ADDRESS OF THE PRESIDENT

On motion by Mr. Robinson,

The Senate proceeded to the Hall of the House of Representatives for the joint assembly of the two Houses, authorized by House Concurrent Resolution 1, for the purpose of receiving a communication from the President of the United States; and

The two Houses being assembled,

The President of the United States addressed them as follows:

Mr. President, Mr. Speaker, Members of the Senate and of the House of Representatives, the Constitution wisely provides that the Chief Executive shall report to the Congress on the state of the Union, for through you, the chosen legislative representatives, our citizens everywhere may fairly judge the progress of our governing. I am confident that today, in the light of the events of the past 2 years, you do not consider it merely a trite phrase when I tell you that I am truly glad to greet you and that I look forward to common counsel, to useful cooperation, and to genuine friendships between us.

We have undertaken a new order of things; yet we progress towards it under the framework and in the spirit and intent of the American Constitution. We have proceeded throughout the Nation a measurable distance on the road towards this new order. Materially I can report to you substantial benefits to our agricultural population, increased industrial activity, and profits to our merchants. Of equal moment, there is evident a restoration of that spirit of confidence and faith which marks the American character. Let him who, for speculative profit or partisan purpose, without just warrant, would seek to disturb or dispel this assurance, take heed before he assumes responsibility for any act which slows our onward steps.

Throughout the world change is the order of the day. In every nation economic problems, long in the making, have brought crises of many kinds for which the masters of old practice and theory were unprepared. In most nations social justice, no longer a distant ideal, has become a definite goal, and ancient governments are beginning to heed the call.

Thus the American people do not stand alone in the world in their desire for change. We seek it through tested liberal traditions, through processes which retain all of the deep essentials of that republican form of representative government first given to a troubled world by the United States.

As the various parts in the program begun in the extraordinary session of the Seventy-third Congress shape themselves in practical administration, the unity of our program reveals itself to the Nation. The outlines of the new economic order, rising from the disintegration of the old, are apparent. We test what we have done as our measures take root in the living texture of life. We see where we have built wisely and where we can do still better.

The attempt to make a distinction between recovery and reform is a narrowly conceived effort to substitute the appearance of reality for reality itself. When a man is convalescing from illness, wisdom dictates not only cure of the symptoms but also removal of their cause.

It is important to recognize that while we seek to outlaw specific abuses, the American objective of today has an infinitely deeper, finer, and more lasting purpose than mere repression. Thinking people in almost every country of the world have come to realize certain fundamental difficulties with which civilization must reckon. Rapid changes—the machine age, the advent of universal and rapid communication, and many other new factors have brought new problems. Succeeding generations have attempted to keep pace by reforming in piecemeal fashion this or that attendant abuse. As a result, evils overlap and reform becomes confused and frustrated. We lose sight, from time to time, of our ultimate human objectives.

Let us, for a moment, strip from our simple purpose the confusion that results from a multiplicity of detail and from millions of written and spoken words.

We find our population suffering from old inequalities, little changed by past sporadic remedies. In spite of our efforts and in spite of our talk, we have not weeded out the overprivileged and we have not effectively lifted up the underprivileged. Both of these manifestations of injustice have retarded happiness. No wise man has any intention of destroying what is known as the "profit motive"; because by the profit motive we mean the right by work to earn a decent livelihood for ourselves and for our families.

We have, however, a clear mandate from the people that Americans must forswear that conception of the acquisition of wealth which, through excessive profits, creates undue private power over private affairs, and, to our misfortune, over public affairs as well. In building toward this end we do not destroy ambition nor do we seek to divide our wealth into equal shares on stated occasions. We continue to recognize the greater ability of some to earn more than others. But we do assert that the ambition of the individual to obtain for him and his a proper security, a reasonable leisure, and a decent living throughout life is an ambition to be preferred to the appetite for great wealth and great power.

I recall to your attention my message to the Congress last June, in which I said, "Among our objectives I place the security of the men, women, and children of the Nation first." That remains our first and continuing task; and in a very real sense every major legislative enactment of this Congress should be a component part of it.

In defining immediate factors which enter into our quest, I have spoken to the Congress and the people of three great divisions:

First. The security of a livelihood through the better use of the national resources of the land in which we live.

Second. The security against the major hazards and vicissitudes of life.

Third. The security of decent homes.

I am now ready to submit to the Congress a broad program designed ultimately to establish all three of these factors of security—a program which because of many lost years will take many future years to fulfill.

A study of our national resources, more comprehensive than any previously made, shows the vast amount of necessary and practicable work which needs to be done for the development and preservation of our natural wealth for the enjoyment and advantage of our people in generations to come. The sound use of land and water is far more comprehensive than the mere planting of trees, building of dams, distributing of electricity, or retirement of submarginal land. It recognizes that stranded populations, either in the country or the city, cannot have security under the conditions that now surround them.

To this end we are ready to begin to meet this problem—the intelligent care of population throughout our Nation in accordance with an intelligent distribution of the means of livelihood for that population. A definite program for putting people to work, of which I shall speak in a moment, is a component part of this greater program of security of livelihood through the better use of our national resources.

Closely related to the broad problem of livelihood is that of security against the major hazards of life. Here also a comprehensive survey of what has been attempted or accomplished in many nations and in many States proves to me that the time has come for action by the National Government. I shall send to you in a few days definite recommendations based on these studies. These recommendations will cover the broad subjects of unemployment insurance and old-age insurance, of benefits for children, for mothers, for the handicapped, for maternity care, and for other aspects of dependency and illness where a beginning can now be made.

The third factor—better homes for our people—has also been the subject of experimentation and study. Here, too, the first practical steps can be made through the proposals which I shall suggest in relation to giving work to the unemployed.

Whatever we plan and whatever we do should be in the light of these three clear objectives of security. We cannot afford to lose valuable time in haphazard public policies which cannot find a place in the broad outlines of these major purposes. In that spirit I come to an immediate issue made for us by hard and inescapable circumstance—the task of putting people to work. In the spring of 1933 the issue of destitution seemed to stand apart; today, in the light of our experience and our new national policy, we find we can put people to work in ways which conform to, initiate, and carry forward the broad principles of that policy.

The first objectives of emergency legislation of 1933 were to relieve destitution, to make it possible for industry to operate in a more rational and orderly fashion, and to put behind industrial recovery the impulse of large expenditures in Government undertakings. The purpose of the National Industrial Recovery Act to provide work for more people succeeded in a substantial manner within the first few months of its life, and the act has continued to maintain employment gains and greatly improved working conditions in industry.

The program of public works provided for in the Recovery Act launched the Federal Government into a task for which there was little time to make preparation and little American experience to follow. Great employment has been given and is being given by these works.

More than $2,000,000,000 have also been expended in direct relief to the destitute. Local agencies of necessity determined the recipients of this form of relief. With inevitable exceptions, the funds were spent by them with reasonable efficiency, and as a result actual want of food and clothing in the great majority of cases has been overcome.

But the stark fact before us is that great numbers still remain unemployed.

A large proportion of these unemployed and their dependents have been forced on the relief rolls. The burden on the Federal Government has grown with great rapidity. We have here a human as well as an economic problem. When humane considerations are concerned Americans give them precedence. The lessons of history, confirmed by the evidence immediately before me, show conclusively that continued dependence upon relief induces a spiritual and moral disintegration fundamentally destructive to the national fiber. To dole out relief in this way is to administer a narcotic, a subtle destroyer of the human spirit. It is inimical to the dictates of sound policy. It is in violation of the traditions of America. Work must be found for able-bodied but destitute workers.

The Federal Government must and shall quit this business of relief.

I am not willing that the vitality of our people be further sapped by the giving of cash, of market baskets, of a few hours of weekly work cutting grass, raking leaves, or picking up papers in the public parks. We must preserve not only the bodies of the unemployed from destitution but also their self-respect, their self-reliance, and courage and determination. This decision brings me to the problem of what the Government should do with approximately 5,000,000 unemployed now on the relief rolls.

About one million and a half of these belong to the group which in the past was dependent upon local welfare efforts. Most of them are unable for one reason or another to maintain themselves independently—for the most part through no fault of their own. Such people, in the days before the great depression, were cared for by local efforts—by States, by counties, by towns, by cities, by churches, and by private welfare agencies. It is my thought that in the future they must be cared for as they were before. I stand ready, through my own personal efforts and through the public influence of the office that I hold, to help these local agencies to get the means necessary to assume this burden.

The security legislation which I shall propose to the Congress will, I am confident, be of assistance to local effort in the care of this type of cases. Local responsibility can and will be resumed, for, after all, common sense tells us that the wealth necessary for this task existed and still exists in the local community, and the dictates of sound administration require that this responsibility be in the first instance a local one.

There are, however, an additional three and one-half million employable people who are on relief. With them the problem is different and the responsibility is different. This group was the victim of a Nation-wide depression caused by conditions which were not local but national. The Federal Government is the only governmental agency with sufficient power and credit to meet this situation. We have assumed this task and we shall not shrink from it in the future. It is a duty dictated by every intelligent consideration of national policy to ask you to make it possible for the United States to give employment to all of these three and one-half million employable people now on relief, pending their absorption in a rising tide of private employment.

It is my thought that with the exception of certain of the normal public building operations of the Government, all emergency public works shall be united in a single new and greatly enlarged plan.

With the establishment of this new system we can supersede the Federal Emergency Relief Administration with a coordinated authority which will be charged with the orderly liquidation of our present relief activities and the substitution of a national chart for the giving of work.

This new program of emergency public employment should be governed by a number of practical principles.

(1) All work undertaken should be useful—not just for a day, or a year, but useful in the sense that it affords permanent improvement in living conditions or that it creates future new wealth for the Nation.

(2) Compensation on emergency public projects should be in the form of security payments which should be larger than the amount now received as a relief dole, but at the same time not so large as to encourage the rejection of opportunities for private employment or the leaving of private employment to engage in Government work.

(3) Projects should be undertaken on which a large percentage of direct labor can be used.

(4) Preference should be given to those projects which will be self-liquidating in the sense that there is a reasonable expectation that the Government will get its money back at some future time.

(5) The projects undertaken should be selected and planned so as to compete as little as possible with private enterprise. This suggests that if it were not for the necessity of giving useful work to the unemployed now on relief, these projects in most instances would not now be undertaken.

(6) The planning of projects would seek to assure work during the coming fiscal year to the individuals now on relief, or until such time as private employment is available. In order to make adjustment to increasing private employment, work should be planned with a view to tapering it off in proportion to the speed with which the emergency workers are offered positions with private employers.

(7) Effort should be made to locate projects where they will serve the greatest unemployment needs as shown by present relief rolls, and the broad program of the National Resources Board should be freely used for guidance in selection. Our ultimate objective being the enrichment of human lives, the Government has the primary duty to use its emergency expenditures as much as possible to serve those who cannot secure the advantages of private capital.

Ever since the adjournment of the Seventy-third Congress the administration has been studying from every angle the possibility and the practicability of new forms of employment. As a result of these studies I have arrived at certain very definite convictions as to the amount of money that will be necessary for the sort of public projects that I have described. I shall submit these figures in my Budget message. I assure you now they will be within the sound credit of the Government.

This work will cover a wide field including clearance of slums, which for adequate reasons cannot be undertaken by private capital; in rural housing of several kinds, where again private capital is unable to function; in rural electrification; in the reforestation of the great watersheds of the Nation; in an intensified program to prevent soil erosion and to reclaim blighted areas; in improving existing road systems and in constructing national highways designed to handle modern traffic; in the elimination of grade crossings; in the extension and enlargement of the successful work of the Civilian Conservation Corps; in non-Federal work, mostly self-liquidating and highly useful to local divisions of government; and on many others which the Nation needs and cannot afford to neglect.

This is the method which I propose to you in order that we may better meet this present-day problem of unemployment. Its greatest advantage is that it fits logically and usefully into the long-range permanent policy of providing the three types of security which constitute as a whole an American plan for the American people.

I shall consult with you from time to time concerning other measures of national importance. Among the subjects that lie immediately before us are the consolidation of Federal regulatory administration over all forms of transportation, the renewal and clarification of the general purposes of the National Industrial Recovery Act, the strengthening of our facilities for the prevention, detection, and treatment of crime and criminals, the restoration of sound conditions in the public utilities field through abolition of the evil features of holding companies, the gradual tapering off of the emergency credit activities of government, and improvement in our taxation forms and methods.

We have already begun to feel the bracing effect upon our economic system of a restored agriculture. The hundreds of millions of additional income that farmers are receiving is finding its way into the channels of trade. The farmers' share of the national income is slowly rising. The economic facts justify the widespread opinion of those engaged in agriculture that our provision for maintaining a balanced production gave at this time the most adequate remedy for an old and vexing problem. For the present, and especially in view of abnormal world conditions, agricultural adjustment with certain necessary improvements in methods should continue.

It seems appropriate to call attention at this time to the fine spirit shown during the past year by our public servants. I cannot praise too highly the cheerful work of the civil-service employees and of those temporarily working for the Government. As for those thousands in our various public agencies spread throughout the country, who, without compensation, agreed to take over heavy responsibilities in connection with our various loan agencies, and particularly in direct relief work, I cannot say too much. I do not think any country could show a higher average of cheerful and even enthusiastic teamwork than has been shown by these men and women.

I cannot with candor tell you that general international relationships outside our borders are improved. On the surface of things many old jealousies are resurrected, old passions aroused; new strivings for armament and power, in more than one land, rear their ugly heads. I hope that calm counsel and constructive leadership will provide the steadying influence and the time necessary for the coming of new and more practical forms of representative government throughout the world wherein privilege will occupy a lesser place and welfare a greater.

I believe, however, that our own peaceful and neighborly attitude toward other nations is coming to be understood and appreciated. The maintenance of international peace is a matter in which we are deeply and unselfishly concerned. Evidence of our persistent and undeniable desire to prevent armed conflict has recently been more than once afforded.

There is no ground for apprehension that our relations with any nation will be otherwise than peaceful. Nor is there ground for doubt that the people of most nations seek relief from the threat and burden attaching to the false theory that extravagant armament cannot be reduced and limited by international accord.

The ledger of the past year shows many more gains than losses. Let us not forget that, in addition to saving millions from utter destitution, child labor has been for the moment outlawed, thousands of homes saved to their owners, and, most important of all, the morale of the Nation has been restored. Viewing the year 1934 as a whole, you and I can agree that we have a generous measure of reasons for giving thanks.

It is not empty optimism that moves me to a strong hope in the coming year. We can, if we will, make 1935 a genuine period of good feeling, sustained by a sense of purposeful progress. Beyond the material recovery, I sense a spiritual recovery as well. The people of America are turning as never before to those permanent values that are not limited to the physical objectives of life. There are growing signs of this on every hand. In the face of these spiritual impulses we are sensible of the divine Providence to which nations turn now, as always, for guidance and fostering care.

Upon the conclusion of the address, the joint meeting was dissolved; and, at 1 o'clock and 15 minutes p. m.,

The Senate returned to its Chamber.

RAILROAD FREIGHT RATES

Mr. George, by unanimous consent, submitted the following resolution (S. Res. 5), which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce:

Whereas it is alleged that the present rate system adopted by the rail carriers of the United States has resulted in higher rates per mile in some sections of the United States than others, notwithstanding efforts of Congress to make rail carriers a national system: Therefore be it

Resolved, That the Committee on Interstate Commerce, or any duly authorized subcommittee thereof, is authorized and directed to examine into the present railroad freight rates with a view to determining (1) the relative investment costs and the value fixed by the Interstate Commerce Commission of the properties of class I railroads in the United States, separating such values so as to show the same in the various freight territories of the country; (2) the cost of hauling freight, or the cost per car-mile of the movement of freight, as determined by the Federal Coordinator of Transportation or from other sources, in each of the several freight territories; (3) the effect of making rates throughout the country and regulating, if necessary, the needs of the different carriers as was done in the New England Divisions case (261 U. S. 184); and (4) the methods pursued by freight associations and railroads in jointly prescribing rates. The committee shall report to the Senate, as soon as practicable, the results of its investigation, together with its recommendations.

For the purposes of this resolution the committee, or any duly authorized subcommittee thereof, is authorized to hold such hearings, to sit and act at such times and places during the sessions and recesses of the Senate in the Seventy-third and Seventy-fourth Congresses, to employ such clerical and other assistants, to require by subpena or otherwise the attendance of such witnesses and the production of such books, papers, and documents, to administer such oaths, to take such testimony, and to make such expenditures as it deems advisable. The cost of stenographic services to report such hearings shall not be in excess of 25 cents per hundred words. The expenses of the committee, which shall not exceed $5,000, shall be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate upon vouchers approved by the chairman.

Resolved, That the Interstate Commerce Commission be, and the same is hereby, requested to make an investigation and study of the relationship of rates in different parts of the United States and report the result thereof to the Congress of the United States as soon as practicable, showing:

First. The relative book value and value fixed by the Interstate Commerce Commission of the properties of class I railroads in the United States, separating such values so as to show the same in the three large freight territories of the country.

Second. The cost of hauling freight, so far as the records disclose, in each of the said several territories.

S. S. MORRO CASTLE DISASTER

Mr. Wagner, by unanimous consent, submitted the following resolution (S. Res. 7), which was referred to the Committee on Commerce:

Whereas on September 8, 1934, the steamship Morro Castle, within 6 hours of its scheduled arrival in the port of New York, was swept by fire at sea, with the loss of many lives; and

Whereas various investigations already held in connection with the Morro Castle disaster, when combined with the records of other recent maritime tragedies, create a prima facie case that remediable conditions exist which do not tend to produce the utmost practicable degree of safety from the perils encountered upon the sea; and

Whereas it is imperative that life and property be accorded the utmost attainable degree of safety from such perils: Therefore be it

Resolved, That the Committee on Commerce is authorized and directed (1) to collect, collate, coordinate, and make available to the Senate the results of (a) the inquiry into the Morro Castle disaster conducted by the Secretary of Commerce through the Steamboat Inspection Service of the Department of Commerce, (b) the inquiry into the Morro Castle disaster, and the actions taken in connection with or subsequent to such inquiry, by the United States attorney for the southern district of New York, and (c) such other inquiries into the Morro Castle disaster and other maritime tragedies as would, in the discretion of the committee, be helpful for the purposes of this resolution; (2) to make such further investigations of the Morro Castle disaster, including the rescue operations carried on in connection therewith, as the committee shall deem advisable and necessary for the purposes of this resolution; (3) to investigate the adequacy and enforcement of the present legal standards of safety of ship construction and operation; (4) to investigate the prevalent methods and practices in the complementing of seagoing vessels, including all conditions of employment; (5) to investigate the adequacy and efficiency of the Steamboat Inspection Service; (6) to investigate whether the laws governing liability for loss of life and property at sea, the laws and usages of salvage, and the laws, usages, and practices of the business of marine insurance tend to encourage the installation and utilization of such devices and the promotion of such practices as are conducive to safety and to a paramount concern at all times for the preservation of life; and (7) to make a preliminary report of the results of its investigations as soon as practicable, to make further reports from time to time but at least once during each regular session of the Senate until it has completed its investigations, and to submit a final report to the Senate together with its recommendations for necessary legislation.

For the purposes of this resolution the Committee on Commerce or any duly authorized subcommittee thereof is authorized to hold such hearings; to sit and act at such times and places during the sessions and recesses of the Senate in the Seventy-fourth and succeeding Congresses until the final report is submitted; to employ such counsel, experts, and clerical, stenographic, and other assistants; to require by subpena or otherwise the attendance of such witnesses and the production of such books, papers, and documents; to administer such oaths; and to take such testimony and make such expenditures as it deems advisable. The cost of stenographic service to report such hearings shall not be in excess of 25 cents per hundred words. The expenses of the committee incurred in the exercise of its privileges and duties under this resolution, which shall not exceed $50,000, shall be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate upon vouchers approved by the chairman.

THE BUDGET

The President pro tempore laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read, and, with the accompanying document, referred to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed:

To the Congress of the United States:

The Budget of the United States Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1936, of which this message is definitely a part, is transmitted herewith for your consideration. It deals principally with the moneys carried in the general and special accounts of the Government, which constitute the great bulk of the general fund, as this fund is shown on the first page of the daily Treasury statement. The remainder of the general fund consists mainly of moneys carried in trust accounts, which are not strictly Government moneys, and therefore enter only incidentally into the financial picture presented by the General Budget Summary.

REVIEW OF THE FISCAL YEAR 1934

The total expenditures of the Government for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1934, as shown in the General Budget Summary and supporting schedules, amounted to $7,105,000,000 in round figures. Of this amount, the sum of $1,086,000,000 was spent for the operation and maintenance of the regular departments and establishments of the Government, $556,000,000 to meet veterans' pensions and benefits, $757,000,000 for interest on the national debt, $360,000,000 for statutory debt retirements, and $63,000,000 for tax refunds, making in the aggregate $2,822,000,000. The remainder of the total expenditures for that year, amounting to $4,283,000,000, was spent for recovery and relief. The general purposes to which this amount was applied are set forth in detail in supporting schedule no. 3. It will be seen that this amount was expended approximately as follows:

	In millions of dollars
Agricultural aid	847.0
Relief	1,844.4
Public works	653.5
Aid to home owners	194.9
Reconstruction Finance Corporation	584.6
Miscellaneous	158.6
Total	4,283.0

A part of this expenditure of $4,283,000,000 for recovery and relief is repayable; indeed, substantial repayments have already been made to the Government. Loans amounted to $732,000,000, and subscriptions to capital stock and preferred shares to $826,000,000, making a total of $1,558,000,000 which may be regarded as repayable expenditures made during the fiscal year 1934. The part regarded as nonrepayable totals $2,725,000,000. This sum has been spent mainly for grants, aids, public-works projects, and administrative expenses.

The total receipts of the Government for the fiscal year 1934 reached in the aggregate $3,115,500,000. Of this amount $2,640,600,000 came from internal revenue, $313,400,000 from customs, $152,600,000 from miscellaneous revenues, and $8,900,000 from receipts due to the realization upon assets. Income tax supplied $818,000,000 of internal revenues; miscellaneous taxes (e. g., estate, capital stock, liquor, tobacco, stamp, and excise taxes), $1,469,600,000, and processing taxes, $353,000,000. Since the processing taxes are appropriated for the use of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, their total should be subtracted from the aggregate receipts shown above in order to arrive at the general receipts of the Government.

The general receipts of $2,762,500,000, excluding processing taxes, approximately equaled the regular expenditures for the year, a fact which should be duly recognized.

The deficit at the end of the fiscal year 1934, as shown in the General Budget Summary, was $3,989,500,000 in round figures. After deducting $359,900,000 for statutory debt retirements during 1934, the resulting net deficit financed from borrowing was $3,629,600,000. The gross increase in the national debt amounted to $4,514,400,000, making a total debt of $27,053,000,000, as indicated in supporting schedule no. 6. This addition to the debt during 1934 included the financing of the net deficit of $3,629,600,000 and an increase of $884,800,000 in the cash balance of the general and special accounts, as shown in supporting schedule no. 4.

THE ECONOMIC SITUATION

Because of its profound influence on the Federal Budget, the economic situation may be briefly summarized at this point. Business was substantially more active during the fiscal year 1934 than in either of the two preceding fiscal years. At the opening of the year, in July 1933, producers were increasing their operations, sharply reflecting in part larger orders placed in anticipation of code regulations. There was a temporary decline in output in the autumn and early winter, in response to an overaccumulation of inventories during this period, but production again advanced during the last half of the fiscal year. Industrial output for the period as a whole, when measured by the Federal Reserve Board index, was 25 percent greater than in the fiscal year 1933 and only slightly below the level of the fiscal year 1931. The degree of recovery varied in the different industries. Production of nondurable goods, which had declined only moderately during the depression, approached within 1 percent of its 1923–25 average, while output in the durable-goods group, where prices showed relatively small declines since 1929, was 38 percent below its average in those years. Construction activity financed by private individuals continued to be restricted in amount, although public construction increased. This result was in no way surprising, in view of the enormous sums spent on permanent structures, in many cases in excess of actual requirements, during the period 1925–29.

The average volume of industrial employment expanded in proportion to production, and the total number of unemployed at the end of the fiscal year 1934, although still very large, decreased by about two millions as compared with June 1933, and four millions as compared with the worst point of the depression, which fell in March 1933. Reflecting higher wage rates and an expansion in total hours worked, industrial pay rolls averaged sharply higher over the year. Distribution of commodities at retail to consumers increased, but in smaller proportion than output, with the result that inventories of manufactured goods showed a net growth over the year ended June 30, 1934.

At the end of the fiscal year 1934 the Bureau of Labor Statistics index of wholesale commodity prices stood at 74.8 percent of its 1926 average as compared with 66.3 percent on June 30, 1933, and 59.6 percent early in March 1933. The sharpest rise in prices took place in farm products which were affected by anticipation of smaller crops during the summer of 1934. The rise in agricultural prices more than offset the decrease in farm output, and farmers' cash income, including governmental rental and benefit payments, was 34 percent higher than in the fiscal year 1933. Corporate profits, aided by larger volume as well as by inventory appreciation, also increased considerably.

Following the close of the fiscal year 1934, output in basic industries fell sharply through September, reflecting particularly an overaccumulation of inventories in steel and textile products and the delay in the placing of orders for autumn merchandise because of uncertainty as to the effect of the drought. Industrial prices, however, remained relatively stable, and prices of farm products and foods moved into closer alinement with prices of nonagricultural commodities. In retail markets goods continued to move in sustained volume with the result that inventories were reduced to lower levels and output was again increasing in the final quarter of the calendar year 1934.

CONDITION OF THE FISCAL YEAR 1935

The total expenditure requirements for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1935, are estimated at approximately $8,581,000,000, as shown in the General Budget Summary. Of this amount, the sum of $3,321,000,000 is for regular expenditures, and $5,260,000,000 for recovery and relief. The regular expenditures are for the following general purposes:

	In millions of dollars
Operation and maintenance of the regular departments and establishments	1,235
Veterans' pensions and benefits	610
Interest on the national debt	835
Tax refunds (excluding processing taxes)	68
Subtotal	2,748
Debt retirements	573
Total	3,321

The amount of $1,235,000,000, mentioned above, includes $20,000,000 for expenditures estimated to be made this year from an additional sum of approximately $125,000,000 which will be required for 1935 to make up deficiencies in the appropriations for the regular departments and establishments, including the Veterans' Administration. Of this additional sum, approximately $65,000,000 will be required to meet the needs of the Veterans' Administration due to the application of new laws or revised rules pertaining to service-connected disabilities.

Of the total expenditures for recovery and relief, $788,000,000 are for the Agricultural Adjustment Administration and the refunding of processing taxes, while $4,472,000,000 are devoted to other purposes in the recovery and relief program. During the first 5 months of the current fiscal year the Government expended for recovery and relief $1,712,000,000, or at the rate of about $350,000,000 per month.

A summary of the aggregate amounts expended for recovery and relief from February 1, 1932, to November 30, 1934, shows a total figure of $8,164,900,000. This expenditure has been distributed approximately as follows:

	In millions of dollars
Agricultural aid	1,337.3
Relief	2,783.0
Public works	1,226.2
Aid to home owners	306.3
Reconstruction Finance Corporation	2,351.2
Miscellaneous	160.9
Total	8,164.9

From February 1, 1932, to November 30, 1934, nearly 3 years, provision for recovery and relief through appropriations and authorizations reached a grand total of $14,412,400,000. Of this total there remained unexpended on November 30, $6,247,500,000, a large part of which had already been obligated though not yet actually paid out by the Treasury. The sum of approximately $900,000,000 from the unobligated portion must, however, be made available for transfer to emergency relief needs during the remaining months of the current fiscal year. Recommendation is therefore made that the Congress provide for the immediate transfer of such unobligated portion for relief during the transition period from direct relief to work relief as outlined in my annual message.

Appropriations for emergency relief purposes will be completely exhausted early in February. Hence it is vitally necessary that unobligated balances of moneys already appropriated be made immediately available to care for the unemployed during the remainder of the fiscal year 1935 and the transition period. Through such action no new appropriation will be required to carry our relief needs for the current fiscal year.

The total receipts for the fiscal year 1935 are estimated at $3,711,000,000. After deducting from this amount the processing taxes, estimated at $589,000,000, there remains $3,122,000,000 to be applied against other expenditures of the Government.

The income tax for 1935 is estimated to yield $234,000,000 more than in 1934, or a total of $1,051,000,000. The receipts from miscellaneous internal-revenue taxes, exclusive of processing taxes, are expected to produce $60,000,000 more in 1935 than in 1934, thus bringing the total yield up to $1,543,000,000. It is estimated that customs will show a decrease for 1935 under 1934 of about $26,000,000, due to the Cuban sugar agreement and to the foreign-trade situation in general. Miscellaneous revenues and other receipts from the realization of certain assets are expected to yield for 1935 about $227,000,000, an increase of $66,000,000 over 1934.

The deficit for the fiscal year 1935 is estimated at $4,869,000,000, including $573,000,000 for statutory debt retirements. On December 26, 1934, the gross national debt stood at $28,484,000,000. It is estimated that the gross debt on June 30, 1935, will amount to about $31,000,000,000. In the Budget message of last year it was estimated that the national debt on June 30, 1935, would amount to $31,800,000,000. According to the latest estimates the debt will not reach this amount by $800,000,000.

THE FISCAL YEAR 1936

In the Budget message of last year I said, speaking of the fiscal year 1936, that we should plan to have a definitely balanced Budget for the third year of recovery and from that time on to seek a continued reduction of the national debt.

Despite the substantial measure of recovery achieved since that statement was made, unemployment is still large. The States and local units now provide a smaller proportionate share of relief than a year ago, and the Federal Government is therefore called upon to continue to aid in this necessary work.

For this reason it is evident that we have not yet reached a point at which a complete balance of the Budget can be obtained. I am, however, submitting to the Congress a Budget for the fiscal year 1936 which balances except for expenditures to give work to the unemployed. If this Budget receives the approval of the Congress, the country will henceforth have the assurance that, with the single exception of this item, every current expenditure of whatever nature will be fully covered by our estimates of current receipts. Such deficit as occurs will be due solely to this cause, and it may be expected to decline as rapidly as private industry is able to reemploy those who now are without work.

A résumé of the financial plan which the General Budget Summary shows for 1936, as compared with 1934 and 1935, is presented below.

The estimated expenditures for the fiscal year 1936, as shown in the General Budget Summary, total in round figures $8,520,000,000, including statutory debt requirements. Of this amount, $3,938,000,000 are for regular purposes, and the remainder for recovery and relief. The regular expenditures consist of $1,622,000,000 for the operation and maintenance of the regular departments and establishments of the Government, which includes $200,000,000 to be expended from an annual appropriation of $300,000,000 for public works, as requested in the Budget and as explained below. The other items of regular expenditures are $740,000,000 for veterans' pensions and benefits, $875,000,000 for interest on the national debt, $636,000,000 for statutory debt retirements, and $65,000,000 for tax refunds (excluding processing tax refunds).

Some of the principal increases in the major expenditure items for 1936 may be cited. The restoration of the final 5 percent of the 15-percent salary reduction amounts to about $40,000,000 for the regular departments and establishments, exclusive of the Postal Service. The latter service requires an additional sum of $25,000,000 for this purpose. Provision has been made in 1936 for an increase in the civil-service retirement and disability fund of $20,000,000 over 1935, making a total annual contribution to this fund of $40,000,000. This increase will enable the Government to meet more nearly its annual obligation with respect to this fund. It has been estimated that this obligation amounts to $52,000,000, but such estimate has not been sufficiently established to justify its inclusion in the Budget. An effort will be made during the coming year, however, definitely to establish the Government's annual liability, the amount of which will be included in the 1937 Budget. Likewise, an increase of $50,000,000 is recommended in the veterans' adjusted-service certificate fund, thus bringing the total annual contribution to this fund up to $100,000,000. The actuarial requirement of the fund for 1936 has been estimated at $155,000,000. An effort will also be made during the coming year to establish this fund on a more definite basis consistent with the Government's actual liability under existing law. The expenditures for national defense have been increased for 1936 over 1935 by $180,000,000. This increase is due to the current policy of the Congress and the Executive to make up for the delay by the United States in meeting the provisions of the naval treaties of 1922 and 1930, and to provide replacement and improved equipment for the Army. Veterans' pensions and other requirements have also been increased by about $130,000,000, after adding to the 1935 figure the estimated supplemental amount previously mentioned, which is due to the application of new laws and revised rules pertaining to service-connected disabilities.

Another increase in the estimated expenditures is $200,000,000 from an appropriation of $300,000,000 which I am requesting for public works. This appropriation is intended to take care of the normal public-works requirements of the Government usually included in the annual supply bills, such as Federal highways, river and harbor improvements, and general public works, including the construction program of the Tennessee Valley Authority. This requested appropriation may therefore be regarded as regular instead of emergency. The debt charges for interest and retirements have increased considerably due to the growth of the national debt, but the decrease in the average annual interest rate has served to keep these charges down.

The estimated expenditures for recovery and relief during 1936 are placed at $4,110,000,000, excluding $472,000,000 for the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. I recommend that $4,000,000,000 be appropriated by the Congress in one sum, subject to allocation by the Executive principally for giving work to those unemployed on the relief rolls. An estimate of expenditures covering this amount is included in the Budget.

The total receipts for the fiscal year 1936 are estimated at approximately $3,992,000,000. When $570,000,000 of estimated processing taxes are deducted from this amount, there will remain for general purposes $3,422,000,000.

The detailed estimates of revenues and receipts for 1936, shown in Statement No. 1, indicate a gain of $137,000,000 in the collections from income tax over those for 1935. This gain is due to anticipated improvement in business and to the upward revision of rates in the Revenue Act of 1934. The miscellaneous internal-revenue taxes for 1936 are estimated to increase some $143,000,000 over the collections for 1935. This increase is predicated on the assumption that the taxes terminating on June 30 and July 31, 1935, will be extended by the Congress, and also that the tax rates which would be reduced on June 30, 1935, will be continued. Otherwise there will be a reduction in the total estimate of miscellaneous internal-revenue taxes of $378,000,000, thus bringing the total estimate down to $1,308,000,000, excluding processing taxes. Customs are estimated to yield $298,000,000 for 1936, representing a small increase of $11,000,000 over 1935. Miscellaneous revenues and other receipts are estimated to produce $250,000,000, a gain of about $23,000,000 over 1935.

While I do not consider it advisable at this time to propose any new or additional taxes for the fiscal year 1936, I do recommend that the Congress take steps by suitable legislation to extend the miscellaneous internal-revenue taxes which under existing law will expire next June or July, and also to maintain the current rates of these taxes which will be reduced next June. I consider that such taxes are necessary to the financing of the Budget for 1936.

In this connection, may I say, too, that the postal revenues, as estimated in detail in the annexed budget of the Post Office Department, are based on the continuation of the 3-cent postage rate for nonlocal first-class mail. Unless this rate is continued, the postal expenses for 1936, which include steamship and aircraft subsidies and free carriage of Government mail, will be increased by about $75,000,000, all of which will become an added burden on the general revenues of the Treasury. I, therefore, recommend the extension of the 3-cent rate.

If the estimates submitted in this Budget are approved, and if the expenditures for which authorization is asked are made in full, the deficit, including statutory debt retirements, will amount to $4,528,000,000 for the fiscal year 1936. The national debt will be increased during this year by approximately $3,152,000,000, thus bringing the total debt up to $34,239,000,000. But this increase, as I have pointed out, will be due solely to continued relief of unemployment.

CONTINUATION OF EMERGENCY AGENCIES

A number of the emergency agencies now authorized by law will terminate during the present fiscal year. Most of these agencies fill important present needs and should be continued. As rapidly as seems practicable, I am bringing the administrative expenses of these agencies under the supervision of the Director of the Budget.

ECONOMY LEGISLATION

Many of the estimates of appropriations contained in the Budget are based upon the continuation of certain legislative provisions with reference to economy which are now in force. They are appended hereto and should be reenacted if the estimates are to be sustained. Among those continued is the provision for certain special salary reductions, the suspension of the reenlistment bonus to men of the military and naval services, the reduction in travel allowances of certain postal employees, permitting temporary reassignment of duties of certain postal employees, reduction in fees of jurors and witnesses, permitting transfers between appropriations, and the involuntary retirement of Federal employees having 30 years' service. Specific provision is also made for service credits to certain personnel affected by the suspension of increases in pay during the fiscal years 1933 to 1935, in the determination of compensation accruing subsequent to June 30, 1935, but without authorizing the payment of the amount that would have been paid during these years. Among the economy provisions which now obtain and which it is not proposed to continue is the 5-percent reduction in compensation of Government employees after July 1, 1935. I see no reason, however, for the restoration of this reduction prior to that date. The index figure of the cost of living, on the basis of which salary restorations are provided by section 3, title II, of the Economy Act of 1933, now indicates that such restorations in all probability would not even be justified on next July 1, or for some time thereafter.

IMPROVEMENTS IN THE FORM OF THE BUDGET

Several important changes have been made in the form of the Budget document for 1936. The purpose of these changes has been twofold: (1) To improve the usefulness of the document from the citizens' standpoint, and (2) to provide more adequate treatment of the financial requirements of certain governmental units, such as the Post Office Department and the District of Columbia.

The General Budget Summary, following this message, is designed to present on one page a comprehensive picture of the financial requirements of the Government. It exhibits the anticipated receipts from all sources and the estimated expenditures for all purposes. It also shows the deficit and indicates the proposed means of financing this deficit. Since the figures presented in the summary are necessarily in aggregate amounts, the details of these amounts are shown in six supporting schedules. Both in the summary and in these schedules appropriate columns are carried to provide direct comparisons between the Budget figures for 1936 and the estimated and actual figures for 1935 and 1934.

The revenue estimates are emphasized in this Budget for the first time. These estimates are set forth in Statement No. 1 in sufficient detail to show all the principal sources from which the Government gets its income. Accompanying this statement is a supporting text, which analyzes and gives the reasons for the 1936 estimates and compares them with those for 1935 and with the actual collections for 1934.

Annexed budgets are set up for the major self-supporting or self-contained units of the Government, namely, the Post Office Department, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the Tennessee Valley Authority, and the District of Columbia. The use of such budgets permits the receipts and expenditures of each of these units to be clearly and completely presented in gross figures and in balanced form, as has not hitherto been done. By following this method the net figures for each unit, which may be either appropriation needs or surplus receipts, are calculated and then carried to the General Budget Summary. Thus the financial requirements of these units are definitely tied into the general budgetary plan. The annexed budgets are therefore not in any sense independent or multiple budgets, but simply integral parts of the Government's general Budget.

BETTER METHODS OF FISCAL CONTROL

In order to promote more satisfactory methods of budgetary control in the Government, I propose this year to inaugurate the policy of having a summation of the Budget prepared for publication immediately after the Congress has acted on all financial matters. This summation will be ready on or before July 1, unless the Congress is still in session. It will be presented along the lines of the General Budget Summary and supporting schedules, including Statements Nos. 1 and 2, as shown in this Budget. It will exhibit the revenue estimates, so revised by the Treasury, as to reflect any changes in the economic situation during the preceding 6 or 7 months and also any revisions made by the Congress in the tax laws. It will provide a complete summary of all appropriations and expenditure authorizations made by the Congress and related estimates of expenditures. Lastly, it will indicate the need for executive or administrative measures in controlling the execution of the Budget during the fiscal year 1936.

A substantial reduction in the number of appropriation items would facilitate the exercise of budgetary control over expenditures and at the same time make for departmental economy. I, therefore, recommend that the Congress establish a special joint committee to make a detailed study of the appropriation items in each regular appropriation bill with a view to greatly reducing the number of them, consistent with proper budgetary and accounting requirements.

It is my belief that substantial adherence to the general recommendations and total figures presented in this Budget will accomplish three major objectives: (1) The normal functions of the United States Government can be carried on with economy and a high standard of efficiency, (2) the broad obligation of the Government to use all proper efforts to prevent destitution can be maintained under more practical methods than we are using at present, and (3) the excellent credit of the Government will be maintained for the common good.

I believe that the Congress will sustain these objectives.

Whereas by the Kellogg Peace Pact signed at Paris on August 27, 1928, the high contracting parties (including the United States and Japan) solemnly declared that they condemn recourse to war for the solution of international controversies; and

Whereas by the nine-power treaty signed at Washington on February 6, 1922, the contracting powers (including the United States and Japan) agreed to respect the sovereignty, the independence, and the territorial and administrative integrity of China, and to refrain from taking advantage of conditions in China in order to seek special rights or privileges which would abridge the rights of subjects or citizens of friendly states; and

Whereas it is alleged that the policy pursued by Japan in Manchuria in establishing the Manchukuoan Government, in setting up a government oil monopoly of foreign oil interests, and the refusal by Manchukuo, as stated in the Japanese press, to observe the open-door policy except as to nations according her recognition, is a violation of the above treaties: Therefore be it the groups of islands in the Pacific Ocean lying north of the Equator; and

Whereas the Principal Allied and Associated Powers, including the United States, agreed that in accordance with article 22, part I (Covenant of the League of Nations), of the said treaty, a mandate should be conferred upon His Majesty the Emperor of Japan to administer the said islands; and

Whereas His Majesty the Emperor of Japan accepted such mandate, subject to the agreement, among others, that no military or naval bases should be established or fortifications erected in the mandated territories; and

Whereas for some 14 years there have been recurrent charges in the press to the effect that Japan has fortified her mandated islands in violation of the agreement not to do so; and

Whereas it is alleged that Japan has failed to make reports on its administration of its mandated islands, as required by the League of Nations: Therefore be it

Resolved, That the Committee on Foreign Relations, or any duly authorized subcommittee thereof, is authorized and directed to examine into the charge that Japan is fortifying or has fortified her mandated islands and to report to the Senate, as soon as practicable, the results of its investigation, together with its recommendations.

EFFECT OF NATIONAL INDUSTRIAL RECOVERY ACT ON ANTITRUST LAWS

Whereas, to prevent monopolies and combinations in restraint of trade and efforts to obtain monopolistic control of trade and commerce, laws were enacted by the Congress which are still in force; and

Whereas it is claimed that such laws have not been enforced and that monopolies have increased and monopolistic control of industry has been strengthened; and

Whereas, notwithstanding the enactment of said antitrust laws, it is alleged that the National Industrial Recovery Act has been construed as permitting monopolies and protanto repeals the said antitrust laws; and

Whereas it is alleged that the said antitrust laws are inadequate to meet monopolistic developments and should therefore be strengthened in order that the purpose for which they were enacted might be realized: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Committee on the Judiciary, or any duly authorized subcommittee thereof, is authorized to conduct an investigation to determine (1) whether the National Industrial Recovery Act has encouraged or promoted monopolistic practices; (2) whether the National Industrial Recovery Act or rules, regulations, and codes issued under it have tended to nullify the antitrust laws; (3) whether, in that event, legislation is needed to restore the antitrust laws to the position which they occupied prior to the date of enactment of the National Recovery Act; and (4) whether the antitrust laws, if properly enforced, are adequate to control monopolistic practices.

The committee shall report as soon as practicable the results of its investigation, together with its recommendations, if any, for necessary legislation. For the purposes of this resolution, the committee, or any duly authorized subcommittee thereof, is authorized to hold hearings, to sit and act at such times and places during the sessions and recesses of the Senate in the Seventy-fourth and succeeding Congresses until the final report is submitted; to employ such clerical and other assistants, to require by subpena or otherwise the attendance of such witnesses and the production of such books, papers, and documents; to administer such oaths; and to take such testimony and make such expenditures as it deems advisable. AMERICAN CONSERVATION WEEK

Mr. Wagner submitted the following concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 3), which was referred to the Committee on Public Lands and Surveys:

Whereas under the inspiring leadership of President Cleveland it became the settled policy of this Nation to conserve its natural resources; and

Whereas the establishment of an American Conservation Week will have the desired effect of bringing the American people to realize in the words of that great conservationist, President Roosevelt, that "the conservation of our natural resources and their proper use constitute the fundamental problem which underlies almost every other problem of our national life": Therefore be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That the President of the United States is requested to issue each year a proclamation designating the first week in April as American Conservation Week and inviting the people of the United States to observe that week in schools, churches, museums, parks, and other suitable places, with ceremonies appropriate to the occasion.

DECEMBER CORNER IN SUGAR

Mr. Vandenberg submitted the following resolution (S. Res. 41):

Whereas it is generally understood that a group of so-called "long traders" in sugar, operating through the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange, cornered the market in December futures, forcing an ultimate settlement with so-called "short traders" who were speculative sellers; and

Whereas this corner in sugar for domestic consumption resulted, in part, from the use of market limitations created by the Jones-Costigan Act and in part by the price-fixing decrees of the Cuban Government in respect to sugar sales in the continental United States; and

Whereas any such speculation at home and any such price manipulation and price fixing abroad threatens the welfare of domestic consumers and may threaten the welfare of domestic producers and, in any event, jeopardizes the integrity of the Jones-Costigan Act and may nullify its domestic purposes: Therefore be it

Resolved, That the Secretary of Agriculture is requested to report to the Senate (a) all information at the disposal of the Department and the Agricultural Adjustment Administration respecting this December corner in sugar and the ultimate results as found by the exchange and by these Departments; (b) the history of the dealings of all Government Departments with the merchandising of the 1934 Cuban sugar quota in the United States; (c) the names of all so-called "long" and "short" traders in December futures on the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange; (d) the names of the board of directors of the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange and the personnel of the Cuban Sugar Stabilization Institute, and the identification of any banks or other financial institutions in the United States known to have been connected with the financing, or the refusal to finance, the 1934 Cuban sugar crop; and (e) such recommendations as he may care to make for additional legislation to protect the Jones-Costigan Act and for legislation, if deemed necessary, to control commodity dealings on the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange.

Ordered, That the resolution lie over 1 day under the rule.

METHODS FOR PRODUCTION AND DISTRIBUTION OF ELECTRICITY

Mr. Austin (for Mr. Gibson) submitted the following resolution (S. Res. 43), which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce:

Whereas there exists a large and growing need for low-cost electricity and means for its production and distribution; and

Whereas the time is now propitious for the development of methods for such production and distribution: Therefore be it

Resolved, That a select committee of the Senate, consisting of five Members, to be appointed by the President of the Senate, is authorized and directed to make a study of methods for production and distribution of electricity and confer with and advise the President concerning plans for their adoption. The committee shall report to the Senate, as soon as practicable, the results of its investigation, together with its recommendations, if any, for further necessary legislation.

For the purposes of this resolution the committee, or any duly authorized subcommittee thereof, is authorized to hold such hearings, to sit and act at such times and places during the sessions and recesses of the Senate in the Seventy-fourth Congress, to employ such clerical and other assistants, to require by subpena or otherwise the attendance of such witnesses and the production of such books, papers, and documents, to administer such oaths, to take such testimony, and to make such expenditures as it deems advisable. The cost of stenographic services to report such hearings shall not be in excess of 25 cents per hundred words. The movement to make international justice practicable and serviceable is not subject to partisan considerations. For years Republican and Democratic administrations and party platforms alike have advocated a court of justice to which nations might voluntarily bring their disputes for judicial decisions.

To give concrete realization to this obviously sound and thoroughly American policy, I hope that at an early date the Senate will advise and consent to the adherence by the United States to the Protocol of Signature of the Statute of the Permanent Court of International Justice, dated December 16, 1920, the Protocol for the Revision of the Statute of the Permanent Court of International Justice, dated September 14, 1929, and the Protocol for the Accession of the United States of America to the Protocol of Signature of the Statute of the Permanent Court of International Justice, dated September 14, 1929, all of which were submitted to the Senate December 10, 1930.

I urge that the Senate's consent be given in such form as not to defeat or to delay the objective of adherence.

The sovereignty of the United States will be in no way diminished or jeopardized by such action. At this period in international relationships, when every act is of moment to the future of world peace, the United States has an opportunity once more to throw its weight into the scale in favor of peace.

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That it is the sense of the Congress that in the administration of such act it would be to the best interests of the people of the United States to have a uniform scale of transportation rates on a mileage basis which would apply equally in all sections of the United States.

ECONOMIC SECURITY

The Presiding Officer (Mr. Smith in the chair) laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read, and, with the accompanying report, referred to the Committee on Finance and ordered to be printed:

To the Congress of the United States:

In addressing you on June 8, 1934, I summarized the main objectives of our American program. Among these was, and is, the security of the men, women, and children of the Nation against certain hazards and vicissitudes of life. This purpose is an essential part of our task. In my annual message to you I promised to submit a definite program of action. This I do in the form of a report to me by a Committee on Economic Security, appointed by me for the purpose of surveying the field and of recommending the basis of legislation.

I am gratified with the work of this committee and of those who have helped it: The Technical Board of Economic Security, drawn from various departments of the Government; the Advisory Council on Economic Security, consisting of informed and public-spirited private citizens, and a number of other advisory groups, including a Committee on Actuarial Consultants, a Medical Advisory Board, a Dental Advisory Committee, a Hospital Advisory Committee, a Public Health Advisory Committee, a Child Welfare Committee, and an Advisory Committee on Employment Relief. All of those who participated in this notable task of planning this major legislative proposal are ready and willing at any time to consult with and assist in any way the appropriate congressional committees and Members with respect to detailed aspects.

It is my best judgment that this legislation should be brought forward with a minimum of delay. Federal action is necessary to and conditioned upon the actions of States. Forty-four legislatures are meeting or will meet soon. In order that the necessary State action may be taken promptly, it is important that the Federal Government proceed speedily.

The detailed report of the committee sets forth a series of proposals that will appeal to the sound sense of the American people. It has not attempted the impossible nor has it failed to exercise sound caution and consideration of all of the factors concerned; the national credit, the rights and responsibilities of States, the capacity of industry to assume financial responsibilities and the fundamental necessity of proceeding in a manner that will merit the enthusiastic support of citizens of all sorts.

It is overwhelmingly important to avoid any danger of permanently discrediting the sound and necessary policy of Federal legislation for economic security by attempting to apply it on too ambitious a scale before actual experience has provided guidance for the permanently safe direction of such efforts. The place of such a fundamental in our future civilization is too precious to be jeopardized now by extravagant action. It is a sound idea—a sound ideal. Most of the other advanced countries of the world have already adopted it, and their experience affords the knowledge that social insurance can be made a sound and workable project.

Three principles should be observed in legislation on this subject. In the first place, the system adopted, except for the money necessary to initiate it, should be self-sustaining in the sense that funds for the payment of insurance benefits should not come from the proceeds of general taxation. Second, excepting in old-age insurance, actual management should be left to the States, subject to standards established by the Federal Government. Third, sound financial management of the funds and the reserves and protection of the credit structure of the Nation should be assured by retaining Federal control over all funds through trustees in the Treasury of the United States.

At this time, I recommend the following types of legislation looking to economic security.

First. Unemployment compensation.

Second. Old-age benefits, including compulsory and voluntary annuities.

Third. Federal aid to dependent children through grants to States for the support of existing mother's pension systems and for services for the protection and care of homeless, neglected, dependent, and crippled children.

Fourth. Additional Federal aid to State and local public health agencies and the strengthening of the Federal Public Health Service. I am not at this time recommending the adoption of so-called "health insurance", although groups representing the medical profession are cooperating with the Federal Government in the further study of the subject, and definite progress is being made.

With respect to unemployment compensation, I have concluded that the most practical proposal is the levy of a uniform Federal pay-roll tax, 90 percent of which should be allowed as an offset to employers contributing under a compulsory State unemployment compensation act. The purpose of this is to afford a requirement of a reasonably uniform character for all States cooperating with the Federal Government and to promote and encourage the passage of unemployment compensation laws in the States. The 10 percent not thus offset should be used to cover the costs of Federal and State administration of this broad system. Thus, States will largely administer unemployment compensation, assisted and guided by the Federal Government. An unemployment compensation system should be constructed in such a way as to afford every practicable aid and incentive toward the larger purpose of employment stabilization. This can be helped by the intelligent planning of both public and private employment. It also can be helped by correlating the system with public employment so that a person who has exhausted his benefits may be eligible for some form of public work as is recommended in this report. Moreover, in order to encourage the stabilization of private employment Federal legislation should not foreclose the States from establishing means for inducing industries to afford an even greater stabilization of employment.

In the important field of security for our old people it seems necessary to adopt three principles—first, noncontributory old-age pensions for those who are now too old to build up their own insurance; it is, of course, clear that for perhaps 30 years to come funds will have to be provided by the States and the Federal Government to meet these pensions. Second, compulsory contributory annuities, which in time will establish a self-supporting system for those now young and for future generations. Third, voluntary contributory annuities by which individual initiative can increase the annual amounts received in old age. It is proposed that the Federal Government assume one-half of the cost of the old-age pension plan, which ought ultimately to be supplanted by self-supporting annuity plans.

The amount necessary at this time for the initiation of unemployment compensation, old-age security, children's aid, and the promotion of public health, as outlined in the report of the Committee on Economic Security, is approximately $100,000,000.

The establishment of sound means toward a greater future economic security of the American people is dictated by a prudent consideration of the hazards involved in our national life. No one can guarantee this country against the dangers of future depressions, but we can reduce these dangers. We can eliminate many of the factors that cause economic depressions and we can provide the means of mitigating their results. This plan for economic security is at once a measure of prevention and a method of alleviation.

We pay now for the dreadful consequence of economic insecurity—and dearly. This plan presents a more equitable and infinitely less expensive means of meeting these costs. We cannot afford to neglect the plain duty before us. I strongly recommend action to attain the objectives sought in this report.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

SURVEY OF NATIONAL RESOURCES

The Vice President laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read:

To the Congress of the United States:

During the three or four centuries of white men on the American Continent we find a continuous striving of civilization against Nature. It is only in recent years that we have learned how greatly by these processes we have harmed Nature, and Nature in turn has harmed us.

We should not too largely blame our ancestors, for they found such teeming riches in woods and soil and water—such abundance above the earth and beneath it—such freedom in the taking that they gave small heed to the results that would follow the filling of their own immediate needs. Most of them, it is true, had come from many-peopled lands where necessity had invoked the preserving of the bounties of Nature. But they had come here for the obtaining of a greater freedom, and it was natural that freedom of conscience and freedom of government should extend itself in their minds to the unrestricted enjoyment of the free use of land and water.

Furthermore, it is only within our own generation that the development of science, leaping forward, has taught us where and how we violated Nature's immutable laws and where and how we can commence to repair such havoc as man has wrought.

In recent years little groups of earnest men and women have told us of this havoc, of the cutting of our last stands of virgin timber, of the increasing floods, of the washing away of millions of acres of our topsoils, of the lowering of our water tables, of the dangers of one-crop farming, of the depletion of our minerals—in short, the evils that we have brought upon ourselves today, and the even greater evils that will attend our children unless we act.

Such is the condition that attends the exploitation of our natural resources if we continue our planless course.

But another element enters in. Men and Nature must work hand in hand. The throwing out of balance of the resources of Nature throws out of balance also the lives of men. We find millions of our citizens stranded in village and on farm—stranded there because Nature cannot support them in the livelihood they had sought to gain through her. We find other millions gravitated to centers of population so vast that the laws of natural economics have broken down.

If the misuse of natural resources alone were concerned, we should consider our problem only in terms of land and water. It is because misuse extends to what men and women are doing with their occupations and to their many mistakes in herding themselves together that I have chosen, in addressing the Congress, to use the broader term "national resources."

For the first time in our national history we have made an inventory of our national assets and the problems relating to them. For the first time we have drawn together the foresight of the various planning agencies of the Federal Government and suggested a method and a policy for the future.

I am sending you herewith the report of the National Resources Board, appointed by me on June 30, 1934, to prepare the comprehensive survey which so many of us have sought so long. I transmit also the report made by the Mississippi Valley Committee of the Public Works Administration, which committee has also acted as the water-planning committee in the larger report.

These documents constitute a remarkable foundation for what we hope will be a permanent policy of orderly development in every part of the United States. It is a large subject, but it is a great and inspiring subject. May I commend to each and every one of you who constitute the Congress of the United States a careful reading of these reports.

In this inventory of our national wealth we follow the custom of prudent people toward their own private property. We as a nation take stock of what we as a nation own. We consider the uses to which it can be put. We plan these uses in the light of what we want to be, of what we want to accomplish as a people. We think of our land and water and human resources not as static and sterile possession but as life-giving assets to be directed by wise provision for future days. We seek to use our natural resources not as a thing apart but as something that is interwoven with industry, labor, finance, taxation, agriculture, homes, recreation, good citizenship. The results of this interweaving will have a greater influence on the future American standard of living than all the rest of our economics put together.

For the coming 18 months I have asked the Congress for $4,000,000,000 for public projects. A substantial portion of this sum will be used for objectives suggested in this report. As years pass the Government should plan to spend each year a reasonable and continuing sum in the development of this program. It is my hope, for example, that after the immediate crisis of unemployment begins to mend we can afford to appropriate approximately $500,000,000 each year for this purpose. Eventually this appropriation should replace all such appropriations given in the past without planning.

A permanent National Resources Board, toward the establishment of which we should be looking forward, would recommend yearly to the President and the Congress priority of projects in the national plan. This will give to the Congress, as is entirely proper, the final determination in relation to the projects and the appropriations involved.

As I have already stated, it is only because of the current emergency of unemployment and because of the physical impossibility of surveying, weighing, and testing each and every project that a segregation of items is clearly impossible at the moment.

For the same reason the constituting of fixed and permanent administrative machinery would retard the immediate employment objective.

Our goal must be a national one. Achievements in the arts of communication, of transportation, of mechanized production, of agriculture, of mining, and of power, do not minimize the rights of State governments, but they go far beyond the economics of State boundaries.

Only through the growth of thought and action in terms of national economics can we best serve individual lives in individual localities.

It is, as these reports point out, an error to say that we have "conquered nature." We must rather start to shape our lives in more harmonious relationship with nature. This is a milestone in our progress toward that end. The future of every American family everywhere will be affected by the action we take.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

"MORRO CASTLE" AND "MOHAWK" STEAMSHIP DISASTERS

Mr. Wagner submitted the following resolution (S. Res. 63), which was referred to the Committee on Commerce:

Whereas on September 8, 1934, the steamship Morro Castle, within 6 hours of its schedule arrival in the port of New York, was swept by fire at sea with the loss of many lives; and

Whereas on January 24, 1935, the steamship Mohawk went down at sea with the loss of many additional lives; and

Whereas various investigations already held and now being held in connection with the Morro Castle disaster and the loss of the Mohawk, when combined with the records of other maritime tragedies in recent years, create a prima facie case that remediable conditions exist which do not tend to produce the utmost practicable degree of safety from the perils encountered upon the sea; and

Whereas it is imperative that life and property be accorded the utmost attainable degree of safety from such perils: Therefore be it

Resolved, That a special select committee of five Senators, to be appointed by the President of the Senate, is authorized and directed (1) to collect, collate, coordinate, and make available to the Senate the results of (a) the inquiry into the Morro Castle distaster conducted by the Secretary of Commerce through the Steamboat Inspection Service of the Department of Commerce; (b) the inquiry into the Morro Castle disaster, and the actions taken in connection with or subsequent to such inquiry, by the United States attorney for the southern district of New York; (c) such inquiries into the Mohawk disaster as have been or may be conducted by the Secretary of Commerce through the Steamboat Inspection Service of the Department of Commerce and by the United States attorney for the southern district of New York, and the actions taken in connection with or subsequent to such inquiry; and (d) such other inquiries into the Morro Castle disaster, the Mohawk disaster, and other maritime tragedies as would, in the discretion of the committee, be helpful for the purposes of this resolution; (2) to make such further investigations of the Morro Castle and the Mohawk disasters, including the rescue operations carried on in connection therewith, as the committee shall deem advisable and necessary for the purposes of this resolution; (3) to investigate the adequacy and enforcement of the present legal standards of safety of ship construction and operation; (4) to investigate the prevalent methods and practices in the complementing of seagoing vessels, including all conditions of employment; (5) to investigate the adequacy and efficiency of the Steamboat Inspection Service; (6) to investigate whether the laws governing liability for loss of life and property at sea, the laws and usage of salvage, and the laws, usages, and practices of the business of marine insurance tend to encourage the installation and utilization of such devices and the promotion of such practices as are conducive to safety and to a paramount concern at all times for the preservation of life; and (7) to make a preliminary report of the results of its investigations as soon as practicable, to make further reports from time to time, but at least once during each regular session of the Senate until it has completed its investigations, and to submit a final report to the Senate, together with its recommendations for necessary legislation. The President of the Senate shall appoint members to fill any vacancies that may occur in the committee.

For the purposes of this resolution such committee or any duly authorized subcommittee thereof is authorized to hold such hearings, to sit and act at such times and places during the sessions and recesses of the Senate in the Seventy-fourth and succeeding Congresses until the final report is submitted, to employ such counsel, experts, and clerical, stenographic, and other assistants, to require by subpena or otherwise the attendance of such witnesses and the production of such books, papers, and documents, to administer such oaths, and to take such testimony and make such expenditures as it deems advisable. The cost of stenographic service to report such hearings shall not be in excess of 25 cents per hundred words. The expenses of such committee, which shall not exceed $50,000, shall be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate upon vouchers approved by the chairman.

JUDICIAL DISTRICTS IN MICHIGAN

Mr. Vandenberg submitted the following resolution (S. Res. 64), which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary:

Whereas there is great congestion in the district courts of the United States for the eastern district of Michigan; and

Whereas there is an apparent need for a fourth district judge in said eastern district of Michigan; and

Whereas the eastern and western districts of Michigan cover vast geographical areas; and

Whereas great inconvenience in conducting the business of the district courts of said districts results from the traveling made necessary by the vastness of such areas; and

Whereas it may be advisable to redistrict the State of Michigan, creating three judicial districts therein, instead of providing for a fourth judge in the eastern district of said State: Therefore be it

Resolved, That the Department of Justice is requested to investigate the advisability of such redistricting and to report to the Senate, as soon as practicable, the results of its investigation.

EMPLOYMENT FOR GRADUATES OF EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS

Mr. Walsh submitted the following resolution (S. Res. 67):

Whereas one of the most tragic results of the depression is the effect it has had upon the lives of young men and women emerging from our educational institutions; and

Whereas there are several million young people between the ages of 18 and 30 who have graduated from grammar schools, high schools, preparatory schools, trade and normal schools, domestic-science schools, art schools, music conservatories, colleges, universities, and professional schools who have in large numbers entered into a work world where no opportunities have been open to them to obtain a start in business or to commence the practice of their professions; and

Whereas this large group may become demoralized and disheartened, and thus constitute a dangerous addition to the discontented and radical-minded elements, and also offer a challenge to the system which permits the minds and ingenuities of its youth to be wasted; and

Whereas it is the duty of the Federal Government to use every possible means of opening up opportunities in private industry and in the Government service for these young people so that they may be rehabilitated and restored to a decent standard of living and insured proper development for their talents: Be it therefore

Resolved, That the Secretary of Labor is hereby directed to—

1. Furnish the Senate at earliest convenience with an estimated statement of the number of young men and women between the ages of 18 and 30 who have emerged from educational institutions and who are at present without permanent employment and what, if any, study has been made of this problem by any department of the Government.

2. Inform the Senate whether or not, in the opinion of said Secretary, it would be feasible to create a special division of the Department of Labor, or a special bureau in the Public Works Administration, the duties of which would be to maintain contact with other governmental departments and agencies, the labor departments of the several States and private employers, for the purpose of ascertaining administrative and professional employment that would be available to young men and women coming out of our educational institutions, to which each department and agency of the Government would be required to submit a list of positions deemed suitable for young men and women of this class.

3. Advise the Senate as to the feasibility of the Secretary of Labor, through this division or bureau, receiving applications from such unemployed young men and women as are now desirous of obtaining employment and assigning them to such positions as may be available, according to their character, qualifications, and fitness.

4. Report any appropriate suggestions or recommendations for proper legislation relating to the classifying of this group and allocating to its qualified members available positions in the Government service likely to arise as a result of relief legislation now pending before the Congress.

5. That the Civil Service Commission is hereby directed to submit to the Senate information concerning what steps, if any, said Commission has taken to encourage men and women of this group to classify in the civil service by taking examinations therefor, and advise the Senate in the event that nothing has been done upon the feasibility of encouraging young men and women to enter the civil service; also as to what means, in the opinion of said Commission, would be best adapted by legislation or otherwise to promote the classification of members of this group in the civil service.

Ordered, That the resolution lie over 1 day under the rule.

WORKING CONDITIONS IN AUTOMOTIVE INDUSTRY

Mr. Schwellenbach submitted the following resolution (S. Res. 69), which was referred to the Committee on Education and Labor:

89901—S J—74–1——6

Resolved, That owing to the dissatisfaction of the workers in the automobile manufacturing industry with the labor policies of that industry, and to the apparent inability and unwillingness of the industry to stabilize employment and to pay a yearly wage upon which workers in the industry can live without dependence upon public and private charity, the Committee on Education and Labor, or any duly authorized subcommittee thereof, be hereby authorized and directed to investigate immediately the working conditions of employees in the automobile body manufacturing, parts manufacturing, tool and die making, or any other manufacturing for the automotive industry in the United States, in order to determine (1) whether the charges made by the workers in the automotive industry of the United States that the industry has consistently refused to abide by the provisions of section 7 (a) of the National Industrial Recovery Act are true; (2) whether the charges that the automobile manufacturers have initiated and supported company unions in violation of the provisions of section 7 (a) of the National Industrial Recovery Act and have forced employees to accept those company unions under penalty of discharge or other discrimination are true; to ascertain and determine the amounts of money diverted from the earnings of employees and dissipated by the employer in the development and maintenance of company unions, works councils, espionage systems, detective agencies, etc.; (3) whether the employers of the automotive industry, with the purpose of counteracting any effects which the code of fair competition for that industry might have on employment, have speeded up production to a point beyond the endurance of the workers; (4) whether the employers of the automotive industry have adopted a policy toward their employees of refusal to hire older men whose energies have, in a few years, been exhausted by the speed at which they must work in this industry; (5) whether employees of the automotive industry are prevented by discrimination, intimidation, and coercion from joining a bona fide trade union; (6) whether the employees of the automotive industry are refused free choice of the organization by which they wish to be represented for collective bargaining; (7) whether all efforts of the employees in the automotive industry to bargain collectively with the employers through their freely chosen representatives have been frustrated by the employers in violation of section 7 (a) of the National Industrial Recovery Act. The committee shall report to the Senate, as soon as practicable, the results of its investigation, together with its recommendations, if any, for necessary legislation. For the purposes of this resolution the committee, or any duly authorized subcommittee thereof, is authorized to hold hearings, to sit and act at such times and places during the sessions and recesses of the Senate until the final report is submitted, to employ such clerical and other assistants, to require by subpena or otherwise the attendance of such witnesses and the production of such books, papers, and documents, to administer such oaths, and to take such testimony, and make such expenditures as it deems advisable. Every person who, having been summoned as a witness by authority of said committee or any subcommittee thereof, willfully makes default or who, having appeared, refuses to answer any question pertinent to the investigation herein authorized, shall be liable to the penalties provided by section 102 of the Revised Statutes of the United States. The expenses of the committee or subcommittee, which shall not exceed $, shall be paid from the fund of the Senate upon vouchers approved by the chairman.

RELIGIOUS PERSECUTIONS IN MEXICO

Mr. Borah, by unanimous consent, submitted the following resolution (S. Res. 70), which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations:

Whereas serious antireligious outbreaks have occurred in Mexico under the regime of the National Revolutionary Party now in control of the Government of Mexico; and

Whereas the persecutions of Christians of all faiths now being practiced in Mexico have aroused indignation and protest throughout the civilized world; and

Whereas American citizens of the Christian faiths have been outraged and reviled, their homes invaded, their civil rights abridged, and their lives placed in jeopardy; and

Whereas the vindictive antireligious policy of the present Mexican Government has arbitrarily and unwarrantably restricted the number of ministers, priests, and rabbis permitted to officiate in some States within the boundaries of Mexico and has in other States entirely forbidden and prohibited the ordinary spiritual ministrations of clergymen of all creeds, thus resulting in the complete denial of the right of the people to practice the religion of their own choosing; and

Whereas it has been the national policy of the Government and the dominant Revolutionary Party of Mexico to discourage religious profession and obliterate religious worship; and

Whereas the present Mexican Government prohibits the time-honored practice of private religious instruction and education of children and compels parents as an only alternative to ignorance to educate their children in schools teaching hostility to orthodox religion; and

Whereas such antireligious activity in Mexico is contrary to the traditions of freedom of conscience and liberty of religious worship, which are the cherished attributes of all civilized governments; and

Whereas many distinguished leaders of the Protestant, Jewish, and Catholic faiths, as well as outstanding religious and interdenominational organizations and societies, have emphatically denounced and registered protest against such policies of the present Government and Mexico; and

Whereas the Government of Mexico has even encouraged an economic boycott against those sincerely professing and practicing the Christian religion; and

Whereas Christian residents of Mexico who complain of such intolerance are flagrantly mistreated and abused: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate of the United States deems it fitting and proper to protest the antireligious campaign and practices of the present rulers of Mexico; and that it views with the gravest concern such ruthless persecution of helpless men and women who have become the innocent victims of antireligious persecution; be it further

Resolved, That it strongly condemns the cruelties and brutalities that have accompanied the campaign of the present Mexican Government against the profession and practice of religious beliefs by our nationals of all religious faiths now domiciled in Mexico; be it further

Resolved, That it calls upon the Government of Mexico in the name of humanity to cease denying fundamental and inalienable rights to those of our nationals who may be resident in Mexico regardless of religious convictions; and be it further

Resolved, That the Committee on Foreign Relations of the United States Senate, or a subcommittee thereof, be authorized to conduct hearings and receive such evidence as may be presented relating to religious persecution and antireligious compulsion and agitation in Mexico for the purpose of determining the policy of the United States in reference to this vital problem and in what way we may best serve the cause of tolerance and religious freedom.

For the purpose of this resolution the committee, or any duly authorized subcommittee thereof, is authorized to hold such hearings, to sit and act at such times and places during the sessions and recesses of the Senate in the Seventy-fourth Congress, to employ such clerical and other assistants, to require by subpena or otherwise the attendance of such witnesses and the production of such books, papers, and documents, to administer such oaths, to take such testimony, and to make such expenditures as it deems advisable. The cost of stenographic services to report such hearings shall not be in excess of 25 cents per hundred words. The expenses of the committee, which shall not exceed $10,000, shall be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate upon vouchers approved by the chairman.

AVIATION CONDITIONS

The Presiding Officer (Mr. McGill in the chair) laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read, and, with the accompanying report, referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce and ordered to be printed:

To the Congress of the United States:

I am submitting herewith the report of the Federal Aviation Commission appointed by me last summer by direction of the Seventy-third Congress. The Commission has made a diligent study of the broad subject of aviation conditions here and elsewhere, and emphasizes the excellent American progress in this new form of transportation. The Commission has also studied problems of national defense, of procurement policies, and of the extension of air-transport services. I invite your attention to these comprehensive surveys.

As I have suggested on many occasions, it becomes more and more apparent that the Government of the United States should bring about a consolidation of its methods of supervision over all forms of transportation. When the Interstate Commerce Commission was created in 1887 the railroad was practically the principal method of rapid interstate transportation. Since that time this monopoly of transportation enjoyed by the railroad, to a very important degree, has been limited by the development of the automobile and good interstate roads. Recently water transportation by lake, by river, by canal, and by oceans has, largely through the construction of the Panama Canal and our inland waterways, definitely brought ships and shipping into the general interstate field. More recently still air transportation has become an element. All of these developments have changed the general problem of transportation and the concern of the Government with them. A number of valuable reports have been prepared on these related questions. The report of the Federal Coordinator of Transportation has already been submitted to the Congress by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The report deals with the many problems relating to busses, trucks, water carriers, and railroads. Other reports of departmental committees on ocean-mail subsidies have been completed. This present report on aviation is a similar source of information and advice concerning transportation by air. I earnestly suggest that the Congress consider these various reports, together in the light of the necessity for the development of interrelated planning of our national transportation. At a later date I shall ask the Congress for general legislation centralizing the supervision of air and water and highway transportation with adjustments of our present methods of organization in order to meet new and additional responsibilities.

There are detailed questions, however, that require early action. Our extended mail contracts with air lines expire on or about March 1, and existing legislation dealing with primary and secondary routes should be revised before that time. The Commission suggests that the Interstate Commerce Commission be given temporarily the power to lower or increase air-mail rates as warranted in their judgment after full investigation. The purpose of this is to prevent the destruction of any efficiently operated part of the present system pending suitable consideration by the Congress of what permanent measures should be taken and what amendment, if any, the present general transportation policy of the Government should undergo. I concur in this recommendation of the Federal Aviation Commission, provided always that the grant of this duty to the Interstate Commerce Commission be subject to provisions against unreasonable profits by any private carrier. On account of the fact that an essential objective during this temporary period is to provide for the continuation of efficiently operated companies and to guard against their destruction, it is only fair to suggest that during this period any profits at all by such companies should be a secondary consideration. Government aid in this case is legitimate in order to save companies from disastrous loss but not in order to provide profits.

The Commission further recommends the creation of a temporary Air Commerce Commission. In this recommendation I am unable to concur. I believe that we should avoid the multiplication of separate regulatory agencies in the field of transportation. Therefore, in the interim before a permanent consolidated agency is created or designated over transportation as a whole, a division of the Interstate Commerce Commission can well serve the needs of air transportation. In the granting of powers and duties by the Congress orderly government calls for the administration of executive functions by those administrative departments or agencies which have functioned satisfactorily in the past and, on the other hand, calls for the vesting of judicial functions in agencies already accustomed to such powers. It is this principle that should be followed in all of the various aspects of transportation legislation.

Mr. Fletcher submitted the following conference report:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the House to the bill (S. 1175) to extend the functions of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for 2 years, and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the Senate recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the House, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the House amendment insert the following: That until February 1, 1937, or such earlier date as the President may fix by proclamation, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is hereby authorized to continue to perform all functions which it is authorized to perform under law, and the liquidation and winding up of its affairs as provided for by section 13 of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Act, as amended, are hereby postponed during the period that the functions of the Corporation are continued pursuant to this act: Provided, That no officer or employee of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation shall receive salary at a rate in excess of $10,000 per annum, except that in the case of any position the salary of which at the date of the enactment of this act is at the rate of $12,500 per annum such salary may continue at such rate.

Sec. 2. (a) Except as provided in section 5d of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Act, as amended by section 10 hereof, and in section 9 of an act entitled "An act relating to direct loans for industrial purposes by Federal Reserve banks, and for other purposes", approved June 19, 1934, no funds shall be disbursed on any commitment or agreement hereafter made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to make a loan or advance, subscribe for stock, or purchase capital notes or debentures, after the expiration of one year from the date of such commitment or agreement; but within the period of such one-year limitation no provision of law terminating any of the functions of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation shall be construed to prohibit disbursement of funds on commitments or agreements to make loans or advances, subscribe for preferred stock, or purchase capital notes or debentures.

(b) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, disbursement may be made at any time prior to January 31, 1936, on any commitment or agreement heretofore made by the Corporation to make a loan or advance, subscribe for preferred stock, or purchase capital notes or debentures.

Sec. 3. Notwithstanding any other provisions of law limiting the maturity of obligations taken by it to shorter periods, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation may make loans or advances or renewals or extensions thereof to authorized borrowers or by other suitable agreement permit them to run so as to mature at such time or times as the Corporation may determine, not later than January 31, 1945: Provided, That in respect of loans or renewals or extensions of loans or purchases of obligations under section 5 of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Act, as heretofore and herein amended (U. S. C., Supp. VII, title 15, ch. 14), to or of railroads, the Corporation may require as a condition of making any such loan or renewal or extension for a period longer than five years, or purchasing any such obligation maturing later than five years from the date of purchase by the Corporation, that such arrangements be made for the reduction or amortization of the indebtedness of the railroad, either in whole or in part, as may be approved by the Corporation after the prior approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Sec. 4. (a) Section 5 of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Act, as amended (U. S. C., Supp. VII, title 15, ch. 14), is further amended by striking out all of the third sentence of the third paragraph thereof through the first colon and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "Within the foregoing limitations of this section, the Corporation, notwithstanding any limitation of law as to maturity, with the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission, including approval of the price to be paid, may, to aid in the financing, reorganization, consolidation, maintenance, or construction thereof, purchase for itself, or for account of a railroad obligated thereon, the obligations of railroads engaged in interstate commerce, including equipment trust certificates, or guarantee the payment of the principal of, and/or interest on, such obligations, including equipment trust certificates, or, when, in the opinion of the Corporation, funds are not available on reasonable terms through private channnels, make loans, upon full and adequate security, to such railroads or to receivers or trustees thereof for the purposes aforesaid: Provided, That in the case of loans to or the purchase or guarantee of obligations, including equipment trust certificates, of railroads not in receivership or trusteeship, the Interstate Commerce Commission shall, in connection with its approval thereof, also certify that such railroad, on the basis of present and prospective earnings, may reasonably be expected to meet its fixed charges, without a reduction thereof through judicial reorganization, except that such certificate shall not be required in case of such loans made for the maintenance of, or purchase of equipment for, such railroads: And provided further, That for the purpose of determining the general funds of the Corporation available for further loans or commitments, such guaranties shall, to the extent of the principal amount of the obligations guaranteed, be interpreted as loans or commitments for loans: Provided further, That the total amount of loans and commitments to railroads, receivers, and trustees, and purchases and guaranties of obligations of railroads, under this paragraph, as amended, shall not exceed at any one time $350,000,000, in addition to loans and commitments made prior to the date of enactment of this act and renewals of loans and commitments so made."

In any case in which, under the laws of its incorporation, such financial institution is not permitted to issue nonassessable stock, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is authorized, for the purposes of this section, to purchase the legally issued capital notes or debentures of such financial institutions. The amount of notes, bonds, debentures, and other such obligations which the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is authorized and empowered to issue and to have outstanding at any one time under existing law is hereby increased by an amount sufficient to carry out the provisions of this section."

Sec. 11. In all cases where the Reconstruction Finance Corporation shall hold any bonds or other evidences of indebtedness of any borrower under section 201 (a) of the Emergency Relief and Construction Act of 1932, whether heretofore or hereafter acquired, and such borrower shall be able and willing to substitute or cause to be substituted therefor any other bonds or other evidences of indebtedness, whether of the same or longer maturities or otherwise differing, which, in the judgment of said Reconstruction Finance Corporation, are more desirable than those so held, the said Reconstruction Finance Corporation is authorized to accept such bonds or other evidences of indebtedness, in exchange and substitution for such bonds or other evidences of indebtedness so held by it, upon such terms and conditions as may be agreed upon with such borrower at the time of, or in contemplation of, such exchange and substitution.

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate amendment, insert the following:

That the Governor of the Farm Credit Administration, hereinafter in this act referred to as the "Governor", is hereby authorized to make loans to farmers in the United States (including Alaska, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico), during the year 1935, for fallowing, for the production of crops, for harvesting of crops, and for feed for livestock, or for any of such purposes. Such loans shall be made and collected through such agencies, upon such terms and conditions, and subject to such regulations, as the Governor shall prescribe.

Sec. 2 (a) There shall be required as security for any such loan a first lien, or an agreement to give a first lien, upon all crops of which the production or harvesting, or both, is to be financed, in whole or in part, with the proceeds of such loan; or, in case of any loan for the purchase or production of feed for livestock, a first lien upon the livestock to be fed. Fees for recording, filing, and registering shall not exceed 75 cents per loan and may be deducted from the proceeds of the loan. Each loan shall bear interest at the rate of 5½ per centum per annum. For the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act and collecting loans made under other acts of the same general character, including loans made by the Governor with funds appropriated by the Emergency Appropriation Act, fiscal year 1935, the Governor may use the facilities and services of the Farm Credit Administration and any institution operating under its supervision, or of any officer or officers thereof, and may pay for such services and the use of such facilities from the funds made available for the payment of necessary administrative expenses; and such institutions are hereby expressly empowered to enter into agreements with the Governor for the accomplishment of such purposes.

(b) The amount which may be loaned to any borrower pursuant to this act shall not exceed $500: Provided, however, That in any area certified by the President of the United States to the Governor as a distressed emergency area, the Governor may make loans without regard to the foregoing limitations as to amount, under such regulations and with such maturities as he may prescribe therefor.

(c) No loan shall be made under this act to any applicant who shall not have first established to the satisfaction of the proper officer or employee of the Farm Credit Administration, under such regulations as the Governor may prescribe: (1) that such applicant is unable to procure from other sources a loan in an amount reasonably adequate to meet his needs for the purposes for which loans may be made under this act; and (2) that such applicant is cooperating directly in the crop production control program of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration or is not proposing to increase his 1935 production of basic agricultural commodities in a manner detrimental to the success of such program.

Sec. 3. (a) The moneys authorized to be loaned by the Governor under this act are declared to be impressed with a trust to accomplish the purposes provided for by this act (namely, for fallowing, production, harvesting, or feed), which trust shall continue until the moneys loaned pursuant to this act have been used by the borrower for such purposes.

(b) It shall be unlawful for any person to make any material false representation for the purpose of obtaining, or assisting another to obtain, a loan under the provisions of this act; or willfully to dispose of, or assist in disposing of, except for the account of the Governor, any crops or other property upon which there exists a lien securing a loan made under the provisions of this act.

(c) It shall be unlawful for any person to charge a fee for the purpose of preparing or assisting in the preparation of any papers of an applicant for a loan under the provisions of this act.

(d) Any person violating any of the provisions of this act shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not more than $1,000, or by imprisonment for not more than six months, or both.

Sec. 4. The Governor shall have power, without regard to the provisions of other laws applicable to the employment and compensation of officers and employees of the United States, to employ and fix the compensation and duties of such agents, officers, and employees as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this act; but the compensation of such officers and employees shall correspond, so far as the Governor deems practicable, to the rates established by the Classification Act of 1923, as amended.

Sec. 5. (a) There is hereby authorized to be appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of not to exceed $60,000,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to carry out the provisions of this act. Any part of such sum may be made up as follows: All unobligated balances of appropriations and funds available thereunder to enable the Secretary of Agriculture or the Governor to make advances or loans under the following acts and resolutions, and all repayments of such advances and loans and interest: March 3, 1921 (41 Stat. 1347); March 20, 1922 (42 Stat. 467); April 26, 1924 (43 Stat. 110); February 28, 1927 (44 Stat. 1251); February 25, 1929 (45 Stat. 1306), as amended May 17, 1929 (46 Stat. 3); March 3, 1930 (46 Stat. 78, 79); December 20, 1930 (46 Stat. 1032), as amended February 14, 1931 (46 Stat. 1160); February 23, 1931 (46 Stat. 1276); March 3, 1932 (47 Stat. 60); February 4, 1933 (47 Stat. 795); February 23, 1934 (48 Stat. 354); and June 19, 1934 (48 Stat. 1021).

(b) The moneys made available under subsection (a), and all collections of both principal and interest on loans made under this act, may be used by the Governor for making loans under this act and for all necessary administrative expenses in making and collecting such loans.

(c) Expenditures for printing and binding necessary in carrying out the provisions of this act may be made without regard to the provisions of section 3709 of the Revised Statutes.

And the Senate agree to the same.

Whereas it is further alleged that the said concerns favoring the firm of the said James A. Farley with business have been able to secure changes in specifications netting them large sums in profits after the award of contracts, and it being alleged that such changes are deliberately made for the purpose of allowing large profits and avoiding competition; and

Farley, it is due to the people of the United States, the Government of the United States, and the said James A. ADMINISTRATION OF N. R. A. CODES

Mr. Nye and Mr. McCarran submitted the following resolution (S. Res. 79):

Whereas the National Industrial Recovery Act, as a temporary measure, has been in operation for nearly 2 years and will expire by limitation of time on June 16, 1935; and

Whereas proposals will soon be pending before the Congress for an extension of the act or for the enactment of new legislation in lieu of it; and

Whereas the Congress should be guided in its deliberations by the practical experience of the last 2 years; and

Whereas numerous charges have been made of injustice, oppression, and favoritism in the administration of the codes of the several industries; and

Whereas the charges include, among others, the following:

1. That small enterprises are oppressed and their continued existence jeopardized;

2. That wage scales and the rights of the workers are being ignored or subordinated in the competitive battle of the strong to seize the markets of the weak;

3. That in some industries the code authorities are dominated by certain elements of the industry, and are using their powers for the oppression of other elements;

4. That they are energetically using their usurped powers to accomplish the centralization of industry and to prevent its decentralization;

5. That hordes of paid investigators and inquisitors travel over the country practicing unlawful searches and seizures;

6. That in certain cases the administrators themselves have not hesitated openly to suspend or revoke the law for the benefit of favored individuals;

7. That even among the nonfavored elements of industry there is discrimination in this respect; that the strong are able to resist aggression while the weak must submit;

8. That, possessing vast and extralegal powers, code authorities have made trivial demands which cannot be ignored, under pain of economic death and have compelled the accused to travel vast distances with their witnesses and records to remote places to vindicate themselves;

9. That under the pretense of enforcing wage provisions the code authorities and the administrators have declared and are putting into effect a policy of regulating production costs without reference to wage scales;

10. That by means of the usurped power of fixing production costs they are indirectly fixing prices to the consumer;

11. That code authorities have usurped the legislative function and have issued floods of new legislation under the guise of rules, regulations, and interpretations;

12. That such rules, regulations, and interpretations are deliberately designed to affect adversely the unfavored elements and to leave unaffected the favored elements of industry;

13. That the torrent of rules, regulations, and interpretations has been deliberately designed to be vague, indefinite, and uncertain in order that the codes may mean anything or nothing in the unlimited discretion and untrammeled will of the code authorities;

14. That many of these vague rules, regulations, and interpretations have been retroactive in character; that industry has been compelled to guess at its peril; and individuals have been charged with serious offenses for violation of supposed laws which were not and could not have been anticipated;

15. That a wealth of statistical information is obtained from members of industry for the use and guidance of code authorities; that this information is available to the dominant elements and is withheld from those who would resist their domination;

16. That protected by code provisions for the confidential nature of information thus obtained, the operations of the code authorities are shrouded in mystery which the unfavored elements are unable to penetrate;

17. That in certain instances important amendments to codes have been obtained and approved of which the industry at large was in total ignorance for many months;

18. That when just complaints have been made to the administration the administrators have investigated the conduct of themselves and of their collaborating code authorities; that such investigations have been secretly conducted, and the complaining elements never called upon to produce evidence or informed that the investigation was in progress;

19. That section 4 (b) of the National Industrial Recovery Act (now expired by limitation) provided the conditions under which the President may require that no person shall engage in any trade or industry without first obtaining a license; that in defiance of the clear intent of the act certain industrial codes provide that all commodities produced shall bear an N. R. A. label; that the privilege of using such label shall be granted upon application to the code authority; that the privilege of using such label may be withdrawn in respect of any manufacturer whose operations, after hearing by the code authority and review by the Administrator, shall be found to be in substantial violation of the code; that this in effect constitutes the code authority and the Administrator a licensing authority; that some retail codes contain an absolute prohibition of the sale by any merchant of any commodity the code of whose industry requires a label unless the label of such industry be thereto affixed; that this system of legalized boycott places the manufacturer at the absolute mercy of the code authority and the Administrator; that a standardized practice has evolved under which a person aggrieved by a ruling of the code authority may appeal to the Administrator for redress, but that as a condition of obtaining a hearing of his grievances he must agree in advance to be bound by the decision of the Administrator and waive his right to resort to the judicial process;

20. That, notwithstanding the provision of the Constitution of the United States that all bills for raising revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives, code authorities have assumed and are exercising the power to levy taxes on industries and are enforcing collection thereof by duress;

21. That code authority administration in many cases has lost all semblance of a rule of law and has become a rule of men, bent upon the oppression of their weaker competitors; and

Whereas if the conditions charged obtain to any considerable extent the Congress should have full knowledge of them to guide it in the formulation of new legislation; and

Whereas all friends of labor and all well-wishers for the success of the industrial-recovery program recognize that the correction of abuses is a necessary condition to the success of the program: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the subject matter of this resolution be referred to the Senate Committee on Commerce and that said committee be, and is hereby, authorized and directed to investigate and report upon the subject matter of this resolution.

For the purposes of this resolution the committee or any subcommittee thereof is authorized to hold hearings; to sit and act at such times and places during the sessions and recesses of the Congress until the final report is submitted; to require by subpena or otherwise the attendance of such witnesses and the production of such books, papers, and documents; to administer such oaths; to take such testimony, and to make such expenditures as it deems advisable. The cost of stenographic services to report such hearings shall not be in excess of 25 cents per hundred words. The expenses of the committee, which shall not exceed $25,000, shall be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate upon vouchers approved by the chairman.

Ordered, That the resolution lie over 1 day under the rule.

Pending debate,

Mr. Wheeler raised a question of order, viz, that while there was an amendment pending to strike out the whole committee amendment another amendment could not be ordered.

The Vice President, in the following language, overruled the question of order:

"The Chair will state to the Senator from Montana that the theory of the rule is that a motion to strike out and insert takes precedence over a motion to strike out, so as to perfect the matter proposed to be stricken out before the other motion is acted upon. The only question is whether this is an amendment in the third degree, there already having been a committee amendment proposed, and an amendment to that amendment. The philosophy of the rule seems to be to perfect whatever the Senate has to vote on before the Senate votes on it; so the Chair will hold the amendment in order."

The amendment proposed by Mr. Gore was agreed to.

The question recurring on agreeing to the amendment proposed by Mr. Cutting, viz, on page 3, line 8, strike out "(1)" and strike out all after the word "need" in line 9 down to and including the word "so" in line 12, as amended, as follows: ", (2) has not within sixty days resigned from or voluntarily left any position the wage for which was at a rate in excess of $50 a month, and (3) has bona fide endeavored to obtain employment and has been unable to do so".

EXTENSION OF NATIONAL INDUSTRIAL RECOVERY ACT

The Vice President laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read, referred to the Committee on Finance, and ordered to be printed:

To the Congress of the United States:

On May 17, 1933, I asked the Congress to "provide for the machinery necessary for a great cooperative movement throughout all industry in order to obtain wide reemployment, to shorten the working week, to pay a decent wage for the shorter week, and to prevent unfair competition and disastrous overproduction."

The National Industrial Recovery Act was passed by the Congress in June 1933, and the administrative machinery to carry it into effect was set up during the succeeding month.

It is worth remembering that the purpose of this law challenged the imagination of the American people and received their overwhelming support. Enforcement during the earlier life of the act was not a problem which gave the country concern, for the very good reason that public opinion served as an enforcing agency which potential violators did not dare to oppose. The immediate objective was to check the downward spiral of the great depression, and it met this objective and started us on our forward path. It is now clear that in the spring and summer of 1933 many estimates of unemployment in the United States were far too low, and we are therefore apt to forget today that the National Industrial Recovery Act was the biggest factor in giving reemployment to approximately 4,000,000 people.

In our progress under the act the age-long curse of child labor has been lifted, the sweatshop outlawed, millions of wage earners have been released from the starvation wages and excessive hours of labor. Under it a great advance has been made in the opportunities and assurances of collective bargaining between employers and employees. Under it the pattern of a new order of industrial relations is definitely taking shape.

Industry as a whole has also made gains. It has been freed, in part at least, from dishonorable competition brought about not only by overworking and underpaying labor but by destructive business practices. We have begun to develop new safeguards for small enterprises; and most important of all, business itelf recognizes more clearly than at any previous time in our history the advantages and the obligations of cooperation and self-discipline, and the patriotic need of ending unsound financing and unfair practices of all kinds.

Hand in hand with the improving of labor conditions and of industrial practices we have given representation and consideration to the problems of the consuming public. And it is reasonable to state that with certain inevitable exceptions in the case of individual products there has been less gouging in retail sales and prices than in any similar period of increasing demand and rising markets.

The first codes went into effect in July 1933. Since then approximately 600 have been added. The average age of these codes of fair competition which have been approved—90 percent of the coverable employments were under code—is less than 11 months, a brief time indeed for the definite achievements already made. Only carping critics and those who seek either political advantage or the right again to indulge in unfair practices or exploitation of labor or consumers deliberately seek to quarrel over the obvious fact that a great code of law, of order, and of decent business cannot be created in a day or a year.

We must rightly move to correct some things done or left undone. We must work out the coordination of every code with every other code. We must simplify procedure. We must continue to obtain current information as to the working out of code processes. We must constantly improve a personnel which, of necessity, was hastily assembled but which has given loyal and unselfish service to the Government of the country. We must check and clarify such provisions in the various codes as are puzzling to those operating under them. We must make more and more definite the responsibilities of all of the parties concerned.

This act, which met in its principles with such universal public approval and under which such great general gains have been made, will terminate on June 16, next. The fundamental purposes and principles of the act are sound. To abandon them is unthinkable. It would spell the return of industrial and labor chaos.

I, therefore, recommend to the Congress that the National Industrial Recovery Act be extended for a period of 2 years.

I recommend that the policy and standards for the administration of the act should be further defined in order to clarify the legislative purpose and to guide the execution of the law, thus profiting by what we have already learned.

Voluntary submission of codes should be encouraged, but at the same time, if an industry fails voluntarily to agree within itself, unquestioned power must rest in the Government to establish in any event certain minimum standards of fair competition in commercial practices, and especially adequate standards in labor relations. For example, child labor must not be allowed to return; the fixing of minimum wages and maximum hours is practical and necessary.

The rights of employees freely to organize for the purpose of collective bargaining should be fully protected.

The fundamental principles of the antitrust laws should be more adequately applied. Monopolies and private price fixing within industries must not be allowed nor condoned. "No monopoly should be private." But I submit that in the case of certain natural resources, such as coal, oil, and gas, the people of the United States need Government supervision over these resources devised for the purpose of eliminating their waste and of controlling their output and stabilizing employment in them, to the end that the public will be protected and that ruinous price cutting and inordinate profits will both be denied.

We must continue to recognize that incorrigible minorities within an industry, or in the whole field of trade and industry, should not be allowed to write the rules of unfair play and compel all others to compete upon their low level. We must make certain that the privilege of cooperating to prevent unfair competition will not be transformed into a license to strangle fair competition under the apparent sanction of the law. Small enterprises especially should be given added protection against discrimination and oppression.

In the development of this legislation I call your attention to the obvious fact that the way to enforce laws, codes, and regulations relating to industrial practices is not to seek to put people in jail. We need other and more effective means for the immediate stopping of practices by any individual or by any corporation which are contrary to these principles.

Detailed recommendations along the lines which I have indicated have been made to me by various departments and agencies charged with the execution of the present law. These are available for the consideration of the Congress and, although not furnishing anything like a precise and finished draft of legislation, they may be helpful to you in your deliberations.

Let me urge upon the Congress the necessity for an extension of the present act. The progress we have been able to make has shown us the vast scope of the problems in our industrial life. We need a certain degree of flexibility and of specialized treatment, for our knowledge of the processes and the necessities of this life are still incomplete. By your action you will sustain and hasten the process of industrial recovery which we are now experiencing; you will lighten the burdens of unemployment and economic insecurity.

CONTRABAND-OIL SHIPMENTS

Mr. Logan submitted the following conference report:

The committee on conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the House to the bill (S. 1190) to regulate interstate and foreign commerce in petroleum and its products by prohibiting the shipment in such commerce of petroleum and its products produced in violation of State law, and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the Senate recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the House and agree to the same with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the amendment of the House insert the following:

That it is hereby declared to be the policy of Congress to protect interstate and foreign commerce from the diversion and obstruction of, and the burden and harmful effect upon, such commerce caused by contraband oil as herein defined, and to encourage the conservation of deposits of crude oil situated within the United States.

Sec. 2. As used in this Act—

(1) The term "contraband oil" means petroleum which, or any constituent part of which, was produced, transported, or withdrawn from storage in excess of the amounts permitted to be produced, transported, or withdrawn from storage under the laws of a State or under any regulation or order prescribed thereunder by any board, commission, officer, or other duly authorized agency of such State, or any of the products of such petroleum.

(2) The term "products" or "petroleum products" includes any article produced or derived in whole or in part from petroleum or any product thereof by refining, processing, manufacturing, or otherwise.

(3) The term "interstate commerce" means commerce between any point in a State and any point outside thereof, or between points within the same State but through any place outside thereof, or from any place in the United States to a foreign country, but only insofar as such commerce takes place within the United States.

(4) The term "person" includes an individual, partnership, corporation, or joint-stock company.

Sec. 3. The shipment or transportation in interstate commerce from any State of contraband oil produced in such State is hereby prohibited. For the purposes of this section contraband oil shall not be deemed to have been produced in a State if none of the petroleum constituting such contraband oil, or from which it was produced or derived, was produced, transported, or withdrawn from storage in excess of the amounts permitted to be produced, transported, or withdrawn from storage under the laws of such State or under any regulation or order prescribed thereunder by any board, commission, officer, or other duly authorized agency of such State.

Sec. 4. Whenever the President finds that the amount of petroleum and petroleum products moving in interstate commerce is so limited as to be the cause, in whole or in part, of a lack of parity between supply (including imports and reasonable withdrawals from storage) and consumptive demand (including exports and reasonable additions to storage) resulting in an undue burden on or restriction of interstate commerce in petroleum and petroleum products, he shall by proclamation declare such finding, and thereupon the provisions of section 3 shall be inoperative until such time as the President shall find and by proclamation declare that the conditions which gave rise to the suspension of the operation of the provisions of such section no longer exist. If any provision of this section or the application thereof shall be held to be invalid, the validity or application of section 3 shall not be affected thereby.

Sec. 5. (a) The President shall prescribe such regulations as he finds necessary or appropriate for the enforcement of the provisions of this act, including but not limited to regulations requiring reports, maps, affidavits, and other documents relating to the production, storage, refining, processing, transporting, or handling of petroleum and petroleum products, and providing for the keeping of books and records, and for the inspection of such books and records and of properties and facilities.

(b) Whenever the President finds it necessary or appropriate for the enforcement of the provisions of this act he shall require certificates of clearance for petroleum and petroleum products moving or to be moved in interstate commerce from any particular area, and shall establish a board or boards for the issuance of such certificates. A certificate of clearance shall be issued by a board so established in any case where such board determines that the petroleum or petroleum products in question does not constitute contraband oil. Denial of any such certificate shall be by order of the board, and only after reasonable opportunity for hearing. Whenever a certificate of clearance is required for any area in any State, it shall be unlawful to ship or transport petroleum or petroleum products in interstate commerce from such area unless a certificate has been obtained therefor.

(c) Any person whose application for a certificate of clearance is denied may obtain a review of the order denying such application in the United States District Court for the district wherein the board is sitting by filing in such court within thirty days after the entry of such order a written petition praying that the order of the board be modified or set aside, in whole or in part. A copy of such petition shall be forthwith served upon the board, and thereupon the board shall certify and file in the court a transcript of the record upon which the order complained of was entered. Upon the filing of such transcript, such court shall have jurisdiction to affirm, modify, or set aside such order, in whole or in part. No objection to the order of the board shall be considered by the court unless such objection shall have been urged before the board. The finding of the board as to the facts, if supported by evidence, shall be conclusive. The judgment and decree of the court shall be final, subject to review as provided in sections 128 and 240 of the Judicial Code, as amended (U. S. C., title 28, secs. 225 and 347).

Sec. 6. Any person knowingly violating any provisions of this act or any regulation prescribed thereunder shall upon conviction be punished by a fine of not to exceed $2,000 or by imprisonment for not to exceed six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Sec. 7. (a) Contraband oil shipped or transported in interstate commerce in violation of the provisions of this act shall be liable to be proceeded against in any District Court of the United States within the jurisdiction of which the same may be found, and seized for forfeiture to the United States by a process of libel for condemnation; but in any such case the court may in its discretion, and under such terms and conditions as it shall prescribe, order the return of such contraband oil to the owner thereof where undue hardship would result from such forfeiture. The proceedings in such cases shall conform as nearly as may be to proceedings in rem in admiralty, except that either party may demand a trial by jury of any issue of fact joined in any such case, and all such proceedings shall be at the suit of and in the name of the United States. Contraband oil forfeited to the United States as provided in this section shall be used or disposed of pursuant to such rules and regulations as the President shall prescribe.

(b) No such forfeiture shall be made in the case of contraband oil owned by any person (other than a person shipping such contraband oil in violation of the provisions of this act) who has with respect to such contraband oil a certificate of clearance which on its face appears to be valid and to have been issued by a board created under authority of section 5, certifying that the shipment in question is not contraband oil, and such person had no reasonable ground for believing such certificate to be invalid or to have issued as a result of fraud or misrepresentation of fact.

Sec. 8. No common carrier who shall refuse to accept petroleum or petroleum products from any area in which certificates of clearance are required under authority of this act, by reason of the failure of the shipper to deliver such a certificate to such carrier, or who shall refuse to accept any petroleum or petroleum products when having reasonable ground for believing that such petroleum or petroleum products constitute contraband oil, shall be liable on account of such refusal for any penalties or damages. No common carrier shall be subject to any penalty under section 6 in any case where (1) such carrier has a certificate of clearance which on its face appears to be valid and to have been issued by a board created under authority of section 5, certifying that the shipment in question is not contraband oil, and such carrier had no reasonable ground for believing such certificate to be invalid or to have been issued as a result of fraud or misrepresentation of fact, or (2) such carrier, as respects any shipment originating in any area where certificates of clearance are not required under authority of this act, had no reasonable ground for believing such petroleum or petroleum products to constitute contraband oil.

Sec. 9. (a) Any board established under authority of section 5, and any agency designated under authority of section 11, may hold and conduct such hearings, investigations, and proceedings as may be necessary for the purposes of this act, and for such purposes those provisions of section 21 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 relating to the administering of oaths and affirmations, and to the attendance and testimony of witnesses and the production of evidence (including penalties), shall apply.

(b) The members of any board established under authority of section 5 shall be appointed by the President, without regard to the civil-service laws but subject to the Classification Act of 1923, as amended; and any such board may appoint, without regard to the civil-service laws but subject to the Classification Act of 1923, as amended, such employees as may be necessary for the execution of its functions under this act.

Sec. 10. (a) Upon application of the President, by the Attorney General, the United States district courts shall have jurisdiction to issue mandatory injunctions commanding any person to comply with the provisions of this act or any regulation issued thereunder.

(b) Whenever it shall appear to the President that any person is engaged or about to engage in any acts or practices that constitute or will constitute a violation of any provision of this act or of any regulation thereunder, he may in his discretion, by the Attorney General, bring an action in the proper United States District Court to enjoin such acts or practices, and upon a proper showing a permanent or temporary injunction or restraining order shall be granted without bond.

ADMINISTRATION OF N. R. A. CODES

On motion by Mr. Harrison,

The Senate proceeded to consider the resolution (S. Res. 79) for an investigation of certain charges concerning the administration of industrial codes by the National Recovery Administration; and the same was amended on the motion of Mr. Harrison.

After debate,

The amendments heretofore reported from the Committee on Finance and the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate were agreed to, and the resolution, as amended, was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The resolution, together with the accompanying preamble, as agreed to, is as follows:

Whereas the National Industrial Recovery Act, as a temporary measure, has been in operation for nearly two years, and will expire by limitation of time on June 16, 1935; and

Whereas proposals will soon be pending before the Congress for an extension of the act or for the enactment of new legislation in lieu of it; and

Whereas the Congress should be guided in its deliberations by the practical experience of the last two years; and

Whereas numerous charges have been made of injustice, oppression, and favoritism in the administration of the codes of the several industries; and

Whereas the charges include, among others, the following:

1. That small enterprises are oppressed and their continued existence jeopardized;

2. That wage scales and the rights of the workers are being ignored or subordinated in the competitive battle of the strong to seize the markets of the weak;

3. That in some industries the code authorities are dominated by certain elements of the industry, and are using their powers for the oppression of other elements;

4. That they are energetically using their usurped powers to accomplish the centralization of industry and to prevent its decentralization;

5. That hordes of paid investigators and inquisitors travel over the country practicing unlawful searches and seizures;

6. That in certain cases the administrators themselves have not hesitated openly to suspend or revoke the law for the benefit of favored individuals;

7. That even among the nonfavored elements of industry there is discrimination in this respect; that the strong are able to resist aggression while the weak must submit;

8. That possessing vast and extra-legal powers, code authorities have made trivial demands which cannot be ignored, under pain of economic death, and have compelled the accused to travel vast distances with their witnesses and records to remote places to vindicate themselves;

9. That under the pretense of enforcing wage provisions the code authorities and the administrators have declared and are putting into effect a policy of regulating production costs without reference to wage scales;

10. That by means of the usurped power of fixing production costs they are indirectly fixing prices to the consumer;

11. That code authorities have usurped the legislative function and have issued floods of new legislation under the guise of rules, regulations, and interpretations;

12. That such rules, regulations, and interpretations are deliberately designed to affect adversely the unfavored elements and to leave unaffected the favored elements of industry;

13. That the torrent of rules, regulations, and interpretations has been deliberately designed to be vague, indefinite, and uncertain in order that the codes may mean anything or nothing in the unlimited discretion and untrammeled will of the code authorities;

14. That many of these vague rules, regulations, and interpretations have been retroactive in character; that industry has been compelled to guess at its peril; and individuals have been charged with serious offenses for violation of supposed laws which were not and could not have been anticipated;

15. That a wealth of statistical information is obtained from members of industry for the use and guidance of code authorities; that this information is available to the dominant elements and is withheld from those who would resist their domination;

16. That, protected by code provisions for the confidential nature of information thus obtained, the operations of the code authorities are shrouded in mystery which the unfavored elements are unable to penetrate;

17. That in certain instances important amendments to codes have been obtained and approved of which the industry at large was in total ignorance for many months;

18. That when just complaints have been made to the administration, the administrators have investigated the conduct of themselves and of their collaborating code authorities; that such investigations have been secretly conducted, and the complaining elements never called upon to produce evidence, or informed that the investigation was in progress;

19. That section 4 (b) of the National Industrial Recovery Act (now expired by limitation) provided the conditions under which the President may require that no person shall engage in any trade or industry without first obtaining a license; that in defiance of the clear intent of the act certain industrial codes provide that all commodities produced shall bear an NRA label; that the privilege of using such label shall be granted upon application to the code authority; that the privilege of using such label may be withdrawn in respect of any manufacturer whose operations, after hearing by the code authority and review by the administrator, shall be found to be in substantial violation of the code; that this in effect constitutes the code authority and the administrator a licensing authority; that some retail codes contain an absolute prohibition of the sale by any merchant of any commodity the code of whose industry requires a label, unless the label of such industry be thereto affixed; that this system of legalized boycott places the manufacturer at the absolute mercy of the code authority and the administrator; that a standardized practice has evolved under which a person aggrieved by a ruling of the code authority may appeal to the administrator for redress, but that as a condition of obtaining a hearing of his grievances, he must agree in advance to be bound by the decision of the administrator and waive his right to resort to the judicial process;

20. That, notwithstanding the provisions of the Constitution of the United States that all bills for raising revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives, code authorities have assumed and are exercising the power to levy taxes on industries and are enforcing collection thereof by duress;

21. That code authority administration in many cases has lost all semblance of a rule of law and has become a rule of men, bent upon the oppression of their weaker competitors; and

Whereas, if the conditions charged obtain to any considerable extent, the Congress should have full knowledge of them to guide it in the formulation of new legislation; and

Whereas all friends of labor and all well-wishers for the success of the industrial-recovery program recognize that the correction of abuses is a necessary condition to the success of the program: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the subject matter of this resolution be referred to the Senate Committee on Finance and that said committee be, and is hereby, authorized and directed to investigate and report upon the subject matter of this resolution.

For the purposes of this resolution the committee is authorized to hold hearings, to sit and act at such times and places during the sessions and recesses of the Congress until the final report is submitted, to require by subpena or otherwise the attendance of such witnesses and the production of such books, papers, and documents, to administer such oaths, to take such testimony, and to employ such clerical assistants as it deems advisable. The cost of stenographic services to report such hearings shall not be in excess of 25 cents per hundred words. The expenses of the committee, which shall not exceed $5,000, shall be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate upon vouchers approved by the chairman.

AMERICAN MERCHANT MARINE

The Presiding Officer (Mr. Russell in the Chair) laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, with the accompanying documents, referred to the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads and ordered to be printed:

To the Congress of the United States:

I present to the Congress the question of whether or not the United States should have an adequate merchant marine.

To me there are three reasons for answering this question in the affirmative. The first is that in time of peace subsidies granted by other nations, shipping combines, and other restrictive or rebating methods may well be used to the detriment of American shippers. The maintenance of fair competition alone calls for American flagships of sufficient tonnage to carry a reasonable portion of our foreign commerce.

Second. In the event of a major war in which the United States is not involved, our commerce, in the absence of an adequate American merchant marine, might find itself seriously crippled because of its inability to secure bottoms for neutral peaceful foreign trade.

Third. In the event of a war in which the United States itself might be engaged, American flagships are obviously needed not only for naval auxiliaries, but also for the maintenance of reasonable and necessary commercial intercourse with other nations. We should remember lessons learned in the last war.

In many instances in our history the Congress has provided for various kinds of disguised subsidies to American shipping. In recent years the Congress has provided this aid in the form of lending money at low rates of interest to American shipping companies for the purpose of building new ships for foreign trade. It has, in addition, appropriated large annual sums under the guise of payments for ocean mail contracts.

This lending of money for ship building has in practice been a failure. Few ships have been built and many difficulties have arisen over the repayment of the loans. Similar difficulties have attended the granting of ocean-mail contracts. The Government today is paying annually about $30,000,000 for the carrying of mails which would cost, under normal ocean rates, only $3,000,000. The difference, $27,000,000, is a subsidy, and nothing but a subsidy. But given under this disguised form it is an unsatisfactory and not an honest way of providing the aid that Government ought to give to shipping.

I propose that we end this subterfuge. If the Congress decides that it will maintain a reasonably adequate American merchant marine I believe that it can well afford honestly to call a subsidy by its right name.

Approached in this way a subsidy amounts to a comparatively simple thing. It must be based upon providing for American shipping Government aid to make up the differential between American and foreign shipping costs. It should cover, first, the difference in the cost of building ships; second, the difference in the cost of operating ships; and finally, it should take into consideration the liberal subsidies that many foreign governments provide for their shipping. Only by meeting this threefold differential can we expect to maintain a reasonable place in ocean commerce for ships flying the American flag, and at the same time maintain American standards.

In setting up adequate provisions for subsidies for American shipping, the Congress should provide for the termination of existing ocean-mail contracts as rapidly as possible, and it should terminate the practice of lending Government money for shipbuilding. It should provide annual appropriations for subsidies sufficiently large to cover the differentials that I have described.

I am submitting to you herewith two reports dealing with American shipping; a report of an interdepartmental committee known as the "Committee on Shipping Policy", appointed June 18, 1934, by the Secretary of Commerce; and a report to me from the Postmaster General on ocean-mail contracts prepared pursuant to an Executive order of July 11, 1934.

Reports which have been made to me by appropriate authorities in the executive branch of the Government have shown that some American shipping companies have engaged in practices and abuses which should and must be ended. Some of these have to do with the improper operating of subsidiary companies, the payment of excessive salaries, the engaging in businesses not directly a part of shipping, and other abuses which have made for poor management, improper use of profits, and scattered efforts.

Legislation providing for adequate aid to the American merchant marine should include not only adequate appropriation for such purposes and appropriate safeguards for its expenditure, but a reorganization of the machinery for its administration. The quasi-judicial and quasi-legislative duties of the present Shipping Board Bureau of the Department of Commerce should be transferred for the present to the Interstate Commerce Commission. Purely administrative functions, however, such as information and planning, ship inspection, and the maintenance of aids to navigation, should, of course, remain in the Department of Commerce.

An American merchant marine is one of our most firmly established traditions. It was, during the first half of our national existence, a great and growing asset. Since then it has declined in value and importance. The time has come to square this traditional ideal with effective performance.

Free competition among the nations in the building of modern shipping facilities is a manifestation of wholly desirable and wholesome national ambition. In such free competition the American people want us to be properly represented. The American people want to use American ships. Their Government owes it to them to make certain that such ships are in keeping with our national pride and national needs.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

Pending debate,

Mr. Copeland raised a question of order, viz, that the amendment changed existing law, and was therefore not in order under rule XVI.

The Vice President, in the following language, overruled the point of order:

Regardless of whether the law is as stated by the Senator from New York [Mr. COPELAND] or as contended by the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. FRAZIER], the Senate has the right to place a limitation on any appropriation contained in the bill. It has a right to put a limitation in the bill that no land-grant college shall receive any part of this money if it does not have a 20-story building. In other words, there is no rule of which the Chair is aware in any parliamentary body, this or any other, which prevents a limitation of any kind on any kind of an appropriation. The Chair overrules the point of order.

Pending debate,

Mr. Frazier raised a question as to the presence of a quorum;

Whereupon

The Vice President directed the roll to be called;

When

Eighty-four Senators answered to their names, as follows:

Adams, Ashurst, Austin, Bachman, Bailey, Bankhead, Barbour, Bilbo, Black, Bone, Borah, Brown, Bulkley, Bulow, Burke, Byrd, Byrnes, Capper, Carey, Clark, Connally Coolidge, Copeland, Costigan, Couzens, Cutting, Dickinson, Dieterich, Donahey, Duffy, Fletcher, Frazier, George, Gerry, Gibson, Glass, Guffey, Hale, Harrison, Hastings, Hatch, Hayden, Johnson, Keyes, King, La Follette, Lewis, Logan, Lonergan, McAdoo, McCarran, McGill, McKellar, McNary, Maloney, Metcalf, Minton, Moore, Murphy, Murray, Neely, Norbeck, Norris, Nye, O'Mahoney, Pittman, Pope, Radcliffe, Reynolds, Robinson, Russell, Schwellenbach, Sheppard, Shipstead, Smith, Steiwer, Thomas of Oklahoma, Thomas of Utah, Townsend, Truman, Vandenberg, Van Nuys, Walsh, and White.

A quorum being present,

Mr. Frazier's amendment was not agreed to.

The amendment was then agreed to.

The bill was further amended on the motion of Mr. Copeland.

PUBLIC UTILITY HOLDING COMPANIES

The Vice President laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read, and, with the accompanying report, referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce and ordered to be printed:

To the Congress of the United States:

I am transmitting to you herewith a report submitted to me by the National Power Policy Committee. I named this committee last summer from among the departments of the Government concerned with power problems to make a series of reports to coordinate Government policy on such problems. This report I am submitting to you is the recommendation of the committee with respect to the treatment of holding companies in the public-utility field. It deserves the careful attention of every Member of the Congress.

The so-called "public utility holding company bill" (title I of House bill 5423 and of Senate bill 1725), which was drafted under the direction of congressional leaders, incorporates many of the recommendations of this report.

I have been watching with great interest the fight being waged against public utility holding company legislation. I have watched the use of investors' money to make the investor believe that the efforts of Government to protect him are designed to defraud him. I have seen much of the propaganda prepared against such legislation—even down to mimeographed sheets of instructions for propaganda to exploit the most far-fetched and fallacious fears. I have seen enough to be as unimpressed by it as I was by the similar effort to stir up the country against the securities exchange bill last spring. The Securities Exchange Act is now generally accepted as a constructive measure, and I feel confident that any fears now entertained in regard to proposed utility holding company legislation will prove as groundless as those last spring in the case of the Securities Exchange Act.

So much has been said through chain letters and circulars and by word of mouth that misrepresents the intent and purpose of a new law that it is important that the people of the country understand once and for all the actual facts of the case. Such a measure will not destroy legitimate business or wholesome and productive investment. It will not destroy a penny of actual value of those operating properties which holding companies now control and which holding-company securities represent insofar as they have any value. On the contrary, it will surround the necessary reorganization of the holding company with safeguards which will in fact protect the investor.

We seek to establish the sound principle that the utility holding company, so long as it is permitted to continue, should not profit from dealings with subsidiaries and affiliates where there is no semblance of actual bargaining to get the best value and the best price. If a management company is equipped to offer a genuinely economic management service to the smaller operating utility companies, it ought not to own stock in the companies it manages, and its fees ought to be reasonable. The holding company should not be permitted to establish a sphere or influence from which independent engineering, construction, and other private enterprise is excluded by a none too benevolent private paternalism. If a management company is controlled by related operating companies, it should be organized on a truly mutual and cooperative basis and should be required to perform its services at actual cost demonstrably lower than the services can be obtained in a free and open market.

We do not seek to prevent the legitimate diversification of investment in operating utility companies by legitimate investment companies. But the holding company in the past has confused the function of control and management with that of investment and in consequence has more frequently than not failed in both functions. Possibly some holding companies may be able to divest themselves of the control of their present subsidiaries and become investment trusts. But an investment company ceases to be an investment company when it embarks into business and management. Investment judgment requires the judicial appraisal of other people's management.

The disappearance at the end of 5 years of those utility holding companies which cannot justify themselves as necessary for the functioning of the operating utility companies of the country is an objective which congressional leaders I have consulted deem essential to a realistic and far-sighted treatment of the evils of public utility holding companies. For practical reasons we should offer a chance of survival to those holding companies which can prove to the Securities and Exchange Commission that their existence is necessary for the achievement of the public ends which private utility companies are supposed to serve. For such companies, and during the interim period for other companies, the proposal for a comprehensive plan of public regulation and control is sound.

But where the utility holding company does not perform a demonstrably useful and necessary function in the operating industry and is used simply as a means of financial control, it is idle to talk of the continuance of holding companies on the assumption that regulation can protect the public against them. Regulation has small chance of ultimate success against the kind of concentrated wealth and economic power which holding companies have shown the ability to acquire in the utility field. No Government effort can be expected to carry out effective, continuous, and intricate regulation of the kind of private empires within the Nation which the holding-company device has proved capable of creating.

Except where it is absolutely necessary to the continued functioning of a geographically integrated operating utility system, the utility holding company with its present powers must go. If we could remake our financial history in the light of experience, certainly we would have none of this holding-company business. It is a device which does not belong to our American traditions of law and business. It is only a comparatively late innovation. It dates definitely from the same unfortunate period which marked the beginnings of a host of other laxities in our corporate law which have brought us to our present disgraceful condition of competitive charter mongering between our States. And it offers too well-demonstrated temptation to and facility for abuse to be tolerated as a recognized business institution. That temptation and that facility are inherent in its very nature. It is a corporate invention which can give a few corporate insiders unwarranted and intolerable powers over other people's money. In its destruction of local control and its substitution of absentee management it has built up in the public-utility field what has justly been called a system of private socialism which is inimical to the welfare of a free people.

Most of us agree that we should take the control and the benefits of the essentially local operating utility industry out of a few financial centers and give back that control and those benefits to the localities which produce the business and create the wealth. We can properly favor economically independent business, which stands on its own feet and diffuses power and responsibility among the many, and frowns upon those holding companies which through interlocking directorates and other devices have given tyrannical power and exclusive opportunity to a favored few. It is time to make an effort to reverse that process of the concentration of power which has made most American citizens, once traditionally independent owners of their own businesses, helplessly dependent for their daily bread upon the favor of a very few, who, by devices such as holding companies, have taken for themselves unwarranted economic power. I am against private socialism of concentrated private power as thoroughly as I am against government socialism. The one is equally as dangerous as the other; and destruction of private socialism is utterly essential to avoid governmental socialism.

AMENDMENT OF FOOD AND DRUGS ACT

The Presiding Officer (Mr. McGill in the chair) laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read, referred to the Committee on Commerce, and ordered to be printed:

To the Congress of the United States:

Every enterprise in the United States should be able to adhere to the simple principle of honesty without fear of penalty on that account. Honesty ought to be the best policy, not only for one individual or one enterprise but for every individual and every enterprise in the Nation. In one field of endeavor there is an obvious means to this end which has been too long neglected: the setting up and careful enforcement of standards of identity and quality for the foods we eat and the drugs we use, together with the strict exclusion from our markets of harmful or adulterated products.

The honor of the producers in a country ought to be the invariable ingredient of the products produced in it. The various qualities of goods require a kind of discrimination which is not at the command of consumers. They are likely to confuse outward appearance with inward integrity. In such a situation as has grown up through our rising level of living and our multiplication of goods, consumers are prevented from choosing intelligently, and producers are handicapped in any attempt to maintain higher standards. Only the scientific and disinterested activity of government can protect this honor of our producers and provide the possibility of discriminating choice to our consumers.

These principles have long been those on which we have founded public policy. But we have fallen behind in their practical application. No comprehensive attempt at reform in the regulation of commerce in food and drugs has been made since 1906. I need not point out to you how much has happened since that time in the invention of new things and their general adoption, as well as in the increase of advertising appeals. Because of these changes loopholes have appeared in the old law which have made abuses easy.

It is time to make practical improvements. A measure is needed which will extend the controls formerly applicable only to labels to advertising also; which will extend protection to the trade in cosmetics; which will provide for a cooperative method of setting standards and for a system of inspection and enforcement to reassure consumers grown hesitant and doubtful; and which will provide for a necessary flexibility in administration as products and conditions change.

I understand this subject has been studied and discussed for the last 2 years and that full information is in the possession of the Congress.

No honest enterpriser need fear that because of the passage of such a measure he will be unfairly treated. He would be asked to do no more than he now holds himself out to do. It would merely make certain that those who are less scrupulous than I know most of our producers to be cannot force their more honest competitors into dishonorable ways.

The great majority of those engaged in the trade in food and drugs do not need regulation. They observe the spirit as well as the letter of existing law. Present legislation ought to be directed primarily toward a small minority of evaders and chiselers. At the same time even-handed regulation will not only outlaw the bad practices of the few but will also protect the many from unscrupulous competition. It will, besides, provide a bulwark of consumer confidence throughout the business world.

It is my hope that such legislation may be enacted at this session of the Congress.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, March 22, 1935.

IMPORTS OF AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTS

Mr. Vandenberg, by unanimous consent, submitted the following resolution (S. Res. 111):

Whereas it is publicly recorded that within the last 12 months there has been an influx into the United States of a large volume of agricultural products, of a kind and nature produced in the United States, which are displacing markets of our American farmers in meats, grains, and other items; and

Whereas Secretary of State Hull, in a public address on March 24, 1935, stated that we are confronting a crisis in our foreign trade, and suggests a continuation of further importations of farm products and a general lowering of our tariff restrictions; and

Whereas this country has been paying out of public funds millions of dollars to compensate farmers and stock raisers for limiting crops and reducing and destroying stock, with the object of eliminating national surpluses and thereby raising the price of the products of American farmers and stock raisers; and

Whereas the unhampered importation of competing agricultural products cannot do otherwise than injure the farmers and stock raisers by increasing our surpluses and using up our American markets, which traditionally belong to American farmers by natural law; and

Whereas it is of vital public interest, especially to Congress, that the status of the alleged imports be made known: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Treasury be requested to transmit to the Senate full and detailed information regarding the imports of agricultural products into the United States from January 1, 1934, to March 1, 1935, by countries of origin, dates of importation, the kinds, volume, and value in dollars of such imports, the names of the transporting ships, and the United States ports of entry; and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretaries of Commerce and Agriculture and Special Foreign Trade Adviser Hon. George N. Peek

be requested to transmit to the Senate any information available in their departments covering the calendar or fiscal years from 1904 to December 31, 1934, showing the cotton acreage, annual production and consumption, and annual import and export, in volume and dollar value of the cotton produced and consumed by the separate countries of the world, together with the annual world surplus; and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretaries of Commerce and Agriculture and Special Foreign Trade Adviser Hon. George N. Peek be requested to transmit to the Senate any information available in their Departments covering the calendar and/or fiscal years from 1904 to December 31, 1934, showing the wheat acreage, annual production and consumption, and annual import and/or export, and volume and dollar value of the wheat produced and consumed by the separate countries of the world, together with the annual world surplus.

Ordered, That the resolution lie over 1 day under the rule.

Mr. Harrison raised a point of order, viz, that the pending bill is not, in a strict sense, a revenue bill, and to put a tax provision on this bill is contrary to the provision of the Constitution that all bills for raising revenue should originate in the House of Representatives.

Pending debate,

Mr. Neely raised a question of order, viz, that debate on a question of order, unless the question has been referred to the Senate by the Presiding Officer, is out of order under rule XX.

The Vice President sustained the point of order.

The Vice President, after making the following statement, submitted to the Senate the question, Shall the point of order raised by Mr. Harrison be sustained?

The present occupant of the chair has at no time declined to construe the rules of the Senate; and if this were a matter of the rules of the Senate, he would not hesitate for a moment to express his opinion about it and make a ruling.

It seems to the Chair, however, that this is purely a constitutional question; and under the rulings and under the precedents for more than a hundred years, where constitutional questions are involved as to the right of the Senate to act, the Chair has universally submitted the question to the Senate.

The Chair thinks the logic of that rule is correct, the reasoning of it is good, because the Chair might undertake to interpret the Constitution when a majority of the Senators would have a different viewpoint. So the Chair is going to follow a long line of precedents and submit to the Senate the question whether or not it is constitutional for the Senate to propose this amendment; and it occurs to the Chair that the only question involved is, Is this a bill to raise revenue?

So the Chair is going to submit to the Senate of the United States the question as to whether or not the Senate, under the Constitution, has a right to propose this amendment.

The point of order has been made by the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. Harrison] to the amendment of the Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. La Follette].

The question before the Senate is whether or not the point of order shall be sustained. That question is debatable.

The Vice President, in connection with the submission to the Senate of the point of order, cited the following precedents:

[From the Constitution of the United States, as revised and annotated, 1924]

ARTICLE 1, SECTION 7, CLAUSE 1, REVENUE BILLS

All bills for raising revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives; but the Senate may propose or concur with amendments as on other bills.

"All bills for raising revenue."

"The construction of this limitation is practically settled by the uniform action of Congress confining it to bills to levy taxes in the strict sense of the word, and it has not been understood to extend to bills for purposes which incidentally create revenue."

U. S. v. Norton (91 U. S. 566).

Millard v. Roberts (202 U. S. 429).

QUESTIONS INVOLVING CONSTITUTIONALITY OF BILLS ARE SUBMITTED TO SENATE

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 16, 1924

The Senate, in a call of the calendar under rule VIII, reached the bill (S. 120) to provide for a tax on motor-vehicle fuels sold within the District of Columbia, and for other purposes.

Mr. McKellar made a point of order against the bill on the ground that it was a revenue measure and that under the Constitution of the United States all revenue-raising measures must originate in the House of Representatives, and that the bill had no place on the Senate Calendar.

The question was argued, and Mr. Lenroot made the contention that it was not the function of the Chair to pass upon the question of whether bills are or are not in violation of the Constitution.

After further argument, the President pro tempore (Albert B. Cummins, of Iowa) made the following ruling:

"The Chair is of the opinion that he has no authority to declare a proposed act unconstitutional. The only precedent which the Chair has been able to find since the question arose was presented to the Senate in 1830, and the Vice President then in the chair ruled in accordance with the suggestion which the Chair has just made, holding that it was a question which must be submitted to the Senate and one which could not be ruled upon by the Chair, which entirely concurs with the views of the present occupant of the chair in the matter. The question before the Senate, therefore, is, Shall the point of order which is made by the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. McKellar], which is that the bill now under consideration is unconstitutional and should have originated in the House of Representatives, be sustained? [Putting the question.] The ayes have it, and the point of order is sustained. The bill will be indefinitely postponed."

JANUARY 22, 1925

The Senate had under consideration the bill (S. 3674) reclassifying the salaries of postmasters and employees of the Postal Service, readjusting their salaries and compensation on an equitable basis, increasing postal rates to provide for such readjustment, and for other purposes.

Pending debate,

Mr. Swanson raised a question of order, viz, that that portion of the bill dealing with increased postal rates proposed to raise revenue, and, under the Constitution, must originate in the House of Representatives, and was therefore in contravention of the Constitution.

The Presiding Officer (Mr. Jones of Washington) held that the Chair had no authority to pass upon the constitutionality of a bill, and submitted to the Senate the question, Shall the point of order be sustained?

On the following day the Senate, by a vote of 29 yeas to 50 nays, overruled the point of order.

The bill was subsequently passed and transmitted to the House of Representatives. On February 3 the House returned the bill to the Senate with the statement that it contravened the first clause of the seventh section of the first article of the Constitution and was an infringement of the privileges of the House.

The message and bill were referred to the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads, and no further action taken. A House bill, H. R. 11444, of an identical title, was subsequently passed by both Houses and became a law.

CASE OF UNITED STATES V. WILLIAM ELBERT BELCHER

Mr. Clark (for Mr. Hastings and himself), by unanimous consent, submitted the following resolution (S. Res. 113), which was referred to the Committee on Finance:

Whereas there is pending in the Supreme Court of the United States, October term, 1934, no. 628, entitled "United States of America, appellant, v. William Elbert Belcher, alias W. E. Belcher, being an appeal from the United States District Court for the Northern District of Alabama"; and

Whereas the following information appears from an examination of the papers in said case, to wit:

Belcher was indicted for violation of the National Industrial Recovery Act, the indictment being filed on August 24, 1934. In the said indictment he was charged with the violation of the said act and the violation of the terms and provisions of the Code of Fair Competition for the Lumber and Timber Products Industries.

Among other things, Belcher was charged with violating the code in transactions affecting interstate and foreign commerce by permitting certain persons employed by him to work more hours than the code prescribed and for less wages than the code prescribed. Belcher is alleged to have been engaged in interstate commerce in that he was shipping lumber out of Alabama and into other States.

On October 13, 1934, a demurrer was filed on behalf of Belcher. The substance of said demurrer is hereinafter set forth in the Solicitor General's assignments of error.

On October 31, 1934, the demurrer was sustained, and the indictment dismissed.

On November 26, 1934, the district attorney for the northern district of Alabama filed his assignment of errors, and on November 28, 1934, served notice of appeal.

On January 4, 1935, the Solicitor General and the United States attorney for the northern district of Alabama filed a statement, showing the basis of the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court to entertain the appeal.

On January 9, 1935, the Solicitor General, pursuant to rule 13 of the Supreme Court, stated that he intended to rely on all of the points set out in the assignment of errors. These points, he states, may be summarized and grouped as follows:

"1. The district court erred in holding that the National Industrial Recovery Act is invalid and unconstitutional—

"(a) Because it is not within the powers conferred upon Congress to regulate interstate and foreign commerce;

"(b) Because it delegates legislative power in violation of section 1 of article I of the Constitution;

"(c) Because it encroaches upon powers reserved to the States, in violation of the tenth amendment;

"(d) Because the provisions of the act authorizing the President to regulate minimum wages paid to and maximum hours worked by persons employed in the production of lumber are invalid under the fifth amendment;

"(e) Because section 3 (f) of the act is invalid under the sixth and eighth amendments;

"(f) Because it delegates judicial power to the President, contrary to the Constitution;

"(g) Because the act, as applied to the defendant under the facts charged in each count of the indictment, is not within the powers conferred upon Congress to regulate interstate and foreign commerce.

"2. The district court erred in holding that the Code of Fair Competition for the Lumber and Timber Products Industry is invalid and unconstitutional—

"(a) Because the code provisions which the defendant is charged with having violated are not within the powers conferred upon Congress to regulate interstate and foreign commerce.

"(b) Because the code contains an invalid delegation of legislative power, in violation of section 1 of article I of the Constitution.

"(c) Because the code provisions which the defendant is charged with having violated encroach upon powers reserved to the States, in violation of the tenth amendment.

"(d) Because the code provisions which the defendant is charged with having violated are in conflict with the fifth amendment.

"(e) Because the code, as applied to the defendant under the facts charged in each count of the indictment, is not within the powers conferred upon Congress to regulate interstate and foreign commerce.

"(f) Because the code, as applied to the defendant under the facts charged in each count of the indictment, deprives the defendant of his property without due process of law, in violation of the fifth amendment.

"3. The district court erred in holding that the indictment, and each count thereof, does not charge an offense under the laws of the United States.

"The appellant deems the entire record, as filed in the above-entitled cause, necessary for the consideration of the above points."

The time fixed for the argument of the said case in the Supreme Court is Monday, the 8th day of April 1935; and

Whereas it has been announced through the public press during the past few days that the Government will not prosecute the said appeal, but will ask that the case be dismissed; and

Whereas the questions involved in said case are the constitutionality of the National Industrial Recovery Act and the codes made in accordance with the provisions of said act; and

Whereas the Congress has been urged by the President to extend the said act for another period of 2 years; and

Whereas the Finance Committee of the Senate is now conducting hearings for the purpose of ascertaining whether the said act should be extended and, if so, what changes should be made in it; and

Whereas a decision by the Supreme Court on the questions involved in the case above referred to would be of great assistance to the Senate in determining what changes are necessary, or whether a constitutional act could be passed to accomplish the purposes desired: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Attorney General of the United States be, and he is hereby, respectfully requested and urged to prosecute the said appeal and to oppose any delay in the argument, with the hope that the Supreme Court will render a decision in time to be of service to the Senate in its consideration of the extension of the National Industrial Recovery Act.

MICHAEL ILITZ

To the Senate:

I return herewith, without approval, Senate bill no. 488, entitled "An act for the relief of Michael Ilitz."

The bill provides that in the administration of the pension laws or any laws conferring rights, privileges, or benefits upon persons retired from the United States Army, Michael Ilitz, who served as master sergeant, Hospital Corps, shall be held and considered to have been retired as captain, military storekeeper, United States Army, on June 28, 1916.

An identical bill, S. 3499, was disapproved by me on June 27, 1934, with respect to which I stated that—

"In spite of this man's excellent record as a soldier and civil employee, this bill would single him out for special reward. It must, therefore, be disapproved."

The facts presented in substantiation of Senate bill no. 488 are to the same effect as those pertaining to the previous bill, no. 3499. I find no justification for a reversal of my previous action in this case.

April 11, 1935.

Ordered, That the message, with the accompanying bill, be referred to the Committee on Military Affairs and be printed.

GENERAL PULASKI'S MEMORIAL DAY

The Vice President laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read:

To the Senate:

I return herewith Senate Joint Resolution 21, "Authorizing the President to proclaim October 11 of each year General Pulaski's Memorial Day for the observance and commemoration of the death of Brig. Gen. Casimir Pulaski", without approval.

I take special note that this proclamation would be made an annual event.

Every American should have the deepest appreciation of the brilliant and gallant services of General Pulaski in the Revolutionary War. His devotion to duty ended only when he fell in action in the service of the Republic; he is one of our heroes of that time and of all time.

General Pulaski was distinguished among the noble company of those who gave their all for that cause; some were Americans; some were from countries across the sea. I do not think that General Pulaski would have wished to be singled out from his fellows and comrades for more honor than we can give to them all. Our tributes to the memory of the officers who served on the staff of General Washington will be the more fitting and appropriate if we do not seek to legislate separate memorial days for each of them, however illustrious that may be.

For our own leader of the American Revolution, the greatest of Americans, and for him alone, have we as a people set apart one day each year.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, April 11, 1935.

Ordered, That the message, with the accompanying bill, be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary and be printed.

CHARLES C. FLOYD

The Vice President laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read:

To the Senate:

I return herewith, without my approval, Senate bill no. 274, entitled "An act for the relief of Charles C. Floyd."

This bill provides that Charles C. Floyd shall hereafter be held and considered to have received an honorable discharge from the military service on December 10, 1930, the purpose being to give him, as to the future, the rights, privileges, and benefits conferred by any law upon honorably discharged soldiers.

The records of the War Department show that Charles C. Floyd was separated from the military service of the United States and an honorable discharge denied him because of habits and traits of character which rendered his retention in the service undesirable. The enactment of S. 274 into law would, in effect, constitute a legislative reversal of the considered action of the authorities charged with the execution of the laws enacted for the government and control of the military forces, and, as I am advised by the War Department, would single out for preferential treatment one individual of a large but undetermined number of former soldiers whose status is identical with that of the man under discussion. Moreover, it would place a man whose service was such as to necessitate his removal for the good of the service on a par with those whose service was honest and faithful.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, April 12, 1935.

Ordered, That the message, with the accompanying bill, be referred to the Committee on Military Affairs and be printed.

INDEPENDENCE OF THE PHILIPPINES

The Vice President laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Territories and Insular Affairs:

"An act to submit to the Filipino people for ratification or rejection the Constitution of the Philippines, with the ordinance appended thereto, to appropriate funds therefor, and for other purposes."

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, April 11, 1935.

INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS OF MILITARY MEDICINE AND PHARMACY
