PARIS'S PALACE OF DISCOVERY

ANDRE LEVEILLE

To-Day, after an epoch of destruction that has driven man from the true path of progress, it is fitting to turn one's eyes to Paris's Palace of Discovery. The sight of it is sufficient to give us hope for the future destinies of mankind. It is a symbol marking, in unmistakable fashion, the genius of man, glorifying his unselfish efforts in the service of true progress, and showing, as though through a half-opened door, the future which lies before him. And it is to the honour of France, and in accord with her traditions and her humanistic mission, that she was the first country to plan and execute such a work, a work with an entirely new conception and a new design.

I say "entirely new" deliberately. There have been many science museums, but their nature has been static; their whole design stands in contract to that of the Palace of Discovery. No other body has ever set itself the task of existing in a constant state of evolution, so that it may be able to demonstrate, as vividly as possible, the changing aspects of the day-by-day progress of scientific research.

This is the aim of the Palace of Discovery. The enormous scope of its activities has served to popularise science, to make the Palace a link between the laboratories and the general public. It is an institute of advanced scientific training, yet which is open to everybody; it is a new weapon forged in the service of scientific discovery.

SOCIAL IMPACT OF SCIENCE

I am not using the word "popularise" in any derogatory sense. There was no intention of vulgarising or cheapening science when it was proposed that the Palace of Discovery should show the masses the great victories of science, and keep them informed of its latest discoveries. The wishes, the half-hidden needs of the people were expressed in 1934, and to the Palace of Discovery fell the task of keeping that desire alive, and of extending the interest in scientific learning. And to it, as well, fell the more important task of proving that science was not some unapproachable secret, an occult mystery hidden away in the scientist's laboratory, an abstraction which could be ignored because it did not touch people closely. As the spectators crowd the rooms of this "living exhibiton", they see and realise the power which science wields over every field of human activity; they can understand how its discoveries have, in the words of Jean Perrin, "enlarged our intelligence (with its geological and astronomical discoveries), strengthened our hold over matter (with the discoveries in physics and in chemistry), and have increased our bodily security (by biological discoveries)." Every day they can see, if they wish, a demonstration of these discoveries "by means of striking but accurate experiments, given with the aid of modern apparatus", while its temporary exhibitions show the development of science, and the relation of the part to the whole in scientific progress.

I do not consider it presumption on my part to think that among the spectators who have gazed in fascinated wonder at these demonstrations, or whose sense of beauty and majesty has been stirred and awakened by the grandeur of this temple of science, there have been some who, but for this, would never have been conscious of their scientific vocation nor have found the strength to pursue it. The Palace of Discovery may, perhaps, have saved some great scientist of the future from being lost to mankind.

The fact that it is open to everybody sets its foundations firmly upon principles of humanity and generosity. To visit the Palace is of benefit even to those whose activities have taken them into different paths of life. I would say with Jean Perrin: "If you help the people to develop a taste for scientific learning, you help them as well to develop an appreciation of accurate thinking, of unbiased criticism and judgment, which will be of value to every man, no matter what his calling may be."

If we are to judge the Palace of Discovery by the interest which is taken in it, we must acknowledge its success. By September 3, 1945, it was estimated that 4,000,000 people had visited it, in spite of the troubled years of 1942, 1943 and 1944, when the Palace remained shut for long periods at a time.

This deliberate policy of popularising science has in no way diminished science's authority. The great International Assembly of the Palace of Discovery, which met in October 1937 and which included sixty-five representative of foreign universities, and more than a thousand physicists, chemists, and biologists (among them eleven Noble Prize winners), was unanimous in its expression of admiration for the institution.

Yet, at the same time, the Palace of Discovery aims at the encouragement of advanced scientific training. Every year, under the direction of the learned scientists who form its advisory committee, professors and lecturers prepare new demonstrations and experiments. Leading men in the scientific world also give series of lectures. There is a reading-room and a library. Every year organised parties visit the Palace of Discovery; groups of school children accompanied by their teacher, and representatives of learned societies.

VACCINE FROM EGGS TO FIGHT INFLUENZA LATEST RESEARCH AT FAMOUS LONDON HOSPITAL

Unhatched chicks may soon be helping to save lives of tens of thousands of people. Their co-operation has been enlisted by the famous Department of Research at St. Mary's Hospital, London, in the fight against influenza epidemics.

Influenza was one of the chief worries of medical men throughout the late war. They remembered how it had swooped on the exhausted nations after World War I and wiped out millions of their inhabitants. The same could happen again with even more deadly effect.

While world war II was still in progress men at St. Mary's got busy to find, if not a cure, at least a preventive. They collected eggs from specially selected pedigree hens. Into the chick embryo they injected flue virus. This was left to mature for a couple of days. Then the tops of the eggs were removed, the fluid drawn off and the vaccine prepared.

British war factories and fighting units provided the human guinea pigs upon whom the vaccine was to be tried. The inoculation proved strikingly successful. Three out of every four who had received the inoculation became immune.

Whether the egg proves to be the final weapon in the struggle against this obstinate and dangerous remains to be seen. But it has won a notable victory. If a widespread epidemic were to break out, the means would be available quickly to control it.

Vaccines were no new line of investigation for St. Mary's. One of its most distinguished teachers, Sir Almroth Wright, won fame for himself and for the Department of Research which he controls by his work on typhoid immunisation more than 40 years ago. In the teeth of strong opposition from wiseacres he developed and launched his anti-typhoid vaccine. Millions of campaigners in pestilential territories have lived to bless his genius and persistence.

VACCINE THERAPY

Next, Sir Almroth Wright turned his attention to vaccine therapy. Under his direction vaccines were used with great success in the treatment of boils, septic infections and surgical tuberculosis. He has lived to see his pupils continue his work valuable new contributions. One of these is the research into allergic diseases conducted by Dr. John Freeman. Allergy is a curious form of hypersensitivity which causes some people to react in a distressing way to quite ordinary circumstances. The proximity of a cat, the presence of pollen in the air or the eating of fish causes them acute physical suffering symptoms.

The principle of the treatment is to inject repeatedly into the patient the substance which causes the trouble. Thus, for hay fever the pollen which gives rise to the condition is injected, on the assumption that familiarity produces immunity. St. Mary's was the first laboratory actually to grow pedigree grasses for research into the characteristics of pollen.

It was a plant of a different kind which provided St. Mary's with the most sensational medical discovery of recent years—penicillin. Everyone already knows the story: how Sir Alexander Fleming, while engaged on other experiments, glanced casually at a culture plate which he had discarded because a mould was growing on it; how he noticed that the mould had destroyed bacteria in its vicinity; how he cultivated the mould and extracted from it a substance that could destroy some of the most deadly germs of disease. He had found what scientists had been seeking for generations, an antiseptic which would attack the infection without harm to the white corpuscles in the blood.

Penicillin is, as we have seen, only one in a long series of life-saving factors discovered in this great hospital. When St. Mary's erects its new building—as it hopes to do soon with donations from millionaires and pennies from humble citizens the collaboration between the Research Laboratories and hospital will have room to develop and yield even richer fruit from the brains of Britain's medical scientists.

GLANDULAR THERAPY.

By Dr. A. F. De Saint-Croix.

Journal of Medicine, Feb: '37.

In the light of modern researches and extraordinary rapid progress in the direction of the use of ductless glands in the treatment of various diseases much is said and has been discussed.

This new principle in medicine has completely revolutionised the old time tonics.

Glandular therapy, the application of which dates back from 1889 when the pioneer of this branch of medicine, Brown Sequard, administered to himself testicular extract, is well known. To the amazement of himself and other physicians, the experiment proved a great success and a new chapter was opened up in the modern book of therapeutics.

Since that day, good many eminent scientists, notably Banting, Best, Murphy, Minot, and Serge Voronoff have experimented on various organisms including human beings, taking help of every available ductless gland found in the body.

Recently the new system has been perfected to such a degree, that surprising results have been recorded in books of medical statistics.

A good deal of information about the subject can be obtained from an authoritative publication put forward by Dr. E. Retterar, of Paris.

It is also a truth that the most forward medical men whose opinions are valued by physicians of the whole world have personally carried out experiments, and have without reservation, put their stamp of approval on the system and advocated its tremendous possibilities.

It has been scientifically proved that the key to sexual weakness is Glandular Extracts obtained from the glands of bulls, and administered by the mouth in CAPSULE FORM.

Yet all the achievements of the system are reduced to nil if the glands selected are not of standard purity and if due care is not taken during the preparation of their compounds. The bulls selected must not be diseased and must be absolutely young so that all their ductless glands must be functioning with their proper physiological secretions. On strict and thorough pathological examinations, they should prove to be absolutely germ free and in a healthy condition.

The exact proportions selected from different glands is a matter of vital importance.

Another factor of great importance is the preservation and stability of these products. Absolute freshness is essential. The gelatine capsule is recognised as the best method of preserving freshness and therapeutic efficacy, as the vital gland substances are completely sealed in the gelatine envelope, and all possibility of deterioration is eliminated.

CURE FOR CANCER IN SIGHT? EXPERIMENTS ON NUCLEAR ENERGY

London, December 20—A universal cure for cancer is in sight.

Cancer control by synthetic hormones initiating chemical action on the human body was first announced two years ago and its effects are being studied by the joint committee of Empire Campaign and the Royal Society of Medicine.

A report presented at yesterday's meeting in London of the British Empire Cancer Campaign records steady progress in cancer research despite wartime difficulties. Cancer, however, remains a major fatal disease from which over 70,000 die annually in Britain.

Recent work on atomic energy has enabled the use of more potent forms of radiation than were thought possible 22 years ago when the Campaign began its activities. The Campaign has held consultations with other interested bodies on the possibilities of this treatment and this work is closely linked with that of the research committee on medical and biological application of nuclear physics set up by the Government.

Another field of investigation proceeding in Britain is the possibility of treatment by a serum obtained from tumours subjected to radiation.

THE SCOURGE OF SYPHILIS AND GONORRHEA AND THE CURE.

From the Lancet. June 11, 1942.

Britain's figures of venereal disease have risen since the War. In 1940 the increase was 23 per cent over 1939. Proportionately this is better than the situation in World War 1, when the V. D. rate doubled, but it is no occasion for complacency.

Treatment was woefully inadequate between 1914 and 1918.

The short courses of treatment then in use were responsible for tragic developments a generation later. If left untreated, syphilis has a tendency to clear up. This is disastrously deceptive. The disease may lie dormant for years, then suddenly break out again.

Syphilis is not a new disease. It has been treated a thousand different ways since 1493, when Dr. Diaz de Isla climbed aboard Columbus's ships at Palos to treat sailors loathsome sick of the malady they had brought back from the West Indies.

Such things as China root and sarsaparilla have had their day, to say nothing of a medley of things like powdered serpents and even toad's spittle. It was not until March 1905, that science began to get at grips with syphilis.

In that year a bushy-bearded German named Fritz Schaudinn was ordered by Berlin's Imperial Health Office to make laboratory tests of a germ which was suspected of causing not only small pox, but the great pox. He got positive results, named the germ "the pale horror" because it could scarcely be seen, even under a microscope.

Another discovery in 1907 brought August von Wassermann's fixation test, which to this day is the doctor's quickest, most practical test for the disease: Three years later Paul Ehrlich made the discovery which beat syphilis down from astronomical figures to something within reasonable understanding. This was "606"—salvarsan.

In 1936, Dr. Pierre de Sadalan evolved oral treatment, which he called after his name. Two years later, in January 1938, Neo Sadalan made its appearance, being the new and improved formula of Dr. Pierre De Sadalan, that clinches the fight even in long-standing cases.

The rate of cures in primary cases is 86 per cent and in secondary cases 81 per cent, every cure is complete and permanent.

It is the best treatment and is convenient and absolutely safe to use.

Quick disappearance of symptoms often inclines the sufferer to believe he is cured, and he stops treatment with tragic results.

In its primary stage syphilis is not painful; the secondary stage includes a rash, which may cover the entire body. Loss of hair in spots over the scalp is common. The third and fourth stages can be anything from heart trouble to general paralysis and insanity.

Syphilis is generally regarded as the aristocrat of diseases, but gonorrhoea is considered a social disgrace. More prevalent in its ravages, but far less horrible in effect, it has been completely conquered by modern medicine.

The "MAGIC BULLET" in gonorrhoea's treatment is "505" Mixture and Injection.

It is made to the formula of Dr. Edouard Pavy, the eminent specialist in venereal disease. This is the finest treatment and always effects a permanent cure.

SNAKES FOR HEALTH

Strangest of all military units among the Allied forces is the South African Medical Corps' Snake Catching Unit, which hunts in the kloof, the thick bush country and along the steamy river banks of the Eastern Transvaal near the Portuguese East African Border.

Three men total the force of this strange unit which hunts down and captures deadly snakes and vipers and brings them back alive to the snake farm at their headquarters in an abandoned jail. For the venom removed from these reptiles is used in the manufacture of antivenine snakebite serum.

All three men are experts at their job of catching and "milking" snakes, and those for which they search the most are the "yellow cobra" and the puff adder. For it is these most deadly of reptiles that yield the most valuable venom.

When the two corporals and one private comprising the unit have extracted, weighed and dried the venom they send it to the S. A. Institute for Medical Research, where the next steps are carried out under the supervision of Dr. E. Grasset, a pioneer of snakebite antidote in the first experiments at Pondicherry.

Selected horses are injected with a mixture of the two venoms—nerve poison and blood poison—in gradually increasing doses over a period of about seven months. Then the horses' blood is drawn off and scientifically centrifugated—that is, spun round at high speed.

That vital serum separates off and is carefully withdrawn from the solution and is then ready to go into hypodermic syringe outfits. These have helped to save many lives and are the answer to the Nazi seizure of the Pasteur Institute in Paris.

It is not only for the treatment of snakebites that the venom of snakes is prepared in the Komatipoort laboratories. For example, the crystals of the puff adder's dried venom find their way to the ends of the earth since they prove to be a very potent coagulant for the blood of haemophiliacs.

These unfortunate sufferers are afflicted with a dread bleeding disease that will not react to ordinary treatment. But now dried snake venom is saving many sufferers.

All the members of the unit are real experts and they handle deadly snakes with a confidence that is never at fault. They seriously affirm that if one is gentle and shows no fear, snakes are safe to handle and will never attack the human being who picks them up from the ground.

Certainly, they hunt their prey with nothing more formidable than an ordinary stick, and pick up the snakes with a sure grasp. But much practice has made them perfect, but theirs is not a practice that is likely to become generally popular.

TRIUMPHS OF TWO LONDON DOCTORS

Saved More Lives in Armies Than Anyone Else.

London, July 5: Lord Moran said last night that two doctors of St Mary's Hospital, London, had saved more lives in armies in the field than anyone else in the world—Almroth Wright, by his typhoid inoculations, and Prof. Fleming by the discovery of penicillin.

"I was called," he said, "to see a certain man, a great public figure, who was suffering from a form of meningitis from which in the past no one had ever recovered. We put penicillin into his brain and from that moment he never looked back. He is fit for work now and as good as ever."

Lord Moran was apparently referring to Lord Norman, former Governor of the Bank of England.

With an Idea and Determination... HE REVOLUTIONISED MEDICINE!

In 1889 Professor Charles Edouard Brown-Sequard, the famous scientist, made his epoch-making discovery, when he administered to himself glandular extract in his laboratory in Paris. To the amazement of himself and other physicians, the experiment proved a great success and a new chapter was opened in the modern book of therapeutics.

His life was a great one....most of it spent in a littered laboratory conducting ceaseless experiments. Never did a man work so hard—and succeed so brilliantly!

Professor Brown-Sequard's discovery is mentioned in authoritative medical books on the subject.

Prof. BROWN-SEQUARD, making his great discovery.

The harnessing of physical and chemical forces, which has produced our modern rapidity of travel and communication; steam, electric power, telegraphy, and the conquest of the air, affect our lives profoundly. And yet it may well be that biological knowledge and its many applications to the control and cure of disease and, above all, its elimination and prevention, have done far more to lighten the burden under which mankind struggles and to raise the level of civilization.

The great progress of medical science and the rapid strides it has made in the last hundred years have saved countless lives, prolonged and alleviated many others, and given us all a better chance of expanding what personal talents we have and of making the best of our time.

Humanity is beginning to see how to live.

All this is due to those men—Benefactors of Mankind—who have elucidated for us the immutable laws which underlie our functions. By no means the least of these was the immortal discoverer of Gland Therapy—Prof. Brown-Sequard, the famous French Scientist, for it is not difficult to see how he provided a sure basis on which modern science could build with confidence and success.

Although many lives have passed in the contemplation of Nature, attempting with infinite patience to solve the problems which she presents in such profusion, few philosophers have succeeded in making such a fundamental and far-reaching discovery as that of the function of the human glands.

It is not too much to say that enunciation of this principle revolutionised medicine and set it firmly upon a rational footing. So much was made clear and so many vistas were opened that it would seem that this conception was a lever powerful enough to set in motion those trains of scientific experiment and research which have brought us to our present state of knowledge and, still gathering speed and power, lead us confidently to hope for yet wider and deeper understanding of natural laws, in particular those which govern the great mystery of Life itself.

Gland Therapy is no myth. Some of the highest medical authorities in Europe and America believe in the curative efficacy of gland treatment for sexual weakness and other ailments.

DISCOVERY OF NEW CHOLERA VACCINE

Provides Immunity With One Dose

Conclusive Tests to be Made in India

New York. June 23: An important new medical discovery, a direct cholera vaccine which provides immunity with one dose instead of the normal 3 doses will very soon get its first conclusive practical test in areas of India recently affected by famine, it is disclosed here. Mr. J. Edgar Rhoads, President of the newly fomed American Relief for India. Inc., announced that his organisation was rushing out supplies of the new medicine to American Quaker relief workers in Bengal, where a cholera epidemic is reported to be claiming 100 lives weekly.

Six teams, capable of inoculating thousands of persons daily, will dispense the vaccine, which is expected to prove superior in strength, as well as in other qualities, to other methods. Materials for its manufacture are said to be available almost anywhere, and it is also reported to be possible to manufacture it quickly, at the scene of the epidemic, without the skill of technicians—a fact which it is hoped, will permit of the inoculation of the entire area affected, especially the environs of Calcutta.

Dr. Robert K. Jennings, of the Biochemical Research Foundation of the Franklin Institute, Philadelphia, and the discoveror of the vaccine, is awaiting news from India, that he may leave immediately to help to develop the vaccine's use as so far only laboratory tests have been made, and India is expected to prove whether such tests stand up in practice.

Expert Diagnosis

A woman went to see a doctor. "Doctor," she exclaimed loudly, bouncing into the room, "I want you to say frankly what's wrong with me."

He surveyed her from head to foot.

"Madam," he said at length. "I've just three things to tell you. First, your weight wants reducing by nearly 50 pounds. Secondly, your beauty would be improved by freer use of soap and water. And, thirdly. I'm an artist; the doctor lives on the next floor."

Another Problem

A farmer visited his son's college.

Watching students in a chemistry class he was told they were looking for a universal solvent.

"What's that?" asked the farmer.

"A liquid that will dissolve anything,"

"That's a 'great idea," agreed the farmer "When you find it, what are you going to keep it in?"

Business First

Doctor: "There goes the only woman I ever loved."

Nurse: "Why don't you marry her?"

Doctor: "I can't afford to. She's my best patient."

One by One

"When I was a boy," said a gray-haired physician, who was in a reminiscent mood, "I wanted to be a soldier but my parents persuaded me to study medicine."
