RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE WORLD WAR

Mr. Shipstead submitted the following concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 32), which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations:

Whereas article 231 of the treaty of Versailles declares as follows:

"The allied and associated powers affirm, and Germany acknowledges, that Germany and its allies are guilty of having caused all losses and damages which the allied and associated governments and their nations suffered in consequence of the war, which was forced upon them by Germany and its allies";

And

Whereas said article was founded on a judicial opinion of the Entente Commission of Fifteen appointed by the victors on January 25, 1919, "to determine the responsibility of the war and punishment therefor"; and

Whereas the American Government was a party to said judicial opinion, which was approved and signed by its two delegates on the said commission, namely, Robert Lansing, chairman of the commission, and James Brown Scott; and

Whereas such a judgment, to have had any legal or moral authority, should have been pronounced by an impartial tribunal after careful study of the evidence and hearing both sides; and

Whereas since the formation of the treaty of Versailles abundance of testimony has appeared from the archives of the allied as well as the central powers, and from other sources, showing that the said article 231 was based on hysteria, hypocrisy, and falsifications "forged in the fires of war"; and

Whereas distinguished historians and statesmen of the United States, Great Britain, Canada, Italy, Russia, France, and Serbia, as well as Germany and Austria, have declared that the evidence now available is sufficient to warrant a just and reasonable attitude on the part of the victors and a reconsideration of the judgment, which they allege was manifestly unjust, violative of judicial principles and legal procedure, and a grave obstacle to international understanding; and

Whereas the establishment of the facts and the truth as to the origin of the war is vital to a reconciliation of the peoples of Europe and to their moral disarmament: Therefore be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate and the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the House of Representatives are hereby authorized and directed (1) to hold an inquiry, either separately or jointly, for the purpose of determining whether in view of the new evidence and other official material the time is appropriate for the American Government, inspired by the sense of justice and fair play, to recommend to the allied powers either to amend article 231 of the treaty of Versailles without further delay or to announce severally their intention to disregard it and to propose to the allied powers that the question of the responsibility for the World War be submitted to a commission of neutrals, and (2) to report to the Congress the result of such inquiry on or before March 4, 1931.

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ON SILVER

Mr. Bratton (for Mr. King), by unanimous consent, submitted the following resolution (S. Res. 296):

Whereas the United States is a large producer of silver and in its production many thousands of American citizens find employment; and

Whereas the Government of the United States has in its Treasury silver bullion valued at more than $6,500,000; 494,000,000 coined silver dollars, against which silver certificates have been issued, and silver coins, consisting of half and quarter dollars and dimes, of the face value of more than $5,000,000, and has in circulation more than $38,500,000 and silver half dollars, quarter dollars, and dimes of the face value of more than $281,000,000, all of which were purchased at prices much higher than those now prevailing for silver bullion, and any further decline, measured by gold, in the price of silver will result in additional losses to the Government; and

Whereas the use of silver in trade and commerce and for monetary purposes is essential, not only in the United States but throughout the world; and

Whereas a considerable part of the foreign trade of the United States is with countries in which silver is extensively used as a medium of exchange, and if the price of silver is further depressed the purchasing power of many countries will be materially reduced, to their injury as well as to the injury of the United States; and

Whereas China and India, which represent more than one-half of the world's population, have been the principal consumers of silver, and any policy that will further depress the price of silver or prevent its advancement to normal levels will injuriously affect the economic and industrial conditions of the United States, as well as of other countries; and

Whereas it will be advantageous for the United States to expand its foreign trade and commerce, and particularly to find markets for its surplus products in the Orient and in all silver-producing countries, such as Canada, Mexico, Bolivia, and Peru; and

Whereas efforts are being made to induce China to demonitize silver and adopt a fiscal policy calling for a new currency based upon a gold-standard fund, and to further debase silver and curtail its use in India, which said efforts, if successful, will result in a further destructive decline in the price of silver and in economic and industrial injury not alone to silver-producing countries but to all countries of the world; and

Whereas it is important not only to countries producing silver but to all countries engaged in trade and commerce that measures be adopted to avert the disastrous consequences that will inevitably follow a further decline in the price of silver, and to secure an international agreement or the adoption of an international policy that will stabilize the price of silver and obtain for it a suitable status in the monetary systems of the world; and

Whereas it is believed by many persons that an international conference should be called for the purpose of considering and taking action upon the questions herein referred to: Therefore be it

Resolved, That the President of the United States be, and he is hereby, requested to confer with such governments as he may deem proper and through such agencies as he may see fit for the purpose of ascertaining whether economic and other conditions are propitious for the convening of an international conference to consider and devise plans to increase the use of silver for monetary and other purposes, and to bring about the stabilization of the price of silver; and be it further

Resolved, That the President be requested to inform Congress of his proceedings hereunder and the results thereof.

Ordered, That the resolution lie on the table.

A joint resolution (S. J. Res. 202) providing for the calling of an international trade and agricultural conference; to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

COMMERCE AND TRADE WITH CHINA

Mr. Pittman submitted the following resolution (S. Res. 302), which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate:

Whereas the Senate on May 29 (calendar day June 2), 1930, agreed to S. Res. 256, "authorizing an examination and study of stipulations relating to commerce in existing treaties of the United States and other governments with the Republic of China, and conditions that may affect our commerce and trade with China"; and

Whereas said resolution provides, "The expenses of the committee, which shall not exceed $20,000, shall be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate upon vouchers approved by the chairman": Therefore be it

Resolved, That said expenditures provided in said Senate Resolution 256 are hereby authorized and approved as provided in said resolution.

Mr. Deneen, from the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, to whom was referred the foregoing resolution, subsequently reported it without amendment.

The Senate proceeded, by unanimous consent, to consider the said resolution; and

Resolved, That the Senate agree to the same and to the preamble thereto.

SALE OF POWER AT WILSON DAM

Mr. Black submitted the following resolution (S. Res. 303):

Resolved, That it is the sense of the Senate that pending the enactment of legislation providing for the disposition of power generated by the Government power plant at Wilson Dam, the Secretary of War should not discriminate against municipalities in the sale of said power, but should sell power to municipalities applying for same, upon as liberal terms and conditions as such power is sold to private power companies.

Ordered, That the resolution lie over one day under the rule.

TRAVEL EXPENSES OF CERTAIN SENATE EMPLOYEES

Mr. Bingham submitted the following resolution (S. Res. 304), which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate is authorized and directed to pay from the contingent fund of the Senate to the secretary, or to one assistant secretary of the Vice President, or of any Senator, who in the course of his official duties is required to travel from Washington, D. C., to the legal residence of the Senator and return, a sum to cover the cost of such travel, which shall be calculated on a basis of 8 cents a mile by the most direct and customary route: Provided, That such travel shall not exceed one round trip for any regular, extra, or special session of Congress: Provided further, That such payment shall be made only upon certification by the Vice President or by the Senator by whom the secretary or assistant secretary is employed, that the travel was requisite and necessary in the discharge of his official duties.

FLOTATION OF FOREIGN INVESTMENT SECURITIES IN UNITED STATES

Mr. Glass submitted the following resolution (S. Res. 305):

Whereas the Senate by Resolution 293, passed June 16, 1930, requested the Secretary of State to inform the Senate (1) "upon what authorization of law, constitutional or statutory, expressed or implied, does the State Department base its right either to approve or disapprove investment securities offered for sale in the money markets of the United States by foreign governments, corporations, or individuals," and (2) "by what sanction of law, constitutional or statutory, does the State Department assume the right to direct action of the Federal Reserve Board or banks with respect to their lawful powers concerning the business of banking in foreign countries or the investments of these banks in foreign securities offered in the money markets of the United States"; and

Whereas the Secretary of State, as of June 20, 1930, responded to clause 1 of said Senate resolution by referring the Senate to Article II of the Constitution of the United States and to section 202 of the Revised Statutes as authority for the exercise of the functions referred to in clause 1 of said Senate resolution; and

Whereas the Secretary of State, in response to clause 2 of said Senate resolution, asserts that "the Department of State has not assumed the right to direct the action of the Federal Reserve Board or banks with respect to their lawful powers," as mentioned in Senate Resolution 293, and in this connection refers the Senate to an official statement of the Secretary of State issued May 16, 1929; and

Whereas a careful inspection of Article II of the Constitution of the United States and of section 202 of the Revised Statutes discloses no single sentence which, explicitly or impliedly, authorizes the action taken by the Department of State with respect to the flotation of foreign investment loans on the money markets of the United States; and

Whereas a careful examination of the statement issued by the Secretary of State on May 16, 1929, reveals the exact declaration that the department "will not permit any officials of the Federal reserve system either to themselves serve or to select American representatives as members of the proposed international bank": Therefore be it

Resolved, That it is the sense of the Senate that the Department of State, having no legal sanction for the action mentioned in Senate Resolution 293 with respect to investment securities offered in the money markets of the United States by foreign governments, corporations, or individuals, should desist from the dangerous practice of involving the United States Government in any responsibility of whatever nature, either by approval or disapproval, for foreign investment loans floated in this country, and should refrain from assuming authority over the Federal Reserve Board and banks or officials thereof with respect to matters which, by express authority of law, are confided to them and not to the Department of State.

Ordered, That the resolution lie on the table.

The bill having been further amended on the motion of Mr. Hayden,

On motion by Mr. McKellar, on behalf of the Committee on Appropriations, to further amend the bill by inserting on page 120, after line 20, the following:

Toward rebuilding and resurfacing with concrete the road situated in Shiloh National Military Park in Tennessee from the original boundaries of the park to the Corinth National Cemetery at Corinth, Mississippi, at a total limit of cost of $306,000, propriated in the military affairs appropriation act approved May 28, 1930, to be expended under the direction of the Secretary of War under the terms of this act instead of under the terms of said act of May 28, 1930: Provided, That the State of Tennessee will build a like concrete road from the boundaries of Shiloh National Park northward to connect with Tennessee State Highway Numbered 15, a distance of about five miles, such road to be built prior to the completion of the road provided for herein.

Mr. Jones raised a question of order, viz, that the amendment was new legislation on a general appropriation bill, and was not in order under Rule XVI.

The Vice President overruled the point of order, stating:

"The original act of 1894 provides:

"'That to enable the Secretary of War to begin to carry out the purpose of this act, including the condemnation or purchase of the necessary land, marking the boundaries of the park, opening or repairing necessary roads'—

"And so forth. The Chair thinks under that law the amendment is in order."

The amendment was then agreed to.

On motion by Mr. Harrison to further amend the bill by inserting on page 30, after line 16, the following:

Market news service: For an additional amount to enable the Secretary of Agriculture to collect, publish, and distribute by telegraph, mail, or otherwise timely information on the current market prices of cottonseed and cottonseed products independently and in cooperation with State agencies, purchasing and consuming organizations, and persons engaged in the production, transportation, marketing, and distribution of cottonseed and cottonseed products, $25,000.

Mr. Jones raised a question of order, viz, that the amendment was general legislation.

On motion by Mr. Harrison, pursuant to notice heretofore given, to suspend paragraph 3 of Rule XVI, for the purpose of proposing the foregoing amendment,

It was determined in the affirmative, two-thirds of the Senators present having voted therefor.

Mr. Harrison thereupon proposed the said amendment; and the same was agreed to.

The bill was then further amended on the motion of Mr. McMaster, the motion of Mr. Tydings, the motion of Mr. Vandenberg, and the motion of Mr. Walsh of Montana.

On motion by Mr. Trammell to further amend the bill by inserting on page 127, after line 8, the following:

Caloosahatchee River and Lake Okeechobee drainage areas, Florida: For improvement of the Caloosahatchee River and Lake Okeechobee drainage areas, Florida, on account of emergency flood conditions, to be expended under the direction of the Secretary of War and supervision of the Chief of Engineers in accordance with the report submitted in Senate Document Numbered 115, Seventy-first Congress, second session, $2,000,000, to remain available until expended.

Mr. Jones raised a question of order, viz, that the amendment had not been estimated for, and had not been reported by a standing committee of the Senate.

The Vice President sustained the point of order.

On motion by Mr. Black to further amend the bill by inserting on page 123, after line 14, the following:

Acquisition of land, Maxwell Field, Alabama: For the acquisition of additional land in the vicinity of and for use in connection with the present military reservation at Maxwell Field, Alabama, fiscal year 1931, to remain available until expended, $200,000.

Mr. Jones raised a question of order, viz, that the amendment had not been estimated for.

The Vice President overruled the point of order, on the ground that the amendment proposed to carry out the provisions of an act that had passed both Houses of Congress during the present session.

The amendment was then agreed to.

On motion by Mr. Blaine to further amend the bill by inserting on page 35, after line 25, the following:

Coast Guard station on the coast of Green Bay at or in the vicinity of Strawberry Passage, in Door County, Wisconsin: For the construction and equipment of a Coast Guard station on the coast of Green Bay at or in the vicinity of Strawberry Passage, in Door County, Wisconsin, at such point as the commandant of the Coast Guard may recommend, as authorized by the act entitled "An act to authorize the establishment of a Coast Guard station on the coast of Green Bay at or in the vicinity of Strawberry Passage, in Door County, Wisconsin," approved September 21, 1922, $35,000 to be available until expended.

Mr. Jones raised a question of order, viz, that it had not been estimated for, had not been reported from a standing committee, and was unauthorized by legislation.

Mr. Blaine having stated that the legislation authorizing the construction of the equipment of such a station had been approved on September 21, 1922,

The Vice President overruled the question of order; and the amendment was then agreed to.

The Senate resumed the consideration of the reported amendment inserting lines 2 to 15, both inclusive, on page 7, providing for an investigation of prohibition enforcement.

On motion by Mr. Jones to amend the said amendment by inserting in lieu of the language contained in the amendment certain words,

EXECUTIVE SESSION

On motion by Mr. Borah,

The Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business.

LONDON NAVAL TREATY

The following message was received from the President of the United States, by Mr. Latta, his secretary, which was read:

To the Senate:

In requesting the Senate to convene in session for the special purpose of dealing with the treaty for the limitation and reduction of naval armament signed at London April 22, 1930, it is desirable that I should present my views upon it. This is especially necessary because of misinformation and misrepresentation which has been widespread by those who in reality are opposed to all limitation and reduction in naval arms. We must naturally expect opposition from those groups who believe in unrestricted military strength as an objective of the American Nation. Indeed, we find the same type of minds in Great Britain and Japan in parallel opposition to this treaty. Nevertheless, I am convinced that the overwhelming majority of the American people are opposed to the conception of these groups. Our people believe that military strength should be held in conformity with the sole purpose of national defense; they earnestly desire real progress in limitation and reduction of naval arms of the world, and their aspiration is for abolition of competition in the building of arms as a step toward world peace. Such a result can be obtained in no other way than by international agreement.

The present treaty is one which holds these safeguards and advances these ideals. Its ratification is in the interest of the United States. It is fair to the other participating nations. It promotes the cause of good relations.

The only alternative to this treaty is the competitive building of navies with all its flow of suspicion, hate, ill will, and ultimate disaster. History supports those who hold to agreement as the path to peace. Every naval limitation treaty with which we are familiar, from the Rush-Bagot agreement of 1817, limiting vessels of war on the Great Lakes, to the Washington arms treaty of 1921, has resulted in a marked growth of good will and confidence between the nations which were parties to it.

It is folly to think that because we are the richest nation in the world we can outbuild all other countries. Other nations will make any sacrifice to maintain their instruments of defense against us, and we shall eventually reap in their hostility and ill will the full measure of the additional burden which we may thus impose upon them. The very entry of the United States into such courses as this would invite the consolidation of the rest of the world against us and bring our peace and independence into jeopardy. We have only to look at the state of Europe in 1914 to find ample evidence of the futility and danger of competition in arms.

It will be remembered that in response to recommendations from the Senate a conference between the United States, Great Britain, and Japan, for limitation of those categories of naval arms not covered by the Washington treaty of 1921 was held at Geneva in 1927. That conference failed because the United States could not agree to the large size of fleets demanded by other governments. The standards set up at that time would have required an ultimate fleet of about 1,400,000 tons for the United States. As against this the total United States fleet set out under this treaty will be about 1,123,000 tons.

Defense is the primary function of government, and therefore our first concern in examination of any act of this character is the test of its adequacy in defense. No critic has yet asserted that with the navies provided in this agreement, together with our Army, our aerial defense, and our national resources, we can not defend ourselves; and certainly we want no Military Establishment for the purpose of domination of other nations. Our naval-defense position under this treaty is the more clear if we examine our present naval strength in comparison to the present strength of the other nations and then examine the improvements in this proportion which will result from this treaty. This improvement arises from the anticipation of parity in battleships to be reached 10 years hence under the Washington arms treaty and the fact that other nations have been building in the classes of ships not limited by that treaty, while we, until lately, lagged behind.

On the 1st of January last the total naval tonnage, disregarding paper fleets, and taking only those ships actually built and building, was, for the United States 1,180,000 tons; for the British Empire 1,332,000 tons; for Japan 768,000 tons. That is, if the United States Navy be taken as 100, then the British Navy equals 113 and the Japanese Navy 65. Under this treaty the United States will have 1,123,000 tons, Great Britain 1,151,000 tons, and Japan 714,000 tons, or a ratio of 100 for the United States to 102.4 for Great Britain and 63.6 for Japan. The slightly larger tonnage ratio mentioned for Great Britain is due to the fact that her cruiser fleet will be constituted more largely of smaller vessels, weaker in gun power, but the United States has the option to duplicate the exact tonnage and gun caliber of the British cruiser fleet if we desire to exercise it.

The relative improvement in the position of the United States under this treaty is even better than this statement would indicate. In the more important categories—battleships, aircraft carriers, 8-inch and 6-inch cruisers, that is, omitting the secondary arms of destroyers and submarines—the fleet built and actually building on January 1 of this year was 809,000 tons in the United States, 1,088,000 tons in Great Britain, and 568,000 tons in Japan, or upon the basis of 100 for the United States it was 134 for Great Britain and 70 for Japan. Under this treaty the United States will on January 1, 1937, possess, completed, 911,000 tons of these major units, Great Britain 948,000 tons, and Japan 556,000 tons. In addition, the United States will have one 10,000-ton 8-inch cruiser two-thirds completed. This will give a ratio in these categories of 100 for the United States to 102.9 for Great Britain and 60.5 for Japan. The reason for the excess British tonnage is again as mentioned above. In other words, the United States, in these categories, increases by 102,000 tons, Great Britain decreases by 140,000 tons, and Japan decreases by 12,000 tons. These readjustments of units are to take place during the next six years. The treaty then comes to an end except for such arrangements as may be made then for its continuance.

The major discussion has been directed almost wholly to the fact that the United States is to have 18 cruisers armed with 8-inch guns, with an aggregate tonnage of 180,000 tons, as against Great Britain's 15 such ships, with a tonnage of 146,800 tons and Japan's 12 such ships of a tonnage of 108,400 tons; the United States supplementing this tonnage with cruisers armed with 6-inch guns up to a total of 323,500 tons, Great Britain up to 339,000 tons, and Japan to 208,800 tons; the larger gross tonnage to Great Britain, as stated, being compensation for the larger gun caliber of the American cruiser fleet; but, as said, the United States has the option to duplicate the British fleet, if it so desires.

Criticism of this arrangement arises from the fact that the General Board of the United States Navy recommended that to reach parity with Great Britain the United States should have three more of the 10,000-ton cruisers (21 instead of 18), with 8-inch guns, and a total of 315,000 tons, or 8,000 tons less total cruiser tonnage than this treaty provides. Thus this treaty provides that instead of this 30,000 tons more of 8-inch ships recommended by the General Board, we will have 38,000 tons of ships armed with 6-inch guns, there being no limitation upon the size of cruisers up to 10,000 tons. Therefore criticism revolves around less than 3 per cent of our whole fleet, and even within this 3 per cent comes the lesser question of whether 30,000 tons of ships armed with 8-inch guns are better than 38,000 tons armed with 6-inch guns. The opinion of our high naval authorities is divided on the relative merits of these alternatives. Many earnestly believe that the larger tonnage of 6-inch ships is more advantageous and others vice versa. However, those who seek to make this the outstanding feature of criticism fail to mention that under the London treaty the obligation of the Washington arms treaty of 1921 is so altered that Great Britain scraps 133,900 tons of battleships armed with 13½-inch guns, the United States scraps 70,000 tons of battleships armed with 12-inch guns, and Japan scraps 26,300 tons. These arrangements are made not only for reduction of arms but to anticipate the ultimate parity between the United States and Great Britain in battleships which would not otherwise be realized for several years.

There is in this provision a relative gain in proportions compared with the British fleet of 63,900 tons of battleships with 13½-inch guns. This is of vastly more importance than the dispute as to the relative combatant strength of 38,000 tons of 6-inch cruisers against 30,000 tons of 8-inch cruisers. Indeed, it would seem that such criticisms must be based upon an undisclosed desire to break down all limitation of arms.

To those who seek earnestly and properly for reduction in warships, I would point out that as compared with January 1 of this year, the total aggregate navies of the three powers under this treaty will have been reduced by nearly 300,000 tons. Had a settlement been made at Geneva in 1927 upon the only proposal possible at that time, the fleets of the three powers would have been approximately 680,000 tons greater than under the treaty now in consideration.

The economic burdens and the diversion of taxes from welfare purposes which would be imposed upon ourselves and other nations by failure of this treaty are worth consideration. Under its provisions the replacement of battleships required under the Washington arms treaty of 1921 is postponed for six years. The costs of replacing and maintaining the three scrapped battleships is saved. Likewise we make economies in construction and operation by the reduction in our submarine and destroyer fleets to 52,700 and 150,000 tons, respectively. What the possible saving over an otherwise inevitable era of competitive building would be no one can estimate.

If we assume that our present naval program, except for this treaty, is to complete the ships authorized by Congress and those authorized and necessary to be replaced under the Washington arms treaty, and to maintain a destroyer fleet of about 225,000 tons and a submarine fleet of 90,000 tons, such a fleet will not reach parity with Great Britain, yet would cost in construction over $500,000,000 more during the next six years than the fleet provided under this treaty. But in addition to this, as stated, there is a very large saving by this treaty in annual operation of the fleet over what would be the case if we even built no more than the present programs.

The more selfish minded will give little credence to the argument that savings by other parties to the agreement in the limitation of naval construction are of interest to the American people, yet the fundamental economic fact is that if the resources of these other nations are freed for devotion to the welfare of their people and to pacific purposes of reproductive commerce, they will result in blessings to the world, including ourselves. If we were to accept the Geneva conference base as the end of naval strength under competitive building for the three Governments, the savings in construction and operation by the treaty is literally billions of dollars.

The question before us now is not whether we shall have a treaty with either three more 8-inch cruisers or four less 6-inch cruisers, or whether we shall have a larger reduction in tonnage. It is whether we shall have this treaty or no treaty. It is a question as to whether we shall move strongly toward limitation and reduction in naval arms or whether we shall have no limitation or reduction and shall enter upon a disastrous period of competitive armament.

This treaty does mark an important step in disarmament and in world peace. It is important for many reasons that it should be dealt with at once. The subject has been under discussion since the Geneva conference three years ago. The lines of this treaty have been known and under discussion since last summer. The actual document has been before the American people and before the Senate for nearly three months. It has been favorably reported by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Every solitary fact which affects judgment upon the treaty is known, and the document itself comprises the sole obligation of the United States. If we fail now, the world will be again plunged backward from its progress toward peace.

HERBERT HOOVER.

Whereas that committee received only a part of such documents; and

Whereas the Secretary of State, by direction of the President, denied a second request from the Foreign Relations Committee for the papers above described, and in his letter to the chairman of that committee the Secretary of State has apparently attempted to establish the doctrine that the treaty of London must be considered by the Senate "from the language of the document itself and not from extraneous matters"; and

Whereas that committee dissented from such doctrine and regarded all facts which enter into the antecedent or attempted negotiation of any treaty as relevant and pertinent when the Senate is considering a treaty for the purpose of ratification; and

Whereas that committee continued to assert its rights as the designated agent of the Senate to have full and free access to all records, files, and other information touching the negotiation of the treaty, such right being based on the constitutional prerogative of the Senate in the treaty-making process; and

We have agreed that all disputes should be settled by pacific means. Both our governments resolve to accept the peace pact not only as a declaration of good intentions but as a positive obligation to direct national policy in accordance with this policy":

Whereas since the launching of the campaign by Gandhi to obtain for the people of India their national independence by civil disobedience and allied nonviolent means, British armed forces are being freely and ruthlessly used to thwart the people's determination to be free;

Whereas even the strictly British-censored news dispatches by neutral American correspondents tell us of the wholesale massacres of peaceful Indian people by British police, British soldiers, and British auxiliary forces;

Whereas British armored cars and patrol tanks have been deliberately driven over the bodies of peaceful demonstrators, killing, maiming, and injuring hundreds of men, women, and children;

Whereas British airplanes are bombing the civil population of India, their homes and their women and children, wiping out villages and harvests, and in a single day five thousand 120-pound bombs were dropped in one district by 82 airplanes;

Whereas British cavalry and other armed forces have freely been used to disperse peaceful demonstrations in Bombay and other cities, killing and injuring hundreds of men, women, and children;

Whereas Britain has revived flogging and public whipping, punishments long ago relegated by the civilized world to the age of barbarism;

Whereas Britain has refused and is refusing to give medical aid to those maimed and slain by her atrocities and British armed forces are destroying medicines, medical appliances, and even emergency hospitals of Indian nationalists in shameful violation of the laws of humanity and of the International Red Cross covenants; and

Whereas Britain has replaced the rule of the law by the rule of the sword and executive ordinances, such as the Bengal ordinance whereby any Indian can be arrested and detained without warrant and without trial; the press ordinance, which has virtually muzzled and suppressed the Indian press; the judicial ordinance of Lahore, legalizing trials without jury and denying any appeal against any judgment by any British tribunal; the seditious-meetings ordinance, prohibiting any assembly of more than five to discuss any matter of any interest; the instigation and intimidation ordinance, prohibiting criticism of any act of the Government; and other similar measures: Be it therefore

Resolved, That the Senate of the United States deplores such acts of violence, infamy, and inhumanity committed by one signatory of the Kellogg pact against another signatory of the peace pact; and be it further

Resolved, That as India is an original signatory of the Kellogg-Briand peace pact the United States Senate instructs the State Department to use its best offices to insure peaceful settlement of the Indian struggle, with no abridgment of the just rights of the people of India, who are seeking to emulate our own national independence.

Ordered, That the resolution lie on the table.

LONDON NAVAL TREATY

The Senate, in executive session, resumed the consideration of the treaty for the limitation and reduction of naval armament, signed at London on April 22, 1930.

Pending debate,

The following proceedings were had, as in legislative session, by unanimous consent:

CONSTRUCTION OF NAVAL VESSELS

Mr. Walsh of Massachusetts submitted the following resolution (S. Res. 328):

Whereas it is the sincere desire of the American people to establish a material reduction in naval armament throughout the world; and

Whereas the United States has participated in three naval conferences with the object in view of urging upon other nations its purpose and desire to reduce its naval armament and to cooperate with other nations to the same end in order that the peoples of the world may be relieved of the crushing burdens necessitated by maintaining their present military establishments, and because of the conviction that world peace is more likely to be preserved by the maintenance of minimum navies by the great powers of the world; and

Whereas all American experts and delegates, including Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, whose statement, "We (the American delegates) were horrified to find that in these auxiliary classes the United States was in a condition of almost hopeless inferiority", give irrefutable and overwhelming testimony that there was a failure to make any material progress in actual naval armament reduction at the three conferences which have been held since the World War, due to the fact that the American Navy was proportionately inferior to the navies of Great Britain and Japan at the convening of the last two conferences; and

Whereas it is the opinion of American delegates and observers that no conference will result in bringing about a substantial limitation of naval armament in the world unless at future conferences the United States is in a position to scrap its proportional share of naval craft with other powers; and

Whereas it is the desire of the United States Government to remove all possible obstacles that have heretofore caused a failure to accomplish material naval reduction, and because of the sincere desire of the American people to promote world peace and lessen the tax burdens of its peoples and the peoples of the world in future maintenance of large military establishments; and

Whereas the London treaty seeks to establish a definite naval parity between the contracting nations and, therefore, is tantamount to legalizing the right of each nation concerned to maintain a navy of the actual strength defined in the treaty, and, therefore, when other nations are maintaining maximum navies permitted under the actual parity set up, the failure of the United States in this respect is an admission to the world of our purpose to maintain a navy of actual inferior strength to what our needs require, and agreed upon by the American delegates at London: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate of the United States, in the event that this treaty is ratified, favors the substantial completion by December 31, 1936, of all cruisers mounting guns in excess of 6.1 inches, all aircraft carriers, all destroyers, and all submarines permitted under the treaty for the limitation and reduction of naval armament, signed at London on April 22, 1930.

Ordered, That the resolution lie on the table.
