The Physician in the Dark Ages.

—(O)—

It is only natural that the dark ages of the mediaeval period should have been medically too the most obscure centuries in the history of civilization.

Physicians worthy of the name were few and far between. Towards the close of the Middle Ages the most absurd mixtures of magic and superstition held sway together with the traditions of Galen, mutilated and changed as they were handed down. Surgery, though crude and handled with little or no real knowledge of anatomy, was slightly more effective even though the surgeon could hardly be considered of high caste. Lay medicine of a sort was practised by monks and wise women—minor and emergency surgery, the latter a frequent necessity at a time when violence was common and human life held in little respect, was largely in the hands of travelling barber surgeons. Considering the little knowledge they possessed these men did most excellent work and deserve praise rather than the contumely so often heaped on them.

An enviable exception, particularly during the twelfth and thirteenth centuries was the School of Salerno, where fairly good medicine was practised, and known for the good sense and quasi-modernism of its Regimen Sanitatis. It is an interesting fact that several teachers at Salerno inveighed against the deceptions practised by apothecaries of their time who substituted inert imitations or dangerous counterfeits for the original prescription!

Substitution is still a danger today—though a negative one, by the use of drugs of inferior potency or of mixtures lacking in uniformity. That this is so is due to modern industrial and commercial competition.

The only way to avoid substitution is to use always the reliable and uniform products of pharmaceutical houses with a reputation to sustain.

Some of the pharmaceutical houses that we represent as Sole Eastern Agents are W. Abbott & Sons, Ltd. London, Bergeret Laboratories, Bordeaux, France, A. Rennard et Cie, Paris, France, Robert Ferber, Ltd, London, which are among the leading and most progressive firms in Europe.

New Hearts for Old

Surgeon's "Miracle" Operations

New hearts for old is the surgeon's latest and most miraculous contribution to the relief of suffering humanity.

Astonishing operations in which graftings were applied and sewn to the surface of a beating heart have been performed by a brilliant Irish surgeon.

He is Dr. Laurence O'Shaughnessy, Harley-st, heart specialist and consultant at a South London hospital's heart clinic.

He began with a series of operations on cats and racing greyhounds with strained hearts. The dogs recovered so well that within a few weeks they were clocking faster times than before over the full 525 yards course.

In each case a grafting was sewn to the heart's surface and an extra supply of blood pumped in to the arteries.

Six Triumphs

The effect was practically the same as supplying the animal with a new heart.

Now Dr. O'Shaughnessy has so perfected the treatment, and has become so skilful in what must be one of the most delicate surgical feats of modern times, that he is able to supply human beings with "new hearts for old."

He has already performed six successful operations on patients suffering from angina pectoris for whom other doctors held out no hope.

In all but one instance the patients were over sixty years of age. In one case, that of a missionary's widow of sixty-five, her condition was so bad that she had been a helpless invalid, unable even to wash herself, for 18 months.

Now she is well on the road to complete recovery, getting up every day and looking after herself unassisted.

Another patient, a man of sixty-three, had such a weak heart that to walk the length of the hospital ward brought about a collapse.

Now, with a new heart, he is fitter than he has been for years.

Dr. O'Shaughnessy described the technique of his miraculous operations during a recent lecture before the Royal College of Surgeons.

His discoveries are considered among the most important in recent surgical research.

Girl's Wonder Brain

Operation

A girl, who had travelled 8,000 miles from Johannesburg to Scotland to undergo an operation on the brain, walked smilingly from Edinburgh Royal Infirmary recently happy in the knowledge that her eyesight had improved greatly.

She is Evelyn Doreen Berry, a fourteen-years old South African, who suffering from a tumour on the brain had been blind in one eye and with the other could distinguish only dimly between light and dark.

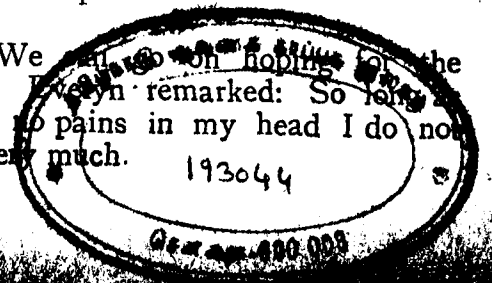

Thanks to the skill of Mr. Norman Dott, the brain specialist, who performed a wonder operation, she has not only taken a new lease of life, but can see much more distinctly.

Mr. Berry said that his daughter had had hundreds of letters from people all over the country during the past couple of weeks. He had been astonished at the kindness of everybody.

Speaking of the progress Evelyn had made, he said that it was still too early to say whether or not she would recover her sight.

"Early in the week," he added, "she 'saw' a kind of brown haze in front of her eyes. That haze, so to speak, has become lighter in colour, and now it is a faint pink.

"We are on the way to the best," Evelyn remarked. So I have no pains in my head I do not care very much.

SCIENCE

Less Food-More Work!

By J. M. F.

An empty stomach makes a quick wit" is a saying which, like most of the maxims quoted by our grandfathers, has become forgotten or misinterpreted in modern days—very possibly because the moral it points is distasteful. With his four, five, or six meals a day, what use can the average modern have for the proverb, when his stomach is never in any state but one of fulness and distension?

The adage must not be given a false meaning. It does not imply genuine hunger—far from it. Real hunger is a good deal more than a mere "emptiness" of the stomach, which is only the supply-cupboard of the body and its organs; only when all previous food has reached an advanced stage of assimilation can real hunger be felt, providing the body is not in an overfed condition.

The Obvious Conclusion.

The obvious conclusion from the maxim is that the five meal-a-day man is never able to work according to his full ability. He is prevented by continuous overfeeding; and when at length outraged Nature registers a protest, there are always anxious relations at hand to press food upon him "to keep up his strength."

How foolish—and how supremely illogical! Surely only a little thought is needed to know that the amount of food really necessary for the human body is vastly less than is taken by nine-tenths of the population. A heavy meal in the morning is obviously absurd and unneeded. It is contrary to common-sense and to Nature. Is there any animal which, on awaking, proceeds to glut itself with food?

Energy-Sapping Meals.

A substantial meal at midday is also to be deprecated. Many business men indulge in a three or four-course lunch and then spend the afternoon in speculations as to the cause of various strange symptoms of fatigue, heaviness, indigestion, and the like. Lack of time and the nervous strain of work under modern conditions make it hard for the body to assimilate anything but the lightest of midday meals, and a lunch of salad and fresh fruit cannot be improved upon at any season of the year.

The early evening is the correct time for the meal of the day. With work over, mind at ease, and the leisure to devote a reasonable space of time to the meal, digestion has a chance to perform its work in a proper manner.

The Excesses of Civilisation.

In fact, many people have derived considerable benefit by adopting a plan of one meal a day; and, after all, that is but the course plainly indicated by Nature. The savage who has never known the excesses of "civilisation" is content to meet his bodily needs with one meal a day, taken in the evening.

The multiplicity of meals indulged in to-day by most people, is directly responsible for the many ills which result from the two main excesses in diet: excess of starch and excess of flesh-food. Bacon for breakfast, steak for lunch, fish or chops for dinner, ham for supper; break-fast rolls and toast, potatoes cooked in fat, white bread, cakes, biscuits. The amount consumed in a day by even an "average" eater is amazing, and must at length result in the penalties which inevitably follow excess.

An Astounding Effect.

For the great majority of people, a system of little or no breakfast, a light lunch in which no starch or flesh food is necessary, and a meal in the evening, will be found perfectly satisfying to the needs of Nature. And only practical experiment can convince the curious of its astounding effect upon health, efficiency, and work-power.

THE GREAT SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY OF THE BERGERET LABORATORIES.

Progress in clinical medicine is available to thousands. Moreover, the dependent on progress in the ancillary sciences, physiology, pharmacology, etc., new discoveries in pure science are the stuff on which clinical progress feeds. But between the discovery in pure science and its application to medicine, there must be an investigator. He may be a physician, a chemist, a bacteriologist; but, whoever or whatever he is, he must see the necessity of applying scientifically-established facts to human needs.

When a clinical application has been found for a scientific discovery, the work has just begun. A method must be worked out by which a chemical process or a biological technique employed in the experimental laboratory can be applied in production operations. And a practical method of clinical administration must be worked out, for an effective remedy cannot be reserved for a few selected patients—it must be made first crude product, perhaps eagerly sought because of the imperative need for it, must be improved and refined so that its efficacy may be increased and its field of usefulness broadened.

The Discovery of Endophon.

The year 1931 saw the discovery of ENDOPHON. It was made possible only by preceding research. Dr. Gustave LeClerc, a chemist on the consulting staff was the first to discover the activity of certain glands. Dr. Louis Perrancourt, also on the consulting staff, was likewise working on the problem. He completed his work shortly after Le Clerc's discovery, and assigned to the preparation its correct formula.

The discovery of ENDOPHON marked a new era in Glandular Therapy. Recently, a new Gland Extract has been discovered and embodied in ENDOPHON, greatly increasing its curative efficacy.

Reported in Eighteen Medical Papers.

A striking example of the achievements of the Bergeret Laboratories is illustrated in the work which led to the discovery of ENDOPHON. The course of this work was reported in eighteen medical papers.

Policy of the Bergeret Laboratories.

It has always been the policy of the Bergeret Laboratories never to offer a product to the world until it has been first subjected to the most exhaustive tests. Therefore; you may be sure that not only has a Bergeret Product been standardised, and made to conform to the highest degree of purity, and that the utmost demands of science have been utilized in its manufacture, but also that its therapeutic value has been demonstrated beyond any question of doubt.

Chemist at work at the Bergeret Laboratories.

The Great Criterion.

ENDOPHON is made in Capsule form—the great criterion in curative power, as the freshness and potency of the vital gland substances is preserved. There is no deterioration. Available in two kinds, No. 1 for Partial Impotence and No. 2 for Complete Impotence and Sterility.

Soviet Scientists To Revive the Dead

Hunt Starts for People Buried in Ice IN THE ARCTIC

One of the most ambitious projects in the history of science has now been undertaken by a party of Soviet scientists.

It is a man-hunt in the Arctic regions—not live snow men but the dead bodies of prehistoric men.

If they succeeded in unearthing such a body, attempts will be made to revive him.

Fantastic as it may seem, these scientists believe that it is not an impossible task.

Last year, the scientists dug up from the ice, specimens of centuries-old weed, and by careful treatment made them grow again. The intense cold of the Arctic regions, it was stated, had prevented decomposition and had kept the plant in a state of suspended animation.

Experiment on Dogs

The scientists argue that human flesh would be equally well preserved and that it may be possible to revive the dead body.

Modern scientific research, especially that of Dr. Ralph Stanley Willard of California, bears ample testimony to this view.

Dr. Willard has already succeeded in reviving dogs after keeping them in cold storage for a number of days.

He was even prepared to demonstrate his experiments on human beings and though many people volunteered he had to give it up because of the law.

Even if the scientists fail to revive the dead, the search will not be in vain as it is expected that these dead bodies of prehistoric men will provide valuable data regarding the ancestry of man.

Research In Thought Transfer

OUTCOME OF THREE YEARS TESTS

A group of scientists, in London, who have been conducting research in the mystery of telepathy, have come to the conclusion that a large percentage of ordinary people have both clairvoyant (second thought) and telepathic (thought-transferring) powers.

The research, says the Journal of Parapsychology, lasted for three years during which time about 100,000 tests were carried. It was found that the percentage of correct "clairvoyance calls" was much higher than can be explained by pure guess work.

And, the tests were so severe that they were proof against any fraud.

New Wonder Drug To Save Mothers

Deadly Microbe Wiped Out DYING PATIENTS CURED BY A LITTLE PILL.

FRENCH CHEMIST'S DISCOVERY THAT HAS INTRIGUED MEDICAL WORLD

A report will shortly be issued by Queen Charlotte's Hospital—world-famous London centre of maternity treatment—giving results of 18 month's experimental work on a new drug which may conquer one of the chief causes of maternal mortality.

The new drug may:—

Wipe out the heavy child-birth death rate caused by puerperal infection.

Cure a wide range of blood-poisoning cases.

Effectively cure septic throats and inflamed tonsils.

Conquer erysipelas and scarlet fever.

The drug is called para-aminobenzenesulphenamide, but doctors have given it the handier name of sulphonamide.

It is administered in the form of a small white pill which is swallowed by the patient.

The story of the drug starts in the I. G. Farbenindustrie, Germany's great chemical works, where research director, Professor Heinrich Horlein started experiments to find a killer for the streptococci—microbes which cause many forms of blood poisoning.

After months of research the professor and his assistants devised a new chemical compound called prontosil—which was essentially a red dye.

TESTS WITH MICE

Mice were given lethal doses of streptococci and later given injections of the new of the new red dye. They lived.

Soon the red dye injections were given to a few hospital patients dying from severe streptococci infection. They recovered.

Medical men throughout the world were immediately interested. The German professor was snowed under with requests for samples of the red dye.

Then they applied the treatment to patients who were gravely ill with haemolytic streptococci—the puerperal infection which once claimed the lives of one out of every 5 mothers.

Out of 64 infected cases so treated the percentage of deaths was 4.7 as compared with the 1935 rate of 24.4 per cent. before the drug had been discovered.

Then in France a chemist named Trefouel discovered a simpler form of prontosil. It can be made in any chemical laboratory and its name is paraaminobenzenesulphonamide—sulphonamide for short.

At Queen Charlotte's Hospital the long-named drug is now being used in the form of small white pills.

To Lengthen Span Of Life

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

"Simple re-distribution of the present expenditures for food and this without omitting any article of food to which any consumer is accustomed—but merely by easy shifting of relative proportions, can undoubtedly contribute greatly to the advancement of the standard of health and vitality in the coming years," says Dr Henry Clapp Sherman, nutrition expert of Columbia University.

Plenty of milk, green vegetables and fruits, he further adds, will lengthen the human span of life to at least seven to ten years.

MEDICAL

Harmony of Body And Mind

Quite Essential For Health

Health means harmony and unless there is harmony between the body and the mind, health is impossible of attainment, writes Health editorially.

While it is possible to diagnose bodily diseases and cure them by timely medical aid, it is very hard to probe into the mind and treat its malady.

It may be said without fear of contradiction, that most bodily ailments are due to mental causes. Irregular habits in thinking, losing of temper, lack of self-control, fears and prejudices lead to mental ill-health and disorder.

For example, worry and depression of spirits may cause loss of appetite and dyspepsia. Rage may bring on heart failure or apoplexy.

Our ancients have laid great stress on the proper cultivation of the mind. Their methods were self-control, right thought and calmness. Self-control confers strength, right thought mastery and calmness, power.

NOTICE.

The remedies listed herein have been carefully chosen from different manufacturers in France and England by our Pharmaceutical Expert, Dr. J. F. De Vaux. (Paris) prior to our acceptance of the Agency, and represent in their perfection the accumulated experience of many years of Scientific Research and Experiment. Considerable care and attention has been devoted by our Expert in the testing and selection of them. Thus, all remedies for which we are the Agents can be relied upon as Absolutely Genuine. Our Slogan "The Choice of the Expert" was earned by this careful selection of remedies.

Furthermore, their remarkable curative excellence is in a great measure due to FRESHNESS, as fresh stocks are received every month from our Head Office. The majority of pharmaceutical preparations sold in this country are Old Stock, and consequently, of no curative value.

If other remedies have been disappointing; do not condemn these as worthless. A trial order is only needed to prove our claim.

Our aim is to give satisfaction to our customers—realising that our product and our service form our best advertisement, and to this end, we spare no efforts to provide Genuine Remedies.

ENDOPHON is a true physiological restorative in lowered virility of functional organ, being prepared from fresh Glandular Substances, obtained from the glands of healthy bulls. It supplies the enfeebled, worn-out glands of the sexual organ with those essential restorative Substances, with the result that Impotence is soon replaced with Perfect Virility.

ENDOPHON changes a Weak Impotent man, lacking Manly Power and Competence, into a Virile Man, with full sexual Vigour and ability.

Those men who are sexually weak and cannot have a proper union, should take ENDOPHON. It is 'different' to other preparations for Impotence, as it does not give mere temporary benefit, but cures permanently, by its direct restorative action on the sexual organ. PREMATURE EJACULATION gives place to perfect normal union with ejaculation occurring after-not before full indulgence. FEEBLE PARTIAL ERECTION is replaced with erection, full and regular and COMPLETE IMPOTENCE is replaced with natural "feeling" and full ability. ENDOPHON creates a healthy, sexual system.

Conclusive EVIDENCE.

- (1) The Faculty of Medicine of Paris, after clinical trials has pronounced ENDOPHON to be the only efficacious Glandular preparation.
- (2) Numerous letters have been received from the Medical Profession, testifying to its marvellous curative efficacy.
- (3) It is regularly used by many Doctors, and in the Curtius Clinic for Private Diseases. (Hamburg)
- (4) It has obtained three Gold Medals for Purity and Curative Excellence. Paris (1922) Brussels (1924) and Rome (1926).

The American Tip has been specially made to suit the requirements of those who desire natural union, with full protection. It is quite different to the ordinary preventative, as it covers only the G. P. (tip of the private)

These American Tips are much superior to any other kind, as being very thin and smaller in size, they fit the G. P. like a Glove, and make sexual relationship perfectly natural. (Also obtainable, milk-white, extra thin, non-washable).

Four Points Worth Your Consideration.

- (1) They are WASHABLE and can be used again and again.
- (2) They will not split in use nor slip off during the withdrawal.
- (3) They do not perish quickly, and can be kept for months.
- (4) Fits with comfort and security, as they are made to normal size.

"They tried to, but they could only get a moving picture."

"Your master has been ill a long time?"

"Yes, the doctor had only a bicycle on his first call and now he comes in an automobile."

A surgeon operating on the arm was asked, "Why do they call that the 'funnybone'?" Because, he replied, "it borders the humerus."

A surgeon was asked why it was that God made Eve out of Adam's rib instead of from some other part of his body. He replied, "She was not taken from the head of man, lest she should rule over him; nor from his feet, lest he should trample upon her; but she was taken from his side, that she might be his equal; from under his arm, that he might protect her; from near his heart, that he might cherish and love her."

Gonorrhea—The Best Treatment

BY A DOCTOR.

Gonorrhea is on the increase. In fact, the latest world statistics suggest that four out of five persons in capitals, like London and New York are stricken with the disease. which though thin and mucoid in the beginning, soon becomes thick and yellow. There is sometimes a dragging pain in the back and some slight constitutional disturbances such as fever.

Gonorrhea is an infective process due to the action of a specific micro-organism known as Gonococcus. It is characterized by a discharge of pus through the urethra. The primary lesion is an acute catarrhal inflammation of the anterior portion of the urethra. It quickly runs to suppuration, and if neglected, it attacks the bladder and weakens it, causing bladder trouble, then the prostate gland, and passing through the sub-acute and acute stages, penetrates the circulation and organic parenchymata, producing complications like stricture, epididymitis, rheumatism, etc:

The symptoms of the disease usually start within 5 to 10 days after infection.

The patient may get some slight itching of the meatus and a burning sensation while passing urine. The lips of the meatus are congested and swollen. Gradually a serious discharge appears Occasionally the swelling inside the urethra is so great, that there is an hindrance in the flow of urine and on exertion haemorrhage occurs. The first attack is always more troublesome than the subsequent ones, though it responds easier to treatment. When this disease reaches the chronic stage it needs prolonged treatment.

The best treatment in all cases of Gonorrhea is "505" Mixture and Injection. It is endorsed by the medical profession and widely used in hospitals and private clinics in France. The Injection soothes and heals the inflammation of the anterior portion of the urethra, and stops the discharge within a week. The Mixture, taken internally, removes symptoms such as pain, burning sensation after urination and eradicates the Gonococcus (Gonorrhea germs) from the system. The cure is complete and permanent.

Growing Popularity of Glandular Extracts.

Dr. Voronoff's Direct Transplantation a Myth

By B. X. BARRY.

Actual statistics anent the commercial traffic in animal gland substances for use in the treatment of sex weaknesses and various other human ills is now available and are passed on to the readers with the idea of correcting the popular impression that monkey gland operations are a potent factor in the correction of such ailments.

Sometime ago, it was stated that the Chicago Union Stock Yards Company as producers of gland substances from various animals had completely stilled the thunder of Dr. Voronoff of Paris, the originator of the monkey gland theory. It was stated that nature rebelled against such operations by building up a hardened tissue-substance which completely cut off and isolated the transplanted gland after a short period. On the other hand it was shown that nature took kindly to the administration of animal glandular substances both ovaries and testes and that such substances were found to be highly efficacious in the cure of sex weakness.

Other glands are found beneficial to ailments not of a sex nature and progress in the study of the bodily glands and the treatment of human ills by the administration by mouth of glandular substances has made greater and more successful progress than the public has been able to realise without accurate statistics at hand. Now the statistics are finally available and they are startlingly interesting in their scope.

At present there are 40,652 separate concerns—producers, distributors, manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers—engaged in the commercial traffic in glands. Their trade is among the millions of physicians in all parts of the world. The materials are used in the treatment of diabetes, change-of-life conditions in women, impotence in men, sterility in both men and women, barrenness in women, irregular, painful and profuse menstrual conditions in girls and young women, seminal losses, atrophied condition, arrested development and many other human ills.

The statistics prove that absorption of glandular substances taken as medicine by mouth is a proven remedy and the treatment is flourishing and successful, while Dr. Voronoff's surgical methods are lagging and are generally regarded as an absolute and proven failure.

Because Dr. Voronoff has his headquarters and all of what practice remains to him in Europe, the writer has taken a European firm as a basis for discussion. The statistics furnished by this concern are just half those of the largest American concern.

Maurice Van Gerder, executive vice-president of the firms of G. Van Gerder & Co., Amsterdam, Holland, says:

"I am in charge of purchasing raw glandular substances for our firm which is the largest in Europe. I visit the United States at least once every year to buy raw materials.

"Our firm started as dealers in oils, fats and other by-products of the slaughter of animals. One day about ten years ago a London chemist ordered from us the thyroid gland of a sheep. From that day our business grew and grew until glandular substances have eclipsed all other by-products of the slaughter of animals in our trade. Of course the demand for oils and fats in the manufacture of soaps, glycerine and other products still flourishes but it is the glands that bring us our biggest profits".

"Our first business naturally was with the research scientists who were experimenting in the use of glandular substances. These experiments proved successful beyond the fondest hopes of the most cheerful scientists and now you can get an idea of the extent of the trade by a few figures from our books."

Van Gerder thumbed a batch of papers continued: "Every month last year our firm sold 200 pounds of pituitary gland at $ 10 a pound, and we sold considerably more than that of parathyroids, but this is only an item. Our biggest traffic and the deals which brought us the most profit were in pancreases. This is the substance which furnishes Insulin for the treatment of diabetes. Of these glands we handled and sold 300 tons. Some of these was obtained in Europe, some in America and in Australia.

"We find a wide market for liver, thyroid, suprarenal, adrenal and the specific sex glands."

How about monkey glands," he was asked.

"We don't keep them," he replied "they are a joke."

The field of research in glands, really and positively has only been scratched. The subject of glands has yielded knowledge of inestimable value to mankind but the intensive research into this subject goes on constantly night and day and some scientists are visionary enough to believe that endocrinology (study of the glands) will some day reveal the secrets of life and death. Already they have practically established the actual existence of a fountain of youth. At least, by slow and sure means treatment of debilities by the absorption of glandular substances has taken years off the human organs. It has prolonged the period of potency in men and fertility in women.

REST & FATIGUE

By Sir W. Arbuthnot Lane

—o—

One of the penalties we are paying for the complexities of our present-day civilization, it seems, is a great increase in the incidence of nervous disorders. Indeed, to describe our age as neurotic is by no means an exaggeration. Multitudes of people today are finding life on the mental plane distressingly difficult. The machinery of civilization has certainly facilitated our material existence, but the maintenance of this machinery has imposed nervous strains which many are ill-equipped to withstand. Consequently on all sides, we hear of people who are victims of "nervous exhaustion," a disease which, in the majority of cases, might be more accurately described as chronic fatigue.

There can be no doubt that the social life of a great city tends to "race" the human machine. Work and play are carried out at high pressure and, though we are endowed by Nature with a wide margin of reserve energy, capable of being called upon in emergencies, the "intense living" of to day causes this margin to be narrowed to a perilous degree. Insidiously we get worn down. The artificial exhilaration of new pleasures may sustain us for a time, but our minds and bodies are not to be so cheated. The reckoning will come with mathematical certainty. A feeling of tiredness is the body's call for rest, a call which if neglected, becomes the harbinger of exhaustion and break-down.

These comments may appear rather alarming, but no competent observer will deny that they are applicable to vast numbers of those who dwell within the turmoil of our modern cities. Chronic fatigue holds millions of people in its toils and, reflects most adversely on their happiness and working efficiency. Adequate rest, the simplest and most easily attained of all the elemental requirements of health, is the one most neglected in these hectic times. Somehow, its very obviousness causes it to be regarded by many as a factor of little importance in their lives, and yet sinning against the law of rest can be most devastating in its effects upon the human mind and body. We can tolerate bad food, we can deprive ourselves of fresh air, sunshine and exercise for a very much longer period of time than we can do without sufficient rest. Inobservance of the need for rest can do irreparable harm to our systems in a remarkably short time. Rest is an elemental condition for the efficient functioning of the human organism.

Briefly, I will describe the physiology of rest. In any person, physical and mental activity, if sufficiently prolonged, will end in a state where their muscular and intellectual power is diminished. Such a condition is associated with a conscious sense of weariness, and is known as fatigue. In so far as all our activities require expenditure of energy, the original source of which is our food, these activities are limited by the available energy supply. Also, the release of energy by the tissues is accompanied by the formation of waste products which are of the nature of poisons and which create the characteristic feeling of fatigue or tiredness. This symptom is the body's warning that check must be placed upon the output of energy, in order to permit the harmful waste substance to be got rid of and the full energy complement restored. In other words, it is the signal for rest, a cessation of all non-essential activities to enable the tissues to undergo repairs and to re-establish their vitality.

Fortunately, the effects of fatigue are quickly dispelled in healthy persons provided the rest pauses are adequate, but therein lies the difficulty. In these times, a great many people are consumed with a restless activity; in some way their lives are unsatisfactory and they are constantly in pursuit of exciting distractions. There are others, of course, who are compelled by economic circumstances to over work, and in both types there is a grave danger of their suffering from the cumulative effects of lack of rest. These are the people who incessantly are on the verge of an attack of nervous exhaustion and who are apt ultimately to swell the ranks of the mentally unfit.

OBSERVE how the symptoms of chronic fatigue reveal themselves. Those who do not obey the impulse to rest quickly find that their mental efficiency is impaired. The power of attention is weakened, memory is diminished and all thinking is difficult. There is a failure in judgment, as a rule easily apparent in business activities, and emotional control is lessened as shown by irritability of temper. A feeling of heaviness or of lightness in the head, giddiness, palpitation and indigestion are frequently experienced.

At this stage all will be if the obvious remedy, rest, is applied, but such is human frailty that the obvious is all too often ignored. All work, mental or physical, becomes impossible or can only be carried out at the expense of a disagreeable and painful effort and even then is but half done. There is a loss of control of the muscles for fine movements. Digestion is gravely impaired and the bodily organs show evidence of faulty functioning. The persistent lack of rest has set all the bodily and mental mechanisms out of alignment—a dangerous state of affairs, for recuperation is inevitably slow and in such a lowered condition of vitality, the body is an easy prey to disease germs, notably those of tuberculosis, and dire consequences may ensue.

MEDICAL

Before going on to describe the nature of a "rest cure" which is indicated in those cases of exhaustion from chronic fatigue. I will describe the essential features of the hygiene of rest. In order to obtain the maximum health advantage from rest, it must be of sufficient quantity and regular in its occurrence. People vary quite considerably in the matter of energy display and rest. Some nervous systems run steadily, regularly but not very intensely, while others run by fits and starts—short bursts of energy followed by short pauses. It is worth while to fully realize the kind of energy pattern you possess for then you can run your body machine much more efficiently.

Generally speaking, however periods of relaxation are essential during and between the working hours. Neither mind nor muscle can maintain concentrated effort for an indefinite length of time without the work produced suffering in quality. In the industrial world, the importance of interpolating frequent rest pauses especially during the carrying out of monotonous work has now been fully appreciated. An unbroken spell of four or more hours of work has been found to be an unsound economic proposition and experience has shown that the systematic introduction of rest pauses leads to a very considerable increase in productivity. Industrialists are now finding that the practical psychologist can be of extreme value to him in finding out the most favorable rest pauses, in other words, pause in which the various factors so operate as to produce a maximum amount of work after that pause.

It is sleep, of course, which is the body's chief mechanism for producing periodic rest and as such is a health factor of supreme importance; it is now well known that want of sleep is more damaging than want of food. The sleep problem is one of the most difficult which long flight airmen have to combat. Natural sleep is a state of partial or complete insensibility which recurs in every twenty-four hours and occupies about one-third of that time. This is no place to enter into the many theories concerning the cause of sleep and we will regard it simply as a stage in the rhythmical activities of the brain cells acting as a defensive process against fatigue and exhaustion: it ensures rest for the vital organs, particularly the brain; it is a rhythmical pause in the body's activities for repair and growth.

A CORRECT hygiene of sleep is essential for all and must be carefully sustained during a rest cure. This method of treatment of cases of nervous exhaustion is simple and effective, provided it is rigorously carried out. The fundamental principle is complete rest in bed with entire absence of all mental and physical exercise for at least a month. This treatment can only be satisfactorily carried out in a hospital or nursing home, for all visits from friends must be prohibited and the patient must neither write nor receive letters.

Mans' Madness

In kind and quantity, the madness of mankind has increased so rapidly during late years that more than half the nations hospital capacity is devoted to the care of the mentally deranged and in many states the cost of running insane asylums is one of the largest items in the annual budget. That the stress and strain of modern living is to blame for this increased incidence of insanity, is the firm belief of several specialists. According to certain daetes available as early as 1734, stress and strain of modern life was given as a cause of mental illness. An American authority recently declared that the reason for more insanity now is simply because more people live long enough to go crazy. Yet another authoritative psychiatrist wonders if there is a mentally normal person in the whole world.

ENDOPHON

Glandular Extract (No. 1 & No. 2)

Made by Bergeret Laboratories

There is a saying: A chain is no stronger than its weakest link. Whether in the construction of a mouse trap or the manufacture of a pharmaceutical product, perfection can only be attained and maintained by zealous care and attention to every detail.

The chain of manufacture of the famous preparation "ENDOPHON" is perfect, one of the most important links being the careful selection of gland extracts that in quality and freshness equal the highest standard. This Great Scientific Remedy has met with astonishing success in the cure of sexual weakness.

"ENDOPHON" No. 1 is indicated in cases of Partial Impotence (Premature Ejaculation—Feeble Erection) and ENDOPHON No. 2 in Complete Impotence and Sterility.

(Pronounced 'END-O-FON')

BERGERET LABORATORIES.

The Gland Extracts used in the manufacture of ENDOPHON are absolutely Pure, Fresh and Standardised, all contaminating matter being removed.

ENDOPHON is manufactured by a delicate process, utterly new and original—every possible care being taken to preserve its curative efficacy and sealed in tasteless gelatine Capsules, immediately after manufacture. Thus, the slightest deterioration is eliminated.

ENDOPHON is a complete and perfect gland preparation and supplies the vital restorative substances necessary to rehabilitate the worn-out, enfeebled sexual system. It must not be confused with other gland preparations, to which it is far superior.

Sole Agents:—THE ANGLO-FRENCH MEDICAL AGENCY.

Extract from commendatory article by Dr. Louis De Rochefort, published in the Journal of the French Medical Association. Jan. 1938.

"The gland preparation, Endophon, a product of the famous Bergeret Laboratories, is in my opinion a really genuine remedy and a positive cure for sexual weakness. It deserves full approbation and wider support....."

Extracts from commendatory letters received from the Medical Profession.

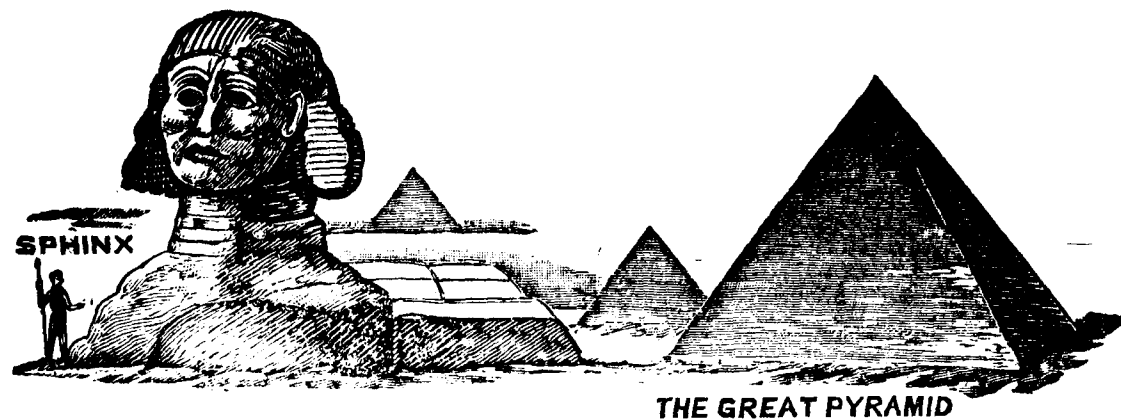

Dr. J. S. Vaucolles (Paris). "I take pleasure in certifying that Endophon is the finest remedy for Impotence and Sterility."

Dr. E. P. Maurillard (Bordeaux). "As a remedy for sexual weakness Endophon has no equal."

Prof: W. Curtius (Hamburg). "I have used Endophon on patients in my Clinic with great success. I further add, that it is immensely superior to similar preparations, having the vital gland substances in a concentrated form."

Dr. G. Beaupre (Brussels). "Science has taken a step forward in the discovery of Endophon."
