Article 1480 is reconstructed as follows:—

"The rules in Article 1140 are applicable to all warrant officers (military and medical) in departments, who will be granted the same rewards for passing in the native languages as commissioned officers."

"I.—The higher rate (or that allowed to commissioned officers) of moonshes allowance on passing the higher or lower standard in the Hindustani language cannot be claimed, under any circumstances by medical warrant officers with regiments and batteries when sufficient means of instruction have been provided in a regimental or other Government school which they could attend. The exceptional cases in which the higher rate of allowance will be granted are when such means of instruction are not provided or cannot be made use of, owing to reasons which must be fully explained on submitting the claim. In all cases of doubt as to the validity of these reasons, the Controller of Military Accounts will, if necessary, refer the claim for the orders of Government."

"II.—Medical warrant officers with regiments and batteries who have had opportunities of receiving instruction from a regimental or other Government school, and of using the Government books, will receive the same allowances as non-commissioned officers (Article 1966)."

DRILL.

G. O. C. C., No. 96 of 6th September, 1876.—The following General Orders by His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India, are republished:—

Simla, 4th August, 1876, No. 212.—The Commander-in-Chief in India directs that all regiments under His Excellency's command in this country be instructed, as soon as practicable, in the following system of drill, promulgated by authority in Horse Guards' G. O. 40 of 1876.

Sir F. Haines requires from general and other officers the most scrupulous adherence to the details of instruction now directed to be adopted.

ATTACK FORMATION OF A BATTALION.

1. When companies are deployed in Attack formation, the front allowed for each file will be 30 inches; in rank entire, the same front will be allowed for each man. The increased front will invariably be gained on the march, on assuming the formation described in para. 16.*

2. The interval between companies in line will be three paces.

3. Half-battalions in line will have an interval of six paces (inclusive of the company interval).

4. No company is to consist of less than twenty files.

5. For brigade instruction, a battalion must consist of either eight or four companies.

6. For regimental instruction, the battalion may be formed in six companies.

7. In the case of six or eight companies, the battalion will be divided into half-battalions.

8. In the case of four companies, it will work as a half-battalion.

Half-battalion Commands.

9. When only one Major is present, he will command one half-battalion and the senior Captain the other.

Formations.

10. Two formations will be used for attack:

A. "Line."

A. Line Formation—Chiefly applicable to the centre battalions of a brigade or division.

B. "Flank."

B. Flank Formation.—Applicable to—

(a.) The flank battalion of a flank brigade;

(b.) A battalion acting alone; or,

(c.) Debouching on a narrow front from column of route.

11. The battalion standing in quarter column:—On the caution "For attack, deploy into line of half-battalion columns to the left (or right)," the Major of the rear half-battalion will move it into its position in the alignment. Points will be given as usual; the full front specified in paras. 1-3 being taken up.

A. Line formation.

12. The battalion caution will invariably be repeated by the commanders of half-battalions, who will then give the executive words required.

Colors.

13. The Queen's Color will on all occasions remain with the right half-battalion, the Regimental Color with the left.

14. Each Color will have an escort of one serjeant on the right, and two steady men in rear. In column, the Color-party of each half-battalion will be placed in rear of the centre of the rear of the company; in line, it will be placed (and move) between the two companies of the "Supporting Line."

15. A bugler will be with each Company-commander; the drummers of each half-battalion will form in rear of the Color-party, in two ranks.

The Pioneers and Band, with the Regimental Ammunition Reserve, will be formed at 20 paces distance in rear of the centre of the whole battalion; on the advance taking place, they will follow at such distance as circumstances may necessitate (at drill about 50 paces).

16. The deployment into line of half-battalion columns being completed, the battalion caution "Form for Attack" will be given; when it has been

"Form for Attack" from line of half-battalion columns. repeated by the Majors, the right half-companies (in the case of a deployment to the left) of the two leading companies of each half-battalion will advance, extending on the march into rank entire, at such intervals as to cover the front of the half-battalion (the leading half-company on the right of each line). In a deployment to the right, the left half-companies will advance in the same manner, the leading half-companies being on the left of each line.

17. Having completed their extension they will lie down, unless ordered to advance. The left (or right) half-companies will support the extended half-companies, moving in two ranks with open files, (i. e., two paces interval between each file); and, as a rule, in rear of the centre.

18. The companies, in taking up their positions, will move generally by the diagonal march, and in quick or double time as may be ordered.

19. On the signal to advance, from the Commanding officer, the rear half-companies will follow the leading half-companies at a distance of 150 to 200 yards, changing their formation by the order of their commanders, according to the nature of the ground, or the enemy's fire.

"Attacking Line."

20. The leading companies thus formed will be termed the "Attacking Line" and be under the command of the Captains.

21. The Captains will command the advance from the rear of the leading half-companies.

G. G. O., No. 1007 of 1876.

"1662a.—A lance sergeant receiving pay as such will not draw good-conduct pay in addition."

"1662b.—The increased pay after two years' service in the rank of sergeant (Article 1662) will continue to be issued on promotion. Thus an infantry sergeant after two years' service at such, will receive Rupees 34-9-6 (net pay for a month of 30 days), and if promoted to be color-sergeant while in receipt of that rate, will at once receive Rupees 42-0-6 per mensem, and not the lowest pay of color-sergeant which is only Rupees 39-14-10."

"1662c.—An addition of 2d. a day shall be made to the daily pay of soldiers serving in the army on, and subsequently to, the 1st April, 1876, during such portion of the first twelve years of their army service as may be rendered after that date, subject to the forfeitures specified in Articles 1662f and 1662h."

G. G. O., No. 1009 of 1876.

"1662d.—The issue of this pay shall be deferred until the soldier completes his army service, whether on final discharge from the army or on entering the first class of the army reserve; and shall be made in such manner as may be prescribed in regulations issued by the Secretary of State."

"1662e.—Soldiers who are discharged before completing their army service, whether by purchase or on account of unfitness for further service, or in consequence of the reduction of the military establishment, shall receive, after discharge, the amount of deferred pay due to them."

"1662f.—In the case of soldiers who die in the service, the amount of deferred pay which may have accrued to them to the date of death, shall be disposed of in accordance with the regulations for the collection and disposal of the effects of deceased soldiers laid down in the Regimental Debts' Act, 1863."

"1662g.—Deferred pay shall be forfeited for the day or days for which a soldier has forfeited the privilege of reckoning his service towards good-conduct pay and pension."

"1662h.—Deferred pay shall also be forfeited on conviction of desertion, or by sentence of a general, district, or garrison court-martial, or by conviction of felony by a court of civil judicature, for all periods prior to such conviction or sentence; but if the soldier thus convicted shall, subsequently to such conviction, perform good, faithful or gallant service, he may, on the same being duly certified by the Commander-in-Chief, have the whole or any part of his deferred pay restored to him, upon Her Majesty's pleasure to that effect being signified by the Secretary of State."

"1662i.—Soldiers who, on the recommendation of their commanding officers and with their own free assent, are permitted after three years' army service to pass to the army reserve, will receive the deferred pay due to them for their army service, when they shall have completed the number of years'

22. The remaining companies of each half-battalion will move, under the command of the Majors, in such formation, and in such relative position to the rear half-companies of the attacking line, as may seem best: at a distance of 200 or 300 yards; and will be termed the "Supporting Line."

N. B.—For purposes of instruction the Commanding officer will place himself as may seem most desirable.

23. When the battalion is formed for regimental instruction with only six companies, the supporting line will consist of the 3rd company of each half-battalion.

24. An alternative formation (vide ante, para. 10, B). A battalion halted in quarter column, on the caution "Form for Attack" will proceed as in A, as regards the leading half-battalion.

B. Flank Formation.
The rear half-battalion will, as a rule, be moved into echelon on the exposed flank, and on the advance being ordered will move in such formation as may be directed, and be treated as a "Battalion reserve."

Scouts.
25. Men selected from the marksmen of a company for their intelligence and activity, will be detailed as scouts.

On the caution "Form for Attack," they will (in either A or B formation) move out from the leading half-companies, and remain about 100 or 150 yards in advance; about four or five men for the front of a half-battalion should be sufficient as a rule. An officer of a battalion will accompany them.

26. A line deployed will form "for attack" by named companies of each half-battalion forming in attacking and supporting lines on the same principles.

GENERAL CONDUCT OF THE ATTACK BY A BATTALION.

27. It is assumed that a battalion exposed to artillery fire will form for attack.*
Previous to an advance in such formation, the officer commanding will be most explicit in his instructions as regards the direction of the advance, and subsequently as to the point to be attacked.

28. A company of the attacking line will always be named to direct.

29. Officers commanding battalions, although retaining the general superintendence of the movement, must remember that it would be impossible in war to issue fresh instructions to Company commanders after the attacking line is once really engaged. They should therefore impress the Captains with a sense of their responsibility of their position, accustoming them to considerable freedom of action, and, so far as is compatible with due instruction, and the carrying out of the general directions previously given, interfere as little as possible with them when manœuvring. It is preferable to point out the mistakes committed after an advance is completed, rather than during the movement.

30. Officers commanding companies must bear in mind that, although their men should be trained to avail themselves of any cover that may offer in their direct line of advance, they are not to be permitted to diverge to the flank to obtain cover, by which the cohesion of an attacking body is lost, and a false direction given to the advance.

Section-leaders.
31. The Section-leaders should be on the alert to conform to the signals or orders of the Company-commander, and must regulate the fire of their sections.

32. To enable the advance to be conducted as quietly as possible, there should be no unnecessary words of command, and the fewest possible bugle sounds.

The advance.
33. At a distance of about 500 yards from the enemy's advanced troops, it may be expected that the scouts would await the arrival of the attacking line, and would advance with it: any information obtained of the enemy's position being communicated to the Officer commanding.

34. On approaching the enemy's position the Captains may, if necessary,† order up their rear half-companies.

35. The supporting line in the meantime should have advanced and be within 300 yards of the attacking line (or nearer if cover be obtainable).

36. After the reinforcement by the rear half-companies, the advance will be continued by alternate companies, and at such a pace as the enemy's fire may necessitate.

At drill, the double may be used, but no hurry or confusion must be permitted. Companies must not be allowed to overlap.

No firing is to be permitted except at the halt, and then only as the Section-leaders may order.

Each advance (or rush‡) should be for about 50 yards, and the rear companies, when drilling in open ground, will always align themselves on the leading companies and lie down.

No troops should ever halt in rear of cover without taking advantage of it. In broken ground, therefore, a rear company, with a favorable position directly in front, may move on to it instead of halting on the alignment.

* In open ground this would be the case at a distance of from 3,000 to 4,000 yards from the enemy.

† Officers commanding the advanced companies should endeavour to approach as near as possible to the point to be attacked, before ordering up their rear half-companies.

‡ A rush is only permissive, not obligatory.

37. Having advanced to within 300 yards of the position to be attacked, and the Battalion commander having determined to force it by a front attack, reinforcing by supporting line, the supporting line will reinforce the whole or a portion of the attacking line, forming in rank entire on the march, the attacking line which is to be reinforced. and occupying the same extent of front as that portion of the attacking line which is to be reinforced. To ensure unity of command, as far as possible, it is desirable that no portion of one half-battalion should reinforce the other half: on the same principle, no company should reinforce more than one other company.

After reinforcing, the supporting line will stand, at drill, as a rear rank to the original attacking companies.*

38. At 100 or 150 yards from the enemy the battalion will advance to the attack in a general line, the signal for the final rush will be given by the drums of the regiment beating and the bugles sounding the charge, on which the men will quicken their pace and cheer.

39. Serving out ammunition from the Regimental Reserve must be regularly practised during the attack.

40. The procedure above explained would be the normal drill of a battalion; but it should also be practised in—

- (a.) Prolonging the line to a flank.
- (b.) Making a flank attack, or receiving one.
- (c.) Changing direction.

41. A change of front (less than the one-eighth of a circle) will be made on the leading flank company of the attacking line, the remainder of the battalion conforming.

42. When it is necessary to change front at a greater angle than one-eighth of a circle, the companies of the attacking and supporting lines which are nearest the point of appui will wheel to the new front and form the attacking line; the remaining two companies of the same half-battalion becoming the "supporting line."

The other half-battalion will move into Reserve (the battalion will thus assume the "flank formation," B).

Retirements.
43. Retirements should be carefully practised.
A battalion, reinforced by its "supporting line" (formation A) will stand at drill in two ranks, each man occupying 30 inches: each half-battalion command will be intact, but the front and rear ranks will be formed of different companies.

The retirement of a battalion thus formed can be carried out in two ways:

- (a.) By alternate half-battalions. The named half-battalion will retire, by command of its Major 200 yards, then halt and front, on which the other half-battalion will retire and form on it. The movement will be continued as may be necessary; the firing of the half-battalions will be regulated by the necessities of the case, under the orders of the Majors.
- (b.) By alternate companies. The two combined companies of the attacking and supporting lines will retire together under the orders of the senior Captain.

44. In both cases companies will be disengaged from each other when out of fire.

45. When a battalion, or a portion thereof, is ordered to cover the front of a larger body (for instance a Division) not formed for attack, or to feel for the enemy when advancing through an enclosed or wooded country, it will be formed on the general principles laid in the Attack Formation A; the extension between files or half-companies depending on the extent of front to be covered. It is, however, to be understood that this battalion thus formed is not intended, in the case of a general engagement, to form part of the attacking line.

Every battalion should be practised in the above duty.

46. The companies of a battalion in the attacking line should, as a rule, receive cavalry by forming groups. It must be borne in mind that infantry, if kept well in hand, have nothing to fear from cavalry; and that, forming larger bodies for resistance they lose, at a most critical moment, their power of offence and become an easier mark for artillery fire.

ATTACK FORMATION OF A BRIGADE.

47. When, with a brigade composed of three battalions, it is intended to attack direct to the front with one battalion in reserve, the attacking battalions will be in "Flank Formation" (B). The battalion in reserve will be in line of half-battalions, 500 or 600 yards to the rear.

48. When the brigade is composed of four battalions, at least one battalion will be in reserve as above. The flank battalions for the attack will be in "Flank Formation" (B). If three battalions attack, the centre battalion will be in "Line Formation" (A).

* It may be expected that in war, the line, owing to casualties would be rank entire.

† The signal will be ordered by the officer commanding the battalion.

General Instructions.

49. The brigade cautions will be repeated by Commanders of battalions and half-battalions.
50. A battalion will always be named to direct.
51. Explicit instructions will be given to Commanders of battalions as to the object and direction of the attack.

The Brigade Reserve.

52. The Brigade Reserve may be employed under orders from the Brigadier, in—
- Prolonging the attacking line.
 - Supporting a threatened flank.
 - Making a flank attack.
 - Reinforcing a portion of the attacking line.

In the event of reinforcing (d) being considered advisable, the troops detailed for the duty* will advance in line, and join that portion of the attacking line which they are directed to reinforce.

Directly the object of the reinforcement has been obtained, the troops of the original first line thus reinforced will lie down and commence to fill up with ammunition.†

If the advance is continued, they will reform companies on a named officer on the march, and follow as a Reserve, or as may be ordered.

Change of Front.

53. A change of front will be carried out on the principles laid down for a battalion (paras. 41, 42), and further exemplified for a Division.

54. Previous to a retirement being ordered, the reserve battalion is to be posted in a strong position as near the front as practicable, in line or such formation as may be deemed best.

The retirement will then be carried out as laid down for a battalion (para. 43).

ATTACK FORMATION OF A DIVISION.

THE ATTACK FORMATION OF A DIVISION WHEN ACTING ALONE.

55. When a Division is formed for attack, two brigades will be in the first line; the 3rd brigade will be in reserve.

56. The right brigade will have its right battalion in "flank formation" (B), the remaining battalions in "line formation" (A).

In like manner the brigade on the left will have its left battalion in flank formation, &c.

57. The reserve brigade will be in line of quarter columns at deploying intervals, at 600 or 800 yards to the rear of the brigade reserves.

58. Previous to advancing, the Brigadiers must receive the most precise instructions as to the objects and direction of the attack, which will be communicated to Officers commanding battalions; and a brigade will be named to direct.

Infantry.

59. On open unbroken ground, when a Division becomes exposed to artillery fire, the attack formation will generally be assumed at about from 3,000 to 4,000 yards from the enemy's position, covered by the Infantry scouts of the leading half-companies of the "attacking line."

60. When at any point the resistance is such that the advance cannot be pushed, and the Captains of the attacking line order up their rear half-companies, the "supporting line," under the command of the Majors and supervision of the Battalion-commanders, will close up to within 300 yards of the attacking line.

It may be expected that such reinforcement would be necessary within 500 yards of the enemy's position, but this would depend on the amount of resistance offered by the enemy.

61. The advance of the attacking line may then be pushed on by alternate companies (firing only at the halt, and only when ordered by section leaders).

62. If there seems a chance of gaining the position by a front attack and the "attacking line" of battalions is unable to force its way, the "supporting line" will be directed by the Officers commanding battalions to reinforce (which will be done as laid down for a battalion, para. 37).

Front Attack.

63. If the attack be still unsuccessful, a portion, or the whole of the brigade Reserves must be moved up as laid down in para. 52, and will continue the attack as may be ordered.

64. In peace manoeuvres and drill the original first line, or such portion of it as was unable to advance, will lie down and fill up with ammunition, and will, unless otherwise ordered, form a reserve to the new line, reforming companies as laid down in para. 52.

65. If there appears but little chance of carrying the position by a front attack, it will be advisable—instead of reinforcing the attacking line—to use such portion of the supporting line of battalions as may be available in prolonging the line to a flank, and endeavoring to out-flank the enemy.

* For purposes of reinforcement nothing less than a half-battalion should be used; this unit of command should, as far as possible, be kept intact on all occasions.

† At manoeuvres and during the instruction of large bodies of troops, that portion of the first line which is to be reinforced will be ordered to lie down before they are joined by the reinforcing troops, who will pass over them.

The same course may be pursued with the brigade Reserves.

Flank Attack.

66. When a flank attack with a wider sweep and on a more extended scale than the preceding is designed, the Reserve brigade, in whole or part, will be employed to carry it out.

Should this attack be resolved on from the commencement, the troops intended for it should usually be brought up in echelon on the flank from which it is to be made.

A threatened Flank.

67. When there is reason to expect a flank attack, the Division will advance with a brigade or battalion supporting in echelon on that flank.

68. In the event of such a flank attack taking place, the brigade or battalion supporting on the flank will at once change front and form for attack: the original attacking battalions will hold their ground, and such portion of the Reserve as may be necessary will be at once brought up to support the flank attacked, in such manner as circumstances require.

Any battalion disposable from the outer flank of the original line will be moved at once to the rear of the centre to form a new Reserve.

69. The retirement of a Division will be carried out by posting the Reserves in strong positions, and withdrawing the front brigades either by alternate brigades or by fractions of each, as laid down in the retirement of a brigade and battalion.

Retirements.

Cavalry and Artillery.

70. The advance of the infantry should always be preceded by a concentrated fire of artillery on the point selected for attack, which fire should be maintained until the last moment possible; to allow of this being carried out the Officer Commanding Royal Artillery must receive precise information as to the real point of attack.

71. Guns when once brought into action should be moved as seldom as possible, and therefore the most favorable position should be selected at first.

72. When artillery, in covering the advance, are sufficiently protected by the infantry, no cavalry escort will be required; should however such escort be necessary, a troop or squadron will be detailed from the Divisional cavalry as a support for the artillery belonging to that Division, and will be posted, when halted, at least 100 yards in rear of the guns, towards the most exposed flank, but this must mainly depend on the nature of the ground, and the shelter to be obtained.

Escorts for Artillery.

73. When artillery or cavalry are required for action they should come to the front by the flanks, or when necessary they may pass through the intervals of the infantry line, care being taken that the advance of the artillery is always preceded by scouts, to test the practicability of the ground.

Advance of Cavalry and Artillery.

74. If a battery be opened to the chance of attack from the flanks, scouts should be sent out from its cavalry support to reconnoitre and give intelligence of any flank movement of the enemy, and so prevent surprise.

75. In the case of meeting a flank attack, the available artillery should advance towards the threatened flank, and take up a position so as to operate on the enemy's flank, leaving the batteries already engaged free to sustain a continuous fire.

To meet a Flank Attack.

76. As regards the cavalry, that portion on the threatened flank should be advanced, exposing itself as little as possible, and should be ready to act vigorously, as opportunity offers, or as circumstances demand, against the enemy's flank, or against the cavalry supporting its movements.

77. The cavalry on the other flank will be held ready to operate towards the original front, or on the flank which is thrown forward after the change of front has been effected.

78. Any artillery, whether Divisional or Corps, which is not in action, should be posted in rear of the centre of the Division or Corps in a favorable position for being able to advance, but at the same time covered from observation. The main body of cavalry should so be placed, according to the nature of the ground, as to be able to act towards the flank most exposed without hampering the movements of the infantry.

Further and fuller instructions as to the action of Divisional and Corps Cavalry and Artillery will shortly be promulgated for the guidance of the Army.

ADDENDA TO THE FIELD EXERCISE.

PART I.—SQUAD DRILL.

- S. 24. Add: A squad will also be drilled with the men at half-arm interval, thus occupying an average front of 30 inches. When men formed in single rank, as above described, are required to move in this formation, the word will be "Open to half interval from the Right (or Left)," the man on the named flank will stand fast, the remainder will ease off, each man in succession obtaining his increased front by raising his inner arm elbow in line with the shoulder, back of the hand upwards, points of the fingers lightly touching the point of the shoulder: the hand will be dropped after a pause of slow time.

A squad at half-arm intervals will resume its usual width of front on the word "Close on the Right (or Left)."

S. 27. Add: The squad while marching to the front will be practised in opening to half-arm intervals as described in S. 24. On the words "Open to half interval from the Right (or Left)," the men will open out from the named flank, without raising the arm, judging the interval, and continue the advance maintaining their relative positions.

S. 39. Add to No. 1: "unless directed to move with half intervals."

PART II.—COMPANY DRILL.

S. 3. Add: 3. The company will also be practised in marching to the front with that files at half-arm interval. The increased front of files (30 inches) will invariably be gained on the march, on the words "For Attack, open to half interval from the Right (or Left)."

NOTE.—The formation with half-arm intervals will only be applied in marching to the front in line.

Medical Examiner.

W. H. HARRIS, Esq., M. D.

Actuary.

A. H. BAILEY, Esq., of the London Assurance Corporation.

The chief characteristics of this Society are:—

Mutual Assurance.

Policies for terms of years issued at largely reduced rates without participation in Surpluses. Premiums payable half yearly, on 1st January and 1st July.

Claims paid immediately after satisfactory proof of death. An official Notice of death in any of Her Majesty's Government Gazettes is a sufficient proof.

Claims can be adjusted, and premiums can be paid in London, if desired by the Policy holders.

Surrender Values allowed for Life Policies issued at fixed rates of premium which have paid three years' premiums.

The Society's funds must be invested in Indian Government Securities or in other guaranteed Indian Securities.

Quinquennial valuations, by a London Actuary, of Assets and Liabilities. The reduction of premiums for the Quinquennium 1876-80 is at the rate of 65 per cent. of premiums paid during 1871-75.

Assurances granted on the lives of Europeans, East Indians or Eurasians, and Parsees.

Past experience leads the Directors to anticipate that the retention of the "Mutual" principle and the Quinquennial distributions of Surpluses, will bring down the cost of Assurance by this office, for Life, to the lowest possible point.

The Medical Examiner sees Applicants for Assurance at his residence, Pantheon Road, Egmore, on Wednesdays and Saturdays between 11 and 12 A. M.

Church of England Assurance Institution.

ESTABLISHED 1840.

HEAD OFFICE—KING STREET, CHEAPSIDE, LONDON.

EMPOWERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF PARLIAMENT.

Capital—One Million.

“Short Term” and “Whole Life” Assurances are granted.

In addition to ordinary Assurances this Company issues Policies by which the sums assured are made payable to the Policy-holder himself on his attaining a specified age or to his representatives in the event of his previous death. By this means Officers and others may both provide for their families and secure Retiring Provision for themselves.

Also “FREE” Policies are granted which can never altogether lapse in consequence of the non-payment of Premiums.

“Clergy Rates” have been recently prepared to enable Clergymen and Ministers of all denominations to assure their Lives in this Institution upon more favorable terms than in any other Office.

Premiums may be paid annually, half-yearly, quarterly or monthly as desired.

Thirty days' grace are allowed for the payment of annual, half-yearly and quarterly premiums, and fifteen days for monthly premiums. The validity of the Policy will, in every case, be maintained by payment of the Premiums within the stipulated period, notwithstanding the death of the Assured may have occurred before such premiums shall have been received.

No extra rate is charged for sea-passages, and on arrival in Europe a reduction is made in the premium without the assured being required to pass any Medical examination.

Policies effected by parties on their own lives, and assigned as a bona fide security to others, will not be rendered void in the event of death by suicide, duelling, or the proof of death.

The Medical Officer, Dr. Harris, sees applicants for Assurance at his residence, Pantheon Road, Egmole, from 11 to 12 A. M., on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

BILLIARD TABLES.

C. LAZARUS & Co., as Manufacturers, would invite particular attention to their large stock of full-sized Billiard Tables. One of the chief desiderata in a Billiard Table is to secure such an arrangement as will admit of a Ball being struck so as to attain the highest speed without its jumping. This, it need scarcely be said, depends entirely upon the arrangement of the cushions. C. L. & Co., in mentioning this fact, would state that the subject has largely occupied their attention, and after repeated experiments and close consideration, they have discovered a principle in the manufacture of cushions which answers admirably the end desired. Since the manufacture of their cushions on this new principle, C. L. & Co., have received testimonials from some of the first Clubs in India speaking to the merits of the same. To secure truth with speed, that is to say, the maximum of speed compatible with preventing the Ball jumping, is the object which C. L. & Co., have had in view, and which at length they have successfully attained. At the same time, the cushions, it should be stated, are quite as durable, or even more durable, under the new principle of making up, than under the old.
