NOTIFICATION.—MISCELLANEOUS.

The 11th October 1875.

No. 2083 A.—The following Notification regarding the sale of the Government tea plantations at Ayar Toli and Hawalbagh in Kumaun, is published for general information in supersession of Notification No. 1707A., dated 21st August 1875. The portions of this Notification which are additions to or alterations of the former Notification are printed in italics:—

The following tea plantations in Kumaun, the property of Government, will be offered for sale by public auction at the Senior Assistant Commissioner's Office, Almora, on Wednesday, the 1st of December 1875, at noon:—

HAWALBAGH.

Forty-six miles from the plains by bridle-road, and six from Almora. Area about one hundred acres, after excluding the house known as Mr. Traill's, with its compound, which will not be sold: said house and ground are in an outlying corner of the estate, and are to be set apart for travellers. Separated from the plantation by the Kosi river (suspension bridge) is a pine forest of one hundred and two acres, belonging to the estate, but in which neighbouring villages have the right to graze their cattle. The garden having latterly been used as a nursery for fruit trees, the whole of the area is not under tea. There are on the estate two large slated houses (exclusive of Traill's house, which will not be sold), a slated factory, two slated godowns, a slated barrack for tea-makers, and numerous slated out-offices. The height of the houses above sea-level is 4,000 feet, and the lands are not much higher or lower. Upset price, Rs. 25,000.

1, 2, 3,—markets at the foot of the hills.

Communications.—A good bridle-road, 8 to 10 feet wide and bridged, runs to (1) Haldwani, (2) Kaladungi (vid Naini Tal), and (3) Ramnagar (vid Khyrna). From Haldwani to Bareilly Railway Station 60 miles, over a pucka cart-road; from Kaladungi to Moradabad Railway Station, 48 miles, on partly pucka road; and from Ramnagar to Moradabad, 45 miles, vid Kashipur, of which 25 miles more or less are a kutcha fair-weather road, bridged. Bridge-of-boats on Ramganga north of Moradabad. From Ramnagar up there is a cart-road (Kosi river not bridged) to Ranikhet, 56 miles; and to the Hawalbagh plantation, where the Kosi river is being bridged, 19 miles.

AYAR TOLI.

In Kattyur, consisting of about 1,627 acres. The area under tea was some years ago considerable. About 700 acres are cleared, and most of the remaining 927 acres consist of jungle, of which part may be unculturable. There were on the estate a house, factory, godown, and numerous out-offices, all slated; but all these are in bad repair. Height of house above sea-level 5,200 feet, and the plantation ranges from that height to 4,400 feet. Upset price, Rs. 17,000.

Communications.—To Hawalbagh, 24 miles by bridle-road, thence as detailed under Hawalbagh.

These two estates will be put up to auction separately at the upset prices named, and sold in fee-simple to the highest bidder, free of all demands for land revenue, but subject to the rights already named in each case, and also to payment of customary cesses now in force, or that may be imposed hereafter.

Both estates have been surveyed, and maps may be seen at the District Office, Almora. Intending purchasers must satisfy themselves as to the present condition of the estates, and on all other matters involved in their sale. The purchasers must deposit 5 per cent. of the purchase-money at the time of sale, and the balance on or before the 1st of January 1876, when possession will be given; failing payment in full the deposit will be forfeited, and the estates re-sold.

N. B.—No part of the Ayar Toli estate is held under a lease from the Nagnath Temple as stated in the former Notification No. 1707A., dated 21st August 1875.

By order of the Hon'ble the Lieutenant-Governor, North-Western Provinces.

NOTIFICATION.—MISCELLANEOUS.

The 11th October 1875.

No. 2083 A.—The following Notification regarding the sale of the Government tea plantations at Ayar Toli and Hawalbagh in Kumaun, is published for general information in supersession of Notification No. 1707A., dated 21st August 1875. The portions of this Notification which are additions to or alterations of the former Notification are printed in italics.—

The following tea plantations in Kumaun, the property of Government, will be offered for sale by public auction at the Senior Assistant Commissioner's Office, Almora, on Wednesday, the 1st of December 1875, at noon:—

HAWALBAGH.

Forty-six miles from the plains by bridle-road, and six from Almora. Area about one hundred acres, after excluding the house known as Mr. Traill's, with its compound, which will not be sold: said house and ground are in an outlying corner of the estate, and are to be set apart for travellers. Separated from the plantation by the Kosi river (suspension bridge) is a pine forest of one hundred and two acres, belonging to the estate, but in which neighbouring villages have the right to graze their cattle. The garden having latterly been used as a nursery for fruit trees, the whole of the area is not under tea. There are on the estate two large slated houses (exclusive of Traill's house, which will not be sold), a slated factory, two slated godowns, a slated barrack for tea-makers, and numerous slated out-offices. The height of the houses above sea-level is 4,000 feet, and the lands are not much higher or lower. Upset price, Rs. 25,000.

Communications.—A good bridle-road, 8 to 10 feet wide and bridged, runs to (1) Haldwani, (2) Kaladungi (vid Naini Tal), and (3) Ramnagar (vid Khyrna). From Haldwani to Bareilly Railway Station 60 miles, over a pucka cart-road; from Kaladungi to Moradabad Railway Station, 48 miles, on partly pucka road; and from Ramnagar to Moradabad, 45 miles, vid Kashipur, of which 25 miles more or less are a kutcha fair-weather road, bridged. Bridge-of-boats on Ramganga north of Moradabad. From Ramnagar up there is a cart-road (Kosi river not bridged) to Ranikhet, 56 miles; and to the Hawalbagh plantation, where the Kosi river is being bridged, 19 miles.

1, 2, 3,—markets at the foot of the hills.

AYAR TOLI.

In Kattyur, consisting of about 1,627 acres. The area under tea was some years ago considerable. About 700 acres are cleared, and most of the remaining 927 acres consist of jungle, of which part may be unculturable. There were on the estate a house, factory, godown, and numerous out-offices, all slated; but all these are in bad repair. Height of house above sea-level 5,200 feet, and the plantation ranges from that height to 4,400 feet. Upset price, Rs. 17,000.

Communications.—To Hawalbagh, 24 miles by bridle-road, thence as detailed under Hawalbagh.

These two estates will be put up to auction separately at the upset prices named, and sold in fee-simple to the highest bidder, free of all demands for land revenue, but subject to the rights already named in each case, and also to payment of customary cesses now in force, or that may be imposed hereafter.

Both estates have been surveyed, and maps may be seen at the District Office, Almora. Intending purchasers must satisfy themselves as to the present condition of the estates, and on all other matters involved in their sale. The purchasers must deposit 5 per cent. of the purchase-money at the time of sale, and the balance on or before the 1st of January 1876, when possession will be given; failing payment in full the deposit will be forfeited, and the estates re-sold.

N. B.—No part of the Ayar Toli estate is held under a lease from the Nagnath Temple as stated in the former Notification No. 1707A., dated 21st August 1875.

By order of the Hon'ble the Lieutenant-Governor, North-Western Provinces.

J. S. MACKINTOSH,
Offg. Secy. to Govt., N. W. P.

BENGAL CIVIL FUND.

At a Half-yearly General Meeting of Subscribers to the Bengal Civil Fund, held at the Town Hall, Calcutta, on Wednesday, the 28th July 1875.

PRESENT.—The Hon'ble V. H. Schalch, C.S.I.; The Hon'ble W. F. McDonell, V.C.; The Hon'ble H. J. Reynolds; W. S. Wells, Esq.; J. D. Maclean, Esq.; G. K. Webster, Esq.; W. H. Grimley, Esq.; W. M. Souttar, Esq.; W. H. Verner, Esq.; H. J. S. Cotton, Esq.; and C. P. L. Macaulay, Esq.

W. S. Wells, Esq., in the chair.

Read the following report submitted by the Managers:—

REPORT.

The Managers submit their proceedings for the past half-year for the consideration and sanction of the meeting.

Subject to the approval of Subscribers, they have admitted to the benefits of the Fund the following families:—

Mrs. Macnaghten	... £	300
Children ...	... „	410
	„	710
Less ⅓ under Rule 7	... „	118-6-8
	£	591-13-4

The widow and five children (two daughters and three sons) of the late Mr. E. Macnaghten, who died at Allahabad on the 18th March last.

The widow of the late Mr. William Travers (an annuitant of 1855), who died in England on the 4th April last.

Mrs. Travers ...	... £	300

The widow of the late Mr. E. J. Boldero (an annuitant of 1867), who died in England on the 23rd May last.

Mrs. Boldero ...	... £	300

The widow and three children (one daughter and two sons) of the late Mr. E. H. Harrison, who died at Simla on the 5th June last.

Mrs. Harrison ...	... £	300
Children ...	... „	150
	... „	450
Less ⅓ under Rule 7	... „	75
	£	375

Mr. Arthur Harington has reported that he has obtained a divorce from his wife, and has applied to subscribe, at reduced rates, as a widower subscriber. The Managers have informed him that the date on which widower rates of subscription become payable is the date on which the Decree Nisi is made absolute, or six months after the date of the decree.

The Managers submit for the decision of the meeting, under Article 5, the case of Mr. W. Lambe, who failed to report his marriage until more than six months had elapsed. They propose the infliction of the minimum fine Rs. 500, with arrears of subscription carrying interest at 8 per cent., as provided by the rule.

Mrs. Morris, formerly Mrs. Drew, having applied to the Managers to be allowed to bequeath £50 per annum to her sole surviving daughter by her husband, the late Mr. Drew, without entailing a reduction in the pension of £100 allowed to her daughter from the Fund, was informed that under the old rules, Article 24 was a bar to her request being granted; but that if a satisfactory medical certificate of her daughter's mental infirmity were supplied, the Managers, under the special circumstances of the case, would be prepared to recommend her petition to a General Meeting. Mrs. Morris has submitted the certificate of the family medical attendant, testifying that her daughter was placed 30 years ago in an asylum, and has been since that time and until recently under restraint; that she is still suffering from mental infirmity, which renders her unable to maintain herself; and that the expense of her care and maintenance are necessarily great. The above case is submitted to the meeting for its favourable consideration.

The Managers regret to report the death of the actuary, Mr. Brown. His report on the Fund, which was unfinished at his death, cannot, the Managers are informed, be completed owing to the difficulty experienced in tracing the process adopted by him. The new actuary, Mr. R. Hardy of the London and Provincial Law Assurance Society, has therefore begun a fresh report, and he states that the work is already well in hand and will not be delayed.

With reference to the resolution passed at the meeting of the 27th January last, the Managers have again addressed the Secretary to the Government, Home Department, regarding the admission of natives of India under 33 Vic., Chapter III, to appointments hitherto filled by subscribers to the Fund in order to elicit further information on the subject, but have not yet received an answer.

Proposed by Mr. Webster, seconded by Mr. Macaulay, "that the proceedings of the Managers in admitting to the benefits of the Fund the families of the late Mr. E. Macnaghten, Mr. William Travers, Mr. E. J. Boldero, and Mr. E. H. Harrison, be confirmed."

Carried unanimously.

Proposed by Mr. Webster, seconded by Mr. Verner, "that the Managers proposal in in the case of Mr. W. Lambe be approved and adopted."

An amendment proposed by Mr. J. D. Maclean, "that the facts as set forth in his written statement be made public to the service in the report of this Meeting which will be circulated" was not seconded.

The original resolution was carried.

Proposed by Mr. Macaulay, seconded by Mr. Verner, "that the Managers proposal in the case of Mrs. Morris be adopted in case the amount which she proposes to leave to her daughter is savings from her pension; and that if it be not savings the question be brought before the next General Meeting after due advertisement."

Mr. Souttar objected that this course was irregular, and proposed, as an amendment, "that the consideration of the question be postponed till the next General Meeting."

The Amendment was lost, 3 votes being for it; and 7 against. The original proposal was carried by 7 votes, but lost under Article 16, by which 9 votes are necessary to carry any resolution.

A vote of thanks was passed to the Chairman.

Power to make rules for ascertaining that imported spirit has been rendered unfit for human consumption.

Such rules, on being published in the official Gazette, shall have the force of law; and whoever wilfully contravenes any such rule shall be liable to fine not exceeding five hundred rupees.

In the absence of any such rules, or if any dispute arises as to their applicability, the executive officer of highest rank in the department of customs in the port shall decide what spirit is subject only to the said ad valorem duty, and such decision shall be final.

8. On all pepper exported by sea from the port of Cochin there shall be levied such duty not exceeding nine rupees per khandí as the Governor of Fort Saint George in Council from time to time determines; and at the close of each year, or as soon thereafter as may be convenient, the Collector of Customs at the said port shall, after deducting the expenses of collection, pay the duty collected under this section to the Governments of Travancore and Cochin in such proportion and in such manner as the Governor of Fort Saint George in Council from time to time directs.

Export of pepper from Cochin.

9. No opium shall be exported from any part of British India, unless—

Export of opium.

(a) it is covered by a pass granted by an officer appointed in this behalf by the Governor General in Council or the Local Government; or

(b) it is exported under the said Act No. VI of 1873, section seven; or

(c) such export is permitted under the power next hereinafter conferred:

The Governor General in Council may, from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India,

(d) permit the export of opium from any part of British India on payment of such duty, or on such other terms, as the Governor General in Council thinks fit; and

(e) cancel such permission.

10. Duties of customs shall be levied on goods passing by land into or out of Foreign European Settlements situate on the line of coast within the limits of the Presidency of Fort Saint George or the Presidency of Bombay at the rates prescribed in the Schedules A and B hereto annexed.

Duties on goods crossing frontiers of Foreign European Settlements in Presidencies of Madras and Bombay.

11. And whereas it is expedient that the duty of excise on spirit distilled in British India should bear a due proportion to the customs duty on spirit imported into British India, it is hereby further enacted as follows:—

Excise duty on spirit distilled in British India.

Subject to any general rules or special orders which the Governor General in Council may from time to time make in this behalf, the Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, fix the duty of excise leviable on spirit manufactured in all or any of the distilleries situate in the territories under its administration, or in any part of such territories, at any rate not exceeding the rate fixed for imported spirit by Schedule A hereto annexed; and all provisions now in force as to the levy of duty now chargeable on spirit shall apply to spirit upon which the duty declared under this section has not been paid.

12. And whereas it is expedient to amend the Consolidated Customs Act in manner hereinafter appearing, it is hereby further enacted as follows:—

Amendment of Consolidated Customs Act, sections 27, 57, 66 and 180.

Section twenty-seven of the Consolidated Customs Act shall be construed, as if, for the words "for which a specific value has not been fixed by the Local Government with the sanction of the Governor General of India in Council," the following words and figures were substituted (namely) "for which a specific value is not fixed by or under the Indian Tariff Act, 1875;"

And the following proviso shall be added to section fifty-seven of the same Act, (namely), "Provided also that where such goods are arms, ammunition, or military stores, they may be sold or otherwise disposed of at such place (whether within or without British India) and in such manner as the Local Government may from time to time direct;"

And section sixty-six of the same Act shall be construed as if for the words and figures "the value of which shall have been fixed under the provisions of section CLXXIX of this Act," the following words and figures were substituted (namely) "for which a specific value has been fixed by or under the Indian Tariff Act, 1875;"

And section one hundred and eighty of the same Act shall be construed as if for the words "last preceding section" the following words and figures were substituted (namely) "Indian Tariff Act, 1875."

An Act to amend the law relating to Customs Duties and for other purposes.

Preamble.

Whereas it is expedient to amend the law relating to the duties of Customs on goods imported and exported by sea, and to restrict the export of opium, and to provide for the levy of duties on goods crossing the frontier of certain Foreign European Settlements in India and for fixing a maximum duty of excise on spirit manufactured in British India, and to amend the Consolidated Customs Act; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The Indian Tariff Act, 1875:"

Commencement.

And it shall come into force on the passing thereof.

Local extent.

This section and section twelve, clause three, apply to the whole of British India.

The rest of this Act extends to the whole of British India except Aden.

Repeal of Acts and Notifications.

2. Act No. XVIII of 1870 (to enable the Government of India to exempt goods from Customs duties), Act No. XIII of 1871 (to consolidate and amend the law relating to Customs duties) and all notifications under either of the said Acts are hereby repealed.

Saving clause.

3. Nothing herein contained affects Act No. VI of 1873 (to amend the law relating to the Transhipment of Goods imported by Steamer, and for other purposes), or authorizes the levy of duties of customs on any article carried from one port in British India to another, except salt, salted fish, opium and spirit.

Duties specified in Schedules to be levied.

4. There shall be levied and collected, in every port to which this Act applies, the duties specified in Schedules A and B hereto annexed.

5. Goods not prohibited to be imported into or used in British India, whereof any article liable to duty under this Act forms a part or ingredient, shall be chargeable with the full duty which would be payable on such goods if they were entirely composed of such article, or, if composed of more than one article liable to duty, then with the full duty which would be payable on such goods if they were entirely composed of the article charged with the highest rate of duty.

Goods partially composed of dutiable articles.

6. The Governor General in Council may, from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India,

Power to fix value of dutiable goods and to exempt from customs duties.

(a) fix for the purposes of this Act the value of any goods exported or imported by sea on which duties of customs are hereby imposed;

(b) exempt any goods imported or exported into or from British India, or into or from any specified port or place therein, from the whole or any part of the duties of customs to which they are liable under this Act or any other law for the time being in force; and

(c) cancel any such exemption.

7. The Local Government may from time to time prescribe rules for ascertaining and determining what spirit imported into British India shall be deemed to have been effectually and permanently rendered unfit for human consumption, so as to be subject only to an ad valorem duty of ten per cent. under Schedule A hereto annexed, and for causing such spirit to be so rendered, if necessary, by their own officers, before the duty of customs leviable thereon is levied, and at the expense of the person importing it.

Power to make rules for ascertaining that imported spirit has been rendered unfit for human consumption.

Such rules, on being published in the official Gazette, shall have the force of law; and whoever wilfully contravenes any such rule shall be liable to fine not exceeding five hundred rupees.

In the absence of any such rules, or if any dispute arises as to their applicability, the executive officer of highest rank in the department of customs in the port shall decide what spirit is subject only to the said ad valorem duty, and such decision shall be final.

8. On all pepper exported by sea from the port of Cochin there shall be levied such duty not exceeding nine rupees per khandí as the Governor of Fort Saint George in Council from time to time determines; and at the close of each year, or as soon thereafter as may be convenient, the Collector of Customs at the said port shall, after deducting the expenses of collection, pay the duty collected under this section to the Governments of Travancore and Cochin in such proportion and in such manner as the Governor of Fort Saint George in Council from time to time directs.

Export of pepper from Cochin.

9. No opium shall be exported from any part of British India, unless—

Export of opium.

(a) it is covered by a pass granted by an officer appointed in this behalf by the Governor General in Council or the Local Government; or

(b) it is exported under the said Act No. VI of 1873, section seven; or

(c) such export is permitted under the power next hereinafter conferred:

The Governor General in Council may, from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India,

(d) permit the export of opium from any part of British India on payment of such duty, or on such other terms, as the Governor General in Council thinks fit; and

(e) cancel such permission.

10. Duties of customs shall be levied on goods passing by land into or out of Foreign European Settlements situate on the line of coast within the limits of the Presidency of Fort Saint George or the Presidency of Bombay at the rates prescribed in the Schedules A and B hereto annexed.

Duties on goods crossing frontiers of Foreign European Settlements in Presidencies of Madras and Bombay.

11. And whereas it is expedient that the duty of excise on spirit distilled in British India should bear a due proportion to the customs duty on spirit imported into British India, it is hereby further enacted as follows:—

Excise duty on spirit distilled in British India.

Subject to any general rules or special orders which the Governor General in Council may from time to time make in this behalf, the Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, fix the duty of excise leviable on spirit manufactured in all or any of the distilleries situate in the territories under its administration, or in any part of such territories, at any rate not exceeding the rate fixed for imported spirit by Schedule A hereto annexed; and all provisions now in force as to the levy of duty now chargeable on spirit shall apply to spirit upon which the duty declared under this section has not been paid.

12. And whereas it is expedient to amend the Consolidated Customs Act in manner hereinafter appearing, it is hereby further enacted as follows:—

Amendment of Consolidated Customs Act, sections 27, 57, 66 and 180.

Section twenty-seven of the Consolidated Customs Act shall be construed, as if, for the words "for which a specific value has not been fixed by the Local Government with the sanction of the Governor General of India in Council," the following words and figures were substituted (namely) "for which a specific value is not fixed by or under the Indian Tariff Act, 1875;"

And the following proviso shall be added to section fifty-seven of the same Act, (namely), "Provided also that where such goods are arms, ammunition, or military stores, they may be sold or otherwise disposed of at such place (whether within or without British India) and in such manner as the Local Government may from time to time direct;"

And section sixty-six of the same Act shall be construed as if for the words and figures "the value of which shall have been fixed under the provisions of section CLXXIX of this Act," the following words and figures were substituted (namely) "for which a specific value has been fixed by or under the Indian Tariff Act, 1875;"

And section one hundred and eighty of the same Act shall be construed as if for the words "last preceding section" the following words and figures were substituted (namely) "Indian Tariff Act, 1875."

2. The principal alteration we have made in the Bill is one which depends upon the system of emigration adopted for British Burma, and a system has sprung up since the Bill was introduced into Council. At that time it was not supposed that funds for the promotion of emigration would be forthcoming from any body but the employers who wanted labourers, and the Bill was accordingly framed on the principle that the contract of an emigrant would be made with some individual employer for his whole term of service. Since that time, however, a considerable amount of emigration from peninsular India to British Burma has been effected under a system of contracts entered into by the emigrant directly with the Secretary of State in Council. The funds have been provided by the Government of British Burma, which is repaying itself out of the earnings of the emigrant. It has therefore been thought better to work on this hitherto successful line, and to adapt the provisions of the Bill to the system actually in existence.

3. The portions of the Bill, as now settled by us, which bear most strongly on the change of principle, are contained in sections 35 and 48. But it is obvious that many other parts of the Bill must have been modified by such a change, such as the amount of labour-rate, the conditions under which emigrants are assigned to private employers, the terms of redemption of contracts, the provision for return-passages, and in particular that much of the protective machinery provided by the original Bill may be safely left to be provided by the Local Government either in the shape of statutory rules or in the shape of executive orders.

4. We now proceed to state in detail the principal alterations we have made in the Bill.

5. As the Bill now contains no clause prohibiting emigration save under the proposed Act, we have struck out the saving of contracts with Native seamen, domestic servants and skilled artizans.

6. We have omitted from the interpretation-clause the definitions of "employer," "vessel," and "master:" we have shortened the definition of "immigrant;" and we have defined "Chief Commissioner."

7. We have provided that the Emigration Agent shall be removeable at the pleasure of the Chief Commissioner, and that the Medical Inspector of Emigrants shall be remunerated as the Government of India may direct.

8. We have relieved the Emigration Agent from the duty of spontaneously instituting inquiries into the treatment of emigrants on the return-voyage. He will, however, receive and enquire into any complaints actually made.

9. We have struck out the clause as to recruiters' badges, which are objected to in many parts of the country as favouring oppression and fraud.

10. We have empowered officers who have countersigned recruiters' licenses to require them to produce the licenses, and either to cancel the signature or impound the license for cancellation by the Emigration Agent.

11. Under the new system to which we have referred it is impossible to specify in the emigrant's contract (vide section 13) the district in which he is to serve or the nature of his work, and in Burma it is unnecessary to specify the price of his food. We have therefore struck out the provisions relating to these matters.

12. We have provided for the medical examination of persons accompanying a recruit as his dependents.

13. We have reduced to 8 annas the fee for registering a recruit, and struck out the provision for refunding it in case of his desertion.

On the latter point we are clear enough. There is no reason why if the fee is proper to be paid for the work done, it should be repaid because of the subsequent misbehaviour of one of the parties who required the work. But it may be questioned whether the work should not be done without any fee at all. If the matter were new, we should be of opinion that the district officers might properly be called upon to discharge it gratuitously. But inasmuch as a fee is, under the General Emigration Act, charged for similar services, we have not ventured to omit it altogether from this Bill, though we are of opinion that a smaller one may properly be charged. We are not informed in what manner the fees are disposed of. The point is one on which the local authorities will have full information, and we shall be glad to receive advice whether it is desirable to abolish the fee altogether, or to lower it as now proposed.

14. We think that the Medical Inspector should examine in detail and individually all emigrants and their dependents immediately after their arrival at the depôt, but that any subsequent inspection by him should be of a more general character, and for the purpose mainly of seeing that there is no danger of infectious diseases. We have made provision for the case of emigrants or dependents suffering from such disease. We have struck out the penalty imposed on the Emigration Agent by section 27 of the Bill as introduced; and we have provided a procedure where a dependent is dangerously ill.

15. We have slightly modified the procedure of the Emigration Agent in registering contracts.

16. In section 35 we have declared that when any contract has been ratified by the Emigration Agent, the emigrant shall be deemed to have contracted with him on behalf of the Chief Commissioner to proceed to British Burma, and there to labour according to the terms of his contract in any place and mode which, consistently with such terms and with the provisions of the proposed Act, the Chief Commissioner may from time to time direct.

17. We have struck out the sections relating respectively to suits against the Emigration Agent for breach of contract and to the recovery of certain sums payable by him to emigrants.

18. We have provided that Emigration Agents shall furnish the masters of emigrant vessels with proper lists of the emigrants on board.

19. We have struck out the provision contained in section 40 of the original Bill that the Emigration Agent is to ascertain that the emigrants are in a fit state of health to proceed to Burma. All duties of this kind should be discharged by the Medical Inspector.

20. We have made it clear that the offices of Emigration Agent and of Medical Inspector of Emigrants may be held by the same person.

21. Considering the shortness of the voyage from peninsular India to Burma and the circumstance that the emigrants will be under the care of Government until their arrival, we have struck out the sections (35—44) of the Bill as introduced, relating to emigrant-vessels and the embarkation of emigrants. All that they do can be done by subsidiary rules to be framed by the Local Government.

22. In section 48 we have modified the clause relating to the assignment of immigrants, and have authorized the Chief Commissioner to make rules regulating the terms on which immigrants shall be allowed to labour on their own account. We have provided (in section 49) that in assigning immigrants to particular employers, the Immigration Agent shall, so far as practicable, take care that they are not separated from their dependents.

23. For reasons similar to those stated in paragraph 21 of this report, we have struck out the clauses (51—65) of the Bill as introduced, relating to the transit of immigrants to the place of labour. The matter will be more fitly provided for by rules to be made by the Chief Commissioner.

24. We think that under the changed aspect of the Bill no labour-rate will be wanted. The expenses will be recovered from the employers under the terms of the assignments. If they are not recoverable from any employer, we have empowered the Chief Commissioner to declare the assignment of immigrants to such employer to be void. In such case their labour will again be at the disposal of the Chief Commissioner.

25. We have struck out the clauses relating to the books to be kept and the reports to be made by Inspectors of Immigrants. These matters can, if necessary, be provided for by subsidiary rules or by simple executive orders.

26. We have also omitted the two sections (74, 75) of the Bill as introduced, which relate to the fixing of the immigrant's daily tasks and to the revision of the schedule of tasks. They are inconsistent with the conditions under which emigrants are now and will be employed in British Burma.

27. By section 60 where an Inspector finds an immigrant to be permanently unfitted for labour, he will report the case to the Local Government, which will then either provide for the employment and support of the immigrant and his dependents or send them back to the place at which they were registered.

28. Fines for breach of rules as to house-accommodation will, where the persons fined are agents and fail to pay, be charged on the employers' lands and be recoverable as if they were land-revenue.

29. We have struck out, as unnecessary in Burma, the clauses relating to unhealthy estates (sections 83 and 84 of the original Bill).

30. We have struck out the clauses (sections 85, 89 of the Bill as introduced) empowering the employer of an immigrant convicted of absence from labour or desertion to assign him to another employer.

31. We think it inexpedient to provide that the punishment for desertion shall in all cases be rigorous.

32. We have simplified the procedure in cases of complaints against employers. When any such complaint is frivolous and vexatious, we have provided (in section 77) a small penalty for the complainant. Compensation awarded where wages are in arrear for more than two months, will be paid to the immigrant.

33. By sections 83 and 84 we have completely altered the redemption clauses contained in section 102 of the original Bill. The contract being made with Government, who will also in many cases be the actual employer of labour, it is intended to make it redeemable, as the present practice is, on repayment by the immigrant of the expenses properly chargeable to him according to accounts kept by the Immigration Agent. When the immigrant has been assigned to a private employer, the proper compensation to that employer for the loss of his labour will be best ascertained by the special conditions of the assignment, or by rules whenever the Local Government can find its way to some general principle applicable to all cases.

34. We have struck out the clause (section 104 of original Bill) providing for a return-passage for immigrants whose contracts have been completed. Such a provision is not only not required, but would be inexpedient in the case of British Burma—at all events under the contemplated system.

35. We have struck out, as useless, the section empowering the Governor General in Council to make subsidiary rules, and we think it unnecessary to require the sanction of the Government of India to rules made by the Chief Commissioner under the proposed Act.

36. We have expressly empowered the Chief Commissioner to make rules to regulate the notice to be given and forms to be observed on the termination of assignments of immigrants and the terms on which contracts and assignments of service may be redeemed. We have provided a penalty for wilfully contravening any rule for the breach whereof no penalty is specially provided.

37. We have added four clauses (89, 90, 91, 92) to the Bill: the first providing for the renewal of instruments which have been lost or destroyed; the second declaring that copies made under the proposed Act shall be evidence of the contracts to which they respectively relate; the third providing for the recovery of money due under the Act from employers of immigrants; and the fourth supplying a technical defect in the contracts for service in British Burma under Government which have heretofore been entered into by emigrants from peninsular India.

38. The schedule giving a form of a pass permitting immigrants to proceed to their labour-district has been struck out in consequence of the omission of the section (51) which refers to it.

39. We have made, besides these substantial changes, several transpositions and verbal amendments.

40. We think that the Bill has been so altered as to require republication: we accordingly recommend that it be republished, as now amended, in the Gazette of India, the Calcutta Gazette, the Fort Saint George Gazette, and the British Burma Gazette, and that its further consideration should be postponed for the present.

The Inspector shall then inform him what is the price at which his contract may be redeemed; and on his depositing that price in the hands of the Inspector, the Inspector shall give notice to the employer that such immigrant requires him, within one week, to show cause why such immigrant should not redeem his contract for the sum so deposited;

and if no sufficient cause be shown within that time or such enlarged time as the Inspector deems reasonable, he shall require the production of the immigrant's instrument and endorse thereon a certificate of redemption, and out of the sum in deposit the employer of such immigrant shall be paid the value of the unexpired term of assignment.

From and after the date of such endorsement the immigrant's contract shall be deemed to have determined.

Value of unexpired term of assignment.

The value of the unexpired term of assignment shall be such as is provided for by the terms of the assignment or as may be fixed by any rules made, under section eighty-seven, clause (g), and in force at the date of the assignment.

and the inhabitants of such place shall be charged with the cost of such additional police force; and the Magistrate of the District, after enquiry, if necessary, shall assess the proportion in which such cost is to be paid by the said inhabitants according to his judgment of their respective means.

For retaining messages, &c., delivered by mistake.

or being required by a Telegraph Officer to deliver up any such message, neglects or refuses to do so, shall be liable to imprisonment for a term which may extend to two years, or to fine, or to both.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Doubts having been raised whether under the present Telegraph Act (VIII of 1860) rules can be framed for Telegraphs established under the repealed Act XXXIV of 1854, the present Bill has been prepared with the primary object of repealing and re-enacting Act VIII of 1860, with such change as will preclude all question as to the extent of the power above referred to.

The opportunity has been taken to make certain other alterations in the law, of which the chief are as follows:—

The present law declares that Railway Companies shall permit Government to establish Telegraphs on their land, but provides no penalty for refusing such permission; the Bill (section 12) supplies this defect.

The section relating to injuries to Telegraphs has been made more specific, the wording of 24 & 25 Vic., cap. 97, section 37, being here followed.

A clause founded on sections 14 and 15 of the Police Act V of 1861 has been introduced to empower the Local Government to employ additional Police in places where mischief to Telegraphs is repeatedly committed, and to charge the inhabitants with the cost of the Police so employed.

The clause imposing penalties for sending fabricated messages has been made to apply to messages sent by Telegraphs established by a Company or person licensed under the proposed Act, as well as to messages sent by Government Telegraphs.

Fraudulently retaining or wilfully secreting telegraphic messages is made penal. An analogous clause is contained in the Post Office Act (XIV of 1866), section 45.

Sections 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20 of Act VIII of 1860, which relate to fines and jurisdiction, have been omitted, as rendered unnecessary by Acts I of 1868 and X of 1872.

" Chief Commissioner, British Burma, No. 463-105, dated 20th May 1874, and enclosures.

2. The principal alteration we have made in the Bill is one which depends upon the system of emigration adopted for British Burma, and a system has sprung up since the Bill was introduced into Council. At that time it was not supposed that funds for the promotion of emigration would be forthcoming from any body but the employers who wanted labourers, and the Bill was accordingly framed on the principle that the contract of an emigrant would be made with some individual employer for his whole term of service. Since that time, however, a considerable amount of emigration from peninsular India to British Burma has been effected under a system of contracts entered into by the emigrant directly with the Secretary of State in Council. The funds have been provided by the Government of British Burma, which is repaying itself out of the earnings of the emigrant. It has therefore been thought better to work on this hitherto successful line, and to adapt the provisions of the Bill to the system actually in existence.

3. The portions of the Bill, as now settled by us, which bear most strongly on the change of principle, are contained in sections 35 and 48. But it is obvious that many other parts of the Bill must have been modified by such a change, such as the amount of labour-rate, the conditions under which emigrants are assigned to private employers, the terms of redemption of contracts, the provision for return-passages, and in particular that much of the protective machinery provided by the original Bill may be safely left to be provided by the Local Government either in the shape of statutory rules or in the shape of executive orders.

4. We now proceed to state in detail the principal alterations we have made in the Bill.

5. As the Bill now contains no clause prohibiting emigration save under the proposed Act, we have struck out the saving of contracts with Native seamen, domestic servants and skilled artizans.

6. We have omitted from the interpretation-clause the definitions of "employer," "vessel," and "master:" we have shortened the definition of "immigrant;" and we have defined "Chief Commissioner."

7. We have provided that the Emigration Agent shall be removeable at the pleasure of the Chief Commissioner, and that the Medical Inspector of Emigrants shall be remunerated as the Government of India may direct.

8. We have relieved the Emigration Agent from the duty of spontaneously instituting inquiries into the treatment of emigrants on the return-voyage. He will, however, receive and enquire into any complaints actually made.

9. We have struck out the clause as to recruiters' badges, which are objected to in many parts of the country as favouring oppression and fraud.

10. We have empowered officers who have countersigned recruiters' licenses to require them to produce the licenses, and either to cancel the signature or impound the license for cancellation by the Emigration Agent.

11. Under the new system to which we have referred it is impossible to specify in the emigrant's contract (vide section 13) the district in which he is to serve or the nature of his work, and in Burma it is unnecessary to specify the price of his food. We have therefore struck out the provisions relating to these matters.

12. We have provided for the medical examination of persons accompanying a recruit as his dependents.

13. We have reduced to 8 annas the fee for registering a recruit, and struck out the provision for refunding it in case of his desertion.

On the latter point we are clear enough. There is no reason why if the fee is proper to be paid for the work done, it should be repaid because of the subsequent misbehaviour of one of the parties who required the work. But it may be questioned whether the work should not be done without any fee at all. If the matter were new, we should be of opinion that the district officers might properly be called upon to discharge it gratuitously. But inasmuch as a fee is, under the General Emigration Act, charged for similar services, we have not ventured to omit it altogether from this Bill, though we are of opinion that a smaller one may properly be charged. We are not informed in what manner the fees are disposed of. The point is one on which the local authorities will have full information, and we shall be glad to receive advice whether it is desirable to abolish the fee altogether, or to lower it as now proposed.

14. We think that the Medical Inspector should examine in detail and individually all emigrants and their dependents immediately after their arrival at the depôt, but that any subsequent inspection by him should be of a more general character, and for the purpose mainly of seeing that there is no danger of infectious diseases. We have made provision for the case of emigrants or dependents suffering from such disease. We have struck out the penalty imposed on the Emigration Agent by section 27 of the Bill as introduced; and we have provided a procedure where a dependent is dangerously ill.

15. We have slightly modified the procedure of the Emigration Agent in registering contracts.

16. In section 35 we have declared that when any contract has been ratified by the Emigration Agent, the emigrant shall be deemed to have contracted with him on behalf of the Chief Commissioner to proceed to British Burma, and there to labour according to the terms of his contract in any place and mode which, consistently with such terms and with the provisions of the proposed Act, the Chief Commissioner may from time to time direct.

17. We have struck out the sections relating respectively to suits against the Emigration Agent for breach of contract and to the recovery of certain sums payable by him to emigrants.

18. We have provided that Emigration Agents shall furnish the masters of emigrant vessels with proper lists of the emigrants on board.

19. We have struck out the provision contained in section 40 of the original Bill that the Emigration Agent is to ascertain that the emigrants are in a fit state of health to proceed to Burma. All duties of this kind should be discharged by the Medical Inspector.

20. We have made it clear that the offices of Emigration Agent and of Medical Inspector of Emigrants may be held by the same person.

21. Considering the shortness of the voyage from peninsular India to Burma and the circumstance that the emigrants will be under the care of Government until their arrival, we have struck out the sections (35—44) of the Bill as introduced, relating to emigrant-vessels and the embarkation of emigrants. All that they do can be done by subsidiary rules to be framed by the Local Government.

22. In section 48 we have modified the clause relating to the assignment of immigrants, and have authorized the Chief Commissioner to make rules regulating the terms on which immigrants shall be allowed to labour on their own account. We have provided (in section 49) that in assigning immigrants to particular employers, the Immigration Agent shall, so far as practicable, take care that they are not separated from their dependents.

23. For reasons similar to those stated in paragraph 21 of this report, we have struck out the clauses (51—65) of the Bill as introduced, relating to the transit of immigrants to the place of labour. The matter will be more fitly provided for by rules to be made by the Chief Commissioner.

24. We think that under the changed aspect of the Bill no labour-rate will be wanted. The expenses will be recovered from the employers under the terms of the assignments. If they are not recoverable from any employer, we have empowered the Chief Commissioner to declare the assignment of immigrants to such employer to be void. In such case their labour will again be at the disposal of the Chief Commissioner.

25. We have struck out the clauses relating to the books to be kept and the reports to be made by Inspectors of Immigrants. These matters can, if necessary, be provided for by subsidiary rules or by simple executive orders.

26. We have also omitted the two sections (74, 75) of the Bill as introduced, which relate to the fixing of the immigrant's daily tasks and to the revision of the schedule of tasks. They are inconsistent with the conditions under which emigrants are now and will be employed in British Burma.

27. By section 60 where an Inspector finds an immigrant to be permanently unfitted for labour, he will report the case to the Local Government, which will then either provide for the employment and support of the immigrant and his dependents or send them back to the place at which they were registered.

28. Fines for breach of rules as to house-accommodation will, where the persons fined are agents and fail to pay, be charged on the employers' lands and be recoverable as if they were land-revenue.

29. We have struck out, as unnecessary in Burma, the clauses relating to unhealthy estates (sections 83 and 84 of the original Bill).

30. We have struck out the clauses (sections 85, 89 of the Bill as introduced) empowering the employer of an immigrant convicted of absence from labour or desertion to assign him to another employer.

31. We think it inexpedient to provide that the punishment for desertion shall in all cases be rigorous.

32. We have simplified the procedure in cases of complaints against employers. When any such complaint is frivolous and vexatious, we have provided (in section 77) a small penalty for the complainant. Compensation awarded where wages are in arrear for more than two months, will be paid to the immigrant.

33. By sections 83 and 84 we have completely altered the redemption clauses contained in section 102 of the original Bill. The contract being made with Government, who will also in many cases be the actual employer of labour, it is intended to make it redeemable, as the present practice is, on repayment by the immigrant of the expenses properly chargeable to him according to accounts kept by the Immigration Agent. When the immigrant has been assigned to a private employer, the proper compensation to that employer for the loss of his labour will be best ascertained by the special conditions of the assignment, or by rules whenever the Local Government can find its way to some general principle applicable to all cases.

34. We have struck out the clause (section 104 of original Bill) providing for a return-passage for immigrants whose contracts have been completed. Such a provision is not only not required, but would be inexpedient in the case of British Burma—at all events under the contemplated system.

35. We have struck out, as useless, the section empowering the Governor General in Council to make subsidiary rules, and we think it unnecessary to require the sanction of the Government of India to rules made by the Chief Commissioner under the proposed Act.

36. We have expressly empowered the Chief Commissioner to make rules to regulate the notice to be given and forms to be observed on the termination of assignments of immigrants and the terms on which contracts and assignments of service may be redeemed. We have provided a penalty for wilfully contravening any rule for the breach whereof no penalty is specially provided.

37. We have added four clauses (89, 90, 91, 92) to the Bill: the first providing for the renewal of instruments which have been lost or destroyed; the second declaring that copies made under the proposed Act shall be evidence of the contracts to which they respectively relate; the third providing for the recovery of money due under the Act from employers of immigrants; and the fourth supplying a technical defect in the contracts for service in British Burma under Government which have heretofore been entered into by emigrants from peninsular India.

38. The schedule giving a form of a pass permitting immigrants to proceed to their labour-district has been struck out in consequence of the omission of the section (51) which refers to it.

39. We have made, besides these substantial changes, several transpositions and verbal amendments.

40. We think that the Bill has been so altered as to require republication: we accordingly recommend that it be republished, as now amended, in the Gazette of India, the Calcutta Gazette, the Fort Saint George Gazette, and the British Burma Gazette, and that its further consideration should be postponed for the present.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Doubts having been raised whether under the present Telegraph Act (VIII of 1860) rules can be framed for Telegraphs established under the repealed Act XXXIV of 1854, the present Bill has been prepared with the primary object of repealing and re-enacting Act VIII of 1860, with such change as will preclude all question as to the extent of the power above referred to.

The opportunity has been taken to make certain other alterations in the law, of which, the chief are as follows:—

The present law declares that Railway Companies shall permit Government to establish Telegraphs on their land, but provides no penalty for refusing such permission; the Bill (section 12) supplies this defect.

The section relating to injuries to Telegraphs has been made more specific, the wording of 24 & 25 Vic., cap. 97, section 37, being here followed.

A clause founded on sections 14 and 15 of the Police Act V of 1861 has been introduced to empower the Local Government to employ additional Police in places where mischief to Telegraphs is repeatedly committed, and to charge the inhabitants with the cost of the Police so employed.

The clause imposing penalties for sending fabricated messages has been made to apply to messages sent by Telegraphs established by a Company or person licensed under the proposed Act, as well as to messages sent by Government Telegraphs.

Fraudulently retaining or wilfully secreting telegraphic messages is made penal. An analogous clause is contained in the Post Office Act (XIV of 1866), section 45.

Sections 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20 of Act VIII of 1860, which relate to fines and jurisdiction have been omitted, as rendered unnecessary by Acts I of 1868 and X of 1872.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The opportunity has been taken to make certain other alterations in the law, of which, the chief are as follows:—

The present law declares that Railway Companies shall permit Government to establish Telegraphs on their land, but provides no penalty for refusing such permission; the Bill (section 12) supplies this defect.

The section relating to injuries to Telegraphs has been made more specific, the wording of 24 & 25 Vic., cap. 97, section 37, being here followed.

A clause founded on sections 14 and 15 of the Police Act V of 1861 has been introduced to empower the Local Government to employ additional Police in places where mischief to Telegraphs is repeatedly committed, and to charge the inhabitants with the cost of the Police so employed.

The clause imposing penalties for sending fabricated messages has been made to apply to messages sent by Telegraphs established by a Company or person licensed under the proposed Act, as well as to messages sent by Government Telegraphs.

Fraudulently retaining or wilfully secreting telegraphic messages is made penal. An analogous clause is contained in the Post Office Act (XIV of 1866), section 45.

A Bill for the improvement of Law Reports.

Whereas it is expedient to diminish the multitude and expense of the law reports published in British India, and to improve their quality: And whereas with a view to furthering these objects, the Governor General in Council proposes to authorize the publication of reports of cases decided by the High Courts of Judicature established under the 24th & 25th of Victoria, Chapter 104, to be called the Indian Authorized Law Reports; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title. 1. This Act may be called "The Indian Law Reports Act, 1875:"

Local extent. It extends to the whole of British India;

Commencement. And it shall come into force on such day as the Governor General in Council notifies in this behalf in the Gazette of India.

Act II of 1875 repealed. 2. Act No. II of 1875 (to diminish the multitude and improve the quality of Law Reports, and to extend the area of their authority) is hereby repealed.

Authority given only to authorized reports after passing of Act. 3. No Court shall be bound to hear cited, or shall receive or treat as an authority binding on it, the report of any case decided by any of the said High Courts on or after the said day, other than a report published under the authority of the Governor General in Council.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The second section of the Indian Law Reports Act (II of 1875) declares that every judgment of any High Court established under 24 & 25 Vic., c. 104 shall, if reported in the authorised reports, have the same authority in all subordinate Courts beyond the limits of its appellate jurisdiction as, independently of the Act, such judgment would have within such limits.

The Secretary of State for India objects to this provision and suggests that Act II of 1875 should be repealed and re-enacted with the omission of the second section.

The present Bill has been prepared to give effect to this suggestion.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The object of this Bill is to establish in British India institutions which, so far as regards males, may serve the combined purposes of the Reformatory Schools and the Industrial Schools so successfully carried on in England under 29 & 30 Vic., cc. 117, 118.

The peculiar circumstances of India render it inexpedient to bring girls within the scope of the Bill.

With the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, Local Governments are empowered to establish Reformatory Schools (which are defined so as to include schools in which industrial training is provided), or to use as Reformatory Schools, schools kept by persons willing to obey such rules as Government may prescribe.

Provision is made that these schools shall be furnished with the proper requisites and periodically inspected.

Three classes of boys may be sent to Reformatory Schools:

(a) boys under 14 convicted of offences punishable with transportation or imprisonment, but not sentenced;

(b) boys under 12 sentenced to imprisonment; and

(c) boys under 14 who associate with thieves, vagrants, &c., or are without visible means of subsistence.

The minimum time for which a boy will be sent to a Reformatory School is two years, the maximum seven years. But no boy will be detained after he attains the age of 16.

Whereas it is expedient to diminish the multitude and expense of the law reports published in British India, and to improve their quality: And whereas with a view to furthering these objects, the Governor General in Council proposes to authorize the publication of reports of cases decided by the High Courts of Judicature established under the 24th & 25th of Victoria, Chapter 104, to be called the Indian Authorized Law Reports; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The Indian Law Reports Act, 1875:"

Local extent.

It extends to the whole of British India;

Commencement.

And it shall come into force on such day as the Governor General in Council notifies in this behalf in the Gazette of India.

Act II of 1875 repealed.

2. Act No. II of 1875 (to diminish the multitude and improve the quality of Law Reports, and to extend the area of their authority) is hereby repealed.

Authority given only to authorised reports after passing of Act.

3. No Court shall be bound to hear cited, or shall receive or treat as an authority binding on it, the report of any case decided by any of the said High Courts on or after the said day, other than a report published under the authority of the Governor General in Council.

4. Nothing herein contained shall be construed to give to any judicial decision any further or other authority than it would have had if this Act had not been passed.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The second section of the Indian Law Reports Act (II of 1875) declares that every judgment of any High Court established under 24 & 25 Vic., c. 104 shall, if reported in the authorized reports, have the same authority in all subordinate Courts beyond the limits of its appellate jurisdiction as, independently of the Act, such judgment would have within such limits.

The Secretary of State for India objects to this provision and suggests that Act II of 1875 should be repealed and re-enacted with the omission of the second section.

The present Bill has been prepared to give effect to this suggestion.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The object of this Bill is to establish in British India institutions which, so far as regards males, may serve the combined purposes of the Reformatory Schools and the Industrial Schools so successfully carried on in England under 29 & 30 Vic., cc. 117, 118.

The peculiar circumstances of India render it inexpedient to bring girls within the scope of the Bill.

With the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, Local Governments are empowered to establish Reformatory Schools (which are defined so as to include schools in which industrial training is provided), or to use as Reformatory Schools, schools kept by persons willing to obey such rules as Government may prescribe.

Provision is made that these schools shall be furnished with the proper requisites and periodically inspected.

Three classes of boys may be sent to Reformatory Schools:

(a) boys under 14 convicted of offences punishable with transportation or imprisonment, but not sentenced;

(b) boys under 12 sentenced to imprisonment; and

(c) boys under 14 who associate with thieves, vagrants, &c., or are without visible means of subsistence.

The minimum time for which a boy will be sent to a Reformatory School is two years, the maximum seven years. But no boy will be detained after he attains the age of 16.

As to the expenses of these schools, Municipalities are empowered, with the sanction of the Local Government, to apply municipal funds to establish or maintain Reformatory Schools, and Magistrates of the first class are empowered to order the parents of youthful offenders to contribute a moderate monthly sum to their support.

The Bill contains provisions as to the Boards which are to control and manage the schools. Two at least of these managers will always be Natives of India. The Board will have power to license youthful offenders to employers of labour; to cancel such licenses at the employer's request; to apprentice youthful offenders; and to make subsidiary rules.

Lastly, the Bill contains some clauses as to offences in relation to Reformatory Schools.

XV of 1864 ...	Tolls ...	The whole Act.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The primary object of this Bill is to declare what shall be deemed to be the law throughout the Central Provinces.

When that Chief Commissionership was formed in 1861, it comprised only the Province of Nágpur and the Ságar and Narbada territories. Since then there have been gradually added to it Sambulpur with its dependencies, the District of Nimár and Bijeragogarh.

In some of these territories certain Bengal Regulations were deemed to be in force: in others only what is called their spirit: in others mere executive rules. In his report for 1862-63, the then Chief Commissioner says that there were then "a variety of laws, rules and systems, each having force more or less in the several parts, but none having force over the whole." What was true in 1863 is to a great extent true in 1875; and the doubts and difficulties caused by this confusion are daily more and more felt.

The present Bill, which has been framed at the desire of the Local Government and to a large extent by the Judicial Commissioner, attempts to remove these doubts and difficulties. It repeals throughout the Central Provinces all Indian laws and rules except those mentioned or referred to in section 2 and the schedule, and it declares that certain enactments specified in that schedule shall be in force throughout those Provinces. To preclude doubts which might arise from the way in which additions have from time to time been made to the Central Provinces, section 4 declares that every Act which extends to the territories under the administration of the Chief Commissioner at the time of its passing, shall extend to all territories now under his administration.

The Bill further prescribes a rule of decision in certain cases of litigation between Natives. It exempts from attachment implements of husbandry and plough bullocks; and it empowers (section 8) the Chief Commissioner to make subsidiary rules as to a variety of matters.

The Bill leaves untouched the revenue system of the Central Provinces, which will probably be dealt with by another enactment.

XV of 1864 ...	Tolls ...	The whole Act.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The primary object of this Bill is to declare what shall be deemed to be the law throughout the Central Provinces.

When that Chief Commissionership was formed in 1861, it comprised only the Province of Nágpur and the Ságar and Narbada territories. Since then there have been gradually added to it Sambulpur with its dependencies, the District of Nimár and Bijeragogarh.

In some of these territories certain Bengal Regulations were deemed to be in force: in others only what is called their spirit: in others mere executive rules. In his report for 1862-63, the then Chief Commissioner says that there were then "a variety of laws, rules and systems, each having force more or less in the several parts, but none having force over the whole." What was true in 1863 is to a great extent true in 1875; and the doubts and difficulties caused by this confusion are daily more and more felt.

The present Bill, which has been framed at the desire of the Local Government and to a large extent by the Judicial Commissioner, attempts to remove these doubts and difficulties. It repeals throughout the Central Provinces all Indian laws and rules except those mentioned or referred to in section 2 and the schedule, and it declares that certain enactments specified in that schedule shall be in force throughout those Provinces. To preclude doubts which might arise from the way in which additions have from time to time been made to the Central Provinces, section 4 declares that every Act which extends to the territories under the administration of the Chief Commissioner at the time of its passing, shall extend to all territories now under his administration.

The Bill further prescribes a rule of decision in certain cases of litigation between Natives. It exempts from attachment implements of husbandry and plough bullocks; and it empowers (section 8) the Chief Commissioner to make subsidiary rules as to a variety of matters.

The Bill leaves untouched the revenue system of the Central Provinces, which will probably be dealt with by another enactment.

(a) cultivate the poppy or manufacture opium;

(b) possess any quantity of opium exceeding five tolahs in weight;

(c) transport opium from one place to another; or

(d) sell opium or preparations or admixtures of opium.

4. The Local Government may make rules to regulate, within the whole or any part of the territories subject to such Government, all or any of the following matters:—

Local Government may make rules.

(a) the cultivation of the poppy;

(b) the possession of any quantity of opium exceeding five tolahs in weight;

(c) the transport of opium; and

(d) the sale of opium and of preparations and admixtures of opium.

The Local Government may from time to time alter and add to such rules.

Such rules, alterations and additions shall be submitted for the sanction of the Governor General in Council, and on receiving such sanction, shall be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

5. Whoever cultivates the poppy in contravention of rules made and published under section four, or before such rules are made and published as aforesaid, shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be punished with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, and, in default of payment of such fine, with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months;

Penalty for illegal cultivation of poppy.

and the poppy so cultivated, and the opium (if any) produced therefrom, may be confiscated by the convicting Magistrate.

6. Whoever, not being authorized in this behalf under rules made and published under this Act, or before such rules are so made and published, has in his possession a greater quantity of opium than five tolahs weight,

For having in possession unlawful quantity of opium;

and whoever transports opium in contravention of rules so made and published, or before such rules are so made and published, shall for every such offence be punished with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, and, in default of payment of such fine, with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months:

7. Whoever sells opium in contravention of rules so made and published, or before such rules are so made and published, shall for every such offence be punished with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, and, in default of payment of such fine, with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months.

For unlawful sale of opium.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The poppy is grown extensively in Lower Bengal, the North-Western Provinces, Oudh and Central India, and to some slight extent in the Panjáb, the Central Provinces, Berar and Mysore, and in part of Bombay. Little or no opium is produced in Madras, British Burma or Assam.

The attention of Local Governments and of the Government of India has of late been frequently drawn to the insufficiency of the existing law on the subject.

In the Bengal Presidency, including the North-Western Provinces, Oudh and the Panjáb, the law is clear and satisfactory.

But in some of the more recently formed Administrations, such as the Central Provinces, Assam and British Burma, the applicability of the Bengal law is doubtful, and in Bombay and Madras the law on the subject is altogether defective.

In the Bombay Presidency, the same control is in point of fact exercised as in Bengal for checking the growth of the poppy and the manufacture of opium; but the legal authority for this action is insufficient.

In Madras no check, either legislative or administrative, exists at present on the growth of the poppy or the transport, possession or storage of opium, and practices have resulted injurious alike to the public revenue and to public morality and health.

The Governments of Madras and Bombay have both contemplated supplying these defects by local legislation. But it is considered expedient by one simple and comprehensive Imperial law to ensure that the Imperial revenue derived from opium is nowhere left without adequate protection.

The Bill, as now introduced, will not alter the state of things prevailing in the Bengal Presidency, nor will it involve any alteration of practice inconsistent with the system of export duty in force in Western India. The control exercised by the State in Bengal and Northern India, is equally necessary whichever system prevails. The power which Government by law possesses in the Bengal Presidency will now be extended to all parts of India,—doubts, where they exist, will be removed,—and the needed legislation will be provided for Madras and Bombay.

2. Sections eight to sixteen (both inclusive) of Bombay Regulation XXI of 1827, are hereby repealed.

3. Unless in accordance with rules framed under this Act or with any enactment for the time being in force, no one shall—

(a) cultivate the poppy or manufacture opium;

(b) possess any quantity of opium exceeding five tolahs in weight;

(c) transport opium from one place to another; or

(d) sell opium or preparations or admixtures of opium.

Local Government may make rules.

4. The Local Government may make rules to regulate, within the whole or any part of the territories subject to such Government, all or any of the following matters:—

(a) the cultivation of the poppy;

(b) the possession of any quantity of opium exceeding five tolahs in weight;

(c) the transport of opium; and

(d) the sale of opium and of preparations and admixtures of opium.

The Local Government may from time to time alter and add to such rules.

Such rules, alterations and additions shall be submitted for the sanction of the Governor General in Council, and on receiving such sanction, shall be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

Penalty for illegal cultivation of poppy.

5. Whoever cultivates the poppy in contravention of rules made and published under section four, or before such rules are made and published as aforesaid, shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be punished with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, and, in default of payment of such fine, with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months;

and the poppy so cultivated, and the opium (if any) produced therefrom, may be confiscated by the convicting Magistrate.

6. Whoever, not being authorized in this behalf under rules made and published under this Act, or before such rules are so made and published, has in his possession a greater quantity of opium than five tolahs weight,

For having in possession unlawful quantity of opium;

and whoever transports opium in contravention of rules so made and published, or before such rules are so made and published, for unlawfully transporting opium.

Provided that if the opium in respect of which such offence is committed exceeds the weight of twenty sers, the fine may be increased at a rate not exceeding fifty rupees the ser for all the opium so found in excess.

On any conviction under this section, the opium, together with the vessels, packages and coverings in which it is found, and the animals and conveyances used in carrying it, may be confiscated by the convicting Magistrate.

7. Whoever sells opium in contravention of rules so made and published or before such rules are so made and published, shall for every such offence be punished with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, and, in default of payment of such fine, with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months.

For unlawful sale of opium.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The poppy is grown extensively in Lower Bengal, the North-Western Provinces, Oudh and Central India, and to some slight extent in the Panjáb, the Central Provinces, Berar and Mysore, and in part of Bombay. Little or no opium is produced in Madras, British Burma or Assam.

The attention of Local Governments and of the Government of India has of late been frequently drawn to the insufficiency of the existing law on the subject.

In the Bengal Presidency, including the North-Western Provinces, Oudh and the Panjáb, the law is clear and satisfactory.

But in some of the more recently formed Administrations, such as the Central Provinces, Assam and British Burma, the applicability of the Bengal law is doubtful, and in Bombay and Madras the law on the subject is altogether defective.

In the Bombay Presidency, the same control is in point of fact exercised as in Bengal for checking the growth of the poppy and the manufacture of opium; but the legal authority for this action is insufficient.

In Madras no check, either legislative or administrative, exists at present on the growth of the poppy or the transport, possession or storage of opium, and practices have resulted injurious alike to the public revenue and to public morality and health.

The Governments of Madras and Bombay have both contemplated supplying these defects by local legislation. But it is considered expedient by one simple and comprehensive Imperial law to ensure that the Imperial revenue derived from opium is nowhere left without adequate protection.

The Bill, as now introduced, will not alter the state of things prevailing in the Bengal Presidency, nor will it involve any alteration of practice inconsistent with the system of export duty in force in Western India. The control exercised by the State in Bengal and Northern India, is equally necessary whichever system prevails. The power which Government by law possesses in the Bengal Presidency will now be extended to all parts of India,—doubts, where they exist, will be removed,—and the needed legislation will be provided for Madras and Bombay.

PART V.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[First publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 29th September 1875, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to make their report thereon in a week.

No. 10 of 1875.

A Bill to provide an appeal from certain decrees of the Chief Court of the Panjáb, and for other purposes.

Whereas it is expedient to give a right of appeal from certain decrees and orders of the Chief Court of the Panjáb, and to enable the appellate Court to remand suits and order retrials, and to empower Judges of the said Chief Court to make references as to points of law; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preamble.

1. Subject to the provisions hereinafter contained, an appeal shall lie to the said Chief Court from any decree or order (not being an order made in any criminal trial) made in the exercise of original jurisdiction either by one Judge of the said Chief Court, or by a Bench of two Judges of the same Court, unless such Judges concur in the judgment.

Appeal from decrees in exercise of original jurisdiction.

When a suit is heard by a Bench of two Judges exercising original jurisdiction, the judgment of the senior Judge shall be the judgment of the Bench, and the decree or order shall follow thereupon, and any appeal therefrom shall be heard by a full Bench.

If the decree or order appealed from was made by a single Judge, the appeal shall be heard either by the two other Judges of the said Chief Court or by a full Bench, as the Court may determine, either by rule made under Act No. IV of 1866, section 43, or, in the absence of such rule, by order in the particular case.

When the appeal is heard by two Judges, and they do not concur in varying the decree or order appealed from, such decree or order shall be taken as the final decree or order of the said Chief Court, unless such Court orders (as it is hereby empowered to do) the appeal to be re-heard before the full Bench.

2. Every appeal under this Act must be presented within thirty days from the date of the decree or order appealed against.

Time for presenting such appeals.

But if the period of limitation so prescribed expires on a day when the Court is closed, the appeal may be presented on the day that the Court re-opens.

3. Any such appeal may be admitted after the period of limitation so prescribed when the appellant satisfies the Court that he had sufficient cause for not presenting it within such period; and in the case of any decree against which the Chief Court has declared an appeal to Her Majesty in Council to be admitted under Act No. VI of 1874, the non-existence of this Act shall be deemed to be sufficient cause within the meaning of this section: provided that the copy of the record has not been transmitted to Her Majesty in Council.

Admission after period has expired.

4. In computing such period, the day on which the judgment complained of was pronounced, and the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the decree or order appealed against, shall be excluded.

Computation of period.

5. When an appeal under this Act has been heard, the appellate Court may remand the suit in accordance either with section 371 or section 374 of the Code of Civil Procedure, or may order that the case be tried again either by a full Bench or by the Court that has already tried it.

Power to remand or order new trial.

6. A single Judge, or a Bench of two Judges (whether exercising original or appellate jurisdiction), may refer for the decision of a full Bench any question of law arising in any suit or on any appeal before such Judge or Bench of two Judges; and the Judge or Bench making the reference shall dispose of the case conformably to the decision of the full Bench of the question so referred.

Power to make reference on points of law.

7. In case of a difference of opinion among the Judges forming the full Bench as to the decision to be given on any question coming before them under any provision of this Act, such question shall be decided according to the opinion of the majority of such Judges.

Difference among Judges forming full Bench.

8. This Act shall be read with, and taken as part of, the Panjáb Chief Court Act, 1866.

This Act to be read with Act IV of 1866.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Act regulating the Chief Court of the Panjáb (IV of 1866) provides no appeal from decrees made by a single Judge of the Court in the exercise of original civil jurisdiction.

The result is that appeals from such decrees can only go to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council: and much waste of time and money is thereby caused.

The present Bill, which has been prepared at the desire of the Local Government and the Chief Court, is intended to supply the defect above indicated. The opportunity has been taken to enable the appellate Court to remand suits and order retrials, and to empower the Judges to make references as to questions of law.

SIMLA;

WHITLEY STOKES,
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

[First publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 29th September 1875, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to make their report thereon in three months.

No. 11 of 1875.

A Bill to amend the law relating to Merchant Seamen.

Whereas it is expedient to amend the law relating to Merchant Seamen in manner hereinafter appearing; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preamble.

Preliminary.

1. This Act may be called "The Indian Merchant Seamen's Act, 1875:"

Short title.

It extends to the whole of British India;

Local extent.

And it shall come into force at once.

Commencement.

2. In this Act—"owner" includes also "agent," and "seaman" includes every person (except Masters, pilots, and apprentices duly indentured and registered) employed or engaged in any capacity on board any ship.

Interpretation-clause.

Distressed Seamen.

3. A certificate signed by a Secretary to the Local Government, or by such other officer as it appoints in this behalf, to the effect that any seaman named therein is distressed, shall, in all proceedings under sections 211, 212, and 213 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, be conclusive evidence that such seaman is distressed within the meaning of the same sections; and any Master of a British ship refusing to accept such seaman as a distressed seaman under the provisions of the said sections shall, for each seaman with respect to whom he so refuses, be liable to a fine which may extend to one thousand rupees.

Evidence of distress of seamen.

Penalty for refusing to accept distressed seamen.

Discharge of Seamen.

4. No owner or Master of a ship shall discharge any seaman or apprentice not shipped in British India without the previous sanction in writing of such officer as the Local Government appoints in this behalf, and such sanction shall be given or withheld at the discretion of the officer so appointed.

Discharge of seamen.

Any Master wilfully disobeying the prohibition contained in this section shall be liable to imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months, or to fine not exceeding one thousand rupees, or to both.

Engagement of Seamen.

5. The Local Government, or such officer as it appoints in this behalf, may, by order in writing signed by its Secretary or by such officer, prohibit the owner or Master of any ship from engaging any Native of India to serve as a seaman on board such ship.

Engagement of Native seamen.

Whoever wilfully disobeys the prohibition contained in this section shall be liable to imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months, or to fine not exceeding one thousand rupees, or to both.

Deserters.

6. Whenever any seaman or apprentice not shipped in British India deserts or otherwise absents himself without leave from any ship in which he is engaged to serve, the Master or owner of the ship shall, within forty-eight hours of discovering such desertion or absence, report the same to such officer as the Local Government appoints in this behalf, unless in the meantime the deserter or absentee returns.

Deserters.

Any Master or owner wilfully neglecting to comply with the provisions of this section may be punished with fine not exceeding one hundred rupees, or imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month, or with both.

Imprisoned Seamen.

7. If any seaman or apprentice not shipped in British India is imprisoned for any offence for which he has been sentenced to imprisonment for a term not exceeding one month, any Magistrate may deal with him in the same way as he may deal with a seaman or apprentice imprisoned on any of the grounds mentioned in section 88 of Act No. I of 1859 (for the amendment of the law relating to Merchant Seamen).

Power to deal with imprisoned seamen in accordance with section 88, Act I of 1859.

8. If any seaman or apprentice not shipped in British India is imprisoned on a complaint made by or on behalf of the Master or owner of the ship in which he is engaged to serve, on any of the grounds mentioned in the said Act No. I of 1859, section 88, or for any offence for which he has been sentenced to imprisonment for a term not exceeding one month, the following rules shall be observed:—

Rules as to imprisoned seamen.

(a) Such Master or owner shall not, without the previous sanction in writing of the Local Government or of such officer as it appoints in this behalf, engage any Native of India to serve as a seaman on board his ship;

(b) the Local Government, or such officer as it appoints in this behalf, may tender such seaman or apprentice to the Master or owner of the ship in which he is engaged to serve, and if such Master or owner refuse to receive him or board, may require such Master or owner to deposit in the local Shipping Office (1) the wages due to such seaman or apprentice, and his money, clothes, and other effects, and (2) such sum as may in the opinion of the Local Government or of such officer as aforesaid be sufficient to defray the cost of—the passage of the said seaman or apprentice to the port at which he was shipped, and of his subsistence during such passage;

his lodging and subsistence during his detention (if any) at the place at which he is so imprisoned until he embarks.

And if the Master or owner fail to deposit such wages, money, clothes and other effects, or refuse or neglect to comply with such requisition, he may be punished with fine not exceeding five hundred rupees, and in default of payment of such fine, to imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months.

Accommodation of Seamen.

9. And whereas it is expedient to increase the space required by the said Act No. I of 1859, section 70, to be allowed for European seamen and apprentices and for lascars or Native seamen; It is hereby further enacted as follows:—

Amendment of Act I of 1859, sec. 70.

Such section shall be read as if for the expressions "nine superficial feet," "fifty-four cubic feet," and "four superficial feet," the expressions "ten superficial feet," "sixty cubic feet," and "six superficial feet" were respectively substituted, and as if in the third paragraph of the same section after the word "superficial" the words "and thirty-six cubic" were inserted.

Meaning of 'established par value.'

10. And whereas doubts have been raised as to the meaning of the expression "established par value" in the said Act No. I of 1859, section 54, for the purpose of removing such doubts, it is hereby declared as follows:—

Meaning of expression 'established par value' in Act I of 1859, section 54.

In the said section 54, the expression "established par value" means the rate of exchange for the time being fixed by the Secretary of State for India in Council to regulate transactions between himself and the Government of India.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The object of this Bill is to make a number of small but important changes in the law relating to Merchant Seamen, which cannot conveniently be postponed until that law is consolidated and amended.

The Bill first provides for determining disputes whether or not a seaman is "distressed" within the meaning of the sections of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, relating to distressed seamen, and imposes an Indian penalty on masters of British ships who refuse to receive on board distressed seamen in accordance with those sections.

The Bill then provides against the discharge in India of European seamen without the previous sanction of an officer appointed by the Local Government, and removes a doubt which has been felt as to the corresponding provision (section 207) of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, by expressly declaring that such officer has a discretion as to giving or withholding his sanction.

Power is given to the Local Government to prohibit the owner or master of a ship from engaging Natives of India as seamen. This power is intended to be exercised in case it is found that the master is wantonly discharging European seamen for the mere purpose of replacing them by Natives.

Provision is then made that where a European seaman deserts, the master or owner shall report the desertion to the Local Government.

Sections 7 and 8 extend the provisions of section 88 of Act I of 1859, and contain certain rules as to European seamen imprisoned for breaches of discipline or other petty offences on the complaint of the master. The previous sanction of the Local Government is rendered necessary to the engagement of Natives of India. The Local Government is also empowered to tender an imprisoned seaman to the master, and, if the master refuse to receive him, the master may be required to deposit, not only the wages, &c., due to the seaman, but also such sum as may be sufficient to defray the cost of his passage home and of his lodging and subsistence till he starts.

The Bill then contains a clause slightly increasing the space required by Act I of 1859, section 70, for European and for Native seamen.

Lastly, a clause has been added to remove a doubt which has been raised as to the meaning, in section 54 of that Act, of the expression "established par value."

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Second publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 29th September 1875, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to make their report thereon in a week.

No. 10 of 1875.

A Bill to provide an appeal from certain decrees of the Chief Court of the Panjáb, and for other purposes.

Preamble.

Whereas it is expedient to give a right of appeal from certain decrees and orders of the Chief Court of the Panjáb, and to enable the appellate Court to remand suits and order retrials, and to empower Judges of the said Chief Court to make references as to points of law; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Appeal from decrees in exercise of original jurisdiction.

1. Subject to the provisions hereinafter contained, an appeal shall lie to the said Chief Court from any decree or order (not being an order made in any criminal trial) made in the exercise of original jurisdiction either by one Judge of the said Chief Court, or by a Bench of two Judges of the same Court, unless such Judges concur in the judgment.

When a suit is heard by a Bench of two Judges exercising original jurisdiction, the judgment of the senior Judge shall be the judgment of the Bench, and the decree or order shall follow thereupon, and any appeal therefrom shall be heard by a full Bench.

If the decree or order appealed from was made by a single Judge, the appeal shall be heard either by the two other Judges of the said Chief Court or by a full Bench, as the Court may determine, either by rule made under Act No. IV of 1866, section 43, or, in the absence of such rule, by order in the particular case.

When the appeal is heard by two Judges, and they do not concur in varying the decree or order appealed from, such decree or order shall be taken as the final decree or order of the said Chief Court, unless such Court orders (as it is hereby empowered to do) the appeal to be re-heard before the full Bench.

Time for presenting such appeals.

2. Every appeal under this Act must be presented within thirty days from the date of the decree or order appealed against.

But if the period of limitation so prescribed expires on a day when the Court is closed, the appeal may be presented on the day that the Court re-opens.

Admission after period has expired.

3. Any such appeal may be admitted after the period of limitation so prescribed when the appellant satisfies the Court that he had sufficient cause for not presenting it within such period; and in the case of any decree against which the Chief Court has declared an appeal to Her Majesty in Council to be admitted under Act No. VI of 1874, the non-existence of this Act shall be deemed to be sufficient cause within the meaning of this section: provided that the copy of the record has not been transmitted to Her Majesty in Council.

Computation of period.

4. In computing such period, the day on which the judgment complained of was pronounced, and the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the decree or order appealed against, shall be excluded.

5. When an appeal under this Act has been heard, the appellate Court may remand the suit in accordance either with section 371 or section 374 of the Code of Civil Procedure, or may order that the case be tried again either by a full Bench or by the Court that has already tried it.

Power to remand or order new trial.

6. A single Judge, or a Bench of two Judges (whether exercising original or appellate jurisdiction), may refer for the decision of a full Bench any question of law arising in any suit or on any appeal before such Judge or Bench of two Judges; and the Judge or Bench making the reference shall dispose of the case conformably to the decision of the full Bench of the question so referred.

Power to make reference on points of law.

7. In case of a difference of opinion among the Judges forming the full Bench as to the decision to be given on any question coming before them under any provision of this Act, such question shall be decided according to the opinion of the majority of such Judges.

Difference among Judges forming full Bench.

8. This Act shall be read with, and taken as part of, the Panjáb Chief Court Act, 1866.

This Act to be read with Act IV of 1866.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Act regulating the Chief Court of the Panjáb (IV of 1866) provides no appeal from decrees made by a single Judge of the Court in the exercise of original civil jurisdiction.

The result is that appeals from such decrees can only go to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council: and much waste of time and money is thereby caused.

The present Bill, which has been prepared at the desire of the Local Government and the Chief Court, is intended to supply the defect above indicated. The opportunity has been taken to enable the appellate Court to remand suits and order retrials, and to empower the Judges to make references as to questions of law.

6. Whenever any seaman or apprentice not shipped in British India deserts or otherwise absents himself without leave from any ship in which he is engaged to serve, the Master or owner of the ship shall, within forty-eight hours of discovering such desertion or absence, report the same to such officer as the Local Government appoints in this behalf, unless in the meantime the deserter or absentee returns.

Any Master or owner wilfully neglecting to comply with the provisions of this section may be punished with fine not exceeding one hundred rupees, or imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month, or with both.

Imprisoned Seamen.

Power to deal with imprisoned seamen in accordance with section 88, Act I of 1859.

7. If any seaman or apprentice not shipped in British India is imprisoned for any offence for which he has been sentenced to imprisonment for a term not exceeding one month, any Magistrate may deal with him in the same way as he may deal with a seaman or apprentice imprisoned on any of the grounds mentioned in section 88 of Act No. I of 1859 (for the amendment of the law relating to Merchant Seamen).

Rules as to imprisoned seamen.

8. If any seaman or apprentice not shipped in British India is imprisoned on a complaint made by or on behalf of the Master or owner of the ship in which he is engaged to serve, on any of the grounds mentioned in the said Act No. I of 1859, section 88, or for any offence for which he has been sentenced to imprisonment for a term not exceeding one month, the following rules shall be observed:—

(a) Such Master or owner shall not, without the previous sanction in writing of the Local Government or of such officer as it appoints in this behalf, engage any Native of India to serve as a seaman on board his ship;

(b) the Local Government, or such officer as it appoints in this behalf, may tender such seaman or apprentice to the Master or owner of the ship in which he is engaged to serve, and if such Master or owner refuse to receive him on board, may require such Master or owner to deposit in the local Shipping Office (1) the wages due to such seaman or apprentice and his money, clothes, and other effects, and (2) such sum as may in the opinion of the Local Government or of such officer as aforesaid be sufficient to defray the cost of—

his lodging and subsistence during his detention (if any) at the place at which he is so imprisoned until he embarks.

And if the Master or owner fail to deposit such wages, money, clothes and other effects, or refuse or neglect to comply with such requisition, he may be punished with fine not exceeding five hundred rupees, and in default of payment of such fine, to imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months.

Accommodation of Seamen.

Amendment of Act I of 1859, sec. 70.

9. And whereas it is expedient to increase the space required by the said Act No. I of 1859, section 70, to be allowed for European seamen and apprentices and for lascars or Native seamen; It is hereby further enacted as follows:—

Such section shall be read as if for the expressions "nine superficial feet," "fifty-four cubic feet," and "four superficial feet," the expressions "ten superficial feet," "sixty cubic feet," and "six superficial feet" were respectively substituted, and as if in the third paragraph of the same section after the word "superficial" the words "and thirty-six cubic" were inserted.

Meaning of 'established par value.'

Meaning of expression 'established par value' in Act I of 1859, section 54.

10. And whereas doubts have been raised as to the meaning of the expression "established par value" in the said Act No. I of 1859, section 54, for the purpose of removing such doubts; It is hereby declared as follows:—

In the said section 54, the expression "established par value" means the rate of exchange for the time being fixed by the Secretary of State for India in Council to regulate transactions between himself and the Government of India.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The object of this Bill is to make a number of small but important changes in the law relating to Merchant Seamen, which cannot conveniently be postponed until that law is consolidated and amended.

The Bill first provides for determining disputes whether or not a seaman is "distressed" within the meaning of the sections of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, relating to distressed seamen, and imposes an Indian penalty on Masters of British ships who refuse to receive on board distressed seamen in accordance with those sections.

The Bill then provides against the discharge in India of European seamen without the previous sanction of an officer appointed by the Local Government, and removes a doubt which has been felt as to the corresponding provision (section 207) of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, by expressly declaring that such officer has a discretion as to giving or withholding his sanction.

Power is given to the Local Government to prohibit the owner or Master of a ship from engaging Natives of India as seamen. This power is intended to be exercised in case it is found that the Master is wantonly discharging European seamen for the mere purpose of replacing them by Natives.

Provision is then made that where a European seaman deserts, the Master or owner shall report the desertion to the Local Government.

Sections 7 and 8 extend the provisions of section 88 of Act I of 1859, and contain certain rules as to European seamen imprisoned for breaches of discipline or other petty offences on the complaint of the Master. The previous sanction of the Local Government is rendered necessary to the engagement of Natives of India. The Local Government is also empowered to tender an imprisoned seaman to the Master, and, if the Master refuse to receive him, the Master may be required to deposit, not only the wages, &c., due to the seaman, but also such sum as may be sufficient to defray the cost of his passage home and of his lodging and subsistence till he starts.

The Bill then contains a clause slightly increasing the space required by Act I of 1859, section 70, for European and for Native seamen.

Lastly, a clause has been added to remove a doubt which has been raised as to the meaning, in section 54 of that Act, of the expression "established par value."

Besides the detailed alterations which are set forth in the latter part of this Report, we have to call especial attention to the considerable alterations on the principle of the existing law and of the Bill as it was introduced into Council. One of these alterations concerns the classification of ships or rather of voyages, and the other the measurement of space for passengers.

The Acts of Council which now regulate the carriage of Native passengers are XXV of 1859, XII of 1870, and XII of 1872. The Act of 1859 is confined to the Bay of Bengal and to certain specified voyages within that Bay, but it extends to every species of vessel, however small may be the number of passengers.

The Act of 1870 was framed to apply to voyages between India and ports either in the Red Sea or the Persian Gulf, but this part of that Act is confined to vessels which carry more than thirty Native passengers. This Act also contains a chapter relating to steam-vessels carrying any number of passengers on "coasting voyages" from or to any port or place within British India, and it subjects them to provisions less elaborate and less restrictive than those which apply to the voyages to the Red Sea or Persian Gulf. But it does not define the term "coasting voyage," which is a term by no means free from ambiguity.

The Act of 1872 effected a very important alteration in the Act of 1870 by making the rules laid down for voyages to the Red Sea or Persian Gulf apply to all vessels whether sailers or steamers which carry more than thirty passengers, and which fall within the scope of our legislation.

Thus it will be seen that before the Act of 1872, the law was in a very complicated and anomalous state. Very different rules were laid down for voyages bearing practically the same character: for instance, a voyage from Madras to Singapore would fall under one set of rules, and a voyage from Bombay to Bushire under another. There were no provisions applying to voyages from one British Indian port to another, except those for the specified voyages in the Bay of Bengal, and those which were laid down for "coasting steamers" whatever that expression might mean. The Act of 1872 very much simplified the law, but it did so by subjecting to one set of rules voyages of the most diverse character; so that, for instance, a voyage by steam from Bombay to Surat would be subjected to the same rules as one by sails from Madras to Jeddah. It was the hardship occasioned to first class steamers by this change of the law that led to the introduction of the Bill. And as we have been informed, the law being unsuitable to the circumstances was disregarded in many respects. The Bill as introduced kept to the existing classification of voyages and vessels, and sought to remove the existing hardships by giving larger powers to Local Governments to make exemptions and to adjust rules. It also put voyages in the Bay of Bengal and those to the westward on the same footing, and thus aimed at a material simplification of the arrangements made by the Acts of 1859 and 1870. But it was urged upon us that any system depending for its working upon exemptions by the executive had an element of great uncertainty and weakness in it; and that the Local Governments were not in a position to make rules, many of which, in order to work at all, must work in more than one province. At the same time, it was suggested that we might make a more simple and practical classification of voyages than was effected by the Acts of 1859 and 1870; and that by dividing them into voyages of greater or less length, and providing a more stringent set of rules for the former and a less stringent set for the latter, we might preserve an effectual control over the traffic while not enacting a law too rigid for practical working. We were also informed that the existing law was defective in requiring the passengers to be proportioned to the tonnage of the vessel, being a principle of measurement unsuitable to the build of the vessels in question, and that the principle of measurement by superficial and cubic feet of space would be more suitable.

For these suggestions we were indebted to Mr. Kittredge, a gentleman residing at Bombay and of much experience in the passenger-ship business. They appeared good to us, but we thought it would be imprudent to adopt them without first consulting local authorities. On that account we did not at once make any report to the Council, but we caused a provisional draft to be framed on the basis of Mr. Kittredge's two suggestions, and sent to the Maritime Governments for opinions. The result has been that we have received answers which show a general acceptance of the proposed alteration in the law, and which do not, in our opinion, show any valid objection to it.

We have therefore divided voyages into two classes: long voyages and short voyages: long voyages being those on which the ship will under ordinary circumstances be as much as five days out of port. We have required more stringent conditions of ships proceeding on long voyages. And we have abandoned measurement by tonnage, for measurement by space alone.

The Bill, as now framed, is divided into six Chapters: I. Preliminary; II. Rules for all voyages; III. Rules for short voyages; IV. Rules for long voyages; V. Penalties; VI. Miscellaneous.

CHAPTER I.—Preliminary.

In lieu of giving a definition of "Native passenger ship", we have made the Bill expressly apply to vessels carrying more than thirty passengers being Natives of Asia or Africa; but we have excluded from the operation of the proposed Act sailing-vessels not carrying as passengers more than thirty such Natives, steamers not carrying as passengers more than sixty such Natives; and sailing-vessels and steamers not intended to carry passengers to or from any port in British India.

We have omitted the definition of "Local Government," and have defined "passenger" as meaning a person above the age of twelve years or two persons between the ages of one year and twelve years. We have also defined the expressions "voyage," "long voyage," "short voyage" and "Chief Officer of Customs."

CHAPTER II.—Rules for all voyages.

We have here provided that no ship shall discharge passengers at any port in British India other than a port appointed by Government. We think that notice of the time of sailing should be given not less than 24 hours before time, and we have provided that it may be given by the Owner or Agent as well as by the Master.

We think that no passenger ship should commence her voyage unless the Master has two certificates—one (designated as A) stating that the ship is seaworthy and properly equipped, &c., and the number of passengers that she is capable of carrying: the other (designated as B) stating the voyage that she is intended to make, that she has a proper crew, sufficient provisions, &c. Certificate A may be dispensed with, if the Master holds a certificate granted by the Board of Trade or by any British Colonial Government, or a certificate granted under the authority of a British Indian Government and not more than 6 months before the day of sailing. And we think that where the officer empowered to grant certificates under the proposed Act directs unreasonably a survey to be made of a vessel holding either of such certificates, the Local Government should pay the expense of the survey.

We have provided that the grant of certificates shall be in the discretion of the officer empowered to grant them.

CHAPTER III.—Rules as to short voyages.

We have here laid down rules as to the space to be provided for between-decks passengers and upper-deck passengers (a) in seasons of fair weather, (b) in seasons of foul weather. And we have declared that in seasons of foul weather no ship shall carry upper-deck passengers unless she provides for them a deck-house or other permanent protection. This chapter also provides for obtaining supplementary certificate in case the vessel ships additional passengers at intermediate ports and for reporting deaths which occur on the voyage.

CHAPTER IV.—Rules for long voyages.

Here we have first given rules as to the space to be provided for passengers (a) in sailing-vessels, (b) in steamers. We then declare that the certificate shall not be granted when the cargo is likely to prejudice the health or safety of the passengers. We have also provided for reporting any deaths which occur on the voyage. The remainder of this chapter (as to the statement, as to the number and sexes of the original and additional passengers, as to the bond to be given when the ship clears for a port in the Red Sea, and as to touching at Aden and obtaining a clean bill of health) repeat with mere verbal changes the provisions of Act XII of 1870.

CHAPTER V.—Penalties.

Nothing in this chapter requires special mention except section thirty-eight, which is founded on section eleven of Act XXV of 1859, and imposes a penalty on the Master of any ship bringing passengers from any place in Ceylon or in the Straits or to the east thereof to British India, in excess of the proportion authorized by the proposed Act or allowed by the license granted in respect of the ship at her port of departure.

CHAPTER VI.—Miscellaneous.

We think that the power to make subsidiary rules should be exercised solely by the Governor General in Council and not by the Local Governments with his previous sanction. We also think that the Governor General in Council should have the power to declare what shall be deemed to be, for the purposes of the proposed Act, a "long voyage," a "short voyage," "seasons of fair weather," and "seasons of foul weather."

Lastly, we have empowered the Governor General in Council to direct, in the case of any ship or class of ships, and for all or any voyages, the space to be contained for the passengers, and we have declared that such direction shall override the general provisions of the Act relating to such ship or class of ships.

We think that the Bill has undergone such alterations that it should be republished; that the opinions of the Local Governments concerned should be invited; and that meanwhile the further consideration of the Bill should be postponed.

WHITLEY STOKES,
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

The following further Report of a Select Committee, together with the Bill as settled by them, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 13th October 1875:—

We, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to limit the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts throughout the Bombay Presidency in matters relating to the Land-Revenue was referred, have the honour to report that we have considered the papers noted in the margin, which have been received since we presented our Preliminary Report in April 1874. The Bill was re-published in April 1874 as recommended by us. We are about to recommend the publication of a new draft which we denote as No. III.

Telegram from Government of Bombay, dated 21st March 1874.

From Government of Bombay, No. $\frac{1533}{65}$, dated 24th March 1874.

Ditto ditto, No. $\frac{1577}{68}$ R, dated 25th March 1874.

Endorsement from Department of Revenue, Agriculture and Commerce, No. 280, dated 7th April 1874, forwarding—

Memorial of the Council of the East India Association, dated 27th February 1874, and enclosures.

From Government of Bombay, No. $\frac{1894}{84}$ R, dated 10th April 1874, and enclosures.

From Department of Revenue, Agriculture and Commerce, No. 720 $\frac{\text{L. R.}}{\text{S.}}$, dated 22nd August 1874, and enclosure.

From Government of Bombay, No. 5403, dated 12th October 1874, and enclosure.

From ditto ditto, No. 330, dated 19th January 1875, and enclosures.

From Department of Revenue, Agriculture and Commerce, No. 37T, dated 4th September 1875, and enclosures.

1. We have altered section one, which wholly excludes certain proceedings from the operation of the proposed Act, first by striking out sub-section (b), and providing for its subject-matter in a new proviso added to section four; secondly, by modifying sub-section (a) in accordance with the principle of that new proviso, which will be presently explained; and thirdly, by excluding the Acts for the relief of the Ahmadábád taluqdárs and the Broach Thákurs, and for the preservation of the Narwadári and Bhágdári tenures, and the Pensions Act.

2. Section 3 of the Bill deals with the proceedings excluded from the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts. It answers to section four in the draft now settled by us. The language of the North-Western Provinces Land-Revenue Act having been found in some respects unsuitable to the circumstances of Bombay, the section has been re-cast, under the seven main heads of service and analogous holdings, assessment of land-revenue, realization of land-revenue, records, partition of estates, claims to exemption, and boundaries. Claims relating to the validity of an engagement with Government for the payment of revenue of any kind, which were excluded from the cognizance of the Civil Courts by section three (b), we now propose to leave within it; but questions relating to boundaries we propose to exclude in conformity with the law in the new provinces of the Presidency, and in consideration of their usually technical nature, and the peculiarly local and detailed character of the questions they raise. We have added provisions regarding lands held under treaty, saranjáms and other political tenures, which are merely a re-enactment of the existing law, with the view of consolidation. Our provisions regarding claims to set aside sales for arrears of land-revenue have been framed on the understanding that the Land-Revenue Code Bill now pending in the local Legislature, which contains safeguards against improper sales, will become law.

3. The list of exclusions from the jurisdiction of Civil Courts as now settled, stands as follows:—

(a) claims against Government relating to any property appertaining to the office of any hereditary officer appointed or recognized under Bombay Act No. III of 1874, or any other law for the time being in force, or of any other village officer or servant, or claims to perform the duties of any such officer or servant, or in respect of any injury caused by exclusion from such office or service, or suits to set aside or avoid any order passed by Government under the same Act or any other law relating to the same subject and for the time being in force, or claims against Government relating to lands held under treaty, or to lands granted or held as siranjám, or on other political tenure, or to lands declared by Government to be held for service;

(b) objections to the amount or incidence of any assessment of land-revenue or cess or rate authorized by Government, or to the mode of assessment, or to the principle on which such assessment is fixed, or to the validity or effect of the notification of survey or settlement, or of any notification determining the period of settlement;

(c) claims connected with or arising out of any proceedings for the realization of land-revenue or the rendering of assistance by Government to superior holders or occupants for the recovery of their dues from inferior holders or tenants;

claims to set aside on account of irregularity, mistake, or any other ground except fraud, sales for arrears of land-revenue;

(d) claims against Government—

(1) to be entered in the settlement records or village-papers as liable for the land-revenue, or as superior holder, inferior holder, occupant, or tenant, or

(2) to have any entry made in any record of a revenue survey or settlement, or

(3) to have any such entry either omitted or amended;

(e) the distribution of land or allotment of land-revenue on partition of any estate under Bombay Act No. I of 1865, or any other law for the time being in force;

(f) claims against Government—to hold land wholly or partially free from payment of land-revenue, or to receive payments charged on or payable out of the land-revenue, or to set aside any cess or rate authorized by Government, or respecting the occupation of waste or vacant land belonging to Government;

(g) claims regarding boundaries fixed under Bombay Act No. I of 1865 or any other law for the time being in force, or to set aside any order passed by a competent officer under any such law with regard to boundary-marks.

4. It is not, however, proposed that these exclusions shall be absolute, under all circumstances. In the case of claims to exemption from payment of land-revenue, we consider that the true distinction between the province which is more proper to a Civil Court and that which is more proper to Revenue officers is to be found, not in the nature of the privilege claimed, but in the nature of the evidence by which it is supported. If the evidence consist of formal State documents, such as a law expressly creating or confirming an exemption, or a sanad, grant, judgment, or other formal adjudication affecting a particular property, then there can hardly be any dispute except one of construction, which is best remitted to a Civil Court. But where the question turns upon the validity of an alleged informal guarantee, or on the genuineness or authenticity of documents, though they may be said to emanate from a Native Government, or on oral evidence, and still more, when technical and special knowledge, historical research, or an accurate understanding of the political effect of political events, more or less distant and obscure, are indispensable, then we consider that the decision should rest with Revenue officers, and ultimately with the Government. For the Government is likely to have better information supplied to it; may select peculiarly skilled persons as its advisers; is not dependent on the facts and arguments which the parties may happen either to supply or to omit; is more accustomed to deal with affairs on a large scale and on a moral basis; and alone has a direct political responsibility for its actions and is at liberty to guide itself thereby.

These considerations account for our treatment of Act IV of 1868. While leaving within the cognizance of the Civil Courts all suits for establishing exemptions of the specific character recognized by sections 5 and 6 of that Act, which in point of fact cover the bulk of cases dealt with, we think it right that suits regarding such matters as the principles of assessment, exemptions other than the above, boundaries, and the occupation of waste lands the property of Government, should follow the same law in towns and cities as in the country.

5. In accordance with this principle, we have added to section four of our present Bill a proviso, by which we have expressly reserved to the Civil Courts cognizance of claims to hold land, wholly or partially exempt from land-revenue, under—

(h) any enactment for the time being in force expressly creating an exemption not before existing in favour of an individual or of any class of persons, or expressly confirming such an exemption on the ground of its being shown in a public record, or of its having existed for a specified term of years, or

(i) an instrument or sanad given by the Governor of Bombay in Council under Bombay Act No. II of 1863, section one, clause first, or Bombay Act No. VII of 1863, section two, clause first, or

(j) any other written grant by the British Government expressly creating or confirming such exemption, or

(k) a judgment by a Court of law, or an adjudication duly passed by a competent officer under Bombay Regulation XVII of 1827, Chapter X, or under Act No. XI of 1852, which declares the particular property in dispute to be exempt; and we have added illustrations of clause (h).

6. The provisions of section four are, of course, merely intended for the protection of the public, in the person of the Executive Government, and not in any way intended to hamper the prosecution of strictly private rights. In order, however, to make the point clear, we have framed a new section, numbered five, in which are saved the following suits:—

(a) suits against Government to contest the amount claimed, or paid under protest, or recovered, as land-revenue, on the ground that such amount is in excess of the assessment

authorized by Government, or that such assessment had previous to such claim, payment or recovery, been satisfied in whole or in part, or that the plaintiff or the person whom he represents, is not the person liable for such assessment,

(b) suits between private parties for the purpose of establishing any private right, although it may be affected by any entry in any record of a revenue survey or settlement, or in any village-papers,

(c) suits between superior holders or occupants and inferior holders or tenants regarding the dues claimed from the latter, or

(d) suits other than suits against Government for possession of any land being a whole survey number or a recognized share of a survey number.

7. It has been suggested to us by the Government of Bombay that we should embrace in the present enactment other provisions of the existing law affecting the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts in matters of revenue, and we have therefore taken this opportunity of repealing and re-enacting several provisions of local enactments, (a) as to the liability of Revenue officers to the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts, and (b) as to litigation against Government.

8. We have amended the clause relating to appeals from the proceedings of Revenue officers, and empowered the Local Government to call for the record of the proceedings on such appeal and to pass orders thereon. We have also provided that no suits against Government for acts or omissions of Revenue Officers shall be entertained by the Civil Courts except when the plaintiff has exhausted his right of appeal.

9. Suits against Government or suits against Revenue Officers of which Government undertake the defence, involve as a rule questions of great and urgent importance to the community. We have therefore introduced a section providing that such suits shall if required be tried only by the District Judge, and that their trial shall have precedence over all other suits then pending.

10. We have also added a section (framed on the model of Act XVIII of 1873, section 205) empowering Judges to refer to the High Court questions as to whether their jurisdiction is excluded by the proposed Act.

11. We have revived certain repealed provisions of Bombay Regulation XVII of 1827, section thirteen, more clearly than was done by the Bill as last amended; and we have added a clause providing that all advances made by the Local Government for purposes other than those specified in the Land Improvement Act, 1871, section four, may be recovered from the persons to whom such advances are made as if they were arrears of land-revenue.

12. We recommend that the Bill, as now amended, be republished, and that its further consideration be postponed for the present.

SCHEDULE.

No. III.

A Bill to limit the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts throughout the Bombay Presidency in matters relating to the Land-revenue, and for other purposes.

Whereas in certain parts of the Presidency of Bombay, the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts in matters connected with the land-revenue is more extensive than it is in the rest of the said Presidency: — Preamble.

And whereas it is expedient that the jurisdiction of all the Civil Courts in the said Presidency should be limited in manner hereinafter appearing:

And whereas it is also expedient to revive certain provisions of the thirteenth section of Regulation XVII of 1827 of the Bombay Code, which was repealed by the Land Improvement Act, 1871;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. This Act may be called "The Bombay Revenue Jurisdiction Act, 1875:" — Short title.

It shall come into force on the passing thereof; — Commencement.

And it shall extend to all the territories for the time being under the government of the Governor of Bombay in Council, but not so as to affect— — Extent.

3. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context,— — Interpretation-clause.

"Government" includes any Revenue officer.

4. Notwithstanding anything contained in Bombay Regulations XVI and XVII of 1827, or the Bombay Survey and Settlement Act (I of 1865), or in any other law now in force, and subject to the exceptions hereinafter appearing, no Civil Court shall exercise jurisdiction as to any of the following matters:— — Bar of certain suits.

(a) claims against Government relating to any property appertaining to the office of any hereditary officer appointed or recognised under Bombay Act No. III of 1874, or any other law for the time being in force, or of any other village-officer or servant, or claims to perform the duties of any such officer or servant, or in respect of any injury caused by exclusion from such office or service, or suits to set aside or avoid any order passed by Government under the same Act or any other law relating to the same subject for the time being in force, or claims against Government relating to lands held under treaty, or to lands granted or held as saranjám, or on other political tenure, or to lands declared by Government to be held for service; to the amount or incidence of any assessment of land-revenue or cess or rate authorized by Government, or to the mode of assessment, or to the principle on which such assessment is fixed, or to the validity or effect of the notification of survey or settlement, or of any notification determining the period of settlement;

(b) objections—

(c) claims connected with or arising out of any proceedings for the realization of land-revenue or the rendering of assistance by Government to superior holders or occupants for the recovery of their dues from inferior holders or tenants;

claims to set aside on account of irregularity, mistake, or any other ground except fraud, sales for arrears of land-revenue;

(d) claims against Government—

(1) to be entered in the settlement records or village-papers as liable for the land-revenue, or as superior holder, inferior holder, occupant, or tenant, or

(2) to have any entry made in any record of a revenue survey or settlement, or

(3) to have any such entry either omitted or amended;

(e) the distribution of land or allotment of land-revenue on partition of any estate under Bombay Act No. I of 1865, or any other law for the time being in force;

(f) claims against Government—to hold land wholly or partially free from payment of land-revenue, or to set aside any cess or rate authorized by Government, or respecting the occupation of waste or vacant land belonging to Government;

(g) claims regarding boundaries fixed under Bombay Act No. I of 1865, or any other law for the time being in force, or to set aside any order passed by a competent officer under any such law with regard to boundary-marks:

Provided that if any person claim to hold land wholly or partially exempt from payment of land-revenue under— Proviso.

(h) any enactment for the time being in force expressly creating an exemption not before existing in favour of an individual or of any class of persons, or expressly confirming such an exemption on the ground of its being shown in a public record, or of its having existed for a specified term of years, or

(i) an instrument or sanad given by the Governor of Bombay in Council under Bombay Act No. II of 1863, section one, clause first, or Bombay Act No. VII of 1863, section two, clause first, or

(j) any other written grant by the British Government expressly creating or confirming such exemption, or

(k) a judgment by a Court of law, or an adjudication duly passed by a competent officer under Bombay Regulation XVII of 1827, Chapter X, or under Act No. XI of 1852, which declares the particular property in dispute to be exempt; such claim shall be cognizable in the Civil Courts.

Illustrations to (h).

(1). It is enacted that in the event of the proprietary right in lands, the property of Government, being transferred to individuals, they shall be permitted to hold the lands for ever at the assessment at which they are transferred. The proprietary right in certain lands is transferred to A at an assessment of Rs. 100. An exemption from higher assessment not before existing is expressly created in favour of A by enactment, and he may seek relief in the Civil Court against over-assessment.

(2). It is enacted that when a specific limit to assessment has been established and preserved, the assessment shall not exceed such specific limit. A is the owner of land worth Rs. 100 for assessment. He claims to be assessed at Rs. 50 only on the strength of a course of dealing with him and his predecessors under which his land has not been more highly assessed. There is no exemption not before existing created by enactment, and A's claim is not cognizable in a Civil Court.

(3). It is enacted that land-revenue shall not be leviable from any land held and entered in the land registers as exempt. A claims to hold certain land as exempt on the ground that it has been so held by him, and is so entered in the land register. This is an exemption expressly confirmed by enactment on the ground of its being shown in a public record, and A's claim is cognizable in a Civil Court

(4). It is enacted that the Collector shall confirm existing exemptions of all lands shown in certain maps to be exempt. A claims exemption alleging that his land is shown in the maps to be exempt. A's claim is cognizable in a Civil Court.

(5). It is enacted that assessment shall be fixed with reference to certain considerations, and not with reference to others. This is not an enactment creating an exemption in favour of any individual or class.

Saving of certain suits.

5. Nothing in section four shall be held to prevent the following suits:—

(a) suits against Government to contest the amount claimed, or paid under protest, or recovered, as land-revenue, on the ground that such amount is in excess of the assessment authorized by Government, or that such assessment had previous to such claim, payment, or recovery been satisfied, in whole or in part, or that the plaintiff, or the person whom he represents, is not the person liable for such assessment;

(b) suits between private parties for the purpose of establishing any private right, although it may be affected by any entry in any record of a revenue survey or settlement or in any village papers;

(c) suits between superior holders or occupants and inferior holders or tenants regarding the dues claimed from the latter; or

(d) suits other than suits against Government for possession of any land being a whole survey number or a recognized share of a survey number.

Liability of Revenue officers to the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts.

6. All Revenue officers shall, except as otherwise provided in this Act, be subject to the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts with respect to acts done by them in their official capacities.

Revenue officers shall not be liable to be sued for damages in any Civil Court for any act bonâ fide done, or ordered to be done, by them as such in pursuance of the provisions of any law for the time being in force.

If any Revenue officer absconds, or does not attend when called on by his official superior, and if the Collector of the District proceeds against him or his sureties for public money, papers, or property according to the provisions of any law for the time being in force, such Collector shall not be liable to pay damages or costs in any suit brought against him by such officer or sureties, although it appears that a part only, or no part whatever, of the sum demanded was due from the officer so absconding or failing to attend, or that he was not in possession of the papers or property demanded of him.

Punishment or prosecution of Revenue officers not a bar to civil remedies.

7. Nothing in any law for the time being in force, which authorizes the punishment departmentally of any Revenue officer for any offence or breach of duty, or which sanctions his prosecution criminally for such offence or breach, shall be held to bar the person aggrieved thereby from seeking in the Civil Court any remedy to which he may be entitled against such officer.

Officers to answer in suits against them for acts done by order of superior authority.

8. If any act done by a Revenue officer under orders from superior authority subsequently forms the ground of a civil suit against him, he shall appear and answer in such suit as if the act had been done solely by his own authority.

Personal liability of officers may be enforced.

9. When any Revenue officer has, wilfully or from gross ignorance or neglect, been guilty of any illegal act or omission, the Local Government may either require him to defend at his own risk and cost any suit brought against him in consequence of such act or omission, or may, after the suit is decided, compel him to pay the costs and damages (if any) incurred by Government on account of such suit.

Appeals from proceedings of Revenue officers.

10. In every case in which but for the passing of this Act any act or omission of a Revenue officer would have been open to question in a Civil Court, any party aggrieved by such act or omission may, if no other appeal is given by any law for the time being in force, present an appeal, within two months from the date of such act or omission, to the immediate official superior of such officer; and if such official superior be of a grade inferior to that of a Commissioner of Revenue, then the party aggrieved by his decision on appeal may present a further appeal against such decision to the Commissioner of Revenue or such other officer as the Local Government appoints in this behalf.

Such further appeal must be presented within one month from the date of the decision complained of.

Any appeal under this section may be admitted after the period of limitation prescribed therefor when the appellant satisfies the officer appealed to that he had sufficient cause for not presenting the appeal within such period.

In computing any period of limitation so prescribed, the day on which the act, omission or decision complained of took place or was pronounced shall be excluded.

Power to Local Government to call for record.

11. The Local Government may call for and examine the record of the proceedings on appeal under section ten of any officer for the purpose of satisfying itself as to the legality or propriety of any order passed by him, and may reverse or modify his order, or, if it think fit, may direct that additional evidence be taken, or that the appeal be reheard.

Suits not to be entertained unless plaintiff has exhausted right of appeal.

12. No Civil Court shall entertain any suit against Government on account of any act or omission of any Revenue officer unless the plaintiff first proves that, previously to bringing his suit, he has presented all such appeals allowed by the law for the time being in force, as within the period of limitation allowed for bringing such suit, it was possible to present.

Certain Courts not to receive or register suits against Government.

13. No Subordinate Judge or Court of Small Causes shall entertain any suit in which Government is a defendant; but in every such case, such Judge or Court shall refer the plaintiff to the District Judge, in whose Court alone (subject to the provisions of the Bombay Civil Courts Act, 1869, section 19,) such suit shall be instituted.

Privileges of Government in suits in which it is concerned.

14. Whenever any suit is brought in any District Court against Government, or against any Revenue officer and the Local Government undertakes the defence thereof, it shall be lawful for the Local Government, by certificate signed by a Secretary thereto, to require—

(a) that such suit shall be tried by the District Judge himself, and shall not be transferred for trial to an Assistant Judge; and

(b) that the trial of any such suit shall have precedence over the trial of any other suit or other civil proceeding then pending in such Court; and the Court shall give effect to every such requirement.

The privilege conferred on the Local Government by the clause (b) of this section shall, mutatis mutandis, apply to any appeal or special appeal against any decree in any such suit as is described in this section.

Power to refer questions of jurisdiction to High Court.

15. If in any suit instituted, or in any appeal presented in a Civil Court, the Judge doubts whether he is precluded by this Act from taking cognizance of the suit or appeal, he may refer the matter to the High Court.

On any such reference being made, the High Court may order the Judge either to proceed with the case or to return the plaint.

The order of the High Court on any such reference shall be final, and shall not be questioned by the same parties in the same suit.

Revival of Bombay Regulation XVII of 1827, section 13.

16. And whereas it is expedient to revive certain provisions of Bombay Regulation XVII of 1827, section 13, and to provide for the recovery by the Local Government of advances made for purposes other than those specified in section three of the Land Improvement Act, 1871; it is hereby further enacted as follows:

Notwithstanding any repeal effected by the Land Improvement Act, 1871, arrears of revenue of former years shall be recoverable by the Collector in the same way as current revenue, except that the preference given to demands for current land-revenue, as specified in section five of Bombay Regulation XVII of 1827, shall not extend to demands on account of the arrears for former years.

Recovery of certain advances made by Local Government.

All advances made by the Local Government for purposes other than those specified in the Land Improvement Act, 1871, section four, may be recovered from the persons to whom such advances are made as if they were arrears of land-revenue.

(b). A pledges certain jewels to B to secure a loan. B disposes of them before he is entitled to do so. A, without having paid or tendered the amount of the loan, sues B for possession of the jewels. The suit should be dismissed, as A is not entitled to their possession, whatever right he may have to secure their safe custody.

(c). A receives a letter addressed to him by B. B gets back the letter without A's consent. A has such a property therein as entitles him to recover it from B.

(d). A deposits books and papers for safe custody with B. B loses them and C finds them, but refuses to deliver them to B when demanded. B may recover them from C, subject to C's right, if any, under section 168 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872.

(e). A, a warehouse-keeper, is charged with the delivery of certain goods to Z, which B takes out of A's possession. A may sue B for the goods.

Liability of person in possession, not as owner, to deliver to person entitled to immediate possession.

11. Any person having the possession or control of a particular article of moveable property, of which he is not the owner, may be compelled specifically to deliver it to the person entitled to its immediate possession, in any of the following cases:—

(a) when the thing claimed is held by the defendant as the agent or trustee of the claimant;

(b) when compensation in money would not afford the claimant adequate relief for the loss of the thing claimed;

(c) when it would be extremely difficult to ascertain the actual damage caused by its loss.

Illustrations.

(a). A, proceeding to Europe, leaves his furniture in charge of B as his agent during his absence. B, without A's authority, pledges the furniture to C, and C, knowing that B had no right to pledge the furniture, advertises it for sale. C may be compelled to deliver the furniture to A, for he holds it as A's trustee.

(b). A, a colliery-owner, keeps for the purpose of his business fifty coal-wagons. A sells B 50,000 tons of coal and lets to him the wagons to convey the coal. B, without A's authority, pledges the wagons to C, who threatens to sell them immediately. C may be compelled to deliver the wagons to A, for they are necessary for conducting his business, and their loss would cause him an injury for which money would not be an adequate compensation.

(c). A is entitled to a picture by a dead painter and a pair of rare China vases. B has possession of them. The articles are of too special a character to bear an ascertainable market-value. B may be compelled to deliver them to A.

CHAPTER II.

OF THE SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF AGREEMENTS.

(a). Agreements which may be specifically enforced.

Cases in which specific performance enforceable

12. Except as otherwise provided in this chapter, the specific performance of any agreement may in the discretion of the Court be enforced—

(a) when it has been expressly agreed in writing between the parties to the agreement that specific performance thereof may be required by either party, or that compensation in money shall not be considered adequate relief for its non-performance:

(b) when the act agreed to be done is in the performance, wholly or partly, of a trust:

(c) when there exists no standard for ascertaining the actual damage caused by the non-performance of the act agreed to be done: or

(d) when the act agreed to be done is such that pecuniary compensation for its non-performance would not afford adequate relief:

(e) when it is probable that pecuniary compensation cannot be got for the non-performance of the act agreed to be done.

EXPLANATION.—Unless and until the contrary is shewn, it is to be presumed that the breach of an agreement to transfer immoveable property cannot be adequately relieved by compensation in money, and that the breach of an agreement to transfer moveable property can be thus relieved.

Illustrations.

(a). A holds certain stock in trust for B. A wrongfully disposes of the stock. The law creates an obligation on A to restore the same quantity of stock to B, and B may enforce specific performance of this obligation.

(b). A sells 500 tons of iron stacked on his wharf to B, in consideration of a bill accepted by C, and undertakes in writing to deliver the iron to bearer, he (A) 'having been paid for the same.' B mortgages the iron to D. The bill is dishonoured. A refuses to deliver the iron. A holds the iron as a trustee for D, and D may compel him specifically to perform his agreement.

(c). A agrees to buy, and B agrees to sell, a picture by a dead painter and two rare China vases. The articles are of too special a character to bear an ascertainable market-value. A may compel B specifically to perform this agreement, for it would be extremely difficult to ascertain the actual damage caused by its non-performance.

(d). A transfers without endorsement, but for valuable consideration, a note to B. A becomes insolvent, and C is appointed his assignee. B may compel C to endorse the note, for C has succeeded to A's liabilities, and a decree for pecuniary compensation for not endorsing the note would be fruitless.

(e). A, B and C agree to enter into partnership for a definite term under the style of A & Co. A refuses to carry out the agreement. B and C may compel A to join them in executing a proper partnership-deed, for the interest of B and C in the performance of the agreement cannot be adequately compensated for by money.

(f). A agrees with B to sell him a house for Rs. 1,000. B is entitled to a decree directing A to convey the house to him, he paying the purchase-money.

(g). In consideration of being released from certain obligations imposed on it by its Act of incorporation, a railway company agree with Z to make and maintain an archway through their railway to connect lands of Z severed by the railway, to construct a road between certain specified points, to pay a certain annual sum towards the maintenance of this road, and also to construct and maintain a siding and a wharf as specified in the agreement. Z is entitled to have this agreement specifically enforced, for his interest in its performance cannot be adequately compensated for by money; and the Court may appoint a proper person to superintend the construction of the archway, road, siding and wharf.

(h). A agrees to sell, and B agrees to buy, a certain number of railway-shares of a particular description. A refuses to complete the purchase. B may compel A specifically to perform this agreement, for the shares are limited in number and not always to be had in the market, and their possession carries with it the status of a shareholder, which cannot otherwise be procured.

(i). A agrees with B to paint a picture for B, who agrees to pay therefor rupees 1,000. The picture is painted. B is entitled to have it delivered to him on payment or tender of the rupees 1,000.

(j). A advances Rs. 10,000 to B, and B agrees to execute a mortgage of certain houses 'with an immediate power of sale' to secure the repayment of the advance. A requires B either to pay off the advance at once or to execute the mortgage. B refuses. A is entitled to have the agreement specifically performed.

Mutual rights of parties.

Illustration.

A agrees to sell, and B agrees to buy, a patent for 10,000 rupees. B declines to complete the purchase. Here, though pecuniary compensation for its non-performance might afford A adequate relief, A may enforce the agreement specifically, for, if he had declined to complete it, B would have been entitled to a specific performance thereof.

Specific performance of part of an agreement where the part unperformed is small.

14. Where a party to an agreement is unable to perform the whole of the agreement, but the part which must be left unperformed bears only a small proportion to the whole in value, and admits of compensation in money, the Court may, at the suit of either party, direct the specific performance of so much of the agreement as can be performed, and award compensation in money for the deficiency.

Illustrations.

(a). A agrees to sell B a piece of land consisting of 100 bighás. It turns out that 98 bighás of the land belong to A, and the two remaining bighás to a stranger, who refuses to part with them. The two bighás are not necessary for the use or enjoyment of the 98 bighás, and the loss of them may be made good in money. A may be directed at the suit of B to convey to B the 98 bighás and to make compensation to him for not conveying the two remaining bighás; or B may be directed, at the suit of A, to pay to A on receiving the conveyance and possession of the land, the stipulated purchase-money, less a sum awarded as compensation for the deficiency.

(b). In a contract for the sale and purchase of a house and lands for two lákhs of rupees it is agreed that part of the furniture should be taken at a valuation. The Court may direct specific performance of the contract notwithstanding the parties are unable to agree as to the valuation of the furniture, and may either have the furniture valued in the suit and include it in the decree for specific performance, or may confine its decree to the house.

Specific performance of part of an agreement where the part unperformed is large.

15. Where a party to an agreement is unable to perform the whole of the agreement and the part which must be left unperformed forms a considerable portion of the whole, or does not admit of compensation in money, the party in default is not entitled to obtain a decree for specific performance. But the Court may, at the suit of the other party, direct the party in default to perform specifically so much of the agreement as he can perform, provided that the party seeking specific performance relinquishes all claim to further performance, and all right to compensation, either for the deficiency, or for the loss or damage sustained by him through the default of the other party.

Illustrations.

(a). A agrees to sell to B a piece of land consisting of 100 bighás. It turns out that 50 bighás of the land belong to A, and the other 50 bighás to a stranger, who refuses to part with them. A cannot obtain a decree against B for the specific performance of the contract; but if B is willing to pay the price agreed upon, and to take the 50 bighás which belong to A, waiving all right to compensation either for the deficiency or for loss sustained by him through A's neglect or default, B is entitled to a decree directing A to convey those 50 bighás to him on payment of the purchase-money.

(b). A agrees to sell to B an estate with a house and garden for 1,00,000 rupees. It turns out that A is unable to convey the garden. A cannot obtain a decree against B for the specific performance of the contract; but if B is willing to pay the price agreed upon, and to take the estate and house without the garden, waiving all right to compensation either for the deficiency or for loss sustained by him through A's neglect or default, B is entitled to a decree, directing A to convey the house to him on payment of the purchase-money.

Bar in other cases of specific performance of part of agreement.

16. Except in cases coming under one or other of the two last preceding sections, it is not competent for the Court to direct the specific performance of a part of an agreement.

Purchaser's rights against vendor with imperfect title.

17. Where a person agrees to sell or let certain property, having only an imperfect title thereto, the purchaser or lessee (except as otherwise provided by this chapter) has the following rights:—

(a) if the vendor or lessor has subsequently acquired any interest in the property, the purchaser or lessee may compel him to make good the agreement out of such interest;

(b) where the concurrence of other persons is necessary to validate the title, and they are bound to convey at the vendor's or lessor's request, the purchaser or lessee may compel him to procure such concurrence;

(c) where the vendor professes to sell unincumbered property, but the property is mortgaged for an amount not exceeding the purchase-money, and the vendor has in fact only a right to redeem it, the purchaser may compel him to redeem the mortgage and obtain a conveyance from the mortgagee;

(d) where the vendor or lessor sues for specific performance of the agreement, and the suit is dismissed on the ground of his imperfect title, the defendant has a right to a return of his deposit (if any) with interest thereon, to the costs of the suit, and to a lien for such deposit, interest and costs on the property agreed to be sold or let.

Power to award compensation in certain cases.

18. Any person suing for the specific performance of an agreement, may also ask for compensation for its breach, either in addition to, or in substitution for, such performance.

If in any such suit the Court decides that specific performance ought not to be granted, but that there is a valid agreement between the parties which has been broken by the defendant and that the plaintiff is entitled to compensation for that breach, it shall award him compensation accordingly.

If in any such suit the Court decides that specific performance ought to be granted, but that it is not sufficient to satisfy the justice of the case, and that some compensation for breach of the agreement should also be made to the plaintiff, it shall award him such compensation accordingly.

Compensation awarded under this section may be assessed in such manner as the Court may direct.

EXPLANATION.—The circumstance that the agreement has become incapable of specific performance does not preclude the Court from exercising the jurisdiction conferred by this section.

Illustrations.

(a). A, a purchaser, sues B, his vendor, for specific performance of an agreement for the sale of a patent. Before the hearing of the suit, the patent expires. The Court may award A compensation for the non-performance of the agreement.

(b). A agrees with B to sell him a house for Rs. 1,000 the price to be paid and the possession given on the 1st January 1876. A fails to perform his part of the agreement, and B brings his suit for specific performance, which is decided in his favour on the 1st January 1877. The decree may, besides ordering specific performance, award to B compensation for any loss or damage which he has sustained by A's refusal.

(c). A sues for the specific performance of a resolution passed by the directors of a public company, under which he was entitled to have a certain number of shares allotted to him. All the shares had been allotted before the institution of the suit. The Court may, under this section, award A compensation for the non-performance.

(d). A contracts to sell a hundred maunds of rice to B. B brings a suit to compel A to perform the agreement or to pay compensation. The Court is of opinion that A has made a valid contract and has broken it without excuse to the injury of B, but that specific performance is not the proper remedy. It shall award to B such compensation as it deems just.

Liquidation of damages not a bar to specific performance.

19. An agreement, otherwise proper to be specifically enforced, may be thus enforced, though a sum be named in the agreement as the amount to be paid in case of its breach, and the party in default is willing to pay the same.

Illustration.

A agrees to grant B an underlease of property held by A under C, and covenants that if C refuses to grant a license necessary for that purpose, A will pay B Rs. 10,000. A refuses to apply for the license and offers to pay B the Rs. 10,000. B is nevertheless entitled to have the agreement specifically enforced.

(b). Agreements which cannot be specifically enforced.

Agreements not specifically enforcible.

20. The following agreements cannot be specifically enforced:—

(a) an agreement for the breach of which compensation could not be recovered;

(b) an agreement for the non-performance of which compensation in money is an adequate relief, and which does not come within section twelve, clause (a);

(d) an agreement which is in its nature revocable;

(e) an agreement entered into by trustees either in excess of their powers or in breach of their trust;

(f) an agreement entered into by or on behalf of a corporation or public company created for special purposes, or by the promoters of such company, which is in excess of its powers;

(g) an agreement the performance of which involves the performance of a continuous duty extending over a longer period than five years from its date;

(h) an agreement to submit a controversy to arbitration.

Illustrations.

To (a).—A agrees in consideration of Rs. 500 to obtain an office under the Crown for B. This agreement cannot be specifically enforced.

A, a banker holding bills as a security for advances to B, takes a guarantee from B's brother, C, that the loss to the bank should not exceed Rs. 20,000. This transaction took place after B had commenced proceedings for the liquidation of his affairs and unknown to his other creditors with a view to prevent A from opposing a composition. The guarantee cannot be specifically enforced, as the transaction would have the effect of giving A an undue advantage over B's other creditors.

A, a military pensioner of Government, in consideration of Rs. 500, agrees to assign to B all future payments in respect of his pension. This agreement cannot be specifically enforced.

A husband and wife, professing the Christian religion, enter into an agreement providing for their future separation. This agreement cannot be specifically enforced.

A agrees to grant B a lease of a certain house. The length of the term to be granted is not stated, nor the date at which it is to commence. This agreement cannot be specifically enforced.

A agrees with B to take from B a lease of a certain house for a specified term, at a specified rent, "if the drawing-room is handsomely decorated." This agreement cannot be specifically enforced.

Z, a resident in Calcutta, agrees, as trustee for B, a resident in Australia, to sell to C an annuity to which B is entitled for his life. The day before the date of the agreement B had died. Z cannot enforce this agreement.

A, the lessee of a house much out of repair, agrees to sell the lease to B. Before the sale, A receives from his landlord a notice of re-entry in default of the premises being repaired. A does not communicate this notice to B, who enters and is ejected in consequence of the non-repair. A cannot enforce the agreement against B.

A, the owner of a patent, agrees to sell it to B. B institutes a suit to compel specific performance of this agreement. Before the suit is heard the patent expires. Specific performance of the agreement cannot be compelled.

On A's marriage with B, A's father, C, agrees with B's father, D, to settle certain lands on A and his children by B. D sues C to enforce specific performance of this agreement. C proves that the agreement was conditional on D settling a lákh of rupees on A and his children by B, and that D had not settled such lákh accordingly. The suit must be dismissed.

A, an author, agrees with B, a publisher, to complete a literary work, and dies before doing so. The agreement requiring A's personal skill and taste is discharged by his death, and B cannot enforce its performance as against A's representative.

A, a shoemaker, agrees with B to receive B's son as an apprentice for a term of years and teach him shoemaking. A dies before the expiration of the term. B cannot enforce performance of the agreement.

A and B enter into an agreement to become partners for a term and afterwards agree to rescind it.

A agrees to buy B's business at the amount of a valuation to be made by two valuers, one to be named by A and the other by B. A and B each name a valuer, but before the valuation is made A instructs his valuer not to proceed.

A agrees to buy certain houses in Calcutta, and before the completion of the agreement becomes insolvent. A's assignee, in exercise of his option under the Indian Insolvent Act, abandons the agreement.

In none of these cases can the agreement be specifically enforced.

To (b).—A agrees to sell, and B agrees to buy, a lákh of rupees in the four per cent. loan of the Government of India.

A agrees to sell, and B agrees to buy, 40 chests of indigo at Rs. 1,000 per chest.

In consideration of certain property having been transferred by A to B, B agrees to open a credit in A's favour to the extent of Rs. 10,000, and to honour A's drafts to that amount.

These agreements cannot be specifically enforced, for, in the first and the second both A and B, and in the third A, would be reimbursed by compensation in money.

To (c).—A agrees to render personal service to B.

A agrees to employ B on personal service.

By a charter party entered into in Calcutta between A, the owner of a ship, and B, the charterer, it is agreed that the ship shall proceed to Rangoon, and there load a cargo of rice, and thence proceed to London, freight to be paid, one-third on arrival at Rangoon, and two-thirds on delivery of the cargo in London.

These agreements cannot be specifically performed.

A lets land to B and B agrees to cultivate it in a particular manner for three years next after the date of the lease. A is not entitled to have this agreement specifically performed.

A and B agree that in consideration of annual advances to be made by A, B will for three years next after the date of the agreement grow particular crops on the land in his possession and deliver them to A when cut and ready for delivery. A is not entitled to have this agreement specifically performed.

A agrees with B that in consideration of Rs. 1,000 to be paid to him by B, he will paint a picture for B.

A agrees with B to execute certain works which the Court cannot superintend.

A agrees to supply B with all the goods of a certain class which B may require.

These agreements cannot be specifically enforced.

To (d).—A and B agree to become partners in a certain business, the agreement not specifying the duration of the proposed partnership. This agreement cannot be specifically performed, for, if it were so performed, either A or B might at once dissolve the partnership.

To (e).—A is a trustee of land with power to lease it for seven years. He enters into an agreement with B to grant a lease of the land for seven years, with a covenant to renew the lease at the expiry of the term. This agreement cannot be specifically enforced.

The directors of a company have power to sell the concern with the sanction of a general meeting of the shareholders. They contract to sell it without any such sanction. This contract cannot be specifically enforced.

Two trustees, A and B, empowered to sell trust-property worth a lákh of rupees, agree to sell it to C for Rs. 30,000. The agreement is so disadvantageous as to be a breach of trust. C cannot enforce its specific performance.

The promoters of a company for working mines agree that the company, when formed, shall purchase certain mineral property. They take no proper precautions to ascertain the value of such property and in fact agree to pay an extravagant price therefor. They also stipulate that the vendors shall give them a bonus out of the purchase-money. This contract cannot be specifically enforced.

To (f).—A railway company contracts for the purchase of a piece of land for the purpose of erecting a cotton-mill thereon. This contract cannot be specifically enforced.

To (g).—A agrees to let for twenty-one years to B the right to use such part of a certain railway made by A as was upon B's land, and that B should have a right of running carriages over the whole line on certain terms, and might require A to supply the necessary engine-power, and that A should during the term keep the whole railway in good repair. Specific performance of this contract must be refused to B.

(c). Of the Discretion of the Court.

21. The jurisdiction to decree specific performance is discretionary, and the Court is not bound to grant such relief, merely because it is lawful to do so; but the discretion of the Court is not arbitrary but sound and reasonable, guided by judicial principles and capable of correction by a Court of appeal.

Discretion as to decreeing specific performance.

The following are cases in which the Court may properly exercise a discretion not to decree specific performance:—

I. Where, though it is clear that an agreement has been made and broken, the Court cannot find, with reasonable certainty, what are the terms of the agreement of which specific performance is sought.

Illustration.

(a). A, the owner of a refreshment-room, agrees with B to give him accommodation there for the sale of his goods and to furnish him with the necessary appliances. A refuses to perform his agreement. The case is one for compensation and not for specific performance, the amount and nature of the accommodation and appliances being undefined.

II. Where the circumstances under which the agreement is made are such as to give the plaintiff an unfair advantage over the defendant, though there may be no fraud or misrepresentation on the plaintiff's part.

Illustrations.

(b). A tenant for life of certain property assigns his interest therein to B. C agrees to buy, and B agrees to sell, that interest. Before the contract is completed, A receives a mortal injury from the effects of which he dies the day after the contract is completed. If B and C were equally ignorant or equally aware of the fact, B is entitled to specific performance. If B knew the fact and C did not, specific performance should be refused to B.

(c). A agrees to sell to B the interest of C in certain stock-in-trade. It is stipulated that the sale shall stand good, even though it should turn out that C's interest is worth nothing. In fact the value of C's interest depends on the result of certain partnership-accounts, on which he is heavily in debt to his partners. This indebtedness is known to A, but not to B. Specific performance of the agreement should be refused to A.

(d). A agrees to sell, and B agrees to buy, certain land. To protect the land from floods, it is necessary for its owner to maintain an expensive embankment. B does not know of this circumstance, and A industriously conceals it from him. Specific performance should be refused to B.

(e). A's property is put up to auction in one lot. B requests C, A's attorney, to bid for him. C does this inadvertently and in good faith. The persons present seeing the vendor's attorney bidding, think that he is a mere puffer and cease to compete. The lot is knocked down to B at a low price. Specific performance should be refused to B.

(f). A contracts with B who at the time is intoxicated. Specific performance should be refused to A.

III. Where the performance of the agreement would involve some hardship on the defendant which he did not foresee, whereas no such hardship would fall on the plaintiff if the agreement was not performed.

Illustrations.

(g). A is entitled to some land under his father's will on condition that, if he sells it within twenty-five years, half the purchase-money shall go to B. A, forgetting the condition, agrees, before the expiration of the twenty-five years, to sell the land to C. Here, the enforcement of the agreement would operate so harshly on A, that the Court will not compel its specific performance in favour of C.

(h). A and B, trustees, join their beneficiary, C, in an agreement to sell the trust-estate to D, and personally agree to exonerate the estate from heavy incumbrances to which it is subject. The purchase-money is not nearly enough to discharge those incumbrances, though, at the date of the agreement, the vendors believed it to be sufficient. Specific performance of the agreement should be refused to D.

(i). A, the owner of an estate, agrees to sell it to B, and stipulates that he, A, shall not be obliged to define its boundary. The estate really comprises a valuable property not known to either to be part of it. Specific performance of the agreement should be refused to B unless he waives his claim to the unknown property.

(j). A agrees with B to sell him certain land, and to make a road to it from a certain railway-station. It is found afterwards that A cannot make the road without exposing himself to litigation. Specific performance of the part of the agreement relating to the road should be refused to B, though he may be entitled to specific performance of the rest with compensation for loss of the road.

(k). A, a lessee of mines, agrees with B, his lessor, that at any time during the continuance of the lease B may give notice of his desire to take the machinery and plant used in and about the mines, and that he shall have the articles specified in his notice delivered to him at a valuation on the expiry of the lease. Such a contract might be most injurious to the lessee's business, and specific performance should be refused to B.

(l). A agrees to buy certain land from B. The agreement is silent as to access to the land. No right of way to it can be shown to exist. Specific performance of the contract should be refused to B.

(m). A agrees with B to buy from B's manufactory and not elsewhere all the goods of a certain class used by A in his trade. The Court cannot compel B to supply the goods, but if he does not supply them, A may be ruined unless he is allowed to buy them elsewhere. Specific performance of the agreement should be refused to B.

IV. The circumstance that the plaintiff has done substantial acts or suffered losses in consequence of an agreement susceptible of specific performance is one which the Court may reasonably consider in exercising its discretion to grant specific performance of such agreement.

Illustration.

A sells land to a railway company who agree to execute certain works for his convenience. The company take the land and use it for their railway. Specific performance of the agreement to execute the works should be awarded in favour of A.

(d.) For whom Agreements may be specifically enforced.

22. Except as otherwise provided by this chapter, the specific performance of an agreement may be obtained by—

Who may obtain specific performance.

(b) the representative in interest, or the principal, of any party thereto: provided that, where the learning, skill, solvency or any personal quality of such party is a material ingredient in the agreement, or where the agreement provides that his interest shall not be assigned, his representative in interest or principal shall not be entitled to specific performance of the agreement:

(c) where the agreement is a settlement on marriage, any person beneficially entitled thereunder:

(d) where the agreement has been entered into by a tenant for life in due exercise of a power, the remainderman:

(e) a reversioner in possession, where the agreement is a covenant entered into with his predecessor in title and the reversioner is entitled to the benefit of such covenant:

(f) a reversioner in remainder, where the agreement is such a covenant, and the reversioner is entitled to the benefit thereof and will sustain material injury by reason of its breach:

(g) when a public company has entered into an agreement and subsequently becomes amalgamated with another public company, the new company which arises out of the amalgamation:

(h) when the promoters of a public company have, before its incorporation, entered into an agreement for the purposes of the company, and such agreement is warranted by the terms of the incorporation, the company.

(e). For whom Agreements cannot be specifically enforced.

23. An agreement for the sale or letting of property cannot be specifically enforced in favour of a vendor or lessor—

Agreement to sell property by one who has no title or who is a voluntary settlor.

(a) who, knowing himself not to have any title to the property, has agreed to sell or let the same;

(b) who, though he entered into the agreement believing that he had a good title to the property, cannot at the time fixed by the parties or by the Court for the completion of the sale or letting give the purchaser or lessee a title free from reasonable doubt;

(c) who, previous to entering into the agreement, has made a voluntary settlement of the subject-matter thereof.

Illustrations.

(a). A agrees to sell to B an estate which A knows to belong to C. A cannot enforce specific performance of this agreement, even though C is willing to confirm it.

(b). A bequeaths his land to trustees, declaring that they should not sell it without the consent in writing of his sons and daughters. A dies. Then one of his daughters dies. The trustees then enter into an agreement with B to sell him the land. B refuses to carry out the agreement. The trustees cannot specifically enforce this agreement, as the title which they can give B is not free from reasonable doubt.

(c). A makes a voluntary settlement of certain property on his brothers and their issue, and afterwards enters into an agreement to sell the property to a stranger. A cannot enforce specific performance of this agreement so as to override the settlement and thus prejudice the interests of the persons claiming under it.

24. Specific performance of an agreement cannot be enforced in favour of a party—

Personal bars to the relief.

(a) who could not recover compensation for its breach;

(b) who has become incapable of performing, or violates, any essential term of the agreement that on his part remains to be performed; or

(c) who has already chosen his remedy and obtained satisfaction for the alleged breach of contract.

Illustrations.

(a). A agrees to sell B a house and to become tenant thereof for a term of 14 years from the date of the sale at a specified yearly rent. A becomes insolvent. Neither he nor his assignee can enforce specific performance of the agreement. Neither can B, although he might recover compensation from A's assignee for breach of the agreement.

(b). A agrees to sell B a house and garden in which there are ornamental trees, a material element in the value of the property as a residence. A without B's consent fells the trees. A cannot enforce specific performance of the agreement.

(c). A, holding land under an agreement with B for a lease, commits waste, or treats the land in an unhusbandlike manner. A cannot enforce the agreement.

(d). A agrees to let, and B agrees to take, an unfinished house, B agreeing to finish the house and the lease to contain covenants on the part of A to keep the house in repair. B finishes the house in a very defective manner: he cannot enforce the agreement, though A and B may sue each other for compensation for breach of the agreement.

(e). A agrees to let, and B agrees to take, a house for a specified term at a specified rent. B refuses to perform the agreement. A thereupon sues for and obtains compensation for the breach of contract. A cannot obtain specific performance of the agreement.

(f). For whom Agreements cannot be specifically enforced except with a variation.

25. Where a plaintiff seeks specific performance of an agreement in writing, to which the defendant sets up a variation, the plaintiff cannot obtain the performance sought except with the variation so set up, in the following cases (namely):—

Non-enforcement except with variation.

(a) where by fraud or mistake of fact the agreement of which performance is sought is in terms different from that which the defendant supposed it to be when he entered into it;

(b) where by fraud, mistake of fact, or surprise the defendant entered into the agreement under a reasonable misapprehension as to its effect as between himself and the plaintiff;

(c) where the defendant, knowing the terms of the agreement and understanding its effect, has entered into it relying upon some misrepresentation by the plaintiff, or upon some stipulation on the plaintiff's part, which goes to vary the agreement, but which he refuses to fulfil;

(d) where the parties have varied the agreement subsequently to its execution.

Illustrations.

(a). A, B and C sign a writing by which each agrees to enter into a bond to D for Rs. 1,000. In a suit by D, to make A, B and C separately liable each to the extent of Rs. 1,000, they prove that the word 'each' was inserted by mistake; that the intention was that they should give a joint bond for Rs. 1,000. A can obtain the performance sought only with the variation thus set up.

(b). A sues B to compel specific performance of an agreement in writing to buy a dwelling-house. B proves that he assumed that the agreement included an adjoining yard, and the agreement was so framed as to leave it doubtful whether the yard was so included or not. The Court will refuse to enforce the agreement, except with the variation set up by B.

(c). A agrees in writing to let to B a wharf, together with a strip of A's land delineated in a map. Before signing the agreement, B proposed orally that he should be at liberty to substitute for the strip mentioned in the agreement another strip of A's land of the same dimensions, and to this A expressly assented. B then signed the written agreement. A cannot obtain specific performance of the written agreement except with the variation set up by B.

(d). A agrees in writing to let a house to B, for a certain term, at the rent of Rs. 100 per month, putting it first into tenantable repair. The house turns out to be not worth repairing, so with B's consent A pulls it down and erects a new house in its place: B agreeing orally to pay rent at Rs. 120 per mensem. B then sues to compel specific performance of the agreement in writing. He cannot enforce it except with the variations made by the subsequent oral agreement.

(g). Against whom Agreements may be specifically enforced.

26. Except as otherwise provided by this chapter, specific performance of an agreement may be enforced against—

Relief against parties and persons claiming under them by subsequent title.

(a) either party thereto;

(b) any other person claiming under him by a title arising subsequently to the agreement, except a transferee for value, who has paid his money in good faith and without notice of the original agreement;

(c) any person claiming under a title which, though prior to the agreement, and known to the plaintiff, might have been displaced by the defendant;

(d) when a public company has entered into an agreement, and subsequently becomes amalgamated with another public company, the new company which arises out of the amalgamation;

(e) when the promoters of a public company have, before its incorporation, entered into an agreement, the company: provided that the company has ratified and adopted the agreement and the agreement is warranted by the terms of the incorporation.

Illustrations.

(a). A agrees to convey certain land to B by a particular day. A dies intestate before that day without having conveyed the land. B may compel A's heir or other representative in interest to perform the agreement specifically.

(b). A agrees to sell certain land to B for Rs. 5,000. A afterwards conveys the land for Rs. 6,000 to C, who has notice of the original agreement. B may enforce specific performance of the agreement as against C.

(c). A agrees to sell land to B for Rs. 5,000. B takes possession of the land. Afterwards A sells it to C for Rs. 6,000. C makes no enquiry of B relating to his interest in the land. B's possession is sufficient to affect C with notice of his interest, and he may enforce the agreement against C.

(d). A agrees in consideration of Rs. 1,000 to bequeath certain of his lands to B. Immediately after the agreement A dies intestate, and C takes out administration to his estate. B may enforce the agreement against C.

(e). A agrees to sell certain land to B. Before the completion of the agreement, A becomes a lunatic and C is appointed his committee. B may specifically enforce the agreement against C.

(f). A, the tenant for life of an estate, with remainder to B, in due exercise of a power conferred by the settlement under which he is tenant for life, agrees to sell the estate to C, who has notice of the settlement. Before the sale is completed, A dies. C may enforce specific performance of the agreement against B.

(g). A and B are joint tenants of land, his undivided moiety of which either may alien in his lifetime, but which, subject to that right, devolves on the survivor. A agrees to sell his moiety to C and dies. C may enforce specific performance of the agreement against B.

(h). Against whom Agreements cannot be specifically enforced.

27. Specific performance of an agreement cannot be enforced against a party thereto in any of the following cases:—

What parties cannot be compelled to perform.

(a) if the consideration to be received by him is so grossly inadequate, with reference to the state of things existing at the date of the agreement, as to be either by itself or coupled with other circumstances evidence of fraud or of undue advantage taken by the plaintiff;

(b) if his assent was obtained by the misrepresentation (whether wilful or innocent), concealment, circumvention, or unfair practices, of any party to whom performance would become due under the contract, or by any promise of such party which has not been substantially fulfilled;

(c) if his assent was given under the influence of mistake of fact, misapprehension or surprise: Provided that, when the agreement provides for compensation in case of mistake, compensation may be made for a mistake within the scope of such provision, and the agreement may be specifically enforced in other respects if proper to be so enforced.

Illustrations.

(a). A, one of two executors, in the erroneous belief that he had the authority of his co-executor, enters into an agreement for the sale to B of his testator's property. B cannot insist on the sale being completed.

(b). A directs an auctioneer to sell certain land. A afterwards revokes the auctioneer's authority as to 20 bighás of this land, but the auctioneer inadvertently sells the whole to B, who has not notice of the revocation. B cannot enforce specific performance of the agreement.

(i). The Effect of dismissing a Suit for Specific Performance.

28. The dismissal of a suit for specific performance of an agreement shall bar the plaintiff's right to sue for the breach of such agreement.

Bar of suit for breach after dismissal.

CHAPTER III.

OF THE RECTIFICATION OF INSTRUMENTS.

29. When through fraud or a mutual mistake of the parties, a contract or other instrument in writing does not truly express the intention of the parties, the Court, on finding it clearly proved—

When instrument may be rectified.

(a) that there has been fraud or mistake in framing the instrument, and

(b) that the intention of the parties in executing the instrument was as alleged by the plaintiff, may in its discretion rectify the instrument, so as to express that intention, so far as it can be done without prejudice to rights acquired by third persons, in good faith and for value.

Illustrations.

(a). A, intending to sell to B his house and one of three godowns adjacent to it, executes a conveyance prepared by B, in which, through B's fraud, all three godowns are included.

Of the two godowns which were fraudulently included, B gives one to C and lets the other to D for a rent, neither C nor D having any knowledge of the fraud.

The conveyance may, as against B and C, be rectified so as to exclude from it the godown given to C; but it cannot be rectified so as to affect D's lease.

(b). By a marriage-settlement, A, the father of B, the intended wife, covenanted with C, the intended husband, to pay to C, his executors, administrators and assigns, during A's life, an annuity of Rs. 5,000. C dies insolvent and the official assignee claims the annuity from A. The Court, on finding it clearly proved that the parties always intended that this annuity should be paid as a provision for B and her children, may rectify the settlement, and decree that the assignee has no right to any part of the annuity.

30. For the purpose of rectifying a contract in writing, it must be presumed that all the parties thereto intended to make an equitable and conscientious agreement.

Presumption as to intent of parties.

31. In rectifying a written instrument, the Court may inquire what the instrument was intended to mean, and what were intended to be its legal consequences, and is not confined to the inquiry what the language of the instrument was intended to be.

Principles of rectification.

32. A contract in writing may be first rectified and then, if the plaintiff has so prayed in his plaint and the Court thinks fit, specifically enforced.

Specific enforcement of rectified contract.

Illustration.

A agrees in writing to pay his attorney, B, a fixed sum in lieu of costs.

The agreement contains mistakes as to the name and rights of the client, which, if construed strictly, would have excluded B from all rights under the agreement. B is entitled, if the Court thinks fit, to have it rectified, and to an order for payment of the sum, as if at the time of its execution it had expressed the intention of the parties.

CHAPTER IV.

OF THE RESCISSION OF CONTRACTS.

33. Any person interested in a contract in writing may sue to have it rescinded, and such rescission may be adjudged by the Court, in any of the following cases, namely:—

When rescission may be adjudged.

(a) where the contract is voidable or terminable by the plaintiff;

(b) where the contract is unlawful for causes not apparent on its face, and the defendant is more to blame than the plaintiff;

(c) where a decree for specific performance of a contract of sale, or of a contract to take a lease, has been made, and the purchaser or lessee makes default in payment of the purchase-money or other sums which the Court has ordered him to pay.

EXPLANATION.—In the case mentioned in clause (c) of this section, when the purchaser or lessor is in possession of the subject-matter, the Court may also order him to pay to the vendor or lessor the rents and profits, if any, received by him, together with the costs occasioned by the non-completion of the purchase or lease.

Illustration.

To (b)—A, an attorney, induces B, his client, to transfer property to him for the purpose of defrauding B's creditors. Here the parties are not equally in fault, and B is entitled to have the instrument of transfer rescinded.

34. Rescission of a contract in writing cannot be adjudged for mere mistake, unless the party against whom it is adjudged can be restored to substantially the same position as if the contract had not been made.

Rescission for mistake.

35. A plaintiff instituting a suit for the specific performance of a contract in writing may pray in the alternative that, if the contract cannot be enforced, it may be rescinded and delivered up to be cancelled.

Alternative prayer for rescission in suit for specific performance.

36. On adjudging the rescission of a contract, the Court may require the party to whom such relief is granted to make any compensation to the other which justice may require.

Court may require party rescinding to do equity.

CHAPTER V.

OF THE CANCELLATION OF INSTRUMENTS.

37. Any person having reasonable apprehension that a written instrument, if left outstanding, may cause serious injury to a person against whom it is void or voidable, may sue to have it so adjudged, and the Court may, in its discretion, so adjudge it and order it to be delivered up and cancelled.

When cancellation may be ordered.

Illustrations.

(a). A, the owner of a ship, by fraudulently representing her to be seaworthy, induces B, an underwriter, to insure her. B may obtain the cancellation of the policy.

(b). A conveys land to B, who bequeaths it to C and dies. Thereupon, D gets possession of the land, and produces a forged instrument stating that the conveyance was made to B in trust for him. C may obtain the cancellation of the forged instrument.

(c). A, representing that the tenants on his land were all at will, sells it to B, and conveys it to him by an instrument dated the 1st January 1875. Soon after that day, A fraudulently grants to C a lease of part of the lands, dated the 1st October 1874. B may obtain the cancellation of this lease.

(d). A agrees to sell and deliver a ship to B, to be paid for by B's acceptances of four bills of exchange, for sums amounting to Rs. 10,000, to be drawn by A on B. The bills are drawn and accepted, but the ship is not delivered according to the agreement. A sues B on one of the bills. B may obtain the cancellation of all the bills.

38. Where an instrument is evidence of different rights or different obligations, the Court may, in a proper case, cancel it in part and allow it to stand for the residue.

What instruments may be partially cancelled.

Illustration.

A draws a bill on B, who endorses it to C, by whom it appears to be endorsed to D, who endorses it to E. B's endorsement is forged. C is entitled to have such endorsement cancelled, leaving the bill to stand as regards A, B, D and E.

39. On adjudging the cancellation of an instrument, the Court may require the party to whom such relief is granted to make any compensation to the other which justice may require.

Power to require party for whom instrument is cancelled to make compensation

CHAPTER VI.

OF DECLARATORY DECREES.

40. Any person entitled to any legal character, or to any future right as to any property, may institute a suit against any person denying, or interested to deny, his title to such character or right, and the Court may in its discretion make therein a declaration that he is so entitled, and the plaintiff need not in such suit ask for any further relief.

Discretion of Court as to declarations of status or right.

EXPLANATION.—A trustee of property is a person interested to deny a title adverse to the title of some one who is not in existence, and for whom, if in existence, he would be a trustee.

Provided that no Court shall make any such declaration in any of the following cases:—

Bar to such declaration.

(a) where the right as to which the declaration is sought is contingent, or may never arise;

(b) where the plaintiff is in possession of the right which he seeks to have declared;

(c) where the right respecting which the declaration is sought could be enforced by ordinary suit.

EXPLANATION.—The presumptive right of a Hindú to property, if he survive the widow of a sonless Hindú, is not within clause (a) of the above proviso.

Illustrations.

(a). A bequeaths his property to B, C and D, "to be equally divided amongst all and each of them, if living at the time of my death, then amongst their surviving children." No such children are in existence. In a suit against A's executor, the Court may declare whether B, C and D took the property absolutely, or only for their lives, but it may not declare the interests of the children before their rights are vested.

(b). A covenants that if he should at any time be entitled to property exceeding one lákh of rupees, he will settle it upon certain trusts. Before any such property accrues, or any persons entitled under the trusts are ascertained, he institutes a suit to obtain a declaration that the covenant is void for uncertainty. The Court cannot make the declaration.

(c). The widow of a sonless Hindú alienates part of the property of which she is in possession as such. The person presumptively entitled to possess the property if he survive her, may, in a suit against the alienee, obtain a declaration that the alienation was made without legal necessity and was therefore void beyond the widow's life-time.

(d). A Hindú widow in possession of property adopts a son to her deceased husband. The person presumptively entitled to possession of the property on her death without a son may, in a suit against the adopted son, obtain a declaration that the adoption was invalid.

(e). A is in possession of certain property. B, alleging that he is the owner of the property, requires A to deliver it to him. This alone is not enough to entitle A to a declaration of his right to hold the property.

(f). A bequeaths property to B for his life, with remainder to B's wife and her children, if any, by B, but if B die without any wife or children, to C. B has a putative wife, D, and children, but C denies that B and D were ever lawfully married. D and her children may, in B's life-time, institute a suit against C and obtain therein a declaration that they are truly the wife and children of B.

41. A declaration made under this chapter is binding only on the parties to the suit, persons claiming through them respectively, and, where any of the parties are trustees, on the persons for whom, if in existence, such parties would be trustees.

Effect of declaration.

Illustration.

A, a Hindú, in a suit to which B, his alleged wife, and her mother are defendants, seeks a declaration that his marriage was duly solemnized and an order for the restitution of his conjugal rights. The Court makes the declaration and order. C, claiming that B is his wife, then sues A for the recovery of B. The declaration made in the former suit is not binding upon C.

CHAPTER VII.

OF THE ENFORCEMENT OF PUBLIC DUTIES.

42. Any of the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William, Madras and Bombay may, on application, make an order requiring any specific act to be done by any person holding a public office of a permanent nature, or by any corporation or inferior Court of Judicature: provided—

Power to order public servants and others to do certain specific acts.

(a) that such act is clearly incumbent on such person or Court in his or its public character, or on such corporation in its corporate character;

(b) that, in the opinion of the High Court, such act is consonant to right and justice;

(c) that the applicant has no other specific and adequate legal remedy; and

(d) that the remedy given by the order applied for will be complete.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize any High Court—

Exemptions from such power.

(e) to make any order binding on the Secretary of State for India in Council, on the Governor General in Council, on the Governor of Madras in Council, on the Governor of Bombay in Council, or on the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal; or

(f) to make any order on any other servant of the Crown, as such, merely to enforce the satisfaction of a claim upon the Crown.

43. Every application under section forty-two must be founded on an affidavit of the party injured, stating his right in the matter in question, his demand of justice and the denial thereof; and the High Court may, in its discretion, either make the order applied for absolute in the first instance, or refuse it and grant a rule to show cause why the order applied for should not be made.

Application how made.

Procedure thereon.

If, in the latter case, the party complained of shows no sufficient cause, the High Court may first make an order in the alternative, either to do the act required, or to signify some reason to the contrary and make an answer thereto by such day as the High Court fixes in this behalf.

Order in alternative.

44. If the person to whom such order is directed makes no answer, or makes an insufficient or a false answer, the High Court may then issue a peremptory order to do the act absolutely.

Peremptory order.

45. Every order under this chapter shall be executed, and may be appealed from, as if it were a decree made in the exercise of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court.

Execution of, and appeal from, orders.

46. The costs of all applications and orders under this chapter shall be in the discretion of the High Court.

Costs.

47. Neither the High Court nor any Judge thereof shall hereafter issue any writ of mandamus.

Bar to issue of mandamus.

48. Each of the said High Courts shall, as soon as conveniently may be, frame rules to regulate the procedure under this chapter; and until such rules are framed, the practice of such Court as to applications for and grants of writs of mandamus shall apply, so far as may be practicable, to applications and orders under this chapter.

Power to frame rules.

PART III.

OF PREVENTIVE RELIEF.

CHAPTER VIII.

OF INJUNCTIONS GENERALLY.

49. Preventive relief is granted at the discretion of the Court by injunction, temporary or perpetual.

Preventive relief how granted.

50. Temporary injunctions are such as are to continue until a specified time. They may be granted at any period of a suit, and are regulated by the Code of Civil Procedure.

Temporary injunctions.

A perpetual injunction can only be granted by the decree made at the hearing and upon the merits of the suit: the defendant is thereby perpetually enjoined from the assertion of a right, or from the commission of an act, which would be contrary to the rights of the plaintiff.

Perpetual injunctions.

CHAPTER IX.

OF PERPETUAL INJUNCTIONS.

51. Subject to the other provisions contained in, or referred to by, this chapter, a perpetual injunction may be granted to prevent the breach of an obligation existing in favour of the applicant, whether express or implied.

Perpetual injunctions when granted.

When such obligation arises from contract, the Court shall be guided by the rules and provisions contained in chapter II of this Act.

When such obligation arises from an actual or threatened invasion by the defendant of the plaintiff's right to, or enjoyment of, property, the Court may grant a perpetual injunction in the following cases (namely)—

(a) where the parties have expressly agreed in writing that, in case of such invasion, a perpetual injunction may be granted:

(b) where there exists no standard for ascertaining the actual damage caused by the invasion:

(c) where the invasion is such that pecuniary compensation would not afford adequate relief:

(d) where it is probable that pecuniary compensation cannot be got for the invasion:

(e) where the injunction is necessary to prevent a multiplicity of judicial proceedings:

(f) where the obligation arises from a trust.

Illustrations.

(a.) A lets certain land to B, and B agrees not to dig sand or gravel thereout. A may obtain an injunction to restrain B from digging in violation of his agreement.

(b.) A, the owner of two adjoining houses, lets one to B and afterwards lets the other to C. A and C begin to make such alterations in the house let to C as will prevent the comfortable enjoyment of the house let to B. B may obtain an injunction to restrain them from doing so.

(c.) A lets certain arable lands to B for purposes of husbandry, but without any express agreement as to the mode of cultivation. Contrary to the mode of cultivation customary in the district, B threatens to sow the lands with seed injurious thereto and requiring many years to eradicate. A may obtain an injunction to restrain B from sowing the lands in contravention of his implied agreement to use them in a husbandlike manner.

(d.) A, B and C are partners, the partnership being determinable at will. A threatens to do an act tending to the destruction of the partnership-property. B and C may, without seeking a dissolution of the partnership, obtain an injunction to restrain A from doing the act.

(e.) A, a Hindú widow in possession of her deceased husband's property, commits destruction of the property without any cause sufficient to justify her in so doing. The heir expectant may obtain an injunction to restrain her.

(g.) A, the owner of certain houses in Calcutta, becomes insolvent. B buys them from the official assignee and enters into possession. A persists in trespassing on and damaging the houses, and B is thereby compelled, at considerable expense, to employ men to protect the possession. B may obtain an injunction to restrain further acts of trespass.

(h.) The inhabitants of a village claim a right of way over A's land. In a suit against several of them, A obtains a declaratory decree that his land is subject to no such right. Afterwards each of the other villagers sues A for obstructing his alleged right of way over the land. A may obtain an injunction to restrain them.

(i.) A, in an administration-suit to which a creditor, B, is not a party, obtains a decree for the administration of C's assets. B proceeds against C's estate for his debt. A may obtain an injunction to restrain B.

(j.) A and B are in possession of contiguous lands and of the mines underneath them. A works his mine so as to extend under B's mine and threatens to remove certain pillars which help to support B's mine. B may obtain an injunction to restrain him from so doing.

(k.) A rings bells or makes some other unnecessary noise so near a house as to interfere materially and unreasonably with the physical comfort of the occupier, B. B may obtain an injunction restraining A from making the noise.

(o.) A pirates B's copyright. B may obtain an injunction to restrain the piracy, unless the work of which copyright is claimed is libellous or obscene.

(p.) A improperly uses the trademark of B. B may obtain an injunction to restrain the user, provided that B's use of the trademark is honest.

(q.) In order to sell his goods, A uses marks, labels or descriptions so closely resembling those used by B as to be likely to deceive buyers into thinking that they are actually buying B's goods. B may obtain an injunction to restrain the user, provided his own use of the marks, labels or descriptions be an honest one.

(r.) A sells an article called "Mexican Balm", stating that it is compounded of divers rare essences, and has sovereign medicinal qualities. B commences to sell a similar article to which he gives a name and description such as to lead people into the belief that they are buying A's Mexican Balm. A sues B for an injunction to restrain the sale. B shows that A's Mexican Balm consists of nothing but scented hog's lard. A's use of his description is not an honest one and he cannot obtain an injunction.

(s.) A trustee threatens a breach of trust. His co-trustees, if any, should and the beneficial owners may, obtain an injunction to prevent the breach.

(t.) The directors of a public company are about to pay a dividend out of capital or borrowed money. Any of the shareholders may obtain an injunction to restrain them.

(y.) A makes a voluntary settlement of an estate on B and his children. A then contracts to sell the estate to C. B or any of his children may obtain an injunction to restrain the sale.

(z.) In the course of A's employment as a vakíl, certain papers belonging to his client, B, come into his possession. A threatens to make these papers public, or to communicate their contents to a stranger. B may obtain an injunction to restrain A from so doing.

(aa.) A mortgages lands to B with the usual power of sale. C and D then recover judgments against A. B exercises the power and threatens to part with the surplus-monies. As regards these, he is a trustee for A and those claiming under A. C and D may therefore obtain an injunction to restrain B from parting with the surplus.

(bb.) A is B's medical adviser. He demands money of B which B declines to pay. A then threatens to make known the effect of B's communications to him as a patient. This is contrary to A's duty, and B may obtain an injunction to restrain him from so doing.

(cc.) A, a very eminent man, writes letters on family-topics to B. After the death of A and B, C, who is B's residuary legatee, proposes to make money by publishing A's letters. (dd.) A carries on a manufactory and B is his assistant. In the course of his business, A imparts to B a secret process of value. B afterwards demands money of A, threatening, in case of refusal, to disclose the process to C, a rival manufacturer. A can obtain an injunction to restrain B from disclosing the process as being a thing contrary to his duty.

Mandatory injunctions.

52. When, to prevent the breach of an obligation, it is necessary to compel the performance of certain acts which the Court is capable of enforcing, the Court may in its discretion grant an injunction to prevent the breach complained of, and also to compel performance of the requisite acts.

Illustrations.

(a.) A, by new buildings, obstructs lights to the access and use of which B has acquired a right under the Indian Limitation Act, Part IV. B may obtain an injunction not only to restrain A from going on with the buildings, but also to pull down so much of them as obstructs B's lights.

(b.) In the case put as illustration (bb) to section 51, the Court may also order all written communications made by B, as patient, to A, as physician, to be destroyed.

(c.) In the case put as illustration (cc) to section 51, the Court may also order A's letters to be destroyed.

(d.) In the cases put as illustrations (p), (q) and (r) to section 51, the Court may also order the copies produced by piracy, and the trademarks, labels and descriptions improperly used, by A to be destroyed.

Injunction when refused.

53. An injunction cannot be granted—

(g) to prevent, on the ground of nuisance, an act of which it is not reasonably clear that it will be a nuisance:

(i) to prevent a continuing breach in which the applicant has acquiesced:

(j) when equally efficacious relief can certainly be obtained by any other usual mode of proceeding, except in case of breach of trust:

(k) when the conduct of the applicant or his agents has been such as to disentitle him to the assistance of the Court:

(l) where the applicant has no personal interest in the matter.

Illustrations.

(a.) A being B's neighbour, and having no other relations with him, threatens to publish a statement concerning B which would be punishable under chapter XXI of the Indian Penal Code. The Court cannot grant an injunction to restrain the publication, even though it may be injurious to B's property.

(b.) A, being B's medical adviser, threatens to publish B's communications with him, showing that B has led an immoral life: B may obtain an injunction to restrain the publication.

(c.) A applies for an injunction to restrain B from working mines under A's land. It appears that B has been working them with A's permission for eight years. The injunction should be refused.

(e.) A manufactures and sells crucibles, designating them as "patent plumbago crucibles", though, in fact, they have never been patented. B pirates the designation. A cannot obtain an injunction to restrain the piracy.

Injunctions to perform negative agreement.

54. Notwithstanding section fifty-three, clause (f), where a contract comprises an affirmative agreement to do a certain act, coupled with a negative agreement express or implied not to do a certain act, the circumstance that the Court is unable to compel specific performance of the affirmative agreement, shall not preclude it from granting an injunction to perform the negative agreement; provided that the applicant has not failed to perform the contract so far as it is binding on him.

Illustrations.

(a.) A agrees to sell to B for rupees 1,000 the good-will of a certain business unconnected with business-premises, and further agrees not to carry on that business in Calcutta. B pays A the rupees 1,000, but A carries on the business in Calcutta. The Court cannot compel A to send his customers to B, but B may obtain an injunction restraining A from carrying on the business in Calcutta.

(b.) A agrees to sell to B the good-will of a business. A then sets up a similar business close by B's shop, and solicits his old customers to deal with him. This is contrary to his implied agreement, and B may obtain an injunction to restrain A from soliciting the customers, and from doing any act whereby their good-will may be withdrawn from B.

(c.) A agrees with B to sing for twelve months at B's theatre and not to sing in public elsewhere. B cannot obtain specific performance of the agreement to sing, but he is entitled to an injunction restraining A from singing at any other place of entertainment.

(d.) B agrees with A that he will serve him faithfully for twelve months as a clerk. A is not entitled to a decree for specific performance of this agreement. But he is entitled to an injunction restraining B from serving a rival house as clerk.

(e.) A agrees with B that, in consideration of rupees 1,000 to be paid to him by B on a day fixed, he will not set up a certain business within a specified distance. B fails to pay the money. A cannot be restrained from carrying on the business within the specified distance.

SCHEDULE.

(See section 2.)

Number and year.	Subject.	Extent of repeal.
VIII of 1859	Code of Civil Procedure ...	Secs. 15 and 192.
XIV of 1859	Limitation Act	Sec. 15.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill, which is intended as a supplement to the Code of Civil Procedure, as revised and published in March 1875, is to define and amend the law relating to specific and preventive relief.

2. Under the head of specific relief, it deals with suits for—

(a) the possession of specific property, moveable or immoveable,
(b) the specific performance of agreements,
(c) the rectification of instruments,
(d) the rescission of contracts,
(e) the cancellation of instruments,
(f) declaratory decrees, and
(g) the enforcement of public duties.

3. Under the head of preventive relief, it treats of perpetual injunctions.

4. The chapter relating to the recovery of possession of specific property embodies the English rules as to detinue, and the useful provision of the Indian Act, XIV of 1859, section 15, as to the right of persons informally dispossessed of land to recover possession by a summary suit. Words have been introduced to show expressly that this provision does not apply to lands claimed to belong to Government. This exemption in effect resulted from section 17 of Act XIV of 1859.

5. The matter of the chapter relating to specific performance is distributed under the following heads:—

(a) Agreements which may be specifically enforced:
(b) Agreements which cannot be specifically enforced:
(c) For whom agreements may be specifically enforced:
(d) Of the discretion of the Court:
(e) For whom agreements may not be specifically enforced:
(f) For whom agreements may not be specifically enforced, except with a variation:
(g) Against whom agreements may be specifically enforced:
(h) Against whom agreements may not be specifically enforced:
(i) The effect of dismissing a suit for specific performance.

It attempts to codify the English law on this subject with the following modifications:—

6. Subject to the negative rules afterwards set forth in this chapter, the Bill empowers the Courts to decree specific performance of any agreement when the parties have expressly agreed in writing that specific performance thereof may be required by either of them, or that damages shall not be considered adequate relief. This novel provision, taken from the New York Civil Code, is one of the means by which the Bill proposes to extend a useful jurisdiction, one, it may be remarked, peculiarly adapted to India, where the alternative remedy for a breach of contract, that, namely, of damages, is, owing to the poverty of the bulk of the population and the difficulty of executing money-decrees, often so utterly nugatory.

7. In England it has more than once been ruled that the Court of Chancery will not compel the performance of a continuous duty extending over many years. The Bill renders this doctrine more precise by declaring that an agreement, the performance of which necessarily involves the performance of continuous duties over a longer period than five years from its date, shall not be specifically enforced. Whether this is the best limit of time, will be a point for consideration before the Bill is passed.

8. With regard to specific performance of contracts to execute buildings or to cultivate lands, the Bill is intended to express the present law.

9. The rules as to when a contract for the sale of a married woman's estate will be specifically enforced are in England excessively complicated. The Bill makes no distinction in her case, and thus recognizes the principle embodied in the Indian Succession Act, section 4, and Act III of 1874.

10. In England a voluntary settlement of personal chattels is binding on the settlor and cannot be defeated by a subsequent sale. But it is otherwise in the case of freeholds, copyholds and leaseholds, and specific performance of a subsequent agreement to sell land may be enforced against the voluntary settlor and the parties claiming under the settlement. The Bill does not recognize this distinction (which is due to an artificial construction of 27 Eliz., c. 4), and treats land, in this respect, as if it were moveable property.

11. The absence in India of any enactments resembling the Statute of Frauds, sections 1, 3, 4 and 17, renders it unnecessary to embody in the Bill the intricate rules of the Court of Chancery as to when a parol agreement relating to land will, and when it will not, be specifically enforced.

12. It seems impossible to elicit a consistent doctrine from the English decisions as to the rights of a purchaser or lessee to specific performance with abatement or compensation when the title of the person agreeing to sell or lease is defective. The Bill lays down that only in one case can such relief be granted, namely, where the part of the agreement which must be left unperformed bears only a small proportion to the whole in value and admits of compensation in money. This will relieve the Courts from the exercise of a duty which, in many cases, must be more a matter of guesswork than of judicial discretion.

13. The right to enforce a contract specifically may, in England, be lost by delay in resorting to the Court, and a large mass of cases exists relating to this doctrine. The Bill contains no rules on the subject, for in India the provision of the Limitation Act (IX of 1871), schedule II, No. 113, that suits for specific performance must be brought within three years from the day on which the plaintiff has notice that performance is refused, renders the doctrine of laches inapplicable to this kind of litigation. See 2 Mad. High Court Rep. 114, 270.

14. It seems to be erroneously supposed by some of the Mofussil Judges that, when a contract is proved, the grant of a decree for its specific performance is a matter of course. Care has been taken in this chapter to show distinctly that the grant of such decrees is purely within the sound discretion of the Court.

15. As in this country all remedies on an agreement can be granted by one and the same Court, it is conceived that only one suit should lie on account of its non-performance. It has on this account been provided in section 28 that if a suit for specific performance is dismissed, no other suit shall be brought on the same agreement.

16. Chapter III, as to the rectification of instruments, chapter IV, as to the rescission of contracts and chapter V, as to the cancellation of instruments, require no special notice. They are taken, with a few verbal changes, from the New York Civil Code, and represent substantially the law on these subjects administered by English Courts of Equity.

17. Chapter VI, as to declaratory decrees, is intended to take the place of Act VIII of 1859, section 15, and differs from the English law on the subject principally in authorising the Court to make declarations of future rights, provided only that such rights are vested. In the absence of such a jurisdiction, it would seem to be necessary to authorise suits to perpetuate testimony, and there are obvious reasons why such suits should not be allowed in India.

18. Chapter VII deals with the subject of mandamus, and applies only to the Presidency High Courts. Care has been taken to exempt from orders under this chapter the Secretary of State in Council, the Government of India, and the Local Governments.

19. In Part III are contained some general rules as to when perpetual injunctions will, and when they will not, be granted. The chief modifications of the present law which the Bill proposes to make are as follows:—

20. By the Bill, the Courts are expressly given power to grant injunctions to do substantive acts, when such injunctions are necessary to prevent the breach of an obligation. In England, the same thing is partially effected by the indirect method of making orders, called mandatory injunctions, to refrain from leaving a thing undone.

21. Under the Bill, an injunction to restrain a partner may be obtained without seeking a dissolution of the partnership, even when the partnership is determinable at will. In England the rule on this subject is still unsettled.

22. In England a married executrix will, as a rule, be restrained from getting in the assets if her husband be out of the jurisdiction, or a lunatic. The reason is that the husband, and he alone, is liable for a devastavit committed by his wife. The Indian Succession Act, sections 4 and 275, appears to relieve husbands of this liability, and the Bill accordingly contains no provision on the subject.

23. It is hardly necessary to observe that, in a country where law and equity are administered by the same Courts, the subject of staying legal proceedings need not be dealt with at much length. The provisions of the Bill relating to this matter are contained in section 56, clause (c), illustration (m), and in section 57, clauses (a) and (b), which relate to injunctions necessary to prevent a multiplicity of suits.

24. It may, in conclusion, be remarked that most of the many illustrations contained in the Bill are taken from the English Equity Reports.

'discretion.'

'obligation' includes every duty the breach of which is punishable by law:

Illustrations.

(a). Z bequeaths land to A, 'not doubting that he will pay thereout an annuity of Rs. 1,000 to B for his life.' A is a trustee within the meaning of this Act for B to the extent of the annuity.

(b). A is the legal, medical, or spiritual adviser of B. A gains some pecuniary advantage by availing himself of his situation as such adviser. A is a trustee within the meaning of this Act of such advantage.

(c). A, being B's banker, discloses for his own purposes the state of B's account. A is a trustee within the meaning of this Act of the benefit gained by him by means of such disclosure.

(d). A, the mortgagee of certain leaseholds, renews the lease in his own name. A is a trustee within the meaning of this Act of the renewed lease.

(e). A, one of several partners, is employed to purchase goods for the firm. A, unknown to his co-partners, supplies them, at the market-price, with goods previously bought by himself when the price was lower, and thus makes a considerable profit. A is a trustee within the meaning of this Act of the profit so made.

(f). A buys certain land with notice that B has already contracted to buy it. A is a trustee within the meaning of this Act of the land so bought.

(g). A buys land from B, having notice that C is in occupation of the land. A omits to make any inquiry as to the nature of C's interest therein. A is a trustee within the meaning of this Act to the extent of that interest.

'settlement' means any instrument (other than a will or codicil) whereby the destination or devolution of moveable or immoveable property is settled or agreed to be settled.

Specific relief how given.

5. Specific relief is given—

(a) by taking possession of certain property and delivering it to a claimant;

(b) by ordering a party to do the very act which he is under an obligation to do;

(c) by prohibiting a party from doing that which he is under an obligation not to do; or

(d) by declaring and determining the rights of parties otherwise than by an award of compensation.

6. Relief granted under clause (c) of section five is called preventive relief.

Preventive relief.

7. Specific or preventive relief cannot be granted for the mere purpose of enforcing a penal law.

Purposes for which relief cannot be given.

PART II.

OF SPECIFIC RELIEF.

CHAPTER I.

OF RECOVERING POSSESSION OF PROPERTY.

(a).—Possession of Immoveable Property.

8. A person entitled to specific immoveable property may recover it in the manner prescribed by the Code of Civil Procedure.

Recovery of specific immoveable property.

9. If any person is dispossessed without his consent of immoveable property otherwise than in due course of law, he or any person claiming through him may, by suit instituted within six months from the date of the dispossession, recover possession thereof, notwithstanding any other title that may be set up in such suit.

Suit by person dispossessed of immoveable property.

Nothing in this section shall bar any person from suing to establish his title to such property and to recover possession thereof.

Nothing in this section applies to immoveable property claimed to belong to the Crown.

(b).—Possession of Moveable Property.

10. A person entitled to the immediate possession of specific moveable property may recover the same in the manner prescribed by the Code of Civil Procedure.

Recovery of specific moveable property.

EXPLANATION 1.—A trustee may sue under this section for the possession of property to the beneficial interest in which another is entitled.

EXPLANATION 2.—A special or temporary right to the present possession of property is sufficient to support a suit under this section.

Illustrations.

(a). A bequeaths land to B for his life, with remainder to C. A dies. B enters on the land, but C, without B's consent, obtains possession of the title deeds. B may recover them from C.

(b). A pledges certain jewels to B to secure a loan. B disposes of them before he is entitled to do so. A, without having paid or tendered the amount of the loan, sues B for possession of the jewels. The suit should be dismissed, as A is not entitled to their possession, whatever right he may have to secure their safe custody.

(c). A receives a letter addressed to him by B. B gets back the letter without A's consent. A has such a property therein as entitles him to recover it from B.

(d). A deposits books and papers for safe custody with B. B loses them and C finds them, but refuses to deliver them to B when demanded. B may recover them from C, subject to C's right, if any, under section 168 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872.

(e). A, a warehouse-keeper, is charged with the delivery of certain goods to Z, which B takes out of A's possession. A may sue B for the goods.

Liability of person in possession, not as owner, to deliver to person entitled to immediate possession.

(a) when the thing claimed is held by the defendant as the agent or trustee of the claimant;

(b) when compensation in money would not afford the claimant adequate relief for the loss of the thing claimed;

(c) when it would be extremely difficult to ascertain the actual damage caused by its loss.

Illustrations.

(a). A, proceeding to Europe, leaves his furniture in charge of B as his agent during his absence. B, without A's authority, pledges the furniture to C, and C, knowing that B had no right to pledge the furniture, advertises it for sale. C may be compelled to deliver the furniture to A, for he holds it as A's trustee.

(b). A, a colliery-owner, keeps for the purpose of his business fifty coal-wagons. A sells B 50,000 tons of coal and lets to him the wagons to convey the coal. B, without A's authority, pledges the wagons to C, who threatens to sell them immediately. C may be compelled to deliver the wagons to A, for they are necessary for conducting his business, and their loss would cause him an injury for which money would not be an adequate compensation.

(c). A is entitled to a picture by a dead painter and a pair of rare China vases. B has possession of them. The articles are of too special a character to bear an ascertainable market-value. B may be compelled to deliver them to A.

CHAPTER II.

OF THE SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF AGREEMENTS.

(a). Agreements which may be specifically enforced.

Cases in which specific performance enforceable

12. Except as otherwise provided in this chapter, the specific performance of any agreement may in the discretion of the Court be enforced—

(a) when it has been expressly agreed in writing between the parties to the agreement that specific performance thereof may be required by either party, or that compensation in money shall not be considered adequate relief for its non-performance:

(b) when the act agreed to be done is in the performance, wholly or partly, of a trust:

(c) when there exists no standard for ascertaining the actual damage caused by the non-performance of the act agreed to be done: or

(d) when the act agreed to be done is such that pecuniary compensation for its non-performance would not afford adequate relief:

(e) when it is probable that pecuniary compensation cannot be got for the non-performance of the act agreed to be done.

EXPLANATION.—Unless and until the contrary is shewn, it is to be presumed that the breach of an agreement to transfer immoveable property cannot be adequately relieved by compensation in money, and that the breach of an agreement to transfer moveable property can be thus relieved.

Illustrations.

(a). A holds certain stock in trust for B. A wrongfully disposes of the stock. The law creates an obligation on A to restore the same quantity of stock to B, and B may enforce specific performance of this obligation.

(b). A sells 500 tons of iron stacked on his wharf to B, in consideration of a bill accepted by C, and undertakes in writing to deliver the iron to bearer, he (A) 'having been paid for the same.' B mortgages the iron to D. The bill is dishonoured. A refuses to deliver the iron. A holds the iron as a trustee for D, and D may compel him specifically to perform his agreement.

(c). A agrees to buy, and B agrees to sell, a picture by a dead painter and two rare China vases. The articles are of too special a character to bear an ascertainable market-value. A may compel B specifically to perform this agreement, for it would be extremely difficult to ascertain the actual damage caused by its non-performance.

(d). A transfers without endorsement, but for valuable consideration, a note to B. A becomes insolvent, and C is appointed his assignee. B may compel C to endorse the note, for C has succeeded to A's liabilities, and a decree for pecuniary compensation for not endorsing the note would be fruitless.

(e). A, B and C agree to enter into partnership for a definite term under the style of A & Co. A refuses to carry out the agreement. B and C may compel A to join them in executing a proper partnership-deed, for the interest of B and C in the performance of the agreement cannot be adequately compensated for by money.

(f). A agrees with B to sell him a house for Rs. 1,000. B is entitled to a decree directing A to convey the house to him, he paying the purchase-money.

(g). In consideration of being released from certain obligations imposed on it by its Act of incorporation, a railway company agree with Z to make and maintain an archway through their railway to connect lands of Z severed by the railway, to construct a road between certain specified points, to pay a certain annual sum towards the maintenance of this road, and also to construct and maintain a siding and a wharf as specified in the agreement. Z is entitled to have this agreement specifically enforced, for his interest in its performance cannot be adequately compensated for by money; and the Court may appoint a proper person to superintend the construction of the archway, road, siding and wharf.

(h). A agrees to sell, and B agrees to buy, a certain number of railway-shares of a particular description. A refuses to complete the purchase. B may compel A specifically to perform this agreement, for the shares are limited in number and not always to be had in the market, and their possession carries with it the status of a shareholder, which cannot otherwise be procured.

(i). A agrees with B to paint a picture for B, who agrees to pay therefor rupees 1,000. The picture is painted. B is entitled to have it delivered to him on payment or tender of the rupees 1,000.

(j). A advances Rs. 10,000 to B, and B agrees to execute a mortgage of certain houses 'with an immediate power of sale' to secure the repayment of the advance. A requires B either to pay off the advance at once or to execute the mortgage. B refuses. A is entitled to have the agreement specifically performed.

Mutual rights of parties.

13. When either of the parties to an agreement is entitled to a specific performance thereof according to the provisions of section twelve, the other party is also entitled to it, though not within those provisions.

Illustration.

A agrees to sell, and B agrees to buy, a patent for 10,000 rupees. B declines to complete the purchase. Here, though pecuniary compensation for its non-performance might afford A adequate relief, A may enforce the agreement specifically, for, if he had declined to complete it, B would have been entitled to a specific performance thereof.

Specific performance of part of an agreement where the part unperformed is small.

14. Where a party to an agreement is unable to perform the whole of the agreement, but the part which must be left unperformed bears only a small proportion to the whole in value, and admits of compensation in money, the Court may, at the suit of either party, direct the specific performance of so much of the agreement as can be performed, and award compensation in money for the deficiency.

Illustrations.

(a). A agrees to sell B a piece of land consisting of 100 bíghás. It turns out that 98 bíghás of the land belong to A, and the two remaining bíghás to a stranger, who refuses to part with them. The two bíghás are not necessary for the use or enjoyment of the 98 bíghás, and the loss of them may be made good in money. A may be directed at the suit of B to convey to B the 98 bíghás and to make compensation to him for not conveying the two remaining bíghás; or B may be directed, at the suit of A, to pay to A on receiving the conveyance and possession of the land, the stipulated purchase-money, less a sum awarded as compensation for the deficiency.

(b). In a contract for the sale and purchase of a house and lands for two lákhs of rupees it is agreed that part of the furniture should be taken at a valuation. The Court may direct specific performance of the contract notwithstanding the parties are unable to agree as to the valuation of the furniture, and may either have the furniture valued in the suit and include it in the decree for specific performance, or may confine its decree to the house.

Specific performance of part of an agreement where the part unperformed is large.

15. Where a party to an agreement is unable to perform the whole of the agreement and the part which must be left unperformed forms a considerable portion of the whole, or does not admit of compensation in money, the party in default is not entitled to obtain a decree for specific performance. But the Court may, at the suit of the other party, direct the party in default to perform specifically so much of the agreement as he can perform, provided that the party seeking specific performance relinquishes all claim to further performance, and all right to compensation, either for the deficiency, or for the loss or damage sustained by him through the default of the other party.

Illustrations.

(a). A agrees to sell to B a piece of land consisting of 100 bíghás. It turns out that 50 bíghás of the land belong to A, and the other 50 bíghás to a stranger, who refuses to part with them. A cannot obtain a decree against B for the specific performance of the contract; but if B is willing to pay the price agreed upon, and to take the 50 bíghás which belong to A, waiving all right to compensation either for the deficiency or for loss sustained by him through A's neglect or default, B is entitled to a decree directing A to convey those 50 bíghás to him on payment of the purchase-money.

(b). A agrees to sell to B an estate with a house and garden for 1,00,000 rupees. It turns out that A is unable to convey the garden. A cannot obtain a decree against B for the specific performance of the contract; but if B is willing to pay the price agreed upon, and to take the estate and house without the garden, waiving all right to compensation either for the deficiency or for loss sustained by him through A's neglect or default, B is entitled to a decree, directing A to convey the house to him on payment of the purchase-money.

Bar in other cases of specific performance of part of agreement.

16. Except in cases coming under one or other of the two last preceding sections, it is not competent for the Court to direct the specific performance of a part of an agreement.

Purchaser's rights against vendor with imperfect title.

17. Where a person agrees to sell or let certain property, having only an imperfect title thereto, the purchaser or lessee (except as otherwise provided by this chapter) has the following rights:—

(a) if the vendor or lessor has subsequently acquired any interest in the property, the purchaser or lessee may compel him to make good the agreement out of such interest;

(b) where the concurrence of other persons is necessary to validate the title, and they are bound to convey at the vendor's or lessor's request, the purchaser or lessee may compel him to procure such concurrence;

(c) where the vendor professes to sell unincumbered property, but the property is mortgaged for an amount not exceeding the purchase-money, and the vendor has in fact only a right to redeem it, the purchaser may compel him to redeem the mortgage and obtain a conveyance from the mortgagee;

(d) where the vendor or lessor sues for specific performance of the agreement, and the suit is dismissed on the ground of his imperfect title, the defendant has a right to a return of his deposit (if any) with interest thereon, to the costs of the suit, and to a lien for such deposit, interest and costs on the property agreed to be sold or let.

Power to award compensation in certain cases.

18. Any person suing for the specific performance of an agreement, may also ask for compensation for its breach, either in addition to, or in substitution for, such performance.

If in any such suit the Court decides that specific performance ought not to be granted, but that there is a valid agreement between the parties which has been broken by the defendant and that the plaintiff is entitled to compensation for that breach, it shall award him compensation accordingly.

If in any such suit the Court decides that specific performance ought to be granted, but that it is not sufficient to satisfy the justice of the case, and that some compensation for breach of the agreement should also be made to the plaintiff, it shall award him such compensation accordingly.

Compensation awarded under this section may be assessed in such manner as the Court may direct.

EXPLANATION.—The circumstance that the agreement has become incapable of specific performance does not preclude the Court from exercising the jurisdiction conferred by this section.

Illustrations.

(a). A, a purchaser, sues B, his vendor, for specific performance of an agreement for the sale of a patent. Before the hearing of the suit, the patent expires. The Court may award A compensation for the non-performance of the agreement.

(b). A agrees with B to sell him a house for Rs. 1,000 the price to be paid and the possession given on the 1st January 1876. A fails to perform his part of the agreement, and B brings his suit for specific performance, which is decided in his favour on the 1st January 1877. The decree may, besides ordering specific performance, award to B compensation for any loss or damage which he has sustained by A's refusal.

(c). A sues for the specific performance of a resolution passed by the directors of a public company, under which he was entitled to have a certain number of shares allotted to him. All the shares had been allotted before the institution of the suit. The Court may, under this section, award A compensation for the non-performance.

(d). A contracts to sell a hundred maunds of rice to B. B brings a suit to compel A to perform the agreement or to pay compensation. The Court is of opinion that A has made a valid contract and has broken it without excuse to the injury of B, but that specific performance is not the proper remedy. It shall award to B such compensation as it deems just.

Liquidation of damages not a bar to specific performance.

19. An agreement, otherwise proper to be specifically enforced, may be thus enforced, though a sum be named in the agreement as the amount to be paid in case of its breach, and the party in default is willing to pay the same.

Illustration.

A agrees to grant B an underlease of property held by A under C, and covenants that if C refuses to grant a license necessary for that purpose, A will pay B Rs. 10,000. A refuses to apply for the license and offers to pay B the Rs. 10,000. B is nevertheless entitled to have the agreement specifically enforced.

(b). Agreements which cannot be specifically enforced.

Agreements not specifically enforcible.

20. The following agreements cannot be specifically enforced:—

(a) an agreement for the breach of which compensation could not be recovered;

(b) an agreement for the non-performance of which compensation in money is an adequate relief, and which does not come within section twelve, clause (a);

(d) an agreement which is in its nature revocable;

(e) an agreement entered into by trustees either in excess of their powers or in breach of their trust;

(f) an agreement entered into by or on behalf of a corporation or public company created for special purposes, or by the promoters of such company, which is in excess of its powers;

(g) an agreement the performance of which involves the performance of a continuous duty extending over a longer period than five years from its date;

(h) an agreement to submit a controversy to arbitration.

Illustrations.

To (a).—A agrees in consideration of Rs. 500 to obtain an office under the Crown for B. This agreement cannot be specifically enforced.

A, a banker holding bills as a security for advances to B, takes a guarantee from B's brother, C, that the loss to the bank should not exceed Rs. 20,000. This transaction took place after B had commenced proceedings for the liquidation of his affairs and unknown to his other creditors with a view to prevent A from opposing a composition. The guarantee cannot be specifically enforced, as the transaction would have the effect of giving A an undue advantage over B's other creditors.

A, a military pensioner of Government, in consideration of Rs. 500, agrees to assign to B all future payments in respect of his pension. This agreement cannot be specifically enforced.

A husband and wife, professing the Christian religion, enter into an agreement providing for their future separation. This agreement cannot be specifically enforced.

A agrees to grant B a lease of a certain house. The length of the term to be granted is not stated, nor the date at which it is to commence. This agreement cannot be specifically enforced.

A agrees with B to take from B a lease of a certain house for a specified term, at a specified rent, "if the drawing-room is handsomely decorated." This agreement cannot be specifically enforced.

Z, a resident in Calcutta, agrees, as trustee for B, a resident in Australia, to sell to C an annuity to which B is entitled for his life. The day before the date of the agreement B had died. Z cannot enforce this agreement.

A, the lessee of a house much out of repair, agrees to sell the lease to B. Before the sale, A receives from his landlord a notice of re-entry in default of the premises being repaired. A does not communicate this notice to B, who enters and is ejected in consequence of the non-repair. A cannot enforce the agreement against B.

A, the owner of a patent, agrees to sell it to B. B institutes a suit to compel specific performance of this agreement. Before the suit is heard the patent expires. Specific performance of the agreement cannot be compelled.

On A's marriage with B, A's father, C, agrees with B's father, D, to settle certain lands on A and his children by B. D sues C to enforce specific performance of this agreement. C proves that the agreement was conditional on D settling a lákh of rupees on A and his children by B, and that D had not settled such lákh accordingly. The suit must be dismissed.

A, an author, agrees with B, a publisher, to complete a literary work, and dies before doing so. The agreement requiring A's personal skill and taste is discharged by his death, and B cannot enforce its performance as against A's representative.

A, a shoemaker, agrees with B to receive B's son as an apprentice for a term of years and teach him shoemaking. A dies before the expiration of the term. B cannot enforce performance of the agreement.

A and B enter into an agreement to become partners for a term and afterwards agree to rescind it.

A agrees to buy B's business at the amount of a valuation to be made by two valuers, one to be named by A and the other by B. A and B each name a valuer, but before the valuation is made A instructs his valuer not to proceed.

A agrees to buy certain houses in Calcutta, and before the completion of the agreement becomes insolvent. A's assignee, in exercise of his option under the Indian Insolvent Act, abandons the agreement.

In none of these cases can the agreement be specifically enforced.

To (b).—A agrees to sell, and B agrees to buy, a lákh of rupees in the four per cent. loan of the Government of India.

A agrees to sell, and B agrees to buy, 40 chests of indigo at Rs. 1,000 per chest.

In consideration of certain property having been transferred by A to B, B agrees to open a credit in A's favour to the extent of Rs. 10,000, and to honour A's drafts to that amount.

These agreements cannot be specifically enforced, for, in the first and the second both A and B, and in the third A, would be reimbursed by compensation in money.

To (c).—A agrees to render personal service to B.

A agrees to employ B on personal service.

By a charter party entered into in Calcutta between A, the owner of a ship, and B, the charterer, it is agreed that the ship shall proceed to Rangoon, and there load a cargo of rice, and thence proceed to London, freight to be paid, one-third on arrival at Rangoon, and two-thirds on delivery of the cargo in London.

These agreements cannot be specifically performed.

A lets land to B and B agrees to cultivate it in a particular manner for three years next after the date of the lease. A is not entitled to have this agreement specifically performed.

A and B agree that in consideration of annual advances to be made by A, B will for three years next after the date of the agreement grow particular crops on the land in his possession and deliver them to A when cut and ready for delivery. A is not entitled to have this agreement specifically performed.

A agrees with B that in consideration of Rs. 1,000 to be paid to him by B, he will paint a picture for B.

A agrees with B to execute certain works which the Court cannot superintend.

A agrees to supply B with all the goods of a certain class which B may require.

These agreements cannot be specifically enforced.

To (d).—A and B agree to become partners in a certain business, the agreement not specifying the duration of the proposed partnership. This agreement cannot be specifically performed, for, if it were so performed, either A or B might at once dissolve the partnership.

To (e).—A is a trustee of land with power to lease it for seven years. He enters into an agreement with B to grant a lease of the land for seven years, with a covenant to renew the lease at the expiry of the term. This agreement cannot be specifically enforced.

The directors of a company have power to sell the concern with the sanction of a general meeting of the shareholders. They contract to sell it without any such sanction. This contract cannot be specifically enforced.

Two trustees, A and B, empowered to sell trust-property worth a lákh of rupees, agree to sell it to C for Rs. 30,000. The agreement is so disadvantageous as to be a breach of trust. C cannot enforce its specific performance.

The promoters of a company for working mines agree that the company, when formed, shall purchase certain mineral property. They take no proper precautions to ascertain the value of such property and in fact agree to pay an extravagant price therefor. They also stipulate that the vendors shall give them a bonus out of the purchase-money. This contract cannot be specifically enforced.

To (f).—A railway company contracts for the purchase of a piece of land for the purpose of erecting a cotton-mill thereon. This contract cannot be specifically enforced.

To (g).—A agrees to let for twenty-one years to B the right to use such part of a certain railway made by A as was upon B's land, and that B should have a right of running carriages over the whole line on certain terms, and might require A to supply the necessary engine-power, and that A should during the term keep the whole railway in good repair. Specific performance of this contract must be refused to B.

(c). Of the Discretion of the Court.

21. The jurisdiction to decree specific performance is discretionary, and the Court is not bound to grant such relief, merely because it is lawful to do so; but the discretion of the Court is not arbitrary but sound and reasonable, guided by judicial principles and capable of correction by a Court of appeal.

Discretion as to decreeing specific performance.

The following are cases in which the Court may properly exercise a discretion not to decree specific performance:—

I. Where, though it is clear that an agreement has been made and broken, the Court cannot find, with reasonable certainty, what are the terms of the agreement of which specific performance is sought.

Illustration.

(a). A, the owner of a refreshment-room, agrees with B to give him accommodation there for the sale of his goods and to furnish him with the necessary appliances. A refuses to perform his agreement. The case is one for compensation and not for specific performance, the amount and nature of the accommodation and appliances being undefined.

II. Where the circumstances under which the agreement is made are such as to give the plaintiff an unfair advantage over the defendant, though there may be no fraud or misrepresentation on the plaintiff's part.

Illustrations.

(b). A tenant for life of certain property assigns his interest therein to B. C agrees to buy, and B agrees to sell, that interest. Before the contract is completed, A receives a mortal injury from the effects of which he dies the day after the contract is completed. If B and C were equally ignorant or equally aware of the fact, B is entitled to specific performance. If B knew the fact and C did not, specific performance should be refused to B.

(c). A agrees to sell to B the interest of C in certain stock-in-trade. It is stipulated that the sale shall stand good, even though it should turn out that C's interest is worth nothing. In fact the value of C's interest depends on the result of certain partnership-accounts, on which he is heavily in debt to his partners. This indebtedness is known to A, but not to B. Specific performance of the agreement should be refused to A.

(d). A agrees to sell, and B agrees to buy, certain land. To protect the land from floods, it is necessary for its owner to maintain an expensive embankment. B does not know of this circumstance, and A industriously conceals it from him. Specific performance should be refused to B.

(e). A's property is put up to auction in one lot. B requests C, A's attorney, to bid for him. C does this inadvertently and in good faith. The persons present seeing the vendor's attorney bidding, think that he is a mere puffer and cease to compete. The lot is knocked down to B at a low price. Specific performance should be refused to B.

(f). A contracts with B who at the time is intoxicated. Specific performance should be refused to A.

III. Where the performance of the agreement would involve some hardship on the defendant which he did not foresee, whereas no such hardship would fall on the plaintiff if the agreement was not performed.

Illustrations.

(g). A is entitled to some land under his father's will on condition that, if he sells it within twenty-five years, half the purchase-money shall go to B. A, forgetting the condition, agrees, before the expiration of the twenty-five years, to sell the land to C. Here, the enforcement of the agreement would operate so harshly on A, that the Court will not compel its specific performance in favour of C.

(h). A and B, trustees, join their beneficiary, C, in an agreement to sell the trust-estate to D, and personally agree to exonerate the estate from heavy incumbrances to which it is subject. The purchase-money is not nearly enough to discharge those incumbrances, though, at the date of the agreement, the vendors believed it to be sufficient. Specific performance of the agreement should be refused to D.

(i). A, the owner of an estate, agrees to sell it to B, and stipulates that he, A, shall not be obliged to define its boundary. The estate really comprises a valuable property not known to either to be part of it. Specific performance of the agreement should be refused to B unless he waives his claim to the unknown property.

(j). A agrees with B to sell him certain land, and to make a road to it from a certain railway-station. It is found afterwards that A cannot make the road without exposing himself to litigation. Specific performance of the part of the agreement relating to the road should be refused to B, though he may be entitled to specific performance of the rest with compensation for loss of the road.

(k). A, a lessee of mines, agrees with B, his lessor, that at any time during the continuance of the lease B may give notice of his desire to take the machinery and plant used in and about the mines, and that he shall have the articles specified in his notice delivered to him at a valuation on the expiry of the lease. Such a contract might be most injurious to the lessee's business, and specific performance should be refused to B.

(l). A agrees to buy certain land from B. The agreement is silent as to access to the land. No right of way to it can be shown to exist. Specific performance of the contract should be refused to B.

(m). A agrees with B to buy from B's manufactory and not elsewhere all the goods of a certain class used by A in his trade. The Court cannot compel B to supply the goods, but if he does not supply them, A may be ruined unless he is allowed to buy them elsewhere. Specific performance of the agreement should be refused to B.

IV. The circumstance that the plaintiff has done substantial acts or suffered losses in consequence of an agreement susceptible of specific performance is one which the Court may reasonably consider in exercising its discretion to grant specific performance of such agreement.

Illustration.

A sells land to a railway company who agree to execute certain works for his convenience. The company take the land and use it for their railway. Specific performance of the agreement to execute the works should be awarded in favour of A.

(d.) For whom Agreements may be specifically enforced.

22. Except as otherwise provided by this chapter, the specific performance of an agreement may be obtained by—

Who may obtain specific performance.

(a) any party thereto:

(b) the representative in interest, or the principal, of any party thereto: provided that, where the learning, skill, solvency or any personal quality of such party is a material ingredient in the agreement, or where the agreement provides that his interest shall not be assigned, his representative in interest or principal shall not be entitled to specific performance of the agreement:

(c) where the agreement is a settlement on marriage, any person beneficially entitled thereunder:

(d) where the agreement has been entered into by a tenant for life in due exercise of a power, the remainderman:

(e) a reversioner in possession, where the agreement is a covenant entered into with his predecessor in title and the reversioner is entitled to the benefit of such covenant:

(f) a reversioner in remainder, where the agreement is such a covenant, and the reversioner is entitled to the benefit thereof and will sustain material injury by reason of its breach:

(g) when a public company has entered into an agreement and subsequently becomes amalgamated with another public company, the new company which arises out of the amalgamation:

(h) when the promoters of a public company have, before its incorporation, entered into an agreement for the purposes of the company, and such agreement is warranted by the terms of the incorporation, the company.

(e). For whom Agreements cannot be specifically enforced.

23. An agreement for the sale or letting of property cannot be specifically enforced in favour of a vendor or lessor—

Agreement to sell property by one who has no title or who is a voluntary settlor.

(a) who, knowing himself not to have any title to the property, has agreed to sell or let the same;

(c) who, previous to entering into the agreement, has made a voluntary settlement of the subject-matter thereof.

Illustrations.

(a). A agrees to sell to B an estate which A knows to belong to C. A cannot enforce specific performance of this agreement, even though C is willing to confirm it.

(b). A bequeaths his land to trustees, declaring that they should not sell it without the consent in writing of his sons and daughters. A dies. Then one of his daughters dies. The trustees then enter into an agreement with B to sell him the land. B refuses to carry out the agreement. The trustees cannot specifically enforce this agreement, as the title which they can give B is not free from reasonable doubt.

(c). A makes a voluntary settlement of certain property on his brothers and their issue, and afterwards enters into an agreement to sell the property to a stranger. A cannot enforce specific performance of this agreement so as to override the settlement and thus prejudice the interests of the persons claiming under it.

24. Specific performance of an agreement cannot be enforced in favour of a party—

Personal bars to the relief.

(a) who could not recover compensation for its breach;

(b) who has become incapable of performing, or violates, any essential term of the agreement that on his part remains to be performed; or

(c) who has already chosen his remedy and obtained satisfaction for the alleged breach of contract;

(d) who, previously to entering into the agreement, had notice that a voluntary settlement of the subject-matter thereof had been made and was then in force.

Illustrations.

(a). A agrees to sell B a house and to become tenant thereof for a term of 14 years from the date of the sale at a specified yearly rent. A becomes insolvent. Neither he nor his assignee can enforce specific performance of the agreement. Neither can B, although he might recover compensation from A's assignee for breach of the agreement.

(b). A agrees to sell B a house and garden in which there are ornamental trees, a material element in the value of the property as a residence. A without B's consent fells the trees. A cannot enforce specific performance of the agreement.

(c). A, holding land under an agreement with B for a lease, commits waste, or treats the land in an unhusbandlike manner. A cannot enforce the agreement.

(d). A agrees to let, and B agrees to take, an unfinished house, B agreeing to finish the house and the lease to contain covenants on the part of A to keep the house in repair. B finishes the house in a very defective manner: he cannot enforce the agreement, though A and B may sue each other for compensation for breach of the agreement.

(e). A agrees to let, and B agrees to take, a house for a specified term at a specified rent. B refuses to perform the agreement. A thereupon sues for and obtains compensation for the breach of contract. A cannot obtain specific performance of the agreement.

(f). For whom Agreements cannot be specifically enforced except with a variation.

25. Where a plaintiff seeks specific performance of an agreement in writing, to which the defendant sets up a variation, the plaintiff cannot obtain the performance sought except with the variation so set up, in the following cases (namely):—

Non-enforcement except with variation.

(a) where by fraud or mistake of fact the agreement of which performance is sought is in terms different from that which the defendant supposed it to be when he entered into it;

(b) where by fraud, mistake of fact, or surprise the defendant entered into the agreement under a reasonable misapprehension as to its effect as between himself and the plaintiff;

(c) where the defendant, knowing the terms of the agreement and understanding its effect, has entered into it relying upon some misrepresentation by the plaintiff, or upon some stipulation on the plaintiff's part, which goes to vary the agreement, but which he refuses to fulfil;

(d) where the parties have varied the agreement subsequently to its execution.

Illustrations.

(a). A, B and C sign a writing by which each agrees to enter into a bond to D for Rs. 1,000. In a suit by D, to make A, B and C separately liable each to the extent of Rs. 1,000, they prove that the word 'each' was inserted by mistake; that the intention was that they should give a joint bond for Rs. 1,000. A can obtain the performance sought only with the variation thus set up.

(b). A sues B to compel specific performance of an agreement in writing to buy a dwelling-house. B proves that he assumed that the agreement included an adjoining yard, and the agreement was so framed as to leave it doubtful whether the yard was so included or not. The Court will refuse to enforce the agreement, except with the variation set up by B.

(c). A agrees in writing to let to B a wharf, together with a strip of A's land delineated in a map. Before signing the agreement, B proposed orally that he should be at liberty to substitute for the strip mentioned in the agreement another strip of A's land of the same dimensions, and to this A expressly assented. B then signed the written agreement. A cannot obtain specific performance of the written agreement except with the variation set up by B.

(d). A agrees in writing to let a house to B, for a certain term, at the rent of Rs. 100 per month, putting it first into tenantable repair. The house turns out to be not worth repairing, so with B's consent A pulls it down and erects a new house in its place: B agreeing orally to pay rent at Rs. 120 per mensem. B then sues to compel specific performance of the agreement in writing. He cannot enforce it except with the variations made by the subsequent oral agreement.

(g). Against whom Agreements may be specifically enforced.

26. Except as otherwise provided by this chapter, specific performance of an agreement may be enforced against—

Relief against parties and persons claiming under them by subsequent title.

(a) either party thereto;

(b) any other person claiming under him by a title arising subsequently to the agreement, except a transferee for value, who has paid his money in good faith and without notice of the original agreement;

(c) any person claiming under a title which, though prior to the agreement, and known to the plaintiff, might have been displaced by the defendant;

(d) when a public company has entered into an agreement, and subsequently becomes amalgamated with another public company, the new company which arises out of the amalgamation;

(e) when the promoters of a public company have, before its incorporation, entered into an agreement, the company: provided that the company has ratified and adopted the agreement and the agreement is warranted by the terms of the incorporation.

Illustrations.

(a). A agrees to convey certain land to B by a particular day. A dies intestate before that day without having conveyed the land. B may compel A's heir or other representative in interest to perform the agreement specifically.

(b). A agrees to sell certain land to B for Rs. 5,000. A afterwards conveys the land for Rs. 6,000 to C, who has notice of the original agreement. B may enforce specific performance of the agreement as against C.

(c). A agrees to sell land to B for Rs. 5,000. B takes possession of the land. Afterwards A sells it to C for Rs. 6,000. C makes no enquiry of B relating to his interest in the land. B's possession is sufficient to affect C with notice of his interest, and he may enforce the agreement against C.

(d). A agrees in consideration of Rs. 1,000 to bequeath certain of his lands to B. Immediately after the agreement A dies intestate, and C takes out administration to his estate. B may enforce the agreement against C.

(e). A agrees to sell certain land to B. Before the completion of the agreement, A becomes a lunatic and C is appointed his committee. B may specifically enforce the agreement against C.

(f). A, the tenant for life of an estate, with remainder to B, in due exercise of a power conferred by the settlement under which he is tenant for life, agrees to sell the estate to C, who has notice of the settlement. Before the sale is completed, A dies. C may enforce specific performance of the agreement against B.

(g). A and B are joint tenants of land, his undivided moiety of which either may alien in his lifetime, but which, subject to that right, devolves on the survivor. A agrees to sell his moiety to C and dies. C may enforce specific performance of the agreement against B.

(h). Against whom Agreements cannot be specifically enforced.

27. Specific performance of an agreement cannot be enforced against a party thereto in any of the following cases:—

What parties cannot be compelled to perform.

(a) if the consideration to be received by him is so grossly inadequate, with reference to the state of things existing at the date of the agreement, as to be either by itself or coupled with other circumstances evidence of fraud or of undue advantage taken by the plaintiff;

(b) if his assent was obtained by the misrepresentation (whether wilful or innocent), concealment, circumvention, or unfair practices, of any party to whom performance would become due under the contract, or by any promise of such party which has not been substantially fulfilled;

(c) if his assent was given under the influence of mistake of fact, misapprehension or surprise: Provided that, when the agreement provides for compensation in case of mistake, compensation may be made for a mistake within the scope of such provision, and the agreement may be specifically enforced in other respects if proper to be so enforced.

Illustrations.

(a). A, one of two executors, in the erroneous belief that he had the authority of his co-executor, enters into an agreement for the sale to B of his testator's property. B cannot insist on the sale being completed.

(b). A directs an auctioneer to sell certain land. A afterwards revokes the auctioneer's authority as to 20 bighás of this land, but the auctioneer inadvertently sells the whole to B, who has not notice of the revocation. B cannot enforce specific performance of the agreement.

(i). The Effect of dismissing a Suit for Specific Performance.

28. The dismissal of a suit for specific performance of an agreement shall bar the plaintiff's right to sue for the breach of such agreement.

Bar of suit for breach after dismissal.

CHAPTER III.

OF THE RECTIFICATION OF INSTRUMENTS.

29. When through fraud or a mutual mistake of the parties, a contract or other instrument in writing does not truly express the intention of the parties, the Court, on finding it clearly proved—

When instrument may be rectified.

(a) that there has been fraud or mistake in framing the instrument, and

(b) that the intention of the parties in executing the instrument was as alleged by the plaintiff,

may in its discretion rectify the instrument, so as to express that intention, so far as it can be done without prejudice to rights acquired by third persons, in good faith and for value.

Illustrations.

(a). A, intending to sell to B his house and one of three godowns adjacent to it, executes a conveyance prepared by B, in which, through B's fraud, all three godowns are included.

Of the two godowns which were fraudulently included, B gives one to C and lets the other to D for a rent, neither C nor D having any knowledge of the fraud.

The conveyance may, as against B and C, be rectified so as to exclude from it the godown given to C; but it cannot be rectified so as to affect D's lease.

(b). By a marriage-settlement, A, the father of B, the intended wife, covenanted with C, the intended husband, to pay to C, his executors, administrators and assigns, during A's life, an annuity of Rs. 5,000. C dies insolvent and the official assignee claims the annuity from A. The Court, on finding it clearly proved that the parties always intended that this annuity should be paid as a provision for B and her children, may rectify the settlement, and decree that the assignee has no right to any part of the annuity.

30. For the purpose of rectifying a contract in writing, it must be presumed that all the parties thereto intended to make an equitable and conscientious agreement.

Presumption as to intent of parties.

31. In rectifying a written instrument, the Court may inquire what the instrument was intended to mean, and what were intended to be its legal consequences, and is not confined to the inquiry what the language of the instrument was intended to be.

Principles of rectification.

32. A contract in writing may be first rectified and then, if the plaintiff has so prayed in his plaint and the Court thinks fit, specifically enforced.

Specific enforcement of rectified contract.

Illustration.

A agrees in writing to pay his attorney, B, a fixed sum in lieu of costs.

The agreement contains mistakes as to the name and rights of the client, which, if construed strictly, would have excluded B from all rights under the agreement. B is entitled, if the Court thinks fit, to have it rectified, and to an order for payment of the sum, as if at the time of its execution it had expressed the intention of the parties.

CHAPTER IV.

OF THE RESCISSION OF CONTRACTS.

When rescission may be adjudged.

33. Any person interested in a contract in writing may sue to have it rescinded, and such rescission may be adjudged by the Court, in any of the following cases, namely:—

(a) where the contract is voidable or terminable by the plaintiff;

(b) where the contract is unlawful for causes not apparent on its face, and the defendant is more to blame than the plaintiff;

(c) where a decree for specific performance of a contract of sale, or of a contract to take a lease, has been made, and the purchaser or lessee makes default in payment of the purchase-money or other sums which the Court has ordered him to pay.

EXPLANATION.—In the case mentioned in clause (c) of this section, when the purchaser or lessor is in possession of the subject-matter, the Court may also order him to pay to the vendor or lessor the rents and profits, if any, received by him, together with the costs occasioned by the non-completion of the purchase or lease.

Illustration.

To (b)—A, an attorney, induces B, his client, to transfer property to him for the purpose of defrauding B's creditors. Here the parties are not equally in fault, and B is entitled to have the instrument of transfer rescinded.

Rescission for mistake.

34. Rescission of a contract in writing cannot be adjudged for mere mistake, unless the party against whom it is adjudged can be restored to substantially the same position as if the contract had not been made.

Alternative prayer for rescission in suit for specific performance.

35. A plaintiff instituting a suit for the specific performance of a contract in writing may pray in the alternative that, if the contract cannot be enforced, it may be rescinded and delivered up to be cancelled.

Court may require party rescinding to do equity.

36. On adjudging the rescission of a contract, the Court may require the party to whom such relief is granted to make any compensation to the other which justice may require.

CHAPTER V.

OF THE CANCELLATION OF INSTRUMENTS.

When cancellation may be ordered.

37. Any person having reasonable apprehension that a written instrument, if left outstanding, may cause serious injury to a person against whom it is void or voidable, may sue to have it so adjudged, and the Court may, in its discretion, so adjudge it and order it to be delivered up and cancelled

Illustrations.

(a). A, the owner of a ship, by fraudulently representing her to be seaworthy, induces B, an underwriter, to insure her. B may obtain the cancellation of the policy.

(b). A conveys land to B, who bequeaths it to C and dies. Thereupon, D gets possession of the land, and produces a forged instrument stating that the conveyance was made to B in trust for him. C may obtain the cancellation of the forged instrument.

(c). A, representing that the tenants on his land were all at will, sells it to B, and conveys it to him by an instrument dated the 1st January 1875. Soon after that day, A fraudulently grants to C a lease of part of the lands, dated the 1st October 1874. B may obtain the cancellation of this lease.

(d). A agrees to sell and deliver a ship to B, to be paid for by B's acceptances of four bills of exchange, for sums amounting to Rs. 10,000, to be drawn by A on B. The bills are drawn and accepted, but the ship is not delivered according to the agreement. A sues B on one of the bills. B may obtain the cancellation of all the bills.

What instruments may be partially cancelled.

38. Where an instrument is evidence of different rights or different obligations, the Court may, in a proper case, cancel it in part and allow it to stand for the residue.

Illustration.

A draws a bill on B, who endorses it to C, by whom it appears to be endorsed to D, who endorses it to E. C's endorsement is forged. C is entitled to have such endorsement cancelled, leaving the bill to stand as regards A, B, D and E.

Power to require party for whom instrument is cancelled to make compensation

39. On adjudging the cancellation of an instrument, the Court may require the party to whom such relief is granted to make any compensation to the other which justice may require.

CHAPTER VI.

OF DECLARATORY DECREES.

Discretion of Court as to declarations of status or right.

40. Any person entitled to any legal character, or to any future right as to any property, may institute a suit against any person denying, or interested to deny, his title to such character or right, and the Court may in its discretion make therein a declaration that he is so entitled, and the plaintiff need not in such suit ask for any further relief.

EXPLANATION.—A trustee of property is a person interested to deny a title adverse to the title of some one who is not in existence, and for whom, if in existence, he would be a trustee.

Bar to such declaration.

Provided that no Court shall make any such declaration in any of the following cases:—

(a) where the right as to which the declaration is sought is contingent, or may never arise;

(b) where the plaintiff is in possession of the right which he seeks to have declared;

(c) where the right respecting which the declaration is sought could be enforced by ordinary suit.

EXPLANATION.—The presumptive right of a Hindú to property, if he survive the widow of a sonless Hindú, is not within clause (a) of the above proviso.

Illustrations.

(a). A bequeaths his property to B, C and D, "to be equally divided amongst all and each of them, if living at the time of my death, then amongst their surviving children." No such children are in existence. In a suit against A's executor, the Court may declare whether B, C and D took the property absolutely, or only for their lives, but it may not declare the interests of the children before their rights are vested.

(b). A covenants that if he should at any time be entitled to property exceeding one lákh of rupees, he will settle it upon certain trusts. Before any such property accrues, or any persons entitled under the trusts are ascertained, he institutes a suit to obtain a declaration that the covenant is void for uncertainty. The Court cannot make the declaration.

(c). The widow of a sonless Hindú alienates part of the property of which she is in possession as such. The person presumptively entitled to possess the property if he survive her, may, in a suit against the alienee, obtain a declaration that the alienation was made without legal necessity and was therefore void beyond the widow's life-time.

(d). A Hindú widow in possession of property adopts a son to her deceased husband. The person presumptively entitled to possession of the property on her death without a son may, in a suit against the adopted son, obtain a declaration that the adoption was invalid.

(e). A is in possession of certain property. B, alleging that he is the owner of the property, requires A to deliver it to him. This alone is not enough to entitle A to a declaration of his right to hold the property.

(f). A bequeaths property to B for his life, with remainder to B's wife and her children, if any, by B, but if B die without any wife or children, to C. B has a putative wife, D, and children, but C denies that B and D were ever lawfully married. D and her children may, in B's life-time, institute a suit against C and obtain therein a declaration that they are truly the wife and children of B.

Effect of declaration.

41. A declaration made under this chapter is binding only on the parties to the suit, persons claiming through them respectively, and, where any of the parties are trustees, on the persons for whom, if in existence, such parties would be trustees.

Illustration.

A, a Hindú, in a suit to which B, his alleged wife, and her mother are defendants, seeks a declaration that his marriage was duly solemnized and an order for the restitution of his conjugal rights. The Court makes the declaration and order. C, claiming that B is his wife, then sues A for the recovery of B. The declaration made in the former suit is not binding upon C.

CHAPTER VII.

OF THE ENFORCEMENT OF PUBLIC DUTIES.

Power to order public servants and others to do certain specific acts.

42. Any of the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William, Madras and Bombay may, on application, make an order requiring any specific act to be done by any person holding a public office of a permanent nature, or by any corporation or inferior Court of Judicature: provided—

(a) that such act is clearly incumbent on such person or Court in his or its public character, or on such corporation in its corporate character;

(b) that, in the opinion of the High Court, such act is consonant to right and justice;

(c) that the applicant has no other specific and adequate legal remedy; and

(d) that the remedy given by the order applied for will be complete.

Exemptions from such power.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize any High Court—

(e) to make any order binding on the Secretary of State for India in Council, on the Governor General in Council, on the Governor of Madras in Council, on the Governor of Bombay in Council, or on the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal; or

(f) to make any order on any other servant of the Crown, as such, merely to enforce the satisfaction of a claim upon the Crown.

Application how made.

43. Every application under section forty-two must be founded on an affidavit of the party injured, stating his right in the matter in question, his demand of justice and the denial thereof; and the High Court may, in its discretion, either make the order applied for absolute in the first instance, or refuse it and grant a rule to show cause why the order applied for should not be made.

Procedure thereon.

If, in the latter case, the party complained of shows no sufficient cause, the High Court may first make an order in the alternative, either to do the act required, or to signify some reason to the contrary and make an answer thereto by such day as the High Court fixes in this behalf.

Order in alternative.

44. If the person to whom such order is directed makes no answer, or makes an insufficient or a false answer, the High Court may then issue a peremptory order to do the act absolutely.

Peremptory order.

45. Every order under this chapter shall be executed, and may be appealed from, as if it were a decree made in the exercise of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court.

Execution of, and appeal from, orders.

46. The costs of all applications and orders under this chapter shall be in the discretion of the High Court.

Costs.

Bar to issue of mandamus.

47. Neither the High Court nor any Judge thereof shall hereafter issue any writ of mandamus.

Power to frame rules.

48. Each of the said High Courts shall, as soon as conveniently may be, frame rules to regulate the procedure under this chapter; and until such rules are framed, the practice of such Court as to applications for and grants of writs of mandamus shall apply, so far as may be practicable, to applications and orders under this chapter.

PART III.

OF PREVENTIVE RELIEF.

CHAPTER VIII.

OF INJUNCTIONS GENERALLY.

Preventive relief how granted.

49. Preventive relief is granted at the discretion of the Court by injunction, temporary or perpetual.

Temporary injunctions.

50. Temporary injunctions are such as are to continue until a specified time. They may be granted at any period of a suit, and are regulated by the Code of Civil Procedure.

Perpetual injunctions.

A perpetual injunction can only be granted by the decree made at the hearing and upon the merits of the suit: the defendant is thereby perpetually enjoined from the assertion of a right, or from the commission of an act, which would be contrary to the rights of the plaintiff.

CHAPTER IX.

OF PERPETUAL INJUNCTIONS.

Perpetual injunctions when granted.

51. Subject to the other provisions contained in, or referred to by, this chapter, a perpetual injunction may be granted to prevent the breach of an obligation existing in favour of the applicant, whether express or implied.

When such obligation arises from contract, the Court shall be guided by the rules and provisions contained in chapter II of this Act.

When such obligation arises from an actual or threatened invasion by the defendant of the plaintiff's right to, or enjoyment of, property, the Court may grant a perpetual injunction in the following cases (namely)—

(a) where the parties have expressly agreed in writing that, in case of such invasion, a perpetual injunction may be granted:

(b) where there exists no standard for ascertaining the actual damage caused by the invasion:

(c) where the invasion is such that pecuniary compensation would not afford adequate relief:

(d) where it is probable that pecuniary compensation cannot be got for the invasion:

(e) where the injunction is necessary to prevent a multiplicity of judicial proceedings:

(f) where the obligation arises from a trust.

Illustrations.

(a). A lets certain land to B, and B agrees not to dig sand or gravel thereout. A may obtain an injunction to restrain B from digging in violation of his agreement.

(b). A, the owner of two adjoining houses, lets one to B and afterwards lets the other to C. A and C begin to make such alterations in the house let to C as will prevent the comfortable enjoyment of the house let to B. B may obtain an injunction to restrain them from doing so.

(c). A lets certain arable lands to B for purposes of husbandry, but without any express agreement as to the mode of cultivation. Contrary to the mode of cultivation customary in the district, B threatens to sow the lands with seed injurious thereto and requiring many years to eradicate. A may obtain an injunction to restrain B from sowing the lands in contravention of his implied agreement to use them in a husbandlike manner.

(d). A, B and C are partners, the partnership being determinable at will. A threatens to do an act tending to the destruction of the partnership-property. B and C may, without seeking a dissolution of the partnership, obtain an injunction to restrain A from doing the act.

(e). A, a Hindú widow in possession of her deceased husband's property, commits destruction of the property without any cause sufficient to justify her in so doing. The heir expectant may obtain an injunction to restrain her.

(f). A, B and C are members of an undivided Hindú family. A cuts timber growing on the family-property, and threatens to destroy part of the family-house and to sell some of the family-utensils. B and C may obtain an injunction to restrain him.

(g). A, the owner of certain houses in Calcutta, becomes insolvent. B buys them from the official assignee and enters into possession. A persists in trespassing on and damaging the houses, and B is thereby compelled, at considérable expense, to employ men to protect the possession. B may obtain an injunction to restrain further acts of trespass.

(h). The inhabitants of a village claim a right of way over A's land. In a suit against several of them, A obtains a declaratory decree that his land is subject to no such right. Afterwards each of the other villagers sues A for obstructing his alleged right of way over the land. A may obtain an injunction to restrain them.

(i). A, in an administration-suit to which a creditor, B, is not a party, obtains a decree for the administration of C's assets. B proceeds against C's estate for his debt. A may obtain an injunction to restrain B.

(j). A and B are in possession of contiguous lands and of the mines underneath them. A works his mine so as to extend under B's mine and threatens to remove certain pillars which help to support B's mine. B may obtain an injunction to restrain him from so doing.

(k). A rings bells or makes some other unnecessary noise so near a house as to interfere materially and unreasonably with the physical comfort of the occupier, B. B may obtain an injunction restraining A from making the noise.

(l). A pollutes the air with smoke so as to interfere materially with the physical comfort of B and C, who carry on business in a neighbouring house. B and C may obtain an injunction to restrain the pollution.

(m). A builds a house with eaves projecting over B's land. B may obtain an injunction to prevent A from so doing.

(n). A infringes B's patent. If the Court is satisfied that the patent is valid and has been infringed, B may obtain an injunction to restrain the infringement.

(o). A pirates B's copyright. B may obtain an injunction to restrain the piracy, unless the work of which copyright is claimed is libellous or obscene.

(p). A improperly uses the trademark of B. B may obtain an injunction to restrain the user, provided that B's use of the trademark is honest.

(q). In order to sell his goods, A uses marks, labels or descriptions so closely resembling those used by B as to be likely to deceive buyers into thinking that they are actually buying B's goods. B may obtain an injunction to restrain the user, provided his own use of the marks, labels or descriptions be an honest one.

(r). A sells an article called "Mexican Balm", stating that it is compounded of divers rare essences, and has sovereign medicinal qualities. B commences to sell a similar article to which he gives a name and description such as to lead people into the belief that they are buying A's Mexican Balm. A sues B for an injunction to restrain the sale. B shows that A's Mexican Balm consists of nothing but scented hog's lard. A's use of his description is not an honest one and he cannot obtain an injunction.

(s). A trustee threatens a breach of trust. His co-trustees, if any, should and the beneficial owners may, obtain an injunction to prevent the breach.

(t). The directors of a public company are about to pay a dividend out of capital or borrowed money. Any of the shareholders may obtain an injunction to restrain them.

(u). The directors of a fire and life-insurance company are about to engage in marine insurances. Any of the shareholders may obtain an injunction to restrain them.

(v). A, an executor, through misconduct or insolvency, is bringing the property of the deceased into danger. The Court may grant an injunction to restrain him from getting in the assets.

(w). A, a tradesman, holds out B as his partner against the wish and without the authority of B. B may obtain an injunction to restrain A from so doing.

(x). A, a trustee for B, is about to make an imprudent sale of a small part of the trust-property. B may obtain an injunction to restrain the sale, even though compensation in money would have afforded him adequate relief.

(y). A makes a voluntary settlement of an estate on B and his children. A then contracts to sell the estate to C. B or any of his children may obtain an injunction to restrain the sale.

(z). In the course of A's employment as a vakíl, certain papers belonging to his client, B, come into his possession. A threatens to make these papers public, or to communicate their contents to a stranger. B may obtain an injunction to restrain A from so doing.

(aa). A mortgages lands to B with the usual power of sale. C and D then recove judgments against A. B exercises the power and threatens to part with the surplus-monies. As regards these, he is a trustee for A and those claiming under A. C and D may therefore obtain an injunction to restrain B from parting with the surplus.

(bb). A is B's medical adviser. He demands money of B which B declines to pay. A then threatens to make known the effect of B's communications to him as a patient. This is contrary to A's duty, and B may obtain an injunction to restrain him from so doing.

(cc). A, a very eminent man, writes letters on family-topics to B. After the death of A and B, C, who is B's residuary legatee, proposes to make money by publishing A's letters. D, who is A's executor, has a property in the letters, and can obtain an injunction to restrain C from publishing them.

(dd). A carries on a manufactory and B is his assistant. In the course of his business, A imparts to B a secret process of value. B afterwards demands money of A, threatening, in case of refusal, to disclose the process to C, a rival manufacturer. A can obtain an injunction to restrain B from disclosing the process as being a thing contrary to his duty.

Mandatory injunctions.

52. When, to prevent the breach of an obligation, it is necessary to compel the performance of certain acts which the Court is capable of enforcing, the Court may in its discretion grant an injunction to prevent the breach complained of, and also to compel performance of the requisite acts.

Illustrations.

(a). A, by new buildings, obstructs lights to the access and use of which B has acquired a right under the Indian Limitation Act, Part IV. B may obtain an injunction not only to restrain A from going on with the buildings, but also to pull down so much of them as obstructs B's lights.

(b). In the case put as illustration (bb) to section 51, the Court may also order all written communications made by B, as patient, to A, as physician, to be destroyed.

(c). In the case put as illustration (cc) to section 51, the Court may also order A's letters to be destroyed.

(d). In the cases put as illustrations (p), (q) and (r) to section 51, the Court may also order the copies produced by piracy, and the trademarks, labels and descriptions improperly used, by A to be destroyed.

Injunction when refused.

53. An injunction cannot be granted—

(a) to stay a judicial proceeding pending at the institution of the suit in which the injunction is sought, unless such restraint is necessary to prevent a multiplicity of proceedings:

(b) to stay proceedings in a Court superior to that from which the injunction is sought:

(c) to restrain persons from applying to any legislative body:

(d) to interfere with the public duties of any department of the Government of India or the Local Government, or with the sovereign acts of a foreign Government:

(e) to stay proceedings in any criminal matter:

(f) to prevent the breach of an agreement the performance of which would not be specifically enforced:

(g) to prevent, on the ground of nuisance, an act of which it is not reasonably clear that it will be a nuisance:

(h) to prevent a libel or other act, whether punishable by criminal law or not, which is not an invasion of the plaintiff's right to, or his enjoyment of, property, and is not inconsistent with any contract made by the defendant with the plaintiff, or with any special duty which the defendant owes to the plaintiff:

(i) to prevent a continuing breach in which the applicant has acquiesced:

(j) when equally efficacious relief can certainly be obtained by any other usual mode of proceeding, except in case of breach of trust:

(k) when the conduct of the applicant or his agents has been such as to disentitle him to the assistance of the Court:

(l) where the applicant has no personal interest in the matter.

Illustrations.

(a). A being B's neighbour, and having no other relations with him, threatens to publish a statement concerning B which would be punishable under chapter XXI of the Indian Penal Code. The Court cannot grant an injunction to restrain the publication, even though it may be injurious to B's property.

(b). A, being B's medical adviser, threatens to publish B's communications with him, showing that B has led an immoral life: B may obtain an injunction to restrain the publication.

(c). A applies for an injunction to restrain B from working mines under A's land. It appears that B has been working them with A's permission for eight years. The injunction should be refused.

(d). A seeks an injunction to restrain his partner, B, from receiving the partnership-debts and effects. It appears that A had improperly possessed himself of the books of the firm and refused B access to them. The Court will refuse the injunction.

(e). A manufactures and sells crucibles, designating them as "patent plumbago crucibles", though, in fact, they have never been patented. B pirates the designation. A cannot obtain an injunction to restrain the piracy.

Injunctions to perform negative agreement.

54. Notwithstanding section fifty-three, clause (f), where a contract comprises an affirmative agreement to do a certain act, coupled with a negative agreement express or implied not to do a certain act, the circumstance that the Court is unable to compel specific performance of the affirmative agreement, shall not preclude it from granting an injunction to perform the negative agreement; provided that the applicant has not failed to perform the contract so far as it is binding on him.

Illustrations.

(a). A agrees to sell to B for rupees 1,000 the good-will of a certain business unconnected with business-premises, and further agrees not to carry on that business in Calcutta. B pays A the rupees 1,000, but A carries on the business in Calcutta. The Court cannot compel A to send his customers to B, but B may obtain an injunction restraining A from carrying on the business in Calcutta.

(b). A agrees to sell to B the good-will of a business. A then sets up a similar business close by B's shop, and solicits his old customers to deal with him. This is contrary to his implied agreement, and B may obtain an injunction to restrain A from soliciting the customers, and from doing any act whereby their good-will may be withdrawn from B.

(c). A agrees with B to sing for twelve months at B's theatre and not to sing in public elsewhere. B cannot obtain specific performance of the agreement to sing, but he is entitled to an injunction restraining A from singing at any other place of entertainment.

(d). B agrees with A that he will serve him faithfully for twelve months as a clerk. A is not entitled to a decree for specific performance of this agreement. But he is entitled to an injunction restraining B from serving a rival-house as clerk.

(e). A agrees with B that, in consideration of rupees 1,000 to be paid to him by B on a day fixed, he will not set up a certain business within a specified distance. B fails to pay the money. A cannot be restrained from carrying on the business within the specified distance.

SCHEDULE.

(See section 2.)

Number and year.	Subject.	Extent of repeal.
VIII of 1859	Code of Civil Procedure ...	Secs. 15 and 192.
XIV of 1859	Limitation Act	Sec. 15.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill, which is intended as a supplement to the Code of Civil Procedure, as revised and published in March 1875, is to define and amend the law relating to specific and preventive relief.

2. Under the head of specific relief, it deals with suits for—

(a) the possession of specific property, moveable or immoveable,

(b) the specific performance of agreements,

(c) the rectification of instruments,

(d) the rescission of contracts,

(e) the cancellation of instruments,

(f) declaratory decrees, and

(g) the enforcement of public duties.

3. Under the head of preventive relief, it treats of perpetual injunctions.

4. The chapter relating to the recovery of possession of specific property embodies the English rules as to detinue, and the useful provision of the Indian Act, XIV of 1859, section 15, as to the right of persons informally dispossessed of land to recover possession by a summary suit. Words have been introduced to show expressly that this provision does not apply to lands claimed to belong to Government. This exemption in effect resulted from section 17 of Act XIV of 1859.

5. The matter of the chapter relating to specific performance is distributed under the following heads:—

(a) Agreements which may be specifically enforced:

(b) Agreements which cannot be specifically enforced:

(c) For whom agreements may be specifically enforced:

(d) Of the discretion of the Court:

(e) For whom agreements may not be specifically enforced:

(f) For whom agreements may not be specifically enforced, except with a variation:

(g) Against whom agreements may be specifically enforced:

(h) Against whom agreements may not be specifically enforced:

(i) The effect of dismissing a suit for specific performance.

It attempts to codify the English law on this subject with the following modifications:—

6. Subject to the negative rules afterwards set forth in this chapter, the Bill empowers the Courts to decree specific performance of any agreement when the parties have expressly agreed in writing that specific performance thereof may be required by either of them, or that damages shall not be considered adequate relief. This novel provision, taken from the New York Civil Code, is one of the means by which the Bill proposes to extend a useful jurisdiction, one, it may be remarked, peculiarly adapted to India, where the alternative remedy for a breach of contract, that, namely, of damages, is, owing to the poverty of the bulk of the population and the difficulty of executing money-decrees, often so utterly nugatory.

7. In England it has more than once been ruled that the Court of Chancery will not compel the performance of a continuous duty extending over many years. The Bill renders this doctrine more precise by declaring that an agreement, the performance of which necessarily involves the performance of continuous duties over a longer period than five years from its date, shall not be specifically enforced. Whether this is the best limit of time, will be a point for consideration before the Bill is passed.

8. With regard to specific performance of contracts to execute buildings or to cultivate lands, the Bill is intended to express the present law.

9. The rules as to when a contract for the sale of a married woman's estate will be specifically enforced are in England excessively complicated. The Bill makes no distinction in her case, and thus recognizes the principle embodied in the Indian Succession Act, section 4, and Act III of 1874.

10. In England a voluntary settlement of personal chattels is binding on the settlor and cannot be defeated by a subsequent sale. But it is otherwise in the case of freeholds, copyholds and leaseholds, and specific performance of a subsequent agreement to sell land may be enforced against the voluntary settlor and the parties claiming under the settlement, though not by the settlor. The Bill does not recognize this distinction (which is due to an artificial construction of 27 Eliz., c. 4), and treats land, in this respect, as if it were moveable property.

11. The absence in India of any enactments resembling the Statute of Frauds, sections 1, 3, 4 and 17, renders it unnecessary to embody in the Bill the intricate rules of the Court of Chancery as to when a parol agreement relating to land will, and when it will not, be specifically enforced.

12. It seems impossible to elicit a consistent doctrine from the English decisions as to the rights of a purchaser or lessee to specific performance with abatement or compensation when the title of the person agreeing to sell or lease is defective. The Bill lays down that only in one case can such relief be granted, namely, where the part of the agreement which must be left unperformed bears only a small proportion to the whole in value and admits of compensation in money. This will relieve the Courts from the exercise of a duty which, in many cases, must be more a matter of guesswork than of judicial discretion.

13. The right to enforce a contract specifically may, in England, be lost by delay in resorting to the Court, and a large mass of cases exists relating to this doctrine. The Bill contains no rules on the subject, for in India the provision of the Limitation Act (IX of 1871), schedule II, No. 113, that suits for specific performance must be brought within three years from the day on which the plaintiff has notice that performance is refused, renders the doctrine of laches inapplicable to this kind of litigation. See 2 Mad. High Court Rep. 114, 270.

14. It seems to be erroneously supposed by some of the Mofussil Judges that, when a contract is proved, the grant of a decree for its specific performance is a matter of course. Care has been taken in this chapter to show distinctly that the grant of such decrees is purely within the sound discretion of the Court.

15. As in this country all remedies on an agreement can be granted by one and the same Court, it is conceived that only one suit should lie on account of its non-performance. It has on this account been provided in section 28 that if a suit for specific performance is dismissed, no other suit shall be brought on the same agreement.

16. Chapter III, as to the rectification of instruments, chapter IV, as to the rescission of contracts and chapter V, as to the cancellation of instruments, require no special notice. They are taken, with a few verbal changes, from the New York Civil Code, and represent substantially the law on these subjects administered by English Courts of Equity.

17. Chapter VI, as to declaratory decrees, is intended to take the place of Act VIII of 1859, section 15, and differs from the English law on the subject principally in authorising the Court to make declarations of future rights, provided only that such rights are vested. In the absence of such a jurisdiction, it would seem to be necessary to authorise suits to perpetuate testimony, and there are obvious reasons why such suits should not be allowed in India.

18. Chapter VII deals with the subject of mandamus, and applies only to the Presidency High Courts. Care has been taken to exempt from orders under this chapter the Secretary of State in Council, the Government of India, and the Local Governments.

19. In Part III are contained some general rules as to when perpetual injunctions will, and when they will not, be granted. The chief modifications of the present law which the Bill proposes to make are as follows:—

20. By the Bill, the Courts are expressly given power to grant injunctions to do substantive acts, when such injunctions are necessary to prevent the breach of an obligation. In England, the same thing is partially effected by the indirect method of making orders, called mandatory injunctions, to refrain from leaving a thing undone.

21. Under the Bill, an injunction to restrain a partner may be obtained without seeking a dissolution of the partnership, even when the partnership is determinable at will. In England the rule on this subject is still unsettled.

22. In England a married executrix will, as a rule, be restrained from getting in the assets if her husband be out of the jurisdiction, or a lunatic. The reason is that the husband, and he alone, is liable for a devastavit committed by his wife. The Indian Succession Act, sections 4 and 275, appears to relieve husbands of this liability, and the Bill accordingly contains no provision on the subject.

23. It is hardly necessary to observe that, in a country where law and equity are administered by the same Courts, the subject of staying legal proceedings need not be dealt with at much length. The provisions of the Bill relating to this matter are contained in section 56, clause (c), illustration (m), and in section 57, clauses (a) and (b), which relate to injunctions necessary to prevent a multiplicity of suits.

24. It may, in conclusion, be remarked that most of the many illustrations contained in the Bill are taken from the English Equity Reports.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Government of India is a shareholder in the Banks of Bengal and Madras, and it appoints certain of the directors, and may vote by proxy at the meetings of the proprietors.

The Government has, however, determined to sell its shares and to surrender its powers of appointing directors and voting. As those powers are conferred by Acts of Indian legislatures, and as some of the arrangements connected with the sale are beyond the powers of the directors, the present Bill is necessary.

The opportunity has been taken to repeal the present law on the subject, to consolidate the Acts relating to the Banks of Bengal and Madras, and to incorporate the New Bank of Bombay, Limited.

At the same time the Bill proposes to make certain changes, of which the following are the principal:—

(a). The capital of the Bank of Bengal will be reduced from Rs. 22,000,000 to Rs. 20,000,000, and that of the Bank of Madras from Rs. 5,625,000 to Rs. 5,062,500.

(b). The capital of those two Banks, which is now divided into shares of Rs. 1,000 each, will be divided into shares of only Rs. 500 each.

(c). The kinds of business which the Banks may transact are increased in number. They are empowered to lend upon the security of debentures of Indian municipalities, on goods the documents of title to which are assigned to the Banks as security, and on negotiable securities which, under the provisions of the proposed Act, may be discounted. They may also lend to the Governor General in Council without any specific security. On the other hand, they are expressly forbidden to make loans for a longer period than three months; to make unsecured loans to the same person or firm for more than six lákhs of rupees; to discount any negotiable security, payable where it is presented for discount, which does not carry on it the several responsibilities of at least two persons or firms unconnected in general partnership; or to discount negotiable securities having a longer period to run than three months, except in the case of the Bank of Madras, which may discount such securities payable in Ceylon and running for four months.

The Banks, as constituted by the proposed Act, will still be empowered to act as bankers for the Government of India; and though the Government will cease to have any direct pecuniary concern in the Banks, the interests of the public are so largely involved in their careful management, that it has been thought right to provide (a) that the capital of the Banks shall not be increased or diminished without the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council; (b) that the Governor General in Council in the case of each of the three Banks, the Local Government in the case of the Banks of Madras and Bombay, shall be entitled to require information touching the affairs of the Bank and the publication of statements of assets and liabilities; and (c) that the previous approval of the Government of India shall be required to validate bye-laws.

And it shall come into force three months after the passing thereof.

Repeal of enactments.

3. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context,—

Interpretation-clause.

'discretion' means a sound and reasonable discretion, exercised according to the rules for the time being in force in the Courts of Civil Judicature:

'discretion.'

'obligation' includes every duty the breach of which is punishable by law:

'obligation.'

'agreement' includes also an award and an obligation constructively created by operation of law:

'agreement.'

'trust' includes every species of express, implied, or constructive fiduciary ownership:

'trust.'

'trustee.'

Illustrations.

(a). Z bequeaths land to A, 'not doubting that he will pay thereout an annuity of Rs. 1,000 to B for his life.' A is a trustee within the meaning of this Act for B to the extent of the annuity.

(b). A is the legal, medical, or spiritual adviser of B. A gains some pecuniary advantage by availing himself of his situation as such adviser. A is a trustee within the meaning of this Act of such advantage.

(c). A, being B's banker, discloses for his own purposes the state of B's account. A is a trustee within the meaning of this Act of the benefit gained by him by means of such disclosure.

(d). A, the mortgagee of certain leaseholds, renews the lease in his own name. A is a trustee within the meaning of this Act of the renewed lease.

(e). A, one of several partners, is employed to purchase goods for the firm. A, unknown to his co-partners, supplies them, at the market-price, with goods previously bought by himself when the price was lower, and thus makes a considerable profit. A is a trustee within the meaning of this Act of the profit so made.

(f). A buys certain land with notice that B has already contracted to buy it. A is a trustee within the meaning of this Act of the land so bought.

(g). A buys land from B, having notice that C is in occupation of the land. A omits to make any inquiry as to the nature of C's interest therein. A is a trustee within the meaning of this Act to the extent of that interest.

'settlement' means any instrument (other than a will or codicil) whereby the destination or devolution of moveable or immoveable property is settled or agreed to be settled.

'settlement.'

4. Except so far as they are embodied in this Act, the provisions of the law of England shall not be applicable to the kinds of relief hereinafter mentioned.

English law how far inapplicable.

Except where it is herein otherwise expressly enacted, nothing in this Act shall be deemed—

(a) to give any right to relief in respect of any agreement which, according to the general law applicable to contracts, is not a valid contract: or

(b) to deprive any person of any right to relief other than specific performance which, according to the same law, he may have under any contract.

5. Specific relief is given—

Specific relief how given.

(a) by taking possession of certain property and delivering it to a claimant;

(b) by ordering a party to do the very act which he is under an obligation to do;

(c) by prohibiting a party from doing that which he is under an obligation not to do; or

(d) by declaring and determining the rights of parties otherwise than by an award of compensation.

6. Relief granted under clause (c) of section five is called preventive relief.

Preventive relief.

7. Specific or preventive relief cannot be granted for the mere purpose of enforcing a penal law.

Purposes for which relief cannot be given.

PART II.
OF SPECIFIC RELIEF.

CHAPTER I.
OF RECOVERING POSSESSION OF PROPERTY.

(a).—Possession of Immoveable Property.

8. A person entitled to specific immoveable property may recover it in the manner prescribed by the Code of Civil Procedure.

Recovery of specific immoveable property.

9. If any person is dispossessed without his consent of immoveable property otherwise than in due course of law, he or any person claiming through him may, by suit instituted within six months from the date of the dispossession, recover possession thereof, notwithstanding any other title that may be set up in such suit.

Suit by person dispossessed of immoveable property.

Nothing in this section shall bar any person from suing to establish his title to such property and to recover possession thereof.

Nothing in this section applies to immoveable property claimed to belong to the Crown.

(b).—Possession of Moveable Property.

10. A person entitled to the immediate possession of specific moveable property may recover the same in the manner prescribed by the Code of Civil Procedure.

Recovery of specific moveable property.

EXPLANATION 1.—A trustee may sue under this section for the possession of property to the beneficial interest in which another is entitled.

EXPLANATION 2.—A special or temporary right to the present possession of property is sufficient to support a suit under this section.

Illustrations.

(a). A bequeaths land to B for his life, with remainder to C. A dies. B enters on the land, but C, without B's consent, obtains possession of the title deeds. B may recover them from C.

(b). A pledges certain jewels to B to secure a loan. B disposes of them before he is entitled to do so. A, without having paid or tendered the amount of the loan, sues B for possession of the jewels. The suit should be dismissed, as A is not entitled to their possession, whatever right he may have to secure their safe custody.

(c). A receives a letter addressed to him by B. B gets back the letter without A's consent. A has such a property therein as entitles him to recover it from B.

(d). A deposits books and papers for safe custody with B. B loses them and C finds them, but refuses to deliver them to B when demanded. B may recover them from C, subject to C's right, if any, under section 168 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872.

(e). A, a warehouse-keeper, is charged with the delivery of certain goods to Z, which B takes out of A's possession. A may sue B for the goods.

Liability of person in possession, not as owner, to deliver to person entitled to immediate possession.

(a) when the thing claimed is held by the defendant as the agent or trustee of the claimant;

(b) when compensation in money would not afford the claimant adequate relief for the loss of the thing claimed;

(c) when it would be extremely difficult to ascertain the actual damage caused by its loss.

Illustrations.

(a). A, proceeding to Europe, leaves his furniture in charge of B as his agent during his absence. B, without A's authority, pledges the furniture to C, and C, knowing that B had no right to pledge the furniture, advertises it for sale. C may be compelled to deliver the furniture to A, for he holds it as A's trustee.

(b). A, a colliery-owner, keeps for the purpose of his business fifty coal-wagons. A sells B 50,000 tons of coal and lets to him the wagons to convey the coal. B, without A's authority, pledges the wagons to C, who threatens to sell them immediately. C may be compelled to deliver the wagons to A, for they are necessary for conducting his business, and their loss would cause him an injury for which money would not be an adequate compensation.

(c). A is entitled to a picture by a dead painter and a pair of rare China vases. B has possession of them. The articles are of too special a character to bear an ascertainable market-value. B may be compelled to deliver them to A.

CHAPTER II.

OF THE SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF AGREEMENTS.

(a). Agreements which may be specifically enforced.

Cases in which specific performance enforceable

12. Except as otherwise provided in this chapter, the specific performance of any agreement may in the discretion of the Court be enforced—

(a) when it has been expressly agreed in writing between the parties to the agreement that specific performance thereof may be required by either party, or that compensation in money shall not be considered adequate relief for its non-performance:

(b) when the act agreed to be done is in the performance, wholly or partly, of a trust:

(c) when there exists no standard for ascertaining the actual damage caused by the non-performance of the act agreed to be done: or

(d) when the act agreed to be done is such that pecuniary compensation for its non-performance would not afford adequate relief:

(e) when it is probable that pecuniary compensation cannot be got for the non-performance of the act agreed to be done.

EXPLANATION.—Unless and until the contrary is shewn, it is to be presumed that the breach of an agreement to transfer immoveable property cannot be adequately relieved by compensation in money, and that the breach of an agreement to transfer moveable property can be thus relieved.

Illustrations.

(a). A holds certain stock in trust for B. A wrongfully disposes of the stock. The law creates an obligation on A to restore the same quantity of stock to B, and B may enforce specific performance of this obligation.

(b). A sells 500 tons of iron stacked on his wharf to B, in consideration of a bill accepted by C, and undertakes in writing to deliver the iron to bearer, he (A) 'having been paid for the same.' B mortgages the iron to D. The bill is dishonoured. A refuses to deliver the iron. A holds the iron as a trustee for D, and D may compel him specifically to perform his agreement.

(c). A agrees to buy, and B agrees to sell, a picture by a dead painter and two rare China vases. The articles are of too special a character to bear an ascertainable market-value. A may compel B specifically to perform this agreement, for it would be extremely difficult to ascertain the actual damage caused by its non-performance.

(d). A transfers without endorsement, but for valuable consideration, a note to B. A becomes insolvent, and C is appointed his assignee. B may compel C to endorse the note, for C has succeeded to A's liabilities, and a decree for pecuniary compensation for not endorsing the note would be fruitless.

(e). A, B and C agree to enter into partnership for a definite term under the style of A & Co. A refuses to carry out the agreement. B and C may compel A to join them in executing a proper partnership-deed, for the interest of B and C in the performance of the agreement cannot be adequately compensated for by money.

(f). A agrees with B to sell him a house for Rs. 1,000. B is entitled to a decree directing A to convey the house to him, he paying the purchase-money.

(g). In consideration of being released from certain obligations imposed on it by its Act of incorporation, a railway company agree with Z to make and maintain an archway through their railway to connect lands of Z severed by the railway, to construct a road between certain specified points, to pay a certain annual sum towards the maintenance of this road, and also to construct and maintain a siding and a wharf as specified in the agreement. Z is entitled to have this agreement specifically enforced, for his interest in its performance cannot be adequately compensated for by money; and the Court may appoint a proper person to superintend the construction of the archway, road, siding and wharf.

(h). A agrees to sell, and B agrees to buy, a certain number of railway-shares of a particular description. A refuses to complete the purchase. B may compel A specifically to perform this agreement, for the shares are limited in number and not always to be had in the market, and their possession carries with it the status of a shareholder, which cannot otherwise be procured.

(i). A agrees with B to paint a picture for B, who agrees to pay therefor rupees 1,000. The picture is painted. B is entitled to have it delivered to him on payment or tender of the rupees 1,000.

(j). A advances Rs. 10,000 to B, and B agrees to execute a mortgage of certain houses 'with an immediate power of sale' to secure the repayment of the advance. A requires B either to pay off the advance at once or to execute the mortgage. B refuses. A is entitled to have the agreement specifically performed.

Mutual rights of parties.

13. When either of the parties to an agreement is entitled to a specific performance thereof according to the provisions of section twelve, the other party is also entitled to it, though not within those provisions.

Illustration.

A agrees to sell, and B agrees to buy, a patent for 10,000 rupees. B declines to complete the purchase. Here, though pecuniary compensation for its non-performance might afford A adequate relief, A may enforce the agreement specifically, for, if he had declined to complete it, B would have been entitled to a specific performance thereof.

Specific performance of part of an agreement where the part unperformed is small.

14. Where a party to an agreement is unable to perform the whole of the agreement, but the part which must be left unperformed bears only a small proportion to the whole in value, and admits of compensation in money, the Court may, at the suit of either party, direct the specific performance of so much of the agreement as can be performed, and award compensation in money for the deficiency.

Illustrations.

(a). A agrees to sell B a piece of land consisting of 100 bíghás. It turns out that 98 bíghás of the land belong to A, and the two remaining bíghás to a stranger, who refuses to part with them. The two bíghás are not necessary for the use or enjoyment of the 98 bíghás, and the loss of them may be made good in money. A may be directed at the suit of B to convey to B the 98 bíghás and to make compensation to him for not conveying the two remaining bíghás; or B may be directed, at the suit of A, to pay to A on receiving the conveyance and possession of the land, the stipulated purchase-money, less a sum awarded as compensation for the deficiency.

(b). In a contract for the sale and purchase of a house and lands for two lákhs of rupees it is agreed that part of the furniture should be taken at a valuation. The Court may direct specific performance of the contract notwithstanding the parties are unable to agree as to the valuation of the furniture, and may either have the furniture valued in the suit and include it in the decree for specific performance, or may confine its decree to the house.

Specific performance of part of an agreement where the part unperformed is large.

15. Where a party to an agreement is unable to perform the whole of the agreement and the part which must be left unperformed forms a considerable portion of the whole, or does not admit of compensation in money, the party in default is not entitled to obtain a decree for specific performance. But the Court may, at the suit of the other party, direct the party in default to perform specifically so much of the agreement as he can perform, provided that the party seeking specific performance relinquishes all claim to further performance, and all right to compensation, either for the deficiency, or for the loss or damage sustained by him through the default of the other party.

Illustrations.

(a). A agrees to sell to B a piece of land consisting of 100 bíghás. It turns out that 50 bíghás of the land belong to A, and the other 50 bíghás to a stranger, who refuses to part with them. A cannot obtain a decree against B for the specific performance of the contract; but if B is willing to pay the price agreed upon, and to take the 50 bíghás which belong to A, waiving all right to compensation either for the deficiency or for loss sustained by him through A's neglect or default, B is entitled to a decree directing A to convey those 50 bíghás to him on payment of the purchase-money.

(b). A agrees to sell to B an estate with a house and garden for 1,00,000 rupees. It turns out that A is unable to convey the garden. A cannot obtain a decree against B for the specific performance of the contract; but if B is willing to pay the price agreed upon, and to take the estate and house without the garden, waiving all right to compensation either for the deficiency or for loss sustained by him through A's neglect or default, B is entitled to a decree, directing A to convey the house to him on payment of the purchase-money.

Bar in other cases of specific performance of part of agreement.

16. Except in cases coming under one or other of the two last preceding sections, it is not competent for the Court to direct the specific performance of a part of an agreement.

Purchaser's rights against vendor with imperfect title.

17. Where a person agrees to sell or let certain property, having only an imperfect title thereto, the purchaser or lessee (except as otherwise provided by this chapter) has the following rights:—

(a) if the vendor or lessor has subsequently acquired any interest in the property, the purchaser or lessee may compel him to make good the agreement out of such interest;

(b) where the concurrence of other persons is necessary to validate the title, and they are bound to convey at the vendor's or lessor's request, the purchaser or lessee may compel him to procure such concurrence;

(c) where the vendor professes to sell uncumbered property, but the property is mortgaged for an amount not exceeding the purchase-money, and the vendor has in fact only a right to redeem it, the purchaser may compel him to redeem the mortgage and obtain a conveyance from the mortgagee;

(d) where the vendor or lessor sues for specific performance of the agreement, and the suit is dismissed on the ground of his imperfect title, the defendant has a right to a return of his deposit (if any) with interest thereon, to the costs of the suit, and to a lien for such deposit, interest and costs on the property agreed to be sold or let.

Power to award compensation in certain cases.

18. Any person suing for the specific performance of an agreement, may also ask for compensation for its breach, either in addition to, or in substitution for, such performance.

If in any such suit the Court decides that specific performance ought not to be granted, but that there is a valid agreement between the parties which has been broken by the defendant and that the plaintiff is entitled to compensation for that breach, it shall award him compensation accordingly.

If in any such suit the Court decides that specific performance ought to be granted, but that it is not sufficient to satisfy the justice of the case, and that some compensation for breach of the agreement should also be made to the plaintiff, it shall award him such compensation accordingly.

Compensation awarded under this section may be assessed in such manner as the Court may direct.

EXPLANATION.—The circumstance that the agreement has become incapable of specific performance does not preclude the Court from exercising the jurisdiction conferred by this section.

Illustrations.

(a). A, a purchaser, sues B, his vendor, for specific performance of an agreement for the sale of a patent. Before the hearing of the suit, the patent expires. The Court may award A compensation for the non-performance of the agreement.

(b). A agrees with B to sell him a house for Rs. 1,000 the price to be paid and the possession given on the 1st January 1876. A fails to perform his part of the agreement, and B brings his suit for specific performance, which is decided in his favour on the 1st January 1877. The decree may, besides ordering specific performance, award to B compensation for any loss or damage which he has sustained by A's refusal.

(c). A sues for the specific performance of a resolution passed by the directors of a public company, under which he was entitled to have a certain number of shares allotted to him. All the shares had been allotted before the institution of the suit. The Court may, under this section, award A compensation for the non-performance.

(d). A contracts to sell a hundred maunds of rice to B. B brings a suit to compel A to perform the agreement or to pay compensation. The Court is of opinion that A has made a valid contract and has broken it without excuse to the injury of B, but that specific performance is not the proper remedy. It shall award to B such compensation as it deems just.

Liquidation of damages not a bar to specific performance.

19. An agreement, otherwise proper to be specifically enforced, may be thus enforced, though a sum be named in the agreement as the amount to be paid in case of its breach, and the party in default is willing to pay the same.

Illustration.

A agrees to grant B an underlease of property held by A under C, and covenants that if C refuses to grant a license necessary for that purpose, A will pay B Rs. 10,000. A refuses to apply for the license and offers to pay B the Rs. 10,000. B is nevertheless entitled to have the agreement specifically enforced.

(b). Agreements which cannot be specifically enforced.

Agreements not specifically enforcible.

20. The following agreements cannot be specifically enforced:—

(a) an agreement for the breach of which compensation could not be recovered;

(b) an agreement for the non-performance of which compensation in money is an adequate relief, and which does not come within section twelve, clause (a);

(d) an agreement which is in its nature revocable;

(e) an agreement entered into by trustees either in excess of their powers or in breach of their trust;

(f) an agreement entered into by or on behalf of a corporation or public company created for special purposes, or by the promoters of such company, which is in excess of its powers;

(g) an agreement the performance of which involves the performance of a continuous duty extending over a longer period than five years from its date;

(h) an agreement to submit a controversy to arbitration.

Illustrations.

To (a).—A agrees in consideration of Rs. 500 to obtain an office under the Crown for B. This agreement cannot be specifically enforced.

A, a banker holding bills as a security for advances to B, takes a guarantee from B's brother, C, that the loss to the bank should not exceed Rs. 20,000. This transaction took place after B had commenced proceedings for the liquidation of his affairs and unknown to his other creditors with a view to prevent A from opposing a composition. The guarantee cannot be specifically enforced, as the transaction would have the effect of giving A an undue advantage over B's other creditors.

A, a military pensioner of Government, in consideration of Rs. 500, agrees to assign to B all future payments in respect of his pension. This agreement cannot be specifically enforced.

A husband and wife, professing the Christian religion, enter into an agreement providing for their future separation. This agreement cannot be specifically enforced.

A agrees to grant B a lease of a certain house. The length of the term to be granted is not stated, nor the date at which it is to commence. This agreement cannot be specifically enforced.

A agrees with B to take from B a lease of a certain house for a specified term, at a specified rent, "if the drawing-room is handsomely decorated." This agreement cannot be specifically enforced.

Z, a resident in Calcutta, agrees, as trustee for B, a resident in Australia, to sell to C an annuity to which B is entitled for his life. The day before the date of the agreement B had died. Z cannot enforce this agreement.

A, the lessee of a house much out of repair, agrees to sell the lease to B. Before the sale, A receives from his landlord a notice of re-entry in default of the premises being repaired. A does not communicate this notice to B, who enters and is ejected in consequence of the non-repair. A cannot enforce the agreement against B.

A, the owner of a patent, agrees to sell it to B. B institutes a suit to compel specific performance of this agreement. Before the suit is heard the patent expires. Specific performance of the agreement cannot be compelled.

On A's marriage with B, A's father, C, agrees with B's father, D, to settle certain lands on A and his children by B. D sues C to enforce specific performance of this agreement. C proves that the agreement was conditional on D settling a lákh of rupees on A and his children by B, and that D had not settled such lákh accordingly. The suit must be dismissed.

A, an author, agrees with B, a publisher, to complete a literary work, and dies before doing so. The agreement requiring A's personal skill and taste is discharged by his death, and B cannot enforce its performance as against A's representative.

A, a shoemaker, agrees with B to receive B's son as an apprentice for a term of years and teach him shoemaking. A dies before the expiration of the term. B cannot enforce performance of the agreement.

A and B enter into an agreement to become partners for a term and afterwards agree to rescind it.

A agrees to buy B's business at the amount of a valuation to be made by two valuers, one to be named by A and the other by B. A and B each name a valuer, but before the valuation is made A instructs his valuer not to proceed.

A agrees to buy certain houses in Calcutta, and before the completion of the agreement becomes insolvent. A's assignee, in exercise of his option under the Indian Insolvent Act, abandons the agreement.

In none of these cases can the agreement be specifically enforced.

To (b).—A agrees to sell, and B agrees to buy, a lákh of rupees in the four per cent. loan of the Government of India.

A agrees to sell, and B agrees to buy, 40 chests of indigo at Rs. 1,000 per chest.

In consideration of certain property having been transferred by A to B, B agrees to open a credit in A's favour to the extent of Rs. 10,000, and to honour A's drafts to that amount.

These agreements cannot be specifically enforced, for, in the first and the second both A and B, and in the third A, would be reimbursed by compensation in money.

To (c).—A agrees to render personal service to B.

A agrees to employ B on personal service.

By a charter party entered into in Calcutta between A, the owner of a ship, and B, the charterer, it is agreed that the ship shall proceed to Rangoon, and there load a cargo of rice, and thence proceed to London, freight to be paid, one-third on arrival at Rangoon, and two-thirds on delivery of the cargo in London.

These agreements cannot be specifically performed.

A lets land to B and B agrees to cultivate it in a particular manner for three years next after the date of the lease. A is not entitled to have this agreement specifically performed.

A and B agree that in consideration of annual advances to be made by A, B will for three years next after the date of the agreement grow particular crops on the land in his possession, and deliver them to A when cut and ready for delivery. A is not entitled to have this agreement specifically performed.

A agrees with B that in consideration of Rs. 1,000 to be paid to him by B, he will paint a picture for B.

A agrees with B to execute certain works which the Court cannot superintend.

A agrees to supply B with all the goods of a certain class which B may require.

These agreements cannot be specifically enforced.

To (d).—A and B agree to become partners in a certain business, the agreement not specifying the duration of the proposed partnership. This agreement cannot be specifically performed, for, if it were so performed, either A or B might at once dissolve the partnership.

To (e).—A is a trustee of land with power to lease it for seven years. He enters into an agreement with B to grant a lease of the land for seven years, with a covenant to renew the lease at the expiry of the term. This agreement cannot be specifically enforced.

The directors of a company have power to sell the concern with the sanction of a general meeting of the shareholders. They contract to sell it without any such sanction. This contract cannot be specifically enforced.

Two trustees, A and B, empowered to sell trust-property worth a lákh of rupees, agree to sell it to C for Rs. 30,000. The agreement is so disadvantageous as to be a breach of trust. C cannot enforce its specific performance.

The promoters of a company for working mines agree that the company, when formed, shall purchase certain mineral property. They take no proper precautions to ascertain the value of such property and in fact agree to pay an extravagant price therefor. They also stipulate that the vendors shall give them a bonus out of the purchase-money. This contract cannot be specifically enforced.

To (f).—A railway company contracts for the purchase of a piece of land for the purpose of erecting a cotton-mill thereon. This contract cannot be specifically enforced.

To (g).—A agrees to let for twenty-one years to B the right to use such part of a certain railway made by A as was upon B's land, and that B should have a right of running carriages over the whole line on certain terms, and might require A to supply the necessary engine-power, and that A should during the term keep the whole railway in good repair. Specific performance of this contract must be refused to B.

(c). Of the Discretion of the Court.

21. The jurisdiction to decree specific performance is discretionary, and the Court is not bound to grant such relief, merely because it is lawful to do so; but the discretion of the Court is not arbitrary but sound and reasonable, guided by judicial principles and capable of correction by a Court of appeal.

Discretion as to decreeing specific performance.

The following are cases in which the Court may properly exercise a discretion not to decree specific performance:—

I. Where, though it is clear that an agreement has been made and broken, the Court cannot find, with reasonable certainty, what are the terms of the agreement of which specific performance is sought.

Illustration.

(a). A, the owner of a refreshment-room, agrees with B to give him accommodation there for the sale of his goods and to furnish him with the necessary appliances. A refuses to perform his agreement. The case is one for compensation and not for specific performance, the amount and nature of the accommodation and appliances being undefined.

II. Where the circumstances under which the agreement is made are such as to give the plaintiff an unfair advantage over the defendant, though there may be no fraud or misrepresentation on the plaintiff's part.

Illustrations.

(b). A tenant for life of certain property assigns his interest therein to B. C agrees to buy, and B agrees to sell, that interest. Before the contract is completed, A receives a mortal injury from the effects of which he dies the day after the contract is completed. If B and C were equally ignorant or equally aware of the fact, B is entitled to specific performance. If B knew the fact and C did not, specific performance should be refused to B.

(c). A agrees to sell to B the interest of C in certain stock-in-trade. It is stipulated that the sale shall stand good, even though it should turn out that C's interest is worth nothing. In fact the value of C's interest depends on the result of certain partnership-accounts, on which he is heavily in debt to his partners. This indebtedness is known to A, but not to B. Specific performance of the agreement should be refused to A.

(d). A agrees to sell, and B agrees to buy, certain land. To protect the land from floods, it is necessary for its owner to maintain an expensive embankment. B does not know of this circumstance, and A industriously conceals it from him. Specific performance should be refused to B.

(e). A's property is put up to auction in one lot. B requests C, A's attorney, to bid for him. C does this inadvertently and in good faith. The persons present seeing the vendor's attorney bidding, think that he is a mere puffer and cease to compete. The lot is knocked down to B at a low price. Specific performance should be refused to B.

(f). A contracts with B who at the time is intoxicated. Specific performance should be refused to A.

III. Where the performance of the agreement would involve some hardship on the defendant which he did not foresee, whereas no such hardship would fall on the plaintiff if the agreement was not performed.

Illustrations.

(g). A is entitled to some land under his father's will on condition that, if he sells it within twenty-five years, half the purchase-money shall go to B. A, forgetting the condition, agrees, before the expiration of the twenty-five years, to sell the land to C. Here, the enforcement of the agreement would operate so harshly on A, that the Court will not compel its specific performance in favour of C.

(h). A and B, trustees, join their beneficiary, C, in an agreement to sell the trust-estate to D, and personally agree to exonerate the estate from heavy incumbrances to which it is subject. The purchase-money is not nearly enough to discharge those incumbrances, though, at the date of the agreement, the vendors believed it to be sufficient. Specific performance of the agreement should be refused to D.

(i). A, the owner of an estate, agrees to sell it to B, and stipulates that he, A, shall not be obliged to define its boundary. The estate really comprises a valuable property not known to either to be part of it. Specific performance of the agreement should be refused to B unless he waives his claim to the unknown property.

(j). A agrees with B to sell him certain land, and to make a road to it from a certain railway-station. It is found afterwards that A cannot make the road without exposing himself to litigation. Specific performance of the part of the agreement relating to the road should be refused to B, though he may be entitled to specific performance of the rest with compensation for loss of the road.

(k). A, a lessee of mines, agrees with B, his lessor, that at any time during the continuance of the lease B may give notice of his desire to take the machinery and plant used in and about the mines, and that he shall have the articles specified in his notice delivered to him at a valuation on the expiry of the lease. Such a contract might be most injurious to the lessee's business, and specific performance should be refused to B.

(l). A agrees to buy certain land from B. The agreement is silent as to access to the land. No right of way to it can be shown to exist. Specific performance of the contract should be refused to B.

(m). A agrees with B to buy from B's manufactory and not elsewhere all the goods of a certain class used by A in his trade. The Court cannot compel B to supply the goods, but if he does not supply them, A may be ruined unless he is allowed to buy them elsewhere. Specific performance of the agreement should be refused to B.

IV. The circumstance that the plaintiff has done substantial acts or suffered losses in consequence of an agreement susceptible of specific performance is one which the Court may reasonably consider in exercising its discretion to grant specific performance of such agreement.

Illustration.

A sells land to a railway company who agree to execute certain works for his convenience. The company take the land and use it for their railway. Specific performance of the agreement to execute the works should be awarded in favour of A.

(d.) For whom Agreements may be specifically enforced.

22. Except as otherwise provided by this chapter, the specific performance of an agreement may be obtained by—

Who may obtain specific performance.

(a) any party thereto:

(b) the representative in interest, or the principal, of any party thereto: provided that, where the learning, skill, solvency or any personal quality of such party is a material ingredient in the agreement, or where the agreement provides that his interest shall not be assigned, his representative in interest or principal shall not be entitled to specific performance of the agreement:

(c) where the agreement is a settlement on marriage, any person beneficially entitled thereunder:

(d) where the agreement has been entered into by a tenant for life in due exercise of a power, the remainderman:

(e) a reversioner in possession, where the agreement is a covenant entered into with his predecessor in title and the reversioner is entitled to the benefit of such covenant:

(f) a reversioner in remainder, where the agreement is such a covenant, and the reversioner is entitled to the benefit thereof and will sustain material injury by reason of its breach:

(g) when a public company has entered into an agreement and subsequently becomes amalgamated with another public company, the new company which arises out of the amalgamation:

(h) when the promoters of a public company have, before its incorporation, entered into an agreement for the purposes of the company, and such agreement is warranted by the terms of the incorporation, the company.

(e). For whom Agreements cannot be specifically enforced.

23. An agreement for the sale or letting of property cannot be specifically enforced in favour of a vendor or lessor—

Agreement to sell property by one who has no title or who is a voluntary settlor.

(a) who, knowing himself not to have any title to the property, has agreed to sell or let the same;

(b) who, though he entered into the agreement believing that he had a good title to the property, cannot at the time fixed by the parties or by the Court for the completion of the sale or letting give the purchaser or lessee a title free from reasonable doubt;

(c) who, previous to entering into the agreement, has made a voluntary settlement of the subject-matter thereof.

Illustrations.

(a). A agrees to sell to B an estate which A knows to belong to C. A cannot enforce specific performance of this agreement, even though C is willing to confirm it.

(b). A bequeaths his land to trustees, declaring that they should not sell it without the consent in writing of his sons and daughters. A dies. Then one of his daughters dies. The trustees then enter into an agreement with B to sell him the land. B refuses to carry out the agreement. The trustees cannot specifically enforce this agreement, as the title which they can give B is not free from reasonable doubt.

(c). A makes a voluntary settlement of certain property on his brothers and their issue, and afterwards enters into an agreement to sell the property to a stranger. A cannot enforce specific performance of this agreement so as to override the settlement and thus prejudice the interests of the persons claiming under it.

24. Specific performance of an agreement cannot be enforced in favour of a party—

Personal bars to the relief.

(a) who could not recover compensation for its breach;

(b) who has become incapable of performing, or violates, any essential term of the agreement that on his part remains to be performed; or

(c) who has already chosen his remedy and obtained satisfaction for the alleged breach of contract;

(d) who, previously to entering into the agreement, had notice that a voluntary settlement of the subject-matter thereof had been made and was then in force.

Illustrations.

(a). A agrees to sell B a house and to become tenant thereof for a term of 14 years from the date of the sale at a specified yearly rent. A becomes insolvent. Neither he nor his assignee can enforce specific performance of the agreement. Neither can B, although he might recover compensation from A's assignee for breach of the agreement.

(b). A agrees to sell B a house and garden in which there are ornamental trees, a material element in the value of the property as a residence. A without B's consent fells the trees. A cannot enforce specific performance of the agreement.

(c). A, holding land under an agreement with B for a lease, commits waste, or treats the land in an unhusbandlike manner. A cannot enforce the agreement.

(d). A agrees to let, and B agrees to take, an unfinished house, B agreeing to finish the house and the lease to contain covenants on the part of A to keep the house in repair. B finishes the house in a very defective manner: he cannot enforce the agreement, though A and B may sue each other for compensation for breach of the agreement.

(e). A agrees to let, and B agrees to take, a house for a specified term at a specified rent. B refuses to perform the agreement. A thereupon sues for and obtains compensation for the breach of contract. A cannot obtain specific performance of the agreement.

(f). For whom Agreements cannot be specifically enforced except with a variation.

25. Where a plaintiff seeks specific performance of an agreement in writing, to which the defendant sets up a variation, the plaintiff cannot obtain the performance sought except with the variation so set up, in the following cases (namely):—

Non-enforcement except with variation.

(a) where by fraud or mistake of fact the agreement of which performance is sought is in terms different from that which the defendant supposed it to be when he entered into it;

(b) where by fraud, mistake of fact, or surprise the defendant entered into the agreement under a reasonable misapprehension as to its effect as between himself and the plaintiff;

(c) where the defendant, knowing the terms of the agreement and understanding its effect, has entered into it relying upon some misrepresentation by the plaintiff, or upon some stipulation on the plaintiff's part, which goes to vary the agreement, but which he refuses to fulfil;

(d) where the parties have varied the agreement subsequently to its execution.

Illustrations.

(a). A, B and C sign a writing by which each agrees to enter into a bond to D for Rs. 1,000. In a suit by D, to make A, B and C separately liable each to the extent of Rs. 1,000, they prove that the word 'each' was inserted by mistake; that the intention was that they should give a joint bond for Rs. 1,000. A can obtain the performance sought only with the variation thus set up.

(b). A sues B to compel specific performance of an agreement in writing to buy a dwelling-house. B proves that he assumed that the agreement included an adjoining yard, and the agreement was so framed as to leave it doubtful whether the yard was so included or not. The Court will refuse to enforce the agreement, except with the variation set up by B.

(c). A agrees in writing to let to B a wharf, together with a strip of A's land delineated in a map. Before signing the agreement, B proposed orally that he should be at liberty to substitute for the strip mentioned in the agreement another strip of A's land of the same dimensions, and to this A expressly assented. B then signed the written agreement. A cannot obtain specific performance of the written agreement except with the variation set up by B.

(d). A agrees in writing to let a house to B, for a certain term, at the rent of Rs. 100 per month, putting it first into tenantable repair. The house turns out to be not worth repairing, so with B's consent A pulls it down and erects a new house in its place: B agreeing orally to pay rent at Rs. 120 per mensem. B then sues to compel specific performance of the agreement in writing. He cannot enforce it except with the variations made by the subsequent oral agreement.

(g). Against whom Agreements may be specifically enforced.

26. Except as otherwise provided by this chapter, specific performance of an agreement may be enforced against—

Relief against parties and persons claiming under them by subsequent title.

(a) either party thereto;

(b) any other person claiming under him by a title arising subsequently to the agreement, except a transferee for value, who has paid his money in good faith and without notice of the original agreement;

(c) any person claiming under a title which, though prior to the agreement, and known to the plaintiff, might have been displaced by the defendant;

(d) when a public company has entered into an agreement, and subsequently becomes amalgamated with another public company, the new company which arises out of the amalgamation;

(e) when the promoters of a public company have, before its incorporation, entered into an agreement, the company: provided that the company has ratified and adopted the agreement and the agreement is warranted by the terms of the incorporation.

Illustrations.

(a). A agrees to convey certain land to B by a particular day. A dies intestate before that day without having conveyed the land. B may compel A's heir or other representative in interest to perform the agreement specifically.

(b). A agrees to sell certain land to B for Rs. 5,000. A afterwards conveys the land for Rs. 6,000 to C, who has notice of the original agreement. B may enforce specific performance of the agreement as against C.

(c). A agrees to sell land to B for Rs. 5,000. B takes possession of the land. Afterwards A sells it to C for Rs. 6,000. C makes no enquiry of B relating to his interest in the land. B's possession is sufficient to affect C with notice of his interest, and he may enforce the agreement against C.

(d). A agrees in consideration of Rs. 1,000 to bequeath certain of his lands to B. Immediately after the agreement A dies intestate, and C takes out administration to his estate. B may enforce the agreement against C.

(e). A agrees to sell certain land to B. Before the completion of the agreement, A becomes a lunatic and C is appointed his committee. B may specifically enforce the agreement against C.

(f). A, the tenant for life of an estate, with remainder to B, in due exercise of a power conferred by the settlement under which he is tenant for life, agrees to sell the estate to C, who has notice of the settlement. Before the sale is completed, A dies. C may enforce specific performance of the agreement against B.

(g). A and B are joint tenants of land, his undivided moiety of which either may alien in his lifetime, but which, subject to that right, devolves on the survivor. A agrees to sell his moiety to C and dies. C may enforce specific performance of the agreement against B.

(h). Against whom Agreements cannot be specifically enforced.

27. Specific performance of an agreement cannot be enforced against a party thereto in any of the following cases:—

What parties cannot be compelled to perform.

(a) if the consideration to be received by him is so grossly inadequate, with reference to the state of things existing at the date of the agreement, as to be either by itself or coupled with other circumstances evidence of fraud or of undue advantage taken by the plaintiff;

(b) if his assent was obtained by the misrepresentation (whether wilful or innocent), concealment, circumvention, or unfair practices, of any party to whom performance would become due under the contract, or by any promise of such party which has not been substantially fulfilled;

(c) if his assent was given under the influence of mistake of fact, misapprehension or surprise: Provided that, when the agreement provides for compensation in case of mistake, compensation may be made for a mistake within the scope of such provision, and the agreement may be specifically enforced in other respects if proper to be so enforced.

Illustrations.

(a). A, one of two executors, in the erroneous belief that he had the authority of his co-executor, enters into an agreement for the sale to B of his testator's property. B cannot insist on the sale being completed.

(b). A directs an auctioneer to sell certain land. A afterwards revokes the auctioneer's authority as to 20 bighás of this land, but the auctioneer inadvertently sells the whole to B, who has not notice of the revocation. B cannot enforce specific performance of the agreement.

(i). The Effect of dismissing a Suit for Specific Performance.

28. The dismissal of a suit for specific performance of an agreement shall bar the plaintiff's right to sue for the breach of such agreement.

Bar of suit for breach after dismissal.

OF THE RECTIFICATION OF INSTRUMENTS.

29. When through fraud or a mutual mistake of the parties, a contract or other instrument in writing does not truly express the intention of the parties, the Court, on finding it clearly proved—

When instrument may be rectified.

(a) that there has been fraud or mistake in framing the instrument, and

(b) that the intention of the parties in executing the instrument was as alleged by the plaintiff, may in its discretion rectify the instrument, so as to express that intention, so far as it can be done without prejudice to rights acquired by third persons, in good faith and for value.

Illustrations.

(a). A, intending to sell to B his house and one of three godowns adjacent to it, executes a conveyance prepared by B, in which, through B's fraud, all three godowns are included.

Of the two godowns which were fraudulently included, B gives one to C and lets the other to D for a rent, neither C nor D having any knowledge of the fraud.

The conveyance may, as against B and C, be rectified so as to exclude from it the godown given to C; but it cannot be rectified so as to affect D's lease.

(b). By a marriage-settlement, A, the father of B, the intended wife, covenanted with C, the intended husband, to pay to C, his executors, administrators and assigns, during A's life, an annuity of Rs. 5,000. C dies insolvent and the official assignee claims the annuity from A. The Court, on finding it clearly proved that the parties always intended that this annuity should be paid as a provision for B and her children, may rectify the settlement, and decree that the assignee has no right to any part of the annuity.

30. For the purpose of rectifying a contract in writing, it must be presumed that all the parties thereto intended to make an equitable and conscientious agreement.

Presumption as to intent of parties.

31. In rectifying a written instrument, the Court may inquire what the instrument was intended to mean, and what were intended to be its legal consequences, and is not confined to the inquiry what the language of the instrument was intended to be.

Principles of rectification.

32. A contract in writing may be first rectified and then, if the plaintiff has so prayed in his plaint and the Court thinks fit, specifically enforced.

Specific enforcement of rectified contract.

Illustration.

A agrees in writing to pay his attorney, B, a fixed sum in lieu of costs.

The agreement contains mistakes as to the name and rights of the client, which, if construed strictly, would have excluded B from all rights under the agreement. B is entitled, if the Court thinks fit, to have it rectified, and to an order for payment of the sum, as if at the time of its execution it had expressed the intention of the parties.

CHAPTER IV.

OF THE RESCISSION OF CONTRACTS.

When rescission may be adjudged.

33. Any person interested in a contract in writing may sue to have it rescinded, and such rescission may be adjudged by the Court, in any of the following cases, namely:—

(a) where the contract is voidable or terminable by the plaintiff;

(b) where the contract is unlawful for causes not apparent on its face, and the defendant is more to blame than the plaintiff;

(c) where a decree for specific performance of a contract of sale, or of a contract to take a lease, has been made, and the purchaser or lessee makes default in payment of the purchase-money or other sums which the Court has ordered him to pay.

EXPLANATION.—In the case mentioned in clause (c) of this section, when the purchaser or lessor is in possession of the subject-matter, the Court may also order him to pay to the vendor or lessor the rents and profits, if any, received by him, together with the costs occasioned by the non-completion of the purchase or lease.

Illustration.

To (b)—A, an attorney, induces B, his client, to transfer property to him for the purpose of defrauding B's creditors. Here the parties are not equally in fault, and B is entitled to have the instrument of transfer rescinded.

Rescission for mistake.

34. Rescission of a contract in writing cannot be adjudged for mere mistake, unless the party against whom it is adjudged can be restored to substantially the same position as if the contract had not been made.

Alternative prayer for rescission in suit for specific performance.

35. A plaintiff instituting a suit for the specific performance of a contract in writing may pray in the alternative that, if the contract cannot be enforced, it may be rescinded and delivered up to be cancelled.

Court may require party rescinding to do equity.

36. On adjudging the rescission of a contract, the Court may require the party to whom such relief is granted to make any compensation to the other which justice may require.

CHAPTER V.

OF THE CANCELLATION OF INSTRUMENTS.

When cancellation may be ordered.

37. Any person having reasonable apprehension that a written instrument, if left outstanding, may cause serious injury to a person against whom it is void or voidable, may sue to have it so adjudged, and the Court may, in its discretion, so adjudge it and order it to be delivered up and cancelled.

Illustrations.

(a). A, the owner of a ship, by fraudulently representing her to be seaworthy, induces B, an underwriter, to insure her. B may obtain the cancellation of the policy.

(b). A conveys land to B, who bequeaths it to C and dies. Thereupon, D gets possession of the land, and produces a forged instrument stating that the conveyance was made to B in trust for him. C may obtain the cancellation of the forged instrument.

(c). A, representing that the tenants on his land were all at will, sells it to B, and conveys it to him by an instrument dated the 1st January 1875. Soon after that day, A fraudulently grants to C a lease of part of the lands, dated the 1st October 1874. B may obtain the cancellation of this lease.

(d). A agrees to sell and deliver a ship to B, to be paid for by B's acceptances of four bills of exchange, for sums amounting to Rs. 10,000, to be drawn by A on B. The bills are drawn and accepted, but the ship is not delivered according to the agreement. A sues B on one of the bills. B may obtain the cancellation of all the bills.

What instruments may be partially cancelled.

38. Where an instrument is evidence of different rights or different obligations, the Court may, in a proper case, cancel it in part and allow it to stand for the residue.

Illustration.

A draws a bill on B, who endorses it to C, by whom it appears to be endorsed to D, who endorses it to E. C's endorsement is forged. C is entitled to have such endorsement cancelled, leaving the bill to stand as regards A, B, D and E.

Power to require party for whom instrument is cancelled to make compensation.

39. On adjudging the cancellation of an instrument, the Court may require the party to whom such relief is granted to make any compensation to the other which justice may require.

CHAPTER VI.

OF DECLARATORY DECREES.

Discretion of Court as to declarations of status or right.

40. Any person entitled to any legal character, or to any future right as to any property, may institute a suit against any person denying, or interested to deny, his title to such character or right, and the Court may in its discretion make therein a declaration that he is so entitled, and the plaintiff need not in such suit ask for any further relief.

EXPLANATION.—A trustee of property is a person interested to deny a title adverse to the title of some one who is not in existence, and for whom, if in existence, he would be a trustee.

Bar to such declaration.

Provided that no Court shall make any such declaration in any of the following cases:—

(a) where the right as to which the declaration is sought is contingent, or may never arise;

(b) where the plaintiff is in possession of the right which he seeks to have declared;

(c) where the right respecting which the declaration is sought could be enforced by ordinary suit.

EXPLANATION.—The presumptive right of a Hindú to property, if he survive the widow of a sonless Hindú, is not within clause (a) of the above proviso.

Illustrations.

(a). A bequeaths his property to B, C and D, "to be equally divided amongst all and each of them, if living at the time of my death, then amongst their surviving children." No such children are in existence. In a suit against A's executor, the Court may declare whether B, C and D took the property absolutely, or only for their lives, but it may not declare the interests of the children before their rights are vested.

(b). A covenants that if he should at any time be entitled to property exceeding one lákh of rupees, he will settle it upon certain trusts. Before any such property accrues, or any persons entitled under the trusts are ascertained, he institutes a suit to obtain a declaration that the covenant is void for uncertainty. The Court cannot make the declaration.

(c). The widow of a sonless Hindú alienates part of the property of which she is in possession as such. The person presumptively entitled to possess the property if he survive her, may, in a suit against the alienee, obtain a declaration that the alienation was made without legal necessity and was therefore void beyond the widow's life-time.

(d). A Hindú widow in possession of property adopts a son to her deceased husband. The person presumptively entitled to possession of the property on her death without a son may, in a suit against the adopted son, obtain a declaration that the adoption was invalid.

(e). A is in possession of certain property. B, alleging that he is the owner of the property, requires A to deliver it to him. This alone is not enough to entitle A to a declaration of his right to hold the property.

(f). A bequeaths property to B for his life, with remainder to B's wife and her children, if any, by B, but if B die without any wife or children, to C. B has a putative wife, D, and children, but C denies that B and D were ever lawfully married. D and her children may, in B's life-time, institute a suit against C and obtain therein a declaration that they are truly the wife and children of B.

Effect of declaration.

41. A declaration made under this chapter is binding only on the parties to the suit, persons claiming through them respectively, and, where any of the parties are trustees, on the persons for whom, if in existence, such parties would be trustees.

Illustration.

A, a Hindú, in a suit to which B, his alleged wife, and her mother are defendants, seeks a declaration that his marriage was duly solemnized and an order for the restitution of his conjugal rights. The Court makes the declaration and order. C, claiming that B is his wife, then sues A for the recovery of B. The declaration made in the former suit is not binding upon C.

CHAPTER VII.

OF THE ENFORCEMENT OF PUBLIC DUTIES.

Power to order public servants and others to do certain specific acts.

42. Any of the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William, Madras and Bombay may, on application, make an order requiring any specific act to be done by any person holding a public office of a permanent nature, or by any corporation or inferior Court of Judicature: provided—

(a) that such act is clearly incumbent on such person or Court in his or its public character, or on such corporation in its corporate character;

(b) that, in the opinion of the High Court, such act is consonant to right and justice;

(c) that the applicant has no other specific and adequate legal remedy; and

(d) that the remedy given by the order applied for will be complete.

Exemptions from such power.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize any High Court—

(e) to make any order binding on the Secretary of State for India in Council, on the Governor General in Council, on the Governor of Madras in Council, on the Governor of Bombay in Council, or on the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal; or

(f) to make any order on any other servant of the Crown, as such, merely to enforce the satisfaction of a claim upon the Crown.

Application how made.

Procedure thereon.

43. Every application under section forty-two must be founded on an affidavit of the party injured, stating his right in the matter in question, his demand of justice and the denial thereof; and the High Court may, in its discretion, either make the order applied for absolute in the first instance, or refuse it and grant a rule to show cause why the order applied for should not be made.

Order in alternative.

If, in the latter case, the party complained of shows no sufficient cause, the High Court may first make an order in the alternative, either to do the act required, or to signify some reason to the contrary and make an answer thereto by such day as the High Court fixes in this behalf.

Peremptory order.

44. If the person to whom such order is directed makes no answer, or makes an insufficient or a false answer, the High Court may then issue a peremptory order to do the act absolutely.

Execution of, and appeal from, orders.

45. Every order under this chapter shall be executed, and may be appealed from, as if it were a decree made in the exercise of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court.

Costs.

46. The costs of all applications and orders under this chapter shall be in the discretion of the High Court.

Bar to issue of mandamus.

47. Neither the High Court nor any Judge thereof shall hereafter issue any writ of mandamus.

Power to frame rules.

48. Each of the said High Courts shall, as soon as conveniently may be, frame rules to regulate the procedure under this chapter; and until such rules are framed, the practice of such Court as to applications for and grants of writs of mandamus shall apply, so far as may be practicable, to applications and orders under this chapter.

PART III.

OF PREVENTIVE RELIEF.

CHAPTER VIII.

OF INJUNCTIONS GENERALLY.

Preventive relief how granted.

49. Preventive relief is granted at the discretion of the Court by injunction, temporary or perpetual.

Temporary injunctions.

50. Temporary injunctions are such as are to continue until a specified time. They may be granted at any period of a suit, and are regulated by the Code of Civil Procedure.

Perpetual injunctions.

A perpetual injunction can only be granted by the decree made at the hearing and upon the merits of the suit: the defendant is thereby perpetually enjoined from the assertion of a right, or from the commission of an act, which would be contrary to the rights of the plaintiff.

CHAPTER IX.

OF PERPETUAL INJUNCTIONS.

Perpetual injunctions when granted.

51. Subject to the other provisions contained in, or referred to by, this chapter, a perpetual injunction may be granted to prevent the breach of an obligation existing in favour of the applicant, whether express or implied.

When such obligation arises from contract, the Court shall be guided by the rules and provisions contained in chapter II of this Act.

When such obligation arises from an actual or threatened invasion by the defendant of the plaintiff's right to, or enjoyment of, property, the Court may grant a perpetual injunction in the following cases (namely)—

(a) where the parties have expressly agreed in writing that, in case of such invasion, a perpetual injunction may be granted:

(b) where there exists no standard for ascertaining the actual damage caused by the invasion:

(c) where the invasion is such that pecuniary compensation would not afford adequate relief:

(d) where it is probable that pecuniary compensation cannot be got for the invasion:

(e) where the injunction is necessary to prevent a multiplicity of judicial proceedings:

(f) where the obligation arises from a trust.

Illustrations.

(a). A lets certain land to B, and B agrees not to dig sand or gravel thereout. A may obtain an injunction to restrain B from digging in violation of his agreement.

(b). A, the owner of two adjoining houses, lets one to B and afterwards lets the other to C. A and C begin to make such alterations in the house let to C as will prevent the comfortable enjoyment of the house let to B. B may obtain an injunction to restrain them from doing so.

(c). A lets certain arable lands to B for purposes of husbandry, but without any express agreement as to the mode of cultivation. Contrary to the mode of cultivation customary in the district, B threatens to sow the lands with seed injurious thereto and requiring many years to eradicate. A may obtain an injunction to restrain B from sowing the lands in contravention of his implied agreement to use them in a husbandlike manner.

(d). A, B and C are partners, the partnership being determinable at will. A threatens to do an act tending to the destruction of the partnership-property. B and C may, without seeking a dissolution of the partnership, obtain an injunction to restrain A from doing the act.

(e). A, a Hindú widow in possession of her deceased husband's property, commits destruction of the property without any cause sufficient to justify her in so doing. The heir expectant may obtain an injunction to restrain her.

(f). A, B and C are members of an undivided Hindú family. A cuts timber growing on the family-property, and threatens to destroy part of the family-house and to sell some of the family-utensils. B and C may obtain an injunction to restrain him.

(g). A, the owner of certain houses in Calcutta, becomes insolvent. B buys them from the official assignee and enters into possession. A persists in trespassing on and damaging the houses, and B is thereby compelled, at considerable expense, to employ men to protect the possession. B may obtain an injunction to restrain further acts of trespass.

(h). The inhabitants of a village claim a right of way over A's land. In a suit against several of them, A obtains a declaratory decree that his land is subject to no such right. Afterwards each of the other villagers sues A for obstructing his alleged right of way over the land. A may obtain an injunction to restrain them.

(i). A, in an administration-suit to which a creditor, B, is not a party, obtains a decree for the administration of C's assets. B proceeds against C's estate for his debt. A may obtain an injunction to restrain B.

(j). A and B are in possession of contiguous lands and of the mines underneath them. A works his mine so as to extend under B's mine and threatens to remove certain pillars which help to support B's mine. B may obtain an injunction to restrain him from so doing.

(k). A rings bells or makes some other unnecessary noise so near a house as to interfere materially and unreasonably with the physical comfort of the occupier, B. B may obtain an injunction restraining A from making the noise.

(l). A pollutes the air with smoke so as to interfere materially with the physical comfort of B and C, who carry on business in a neighbouring house. B and C may obtain an injunction to restrain the pollution.

(m). A builds a house with eaves projecting over B's land. B may obtain an injunction to prevent A from so doing.

(n). A infringes B's patent. If the Court is satisfied that the patent is valid and has been infringed, B may obtain an injunction to restrain the infringement.

(o). A pirates B's copyright. B may obtain an injunction to restrain the piracy, unless the work of which copyright is claimed is libellous or obscene.

(p). A improperly uses the trademark of B. B may obtain an injunction to restrain the user, provided that B's use of the trademark is honest.

(q). In order to sell his goods, A uses marks, labels or descriptions so closely resembling those used by B as to be likely to deceive buyers into thinking that they are actually buying B's goods. B may obtain an injunction to restrain the user, provided his own use of the marks, labels or descriptions be an honest one.

(r). A sells an article called "Mexican Balm", stating that it is compounded of divers rare essences, and has sovereign medicinal qualities. B commences to sell a similar article to which he gives a name and description such as to lead people into the belief that they are buying A's Mexican Balm. A sues B for an injunction to restrain the sale. B shows that A's Mexican Balm consists of nothing but scented hog's lard. A's use of his description is not an honest one and he cannot obtain an injunction.

(s). A trustee threatens a breach of trust. His co-trustees, if any, should and the beneficial owners may, obtain an injunction to prevent the breach.

(t). The directors of a public company are about to pay a dividend out of capital or borrowed money. Any of the shareholders may obtain an injunction to restrain them.

(u). The directors of a fire and life-insurance company are about to engage in marine insurances. Any of the shareholders may obtain an injunction to restrain them.

(v). A, an executor, through misconduct or insolvency, is bringing the property of the deceased into danger. The Court may grant an injunction to restrain him from getting in the assets.

(w). A, a tradesman, holds out B as his partner against the wish and without the authority of B. B may obtain an injunction to restrain A from so doing.

(x). A, a trustee for B, is about to make an imprudent sale of a small part of the trust-property. B may obtain an injunction to restrain the sale, even though compensation in money would have afforded him adequate relief.

(y). A makes a voluntary settlement of an estate on B and his children. A then contracts to sell the estate to C. B or any of his children may obtain an injunction to restrain the sale.

(z). In the course of A's employment as a vakil, certain papers belonging to his client, B, come into his possession. A threatens to make these papers public, or to communicate their contents to a stranger. B may obtain an injunction to restrain A from so doing.

(aa). A mortgages lands to B with the usual power of sale. C and D then recover judgments against A. B exercises the power and threatens to part with the surplus-monies. As regards these, he is a trustee for A and those claiming under A. C and D may therefore obtain an injunction to restrain B from parting with the surplus.

(bb). A is B's medical adviser. He demands money of B which B declines to pay. A then threatens to make known the effect of B's communications to him as a patient. This is contrary to A's duty, and B may obtain an injunction to restrain him from so doing.

(cc). A, a very eminent man, writes letters on family-topics to B. After the death of A and B, C, who is B's residuary legatee, proposes to make money by publishing A's letters. D, who is A's executor, has a property in the letters, and can obtain an injunction to restrain C from publishing them.

(dd). A carries on a manufactory and B is his assistant. In the course of his business, A imparts to B a secret process of value. B afterwards demands money of A, threatening, in case of refusal, to disclose the process to C, a rival-manufacturer. A can obtain an injunction to restrain B from disclosing the process as being a thing contrary to his duty.

Mandatory injunctions.

52. When, to prevent the breach of an obligation, it is necessary to compel the performance of certain acts which the Court is capable of enforcing, the Court may in its discretion grant an injunction to prevent the breach complained of, and also to compel performance of the requisite acts.

Illustrations.

(a). A, by new buildings, obstructs lights to the access and use of which B has acquired a right under the Indian Limitation Act, Part IV. B may obtain an injunction not only to restrain A from going on with the buildings, but also to pull down so much of them as obstructs B's lights.

(b). In the case put as illustration (bb) to section 51, the Court may also order all written communications made by B, as patient, to A, as physician, to be destroyed.

(c). In the case put as illustration (cc) to section 51, the Court may also order A's letters to be destroyed.

(d). In the cases put as illustrations (p), (q) and (r) to section 51, the Court may also order the copies produced by piracy, and the trademarks, labels and descriptions improperly used, by A to be destroyed.

Injunction when refused.

53. An injunction cannot be granted—

(a) to stay a judicial proceeding pending at the institution of the suit in which the injunction is sought, unless such restraint is necessary to prevent a multiplicity of proceedings:

(b) to stay proceedings in a Court superior to that from which the injunction is sought:

(c) to restrain persons from applying to any legislative body:

(d) to interfere with the public duties of any department of the Government of India or the Local Government, or with the sovereign acts of a foreign Government:

(e) to stay proceedings in any criminal matter:

(f) to prevent the breach of an agreement the performance of which would not be specifically enforced:

(g) to prevent, on the ground of nuisance, an act of which it is not reasonably clear that it will be a nuisance:

(h) to prevent a libel or other act, whether punishable by criminal law or not, which is not an invasion of the plaintiff's right to, or his enjoyment of, property, and is not inconsistent with any contract made by the defendant with the plaintiff, or with any special duty which the defendant owes to the plaintiff:

(i) to prevent a continuing breach in which the applicant has acquiesced:

(j) when equally efficacious relief can certainly be obtained by any other usual mode of proceeding, except in case of breach of trust:

(k) when the conduct of the applicant or his agents has been such as to disentitle him to the assistance of the Court:

(l) where the applicant has no personal interest in the matter.

Illustrations.

(a). A being B's neighbour, and having no other relations with him, threatens to publish a statement concerning B which would be punishable under chapter XXI of the Indian Penal Code. The Court cannot grant an injunction to restrain the publication, even though it may be injurious to B's property.

(b). A, being B's medical adviser, threatens to publish B's communications with him, showing that B has led an immoral life: B may obtain an injunction to restrain the publication.

(c). A applies for an injunction to restrain B from working mines under A's land. It appears that B has been working them with A's permission for eight years. The injunction should be refused.

(d). A seeks an injunction to restrain his partner, B, from receiving the partnership-debts and effects. It appears that A had improperly possessed himself of the books of the firm and refused B access to them. The Court will refuse the injunction.

(e). A manufactures and sells crucibles, designating them as "patent plumbago crucibles", though, in fact, they have never been patented. B pirates the designation. A cannot obtain an injunction to restrain the piracy.

Injunctions to perform negative agreement.

54. Notwithstanding section fifty-three, clause (f), where a contract comprises an affirmative agreement to do a certain act, coupled with a negative agreement express or implied not to do a certain act, the circumstance that the Court is unable to compel specific performance of the affirmative agreement, shall not preclude it from granting an injunction to perform the negative agreement; provided that the applicant has not failed to perform the contract so far as it is binding on him.

Illustrations.

(a). A agrees to sell to B for rupees 1,000 the good-will of a certain business unconnected with business-premises, and further agrees not to carry on that business in Calcutta. B pays A the rupees 1,000, but A carries on the business in Calcutta. The Court cannot compel A to send his customers to B, but B may obtain an injunction restraining A from carrying on the business in Calcutta.

(b). A agrees to sell to B the good-will of a business. A then sets up a similar business close by B's shop, and solicits his old customers to deal with him. This is contrary to his implied agreement, and B may obtain an injunction to restrain A from soliciting the customers, and from doing any act whereby their good-will may be withdrawn from B.

(c). A agrees with B to sing for twelve months at B's theatre and not to sing in public elsewhere. B cannot obtain specific performance of the agreement to sing, but he is entitled to an injunction restraining A from singing at any other place of entertainment.

(d). B agrees with A that he will serve him faithfully for twelve months as a clerk. A is not entitled to a decree for specific performance of this agreement. But he is entitled to an injunction restraining B from serving a rival-house as clerk.

(e). A agrees with B that, in consideration of rupees 1,000 to be paid to him by B on a day fixed, he will not set up a certain business within a specified distance. B fails to pay the money. A cannot be restrained from carrying on the business within the specified distance.

SCHEDULE.

(See section 2.)

Number and year.	Subject.	Extent of repeal.
VIII of 1859	Code of Civil Procedure ...	Secs. 15 and 192.
XIV of 1859	Limitation Act	Sec. 15.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill, which is intended as a supplement to the Code of Civil Procedure, as revised and published in March 1875, is to define and amend the law relating to specific and preventive relief.

2. Under the head of specific relief, it deals with suits for—

(a) the possession of specific property, moveable or immoveable,

(b) the specific performance of agreements,

(c) the rectification of instruments,

(d) the rescission of contracts,

(e) the cancellation of instruments,

(f) declaratory decrees, and

(g) the enforcement of public duties.

3. Under the head of preventive relief, it treats of perpetual injunctions.

4. The chapter relating to the recovery of possession of specific property embodies the English rules as to detinue, and the useful provision of the Indian Act, XIV of 1859, section 15, as to the right of persons informally dispossessed of land to recover possession by a summary suit. Words have been introduced to show expressly that this provision does not apply to lands claimed to belong to Government. This exemption in effect resulted from section 17 of Act XIV of 1859.

5. The matter of the chapter relating to specific performance is distributed under the following heads:—

(a) Agreements which may be specifically enforced:

(b) Agreements which cannot be specifically enforced:

(c) For whom agreements may be specifically enforced:

(d) Of the discretion of the Court:

(e) For whom agreements may not be specifically enforced:

(f) For whom agreements may not be specifically enforced, except with a variation:

(g) Against whom agreements may be specifically enforced:

(h) Against whom agreements may not be specifically enforced:

(i) The effect of dismissing a suit for specific performance.

It attempts to codify the English law on this subject with the following modifications:—

6. Subject to the negative rules afterwards set forth in this chapter, the Bill empowers the Courts to decree specific performance of any agreement when the parties have expressly agreed in writing that specific performance thereof may be required by either of them, or that damages shall not be considered adequate relief. This novel provision, taken from the New York Civil Code, is one of the means by which the Bill proposes to extend a useful jurisdiction, one, it may be remarked, peculiarly adapted to India, where the alternative remedy for a breach of contract, that, namely, of damages, is, owing to the poverty of the bulk of the population and the difficulty of executing money-decrees, often so utterly nugatory.

7. In England it has more than once been ruled that the Court of Chancery will not compel the performance of a continuous duty extending over many years. The Bill renders this doctrine more precise by declaring that an agreement, the performance of which necessarily involves the performance of continuous duties over a longer period than five years from its date, shall not be specifically enforced. Whether this is the best limit of time, will be a point for consideration before the Bill is passed.

8. With regard to specific performance of contracts to execute buildings or to cultivate lands, the Bill is intended to express the present law.

9. The rules as to when a contract for the sale of a married woman's estate will be specifically enforced are in England excessively complicated. The Bill makes no distinction in her case, and thus recognizes the principle embodied in the Indian Succession Act, section 4, and Act III of 1874.

10. In England a voluntary settlement of personal chattels is binding on the settlor and cannot be defeated by a subsequent sale. But it is otherwise in the case of freeholds, copyholds and leaseholds, and specific performance of a subsequent agreement to sell land may be enforced against the voluntary settlor and the parties claiming under the settlement, though not by the settlor. The Bill does not recognize this distinction (which is due to an artificial construction of 27 Eliz., c. 4), and treats land, in this respect, as if it were moveable property.

11. The absence in India of any enactments resembling the Statute of Frauds, sections 1, 3, 4 and 17, renders it unnecessary to embody in the Bill the intricate rules of the Court of Chancery as to when a parol agreement relating to land will, and when it will not, be specifically enforced.

12. It seems impossible to elicit a consistent doctrine from the English decisions as to the rights of a purchaser or lessee to specific performance with abatement or compensation when the title of the person agreeing to sell or lease is defective. The Bill lays down that only in one case can such relief be granted, namely, where the part of the agreement which must be left unperformed bears only a small proportion to the whole in value and admits of compensation in money. This will relieve the Courts from the exercise of a duty which, in many cases, must be more a matter of guesswork than of judicial discretion.

13. The right to enforce a contract specifically may, in England, be lost by delay in resorting to the Court, and a large mass of cases exists relating to this doctrine. The Bill contains no rules on the subject, for in India the provision of the Limitation Act (IX of 1871), schedule II, No. 113, that suits for specific performance must be brought within three years from the day on which the plaintiff has notice that performance is refused, renders the doctrine of laches inapplicable to this kind of litigation. See 2 Mad. High Court Rep. 114, 270.

14. It seems to be erroneously supposed by some of the Mofussil Judges that, when a contract is proved, the grant of a decree for its specific performance is a matter of course. Care has been taken in this chapter to show distinctly that the grant of such decrees is purely within the sound discretion of the Court.

15. As in this country all remedies on an agreement can be granted by one and the same Court, it is conceived that only one suit should lie on account of its non-performance. It has on this account been provided in section 28 that if a suit for specific performance is dismissed, no other suit shall be brought on the same agreement.

16. Chapter III, as to the rectification of instruments, chapter IV, as to the rescission of contracts and chapter V, as to the cancellation of instruments, require no special notice. They are taken, with a few verbal changes, from the New York Civil Code, and represent substantially the law on these subjects administered by English Courts of Equity.

17. Chapter VI, as to declaratory decrees, is intended to take the place of Act VIII of 1859, section 15, and differs from the English law on the subject principally in authorising the Court to make declarations of future rights, provided only that such rights are vested. In the absence of such a jurisdiction, it would seem to be necessary to authorise suits to perpetuate testimony, and there are obvious reasons why such suits should not be allowed in India.

18. Chapter VII deals with the subject of mandamus, and applies only to the Presidency High Courts. Care has been taken to exempt from orders under this chapter the Secretary of State in Council, the Government of India, and the Local Governments.

19. In Part III are contained some general rules as to when perpetual injunctions will, and when they will not, be granted. The chief modifications of the present law which the Bill proposes to make are as follows:—

20. By the Bill, the Courts are expressly given power to grant injunctions to do substantive acts, when such injunctions are necessary to prevent the breach of an obligation. In England, the same thing is partially effected by the indirect method of making orders, called mandatory injunctions, to refrain from leaving a thing undone.

21. Under the Bill, an injunction to restrain a partner may be obtained without seeking a dissolution of the partnership, even when the partnership is determinable at will. In England the rule on this subject is still unsettled.

22. In England a married executrix will, as a rule, be restrained from getting in the assets if her husband be out of the jurisdiction, or a lunatic. The reason is that the husband, and he alone, is liable for a devastavit committed by his wife. The Indian Succession Act, sections 4 and 275, appears to relieve husbands of this liability, and the Bill accordingly contains no provision on the subject.

23. It is hardly necessary to observe that, in a country where law and equity are administered by the same Courts, the subject of staying legal proceedings need not be dealt with at much length. The provisions of the Bill relating to this matter are contained in section 56, clause (c), illustration (m), and in section 57, clauses (a) and (b), which relate to injunctions necessary to prevent a multiplicity of suits.

24. It may, in conclusion, be remarked that most of the many illustrations contained in the Bill are taken from the English Equity Reports.

SCHEDULE.

A Bill for constituting and regulating the Banks of Bengal, Madras and Bombay.

Preamble.

WHEREAS the Bank of Bengal is now constituted and regulated by Act No. IV of 1862, as amended by Acts No. VI of 1862 and No. XIX of 1870, and its capital consists of twenty-two millions of rupees, in shares of one thousand rupees each;

And whereas the Bank of Madras is now constituted and regulated by Madras Act No. VI of 1866, as amended by Madras Act No. I of 1871, and its capital consists of five millions six hundred and twenty-five thousand rupees, in shares of one thousand rupees each;

And whereas a Bank named the Bank of Bombay was constituted and regulated by Bombay Act No. X of 1863, as amended by Bombay Acts No. XV of 1866 and No. I of 1867; but such Bank has been wound up and the said Bombay Acts are now obsolete and should be expressly repealed;

And whereas on the tenth day of December 1867, a joint-stock Banking Company was registered and incorporated at Bombay, by virtue of the Indian Companies' Act, 1866, under the name of "The New Bank of Bombay, Limited," with a Memorandum of Association and Articles of Association then also registered, and prescribing the constitution and regulations for the management of such Bank;

And whereas the Government of India now holds two thousand two hundred shares in the said Bank of Bengal, and five hundred and sixty-two and a half shares in the said Bank of Madras; and, under the provisions of the said Acts, No. IV of 1862 and Madras Act No. VI of 1866, is bound to appoint, and has power to remove, certain of the directors of the said Banks of Bengal and Madras respectively, and has also power to give a proxy to any person whom the Governor General in Council may appoint, to attend and vote at any meeting of the proprietors of each of the same Banks;

And whereas the Government of India has determined to sell its said shares and to surrender its said powers; and it is expedient to relieve the said Government from the said duty of appointing directors, and to repeal the said enactments and to consolidate such of them as relate to the said Banks of Bengal and Madras respectively with the changes rendered necessary or desirable by such sale, surrender and relief;

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Government of India is a shareholder in the Banks of Bengal and Madras, and it appoints certain of the directors, and may vote by proxy at the meetings of the proprietors.

The Government has, however, determined to sell its shares and to surrender its powers of appointing directors and voting. As those powers are conferred by Acts of Indian legislatures, and as some of the arrangements connected with the sale are beyond the powers of the directors, the present Bill is necessary.

The opportunity has been taken to repeal the present law on the subject, to consolidate the Acts relating to the Banks of Bengal and Madras, and to incorporate the New Bank of Bombay, Limited.

At the same time the Bill proposes to make certain changes, of which the following are the principal:—

(a). The capital of the Bank of Bengal will be reduced from Rs. 22,000,000 to Rs. 20,000,000, and that of the Bank of Madras from Rs. 5,625,000 to Rs. 5,062,500.

(b). The capital of those two Banks, which is now divided into shares of Rs. 1,000 each, will be divided into shares of only Rs. 500 each.

(c). The kinds of business which the Banks may transact are increased in number. They are empowered to lend upon the security of debentures of Indian municipalities, on goods the documents of title to which are assigned to the Banks as security, and on negotiable securities which, under the provisions of the proposed Act, may be discounted. They may also lend to the Governor General in Council without any specific security. On the other hand, they are expressly forbidden to make loans for a longer period than three months; to make unsecured loans to the same person or firm for more than six lákhs of rupees; to discount any negotiable security, payable where it is presented for discount, which does not carry on it the several responsibilities of at least two persons or firms unconnected in general partnership; or to discount negotiable securities having a longer period to run than three months, except in the case of the Bank of Madras, which may discount such securities payable in Ceylon and running for four months.

The Banks, as constituted by the proposed Act, will still be empowered to act as bankers for the Government of India; and though the Government will cease to have any direct pecuniary concern in the Banks, the interests of the public are so largely involved in their careful management, that it has been thought right to provide (a) that the capital of the Banks shall not be increased or diminished without the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council; (b) that the Governor General in Council in the case of each of the three Banks, the Local Government in the case of the Banks of Madras and Bombay, shall be entitled to require information touching the affairs of the Bank and the publication of statements of assets and liabilities; and (c) that the previous approval of the Government of India shall be required to validate bye-laws.
