree of respect and veneration in which such holy men are kept, properties are endowed to them, though sometimes they are endowed more profusely than necessary. For example, the Chettiers and others who obtain large sums of money by bad means want to wash off their sins by giving lots of jewels to the temples in Tirupati and Kalahasti for adorning the deities. Of course, these temples do not become more holy by the jewels or other properties given to them. Some people even build big towers at the entrance of the temples and some others resort to more extravagant things. These things happen only in the South. In Northern India, we see only small temples. When I went to Rishikesh I saw a small Rama's temple. It is a famous one and it is said that Sri Rama himself had visited that temple. It is considered the holiest of temples in the whole of India. So also the Shiva temple in Benares—Kasi Viswanatha. They are all simple. Here, in the South, people respecting Swamis have given them lands and villages as charity in order to wash off their sins. What happens in course of time is, in the case of certain Swamis, luxury sets in. They begin to enjoy material life so that to-day is one Swami is good, ten Swamis are bad.

“There are the temptations. Nobody can say that the maths are kept holy, the Swamis are holy, that they are doing their duties well, that they are serving the community and spreading the doctrines of the Hindu philosophy and religion among the great Hindu community. Nobody can say that. So Government come in to manage the endowments. There are restrictions with regard to Governmental interference. They will be there only to prepare the estimates and budgets and to see that the moneys are spent for the very object for which these institutions were founded. Therefore I do not see anything wrong in including the maths under this Bill.”

17th November 1950]

SRI M. A. EASWARAN :—“Sir, I oppose the amendment moved by my hon. Friend Sri Gopalaswami. Speaking on this amendment, my hon. Friend Sri Bhashyam referred to the speech of the President of the Saivite Conference held at Coimbatore. The President is a person to whom various endowments have been entrusted. He is using the properties of those endowments as his own personal properties. There are very many complaints against him in that district. Naturally the opinion of such a person who is entrusted with endowments and who is misusing it would be that they should be treated as private property.

“These maths are religious institutions and are intended for the spread of the religion among the people by doing propaganda. Now, for the last fifty years, these matadhipathis have not done any religious propaganda. They have never gone to the villages or towns for this purpose. I have seen once Sankaracharya coming to Erode. He did no religious propaganda. But he feasted people and went about the villages in a golden palanquin, with golden rings in all his ten fingers and jewels all round him. He never did any propaganda for the Hindu religion when he was there.”

SRI M. S. PATTABHIRAMIAH :—“Which Sankaracharya is that . . .”

SRI M. A. EASWARAN :—“It was some Sankaracharya, a matadhipathi . . .”

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—“On a point of order, Sir, I request the protection of the Chair. Whenever hon. Members make references and statements, this is not the way of talking—‘If it is not Sankaracharya—it is somebody else’. Whenever they refer to Sankaracharya or some other acharyas they must take more care and show greater sense of respect.”

SRI M. A. EASWARAN :—“That Swami gave feast only to the Brahmans and to none else. He did no religious propaganda. Another Matadhipathi came to Erode, a Thambiran. He remained there for two or three days and gave some lectures and he was also carried in a bedecked palanquin. To carry him in the palanquin ten fat people, fully drunk, were engaged. Without this drink how can they carry this Swami, this matadhipathi. Even when Sankaracharya came he was carried in the palanquin by people who were fully drunk. The people who carried them were generally weak and probably to get enough strength they might have drunk. These matadhipathis have done nothing for religious propaganda. Only Gandhi enlightened the people and made them understand what Hindu religion meant. But these matadhipathis have only been mismanaging the endowments. My hon. Friend Sri Pattabhiramiah tried to define these matadhipathis and read extracts from books. But the funds entrusted to these matadhipathis were not utilised on proper lines. The Government have come forward now just to help them and relieve them of the difficulty in the management of these endowments, and do religious propaganda on the right lines.”

[Sri M. A. Easwaran] [17th November 1950]

"I can say, Sir, these matadhipathis have not done their duty properly and utilised the money for the purpose for which they were entrusted to them. They were given all powers. Of course some have acted well, but most of them have not acted well. I, therefore, oppose the amendment, of my hon. Friend Sri Gopalaswami."

SRI K. VARADACHARI :—"The discussion on this amendment has gone on lines in which one Member does not appreciate what exactly another Member is speaking about and there has been a lot of confusion imported regarding both with the concept of the math as well as the measures adopted by the Courts and the Legislature to deal with these institutions. It is true there have been decisions of the High Court defining exactly the constitution and the organization of the maths as well as the status of matadhipathis. The law that has been quoted from the decisions of Justice Subramania Ayyar, Bhashyam Ayyangar and Sankaran Nair, 27 Madras and 38 Madras, are still good law and this Bill does not seek to change any of those conceptions adumbrated in those decisions. These decisions themselves contain the limits within which the matadhipathis can deal with these properties. Within the narrow limits, the matadhipathis are responsible for the properties in their hands either movable or immovable. The matadhipathi though not a trustee, he is not as we ordinarily understand the term 'private ownership', fully private owners so that they can dispose of properties or abuse the power by wasting away the property belonging to the math. This is a sort of a quasi-trustee, not a full trustee as the Dharmathikari of a temple, or a person who can dispose off or squander it away. We have had instances, large number of instances coming before the Courts and those that have not gone before the Courts for want of financial help, and thus we have got them reformed and have got the property safe for the institution. The result has been, there was felt some necessity to control the institutions. This Bill cannot go against the public opinion in the matter of interference with these maths. If public opinion is not at all cared for, the enactment will die a natural death. One day the Legislature will come forward and delete these provisions."

"So far as the maths are concerned we have accepted the principle of the Bill. We included the maths also within the purview of this Bill and it is too late to say that these maths should be taken out of the purview of the Bill. Though I would ask for some time to be given, say a quarter of a century or more to these maths to see how they fare, it is another matter to say that we should not get through this Bill. The mover of the amendment as well as the supporters are bona fide in their contention as to why they say that the provision ought to be deleted from the Bill. It is not that no control should be exercised over these maths and their properties or the conduct of the matadhipathis but that the forum that is sought to be created for the purpose of correcting the abuses is not the court but it is the administrative machinery that is sought to be used for this purpose. There is certainly a grave fear in the minds of the people in regard to this. People who have had experience of the working of the Religious Endowment Boards so long, as well as the administrative machinery that we have had under that board with powers given to them, fear that the powers would be abused by the executive authority. That was so. But with regard to all legislation that we frame we have to guard against administrative abuses. That the provisions of the bill would be misused by the executive authority cannot be a ground for saying that the legislation itself is bad. However we should take care to see that these maths are not interfered with in the manner threatened either by the provisions of the Bill or in the way in which people are afraid that the provisions of the Bill would be abused."

"We have been unable to convince the Government of the necessity of leaving matters of this kind to courts for adjudication just as in England the Charity Commissioners, even in ecclesiastical matters where he has jurisdiction, he simply refers the matter to the courts. Here we have followed another method. All the legislation we pass in this House not only with regard to endowments, but on every other matter, we have been trying to oust the jurisdiction of the courts in all manners and ways possible. It has become a tradition with us in this House to see that the courts are placed at a discount and this is nothing new. Therefore, when the provision relating to section 92 of the Civil Procedure Code, is being excluded hereafter from any operation in the matter of the control and administration of religious endowments or charitable trusts, the chance was lost to convince the Government to delete the clause 3. We are now trying by other methods to see that the maths are excluded from the operation of the Bill. This is a case where the court's jurisdiction has been ousted, and there is the fear that the executive authority will abuse the power vested in their hands and the maths would be victimised. That is the fear. (Hon. Members: 'No, No'.) I submit there are some people who have this fear, but as our administration improves we should give a good account of ourselves and see that the administration is properly conducted. Therefore I say that this need not be a matter for heated discussion."

MR. SPEAKER :—"Many more hon. Members still want to speak on the amendment. I therefore fix five minutes for each Member."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—"On a point of personal explanation, Sir. I fear the amendment has altogether been misunderstood. I want to clear the misunderstanding. It is not that I want the maths to be entirely excluded from the operation of the Bill. I say that these maths should be treated differently from the ordinary trustees of temples. It is not also that I want that no control should be exercised over these maths. I have reconciled myself to the position that some control is inevitable. True these maths are dealt with in a separate chapter, Chapter 5. I have also given amendments for this chapter. But all I say is that it is unnecessary to have these maths included here in this clause as they have already been defined in a earlier place and that only specific provisions need be made and that is done in Chapter 5."

SRIMATHI V. LAKSHMI AMMAL:—“அக்கிராசனாதிபதி அவர்களே! கனம் கோபால்சாமி அவர்கள் கொண்டுவந்திருக்கின்ற திருத்தப் பிரேரணையை நான் முழுமனதோடு ஆதரித்து இரண்டொரு வார்த்தைகள் பேச விரும்புகிறேன்.

“இந்த திருத்தப் பிரேரணைக்கு சாதகமாகவும், பாடகமாகவும் அநேகம் மெம்பர்கள் இன்று பேசினார்கள். கனம் கந்தசாமி பிள்ளை அவர்கள் வெகு தெளிவாக அதை எதிர்த்துப் பேசினார்கள். கனம் M. A. எஸ்வரன் அவர்களும் கவர்ன்மெண்டார் ஏன் இதில் தலையிடவேண்டும் என்ற விஷயங்களைப்பற்றியும் பேசினார்கள். மடங்களில் நடக்கின்ற ஊழல்களை கண்டிக்கவேண்டுமென்பது எல்லோருக்கும் பொதுவான, சமத்துவமான அபிப்பிராயம். ஆனால், சில சில மத சம்பந்தமான விஷயங்கள் இதனால் அடியோடு போய்விடுமோ என்ற ஒரு உணர்ச்சியினாலேதான் சில மெம்பர்கள் அதில் சர்க்கார் தலையிடுவது நியாயமல்ல, அவர்களுடைய சக்திக்கு மீறி அவைகளை விஸ்தரிக்கக்கூடாது என்று குறிப்பிட்டார்கள். ஸ்ரீமான் கந்தசாமி பிள்ளை அவர்களும் இருபது வருஷத்துக்கு முன்னாலும், ஐம்பது, நூறு வருஷங்களுக்கு முன்னால் நடந்த பல தீர்ப்புகளையெல்லாம் ஸ்ரீமான் விஸ்வநாதம் அவர்கள் எடுத்துக் கூறியதைக் கண்டித்து பேசினார். அவர்கள் பேசும்பொழுது பழங்காலத்து தீர்ப்புகள் இப்போது அவசியமில்லை. அப்போது இருந்த காலம் வேறு இப்போது இருக்கக்கூடிய காலம் வேறு, காலத்திற்குத் தகுந்தாற்போல் நாம் நடவடிக்கைகளை மாற்றிக்கொள்ள வேண்டுமென்று சொன்னார்கள். உண்மை, இது வாஸ்தவம்தான். ஆனால், காலத்திற்குத் தகுந்தாற்போல் நம்முடைய நடவடிக்கைகளையும் மனதையும் மாற்றிக்கொண்டுவிடவோமே தவிர அந்தந்த காலத்திற்குத் தகுந்தாற்போல் மத சம்பந்தமான ஸ்தாபனங்களை மாற்றுவது சரியல்ல. குறைத்திலும் எண்ணத்திலும் பல மாற்றங்கள் ஏற்படவேண்டும். நம்முடைய குணம் மாறவில்லை. நம்முடைய மனப்பான்மையும் இப்போது இருக்கின்ற சூழ்நிலையும் சரியான முறையில் இல்லை. இப்படிப்பட்ட மனப்பான்மை நீடிக்கும்போது சர்க்கார் மத ஸ்தாபனங்களில் பூரண அதிகாரத்துடன் இறங்கினால் அது மக்களுக்கு மிகக்கூதாதாகிவிடும். இப்போதும் மதப்பற்றுக்கள் உள்ளவர்கள் ஆங்காங்கே மத ஸ்தாபனங்களை நிர்வகித்ததான் வருகிறார்கள். திடீரென எந்த பழைய பழக்கங்களையும் மாற்றிவிட முயற்சிப்பது சரியல்ல. இந்த சமயத்தில் எனக்கொரு சம்பவம் ஞாபகம் வருகிறது. ஒரு சமயம் நானும் கனம் சபாநாயகர் அவர்களும் சமீபத்தில் ஒரு இடத்திற்கு போக வேண்டி இருந்தது. அப்போது அவர்கள் ஒரு விஷயத்தைச் சொன்னார்கள். அதாவது இப்போதும் லண்டன் சட்டசபை கூடுவதற்கு முன்னால் மெழுகு வர்த்தி விளக்குடன் ஒருவன் எல்லா மெம்பர்களின் இடத்தையும் சம்பிரதாயமாக பரிசோதிப்பானாம். பின்னர்தான் அவ்விடத்தில் மெம்பர்கள் உட்கார வேண்டுமாம். எலக்ட்ரிக் விளக்கு இந்தக் காலத்தில் இல்லையா? டார்ச் லைட்டை எடுத்துக்கொண்டு கூட பார்க்கலாமே! இருந்தாலும் பழைய சம்பிரதாயத்தை விடக்கூடாது என்பதற்காக இன்னமும் மெழுகு வர்த்தி விளக்கை வைத்துக்கொண்டுதான் பார்க்கிறார்கள் என்று கனம் சபாநாயகர் அவர்கள் சொன்னார்கள். இதை எதற்காக அவர்கள் சொன்னார்கள் என்றால் நாம் பழைய சம்பிரதாயங்களை எளிதில் கைவிட்டுவிடக்கூடாது என்பதற்காகத்தான். மத விஷயங்களில் பூரண அதிகாரத்துடன் அரசாங்கத்தார் தலையிடுவதானது மக்களுக்கு தெய்வபக்தியே இல்லாதுபோய்விடும் என்று சொல்ல விரும்புகிறேன். தெய்வபக்தி இல்லாவிட்டால் எந்த சமூகமும் கெட்டுவிடும். பாரதத்தில் ஒரு விஷயம், எனக்கு இப்போது ஞாபகம் வருகிறது. தர்மபுத்திரர் வீற்றிருக்கும் காலையில் பீமசேனன், ‘அண்ணா, அண்ணா!! அதோ கலி புருஷன் போகிறான் பார்; தன் இளம் மனைவியை தோளிலே தூக்கி வைத்துக்கொண்டு தன் வயது முதிர்ந்த தாயை கரகர வென்று பிடித்து இழுத்துக்கொண்டு போகிறான்’ என்றுனாம். அப்போது தர்மபுத்திரர் ‘பீமா கலியை உன்னிடத்திலேயே பார்த்துவிட்டேனே, கலி புருஷன் போய் பார்க்கவேண்டாமே’ என்று மரியாதைக் குறைவாக வந்ததைக் குறிப்பிடுகிறார். இதை நான் பாரதத்தில் படித்திருக்கின்றேன். இப்போது இந்த கோவில்களின், மடங்களின் நிர்வாகப்

பொறுப்பையெல்லாம் சர்க்கார் ஏற்று நடத்த வந்தால் புதுப்புது உத்தியோகஸ்தர்களும் கமிஷனர்களும் நியமிக்கப்படுவார்களே யன்றி கோவில் நிர்வாக விஷயத்தில் எந்தவிதமான சீர்திருத்தமும் இருக்காது என்று குறிப்பிட விரும்புகிறேன். மேலும், இப்போது நம்முடைய கவர்ன்மெண்ட் டிபார்ட்மெண்டுகள் எவ்வளவு மோசமாகயிருக்கிறதோ அவ்விதம் தான் மத ஸ்தாபன நிர்வாகமும் இருக்கும். இது நாம் அறிந்த விஷயம். இப்போது மடங்கள் சரியாக நடைபெறவில்லை என்று கூறுகிறோம். நான் சொல்வது என்னவென்றால் இந்த மடங்களின் நிர்வாகத்தை ஏற்றுக் கொள்ளப்போகின்ற சர்க்காரும் நான் ஒழுங்காக ஒரு விஷயங்களில்கூட நடந்துகொள்ளமுடியாது என்றுதான். ஏனென்றால் இன்று சர்க்கார் இலாகாக்களில் எவ்வளவு ஊழல்கள் இருக்கிறது என்பது நமக்குத் தெரியும். ஆகையால் சில அதிகாரங்களை எடுத்துக்கொண்டு இந்த மடங்கள் நல்ல முறையிலே நடப்பதற்கு சர்க்கார் வழிகாட்டியாய் இருக்கவேண்டியதே தவிர இம்மாதிரி பூரண அதிகாரங்களை எடுத்து அந்த மடஸ்தாபனங்களை கைப்பற்றுவது சரியல்ல.

“ஸ்ரீமான் எஸ்வரன் அவர்கள் பேசுகிறகாலத்தில் மடாதிபதிகளைப்பற்றி மிக இழிவாக எடுத்துச் சொன்னார்கள். இம்மாதிரி அவர்கள் சொல்வது சரியல்ல. தெளிந்த அறிவுள்ள மனிதர்கள் பேசும் வார்த்தைகளும் அல்ல அவை. இதற்காக என்னை மன்னிக்கவேண்டும். காந்தியை நாம் எவ்வாறு போற்றுகிறோமோ, எவ்வாறு அவரிடம் நாம் மதிப்பு செலுத்துகிறோமோ அதேமாதிரி ஒவ்வொருவரும் மத குருமார்களை கௌரவிக்க கடமைப்பட்டிருக்கிறோம். ஒரிரண்டு மடாதிபதிகள் தவறுதலாக நடக்கலாம் ஆனால் மடாதிபதிகள் பதவி சாஸ்வதமல்ல. அவர்கள் பரம்பரை வாராக இருப்பதில்லை. ஒருவரை நியமிப்பதும் அவருக்குப்பின் அந்த ஸ்தானத்திற்கு வேறு ஒருவரை தேர்ந்தெடுப்பதும் அவர்களுடைய சிஷ்யக் கூட்டத்தாரின் வேலையாகும். அப்படியிருக்கையில் பொதுப்படையாக இம்மாதிரி சட்டம் செய்வதும், மடாதிபதிகள் அவ்வளவு பேரையும் இம்மாதிரி குறைகூறுவதும் தப்பு என்பதையும் தெரிவித்துக்கொண்டு கனம் கோபால்சாமி அவர்களின் திருத்தத்தை சர்க்கார் ஏற்றுக்கொள்ளவேண்டுமென்று கேட்டுக்கொள்கிறேன்.

SRI S. CHIDAMBARA AYYAR:—“Mr. Speaker, Sir. In the first instance, I strongly protest against the insinuations and the damaging language used by my hon. Friend Sri M. A. Easwaran about matadhipathis. As regards the amendment moved by my hon. Friend Sri L. N. Gopalaswami, his point is that the word ‘math’ should be excluded from the definition of ‘religious institution’ and nothing more. My hon. Friend Sri K. Bhashyam has explained about control over maths and their properties and there is no quarrel about it. We can discuss it in detail as and when the concerned chapter comes up for discussion. The question is whether in the present definition it should be excluded.

“Hon. Sri T. Viswanatham has read some judgments delivered by the High Court of Madras with regard to the definitions of ‘temples’, ‘maths’ and ‘matadhipathis’. The position of both ‘maths’ and ‘matadhipathis’ is vitally different and this House has to carefully see it—and I wish the Hon. Ministers also should read the judgments. My hon. Friend Sri Kandaswami Pillai said that the judgments were delivered long before and were hence useless. But, the validity of their conclusions is still there so far as the rights and duties of ‘maths’ and ‘matadhipathis’ are concerned. The grounds on which they came to the conclusions are most important.

[Sri S. Chidambara Ayyar] [17th November 1950]

"In fact, Sir, maths have been formed by highly spiritual and learned men with a number of followers called 'Shishyas' to propagate the tenets and doctrines in respect of a philosophy they thought good. They formed an institution by themselves and there is nothing wrong. I therefore plead that it should be omitted from the definition.

"As a matter of fact, Sir, as mentioned in some of the judgments, so far as matadhipathis are concerned the income is for the math and the matadhipathis are the beneficiaries of the income and in case of temples the public are the beneficiaries. So, math is distinct from temple. I therefore submit, Sir, that the Government may well omit the word 'math' from the definition.

"Also the course of management is different. Sir, the matadhipathis may spend the moneys for instituting Veda Patasalas and Thevaram Patasalas and also for other purposes which the trustees of temples cannot do. Therefore, the matadhipathis have got greater powers over the property as mentioned in the judgments. The temples have not got as much power as the maths. Under these circumstances, Sir, I support the amendment moved by my hon. Friend Sri L. N. Gopalaswami."

SRI K. T. KOSALRAM :—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, நண்பர் கனம் கேரபால் சுவாமி அவர்கள் கொண்டுள்ள திருத்தத்தை நான் எதிர்க்கிறேன். அவரும் பேசினார், பல அங்கத்தினர்களும் பேசினார்கள். இந்த மடங்களை இந்த சட்டத்தை விட்டு நீக்கினால் தான் ஹிந்து மதம் இந்த நாட்டில் இருக்க முடியும். இல்லாவிட்டால் அரசாங்கம் இந்த ஹிந்து மதத்தையே அழித்து விடும் என்ற தோரணியில்தான் அவர்கள் பேசினார்கள். உண்மையில் நான் என்ன சொல்லுகிறேன் என்றால் இந்த அரசாங்கம் இந்த சட்டத்தினால் தான் இந்த ஹிந்து மதத்தை தழைக்கமுடியும். இன்றிருக்கும் முறையில் மடங்களிருக்குமானால் ஹிந்து மதமே அழிந்துவிடும் என்பதை நான் நண்பர் கோபாலசாமி அவர்களுக்குச் சொல்லுகிறேன். மடாதிபதிகள் டிரஸ்டிகளாக இருக்கவேண்டுமென்று காந்திஜி சொல்லியிருக்கிறார். காந்திஜி அவர்களுடைய பொன்மொழிகள் என்னவென்றைப்பற்றியெல்லாம் பேசப்பட்டது. இன்னும் ஹைகோர்ட்டு தீர்ப்புகளைப்பற்றியும் பேசப்பட்டது. இன்னும் முன் காலத்திலிருந்த வழக்கத்தை இன்று மாற்றுகிறார்கள், அப்படி மாற்றுவது தவறு, அவ்விதம் மாற்றினால் ஹிந்து மதமே போய்விடும் என்றும் சொல்லுகிறார்கள். நான் ஒன்று சொல்லுகிறேன், அன்று மனிதன் மிருகமாக இருந்தான். காடுகளில் சுற்றிக்கொண்டிருந்தான். மனிதன் துணிமணிகள்கூட இல்லாமலிருந்தான். அவ்விதமே இப்பொழுதும் நாயிருந்தால் அரசாங்கம் எந்த நிலையிலிருக்கும் என்பதை யோசித்துப் பார்க்க வேண்டும். நாம் இப்பொழுது காலசட்டை அணிந்துகொண்டும், ஜிப்பா போட்டுக்கொண்டுமிருக்கிறோம். அன்று மாதிரியே இன்றுமிருக்கவேண்டுமென்றால் அவ்விதமிருக்க முடியுமா என்று கேட்கிறேன். ஹிந்து மதம் தழைக்கவேண்டுமென்பதற்காக முன்காலத்திலிருந்ததைப் போலவே இப்பொழுது மிருக்கவேண்டுமென்றால் முடியுமாவென்று கேட்கிறேன். ஆகவே நாம் காலத்திற்கு ஏற்ப நம்முடைய கொள்கைகளையும் நடவடிக்கைகளையும் மாற்றிக்கொள்ளவேண்டும்."

"இன்னும் பல விதமாகப் பேசப்பட்டது. பிராமணர்களும் மடாதிபதிகளாக இருக்கிறார்கள். பிராமணரல்லாதார்களும் மடாதிபதிகளாக இருக்கிறார்கள். ஹிஜன் மதகுருவும் இருக்கிறார். இவ்விதமிருக்கும்போதும் மதகுருவைப்பற்றி பேசும்போது ஜாதி வித்தியாசம் வரவேண்டியதெவசியமில்லை. மடத்தின் தலைவராக பிராமணர்களும் இருக்கிறார்கள் பிராமணரல்லாதார்களும் இருக்கிறார்கள். யார் மடத்தின் தலைவராக இருந்தாலும் சைவமதமாக இருந்தாலும் சரி, வைஷ்ணவ மதமாக இருந்தாலும் சரி அவர்கள் தங்கள் செய்யும் வேலைகளை சரிவர மதத்தின் பெயரால் செய்ய வேண்டுமே தவிர, ஜாதி வித்தியாசத்தைப் புகுத்த வேண்டிய தவசியமே இல்லை. பொதுவாக மதம் வாழ்வதன் பொருட்டு தான் வேலைகளைச் செய்யவேண்டுமே தவிர ஜாதி பிரிவினையை புகுத்தப்படவேகூடாது. மடம் என்பது எல்லோருக்கும் தான் ஏற்பட்டது. ஆனால் இன்று உண்மையில் பார்த்தால் அங்கே ஜாதி வெறிதான் தாண்டவமாடுகிறது. இவ்விதம் ஜாதி வெறி தாண்டவமாடுவதனால் அதில் மடாதிபதிகள் புகுந்துகொண்டிருக்கிறார்கள். அதனால்தான் இந்த சட்டத்தில் மடங்களையும் சேர்க்கப்பட்டிருக்கிறது. அவ்விதம் மடாதிபதிகள் ஜாதி வெறியில் புகுந்துகொண்டிருப்பதனால் அதில் அரசாங்கம் தலையிட்டு சட்டம் செய்யாமல் இனிமேல் இருக்க முடியாது. அவ்விதம் அரசாங்கம் தலையிட்டு ஜாதி வெறியை அறவே ஒழித்து அதை களைவதற்காகவேதான் இந்த 'பில்' கொண்டுவரப்பட்டிருக்கிறது. இந்த சட்டமானது அமுலுக்கு வந்தபிற்பாடு மடங்கள் பிராமணர்களுக்கென்றே அல்லது பிராமணரல்லாதாருக்கென்றே இல்லாமல் ஹிந்து மதத்திற்கு என்றே ஏற்பட்டது என்று வரும். ஹிந்து மதத்திற்காகவே தான் மடங்கள் ஏற்பட்டது என்றும் மடத்தின் தலைவர் யாராக இருந்தாலும் அவர் தான் மதத்தை வாழச்செய்யவேண்டுமென்பதற்காகவும் தான் இந்த மடங்களை இந்த clause-ல் சேர்க்கப்பட்டிருக்கின்றன.

"ஆனால் கனம் பாஷ்யம் அவர்கள் பத்தாவது clause-ல் தான் இந்த மடத்தை சேர்த்திருக்கிறோமே என்று சொன்னார். 15-ஆவது clause-ல் சேர்க்காவிட்டால் என்ன முழுதீர்ப்பாய்விடும் என்றும் சொன்னார். நான்

[Sri K. T. Kosalram] [17th November 1950]

MR. SPEAKER :—“ நீங்களே அதைப்பற்றி பேசும்பொழுது அக்கிரமமாக சிலவழித்தோம் என்று சொல்வது சரியல்ல.”

SRI K. T. KOSALRAM :—“ இந்த இரண்டு, மூன்று clause-ற்காக அனாவசியமாக இரண்டு மூன்று நாட்கள் விவாதித்துக்கொண்டு நேரத்தைக் கழித்துக்கொண்டிருக்கிறோம் என்பதற்காக சொல்லுகிறேன். இவ்விதம் அனாவசியமாக பேசி நேரத்தை கழித்து பொதுமக்களின் பணத்தை சிலவழித்து வருகிறோமே அதற்கு நாம் அங்கேயே அதைப் பெற்றிருக்கிறோமா? அது ஒன்றுமில்லை. இந்த நிலைமையில் மடாதிபதிகளையும் மடத்தையும் இந்த clause-ல் சேர்த்தால்தான் ஹிந்து மதத்தை வாழவைக்க முடியும் என்பதாக சொல்லிக்கொண்டு இந்த திருத்த பிரேரேபணையை முழுமனதுடன் எதிர்க்கிறேன்.”

SRI M. KANNIAPPAN :—“ கனம் தலைவர் அவர்களே, இன்றைய தினம் அரசாங்கத்தார் கொண்டுவந்திருக்கின்ற பில்லை ஆதரிப்பதோடு நம்முடைய நண்பர் ஸ்ரீ கோபால்சாமி கொண்டுவந்திருக்கும் திருத்தத்தை நான் எதிர்க்கிறேன்.

“ இந்த ஷரத்திலிருந்து மடத்தை நீக்கவேண்டுமென்று சொல்வது மிகவும் தவறுதலான காரியம். மதத்தின் பெயரால் எவ்வளவு இன்னல்களை மடத்தின் சந்நிதானங்கள் செய்துவருகிறார்கள் என்கிற விஷயம் நாடு அறிந்ததுதான். யாரும் அதை இல்லையென்று சொல்லமுடியாது. அந்த மடத்திலுள்ள சந்நிதானங்கள் இன்றைய தினம் இந்த நாட்டிலுள்ள ஹிந்து மதத்திற்கு புகழை தேடிக்கொடுத்திருக்கிறார்கள் என்று பார்க்கும் போது அவர்கள் புகழை தேடிக்கொடுக்கவில்லை. ஹிந்து மதத்திற்கு அழிவைத்தான் தேடிக்கொண்டிருக்கிறார்கள். ஏன் இதை தெரிவிக்கிறேன் என்றால் மடாதிபதிகள் நம்முடைய பெரியவர்கள் மதத்திற்காகவும், தர்ம கைங்கர்யத்திற்காகவும், நல்ல காரியங்களைச் செய்வதற்காக பல கோடி லக்ஷக்கணக்கான ரூபாய்களை நமது முன்னோர்கள் மடத்தின் பெயரால் எழுதி வைத்தார்கள். அந்த விதமான சொத்துக்கள் அனைத்தும் இன்றைய தினம் எந்தெந்த கைங்கர்யத்தைச் செய்யவேண்டுமென்று நமது முன்னோர்களால் கொடுக்கப்பட்டதோ அந்த கைங்கர்யங்கள் நடைபெறுகிறதா என்று கேட்டால் நடைபெறுவதாக நாம் சொல்வதற்கே இல்லை. ஏதோ சில மடங்கள் வேண்டுமானால் ஒழுங்காக நடப்பதாகக் கூறலாம். ஆனால், ஒரு சில மடங்கள் ஒழுங்காக நடக்கின்றன என்பதற்காக ஒழுங்கானதாக ஊழல் நிறைந்ததாக நடக்கும் மடங்களை திருத்த சட்டம் வேண்டாமென்று சொல்ல கூடாது. சட்டம் மிக அவசியமானது. அந்த முறையில் நம்முடைய அரசாங்கத்தார் நன்றாக ஆலோசனை செய்து இந்த மடங்களுடைய நிர்வாகத்தின் பொறுப்பையெல்லாம் ஆலோசித்து பார்த்து இந்த சட்டத்தை கொண்டுவந்த போது கனம் ஓமந்தூர் ராமசாமி ரெட்டியார் அவர்கள் பலவிதமான மடங்களில் நடக்கும் ஊழல்களைப்பற்றி பேசியபோது எல்லோருடைய மனமும் உருகாமலில்லை. அவ்வளவு பெரிய தப்புக்களையா இந்த மடாதிபதிகள் செய்திருக்கிறார்களென்றும் நினைக்கத் தோன்றுகிறது. உதாரணமாக திருவாடுதறை மடத்தைப்பற்றி சொல்லுகிறேன். அவர் இன்றைய தினம் சுற்றுப் பிரயாணம் செய்கிறார்கள். அந்த மடங்களில் இன்று நடக்கக்கூடிய அக்கிரமங்களைப் பார்க்கும்போது

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—“ கனம் மெம்பர் என்றவது ஒரு முறையாவது மடத்திற்குள் நுழைந்திருக்கிறா என்று கேட்கிறேன்.”

SRI M. KANNIAPPAN :—“ மடத்திற்குள்ளேய் இருக்கிறேன். பல சந்நிதானங்களையும் பார்த்து இருக்கிறேன். ஆனால், பார்த்ததும் அவர் கள் செய்கின்ற தப்புகளை நான் சொல்லாமல் இருப்பேனையானால் தவறு செய்தவன் ஆவேன். மதத்தின் பெயரால் இன்று அவர்கள் செய்து வருகின்ற அக்ரமங்களைப்பற்றி நான் மாத்திரம் சொல்லவில்லை. பொது மக்களே பகிரங்கமாக அச்சிட்டு படங்களுடன் கூட பலருக்கும் அனுப்பியிருக்கிறார்கள். எனக்கும் அம்மாதிரி ஒரு செய்தித் துண்டு வந்திருக்கிறது. கனம் மந்திரி அவர்களும் அதைப் பார்த்திருப்பார்கள் என்று நினைக்கிறேன். ஆகவே, இப்பேர்ப்பட்ட பெரிய தவறை செய்யக்கூடிய மடங்கள் இருக்கும் போது அதை திருத்தவேண்டியது அரசாங்கத்தாரின் கடமை அல்லவா? இப்போது அந்தக் கடமையைச் செய்வதற்காக ஒரு சட்டத்தைக் கொண்டு வந்தால் அதற்கு திருத்தம் தேவையா? இப்படி திருத்தங்களை கொண்டு வந்து வாதாடும் காலத்தில்தான் என்னைப்போல் உள்ளவர்கள் பலர் சந்தேகிக்க நேரிகிறது. இப்போதுள்ள மடங்களின் நிலைமையை நன்றாக உணர்ந்து அதைத் திருத்தவேண்டிய நாம் ஒரு சட்டத்தைக் கொண்டுவந்து அதை ஏகமனதாக நிறைவேற்றவேண்டுமே தவிர அதற்கு இம்மாதிரி பல தடங்கல்களை எழுப்புவது நியாயமும் அல்ல. ஆகவே, பொதுவாக நாம் எல்லோரும் அரசாங்கத்தாரின் இந்த சட்டத்தை முழு மனதுடன் ஆதரிக்க வேண்டும் என்றும் நண்பர் ஸ்ரீ கோபால்சாமி அவர்கள் கொண்டுவந்திருக்கின்ற திருத்தத்தை நாம் அத்தனை பெரும் தோற்கடிக்கவேண்டிய முயற்சியை எடுத்துக்கொள்ளவேண்டுமென்றும் கேட்டுக்கொள்ளுகிறேன்.”

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—“ Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have been listening to very enlightening speeches about the origin of maths. Hon. Mr. Pattabhiramiah was very kind to take us to the very origin of certain words. His purpose was to remind us of the origin of the maths and to tell us exactly what they are and to what extent, as a Legislature, we should have administrative control over them. In spite of it all, and in spite of the personal explanation which hon. Mr. Bhashyam gave, I have not been able to get over my one difficulty in this matter. I do not see how, by omitting the word ‘math’ from this sub-clause (15), hon. Mr. Bhashyam could attain his object of excluding the maths from the scope of this Bill. All the speakers except hon. Sri K. Varadachari want that maths should be excluded from this Bill altogether. (A voice: ‘If possible’.) Yes, ‘if possible’. But, hon. Mr. Bhashyam, knowing perhaps the awkwardness resulting from not having the word, has added it. ‘I find that all the arguments advanced are to the effect that ‘math’ should not be included in this Bill. I want to know how the omission of the word ‘math’ from this sub-clause (15) can achieve that object, so long as Chapter V is there in the Bill. Sir, as I submitted even yesterday, the object of providing a definition of ‘religious institution’ is simply this: In a number of places in this Bill we have to use the words ‘maths, temple or specific endowment’. To avoid their repetition in a hundred places in the Bill, we are providing this definition of ‘religious institution’. I do not know how, as I said, by removing the word ‘math’ from this definition, the maths could be taken out of the scope of this Bill. This attempt seems to me like securing the cage after the bird has flown away. We have passed sub-clause (10) which defines what a ‘math’ means. ‘Math’ has therefore been included in the Bill. We have laid down further, in sub-clause (11), that a ‘person having interest’ means in the case of a math,

[Sri K. Madhava Menon]

a disciple of the math or a person of the religious persuasion to which the math belongs. What is a math and who is a person having interest, we have already defined. Now, I cannot understand how the object of removing the maths altogether from the scope of this Bill can be achieved by omitting from the definition of 'religious institution' the word 'math' and retaining it in every other part of the Bill. Perhaps it is the idea of some hon. Members to omit 'maths' from all the clauses of the Bill. If that is so, they could have adopted a different course and not, every time when the word 'math' comes, raise a full-dress debate. This would save time. (An hon. Member: 'Waste time?') I never used the word 'waste'. I said for saving time they could have adopted a different course. I never even felt that we were wasting time. I did not use the word 'waste'. I was only trying to understand why there was so much of discussion to exclude 'maths' from this Bill, if that was the object of hon. Members. If there is not so much discussion about this matter at every stage there will be a saving of time and energy. That is my submission in regard to this discussion.

"I do not feel called upon to answer seriously why the 'maths' should be included in this definition. The object of this Bill is to include maths in its scope and, as hon. Mr. K. Varadachari pointed out, it is too late in the day to say that a math should not be included in this definition, seeing that, whatever be the origin of these maths they should be included in this Bill and we have already so included them to the extent necessary. Of course this is subject to any change which the House may choose to make hereafter in the course of the discussion of the further clauses.

"I want at this stage to make one or two points clear. I do not quarrel with the decisions of the High Court. 27, Madras, which hon. Sri T. Viswanatham quoted, was about the head of a math who became a lunatic. He is supposed to have nominated his successor before he became a lunatic. That person died before somebody else was nominated and somebody personated the head of the math and claimed that he had been rightly nominated. The question for decision before the Court was whether this claim was correct and whether even when a matadhipathi becomes a lunatic he still has the right to nominate his successor. The High Court held that even when a matadhipathi became a lunatic, he does not, ipso facto cease to be a matadhipathi. There was no provision of law to enable one to authoritatively declare that the position would be such and such when a matadhipathi becomes a lunatic. The matter had therefore to go before a number of courts and finally to the High Court. There was also this question to decide as to what happened in between the time when the matadhipathi became a lunatic and the courts gave a decision. A lot of time, money and energy was spent over this matter by the disputants. One of the provisions in this Bill is that in case there is a vacancy somebody must step in to see that the matadhipathi or the institution does not suffer. What I say is this: as Mr. Ramaswami Mudaliyar pointed out, Justice Bhashyam Ayyangar's judgment says—

[17th November 1950]

[Sri K. Madhava Menon]

'The two classes of institutions, viz., temples and mutts, are thus supplementary in the Hindu Ecclesiastical system, both conducing to spiritual welfare, the one by affording opportunities for prayer and worship, the other by facilitating spiritual instruction and the acquisition of religious knowledge—the presiding element being the deity or idol in the one, the learned and pious ascetic in the other.'

So these temples and maths are both supplementary to each other in the Hindu Ecclesiastical system. It will be really a far-fetched statement for anybody to say 'I have the authority of the High Court decision that math does not form part of the Hindu religion at all, it is a different thing altogether.' Their Lordships also went into the question whether when a matadhipathi is a lunatic, he loses control over the math or not. The hon. Mr. Muniswami Pillay was saying 'Don't touch the math, do as the late lamented Raja of Panagal did, do not touch them at all'. Sir, the Hindu Religious Endowments Bill of 1922 which subsequently became law, was referred to a Select Committee consisting of the following 27 members—

- (1) The Hon. Raja of Panagal (Chairman),
- (2) Sri N. Gopalaswami Ayyangar, C
- (3) Sir C. P. Ramaswami Ayyar,
- (4) Sir T. Desikachariar,
- (5) Diwan Bahadur M. Ramachandra Rao,
- (6) Rao Bahadur C. Natesa Mudaliyar,
- (7) Sri T. A. Ramalingam Chettiar,
- (8) Sri B. Muniswami Nayudu,
- (9) Sri T. Somasundaram Mudaliyar,
- (10) Sir M. C. T. Muthiah Chettiar,
- (11) Sir A. Ramaswami Mudaliyar,
- (12) Mr. E. Periyannayakam,
- (13) Rao Bahadur P. C. Ethirajulu Nayudu,
- (14) Diwan Bahadur M. Krishnan Nayar,
- (15) The Raja of Ramnad,
- (16) Sri O. Thanikachalam Chettiar,
- (17) The Raja of Chellapalli,
- (18) Rao Bahadur C. V. S. Narasimha Raju,
- (19) Sri C. Ponnuswami Nayudu,
- (20) Sri S. Muthumanickachariar,
- (21) Rao Sahib M. C. Madurai Pillai,
- (22) Diwan Bahadur T. N. Sivagnanam Pillai,
- (23) Rao Bahadur T. Namburumal Chettiar,
- (24) Diwan Bahadur L. A. Govindaraghava Ayyar,
- (25) Diwan Bahadur C. Arunachala Mudaliyar,
- (26) Rao Bahadur K. Gopalakrishnayya, and
- (27) Sri C. Ramalinga Reddi.

I think the hon. Mr. Muniswami Pillay also was a Member of the Council in those days. At least in the year 1926 when the Bill became an Act, I think he must have been a Member. The

[Sri K. Madhava Menon] [17th November 1950]

Select Committee in one of the places relating to their unanimous recommendations stated as follows. I want to refer to it because hon. Mr. Muniswami Pillay was saying that the provisions included in this Bill regarding maths are perhaps more stringent than the provisions made in the original Bill. It is just the other way and those provisions were really stricter—

It is admitted that in respect of temples and other religious charities handed over to matathipathis in specific trust they should be held strictly accountable as trustees and that there is no objection to their administration of such trusts being brought under control. With regard to properties belonging to the math proper, it is claimed that its head is not in the position of a trustee and that interference with his management of such property would be as little justified as interference with private property. The latter, we think, is an untenable position. It is admitted that the head of a math is not at liberty to alienate the corpus of the math property except in circumstances which would almost justify alienation of ordinary trust property. As regards the income from such corpus and what the head of a math may himself earn by way of offerings and gifts, he is, according to the evidence that has been given before us, expected to use it only for purposes connected with the math and with himself as head thereof. Any other appropriation of such funds would be deemed to be improper. We cannot therefore subscribe to the somewhat extreme view that a math and its endowments and income constitute the absolute personal property of the matathipathi for the time being and it is significant that exponents even of this extreme view have conceded before us that, where the circumstances require such a step, it would be desirable to associate the disciples in the administration of an ill-managed institution. The math as an institution exists for the spiritual welfare of its disciples. The matathipathi is an ascetic and could, ex hypothesi, have no interests other than those which are proper and which subserve the interests of his disciples. Large properties are in the hands of many of them and there is evidence that several of them have mismanaged and misused the properties in their charge. These facts and considerations are ample justification for our declining to drop maths out of the Bill altogether.

So, Sir, the facts and considerations which I have read out just now which led the Legislative Council Members in those days to decline to drop maths out of that Bill altogether, is my argument now for declining to accept the amendment to drop maths altogether out of this Bill. The question whether the provisions are adequate or not and the question, to what extent there is interference, etc., are quite different altogether from the question whether maths should be included or not. I definitely say, Sir, that maths cannot be excluded from the scope of this Bill. If that is the idea of the mover of the amendment or if that is the effect of this amendment, certainly, I must oppose it with all the vehemence that I can command."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, the Hon. Minister has read out the opinion of the Select Committee, and we know there were some clauses there dealing with maths; But is it not a fact that that Act gave power to the Government, and is it not a fact that almost all the maths were exempted?"

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"I cannot off-hand say, Sir, whether all the maths were exempted or not. The provisions were there regarding the maths . . ."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"But there were some provisions exempting these maths . . ."

17th November 1950]

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"I am not yielding, Sir. Let me continue my argument. The question now is whether the provisions of that Act were acted upon and whether matadhipathis were brought within the scope of that Act. No doubt power was given by the Legislature under that Act; but I am told that not all the maths were exempted although some maths were exempted. For the matter of that, even under the present Bill, in the case of a math which is properly managed, the administrative control or supervision is practically nil. It is namka caste even now. I am glad to note that to this extent at least my friend is prepared to trust the Government to give the necessary exemption in certain cases, I am glad for this small mercy. It is true that in Chapter VI there is a section which says that—

'The trustee of every math shall in each year submit to the Board before such date and in such form as the Board may require, a budget showing the probable receipts and disbursements of the following year and a statement of the actual receipts and disbursements of the previous year.'

Again, in case of mismanagement by a trustee, power is given to the Commissioner to file a suit, and in the case of removing a matadhipathi the Commissioner has only to go to the Court concerned or the High Court. In respect of other matters, I agree with the opinion expressed in Justice Bhashyam Ayyangar's decision, viz. :—

'I am however of opinion that the head of a mutt as such, is not a trustee in the sense in which that term is generally understood in the Law of Trusts, and the decision of the question under consideration cannot therefore properly be governed by the principles regulating the appointment of new trustees or by analogies derived therefrom.'

I agree with it perfectly, because the trustee of a math is not in the same position as the dharmakartha of a temple, and the provisions regarding them are different.

"Sir, I do not want to speak more about the many other points that have been raised. Whatever may be said about the institution of maths, that they are good institutions, about their historicity, their antiquity, etc., as mentioned in the judgment, the matadhipathi is a sanyasi or an ascetic who has renounced everything in the world. And so, as we know a sanyasi, he is not interested in the worldly affairs and naturally we must give him sufficient leisure for the purpose of propagating good in this country. Therefore, the management of vast properties belonging to the math should be in the hands of some other person, irrespective of whether the head of the math is a good or a bad person, whether he is a clever man or an ordinary man—and in fact sometimes things miscarry when they are done too cleverly, as hon. Mr. Bhashyam said yesterday—and it must be so even if it be for the purpose of seeing that a good matadhipathi who is an ascetic is not duped by persons who may have purposes of their own to carry out. I am not making any complaint against the matadhipathi. In fact I will be the last person to say that any matadhipathi is bad at all but, as I said, they may not know in many cases where and in what respect mismanagement is going on and how it must be prevented in the interest of the math, the society and the Hindu religion itself. So, Sir, the idea of removing maths altogether from the Bill is not, according to me, quite a correct idea, however much some people may feel that the sacredness of the math may go if we do so. It was also stated by my hon. Friend that this question should not be decided by the counting of heads, that the Ministers here, 12 of them, may be of one opinion, but that it is the disciples that must decide. I answered that point yesterday. As a matter of fact, in the course of the long sittings we had in the Select Committee, evidence was taken, the matadhipathis' agents also came; the one question that was put to every witness by the Members was whether the disciples believed in the infallibility of the matadhipathi, and the answer invariably was 'yes'. So, Sir, it is not a question for consideration by the disciples alone in cases like this. It is the House that has to decide the question and it is not the twelve Ministers alone that decide—hon. Mr. Viswanatham was mistaken in saying that the Ministers were 13 in number. We in this House have sufficient power to see that mismanagement is prevented, and that is the question to be decided by us now. (Interruption by Sri T. Viswanatham.) As I said, hon. Mr. Muniswami Pillay must have been labouring under a misapprehension when he said that the old Bill did not contain all the provisions we find in this Bill. It is not so; all these provisions were also in the old Bill.

"Hon. Mr. Bhashyam says that he has been convinced of my arguments. I can only say he is only speaking evidently not with the idea of convincing me or this House but to satisfy someone else. If the hon. Mr. Bhashyam has made the remark sarcastically that he has been convinced of my arguments, I say he is clever. But, if it is otherwise, I withdraw my argument. If it is his idea that my argument is not convincing and if he had been under the belief that we were under the impression that he was talking to convince us, I say he is mistaken.

"Then, Sir, hon. Mrs. Lakshmi Ammal said that by passing Bills like this, we are only encouraging an agitation by certain sections and when hon. Mr. Kanniappan referred to a picture of the tours of certain matadhipathis some friend remarked that it is produced by black-shirts. I must strongly repudiate it. It is the mentality that is shown here that one should never go into the question of mismanagement of public funds that encourages agitation by certain sections and black-shirts. I say still properties of maths are all public funds to some extent because it is once given by some ancestors, as Hon. Mr. Kosalam said, for the purpose of propagating religion. It is all the mentality of certain sections that we should not interfere with the mismanagements of such funds that creates the sections referred to by Mrs. Lakshmi Ammal and not a Bill like this."

THE MADRAS HINDU RELIGIOUS AND CHARITABLE
No. 10 OF 1949)—cont.

THE MADRAS LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Saturday, the 18th November 1950.

The House met in the Assembly Chamber, Fort St. George, at eleven of the clock, Mr. Speaker (THE HON. SRI J. SIVASHANMUGAM PILLAI) in the Chair.

MR. SPEAKER:—“ We shall now pass on to the next item in the Agenda, namely, the discussion of the Madras Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Bill, 1949. The hon. Member, Sri L. N. Gopalaswami, will now reply to the debate.”

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI:—“ Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am in a way glad that my small amendment has provoked a number of Members of this House to take part in the debate, although, I must say, that I am in a way sorry, that some of them have dealt with things which were not quite relevant to my amendment. I should like first to confine myself to the argument of the Hon. Minister, before I proceed to reply to some of the points raised by my other friends. Sir, the Hon. Minister, as usual, said that he was not able to understand what useful purpose would be served by my amendment. If by this, Sir, he meant, that all the amendments which we have given notice of, are not going to serve any useful purpose, because the Government have already made up their minds to pass all the provisions of this Bill without the addition or alteration of a single comma or semi-colon, the Hon. Minister might as well say, ‘ Why all this discussion about this Bill, why should the House waste its time in discussing this Bill for a week, when it knows that we are not going to accept any of the amendments of hon. Members? The Bill is already there and we shall pass it in a day’. Sir, that will be more in accordance with the wishes of some of our friends who shed tears for the cause of our religion and who want to legislate for the reform of our religious institutions in the quickest manner possible. But, Sir, they really do not understand what is meant by this amendment, let me tell them once more, what my amendment is and what is my purpose in moving this amendment. Sir, this amendment of mine is a very simple one. It only wants that the word ‘ math ’ should be deleted from the definition of the term ‘ religious institution ’ in sub-clause (15) of clause 6 of the Bill. The Hon. Minister’s argument was that we have already defined math under sub-clause (10) and we have also got a separate chapter in the Bill dealing with maths, viz., Chapter V, and so we have included maths also in this definition and that being so, why should the word ‘ math ’ in sub-clause (15) be alone deleted. It is exactly for the very same argument, Sir, that as we have defined ‘ math ’ in sub-clause (10) and are going to devote a separate chapter in the Bill for dealing with maths, that I want that maths should not be included in a ‘ religious institution ’ which is being defined in this sub-clause (15). If the intention of the Government is to bring maths also under their control and to deal with them separately under Chapter V of this Bill, then why should they want to classify them with ‘ religious institutions ’. They have already defined what they are for the purpose of this legislation? Does it not stand to reason, Sir, that if maths are to be dealt with separately, they should not be confused or equated with religious institutions? I want to save maths from being classified with religious institution for this simple reason, that although the Government are anxious to take up the control of maths under this Bill, the control over maths is entirely different from the control over other religious institutions, and merely equivocating them in a verbal sense, by means of this definition, cannot really make them so, because they are entirely different things. At the same time, I would ask my Hon. Friend, the Minister for Law, to remember that Chapter V is only in the Bill stage and has not yet been passed. For that also, my hon. Friend Sri K. Bhashyam has given notice of an amendment to delete the entire chapter and to substitute it by a new chapter. Even according to the intention of the Government, they are going to deal with maths separately, they have defined maths separately and they have also expressed their intention of taking up control of maths and that being so, why should they now want to bring maths within the definition of religious institutions, because if some unscrupulous officer put in charge of the administration of this Act, would treat all these maths as religious institutions and make a confusion of things, by applying to them any of the provisions of this Act, which might suit him. That, Sir, will lead to most undesirable consequences.

“ Now, Sir, a lot of confusion has been created over the provisions of this Bill that we are only thinking in terms of the persons who are occupying the posts of matathipathis. That is a matter that was being discussed very much on the floor of the House, although that was not relevant to the issue. The real point is, what is the origin of the math, and what is the difference between a math and other religious institutions, and what are the religious aspects of the maths brought within the purview of this Bill and so many other religious institutions. Those are the points that will have to be examined, in order to see whether they should be dealt with separately or not. Sir, many of the members who have spoken on this amendment, including the Hon. Minister, were simply saying that these matathipathis had misused the properties of the maths, that they had not accounted for the income from those properties, and so the State should interfere. How all these things are relevant to my amendment, I am not able to comprehend. There has been this confusion throughout the discussion of this amendment and nobody was able to understand the real purport of my amendment.

“ Sir, let me trace the history of this Bill. When it was first proposed about three years ago by the then Chief Minister, Mr. Omandur Ramaswami Reddiyar, there was no distinction made between a math and a religious institution and the entire religious field was sought to be covered and brought within the field of this State legislation. Perhaps he did not know that in the Constitution that was in the making at that time, was going to confer certain fundamental rights to the people, in regard to certain religious matters, and that the State could not interfere with such rights. After a period of about ten months, he brought it before this Assembly and by that time the new Constitution was passed in the Constituent Assembly and the Constitution Act was actually placed on the statute book. Immediately some of the members of this House raised the objection that that Bill offended the fundamental rights given under the Constitution and that the Government had no right to interfere in such religious matters. But the Government were adamant and said that they had consulted the Advocate-General and their law officers, that everything in that Bill was quite legal, and that they would proceed with that measure. That Bill was introduced in the Assembly and referred to the Select Committee. The Select Committee have made certain changes in the Bill and made their report to the House. But even before the Select Committee had made their report, there was a change in the Minister in charge of the Bill and a new Minister has taken charge of this portfolio and he has proposed a number of changes to the Bill after it had emerged from the Select Committee. We have, therefore, in fact, a new Bill under a new set of circumstances piloted by a new Minister."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"May I interrupt for a moment, Sir, and inform the hon. Member that it is not so. The Hon. Dr. T. S. S. Rajan has been in charge of the Bill all along and there has been no change of the Minister in charge of this portfolio. Even now it is he who is in charge of this Bill, Sir."

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI:—"Sir, I can only refer to the Chapter V of maths in this Bill and ask the House to judge for itself what are the changes that have been made by the Select Committee, which are printed in clarendon type and how they alter the entire character of the original Bill as introduced by the ex-Premier. Even at this stage, the Hon. Minister in charge of the Bill has given notice of a number of amendments, after it has been reported on by the Select Committee."

"Sir, when the then Hon. Premier introduced the Bill, he repeated the same arguments that many of the hon. Members have now stated, namely, that these matathipathis had been leading a luxurious life, spending the funds of these maths as they please, that they had refused to be brought before the court, that they had been adopting all tactics in order to evade appearance in courts by putting petitions and counter-petitions, putting first appeals and second appeals at every stage, and thus wasting the finances of these religious institutions, because they were the executive heads of these maths. But now the Government have thought it better to deal with these maths separately from other religious endowments. If they want to separate maths from other religious institutions, and give them a different treatment, then why on earth do they want to classify them under religious institutions? My main objection to the present proposal of the Government to include maths under this Bill is that once they have decided to allow a separate treatment for these maths, they should not now bring them within the clutches of this legislation. Further, I submit that the present Indian Constitution permits, under Articles 25 and 26, interference with religious institutions only to a certain extent and the State shall not transgress any further than that limit. It is only to explain what those limits are, beyond which the State should not interfere under the Constitution, that my hon. Friend Sri T. Viswanatham has taken so much pains to explain the origin and history of these maths and how they differed from other categories of religious institutions and what the legal aspect of the matter was, and he also quoted several decisions of the High Court in support of his contention. He quoted those decisions, not because they were simply High Court decisions, but his real object was to bring to the notice of the House, how even in those olden days, there were a lot of controversies and disputes going on over the question of maths versus religious institutions, how the matathipathis were controlling these maths and what their position was, so far as the law of the land was concerned. Sir, I could not really understand the argument of my hon. Friends including the Law Minister, when he said that because laws had been in existence for the last 50 or 100 years, we should change the laws and should change our attitude towards religion and religious institutions, for, everything is changing in the world in these days. Of course, I agree that things are rapidly changing, but I cannot understand how even the fundamental truths and principles could change. Sir, I would respectfully submit to my hon. Friend that long long ago, when Euclid first invented his geometry, he said that right angle contain 90° and now because we have travelled such a length of time, is it right for us to alter his theory and say that a right angle should contain only 89° and not 90°? Sir, ever since mathematics originated, we have been taught that 2 plus 2 is 4. Is it now right to argue, that because we have made changes in so many other things, we should make a change in mathematics also, and say that 2 plus 2 should make 5? That was exactly the line of argument of my hon. Friends. They said that because we have changed certain old laws and introduced certain new measures of reform, we should also change our old religious foundations and our outlook on these religious institutions. Sir, I am unable to understand this kind of logic and this line of argument even with regard to these fundamental things. I would only ask my hon. Friend whether, since we have tried to make certain researches in our Food department to find out some substitutes for rice, it will be right on our part to say that we cannot give rice to the people any more and that they should hereafter eat something else, because the food situation in the State is very grave.

[Sri L. N. Gopalaswami] [18th November 1950]

"This argument cannot hold much water. Certainly there are things which can change with the change in times and there are others which can never change and will not change. I shall give an example of a thing that can change. We have changed so far as untouchability is concerned. We have now stated that untouchability should not exist. After 100 years will my friends say, simply because times have changed, that untouchability should come back. It will be as foolish as the argument of theirs. I was just now talking about the changes made in the Bill. The Bill has undergone so many changes made by the Select Committee and other amendments?"

MR. SPEAKER:—"Let the hon. Member come to the point."

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI:—"I am just pointing out, Sir, how the confusion has arisen, and how the amendment has been confused with other aspects. After the Select Committee stage, it has come back to the Assembly with many changes. The Government themselves now want to make so many changes after the Bill has emerged from the Select Committee, because they now at least thought that they should descend to earth and see that the fundamental rights of the Constitution should be respected. What I submit is that they have changed some clauses, but as a corollary or concomitant of the changes made, they have not altered the other relevant clauses. I am here reminded of a story. A Governor was given a party by one of the zamindars. The zamindar was asked to prepare an address to the Governor. The zamindar evidently did not know English. He asked one of his friends to prepare the address in English. He prepared it, and the address began with the words 'Ladies and Gentlemen'. At the time when the address was to be presented to the Governor, the person who prepared the address found no ladies in the audience, and therefore he whispered into the ear of the zamindar to omit the word 'Ladies'. The zamindar accordingly began by reading 'And Gentlemen'. That is what we are now doing. Certain changes have been made to remove the objectionable features, but the consequential objectionable features have not been removed. We should now take out all such portions that are in contravention of the fundamental rights which has been accepted."

SRI P. KANDASWAMI PILLAI:—"On a point of order, Sir. I wish to know whether the hon. Member is reviewing the whole Bill, or is speaking on the amendment."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Is that a point of order?"

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI:—"As the Constitution has now come into force, I say that maths, as I shall presently show, cannot come under the definition of religious institutions."

18th November 1950]

MR. SPEAKER:—"If there is any discrepancy between the Constitution and the Bill, let the hon. Member raise a point of order. Let him come to the point."

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI:—"Sir, the Government have taken away certain provisions of the Bill. They have taken away the right of appointing the executive officer, and that clause 22, which deals with the right of management, is gone. But the definitions have not been altered accordingly. I say that there is a chapter on maths, and when we come to that chapter we will discuss maths, and that until then we need not bring maths under the category of religious institutions. By including maths in religious institutions, they will suffer not only from the handicaps of maths but also from the handicaps to which religious institutions are subject."

MR. SPEAKER:—"I will allow two more minutes for the hon. Member."

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI:—"I want some more minutes, Sir."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The hon. Member has already taken 10 minutes for the reply. I will allow him five more minutes."

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI:—"Even Mr. Madhava Menon has stated . . ."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The hon. Member will say 'the Hon. the Minister'."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"It is only familiarity, Sir."

MR. SPEAKER:—"No, we should proceed on Parliamentary lines."

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI:—"The Hon. Minister Mr. Madhava Menon seemed to contend that if all the Members of this House were agreeable, certainly a Bill could be brought forward to legislate on this matter. The hon. Member Mr. Bhashyam, who seconded my amendment, had also expressed such a thing by implication that if all the sishtyas of a math were amenable, then he had nothing to say and that he would keep 'mum' and allow the Government to go on. That is not the correct attitude, Sir, according to me. Even if all the sishtyas of a math, and even if all the Members of this House are agreeable, they cannot legislate on matters which are not within their domain. Law says that we can legislate only upon certain matters."

MR. SPEAKER:—"If it is the hon. Member's view that there is a discrepancy between the Constitution and this Bill, let him raise a point of order."

[18th November 1950]

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI:—"Sir, you have stated already I am not well versed with law; I have no legal assistance, etc."

MR. SPEAKER:—"No; let not the hon. Member repeat it again."

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI:—"I have already answered the points raised by hon. Members while advocating for the exclusion of maths from this sub-clause. Simply because one wants to kill the dog, he gives it a bad name and hangs it. Powers are not vested in the Government to bring maths under the category of religious institutions. Maths cannot be brought under the category of religious institutions simply because all the Members are agreeable to bring in such a law. Suppose, Sir, some of the hon. Members of this House do blackmarketing, by getting licences and make money, I ask, Sir, is it open to this House to say that those Members who have been blackmarketing and amassing wealth should account for all the money they have collected by way of blackmarketing?"

MR. SPEAKER:—"The example is a bad one. The hon. Member should not bring in such examples."

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI:—"I only say, Sir, that it is as bad as saying that matadhipathis misappropriate the money, and, therefore, they should be asked to account for it. The Government should have first the right to ask so. Unless they have that right, they should not enter into that portal. That is my humble submission." The hon. Member Mr. Ramaswami Mudaliyar stated that the Endowments Act of 1927 is there already. Nobody said that it was not there. Maths have been defined there. But my reply to him is that most of these maths are given exemption, and no action has been taken against the maths. At the time when that Act was passed, there was no Constitution. Now the Constitution has come, and the Government are prevented from making this law. Under Article 25 of the Constitution, the Government are entitled to make laws only so far as religious practices are concerned. They could not make laws in respect of propaganda management or the other portions of it.

"The argument of the hon. Member Mr. Varadachari was that this should be left to the future people. I am unable to understand this argument. If it is wrong now, it is wrong even at a future date. In conclusion, Sir, I want to bring two points to the notice of the Government. The intention of the amendment is simple. It has nothing to do with appropriation or misappropriation by the heads of maths. The point is only to take away maths from the definition of religious institutions. I hope the Hon. the Minister understands this point. If and when we get an opportunity to move our amendments to the clauses relating to maths, it should not be said then 'we have already defined maths in sub-clauses (10) and (15) of Clause 6 and therefore no useful purpose would be served by attempting to remove maths'."

18th November 1950]

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have understood now what the hon. Member has in his mind in moving his amendment. He said that his idea was that maths should be taken away from the definition of religious institutions. He said 'the Hon. the Minister stated that if all the Members were agreeable they could bring in a Bill', and also 'the hon. Mr. Bhashyam expressed that if all the sishyas were amenable, he would keep 'mum'. The hon. Member stated that both were wrong, and that it was not within the domain of this legislature to have anything to do with maths."

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI:—"I never said that, Sir."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"We cannot legislate on a matter which is not within the domain of this legislature', these are the words he used, Sir. Even now the hon. Member says that his object is that nothing should be done in this legislature regarding maths. He says that maths should certainly be outside the jurisdiction of this Bill. It is a matter of fundamental principle. Maths should be brought under the definition of religious institution. My friend was humorously referring to Euclid's right-angle of 90 degrees, and to the fact that 2 plus 2 is always 4, without reference to change in times. There is a proverb in my language Malayalam, namely—

'Asvini Barani Krithika padam—Mesha Rasi'

So, everything is yes, because it is yes. My hon. Friend has reconciled to changes of things which were thought to be sacred and even sanctioned by scriptures. He felt that Harijan temple entry and the Removal of Civil Disabilities Act were all good."

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI:—"Sir, untouchability was never sanctioned by scriptures."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"I do not know that untouchability was never sanctioned by scriptures. I have heard from religious authorities saying that it was sanctioned by scriptures. Sankara Smriti was quoted in support of untouchability being sanctioned by scripture. Untouchability was permitted for Chandalas—whatever may be the definition of Chandalas. Untouchability was sanctioned by Manu. Even those principles laid down in ancient days by Yagnavalkya and others have changed. Because Euclid's theorem cannot change, it is no answer to say that things of a social nature cannot change. The right of matadhipathis as absolute owners of the maths is not affected. It was wrong on the part of my friends to understand that way. I have nothing against them personally. I only say that there is certainly a demand that the money which is in the hands of these matadhipathis (the matadhipathis themselves being ascetics and persons who have renounced the world) should not be misspent or misappropriated, and that the Members of the House have a right to see that those moneys are not misspent. Sir, even economic principles which were thought before as absolutely unchangeable have now changed. The fifth dimension and also the sixth dimension have come. (Sri K. Bhashyam: 'Einstein's theory has upset.') Absolute theories have become changed. To say that Euclid's theorem cannot change, and that 2 plus 2 would always make 4, and, that, therefore, social things cannot change for all time, is not correct. That is all I have got to say."

[Sri K. Madhava Menon] [18th November 1950]

MR. SPEAKER:—"The question is—

'In sub-clause (15) delete the word "math".'

The amendment was lost.

Sub-clause (18).

MR. SPEAKER:—"I suppose the hon. Member Sri Viswanatham is not moving his amendment."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"I move, Sir."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"It is so amusing to move amendments, Sir."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, when we move an amendment, it is a matter of amusement to us. When we do not move, it is equally an amusement. The whole thing is amusing. But it cannot be helped, as Hon. Sri Madhava Menon knows. The reason why I move for the deletion of this sub-clause is very simple. There is already an existing legislation and from the Administration Reports of the Madras Hindu Religious Endowments Board I see that the Act is working satisfactorily with regard to the Tirumalai-Tirupati Devasthanams, and no case is made out why they should be included again in this legislation. There is already a separate legislation and it may be continued. The Administration Report says that the institutions are all working satisfactorily. Therefore, I would like the Hon. Minister to tell us why it is found necessary to repeal that Act and bring those institutions also within the purview of this Bill. I move, Sir—

'That sub-clause (18) be deleted.'

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"I second the amendment, Sir."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The amendment moved—

'That sub-clause (18) be deleted.'

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, it is not because the existing Act has not been working properly that the Tirumalai-Tirupati Devasthanams have been included in this Bill. There is no particular reason why those Devasthanams should be treated in a different way from any other Devasthanam. All Devasthanams are sacred. Conditions are the same except that Tirumalai-Tirupati Devasthanams hold more property than others. Therefore, there is no necessity to make a distinction

18th November 1950]

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, I thought that I would be enlightened on the point why those Devasthanams have been included in the present Bill. But the Hon. Minister has not enlightened me. The Government have so far dealt with those Devasthanams under a separate legislation and now they are trying to change it. I press the amendment, Sir."

The amendment was put and lost.

Sub-clause (19).

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, I move—
'That the brackets and words "(including the Board of Trustees appointed under section 40)" be omitted.'

These words are redundant and, therefore, they may be omitted."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"May I be permitted to second the amendment?"

MR. SPEAKER:—"Government amendments need not be seconded."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"I support it, Sir."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The amendment is—

'That the brackets and words "(including the Board of Trustees appointed under section 40)" be omitted.'

The amendment was carried.

MR. SPEAKER:—"Hon. Sri Viswanatham may now move his amendment."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"I am not moving the amendment, Sir. The Government do not seem to have any general ideas on the subject." (Laughter.)

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"My hon. Friend moved an amendment to clause 3. This is more or less a corollary to that."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The motion is—

'That clause 6 as amended do stand part of the Bill.'

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"On a point of order, Sir. At the time of discussing Explanation (1) to sub-clause (14), I thought that sub-clause would be separately put to vote and I could raise a point of order. But you were good enough to suggest that I could do it now."

MR. SPEAKER:—"If anything is out of order, the hon. Member can raise a point of order at any time."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"My point of order is that the portion covered by Explanation (1) to sub-clause (14) of clause 6 is ultra vires. That is why I move that it is out of order. In doing so, I shall briefly state my reasons. You are aware of the provision which has now become very famous and with which everyone is very familiar, namely, clause (2) of Article 31 of the Constitution. Clause (1) of that Article says that no person shall be deprived of his property save by authority of law. Clause (2) says that no property, movable or immovable, including any interest in . . .

[Sri T. Viswanatham] [18th November 1950]

MR. SPEAKER:—"The hon. Member considers it is private property?"

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"The point is that a property belonging to any person shall not be taken away for a public purpose unless the law provides for compensation. If you refer to the language of Explanation (1) to sub-clause (14), you will find the wording 'Any inam granted to an archaka, service-holder or other employee of a religious institution'. The provision itself says that the grant stands in the name of the service-holder. Therefore, even if the Government do not have it in their mind, the language says that the grant is in favour of the archaka, service-holder or other employee of the institution. When once they say that it is a grant in his name, they cannot at the same time say that it shall be deemed to be the property of the temple or the religious institution, without payment of compensation.

"Sir, I could have understood if it had been stated there like this 'inams which are in the enjoyment of archakas, service-holders, etc.' Here they actually say that it is granted."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Granted for a specific purpose."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Whatever the purpose may be, the grant is not to the temple but to the archaka. At the time of the grant, the temple and the archaka, both were in existence. The donor while making the grant knew the existence of the temple and yet he specifically gave it in favour of the archaka, service-holder or other employee of the religious institution. It is not as if the matter is in doubt. There have been cases where the language was not clear and the matter was looked into by Courts of Law and decisions were arrived at whether an inam belonged to the employee or to the religious institution. Here in this case the position is not so. The inam has been granted to the archaka, according to the language of the Bill. It is a positive admission of the Government and yet they say it shall be deemed to be the property of the religious institution. When once they say so, they have also to provide for compensation as required by Article 31 of the Constitution. If it is a matter of doubt, I shall take you, Sir, through one or two sentences of Justice Venkata Subba Rao who went into the question of these tenures carefully. I have already drawn attention to this aspect on another occasion. It is said—

'To determine whether the grant is resumable or not . . .'

18th November 1950] [Sri T. Viswanatham]

The language of the grant is not forthcoming. When once the language of the grant is there, there is no further question as to whom it belongs. Whether the grant is burdened with services or whether it is in lieu of wages is a different aspect altogether. The donor knew the existence of the institution. Still he wanted to make a specific grant in favour of a specified person. It may or may not be burdened with service. If it is burdened with service, it can be resumed only in some cases. The Judge says, 'To determine whether a grant is resumable or not . . .'

MR. SPEAKER:—"Is it about archakas?"

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"I think I have not made myself clear. I am saying that it is out of order because the law is seeking to take away the property belonging to certain archakas or service-holders and convert it into part of the property of the religious institution. That is to say, it is taking away the property of private persons."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The contention of the hon. Member is that the archaka or the service-holder is the owner of the property?"

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Not any contention, it is in the present provision. I want to draw your attention to the language of the Bill. The Hon. Minister gives an explanation but that explanation is not borne out by the language of the Bill. According to the language of the Bill, the Government admit that the inam is granted to the archaka or service-holder. It may be burdened with service, but if it is burdened with service, as long as the grantee is willing to perform the service, it is not resumable at all. The Government cannot touch it under the existing law. If they want to touch it, they may do so paying compensation. While we were discussing Explanation (1), we were on the point that the Government could not touch these things. Now we are on a different point altogether. The House agreed to the proposition that the Government can take away that property but I submit that they can take it only on payment of compensation.

"The grant was made to the archaka or service-holder while the religious institution had been existing. It is not as if the grant was made prior to the coming into existence of this institution. The donor knew the existence of the institution and yet he made the grant in favour of the archaka or service-holder. Therefore, it is absolutely clear that the grant is in favour of a specified person. It may be burdened with service but when it is burdened with service, it cannot be resumed so long as the grantee is willing to do the service. But if the Government want to convert it by legislation to-day into a property of the religious institution, they must pay compensation. Here the difficulty has arisen for me to convince you as to how it is ultra vires. It is ultra vires because of the language used. If they did not say, 'Any inam granted to the archaka, service-holder or other employee of a religious

MR. SPEAKER:—"Even two days ago I felt that the hon. Member Sri Viswanatham would raise this point of order. I entirely agree with the Hon. Minister that it is not the intention of the Government either to take possession of or acquire the inams. So . . ."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"May I be permitted to interrupt the Chair and say a few words?"

MR. SPEAKER:—"All right, the hon. Member may say what he wants to say. Let him not complain afterwards that I gave my ruling without hearing him."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, you began by saying that it is not the intention of the Government. We are not concerned with their intention. My point of order is that what is contained in Explanation (1) is ultra vires of the Constitution."

MR. SPEAKER:—"As I read the Explanation (1) I find that Government do not seek to take possession of or acquire the inams. Therefore, I rule the point of order raised by the hon. Member out of order."

Clause 6 as amended was then put and carried.

CHAPTER II.

Clauses 7 and 8.

MR. SPEAKER:—"The motion is—

'That clauses 7 and 8 of Chapter II do stand part of the Bill.'"

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, I move—

'That Chapter II and clauses 7 and 8 thereunder be omitted.'"

MR. SPEAKER:—"This is a Government amendment. If this is accepted neither hon. Member Sri Viswanatham nor hon. Member Sri Bhashyam can move their amendments. That is the procedure. Now, the amendment is—

'That Chapter II and clauses 7 and 8 thereunder be omitted.'"

SRI V. M. RAMASWAMI MUDALIYAR:—"Sir, I thought at the Hon. Minister in moving the amendment would explain the position."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The Hon. Minister may explain the amendment."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, hon. Member Sri Varadachari wanted me to say why under clause 7 of Chapter II, the Government should seek to take wide and exceptional powers. He said that insertion of a general clause like that is dangerous and not necessary too. We agree that it is not necessary to have such a wide and all-embracing clause and so have brought forward the present amendment for the deletion of that clause. Regarding clause 8, though it is omitted here, it has been inserted at the end as new clause 99-A as that is a more proper place than Chapter II."

SRI V. M. RAMASWAMI MUDALIYAR:—"Sir, one of the points that I wanted the Government to explain is, 'Why they are omitting clauses 7 and 8 and as a matter of fact the entire Chapter II?' I find that clause 8 comes in at the end and that it has been recast as new clause 99-A. I do not know why they should omit clause 7. I am sure that clause 99-A by itself is not sufficient and it would be much better to retain clause 7 of the Bill as it is. However, if they want they can remove this Chapter II and add an altogether different Chapter. It does not matter very much whether it is at the end or at the beginning. I would like to have the least number of changes in the order of these clauses unless there is some logical sequence.

"I feel it is necessary to have a more detailed explanation and therefore, I am for the reproduction of clause 8 under clause 99. At the same time, I am also for the retention of clause 7."

SRI R. V. SWAMINATHAN:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am very sorry that the Government have come forward to delete Chapter II altogether. I feel that this chapter is very important. All along, Sir, we have been under the impression that the Government would ask for more powers to deal with these endowments. Even now, the powers delegated to the Hindu Religious Endowments Board are not much. People are not really satisfied with the working of the Board. Of course, there are charges that the Board is exercising too much control. But these are all made by interested parties and just as there are such charges, there are also other charges levelled by other men that the Board is not given any power to have effective control over religious endowments. Sir, when this Bill was moved in this House for the first time some two years ago, we all suggested that the Government should have absolute control over the activities of maths and others. It is true, however, that certain hon. Members raised objection to the Government taking such powers. They said, 'ours is a secular State and the Government should not have anything to do with religious matters'. They pointed to the existence of several other communities in the country and said that all had freedom to do anything religious so far as each individual's religion was concerned. But let me say, Sir, that so far as our State is concerned, the majority of us are Hindus and, therefore, nobody need be frightened about this measure. Some other hon. Members said, 'When you have a Hindu Religious Endowments Bill, why not you introduce a measure to control mosques and churches'. I think this point is not at all relevant. As a Hindu, I want that the Government

I do not understand either how this chapter goes against the provisions of Article 26 of the Constitution. I may say one thing here. At each and every stage, objections are raised with reference to Fundamental Rights and the passage of measures is delayed. I therefore, strongly feel that both the clauses 7 and 8 should be retained."

SRI PYDAH VENKATANARAYANA:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, clause 7 confers unlimited, vague and sweeping powers on the Government which are quite unnecessary"

MR. SPEAKER:—"The Government motion is that that clause should be deleted."

SRI PYDAH VENKATANARAYANA:—"I am only supporting the Government Motion. There are other clauses which give sufficient powers to the Government to manage and control religious institutions and other endowments."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is rather an intriguing position which the Government have put themselves into. While they say that clauses 7 and 8 will be withdrawn, they have reproduced clause 8 elsewhere in the Bill. When the Motion says that clauses 7 and 8 may be deleted, it is not correct. It is not absolutely accurate. Clause 8 is retained but transferred over to clause 99 and made clause 99-A. Therefore, I do not know what the idea of the Government is. When I read in the newspapers that clauses 7 and 8 were sought to be omitted. I felt that there was some sense in it. But when the Government say that clause 8 will be reproduced it makes nonsense. Clause 8 which will be reproduced as clause 99-A gives powers to the Government to revise any order passed by the authorities constituted under the Act. They can revise the Commissioner's orders or the orders of the Assistant Commissioners and Area committees. Every one of the proceedings can be revised. They have got all powers. They want to grab all powers. They want to sit tight and yet want to show to the outside world that they do not seek any powers. They want to show to the world that their 'secular' Government are not concerned with religious matters. Why all this camouflage. I ask, if I may use the term here. It is not proper, it is really wrong, it is misleading to publish in newspapers that Chapter II would be omitted when the real position is that it is not so. This is not a fair thing to do for any Government. I would call it a trick played upon the public if any ordinary person has done it. I do not know what to say when it is the Government that have done it."

"Again, Sir, the Government want to have power but would not take up responsibility. They want to interfere with the administration of religious endowments and public charities but they would not have the responsibility of administering them. Clause 7 deals with superintendence of all religious institutions and endowments by the Government and that is taken away. But the power of revising the orders passed by the Commissioners and other authorities remains. It all means this. The Government will have no powers of initiating but will control. It is not safe to put power into the hands of the Government to control without responsibility. To use a political maxim power should not be given without placing responsibility as well. Therefore, let the Government retain both clauses 7 and 8 and take thus the responsibility for superintendence also. It is for this reason that I said, that the position was intriguing and you really laughed over it when it was said. Let the Government come out and say, 'we shall be responsible for the whole management of and superintendence over these things'. Let them say not merely 'we shall revise, confirm or do anything we like in respect of orders passed by the Commissioners'. Any ordinary man would have thought, after seeing the publication in the newspapers of this amendment, that the Government had given serious consideration to the provisions of the Constitution or that some directions from above had come at any rate from persons whose views could not be set aside—to delete this chapter in keeping with the secular character of the administration and that therefore, they have proposed an amendment to delete it. What now happens is clause 8 remains. I want the Government to make a specific declaration as to the necessity of clause 99-A. If they would not insist upon clause 99-A, I shall vote with them so far as the present amendment is concerned. If they say that they will insist, then I shall vote against the amendment. Clauses 7 and 8 must remain together or must go together. I wish they go."

SRI K. VARADACHARI:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am really surprised that hon. Members on this side as well as the other side of the House objected to the deletion of clauses 7 and 8. I am still more surprised that the hon. Member, Sri Bhashyam should plead for completely omitting clauses 7 and 8 (not reproducing clause 8 as clause 99-A) or retaining both. The Government must have certainly revised their opinion about the validity of clause 7 which deals with general superintendence of all religious institutions and endowments. That is to say, the Government take upon themselves the responsibility of managing all institutions connected with the Hindu religion. This provision is certainly against the provisions of the Constitution and will certainly be held to be ultra vires if it remains. The Government have, therefore, done well in having taken legal opinion on this provision and seeking now to omit it."

[Sri K. Varadachari] [18th November 1950]

"So far as clause 8 is concerned, how far it will be just and proper on the part of the Government to take such powers as mentioned therein and how far such powers will be in keeping with the provisions of the Constitution are matters which can be dealt with when we take up clause 99-A which is but a reproduction of clause 8. Clauses 7 and 8 are sought to be deleted. Once they are deleted, it is open to the Government to introduce one or both of the clauses in any other later chapters. Then only it will be time for us to criticise or to amend that clause and certainly not now. I, therefore, submit that the Government motion can be accepted."

SRI K. BRAHMANANDAM REDDI:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I feel that my hon. Friend Sri Bhashyam should not blow hot and cold in one breath. When the Bill was introduced he was saying that its provisions were opposed to the Constitution. And now, when the Government have come forward to delete a provision which had been introduced originally and which the Government felt impelled to withdraw since it went against the provisions of the Constitution, he opposes it. It is not open to him to say 'delete both or retain both.' It is not fair to say so. It is not even proper, in my opinion . . ."

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA:—"What about the merits of the motion?"

SRI K. BRAHMANANDAM REDDI:—"I am coming to the merits of the motion. My hon. Friend, Sri K. Varadachari, spoke at length about clause 7. I agree with him that the Government would have been told that the provisions of that clause go against the Constitution. Even according to the hon. Member, Sri Bhashyam, it is so. I submit, therefore, that it is fair and legal that this clause is omitted."

"Secondly, I would like to tell my hon. Friend, Mr. Swaminathan, who is opposed to the deletion of both the clauses that there are sufficient powers for the Government under clause 8 which will be reproduced as clause 99-A. There is sufficient check provided for in this clause and I would request him to withdraw his opposition."

SRI M. S. PATTABHIRAMIAH:—"I heartily support the amendment, Sir, that has been brought forward by the Government, because it was felt all along by people who have real interest in the religious institutions, who want that this Bill should be passed into law that these clauses which are so irritating should go. I consider it to be not a small mercy. It is really a big mercy and we are really grateful and thankful to the Government for bringing in this amendment. As it was pointed out by hon. Sri Bhashyam this clause 8 is being shifted and incorporated later under clause 99-A). Instead of referring to it now, we can discuss it later on when we reach that clause. But as it is, if this clause 7 had been there, it would have vitiated the whole Bill and I would have been sorry, if on that account this Bill were to be returned by the President for reconsideration. The Government have therefore done a good thing in coming forward with an amendment for the deletion of these clauses and I agree with them and heartily congratulate them on bringing in this amendment."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"I would certainly, Sir, like to congratulate the Hon. Minister for at least once he has admitted that the provision, for which he fought and retained in the Bill in spite of our advice, is wide of the mark. This clause was there when the Bill was presented to us. The term 'vest' in the clause was commented upon pointedly and the Hon. Minister in charge of the Bill said that they have taken legal advice and also read the legal advice to us, and talked as though they had understood everything and that we did not, when we raised objection to this clause. But now, Sir, I am glad on further consideration the Government have decided to drop that clause 7, because it contains one particular word. One word like 'vest' generally is enough, just as I was talking about the service 'inams' one word is enough to vitiate the whole Bill. I therefore, congratulate the Hon. Minister. But however, I agree with the remarks of my hon. Friend Sri Bhashyam for entirely deleting the chapter. The reason is, the clauses have been deleted only in name, just to satisfy the legal conscience. The Government have taken the substance from here and put it under other clauses without however using the word 'vest.' It can only satisfy the persons who raised constitutional objections. But if you look at the redrafted clause 22 and then read it with clause 99-A you will find that only these two gentlemen clauses 7 and 8 have changed their dress, from the 'dhoti' and the bare body which they had then to a shirt, suit, tie, and collar. That is all the difference. That is the reason why when the hon. Member Sri Swaminathan was saying 'why do you remove this chapter', I was actually sympathizing with him. The reason is that the Government have not actually removed these clauses. They have just done this to conform to the Constitution, and in obedience to the Constitution. But I would like to point out that all the things which would vitiate the Bill if passed into law are still present in Clauses 22 and 99-A. With the same sense of broad-mindedness with which the Government have reconsidered and omitted clause 7, they will, I hope, also reconsider the other provisions in the Bill and consider the objections when we raise them in the proper place and drop these clauses also."

SRI R. V. SWAMINATHAN:—"Sir, I raise an objection. Some hon. Members have taken advantage of my objection to the deletion of these clauses and made certain references. I want to explain my position."

[18th November 1950]

MR. SPEAKER:—"The hon. Member is trying to make a second speech. Nobody has attacked him, or made any reference of a personal nature about him. There is therefore no need to make a personal explanation."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Sir, the hon. Member Sri Brahmanandam Reddi said something about me, that I was blowing hot and cold in the same breath and that I was illogical and something like that. I want to say a word about it."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Is it that the hon. Member wants to speak after the Hon. Minister's reply?"

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"I want to say only a few words. Sir. I should like to tell the hon. Member Sri Brahmanandam Reddi for his information and his knowledge that I opposed both the clauses, clauses 7 and 8 and I do it even now. There is nothing illogical about it. The Government only say 'Take the Kudumi and not the head.' But let them say so openly. I only want my hon. Friend to know that it is wrong to think that I am wrong while all the time he is wrong indeed."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, I have not much to say beyond what my hon. Friend Sri K. Varadachari has said about this amendment. I have only to answer hon. Member Sri Bhashyam to whom it is all intriguing. It is certainly intriguing to him. The hon. Member would have liked the clauses to remain as they are. The hon. Members Sri Bhashyam and Sri Viswanatham and others think that if these clauses were there as they are, they would offend the Constitution and the whole Bill would become invalid. In that sense only it is intriguing. Otherwise there is nothing intriguing in this. I definitely said when I moved the amendment and it was expressed in this House that the clauses would offend the constitution. For this my hon. Friend Sri Viswanatham takes me to task. We have examined the whole thing and we find it would be better to remove the clauses and avoid the difficulty. I also said that Clause 8 is reproduced as Clause 99-A. This clause empowers the Government to call for the records and examine them and so on. The hon. Member Sri Viswanatham said we have removed the man in 'dhoti' and put him in trousers and collars and that was all the difference. Assuming for argument's sake, all that is correct, what is the harm in doing it? Apparently there was something in these clauses that we thought would offend the Constitution and worse harm would be done. In order to remove the difficulty what is wrong in dressing them up properly so that they may not offend the constitution and that is all what we have done. For the time being there is therefore no intrigue at all. Clause 7 is being omitted and Clause 8 is being reproduced later on under a different section."

The amendment was put and carried.

18th November 1950]

Clause 9.

MR. SPEAKER:—"The motion is—

That clause 9 do stand part of the Bill? "

* SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, I move the amendment standing in my name, namely:—

For existing item (a), substitute the following:—

"The Commissioner of Public and Religious Endowments, Charities and Trusts."

"Sir, the purpose of my amendment is, I want to give him a better name, a big name a dignified name, a name indicative of his duties, functions and privileges. The name looks a little long but the Government are not unused to such long names in almost every statute. There are the Excise Commissioner, the Prohibition Commissioner, Police Commissioner (An hon. Member: Corporation Commissioner and Municipal Commissioner.) Therefore, Sir, I think the use of the expression I have suggested would be better."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"I second the amendment, Sir, for this reason. Now, the Government say that the work of superintendence shall not vest in them and therefore this work should vest in somebody else. I want that the Commissioner, in whom it may be vested, shall be a person of sufficient status. I have also given an amendment. It may come a little later. I do not know whether it forms part of this clause or not."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The hon. Member has not given any amendment under this clause."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Yes, Sir, I said it may come a little later. Probably it is an amendment to Clause 11. To make my point clear I may be permitted to read my amendment, Sir."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The hon. Member may read it."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"My amendment, Sir, to clause 11 is—

After clause 11, insert the following as a new clause 11 (A):—

"11 (A) The Commissioner shall be a person who shall be a Judge of the High Court, Madras, or the Advocate General, Madras, or the Government Pleader, Madras, or a legal practitioner who has been practising as such for 20 years before the Madras High Court."

The Deputy Commissioner shall be a person who is or has been holding a post not less in rank than that of a District Judge or a legal practitioner who is actually practising for 10 years in the Court in the State of Madras."

[Sri K. Bhashyam] [18th November 1950]

That is why I say, Sir, the new name suggested is best suited and that it should be there. In the present case what happens is this. The Government have renounced all claims for responsibility for the superintendence over these matters. The entire thing is therefore left solely and primarily to the Commissioner. He is the highest officer who is going to be in charge of these matters subject of course to the liability of his orders being revised by the Government under clause 8 which is going to be clause 99-A hereafter. Therefore, I say, the new name suggested would be more appropriate than calling him a mere Commissioner."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"I do not think it is necessary to have such a long name 'The Commissioner of Public and Religious Endowments, Charities and Trusts.' Even then it will not be exhaustive. We will have to add something more. There is absolutely no necessity for the amendment."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Is the hon. Member withdrawing his amendment?"

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"It need not be withdrawn, Sir."

The amendment was put and lost.

Clause 9 was put and carried.

Clause 10.

MR. SPEAKER:—"The motion is—

'That clause 10 do stand part of the Bill.'"

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, I beg to move the amendment standing in my name, namely—

'Renumber the existing clause as sub-clause (a) and add the following as new sub-clause (b):—

"(b) The Commissioner, Deputy Commissioners and Assistant Commissioners shall be recruited from persons who possess a degree of law of any recognized University."

"Sir, it is a very self-explanatory amendment. These Commissioner, Deputy Commissioners and Assistant Commissioners have in fact to perform mainly judicial and quasi-judicial functions. Their administrative and executive functions are not many; particularly for Deputy Commissioners the functions are more judicial than executive. In this connexion I may draw your attention, Sir, to the English Charitable Trusts Act. In the English Charitable Trusts Act of 1853 and 1855 there is a special section that the Charity Commissioners shall be recruited from among the qualified barristers of 12 years' standing. The Hon. Minister, Sri Madhava Menon may well know it. In these it is said, the Charity Commissioners some of whom have analogous functions like those of the officers referred to under this.

18th November 1950] [Sri T. Viswanatham]

clause, that they shall be recruited from among the barristers, barristers of twelve years' standing. I submit, Sir, it is a very important thing. We have found in our experience that the element of law predominates in matters which they have to deal with under this Bill. I, therefore, urge that this amendment must be accepted. It is surprising to see that the Government have not laid down any qualifications at all for these officers. In a statute like this even for the biggest officer, the Government have not laid down any qualifications. It is not enough for the Government to tell the House, although the House is willing to accept whatever they may say, that everything will be stated in the Rules that would be subsequently framed. They must prescribe the qualification and whatever the qualifications might be, the officers shall be only from the profession of law with sufficient practice in law courts. Otherwise difficulties will arise. I know, when I say lawyers should be appointed to these posts, some Members are smiling. That is all that they can do. There is no use appointing people to these posts who are not trained in law. The Government have accepted the principle even with regard to the magisterial posts. Are they not appointing law graduates to these magistrate's posts under the new scheme? Also for these tribunals we are appointing only law graduates because they are quasi-judicial bodies."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Has the hon. Member finished his speech?"

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"I would like to continue, Sir."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The hon. Member can continue after lunch. The House will rise and meet again at 2-30 p.m."

The House then adjourned.

(After lunch—2-30 p.m.)

MR. SPEAKER:—"The progress in regard to the Bill is very slow. I think, if we progress at this rate, we will not be able to finish it. We may have to sit for longer hours and may have even night sessions. Or I will have to adopt Kangaroo closure."

THE HON. DR. T. S. S. RAJAN:—"I have no objection. I only want this Bill to go through."

MR. SPEAKER:—"We will sit till 8 in the night."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir. I do not want to be generally very long in the stage of discussion on the clauses. I am not at all long, Sir. Because the clauses are many, the intricacies are many and there are pitfalls, we are obliged to take much time. But, if the constitutional portion and the 'definition' portion of the Bill is over, the remaining discussion will be very easy. I am now moving a small amendment and some hon. Members may have something to say about it. After all it may not take half-a-minute. We need not think about the time factor. I can only say that those who agree with the wording of the Bill need not speak but leave it to the Hon. Minister."

[Sri T. Viswanatham] [18th November 1950]

MR. SPEAKER:—"But the point is that it will appear in the press afterwards or in the proceedings that all the Members opposed and that the Government have never allowed them."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Everybody knows it."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"The people know that the Government Bill is there and the Government have got the majority. Where the wording is agreed to, hon. Members should have no objection to cut short their speeches. I do not suggest—I have no objection to sit here even till mid-night and finish the Bill. . . . Anyway I shall not be very long."

"Sir, judging from the latest Administration Reports, the number of institutions that come under the powers of these officers will be as follows:—

Number of major institutions (of which 198 are Mantapams)	about 12,218
Number of temples	about 12,347
Number of specific endowments	about 668
Number of minor institutions	about 15,378

The annual value of their properties will be between $2\frac{1}{2}$ to 3 crores of rupees. Apart from the value, there are buildings, mandirs, institutions, etc., attached thereto. So, these officers are expected to deal with problems arising from as many as 30,000 institutions and properties worth 5 or 6 crores of rupees. I submit, therefore, Sir, that these persons shall be persons who know something of Law. And if we look into the various provisions provided in the Bill, we find that they are to exercise quasi-judicial functions in one or two cases and that the Government are now trying to divest themselves of their general superintendence and putting them in the hands of Commissioners. It is clear from that that the Commissioners will have even greater judicial powers to exercise than Commissioners in other departments. I therefore submit, Sir, that these officers should have legal training.

"There is an amendment by my hon. Friend Sri K. Bhashyam which discusses more specifically about this matter. But, with regard to their basic qualifications, I submit that the Government should be pleased to accept this amendment.

"In the English Act, Sir, these Charity Commissioners are also to serve during good behaviour and not during the pleasure of the Government only. I therefore submit, Sir, that their basic qualification should be a Degree in Law of any recognised University and that their tenure of office also should be during good behaviour. I therefore move my amendment, Sir."

18th November 1950]

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I want to say in advance a few words on the amendment I am going to move. My amendment prescribes the qualifications for Deputy Commissioners and Commissioners. But, the present amendment applies not only to those people, but also to Assistant Commissioners. Therefore, Sir, there should be no inherent difficulty in accepting both the amendments if the Government want to.

"So far as the question of deciding between the general people, Government, Commissioners and other officers, and persons now in charge of all these institutions, is concerned, it will be complicated not only with regard to the Act, but even in the practical working of certain sections which will involve the decision as to the interpretation of the various sections. They will have to refer to different sections for different matters. As a matter of fact, they have got to decide, when an endowment is both secular and religious, which portion is secular and which portion is religious. So, it will be very difficult to manage unless these officers are qualified in Law.

"So far as the present officers and persons being appointed now are concerned, I do not complain about them. But, if questions I have referred to above are thrown in the hands of the Commissioners not possessing the legal knowledge, the whole thing will get accumulated in the hands of the Commissioners and they will not be able to get on with the work at all.

"I, therefore, submit, Sir, that this basic qualification in Law will be a very good thing. I even suggest that every person should have some knowledge of Law that he is governed by."

MR. SPEAKER:—"It is not necessary if you want to second the amendment, to . . ."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"The qualification is an important matter and is necessary to be included. Some of us go to them and say: 'I have a boy who has not passed any examination, Put him somewhere—these political exigencies are there.' The point is by putting in qualifications we are helping the Hon. Ministers and members of the Government also. To say by rules there is a qualification is not enough. That qualification should be a statutory qualification. Otherwise everybody will approach the Hon. Ministers for the purpose of appointments for this man or that man either from their own relations or M.L.As. Therefore, statutory recognition of qualification should be there so that rules may be made—whether they do or not is a different question, and the Government should recognise the principle involved. I therefore second the amendment, Sir."

SRI M. R. APPA RAO:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, in these days of so many laws, I think that everybody should have some knowledge of Law and especially so for Members of the Legislature and for all Government Servants. If the Government deem it necessary, all the above persons should be Graduates in Law. I do not think that for the posts of Commissioners, Deputy Commissioners, etc., that qualification is necessary. We expect them only to know the administration and capable of understanding points of law. Even for I.C.S. Officers it is not necessary. They will have an idea of Law and they study Law afterwards. I therefore, Sir, do not support this amendment."

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, no doubt, as things stand today, no educational qualifications are necessary even for a Minister of Government. Because, if anybody is not required for any post in this world, he may be made at least a Minister as it is the only job under the Constitution, which does not require any educational qualification. I am not passing a mere remark. The point here is whether intricate matters that are going to be dealt with in this Act require the proper handling of the Constitution. You may say 'a Medical man may become a Law Minister. But, some grounding of knowledge in Law is absolutely necessary for administration of some of the chapters in this Act. A lawyer's course is not necessary for a Minister's office. A mere passing of B.A. is enough. Why don't you say that a pass in Intermediate Examination is not enough. There are Deputy Collectors and Collectors who have passed only S.S.L.C. That is not the point. The administration should always seek to be efficient. The idea of prescribing a qualification is to make the administration most efficient. For, one officer may think that certain provisions of the Act require the decision of a Court of Law and not in certain others. So, to respect the jurisprudence and the feelings of the people, the Government should appoint for these jobs persons who have a grounding in Law. Are we not doing it even now? I think that almost all the Assistant Commissioners appointed by the Government are Lawyers. There is none who has no legal qualification. I do not know why the Government should feel shy of simply copying what they have done already. Have not the predecessor Government thought it necessary? The experience of Government makes us feel that the legal knowledge is absolutely necessary in these matters. A mere University Degree is not enough. I think we are right in asking the Government to prescribe this qualification. The other speaker was intervening in the discussion and asked why it should not be brought under this rule-making powers of the Government. There is the possibility of mischief there in the rule-making power. Taking power to prescribe qualifications under the rules is the easiest way of doing things. Why not you lay down the qualifications in the clause itself? You have prescribed qualifications and age for the trustees. This has been done with the idea of safeguarding the proper working of this piece of legislation. Why not you do the same thing for the Commissioners and Assistant Commissioners also? Let the qualification be nothing less than a degree in law."

18th November 1950]

SRI P. KANDASWAMI PILLAI:—"I oppose this amendment. The world-famous mathematician, the late Ramanujam was not the holder of a degree in law. As a matter of fact, poet Rabindranatha Tagore was not conferred any degree when he was a student. Sound commonsense and capacity for administration are the two things essential for the management of temple affairs. Above all else, what is required in an administrator of religious institutions is that he should be well versed in the agamas and usages of the temple concerned. He should be conversant with the customs of particular temples so that he can conduct their affairs in conformity with religious injunctions."

"Sir, if any legal dispute with regard to property or other thing arises, he can get legal advice, if necessary. Therefore I say that to assert that lawyers alone are competent for this service is to degrade common sense and is insulting the intelligence of the non-lawyer population of the country. The Government should not bind itself by legislation that lawyers alone are competent to hold any office under this Bill. I strongly oppose this amendment. Any man of commonsense and ability and character, not merely people with academic qualifications should be selected for these posts."

SRI V. M. RAMASWAMI MUDALIYAR:—"I am not moving my amendment, but wish to say a few words at this stage. Sir, we are asked in this Bill to give certain powers (Section 9) to Commissioners and Deputy Commissioners. I do not say that lawyers claim the monopoly for character or efficiency or even for competence. But under this Bill very many enquiries or investigations are entrusted to Commissioners and Deputy Commissioners. These are of a quasi-judicial nature. Therefore it is necessary that these officers must have had some training to conduct those enquiries. Even when I.C.S. Officers are recruited, even though they have legal qualifications too, before they are called upon to exercise judicial functions, they are given this training as district munsifs or sub-judges. Let us therefore have some training of some sort for these Commissioners, etc. Even if a Commissioner or Deputy Commissioner is a man without any qualifications, he should possess some judicial training—some legal background. To emphasise the need for this, I may read out to the House clause 62 which enumerate the duties cast upon the Commissioners and Assistant Commissioners—

"62. Subject to the rights of suit or appeal hereinafter provided, the Deputy Commissioner shall have power to inquire into and decide the following disputes and matters:—

- (a) whether an institution is a religious institution;
- (b) whether a trustee holds or held office as a hereditary trustee;
- (c) whether any property or money is a religious endowment;
- (d) whether any property or money is a specific endowment."

It should be noted that the question whether a trustee is a hereditary trustee or non-hereditary trustee has been a sore question. In spite of the decisions in 6 Madras, and 7 Madras and 38

[Sri V. M. Ramawami-Mudaliyar] [18th November 1950]

Madras of Sadasiva Ayyar, even to-day the law in this regard is in a state of flux. Even our own definition of 'hereditary trustee' is 'the trustee of a religious institution succession to whose office devolves by hereditary right'. The interpretation of the term 'hereditary trustee' has been the subject-matter for decision by various Benches of the Madras High Court. And yet, even to-day the law in regard to this is in a state of flux. To strike a personal note, I may mention that I had, two days ago, to argue this very matter before the District Judge of North Arcot in connexion with an appeal from the decision of the Endowments Board. What I mean to say therefore is that, as such intricate questions of law are likely to come up before these Commissioners and Deputy Commissioners, it is not understandable how any person who does not have law qualifications can conduct these very important enquiries concerning the rights of the parties in religious institutions such as the archakas or the trustees who administer several crores worth of property. I therefore say, let some minimum qualifications be prescribed for these officers, preferably with judicial or legal training. The House is entitled to know that certain minimum qualifications are prescribed for Commissioners and Deputy Commissioners.

"Sir, even under the existing Act of 1927, qualifications have been prescribed for the President of the Endowments Board. The qualifications for Commissioners correspond to those of the President. Section 12 says—

'12 (1) The Commissioners of a Board shall be persons professing the Hindu religion.

(2) The President shall be—

- (a) a barrister of England or Ireland or a member of the Faculty of Advocates in Scotland of not less than five years' standing, or
- (b) a person having held judicial office not inferior to that of a Subordinate Judge or of a Judge of a Small Cause Court, or
- (c) a person having been a pleader for a period of not less than ten years.'

These qualifications have been rightly prescribed. And what do we see in practice? (A Member: 'Under different circumstances.') The Commissioner has to be prescribed qualifications. Under clause 9 of the Bill, the Commissioner corresponds to the President. For Deputy Commissioners wider powers have been given now. That is why I am urging that some qualifications must be prescribed for them. I do not mind judicial officers being appointed to these offices. But the House is entitled to know that certain qualifications are prescribed for these people. I may also say in this connection that, as a matter of practice, the President and other members of the Board are judicial officers or persons recruited from the bar. I would like to know what the Government's intentions are in this matter: whether they would lay down the qualifications in the clause itself or they would prefer to do so in the rules."

[18th November 1950]

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—Sir, the object of the Bill includes the idea of provincialising the post of Commissioner and other officers employed in the present Hindu Religious Endowments Board. The intention is to provincialise the whole office. But we have to frame statutory rules for each post, and rules prescribing qualifications for these posts have to be framed. Therefore at this stage I can only say that it is not likely that for the posts of Commissioners or Deputy Commissioners persons without legal knowledge will be appointed. It is, on the other hand, most likely that only persons with legal qualifications will be appointed to these posts. I may mention here that even when there is an statute fixing qualifications for Commissioners, we find that only persons possessing legal qualifications are there. Hence there is no necessity for a cast-iron rule that it must be so. The difficulty in accepting the amendment moved by the hon. Member Sri T. Viswanatham is that even if we have I.C.S. officers who have passed legal tests, they cannot be posted as Commissioners, etc., if they do not have a university degree in law. We have judicial officers who have no degree in law. If you insist on a degree in law, even officers with 20 years' service may be disqualified for these posts. We all know that there are advocates who possess no degree in law. Pleaders without such degrees can enrol as advocates and there are very good advocates among them. (A voice: 'You put it like that.') It is not so. If the amendment is accepted, there will be this difficulty. For instance, for the post of Administrator-General, the Government sometime ago wanted to appoint an I.C.S. officer, but they found that the law did not permit it as he had no degree in law. Therefore these cast-iron rule sometimes cause difficulty. With the best of intentions this thing sometimes happens. We have therefore under consideration the question of prescribing qualifications in the rules. In regard to the Port Trust Act for instance, a similar situation has arisen and a Bill has to be passed. I can in this case assure that it is very unlikely that for the posts of Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner people without legal qualifications will be appointed. Even in the case of Assistant Commissioners, hon. Member Mr. Viswanatham wants that qualifications should be laid down in the Bill itself. I may state here that for the posts of sub-magistrates under the Separation Scheme we did not get sufficient applications. And I may tell the House that for the posts of Assistant Commissioners we have not yet decided what pay we should offer. In this state of affairs all that I say is that if you have a cast-iron rule or law like this and we do not get sufficient number of men, we will be in a difficulty. For these reasons I can only assure the House that it is very unlikely that the Government will appoint men with no legal qualifications for these posts."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"I am disappointed at the reasoning given and at the conclusions arrived at by the Hon. Minister, I would not have been disappointed if he is himself not a member of the legal profession. I was not disappointed to hear what fell from my other friend who said: "Kill these lawyers. Have we no commonsense? Common sense is enough." The Friend who said it represents the majority in this country and we/I represent only a minority. I would have been totally out of court if I had attempted to answer him. But, when my Hon. Friend Mr. Madhava Menon speaks, he does so haltingly and hesitatingly he has already printed this particular provision. He does not like to alter it, although he is perfectly convinced. (Laughter.) That is why he says: "We are already appointing only lawyers." But I may point out that he appoints only lawyers now, because the qualifications are prescribed in the old Act. Therefore I say if as a matter of practice he is doing it, what is the statutory, constitutional, basic, legislative or legal objection to put it on a statutory basis? As the hon. Mr. Bhashyam said, in these days of group and political pressure, it is necessary that we must have certain things specifically and clearly laid down, so that afterwards neither the Ministers nor the Members might feel any embarrassment in these matters. To-day if we go a bit into the details of administration—I do not like to cast any reflection on the Ministers—but the Ministers themselves know, wherever there is the question of exercise of some patronage, to what extent they are embarrassed. After all, it is not Government property that is touched; it is not like the land Encroachment Act or the Irrigation Cess Act where the Government have a direct interest; in this case, the general revenues are not going to be touched, and therefore Government as such are not very much interested. I know they agree in principle with what I, Mr. Ramaswami Mudaliyar and Mr. Bhashyam say. It may be said, as one of my friends said, that knowledge is not always confined to lawyers. But knowledge is not also always confined to legislators, people who are sitting here. Therefore it is I said, let Mr. Madhava Menon alone talk on these clauses and none others and we would have no objection, but that was not agreed to. If all these things are reported, what happens? Sometimes we who belong to the same party have to make general reflections which are not after all very important but which when reported will result in the concerned Member being taken to task, and people will say "Look at these Congressmen talking at cross purposes." Now, Sir, shall I draw attention to the remarks made by the Chief Justice of India recently in connection with some applications for writs? Did he not draw the attention of the legislators of the entire country, their special attention to the fact that they must be very careful and know the implications of what they were doing? He said it when he saw that there were a number of Acts coming from every province containing certain kinds of provisions with something common between them, and he was obliged to say that legislators should understand the implications of the Constitution and know what exactly they were doing. He had to make that appeal to the legislators to note that the provisions in the Constitution were supreme and that therefore there was a great responsibility resting on them. It is true we depend mostly on commonsense, but at the same time why do you prescribe qualifications for so many other things? For instance, why do we say that for a legislator, he should be of a particular age? Why should he not be a man of 17 years with probably a superior wisdom? We all know that under clauses 62, 63, 64 and others, matters and issues of a momentous nature have to be decided by these persons, and there is no use saying that a man with commonsense alone will do or can do them. It may be that a man with good commonsense is superior to a bad lawyer and sometimes men with commonsense will even excel lawyers, but there may be good lawyers with good commonsense. That is why we want a basic qualification to be prescribed here. Let not Mr. Madhava Menon stand on prestige; there may be some difficulties as he said; but because there was some difficulty felt with regard to the post of Administrator-General, should it be so in other cases also? I submit, Sir, those days are over. He can change the rule now. Wherever quasi-judicial functions are imposed on an officer, I submit it must be the bounden duty of this Legislature and of this Government to provide a basic law qualification. Unless we proceed on some such principle, we cannot get on. Why do engineers say that there must be 4½ feet of foundation if the wall is to be 17 feet high and if a double storey is to be put? Even foundations of lesser depth might be enough to take a second storey; but the fact is that in most cases the engineers have had the experience that unless there are proper foundations, the building will not stand, and that is why they insist upon particular basic foundations for a building of a particular dimension. That is why Mr. Madhava Menon also agrees with us and says he will provide for this in the rules. There is of course a clause dealing with the power to make rules, clause 100. That clause contains sub-clauses from (a) to (aa) and (bb); in all, there are 28 sub-clauses. One of these sub-clauses deals with the qualifications, method of recruitment, pay, grant of leave, leave allowance and travelling allowance, etc., of the officers and servants of the Tirumalai-Tirupathi Devasthanams but has nothing to say about the staff in general. There is no clause authorizing the Government to make rules regarding the qualifications, pay, tenure of office, etc., of the Commissioners or the Deputy Commissioners. After all, as has been said, these posts are very important posts. I submit it is only proper that there should be such a rule. The Government may consider my amendment, the amendment of my Friend Mr. Bhashyam and also that of Mr. Ramaswami Mudaliyar, they may club them all together and arrive at some wording. There can be no harm done if this particular clause is taken up to-morrow: let the Government come up with an amendment which will satisfy everybody. After all our object is the same, and we are not at cross purposes and there is nothing unreasonable that is asked for. I therefore request the Hon. Minister to accept the amendment."

[Sri T. Viswanatham] [18th November 1950]

[18th November 1950]

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, as I have already said, I cannot accept this amendment for the reasons mentioned. We have not even thought of fixing the pay of the posts. And if there is nobody coming up, are we not to get along with the administration? As I said, we have had enough experience of such cases in the past. I am sorry therefore I cannot accept the amendment."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The question is—

'Re-number the existing clause as sub-clause (a) and add the following as new sub-clause (b):—

"(b) The Commissioner, Deputy Commissioners and Assistant Commissioners shall be recruited from persons who possess a degree of law of any recognized University."

The amendment was lost.

Clause 10 was put and carried.

MR. SPEAKER:—"I think hon. Member Mr. Ramaswami Mudaliyar is not moving his amendment."

SRI V. M. RAMASWAMI MUDALIYAR:—"I want to make a short statement, Sir, I have given notice of the following amendment, viz.:—

'Add at the end of clause 10, the following:—

"The Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner shall be persons professing the Hindu Faith and shall be recruited either from Advocates of not less than five years' standing or from persons who have held judicial office not inferior to that of a Subordinate Judge."

But in view of the statement of the Hon. the Minister for Law that in the rules to be framed, these qualifications are likely to be included, I will reconcile myself with that assurance, and I shall not move my amendment, Sir."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Regarding hon. Mr. Bhashyam's amendment, I think it is better he moves it even now. Let it be an amendment to clause 10 and not to clause 11."

* SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Sir, the amendment which I move is as follows:—

'After clause 10, insert the following:—

"10-A. The Commissioner shall be a person who shall be a Judge of the High Court, Madras, or the Advocate-General, Madras or the Government Pleader, Madras, or a legal practitioner who has been practising as such for 20 years before the Madras High Court.

The Deputy Commissioner shall be a person who is or has been holding a post not less in rank than that of a District Judge or a legal practitioner who is actually practising for 10 years in the Courts in the State of Madras."

My amendment seeks to prescribe qualifications only for the Commissioner and the Deputy Commissioners. As for the Assistant

18th November 1950] [Sri K. Bhashyam]

Commissioners, I thought, being inferior officers, no special qualifications need be prescribed for them here. But the Commissioner and the Deputy Commissioners are important officers and they get added importance because the Government are taking away their own responsibility; the person who will therefore be supreme in office will be the Commissioner. That person must therefore be a person of high status so that people may have confidence in him. Therefore, the suggestion I make is that the Commissioner shall be a person who is a Judge or a retired Judge or an Advocate-General or Government Pleader or a legal practitioner with a practice of 20 years in the Madras High Court. Local knowledge is necessary for discharging the duties attached to these posts, and that is why I have restricted it to Madras people and not extended to other people outside. As a matter of fact, there is a certain respect attached to these officers. In the case of the Government of India, they prefer a retired High Court Judge, however dilapidated, to anybody else nowadays for making enquiries, etc., and wherever judicial experience is required because the people will have confidence in them. They probably want to impress the people by saying 'we have appointed a retired High Court Judge and he will do things properly.' In the case of the Boundary Commission and the Income-tax Commission, they took only High Court Judges. There is therefore a clamour for retired High Court Judges, and in accordance with that, I am making this suggestion. Besides, if you look at the history of this Legislature the same will be clear. You know the Raja of Panagal was a very clever man; he knew what to do and when; he knew how to placate you; he will be hitting you in the front, but being a clever man, he will nicely pat on the back. What he did was, he included all the maths in the Act, but at the same time, he exempted practically all the maths, because he did not want opposition from those people. The second thing he did was, for the purpose of making the Act successful, he said 'I will appoint Sir T. Sadavisa Ayyar, a man of integrity with advanced views in respect of religion.' He appointed him and the opposition of the people faded out when they saw a man of integrity being appointed to the post. Even Mr. Kandaswami Pillai will agree that Sir T. Sadasiva Ayyar was a man of great standing and high character, and that is why I think he referred to him yesterday in the course of his speech. That is why, Sir, I want the Commissioner may be a person who is or has been a High Court Judge. So far as Deputy Commissioners are concerned, they are persons approximating to the status of District Judges, and therefore I suggest District Judges for appointment to these posts. I also suggest an alternative, that a legal practitioner with ten years' standing in Madras may be appointed. The Law Minister has stated that he will do all this in the Rules; but I know he cannot do so by Rules. I do not want to raise any legal point over this because I know it will be discounted, but I have my own doubts as to whether under the section relating to the rule-making power, he can really make a rule regarding the qualifications, etc., of these officers.

[Sri K. Bhashyam] [18th November 1950]

For the reasons that I have mentioned, Sir, I think that the supreme man in control must be a person who must command the confidence of the people; at any rate most of the criticism and disputation that has been raised over this Bill will receive a quietus if you appoint people of that calibre to these posts, and I want to compel the Government to do so through my amendment."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"I second the amendment."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, I cannot accept the amendment for the reasons I have already given in connection with another amendment just now. Mr. Bhashyam says, he shall be a Judge of the High Court. But High Court is in the Union list and it is beyond the jurisdiction of this Legislature. That is one difficulty—I am only telling the difficulties that will arise. Not that in the interests of proper administration, the Chief Justice will refuse to spare the services of a High Court Judge; I only say it is not in our power to get him. Similar difficulties will arise which I have already mentioned. Dr. Rajan, I am sure, will try to be as clever as the Raja of Panagal was clever, as Mr. Bhashyam said. In what ever was done by the Raja of Panagal in a clever manner, I am sure Dr. Rajan will not lag behind him and he will certainly do things cleverly. I do not know what Mr. Bhashyam meant when he said that the Government of India were taking in retired High Court Judges, however dilapidated they might be."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Certainly I should be satisfied, Sir, if the Hon. Minister accepts the principle embodied in my amendment and also the justification for it. If as he says on behalf of Dr. Rajan, that Dr. Rajan will bear all these things in mind when he makes the appointment, I think I must be content with such assurance. After all, if my motion is going to be defeated, I should certainly have it withdrawn rather than press it and have it defeated."

The amendment was, by leave, withdrawn.

MR. SPEAKER:—"I will now put clause 10 to the vote of the House. Afterwards, Mr. Viswanatham's amendment, introducing new clause 10-A, will be taken up. The question is—

'That clause 10 do stand part of the Bill.'"

The motion was carried.

New clause 10-A.

* SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, I move—

'That the following be added as new clause 10-A—

"10-A (a) The functions of the Commissioner of Public and Religious Endowments and Charities and Trusts are—

(1) to maintain registers of all Public and Religious Endowments and Charities and Trusts;

18th November 1950] [Sri T. Viswanatham]

(2) to watch whether the working of such institutions is in accordance with the objects of the Endowment, Charity or Trust and with the general laws of the land relating to public order, morality and health;

(3) to apply to the Civil Court for the framing of a scheme of administration for such an institution where such one is lacking or is not sufficient or to settle any dispute as regards the succession to the office of a Trustee, or a Manager or other hereditary post in any such institution or to settle any other disputes of a civil nature; and

(4) to launch prosecutions in cases of misappropriation, cheating, embezzlement and similar offences.

(b) The Commissioner and Deputy Commissioners and Assistant Commissioners, when the Commissioner delegates any or all his functions subject to such restrictions as he may impose, shall have the power for the better exercise of their duty—

(1) to enter any Religious Charitable or Trust institution excepting portions which are not ordinarily open to members of the public;

(2) to call for and inspect records of the institution and have copies of such records; and

(3) to sequester such records as he may consider necessary until any proposed or pending inquiry in a Court is over.

(c) The Commissioner may start proceedings under this section suo motu on information received or on application by any person interested in the institution in question."

"Sir, my idea in moving this amendment is that I want to concentrate on the scope and the functions of the machinery created by this Bill. There are Commissioners, Deputy Commissioners and Assistant Commissioners, to whom certain powers are given, in some cases final powers and in some cases reference to court also is allowed. The question has troubled us, as you are aware, in the early stages of the Bill as to what should be the domain or dominion of the officers and what should be the domain of the other judicial agencies to go through and control these institutions and their management. The Government are of one view and I am of a different view in regard to the matter. My view is slightly different from the view of the Government and it is embodied in this new clause which I am now presenting. I agree with the Government, as I have always agreed with them, that we must have control of the religious institutions, which mean temples, public charities and public trusts. We must have control of every public trust or charity or anything which has got the semblance of a public trust or charity, provided the public have

[Sri T. Viswanatham] [18th November 1950]

a beneficial interest in it and unless we have got a beneficial interest, I submit, we cannot take control over them. But agreeing with the Government to the extent we must have this beneficial interest, I suggest that this power of control should be confined within certain limits. Sir, we have now and then had occasions to point out these limits, but as we go through the various provisions of the Bill, we will know exactly how far the Government would like to control and we will point out how far they have got the right to control and how far they do not possess such rights. I submit, these religious endowments and institutions being protected by the Constitution, they must be treated differently from other Government institutions. The Bill as it embodies, deals with temples and public trusts and public charities as almost Government institutions. I do not want that the Government should treat them like that, because they are particularly to be managed by the religious denomination. I submit, Sir, we have no right to legislate on properties or the management of the properties belonging to them, except where the public have an interest in them and the Government representing the public, can go only to that extent. That is to say, the Government is in the position of a beneficiary of the public trust or charity and as a beneficiary, it has got a certain right and that right is to see that the properties are not mismanaged, that those properties are put to proper use, and that the institutions are run along the intentions of the founders. These are the three objects and the Government as representing the public which has got a beneficial interest, have got the right to pass legislation to this extent. Sir, I have often heard in the early stages of the Bill that the Government do not intend doing more. Government said, 'why do you raise all constitutional questions, our view is not to take hold of the various trusts and charities, we represent five crores of people here including those worthy gentlemen who made these endowments and we cannot keep quiet when mismanagement is going on?' It is true they have got to see that there is no mismanagement. They can control only to the extent to which a beneficiary can do. If we had not brought in a Bill like this, prior to it, if we look into the original Acts, namely, the Charitable Endowments Act of 1863, the Charitable Trusts Act of 1920, Section 92 of the Civil Procedure Code and the 1907 Regulation Acts, under the provisions of which, sometimes the revenue authorities and afterwards persons having interest have been given a procedure and a machinery to enforce those rights see that all those Acts were confined only to the endowments in which public had a beneficial interest. Even this morning when the Hon. Minister moved for the deletion of clause 7 he said that was the object. The original provisions said that these things shall vest in the Government and the Government found it was wrong and when the Government found it was wrong, other provisions of the Bill also must conform to that. The mere omission of clause 7, will not help us unless the other provisions are in conformity with the deletion of the clause. Then, why did they delete clause 7 at all? Because it was wide of their powers. Of course, Government can by legislation enforce their powers, but beyond a certain limit they cannot go. I submit, there are quite a number of provisions which go beyond their intentions as expressed by the Hon. Minister at the time he introduced the Bill and as expressed by the Government today compelling them to delete clause 7 for which they put up a hard fight. Therefore, Sir, I submit that Government should go to the extent of creating the Commissioner who will act as the beneficiary on behalf of the public. He will be under the control of the Government and he will be the person with the help of the staff given to him and with such other statutory powers which may be given to him under this Bill, to see that the endowments are properly run, that they are not mismanaged and to take such steps as are necessary, proper and legal, to see that the intentions of the founders are properly carried out. And, Sir, what are the steps he can legally take? When a certain property is mismanaged, he should go to a court of law and tell them, 'Here is a public endowment, a public trust or a charity and there is mismanagement.' The court should frame a scheme if one was not existing, give directions and remove such and such a trustee or appoint a new trustee. Then, where a scheme is not there originally, the court should give a fresh scheme and if the trustees are not properly working, they should remove them and so on. We have all those powers under the Act of 1863 and under Section 92 of the Civil Procedure Code. Let us assume now they are consolidating all these. On the civil side that is the limit to which they can go. Again, on the criminal side the law is there and whenever a person commits any offence of cheating or embezzlement or misappropriation or breach of trust, even today we have got powers to bring him under the Criminal Code. In fact, we are seeing where some trustees have mismanaged, they have been booked and some cases have been filed against them. In fact, that is the reason why this Bill has been brought forward. It is true there is mismanagement and misappropriation in some institutions and there are also remedies provided but the remedies did not act well hitherto, because they were left to the persons having interest. That was under the foreign Government and not having represented the subject they did not assume powers of the public over themselves and they asked a person having interest to take care of the institution. For instance, if I am personally interested in a temple, they left it to me to go to a court of law. And, if it is a criminal offence, of course, the police would take cognizance of the offence, or complain. But, today the Government have changed and the Government represents the people, that is to say the Government represents all the persons having beneficial interest in the charities. That is why, this Government on behalf of the people of this State can appoint officers to act as persons having beneficial interest. We want this Government to represent me, represent yourself and represent the educated and the uneducated men who have interest in public institutions and to take action.

[Sri T. Viswanatham] [18th November 1950]

a beneficial interest in it and unless we have got a beneficial interest, I submit, we cannot take control over them. [Sri T. Viswanatham] [18th November 1950]

What is the action that I want them to take? For instance, I can go to a court if a particular public property is not properly managed. That is on the civil side. And, if there is breach of trust, on the criminal side, I can go to a criminal court. If you want, give powers to the Commissioner straight away and imprison the person who is guilty of the offence of breach of trust. But they do not give such criminal powers and they only want to take powers on the civil side. Of course, although I cannot agree to that and even if we agree, the Constitution does not agree and we cannot take powers ourselves. We can only go to a court of law, and these denominations will enjoy the properties and enforce their rights. We cannot create ad hoc laws for taking over the management of the properties and say it is management of religious trust. That is the difference. We can create a machinery to enable the beneficiaries to enforce these rights and that machinery is the Commissioner, the Deputy Commissioner and the Assistant Commissioner. Whatever the objection may be, you are the final arbiters in the matter and people have no right of appeal. In taking over the beneficial interests on their own shoulders, Government should see that they do not exceed the powers. Government can only exercise a right which I can exercise and nothing more than that. In regard to a public trust in which the public have a beneficiary, interest, I can exercise some rights and those rights I can exercise and it is those rights alone that the Government can exercise. And by passing this Bill the Government will not have more rights than the people of the State and they cannot go further because the Constitution says, their management and their administration of religious endowments is entirely that of the denominations. The very words used in the Constitution are 'their management and their administration'. What does 'management' used in the Constitution mean? If management means anything and if it is reserved for public trusts or charities, then they cannot be taken over. Therefore, the Commissioner, the Deputy Commissioner and the Assistant Commissioner shall usually be subject to the general control of the Government. So, Sir, if I have no power, the Government cannot have power. If, as a person having interest cannot do a thing, the Government also cannot do it. That is the point at issue. The Constitution says the religious denomination alone can administer, manage and maintain an institution. Therefore, we cannot go beyond that. That is why I am submitting an alternative scheme in the amendment I have moved and I have defined the functions of the Commissioner in my amendment. His function will be—

* to watch whether the working of such institution is in accordance with the objects of the endowment, charity or trust and with the general law of the land relating to public order, morality and health; to apply to the Civil Court for the framing of a scheme of administration of such an institution where such one is lacking or is not sufficient or to settle any dispute as regards the succession to the office of a trustee or a manager or other hereditary post in any such institution or to settle any other disputes of a civil nature; and to launch prosecutions in case of misappropriation, cheating, embezzlement and similar offences.

18th November 1950] [Sri T. Viswanatham]

" This is also parallel to what is happening in England. In England there are Charitable Trusts Acts beginning from 1812 up to 1919.

" Whenever a Charitable Trusts Act was passed in England, two or three years later a similar act was passed in India. The Act of 1812 was passed in England and in 1817 we had the Regulation and in 1853 they passed an Act which is still in force and we here have got the 1863 Act. They had an Act in 1919 and we passed our Endowments Act of 1925. It is not as if the old position was secured but as notions were developing, the Government being quite sensible to the interest which they have to take regarding the management of public trusts, the law has been re-imposed from time to time and there the Charity Commissioners excepting in matters whose pecuniary value is less than £40 have no powers such as the Deputy Commissioners are being given here. They simply move a civil court or a criminal court and they are given certain statutory powers which have been retained for the purpose of getting information and the trusts should be under an obligation to submit their annual budget so as to enable them to watch the working of those institutions but whenever they feel they must move, they move in the matter. I submit, Sir, that this amendment must be accepted; I have, however, no objection if they propose any alteration but the principles mentioned in my amendment are principles which would be acceptable when tested in a court of law and I would ask the Government representing persons who have interest to go with them up to the point to which they can go and not beyond that."

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI :— " Mr. Speaker, Sir, I second the amendment. The Government have been kind enough to delete section 7 from the Bill, which defined their powers. Those sections are not there but the Commissioners will be appointed and it is natural that their duties should be fixed. I submit, Sir, that my hon. Friend's amendment is quite necessary and appropriate in view of what the Government should do. He has very lucidly painted a picture of the limits to which the Government can interfere in matters concerning religion and public charity. I want the Government to act not merely upon the mere wording of law omitting a word here and there but as I had occasion to point out earlier, when once the Government make an amendment the concomitant effect of that upon the whole Bill should also be watched and wherever they interfere with the purpose behind the amendment which has been carried out, necessary amendments should also be adopted. But I am sorry to say that this has not been done by the Government and hence the difficulty arises in interpreting these things. Mr. Viswanatham has pointed out that the Government must define the powers of the Commissioner; they should not exceed the powers that have been granted to them under the Constitution. If the Government really want to take more powers, then they ought to have defined them. The very fact that they have taken away section 7 means that they want to act under the powers vested in them by the Constitution Act. If that be so, I do not see any reason why these powers which are only an exemption or clarification of what the Government can do, should not be defined instead of leaving them vague saying 'such action as he may think fit can be taken'; I feel that it is not correct but such powers, certainly which are not in contravention of the Constitution Act, should be defined and I hope the Government would accept the amendment."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :— Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am supporting the amendment on the ground that it is really in accordance with the law; I am speaking as a lawyer; not that I have not that the common sense of a lay man but I have the added qualification of being a lawyer and so, if I say something about what is laid down in the law, it would not be considered presumptuous. Articles 19, 25 and 26 of the Constitution says that the denominations shall have the right to manage their own affairs according to law. I want persons who are not familiar with law to understand what 'according to law' means; it means that it must be a law which will regulate the management; it must not be a law which will wholly eat up the management. The management must be in the hands of the denomination and not a third person altogether. That is the position that is likely to take place. I am saying this to explain the possible implication though some friends may be thinking that I am wasting the time of the House and Rs. 1,500 a day for nothing and I want those gentlemen to understand that it is not so. (Sri K. T. Kosalram rose to interrupt) The hon. Member did use those words and I have a right to put it to the House that it is not anything like that; I do not think he really understood those words and what my idea in regard to the matter is this. Instead of creating litigation, paying lawyers, paying court-fees and having long delays in respect of these matters, why not I ask by adapting the Act to the Constitution Act make it constitutional. They may say that my interpretation of the Constitution is wrong and may have got their own interpretation of it. But the whole thing is that if you accept my position, no judge can interfere. I want to see that no litigation comes into the court so that it may be said that the laws passed by this Assembly in all its wisdom, knowledge and capacity should not be treated by any court as being ultra vires. That really pains me. I really feel proud of being a member of this Assembly and I naturally feel much hurt and pained when any law passed by it is questioned in a court of law and is declared ultra vires. Therefore I want to avoid such a position and I am pleading with all members to take a little more interest in these matters; I know many of them have not even copies of the Act nor of the amendments but they are wise enough to know everything and I am glad that they understand things without any help from books or anything. When, therefore, they are so good and so wise, let them understand this as well, namely, that we should not unnecessarily invite litigation about constitutional points, if it can be helped. I am impressing that upon hon. Members of the House though they are very few now. The amendment of my hon. Friend Mr. Viswanatham seeks to achieve this object. It says that the Commissioner can be appointed, that he should be given all the powers which the Police man will have for purposes of investigation whenever a crime takes place but after that is concluded, let him put the case before the denomination and if the denomination complains, he ought to take action. It is just on lines similar to the provisions we have in the Indian Penal Code according to which the Police cannot take action unless the person hurt complains before a judge and I think many hon. Members know it because they are more familiar with the Penal Code than with civil matters. What I want is that the person who is a member of the community who is hurt by the mismanagement of that institution ought to come forward and make an application, at least a complaint, and then the officer who had been charged with the duty of investigating it and getting information regarding the mismanagement, will place it before the court of law. If it is done like that, the denomination has got its work, the Government on their part have got their work and also the court. If it is done, it will be quite constitutional and it will not be a thing for anybody to take offence nor pick holes in what we do. I am very anxious that this should be a pacca Bill in which there ought to be nothing wrong. The amendment is based upon this view. Just as the Government appoint the Director of Prosecutions in criminal matters, so also here they appoint the Director of Public Charities who will be entitled to get all the information from all quarters and then place the matter before the court. We have had complaints even in the Select Committee that people were not so much interested in the proper management of public charities, that they do not care what happens to public trusts and that they do not want to put themselves to the trouble and expense of going to court with the possibility of meeting the cost. They are merely satisfied with having the dharshan and they are not interested in the trust or endowment beyond that. For that purpose the Government must appoint a person who will do so. That, I submit, is the scheme underlying this amendment and I commend it to the House with all humility and sincerity. I may tell hon. Members that it is not as if we can pass a law and get away with it; there are persons who are awaiting for any slip on our part to take advantage of any deficiency that may be noticed and to object its validity and to challenge them in a court of law. We must be really able to meet the challenge that may be made later on that and that is why I commend the amendment to the House."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" Mr. Speaker, Sir, with as much sincerity and humility as my hon. Friend, I must oppose the amendment also because if we understand the explanation offered by Mr. Viswanatham, we can see that it completely

[Sri K. Madhava Menon] [18th November 1950]

sabotages the whole Bill. (Sri T. Viswanatham: 'I object; it is not so'.) If my hon. Friend objects, I withdraw it but will say that it will completely destroy the Bill. If this is passed, Chapter IV will be absolutely unnecessary. I entirely agree with the dictum of constitutional law explained by my hon. Friends Mr. Bhashyam and Mr. Viswanatham and Mr. Gopalaswami said that we should not do anything which offends the Constitution. Hon. Mr. Viswanatham was at pains to explain why we should limit ourselves to the terms of the Constitution and I am sure nobody will take objection to it. I entirely agree that knowingly we are not going to pass a law which will go against the Constitution; even if it is done by oversight, the courts, and the people are not going to keep quiet. So, there is no question of offending the Constitution at all. Mr. Bhashyam pleaded with some Members here that they may be pleased to understand things; whether they have copies of the Act or other papers with them or not, they pretend that they know everything but let them understand them properly. But let me tell you, Sir, hon. Mr. Bhashyam may know things very well and hon. Mr. Viswanatham equally well. There are people on his side who support this amendment and there are people like that. In this connexion, I am reminded of a sloka in Bhartruhari's Neethi Sathakam.

अज्ञः सुखमाराध्यः सुखतरमाराध्यते विशेषज्ञः ।

ज्ञानलवदुर्बिदग्धं ब्रह्मापि नरं नरञ्जयति ॥

There are people like that and they have also to understand things properly."

SRI S. NAGAPPA:—"May I know the meaning of the sloka?"

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"At any rate hon. Mr. Bhashyam understands it."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Those beautiful words ought to go in vain."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Since I have quoted a verse in Sanskrit from Bhartruhari's Neethi Sathakam, I think I shall do well to give out also the meaning thereof. It means as follows:—

'It is easy to make a person understand who does not know anything; if it is a person who knows everything, it is easy to make him understand; but if it is a person who knows nothing but pretends to know everything, even Brahma, not to speak of man, it is impossible to make him understand'. (Loud laughter.)

In fact there are persons on the other side of the House who say everything we do is bad."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"That equally applies to your side."

18th November 1950]

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, in spite of the lucidity of the arguments expounding implications of his amendment, hon. Mr. Viswanatham was pleased to say that his views in this matter slightly differ from those of Government. I do not know how to measure that 'slightly'. It fundamentally differs from Government. Because he wants to make the Commissioner or Deputy Commissioner into a first-class vakils clerk; or I do not know whether I would be right in calling him a tout, a person who goes about, collects cases and engages vakils for them. The position of the Commissioner will be like that."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"And not like that of the Police Commissioner."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Whatever may be the position of the Police Commissioner, at any rate that is not the idea of the Government, or the idea like an agent of the Government to file suits. My friend wants to give the Commissioner the power-of-attorney, muktearnamah to file suits in courts. It may be a lawyer's paradise, but that is not the intention of Government. The intention of the Government is not that the Commissioner should not have sufficient powers. Now, what are the powers sought to be given to the Commissioners by the amendment of my friend? They are to maintain registers of all public and religious endowments and charities and trusts (I submit, those things a village register will show), to watch whether the working of such institutions is in accordance with the objects of the endowment, to apply to the civil court for the framing of a scheme of administration for such an institution where such one is lacking or is not sufficient. Or to put it shortly, the powers he wants to give the Commissioner are to watch, keep registers and file suits. Now, if this amendment is conceded to, then all the other chapters from Chapter IV go away. So, the amendment has far-reaching effect. The intention of the Government is that the Commissioner should have real powers of administration and should have power of superintendence that is required under normal circumstances.

"I only want to show what hon. Sri Bhashyam wants us to do. No doubt, he gave us very nice advice, that if Government accept hon. Mr. Viswanatham's amendment, it will not offend the Constitution. Therefore, he wants us to change the clause. Sir, if his advice is to be accepted, there will be no law. Then all the other clauses in the Bill will go. Surely, then, there is no danger of offending the Constitution, as there is no law at all! Sir, that is a solution which I cannot accept. Then, Sir, may I ask him what can this Legislature legislate? It will have no power other than what an ordinary man or a person in the street will have. Has this Legislature no power to invest the Commissioner with special powers other than what an ordinary person in the street has? Article 246 of the Constitution Act says that the Legislature of any State has power to make laws with respect to any matter enumerated in the Concurrent List in the Seventh schedule. And what does Article 28 of that list say? It refers to charities and charitable institutions, charitable and religious endowments and religious institutions. So, we can make laws regarding them. Then, let me take Article 25 of the Fundamental Rights. Sub-section (2) of that article says—

‘(2) Nothing in this article shall affect the operation of any existing law or prevent the State from making any law—

(a) regulating or restricting any economic, financial, political or other secular activity which may be associated with religious practice.’

So it is open to this Legislature to make any law for that purpose. Then, let me take Article 26 of the Constitution Act. Sir, I shall have to take a little time to reply as I have to explain this point, since it was mentioned by the hon. Member. Article 26 runs as follows:—

‘26. Subject to public order, morality and health, every religious denomination or any section thereof shall have the right—

(a) to establish and maintain institutions for religious and charitable purposes;

(b) to manage its own affairs in matters of religion;

(c) to own and acquire movable and immovable property; and

(d) to administer such property in accordance with law.’

What is that law? It is any law which can be made by the State Legislature which is competent to pass. So, it is in accordance with law that we are now passing this Bill. So, it does not offend the Constitution Act. So, while agreeing with the general principles that we cannot go against the Constitution, if we are to agree with the amendment of Mr. Viswanatham we will have no law at all. It amounts to saying that we need not regulate the conduct and management of temples and religious institutions. Then, any person who has an interest in such institutions can only take action under section 92 of the Code of Civil Procedure. That is the position the acceptance of hon. Mr. Viswanatham's amendment would lead us to. But that is not the idea of Government. So, I oppose his amendment.”

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—“ Mr. Speaker, Sir, Government have a perfect right to differ from me. But before so differing, they should try to understand what I have stated. The Hon. Minister read out only a portion of my amendment. He did not read it in full. He said in unmistakable language that I have reduced the Commissioner to the position of an ordinary man in the street. He said I had made the Commissioner as a man holding a muktearnamah, a power-of-attorney. And, then, he said, ‘if I accept Mr. Viswanatham's amendment, there is no law’. Sir, I am not so ignorant as to stand up here and make a suggestion which will reduce the position of the Commissioner to that of a tout. When I say that representing the people of the province, Government should have only certain powers and not certain other powers, I cannot understand how the Hon. Minister can say that I want the Commissioner to be reduced to the position of an ordinary man in the street. May I request him to turn to page 4 of the list of amendments; there he will see under clause (b) I have said that the Commissioner shall have the power for the better exercise of his duty—

(1) to enter any religious, charitable or trust institution excepting portions which are not ordinarily open to members of the public;

(2) to call for and inspect records of the institution and have copies of such records;

(3) to sequester such records as he may consider necessary until any proposed or pending inquiry in a court is over; and

(4) the Commissioner may start proceedings, etc.’

Thus it will be seen I have given the Commissioner power to enter any religious institution, right to take possession of any document and right to sequester records until all the proceedings are over, so that other people may not bolt the door after the horse is stolen. In this way I have provided powers to the Commissioner to discharge his duties. Therefore, it is not charitable for the Hon. Minister to say that I have suggested an amendment, the acceptance of which would reduce us to a position where there will be no law; or that I am reducing the Commissioner to the position of a man holding a muktearnamah on behalf of the Government. I have not said that all the other provisions should go. I have only said that the Commissioner should not have any power to do anything which he cannot do under the Constitution Act. Why do I say like that? The public have no power, the Government have no power, or for that matter, have I got power to manage the property of Mr. Bhashyam? Can the Hon. Minister bring a law to-morrow before this House saying that Government want to manage the property of such and such a person, because he has got a report that he is not managing his property properly? If I do not manage my property well, has he a right to bring a law to take it over and manage it? What is the law relating to administration of property? What is the law relating to the acquisition of property? What is the law relating to public order and morality? These are general laws. These are laws propounded for a general purpose; these are not laws propounded for any specific purpose. The words ‘according to law’ mean according to justice, public morality and equity. Justice Patanjali Sastri in one of his judgments has said—

‘A competent legislature may change the procedure; but it must not be a change ad hoc for any special purpose or occasion.’

So all we can do is to have a change in the procedure; because the right to administer, the right to manage is vested by the Constitution. Why does the Constitution say it? What is the meaning and content of the language which is used to denote that, namely, 'management'? What does that word mean? If I have a property, what do I do with it? I lease it for rent and collect the rent. Or, if I have the necessary power and skill to plough it myself, I plough it myself and cultivate it. If there is no water-supply, I get water to the land through electric power. If somebody trespasses into my land, I go to court and oust him. If I appoint a manager to manage my land, I ask him to maintain a register of accounts and also keep the records properly. If he mismanages, I remove him. All these things are part and parcel of management. Under the proposed provision, the denomination has little to do with the management or administration of the property of the institution. The real authority in all such matters is the Assistant or Deputy Commissioner or the Commissioner. The powers entrusted to these officers amount to taking over the maintenance, administration and control of the property and the institution itself. The words 'manage the property' mean that the officers shall have the power of acquisition, enjoyment and disposition of property. This means the religious denominations will have no such right.

"Precisely these are the things which the Deputy Commissioner or Commissioner is asked to do. Therefore, I submit that it is not right to say that I am trying to create conditions where there is no law. There is a law already; it cannot be said that there is no law. This Bill seeks to consolidate it. By all means let us consolidate and I am co-operating in the process. But I am going further in order to ensure better exercise of functions and administration of property. On behalf of the public we are giving certain extra powers to the Commissioner and the other officers created by this Bill. To the extent to which the powers are not inconsistent with the Constitution I am willing. I might have been willing to give all the powers proposed by this Bill if the Constitution had not stood in my way. It is not as if I am opposed to what the Government do by the texture of my Constitution. We as legislators have got a certain responsibility. The Hon. Minister may say that the Government also have got a responsibility. It is true and I do not minimize the sense of responsibility which the Government are exhibiting. At the same time, I, in my own humble way, feel that the powers given to the Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner go to the extent of taking over of the property and administering it on behalf of religious institutions. It may be asked why we should not give those powers. We can give, provided the Constitution had not come into existence. If only the Government had been careful at the time of finalizing the Constitution, as they had been careful with regard to the Madras Estates Abolition Act, and extracted more powers of control over religious institutions, I would not have objected. I am not opposed to the Government taking power, but I am opposed to taking power against the Constitution to which we have sworn our loyalty."

18th November 1950]

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—My hon. Friend only repeated his arguments in another form. He still wants that the Commissioner should exercise only such powers as any member of the public can exercise. That is a position which the Government do not accept. The Government want him to exercise such powers as are given to him by this Bill."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The question is—

Add the following as a new clause 10-A:—

"10-A (a) The functions of the Commissioner of Public and Religious Endowments and Charities and Trusts are—

(1) to maintain registers of all Public and Religious Endowments and Charities and Trusts;

(2) to watch whether the working of such institutions is in accordance with the objects of the Endowment, Charity or Trust and with the general laws of the land relating to public order, morality and health;

(3) to apply to the Civil Court for the framing of a scheme of administration for such an institution where such one is lacking or is not sufficient or to settle any dispute as regards the succession to the office of a Trustee, or a Manager or other hereditary post in any such institution or to settle any other disputes of a civil nature; and

(4) to launch prosecutions in cases of misappropriation, cheating, embezzlement and similar offences.

(b) The Commissioner and Deputy Commissioners and Assistant Commissioners, when the Commissioner delegates any or all his functions subject to such restrictions as he may impose, shall have the power for the better exercise of their duty—

(1) to enter any Religious, Charitable or Trust institution, excepting portions which are not ordinarily open to members of the public;

(2) to call for and inspect records of the institution and have copies of such records; and

(3) to sequester such records as he may consider necessary until any proposed or pending inquiry in a Court is over.

(c) The Commissioner may start proceedings under this section suo motu on information received or on application by any person interested in the institution in question."

The amendment was lost.

Clause 11.

MR. SPEAKER:—"The motion is—

That clause 11 do stand part of the Bill."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The hon. Member Sri T. Viswanatham will now move his amendment to 'delete the clause'."

[18th November 1950]

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—“ The hon. Member wanted to delete the word ‘ Hindu ’ and thereby make the Bill applicable to the religious and charitable institutions of not only the Hindu religion but of all religions. This follows that amendment.”

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—“ I do not move the amendment.”

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—“ Mr. Speaker, Sir, I move—

‘ After the word “ professing ”, add the words “ and practising ”.’

This is a very important amendment. But I do not know how the Government view it. I want persons who are connected with this department should be persons who are not merely Hindus in name. Hinduism is an elastic thing. It does not require a Hindu to subscribe to a creed or doctrine. As I said before on another occasion, it is a conformist religion. If a man says that he is a Hindu and puts on the trappings of his caste like namam or viboothi on ceremonial occasions, he becomes a Hindu. In the Hindu-Muslim trouble, it is said that Muslim distinguished Hindus from the tuft which they had to chop off their heads. Since temples cater to the needs of people who have great respect and regard for God and religion, persons in charge of the administration of the temples also should have some respect and regard for them. It is not enough if they say that they profess and believe in Hindu religion. If an Executive Officer, Commissioner or any other officer connected with the department goes into a Vaishnavite or Saivite temple in a very unorthodox style, with his hat and boot on, people will think very lightly of the department. So, the officers to be appointed should not only profess but also practise Hindu religion. Whether they actually believe in it or not is a matter of their inner minds and we cannot dive deep into their minds. An Assistant Commissioner, for example, in charge of various temples should at least look orthodox, though he may be a fraud or humbug. The Government may say we promote fraud and humbug for this purpose. What I want to impress upon the House is that a person who is appointed as Deputy or Assistant Commissioner to control the affairs of a temple must be an orthodox person. He must be pious and put on his caste-marks when he goes to the temple so that he might produce a good impression in minds of the people who come there for worship. That is why I am asking that it is not enough that the person who is put in charge of these temples should not merely profess to be a Hindu, but that he should also practise Hinduism in some form or other. I have seen persons who are appointed as Executive Officers in some of these temples who are very good people, no doubt, but who have returned from England and who are tip-top in their dress and their fashions and come to the temple in an European style with a hat and boots on, and still they profess to be Hindus, although they do not practise Hinduism in any form and conform to the actual modes of the lives of the people who come to temples for worship and so, they do not favourably impress upon the worshippers of the temple. I submit, Sir, that they must have not only a religious bent of mind but have a respect and reverence for God and for godly things and traditional usages. That is the reason why I want to add the words ‘ practising ’ in this clause. Sir, even if it is not so very expressive, that is the only word that I can think of, and if the Government want to improve upon the word, they are quite welcome to do so, and I do hope that the Hon. Minister will be good enough to accept this simple and innocuous amendment, because it is very necessary that the sacredness of these institutions should not be spoiled and a bad impression created in the minds of the worshippers on account of the wrong choice in the appointment of the Executive Officers of these temples.”

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—“ Mr. Speaker, Sir, I second the amendment and in doing so, I want to make a few general remarks. After all, religion is a matter of faith proceeding from the innermost recesses of the heart and as we know, Sir, in matters of faith, it is the old traditional habits and customs and forms and ceremonies that play a very important part. Suppose, Sir, I go to a temple on a holy occasion and stand near the Garbhagruha with my cropped head, with my shirts on and with my spectacles, and possibly holding a copy of some constitutional law or a copy of the Religious Endowment Act, certainly I cannot make a favourable impression in the minds of the people who have come there for worship, with a sense of devotion expecting some divine grace from the deity. Therefore, it is not enough that I am merely a Hindu, but I must be practising the tenets of the Hindu religion in my every-day life. It may be that I do not strictly conform to the traditional orthodox standards, but still by the way in which I stand before God, by the way in which I behave towards the deity and the ceremonies performed in the temple and the manner in which I view the forms and practices in the temple, and the interest I take in matters of religion, I should be in a position to be spotted out by the people there, saying, ‘ Oh! Here is a person who is fit to be in charge of the temple and who is a Smartha or a Vaishnavite, par excellence! ’ If there is any object in putting these words ‘ he shall be a person professing the Hindu religion; there is a greater object in adding these words also, namely, ‘ and practising ’. Again, I may be a Hindu, but still, I cannot be asked to administer the affairs of a temple belonging to Vaishnavites, where the worship and ceremonies are carried on according to Visishtadvytham, because I am one professing Advytham which is entirely different from the other. If I were asked to administer a Vaishnavite temple, what impression or what reaction would be produced in the minds of the Vaishnavites who come to the temple for worship from long distances or in the minds of the archakas or other people in the temple?

[Sri T. Viswanatham] [18th November 1950]

“ Sir, when some of our friends from this country went to London in 1931 to take part in the deliberations of the Round Table Conference, they were not recognized or cared for by the press representatives who were waiting there at the harbour to greet them, because most of them were in Englishman's style of dress, with suits, boots and hats and hence those press reporters thought that they were not the real representative Indians. They did not even care to look at them or have a chat with them. But then when some Maharajas got down from the steamer with their big turbans and long coats, these press reporters greeted them saying ‘ Oh! Here are the real Indian representatives ’. It is because they were waiting for the Indian representatives to the Round Table Conference, that when they saw people coming in the English style of dress, their attention was not attracted to them, whereas, when the Maharajas came with their turbans, they were able to distinguish them as Indian representatives. Even Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, who was the leader of the Liberal Party and who went as an Indian representative to the Round Table Conference, was not able to impress those people, because he was in English dress. But, Sir, although this has nothing to do with the present amendment, this is only an illustration to show how a particular mode of dress on a particular occasion has a peculiar attraction for the on-looker. Even so, in these religious institutions it is only the mode of dress and the behaviour of the authorities in charge of these temples that will impress the worshippers. Sir, there are many important temples and sacred shrines in our State to which many a poor people come and worship from distant places. They may not have many occasions in their lifetime to visit such temples and holy places and when they come, they come with a zeal and an ardour which cannot be described in words, and with a sense of devotion and sacredness, which has no parallel in any sense, which is a typical feature to be seen in the Indian pilgrims only. What reaction would be produced in their minds, if they see an Assistant Commissioner or an Executive Officer of the temple dressed in a tip-top English style? I therefore submit, Sir, that we must take every care to see that those officers who are to be in charge of these temples should dress themselves in such a fashion and behave in such a manner as to make a favourable impression in the minds of the devotees of the temples and so I am very glad to second this amendment.”

SRI P. KANDASWAMI PILLAI:—“ Mr. Speaker, Sir, I entirely agree with my hon. Friend Sri K. Bhashyam when he said that the person who is to be in charge of the affairs of a temple must appear in a suitable fashion. It means that we must adopt all the temple rules and the injunctions prescribed by our ancestors in regard to temple worship. There is no doubt about that at all. This is a very small matter of detail, although it is important. Our Hinduism is very wide and its tenets are very numerous.

18th November 1950] [Sri P. Kandaswami Pillai]

You cannot give any particular definition to a Hindu. There are various communities among the Hindus, such as Saivites, Vaishnavites and Madhvites and various sub-classes and sub-communities. According to the Saiva Agamas, a person going for worship in a Siva temple must go in a particular dress and in a particular form. He must wear rudraksham and must have vibuthi marks on his forehead. He must go in a particular form and worship in a particular manner. And if a person belongs to the Vaishnavite community, he must go to the Vishnu temple with Dwadasi namams and if he were a Vadagalai, he must wear a different caste-mark, and worship in a particular form. If he happens to be a Tengalai, he must wear Tengalai namams and worship in a different style. If we go into all these details, there are oceans of them and it would be practically impossible to adhere to each and every rule prescribed in religious text-books and practices. Therefore if the amendment of my hon. Friend Sri K. Bhashyam is accepted, it means that the Assistant Commissioner or the Executive Officer of the temple must undergo a course of the Agama Sastras of the particular religious institution to which he is to be put in charge and practise them in his every-day life. I think, Sir, that we can conveniently leave these details to the Government, because I believe that the whole law will be in charge of a Hindu Minister and he will see to it that only the proper person is put in charge of the temples concerned. I am sure that no Christian or Muslim will be entrusted with this portfolio and therefore he will take great care to see that the temples are not desecrated by the appointment of improper and unsuitable officers. We must trust the Government to do the right thing and leave these minor details to their good sense. I therefore oppose this amendment, Sir, and I request my hon. Friend Sri Bhashyam to withdraw it and not to press all these minor matters of detail.”

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—“ Mr. Speaker, Sir, I find it rather difficult to accept this amendment, because I think it would be impossible to put it into practice, if once it is accepted. Now the clause as it stands reads as follows:—

‘ The Commissioner, every Deputy or Assistant Commissioner and every other officer or servant appointed to carry out the purposes of this Act, by whomsoever appointed, shall be a person professing the Hindu religion, and shall cease to hold office as such when he ceases to profess that religion.’

“ My hon. Friend Sri K. Bhashyam wants to insert the words ‘ and practising ’ after the word ‘ professing ’. It is very difficult to define what is meant by practising the Hindu religion.

“ Apart from that, Sir, the dictionary meaning of the term ‘ professing Hindu faith ’ is affirming one's belief in the Hindu religion and this is totally different from the meaning of the term ‘ practising Hindu religion ’. I really doubt, Sir, how many of us would be really practising Hindu religion according to the strict tenets prescribed in the Sastras. I really wonder, Sir, whether this would not be inconsistent with the amendment just now moved by Sri T. Viswanatham and seconded by my hon. Friend

[Sri K. Madhava Menon] [18th November 1950]

Sri K. Bhashyam, to clause 10 of this Bill, wherein they wanted that the Commissioner, the Deputy Commissioner and the Assistant Commissioner should be recruited from persons possessing law qualifications of a recognized University or practising lawyers, because I want to know how many of us, practising lawyers, really practise Hindu religion according to the tenets prescribed in the Hindu Sastras and scriptures. Perhaps my hon. Friend Sri K. Bhashyam might be an exception to that."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"The Hon. Minister is blaspheming the lawyers of the whole Hindu community, Sir."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"I am not in any way blaspheming anybody, Sir, but I am only asking how many lawyers of the Hindu community are practising Hindu religion in accordance with the strict injunctions of the Sastras. There are people who do not even perform their Sandhyas and I know there are people who cannot even repeat the Gayatri by heart correctly. So that, Sir, if we accept this amendment, we must have to put in a definition for the term 'religious practice' and we will have to prescribe a number of religious practices which should be observed by these officers. We must prescribe that as one of the qualifications for making appointments to these posts. It is very difficult to carry all these things into practice. It may be that my hon. Friend Sri T. Viswanatham may have a living faith in the Hindu religion, but whether he is practising that religion in his daily life is a thing which nobody can know. We know, Sir, the oft-quoted expression that 'Even the devil itself cannot know the mind of man' and such being the case, how can man know the mind of man and say that such and such a person is practising Hindu religion. We have got no yard-stick to measure the mind of man. The very example given by my hon. Friend Sri T. Viswanatham as to how even such stalwarts like Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru were not able to impress the press reporters in England by his outward appearance, while a chaprasi was able to do so simply by wearing his turban, is enough to show how very difficult it is for people to understand the real state of things by mere outward appearances and expressions."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"I said Maharajas, not chaprasis."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Yes, Sir, I accept the correction. It comes to this, that the Maharajas by themselves were not impressive, but that their turbans had made them more impressive. That is an example which shows that outward appearance creates greater impression than real truth. I do not want, Sir, that such a false impression should be created in this matter, or that people should be judged by their outward appearances. A person may be wearing a big namam on his forehead and call himself a Vaishnavite, but in practice, he may be doing the most outrageous things on earth. You cannot put in things in this Bill which are impracticable of performance or which cannot be measured by any yard-stick. But we can only lay down certain general practical conditions and prescribe certain general principles which we can enforce in making appointments to these posts and the qualification that we have prescribed is that he must profess the Hindu religion. I submit, Sir, that the amendment of my hon. Friend Sri K. Bhashyam is impracticable of application and therefore cannot be accepted."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I submit that my amendment is a very reasonable one and a very necessary one because there is a vast difference between a person professing a religion and practising a religion. As my Hon. Friend the Minister for Law just now said, 'Even the devil cannot dive into the depths of man's mind' and know what he professes and whether his profession is really true or not. Therefore, Sir, much less can the devil of a Minister—without meaning any offence or disrespect to him—discern the mind of a person who says that he professes a religion and make the appointment, although he may, in fact, be a most profane Hindu. It may be that in many cases, even people belonging to the black-shirt movement can say that they too profess the Hindu religion and get into these temples. You know, Sir, that even in Tirupati some of the students belonging to the black-shirt movement got themselves admitted into the school and disfigured the picture of Lord Sri Venkatesa, after having got into that institution. Perhaps you may not be able to get people who are so orthodox as to wear always the Dwadhasa namams, or people who look like Sivapalanis for being appointed as Assistant Commissioners or Executive Officers of these temples, but I do want that they should at least conform to some ordinary standards which might indicate that they are practising Hinduism in some form or other. Otherwise people would lose faith in these temples. (Interruption.) I can give the Hon. Minister the names of a number of lawyers who still wear namams and who are still very orthodox and if he really wants them, I can send them on to him for being selected to these posts. Now let me give you a practical example of what I mean. Take for instance our great revered leader Sri V. Bhashyam Ayyangar, the retired Judge of the High Court, who has been appointed as the Director of Harijan Uplift. He is a very orthodox gentleman, and a gentleman who is well versed in law. If you appoint such a gentleman as the Commissioner of the Hindu Religious Endowments, nobody will complain about him. But what is going to happen is that some I.C.S. or some I.A.S. officer might be put in charge of these institutions. People who come for religious worship in temples and devotees of God would not like such people being the head of the religious institutions. If my amendment is accepted, you can avoid those things. Because this is in the nature of an Ecclesiastical department, you must take special care to appoint people who are religiously minded, in addition to merely professing the Hindu religion. Suppose, you appoint a person to be a Bishop in a church. He must go there with his reversed collars and with a black coat and put on such dress as is prescribed for a Bishop. I am not so very impractical as to suggest that the person who is appointed as an Assistant Commissioner should be strictly orthodox. But he should have a religious bent of mind and should be a bit religious in his everyday life. At least, if the Hon. Minister can give an assurance that he will appoint a person as Executive Officer, who will put up a namam or vibuthi when he comes to the temple and who will bear a panchakacham and not suit, hat and boots, that would satisfy me. Otherwise, what will happen is, that if a person comes up for being appointed as an Executive Officer, you will ask him 'Are you a Hindu?' and he will reply 'Yes, don't you see that I am putting up a namam?'. But who is there to see that in his every-day conduct in the temple, he behaves himself in such a manner that the ordinary person who goes to the temple may be able to reconcile with him? I ask, why not appoint a person who is really orthodox as the Commissioner and ask him to select these other officers, in which case, he would only choose the right sort of persons? What difficulty is there if you ask these officers to study the various Agamas and Sastras and prescribe that as a qualification for them in the future? The Government can frame rules prescribing the qualifications of these officers, if they want. That is why I am asking that at least this harmless amendment may be accepted by the Government. It is not a small amendment going into the details of the administration, as my hon. Friend Sri Kandaswami Pillai has pointed out. I do not quarrel with him, even if he thinks this is only a minor matter, but if he has any real faith in the temple, he must support me at least in this amendment, which is perhaps a very small one, according to him. I hope, Sir, that the Government will accept my amendment, because it is really good for the persons who are to be appointed as Deputy and Assistant Commissioners, not only to profess but also practise Hinduism in some form or other, and there should be some justification for them to be appointed to these posts."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, my hon. Friend Sri Bhashyam only a little while ago supported the amendment of my hon. Friend Sri T. Viswanatham when he wanted that these Deputy and Assistant Commissioners should have a Law degree qualification, but now he says that he would be satisfied if they know the Agamas and Sastras to some extent. At least he wants an assurance from me to that effect, even though he is sure that I cannot accept his amendment. The hon. Mr. Bhashyam forgets that I come from a district where nobody can enter a Hindu temple or even within the precincts of a temple with a shirt and without a bath. Even Sri Bhashyam who had once visited one of the temples there had to remove his shirt and take a bath before he could enter the temple. That is the custom in Malabar. In 1937 when my Hon. Friend Dr. T. S. S. Rajan visited the Guruvayur temple, one gentleman came to him and said, 'Sir, you cannot enter the temple with your shirt on. You must take off your shirt and have a bath before you can enter it'. So that, it is not a case of anybody wanting to see that the temple is desecrated or destroyed of its sanctity that a provision like this is put in this legislation. It is not at all the intention of the legislation to affect the sanctity of the temple or to diminish, in any way, the sacredness and the religious character of temple-worship. If that is the idea, then I am sure, we will get ourselves destroyed. But we want to preserve the temples, to maintain the faith of our people in the temples and to see that religious worship is carried on as before and that the temple funds are properly utilized for the promotion of these purposes and that is the object of this Bill."

SRI A. VEDARATNAM PILLAI:—"Sir, on a point of information. கனம் மந்திரி அவர்கள் மற்ற விஷயங்களை கட்டுப்படுத்தி என்ன செய்தபோதிலும், அல்லது செய்யாதபோதிலும் ஆலயங்களில் நுழையும் பொழுது hat, boots, போட்டுக்கொண்டும், சிகரெட் பிடித்துக்கொண்டும், ஆபீசர்கள் போகாமல் பாதுகாப்பு அளிப்பார்களா? இப்பொழுது இம்மாதிரி நடந்து வருகிறது. அதற்கு பாதுகாப்பு கொடுக்க ஏதாவது வழி இருக்கிறதா என்ற விஷயத்தை எனக்கு விளக்குமாறு கேட்டுக்கொள்ளுகிறேன்."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"இந்த amendment உத்தியோகஸ்தர்களைப்பற்றி மட்டும்தான் சொல்லப்பட்டிருக்கிறது. சாதாரண மாக யாராக இருந்தாலும், உத்தியோகஸ்தர்களாக இருந்தாலும்கூட, அல்லது சாதாரண மனிதருக இருந்தாலும்கூட ஆலயத்திற்குள் போகும் பொழுது boots, shoes, போட்டுக்கொண்டும், சிகரெட் பிடித்துக்கொண்டும் போவதை கட்டாயம் கண்டிக்கவேண்டியதுதான். அதற்கு எவ்வளவு தண்டனை கொடுக்கவேண்டுமோ அதைக்கொடுக்க வேண்டியதுதான்."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The amendment is—

'In clause 11, after the word "professing" add the words "and practising".'

The amendment was lost.

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move the amendment standing in my name, namely—

'After the words "Hindu Religion" in line 4, insert the words "and having a knowledge of the mode of worship and the ritual adopted therefor".'

"Sir, the idea behind this amendment is that the gentleman who is asked to administer a particular temple must have a knowledge of the mode of worship that is being carried on in that temple and if possible, a knowledge of the rituals also that is adopted in that institution. I know, it is a very difficult thing, no doubt, to expect all these officers to have a knowledge of the various Agamas and Sastras and so on. But at least, it may not be difficult for them to study these things even while they are under training, so that they might carry on their work with ease. My idea is that the official to be appointed need not be well-versed in Vedanta or the Agamas or the great truths of the Hindu religion. But he must have at least a true understanding of the rituals that are followed in the particular temple. I submit, Sir, that it is not difficult to get a knowledge of these things in a few months. In some temples, the rituals are more important than the general mode of worship. In some other temples people attach greater importance to the modes of worship. Therefore the official should have a knowledge of both these things. It may be argued, how is it possible for the Commissioner to be appointed by the Government to go through all these various systems of philosophy and the various practices obtaining in each temple? But I submit, Sir, that a basic idea of these philosophies is absolutely necessary for any person who claims to be the Commissioner of the Hindu Religious Endowments.

"If they like they may choose graduates of philosophy passing out from our colleges so that the men who go there go with a bent of mind and mood who will not scoff at everything they see foreign to their own ways of thinking. It is also necessary that in such matters people are essentially in agreement with the mode of worship. For instance, Advaitam, Dvaitam, and Visishtadvaitam, are there. There are people, whatever may be the views of outsiders, who profess and practise Advaitam, Dvaitam, and Visishtadvaitam. There is friction in maintaining the intricacies of these various modes of worship. I do not think it will be out of the way to ask that the Government should see that these officials have a grounding in the philosophy of these various modes of worship. If the official does not know these, he will certainly be misfit. Any amount of trouble may arise. Suppose the Commissioner who is going to be appointed is a Saivaite, will he not be a misfit in a Vaishnavaita temple? Are the Government going to appoint Saivaites to Saivaite temples and Vaishnavaites to Vaishnavaita temples alone? It will be far more advantageous for the officers to have a grounding in these various modes of worship. That will create in the mind of the man that much of liberality and that much of breadth of vision as not to look askance at what is being practised in the temple. Saivite mode of worship may appear repugnant to those who do not follow that type of worship. But still there are millions of people in this country who follow Saivaite mode of worship. The recent Bill passed by this House bans the killing of animals and birds. Taking out the life of animals and birds may not be quite in consonance with the views of some people. Apart from the opinions of individuals in the matter of appointing Commissioners, I say, Sir, the Commissioner has absolutely no business to import petty prejudices into the work of his office. I, therefore, think that it is necessary, in the first instance, to have a man who has good grounding in the various modes of worship followed in the country, so that he may behave himself in a careful and inoffensive manner. Secondly, he should have a general knowledge of the rituals practised in the various temples so that he may not step on another's toes and make himself a nuisance. It is also better that the Government insist on these officials passing a certain test in these matters. The official is to do a special job, and unless he is qualified for it, he has absolutely no business to be there. Just as we require the judicial officers and the revenue officers to pass the judicial test and the revenue test respectively, I ask that these officials do pass certain tests which may be prescribed in consultation with the various Pandits. Some syllabus may be drawn up by the Government for the easy mastering of these principles. I commend my amendment for Government's acceptance, and I hope there will not be any trouble in accepting it."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, I second the amendment. This is a very reasonable amendment. According to the Hon. the Minister this would be a more reasonable and more practicable amendment than those that we moved already and lost. Better to move and lose rather than never move amendments at all! The hon. Member Mr. Raghavayya has given us happily on this occasion a very good amendment. When I was seconding, the amendment of the hon. Member Mr. Bhashyam, I had this in my mind, but I did not get the proper language. When the hon. Member Mr. Raghavayya moved the amendment, I was delighted. I have absolutely no doubt that the reasons given are very sound. If the object of control of the various trusts is to maintain and restore the pristine purity of our religion, and re-elevate in the estimation of the world the position of our various religious institutions and temples, I submit that the officers, who are put in charge of the endowments and trusts, must certainly have a knowledge of the mode of worship and ritual adopted. It is the least we should expect of them. I submit even if they are not law graduates, and even if the Government are unwilling to have law graduates, though ultimately they may provide some appellate authority and have the mistakes of these officials set right, as these officials come into contact with the temple servants and worshippers throughout the State in about 13,000 institutions, their influence for good or for evil will be tremendous. After all, the hon. Member Mr. Raghavayya does not require any expert knowledge, and I also do not say that we require expert knowledge on these questions. But one must certainly have a knowledge of the modes of worship. If the Government appoint a Commissioner for the Tirumalai Devasthanam, that Commissioner must certainly know the practices and the ceremonial functions. He must be in a position to understand those practices. He need not be an expert. He need not recite mantrams off-hand. He need not have the capacity to officiate. But he must know exactly what the rituals are, what the modes of worship in Ramanuja's time were, and whether there has since been any change. He must know whether the Archakas do their duties properly and observe the necessary rituals. It is absolutely necessary that he should know all these things. Unless he knows the rituals and the mode of worship, it will be ludicrous on his part to occupy this post. Government can create some syllabus for them, as my friend Mr. Raghavayya stated. Let them pass some test in the various modes of worship and rituals practised. Let them pass a test in the philosophic doctrines underlying the various tenets. They may be posted to Udipi temple or Mathurai temple or Simhachalam temple. They have got to understand the underlying tenets of these various temples. There is no use of Hindu officers occupying these posts, unless they know all these rituals and modes of worship."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, the same difficulty which I stated with regard to the previous amendment, in a more exaggerated form, is here. The hon. Member Mr. Raghavayya's amendment is to insert the words 'and having a knowledge of the mode of worship and the ritual adopted therefor' after the words 'Hindu Religion' in line 4 of this clause. This is a qualification for the Commissioner, Deputy Commissioner, Assistant Commissioner and every officer appointed to carry out the purposes of this Bill. I understand that the hon. Member Mr. Bhashyam himself does not know all the rituals."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"I am not aspiring for the post of Commissioner."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"I do not say, Sir, that the hon. Member is aspiring for the post of Commissioner. He suggested persons with law degrees should be chosen for appointment. Even if such an expert lawyer like the hon. Member Mr. Bhashyam does not know the modes of worship, how can we expect youngsters of the department to know the modes of worship and religious practices adopted in the temples? The hon. Member Mr. Raghavayya wants that the officer should have a knowledge of the mode of worship and the ritual adopted therefor. What is the quantum of knowledge that we have to fix? That is the difficulty. For each place, we will have to prescribe the quantum of knowledge in the mode of worship. It is an impossibility for the officers to know every mode of worship. Some Hindus may even consider it an insult if asked whether they know the modes of worship. Other people may say that they know the modes of worship, but I cannot profess to know all the modes of worship. That is a difficult thing to practise."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Sir, my name has been dragged in, and I want to say a few words. I may not know all the sastras. But I can tell the Hon. the Minister that I know what are the various ceremonies that take place in a temple. I have grown up in a temple. My uncle was a Stanika. I have begged in goshthas and taken *prasadam*s. I may not be able really to perform the ceremonies in the morning, noon, and evening. But I know what these ceremonies are. I cannot really say that I can perform them. What is required is that he must have some knowledge of these ceremonies. He should not behave like the officer who said, while puja was going on, 'how long does it take God to take the food that is offered'."

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, as one listens to the Hon. Mr. Madhava Menon's curious arguments in respect of these amendments, one gets almost frightened. I do not know if it is parliamentary to use the terms. Are the Government going to put in idiots as officials?"

MR. SPEAKER:—"I did not hear the hon. Member."

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, when the Members of this House suggested that the officials should possess the law degree or philosophy degree, it was not accepted. We ask, Sir, whether the Government are going to put in barbers, washermen, or tailors in the shape of officers? The person posted must be fit for the job. If persons in other posts are required to fit themselves in their jobs, why should not the Government require these people also to fit themselves in their jobs? The Hon. the Minister in charge of temples has stated that it is not the object of this Government to wound the feelings of the people. The idea is to maintain the sanctity attached to these temples. If that is the professed view—though not the practised view—what prevents the Government from agreeing to some of the very reasonable suggestions made by hon. Members in respect of qualifications for the post. I only want some knowledge of the rituals and the modes of worship. It is not 90 per cent knowledge or 100 per cent knowledge. Whoever asked them to have that much of knowledge? All that I wanted to say was that the official should not mistake a dog for an ass! He must have some idea in the matter. Suppose he considers it a waste of time to have three pradakshinams, and says one will do, and thus makes himself an ass. I am sure many cries will rise against him. Let him be an administrator receiving garlands and not kicks."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, they will certainly distinguish between a dog and an ass. The hon. Member Mr. Raghavayya asked 'are the Government going to appoint barbers and washermen?' Perhaps in Tirupathi temple, we may have to appoint barbers to do mundanam. According to Mr. Raghavayya's amendment, he must know the rituals and modes of worship in the temple! I do not think, Sir, that the barber's work requires a knowledge of the rituals and modes of worship in the temple. Like this, there will be practical difficulties. Arguments may seem curious. But to say that because arguments are curious, the Government's idea is to have idiots who will make no distinction between a dog and an ass, is not correct."

[18th November 1950]

MR. SPEAKER:—"The question is—

'After the words "Hindu religion" in line 4, insert the words "and having a knowledge of the mode of worship and the ritual adopted therefor".'

The amendment was lost.

Clause 11 was put and carried.

Clause 12.

MR. SPEAKER:—"The motion is—

'That clause 12 do stand part of the Bill.'

Sub-clause (1).

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, I move—

'That in line 3 of sub-clause (1), for "a Deputy Commissioner", the words "each Deputy Commissioner" be substituted.'

That is only a verbal amendment."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Amendment moved—

'That in line 3 of sub-clause (1), for "a Deputy Commissioner", the words "each Deputy Commissioner" be substituted.'

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, what is the difference between 'a' and 'each'? I want to know what the grammatical connotation is."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"There is no necessity for me to explain to my hon. Friend the grammatical connotation of 'a' and 'each'."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Legal implication?"

The amendment was put and carried.

Sub-clause (2).

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, I move—

'That in line 6 of sub-clause (2), for the figures "40", the figures "41" be substituted.'

This is another amendment of a verbal nature. We are going to move an amendment to omit clause 40. There is a reference in this sub-clause to clause 40. When we are omitting clause 40, there is no meaning in putting a reference to clause 40 here. Therefore, I move the amendment, Sir."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Amendment moved—

'That in line 6 of sub-clause (2), for the figures "40", the figures "41" be substituted.'

[18th November 1950]

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Sir, I do not know whether they are omitting clause 40 entirely. Before an amendment that clause 40 be omitted is accepted, he cannot move the present amendment. He must postpone the amendment and if the House agrees to the deletion of clause 40, then he must re-open the matter and move his amendment."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, we have given notice of an amendment to delete clause 40. Technically my hon. Friend Sri Bhashyam is right. I cannot anticipate whether or not the House will agree to the Government amendment to delete clause 40. Therefore, let that be passed over."

MR. SPEAKER:—"If clause 40 is deleted, then we can re-open the matter."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"If the Government amendment to delete clause 40 is accepted, then I will have to go back and move the amendment to this sub-clause. With the confidence of the House, I can move it now."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, accepting or rejecting an amendment has nothing to do with the confidence of the House. I want the Hon. Minister not to entertain any such notions."

MR. SPEAKER:—"We may now itself take up the amendment."

The amendment was put and carried.

Clause 12 as amended was put and carried.

Clause 13.

MR. SPEAKER:—"The motion is—

'That clause 13 do stand part of the Bill.'

Sub-clause (1).

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA:—"Sir, I move—

'That for the word "divisions" in line (2) of sub-clause (1), the word "zones" be substituted.'

It seems to me that the word 'zones' would be a better word than 'divisions'. Of course, legally 'divisions' may be a better term."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Then let the hon. Member formally move it."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"I have already seconded it, Sir."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"I have already opposed it, Sir."

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA:—"I have already formally withdrawn it, Sir."

The amendment was, by leave, withdrawn.

[18th November 1950]

Sub-clause (3).

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, I move—

'That in line 4 of sub-clause (3), for the figures "40", the figures "41" be substituted and that after the words "limitations and conditions", the words "if any" be inserted.'

This is only a verbal amendment.

The amendment was put and carried.

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Sir, I move—

'That for the words "by general or special order", the words "by general order" be substituted.'

The Commissioner may delegate to an Assistant Commissioner any of the powers conferred on the Commissioner under this Bill other than the powers referred to in certain clauses, subject to such restrictions and control as the Government may, by general or special order, lay down. There may be a special order laying down restrictions. I want that the Government may make up their mind to issue a general order concerning delegation of powers and duties of a Commissioner to an Assistant Commissioner. Let them not say that in a particular temple there is a particular difficulty and that, therefore, a distinction has to be made. We should not make such invidious distinctions. I think it would be more dignified if the Government issue only general orders. Consequent upon the withdrawal of clause 7, the Government should not make a special order in a particular case for delegation of powers. The word 'special' seems to be inappropriate. Therefore, I move, Sir."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"I second the amendment, Sir."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Amendment moved—

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, there is no sinister motive underlying the idea of issuing special orders on special occasions. The question may be raised whether an order is of a general character or not. It is clearly necessary for Government to issue special orders in individual cases of importance. The other portion deals only with restrictions and control to which an Assistant Commissioner is subject. That means he should not exercise any powers which he is not specifically authorized to do."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Sir, he wants power to issue special orders to suit special occasions. It means that the Government are subject to any possible pressure. When clause 7 was there, the superintendence of all religious institutions and endowments was vested in the Government. In that case, they could make any order they pleased. Now it has been deleted. The Government have been denied the power of superintendence over the institutions. Therefore, they cannot have any power to interfere and issue special orders. The whole thing is left to the Commissioner. Not only 'special order' is inappropriate but after the delegation of clause 7, it is objectionable also."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, we are only talking of delegation to an Assistant Commissioner of powers which the Commissioner possesses. We only say that this will be subject to such restrictions and control as the Government may, by general or special order, lay down. Therefore, the question is only about delegation of powers. What is meant is that the power of Commissioner to delegate his powers can be restricted by the Government by any special order. It is not in all cases that the Government will issue special orders. Suppose in a very important matter the Commissioner delegates his power to an Assistant Commissioner. The Government want that a particular power should be exercised by the Commissioner himself and not by the Assistant Commissioner. In that case we will have to issue a special order."

The amendment was put and lost.

Clause 13, as amended, was put and carried.

Clause 14.

MR. SPEAKER:—"The motion is—

'That clause 14 do stand part of the Bill.'"

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, I move—

'That clause 14 be deleted.'

"Sir, this clause is about the constitution of Area Committees. Originally I was one of those who said that the people of the area should be given a voice. In the Select Committee, I got an institution called an Area Committee but not of the type I wanted. I wanted a Committee which would represent the people but here we have got a body which is not elected. The whole idea of asking for the association of the people of the locality is that they must have an effective voice in the management of the institution and in the discussions of the Area Committee, whether it is called Temple Committee or Area Committee. When once it becomes an appointed Committee, the entire purpose is lost. I think I have given notice of another amendment as an alternative that the Committee must be an elected body."

MR. SPEAKER:—"No, the hon. Member has not given notice of any such amendment."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"It is with regard to the next clause, Sir. If the Government agree to make it an elected Committee, then I have no objection to retain this clause. But if they want to stick to their idea of having an appointed Committee, then

[Sri T. Viswanatham] [18th November 1950]

I want the omission of this clause. If this clause is retained as it is, then it will give room for further patronage. 'The Government can appoint whomsoever they like. These Area Committees have got some powers of the trustees. In one place trustees are appointed and in another place Area Committees are appointed. Therefore, unless it is an elected body, the House should not be willing to create so many appointed bodies.'

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA:—"I second the amendment, Sir. I think in matters of omissions at least the Hon. Minister will agree with us because he has agreed to omit several other things and without much harm he can omit this clause also. I think it is a thoroughly unnecessary clause which gives more trouble than good and more pinpricks than blessings. I expect the Government to accept the amendment."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Amendment moved—

'That clause 14 be deleted.'"

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, my hon. Friend Sri Viswanatham said that it was very vehemently demanded in this House during the first reading of the Bill that Area Committees must be there. The Select Committee considered the question whether there should be elected Committees or appointed Committees. I am sorry my hon. Friend Sri Karanth is not here. He also said that there were dangers in having elected Committees at this stage. When we were dealing with the previous clauses, everyone of us was particular that only people who had faith in temples and who professed and practised the religion should have anything to do with these institutions. Even after the closure, my hon. Friend Sri Vedaratnam Pillai said that at least people should not go in with cigarettes, hats or shoes, and that such people should not have anything to do with the temples. It is perfectly right in a democracy that we must have elected members. But in the case of a temple, if we have elected members, it is quite possible that people who have absolutely no faith in temples and who decried temples become members of the Area Committees. Then the very purpose of the Bill will be defeated. This was a forcible argument put forward in the Select Committee by a good number of Members. That is why the Select Committee said that the Government might appoint people who had faith in temples as members of these Area Committees. In days when atheism is preached as a fashion, it may be dangerous to have elected bodies. Further, there will be a difficulty in preparing the electoral rolls. We will have to decide who the people entitled to vote are and what the area commanded by the temple is. In a State-wide temple as the Tirupati temple, there will be a difficulty in deciding who the electorate shall be. Are we to have the worshippers in the whole State or only those people in the particular area? Such difficulties will arise. If it is an elected body, we will not know the nature of people who will constitute the Committee.

18th November 1950] [Sri K. Madhava Menon]

Temples have got a lot of property and they should be properly administered. Therefore, I cannot accept the suggestion that it should be an elected body."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"The Hon. Minister has been talking about my amendment which comes hereafter."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Hon. Member Sri Viswanatham was all along referring to that amendment. That is why I had to refer to the hon. Member's amendment."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"The Hon. Minister's argument is not at all convincing. I will like to adduce some more argument in favour of my amendment. The Hon. Minister has raised a point which is productive of some misapprehension. The Hon. Minister says that if the members of the Area Committee were elected representatives, persons who hold views of destroying the temples may also come in into these Committees. I can assure him that such a case will never occur and it is impossible. (Interruption: 'Why?') Because I know the temper of the country and the temper of the people. Your 'why' is a big assumption. The vast majority of the people know how to achieve what they want. I am sure that only a negligible percentage of the population is in favour of the so-called purification of the religion and religious institutions. Just like the elections in the case of co-operative organizations, there may be scramble for getting power. But surely, the suggestion that people who have views for the destruction of these temples will get into the Committee if there was election, cannot be swallowed by anybody. We cannot accept the contention that unless the Government nominate the members to these Committees, all these public institutions and charitable institutions will be destroyed. It is too large an assumption to make. Possibly, the Hon. Minister did not have this in his mind when he said that. I submit that at least the misapprehensions created by his speech should be removed. I want to press my amendment, Sir."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The question is—

'That clause 14 be omitted.'"

The amendment was lost.

THE MADRAS LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Monday, the 20th November 1950.

The House met in the Assembly Chamber, Fort St. George, at eleven of the clock, Mr. Speaker (THE HON. SRI J. SIVASHANMUGAM PILLAI) in the Chair.

THE MADRAS HINDU RELIGIOUS AND CHARITABLE ENDOWMENTS

Clause 14.

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—“ Sir, my amendment is—

‘ In sub-clause (1) (a), delete the words “ by notification in the Fort St. George Gazette ” and after the words “ Area committee ” insert the words “ elected as hereinafter provided ”.’

Sir, the purpose with which this amendment is moved is this: At the time of the introduction of this Bill most of us pleaded that the members of the denominations must have some effective voice in the management of the various endowments within their respective areas. When we said we wanted the association of the local people of the religious denominations we had in our mind the temple committees as we originally contemplated in the existing Act, temple committees which were provided for in the Act of 1863; but we never wanted that the Government should make provision for committees to be appointed by them by notification. In other words, we wanted only elected committees. These are days of democracy not only at the top but also at the bottom; and if democracy is to prevail in small villages having even 500 of population, and if the Government are anxious to establish panchayats for ordinary affairs, there is no reason why the endowments should be left out of the jurisdiction of elected bodies. One might ask, 'what is the electoral college, whom do you contemplate as electors for this purpose'? For such a general question, the general answer would be 'all those who are interested in the upkeep and maintenance and prosperity of the endowment'. For greater details along with other rules for which Government have been making provision in this Act, the Government, in consultation with whomsoever they like, might certainly frame rules and prescribe the necessary machinery for the electorate and give a chance to persons in the locality to have an effective voice. The Government have now provided for Area Committees. As the Hon. Minister pointed out, originally there were no Area Committees but they have been brought in now. But the Area Committees now provided for are appointed committees. I submit the Area Committees appointed by the Government are only an addition to the objectionable machinery, i.e., the kind of machinery to which we have been raising objections. All along, the point of our objection has been that the religious denomination must have some voice; but if you go through the provisions of this Bill, you will find that the religious denomination is practically squeezed out. The Constitution may say that the denomination must maintain these institutions, but still, none of the provisions in the Bill is such as to bring within its scope the religious denomination for expressing its will, effectively or otherwise. If the Government are anxious to associate local people, at least in the case of temples whose income is below a particular level, and if they think Area Committees should be appointed in respect of such institutions, I submit these committees should be elected bodies. If they are not elected bodies, the purpose is not served. On the other hand, this House will put another instrument into the hands of the Executive to more effectively manage the properties themselves, instead of leaving them to the denomination to manage them.

"There is also another difficulty, Sir. The Commissioner, the Deputy Commissioners and the Assistant Commissioners will be paid officers and there will be some kind of check over them. The Trustees also have got certain duties and they have greater obligations to fulfil than other persons who hold property. But the Area Committee will have all the power and no responsibility, practically none, because they do not have the disadvantage of being paid officers nor have they the obligations of trustees, but they will be merely appointed by the pleasure of the Government and be there during the pleasure of the Government. I submit this is a very anomalous position. Area Committees to be constituted like that and spread over the entire Province, with nearly 15,000 temples to be distributed to these Area Committees—provisions like these are not healthy provisions to be embodied in the Bill, in my humble opinion. And that is the reason, Sir, why I want these Area Committees to be manned by elected personnel subject to such rules as may be prescribed, and that is my amendment."

20th November 1950]

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI:—"Sir, I second the amendment. While seconding it, I need go no further than take the instance of this Government. The Government say that because we represent the public, we have a voice in the management of the religious institutions. It, therefore, stands to reason that local people who are very interested in the temples should certainly have a voice in the management of their own institutions. If simply because we alone represent the public here, we alone should have a voice in managing not only all the institutions in general but even particular institutions, not directly but even through agents to be appointed by Government, i.e., by the Commissioner to be appointed by this Government, it is an indirect way of transferring the responsibility and it only offends the fundamental principles whereby it is only the denomination and the local people and the public of the locality that should be put in charge of these religious institutions. The Hon. Minister the other day said that if we leave it to elections, it may be that irreligious people will capture these organizations. Will not the Oppositionists and the critics of this Bill say that we irreligious people have captured the seats in the Legislature and want to take charge of all the temples which we are not entitled to do? If we adopt one kind of argument for taking over the institutions, that argument should also apply to a provision which will give scope to the local people to choose their own officers, so that there may be proper supervision and so that it may be more in accordance with public opinion, rather than have direct management by the Government themselves."

SRI K. R. KARANTH:—"Sir, I must say, having had some part in the Select Committee stage, that it appears at an earlier stage it was stated here that I was against any elected committee. If that is so, there is a slight misapprehension. The position is this: The Government wanted all powers for the officers and nothing less than that; they wanted that the trustees also should be appointed by the officers. The view I took was: Let there be at least nomination for the present, because instead of having the paraphernalia of electoral rolls and regular elections and so on for this purpose, let us be satisfied with nomination; because nomination even by Government would be preferable to appointment of trustees by the officers. I felt, with the little experience I have had of the committees in my district, that they functioned fairly well and very satisfactorily. I am not sure whether they were appointed or elected, but rather than officers trying to dictate from Madras and appointing local trustees, our own men, however bad or good they may be, would have a better idea of choosing local people than officers who are being transferred from district to district. This position was taken in the Select Committee stage; but that does not mean that I am against elections of any sort. Sir, there is a real fear, and I think hon. Mr. Viswanatham voiced that fear, viz., that as things are being done now in respect of advisory committees and advisory councils, certain people only of certain groups who support the Government will be appointed. That is a fact just at present. Therefore, the fear is whether all the 28,000 and odd temples are going to be handed over to the supporters of Government in the shape of these committee members. I hope Government will take care to see that this power of nomination is not abused in any manner. Slowly and at a later stage, it is open to them to see that instead of having regular elections for this purpose and spending much money, the Hindu members elected in the districts are brought in. For instance, there will be a large number of Hindu members elected from various constituencies; we shall be having panchayat elections or there are elected Hindu members of the District Boards already. Therefore, instead of directly nominating and thereby taking the odium, it is open to the Government to take advantage of existing bodies where there are elected Hindu members, without having recourse to the paraphernalia of having regular elections for these committees, and to see that the power of nomination in the Government is not abused in the slightest manner."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" Sir, the mover of the amendment, hon. Mr. Viswanatham, did not adduce any more arguments now than what he adduced yesterday when he moved that the whole clause be deleted. His main argument is : ' We wanted a committee when the original Bill came; we asked for something, but we got something which we did not expect at all. The committees you have proposed are to be nominated, and so we do not want the committees at all.' So, he said, clause 14 should be deleted. Every argument mentioned by him and by his able supporter yesterday has been repeated to-day. And in the course of my reply, I said there would be difficulty; that if the area committees were to come in by election, it would mean that even people who had no faith in temples might come in. And he also said ' if that is so, we have no right to sit in this House and say that we have power to make provision for these special institutions.' I do not think, Sir, that is a convincing argument—of course I agree in the same way he can also say that my argument will not convince him. But apart from what I have said yesterday, I may say this much : the original Bill contained no committees at all. As hon. Mr. Karanth said, the original Bill said that the trustee should be appointed by the Commissioner or the Assistant Commissioner. Here, so far as area committees are concerned, power is given to the concerned officers. There was a strong feeling expressed in this House that it would be wrong and that we should associate local people in the administration of these institutions. It was in deference to this feeling that clauses 14 to 21 referring to these area committees were added by the Select Committee, just with a view to avoid the complaint that the work would be done entirely by officers who may not be people of the locality or of the same place. I mentioned Mr. Karanth's name yesterday; what I understood him to say was that for the present

he would be satisfied with nominations. Therefore, I said even Mr. Karanth would agree to nomination. The background for his saying so might have been different; he seems to have felt that as the Government were willing to have area committees, let us have them at least for the time being, by nomination at least. Anyway, there are various difficulties as we have said in having elected committees for these temples. I entirely welcome the idea suggested by Mr. Karanth that we are going to have a large number of elected bodies in the districts and from among them, Hindu members can be nominated for this purpose. That will serve both the purpose of representation by election and representation of the locality. I am sure, Sir, this suggestion will be borne in mind when these committees have to be nominated.

" Then, Sir, in regard to the argument that these will be handled by any Government to have their own men or groups of representatives, I should say it is a very plausible argument. But, I do not think the present Government have such a flattering unction to their soul that we are going to be here permanently. We are sure that at least in another year the elections are bound to come and so that is a thing which can be in the hands of anybody; it may be in the hands of this side to-day or somebody else who may be here the next day. So we do not gain anything particular in having a provision like this. It will be to the advantage or disadvantage of any Government that may come in. So, Sir, I cannot accept the amendment."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—" Sir, I press my amendment for this reason. The Hon. Minister ended by saying, " we are not going to be here permanently and that a provision like this is not going to benefit us," and so on. I submit, Sir, that no executive Government should have such powers, whether it is manned by the Hon. Mr. Madhava Menon or by men who are raising objections. My point is only this, that the executive Government should not have such wide and extensive patronage in respect of as many as 15,000 institutions spread over 142,000 square miles of this State. I submit it is wrong in principle and that is why I press my amendment."

MR. SPEAKER :—" The question is—

' That in sub-clause (1) (a), delete the words " by notification in the Fort St. George Gazette ", and after the words " Area Committee " insert the words " elected as hereinafter provided " . "

The amendment was lost.

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—" Sir, I move—

' In sub-clause (1) (a), for the word " temples " in line 4, substitute " those " . '

[Sri T. Viswanatham] [20th November 1950]

"My reason for moving this amendment is for better grammar."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"I second it, Sir."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"I entirely disagree that a pronoun instead of a noun makes it any better. Unfortunately, I am not able to find how it fits in into the section at all. No amendment can be moved which does not fit in with the section."

"Again, Sir, hon. Mr. Viswanatham's amendment is to remove the word 'temples' in line 4 and substitute 'those' in its place. But I do not find the word 'temple' in line 4. In fact, I have been searching every line to see whether this will fit in."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"It is in line 5 as it is printed in the Bill. Probably it is a clerical mistake, because it is not correctly put in the amendment."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"If it is in line 5, I think the words 'other than temples included,' etc., are better and I do not see any particular grammatical advantage in having the pronoun instead of the noun."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"I do not press the amendment, Sir."

The amendment was, by leave of the House, withdrawn.

Sub-clause (1) (b).

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, I move—

'In sub-clause (1) (b), after the words "clause (a)" in line 2, insert the words "on grounds of misconduct or wilful neglect of duty".'

"Sir, I thought that hon. Mr. Bhashyam had some amendment relating to election and that we could group all these amendments together. Sir, this power of removal of the area committee must be for specific grounds and it is absolutely necessary now that you have agreed to have a nominated committee, because when once a person is nominated he ought not to be at the will and pleasure of those in authority. You have got the power to make a gift, but you cannot remove that gift when once it is given. Therefore, there must be some safeguard for the person who takes the appointment. That is why I say no person should be removed except on grounds of misconduct or wilful neglect of duty and it is a necessary safeguard against any executive authority."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Sir, I beg to second the amendment for a more practical reason and it is this. It is always difficult to go to Government for nomination and respectable people do not seek nomination. Generally, people that go in for nomination are fairly not qualified for it and so Government have no other go but to nominate those persons who go and worry them. Now on the question of safeguard for the person who has been nominated to the area committee, suppose the area committee is abolished, without any specific grounds, it makes it all the more difficult for any respectable man to agree to serve on it. Therefore, you must give dignity and honour to the committee so that respectable persons may offer themselves to serve on the committee. Instead of merely putting a man and turning him out the next day, what I want is if you are to turn a member of the committee out, you must give reasons for doing so. In all committees that are constituted, it is necessary to provide for such a thing. It is one of the conditions that is always understood and so I insist upon the amendment of my hon. Friend. I, therefore, support it."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, I cannot accept the amendment. Mr. Viswanatham said that clause (b) provides for the abolition of the committee and not of the individual members. He says that for abolition of a committee, there must be grounds such as misconduct or wilful neglect of duty. But, he does not make any allowance for incompetence. Suppose we nominate a person to the committee and he is found incompetent or the committee exceeding the statutory powers given to them. Such contingencies might happen which hon. Mr. Viswanatham has evidently not foreseen."

"Then, Sir, hon. Mr. Bhashyam said that respectable people do not care to come in, and in such a case Government may come in with nomination. But I may tell him that even respectable persons come and ask for nomination. That apart, even after nomination, if the committee is not doing the work properly, if it exceeds its powers and proves inefficient or for some reasons the committee has not been able to do any work by not having a majority and on account of this like that, the work of the committee becomes impossible, in such cases it must be open to the Government to abolish the committee."

"Then, Sir, hon. Mr. Bhashyam wanted to know the reasons for the abolition of the area committee. That is what we have said in the clause, namely, that a reasonable opportunity shall be given to the committee to show cause against its abolition. It is not arbitrary and only after notice is given to the committee to show cause and after obtaining their views abolition is done. So, Sir, it is necessary in the circumstances we have pointed out and I cannot accept the amendment."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, the Hon. Mr. Madhava Menon thought that he has discharged his duty by giving these reasons. He has given good reasons, except one reason. He said 'incompetence' as the first cause. I do not agree, because they themselves choose the men. On the other hand, if they are elected men, some Secretary or officer might pounce upon them and say they are incompetent. Then, Sir, I have always protested that incompetence and unsuitability are not grounds at all, but that there must be some tangible grounds. Therefore, this incompetency and unsuitability are not at all grounds. Again, if he says there are reasons for abolition, I want them to be inserted here, so that the body might be made to show cause against their abolition. As the clause stands, an order for abolition need not state the grounds of abolition and it is not on grounds of misconduct or wilful neglect of duty or that is not functioning without a majority. I say, Sir, that there is the Municipal Act, or Panchayat Act or Corporation Act and wherever there is a removal clause like this, the authorities are expected to give the reasons for removal. I, therefore, submit that the Minister must include these reasons. But, according to the wording of the clause as it stands, what I contemplate is, the order will merely say that in exercise of the powers conferred under section 14 (1) (b) the Government propose to abolish the committee and the committee should show cause why it should not be abolished. In such a case what is the answer that the blessed committee could give? Therefore, I submit, it is absolutely necessary that you must state the grounds. I agree with the Hon. Minister in respect of the grounds he has suggested, except one and at least he can put forward those other grounds in the form of an amendment. Otherwise, I think, my amendment will be more useful. He may well put in misconduct, wilful neglect of duty, exceeding statutory powers, not functioning or discharging any of the functions imposed by this Bill, as grounds for the abolition of the committee. Therefore, Sir, I submit that some reasons must be given; otherwise there is no chance for them to show cause against the abolition and it will only be an eye-wash to say, as stated in the clause, they will be given an opportunity to show cause. It is all vague and it should not be in that form at all. Now, Sir, as the Hon. Minister has agreed to the reasons, I ask him to accept my amendment or if he likes he may put it in his own words."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The question is—

'In sub-clause (1) (b), after the words "clause (a)" in line 2, insert the words "on grounds of misconduct or wilful neglect of duty".'

The amendment was lost.

SRI K. R. KARANTH:—"I beg to move—

'Add at the end of sub-clause (1) (b), the following:—

"And shall reconstitute a new committee in its place within six months from the date of such abolition."'

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"May I suggest, Sir, that instead of moving the amendment here, it would be more appropriate to consider it along with an identical amendment which hon. Mr. Bhashyam has given notice of in respect of clause 19. Most probably, I am going to accept his amendment."

SRI K. R. KARANTH:—"In the circumstances explained by the Hon. Minister, I do not propose to move it here."

Clause 14 was put and carried.

20th November 1950]

Clause 15.

MR. SPEAKER:—"The motion is—

'That clause 15 do stand part of the Bill.'

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, I move—

'Delete the clause.'

"The clause as it stands runs thus: 'Every Area Committee shall consist of such number of members as may be appointed by the Government, not being less than three nor more than five.' I have already stated my objection. Of course, if clause 14 were deleted, clause 15 also would have to be deleted. Now, I think it is not necessary."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"The clause says, Sir, that the Area Committee shall consist of persons who may be appointed by the Government. I suggest that instead of its being appointed, they may be elected in the manner prescribed by the Government. That is the reason why I want this amendment. Arguments have already been advanced in the matter of the election question."

MR. SPEAKER:—"That has already been voted down. So, I rule it out of order."

Sub-clause (3).

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move—

'In sub-clause 3 (a), after the word "profess" add the words "or practise".'

MR. SPEAKER:—"The House has given a verdict on a similar motion moved in another place and it has been voted down."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Consistent with what I have said I make the motion and consistently with what has been the fate of my previous motion, the Government will defeat it. I want to be consistent with myself and therefore, Sir, I make the motion."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"I second the motion for the reason that it is very necessary."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The question is—

'In sub-clause 3 (a), after the word "profess" add the words "or practise".'

The amendment was lost.

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move—

'In sub-clause 3 (a), delete the word "Hindu" and add at the end the words—

"or religious denomination or the religious faith for whose benefit the institution is intended or created."

At every stage it is there and I feel it is not necessary."

[20th November 1950]

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" I second it, Sir."

MR. SPEAKER :—" The question is—

' In sub-clause 3 (a), delete the word " Hindu " and add at the end the words—

" or religious denomination or the religious faith for whose benefit the institution is intended or created."

The amendment was lost.

Sub-clause 3 (b).

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move—

' For the words " has applied " substitute " has applied or applies " and for the words " has been " substitute " has been or is ".'

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—" I submit, Sir, that the words as they stand are good enough and I do not know the reasons why we should add these words. At the time of the disqualification arising, there must be a person who has applied and therefore, Sir, the words employed are the proper terms. I feel, Sir, the original wording is quite all right and it need not be changed."

MR. SPEAKER :—" The question is that—

' For the words " has applied " substitute the words " has applied or applies " and for the words " has been " substitute the words " has been or is ".'

The amendment was carried.

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—" Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that—

' In sub-clause 3 (b), add at the end the words " or is proved to have been living in the company of a concubine or a prostitute ".'

I am very particular about this amendment, Sir. One of the fervid and fervent appeals made by the Government and others supporting the measure to take over the management of temples, maths and every other possible institution which they can is made on the ground that the persons in charge of those institutions are desecrating them by not living a moral life and they are even exhibiting photographs of trustees that are said to be immoral, on the floor of this House. If they are so anxious about the private lives of mata-hipathis and trustees, they must be equally careful about the persons who are expected to exercise authority over the institutions, namely the persons who are to be appointed members of the Area Committee. They will have jurisdiction over 16,000 temples in the Province. (Sri K. Bhashyam : ' 28,000. ') The Area Committee would not operate in respect of certain temples and so, they will have jurisdiction over 16,000 temples. From our experience, Sir, and from the speeches delivered by the Hon. Minister and by hon. Members who support the measure perhaps more fervently than the Ministers themselves, we find that private morality of the persons in charge of the institutions has played a very important part in their emotional appeal in support of this Bill both at the time of the introduction of the Bill and at the time when constitutional objections had been raised. It is not as if everybody is perfect in this world. When certain points are raised on the ground that it goes against the Constitution, then the emotional appeal is made based on the private lives of these unfortunate individuals who have no voice here. I attach great value for moral life of people and I want not merely matadhipathis, not merely trustees but all people to have a high standard of morality. But a person chosen by the Government for filling the office of managing and guiding the destinies of so many temples and maths will be in a position to create a certain reaction or impression in the minds of millions of people who attach great importance to their private lives and who feel that their life ought to be pure and beyond suspicion. Unless, Sir, the Government chooses people whose private lives is beyond cavil, we will be handing over those institutions to persons whose conduct will bring down the reputation of those institutions which we want to preserve by enacting this piece of legislation. I have a great and sincere belief that every person if possible in Government service in charge of public institutions must be a person of good morals and so, Sir, every person who is to be nominated by the Government to discharge duties of a public nature must have a private life which is beyond cavil. If it is so essential in general and in relation to public life, it is even more essential when we think of these persons in the context of religious and charitable institutions. After all it is not a case of election wherein the Government might say : ' What can we do; he has managed to get himself elected by his immoral or other means? ' It is a case of nomination and I submit that it is a case in which the Government must exercise the greatest amount of care to see that only persons having a private life beyond reproach alone is to be nominated."

SRI R. V. SWAMINATHAN :—" Who is going to second this amendment? "

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—" All those who care for morality will second and support the amendment."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is the one occasion hon. Mr. Viswanatham has proved he can talk as much as if not more, upon morality than hon. Members Mr. Kosalam and Mr. Swaminathan. That is what I like about it. Their anxiety for the purity of those institutions and the purity of life of the people managing them and their insistence upon purity of life is something which was certainly amazing; but after hearing Mr. Viswanatham, I felt that, that Sri Kosalam and others must get themselves qualified for being appointed to the Area Committee under this sub-clause. (Laughter.) This is a simple proposition that has been put before the House. It is not a difficult test."

[Sri K. Bhashyam] [20th November 1950]

may be said: How are we to go into these things; how is it possible to dive into the lives of people. He said that even the devils cannot dive deep enough to find what man is thinking. I may point out that this does not cover occasional lapses from morality and that is not taken into account at all. I want that aspect of the amendment to be considered by the Hon. Minister and also those sitting behind him. The person complained against must be living with a concubine or a prostitute. I want to impress upon the Hon. Minister the practicability of enforcing this provision and it may well be enforced because we are all anxious for the purity of the lives entrusted with the administration of the temples and of persons around."

SRI R. V. SWAMINATHAN :—" Mr. Speaker, Sir, I never thought of speaking on this amendment. I thought that hon. Mr. Viswanathan was not serious in moving the amendment and I thought there may not be any seconder to his motion. But now, Sir, even Mr. Bhashyam has come forward to second this amendment. I think he is not also serious when he made his remarks and also dragged my name and of my hon. Friend Mr. Kosalram. He said that hon. Mr. Kosalram and I must qualify ourselves to be members of these Area Committees. I am one of those who believe in the moral character of individuals and particularly so when a person wants to become a member of the Area Committee, not only that but for the Legislature and all walks of public life. The hon. Mr. Bhashyam knows that hon. Mr. Kosalram and I am not certainly aspiring to get qualified for an Area Committee membership as we want to get ourselves qualified as matadhipathis and that is our ambition and that has been expressed even at the Select Committee Stage. That is the ambition if the chance comes to us. I need not say that I oppose this amendment. I entirely agree with the sentiments expressed by the mover and the seconder; anyhow they are not serious and that is what I feel."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" I am quite serious, Sir, when I seconded the amendment."

MR. SPEAKER :—" The hon. Member is not quite serious in saying that hon. Mr. Bhashyam was not serious in seconding the amendment."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" Mr. Speaker, Sir, may I contradict my hon. Friend Mr. Swaminathan; in fact, Sir, hon. Mr. Bhashyam has never been so serious as he had been in this case. I feel, Sir, he said in joke that those who cared for morality will not oppose this amendment. Even at the risk of being dubbed as not caring for morality, I do oppose this amendment. The clause relates to disqualification by insolvency. I do not particularly see any connection between insolvency and concubinage and prostitution except perhaps that one will lead to the other and insolvency will be the result. I entirely see the dictum that persons nominated for this purposes must be above reproach and pure as far as human judgment goes. But the question is: Are we to shut out people who have reformed? Supposing 25 years ago, a man lived with a prostitute and he reforms; is such a man to be shut out? The wording of the amendment proposed by my hon. Friend is: 'or is proved to have been living in the company of a concubine or a prostitute'. The wording includes all that. That is how I look at it with my knowledge of grammar. Apart from that, Sir, I do not think anybody lives in the company of prostitutes. He may go to a prostitute and he may not be living in the company of a prostitute for ever. Also, Sir, going to a prostitute occasionally is not covered by this and I do not know what Mr. Viswanathan means when he suggests the words 'living in the company of prostitutes' to be used. Therefore, Sir, the amendment is not practicable and I oppose it."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—" Mr. Speaker, Sir, I seriously refute the argument of the Hon. Minister. As for grammar, I respectfully submit, Sir, that his grammar is not correct. It does not relate to things which happened 20 years ago as the Hon. Minister explained."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" It does."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—" It does not; shall I show him the relevant articles of Nesfield's? It refers to a thing that happened not in the past, not at the time of nomination but we come to a stage when he is nominated and is already there and during the course of the discharge of his duties, having a comfortable seat, with somebody to attend upon him in which he can have an easy life leading to compromising situations. It is the intention that only such people should be disqualified and it has no reference to things that happened twenty years ago. The words are 'proved to have been living'. Therefore, I submit, Sir, the first argument of the Hon. Minister is wrong."

"Regarding the second point, that this is not a thing which will be proved and there will be lot of proof of it as hundreds of people in the area concerned will know it and be talking about it when a person in charge of a temple is misbehaving. If the Government think that such a person can be continued in his office, then woe to the institution over which he has to exercise authority. I do not think we can have purity or improve the moral tone of our religious life in this country, if we leave things like this. Regarding the wording employed, if he finds a better wording for the purposes I have explained, I never object to his making use of them for embodying the sentiments I have expressed. He agrees that they must be above moral reproach. So let him accept my amendment; or, if he does not like it, let him have any other suitable amendment. It is not correct to say, as was said by hon. Sri R. V. Swaminathan, that I would not have a seconder. I submit that I would have crores of people living in the province to support me; I would have four crores ninety-nine lakhs ninety-nine thousand and nine hundred and ninety-nine persons who will support me. (Laughter.) For nobody wants a person who is proved to have been living in the company of a concubine or a prostitute to be in charge of these institutions."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The question is—
'in sub-clause (3) (b), add at the end the words, "or is proved to have been living in the company of a concubine or a prostitute".'

The motion was lost.

Sub-clause (15) (3) (e).

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move—

'That in clause 15 (3) (e), for the words "if he is sentenced", substitute "if he has been sentenced".'

The amendment was put and carried.

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move—

'That in sub-clause (3) (e) in line 3, after the words "other than", insert the words "a political offence or".'

Sir, this is a simple amendment. The words 'political offence' can be there. For if a person has been imprisoned for a political offence not involving moral turpitude, that should not operate as a disqualification for his appointment. This thing obtains in the District Municipalities Act, the Local Boards Act and the City Municipal Act. Therefore, I submit, Government having a particular policy for a long time, this amendment of mine may be adopted."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Sir, I heartily second the amendment. For this is in conformity with what obtains in other statutes. So this amendment is only in line with the wording of the other statutes. Therefore it may be accepted by Government."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, I do not think this amendment is necessary in view of the fact that the last sentence in that clause provides for it. For what does it say; it says—

'Provided that the Government may direct that such sentence shall not operate as a disqualification.'

So in every case, where the conviction is for a political offence not involving moral turpitude, Government may declare it not to be a disqualification. So I oppose the amendment."

< 20th November 1950]

MR. SPEAKER:—"The question is—

'That in sub-clause 3 (e) in line 3, after the words "other than", insert the words "a political offence or".'

The motion was lost.

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move—

'That in sub-clause (3) (e), at the end, delete the words "provided that the Government may direct that such sentence shall not operate as a disqualification".'

Sir, we have been speaking so much of morality throughout from the very beginning of the discussion of this Bill and we have been discussing moral values of persons who are to occupy positions as heads of maths or positions of power over these institutions, that I thought it necessary to move this amendment. There are two sets of qualifications given, one on the positive side and the other on the negative side. One set deals with the qualifications and the other set deals with the disqualifications. Many members of this House moved that certain qualifications should be laid down for members of area committees. But Government rejected them by arguing that suppose they were not able to secure lawyers, or I.C.S. officers have not passed laws what were they to do. And so all those amendments were voted down. Now we are having a series of disqualifications laid down for those positions, namely, if a person does not profess Hindu religion, if he has been adjudicated an insolvent, if he is of unsound mind, a deaf-mute or suffering from contagious leprosy, if he is a trustee, or an office-holder or servant attached to a temple or specific endowment, if he has been sentenced for a criminal offence involving moral turpitude and so on. Now, coming to the last point, I do not see why Government should reserve with them power to exempt any person who has been sentenced for a criminal offence guilty of moral turpitude. It is hardly fair or just that such a person should have control over religious institutions. Apart from this fact, such a provision is likely to be misused in the actual exercise of it. I want Government to look at the morality of retaining such a proviso. The Government cannot say that they cannot find a better person, surely, they will exempt one such and appoint him. In the very sub-clause they have the words, 'such sentence not having been cancelled or reduced to a period of six months or less, or the offence not having been pardoned.' So, Sir, I am of opinion such an exemption is very heinous. I do not really want that such a person convicted for a criminal offence involving moral turpitude should even be allowed to occupy a post of responsibility."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, I heartily second this amendment. I can understand Government exempting a person committed to prison for a political offence not involving moral turpitude. Sir, our aim in this legislation is to bring these institutions to a high moral level. Here in this sub-clause, in the first part, the Government say, that if a person is guilty of an offence not involving moral turpitude and has been convicted he should be disqualified. But at the same time, in the second part, it says Government may direct that such sentence shall not operate as a disqualification. I submit that it is wrong for the Government to ask for power to exempt such persons. Surely such persons should be the last persons who can aspire to positions of trust and responsibility."

SRI R. V. SWAMINATHAN :—" Sir, I have not understood what hon. Mr. Viswanatham wants."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—" Shall I turn to his side and speak? " (Laughter.)

SRI R. V. SWAMINATHAN :—" Hon. Mr. Viswanatham wanted to introduce the words 'political offence' after the words 'other than.' But the Hon. Minister said that his point is covered by the proviso, his amendment was not accepted. So this proviso is necessary. Now, hon. Mr. Viswanatham seconds this amendment; and I am not able to understand him. Hon. Mr. Viswanatham wants that if a man has been convicted for breach of trust or for swindling, he should not be nominated by Government. I agree. But suppose a man was convicted for a political offence fifteen years or twenty years ago or for a minor offence, and he is proved now to be a respectable man in the village, and nobody has any objection to have him as a trustee, what is wrong in having such a person. So, that is why this proviso is necessary. So I oppose the amendment."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" Sir, I oppose the amendment. That proviso is necessary to enable Government to give exemption. Apart from the argument of Mr. Gopalaswami, I wish to tell him that everything in this clause turns on the point of morality. That is specifically mentioned in the clause. For, mark the words 'any offence other than an offence not involving moral turpitude.' So it is only offences involving moral turpitude that are sought to be not exempted. Apart from that, Sir, such a saving clause is necessary. For, a man may have been convicted for a technical offence. Should not such a case be exempted. There may be similar cases, and so, it is necessary to have the proviso."

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI :—" Sir, I am unable to agree with the Hon. Minister for the simple reason that the language in the clause speaks only of an offence under which a person is convicted not involving moral turpitude only. Therefore the conviction under any other offence bars a man from appointment. A political offence is one that does not involve moral turpitude. So what is the purpose of this proviso at the end of the clause but to enable Government to exempt those who are guilty of offences involving moral turpitude."

20th November 1950]

MR. W. J. FERNANDEZ :—" You are wrong! "

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI :—" I shall read the relevant portion of the clause. It runs thus—

'Such sentence not having been cancelled or reduced to a period of six months or less, or the offence not having been pardoned, provided that the Government may direct that such sentence shall not operate as a disqualification.'

'Therefore the conviction applies only to cases not involving moral turpitude. So, it is with regard to the other sort of cases that Government seek to ask for power to give exemption. So I press my amendment.'

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" I have nothing to say."

MR. SPEAKER :—" The question is—

'in sub-clause (3) (e), at the end, delete the words " provided that the Government may direct that such sentence shall not operate as a disqualification " . '

The motion was lost.

MR. SPEAKER :—" Mr. Raghavayya is not in his place to move the amendment he has given notice of."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—" Cannot hon. Mr. Bhashyam move his amendment? "

MR. SPEAKER :—" No."

Sub-clause (15) (3) (f).

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI :—" Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move—

'in sub-clause (3) add a new sub-clause (f), viz., " (f) if it is proved that he has no faith in the religion he professes " . '

In doing so, I want to say that by this amendment I want to add one more disqualification for a person to be appointed as a member of the area committee. The reasons are only from experience. We now see that there are several persons who though they profess Hindu religion have lost their faith in Hindu religion; because a Hindu is born and not made. Now, if the clause is allowed to stand as it is, it is quite possible that such person would be appointed as members of area committees. As was pointed by Sri Vedaratnam Pillai yesterday, it is seen that Hindus appointed as officers under the Act are seen entering temples without removing their boots and hats or smoking cigarettes. It is to such people that the care and management of temples would be entrusted if my amendment is not adopted. As pointed out by the Government yesterday, we want to maintain the purity of temples. So, Sir, I submit though a person may profess to be a Hindu he may not have faith in Hinduism, and I want such people should not be appointed under this Bill."

[20th November 1950]

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—" Sir, I second the amendment. I want practice and profession should have the same place in public life." (Laughter.)

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" Sir, practice and profession should be the same, I submit; but it is difficult to find out. Even the devil does not know the mind of man." (Laughter.)

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—" Why do you always quote the devil?" (Laughter.)

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" I find more devil only here! Sir, sub-clause (3) (a) covers the object of hon. Mr. Gopalaswami's amendment. It says—

'If he does not profess the Hindu religion.'

A man cannot profess Hindu religion unless he has faith in it."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—" The contrary is correct."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" As regards the question of smoking cigarette, having hat and boots on and similar things, cannot a person have faith in Hindu religion, in spite of all these things. What is the difference between smoking and snuffing and chewing tobacco. I have seen hard, devoted Hindus chewing while doing puja in temples. So that these members, if they chew tobacco or use snuff, they need not cease to be Hindus. There are very many good people who have faith in Hindu religion in spite of their habit to chew tobacco and use snuff. If a person is in the habit of smoking, snuffing or chewing tobacco, it cannot be said that he has no reverence for God. Addiction to these habits should not be confused with faith in religion. What is faith in Hindu religion? Even among ultra-Hindus, are there not astikas and nastikas? Rishi Charvaka was a Hindu and he was a rishi who said that there was nothing like God."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" If he said that, he could not be appointed to the area committee."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" Charvaka was a Hindu and he was certainly entitled to membership of an area committee. Faith in religion cannot be measured by any instrument. Therefore the words 'if he does not profess the Hindu religion' are quite enough."

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI :—" If he is content with the disqualification proposed in sub-clause (3) (a), why should he not make it more explicit?"

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" The amendment does not make it more explicit; it only confuses."

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI :—" If the Government think that it is enough if the person professes one thing and practises another thing, I do not see any useful purpose in trying to convince the Hon. Minister."

20th November 1950]

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" I have nothing to say."

MR. SPEAKER :—" The question is—

'In sub-clause (3), add a new sub-clause (f), viz., "(f) if it is proved that he has no faith in the religion he professes".'

The amendment was lost.

The House rose to meet again at 2-30 p.m.

(After lunch—2-30 p.m.)

Sub-clause (15) (5) (b).

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—" Sir, I move—

'In sub-clause (5) (b), for the word "Government", substitute the words "Chairman of the Area Committee having jurisdiction".'

I submit that the Government are out of the picture so far as the internal working of the area committees is concerned. This does not relate to the overall control by Government. This relates more or less to the business procedure of area committees. Therefore I submit that it will be quite right if the resignation is handed over to the Chairman of the Area Committee having jurisdiction."

SRI K. R. KARANTH :—" I second the amendment."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" The appointing authority is the Government and it is only right that the resignation should go to the appointing authority. It is usual to vest the power of dismissal or acceptance of resignation in the appointing authority."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—" I am pressing the amendment, because it involves a good principle. It is a committee with a Chairman provided by the Government. Should resignation of membership of the committee be sent to the Government at Madras? I think it is too much."

MR. SPEAKER :—" The question is—

'In sub-clause (5) (b), for the word "Government" substitute the words "Chairman of the Area Committee having jurisdiction".'

The amendment was lost.

Clause 15 as amended was put and carried.

[20th November 1950]

Clause 16.

MR. SPEAKER :—" The motion is—

' That clause 16 do stand part of the Bill.' "

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—" Sir, I move—

' For sub-clause (1), substitute the following :—

" The area committee shall elect its own chairman to preside over its meetings.' "

It is necessary to have a chairman elected by the committee and that is why I move the amendment."

SRI K. R. KARANTH :—" I second the amendment."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" The Assistant Commissioner's main duty is to deal with area committees. All the functions that were allotted to the Assistant Commissioner before are now proposed to be given to the area committee. If the Assistant Commissioner is not to be the chairman of the committee, he has no work at all. I think he must be associated with the committee. The sub-clause must remain as it is according to the scheme of the Bill."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—" I am not able to follow the reason. The Hon. Minister said that if the Assistant Commissioner did not preside over the meetings of the area committee, he had no work at all. Is that the scheme of this Bill? We have been following the provisions. The Assistant Commissioner was there before the area committees took their birth in the Select Committee. The Assistant Commissioner has many other duties. When the Government provide for a committee and they themselves nominate its members, it is but right that it should be allowed to elect its own chairman. I do not think the Hon. Minister need press his objection."

MR. SPEAKER :—" The question is—

' For sub-clause (1), substitute the following :—

" The area committee shall elect its own chairman to preside over its meetings.' "

The amendment was lost.

Clause 16 was put and carried.

Clause 17.

MR. SPEAKER :—" The motion is—

' That clause 17 do stand part of the Bill.' "

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—" Sir, I move—

' After the words " may make rules " insert the words " after previous publication " .'

20th November 1950] [Sri T. Viswanatham]

The addition of the words ' after previous publication ' seems necessary because the public will have an opportunity for raising any objection that they may have to the proposed rules. Otherwise, the Government may make rules without previous publication."

SRI K. R. KARANTH :—" I second the amendment."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" Under clause 100 (3), the power to make rules shall be subject to the condition of previous publication."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—" Then I withdraw the amendment."

The amendment was, by leave, withdrawn.

Clause 17 was put and carried.

Clause 18.

MR. SPEAKER :—" The motion is—

' That clause 18 do stand part of the Bill.' "

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—" The amendments are coming in such quick succession that I am not able to follow."

MR. SPEAKER :—" If possible we will sit to-day till 7 o'clock or at least till 6 o'clock."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—" Then we will drop some amendments. That is why I have not moved some amendments. I move—

(i) delete the words " of a defect in the Constitution or on the ground " .

(ii) substitute " is alleged to be disqualified " for " was disqualified " in lines 3 and 4.

(iii) substitute " has " for " had " in line 4.

If there is a defect in the constitution of an Area Committee, the acts of such a committee must be made invalid. That is the reason why I move the first part of my amendment.

" The second and third parts are for improving the grammar. Generally my grammar does not appeal to the Hon. Minister. If it appeals to him in this case, let him accept them."

SRI K. R. KARANTH :—" I second the amendment."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" Identical language is used in the Madras District Municipalities Act and no difficulty has been experienced with reference to that Act. So the language may remain as it is."

MR. SPEAKER :—" The question is—

(i) delete the words " of a defect in the Constitution or on the ground " .

[Mr. Speaker] [20th November 1950]

(ii) substitute "is alleged to be disqualified" for "was disqualified" in lines 3 and 4.

(iii) substitute "has" for "had" in line 4."

The amendment was lost.

Clause 18 was put and carried.

Clause 19.

MR. SPEAKER:—"The motion is—

'That clause 19 do stand part of the Bill.'"

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, I move—

'After the words "section 14", insert the words "a new Area Committee shall be constituted within six months of abolition and till then" and omit the words "until it is reconstituted".'

There appears to be some lacuna in the clause. When an Area Committee is abolished, a time-limit for its reconstitution should be fixed. Sri Karanth also gave notice of a similar amendment to clause 14."

SRI K. R. KARANTH:—"I second the amendment."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"I accept the amendment."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The question is—

The amendment was carried.

Clause 19 as amended was put and carried.

Clause 20.

MR. SPEAKER:—"The motion is—

'That clause 20 do stand part of the Bill.'"

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, the object underlying the second part of my amendment to sub-clauses (2) and (3) is the same. Therefore I propose to move them together. I move—

'In sub-clause (2), after the words "reconsideration" insert the words "in the interests of satisfying legal requirements".'

In sub-clause (3) (b) and (c) for the words "as the case may be" substitute the words "in the interests of satisfying legal requirements".'

The Commissioner is given the power to modify, annul or reverse the decision or order. This is an overall power and there must be some restriction upon its exercise. I want that the modification or annulment of the decision or order or for remitting it for reconsideration should be confined only to the interests of satisfying the legal requirements, and not for any other purpose."

20th November 1950] [Sri T. Viswanatham]

SRI K. R. KARANTH:—"I second the amendment."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"The revision powers of the Commissioner should not be restricted in any way."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The question is—

'In sub-clause (2), after the word "reconsideration" insert the words "in the interests of satisfying legal requirements".'

In sub-clause (3) (b) and (c) for the words "as the case may be" substitute the words "in the interests of satisfying legal requirements".'

The amendment was lost.

Clause 20 was put and carried.

Clause 21.

MR. SPEAKER:—"The motion is—

'That clause 21 do stand part of the Bill.'"

* SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, I move—

'Delete the clause.'

Under this clause, the Commissioner is vested with an Aurangzeb's power. That is not really conducive to good administration, and I submit that he should not be vested with such vast powers. The power should be confined to specific purposes. The powers vested by clause 20 are enough. This may be called Henry VIII provision."

SRI K. R. KARANTH:—"I second the amendment."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"The powers of this 'Henry VIII' clause must be given to the Commissioner. We have made provision in the proviso that in cases falling under clause (a), the Commissioner shall first fix a period and only when the Area Committee does not exercise the power or perform the duty within that period that the Commissioner shall exercise the right conferred on him.

"As regards transfer of pending proceedings to another Deputy or Assistant Commissioner, he must have the power."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Perhaps I have not made myself clear. I said that the powers conferred by clause 20 were enough. Under sub-clause (1) of that clause, the Commissioner can call for and examine records. Under sub-clause (2), he can modify the decision or order or remit it for reconsideration.

"Sir, sub-clause (3) (a) of clause 20 states that the Commissioner, if he thinks fit, may remit the matter together with his observations in regard thereto to the committee or trustee for reconsideration of the decision or order and report to the Commissioner within a time to be specified by him, and on receipt of such report, it is open to the Commissioner to modify, annul or reverse the decision or order or decision as revised after such reconsideration, as the case may be.

"Under sub-clause (5) of the same clause, the Commissioner may stay the execution of any decision or order of the Area Committee. All these powers are already given under clause 20 and these are wide enough. Then, why should some more general powers be given to the Commissioner under clause 21? I think, Sir, these powers are too many and absolutely unnecessary. With these powers the Commissioner can create any amount of chaos and can do anything and everything in the administration of these religious endowments, from north to south, according to the pressure exerted by any political group. I submit, Sir, that no officer in such a responsible position should be entrusted with such wide powers and put in such an embarrassing position."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not think it is possible to delete sub-clause (2), because the Commissioner is the supreme authority and he can certainly exercise the powers and discharge the duties of the Deputy Commissioner or Assistant Commissioner, if he is satisfied that they had failed to do so. I think, Sir, that the deletion of the whole clause 21 is something which is impossible, because such powers should be given to the Commissioner for the proper discharge of his duty."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—"If the Hon. Minister will agree to delete sub-clauses (1) and (3), I shall be satisfied, Sir."

MR. SPEAKER :—"The question is—

'Delete clause 21.'

The amendment was lost.

Clause 21 was put and carried.

Clause 22.

MR. SPEAKER :—"The motion is—

'That clause 22 do stand part of the Bill.'

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I move—

'For clause 22, substitute the following clause :—

"22. Subject to the control of the Government and the provisions of this Act, the administration of all religious endowments shall be subject to the general superintendence and control of the Commissioner; and such superintendence and control shall include the power to pass any orders which may be deemed necessary to ensure that such endowments are properly administered and that their income is duly appropriated for the purposes for which they were founded or exist."

20th November 1950] [Sri K. Madhava Menon]

"Sir, the Select Committee did not make any change in the clause as it was in the original Bill and it reads as follows :—

"22. Subject to the control of the Government and the provisions of this Act, it shall be the duty of the Commissioner to see to the proper management of the affairs of religious institutions and he may do all things which are reasonable and necessary to ensure that religious institutions and endowments are properly administered and that their income is duly appropriated for the purposes for which they were founded or exist."

"It was suggested to us that the words 'It shall be the duty of the Commissioner to see to the proper management of the affairs of the religious institutions' might offend the provisions of Article 26 of the Constitution and so a slight change was made by the substitution of the following words in their place :—

'Subject to the control of the Government and the provisions of this Act, the administration of all religious endowments shall be subject to the general superintendence and control of the Commissioner.'

And instead of the words 'he may do all things which are reasonable and necessary to ensure that religious institutions and endowments are properly administered and their income is duly appropriated for the purposes for which they are founded or exist', we have substituted the following words :—

'And such superintendence and control shall include the power to pass any orders which may be deemed necessary to ensure that such endowments are properly administered and that their income is duly appropriated for the purposes for which they were founded or exist.'

"That is to say, the powers of superintendence and control shall be only for the administration of the income of these religious institutions and to see that they are properly appropriated and not for the actual detailed management of the institutions themselves. Therefore the only change we have effected is that we have made the Commissioner responsible for the proper administration of the income of the institution and not the carrying on of their daily functions."

MR. SPEAKER :—"I suggest that the hon. Sri Viswanatham instead of moving his amendment for the deletion of the clause, may oppose this amendment."

SRI K. R. KARANTH :—"I suppose, Sir, that those who are opposed to the revised clause 22 can also speak on it."

MR. SPEAKER :—"Yes."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, I oppose the amendment for very good reasons. The Hon. Minister has been good enough to admit that the original wording of the clause was deemed to be a little too wide, and that it offended certain articles of the Constitution. It is a very good sentiment, no doubt, Sir. But I submit, Sir, that the mere changing of the language of the clause by itself does not make much difference, because the real intention of the Government behind this amendment has not very much changed. Though the language of the clause has been changed to remove the possibility of offending the Constitution, the real intention has not been altered. Sir, both myself and the Government are anxious to exercise some control as pater patriae over these religious institutions. With these objects in view, let us analyse the language of the clause which the Government now propose to substitute and see how far it satisfies our requirements. Article 26 of the Constitution says—

[Sri T. Viswanatham] [20th November 1950]

‘Subject to public order, morality and health, every religious denomination or any section thereof shall have the right—

(a) to establish and maintain institutions for religious and charitable purposes;

(b) to manage its own affairs in matters of religion;

(c) to own and acquire movable and immovable property; and

(d) to administer such property in accordance with law.’

“Sir, you will see that this article gives the religious denomination certain powers. The Constitution-makers were aware that after the attainment of independence, the State Government and the Union Government have sovereign powers to legislate on whatever subjects they like. But at the same time they thought it necessary to reserve certain matters which, even after the attainment of independence, the sovereign Legislatures should not touch and therefore conferred certain rights on the citizens to do certain things without any interference or encroachment by the State or by the State Legislatures and they are what are known as fundamental rights. They have further laid down once for all, that whatever may be the wisdom of the future Legislatures, they should not touch or abridge these powers, unless and until the Constitution itself is amended in an appropriate way. One of such rights granted by the Constitution is the right to maintain, manage and administer the affairs of religious institutions under Article 26 by the religious denominations. It may appear, Sir, that we are over-stating and over-emphasizing the importance of these fundamental rights by repeating them every time and whenever we like. But unfortunately in this Bill so many provisions have been introduced entrenching upon these fundamental rights and that is why we have, much against our will, to refer to these fundamental rights over and over again. I would, therefore, crave your kind indulgence, Sir, in allowing me to deal with this matter in some detail and I hope the House will bear with me for a while and follow the trend of my argument.

“Sir, what are these fundamental rights which are reserved to these religious denominations under Article 26 of the Constitution? The first is the right to establish and maintain institutions for religious and charitable purposes. That is to say the maintenance of these religious institutions is the sole right of the religious denominations. There may be various practical difficulties in the matter of the maintenance and establishment of these institutions for a secular Government and that is why the framers of the Constitution have thought it right to leave them to the religious denominations and not to the Government or the Legislature to deal with them and maintain them as they like.

“The second sub-clause of the article says that these religious denominations have the right to manage their own affairs in matters of religion and the third sub-clause says that they can own and acquire movable and immovable property and the fourth gives them the right to administer such property in accordance with law. If such fundamental rights are given to the religious denominations, it means that others shall not exercise such rights. Even the Government cannot take over the management of these institutions, which were established by the religious denominations, because, if they do so, they would be entrenching upon the fundamental rights conferred by the Constitution. Nor can the Legislature do anything which would interfere with these fundamental rights.

“Therefore we must understand the exact scope of these three fundamental rights reserved for the religious denominations in the matter of the establishment and maintenance of religious institutions, in the matter of the management of their own religious affairs and thirdly in the matter of the administration of such property and then proceed to legislate. Any legislation which either directly or indirectly abridges any of these rights will be invalid, and ultra vires of the provisions of the Constitution. That is a very simple proposition and there is no doubt about it. But these words ‘management, maintenance and administration’ being words of common usage, seemed to have created some confusion in the minds of the draftsmen of this Bill and that is why they have framed this clause in such a manner as to give the Government and their officers the very same powers as are reserved for the religious denominations by the Constitution. Here in the revised clause 22, you will find the words ‘Subject to the control of the Government and the provisions of this Act, the administration of all religious endowments shall be subject to the general superintendence and control of the Commissioner’. The very word ‘administration’ has been used both in this clause and in Article 26 of the Constitution. The new clause further says, ‘that such superintendence and control shall include the power to pass any orders which may be deemed necessary to ensure that such endowments are properly administered and that their income is duly administered for the purpose for which they were founded or exist’. Therefore, what is the scope and the extent of the powers sought to be taken by the Government by means of this legislation? They are, the powers to pass orders for the proper maintenance, for the good management and for the good administration of the properties of the religious institutions. Sir, no doubt, these are laudable objects and no doubt the Government are actuated by laudable motives in bringing forward a legislation like this, in order to see that the funds and properties of the religious institutions are properly administered and accounted for. But the Constitution says that however laudable may be the object of the State, they should not interfere or try to abridge the rights reserved for these religious denominations. Therefore I do not question the motives or the intentions of the Government, but I only question their propriety in seeking powers to take over the maintenance, management and administration of the affairs of the institutions from these religious denominations, by this revised clause 22. Final orders may vest in the Government. In some cases the party is given the right of appeal. But in several cases the parties are not given that right. I submit that whatever is reserved for the religious denomination shall not be provided for to be administered or executed by the Government or their officers. The Government may say 'what is the law by which we can compel those institutions'. They may ask 'if you say that the fundamental rights come in the way of the Government doing anything, what are the Government here for?' They may also ask 'how do you ask the religious denomination to manage its affairs or its property?' It is not a strange feature for such a question to arise. In this country not only now, but for ages and ages, these institutions have been under the control of the general laws. Only general laws have been made regarding the management of properties of these religious denominations. It is only such laws as will apply to everybody regarding the management, administration and enjoyment of properties and the acquisition and disposal of properties, that were made applicable to the religious denominations. The religious denominations did not have one Transfer of Property Act and the rest had another Transfer of Property Act. Religious institutions will have to pay the same amount of court fees if they have to go to the court just as anybody else will have to pay the court fees. That is the meaning of the phrase 'in accordance with law'. The religious denominations cannot step on another's property nor slander nor commit libel against any person, just as anybody else for that matter is prevented from doing so. The religious denomination cannot enjoy, and likewise others cannot enjoy, any property so as to injure another man's property. That is what it means when we say 'and administer it in accordance with law'. It does not mean the Endowments Act as the law, but it means the Bill which we now discuss and by which we propose to take over the administration and acquisition or disposal of the immovable properties belonging to the various institutions. I submit, therefore, that this is absolutely ultra vires of the Legislature notwithstanding the fact that the Hon. the Minister was good enough to change the language of the clause. I would point out that his intentions are not carried out in the revised draft. The revised draft contains language which will mean the taking over of the administration of the religious denominations into the hands of the Government and their officers, which are specifically reserved to the religious denomination under the Constitution. I oppose this clause, Sir."

[Sri T. Viswanatham] [20th November 1950]

20th November 1950]

SRI K. R. KARANTH :—“ Mr. Speaker, Sir, if I take a little time of this House, it is because I feel that this legislation which we are passing after so much cost and delay in this House is going to be declared ultra vires by the courts of law. I can quite understand that any matadhipathi or temple trustee should not misappropriate, and that if he misappropriates, he should be subject to the decision of a court or in grave cases conviction by a criminal court. I shall not have the least compunction if he is punished, or sent out of his office, or if anything else happens to him. But this sort of interference at every stage by the officers is opposed to the Fundamental Rights specified in the Constitution. A few samples of the orders passed by the officers, I shall place before the House which will show how they are negating these Fundamental Rights given under the Constitution, and how this legislation is going to be declared ultra vires of this legislature. By virtue of this clause, namely, general superintendence, there will be interference in the smallest things also. I shall read out a few orders passed by this Board in a few cases to show how they have understood the Act, and how in the last twenty years they have been treating certain heads of institutions, for whom people have great respect. Let us take the instance of maths. There are ample provisions made in clause 57 for the removal of trustees by suits where there is misappropriation, and where a trustee is of unsound mind and so on. Nobody will desire that they should be there. Clause 59 says that their scale of expenditure in maths can be fixed, though I am bound to say that the power taken here is a little too much. In the same clause it is stated that it should be subject to local usage of the institution. Under the guise of fixing the scale of expenditure, the officer here in Madras has got the right to say 'you shall do this and you shall not do that'. From morning till evening, he can go on controlling and humiliating any matadhipathi. This is wrong. I would appeal to hon. Members not to think of a few cases where people have misbehaved. Nobody should shut his eyes to such cases. Some Samians may be immoral and some may be bad. If the bulk of them are bad, all that I can say is that it is a disgrace to Hindu society which we represent. But the bulk of them are good people and I would request this House to say whether they want these officers sitting in Madras to go on dictating to them from morning till evening, 'you shall not do this or that'. I shall give a few examples now. There is no use of my hon. Friends Opposite shaking their heads to say, 'we do not want to do that'. I will show them what has been done, what is being done, and what is going to be done by these officers. Bad people may be punished. But do the Government want a matadhipathi to come here with folded hands and petition before the officers? Take for example the math at Udipi. For years and years together there are certain usages observed from morning till evening during the pariyayam. There is a Samiar who is going on with the pariyayam this year. I want to know whether anyone in this House can raise his hand and say that that man is immoral or bad. There may be bad people. I do not deny that. But we must see how people are going to respect the law which we are now passing. Is the matadhipathi to be told what kind of payasam he should have on a Friday morning? My hon. Friends want to make a distinction between religion and secular matters when the highest authority in this country at one time, in the Privy Council in the case in 41 Madras 296, Lord Shaw stated that it was not possible to divide the two so easily. It is very easy to put in provisions saying what are religious matters and what are secular matters. In Hindu religion much of it is as religious as it is secular. The way in which food is prepared and given to so many people is as much religious as it is secular. For the officers it is a secular matter or a rationing matter. But people who have faith take it as a religious matter. I may not have as much faith in it as others, but what I say is that the various ceremonies done, the food that is supplied to people, and the aratis that are performed are as much secular as they are religious. The arati is no matter of merely cotton wick and oil. We cannot separate things like that. Under clause 59, the trustee may prepare a dittam. But the Commissioner or his assistants may say 'no; you alter the dittam; I do not like it'. Do the Government want the matadhipathis to be treated like that? All this time of the House which we spend on passing this Bill will become a waste, as I feel that this legislation will be declared ultra vires. I can use my little brain and say that. Here, Sir, in their wisdom the Constitution makers have stated in Article 25, 'Subject to public order, morality and health. . .'. That means to say that if people misappropriate, by all means provide a law under which they could be brought to book. If Government want to audit their books and see whether there is misappropriation, I have not the least objection. Let them do it. But they cannot, under the guise of fixing dittam, interfere from morning till night by passing orders saying, 'you do this and not that'. Under clause 61, a manager can be appointed directly from here. Under clause 63, schemes can be framed. Even the courts have no power to stay the schemes. (I do not know if any latest amendments of Government are sought to be made to this clause.) But as the clause stands, I see that civil courts have no power to stay the schemes. Then, Sir, there is clause 68 dealing with notifications of institutions. By introducing such clauses, the Government are preventing people from going to the court. This Government, Sir, are making the position impossible for honest men. Any sort of orders will be passed by the officers. I have copies with me of a few orders. One of them is with reference to pisciculture. I will cite those orders to show in what way the officers have been exercising the provisions in the Act, are exercising now, and will exercise hereafter without reference to personalities and their position. They interfere even in smallest matters. This is a circular, dated 22nd September 1950. It says, 'in your tanks you better put new fish and go on auctioning the fish you rear in it'. Pisciculture may be good. There is the Fisheries department, I know. But I ask whether it is proper for the President of the Hindu Religious Endowments Board to direct Samians of maths in Udipi, who are vegetarians, to put new fish in tanks and auction the fish? Do the Government respect the sentiments of these Samians? Do the Government want this sort of power to be exercised by their officers? My hon. Friends are all well-intentioned here. They think that nothing like that will be done. But in the name of general superintendence, I say several things have been done and will be done also. Sir, a certain dittam may pertain to the use of jaggery. Hon. Members know that jaggery cannot now be had easily. According to this Bill, if the religious institutions buy jaggery at one anna more than the price stipulated, they will have to get the orders of the Commissioner. They cannot increase expenditure without the Commissioner's sanction. They cannot increase the charges for repairs. Then there is an order regarding raising of crotons in temples. In that math, crotons were grown. On 25th August 1947, an order was passed regarding crotons. The order is, 'they are neither useful nor necessary for services in religious institutions'. Then there is an order given to do certain things, which is very interesting. Two years ago, the Government gave out of their wisdom manure coupons to be utilized by the year to year tenants (chalgeni tenants) in my district. The Government gave them for the benefit of the cultivators and not the landlords. But here is an order issued by the Endowments Board which says, 'See that your tenants do not get them; you must get the entire coupons and you must yourself utilize them'. This is an order against the orders of the Government. Then, Sir, certain people in Madras, for example, the Sarada Vidyalaya, Thyagarayanagar, go and approach the President of the Board, for charity or donations for their institutions. At once an order is issued to all the religious institutions in the State saying, 'to such and such an authority, you are recommended to give donations'. But at the same time, for a college in Udipi recently started, and which is recognized by the Government, if the Samian gave a donation (about Rs. 1,000 I think) that constituted sufficient cause of action for framing a scheme against that math. The Government are giving grant to that college. Because he gave that donation to the college at Udipi, a notice is sent to him asking him to say 'why should not a scheme be framed for your math, because you have donated so many rupees to the college?' But an ukase goes from Madras saying, 'you give donation to the Sarada Vidyalaya, Thyagarayanagar'. There are very many interesting instances as to how the Board interferes even in small matters. One order says, 'The Board is of opinion that where there are two crops in a year and where one of the crops fails wholly or partially and the second crop is fair, the lessee is not entitled to ask for remission'. My hon. Friend, the Minister for Law, when he comes forward with the Malabar Tenancy Bill, wants all mercy for the tenant. He says, 'Give the maximum concession to the tenant'. But when it is the case of the religious endowment, it is an extraction of the worst type. The Samisars are asked to give notices to their tenants and to auction the rents every year. I put this question to my Hon. Friend, the Minister for Law who knows the conditions in my district—if the rents from the tenants, verumpattam tenants, on the land are going to be auctioned year after year to the highest bidder, is it a religious institution? Is it a Board run for the improvement of religion? The Board should help the people and keep the rents at the lowest level at which the families of poor tenants have lived on the land for generations. Math after math in Udipi is being asked by the Board to raise the rents, to auction the rents every year, and the maths are also asked, 'why do you not also take security deposits from tenants?' For not doing this, for treating the tenants leniently, notices for schemes are being given. Is it proper or fair for the Government to go on allowing their authorities to pass orders like this irrespective of the position of the people? I know recently an order was passed and sent to a Samiar of a math, saying, 'you appear before me in person or by pleader at such and such an hour'. We are bearing all this with patience, but there is a limit to it also. Unfair people, Government may punish by any means, but they should not humiliate all people. We know what some of these officers are. Some of them, every time they go to Udipi, come back with brinjals, dried coconuts and such sort of things. They use the cars of the Samisars and go from place to place. These are the kinds of people to parade morality and charity. These officers are there to see that people do not do bad things but not themselves to pocket things. They ought to set a better example to the people.

"My Hon. Friend, the Minister, sitting here has hardly an idea of the extent to which the Board is interfering with the affairs of these institutions. The Commissioner is going to be the successor of the Board. Powers similar to those of the Board are given to him. I shall give another instance. In Madras we know there are no rains. But in the West Coast our difficulty is excess of rain, sometimes 120, 150 and 200 inches of rain we have. An order is passed by the Board as follows:—

'The Board requests Trustees and Executive Authorities of maths and temples to arrange for special puja and solemn prayers every Friday for the advent of rain which has failed this year. The prayers may be continued till rains come by the grace of God.'

It may be quite good here, but in Mangalore if we are to pray for rain, it would be very bad. Here the order is to arrange for special puja and solemn prayers for the advent of rain. But if they want to spend two annás extra, they cannot spend without asking the Board. If they do not spend on this sort of puja and prayers, it is made a cause of action. The above order was passed on 4th February 1949. After six months, the Board in its wisdom says, 'There have been rains in response to the special prayers and the Board feels that there is no need to continue the special prayers any longer'. (Laughter.)

20th November 1950] [Sri K. R. Karanth]

"Another order is as follows:—

'Reports of cases of theft of jewels and valuables of religious institutions have of late begun on the increase. . . . One of the modern contrivances which would help executive authorities in the matter is the use of Tell-Tale Clocks.'

Certain manufacturers who had these clocks obviously went to the authorities of the Board. So, the names of those persons are mentioned in the order and it is advised, 'You better go to these persons. They have got tell-tale clocks. They may be the best for you. You are advised to buy one or more clocks'.

"Another order says, 'The sanction of the Board has not been obtained for undertaking "self-cultivation" of lands belonging to the math'. 'Self-cultivation' is bad English. For a time in our district as elsewhere, the people cultivate some portion of the land either with labour or themselves. Will any reasonable man ask that the sanction of the Board must be taken for this so-called self-cultivation of the lands belonging to the math? This is while 99 per cent of the lands is given to the tenants.

"Another very interesting order is this. People carry deities upon their heads. As labour has become costly, the trustees are advised to construct 'Sagadams' and use them by engaging a very few persons or a pair of bulls to drag them. Why not a diesel engine? It will be cheap and the best for the purpose. Sir, there is some sanctity for certain people in carrying deities upon their heads. But the order here which is dated 7th May 1947 says—

'It is observed that owing to the abnormal rise in prices and altered labour conditions there is a general complaint from those in the management of the temples that the servicedars refuse the work of carrying the deities unless they are paid a large increase of their wages. In view of the general trend in wages and the temper of the times, the trustees, etc., of temples are requested to consider whether it would not be advisable to construct "Sagadams" and use them by engaging a very few persons or a pair of bulls to drag them.'

"Sir, these officers are very anxious to pass orders. It appears that the executive authorities mentioned in their orders the words, 'as directed by the Board. . . .' Then another circular is issued from the Board that they should not mention in their orders the above words.

"Sir, I say all this with a little regret. People may be in office but they ought to respect those who are elsewhere. Merely because we are in office and we are running the Government, it is not proper for anyone to treat the matadhipathis and temple trustees in this manner. Similar conditions apply to the hereditary trustees. Some of them are very bad people, but it does not mean that the class of hereditary trustees consists of rascals and rogues. If it is so, we must be ashamed of our religion.

"Sir, the whole Bill as framed interferes in very little things also. I think a provision will be enough to check maladministration. For example, it may be provided that the accounts must be produced for check and audit. If anybody misappropriate the funds, he must be punished. Some provisions like these will be enough for the purpose. But as at present we see interference of every type and at every stage. By this, what is going to happen? Only rogues will thrive; if vouchers are all that are wanted, they can be easily made. But honest people will not be able to work.

"Sir, you will be pleased to note that article 25 (1) of the Constitution reads as follows:—

'Subject to public order, morality and health and to the other provisions of this Part, all persons are equally entitled to freedom of conscience and the right freely to profess, practise and propagate religion.'

Here have these people no right to do what they like provided they do not misappropriate the funds? Clause 2 (a) of that article says—

'Nothing in this article shall affect the operation of any existing law or prevent the State from making any law—

(a) regulating or restricting any economic, financial, political or other secular activity which may be associated with religious practice.'

I asked Sri Alladi Krishnaswami Ayyar who was present at the time of its passing how it came to be passed. He told me that in the Punjab and other places there were institutions which were lending money at high rates of interest and it was a secular activity. Even in our State there may be similar activities. Suppose a temple has got lands in its ownership. Then we will have the right to say that the temple authorities shall not charge unreasonable rent. General provisions can be made to control such activities. But this cannot be taken to mean that every little activity of theirs such as every offering they make and the quantity of rice they use could be separated from religion and called secular and brought under control. Article 26 of the Constitution says—

'Subject to public order, morality and health, every religious denomination or any section thereof shall have the right—

(a) to establish and maintain institutions for religious and charitable purposes;

(b) to manage its own affairs in matters of religion.'

So, the Government cannot interfere with the management. If this officer is empowered in this manner that he can have general superintendence by a simple order from Madras, he orders, 'Put the money in such and such a Bank; give this contract to so and so.' Orders are passed like that. No liberty is at all left. There are so many other provisions for filing of suits, for notifying temples and appointing managers over their heads. The Samiyars are reduced to non-entities. The managers who are appointed look only to the Board Commissioner for orders. They do not care for the Samiyar there. I know an instance recently where the agent refused to show the accounts to the Samiyar who appointed him. At once he runs up to Madras and is able to get orders in 24 hours and such a man is backed up by the Board. This is what is going on in the name of 'General superintendence'. We may spend our time in passing all these provisions. But I have no doubt whatever that the Constitution does not allow us anything more than to frame rules to see that there is no misappropriation and that proper accounts are kept but not to control every activity from morning till evening. In clause 22 of this Bill, the term 'religious institutions and endowments' might satisfy somebody's legal conscience but it is not going to satisfy those who know the law a little. I, therefore, request the Government to ponder over this matter and not simply rush these things. People will go to Court. Of course, I am not threatening anybody by saying that. But by passing this legislation, let us be reasonably certain that it will stand. The substance of the fundamental rights is that subject to general laws a person or a community can manage his or its affairs in his or its own way. This is a secular State. Therefore, the Government can make general laws. By all means make law to prevent misappropriation. But I think many of the provisions of this Bill will be invalid. Let my Friends on the Treasury Bench have the satisfaction of passing it."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, after the first-hand information which my hon. Friend, Sri Karanth, has given to the House, there is very little for me to say on the question of pinpricks which the various religious institutions are subject to in the course of administration of the properties which are left to their care. I am more concerned at the present moment with the question as to how the provisions of the proposed clause 22 can be justified or reconcile with the position which the matadhipathi occupies to-day or the rights that they enjoy under law for managing their properties. That is to say, we want to reduce these religious heads to be mere cyphers—widows with no properties but enjoying a little maintenance now and then—with perhaps a dignified name of Sami as is mentioned in communications from the Board or anywhere else. Nothing will be left to them, and that is the position to which they are reduced by this provision. Sir, I thought during the Select Committee stage that the Government had, at any rate, so far as the religious institutions were concerned, accepted the view that, where the Commissioner and the matadhipathi disagreed, they would have to come to the Government for final orders. Now the position is that clause 7 has been taken away and clause 22 is sought to be amended so that the ultimate authority, the person in whom the whole superintendence vests, is the Commissioner with the various satellites mentioned in the Bill. In the light of these changes, how will the Government, I ask, preserve the rights vesting in the heads of institutions—whatever their denominations be—to manage their properties. It is not as if we can mitigate the effects of a particular clause by simply saying at the end of the clause 'the provisions of the previous section shall not be construed as being derogatory to the provisions of article 26 of the Constitution.' I do not think that any decent Government will do so. That is my view. Whether the Government have put in a like provision or not it amounts to that. Does it really require the imprint of this Government to say so in so many words? The whole assumption seems to be that whatever is contained in the Bill is outside the scope of article 26 of the Constitution. Therefore, what I am urging upon the Government is this. In spite of the several questions raised, should we vest the ultimate management of properties in the Commissioner? Why not we go the other way round and say, 'subject to the control and powers of revision that the Government have; the management and allied affairs shall vest in the heads of the various institutions? That will be the proper way. That would be fairer than saying that the management shall vest in the Commissioner. That would be more in accord with the requirements of the Constitution. Sir, we have been fighting against the whole scheme of the Bill. We have always been saying that there is something wrong with the Bill but the Government would not listen to it. Of course they have got their own advisers (fairly competent advisers) and I do not want to quarrel with them. But for my part, I am not satisfied with many things that the Government have done. All these had really gone before the Court and were held ultra vires. I am anxious that none of the measures we pass here should be called in question. Why not we do the right thing instead of defective things in order that there may not be any controversy? The Government must be careful. They must be loyal to the Constitution. If they do that that will be the best thing. The more controversial portion of the proposed clause is '... control shall include the power to pass any orders which may be deemed necessary to ensure that such endowments are properly administered and that their income is duly appropriated for the purposes for which they were founded'. Now let us see what will happen if this position is accepted. Suppose a difference of opinion arises between the head of the institution and the Commissioner. The head of the institution may deem it necessary to do a certain thing; and the Commissioner may deem it necessary to do something other than what is suggested by the head of the institution. How are we to settle it? That is the question. Of course, the Government may say, 'we have got such powers under clause 99-A'. I know that. We know what it is. The Government always look upon their own officers as persons who really have all the wisdom in the land. I am not complaining against this theory. It must be so because they appoint as officers only those who enjoy their confidence. They cannot say, 'we have no confidence in our officers'. But what we want is the matter must come up before the Government in such a form as the persons aggrieved must have a sympathetic deal. That is all what I want to say. My hon. Friend has already said much and I do not want to elaborate it. If the words 'heads of the institutions, subject to the control of the Commissioner' are incorporated that will be more in accord with the sentiments expressed in the House and will also be fair."

SRI M. S. PATTABHIRAMIAH:—"Mr. Speaker, Sir, after listening to the speeches made by hon. Members who preceded me, I do not wish to take much of the time of the House. I oppose the amendment . . ."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Government amendment?"

SRI M. S. PATTABHIRAMIAH:—"Yes, Sir. If it is changed a little that will satisfy me and other laymen like me."

[20th November 1950] [Sri M. S. Pattabhiramiah]

According to the Fundamental Rights, this provision is objectionable, and this point has been elaborately explained by many previous speakers. The amendment reads: '... subject to the control of the Government and the provisions of this Act, the administration of all religious endowments shall be subject to the general superintendence and control of the Commissioner.' This of course means, vesting of the power in the Government themselves. This is a little better than the original position which the Government took in keeping clause 7. But what I want is a small change there. Instead of the word 'include' occurring in the next line ('such superintendence and control shall include') I want the words 'be limited only to the power to pass any orders' to be substituted. I hope the Hon. the Minister will note the change I have asked for. If this is conceded then the proposed clause will be acceptable to all. If, on the other hand, the clause stands as it is and accepted by the House, then its provisions may run counter to the Fundamental Rights as enunciated in the Constitution. I hope even those who oppose the Government amendment will support me in this change and I also hope that the Government will favourably consider this and bring in an amendment to that effect themselves."

SRI K. R. KARANTH:—"They are to be reared to be sold in auction later on. That is all what I said."

SRI K. T. KOSALRAM:—"அதைத்தான் நானும் சொல்லுகிறேன். மீன்களை குளங்களில் வளர்ப்பது குளம் சுத்தமாக்கிறது. அதைத் தவிர ஒன்று சொல்லுகிறேன். மீன் சாப்பிடுவது கேவலமென்று ஒரு சில அங்கத்தினர்கள் கருதுகிறார்கள். அதனால் ஒரு சைவன் மடாதிபதியாக இருந்தால் மடத்திற்குச் சொந்தமான குளங்களிலே மீன் வளருங்கள் என்று சொல்லு தவறு என்று யாரும் கூறமுடியாது. இன்று சுத்த சைவர்களாக இருப்பவர்கள் 100-க்கு 3 பேர்கள் கூட இருக்கமாட்டார்கள். நீதி இருப்பவர்களில் மீன் சாப்பிடுவது யாரும் இருக்கவேமாட்டார்கள்."

அதுவும் குறிப்பாக நாங்கள் இருக்கக்கூடிய ஊர்களிலெல்லாம் ஒரு வேளை மீளையே தான் சாப்பிட்டுக்கொண்டிருப்பார்கள். அந்த நிலைமையில் மீளே வளருங்கள், எலம் போடுங்கள் என்றால் மடாதிபதிகளையா செய்யப் போகிறார்கள் அதுவுமில்லை. ராஜா அவருடைய மானேஜரோ, வேலையாட்களோ செய்யப்போகிறார்கள். அது ஒரு பெரிய விஷயமல்லவென்றே சொல்லுகிறேன்.

“மடாதிபதிகளை குறிப்பிட்ட தேதியில் ஆஜராகும்படி Endowment தலைவர்கள் தாக்கீது அனுப்பலாமா என்று சொல்லப்பட்டது. ஆம் உண்மை. மடாதிபதிகளை வரச்சொன்னால் மடாதிபதிகளையா வரப்போகிறார்கள். அவர்களுடைய ஏஜெண்டுதான் வருவார். இப்போது மத்திய சர்க்காரிடமிருந்து ஒரு தாக்கீது வந்தால் உடனே மந்திரிகளையா போகிறார்கள். காரியதரிசிகள் தான் போகிறார்கள். அதேமாதிரி மடாதிபதிகளை வாச்சொல்லி தாக்கீது சென்றிருந்தால் அதில் தவறுதலில்லை. மடாதிபதிகளை பெரிய மனிதராகவேதான் கருதுகிறோம். அவர்களை மதத்தின் சின்னமாகவே தான் மதிக்கிறோம். அவர்கள் தவறுதலாக நடக்கக் கூடாது என்பதற்கும், அவர்களிடமுள்ள சிப்பந்திகள் ஒழுங்காக இருப்பதற்கும் அரசாங்க அதிகாரிகளுக்கு அதிகாரம் இருக்கத்தான் வேண்டும். முன்பிருந்த அதிகாரங்களையே அரசாங்கம் Constitution-க்கு விரோதமாகவுள்ள எது என்று குறைகூறிக் கொண்டிருக்கிறார்கள். ஆகையால் நான் அரசாங்கம் கொண்டுவந்துள்ள திருத்தத்தை ஆதரித்து, நண்பர் விஸ்வநாதம் திருத்தத்தை எதிர்க்கின்றேன்.”

MR. SPEAKER :—“The Minister may reply.”

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—“I have given notice of two amendments, Sir.”

MR. SPEAKER :—“They will come afterwards, when the Government amendment is accepted. They are amendments to Government amendments. They will come afterwards.”

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—“I shall deal with the propriety of the orders that have been read by my hon. Friend Mr. Karanth here as examples of how the Board has been exercising its powers, later. Let me first deal with the main objection raised by my hon. Friends Sri Viswanatham, Karanth and Bhashyam.”

MR. SPEAKER :—“Shall we do one thing, I shall ask the amendments to be formally moved and seconded. I will put the amendments to vote and when they are decided then the Government amendment may be taken up.”

SRI K. VARADACHARI :—“I have also given notice of an amendment to this clause, Sir.”

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI :—“I have also given an amendment.”

MR. SPEAKER :—“The hon. Members' amendment was for the original clause and not for the amended clause which substitutes the original clause.

“The hon. Member Sri Bhashyam may move his amendments.”

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—“I move, Sir, that—

“(1) In clause 22 omit the words “the control of the Government and”.

20th November 1950] [Sri K. Bhashyam]

(2) In line 2 of clause 22, for the words “the administration,” substitute the words “the secular and property administration”.

“Sir, what I want to say on these amendments is this. The Government is out of the picture now. They really do not want to take any responsibility for control over the institutions and at the same time they say they shall have the mere power of revision of orders and not administrative control in their hands. I can understand these words if they were there at the time when clauses 7 and 8, since deleted, were there. But to-day after deleting the clause 7 why have these words ‘subject to the control of Government’. It will make the whole clause somewhat difficult to understand. Therefore these words ‘the control of the Government and’ must go. This is only a consequential amendment after deletion of clause 7, already approved by us. That is why I ask for the acceptance of the amendment. The wording of the clause as it is will also be misleading to people as if there is some control by Government and the Commissioner is not doing his duties properly. This will give a bad name to the Government. I am trying to help the Government by my amendment. That is all.

“The other amendment is a little more important and it is this. The clause says ‘... administration of all religious endowments ...’, etc. Religious endowments mean not only the property attached to the endowments but also the math, its temples and all the other things belonging to the math. I really fought hard to omit these things but the Government were adamant and that could not be done. Now they recognise at any rate that they ought not to interfere with the internal affairs of the math or the religious institution. Having come to that conclusion, I want the amendment to be accepted, namely, substituting the word ‘administration’ with the words ‘the secular and property administration’, as they cannot interfere with the management of what may be said to be non-secular portion of it. If the Government accept the amendment, they would be making their position in this regard clearer.”

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—“I second the amendments, Sir.”

MR. SPEAKER :—“The hon. Member Sri K. Varadachari may also move his amendment. It will be easier then.”

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—“I will reply to all the amendments.”

SRI K. VARADACHARI :—“Sir, I have given notice of a very small amendment, and I beg to move it, namely—

“In clause 22, for the words “shall include” occurring in line 5, substitute the words “shall be confined to”.

“Sir, as has been pointed out by the previous speaker and by the Government themselves, they have committed themselves to the new policy of non-interference in the internal management of religious institutions. Now if that is so after having deleted clause 7 from the Bill, and rewriting clause 22 in this manner, the position is not altered even a bit. What they wanted to do under the deleted clause 7 the very same mistake they are again committing in redrafting the clause 22 as it now stands. If in a definition the Government want to say they mean such and such a thing, the ordinary way in which the Legislature does it is by the use of the words 'shall mean and include'. But if the Government omit the word 'mean' and use the word 'include' alone, it means that over and above the powers that are mentioned here, there is something else which you can exercise. It is left undefined. It is a very bad way of drafting the thing. In the clause as it stands there is nothing definite to indicate what 'general superintendence and control' means. In the clause it is sought to be defined by merely saying 'it shall include the power to pass any orders which may be deemed necessary to ensure that such endowments are properly administered and that their income is duly appropriated for the purposes for which they were founded or exist'. These are the only powers that the Government want the Commissioner to exercise. Then the only way in which it could be drafted is to say that it 'shall mean and include' the power and so on. If you omit the word 'mean' and have 'include' alone, the whole sense of it goes. The Government would still have at the back of their mind the exercise of some powers which are over and above those specifically mentioned in this clause. I, therefore, say, Sir, consistent with the policy that you are adumbrating with regard to the management of the institutions limiting the power of the Government and the officers to external supervision and not interference with the internal management of the institutions, I say that the simple word 'include' there would make it absurd and nonsense. It would be inconsistent with the policy. I therefore request that the word should be substituted by the words 'shall be limited' or 'confined to', or 'restricted to' whichever the Government may think fit to choose, and adopt. If the Government do not admire the words 'shall be confined to' very much, they can use some such words as 'limited to' or 'restricted to'. My hon. Friend Sri Pattabhiramiah anticipated me and said that the clause would offend the Constitution, even as the clause now stands. Even if it is amended in the way in which I want it to be amended, I do not know if this clause would be acceptable to any court and considered as going against the Constitution. I think there will be a chance of its being contended as being intra vires if at least the words that I have suggested are introduced here and thus make the intention and policy of the Government in this matter quite plain."

[Sri K. Varadachari] [20th November 1950]

SRI M. S. PATTABHIRAMIAH:—"I second the amendment, Sir. It is a fair amendment and the Government ought to see their way to accept it. By accepting this small amendment this Bill would become more popular and acceptable."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, my hon. Friend Sri Varadachari has not risen during the debate on this Bill very often because he has been very carefully following the discussion and generally he has not interfered in the discussion. Even he in his anger was saying that this clause is absurd and nonsense. If that is so, Sir, there is great reason why the Hon. Minister and all of us should consider what it is. 'Shall include' means there is the overall power which is indefinite. I did not exactly note this when I spoke upon the aspect of the clause. There is overall indefinite power which is worse than the power originally sought to be introduced in clause 7, now omitted. You have also, in addition, got this power to pass any orders. What are those orders? The scope of those orders may be anything from the management to administration and so on. I therefore feel the clause is—I do not want to use the expression, my hon. Friend has used, 'absurd and nonsense'—certainly very wide of the mark. My hon. Friend has suggested—he is a practising lawyer and I am not—that by changing the expression, in some measure the Government can mitigate the mischief of the provision. I request that it may be done, Sir."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"I may at the outset say, Sir, that I am prepared to accept the hon. Member Sri Bhashyam's amendment to omit the words 'the control of the Government and'."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"That is something, Sir."

MR. SPEAKER:—"What about the other amendments?"

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"The other amendment I am not accepting, Sir."

The hon. Member Sri Viswanatham rose in his seat.

MR. SPEAKER:—"A reply is not necessary. I have already given sufficient time to the hon. Member."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"I want only to congratulate the Hon. Minister on accepting at least one amendment."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Then, is the hon. Member Sri Varadachari withdrawing his amendment?"

SRI K. VARADACHARI:—"I withdraw my amendment, Sir."

The amendment was by leave of the House withdrawn.

MR. SPEAKER:—"I think the hon. Member Sri Bhashyam will withdraw the second amendment, the first having been accepted by the Hon. the Minister."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"What does the Government say, Sir?"

MR. SPEAKER:—"They have accepted the first amendment."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"I do not accept the second amendment, Sir."

[20th November 1950]

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"I press for a vote on my amendment, Sir."

The second amendment was put and lost.

MR. SPEAKER:—"I shall now put the first amendment to vote. The question is—

'That in line 2 of the Government amendment the words "the control of the Government and" shall be omitted.'"

The amendment was carried.

MR. SPEAKER:—"The Government amendment to clause 22 as amended is before the House."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"I want to reply, Sir. The hon. Members, Sri Viswanatham, Karanth, Bhashyam and M. S. Pattabhiramiah, all said that no court is likely to uphold this clause because it offends the Constitution. The hon. Member Sri Viswanatham told us that the intention of the Government was allright but their translation of their intention, by the language they have used, was a failure and therefore it would offend the Constitution. Apart from the intrinsic objection that the Government or the Commissioner should not have all the powers that are mentioned therein, the legal objection is that it offends the Constitution. I cannot say with such dogmatic assertion that this clause will offend the Constitution or will not offend the Constitution, that it will be upheld by the Court or not. It is not at least for me to say it with such an amount of assertion as my hon. Friends have done. (Sri T. Viswanatham: 'You are encouraging such statements.') Whatever it is, I can only say this. The hon. Member Sri Karanth read what was said by Lord Shaw, namely, that it would be very difficult to distinguish between religious and secular matters. When that is so, what is the fun of trying to say that this is secular and that is non-secular. Unfortunately it is difficult to make a distinction in the matter. But the Constitution itself demands that we must make a distinction between secular matters connected with the religion and purely religious matters. I also depend on the same Article of the Constitution which my hon. Friend, Sri Karanth quoted, namely, Article 25 of the Constitution. He said that Government have no powers according to that Article of the Constitution to interfere with the internal administration of the maths and that the maths should be allowed to manage their own affairs, profess and practise the religion in which they believe and propagate the same subject of course to the condition, he conceded that point, that they did not misappropriate the funds entrusted to them and rendered proper accounts. If that is conceded then the Legislature has a right to legislate that the trustees, whether they are trustees of temples or matadhipathis, whatever that might be, keep proper accounts of the funds. If that could be done, I submit, that the proposals contained in the Bill do not go beyond that.

20th November 1950] [Sri K. Madhava Menon]

"If it is conceded that the Government have got a right to legislate so that the trustees, whether they be matadhipathis or temple trustees, will not misappropriate their funds and that they should keep proper accounts, my submission is that the proposals here do not go beyond that.

"Sub-clause (2) to Article 25 of the Constitution says—

'Nothing in this article shall affect the operation of any existing law or prevent the State from making any law—

(a) regulating or restricting any economic, financial, political or other secular activity which may be associated with religious practice'

So, according to the Constitution itself we can legislate to regulate secular activities. Though it is difficult to distinguish religious practices from secular ones, we are put in such a position that we have to make a regulation. So, Sir, there is no difficulty about it, according to me.

"Sub-clause (b) of Article 26 of the Constitution says—

'to manage its own affairs in matters of religion'

The clause that we have suggested is—

'Subject to the provisions of this Act, the administration of all religious endowments shall be subject to the general superintendence and control of the Commissioner; and such superintendence and control shall include the power to pass any orders which may be deemed necessary to ensure that such endowments are properly administered and that their income is duly appropriated for the purposes for which they were founded or exist.'

So, we have not touched the management at all. The administration of the religious endowments shall be subject to the control of the trustees. But the Commissioner shall have superintendence only. What is the purpose of superintendence? It is sought to see that the properties are properly administered and that the income is duly appropriated for the purposes for which they were founded or exist. That is exactly what it means—that they are not misappropriated and that proper accounts are kept. So, the administration and superintendence wherever they are needed are only for the purpose of seeing that the property is appropriated for the purposes . . . or to translate it, that the property is not misappropriated in any other form and that the moneys are properly accounted for.

"Clause 22 is a general one and that by itself cannot give much power because it is subject to the provisions of this Act. Only the general superintendence is there and the superintendence shall include power to pass any orders that such endowments are properly administered and that their income is duly appropriated for the purposes for which they were founded or exist. It is not administration on matters of religion. It is administering the endowments so that their properties are properly accounted for and that they are not misappropriated. So, it is confined to that field of administration and superintendence. As such, the wording as it stands does not interfere with religion and will not come into conflict with Article 26 of the Constitution. Hon. Mr. Karanth said 'you have provided for only administration of properties.'

[Sri K. Madhava Menon] [20th November 1950]

That is exactly what is said. So, the wording of this clause is allright and I do not think that any Court will set aside or say that the Bill is ultra vires. According to me it cannot be ultra vires.

"Then, Sir, hon. Mr. Karanth said that this power will not help the orders which are being passed. I want the House to see the provisions of the present Act, Sir. Perhaps it may be that the Board has need to pass orders. They are such wide powers that they may possibly be against the Constitution. The Board may have superintendence for the purpose of seeing that there is no misappropriation so that it may do all the things that are reasonably necessary, that accounts are properly maintained and that religious endowments are properly administered and the income is duly appropriated for the purposes for which they were founded. Certain orders have been read by hon. Mr. Karanth and I feel that some of the orders may appear to be unfair.

"Sir, I do not agree with hon. Mr. K. T. Kosalam that there is nothing wrong in asking the matadhipathis to rear fish and also auction them. I think that this is too much for an orthodox matadhipathi to do. What hon. Mr. K. T. Kosalam meant or understood is this. If the matadhipathis can give coconut trees for drawing toddy without any compunction whatsoever, they may perhaps have no compunction to rear fish in the tanks.

"Apart from that, Sir, I cannot say anything about the orders passed by the Board without hearing the Board and knowing the reasons therefor. For instance, one order was read that the Board directed in places like South Kanara and Malabar where there is excess of rain, that the matadhipathis should pray for rain. I feel it may look absurd. But, that is not it. There was no rain then in the country at all. So, it may be a general circular just like a war-time circular by the King asking that all should pray for Victory. Likewise, a general circular would have been issued to all matadhipathis of temples that they may pray for rain. Rain might have failed in the West Coast, South Arcot, Chingleput, Mathurai, etc. Some of us would believe in prayers. In some places, homams also are done for the purpose of getting rain. So, the Board may have issued an order or a directive or a request to all that they may pray for rain. It may look absurd because there is excess of rain in the West Coast. It is quite possible that it may be a general order. I cannot say anything about each of those orders. What is the reason? I have no opportunity to know the reasons that prompted the Board to issue such orders. But assuming for argument's sake that the orders passed are all bad, it is no good to say that it should have no power at all to pass good orders.

"Another thing is that the Board might have issued orders regarding coupons for manure. I know, Sir, that in the case of bonus for procurement the rent due to the landlord was taken away from the tenant in the bonus amount that was given to the tenant. Various suits were filed by the landlords to recover the rent from the bonus amount given to the tenants and decrees were passed by various courts. Similarly, it may be that the Board might have issued instructions regarding these coupons for manure and the Board may be justified in thinking that the additional expenditure will be saved if these matters are not allowed to go to courts. I am only saying that there are possibilities of explanation. But assuming for argument's sake that there is the risk of passing wrong orders, it is no reason that no powers should be given at all to pass good orders. I want the Endowment Board or the Commissioner to have powers to see that they must remit rent in the case of tenants whose crops have failed. But, you should not collect excess interest or rent which is immoral. Certainly they should never have power to raise the rent. But, there must be power for them to give relief to the tenants wherever necessary. To say that all orders passed are bad and as such they should not be given at all, is not good. The point is that this will go against the fundamental rights. That contention I cannot accept, Sir.

"I was taken aback when they said that the Board directed to raise rents from the tenants. It may be, Sir, that the Board has reason to believe that there has been collusion in the matter between the tenant and the landlord for reducing the rent and eventually in the loss of income. If the landlord and the tenant colluded and there is reduction in income in the tenancy, then the Board may issue orders to provide against such collusion. I have aversion to any order raising the rent.

"In another instance, the Board has passed an order asking the matadhipathis to collect donations for the Sharada Vidyalaya, Thyagarayanagar. Personally I think that it is a good order that the Board has issued. The Board can only recommend. I would certainly prefer that the Board should only recommend to certain religious institutions. That is a good institution and the Board can give mere advice to donate. Mr. Karanth's point is that such orders will not end there only."

SRI K. R. KARANTH :—"The point is that the local college policy is upset."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—"Certainly, Sir, that must extend to the local college also. I agree. But, that should be given for a good purpose. I am told, Sir, that the Board was justified in issuing the orders which have been read. But, to say that, because certain orders have been passed wrongly, they should not pass any good orders at all, is not good. I cannot accept the contention, Sir."

MR. SPEAKER :—"The House has accepted the amendment of the hon. Member Sri K. Bhashyam. The question is—

"That for clause 22, substitute the following clause :—

"Subject to the provisions of this Act, the administration of all religious endowments shall be subject to the general superintendence and control of the Commissioner; and such superintendence and control shall include the power to pass any orders which may be deemed necessary to ensure that such endowments are properly administered and that their income is duly appropriated for the purposes for which they were founded or exist."

[Mr. Speaker] [20th November 1950]

The amendment was carried.

Clause 22 as amended was put and carried.

Clause 23.

MR. SPEAKER:—"The motion is—

'That clause 23 do stand part of the Bill.'

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI:—"Sir, I move—

'In line 5, for the words "of worship", substitute the words to which a worshipper has access.'

"It is quite necessary to clear a misunderstanding as to the limit up to which an officer can go. 'A place of worship' is different from 'a place to which a worshipper can go.' I want this power of the officer to be limited to the particular point up to which an ordinary worshipper can go. The place of worship is the sanctum sanctorum itself. These officers cannot be allowed to go into the sanctum sanctorum itself. They can be allowed to go only to the point up to which an ordinary worshipper can go in order to see whether things are going allright. He will otherwise be interfering with religion itself and creating confusion. These people should not be allowed to have access to a place where no other person except the archaka can go.

"This is a reasonable amendment which I hope the Government will accept."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"I second it."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"I may explain, Sir, the dangers in our way in accepting this amendment. In certain places, in Malabar for instance, there are certain places such as ndmaskara mantapam and so on, into which, according to custom and usage, no non-Brahman can enter or step in and non-Brahmans do not enter it for fear of committing a sin. Only Brahmins enter that mantapam. Again, there are certain places where Vedic hymns are repeated and, into these, people are not allowed to enter. All the same, all worshippers listen to the mantrams and see what is being done there."

SRI K. VARADACHARI:—"There are certain parts of temples where both Brahmins and non-Brahmins cannot go."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Yes, to which only workers and those engaged in temple ceremonials can go. In these circumstances this widening of the scope of the Bill is not called for."

20th November 1950]

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI:—"Such differences cannot exist after the passing of the Temple Entry Act. Any place accessible to a Brahman is equally accessible to worshippers other than Brahmins. Therefore there is no force in that argument. But there is this distinction, viz., that there is a limit up to which a worshipper can go. The place to which this proviso gives access is one where even a worshipper cannot go. I must say that this officer should not be permitted to go to a place to which only the archaka has access. If the intention of this legislation is that this officer should go to the sanctum sanctorum I have no objection; but if it is the intention to make this officer go and observe or watch certain things done there, he should be content with going up to the point to which the worshippers are allowed to go and not destroy the sanctity of even the sanctum sanctorum and affect the susceptibilities of persons. His supervision should not extend to that very sacred spot where actual puja is done and milk and other abhishekams are performed. That is a thing which cannot be tolerated."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, it would be dangerous to say 'worshippers may have access to places other than places of worship'. I cannot accept the amendment."

The amendment of Sri L. N. Gopalaswami was put and lost.

MR. SPEAKER:—"I will now ask the Government to make their amendment to 'Omit the proviso to sub-clause (1)'. If that is accepted by the House, hon. Mr. Bhashyam's amendment to add some words after the proviso to clause (1) cannot be moved."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"The Government amendment is to omit the proviso and hon. Mr. Bhashyam's amendment is to add something as sub-clause (3)."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"The Government have changed their mind after we gave notice of these amendments on the basis of the original Bill. In this situation we must adapt these things to the extent to which it can be done. Therefore I am asking as a general rule that in cases where the Government in its wisdom changes its mind and brings about an alteration in the original Bill, the Members should have the opportunity to suitably modify their amendments. In the present case, you will please permit me, Sir, to move my amendment first. After it is defeated, the Government may move their amendment."

MR. SPEAKER:—"I would allow the hon. Member to have a properly worded amendment and move it in the form of an amendment to the Government amendment."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"The amendment of hon. Sri K. Bhashyam seems to me to be out of order, because it is similar in nature to the one moved by hon. Sri L. N. Gopalaswami and rejected by the House just now."

[20th November 1950]

MR. SPEAKER:—" But hon. Mr. Bhashyam may move the second part of his amendment."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—" When there is an amendment tabled, by interpreting it as an amendment to an amendment, you can allow it to be moved."

MR. SPEAKER:—" But it does not fit in. If it is suitably altered I have no objection to hon. Mr. Bhashyam moving his amendment."

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI:—" In view of the Government amendment, the second portion of hon. Mr. Bhashyam's amendment also is not necessary."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—" The meaning of hon. Sri Gopalaswami's amendment is different from that of hon. Mr. Bhashyam's amendment."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—" Sir, I shall read out my amendment: 'To sub-clause (3) as added, add "or authorize any person to enter that portion of the premises to which the general public are not allowed to enter".' "

MR. SPEAKER:—" Yes, the Government may now move their amendment."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—" I move—

'Omit the proviso to sub-clause (1) and add the following as sub-clause (3):—

"(3) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize any person who is not a Hindu to enter the premises or place referred to in sub-section (1) or any part thereof."

The proviso as it stands in the original Bill, as approved by the Select Committee is a bit defective. The object of the amendment is to make the proviso applicable to sub-clauses (1) and (2). That is the object of my amendment."

MR. SPEAKER:—" The motion is—

'Omit the proviso to sub-clause (1) and add the following as sub-clause (3):—

"(3) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize any person who is not a Hindu to enter the premises or place referred to in sub-section (1) or any part thereof."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—" Sir, I move the following amendment:—

'To sub-clause (3) as added, add the following: "or authorize any person to enter that portion of the premises to which the general public are not allowed to enter".'

20th November 1950] [Sri K. Bhashyam]

Sir, I would like, if possible, that hon. Janab Selamnad's amendment is taken up, because it is more comprehensive than mine. Sub-clause (1) says—

'(1) The Commissioner, Deputy and Assistant Commissioners and such other officers as may be authorized by the Commissioner or the Area Committee in this behalf shall have power to enter the premises of any religious institution or any place of worship for the purpose of exercising any power conferred, or discharging any duty imposed, by or under this Act.'

You know, Sir, from your personal knowledge that in many temples there are garbhagrahams and antargrahams into which the general public are not allowed to enter. Only persons who are actually engaged in the worship like the archakas, the sthanikas and the paricharakas are allowed to enter. Not even the biggest person is allowed to step in beyond a certain limit. Of course, we have passed the Temple Entry Act and every person is allowed to go and worship in the temple. But by tradition and custom and usage, in many temples no person is allowed to go into the garbhagraham or the antargraham. The Commissioner, the Deputy Commissioner and other officers, are persons who only profess the Hindu religion. Suppose in the course of his inspection, the Commissioner puts on a coat and shirt and enters that part of the temple. Or suppose some big person has come from England and in order to show him the architecture of the temple, he takes him inside. I want all these things to be avoided. Traditions of the temple should be strictly maintained. There ought not to be a single step which would swerve from the traditions, because we are already slipping away from some of the traditions and the sanctity of some of the temples has been spoiled by the way people behave both inside and outside. If my original amendment had been accepted with regard to the practice of religion by these officers, then there might have been some justification for allowing these people to enter the innermost shrines, but since it has not been accepted, it is quite possible for an officer with a shirt and coat on him to enter into the innermost shrines of the temple. I do not want that to happen. That is the reason, Sir, why I am asking that this amendment may be accepted. Of course, the Hon. Minister may express a lot of sympathy with my amendment and at the same time say that the Government could not accept it. I would like them to accept the amendment in view of what I have said. I may mention here, that in the temples on the east coast things are not so rigid as in the temples on the west coast. In either case, only the archakas, the sthanikas and the paricharakas are allowed to enter the innermost shrine. Therefore I want that the following amendment may be accepted, namely:—

'To sub-clause (3) as added, add the following at the end:—

"or authorize any person to enter that portion of the premises to which the general public are not allowed to enter."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—" I second the amendment."

[20th November 1950]

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" Sir, I do not wish to say, as my hon. Friend Sri Bhashyam expected, that I sympathize with the amendment. I do not agree with the amendment at all. Sri K. R. Karanth pointed out that I objected to the present amendment even in the Select Committee. I had my own reasons for it. It is because of my personal experience in the matter that I say that this amendment cannot be accepted. Sri K. Bhashyam is perfectly right when he says nobody except the archaka and the sthanika ordinarily enters the garbhagraham and nobody should, according to me, be allowed to enter it under ordinary circumstances. But I had the fortune or misfortune of defending a Nambudri archaka who was accused of having stolen the jewels of the idol, and getting him acquitted. The jewels were taken away from the idol, the idol was lifted and the jewels were secreted below and the idol was replaced. The police officer, unless he is a Hindu could not enter that place. Many documents also may be secreted in that manner. It is necessary that the sanctity of the garbhagraham must be preserved, but there may be exceptional cases when other people will have to enter such places in the interests of the proper administration of the institution. I myself had experience of one such case and such exceptional instances might occur again. In such cases, if entrance into the garbhagraham is necessary, it is enough if we provide that it must be by a Hindu. Therefore, Sir, I am sorry I am not able to accept the amendment of Sri K. Bhashyam."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" Sir, the Hon. Minister has accepted the position that the sanctity of the garbhagraham must be preserved, but he has put forward an exceptional case where the delinquent was the archaka himself. I ask, Sir, are there not provisions in the Criminal Procedure Code to deal with such cases? Are you going to allow a police officer with his patti and uniform to enter the garbhagraham? You would probably ask him to take a bath and put on a namam or something else before he enters the garbhagraham. By the time he does all these things, the jewel might have disappeared to some other place. It is not a practical proposition at all. What I say is this. You have already got persons inside the temple who can go into the garbhagraham. It is not as if the archaka alone is allowed to enter the place. There are a number of other persons. If the Commissioner or the officer in charge of the place is a careful man and knows his job, he can keep a police officer standing by and looking on and ask the archaka or the sthanika to get in and search. It is not as if the police officer himself must get in. Is it not enough if he sees the thing being done by somebody else? Therefore I am unable to accept the objections of the Hon. Minister as a valid argument against my amendment. The sanctity of the temple is a thing which is not to be touched. It is agreed. The only logical result of that is the acceptance of the amendment I have moved. I do not know why the Government are adamant in every respect."

[20th November 1950] [Sri K. Bhashyam]

Between the Select Committee stage and now, I expected that the Hon. Minister would have softened his heart a little bit towards me, but I find that he has hardened his heart."

The amendment of Sri K. Bhashyam was put and lost.

The Government amendment to omit the proviso to sub-clause (1) and to add a new sub-clause was put and carried.

JANAB MAHIN SCHAMNAD :—" Sir, I beg to move the following amendment :—

'Add the following as sub-clause (1) :—

"Nothing in this sub-section shall be deemed to authorize any person, who does not belong to the category of persons solely entitled by virtue of ancient and long-established religious custom and usage to enter the garbhagraha or sanctum sanctorum of a religious institution belonging to a community or group of persons, to enter the garbhagraha or sanctum sanctorum under colour of exercising any power conferred, or discharging any duty imposed, by or under this Act."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" On a point of order, Mr. Speaker. This amendment is identical with hon. Sri K. Bhashyam's amendment which has already been rejected. Instead of using the words 'premises to which the general public are not allowed to enter' he uses the words 'garbhagraha', 'sanctum sanctorum' and so on. There is no other distinction, Sir."

MR. SPEAKER :—" Having rejected hon. Sri K. Bhashyam's amendment, it seems to me that this amendment is now out of order."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—" May I say a word before you finally give your ruling, Sir? This amendment relates to a person who does not belong to the category of persons solely entitled by virtue of ancient and long-established religious custom and usage to enter the 'garbhagraha, etc.' This is totally different from the 'general public' referred to in the previous amendment, who have a right to worship and so on."

MR. SPEAKER :—" I rule the amendment out of order. The House having rejected hon. Sri K. Bhashyam's amendment, this amendment cannot be taken up."

JANAB MAHIN SCHAMNAD :—" After hearing me, the Hon. Speaker may give his ruling, Sir."

MR. SPEAKER :—" On the face of it, the amendment is out of order. I am going to put clause 23 as amended to the vote of the House."

Clause 23 as amended was put and carried.

[20th November 1950]

Clause 24.

MR. SPEAKER :—“ The motion is—

‘ That clause 24 do stand part of the Bill.’ ”

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—“ Sir, I beg to move the following amendment :—

‘ In sub-clause (a), delete the word “ Hindu ” and add at the end the following :—

“ or religious denomination for whose benefit the institution is intended.” ’

“ Sir, when these officers are given vast powers, they must not only be Hindus but they must also belong to the religious denomination for whose benefit the religious institution is intended. If this amendment is accepted, it will bring the clause within the articles of the Constitution which give equal protection to all the denominations. Therefore I submit that this amendment may be accepted.”

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—“ Sir, as a person who has experience of the disputes between the Vadagalais and the Thengalais among the Vaishnavites, I think that this amendment is very important. There is bitter feud between these two sects of Vaishnavites and they would rather have a Muslim than have a man belonging to the other sect. I want to avoid all quarrels in respect of this matter. I would like the officers to be appointed to be of the same denomination for whose benefit the temple is intended, so that there may not be any disharmony or fight between the persons concerned. It is also necessary to pay at least some homage and show some loyalty to that portion of the Constitution which says that the denominations must have some voice in the management of their institutions. If we do not accept this, then we can appoint any person who is not of that denomination altogether. He need not even profess that, but he must belong to the denomination for whose benefit the institution is intended. As I said there must be some vestige of loyalty and some vestige of consideration for the Constitution and you do not show that, when you do not provide that the persons appointed as trustees or other officers should be of the same denomination for whose benefit the temple or the institution is intended. If you do not make that provision, there will be quarrels and disputes between these people. Imagine what will happen if a Protestant Christian is appointed as the manager of a Roman Catholic institution. There will be heart-burning. When the Bill regarding the requisition of building of educational institutions was under consideration in this House, Christians thought that it would affect their religion if their institutions were taken away from them, and if a Protestant was appointed as the manager of a Catholic institution. We respected their feelings in the matter and if we can respect their feelings there, I want you to respect similar feelings even here also.”

20th November 1950]

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—“ Sir, for the very reasons which Sri K. Bhashyam gave, I am sorry I cannot accept the amendment. This clause is only a reproduction of the existing section 50 and no difficulty has so far been found in its working. Section 50 would not apply to hereditary trustees. It applies only to non-hereditary trustees. If we take a concrete example, there are a good number of temples in respect of which we do not still know whether they belong to the Vadagalai or the Thengalai sect. Sri Bhashyam himself knows that. There are temples also in which even now the two sects, the Vadagalais and the Thengalais, are fighting to see that they belong to the Vadagalais or the Thengalais. In such cases, if you say that a particular temple belongs to this or that denomination, when it is actually not known to whom it belongs, how can we have a provision like that? ”

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—“ Sir, I am very sorry the Hon. Sri Madhava Menon has missed the point in his enthusiasm just to oppose what Sri Bhashyam has stated. It is a matter for enquiry if the Government or the Commissioner is not aware to what denomination a particular temple belongs. To say ‘ there is a dispute there, therefore I cannot appoint a man whose denomination I know ’, is a wrong method of approach. I submit we are not here trying to wipe out the differences between the various denominations. Let us be clear about that. We are not here to smoothen the differences between the Vaishnavites or the Mardhvas or between the Saivites and the Vaishnavites or even among the Visishtadwaites, the Vadagalais and the Thengalais. People sitting here in a secular place like this cannot wipe out all these differences. On the other hand, being secular, we thought we should not interfere with such things and therefore it is that the Constitution has recognized and used the words ‘ religious denomination.’ The words ‘ religious denomination ’ have not been invented by me for the purpose of this amendment. If you look at the persons who were the framers of the Constitution, you can easily find to how many different denominations they belonged. They had all these differences in mind at the time of framing the Constitution and that is why they said these religious denominations should be kept up. Therefore, I submit it is absolutely necessary that the trustees whom you appoint should belong to the religious denomination to which the trust belongs; otherwise, out of anger or spite a Saivite may be appointed to a Vaishnavite temple or a Vaishnavite may be appointed to a Saivite temple or either of them may be appointed to even a Jain temple. You may ask : are we going to do like that? You may not; but when you give wide powers of appointment in the Act, it will be a carte blanche to the officers to do anything they like, it will engender some sort of disregard for all these finer distinctions we have been seeking to protect as referred to in the Constitution. Therefore, it is that in obedience to the language of the Constitution, and in obedience to the faith which we have in the various religious denominations which ultimately are based upon philosophic tenets in relation to such questions as Godhood, the origin and progress and end of this universe, etc., the person to be appointed must first of all be a Hindu, and then he must also belong to the same religious denomination as the one for whose benefit the institution is intended. Otherwise, Sir, it will lead to great and unnecessary quarrels and we will be doing what is likely to produce evil. I submit, therefore, the Hon. Minister may please reconsider and accept this amendment."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"I am sorry, Sir."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"All words are wasted."

MR. SPEAKER:—"I now put the amendment to the vote of the House."

The amendment was put and lost.

Sub-clause (b).

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI:—"Sir, I move my amendment—

'To delete sub-clause (b).'

For the simple reason that if you limit the age of the trustee to 35 and 70 and if you say that a man between 60 and 70 can discharge his duties as trustee, I really cannot see how a man between 20 and 35 or 25 and 35 cannot discharge them. The age-limit passes my comprehension, Sir. The Government themselves admit that in the case of a hereditary trustee, even a man under 35 can be a trustee. I want the Government to understand that in these cases, they should not be guided by age. In the appointment of trustees they should be guided by the fact as to whether a man, having regard to his enthusiasm, energy, etc., can be fixed up for the proper administration of the institution. In these days of advancing intelligence, there is no point in appointing a man between 60 and 70 to look after the affairs of a temple. Perhaps he may not have the health or the strength to visit the temple even once a day. I think it would be far better if you bring down the age to 25 rather than take it beyond 60. I find there is another amendment given notice of to bring down the age from 35 to 25, and I trust the Government will accept the fairness of that amendment at least and accept it."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"I will second the amendment, if they do not want to accept it."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"I think this is not seconding, Sir. He says he will second it only if the Government do not accept it."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"I second the amendment, Sir, positively and affirmatively."

20th November 1950]

SRI M. S. PATTABIRAMIAH:—"It is strange, Sir, that my Friend Sri Gopalaswami was arguing that a person between 70 and 75 or 60 and 70 would not be able to go to the temple, and I must express my surprise at what he said. It is unfortunate that men who are well-versed in our Hindu lore are so ignorant and they think that all Hindus will be weak after 60 or 70. I will point out to him and to others in the House that when the Mahabharata war was fought, all the five Pandavas were above 60 years, and Vyasa describes them as yuvas or young men. Unfortunately we think that even at 35 a man becomes old. It may be that at that age there may be some precocious beings who may do much of work or talk and who may be wise; but it requires a ripened age and much experience to manage such institutions. A man generally becomes ripe only after 60 years, and it is only after 75 that people used to become sanyasis in the olden days, and till 75, they used to be working. If we say that people at 70 or 75 will not be able to attend to this work, it only shows how ignorant we are of our own traditions and history. Not only that; let people well educated in English and well-versed in western ideas, refer to a classical work by Cicero called 'Old age and friendship'—two famous essays very often found and read in the world's libraries. There the author says how people are active after 70 years unless they are crippled or diseased. Such activity is very common among people of 70 and more. Strictly speaking, there should be no age-limit fixed here at all. Again, Sir, my Friend wanted that people below 35 should be appointed and the upper age-limit should be brought down to 60, if the Government so chose. We should not be under the impression that people become weak and unfit for work after 60. They get ripened in their wisdom and they are also active. As I said, the big heroes of the Mahabharata war were all above 60. Bhishma was 150 years old, Drona was 120 years old and the Pandavas were 61, 62 or 63. Krishna himself was above 60 years at that time. Let us therefore remember that people do not become disabled after 60, and they should not become disabled."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Sir, we have had great controversy over the age. It is a very good thing we are discussing it. Especially when a certain gentleman says that old age must be respected, I am very proud, for I am myself old; Dr. Rajan must be older still; and I felt elated when it was said that old age must be respected. After hearing the speeches, I think Sri Gopalaswami's amendment is very good; he says there must be no upper or lower limit at all. But after all, it depends on the concerned person; the older a man grows, the wiser he grows and so, if an older man is appointed, the better it is because he is wiser. The only difficulty is sometimes he may be affected with forgetfulness to do some things at the proper time and then the Commissioner will come down upon him. What I say is that the Government, when they make the appointments, must see to it that there is a mixture of both, the young people for doing the work actively and the old people for giving the necessary advice and suggestions. I hope, Sir, they will do so and that by this method, Sri Gopalswami may be satisfied, I will be satisfied and there will be satisfaction all round."

SRI R. V. SWAMINATHAN :—" Sir, I see some point in the arguments put forward by hon. Members Sri Gopalaswami and Sri Bhashyam. I think the maximum limit is quite alright and my Friend referred to the heroes of the Mahabharata war. Even in the present day, our leaders in the Central Government are above 70 and they are ruling the country. Why not take our Hon. Dr. Rajan? I think he must be above 70; if he can pilot this Bill and be a Minister to this Government, why not a member of the Area Committee be of that age? I request the Hon. Minister to reconsider this point. I appeal to him to reconsider and fix up a proper age-limit."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" Sir, the whole controversy arose when Sri Gopalaswami said that people at 70 become useless and Sri Pattabhiramayya and Sri Bhashyam said that old age was as good as young age. We have put the lower age-limit at 35 and the upper limit at 70. Ordinarily a person ceases to be a revolutionary after 35, and comparatively, with experience gained, people become better. Anyway, I don't think the upper limit need be changed, if Sri Gopalaswami will kindly bear with me. Sri Viswanatham's next amendment for substituting 25 for 35 may be accepted and the other limit may remain as it is. The idea of fixing 35 as the lower limit was that comparatively, at that age people would have gained sufficient experience and developed balanced thinking, while people of younger age would think too much in advance of the times. We thought people who have passed the age of romance might be there."

SRIMATHI V. LAKSHMI AMMAL :—" I think this age may be applied to the executive officers also."

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI :—" I am very sorry, Sir, I have been misunderstood by Sri Pattabhiramayya. I never said that people after 70 are unfit; I said that if people at 70 can manage temples, why should not people between 25 and 35 be able to manage them. That is all."

SRI M. S. PATTABHIRAMIAH :—" I say that people do not become old at 70." (Laughter.)

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI :—" The Hon. Sri Madhava Menon sympathized with me and said that the upper limit may be there but the lower limit of 25 to be proposed by my Friend may be accepted. My submission is that both the limits may be absolutely left out and that in appointing trustees, the Government may be guided by the man's other qualifications, his capacity, his ability, his experience and wisdom."

20th November 1950]

MR. SPEAKER :—" I now put the amendment of Sri Gopalaswami to the vote of the House. The question is—

'That sub-clause (b) be deleted.'

The amendment was lost.

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—" Sir, I move the amendment standing in my name, namely—

'In sub-clause (b) for the word "thirty-five" substitute the word "twenty-five" ?'

SRI R. V. SWAMINATHAN :—" I second the amendment, Sir,"

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" I oppose the amendment, Sir. How can a young man who hardly attains majority at 21, be put in charge of a big management at the age of 25? As an old man I cannot feel that youngsters can be entrusted with the management of institutions like this. Of course, executive officers are selected by the Government and it is all right, but in the case of appointments of trustees, young men should not be entrusted with such responsibilities.

" Besides, Sir, there is one other matter to be considered in this connection. Joke apart, what I want to say is, there are a number of temples in villages and small localities which are fairly compact and a person of a fairly old age will command more respect and his words will carry weight more than those of young people, however clever and good they may be. That is why I would like to stick to the very good rule provided by the Government, namely 35 years and I do not think we can go below 35 years for the purposes of selecting persons and entrusting them with the responsibilities of a trustee."

SRI K. VARADACHARI :—" Sir, I oppose the amendment proposed by my hon. Friend, Sri Viswanatham. Sri Viswanatham must be partial to very young men because he always appears to be young and that is the reason why he is so sympathetic to young men. I do not of course object to young men being entrusted with such responsibilities in other spheres, but appointment to religious institutions requires mature age and it is a wise thing that the Government put in a lower age limit. Let us not disturb it."

SRI M. S. PATTABHIRAMIAH :—" Sir, I oppose the amendment moved by my hon. Friend, Sri Viswanatham and I would like to be excused for saying this. These young men generally on whose behalf Sri Viswanatham has brought in the amendment and another young gentleman, Sri Swaminathan has seconded it, I think that young age is superior to old age. But I may point out, Sir, that old people know what is young age, whereas young people do not know what is old age. (Laughter.) They are partially ignorant because at 25 they are really children."

[Sri M. S. Pattabhiramiah] [20th November 1950]

In fact if you go through the whole of the ancient Sanskrit works, they are only denoted as innocent youths or 'balas' that is children. Moreover, Sir, that will be the proper time for them to get married and so will they be able to attend to their family life or to religious institutions? I therefore oppose the amendment and request the Government not to accept it. I am afraid there is some levity in the Hon. Minister in accepting this amendment."

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI:—"On a point of order, Sir. Will it not be discriminatory legislation between one man and another if you say that persons between the ages of so and so will be appointed."

MR. SPEAKER:—"How is it a point of order?"

SRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI:—"According to the Constitution, it is discriminatory legislation."

MR. SPEAKER:—"It is no point of order."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"I agreed beforehand that I will accept the amendment to substitute 'twenty-five' for 'thirty-five'. I think there is no question of levity in accepting it. I may say that Sankaracharya ascended the peetam before he was twenty-five. Again, Sir, how many Bhashyams are there? There are not hundreds of Bhashyams and everybody cannot be expected to be as wise in that age. That is not the main consideration also. Article 81 of the Constitution provides thirty years of age for a member of the Council of State and twenty-five years for a member of the House of the People. So, if a member of the House of the People can have responsibility at the age of twenty-five, I thought why not a man be a trustee at the age of twenty-five. (Interruption by Sri K. R. Karanth.) Sri Karanth suggests thirty years. At least in one case let me have the satisfaction of accepting Sri Viswanatham's amendment."

MR. SPEAKER:—"I will now put Sri Viswanatham's amendment to vote. The question is—

'In sub-clause (b) for the word "thirty-five" substitute the word "twenty-five".'

The amendment was carried.

New sub-clause (c).

JANAB MAHIN SCHAMNAD:—"Sir, I move the amendment that stands in my name, namely—

'Add the following as new sub-clause (c):—

"(c) unless, in the case of a non-hereditary trustee, he also belongs to the category of persons whose exclusive right is to hold the trusteeship of the religious institution by virtue of ancient and long-established religious custom and usage of a community or group of persons to which the religious institution belongs."

20th November 1950] [Janab Mahin Schamnad]

"Sir, there are sectional and communal temples in the State and more of them in my district of South Kanara belonging to members of each community exclusively, apart from those belonging to the Hindu public in general. These communal and sectional temples were founded and established by the respective communities for their religious worship, for their own benefit and use and they are managed and administered by them exclusively from time immemorial according to custom. Therefore, the members of other communities have no right in them, although they are allowed to go there and make offerings, as in the case of non-Muslims and non-Christians who are allowed to go to mosques and temples to make offerings. So, Sir, separate rights of the several communities to manage their own religious institutions have been recognized by the courts and the Government in the schemes framed for the temples. This is also in consonance with Article 26 of the Constitution of India and therefore this Legislature can neither abridge nor remove any of the guaranteed rights. So, Sir, superintendence and supervision only can be vested in the Commissioners and their subordinates, but the actual management has to be left in the hands of the trustees of the respective communities. Now, Sir, we have to modify the substance of the provisions of this Bill which remove the right of these people to manage and control their temples, because the trustees of the respective communities have managed the temples very satisfactorily for generations and there is no reason to deprive them of their rights of management. Therefore, Sir, nobody who is not a member of the community can be a trustee. And, only members of the community can manage the affairs of the temple and administer it. So, Sir, my amendment is in consonance with Fundamental Rights in Article 26 of the Constitution of India."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"I second the amendment, Sir, because it is almost on the same lines as the one which I have already moved. It is necessary that the trustees should be of the same religious denomination and they should also belong to the same religious denomination by long and ancient usage and custom. Moreover, Sir, it is not a new thing we are now inventing. Even if you read the Bible in the Old Testament, you will find that only certain clans are entitled to receive all the privileges and be priests. That is there even now in the temple at Jerusalem. Therefore, I submit, Sir, the amendment is a very good one and Government should accept it without reply and without any hesitation."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, I would have accepted the amendment if I had not already provided for it in another portion of the Bill. In the first place, Mr. Viswanatham's amendment, similar to this, was moved and it had been rejected. Secondly, it is impossible of performance, because the amendment says, 'unless he also belongs to the category of persons whose exclusive right is to hold the trusteeship of the religious institution by virtue of ancient and long-established religious custom and usage of a community or group of persons to which the religious institution belongs.' This does not affect hereditary trustees and he says that it is only in the case of non-hereditary trustees, such a provision must be there. Then, Sir, clause 46 of the Bill provides: 'In making appointments of trustees under sections 41, 44 or 45, the Commissioner or the Area Committee, as the case may be, shall have due regard to the claims of persons belonging to the religious denomination for whose benefit the institution concerned is chiefly maintained.' So, Sir, since this has been provided in a subsequent clause, there is no necessity for accepting this amendment. Apart from it, it is impossible of performance."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The question is—

'Add the following as new sub-clause (c):—

"(c) unless, in the case of a non-hereditary trustee, he also belongs to the category of persons whose exclusive right is to hold the trusteeship of the religious institution by virtue of ancient and long-established religious custom and usage of a community or group of persons to which the religious institution belongs." "

The amendment was lost.

Clause 24, as amended, was put and carried.

MR. SPEAKER:—"Shall we sit for a few minutes more and finish some more clauses?"

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Not to-day, Sir. If need be, we shall sit to-morrow till 6 o'clock."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"We are not prepared for it to-day, Sir. We may sit even till 8 o'clock to-morrow. I am saying this because I want to provide a quorum if we are going to sit late till 8 o'clock to-morrow."

Clause 25.

MR. SPEAKER:—"Before adjourning, I will put clause 25 to the vote. There are no amendments to it."

Clause 25 was put and carried.

Clause 26.

MR. SPEAKER:—"There are no amendments to this clause."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"I want to oppose the clause, Sir, and I think I will take some time. Then again, Sir, this offends certain provisions of Article 26 of the Constitution. So, we shall take it up to-morrow."

[Sri K. Madhava Menon] [21st November 1950] to this House or to you, Mr. Speaker, because it is not fair to suggest that there is no use of talking anything about law or Constitution here."

MR. SPEAKER :—" The hon. Member Mr. Bhashyam is not right in saying that. He should not have said that."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" I admit, Sir, that I do not know as much of law as the hon. Member knows."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" The Hon. the Minister is whipping up a dead horse, Sir."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" If the remark is made against me, I am not complaining. I concede my hon. Friend's superior knowledge of law in these matters. Regarding the clause, Sir, I have not been able to understand the points raised against it. If I say that I am unable to understand, the hon. Member Mr. Viswanatham will complain ' the Hon. the Minister says he is unable to understand '. But the real difficulty is that there is no amendment to this clause or any portion of this clause. All the clauses have been very carefully scanned, and amendments have been given notice of to almost every clause. It cannot be said that it is an omission to give notice of amendments to this clause. When I read this clause, I cannot find anything objectionable in it. The objection, it seems to me, is to the inclusions of the words ' all lawful directions which a competent authority may issue in respect thereof '. I do not see how these words are offensive to the trustees. The trustees must deal with the property of the trusts as carefully as men of ordinary prudence would deal with such affairs, funds and properties as if they were their own. I am not able to see what is the particular sentence in this clause that is objectionable. The hon. Member Mr. Viswanatham stated that the words ' all lawful directions which a competent authority may issue in respect thereof ' should be removed. I do not at all see why the lawful directions of the competent authority should not be obeyed by a trustee. Sir, there is nothing for me to answer. The clause is self-explanatory, and there is nothing to be removed from it."

Clause 26 was put and carried.

Clause 27.

MR. SPEAKER :—" The motion is—

' That clause 27 do stand part of the Bill. '

Sub-clause (1) (a).

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" Sir, I move—

' At the end of sub-clause (1) (a), add the words " or any provisions made by the founder for filling up vacancies in the office of the trustees. " '

Sir, I think it is necessary, when we make a register of all these institutions, we must also have the information posted correctly

[21st November 1950] [Sri K. Bhashyam]

in these registers. Whatever it was in the original Act, we have now come to a position where the Government themselves recognize that hereditary trustees and their rights should be respected to some extent at least. Therefore, I think it will be best if these words are added to sub-clause (1) (a), namely, ' or any provisions made by the founder for filling up vacancies in the office of the trustee '. I think that it would be very useful to have recorded information on the point. If any dispute arises, the information can be had from a reference to the pages of the register maintained under clause 27. That is the only reason why I have brought forward this amendment. I am sure this amendment will help the Government."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—" Sir, I second the amendment."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" Sir; I see no objection to the principle of the amendment. I was under the impression that the words ' the names of past and present trustees and particulars as to the custom ' would satisfy. But, if the hon. Member Mr. Bhashyam would be satisfied, I have no objection to add the words ' usage or a provision or an arrangement in force ' after the word ' custom '. (The hon. Member Mr. K. Bhashyam indicated dissent.) Sir, I am unable to accept the amendment. I oppose it."

SRI K. BHASHYAM :—" Sir, the position is this. Where there are hereditary trustees, so many other additional persons are also appointed. But I would like that we must see how far the original founder has made provision in the matter of succession. My idea is, where the provisions of the founder are good and where they are calculated to be in support of the family or the persons round about, they ought to be there. That is the real object of my amendment. It is not as if we are concerned only with the custom and usage obtaining to-day. We know what is being done to-day. The Board appoints persons even though there are hereditary trustees and sometimes even more than the number of hereditary trustees so as to keep them a permanent minority. But I am not concerned with that now. What I want is we must see what provisions have been made by the founder and how far we have deviated from them, so that if possible, we may try to adhere to the founder's intentions."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" Sir, it is with the idea of accepting the principle advocated by my hon. Friend Sri Bhashyam that I agree to add the words ' usage or provision or any arrangement in force ' after the word ' custom '. But if my hon. Friend does not want it, I cannot accept his amendment."

MR. SPEAKER :—" The question is—

' That at the end of sub-clause (1) (a), the words " or any provisions made by the founder for filling up vacancies in the office of the trustees " be added. ' "

The amendment was lost.

Sub-clauses (1) (b) to (1) (e).

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, I move—

'That item (b) be omitted, items (c) to (e) be re-lettered as items (b) to (d) and after item (d) as so re-lettered, the following item be inserted:—

(e) particulars of all other endowments of the institution and of all title-deeds and other documents.'"

This is only a drafting alteration, Sir.

MR. SPEAKER:—"The question is—

'That item (b) be omitted, items (c) to (e) be re-lettered as items (b) to (d) and after item (d) as so re-lettered, the following item be inserted:—

(e) particulars of all other endowments of the institution and of all title-deeds and other documents.'"

The amendment was carried.

Sub-clause (1) (f).

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"Sir, I move—

'That in sub-clause (1) (f), after the word "images" in line 1, the words "or other valuable articles" be inserted.'

It is necessary not merely that these idols and other images should be listed out but also other valuable articles which are connected with the institution for being carried in processions. In some temples there are very valuable articles. It is good that the inventory takes note of all these things also."

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"I second the amendment, Sir."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, I submit what my hon. Friend wants is contained in sub-clause (e) which says—

'the jewels, gold, silver, precious stones, vessels and utensils, and other movables belonging to the institution, with their estimated value.'
'other movables' include other articles also."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"From that point of view it is not necessary to include 'idols and other images' also."

MR. SPEAKER:—"Other movables' would include other articles."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"The Government have made a distinction and rightly with regard to idols and images which are connected with the institution, whether intended for worship or for being carried in processions. They are not covered by other movables. They are of a special character and special sanctity. There is really that difference in temples. Similarly, other articles are not covered by other movables. Therefore, let him accept my amendment. There is no harm in accepting it."

21st November 1950]

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"If my hon. Friend is so meticulous about it, I would have no objection to add in sub-clause (e) the words 'and articles' after the word 'movables'."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The question is—

'That in sub-clause (1) (f), after the word "images" in line 1, the words "or other valuable articles" be inserted.'"

The amendment was lost.

Sub-clause (1) (g).

SRI K. BHASHYAM:—"Sir, I move—

'That sub-clause (1) (g) be deleted.'

The question is whether it is necessary to have another provision saying, 'such other particulars as may be required by the Commissioner.' Unless there is a change in the clauses relating to list, there is no need for this clause. If this provision is there, the officers will go on asking for particulars. It will be a source of a number of pinpricks. Therefore, I suggest that this sub-clause may be omitted."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM:—"I second the amendment, Sir. My hon. Friend is perfectly right in his suggestion. Just as we do not like any foreign matter in our body so also this sub-clause may be omitted."

SRI V. RAGHAVAYYA:—"Sir, I think this is a very harmless and innocent provision. What is the harm in having this sub-clause by way of abundant caution? Suppose a thing does not come under any of these things. Then we will require this provision. However, this is a provision against contingencies. I do not think there is any necessity to oppose this sub-clause."

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON:—"Sir, the idea is to have a register containing information for the present and for the future also. That register must be as complete as possible. My hon. Friends Sri Bhashyam and Sri Viswanatham say that the other provisions are sufficient to have a complete list. But if any further particular is required, we want to have power to get at it. After all, this is only to record as much information as possible. Section 38 (f) of the existing Act has a similar provision. Apart from that, the idea is that the register must contain as full information as possible. Therefore, this sub-clause is necessary. I cannot accept the amendment."

MR. SPEAKER:—"The question is—

'That sub-clause (1) (g) be deleted.'"

The amendment was lost.

[21st November 1950]

Sub-clause (2).

THE HON. SRI K. MADHAVA MENON :—" Sir, I move—
'That the words "not exceeding three months" in sub-clause (2) be omitted.'

The sub-clause, as it is, says that any objection must be preferred by the affected parties within a period of three months. Three months may not be sufficient time. So, it is proposed that they may prefer the objections at any time. We do not want to limit the period."

SRI N. S. VARADACHARI :—" Sir, while I agree with the object of the Government, I want to know whether they could make available to certain interested sections of the public a complete inventory of all the properties of the institution and all movables and valuables so that they may be able to prefer any objection. Otherwise, objections can be raised only by Members and Committees and the like. The register will perhaps be prepared under the supervision of some official or other. It is just possible that important items are omitted. Therefore, I want to know from the Hon. Minister whether it would be possible to publish or make available to those interested in the institutions a list of the properties."

SRI T. VISWANATHAM :—" Sir, what is the matter about time-limit? What is the obligation on the part of the trustees to make out the lists within three months? "
