Mr. Cocks states that he reported the event, but the letter appears not to have been received.

"Mr. D. Simson has likewise incurred the penalty under Article V. (6) of the rules of exclusion of his daughter born on the 13th August 1870.

"Both have been informed that the admission of their children will be dependent on the decision of a general meeting. The penalty which the rule prescribes is a fine of not less than Rs. 100, besides arrears of subscription with interest at 8 per cent.

"The above cases are submitted for the determination of the meeting.

"Baboo Tincoury Roy, who has been employed for thirty years in the Civil Fund Office, having submitted a medical certificate testifying to his inability to work any longer on account of weakness and old age, the managers granted him a personal allowance of Rs. 20 a month from the 1st February last, and recommend his admission to a good service pension of Rs. 20 a month.

"Article IV. (5).—The following to be added:

"It shall be optional to a subscriber to continue his payments at 'ordinary' or at widower rates, as the case may be, on account of any son who may, on his attaining the age of 21 years, be reported to the managers to be wholly incapacitated by reason of infirmity from earning his livelihood. Such payments must be continued up to the date of the subscriber's decease, and the managers must be satisfied that the infirmity was not produced by causes within the control of the invalid.

"Article XXX. (31).—The following to be added:

"Provided, further, that the managers may, under similar conditions as to medical certificates, admit to Fund benefits, either in whole or in part, the son of a subscriber, even though such son shall have previously attained his majority, if he is wholly incapacitated from earning his livelihood, provided that subscriptions have been paid on his account under Article IV. up to the date of his father's decease. Should the managers decide to reject such an application for admission to Fund benefits, they shall refund to the legal representatives of the subscriber, without interest, all subscriptions received on account of such incapacitated son from the close of his twenty-first year.

"To which a rider will be moved by the Honorary Secretary:

"That this rule thus amended be given retrospective effect in regard to all sons of deceased subscribers who may be found, to the satisfaction of the managers, to be at this present time incapacitated as above from earning their livelihood.

"Mr. H. S. Beadon will bring forward for discussion the amendment of Articles XVII. (18) and XVIII. (19) of the rules to enable annuitants and other members of the Fund in England, who are at present unable to transmit their votes in time to do so in future.

"The proposed alterations in Articles XVII. (18) and XVIII. (19) will be to subtitute the word 'three months' instead of 'two,' and to add the words 'London Times' after the word 'Punjab.'

PART III.

Advertisements & Notices by Private Individuals & Corporations.

A Chronological Table of, and Index to, the Indian Statute-Book from the year 1834, with a general introduction to the Statute-Law of India.

By C. D. FIELD, M.A., LL.D., of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law, and of Her Majesty's Bengal Civil Service.

N. B.—The plan of this work is similar to that of the Table and Index for the Home Statute-Book recently compiled by the Statute Law Committee, and published under the authority of Her Majesty's Government. The Index enables the Law on any subject to be found in a moment. The Table shows how far every Act of the Governor General of India, of the Governors of Bombay and Madras, and of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, has been repealed, amended, or altered. The necessity for all persons who have to say to the administration of justice being acquainted with the state of the Statute-Law for the time being, has led in India as well as in England to various editions of the Statutes containing only those portions in force at the time of publication. Such editions labour under four very great disadvantages,—they are cumbrous; they are expensive; they contain no information as to Statutes and parts of Statutes not included therein; they become almost useless in a few years, as subsequent repeals and amendments alter the state of the Law. The "Table and Index" contains in a single volume information which enables all editions and copies of the Acts (which are to be found in every Court and Public Office) to be used without risk of error. It deals with the entire Statute-Book, while its cost is about half that of a fragmentary edition of the Acts, which a single year's legislation renders almost useless. Its arrangement admits of it being kept up to date by the possessor of every copy willing to take the trouble of doing so. For those who have not inclination or leisure to do so, the value of the work will be maintained by the publication of an annual Supplement. The Supplement to August 1871 is now ready.

The Introduction has been, by order of the Council of Legal Education, included in the Course of Indian Law prescribed for students reading for the Bar.

Price of the work with Supplement, Rs. 21.

A Chronological Table of, and Index to, the Indian Statute-Book from the year 1834, with a general introduction to the Statute-Law of India.

By C. D. FIELD, M.A., LL.D., of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law, and of Her Majesty's Bengal Civil Service.

N. B.—The plan of this work is similar to that of the Table and Index for the Home Statute-Book recently compiled by the Statute Law Committee, and published under the authority of Her Majesty's Government. The Index enables the Law on any subject to be found in a moment. The Table shows how far every Act of the Governor General of India, of the Governors of Bombay and Madras, and of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, has been repealed, amended, or altered. The necessity for all persons who have to say to the administration of justice being acquainted with the state of the Statute-Law for the time being, has led in India as well as in England to various editions of the Statutes containing only those portions in force at the time of publication. Such editions labour under four very great disadvantages,—they are cumbrous; they are expensive; they contain no information as to Statutes and parts of Statutes not included therein; they become almost useless in a few years, as subsequent repeals and amendments alter the state of the Law. The "Table and Index" contains in a single volume information which enables all editions and copies of the Acts (which are to be found in every Court and Public Office) to be used without risk of error. It deals with the entire Statute-Book, while its cost is about half that of a fragmentary edition of the Acts, which a single year's legislation renders almost useless. Its arrangement admits of it being kept up to date by the possessor of every copy willing to take the trouble of doing so. For those who have not inclination or leisure to do so, the value of the work will be maintained by the publication of an annual Supplement. The Supplement to August 1871 is now ready.

The Introduction has been, by order of the Council of Legal Education, included in the Course of Indian Law prescribed for students reading for the Bar.

Price of the work with Supplement, Rs. 21.

A Chronological Table of, and Index to, the Indian Statute-Book from the year 1834, with a general introduction to the Statute-Law of India.

By C. D. FIELD, M.A., LL.D., of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law, and of Her Majesty's Bengal Civil Service.

N. B—The plan of this work is similar to that of the Table and Index for the Home Statute-Book recently compiled by the Statute Law Committee, and published under the authority of Her Majesty's Government. The Index enables the Law on any subject to be found in a moment. The Table shows how far every Act of the Governor General of India, of the Governors of Bombay and Madras, and of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, has been repealed, amended, or altered. The necessity for all persons who have to say to the administration of justice being acquainted with the state of the Statute-Law for the time being, has led in India as well as in England to various editions of the Statutes containing only those portions in force at the time of publication. Such editions labour under four very great disadvantages,—they are cumbrous; they are expensive; they contain no information as to Statutes and parts of Statutes not included therein; they become almost useless in a few years, as subsequent repeals and amendments alter the state of the Law. The "Table and Index" contains in a single volume information which enables all editions and copies of the Acts (which are to be found in every Court and Public Office) to be used without risk of error. It deals with the entire Statute-Book, while its cost is about half that of a fragmentary edition of the Acts, which a single year's legislation renders almost useless. Its arrangement admits of it being kept up to date by the possessor of every copy willing to take the trouble of doing so. For those who have not inclination or leisure to do so, the value of the work will be maintained by the publication of an annual Supplement. The Supplement to August 1871 is now ready.

The Introduction has been, by order of the Council of Legal Education, included in the Course of Indian Law prescribed for students reading for the Bar.

Price of the work with Supplement, Rs. 21.

A Chronological Table of, and Index to, the Indian Statute-Book from the year 1834, with a general introduction to the Statute-Law of India.

By C. D. FIELD, M.A., LL.D., of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law, and of Her Majesty's Bengal Civil Service.

N. B—The plan of this work is similar to that of the Table and Index for the Home Statute-Book recently compiled by the Statute Law Committee, and published under the authority of Her Majesty's Government. The Index enables the Law on any subject to be found in a moment. The Table shows how far every Act of the Governor General of India, of the Governors of Bombay and Madras, and of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, has been repealed, amended, or altered. The necessity for all persons who have to say to the administration of justice being acquainted with the state of the Statute-Law for the time being, has led in India as well as in England to various editions of the Statutes containing only those portions in force at the time of publication. Such editions labour under four very great disadvantages,—they are cumbrous; they are expensive; they contain no information as to Statutes and parts of Statutes not included therein; they become almost useless in a few years, as subsequent repeals and amendments alter the state of the Law. The "Table and Index" contains in a single volume information which enables all editions and copies of the Acts (which are to be found in every Court and Public Office) to be used without risk of error. It deals with the entire Statute-Book, while its cost is about half that of a fragmentary edition of the Acts, which a single year's legislation renders almost useless. Its arrangement admits of it being kept up to date by the possessor of every copy willing to take the trouble of doing so. For those who have not inclination or leisure to do so, the value of the work will be maintained by the publication of an annual Supplement. The Supplement to August 1871 is now ready.

The Introduction has been, by order of the Council of Legal Education, included in the Course of Indian Law prescribed for students reading for the Bar.

Price of the work with Supplement, Rs. 21.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 20th June 1871, and is hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT No. XX OF 1871.

An Act to provide for the levy of rates on land in the Panjáb.

Preamble. Whereas it is expedient to provide for the levy of rates on land in the Panjáb to be applied to local purposes; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title. 1. This Act may be called 'The Panjáb Local Rates Act, 1871':

Local extent. It extends only to the territories for the time being under the government of the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjáb, inclusive of any territory that may, from time to time, be removed, under the provisions of the Agror Valley Act, 1870, from the jurisdiction of the tribunals established under the general Regulations and Acts;

Commencement. And it shall come into force on the passing thereof.

Interpretation-clause. 2. In this Act—

'Land.' 'Land' means land assessed to the land-revenue, and includes land whereof the land-revenue has been, wholly or in part, released, compounded for, redeemed or assigned;

'Landholder.' 'Landholder' means any person responsible for the payment of the land-revenue, if any, assessed on land. It also includes a person holding land, the land-revenue of which has been, wholly or in part, released, compounded for, redeemed or assigned;

'Annual value.' 'Annual value' means—

(1) double the land-revenue for the time being assessed on any land, whether such assessment be leviable or not;

(2) and, where the land-revenue has been permanently assessed, or has been, wholly or in part, compounded for or redeemed—double the amount which, but for such permanent assessment, composition or redemption, would have been leviable.

Rate assessable. 3. All land shall be liable to the payment of such rate as the Lieutenant-Governor from time to time directs, not exceeding six pies for every rupee of its annual value.

Such rate shall be computed as from the first day of April 1871, and shall be paid by the landholder independently of, and in addition to, any land-revenue assessed on land for the land-revenue of which he is responsible, and any local cesses now leviable therefrom.

Provided that wherever the proprietors of any land pay the land-revenue in kind to any assignee of revenue or any village headman, such assignee of revenue or village headman shall be responsible for the payment of the said rate, instead of the proprietors, and no demand shall be made by any such assignee or village headman on any such proprietor in respect of the payment of any such rate.

Power to recover a share of rate from tenant. 4. Whenever a rate is charged on a landholder in respect of lands held by a tenant with a right of occupancy holding at a favourable rent, such landholder may realize from such tenant a share of the said rate, bearing the same proportion to the whole rate as the excess of the annual value over the rent paid by such tenant bears to half the annual value.

Illustration.—A is a landholder of an estate of which the land-revenue is Rs. 50. The annual value therefore is Rs. 100, and the maximum rate would be Rs. 3 annas 2. The estate is held by a tenant with right of occupancy at Rs. 75 rental.

Supposing the maximum rate to be levied, A will be entitled to recover from the tenant Rs. 1-9, or half the rate, thus—

As half the annual value	is to	Excess of the annual value over the tenant's rent,	so is	The whole rate	to	The portion which the landlord can recover from tenant.

Unexpended portion of assignment.

8. Any portion of such assignment remaining unexpended at the end of the financial year in which the assignment was made may, at the discretion of the Lieutenant-Governor, be re-assigned for expenditure in the same district, or may be applied for the benefit of the Panjáb, on such one or more of the purposes mentioned in section six as the Lieutenant-Governor from time to time directs.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 1st August 1871, and is hereby promulgated for general information:—

ACT No. XXII OF 1871.

Act to authorise the extension of the Chaukídárí Act to places where there is no Jamadár of Police.

Preamble.

Whereas by Act No. XX of 1856 (to make better provision for the appointment and maintenance of Police Chowkeydars in Cities, Towns, Stations, Suburbs and Bazaars in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal), section two, the Local Government is restrained from extending that Act to any City, Town, Suburb or Bazár, unless there be therein (or in some other City, Town, Suburb or Bazaar with which the same may be united as thereinafter provided) a police station under an officer of a grade not below that of a jamadár; and whereas it is expedient to remove such restriction and in other respects to amend the said Act; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Amendment of section two, Act No. XX of 1856.

1. Instead of the second section of the said Act, the following shall be read:—

To what places the Act shall apply.

"II. The provisions of this Act shall have effect in all Cities, Stations, Towns, Suburbs and Bazaars in the said Presidency to which the Local Government may, at any time, extend the same by notification in the Official Gazette: Provided always that this Act shall not be extended to any agricultural village.

In all places in which this Act is now in force, it shall be deemed to have been extended under the provisions of this section."

Amendment of section eleven of the said Act.

2. Instead of section eleven of the said Act, the following shall be read:—

Limitation of tax.

"XI. If the tax be an assessment according to the circumstances and the property to be protected of the persons liable to the same, the amount assessed in respect of any one house shall not be more than the pay of a chaukídár of the lowest grade. If the tax be a rate on houses and grounds, it shall not exceed five per centum of the annual value thereof."

Amendment of section thirty-eight.

3. Instead of section thirty-eight of the said Act, the following shall be read :—

"XXXVIII. On such dates as may be fixed by the Panchâyats for payment of instalments of the tax, the Tax Darogah shall proceed in person, or through some one of his office establishment, to collect the amount due for the current month from each person subject to the tax, and for all sums so collected, the Darogah shall grant a receipt: Provided that, with the sanction of the Commissioners of Circuit previously obtained, the collection may be made quarterly instead of monthly; and in such case, the amount due for each quarter shall be collected in the last month of that quarter."

Collection of assessment.

Repeal of part of section forty-one.

4. In the forty-first section of the said Act, instead of the words "On the 20th of each calendar month," there shall be read the words "On the tenth day after the date fixed for the payment of instalments of the tax."

Amendment of Appendices A and C to Act XX of 1856.

5. In Appendix A, at the end of the first paragraph, the words "and the aggregate amount assessed shall not exceed the average rate of two annas per mensem for each house, shop or building in the District," shall be omitted.

3*rd*, the reclaiming, clearing or enclosing of lands for agricultural purposes;

4*th*, the renewal or re-construction of any of the foregoing works, or alterations therein, or additions thereto:

"Collector" means the Collector of land-revenue, or the Deputy Commissioner, or any officer authorized by the Local Government to exercise the powers of a Collector under this Act.

"Collector."

CHAPTER II.—Advances of money for making improvements.

Application for advance. 4. Any landlord or tenant desiring to make an improvement in any land of which he is in possession or occupation, and to obtain an advance of money to enable him to make such improvement, may make an application to the Collector for such advance, stating the nature and amount of any security which he proposes to furnish for the repayment of such advance.

Procedure on receiving application. 5. On receiving such application, the Collector shall make such enquiry as he deems necessary to ascertain if the proposed improvement will admit of the advance being made conformably to the rules to be framed under the third clause of section eighteen.

If after such enquiry the Collector is of opinion that the advance may be so made, he shall proceed in the manner hereinafter provided, but if it should appear that the advance cannot be so made, he shall reject the application.

When advance may be sanctioned to landlord. 6. If the applicant is a landlord, and the value of the land for the improvement of which the advance is asked, or of any other security which may be tendered, or of both, be not less than the amount of the proposed advance, the Collector may grant a certificate sanctioning the advance.

Procedure when applicant is a tenant. 7. When the applicant is a tenant, and proposes to furnish as security for the repayment of the advance, any interest alleged to be transferable which he possesses in the land to be improved, or any other land or any other adequate security, the Collector shall serve notice of the application on the landlord personally; or, if service on him personally cannot be effected, a copy of the notice shall be affixed to some conspicuous place in the Collector's office, and on the house in which the landlord resides; or if he does not reside in the district in which the application is made, or if his residence is not known, the notice shall be served on the person who acts as the local agent for the landlord in respect of the said land.

Proof of service of notice. 8. No such notice shall be deemed to have been served unless the service is acknowledged by the landlord or his agent, or the fact of its having been duly made is otherwise established to the satisfaction of the Collector.

In any case in which there are more shareholders than one, and any shareholder or other person acts as a manager on behalf of the shareholders, service on him shall be deemed to be service on each of the shareholders.

Nature of notice. 9. Such notice shall specify the sum applied for, the nature of the improvement to be made, the nature of the security proposed for the advance, and shall inform the landlord that, if he desires to make any objections to the advance, he must, within one month after service of notice, signify them in writing to the Collector.

When advance may be sanctioned to tenant. 10. If the landlord or his local agent or manager does not so signify such objections, or if the Collector, after considering such objections, is of opinion that the applicant has a transferable interest in the land specified in his application, and that the value of such interest either singly or taken jointly with other security furnished by him is not less than the amount of the advance, he may grant to the applicant a certificate sanctioning the advance.

Notice of application made by tenant unable to furnish security to be served on landlord. 11. When the applicant is a tenant, and cannot furnish security of the nature referred to in section seven, the Collector shall serve notice of the application on the landlord.

Service of such notice and particulars to be specified therein. 12. Such notice shall be served in the manner provided in sections seven and eight. It shall specify the amount of the proposed advance and the nature of the improvement to be made, and shall inform the landlord that if he does not within one month after such service signify in writing to the Collector his dissent from the proposed improvement, he will be deemed to have assented thereto and to have agreed that the land, for the improvement of which the advance is to be made, shall be pledged as security for the recovery of the advance.

Advance not to be sanctioned when dissent is made by landlord. 13. If the landlord so signifies his dissent, and after the Collector has explained his reasons for thinking the improvement desirable, the landlord does not withdraw such dissent, the Collector shall not grant the certificate.

If the landlord does not signify his dissent, or, having dissented, subsequently withdraws his dissent, and the value of the land to be improved, or the value of such land together with that of any other security furnished by the applicant, is not less than the amount of the advance, the Collector may grant to the applicant a certificate sanctioning the advance.

Contents of certificates under Act. 14. Every certificate granted under this Act shall specify—

(a) the amount of the advance;

(b) the conditions under which it is to be made and recovered;

(c) the position, extent and boundaries of the land to be improved;

(d) the nature and amount of the security furnished (if any), other than the land to be improved.

Advances recoverable as arrears of land-revenue. 15. All sums stated in a certificate granted under this Act shall, when they become due, be recoverable from the person to whom the advance was made, or from any person who has become security for the repayment thereof, as if they were arrears of land-revenue due by the person to whom the advance was made or by his security.

If any such sum cannot be so recovered, it shall be recoverable as if it was an arrear of revenue due on the land specified in the said certificate:

Provided that when the person to whom the advance was made is a landlord or a tenant having a right to transfer his interest in the land without the consent of the landlord, the interest of no person, other than such landlord or tenant, in the said land shall be sold under this section.

Sums expended on account of costs to be recovered as part of advance. 16. Any sums expended by the Collector in accordance with the rules made under section eighteen, on account of costs of the Government in giving effect to this Act, shall be recoverable as if they were part of the advance in connection with which they were expended.

Advance not to raise presumption of ownership. 17. In any case in which a landlord has agreed under section thirteen, that the land, for the improvement of which an advance under this Act is made, shall be pledged as security for such advance, such improvement shall not be deemed to confer upon the tenant any right to, or interest in, such land, or to alter the respective rights or interests of landlord and tenant therein.

CHAPTER III.—Supplementary Powers.

Power to make rules. 18. The Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, shall make rules consistent with this Act in all matters connected with its enforcement, and may, with the same sanction, from time to time, alter and add to the rules so made.

Such rules shall make provision for—

1*st*, the manner of making applications for advances under the Act;

2*nd*, the manner of conducting enquiries relative to such applications;

3*rd*, the conditions under which advances are to be made, and the manner and time of making advances;

4*th*, the inspection of works carried out by advances made under this Act;

5*th*, the instalments by which advances shall be repaid, the interest to be charged on advances, and the manner and time of repaying advances and discharging the interest charged on the same;

6*th*, the manner of keeping and auditing the accounts of the expenditure of advances, of the repayment of the same, and of the discharge of the interest thereon.

Short title. Commencement. 1. This Act may be called "The Criminal Tribes' Act, 1871," and it shall come into force on the passing thereof.

Local extent. This section and section twenty extend to the whole of British India: the rest of this Act extends only to the territories under the governments of the Lieutenant-Governors of the North-Western Provinces and the Panjáb, respectively, and under the administration of the Chief Commissioner of Oudh.

Part I.—Criminal Tribes.

Local Government to report to the Governor General in Council what tribes should be declared criminal. 2. If the Local Government has reason to believe that any tribe, gang or class of persons is addicted to the systematic commission of non-bailable offences, it may report the case to the Governor General in Council, and may request his permission to declare such tribe, gang or class to be a criminal tribe.

Report to contain certain particulars. 3. The report shall state the reasons why such tribe, gang or class is considered to be addicted to the systematic commission of non-bailable offences, and, as far as possible, the nature and the circumstances of the offences in which the members of the tribe are supposed to have been concerned; and shall describe the manner in which it is proposed that such tribe, gang or class shall earn its living when the provisions hereinafter contained have been applied to it.

4. If such tribe, gang or class has no fixed place of residence, the report shall state whether such tribe, gang or class follows any lawful occupation, and whether such occupation is, in the opinion of the Local Government, the real occupation of such tribe, gang or class, or a pretence for the purpose of facilitating the commission of crimes, and shall set forth the grounds on which such opinion is based; and the report shall also specify the place of residence in which such wandering tribe, gang or class is to be settled under the provisions hereinafter contained, and the arrangements which are proposed to be made for enabling it to earn its living therein.

Occupation of wandering tribe to be stated in report.

Residence and means of livelihood under settlement to be specified.

5. If, upon the consideration of any such report, the Governor General in Council is satisfied that the tribe, gang or class to which it relates ought to be declared criminal, and that the means by which it is proposed that such tribe, gang or class shall earn its living, are adequate, he may authorize the Local Government to publish in the local Gazette a notification declaring that such tribe, gang or class is a criminal tribe, and thereupon the provisions of this Act shall become applicable to such tribe, gang or class.

Governor General in Council to empower Local Government to notify what tribe is criminal.

6. No Court of Justice shall question the validity of any such notification on the ground that the provisions hereinbefore contained, or any of them, have not been complied with, or entertain in any form whatever the question whether they have been complied with; but every such notification shall be conclusive proof that the provisions of this Act are applicable to the tribe, gang or class specified therein.

Bar of suits relating to such notification.

7. When the notification mentioned in section five has been published, the Local Government may direct the Magistrate of any district in which such tribe, gang or class, or any part thereof is at the time resident, to make a register of the members of such tribe, gang or class, or of any part thereof.

Report to contain certain particulars. 3. The report shall state the reasons why such tribe, gang or class is considered to be addicted to the systematic commission of non-bailable offences, and, as far as possible, the nature and the circumstances of the offences in which the members of the tribe are supposed to have been concerned; and shall describe the manner in which it is proposed that such tribe, gang or class shall earn its living when the provisions hereinafter contained have been applied to it.

Residence and means of livelihood under settlement to be specified. 4. If such tribe, gang or class has no fixed place of residence, the report shall state whether such tribe, gang or class follows any lawful occupation, and whether such occupation is, in the opinion of the Local Government, the real occupation of such tribe, gang or class, or a pretence for the purpose of facilitating the commission of crimes, and shall set forth the grounds on which such opinion is based; and the report shall also specify the place of residence in which such wandering tribe, gang or class is to be settled under the provisions hereinafter contained, and the arrangements which are proposed to be made for enabling it to earn its living therein.

Register of members of such tribes. 7. When the notification mentioned in section five has been published, the Local Government may direct the Magistrate of any district in which such tribe, gang or class, or any part thereof is at the time resident, to make a register of the members of such tribe, gang or class, or of any part thereof.

Local extent.

This section and section twenty extend to the whole of British India: the rest of this Act extends only to the territories under the governments of the Lieutenant-Governors of the North-Western Provinces and the Panjáb, respectively, and under the administration of the Chief Commissioner of Oudh.

Part I.—Criminal Tribes.

Local Government to report to the Governor General in Council what tribes should be declared criminal.

2. If the Local Government has reason to believe that any tribe, gang or class of persons is addicted to the systematic commission of non-bailable offences, it may report the case to the Governor General in Council, and may request his permission to declare such tribe, gang or class to be a criminal tribe.

Report to contain certain particulars.

3. The report shall state the reasons why such tribe, gang or class is considered to be addicted to the systematic commission of non-bailable offences, and, as far as possible, the nature and the circumstances of the offences in which the members of the tribe are supposed to have been concerned; and shall describe the manner in which it is proposed that such tribe, gang or class shall earn its living when the provisions hereinafter contained have been applied to it.

Bar of suits relating to such notification.

6. No Court of Justice shall question the validity of any such notification on the ground that the provisions hereinbefore contained, or any of them, have not been complied with, or entertain in any form whatever the question whether they have been complied with; but every such notification shall be conclusive proof that the provisions of this Act are applicable to the tribe, gang or class specified therein.

Register of members of such tribes.

PROCEDURE FOR APPLYING A WATER-SUPPLY TO PUBLIC PURPOSES, AND AWARDING COMPENSATION FOR LOSS ARISING THEREON.

5. Whenever it appears expedient to the Local Government that the water of any river, stream, lake, natural drainage channel or other collection of water should be applied by the Government for the purpose of any existing or projected canal or drainage-work,

Issue of declaration by Local Government in respect of the application of any water for existing or projected canal or drainage-work.

such Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, declare that the said water will be so applied by the Government after a day to be named in the said notification not being earlier than three months from the date thereof.

6. At any time after the day so named, any Canal officer, acting under the orders of the Local Government in this behalf, may enter on any land and remove any obstructions, and may close any channels, and do any other thing necessary for such application of the said water.

(4.) Injury done in respect of any water-course or the use of any water to which any person is entitled under the law relating to the acquisition of ownership by possession.

But no compensation shall be given for any loss caused by—

In determining the amount of such compensation, regard shall be had to the diminution in the market-value of the property in question occasioned by the application in respect of which compensation is demanded; and where the market-value of such property is not ascertainable, the amount of compensation to be awarded shall be reckoned at twelve times the amount of the diminution of the annual net profits of such property occasioned by such application.

11. Every tenant holding under an unexpired lease, who is in occupation of any land at the time when any stoppage or diminution of water-supply, in respect of which compensation is allowed under section eight, takes place, may claim an abatement of the rent previously payable by him for the said land on the ground that the interruption reduces the value of the holding.

Tenants may apply for abatement of rent on interruption of water-supply.

12. If a water-supply increasing the value of such holding is afterwards restored to the said land, the rent of any such tenant of such land may be enhanced, in respect of the increased value of such land due to the restored water-supply, to an amount not exceeding that at which it stood before the abatement.

Tenants' rents may be enhanced on restoration of water-supply.

13. The application shall state the works to be undertaken, their approximate estimated cost, or the amount which the applicant is willing to pay for the same, or whether he engages to pay the actual cost as settled by the Divisional Canal officer, and how the payment is to be made.

When the assent of the Superintending Canal officer is given to such application, all the persons who have signed it shall be jointly and severally liable for the cost of such works to the extent mentioned therein.

Any amount becoming due under the terms of such application, which is not paid to the Divisional Canal officer, or the person authorized by him to receive the same, on or before the date on which the payment becomes due, shall, on the demand of such officer, be recoverable by the Deputy Commissioner as if it were an arrear of land-revenue.

19. If any person, jointly responsible with others for the construction or maintenance of a water-course, or jointly making use of a water-course with others, neglects or refuses to pay his share of the cost of such construction or maintenance, or to execute his share of any work necessary for such construction or maintenance, the Divisional or Sub-Divisional Canal officer, on receiving an application from any person injured by such neglect or refusal, shall give a fortnight's notice to all the parties concerned that he is about to investigate the case; and shall, on the expiration of that period, investigate the case accordingly, and make such order thereon as to him seems fit. When such officer determines that a supply of canal-water may be conveyed through any water-course as aforesaid, his decision shall, when confirmed or modified by the Superintending Canal officer, be binding on the applicant and also on the persons responsible for the maintenance of the said water-course.

Such applicant shall not be entitled to use such water-course until he has paid the expense of any alteration of such water-course necessary in order to his being supplied through it, and also such share of the first cost of such water-course as the Divisional or Superintending Canal officer shall determine.

Such applicant shall also be liable for his share of the cost of maintenance of such water-course so long as he uses it.

(3) that he is able to defray all costs involved in acquiring such land and constructing such water-course.

(2) that he desires the said Canal officer, in his behalf and at his cost, to do all things necessary for the transfer to him of such water-course;

(3) that he is able to defray the cost of such transfer.

If the Divisional Canal officer considers

(a) that the said transfer is expedient,

(b) that the statements in the application are true,

he shall call upon the applicant to make such deposit as he considers necessary to defray the cost of the preliminary proceedings, and the amount of any compensation that may become due under the provisions of section twenty-eight in respect of such transfer;

and, upon such deposit being made, he shall publish a notice of the application in every village, and shall send a copy of the notice to the Deputy Commissioner of every district through which such water-course passes.

24. Within thirty days from the publication of a notice under either of the two next preceding sections, any person interested in the land or water-course to which the notice refers may apply to the Deputy Commissioner by petition, stating his objection to the construction or transfer for which application has been made. The Deputy Commissioner may either reject the petition or may proceed to inquire into the validity of the objection, giving previous notice to the Divisional Canal officer of the place and time at which such inquiry will be held.

The Deputy Commissioner shall record in writing all orders passed by him under this section and the grounds thereof.

25. If no such objection is made, or if the Deputy Commissioner overrules the objections made, he shall give notice to the Divisional Canal officer to that effect, and shall proceed forthwith to place the said applicant in occupation of land marked out or of the water-course to be transferred, as the case may be.

Deputy Commissioner may give occupation of land;

26. If the Deputy Commissioner considers any objection taken as aforesaid to be valid, he shall inform the Divisional Canal officer accordingly; and, if such officer sees fit, he may, in the case of an application under section twenty-one, alter the boundaries of the land so marked out, and may give fresh notice under section twenty-two; and the procedure hereinbefore provided shall be applicable to such notice, and the Deputy Commissioner shall thereupon proceed as before provided.

28. No such applicant shall be placed in occupation of such land or water-course, until he has paid to the person named by the Deputy Commissioner such amount as the Deputy Commissioner shall determine to be due as compensation for the land or water-course so occupied or transferred, and for any damage occasioned by the marking out and occupation of such land, together with all expenses incidental to such occupation or transfer.

Conditions to be complied with previous to giving occupation of land.

In determining the compensation to be made under this section, the Deputy Commissioner shall proceed under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870; but he may, if the person to be compensated so wish, award such compensation in the form of a rent-charge payable in respect of the land or water-course occupied or transferred.

If such compensation and expenses are not paid when demanded by the person entitled to receive the same, the amount may be recovered by the Deputy Commissioner as if it were an arrear of land-revenue; and shall, when recovered, be paid by him to the person entitled to receive the same.

29. When any such applicant is placed in occupation of land or of a water-course as aforesaid, the following rules and conditions shall be binding on him and his representative in interest:—

46. No such special rate shall exceed one rupee per half-year per acre of land in respect of which the rate is charged.

Amount of special rate.

47. No such special rate shall be charged in respect of any land, if during the year or half-year (as the case may be) in respect to which such yearly or half-yearly rate might otherwise be claimed, water sufficient for the irrigation of such land has not been supplied when required by the owner or occupier thereof.

48. For the purposes of section forty-four, land shall be deemed irrigable by a canal when the following conditions are complied with in respect thereto:—

Irrigable lands defined.

(a.)—That it is cultivated and not irrigated;

(b.)—That the net annual value of the produce of the land or the productive powers thereof will be increased by the irrigation thereof by canal water, after deducting all necessary charges incurred in cultivating the same, conveying the water thereto, and paying all Government charges in respect of such irrigation;

(c.)—That the Divisional Canal officer shall have tendered to the occupier or owner thereof a supply of canal-water sufficient for the irrigation thereof in the manner customary in the irrigation of land from a canal;

(d.)—That the Divisional Canal officer shall have offered to the said occupier or owner to construct the works necessary for conveying the water to the said land under section sixteen, or (if the said occupier or owner shall so prefer) to apply the provisions of sections twenty-one, twenty-two, and twenty-three for the construction or transfer of a water-course, or shall have tendered an advance of money sufficient to provide for the construction of the said works; such advance to be re-payable in conformity with the rules for recovering advances made under the Act for the time being in force as to advances for improvements in land.

If any question shall arise whether the said conditions are complied with in respect of any land, it shall be determined in the same manner as suits relating to rent under the law for the time being in force.

49. The provisions of sections thirty-nine, forty, and forty-one shall apply to the payment of a special rate charged under section forty-four, as though such rate had been an owner's rate.

If it shall appear to the Divisional Canal officer that any cultivated land situate within three hundred yards of the edge of any artificial canal maintained by Government, receives by percolation from such canal an advantage equivalent to that which would be given by a direct supply of canal-water for irrigation, he may charge on such land a water-rate not exceeding that which would ordinarily have been charged for such a supply to land similarly cultivated.

Neighbouring land indirectly benefited by canal.

For the purposes of this Act, land charged under this section shall be deemed to be land irrigated from a canal.

Recovery of charges.

51. Any sum, certified by the Divisional Canal officer to be lawfully due under this Act, which remains unpaid after the day on which the same becomes due, shall be recoverable by the Deputy Commissioner from the person liable for the same as though it were an arrear of land-revenue.

Canal dues may be recovered as land-revenue on certificate of Canal officer.

52. The Divisional Canal officer or the Deputy Commissioner may enter into an agreement with any person for the collection and payment to the Government by such person of any sum payable under this Act by a third party.

Powers to collect canal-dues may be given to certain persons.

When such agreement has been made, such person may recover such sum by suit as though it were a debt due to him, or an arrear of rent due to him on account of the land, work or building in respect of which such sum is payable, or for or in which the canal-water shall have been supplied or used.

If such person shall make default in the payment of any sum collected by him under this section, such sum may be recovered from him by the Deputy Commissioner under section fifty-one; and if such sum or any part of it be still due by such third party, then such sum or such part of it may be recovered in like manner by the Deputy Commissioner from such third party.

53. The Deputy Commissioner may require the lambardár or person under engagement to pay the land-revenue of any estate, to collect and pay any sums payable under this Act by a third party in respect of any land or water, in such estate.

Detainer of vessels violating rules.

The owner of any vessel causing damage to a canal, or removed or detained under this section, shall be liable to pay to the Government such sum as the Divisional Canal officer shall, with the approval of the Superintending Canal officer, determine to be necessary to defray the expenses of repairing such damage, or of such removal or detention, as the case may be.

Liability of owners of vessels causing damage.

55. A fine imposed under the provisions of this Act upon the owner of any vessel, or the servant or agent of such owner, or other person in charge of any vessel, for any offence in respect of the navigation of such vessel, may be recovered either in the manner prescribed by the Code of Criminal Procedure, or, if the Magistrate imposing the fine shall so direct, as though it were a charge due on account of such vessel.

Recovery of fines from persons navigating canals.

56. If any charge due under the provisions of this Part in respect of any vessel is not paid on demand to the person authorized to collect the same, the Divisional Canal officer may seize and detain such vessel and the furniture thereof, until the charge due, together with all expenses and additional charges arising from such seizure and detention, are paid in full.

Power to seize and detain vessel on failure of payment of charges.

57. Power to seize cargo or goods, the charges due on which have not been paid.

58. Within a reasonable time after any such seizure, as is described in the two last preceding sections, the said Canal officer shall give notice to the owner or person in charge of the property seized that it or such portion of it as may be necessary, will, on a day to be named in the notice, but not sooner than fifteen days from the date of the notice, be sold in satisfaction of the claim on account of which such property was seized, unless the claim be discharged before the day so named.

Recovery of such charges on failure of payment.

And if such claim be not so discharged, the said Canal officer may, on such day, sell the property seized, or such part thereof as may be necessary to yield the amount due, together with the expenses of such seizure and sale:

The residue of such furniture, cargo or goods, and of the proceeds of the sale, shall be made over to the owner or person in charge of the same.

59. If any vessel be found abandoned in a canal, or any cargo or goods carried in a Government vessel on a canal or stored on or in canal lands or warehouses be left unclaimed for a period of two months, the Divisional Canal officer may take possession of the same. A Divisional officer so taking possession may publish a notice that, if such vessel and its contents, or such cargo or goods, are not claimed previously to a day to be named in the notice, not sooner than thirty days from the date of such notice, he will sell the same; and, if such vessel or cargo are not so claimed, he may at any time after the day named in the notice, proceed to sell the same.

Vessels found abandoned may be taken possession of and sold.

The said vessel and its contents, and the said cargo or goods, if unsold, or, if a sale has taken place, the proceeds of the sale, after paying all tolls, charges and expenses incurred by the Canal officer on account of the taking possession and sale, shall be made over to the owner of the same, when his ownership is established to the satisfaction of the Divisional Canal officer. If the Divisional Canal officer is doubtful to whom such property or proceeds of such sale should be made over, he may direct the property to be sold as aforesaid, and the proceeds of the sale to be paid into the district treasury, there to be held until the right thereto be decided by a Court of competent jurisdiction.

Disposal of proceeds of sale.

PART V.

DRAINAGE.

Removal of obstructions of Drainage-channels.

60. Whenever it appears to the Local Government that injury to any land or the public health or public convenience has arisen or may arise from the obstruction of any river, stream or drainage-channel, such Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, prohibit, within limits to be defined in such notification, the formation of any obstruction, or may, within such limits, order the removal or other alteration of such obstruction. And thereupon, so much of the said river, stream, or drainage-channel as shall be comprised within such limits, shall be held to be a drainage-work as defined in this Act.

Local Government may prohibit obstruction of drainage-channels.

After prohibition, obstructions to be removed.

61. The Divisional Canal officer, or other person authorized by the Local Government in that behalf, may, after the publication of such notification, issue an order to the person causing or having control over any such obstruction to remove or alter the same.

If, within a time to be fixed in the order, such person shall not remove or alter such obstruction, the said Canal officer may himself remove or alter it; and if the person to whom the order was issued shall not, when called upon, pay the expenses involved in such removal or alteration, such expenses shall be recoverable from him or his representative as an arrear of land-revenue.

Improvement of drainage of Lands.

Local Government may cause schemes and estimates for necessary drainage-works to be prepared.

62. Whenever it appears to the Local Government that any drainage-works are necessary for the improvement of any lands, or for the proper cultivation or irrigation thereof, or that protection from floods or other accumulations of water, or from erosion by a river is required for any lands, such Local Government may cause a scheme for such drainage-works to be drawn up and published, together with an estimate of its cost and a statement of the proportion of such cost which the Government proposes to defray, and a schedule of the lands which it is proposed to make chargeable in respect of the scheme.

Powers of persons employed on such schemes.

63. The persons authorized by Government to draw up such scheme may exercise all or any of the powers conferred on Canal officers by section fourteen of this Act.

Drainage-rates may be levied on lands benefited by such works.

64. An annual rate, in respect of such scheme may be charged on the owners of all lands which shall, in the manner hereinafter provided, be determined to be so chargeable.

Such rate shall be fixed as nearly as possible so as not to exceed either of the following limits:—

(1.) Six per cent. per annum on the first cost of the said works, adding thereto the estimated cost of the annual maintenance and supervision of the same, and deducting therefrom the estimated income, if any, derived from the works, excluding the said rate:

(2.) In the case of agricultural land, one-half of the estimated increase to the annual value of the land due to the improvement to be effected by the works.

Such rate may be varied from time to time within such maximum by the said Government.

So far as any defect to be remedied is due to any canal, water-course, road or other work or obstruction, constructed or caused by the Government or any person, a proportionate share of the cost of the drainage-works required for the remedy of the said defect shall be borne by the Government or such person.

Drainage-rates to be recovered as arrear of land-revenue.

65. Any such drainage-rate shall be recoverable as a water-rate.

66. Whenever, in pursuance of a notification made under section sixty, any obstruction is removed, or whenever any drainage-work is carried out under section sixty-two, all claims for compensation on account of any loss consequent on the removal of the said obstruction or construction of such work, may be made before the Deputy Commissioner, and he shall deal with the same in the manner provided in section ten.

68. For the purposes referred to in this Part, the word "labourer" includes persons who exercise any handicraft which shall be specified in rules to be made in that behalf by the Local Government.

Local Government may cause to be prepared lists of persons liable to supply labourers.

69. In any district in which a canal or drainage-work is projected, constructed or maintained by Government, the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, direct the Deputy Commissioner to ascertain the proprietors, sub-proprietors or farmers, whose villages or estates are or will be, in the judgment of the Deputy Commissioner, benefited by such canal or drainage-work, and to set down in a list, having due regard to the circumstances of the district and of the several proprietors, sub-proprietors or farmers, the number of labourers which shall be furnished by any of the said persons, jointly or severally, from any such village or estate, for employment on any such canal or drainage-work when required as hereinafter provided.

The Deputy Commissioner may, from time to time, add to or alter such list or any part thereof.

Properly authorized Canal officer may make requisitions on proprietors or others to supply labourers in case of anticipated serious injury to canals or drainage-works.

70. When it appears to a Divisional Canal officer duly authorized by the Local Government, that, unless some work is immediately executed, serious injury will happen to any canal or drainage-work, whereby the proper operation of such canal or drainage-work will be stopped, or so much interfered with as to prevent the established course of irrigation or drainage being continued, or to cause sudden and extensive public injury, and that the labourers necessary for the proper execution thereof cannot be obtained in the ordinary manner within the time that can be allowed for the execution of such work so as to avoid such consequences, the said officer may require any person named in such list to furnish so many labourers (not exceeding the number which, according to the said list, he is liable to supply) as to the said officer seems necessary for the immediate execution of such work.

Every requisition so made shall be in writing, and shall state the nature and locality of the work to be done, the number of labourers to be supplied by the person upon whom the requisition is made, the approximate time for which and the day on which the labourers will be required; and a copy thereof shall be immediately sent to the Superintending Canal officer for the information of the Local Government.

The rates to be paid to any such labourers, in excess of the highest rates paid in the neighbourhood for similar work, shall be fixed by the Local Government, and the payment shall extend to the whole period during which any such labourer is absent from his ordinary home.

The Local Government may direct that the provisions of this Part shall be applicable to any district or part of a district for the purpose of effecting necessary annual silt clearances.

Labourers liable to supply and continue their labour.

71. When any requisition has been made on any such person, every labourer ordinarily resident within the village or estate of such person shall be liable to supply, and to continue to supply, his labour, for the purposes aforesaid.

PART VII.

JURISDICTION.

Decision of differences regarding water-courses.

Civil Courts empowered to try claims against Government.

72. Unless where otherwise provided, all claims against Government in respect of anything done under this Act may be tried by the Civil Courts, but no such Court shall in any case pass an order as to the supply of canal water to any crop sown or growing at the time of such order.

Differences regarding water-courses to be decided by Canal officer or Deputy Commissioner.

73. Whenever a difference arises between any persons in regard to their mutual rights or liabilities in respect of the use, construction or maintenance of a water-course, any such person may present an application in writing to the Divisional Canal officer stating the matter in dispute; and such officer shall thereupon give notice to the other persons interested that, on a day to be named in such notice, he will proceed to enquire into the said matter. And after such enquiry the said officer shall pass his order thereon, unless he transfers the matter to the Deputy Commissioner, who shall thereupon enquire into and pass his order on the said matter.

Such order shall be final as to the use or distribution of water for any crop sown or growing at the time when such order is made, and shall thereafter remain in force until set aside by the decree of a Civil Court.

Power to summon witnesses.

74. Any officer empowered under this Act to conduct any inquiry may exercise all such powers, connected with the summoning and examining of witnesses, as are conferred on Civil Courts by the Code of Civil Procedure; and every such inquiry shall be deemed a judicial proceeding.

(b) alteration of climate or soil;

(c) diminution of natural products;

(d) stoppage of navigation, of the means of drifting timber, of watering cattle, or stoppage of fisheries;

(e) displacement of labour, or deprivation of any accessory advantage or opportunity of profit other than those referred to in the first three clauses of this section.

None of the advantages referred to in the above clauses (a), (b), (c), (d), and (e) shall be deemed to be an easement.

In determining the amount of such compensation, regard shall be had to the diminution in the market-value of the property in question occasioned by the application in respect of which compensation is demanded; and where the market-value of such property is not ascertainable, the amount of compensation to be awarded shall be reckoned at twelve times the amount of the diminution of the annual net profits of such property occasioned by such application.

No right to any such supply of water as is referred to in clauses one, two or three of this section in respect of a work or channel not in use at the passing of this Act shall hereafter be acquired as against the Government except by grant or prescription.

Limitation of claims.

9. No claim for compensation for any such stoppage or diminution shall be entertained, unless it be made within one year next after such stoppage or diminution has commenced.

10. The Deputy Commissioner shall proceed to enquire into any such claim, and to determine the amount of compensation, if any, which should be given; and sections nine to twelve, fourteen and fifteen, eighteen to twenty-three, twenty-six to forty, fifty-one, fifty-seven, fifty-eight and fifty-nine of Act No. X of 1870 shall apply to such enquiries:

Provided that instead of the last clause of the said section twenty-six the following shall be read: "The provisions of this section and of section eight of the Panjáb Canal and Drainage Act, 1871, shall be read to every assessor in a language which he understands before he gives his opinion as to the amount of compensation to be awarded."

Tenants may apply for abatement of rent on interruption of water-supply.

11. Every tenant holding under an unexpired lease, who is in occupation of any land at the time when any stoppage or diminution of water-supply, in respect of which compensation is allowed under section eight, takes place, may claim an abatement of the rent previously payable by him for the said land on the ground that the interruption reduces the value of the holding.

Tenants' rents may be enhanced on restoration of water-supply.

12. If a water-supply increasing the value of such holding is afterwards restored to the said land, the rent of any such tenant of such land may be enhanced, in respect of the increased value of such land due to the restored water-supply, to an amount not exceeding that at which it stood before the abatement.

Compensation when payable.

13. All sums of money payable for compensation under this Part shall be held to be due three months after the claim for such compensation is made in respect of such stoppage or diminution; and simple interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum shall be allowed on any such sum remaining unpaid after the said three months.

and may also enter upon any land, building or water-course on account of which any water-rate is chargeable, for the purpose of inspecting or regulating the use of the water supplied, or of measuring the lands irrigated thereby or chargeable with a water-rate, and of doing all things necessary for the proper regulation and management of any such canal:

Provided that if such Canal officer or person proposes to enter into any building or enclosed court or garden attached to a dwelling house not supplied with water flowing from any canal, he must previously give the occupier of such building, court or garden at least seven days' notice in writing of his intention to do so.

Notice to be given of intended entry into houses.

In every case of entry under this section, such Canal officer shall, at the time of such entry, tender compensation for any damage which may be occasioned by any proceeding under this section; and in case of dispute as to the sufficiency of the amount so tendered, he shall forthwith refer the same for decision by the Deputy Commissioner, and such decision shall be final.

and give compensation when injury has been done thereto.

Construction and Maintenance of Works.

16. Any person or persons desiring to use the water of any canal, may make an application in writing to the Divisional or Sub-Divisional Canal officer of the Division or Sub-Division of the Canal, from which the water-course is to be supplied, requesting such officer to construct or improve a water-course at the cost of the applicant.

Application for construction of water-courses at expense of applicants.

The application shall state the works to be undertaken, their approximate estimated cost, or the amount which the applicant is willing to pay for the same, or whether he engages to pay the actual cost as settled by the Divisional Canal officer, and how the payment is to be made.

When the assent of the Superintending Canal officer is given to such application, all the persons who have signed it shall be jointly and severally liable for the cost of such works to the extent mentioned therein.

Any amount becoming due under the terms of such application, which is not paid to the Divisional Canal officer, or the person authorized by him to receive the same, on or before the date on which the payment becomes due, shall, on the demand of such officer, be recoverable by the Deputy Commissioner as if it were an arrear of land-revenue.

17. There shall be provided at the cost of Government suitable means of crossing canals, constructed or maintained at the cost of Government, at such places as the Local Government thinks necessary for the reasonable convenience of the inhabitants of the adjacent lands.

Government to provide means of crossing canals.

On an application in writing, signed by not less than five persons who are owners of such lands, to the effect that suitable crossings have not been provided on any canal, the Deputy Commissioner shall cause enquiry to be made into the circumstances of the case, and if he thinks that the allegation is established, he shall report his opinion thereon for the consideration of the Local Government, and the Local Government shall cause such measures in reference thereto to be taken as it thinks proper.

18. The Divisional Canal officer may issue an order to the person or persons using any water-course to construct suitable bridges, culverts, or other works for the passage of the water of such water-course across any public road, canal or drainage-channel, which was in use before the said water-course was made, or to repair any such works.

May require construction of works to pass water across roads, water-courses and drainage-channels.

Such order shall specify a reasonable period within which such construction or repairs shall be completed; and if, after the receipt of such order, the person to whom it is addressed does not, within the said period, construct or repair such works to the satisfaction of the said Canal officer, such officer may, with the previous approval of the Superintending Canal officer, himself construct or repair the same; and if the said person shall not, when required to do so, pay the cost of such construction or repairs as declared by the Divisional Canal officer, the amount shall, on the demand of the Divisional Canal officer, be recoverable from the said person by the Deputy Commissioner, as if it were an arrear of land-revenue.

19. If any person, jointly responsible with others for the construction or maintenance of a water-course, or jointly making use of a water-course with others, neglects or refuses to pay his share of the cost of such construction or maintenance, or to execute his share of any work necessary for such construction or maintenance, the Divisional or Sub-Divisional Canal officer, on receiving an application from any person injured by such neglect or refusal, shall give a fortnight's notice to all the parties concerned that he is about to investigate the case; and shall, on the expiration of that period, investigate the case accordingly, and make such order thereon as to him seems fit. If such order direct the payment of any sum to be made within a specified period, such sum may, if not paid within such period, be recovered by the Deputy Commissioner from the person directed to pay the same, as if it were an arrear of land-revenue.

20. Whenever application is made to a Divisional Canal officer for a supply of water from a canal, and it appears to him expedient that such supply should be given and that it should be conveyed through some existing water-course,

Power to grant passage of water through a water-course, and to prescribe the conditions of such grant of passage.

he shall give notice to the person or persons responsible for the maintenance of such water-course to show cause, on a day not less than fourteen days from the date of such notice, why the said supply should not be so conveyed; and, after making enquiry on such day, the Divisional Canal officer shall determine whether and on what conditions the said supply shall be conveyed through such water-course.

When such officer determines that a supply of canal-water may be conveyed through any water-course as aforesaid, his decision shall, when confirmed or modified by the Superintending Canal officer, be binding on the applicant and also on the persons responsible for the maintenance of the said water-course.

Such applicant shall not be entitled to use such water-course until he has paid the expense of any alteration of such water-course necessary in order to his being supplied through it, and also such share of the first cost of such water-course as the Divisional or Superintending Canal officer shall determine.

Such applicant shall also be liable for his share of the cost of maintenance of such water-course so long as he uses it.

21. Any person desiring the construction of a new water-course may apply in writing to the Divisional Canal officer, stating

Application for construction of a new water-course.

(3) that he is able to defray all costs involved in acquiring such land and constructing such water-course.

22. If the Divisional Canal officer considers

Procedure of Divisional Canal officer thereupon.

(1) that the construction of such water-course is expedient, and

(2) that the statements in the application are true,

he shall call upon the applicant to make such deposit as he considers necessary to defray the cost of the preliminary proceedings and the amount of any compensation which he may consider likely to become due under section twenty-eight;

and, upon such deposit being made, he shall cause inquiry to be made into the most suitable alignment for the said water-course, and shall mark out the land which, in his opinion, it will be necessary to occupy for the construction thereof, and shall forthwith publish a notice in every village through which the water-course is proposed to be taken, that so much of such land as belongs to such village has been so marked out, and shall send a copy of such notice to the Deputy Commissioner of every district in which any part of such land is situate.

23. Any person desiring that an existing water-course should be transferred from its present owner to himself, may apply in writing to the Divisional Canal officer, stating

Application for transfer of existing water-course.

(1) that he has been unable to come to terms with the owner of such water-course;

(2) that he desires the said Canal officer, in his behalf and at his cost, to do all things necessary for the transfer to him of such water-course;

(3) that he is able to defray the cost of such transfer.

If the Divisional Canal officer considers

(a) that the said transfer is expedient,

(b) that the statements in the application are true,

he shall call upon the applicant to make such deposit as he considers necessary to defray the cost of the preliminary proceedings, and the amount of any compensation that may become due under the provisions of section twenty-eight in respect of such transfer;

and, upon such deposit being made, he shall publish a notice of the application in every village, and shall send a copy of the notice to the Deputy Commissioner of every district through which such water-course passes.

24. Within thirty days from the publication of a notice under either of the two next preceding sections, any person interested in the land or water-course to which the notice refers may apply to the Deputy Commissioner by petition, stating his objection to the construction or transfer for which application has been made. The Deputy Commissioner may either reject the petition or may proceed to inquire into the validity of the objection, giving previous notice to the Divisional Canal officer of the place and time at which such inquiry will be held.

Objections to construction or transfer to be made to Deputy Commissioner.

The Deputy Commissioner shall record in writing all orders passed by him under this section and the grounds thereof.

25. If no such objection is made, or if the Deputy Commissioner overrules the objections made, he shall give notice to the Divisional Canal officer to that effect, and shall proceed forthwith to place the said applicant in occupation of land marked out or of the water-course to be transferred, as the case may be.

Deputy Commissioner may give occupation of land;

26. If the Deputy Commissioner considers any objection taken as aforesaid to be valid, he shall inform the Divisional Canal officer accordingly; and, if such officer sees fit, he may, in the case of an application under section twenty-one, alter the boundaries of the land so marked out, and may give fresh notice under section twenty-two; and the procedure hereinbefore provided shall be applicable to such notice, and the Deputy Commissioner shall thereupon proceed as before provided.

or may state objections to Canal officer.

27. If the Canal officer disagrees with the Deputy Commissioner, the matter shall be referred for decision to the Commissioner. Such decision shall be final, and the Deputy Commissioner, if he is so directed by such decision, shall forthwith cause the said applicant to be placed in occupation of land so marked out or of the water-course to be transferred, as the case may be.

Procedure if Deputy Commissioner disagrees with Canal officer.

28. No such applicant shall be placed in occupation of such land or water-course, until he has paid to the person named by the Deputy Commissioner such amount as the Deputy Commissioner shall determine to be due as compensation for the land or water-course so occupied or transferred, and for any damage occasioned by the marking out and occupation of such land, together with all expenses incidental to such occupation or transfer.

Conditions to be complied with previous to giving occupation of land.

In determining the compensation to be made under this section, the Deputy Commissioner shall proceed under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870; but he may, if the person to be compensated so wish, award such compensation in the form of a rent-charge payable in respect of the land or water-course occupied or transferred.

If such compensation and expenses are not paid when demanded by the person entitled to receive the same, the amount may be recovered by the Deputy Commissioner as if it were an arrear of land-revenue; and shall, when recovered, be paid by him to the person entitled to receive the same.

29. When any such applicant is placed in occupation of land or of a water-course as aforesaid, the following rules and conditions shall be binding on him and his representative in interest:—

Conditions binding to secure continuance of occupation.

First.—All works necessary for the passage across such water-course of water-courses existing previous to its construction and of the drainage intercepted by it, and for affording proper communications across it for the convenience of the neighbouring lands, shall be constructed by the applicant, and be maintained by him or his representative in interest to the satisfaction of the Divisional Canal officer.

Second.—Land occupied for a water-course under the provisions of section twenty-two shall be used only for the purpose of such water-course.

Third.—The proposed water-course shall be completed to the satisfaction of the Divisional Canal officer within one year after occupation of the land is given to the applicant.

In cases in which land is occupied or a water-course is transferred on the terms of a rent-charge,

Fourth.—the applicant or his representative in interest shall, so long as he occupies such land or water-course, pay rent for the same at such rate and on such days as shall be determined by the Deputy Commissioner when occupation is given.

Fifth.—If the right to occupy the land shall cease owing to a breach of any of these rules, the liability to pay the said rent shall continue until the applicant or his representative in interest has restored the land to its original condition, or until he has paid by way of compensation for any injury done to the said land such amount and to such persons as the Deputy Commissioner shall determine.

Sixth.—The Deputy Commissioner may, on the application of the person entitled to receive such rent or compensation, determine the amount of rent due or assess the amount of such compensation; and if any such rent or compensation be not paid by the applicant or his representative in interest, the Deputy Commissioner may recover the amount, with interest thereon at the rate of six per cent. per annum from the date on which it became due, as if it were an arrear of land-revenue, and shall pay the same, when recovered, to the persons to whom it is due.

If any of the rules or conditions prescribed by this section is not complied with, or if any water-course constructed or transferred under this Act, is disused for three years continuously, the right of the applicant, or of his representative in interest to occupy such land or water-course, shall cease absolutely.

30. The procedure, hereinbefore provided for the occupation of land for the construction of a water-course, shall be applicable to the occupation of land for any extension or alteration of a water-course, and for the deposit of soil from water-course clearances.

Land for the extension of water-courses to be obtained under same procedure.

Conditions of the supply of water.

31. In the absence of a written contract, so far as any such contract does not extend, every supply of canal-water shall be deemed to be given at the rates and subject to the conditions prescribed by the rules to be issued by the Local Governments in respect thereof.

Rates and conditions for supplying water in absence of written contract.

32. Such contracts and such rules shall be consistent with the following conditions:

Conditions of such rules.

Canal officer may stop admission of water into water-courses in certain cases.

(a.) The Divisional Canal officer may not stop the supply of water to any water-course, or to any person except in the following cases:

(1) whenever and so long as it is necessary to stop such supply for the purpose of executing any work ordered by competent authority, and with the previous sanction of the Local Government;

(2) whenever and so long as any water-course is not maintained in such proper customary repair as to prevent the wasteful escape of water therefrom.

Failure of supply in certain cases only to give claim to remission of water-rates.

(b.) No claim shall be made against the Government for compensation in respect of loss caused by the failure or stoppage of the water in a canal by reason of any cause beyond the control of the Government, or of any repairs, alterations or additions to the canal, or of any measures taken for regulating the proper flow of water therein, or for maintaining the established course of irrigation, which the Divisional Canal officer considers necessary; but the person who suffers such loss may claim such remission of the ordinary charges payable for the use of the water as shall be authorized by the Local Government:

Compensation for loss arising from interruption of water-supply when to be given.

(c.) If the supply of water to any land irrigated from a canal be interrupted otherwise than in the manner described in the last preceding clause, the occupier or owner of such land may present a petition for compensation to the Deputy Commissioner for any loss arising from such interruption, and the Deputy Commissioner may award reasonable compensation:

Continuance of supply.

(d.) When the water of a canal is supplied for the irrigation of a single crop, the permission to use such water shall be held to endure only until that crop shall come to maturity, and to apply only to that crop; but if it be supplied for irrigating two or more crops to be raised on the same land within the year, such permission shall be held to be for one year from the commencement of the irrigation, and to apply to such crops only as are matured within that year:

Sale or sub-letting of canal-water prohibited.

(e.) Unless with the permission of the Superintending Canal officer, no person entitled to use the water of any canal or any work, building or land appertaining to any canal, shall sell or sub-let or otherwise transfer his right to such use; but all contracts made between Government and the owner or occupier of any land or other property as to the supply of canal-water to such land or property, shall be transferable with such land or property, and shall be presumed to have been so transferred whenever a transfer of such land or property takes place:

(f.) No prescriptive right to the use of the water of a canal can be acquired by user or lapse of time, nor shall Government be bound to supply any person with water except in accordance with the terms of a specific contract.

right to arise from user.

Liability to Charges.

33. If water supplied through a water-course be used in an unauthorized manner, and if the person, by whose act or neglect such use has occurred, cannot be identified,

Liability when person using in unauthorized manner cannot be identified.

the person on whose land such water has flowed, if such land has derived benefit therefrom, and if he cannot be identified, or if such land has not derived benefit therefrom, all the persons chargeable in respect of the water supplied through such water-course, shall be jointly liable to the charges made for such use.

All charges for the unauthorized use or for waste of water may be recovered in addition to any penalties incurred on account of such use or waste.

All questions under this section shall be decided by the Divisional Canal officer, and his decision shall be final unless the Local Government shall otherwise direct.

34. If water supplied through a water-course be suffered to run to waste, and if, after enquiry by the Divisional Canal officer, the person, through whose act or neglect such water was suffered to run to waste, cannot be discovered, all the persons chargeable in respect of the water supplied through such water-course shall be jointly liable for the charges made in respect of the water so wasted.

Liability when water runs to waste.

35. Where a water-rate is charged on land held by several joint owners, it shall be payable by the manager or other person who receives the rents or profits of such land, and may be deducted by him from such rents or profits before division, or may be recovered by him from the persons liable to such rate in the manner cus-

Water-rates on Irrigated Lands.

36. The rates to be charged for canal-water supplied for purposes of irrigation to the occupiers of land shall be determined by the rules to be made by the Local Government, and such occupiers as accept the water shall pay for it accordingly. A rate so charged shall be called the "occupier's rate."

Charge on occupier for water for irrigation, or occupier's rate.

37. In addition to the occupier's rate, a rate to be called the "owner's rate," may be imposed on the owners of canal-irrigated lands, in respect of the benefit which they derive from such irrigation.

"Owner's rate."

The introduction of canal-irrigation into any land shall have the same effect on the landlord's right to re-enhance the rent of a tenant with a right of occupancy of such land, as if a general revision of settlement had taken place under which the revenue payable in respect of such land had been increased.

38. The owner's rate shall not exceed one half of the increase produced by the canal-irrigation in the net annual value of the land in respect of which it is imposed.

Amount of owner's rate.

39. If such land is occupied by the owner, or if it is occupied by a tenant whose rent is not liable to enhancement on the ground that the value of the produce of the land or the productive powers of the land have been increased by irrigation, such owner or occupier shall pay the owner's rate as well as the occupier's rate.

When occupier is to pay both owner's rate and occupier's rate.

40. In the case of a tenant with a right of occupancy, the Local Government shall make rules for dividing the owner's rate between the landlord and such tenant proportionately to the extent of the beneficial interest of each.

Local Government to make rules for apportioning owner's rate.

41. If the owner of the land is not the occupier, but has power to enhance the rent of the occupier on the ground that the value of the produce or the productive powers of the land have been increased by irrigation, or if, when the amount of rent was fixed, the land was irrigated from the canal, the owner shall pay the owner's rate.

42. No owner's rate shall be chargeable either on the owner or occupier of land assessed to pay land-revenue at canal-irrigation rates, unless a reduction has been made in such land-revenue equal to the amount by which it has been increased on account of the canal-irrigation of the land:

No owner's rate to be chargeable on land assessed to pay revenue at irrigated rates, till corresponding reduction has been made in revenue.

Provided that the owner's rate shall in no case, during the currency of an unexpired settlement, exceed the amount by which such land-revenue was so reduced.

43. A tenant not liable to enhancement of rent on the ground stated in section forty-one, who is charged with, and pays the owner's rate on land assessed at canal-irrigation rates, may deduct from his rent a sum equal to any sum which may, under the last section, be deducted from the revenue payable by the owner of the land.

Tenants liable to pay owner's rate under certain circumstances.

Water-rate on Lands irrigable but not irrigated.

44. At any time not less than five years after the commencement of irrigation from any canal, the Local Government may order an inquiry to be made by an officer appointed for that purpose into the condition of such canal and the irrigation therefrom. If, upon the report of such officer, the Local Government is satisfied that the owners or occupiers of lands irrigable by such canal have not made reasonable use of the canal for purposes of irrigation, the Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, issue a notification in the official Gazette declaring that the owners of such lands within local limits, to be specified in the notification, shall be charged with a special rate according to the provisions hereinafter contained.

Special rate on irrigable land to be charged.

45. Such special rate shall be levied yearly or half-yearly as the Local Government shall direct.

Special rate how to be levied.

46. No such special rate shall exceed one rupee per half-year per acre of land in respect of which the rate is charged.

Amount of special rate.

47. No such special rate shall be charged in respect of any land, if during the year or half-year (as the case may be) in respect to which such yearly or half-yearly rate might otherwise be claimed, water sufficient for the irrigation of such land has not been supplied when required by the owner or occupier thereof.

Bar of special rate in case of failure to supply sufficient water.

48. For the purposes of section forty-four, land shall be deemed irrigable by a canal when the following conditions are complied with in respect thereto:—

Irrigable lands defined.

(a.)—That it is cultivated and not irrigated;

(b.)—That the net annual value of the produce of the land or the productive powers thereof will be increased by the irrigation thereof by canal water, after deducting all necessary charges incurred in cultivating the same, conveying the water thereto, and paying all Government charges in respect of such irrigation;

(c.)—That the Divisional Canal officer shall have tendered to the occupier or owner thereof a supply of canal-water sufficient for the irrigation thereof in the manner customary in the irrigation of land from a canal;

(d.)—That the Divisional Canal officer shall have offered to the said occupier or owner to construct the works necessary for conveying the water to the said land under section sixteen, or (if the said occupier or owner shall so prefer) to apply the provisions of sections twenty-one, twenty-two, and twenty-three for the construction or transfer of a water-course, or shall have tendered an advance of money sufficient to provide for the construction of the said works; such advance to be re-payable in conformity with the rules for recovering advances made under the Act for the time being in force as to advances for improvements in land.

If any question shall arise whether the said conditions are complied with in respect of any land, it shall be determined in the same manner as suits relating to rent under the law for the time being in force.

49. The provisions of sections thirty-nine, forty, and forty-one shall apply to the payment of a special rate charged under section forty-four, as though such rate had been an owner's rate.

Recovery of special rate from occupier.

Water-rate on land benefited by percolation.

50. If it shall appear to the Divisional Canal officer that any cultivated land situate within three hundred yards of the edge of any artificial canal maintained by Government, receives by percolation from such canal an advantage equivalent to that which would be given by a direct supply of canal-water for irrigation, he may charge on such land a water-rate not exceeding that which would ordinarily have been charged for such a supply to land similarly cultivated.

Neighbouring land indirectly benefited by canal.

For the purposes of this Act, land charged under this section shall be deemed to be land irrigated from a canal.

Recovery of charges.

51. Any sum, certified by the Divisional Canal officer to be lawfully due under this Act, which remains unpaid after the day on which the same becomes due, shall be recoverable by the Deputy Commissioner from the person liable for the same as though it were an arrear of land-revenue.

Canal dues may be recovered as land-revenue on certificate of Canal officer.

52. The Divisional Canal officer or the Deputy Commissioner may enter into an agreement with any person for the collection and payment to the Government by such person of any sum payable under this Act by a third party.

Powers to collect canal-dues may be given to certain persons.

When such agreement has been made, such person may recover such sum by suit as though it were a debt due to him, or an arrear of rent due to him on account of the land, work or building in respect of which such sum is payable, or for or in which the canal-water shall have been supplied or used.

If such person shall make default in the payment of any sum collected by him under this section, such sum may be recovered from him by the Deputy Commissioner under section fifty-one; and if such sum or any part of it be still due by such third party, then such sum or such part of it may be recovered in like manner by the Deputy Commissioner from such third party.

53. The Deputy Commissioner may require the lambardár or person under engagement to pay the land-revenue of any estate, to collect and pay any sums payable under this Act by a third party in respect of any land or water, in such estate.

Lambardárs may be required to collect canal-dues.

PART IV.

NAVIGATION.

54. Any vessel which enters or navigates any canal contrary to the rules made in that behalf by the Local Government, or so as to cause danger to the canal or the vessels therein, may be removed and detained by the Divisional Canal officer, or by any person duly authorized in that behalf.

Detainer of vessels violating rules.

The owner of any vessel causing damage to a canal, or removed or detained under this section, shall be liable to pay to the Government such sum as the Divisional Canal officer shall, with the approval of the Superintending Canal officer, determine to be necessary to defray the expenses of repairing such damage, or of such removal or detention, as the case may be.

Liability of owners of vessels causing damage.

55. A fine imposed under the provisions of this Act upon the owner of any vessel, or the servant or agent of such owner, or other person in charge of any vessel, for any offence in respect of the navigation of such vessel, may be recovered either in the manner prescribed by the Code of Criminal Procedure, or, if the Magistrate imposing the fine shall so direct, as though it were a charge due on account of such vessel.

Recovery of fines from persons navigating canals.

56. If any charge due under the provisions of this Part in respect of any vessel is not paid on demand to the person authorized to collect the same, the Divisional Canal officer may seize and detain such vessel and the furniture thereof, until the charge due, together with all expenses and additional charges arising from such seizure and detention, are paid in full.

Power to seize and detain vessel on failure of payment of charges.

57. If any charge due under the provisions of this Part in respect of any cargo or goods carried in a Government vessel on a canal, or stored on or in canal-lands or warehouses, is not paid on demand to the person authorized to collect the same, the Divisional Canal officer may seize such cargo or goods and detain them until the charge so due, together with all expenses and additional charges arising from such seizure and detention, be paid in full.

Power to seize cargo or goods, the charges due on which have not been paid.

58. Within a reasonable time after any such seizure, as is described in the two last preceding sections, the said Canal officer shall give notice to the owner or person in charge of the property seized that it or such portion of it as may be necessary, will, on a day to be named in the notice, but not sooner than fifteen days from the date of the notice, be sold in satisfaction of the claim on account of which such property was seized, unless the claim be discharged before the day so named.

Recovery of such charges on failure of payment.

Application for construction of water-courses at expense of applicants.

The application shall state the works to be undertaken, their approximate estimated cost, or the amount which the applicant is willing to pay for the same, or whether he engages to pay the actual cost as settled by the Divisional Canal officer, and how the payment is to be made.

When the assent of the Superintending Canal officer is given to such application, all the persons who have signed it shall be jointly and severally liable for the cost of such works to the extent mentioned therein.

Any amount becoming due under the terms of such application, which is not paid to the Divisional Canal officer, or the person authorized by him to receive the same, on or before the date on which the payment becomes due, shall, on the demand of such officer, be recoverable by the Deputy Commissioner as if it were an arrear of land-revenue.

17. There shall be provided at the cost of Government suitable means of crossing canals, constructed or maintained at the cost of Government, at such places as the Local Government thinks necessary for the reasonable convenience of the inhabitants of the adjacent lands.

Government to provide means of crossing canals.

On an application in writing, signed by not less than five persons who are owners of such lands, to the effect that suitable crossings have not been provided on any canal, the Deputy Commissioner shall cause enquiry to be made into the circumstances of the case, and if he thinks that the allegation is established, he shall report his opinion thereon for the consideration of the Local Government, and the Local Government shall cause such measures in reference thereto to be taken as it thinks proper.

18. The Divisional Canal officer may issue an order to the person or persons using any water-course to construct suitable bridges, culverts, or other works for the passage of the water of such water-course across any public road, canal or drainage-channel, which was in use before the said water-course was made, or to repair any such works.

May require construction of works to pass water across roads, water-courses and drainage-channels.

Such order shall specify a reasonable period within which such construction or repairs shall be completed; and if, after the receipt of such order, the person to whom it is addressed does not, within the said period, construct or repair such works to the satisfaction of the said Canal officer, such officer may, with the previous approval of the Superintending Canal officer, himself construct or repair the same; and if the said person shall not, when required to do so, pay the cost of such construction or repairs as declared by the Divisional Canal officer, the amount shall, on the demand of the Divisional Canal officer, be recoverable from the said person by the Deputy Commissioner, as if it were an arrear of land-revenue.

19. If any person, jointly responsible with others for the construction or maintenance of a water-course, or jointly making use of a water-course with others, neglects or refuses to pay his share of the cost of such construction or maintenance, or to execute his share of any work necessary for such construction or maintenance, the Divisional or Sub-Divisional Canal officer, on receiving an application from any person injured by such neglect or refusal, shall give a fortnight's notice to all the parties concerned that he is about to investigate the case; and shall, on the expiration of that period, investigate the case accordingly, and make such order thereon as to him seems fit. Such order shall be appealable to the Commissioner, whose order shall be final.

Settlement of disputes as to cost of construction and maintenance of water-courses.

If such order direct the payment of any sum to be made within a specified period, such sum may, if not paid within such period, be recovered by the Deputy Commissioner from the person directed to pay the same, as if it were an arrear of land-revenue.

20. Whenever application is made to a Divisional Canal officer for a supply of water from a canal, and it appears to him expedient that such supply should be given and that it should be conveyed through some existing water-course,

Power to grant passage of water through a water-course, and to prescribe the conditions of such grant of passage:

he shall give notice to the person or persons responsible for the maintenance of such water-course to show cause, on a day not less than fourteen days from the date of such notice, why the said supply should not be so conveyed; and, after making enquiry on such day, the Divisional Canal officer shall determine whether and on what conditions the said supply shall be conveyed through such water-course.

When such officer determines that a supply of canal-water may be conveyed through any water-course as aforesaid, his decision shall, when confirmed or modified by the Superintending Canal officer, be binding on the applicant and also on the persons responsible for the maintenance of the said water-course.

Such applicant shall not be entitled to use such water-course until he has paid the expense of any alteration of such water-course necessary in order to his being supplied through it, and also such share of the first cost of such water-course as the Divisional or Superintending Canal officer shall determine.

Such applicant shall also be liable for his share of the cost of maintenance of such water-course so long as he uses it.

21. Any person desiring the construction of a new water-course may apply in writing to the Divisional Canal officer, stating

Application for construction of a new water-course.

(3) that he is able to defray all costs involved in acquiring such land and constructing such water-course.

Procedure of Divisional Canal officer thereupon.

22. If the Divisional Canal officer considers

(1) that the construction of such water-course is expedient, and

(2) that the statements in the application are true,

he shall call upon the applicant to make such deposit as he considers necessary to defray the cost of the preliminary proceedings and the amount of any compensation which he may consider likely to become due under section twenty-eight;

and, upon such deposit being made, he shall cause enquiry to be made into the most suitable alignment for the said water-course, and shall mark out the land which, in his opinion, it will be necessary to occupy for the construction thereof, and shall forthwith publish a notice in every village through which the water-course is proposed to be taken, that so much of such land as belongs to such village has been so marked out, and shall send a copy of such notice to the Deputy Commissioner of every district in which any part of such land is situate.

23. Any person desiring that an existing water-course should be transferred from its present owner to himself, may apply in writing to the Divisional Canal officer, stating

Application for transfer of existing water-course.

(1) that he has been unable to come to terms with the owner of such water-course;

(2) that he desires the said Canal officer, in his behalf and at his cost, to do all things necessary for the transfer to him of such water-course;

(3) that he is able to defray the cost of such transfer.

If the Divisional Canal officer considers

(a) that the said transfer is expedient,

(b) that the statements in the application are true,

he shall call upon the applicant to make such deposit as he considers necessary to defray the cost of the preliminary proceedings, and the amount of any compensation that may become due under the provisions of section twenty-eight in respect of such transfer;

and upon such deposit being made, he shall publish a notice of the application in every village, and shall send a copy of the notice to the Deputy Commissioner of every district through which such water-course passes.

24. Within thirty days from the publication of a notice under either of the two next preceding sections, any person interested in the land or water-course to which the notice refers may apply to the Deputy Commissioner by petition, stating his objection to the construction or transfer for which application has been made. The Deputy Commissioner may either reject the petition or may proceed to inquire into the validity of the objection, giving previous notice to the Divisional Canal officer of the place and time at which such inquiry will be held.

Objections to construction or transfer to be made to Deputy Commissioner.

The Deputy Commissioner shall record in writing all orders passed by him under this section and the grounds thereof.

25. If no such objection is made, or if the Deputy Commissioner overrules the objections made, he shall give notice to the Divisional Canal officer to that effect, and shall proceed forthwith to place the said applicant in occupation of land marked out or of the water-course to be transferred, as the case may be.

Deputy Commissioner may give occupation of land;

26. If the Deputy Commissioner considers any objection taken as aforesaid to be valid, he shall inform the Divisional Canal officer accordingly; and, if such officer sees fit, he may, in the case of an application under section twenty-one, alter the boundaries of the land so marked out, and may give fresh notice under section twenty-two; and the procedure hereinbefore provided shall be applicable to such notice, and the Deputy Commissioner shall thereupon proceed as before provided.

or may state objections to Canal officer.

27. If the Canal officer disagrees with the Deputy Commissioner, the matter shall be referred for decision to the Commissioner. Such decision shall be final, and the Deputy Commissioner, if he is so directed by such decision, shall forthwith cause the said applicant to be placed in occupation of land so marked out or of the water-course to be transferred, as the case may be.

Procedure if Deputy Commissioner disagrees with Canal officer.

28. No such applicant shall be placed in occupation of such land or water-course, until he has paid to the person named by the Deputy Commissioner such amount as the Deputy Commissioner shall determine to be due as compensation for the land or water-course so occupied or transferred, and for any damage occasioned by the marking out and occupation of such land, together with all expenses incidental to such occupation or transfer.

Conditions to be complied with previous to giving occupation of land.

In determining the compensation to be made under this section, the Deputy Commissioner shall proceed under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870; but he may, if the person to be compensated so wish, award such compensation in the form of a rent-charge payable in respect of the land or water-course occupied or transferred.

If such compensation and expenses are not paid when demanded by the person entitled to receive the same, the amount may be recovered by the Deputy Commissioner as if it were an arrear of land-revenue; and shall, when recovered, be paid by him to the person entitled to receive the same.

29. When any such applicant is placed in occupation of land or of a water-course as aforesaid, the following rules and conditions shall be binding on him and his representative in interest:—

Conditions binding to secure continuance of occupation.

First.—All works necessary for the passage across such water-course of water-courses existing previous to its construction and of the drainage intercepted by it, and for affording proper communications across it for the convenience of the neighbouring lands, shall be constructed by the applicant, and be maintained by him or his representative in interest, to the satisfaction of the Divisional Canal officer.

Second.—Land occupied for a water-course under the provisions of section twenty-two shall be used only for the purpose of such water-course.

Third.—The proposed water-course shall be completed to the satisfaction of the Divisional Canal officer within one year after occupation of the land is given to the applicant.

In cases in which land is occupied or a water-course is transferred on the terms of a rent-charge,

Fourth.—the applicant or his representative in interest shall, so long as he occupies such land or water-course, pay rent for the same at such rate and on such days as shall be determined by the Deputy Commissioner when occupation is given.

Fifth.—If the right to occupy the land shall cease owing to a breach of any of these rules, the liability to pay the said rent shall continue until the applicant or his representative in interest has restored the land to its original condition, or until he has paid by way of compensation for any injury done to the said land such amount and to such persons as the Deputy Commissioner shall determine.

Sixth.—The Deputy Commissioner may, on the application of the person entitled to receive such rent or compensation, determine the amount of rent due or assess the amount of such compensation; and if any such rent or compensation be not paid by the applicant or his representative in interest, the Deputy Commissioner may recover the amount, with interest thereon at the rate of six per cent. per annum from the date on which it became due, as if it were an arrear of land-revenue, and shall pay the same, when recovered, to the persons to whom it is due.

If any of the rules or conditions prescribed by this section is not complied with, or if any water-course constructed or transferred under this Act, is disused for three years continuously, the right of the applicant, or of his representative in interest to occupy such land or water-course, shall cease absolutely.

30. The procedure, hereinbefore provided for the occupation of land for the construction of a water-course, shall be applicable to the occupation of land for any extension or alteration of a water-course, and for the deposit of soil from water-course clearances.

Land for the extension of water-courses to be obtained under same procedure.

Conditions of the supply of water.

31. In the absence of a written contract, or so far as any such contract does not extend, every supply of canal water shall be deemed to be given at the rates and subject to the conditions prescribed by the rules to be issued by the Local Governments in respect thereof.

Rates and conditions for supplying water in absence of written contract.

32. Such contracts and such rules shall be consistent with the following conditions:

Conditions of such rules.

Canal officer may stop admission of water into water-courses in certain cases.

(a.) The Divisional Canal officer may not stop the supply of water to any water-course, or to any person except in the following cases:

(1) whenever and so long as it is necessary to stop such supply for the purpose of executing any work ordered by competent authority, and with the previous sanction of the Local Government;

(2) whenever and so long as any water-course is not maintained in such proper customary repair as to prevent the wasteful escape of water therefrom.

(b.) No claim shall be made against the Government for compensation in respect of loss caused by the failure or stoppage of the water in a canal by reason of any cause beyond the control of the Government, or of any repairs, alterations or additions to the canal, or of any measures taken for regulating the proper flow of water therein, or for maintaining the established course of irrigation, which the Divisional Canal officer considers necessary; but the person who suffers such loss may claim such remission of the ordinary charges payable for the use of the water as shall be authorized by the Local Government.

(c.) If the supply of water to any land irrigated from a canal be interrupted otherwise than in the manner described in the last preceding clause, the occupier or owner of such land may present a petition for compensation to the Deputy Commissioner for any loss arising from such interruption, and the Deputy Commissioner may award reasonable compensation:

Compensation for loss arising from interruption of water-supply when to be given.

(d.) When the water of a canal is supplied for the irrigation of a single crop, the permission to use such water shall be held to endure only until that crop shall come to maturity, and to apply only to that crop; but if it be supplied for irrigating two or more crops to be raised on the same land within the year, such permission shall be held to be for one year from the commencement of the irrigation, and to apply to such crops only as are matured within that year:

Continuance of supply.

(e.) Unless with the permission of the Superintending Canal officer, no person entitled to use the water of any canal or any work, building or land appertaining to any canal, shall sell or sub-let or otherwise transfer his right to such use; but all contracts made between Government and the owner or occupier of any land or other property as to the supply of canal-water to such land or property, shall be transferable with such land or property, and shall be presumed to have been so transferred whenever a transfer of such land or property takes place:

Sale or sub-letting of canal-water prohibited.

Contracts for water transferable with the land.

(f.) No prescriptive right to the use of the water of a canal can be acquired by user or lapse of time, nor shall Government be bound to supply any person with water except in accordance with the terms of a specific contract.

No right to arise from user.

Liability to Charges.

33. If water supplied through a water-course be used in an unauthorized manner, and if the person, by whose act or neglect such use has occurred, cannot be identified,

Liability when person using in unauthorized manner cannot be identified.

the person on whose land such water has flowed, if such land has derived benefit there from,

and if he cannot be identified, or if such land has not derived benefit therefrom, all the persons chargeable in respect of the water supplied through such water-course, shall be jointly liable to the charges made for such use.

All charges for the unauthorized use or for waste of water may be recovered in addition to any penalties incurred on account of such use or waste.

All questions under this section shall be decided by the Divisional Canal officer, and his decision shall be final unless the Local Government shall otherwise direct.

34. If water supplied through a water-course be suffered to run to waste, and if, after enquiry by the Divisional Canal officer, the person, through whose act or neglect such water was suffered to run to waste, cannot be discovered, all the persons chargeable in respect of the water supplied through such weter-course shall be jointly liable for the charges made in respect of the water so wasted.

Liability when water runs to waste.

35. Where a water-rate is charged on land held by several joint owners, it shall be payable by the manager or other person who receives the rents or profits of such land, and may be deducted by him from such rents or profits before division, or may be recovered by him from the persons liable to such rate in the manner customary in the recovery of other charges on such rents or profits.

Water-rate chargeable on owner of land of which profits divisible.

Water-rates on Irrigated Lands.

36. The rates to be charged for canal-water supplied for purposes of irrigation to the occupiers of land shall be determined by the rules to be made by the Local Government, and such occupiers as accept the water shall pay for it accordingly. A rate so charged shall be called the "occupier's rate."

Charge on occupier for water for irrigation, or occupier's rate.

37. In addition to the occupier's rate, a rate to be called the "owner's rate" may be imposed on the owners of canal-irrigated lands, in respect of the benefit which they derive from such irrigation.

"Owner's rate."

The introduction of canal-irrigation into any land shall have the same effect on the landlord's right to re-enhance the rent of a tenant with a right of occupancy of such land, as if a general revision of settlement had taken place under which the revenue payable in respect of such land had been increased.

38. The owner's rate shall not exceed one-half of the increase produced by the canal irrigation in the net annual value of the land in respect of which it is imposed.

Amount of owner's rate.

39. If such land is occupied by the owner, or if it is occupied by a tenant whose rent is not liable to enhancement on the ground that the value of the produce of the land or the productive powers of the land have been increased by irrigation, such owner or occupier shall pay the owner's rate as well as the occupier's rate.

When occupier is to pay both owner's rate and occupier's rate.

40. In the case of a tenant with a right of occupancy, the Local Government shall make rules for dividing the owner's rate between the landlord and such tenant proportionately to the extent of the beneficial interest of each.

Local Government to make rules for apportioning owner's rate.

41. If the owner of the land is not the occupier, but has power to enhance the rent of the occupier on the ground that the value of the produce or the productive powers of the land have been increased by irrigation, or if,

When owner is to pay owner's rate.

when the amount of rent was fixed, the land was irrigated from the canal, the owner shall pay the owner's rate.

42. No owner's rate shall be chargeable either on the owner or occupier of land assessed to pay land-revenue at canal-irrigation rates, unless a reduction has been made in such land-revenue equal to the amount by which it has been increased on account of the canal-irrigation of the land:

No owner's rate to be chargeable on land assessed to pay revenue at irrigated rates, till corresponding reduction has been made in revenue.

Provided that the owner's rate shall in no case, during the currency of an unexpired settlement, exceed the amount by which such land-revenue was so reduced.

43. A tenant not liable to enhancement of rent on the ground stated in section forty-one, who is charged with, and pays the owner's rate on land assessed at canal-irrigation rates, may deduct from his rent a sum equal to any sum which may, under the last section, be deducted from the revenue payable by the owner of the land.

Tenants liable to pay owner's rate under certain circumstances.

Water-rate on Lands irrigable, but not irrigated.

44. At any time not less than five years after the commencement of irrigation from any canal, the Local Government may order an inquiry to be made by an officer appointed for that purpose into the condition of such canal and the irrigation therefrom. If, upon the report of such officer, the Local Government is satisfied that the owners or occupiers of lands irrigable by such canal have not made reasonable use of the canal for purposes of irrigation, the Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, issue a notification in the official Gazette declaring that the owners of such lands within local limits, to be specified in the notification, shall be charged with a special rate according to the provisions hereinafter contained.

Special rate on irrigable land to be charged.

45. Such special rate shall be levied yearly or half-yearly as the Local Government shall direct.

Special rate how to be levied.

46. No such special rate shall exceed one rupee per half-year per acre of land in respect of which the rate is charged.

Amount of special rate.

47. No such special rate shall be charged in respect of any land, if during the year or half-year (as the case may be) in respect to which such yearly or half-yearly rate might otherwise be claimed, water sufficient for the irrigation of such land has not been supplied when required by the owner or occupier thereof.

Bar of special rate in case of failure to supply sufficient water.

48. For the purposes of section forty-four, land shall be deemed irrigable by a canal when the following conditions are complied with in respect thereto:—

Irrigable lands defined.

(a.)—That it is cultivated and not irrigated;

(b.)—That the net annual value of the produce of the land or the productive powers thereof will be increased by the irrigation thereof by canal water, after deducting all necessary charges incurred in cultivating the same, conveying the water thereto, and paying all Government charges in respect of such irrigation;

(c.)—That the Divisional Canal officer shall have tendered to the occupier or owner thereof a supply of canal-water sufficient for the irrigation thereof in the manner customary in the irrigation of land from a canal;

(d.)—That the Divisional Canal officer shall have offered to the said occupier or owner to construct the works necessary for conveying the water to the said land under section sixteen, or (if the said occupier or owner shall so prefer) to apply the provisions of sections twenty-one, twenty-two, and twenty-three for the construction or transfer of a water-course, or shall have tendered an advance of money sufficient to provide for the construction of the said works; such advance to be re-payable in conformity with the rules for recovering advances made under the Act for the time being in force as to advance for improvements in land.

If any question shall arise whether the said conditions are complied with in respect of any land, it shall be determined in the same manner as suits relating to rent under the law for the time being in force.

49. The provisions of sections thirty-nine, forty, and forty-one shall apply to the payment of a special rate charged under section forty-four, as though such rate had been an owner's rate.

Recovery of special rate from occupier.

Water-rate on land benefited by percolation.

50. If it shall appear to the Divisional Canal officer that any cultivated land situate within three hundred yards of the edge of any artificial canal maintained by Government, receives by percolation from such canal an advantage equivalent to that which would be given by a direct supply of canal-water for irrigation, he may charge on such land a water-rate not exceeding that which would ordinarily have been charged for such a supply to land similarly cultivated.

Neighbouring land indirectly benefitted by canal.

For the purposes of this Act, land charged under this section shall be deemed to be land irrigated from a canal.

Recovery of Charges.

51. Any sum, certified by the Divisional Canal officer to be lawfully due under this Act, which remains unpaid after the day on which the same becomes due, shall be recoverable by the Deputy Commissioner from the person liable for the same as though it were an arrear of land-revenue.

Canal dues may be recovered as land-revenue on certificate of Canal officer.

52. The Divisional Canal officer or the Deputy Commissioner may enter into an agreement with any person for the collection and payment to the Government by such person of any sum payable under this Act by a third party.

Powers to collect canal-dues may be given to certain persons.

When such agreement has been made, such person may recover such sum by suit as though it were a debt due to him, or an arrear of rent due to him on account of the land, work or building in respect of which such sum is payable, or for or in which the canal-water shall have been supplied or used.

If such person shall make default in the payment of any sum collected by him under this section, such sum may be recovered from him by the Deputy Commissioner under section fifty-one; and if such sum or any part of it be still due by such third party, then such sum or such part of it may be recovered in like manner by the Deputy Commissioner from such third party.

53. The Deputy Commissioner may require the lambardár or person under engagement to pay the land-revenue of any estate, to collect and pay any sums payable under this Act by a third party in respect of any land or water in such estate.

Lambardárs may be required to collect canal-dues.

PART IV.

NAVIGATION.

54. Any vessel which enters or navigates any canal contrary to the rules made in that behalf by the Local Government, or so as to cause danger to the canal or the vessels therein, may be removed and detained by the Divisional Canal officer, or by any person duly authorized in that behalf.

Detainer of vessels violating rules.

The owner of any vessel causing damage to a canal, or removed or detained under this section, shall be liable to pay to the Government such sum as the Divisional Canal officer shall, with the approval of the Superintending Canal officer, determine to be necessary to defray the expenses of repairing such damage, or of such removal or detention, as the case may be.

Liability of owners of vessels causing damage.

55. A fine imposed under the provisions of this Act upon the owner of any vessel, or the servant or agent of such owner, or other person in charge of any vessel, for any offence in respect of the navigation of such vessel, may be recovered either in the manner prescribed by the Code of Criminal Procedure, or, if the Magistrate imposing the fine shall so direct, as though it were a charge due on account of such vessel.

Recovery of fines from persons navigating canals.

56. If any charge due under the provisions of this Part in respect of any vessel is not paid on demand to the person authorized to collect the same, the Divisional Canal officer may seize and detain such vessel and the furniture thereof, until the charge due, together with all expenses and additional charges arising from such seizure and detention, are paid in full.

Power to seize and detain vessel on failure of payment of charges.

57. If any charge due under the provisions of this Part in respect of any cargo or goods carried in a Government vessel on a canal, or stored on or in canal-lands or warehouses, is not paid on demand to the person authorized to collect the same, the Divisional Canal officer may seize such cargo or goods and detain them until the charge so due, together with all expenses and additional charges arising from such seizure and detention, be paid in full.

Power to seize cargo or goods, the charges due on which have not been paid.

58. Within a reasonable time after any such seizure, as is described in the two last preceding sections, the said Canal officer shall give notice to the owner or person in charge of the property seized that it or such portion of it as may be necessary, will, on a day to be named in the notice, but not sooner than fifteen days from the date of the notice, be sold in satisfaction of the claim on account of which such property was seized, unless the claim be discharged before the day so named.

Recovery of such charges on failure of payment.

And if such claim be not so discharged, the said Canal officer may, on such day, sell the property seized, or such part thereof as may be necessary to yield the amount due, together with the expenses of such seizure and sale:

The residue of such furniture, cargo or goods, and of the proceeds of the sale, shall be made over to the owner or person in charge of the same.

59. If any vessel be found abandoned in a canal, or any cargo or goods carried in a Government vessel on a canal or stored on or in canal-lands or warehouses be left unclaimed for a period of two months, the Divisional Canal officer may take possession of the same. A Divisional officer so taking possession may publish a notice that, if such vessel and its contents, or such cargo or goods, are not claimed previously to a day to be named in the notice, not sooner than thirty days from the date of such notice, he will sell the same; and, if such vessel or cargo are not so claimed, he may at any time after the day named in the notice, proceed to sell the same.

Vessels found abandoned may be taken possession of and sold.

The said vessel and its contents, and the said cargo or goods, if unsold, or, if a sale has taken place, the proceeds of the sale, after paying all tolls, charges and expenses incurred by the Canal officer on account of the taking possession and sale, shall be made over to the owner of the same, when his ownership is established to the satisfaction of the Divisional Canal officer. If the Divisional Canal officer is doubtful to whom such property or proceeds of such sale should be made over, he may direct the property to be sold as aforesaid, and the proceeds of the sale to be paid into the direct treasury, there to be held until the right thereto be decided by a Court of competent jurisdiction.

Disposal of proceeds of sale.

PART V.

DRAINAGE.

Removal of obstructions of Drainage-channels.

60. Whenever it appears to the Local Government that injury to any land or the public health or public convenience has arisen or may arise from the obstruction of any river, stream or drainage-channel, such Government may, by notification in the official Gazette,

Local Government may prohibit obstruction of drainage-channels.

prohibit, within limits to be defined in such notification, the formation of any obstruction, or may, within such limits, order the removal or other alteration of such obstruction. And thereupon, so much of the said river, stream, or drainage-channel as shall be comprised within such limits, shall be held to be a drainage-work as defined in this Act.

After prohibition, obstructions to be removed.

61. The Divisional Canal officer, or other person authorized by the Local Government in that behalf, may, after the publication of such notification, issue an order to the person causing or having control over any such obstruction to remove or alter the same.

If, within a time to be fixed in the order, such person shall not remove or alter such obstruction, the said Canal officer may himself remove or alter it; and if the person to whom the order was issued shall not, when called upon, pay the expenses involved in such removal or alteration, such expenses shall be recoverable from him or his representative as an arrear of land-revenue.

Improvement of drainage of Lands.

Local Government may cause schemes and estimates for necessary drainage-works to be prepared.

62. Whenever it appears to the Local Government that any drainage-works are necessary for the improvement of any lands, or for the proper cultivation or irrigation thereof, or that protection from floods or other accumulations of water, or from erosion by a river is required for any lands, such Local Government may cause a scheme for such drainage-works to be drawn up and published, together with an estimate of its cost and a statement of the proportion of such cost which the Government proposes to defray, and a schedule of the lands which it is proposed to make chargeable in respect of the scheme.

Powers of persons employed on such schemes.

63. The persons authorized by Government to draw up such scheme may exercise all or any of the powers conferred on Canal officers by section fourteen of this Act.

Drainage-rates may be levied on lands benefited by such works.

64. An annual rate in respect of such scheme may be charged on the owners of all lands which shall, in the manner hereinafter provided, be determined to be so chargeable.

Such rate shall be fixed as nearly as possible so as not to exceed either of the following limits:—

(1.) Six per cent. per annum on the first cost of the said works, adding thereto the estimated cost of the annual maintenance and supervision of the same, and deducting therefrom the estimated income, if any, derived from the works, excluding the said rate:

(2.) In the case of agricultural land, one-half of the estimated increase to the annual value of the land due to the improvement to be effected by the works.

Such rate may be varied from time to time within such maximum by the said Government.

So far as any defect to be remedied is due to any canal, water-course, road or other work or obstruction, constructed or caused by the Government or any person, a proportionate share of the cost of the drainage-works required for the remedy of the said defect shall be borne by the Government or such person.

Drainage-rates to be recovered as arrear of land-revenue.

65. Any such drainage-rate shall be recoverable as a water-rate.

Claims for compensation for loss caused by removal of obstructions how made.

66. Whenever, in pursuance of a notification made under section sixty, any obstruction is removed, or whenever any drainage-work is carried out under section sixty-two, all claims for compensation on account of any loss consequent on the removal of the said obstruction or construction of such work, may be made before the Deputy Commissioner, and he shall deal with the same in the manner provided in section ten.

Limitation of such claims.

67. No such claim shall be entertained unless it be made within one year next after the commencement of the loss complained of.

PART VI.

OBTAINING LABOUR FOR CANALS AND DRAINAGE-WORKS.

Definition of "labourer" as used in this Part.

and that the labourers necessary for the proper execution thereof cannot be obtained in the ordinary manner within the time that can be allowed for the execution of such work so as to avoid such consequences, the said officer may require any person named in such list to furnish so many labourers (not exceeding the number which, according to the said list, he is liable to supply) as to the said officer seems necessary for the immediate execution of such work.

Every requisition so made shall be in writing, and shall state the nature and locality of the work to be done, the number of labourers to be supplied by the person upon whom the requisition is made, the approximate time for which and the day on which the labourers will be required; and a copy thereof shall be immediately sent to the Superintending Canal officer for the information of the Local Government.

The rates to be paid to any such labourers, in excess of the highest rates paid in the neighbourhood for similar work, shall be fixed by the Local Government, and the payment shall extend to the whole period during which any such labourer is absent from his ordinary home.

The Local Government may direct that the provisions of this Part shall be applicable to any district or part of a district for the purpose of effecting necessary annual silt clearances.

Labourers liable to supply and continue their labour.

71. When any requisition has been made on any such person, every labourer ordinarily resident within the village or estate of such person shall be liable to supply, and to continue to supply, his labour for the purposes aforesaid.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The Panjáb Land-Revenue Act, 1871;"

Local extent.

It extends to the territories subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjáb, but not so as to affect the validity of any Regulation made by the Governor General under the provisions of 33 Vic., Cap. 3, for any portion of the territories to which this Act extends;

Commencement.

And it shall come into force on the first day of January 1872.

'Estate' defined.

CHAPTER I.

2. There shall be in the Panjáb the following grades of Revenue Officers:—

CHAPTER II.

OF SETTLEMENTS.

Settlement in progress.

7. Whenever the amount of revenue to be paid in a district or other local area is being assessed or re-assessed, or whenever the record of rights hereinafter described is being either made or revised under the provisions hereinafter contained, a settlement is said to be in progress; a district or other local area in which a settlement is in progress is said to be under settlement.

District under settlement.

Person settled with.

8. Whenever any person or persons are permitted to engage with the Government for the payment of revenue due in respect of any land, they are said to be settled with, or a settlement is said to be made with them in respect of that land.

Instructions for settlement to state principle of assessment.

9. The Local Government shall, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, give written instructions to the officer in charge of a settlement, stating the principle on which the revenue in such settlement is to be assessed. No Court of justice shall be entitled, under any circumstances, to require the production, or shall permit evidence to be given of the contents, of such instructions.

Three kinds of settlements.

10. Settlements may be of the following kinds:—

(1) a summary settlement is a provisional settlement, made pending a first regular settlement: the declaration of the Local Government that a settlement was summary shall be conclusive proof that it was so;

(2) a first regular settlement is a settlement in which the revenue is assessed, and a record of rights is, for the first time, formed;

(3) a re-settlement is a settlement, subsequent to a first regular settlement, in which either the revenue is re-assessed, or the record of rights is revised, or in which both these processes are conducted.

Notification of settlement.

11. Whenever a district or other local area is to be put under settlement, the Local Government shall, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, issue a notification of settlement.

Such notification shall—

(1) define the local area which is to be put under settlement;

(2) mention such of the officers by whom it is to be made as to the Local Government seems fit; and, in every case in which judicial powers are conferred, shall specify the powers so conferred: the officers so mentioned shall be called Settlement Officers, and the principal officer so mentioned shall be the officer in charge of the settlement;

(3) declare whether the settlement is a summary settlement, a first regular settlement, or a re-settlement; and, in the case of a re-settlement, whether there is to be a re-assessment of revenue, or revision of the record of rights, or both;

(4) declare whether surveys and plans are to be made, and, in the case of a first regular settlement, whether the boundaries of villages and estates are to be adjusted.

Power to amend notification.

12. The Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, from time to time amend the settlement notification, and may prescribe the order in which the Settlement Officers shall discharge their duties, or alter the duties to be discharged by them.

Local Government may remove Settlement Officers and appoint new ones.

13. The Local Government may remove any of the Settlement Officers mentioned in the notification, and appoint others to succeed them, or to act for them during their temporary absence.

Of what documents records of rights are to consist.

14. Records of rights hereafter to be made shall consist of the following documents:—

Maps and measurements.

(1) maps and measurement papers, showing the boundaries of the village or place in respect of which the settlement is to be made, and the fields into which it is divided:

Statement of occupants and owners.

(2) a statement of the occupiers and owners of the fields specified in the said maps, and of the lands occupied or owned by them, and of the terms on which they are so owned or occupied:

Tender of engagement.

(3) a tender on behalf of the person or persons settled with to engage for the payment of the revenue during the term for which the settlement is made:

Statement of holdings, amount of revenue payable, &c.

(4) a statement of the shares or holdings of the different persons settled with, and of the amount of revenue for which, as between each other, they are to be responsible; and a statement of persons holding lands free of revenue and of the lands so held:

Terms of payment and village customs.

(5) a statement of the terms on which the persons settled with agree to pay the revenue assessed, and of the customs of the village or place in respect of which the settlement is made; such statement shall be so arranged as to distinguish such customs as regulate—

(a) the relations of the persons settled with to the Government:

(b) the relations of the persons settled with towards one another:

(c) the relations of the persons settled with to other persons:

Abstract of proceedings at settlement.

(6) an abstract of the proceedings at the settlement, which shall contain a statement of all judicial decisions passed by the Settlement Officers in the course of the settlement.

Form, language and contents of documents.

15. The Local Government shall from time to time prescribe the form, language and contents of each of the documents mentioned in the last preceding section, and the manner in which each shall be prepared, signed and attested; and may direct, either generally or in any particular case, other documents besides those specified to be contained in the record of rights.

Proof and effect of decisions by Settlement Officers.

16. Judicial decisions passed by Settlement Officers shall be proved in the same manner, and shall have, when proved, the same effect, as judgments delivered by Civil Courts.

Authenticated entries in record of rights to be presumed true.

Entries in the record of rights made or authenticated at a regular settlement or re-settlement in the manner prescribed by the Local Government shall be presumed to be true.

Sanction of settlement.

17. A settlement notified under section eleven shall be deemed to be in progress until sanctioned by the Local Government. Such sanction may be either

(1) of the record of rights, or

(2) of the assessment, or

(3) of the record of rights and of the assessment.

The Local Government, on the report of the Financial Commissioner that the operations of the settlement are complete, may, previous to sanction, direct that the record of rights be handed over to the Deputy Commissioner of the district, and that the special jurisdiction conferred on any officer under section twenty-one or twenty-two of the Panjáb Courts Act, 1865, shall cease, and that the suits pending in the Courts of any such officers, or appeals from, or applications for the review of, the judgments of such officers, be transferred to the ordinary Civil Courts, or to the Court of any officer appointed by the Local Government for the purpose of disposing of such suits, appeals or applications.

Revision of record of rights.

18. The assessment or record of rights may be revised if the Local Government so directs, at any time before they are sanctioned respectively.

Time and manner of revision.

19. When a record of rights made in any district or other local area at a regular settlement has been sanctioned, it shall not be revised until such district or local area is again put under settlement, nor shall it at such subsequent settlement be revised otherwise than by

(a) making entries in accordance with facts which have occurred since the date of the abstract specified in clause six of section fourteen:

(b) making such alterations of the record as are agreed to by all the parties interested therein, or are supported by a judicial decision;

(c) making new maps, surveys or measurement, when the Local Government so directs, and amending such of the documents of the record of rights as depend thereon, so as to accord with such new maps, surveys or measurement; but not so as to alter any statement as to the share or holding or status of any person, except in the cases mentioned in clauses (a) and (b) of this section.

Suit for declaration that an entry is incorrect.

20. Any person who considers that he is aggrieved as to any right of which he is in possession, by any entry made in a record of rights, may, after such record of rights has been sanctioned, bring a suit in a Civil Court for a declaration that such entry is incorrect, and that a different entry ought to have been made. The Government and every person interested in such entry shall be made defendants in every such suit.

Effect of decree.

A decree obtained in such suit shall be of the same effect as if the entry which it declares to be correct had been made orginally in the record of rights.

The provisions of this section shall not apply to any entry having the force of an agreement under section two of the Panjáb Tenancy Act, 1868, as amended by this Act.

Amendment of section two, Act XXVIII of 1868.

21. Instead of the last clause of section two of the Panjáb Tenancy Act, 1868, the following shall be read: "All entries in such record, made previously to the passing of the Panjáb Land-Revenue Act, 1872, in respect of matters comprised in Chapters III, IV, V and VI of this Act, shall, when attested by the proper officer, be deemed to be agreements within the meaning of this section."

Erection and repair of boundary-marks.

22. Any Revenue Officer, and, in a district under settlement, any Settlement Officer, may, by a notice in writing, require the persons liable for the revenue of any village, estate or field to erect or repair boundary-marks sufficient for defining the limits of such village, estate or field; and if such boundary-marks are not so constructed or repaired within a period to be specified in the notice, such Revenue or Settlement Officer may cause boundary-marks to be so erected or repaired; and the cost of such erection or repair shall be recoverable from the persons liable for the revenue of such village, estate or field, as if it were an arrear of land-revenue due in respect of such village, estate or field.

Power to issue commissions to take evidence, or for local investigations, and to refer to arbitration.

23. Settlement Officers may issue commissions to take evidence, or for local investigations, according to the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, and may, if empowered by the Local Government, refer any matter in dispute to arbitrators, whether with or without the consent of parties. The arbitrators to be appointed under this section shall exercise such powers, proceed in such manner, and their finding shall be liable to such appeal, as the Local Government directs.

Power to compel attendance of witnesses.

24. Settlement officers shall have the same power to compel the attendance of all persons whom they believe to be able to give them information as to the matters into which they are empowered to inquire under the notification mentioned in section eleven, as the Judges of Civil Courts have to procure the attendance of witnesses under the Code of Civil Procedure; and all persons who appear before such officers are bound to state the truth upon all such matters, and to produce such documents and other things as may be required of them.

Power to enter lands to make surveys, &c.

25. Settlement Officers and the servants and workmen employed by them, shall have the powers specified in the Land Acquisition Act (X of 1870), section four, for the purpose of making such plans and surveys as are directed by the said notification, and of collecting such information as to the quality and produce of the land as may be necessary to enable them to assess the revenue to be paid thereon.

What to be deemed to belong to owners of estates.

26. In regular settlements to be made hereafter, unless it is otherwise expressly provided in the records of the settlement, all forests, unclaimed, unoccupied, deserted or waste lands, quarries, spontaneous produce and other accessory interests in land, shall be deemed to belong to the owners of the estate within the boundaries of which they are at such settlement included.

Settlement of waste lands in excess.

27. When the waste land belonging to or adjoining an estate is so extensive as, in the opinion of the Deputy Commissioner or officer in charge of a settlement, to exceed the requirements of the owners of such estate with reference to pasturage or other useful purpose, such Deputy Commissioner or officer may at any time, with the sanction of the Financial Commissioner, make a separate settlement of the waste land which he considers to be so in excess, and shall offer such waste land at such assessment, for such term and on such conditions as he thinks fit to the owners of the estate to which it belongs, and if they refuse such offer, to the owners of any estate to which such waste land adjoins; and if they refuse such offer, to any other person:

Allowance to owners refusing such settlement.

Provided that, where the owners of the estate to which such waste land belongs refuse such offer, the Deputy Commissioner shall assign to them an annual allowance not less than five and not more than ten per cent. on the nett proceeds realized by Government from such waste lands.

Presumption of ownership of forests, waste lands, &c., in regular settlements made before passing of Act.

28. In regular settlements made before the passing of this Act, unless it is otherwise expressly provided in the records of such settlement, all forests, unclaimed, unoccupied, deserted or waste lands, quarries, spontaneous produce and other accessory interests in land, whether included within the boundaries of an estate or not, shall be presumed to belong to the Government.

This presumption may be defeated by showing, from the assessment of the estate, that any such forest, unclaimed, unoccupied, deserted or waste land, quarry, spontaneous produce or other accessory interest was taken into account in such assessment; in which case any thing which was so taken into account shall be presumed to belong to the owners of the estate so assessed.

The question whether any such forests, unclaimed, unoccupied, deserted or waste lands, quarries, spontaneous produce, or other accessory interests were or were not taken into consideration in determining the amount of revenue to be assessed, shall be determined by a consideration of the reports made by the Settlement Officer to Government at the time of settlement, or, if the report is silent, by a comparison between the rates assessed in villages in which such forests, unclaimed, unoccupied, deserted or waste lands, quarries, spontaneous produce or other accessory interests did, and villages of similar character in which they did not, exist.

Mines to be deemed to belong to Government.

29. Mines of metal or coal and gold-washings shall in every case be deemed to be the property of Government. But if Government works or causes to be worked any such mine, compensation for damage to the surface of the soil shall be made to the owner of such surface.

Such compensation may be claimed, and shall be ascertained and awarded, in accordance with the provisions of Act X of 1870.

CHAPTER III.

ENGAGEMENTS FOR PAYMENT OF LAND-REVENUE.

With whom settlement is to be made.

30. When the land in respect of which the settlement is to be made is owned by one person, the settlement shall be offered to that person.

When such land is owned by several persons, it shall be offered to such persons through their representatives.

When there are two classes of owners, superior and inferior, the settlement may be offered to either class, according as the Financial Commissioner directs.

If one of such classes refuses the offer of the settlement, it shall be offered to the other class.

Settlement Officer to report amount of assessment and how computed.

31. When the officer in charge of the settlement has satisfied himself as to the amount at which an estate should be assessed, he shall submit a report of such amount and of the grounds on which it is computed to the Commissioner; and the Commissioner shall forward such report, together with his own opinion thereon, to the Financial Commissioner.

Financial Commissioner to give instructions as to terms.

32. The Financial Commissioner shall give such instructions as he thinks fit to the officer in charge of the settlement as to the terms on which the persons with whom the settlement is to be made shall be permitted to offer to engage for the revenue, and such officer shall inform such persons that they may make an offer on such terms, but that Government is not bound to accept such offer.

Effect of agreement to offer.

33. If the persons with whom the settlement is to be made agree to make such offer, they shall become liable, from the date of such agreement, to the payment of the amount of revenue mentioned in the said offer; but the Local Government may refuse to accept such offer, and may require any officer whom it may appoint for that purpose to offer the land to such persons at any other rate of revenue, or for any other term, or generally on any other conditions than those offered.

Offer may be refused.

Offer to be binding until refusal is notified.

34. Until such refusal and offer of new terms on the part of the Government are notified to the persons with whom the settlement is to be made, they shall be bound by, and shall continue to hold their lands on the terms of, the offer permitted by the Financial Commissioner to be made.

Liability of land-owners in an estate.

35. All the owners of land in an estate shall be jointly and severally liable for the payment of the whole amount of revenue assessed upon it, and to all the processes hereinafter prescribed for the collection of arrears of revenue.

If Headmen accept, village community is bound.

36. If all the Village-Headmen in a village community agree to make such offer, such village community shall be bound by such agreement.

Effect of refusal to offer.

37. If the persons with whom the settlement is to be made neglect or refuse to make such offer as is mentioned in section thirty-two, or to accept any offer made to them under section thirty-three, the officer in charge of the settlement may exclude such persons from their estate, and may make a settlement of such estate with any other persons, or may take the estate under direct management. The period of such exclusion shall, in no case exceed the term of the settlement.

Allowance to persons excluded

Any persons who are so excluded shall be entitled to an allowance from Government, the amount of which shall be fixed by the Financial Commissioner, but which shall not be less than five per cent., nor more than ten per cent., on the nett amount realized by Government from the land from which such persons are excluded.

Land to be held on terms of expired settlement until new one is made.

38. If the term for which any settlement has been made expires before a new settlement is made, all persons who continue to occupy the land after the expiration of such term shall hold it upon the conditions of the expired settlement until a new one is made.

CHAPTER IV.

MAINTENANCE OF THE RECORD OF RIGHTS.

Recording of facts affecting record of rights.

39. When a record of rights has been handed to the Deputy Commissioner under the provisions of section seventeen, he shall from time to time record, or cause to be recorded, all facts affecting any matter stated in the record of rights which occur subsequent to the handing to him of the record of rights.

Rules for such recording.

40. The Local Government shall make rules as to the facts to be so recorded and the manner in which, the persons by whom, and the occasions on which, such facts are to be recorded, and as to the fees which are to be paid in respect of recording them.

Rules for settlement of lands of which revenue is resumed, &c.

41. The Local Government shall from time to time make rules as to the procedure to be followed in making or modifying settlements of lands of which the revenue has been assigned and is resumed by Government, lands affected by alluvion, diluvion or other river action, waste lands settled under the provisions of section twenty-seven, and other isolated portions of land.

Such rules may provide for any matters which may be provided for in a notification of settlement under section eleven, and the officers empowered by such rules to act as Settlement Officers shall have all the powers hereinbefore given to Settlement Officers.

CHAPTER V.

COLLECTION OF LAND-REVENUE.

Local Government may make rules as to payment of revenue.

42. The Local Government may from time to time make rules as to the instalments by which, and the places and times at which, the revenue payable in respect of any land shall be paid, and for the mode in which notice as to such instalments, places and times shall be given to the persons concerned: and, until the Local Government shall otherwise direct, the practice as to these matters now observed shall continue to be observed.

Revenue to be paid at place and on day appointed.

It is the duty of every person who has engaged to pay any portion of land-revenue to pay the same at the place, and before sunset of the day, appointed by the Local Government in that behalf.

Effect of non-payment.

Any sum not so paid becomes thereupon an arrear of land-revenue, and the person who owes such arrear becomes a defaulter.

Procedure for recovery of arrears.
Warrant.

43. When an arrear of land-revenue has become due, the Deputy Commissioner may issue a warrant ordering the defaulter to pay the amount within a time therein stated, and empowering an officer to be named in the warrant, in default of the arrear being so paid, to bring the defaulter to the tahsíl at a date to be named in the warrant.

Detention at head quarters of Deputy Commissioner.

If the arrear be not paid, and if, on the day named in the warrant, the defaulter does not show satisfactory cause for extending the time for payment of the arrear, the Deputy Commissioner may direct such person to be conveyed to his head quarters and there kept under personal restraint for ten days.

The Deputy Commissioner may empower any Tahsíldár of his district to exercise the powers conferred by the two preceding clauses of this section.

Imprisonment in civil jail;

If the arrear be not paid within ten days, and no good reason for the delay is shown, the Deputy Commissioner may issue an order to the jailor of the civil jail of the district, directing him to confine the defaulter therein as a civil prisoner until the arrear is paid, or until the expiration of such period, not exceeding one year from the date of the order, as the Deputy Commissioner thinks fit; and such person shall be confined according to the terms of such order;

Distraint and sale of moveables.

and he may order the distraint and sale of the moveable property of any such person, with the exception of instruments of husbandry, cattle actually employed in agriculture, and the tools of artisans;

or he may order either of the above processes to be enforced.

Conduct of sale.

Every sale ordered under this section shall be conducted according to the law in force for the time being for the sale of moveable property under the decree of a Civil Court.

When defaulter may be discharged.

Wherever any of the processes provided in sections forty-six, forty-seven, forty-nine or fifty-two has been enforced in respect of an arrear, the defaulter on account of whose arrear such process has been enforced shall, if he has been imprisoned under this section, be forthwith discharged.

When Civil Court may interfere.

44. No proceeding had, or process enforced, under section forty-three, shall be liable to be contested in any Civil Court, unless the person aggrieved thereby denies that the amount of revenue claimed was due, and tenders security for any arrear in respect of which the process was issued, or which is due or is likely to become due before the termination of the suit, and for any costs arising out of the proceedings in the Civil Court, in which case the Court shall issue a precept to the Deputy Commissioner to discharge the prisoner from custody; but the Court shall in no case interfere with any such distress and sale of moveable property as aforesaid.

Party proceeded against may pay under protest and sue for recovery.

45. If any such process as is mentioned in section forty-three is taken against any person, such person may pay the amount claimed under protest, and, upon such payment, such process shall be withdrawn, and the party against whom it was issued may sue the Government in any Civil Court for the amount so paid.

Land may be attached and taken under direct management.

46. When an arrear of land-revenue has become due, the Deputy Commissioner may, in addition to or instead of the processes hereinbefore specified, cause the land in respect of which the arrear has become due to be attached and taken under the direct management of any agent whom he appoints for that purpose. The agent so appointed shall stand for all purposes in the position of the person on account of whose default the land was attached, and shall be bound by all the engagements or other relations which existed between such person and any subordinate proprietors or tenants with rights of occupancy, and shall be entitled to manage the land attached, and to receive all rents and profits accruing on such land, to the exclusion of the person on account of whose default the land was attached, until the arrears of land-revenue due therefrom have been satisfied, or until the Deputy Commissioner directs him to restore the person whose interest has been attached to the management thereof.

Powers and obligations of agent.

Application of surplus profits.

All surplus profits of the land attached, beyond the cost of such attachment and direct management, shall go to defraying the arrear and any instalment of land-revenue that may become due during such management.

Termination of management.

And no such management shall continue after the arrear of revenue on account of which it was ordered, together with any such instalment, has been satisfied.

Transfer of share of defaulter to solvent co-sharers.

47. If an arrear of land-revenue has accrued in respect of the share of any member of a village community, such community or any member thereof may tender payment of such arrear, or may offer to pay such arrear by instalments; and, if such tender be made, or if the Deputy Commissioner considers such offer satisfactory, the Deputy Commissioner may transfer the share of the defaulting member to such community or member, on such terms as he considers equitable, either permanently or until such arrear is paid. If more such members than one make such tender or offer, the one who is most nearly related to the defaulter, or who, in case of sale, would have a right of pre-emption, shall be preferred.

When transfer of share is to become absolute.

ferred may apply to the Deputy Commissioner to publish a notification that, if the arrear is not paid within one year from the date thereof, such transfer will become absolute; and the Deputy Commissioner may publish such notification accordingly; and if the arrear is not paid before the expiration of one year from the date of the notification, the transfer to such community or member shall become absolute accordingly.

Sections forty-seven and forty-eight to apply to mortgagees and other incumbrancers.

49. The provisions contained in the two preceding sections in favour of members of a village community shall extend to mortgagees and other persons having incumbrances on the land on which the arrear is due, in case neither the community nor any member thereof take action under the said provisions.

Processes not to affect joint and several liability of community.

50. The procedure prescribed in the three preceding sections shall not affect the joint and several liability of the members of the village community in which it is enforced.

Notice to cancel settlement.

51. When any arrear of land-revenue remains unpaid for more than one month, the Deputy Commissioner, in addition to or instead of any of the processes hereinbefore provided, may, with the previous consent of the Financial Commissioner, cause to be published upon the land in respect of which such arrear is due a notification that, unless the arrear is paid within fifteen days from the date thereof, the settlement made in respect of the estate on which such arrear is due, or in respect of any portion of such estate, and all contracts made by the defaulter or any person through whom he claims, affecting such estate or portion of an estate, will be cancelled.

Service of notice.

A copy of such notification shall be stuck up at the tahsíl, and be served on each of the Village Headmen of the village in which the arrear has accrued.

On cancelment of settlement land may be managed by agent or let in farm.

52. If such arrear of land-revenue is not paid within fifteen days from the date of the notification, the said settlement and all contracts made by the defaulter or any person through whom he claims, affecting the land in such estate or portion of an estate, shall be cancelled; and the Deputy Commissioner, with the previous consent of the Financial Commissioner, may either appoint an agent to manage the land, or may let the land in farm to any person who may be willing to accept the same, for such period and on such conditions as he thinks fit; and such farmer may, during such period, either occupy the land himself or sub-let the same to such persons on such terms as he may think proper:

Lease to be first offered to owners of land.

Provided that, in every case in which the provisions of this section are enforced, no lease of any of the lands mentioned in the notification shall be made to any other person till it has been first offered to the owners of such land: and such owners shall, if they accept the offer of the lease, be deemed, in the absence of express agreement to the contrary, to hold as tenants-at-will.

A cancelment under this section shall not affect any person, other than the defaulter or his representatives, having an interest in such estate which existed at the date of the last previous settlement.

Persons dispossessed to have allowance.

53. Whenever any person is dispossessed of any beneficial interest in land by any such attachment, direct management, transfer or cancelment as is provided in this chapter, he shall be entitled to an allowance in respect thereof such as is provided in section thirty-seven.

Farmer of share in village community when not liable for revenue of other shares.

54. If the share of any member of a village community is let to farm, under the provisions hereinbefore contained, to any person other than a member of the village community, such person shall not, during the term of his farm, be liable for the land-revenue due in respect of the other shares in the village community; and if such person is a member of the village community, he may, if the Financial Commissioner so direct, be freed from joint and several liability in respect of such share.

Attachment of interest of defaulter in other land.

55. When an arrear of revenue cannot be recovered by any of the processes hereinbefore described, the Deputy Commissioner may, with the previous sanction of the Financial Commissioner, order the attachment, under section forty-six, of any beneficial interest to which the defaulter is entitled in any other land, and may apply the provisions of that section to such land until the arrear is satisfied.

What may be sold.

56. If the Deputy Commissioner is of opinion that an arrear of land-revenue cannot be recovered by any of the means hereinbefore mentioned, he may, with the previous sanction of the Financial Commissioner, sell by auction—any land in respect of which such arrear has accrued, or any portion or share of such land; or any land or houses, or interest in land or houses, other than that in respect of which such arrear has accrued, to which the defaulter is entitled:

When house or land may not be sold.

but no land or house shall be liable to be sold under this section,

if the land is subject to the Court of Wards, or is so circumstanced that the Court of Wards might exercise jurisdiction over it; or if the land is under attachment under this Act, and the arrear has accrued during such attachment; or if the land is held in farm under this Act by a person who is not a member of the village community within whose estate such land is situated, and if the arrear has accrued during the term for which it is so held in farm.

Land to be sold free of incumbrances.

57. Land or other property sold under the last preceding section shall be sold free of all incumbrances, and all contracts made by any person in respect of such land or property shall become void as against the purchaser at the auction-sale.

Procedure to be followed in sales.

58. In all sales under section fifty-six, the procedure provided by sections two hundred and forty-nine, two hundred and fifty-three to two hundred and sixty, inclusive, of the Code of Civil Procedure, shall be followed, except in the following particulars:

(1) The defaulter may pay the arrear in respect of which the land is to be sold at any time before the day fixed for the sale, and upon such payment the sale shall be stayed:

(2) The proclamation of intended sale provided in the said section two hundred and forty-nine shall declare that the land is to be sold free of every incumbrance, except the land-revenue and other legal charges to which it may be from time to time assessed:

(3) The appeal provided in section two hundred and fifty-seven of the said Code shall lie to the Commissioner of the division, and an appeal from the Commissioner's order shall lie to the Financial Commissioner:

(4) The certificate provided in section two hundred and fifty-nine of the said Code shall state that the purchaser has purchased the land to which the certificate refers free of every incumbrance, except the land-revenue and other legal charges to which it may be from time to time assessed.

Suit to set aside sale.

59. A suit may be brought in a Civil Court to set aside any such sale on any ground on which a sale under the Code of Civil Procedure might be set aside; but not on any of the following grounds:

(1) that a tender of the arrear of land-revenue on account of which such sale took place was made on or after the day named for the sale in the proclamation of intended sale;

(2) that the defaulter had any claim against the Government;

(3) that the revenue due from the defaulter had been remitted, unless the Local Government admits it;

(4) that money belonging to the defaulter, and sufficient to satisfy the whole or any part of the arrear, was in any Government treasury, unless the defaulter had an exclusive and undisputed property therein, and unless, after application by the defaulter within the time specified in the notification of intended sale that such money should be applied to the satisfaction of the arrear, the Deputy Commissioner neglected or refused upon insufficient grounds so to apply it; or where land is sold for an arrear of revenue due in respect thereof,

(5) that the land sold does not belong to the defaulter.

Application of proceeds of sale.

60. The proceeds of any sale under section fifty-six shall be applied as follows:

(1) to the payment of the arrear due;

(2) to the payment of any other arrear of land-revenue due by the same person;

(3) the surplus shall be paid to the person whose land has been sold; or, if the land sold were held in shares, then to the co-sharers collectively, or according to the amount of their respective interests, at the discretion of the Deputy Commissioner.

Rules as to payment of surplus to creditors.

61. Such surplus shall not be payable to any creditor of the person whose land has been sold on demand of such creditor, nor shall it be retained in the land-revenue treasury, except under precept of a Civil Court and in satisfaction of a decree of such Court; and, whenever such surplus has been paid to the creditors of the owner of any land under a precept of such Court, and the sale of such land is afterwards annulled, such owner shall not be restored to possession, until the amount so paid is returned by him with such interest as the Deputy Commissioner directs.

Purchaser's liability.

62. The person named in the certificate of title as purchaser shall be liable for all instalments of land-revenue which may fall due subsequently to the date of the certificate.

Application of Act to existing arrears.

63. The provisions of this chapter shall apply to all arrears of land-revenue due at the passing of this Act.

CHAPTER VI.

64. Deputy Commissioners may exercise all or any of the powers hereinbefore provided for the recovery of land-revenue, for the recovery of any other revenue due from any person to the Government.

Limitation of jurisdiction of Civil Courts.

65. No Civil Court shall take cognizance of any of the following matters:—

(1) claims against Government brought by any person in respect of any matter connected with the offices mentioned in section six;

Preamble.

WHEREAS the Government of India is by law entitled to a proportion of the produce of the land of the Panjáb to be from time to time fixed by itself; and whereas it is expedient to consolidate and define the law relating to the settlement and collection thereof, and to the duties of Revenue Officers in the Panjáb; It is enacted as follows:—

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The Panjáb Land-Revenue Act, 1871;"

Local extent.

It extends to the territories subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjáb, but not so as to affect the validity of any Regulation made by the Governor General under the provisions of 33 Vic., Cap. 3, for any portion of the territories to which this Act extends;

Commencement.

And it shall come into force on the first day of January 1872.

'Estate' defined.

For the purposes of this Act "Estate" means a village or other local area with which a separate settlement is made.

CHAPTER I.

REVENUE OFFICERS.

Grades of Revenue Officers.

2. There shall be in the Panjáb the following grades of Revenue Officers:—

(1) the Financial Commissioner, who shall, subject to the Lieutenant-Governor, be the chief controlling revenue authority in the Panjáb;

(2) Commissioners, each of whom shall, subject to the control of the Financial Commissioner, be the chief controlling revenue authority within a division;

(3) Deputy Commissioners, each of whom shall, subject to the control of the Commissioner, be the chief executive revenue authority in a district;

(4) Tahsíldárs, each of whom shall, subject to the control of the Deputy Commissioner, be the chief executive revenue authority in a tahsíl or sub-district.

Appointment and removal of Financial Commissioner.

3. The Financial Commissioner shall be appointed and may be removed by the Local Government with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council.

Assistant Commissioners, &c., may be invested with powers of Deputy Commissioner.

5. The Local Government may invest any Assistant Commissioner or Extra Assistant Commissioner with all or any of the powers hereinafter conferred upon Deputy Commissioners.

Rules as to village officers.

6. The Local Government shall make rules as to the appointment, duties, payment and removal of Lambardárs or Village Headmen, Patwáris or Village Accountants, Kanungos or Superintendents of Village Accountants, such regard as the Local Government thinks fit being had to custom or descent.

Where by any such rule the appointment of Patwáris is directed to be made by the landowners of a village, the neglect or refusal of such landowners to make any such appointment within a prescribed time shall be punishable with such fine as the Local Government directs: and such fine shall be recoverable as an arrear of land-revenue.

CHAPTER II.

OF SETTLEMENTS.

Settlement in progress.

7. Whenever the amount of revenue to be paid in a district or other local area is being assessed or re-assessed, or whenever the record of rights hereinafter described is being either made or revised under the provisions hereinafter contained, a settlement is said to be in progress; a district or other local area in which a settlement is in progress is said to be under settlement.

District under settlement.

Person settled with.

8. Whenever any person or persons are permitted to engage with the Government for the payment of revenue due in respect of any land, they are said to be settled with, or a settlement is said to be made with them in respect of that land.

Instructions for settlement to state principle of assessment.

9. The Local Government shall, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, give written instructions to the officer in charge of a settlement, stating the principle on which the revenue in such settlement is to be assessed. No Court of justice shall be entitled, under any circumstances, to require the production, or shall permit evidence to be given of the contents, of such instructions.

Three kinds of settlements.

10. Settlements may be of the following kinds:—

(1) a summary settlement is a provisional settlement, made pending a first regular settlement: the declaration of the Local Government that a settlement was summary shall be conclusive proof that it was so;

(2) a first regular settlement is a settlement in which the revenue is assessed, and a record of rights is, for the first time, formed;

(3) a re-settlement is a settlement, subsequent to a first regular settlement, in which either the revenue is re-assessed, or the record of rights is revised, or in which both these processes are conducted.

Notification of settlement.

11. Whenever a district or other local area is to be put under settlement, the Local Government shall, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, issue a notification of settlement.

Such notification shall—

(1) define the local area which is to be put under settlement;

(2) mention such of the officers by whom it is to be made as to the Local Government seems fit; and, in every case in which judicial powers are conferred, shall specify the powers so conferred: the officers so mentioned shall be called Settlement Officers, and the principal officer so mentioned shall be the officer in charge of the settlement;

(3) declare whether the settlement is a summary settlement, a first regular settlement, or a re-settlement; and, in the case of a re-settlement, whether there is to be a re-assessment of revenue, or revision of the record of rights, or both;

(4) declare whether surveys and plans are to be made, and, in the case of a first regular settlement, whether the boundaries of villages and estates are to be adjusted.

Power to amend notification.

Proof and effect of decisions by Settlement Officers.

16. Judicial decisions passed by Settlement Officers shall be proved in the same manner, and shall have, when proved, the same effect, as judgments delivered by Civil Courts.

Entries in the record of rights made or authenticated at a regular settlement or re-settlement in the manner prescribed by the Local Government shall be presumed to be true.

(3) of the record of rights and of the assessment.

The Local Government, on the report of the Financial Commissioner that the operations of the settlement are complete, may, previous to sanction, direct that the record of rights be handed over to the Deputy Commissioner of the district, and that the special jurisdiction conferred on any officer under section twenty-one or twenty-two of the Panjáb Courts Act, 1865, shall cease, and that the suits pending in the Courts of any such officers, or appeals from, or applications for the review of, the judgments of such officers, be transferred to the ordinary Civil Courts, or to the Court of any officer appointed by the Local Government for the purpose of disposing of such suits, appeals or applications.

Revision of record of rights.

18. The assessment or record of rights may be revised if the Local Government so directs, at any time before they are sanctioned respectively.

Time and manner of revision.

19. When a record of rights made in any district or other local area at a regular settlement has been sanctioned, it shall not be revised until such district or local area is again put under settlement, nor shall it at such subsequent settlement be revised otherwise than by

Effect of decree.

A decree obtained in such suit shall be of the same effect as if the entry which it declares to be correct had been made orginally in the record of rights.

Amendment of section two, Act XXVIII of 1868.

21. Instead of the last clause of section two of the Panjáb Tenancy Act, 1868, the following shall be read: "All entries in such record, made previously to the passing of the Panjáb Land-Revenue Act, 1872, in respect of matters comprised in Chapters III, IV, V and VI of this Act, shall, when attested by the proper officer, be deemed to be agreements within the meaning of this section."

Erection and repair of boundary-marks.

22. Any Revenue Officer, and, in a district under settlement, any Settlement Officer, may, by a notice in writing, require the persons liable for the revenue of any village, estate or field to erect or repair boundary-marks sufficient for defining the limits of such village, estate or field; and if such boundary-marks are not so constructed or repaired within a period to be specified in the notice, such Revenue or Settlement Officer may cause boundary-marks to be so erected or repaired; and the cost of such erection or repair shall be recoverable from the persons liable for the revenue of such village, estate or field, as if it were an arrear of land-revenue due in respect of such village, estate or field.

Power to issue commissions to take evidence, or for local investigations, and to refer to arbitration.

23. Settlement Officers may issue commissions to take evidence, or for local investigations, according to the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, and may, if empowered by the Local Government, refer any matter in dispute to arbitrators, whether with or without the consent of parties. The arbitrators to be appointed under this section shall exercise such powers, proceed in such manner, and their finding shall be liable to such appeal, as the Local Government directs.

Power to compel attendance of witnesses.

24. Settlement officers shall have the same power to compel the attendance of all persons whom they believe to be able to give them information as to the matters into which they are empowered to inquire under the notification mentioned in section eleven, as the Judges of Civil Courts have to procure the attendance of witnesses under the Code of Civil Procedure; and all persons who appear before such officers are bound to state the truth upon all such matters, and to produce such documents and other things as may be required of them.

Power to enter lands to make surveys, &c.

25. Settlement Officers and the servants and workmen employed by them, shall have the powers specified in the Land Acquisition Act (X of 1870), section four, for the purpose of making such plans and surveys as are directed by the said notification, and of collecting such information as to the quality and produce of the land as may be necessary to enable them to assess the revenue to be paid thereon.

What to be deemed to belong to owners of estates.

26. In regular settlements to be made hereafter, unless it is otherwise expressly provided in the records of the settlement, all forests, unclaimed, unoccupied, deserted or waste lands, quarries, spontaneous produce and other accessory interests in land, shall be deemed to belong to the owners of the estate within the boundaries of which they are at such settlement included.

Settlement of waste lands in excess.

27. When the waste land belonging to or adjoining an estate is so extensive as, in the opinion of the Deputy Commissioner or officer in charge of a settlement, to exceed the requirements of the owners of such estate with reference to pasturage or other useful purpose, such Deputy Commissioner or officer may at any time, with the sanction of the Financial Commissioner, make a separate settlement of the waste land which he considers to be so in excess, and shall offer such waste land at such assessment, for such term and on such conditions as he thinks fit to the owners of the estate to which it belongs, and if they refuse such offer, to the owners of any estate to which such waste land adjoins; and if they refuse such offer, to any other person:

Allowance to owners refusing such settlement.

Provided that, where the owners of the estate to which such waste land belongs refuse such offer, the Deputy Commissioner shall assign to them an annual allowance not less than five and not more than ten per cent. on the nett proceeds realized by Government from such waste lands.

Presumption of ownership of forests, waste lands, &c., in regular settlements made before passing of Act.

28. In regular settlements made before the passing of this Act, unless it is otherwise expressly provided in the records of such settlement, all forests, unclaimed, unoccupied, deserted or waste lands, quarries, spontaneous produce and other accessory interests in land, whether included within the boundaries of an estate or not, shall be presumed to belong to the Government.

This presumption may be defeated by showing, from the assessment of the estate, that any such forest, unclaimed, unoccupied, deserted or waste land, quarry, spontaneous produce or other accessory interest was taken into account in such assessment; in which case any thing which was so taken into account shall be presumed to belong to the owners of the estate so assessed.

The question whether any such forests, unclaimed, unoccupied, deserted or waste lands, quarries, spontaneous produce, or other accessory interests were or were not taken into consideration in determining the amount of revenue to be assessed, shall be determined by a consideration of the reports made by the Settlement Officer to Government at the time of settlement, or, if the report is silent, by a comparison between the rates assessed in villages in which such forests, unclaimed, unoccupied, deserted or waste lands, quarries, spontaneous produce or other accessory interests did, and villages of similar character in which they did not, exist.

Mines to be deemed to belong to Government.

29. Mines of metal or coal and gold-washings shall in every case be deemed to be the property of Government. But if Government works or causes to be worked any such mine, compensation for damage to the surface of the soil shall be made to the owner of such surface.

Such compensation may be claimed, and shall be ascertained and awarded, in accordance with the provisions of Act X of 1870.

CHAPTER III.

ENGAGEMENTS FOR PAYMENT OF LAND-REVENUE.

With whom settlement is to be made.

30. When the land in respect of which the settlement is to be made is owned by one person, the settlement shall be offered to that person.

When such land is owned by several persons, it shall be offered to such persons through their representatives.

When there are two classes of owners, superior and inferior, the settlement may be offered to either class, according as the Financial Commissioner directs.

If one of such classes refuses the offer of the settlement, it shall be offered to the other class.

Settlement Officer to report amount of assessment and how computed.

31. When the officer in charge of the settlement has satisfied himself as to the amount at which an estate should be assessed, he shall submit a report of such amount and of the grounds on which it is computed to the Commissioner; and the Commissioner shall forward such report, together with his own opinion thereon, to the Financial Commissioner.

Financial Commissioner to give instructions as to terms.

32. The Financial Commissioner shall give such instructions as he thinks fit to the officer in charge of the settlement as to the terms on which the persons with whom the settlement is to be made shall be permitted to offer to engage for the revenue, and such officer shall inform such persons that they may make an offer on such terms, but that Government is not bound to accept such offer.

Effect of agreement to offer.

33. If the persons with whom the settlement is to be made agree to make such offer, they shall become liable, from the date of such agreement, to the payment of the amount of revenue mentioned in the said offer; but the Local Government may refuse to accept such offer, and may require any officer whom it may appoint for that purpose to offer the land to such persons at any other rate of revenue, or for any other term, or generally on any other conditions than those offered.

Offer may be refused.

Offer to be binding until refusal is notified.

34. Until such refusal and offer of new terms on the part of the Government are notified to the persons with whom the settlement is to be made, they shall be bound by, and shall continue to hold their lands on the terms of, the offer permitted by the Financial Commissioner to be made.

Liability of land-owners in an estate.

35. All the owners of land in an estate shall be jointly and severally liable for the payment of the whole amount of revenue assessed upon it, and to all the processes hereinafter prescribed for the collection of arrears of revenue.

If Headmen accept, village community is bound.

36. If all the Village-Headmen in a village community agree to make such offer, such village community shall be bound by such agreement.

Effect of refusal to offer.

37. If the persons with whom the settlement is to be made neglect or refuse to make such offer as is mentioned in section thirty-two, or to accept any offer made to them under section thirty-three, the officer in charge of the settlement may exclude such persons from their estate, and may make a settlement of such estate with any other persons or may take the estate under direct management. The period of such exclusion shall, in no case exceed the term of the settlement.

Allowance to persons excluded.

Any persons who are so excluded shall be entitled to an allowance from Government, the amount of which shall be fixed by the Financial Commissioner, but which shall not be less than five per cent., nor more than ten per cent., on the nett amount realized by Government from the land from which such persons are excluded.

Land to be held on terms of expired settlement until new one is made.

38. If the term for which any settlement has been made expires before a new settlement is made, all persons who continue to occupy the land after the expiration of such term shall hold it upon the conditions of the expired settlement until a new one is made.

CHAPTER IV.

MAINTENANCE OF THE RECORD OF RIGHTS.

Recording of facts affecting record of rights.

39. When a record of rights has been handed to the Deputy Commissioner under the provisions of section seventeen, he shall from time to time record, or cause to be recorded, all facts affecting any matter stated in the record of rights which occur subsequent to the handing to him of the record of rights.

Rules for such recording.

40. The Local Government shall make rules as to the facts to be so recorded and the manner in which, the persons by whom, and the occasions on which, such facts are to be recorded, and as to the fees which are to be paid in respect of recording them.

Rules for settlement of lands of which revenue is resumed, &c.

41. The Local Government shall from time to time make rules as to the procedure to be followed in making or modifying settlements of lands of which the revenue has been assigned and is resumed by Government, lands affected by alluvion, diluvion or other river action, waste lands settled under the provisions of section twenty-seven, and other isolated portions of land.

Such rules may provide for any matters which may be provided for in a notification of settlement under section eleven, and the officers empowered by such rules to act as Settlement Officers shall have all the powers hereinbefore given to Settlement Officers.

CHAPTER V.

COLLECTION OF LAND-REVENUE.

Local Government may make rules as to payment of revenue.

42. The Local Government may from time to time make rules as to the instalments by which, and the places and times at which, the revenue payable in respect of any land shall be paid, and for the mode in which notice as to such instalments, places and times shall be given to the persons concerned: and, until the Local Government shall otherwise direct, the practice as to these matters now observed shall continue to be observed.

Revenue to be paid at place and on day appointed.

It is the duty of every person who has engaged to pay any portion of land-revenue to pay the same at the place, and before sunset of the day, appointed by the Local Government in that behalf.

Effect of non-payment.

Any sum not so paid becomes thereupon an arrear of land-revenue, and the person who owes such arrear becomes a defaulter.

Procedure for recovery of arrears. Warrant.

43. When an arrear of land-revenue has become due, the Deputy Commissioner may issue a warrant ordering the defaulter to pay the amount within a time therein stated, and empowering an officer to be named in the warrant, in default of the arrear being so paid, to bring the defaulter to the tahsíl at a date to be named in the warrant.

Detention at head quarters of Deputy Commissioner.

If the arrear be not paid, and if, on the day named in the warrant, the defaulter does not show satisfactory cause for extending the time for payment of the arrear, the Deputy Commissioner may direct such person to be conveyed to his head quarters and there kept under personal restraint for ten days.

Imprisonment in civil jail;

The Deputy Commissioner may empower any Tahsíldár of his district to exercise the powers conferred by the two preceding clauses of this section.

If the arrear be not paid within ten days, and no good reason for the delay is shown, the Deputy Commissioner may issue an order to the jailor of the civil jail of the district, directing him to confine the defaulter therein as a civil prisoner until the arrear is paid, or until the expiration of such period, not exceeding one year from the date of the order, as the Deputy Commissioner thinks fit; and such person shall be confined according to the terms of such order;

Distraint and sale of moveables.

and he may order the distraint and sale of the moveable property of any such person, with the exception of instruments of husbandry, cattle actually employed in agriculture, and the tools of artisans;

or he may order either of the above processes to be enforced.

Conduct of sale.

Every sale ordered under this section shall be conducted according to the law in force for the time being for the sale of moveable property under the decree of a Civil Court.

When defaulter may be discharged.

Wherever any of the processes provided in sections forty-six, forty-seven, forty-nine or fifty-two has been enforced in respect of an arrear, the defaulter on account of whose arrear such process has been enforced shall, if he has been imprisoned under this section, be forthwith discharged.

When Civil Court may interfere.

44. No proceeding had, or process enforced, under section forty-three, shall be liable to be contested in any Civil Court, unless the person aggrieved thereby denies that the amount of revenue claimed was due, and tenders security for any arrear in respect of which the process was issued, or which is due or is likely to become due before the termination of the suit, and for any costs arising out of the proceedings in the Civil Court, in which case the Court shall issue a precept to the Deputy Commissioner to discharge the prisoner from custody; but the Court shall in no case interfere with any such distress and sale of moveable property as aforesaid.

Party proceeded against may pay under protest and sue for recovery.

45. If any such process as is mentioned in section forty-three is taken against any person, such person may pay the amount claimed under protest, and, upon such payment, such process shall be withdrawn, and the party against whom it was issued may sue the Government in any Civil Court for the amount so paid.

Land may be attached and taken under direct management.

46. When an arrear of land-revenue has become due, the Deputy Commissioner may, in addition to or instead of the processes hereinbefore specified, cause the land in respect of which the arrear has become due to be attached and taken under the direct management of any agent whom he appoints for that purpose. The agent so appointed shall stand for all purposes in the position of the person on account of whose default the land was attached, and shall be bound by all the engagements or other relations which existed between such person and any subordinate proprietors or tenants with rights of occupancy, and shall be entitled to manage the land attached, and to receive all rents and profits accruing on such land, to the exclusion of the person on account of whose default the land was attached, until the arrears of land-revenue due therefrom have been satisfied, or until the Deputy Commissioner directs him to restore the person whose interest has been attached to the management thereof.

Powers and obligations of agent.

Application of surplus profits.

All surplus profits of the land attached, beyond the cost of such attachment and direct management, shall go to defraying the arrear and any instalment of land-revenue that may become due during such management.

Termination of management.

And no such management shall continue after the arrear of revenue on account of which it was ordered, together with any such instalment, has been satisfied.

Transfer of share of defaulter to solvent co-sharers.

47. If an arrear of land-revenue has accrued in respect of the share of any member of a village community, such community or any member thereof may tender payment of such arrear, or may offer to pay such arrear by instalments; and, if such tender be made, or if the Deputy Commissioner considers such offer satisfactory, the Deputy Commissioner may transfer the share of the defaulting member to such community or member, on such terms as he considers equitable, either permanently or until such arrear is paid. If more such members than one make such tender or offer, the one who is most nearly related to the defaulter, or who, in case of sale, would have a right of pre-emption, shall be preferred.

When transfer of share is to become absolute.

ferred may apply to the Deputy Commissioner to publish a notification that, if the arrear is not paid within one year from the date thereof, such transfer will become absolute; and the Deputy Commissioner may publish such notification accordingly; and if the arrear is not paid before the expiration of one year from the date of the notification, the transfer to such community or member shall become absolute accordingly.

49. The provisions contained in the two preceding sections in favour of members of a village community shall extend to mortgagees and other persons having incumbrances on the land on which the arrear is due, in case neither the community nor any member thereof take action under the said provisions.

Sections forty-seven and forty-eight to apply to mortgagees and other incumbrancers.

50. The procedure prescribed in the three preceding sections shall not affect the joint and several liability of the members of the village community in which it is enforced.

Processes not to affect joint and several liability of community.

51. When any arrear of land-revenue remains unpaid for more than one month, the Deputy Commissioner, in addition to or instead of any of the processes hereinbefore provided, may, with the previous consent of the Financial Commissioner, cause to be published upon the land in respect of which such arrear is due a notification that, unless the arrear is paid within fifteen days from the date thereof, the settlement made in respect of the estate on which such arrear is due, or in respect of any portion of such estate, and all contracts made by the defaulter or any person through whom he claims, affecting such estate or portion of an estate, will be cancelled.

Notice to cancel settlement.

A copy of such notification shall be stuck up at the tahsíl, and be served on each of the Village Headmen of the village in which the arrear has accrued.

Service of notice.

52. If such arrear of land-revenue is not paid within fifteen days from the date of the notification, the said settlement and all contracts made by the defaulter or any person through whom he claims, affecting the land in such estate or portion of an estate, shall be cancelled; and the Deputy Commissioner, with the previous consent of the Financial Commissioner, may either appoint an agent to manage the land, or may let the land in farm to any person who may be willing to accept the same, for such period and on such conditions as he thinks fit; and such farmer may, during such period, either occupy the land himself or sub-let the same to such persons on such terms as he may think proper:

On cancelment of settlement land may be managed by agent or let in farm.

Provided that, in every case in which the provisions of this section are enforced, no lease of any of the lands mentioned in the notification shall be made to any other person till it has been first offered to the owners of such land: and such owners shall, if they accept the offer of the lease, be deemed, in the absence of express agreement to the contrary, to hold as tenants-at-will.

Lease to be first offered to owners of land.

A cancelment under this section shall not affect any person, other than the defaulter or his representatives, having an interest in such estate which existed at the date of the last previous settlement.

53. Whenever any person is dispossessed of any beneficial interest in land by any such attachment, direct management, transfer or cancelment as is provided in this chapter, he shall be entitled to an allowance in respect thereof such as is provided in section thirty-seven.

Persons dispossessed to have allowance.

54. If the share of any member of a village community is let to farm, under the provisions hereinbefore contained, to any person other than a member of the village community, such person shall not, during the term of his farm, be liable for the land-revenue due in respect of the other shares in the village community; and if such person is a member of the village community, he may, if the Financial Commissioner so direct, be freed from joint and several liability in respect of such share.

Farmer of share in village community when not liable for revenue of other shares.

55. When an arrear of revenue cannot be recovered by any of the processes hereinbefore described, the Deputy Commissioner may, with the previous sanction of the Financial Commissioner, order the attachment, under section forty-six, of any beneficial interest to which the defaulter is entitled in any other land, and may apply the provisions of that section to such land until the arrear is satisfied.

Attachment of interest of defaulter in other land.

56. If the Deputy Commissioner is of opinion that an arrear of land-revenue cannot be recovered by any of the means hereinbefore mentioned, he may, with the previous sanction of the Financial Commissioner, sell by auction—

What may be sold.

any land in respect of which such arrear has accrued, or any portion or share of such land; or

but no land or house shall be liable to be sold under this section,

When house or land may not be sold.

if the land is subject to the Court of Wards, or is so circumstanced that the Court of Wards might exercise jurisdiction over it; or if the land is under attachment under this Act, and the arrear has accrued during such attachment; or if the land is held in farm under this Act by a person who is not a member of the village community within whose estate such land is situated, and if the arrear has accrued during the term for which it is so held in farm.

57. Land or other property sold under the last preceding section shall be sold free of all incumbrances, and all contracts made by any person in respect of such land or property shall become void as against the purchaser at the auction-sale.

Land to be sold free of incumbrances.

58. In all sales under section fifty-six, the procedure provided by sections two hundred and forty-nine, two hundred and fifty-three to two hundred and sixty, inclusive, of the Code of Civil Procedure, shall be followed, except in the following particulars:

Procedure to be followed in sales.

(2) The proclamation of intended sale provided in the said section two hundred and forty-nine shall declare that the land is to be sold free of every incumbrance, except the land-revenue and other legal charges to which it may be from time to time assessed:

(3) The appeal provided in section two hundred and fifty-seven of the said Code shall lie to the Commissioner of the division, and an appeal from the Commissioner's order shall lie to the Financial Commissioner:

(4) The certificate provided in section two hundred and fifty-nine of the said Code shall state that the purchaser has purchased the land to which the certificate refers free of every incumbrance, except the land-revenue and other legal charges to which it may be from time to time assessed.

59. A suit may be brought in a Civil Court to set aside any such sale on any ground on which a sale under the Code of Civil Procedure might be set aside; but not on any of the following grounds:

Suit to set aside sale.

(1) that a tender of the arrear of land-revenue on account of which such sale took place was made on or after the day named for the sale in the proclamation of intended sale;

(2) that the defaulter had any claim against the Government;

(3) that the revenue due from the defaulter had been remitted, unless the Local Government admits it;

(4) that money belonging to the defaulter, and sufficient to satisfy the whole or any part of the arrear, was in any Government treasury, unless the defaulter had an exclusive and undisputed property therein, and unless, after application by the defaulter within the time specified in the notification of intended sale that such money should be applied to the satisfaction of the arrear, the Deputy Commissioner neglected or refused upon insufficient grounds so to apply it; or where land is sold for an arrear of revenue due in respect thereof,

(5) that the land sold does not belong to the defaulter.

60. The proceeds of any sale under section fifty-six shall be applied as follows:

Application of proceeds of sale.

(1) to the payment of the arrear due;

(2) to the payment of any other arrear of land-revenue due by the same person;

(3) the surplus shall be paid to the person whose land has been sold; or, if the land sold were held in shares, then to the co-sharers collectively, or according to the amount of their respective interests, at the discretion of the Deputy Commissioner.

61. Such surplus shall not be payable to any creditor of the person whose land has been sold on demand of such creditor, nor shall it be retained in the land-revenue treasury, except under precept of a Civil Court and in satisfaction of a decree of such Court; and, whenever such surplus has been paid to the creditors of the owner of any land under a precept of such Court, and the sale of such land is afterwards annulled, such owner shall not be restored to possession, until the amount so paid is returned by him with such interest as the Deputy Commissioner directs.

Rules as to payment of surplus to creditors.

62. The person named in the certificate of title as purchaser shall be liable for all instalments of land-revenue which may fall due subsequently to the date of the certificate.

63. The provisions of this chapter shall apply to all arrears of land-revenue due at the passing of this Act.

In all the above cases an appeal shall lie to the Deputy Commissioner from all orders and decisions subordinate to him; and to the Commissioner from all orders, and decisions, original or appellate, of the Deputy Commissioner; and to the Financial Commissioner from all orders and decisions of the Commissioner.

Appeal.

The Financial Commissioner shall have power to call for the record of any proceeding had under this section by any Revenue or Settlement Officer, and to pass such order thereon as he thinks fit.

Power to call for record of proceedings.

Such proceedings shall be conducted according to the rules prescribed by the Local Government.

Preamble.

WHEREAS the Government of India is by law entitled to a proportion of the produce of the land of the Panjáb to be from time to time fixed by itself; and whereas it is expedient to consolidate and define the law relating to the settlement and collection thereof, and to the duties of Revenue Officers in the Panjáb; It is enacted as follows:—

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The Panjáb Land-Revenue Act, 1871;"

Local extent.

It extends to the territories subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjáb, but not so as to affect the validity of any Regulation made by the Governor General under the provisions of 33 Vic., Cap. 3, for any portion of the territories to which this Act extends;

Commencement.

And it shall come into force on the first day of January 1872.

'Estate' defined.

For the purposes of this Act "Estate" means a village or other local area with which a separate settlement is made.

CHAPTER I.

REVENUE OFFICERS.

Grades of Revenue Officers.

2. There shall be in the Panjáb the following grades of Revenue Officers:—

(1) the Financial Commissioner, who shall, subject to the Lieutenant-Governor, be the chief controlling revenue authority in the Panjáb;

(2) Commissioners, each of whom shall, subject to the control of the Financial Commissioner, be the chief controlling revenue authority within a division;

(3). Deputy Commissioners, each of whom shall, subject to the control of the Commissioner, be the chief executive revenue authority in a district;

(4) Tahsíldárs, each of whom shall, subject to the control of the Deputy Commissioner, be the chief executive revenue authority in a tahsíl or sub-district.

Tahsíldárs shall be appointed and may be removed by the Deputy Commissioner with the previous sanction of the Financial Commissioner.

Assistant Commissioners, &c., may be invested with powers of Deputy Commissioner.

5. The Local Government may invest any Assistant Commissioner or Extra Assistant Commissioner with all or any of the powers hereinafter conferred upon Deputy Commissioners.

The Deputy Commissioner may distribute amongst the Assistant Commissioners, Extra Assistant Commissioners and other subordinate officers of his district, as he thinks proper, such revenue duties as, under this or any other Act in force for the time being, they are authorized to perform.

Rules as to village officers.

6. The Local Government shall make rules as to the appointment, duties, payment and removal of Lambardárs or Village Headmen, Patwáris or Village Accountants, Kanungos or Superintendents of Village Accountants, such regard as the Local Government thinks fit being had to custom or descent.

Where by any such rule the appointment of Patwáris is directed to be made by the landowners of a village, the neglect or refusal of such landowners to make any such appointment within a prescribed time shall be punishable with such fine as the Local Government directs: and such fine shall be recoverable as an arrear of land-revenue.

CHAPTER II.

OF SETTLEMENTS.

Settlement in progress.

7. Whenever the amount of revenue to be paid in a district or other local area is being assessed or re-assessed, or whenever the record of rights hereinafter described is being either made or revised under the provisions hereinafter contained, a settlement is said to be in progress; a district or other local area in which a settlement is in progress is said to be under settlement.

District under settlement.

Person settled with.

8. Whenever any person or persons are permitted to engage with the Government for the payment of revenue due in respect of any land, they are said to be settled with, or a settlement is said to be made with them in respect of that land.

Instructions for settlement to state principle of assessment.

9. The Local Government shall, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, give written instructions to the officer in charge of a settlement, stating the principle on which the revenue in such settlement is to be assessed. No Court of justice shall be entitled, under any circumstances, to require the production, or shall permit evidence to be given of the contents, of such instructions.

Three kinds of settlements.

10. Settlements may be of the following kinds:—

(1) a summary settlement is a provisional settlement, made pending a first regular settlement: the declaration of the Local Government that a settlement was summary shall be conclusive proof that it was so;

(2) a first regular settlement is a settlement in which the revenue is assessed, and a record of rights is, for the first time, formed;

(3) a re-settlement is a settlement, subsequent to a first regular settlement, in which either the revenue is re-assessed, or the record of rights is revised, or in which both these processes are conducted.

Notification of settlement.

11. Whenever a district or other local area is to be put under settlement, the Local Government shall, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, issue a notification of settlement.

Such notification shall—

(1) define the local area which is to be put under settlement;

(2) mention such of the officers by whom it is to be made as to the Local Government seems fit; and, in every case in which judicial powers are conferred, shall specify the powers so conferred: the officers so mentioned shall be called Settlement Officers, and the principal officer so mentioned shall be the officer in charge of the settlement;

(3) declare whether the settlement is a summary settlement, a first regular settlement, or a re-settlement; and, in the case of a re-settlement, whether there is to be a re-assessment of revenue, or revision of the record of rights, or both;

(4) declare whether surveys and plans are to be made, and, in the case of a first regular settlement, whether the boundaries of villages and estates are to be adjusted.

Power to amend notification.

12. The Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, from time to time amend the settlement notification, and may prescribe the order in which the Settlement Officers shall discharge their duties, or alter the duties to be discharged by them.

Local Government may remove Settlement Officers and appoint new ones.

13. The Local Government may remove any of the Settlement Officers mentioned in the notification, and appoint others to succeed them, or to act for them during their temporary absence.

Of what documents records of rights are to consist.

14. Records of rights hereafter to be made shall consist of the following documents:—

Maps and measurements.

(1) maps and measurement papers, showing the boundaries of the village or place in respect of which the settlement is to be made, and the fields into which it is divided:

Statement of occupants and owners.

(2) a statement of the occupiers and owners of the fields specified in the said maps, and of the lands occupied or owned by them, and of the terms on which they are so owned or occupied:

Tender of engagement.

(3) a tender on behalf of the person or persons settled with to engage for the payment of the revenue during the term for which the settlement is made:

Statement of holdings, amount of revenue payable, &c.

(4) a statement of the shares or holdings of the different persons settled with, and of the amount of revenue for which, as between each other, they are to be responsible; and a statement of persons holding lands free of revenue and of the lands so held:

Terms of payment and village customs.

(5) a statement of the terms on which the persons settled with agree to pay the revenue assessed, and of the customs of the village or place in respect of which the settlement is made; such statement shall be so arranged as to distinguish such customs as regulate—

(a) the relations of the persons settled with to the Government:

(b) the relations of the persons settled with towards one another:

(c) the relations of the persons settled with to other persons:

Abstract of proceedings at settlement.

(6) an abstract of the proceedings at the settlement, which shall contain a statement of all judicial decisions passed by the Settlement Officers in the course of the settlement.

Form, language and contents of documents.

15. The Local Government shall from time to time prescribe the form, language and contents of each of the documents mentioned in the last preceding section, and the manner in which each shall be prepared, signed and attested; and may direct, either generally or in any particular case, other documents besides those specified to be contained in the record of rights.

Proof and effect of decisions by Settlement Officers.

16. Judicial decisions passed by Settlement Officers shall be proved in the same manner, and shall have, when proved, the same effect, as judgments delivered by Civil Courts.

Authenticated entries in record of rights to be presumed true.

Entries in the record of rights made or authenticated at a regular settlement or re-settlement in the manner prescribed by the Local Government shall be presumed to be true.

Sanction of settlement.

17. A settlement notified under section eleven shall be deemed to be in progress until sanctioned by the Local Government. Such sanction may be either

(1) of the record of rights, or

(2) of the assessment, or

(3) of the record of rights and of the assessment.

The Local Government, on the report of the Financial Commissioner that the operations of the settlement are complete, may, previous to sanction, direct that the record of rights be handed over to the Deputy Commissioner of the district, and that the special jurisdiction conferred on any officer under section twenty-one or twenty-two of the Panjáb Courts Act, 1865, shall cease, and that the suits pending in the Courts of any such officers, or appeals from, or applications for the review of, the judgments of such officers, be transferred to the ordinary Civil Courts, or to the Court of any officer appointed by the Local Government for the purpose of disposing of such suits, appeals or applications.

Revision of record of rights.

18. The assessment or record of rights may be revised if the Local Government so directs, at any time before they are sanctioned respectively.

Time and manner of revision.

19. When a record of rights made in any district or other local area at a regular settlement has been sanctioned, it shall not be revised until such district or local area is again put under settlement, nor shall it at such subsequent settlement be revised otherwise than by

(a) making entries in accordance with facts which have occurred since the date of the abstract specified in clause six of section fourteen;

(b) making such alterations of the record as are agreed to by all the parties interested therein, or are supported by a judicial decision;

(c) making new maps, surveys or measurement, when the Local Government so directs, and amending such of the documents of the record of rights as depend thereon, so as to accord with such new maps, surveys or measurement; but not so as to alter any statement as to the share or holding or status of any person, except in the cases mentioned in clauses (a) and (b) of this section.

Suit for declaration that an entry is incorrect.

20. Any person who considers that he is aggrieved as to any right of which he is in possession, by any entry made in a record of rights, may, after such record of rights has been sanctioned, bring a suit in a Civil Court for a declaration that such entry is incorrect, and that a different entry ought to have been made. The Government and every person interested in such entry shall be made defendants in every such suit.

Effect of decree.

A decree obtained in such suit shall be of the same effect as if the entry which it declares to be correct had been made orginally in the record of rights.

The provisions of this section shall not apply to any entry having the force of an agreement under section two of the Panjáb Tenancy Act, 1868, as amended by this Act.

Amendment of section two, Act XXVIII of 1868.

21. Instead of the last clause of section two of the Panjáb Tenancy Act, 1868, the following shall be read: "All entries in such record, made previously to the passing of the Panjáb Land-Revenue Act, 1872, in respect of matters comprised in Chapters III, IV, V and VI of this Act, shall, when attested by the proper officer, be deemed to be agreements within the meaning of this section."

Erection and repair of boundary-marks.

22. Any Revenue Officer, and, in a district under settlement, any Settlement Officer, may, by a notice in writing, require the persons liable for the revenue of any village, estate or field to erect or repair boundary-marks sufficient for defining the limits of such village, estate or field; and if such boundary-marks are not so constructed or repaired within a period to be specified in the notice, such Revenue or Settlement Officer may cause boundary-marks to be so erected or repaired; and the cost of such erection or repair shall be recoverable from the persons liable for the revenue of such village, estate or field, as if it were an arrear of land-revenue due in respect of such village, estate or field.

Power to issue commissions to take evidence, or for local investigations, and to refer to arbitration.

23. Settlement Officers may issue commissions to take evidence, or for local investigations, according to the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, and may, if empowered by the Local Government, refer any matter in dispute to arbitrators, whether with or without the consent of parties. The arbitrators to be appointed under this section shall exercise such powers, proceed in such manner, and their finding shall be liable to such appeal, as the Local Government directs.

Power to compel attendance of witnesses.

24. Settlement officers shall have the same power to compel the attendance of all persons whom they believe to be able to give them information as to the matters into which they are empowered to inquire under the notification mentioned in section eleven, as the Judges of Civil Courts have to procure the attendance of witnesses under the Code of Civil Procedure; and all persons who appear before such officers are bound to state the truth upon all such matters, and to produce such documents and other things as may be required of them.

Power to enter lands to make surveys, &c.

25. Settlement Officers and the servants and workmen employed by them, shall have the powers specified in the Land Acquisition Act (X of 1870), section four, for the purpose of making such plans and surveys as are directed by the said notification, and of collecting such information as to the quality and produce of the land as may be necessary to enable them to assess the revenue to be paid thereon.

What to be deemed to belong to owners of estates.

26. In regular settlements to be made hereafter, unless it is otherwise expressly provided in the records of the settlement, all forests, unclaimed, unoccupied, deserted or waste lands, quarries, spontaneous produce and other accessory interests in land, shall be deemed to belong to the owners of the estate within the boundaries of which they are at such settlement included.

Settlement of waste lands in excess.

27. When the waste land belonging to or adjoining an estate is so extensive as, in the opinion of the Deputy Commissioner or officer in charge of a settlement, to exceed the requirements of the owners of such estate with reference to pasturage or other useful purpose, such Deputy Commissioner or officer may at any time, with the sanction of the Financial Commissioner, make a separate settlement of the waste land which he considers to be so in excess, and shall offer such waste land at such assessment, for such term and on such conditions as he thinks fit to the owners of the estate to which it belongs, and if they refuse such offer, to the owners of any estate to which such waste land adjoins; and if they refuse such offer, to any other person:

Allowance to owners refusing such settlement.

Provided that, where the owners of the estate to which such waste land belongs refuse such offer, the Deputy Commissioner shall assign to them an annual allowance not less than five and not more than ten per cent. on the nett proceeds realized by Government from such waste lands.

Presumption of ownership of forests, waste lands, &c., in regular settlements made before passing of Act.

28. In regular settlements made before the passing of this Act, unless it is otherwise expressly provided in the records of such settlement, all forests, unclaimed, unoccupied, deserted or waste lands, quarries, spontaneous produce and other accessory interests in land, whether included within the boundaries of an estate or not, shall be presumed to belong to the Government.

This presumption may be defeated by showing, from the assessment of the estate, that any such forest, unclaimed, unoccupied, deserted or waste land, quarry, spontaneous produce or other accessory interest was taken into account in such assessment; in which case any thing which was so taken into account shall be presumed to belong to the owners of the estate so assessed.

The question whether any such forests, unclaimed, unoccupied, deserted or waste lands, quarries, spontaneous produce, or other accessory interests were or were not taken into consideration in determining the amount of revenue to be assessed, shall be determined by a consideration of the reports made by the Settlement Officer to Government at the time of settlement, or, if the report is silent, by a comparison between the rates assessed in villages in which such forests, unclaimed, unoccupied, deserted or waste lands, quarries, spontaneous produce or other accessory interests did, and villages of similar character in which they did not, exist.

Mines to be deemed to belong to Government.

29. Mines of metal or coal and gold-washings shall in every case be deemed to be the property of Government. But if Government works or causes to be worked any such mine, compensation for damage to the surface of the soil shall be made to the owner of such surface.

Such compensation may be claimed, and shall be ascertained and awarded, in accordance with the provisions of Act X of 1870.

CHAPTER III.

ENGAGEMENTS FOR PAYMENT OF LAND-REVENUE.

With whom settlement is to be made.

30. When the land in respect of which the settlement is to be made is owned by one person, the settlement shall be offered to that person.

When such land is owned by several persons, it shall be offered to such persons through their representatives.

When there are two classes of owners, superior and inferior, the settlement may be offered to either class, according as the Financial Commissioner directs.

If one of such classes refuses the offer of the settlement, it shall be offered to the other class.

Settlement Officer to report amount of assessment and how computed.

31. When the officer in charge of the settlement has satisfied himself as to the amount at which an estate should be assessed, he shall submit a report of such amount and of the grounds on which it is computed to the Commissioner; and the Commissioner shall forward such report, together with his own opinion thereon, to the Financial Commissioner.

Financial Commissioner to give instructions as to terms.

32. The Financial Commissioner shall give such instructions as he thinks fit to the officer in charge of the settlement as to the terms on which the persons with whom the settlement is to be made shall be permitted to offer to engage for the revenue, and such officer shall inform such persons that they may make an offer on such terms, but that Government is not bound to accept such offer.

Effect of agreement to offer.

33. If the persons with whom the settlement is to be made agree to make such offer, they shall become liable, from the date of such agreement, to the payment of the amount of revenue mentioned in the said offer; but the Local Government may refuse to accept such offer, and may require any officer whom it may appoint for that purpose to offer the land to such persons at any other rate of revenue, or for any other term, or generally on any other conditions than those offered.

Offer may be refused.

Offer to be binding until refusal is notified.

34. Until such refusal and offer of new terms on the part of the Government are notified to the persons with whom the settlement is to be made, they shall be bound by, and shall continue to hold their lands on the terms of, the offer permitted by the Financial Commissioner to be made.

Liability of land-owners in an estate.

35. All the owners of land in an estate shall be jointly and severally liable for the payment of the whole amount of revenue assessed upon it, and to all the processes hereinafter prescribed for the collection of arrears of revenue.

If Headmen accept, village community is bound.

36. If all the Village-Headmen in a village community agree to make such offer, such village community shall be bound by such agreement.

Effect of refusal to offer.

37. If the persons with whom the settlement is to be made neglect or refuse to make such offer as is mentioned in section thirty-two, or to accept any offer made to them under section thirty-three, the officer in charge of the settlement may exclude such persons from their estate, and may make a settlement of such estate with any other persons or may take the estate under direct management. The period of such exclusion shall, in no case exceed the term of the settlement.

Any persons who are so excluded shall be entitled to an allowance from Government, the amount of which shall be fixed by the Financial Commissioner, but which shall not be less than five per cent., nor more than ten per cent., on the nett amount realized by Government from the land from which such persons are excluded.

Allowance to persons excluded.

Land to be held on terms of expired settlement until new one is made.

38. If the term for which any settlement has been made expires before a new settlement is made, all persons who continue to occupy the land after the expiration of such term shall hold it upon the conditions of the expired settlement until a new one is made.

CHAPTER IV.

MAINTENANCE OF THE RECORD OF RIGHTS.

Recording of facts affecting record of rights.

39. When a record of rights has been handed to the Deputy Commissioner under the provisions of section seventeen, he shall from time to time record, or cause to be recorded, all facts affecting any matter stated in the record of rights which occur subsequent to the handing to him of the record of rights.

Rules for such recording.

40. The Local Government shall make rules as to the facts to be so recorded and the manner in which, the persons by whom, and the occasions on which, such facts are to be recorded, and as to the fees which are to be paid in respect of recording them.

Rules for settlement of lands of which revenue is resumed, &c.

41. The Local Government shall from time to time make rules as to the procedure to be followed in making or modifying settlements of lands of which the revenue has been assigned and is resumed by Government, lands affected by alluvion, diluvion or other river action, waste lands settled under the provisions of section twenty-seven, and other isolated portions of land.

Such rules may provide for any matters which may be provided for in a notification of settlement under section eleven, and the officers empowered by such rules to act as Settlement Officers shall have all the powers hereinbefore given to Settlement Officers.

CHAPTER V.

COLLECTION OF LAND-REVENUE.

Local Government may make rules as to payment of revenue.

42. The Local Government may from time to time make rules as to the instalments by which, and the places and times at which, the revenue payable in respect of any land shall be paid, and for the mode in which notice as to such instalments, places and times shall be given to the persons concerned: and, until the Local Government shall otherwise direct, the practice as to these matters now observed shall continue to be observed.

Revenue to be paid at place and on day appointed.

It is the duty of every person who has engaged to pay any portion of land-revenue to pay the same at the place, and before sunset of the day, appointed by the Local Government in that behalf.

Effect of non-payment.

Any sum not so paid becomes thereupon an arrear of land-revenue, and the person who owes such arrear becomes a defaulter.

Procedure for recovery of arrears.

Warrant.

43. When an arrear of land-revenue has become due, the Deputy Commissioner may issue a warrant ordering the defaulter to pay the amount within a time therein stated, and empowering an officer to be named in the warrant, in default of the arrear being so paid, to bring the defaulter to the tahsíl at a date to be named in the warrant.

Detention at head quarters of Deputy Commissioner.

If the arrear be not paid, and if, on the day named in the warrant, the defaulter does not show satisfactory cause for extending the time for payment of the arrear, the Deputy Commissioner may direct such person to be conveyed to his head quarters and there kept under personal restraint for ten days.

The Deputy Commissioner may empower any Tahsíldár of his district to exercise the powers conferred by the two preceding clauses of this section.

Imprisonment in civil jail;

If the arrear be not paid within ten days, and no good reason for the delay is shown, the Deputy Commissioner may issue an order to the jailor of the civil jail of the district, directing him to confine the defaulter therein as a civil prisoner until the arrear is paid, or until the expiration of such period, not exceeding one year from the date of the order, as the Deputy Commissioner thinks fit; and such person shall be confined according to the terms of such order;

Distraint and sale of moveables.

and he may order the distraint and sale of the moveable property of any such person, with the exception of instruments of husbandry, cattle actually employed in agriculture, and the tools of artisans;

or he may order either of the above processes to be enforced.

Conduct of sale.

Every sale ordered under this section shall be conducted according to the law in force for the time being for the sale of moveable property under the decree of a Civil Court.

When defaulter may be discharged.

Wherever any of the processes provided in sections forty-six, forty-seven, forty-nine or fifty-two has been enforced in respect of an arrear, the defaulter on account of whose arrear such process has been enforced shall, if he has been imprisoned under this section, be forthwith discharged.

When Civil Court may interfere.

44. No proceeding had, or process enforced, under section forty-three, shall be liable to be contested in any Civil Court, unless the person aggrieved thereby denies that the amount of revenue claimed was due, and tenders security for any arrear in respect of which the process was issued, or which is due or is likely to become due before the termination of the suit, and for any costs arising out of the proceedings in the Civil Court, in which case the Court shall issue a precept to the Deputy Commissioner to discharge the prisoner from custody; but the Court shall in no case interfere with any such distress and sale of moveable property as aforesaid.

Party proceeded against may pay under protest and sue for recovery.

45. If any such process as is mentioned in section forty-three is taken against any person, such person may pay the amount claimed under protest, and, upon such payment, such process shall be withdrawn, and the party against whom it was issued may sue the Government in any Civil Court for the amount so paid.

Land may be attached and taken under direct management.

Powers and obligations of agent.

46. When an arrear of land-revenue has become due, the Deputy Commissioner may, in addition to or instead of the processes hereinbefore specified, cause the land in respect of which the arrear has become due to be attached and taken under the direct management of any agent whom he appoints for that purpose. The agent so appointed shall stand for all purposes in the position of the person on account of whose default the land was attached, and shall be bound by all the engagements or other relations which existed between such person and any subordinate proprietors or tenants with rights of occupancy, and shall be entitled to manage the land attached, and to receive all rents and profits accruing on such land, to the exclusion of the person on account of whose default the land was attached, until the arrears of land-revenue due therefrom have been satisfied, or until the Deputy Commissioner directs him to restore the person whose interest has been attached to the management thereof.

Application of surplus profits.

All surplus profits of the land attached, beyond the cost of such attachment and direct management, shall go to defraying the arrear and any instalment of land-revenue that may become due during such management.

Termination of management.

And no such management shall continue after the arrear of revenue on account of which it was ordered, together with any such instalment, has been satisfied.

Transfer of share of defaulter to solvent co-sharers.

47. If an arrear of land-revenue has accrued in respect of the share of any member of a village community, such community or any member thereof may tender payment of such arrear, or may offer to pay such arrear by instalments; and, if such tender be made, or if the Deputy Commissioner considers such offer satisfactory, the Deputy Commissioner may transfer the share of the defaulting member to such community or member, on such terms as he considers equitable, either permanently or until such arrear is paid. If more such members than one make such tender or offer, the one who is most nearly related to the defaulter, or who, in case of sale, would have a right of pre-emption, shall be preferred.

When transfer of share is to become absolute.

ferred may apply to the Deputy Commissioner to publish a notification that, if the arrear is not paid within one year from the date thereof, such transfer will become absolute; and the Deputy Commissioner may publish such notification accordingly; and if the arrear is not paid before the expiration of one year from the date of the notification, the transfer to such community or member shall become absolute accordingly.

49. The provisions contained in the two preceding sections in favour of members of a village community shall extend to mortgagees and other persons having incumbrances on the land on which the arrear is due, in case neither the community nor any member thereof take action under the said provisions.

Sections forty-seven and forty-eight to apply to mortgagees and other incumbrancers.

50. The procedure prescribed in the three preceding sections shall not affect the joint and several liability of the members of the village community in which it is enforced.

Processes not to affect joint and several liability of community.

51. When any arrear of land-revenue remains unpaid for more than one month, the Deputy Commissioner, in addition to or instead of any of the processes hereinbefore provided, may, with the previous consent of the Financial Commissioner, cause to be published upon the land in respect of which such arrear is due a notification that, unless the arrear is paid within fifteen days from the date thereof, the settlement made in respect of the estate on which such arrear is due, or in respect of any portion of such estate, and all contracts made by the defaulter or any person through whom he claims, affecting such estate or portion of an estate, will be cancelled.

Notice to cancel settlement.

A copy of such notification shall be stuck up at the tahsíl, and be served on each of the Village Headmen of the village in which the arrear has accrued.

Service of notice.

52. If such arrear of land-revenue is not paid within fifteen days from the date of the notification, the said settlement and all contracts made by the defaulter or any person through whom he claims, affecting the land in such estate or portion of an estate, shall be cancelled; and the Deputy Commissioner, with the previous consent of the Financial Commissioner, may either appoint an agent to manage the land, or may let the land in farm to any person who may be willing to accept the same, for such period and on such conditions as he thinks fit; and such farmer may, during such period, either occupy the land himself or sub-let the same to such persons on such terms as he may think proper:

On cancelment of settlement land may be managed by agent or let in farm.

Provided that, in every case in which the provisions of this section are enforced, no lease of any of the lands mentioned in the notification shall be made to any other person till it has been first offered to the owners of such land: and such owners shall, if they accept the offer of the lease, be deemed, in the absence of express agreement to the contrary, to hold as tenants-at-will.

Lease to be first offered to owners of land.

A cancelment under this section shall not affect any person, other than the defaulter or his representatives, having an interest in such estate which existed at the date of the last previous settlement.

53. Whenever any person is dispossessed of any beneficial interest in land by any such attachment, direct management, transfer or cancelment as is provided in this chapter, he shall be entitled to an allowance in respect thereof such as is provided in section thirty-seven.

Persons dispossessed to have allowance.

54. If the share of any member of a village community is let to farm, under the provisions hereinbefore contained, to any person other than a member of the village community, such person shall not, during the term of his farm, be liable for the land-revenue due in respect of the other shares in the village community; and if such person is a member of the village community, he may, if the Financial Commissioner so direct, be freed from joint and several liability in respect of such share.

Farmer of share in village community when not liable for revenue of other shares.

55. When an arrear of revenue cannot be recovered by any of the processes hereinbefore described, the Deputy Commissioner may, with the previous sanction of the Financial Commissioner, order the attachment, under section forty-six, of any beneficial interest to which the defaulter is entitled in any other land, and may apply the provisions of that section to such land until the arrear is satisfied.

Attachment of interest of defaulter in other land.

56. If the Deputy Commissioner is of opinion that an arrear of land-revenue cannot be recovered by any of the means hereinbefore mentioned, he may, with the previous sanction of the Financial Commissioner, sell by auction—

What may be sold.

any land in respect of which such arrear has accrued, or any portion or share of such land; or

but no land or house shall be liable to be sold under this section,

When house or land may not be sold.

if the land is subject to the Court of Wards, or is so circumstanced that the Court of Wards might exercise jurisdiction over it; or if the land is under attachment under this Act, and the arrear has accrued during such attachment; or if the land is held in farm under this Act by a person who is not a member of the village community within whose estate such land is situated, and if the arrear has accrued during the term for which it is so held in farm.

57. Land or other property sold under the last preceding section shall be sold free of all incumbrances, and all contracts made by any person in respect of such land or property shall become void as against the purchaser at the auction-sale.

Land to be sold free of incumbrances.

58. In all sales under section fifty-six, the procedure provided by sections two hundred and forty-nine, two hundred and fifty-three to two hundred and sixty, inclusive, of the Code of Civil Procedure, shall be followed, except in the following particulars:

Procedure to be followed in sales.

(2) The proclamation of intended sale provided in the said section two hundred and forty-nine shall declare that the land is to be sold free of every incumbrance, except the land-revenue and other legal charges to which it may be from time to time assessed:

(3) The appeal provided in section two hundred and fifty-seven of the said Code shall lie to the Commissioner of the division, and an appeal from the Commissioner's order shall lie to the Financial Commissioner:

(4) The certificate provided in section two hundred and fifty-nine of the said Code shall state that the purchaser has purchased the land to which the certificate refers free of every incumbrance, except the land-revenue and other legal charges to which it may be from time to time assessed.

59. A suit may be brought in a Civil Court to set aside any such sale on any ground on which a sale under the Code of Civil Procedure might be set aside; but not on any of the following grounds:

Suit to set aside sale.

(1) that a tender of the arrear of land-revenue on account of which such sale took place was made on or after the day named for the sale in the proclamation of intended sale;

(2) that the defaulter had any claim against the Government;

(3) that the revenue due from the defaulter had been remitted, unless the Local Government admits it;

(4) that money belonging to the defaulter, and sufficient to satisfy the whole or any part of the arrear, was in any Government treasury, unless the defaulter had an exclusive and undisputed property therein, and unless, after application by the defaulter within the time specified in the notification of intended sale that such money should be applied to the satisfaction of the arrear, the Deputy Commissioner neglected or refused upon insufficient grounds so to apply it; or where land is sold for an arrear of revenue due in respect thereof,

(5) that the land sold does not belong to the defaulter.

60. The proceeds of any sale under section fifty-six shall be applied as follows:

Application of proceeds of sale.

(1) to the payment of the arrear due;

(2) to the payment of any other arrear of land-revenue due by the same person;

(3) the surplus shall be paid to the person whose land has been sold; or, if the land sold were held in shares, then to the co-sharers collectively, or according to the amount of their respective interests, at the discretion of the Deputy Commissioner.

61. Such surplus shall not be payable to any creditor of the person whose land has been sold on demand of such creditor, nor shall it be retained in the land-revenue treasury, except under precept of a Civil Court and in satisfaction of a decree of such Court; and, whenever such surplus has been paid to the creditors of the owner of any land under a precept of such Court, and the sale of such land is afterwards annulled, such owner shall not be restored to possession, until the amount so paid is returned by him with such interest as the Deputy Commissioner directs.

After a very careful consideration of the draft prepared by the Indian Law Commissioners, we have arrived at the conclusion that it is not suited to the wants of this country.

We have recorded in a separate report the grounds on which this conclusion is based. They are in a few words that the Commissioners' draft is not sufficiently elementary for the officers for whose use it is designed, and that it assumes an acquaintance on their part with the law of England which can scarcely be expected from them. Our draft, however, though arranged on a different principle from theirs, embodies most of its provisions. In general, it has been our object to reproduce the English Law of Evidence with certain modifications, most of which have been suggested by the Commissioners, though with some this is not the case. The English Law of Evidence appears to us to be totally destitute of arrangement. This arises partly from the circumstance that its leading terms are continually used in different senses, and partly from the circumstance that the Law of Evidence was formed by degrees out of various elements, and in particular out of the English system of pleading and the habitual practice of the Courts of Common Law. For instance, the rule that evidence must be confined to points in issue is founded on the system of pleading. The rule that hearsay is no evidence is part of the practice of the Courts; but the two sets of rules run into each other in such an irregular way as to produce between them a result which no one can possibly understand systematically, unless he is both acquainted with the principles of a system of pleading which is being rapidly abolished, and with the every-day practice of the Common Law Courts, which can be acquired and understood only by those who habitually take part in it. This knowledge, moreover, must be qualified by a study of text-books which are seldom systematically arranged.

Many other circumstances, to which we need not refer, have contributed largely to the general result; but we may illustrate the extreme intricacy of the law, and the total absence of anything like system which pervades every part of it, by a single instance. In Mr. Pitt Taylor's work on Evidence it is stated that "ancient documents, when tendered in support of ancient possession," form the third exception to the rule which excludes hearsay. The question is whether A is entitled to a fishery. He produces a royal grant of the fishery to his ancestor. This fact the law describes as a peculiar kind of hearsay admissible by special exception. Surely this is using language in a most uninstructive manner.

This being the case, we have discarded altogether the phraseology in which the English text-writers usually express themselves, and have attempted first to ascertain, and then to arrange in their natural order, the principles which underlie the numerous cases and fragmentary rules which they have collected together. The result is as follows:

Every judicial proceeding whatever has for its purpose the ascertaining of some right or liability. If the proceeding is criminal, the object is to ascertain the liability to punishment of the person accused; if the proceeding is civil, the object is to ascertain some right of property or of status, or the right of one party, and the liability of the other, to some form of relief.

All rights and liabilities are dependent upon and arise out of facts, and facts fall into two classes, those which can, and those which cannot, be perceived by the senses. Of facts which can be perceived by the senses, it is superfluous to give examples. Of facts which cannot be perceived by the senses, intention, fraud, good faith, and knowledge may be given as examples. But each class of facts has, in common, one element which entitles them to the name of facts—they can be directly perceived either with or without the intervention of the senses. A man can testify to the fact that, at a certain time, he had a certain intention, on the same ground as that on which he can testify that, at a certain time and place, he saw a particular man. He has, in each case, a present recollection of a past direct perception. Moreover, it is equally necessary to ascertain facts of each class in judicial proceedings, and they must in most cases be ascertained in precisely the same way.

Facts may be related to rights and liabilities in one of two different ways:

1. They may by themselves, or in connection with other facts, constitute such a state of things that the existence of the disputed right or liability would be a legal inference from them. From the fact that A is the eldest son of B, there arises of necessity the inference that A is by the law of England the heir-at-law of B, and that he has such rights as that status involves. From the fact that A caused the death of B under certain circumstances, and with a certain intention or knowledge, there arises of necessity the inference that A murdered B, and is liable to the punishment provided by law for murder.

Facts thus related to a proceeding may be called facts in issue, unless, indeed, their existence is undisputed.

2. Facts, which are not themselves in issue in the sense above explained, may affect the probability of the existence of facts in issue, and these may be called collateral facts.

It appears to us that these two classes comprise all the facts with which it can in any event be necessary for courts of justice to concern themselves, so that this classification exhausts all facts considered in their relation to the proceeding in which they are to be proved.

This introduces the question of proof. It is obvious that, whether an alleged fact is a fact in issue or a collateral fact, the Court can draw no inference from its existence till it believes it to exist; and it is also obvious that the belief of the Court in the existence of a given fact ought to proceed upon grounds altogether independent of the relation of the fact to the object and nature of the proceeding in which its existence is to be determined. The question is whether A wrote a letter. The letter may have contained the terms of a contract. It may have been a libel. It may have constituted the motive for the commission of a crime by B. It may supply proof of an alibi in favour of A. It may be an admission or a confession of crime; but whatever may be the relation of the fact to the proceeding, the Court cannot act upon it unless it believes that A did write the letter, and that belief must obviously be produced, in each of the cases mentioned, by the same or similar means. If, for instance, the Court requires the production of the original when the writing of the letter is a crime, there can be no reason why it should be satisfied with a copy when the writing of the letter is a motive for a crime. In short, the way in which a fact should be proved depends on the nature of the fact, and not on the relation of the fact to the proceeding.

The instrument by which the Court is convinced of a fact is evidence. It is often classified as being either direct or circumstantial. We have not adopted this classification.

If the distinction is that direct evidence establishes a fact in issue, whereas circumstantial evidence establishes a collateral fact, evidence is classified, not with reference to its essential qualities, but with reference to the use to which it is put; as if paper were to be defined, not by reference to its component elements, but as being used for writing or for printing. We have shown that the mode in which a fact must be proved depends on its nature, and not on the use to be made of it. Evidence, therefore, should be defined, not with reference to the nature of the fact which it is to prove, but with reference to its own nature.

Sometimes the distinction is stated thus: Direct evidence is a statement of what a man has actually seen or heard. Circumstantial evidence is something from which facts in issue are to be inferred. If the phrase is thus used, the word evidence, in the two phrases (direct evidence and circumstantial evidence) opposed to each other, has two different meanings. In the first, it means testimony; in the second, it means a fact which is to serve as the foundation for an inference. It would indeed be quite correct, if this view is taken, to say 'Circumstantial evidence must be proved by direct evidence.' This would be a most clumsy mode of expression, but it shows the ambiguity of the word "evidence," which means either—

(1) words spoken or things produced in order to convince the Court of the existence of facts; or

(2) facts of which the Court is so convinced which suggest some inference as to other facts.

We use the word 'evidence' in the first of these senses only, and so used it may be reduced to three heads—1, oral evidence; 2, documentary evidence; 3, material evidence.

Finally, the evidence by which facts are to be proved must be brought to the notice of the Court and submitted to its judgment, and the Court must form its judgment respecting them.

These general considerations appear to us to supply the groundwork for a systematic and complete distribution of the subject as follows:—

I.—Preliminary.

II.—The relevancy of facts to the issue.

III.—The proof of facts according to their nature, by oral, documentary or material evidence.

IV.—The production of evidence.

V.—Procedure.

We have accordingly distributed the subject under these heads, in the manner which we now proceed to describe somewhat more fully.

I.—PRELIMINARY.

Under this head we have defined "fact," "facts in issue," "collateral facts," "a document," "evidence," "proof" and "proved," "necessary inference" and "presume." We have also laid down in general terms the duty of the Court.

Of our definitions of "fact," "facts in issue," "collateral facts," and "evidence," we need say no more then that they are framed in accordance with the principles already stated. We may, however, shortly illustrate the effect of the definition of evidence.

It will make perfectly clear several matters over which the ambiguity of the word, as used in English law, has thrown much confusion. The subject of circumstantial evidence will be distributed into its elements, and will be dealt with thus: The question is whether A committed a crime. The facts are—that he had a motive, displayed by statements of his own, for it; that the scene of the crime shows footmarks which correspond with his feet; that he was in possession of property which might have been procured by it, and that he wrote a letter indicating his guilt. On turning to chapter II, it will be found that all these are relevant facts, either as motive, incidents of facts in issue, effects of facts in issue, or conduct influenced by facts in issue. On turning to chapter III, it will be seen how each of these facts must be proved, namely, the statements displaying motive, by the direct oral evidence of some one who says he heard them; the footmarks, by the direct oral evidence of some one who says he saw them; the possession of the property, by the production of the property in Court, and by the direct oral evidence of some one who had seen it in the prisoner's possession; and the letter, by the production of the letter itself, or secondary evidence of it, if the case allows of secondary evidence.

So the phrase "hearsay evidence," which, as the Commissioners observe, is used by English writers in so vague and unsatisfactory a manner, finds no place in our draft, and we hope we have avoided the possibility of any confusion in connection with it. Chapter II provides specifically, and in a manner which corresponds, on the whole (though with some modifications), with the English law, in what cases the statements and opinions of third persons as to relevant facts shall, and in what cases they shall not, be themselves relevant, and chapter V, On Proof by Oral Evidence, provides that oral evidence shall in all cases be direct, on whatever ground the fact which it is to establish may be relevant to the issue: that is to say, if the fact is one which could be seen, it must be established by a witness who says he saw it, if it could be heard, by a witness who says he heard it, whether it is fact in issue, or a collateral fact. These provisions distribute the different things described by the phrase "hearsay evidence" in the same way in which the different things described by the phrase "circumstantial evidence" are distributed by the other provisions.

So, our definition does away with a confusion which arises out of the double meaning of the word 'evidence' in the phrases "primary" and "secondary evidence." "Primary evidence" sometimes means a relevant fact, and at other times the proof of a document by its production as opposed to proof by a copy. In our draft, "primary" and "secondary" are distinctly defined, and confined to an unambiguous meaning. 'Evidence' in each case means words spoken or things (documents or not) shown to the Court.

Finally, we have substituted, for the phrase "conclusive evidence," the phrase "necessary inference." The phrase "conclusive evidence" is not open to objection on the ground of obscurity or ambiguity, but the word "evidence" in it means, not what we understand by evidence, but a fact established by evidence from which a particular inference necessarily follows. Our phrase, therefore harmonises with the rest of our draft, whereas "conclusive evidence" would not.

The definitions of "proof," "proved" and "moral certainty" require some comment. The definition of "proof" is subordinate to that of "proved," which is, that a fact is said to be proved in two cases, that is to say when the Court after hearing the evidence respecting it—

(1) believes in its existence; or

(2) thinks its existence so probable that a reasonable man ought, under the circumstances of the particular case, to act upon the supposition that it exists.

This degree of probability we describe as "moral certainty," and we provide that no fact shall be regarded as morally certain unless the evidence is such as to render its non-existence improbable. This is as near an approach as we have been able to make to a distinct equivalent for the phrase "reasonable doubt," which is usually employed by English Judges in leaving questions of fact to a jury. The question "When is doubt reasonable?" is one which cannot be completely answered; for at bottom it is a question, not of science, but of prudence, and our definition of the word "proved" is meant to make this plain. We have, however, attached to it the negative condition that a reasonable man ought not to be morally certain of a conclusion, merely because it is probable, if other conclusions are also probable. It is easier to illustrate this principle than to state, without a prolonged abstract discussion, which would be out of place on the present occasion, the general grounds on which it rests. Our illustrations are meant to point out to Judges that they are not to convict A of an offence which must have been committed either by him or by B, unless circumstances exist which make it improbable that the offence was committed by B. We have not attempted to carry the matter further. We believe that in all countries, and in this country more than in any other, it is absolutely necessary to leave to Judges a wide discretion as to the risk of error which they choose to incur in coming to a decision, and that this is a matter of prudence and practice, as to which rules ought to be laid down, rather with the view of guiding, than with the view of fettering, discretion.

The last provision, in the preliminary part, to which we would call attention, defines in very general terms the duty of the Court in deciding questions of fact. Its generality appeared to us to render the preliminary, rather than the concluding chapter, the proper place for it. This section declares that the duty of the Court is to determine questions of fact by drawing inferences—

(1) from the evidence given to the facts alleged to exist;

(2) from facts proved to facts not proved;

(3) from the absence of evidence which might have been given;

(4) from the admissions and conduct of the parties, and generally from the circumstances of the case.

We have said nothing of the principle on which these inferences are to be drawn, as that is a matter of logic, and does not belong specially to the subject of judicial evidence; but we wish to point out and put distinctly upon record the fact, that to infer, and not merely to accept or register evidence, is in all cases the duty of the Court. One of the many fallacies which owe their origin to the ambiguity of the word "evidence," and the looseness with which it is used, is the common assertion that direct evidence leaves no room for inference, whereas indirect or circumstantial evidence does. In fact, all evidence whatever is useful only as the groundwork for inferences, of which the inference that the facts which the witness alleges to exist do or did actually exist, is very often the most difficult to draw. The truth is, that to infer in one or other of the different shapes which we have stated is the great duty of the Judge in every case whatever, and we have thought it desirable to point this out in the plainest and broadest way.

We have added two qualifications only to this general rule: (1) that, when the law declares an inference to be necessary, the Court shall draw it, and shall not allow its truth to be contradicted; (2) that, when the law directs the Court to presume a fact, it shall infer its existence till the contrary appears. We have treated in detail of necessary inference and presumptions in other parts of the Bill.

II.—THE RELEVANCY OF FACTS.

We have already pointed out the place which, in our opinion, belongs to this subject in the law of evidence. The question, What facts may you prove? obviously lies at the root of the whole matter, and unless a plain and full answer is given to the question, it is impossible to state the law systematically. The answer to the question is, we think, to be found in several of the wide exceptions which are made by English text-writers to the wide exclusive rules—that evidence must be confined to the points in issue, that hearsay is no evidence, and that the best evidence must be given, though other parts of the same exceptions are to be found in different branches of the law. We think, however, that by a comparison and collection of these exceptions we have succeeded in forming a collection of positive rules as to the relevancy of facts to the issue, which will admit every fact which a rational man could wish to have before him in investigating any question of fact.

These rules declare to be relevant—

1, all facts in issue:

2, all collateral facts, which

(a) form part of the same transaction;

(b) are the immediate occasion, cause, or effect of facts in issue;

(c) show motive, preparation, or conduct affected by a fact in issue;

(d) are necessary to be known in order to introduce or explain relevant facts;

(e) are done or said by a conspirator in furtherance of a common design;

(f) are either inconsistent with any fact in issue; or inconsistent with it, except upon a supposition which should be proved by the other side; or render its existence or non-existence morally certain, according to the definition of moral certainty given above;

(g) affect the amount of damages in cases where damages are claimed;

(h) show the origin or existence of a disputed right or custom;

(i) show the existence of a relevant state of mind and body;

(k) show the existence of a series of which a relevant fact forms a part; or

(l) show (in certain cases) the existence of a given course of business.

The remainder of the chapter throws into a positive shape what in English law forms the exceptions to the rule, excluding the various matters described as hearsay. They relate to—the conduct of the parties on previous occasions;

the statements of the parties on previous occasions;

previous judgments;

statements of third persons;

opinions of third persons.

1. In reference to the conduct of the parties on previous occasions, we embody in three sections the existing law of England as to evidence of character, with some modifications. We include, under the word 'character,' both reputation and disposition, and we permit evidence to be given of previous convictions against a prisoner for the purpose of prejudicing him. We do not see why he should not be prejudiced by such evidence, if it is true.

2. Under the head of The Statements of the Parties on other Occasions, we deal with the question of admissions, as to which we have not materially altered the existing law.

We have not thought it necessary to transfer from their present position in the Code of Criminal Procedure the rules as to confessions made to the Police. This appears to us to be a special matter relating rather to the discipline of the police than to the principles of evidence.

3. Previous judgments appear to follow naturally upon previous statements. Under this head we deal with the question of res judicata.

We have not attempted to deal with the question of the bar of suits by previous judgments between the same parties. This is a question of procedure rather than of evidence, and will be properly dealt with whenever the Codes of Civil and Criminal Procedure are re-enacted. We have, on the other hand, dealt in substantial accordance with the principles of the law of England with the question of the relevancy of judgments between strangers. For the sake of simplicity, and in order to avoid the difficulty of defining or enumerating judgments in rem, we have adopted the statement of the law by Sir Barnes Peacock in Kunja Lal v. Radha Churn, 7, Suth. W. R., 339.

4. As to statements by third persons. We have made one considerable alteration in the existing law by admitting, generally, statements made by third persons about relevant facts, if attended by conduct which confirms their truth, or if they refer to facts independently proved, provided that the person making them appears to the Court to have special means of knowledge. We have given several illustrations of this, the strongest of which is suggested by Mr. Pitt Taylor. A captain about to sail on a voyage carefully examines the ship, declares his belief that she is sea-worthy, and embarks on her with his family and property uninsured. Statements of this sort are surely most unlikely to be false. Evidence of such statements will be admissible under this section, whether the person who makes them is living or dead, producible or not. Some of them would probably be admissible under the English rule which admits statements explanatory of conduct, but as the conduct explained must be relevant, and as no clear definition of relevancy is given by the law of England, it is very difficult to say how far this rule extends.

The next exception refers to statements made by a person who is dead or cannot be found or produced without unreasonable delay or expense. We declare such statements to be relevant if they relate to the cause of the person's death, or are made in the ordinary course of business, or express an opinion as to the existence of a public right, or state the existence of any relationship as to which the party had special means of knowledge, or when they are made in family pedigrees, titles, deeds, &c. We have omitted the restrictions placed by the law of England on the admission of dying declarations and statements about relationship, and as to the necessity that statements should be opposed to the pecuniary interest of the party making them, on the ground that they ought to affect the weight rather than the admissibility of what is, at best, to use Bentham's expression, "makeshift evidence."

We also provide for the admissibility of statements in public or official books, and (in certain cases) of evidence given in previous judicial proceedings.

5. The cases in which the opinions of third persons are relevant are dealt with in sections forty-four to fifty.

They declare to be relevant the opinions of experts, opinions as to handwriting, opinions as to usages, and opinions as to relationship and the grounds of such opinions.

This completes that part of the Bill which relates to the relevancy of facts. In the particulars stated, and in some others of minor importance, which for the sake of brevity we have not noticed, it modifies the law of England; but we believe that, substantially, it represents that part of the law which is contained in (amongst others) the rules, together with the exceptions to the rules, that evidence must be confined to points in issue; that the best evidence must be given, and that hearsay is no evidence, though these rules include other matters which we treat of under other heads.

III.—PROOF.

The second chapter having decided what facts are relevant, we proceed to show how a relevant fact is to be proved.

In the first place, the fact to be proved may be one of so much notoriety that the Court will take judicial notice of it, or it may be admitted by the parties. In either of these cases no evidence of its existence need be given. Chapter III, which relates to judicial notice, disposes of this subject. It is taken in part from Act II of 1855, in part from the Commissioners' draft Bill, and in part from the Law of England.

If evidence has to be given of any fact, that evidence must be either oral, documentary, or material, and we proceed in the following chapters to deal with the peculiarities of each of these three kinds of evidence. There is, however, one topic which applies to all of them, of which we treat in Chapter IV. This is the distinction between primary and secondary evidence. As we have already shown, the phrase is ambiguous. We regard it as a legal way of recognizing the obvious principle that the best way of finding out the contents of a document is to read it yourself, and we have accordingly defined primary and secondary evidence thus: in the case of documents or other material things, the document or thing itself is primary evidence. A copy, model, or oral description is secondary evidence. In all other cases oral evidence is primary.

We next proceed (Chapters V, VI, VII, and VIII) to the question of proof by the various kinds of evidence successively, namely, oral, documentary, and material. With regard to oral evidence, we provide that it must in all cases whatever, whether it is primary or secondary, and whether the fact to be proved is a fact in issue or collateral, be direct. That is to say, if the fact to be proved is one that could be seen, it must be proved by some one who says he saw it. If it could be heard, by some one who says he heard it, and so with the other senses. We also provide that, if the fact to be proved is the opinion of a living and producible person, or the grounds on which such opinion is held, it must be proved by the person who holds that opinion on those grounds.

We have, however, provided that if the fact to be proved is the opinion of an expert who cannot be called (which is the case in the majority of cases in this country), and if such opinion has been expressed in any published treatise, it may be proved by the production of the treatise.

This provision, taken in connection with the provisions on relevancy contained in Chapter II, will, we hope, set the whole doctrine of hearsay in a perfectly plain light, for their joint effect is this—

(1) the sayings and doings of third persons are, as a rule, irrelevant, so that no proof of them can be admitted;

(2) in some excepted cases they are relevant;

(3) every act done or word spoken, which is relevant on any ground, must (if proved by oral evidence) be proved by some one who saw it with his own eyes, or heard it with his own ears.

With regard to the chapters which relate to the proof of facts by documentary evidence, and the cases in which secondary evidence may be admitted, we have followed, with few alterations, the existing law. We may observe that Chapter VII contains most of the few presumptions which we have thought it right to introduce into the Bill. They are presumptions which in almost every instance will be true—as to the genuineness of certified copies, gazettes, books purporting to be published at particular places, copies of depositions, &c.

We have inserted a few provisions in Chapter VIII as to material evidence. They reproduce the practice and, as we believe, the law of England, upon this subject, though no distinct provisions about it and few judicial decisions upon it are, so far as we are aware, to be found in English law-books.

On the subject of the exclusion of oral evidence of a contract, &c., reduced to writing, we have (in Chapter IX) simply followed the law of England and the Commissioners' draft.

IV.—THE PRODUCTION OF PROOF.

From the question of the proof of facts, we pass to the question of the manner in which the proof is to be produced, and this we treat under the following heads:—

The burden of proof (Chapter X):
Witnesses (Chapter XI):
The administration of oaths (Chapter XII):
Examination of witnesses (Chapter XIII):

With regard to the burden of proof, we lay down the broad rules that the general burden of proof is on the party who, if no evidence at all were given, would fail, and that the burden of proving any particular fact is on the party who affirms it. These are the well-established English rules, and appear to us reasonable in themselves. We have not followed the precedent of the New York Code in laying down a long list of presumptions, agreeing with the Indian Law Commissioners in the opinion that it is better not to fetter the discretion of the Judges. We have, however, admitted one or two such presumptions to a place in the Code, as, in the absence of an express rule, the Judges might feel embarrassed. These are—the presumption of death from seven years' disappearance, and the presumption of partnership from the fact of acting as partners.

We may observe that we have disposed, in an illustration, of a matter in which the laws of several countries contain elaborate, and we think somewhat arbitrary provisions, the presumption to be made in the case of the death of several persons in a common catastrophe. We treat it as an instance of the rule as to the burden of proof. The person who affirms that A died before B must prove it. This is the principle adopted by the English Courts.

We follow the English law as to legitimacy being a necessary inference from marriage and cohabitation, and we adopt one or two of the rules of English law as to estoppel.

In the chapter as to the examination of witnesses, we have been careful to interfere as little as possible with the existing practice of the Courts which in the Mofussil Courts and under the Code of Civil Procedure is of necessity very loose and much guided by circumstances, but we have put into propositions the rules of English law as to the examination and cross-examination of witnesses.

We have also considered it necessary, having regard to the peculiar circumstances of this country, to put into the hands of the Judge an amount of discretion as to the admission of evidence which, if it exists by law, is at all events rarely or never exercised in England. We expressly empower him to ask any questions upon any facts relevant or irrelevant, at any period of the trial, and we expressly declare that it is his duty in criminal cases, if he thinks that the public interest requires it, not merely to receive and adjudicate upon the evidence submitted to him by the parties, but also "to enquire to the utmost into the truth of the matter before him." The object of these provisions is to define simply and clearly the duties and the position of the Judges and those who practise before them. The English system, under which the Bench and the Bar act together and play their respective parts independently, and the professional organization on which it rests, have no doubt great advantages; but in this country such a system does not as yet exist, and will not for a very long course of time be introduced. In the Mofussil, generally speaking, the great mass of cases are conducted without the assistance of a Bar, and when advocates are employed there, they are usually brought from a distance, and have to appear before Judges who have not had the same professional training as English Judges, and are liable to be intimidated by advocates whose technical knowledge of law is greater than their own, and to whom the extremely intricate system of appeal which prevails in this country gives a power over the Judges unlike anything which exists in England. For this reason we have thought it necessary to strengthen the hands of the Judges and to enable them to act efficiently and promptly as the representatives of the public interest.

In connection with this subject, we may refer to some provisions which we have inserted in order to prevent the abuse of the power of cross-examination to credit. We believe the existence of that power to be essential to the administration of justice, and we believe it to be liable to great abuses. The need for the power and the danger of its abuse are proved by English experience, but in this country litigation of various kinds, and criminal prosecutions in particular, are the great engines of malignity, and it is accordingly even more necessary here than in England, both to permit the exposure of corrupt motives and to prevent the use of the power of exposure as a means of gratifying malice. We have accordingly provided as follows:

Such questions may relate either to matters relevant to the case, or to matters not relevant to the case. If they relate to matters relevant to the case, we think that the witness ought to be compellable to answer, but that his answer should not afterwards be used against him.

If they relate to matters not relevant to the case, except in so far as they affect the credit of the witness, we think that the witness ought not to be compelled to answer. His refusal to do so would, in most cases, serve the purpose of discrediting him, as well as an express admission that the imputation conveyed by the question was true.

In order to protect witnesses against needless questions of this kind, we enact that any advocate who asks such questions without written instructions (which the Court may call upon him to produce, and may impound when produced) shall be guilty of a contempt of Court, and that the Court may record any such question if asked by a party to the proceedings. The record of the question or the written instructions are to be admissible as evidence of the publication of an imputation intended to harm the reputation of the person affected, and such imputations are not to be regarded as privileged communications, or as falling under any of the exceptions to section four hundred and ninety-nine of the Indian Penal Code, merely because they were made in the manner stated. Upon a trial for defamation, it would of course be open to the person accused to show, either that the imputation was true, and that it was for the public good that the imputation should be made (Ex. 1, section 449, I. P. C.), or that it was made in good faith for the protection of the interest of the person making it or of any other person (Ex. 9). This is the only method which occurs to us of providing at once for the interests of a bonâ fide questioner and an innocent witness.

In the same spirit, we have empowered the Court, in general terms, to forbid indecent and scandalous inquiries, unless they relate to facts in issue (as defined above), or to matters absolutely necessary to be known in order to determine whether the facts in issue existed; and also to forbid questions intended to insult or annoy.

We prefer this general power to the sections drawn by the Commissioners, which forbid questions to married persons "which substantially amount to inquiring whether that person has had sexual intercourse forbidden to him or her by the law to which he or she is subject," and "questions regarding the occurrence of sexual intercourse between a husband and wife, except in the case of Christians, where the suit is for a decree of nullity of marriage on the ground of bodily incapacity." We should regard these rules as dangerous. It is possible to imagine numerous cases in which it might be highly important to show that a married person was living with some one who was not her husband or his wife. A woman brings a false accusation against her servant. The motive is revenge for the discovery by the servant of an intrigue by the mistress. A married man comes to prove an alibi on behalf of his mistress. A woman sues a married man on a bond. He pleads that the consideration was adultery. In all these cases, and so in many others which might be suggested, it appears to us that it would be absolutely necessary to admit such evidence as is referred to. As to questions relating to sexual intercourse between husband and wife, we think it better to forbid indecent and scandalous inquiries in general terms, than to lay down a positive rule which in possible cases might produce hardship.

Finally, we deal (Chapter XV) with the question of the improper admission or rejection of evidence.

We provide in substance that in regular appeal each Court successively shall decide for itself to what evidence it will have regard. As for special appeals, we provide that if evidence is said to be improperly admitted, the objection must be taken before the inferior Appellate Court, and the Court called upon to say what its decision would be if the evidence objected to were rejected. If evidence is improperly rejected, we would permit the High Court either to look into the facts and deliver final judgment, or to remand the case.

Finally, we recommend that the draft Bill, together with this report, should be circulated for the opinion of the Local Governments.

(a.) That there are certain objects arranged in a certain position, in a certain place, is a fact.

(b.) That a man said certain words, is a fact.

(c.) That a man holds a certain opinion, has a certain intention, acts in good faith or fraudulently, or uses a particular word in a particular sense, is a fact.

"Facts in issue." "Facts in issue" means and includes

(a) every fact which any Court records as an issue of fact under the provisions of the law for the time being relating to Civil Procedure;

(b) any fact, of which any party to any suit or proceeding does not admit the existence, and from which, either by itself or in connection with other facts, the existence, non-existence, nature, or extent of any right, liability, or disability, asserted or denied in any such suit or proceeding necessarily follows.

Illustrations.

A is accused of the murder of B and claims to be tried.

The following facts may be in issue:—

That A caused B's death.

That A intended to cause B's death.

That A had received grave and sudden provocation from B.

That A at the time of doing the act which caused B's death was, by reason of unsoundness of mind, incapable of knowing its nature.

"Collateral facts." "Collateral facts" are facts which, not being themselves in issue, tend to prove or disprove the existence of facts in issue.

"Document." "Document" means any thing made capable in any manner of conveying a meaning.

Illustrations.

The following things are documents:—

Writings, printed papers, photographs of writings, an I. O. U., an inscription on a tombstone, a caricature, a message written in cypher, an architectural plan.

"Evidence." "Evidence" means and includes

(1) all statements which the Court permits or requires to be made before it by witnesses, in relation to matters of fact under inquiry; such statements are called oral evidence;

(2) all documents produced for the inspection of the Court; such documents are called documentary evidence;

(3) all material things other than documents produced for the inspection of the Court; such things are called material evidence.

"Proof." "Proof" is the process of producing evidence in order that facts may be proved or disproved.

"Proved." A fact is said to be proved when, after considering the evidence so produced, the Court either believes it to exist, or considers its existence so probable that, under the circumstances of the particular case, a prudent man ought to act upon the supposition that it exists.

"Disproved." A fact is said to be disproved when, after considering the evidence so produced, the Court either believes that it does not exist, or considers its non-existence so probable that, under the circumstances of the particular case, a prudent man ought to act upon the supposition that it does not exist.

"Not proved." A fact is said not to be proved when it is neither proved nor disproved.

"Morally certain." The existence or non-existence of a fact probable to the degree necessary for proof or disproof is said to be "morally certain."

Moral certainty. 4. The Court shall not regard any fact as morally certain unless it is of opinion that every supposition consistent with its non-existence is improbable.

Illustrations.

(a.) A credible witness affirms that he witnessed a fact of ordinary occurrence, and which, if it occurred, he must have had an opportunity of observing.

Here the possible suppositions are—

(1) that the fact occurred;

(2) that the witness is mistaken; and

(3) that the witness is telling an untruth.

But, by the supposition, (2) and (3) are improbable. Therefore, every supposition consistent with the non-existence of the fact is improbable.

(b.) The circumstances of a case are such that a given crime must have been committed by A or B.

The crime was one which required great physical strength. A is a strong man, B a weak woman.

The crime was one for which A had a strong motive, and against which B had a strong motive.

These facts make every supposition except that of A's guilt improbable.

Explanation.—The Court need not regard a fact as morally certain, merely because every supposition consistent with its non-existence is improbable.

Illustration.

In illustration (a) the Court is not bound to believe the witness.

Inferences to be drawn by Court. 5. Courts shall form their opinions on matters of fact by drawing inferences

(1) from the evidence produced to the existence of the facts alleged;

(2) from facts proved or disproved to facts not proved;

(3) from the absence of witnesses who, or of evidence which, might have been produced;

(4) from the admissions, statements, conduct and demeanour of the parties and witnesses, and generally from the circumstances of the case.

Necessary inferences. 6. When any inference is declared in this Act to be necessary, the Court shall in all cases draw that inference, and shall not permit proof that it is false.

Presumptions. When the Court is directed by this Act upon the proof of any fact, or upon the production of any document, to presume the existence of any fact, it shall, when the fact is proved, or when the document is produced, regard as true the fact which it is directed to presume, unless and until the contrary appears or is proved, or unless after considering the whole evidence on the matter it is of opinion that such fact is not proved.

CHAPTER II.—OF THE RELEVANCY OF FACTS.

Evidence for or against relevant facts only. 7. Parties to any suit or proceeding may, subject to the provisions of this Act, give evidence for and against such facts as are hereinafter declared to be relevant and no others.

Facts in issue relevant. 8. Every fact in issue, and every incident connected with any such fact which took place at its occurrence, is relevant.

Illustration.

(a) A is tried for the murder of B by beating him with a club with the intention of causing his death. B claims to be tried.

The following facts are in issue—

A's beating B with the club.
A's causing B's death by such beating.
A's intention to cause B's death.

Whatever was done or said by A or B, or the bystanders immediately before, during, or immediately after, the beating of B by A, are relevant facts.

Explanation.—This section shall not enable any person to give evidence of any fact which he is disentitled to prove by any provision of the law for the time being relating to Civil Procedure.

Illustration.

(b.) A, a suitor, does not bring with him and have in readiness for production at the first hearing a bond on which he relies. This section does not enable him to produce the bond or prove its contents at a subsequent stage of the proceedings.

Collateral facts relevant to the issue.

Facts forming part of same transaction.

9. Facts which, though not in issue, are so connected with facts in issue as to form part of the same transaction, are relevant.

Illustrations.

(a.) A sues B for a libel contained in a letter forming part of a correspondence. Letters between the parties relating to the subject out of which the libel arose are relevant facts, though they do not contain the libel itself.

(b.) The question is whether certain goods ordered from B were delivered to A. The goods were delivered to several intermediate persons successively. Each delivery is a relevant fact.

Facts which are occasion, cause, or effect of facts in issue.

10. Facts which are the occasion, cause, or effect of facts in issue or which constitute the state of things under which they happened, or which afforded an opportunity for their occurrence or transaction are relevant.

Illustrations.

(a.) The question is whether A robbed B.

The facts that shortly before the robbery B went to a fair with money in his possession, and that he showed it, or mentioned the fact that he had it, to third persons, are relevant.

(b.) The question is whether A murdered B.

Marks on the ground produced by a struggle at or near the place where the murder was committed are relevant facts.

(c.) The question is whether A poisoned B.

The state of B's health before the symptoms ascribed to poison and habits of B, known to A, which afforded an opportunity for the administration of poison are relevant facts.

Motive, preparation and subsequent conduct.

11. Any fact which shows or constitutes a motive or preparation for any fact in issue, or previous or subsequent conduct influenced by any fact in issue, is relevant.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is tried for the murder of B.

The facts that, twenty years before A murdered C, that B knew that A had murdered C, and that B had tried to extort money from A by threatening to make his knowledge public, are relevant.

(b.) A sues B upon a bond for the payment of money. B denies the making of the bond.

The fact that, at the time when the bond was alleged to be made, B required money for a particular purpose, is relevant.

(c.) A is tried for the murder of B by poison.

The fact that, before the death of B, A procured poison similar to that which was administered to B, is relevant.

(d.) The question is whether a certain document is the will of A.

The facts that, not long before the date of the alleged will, A made inquiry into matters to which the provisions of the alleged will relate, that he consulted vakils in reference to making the will, and that he caused drafts of other wills to be prepared of which he did not approve, are relevant.

(e.) A is accused of a crime.

The facts that, after the commission of the alleged crime, he absconded, or was in possession of property or the proceeds of property acquired by the crime, or attempted to conceal things which were or might have been used in committing it, are relevant.

(f.) The question is whether A was ravished.

The fact that, shortly after the alleged rape, she made a complaint relating to the crime, the circumstances under which the complaint was made, and the terms in which it was made, are relevant.

(g.) The question is whether A was robbed.

The fact that, soon after the alleged robbery, he made a complaint relating to the offence, the circumstances under which, and the terms in which, it was made, are relevant.

(h.) A is accused of a crime.

The facts that, either before, or at the time of, or after the alleged crime, A provided evidence which would tend to give to the facts in issue an appearance favourable to himself, or that he destroyed or concealed evidence, or prevented the presence or procured the absence of persons who might have been witnesses, or suborned persons to give false evidence respecting it, are relevant.

Facts necessary to explain or introduce relevant facts.

12. Facts which explain or introduce relevant facts, or which rebut an inference suggested by a relevant fact, are relevant in so far as they are necessary for that purpose.

Illustrations.

(a.) The question is whether a given document is the will of A.

The state of A's property and of his family at the date of the alleged will may be relevant facts.

(b.) A sues B for a libel imputing disgraceful conduct to A. B affirms that the matter alleged to be libellous is true.

The position and relations of the parties at the time when the libel was published may be relevant facts as introductory to the facts in issue.

The particulars of a dispute between A and B about a matter unconnected with the alleged libel are irrelevant, though the fact that there was a dispute may be relevant if it affected the relations between A and B.

(c.) A is accused of a crime.

The fact that, soon after the commission of the crime, A absconded from his home, is relevant, under section eleven, as conduct subsequent to and affected by facts in issue.

The fact that, at the time when he left home, he had sudden and urgent business at the place to which he went, is relevant as tending to explain the fact that he left home suddenly.

The details of the business on which he left are not relevant, except in so far as they are necessary to show that the business was sudden and urgent.

Things said or done by conspirator in furtherance of common design.

13. Where several persons conspire together to commit an offence or an actionable wrong, anything said, done or written by any such person in furtherance of their common intention after the time when such intention was first entertained by any one of them, is a relevant fact as against each of the persons so conspiring.

Explanation.—Such facts may also be relevant upon the question of the existence of the conspiracy itself.

Illustrations.

(a.) A conspires to wage war against the Queen.

The facts that a conspiracy to wage war against the Queen existed in which A, B, C, D, E, F, G and others were parties; that, in furtherance of the conspiracy, B procured arms in Europe, C collected money in Calcutta, D persuaded persons to join the conspiracy in Bombay, E published writings advocating the object in view at Agra, and F transmitted from Delhi to G at Cabul the money which C had collected at Calcutta, are each relevant as against A, upon proof that he was a party to the conspiracy, although he may have been ignorant of all of them, and although the persons by whom they were done were strangers to him.

(b.) A sues B for conspiring with C, D and E to injure A's credit.

The facts that C caused articles to be inserted in a newspaper reflecting on A's credit, that D spread a report that A was insolvent, and that E tried to dissuade a banker from lending A money, are relevant, as tending to show acts done by conspirators in furtherance of a common intent.

Facts inconsistent with relevant facts, or making their existence morally certain.

14. Facts not otherwise relevant are relevant—

(1) if they are inconsistent with any relevant fact;

(2) if they are inconsistent with any relevant fact, except upon a supposition the truth of which, in the opinion of the Court, is highly improbable in itself or ought to be proved by the party against whom such facts are alleged;

(3) if by themselves or in connection with other facts they make the existence or non-existence of any relevant fact morally certain.

Illustrations.

(a.) The question is whether A committed a crime at Calcutta on a certain day.

The fact that on that day A was at Lahore is relevant.

The fact that at the time when the crime was committed A was at such a distance from the place where it was committed that he could not by the use of ordinary means of locomotion have reached the place at the time, is relevant if the Court thinks, under the circumstances of the case, that it is highly improbable, or that the prosecution ought to prove that extraordinary means of locomotion were at A's disposal.

(b.) The question is whether A committed a crime.

The circumstances are such that the crime must have been committed either by A, B, C or D. Every fact which shows that the crime could have been committed by no one else, or that it was not committed by either B, C or D is relevant.

In suits for damages, evidence may be given of facts tending to determine amount.

15. In suits in which damages are claimed, any fact which will enable the Court to determine the amount of damages which ought to be awarded is relevant.

Facts relevant when right or custom is in question.

16. Where the question is as to the existence of any right or of any custom the following facts are relevant—

(a.) Any transaction by which the right in question was created, modified, recognised or denied, or which was inconsistent with its existence.

(b.) Particular instances in which the right in question was exercised, or in which its exercise was prevented as of right.

(c.) Particular instances in which the custom in question was recognised or departed from.

Illustrations.

(a.) The question is whether certain lands belong to A.

Transfers of the land from one person to another and finally to A are relevant facts.

(b.) The question is whether a horse belongs to B, the executor of A, or to C who is in possession of it.

The fact that A gave the horse to C in A's lifetime is relevant.

Facts showing existence of state of mind, or of body or bodily feeling.

17. Facts showing the existence of any state of mind, such as intention, knowledge, good faith, negligence, rashness, ill-will or good-will towards any particular person, or showing the existence of any state of body or bodily feeling, are relevant, when the existence of any such state of mind or body or bodily feeling, is relevant:

Proviso.

Provided that no party to any proceeding shall be permitted to prove any statement made by himself for the purpose only of proving any state of his own mind, or any feeling of his own body, unless such statement was accompanied, either by contemporaneous conduct on his part which it explains, or by contemporaneous circumstances which render its falsehood improbable, and unless it was made at or about the time when such state of mind or bodily feeling existed.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is accused of receiving stolen goods knowing them to be stolen. It is proved that he was in possession of a particular stolen article.

The fact that at the same time he was in possession of many other stolen articles is relevant, as tending to show that he knew each and all of the articles of which he was in possession to be stolen.

(b.) A is accused of fraudulently delivering to another person a piece of counterfeit coin which, at the time when he became possessed of it, he knew to be counterfeit.

The fact that at the time of its delivery he was possessed of a number of other pieces of counterfeit coin is relevant.

(c.) A sues B for damage done to A by a dog of B's, which B knew to be ferocious.

The facts that the dog had previously bitten X, Y and Z, and that they had made complaints to B, are relevant.

(d.) The question is whether A, the acceptor of a bill of exchange, knew that the name of the payee was fictitious.

The fact that A had accepted other bills drawn in the same manner before they could have been transmitted to him by the payee if the payee had been a real person is relevant, as showing that A knew that the payee was a fictitious person.

(e.) A is accused of defaming B by publishing an imputation intended to harm the reputation of B.

The fact of previous publications by A respecting B, showing ill-will on the part of A towards B, is relevant, as proving A's intention to harm B's reputation by the particular publication in question.

The facts that there was no previous quarrel between A and B, and that A repeated the matter complained of as he heard it, are relevant, as showing that A did not intend to harm the reputation of B.

(f.) A is sued by B for fraudulently representing to B that C was solvent, whereby B, being induced to trust C who was insolvent, suffered loss.

The fact that, at the time when A represented C to be solvent, C was supposed to be solvent by his neighbours and by persons dealing with him is relevant, as showing that A made the representation in good faith.

(g.) A is sued by B for the price of work done by B upon a house of which A is owner by the order of C, a contractor.

A's defence is that credit was given to C.

The fact that A paid C for the work in question is relevant, as proving that A did, in good faith, make over to C the management of the work in question, so that C was in a position to contract with B on C's own account, and not as agent for A.

(h.) A is accused, under section 403 of the Indian Penal Code, of the dishonest misappropriation of property which he had found, and the question is whether, when he appropriated it, he did in good faith believe that the real owner could not be found.

The fact that public notice of the loss of the property had been given in the place where A was is relevant, as showing that A did not in good faith believe that the real owner of the property could not be found.

The fact that A knew or had reason to believe that the notice was given fraudulently by C, who had heard of the loss of the property and wished to set up a false claim to it, is relevant, as showing that the fact that A knew of the notice did not disprove A's good faith.

(i.) The question is whether A has been guilty of cruelty towards B, his wife.

Expressions of their feelings towards each other shortly before or after the alleged cruelty, are relevant facts.

(j.) The question is whether A's death was caused by poison.

Statements made by A during his illness as to his symptoms, are relevant facts.

(k.) The question is what was the state of A's health at the time when an assurance on his life was effected.

Statements made by A as to the state of his health at or near the time in question, are relevant facts.

(l.) A is accused of defaming B by publishing an imputation intended to harm his reputation.

A may not prove previous statements of his own that he did not wish to harm B's reputation made in ordinary conversation.

(m.) In the last illustration, A might prove that he wrote a letter to the Editor of a newspaper to whom he sent the matter complained of, requesting him not to publish the matter complained of if he thought it would harm B's reputation.

18. When there is a question whether an act was accidental or intentional, the fact that such act formed part of a series of similar occurrences, in each of which the person doing the act was concerned, is relevant.

Act forming part of series of occurrences.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is accused of burning down his house in order to obtain money for which it is insured.

The facts that A lived in several houses successively, each of which he insured, in each of which a fire occurred, and after each of which fires A received payment from a different insurance office, are relevant, as tending to show that the fires were not accidental.

(b.) A is employed to receive money from the debtors of B. It is A's duty to make entries in a book showing the amounts received by him. He makes an entry showing that on a particular occasion he received less than he really did receive.

The question is whether this false entry was accidental or intentional.

The fact that other entries made by A in the same book are false, and that the false entry is in each case in favour of A, are relevant.

(c.) A is accused of fraudulently delivering to B a counterfeit rupee.

The question is whether the delivery of the rupee was accidental.

The facts that soon before or soon after the delivery to B, A delivered counterfeit rupees to C, D and E are relevant, as showing that the delivery to A was not accidental.

19. When there is a question whether a particular act was done, the existence of any course of business according to which it naturally would have been done is a relevant fact.

Course of business when relevant.

Illustration.

(a.) The question is whether a particular letter was despatched.

The facts that it was the ordinary course of business for all letters put in a certain place to be carried to the post, and that that particular letter was put in that place, are relevant.

Character when relevant.

20. In civil cases, the fact that the character of any person concerned is such as to render probable or improbable any conduct imputed to him, is irrelevant, except in so far as such character appears from facts otherwise relevant.

In civil cases, character to prove conduct imputed irrelevant.

21. In criminal proceedings, the fact that the person accused is of a good character, is relevant.

In criminal cases, previous good character relevant.

22. In criminal proceedings, the fact that the accused person has been previously convicted of any offence is relevant, but the fact that he has a bad character is irrelevant, unless evidence has been given that he has a good character, in which case it becomes relevant.

Previous conviction in criminal trials relevant, but not previous bad character, except in reply.

Explanation.—This section does not apply to cases in which the bad character of any person is itself a fact in issue.

23. In civil cases, the fact that the character of any person was such as to affect the amount of damages which he ought to receive, is relevant.

Character as affecting damages.

Explanation.—In sections twenty, twenty-one, twenty-two and twenty-three, the word 'character' includes both reputation and disposition.

24. In trials for rape, or attempts to commit rape, the fact that the woman on whom the alleged offence was committed is a common prostitute, or that her conduct was generally unchaste, is relevant.

Character for chastity in trials for rape.

Admissions when relevant.

25. An admission is a statement, oral or documentary, which suggests any inference as to any relevant fact, and which is made by any person included in any of the classes hereinafter mentioned.

Admissions defined.

(a.) Parties to the proceeding.

(b.) Agents to such parties whom the Court regards, under the circumstances of the case, as expressly or impliedly authorized by them to make admissions.

(c.) Persons who have any interest in the subject-matter of the proceeding, and who make the statement in their character of persons so interested.

(d.) Persons from whom the parties to the suit have derived their interest in the subject-matter of the suit.

(e.) Third persons whose position or liability it is necessary to prove, as against any party to the suit, when the admission would be relevant as against such persons in relation to such position or liability in a suit brought by or against them.

Illustration.

A undertakes to collect rents for B.

B sues A for not collecting rent due from C to B.

A denies that rent was due from C to B.

A statement by C that he owed B rent is an admission, and is a relevant fact as against A, if A denies that C did owe rent to B.

(f.) Third persons to whom a party to the suit has expressly referred for information in reference to a matter in dispute. No inference from such an admission is necessary.

(g.) Conspirators in relation to any matter connected with their common intention.

Explanation 1.—The interest referred to in (d) must be derived from, and not merely subsequent to, that of the person making the admission. Otherwise the statement is not an admission.

Explanation 2.—Statements made by members of the classes c, d or e, are not admissions, unless they were made during the existence of their respective interests in the matter to which such statements relate.

Explanation 3.—Statements made by parties to suits sued in a representative character are not admissions, unless they were made while the party making them held that character.

Explanation 4.—Admissions as to the contents of documents are not relevant, unless and until the party proposing to prove them shows that he is entitled to give secondary evidence of the contents of such documents under the rules hereinafter contained.

Exception.—In civil cases, no admission is relevant if it is made either upon an express condition that evidence of it is not to be given, or under circumstances from which the Court can infer that it was the intention of the parties that evidence of it should not be given.

26. Admissions are relevant facts only as against the person who denies the inference which they suggest. They are not relevant on behalf of the person who asserts the truth of such inference.

Relevancy of admissions.

Illustration.

A, a party to a suit, says that a certain deed is forged.

This is relevant as an admission if A maintains that the deed is not forged, but is irrelevant if A maintains that the deed was forged.

27. The conduct of any party to any proceeding upon the occasion of anything being done or said in his presence in relation to matters in question, and the things so said or done, are relevant facts, when they render probable or improbable any relevant fact alleged or denied in respect of the person so conducting himself.

Admissions by conduct.

Illustrations.

(a.) The question is whether A robbed B.

The facts that, after B was robbed, C said in A's presence—'the police are coming to look for the man who robbed B,'—and that immediately afterwards A ran away, are relevant.

(b.) The question is whether A owes B rupees 10,000.

The facts that A asked C to lend him money, and that D said to C in A's presence and hearing—'I advise you not to trust A, for he owes B 10,000 rupees,'—and that A went away without making any answer, and did not renew his request to C, are relevant facts.

28. An admission made by an accused person is irrelevant in a criminal proceeding if the making of the admission appears to the Court to have been caused by any inducement, threat, or promise, having reference to the charge against the accused person, proceeding from a person in authority and sufficient, in the opinion of the Court, to give the accused person grounds which would appear to him reasonable for supposing that he would gain any advantage or avoid any evil in reference to the proceedings against him by making it.

Admission of crime caused by inducement, threat or promise irrelevant.

29. If such an admission is made after the impression caused by any such inducement, threat, or promise has, in the opinion of the Court, been fully removed, it is relevant.

Admission made after removal of impression caused by inducement, threat or promise relevant.

30. If such an admission is otherwise relevant, it does not become irrelevant merely because it was made under a promise of secrecy, or in consequence of a deception practised on the accused person for the purpose of obtaining it, or when he was drunk, or because it was made in answer to questions which he need not have answered, whatever may have been the form of those questions, or because he was not warned that he was not bound to make such confession, and that evidence of it might be given against him.

Admission otherwise relevant not irrelevant on certain grounds.

31. Whenever evidence is given of a statement containing an admission, evidence must be given of the whole statement, in so far as it relates to the matter in question.

Evidence to be given of the whole of any statement containing an admission.

32. Where the statement containing the admission forms part of a conversation or part of an isolated document, or is contained in a document which forms part of a book, or of a connected series of letters or papers, evidence shall be given of so much and no more of the conversation, document, book, or series of letters or papers as the Court considers necessary in that particular case to the full understanding of the nature and effect of the alleged admission, and of the circumstances under which it was made.

What evidence to be given when statement containing admission forms part of a conversation, document, book, or series of letters or papers.

Judgments in other suits when relevant.

33. The existence of any judgment, order or decree which, under any provision of the Codes of Civil or Criminal Procedure, prevents any Court from taking cognizance of a suit or holding a trial, is a relevant fact when the question is whether such Court ought to take cognizance of such suit, or to hold such trial.

Previous judgments relevant to bar a second suit or trial.

34. Any judgment, order or decree of any competent Court in the exercise of probate, matrimonial, Admiralty or insolvency jurisdiction, which confers upon or takes away from any person any legal character, or which declares any person to be entitled to any such character, or to be entitled to any specific thing, not as against any specified person but absolutely, is a relevant fact when the existence of any such legal character, or the title of any such person to any such thing, is relevant.

Judgments in probate, &c., jurisdiction.

It is a necessary inference from the existence of any such order, judgment or decree that any legal character which it confers accrued at the time when such judgment, order or decree came into operation; that any legal character to which it declares any such person to be entitled accrued to that person at the time when such judgment declares it to have accrued to that person; that any legal character which it takes away from any such person ceased at the time from which such judgment declared that it had ceased or should cease; and that any thing to which it declares any person to be so entitled was the property of that person at the time from which such judgment declares that it had been or should be his property.

35. Judgments, orders or decrees other than those mentioned in section thirty-four, made in suits between persons other than parties or those through whom they claim or between a party to the suit, and any person who is not a party or Judgments, order or decree between third parties when irrelevant and when not.

the representative in interest of a party, are irrelevant, unless they relate to matters of a public nature, in which case they are relevant, though no inference from them is necessary, or unless the fact that there was such a judgment between such parties, is relevant under some other provision of this Act as to the relevancy of facts.

Illustrations.

(a.) A and B separately sue C for a libel which reflects upon each of them. C in each case says, that the matter alleged to be libellous is true, and the circumstances are such that it is probably true in each case, or in neither.

A obtains a decree against C for damages on the ground that C failed to make out his justification. The fact is irrelevant as between B and C.

(b.) A sues B for trespass on his land. B alleges the existence of a public right of way over the land, which A denies.

The existence of a decree in favour of the defendant in a suit by A against C for a trespass in the same place in which C alleged the existence of the same right of way, is relevant, but the inference that the right of way exists is not necessary.

(c.) A has obtained a decree for the possession of land against B. C, B's son, murders A in consequence.

The existence of the judgment is relevant, as showing motive for a crime.

Fraud, collusion and incompetency of court may be proved.

36. Any party to a suit or other proceeding may show that any judgment, order or decree which is relevant under sections thirty-three, thirty-four or thirty-five, and which has been proved by the adverse party, was delivered by a Court not competent to deliver it, or was obtained by fraud or collusion.

Statements of third persons when relevant.

When statements of third persons are relevant.

37. Statements, written or verbal, made by any person about any relevant fact are themselves relevant facts, if it appears to the Court from the circumstances of the case that the person making such statements had special means of knowing the truth of that which he asserted, and special motives for not making a false assertion on the subject, and if such statements are corroborated by the conduct of the person making them, or if they refer to facts which are independently proved to be true.

Acts other than statements, done by any person which render probable the existence of any relevant fact are themselves relevant.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is accused of murder.

The facts that, soon after the murder, A's mother was seen washing A's clothes and heard to tell A's father that A had told her do so in order to get out stains of blood upon them, is relevant.

(b.) A is accused of stealing rupees. The facts that A's intimate friend was heard to say to A's wife,—'A has given me these rupees for you and says you are to hide them,'—and was seen at the same time to give her a bag of rupees, are relevant.

(c.) The question is whether a ship was seaworthy when she sailed on a certain voyage.

The facts that the captain, after carefully examining the ship, wrote a letter to his wife saying that he was satisfied of the ship's seaworthiness, and that he afterwards embarked upon the ship with his wife and children, and with property which he did not insure, are relevant.

The washing of the clothes in illustration (a), the acceptance and delivery of the bag of rupees in illustration (b), and the examination of the ship by the Captain and his embarkation on her in illustration (c), would be relevant whether any statement was made or not.

When statement by person who is dead or cannot be found, &c., is relevant.

38. Statements, written or verbal, of relevant facts made by a person who is dead, or who cannot be found, or who has become incapable of giving evidence, or whose attendance cannot be procured without an amount of delay or expense which, under the circumstances of the case, appears to the Court unreasonable, are themselves relevant facts in the following cases:—

(1.) When the statement is made by a person, since dead, as to the cause of his death, or as to any of the circumstances of the transaction which resulted in his death, in cases in which the cause of that person's death comes into question. Such statements are relevant whether the person who made them was or was not, at the time when they were made, under expectation of death, and whatever may be the nature of the proceeding in which the cause of his death comes into question.

(2.) When the statement was made by such person in the ordinary course of business, and in particular when it consisted of any entry or memorandum made by him in books kept in the ordinary course of business, or in the discharge of professional duty; or of acknowledgments written or signed by him of the receipt of money, goods, securities or property of any kind; or of documents used in commerce written or signed by him, or of the date of a letter or other document usually dated, written or signed by him.

(3.) When the statement gives the opinion of any such person, as to the existence of any public right or custom or matter of general interest, of the existence of which, if it existed, he would have been likely to be aware, and when such statement was made before any controversy as to such right, custom or matter had arisen.

(4.) When the statement relates to the existence of any relationship between persons as to whose relationship the person making the statement had special means of knowledge, and when the statement was made before the question in dispute was raised.

(5.) When the statement relates to the existence of any relationship between persons deceased, and is made in any will or deed relating to the affairs of the family to which any such deceased person belonged, or in any family pedigree, or upon any tombstone, family portrait or other thing on which such statements are usually made, and when such statement was made before the question in dispute was raised.

(6.) When the statement is contained in any deed, will or other document which relates to any such transaction as is mentioned in section sixteen, clause (a).

Illustrations.

(a) The question is whether A was murdered by B.

A dies of injuries received in a transaction in the course of which she was ravished. The question is whether she was ravished by B.

Statements made by A as to the cause of his or her death, referring respectively to the murder, the rape, and the actionable wrong under consideration are relevant facts.

Entry in public record, made in performance of duty enjoined by law when relevant.

39. Any entry in any public or other official book, register, or record, stating a relevant fact and made by a public servant in the discharge of his official duty, or by any other person in performance of a duty specially enjoined by the law of the country in which such book, register, or record is kept, is itself a relevant fact.

Maps and plans when relevant.

40. Statements of relevant facts made in published maps or charts, or in maps or plans made under the authority of Government, as to matters usually represented or stated in such maps, charts or plans, are themselves relevant facts: Provided that such maps, charts and plans were not made with reference to the proceeding in which they are to be proved.

Evidence in a former judicial proceeding when relevant.

41. Evidence given by a witness in a judicial proceeding, or before any person authorised by law to take it, is relevant in a subsequent judicial proceeding, or in a later stage of the same judicial proceeding when the witness is dead or cannot be found, or is incapable of giving evidence, or is kept out of the way by the adverse party, or if his presence cannot be obtained without an amount of delay or expense which, under the circumstances of the case, the Court considers unreasonable:

Provided that the proceeding was between the same parties or their representatives in interest; that the adverse party in the first proceeding had the right to cross-examine;

that the questions in issue were substantially the same in the first as in the second proceeding.

Explanation.—A criminal trial or enquiry shall be deemed to be a proceeding between the prosecutor and the accused within the meaning of this section, and an enquiry before a Magistrate shall be deemed to be an earlier stage of a judicial proceeding, of which the trial before the Magistrate or the Court of Session are the later stages.

Statement as to fact of public nature contained in any Act or Notification of Government, when relevant.

42. When the Court has to form an opinion as to the existence of any fact of a public nature, any statement of it, made in a recital contained in any Act of the Governor General of India in Council, or of the Governors in Council of Madras or Bombay, or of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council of Bengal, or in a notification of the Government appearing in the Gazette of India, or in the Gazette of any Local Government, or in any printed paper purporting to be the Government Gazette of any colony or possession of the Queen, is a relevant fact.

Statements in newspapers as to public meeting, when relevant.

43. When the Court has to decide whether or not a public meeting or public proceeding was held or took place, any statement made by any newspaper that it did take place, is a relevant fact; but statements made by newspapers as to what passed at any such meeting or public proceeding, are irrelevant.

Opinions of third persons when relevant.

Opinions of experts.

44. When the Court has to form an opinion upon a point of foreign law, science or art, in order to determine any question before it, the opinions upon that point of persons specially skilled in such foreign law, science or art, are relevant facts.

Such persons are called experts.

Illustrations.

(a.) The question is whether the death of A was caused by poison.

The opinions of experts as to the symptoms produced by the poison by which A is supposed to have died, are relevant.

(b.) The question is whether A, at the time of doing a certain act, was by reason of unsoundness of mind incapable of knowing the nature of the act, or that he was doing what was either wrong or contrary to law.

The opinions of experts upon the question whether the symptoms exhibited by A are ordinary symptoms of unsoundness of mind, and whether such unsoundness of mind usually renders persons incapable of knowing the nature of the acts which they do, or of knowing that what they do is either wrong or contrary to law, are relevant.

(c.) The question is whether a certain document was written by A. Another document is produced which is proved or admitted to have been written by A.

The fact that other harbours similarly situated in other respects, but where there were no such sea walls, began to be obstructed at about the same time, is relevant.

Opinion as to handwriting.

46. When the Court has to form an opinion as to the person by whom any document was written or signed, the opinion of any person acquainted with the handwriting of the person by whom it is supposed to be written or signed that it was or was not written or signed by that person, is a relevant fact.

Explanation—A person is said to be acquainted with the handwriting of another person when he has seen that person write, or when he has received documents purporting to be written by that person in answer to documents written by himself or under his authority and addressed to that person, or when in the ordinary course of business documents purporting to be written by that person have been habitually submitted to him.

Illustration.

The question is whether a given letter is in the handwriting of A, a merchant in London.

B is a merchant in Calcutta, who has written letters addressed to A and received letters purporting to be written by him. C is B's clerk, whose duty it was to examine and file B's correspondence. D is B's broker, to whom B habitually submitted the letters purporting to be written by A for the purpose of advising with him thereon.

The opinions of B, C and D on the question whether the letter is in the handwriting of A are relevant, though neither B, C or D ever saw A write.

Opinion as to existence of right or custom, when relevant.

47. When the Court has to form an opinion as to the existence of any general custom or right, the opinions, as to the existence of such custom or right, of persons who would be likely to know of its existence if it existed, are relevant.

Explanation.—The expression 'general custom or right' includes rights common to any considerable class of persons.

Illustration.

The right of the villagers of a particular village to use the water of a particular well is a general right within the meaning of this section.

the opinions of persons having special means of knowledge thereon, are relevant facts.

Opinion on relationship when relevant.

49. When the Court has to form an opinion as to the relationship of one person to another, the opinion expressed by conduct as to the existence of such relationship of any person who, as a member of the family or otherwise, has special means of knowledge on the subject, is a relevant fact: Provided that such opinions shall not be sufficient to prove a marriage in proceedings under the Indian Divorce Act.

Illustrations.

(a.) The question is whether A and B were married.

The fact that they were usually received and treated by their friends as husband and wife, is relevant.

(b.) The question is whether A was the legitimate son of B. The fact that A was always treated as such by members of the family, is relevant.

Grounds of opinion when relevant.

50. Whenever the opinion of any living person is relevant, the grounds on which such opinion is based are also relevant.

Illustration.

[illegible] may give an account of experiments performed by [illegible] for the purpose of forming his opinion.

PART II.

OF PROOF.

CHAPTER III.—FACTS WHICH NEED NOT BE PROVED.

No evidence required of relevant fact judicially noticed.

51. No evidence need be given of any relevant fact of which the Court will take judicial notice.

Facts of which Court must take judicial notice.

52. The Court shall take judicial notice of the following facts:—

(1.) All laws or rules having the force of law now or heretofore in force in any part of British India:

(2.) All public Acts of the Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and all local and personal Acts directed by such Parliament to be judicially noticed:

(3.) Articles of War for Her Majesty's Army or Navy:

(4.) The course of proceeding of the said Parliament and of the Councils for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations established under the Indian Councils' Act, or any other law for the time being relating thereto:

(5.) The accession and the sign manual of the Sovereign for the time being of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland:

(6.) All seals of which English Courts would take judicial notice. The seals of all the Courts of British India, and of all Courts out of British India, established by the authority of the Governor General in Council:

(7.) The accession to office, names, titles, functions, and signatures of the persons filling for the time being any public office in any part of British India, if the fact of their appointment to such office is notified in the Gazette of India, or in the official Gazette of any Local Government:

(8.) The existence, title, and national flag of every State or Sovereign recognized by the British Crown:

(9.) The seals of Courts of Admiralty and Maritime Jurisdiction and of Notaries Public:

(10.) The divisions of time, the geographical divisions of the world and public festivals, fasts and holidays notified in the official Gazette:

(11.) The territories under the dominion of the British Crown:

(12.) The commencement, continuance, and termination of hostilities between Her Majesty and any other State or body of persons:

(13.) The names of the members and officers of the Court, and of their deputies and subordinate officers and assistants, and also of all officers acting in execution of its process, and of all advocates, attornies, proctors, vakíls, pleaders and other persons authorised by law to appear or act before it:

(14.) And in the Presidency Towns and Military Cantonments, the rule of the road.

In all these cases, and also on all matters of public history, literature, science or art, the Court may resort for its aid to appropriate books or documents of reference.

If the Court is called upon by any person to take judicial notice of any fact, it may refuse to do so, unless and until such person produces any such book or document as it may consider necessary to enable it to do so.

Facts admitted.

53. No fact need be proved in any proceeding which the parties thereto or their agents agree to admit at the hearing, or which they agree to admit before the hearing, by any writing under their hands: Provided that, when admissions are made in proceedings under the Code of Criminal Procedure, the Court may in its discretion require the facts admitted to be proved otherwise than by such admissions.

CHAPTER IV.—OF PRIMARY AND SECONDARY EVIDENCE.

Kinds of evidence.

54. All facts which it is necessary to prove, must be proved either by oral or by documentary, or by material evidence, and such evidence may be either primary or secondary.

Oral evidence when primary.

55. Oral evidence is primary in relation to all facts other than the existence or contents of any document, or the existence, appearance or condition of any material thing.

Primary evidence as to documents and material things.

56. When the fact to be proved is the existence or contents of any document, or the existence, appearance or condition of any material thing, the document or material thing itself is primary evidence. An oral description, or a copy of the document or material thing, is secondary evidence.

Explanation.—The word 'copy' includes all documents and all other things which represent to the eye any document or other material thing.

Documents and material things must be identified.

57. When any document or material thing is produced to the Court, it must be proved to be the document or material thing which it is alleged to be, and if it is a copy, to be a correct copy of that of which it is alleged to be a copy, except in cases in which the Court is directed or authorised to make any presumption as to any such document.

CHAPTER V.—OF PROOF BY ORAL EVIDENCE.

Oral evidence to be direct.

58. Oral evidence must in all cases whatever be direct. That is to say—

If the fact to be proved is one which could be seen, it must be proved by the evidence of a witness who says that he saw it:

If the fact to be proved is one which could be heard, it must be proved by the evidence of a witness who says that he heard it:

If the fact to be proved is one which could be perceived by any other sense, it must be proved by the evidence of a witness who says that he perceived it by that sense.

This section applies equally to cases in which oral evidence is primary and to cases in which it is secondary, to the proof of facts in issue and to the proof of collateral facts.

Opinions of experts and others, and the grounds on which they are held, must be proved by their own statements.

59. If the fact to be proved is the opinion of any person whose opinion is declared to be a relevant fact by sections forty-four, forty-six, forty-seven or forty-eight, respectively, or if the fact to be proved is the ground on which any such opinion is held by any such person, the existence of such opinion and the fact that it is held on such ground must be proved by the evidence of the person himself that he holds that opinion on that ground:

Provided that, if the opinion is relevant under section forty-four, and was expressed in any published treatise, and if the person expressing it is dead or cannot be found, or has become incapable of giving evidence, or cannot be called as a witness without an amount of delay or expense which the Court regards as unreasonable, such opinion, and the grounds on which it was or is entertained, may be proved by the production of such treatise.

CHAPTER VI.—OF PROOF BY DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE.

Primary evidence to be given to prove contents, &c., of documents, except in certain cases.

60. When the existence, condition, or contents of any document are to be proved, they must be proved by primary evidence, except in the following cases:—

(a.) When the original is shown or appears to be in the possession or power of the person against whom the document is sought to be proved, or of any person out of reach of or not subject to the process of the Court, or of any person not legally bound to produce it, and when, after the notice mentioned in section sixty-one, such person does not produce it.

(b.) When the original has been destroyed or lost, or when the party offering evidence of its contents cannot, for any other reason not arising from his own default or neglect, produce it in reasonable time.

(c.) When the original is a record or other document in the custody of a public officer.

(d.) When the original is a document of which a certified copy is permitted by this Act or by any other law in force in British India to be given in evidence.

(e.) When the originals consist of numerous accounts or other documents which cannot conveniently be examined in Court, and the fact to be proved is the general result of the whole collection.

(f.) When the original is of such a nature as not to be easily moveable.

In cases (a), (b) and (f), secondary evidence of the contents of the document is admissible:

In cases (c) or (d), a certified copy of the document is admissible.

In case (e), evidence may be given as to the general result of the documents by any person who has examined them, and who is skilled in the examination of such documents.

61. Secondary evidence of the contents of the documents referred to in section sixty (a) shall not be given unless the party proposing to give such secondary evidence has previously given to the party in whose possession or power the document is, such notice to produce it as is prescribed by law; and if no notice is prescribed by law, then such notice as the Court considers reasonable under the circumstances of the case :

Rules as to notice to produce.

Provided that such notice shall not be required in order to render secondary evidence admissible in any of the following cases :—

(1.) When the secondary evidence proposed to be given is a duplicate original, or a counterpart executed by the adverse party.

(2.) When the document to be proved is itself a notice.

(3.) When from the nature of the case, the adverse party must know that he will be required to produce it.

(4.) When it appears or is proved that the adverse party has obtained possession of the original by fraud or force.

(5.) When the adverse party or his agent has the original in Court.

(6.) When the adverse party or his agent has admitted the loss of the document.

The Court may, whenever it thinks fit, excuse the giving of the notice mentioned in this section.

62. If a document is alleged to be signed or to have been written wholly or in part by any person, the signature or the handwriting of so much of the document as is alleged to be in that person's handwriting must be proved to be in his handwriting.

Proof of signature and handwriting of person alleged to have signed or written document produced.

63. If a document is required by law to be attested, it shall not be used as evidence until the fact of its execution has been proved by one attesting witness at least, if there be an attesting witness alive, and subject to the process of the Court and capable of giving evidence.

Proof of execution of document required by law to be attested.

An attested document not required by law to be attested may be proved as if it was unattested.

64. If no such attesting witness can be found, or if the document purports to have been executed in the United Kingdom, it must be proved that the attestation of one attesting witness at least is in his handwriting, and that the signature of the person executing the document is in the handwriting of that person.

Proof where no attesting witness found.

65. The admission of a party to an attested document of its execution by himself shall be a relevant fact as against him, though it be a document required by law to be attested.

Admission by party of execution.

66. If the attesting witness denies or does not recollect the execution of the document, its execution may be proved by other evidence.

Proof when attesting witness denies the execution.

67. In order to ascertain whether a signature, writing, or seal is that of the person by whom it purports to have been written or made, any signature, writing, or seal admitted or proved to the satisfaction of the Court to have been written or made by that person may be compared with the one which is to be proved, although that signature, writing, or seal has not been produced or proved for any other purpose.

Comparison of handwritings.

The Court may direct any person present in Court to write any words or figures for the purpose of enabling the Court to compare the words and figures so written with any words or figures alleged to have been written by such person.

68. Where any document, purporting or proved to be thirty years old, is produced from any custody which the Court in the particular case considers proper, the Court shall presume that the signature and every other part of such document which purports to be in the handwriting of any particular person is in that person's handwriting, and, in the case of a document executed or attested, that it was duly executed and attested by the persons by whom it purports to be executed and attested.

Documents thirty years old.

Explanation.—Documents are said to be in proper custody if they are in the place in which and under the care of the person with whom they would naturally be; but no custody is improper if it is proved to have had a legitimate origin, or if the circumstances of the particular case are such as to render such an origin probable.

CHAPTER VII.—OF PROOF BY CERTAIN KINDS OF DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE.

69. The following documents are public documents:—

1. Documents forming the Acts, or records of the Acts—

The Court shall also presume that any officer by whom any such paper purports to be signed or certified held, when he signed it, the official character which he claims in such paper.

Presumption as to genuineness of certified copies.

74. Whenever any document is produced before any Court purporting to be a record or memorandum of the evidence or any part of the evidence given by a witness in a judicial proceeding or before any officer authorized by law to take such evidence, and purporting to be signed by any Judge or Magistrate or by any such officer as aforesaid, the Court shall presume—

78. The Court may in its discretion presume that any book to which it may refer for information on matters of public or general interest, and that any published map or chart, the statements of which are relevant facts, and which is produced for its inspection, was written and published by the person, and at the time and place, by whom or at which it purports to have been written or published.

Presumption as to books and maps.

79. The Court shall presume that photographs, machine copies and other representations of material things produced by any process affording a reasonable assurance of correctness correctly represent their objects, and that a message forwarded from a telegraph office to the person to whom such message purports to be addressed corresponds with a message delivered, or caused to be delivered, for transmission by the person by whom the message purports to be sent.

Presumption as to photographs, machine copies and telegraphic messages.

and the document shall be admissible for the same purpose for which it would be admissible in England or Ireland.

83. The Court may in its discretion presume that any document purporting to be a certified copy of any judicial record of any country not forming part of Her Majesty's dominions is genuine and accurate, if the document purports to be certified in any manner commonly in use in that country for the certification of copies of judicial records.

Presumption as to certified copies of foreign judicial records.

Secondary evidence of such things when producible.

Illustrations.

Secondary evidence may be given of the existence and condition—of anything shown to have been lost, destroyed or altered, of any immoveable property, of very large or heavy moveable objects, such as ships, boats or railway carriages, of a dead body, or of wounds upon a living person, of idols or other things held sacred.

88. When any material thing other than a document is produced for the inspection of any Court, the fact that it is the object, the existence, appearance or condition of which is to be proved, or, if it is a copy or representation, the fact that it represents the original correctly, must be proved.

Proof required when material objects other than documents produced for inspection.

CHAPTER IX.—OF THE EXCLUSION OF ORAL BY DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE.

89. When the terms of a contract, or of a grant, or of any other disposition of property, other than a testamentary disposition thereof, have been reduced to the form of a document, and in all cases in which any matter is required by law to be reduced to the form of a document, no evidence shall be given in proof of the terms of such contract, grant or other disposition of property, or of such matter, except the document itself, or secondary evidence of its contents in cases in which secondary evidence is admissible under the provisions hereinbefore contained.

Evidence of terms of written contract.

Explanation 1.—This section applies equally to cases in which the contracts, grants or disposition of property referred to are contained in one document, and to cases in which they are contained in more documents than one.

Explanation 2.—Where there are more originals than one, one original only need be proved.

Explanation 3.—The statement in any document whatever of a fact other than the facts referred to in this section, shall not preclude the admission of oral evidence of the same fact.

Exception.—When the appointment of any public officer is required by law to be made by writing, and when it is necessary to prove that a particular person holds such an appointment, the fact that he acted in that capacity is sufficient proof of his appointment, and his written appointment need not be proved.

Illustrations.

(a.) If a contract be contained in several letters, all the letters in which it is contained must be proved, and no other evidence of its provisions can be given.

(b.) If a contract be contained in a bill of exchange, the bill of exchange must be proved.

(c.) If a bill of exchange is drawn in a set of three, one only need be proved.

(d.) A contracts in writing with B for the delivery of indigo upon certain terms. The contract mentions the fact that B had paid A the price of other indigo contracted for verbally on another occasion.

Oral evidence is offered that no payment was made for the other indigo. The evidence is admissible.

(e.) A gives B a receipt for money paid by B.

Oral evidence is offered of the payment.

The evidence is admissible.

90. When the terms of any such contract, grant or other disposition of property, or any matter required by law to be reduced to the form of a document, have been proved according to the last section, no evidence of any oral agreement or statement shall be admitted as between the parties to any such instrument or their representatives in interest, for the purpose of contradicting, varying, adding to, or subtracting from, its terms:

Exclusion of evidence of oral agreement.

Provided that, where a suit is instituted for the purpose of setting aside or varying a document on the ground of a mistake in the writing thereof, evidence may be given for the purpose of proving that mistake:

Provided also, that, where a suit is instituted for the specific performance of a written contract, evidence may be given by the defendant for the purpose of showing that such contract is not the contract into which the parties have really entered.

91. Evidence may be given of any of the following facts in relation to any such contract, grant or other disposition of property:—

Facts relevant in relation to instruments.

(1.) Any fact showing to what specific things or persons any description used in the document relates.

(2.) Any fact showing that words, plain in themselves, have several applications, of which one only can have been intended, and any fact showing which of such applications is intended.

But where the words used are in themselves ambiguous, evidence may not be given to show in what sense they were used.

(3.) The fact that any word used in the writing was used in any sense other than the ordinary one.

(4.) The meaning of illegible or not commonly intelligible characters, or of foreign, obsolete, technical, local or provincial expressions.

(5.) Any fact which would invalidate the document, such as forgery of the whole or of any part, fraud, duress, illegality, want of due execution, want of capacity in the contracting party, or want or failure of consideration.

(6.) Any usage or custom by which incidents, not expressly mentioned in any contract, are usually annexed to contracts of that description: Provided that the annexing of such incident would not be repugnant to, or inconsistent with, the express terms of the contract.

Illustrations.

(a.) A agrees to sell to B 'my white horse.'

Evidence may be given to show what particular horse was meant.

(b.) A agrees to accompany B to Hyderabad.

Evidence may be given to show whether Hyderabad in the Deccan or Hyderabad in Scinde was the place intended.

(c.) A agrees with B to buy a certain house 'for rupees 1,000 or rupees 1,500.'

Evidence may not be given to show whether the price was to be rupees 1,000 or rupees 1,500.

92. Nothing in this chapter contained shall prevent evidence from being given of—

Other agreements which may be proved.

(1) the existence of any distinct oral agreement on any matter collateral to any such contract, grant or disposition of property;

(2) the existence of any oral agreement constituting a condition on which the performance of any such contract, grant or disposition of property is to depend;

(3) the existence of any distinct subsequent oral agreement to rescind or modify any such contract, grant or disposition of property, except in cases in which such contract, grant or disposition of property is by law required to be in writing, or has been registered according to the law in force for the time being as to the registration of documents.

PART III.

PRODUCTION OF PROOF.

CHAPTER X.—OF THE BURDEN OF PROOF.

93. Whoever desires any Court to give judgment as to any legal right or liability dependent on the existence of facts which he asserts, must prove that those facts exist. When a person is bound to prove the existence of any fact, it is said that the burden of proof lies on that person.

Burden of proof.

Illustrations.

(a.) A desires a Court to give judgment that B shall be punished for a crime which A says B has committed.

A must prove that B has committed the crime.

(b.) A desires a Court to give judgment that he is entitled to certain land in the possession of B by reason of facts which he asserts and which B denies to be true.

A must prove the existence of those facts.

94. The general burden of proof in a suit or proceeding lies on that person who would fail if no evidence at all were given on either side.

General burden of proof.

Illustrations.

(a.) A sues B for land of which B is in possession, and which, as A asserts, was left to A by the will of C, B's father

If no evidence were given on either side, B would be entitled to retain his possession.

Therefore the burden of proof is on A.

(b.) A sues B for money due on a bond.

The execution of the bond is not disputed, but B says that it was obtained by fraud, which A denies.

If no evidence were given on either side, A would succeed, as the bond is not disputed and the fraud is not proved.

Therefore the burden of proof is on B.

95. The burden of proof as to any particular fact lies on that person who wishes the Court to believe in its existence, unless it is provided by any law that the proof of that fact shall lie on any particular person.

Burden of proof as to particular fact.

Illustration.

A and B, husband and wife, are both drowned in the same wreck. C is entitled to certain property if B survived A, but not if A survived B. D is entitled to the property if A survived B, but not if B survived A. If C claims the property, he must prove that B survived A. If D claims the property, he must prove that A survived B.

96. The burden of proving any fact necessary to be proved in order to enable any person to give evidence of any other fact is on the person who wishes to give such evidence.

Burden of proving fact to be proved to make evidence admissible.

Illustrations.

(a.) A wishes to prove a dying declaration by B. A must prove B's death.

(b.) A wishes to prove, by secondary evidence, the contents of a lost document.

A must prove that the document has been lost.

97. When a person is accused of any criminal offence, the burden of proving the existence of circumstances bringing the case within any of the General Exceptions in the Indian Penal Code, or within any special exception or proviso contained in any other part of the same Code, is upon him, and the Court shall presume the absence of such circumstances.

Burden of establishing general exceptions.

Illustrations.

(a) A, accused of murder, alleges that, by reason of unsoundness of mind, he did not know the nature of the act.

The burden of proof is on A.

(b.) A, accused of murder, alleges that, by grave and sudden provocation, he was deprived of the power of self-control.

The burden of proof is on A.

(c) Section 325 of the Penal Code provides that whoever, except in the case provided for by section 335, voluntarily causes grievous hurt, shall be subject to certain punishments.

A is charged with voluntarily causing hurt under section 325.

The absence of circumstances bringing the case under section 335 shall be presumed.

98. When any fact is especially within the knowledge of any person, the burden of proving that fact is upon him.

Burden of proving fact especially within knowledge.

Illustration.

When a person does an act with some intention other than that which the character and circumstances of the act suggest, the burden of proving that intention is upon him.

99. When one person has, by his declaration act or omission, intentionally caused or permitted another person to believe a thing to be true and to act upon such belief, he shall not be allowed, in any suit or proceeding between himself and such person or his representative, to deny the truth of that thing.

Estoppel.

Illustration.

A intentionally and falsely leads B to believe that certain land belongs to A, and thereby induces B to buy and pay for it. The land afterwards becomes the property of A, and A seeks to set aside the sale on the ground that, at the time of the sale, he had no title. He must not be allowed to prove his want of title.

100. No tenant of immoveable property, or person claiming through such tenant, shall, during the continuance of the tenancy, be permitted to deny that the landlord of such tenant had, at the beginning of the tenancy, a title to such immoveable property, and no person who came upon any immoveable property by the license of the person in possession thereof, shall be permitted to deny that such person had a title to such possession at the time when such license was given.

Estoppel of tenant.

101. No acceptor of a bill of exchange shall be permitted to deny that the drawer had authority to draw such bill or to endorse it, nor shall any bailee or licensee be permitted to deny that his bailor or licensor had, at the time when the bailment or license commenced, authority to make such bailment or grant such license.

Estoppel of acceptor of bill of exchange, bailee or licensee.

Explanation.—The acceptor of a bill of exchange may deny that the bill was really drawn by the person by whom it purports to have been drawn.

102. Where the legitimacy of any person is in question, his legitimacy shall be a necessary inference from the fact that he was born during the existence of a valid marriage between his mother and any man, or within two hundred and eighty days after its dissolution, the mother remaining unmarried, unless it can be shown that the parties to the marriage had no access to each other at any time when he could have been begotten.

Necessary inference as to legitimacy.

Illustrations.

(a.) The question is whether A is the legitimate son of B by C, his wife.

Evidence is offered to show that, during the cohabitation of B with C, she committed adultery with D.

The evidence is not admissible.

(b.) Evidence is offered to show that, for a year before the birth of A, B was in India and C in England. Evidence of C's adultery with D is admissible.

(c.) A is born six months after B's death. Evidence is offered to show that, for a year before B's death, B was impotent, and that C committed adultery with D during that period. The evidence is admissible.

103. When it is proved that a person has not been heard of for seven years by the persons who would naturally have heard of him if he had been alive, the Court shall presume that he is dead.

Presumption as to death.

104. When it is proved that persons have been acting as co-partners, or landlord and tenant, the Court shall presume that they have entered into a contract of co-partnership or tenancy, and such co-partnership or tenancy shall be presumed to continue till proved to be dissolved.

Presumption as to co-partnership.

CHAPTER XI.—OF WITNESSES.

105. All persons shall be competent to testify, unless the Court considers that they are prevented from understanding the questions put to them, or from giving rational answers to those questions, by tender years, extreme old age, disease unsoundness of mind, or any other cause of the same kind.

Who may testify.

106. A witness, who is unable to speak, may give his evidence in any other manner in which he can make it intelligible, as by writing or by signs; but the writing must be written and the signs made in open Court. Evidence so given shall be deemed to be oral evidence.

Dumb witnesses.

107. In all civil proceedings the parties and their husbands and wives shall be competent witnesses. In criminal proceedings against husbands or wives, the wives or husbands, respectively, shall be competent witnesses.

Married persons in civil and criminal proceedings.

108. No Judge or Magistrate shall be required without his own consent to give evidence as to what occurred in any proceeding before him in Court.

Judges and Magistrates.

109. No person, who is or has been married, shall be compelled to disclose any communication made to him during marriage by any person to whom he is or has been married, nor shall he be permitted to disclose any such communication, unless the person who made it or his representative in interest consents.

Communications during marriage.

110. No one shall be permitted to give any evidence as to any affairs of State, except with the permission of the officer at the head of the department concerned, who shall give or withhold such permission as he thinks fit.

Evidence as to affairs of State.

111. No public officer shall be compelled to disclose communications made to him in official confidence, when the public interests would suffer by the disclosure.

Official communications.

112. No Magistrate or police officer shall be compelled to say whence he got any information as to the commission of any offence.

Information as to commission of offences.

113. No barrister, attorney, pleader or vakíl shall be permitted, unless with his client's express consent, to disclose any communication made to him in the course and for the purpose of his employment as such barrister, attorney or vakíl by or on behalf of his client, or to state the contents or condition of any document with which he has become acquainted in the course and for the purpose of his professional employment, or to disclose any advice given by him to his client in the course and for the purpose of such employment:

Professional communications.

Provided that nothing in this section shall protect from disclosure—

(1) any such communication made in furtherance of any criminal purpose;

(2) any fact, other than those mentioned in the former part of this section, observed by any barrister, attorney or vakíl in the course of such employment, whether his attention was or was not directed to such fact by or on behalf of his client.

Illustrations.

(a.) A, a client, says to B, an attorney,—'I have committed forgery, and I wish you to defend me.'

As the defence of a man known to be guilty is not a criminal purpose, this communication is protected from disclosure.

(b.) A, a client, says to B, an attorney—'I wish to obtain possession of property by the use of a forged deed on which I request you to sue.'

This communication, being made in furtherance of a criminal purpose, is not protected from disclosure.

(c.) A being charged with embezzlement retains B, an attorney, to defend him. In the course of the proceedings, B observes that an entry has been made in A's account-book charging A with the sum said to have been embezzled, which entry was not in the book at the commencement of the proceedings.

This being a fact observed by B in the course of the proceedings, it is not protected from disclosure.

(d.) An attorney is asked the contents of a deed shown him by his client, or whether it was stamped, or whether it contained erasures.

He must not answer either of these questions without his client's express consent.

He is asked whether the deed produced in Court has been shown him during his employment, and whether it is now in the same state as to stamps, erasures or otherwise, as it was in when he saw it first.

He must answer the question, as it relates to facts observed by him during his employment.

114. If any party to a suit gives evidence therein at his own instance or otherwise, he shall not be deemed to have consented thereby to such disclosure as is mentioned in the last section, and if any party to a suit or proceeding calls any such barrister, attorney or vakíl as a witness, he shall be deemed to have consented to such disclosure only in so far as relates to the matters, as to which he requires such barrister, attorney or vakíl to testify, and as to such other matters as may appear to the Court necessary to be known in order to the full understanding thereof.

Waiver of privilege if party volunteers evidence.

115. No one shall be compelled to disclose to the Court any confidential communication which has taken place between him and his legal professional adviser, unless he offers himself as a witness, in which case he may be compelled to disclose any such communications as may appear to the Court necessary to be known in order to explain, or to test the truthfulness of any evidence which he has given, but no others.

Confidential communication with legal advisers.

116. No witness who is not a party to a suit shall be compelled to produce his title-deeds to any property or any document in virtue of which he holds any property as pledgee or mortgagee, or any document the production of which might tend to criminate him, unless he has agreed in writing to produce them with the person seeking the production of such deeds or some person through whom he claims.

Production of witness' title-deeds.

117. No one shall be compelled to produce documents in his possession which any other person would be entitled to refuse to produce if they were in his possession, unless such last-mentioned person consents to their production.

Production of documents belonging to another person.

118. A witness shall not be excused from answering any question as to any matter relevant to the matter in issue in any suit or in any civil or criminal proceeding upon the ground that the answer to such question will criminate, or may tend, directly or indirectly, to criminate such witness, or that it will expose, or tend, directly or indirectly, to expose such witness to a penalty or forfeiture of any kind:

Witness bound to answer criminating questions.

Provided that no such answer, which a witness shall be compelled to give, shall subject him to any arrest or prosecution, or be proved against him in any criminal proceeding, except a prosecution for giving false evidence by such answer.

Proviso.

119. No person charged with an offence shall be a competent witness for or against himself, or for or against any person charged jointly with him.

Persons jointly charged with offence.

120. Evidence of the examination before the Magistrate of any accused person or of any confession made by any accused person, which might be proved as against such person, may be given against any person jointly accused with him in reference to the same transaction.

Examination or confession of accused as against a person jointly accused.

121. In determining whether any one of two or more persons jointly accused of any offence is guilty, the Court may have regard to any statement made by any other such person under the provisions of the law for the time being relating to the examination or addresses to the Court of persons accused.

Statement by person jointly accused.

122. An accomplice shall be a competent witness against an accused person.

Accomplice.

123. No particular number of witnesses shall in any case be required for the proof of any fact.

Number of witnesses.

CHAPTER XII.—OF THE ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS.

124. All witnesses are bound to state the truth in their evidence.

Witnesses.

125. The Court shall administer to all witnesses an oath in the following form:—

Form of oath.

"I solemnly affirm in the presence of Almighty God that what I shall state shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth."

Except in the following cases:—

(1.) The Court may, in its discretion, permit any witness to omit the words "in the presence of Almighty God" in the said form, and shall do so if it is satisfied that the witness has a conscientious objection to their use, or does not understand them, or regards them as unmeaning or useless.

(2.) If the Court has reason to believe that any witness attaches peculiar sanctity to any form of swearing, and that the employment of such form of swearing would be likely to make him tell the truth, it may employ that form either instead of or in addition to the form above-mentioned, and either in relation to the whole of the witness' evidence, or in relation to such part of it as has reference to any particular fact.

126. All persons who are appointed to act as interpreters or translators by any Court, whether generally or on any particular occasion, shall be deemed to be public servants, and shall well and truly interpret or translate such matters as they shall be required to interpret or translate to the best of their ability; but such persons shall not be sworn to interpret or translate.

Interpreters and translators.

CHAPTER XIII.—OF THE EXAMINATION OF WITNESSES.

127. The order in which witnesses are produced and examined shall be regulated as follows:—

Power to produce evidence and question witnesses.

(1.) In the High Courts, by the law and practice of those Courts for the time being.

(2.) In proceedings under the Codes of Civil and Criminal Procedure, by the laws for the time being relating to Civil and Criminal Procedure, respectively.

(3.) In other cases, by the discretion of the Court.

128. When either party proposes to give evidence of any fact, the Judge may ask the party proposing to give the evidence in what manner the alleged fact, if proved, would be relevant, and the Judge shall admit the evidence if he thinks that the fact if proved would be relevant and not otherwise.

Judge to decide as to relevancy of facts.

If the fact proposed to be proved is one of which evidence is admissible only upon proof of some other fact, such last-mentioned fact must be proved before evidence is given of the fact first-mentioned.

If the relevancy of one alleged fact depends upon another alleged fact being first proved, the Judge may in his discretion either permit evidence of the first fact to be given before the second fact is proved, or require evidence to be given of the second fact before evidence is given of the first fact.

Illustrations.

(a.) It is proposed to prove a statement about a relevant fact by a person alleged to be dead, which statement is relevant under section thirty-eight.

The fact that the person is dead must be proved before evidence is given of the statement.

(b.) It is proposed to prove the contents of a document said to be lost by a copy.

The fact that the original is lost must be proved before the copy is produced.

(c.) A is accused of receiving stolen property knowing it to have been stolen.

It is proposed to prove that he denied the possession of the property.

The relevancy of the denial depends on the identity of the property. The Court may in its discretion either require the property to be identified before the denial of the possession is proved, or permit the denial of the possession to be proved before the property is identified.

129. The examination of a witness by the party who calls him shall be called his examination-in-chief.

Examination-in-chief.

The examination of the witness by the adverse party shall be called his cross-examination.

Cross-examination.

The examination, subsequent to the cross-examination by the party who called the witness, shall be called his re-examination.

Re-examination.

130. Witnesses shall be first examined-in-chief, then (if the adverse party so desires) cross-examined, then (if the party calling him so desires) re-examined.

Order of examinations. Direction of re-examination.

The examination and cross-examination must relate to relevant facts, but the cross-examination need not be confined to the facts to which the witness testified on his examination-in-chief.

The re-examination shall be directed to the explanation of matters referred to in cross-examination, and if new matter is introduced in re-examination, the adverse party may further cross-examine upon that matter.

131. A witness called merely to produce a document may be cross-examined by the party who does not call for the document, although such witness gives no evidence in the case.

Cross-examination of person called to produce a document.

132. Witnesses to character may be cross-examined and re-examined.

Witnesses to character.

133. Any question suggesting the answer which the person who puts it wishes or expects to receive, is called a leading question.

Leading questions.

134. Leading questions must not, if objected to by the adverse party, be asked in an examination-in-chief, or in a re-examination, except with the permission of the Court.

When they must not be asked.

The Court shall permit leading questions as to matters which are introductory or undisputed, or which have, in its opinion, been already sufficiently proved.

135. Leading questions may be asked in cross-examination.

When they may be asked.

136. Any witness may be asked, whilst under examination, whether any matter as to which he is giving evidence was not stated in a document, and if he says that it was, or if he is about to make any statement as to the contents of any document, or as to any material thing which, in the opinion of the Court, ought to be produced, the adverse party may object to such evidence being given until such document or material thing is produced, or until facts have been proved which entitle the party who called the witness to give secondary evidence of it.

Evidence as to matters in writing.

Explanation.—A witness may give oral evidence of statements made by other persons about the contents of documents if such statements are in themselves relevant facts.

Illustration.

The question is whether A assaulted B.

C deposes that he heard A say to D—'B wrote a letter accusing me of theft, and I will be revenged on him.' This statement is relevant, as showing A's motive for the assault, and evidence may be given of it, though no other evidence is given about the letter.

137. A witness may be cross-examined as to previous statements made by him in writing or reduced into writing and relevant to matters in question without such writing being shown to him; but if it is intended to contradict him by the writing, his attention must, before the writing can be proved, be called to those parts of it which are to be used for the purpose of contradicting him.

Cross-examination as to previous statements in writing.

138. When a witness is cross-examined, he may, in addition to the questions hereinbefore referred to, be asked any questions which tend to test his veracity, or to shake his credit, by injuring his character, although the answer to such questions might tend directly or indirectly to criminate him, or might expose or tend directly or indirectly to expose him to a penalty or forfeiture.

Questions lawful in cross-examination.

139. If any such question relates to a matter relevant to the suit or proceeding, the provisions of section one hundred and eighteen shall apply thereto.

When witness to be compelled to answer.

140. If any such question relates to a matter not relevant to the suit or proceeding, except in so far as it affects the credit of the witness by injuring his character, the witness shall not be compelled to answer it, and if he does answer it, or refuses to answer it, no evidence shall be given of any such answer or refusal to answer in any subsequent suit or proceeding, except a criminal prosecution of such witness for giving false evidence by such answer.

When witness not to be compelled to answer.

141. No such question as is mentioned in section one hundred and forty shall be asked by any barrister, advocate, attorney, pleader or other agent without express written instructions signed by the party on whose behalf he appears, or by the agent of such party.

No such question to be asked by barrister, &c., without written instructions.

142. When any such question is asked by any such barrister, attorney, pleader or agent, the Court may, if it thinks fit, require from the person asking it the production of such written authority, and if he does not produce it, or if, when produced, it appears to the Court insufficient to authorize the question asked, the person asking such question shall be deemed to have committed a contempt of Court; but no such barrister, attorney, pleader or agent shall be held to have committed any other offence, or to have subjected himself to any civil proceedings by asking any such questions.

Court may require production of instructions. If none, or if insufficient, contempt of Court.

143. The Judge may, if he thinks fit, take possession of such written instructions upon their production and write upon them a memorandum identifying the document as one called for by him under the power hereby conferred upon him, and specifying the time, place and occasion on which, and the person by whom the question suggested in them was asked. The Judge shall sign such memorandum with his name and official title, and deliver the instructions and memorandum to the person of whom the question was asked. Upon the production in any civil or criminal proceeding of any document purporting to be such a document, the Court shall presume that it is genuine, and that the person signing it published the imputation suggested by it with the intention of harming the reputation of the person of whom it was asked.

Court may impound instructions and deliver them to witness.

144. When any such question is asked by any party to any suit or proceeding, the Judge may make a memorandum of the question or questions asked, and the answers given to them, and sign the same and give such memorandum to the witness of whom such question was asked.

Such questions asked by party may be recorded.

145. No such instructions and no such questions shall be deemed to fall within any of the exceptions to section four hundred and ninety-nine of the Indian Penal Code, or to be a privileged communication merely because the instructions were given, or because the question was asked under the provisions of this Act.

Instructions and questions not privileged.

146. The Court may forbid any questions or inquiries which it regards as indecent or scandalous, although such questions or inquiries may have some bearing on the questions before the Court, unless they relate to facts in issue, or to matters absolutely necessary to be known in order to determine whether or not the facts in issue existed.

Indecent and scandalous questions.

147. The Court shall forbid any question which appears to it to be intended to insult or annoy, or which, though proper in itself, appears to the Court needlessly offensive in form.

Questions intended to insult or annoy.

148. When a witness has been asked and has answered any question which is relevant to the inquiry only in so far as it tends to test his veracity or credibility, no evidence shall be given to contradict him; but if he answers falsely, he may afterwards be charged with giving false evidence.

Exclusion of evidence to contradict answers to questions testing veracity.

Illustrations.

(a.) A claim against an underwriter is resisted on the ground of fraud.

The claimant is asked whether, in a former transaction, he had not made a fraudulent claim. He denies it.

Evidence is offered to show that he did make such a claim.

The evidence is inadmissible.

(b.) A witness is asked whether he was not dismissed from a situation for dishonesty. He denies it.

Evidence is offered to show that he was dismissed for dishonesty.

The evidence is not admissible.

(c.) A affirms that on a certain day he saw B at Lahore.

A is asked whether he himself was not on that day at Calcutta. He denies it.

Evidence is offered to show that A was on that day at Calcutta.

The evidence is admissible, not as contradicting A on a fact which affects his credit, but as contradicting the alleged fact that B was seen on the day in question in Lahore.

In each of these cases the witness might, if his denial was false, be charged with giving false evidence.

Exception 1.—If a witness is asked whether he has been previously convicted of any crime and does not admit it, evidence may be given of his previous conviction.

Exception 2.—If a witness is asked any question tending to impeach his impartiality and answers it by denying the facts suggested, he may be contradicted.

149. The Court may in its discretion permit the person who calls a witness to put any questions to him which might be put in cross-examination by the adverse party.

Cross-examination by party producing witness.

150. The credit of a witness may be impeached in the following ways by the adverse party, or with the consent of the Court, by the party who calls him:—

Impeaching credit of witness.

(1.) By the evidence of persons who testify that they, from previous knowledge of the witness, believe him to be unworthy of credit.

A witness declaring another witness to be unworthy of credit may not, upon his examination-in-chief, give reasons for his belief, but he may be asked his reasons in cross-examination, and the answers which he gives cannot be contradicted, though, if they are false, he may afterwards be charged with giving false evidence.

(3.) By proof of former statements inconsistent with any part of his evidence which is liable to be contradicted.

Illustrations.

(a.) A sues B for the price of goods sold and delivered to B.

C says that he delivered the goods to B.

Evidence is offered to show that, on a previous occasion, he said that he had not delivered the goods to B.

The evidence is admissible.

(b.) A is indicted for the murder of B.

C says that B, when dying, declared that A had given B the wound of which he died.

Evidence is offered to show that, on a previous occasion, C said that the wound was not given by A or in his presence.

The evidence is admissible.

151. When a witness whom it is intended to corroborate gives evidence of any relevant fact, he may be questioned as to any other facts which he observed at or near to the time or place at which such relevant fact occurred, and the truth of such statements is relevant if the Court is of opinion that proof of them would corroborate the testimony of the witness as to the relevant fact to which he testifies.

Corroborative facts are relevant.

Illustration.

A, an accomplice, gives an account of a robbery in which he took part. He describes various incidents unconnected with the robbery which occurred on his way to and from the place where it was committed.

Independent evidence of these facts may be given in order to corroborate his evidence as to the robbery itself.

152. If evidence is given that a witness has, on a former occasion, made a statement inconsistent with his evidence given in Court, evidence may be given, in reply, of any other statement made by such witness relating to the fact in question at or about the time when the fact took place or made at any time before any authority legally competent to investigate the fact.

Evidence in reply to evidence of former inconsistent statements.

153. A witness may, while under examination, refresh his memory by referring to any writing made by himself at the time of the transactions concerning which he is questioned, or so soon afterwards that the Court considers it likely that the transaction was at that time fresh in his memory.

Refreshing memory.

The witness may also refer to any such writing made by any other person and read by the witness within the time aforesaid if when he read it he knew it to be correct.

Whenever a witness may refresh his memory by reference to any document, he may, with the permission of the Court, refer to a copy of such document: Provided the Court be satisfied that there is sufficient reason for the non-production of the original.

Court may permit a copy of document to be used to refresh memory.

An expert may refresh his memory by reference to professional treatises.

154. Any such writing as is mentioned in the last section must be produced and shown to the adverse party if he requires it, who may, if he pleases, cross-examine the witness thereupon.

Producing writing used to refresh memory.

155. A witness summoned to produce a document shall, if it is in his possession or power, bring it to Court, notwithstanding any objection which there may be to its production or to its admissibility. The validity of any such objection shall be decided on by the Court.

Production of documents.

The Court, if it sees fit, may inspect the document, unless it refers to matters of State, or take other evidence to enable it to determine on its admissibility.

If for such a purpose it is necessary to cause any document to be translated, the Court may, if it thinks fit, direct the translator to keep the contents secret, unless the document is to be given in evidence, and if the interpreter disobeys such direction, he shall be held to have committed an offence under section one hundred and sixty-six of the Indian Penal Code.

Translation of documents.

156. When a party calls for a document which he has given the other party notice to produce, and such document is produced and inspected by the party calling for its production, he is bound to give it as evidence if the party producing it requires him to do so.

Giving as evidence of document called for and produced on notice.

157. When a party refuses to produce a document which he has had notice to produce, he cannot afterwards give the document as evidence without the consent of the other party or the order of the Court.

Giving as evidence of document production of which was refused on notice.

Illustration.

A sues B on an agreement and gives B notice to produce it. At the trial, A calls for the document and B refuses to produce it. A gives secondary evidence of its contents. B seeks to produce the document itself to contradict the secondary evidence given by A, or in order to show that the agreement is not stamped. He cannot do so.

158. The Judge may ask any question he pleases in any form at any time of any witness about any fact relevant or irrelevant, or may order the production of any document or thing, and neither the parties nor their agents shall be entitled to make any objection to any such question or order, nor, without the leave of the Court, to cross-examine any witness upon any answer given in reply to any such question:

Judge's power to put questions or order production.

Provided that this section shall not authorize any Judge to compel any witness to answer any question, or to produce any document which under any provision of this Act he would be entitled to refuse to answer or produce if the question were asked or the document were called for by the adverse party, nor shall it authorize any Judge to dispense with primary evidence of any document, except in the cases hereinbefore excepted.

159. The jury or assessors may put any questions to the witnesses through or by leave of the Judge which the Judge considers proper.

Power of jury or assessors to put questions.

PART IV.

PROCEDURE.

[CHAPTER XIV.—OF THE DUTIES OF JUDGES AND JURIES.

160. It is the duty of the Judge to decide all questions of law, and especially all questions as to the relevancy of facts which it is proposed to prove, the admissibility of evidence, or the propriety of questions asked by parties or their agents which may arise in the course of their trial; and in his discretion to prevent the production of evidence not hereby declared to be admissible whether it is or is not objected to by the parties; to decide upon the meaning and construction of all documents given in evidence at the trial;

Duty of Judge.

to decide upon all matters of fact which it may be necessary to prove in order to enable evidence of particular matters to be given;

to decide whether any question which arises is for himself or for the jury, and upon this point his decision shall be final.

The Judge may, if he thinks proper in the course of his summing up, express to the jury his opinion upon any question of fact, or upon any question of mixed law and fact relevant to the proceeding.

Illustrations.

(a.) It is proposed to prove a statement made by a person not called as a witness under circumstances which render evidence of his statement admissible.

It is for the Judge and not for the jury to decide whether the existence of those circumstances has been proved.

(b.) It is proposed to give secondary evidence of a document, the original of which has been lost or destroyed.

It is the duty of the Judge to decide whether the original has been lost or destroyed.

161. It is the duty of the Judge in criminal cases, if he thinks that the interests of the public require it, not merely to hear and decide or direct the jury, as the case may be, according to the evidence produced before him, but also to inquire to the utmost into the truth of the matters in question; and he shall for that purpose ask all questions and require the attendance of all persons and the production of all documents and things that he considers necessary, whether such questions might be asked, or such persons or things which might be produced by a party to the proceeding or not.

Judge's duty to inquire into truth of matter before him.

162. Where there is a jury it is the duty of the jury—

Duty of jury.

(1) to decide upon all questions of fact submitted to them by the Judge at the trial, having regard in such decision to the statement of the law given to them by the Judge;

(2) to determine the meaning of all technical terms and words used in an unusual sense which it may be necessary to determine whether such words occur in documents or not;

(3) to decide all questions declared by the Indian Penal Code, or any other law to be questions of fact;

(4) to decide whether general indefinite expressions do or do not apply to particular cases, unless such expressions refer to legal procedure or unless their meaning is ascertained by law, in either of which cases it is the duty of the Judge to decide their meaning.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is tried for the murder of B.

It is the duty of the Judge to explain to the jury the distinction between murder and culpable homicide, and to tell them under what views of the facts A ought to be convicted of murder, or of culpable homicide, or acquitted.

It is the duty of the jury to decide which view of the facts is true, and to return a verdict in accordance with the direction of the Judge, whether that direction is right or wrong, and whether they do or do not agree with it.

(b.) The question is whether a person entertained a reasonable belief on a particular point. Whether work was done with reasonable skill, or due diligence.

Each of these is a question for the jury.

(c.) The question is whether certain facts constituted probable cause for a prosecution.

This is a question for the Judge. The existence of the facts is a question for the jury.

163. If a juryman or assessor is personally acquainted with any relevant fact, it is his duty to inform the Judge that such is the case, whereupon he may be examined either by the parties or by the Judge, in the same manner as any other witness.

When juryman or assessor may be examined.

CHAPTER XV.—OF IMPROPER ADMISSION AND REJECTION OF EVIDENCE.

164. The improper admission or rejection of evidence shall not in itself be a ground of regular appeal, but whenever any regular appeal is brought on the ground that the evidence did not warrant the finding of the Court below, the appellant may contend before the Court of Appeal that it ought not to pay attention to any evidence which such appellant considers to have been improperly admitted by the Court below; or that it ought to admit any evidence which such appellant considers to have been improperly rejected by the Court below. If the Court of Appeal considers that any such evidence was improperly admitted, it shall decide the case without having regard to such evidence. If it considers that any evidence was improperly rejected, it shall admit such evidence, and have regard to it in its decision. No evidence shall be admitted before any Appellate Court which the party tendering it would have been prevented from tendering before the subordinate Court by any provision of the laws for the time being relating to Civil or Criminal Procedure.

Improper admission or rejection of evidence in regular appeals.

165. No special appeal shall lie from the decision of any Court on the ground of the improper admission of evidence; but if any party to a suit considers that any Court from which a special appeal would lie has taken into consideration any evidence which it ought not to have taken into consideration, he may call upon such Court to state in its judgment what its judgment would have been if such evidence had been excluded, and he may on special appeal call upon the High Court to decide whether the judgment actually given or the judgment which would have been given had such evidence been excluded shall stand, and the High Court shall affirm the one or the other judgment according as it thinks that the evidence ought or ought not to have been admitted.

Improper admission of evidence in special appeals.

166. Special appeals may be brought on the ground that the inferior Appellate Court has improperly rejected evidence, and if the High Court is of opinion that evidence has been improperly rejected, it may either itself admit such evidence and look into the facts of the case, and deliver final judgment in the case, or remand the case to the inferior Appellate Court with such direction as it thinks fit.

Improper rejection of evidence in special appeals.

167. Whenever any High Court acting under the powers of revision contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, is of opinion that any subordinate Court has admitted or has taken into consideration, or has rejected or has failed to call for evidence, which it ought not to have admitted or rejected, or which it ought to have called for, such High Court shall have power to call for any further evidence under section four hundred and twenty-two of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and shall make such final order on the case as it considers just.

Procedure of High Court acting under its powers of revision in case of improper admission or rejection of evidence by subordinate Court.

168. When any party to any suit objects to the rejection of any documentary or material evidence, he may, upon the rejection of the evidence, apply to the Court to write upon or attach to such evidence a memorandum that it was tendered and rejected, and the Court shall thereupon write or attach such memorandum upon or to such document or thing, and no appeal shall be brought upon the ground that any documentary or material evidence was rejected; and no such document or thing shall be tendered as evidence before any Appellate Court, unless it was so tendered before the inferior Court, and unless it has such memorandum written upon or attached to it.

Objections to rejection of evidence.

169. Nothing in this Act contained shall prevent any Appellate Court from referring to the record of the evidence taken by any inferior Court according to the provisions of any law, or according to any practice now in force.

Appellate Court may refer to record of inferior Court.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 19.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 18th July 1871, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to make their report thereon in a month :—

No. 17 OF 1871.

A Bill to amend the European Vagrancy Act, 1869.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the European Vagrancy Act, No. XXI of 1869; It is hereby enacted as follows :— Preamble.

1. The thirty-first section of the said Act shall be read as if, after the words "to serve whom he has so landed in India or left the army," there occurred the words "or to whom any animal, in charge of or in attendance upon which he has come to India, may have been consigned." Amendment of section 31 of Act XXI of 1869.

2. This Act shall be read with, and taken as part of, the European Vagrancy Act, 1869. Construction of Act.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The object of this Bill is to provide for the case of men coming from Australia in charge of horses, on engagements which terminate on the conclusion of the voyage. Such persons are at once thrown out of employ and become vagrants; but as there is no person in this country 'to serve whom' they have landed, it is impossible to put in force the provisions of section thirty-one of the European Vagrancy Act, 1869, as to the recovery of cost of removal and other expenses incidental to their vagrancy. The present Bill enlarges the wording of section thirty-one in such a manner as to render the importer or consignee of any animal liable to all charges incurred by the State in consequence of the person who has come to India in charge of such animal, becoming a vagrant within a year after his arrival in India.

Notification dated 3rd April 1871, 724G.	.....	The whole.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE Civil Courts in Oudh derive their present jurisdiction from the Central Provinces Courts' Act (XIV of 1865) and the provision in the Civil Procedure Code, as extended to Oudh, which conferred on all Courts exercising appellate jurisdiction certain extraordinary powers of revision of the decisions of Subordinate Courts.

By Act XVI of 1865, all suits relating to land in districts in which a settlement of the land-revenue is in progress, are made exclusively cognizable by the Revenue Courts, and the special provision of that Act in regard to the limitation of a certain class of suits was subsequently modified by Act XIII of 1866.

On the abolition of the office of Financial Commissioner, Act XI of 1871 was passed, chiefly with the object of transferring the cognizance of special appeals in cases relating to land, which were theretofore instituted in the Court of that officer, to the Commissioners of Divisions.

Some confusion has resulted from the prevailing uncertainty as to how far these several enactments affected each other. For example, the provisions of Act XIV of 1865 were intended to have the effect of setting aside the extraordinary powers of revision vested in the Appellate Courts by the Civil Procedure Code in the form in which it was applied to Oudh, yet that power has been steadily exercised by those Courts up to the present time.

The transfer of the special appellate jurisdiction of the Financial Commissioner to the Commissioners of Divisions was a temporary expedient, and the permanent retention of that arrangement is undesirable.

For these reasons, it is now proposed to consolidate the existing law relating to the Civil Courts in Oudh, with some important modifications, in regard to their appellate jurisdiction.

The Bill provides for the abolition of the extraordinary power of revision heretofore exercised by the Appellate Courts, and substitutes therefor a second appeal on the merits of a case where the decision of the first Appellate Court reverses or modifies the order of the Court of first instance. Such second appeal will, in all cases, lie to the Judicial Commissioner.

The Bill contains also certain provisions in regard to the mode of appointment of Judicial officers, the oaths to be taken by such officers, the Court seal, the places where the Courts are to be held, the removal of Judicial officers for acts of misfeazance, and the control and discipline of the Courts' Ministerial Establishments, all of which correspond generally with the provisions of the Bengal Civil Courts Act on the same subjects, and which are in the direction of consolidation and amplification, rather than amendment, of the existing law.

Provided that, in any such case, the Court or person authorized to administer such oath may permit a solemn affirmation in such form as the Local Government directs, to be substituted for an oath; and shall do so, whenever it shall appear that the person, to whom the oath is to be administered, has a conscientious objection to taking an oath, or does not understand its meaning, or regards it as unmeaning or useless.

Until otherwise directed, the form of oath or solemn affirmation, now in use in any Court or proceedings, shall be deemed to have been directed by the Local Government.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE Civil Courts in Oudh derive their present jurisdiction from the Central Provinces Courts' Act (XIV of 1865) and the provision in the Civil Procedure Code, as extended to Oudh, which conferred on all Courts exercising appellate jurisdiction certain extraordinary powers of revision of the decisions of Subordinate Courts.

By Act XVI of 1865, all suits relating to land in districts in which a settlement of the land-revenue is in progress, are made exclusively cognizable by the Revenue Courts, and the special provision of that Act in regard to the limitation of a certain class of suits was subsequently modified by Act XIII of 1866.

On the abolition of the office of Financial Commissioner, Act XI of 1871 was passed, chiefly with the object of transferring the cognizance of special appeals in cases relating to land, which were theretofore instituted in the Court of that officer, to the Commissioners of Divisions.

Some confusion has resulted from the prevailing uncertainty as to how far these several enactments affected each other. For example, the provisions of Act XIV of 1865 were intended to have the effect of setting aside the extraordinary powers of revision vested in the Appellate Courts by the Civil Procedure Code in the form in which it was applied to Oudh, yet that power has been steadily exercised by those Courts up to the present time.

The transfer of the special appellate jurisdiction of the Financial Commissioner to the Commissioners of Divisions was a temporary expedient, and the permanent retention of that arrangement is undesirable.

For these reasons, it is now proposed to consolidate the existing law relating to the Civil Courts in Oudh, with some important modifications, in regard to their appellate jurisdiction.

The Bill provides for the abolition of the extraordinary power of revision heretofore exercised by the Appellate Courts, and substitutes therefor a second appeal on the merits of a case where the decision of the first Appellate Court reverses or modifies the order of the Court of first instance. Such second appeal will, in all cases, lie to the Judicial Commissioner.

The Bill contains also certain provisions in regard to the mode of appointment of Judicial officers, the oaths to be taken by such officers, the Court seal, the places where the Courts are to be held, the removal of Judicial officers for acts of misfeazance, and the control and discipline of the Courts' Ministerial Establishments, all of which correspond generally with the provisions of the Bengal Civil Courts Act on the same subjects, and which are in the direction of consolidation and amplification, rather than amendment, of the existing law.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Civil Courts in Oudh derive their present jurisdiction from the Central Provinces Courts' Act (XIV of 1865), and the provision in the Civil Procedure Code, as extended to Oudh, which conferred on all Courts exercising appellate jurisdiction certain extraordinary powers of revision of the decisions of Subordinate Courts.

By Act XVI of 1865, all suits relating to land in districts in which a settlement of the land-revenue is in progress, are made exclusively cognizable by the Revenue Courts, and the special provision of that Act in regard to the limitation of a certain class of suits was subsequently modified by Act XIII of 1866.

On the abolition of the office of Financial Commissioner, Act XI of 1871 was passed, chiefly with the object of transferring the cognizance of special appeals in cases relating to land, which were theretofore instituted in the Court of that officer, to the Commissioners of Divisions.

Some confusion has resulted from the prevailing uncertainty as to how far these several enactments affected each other. For example, the provisions of Act XIV of 1865 were intended to have the effect of setting aside the extraordinary powers of revision vested in the Appellate Courts by the Civil Procedure Code in the form in which it was applied to Oudh, yet that power has been steadily exercised by those Courts up to the present time.

The transfer of the special appellate jurisdiction of the Financial Commissioner to the Commissioners of Divisions was a temporary expedient, and the permanent retention of that arrangement is undesirable.

For these reasons, it is now proposed to consolidate the existing law relating to the Civil Courts in Oudh, with some important modifications, in regard to their appellate jurisdiction.

The Bill provides for the abolition of the extraordinary power of revision heretofore exercised by the Appellate Courts, and substitutes therefor a second appeal on the merits of a case where the decision of the first Appellate Court reverses or modifies the order of the Court of first instance. Such second appeal will, in all cases, lie to the Judicial Commissioner.

The Bill contains also certain provisions in regard to the mode of appointment of Judicial officers, the oaths to be taken by such officers, the Court seal, the places where the Courts are to be held, the removal of Judicial officers for acts of misfeazance, and the control and discipline of the Courts' Ministerial Establishments, all of which correspond generally with the provisions of the Bengal Civil Courts Act on the same subjects, and which are in the direction of consolidation and amplification, rather than amendment, of the existing law.

Law of Pre-emption.

Pre-emption.

22. The right of pre-emption shall be presumed to exist, whether recorded in the list of customs at the settlement or not in all village communities however constituted in the absence of any custom or contract to the contrary. Whenever a landholder in a village desires to sell or permanently transfer his share, he must offer it first to the community at large, or to individual co-partners, and then, if there are any tenants with a right of occupancy in such village, to such tenants. If neither the community, nor any member thereof, nor any such tenant be willing to accept the terms bonâ fide offered by the intending seller, he may sell the property on the same or higher terms to any other person. But if he have effected a sale without offering an opportunity of pre-emption, then the community, or any member of it, or any such tenant, may bring a suit for rescinding the sale. The same rules will pertain to the foreclosure of mortgages, and to sales in execution of decrees. But the principle of pre-emption is not applicable to mortgages or other temporary transfers.

Bonâ fides of offer may be contested.

23. A suit may be brought by any person claiming a right of pre-emption, to contest the bonâ fides of the offer made by an intending seller; and if the Court decide that such offer was not made bonâ fide, and that the plaintiff has a right of pre-emption, it shall decree such a right to the plaintiff on payment of such sum as appears to be the fair market value of the property.

Village sites subject to pre-emption.

24. In villages, the site and ground occupied by any sharer in the estate shall be subject to the right of pre-emption as above described; if the intending seller be a non-proprietory resident, the pre-emption pertains to the landholding community.

Joint undivided property other than land.

25. If a sharer in any joint undivided property, other than land, be desirous of permanently transferring his share, the right of pre-emption shall pertain to the co-sharers.

Pre-emption in cities and towns.

26. If in any town or city, or any sub-division thereof, the custom of pre-emption is shown to prevail, it may be enforced in the Civil Court. The Court shall determine the preferential right between contending claimants with reference to vicinity, relationship, or any other ground on which the right of pre-emption may be legally claimed.

Party to sale cannot afterwards claim pre-emption.

27. No person who has been a party to a sale, may, after such sale, withdraw the property so sold and enforce a right of pre-emption as to other property sold at such sale.

Transfer by gift.

28. When property is bonâ fide transferred by way of gift, no right of pre-emption arises.

No special procedure necessary in rights of pre-emption.

29. The observance of any special procedure as regards rights of pre-emption, other than that herein prescribed, is in no case necessary.

Any Village Watchman, Headman, owner or occupier of land, who fails to comply with the requirements of this section, shall be deemed to have committed an offence under the second part of section one hundred and eighty-seven of the Indian Penal Code.

37. When an offence is committed and the tracks of the offenders are followed to a spot within the immediate vicinity of a village, the person following such tracks may call upon any Headman or Village Watchman in such village to assist in carrying on the tracks.

Track law.

38. If such Headman or Watchman do not forthwith give such assistance, or if the inhabitants of such village do not afford full opportunity for search in their houses for the offenders, or if, from the circumstances of the case, there shall appear good reason to believe that the inhabitants of such village, or any of them, were conniving at the offence or at the escape of the offenders, and such offenders cannot be traced beyond the village, it shall be lawful for the Magistrate of the district to inflict a fine not exceeding rupees five hundred upon such village, to be recovered in the same manner as if it were arrears of land-revenue.

CHAPTER V.

COLLECTION OF LAND-REVENUE BY PROCESSES OTHER THAN SALE.

35. The Local Government may, from time to time, make rules as to the instalments by which, and the places at which, the revenue shall be paid, and, unless and until the Local Government shall otherwise direct, it shall be deemed to have directed that the practice now observed shall continue to be observed.

Local Government may make rules as to instalments.

36. It is the duty of every person who has engaged to pay any portion of revenue, and, in the case of a village community, it is the duty of the headmen, to pay the same at the place, and during office hours, on the day appointed by the Local Government in that behalf.

Duty of person liable to pay on appointed day.

37. Any sum not so paid thereupon becomes an arrear of land-revenue.

Arrear of land-revenue.

38. When an arrear of land-revenue has become due, the Deputy Commissioner may issue a notice to pay the amount within a time stated in the notice;

Remedies of arrear due—
(1) notice to pay;

(2) arrest and detention;

or issue a warrant directing the Revenue Sheriff to arrest and convey him to the gaol of the district, and directing the gaoler of such gaol to confine him therein as a civil prisoner until the arrear is paid, or until the expiration of such period, not exceeding one year from the date of the warrant, as the Deputy Commissioner thinks fit, and such person shall be confined according to the exigency of such warrant;

(3) imprisonment in civil gaol;

or order the distraint and sale of the moveable property of any such person, with the exception of instruments of husbandry, cattle actually employed in agriculture, and the tools of artisans.

(4) distraint and sale of moveables.

Every such sale shall be conducted according to the law in force for the time being for the sale of moveable property under the decree of a Civil Court; or take any two or more of these processes which are not inconsistent.

39. No such proceeding shall be liable to be contested in any Civil Court, unless the person aggrieved thereby denies that the amount of revenue claimed was due, and tenders security for any arrear which he may admit to be due, or to be likely to become due, before the termination of the suit, and for costs, in which case the Court shall issue a precept to the Deputy Commissioner to discharge the prisoner from custody; but the Court shall not interfere with any such distress and sale of moveable property as aforesaid.

When Civil Court may interfere.

40. If any such process as is mentioned in section thirty-eight is taken against any person, such person may pay the amount claimed or any part thereof under protest, and, upon such payment, such process shall be withdrawn, and the party against whom it was issued may sue the Government in any Civil Court for the amount so claimed.

Payment under protest.

41. When an arrear of land-revenue has become due, the Deputy Commissioner of the district may, in addition to the processes specified in section thirty-eight, or any two or more of them, cause the land in respect of which the arrear has become due to be attached and taken under the direct management of any agent whom he may appoint for that purpose. The agent so appointed shall stand for all purposes in the position of the person on account of whose default the land was attached, and shall be bound by all the engagements or other relations which existed between him and any subordinate proprietors or tenants with rights of occupancy, and shall be entitled to manage the land to the exclusion of the person whose interest therein has been attached, until the arrears of land-revenue due therefrom have been satisfied, or until the Deputy Commissioner of the district directs him to restore the person whose interest has been attached to the management thereof.

Attachment and direct management.

42. When any arrear of land-revenue has accrued and remains unpaid for more than one month, the Deputy Commissioner of the district may, with the previous consent of the Financial Commissioner, cause to be published, within the village or upon the land in respect of which such arrear is due, a notification that, unless the arrear is paid within fifteen days from the date of the notice, the settlement made in respect of the land will be cancelled, and all contracts made between any superior proprietor and any subordinate proprietor thereof, and all occupancy rights of all tenants thereof, however they may have accrued, will be suspended for a term to be specified in the notification, not exceeding fifteen years.

Notice to cancel settlement.

43. If the arrear of land-revenue due in respect of the land is not paid within fifteen days from the date of the notification, the settlement therein mentioned shall be cancelled, and the contracts between the superior and subordinate proprietors, and the rights of the subordinate proprietors, shall be suspended for the term mentioned in the notification; and the Deputy Commissioner, with the previous consent of the Financial Commissioner, may either appoint an agent to manage the land or may let the land in farm to any person who may be willing to accept the same, and upon any terms which he may think fit, and the agent or farmer thereof may, during the term specified in the notification, either occupy the land himself or sub-let the same to the persons who before the expiration of the fifteen days notice, had occupancy rights therein, or who held the same as tenants-at-will, or to such other persons, on such terms as he may think proper.

44. Whenever any person is dispossessed of any beneficial interest in any land under section forty-one or section forty-three, he shall be entitled to an allowance in respect thereof such as is provided in section thirty-one.

Persons dispossessed to have allowance.

45. If the share of any member of a village community is let to farm under the provisions hereinbefore contained to any person other than a member of the village community, such person shall not, during the term of his farm, be liable for the land-revenue due in respect of the other shares in the village community, and if such person is a member of the village community, he may, if the Financial Commissioner so directs, be freed in respect of such share from his joint and several liability.

Person whose land is let to farm not liable to revenue.

46. If an arrear of land-revenue has accrued in respect of the share of any member of a village community, the Deputy Commissioner may call upon the other co-sharers to pay the arrear and to accept a transfer of the share of the defaulting co-sharer, either permanently or for a term of years not exceeding fifteen, or until the arrear is repaid.

Transfer of share of defaulter to solvent co-sharers.

47. If the share is transferred until the arrear is repaid, and if the arrear is not repaid within twelve years, the members of the village community, to whom the share is transferred, may apply to the Deputy Commissioner to publish a notification that, if the arrear is not paid within one year from the date thereof, the transfer will become absolute, and the Deputy Commissioner shall publish such notification accordingly; and, if the arrear is not paid before the expiration of one year from the date of the notification, the transfer shall become absolute accordingly.

When transfer of share is to become absolute.

48. Any member of a village community, in respect of one of the shares in which an arrear of revenue accrues, may tender payment of such arrear or may offer to pay such arrear by instalments, and, if such tender be made, or if the Deputy Commissioner considers such offer satisfactory, the Deputy Commissioner shall transfer the share of the defaulting co-sharer to such other co-sharer in either of the manners specified in section forty-three, and subject to the provision of section forty-four. If more co-sharers than one make such tender or offer, the one who is most nearly related to the defaulter, or who, in case of sale, would have a right of pre-emption, shall be preferred.

Who may tender payment.

49. The procedure prescribed in sections forty-three, forty-four and forty-five shall not affect the joint and several liability of the members of the village community, or prevent the issue against them, of any of the other processes hereinbefore prescribed for the recovery of arrears of land-revenue which have accrued due from them or any of them.

Processes not to affect joint and several liability of community.

50. When an arrear of revenue cannot be recovered by any of the processes hereinbefore described against the person or moveable property of the defaulter, or against the land in respect of which the arrear has accrued, the Deputy Commissioner may, with the previous sanction of the Financial Commissioner, order the attachment under section forty-one, of any beneficial interest which the person liable for the arrear may be entitled to in any other land, and may keep such land under attachment till the arrear is satisfied.

Attachment of other beneficial interests.

51. No attachment or letting to farm under this Act shall, as against the Government, be called in question in any Civil Court whatever.

Attachment and letting to farm not to be questioned in Civil Court.

CHAPTER VI.

SALES OF LAND FOR ARREARS OF LAND-REVENUE.

Sale by auction.

52. If the Deputy Commissioner is of opinion that an arrear of land-revenue cannot be recovered by any of the means hereinbefore mentioned, he may, with the previous sanction of the Financial Commissioner, sell by auction any land in respect of which such arrear has accrued, or any share in land in respect of which share any such arrear has accrued, or any beneficial interest whatever in land other than that in respect of which such arrear has accrued, to which interest the person settled with for the land on which the arrear has accrued, is entitled, or any houses with their out-buildings, gardens, and land occupied therewith, or any assignments of land-revenue, to which such person is entitled;

but no land shall be liable to be sold by auction in respect of an arrear of land-revenue,

if the land is subject to the Court of Wards, or if the Court of Wards has jurisdiction over it, and the arrear has accrued during the period of its being subject to the said Court or under its jurisdiction, or if the land is under attachment, and the arrear has accrued during such attachment, or if the land is held in farm by a person who is not a member of the village community within which the land is situated, and the arrear has accrued during the term for which it is let in farm.

Land to be sold free or subject to incumbrances.

53. The Financial Commissioner shall direct either that the land shall be sold free from incumbrances, or that it shall be sold subject to incumbrances:

(1) if the land is to be sold free from incumbrances, all beneficial interests in the land which may have been created by the defaulter, or those through whom he claims since the date of the last settlement, and all contracts between him or them and the occupiers of the land, except beneficial leases granted in consideration of the erection of substantial improvements to be executed by the lessee on the property leased, shall become void as against the purchaser at the sale by auction:

(2) if the land is to be sold subject to incumbrances, the purchaser at the sale by auction shall purchase only the interests which belonged to the person liable to the arrear, and shall be bound by all transactions in respect of the creation of subordinate beneficial interests in the land, and by all leases by which that person would have been bound:

(3) if the land is to be sold subject to incumbrances, and if the sale does not produce an amount equal to the arrear due at the time of sale, or if it shall appear necessary to the Financial Commissioner, in order to secure the payment of the arrears of revenue due, the Financial Commissioner may direct the sale to be set aside and the land to be sold free from incumbrances at any time before the sale becomes final, as hereinafter mentioned.

Procedure on sale.

54. The procedure hereinafter described shall be observed when it is determined to sell any land by auction for an arrear of land-revenue, and when the sanction of the Financial Commissioner to such sale has been obtained.

Attachment till sale.

55. The Deputy Commissioner may direct the land to be attached until the sale.

Notification.

56. The Deputy Commissioner shall publish a notification specifying the nature and amount of the arrear in respect of which the land is to be sold, and declaring that it will be sold accordingly, unless such arrear is paid within fifteen days from the date of the notice.

Who may deposit arrear.

57. Any person may deposit the amount of the arrear with the Deputy Commissioner at any time before sunset on the last day appointed in the notice for payment, and thereupon the sale shall be stayed, and the arrear shall be considered at sunset to have been paid by such person, unless before sunset the defaulter pays the arrear, in which case the sum deposited shall be repaid to the person who deposited it.

Effect of deposit.

58. Any Civil Court in which a suit is pending for the possession of the land, or of any portion of the land, in respect of which the arrear is due, may order the person making such deposit to be placed in temporary possession of the land subject to the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure for giving security, pending the determination of an appeal; and if the person who made the deposit proves that the deposit was made to protect interests which would have been endangered or damaged by the sale of the land, the Court shall give a decree in his favour against the proprietor for the amount deposited.

Notification for sale.

59. If the arrear is not paid according to the first notification, the Deputy Commissioner shall issue a second notification specifying the interests which are to be sold, and the day on which the sale is to commence, which day must be not less than fifteen nor more than thirty days from the date of the notification, and warning all subordinate holders of or lessees of the land to pay no more rent to the defaulter.

No person who pays any such rent after the date of such notification shall be entitled to credit therefor as against the purchaser at the sale by auction.

Attachment.

60. If the land has not been attached previously to the notification mentioned in section fifty-nine, it shall be attached upon the issue of such notification.

Offer for sale.

61. Upon the day fixed in the second notification, the land shall be offered for sale by the Commissioner of the district or by a Deputy Commissioner in the land-revenue office at the head quarters of the district, unless the Financial Commissioner directs the sale to be held elsewhere.

Adjournment of sale.

62. The officer who is to conduct the sale may adjourn it, if from any unavoidable cause he is unable either to commence or to complete it.

Sale of share, pre-emption.

63. If the land to be sold is a share in land held by co-sharers whether members of a village community or not, and if the purchaser is not a co-sharer, any co-sharer may, on the day of sale, and before the officer conducting the sale has left the place of sale, and if he is ready to comply with the provisions as to deposit and payment hereafter contained, demand the share at the price bid for it by the purchaser.

Purchaser of share becomes co-sharer.

64. If the purchaser is not a co-sharer, he shall, by the act of purchase, become a co-sharer, and shall be subject to all the liabilities and customs to which the defaulting proprietor was subject.

Land not to be sold for less than arrear of revenue.

65. Land shall not be sold to any person, other than a co-sharer, for any amount less than the arrear of revenue due thereon, and if no bid to that amount is made, the land may be withdrawn from sale, or it may be bought on behalf of Government at the price of one rupee: Provided that no share in land shall be purchased on account of Government.

Deposit.

66. The purchaser at any such sale shall deposit immediately in cash, notes or State securities, duly endorsed, twenty-five per cent. on the amount bid by him. If he fails to do so, the land shall be exposed to sale again, and he shall be considered to have committed a contempt within the meaning of Chapter X of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and the officer conducting the sale shall have power to proceed against him in the manner prescribed in the Code of Criminal Procedure.

Payment of balance.

67. The remainder of the purchase-money shall be paid before sunset on the thirtieth day from the day on which the sale took place, or, if the thirtieth day be a holiday, then on the first office day after that day, and, in default of such payment, the deposit shall be forfeited, and the sale shall become void, and the land shall be re-sold.

Re-sale.

68. Before such re-sale, a notification, similar to the one mentioned in section fifty-nine, shall be issued, but it shall not issue till three clear days after the default.

Loss on re-sale an arrear of revenue.

69. If, upon re-sale of the land, the price ultimately received is less than the price offered by the defaulting bidder, the difference shall be regarded as an arrear of land-revenue due from him, and may be recovered as such; and if more bidders than one make default, they shall be jointly and severally liable to the extent of their respective bids for such difference, and the amount ultimately recovered shall be credited to the person in respect of whose default the land was sold.

On forfeiture of deposit defaulter may tender arrear.

70. Whenever a deposit is forfeited, the defaulting proprietor of the land may pay or tender payment of the arrear for which the land was exposed to sale, and such payment or tender shall prevent any re-sale.

Appeal against sale.

71. Any person whose interest in land has been sold by auction may, within fifteen days from the sale, appeal to the Commissioner of the division in which the sale is held, and the Commissioner may, if he considers that the sale has been illegally conducted, annul the sale, or, if he thinks that the sale ought to be annulled on any other ground, recommend the Local Government to annul it, and the Local Government may do so if it thinks proper. If the sale is annulled, the deposit shall be returned to the purchaser with interest at the rate of five per cent. per annum from the time when the deposit was made.

When sale becomes final.

72. If the purchase-money has been paid, and if no appeal has been made, or if an appeal has been brought and dismissed, the sale shall become final on the thirtieth day from the date thereof. If an appeal against the sale is pending on that day, the sale shall not become final till the day on which the appeal is dismissed.

Grounds on which sale may not be set aside.

73. No sale shall be set aside on any of the following grounds:—

(1) that a tender of the arrear was made after office hours on the last day specified in the second notification;

(2) that the defaulter had any claim against the Government;

(3) that the revenue due from the defaulter had been remitted, unless the Local Government admits it;

(4) that money belonging to the defaulter and sufficient to satisfy the whole or any part of the arrear was in any Government treasury, unless the defaulter had an exclusive and undisputed property therein, and unless, after application by the defaulter within the time specified in the notification that such money shall be applied to the satisfaction of the arrear, the Deputy Commissioner neglected or refused upon insufficient grounds so to apply it;

(5) that the land sold does not belong to the defaulter.

Civil Court may not annul sale.

74. No such sale as aforesaid shall be set aside or annulled by any Civil Court, except on the ground that the land sold was not the land on which the arrear of revenue in respect of which it was sold was due, or on account of a breach of the rules hereinbefore contained; but any person aggrieved by any act or omission of any public officer in reference to any such sale, may sue such officer or the Government therefor.

75. When the sale becomes final, the Deputy Commissioner of the district shall give the purchaser a certificate of title in the following form :—

Certificate of title.

Re-publication of rules.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The object of this Bill is to express in a single enactment and in unambiguous language the various rules and orders having the force of law by which the proceedings of Revenue and Settlement Officials in the Panjáb are at present governed; to prescribe with distinctness the course of procedure which is to be followed in the assessment of revenue, and in the compilation and correction of the record of rights; and to define precisely the effects of the decisions passed and facts recorded by officers in the course of a settlement.

No express law on these subjects has ever been passed for the Panjáb, and the Regulations by which Settlement Officers were originally instructed to guide their proceedings are couched in language which is in some cases inappropriate to the peculiar circumstances of land tenure in the Province, in others vague, obsolete, or otherwise inappropriate.

If a marriage has been solemnized during the infancy of the parties, and has not been actually consummated, and if either of the parties, on coming of age, refuses to acknowledge the marriage, or contracts another marriage, a suit will lie against both the child who violates the contract, and the parent who made it. In either case the action may be brought either by the aggrieved party, or by his or her parents, or jointly by both. Parents and guardians shall have a right to make such contracts.

21. The rule shall be applicable whether the suit for enforcement of the contract be brought in the husband's lifetime, or after his death.

PART II.

LAWS RELATING TO LAND AND THE RESPONSIBILITIES OF LANDHOLDERS.

Law of Pre-emption.

Pre-emption.

22. The right of pre-emption shall be presumed to exist, whether recorded in the list of customs at the settlement or not in all village communities however constituted in the absence of any custom or contract to the contrary. Whenever a landholder in a village desires to sell or permanently transfer his share, he must offer it first to the community at large, or to individual co-partners, and then, if there are any tenants with a right of occupancy in such village, to such tenants. If neither the community, nor any member thereof, nor any such tenant be willing to accept the terms bonâ fide offered by the intending seller, he may sell the property on the same or higher terms to any other person. But if he have effected a sale without offering an opportunity of pre-emption, then the community, or any member of it, or any such tenant, may bring a suit for rescinding the sale. The same rules will pertain to the foreclosure of mortgages, and to sales in execution of decrees. But the principle of pre-emption is not applicable to mortgages or other temporary transfers.

Bonâ fides of offer may be contested.

23. A suit may be brought by any person claiming a right of pre-emption, to contest the bonâ fides of the offer made by an intending seller; and if the Court decide that such offer was not made bonâ fide, and that the plaintiff has a right of pre-emption, it shall decree such a right to the plaintiff on payment of such sum as appears to be the fair market value of the property.

Village sites subject to pre-emption.

24. In villages, the site and ground occupied by any sharer in the estate shall be subject to the right of pre-emption as above described; if the intending seller be a non-proprietary resident, the pre-emption pertains to the landholding community.

Joint undivided property other than land.

25. If a sharer in any joint undivided property, other than land, be desirous of permanently transferring his share, the right of pre-emption shall pertain to the co-sharers.

Pre-emption in cities and towns.

26. If in any town or city, or any sub-division thereof, the custom of pre-emption is shown to prevail, it may be enforced in the Civil Court. The Court shall determine the preferential right between contending claimants with reference to vicinity, relationship, or any other ground on which the right of pre-emption may be legally claimed.

Party to sale cannot afterwards claim pre-emption.

27. No person who has been a party to a sale, may, after such sale, withdraw the property so sold and enforce a right of pre-emption as to other property sold at such sale.

Transfer by gift.

28. When property is bonâ fide transferred by way of gift, no right of pre-emption arises.

No special procedure necessary in rights of pre-emption.

29. The observance of any special procedure as regards rights of pre-emption, other than that herein prescribed, is in no case necessary.

Decrees for pre-emption to fix date for payment.

30. In decrees for pre-emption, the decree shall state within what time the decree-holder shall pay the purchase-money for the property, and shall direct that, in default of such payment, the decree shall be void.

Decree obtained, vendor cannot refuse to sell.

32. In villages in which the chukdárí tenure prevails, the co-sharers in a well have a right of pre-emption as to shares in such well in preference to a general proprietor in a village, having no share in the well, but merely receiving a huk zemíndaree from the "chukdárs."

In any case in which an owner or occupier is responsible for the value of property stolen or plundered in a robbery or theft, it shall be lawful for the person, whose property has been stolen or plundered, to sue such owner or occupier in the Civil Court for the recovery of the value of such property.

It shall be the duty of all such headmen, owners or occupiers of land, and of the Headmen, Village Watchmen, owners or occupiers of land in any village through which the pursuit of such offender lies, to offer all the assistance in their power when called on to do so towards the arrest of such offender.

Headmen and other bound to assist in such apprehension.

Any Village Watchman, Headman, owner or occupier of land, who fails to comply with the requirements of this section, shall be deemed to have committed an offence under the second part of section one hundred and eighty-seven of the Indian Penal Code.

37. When an offence is committed and the tracks of the offenders are followed to a spot within the immediate vicinity of a village, the person following such tracks may call upon any Headman or Village Watchman in such village to assist in carrying on the tracks.

Track law.

38. If such Headman or Watchman do not forthwith give such assistance, or if the inhabitants of such village do not afford full opportunity for search in their houses for the offenders, or if, from the circumstances of the case, there shall appear good reason to believe that the inhabitants of such village, or any of them, were conniving at the offence or at the escape of the offenders, and such offenders cannot be traced beyond the village, it shall be lawful for the Magistrate of the district to inflict a fine not exceeding rupees five hundred upon such village, to be recovered in the same manner as if it were arrears of land-revenue.

42. When any arrear of land-revenue has accrued and remains unpaid for more than one month, the Deputy Commissioner of the district may, with the previous consent of the Financial Commissioner, cause to be published, within the village or upon the land in respect of which such arrear is due, a notification that, unless the arrear is paid within fifteen days from the date of the notice, the settlement made in respect of the land will be cancelled, and all contracts made between any superior proprietor and any subordinate proprietor thereof, and all occupancy rights of all tenants thereof, however they may have accrued, will be suspended for a term to be specified in the notification, not exceeding fifteen years.

45. If the share of any member of a village community is let to farm under the provisions hereinbefore contained to any person other than a member of the village community, such person shall not, during the term of his farm, be liable for the land-revenue due in respect of the other shares in the village community, and if such person is a member of the village community, he may, if the Financial Commissioner so directs, be freed in respect of such share from his joint and several liability.

Person whose land is let to farm not liable to revenue.

46. If an arrear of land-revenue has accrued in respect of the share of any member of a village community, the Deputy Commissioner may call upon the other co-sharers to pay the arrear and to accept a transfer of the share of the defaulting co-sharer, either permanently or for a term of years not exceeding fifteen, or until the arrear is repaid.

Transfer of share of defaulter to solvent co-sharers.

47. If the share is transferred until the arrear is repaid, and if the arrear is not repaid within twelve years, the members of the village community, to whom the share is transferred, may apply to the Deputy Commissioner to publish a notification that, if the arrear is not paid within one year from the date thereof, the transfer will become absolute, and the Deputy Commissioner shall publish such notification accordingly; and, if the arrear is not paid before the expiration of one year from the date of the notification, the transfer shall become absolute accordingly.

When transfer of share is to become absolute.

48. Any member of a village community, in respect of one of the shares in which an arrear of revenue accrues, may tender payment of such arrear or may offer to pay such arrear by instalments, and, if such tender be made, or if the Deputy Commissioner considers such offer satisfactory, the Deputy Commissioner shall transfer the share of the defaulting co-sharer to such other co-sharer in either of the manners specified in section forty-three, and subject to the provision of section forty-four. If more co-sharers than one make such tender or offer, the one who is most nearly related to the defaulter, or who, in case of sale, would have a right of pre-emption, shall be preferred.

Who may tender payment.

49. The procedure prescribed in sections forty-three, forty-four and forty-five shall not affect the joint and several liability of the members of the village community, or prevent the issue against them, of any of the other processes hereinbefore prescribed for the recovery of arrears of land-revenue which have accrued due from them or any of them.

Processes not to affect joint and several liability of community.

50. When an arrear of revenue cannot be recovered by any of the processes hereinbefore described against the person or movable property of the defaulter, or against the land in respect of which the arrear has accrued, the Deputy Commissioner may, with the previous sanction of the Financial Commissioner, order the attachment under section forty-one of any beneficial interest which the person liable for the arrear may be entitled to in any other land, and may keep such land under attachment till the arrear is satisfied.

any houses with their out-buildings, gardens, and land occupied therewith, or any assignments of land-revenue,

to which such person is entitled;

but no land shall be liable to be sold by auction in respect of an arrear of land-revenue,

if the land is subject to the Court of Wards, or if the Court of Wards has jurisdiction over it, and the arrear has accrued during the period of its being subject to the said Court or under its jurisdiction, or if the land is under attachment, and the arrear has accrued during such attachment, or if the land is held in farm by a person who is not a member of the village community within which the land is situated, and the arrear has accrued during the term for which it is let in farm.

Land to be sold free or subject to incumbrances.

53. The Financial Commissioner shall direct either that the land shall be sold free from incumbrances, or that it shall be sold subject to incumbrances:

(1) if the land is to be sold free from incumbrances, all beneficial interests in the land which may have been created by the defaulter, or those through whom he claims since the date of the last settlement, and all contracts between him or them and the occupiers of the land, except beneficial leases granted in consideration of the erection of substantial improvements to be executed by the lessee on the property leased, shall become void as against the purchaser at the sale by auction:

(2) if the land is to be sold subject to incumbrances, the purchaser at the sale by auction shall purchase only the interests which belonged to the person liable to the arrear, and shall be bound by all transactions in respect of the creation of subordinate beneficial interests in the land, and by all leases by which that person would have been bound:

(3) if the land is to be sold subject to incumbrances, and if the sale does not produce an amount equal to the arrear due at the time of sale, or if it shall appear necessary to the Financial Commissioner, in order to secure the payment of the arrears of revenue due, the Financial Commissioner may direct the sale to be set aside and the land to be sold free from incumbrances at any time before the sale becomes final, as hereinafter mentioned.

Procedure on sale.

54. The procedure hereinafter described shall be observed when it is determined to sell any land by auction for an arrear of land-revenue, and when the sanction of the Financial Commissioner to such sale has been obtained.

55. The Deputy Commissioner may direct the land to be attached until the sale.

Notification.

56. The Deputy Commissioner shall publish a notification specifying the nature and amount of the arrear in respect of which the land is to be sold, and declaring that it will be sold accordingly, unless such arrear is paid within fifteen days from the date of the notice.

Who may deposit arrear.

57. Any person may deposit the amount of the arrear with the Deputy Commissioner at any time before sunset on the last day appointed in the notice for payment, and thereupon the sale shall be stayed, and the arrear shall be considered at sunset to have been paid by such person, unless before sunset the defaulter pays the arrear, in which case the sum deposited shall be repaid to the person who deposited it.

Effect of deposit.

58. Any Civil Court in which a suit is pending for the possession of the land, or of any portion of the land, in respect of which the arrear is due, may order the person making such deposit to be placed in temporary possession of the land subject to the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure for giving security, pending the determination of an appeal; and if the person who made the deposit proves that the deposit was made to protect interests which would have been endangered or damaged by the sale of the land, the Court shall give a decree in his favour against the proprietor for the amount deposited.

Notification for sale.

59. If the arrear is not paid according to the first notification, the Deputy Commissioner shall issue a second notification specifying the interests which are to be sold, and the day on which the sale is to commence, which day must be not less than fifteen nor more than thirty days from the date of the notification, and warning all subordinate holders of or lessees of the land to pay no more rent to the defaulter.

No person who pays any such rent after the date of such notification shall be entitled to credit therefor as against the purchaser at the sale by auction.

Attachment.

60. If the land has not been attached previously to the notification mentioned in section fifty-nine, it shall be attached upon the issue of such notification.

Offer for sale.

61. Upon the day fixed in the second notification, the land shall be offered for sale by the Commissioner of the district or by a Deputy Commissioner in the land-revenue office at the head quarters of the district, unless the Financial Commissioner directs the sale to be held elsewhere.

Adjournment of sale.

62. The officer who is to conduct the sale may adjourn it, if from any unavoidable cause he is unable either to commence or to complete it.

Sale of share, pre-emption.

63. If the land to be sold is a share in land held by co-sharers whether members of a village community or not, and if the purchaser is not a co-sharer, any co-sharer may, on the day of sale, and before the officer conducting the sale has left the place of sale, and if he is ready to comply with the provisions as to deposit and payment hereafter contained, demand the share at the price bid for it by the purchaser.

Purchaser of share becomes co-sharer.

64. If the purchaser is not a co-sharer, he shall, by the act of purchase, become a co-sharer, and shall be subject to all the liabilities and customs to which the defaulting proprietor was subject.

Land not to be sold for less than arrear of revenue.

65. Land shall not be sold to any person, other than a co-sharer, for any amount less than the arrear of revenue due thereon, and if no bid to that amount is made, the land may be withdrawn from sale, or it may be bought on behalf of Government at the price of one rupee: Provided that no share in land shall be purchased on account of Government.

Deposit.

66. The purchaser at any such sale shall deposit immediately in cash, notes or State securities, duly endorsed, twenty-five per cent. on the amount bid by him. 67. The remainder of the purchase-money shall be paid before sunset on the thirtieth day from the day on which the sale took place, or, if the thirtieth day be a holiday, then on the first office day after that day, and, in default of such payment, the deposit shall be forfeited, and the sale shall become void, and the land shall be re-sold.

Re-sale.

68. Before such re-sale, a notification, similar to the one mentioned in section fifty-nine, shall be issued, but it shall not issue till three clear days after the default.

Loss on re-sale an arrear of revenue.

69. If, upon re-sale of the land, the price ultimately received is less than the price offered by the defaulting bidder, the difference shall be regarded as an arrear of land-revenue due from him, and may be recovered as such; and if more bidders than one make default, they shall be jointly and severally liable to the extent of their respective bids for such difference, and the amount ultimately recovered shall be credited to the person in respect of whose default the land was sold.

On forfeiture of deposit defaulter may tender arrear.

70. Whenever a deposit is forfeited, the defaulting proprietor of the land may pay or tender payment of the arrear for which the land was exposed to sale, and such payment or tender shall prevent any re-sale.

Appeal against sale.

71. Any person whose interest in land has been sold by auction may, within fifteen days from the sale, appeal to the Commissioner of the division in which the sale is held, and the Commissioner may, if he considers that the sale has been illegally conducted, annul the sale, or, if he thinks that the sale ought to be annulled on any other ground, recommend the Local Government to annul it, and the Local Government may do so if it thinks proper. If the sale is annulled, the deposit shall be returned to the purchaser with interest at the rate of five per cent. per annum from the time when the deposit was made.

When sale becomes final.

72. If the purchase-money has been paid, and if no appeal has been made, or if an appeal has been brought and dismissed, the sale shall become final on the thirtieth day from the date thereof. If an appeal against the sale is pending on that day, the sale shall not become final till the day on which the appeal is dismissed.

Grounds on which sale may not be set aside.

73. No sale shall be set aside on any of the following grounds:—

(1) that a tender of the arrear was made after office hours on the last day specified in the second notification;

(2) that the defaulter had any claim against the Government;

(3) that the revenue due from the defaulter had been remitted, unless the Local Government admits it;

(4) that money belonging to the defaulter and sufficient to satisfy the whole or any part of the arrear was in any Government treasury, unless the defaulter had an exclusive and undisputed property therein, and unless, after application by the defaulter within the time specified in the notification that such money shall be applied to the satisfaction of the arrear, the Deputy Commissioner neglected or refused upon insufficient grounds so to apply it;

(5) that the land sold does not belong to the defaulter.

Civil Court may not annul sale.

74. No such sale as aforesaid shall be set aside or annulled by any Civil Court, except on the ground that the land sold was not the land on which the arrear of revenue in respect of which it was sold was due, or on account of a breach of the rules hereinbefore contained; but any person aggrieved by any act or omission of any public officer in reference to any such sale, may sue such officer or the Government therefor.

75. When the sale becomes final, the Deputy Commissioner of the district shall give the purchaser a certificate of title in the following form :—

Certificate of title.

"I certify that A. B. has purchased at public auction under the Panjáb Land-Revenue Act, 1871, and that his purchase took effect on the day of " (being the date of the day after that fixed for the last day of payment.)—Signed by the Deputy Commissioner of the district.

The said certificate may be produced in any Court of civil judicature as evidence of the matters stated therein, and the Court shall presume the genuineness of every document purporting to be such a certificate.

76. The Deputy Commissioner of the district shall publish a notification of the transfer of the property of the said land to the purchaser.

Notification of transfer.

Application of purchase-money.

77. The purchase-money shall be applied as follows :—

(1) to the payment of the arrear due on the latest day of payment;

(2) to the payment of any other arrear of land-revenue due by the same person ;

(3) the surplus shall be paid to the late proprietor, or, if the land were held in shares, then to the co-sharers collectively or according to the amount of their respective interests at the discretion of the Deputy Commissioner.

78. The surplus shall not be payable to any creditor of the late proprietor on his demand, and shall not be retained in the land-revenue treasury, except under precept of a Court of civil judicature, and in satisfaction of a decree of such Court; and, whenever the surplus of purchase-money has been in any such case paid to the creditors of the proprietor under a precept of a Court of civil judicature, and a decree annulling the sale is afterwards passed, the proprietor shall not be restored to possession, until the amount so paid be returned by him with interest.

Surplus.

No Court shall entertain any suit to oust the certified purchaser on the ground that the purchase was made on behalf of any person other than the certified purchaser, though by agreement the name of the certified purchaser was used.

79. The person named in the certificate of title as purchaser shall be liable for all instalments of land-revenue which may fall due subsequently to the latest date of payment aforesaid.

Purchaser's liability.

80. When a sale is reversed by a decree of a Civil Court of judicature, the purchase-money shall be refunded with interest at five per cent. per annum.

Refund of purchase-money.

81. When any Court by a precept issued in that behalf directs any Revenue Officer to issue against any land for the satisfaction of any judgment or decree any of the processes hereinbefore specified for the collection of arrears of land-revenue, such Revenue Officer shall issue such process accordingly, according to the exigency of such precept, and shall report the execution thereof to such Court.

Revenue Officer to execute decrees of Court.

82. Commissioners may exercise all the powers hereinbefore mentioned for the recovery of land-revenue and for the recovery of any other revenue due from any person to the Government.

CHAPTER VII.

POWER TO LOCAL GOVERNMENT TO MAKE RULES.

83. The Local Government may, from time to time, make rules not inconsistent with this Act, for the purpose of carrying it into effect, and such rules, as well as rules on the matters hereinbefore specially referred to, shall have the force of law if the following conditions are fulfilled, but not otherwise :—

Local Government to make rules.

(1) if the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council is obtained to such rules;

(2) if they are published in the Gazette as rules having the force of law.

The Local Government may at any time alter or cancel any such rules.

84. All rules having the force of law made under this Act shall, with the previous sanction of the Government of India, be re-published every year in the month of June, and upon such re-publication, all such rules shall be arranged in the order of their subject-matter, and all such alterations or amendments as may have been made in the course of the preceding year, or may have become necessary or advisable, shall be embodied therewith, and upon such re-publication all previous rules shall be repealed.

Re-publication of rules.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The object of this Bill is to express in a single enactment and in unambiguous language the various rules and orders having the force of law by which the proceedings of Revenue and Settlement Officials in the Panjáb are at present governed; to prescribe with distinctness the course of procedure which is to be followed in the assessment of revenue, and in the compilation and correction of the record of rights; and to define precisely the effects of the decisions passed and facts recorded by officers in the course of a settlement.

No express law on these subjects has ever been passed for the Panjáb, and the Regulations by which Settlement Officers were originally instructed to guide their proceedings are couched in language which is in some cases inappropriate to the peculiar circumstances of land tenure in the Province, in others vague, obsolete, or otherwise inappropriate.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Indian Weights and Measures Act, 1870, having been disallowed, it is now proposed to re-enact such portions of that Act as were not objected to by the Secretary of State. The present Bill is, therefore, practically a re-enactment of Act XI of 1870, with the omission of the provisions which referred to measures of length and area, or authorized Government to compel the adoption of the new weights in particular cases.

LAWS RELATING TO LAND AND THE RESPONSIBILITIES OF LANDHOLDERS.

Law of Pre-emption.

Pre-emption.

22. The right of pre-emption shall be presumed to exist, whether recorded in the list of customs at the settlement or not in all village communities however constituted in the absence of any custom or contract to the contrary. Whenever a landholder in a village desires to sell or permanently transfer his share, he must offer it first to the community at large, or to individual co-partners, and then, if there are any tenants with a right of occupancy in such village, to such tenants. If neither the community, nor any member thereof, nor any such tenant be willing to accept the terms bonâ fide offered by the intending seller, he may sell the property on the same or higher terms to any other person. But if he have effected a sale without offering an opportunity of pre-emption, then the community, or any member of it, or any such tenant, may bring a suit for rescinding the sale. The same rules will pertain to the foreclosure of mortgages, and to sales in execution of decrees. But the principle of pre-emption is not applicable to mortgages or other temporary transfers.

Bonâ fides of offer may be contested.

23. A suit may be brought by any person claiming a right of pre-emption, to contest the bonâ fides of the offer made by an intending seller; and if the Court decide that such offer was not made bonâ fide, and that the plaintiff has a right of pre-emption, it shall decree such a right to the plaintiff on payment of such sum as appears to be the fair market value of the property.

Village sites subject to pre-emption.

24. In villages, the site and ground occupied by any sharer in the estate shall be subject to the right of pre-emption as above described; if the intending seller be a non-proprietary resident, the pre-emption pertains to the landholding community.

Joint undivided property other than land.

25. If a sharer in any joint undivided property, other than land, be desirous of permanently transferring his share, the right of pre-emption shall pertain to the co-sharers.

Pre-emption in cities and towns.

26. If in any town or city, or any sub-division thereof, the custom of pre-emption is shown to prevail, it may be enforced in the Civil Court. The Court shall determine the preferential right between contending claimants with reference to vicinity, relationship, or any other ground on which the right of pre-emption may be legally claimed.

Party to sale cannot afterwards claim pre-emption.

27. No person who has been a party to a sale, may, after such sale, withdraw the property so sold and enforce a right of pre-emption as to other property sold at such sale.

Transfer by gift.

28. When property is bonâ fide transferred by way of gift, no right of pre-emption arises.

No special procedure necessary in rights of pre-emption.

29. The observance of any special procedure as regards rights of pre-emption, other than that herein prescribed, is in no case necessary.

Decrees for pre-emption to fix date for payment.

30. In decrees for pre-emption, the decree shall state within what time the decree-holder shall pay the purchase-money for the property, and shall direct that, in default of such payment, the decree shall be void.

Decree obtained, vendor cannot refuse to sell.

31. Where a right of pre-emption has been decreed, the vendor may not refuse to sell at the price fixed by the Court.

Chukdárí tenures.

32. In villages in which the chukdárí tenure prevails, the co-sharers in a well have a right of pre-emption as to shares in such well in preference to a general proprietor in a village, having no share in the well, but merely receiving a huk zemindaree from the "chukdárs."

Responsibility of Landholders and others.

Landholders and others bound to report certain matters.

33. Record of rights to be made over to Deputy Commissioner when complete.

22. The Deputy Commissioner shall cause such alterations to be made from time to time in the record of rights as shall be rendered necessary by any assignment or remission of land-revenue, by alluvion or diluvion, or any other natural cause, by the death of persons named therein, by decrees or orders of Courts of Law, or by the consent of the parties to any transaction by which any right mentioned in the record of rights is affected, and such entries shall have the same effect as though they were made in the course of a settlement by a Settlement Officer.

23. The Local Government shall make rules as to the nature of such alterations, the manner in which, the persons by whom, and the occasions on which, they are to be made, and as to the fees which are to be paid in respect of them.

Rules to be made by Local Government.

24. The Local Government shall from time to time issue standing orders as to the mode of proceeding for making or modifying settlements of resumed lands, lands affected by alluvion and diluvion, and other isolated portions of land. Such standing orders may provide for any matter which in the case of a notification of settlement ought to be provided for the local area therein specified, and the officers empowered by such orders to act as Settlement Officers shall have all the powers hereinbefore given to Settlement Officers.

When it is owned by several persons holding in shares divided or undivided, it shall be made with the proprietors through their representatives.

When there are two kinds of proprietors, superior and inferior, the settlement may be made with either at the discretion of the principal Settlement Officer.

26. When the officer in charge of the settlement has satisfied himself as to the amount at which any land should be assessed, he shall inform the person or persons with whom the settlement is to be made, that they are at liberty to make an offer to the Government to pay that amount of revenue in respect of the land for the term for which, and on the conditions on which, the settlement is to be made.

Settlement Officer to authorize persons with whom settlement is to be made, to make offer to Government.

27. If the persons with whom the settlement is to be made agree to make such offer, they shall become liable, from the date of such agreement, to the payment of the amount of revenue mentioned in the said offer; but the Local Government may refuse to be bound by the offer made by the officer in charge of the settlement, and may require any officer whom they may appoint for that purpose, to offer the land to the persons with whom the settlement is to be made, at any other rate of revenue:

Government may require higher rate to be paid.

Provided that no such fresh offer shall be retrospective of the amount of the assessment raised.

28. If the settlement is made with a village community, all the members thereof shall be jointly and severally liable for the payment of the whole amount of revenue which the community engages to pay, and to all the processes hereinafter prescribed for the collection of arrears of revenue.

If settlement made with village community, joint and several liability.

29. If the settlement is to be made with a village community, the officer in charge of the settlement shall give public notice, in such manner as to him seems fit, that he is about to inform the community of the terms on which the settlement may be made with them, and such terms shall be publicly communicated to the Village Headmen.

Settlement Officer to give notice of terms to Village Headman.

30. If the Village Headmen agree to make the offer, the village community shall be bound by such agreement.

If Headman accepts, village community is bound.

31. Any person who, or any village community which, refuses to make such an offer as is mentioned in section twenty-seven, shall be entitled to an allowance the amount of which is to be fixed by the Financial Commissioner, but which is not to be less than five per cent., and not more than ten per cent., on the net amount realized by Government from the land.

Persons refusing entitled to an allowance.

32. If the term for which any settlement has been made expires before a new settlement is made, all persons who continue to occupy the land after the expiration of such term shall hold it upon the terms of the expired settlement until a new one is made.

Land may be held after expiration of existing term upon terms of expired settlement.

33. If the principal Settlement Officer is authorized by the terms of the notification of settlement to fix the boundaries of estates or villages, and if he finds that any waste land is not included within the boundaries of any estate or village, he may declare such waste land to be the property of Government.

Waste lands not included within boundaries of estates to be the property of Government.

34. No Civil Court shall entertain in any form the question whether the proceedings of any Settlement Officer are valid, except in the case of appeals from judicial decisions passed by such officers.

Civil Court not to entertain question of validity of proceedings of Settlement Officer.

CHAPTER V.

COLLECTION OF LAND-REVENUE BY PROCESSES OTHER THAN SALE.

35. The Local Government may, from time to time, make rules as to the instalments by which, and the places at which, the revenue shall be paid, and, unless and until the Local Government shall otherwise direct, it shall be deemed to have directed that the practice now observed shall continue to be observed.

Local Government may make rules as to instalments.

36. It is the duty of every person who has engaged to pay any portion of revenue, and, in the case of a village community, it is the duty of the headmen, to pay the same at the place, and during office hours, on the day appointed by the Local Government in that behalf.

Duty of person liable to pay on appointed day.

37. Any sum not so paid thereupon becomes an arrear of land-revenue.

Arrear of land-revenue.

38. When an arrear of land-revenue has become due, the Deputy Commissioner may issue a notice to pay the amount within a time stated in the notice;

Remedies of arrear due—

(1) notice to pay;

(2) arrest and detention;

or issue a warrant directing the Revenue Sheriff to arrest and convey him to the gaol of the district, and directing the gaoler of such gaol to confine him therein as a civil prisoner until the arrear is paid, or until the expiration of such period, not exceeding one year from the date of the warrant, as the Deputy Commissioner thinks fit, and such person shall be confined according to the exigency of such warrant;

(3) imprisonment in civil gaol;

or order the distraint and sale of the movable property of any such person, with the exception of instruments of husbandry, cattle actually employed in agriculture, and the tools of artisans.

(4) distraint and sale of movables.

Every such sale shall be conducted according to the law in force for the time being for the sale of movable property under the decree of a Civil Court; or take any two or more of these processes which are not inconsistent.

39. No such proceeding shall be liable to be contested in any Civil Court, unless the person aggrieved thereby denies that the amount of revenue claimed was due, and tenders security for any arrear which he may admit to be due, or to be likely to become due, before the termination of the suit, and for costs, in which case the Court shall issue a precept to the Deputy Commissioner to discharge the prisoner from custody; but the Court shall not interfere with any such distress and sale of movable property as aforesaid.

When Civil Court may interfere.

40. If any such process as is mentioned in section thirty-eight is taken against any person, such person may pay the amount claimed or any part thereof under protest, and, upon such payment, such process shall be withdrawn, and the party against whom it was issued may sue the Government in any Civil Court for the amount so claimed.

Payment under protest.

41. When an arrear of land-revenue has become due, the Deputy Commissioner of the district may, in addition to the processes specified in section thirty-eight, or any two or more of them, cause the land in respect of which the arrear has become due to be attached and taken under the direct management of any agent whom he may appoint for that purpose. The agent so appointed shall stand for all purposes in the position of the person on account of whose default the land was attached, and shall be bound by all the engagements or other relations which existed between him and any subordinate proprietors or tenants with rights of occupancy, and shall be entitled to manage the land to the exclusion of the person whose interest therein has been attached, until the arrears of land-revenue due therefrom have been satisfied, or until the Deputy Commissioner of the district directs him to restore the person whose interest has been attached to the management thereof.

Attachment and direct management.

42. When any arrear of land-revenue has accrued and remains unpaid for more than one month, the Deputy Commissioner of the district may, with the previous consent of the Financial Commissioner, cause to be published, within the village or upon the land in respect of which such arrear is due, a notification that, unless the arrear is paid within fifteen days from the date of the notice, the settlement made in respect of the land will be cancelled, and all contracts made between any superior proprietor and any subordinate proprietor thereof, and all occupancy rights of all tenants thereof, however they may have accrued, will be suspended for a term to be specified in the notification, not exceeding fifteen years.

Notice to cancel settlement.

43. If the arrear of land-revenue due in respect of the land is not paid within fifteen days from the date of the notification, the settlement therein mentioned shall be cancelled, and the contracts between the superior and subordinate proprietors, and the rights of the subordinate proprietors, shall be suspended for the term mentioned in the notification; and the Deputy Commissioner, with the previous consent of the Financial Commissioner, may either appoint an agent to manage the land or may let the land in farm to any person who may be willing to accept the same, and upon any terms which he may think fit, and the agent or farmer thereof may, during the term specified in the notification, either occupy the land himself or sub-let the same to the persons who before the expiration of the fifteen days' notice, had occupancy rights therein, or who held the same as tenants-at-will, or to such other persons, on such terms as he may think proper.

Cancelling settlement and letting to farm.

44. Whenever any person is dispossessed of any beneficial interest in any land under section forty-one or section forty-three, he shall be entitled to an allowance in respect thereof such as is provided in section thirty-one.

Persons dispossessed to have allowance.

45. If the share of any member of a village community is let to farm under the provisions hereinbefore contained to any person other than a member of the village community, such person shall not, during the term of his farm, be liable for the land-revenue due in respect of the other shares in the village community, and if such person is a member of the village community, he may, if the Financial Commissioner so directs, be freed in respect of such share from his joint and several liability.

Person whose land is let to farm not liable to revenue.

46. If an arrear of land-revenue has accrued in respect of the share of any member of a village community, the Deputy Commissioner may call upon the other co-sharers to pay the arrear and to accept a transfer of the share of the defaulting co-sharer, either permanently or for a term of years not exceeding fifteen, or until the arrear is repaid.

Transfer of share of defaulter to solvent co-sharers.

47. If the share is transferred until the arrear is repaid, and if the arrear is not repaid within twelve years, the members of the village community, to whom the share is transferred, may apply to the Deputy Commissioner to publish a notification that, if the arrear is not paid within one year from the date thereof, the transfer will become absolute, and the Deputy Commissioner shall publish such notification accordingly; and, if the arrear is not paid before the expiration of one year from the date of the notification, the transfer shall become absolute accordingly.

When transfer of share is to become absolute.

48. Any member of a village community, in respect of one of the shares in which an arrear of revenue accrues, may tender payment of such arrear or may offer to pay such arrear by instalments, and, if such tender be made, or if the Deputy Commissioner considers such offer satisfactory, the Deputy Commissioner shall transfer the share of the defaulting co-sharer to such other co-sharer in either of the manners specified in section forty-three, and subject to the provision of section forty-four. If more co-sharers than one make such tender or offer, the one who is most nearly related to the defaulter, or who, in case of sale, would have a right of pre-emption, shall be preferred.

Who may tender payment.

49. The procedure prescribed in sections forty-three, forty-four and forty-five shall not affect the joint and several liability of the members of the village community, or prevent the issue against them, of any of the other processes hereinbefore prescribed for the recovery of arrears of land-revenue which have accrued due from them or any of them.

Processes not to affect joint and several liability of community.

50. When an arrear of revenue cannot be recovered by any of the processes hereinbefore described against the person or movable property of the defaulter, or against the land in respect of which the arrear has accrued, the Deputy Commissioner may, with the previous sanction of the Financial Commissioner, order the attachment under section forty-one of any beneficial interest which the person liable for the arrear may be entitled to in any other land, and may keep such land under attachment till the arrear is satisfied.

Attachment of other beneficial interests.

51. No attachment or letting to farm under this Act shall, as against the Government, be called in question in any Civil Court whatever.

Attachment and letting to farm not to be questioned in Civil Court.

CHAPTER VI.

SALES OF LAND FOR ARREARS OF LAND-REVENUE.

52. If the Deputy Commissioner is of opinion that an arrear of land-revenue cannot be recovered by any of the means hereinbefore mentioned, he may, with the previous sanction of the Financial Commissioner, sell by auction

Sale by auction.

any land in respect of which such arrear has accrued, or any share in land in respect of which share any such arrear has accrued, or any beneficial interest whatever in land other than that in respect of which such arrear has accrued, to which interest the person settled with for the land on which the arrear has accrued, is entitled, or any houses with their out-buildings, gardens, and land occupied therewith, or any assignments of land-revenue,

to which such person is entitled;

but no land shall be liable to be sold by auction in respect of an arrear of land-revenue,

if the land is subject to the Court of Wards, or if the Court of Wards has jurisdiction over it, and the arrear has accrued during the period of its being subject to the said Court or under its jurisdiction, or if the land is under attachment, and the arrear has accrued during such attachment, or if the land is held in farm by a person who is not a member of the village community within which the land is situated, and the arrear has accrued during the term for which it is let in farm.

53. The Financial Commissioner shall direct either that the land shall be sold free from incumbrances, or that it shall be sold subject to incumbrances:

Land to be sold free or subject to incumbrances.

(1) if the land is to be sold free from incumbrances, all beneficial interests in the land which may have been created by the defaulter, or those through whom he claims since the date of the last settlement, and all contracts between him or them and the occupiers of the land, except beneficial leases granted in consideration of the erection of substantial improvements to be executed by the lessee on the property leased, shall become void as against the purchaser at the sale by auction:

(2) if the land is to be sold subject to incumbrances, the purchaser at the sale by auction shall purchase only the interests which belonged to the person liable to the arrear, and shall be bound by all transactions in respect of the creation of subordinate beneficial interests in the land, and by all leases by which that person would have been bound:

(3) if the land is to be sold subject to incumbrances, and if the sale does not produce an amount equal to the arrear due at the time of sale, or if it shall appear necessary to the Financial Commissioner, in order to secure the payment of the arrears of revenue due, the Financial Commissioner may direct the sale to be set aside and the land to be sold free from incumbrances at any time before the sale becomes final, as hereinafter mentioned.

54. The procedure hereinafter described shall be observed when it is determined to sell any land by auction for an arrear of land-revenue, and when the sanction of the Financial Commissioner to such sale has been obtained.

Procedure on sale.

55. The Deputy Commissioner may direct the land to be attached until the sale.

Attachment till sale.

56. The Deputy Commissioner shall publish a notification specifying the nature and amount of the arrear in respect of which the land is to be sold, and declaring that it will be sold accordingly, unless such arrear is paid within fifteen days from the date of the notice.

Notification.

57. Any person may deposit the amount of the arrear with the Deputy Commissioner at any time before sunset on the last day appointed in the notice for payment, and thereupon the sale shall be stayed, and the arrear shall be considered at sunset to have been paid by such person, unless before sunset the defaulter pays the arrear, in which case the sum deposited shall be repaid to the person who deposited it.

Who may deposit arrear.

58. Any Civil Court in which a suit is pending for the possession of the land, or of any portion of the land, in respect of which the arrear is due, may order the person making such deposit to be placed in temporary possession of the land subject to the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure for giving security, pending the determination of an appeal; and if the person who made the deposit proves that the deposit was made to protect interests which would have been endangered or damaged by the sale of the land, the Court shall give a decree in his favour against the proprietor for the amount deposited.

Effect of deposit.

59. If the arrear is not paid according to the first notification, the Deputy Commissioner shall issue a second notification specifying the interests which are to be sold, and the day on which the sale is to commence, which day must be not less than fifteen nor more than thirty days from the date of the notification, and warning all subordinate holders of or lessees of the land to pay no more rent to the defaulter.

Notification for sale.

No person who pays any such rent after the date of such notification shall be entitled to credit therefor as against the purchaser at the sale by auction.

60. If the land has not been attached previously to the notification mentioned in section fifty-nine, it shall be attached upon the issue of such notification.

Attachment.

61. Upon the day fixed in the second notification, the land shall be offered for sale by the Commissioner of the district or by a Deputy Commissioner in the land-revenue office at the head quarters of the district, unless the Financial Commissioner directs the sale to be held elsewhere.

Offer for sale.

62. The officer who is to conduct the sale may adjourn it, if from any unavoidable cause he is unable either to commence or to complete it.

Adjournment of sale.

63. If the land to be sold is a share in land held by co-sharers whether members of a village community or not, and if the purchaser is not a co-sharer, any co-sharer may, on the day of sale, and before the officer conducting the sale has left the place of sale, and if he is ready to comply with the provisions as to deposit and payment hereafter contained, demand the share at the price bid for it by the purchaser.

Sale of share, pre-emption.

64. If the purchaser is not a co-sharer, he shall, by the act of purchase, become a co-sharer, and shall be subject to all the liabilities and customs to which the defaulting proprietor was subject.

Purchaser of share becomes co-sharer.

65. Land shall not be sold to any person, other than a co-sharer, for any amount less than the arrear of revenue due thereon, and if no bid to that amount is made, the land may be withdrawn from sale, or it may be bought on behalf of Government at the price of one rupee: Provided that no share in land shall be purchased on account of Government.

Land not to be sold for less than arrear of revenue.

66. The purchaser at any such sale shall deposit immediately in cash, notes or State securities, duly endorsed, twenty-five per cent. on the amount bid by him. If he fails to do so, the land shall be exposed to sale again, and he shall be considered to have committed a contempt within the meaning of Chapter X of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and the officer conducting the sale shall have power to proceed against him in the manner prescribed in the Code of Criminal Procedure.

Deposit.

67. The remainder of the purchase-money shall be paid before sunset on the thirtieth day from the day on which the sale took place, or, if the thirtieth day be a holiday, then on the first office day after that day, and, in default of such payment, the deposit shall be forfeited, and the sale shall become void, and the land shall be re-sold.

Payment of balance.

68. Before such re-sale, a notification, similar to the one mentioned in section fifty-nine, shall be issued, but it shall not issue till three clear days after the default.

Re-sale.

69. If, upon re-sale of the land, the price ultimately received is less than the price offered by the defaulting bidder, the difference shall be regarded as an arrear of land-revenue due from him, and may be recovered as such; and if more bidders than one make default, they shall be jointly and severally liable to the extent of their respective bids for such difference, and the amount ultimately recovered shall be credited to the person in respect of whose default the land was sold.

Loss on re-sale an arrear of revenue.

70. Whenever a deposit is forfeited, the defaulting proprietor of the land may pay or tender payment of the arrear for which the land was exposed to sale, and such payment or tender shall prevent any re-sale.

On forfeiture of deposit defaulter may tender arrear.

71. Any person whose interest in land has been sold by auction may, within fifteen days from the sale, appeal to the Commissioner of the division in which the sale is held, and the Commissioner may, if he considers that the sale has been illegally conducted, annul the sale, or, if he thinks that the sale ought to be annulled on any other ground, recommend the Local Government to annul it, and the Local Government may do so if it thinks proper. If the sale is annulled, the deposit shall be returned to the purchaser with interest at the rate of five per cent. per annum from the time when the deposit was made.

Appeal against sale.

72. If the purchase-money has been paid, and if no appeal has been made, or if an appeal has been brought and dismissed, the sale shall become final on the thirtieth day from the date thereof. If an appeal against the sale is pending on that day, the sale shall not become final till the day on which the appeal is dismissed.

When sale becomes final.

73. No sale shall be set aside on any of the following grounds:—

Grounds on which sale may not be set aside.

(1) that a tender of the arrear was made after office hours on the last day specified in the second notification;

(2) that the defaulter had any claim against the Government;

(3) that the revenue due from the defaulter had been remitted, unless the Local Government admits it;

(4) that money belonging to the defaulter and sufficient to satisfy the whole or any part of the arrear was in any Government treasury, unless the defaulter had an exclusive and undisputed property therein, and unless, after application by the defaulter within the time specified in the notification that such money shall be applied to the satisfaction of the arrear, the Deputy Commissioner neglected or refused upon insufficient grounds so to apply it;

(5) that the land sold does not belong to the defaulter.

74. No such sale as aforesaid shall be set aside or annulled by any Civil Court, except on the ground that the land sold was not the land on which the arrear of revenue in respect of which it was sold was due, or on account of a breach of the rules hereinbefore contained; but any person aggrieved by any act or omission of any public officer in reference to any such sale, may sue such officer or the Government therefor.

Civil Court may not annul sale.

75. When the sale becomes final, the Deputy Commissioner of the district shall give the purchaser a certificate of title in the following form:—

Certificate of title.

76. The Deputy Commissioner of the district shall publish a notification of the transfer of the property of the said land to the purchaser.

Notification of transfer.

77. The purchase-money shall be applied as follows:—

Application of purchase-money.

(1) to the payment of the arrear due on the latest day of payment;

(2) to the payment of any other arrear of land-revenue due by the same person;

(3) the surplus shall be paid to the late proprietor, or, if the land were held in shares, then to the co-sharers collectively or according to the amount of their respective interests at the discretion of the Deputy Commissioner.

78. The surplus shall not be payable to any creditor of the late proprietor on his demand, and shall not be retained in the land-revenue treasury, except under precept of a Court of civil judicature, and in satisfaction of a decree of such Court; and, whenever the surplus of purchase-money has been in any such case paid to the creditors of the proprietor under a precept of a Court of civil judicature, and a decree annulling the sale is afterwards passed, the proprietor shall not be restored to possession, until the amount so paid be returned by him with interest.

Surplus.

No Court shall entertain any suit to oust the certified purchaser on the ground that the purchase was made on behalf of any person other than the certified purchaser, though by agreement the name of the certified purchaser was used.

79. The person named in the certificate of title as purchaser shall be liable for all instalments of land-revenue which may fall due subsequently to the latest date of payment aforesaid.

Purchaser's liability.

80. When a sale is reversed by a decree of a Civil Court of judicature, the purchase-money shall be refunded with interest at five per cent. per annum.

Refund of purchase-money.

POWER TO LOCAL GOVERNMENT TO MAKE RULES.

83. The Local Government may, from time to time, make rules not inconsistent with this Act, for the purpose of carrying it into effect, and such rules, as well as rules on the matters hereinbefore specially referred to, shall have the force of law if the following conditions are fulfilled, but not otherwise:—

Local Government to make rules.

(1) if the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council is obtained to such rules;

(2) if they are published in the Gazette as rules having the force of law.

The Local Government may at any time alter or cancel any such rules.

84. All rules having the force of law made under this Act shall, with the previous sanction of the Government of India, be re-published every year in the month of June, and upon such re-publication, all such rules shall be arranged in the order of their subject-matter, and all such alterations or amendments as may have been made in the course of the preceding year, or may have become necessary or advisable, shall be embodied therewith, and upon such re-publication all previous rules shall be repealed.

Re-publication of rules.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The object of this Bill is to express in a single enactment and in unambiguous language the various rules and orders having the force of law by which the proceedings of Revenue and Settlement Officials in the Panjáb are at present governed; to prescribe with distinctness the course of procedure which is to be followed in the assessment of revenue, and in the compilation and correction of the record of rights; and to define precisely the effects of the decisions passed and facts recorded by officers in the course of a settlement.

No express law on these subjects has ever been passed for the Panjáb, and the Regulations by which Settlement Officers were originally instructed to guide their proceedings are couched in language which is in some cases inappropriate to the peculiar circumstances of land tenure in the Province, in others vague, obsolete, or otherwise inappropriate.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Indian Weights and Measures Act, 1870, having been disallowed, it is now proposed to re-enact such portions of that Act as were not objected to by the Secretary of State. The present Bill is, therefore, practically a re-enactment of Act XI of 1870, with the omission of the provisions which referred to measures of length and area, or authorized Government to compel the adoption of the new weights in particular cases.

To ditto ditto, No. 1044, dated 28th September 1871.

We have made the Bill applicable to the Panjáb only, instead of to the North-Western Provinces, the Panjáb, Oudh, and the Central Provinces. This change has been made on account of the difficulty of adapting the provisions of the Bill to the circumstances of the whole of the territory to which it was first proposed to extend it, in such a way as to keep what was suitable for each Province.

We have omitted from the preamble of the Bill the words "subject, in certain cases, to rights acquired by usage or grant," and have detailed the rights which may be so acquired in another part of the Bill. We have altered Part II of the Bill considerably, with a view to simplify it and improve the arrangement of the subjects, and we have, in section seven, defined the matters in which rights may be acquired in Government waters, for which compensation shall be awarded when the supply of water is stopped or diminished; the matters in which no rights shall be deemed to have accrued, and for which no compensation shall be given on account of loss or diminution of the supply of water; the measure of compensation to be awarded when the market-value of the property is not ascertainable, and the conditions under which such rights can be in future acquired.

Part III of the Bill has been re-arranged and simplified; but its provisions are, in the main, unaltered. In section twenty-eight, we have provided more distinctly than was done in the original Bill, that compensation for land occupied for private water-courses may be awarded either in the manner prescribed by Act X of 1870, by a permanent alienation, or by a rent charge payable by the occupier, at the option of the person to be compensated. Sections thirty-one and thirty-two, regarding conditions of the supply of water, have been so framed as to leave the Government freedom as to the disposal of the water of a canal, and to prevent the growth of prescriptive rights to any particular measure of water which might hereafter prevent the expansion and extension of irrigation.

We have re-arranged and modified Chapter IV of the original Bill, regarding charges for the use of canal water, and have omitted the provisions originally made for punitive stoppages of water-supply.

In sections thirty-seven to forty-three of the Bill, as amended, we have defined "the owner's rate"—the conditions under which it may be imposed, the limit of the rate, and the persons liable to pay it—more fully than in the original Bill.

We have so modified the provisions of the original Bill regarding the rates on land irrigable, but not irrigated, as to avoid the possibility of their being needlessly or oppressively enforced.

Sections fifty-four to sixty-seven of the Bill, as amended, are substantially the same as in the Bill as introduced.

Sections sixty-eight to seventy-one contain the provisions which relate to the mode in which labour may be obtained for repairing canals on emergencies and for effecting necessary annual silt clearances. The system of statute labour does already exist in the Panjáb, and we have prescribed the conditions under which it may be exacted, and have empowered the Local Government to make rules regarding the payment of labourers, and for regulating the exercise of the power of calling out such labour.

In Part VII, we have empowered divisional canal officers to decide summarily disputes regarding the use, construction, or maintenance of water-courses, or to refer them to the Deputy Commissioner; and we have made such summary decisions final for the time which is required for ripening any crop which is on the ground, by restraining the Civil Courts from decreeing specific performance.

In Part VIII of the Bill, as amended, we have defined the offences regarding canals, which we consider should be made punishable, and the penalties which may be inflicted. These are mainly the same as in the Bill introduced.

In section seventy-nine, we have given the Local Government general power to frame rules with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, and have thus obviated the necessity of constant reference to the powers in the several sections of the Bill.

We recommend that the Bill, as thus amended, be passed.

SIMLA,
The 12th October 1871.

I cannot subscribe the recommendation "that this Bill be passed," because I dissent from some of its most important provisions on the following considerations:

1st.—That it is highly inexpedient to curtail, in the manner proposed, the local extent of the enactment, of which the essential provisions in regard to the acquisition of water-courses, the construction and maintenance of irrigation and drainage works, and the general administration of the whole system of canal irrigation, are no less, if not more, urgently needed in the North-Western Provinces than in the Panjáb.

2nd.—That the impressment of manual labour, except under emergent circumstances where danger to life and property is reasonably to be apprehended, is unjustifiable.

3rd.—That to tax any particular classes, as is contemplated by the provisions in regard to the levy of a special rate on lands not irrigated, for assumed benefits of which they may have, for good and substantial reasons, elected not to avail themselves, is wholly inequitable.

Issue of declaration by Local Government.

5. Whenever it appears expedient to the Local Government that the water of any river, stream, lake, natural drainage channel or other collection of water should be applied by the Government for the purpose of any existing or projected canal or drainage-work, such Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, declare that the said water will be so applied by the Government after a day to be named in the said notification not being earlier than three months from the date thereof.

Canal officer may take possession.

6. At any time after the day so named, any Canal officer acting under the orders of the Local Government in this behalf may enter on any land and remove any obstructions, and may close any channels, and do any other thing necessary for such application of the said water.

8. Compensation may be allowed in respect of any of the following matters—

(2.) Stoppage or diminution of supply of water to any work erected for purposes of profit on any channel, natural or artificial, in use at the passing of this Act.

11. Every tenant holding under an unexpired lease, who is in occupation of any land at the time when any stoppage or diminution of water-supply, in respect of which compensation is allowed under section eight, takes place, may claim an abatement of the rent previously payable by him for the said land on the ground that the interruption reduces the value of the holding.

Tenants how to be dealt with if irrigation be restored.

12. If a water-supply increasing the value of such holding is afterwards restored to the said land, the rent of any such tenant of such land may be enhanced, in respect of the increased value of such land due to the restored water-supply, to an amount not exceeding that at which it stood before the abatement.

Compensation when payable.

13. All sums of money payable for compensation under this Part shall be held to be due three months after the claim is made in respect of such stoppage or diminution; and simple interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum shall be allowed on any such sum remaining unpaid after the said three months.

SPECIAL POWERS OF CANAL OFFICERS IN RELATION TO SURVEYS, CONSTRUCTION AND MAINTENANCE OF WORKS, AND DECISION OF DIFFERENCES REGARDING WATER-COURSES.

Surveys.

Canal officer may enter upon lands for survey.

14. Any Canal officer and any person acting under the general or special order of a Canal officer, may enter upon any lands adjacent to any canal, or through which any canal is proposed to be made, and undertake surveys or levels thereon; and dig and bore into the sub-soil; and make and set up suitable land-marks, level marks, and water-gauges;

and do all other acts necessary for the proper prosecution of any enquiry relating to any existing or projected canal under the charge of the said Canal officer;

Power to clear land.

and, where otherwise such enquiry cannot be completed, may cut down and clear away any part of any standing crop, fence or jungle;

Power of inspection.

and may also enter upon any land, building or water-course on account of which any water-rate is chargeable, for the purpose of inspecting or regulating the use of the water supplied or of measuring the lands irrigated thereby or chargeable with a water-rate, and of doing all things necessary for the proper regulation and management of any such canal:

Entry into houses.

Provided that if such Canal officer or person proposes to enter into any building, or enclosed court or garden attached to a dwelling house not supplied with water flowing from any canal, he must previously give the occupier of such building, court or garden at least seven days' notice in writing of his intention to do so.

In every case of entry under this section such Canal officer shall at the time of such entry tender compensation for any damage which may be occasioned as aforesaid, and in case of dispute as to the sufficiency of the amount so tendered, he shall forthwith refer the same for decision by the Deputy Commissioner, and such decision shall be final.

Payment for damage.

Entry on Lands in case of Accidents.

15. In case of any accident happening or being apprehended to a canal, any Divisional Canal officer and any person acting under his general or special orders, may enter upon any lands adjacent to the canal, and may execute all works which may be necessary for the purpose of repairing or preventing such accident.

May enter upon lands in case of accidents.

In every such case, such Canal officer or person shall tender compensation to the proprietors or occupiers of the said lands for all injury done to the same. If such tender is not accepted, the Canal officer shall refer the matter to the Deputy Commissioner who shall proceed to award compensation for the land as though the Local Government had directed its occupation under section forty-three of Act No. X of 1870.

Compensation how to be made.

Construction and Maintenance of Works.

16. Any person or persons desiring to use the water of any canal, may make an application in writing to the Divisional or Sub-Divisional Canal officer of the Division or Sub-Division of the Canal from which the water-course is to be supplied, requesting such officer to construct or improve a water-course at the cost of the applicant.

May construct water-courses at expense of applicants.

The application shall state the works to be undertaken, their approximate estimated cost, or the amount which the applicant is willing to pay for the same, or whether he engages to pay the actual cost as settled by the Divisional Canal officer, and how the payment is to be made.

When the assent of the Superintending Canal officer is given to such application, all the persons who have signed it shall be jointly and severally liable for the cost of such works to the extent mentioned therein.

Any amount becoming due under the terms of such an application which is not paid to the Divisional Canal officer or the person authorized by him to receive the same, on or before the date on which the payment becomes due, shall, on the demand of such officer, be recoverable by the Deputy Commissioner as if it were an arrear of land-revenue.

17. There shall be provided at the cost of Government suitable means of crossing canals, constructed or maintained at the cost of Government, at such places as the Local Government thinks necessary for the reasonable convenience of the inhabitants of the adjacent lands. On an application in writing, signed by not less than five persons who are owners of such lands, to the effect that suitable crossings have not been provided on any canal, the Deputy Commissioner shall cause enquiry to be made into the circumstances of the case, and if he thinks that the allegation is established, he shall report his opinion thereon for the consideration of the Local Government, and the Local Government shall cause such measures in reference thereto to be taken as it thinks proper.

Government to supply means of crossing canals.

18. The Divisional Canal officer may issue an order to the person or persons using any water-course to construct suitable bridges, culverts, or other works for the passage of the water of such water-course across any public road, canal or drainage-channel, which was in use before the said water-course was made, or to repair any such works.

May require construction of works to pass water across roads, water-courses and drainage-channels.

Such order shall specify a reasonable period within which such construction or repairs shall be completed; and if, after the receipt of such order, the person to whom it is addressed does not, within the said period, construct or repair such works to the satisfaction of the said Canal officer, such officer may, with the previous approval of the Superintending Canal officer, himself construct or repair the same; and if the said person shall not, when required to do so, pay the cost of the work or repairs as declared by the Divisional Canal officer, the amount shall be recoverable from the said person on the demand of the Divisional Canal officer by the Deputy Commissioner, as if it were an arrear of land-revenue.

19. If any person jointly responsible with others for the construction or maintenance of a water-course, or jointly making use of a water-course with others, neglects or refuses to pay his share of the cost of such construction or maintenance, or to execute his share of any work necessary for such construction or maintenance, the Divisional or Sub-Divisional Canal officer, on receiving an application from any person injured by such neglect or refusal, shall give a fortnight's notice to all the parties concerned that he is about to investigate the case, and shall, on the expiration of that period, investigate the case accordingly, and make such order thereon as to him seems fit. Such order shall be appealable to the Commissioner, whose order shall be final.

May settle disputes as to cost of construction and maintenance of water-courses.

If such order direct the payment of any sum to be made within a specified period, such sum may, if not paid within such period, be recovered by the Deputy Commissioner from the person directed to pay the same, as if it were an arrear of land-revenue.

20. Whenever application is made to a Divisional Canal officer for a supply of water from a canal, and it appears to him expedient that such supply should be given, and that it should be conveyed through some existing water-course, he shall give notice to the person or persons responsible for the maintenance of such water-course to show cause, on a day not less than fourteen days from the date of such notice, why the said supply should not be so conveyed; and, after making enquiry on such day, the Divisional Canal officer shall determine whether and on what conditions the said supply shall be conveyed through such water-course.

May give right of passage of water through a water-course, and prescribe the conditions of such grant of passage.

When such officer determines that a supply of canal-water may be conveyed through any water-course as aforesaid, his decision shall, when confirmed or modified by the Superintending Canal officer, be binding on the applicant and also on the persons responsible for the maintenance of the said water-course.

Such applicant shall not be entitled to use such water-course until he has paid the expense of any alteration of such water-course necessary in order to his being supplied through it, and also such share of the first cost of such water-course as the Divisional or Superintending Canal officer shall determine.

Such applicant shall also be liable for his share of the cost of maintenance of such water-course so long as he uses it.

21. Any person desiring the construction of a new water-course may apply in writing to the Divisional Canal officer, stating

Application for construction of a water-course.

(3) that he is able to defray all costs involved in acquiring such land and constructing such water-course.

22. If the Divisional Canal officer considers

Procedure of Divisional Canal officer thereupon.

(1) that the construction of such water-course is expedient, and

(2) that the statements in the application are true,

he shall call upon the applicant to make such deposit as he considers necessary to defray the cost of the preliminary proceedings and the amount of any compensation which may become due under section twenty-eight;

and, upon such deposit being made, shall cause inquiry to be made into the most suitable alignment for the said water-course, and shall mark out the land which, in his opinion, it will be necessary to occupy for the construction thereof, and shall forthwith publish a notice in every village through which the water-course is proposed to be taken, that so much of such land as belongs to such village has been so marked out, and shall send a copy of the notice to the Deputy Commissioner of every district in which any part of such land is situate.

23. Any person desiring that an existing water-course should be transferred from its present owner to himself, may apply in writing to the Divisional Canal officer, stating

Application for transfer of a water-course.

(1) that he has been unable to come to terms with the owner of such water-course;

(2) that he desires the said Canal officer, in his behalf and at his cost, to do all things necessary for the transfer to him of such water-course;

(3) that he is able to defray the cost of such transfer.

If the Divisional Canal officer considers

(1) that the said transfer is expedient,

(2) that the statements in the application are true,

he shall call upon the applicant to make such deposit as he considers necessary to defray the cost of the preliminary proceedings, and the amount of any compensation that may become due under the provisions of section twenty-eight in respect of such transfer;

and, upon such deposit being made, he shall publish a notice of the application in every village through which the said water-course passes, and shall send a copy of the notice to the Deputy Commissioner of every district through which such water-course passes.

24. Within thirty days from the publication of a notice under either of the two next preceding sections any person interested in the land or water-course to which the notice refers, may apply to the Deputy Commissioner by petition, stating his objection to the construction or transfer for which application has been made. The Deputy Commissioner may either reject the petition or may proceed to inquire into the validity of the objection, giving previous notice to the Divisional Canal officer of the place and time at which such inquiry will be held. The Deputy Commissioner shall record in writing all orders passed by him under this section and the grounds thereof.

Objections to be made to Deputy Commissioner.

25. If no such objection is made, or if the Deputy Commissioner overrules the objections made, he shall give notice to the Divisional Canal officer to that effect, and shall proceed forthwith to place the said applicant in occupation of land marked out or of the water-course to be transferred, as the case may be.

Deputy Commissioner may give occupation of land;

26. If the Deputy Commissioner considers any objection taken as aforesaid to be valid, he shall inform the Divisional Canal officer accordingly; and, if such officer sees fit, he may, in the case of an application under section twenty-one, alter the boundaries of the land so marked out, and may give fresh notices under section twenty-two; and the procedure hereinbefore provided shall be applicable to such notice, and the Deputy Commissioner shall thereupon proceed as before provided.

or may state objections to Canal officer.

27. If the Canal officer disagrees with the Deputy Commissioner, the matter shall be referred for decision to the Commissioner. Such decision shall be final, and the Deputy Commissioner, if he is so directed by such decision, shall forthwith cause the said applicant to be placed in occupation of land so marked out or of the water-course to be transferred, as the case may be.

Determination of differences between Deputy Commissioner and Canal officer.

28. No such applicant shall be placed in occupation of such land or water-course, until he has paid to the person named by the Deputy Commissioner such amount as the Deputy Commissioner shall determine to be due as compensation for the land or water-course so occupied or transferred, and for any damage occasioned by the marking out and occupation of such land, together with all expenses incidental to such occupation or transfer.

Conditions to be complied with previous to giving occupation of land.

In determining the compensation to be made under this section, the Deputy Commissioner shall proceed under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870; but he may, if the person to be compensated so wish, award such compensation in the form of a rent charge payable in respect of the land or water-course occupied or transferred.

If such compensation and expenses are not paid when demanded by the person entitled to receive the same, the amount may be recovered by the Deputy Commissioner as if it were an arrear of land-revenue, and shall, when recovered, be paid by him to the person entitled to receive the same.

Conditions binding to secure continuance of occupation.

29. When any such applicant is placed in occupation of land or of a water-course as aforesaid, the following rules and conditions shall be binding on him and his representative in interest:—

First.—All works necessary for the passage across such water-course of water-courses existing previous to its construction and of the drainage intercepted by it, and for affording proper communications across it for the convenience of the neighbouring lands, shall be constructed by the applicant, and be maintained by him or his representative in interest to the satisfaction of the Divisional Canal officer.

Second.—Land occupied for a water-course under the provisions of section twenty-four shall be used only for the purpose of such water-course.

Third.—The proposed water-course shall be completed to the satisfaction of the Divisional Canal officer within one year after occupation of the land is given to the applicant.

In cases in which land is occupied or a water-course is transferred on the terms of a rent charge,

Fourth.—the applicant or his representative in interest shall, so long as he occupies such land or water-course, pay rent for the same at such rate and on such days as shall be determined by the Deputy Commissioner when occupation is given.

Fifth.—If the right to occupy the land shall cease owing to a breach of any of these rules, the liability to pay the said rent shall continue until the applicant or his representative in interest has restored the land to its original condition, or until he has paid by way of compensation for any injury done to the said land such amount and to such persons as the Deputy Commissioner shall determine.

Sixth.—The Deputy Commissioner may, on the application of the person entitled to receive such rent or compensation, determine the amount of rent due or assess the amount of such compensation, and if any such be not paid by the applicant or his representative in interest, the Deputy Commissioner may recover the amount, with interest thereon at the rate of six per centum per annum from the date on which it became due, as if it were an arrear of land-revenue, and shall pay the same, when recovered, to the persons to whom it is due.

If any rules of the or conditions prescribed by this section is not complied with, or if any water-course constructed or transferred under this Act, is disused for three years continuously, the right of the applicant, or of his representative in interest to occupy such land or water-course, shall cease absolutely.

Land for the extension of water-courses to be obtained under same procedure.

30. The procedure hereinbefore provided for the occupation of land for the construction of a water-course shall be applicable to the occupation of land for any extension or alteration of a water-course, and for the deposit of soil from water-course clearances.

Conditions of the supply of water.

Rates and conditions for supplying water in absence of written agreement.

31. In the absence of a written agreement, or so far as any such agreement does not extend, every supply of canal-water shall be deemed to be given at the rates and subject to the conditions prescribed by the rules to be issued by the Local Governments in respect thereof.

Conditions of such rules.

32. Such contracts and such rules shall be consistent with the following conditions:

Canal officer may stop admission of water into water-courses in certain cases.

(a.) The Divisional Canal officer may not stop the supply of water to any water-course, or to any person except in the following cases:

(1) whenever and so long as it is necessary to stop such supply for the purpose of executing any work ordered by competent authority, and with the previous consent of the Local Government,

(2) whenever and so long as any water-course is not maintained in such proper customary repair as to prevent the wasteful escape of water therefrom.

Failure of supply in certain cases only to give claim to remission of water-rates.

(b.) No claim shall be made against the Government for compensation in respect of loss caused by the failure or stoppage of the water in a canal by reason of any cause beyond the control of the Government, or of any repairs, alterations or additions to the canal, or of measures taken for regulating the proper flow of water therein, or for maintaining the established course of irrigation which the Divisional Canal officer considers necessary; but the person who suffers such loss may claim such remission of the ordinary charges payable for the use of the water as shall be authorized by the Local Government.

Compensation for loss arising from interruption of water-supply when to be given.

(c.) If the supply of water to any land irrigated from a canal be interrupted otherwise than in the manner described in the preceding clause, the occupier or owner of such land may present a petition for compensation to the Deputy Commissioner for any loss arising from such interruption, and the Deputy Commissioner may award reasonable compensation. Such award shall be final unless the Local Government shall otherwise direct.

Continuance of supply.

(d.) When the water of a canal is supplied for the irrigation of a single crop, the permission to use such water shall be held to endure only until that crop shall come to maturity, and to apply only to that crop; but if it be supplied for irrigating two or more crops to be raised on the same land within the year, such permission shall be held to be for one year from the commencement of the irrigation, and to apply to such crops only as are matured within that year:

Sale or sub-letting of canal-water prohibited.

(e) Unless with the permission of the Superintending Canal officer, no person entitled to use the water of any canal or any work, building or land appertaining to any canal, shall sell or sub-let or otherwise transfer his right to such use; but all contracts made between Government and the owner or occupier of any land or other property as to the supply of canal-water to such land or property, shall be transferable with such land or property, and shall be presumed to have been so transferred whenever a transfer of such land or property takes place.

Contracts for water transferable with the land.

No right to arise from user.

(f.) No prescriptive right to the use of the water of a canal can be acquired by user or lapse of time, nor shall Government be bound to supply any person with water except in accordance with the terms of a specific agreement.

Liability to Charges.

Liability when person causing waste cannot be identified.

33. If water supplied through a water-course be used in an unauthorized manner, and if the person, by whose act or neglect such use has occurred, cannot be identified, the person on whose land such water has flowed, if such land has derived benefit therefrom, and if he cannot be identified, or if such land has not derived benefit therefrom, all the persons chargeable in respect of the water supplied through such water-course shall be jointly liable to the charges made for such use.

All charges for the unauthorized use or for waste of water may be recovered in addition to any penalties incurred on account of such use or waste.

All questions under this section shall be decided by the Divisional Canal officer, and his decision shall be final unless the Local Government shall otherwise direct.

Liability when water runs to waste.

34. If water supplied through a water-course be suffered to run to waste, and if, after enquiry by the Divisional Canal officer, the person through whose act or neglect such water was suffered to run to waste, cannot be discovered, all the persons chargeable in respect of the water supplied through such water-course shall be jointly liable for the charges made in respect of the water so wasted.

Water-rate chargeable on owner of land of which profits divisible.

35. Where a water-rate is charged on land held by several joint owners, it shall be payable by the manager or other person who receives the rents or profits of such land, and may be deducted by him from such rents or profits before division, or may be recovered by him from the persons liable to such rate in the manner customary in the recovery of other charges on such rents or profits.

Water-rates on Irrigated Lands.

Charge on occupier for water for irrigation, or occupier's rate.

36. The rates to be charged for canal-water supplied for purposes of irrigation to the occupiers of land shall be determined by the rules to be made by the Local Government, and such occupiers as accept the water shall pay for it accordingly. A rate so charged shall be called the occupier's rate.

"Owner's rate."

37. In addition to the occupier's rate, a rate to be called the "owner's rate," may be imposed on the owners of canal-irrigated lands, in respect of the benefit which they derive from such irrigation.

The introduction of canal irrigation into any land shall have the same effect on the landlord's right to re-enhance the rent of a tenant with a right of occupancy of such land, as if a general revision of settlement had taken place under which the revenue payable in respect of such land had been increased.

Amount of owner's rate.

38. The owner's rate shall not exceed one-half of the increase produced by the canal-irrigation in the net annual value of the land in respect of which it is imposed.

When occupier is to pay both owner's rate and occupier's rate.

39. If such land is occupied by the owner, or if it is occupied by an occupier whose rent is not liable to enhancement on the ground that the value of the produce of the land or the productive powers of the land have been increased by irrigation, such owner or occupier shall pay the owner's rate as well as the occupier's rate.

Local Government to make rules for apportioning owner's rate.

40. In the case of a tenant with a right of occupancy, the Local Government shall make rules for dividing the owner's rate between the landlord and such tenant proportionately to the extent of the beneficial interest of each.

When owner is to pay owner's rate.

41. If the owner of the land is not the occupier, but has power to enhance the rent of the occupier on the ground that the value of the produce or the productive powers of the land have been increased by irrigation, or if, when the amount of rent was fixed, the land was irrigated from the canal, the owner shall pay the owner's rate.

No owner's rate to be chargeable on land assessed to pay revenue at irrigated rates till corresponding reduction has been made in revenue.

42. No owner's rate shall be chargeable either on the owner or occupier of land assessed to pay land-revenue at canal-irrigation rates, unless a reduction has been made in such land-revenue equal to the amount by which it has been increased on account of the canal-irrigation of the land:

Provided that the owner's rate shall in no case, during the currency of an unexpired settlement, exceed the amount by which such land-revenue was so reduced.

43. A tenant not liable to enhancement of rent on the ground stated in section thirty-one, who is charged with, and pays the owner's rate on land assessed at canal-irrigation rates, may deduct from his rent a sum equal to any sum which may, under the last section, be deducted from the revenue payable by the owner of the land.

Tenants liable to pay owner's rate under certain circumstances.

Water-rate on Lands irrigable but not irrigated.

44. At any time not less than five years after the commencement of irrigation from any canal, the Local Government may order an inquiry to be made by an officer appointed for that purpose into the condition of such canal and the irrigation therefrom. If, upon the report of such officer, the Local Government is satisfied that the owners or occupiers of lands irrigable by such canal have not made reasonable use of the canal for purposes of irrigation, the Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, issue a notification in the official Gazette declaring that the owners of such lands within local limits, to be specified in the notification, shall be charged with a special rate according to the provisions hereinafter contained.

Special rate on irrigable land may be charged.

45. Such special rate shall be levied yearly or half-yearly as Local Government shall direct.

Special rate how to be levied.

46. No such special rate shall exceed one rupee per half-year per acre of land in respect of which the rate is charged.

Amount of special rate.

47. No such special rate shall be charged in respect of any land, if during the year or half-year (as the case may be) in respect to which such yearly or half-yearly rate might otherwise be claimed, water sufficient for the irrigation of such land has not been supplied when required by the owner or occupier thereof.

Bar of special rate in case of failure to supply sufficient water.

48. For the purposes of section forty-four, land shall be deemed irrigable by a canal when the following conditions are complied with in respect thereto:—

Irrigable lands defined.

(a.)—That it is cultivated and not irrigated;

(b.)—That the net annual value of the produce of the land or the productive powers thereof, will be increased by the irrigation thereof by canal water, after deducting all necessary charges incurred in cultivating the same, conveying the water thereto, and paying all Government charges in respect of such irrigation;

(c.)—That the Divisional Canal officer shall have tendered to the occupier or owner thereof a supply of canal-water sufficient for the irrigation thereof in the manner customary in the irrigation of land from a canal;

(d.)—That the Divisional Canal officer shall have offered to the said occupier or owner to construct the works necessary for conveying the water to the said land under section sixteen, or (if the said occupier or owner shall so prefer) to apply the provisions of sections twenty-one to twenty-four for the construction or transfer of a water-course, or shall have tendered an advance of money sufficient to provide for the construction of the said works; such advance to be re-payable in conformity with the rules for recovering advances made under the Act for the time being in force as to advances for improvements in land.

If any question shall arise whether the said conditions are complied with or not in respect of any land, it shall be determined in the same manner as suits relating to rent under the law for the time being in force.

49. The provisions of sections thirty-nine, forty, and forty-one shall apply to the payment of a special rate charged under section forty-four, as though such rate had been an owner's rate.

Recovery of special rate from occupier.

Water-rate on land benefited by percolation.

50. If it shall appear to the Divisional Canal officer that any cultivated land situate within three hundred yards of the edge of any canal maintained by Government receives by percolation from such canal an advantage equivalent to that which would be given by a direct supply of canal-water for irrigation, he may charge on such land a water-rate not exceeding that which would ordinarily have been charged for such a supply to land similarly cultivated. For the purposes of this Act land charged under this section shall be deemed to be land irrigated from a canal.

Neighbouring land indirectly benefited by canal.

Recovery of charges.

51. Any sum, certified by the Divisional Canal officer to be lawfully due under this Act, which remains unpaid after the day on which the same becomes due, shall be recoverable by the Deputy Commissioner from the person liable for the same as though it were an arrear of land-revenue.

Canal dues may be recovered as land-revenue on certificate of Canal officer.

52. The Divisional Canal officer or the Deputy Commissioner may enter into an agreement with any person for the collection and payment to the Government by such person of any sum payable under this Act by a third party.

Powers to collect canal-dues may be given to certain persons.

When such agreement has been made, such person may recover such sum by suit as though it were a debt due to him, or an arrear of rent due to him on account of the land, work or building in respect of which such sum is payable, or for or in which the canal-water shall have been supplied or used.

If such person shall make default in the payment of any sum collected by him under this section, such sum may be recovered from him by the Deputy Commissioner under section fifty-one, and if such sum or any part of it be still due by such third party then such sum or such part of it may be recovered in like manner by the Deputy Commissioner from such third party.

53. The Deputy Commissioner may require the lambardár or person under engagement to pay the land-revenue of any estate to collect and pay any sums payable under this Act by a third party in respect of any land or water, in such estate.

Lambardárs may be required to collect canal-dues.

PART IV.

NAVIGATION.

54. Any vessel which enters or navigates any canal contrary to the rules made in that behalf by the Local Government, or so as to cause danger to the canal or the vessels therein, may be removed and detained by the Divisional Canal officer, or by any person duly authorized in that behalf.

Detainer of vessels violating rules.

The owner of any vessel causing damage to a canal or removed or detained under this section, shall be liable to pay to the Government such sum as the Divisional Canal officer shall, with the approval of the Superintending Canal officer, determine to be necessary to defray the expenses of repairing such damage, or of such removal or detention, as the case may be.

Liability of owners of vessels causing damage.

55. A fine imposed, under the provisions of this Act, upon the owner of any vessel, or the servant or agent of such owner, or other person in charge of any vessel, for any offence in respect of the navigation of such vessel, may be recovered either in the manner prescribed by the Code of Criminal Procedure, or, if the Magistrate imposing the fine shall so direct, as though it were a charge due on account of such vessel.

Recovery of fines from persons navigating canals.

56. If any charge due under the provisions of this Part in respect of any vessel is not paid on demand to the person authorized to collect the same, the Divisional Canal officer may seize and detain such vessel and the furniture thereof, until the charge due, together with all expenses and additional charges arising from such seizure and detention, are paid in full.

Power to seize and detain vessel on failure of payment of charges due thereon.

57. If any charge due under the provisions of this Part in respect of any cargo or goods carried in a Government vessel on a canal, or stored on or in canal-lands or warehouses, is not paid on demand to the person authorized to collect the same, the Divisional Canal officer may seize such cargo or goods and detain them until the charge so due, together with all expenses and additional charges arising from such seizure and detention, be paid in full.

Power to seize cargo or goods, the charges due on which have not been paid.

58. Within a reasonable time after any such seizure, as is described in the two last preceding sections, the said Canal officer shall give notice to the owner or person in charge of the property seized that it or such portion of it as may be necessary, will, on a day to be named in the notice, but not sooner than fifteen days from the date of the notice, be sold in satisfaction of the claim on account of which such property was seized unless the claim be discharged before the day so named.

Recovery of such charges on failure of payment.

And if such claim be not so discharged, the said Canal officer may, on such day, sell the property seized, or such part thereof as may be necessary to yield the amount due, together with the expenses of such seizure and sale:

Provided that no greater part of the furniture of any vessel or of any cargo or goods shall be so sold than shall, as near as may be, suffice to cover the amounts due in respect of such vessel, cargo or goods.

The residue of such furniture, cargo or goods, and of the proceeds of the sale, shall be made over to the owner or person in charge of the same.

59. If any vessel be found abandoned in a canal, or any cargo or goods carried in a Government vessel on a canal or stored on or in canal lands or warehouses be left unclaimed for a period of two months, the Divisional Canal officer may take possession of the same. A Divisional officer so taking possession may publish a notice that, if such vessel and its contents, or such cargo or goods, are not claimed previously to a day to be named in the notice, not sooner than thirty days from the date of such notice, he will sell the same; and, if such vessel or cargo are not so claimed, he may at any time after the day named in the notice, proceed to sell the same.

Vessels found abandoned may be taken possession of and sold.

The said vessel and its contents, and the said cargo or goods, if unsold, or, if a sale have taken place, the proceeds of the sale, after paying all tolls, charges and expenses incurred by the Canal officer on account of the taking possession and sale, shall be made over to the owner of the same, when his ownership is established to the satisfaction of the Divisional Canal officer. If the Divisional Canal officer is doubtful to whom such property or proceeds of such sale should be made over, he may direct the property to be sold as aforesaid, and the proceeds of the sale to be paid into the district treasury, there to be held until the right thereto be decided by a court of competent jurisdiction.

Disposal of proceeds of sale.

PART V.

DRAINAGE.

Removal of obstructions of Drainage-channels.

60. Whenever it appears to the Local Government that injury to any land or the public health or public convenience has arisen or may arise from the obstruction of any river, stream or drainage-channel, such Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, prohibit, within limits to be defined in such notification, the formation of any obstruction, or, may within such limits, order the removal or other alteration of such obstruction. And thereupon, so much of the said river, stream, or drainage-channel as shall be comprised within such limits, shall be held to be a drainage-work as defined in this Act.

Local Government may prohibit obstruction of drainage-channels.

61. The Divisional Canal officer, or other person authorized by the Local Government in that behalf may after the publication of such notification, issue an order to the person causing or having control over any such obstruction to remove or alter the same.

After prohibition, obstructions may be removed.

If, within a time to be fixed in the order, such person shall not remove or alter such obstruction, the said Canal officer may himself remove or alter it; and if the person to whom the order was issued shall not, when called upon, pay the expenses involved in such removal or alteration, such expenses shall be recoverable from him or his representative as an arrear of land-revenue.

Improvement of drainage of Lands.

Local Government may cause schemes and estimates for necessary drainage-works to be prepared.

62. Whenever it appears to the Local Government that any drainage works are necessary for the improvement of any lands, or for the proper cultivation or irrigation thereof, or that protection from floods or other accumulations of water, or from erosion by a river is required for any lands, such Local Government may cause a scheme for such drainage works to be drawn up and published, together with an estimate of its cost and a statement of the proportion of such cost which the Government proposes to defray, and a schedule of the lands which it is proposed to make chargeable in respect of the scheme.

Powers of persons employed on such schemes.

63. The persons authorized by Government to draw up such scheme may exercise all or any of the powers conferred on Canal officers in section fourteen of this Act.

Drainage-rates may be levied on lands benefited by such works.

64. An annual rate, in respect of such scheme, may be charged on the owners of all lands which shall in the manner hereinafter provided be determined to be so chargeable.

Such rate shall be fixed as nearly as possible so as not to exceed either of the following limits:—

(1.) Six per centum per annum on the first cost of the said works, adding thereto the estimated cost of the annual maintenance and supervision of the same, and deducting therefrom the estimated income, if any, derived from the works, excluding the said rate:

(2.) In the case of agricultural land, one-half of the estimated increase to the annual value of the land due to the improvement to be effected by the works.

Such rate may be varied from time to time within such maximum by the said Government.

So far as any defect to be remedied is due to any canal, water-course, road or other work or obstruction, constructed or caused by the Government, or any person, a proportionate share of the cost of the drainage-works required for the remedy of the said defect, so far as it is due to such work or obstruction, shall be borne by the Government or such person.

Drainage-rates may be recovered as arrear of land-revenue.

65. Any such drainage-rate shall be recoverable as a water-rate.

Claims for compensation for loss caused by removal of obstructions how made.

66. Whenever, in pursuance of a notification made under section sixty, any obstruction is removed, or whenever any drainage-work is carried out under section sixty-two, all claims for compensation on account of any loss consequent on the removal of the said obstruction or construction of such work, may be made before the Deputy Commissioner, and he shall deal with the same in the manner provided in section ten.

Limitation of claims.

67. No such claim shall be entertained unless it be made within one year next after the commencement of the loss complained of.

PART VI.

OBTAINING LABOUR FOR CANALS AND DRAINAGE-WORKS.

Definition of "labourer" as used in this Part.

68. For the purposes referred to in this Part, the word "labourer" includes persons who exercise any handicraft which shall be specified in rules to be made in that behalf by the Local Government.

Local Government may cause to be prepared lists of persons liable to supply labourers.

69. In any district in which any canal or drainage-work is projected, constructed or maintained by Government, the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, direct the Deputy Commissioner to ascertain the proprietors, sub-proprietors or farmers or any of them whose villages or estates are or will be, in the judgment of the Deputy Commissioner, benefited by such work, and to set down in a list, having due regard to the circumstances of the district, and of the several proprietors, sub-proprietors or farmers, the number of labourers which shall be furnished by any of the said persons jointly or severally, from any such village or estate, for employment on any such work when required as hereinafter provided.

Act XXII of 1866 ...	An Act to extend the Indian Marriage Act, 1865, to the Hyderabad Assigned Districts and the cantonments of Secunderabad, Trimungerry and Aurungabad.	The whole.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE law relating to the solemnization in India of marriages of persons professing the Christian religion is at present distributed over two English Acts of Parliament and three Acts of the Indian Legislature.

The object of this Bill is to reduce into a smaller compass and simplify the existing law on this subject by the consolidation of the different enactments referred to, and at the same time to amend the law in those matters in which it has been shown to be defective.

For example, by Act V of 1865 it is provided that marriages between Native Christians shall be valid where the ages of the contracting parties are not less than sixteen and thirteen years, respectively, and where they do not stand in relation to each other within the prohibited degrees of consanguinity or affinity.

It has been very forcibly represented by the President and several Members of the Bengal Christian Association that this provision of the law works injuriously by freeing the children of Native Christian parents from the control which all other parents can legally exercise over their sons and daughters ere the latter have attained their majority.

The Bill requires the consent of the parents or guardians of Native Christians to a marriage between them, where the age of either of the parties about to contract such marriage is less than eighteen years, except in cases in which the minors have been altogether separated from their parents or natural guardians, and by reason of such separation are not properly subject to their control.

There is also some ambiguity in regard to the provisions of the law respecting the submission of returns, and the disposal of the records of the registration of marriages solemnized between Native Christians.

The Bill lays down distinctly how such marriages are to be recorded in all cases, and provides for the disposal of the record. It also substitutes for the fixed rates of fees in respect of marriages solemnized by or before Marriage Registrars; a power to the Local Government to regulate such fees and their remission; and, lastly, extends the Marriage Law to all places within the territories of Native Princes in alliance with Her Majesty, in respect of marriages between British subjects professing the Christian religion.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE law relating to the solemnization in India of marriages of persons professing the Christian religion is at present distributed over two English Acts of Parliament and three Acts of the Indian Legislature.

The object of this Bill is to reduce into a smaller compass and simplify the existing law on this subject by the consolidation of the different enactments referred to, and at the same time to amend the law in those matters in which it has been shown to be defective.

For example, by Act V of 1865 it is provided that marriages between Native Christians shall be valid where the ages of the contracting parties are not less than sixteen and thirteen years, respectively, and where they do not stand in relation to each other within the prohibited degrees of consanguinity or affinity.

It has been very forcibly represented by the President and several Members of the Bengal Christian Association that this provision of the law works injuriously by freeing the children of Native Christian parents from the control which all other parents can legally exercise over their sons and daughters ere the latter have attained their majority.

The Bill requires the consent of the parents or guardians of Native Christians to a marriage between them, where the age of either of the parties about to contract such marriage is less than eighteen years, except in cases in which the minors have been altogether separated from their parents or natural guardians, and by reason of such separation are not properly subject to their control.

There is also some ambiguity in regard to the provisions of the law respecting the submission of returns, and the disposal of the records of the registration of marriages solemnized between Native Christians.

The Bill lays down distinctly how such marriages are to be recorded in all cases, and provides for the disposal of the record. It also substitutes for the fixed rates of fees in respect of marriages solemnized by or before Marriage Registrars; a power to the Local Government to regulate such fees and their remission; and, lastly, extends the Marriage Law to all places within the territories of Native Princes in alliance with Her Majesty, in respect of marriages between [illegible] subjects professing the Christian religion.
