ADMINISTRATION REPORT OF THE INSPECTOR-GENERAL OF POLICE FOR THE YEAR 1910.

PART I.

THE POLICE FORCE.

Mr. D. W. G. Cowie, I.C.S., held charge of the department throughout the year, except for six weeks from the 4th September, when he was away on privilege leave. I acted for him during the period.

Mr. C. D. J. Carmichael continued to be the Deputy Inspector-General, Northern Range, until the 23rd December 1910, when he proceeded on long leave and was relieved by Mr. N. E. Q. Mainwaring. Three officers held charge of the Central Range, viz., Mr. P. B. Thomas from the beginning of the year to the 4th February, Mr. N. E. Q. Mainwaring from the 5th idem to the 17th April and Mr. B. C. Leggatt for the remainder of the year. I continued to be in charge of the Southern Range, except during the period I acted as Inspector-General, when Mr. F. Armitage acted as Deputy Inspector-General and Mr. F. A. Dene held charge of the Range for a brief interval of four days. Mr. C. G. W. Clogstoun, who has since retired, was in charge of the Criminal Investigation Department and Railways, until the 29th January, when he went on leave, handing over charge of the office to the Inspector-General. Mr. P. B. Thomas took charge on the 13th February.

There were several important territorial changes during the year. The Madura and Tinnevely districts were reconstituted into three districts—Madura, Ramnad and Tinnevely—from the 1st June; the Kadiri taluk was transferred from the Cuddapah to the Anantapur district from the 1st October; and the Trichinopoly district was enlarged by the addition of the Namakkal and Karur taluks from the Salem and Coimbatore districts, respectively, from the 15th November. The enlarged Anantapur and Trichinopoly districts being too extensive to be managed single-handed, proposals for the formation of sub-divisions in them were submitted to Government during the year and have been sanctioned since its close.

With regard to the buildings required at Cocanada for the removal of the Police head-quarters of the Godavari district from Rajahmundry, a suitable site has been selected and plans and estimates are under preparation in the Public Works Department.

Changes among Superintendents were not more numerous than in the preceding year. There was no change in thirteen districts, only one in nine, two in four, and four in one, viz., Cuddapah, but these were unavoidable. There was a further decrease in the number of sub-divisions left without a separate officer in charge, and in only one case was the period so long as 2 months and 16 days, while in the other cases, it was less than one month. The appointment of a Personal Assistant to the Superintendent was made in four more districts, the number of districts on the last day of the year in which Superintendents had the benefit of Personal Assistants, being fourteen.

I regret very much to have to record the deaths of Messrs. F. S. Mullaly and C. L. Bidie during the year, both excellent officers. The former died in Madras when on special duty and the latter in England while on leave.

Five officers retired, three Probationary Assistant Superintendents arrived from England and an Inspector was appointed a Deputy Superintendent of Police.

2. The sanctioned strength of the permanent force on the last day of the year was 32,207, which was 117 more than the number on the corresponding date of the previous year. Most of this increase was sanctioned in connection with the formation of the Ramnad district and for the provision of a 15 per cent. reserve of casualties for the armed reserves in the Tinnevely district.

The "temporary additional forces" shown at the end of the statement comprised the following:—(i) Plague force (1,032), (ii) Punitive force at Nambutalai in the Ramnad district (22), (iii) Temporary private guards (82), and (iv) Government House guard sanctioned in G.O., No. 579, Judicial, dated the 16th April 1910 (4).

The number of men enlisted during the year was 3,942, and on the last day of it, there were still a little over 2,600 vacancies in the ranks. With regard to recruiting the situation did not improve, great difficulty being still experienced in Madras City and a majority of the districts, and this in spite of most strenuous efforts made by officers. Recruiting parties were organized and deputed to visit neighbouring districts and the co-operation of Revenue officials was freely sought for. In the west coast districts alone is recruiting easy, and Malabar continued to supply a large number of recruits for other districts, especially for armed reserves, for which Malayalis have been found most suitable. Nor, I regret to say, has there been any improvement during the current year and, although a number of undersized and overaged men have had to be taken on, vacancies have actually increased and in many districts re-allocation is being indefinitely retarded for want of men. The chief causes which militate against recruitment are undoubtedly the increasing demand for labour and the high prices prevalent and these, I am constrained to remark, have not been adequately met by the more favourable rates of pay introduced on the recommendation of the Police Commission. I am inclined to think that the difficulty in getting recruits is also enhanced by the new system of training them in Central Recruits' Schools, instead of at head-quarters. The discipline and training undergone in these schools is doubtless most salutary, but the men do not like being taken away from their families and native place for so long.

Casualties in the permanent force numbered 2,883 or 806 over the figure for the preceding year. There was an increase under all heads, notably resignations (884, as against 530 in 1909) and discharges (442, as against 190 in 1909). The large number of resignations bears out the remarks made above.

3. The statistics of punishment are given in the margin.

Conduct:

that for absence without leave, the result being a small increase in the percentage of punishments for all offences, which was, however, less than that for 1908.

In regard to punishments for offences other than absence without leave fourteen districts showed an increase which was marked in Madura, Salem, Jeypore and South Canara, and this was undoubtedly due to close supervision and the enforcement of strict discipline. The number of dismissals rose in Gódavari, Salem, South Canara and Madras Railway Police districts on account of a larger number of men judicially punished. There was a large increase under suspensions in Guntúr, Anantapur, Chingleput, Tinnevely and South Malabar. In Anantapur, as pointed out by the District Magistrate, the punishment of suspension for a day was far too freely employed and the Superintendent's attention has been drawn to the matter. In Madura, the high percentage of punishment for offences other than absence without leave, namely, 84.6, was due to a rigorous enforcement of discipline by Mr. Lane. Next to Madura was Tinnevely, where the percentage was 46.4 and I agree with the Superintendent that the conduct of the force in his district was far from satisfactory and that deterrent punishments were imperative to restore a spirit of subordination. In Kurnool a case of dacoity occurred in which the cattle of certain Yerukalas were driven away and it was subsequently discovered that this offence was committed with the connivance of the Police for the purpose of procuring the arrests of the Yerukalas to whom the cattle belonged, and that no notice was taken by the Police of the complaint about these raids. Enquiries have since been made into the misconduct of the Police officers concerned and a full report on the subject submitted to Government. In Anantapur, where there was a marked decrease in the percentage of punishments, the Superintendent reports that there was an improvement in the conduct of his men, but Mr. Cowie, who visited the head-quarters of the district early this year, is not prepared to accept this view. On the contrary, he was inclined to think that the Inspectors were extremely slack in controlling their men. The percentage of punishments for serious offences in Madras City was 38.8, as against 41.2 in the previous year. On the whole, it is disappointing to note that there has not been an appreciable decrease in the number of punishments, though the system of incremental pay for approved service has been in operation for some years.

The slight rise in the proportion of black marks awarded, calls for no special remarks.

Fourth-class Inspector N. Krishnamachari, late Prosecuting Inspector of South Arcot district, who had been under suspension since the end of 1908, pending enquiry into a charge of bribery, was dismissed by Government—vide G.O., No. 871, Judicial, dated the 7th June 1910. Inspector J. H. V. Sitaram Singh of Tinnevely was reduced from third class to fourth class for repeated acts of disobedience of orders and insubordination to the Deputy Superintendent of Police. Sergeant Sims of the Madura reserve was removed from service for tampering with the duty roster and thereby abetting a recruit constable in setting up a false plea of alibi. A Sub-Inspector of Madras City was dismissed for hushing up a case of house-breaking. In Nellore a Sub-Inspector was similarly punished during the year for writing a false diary in a murder case, and another, since the close of the year, for culpable neglect of duty, which entailed a loss of about Rs. 3,000 to Government in connection with the construction of lines under his supervision. The latter was first criminally prosecuted, but was discharged. In South Arcot also a Sub-Inspector was dismissed for highly suspicious conduct and grossly irregular procedure in a certain case and for making false and contradictory statements. A Sub-Inspector and a head constable of Madura district were dismissed for misbehaviour in a sensational case of murder which occurred in 1908, while two Sub-Inspectors and one head constable of the same district were under trial for extortion.

The appellate work of the Deputy Inspectors-General was slightly less than in the previous year, while that of the Inspector-General was somewhat heavier. Beyond a slight increase in the proportion of cases in which the original orders were reversed, the results call for no remarks. There were 32 appeals to Government, in all of which, with one exception, the original orders were confirmed.

The number of judicial punishments was almost the same as in the previous year. Two hundred and nineteen persons belonging to the permanent force and 2 to the temporary force were judicially punished during the year. Of the former, 145 were convicted of offences committed in their official capacity, 55 under the Police Act XXIV of 1859 and 39 under section 223 of the Indian Penal Code for negligently suffering prisoners to escape, while 74 were convicted of offences committed in their private capacity. Convictions for extortion and criminal breach of trust numbered 14 and 7 respectively. Two head constables of the Madras Harbour Police were convicted and sentenced to five years' and three years' rigorous imprisonment respectively, one for committing rape and the other for abetting the offence.

4. His Excellency the Governor, on the occasion of his visit to Bellary in November, was pleased to present the King's Police Medal in person to constable Gooty Bhimayya (not Chinnayya as noted in the Administration Report for 1909) who was one of those on whom the distinction was conferred in 1909. The other recipients of the distinction mentioned in the report for that year have since been similarly honoured this year in February. The title of Rao Sahib was conferred upon Inspectors M.R.Ry. Chintamani Patro of Vizagapatam district and M.R.Ry. S. Bavanandam Pillai Avargal of Madras City for their meritorious services.

Excluding Madras City, the amount of monetary rewards granted during the year was Rs. 16,021, which was Rs. 1,386 less than that in the previous year, but the number of persons rewarded rose from 2,285 in 1909 to 2,680 in 1910. The increase in both the number of recipients and the amount of rewards was appreciable in Jeypore, Guntur, Tinnevely, Coimbatore and South Canara districts, while the reverse was the case in Vizagapatam, Nellore, Anantapur, Chingleput, South Arcot and South Malabar districts. In Tinnevely, where 251 persons received rewards amounting to Rs. 1,911, as against 156 persons who received Rs. 1,286 in the previous year, it is reported that this increase was attended with beneficial results. The decrease in the amount of rewards in some of the districts named, is partly due to the fact that no money rewards were granted to Inspectors and Sub-Inspectors except in rare instances. Whenever possible, officers of these ranks were rewarded by promotion. In Kurnool, the Superintendent states that no reward was given in cases against property, unless a substantial recovery was effected. This must of course work somewhat unfairly, the recovery of property being in many cases a matter of chance, and the Superintendent's attention has been drawn to the matter. It is satisfactory, however, to note that the number of good service entries in this district rose from 19 in 1909 to 51 in 1910. In Anantapur, only 16 men received rewards aggregating to Rs. 60, as against 33 men and Rs. 310-8-0 in the previous year. This certainly goes to strengthen Mr. Cowie's impression, referred to elsewhere in this report, regarding the apathy and slackness of Inspectors in that district.

The number rewarded in Madras City was 103, against 90 in 1909, and the amount paid was Rs. 471, against Rs. 451 in 1909.

In several cases, good work was rewarded by promotion and among these the following deserve special mention :—

Inspector M.R.Ry. K. Chandrasekharam Pantulu Garu of Gódvári was promoted from second to acting first class for good work done in the Police torture cases of Peddapur Division; Inspector M.R.Ry. G. Rajagopala Rao Garu of Kistna from second to sub. pro tem. first class for his services in the Kotappa-konda rioting case; Inspector M.R.Ry. T. V. Srinivasaraghavachari of Chingleput from fourth to third class for meritorious work in the Survey Office defalcation cases of 1909; Inspector M.R.Ry. K. Srinivasa Kini of South Canara from fourth to third class for detecting a life insurance fraud case in 1909; Inspector M.R.Ry. R. Guruvappa Nayudu of the Criminal Investigation Department from fourth to acting third class for good work in the Tenali bomb case and Sub-Inspector Thakur Singh of the same department from third to second grade for good work in the Kotappakonda rioting case. Two head constables of Guntur district were also promoted to the rank of Sub-Inspector for their services in the Tenali bomb and Kotappakonda riot cases, respectively; and a constable of Madura district was made a head constable for pluckily resisting and wounding with a spear five out of seven Kallars who had attacked him while on beat duty. The wounds inflicted facilitated their arrest and identification.

Among the recipients of money rewards, the following deserve to be specially noted :—

Inspector M.R.Ry. S. Ranga Rao Nayudu Garu of Guntur district received a reward of Rs. 100 for good work in the Kotappakonda rioting case.

A reward of Rs. 200 was granted to two constables of Rajahmundry town for arresting one Pedda Govinda Reddi of Bellary district, who was wanted for an offence under section 302 of the Indian Penal Code. A similar amount was given to three head constables and seven constables of Madura district and two head constables and four constables of Tinnevely district, for good work in a dacoity case.

A reward of Rs. 75 was granted to Inspector M.R.Ry. Jacob Nargunam for excellent work in breaking up several gangs of notorious dacoits in Madura district in 1908.

Rewards of Rs. 50 were given to each of the following officers :—

(1) Inspector Abdul Aziz Sahib of Jeypore district for good work in two dacoity cases;

(2) Inspector M.R.Ry. V. R. Venkatarama Aiyar of Cuddapah district for breaking up a gang of dacoits;

(3) Inspector M.R.Ry. K. V. Krishna Variyar of South Malabar district for detecting a case of house-breaking;

(4) Sub-Inspector M.R.Ry. Parthasarathi Aiyangar of Madras City for prompt action in a case of theft of examination papers; and

(5) Constable Govinda Nair of the Calicut reserve for plucky arrest of two burglars, while on sentry duty at the Cordite Factory, the Nilgiris.

The Board of Revenue, Madras, offered a reward of Rs. 75 to Sub-Inspector Lutf-i-Ali of Madras City for good work in connection with certain excise cases, and the Salt Department granted rewards, aggregating to Rs. 130, to certain Sub-Inspectors and men of the Salem district. Three men of the same district also received a reward of Rs. 5 each from the Military Department for apprehending deserters.

A Sub-Inspector of the Criminal Investigation Department, Madras, was granted a reward of Rs. 50 by the Criminal Investigation Department, United Provinces, for eminent service in enquiring into a case of cheating. The Travancore Government granted Rs. 50 to three Police officers of Tinnevely district for the arrest of a person wanted by them, while a Sub-Inspector of Guntur district and his men were granted a reward of Rs. 43 by His Highness the Nizam's Government for arresting a notorious K.D.

Among the rewards accepted from private individuals, the following may be mentioned :—

(i) A sum of Rs. 300 accepted from Raja Rajagopal, grandson of Raja Subbayamma of Pittapur, for the recovery of almost the entire property worth about two lakhs of rupees stolen from his house in Royapettah, Madras City. The Raja offered a reward of Rs. 1,000, but Government considered it sufficient to accept Rs. 300. Of this sum Rs. 100 was paid to a dhoby woman who gave the clue to the Police and the remainder was distributed among Police officers;

(ii) a reward of Rs. 250 paid by the Sun and Manchester Insurance Company to 53 members of the Additional Police, Tuticorin, for prompt assistance in putting out a fire, which broke out in some godowns near the Port and Customs offices. Inspector Mr. N. G. Staples got Rs. 50 and two Sergeants Rs. 20 each;

(iii) a reward of Rs. 200 offered by M.R.Ry. Krishnamacharlu, Public Prosecutor of Hyderabad, for recovery of property worth about a lakh of rupees lost, while he was travelling on the north-west line of the Madras Railway in 1908. Of this sum Rs. 100 was equally distributed between two Inspectors—M.R.Ry. V. Ramamurti Aiyar and M.R.Ry. V. R. Venkatarama Aiyar—and two head constables received Rs. 25 each;

(iv) a sum of Rs. 200 offered by Her Highness the Maharani of Vizianagram to the Police for promptly recovering currency notes of the value of Rs. 1,000 lost from the palace, before the loss was even known to the owners. Inspector Mr. H. Reynolds got Rs. 100, two Sub-Inspectors Rs. 25 each and a constable Rs. 50;

(v) Rs. 50 received by Inspector Mr. N. L. Mitchell, Ootacamund, from Messrs. Oakes & Co., for good work in detecting a case of theft; and

(vi) Rs. 50 paid to Sub-Inspector M.R.Ry. Karunakaran of South Malabar district by Messrs. Peirce Leslie & Co., for good work in a case under section 407 of the Indian Penal Code.

A constable of the Ceylon Police was also granted a reward of Rs. 20 for furnishing information which led to the arrest of an absconding murderer.

The number of good conduct stripes earned during the year was 3,151, against 3,820 in 1909. The system of recognizing good conduct by award of stripes has been abolished, under the orders of Government, with effect from the beginning of the current year, the new incremental pay system for approved service having replaced it.

In several districts, the work of village officers and private individuals for rendering help to the police was recognized in a fitting manner, especially in South Canara, Guntur, Coimbatore, North Arcot and Tanjore. In the first named district, the Superintendent recommended a large number of private individuals for rewards, which were freely sanctioned by the District Magistrate. The rewards in most cases took the shape of bangles or medals, the recipients preferring such mementos to money rewards.

The following are some of the other instances in which similar rewards to Village Magistrates and private individuals have been granted by District Magistrates:—

(1) A gold bangle awarded to the Village Magistrate of Avalnayudukuppam in North Arcot district for rendering assistance in arresting a robber;

(2) A gold medal to Muttuswami Aiyar, Parcel Clerk, South Indian Railway, Erode, for giving prompt information which led to the recovery of stolen property in a heavy burglary of Trichinopoly town;

(3) A gold medal to Natesam Servai in Trichinopoly district for help in the arrest of a notorious thief;

(4) A gold bracelet to the Village Magistrate of Chembilode, North Malabar district, for giving information which led to the arrest of an absconding murderer;

(5) Four silver medals to two ryots and two Village Magistrates in South Arcot district for help in arresting persons;

(6) Silver medals given to two Village Magistrates in Tanjore district for co-operation with the Police in the arrest of five Koravars;

(7) Silver bangles presented to five Village Magistrates and a Karnam in Bellary district for valuable help in a murder and a house-breaking and theft case;

(8) Rs. 100 granted to three private individuals of Udamalpet, Coimbatore district, for effecting the arrest of a desperate dacoit, Palani Valayan, who had escaped from the Central Jail, Coimbatore, and was also wanted for another offence;

(9) A reward of Rs. 40 given to Rangaswami Gaundan, Duftarband of the Sub-Magistrate's office, Coimbatore, and Srinivasa Aiyangar, a waterman, for pluckily arresting one Perumal Muppan who attempted to murder the Stationary Sub-Magistrate of Coimbatore with a bill-hook in the Court compound;

(10) A reward of Rs. 25 to Maya Tevan of Madura district, for plucky arrest of a murderer who was armed with a knife; and

(11) A reward of Rs. 2 paid to each of the thirty Mappillas of Kongad in South Malabar district and a gold bangle presented to their leader, for ready assistance in dispersing a band of rioters.

5. The percentage of illiterate constables was 11.7, which was nearly the same as in the previous year, viz., 11.2. In the Ceded districts, owing to the difficulty in obtaining literate men, a number of illiterate men had to be recruited, as also for the Agency tracts and the armed reserves in a few districts. In North Malabar, there was not a single illiterate man in the force at the end of the year.

The Provincial Training School, Vellore, under the very efficient management of Mr. G. H. Bernays, continued to do good work. It was inspected on three occasions by the Inspector-General during the year.

At the beginning of the year there were under training 8 probationary Assistant Superintendents, 5 probationary Inspectors and 243 probationary Sub-Inspectors including 2 Sub-Inspectors of Madras City, besides one Sub-Inspector of Pudukkottai State and 2 Sergeants.

Of the eight probationary Assistant Superintendents three belonged to the batch of 1908, of whom one had already been posted to a district for practical training, but returned to the school temporarily for a month's special study in the vernacular, while the other two remained in the school from the time of their arrival, as they had not completed the Law Test. All the three left the school in January 1910 and joined the districts to which they were posted for practical training. Of the remaining five officers who joined the school at the end of 1909, one passed in Law during the year and the others have since completed the Law Test at the examination held in January 1911. They were posted to different districts for practical training in November. A fresh batch of three probationers arrived from England at the end of the same month and joined the school. During the recess the probationary Assistant Superintendents under training in the school were placed under the charge of selected District Superintendents to push on with their studies.

There was no Deputy Superintendent under training in the school during the year.

Three of the five Inspectors who were under training at the commencement of the year, left the school after their final examination in April and the other two in October 1910. Twelve Inspectors were admitted into it during the year and were under training at the close of it.

Of the 244 Sub-Inspectors on the rolls at the commencement of the year 120 belonged to the senior section and 124 to the junior. In January a Sub-Inspector of the Agency tracts joined the school. Between January and April, three Sub-Inspectors resigned and one died. In April, 115 probationary Sub-Inspectors and one Sub-Inspector of Madras City who had completed their course were posted to districts and left the school. In June a batch of 118 probationary Sub-Inspectors and two Sub-Inspectors of Madras City were admitted, in July another Sub-Inspector joined the school, and in October a second batch consisting of 97 probationary Sub-Inspectors, two Sub-Inspectors of Madras City, two Sub-Inspectors of Coorg and one of Pudukkottai. In the same month, 121 probationary Sub-Inspectors, one Sub-Inspector of Madras City and one Sub-Inspector of Pudukkottai left the school, having completed their course. Between June and December the probation of four Sub-Inspectors was terminated, 14 Sub-Inspectors resigned, of whom five, including one Sub-Inspector of Madras City, were permitted to revert to their permanent appointments in other departments. The strength on the last day of the year was 101 Sub-Inspectors in the junior class and 106 in the senior class or in all 207, which included three Sub-Inspectors of Madras City, one of Pudukkottai and two of Coorg. Unfortunately, the number of suitable Mussalman candidates continues to be small and there has also been a great falling off in higher educational qualifications, as there were only one B.A. and eight F.A.'s in the first batch of admissions during the year and only two F.A.'s in the second. This, however, was largely due to the difficulty experienced in getting more highly educated candidates for the Telugu districts, where most of the vacancies existed.

One of the two Sergeants under training at the beginning of the year left the school in April and the other in October. Two others joined the school in June and were under training at the close of the year.

One hundred and seventeen appeared for the final examination (Sub-Inspectors' Test) in April 1910, 98 passed, 31 of them in the first class, and of the 19 who failed, 18 failed in one subject only. In the examination held in October, out of 125 who appeared, 106 passed with nine in the first class. The others failed in one subject only, with the exception of two who failed in more than one subject. Fifteen Sub-Inspectors appeared for the Criminal Judicial Test, Lower Grade, of whom nine passed, one heading the list of successful candidates. One Sub-Inspector appeared for the Criminal Judicial Test, Higher Grade, and passed it. These results indicate that the improved method of tuition noticed in the previous year's report is working well.

Special lectures on police subjects continued to be delivered and were found useful.

Shorthand Class.—The year started with 50 Sub-Inspectors in the class for English shorthand and closed with 37. Twenty passed the test in the Elementary grade, with 15 in the first class and one Sub-Inspector passed both the Intermediate and the Advanced grades. All the four Sub-Inspectors who remained at the beginning of the year for a special course in English Shorthand returned to their respective districts, after passing the test in the Advanced grade, while three others from districts joined the school in July and were undergoing a similar special course of training in English shorthand at the end of the year.

In G.O., No. 303, Public, dated the 12th April 1910, Government have appreciated the work of the Shorthand Instructor M.R.Ry. M. Srinivasa Rao in connection with his compilation of a "Tamil Shorthand Instructor" by granting him an honorarium of Rs. 500. Agreeably to the same Government order two Sub-Inspectors were deputed to help the Instructor in the compilation of manuals of shorthand in the Telugu and Canarese languages similar to the one he had already brought out in Tamil. The work was started in July and satisfactory progress has been made. The Instructor hopes to bring out the manuals before the end of the current year and then to undertake the compilation of a similar manual in Malayalam.

In G.O., No. 745, Public, dated the 18th August 1910, Government were pleased to sanction a special shorthand allowance of Rs. 5 per mensem to police officers below the rank of Inspector who were qualified to take down speeches in Tamil at 80 words a minute, as an incentive to maintain proficiency in the subject. The allowance was accordingly paid to five Sub-Inspectors who were so qualified, from the date of the Government order. In November, two other Sub-Inspectors were directed to join the school for learning Tamil shorthand. All these seven Sub-Inspectors were examined in the first week of April 1911 with a view to test their efficiency and they passed. It is satisfactory to observe that five of these were also successful in passing another examination in the same language at 100 words a minute held shortly after at Vellore.

Riding class.—The instruction in the riding classes was satisfactory, the prize instituted by Mr. P. S. P. Rice, I.C.S., in 1907 and since continued by Mr. Cowie, having aroused keen competition among the Sub-Inspectors. Nearly all the Sub-Inspectors were capable of saddling and bridling a horse and riding it with security and ease.

First aid to the injured.—The importance of instructing Sub-Inspectors and recruit constables under training in "First aid to the injured," lectures on which had previously been given voluntarily by the District Medical and Sanitary Officer, Vellore, was recognized by Government, who directed in G.O., No. 1355, Judicial, dated the 7th September 1910, that a course of instruction in this subject should be instituted in all the Police training schools. Lectures at the rate of two a week are accordingly being delivered in the Provincial Training School by the Sub-Assistant Surgeon in charge of the Police Hospital, Vellore.

Library, Reading room and Museum.—The library and reading room continued to be a valuable adjunct to the school. A separate building for the museum was nearing completion and the work of collecting exhibits was in progress.

Band.—The school band continued to be in a satisfactory and efficient state throughout the year and the help received from Government, together with contributions from private sources sufficed to cover the cost of its upkeep.

Discipline.—Discipline was on the whole most satisfactory and only one Sub-Inspector was punished for wilful neglect of duty by termination of his probation.

Staff.—Fourth class Inspector Muhammad Abdul Ghanni Sahib, one of the lecturers, published a useful book containing notes on Medical Jurisprudence specially adapted for the use of Sub-Inspectors.

All the members of the staff worked cheerfully and well. The following deserve special mention:—Mr. R. Jennings who efficiently supervised drill and discipline; M.R.Ry. A. Jagannatham Pillai Avargal, the senior lecturer, who went on long leave towards the close of the year; M.R.Ry. C. S. Duraiswami Aiyar Avargal and M.R. Ry. K. Gopalaswami Aiyangar. The last two had charge of the Gazetted officers' classes, the museum and the library.

Reduction of the School staff.—As the complement of Sub-Inspectors sanctioned in the re-organization scheme had been enlisted and as the number to be trained hereafter to replace casualties will be much smaller than at present, a reduction in the staff of the school was proposed, which has since received the approval of Government.

There were only two Central Recruits' Schools working during the year. The one at Vellore continued to do good work, under the management of Mr. O. E. Windle, the number of recruits who passed out of it during the year being 545. For want of accommodation recruits from Madura, Ramnad and Tinnevely districts could not be admitted into the school. Lectures on "First aid to the injured" were delivered by the Sub-Assistant Surgeon of the Police Hospital twice a week. Special attention was also given to the gymnasium and there was a marked improvement in the physique of the men when they left the school.

Recruits of the Northern Range were trained at the Central Recruits' School, Vizianagram, which was opened in May 1909 and was well managed by M.R.Ry. M. M. Subbayya Avargal, Deputy Superintendent of Police. The school was frequently inspected by the Superintendent of Police, Vizagapatam. The number trained in 1910 was 663, which included Telugu recruits sent from the Railway Police districts. The training of all Uriya recruits has been attended to in this school since the abolition of the Uriya Station-house Officers' School at Párvatipuram—vide G.O., No. 1500, Judicial, dated the 6th October 1910. M.R.Ry. G. Panduranga Rao Avargal, the chief Law Instructor of the Central Recruits' School, Vellore, and Mr. A. W. J. Payne, the Drill Instructor of the Central Recruits' School, Vizianagram, discharged their duties most efficiently.

As regards the Recruits' school for the Ceded districts it has been finally decided that it should be located at Anantapur, where a site with a good water-supply is available and has recently been approved of by a Committee. Preliminary plans and estimates are under preparation in the Public Works Department. The buildings required for the Coimbatore School are in progress, but they are not expected to be ready until the beginning of next year. The slow progress of the work is ascribed to plague scare in the town.

The District Head-Quarters Schools which were established for training recruits who could not be sent to the Central Recruits' Schools were in existence in sixteen districts. A school was opened during the year at Ootacamund.

6. The work of this new class of officer may, I think, on the whole be described as fairly satisfactory and in some districts, such as Malabar and South Canara, there are men of a good stamp. From some districts the reports are less encouraging and there is a general complaint of their inexperience and lack of detective ability. Inexperience in handling and preventing crime is, of course, a shortcoming which time alone can remedy, but grit, initiative power and the courage to accept responsibility are attributes which are also frequently found wanting and are difficult to instil. Much, however, depends on the personal interest taken in the training of these young men by district officers and where this has been evinced good results have usually followed.

7. The quinquennial statement showing the religion or caste of officers and men employed in the Police force on the 31st December 1910 is appended to this report. In this statement "head constables" are included under "men" and not under "officers" as in the statement for 1905, and therefore the two statements do not admit of a correct comparison.

8. The cost of the department in 1910 was Rs. 80,08,771, as against Rupees 74,10,371 in 1909, (i.e.), an increase of Rs. 5,98,400. The increase occurred mainly under the following heads for the reasons mentioned against each:—

	LAKHS.
Pay and allowances of executive force (Revised scale of pay granted to Inspectors and head constables and the enlistment of additional Sub-Inspectors and constables)	4.37
Travelling allowance (Increase in the strength of the force, raising of fares over the Madras and Southern Mahratta railway, grant of Travelling allowance to Inspectors on tour, Bastar riots, etc.)	84
Office establishment (Re-organization of District Police offices sanctioned in G.O., No. 1102, Judicial, dated the 21st July 1910)	18
Petty works of construction and repairs (Increase in the strength of the force)	17
Total	5.56

9. Owing to the larger areas attached to police stations under the re-allocation scheme and the abolition of the old village beat system, we have to depend more than ever on the Village Police for reporting and preventing crime and watching criminals. It is satisfactory, therefore, to note that the reports received from districts generally point to better work on their part. Still any real improvement in the efficiency of the Village Police must necessarily be a plant of slow growth and the reports from some districts, viz., Kistna, Nellore, South Arcot, Salem, Tanjore and Trichinopoly, are not encouraging. Fortunately, we have now the hearty co-operation of District Magistrates, but, as one Superintendent rightly observes, Tahsildars could do far more than at present, while on tour, to instruct Village Magistrates in their police duties. However, it mainly lies with the District Police themselves to secure the confidence and good will of the Village Police and this is now realised and acted upon by most Superintendents. In Bellary and Madura, it is satisfactory to note that there were fewer complaints against Village Magistrates for delay in reporting crime. In South Canara, on the other hand, many were handed up for similar neglect of duty, but this was due to the personal attention paid to the matter by the Superintendent, Mr. E. B. Loveluck, who at the same time did not fail to recognize good work on their part. Guntur, Bellary, Kurnool and Coimbatore furnished several instances in which Village Officers were rewarded. In Kistna, through the efforts of a Village Magistrate, a press and dies for making false rupees were discovered in the houses of two persons, who were since convicted and sentenced each to five years' rigorous imprisonment. In Bellary district, a Village Magistrate with the aid of the villagers, succeeded in arresting 23 out of 30 dacoits assembled in adjoining hills. On the other hand in some districts (Nellore, Kistna and Cuddapah) some Village Magistrates were suspected of harbouring criminals and they are being closely watched.

It is to be regretted that the revised Village Officers' Manual has not yet been issued.

The Police talaiyaris generally continued to perform useful work, but their present pay is really too low to attract the stamp of men required. The attempt to procure for them the grant of cultivable lands was proceeded with in a few districts. In Bellary, considerable progress is reported to have been made in this direction, but in Cuddapah the system did not meet with much success, either because no cultivable land was available near the tanah, or because the yield from the land was too small to compensate labour.

10. The armed reserves at district head-quarters, which exist in all but Ramnad, North Malabar and the Nilgiri districts, were generally kept up to strength and maintained in a thoroughly efficient state. The prescribed annual mobilization was properly and satisfactorily carried out in all districts. In seven districts, the reserve was mobilized more than once. In Ganjam, Jeypore, Gódvári and Kistna this was in connection with the Bastar rebellion. The excellent marching performed and the efficiency displayed by the men belonging to the reserves in Jeypore and Vizagapatam districts on this occasion have earned the approval of Government as noticed in the Government order on the last report.

The Sivakasi Special Force, which is now attached to the Ramnad district under the direct supervision of the Assistant Superintendent of Police, Sivakasi, consists chiefly of Malayalis and the discipline is excellent.

In Tinnevely, the chief want is the need for accommodation for the whole force at one place and steps are being taken towards its provision.

Proposals for the formation of two new armed reserves, one to be stationed at Tellicherry, North Malabar district, and another at Vellore in the new North Arcot district were submitted to Government, and the latter has been sanctioned and formed, since the close of the year.

The Superintendent of Police, Nellore, reports that the order curtailing the pensions of ex-sepoys re-employed in Government service has caused discontent among the Military pensioners in his district reserve.

Proposals have been submitted to Government for maintaining all the armed reserves at a sufficient strength to admit of an emergency force of a prescribed strength being always held in readiness.

11. The re-allocation of the Madras Railway Police district was introduced in the beginning of the year, that of the other district having been given effect to at the end of the previous year. The Railway Police. year under review was generally uneventful. No new line was opened, the total mileage under the jurisdiction of the Superintendents of Madras and Trichinopoly Railway Police districts being 1,839 and 1,972 respectively. The question of redistribution of the jurisdiction of the two Superintendents according to the Railway Administrations, which had been ordered to be deferred, was taken up and proposals have been submitted to Government since the close of the year and sanctioned. Recruiting improved and was generally easy, except in portions of Telugu tracts, and the enlistment of illiterate men was avoided. The conduct of the men also improved, as shown by a decline in punishments in both the districts. An increase under cognizable as well as grave crime was, however, noticed in each of the districts, which is ascribed to improved methods of free registration, (i.e.), registration, as thefts, of cases which were treated formerly as "shortages." Partly on account of this, the figures of detection were poorer than in the previous year. The two appointments of Prosecuting Inspectors sanctioned for the Railway Police districts were kept vacant, as suitable men were not available. I have, however, recently made an appointment this year. The percentage of recovery of property has slightly fallen. As in previous years, a number of thefts from waggons and goods-sheds were committed by railway menials themselves, which rendered both detection and recovery of property difficult. In the Madras Railway Police district, a special police force was posted at Salem station to prevent the occurrence of thefts in first and second class compartments, and this had a salutary effect.

Three gangs of local bad characters who were making depredations on the north-west line of the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway were arrested and the members convicted and sentenced to various terms of imprisonment. One of these was under the leadership of a notorious railway thief and ex-porter by name Mala Munigadu, and another consisted of two underguards and two loco-menials, who had been cleverly extracting, unnoticed, valuable articles from parcels and booked luggages. The third consisted of six members of the Kunjarabats gang moving under surveillance in the Anantapur district. On the north-east line of the same railway one of the underguards who had been systematically extracting valuables from luggage in brakevans was prosecuted and sentenced to four months' rigorous imprisonment.

There was only one case of attempt to derail trains in the Madras Railway Police district, while the number of such cases in the other district was 6, but in none of them was there damage of a serious nature or injury to persons. Most of these were the outcome of mischief or ill-feeling between the Railway menials themselves or between the waymen and the villagers. In the Trichinopoly Railway Police district, eighteen cases of throwing stones at passing trains were reported during the year, but only four boys were convicted. Stone-throwing has, I regret to say, of late been common on the South Indian Railway and is said to be generally committed by shepherd boys grazing cattle near the line. A circular was issued by the District Magistrate, Coimbatore, warning all village officers that they would be held personally responsible and punished for any case of stone-throwing occurring within the limits of their villages. The Superintendent is requesting the District Magistrates of other districts through which the metre gauge railway runs to help him in the same direction.

The driver of a train from Nagore to Tanjore finding that the engine had gone ahead of the water column at Nidamangalam station backed the train after it came to a stop, without warning the passengers, with the result that one passenger who was alighting from the carriage fell down and got his left hand smashed. He luckily escaped death. The driver was prosecuted under section 101 of the Railways Act. As in the past, a large number of persons (184) were run over by trains, most of the cases occurring on the South Indian Railway and the north-east line of the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway. A rather serious accident took place on the 7th January 1910 on the Narala bridge between Waltair and Duvvada, when 13 trespassers were knocked over and killed by a train, while going from one end of the bridge to the other at night. With regard to this bridge arrangements have since been made by the railway authorities to prevent trespass. The introduction of effective measures for preventing such accidents was under the consideration of Government and they have recently issued orders to the effect that the public should be warned against the danger of using the railway line as a foot-path, especially in the case of bridges, also that the subordinate Magistrates should bear in mind that trespassing on a railway is as serious an offence as it is a dangerous practice. In several of the railway accidents in the Madras Railway Police district post-mortem examination was held to clear doubts as to cause of death. This will be carried out as a rule in all such cases.

There were six collisions, three averted collisions and five derailments in the Madras Railway Police district and except in one instance, where two firemen and a brakeman were killed, there was no loss of life. The railway servants responsible for these accidents were either criminally prosecuted and convicted or departmentally dealt with.

The number of cases struck off as false was 39 in the Madras Railway Police district and 23 in the other. In the former district four cases were declared false after trial and in the latter 12. In the first named district prosecution for false complaints was launched in only four cases, one of which ended in conviction, while in the other district none was prosecuted. The main difficulty in the way of these prosecutions is that in most cases the complainants are railway servants and as a criminal prosecution of these officials is not likely to induce a spirit of co-operation between the Police and the Railway Administrations, which is a sine qua non for the efficient working of both, no further action is generally taken beyond bringing their conduct to the notice of the railway authorities. The Police are also to a certain extent handicapped in the working of sections 182 and 211, Indian Penal Code, as complaints in many cases are received through station-masters or other officers of the Company authorized in this behalf. These officers are not public servants and consequently a complaint made to them can be treated neither as information to a public servant within the meaning of section 182 of the Indian Penal Code, nor as a charge or an institution of criminal proceedings under section 211 of the Indian Penal Code. The defect can be remedied only if the Police are authorized to take statements from aggrieved parties subsequently, which should be treated as first information and kept distinct from those recorded under section 162 of the Criminal Procedure Code. A suggestion to this effect has been made in Mr. Cowie's report to Government regarding the amendments to the Criminal Procedure Code.

The relations between the Railway Police and the officers of the Railway continued to be harmonious, except at a few railway stations in the Trichinopoly Railway Police district, where there was slight friction.

In the Madras Railway Police district, seal-checking of waggons by the Railway Police in conjunction with the guard of the train and a station clerk was introduced during the year and is reported to have worked satisfactorily. It tends to localize the scene of thefts and acts as a preventive against the commission of

The Railway and the District Police co-operated with each other. The system of interchanging constables between the Railway Police and the District Police with a view to enable the former to gain a thorough knowledge of the bad characters of the district was carried on and the results are being watched. The Railway Police were also instructed by the Criminal Investigation Department staff with regard to their C.I.D. work.

PART II.

STATISTICS OF CRIME.

12. The season was generally slightly better than that of the previous year and food-grains were somewhat cheaper, but the decrease in the volume of grave crime was very small, as will be seen from the annexed table :—

Year.	Number of Government seers per rupee.			Grave crime (True cases)
	Rice.	Cholam.	Ragi.
1905	10·4	17·4	17·8	29,694
1906	9·0	14·9	14·7	29,493
1907	8·7	14·9	14·6	28,530
1908	7·6	13·0	13·2	30,739
1909	8·1	13·5	13·4	30,861
1910	9·0	14·3	15·0	30,335

13. Owing to the territorial changes mentioned in paragraph 1, the figures relating to 8 districts, viz., Anantapur, Cuddapah, Salem, Trichinopoly, Madura, Ramnad, Tinnevely and Coimbatore cannot correctly be contrasted with those of the previous years and it has therefore not been attempted in respect of these districts. The total number of true cases of cognizable crime under the Indian Penal Code, excluding nuisances, was 48,726, against 50,278 in 1909, or a decrease of 1,552 cases. The decrease was noticeable in Ganjam (— 292), Gódvári (— 286), and Bellary (— 217), while Guntúr (+ 403) and Nellore (+ 216) showed an appreciable increase. There was also a fall in the total number of offences under special and local laws, which was 19,890 against 22,371 in 1909, or a decrease of 2,481 cases, Madras City (— 1,871) contributing chiefly towards it. The number of nuisance cases rose to 118,936 from 116,666, Madras City showing the largest increase.

14. The usual map showing the local distribution of serious offences against person and property during the year is prefixed to this report. It will be seen that Madras City, Kurnool and Cuddapah continued to be the most criminal districts of the Presidency, while Guntúr and Madura ran them close. Ten other districts showed more than the average crime for the whole Presidency.

15. The statistics of grave crime for the last three years are given in the statement appended to this paragraph. Except under house-breaking, which showed an increase of 86 cases, there was a decline under every other head as well as in the total grave crime. Excluding the 8 districts of which the figures cannot be compared, the districts showing an appreciable decrease were Ganjām (— 228), Vizagapatam (— 117), South Malabar (— 113) and the Nilgiris (— 101), while the increase was marked in Guntūr (+ 360), Nellore (+ 233) and Madras City (+ 185). South Arcot showed an increase under each head of grave crime and also stood far ahead of other districts in respect of the total crime. In districts where there was a decrease in crime, it was probably mainly due to cheaper food-grains, but more effective preventive measures doubtless also contributed. In Guntūr and Nellore the increase is ascribed to better registration. In the former district the confidence of the public in the Police, which had been impaired by the Kotappakonda riots, was regained during the year, and in the latter district the successful prosecution of a Sub-Inspector for hushing up a dacoity appears to have had a salutary effect. It must be borne in mind that both these districts are subject to the depredations of criminal gangs and steps have to be taken to reclaim them before any real improvement can be expected. The matter is receiving attention. In Tanjore the increase under house-breaking was considerable (+ 97) and the abolition of the village beat system and the re-allocation of stations with too extensive areas resulted in a loss of control over bad characters.

16. In regard to murder the year under review was nearly as bad as 1909 (the worst year on record), the number being 605, as against 620. Coimbatore again headed the list with 68 cases, notwithstanding its reduced area at the close of the year. Next came Salem (58), Madura (42) and Cuddapah (39). The increase was the highest in Salem (+ 22), in spite of the transfer of the Namakkal taluk. Human life is held very cheap there, but the large number of convictions under sections 324 and 325 of the Indian Penal Code during the year under review may do some good. There was an appreciable decrease in Nellore (- 14) and Bellary (- 10). With the addition of the 8 cases which occurred in Kadiri taluk, the figure for Cuddapah would come to 47, which was 14 less than that of the previous year.

One of the most lamentable cases of the year was the murder on the 7th October 1910 of M.R.Ry. P. Jagga Rao Pantulu, late second-class Inspector of Police, Bezvada, by a gang of dacoits, whom he attempted to arrest. The Inspector while doing office work at the station heard that a gang, which had committed a dacoity in Tiruvur Division limits, was trying to cross the Kistna river to go to Guntur. In his zeal to capture the dacoits he started off at once on his bicycle—unfortunately unarmed—ordering the Sub-Inspector and some constables to follow. Accompanied by the Village Magistrate and some villagers, he overtook the gang and, as the members declined to go with him, an altercation took place. The dacoits had sticks and the Inspector tried to disarm one of them, whereupon the one of the gang struck the Village Magistrate on the arm, while another felled the Inspector to the ground with a blow on the head. He was belaboured with sticks as he lay and succumbed to the injuries received. The death of this Inspector has deprived the department of a most honest, zealous and devoted officer. Three of the members of the gang concerned in this murder were sentenced to transportation for life by the Sessions Judge, Kistna.

A remarkable case of double murder occurred on the Nilgiris in which five Todas, driven to desperation by the wrongs which they and their wives had suffered, killed two Rowthans at Bettumund in Wellington station limits. One of the deceased, Sahib Rowthan, owned a small shop on the Coonoor-Kotagiri road and the other was his cook. Sahib Rowthan, who supplied provisions to the Todas and Badagas of those parts and was an extortionate usurer, managed by these means to get many unfortunate Todas into his clutches. He falsified their accounts, treated them with great cruelty and oppression—frequently with blows and confinement—and seduced their wives and daughters. In fact, as remarked by the Additional Sessions Judge, Coimbatore, his shop was a brothel for Toda wives and a prison for Toda husbands. When a Toda woman became pregnant by him, he bargained for her marriage with some Toda, the purchase price being usually paid in buffaloes at a rate fixed by this ruffian, who then appropriated the whole amount whether paid in cash or kind and informed his victim that it had been credited to his account. The climax was reached when the wife of one of the accused, whom the Rowthan had been keeping, became pregnant and the purushut-pimi ceremony had to be performed. Without this ceremony a pregnant Toda woman cannot be admitted into caste, but Sahib Rowthan heartlessly refused to have the ceremony performed. This sealed his fate and it was shared by the cook, who appears to have been as great a scoundrel as his master. The Todas made a clean breast of the murders and, although three of them were convicted and sentenced to transportation for life, these sentences were commuted by Government to five years' rigorous imprisonment, on the recommendation of the Additional Sessions Judge.

I regret to say that in two murders police constables were concerned. A constable of Mallapalle station in Cuddapah district out of grudge shot his station-house officer dead with a police carbine while on road patrol duty and then shot himself. In the other case in Coimbatore district a band of Muhammadans, including a local police constable, broke into the house of an old Komati woman, murdered her and stole her jewels. The case was pending trial before the sessions.

In South Canara a father murdered his female child soon after birth because it was a monstrosity. He was sentenced to transportation for life, but Government, as an act of clemency, reduced the sentence to rigorous imprisonment for six months.

17. The number of cases of infanticide by mothers which ended in conviction was five. In one case an unmarried Pariah woman being deserted by her paramour murdered her son of 18 months by throwing him into a well and absconded. In the other four cases, the offence was committed by mothers who gave birth to illegitimate children and killed them to destroy evidence of their immorality. All these four were widows with the exception of one who had a husband in Natal. All the five women were originally sentenced to transportation for life by the Sessions Judges who tried them, but Government were pleased to commute the sentence to rigorous imprisonment for seven years in one case, for two years in three cases and for six months in the fifth.

18. There were no riots of a serious nature in the Presidency, but in February 1910 a somewhat serious rebellion broke out in the Bastar State in the Central Provinces, where the people at the instigation of the Raja's uncle rose in large numbers and proceeded to Jagdalpur, the capital of that State, with a view to coerce the Raja and his officials. On receipt of intimation detachments of Police from Vizagapatam and Jeypore armed reserves were promptly sent to Jagdalpur and special police forces were stationed along the border, which successfully checked the extension of the rebellion into this Presidency. The admirable part played by the Madras Police in co-operating with the Central Provinces authorities in quelling the rebellion and the excellent marching and conduct of the forces despatched to Jagdalpur have already been brought to the notice of Government and duly recognised by them. Messrs. C. B. N. Pelly and G. W. Deane, Superintendents of Vizagapatam and Jeypore, respectively, and Messrs. W. Foster, M. E. A. Anderson and W. H. Pitt, Assistant Superintendents of Jeypore, Narasapatam and Bhadrachalam respectively, rendered excellent services, as also Reserve Inspectors Messrs. Fitzpatrick (since deceased), Brown and Preston and Bhadrachalam Inspector, M.R.Ry. Y. Viraswami Nayudu.

At Pentapad in Kistna the Reddis and Kapus were on bad terms at the time of the car festival held there in March and when the Kapus took the car in procession, stones were pelted at them by some Reddis. The station-house officer who was on the spot interfered, but was beaten. The Inspector was sent for, and without properly grasping the situation, hastily ordered the arrest of some of the Reddis. This enraged the mob and they set upon the Police and gave the Inspector and others a severe thrashing. Twenty-two men were prosecuted before the Joint Magistrate, Narsapur, but three of them were discharged and the others acquitted. The Inspector was reprimanded both for his conduct during the riot and neglect of duty in the prosecution of the case.

The members of the gang that murdered Inspector P. Jagga Rao of Bezwada, mentioned in paragraph 16, assaulted a Sub-Inspector and others who tried to arrest them at Ibrahampatam. The Sub-Inspector received serious injuries on the head, but in spite of this managed to arrest one of these desperados. Eight others were subsequently arrested and the whole lot convicted and sentenced to various terms of imprisonment by the Joint Magistrate, Bezwada.

In Virudupatti (Ramnád district), the local Shanars erected a fence round a temple in spite of orders prohibiting it. A disturbance between Shanars and anti-Shanars was apprehended, but it was averted by the presence of the district officers on the spot and the prompt removal of the obstruction. The trustees of the temple were charged, but on their tendering an apology to the District Magistrate the case was ordered to be withdrawn.

In Tinnevely district there were two cases of rioting. One occurred at Pottalpur, where the site chosen for a Christian church was the cause of dispute between the Roman Catholic Paravars and Labbais. When the construction of the church began, the latter assaulted the Police force posted to preserve order. The Police had to fire on the mob with buckshot and injured three men. Nine of the 26 Labbais who were prosecuted were finally convicted, each being sentenced to three months' rigorous imprisonment. The other riot took place at Elayarasandal in Sankaranayinarkóvil division, where the Hindu Pallars attacked the Protestant Christian Pallars. About 28 persons were prosecuted, of whom 19 were convicted.

In the same district in 15 cases action had to be taken under sections 144 and 145 of the Criminal Procedure Code, to prevent disturbances, and 79 persons concerned in 9 of them were put up under section 107 of the same Code. Five of the cases were reported to be due to Jesuit interference and no less than 38 persons were charged in cases in which the Jesuits were the real source of trouble. The District Superintendent reports that these Roman Catholic leaders interfere in Police cases, defend the accused persons and are generally a source of danger to the peace of the district. The District Magistrate endorses this remark.

Superstition was responsible for a riot in Kurnool district. The people of a village were enraged against a man who was supposed to have killed his brother by means of witchcraft and a riot ensued in which one person was killed and two others were injured.

19. There was again a fall in the number of dacoities, which numbered 448, against 515 in 1909, the districts which chiefly contributed to this decrease being Kistna (— 20), Salem (— 18), Coimbatore and Cuddapah (each — 16). Also in the three districts of Madura, Rámnád and Tinnevely put together there was an appreciable fall by 41. On the other hand, the largest increase was reported from Nellore (+ 23) and South Arcot (+ 14). These two districts returned also the highest figures for the year. The decrease in the districts named was generally due to closer supervision over gangs and wandering criminals. The improvement noticed in Madura in 1909 was well maintained during the year under review and it is reported that effective patrolling, the action taken against the Kallars under the security sections of the Criminal Procedure Code, and the work done by the Special party appointed for the suppression of cattle-thefts, had an excellent effect in putting down dacoity. In Tinnevely district the situation improved during the year, and this is attributed to the suppression of a dangerous gang, which had committed dacoities in the previous year, also to the fact that several potential dacoits were put up under the security sections. In Jeypore, which showed a satisfactory decrease, the prosecution of three important persons under section 216-A of the Indian Penal Code, though finally unsuccessful, was followed by a cessation of dacoity. The system of frontier patrols organized in Vizagapatam to prevent the raids of criminals from the Kalahandi State is reported to have been successful. The increase in Nellore is ascribed to better registration and also to the depredations of the gangs of Kathiras and Yerukalas. Endeavours are being made to reclaim the Kathiras, but the results so far have been most discouraging. In this district, as the District Magistrate remarks, an unusually large number of persons have been bound over, but the effect on crime is still not visible. The increase in South Arcot may partly be due to more accurate registration, but the District Magistrate attributes it to defective night patrol and inadequate working of the security sections and the question of taking effective measures for the suppression of crime is engaging his attention.

There was also a satisfactory decline in the number of robberies which was 775 against 843 in the previous year. The following districts showed the largest decrease, Coimbatore (— 31), Vizagapatam (— 16) and North Arcot (— 13), while Kurnool (+ 20) and North Malabar (+ 11) returned larger figures than in 1909. Tinnevely reported the largest number of cases (83), followed by Nellore (80) and Guntúr (60). The action taken under the security sections in 1909 is reported to have resulted in the decrease in Vizagapatam. The increase in Kurnool is attributed to better registration, the depredations of gangs and the absence of good Inspectors. This last defect has since been remedied in some measure by a change of Inspectors. No reason is assigned for the fall in Coimbatore and North Arcot, but the Coimbatore Inspectors are, I think, a particularly good lot and the decrease in dacoity, robbery and house-breaking is doubtless largely due to their exertions backed up by the Superintendent. The Superintendent of Police, Tinnevely, states that out of 83 cases of robbery in his district 54 were committed by ear-pulling and remarks that as long as the women of the district wear valuable ear-rings suspended from their ears, a decrease in this form of crime can hardly be expected. He also thinks that gangs of dacoits having been split up, isolated members have now taken to robbery. This seems very probable.

A few noteworthy cases are given below :—

At about 8-30 on the night of the 7th July 1910, the mail bags that were being carried in a cart from Ongole to the railway station were robbed and property worth Rs. 7,780 was lost. Four persons were charged and three of them convicted. Property worth Rs. 1,760 was recovered.

In Tinnevely district a Police informer of the Marava caste, who had been awarded a bangle in recognition of his services, was dacoited in revenge by the headman of the Marukalkurichi Maravars and five others. After the dacoity, the offenders shut themselves up in the headman's house and resisted arrest by the Police, a head constable being stabbed, but not fatally. The dacoits were all captured and convicted, two of them being sentenced to seven years' and the others to five years' rigorous imprisonment each. These convictions are reported to have had an excellent effect in curbing the power of the Maravars and raising the prestige of the Police. The case of assault on the Police was under trial at the close of the year.

On the night of the 13th April 1910, an organized dacoity, accompanied by great violence and the use of firearms, was committed on the road a mile and a half from Mulanur market in Dhárápura taluk, Coimbatore district. The dacoits who numbered about 15 belonged to Tiruchengode, Salem district. They came in two carts, armed with guns, sticks and knives, waylaid villagers returning from the weekly market at nightfall and inflicted severe injuries. The dacoits decamped with their booty as quickly as they came, but were closely pursued and arrested. Nine of them were sentenced to transportation for life.

A daring torchlight dacoity occurred in a village in South Canara district, where a gang of K.Ds. from North Malabar district and the Kasaragod taluk of South Canara district, all Mappillas headed by the notorious Vellain of Malabar, broke into the house of a rich Nambudri Brahman at midnight and ransacked it. Property worth about Rs. 3,500 was stolen. Five persons were sentenced to transportation for seven years each. The leader of the gang was arrested in December in Bangalore.

Resistance to dacoits is so rare that the following instances deserve mention :— A band of 30 or 40 dacoits were driven out of the village of Mincheri in Bellary district, while engaged in breaking into a house, by the plucky action of the villagers headed by their Reddi. The identity of the dacoits not having been established and as no property was lost, the case remained undetected. In another case the dacoits while attacking a house in the village of Allipuram in the same district were dispersed by a patrol constable who fired into their midst. The house owner also followed suit and the dacoits retired. The constable, who was the holder of the King's Police Medal, was promoted.

20. As already observed, house-breaking cases increased, the number being 9,956, as against 9,870 in 1909. The largest number was reported from South Arcot (610), next came North Arcot (597), Guntúr (561) and Tanjore (550). The rise in Guntúr was considerable (+204), the other districts in which there was an appreciable increase being Tanjore (+97), Chingleput (+55) and Nellore (+44), while the decrease in a few districts was also noteworthy, viz., Coimbatore (-141), South Malabar (-64), Cuddapah (-53) and Ganjám (-50). In Guntúr two divisions—Guntúr and Tenali—mainly contributed to the increase. In the former division crime decreased perceptibly after the arrest of a gang of ten persons and another gang has since been caught. In the latter the Police force requires strengthening and the matter is under consideration.

In Nellore town, a series of house-breakings were committed between April and September, due to the activities of two notorious characters who were finally prosecuted and bound over. The bulk of this crime in Nellore district is said to be the work of Kathiras and special efforts are being made to trace their receivers.

As a result of efficient performance of beat duty, it is reported that there was a satisfactory decrease in Madura and Calicut towns. In the latter town a certain gang which had been previously responsible for this form of crime became practically extinct after the arrest of its leader.

In Madras City a burglary occurred in the house of Raja Rajagopal in Peter's Road, Royapettah, in which jewels valued at about two lakhs of rupees were stolen. Owing to prompt action taken by the Police, almost the whole property was recovered the following day. Two persons—a professional house-breaker and the gymnastic instructor of the Mirsapat High School—were charged and convicted. The Raja offered a reward of Rs. 1,000 to the Police, of which the Government permitted the acceptance of only Rs. 300, as already mentioned in paragraph 4.

Towards the close of the year, a burglary was committed in the District Police Office, Anantapur, the cash-chest room was broken into and a sum of Rs. 520 and odd, being the undisbursed pay of the reserve men and recruits, was stolen. No clue was obtained, though suspicion fell on the constables of the guard, four of whom have been charged under section 44 of the Police Act and are now under trial. As Mr. Cowie has remarked, this theft, which was a disgrace to the Police, could not have occurred, had the officers in charge of the reserve been on the alert and done their duty in checking the guards at night. The acting Reserve Inspector and the Sergeant were both punished, the former by reversion to his permanent appointment of Sergeant and the latter by reduction from second to third grade. A head constable was also reduced.

A heavy burglary involving loss of property valued at Rs. 20,800 was committed in the temporary residence of the Zamindar of Sivaganga at Madura. A moiety of the lost property was recovered. Four Kallars were concerned, one of them was convicted and sentenced to two years' rigorous imprisonment, two others were under trial and the fourth was absconding at the close of the year.

21. The number of thefts amounted to 14,893, as against 15,182 in 1909, showing a decrease of 284 cases. South Arcot reported 1,113 cases—the largest number—and Madras City and Gódvári returned 1,008 and 1,000 respectively. The decrease was marked in Ganjám (-161), Coimbatore (-158) and Gódvári (-100), while Madras City showed the largest increase (+155). As already observed, free registration accounted for a larger number of thefts being returned in both the Railway Police districts. In Madras City, a Brahman servant woman stole jewels worth about Rs. 7,350 from her employer and decamped. After considerable trouble her identity was established by Sub-Inspector Parthasarathi Aiyangar of Madras City, and the woman was arrested at Shencottah in the Travancore State and property worth Rs. 6,205 was recovered. The Sub-Inspector has since the close of the year been granted a reward of Rs. 100 and a head constable who assisted him, Rs. 25.

A guard on the South Indian Railway stole from a mail bag two registered letters, one containing halves of ten one-hundred-rupee currency notes and the other containing a cheque for Rs. 500. The whole of the property was recovered and the guard was sentenced to two years' rigorous imprisonment.

22. There was a fall in the total number of cattle-thefts, which amounted to 3,653 against 3,831 in 1909. All the districts showed a decrease, with the exception of eight in only four of which the increase was notable, viz., Nellore (+77), Guntúr (+58), South Arcot (+44) and Chingleput (+41). In the three districts of Madura, Rámnád and Tinnevely put together, there was a decrease of 35 cases.

The cattle-branding system which was introduced in the Agency tracts of Ganjám and in Madura district is reported to be working satisfactorily and may partly account for the decrease in cattle-lifting in those districts. In the latter, it was extended to a few more divisions during the year, the total number of cattle that were branded being 8,200. There have already been instances in which the branded cattle were either avoided by cattle-lifters or were set free soon after they were stolen, which indicates that the system is proving efficacious. Mr. Lane, who has taken much personal interest in this matter, reports that the prejudices of the villagers are being gradually overcome and hopes that with the active co-operation of village officers and an extended trial of the system the number of cattle-thefts will steadily decline. The Special party employed in the same district for the prevention of this crime did most useful work, sparing no pains to locate the active criminals, of whom 103 were bound over under the security sections. Mr. Legh, Acting District Magistrate of Trichinopoly, observes that he noticed as Divisional Magistrate, Karúr, a marked resistance to the old tuppukuli system on the part of the villagers all along the Madura frontier. This is a good sign. Mr. Hamilton in Tinnevely is also working hard to put down this form of blackmail. In Rámnád, endeavours are being made to run in tuppukuli agents, but the main obstacle is lack of co-operation among the people themselves, without which this pernicious system cannot be eradicated. The recent judgment of the Madras High Court to the effect that the simple receipt of tuppukuli by a person, in the absence of proof that he had anything to do with theft or concealment of property, is not an offence or act justifying an order under section 110 of the Criminal Procedure Code, is reported to be a further obstacle in the way.

The decrease in cattle-thefts in Coimbatore, viz., 120, was very marked, even allowing for the fact that the Karúr taluk was taken away from it.

There were only 62 cases of cattle-poisoning against 66 and 86 in 1909 and 1908, respectively, Nellore and Guntúr returning the largest number (10 each) and Anantapur coming next (9).

23. The number of true cases relating to coin was 80, against 113 in 1909, while the percentage of conviction was 56.3, against 46.0 in the previous year. The decline in the number of cases and the increase in the percentage of convictions are satisfactory.

Counterfeiting coin and currency notes.

The following cases are worthy of note:—

Three Muhammadan coiners, traced to be Chapparbands of Bijapur, were spotted in a tope near Sitampeta in Vizagapatam district and complete sets of coining apparatus with moulds for rupees of the years 1906, 1890, 1882 and 1884 were recovered from them. The false rupees found with them were made of base metal, an alloy of tin, zinc and lead, and the milling was defective. The coiners were sentenced to various terms of imprisonment from one year to four years by the Sessions Judge, Vizagapatam, under section 235 of the Indian Penal Code.

In Kistna district, the Village Magistrate of Arugolanu who received a counterfeit rupee in a remittance, made enquiries, searched the houses of two persons whom he suspected and recovered a press and some dies for making false rupees. The coiners were sentenced to five years' rigorous imprisonment each by the Sessions Judge, Kistna, and the good work of the Village Magistrate was brought to the notice of the District Magistrate.

No case of uttering counterfeit currency notes was reported during the year, but in the Nilgiris, a Labbai youth was sentenced to four years' rigorous imprisonment under section 489-D of the Indian Penal Code, for being in possession of materials for counterfeiting five-rupee currency notes.

Swindling cases.

24. The following are some of the most noteworthy cases of the year:—

In pursuance of a conspiracy between one C. J. Spalding, Madras Agent of the Commercial Union Fire Insurance Company, London, and two others named Namazi Abdulla and Abdul Zabbar, a small tannery in Cumbum in Kurnool district belonging to Namazi Abdulla was insured for a lakh of rupees in the said Company and on a false allegation that a fire broke out and property valued Rs. 78,000 was destroyed, the said Spalding held a fictitious enquiry and paid the amount to Namazi Abdulla in so-called settlement of his claim upon the Company. The fraud was detected and Spalding was charged and sentenced to four years' rigorous imprisonment under section 408 of the Indian Penal Code. Namazi Abdulla was also convicted under section 411 of the Indian Penal Code, and sentenced to two years' rigorous imprisonment on the 8th March 1911. His agent Abdul Zabbar who had also a hand in the fraud is still at large. Inspector M.R.Ry. Rao Sahib Bavanandam Pillai Avargal of the City Police, Intelligence Department, displayed great ability in working out this case.

A bogus firm entitled "A. A. Lal Brothers" was opened at Ludhiana by three persons who advertised for agents to sell their goods, demanding a cash security of Rs. 300. Several persons fell into the trap and were cheated of their deposit money. On receipt of a complaint from one of the victims, Inspector M.R.Ry. S. Raghavendra Rao of the Madras Criminal Investigation Department, arrested one of the partners in Ludhiana and he was convicted and sentenced to one year's rigorous imprisonment under section 420 of the Indian Penal Code. The others absconded.

In a similar case, one Sudarsanam Aiyangar calling himself the Proprietor of a bogus firm styled "Rice & Co.," with offices at Calcutta, Bombay, Madras and other places, induced people to deposit with him cash securities for appointments alleged to be in his gift and cheated the public to the extent of Rs. 3,000. The case was successfully worked out by the Trichinopoly Police and the swindler was convicted and sentenced to six months' rigorous imprisonment.

A. Somanna Sastri, clerk of the Arts College, Rajahmundry, was charged with misappropriation of college funds amounting to Rs. 11,000 during the period of 3½ years he had been in office. He was sentenced to three years' rigorous imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 2,000 under section 409 of the Indian Penal Code and to six months' rigorous imprisonment on each of two counts under section 477-A of the Indian Penal Code.

A Stationmaster of Cuddalore New Town railway station on the South Indian Railway who gradually misappropriated Rs. 2,800 out of the collections was at last caught. He was convicted and sentenced to two years' rigorous imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 1,000 or in default to six months' further rigorous imprisonment under section 408 of the Indian Penal Code.

25. A daring case of forgery of Government orders was committed by one Jagannatha Aiyangar of Rajahmundry. The Collector of Godáviri received a demi-official letter purporting to be from the Private Secretary to His Excellency the Viceroy and recommending the grant of certain lands in the district to this Jagannatha Aiyangar, who posed as a famous astrologer. The genuineness of the communication was suspected by the Collector and on making a reference to the Government of India it proved to be a forgery. Subsequently two typed documents purporting to be copies of a Madras Government order sanctioning the grant of about 600 acres of valuable land in the district to the same person were also received by the Collector and these were also found to be forgeries. A search of the astrologer's house followed and resulted in the discovery of a lot of papers proving his guilt. He was arrested, committed to the sessions and convicted on three counts under sections 466 and 109 of the Indian Penal Code and sentenced in all to five years' rigorous imprisonment. The case was very carefully worked up by the Prosecuting Inspector M.R.Ry. K. Chandrasekhar Pantulu Garu.

A very sad case of marooning was reported from Rámésvaram. Eleven persons, natives of Karachi, employed under Railway contractors in Ceylon wanted to go to Rámésvaram where they heard they could get better wages. They got into a boat at Talmannar rowed by three Muhammadans and the next morning were landed in a small uninhabited island about two miles from Danushkodi, being told by the boatmen that they could walk the remaining distance to Rámésvaram. Believing the word of the boatmen they let them go, only to discover to their horror that they were cut off from the mainland on a desolate strip of sand, without food, water or any means of escape. The buildings at Danushkodi could be plainly seen and even people moving about, but they failed to attract their attention. Ten days of utter misery ensued, in the course of which four of the party died of starvation and one was drowned while attempting to swim to the mainland. The other six survivors were finally rescued by a fisherman and his two sons when almost at their last gasp. Two of the boatmen were arrested in Ceylon and tried by the Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Rámnád, who sentenced them to two years' rigorous imprisonment each, under section 304-A of the Indian Penal Code. The Ceylon Police rendered very great help in securing the arrest of the accused.

26. Only one case of justifiable homicide was reported during the year and it was from Tinnevely district. The Village Magistrate of Tentiruperi while returning from Alwartirunagiri on the night of the 16th December 1910, saw a gang of thieves following his bandy and on getting down was surrounded by them. He fired his revolver to scare them off and in doing so hit one of the gang, who died in consequence. The dead body of this man was subsequently found decapitated a furlong off and he was traced to be the brother of a notorious K.D.

A very unfortunate incident occurred at the railway station at Hindupur, which excited much sensation. Private Tubby of the 13th Hussars, proceeding from Secunderabad to Bangalore on leave, alighted at Hindupur on the 5th May 1910 and while staying at the railway-station waiting-room fired some shots and killed two persons who were sleeping in a railway carriage close by and injured another. When brought before the District Magistrate, he pleaded that he had been assaulted during the night by some Muhammadan butchers and, having raised an alarm and invoked assistance in vain, fired a few shots with his revolver to frighten the butchers with this unexpected result. The District Magistrate discharged him on the ground that he fired in self-defence, but the High Court ordered a retrial. He was charged under sections 304 and 304-A of the Indian Penal Code and tried by the High Court. He was however acquitted.

The accident on the Narala bridge on the north-east line of the Madras Railway has already been mentioned in paragraph 11.

In Salem district, a ferry boat licensed to carry only 12 persons, capsized in midstream in the Cauvery with 22 persons, 18 of whom were drowned. The two ferry men who were among those that escaped were convicted and sentenced to six months' rigorous imprisonment under section 304-A of the Indian Penal Code. The ferry contractor was also fined Rs. 50.

In September 1910, there were unprecedented floods in the Hindri, a tributary of the Tungabhadra, which passes through the Kurnool Municipality. A large amount of property was saved and there was no loss of life. Mr. H. R. G. Hasted, Superintendent of Police, was untiring in his efforts to save life and property and indeed ran considerable personal risk in doing so. He was ably assisted by Inspectors Messrs. F. H. Bradbury and J. E. Webb and Sergeant Hollingsworth.

PART III.

DETECTION AND PREVENTION OF CRIME.

27. The annexed statement shows the statistics of detection for the past three years. There has again been a decline in detection under every head of grave crime, as well as under cognizable crime taken as a whole. In no district were the variations very striking, but the poorest results were obtained in Rámnád and Neillore, while in Ganjám, Tanjore, Madras City and Anantapur there was a falling off. Nine districts showed some improvement, especially Coimbatore, Jeypore and Guntúr. The various causes which have contributed to this steady decline in detection have been discussed in previous administration reports and still continue. The great want felt during the year was the shortage of good Inspectors for re-allocated circles and the inexperience of the new Sub-Inspectors. This was inevitable in the present transition stage and will not be remedied for some years to come. But I think that better registration and more care in referring cases as false have also lowered the statistical results. Many of the old class of station-house officer would have nothing to do with a case, which, on the face of it, held out no prospect of detection.

Under this head the proportion of cases detected was only 15.6 per cent., against 19.9 in 1909 and 20.5 in 1908. In Jeypore, Chingleput and South Arcot not a single case was detected and the results in Nellore, Gódvári, Kurnool and Madura were very poor. North Malabar and Madras City, with a small number of cases, did well, and a fair measure of success was obtained in Coimbatore, where, deducting 18 cases in which the murderers committed suicide, 15 out of 63 cases ended in conviction. Three of the outlaws known as the Kúlangán brothers who absconded in 1902 after committing several murders (vide paragraph 12 of the Administration report for that year), were arrested in 1910 in the interior of Mysore by M.R.Ry. C.S. Sundara Mudaliyar Avargal, Inspector of Salem, who has since been promoted to the rank of a Deputy Superintendent of Police. The murderers were sentenced to death by the Sessions Judge and the High Court confirmed the sentence, but the Government commuted it into transportation for life in the case of two of them.

Sixty-three murderers committed suicide, of whom 18 belonged to Coimbatore and 10 to Madura.

There was a further fall in the percentage of detection under dacoity and the results were particularly deplorable in Nellore, where out of 72 true cases not a single one was brought to conviction. The Superintendent attributes the increase in dacoity to the fact that the Kathiras who formerly confined themselves to burglary and theft, have now taken to this form of crime, and remarks that detection is difficult, as they invariably wreak vengeance on any one giving information against them. I hope to visit this district shortly to look into the steps that are being taken to put down dacoity. The results in South Canara, Chingleput and North Malabar were good, while Vizagapatam and Jeypore also did fairly well.

Three notorious dacoits of Salem, who had been absconding since the beginning of 1909, were arrested at Rásipúr at the end of 1910 and were sentenced to various terms of imprisonment. Komiti Domb, a notorious dacoit of Jeypore, was also hunted down and has since been sentenced to death.

28. The following table shows the amount of property lost and recovered during the past three years. The amount lost during the year under report was considerably larger than that in the previous year—the increase being one and a half lakhs of rupees—and the percentage of recovery was also better, viz., 29.1 against 23.5. The loss was heaviest in Madras City, where, as already mentioned in paragraph 20, property worth about 2 lakhs was lost in a single burglary. Almost the whole of this property was recovered, which raised the percentage in Madras City from 35.4 to 83.0. The creditable recovery of property worth Rs. 13,000 out of Rs. 15,000 in a house-breaking case in Kadiri division, by Sub-Inspector M. Subramaniam and of property worth Rs. 10,400 out of Rs. 20,800 stolen from the house of the Zamindar of Sivaganga in Madura may also be mentioned. The low percentage of property recovered in South Malabar was due to registering, under house-breaking, a case brought by the Calicut Branch of the Bank of Madras against certain local merchants in which property worth Rs. 68,000 was concerned. Subsequent investigation has, however, shown that the case was one of cheating. The case was under trial at the close of the year.

29. The annexed table shows the number of cases of grave crime personally investigated by District Officers during 1909 and 1910. There were fewer cases to deal with and a larger proportion were investigated.

NOTE.—The cases investigated by Personal Assistants to Superintendents are included in the work done by Superintendents.

The work of the majority of Superintendents in this respect was satisfactory and Mr. E. B. Loveluck investigated 27 out of 32 cases. Messrs. M. E. A. Anderson and W. E. Lonsdale might have exerted themselves more in this direction, but the latter officer was suffering from bad health. Among Assistant and Deputy Superintendents, Messrs. C. H. Gadsden, L. Withinshaw, N. Ramanuja Aiyangar, Saiyid Muhammad Macci Sahib, Kunhi Ahmed Koya and N. Ranganatha Rao investigated a large proportion of their grave crime. Mr. J. S. Wilkes investigated only 3 out of 12 cases.

The attendance at Sessions by Superintendents as well as by Assistant (including Deputy) Superintendents was about the same as in the preceding year and calls for no special remarks.

30. The number of cases decided (in classes I to V of Statement A-I) during the year fell to 14,553 from 15,645 in 1909 and in both years the percentage of convictions was just over 75 per cent. The highest percentage was again shown by Madras City (96·6), followed by the Nilgiris, Jeypore, Vizagapatam, the two Railway Police districts and Tanjore, each of which showed more than 80 per cent. There was a marked improvement in Coimbatore, Tinnevely and Guntúr, while there was a falling off in Anantapur, South Arcot and Ganjáin. The variations in the other districts were insignificant.

The Prosecuting Inspectors and Sub-Inspectors in the mufassal attended to a larger number of original cases during the year (3,950 against 2,956 in 1909) and the proportion of cases that ended in conviction also increased. In regard to appeals, the work done was much the same in quantity and success as in the preceding year. Prosecuting Sub-Inspectors were appointed in two more districts during the year.

31. The subject of inadequate sentences continued to receive due attention from Superintendents, but not many instances occurred. In a rioting case in Guntūr, 19 men were charged under sections 436, 148 and 342 of the Indian Penal Code, but the Sub-Magistrate convicted only eleven of them under sections 147, 342 and 323 of the Indian Penal Code and merely fined them. The District Magistrate reversed the conviction and directed that they should be committed to the sessions, where they were sentenced to rigorous imprisonment, some for six months and the others for three months, in addition to fine. In a case in Salem, under section 152 of the Indian Penal Code, the accused was sentenced to a fine only of Rs. 50, but the High Court enhanced the sentence to six months' rigorous imprisonment. In another case of conviction under the same section, which occurred in Tinnevely, the High Court added one month's simple imprisonment to the original sentence of fine of Rs. 5.

32. Escapes from police custody numbered 107 against 152 in 1909, and 86 of the runaways were recaptured, besides 25 who had escaped in previous years. In 39 cases, the police were held free from blame, while in regard to the others, 27 police officers were punished departmentally and 58 were criminally prosecuted, of whom 30 were convicted.

33. The number of cases struck off as "maliciously and wilfully false" decreased from 5,792 in 1909 to 5,254 in the year under report and 383 persons were prosecuted for making false complaints, against 332 in 1909. There was also an improvement in the percentage of convictions obtained. The decrease in the number of false cases was most marked in Salem, Coimbatore and Cuddapah, and to Salem belongs the credit of having obtained more convictions for making false complaints than any other district. Out of 383 cases prosecuted by the police during the year, 281 were on their own initiative and 102 on the sanction of the Magistrate. Conviction was secured in 121, or 31·6 per cent. of these cases, against 27·7 in 1909 and 29·6 in 1908.

The proportion of cases found false after trial to cases prosecuted by the police was 0·4 per cent. against 0·5 per cent. in the previous year. This average was again largely exceeded in Kurnool and Cuddapah, though in the latter district the percentage was less than in 1909.

34. The subjoined statement shows the number of habitual criminals under the surveillance of the police on the last days of 1909 and 1910 and the number brought on and removed from the registers during the year under report.

* The variations, as compared with the figures in the report for 1900, are due to the revised figures returned by some districts.

The total number of bad characters newly registered during the year exceeded that in the previous year (6,704 against 5,590). There was also a large increase in the number of suspects newly registered (4,050 against 2,526). The increase occurred in almost all the districts, notably in North Arcot, Anantapur, Tanjore, Guntúr and Coimbatore and was chiefly due to the change introduced in the year in the method of registration of gangs, according to which permanent gangs were removed from gang registers and the dangerous members thereof brought on the register of K.Ds.

There was an advance in the registration of receivers in Anantapur, North Arcot, Guntúr and South Canara, while in Kurnool, Chingleput, Salem, Tanjore, Trichinopoly and South Malabar very few were newly registered during the year.

The proportion of registered bad characters who were "out of view" on the 31st December 1910 was 12.9, against 13.8 in 1909. The Nilgiris and Tanjore again showed the largest percentages, Kistna coming next, while in Madura, South Arcot and Tinnevely, the percentage was again the lowest, though the figure for South Arcot was larger than in the preceding year. In twelve districts, there was a decrease in the percentage of O.V.K.Ds., especially in Anantapur, Trichinopoly, Guntúr and South Canara. It is satisfactory to note that eight K.Ds. of South Canara who had been "out of view" were traced during the year in Mysore and Coorg.

The number of registered bad characters who were convicted during the year was 1,533, the figures for 1909 and 1908 being 1,587 and 1,723, respectively.

Definite rules were framed, with the approval of Government (G.O., No. 1882, Judicial, dated the 22nd December 1910), for the better co-operation of the French and the British Police, which, it is hoped, will have the effect of suppressing crime on the borders of the French Territory in South Arcot.

The system of frontier stations of districts interchanging constables continued and has been attended with useful results.

Houses of bad repute.

The following table compares the number of houses of bad repute on the registers during the past three years:—

	1908.	1909.	1910.
Toddy shops resorted to by thieves	964	998	1,014
Brothels in cantonments	13	14	14
Houses of receivers of stolen goods	1,468	1,474	1,555
Notorious gambling houses.. .. .	215	208	262
Total	2,660	2,694	2,845

There was an increase under every head except "brothels in cantonments," the number of which remained the same as in 1909.

As already observed, instructions were issued during the year to remove permanent gangs from the gang registers, retaining only wandering gangs, and to register as K.Ds., the really bad characters of the permanent gangs. The number of wandering criminal gangs in the Presidency on the 31st December 1910 was 27. Their strength consisted of 736 males, 466 females and 730 children, of whom 289 males and two females were in jail and 111 males, 9 females and 8 children were "out of view" on the last day of the year. One hundred and ninety-seven members of these gangs were convicted during the year, of whom 100 belonged to Nellore and 40 to Gódvári. The registration of the members of these gangs, accompanied by the taking of their finger impressions and the preparation of their history sheets, which was started by the Criminal Investigation Department during the year, is being proceeded with.

In Guntúr, five members of a gang of Yerukalas and another gang of six Yanadis were charged under sections 400 and 402 of the Indian Penal Code, and sentenced to long terms of imprisonment. Four members of a gang of Kepmaris of Trichinopoly, who had been systematically raiding Coimbatore were also prosecuted by the Criminal Investigation Department and were convicted and sentenced each to two years' rigorous imprisonment, under section 401 of the Indian Penal Code, by the Head-quarters Deputy Magistrate, Coimbatore, the conviction and sentence being upheld on appeal. The members of the Guda Dasaris gang in South Arcot who were living in a French village near Pondicherry until October 1910, were ordered by the French Government to quit the village. They then took up their residence at Villupuram, and while there eleven of them committed a daring dacoity at Pillur. They were arrested and committed to sessions but were unfortunately acquitted.

The settlement of the Rudrapad Korachas in Bellary as cultivators received further attention during the year and the Superintendent recommended an extension of the experiment to others of the community in neighbouring villages. Their activity within the district has decreased, but it is feared that they have not ceased their operations on the Bombay frontier, and, as the District Magistrate observes, the reclamation of these Korachas has not been accomplished to such an extent as to produce any material effect. Mr. Williams has taken much personal interest in this matter.

The members of the Korava gang, located at Ramapuram, near Pakala in North Arcot, are reported to be more contented and desirous of living honestly and none of them relapsed into crime. Four members of the gang, who evidently did not like the idea of doing regular work, chose to return to their old home in the limits of Vadamal station, where they are being closely watched.

There was a decrease in the number of old offenders convicted under section 75 of the Indian Penal Code, from 2,297 in 1909 to 2,057 in the year under report. The decrease was marked in Vizagapatam, North Arcot and Salem. The first-named district, however, continued to return the highest figure, Madras City coming next. In only three districts, viz., Kistna, Kurnool and North Malabar, was the increase appreciable.

The number of persons ordered to notify their residence under section 565 of the Criminal Procedure Code was 693, against 774 in 1909 and 824 in 1908. There were 205 prosecutions and 167 convictions for breach of the rules, against 165 and 129, respectively, in the previous year.

The work of the Finger Print Bureau continued to increase and was satisfactorily performed. The total number of references for the antecedents of suspected persons rose to 9,871 from 9,528 in 1909, of which 7,920 references, against 7,058 in the previous year, were received from the districts in this Presidency. The total number of identifications was 2,390, including 279 identifications in the 1,951 references from other Provinces and Native States. The proportion of identifications to the total number of references was 24.2 per cent., the highest on record. There was, however, a fall in the number of references received from other Provinces and Native States. The Federated Malay States made the largest number of references (630), Mysore State coming next (427).

The number of finger impression slips received for record in the Bureau was 12,623, against 13,724 in the previous year. Eleven thousand two hundred and seventeen slips were eliminated from the Bureau and the total number on record at the end of the year was 160,042.

Under instructions issued by the Director of Criminal Intelligence, fresh rules for the working of the finger print system were framed and included in the new Police Order Book since approved of by Government. These rules require the testing of the finger prints of prisoners. To give effect to this, two Sub-Inspectors from the District Police were deputed towards the latter part of the year to visit jails and take finger prints in order to check them with those already taken and recorded. A report on the experience gained by them is awaited from the Deputy Inspector-General, Criminal Investigation Department and Railways.

The number of persons proceeded against was 3,415 against 3,177 in 1909 and the proportion of persons bound over was 69.5 per cent. against 70 per cent. in the previous year. An increase in the number of persons put up was shown by 14 districts, of which that shown by Nellore was the largest (315 against 171 in 1909), Anantapur coming next. The percentage of persons bound over to those whose cases have been disposed of was also very satisfactory in Nellore (80.4 as against 64.3 in 1909), where several desperate characters including 70 Kathiras were bound over during the latter portion of the year. The percentage of success was best in South Canara, where almost all the dangerous criminals were run in, and it was also good in Madras City, Madras Railway Police, South Malabar, Ganjám and Górávari. In Guntúr, not only were a much larger number of persons bound over (183 as against 157), but the number of pending cases at the end of the year was very much smaller. The percentage of success, however, fell, and the Superintendent ascribes this to the reluctance of the witnesses to depose against the persons proceeded against who are nearly all rich and influential. In South Arcot, the selection of cases does not appear to have been judicious and the Superintendent's attention has been drawn to the standing orders on the subject. In Madura strenuous efforts were made by the Special Inspector to get the most active criminals bound over, with the result that there has already been a fall in grave crime, especially dacoity. The notorious dacoit Pinna Tevan, who was released from jail in January 1910, was also bound over for three years and sent to jail. In Tinnevely, a strong case in which six persons were bound over for three years each was unfortunately thrown out by the Sessions Judge. One point which Mr. Hamilton very rightly emphasizes in connection with these cases, is the necessity for remanding the persons to custody until the termination of the proceedings. In support of this he points out instances of a robbery and three house-breakings which were committed by the persons put up, while the cases against them under the security sections were under trial, in order to gain funds for their defence. In the same district, steady progress is being made in the disintegration of the Kudikaval system, though much remains to be done. Both the Superintendent and the District Magistrate are paying close attention to the subject. The Maravars apparently are at last beginning to look out for honest means of livelihood and are endeavouring to get employment as agricultural labourers.

There was an increase in the number of cases pending disposal at the end of the year to 416 from 321. The number pending for over two months was 133, which was distributed over twelve districts. Tinnevely and South Arcot returned a very large number of such cases and the delay in the latter district is being taken notice of by the District Magistrate. Of 1,997 persons bound over, 1,352 were sent to jail for failing to furnish security. The percentage of persons so dealt with was small in Kurnool, Anantapur and Ramnad. There was an improvement in this respect in Madura and Tinnevely, the percentage of persons sent to jail to the number bound over being 60.8 and 47.9, as against 32.8 and 35.8 in 1909, respectively. In the former district, in consequence of instructions issued by the District Magistrate, the status of the sureties offered was very carefully scrutinized before they were accepted. It is a point which should receive more attention than it often does.

The average amount of security demanded for the Presidency was Rs. 185, against Rs. 157 in 1909.

35. Mr. C. G. W. Clogstoun held charge of the department until the 29th January 1910, when he proceeded on leave, handing over charge to the Inspector-General and eventually retired from service. Mr. P. B. Thomas assumed charge on the 13th February 1910. The strength of the department on the last day of the year, including the two European Inspectors and the Sergeant working in the Special Branch, was 2 Deputy Superintendents, 11 Inspectors, 1 Sergeant, 9 Sub-Inspectors, 16 head constables and 12 constables. Some of the work done by the officers of this department has already been referred to in paragraphs 24 and 34. A case of fraudulent registration of false documents by a Sub-Registrar in South Malabar was lent successfully worked up by two Inspectors of this department, and ended in the conviction of the accused. The Sub-Registrar was sentenced to two years' rigorous imprisonment under section 81 of the Indian Registration Act XVI of 1908 and on appeal, the Sessions Judge upheld the conviction, but reduced the sentence to 18 months' rigorous imprisonment, which was confirmed by the High Court on revision. In Madura three persons were separately charged by the Criminal Investigation Department under sections 292 and 293 of the Indian Penal Code for the sale of copies of an obscene Tamil book. They were convicted, but were only fined Rs. 10 each by the Stationary Sub-Magistrate, Madura town. Similar books are under scrutiny and prosecutions will be instituted wherever necessary. The case of forgery of certain records in the office of the Divisional Magistrate, Coondapoor, in South Canara district, mentioned in paragraph 33 of the report for the preceding year was worked up by an Inspector of this department during the year. It has since been brought to a close, the accused being convicted and sentenced to five years' rigorous imprisonment under sections 466 and 468 of the Indian Penal Code, by the Sessions Judge, South Canara, on the 27th April 1911.

The interchange of criminal intelligence relating to wandering gangs between this Presidency and His Highness the Nizam's Dominions was properly established. With a view to establish similar communication between this Presidency and the Mysore State, the Deputy Inspector-General, Criminal Investigation Department and Railways, has been asked to visit Bangalore to learn exactly how the Mysore Police deal with wandering criminal gangs. Enquiries about criminal gangs, counterfeit coining, bogus provident funds, opium smuggling and the revision of the kepmari registers were also undertaken by the department, besides a considerable amount of miscellaneous and useful work of a strictly confidential nature. Assistance was also given by the department to the Madras City Police in the prosecution of notorious swindlers. The Deputy Inspector-General spent 112 days on tour, visiting almost all ports in the Presidency and personally consulting most of the District Officers. Mr. Cowie was, however, of opinion that he might have spent more time in camp.

In accordance with the orders of Government, the Assistant Commissioner of Police, Madras City, was placed in direct supervision of the Intelligence Department of Madras City.

36. The total number of unexecuted warrants on the last day of the year was 1,971, against 1,993 on the corresponding date of the previous year. Five hundred and sixty-one were pending execution for more than one year and 317 for more than six months, against 518 and 397 respectively in 1909. Tanjore returned the largest number, both as regards the total number of warrants pending execution and those pending for more than one year. In Jeypore, South Canara and South Malabar there was a satisfactory decline in the total number of pending warrants, while in Salem and Trichinopoly there was a marked increase in this number. In Jeypore, however, the number pending for more than one year rose from 5 to 31 and in North Arcot from 10 to 31. The Superintendent of Jeypore reports that persons escape into the adjoining Bastar and Kalahandi States to evade arrest. The increase in North Arcot is ascribed to the fact that many warrants which had been in previous years irregularly returned to magistrates without execution were recalled during the year and shown as pending. The year was signalised by the arrest of several old absconders of South Canara district. The arrests of three of the Kúlangálan brothers of Salem and of Komiti Domb—a notorious dacoit of Jeypore—have already been referred to. Two notorious proclaimed offenders Thayyil Kunhi Moidin and Vellain (the Robin Hood of North Malabar) were also arrested during the year by the North Malabar and the Mysore Police respectively.

37. Mr. Cowie inspected in the districts of Vizagapatam, Jeypore, the Nilgiris, South Canara, North and South Malabar, Coimbatore, Salem, Trichinopoly, Cuddapah, North Arcot, Madura and Tinnevely, and visited the Police Training School, Vellore, thrice. As acting Inspector-General, I inspected in the districts of Tanjore and Coimbatore. The Deputy Inspectors-General did a satisfactory amount of inspection. The Deputy Inspectors-General of the Northern and Southern Ranges spent 216 and 237 days respectively on tour, while the number of days spent by the Deputy Inspector-General, Central Range, of whom there were two changes of officers during the year, was only 166. The inspection of stations by District Officers was also good. All the stations were inspected during the year and some of them more than once.

CONCLUSION.

38. The following further measures were taken during the year in regard to the re-organization of the department:—

- (1) The head constables were regraded from the 1st February 1910;
- (2) The re-allocation of 52 circles has been carried out. It was completely introduced during the year in Ganjam, South Canara, and Madras Railway Police districts;
- (3) The enlistment of the full complement of Sub-Inspectors was completed;
- (4) The scale of pay of the establishment of District Police Offices was revised with effect from the 1st August 1910;
- (5) Proposals for increasing the staff of the Chief Office in consequence of the increase of work in connection with the re-organization scheme were submitted to Government and were since sanctioned;
- (6) The Police Order Book was revised, under the orders of Government, by Mr. F. Armitage and submitted for their approval during the year. To the new order book is appended a volume containing the orders relating to the Madras City Police.

A review of the principal reforms in Police administration which have been effected during the last five years in accordance with the orders of the Government of India on the report of the Police Commission has been prepared and is published as appendix D to this report.

39. The following note has been left by Mr. Cowie regarding the work of officers:—

“I am greatly indebted to the Deputy Inspectors-General for their loyal assistance during the year.

Summary.

40. The prominent features of the year were—

- (1) Territorial changes;
- (2) Slight fall in the prices of food-grains;
- (3) Decrease in grave crime and falling off in detection;
- (4) Arrest of several notorious K.Ds. and proclaimed offenders; and
- (5) Progress of re-organization.

Excepting the incidents referred to in paragraph 18, the public peace was generally well maintained. There were no prosecutions for sedition, but, although quiescent, recent events have unfortunately proved that it was not inactive.

MADRAS,
7th July 1911.

Ag. Inspector-General of Police.

ADMINISTRATION REPORT OF THE MADRAS CITY POLICE FOR THE YEAR 1910.

Mr. F. A. Dene was in charge of the Southern Range until 13th October 1910. Mr. E. T. H. Stevenson, his successor, took charge on 3rd December 1910. Mr. C. L. Bidie who had been temporarily transferred to Bangalore in December 1909 resumed charge of the Northern Range on 16th February 1910. He proceeded on leave on 22nd May 1910 and was succeeded by Mr. C. B. Cunningham on 4th June 1910. M.R.Ry. Rao Bahadur P. Parankusam Nayudu Garu continued to hold the office of Assistant Commissioner throughout the year.

(1) the abolition of the guard at the Harness and Saddlery Workshops consisting of 3 head constables and 20 constables—G.Os., Nos. 322, 706 and 880, Judicial, dated 1st March 1910, 11th May 1910, and 9th June 1910, respectively, and

(2) the addition of 10 constables, 4 as a guard at the Government Consignments Office, and 6 as a reserve for casualties—G.O., No. 1254, Judicial, dated 22nd August 1910.

The temporary additional force was composed of a plague staff of 65 members and a guard at the Marine Villa gate of 4 men.

Recruitment continued to be exceedingly difficult and the number of vacancies in the force at the end of the year rose from 68 at the end of 1909 to 103. One hundred and seventy seven men were selected for enlistment, of whom only 144 were declared medically fit. Every effort is being made to stimulate recruitment, but the result is far from encouraging.

The total cost for the year was Rs. 5,65,562-3-3 against Rs. 5,75,831 in 1909.

3. The following are the statistics of departmental punishments awarded to the permanent force during 1909 and 1910 :—

For all offences including absence without leave.					1909.	1910.
Number	of men punished with Black Marks only				552	551
Do.	of men fined				117	47
Do.	of men suspended				73	44
Do.	of men reduced				85	94
Do.	of men dismissed				37	37

Percentage of men punished	50.7	46.6
Percentage of men punished for offences other than absence with- out leave	41.2	38.8

Punishments decreased slightly.
For persistent absence without leave 33 men were suspended, 11 dismissed and 3 prosecuted and convicted.
An Indian Sub-Inspector was dismissed the service for hushing up a case of house-breaking. He is also being criminally prosecuted on a charge of fabricating false records in a case.
Three sergeants were dismissed—two for drunkenness, and one for insubordinate conduct.
Seventeen men were judicially punished during the year, as against 21 in 1909. Five of these men were punished for offences committed in their official capacity—4 under sections 13, 15 and 73 of Act III of 1888, and one under section 223, Indian Penal Code.
Two head constables of the Harbour Police were prosecuted, one for committing rape and the other for abetment thereof. Both were convicted by the High Court who sentenced the former to five years' rigorous imprisonment and the latter to three years' rigorous imprisonment. The other cases do not call for comment.

Murders.

11. The motive in the four true murder cases is shown below:—

- (1) A paramour murdered his concubine in a fit of jealousy.
- (2) A man killed his father-in-law owing to a family dispute.
- (2) In two cases the murder was actuated by feelings of personal enmity.

12. The most noteworthy case of burglary occurred in the house of Raja Rajagopal in Peter's Road, Royapettah, when jewels valued at about two lakhs of rupees were stolen. Almost the whole of the property was recovered the following day. The crime was committed by a professional house-breaker assisted by the Gymnastic Instructor of the Harris' High School, Mirsapat. The complainant offered a reward of Rs. 1,000 but the Government sanctioned the acceptance of only Rs. 300, out of which the informant was paid Rs. 100.

13. The most important case of theft was the theft by a Brahman servant woman of jewels worth about Rs. 7,350 from her employer. Her identity was established after a very painstaking investigation by Sub-Inspector Parthasarathi Aiyangar and she was arrested in Shencottah in Travancore and property worth Rs. 6,205 was recovered. She was sentenced to two years' rigorous imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 1,000 or in default to six months' rigorous imprisonment.

14. A fraud was perpetrated upon the Commercial Union Fire Insurance Company, London, by their Madras Agent C. J. Spalding in collusion with a merchant in hides named Namazi Abdulla and his agent Abdul Zabbar. A small tannery in Cumbum in the Kurnool District was insured for a lakh of rupees and a report was made that it had been destroyed by fire. After a fictitious enquiry Spalding paid Namazi Abdulla a sum of Rs. 78,213 in settlement of his claim against the company. Spalding was convicted under section 408, Indian Penal Code, and sentenced to four years' rigorous imprisonment. Namazi Abdulla who could not be arrested at first is now awaiting trial at the High Court Sessions. Abdul Zabbar is still at large. Inspector Rao Sahib Bavanandam Pillai worked this case with conspicuous ability.

In Ludhiana, three persons started a bogus firm entitled A. A. Lal Bros., and advertised for agents to sell their goods demanding a cash security of Rs. 300. Several persons were cheated of their deposit of Rs. 300. One of the victims complained to the City Police and Inspector Raghavendra Rao of the Criminal Intelligence Department went to Ludhiana and arrested one of the three partners, the other two having absconded. The accused was convicted under section 420, Indian Penal Code, and sentenced to one year's rigorous imprisonment.

One Rangaswami Aiyangar of Tanjore is under trial for obtaining Rs. 100 by telegraphic money order by means of a false telegram purporting to come from another person. He has a previous conviction for a similar offence and appears to have committed several other such frauds.

15. The proprietor of the Connemara Press in Triplicane was convicted by the Chief Presidency Magistrate for failure to make a fresh declaration when the press was moved from one building to another. The case was regarded as a test case and the accused was sentenced to a fine of Rs. 5 or in default to two weeks' simple imprisonment under section 13 of Act XXV of 1867.

16. Attention having been directed to the fact that premises in different parts of the City were being illegally used as the resort of habitual smokers of opium preparations, who were there supplied with the preparation of the drug, action was taken with the following result:—

	Number.	Convicted.
Cases prosecuted under the Opium Act	43	39
Cases prosecuted under the City Police Act (Section 35)	17	11

17. Five gaming houses were raided during the year and five persons were convicted for keeping gaming houses.

18. Property stolen amounted to Rs. 2,77,757, out of which Rs. 2,30,611 or 83.02 per cent. was recovered. The high percentage is attributable to the recovery of almost all the property in the burglary and theft cases referred to in paragraphs 12 and 13 supra.

19. Five prisoners escaped from police custody during the year, all of whom were recaptured. One prisoner who had escaped in 1905 was also recaptured. In one case three police officers were criminally prosecuted. One was convicted and the other two were discharged. In three cases the Police were held free from blame and in two they were departmentally punished.

20. The number of false cases for the year is as hereunder :—

	1909.	1910.

Prosecutions for making false complaints were instituted in 15 cases, of which seven ended in conviction.

Of 41,827 cases prosecuted by the Police, only nine were declared false after trial.

21. The number of habitual criminals under the surveillance of the Police on the last day of the year was 959 as against 936 in 1909. One hundred and ninety-four bad characters were newly registered during the year and 148 or 15.4 per cent. were out of view at the end of the year. One hundred and thirty-nine registered bad characters were convicted during the year.

Houses of bad repute on the police registers numbered 43.

During the year 199 old offenders were sentenced to enhanced punishment under section 75, Indian Penal Code, as against 203 in 1909. One hundred and six old offenders were ordered to notify under section 565, Criminal Procedure Code. Twenty-two were prosecuted for evasion of the rules under that section and 11 were convicted. The finger prints of 694 persons were sent for record and 800 references regarding the identity of suspected persons were made to the Finger Print Bureau which traced previous convictions in 252 instances.

Thirty-six persons were proceeded against under the security sections and 32 were bound over, as against 43 and 32 respectively, in 1909. Nineteen of the persons bound over were sent to jail. In one instance, a person who had furnished security lapsed into crime and was sent to jail.

APPENDIX D.

REVIEW OF THE PRINCIPAL REFORMS IN POLICE ADMINISTRATION EFFECTED IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE ORDERS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ON THE REPORT OF THE INDIAN POLICE COMMISSION.

As directed in G.O., No. 833, Judicial Department, dated the 22nd May 1911, I submit the following review of the principal reforms in police administration which have been effected during the last five years in accordance with the orders of the Government of India on the Report of the Police Commission.

2. The minimum pay of the constabulary has been raised from Rs. 7 to 8 in the mufassal and from Rs. 8 to 9 in the City. Increments of pay are also granted to constables after 3, 10 and 17 years of approved service, good conduct allowances being abolished; their daily travelling allowance has been increased from one to two annas; and the provision of free quarters is being pushed forward. Unfortunately, these advantages have been counterbalanced by a rise in prices and a steadily increasing demand for labour, and the greatest difficulty is being experienced in recruiting. There was a total deficiency of 2,643 men on the 31st December 1910 and the re-allocation of circles is in consequence retarded.

3. The pay of head constables has been revised and there are now only three grades on Rs. 20, 17½ and 15, whereas formerly there were four grades on Rs. 25, 20, 16 and 14. In re-allocated circles Sub-Inspectors have been placed in charge of police stations and eventually head constables will only be employed on general duty at police stations under Sub-Inspectors as station-writers, in charge of out-posts and guards and in Reserves. These changes in the pay and status of head constables, however necessary they may be, have naturally resulted in widespread dissatisfaction and a want of zeal in assisting in the detection of cases, for which they are no longer held responsible. The direct recruitment of head constables has also now been stopped, but the slight rise in the pay of constables alluded to above does not attract men of the stamp required for station-writers and it will, I think, be necessary to take on a certain proportion of head constables by direct recruitment.

4. The new grade of Sub-Inspector has been created and we have the full complement of officers required. In re-allocated circles they are now in charge of stations and are responsible for the investigation of crime. The majority are recruited direct (promotion of head constables to this rank being limited to 15 per cent. of the cadre) and they get an excellent training in the Provincial Training School, Vellore. Unfortunately, men of higher educational qualifications have not come forward as freely as was hoped, but the class of men we have got is not unpromising and when they have gained more experience in their work better results may be expected. Meanwhile there has been a steady decline in detection. Sub-Inspectors are also now employed as Readers to Superintendents and Assistant Superintendents and are appointed as Prosecuting Sub-Inspectors to assist Prosecuting Inspectors to conduct cases.

5. Sergeants on a more liberal scale of pay, viz., Rs. 80, 90 and 100 have taken the place of the old class of European head constable. All the appointments have been filled up and there is no difficulty in getting ex-soldiers of a good stamp.

6. The scale of pay of Inspectors has also been revised and they are divided into four grades on Rs. 250, 200, 175 and 150. They are given a daily allowance of one rupee when absent from head-quarters and fixed horse and conveyance allowances are only granted to Inspectors in charge of towns and to Prosecuting and Reserve Inspectors.

7. The creation of the new grade of Deputy Superintendent has been effected and out of a sanctioned cadre of 40 officers 33 have been appointed. They are in four grades on Rs. 250, 300, 400 and 500 and when promoted to district charge their salaries will be from Rs. 600 to 900. The number of such appointments is meanwhile limited to two. Many of these officers are at present in charge of sub-divisions and as Personal Assistants to Superintendents, they have proved most useful in relieving officers of office routine and the investigation of crime.

8. The salaries of superior officers have been revised. Assistant Superintendents draw from Rs. 300 to 500, Superintendents from Rs. 700 to 1,200 and Deputy Inspectors-General Rs. 1,500 and 1,800. The Commissioner of Police, Madras, is graded as a Deputy Inspector-General and an additional Deputy Inspector-General has been appointed for charge of the Railways and the Criminal Investigation Department. Deputy Inspectors-General are now eligible for an additional pension of Rs. 1,000 a year. A general uniform has also been prescribed by Government for superior officers.

9. The strength of the armed reserves has been raised and fixed for each district to admit of the maintenance of an "emergency force" ready at a moment's notice to deal with local disturbances or any other emergency. The armed reserves, all of which have now got European Sergeants, are mobilized annually and they are in an efficient state. Proposals are before Government to enlarge the field of recruitment for reserves and give the men a special allowance.

10. Another important reform which has been carried out is the conversion of the Police Training Schools. Training School at Vellore into a Provincial Training School. All Probationary Assistant Superintendents and Inspectors and Sub-Inspectors directly recruited have now to go through this school and the system of training in force leaves little to be desired. Recruits' schools for the training of the constabulary have also been opened at Vellore and Vizianagram and two more are to be established at Coimbatore and Anantapur. These schools are doubtless in many ways a great improvement on the old system of training at district head-quarters, but the men do not like being taken away for six months from their native place and families and I think this has had an adverse effect on recruitment.

11. The Railway Police has been re-organized on an improved basis and is divided into two districts in charge of Superintendents, under the control of the Deputy Inspector-General, Criminal Investigation Department and Railways. Two Assistant Superintendents have been provided for, but have not been as yet appointed for want of officers. Rules have also been drawn up for better co-operation between the District and Railway Police.

12. The creation of the Criminal Investigation Department is another much needed step which has been carried out. The department has now got an efficient staff and the useful work which is being done by it is too well known to Government to need further comment. In this connection the good work done by the Finger Print Bureau may also be mentioned. New finger print rules have been framed and embodied in the Police Order Book and revised rules for the registration and surveillance of gangs and the maintenance of gang registers have been issued.

13. Schemes for the re-allocation of police stations and divisions in all districts have been submitted to Government and have been approved of tentatively, pending the sanction of the Secretary of State which was subsequently obtained. These schemes have now been fully introduced in 5 districts and partially in 19 districts. The work is being pushed on as fast as possible, but, as already noted, is being retarded by the difficulty in recruitment. What effect re-allocation, combined with the abolition of the old village beat system, will have on the prevention and detection of crime it is too soon to say. We shall, it is true, have a much better class of investigating officer, but the areas they have to cover are very extensive and any improvement in the village police—on whom we have now so largely to depend—can only be very gradual. Meanwhile in some re-allocated circles a want of control over local criminals has been apparent.

14. Among numerous other reforms which have also been effected the following may be mentioned :—New forms for the registration and reporting of crime, as well as for ledgering it have been introduced and the application of statistical tests to police work has been discouraged. The police order book has been completely revised and approved of by Government and in it have been embodied new rules for the registration and surveillance of bad characters. The right of appeal has been restricted, fines have been abolished and the period required to wipe out black marks has been raised from 3 to 6 months. The powers of Deputy Inspectors-General have also been enlarged and the promotion of Sub-Inspectors within that rank has been delegated to Superintendents, subject to the veto of the Deputy Inspector-General, who is empowered to redress any great inequalities of promotion among the districts of his charge.

Police Administration Report.

Reviewing the report on the administration of the Police department in the Madras Presidency during 1910.

GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS.

JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT.

Order—No. 1647, Judicial, dated 27th October 1911.

The acting Inspector-General, Mr. Robertson, submits his report on the administration of the police of the Madras Presidency for the year 1910.

2. Mr. Cowie was in charge of the department throughout the year except for six weeks, when Mr. Robertson acted for him. The most important change in the personnel of the higher ranks of service was the assumption of charge of the Criminal Investigation Department by Mr. P. B. Thomas in succession to Mr. C. G. W. Clogstoun, who has since retired.

3. Recruitment and discipline.—With a sanctioned permanent strength of 32,207 of all ranks there were no less than 2,600 vacancies in the constabulary at the close of the year, and recruitment in a majority of districts shows no improvement. Increasing demand for labour, the flow of emigration, the rise in prices and the new system of training in central recruits' schools are said to militate against recruitment, but these causes do not, in the opinion of Government, adequately explain the situation. The prices of food-grains were appreciably lower in 1910 than in 1909, and when sixteen districts continue to be served by their own recruit schools, the alleged prejudice against centralization seems to be an inadequate explanation. It seems to Government that one of the greatest deterrents to enlistment may be found in the adoption of unintelligent methods of discipline. The percentage of departmental punishments in this Presidency is 31·8, while in Bengal it was 15, in Bombay 11 and in the United Provinces only 3. The attention of the Inspector-General should be specially devoted to this feature of police administration.

In Madura the percentage of punishments for offences other than absence without leave was no less than 84·6, which is nearly three times the Presidency average, and the Government desire that the Inspector-General should take an early opportunity of visiting that district and examining the necessity for so exceptional a degree of punishment. The practice of resorting to a day's suspension as a punishment reported from Anantapur has been rightly condemned both by the District Magistrate and the acting Inspector-General and it is hoped will not be repeated. While the Government are fully alive to the necessity for enforcing strict discipline in the ranks of the police force, they consider that the activities of certain officers in this direction should be tempered by a little more discretion. The shortage of men in the police is a serious matter, and it is possible that local allowances will have to be granted in districts where the difficulty of recruiting is greatest. On the other hand it must be remembered that during the past few years there has been a considerable expansion of the force and that demand has perhaps temporarily outstripped supply.

4. Judicial punishments.—There is very little variation in the totals of judicial punishments during the last three years, viz., 219 (in the permanent force) against 214 in 1909 and 228 in 1908; but as the strength of the force has since 1907 increased by over 7,000, these figures actually represent a considerable proportionate decline.

5. Rewards.—These vary much from district to district as their grant depends so much upon the personnel of the District Magistrate and District Superintendent. The principle of rewarding Sub-Inspectors and Inspectors by promotion rather than by gifts of money is the correct one. The Government notice that in some instances medals were granted as rewards to private persons and village magistrates. This practice is contrary to orders and must be discontinued.

6. Training.—The efficiency of the Vellore Training School continued to be maintained. At the end of the year there were 207 Sub-Inspectors on the rolls, and the results of the final examination, viz., 98 passes out of 117, were distinctly satisfactory. For the training of recruits there were two central schools, one at Vellore and another at Vizianagram, besides 16 schools at district head-quarters. The latter will be abolished when additional central schools are opened, as they will be shortly, at Coimbatore and Anantapur.

Sub-Inspectors.—The Government are gratified to note that the work of this class of officers was on the whole satisfactory, and they fully endorse the Inspector-General's remarks as to the value of the personal training they receive from district officers.

7. Special forces.—Much good work was done by the railway police, and the efficiency of supervision by the Superintendents should be furthered by the new division of jurisdiction according to railway management. There were seven cases of attempts to derail trains reported (fortunately none of them attended with serious results), and stone-throwing seems to be regrettably common along parts of the South Indian line. The imposition of additional police is the proper remedy for the continued occurrence of this offence in any particular locality.

The Inspector-General's proposals for strengthening the armed reserves so as to admit of an emergency force being always held in readiness are under consideration. The importance of these armed reserves in the Presidency is great, and it is satisfactory to be assured of their efficiency. The activities of the Criminal Investigation Department were commendable, but the Government agree with Mr. Cowie that the Deputy Inspector-General's touring was not altogether adequate.

Village police.—The Government are glad to note that the acting Inspector-General gives on the whole a good report of the village police and instances some excellent work on the part of individual village magistrates. Tahsildars have many opportunities in the course of their tours for keeping village magistrates to the mark in their police duties, and where they fail to interest themselves they should be incited to do so by District Magistrates. The Government endorse Mr. Aziz-ud-din's opinion that the superior officers of police should treat the village headmen as useful colleagues in the discharge of their police duties.

8. Cost of the department.—The expenditure in each of the last five years has been—

	RS.
1906	53,53,053
1907	61,49,621
1908	69,96,681
1909	74,10,371
1910	80,08,711

The cost of the department has increased by 50 per cent. owing to the introduction of reforms. The increase during 1910 has been chiefly under the head of pay and allowances and a larger staff.

9. Crime.—The number of cases in which investigation was declined was very small, viz., 2,099 out of a total of 174,060 or 1·2 per cent.

There was an improvement in the percentage of cases of grave crime personally investigated by Superintendents (54·8 as against 45·4), though the work of certain individual officers was indifferent. The total grave crime for the Presidency is lower than in 1909 and 1908 but still considerably above the figures for 1907 when food-grains were generally dearer than in 1910. Under murders the total was 605 against 620 in 1909, Coimbatore and Salem being as usual the most prominent districts with 68 and 58 as compared with 67 and 36 in the previous year. Under the head of dacoity there was a satisfactory drop in the total for the Presidency—from 515 to 448. There was a very marked fall in Madura—from 49 in 1908 and 37 in 1909 to 9— for which the Superintendent, Mr. Lane, deserves commendation. The Ramnad-Tinnevely-Madura group is responsible for a fall of 41 in the total. In Nellore there was a rise from 36 to 59, which is not adequately explained.

There was also a satisfactory decline in robberies from 843 to 775 and in cattle-thefts from 3,831 to 3,653. The Government note with satisfaction the good work done by Messrs. Lane and Hamilton in connection with the prevention of cattle-thefts.

10. The Governor in Council believes that it is well known both by the members of the force and by the public that an officer's work is not judged by the percentage of cases he detects. It is possible, however, that misapprehensions may arise from the publication of the table showing the percentage of crimes detected in each district and this table should therefore be omitted from future reports. In place of it the Inspector-General should give his opinion on the general merits of investigation work in each district as disclosed by the inspections of himself and the Deputy Inspectors-General. Success or failure depends upon many circumstances, of which good work by the investigating officer is only one, and the object of all inspecting officers from Assistant and Deputy Superintendents upwards should be to examine with care and intelligence the steps taken in the course of the investigation in order to ascertain and correct any errors that may have been committed. The true object of inspection is not to find fault but to help and guide with a view to securing improved efficiency, and in police work more especially the inspecting officer should devote his attention not to the results obtained but to the methods adopted and the action taken to detect the offender.

11. Habitual offenders.—The number of habituals at large was 28,415 males and 369 females as compared with 26,464 males and 347 females in 1909, but the percentage of bad characters out of view was reduced from 13.8 to 12.9. The year was also distinguished by the arrest of several notorious known depredators and proclaimed offenders in Salem, South Malabar, Madura and Guntur. The percentage of persons bound over for bad livelihood remained almost unchanged, viz., 69.5 against 70 in 1909. The experiment of settling members of criminal gangs as cultivators, which began in 1909, appears to have so far justified itself; but the reclamation of the Kudrapad Korachas in Bellary, to which Mr. Williams has given the most praiseworthy attention, cannot be considered complete until their depredations on the Bombay frontier have, like their activities within the district, been effectually reduced. Mr. Aziz-ud-din's scheme of Mappilla colonization in Kasaragod taluk, South Canara, has not yet reached the stage at which its success or failure can be gauged.

Steady progress was recorded during the year in the disintegration of the Kudikaval system in Tinnevely, and the satisfactory growth of a spirit of revolt in Trichinopoly against tuppukuli is reported by the District Magistrate. At the close of the year the sanction of Government was accorded to a set of rules to secure better co-operation between the British and the French police, which, it is hoped, will reduce the volume of crime in the South Arcot-Pondicherry border.

Excellent work continued to be done by the finger-print bureau, the proportion of identification to the number of references being the highest on record, 24.2 per cent.

12. General.—The Government note with pleasure the testimony borne to the good work of the officers named in paragraph 39 of the report.

13. Reorganization.—In Appendix D to the report, the acting Inspector-General has given a summary of the principal administrative reforms carried out in the department during the five years ending 1910 in accordance with the orders of the Government of India on the recommendations of the Police Commission. The reforms introduced in this Presidency are of a radical character. The Madras police organization formerly differed from that of the rest of India in two important features: the first was the large number of police stations; the second, the absence of the rank of sub-inspector, with the consequence that all police stations were in charge of head constables, who conducted the investigation of offences under the supervision of a relatively large body of inspectors on comparatively low pay. The essence of the Police Commission's reforms was to improve the investigating agency. The Madras Government readily agreed that this was of the first importance and created the rank of sub-inspector. But with the substitution of an officer on Rs. 50 to Rs. 100 a month, and a horse allowance of Rs. 15, for a head constable on Rs. 14 to Rs. 25, with a small charge allowance, it became clear that, for financial reasons, the number of police stations must be reduced. The Governor in Council greatly regretted this necessity, for he recognized that many people would be deprived of that easy access to the police which they had hitherto enjoyed. How much they appreciated this convenience and the protection afforded by the presence of a police force has been shown by the representations that have been made, in practically every case, against the abolition of police stations under the re-allocation scheme. On the other hand, the public will now have the benefit of a higher class of investigating agency, which, it is hoped, will go far to remove the abuses that formerly existed.

Other reforms have been an improvement in the pay of the constables, sergeants, inspectors and the superior ranks; the reduction of the number of inspectors, whose duty is now more closely confined to inspection; and the creation of a superior Provincial Police service of Deputy Superintendents recruited partly from the ranks of inspectors, partly from other branches of the public service, and partly by direct appointment of young men. The force has also been largely increased so as to provide a reserve for supplying vacancies caused by men being absent on leave or under training; well-organized training schools are to take the place of the old inefficient district schools; and a Criminal Investigation Department has been constituted to deal with crime of a specialized character and criminal organizations of more than local importance.

It was obviously impossible to create an establishment of sub-inspectors by a stroke of the pen, but recruitment has been pushed on as rapidly as was feasible, and the probationers were put through a course of training at the Vellore Police School, supplemented by a period of practical training at a police station. The full complement of these officers has now been obtained. The staff does not consist entirely of new men, but includes a number of the former inspectors of the lowest grades and a proportion, limited to 15 per cent., of specially selected head constables.

The redistribution of police stations has necessarily been delayed by the need for new buildings and by the want of trained sub-inspectors, but it has now been carried out completely in five and partially in nineteen districts. Full effect has been given to the decisions regarding improvement of pay; training schools for constables have been formed at Vellore and Vizianagram; the buildings of the school at Coimbatore are nearly completed; and those for the fourth school (at Anantapur) are about to be commenced. The Provincial Training School at Vellore provides training for sub-inspectors and probationary officers of higher rank. The Criminal Investigation Department has been at work for some years, and 33 out of 40 Deputy Superintendents have already been appointed, while five more are to be appointed in a few months. The work of reform is thus nearly completed. The cost has been heavy, but the Governor in Council trusts that experience will prove that the money has been well spent. An improved stamp of investigating officer has undoubtedly been obtained—men of better education and of higher moral standards. The majority of them are lacking in experience, but that is a fault which will soon be removed, and meanwhile the superior officers should treat them with consideration and remember that a young man will respond to kindly guidance and instruction far more readily than to strictures and punishment.
