THE RAIL-BORNE TRADE OF 1892-93.

The statements appended show full details of the statistics of the rail-borne traffic as recorded during the official year 1892-93. They have been compiled in the office of this department from the quarterly returns received from the Examiner of Guaranteed Railway Accounts, Bombay.

2. Lines open.—A further portion of the line from Guntakal towards Bangalore was opened during the year, as well as a section of the East Coast Railway from Bezvada to the southern bank of the Godavari. These extensions added 119½ miles to the open mileage, bringing the total up to 2,427 miles. In March last, the Kistna bridge near Bezvada connecting the Southern Mahratta Railway and East Coast Railway systems was opened for traffic. The following table shows the mileage of railways open for traffic at the end of the year :—

3. The season.—Soon after the beginning of the year, prospects of the season began to improve; the first districts to benefit being the Central. The south-west monsoon rains were rather late, but during June set in very copiously, and in a very short time relieved distress throughout the Deccan districts and North Nellore. They continued to be copious generally up to September, but thereafter failed to some extent in the Carnatic and Southern districts, whilst following this was an extremely light north-east monsoon in these districts, and in some portion of the Central districts also. This latter failure caused grave anxiety regarding parts of Madura and Tinnevely, where there was extensive loss of crop, but exceptionally heavy rains in many districts during February and March relieved the pressure, and the year closed with generally improved prospects. The prices of food-grains in 1892-93 continued very high until June, and then fell gradually until November, after which they rose again very rapidly in the Southern districts; but towards the end of the year were easier than at its commencement.

4. The Total trade of the Presidency showed a falling off of nearly six per cent. in quantity as compared with that of the previous year, during which there was an enormous development in the imports from other provinces, and an exceptionally brisk internal traffic. The following abstract compares the gross traffic of the year with that of the two years immediately preceding and with the average for five earlier years :—

* Thousands of maunds.

† Lakhs of rupees.

The total volume of the traffic—36,766,288 maunds—though 2,282,497 maunds less than that of the previous year, was still more than 22 per cent. larger than the average carried before the recent bad seasons. The value of the articles carried was, however, 5 per cent. greater than in 1891-92, and one-third more than the average of earlier years. The decrease in the volume of the traffic occurred solely in the internal trade, whilst there was a general increase in the value of the articles carried.

5. The imports into the Presidency increased by more than three per cent. in volume and by about five per cent. in value over the very large imports from other provinces in 1891-92. The increase was contributed chiefly by Bombay and Mysore, there having been a material falling off in the imports from the Nizam's dominions.

The exports from the Presidency to other provinces were nearly 14·5 per cent. greater in volume and about 15·3 per cent. more in value than in the previous year; the bulk of the increase having occurred in exports to Mysore, though those to the Nizam's territories also increased largely, whilst those to Bombay also expanded.

The subjoined table shows the distribution of the imports and exports between the different provinces outside the Madras Presidency :—

The import trade from Mysore resumed its pre-eminence and that from Bombay formed a larger proportion of the total than in 1891-92. The relative importance of the export trade to different provinces was not much altered.

6. The local trade decreased by 11·7 per cent. in volume, whilst the value of the articles carried increased by 3·3 per cent., there having been a material decrease in the grain traffic, and the amount of railway materials carried, as well as a very large one in stone and lime, which was not compensated for by a general increase in the amount of other articles carried.

7. The next table shows the distribution of the traffic as between the sea-port towns and the rest of the Presidency, and the fluctuations there in during the last three years :—

Notwithstanding a considerable increase in the amount of the articles sent inland from the sea-ports, especially to other provinces, the gross trade thereof fell off considerably owing to the much smaller receipts thereat than usual from other parts of the Presidency. The traffic in portions of the Presidency outside the sea-ports also decreased to a great extent from the same cause, and the gross imports of these areas greatly exceeded the exports therefrom, although the imports were smaller than in 1891-92. These changes are no doubt in a great measure due to the unfavorable character of the recent seasons.

8. The imports of the year are shown in detail for the principal articles below in comparison with those of the previous year :—

Again the grain trade contributed more than half the total amount of the imports, but the preponderance of this traffic decrease whilst the relative importance of the imports of coal increased, although not to anything like the extent that it did in 1891-92 over 1890-91. There was also a very large import of railway material against only a small quantity imported in the previous year, and these increases, together with considerably larger imports under hides and skins, and spices especially, account for the general increase, notwithstanding that the imports of oil-seeds, salt, and other articles in smaller amounts fell off considerably.

9. The imports of grain increased by nearly one per cent. over the very large ones of the preceding year, and were obtained as follows:—

Periods.	Whence obtained.
	Mysore.	Hyderabad.	Bombay.	Other Provinces.
	Mds.	Mds.	Mds.	Mds.
Average for five years ending 1889-90	929,416	246,287	152,925	6,470
From 1890-91	2,416,621	439,966	115,752	320
„ 1891-92	1,840,306	1,281,337	427,754	76,251
„ 1892-93	2,271,299	966,677	386,661	34,619

They amount to 174 per cent. more than the average imports of the five years preceding the recent bad seasons, and accounted for over 50 per cent. of the whole of the imports into the Presidency, against about 43 per cent. in earlier years. The expansion during the year under reference occurred solely in the supplies from Mysore, which were nearly as large as those of 1890-91, for the imports from the Nizam's territory fell off by nearly one-third and those from Bombay considerably. About two-fifths of the grain consisted of ragi, sent chiefly from Mysore to Madras town, the Chingleput and North Arcot, the Salem, Coimbatore and Malabar and the Madura and Tinnevely blocks; and about one-third was cholam and cumbu, nearly three-fourths of which came from Bombay and Hyderabad, and the rest from Mysore, nearly half of it going to the Salem, Coimbatore and Malabar block, and the bulk of the remainder to the Deccan districts.

10. The coal traffic, which is the next item in importance, formed over 14 per cent. of the whole traffic, exhibiting an increase of 8 per cent. over the large traffic of the previous year. Practically the whole of the imports came from the Nizam's territory and about 94 per cent. was received in the Kistna district and 64,500 maunds against 195,270 maunds in 1891-92 were imported into the Deccan districts.

11. In the traffic in oil-seeds, which is that next in importance to the two items above noted, there was a falling off of about 12.5 per cent. from the large traffic of 1891-92, but the imports were still 26 per cent. larger than those of 1890-91. The imports of gingelly-seed were nearly as large as in the previous year; but as regards importance of supplies, Mysore and Hyderabad changed places. Mysore also increased its exports of mustard-seed, ground-nuts, and castor-seed, whilst as regards the last-mentioned seed, the supplies from Hyderabad decreased by one-third. The imports of unspecified oil-seeds also decreased largely. Under provisions there was a very large increase in the imports of dried fruits and nuts from Mysore, and some general falling off under "others"; though the total imports increased slightly. The decrease under sugar occurred in the case of raw sugar sent from Mysore, and that in raw cotton in the receipts from the Bombay Presidency. The decreased imports of dyes and tans occurred under the sub-head "others" and pertained chiefly to receipts from the Nizam's Dominions. About 10,000 maunds more of betel-nuts were imported during the year than in 1891-92, when the imports exceeded the average of the three previous years by about 60 per cent. The last increase pertained chiefly to supplies from Mysore. In addition there was a very large importation of chillies chiefly from Bombay, and these two items account mostly for the larger imports of spices.

13. The imports of hides and skins increased by nearly 18 per cent.; chiefly under dressed hides received from the Central Provinces; dressed skins received from Bombay and the Punjab and North-Western Provinces; and raw skins received from Bombay and Mysore. Most of the imported hides and skins came to Madras or the neighbouring districts of Chingleput and North Arcot, though some also went to Salem.

A large portion of the increased imports of cotton goods consisted of European twist and yarn sent from Bombay into the Deccan districts, which districts also resumed their usual imports of European piece-goods from the same source, whilst Madras doubled its imports of the latter from Bombay and also received an increased quantity of Indian piece-goods from the same sources. Mysore also sent in much more of the latter goods chiefly to Madras. The Deccan districts imported as much as 13,600 maunds of kerosine oil from Bombay during the year against 5,700 maunds in 1891-92, and some of this oil was even sent all the way to Madras. Under metals the increase consisted chiefly of iron received from Bombay into Kistna and Madras.

The imports of salt, from Bombay into the Deccan districts, were less by nearly 12,000 maunds than in 1891-92, but were still greater than in 1890-91.

The very large imports of Railway plant consisted chiefly of materials for construction brought into the Kistna from Bombay, though some also were received in the Deccan districts from these sources.

14. The exports of the principal articles are shown in the next table compared with the amounts exported in the previous year:—

Cotton, raw	42,487	45,649	+ 3,162	+ 7.44

The expansion of the coal traffic was even larger than that commented on last year. In the year under notice this traffic accounted for 29 per cent. of the total exports, and the increase under this head accounted for nearly the whole of the gross increase in the exports which took place. Nearly the whole of these exports were sent from Madras to Mysore; this traffic having amounted to over a million and-a-half maunds during the year, representing an increase of over 70 per cent. on the traffic of 1891-92. About 24,000 maunds were also sent from Kistna into the Bombay Presidency.

15. The exports of grain fell off by 12 per cent. but were still large; those to Mysore, chiefly consisting of rice, having been about double the average of the years preceding 1891-92. The exports to Bombay were, however, most exceptionally small. Mysore also took about 50 per cent. more ghee from the Salem, Coimbatore and Malabar block than in 1891-92, whilst there was a general increase in the exports of provisions classed as "others," a large proportion of which was drawn from the South Arcot, Tanjore and Trichinopoly block, but against this must be set a falling off in the exports of dried fruits and nuts to very nearly a similar amount, the falling off being shown chiefly against the block last mentioned and the Deccan districts. The exports of refined sugar, which take place generally from the Deccan districts and Chingleput and North Arcot, were rather smaller than they have been for several years, but those of unrefined sugar decreased greatly as compared with those of the two preceding years, though, notwithstanding the recent bad seasons, they were nearly double the exports of 1889-90. As regards both descriptions of sugar the decrease was tolerably divided between Bombay, Mysore and Hyderabad in proportion to the amounts sent to those provinces in 1891-92.

The exports of raw cotton increased very slightly, and less than 2,000 maunds, more than in 1891-92 were sent to Bombay from the Deccan districts, whilst Kistna only sent 9 against over 6,000 maunds in 1891-92 to that province. The total amount sent to Bombay during the year was exceeded both in 1888-89 and 1890-91, and only amounted to 33,706 maunds.

The exports of linseed from the Deccan districts to Bombay were nearly as large as they have ever been in the last six years, and the reappearance of this export more than accounts for the small gross increase under oil-seeds, for the exports of gingelly, poppy-seed, and ground-nuts were only half those of 1891-92, and an increased export of castors from the Deccan districts to Bombay did not equal the decrease under the three classes first named; whilst there was also a large decrease in the amount of "other" oil-seeds sent to Mysore. In their increased exports of indigo to Bombay up to the highest figure (6,584 maunds) for the last six years, the Deccan districts again show their returning prosperity; whilst the same districts and Kistna were able to export a large amount of turmeric to Bombay.

16. Mysore took 394 maunds of aniline dyes from Madras against 102 in 1891-92 and 40 in each of the two years before that. The exports of kerosine-oil from Madras to Mysore increased by about one-fourth, and the new traffic in this article from Kistna to Hyderabad commented on last year was fully maintained. The exports of Indian piece-goods increased by 10,000 maunds, chiefly from the Deccan districts to Bombay and Mysore. The exports of iron, chiefly from Madras to Mysore, increased again largely.

The gross exports of salt were almost the same as in the previous year, but those from Madras, chiefly to Mysore, increased from 88,928 to 122,162 maunds whilst those from Calicut to Mysore, consisting of Bombay salt, decreased from 99,846 to 48,194 maunds. Besides this, the gross exports to the Nizam's Dominions, chiefly from Kistna, increased by over 20,000 maunds on the large trade of 1891-92.

Nearly half the exports of liquor consisted of spirits sent to Mysore, chiefly from South Arcot and Madras, and more than one-third of beer sent from Madras to Mysore and Hyderabad. The increase occurs under the former heading.

Mysore took nearly all the railway materials exported and also the increased exports of stone and lime, the latter being drawn chiefly from Salem.

17. The internal trade or the traffic between different parts of the Presidency is summarised below in comparison with that of 1891-92:—

Nearly 80 per cent. of the net decrease appears under the head "Stone and lime," and, if to this be added the decrease under Railway materials, the whole of the net decrease is more than accounted for, leaving the general trade showing a small increase. Under Stone and lime the imports into Madras were barely one-fourth those of 1891-92. Under Railway materials, the decrease amounted to 71.5 per cent. on the amount carried in the previous year and occurred chiefly under materials for construction sent from the Coast to Chingleput and North Arcot and the Deccan districts, and may be put down to the completion of the Villupuram-Guntakal line. In addition to the above, the traffic in grains, cotton and oil-seeds showed a large shrinkage—in the first case doubtless owing to the partial improvement of the season and in the other cases owing to the unfavorable character of recent years. These articles together showed a decrease of nearly 900,000 maunds, but against this must be set large increases under Dyes and tans, Salt, Provisions, Metals, and Coal and coke.

18. Notwithstanding the decrease above noted, the grain trade continued to be larger than in any of the preceding five years, excepting 1891-92. In this traffic there was an increase of nearly 24 per cent. on the amount sent inland from the seaports, the increase being specially notable in the case of Negapatam and Tuticorin. Pondicherry and Negapatam also received less from the interior than in the previous year, but the remaining ports more. The imports into the Madura-Tinnevely block increased very largely, but those into the blocks which had previously been importing heavily decreased. On the other hand the exports from the Deccan districts and from the South Arcot, Tanjore and Trichinopoly block decreased greatly, whilst those from the Chingleput and North Arcot and the Salem, Coimbatore and Malabar blocks increased to a considerable extent. Including also the receipts from, and quantities sent to, other provinces, the net results of the grain trade of the year are shown in the following table as compared with the traffic of preceding years:—

19. Under Oil-seeds, there was a very material increase in the traffic in gingelly seed partly owing to continued large exports from the seaports, but chiefly owing to the very large exports from the Chingleput and North Arcot and the Salem, Coimbatore and Malabar blocks, mostly to the more southerly districts, for the receipts at the seaports were small. On the other hand, the traffic in ground-nuts was the smallest ever recorded and more than 40 per cent. below the average of the three years ending 1890-91. In this article, the Chingleput and North Arcot block showed no material falling off, though it sent the bulk of the produce to Pondicherry instead of to Madras as in previous years; but the exports from the South Arcot, Tanjore and Trichinopoly block which usually go chiefly to Pondicherry decreased by nearly 27 per cent. on those of 1891-92 and were not half the average of the three years preceding. The traffic in castor-seed increased largely, especially from the Deccan districts; that in unspecified oil-seeds was small.

The falling off in the cotton trade occurred almost entirely against the Deccan districts, which exported barely half the amount they did in 1891-92 and about one-third the amount of the two previous years. Tuticorin received about its usual quantity, but Madras only about two-thirds of the usual amount. The indigo traffic was the largest for the last six years, the Deccan districts having nearly doubled their usual exports and Kistna having sent away 6,375 maunds during the year against 1,796 maunds in 1891-92, whilst the exports from Nellore also increased largely. The trade in myrabolams and turmeric was also larger than usual, as also was that in aniline dyes and in unspecified dyes and tans. According to the returns 1,445 maunds of aniline dyes were received at Madras from the Deccan districts, regarding the original source of which there is no information in the record. Madras exported 489 maunds to the districts against 282 maunds in 1891-92 and 192 in 1890-91.

The large increase under Provisions appears under miscellaneous articles and was shared in by all districts, except Chingleput and North Arcot, and to a certain extent also by the seaports; as regards imports, the articles being sent in larger quantities chiefly to Madras, Negapatam, Chingleput and North Arcot, and Kistna. The trade in refined sugar decreased slightly, the falling off affecting chiefly the imports into Chingleput and North Arcot, from South Arcot; on the other hand the traffic in raw sugar was very large, Madras having received nearly 50 per cent., Nellore nearly 100 per cent., and the South Arcot, Tanjore and Trichinopoly block much more than in 1891-92, whilst the exports from the Deccan districts, Chingleput and North Arcot, and Madura and Tinnevely were very large. The marked feature as regards the last-named block is that nearly all the trade in this article has been diverted from Tuticorin to South Arcot; it is also noticeable that the exports from the block were nearly 90,000 maunds less than in either of the two preceding years.

20. The salt trade of the year was the largest recorded since 1887-88. Madras in a great measure resumed its export traffic, whilst that from Tuticorin increased. The exports from Negapatam and Calicut both decreased. The blocks showing the most marked increase in consumption were the Ceded districts and Kurnool, Madura and Tinnevely, and Salem, Coimbatore and Malabar, especially the first and the last, for in Madura and Tinnevely the imports appear only to have risen to the figure at which they stood prior to 1891-92.

Under Metals, the increase took place in the amount of iron carried from the seaports chiefly to Madura and Tinnevely and the Deccan districts. Of coal and coke, the amount carried increased by nearly a third and is especially noticeable in the imports into the Deccan districts and Chingleput and North Arcot; a good deal of the increase came from Kistna and most of the rest from the South Arcot, Tanjore and Trichinopoly block.

21. The next table shows the distribution of the total trade between the different blocks and the fluctuations as affecting each. Most of the latter have been fully explained above.

APPENDIX II.

ROAD TRAFFIC.

In G.O., dated 1st November 1888, No. 754, sanction was granted for the registration of inter-provincial traffic at 7 stations on 7 roads and of local or internal traffic at 103 stations on 54 roads. The inter-provincial traffic on 6 roads has been recorded; and the returns of local traffic registered from 1888-89 to 1891-92 at 83 stations on 40 roads have already been published. During 1892-93 the internal trade on 14 roads was registered at 19 stations and the remaining road was taken up for inter-provincial traffic as shown in the following table:—

Districts.	Description of the road.	Registering stations.
	Inter-provincial.

	(62) Road from Tamracherighat to Calicut.	(1) Malaparamba.
	(63) Road from Palghat to Cochin	(1) Mangalam.
	(64) Chāvakkāt-Chetwai-Trichur canal	(1) Canal entrance opposite to Chetwai bungalow.

2. The statements appended give detailed particulars of the traffic registered, and in the subjoined tables the principal results are abstracted.

3. The group of roads shown in the subjoined table represents roughly those carrying the traffic from part of Tanjore and Trichinopoly northwards into South Arcot and part of Salem. All the roads show a very active trade, especially that passing through Jeyankondasālapuram from Chidambaram towards the Trichinopoly district and that from Atur towards Ariyalūr through Perambalur:—

5. The third table below shows the traffic along the route from Karúr towards Pollachi along the southern border of Coimbatore, as well as that which comes in from the south towards the same place. Except on the road from Udamalpet to Pollachi, where there is a very heavy traffic, none of the routes appears to be very largely used:—

6. Traffic was also registered on the route from Karúr through Kángayam towards Palladam, Coimbatore and Palghat, together with the cross traffic joining the road from Kodumudi at Kángayam, and from Tiruppur at Palladam, as well as the direct traffic from Coimbatore to Pollachi. Particulars of the above traffic are shown in the table given below, from which it appears that but little through traffic towards Palghat goes by this route, although the trade between Kángayam and Karúr is large, and that to and from Tiruppur and Palladam is also considerable:—

7. In Malabar, the traffic with Cochin, both by road from Palghat and by canal from Tirur was registered, and as will be seen below was much larger than that in the opposite direction. The traffic by canal northwards from Calicut along the coast was also registered at two places and was not very large at either. Besides this, the traffic on the two ghats leading down respectively to Calicut and Tellicherry from the Wynaad was recorded. In neither case also was this very large whilst the trade in the opposite direction was barely half that towards the coast.

8. In addition to the traffic already alluded to that on the road between Ongole and the port of Kothapattam was recorded, and is chiefly remarkable for the large amount of grain trade towards Ongole, probably owing to the unfavorable season in North-western Nellore.

9. The only road on which any traffic passing beyond the limits of the Presidency was recorded, was that passing northwards through Gunupur in Vizagapatam towards the Central Provinces. On this road the downward traffic was more than double that passing inland.

STATEMENT showing the changes effected in Railway freights on goods carried by the Southern Mahratta Railway from and to the Madras Presidency during the year 1892-98.

Grain, seeds, country produce.	The rates over the Madras Railway for grain, seeds, country produce and certain other articles, which are carried at the same rates and conditions, vary according to distance they are carried over that line, i.e., the rates are lower for longer distances; and in booking these articles to and from any station on that line where the distance from the junction, Bangalore City or Guntakal as the case may be, is less than that for which the reduced or lower rate is applicable, charges may be collected on the minimum distance at the lower rate provided it is cheaper and the sender agrees to book the consignment at his risk and execute risk note on form B.
Species—Chillies, dry.	The reduced rate of 4.53 pies will also apply to mixed consignments of grain, seeds, country produce, &c., weighing 270 maunds or less, provided it is consigned by one sender to one consignee and the freight for the minimum weight and distance is paid for.
Coal and Coke	In small consignments loaded with other goods to be charged 3rd class. In large consignments occupying a wagon to be charged 3rd class subject to a minimum of 3 annas per wagon per mile. Special rates per maund for coal from Kistna Canal Terminus to the undermentioned stations on the Southern Mahratta Railway.—

NOTE.—All traffic between Bezwada and Cocanada appears twice in this statement, once in columns 2 and 3 and once in column 4; see also the following foot-note:—

- (1) The figures in columns 2 and 3 include all the traffic that passes between Cocanada and Bezwada, as well as that between Cocanada and other places. The figures in column 4 include all the traffic that passes between Cocanada and Bezwada, as well as between Ellore and other places west of the Godavari river. It is impossible to separate the through traffic between Bezwada and Cocanada from the other traffic on the canals dealt with.
- (2) No entries are made in this statement for the Kistna canal from Bezwada to Ellore, as all traffic between Bezwada and Cocanada by that canal necessarily passes over the Godavari canals here given in columns 2, 3 and 4.
- (3) "Up" on the Cocanada, Samalkot and Ellore canals means towards the Godavari river; on the Masulipatam canal towards the Kistna river (Bezwada).
