BRITISH INDIAN PASSPORTS.

RULES GOVERNING THE ISSUE OF PASSPORTS AND VISAS.

British Indian passports are only issued to British subjects and to British-protected persons, by the Secretary to Government, Law Department Secretariat Buildings, Fort St. George. He is the only officer empowered to grant passports in this Presidency. As the preparation of a passport takes time, applicants are advised to make their applications for grant of passports or for renewals of their passports sufficiently in advance of the date when they intend to leave India. It is also advisable to mention in the application the proposed date of departure. Once issued, they will be regarded for all ordinary purposes as constituting sufficient proof of the national status of their holders.

The primary object of a passport is to constitute official proof of the national status and identity of its holder, for purposes either of travel or of residence abroad. Full particulars of such national status should be clearly stated in the space provided for that purpose, and the description of the holder should be as full and accurate as possible.

Married women who are British subjects derive their British-nationality from that of their husbands, irrespective of the nationality they possessed before marriage. In every case, therefore, full particulars of the husband's (or late husband's) nationality should be given.

In all cases where a passport is issued to a British protected person, as distinct from a British subject, the fact that the holder is a British protected person should be clearly and conspicuously stated, followed by particulars of the State or Territory of which he is a native. e. g. :—"British-protected person, native of the Indian State of Baroda."

All persons applying for British Indian passports are required to complete a declaration on form A., which can be obtained from District Magistrates, the Commissioner of Police, Madras and the Secretary to Government, Law Department, Fort St. George.

The declaration, including the personal description, must be completed by the applicant in his or her own handwriting and signed in the spaces provided. Provision is made for the inclusion in the declaration of the wife of the applicant and his minor children under the age of 15, if they are accompanying him or residing with him abroad, and if it is desired that they should be included in his passport. Minor children under 15 may also be included, on similar conditions in the passport of their mother, if she holds a separate passport, or in the passport of some other responsible person or official in charge of them. All other persons must apply for separate passports, and fill in separate declarations.

In the case of persons deriving their British Nationality from a husband, father, or paternal grandfather born within His Majesty's Dominions, the particulars of the place and date of birth of such husband, father, or paternal grandfather must be given in the body of the declaration, as well as those of the applicant's own place and date of birth. The latter particulars only, however, will appear in the passport itself.

Wives (including divorced wives) and widows of British subjects must in all cases give their own maiden surname and, if twice married, the surname of their former husband also.

Where application is made for a joint passport including husband and wife, the body of the application must be completed and signed by the husband, who must state that he is accompanied by his wife, as indicated in the margin of the form. The wife must complete and sign her personal description giving her maiden surname. She must also give the place and date of her own birth but need not repeat the particulars of the date and place of her husband's birth, since these already appear on the form.

In the case of minor children under the age of 15 accompanying their parents or guardians, the names, dates of birth, and sexes should be given in the space provided at the bottom of the margin of the form. It must however, be clearly understood that the fact of a minor child having been included in a British Indian passport cannot in itself be claimed as evidence that the child is a British subject in contemplation of English law.

For children under the age of 15 who require separate passports a declaration is required from their parent or guardian, on form B. As the separate passport so issued will constitute permanent evidence of the child's British nationality, no less care should be taken in verifying the British nationality of the child concerned than in verifying that of an adult.

In the case of naturalized British subjects, or of persons deriving their British nationality from the naturalization of their husband or father, full particulars of the certificate of naturalization should be given in the body of the form, i. e., the place and date of its issue, and its serial number. In the case of persons who were themselves naturalized as British subjects, the production of the certificate itself should always be insisted on, and should the applicant be unable to produce it the case should be referred to the Government of India with a full statement of the circumstances which render the production of the certificate impossible. In the case of persons deriving their British nationality from the naturalization of their husband, father or mother, the production of the certificate, or, failing that, of an official copy of it, should be insisted on as far as possible; but if the issuing officer is satisfied as to the bona fides of the applicant and considers that special circumstances make the production of the certificate or of an official copy of it genuinely impossible, he may, in his discretion, accept in lieu of it a statutory declaration from the applicant deposing to the necessary facts.

The subsidiary declaration or recommendation shown below the declaration to be made by the applicant must be completed and signed by a political officer, Magistrate, Justice of the Peace or Police officer not below the rank of Superintendent, or Notary Public resident in India. If there should be no such person in a position to make the subsidiary declaration at the place where the issuing officer resides, or if the issuing officer is satisfied from his own knowledge that the applicant is unquestionably a fit and proper person to be furnished with a passport, he may, in the exercise of his discretion, accept the recommendation of some other responsible British subject, or dispense with it altogether, noting on the form his reason for so doing. Should any of the statements contained in the declaration prove to be false, more particularly in regard to the nationality of the applicant, the consequences to both the applicant and the person recommending him may be serious.

The recommendation is intended to serve as a verification of the facts stated by the applicant, and of his identity. The particulars of any additional documents produced, such as birth or marriage certificate, should be recorded in detail.

To the completed form of application must be attached duplicate unmounted photographs (size approximately two and three quarters by two inches) of the applicant, and, of his wife if she is included in the application. One copy of each photograph should be certified on the back by the person who recommends the application in the following terms:—

I certify this to be a correct photograph of

"(Signed)"

"(Place and date)"

In the case of Indians proceeding to Europe or America three a pies of the photograph should accompany the application. In the case of an Indian student further particulars as regards father's name, caste and home and district to which the student belongs should be furnished.

The fee for the issue of a passport is Rs. 6.

A passport is valid for five years from the date of issue, and is renewable for a further period of from one to five years at the option of the holder; provided that in no case shall the validity of the passport be extended beyond ten years from the original date of issue. On expiration of that period or, if at any time the space provided for visas is covered and the holder wishes to travel to countries for which fresh visas are required, a fresh passport must be taken out. British subjects and British protected persons applying for the renewal of their passports should be required to complete the form of application (Form "E"). The fee for the renewal of a British Indian Passport is Re. 1 for each year, or portion of a year, for which the passport is renewed. The fee for the renewal is Rs. 2 for each year of renewal in the case of all passports other than British Indian.

VISAS FOR ALIENS.

British visas for aliens are of two types :

(a) The transit visa, good for one or more direct journeys through British territory undertaken for the sole purpose of reaching the territory of another State.

(b) The non transit visa, good for any number of journeys to British territory for any legitimate purpose during the period of its validity.

Both visas are valid for one year unless their validity is specially limited to a shorter period, except that in the case of the transit visa the period of its validity cannot exceed that of the validity of the visa of the country of ultimate destination.

The fees to be charged for British visa granted to aliens are (a) for the transit visa Rupee 1 and of the non-transit visa Rs. 7.

All passports and visa fees are payable in the shape of court fee stamps.

During the stay of the Secretary to the Government, Law Department, Fort St. George, at Ootacamund, the Commissioner of Police, Madras, will be an additional officer to issue emergent passports and grant visas.

All information regarding passports can be obtained from the Passport Office Secretariat, Buildings, Fort St. George during Office Hours 11 A.M. to 5 P.M.

THE UNIVERSITY OF MADRAS.

The University of Madras was founded under the Act of Incorporation XXVII of 1857. This Act was in operation until 1904, when, as a result of the Commission appointed by the Government of India in 1902 to examine the working of the Universities under that system, the Indian University Act VIII of 1904 was passed with the intention of reorganizing the Universities in India and of enlarging their functions in the matters of University teaching and of supervision over affiliated colleges. This Act again has been superseded by the Madras University Act VII of 1923 which was passed by the Legislative Council of Madras early in 1923, and came into force on 1st May 1923. This new Act was passed so as to reorganize the University "with a view to establishing a teaching and residential University at Madras while enabling the University to continue to exercise due control over the quality of the teaching given by colleges which are to constitute the University or are affiliated to it." The Chancellor, the Pro-Chancellor, the Vice-Chancellor, the Senate, Syndicate, the Academic Council and the Council of Affiliated Colleges constitute the body corporate of the University. The visitor of the University is the Governor-General; the Chancellor is the Governor of Madras; the Pro-Chancellor is the Minister for Education; the Vice-Chancellor is a whole-time officer, to whom a salary may be paid, who holds office, ordinarily for three years, and is appointed by the Chancellor from among five persons recommended by the Senate. The authorities of the University under this Act are (1) the Senate, (2) the Syndicate, (3) the Academic Council, (4) the Faculties, (5) the Boards of Studies, (6) the Council of Affiliated Colleges and (7) such other authorities as may be declared by the Statutes to be Authorities of the University.

But from a practical point of view, the Act of 1923 has not resulted in the rapid development of University activities nor in the effective furtherance of schemes which were already under consideration. In order to remove certain ambiguities and duplication of powers vested in the various authorities under the Act of 1923, the University of Madras Amendment Act of 1929 was passed which came into force on the 29th October, 1929. Under the Amending Act, the Council of Affiliated Colleges has been abolished. The Madras University Amendment Act No. XII attempts to remedy the defects of the 1923 Act and it is hoped that it will enable the University to develop more rapidly and successfully along the lines indicated in the preamble to the Act of 1923.

This Act (VII of 1923) has since been amended by Act XII of 1929. Under this the Council of Affiliated Colleges has ceased to exist and the Academic Council has been enlarged.

The present Senate under the new Act consists of 213 members made up of Class I—51 ex officio members Class II—I Life member, Class III—other members consisting of 30 members elected by Registered Graduates, 20 members elected by the Academic Council, 12 members elected by the non-official members of the Legislative Council from among their own body, 5 members elected by the Principals of second-grade colleges, 3 members elected by Headmasters of Secondary Schools, 4 members elected by the Corporation of Madras from among their own body, 26 members elected by the District Boards and Municipalities from among themselves, 2 members elected by the Madras Chamber of Commerce, 2 members elected by the Southern India Chamber of Commerce, 2 members each elected by the Madras Landholders' Association and by Southern India Muhammadan Educational Society; 30 members nominated by the Chancellor and 6 members representing the chief vernacular languages in the Presidency. The Senate is the supreme governing body of the University having power to review the action of the Syndicate and the Academic Council.

The Syndicate consists of the Vice-Chancellor and the Director of Public Instruction as ex-officio members, 8 members elected by the Senate from among its members, 6 members elected by the Academic Council from among its members, and 3 members nominated by the Chancellor. The Syndicate is the chief executive authority of the University having powers to administer the property and funds of the University and to regulate and determine all matters concerning the University in accordance with the Act, the Statutes and Ordinances.

The Academic Council consists of about 190 members. The Academic Council has the control and general regulation of teaching and examination within the University and has power to advise the Syndicate on all academic matters, to make regulations regarding the admission of students to the University and relating to courses of study and examinations, to make proposals to the Syndicate for the institution of professorships, readerships, lectureships, etc., and to control and manage University Libraries.

The University has no direct control over high school education in the Presidency, but recognizes for University purposes the high schools under the control of the Department of Education. Under the new Act the Intermediate Examination in Arts and Science is the admission test to the University Degree courses. The Intermediate course begins at the conclusion of the High School courses.

Under the new Act colleges are either constituent or affiliated. Constituent colleges are those which are maintained or recognized by the University in accordance with the provisions of the Act and which are situated within the "limits of the University" which means the territory within a radius of ten miles from Fort St. George. Affiliated colleges are those which are situated outside the limits of the University and affiliated to the University as constituted prior to the commencement of the new Act or admitted to the privileges of affiliation under conditions prescribed in this behalf.

The following are the numbers of constituent and affiliated colleges :—

Under the new Act the Government have undertaken to contribute annually under section 44—2 (a) "a sum equal to the amount of contribution by the Local Government in the financial year prior to the coming into force of this Act towards the recurring expenditure of the University"; accordingly a sum of Rs. 85,000 was sanctioned by the Government during the year 1924—25. The Government have also under section 44—2 (b) sanctioned a sum equal to the salary of the Vice-Chancellor.

The University Library is located in the Senate House Buildings. To improve the ventilation in the cellar, six draught fans and exhaust fans were installed during the year. But the scheme for the new library buildings is nearing completion and it is expected that within a few years the library will be located in the new buildings to be erected on the site immediately north of the Senate House, Chepauk.

The proposed building will be designed to accommodate all the existing Teaching and Research Departments of the University other than the Research Laboratories and will be so located as to permit of easy access to the Library. The work is carried on expeditiously.

The cost of the administration of the University is met from the Fee Fund.

KOTTAYAM C. M. S. COLLEGE.

A continuous Christian education has been given in Kottayam by Missionaries of the C.M.S. since about 1816. A seminary was conducted by English Missionaries working in conjunction with the Syrian Church authorities, and was endowed jointly by gifts from England and by a handsome endowment from the Ranees, Sri Parvathy Bhai, partly in land, partly in funds. In 1837 it was found necessary to divide the endowments, about a half being given in trust to the "Missionaries at Kottayam" to carry on the work. The present high school was then built under the supervision of the late Rev. Henry Baker, Senior. In 1862 the Kottayam College began to send up candidates for the Matriculation examination. In 1892 the institution began its career as a Second-Grade College. The College department is housed in a separate block of buildings. SECTION IV.

THE CITY OF MADRAS

The City of Madras is lat. 13° 9' N long. 80° 16' 0" E. The area included within the municipal boundary limits is some twenty-seven square miles; the extreme length of the city from north to south is about nine miles, the greatest breadth at any one point about four miles. The city presents in the foreground a magnificent line of noble edifices on a level sandy shore made pleasing to the eye by green clumps of trees at intervals. The placid blue sea breaks in surf along the line, and the whole scene is dominated by the flag which floats in the tropical air from the flagstaff of Fort St. George. In the distant background are seen some low hills, the Buildings on which may be visible even to the naked eye on a clear day. The general pleasing aspect of the city from the sea has been the same during the three centuries nearly since the old Fort of Cogan and Day was built. "It is, without exception, the prettiest place I ever saw" wrote Mrs. Kindersley, a young and adventurous lady, who travelled alone to India to meet her husband in 1765.

The City of Madras was first a fisherman settlement at the mouth of the River Cooum, called Madraspatam. South of it was the San Thome, the Portuguese trading settlement. The English merchants at Masulipatam, finding it inconvenient, wished to have a more suitable place favourable for their trade. Sir Francis Day, therefore, was sent in quest of one. He landed at Madraspatam, and decided to found a settlement near the Cooum.

The early history of Madras, and the founding of Fort St. George possess much interest. In South India, the first factory established by the English was the one at Masulipatam, the seaport of the Golconda Kingdom, but the first fortified settlement of the English was at Armagon. Francis Day, the Chief of Armagon, finding the place unsuited for trade, went southwards in search of a new settlement. He received overtures from Damarla Venkatadri, the Naick of Pronamallee, to establish an English settlement at Madras; and it is also stated that the Naick desired that the town should be named after his father, Chinnappa Naick. When the Agent at Masulipatam fell in with Day's proposal to form a new settlement, Day selected a site in Madraspatam and obtained from the Naick in 1639 a grant of the site and a cove to build a fort on it. This grant was confirmed by Sri Ranga Rayulu of Channarayana, the representative of the waning power of Vijayanagar. Francis Day and his chief, Andrew Cogan, without even waiting for the Company's sanction, dismantled the fort at Armagon and erected a fort on the site and called it Fort St. George. Of this fort nothing now remained but the name and the site.

When Francis Day came to this place on his mission to find a site for a new settlement, he found the territory around it cut in three big pieces by the two rivers, the Cooum and the Cochrane Canal, which then were called the Triplicane River and the North or Elambore River. The Triplicane River ran through the villages of Chetput, Nungumbankam and Triplicane. The North River flowed parallel to and about a mile distant from the coast. At the site of the present General Hospital, it turned to the east, and when near the sea, turned southwards again for about three-quarters of a mile and met the Triplicane River at its outlet. At the first bend near the General Hospital it was connected with the Triplicane River by a canal, on the north bank of which is the present Penitentiary. There was besides a small stream whose course was along Popham's Broadway, across the present Esplanade to near the second bend of the North River. Day selected the strip of land between the sea and the North River, with the Cooum on the south and the village of Madraspatam very close to it. On this strip there existed, it is believed, a village known as Chinakupam. Even before Day's settlement there existed two villages called Chinakupam (or Chinnakupam) and Madraspatam (or Madras). Chinakupam must have been a small hamlet of fishermen mostly. On the site of this hamlet Cogan and Day's Fort St. George was built, the name Chennapatam (the urban form of Chinakupam) being given to the native town which grew around it in deference to the wishes of the local Naick. The name Madraspatam persisted in use. As the village which went by that name continued to exist, the native population showed a preference to the name Chennapatam, while the English preferred the name Madraspatam (or Madras), for the combined towns of Chennapatam and Madraspatam.

Cogan and Day's fort was nearly square with a bastion at each angle and measured on the outside 103 yards from north to south and 100 yards from east to west. The construction was begun on March 1, 1640, and completed in 1653. A promise of exemption from taxes for 30 years attracted nearly 400 weaver families from the neighbourhood and many Portuguese from San Thome—an earlier European settlement—some three miles from Fort St. George. The garrison consisted of 53 Europeans and 35 Natives.

In 1653 the Agent, Aaron Baker, began to build outworks, which were brought nearly to a state of completion in 1666. This became the outer fort, the basis of the modern Fort St. George. For a long time the inner fort was called Fort St. George, the area within the walls of the outer fort where the European population owned houses and lived, being called the Christian or White Town. Just to the north of it and separated from its northern wall by a wide street, called the Bazaar or Market, lay the Black Town where the Indian population lived. Like the Christian Town it was quadrangular and was bounded on the north by the present eastern portion of the China Bazaar, or the south by the inner north-wall of the modern Fort St. George, on the east by the sea and on the west by a line parallel to the shore extending from the south end of Popham's Broadway to a point near the sally port on the north-west glacis where it struck the course of the north River. The perimeter of this old Black Town was 3,000 yards. There were seven main streets running north to south and two main streets running east to west. The Hindus had a temple and the Moors a mosque. To the west of the town flowed the stream from Popham's Broadway, which has now degenerated into a drainage channel. On the other side of the channel were some fields and gardens and beyond them lay Peddannaickenpetta. The channel was crossed by a small bridge. To the north of the old George Town was Muthialpet. Being the "out town" of the Company's Fort the Black Town was inhabited by the Company's Indian servants, whose protection as well as the better defence of the Fort required the erection of a rampart around the Black Town. An earthen rampart was begun by Agent Ivis about 1644. Governor Yale, against the wishes of his Council, erected a turf bulwark, which fell down during the rains and the cost of which he had to pay. Permanent fortifications, in brick and chunam, were however begun in 1700 and finished in 1707. The total length of this wall was 1,500 yards, and it was 17 ft. thick. During the French occupation of Madras (1746-49), the southern half of this town and all its walls were demolished for the better defence of the Fort. In 1757 the Hindu temple was transferred from the old Black Town to its present site near the Flower Bazaar. The remaining half of the old town was demolished in 1753 on the recommendation of Engineer Call. Thus the old Black Town with its "Chitti" population, "Moors" and Company's merchants disappeared into the crowded streets of Peddannaickenpetta and Muthialpet and gave its name to this united town.

The erection of a masonry wall around the new George Town formed always a part of any scheme for the complete defence of the City of Madras. Benjamin Robins was sent here in 1751 with a special commission to execute this work, but it was not till 1764, when Engineer Call pointed out its urgency, that it was begun; and it was finished in 1770. Till about the middle of the last century it was deemed of sufficient consequence for Government to maintain it. In the name of the street lying within the line of the west wall, which bears the name "Wall Tax Road," we have a memorial of this piece of fortification. Under the Preservation of Ancient Monuments Act, the Government have also put up a memorial table on the remains of this wall near Royapuram.

The military character of the Company's Government became well established in the first half of the eighteenth century. Cogan and Day's Fort (the old Fort St. George, the "Fort within Fort" as it was called by the country powers) falling into decay, was demolished, and on the site a square, called the Fort Square, was built in the year 1714-17, which was demolished only in 1925. The improvement of the defences and fortifications of Madras was taken in hand by Engineer John Brohier in 1756 and completed by Chief Engineer Patrick Ross in 1783—quite a generation. Fort St. George is connected with a long roll of distinguished Engineers—Benjamin Robins, John Brohier, Caroline Frederick Scott, John Call, Patrick Ross, George Malne, etc. By the close of the eighteenth century Fort St. George had passed through four phases of development. The first was Cogan and Day's castle; the second the quadrangular bastioned enclosure of the White Town which converted the original castle into a citadel; the third the development of the walled town into a fortress planned as a half decagon; and the fourth the entire reconstruction of the fort as a half octagon on Vauban's system with ample outwork.

The buildings of historical interest in the present Fort St. George are St. Mary's Church, the Secretariat Office and the Council Room, the Office of the Accountant-General and the Government Treasury and Officers' Mess. The oldest structure in the Fort is St. Mary's Church. The foundation of the Church (the English Church as it was then called) was laid on Easter Monday, the 1st of April 1678. The construction took place in October 1690. The credit of establishing a Church in the Fort for the Company's officers and the oldest Protestant place of worship in India is due entirely to Sir Streygham Master who raised subscriptions for it. Clive's marriage took place here. Its steeple was built in the last decade of the 17th century. During the siege of Madras (1753-59) it was damaged, and re-built in 1795. Among the articles of interest there are old registers, an alms-dish presented by Elihu Yale, and Streygham Master's Bible printed in 1660, which was presented by Mr. C. G. Master of the Civil Service. The sanctuary contains a large altar piece, a copy of Raphael's Painting of the Last Supper. It contains the graves of Governor Nicholas Morse, a great great-grandson of Oliver Cromwell; of Lord Pigot who defended the Fort against Lally in 1759, and was afterwards arrested and imprisoned by his own Council; of the famous Missionary-diplomat Swartz; of Sir Thomas Munro, the people's Collector of the Ceded Districts and afterwards Governor of Madras, and of many other markers of Madras history. Lord Pigot's was the first intramural burial in this church.

The new Council Chamber was built quite recently. The Secretariat buildings contain the old Council Room. The middle portion of the Secretariat building has an interesting history. In the Fort of Cogan and Day there was in the centre a turretted structure known as the Fort House. It was built in 1643 and used as the Agent's residence and Consultation or Council Room. Being very defective and unfit for use it was demolished, and a new one built in 1694-95. Its sides were parallel to the curtain of the inner fort but somewhat nearer to the eastern face of it. Lockpear, who was in Madras in 1702 says, "The Consultation Room was curiously adorned with firearms in several figures imitating those in the armoury of the Tower of London,—a strange but significant contrast to the present Council Room. It was three-storied building. The Consultation Room and the Governor's quarters were on the second floor, the Fort Hall which accommodated the "General Table" was on the first floor and the ground floor was used for officers. This Fort House, it is believed, exists still as the middle portion of the Secretariat building, the wings of which were added only in 1825. The present Accountant-General's Office was the Admiralty House of old days. It served as the Town Residence of the Governor. The Court of Admiralty was held in it. State functions were held there. Clive occupied this house as the time of his marriage. It was for some time appropriated as the Guests' House of the Governor. The history of the Officers' Mess is as follows:—The Sea Gate and the Colonnade of the old Banqueting Hall in the Fort were for long the general resort of merchants trafficking in sea-borne goods. It was an inconvenient place. Therefore Peter Massey Cassim, a free merchant of Madras came forward in 1737 with a scheme for providing the town with a special building to serve as an exchange. The land occupied by Mr. Hughes' house which lay at the south end of the easternmost line of buildings north of the Sea Gate was acquired and the old house was replaced by a new structure. It had warehouses and offices on the ground floor, and on the first floor the exchange or "place of public and free, open and uncontrolled resort for all merchants, dealers, commanders of ships or others having any concern in trade" together with a Broker's Office, a committee room for the Managers of the Exchange Company and a Public Coffee Room. The funds for its construction were raised by lotteries. Mrs. Fay, who visited Madras in 1791, described it as "a noble building, ornamented with whole-length pictures of Lord Cornwallis, Sir Eyre Coote, and General Meadows. The Exchange Hall was also used for public meetings, lottery drawings and occasionally for entertainments. Public Auction Rooms were located in it. There was also a Public Subscription Library on the ground floor. The old Madras Bank was located on the ground floor in 1837. The Exchange Tavern occupied for sometimes a portion of the building. In 1831, St. Andrew's Day was celebrated in the Exchange. The valuable crown jewels of Tipu Sultan were sold by public auction at the Exchange in 1832. On the roof of the Exchange, a light-house was erected by the Exchange Committee in 1796. It was a framed iron structure, carrying a lantern radiator and twelve lamps burning coconut oil. The light was 91 feet above the sea level at high water; it could be seen from the decks of ships about 17 miles and from their masts nearly 26 miles. This building is now the Officers' Mess of the regiment quartered in Fort St. George.

Prior to 1910, the Council of the Governors of Fort St. George held their meetings in a room in the Secretariat buildings. The enlargement of the Legislative Council in that year made a new Council Chamber necessary and the present building was constructed on the eastern side of the Secretariat. The further enlargement of the council under the Reforms rendered still more accommodation necessary and this was provided by adding a second storey to the buildings of 1910. The black pillars in the building are of historical interest. In the thirties of the 18th century, Governor Pitt constructed a handsome colonnade from the Fort Square to the Sea Gate roofed over and lined with 32 pillars of Pallavaram gneiss. When the French captured Madras in 1746, they carried off these columns to Pondicherry. There they remained until 1771, in which year the British stormed the place and restored the pillars to their former position in Pitt's Arcade. The best preserved of these columns were added to the new Council Chamber in 1910 and retained in the present structure.

The Fort has four gates usually open to the public. The South Sea Gate is on the east and leads to the Beach Road. Cabs and carriages can go both in and out through this gate. The North Gate is on the north and leads to the China Bazaar Road and High Court, but closed to traffic. St. George's gate is opened always and is the way into the Fort. The Wallajah Gate is on the west; from where the Mount Road begins and is the egress out of the Fort. The main gate, St. George's Gate, opens on the north-west and leads to the General Hospital, Peddannaickenpetta and Poanamallee Road.

The Mount Road, the Poanamallee Road, and the Beach Road are the three main highways in Madras. The first two are military roads. They divide the city into three big areas. When the Fort was the centre of all official activity, the servants of the Company had garden-houses in Peddannaickenpetta, especially towards the southern side which was reached by crossing the rivulet in the present Esplanade. The Island was ordinarily their recreation ground, crossing the north River in boats. In 1714-15 a bridge, which does not now exist, was constructed from the north bank of the River where the Governor's Garden House was connected to the Island. Governor Pitt had laid out north to south a "great walk on the Island." The statue of Sir Thomas Munro is more or less in the centre of that "great walk." The road to Triplicane then was from that bridge over the Island and the Government House Bridge which was then called Triplicane Bridge. In those days the fashionable residential quarters were in Peddannaickenpetta. When the military activities of the Madras Government increased, the peace and comforts of country residence could not be had so near the military fortifications. A move to the Choultry plain in the west was open to the European residents. The famous Madras Garden Houses began to appear on the Choultry plain (an open expanse which stretched south west of the Fort from Triplicane or the Government House Bridge as far as Mylapore and the Long Tank. The need for a shorter route to the plain and in consequence for a new bridge over the North River was felt; and in 1756 the Wallajah Bridge was constructed. It was widened and improved in 1820. The Mount Road from that time ran from the Fort. It was reformed in 1795-99. It passes over the Wallajah Bridge to the Island, which still maintains its old reputation as a recreation ground. The Gymkhana grounds and Pavillion are there on the east side of the road and on the other side or the Body Guard Lines, St. Andrew's Cemetery, St. Mary's Cemetery, and an open plain used for football by students and the soldiers of the garrison. In the centre is the statue of Sir Thomas Munro who arrived in Madras as Governor in 1820. He held office for seven years and on the eve of his retirement he was struck down by cholera near Gooty. His statue which is by charity, was erected by public subscription at a cost of £8,000. The Island is also the Brigade Parade ground. The road then takes you over the Government House Bridge to the old Choultry plain, but now a most busy centre of trade. The Government House Bridge (St. George's Bridge) spans the Cooum River. It was built under the orders of Government in 1805. It replaced an older structure which dated the first quarter of the 18th century. It was extended in 1923 to admit the passage of the tramway and is now becoming popular under the name of Willingdon Bridge. On the right immediately before approaching Willingdon Bridge is a statue of the late Mr. Justice Boddam of the Madras High Court erected by public subscription in 1911. There is also a statue of Lord Willingdon, Viceroy of India and ex-Governor of Madras on the eastern side on the road leading to the Gymkhana Club. The statue of King Edward meets your eye first as soon as you step off the bridge. The statue was presented to the City of Madras by Dewan Bahadur Lodd Krishnaswami

Balamukundas. On your left is Government House. In 1691 a Garden House was completed for the use of the Governor on the site now occupied by the General Hospital and Medical College. That house was destroyed by Labourdonnais, when he occupied Madras in 1746. In 1753 a new garden House in Triplicane was acquired from the Executors of Mr. Luis de Medeiros. The house was a large one with a frontage of 130 feet and stood in a rectangular compound laid down in the Italian style measuring about 400 by 85 yards. The house was the nucleus of the present Government House. At the time spoken of the roads which now bound the Park did not exist. The Triplicane High Road ran north without deviation up to the Government House Bridge and passed within 50 yards of the House. Additions were made to the compound and park from time to time. In 1758 the Government house was occupied by the French Count de Lally when besieging Madras. He pulled down its verandahs, destroyed private houses near it and burned the village of Chepauk. The house was put in order again in 1762 and was much improved between 1786 and 1789 when Sir Archibald Campbell was Governor. The second Lord Clive, however, found it inadequate either as a residence or as a place for holding State entertainments. Extensive alterations and improvements in the house were carried out under his auspices between 1800 and 1802. The compound was extended to the Beach by including part of the Chepauk gardens which had lately been taken over from the Nawab of the Carnatic. The present Government House has a frontage of 250 feet. The Park is 70 acres in extent. During 1920 to 1921 Her Excellency Lady Willingdon effected vast improvements in adding several out-buildings for the occupation of the offices and officers attached to the Government House and the excellent frontage was a most welcome and necessary addition due to Her Excellency's keen sagacity.

On your right is Napier Park laid out in 1871. Behind it is Chintadripet. The village was founded in 1,735 by George Morton Pitt in order to develop the supply of calicoes and to encourage manufacture in Madras as being the best fitted in point of having shade trees for the artificers to work under. Before you reach the mile-end on the Mount Road there are the spacious sale-rooms of Messrs. Spencer & Co., the "Madras Mail" Office, the Clock Tower and show-rooms of Messrs. P. Orr & Sons, Jewellers and Diamond Merchants. At the mile-end is the Maharajah of Vizianagram's fountain. The place is known to gharials and coachmen as Round Tannah. The "Hindu" Office is there; Wallajah Road from Chepauk and Triplicane, Ellis Road from Pudupakum and Tiruvateeswarannpet, Harris Road from Komaleswarannpet, Pudupet and Egmore, meet at the mile-end. Triplicane was granted to the English about the year 1658. It is a purely Hindu suburb with an ancient Vishnu Temple which in September 1672, was occupied by the Moslems and in March 1673 by the French, and in September the same year by the Dutch. It barely escaped demolition that year. Chepauk is a very congested portion of the City inhabited mostly by Muhammadans who were all dependent on the Chepauk Palace. It contains a big mosque built all in granite, an imposing structure in the midst of squalid dwellings of the Muhammadan poor. Tiruvateeswarannpet is to the north-west of Triplicane. It contains a temple of Siva. It was in the early part of the 14th century considered to be outside the Company's bounds. Pudupakum was granted to the English by Nawab Muhammad Sayid in 1742. Amir Mahal, the residence of the Prince of Arcot, is there. Komaleswarannpet is a neat little suburb where a few respectable Hindu houses in modern style have been built. The bridge over the Cooum at that place, called Harris Bridge, is only a recent construction. Pudupet, further to the south-west on the Harris Road, contains Indian Christians, Muhammadans and a large Adi-Dravida population. The Government Ophthalmic Hospital founded in 1819 at Royapettah is located now on the Marshall's Road, Egmore. It has established a reputation as one of the best hospitals in the world. The Madras Reserve Police is quartered here. Egmore, which is a little further off, is considered the healthiest place in Madras; at any rate, it is not so congested as other parts of Madras. It was granted to Governor Higginson by Vizier Assad Khan in 1693. The South Indian Railway Station in Egmore has a splendid frontage to the south with two fine porticos. It has been built in the popular Hindu-Saracenic style. The Arni House of the Jagirdar of Arni is a fine specimen of domestic architecture by Indian nobles. The Presidency Training School for Mistrresses is situated in this suburb. The Victoria Technical Institute, the Government Central Museum, the Connemara Public Library and the Government Maternity Hospital are in the Pantheon Road, which separates Egmore from Pudupet. The Museum was founded in 1851 with a collection of geological specimens presented by the Madras Literary Society which was then a scientific body and the duplicates of the articles sent to the Great Exhibition of 1851 in Hyde Park. Its habitation then went by the name of "The Pantheon." Around it has grown the pile of buildings which the visitor to the Museum sees.

The Pantheon was built about the year 1778 by Hall Plumer, a Civil Servant and Contractor. It came to be used a few years later as "Public Rooms" or "Assembly Rooms." It was purchased in 1793 by a committee formed to regulate the amusements of the settlement. The Committee was designated "The Madras Assembly." The dramatic entertainments, balls and dinner parties which took place there were controlled by a master of ceremonies who in 1802 was Mark Roworth. Lord Clive gave a ball and supper at the Pantheon on Monday, February 28th, the birthday anniversary of George the Third. An Armenian merchant (Mount) purchased the building in 1821, from whom the Government took it in 1830. It was allotted as the Collectors' Cutcherry, and it is still known to the common people more as the "Collectors' Cutcherry" than as the Museum.

The Museum contains an archaeological section of much value. Sculptured marbles from the railings of the Buddhist stupas at Amravati, a fragment of Buddha's bones, a collection of arms and armour from the Fort St. George Arsenal and the Tanjore Palace, and a valuable collection of coins which some years ago suffered a loss by theft. The Connemara Public Library was opened in 1896 and attached to the Museum. The marble statue of Lord Cornwallis, which stood in the Fort since 1800 and had suffered damage owing to exposure to sea-air and other causes, was early in this century renovated by the well-known Indian artist Muthre and transferred to the interior of the Connemara Library. The semi-circular building in the front is a theatre, to seat about 400 persons.

provided with a stage adapted for lectures, conferences and charitable entertainment by amateurs. The Madras Dramatic Society generally gives its performances in this theatre—a memory of the old Madras Assembly. The Victoria Technical Institute owes its origin to the public demonstrations of loyalty and love to the Queen-Mother Victoria. South Indian industrial Products may be seen exhibited there. It is under the control of a committee of Europeans and Indians. The Government Maternity Hospital was founded in 1844 by public subscription and managed by a committee with State aid. In 1847 the Government assumed charge of it and in 1881 transferred it to its present building. In connection with the acquisitions of Chepauk, Pudupakum and other villages there is a very amusing letter (12.12.1673) from Sir William Langhorne to Brahmins Venkataputtees, the company's Agent at Golconda as regards French claims to several villages round Madras. "Triplicane, you know, has always been in our hands; Yeagamour is in Hussan Cawns [Cissa Veroulo] hands and Nimybacka Chepauka, Podupack and Condour, and several other towns also which are very convenient for us to take our recreation in who have no other designs in this country, but to live peaceably and undisturbed in our business."

The imaginary visitor left Mount Road at the mile end. Now, as he resumes his walk, he finds on his left Messrs. Whiteaway, Laidlaw & Co., Messrs. Wrenn Bennett & Co., Christ Church and the Cosmopolitan Club. On the right the big garage of Garage Ltd., the hospitable mansion of Bosotto Bros. Then if he takes the road on his left, General Patter's Road, he will be in five minutes at the Madras Club. It is eighty years old and is now a palace occupied by high European officers. Pyorett's Road crosses Patter's Road next to the Club. If he goes straight, there is the red-plastered Wesley College, Royapettah. Gopal Baugh comes next. The road passes through Royapettah by the newly built Royapettah Hospital which was maintained by the Corporation of Madras up to October 1919 and afterwards handed over to the Government. At the Royapettah Police station there is a turning on the left which takes the visitor to the Lloyd Road, the Edward Elliot Road and to the Luz Church Road crossing. These three roads now contain the residences of Indians and have become the fashionable residential suburb of Indian Merchants, Vakils, Judges and others. Edward Elliot Road owes its origin to Edward Francis Elliot who was Private Secretary to his father who was Governor of Madras from 1814 to 1820. The road contains an excellent avenue and connects the Cathedral Road and the South Beach. Near the road are the sheds of the Madras Electric Tramways, the Electric Supply sub-station and on the road the Shell Petrol Depot. The Luz Church is about the middle of Luz Church Road. The inscribed stone bears the date 1516; but the inscription does not seem to be authentic. Evidence points to a much later date of its erection between 151 and 1592. The origin of the name Luz is interesting. Some storm-tossed mariners vowed a church to the Virgin if they were delivered from the fury of the elements. Forthwith, a guiding light flashed out. They steered towards it and came to shore. Pursuing their way for a mile into the interior they at length reached the spot whence the brilliance shone, only to find the light extinguished. On that spot was erected the Church of Our Lady of Light. There is a garden-house or bungalow named Luz House. Close to it is the Luz (suburb), but included in Teynampet is the "Grove" which was the residence of the Governor Alexander Davidson and which is now owned and occupied by the Hon'ble Sir C. P. Ramaswami Ayyar. It was one of the houses proposed for the Observatory at the time of its establishment. Sadler Gardens, Sullivan's Gardens and the newly built mansion of the late Justice Sundara Iyer deserve notice. From the Luz Church begins the suburb of Mylapore proper. Brodie's Road goes along the west side of the Mylapore Temple Tank. Mylapore is a town of much antiquity. The deity worshipped is Siva as Kapaleswara. The big tank and gardens all around the place moderate the heat in the hot months. The agharam or the Brahmin quarter of this place has no houses of any architectural value. A number of fine houses there are on the old traditional plan with open quadrangles in the interior. Mylapore still presents the aspect of a village. In 1672, the temple was occupied by the French during the siege of San Thome.

Leaving Mylapore, let him now resume his walk southwards along Brodie's Road. He will get to the suburb of Adyar. The native portion of this suburb is of no consequence. Its importance comes from its being a large fashionable European residential suburb. Some of the oldest garden houses, built by the Company's servants are here. The Rajah of Chettinad has recently built a palace here with nice outhouses. The Beachborough, Brodie Castle, Bruntou Villa, Mowbray's Garden (the premises of the Adyar Club), Pugh's Gardens, Searle's Gardens, Gambier's Gardens. Outside the Municipal toll-gates is Elphinstones Bridge over the Adyar which leads to the spacious compound of the Theosophical Society, a small colony in itself laid out in a delightfully oriental style. Fowler's Gardens and Elliot's Beach, are so called after E. F. Elliot, son of the Right Hon. Hugh Elliot, Governor of Madras.

Returning to the Kardyl Building on the Mount Road, opposite to which is the Branch Government Press built in Indo-Saracenic style, he finds the Lawrence House, Messrs. Higginbothams, Addison, the show rooms of Messrs. Simpson & Co. and the Fiat Motors Agency. The visitor may now ramble along the Mount Road until he arrives at the statue of General Neill, of Mutiny fame. Brigadier-General Neill fell gloriously at the relief of Lucknow, 25th Sept., 1857 at the age of 47. The statue was erected by public subscription in 1860. The road on his right takes him to Connemara Hotel, Free Mason's Hall and a few bungalows. This road is along the riverside and meets the Pantheon Road at Anderson's Bridge. Then on the Mount Road come the magnificent showrooms and premises of Messrs. Spencer & Co., the Spencer's Hotel, the Thousand Lights of the Nawab of Arcot. Mackay's Garden (the first garden house built on the Choultry plain) and St. George's Cathedral. The Cathedral was built by Lt.-Col. T. F. D. De Havilland in 1815, Ionic in style, the columns being handsomely finished with the published plaster-work that resembles marble. The Mount Road here passes through Teynampet.

A turning to the left takes you into Cathedral Road which at the Theological College (Sullivan's Gardens) meets the Mowbray's Road. It is one of the most beautiful highways of Madras.

being availed for the greater part of its length. It separated Teynampet from Mylapore and Lun. The Adyar Club (Mowbray's Gardens) marks its termination. If at the Cathedral he had turned off into Nungambakam High Road on the right within a furlong he would pass the Trunk Road the left gets him into the village of Nungambakam, a suburb of Madras to the south-west of Egmore. The village was granted to the English in 1708 and had a field redoubt of which there is no trace now. The turning to the east at the end of this road, along the College Road, the Observatory and the Old College takes you to Anderson's Bridge. The observatory was constructed in 1792 under the supervision of Michael Topping. The private observatory was William Petrie afforded the nucleus of the Observatory equipments. Michael Topping was the first Astronomer and was succeeded by John Goldingham, F.R.S., who was a Mathematician, Engineer, Architect, Editor, and Astronomer combined. He had worked before this as assistant to William Petrie in his private observatory. Petrie was one of the ablest civil servants of the Company. His range of knowledge was wide and extensive—Astronomy, Chemistry, Mathematics, Banking, Finance, and Engineering. To a knowledge of these he added a keen insight into administrative and literary subjects. This Observatory was the first established by the Europeans in the East. The establishment of the Solar Physics Observatory at Kodaikanal has reduced the work of this institution to meridian observations for determining the time and the maintenance of the time service, which is effected by the daily transmission to the Central Telegraph Office at Madras, and thence automatically throughout India, of a signal marking the moment at which standard time is 4 p. m. Observations are also made for the issue of storm warnings. The College for Junior Civil Servants was located in the Old College buildings. The spacious hall in it was long used for the dramatic and other entertainments. It is now the office of the Director of Public Instruction. The Madras Literary Society and Auxiliary of the Royal Asiatic Society occupies a portion of the building for its big library containing about 45,000 volumes. The Loyola College is situated at the end of the Sterling Road in Nungambakkam.

The other important buildings in this suburb are the Mansion, Doveton House, Macky's Garden, Pycroft's Garden and Tulloch's Garden. The last two are portions of Dr. Anderson's famous Botanic Garden which covered an area of about 111 acres. His name still survives in Anderson's Bridge and Road.

At the junction of the Mount Road and the Cathedral Road are the Agri-Horticultural Gardens of Madras. An Annual Flower Show is held there in February. Newington House is occupied by the office of the Surgeon-General. At the fourth mile-end was the cenotaph of Lord Cornwallis which has been transferred opposite to the Post Office, North Beach. The memorial was surrounded by an avenue oval drive and was the daily objective of Madras society until the South Beach Road was laid out. Sir Samuel Auchmuty was received at the cenotaph by the officers of the general staff when he returned from the conquest of Java. From the Agri-Horticultural Gardens all motorists proceed to the Beach via the Cathedral Road and its continuation the Edward Elliot Road, which contains an excellent avenue and a well kept up-to-date shell pump for quick supply of petrol. The Kalvani Hospital for women and children is also on this road.

Passing south along the Mount Road from the Gardens, we see the newly developed suburb known as Thyagarayanagar with the Panagal Park in the centre. There are finely laid out roads and excellent specimens of big and small Indian residences.

Quitting the Municipal limits, along the same road, the Training College for Teachers which is situated at Saidapet, only a few minutes drive. Adjoining it is a red-bricked building which was once the Madras Agricultural College and Government Experimental Farm. These have now been transferred to Coimbatore and established on a wider basis. We pass the Panagal Park. The Marmaloug Bridge, which spans the Adyar, next to the Agricultural College buildings, was rebuilt by a rich Armenian merchant, Petrus Uskan, at his own expense, in 1726. He has left a fund for its maintenance also. The Governor's country residence at Guindy was built in the time of the second Lord Clive, and is only about a mile from the bridge on the other side of the Adyar. The new Engineering College Buildings costing over 20 lakhs of rupees is located here. The King Institute of Preventive Medicine and the Race Club are buildings deserving notice here. The Guindy Races have been in existence for more than a century now.

Without any more stoppages St. Thomas' Mount, the terminus ad quem of this long road may now be reached. St. Thomas' Mount which is about 3 miles from the Marmaloug Bridge, can be seen on the right hand side as the bridge is crossed. It is about 229 feet above the sea level. On its summit is an old Portuguese Church called the "Expectation of the Blessed Virgin." The Church was built in 1547 and belongs to the Armenian Catholics.

The erection of Cornwallis Cenotaph so far away from the Fort and the sea-shore needs an explanation. When the military exigencies of the Government required the clearing of a large area around the Fort, the Indian residents of the cleared ground moved into the streets of the adjoining pettahs, but the European population migrated to the Choultry plain which was easily accessible from the Fort and was on the way to St. Thomas' Mount, the Health resort of the settlement from its earliest days. The roads from Bangalore and Chingleput meet very near there. These advantages made the Choultry plain a favorite place for the building of country residences. A feature of social life in the East, particularly of Europeans, has been the spending of holidays in country residences away from the busy haunts of people. The climate of Madras required it. The Choultry plain became the favourite place in the first half of the 18th century. In the beginning, garden houses were built in the neighbourhood of Chepauk and Triplicane. It was one of these houses that was purchased for the Governor's country residence in 1753 and which is now the Government House at Madras. In 1758 George Mackay set the example of building on the Choultry plain. About the year 1774 applications for grants of building sites were numerous. June Munros estimated in 1780 that there were 500 to 600 garden houses on the Choultry plain. It is believed that Phillip Stovey, who was then Civil Architect, had much to do with the beautifying of Madras by designing handsome mansions. By the beginning of the 19th century the Choultry plain, which was traversed through its entire length by a beautiful highway, became one of the most fashionable residential areas about Madras. The Cenotaph was therefore erected on the plain.

Some idea of the famous Madras garden houses may be formed from the following extracts:—

"For Sale. House on the East side of the Road leading to St. Thom's Mount, situated between the New Church and the Cenotaph and little more than 3 miles from the Wallajah Gate of the Fort; first floor 8 feet high and second floor 20 feet; (extent) 9 to 10 cawnies. The greatest part of the ground on which the house is built is a spot on which a village was raised [sic] between 20 and 30 years ago and it was then planted with trees (Mango and Coconut). The house fronts and is open to the East and West and open to the South. Bamboo hedge [around the compound]."

"For Sale. House occupied by George Garrow built by Dr. Anderson, two wells and an extensive tank—choice fruit trees—Enclosed with a brick wall—between 15 and 20 cawnies—worth Rs. 20,000 furnished."

About the style of the buildings, Mrs. Kindersley says: "The houses are neat and pretty any of them large; in all the good houses the apartments are upstairs and all one floor; the rooms are large and lofty. Most of the houses are built with a verandah [verandahs] which is a terrace on a level with the rooms in the ground, and sometimes in the back part of the house supported by pillars below and roof above supported likewise by pillars, with rails round to lean on. The verandah give a handsome appearance to the houses on the outside, and are of great use, keeping out the sun by day, and in the evenings are cool and pleasant to sit in. But what gives the greatest charm to the houses is a material peculiar to the place; it is a cement or plaster called chunam made of the shells of a very large species of oysters found on this coast. The shells, when burnt, pounded and mixed with water, form the strongest cement imaginable; if it is to be used as plaster, they mix it with white of eggs, milk and some other ingredients; when dry, it is as hard, and very nearly as beautiful as marble. The rooms, staircases, etc. are covered with it, the heat of the climate admits of an open, airy style of building which is pleasing to the eye; a roof supported with pillars is more elegant than a wall with windows and doors, besides the rooms being unencumbered with chimneys makes it more easy to lay them out in uniformity." "The houses of the English gentlemen are lofty and well proportioned and from their construction are so extremely cool that I can scarcely believe myself in the Torrid Zone," so wrote Mr. Phillip Dormer Stanhope who was in Madras in 1774.

From Fort St. George, you have to pass through the new overbridge recently constructed and get into the Poonamallee Road where you will first notice the Medical College on the left; on the right is the Memorial Hall, erected in commemoration of the escape of Madras from the horrors of the Indian Mutiny. The Bible Society and the Christian Literature Society have their premises there. The Mint Street has its southern end here. The squalid quarters, John Pereira's, which was once a fashionable suburb, has been cleared, and Railway offices have been built on the spot. Next to the Medical College is the General Hospital constructed in 1773 by John Sullivan. The inscription on the front wall that it was built in 1753 evidently refers to the removal of the hospital from the Fort. The hospital originated as an amalgamation of two formerly existing hospitals, the Garrison Hospital and the Old Naval Hospital. The former of these two structures was originally a warehouse of the East India Company and must have been built before 1759, but the exact date is not known. The Old Naval Hospital was formerly a granary, and was converted into a hospital in 1744. Considerable alterations have been made to these buildings from time to time. Facing the General Hospital and turning south to north is the Wall Tax Road. Opposite to the General Hospital is the Central Station, the principal terminus of the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway. The splendid building was designed by R. F. Chisholm, Consulting Architect to the Government and was built in 1873. A handsome clock-tower, rising to an altitude of 136 feet, surmounts the edifice. To the east of the Central Station are the beautiful palatial offices of the M. & S. M. Railway recently built. Here the road passes over the bridge which crosses Cochrane's Canal (formerly the north River). To the North of the road and along the western bank of this Canal is the People's Park, Madras, which it owes to Governor Sir Charles Trevelyan.

It contains ornamental grounds with a good zoological collection. The Park is bounded on the west by Sydenham's Road and on the north by the Salt Coots Goods Station of the M & S. M. Ry. The South Indian Athletic Association has its ground and pavilion in the Park. The Moore Market, the new Evening Bazaar, the Victoria Town Hall, and Ripon Buildings occupy the southern portion of the Park and face the road. It is a great relief to turn from the red-brick buildings, so much in fashion now, to the Ripon Buildings (the new Corporation Office) finished in white plaster producing a marble effect. This new office of the Madras Corporation was opened by Lord Hardinge on Nov. 26, 1913. The southern side of the road is occupied by Sir Savalai Ramaswami Mudaliar's Choultry and the Park Station of the S. I. Railway. The Madras Penitentiary is situated to the south of these and extends as far as the cut connecting the Cooum and Cochrane's Canal. The Penitentiary faces east and opens on a small road connecting the Poonamallee Road and the Island. Going westwards along the Poonamallee Road, you get to Periamet, where, in former days, the Moors collected land custom. The principal inhabitants are Muhammadans dealing in skins and hides. The Naval Hospital Road where the Madras Land Custom House formerly stood is north and south. The Madras Medical Stores which now occupies the buildings of the Gun Carriage Factory opens into this road. At the end of this road is the Government Veterinary Hospital. The Doveton Protestant College is very near. The portion of the city is Vepery—a residential suburb of Europeans and Anglo-Indians. It was granted to the English in 1642 by Nawab Muhammad Syed. Vepery was the scene of an engagement between the French and the English in February 1759. The S. P. C. K. has established a printing press here. This Society began its educational work about the year 1717. Petrus Uskan of Marmaloug Bridge fame had built a chapel at his own cost in Vepery, which the Company handed over to the Danish Mission to put down the influence of Catholics in Madras. On the site of this chapel St. Matthias' Church has been built. The S. P. G. maintains a School in Vepery.

The Madras School of Arts and Crafts established about the middle of the last century, is on the south side of Poonamallee Road; to the west of it is the Scotch Kirk. It was built by the famous Engineer DeHavilland in 1831. The Church is of much architectural importance. Opposite to the Kirk and on the northern side of the road are the headquarters of the Madras Volunteer Guards. Rundall's Road is on the west of this building. The Young Women's Christian Association is in Poonamallee Road. The Madras Electric Traction Company has its power station and shed on the Poonamallee Road. For the greater part of the last century, Poonamallee Road was one of the favourite residential quarters of Europeans in Madras. Indians are also now moving to this road.

Passing the Church Missionary Society's Head-quarters, you come to the crossing of the road from the Harris Bridge, which leads to Paruswalam. This suburb was granted to Governor Higginson in 1698. It had a field redoubt of which there is no trace now.

A little further off on the Poonamallee Road is "Ramamandiram" the residence of Rajah Sir Ramaswami Mudaliar's family. Landon's Garden and Dare's Garden are on this road, which here passes through Kilpauk, another European residential suburb. Then the road goes out of the Municipal limits on to the military station of Poonamallee.

Lying between the Beach on the east and Cochrane's Canal on the west and bounding the military limits of the Fort on the north and west is the most densely populated and busy suburb of Madras called Georgetown. This name was given to it in 1806 to commemorate the visit to Madras of H. M. George V as Prince of Wales. Before that it was called Black Town, a name given to the Indian quarter of Fort St. George in the early days of the settlement. Then it was the appellation of the out-town, which was practically the creation of the Company's Government here. When this out-town was pulled down in the middle of the 18th century, the name Black Town survived. It was applied to Peddunackpettah alone at first, Muthialpettah being then called Mahratta town, so called from the fact that when in 1740, the Mahrattas threatened to attack Madras a field of fire 600 ft. wide on the north and west side of old Black Town was cleared. The ground so cleared was called Mahratta ground. Two pettahs were separated by gardens and fields and the rivulet which had its course along the Broadway when this physical separation disappeared owing to the reclamation of those lands and the formation of new streets, the two pettahs became one, and the united town came to be called Black Town. Popham's Broadway, Davidson's Street, Stringer's Street, Umpherson's Street mark the spot which Stephen Popham reclaimed. The China Bazaar Road begins at Parry's Corner and goes westward crossing the Mint Street to the Wall Tax Road. When the China Bazaar came into existence it was not known that it existed so early as 1782. The formation of Popham's Broadway and the opening of shops of better class brought it into closer connection with them giving it a more respectable character. Peddunackpettah means the town or suburb of Peddunack. The head of the Police in old Madras was called Peddunack. The office was hereditary, the holder of which was sometimes called the Poligar of Madras. In the early years of this settlement, this pettah was the fashionable suburb. The Governor's Garden house was at the southern end of it, on the site of which the present General Hospital has been erected. The Company's washing garden was situated in the north of this town. It was also called Comerpettah from the colony of potters in the west of it near the canal. In 1774, there were 139 streets and 5,541 houses. The main street is Mint Street, which runs through the whole length of the town. The southern portion of the street is occupied by Chettia, Linga Chettia's castemen, Marwaris and Guzarati's live in the middle portion of it, which is hence known as Sowcarpet. The northern portion is occupied by various other castes. At the end of the street is the Government Printing Press in the building once occupied by the Madras Mint. The "Seven Wells," which supplied water to the garrison and the Europeans in the Fort is there. Govindappa Naick Street belongs to Komty Chettias. The wealth of Madras may be said to be in these two streets. The Godown Street and Bunder Street are occupied by piece-goods merchants—mostly Muhammadans—and petty cloth merchants. Pachaiyappa's College faces the Esplanade a handsome structure on Grecian model. It is a first-grade College, training students for the Arts degrees of the Madras University. The institution is the outcome of the charity of one Pachaiyappa, a merchant and dubash of the Company's days. The Hall was built in about 1810. Stringer's Street, Davidson Street and parallel streets are occupied by various merchants and Saita dealing in all sorts of goods. Popham's Broadway is an important busy street. The street was laid out by Stephen Popham about the year 1732. It runs south to north from the Esplanade to the Black Town Wall. Before Popham reclaimed this area it was a marshy ground with slopes on either side, the monsoon and drainage water forming a channel along the whole course of the Broadway. After Popham reclaimed this ground raising up its level with mud from the Hog hill, houses were built and streets formed. There were big houses on either side of the Broadway but the channel was in existence until 1782 when Popham covered it in. Before 1782 the Broadway must have looked like a Venetian street only with this difference that the water in the Broadway channel would have been black sewage water. The Loane Square which runs along this crowded part of the town is to the west of the road. Kotwalchavadi, the biggest market of Madras, is a few yards from here. Stephen Popham was a solicitor. Mrs. Fay describes him as one of the most eccentric of beings. "He is a perpetual projector, a race whose exertions have frequently benefited society, but seldom, I believe, been productive of much advantage to themselves or other families. He is at present laying plans for building what is called, 'The George Town' to a great extent and confidently expects to realise an immense fortune." At the southern end of the Broadway on the eastern side was Signior Nicolao. Manucci's garden. He was a Venetian physician who practised in Madras about 1686 after having seen service under the Moghul Emperors. His Historia Du Mogor contains a record of his experiences in India. The Y. M. C. A. building fronts the Esplanade. It is a superb structure built entirely of the beautiful sandstone brought from a quarry forty miles north of Madras. The Armenian Street contains the Roman Catholic Cathedral which was erected by the Capuchins in 1775, and the Armenian Church. Many commercial firms have their offices in this street. The two Chetti streets which are now being usurped by hardware merchants, lawyers and students, go up to the old north wall of Black Town. The enterprising Nattukottai Chetties have their quarters in Coral Merchant Street midway between the two streets towards the north end. This is surmised to be the site of an old pettah Pagadalapettah or Coral Town. The Company of those days traded in corals. The Christian College with its hostels, Principal's House, Halls and Association Rooms occupies all the southern portion of these streets. Between Armenian Street and Thambu Chetti Street rise the grand building of the late Agra Bank (now owned by the Chartered Bank of India, China and Australia). Facing the College on the Esplanade is the statue of Dr. William Miller, C.E., the popular Missionary Educationalist of Southern India.

On the Esplanade Maidan rise the grand pile of buildings of the High Court with the Madras Lighthouse erected on the central cupola; the old Lighthouse built of granite, a high column, chaste in design and execution, erected in 1844; the newly built Law College. The High Court was completed in 1892 and is a specimen of a Hindu Sarcenic style of architecture. On the north side is the Rev. Dr. Miller's statue facing the Christian College. The Christian College, a large and successful missionary institution, was founded in 1837 by the Rev. John Anderson. Adjoining the High Court Buildings is the Law College which was occupied in 1899. On the Esplanade has also been recently constructed the Central Exchange and offices of the Madras Telephone Company. To the North is situated the suburb of Royapuram. A large Community of Roman Catholic boatmen have long been living here. The shipping trade of the port of Madras has had to suffer not a little in the past by the opposition of this Community. These Christians have built a Church out of their funds. The Madras Railway had its terminus in Royapuram some years ago. During the siege of Madras by the French in 1758-59, the enemy had erected works in Muthialpettah, one at Parry's Corner and the other south of it; and the place was practically occupied by them. In 1774, there were in Muthialpettah 16 streets and 3,203 houses according to Popham's computation.

The Madras Beach is divided by the Fort St. George fortification and military zone into two big divisions. The North Beach is the busiest portion of the city. The Madras Harbour and its works and the premises of Oil Companies cover even the stands. Clive's Battery was previously to the North of the Harbour. Facing the sea on the road are Parry & Co., the National Bank, the Imperial Bank of India, the General Post Office, Best & Co., Mercantile Bank Buildings, the Bentinck Buildings of the Indian Bank, the Sea Custom Office, the Bidden Home and a number of commercial firms. South of this range of big buildings come the High Court, and the Lighthouse and the old Lighthouse column, then the Fort with the steeple of St. Mary's Church and the flagstaff; passing the Fort you get to the old Band stand which was the favourite resort in the evenings before the South Beach Road was formed. On this site there existed in Pitt's time a fishermen's hamlet. Napier Bridge, reconstructed quite recently, spans the Cocum at its mouth. Except during the rainy season a bar of sand forms itself there and closes the mouth of the river, whose current is not strong enough to force its way through the bar into the sea. To prevent the stretch from the silvery Cocum becoming a nuisance during the hot season, the bar is opened artificially and sea water is let in by the tidal action. The Marina on the South Beach is a creation of the Governor, Sir M.E. Grant Duff. He himself described it as "one of the most beautiful promenades in the world." It runs along the sea front up to the suburb of San Thome. The Octagonal Marine Villa, where the Madras University Library is being constructed, the Senate House designed by Chisholm and Queen Victoria's statue by its side, the Chepauk Palace of the Nawab of Arcot (now used as the office of the Board of Revenue) which was constructed about 1768, the Public Works Offices, the Presidency College designed by R. F. Chisholm, the Ice House, built about 1840 to store natural ice which came from America (now the Widows Home), the Queen Mary's College, the Copper House (now part of the Queen Mary's College for Women), the old Masonic Temple (now the office of the Inspector-General of Police) and the San Thome Cathedral are on the sea front on the South Beach Road and give to the city grandeur and architectural richness. Opposite the Presidency College, on the beach, is the Aquarium, which contains an interesting and representative collection of the fish found in Madras waters.

In the compound of the Senate House and facing the sea are the statues of two great Indian statesmen Mr. V. Krishnaswami Aiyar and Mr. G. K. Gokhale.

The Senate House, offices of the Board of Revenue, the Chief Engineer's Office and the Presidency College are all situate in the Chepauk Park, which is divided into two halves by the Buckingham Canal running north and south the whole length of Madras. Portions of the offices of the Board of Revenue formed the Old Chepauk Palace built by the Nawab Wallajah in 1770 and became escheat to the Government on the death of the last titular Nawab of the Carnatic in 1855. The other and western portion is occupied by the Madras Cricket Club Ground and Pavilion, the Victoria Hostel for students erected by public subscriptions and managed by a committee and the Government Hospital for Women, which was built by the Raja of Venkatagiri and public subscriptions and opened in 1890 and taken over by the Government recently.

San Thome was founded by the Portuguese about 1522. Roman Catholic Christians have long associated this town with the Apostle St. Thomas. Tradition asserts that he was buried in San Thome and his tomb is still shown. Leaving this as a debatable matter not pertinent to the founding of the town and its growth, an examination of the records of the 16th and 17th centuries and the contemporary accounts of European Travellers point to 1522 as the probable date of its founding. A church was at first built with a small monastery attached to it. It is the oldest European structure in India. Gradually a town grew up around it. In 1558, Rama Raya of Vijayanagar came here in great hopes of plunder; not finding it—as he had expected—he left the place in peace. It rose to importance between 1567 and 1582. The fame and popularity of the place increased. More churches were built. It enjoyed a large trade. Master Caesar Frederik described it in 1567 as "the fairest in all that part of the Indies." Balbi, a Venetian dealer in gems, who visited the place in 1582, refers to its fortifications. Then began its decline. In 1616, the inhabitants were found to be killing one another without any regard for human or divine laws or any shame, so that even the Moors and Gentiles abominated their wickedness. The occasion was what they call Points of Honour. De Rezende's account (1635) refers to the City being "continually harassed by the Hollanders" with the result that it was reduced both in population and commerce. When the English established their settlement at Madras the Portuguese readily accepted the English invitation to settle in their place. Its power had waned so much that in 1662 when it was threatened by the Dutch and besieged by Golconda, it yielded to the Moslem power who progress. Governor Josias Dupre turned his attention to the subject. He separated the Police from the other affairs of the settlement. The President and Council sat as Board of Police. Streets were paved under the orders of this Board, the house-holders paying the cost of portions adjacent to their properties and the Government, the remainder; public lamps were erected in the Fort and the George Town regulations were framed for the holding of markets; the sale of fish was brought under control; a regulation for the hire of servants, etc., was passed; and a Court was established to settle cases in which customs of the natives were in dispute. This Board existed only a little more than twelve months. In the first place, the constitution of this Board was according to the best legal opinion ultra vires and illegal, and repugnant to the Charter and one M. C. Bromley, Attorney in Madras, led the opposition to Government's action. There were external dangers from foreign enemies which occupied the attention of the President and Council. To make matters worse the Board came into collision with the Mayor's Court. These causes led to the dissolution of the Board on March 18, 1771. In 1776, the Company's Scavenger issued regulations for the prevention of nuisance in George Town, carts and cows not to be kept in the streets, each house to have a cess-pool, fish to be sold in a separate market. There were 70 scavenging carts. A native Overseer for the market was appointed in 1777; prices of provision were regulated and the hire of palanquin boys was fixed, a guard and poligar peons were attached to the Choultry's office to prevent riots, to maintain peace and order in the markets and streets, and to patrol the streets in the nights. Three years later a Superintendent of Police was appointed.

In 1783, the heavy arrears in the collection of scavenger's rate and the inadequate conservancy of George Town were reported to Government. 'A number of the inhabitants instead of keeping sinks in their backyards with channels to convey the muddy water there let it pass into the open streets which not only rendered it very offensive but extremely unwholesome.' The Rental-General and Scavenger to Government despaired of any success in sanitation in these circumstances. The unwillingness to pay taxes and the resistance to this impost by the lawyers and merchants was becoming a standing feature and a scandal. The Supreme Court at Calcutta gave their decision against the Government as regards their right to levy rates. Lord Macartney assembled the inhabitants and obtained their consent to the tax:—the consent being subject to the appointment of a native scavenger. There were now 90 carts where 200 would just meet the need. Mr. J. Daniel thus described the state of the town in 1785, "It is even become unwholesome to reside in the George Town. The streets in time of rain are deep canals of water, and many of the houses on each side of these canals are sunk beneath the lumps of rubbish and filth collected there, from whose exhalations after rain, it is rendered dangerous even to the inhabitants accustomed to it." The contract system of cleaning the streets was introduced in 1786, the contractor agreeing to keep 70 carts, 120 bullocks and 80 buffaloes. Popham's plan for the establishment of a Police for the better government and regulation of the Town was before Council. The residents complained of dearth of provisions, frauds by dealers, the dishonesty of servants, artificers, coolies, etc., bad roads, nuisance in the streets, robberies and thefts. A committee was appointed to consider the matter and decide remedies. The founding of a general market was recommended; the scavenger's rate voluntarily paid by the people was to be continued; but they could make no recommendation as regards Police—the very word "Police" was taboo to the hair splitting lawyers and to the company. They recommended the retention of the appointments of kotwall and scavenger and the appointment of a committee of Police.

In August 1786, the Government appointed a committee of "Regulation" avoiding the word Police. The maintenance and repair of roads were placed in charge of a Superintendent of company's gardens, a new appointment created in December. In the following year Kotwalchavadi was built and a regulation of prices of provisions, etc., was passed. The law officers in England pronounced against the scavenging rate, which was therefore suspended in December, 1790. The Company at the same time applied to the Government for Parliamentary sanction to levy taxes. In 1791, the Committee of Regulation was abolished as also the office of scavenger and kotwal. At length the long desired power was given by an act of George III. Additional Justices of the Peace could be appointed by the Governor-General. A Justice's department was created. The Justices had judicial and administrative functions.

The Statute legalised the collections of assessment on houses and lands in the Presidency Towns for expenditure upon their good order and Government. Municipal Government proper in Madras began only in 1791. The Justices in Session had a sort of control over the local Police: they collected the assessment, attended to the making and maintenance of roads, the sanitation of the town. Town cleaning was effected by contract under the control of two officers called Surveyors and Collectors of assessment. The contractor maintained 6 carts for the Fort and 34 carts for the Black Town. In 1797 the inhabitants represented that they would have no more cleaning and repairs—so much was the popular unwillingness to be controlled or interfered with, even though it concerned such a vital matter as sanitation. Though a legal basis was given by this Act, the administration of the Justices in session was not such smooth sailing as one would expect. The Town Poligar or Poddanaick held office under a new cowl from Lord Hobart. A Police Committee was instituted by Lord Hobart to remedy the defect in the Charter of 1753 which prevented the Mayor's Court from interfering with Police administration. In 1800, the policing of the Town was reformed, and a Superintendent of Police was placed at its head. This officer later on became the Chief Presidency Magistrate. The cost of the Police was a Municipal charge for some years. Now the Police are paid by Government. Sir William Robinson recognised the whole Police in 1858. The finances of the Justices in session were never quite equal to the burdens thrown on them and Government had often to contribute to its fund. The market was also under the control of the Police Committee of Lord Hobart. The supply of provisions was done by contract for sometime until the complaints of mismanagement of the market by the Police reached Government. It is open to any person to sell provisions provided he satisfies rules laid down by the Sanitary Department of the Municipality. Food supply has been much improved by the establishment of the Moore Market. The making and repairs of roads were attended to by the Justices in Session, of Lottery Committee and the Military Department. Street lighting was not receiving much attention from the Justices.

The drainage of the City consisted in the beginning of a few open drains with a sewer constructed later on. That system, modified and improved, continued very long. The underground system gave hopes in the beginning. The city is waiting to see what good it will do. The Seven Wells supplied water to the port and the shipping and to a few residents who chose to have the benefit of good water by paying for it. The Red Hills water supply scheme intended to supply water to the whole city was begun only in 1868, and completed in 1872. From 1883 onwards a number of legislative enactments have slowly improved the Municipal Government of the City and brought it to the present state. The City of Madras has an area of 27 square miles and any improvement of the extensive city means large expenditure of money which the City is not able to bear. The extent of the town, the sea breeze, the many large open spaces within it and the marina, the park like residences of its richer inhabitants, the absence of large mills and industries, and the Red Hills water supply, all contribute to minimise the evils due to defective sanitary arrangements. The death rate averages 40 per thousand per annum. It usually increases during the cold and rainy seasons, and is at its minimum during the dry hot months of April, May and June. The population is liable to periodical visitations of cholera and small-pox. Elephantiasis and leprosy are endemic diseases on the coastline, the former is generally seen in the form known as "Coeuin" or "elephant leg" (Elephantiasis). The land rises slightly as the distance from the sea increases, but in no part of the Municipal limits is the elevation more than 21 feet above the sea, while in many thickly-populated neighbourhoods the levels are so low as to offer serious obstacles to drainage. The new drainage works are expected to do much for the sanitation of the City. The Chief outlets for the discharge of excessive rainfall are the Cooum River, the main drain of George Town and two minor channels between the Cooum and San Thome. The heaviest rainfall usually occurs during the north-east monsoon, as much as 18 inches having been known to fall within 24 hours. The locality of the town is liable to prolonged periods of draught as well as to heavy floods.

This short history of Madras would hardly be complete without alluding to the fact that it is the only city in India that has actually been under bombardment during Great War. On the evening of September 22nd, 1914, the German cruiser "Emden" visited Madras and opened fire on the City. Several people were killed and injured and much damage was done to the large oil installation in the Harbour Premises. A commemoration stone has been placed in the High Court wall in North Beach Road, in the spot where a large shell from one of the "Emden's" gun exploded.

BUCKINGHAM CANAL.

A navigable canal was first cut from Madras northwards to the Ennore lake as long ago as the year 1806. This was known as 'Cochrane's Canal.' The extension of this short length of 15 miles of canal was soon afterwards made to the Pulicat lake, thus extending it to a length of 25 miles north of Madras Town. In 1837 this canal, which was the property of Mr. Cochrane, was taken over by Government. By the year 1857 the canal had been extended to Dugurazapatnam, 68 miles north of Madras. Then it was named the "East Coast Canal."

An entirely new canal has also been excavated, by the year 1857 from the Adyar River in the town of Madras, southwards to Sadras a total length of 35 miles. Though north of the Cooum river in Madras, for 63 miles and south of the Adyar River in the same town for 35 miles canals existed in 1857, there was no junction between both these for a distance of about 5 miles for 20 years afterwards.

By 1876, the canal had been extended from Dugurazapatnam to Krishnapatnam, 92 miles north of Madras, thereby connecting Madras with Nellore. The then famine works extended this canal to the Pennar river in 1877 for a distance of 114 miles north of Madras. In 1878 it reached the northern limit (i.e.) the Junction at Pedda Ganjam, 196 Miles north of Madras terminating in the Kistna delta system. This length of 196 miles of canal north of the Cooum River, has since been known as the 'North Canal' being one of the two sections into which the whole canal is divided.

About 1877, the connecting cut the "Junction Canal" between the Cooum and Adyar River in the town of Madras thus completed. It is in 1877, the present name Buckingham Canal was given to it. By 1882, the canal south of Madras had been cut through from Sadras, 40 miles from St. Mary's Bridge in Madras town, to its southern limit in the Mercanum backwater. This canal of 66 miles, south of Madras was known as the 'South Canal'.

The Buckingham Canal is a salt water canal, 262 miles in length, running 196 miles north and 66 miles south of Madras City along the east coast. Its southern terminus is the large Mercanum back water in the district of South Arcot and the northern limit Pedda Ganjam, in the district of Kistna, passing through South Arcot District, Chingleput District, Madras Town, Nellore District and Kistna District. The Kistna canal has communicated with the Gadavari delta. The canal, throughout its length, usually runs less than half a mile from the sea and in a few places carried so close to the sea that the tide washes the east bank.

Neighbouring Places of Interest.

AROGYA ASHRAM, AVADI.

The Avadi Farm Health Resort, which was established by Dr. A. Lakshminpathi, B.A., M.B. & C.M., Bhishakratna on 13th January, 1926 is built on the Garden System of Town-planning for the Open Air Treatment of patients and for the Physical and Moral Development of the future citizens of this country. It stands on an elevated plain of about 200 acres, on the crest of the South-Western plateau of the Red Hills Tank catchment area, at a height of over 125 feet above sea-level. The Ashram is less than ten miles distant directly from the sea-shore and so the air is invigorating and free from the smoke and dust of the city of Madras. There are fine extensive views in all directions.

THE CITY OF MADRAS.

and it is bounded on the north and west by reserved forests and beautiful lakes. All the buildings have got modern conveniences and are quite homelike. Excellent water is obtained from a borehole and a pipe line connects it with all the buildings. The treatment is mainly conducted on the lines of regulating the hygienic principles of living according to the constitution of each individual. There are trained physical instructors to look after the proper build of the body. The railway station of Avadi (M. & S. M. Ry.) is 12 miles from Madras and there is an hourly service of local trains between these two stations. The Ashram is within a furlong from the station and rooms having been provided for each building, there is now accommodation for twelve patients. All the buildings have been endowed by philanthropic gentlemen and many local bodies have contributed donations in aid of the upkeep of this Ashram.

RED HILLS.

The native name of this locality is Poil Mathavaram. The village lies in a north-westerly direction about 10 miles distant from Madras. The English name is probably derived from the colour of the soil and the undulating appearance of the country, as there are no hills here in the ordinary acceptation of the term. The formation known as laterite, which is almost peculiar to India has generally the appearance of a soil. In its normal form it is a porous argillaceous rock much impregnated with iron peroxide. It is mottled with various tints of brown, red and yellow, and a considerable proportion sometimes consists of white clay. It hardens on exposure and makes a useful building stone. Some of it has recently been shown to contain a large percentage of hydrates of alumina from the ores of which aluminium is made. This place furnished laterite for the building of Cogan and Day's Fort St. George. Until about the middle of the 18th century, this stone was being quarried by the Company people under an agreement with the owner of Pullee—"the country where the Iron Stone grows"—a village at the Red Hills. Laterite is not now used for building in Madras; it serves as a good material for metalling the roads with. One of the earliest railway schemes in the Presidency is connected with the Red Hills. A light railway was in the early part of the last century constructed from the Red Hills to bring into the City the laterite required for road-making. A large lake was the centre of attraction in former times, and in its vicinity were several houses belonging to inhabitants of Madras. The aspect of the place has now, however, entirely changed since it has become the fountain-head of the Madras Water-works. The Red Hills Lake has a capacity of 100 million cubic yards. All the water is not available for supply owing to the low situation of the lake. The average annual supply is 415 million cubic feet which is insufficient for the needs of the City. The Corporation of Madras is contemplating the pumping of the water to the top of a ridge, 906 feet above sea-level near the lake, to be supplied from thence to the City. This has not yet been done, but the supply has been materially improved by elevated filtering beds, opened a few years ago, before railroads made it an easy matter to go for change of scene and air to Bangalore. The Nilgiris or Shevaroy and other outlying salubrious stations, the Red Hills and Ennore had strong attractions for the citizens of Madras. They were glad occasionally to escape from the heat and dust of the City and to enjoy the fresh breezes, boating, bathing and other amusements available at these two places. A few people even resided permanently there, coming into Madras during the day for business and returning at night. Very close to the lake is Connur, a railway station. The water-works channel runs very near this place where there is a temple and tank. Drinking water is taken from this tank to Madras by many native residents. Many native week-enders resort to this village which is provided with choultries.

ENNORE.

This place is about 10 miles from the Fort in a northerly direction and may be reached either by a boat plying over the Buckingham Canal, or by the ordinary carriage road through Tondiarpet and Tiruvottiyur or by the East Coast Railway. Its Tamil name is Kuttivakkam. It was given to Governor Pitt in 1708 by Jaud Khan. Its chief attraction is the large salt-water lake in which visitors bathe, fish and sail. Even so early as 1746 it was one of the three places outside Madras where the Company's servants had their country residence. It has been the scene of many regattas. The gayest time that Ennore has known was perhaps when Sir Henry Pottinger was Governor Madras. He had a great liking for the place, and built there a commodious bungalow for his own use, which he generally occupied during the hot season. Madras society then frequently visited the place and the old Ennore Club House was seldom unoccupied by its members, who were always noted for their hospitality. The tide of fashion has since ebbed away from Ennore owing to the accessibility of other stations by railway. The Madras Development Co. are now trying to bring the place to its former glory by acquiring and keeping under proper repairs the old historical buildings and by constructing new residences at Ennore and Ennavoor. The lake contains excellent fish and oysters, and salt of a very superior quality is gathered from numerous pans, situated close to the creeks or inlets from the sea. The crystals are large and clear. It is shipped in large quantities to Calcutta and other ports. The sand dunes along the coast here have been converted into casuarina plantations by private persons. The formation of backwaters here and at Pulicat is due to the sand-laden currents of the sea preventing the discharge into the sea of the water and silt of the sluggish river of the Chingleput District. Further north lie Poothoppauk and Chintamani. The latter place contains the remains of a Hindu temple almost entirely embedded in sand, and at the former are some large plantations of casuarina belonging to private individuals.

PULICAT.

The village is an old Dutch settlement formed about 1609. The Dutch called it Geldra. After 1871 and until it was finally ceded to Great Britain in 1825, it was sometimes in the possession of the English and sometimes in that of the Dutch. It was once a sanatorium much frequented by residents of Madras, but the prevalence of malaria has deprived it of its popularity. Lord William Bentinck once had a house at this place. It is chiefly inhabited by Lubbays and low caste Hindus. The wealthier inhabitants carry on trade with Singapore and Malacca, and the common people are chiefly fishermen. Scarcely any trace is left of the old Dutch fort, but the ancient burial-ground, preserved from decay by Sir C. Trevelyan when Governor of Madras contains many well-cut tomb stones, some of them nearly 300 years old. Roman Catholics resort to the place in great numbers on certain of the Church's festival. The distance from Madras is by canal 25 miles. Visitors to Ennore make excursions to Pulicat, by boat, a pleasant journey of five or six hours. The lake which lies between Coromandel and Pulicat, named after the latter place is a beautiful expanse of water about 37 miles and from 8 to 11 miles in breadth.

COROMANDEL.

This retreat is separated from Pulicat by the lake just named and is bounded on the east by the sea. It is a pleasant place, and like Ennore, is visited during the hot season. The etymology of the name of this place has been variously explained, but it appears to be a corruption of karimanal (black sand), the black sand so extensively used in former days in public offices and by the people, instead of blotting paper. "Coromandel," as applied to the East Coast, is said to be derived from Chola-mandalam, i.e., the region of the Cholas, an ancient dynasty, who at one time inhabited this part of India. This village, called in Persian correspondence Shamshapalli, was granted in 1763 by Nawab Wallajah to one Muhudin Muhammad Abu Bakar for performing the duties of Kazi in Madras, etc. His grandfather was appointed as Mulla in the Mosque in George Town in 1694. There are a few houses here furnished and favourably situated, which may be occupied on payment of a monthly or daily rent. The population here too consists almost entirely of low caste Sudras, Pariahs and Lubbays numbering in all about 3,000.

LITTLE MOUNT.

About four miles south of St. George's Cathedral and near the Marmalong Bridge is a spur forming what is familiarly known as the Little Mount. Tradition says that in the cave on the Little Mount, St. Thomas the Apostle hid himself to escape persecution and that he cleft the rock with a rod in his hand and obtained water from the cleft to drink, and that pursued there by his enemies he left his footprint at the foot of the hill and escaped to the great Mount or St. Thomas Mount. The church is dedicated to St. Thomas. A festival in connection with it is annually celebrated. A great throng of people composed of the middle and lower classes generally collect to witness the usual church processions, etc., which appear to cause great excitement. Under the arches of the Marmalong Bridge may be observed various groups of excursionists, who make this their temporary abode until the close of the festival, which as a rule, lasts for a period of ten days. There is not, however, anything historical attaching to the place and beyond the festival above referred to, it is of little or no importance. Many of the company's servants resided in bungalows at the foot of the hill for change of air. People are now resorting to the place gradually in numbers and building other bungalows for permanent habitation.

GUINDY.

A little further south lies Guindy, which may be reached by a short drive from the Marmalong Bridge. At Guindy is the Governor's country seat. It is in many respects superior to the Government House at Madras, and owes its modern form to Lord Elphinstone. The park surrounding Government House is very extensive and admirably laid out. A broad and well-formed road runs direct from the main entrance which presents the facade to full view. At Guindy is the Madras Race Course, one of the best in Southern India, and here also is the principal meet of the Madras Hounds.

'ST. THOMAS' MOUNT.

Passing over the Marmalong Bridge and turning to the right, a drive of 3 miles along a well-laid-out road, beautifully shaded by an avenue of banyan trees will bring the visitor to St. Thomas' Mount, familiarly known as the Mount. Indians call it Parangimalai. This is an isolated cliff of green stone and syenite, about 220 feet above the level of the sea. The summit of the Mount is crowned by an old Roman Catholic Church, called the "Expectation of the Blessed Virgin." The building, erected in 1547, measures 109 feet by 37 feet and belongs now to the Portuguese Mission in the diocese of Mylapore. Behind the altar of this church is a curiously carved stone cross with a very ancient inscription which Dr. Burnell refers back to A. D. 800; it is attributed to Nestorians. Translated into English, this inscription reads—"Who believes in the Messiah and in God above, and in the Holy Ghost, is in favour of Him who bore the Cross." In 1687, there was said "to be a tree on the top of the Mount which is called 'Arbor tristes,' that seemeth not to flourish all the day long, but from sunset to sunrise it is exceedingly full of white blossoms, which withered and fell at mid-day, the very leaves also shut themselves up in the day times." The Mount may be ascended for a general panoramic view of the cantonment and parade-ground of the artillery, which is always quartered here. The ascent is made by a flight of some 200 steps built by the famous Armenian Petrus Uscan at his own cost. There is also a flag-staff, which used to be landmark for vessels sailing in for Madras from the south.

So early as 1651 Agent Grenhill came to St. Thomas' Mount for hawking. Streynsham Master with a party came here in 1678 to take the fresh air at St. Thomas' Mount. In 1685 the Council purchased a garden-house, it being a very commodious and pleasant place for sickly people to recover their health at and is often made use of for that purpose. In 1758 at the time of the siege of Madras there were about a dozen garden-houses at the foot on the road to Madras, one of them belonging to General Stringer Lawrence. The French plundered and destroyed his house and effects for which he was given compensation by the Company. St. Thomas' Mount exercised a great fascination on the European residents of Madras in the middle of the eighteenth century. Eyles Irwin, a young civil servant, wrote a poem in 1774 entitled "St. Thomas' Mount," the opening lines of which are:—

"Were thou St. Thomas, nearest thy sacred bright,
Successive beauties trick the ravished sight;
There orange-grove diffuse their sweets around,
And flowerets paint the variegated ground,
On every side ten thousand blooms appear,
Like Luna circled in her starry sphere."

Lord Pigot was kept a prisoner at St. Thomas' Mount in the house of Colonel Horne who was in charge of the prisoner. The Mount became the gayest place on the Coast, and on Christmas and New Year's day as well as on the Twelfth night the balls given by Messrs. Monckton, Russell and Stone were uncommonly splendid. St. Thomas Mount was the scene of one of the fiercest struggles of the Franco-British Wars in India on February 7th, 1759, between Colonel Cailland on one side and Lally on the other. In 1774 it became the head-quarters of the Madras Artillery.

The Cantonment below the hill contains some very handsome buildings—among them the various barracks for the Artillery, etc. The Garrison Church, which is a very handsome ecclesiastical building, dedicated to St. Thomas is said to be a copy of the historical Church of St. Clement Danes, Strand, London. It was built by Government in the years 1825-26 at a cost of Rs. 42,714 and was consecrated on October 31, 1830. It will accommodate 500 worshippers. The Church contains many well executed and interesting memorial of Royal Artillery officers, the most noteworthy being the famous monument to the memory of Colonel Noble, the work of the eminent sculptor Chantrey. Over the altar there is a large painting representing the appearance of Our Lord to St. Thomas; this was painted in 1881 by Lieut-Colonel J. B. Richardson, R. A., and presented by him to the Church. In the chancel of the Church there is some excellent carving in wood, the work of the Rev. James Sharp, a former Chaplain of St. Thomas Mount. In the church yard there is a handsome cenotaph to the memory of General Sydenham, a distinguished Artillery officer. The mess-house of the Royal Artillery is, perhaps, one of the most handsome of many excellent officers' mess-houses in India.

An excellent Soldiers' Institute is located at St. Thomas' Mount and is much used by the troops in the garrison. The Institute was built from funds collected by the Rev. Canon A. H. B. Brittin, M.A., to whose energy the great Soldiers' Institute at Secunderabad is entirely due. The Institute comprises a large concert hall, a billiard room, a library, reading, recreation and game rooms, a bar, supper rooms, rooms for the Superintendent, and had a lavatory, with hot and cold baths. Detached from the building is a Soldiers' Chapel or Devotional Room, and still further away, a commodious house for the accommodation of the ladies who are responsible for the internal economy of the Institute. About four acres of land are laid out for the out-door recreation of the men. Experience has proved how much the soldiers appreciate these Institutes, which are free and open without question to any man wearing the King's uniform. There are also a well-built Wesleyan and two Roman Catholic Chapels.

POONAMALLEE.

This old sanitarium for the British troops, is situated about 13 miles south-west of Madras. It can be reached in about two hours' drive along well macadamised road, or by rail via Avadi. The station is by its good drainage and general salubrity well suited for a convalescent depot. The small permanent European population of the place are chiefly pensioners. There is a Cantonment Magistrate's and a District Munsiff's Court here. A large and handsome hospital has been erected at the station.

This town was the capital of a local chief styled Naick, who was subordinate to the fugitive Vijayanagar King at Chandragiri. It was a Naick of this place who made overtures to Francis Day for the settlement of the English in his territory, and granted the present site of Fort St. George with certain privileges to build a fort and to carry on trade. Subsequently a cove was granted by the Rajah of Chandragiri which made Madras independent of the Naick of this place. The Naick at that time belonged to the Damaria family which is now represented by the Rajah of Kalahasti. His successors were not friendly to the English and frequently harassed the settlement by stopping provisions, etc. going to it. The Brahmin Naick of this place in Streynsham Masters' time was Podela Lingappa, who rose to be the Nawab (or Governor) of the Carnatic. The place was threatened by Sivaji in 1678 and plundered by the Mahrattas in 1688. Poonamalle District was granted to the British by the Nawab in 1730. The place became a military station in September 1777. To the east of the present Cantonment is the old Fort now occupied by warehouses, hospital, etc.

MAHABALIPURAM.

The city of the great Bali familiarly known to the English as the Seven Pagodas is situated on the coast about 35 miles south of Madras and about 5 miles north of Sadras. It is one of the most interesting, and to archaeologists, one of the most important, spots in Southern India. The Antiquities of the place may be divided into three groups—(1) the 5 Rathas to the south of the village, belonging probably to the latest Buddhist period; (2) the cave temples, monolithic figures, carvings, and sculptures west of the villages probably of the fifth or sixth century A. D. (these contain some marvellous reliefs, ranking with those of Ellora and Elephanta); (3) the more modern temples of Vishnu and Siva, the latter being washed by the sea. To these last two, with five other pagodas buried (according to tradition) under the sea, the place owes its English name. Quite a host of writers have described and discussed the date of these structures: Major M. W. Carr, C. S. Crole, Sir Walter Elliot, Robert Sewell, James Ferguson and others. Still no final word has yet been said therefore to be studied by the natives of the country and their meaning, as they have felt it, explained. The new school of Dr. Ananda Coomaraswami have not told the world what they have to say. The ancient monuments and scriptures of India have yet to reveal their secrets of India's past. A number of coins of all ages have been found in the neighbourhood, among other Roman, Chinese and Persian. In the neighbourhood there is a Brahmin village and an excellent new rest-house affording accommodation for six persons; egg, fowl, sea-fish and milk are always to be got. A visit to this place will repay those who take an interest in mythological and antiquarian subjects. The journey can be made in a few hours with ease and comfort by the Buckingham Canal. There is a good metalled road from Chingleput Railway Station (Refreshment Rooms) to Sadras Bridge (18 miles) where boats are taken. The journey is also often made from Madras by the Buckingham Canal; apply for boats to the Wharf. Superintendent, the Basin, Madras.

SADRAS.

Sadras, which can also be reached by the same canal, is an old Dutch settlement formed in the year 1647. Sadras is sixteen miles by road from Chingleput and is situated on the Coast and must have been during its occupation by the Dutch, an imposing place and flourishing town, but now consists merely of a few houses and a native village of no importance. It was long famous for the fine muslins produced by its looms, but now there are very few weavers and the skill which the fine muslins produced by its looms is gone. The Town was ceded to the British along with the other Dutch possessions in 1815. The fort is in a state of ruin but enough of the fortification as remains shows the great strength of the masonry and the plan of the place. The monuments of the dead which it contains are an interesting subject of study. The former official residence of the Governor is now converted into a travellers' bungalow. It is rather a curious bamboo-roof-building consisting of a hall with rooms on either side and out-offices in close proximity, the whole forming a square of considerable dimensions. A short way off from this place stands the Governor's garden-house, a quaint but a splendid edifice with towers, elevated terraces and curious arches. It is in an dilapidated state and portions of it have fallen to the ground. There are still traces of a well-laid-out garden and splendid tanks and other objects of interest about the place.

COVELONG.

Covelong about 20 miles south of Madras, was originally a Dutch settlement and a place of some strategical importance. Covelong possesses a Roman Catholic Church, a alms-house and an orphanage founded and supported by a grant from the De Monte family formerly, rich merchants in Madras. The salt pans to the west of the village are large and there is some export trade in this article. There is also the Schomtir Experimental pans, manufacturing excellent table-salt approved by Government for public consumption and is being sold as cheap as the ordinary common salt. Excellent oysters are found here. The inhabitants are chiefly fishermen and salt manufacturers. The ruins at present in existence belong to the fort called Saadat Baddar, built by Nawab Anwar-ud-din Khan. The fort was seized by stratagem by the French in 1750 and invested by Olive in 1652 when it surrendered without firing a shot.

CHINGLEPUT.

Is 36 miles south-west of Madras and at the junction of the Chingleput-Arkonam line with the South Indian Railway main line. The District Court is located here. The District Medical and Sanitary Officer, the Sub-Collector, Sub-Judge, a District Munsiff, a Tahsildar, have their headquarters in this place. It has a Municipality. It contains besides the Reformatory School of the Presidency established in 1881 where juvenile offenders are received and trained for some useful life. Chingleput possesses the ruins of one of the most important forts in the Carnatic, a fort which is closely connected with Clive's most famous exploits, and with other important incidents of the Carnatic Wars. The Chingleput Fort is supposed to have been built in the 16th century by one Timmaraju. The lake flanked one side of it and swamps surrounded it on the other sides. This advantage and the strategic position it occupied, rendered the place useful and important in the Carnatic Wars. The hills around the town, the lake and the several lesser sheets of water make it a very picturesque spot, especially after the rains. The health of the town is good.

CONJEEVERAM.

Conjeeveram, near Madras in the District of Chingleput, is one of the seven ancient religious centres of India. (Saptapuris). While six of them are situated in the north of India, this only place lies in the south. It contains many temples dedicated to both Shiva and Vishnu Gods. Besides, there is also a Jain temple in its suburb Tirupparattikunram. This was the capital of the Pallava and Chola kings for a long time. The town is full of temples, dating from the earliest period. Kailasanatha temple, with its highly cultured Prakara walls on the east, owes its founding to the Pallava King, Rajasimha, and Mahendravarma I of the Seventh Century. Vaikuntaperumal temple, having Gods in His sitting, standing and lying postures in its three tiers, contains sculptural representations around the central shrine, have carvings in two rows separated by a small belt giving explanatory notes engraved. The death of Parameswara Varman II and the subsequent events connected with the accession of Nandi Varman to the Pallava throne are recorded therein. Ekambareswara is the important of the Saiva temples. The temple of Kamakshi Amman is in the centre of the town, and the presiding deity is the Goddess Parvati, and this stands in the heart of the City.

Amongst the other Vishnu temples, the most important one is that of Varadarajaswami in Little Conjeeveram on the West of the town. This is on an artificial hillock. The hundred-pillared hall, on the north bank of the tank within the temple has splendid stone piers having figures of the various gods. Stone chains hang at the cornice of the roof of this hall. The metal figure of the central deity is a highly enchanting one. This was for some time lodged in Udayarpalayam (Trichinopoly District) during the days of the Muhammadan troubles. To commemorate this incident an annual festival going by the name "Udayarpalayam-festival" is held. The tank "Sarvatirtham" has temples on its bank, and there is a never-failing supply of water in it. There is a Mutt belonging to Sri Sankarachariar of Kumbakonam in this City, which was the original seat of this religious head of the Saivites. It was later shifted to Kumbakonam in the District of Tanjore. In the building here an Agent of the Mutt resides, looking after the properties belonging to this Institution and also attending to the service of the Adi Sankara image lodged in it.

PERUMBAKKAM.

Is a village about 14 miles north west of Conjeeveram. It was here that Colonel Baillie's force was annihilated by Haidar Ali in 1870. This defeat has been depicted in a fresco in the Darya Daulat, Haidar's garden-house in Seringapatam.

KARUNGULI.

Is a village in the Madurantakam taluk. It is a railway station on the South Indian Railway line. It was once the head-quarters of the district and an important strategic point in the Carnatic line.

Wars. Wandiwash, Uttaramerur, Chingleput and this place formed a sort of quadripartite on the line of attack between Madras and Pondicherry. The circumference of the fort of Karunguli is 1,500 yards. The Fort is the "best battered" fort of the Carnatic for it was taken and retaken a hundred times and was the scene of many Homeric deeds. The most famous incident in its history was its surrender to Coot's army in 1759.

PALLAVARAM.

Is a town 3 miles south of St. Thomas' Mount. It used to be called the Presidency Cantonment, native troops being kept there for garrisoning and protecting the Presidency Town. The place is healthy, though hot, and water is good and abundant. It is a place of residence for European pensioners and a depot for native infantry. There were once many tanneries which have been closed by the cessation of American demand in consequence of the adoption of chrome tanning. The hills near Pallavaram contain the best specimens of Sir Thomas Holland's Charnockite series of Archaean gneissic and plutonic rocks. In 1732 George Marton Pitt erected a sea-gate colonnade in Fort St. George. It was an avenue of four rows of pillars made of thirty-two columns of Pallavaram gneiss. These columns may still be seen in the new Council Chamber in the Fort. Pallavaram rocks were also utilised in the construction of the Madras Harbour.

SRIPERUMBUDUR.

Is on the western trunk road, 25 miles from Madras. It is the birth-place of Sri Ramanuja the founder of the Vishishtadvaita School of Philosophy and contains a temple dedicated to him executed in the beautiful style of the early Vijayanagar architecture with excellent sculpture. It is a place of pilgrimage for Vaishnavite Hindus throughout India.

TIRUVALLUR.

Is the head quarters of the taluk of the same name and is 3 miles from the Tiruvallur Railway Station on the Madras Railway line. The town contains a temple dedicated to Siva and three to Vishnu. Siva's temple is an older building in the usual Dravidian style. The chief Vishnu temple of Sri Viraraghavaswami attracts large crowds of people on New Moon days. A bath in the temple tank and throwing of molasses into it and visit to the temple are done by devotees on that day. The place is important as the head-quarters of Ahobileram Mutt of the Vadagalai section of Sri Vaishnavites. The place was plundered in 1740 by the Mahrattas.

SAIDAPET.

Is a Municipality and is 5 miles from Fort St. George and is the district head-quarters of Chingleput. It is practically a suburb of Madras, and within easy reach of Madras by the South Indian Railway line, and recently by motor buses. It has been the residence of officials, etc., working in Madras. The Teachers' College is located here. The Government have recently provided quarters for its subordinate staff at this place and the Colony is known as Todhunternagar. The building is situated on the bank of the Adyar which is crossed by the Marmalong Bridge. Weaving and dyeing are its chief industries.

SEMBIUM.

Is very near the Perambur Railway Station on the Madras Railway line. The Railway Workshops are here. It is almost a suburb of Madras and being a healthy locality with good water, it is growing on population. There are many Anglo-Indians here, mostly those connected with the Perambur Works.

TIRUKALIKUNDRAM.

Otherwise known as Pakshithiratham—is on the road from Chingleput to Sadras. It is an important place of pilgrimage. There is a Siva temple on a small hill, about 500 feet above sea-level and a tank at the foot. Two kites come here every day in the month and are fed by a Pandaram. They are supposed to be coming here every day from Benares. A bath in the tank and three circumambulations of the hill are supposed to cure many ills, physical and spiritual. It is in popular opinion a sanitarium for consumptives.

TIRUVOTTIYUR.

Is a sacred town five miles north of Madras. It was granted to the English by Daud Khan in 1708, but it was not until 1717 when it was seized by Governor Collet, that the English had secured possession of it. A weaver settlement close to it on the road from Madras was established by Collet and bears his name Kalattipetta (Colletpetta). Tiruvottiyur contains an ancient Siva temple. It was one of the places visited by the Great Sri Sankaracharya. Every Friday the place is thronged by visitors from Madras. Valuable inscriptions in Grantha characters may be seen both inside and outside the temple. The place is malarial.

UTTIRAMERUR.

Is in the Madurantakam taluk and is a town of some interest. It is believed that there was a very ancient town on this site; remains of the foundations of buildings are occasionally exhumed to this day.

WALLAJABAD.

(Called also Dandu Sivaram) is very near to Conjeevaram. The place is named after Nawab Wallajah who took that title in 1776. It was made a military cantonment in 1736, on account of its natural advantages from a military point of view. The unhealthiness of the place compelled the abandonment of it as a cantonment; but it still gives its name to the 83rd Regiment of the Indian Army, formerly the 23rd Madras Light Infantry, which bears on its colours "Seringapatnam" and "Nagpur." There is some trade in oil, grain and other agricultural products. Wallajahbad was a scene of disaffection at the time of the Vellore Mutiny in 1806. Traces of the famous Wallajahbad race course are yet to be seen. The Palar river runs beside the town and the scenery is very picturesque there during the cold season.

Experiment.

Beach Road, Madras.

This aquarium has the distinction of being the only one of the kind on the Asiatic Mainland; indeed, except for the ephemeral ones erected, from time to time, in Japan, it may be claimed as the first attempt of its kind east of Suez. Designed by Mr. E. Thurston, it was erected by the Madras Government primarily with a view to give the public an opportunity of learning something of the wonderful wealth of life in the sea, at their doors, and partly to afford facilities for the study of the habits of marine animals. From the first it was an immense success; so much so that, in 1912 the then Governor of Madras, Sir Arthur Lawley, decided upon enlarging it. The present building was opened to the public on the 21st October, 1909. It remained in charge of the Superintendent of the Museum till 1919, when it was transferred to the Department of Fisheries; for the two-fold reason that this department has particular need for aquarium facilities in the carrying on of its investigations of the life histories of our local food fishes and because of the greater facilities it has for stocking and supervision. One outcome of the department's activities is the present descriptive guide; another is the installation of electric lighting and fans. That the improvements effected have been appreciated is proved by the great increase in the number of visitors.

On entering the main hall, five large tanks are seen on either side; a central floor pond for fresh-water animals and a number of table aquaria complete the accommodation available for the fishes and other animals on view. The aeration of the water in the tanks is dual, partly by the inflow of filtered sea-water from a high level reservoir, partly by means of an air-compressor delivering air in a mist of tiny bubbles at the bottom of each tank. To obtain sufficiently minute division of the air stream, it is delivered under pressure through a filter-candle hung in the tank. By this means the water is kept so per-well aerated that it is possible to maintain a permanent state of over-crowding seldom found except temporarily in the open sea. Unfortunately it is impossible to regulate this super-aeration to suit the varying constitutional susceptibility of every kind of fish. Some suffer in consequence from a disease we may call, "gas-eye." It arises from an excess of air finding its way into the blood stream, by absorption through the gill membranes; the outward sign of the disease is the partial protrusion of the eye-ball. Some fish thus affected, eventually recover and all do so quickly if transferred to ordinary sea-water. The majority, if left in the tanks and unmolested, sicken and die, the actual cause of death being asphyxiation.

But usually the sight of a protruding eye-ball is the signal for an onslaught by its companions, particularly of certain species who begin by viciously tearing out the offending eye and end by killing the victim if they can possibly manage it. Animal life in the sea has no place in its economy for hospitals and pinjrapoles. As a consequence one never meets a cripple and very seldom a diseased animal in the sea; life there is for the healthy and the strong alone. The installation of electric light enables the tanks to be brilliantly illuminated after dark; it is an improvement that has been greatly appreciated.

In some respects the fishes are actually seen to better advantage than under daylight conditions; troublesome reflections caused by bright sunshine blowing in through doors and ventilators are eliminated, while the flexibility permitted by the use of electric bulbs enables the tanks to be seen from the best possible angle. The fishes show perfect tolerance of this artificial lighting, however brilliant it may be. All the fishes exhibited have been obtained in the neighbouring sea. Varied as is the collection, it represents but a tithe of the common species in Madras waters. Many, such as the hilsa, sardines and the mackerel, are too delicate to stand handling and transport to the tanks. Others are unattractive or too bulky for exhibit and if accommodation is too scanty to permit of showing all the interesting fishes procurable, practically none is available for the host of lower forms of life that constitute such charming features of public aquaria in Europe. We get in Indian seas gaudily coloured and quaintly fashioned crabs, wonderfully spiny lobsters, huge prawn with antennae, a couple of feet long, sea-cucumbers in sleazy dress of purple and canary yellow crimson cushion starfishes covered with great knobs, lovely purple sea-urechins armed cap-a-pie with poisonous lances, jelly fishes and violet siphonophores the hue of the deep sea, pelagic snails (Janthina) kept afloat by a wonderful raft of living bubbles, to say nothing of the myriad forms of coral life found on the reefs at Pamban, Kilikkarai and Tuticorin.

Superintendent.—DR. F. H. GRAVELY.
This Museum is intended chiefly to illustrate the natural history, natural resources and manufactures of Southern India, and the manners, customs and antiquities of its inhabitants. The exhibits are arranged in two separate buildings, viz. the Old Building and the New Building (added in 1896), with the Connemara Public Library situated between them. The Old Building contains the Natural History and Archaeological sections, and also a small picture gallery. In the Natural History section will be found collections of Mammals, Birds, Reptiles, Fish, Shells, Insects, Crustacea, Corals, etc. There are also Botanic, Economic and Geological sections, the last including an extensive series of South Indian minerals. In the Archaeological department, in addition to Hindu and Jain antiquities, will be found a large and interesting collection of sculptures from the Buddhist stupa at Amaravati, which are more closely allied to specimens of ancient Greek art than to anything Dravidian. An attempt has been made to reconstruct a portion of the great rail which originally encircled the stupa. There is a valuable collection of coins which can be inspected by specialists on application to the Superintendent. The New Building contains Wood and Metal work, Pre-historic Antiquities, Ethnological collections and a collection of Arms. The exhibits include artistic manufactures from various localities, arms from Tanjore Armoury and Madras Arsenal, and a series of exhibits to illustrate the customs of pre-historic man in South India and of his descendants at the present day. Here will be found a very fine and extensive collection of South Indian bronzes, mostly from treasure trove finds, some of which reach a very high level of artistic excellence.

A research collection of botanical and zoological collections is now kept in a separate block solely for the use of research students.

The Museum is open free to the public daily, Fridays excepted from 7 A.M. to 5 P.M.

N. B.—On the first Saturday of every month, after 12 noon, male visitors are excluded and the Museum is placed in charge of female attendants to enable Goasha ladies to inspect the collections.

MADRAS RACE CLUB.

SHORT HISTORY.

Although the records of the Madras Race Club the its early days are few it is certain that a Race Course existed as far back as 1777 and that during the decade before the commencement of the second Mysore War (1791-92) Race Meetings were held on the present Course at Guindy, and a Stand for morning Racing was built by public contribution. Racing has been carried on more or less without interruption since those days, but the vicissitudes of the Club itself have been many. In an old Racing Calendar dated 1838 have been found definite records of Racing from 1791 to 1837, a matter of 46 years. It is uncertain whether a properly constituted Club was then in existence. About 1837, a Southern India Turf Club was formed and took over the Course and Stands, and existed as such until 1875—the year of the visit of the Prince of Wales (afterwards King Edward VII) to Madras. From now on interest in Racing seems to have gradually declined until in 1887 it was practically non-existent. It is recorded that at that time the balance to the credit of the Race Fund amounted to Rs. 11-13-2. In 1887 a revival of Racing was mooted and a public meeting was called by Lt.-Col. G. M. Moore, one of the old Stewards, in the following terms—"a meeting in connection with the Madras Races 1887-88 will be held at 7-30 A. M. on Monday next the 20th June in the Gymkhana Stand. H. E. the Governor has kindly consented to preside." At this meeting certain gentlemen were appointed Stewards (presumably of the Madras Races and not of the Southern India Turf Club). These Stewards assumed the possession and management of the Course and Stand and took over the balance of Rs. 11-13-2. The question as to the rights of Southern India Turf Club does not seem to have been considered. No Rules for a Race Club were passed at the Public Meeting, and up to 1895, Racing and all connected with it was carried on by the Stewards, who added to their number as occasion arose. By 1895 the balance at the credit of the Race Fund stood at Rs. 20,000. In October 1895 an appeal for Members for a properly constituted Race Club resulted in 50 Members being enrolled. In January 1896 a Public Meeting was held to consider "the question of handing over to the Madras Race Club, the funds and appurtenances now in the hands of the Stewards, Madras Races." The Madras Race Club was thus formed and exists as such to the present day, although the Rules have been considerably altered. Up to 1907 there was no afternoon Racing at Guindy. In that year it was decided to build a Stand for the purpose. A small one was erected on the top of the mound upon which is now the Members Stand, and though frail on structure it withstood the ravages of wind and sun. In 1906-07 the Races had to be abandoned on account of the failure of Messrs. Arbuthnot & Co., and loss of the entire money of the Race Club. A Gymkhana Meeting was substituted. Racing was carried on though on a small scale from now up to the outbreak of the War in 1914. During the War racing ceased altogether and it was not until 1919 that steps were taken to revive it. This revival was in a great measure due to Lord Willingdon, who had just taken over the Governorship of Madras. He was ably assisted by Major K. O. Goldie and Mr. Newman Sanders. The indefatigable efforts of these gentlemen lifted Racing in Madras from the Gymkhana Class to what is known as "Racing under Rules." It has stayed in this position ever since, and its growth to the third biggest Meeting in India is probably unprecedented for its rapidity in the annals of the Turf in the East. The increased profits generously supplemented by several of the leading Rajas enabled the Stewards to improve the amenities of the Public in the way of Stands, etc. In 1920 Funds were generally provided by the late Maharajah of Bobbili for the erection of a new and up-to-date Stand in its place. This is now called the Bobbili Stand. The next help came from Lt.-Col. Sir the Maharajah of Venkatagiri through whose generosity the Venkatagiri Stand in the First Enclosure came into being. A similar contribution kindly made by the Rajah of Ramnad in 1922 enabled the Stewards to erect the Ramnad Stand in the Second Enclosure. In the meantime Weighing and Dressing Rooms had been erected and Pari mutual Buildings were established in the First Enclosure. In 1921 a paid Secretary—Major H. A. Hildebrand was first appointed. In 1922 orders were placed with the Automatic Totalizators Ltd. of Sydney for the supply of the latest form of the "Julius" Electric Tote, and this in a building designed and constructed by Messrs. Jackson and Barker, first came into operation during the Season 1923-24. It is worthy of note that this machine was the first of its improved kind to be erected in India or Ceylon. Similar ones have since been introduced at Bombay and Rangoon. The success of this new Tote was immediate, and on another page will be found a detailed description of its working. The Pari Mutual Buildings were transferred to the Second Enclosure. These have been enlarged and a shelter built between them and the Stand. In 1925 the Paddock was altered to its present position, and the Members Lunch and Tea rooms were erected, attached to the latter in a small covered stand overlooking the paddock. In 1926 the Bobbili and Venkatagiri Stands were linked together by a reinforced concrete overbridge on which 9 boxes were built. In order to relieve the difficulties of accommodation, the Stewards built near the 3 furlong post a set of 2 European Trainers Quarters and 2 Indian Quarters with pukka built stabling attached. In 1926 and 1927 further accommodation was provided by the purchase of the Race Hall Guindy and the erection of pucca stables. The winning post Bungalow was purchased in 1927 for accommodating Jockeys. The Ramnad Stand was demolished in 1930 and the 2nd stand increased to double its previous size. The popularity of the Double Event demanded a separate Building and a special Double Event Tote was erected. In 1931 a second span to the overbridge was added giving an additional 9 boxes. In 1931 a modern style new Bungalow was built near the Paddock for the Secretary. A new wall of hollow concrete was erected on the side of the approach road between Members, gate and the end of the Secretary's Bungalow. Bungalow No. 3 at St Thomas Mt. was purchased in 1931 and a set of pucca stables erected. In 1928 Mr. Newman Sanders kindly presented a new and handsome Judges Box of reinforced concrete.

THE GRIFFIN SCHEME.

During the season 1925-26, the Stewards carefully considered the problem of encouraging the local owner, as it was obviously an unsound policy as far as filling Races for English horses to have to rely entirely on horses from other parts of India. The Stewards decided therefore to import as many English thorough-bred Griffins as there were purchasers. During 1925-26, 17, 3-year-olds were landed. The price of these was guaranteed not to exceed Rs. 2,500 landed at Madras, and in fact worked out to less. On arrival of a batch they were drawn for by members, who had applied previously. Up-to-date 138 horses have been imported under this scheme, and many of these have turned out very well, not only in their own class for which Races are given at Madras, Ootacamund, Bangalore and Mysore but also in the open class. The Stewards intend to continue with the scheme so long as there are prospective purchasers, and suggest that the scheme offers great possibilities to members, who may not be in a position to buy a horse on their own, but who might under this scheme share the purchase price with one or two others. In future the price of Griffins will be Rs. 3,000 C.I.F. Madras including Insurance for 3 months. After the horses have landed all expenses incurred in the way of landing charges, feed &c. will be added to the original price. No kit except head collar and ropes will be issued; so trainers should send anything else required when taking over the horses.

The Madras Race Club Griffin are holding their own with other horses which are being imported at a much higher price.

Any member requiring a griffin may obtain a form of application from the Secretary.

Note.—As instances have occurred of Members buying Griffins and not running them in Southern India, the Stewards would like to point out that they inaugurated this Griffin Scheme not only for the small Owner, but for the benefit of racing generally in Madras and Southern India and they expect their Griffins to be run in these parts, provided they are eligible, in preference to other parts of India. The Stewards reserve to themselves the right to refuse to sell Griffins to Members who find themselves unable to comply with this condition.

Also it is hoped that Griffins still in the Griffins Class, if for sale, will be offered for sale in the first place to those who are eligible to buy Madras Race Club Griffins.

CORPORATION OF MADRAS.

The idea of establishing a Corporation for the city of Madras was first suggested by the Court of Directors. King James II was pleased to grant a charter and it was issued under the Company's seal on the 30th December, 1637. The Corporation was installed on Saturday the 29th September, 1688. There were 8 Aldermen presided over by the Mayor. They "lay an equal and indifferent tax upon all inhabitants" for building a town hall, school and a public gaol for criminals and debtors. Owing to the troublous condition of the times no direct municipal tax was actually levied. The President and the Council of Fort St. George were requested in the year 1689 to assign over to the Corporation the petty dues of Bank Sill Toll measuring of grain and weighing of goods as was usual in all the Corporations of England. In spite of this grant, the Corporation does not appear to have prospered for two years. To secure better administration the original charter was renewed from time to time and the last one granted directly by the Crown was in the year 1753.

At the close of the 18th century the administration of the Municipal affairs was placed on a new footing. It derived its authority from an Act of Parliament. In the preamble of 33 George III the object of Municipal administration was stated to be that the streets should be regularly and effectively cleansed, watched and repaired and that scavengers should be appointed for the purpose.

It was necessary to open new avenues of taxation to meet the requirements of a growing city. Successive enactments were introduced with the object of raising revenue from fresh sources.

CHURCHES AND CHAPELS IN MADRAS.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

THE CATHEDRAL CHURCH OF ST. GEORGE,

TREMAMPET.

The Church is situated on the Mount Road about three miles from Fort St. George; the locality was called "Choultry Plain" in former years. It was in course of construction in 1814-15 and was opened and consecrated by Bishop Middleton on the 8th January, 1816: it is built in the classic style. De Havilland, of the Corps of Engineers, built the edifice on the plans of Col. Caldwell, R. E. The Nave is entered from the West, North and South through lofty porches supported on massive Ionic pillars, carrying entablature and pediment common to Roman architecture. The Western or main entrance contains an ample carriage porch from which the Church is entered through a vestibule with a vaulted roof, the upper portion of which is the tower containing a clock and peal of bells and terminating in a spire 189 feet above ground. On either side of the vestibule, are the vestries for the Lord Bishop, Clergy and Choristers.

The Nave is 100 feet long and 27 feet 3 inches wide (centre to centre of columns), flanked by Ionic columns 30 inches in diameter, and 25 feet 6 inches high from floor to top of capitals. The Aisles are 100 feet long and 13 feet 4 inches wide from side walls to centre of columns. The Chancel is 23 feet 6 inches long and 20 feet wide. The Chancel was extended in 1837, and finished with a semi-circular apse with windows fitted with stained glass; subsequently the heads of doors and ventilators which had ordinary glass, were replaced by stained glass, and the Organ Gallery at the West end of the Nave removed. At a later period, with the renewal of the sittings, the Chancel was painted and decorated and paved with encaustic tiles. In 1891, the Chancel was further embellished with a handsome dado of glazed encaustic tiles, and the ventilation was improved. Height of roof of Chancel—32 feet.

The Nave is covered with a tiled roof and the Aisles with flat terraced roofing on teakwood supports. The Nave is ceiled in a segmental form with teak planking, painted white, with papier-mache enrichments. The Aisles are also ceiled with teak planking. Height of ceiling above floor in the Nave is 83 feet and 2 inches, and height of ceiling above floor in the Aisles is 30 feet and 1 inch. The interior walls and columns are plastered and finely polished with shell-lime, a work for which Madras is noted. The exterior is also plastered with shell-lime. The details of corner moulding, etc. are those usually seen in Roman architecture.

The edifice, as originally erected by Lieutenant-Colonel Caldwell costs Rs. 2,06,842.

The Organ is a fine instrument of three manuals by Hill & Sons of London, which has recently (November 1905) been considerably enlarged and improved. The musical services are generally recognized as of a high order.

The Tower contains a peal of eight bells, which are rung by one man by means of a climbing machine.

Bishop Middleton writes in his diary with reference to the opening services.—"Yesterday (8th January 1816) I consecrated a handsomer Church than any which I can recollect in London, supported on 13 Ionic columns, which no English eye could distinguish from marble, with a lofty and elegant spire, and standing in a field also to be consecrated of 5 or 6 acres surrounded by rows of palm trees—the whole conveys a magnificent idea of Christianity in the East. I was assisted on this occasion by seven of my clergy, a great number to bring together in this country." We should hardly nowadays endorse Bishop Middleton's eulogy of the Cathedral fabric; but without doubt the building is a fine one and full of dignity.

The "field" to which the Bishop refers was only consecrated in part, namely, that part which is now known as St. George's Cathedral Cemetery.

The Church contains some fine monuments, amongst which should be especially noticed that to "Dr. James Anderson" (died August 6th, 1809)—a wonderfully life-like and natural seated figure of the Physician-General; and that to "Bishop Heber" (drowned at Trichinopoly, April 3rd, 1826), which represents his Lordship in the act of confirmation. These two sculptures are by Chantry. There is also a fine marble statue by Flaxman to "James Stephen Lushington" B.C.S. (died 12th September, 1832, aged 28) and a figure of Faith "holding a cross in memory of the Venerable" John Mousley, D.D., first Archdeacon of Madras (died 31st August, 1819), also by Flaxman. To the memory of Dr. Daniel Corrie, the first Bishop of Madras (died 5th February, 1837), is a remarkably fine statue of heroic size, by Weekes. He is represented, imparting religious instruction to a Brahmin boy.

Bishop Deakery died 5th March, 1861 is commemorated by a piece of wall sculpture, administering Holy Orders. A curious and finely erected monument is in memory of John Mack, Assistant Surgeon (died 20th May, 1832). It exhibits a figure of Hygiea, a goddess of health, offering milk to a serpent, which drinks from the cup she holds. Among other remarkable monuments should be noticed those to John Dent M.C.S. (died 17th January, 1845), by Weekes; to William Parry (died 14th August, 1824), by W. Baily, R.A.; to Captain Andrew French and others (1824-25), a bas-relief of a battlefield, by Seivior; to Neville Somerville Cameron, M.C.S. (died 12th December, 1833); to Major George Broadfoot (died 21st December, 1845), a fine sculpture by Richardson, and to Sir Robert Henry Dick, K.C.B., K.C.H., (died 10th February, 1846). A short account of the more important memoirs and monuments in the Cathedral and adjoining Cemetery has recently been published by the Rev. B. M. Morton and may be obtained from the Cathedral Clerk.

Electric lights and fans were installed in 1911.

Archdeacon of Madras.—Venerable G. C. A. Smith, M.A. (on leave) the Rev. W. R. Crichton (Offg).

Chaplain.—Rev. H. J. Edmonds, M.A.

ST. MARY'S CHURCH.

FORT ST. GEORGE.

The ancient Church of St. Mary situated within the ramparts of Fort St. George, is not only a conspicuous landmark to all who approach the Presidency town by sea, but is also a witness to the piety and devotion of the early settlers on the Coromandel Coast in the seventeenth century. Madras itself dates from the 1st March, 1639-40.

A small Fort was erected on the site of the present Secretariat Office, and a town gradually sprang up around it. For about forty years, Divine Service was regularly held in one of the rooms of this inner Fort, but in 1677, Mr. Streynsham Master, on his arrival as Agent and Governor, set about collecting funds for the erection of a more suitable place of worship. Subscriptions were raised from all the English inhabitants, and it does not appear that any assistance was asked for or given by the Directors of the English Company. St. Mary's was the result of local effort entirely. The first sod was turned on Lady Day, March 25th, 1678, and the Church was completed and was dedicated to the Blessed Virgin Mary and opened for worship on the 28th October, 1680. It was consecrated by the Chaplain, Richard Portman, acting under commission from the Bishop of London.

The Church stands to-day exactly as it was erected, with the exception of the vestry, organ chamber, and sanctuary, which were added in the nineteenth century, and the spire, which was rebuilt at the end of the eighteenth century. The chief objects of interest in this old Church are as follow:—

The Old Tombstones.—These are situated round the north side of the Church, and form a kind of pavement. These stones were taken in 1760 from the old graveyard, which was on the site now occupied by the Law College. During the second siege of Madras by the French in 1758-59, the large monuments of the old graveyard afforded shelter to the French sharpshooters. When the siege was raised, the old burial-ground was dismantled, and the gravestones brought to St. Mary's and placed round the Church. There are among them also some which were taken from the old Capuchin Church of St. Andrew, which was destroyed in 1749, when Madras was handed back by the French after the Peace of Aix-la-Chapelle. These old stones are of great interest. The most ancient of them is that of Elizabeth Baker, the wife of Aaron Baker, the first Governor of Madras, and is dated August 5th, 1652. Most of the stones are in an extremely good state of preservation, in spite of their exposed situation.

Inside the Church are to be seen many interesting objects. Below the Chancel steps are the graves of the Governors. The tomb marked simply with a cross and the words "In Memoriam" marks the last resting place of the ill-fated Lord Pigot. After having risen from the lowest to the highest station in Madras, this unfortunate nobleman was sent out again to stem the tide of corruption among the higher civilians. He was worsted in the encounter, and, after having been arrested by the members of his council, was kept as a prisoner at the Mount until he died on the 11th May, 1707. The other Governors who lie buried here are Lord Hobart, April 1875, Sir Henry George Ward, August 1760, and Sir Thomas Munro, July 1827.

The monuments on the walls are worth noticing especially those to "Sir Bary Close Joseph Moorhouse, George Gilbert Keble, Josiah Webbe, and the famous missionary Frederick Christian Swartz." There are two fine statues. One near the organ is that of Thomas H. S. Conway, "the soldiers' friend," the other, near the Fort of Hercules Henry Pepper—both of them distinguished soldiers.

Of the old regimental colours which adorn the walls and pillars, the pair behind the pulpit are of the greatest interest. They belonged to the old 102nd Madras Fusiliers (now the Dublin Fusiliers), and were carried by that famous regiment through the Second Burmese War, 1852-53, and the Indian Mutiny, 1857-58.

One advertisement in this Directory is a permanent Salesman for you.

Over the altar is a large painting of the Last Supper. This picture is supposed to have been taken from a church in Pondicherry, when it was captured by the British in 1761. The painting is by an unknown artist, but expert opinion dates it as of the sixteenth century, and possibly by a pupil of Raphael. At any rate, it is a valuable historic work. In September 1910, the picture was restored by H. B. Millar. The carved teakwood railing of the West gallery was noticed by Lockyer in 1708. It is of oriental design and beautiful workmanship. The organ is by Hill of London, and was erected by the Rev. C. H. Malden in 1891.

The Church possesses some very fine old silver plate and ancient records and registers. These are not kept at the church, but can be seen by appointment with the Garrison Chaplain. For a detailed account of the Church and its history to the end of the eighteenth century, the reader is referred to the Rev. F. Penny's book "The Church in Madras."

EVANGEL HALL.

VEPERY, MADRAS.

This is a Missionary and Evangelistic Movement built on a staunch orthodox and Biblical basis. In the providence of God it has been mightily effective since its foundation through its literature, personal work and evangelistic activities both in the City of Madras and in the Tamil villages where people have not heard the Name of Jesus. It also occupies and does work in those fields where there are already Christian missionaries who do not believe in the Bible as the inherent Word of God. Prayer Partners in our work are earnestly solicited. As the Lord provides, it publishes its organ "The Indian Evangelist."

CHURCH OF SCOTLAND.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH, MADRAS.

POONAMALLEE ROAD, EGMORE.

On 1st September, 1815, a public notification was circulated in Madras stating that the East India Company had resolved to build a Scots Church in the Presidency Town for the benefit of its Scottish employees, and to establish there a Chaplaincy of the Church of Scotland. The notification was issued over the names of the Rev. Dr. Allan who had been sent out by the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland in the previous year, and the four members of his Kirk Session. All who intended to attach themselves to the Scots Church were called on to send in their names in order that definite information might be furnished to the Government as to the accommodation required for the new congregation.

The names are interesting as showing the part which influential Scotmen in those days took in the advancement of their Church. No doubt their position and influence explain the generous treatment meted out to the Scots congregation by the Madras Government when the Church came to be built. Besides which the two builders were members of Council and a Scotsman, the Right Hon'ble Hugh Elliot, was Governor of the Presidency. In the Church records the names are as follows:—

Robert Fullerton, C. S., Member of Council; David Hill, C. S., Secretary to Government; Kirkby Dalrymple, Merchant; William M. Taggart, Merchant.

To the notice thus issued a cordial response was made. Scotsmen rallied to their Church, and without further delay Divine Service, according to the rites of the Church of Scotland, began to be held. At first, in the absence of a church, the congregation met in the College Hall, which was temporarily fitted up by Government to suit the emergency, but the question of building a Scots' Church was diligently pushed forward. The size and influential nature of the congregation which rapidly formed under Dr. Allan's Ministry, gave weight to the petition which it soon sent up to the Government, that the Scots community might be furnished with a church of its own. To the petition the Government gave a ready assent, and requested the Kirk Session to select a suitable site and prepare plans of a suitable building for the further consideration of the Government.

There is no waste "Circulation or return" in this Directory.

Phone 3567, For Sweepstake Tickets, Post Box 159, Madras.

The present site—the most central spot in all Madras—was secured and the work of building began. Fortunately, there was then in the service of the Government, one of the ablest architects India has seen—Major Thomas Flett de Havilland of the Engineers—and to him the work was entrusted. How well he did his work may be judged by the unstinted admiration which St. Andrew's Church evokes from all who see it. "Perhaps the noblest Christian edifice in Hindustan" is what Bishop Middleton's biographer said of it,—himself no lover of the Scottish Church—and the praise is not undeserved. The foundation stone was laid by the Rev. Dr. Allan on the 6th April, 1818 and it was his privilege to solemnly dedicate the Church to the service of Almighty God, on the 25th February, 1821.

The cost of this splendid edifice was about £ 20,000, which must be deemed exceedingly moderate for a building of this description.

The edifice may be thus described: The body of the Church is a circle 81 feet and 6 inches in diameter in the clear, with a rectangular compartment east and west of it, and a portico extending beyond the latter to westward. Over the circular part is a dome, covering as it were the nave of the Church, with an annular arch round it, over what may be termed the aisles. The architrave and frieze which stand on 16 columns are of stone, but the cornice above is of brick, and on it rests the dome; of the columns four are of granite; the remainder are of what is termed in Madras "ironstone."

The dome is constructed with but a frame work of brick, running upwards from the columns towards the crown, where these ribs are terminated and united together by a circular arch of the same description. This frame work is then filled in with masonry formed of cones of pottery such as are used in Syrian roofs. The thickness of the dome at the crown is only nine inches, whence it is gradually increased to nearly twice that dimension at the cornice. Over the Syrian cones before mentioned, three courses of flat tiles are carefully laid and on them the stucco is applied. The dome of the Kirk is believed to be "unique," in that a dome of masonry fifty-one-and-a-half feet in diameter is supported on a colonnade thirty-five feet high, without beam or lintel, its height at highest point of dome being 54 feet above the pavement of the Church.

To the westward of the compartment containing the steeple stands the portico of the modern "Ionic" order upon a colonnade double its depth, surmounted by a pediment along the whole front in the tympanum, on which the sacred name JEHOVAH appears in Hebrew characters of gold on a triangle emanating rays of glory, while in the frieze below stands the name of the edifice and the date of its erection. Corresponding at the back of the building is also a triangle with two lions guarding a shield under which is inscribed:—"Auspicio Regisset Senatus Angliae," the arms and motto of the H. E. I. Company.

The steeple stands on the tower, which is raised over the vestibule to a level with the crown of the dome, rises 111 feet above it, and is divided into three storeys, giving the whole an elevation of 131½ feet above the entablatures, and 166½ feet above the pavement of the Kirk. The steeple was completed on 8th May, 1820.

The site on which the Church stands was purchased for 4,000 pagodas and covers nearly 7 acres. The soil was most unfavourable, as it is throughout the vicinity of Madras. The practice which has obtained from time immemorial in this part of India to secure edifices in such cases is that of substituting wells for the pile work used in Europe. The whole of the foundation of St. Andrew's Church is erected over numerous wells, from 10 to 14 feet deep. In 1885, the Church was beautified by the addition of rich stained glass windows and a marble font. The Church possesses a splendid grand organ by Conacher of Huddersfield, England. Some of the best views of Madras may be obtained from the Clock Tower, sanction to ascend which is readily granted by the Senior Chaplain.

For stateliness and general lightness of effect St. Andrew's is probably unsurpassed by any building of the same size, while the marble pavement of the aisles and the highly polished Madras chunam pillars give to the Church an air of purity and grateful coolness that is much appreciated by the worshippers. It is a Church to be proud of and thankful for.

ROMAN CATHOLIC.

THE CHURCH OF ST. MARY OF ANGELS.

(Commonly called the Catholic Cathedral, Armenian Street.)

The Capuchin Mission of Madras was founded in 1642, under the sanction of Pope Urban, VIII., by the well-known Father Ephraim, the Pioneer of the Madras Mission, of whom Tavanier gives an interesting account. He was a native of Auxerre and brother of Monsieur de Chateaudes Bois, Councillor of Paris. He was destined for the Mission of Pegu, and in order to reach his destination he made a journey by land across the peninsula from Surat to Masulipatam. Before the English settlement at Masulipatam was broken up, he might have got a ship here to take him across the Bay of Bengal; but then there was none, and he was recommended to go 200 miles further south to the British settlement lately established at Madras. Pope Urban, VIII., erected the Capuchin Mission into a Prefecture Apostolic. When the Friars built their Armenian Street Church in 1775, they inscribed the date 1642 over the gates as a public record of their first establishment in Madras, and, on a later occasion, when the Church was repaired and the gates widened, the number was preserved at the particular request of the oldest inhabitants. The earliest Capuchins, the founders of the Madras Mission, were Ephraim de Nevers, Zenon de Bauge, Cosme de Giers, Jacques de Bourges, Esprit de Tours, Laurens d' Angouleme, Michael Ange de Bourges, Bened' Angouleme, and Thomas de Poitiers. The last named built in 1677, the Church of St. Andrew within the Fort, which was confiscated and destroyed after Lally's siege. The Capuchin Fathers were permitted to minister to the spiritual wants of the Catholic employees of the Honourable the East India Company, and had free access to the Factory albeit they were burdened with many conditions and forbidden to hold intercourse with their religious confreres in the neighbouring settlement. It is interesting to read the current of events in those far-off times. Though the English residing at Fort St. George and the Portuguese at San Thome seem to have lived in those days on rather friendly terms, there was an under-current of discontent on both sides, and the Portuguese could not relish the establishment of a Prefecture Apostolic at Madras. Father Ephraim, however, contrived to maintain a friendly intercourse with the Portuguese priests. In the year 1649, he had occasion to visit the Portuguese Factory; but he no sooner had he entered the place than he was seized by some officers of the Goa Inquisition, and carried off to Goa in a small frigate which was then ready to sail. Father Ephraim was indebted to Coota Khan, the King of Goleonda, for his release. Through many vicissitudes the Capuchin Fathers persevered in the work begun by them, and handed it down faithfully to their successors till Father John Bede Polding, a Benedictine, was nominated the first Vicar Apostolic of Madras, on the 3rd of July, 1832, but he declined the appointment, and eventually became Archbishop of Sydney. The Mission was then taken charge of by the Vicar Apostolic of Bombay, Fre Pedro D. Alcantara, Bishop of Antiphebus, till 1835, when in August of that year the Rt. Rev. Dr. Daniel O'Connor assumed the Government of the Mission. Succeeding Vicars Apostolic were Doctor Patric Carew, 1838-1842 (when he was transferred to Calcutta); Doctor John Fennelly, 1842-1868; Doctor Stephen Fennelly, 1868-1880; the most Rev. Doctor Joseph Colgan 1880-1911, in whose time the Vicariate Apostolic was raised to an Archdiocese on the establishment of the Indian Hierarchy in 1886. It was during the administration of John Fennelly that the status of the Catholic community was raised, and the claims of both military and civil Catholic British subjects were adequately recognised by Government. The influence exerted by Dr. Fennelly and by his clergy upon the European residents, and especially upon the Irish Catholic soldiers at Madras, and other military stations, may be regarded as the most important fruit of his Episcopate.

John Fennelly was brave and outspoken, and of the Daniel O'Connor type. His intrepid advocacy of the cause of his flock obtained for the Catholic community of Madras the recognition of Government. Promotion from the ranks of Catholic in the Indian Army may well be said to have been inaugurated by the strenuous exertion of this good Bishop. He was prominent in the meeting of sympathy with Sir Chas. Trevelyan, the Governor on his recall. In fact, John Fennelly was the founder of the then Madras Mission, which has now risen to be an Archdiocese. He was indefatigable in building the foundations, and spared himself in nothing. He was thoroughly unselfish, broadly tolerant of the religion of others, and ever ready to take up the cause of the poor at whatever cost. Despite all the work that fell to his share in those days of pioneer trouble and anxiety, he daily devoted two hours to teaching in the schools. He was a great and prolific writer and an unsparring controversialist. His memory is enshrined in the hearts of the generation of Madras Catholics who are rapidly passing away, while his bones lie interred in the precincts of the sanctuary of that Cathedral Church which was the arena of his life's labours. John Fennelly was succeeded by Stephen Fennelly, his brother, under whose regime the finances of the Mission were greatly improved by his tact and business habits. Doctor Joseph Colgan was nominated in private Consistory, May 1882, Bishop of Aureliopolis and Vicar Apostolic of Madras, and consecrated on the 24th August of the same year, in the Catholic Cathedral. Promoted to the Archiepiscopal dignity by the Decree of 25th November, 1886, he was proclaimed at Bangalore on the 25th January, 1887, and nominated by Pope Leo, XIII., Assistant at the Pontifical Throne, on the occasion of his Grace's Golden Jubilee, 4th February 1891. His Grace Dr. J. Colgan was called to his reward 11th February 1911, and was succeeded by the Most Rev. John Aelen, D.D., Co-adjutor Bishop and a Member of St. Joseph's Society, Mill Hill (London). Doctor Aelen was nominated Bishop of Terminiou and Co-adjutor to His Grace, the Archbishop of Madras on 2nd December 1901; consecrated at Roxendal, Holland 2nd February 1902; appointed Co-adjutor conjure successions to His Grace the Archbishop, 31st July 1902; installed Archbishop of Madras, 15th February 1911; resigned his office 15th March, 1928; died in Madras 11th February, 1929; succeeded by the most Rev. E. Moderlet, S.C.; and consecrated at St. Mary's Cathedral, Madras on 28th October, 1928.

The Cathedral Church has two transepts, with a sanctuary, sacristy, nave and side aisles built by the Italian Capuchins in 1775, and then consisted of a nave with two sides aisles, and a sanctuary under a pent roof. The pent roof was removed by Dr. O'Connor in 1847, and a flat roof put on, the walls of the nave having been raised 10 feet. The sanctuary was at the same time thrown down and enlarged, and two transepts added. His Grace Archbishop Colgan raised the roof of the side Altars to the height of the roof of the Chancel, which is now fitted up with stained glass windows. The pictures of the Crucifixion and Mary Macdalen, more than life size, is said to be one of the finest oil paintings in India.

In the Moorat Chapel, attached to the Cathedral, there is an artistic monument of Italian marble. The Moorat was the wealthiest Armenian of his day. He left charitable benefactions known as the "Moorat Fund." His monument bears the date 16th April 1816. His wife, Anna Rapheal, died 28th July 1828, aged 57. The earliest gravestone, dated 11th November, 1751, records the sepulchre of Muthu Nayakar, son of Bahu Nayakar of the Kavarai caste. The date, 22nd February, 1736, is inscribed over the resting place of "Adrian Forebeck, a merchant of this city of Madraspatnam, aged 71 years." Adrian Forebeck built a small bridge over the Adayar, 1768, as is recorded in English, Tamil Persian and Latin, on a monument half way to the Mount, outside, the Collector of Chingleput's residence at Lushington's Garden. But this is not the Marmalong Bridge which dates from 1725, and was erected by Petrus Uskan, another Armenian Catholic.

BISHOPRIC OF SAN THOME (MYLAPORE)

According to South Indian traditions, supported by the collateral testimony of the East & West (see Dr. Medleycott's "India and the Apostle St. Thomas." London, David Nutt, 1905) the Apostle S. Thomas, after preaching in various parts of India, settle down in old Mylapore (as distinguished from the Mylapore of the present day); was martyred on the hill at St. Thomas Mount and was buried in the spot on which the San Thome Cathedral now stands in A.D. 68. The Christian Church of India founded by St. Thomas, continued to flourish till the persecutions that followed in the wake of the revival of Brahmanism, when the Christian Bishops and priests were put to death and the remnants of their flocks took refuge in the mountains of Malabar. Shortly after old Mylapore was overwhelmed by the sea (which has a habit of encroaching and preceeding at this point annually) the fugitive Christians, however, kept their faith alive by furtive visits to the Grave of the Apostle in the new deserted old Mylapore, till Nestorian Missionaries and Bishops, from Persia, gathered them once again into communities, and built a church and monastery at old Mylapore, and another Church and Chapel at St. Thomas' Mount which were visited by Marco Polo and other early travellers. But by the beginning of the XVth century these buildings had fallen into ruin, till scarcely a trace of them was left when a Portuguese Royal Commission came in quest of the grave of St. Thomas, which it discovered and identified in 1523, and built a chapel over it to mark the spot.

Presently the Portuguese Town of St. Thome sprang up on the site of old Mylapore, and was subsequently fortified and made a Bishopric in 1606, by Pope Paul V. at the request of Philip II, King of Portugal when later on the Dutch took San Thome and handed it over to the Muhammadan. The Muhammadan Governors and their followers settled in the place that separated the Europeans Town of San Thome from the Brahmin Town of (new) Mylapore.

When the Bishopric of San Thome was created, the King of Portugal undertook to support it for all time: a promise which his successors have kept, notwithstanding all the vicissitudes, through which their fortunes have passed, up to the present; enjoying in return the privilege of presenting to the Pope their nominees for the Bishopric. The Bishops of San Thome originally exercised jurisdiction over all the countries bordering the Bay of Bengal, including Burma. But this jurisdiction was delimited by the "Concordat" of 1886 entered into between the Holy See and the Government of Portugal.

The present Cathedral at San Thome was built and completed in 1896, by Dr. Henry Read De Silva, who was the first to assume the title of "Bishop of Mylapore" for ordinary use, in order to avoid confusion with San Thome in Madras with San Thome, a Principal (of the West Coast of Africa), an important actual possession of Portugal. But, in official documents, the Bishops are still described as of San Thome de Meliapor.

On the occasion of the Tri-centenary of the creation of the Bishopric (1606), Dr. Theotonius de Castro, the present Bishop, had the fosse of the Grave of St. Thomas enlarged and faced with marbles, to enable pilgrims to have access to the bottom of the Grave and to enable Masses to be celebrated immediately over the Grave, according to the practice of the early Christians.

On account of "the difficulties which the execution of the Concordat of 1886 presents, the consequence of the profound changes which have taken place both in Portugal and in the Religious life in the Indies, especially since the war," as the Protocol of the 15th April, 1928, states, the following Agreement between the Holy See and Portugal concerning the Diocese of Mylapore was signed on the 11th April, 1929 and ratified on the 29th June of the same year.

PRESENT BOUNDARIES.

The Diocese of San Thome of Mylapore consists of two distinct and separate continuous territories that of San Thome and that of Tanjore. In that part of Tanjore the continuous territory of the Diocese of Mylapore now extends westwards with the addition of the two taluks of Alangudi and Tirumayam in the State of Pudukottah, belonging formerly to the Diocese of Trichinopoly, from which they have been now separated. The same territory of Tanjore now extends towards the north with the addition of (a) that portion of the taluk Nannilam situated north of the river Vettar; (b) the taluk of Mayavaram; (c) the taluk of Shiyali and (d) that part of the taluk of Chidambaram, in the District of South Arcot, which lies south of the river Vallar. In that part of San Thome which extends to the City of Madras, the Diocese of Mylapore is now extended by that territory of the Archdiocese of Madras, which forms a part of the civil district of Chingleput and is situated north of the river Palar and south of the river Cooum, being thus also included in the Diocese of San Thome that portion of the City of Madras situated south of the aforesaid river Cooum.

This system is designed in the interests of trades to obviate loss due to the non-utilization of stamped post cards and envelopes sent out by them to prospective customers.

3. Persons desiring the privilege of sending out Business Reply Cards and Envelopes for return to them by their customers with reply, should make an application to the Postmaster of the office to which the cards or envelopes are to be returned, who will transmit the application to the Postmaster-General for the issue of a permit.

4. The fee for the permit will be Rs. 10 which will be recovered in advance and the permit will remain in force for one year only from the date of issue. A fresh fee of Rs. 10 must be paid if the permit is to be renewed. The permit will be cancelled if there be a default in the payment of the unpaid postage.

5. Business Reply Cards must conform in size, form and quality to the conditions prescribed for post cards of private manufacture, i.e., they must not be more than $5\frac{1}{2}$ by $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches or less than $4\frac{1}{2}$ by 3 inches and must neither be thinner nor more flexible than the inland post cards issued by the Post Office.

6. Business Reply Cards and Envelopes must be provided by the issuer and they must bear on the address side (a) the printed name and address of the person or concern to whom they are to be delivered, (b) the permit number, (c) the name of the post office issuing the permit, (d) the words "Business Reply Envelope" or "Business Reply Card" (e) the inscription "No postage stamp necessary if posted in India" and (f) the words "postage will be paid by addressee". Sufficient space must be left for postmarking at the top of the card or envelope.

7. Business Reply Cards and Envelopes should be returned by customers only to the issuing firms or persons. They cannot be diverted to any other address by striking out the original printed name and address. 8. Business Reply Cards may be sent out by the permit-holder to his customers as reply portions of double post cards or may be enclosed with other matter, but Business Reply Envelopes must be enclosed with other matter.

* Also issued for official correspondence with the letters "On H. M. S." or "SERVICE" impressed in black ink. Stamp issued for official correspondence are service stamps. § May be utilised either for postal purposes or for the payment of stamp duty in all cases in which one-anna adhesive stamps are required under the provision of the Indian Stamp Act (II of 1899).

POST CARDS AND WRAPPERS.

Post cards, single and reply, are of two kinds, viz., Inland and International post cards. Inland post cards measure $5\frac{1}{2} \times 3\frac{1}{2}$ inches. International single post cards measure $5\frac{1}{2} \times 8\frac{1}{2}$ inches and bear a one-anna impressed stamp over printed "1" and the reply cards measure $4\frac{1}{2} \times 3\frac{1}{2}$ inches and bear a one-anna impressed stamp on each half.

Revision in the Rates of Postage for Inland Letters and Post Cards.

Letters with effect from the 15th December, 1931 the following rates of Postage will be chargeable on letters and post cards posted for transmission by the Inland post where the postage is prepaid.

For a letter not exceeding two-and-a-half tolas in weight ... One anna and 3 pies.
For every additional two-and-a-half tolas or part of that weight ... Do.

A letter posted unpaid is charged on delivery with double postage, and a letter posted insufficiently prepaid is charged on delivery with double the amount of the deficiency.

Unpaid letters, with or without covers, must be securely closed by the senders, and any such letter posted without having been securely closed will be forwarded to the Dead Letter Office to be destroyed forthwith.

The existing one-anna envelopes will continue to be sold to the public at their present price but for full pre-payment of the initial rate of postage it will be necessary for the public to affix a quarter-anna stamp to each envelope at the time of posting. Otherwise double defixing will be charged on delivery.

NOTE.—This does not apply to service unpaid letters.

Post cards.

From the same date single and reply post cards with a quarter-anna stamp affixed to each card, and to each portion of a reply card, will be sold at nine pies and one and a half-anna each respectively. Should a post card be posted without the postage having been prepaid in full, it will not be transmitted by post but will be destroyed.

Single and reply cards of private manufacture may be transmitted by post as post cards; provided that the postage is prepaid in full by means of adhesive postage stamps affixed to them, that, as regards size, they are not more than $5\frac{1}{2}$ by $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches or less than $4\frac{1}{2}$ by 3 inches, and that, as regards substance they are neither thinner nor more flexible than the Inland post cards issued by the Post Office.

For a single post card ... Nine Pies.
For a reply post card ... One-and-a-half-anna, i.e., nine pies for each portion of the reply post card.

NOTE.—This does not apply to service unpaid post cards.

All reply post cards of private manufacture must display the title "Post card" on the address side, but this title is not obligatory for single cards of private manufacture. Reply-halves of reply paid cards must bear the words "Post card" and "Reply." Whatever is printed on the address side of the Inland or International official post cards issued by the Post Office is also permissible on the address side of cards of private manufacture.

Should a post card be posted without the postage having been prepaid in full, it will be forwarded to the Dead Letter Office to be destroyed forthwith. Should either portion of a reply post card be posted without the postage having been prepaid, that portion will be forwarded to the Dead Letter Office to be destroyed forthwith.

Book Packets.

The rate of postage on book packets is half an anna for every five tolas, or part of that weight.

No communication of the nature of a letter, or having the character of a personal communication, may be enclosed with, or written upon the contents of a book packet: provided that nothing in this clause shall be held to prohibit inscriptions or entries stating who the sender is or to whom the articles are to be given, or to prohibit purely complimentary greetings from being entered, in writing or otherwise, on Christmas, New Year and Birth Day cards and similar articles.

Registered Newspapers.

The following is the definition given in the Post Office Act of newspapers which may be registered and posted for transmission by the Inland post, as "Registered Newspapers."

Every publication, consisting wholly or in great part of political or other news or articles relating thereto, or to other current topics, with or without advertisements shall be deemed a newspaper, subject to the following conditions, namely:—

- (1) that it is published in numbers at intervals if not more than thirty-one days; and
- (2) that it has a bona fide list of subscribers.

The following rates of postage will be charged on registered newspapers when posted for transmission by the Inland post or to Ceylon in accordance with the conditions set forth below:—

For every Copy of a newspaper. { Not exceeding 8 tolas in weight ... 1 anna.
Exceeding 8 tolas but not exceeding 20 tolas in weight ... 1 anna.
For every additional 20 tolas or part of that weight ... 1 anna.

Parcels.

The rates of postage on parcels are as follows:—
Parcels not exceeding 440 tolas in weight.

Not over 20 Tolas, As. 2.
40 Tolas, As. 4.

For every 40 tolas or part thereof, Four annas.
Parcels exceeding 440 tolas in weight.

For 480 tolas Rs. 8 and for every forty tolas above 480 tolas or part thereof, four annas.

NOTE.—In addition to the postage, a fee of 3 annas, for registration, is charged in the case of registered parcels. Parcels weighing over 440 tolas must be registered.

A parcel must not exceed 440 tolas in weight unless it is registered, in which case, the weight must not exceed 10 seers (800 tolas). A parcel must not be of a kind which, owing to size, shape, manner or packing, or any other cause, cannot be carried by post without serious inconvenience or risk.

Re-direction.

A postal article which cannot be delivered by the Post Office to which it is addressed owing to the addressee being elsewhere, may be re-directed free of charge to another Post Office for delivery to him.

If a postal article or a notice of its arrival has once been tendered to the addressee by the Post Office, it will not be re-directed to his addressee elsewhere.

Re-direction Fee.

A parcel re-directed to any place served by the Inland post will, save where the original address and the substituted address are within the delivery area of the same post office, or are within the same post town, be chargeable in respect of each re-direction with further postage amounting to half the prepaid rate.

Registration.

Registration makes the transmission of an article more secure as it passes through the hands of special postal officers, under special precautions. But the Post Office is not responsible for the loss of a registered article, or for any injury which its contents may sustain during its transmission through the post. The risk of injury is diminished by the use of registration envelopes (sold at all Post Offices.)

Registration is obligatory in the case of—

- (1) Any parcel exceeding 440 tolas in weight.
- (2) Any insured parcel.
- (3) Any parcel addressed to a place for which a Customs declaration is required.
- (4) Any article containing postage or other stamps or labels, or a cheque, bundi, bank note, bank post bill, bill of exchange, or the like, if the contents are either superscribed upon the cover, or are known or manifest to the officers of the Post Office owing to the transparency insecurity or insufficiency of the cover, or to any other cause.
- (5) Any article bearing the word "registered" or any other word, phrase or mark to the like effect, written or impressed on the cover.
- (6) Any registered article which is re-posted after having been delivered.
- (7) Any value-payable article.

Twice the fee for registration will be levied on the delivery of any postal article on which the fees for registration has not been prepaid.

Insurance.

Insurance covers all risks in course of transmission by post.

Registered letters, value-payable registered letters, registered parcels, and value-payable registered parcels may be insured up to the value of Rs. 600 at such branch Post Offices, and up to the value of Rs. 3,000 at such other Post Offices, as are authorized to accept articles for insurance; provided that in no case shall such value exceed the real value of the contents of the article insured. For the purpose of this rule, papers, such as securities, legal documents, etc. may be regarded as having a real value.

In addition to the postage and the fee for registration, the following further fees are charged for insurance:—

When the value insured does not exceed Rs. 100	...	3 annas.
Where the value insured exceeds Rs. 100 but does not exceed Rs. 150	...	4 "
Where the value insured exceeds Rs. 150 but does not exceed Rs. 200	...	5 "
Where the value insured exceeds Rs. 200 and up to Rs. 1000	...	2 "
For every additional Rs. 100 or fraction thereof over Rs. 1000	...	1 "

Value-payable Articles.

The value-payable system is designed to meet the requirements of persons who wish to pay for articles sent to them at the time of receipt of the articles or of the bills or railway receipts relating to them, and also to meet the requirements of traders and others who wish to recover, through the agency of the Post Office, the value of articles supplied by them.

Registered parcels, registered letters, registered book-packets and newspapers prepaid with postage at newspaper rates of postage and with registration fee may be transmitted by the Inland post as value-payable postal articles, provided that the amount specified for remittance to the sender in the case of any such postal article does not exceed 1,000 rupees, and—except in the case of postal articles sent by, or addressed to, any department of the Government or a District, Local or Municipal Board—does not include a fraction of an anna provided that such parcels, letters and packets do not contain coupons, tickets, certificates or introductions designed for the sale of goods on what is known as the "Snowball system."

There is no waste "Circulation or return" in this Directory.

The Government Rules as to Charges, Address, etc., apply to messages tendered at Railway Stations.

The Sender can prepay for a reply.

"Telegrams are delivered free beyond the Station limits only at Madras, and at all other Stations on the M. & S. M. Railway system, public telegrams will be delivered by hand only within the Station limits."

Complaints respecting delays to messages, etc., should be addressed to the General Traffic Manager, Madras.

Proper forms, on which to write messages, are available gratis, at all stations and senders are requested to use these forms only, when practicable.

At some of the principal Stations paid messages will be accepted throughout the day and night. At other Stations, the recognised hours for the acceptance of paid messages are between 8 hours and 20 hours daily.

AIR MAIL CORRESPONDENCE

190-A General rules and conditions.—Articles of the letter mail, ordinary or registered (but not insured articles or parcels), are accepted for despatch by the under-mentioned Air Mail services, subject to the following condition:—

- (i) Each article, besides conforming to the Postal regulations regarding postage, etc., must bear in the left-hand top corner of the address side a blue Air Mail label obtainable free at the post office and should be clearly and conspicuously superscribed in ink, above or below the blue label, with the name of the Air route by which it is to be transmitted. If this procedure is not adopted the articles are liable to detention. In cases in which an article is meant for transmission by air through or over a portion of the air route only, this should be indicated. For example, if an article for London is intended to be transmitted by air only up to Athens by the Karachi-England or India-England air route the article should be superscribed 'By air Karachi-Greece' or 'By air India-Greece' according to the extent to which the air service is to be utilised.
- (ii) The air fee prescribed for the route indicated as shown below which is to be paid in addition to the postage (and the registration fee in the case of registered articles) must be prepaid in full. A letter or a post card may, however, bear insufficient postage. If the value of the stamps affixed to a letter or a post card covers at least the Air fee for the route indicated, it is forwarded by Air, but double the full postage or double the deficiency in respect of postage, as the case may be, is recovered from the addressee on delivery. A packet must be prepaid with both the postage and air fee in full. If the condition concerning the full payment of the Air Mail fee is not fulfilled the article will not be sent by the air route, but will be diverted by the ordinary one, the insufficient Air fee being ignored. Air Mail correspondence will be weighed at the registration counter of the post office, if presented before posting, in order to ascertain the actual weight.

For SWEEPSTAKE TICKETS, Phone 3567, Madras.

of the article and to determine the amount of Air fee payable on it. A letter containing more than the ordinary double sheet of note paper is likely to be over half an ounce in weight. Air Mail stamps of the denominations of 2, 3, 4, 6, 8 and 12 annas are available for sale at important post offices. The prepayment of Air fee or the postage and the Air fee combined may be made by means of the special Air Mail stamps but the use of ordinary postage stamps will also be valid for this purpose. These stamps must be affixed on the obverse or address side of the articles. Embossed envelopes in commercial size, with 8 Annas Air Mail stamp and blue Air Mail Label printed on them, are also available and are sold at Rs. 4-2 a packet of 8 envelopes and annas 8 and pies 3 for each single envelope. These envelopes obviate the necessity of pasting the Air Mail Label as required on the ordinary envelope and serve to guard against pilferage of stamps.

Air Mail Postcards : Air Mail Postcards with an Air Mail Stamp of 4 annas denomination and a Blue Air Mail Label printed thereon are available at all important Post Offices for sale to the public at the face value. These postcards can be used for communication to Great Britain and Northern Ireland, France, Italy, Egypt, Greece, Palestine, Iraq, Siam, French Indo-China, Malay States or the Dutch East Indies, or to any country served by ordinary Mail Route from any other Air Ports situated in any of the countries mentioned above, for which Air Mail Correspondence is accepted. These postcards will be accepted as fully prepaid with postage and air free for transmission by Indian Internal Air Services or from Karachi. Air Mail postcards are not available for transmission by Air in Australia and to countries served through it or to any country in Africa beyond Egypt.

Note 1.—Addresses wishing to have Air Mail correspondence redirected by air are required to deposit in advance in the post office, sums sufficient to cover the air fees. In such cases the addressee should give written instructions as to the nature of the articles which they desire to be redirected by air. The post office will keep an account with each such addressee in accordance with the procedure laid down in clause 31 (1).

Note 2.—The latest safe day for posting Air Mail letters may be ascertained from the local post office. Air Mail articles posted after that day will be accepted for transmission by Air, but the connection with the mail aeroplane of that week is not guaranteed.

Note 3.—It is recommended that whenever practicable, Air Mail articles should be posted in the P.O. letter box.

AIR MAIL PARCELS.

(i). Air Mail Parcels are accepted at such Post Offices in India as accept foreign Parcels for despatch for any Post Office in Great Britain and Northern Ireland.

(ii). The limits of weight and other conditions applicable to parcels by the ordinary route will apply to Air Mail Parcels as well, except that the charges shall be on a pound scale at the rates noted below which include the postage and air fee:—

For every additional Pound or part of that weight up to 20 lbs. ... Rupees Four.

(iii). Insurance is not available.

AIR MAIL MONEY ORDERS.

The Original Money Orders will, like those despatched by the Sea route, have to be sent to Bombay. The list of Money Orders to be transmitted by the Air Route is closed by the Bombay General Post Office every Saturday for inclusion in the west bound air despatch from Karachi on the following Wednesday. The remitter should write the words "By Air Mail" across the Money Order form, and pay, in addition to the usual Money Order Commission, the Air Mail fee of Annas 2 for each Money Order irrespective of its amount.

TELEGRAMS BY AIR MAIL.

Inland telegrams are accepted at all Government telegraph offices in India and Burma for transmission by Telegraph to Karachi to be posted thence as Air Mail letters for Iraq, Palestine, Egypt, Great Britain and other countries in Europe, U. S. A. and Canada. The charges payable on such telegrams are calculated at the Indian Inland Rates according to the class (Express or Ordinary at sender's choice) plus Air Mail fee in addition to usual letter postage. If a message is to be registered before being posted, the sender will also have to pay Registration charges.

Such telegrams may be either in Code or Plain Language and should bear the entry 'P A V KARACHI' (or if for the Registered Post P A V R KARACHI) after the name and address on the form. (Communication by this combined service reduces the transit across India).

Such articles are also accepted in Burma for despatch by the Dutch or the French Air service to Calcutta for onward transmission to countries in the west by Imperial Airways service only.

To distinguish the articles to be despatched abroad by Air from Delhi or from Jodhpur from those despatched from Karachi itself, the superscription on the articles for transmission by Air from Delhi or Jodhpur should be India-Jask, India-Lingah, India-Bushire, India-Iraq, India-Palestine, India-Egypt, India-Greece, India-Jugoslavia, India-Hungary, India-Austria, India-Germany or India-England, etc., as the case may require while those intended for transmission to westbound destinations from Karachi itself should bear the superscription Karachi-Iraq, Karachi-Palestine, Karachi-Egypt, Karachi-Uganda, Karachi-Nairobi, Karachi-Rhodesia, Karachi-South Africa, Karachi-Greece, Karachi-Italy, Karachi-France or Karachi-England according to destination. THE PORTS IN THE PRESIDENCY.

There are two major ports viz., Madras and Vizagapatam, declared so in 1921 and 1925 respectively. There are also 104 minor ports, of which special mention must be made of Cochin and Tuticorin. In 1930-31, the imports at Madras were of the value of Rs. 21,61,15,024 while at other ports together the value was Rs. 18,53,86,056. During the same period the exports were of the value of Rs. 15,88,77,150 and Rs. 27,04,07,481 respectively.

MADRAS PORT.

It was in 1875 that the foundation stone for the present harbour was laid and the works were begun two years later. The harbour on the original plan was completed in 1895 with the open 515 foot entrance in the east. As this entrance was being silted up every year, a 400 ft. entrance on the north-east was opened in 1909 and the old entrance closed. There is a 9 acre boat basin for the safe harbourage of all the small craft of 900 tons and less working in the harbour. It is equipped with 1,400 feet of shallow quay wallings along side of which barges and cargo boats can lie and it is now extensively used for the landing and shipping of iron as well as for non-dutiable coasting cargo for the handling of which 17 hydraulic cranes have been installed. The boat basin also contains a slipway for the repair of vessels of 900 tons. Smaller boats and barges can also be built on an area specially reserved for this purpose.

A canal from the boat basin leads into a 2 acre timber pond equipped with small jetties and cranes and with all the facilities for handling the timber trade for which a large storage area is reserved around the pond.

The west face of the harbour has been quayed so that ships can row alongside and work cargo direct out of and into the sheds. There are three other quays for the discharge of case oil, coal, horses and cattle. The port is adequately provided with piping through which oil and petrol may be pumped into the merchants' installations from vessels. There are five transit sheds of an area of about 7 acres. The west quay has also been provided with hydraulic and electric cranes capable of working directly into and out of the folds of vessels lying alongside. Seven large warehouses, three of which are double stored of an approximate area of 365,000 square feet are available to merchants at moderate rents. Ample accommodation for passengers of all classes is provided at the south quay.

COCHIN.

In 1920 the Government of India sanctioned a project for dredging a channel approaching the port and through the bar and for dredging 129 acres of mooring space inside the harbour to a depth of 30 feet of low water and making a reclamation of 150 acres in the middle of the backwater. The first cut through the bar 400 feet wide by 32½ feet deep was completed in March 1923. The channel through the outer bar is now 3 miles long by 450 feet wide and 35 feet deep. As the dredging of the mooring area has been completed, the harbour has been in constant use by all ships from March 1930. Vessels up to 30 feet draught and 510 feet length can moor inside and a berth is available for taking any ship up to 700 feet long by 80 feet draught.

The work of construction to make the harbour an up-to-date one is in rapid progress and is expected to be complete at no distant date. The harbour scheme is financed by the Cochin Port Conservancy Board and the cost up to the beginning of 1933 may be estimated at Rs. 85 lakhs, not taking into account the expenditure of Rs. 11 lakhs spent on preliminary works.

The Port of Cochin is administered by the Madras Government with the assistance of a Port Conservancy Board consisting of official members of the Madras, Cochin and Travancore Governments and other gentlemen drawn from the mercantile community.

VIZAGAPATAM.

The works are in rapid progress and are being executed by the Government of India through the agency of the Bengal-Nagpur Railway.

TUTICORIN.

The port is an open roadstead; vessels anchor according to their draught about 5 to 6 miles from the shore. A boat channel has to be maintained to a depth of 10 feet from the 2 fathoms line to the jetties, for the cargo-boats which range from 30 to 130 tons to ply between the vessels at anchor and the piers and jetties, and the work is seldom interrupted by the weather. The port is equipped with 3 piers and 3 cross jetties. The South Indian Railway runs parallel to the cross jetties from which passengers and goods can be transhipped to launches and lighters. About Rs. 17,00,000 have been spent during the last twenty years in affording facilities for trade.

THE ARTIFICIAL HARBOUR AT MADRAS.

Nature having done absolutely nothing for the provision at Madras of any kind of shelter for shipping, it has been necessary artificially to provide an enclosed artificial harbour having an area of 200 acres affording water in all weather at a cost of over a million sterling. The following is a sketch of the provision so made.

A nine-acre boat basin serves for the safe harbourage of all the small craft, from 1,000 tons downwards, working in the harbour. It is equipped with 1,400 feet of shallow quay wallings alongside of which barges and cargo boats can lie, and is now extensively used for the landing and shipping of iron and stone, as well as for non-dutiable coasting cargo, for the handling of which 17 hydraulic cranes have been provided.

A canal from the boat basin, leads into a two-acre timber pond, equipped with small jetties and cranes and with all facilities for handling the timber trade, for which a large storage area is reserved around the pond. The boat basin shelters the Trust's own fleet of some 17 vessels of 1,000 tons and downwards, which include the Trust's floating craft both self-propelling as well as non-propelling, excluding jolly boat and, in addition, accommodates about 200 lighters varying from 5 to 100 tons capacity as private enterprise seems fit to supply for the needs of the landing and shipping business.

There has also been constructed in the boat basin a slipway capable of taking vessels up to 900 tons deadweight, and an area has been reserved with a ramp leading to it on which the smaller barges and boats may be built and repaired. Close alongside the boat basin and its slipway the Trust has built its new and convenient permanent workshops, which are able to undertake all reasonable repairs to its own extensive plant and occasionally to render assistance to shipping.

The port is adequately provided with piping, through which oil and petrol may be pumped into the merchants' installations from vessels lying at their moorings.

Horses and cattle can walk straight ashore into, or can embark from, padocks without the intervention of railway wagons.

The West Quay provides ordinarily berths for four boats but during mobilisation could be used for five vessels. Back of the four berths are four transit sheds of an area of about 7 acres. Between the ship berths, spaces, equipped with 22 one-ton hydraulic cranes, have been reserved for working cargo direct in and out of lighters. Electric 8 ton and 5 ton cranes and hydraulic 35 cwt. and 5 ton cranes are provided for working cargo direct in and out of the holds of ships lying at the quay. Electric trucks and one mobile crane have been provided for the speedy transport of cargo into the sheds.

There are three other ship quays, viz., East Quay, used for coal, at the old, now closed, harbour entrance; the South Quay, used chiefly by Rangoon and Singapore passenger vessels, as well as by horse and cattle boats and the North Quay used for coal and Ground-nut traffic. All these quays, as well as the West Quay berths, are connected up by rail, on both the metre and the standard gauge, with all parts of the harbour and indeed of India. Everywhere troops and passengers pass from rail to ship's side in half-a-dozen paces.

Seven large warehouses, three of which are double-storied, of an approximate total useful area of 3,63,749 sq. ft. are available for the use of merchants at a reasonable rent.

On the South Quay, packages up to 25 tons can be lifted direct from the ship's hold and 40 tons from a lighter. Two steam cranes of 33 and 40 tons capacity, one steam crane of 15 tons and one electric crane of 5 tons capacity are provided.

Suitable accommodation for passengers of all classes, has been provided at the South Quay, at a cost of about Rs. 2,00,000.

THE MADRAS PORT TRUST'S SCALE OF RATES.

PART I.

STATEMENT OF THE CHARGES FOR CERTAIN SERVICES WHICH THE TRUST IS PREPARED TO RENDER TO THE PUBLIC AND OF THE CONDITIONS ATTACHING TO SUCH SERVICES.

1. The Trust's responsibility for goods passing through its premises.—(a) Accommodation and watching :—For the convenience of its clients, whether importers, exporters or steamer agents, the Port Trust provides and polices accommodation, covered, uncovered, locked or unlocked, as required for imports in process of transit between ship or lighter and cart or wagon and for exports in the reverse direction.

(b) Trust not responsible unless goods be definitely tendered to it for custody.—But the passage of goods into or through the Trust's premises, or its handling of them or its storing of them, for the convenience of its clients, whether under roof or not, locked or not, does not bring such goods under the bailiership of the Trust as contemplated in section 40 (1) of the Madras Port Trust Act, unless and until, in compliance with a request by the tenderers, a receipt relating thereto, as specified in section 39 (3) of the Act, shall have passed from the Trust to those tendering the goods to it for custody. In the case of export cargo, the prescribed receipt shall not be granted until the tenderer shall have complied with the conditions noted on the reverse of the Port Trust form called the "Export Application."

(c) Additional dues on exports taken into the Trust's custody.—On all goods intended for exports which, at the owner's request, the Trust takes definitely into its custody under section 39 (3) and 40 (1) of the Act and gives a receipt for, an extra charge of 2½ annas per ton shall be levied over and above the charges shown in Part II of the Scale of Rates.

(d) Owner responsible for packages under appraisal.—Goods opened by order of the Customs Department or removed by the Trust, under the instructions of the Customs Department, for examination or appraisal, shall remain at the risk of the owner until, with the permission of the Customs Department, they shall have been returned definitely by the owner to the Trust for custody and a receipt for them shall have been granted.

(e) Conditions of Trust's acceptance of baileeship.—Goods tendered for custody to the Trust as bailees, by importers, exporters, or Steamer agents, must be tendered at such places and be stacked in such manner as the Trust may appoint for the purpose from time to time, or may direct to the tenderer; and until so placed and the prescribed receipt shall have passed from the Trust to the owner, such goods shall continue to be at the owner's sole risk.

(f) Conditions on which exports in Trust's custody may pass out.—Exports which have passed into the Trust's custody, as per clause 1 (b) and (e), shall not be moved for shipment, or from the harbour premises, until the receipt given for them by the Trust to the exporter, or an acquittance of equivalent validity, shall have passed to the Trust from the exporter. But from the moment of the surrender of such receipt or of such acquittance, by the owner to the Trust, such goods shall be at the owner's sole risk notwithstanding their being in the Trust's premises and enjoying such conveniences as those referred to above in clause 1 (a).

2. The Trust's option to perform services.—(a) To land, ship or tranship goods.—Under section 39 (1) of its Act the Trust has the option to land, ship or tranship goods between vessels in the port and its wharves, quays or docks. But at present it only performs such services in the cases laid down in clause 30.

(b) To take charge of goods for delivery or shipment—Under section 89 of the Act, the Trust has the option to undertake, or to refuse to undertake, the reception, removal, portage or storage of goods brought within its premises. For goods of which it consents to take charge, the Trust shall be bound, under section 89 (3) of its Act, to give a receipt if thereunto required.

(c) Goods of which the Trust does not take charge.—But at present the Trust does not take charge of the following classes of goods, whether open or under such shelter, locked or unlocked, as it may have placed at owner's or steamer agents' disposal, viz.:—(i) exports not specifically tendered for custody under clause 1 (b); and for which a receipt has, therefore, not been granted; (ii) iron and steel, etc., the handling of which has been relinquished by the Trust to steamer agents; (iii) non-dutiable coasting cargo of which the handling has been relinquished by the Trust to steamer agents—other than the combustibles that must belanded under the Trust's combustibles permit; (iv) Government stores; (v) free goods; (vi) items printed in italics in Part II of the Scale of Rates; (vii) all goods landed outside the harbour; (viii) goods stored on rented plots or in rented sheds; (ix) goods ordinarily subject to the consolidated charge quoted in clause 30 below for which overriding delivery orders have been issued by the Steamer Agents on captains of vessels and which are delivered direct to consignees.

3. Porterage.—(a) Rates and charges.—The rates given in Part II of the Scale of Rates cover porterage by the Trust except the items printed in italics in Part II of the scale and goods landed or shipped on outside the harbour. Whenever, at the request of owners, the Trust handles any goods not ordinarily so handled, it shall levy an additional charge equal to the actual cost incurred in such handling, with 4 annas per ton as a minimum and also cramage charges, if incurred, but shall accept no responsibility in respect of cargo so handled. But in the case of packages on which the rates of harbour dues are 'per each', the portage charges shall be the actual cost incurred, subject to a minimum of 20 per cent of the scheduled harbour dues.

(b) Relinquishment of portage of iron and steel whether foreign or coasting and of all other coasting cargo by the Trust to steamer agents or others.—(i) Whenever the Trust agrees with steamer agents or others to relinquish to the latter the portage of iron or steel, whether coasting or foreign, consigned to others than to Government and landed at the boat basin iron yard the rate of harbour dues thereon shall be 14 annas per ton less than that quoted in the Scale of Rates.

(ii) Whenever the Trust agrees with the steamer agents or others to relinquish to the latter the portage of non-dutiable coasting cargo, the rates of harbour dues payable by owners of such cargo shall be 10 annas less per ton than those quoted in the Scale of Rates. This reduction shall not, however, apply to the items printed in Part II of the Scale, to goods landed outside the harbour and to goods of which the rate is "per each."

(c) Trust may collect steamer agents' portage charges.—Should an agreement be come to between the Trust and a steamer agent that the latter shall handle cargo ordinarily handled by the former, at an agreed rate, both parties to the agreement shall be at liberty to arrange, mutually, for the Trust to collect from owners and to pay the steamer agent, the agreed rate for portage, without the steamer agent being thereby constituted the Trust's contractor or agent.

4. Exports.—(a) Rebate if owners handle exports.—Should owners of exports desire to do so, they may, with the Trust's permission endorse on the "application," handle their goods themselves, and in that case they shall be granted a rebate of 2 annas per ton. But, such permission shall be given for the handling of the whole, not a part, of the exports covered by one "application."

(b) Unloading exports.—Exports arriving by road shall be unloaded and stacked by owners. Exports arriving by rail, other than ores, coal, kerosene-oil, rough stone, ballast, timber and such like shall be dealt with under the Port Trust Railway Tariff.

(c) Conditions.—For the purpose of assessing dues, all exports shall be suitably stacked for count, weight or measurement at places pointed out by the Trust. No exports shall be moved forward for shipment until all dues thereon shall have been paid.

5. Special portage.—For portage done by the Trust and not covered by harbour dues, the charge shall be the actual cost to the Trust of such portage, with 4 annas per ton as a minimum. In the case of goods on which dues are quoted "per each" the minimum charge for special portage whether the goods are landed or shipped shall be the actual cost subject to a minimum of 20 per cent of the scheduled harbour dues.

6. Transit dues on imports left lying in the Trust's premises.—(a) Intention in imposing transit dues on imports, free accommodation allowed and the scale of transit charges.—The Trust's intention in imposing transit dues on imports is not to act as warehousemen for profit, but to prevent the congestion of its sheds which experience shows to take place if its charges for shelter are too low. Such congestion is found seriously to interfere with the speedy transit through the harbour premises of goods of which owners desire to take early delivery. In order to prevent congestion the following transit dues shall be imposed:—

After allowing for such free days, excluding Sundays and Chamber of Commerce holidays, as the Trust, by resolution in meeting, may see fit to grant from time to time, transit dues shall be charged on all goods left in the Trust's premises at the following rates except during the periods in the exceptions noted below when transit dues shall not be charged:—

First Week.—

- (i) On consignments, actually landed, whose weight or measurement covers 50 tons and over annas 2 per ton per day.
- (ii) On consignments, actually landed, whose weight or measurement covers 10 tons and over but less than 50 tons, annas 4 per ton per day.
- (iii) On consignments, actually landed, whose weight or measurement covers less than 10 tons, annas 8 per ton per day.

Second week.—Twice the rates leviable for the first week per ton per day.

Succeeding period.—Thrice the rates leviable for the first week per ton per day.

Note.—For the purpose of determining the classification all fractions of a ton exceeding $\frac{1}{2}$ of a ton shall be reckoned as one ton.

If at any time the Trust should apprehend serious congestion in its transit sheds to the detriment of the rapid transit of goods through the port, it may direct the owners or consignees of any specified goods to remove such goods from the harbour premises within a given time; and should the goods not be so removed, the Trust may charge them transit dues thereon up to Rs. 10 per ton per day until the goods shall have been removed from the harbour premises. Also if the aforesaid charge should prove inadequate to ensure the removal of the goods, the Trust shall itself remove them from the transit sheds at the expense of the owners and shall stack them in any open space within its premises at the risk of the owners.

The following exceptions refer only to cargo on which transit dues are levied as per clause 6 (a).

- (1) For periods during which goods are detained by the Collector of Customs;

(2) For periods from the date of the receipt of the enquiry for the packages in the harbour office to the date of their being pointed out by the Trust's staff—during which the Trust is unable to trace packages, owing to congestion of accommodation, to wrong sorting or to incorrect tallying;

(3) For goods detained and destroyed under instructions from the Health Officer;

N. B.—The free period referred to in exceptions 1, 2 and 3 is over and above the usual free period allowed in clause 6 (a).

(4) For periods not exceeding twenty-one days calculated from the date following a vessel's completion of discharge during which goods are detained for survey and are actually certified to have been surveyed either by the steamer agents or by the Trust, excluding Sundays and holidays provided also that such goods are removed from the Trust's premises within 24 hours, excluding Sundays and holidays, after having been surveyed.

(5) For periods not exceeding two months from the date of complete discharge of a vessel's cargo,

- (i) On goods landed in excess of the manifested quantity under the various marks,
- (ii) On goods bearing port mark other than 'Madras' not originally manifested for transhipment, and
- (iii) On unclaimed goods cleared by the steamer agents.

(b) Salvaged goods.—In the case of salvaged import goods, the free days mentioned in clause 6 (a) shall be calculated from the day following the notification of salvage by the Receiver of Wrecks in the Port St. George Gazette.

(c) Dangerous goods.—On the undernoted dangerous goods, if landed at a quay and not cleared from the Trust's premises by consignees within (excluding Sundays and holidays) 24 Customs working hours after the day of landing, transit dues shall be levied at double the full rates quoted in clause 6 (a).—Matches, sulphur, glycerine, pitch, tar, creosote, acids, other than sulphuric; nitric, carbolic, muriatic and hydrochloric acids, nitrate of potash and similar alkalis.

(d) Goods on which dues are quoted "per each".—On goods for which a special rate of harbour dues "per each" is quoted, the rate of transit dues, after the free days mentioned in clause 6 (a) shall be calculated as a percentage of the harbour dues thus.—For the first week or part thereof 25 per cent. for the second week or part thereof 50 per cent., and for each of the succeeding weeks or parts thereof 100 per cent.

(e) Goods from unknown vessels.—On goods from vessels whose names are unknown, transit dues shall be charged up to a maximum of two months only.

(f) Transit dues on overcarried cargo.—When goods short-landed at Madras are overcarried to another port and brought back again, free days shall be calculated from the date of the complete discharge of the vessel which brought the goods back; but for the purpose of transit dues, such goods shall be charged at the rate applicable to the original consignment.

(g) Transit dues on cement.—The free days, as granted from time to time as laid down in clause 6 (a) shall count in the case of cement imported into Madras in casks from foreign ports from the day following that on which the consignments from a particular vessel have been declared by the steamer agents to be ready for delivery.

(h) Transit dues on timber.—For timber allowed to lie in the sorting enclosures of the timber yard or left afloat in the pond, beyond such free time as the Trust may see fit to grant from time to time, the transit dues laid down in clause 6 (a) shall be recovered from consignees. In the event of its being necessary for timber to be shifted by the direction of the Trust, in the interest of cargo generally, a special portage fee under clause 5, shall be recovered from the landers who, in their turn, shall be at liberty to recover it from the consignees.

(i) Transit dues on goods sold in auction.—Goods sold in auction shall be liable to transit dues per clause 6 (a) if not cleared within 3 working days from the date of issue of Customs Pass Order.

(j) Transit dues due to non-supply of wagons.—Goods ready for despatch within the free days but actually despatched by rail after the expiry of the free days on account of non-supply of wagons by the railways though requisitions for wagons have been made within the free days, shall pay transit dues for the entire period viz., from the day following the expiry of the free days to the date of their despatch, at the first week's rate applicable to the particular consignment. This concession shall not apply to iron and steel and timber landed at the iron and timber yards.

(k) Other conditions.—(i) With the exception of dangerous goods landed at a quay, half the above rates shall be charged if goods lie in the open without covering of tarpaulin or roof. (ii) Goods remaining uncleared at the expiry of the free days shall be liable to the "special portage" fee specified in clause 5, if shifted by the Trust in the interests of cargo generally. (iii) After transit charges begin to accrue, no allowance shall be made for Sundays or holidays. (iv) Transit dues shall be recoverable on packages which have been landed empty or partly empty.

7. Accommodation for Exports.—(a) Conveniences for exporters.—In return for its ordinary harbour dues, as per the schedule, the Trust provides accommodation, as per clause 1 (a) for the use of exporters for a period long enough, ordinarily—vide (b) below—to enable them to effect the shipment of their goods. Also, see clause 10, it places certain spaces, at a rental, at exporters' disposal. But in order to prevent, in the interest of all exporters equally, the abuse of the privilege of free accommodation and the congestion resulting therefrom, the Trust is obliged to impose penalty charges as per clause (c). But in imposing these penalty charges the trust does not thereby offer to act as warehousemen for gain; for by allowing the free days permissible under the next clause it hopes to minimise its penalty collections.

(b) Free accommodation for exports.—Exports shall stand within the Trust's premises, free of penalty charges, for such free days, as the Trust, by resolution in meeting, shall see fit to grant from time to time, excluding Sundays and Chamber of Commerce holidays, before the date of the arrival in port of the vessel in which shipment is effected, with in addition, the days the vessel remains in port.

(c) Penalty charges.—For periods, longer than the aforesaid free days, penalty charges shall be levied on all goods left in the Trust's premises at the following rates in order to prevent congestion:—

First week, per ton per day 1 anna; Second week, per ton per day 2 annas; succeeding period per ton per day 4 annas.

Half the above penalty rates shall be charged if the goods lie in the open, without cover, tarpaulin or roof.

(d) Exports that have to be shifted.—Goods remaining on hand at the expiry of the free days shall be liable for the "special portorage" fee specified in clause 5, if shifted by the Trust in the interests of cargo generally.

(e) Goods shut out from shipment.—No free days shall be allowed on goods brought into the Trust's premises and removed therefrom without a definite attempt at shipment having been made by the shipper. But intended shipments which have been shut out through no fault of the shipper, if removed from the premises shall receive the benefit of the free days, as if they had been shipped. If removed from the premises after the departure of the vessel by which they were shut out, the free period shall count up to the date of the arrival in port of the vessel by which the goods were shut out, in addition to the stay in port of that vessel and 24 hours, excluding Sundays and holidays after her departure. But for goods shut out by one vessel and subsequently shipped to another vessel, the free period as laid down in clause 7 (b) shall only count up to the date of arrival of the vessel by which the goods were actually shipped, with the proviso that no charge shall be levied in the case of goods water-borne for shipment for the period during which such goods are kept afloat in lighters.

(f) Penalty charges on goods on which harbour dues are quoted "per each".—On goods for which a special rate of harbour dues "per each" is quoted, the rate of penalty charges, after the expiry of the free days, as laid down by the Trust from time to time under clause 7 (b), shall be calculated as a percentage of the harbour dues.—For the first week or part thereof 25 per cent. for the second week or part thereof 50 per cent. and for each of the succeeding weeks or part thereof 100 per cent.

(g) Salvaged goods.—In the case of salvaged export goods the free days shall count from the date on which the goods were actually salvaged.

8. Storage of Explosives.—For such Explosives as the Trust is licensed to store and does store in its magazine, the following scale of storage shall be charged on the undelivered balance after the expiry of the same number of free days as are allowed to other imports.

Charges per pound or part of a pound per month or part of a month: first year 2 pies, second year 4 pies, and succeeding period 6 pies.

Storage shall be charged on the gross tonnage of consignments and shall be paid monthly.

9. Wharfage on Goods.—(a) General cargo.—Wharfage at the rate of one anna per maund or part of a maund per day or part of a day shall be recoverable on goods consigned by rail to Madras harbour but not removed on the day following that on which they are made available for delivery excluding Sundays and dies non. Wharfage at the above rate shall also be recoverable on goods for outward despatch which are not consigned on the same date as they are tendered to the Trust for despatch by rail.

(b) Timber.—Timber intended for despatch by rail shall occupy space adjacent to the railway tracks free of charge for five days including the date of deposit, after which a wharfage charge of four annas per 100 square feet or part thereof per day or part thereof shall be charged. Timber for export arriving by rail if deposited near the railway track, shall be liable, after the expiry of the above free days to the above wharfage fee pending its removal to allotted ground.

10. Rented Space.—(a) Allotment of space.—Persons requiring to rent space for the storage of their goods on the Trust's premises shall obtain it, if available, by making application in writing for a permit in the form prescribed by the Trust from time to time. But it shall be in the Trust's discretion to consent or to refuse to allot such space and an allotment shall, ordinarily, be refused unless the application has been made before the deposit of the goods. Rented space shall not be sub-let without the previous permission of the Trust.

(b) Owner's risk.—In applying to be let store goods on space available for rent, owners shall state that they understand that they accept all risks and responsibility for goods so stored.

(c) Open space.—For rough goods stored in the open, such as ashes, coal, coke, minerals, timber, scrap iron, firewood, redwood, stone, etc., rent shall be charged at the rate of 2 annas per day per 1,000 square feet allotted, or part thereof, from the date of allotment.

(d) Covered space.—For cargo stored in certain of the transit sheds allotted by the Trust for such purpose from time to time, the rent shall be at the rate of Rs. 5 per calendar month, or pro rata Trust or by the owners of the cargo. For space allotted in Port Trust sheds for the storage of the country pressed vegetable oils, intended for export, which cannot be stacked more than one cask high the rent leviable on the whole area of the compartment allotted for such storage shall be Rs. 3 instead of the above rate. But before he can be allotted space on these terms the lessee shall put it in writing that he understands clearly that the locking by the Trust of sheds thus partly or wholly rented to him shall not avail to make it bailee of the goods so stored, unless the receipt specified in clause 1 (b) shall have passed from the Trust to him.

(e) Merchants' warehouses.—The Trust has provided certain covered sheds for lease to merchants for the storage by them at their own entire risk, primarily of goods intended for export. The rent to be charged for these warehouses shall be at the rate of Rs. 4-8-0 per calendar month or pro rata for part thereof per 100 sq. feet except in the case of the warehouse situated South of the Anchor Road on which the rent to be charged shall be at the rate of Rs. 3-12-0 per calendar month or pro rata for part thereof per 100 sq. feet allotted or part thereof.

(f) Conditions.—The occupation of space, in the open or under cover, under rental terms shall be subject to the conditions set forth in the permit. In the absence of the permit, if imports or exports are stored on unallotted ground, double the above rents shall be charged for the respective areas from the date of occupation.

(g) Shed for coal collieries at South accretion.—Rent for the shed shall be payable by the employers of labour at Rs. 3 per day when occupied.

11. Additional charges on iron and steel.—(a) Free period allowed and the scale of charges.—After allowing for such free days, exclusive of Sundays and Chamber of Commerce holidays, as the Trust may see fit to grant, the following transit charges shall be made on undelivered balances of consignees' iron or steel, handled by steamer agents at the boat basin iron yard.

First fortnight per ton per day annas 2; second fortnight per ton per day annas 4; and succeeding period per ton per day annas 8.

(b) Shed accommodation.—On goods stored under cover in the shed allotted for sheltering certain kinds of iron and steel, transit charges shall be recovered at four times the above rates, per ton per day.

(c) Removal charges.—If, in the interests of the Trust's business, it is found necessary to shift any of such iron or steel, the charge to the consignee for its removal shall be eight annas per ton for each shift. Iron or steel, remaining unremoved, beyond the end of the day following delivery, excluding Sundays and Chamber of Commerce holidays, shall have to pay Rs. 2 per day or part of a day for each pan of 200 square feet or part thereof occupied.

(d) Overlanded and excess iron.—Steamer Agents shall be allowed a fortnight, exclusive of Sundays and Chamber of Commerce Holidays, after the expiry of the free days referred to in sub-clause (a) within which period to clear, free of transit dues, overlanded and excess iron landed at the iron yard. The charges laid down in sub-clause (a) will begin to accrue after the expiry of this period.

12. Cranage.—(a) Rates per ton.—For the craning of goods at any wharf, quay, dock, land or building in the possession or occupation of the Board, or into or from any truck or railway vehicle except that covered by clause 29, the charge for each package, by measurement at 50 cubic feet to the ton, or by weight at 20 cwt. at the Trust's option, per ton per hoist, shall be as follows:—

	Rs.	A.	P.
Up to 1 ton	...	...	0 4 0
Over 1 ton and up to 2 tons	...	...	1 8 0
Over 2 tons and up to 5 tons	...	...	2 8 0
Over 5 tons and up to 10 tons	...	...	4 0 0
Over 10 tons and up to 15 tons	...	...	5 0 0
Over 15 tons	...	...	6 0 0

Exception.—But when, in the scale, a rate is quoted per package or per animal, such rate shall cover only one craning when the goods are landed or shipped. All other craning, if incurred, shall be paid for at the rate of 25 per cent. of the harbour dues per hoist, per package or animal, subject to a maximum charge of Rs. 2-8-0 per hoist per package or animal.

(b) Iron and timber.—All goods passed in at the boat basin iron-yard, and all timber landed at the floating or non-floating boat basin timber-yard measuring 5 cubic feet and over for each piece shall pay 4 annas per ton craning, whether the cranes that have been provided are used or not. When timber measuring less than 5 cubic feet per piece is craned, craning at 4 annas per ton shall be charged. Iron, steel and timber landed elsewhere than at the boat basin iron or timber yards shall pay craning charges, as per clause 12 (a).

(c) Hire of cranes.—(i) Charges against masters, owners or agents of vessels in respect of cranes requisitioned and supplied for the loading and unloading of vessels shall be as under:—

(i) Cranes of 5 tons capacity or under—
Day.—(6 A.M. to 6 P.M.) at Rs. 1 per hour or part thereof per crane requisitioned for by each applicant and supplied, subject to a minimum of Rs. 6 per crane.

Night.—(6 P.M. to 6 A.M.) at Rs. 2-3-0 per hour or part thereof per crane requisitioned for by each applicant and supplied, subject to a minimum of Rs. 5 per crane.

The harbour dues leviable in such cases shall be a quarter of the scheduled rate laid down in Part II of the scale calculated on the weight shown in the incoming railway invoice and terminal charges shall be leviable both ways. When these goods are handled by the Trust, Portage Charges as per clause 5 of the scale shall be levied. PORT DUES.

Port dues shall be levied on vessels entering the port at the rates laid down in the second column of the schedule noted below subject to the conditions given in the third column :—

Vessels chargeable sea-going vessels of 15 tons and upwards.	Rate of Port dues per ton.	Frequency of payment in respect of the same vessel.
Foreign vessels—	Piez.
(a) Vessels engaged in trade with the Straits Settlements and Ceylon—		{ The payment of due at the port will exempt the ship or steamer for a period of 60 days from liability to pay the dues again.
(i) Ships ...	* 6+3
(ii) Steamers ...	* 6+3
(b) Other vessels—		{ The due is payable on each entry into the port.
(i) Ships ...	* 6+3
(ii) Steamers ...	* 6+3
Coasting vessels—
(c) Ships ...	* 6+3	{ The payment of the due at the port will exempt the ship for a period of 60 days from liability to pay the dues again.
(d) Steamers ...	* 6+3

Note.—(1).—Net registered tonnage is the cubic capacity of all available space for cargo and passengers. It is on this tonnage all ships are charged port dues and pilotage fees.

(2) Gross registered tonnage is the cubic capacity of the whole ship including engine-room and crew space but excludes space above deck, cabins, deck shelters, chart houses, etc.

(3) "Ship" means a sailing vessel and "steamer" a steam vessel. "Foreign ship" or "Foreign steamer" means respectively a ship or steamer not being a coasting ship or coasting steamer, provided that, for the purpose of the levy of port dues, a vessel shall not be deemed, during one and the same voyage, to be both a coasting ship or steamer and a foreign ship or steamer, but port dues shall, in respect of such voyage, be leviable on each vessel either as a coasting or as a foreign ship or steamer, whichever rate is the higher.

(4) "Coasting ship" or "coasting steamer" means respectively a ship or steamer which at any port discharges cargo exclusively from, or takes in cargo exclusively for, any port in the island of Ceylon or in any part of India between the westernmost part of Sind and the south easternmost part of Burma; and "coasting steamer" includes a coasting steam vessel having a general pass under Section 164 of the Sea Customs Act, 1878. The cargo carried by a coasting steamer may be intended ultimately for other places, but so long as she takes in and discharges such cargo exclusively from and at ports situated within the limits above specified, her character as a coasting steamer remains unaffected. A steamer plying between the continent of India and the Island of Ceylon comes under the category of coasting steamers.

(5) Fractions of half a ton and more should be counted as one ton and less than half a ton neglected.

(6) Port dues are leviable according as she is laden or in ballast or otherwise, as the case may be, only on vessels entering a port and not on those leaving one in any case.

(7) There is no provision in the Act for the full rate being assessed on a vessel arriving at a port in ballast because she afterwards leaves that port laden.

(8) In calculating the expiration of the period of exemption the day of payment should be reckoned as one of the thirty or sixty days, as the case may be, and the day of entry should be reckoned as the day of payment whether the dues are actually paid in on the day of entry or subsequently and the date on which the liability to dues is based is that on which a vessel passes the geographical limits of a port and not the day she enters the Port or Customs Office.

* The additional 3 piaz represent super dues on sea-going vessels of 15 tons and upwards except fishing boats, tug steamers, ferry steamers and river steamers.

2. Port dues shall not be levied on :—

- Any pleasure yacht (Section 48 of Act XV of 1908).
- Any vessel which, having left the port, is compelled to re-enter it by stress of weather or in consequence of having sustained any damage.
- All Government vessels and men-of-war belonging to any foreign Prince or State entering the port.

JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES.

Madras Presidency 1931—1932.

Report on the Working of.

Extracts from the Report on the working of the Indian Companies Act, 1913, the Provident Insurance Societies Act, 1912 and the Indian Life Assurance Companies Act.

The number of working companies at the beginning of the year was 896 of which 800 had share capital. During the year 94 new companies were registered as against 115 of the previous year. The number of companies at the close of the year was 935, 639 with and 96 without share capital.

The number of new registrations was fairly high despite the heavy depression all over the world because of the advantages offered by the Companies Act. The liability is limited and well defined and the risks are not great. The general decrease in registration is mainly attributable to trade depression and financial stringency. Many of the new registrations have adopted titles which in a way or other appeal to the national sentiment.

About 8 companies were floated with each of their authorised capital running into several lakhs. Two companies formerly struck off were restored to the register.

The number of private companies at the close of the year was 235. During this year no licence was granted to a company or association not for profit. Nine companies increased their capital. Fifty-five companies ceased to exist by being removed from the register or by liquidation voluntarily or by the order of the Court. The reason in the case of most of these seems to be the inability to sustain against the heavy losses as a result of financial depression.

The number of companies having a place of business in this Presidency but incorporated outside was 180. There were 134 certificated auditors of whom 17 were holders of restricted certificates. No firms were recognised to be qualified to act as auditors this year.

Four companies were prosecuted for default under the Act. Prosecutions against four others were pending at the commencement of the year. The growth of mushroom companies is becoming a serious menace to the public. Prosecution of fraudulent companies involves heavy expense and is coupled with the fact that the offences are constituted only as technical or trivial, makes the situation rather embarrassing.

There was a fall in the total receipts; the expenditure also was much less due to strict measure of economy.

The enactment of the "Madras Nidhis bill" is eagerly expected as providing a safe control of the Nidhis and Chit Funds of this Presidency.

Specific proposals for bringing the Indian Companies Act, in conformity with the English law and incorporating necessary amendments and changes have been submitted to the Government.

Under the Provident Insurance Societies Act, 13 societies were registered this year. The total number at the close of the year was 44. The Free Insurance scheme carried on by most of the societies is one the success of which is rather dubious. It cannot stand the test of Actuarial Valuation. But registration of such societies cannot be refused as the existence of such institutions in recognition by the Act. The Actuary to Government of India condemns such forms of business as unsound and sure to come to grief.

The total number of Life Assurance Companies was 13 including two new registrations. The Indian Life Assurance Companies (amendment) Act 1932 is a salutary measure as it ensures investment in India of the funds of the Assurance Companies.

PLANTING DIRECTORY.

The United Planters' Association of Southern India.

(Founded 1893.)

Registered Offices.—Mercantile Bank Buildings, North Beach, Madras; Messrs. Harrisons and Rosfield Ltd Quilon, Travancore; U. P. A. S. I. Labour Department Office, Mysore.

Head Qrs.—Mercantile Bank Buildings, 1st Line Beach, Madras, P. O. Box No. 155.

Telegraphic Address.—At all Offices and Branches.—“Upasi.”

The Association was founded as the result of a conference between the different planters' associations held at Bangalore in 1893. The first General Meeting was held at the same place in 1894. The chief object for which it was established was to promote and protect, in all parts of the world, the interests of the various planting industries in Southern India.

Membership consists of Planters' Association (of which there are now thirteen in South India, and companies, firms and persons connected with and interested in planting.)

Planters affiliated to the Association elect a Member of the Legislative Council, Madras, and the activities of the Association include a Labour Department, with six Divisional Offices under European Superintendents and Indian Agencies throughout Southern India. The Scientific Department at present employs three experts and maintains experimental stations for Tea, Rubber and Coffee respectively at Nellakotta, Mundakayam and Sidapur. The Benevolent Fund assists and relieves distress among members of the Planting Community. The Buying Agency obtains by co-operation special terms in return for prompt payment. The Association issues a fortnightly paper called The Planters' Chronicle distributed free to all planters, members of District Associations affiliated to the Association, and to many scientific bodies throughout the world. Started in 1903, it is now managed by Lieut. Commander E. L. Hill and published at Madras.

The affairs of the Association are managed by a General Committee, consisting of two representatives of each District Planters' Association and an Executive Committee made up of the Chairman, Ex-Chairman, a labour member, three representatives of District Associations; one each to represent the interest of Tea, Rubber and Coffee respectively. Four other members-in-waiting are elected at the same time to replace any casual vacancy that may occur.

The Association is represented in London by the South Indian Association in London and is affiliated to the Chamber of Commerce of Madras and the employers' Federation of Southern India, Madras and co-operates with the Indian Tea Association, Calcutta and the Travancore Combined Planters' Association of Quilon, and is a member of the Indian Tea Cess Committee, Calcutta.
