FRENCH TERRITORIES.

PONDICHERRY.

A City, Seaport, and Capital of the French Settlements in India, on the Coromandel Coast, within the South Arcot District, lying in Lat. 11° 5' 57" ; Long. 79° 52' 53". Languages :—French and Tamil.

PONDICHERRY, the Capital of the French Settlements in India, and the seat of Government was purchased by the French from the Vizianagar Raja in 1672. It is situated on a flat sandy coast south-east of a long flat hill. The settlement forms part of the delta (conamooam) of the Penniar and a great portion of its surface is alluvial. Many artesian wells have been sunk, and excellent drinking water is obtainable. The hills known as the Montanues Rouges form a natural girdle to the country about Pondicherry. The coast board of the settlement is about five miles, and its breadth from three to four miles. The climate is healthy. The territory is divided into eight municipalities.
The total superficies of the territory is estimated at 69,000 acres which, in consequence of the parcel-ment, is scattered over a space of about 173,000 acres.

The first French settlement was made here in 1674 under François Martin and the Genl. Mon-Dupleix. In 1693 it was captured by the Dutch and restored at the Peace of Ryswick in 1699. The town was besieged by the English unsuccessfully in 1748; but was taken by Sir E. Coote in 1761 and restored in 1763. It was again captured by Sir Hector Munro in 1778 and restored in 1786.
Colonel Braithwaite once more took it in 1793, and finally restored it in 1816. A very fine fort, which was built 500 yards from the sea, of brick covered with polished white plaster, was demolished by Sir Eyre Coote, in 1761. Down to the middle of the last century, Pondicherry was the finest city in India.

MUTUAL CLUB (Inc.) Agents, Tourist Agency, Gobichettipalayam, S. I.

The city now extends along the sea coast about a mile and a quarter, and is about three-quarters of a mile in breadth. The town is regularly built and is divided into two parts, the White town and the Black town, separated by a canal. The White town is by the sea-side. Its streets are regularly laid out and cut each other at right angles, and the houses are well built. There is a fine Pier 350 metres long. The Government House, a handsome building situated to the North of the Palace Duplex, is within 300 yards of the sea, near a fine statue of Duplex, inscribed "to all the glories of France," which is on a handsome pedestal of Gingee stone. The town has no port but an open Roadstead which being to windward of nine months of the year, and having less surf is superior to that at Madras. But in consequence of the small depth of water near the shore and the violence of the surf, landing can be effected only by flat-bottomed boats constructed for the purpose. There are three hotels, and a fully furnished Travellers' bungalow near the Railway Station, which is maintained by a native gentleman. Travellers can reside in this house for three days free of charge, but must make their own arrangements regarding food, etc., with the servants. The usual mode of conveyance is the pousse pousse, a sort of bath chair; jukkas and carts are also procurable.

The British India Co.'s Negapatam and Rangoon steamers call weekly, and the same Co.'s Madras and Singapore boats, once a fortnight; the Messageries and Asiatic Co.'s steamers touch at the Port every alternate week. Pondicherry is the seat of an Archbishop, and the head-quarters of the French Roman Catholic Missions; there is a fine Cathedral dedicated to Notre Dame des Anges. There is a Circle Club for Europeans, and others for natives. Pondicherry is the terminus of the Villupuram-Pondicherry branch of the South Indian Railway. The city and environs contain many fine houses in the European style, and the high culture of the soil, the numerous canals crossed by neatly constructed bridges and roads planted with trees, give to the surrounding district the appearance of a great garden.

Three miles south of Pondicherry is the village of Veerampatnam, where there is an ancient and interesting temple of the goddess Sangalaniammal (an Avatar of Kali), which attracts many pilgrims from all over the South India. Four miles south at Arankuppam is a very old Roman Catholic Church.

HYDERABAD (DECCAN).

H. E. H. THE NIZAMS DOMINION'S.

The Dominions of His Highness the Nizam lie between 15° 10' and 21° 40' North Latitude and between 74° 40' and 81° 35' East Longitude.

They occupy a tract, 82,698 square miles in area, in the central portion of the tableland of the Deccan, which, in the generally accepted sense of the term, refers to that portion of Southern India which is bounded on the north and south by the Nerbudda and the Kistna, and laterally by the Eastern and Western Ghâts. The Dominions are bounded on the North by the district of Khandesh and the river Tapti, which separates them from the district of Berhampur in the Bombay Presidency, and on the South by the rivers Tungabhadra and Kistna, forming the northern boundary of the districts of Bellary, Kurnool and Guntur, and by the district of Kistna, all in the Madras Presidency; on the East by the rivers Wardha and Godavari, which flow along the Western limits of the districts of Chanda and Sironcha, in the Central Provinces; and on the West by the districts of Dharwar, Kaladgi, Sholapur and Ahmednagar, all in the Bombay Presidency. A portion of the river Sina also forms the western boundary of the Nizam's Dominions, but the taluks of Jamker, Barsi and a part of Kaigam, all in British territory, are to the east of that river. Similarly, a part of the river Godavari separates the Nizam's Dominions on the west from British territory; but a few of the Nizam's villages are beyond that river. The languages spoken in the Dominions are Hindustani, Telugu, Kanarese and Mahrathi.

Physical Features.—The Dominions are a vast plateau of an average elevation of 1,250 feet, though some summits reach 2,500 feet above the sea-level. The country is geologically and ethnologically divided into two large and almost equal divisions. The Godavari and the Manjira rivers separate these. The first of these divisions consists of regions of trappean rocks to the north and west, and the other to the south-east is composed of granite and lime-stone. The former is inhabited by the Mahratta and Kanarese people, whose staple food is wheat and jawari; and the latter is peopled by the Telugus, who subsist chiefly on rice. In this granitic and calcareous region, hills nude of vegetation, brushwood of every description scattered in profusion, detached perpendicular rocks and collections or masses of boulders, which seem to be piled by giant hands, are not scarce. The soil, where formed from the decomposition of these rocks, is generally sandy and hence generally sterile. The rivers in this region, too, flow only in the rainy season. The trappean region generally presents a pleasing aspect with its luxuriant vegetation and its crags, cliffs and hills. The soil derived from the decomposition of this formation—the ordinary black cotton soil and regar—is productive, fertile and impervious. Thus, while the granitic region is suggestive of sterility, the trappean region is synonymous with fertility. Thick jungles and forests are met with, mostly in the valleys of rivers; especially those of the Wardha, the Godavari and the Kistna. There is carboniferous sandstone along the right bank of the Godavari.

Political Divisions.—Land may be divided into distinct heads with regard to administration and collection of revenue:—

(1) Sarfi-i-Khas.—Lands, assigned to the Sovereign in lieu of cash payments from the public treasury comprising an area of 7,113 square miles. They consist of an entire district surrounding Hyderabad City (Atrafi-i-Balda), two taluks in Aurangabad District, one each in Bhir, Parbhani and Bidar Districts, three in Osmanabad District, three in Gulbarga District, and a few scattered villages. The revenue from these exceeds 41 lakhs of rupees.

(2) Paigah.—Lands, assigned by the Nizam Ali Khan Asaf Jah to Shamsul-Umra Amir-i-Kabir for the maintenance of a body of horse, called "His Highness Household Troops," comprising about 4,134 square miles.

(3) Khalsa.—Lands, or Divani territory, divided, for administrative purposes, into four Subas, or divisions, which are further sub-divided into districts.

Jaghirs.—As far back as the time of Tamerlane, it had been the custom to bestow Jagirs as royal presents upon those who had in any way distinguished themselves by their services to the State. The Jagirs were granted either free of rent, for perpetuity, for life or on condition of rendering military service when required, &c. The Jagirdars do not pay any fixed annual tribute to the Government. But those who used to pay Chauth (or a fourth part of their revenue) to the late Mahratta Peshwas, continue to pay the amount to the Nizam's Government from the time they came under it. The Jagirs extend over 11,000 square miles, and many Jagir villages are scattered over the Government territory.

Tributary Chiefs.—The principal tributary chiefs are the Rajahs of Gudwal, Wanparti, Aunagundi, Gopalpet, Amarchinta and Javalgiri. They hold small tracts of country and pay tribute to the Nizam's Government, ranging from Rs. 25,000 to Rs. 1,50,000 per annum.

Commerce.—The principal imports are: sugar, salt, glass, Englishware, piece-goods, spirits, hardware and cutlery, coffee, tea, saltpetre, mercury, opium, camphor and musk. The exports are: carpets, muslins, coal, grain, oilseeds, cotton, honey, wax, coarse woollen cloth and timber.

Industries.—The bulk of the people are engaged in agriculture. The principal manufactures in the State are: Steel, manufactured out of iron ores, and once used for making swords and spear-heads, carpets and rugs made at Warangal, kinkhab, or gold and silver cloth, plain and embroidered muslins, brocades of coloured silk with gold and silver thread, tassa silk, saltpetre, Persian paper and pottery and bidriware, which is made of an alloy of copper, lead and tin, or zinc, and inlaid with floral and other decoration in gold or silver.

The Cave Temples of Ellora.—These cave temples are the largest and most varied of the rock temples in India, and contain some of the finest specimens of Buddhist, Brahmanic and Jain temples. The village of Ellora is situated about 14 miles to the north-west of Aurangabad, and about 6 miles from Daulatabad, a station on the Nizam's Guaranteed Railway line. There is no bungalow at Ellora; close by, at Roza, there is a luxuriously furnished Guest House, maintained by His Highness the Nizam's Government. The caves are excavated in the scarp of a large plateau and run nearly north and south for a mile and a quarter. At each end, the scarp throws out a horn to the west. The oldest caves, the Buddhist, are situated at the south end, at the point where the scarp begins to turn to the west. At the other extremity and in the north horn are the Jaina caves, while the Brahmanic group is between the two. Taking the Kailasa as the centre, 16 caves lie to the south of it, 14 of which are Buddhist—and nearly as many to the north of it are Brahmanic and Jaina. The Buddhist caves of Ellora are all of the Mahayana group, and range in time from 350 to 550 A.D.

Ajunta Caves.—The celebrated Buddhist caves at Ajunta in the Aurangabad District are situated in the Indrayatri hills, 4 miles to the north-west of the village. The paintings in the caves comprise scenes of everyday life, such as preparing food, carrying water, buying and selling provisions, hunting scenes, elephant fights, men and women engaged in singing, dancing and playing on musical instruments most vigorously painted upon the walls. Some of the earlier paintings are probably as old as the second century of the Christian era, the majority belonging to the sixth and seventh centuries.

The hill fort of Golconda was formerly the seat of Government, and in the fort as well as near it are the far-famed tombs of Golconda, a series of splendid mausoleums built in oriental style over the departed Sovereigns and Princes of the Golconda dynasty. The tombs are greatly admired for their extent and beauty.

Climate, &c.—The climate may be said to be good, for it is pleasant and agreeable during the greater part of the year, being between extreme heat and cold. As the country is usually hilly the hot winds are not felt so keenly as in places where there are great sandy arid plains. It is only the south-west monsoon which sets in, in June, and continues till October, that is of any importance whatever to the country, the average rainfall during this monsoon being 30 inches. The rainfall during the south-east monsoon is scanty, and of little benefit to the country, the average being from 4 to 8 inches. Westerly winds blow from June to September, when they change for an easterly direction from October to February; and during March, April and May the winds are north-westerly. The Western Ghats do, in a measure, interfere with the volume of rain that might otherwise fall, but immediately the rain passes the ghats, it increases again, though very gradually.

Hyderabad is the Capital of the Nizam's territories and the seat of Government. It is situated within six miles from the Fort of Golconda. Its distance from Calcutta is about 1,220 miles, from Madras 460 and from Bombay 470 miles. The City is approached by numerous bridges, gates and posterns, it being surrounded by a stone wall, which is in a weak and ruined state. Great improvements have been effected by widening the street in several parts, and many sanitary arrangements have been introduced.

The following are some among the numerous buildings at Hyderabad worthy of a visit:—

His Highness' Palaces namely:—Purani Haveli; Chow Mahalla; Baradari; Sirdar Villa at Malakpet and Fajlunamah Castle. The Golconda Fort and Tombs; Char Minar; Macca Musjid; Bash Baght Asmangarh; Sururnagar; the Victoria Memorial Orphanage, Shapurwadi and the Public Gardens.

THE BRITISH RESIDENCY, CHADARGHAT.

The building in which the British Resident resides is called by this name. It is an elegant edifice in spacious grounds, and is enclosed by a high wall with bastions at the entrance gates. It is situated just north of the City of Hyderabad, the River Musi running in the intervening space.

In the right and the left of the building are handsome wings, each containing accommodation sufficient for a large number of guests. The building is handsomely furnished and has been described as "Oriental only in its magnificence, but perfectly English in its comforts." Opposite the front of the building, which is the entrance for European visitors or noblemen of Hyderabad, is a fine flower garden choicely laid out. In the compound are good houses for the first and second Assistant Residents, and Escort Officer and office accommodation for the Administrative, Printing, Treasury, Judicial and Persian Departments. At one end of the compound or barracks for the detachment of Cavalry, and the company of Native Infantry, which form the Residents Escort, under the command of European Commissioned Officer. There are an old, but disused, burial ground, a Racquet Court within the Residency walls and an Imperial Branch Post Office. The Branch of the Imperial Bank is close by.

Surrounding the Residency are a number of populous Bazaars, embracing an area of about a square mile, over which the resident exercises jurisdiction, both in Civil and Criminal matters.

RULES FOR ENTERING THE CITY OF HYDERABAD.

Officers and other Europeans belonging to the District are prohibited from visiting the City of Hyderabad, or the Fort or Tombs of Golconda, without permission from the Resident, to be obtained by application through Staff Officers of Brigades. As it is usual to send intimation of all such visits beforehand to H. E. H. the Nizam's Government and obtain its assent for them, each application should as a rule reach the First Assistant Resident four days before the proposed visit.

SECUNDERABAD.

Secunderabad (named after the Nizam Sikandar Jah) is the largest Military Station in India and is situated 6 miles north-east of Hyderabad City. It is the Winter Head-quarters of the IXth Secunderabad Division of the Army.

The Military Force stationed here consists of one Regiment of European and of Native Cavalry, one Battery of Royal Horse Artillery, three Batteries of Royal Artillery (Field and Garrison), two Regiments of British and three of Native Infantry, with a Company of Sappers and Miners. An Ordnance Establishment has charge of the Arsenal, and there is also a large Supply and Transport Staff. Cantonment boundaries extend as far as Bolarum, covering a total area of 19 square miles, including many interspersed villages. New double-storeyed barracks have been erected for the European soldiers, and the quarters for the Native troops are also comfortably built. The country for many miles around undulates into hammocks with a few out-crops of underlying rock, crossed from East to West by green-stone dikes. Shady trees line the roads of the Cantonment, otherwise the face of the country is bare, with but little depth of soil in elevated parts. Cultivation is carried on in the dips and valleys, in several of which tanks have been constructed. Immediately to the south-west of the Cantonment is a large artificial reservoir or tank known as the Hussain Sagar, about 13 miles in circumference.

The Parade ground is of great extent, upon which a Force of seven or eight thousand troops can be manoeuvred with ease. Close by is the Cemetery. At a short distance from Secunderabad is the Cantonment of Trimulgherry, containing an entrenched camp. At Trimulgherry is the Military Prison, nicknamed "Windsor Castle." Adjoining Secunderabad Cantonment to the north is Bolarum Cantonment. Here are stationed a Regiment of Cavalry, and one of Infantry.

PART II—FOREIGN.

AHMEDABAD.

AHMEDABAD is a great historic City. It is the chief City of the District of Guzerat in Bombay Presidency. It derives its name from the fact that one Ahmed Shah of Guzerat founded this City in the year 1413 A. D. It stands on the raised left bank of the River Sabarmati. The City is famous for its walls which practically encircle it. These walls enclose an area of more than 2 sq. miles and they are from 15 to 20 ft. in height with about 14 gates. The City has recently developed even beyond the walls. It came under the British rule in 1818. Previous to the British conquest of the City, legend goes that it was a most prosperous City, containing a population of nearly a million souls and its industry and trade were so great that individual merchants and traders possessed fortunes not less than million sterling. At the time of the British conquest it was practically a deserted City, but soon its trade and commerce raised it to its old level. It has undergone a thorough revival by the establishment of Textile Industry. There are many Cotton Mills and other factories.

The City was formerly famous for its manufactures in cloth of gold and silver, fine silk and cotton fabrics, articles of gold and silver and fine wood work. The main industry is spinning and weaving of cotton yarn.

The important monuments of the City worth seeing are.—Farkhej Mosque, Jumma Masjid, Mosque of King Ahmed Shah and his wife, Nar Narayan Dev's Temple, Ellis' Bridge, Queen Victoria's Garden and the three Historic Gates.

ALLAHABAD.

ALLAHABAD is a great Hindu Pilgrimage centre, situated at the confluence of the Jumna, the Ganges, and the Saraswati. It is well known to the Hindus by the name of Priag (the place of sacrifice).

There is a historic fort at the junction of the three rivers which was built by Emperor Akbar in 1575 A.D. Within the gate of the Fort is a stone pillar about 80 feet high, built by Emperor Asoka in 240 B.C. Down the Fort is a big and extensive plain upon which many Hindu Pilgrims assemble for worship during the Kumbha Mela festivals held every 12 years, when the devotees are more than a million.

Allshabad is not famous for any Commercial or Industrial enterprise; but it is a big market place. Though it is not a big commercial centre, it is famous for the premier position it is occupying by virtue of its teaching Institutions.—Allshabad University, European High School, the Modera High School, the Muir Central College with its well-equipped, Laboratories, the Girl's High School, the City Anglo-Vernacular High School, and a host of other Educational Institutions have both individual and collective reputations to boast of.

The streets of the city are very narrow but in the northern parts of the city and in the cantonments, they are broad and straight. Daraganj, its suburb, extends along the river front. Many wealthy merchants and businessmen reside in Daraganj.

There is a magnificent bridge over the Jumna, 3,235 feet in length which includes 14 spans 200 feet and 8 of 80 feet.

BENARES.

BENARES is a city of very great antiquity. It is situated at the Northern Bank of the River Ganges—held very sacred by Hindus. Though the river is considered to have special purifying powers throughout her course, her power is considered to be greatly augmented when she passes through the various bathing ghats of the City.

The City has been constantly referred to in Hindu Puranas like Ramayana and Mahabharata. The tributes paid to this City by Hindu Puranas are so great that it has become an article of faith with the Hindus.

The City is studded with many great temples. The most important is the one that is dedicated to Shiva. The shrine is known by the name of Bisheswar. The other important shrines are Bhaironath, Annapurna and Durg. These Shrines are said to have been built by Maharattas, about the 7th century. There are also many sacred tanks whose waters are said to cure many diseases.

The streets of the City are nothing but winding alleys, but if one wishes to have a beautiful aspect of the city, one must go down in a boat along the crescent-shaped river.

Benares has been renowned for its manufacture of ornamental brassware, silks, embroidered shawls and lacquered wooden toys.

The Benares Hindu University is situated at a little distance from the city. It is a very popular educational centre. Chancellor.—The Maharaja of Bikaur; Vice-Chancellor.—Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya.

BOMBAY.

BOMBAY is one of the biggest cities of India and in fact the biggest from the point of trade and industry. One can see in this City the flowing robes and the gaudy colours of the apparel of crowds of people, so cosmopolitan in character the like of which cannot be easily seen in any other city in the world.

There are many theories regarding the derivation of the word Bombay, but the most accepted one is that it may be traced back to Maha Amba, the wife of Siva, and the chief goddess of the seven islands of which Bombay was the principal.

Geological investigations clearly establish that Bombay in the prehistoric period must have formed part of the main land and due to volcanic actions the marshy place between the two rock ridges should have been split up into seven islands. These islands have been connected together and to the main land by causeways and by great railway systems.

Passing along the Apollo Bunder one notices the palatial building of the Taj Mahal Hotel with its grand frontage on the bay between the city and the main land. Other big and important hotels of the city Apollo Great Western Hotel and Hotel Majestic are within a short distance from Taj Mahal Hotel.

Educational Institutions are somewhat numerous in Esplanade and Cross Roads and they also contain many hospitals and the famous Crawford Market. The Abdul Raheman Street is one of the busiest thoroughfares of the city with its many shops occupied by wealthy Indian merchants who deal in silver and brassware.

Important public buildings of the city are found in Mayo Road. Among them are the Venetian Gothic Buildings in which are the offices of the Secretariat Departments of the Government of Bombay, Senate House, University Library, High Court Buildings, the offices of the Bombay-Baroda and Central India Railway Company and the marble statue of Her Majesty the late Queen-Empress, Victoria.

The Fort is the name given to the city proper. It covers an area in which are the dockyards, Royal Alfred sailors' home, the Prince of Wales Museum and all the principal banking houses, warehouses, shops, etc., of the city.

On the western side of the Fort is the Malabar Hill. The Government house is situated at the extreme point bordering the Back Bay. To the north of the Fort are the suburbs of Mandvi, Girgaum, Byculla and Mazagao. The most northerly are Dadar, Mahim, Dharvai and Sion.

Victoria terminus with its Italian-Gothic style of architecture, containing the station and office of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway is facing Hornby Road—another important thoroughfare. The General Post Office is very near the Victoria Terminus and is constructed in Indo-Saracenic style of architecture. The Municipal offices of the city are situated opposite Victoria Terminus and they are built in Gothic Style of Architecture. But however, the exterior decorations take the shape of Indian carvings of animals, birds and tropical vegetation.

Bombay is the greatest exporter of cotton; the Cotton Green is a notable place where vendors and purchasers of cotton meet to do business.

A large number of temples may be seen in the neighbourhood of Rahiman Street. Important of them are, Jama Masjid the principal Mahomedan place of worship, the temples of Mumbadevi, and others dedicated to Hanuman, Siva and Indrani. The temple of the Hindu Goddess, Maha Lakshmi, is situated near Warden Road, the extreme west of Bombay. Very near the terminus of Walkeshwar Road; traversing the entire length of Malabar, is the temple dedicated to Walkeshwar (God made of Sand). It has been erected on the bank of the famous Banganga Tank. It is constructed of stone and tradition goes that it still contains the original Lingam of Sand made by Rama.

CAWNPORE.

It is a city of some historic importance situated at the right bank of the Ganges. It has become famous by virtue of the fact that the terrible scenes of the famous Indian Mutiny were enacted here. Visitors are usually taken to the well into which many British Officers with their families were thrown during the mutiny period. The well is now surrounded by the marble figure of the Angel of Resurrection and the monuments raised in memory of the victims are beautifully kept in a garden.

It is a recent city—the present importance is entirely due to British capital and influence—and it does not contain many historic edifices to boast of.

The city contains many Woollen and Cotton Mills. The famous among them are, Elgin Mills Co., Ltd., Muir Mills Company, Ltd., the Cawnpore Cotton Mills Company, Ltd. and the Victoria Mills Company Ltd.

KARACHI.

KARACHI is situated at the extreme north end of the Indus delta, near the Southern base of the Pab Mountains of the Baluchistan. The bay is formed by the projecting point of land called Manora at the eastern end of a reef, and a promontory immediately opposite to it at a distance about 4 miles.

KARACHI is the capital of the Sind "The Port of the Punjab" the "Coming Liverpool of India." About a century and a half back it was a small fishing town but its present commercial importance is entirely due to the Pioneering work of the British Capital and Industry.

KARACHI has no history to boast of Tradition says that Alexander the Great's Fleet was detained there by bad weather for about 3 months in 325 B.C. About the year 1729 A. D. some traders from a small town on the bank of the river Hub migrated to Karachi-kun a mound along side of the lagoon upon which the old town of Karachi now stands. But it is John Porter who explored those regions in 1774-75.

British troops captured that City in 1819 and from that period the present history of Karachi begins. After the annexation of Sind in 1842, the Development of Karachi as a harbour received special attention. The creation of a Municipality in (1879), a Chamber of Commerce in (1880); harbour Board in (1880) and a Port Trust in (1894) are eloquent facts to the rapid improvement of the City. It is now rapidly becoming an important Air Port in India.

LAHORE.

LAHORE is the capital of the Punjab. It is situated very near the River Ravi. It is founded about 200 A. D. and its history is closely connected with every phase of Mahomedan rule in India. It is historically established that it must have been once the capital of a Hindu Principality.

Lahore had the misfortune of being plundered several times due to the internecine wars of the various dynasties for the sake of supremacy in Northern India.

About the year 1765, the Sikhs reigned supreme in that city. Their King Maharajah Ranjit Singh became King of Lahore. After Ranjit Singh the vast empire he ruled was torn as under with the result that the Punjab was finally annexed to the British in 1846.

Since then it has been the seat of many empires, has witnessed the construction of many shrines, mosques and other important public buildings.

The important places worthy of a visit are Hazuri Bagh, near the Delhi Gate in which is to be found the marble statue of Maharajah Ranjit Singh. Wazir Khan's mosque is also near the Delhi Gate and is remarkable for its inlaid pottery work which forms the Mural Decorations. Pearl mosque; the imperial mosque of Aurangzeb, the gardens of Shalimar, the Punjab University, the Art and Engineering College, the Central Museum and Anglo-Dayananda Vedio College.
