Written statement of the Defendant.

In the Court, &c.

C. D., the above-named defendant, states as follows:—

1. The defendant made the note sued upon under the following circumstances: The plaintiff and defendant had for some years been in partnership as indigo manufacturers, and it had been agreed between them that they should dissolve partnership, that the plaintiff should retire from the business, that the defendant should take over the whole of the partnership assets and liabilities and should pay the plaintiff the value of his share in the assets after deducting the liabilities.

2. The plaintiff thereupon undertook to examine the partnership books and enquire into the state of the partnership assets and liabilities; and he did accordingly examine the said books and make the said enquiries, and he thereupon represented to the defendant that the assets of the firm exceeded Rs. 1,00,000 and that the liabilities of the firm were less than Rs. 90,000, whereas the fact was that the assets of the firm were less than Rs. 50,000 and the liabilities of the firm largely exceeded the assets.

3. The misrepresentations mentioned in the second para. of this statement induced the defendant to make the note now sued on, and there never was any other consideration for the making of such note.

PRELIMINARY.

We have amended the definition of 'pleader' so as to make it include an attorney of a High Court, and have modified the definition of 'subordinate' Court so as to give District Courts power to control Courts of Small Causes, and we have added definitions of 'Judge,' 'judgment-debtor,' 'decree-holder,' 'affidavit' and 'public officer.' With the view of encouraging printing in legal proceedings, we have defined 'written' to include 'printed' and 'lithographed.' We have also amended the definition of 'Foreign Court' so as to exclude the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. We have saved the Central Provinces Courts Act, 1865, the Panjáb Courts Act, 1865, Act XXVII of 1867, and all local laws prescribing a special procedure between landlord and tenant. We have struck out the obsolete references to trials by military officers of small suits in Madras and to District and Military Panchâyats in that Presidency.

CHAPTER I.—OF THE JURISDICTION OF THE COURTS AND RES JUDICATA.

We have amended the section (13) as to res judicata (a) by extending it so as to provide for estoppels against defendants, (b) by explaining, in accordance with a decision in 10 Bom. 293, that any matter which might and ought to have been made ground of defence in a former suit brought by the defendant against the plaintiff shall be deemed to be a matter substantially in issue in such suit, and (c) by providing that decisions alterable on review may be final within the meaning of this section. We have also struck out the clause relating to decisions obtained by arrangement; and we have omitted the illustrations as unnecessary.

CHAPTER II.—OF THE PLACE OF SUING.

We have here provided (section 15) for the venue of suits for compensation for wrongs to immoveable property. In section 19 we have provided for giving notice of motions to stay proceedings where the whole cause of action did not arise within the jurisdiction and all the defendants do not reside therein. Where a Court stays proceedings, we have declared (section 20) that the time required for proceeding from that Court to the Court in which the suit is re-instituted shall be excluded in computing the proper period of limitation.

We have provided (sections 21, 22, 23) for giving notice to the plaintiff where the defendant applies to transfer a suit capable of being instituted in different Courts (a) subordinate to the same Appellate Court, or (b) not so subordinate.

CHAPTER III.—OF PARTIES, THEIR APPEARANCES, APPLICATIONS AND ACTS.

For sections 27, 28, 29, 30, 40 and 41 of Bill No. III, we have substituted eight sections as to parties, taken, with some modifications, from the Orders framed under the Supreme Court of Judicature Act, 1875.

We have provided (section 37) that certificated mukhtárs holding special powers of attorney may be recognized agents, and declared that in the Panjáb, Oudh and the Central Provinces recognized agents shall be such persons as the Local Government may by notification declare. This will enable the Local Government to keep, if it thinks fit, the special rules on this subject now in force in those territories.

We have amended the section (41) relating to the appointment of agents to receive process.

CHAPTER IV.—OF THE FRAME OF THE SUIT.

For the sections (44, 45, 46, 47) of Bill No. III, as to joinder of causes of action and multifariousness, we have substituted four sections taken from the Orders above mentioned. When the plaint is amended by excluding any cause of action, we have provided (section 47) that the amendment shall be attested by the Judge's signature.

CHAPTER V.—OF THE INSTITUTION OF SUITS.

We have here provided (section 49) that where English is not the language of the Court, the plaint may, with the permission of the Judge and the consent of the defendant, be in English.

Where the plaintiff has allowed a set-off, or relinquished part of his claim, we have required (section 50) that his plaint should state the amount so allowed or relinquished.

We think that, when once issues have been settled, the plaint should not be rejected, returned for amendment or amended; and we have altered section 53 (=52 of Bill No. III) accordingly. We have provided (section 52) for examining the witness to the verification. We have provided (section 54) for the rejection, &c., of the plaint if it is not framed so as to afford ground for a single decision on the whole subject in dispute and for the attestation of the amendments by the signature of the Judge. Where a plaint is returned we have required (section 57) that the endorsement be made by the Judge himself.

When the plaint is admitted we have required (section 58) the plaintiff to present as many copies as there are defendants, unless the Court permits him to file a like number of concise statements of the nature of the claim made, in which case he will file a like number of such statements. We have made provision in the same section for ascertaining the correctness of thesecopies and statements and of the memoranda of documents filed with the plaint.

Where the plaintiff relies on documents not in his possession, we have provided (section 60) that he shall state in whose possession they are, and where they are in the possession of a stranger to the suit, that he shall take out a summons requiring them to be filed in Court.

From the operation of the section (63) declaring the inadmissibility as evidence for the plaintiff of documents not produced when the plaint is filed, we have excluded documents produced for the examination of the defendant's witnesses or in answer to any case set up by him.

CHAPTER VI.—OF THE ISSUE AND SERVICE OF SUMMONS.

We have provided (section 65) that no summons to the defendant to appear and answer shall be issued when he has appeared at the presentation of the plaint and admitted the plaintiff's claim.

Even where railway communication exists, we think that no party should be ordered to appear in person who resides more than two hundred miles from the Court-house, and we altered section 67 (=section 64 of Bill No. III) accordingly.

Where the defendants are partners, we have provided (section 74) for service of the summons on any person having the management of the partnership business.

For the purpose of the section (76) relating to service on an agent by whom the defendant carries on business, we have declared that the master of a ship is the agent of the owner or charterer.

We think (section 81) that the practice of fixing a copy of the summons on the defendant's house should be discontinued, and that when he refuses to receive the copy or sign the acknowledgment of service, and where the serving-officer cannot find the defendant, and there is no one on whom service can be made, the serving-officer should return the summons with an endorsement that he has been unable to serve it, and we have required (section 82) the Court to examine him on oath touching the non-service. A similar provision, where the summons is sent to another Court to be served, is made in section 85.

We have inserted a section (84 = section 58 of Act VIII of 1859) providing that when service is substituted by order of the Court, a time shall be fixed for the defendant's appearance.

We have provided (section 95) for the service of notices and orders in writing.

CHAPTER VII.—OF THE APPEARANCE OF THE PARTIES AND CONSEQUENCE OF NON-APPEARANCE.

Where neither party appears, we think (section 98) that the suit need not be dismissed when the Judge for reasons recorded under his hand otherwise directs. Where the plaintiff does not appear, but the defendant appears and admits part only of the plaintiff's claim, we have provided (section 102) that the Court shall dismiss the suit so far as relates to the remainder. Where the defendant appears and the suit is wholly or partially dismissed owing to the non-appearance of the plaintiff, and the plaintiff applies for an order to set the dismissal aside, we have provided in the same section that the defendant shall be served with notice of the application.

We have added to this chapter sections corresponding with chapter XXIII of Bill No. III as to setting aside decrees by default and ex parte.

CHAPTER VIII.—OF WRITTEN STATEMENTS AND SET-OFF.

To the section corresponding with section 105 of Bill No. III, we have added a few illustrations and a clause expressly providing that where the defendant, for the purpose of bringing the sum to be set-off within the pecuniary limits of the Court's jurisdiction, intentionally relinquishes any portion of his claim against the plaintiff, the provision in section 43, barring subsequent suits for sums so relinquished by plaintiffs, shall not apply.

We have allowed (section 112) written statements to be received, with the permission of the Court, at any time for the purpose of answering written statements made by the opposite party at the first hearing. And we think (section 115) that the Court should be expressly empowered to examine witnesses as to the signatures to written statements.

We have provided (section 117) that allegations of fact in written statements shall, if not denied, or stated to be not admitted, by the opposite party, be taken to be admitted for the purposes of the suit. We have here made no exception of minors and persons of unsound mind, and in this respect, and in the insertion of the words italicised, the section differs from the English Order XIX, rule 17.

CHAPTER IX.—OF THE EXAMINATION OF THE PARTIES BY THE COURT.

We have here provided (section 118) that the Court may, if it think fit, put in the course of the examination questions suggested by either party, and (section 119) that the substance of the examination shall be reduced to writing by the Judge and form part of the record.

CHAPTER X.—OF DISCOVERY AND OF THE ADMISSION, INSPECTION, PRODUCTION, IMPOUNDING AND RETURN OF DOCUMENTS.

The first seven sections of this chapter are new. They empower parties to deliver interrogatories in writing and provide for inquiring into the propriety of exhibiting them, for striking out improper interrogatories, for making objections to answering interrogatories, and for compelling persons to answer sufficiently. They correspond with the English Order XXXI, rules 1 to 10.

As to the admission of documents, we have amended section 128 (=113 of Bill No. III) by requiring the demand for admission to be served through the Court.

We have inserted sections (129, 130) empowering the Court to order production during the suit, and to direct parties to make discovery of documents relating to matters in question. And we have amplified (sections 131, 132, 133) the section (114) of Bill No. III relating to inspection of documents.

Where any discovery or inspection is objected to, and the Court is satisfied that the right to such discovery or inspection depends on the determination of any question in dispute in the suit, we have empowered (section 135) the Court to order that question to be first determined.

We have declared (section 136) that any person disobeying any order to answer interrogatories or for discovery or inspection, which has been served personally upon him, shall be deemed guilty of an offence under section 188 of the Penal Code, and that he shall also, if a plaintiff, be liable to have his suit dismissed, and, if a defendant, to be placed in the same position as if he had not defended.

The power which the Courts now possess under Act VIII of 1859, section 138, of sending for papers from nonjudicial public offices has, we find, been abused. We have therefore withdrawn this power, and persons applying to the Court to send for papers from judicial records will be required (section 137) to show that they cannot obtain the originals or authenticated copies.

We have expressly confined the section (138) requiring documentary evidence to be in readiness at the first hearing to documents in the possession or power of the parties.

We have provided (section 141) that no document shall be placed on the record unless it has been regularly proved or admitted. In the absence of such a provision questions frequently arise on appeal as to whether a document was in evidence or not.

We have provided (section 144) for the return of documents in suits in which an appeal is not allowed, and in all cases we have authorized their return when certified copies are delivered to the proper officer.

CHAPTER XI.—OF THE SETTLEMENT OF ISSUES.

We have exempted (section 146) the Court from the duty of framing and recording issues where the defendant at the first hearing makes no defence. When issues both of law and of fact arise in the same suit, and the Court considers that the case may be disposed of on the issues of law only, we have provided in the same section that the Court shall (not 'may') try the issues of law first. This, we think, will save expense, and will prevent cases being remanded for trial of issues of fact which, in the result, prove wholly irrelevant. As to issues by agreement of parties, we have provided (section 150) that, unless with the special permission of the Judge, no such agreement shall be filed after the Court has recorded issues in the suit.

CHAPTER XII.—OF THE DISPOSAL OF THE SUIT AT THE FIRST HEARING.

We have here made no change requiring notice.

CHAPTER XIII.—OF ADJOURNMENTS.

We think that the provision in section 138 of Bill No. III that, when the hearing of evidence has once begun, the hearing of the suit shall not be adjourned, except from day to day, might occasionally have led to great inconvenience. We have therefore in section 156 substituted the following: "Provided that, when the hearing of evidence has once begun, the hearing of the suit shall be continued from day to day until all the witnesses in attendance have been examined, unless the Court finds the adjournment of the hearing to be absolutely necessary for reasons to be recorded by the hand of the Judge."

CHAPTER XIV.—OF THE SUMMONING AND ATTENDANCE OF WITNESSES.

We have omitted the power to insert in a summons the names of any number of persons. We have declared (section 165) that the rules contained in chapter VI as to proof of service shall apply in the case of all summonses served on persons required to give evidence or produce documents. Before attaching the property of a witness alleged to have absconded, we think that the serving officer should be examined on oath touching the non-service, and we have made a provision to this effect in section 167. We have omitted as useless the provision of the present law as to payment by the Collector of the costs of summoning a witness.

We have provided (section 173) that no witness who has been summoned and attends shall depart, unless he has been examined and the Court has risen, or he has obtained the Court's leave to go.

We have empowered (section 174) the Court to inflict a fine of Rs. 500 on persons failing to prove that they had a lawful excuse for not obeying the summons; and we have provided that non-payment or non-tender of reasonable viaticum shall be deemed a lawful excuse. When any such person is brought before the Court and cannot, owing to the absence of parties, give the evidence or produce the document which he has been summoned to produce or give, we have by the same section authorized the Court to release him on bail.

We have declared (section 177) that no witness shall be bound to attend in person unless he resides (a) within the local limits of the Court's original jurisdiction, or (b) without those limits and less than fifty or (where there is railway communication) two hundred miles from the Court-house. It is obvious that there should be some limit beyond which parties should not be required to travel even by railway.

We have struck out the six sections (157 to 163 of Bill No. III) relating to the examination of parties as witnesses. This matter seems sufficiently provided for by the declaration contained in section 178 (=section 165 of Bill No. III), that when any party to a suit is summoned as a witness, the rules as to witnesses contained in the Code shall apply to him so far as they are applicable.

CHAPTER XV.—OF THE HEARING OF THE SUIT AND EXAMINATION OF WITNESSES.

We have inserted (section 179) rules as to the right to begin.

We have provided (section 184) that any Judge may take down the evidence in English if the Local Government permits him to do so, or if the parties do not object.

Where the Judge taking down any evidence is removed from the Court before the conclusion of the suit, we have empowered (section 191) his successor to deal with the evidence as if he himself had taken it down.

Where a witness about to leave the jurisdiction is examined immediately, we have provided (section 192) that his evidence before being used as such shall be read over to him and, if he admits it to be correct, signed by him.

We have empowered the Court (section 193), at any stage of the suit, to recall and re-examine a witness who has not departed.

CHAPTER XVI.—OF AFFIDAVITS.

This chapter is wholly new. It empowers the Court to order any particular fact to be proved by affidavit: provides that evidence may be given by affidavit on any application or petition: indicates the matters to which affidavits should be confined: and lastly, specifies the officers by whom the oaths of declarants may be administered.

CHAPTER XVII.—OF JUDGMENT AND DECREE.

In accordance with a ruling of the Calcutta High Court, we have authorized (section 199) a Judge to deliver a judgment written by his predecessor but not delivered.

We think that, as a rule, the judgment should be written in the language of the Court, but we have provided (section 200) that if such language be not English or the Judge's mother-tongue, the judgment may be written either in English or his mother-tongue. We think (section 201) that the judgment need not be translated, unless any of the parties so require.

We have provided (section 202) that the judgment shall not be altered or added to, save to correct verbal errors or on review.

We think (section 203) that all judgments (save those of Small Cause Courts) should contain a concise statement of the case in addition to the matters mentioned in section 183 of Bill No. III.

We have provided (section 205) that the Judge before signing the decree shall satisfy himself that it has been drawn up in accordance with the judgment.

We have given power to amend the decree not only when it is at variance with the judgment, but also in case of clerical or arithmetical errors: but in all such cases we have provided (section 206) for notice to the parties or their pleaders.

In money-decrees, we think (section 209) that the interest allowed from the date of the decree should not exceed six per cent. per annum. This, we hope, will abolish the practice of treating such decrees as desirable investments.

We think (section 210) that no application for an order to pay the amount of a decree by instalments should be allowed after six months from the date of the decree, and we have provided for notice to the plaintiff of such applications.

In administering the assets of persons dying after the Code comes into force, we have provided (section 213) that the Courts shall be guided by the same rules as to rights of creditors, proveable debts and valuation of annuities, and future and contingent liabilities, as are in force as to the estates of persons adjudged insolvent, and that all persons who would be entitled to dividends out of the estate of any such deceased person, may come in under the decree and make their claims against the estate. We have declared in the same section that applications under section 265 of the Indian Contract Act, to wind up the business of a partnership, shall be deemed to be administration suits.

We think (section 216) that certified copies of the judgment and decree should not be furnished except at the expense of the parties applying for them.

CHAPTER XVIII.—OF COSTS.

We have here made no substantial change.

CHAPTER XIX.—OF THE EXECUTION OF DECREES.

We have distributed the matter of this long and important chapter under eight heads, namely, (a) Courts by which decrees may be executed, (b) application for execution, (c) staying execution, (d) the mode of executing decrees, (e) attachment of property, (f) sale and delivery of property, (g) resistance to execution, and (h) arrest and imprisonment.

Courts by which decrees may be executed.

For section 330 of Bill No. III, we have substituted a section (223) as to the Court by which a decree may be executed, and prescribing the procedure for sending a decree for execution to a Court other than that which passed it. When the Court passing the decree is subordinate to a District Court, we think it should send the decree to the District Court to which it is subordinate and that such Court should deal with the decree as if it had been passed by itself.

Application for execution.

When a decree has been transferred by assignment, we have provided (section 232) that notice of any application to execute it shall be given to the transferor and the judgment-debtor, and that it shall not be executed until the Court has heard their objections (if any) to such execution.

When the judgment-debtor dies before the decree is fully executed, and application is made to have it executed against his legal representative to the extent of the assets which are in his hands, we have empowered (section 234) the Court to compel the representative to produce his accounts.

We think (section 235) that applications for the execution of decrees should be verified like plaints, and that they should state whether any and what previous applications have been made, and with what result.

We have provided (section 236) for the verification of the descriptions of immoveable property sought to be attached.

The mode of executing decrees.

In section 244 (=section 329 of Bill No. III) we have omitted the clause as to questions relating to sums alleged to have been paid in discharge or satisfaction of a decree. This will get rid of the ambiguity arising from the provisions of section 206 of Act VIII of 1859 as compared with section 11 of Act XXIII of 1861.

We have directed (section 245) that applications for execution shall be rejected or returned for amendment when the needful particulars or inventories are wanting. Every such amendment will be attested by the Judge's signature. We have provided in the same section that in executing a decree for money, the value of the property attached shall as nearly as possible correspond with the amount of the decree.

We have omitted as useless the clause as to the execution of a decree for the share of a dwelling-house of an undivided Hindú family.

When a decree against a surety is executed, we have provided (section 253) for giving him previous notice.

We have introduced a section (254 = Order xlii, Rule 8) providing for the execution of a decree against partners in the name of the firm.

We have provided (section 258) that, when moneys payable under a decree are paid out of Court to the decree-holder, he shall certify the payment to the Court whose duty it is to execute the decree. We have omitted the proviso in section 203 of Bill No. III that decrees for the recovery of wives were to be declaratory only. We are informed that, in the Panjáb at least, such a rule would have worked unsatisfactorily.

We have provided (section 260) for the enforcement of injunctions, and declared in the same section that no attachment issued to enforce an injunction, or a decree for specific performance, shall remain in force for more than a year.

Attachment of Property.

We have exempted (section 266) from attachment and sale in execution of a decree the following articles:—the necessary wearing apparel of the judgment-debtor's wife and children, the tools of artizans: implements of husbandry: cattle kept bonâ fide for agricultural purposes: the materials of houses and other buildings belonging to and occupied by agriculturists: political pensions: the salaries of servants of Railway Companies: the pay and allowances of persons to whom the Native Articles of War apply: the wages of labourers and domestic servants.

We think that general attachments of the moveable property of judgment-debtors should no longer be permitted, and we have accordingly struck out the clauses (210, 235, 236, and part of 231) of Bill No. III relating to this subject. Ample power to obtain discovery as to such property is given by section 267.

We have provided (section 268) that no attachment to enforce a decree for a specific moveable shall remain in force for more than six months, at the end of which time, if the judgment-debtor has not obeyed the decree, the property attached may be sold, and out of the proceeds the Court may award the decree-holder such compensation as it thinks fit, and pay the balance to the judgment-debtor.

We have empowered (section 269) the Local Government to make rules for the maintenance and custody of livestock and other moveable property while under attachment, and directed the attaching officer to act in accordance with such rules.

We have provided rules (section 271) for the attachment of moveable property in rooms actually occupied by native women.

We have introduced a section (273) dealing with the attachment of decrees.

We have provided (section 275) for withdrawing an attachment when the decree under which it has been made is set aside or reversed.

We have struck out the section (307 of Bill No. III = section 272 of Act VIII of 1859) empowering the Court to order the proceeds of property attached under a decree obtained fraudulently to be paid in satisfaction of another decree. The power is rarely used, and the case contemplated is, we think, one for a regular suit, not a summary proceeding.

Sale and delivery of Property.

We think (section 288) that the proclamation of execution sales should state the incumbrances (if any) to which the interest about to be sold is liable, and we have provided that no Judge, &c., shall be answerable for error in the proclamation unless it has been committed dishonestly.

We have struck out the clause (section 280 of Bill No. III) allowing process for attachment and sale of moveables to be issued either successively or simultaneously.

We have provided (section 291) for adjournments of execution-sales, and for stopping them on tender of the debt and costs, or on proof that the amount has been paid into the Court which ordered the sale.

We have forbidden (section 292) all officers conducting or otherwise concerned in sales to bid for or purchase the property sold.

In lieu of providing that the attaching creditor shall be first paid out of the assets realized, and that the surplus shall be distributed amongst the other execution-creditors, we have declared (section 295) that such assets shall (after deducting the costs) be divided rateably among all persons who have, prior to the realization, applied for execution of money-decrees against the judgment-debtor and have not obtained satisfaction. We have also provided that when any property liable to be sold in execution is subject to a mortgage, the Court may, with the assent of the mortgagee, order that the property be sold free from the mortgage, giving to the mortgagee, the same right against the proceeds as he had against the property sold.

Courts inferior to District Courts should not, in our opinion (section 303), have power to sell immoveable property in execution of a decree; but when any such inferior Court thinks that such a sale should be made, we have provided (section 304) that such Court shall refer the case to the District Court to which it is subordinate, and declared that the District Court may then sell as if the decree had been made by itself.

We have amended the section (309) empowering the co-sharer in an undivided estate to claim at sale price a share of such estate sold in execution. If the claim be made before sunset on the day of sale and the claimant then repay to the purchaser the amount of his deposit, the claimant will be substituted for the auction-purchaser.

We have fixed (section 312) sixty days as the time within which the purchaser of immoveable property may apply to set aside the sale on the ground that the judgment-debtor had no legally saleable interest therein.

We have by section 316 provided (in accordance with Act XI of 1859, section 28, and Schedule A) that the purchase shall be deemed to take effect from the date of the attachment.

As to sales of land by Collectors, we have substituted for section 276 of Bill No. III a clause (320) providing that the Local Government may, transfer to the Collector of any District the execution of decrees in cases in which a Court has ordered any interest in immoveable property to be sold. And we think (section 321) that whenever the execution of a decree has been so transferred, the Collector, if he thinks that the debts of the judgment-debtor can be discharged without a sale of the whole of the property, should, notwithstanding the order, have power to sell only part, or to mortgage the whole or any part, of the land, or to let or manage it himself for a term not exceeding twenty years from the date of the order. Where the Collector lets or manages we have provided (sections 322, 323) for giving notice to the judgment-creditors to come in; for excluding all other claimants from any right to payment out of the proceeds; for preventing the debtor from incumbering during the term the property so let or managed; and, if at the end of the term the requisite amount has not been raised, for selling such property. Where the Collector sells or exercises the power to mortgage, let or manage, we have required him (section 324) to inform the Court which made the order of sale, to render accounts to such Court and to hold the balance in his hands at its disposal.

Where the sale of immoveable property has been postponed to enable the judgment-debtor to raise the amount of the decree, and the Court authorizes him to sell, mortgage or let the property, we have provided (section 324) that all moneys payable under such sale, mortgage or lease shall be paid into Court and not to the judgment-debtor.

We have omitted (section 325) as unnecessary the power to order security to be taken from the defendant when the Court authorizes the Collector to stay the public sale of land. We have expressly empowered the Local Government (section 326) to make special rules for any territory prohibiting the sale of any class of interests in land in execution of money-decrees.

Arrest and Imprisonment.

We have provided (section 335) that a judgment-debtor may be arrested in execution at any hour and on any day, and that he shall thereupon be brought before the Court, except when the decree is for money and the judgment-debtor pays the amount of the decree and the costs of the arrest. When he is brought before the Court we have directed the Judge to inform him that he may obtain relief under Chapter XX, and if he express his intention so to apply, and if he furnish security for his appearance at any time when called upon, the Court will release him.

When the judgment-debtor fails to pay the amount of principal and interest, we have directed (section 337) the serving-officer to bring him before the Court, and when the serving-officer cannot execute the warrant, we think (section 343) that the Court should examine him on oath as to his inability.

We think (section 339) that no judgment-debtor should be arrested unless and until the decree-holder pays into Court a proper sum for the subsistence of the judgment-debtor from his arrest until he is brought before the Court. We have empowered the Local Government to fix scales of monthly allowances for the subsistence of judgment-debtors in prison.

As to imprisonment in execution of a decree, we have provided (section 341) that a judgment-debtor may be discharged from jail without the order of the Court when the term of his imprisonment is completed; and we think (section 342) that no person should be imprisoned for a longer period than six months, or when the decree is for the payment of a sum not more than Rs. 50, for a longer period than six weeks.

CHAPTER XX.—INSOLVENT JUDGMENT-DEBTORS.

We have here made numerous small amendments, the chief of which are the following:—As to fraudulent transfers, we think (section 351) that the Court need only see that they were not made within two months next before the date of the decree in execution of which the insolvent was arrested or imprisoned. We have provided (section 352) that all creditors, whether mentioned or not in the debtor's application, shall prove their debts. We have provided (section 355) that the receiver of the insolvent's property shall give security, and (section 356) that he may retain as remuneration five per cent. upon the amount of the balance distributed to the creditors. And we have reduced (section 359) from two years to one year the term for which a fraudulent insolvent may be imprisoned.

CHAPTER XXI.—OF THE DEATH, MARRIAGE AND INSOLVENCY OF PARTIES.

We have added two illustrations to the section (361) as to non-abatement by death where the cause of action survives.

We have provided a limitation (sections 364, 366) for applications under this chapter.

When a suit abates or is dismissed under this chapter, we have permitted (section 371) the person claiming to be the plaintiff's representative to apply to set aside the order of abatement or dismissal.

We have provided (section 372) for cases of assignment pending the suit.

CHAPTER XXII.—OF THE WITHDRAWAL AND ADJUSTMENT OF SUITS.

We have provided here (section 373) for the case of abandonment of part of the plaintiff's claim, and (section 375) for the finality of decrees passed in accordance with compromises. We have made no other substantial change.

CHAPTER XXIII.—OF PAYMENT INTO COURT.

We have given the Court (section 376) a discretionary power with regard to the payment of deposits in Court to the plaintiff.

Where the Court decides that the defendant's deposit was a full satisfaction of the plaintiff's claim, we have provided (section 379) that the plaintiff shall pay not the costs of the suit, but the costs incurred after the deposit and the costs incurred previous thereto, so far as they were caused by excess in the plaintiff's claim.

CHAPTER XXIV.—OF REQUIRING SECURITY FOR COSTS.

We think that the plaintiff should not be required to furnish security for costs unless a defendant so require. We have altered this chapter (section 380) accordingly.

CHAPTER XXVI.—OF COMMISSIONS.

When a Court inferior to a District Court issues a commission to examine a person residing within its jurisdiction, we have provided (section 385) that the selection of the person to execute the commission shall be subject to such rules as the District Court may prescribe.

We have provided (section 386) that any District Court and Court of Small Causes may issue commissions for the examination of officers of Government who cannot attend the Court without detriment to the public service, and of persons who are about to leave the jurisdiction before the date on which the suit in which their evidence is required is set down for hearing.

No Court inferior to a District Court, other than a Court of Small Causes, should, we think, issue commissions for the examination of persons resident beyond its jurisdiction. We have made a provision to this effect in section 386.

We have declared (section 391) that the provisions contained in this chapter as to the execution and return of commissions shall apply to commissions issued by Foreign Courts. We have struck out the section (385 of the Bill No. III) as to taking the evidence of prisoners. The matter is sufficiently provided for by the Prisoners' Testimony Act.

We have extended to proceedings as well as to suits the sections (392, 395) as to commissions for local investigations, and to examine accounts. In the case of the former class of commissions, when the Local Government has made rules as to the persons to be appointed commissioners, we have required the Court to comply with such rules.

CHAPTER XXVI.—SUITS BY PAUPERS.

We have added (section 402) libel to the list of civil injuries in respect of which a pauper should not be allowed to sue as such.

We think (section 407) that a pauper suing on the original side of the High Court should show that he does not possess property worth Rs. 100 except his wearing apparel and the subject-matter of the suit; and as to fraudulent disposals of property by a pauper, we have provided that the Court need only consider whether such disposal was effected within the two months next before the presentation of the pauper's petition.

We have struck out the sections (406, 407 of Bill No. III) authorizing parties to obtain summonses to witnesses and empowering the Court to make local investigations.

We have provided (section 411) that the Court-fees which would have been payable by the plaintiff, if he had not been allowed to sue as a pauper, shall be a first charge on the subject-matter, if any, recovered by him.

We think (section 414) the plaintiff should be dispaupered if he has entered into any agreement under which any other person has obtained an interest in the subject-matter of the suit.

CHAPTER XXVII.—SUITS BY OR AGAINST GOVERNMENT AND PUBLIC OFFICERS.

We think (section 416) that suits against Government and against public officers for acts done in their official capacity should not be instituted in any Court inferior to a District Court (a similar provision is made by the Bombay Civil Courts Act XIV of 1869, section 32); but we have provided that any such suit may be transferred to a subordinate Court.

We think (section 420) that in suits against a public officer, as well as in those against Government, the summons should be served on the Government Pleader, or on some person appointed to receive process in behalf of Government.

We have provided (section 424) that no suit shall be brought against Government or against a public officer as such until two months next after delivery of a notice in writing, stating the cause of action and the name and residence of the intending plaintiff. We have also provided that every suit against a public officer must be commenced within six months next after the accrual of the cause of action. Similar provisions are contained in the Police Act (V of 1861), section 42, and in various Municipal Acts.

CHAPTER XXVIII.—SUITS BY ALIENS AND BY OR AGAINST FOREIGN AND NATIVE RULERS.

We have laid down rules (section 430) as to when aliens may sue in the Courts of British India. We have declared (section 431) that a Foreign State may sue in our Courts, provided that it has been recognized by the Governor General in Council, and that the object of the suit is to enforce the private rights of the head or of the subjects of the Foreign State. We have also declared in the same section that the Courts shall take judicial notice of the fact that a Foreign State has not been recognized by our Government. We have barred suits (section 433) against Sovereign Princes, ruling Chiefs, ambassadors and envoys, except with the consent of Government, and declared that such consent shall not be given except in certain cases. We have exempted their persson from arrest under the Code, and we have declared that no decree shall be executed against their property unless with the permission in writing of a Secretary to Government. We have provided (section 434) for the execution in British India of the decrees of the Courts of Native States in alliance with Her Majesty.

CHAPTER XXIX.—SUITS BY AND AGAINST CORPORATIONS AND COMPANIES,

CHAPTER XXX.—SUITS BY AND AGAINST TRUSTEES, EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS.

We have made no change in either of the above chapters.

CHAPTER XXXI.—SUITS BY AND AGAINST MINORS AND PERSONS OF UNSOUND MIND.

We have provided (section 442) that notice of application to take off the file plaints filed by or on behalf of minors without next friends, shall be given to the person presenting the plaint. We have altered section 445 (= section 439 of Bill No. III) so as to enable married women to act as next friends. We have required (section 443) the Court in every case, on being satisfied of a defendant's minority, to appoint a guardian ad litem, and have consequently omitted the sections (453 and 454 of Bill No. III) as to the assignment of a guardian at the instance of the plaintiff. We have taken the opportunity of declaring (section 443), contrary to the recent decision of Pontifex, J., that a guardian ad litem is not a guardian of person or property within the meaning of the Indian Majority Act, 1875. We have struck out as unsuited to the Mufassal the rule requiring an order to change a minor's pleader, and the rule against not giving a day to shew cause, when a decree is made against a minor defendant, and as to making payment to the receiver of money, &c., decreed to a minor. We have omitted from section 463, the provision as to the nature of the evidence contained in the corresponding section (462) of Bill No. III. We have exempted (section 464) from several sections of this chapter minors under the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards, and minors for whose persons or property guardians or managers have been appointed by the Civil Courts under any local law.

CHAPTER XXXII.—SUITS BY AND AGAINST MILITARY MEN.

We have here provided (section 463) for the case where the soldier concerned is serving in military staff employment.

CHAPTER XXXIII.—INTERPLEADER.

We have here merely amended the drafting of two of the sections.

CHAPTER XXXIV.—OF ARREST AND ATTACHMENT BEFORE JUDGMENT.

We have expressly stated (section 477) that the suits in which plaintiffs may apply that security be taken for the defendant's appearance, are suits other than suits for the possession of immoveable property. Where the defendant is imprisoned for failing to give security, we think (section 481) that the maximum term of imprisonment should be six months.

We have provided (section 482) that subsistence allowance shall be paid into Court in the case of every arrest under this chapter.

We have provided (section 488) for removing the attachment when the suit is dismissed. Where property is attached under this chapter, and a decree is given in favour of the plaintiff, we have declared (section 490) that it shall not be necessary to re-attach the property in execution of the decree.

We have struck out the section (492 of Bill No. III) empowering the Court to stay the sale of property already under attachment, when execution of a decree fraudulently obtained is applied for. The reasons for omitting section 308 of that Bill are equally applicable to section 492.

CHAPTER XXXV.—OF TEMPORARY INJUNCTIONS AND INTERLOCUTORY ORDERS.

We have empowered (section 492) the Court to grant an injunction to stay a wrongful sale in execution of a decree. We have been informed that the corresponding clause of Act VIII of 1859 (section 92, first sentence,) has been held not to apply to such a case.

We have provided (section 493) that the imprisonment by which injunctions granted under this chapter may be enforced shall not exceed six months.

We have added sections (498, 499, 500) empowering the Court to order the interim sale of perishable articles: the detention, preservation, or inspection of any property forming the subject of the suit: and, for the purposes aforesaid, the entry on or into any land or building in the possession of any party to the suit, the taking of samples, making of observations and trial of experiments. They correspond with the English Order 32, rules 2, 3 and 4.

CHAPTER XXXVI.—APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVERS AND MANAGERS.

We have here expressly provided (section 503) that Receivers and Managers shall pass their accounts, pay the balance due thereon, and be responsible for loss occasioned by their wilful default or gross negligence. We think (section 505) that the powers conferred by this chapter should be exercised only by High Courts and District Courts.

CHAPTER XXXVII.—REFERENCE TO ARBITRATION.

Where an umpire is appointed, we have required (section 509) the Court to fix a reasonable time for the delivery of his award.

We have provided (section 514) for superseding the arbitration where, owing to the fault of the parties, the arbitrator cannot complete his award within the specified period.

We have provided (section 522) that decrees following judgments according to awards shall be final.

When the arbitrator is not named in an agreement to refer, and the parties cannot agree as to the nomination, we have empowered (section 523) the Court to nominate him.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.—OF PROCEEDINGS ON AGREEMENT OF PARTIES.

We have here merely added a direction (section 527) that cases stated under this chapter shall be divided into consecutively numbered paragraphs, and concisely state such facts and documents as may be necessary to enable the Court to decide the questions raised thereby.

CHAPTER XXXIX.—OF SUMMARY PROCEDURE ON NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS.

This chapter corresponds with 18 & 19 Vic., c. 67 and Act V of 1866, sections 2 to 8. We have here declared (in accordance with decisions of Bramwell B. and Phear J.) that the defendant shall not be required to pay into Court the sum mentioned in the summons, unless the Court thinks his defence not to be primâ facie sustainable or feels reasonable doubt as to its good faith. And we have taken the opportunity of declaring (contrary to the decision of the latter Judge) that the clause corresponding with Act V of 1866, section 2, is not confined to cases in which the bill sued upon, together with mere lapse of time, is sufficient to establish a primâ facie right to recover.

Act V of 1866 is now in force in the Charter High Courts, the Chief Court of the Panjáb, the Rangoon Recorder's Court, and the Small Cause Court of Madras. We propose (section 538) to extend the corresponding chapter of the Code also to the Small Cause Courts of Calcutta and Bombay and to the Court of the Judge of Karáchi.

We have omitted chapter XLI of Bill No. III (Bar of Appeals not expressly permitted) as unnecessary. No appeal can lie unless it is allowed by the Code or some other law for the time being in force.

CHAPTER XL.—OF APPEALS FROM ORIGINAL DECREES.

We have struck out the clause requiring appeals to the High Court to be heard by two or more Judges. It would limit the discretion expressly conferred by Act of Parliament and Royal Charter.

We have provided (section 540) that the memorandum of appeal shall be presented by the appellant or his pleader, and shall be accompanied by a copy not only of the decree, but also of the judgment on which the decree is founded.

We have struck out, as likely to work unsatisfactorily, the provisions contained in sections 548—553 of Bill No. III, which authorize the appellant merely to state generally his dissatisfaction with the decree appealed against, and to file his grounds of objection separately.

Where a memorandum of appeal is amended, we have required (section 543) the Judge to attest the amendment.

We have empowered (section 550) the appellate Court, after hearing the appellant, if he appears, to confirm the decision appealed against without sending notice of the appeal to the lower Court or serving such notice on the respondent. A similar rule exists in the Panjáb (Act IX of 1873, section 7), and has been found to work well.

We have laid down rules (section 555) as to the right to begin (a) where the appeal is from the whole decree, (b) where there are cross-appeals, and (c) where the appeal is from only a portion of the decree and there is no cross-appeal.

We have provided (section 560) a period of limitation for applications to re-hear, where judgment has been given ex-parte against the respondent.

Where a case is remanded with direction to take specified evidence, we have authorized (section 563) the Court to receive evidence tendered to contradict evidence so taken.

We have redrawn the section (575 = section 589 of Bill No. III) as to decisions of appeals heard by Benches of two or more Judges who differ. When there is no majority on the Appellate Bench which concurs in reversing or varying the decree appealed against, we think that decree should stand.

We have omitted as useless the provision as to sealing the decree in appeal.

CHAPTER XLI.—OF APPEALS FROM APPELLATE DECREES.

We have struck out the clause requiring the pleader presenting an appeal to certify that the grounds are reasonable, and forbidding him to give such certificate unless he has been authorized by the High Court. We have also omitted the clause declaring that an application for a second appeal shall be argued only by the pleader signing such certificate.

CHAPTER XLII.—OF APPEALS FROM ORDERS.

We have declared (section 588) that an appeal shall lie from orders determining whether immoveable property is or is not within the local limits, from orders striking out or adding the names of persons as plaintiffs or defendants, from orders under section 44 adding a cause of action, from orders under section 47 excluding a cause of action, from orders under section 234 as to questions relating to the execution of decrees, from orders under section 176 where a party refuses to give evidence called for by the Court, from orders rejecting applications under section 371, from orders disallowing objections under section 373, and from orders under section 518 modifying an award.

Appeals from orders in insolvency will in all cases lie (section 589) directly to the High Court.

CHAPTER XLIII.—OF PAUPER APPEALS.

Except some trifling omissions, we have made no change in this chapter.

CHAPTER XLIV.—OF APPEALS TO THE QUEEN IN COUNCIL.

We have here provided (section 610) for estimating in Indian currency sums expressed in orders of Her Majesty in Council to be payable in British currency, and we have authorized (section 613) the High Courts to make rules as to the recovery of costs incurred in British India in connection with appeals to Her Majesty in Council.

CHAPTER XLV.—OF REFERENCE TO THE HIGH COURT.

We have extended (section 617) this chapter to questions arising before or in the hearing of a suit and in the execution of a decree. We have struck out the clause providing that references shall be heard by not less than two Judges of the High Court. We have provided (section 621) that when a case is referred, the High Court may alter, cancel or set aside any decree which the Court making the reference may have passed in the suit. We have omitted as useless the section requiring the High Court to fix an early day for hearing references. Our other changes here are merely verbal.

CHAPTER XLVI.—OF REVIEW OF JUDGMENT.

We think (section 622) that powers similar to those given by this chapter to High Courts may usefully be given to District Courts as to cases decided by subordinate Courts, including Courts of Small Causes.

We have struck out the clause empowering an appellant to abandon his appeal and apply for a review. We have extended the clause (624) forbidding (except in certain cases) applications for review of judgments to be made to Judges other than those who delivered them, to cases in which a clerical error has been discovered on the face of the decree. Where the business of the Court whose judgment is sought to be reviewed has been transferred to another Court, we have authorized (section 626) the application to be made to the latter Court. But we think (section 624) that except on the discovery of some new and important matter or evidence or of some clerical error apparent on the face of the decree, no application for the review of a judgment should be made to any Judge other than the Judge who delivered it. Where a review is granted, we have required (section 626) the Judge to record with his own hand his reasons for so doing.

We have omitted the clauses forbidding subordinate Courts to grant reviews without permission of the higher Court.

We think (section 629) that the order granting a review or rejecting an application for a review should be final except where the review has been granted without jurisdiction. Where the application has been rejected in consequence of the failure of the parties to appear, we have provided for restoring in proper cases the application to the file. We have also expressly forbidden the Courts to entertain applications to review orders passed on review or on applications for review.

CHAPTER XLVII.—SPECIAL RULES RELATING TO THE HIGH COURTS.

We have here omitted the following sections of Bill No. III for the reasons respectively appended thereto—

665 (as to the extraordinary original jurisdiction of the High Court): provided for by the Charters,

666 (power to High Court to provide for the exercise of its jurisdiction): ditto,

668 (decision when Judges differ): provided for in the prior part of the Bill,

670 (declaring that acts required to be done by a pleader may be done by an attorney): ditto,

672, 673 (power to refer matters for investigation in chambers): provided for by the Charters,

37, 674 (signature of the Registrar): provided for by the former part of the Bill, 675 (language): unnecessary,

676 (assessors): ditto,

677 (interlocutory orders): ditto,

678 (appearance of vakíls on the original side): can be provided for under the Charters,

681 (obtaining summonses from Registrar): unnecessary,

684 (procedure in testamentary and intestate cases): provided for by rule.

We have empowered the High Court to declare by rule what shall be deemed to be "acts not of a judicial nature," which may be done by the Registrar.

We have declared (section 640) that the following portions of the Code shall not apply to the High Court in the exercise of its ordinary and extraordinary original civil jurisdictions, viz.:—

37, recognised agents;

54, clause (a), rejection of plaint where relief sought is under-valued;

160, payment into Court of expenses of witnesses;

206, contents of decree;

263, decree for execution of conveyances or endorsement of negotiable instruments.

We have expressly empowered (section 641) the High Court to prescribe forms for its own use.

CHAPTER XLVIII.—MISCELLANEOUS.

We have struck out as now unnecessary the clause (section 686 of Bill No. III) declaring that where the highest Civil Court of appeal consists of a single Judge, he shall have the powers which were (but are not now) vested by this Code in two or more Judges.

We have amended (section 643) the rules as to the names of persons exempt from appearance in Court. We have omitted the following sections of Bill No. III—

687, 688, as to assessors (obsolete and useless),

697, as to verifying false plaints (provided for by the Penal Code),

705, as to ministerial officers (can be provided for executively), 708, as to deposits in lieu of bail (useless).

We have also struck out the clause empowering the Government of India to invest a Chief Commissioner with the powers of a Local Government under the Code. This matter is sufficiently provided for by Act XXXII of 1867.

We have redrawn the section (644) relating to exemption from arrest. It now provides that no judicial officer shall be liable to arrest under the Code while going to, presiding in, or returning from, his Court, and that the parties to a suit and their pleaders, recognized agents and witnesses shall be similarly exempt while going to or attending a Civil Court for the purpose of such suit, and while returning from such Court.

We have struck out the section (698 of Bill No. III) as to certain offences in Court not relating to documents. The matter seems sufficiently provided for by the Code of Criminal Procedure.

We have introduced a section (648 = Act XI of 1865, section 42) enabling registrars of Mufassal Courts of Small Causes to state cases for the opinion of the Judge.

We have provided (section 650) for attaching property situate outside the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court making the order of attachment.

We have provided (section 653) a punishment for escape from civil custody.

We have empowered (section 654) the High Court to make rules to regulate any matter connected with the procedure of the Courts of Civil Judicature.

SCHEDULE I.—REPEALS.

We have added to this schedule the Lords Day Act (29 Car. II, c. 7): sections 8, 9, 10, 11, the second clause of section 19, sections 22 to 28 (inclusive), 42, and part of 32 of the Mufassal Small Cause Courts Act XI of 1865, parts of Acts XIV and XIX of 1865, and the unrepealed part of Act XXIV of 1866, the whole of Act X of 1867, and so much of sections 15 and 16 of Act XV of 1869 as relates to process issued by a Civil Court. We have also added Act IX of 1873, sections 7, 9 and 10, and Madras Regulation XIV of 1816, section 27.

SCHEDULE II.—SECTIONS EXTENDING TO MUFASSAL COURTS OF SMALL CAUSES.

We have made a few changes in this schedule, the most important of which is the addition of the chapters on interpleader and on reference to the High Court.

SCHEDULE IV.—FORMS.

We have added a few forms—concise statements of claim: statements of defence: temporary injunctions; and we have amended some of the forms of decrees.

We have also made numerous small changes in the wording and arrangement of the Bill, and we think that it has been so altered that it should be republished with this report in the Gazette of India and the local Gazettes, and that its further consideration should be stayed till the Council re-assembles in Calcutta.

We desire, in conclusion, to express our acknowledgments of the learning, acuteness and industry evinced by many of the communications respecting the Bill. We would in particular mention those by Mr. Pitt Kennedy the Standing Counsel, Mr. Belchambers the Registrar of the High Court at Fort William, Mr. Plowden the Government Advocate, Panjáb, Mr. Nelson of the Madras Civil Service, Messrs. Field, Maclean, Crosthwaite, and J. W. Smyth, all of the Bengal Civil Service, and Hukm Chand, Extra Assistant Commissioner, Montgomery.

THE FIRST SCHEDULE.—A.—Statute repealed.
B.—Acts repealed.
C.—Regulation repealed.

THE SECOND SCHEDULE.—Chapters and sections extending to Mufassal Courts of Small Causes.

THE THIRD SCHEDULE.—Bombay enactments.

THE FOURTH SCHEDULE.—Forms.

A Bill to consolidate and amend the Laws relating to the Procedure of the Courts of Civil Judicature.

Preamble. Whereas it is expedient to consolidate and amend the laws relating to the procedure of the Courts of Civil Judicature; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

PRELIMINARY.

Short title. Commencement. 1. This Act may be cited as "The Code of Civil Procedure:" and it shall come into force on the day of 1876.

Local extent. This section and section 3 extend to the whole of British India. The other sections extend to the whole of British India except the Scheduled Districts as defined in Act No. XIV of 1874.

Interpretation-clause. 2. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context—

"chapter." "chapter" means a chapter of this Code:

"district." "District Court." "district" means the local limits of the jurisdiction of a principal civil Court of original jurisdiction, (hereinafter called a 'District Court') and includes the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of a High Court: every Court of a grade inferior to that of a District Court and every Court of Small Causes shall, for the purposes of this Code, be deemed to be subordinate to the High Court and the District Court.

"jail." "jail" means the civil jail of the district, or any place appointed by the Local Government for the confinement of persons under civil process:

"pleader." "pleader" means every person entitled to appear and plead for another in Court, and includes an Advocate, a vakíl and an attorney of a High Court:

"Collector." "Collector" means every officer performing the duties of a Collector of land-revenue:

"the cause of action." "a part of the cause of action." "the cause of action" means the whole of the circumstances which a plaintiff must allege in order to shew a right to sue, and "a part of the cause of action" means some one of those circumstances:

"judgment." "judgment" means the statement given by the Judge as the grounds of the order or decision by which a suit or appeal is determined:

"decree." "decree" means the formal order of the Court in which the result of the decision of the suit or appeal is embodied. An order on appeal, remanding a suit for re-trial, is not within this definition:

"Judge." "Judge" means the presiding officer of a Court:

"judgment-debtor." "judgment-debtor" means any person against whom a decree or order has been made:

"decree-holder." "decree-holder" means any person in whose favour a decree has been made, and includes any person to whom such decree is transferred:

"affidavit." "affidavit" means a declaration in writing sanctioned by the oath of the declarant administered by a Court or person duly authorized for that purpose:

"written." "written" includes printed and lithographed, and "writing" includes print and lithography:

"foreign Court." "foreign court" means a court situate beyond the limits of British India and not having authority in British India nor established by the Governor General in Council:

"foreign judgment." "foreign judgment" means the judgment of a foreign Court:

"public officer" defined. "public officer" means a person falling under any of the following descriptions, (namely)—

Every Judge;

Every covenanted servant of Her Majesty;

Every commissioned officer in the military or naval forces of Her Majesty while serving under Government;

Every officer of a Court of Justice whose duty it is, as such officer, to investigate or report on any matter of law or fact, or to make, authenticate, or keep any document, or to take charge or dispose of any property, or to execute any judicial process, or to administer any oath, or to interpret, or to preserve order in the Court, and every person specially authorized by a Court of Justice to perform any of such duties;

Every person who holds any office by virtue of which he is empowered to place or keep any person in confinement;

Every officer of Government whose duty it is, as such officer, to prevent offences, to give information of offences, to bring offenders to justice, or to protect the public health, safety or convenience;

Every officer whose duty it is, as such officer, to take, receive, keep, or expend any property on behalf of Government, or to make any survey, assessment, or contract on behalf of Government, or to execute any revenue process, or to investigate, or to report on any matter affecting the pecuniary interests of Government, or to make, authenticate, or keep any document relating to the pecuniary interests of Government, or to prevent the infraction of any law for the protection of the pecuniary interests of Government, and every officer in the service or pay of Government, or remunerated by fees or commission for the performance of any public duty.

"Government." And in any part of British India in which this Code operates, "Government" includes the Government of India as well as the Local Government.

Enactments repealed. 3. The enactments specified in the first schedule hereto annexed are hereby repealed to the extent mentioned in the third column of the same schedule.

References in previous Acts. But when in any Act, Regulation or Notification passed or issued prior to the day on which this Code comes into force, reference is made to Act VIII of 1859, Act XXIII of 1861, or the 'Code of Civil Procedure,' or to any other Act hereby repealed, such reference shall, so far as may be practicable, be read as applying to this Code or the corresponding part thereof;

Saving of certain Acts affecting Oudh, Panjáb, Central Provinces and Burma. 4. Save as provided in section 3, nothing herein contained shall be deemed to affect the following enactments (namely)—

The Central Provinces Courts Act, 1865:
The Panjáb Courts Act, 1865:
Act No. XXVII of 1867:
The Oudh Civil Courts Act, 1871:
The Panjáb Appeals Act, 1873:
The Burma Courts Act, 1875:

or any local law prescribing a special procedure for suits between landlord and tenant.

Sections extending to Mufassal Small Cause Courts. 5. The chapters and sections specified in the second schedule hereto annexed, extend (so far as they are applicable) to Courts of Small Causes constituted under Act No. XI of 1865. The other chapters and sections do not extend to such Courts. But nothing herein contained shall be deemed to enlarge the powers which such Courts now possess for the purposes of effecting attachments or executing decrees.

Saving of jurisdiction and procedure— 6. Nothing in this Code affects the jurisdiction or procedure—

(a) of Military Courts of Request; (a) of Military Courts of Request;

(b) of officers appointed to try small suits in Bombay; (b) of a single officer duly appointed in the Presidency of Bombay to try small suits in military bázárs at Cantonments and Stations occupied by the troops of that Presidency; or

(c) of Village Munsifs and Village Panchávats in Madras. (c) of Village Munsifs or Village Panchávats under the provisions of the Madras Code.

Saving of certain Bombay laws. 7. With respect to—

(a) the jurisdiction exercised by certain jágírdárs and other authorities invested with powers under the provisions of Bombay Regulation XIII of 1830 and Act XV of 1840 in the cases therein mentioned; and

(b) cases of the nature defined in the enactments specified in the third schedule hereto annexed, the procedure in such cases and in the appeals to the civil Courts allowed therein, shall be according to the rules laid down in this Code, except where those rules are inconsistent with any specific provisions contained in the enactments mentioned or referred to in this section.

Code not to apply to Presidency Small Cause Courts, till specially extended. 8. Save as provided in sections 25, 86, 225 and Chapter XXXIX, this Code shall not extend to any suit or proceeding in any Court of Small Causes established in the towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay.

But the Local Government may, by notification published in the official Gazette, extend to any such Court this Code or any part thereof, except so far as relates to appeals and reviews of judgment.

Division of Code. 9. This Code is divided into ten Parts as follows:—

The first Part: Suits in General.
The second Part: Incidental Proceedings.
The third Part: Suits in Particular Cases.
The fourth Part: Provisional Remedies.
The fifth Part: Special Proceedings.
The sixth Part: Appeals.
The seventh Part: References to the High Court.
The eighth Part: Review of Judgment.
The ninth Part: Special Rules relating to the High Court.
The tenth Part: Certain Miscellaneous Matters.

PART I.

OF SUITS IN GENERAL.

CHAPTER I.

OF THE JURISDICTION OF THE COURTS AND RES JUDICATA.

No person exempt from jurisdiction by reason of descent or place of birth. 10. No person shall, by reason of his descent or place of birth, be in any civil proceeding exempted from the jurisdiction of any of the Courts.

Courts to try all civil suits unless specially barred. 11. The Courts shall (subject to the provisions herein contained) have jurisdiction to try all suits of a civil nature excepting suits of which their cognizance is barred by any enactment for the time being in force.

Pending suits. 12. Except where a suit has been stayed under section 19, the Court shall not try any suit in which the matter in issue is also substantially in issue in a previously instituted suit between the same parties, or between parties under whom they or any of them claim, pending in the same or any other Court, whether superior or inferior, in British India, or in any Court beyond the limits of British India established by the Governor General in Council, or before Her Majesty in Council.

Explanation.—The pendency of a suit in a foreign Court does not preclude the Courts in British India from trying a suit founded on the same cause of action.

13. No Court shall take cognizance of any suit, nor shall it try any issue, in which the matter substantially in issue has been heard and finally decided by a Court of competent jurisdiction, in a former suit between the same parties, or between parties under whom they or any of them claim, litigating under the same title.

Res judicata.

Explanation I.—The matter above referred to must in the former suit have been alleged by one party and either denied or confessed, expressly or impliedly, by the other.

Explanation II.—Any matter which might and ought to have been made ground of defence in a former suit brought by the defendant against the plaintiff, shall be deemed to have been a matter substantially in issue in such suit.

Explanation III.—Where a foreign judgment is relied on, the production of the judgment duly authenticated is presumptive evidence that the Court which made it had competent jurisdiction, unless the contrary appear on the record; but such presumption may be removed by proving the want of jurisdiction.

No foreign judgment shall operate as a bar to a suit in British India—

(a) if it has not been given on the merits of the case:

(b) if it appears on the face of the proceedings to be founded on an incorrect view of international law or of any law in force in British India:

(c) if it is in the opinion of the Court before which it is produced contrary to natural justice:

(d) if it has been obtained by fraud:

(e) if it sustains a claim founded on a breach of any law in force in British India.

Explanation IV.—A decision is final within the meaning of this section when it is such as the Court making it could not alter (except on review) on the application of either party or reconsider of its own motion. A decision liable to appeal may be final within the meaning of this section until the appeal is made.

CHAPTER II.

OF THE PLACE OF SUING.

14. Every suit shall be instituted in the Court of the lowest grade competent to try it.

Court in which suit to be instituted.

15. Subject to the pecuniary or other limitations prescribed by any law, suits

Suits to be instituted where subject-matter situate.

(a) for the recovery of immoveable property,

(b) for the partition of immoveable property,

(c) for the foreclosure or redemption of a mortgage of immoveable property,

(d) for the determination of any other right to or interest to or in immoveable property,

(e) for compensation for wrong to immoveable property,

(f) for the recovery of moveable property distrained or attached, shall be instituted in the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the property is situate:

Provided that suits to obtain relief respecting immoveable property held by or on behalf of the defendant may, when the relief sought can be entirely obtained through his personal obedience, be instituted either in the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the property is situate, or in the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction he actually or voluntarily resides, or carries on business, or personally works for gain.

Explanation.—In this section 'property' means property situate in British India.

16. Subject to the limitations aforesaid, all other suits shall be instituted in a Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction—

Suits to be instituted where defendants reside or cause of action arose.

(a) all the defendants, at the time of the commencement of the suit, actually and voluntarily reside, or carry on business, or personally work for gain; or

(b) any of the defendants, at the time of the commencement of the suit, actually and voluntarily resides, or carries on business, or personally works for gain: provided that either the leave of the Court is given, or the defendants who do not reside, or carry on business, or personally work for gain as aforesaid acquiesce in such institution; or

(c) the cause of action arises; or

(d) a part of the cause of action arises.

Explanation I.—Where a person has a permanent dwelling at one place and also a lodging at another place for a temporary purpose only, he shall be deemed to reside at both places in respect of any cause of action arising at the place where he has such temporary lodging.

Explanation II.—A Corporation or Company shall be deemed to carry on business at its sole or principal office in British India or, in respect of any cause of action arising at any place where it has also a subordinate office, at such place.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is a tradesman in Calcutta. B carries on business in Dehli. B, by his agent in Calcutta, buys goods of A, and requests A to deliver them to the East Indian Railway Company. A delivers the goods accordingly in Calcutta. A may sue B for the price of the goods either in Calcutta, where the cause of action has arisen, or in Dehli, where B carries on business.

(b.) A, resides at Simla, B at Calcutta, and C at Dehli. A, B and C being together at Benares, B and C make a joint promissory note payable on demand, and deliver it to A. A may sue B and C at Benares, where the cause of action arose. He may also sue them at Calcutta, where B resides, or at Delhi, where C resides; but in each of these cases, if the non-resident defendant objects, the suit cannot be maintained without the leave of the Court.

(c.) A draws in Simla, a bill on B, who accepts the bill in Calcutta, and returns it by post to A. The bill does not mention any place of payment. It is presented to B in Calcutta, and he fails to pay. One part of the cause of action has arisen at Simla and others at Calcutta. The suit may therefore be brought either in Simla or in Calcutta.

(d.) A signs a contract in Calcutta for the delivery of rice to B at Dehli, and delivers it accordingly. B does not pay the price, and A sues him for it. One part of the cause of action has arisen in Calcutta and another in Dehli. The suit may therefore be brought either in Calcutta or in Dehli.

(e.) A. lets a house in Howrah to B, at a monthly rent payable in Howrah. A dies intestate. C obtains in Calcutta, a grant of letters of administration to A's estate. B allows the rent to fall into arrear. One part of the cause of action has arisen in Calcutta and another in Howrah, and C may therefore sue B for the arrears either in Calcutta or in Howrah.

17. In suits for compensation for wrong done to person or moveable property, if the wrong was done within the local limits of the jurisdiction of one Court and the defendant resides, or carries on business, or personally works for gain within the local limits of the jurisdiction of another Court, the plaintiff may at his option sue in either of the said Courts.

Forum in suits for compensation for wrongs.

Illustrations.

(a.) A, residing in Dehli, beats B in Calcutta. B may sue A either in Calcutta or in Dehli.

(b.) A, residing in Dehli, publishes in Calcutta statements defamatory of B. B may sue A either in Calcutta or in Dehli.

(c.) A, travelling on the line of a Railway Company whose principal office is at Howrah, is upset and injured at Allahabad by negligence imputable to the Company. He may sue the Company either at Howrah or at Allahabad.

18. If the suit be for immoveable property situate within the limits of a single district, but within the jurisdiction of different Courts, the suit may be instituted in the Court within whose jurisdiction any portion of the property is situate; provided that, in respect of the value of the subject-matter of the suit, the entire claim be cognizable by such Court.

Suits for immoveable property situate in single districts, but within jurisdictions of different Courts.

If the immoveable property be situate within the limits of different districts, the suit may be instituted in any Court, otherwise competent to try it, within whose jurisdiction any portion of the property is situate.

Suits for immoveable property situate in different districts.

19. If a suit which may be instituted in more than one Court is instituted in a Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction only part of the cause of action arose, and where the defendant or all the defendants does not or do not actually and voluntarily reside, or carry on business, or personally work for gain, the defendant or any defendant may, after giving notice in writing to the other parties of his intention to apply to the Court to stay proceedings, apply to the Court accordingly;

Power to stay proceedings where the whole cause of action did not arise and all defendants do not reside within jurisdiction.

and if the Court, after hearing such of the parties as desire to be heard, is satisfied that justice is more likely to be done by the suit being instituted in some other Court, it may stay proceedings either finally or till further order, and make such order as it thinks fit as to the costs already incurred by the parties or any of them.

In such case, if the plaintiff so requires, the Court shall return the plaint with an endorsement thereon of the order staying proceedings.

Every such application shall be made at the earliest possible opportunity, and in all cases before the issues are settled; and any defendant not so applying shall be deemed to have acquiesced in the institution of the suit.

Application when to be made.

20. Where the Court, under section 19, stays proceedings, and the plaintiff re-institutes his suit in another Court, the plaint shall not be chargeable with any court-fee: provided that the proper fee has been levied on the institution of the suit in the former Court, and that the plaint has been returned by such Court.

Remission of Court-fee where suit instituted in another Court.

The interval between the institution of the suit and the date of so staying proceedings and the time requisite for proceeding from the Court in which proceedings are stayed to the Court in which the suit is re-instituted shall be excluded in computing the period of limitation prescribed for such suit.

Computation of period of limitation for such suits.

21. Where a suit may be instituted in more Courts than one, and such Courts are subordinate to the same appellate Court, any defendant, after giving notice in writing to the other parties of his intention to apply to such Court to transfer the suit to another Court, may apply accordingly; and the appellate Court, after hearing the other parties if they desire to be heard, shall determine in which of the Courts having jurisdiction the suit shall proceed.

Procedure where Courts in which suit may be instituted are subordinate to the same appellate Court.

22. Where such Courts are subordinate to different appellate Courts, but are subordinate to the same High Court, any defendant, after giving notice in writing to the other parties of his intention to apply to the High Court to transfer the suit to another Court having jurisdiction, may apply accordingly. If the suit is brought in any Court subordinate to a District Court, the application, together with the objections, if any, filed by the other parties, shall be submitted through the District Court to which such Court is subordinate. The High Court may, after considering the objections, if any, of the other parties, determine in which of the Courts having jurisdiction the suit shall proceed.

Procedure where they are not so subordinate.

23. Where such Courts are subordinate to different High Courts, any defendant may, after giving notice in writing to the other parties of his intention to apply to the High Court within whose jurisdiction the Court in which the suit is brought is situate, apply accordingly.

Procedure where they are subordinate to different High Courts.

If the suit is brought in any Court subordinate to a District Court, the application, together with the objections, if any, filed by the other parties, shall be submitted through the District Court to which such Court is subordinate, and such High Court shall, after considering the objections, if any, of the other parties, determine in which of the several Courts having jurisdiction the suit shall proceed.

24. If, in a suit for immoveable property, the defendant object to the hearing of the suit on the ground that no part of the property is situate within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court in which the suit is instituted, or to which it has been transferred, the Court may by order determine the point; and if the Court find that the property or any part thereof is situate within such limits, it shall proceed to try the suit.

Suit for immoveable property alleged to be within another local jurisdiction.

25. The High Court or the District Court may, either of its own motion or on the application of any of the parties, after giving notice to the parties and hearing such of them as desire to be heard, withdraw any suit instituted in any Court subordinate to such High Court or District Court, as the case may be, and try the suit itself, or transfer it for trial to any other such subordinate Court competent to try the same in respect of its nature and the amount or value of its subject-matter.

For the purposes of this section the Courts of Additional and Assistant Judges shall be deemed to be subordinate to the District Court.

The Court trying any suit withdrawn under this section from a Court of Small Causes shall, for the purposes of such suit, be deemed to be a Court of Small Causes.

CHAPTER III.

OF PARTIES AND THEIR APPEARANCES, APPLICATIONS AND ACTS.

Persons who may be joined as plaintiffs.

26. All persons may be joined as plaintiffs in whom the right to any relief claimed is alleged to exist, whether jointly, severally, or in the alternative, in respect of the same cause of action. And judgment may be given for such one or more of the plaintiffs as may be found to be entitled to relief, for such relief as he or they may be entitled to, without any amendment. But the defendant, though unsuccessful, shall be entitled to his costs occasioned by so joining any person who is not found entitled to relief, unless the Court in disposing of the costs of the suit otherwise directs.

Court may substitute or add plaintiff for or to plaintiff suing.

27. Where a suit has been instituted in the name of the wrong person as plaintiff, or where it is doubtful whether it has been instituted in the name of the right plaintiff, the Court may, if satisfied that the suit has been so commenced through a bonâ fide mistake, and that it is necessary for the determination of the real matter in dispute so to do, order any other person or persons to be substituted or added as plaintiff or plaintiffs upon such terms as may seem just.

Persons who may be joined as defendants.

28. All persons may be joined as defendants against whom the right to any relief is alleged to exist, whether jointly, severally or in the alternative, in respect of the same cause of action. And judgment may be given against such one or more of the defendants as may be found to be liable, according to their respective liabilities, without any amendment.

Joinder of parties liable on same contract.

29. The plaintiff may, at his option, join as parties to the same suit all or any of the persons severally, or jointly and severally, liable on any one contract, including parties to bills of exchange, hundís and promissory notes.

One party may sue or defend on behalf of all in same interest.

30. Where there are numerous parties having the same interest in one suit, one or more of such parties may sue or be sued, or may be authorized by the Court to defend in such suit, on behalf or for the benefit of all parties so interested.

Suit not to fail by reason of misjoinder.

31. No suit shall be defeated by reason of the misjoinder of parties, and the Court may in every suit deal with the matter in controversy so far as regards the rights and interests of the parties actually before it.

Court may dismiss or add parties.

32. The Court may, at any time before the issues are settled, either upon or without the application of either party, and on such terms as may appear to the Court to be just, order that the name of any party whether as plaintiff or as defendant, improperly joined, be struck out; and that the name of any party whether plaintiff or defendant, who ought to have been joined, or whose presence before the Court may be necessary in order to enable the Court effectually and completely to adjudicate upon and settle all the questions involved in the suit, be added.

No one to be added as plaintiff or as next friend without his consent.

No person shall be added as a plaintiff, or as the next friend of a plaintiff, without his own consent thereto.

Defendants added to be served.

All parties whose names are so added as defendants shall be served with a summons in manner hereinafter mentioned, and the proceedings as against them shall be deemed to have begun only on the service of such summons.

Where defendant added, plaintiff to amend.

33. Where a defendant is added, the plaint, if previously filed, shall, unless the Court direct otherwise, be amended in such manner as may be necessary, and an amended copy of the summons shall be served on the new defendant and the original defendants.

Time for taking objections as to non-joinder or misjoinder of parties.

34. All objections for want of parties, or for joinder of parties who have no interest in the suit, or for misjoinder as co-plaintiffs or co-defendants, shall be taken at the earliest possible opportunity, and in all cases before the issues are settled; and any such objection not taken before the issues are settled shall be deemed to have been waived by the defendant.

Each of several plaintiffs or defendants may authorize any other to appear, &c., for him.

35. When there are more plaintiffs than one, any one or more of them may be authorized by any other of them to appear, plead, or act for such other in any proceeding under this Code: and in like manner when there are more defendants than one, any one or more of them may be authorized by any other of them to appear, plead or act for such other in any such proceeding.

Authority to be in writing signed and filed.

The authority shall be in writing, signed by the party giving it, and shall be filed in Court.

Recognized Agents and Pleaders.

Appearances, &c., may be in person, by recognized agent or by pleader.

36. Any appearance, application or act in or to any Court, required or authorized by law to be made or done by a party to a suit in such Court, may, except when otherwise expressly provided by this Code, be made or done by the party in person, or by his recognized agent, or by a pleader duly appointed to act on his behalf:

Provided that any such appearance shall be made by the party in person if the Court so direct.

Recognized agents.

37. The recognized agents of parties by whom such appearances, applications and acts may be made or done are—

Persons holding powers-of-attorney from parties out of jurisdiction.

(a). persons holding general powers-of-attorney from parties not resident within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court within which limits the appearance, application or act is made or done, authorizing them to make and do such appearances, applications and acts on behalf of such parties.

Certificated mukhtárs.

(b). mukhtárs certificated under any law for the time being in force, and holding special powers of attorney authorising them to do, on behalf of their principals, such acts as may legally be done by mukhtárs.

Persons carrying on trade or business for parties out of jurisdiction.

(c). persons carrying on trade or business for and in the names of parties not resident within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court within which limits the appearance, application or act is made or done, in matters connected with such trade or business only, where no other agent is expressly authorized to make and do such appearances, applications and acts.

Recognized agents in Panjáb, Oudh and Central Provinces.

Nothing in the former part of this section applies to the territories now administered respectively by the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjáb, and the Chief Commissioners of Oudh and the Central Provinces; but in those territories the recognized agents of parties by whom such appearances, applications and acts may be made and done shall be such persons as the Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, declare in this behalf.

Service of process on recognized agent.

38. Processes served on the recognized agent of a party to a suit shall be as effectual as if the same had been served on the party in person, unless the Court otherwise directs.

The provisions of this Code for the service of process on a party to a suit shall apply to the service of process on his recognized agent.

Appointment of pleader.

39. The appointment of a pleader to make or do any appearance, application or act as aforesaid shall be in writing under the hand of his client and shall be filed in Court.

When so filed, it shall be considered to be in force until revoked with the permission of the Court, by a writing signed by the client and filed in Court, or until the client or the pleader dies, or the decree or final order is drawn up.

No advocate of any High Court established by Royal Charter shall be required to file or present any document empowering him to act.

Service of process on pleader.

40. Processes served on the pleader of any party or left at the office or ordinary residence of such pleader, relative to a suit, and whether the same be for the personal appearance of the party or not, shall be presumed to be duly communicated and made known to the party whom the pleader represents; and, unless the Court otherwise directs, shall be as effectual for all purposes in relation to the suit as if the same had been given to or served on the party in person.

Agent to receive process.

41. Besides the recognized agents described in section 37, any person residing within the jurisdiction of the Court may be appointed an agent to accept service of process.

His appointment to be in writing and to be filed in Court.

Such appointment may be special or general, and shall be made by an instrument in writing signed by the principal, and such instrument, or, if the appointment be general, a duly attested copy thereof, shall be filed in Court.

CHAPTER IV.

OF THE FRAME OF THE SUIT.

Suit how to be framed.

42. Every suit shall, as far as practicable, be so framed as to afford ground for a final decision upon the subjects in dispute, and so to prevent further litigation concerning them.

Suit to include the whole claim.

43. Every suit shall include the whole of the claim arising out of the cause of action; but a plaintiff may relinquish any portion of his claim in order to bring the suit within the jurisdiction of any Court.

Relinquishment of part of claim.

If a plaintiff omit to sue for, or intentionally relinquish, any portion of his claim, a suit for the portion so omitted or relinquished shall not afterwards be entertained.

Only certain claims to be joined with suit for recovery of land.

44. rule a.—No cause of action shall, unless by order of the Court, be joined with a suit for the recovery of land, except claims in respect of mesne profits or arrears of rent in respect of the premises claimed, and damages for breach of any contract under which the same or any part thereof are or is held.

Claims by or against husband and wife.

rule b.—Claims by or against husband and wife may be joined with claims by or against either of them separately.

Claims by or against executor.

rule c.—Claims by or against an executor or administrator as such, may be joined with claims by or against him personally, provided the last mentioned claims are alleged to arise with reference to the estate in respect of which the plaintiff or defendant sues or is sued as executor or administrator.

rule d.—Rules b and c shall be subject to the provisions of sections 45, 46 and 47.

Plaintiff may join several causes of action.

45. The plaintiff may unite in the same suit several causes of action, and any plaintiffs having causes of action against the same defendant or defendants, may unite such causes of action in the same suit.

Court may order separation.

But if it appear to the Court that any such causes of action cannot be conveniently tried or disposed of together, the Court may, at any time before the issues are settled, of its own motion or on the application of the defendant, order separate trials of any such causes of action.

to be had, or may make such other order as may be necessary or expedient for the separate disposal thereof.

When causes of action are so united, the jurisdiction of the Court to hear the suit shall depend on the amount or value of the aggregate subject-matters.

Defendant may apply to confine suit.

46. Any defendant alleging that the plaintiff has united in the same suit several causes of action which cannot be conveniently disposed of in one suit, may at any time before the issues are settled apply to the Court for an order confining the suit to such of the causes of action as may be conveniently disposed of in one proceeding.

Court on hearing application may exclude some causes an order amendment.

47. If, on the hearing of such application, it appears to the Court that the causes of action are such as cannot all be conveniently disposed of in one suit, the Court may order any of such causes of action to be excluded, and may direct the plaint to be amended accordingly, and may make such order as to costs as may be just.

Every amendment made under this section shall be attested by the signature of the Judge.

CHAPTER V.

OF THE INSTITUTION OF SUITS.

Suits to be commenced by plaint.

48. Every suit shall be instituted by presenting a plaint to the Court or such officer as it appoints in this behalf.

Language of plaint.

49. The plaint must be distinctly written in the language of the Court: provided that if such language is not English, the plaint may (with the permission of the Court and the consent of the defendant) be written in English.

Particulars to be contained in plaint.

50. The plaint must contain the following particulars:—

(a) the name of the Court in which the suit is brought;

(b) the name, description and place of abode of the plaintiff;

(c) the name, description and place of abode of the defendant, so far as they can be ascertained;

(d) a plain and concise statement of the circumstances constituting the cause of action, and where and when it arose;

(e) a demand of the relief which the plaintiff claims; and

(f) if the plaintiff has allowed a set-off or relinquished a portion of his claim, the amount so allowed or relinquished.

In money-suits.

If the plaintiff seek the recovery of money, the plaint must state the precise amount, so far as the case admits.

Illustration.

A sues for mesne profits:

A sues for the amount which will be found due to him on taking unsettled accounts between him and B.

In each of these cases the plaint need only state approximately the amount sued for.

Where plaintiff sues as a representative.

When the plaintiff sues in a representative character, the plaint should shew, not only that he has an actual existing interest in the subject-matter, but that he has taken the steps necessary to enable him to institute a suit concerning it.

Illustrations.

(a.) A sues as B's executor. The plaint must state that A has proved B's will.

(b.) A sues as C's administrator. The plaint must state that A has taken out administration to C's estate.

(c.) A sues as guardian of D, a Muhammadan minor. A is not D's guardian according to Muhammadan law and usage. The plaint must state that A has been specially appointed D's guardian.

Defendant's interest and liability to be shewn.

The plaint must shew that the defendant is or claims to be interested in the subject-matter, and that he is liable to be called upon to answer the plaintiff's demand.

Illustration.

A dies leaving B his executor, C his legatee, and D debtor to A's estate. C sues D to compel him to pay his debt in satisfaction of C's legacy. The plaint must shew that B has causelessly refused to sue D, or that B and D have colluded for the purpose of defrauding C, or other such circumstances rendering D liable to C.

Grounds of exemption from limitation-law.

If the cause of action arose beyond the period ordinarily allowed by any law for instituting the suit, the plaint must shew the ground upon which exemption from such law is claimed.

Plaint to be subscribed and verified.

51. The plaint shall be subscribed by the plaintiff and his pleader (if any), and shall be verified at the foot by the plaintiff or, with the permission of the Court, by some person acquainted with the facts of the case.

Contents of verification.

52. The verification must be to the effect that the same is true to the knowledge of the person making it, except as to matters stated on information and belief, and that as to those matters he believes it to be true.

When the plaint is verified by any person other than the plaintiff, such person shall set forth his knowledge or the grounds of his belief on the subject, and the reason why the verification was not made by the plaintiff.

Verification to be signed and attested.

The verification shall be signed by the person making it in the presence of a witness, who shall also sign it.

The Court may in any case examine such witness as to the fact of the signature, and shall so examine him when the person making the verification does not appear.

When the plaint may be rejected, returned for amendment, or amended.

53. The plaint may, at the discretion of the Court, and at any time before the issues are settled, be rejected, returned for amendment within a time to be fixed by the Court, or amended then and there, upon such terms as to the payment of costs occasioned by the amendment as the Court thinks fit,

(a) if it do not state correctly and without prolixity the several particulars hereinbefore required to be specified therein; or

(b) if it contain any particulars other than those so required; or

(c) if it be not subscribed and verified as hereinbefore required; or

(d) if it do not disclose a cause of action; or (e) if it is not framed in accordance with section 42.

Proviso.

Provided that a plaint cannot be altered so as to convert a suit of one character into a suit of another and inconsistent character.

Attestation of amendment.

When a plaint is amended, the amendment shall be attested by the signature of the Judge.

When the plaint shall be rejected.

54. The plaint shall be rejected in the following cases:—

(a.) If the relief sought is undervalued, and the plaintiff, on being required by the Court to correct the valuation within a time to be fixed by the Court, fails to do so:

(b.) If the relief sought is properly valued, but the plaint is written upon paper insufficiently stamped, and the plaintiff, on being required by the Court to supply the requisite stamp-paper within a time to be fixed by the Court, fails to do so:

(c.) If, in the case mentioned in section 381, the plaintiff fail to furnish security for the payment of the costs that may be incurred by the defendant:

(d.) If the suit appear from the statement in the plaint to be barred by any positive rule of law.

Procedure on rejecting a plaint.

55. When a plaint is rejected, the Judge shall record with his own hand an order to that effect with the reason for such order.

When rejection of plaint does not preclude presentation of fresh plaint.

56. The rejection of the plaint on any of the grounds hereinbefore mentioned shall not of its own force preclude the plaintiff from presenting a fresh plaint in respect of the same cause of action.

When the plaint shall be returned to be presented to the proper Court.

57. The plaint shall be returned to be presented to the proper Court in the following cases:—

(a.) If a suit has been instituted in a Court whose grade is lower or higher than that of the Court competent to try it, where such Court exists, or where no option as to the selection of the Court is allowed by law:

(b.) If, in a suit relating to immoveable property, but not coming under the proviso to section 15, it appear that no part of such property is situate within the local limits of the Court's jurisdiction:

(c.) If, in any other case, it appear that the cause of action, or a material part thereof, did not arise, and that none of the defendants are dwelling or carrying on business, or personally working for gain, within such local limits.

Procedure on returning plaint.

On returning a plaint, the Judge shall, with his own hand, endorse thereon the date of its presentation and return, the name of the party presenting it, and a brief statement of the reason for returning it.

Procedure on admitting plaint.

58. If the Court consider the plaint admissible, it shall cause the plaintiff to endorse thereon, or to annex thereto, a memorandum of the documents (if any) which he has filed along with it; and the plaintiff shall present as many copies on plain paper of the plaint as there are defendants, unless the Court by reason of the length of the plaint or the number of the defendants, or for any other sufficient reason, permit him to file a like number of concise statements.

Concise statements.

of the nature of the claim made, or of the relief or remedy required in the suit, in which case he shall file such statements.

If the plaintiff sues, or the defendant or any of the defendants is sued, in a representative capacity, the statement shall show in what capacity the plaintiff or defendant sues or is sued.

The plaintiff may, by leave of the Court, amend any such statement so as to make it correspond with the plaint.

The chief ministerial officer of the Court shall sign such endorsement and copies or statements if, on examination, he finds them to be correct.

The Court shall also cause the particulars mentioned in section 50 to be entered in a book to be kept for the purpose and called the Register of civil suits. Such entries shall be numbered in every year according to the order in which the plaint is admitted.

Production of document on which plaintiff sues.

59. If a plaintiff sue upon a document in his possession or power, he shall produce it in court when the plaint is presented, and shall at the same time deliver the document or a copy thereof to be filed with the plaint.

Delivery of document or copy.

List of other documents.

If he rely on any other documents (whether in his possession or power or not) as evidence in support of his claim, he shall enter such documents in a list to be added or annexed to the plaint.

Procedure in case of documents not in his possession or power.

60. In the case of any document not in his possession or power he shall, if possible, state in whose possession or power it is, and, when it is in the possession or power of a person not a party to the suit, shall take out a summons against such person, requiring him to file the document in court within such time after the service of the summons as the Court in each case directs, and stating the time so directed.

Suits on lost negotiable instruments.

61. In case of any suit founded upon a bill of exchange or other negotiable instrument, if it be proved that the instrument is lost, and if an indemnity be given by the plaintiff, to the satisfaction of the Court, against the claims of any other person upon such instrument, the Court may make such decree as it would have made if the plaintiff had produced the instrument in court when the plaint was presented, and had at the same time delivered a copy of the instrument to be filed with the plaint.

Production of shop-book.

62. If the document on which the plaintiff sues be an entry in a shop-book or other book in his possession or power, the plaintiff shall produce the book at the time of filing the plaint, together with a copy of the entry on which he relies.

Original entry to be marked and returned.

The Court, or such officer as it appoints in this behalf, shall forthwith mark the document for the purpose of identification; and after examining and comparing the copy with the original and attesting the copy if found correct, shall return the book to the plaintiff.

Inadmissibility of document not produced when plaint filed.

63. A document which ought to be produced in court by the plaintiff when the plaint is presented, or to be entered at the foot of the plaint, and which is not produced or entered accordingly, shall not, without the leave of the Court, be received in evidence on his behalf at the hearing of the suit.

Nothing in this section applies to documents produced for cross-examination of the defendant's witnesses, or in answer to any case set up by the defendant, or handed to a witness merely to refresh his memory.

CHAPTER VI.

OF THE ISSUE AND SERVICE OF SUMMONS.

Issue of Summons.

Summons.

64. When the plaint has been registered, and the copies or statements required by section 58 have been filed, a summons may be issued to the defendant to appear and answer the claim on a day to be therein specified, or as soon thereafter as may be practicable,

(a) in person, or

(b) by a pleader duly instructed and able to answer all material questions relating to the suit, or

(c) by a pleader accompanied by some other person able to answer all such questions.

Every such summons shall be signed by the Judge or such officer as he appoints, and shall be sealed with the seal of the Court:

Provided that no such summons shall be issued when the defendant has appeared at the presentation of the plaint and admitted the plaintiff's claim.

Indorsement of claim.

65. Every such summons shall be accompanied with one of the copies or statements mentioned in section 58.

Court may order defendant or plaintiff to appear in person.

66. If the Court see reason to require the personal appearance of the defendant, the summons shall order him to appear in person in court on the day therein specified.

If the Court see reason to require the personal appearance of the plaintiff on the same day, it may make an order for such appearance.

No party to be ordered to appear in person unless resident within 50 or, where there is a railway, 200, miles.

67. No party shall be ordered to appear in person unless he resides—

(a) within the local limits of the Court's ordinary original jurisdiction, or

(b) without such limits and at a place less than fifty, or, where there is railway communication between the place where he resides and the place where the Court is situate, two hundred, miles from the court-house.

Summons to be either to settle issues or for final disposal.

68. The Court shall determine, at the time of issuing the summons, whether it shall be for the settlement of issues only, or for the final disposal of the suit; and the summons shall contain a direction accordingly:

Provided that, in every suit cognizable by Courts of Small Causes, the summons shall be for the final disposal of the suit.

Fixing day for appearance of defendant.

69. The day for the appearance of the defendant shall be fixed by the Court with reference to its current business, the place of residence of the defendant and the time necessary for the service of the summons; and the day shall be so fixed as to allow the defendant sufficient time to enable him to appear and answer on such day.

What shall be deemed 'sufficient time' must be determined with reference to the circumstances of the case.

Summons to order defendant to produce documents required by plaintiff or relied on by defendant.

70. The summons to appear and answer shall order the defendant to produce any document in his possession or power, containing evidence relating to the merits of the plaintiff's case, or upon which the defendant intends to rely in support of his case.

On issue of summons or final disposal, parties to be directed to produce their witnesses.

71. When the summons is for the final disposal of the suit, it shall direct the defendant to produce, on the day fixed for his appearance, the witnesses upon whose evidence he intends to rely in support of his case.

Service of Summons.

Delivery of summons for service.

72. The summons shall be delivered to the proper officer of the Court, to be served by him or one of his subordinates.

Mode of service.

73. Service of the summons shall be made by delivering or tendering a copy thereof signed by the Judge or such officer as he appoints in this behalf, and sealed with the seal of the Court.

Service on several defendants.

74. When there are more defendants than one, service of the summons shall be made on each defendant:

Provided that, if the defendants are partners, and the suit relates to a partnership-transaction, the service may be made, unless the Court directs otherwise, either (a) on one defendant for himself and for the other defendants, or (b) on any person having the management of the business of the partnership at the principal place, within the local limits of the Court's ordinary original civil jurisdiction, of such business.

Service to be on defendant in person, when practicable, or on his agent.

75. Whenever it may be practicable, the service shall be on the defendant in person, unless he have an agent empowered to accept the service, in which case service on such agent shall be sufficient.

Service on agent by whom defendant carries on business.

76. In a suit relating to any business or work against a person who does not reside within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court from which the summons issues, service on any manager or agent, who, at the time of service, personally carries on such business or work for such person within such limits, shall be deemed good service.

For the purpose of this section, the master of a ship is the agent of his owner or charterer.

Service on agent in charge, in suits for immoveable property.

77. In a suit for immoveable property, if the summons cannot be served on the defendant in person, and the defendant have no agent empowered to accept the service of the summons, it may be served on any agent of the defendant in charge of the property.

When service may be on male member of defendant's family.

78. If in any suit the defendant cannot be found and if he have no agent empowered to accept the service of the summons on his behalf, the service may be made on any adult male member of the family of the defendant who is residing with him.

Explanation.—A servant is not a member of the family within the meaning of this section.

Person served to sign acknowledgment.

79. When the serving-officer delivers or tenders the copy of the summons to the defendant personally, or to an agent or other person on his behalf, the serving-officer shall require the signature of the person to whom the copy is so delivered or tendered to an acknowledgment of service endorsed on the original summons or on a copy thereof signed and sealed as aforesaid.

Endorsement of time and manner of service.

80. The serving-officer shall, in all cases in which the summons has been served under section 79, endorse or cause to be endorsed on the original summons, or on a copy thereof signed and sealed as aforesaid, the time when and the manner in which the summons was served.

Procedure when defendant refuses to accept service,

81. If the defendant or other person refuse to sign the acknowledgment or to receive the copy of the summons, or cannot be found.

or if the serving officer cannot find the defendant, and there is no agent empowered to accept the service of the summons on his behalf, nor any other person on whom the service can be made, the serving-officer shall return the summons to the Court from which it issued, with an endorsement thereon that he has been unable to serve it.

Substituted service.

82. When a summons is returned without having been served, the Court shall examine the serving-officer on oath touching the non-service; and if the Court is satisfied that there is reason to believe that the defendant is keeping out of the way for the purpose of avoiding the service, or that for any other reason the summons cannot be served in the ordinary way, the Court shall order the summons to be served by affixing a copy thereof in some conspicuous place in the court-house, and also upon some conspicuous part of the house, if any, in which the defendant is known to have last resided, or in such other manner as the Court thinks fit.

Effect of substituted service.

83. The service substituted by order of the Court, shall be as effectual as if it had been made on the defendant personally.

When service is substituted, time for appearance to be fixed.

84. Whenever service is substituted by order of the Court, the Court shall fix such time for the appearance of the defendant as the case may require.

Service of summons when defendant resides within jurisdiction of another Court and has no agent to accept service.

85. If the defendant resides within the jurisdiction of any Court other than the Court in which the suit is instituted, and has no agent resident within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the latter Court empowered to accept the service of the summons, such Court shall send the summons, either by one of its officers or by post, to any Court, not being a High Court, having jurisdiction at the place where the defendant resides, by which it can be most conveniently served, and shall fix such time for the appearance of the defendant as the case may require.

The Court to which the summons is sent shall, upon receipt thereof, deliver it to the proper officer of such Court, to be served, endorsed and returned in the manner hereinbefore directed.

Upon the return of the summons by the serving-officer, if it has not been served, the Court to which it has been sent shall examine him on oath touching the non-service and record the result; and the summons shall be sent back to the Court from which it originally issued, together with the record (if any) made under this paragraph.

Service within Presidency towns and Rangoon of process issued by Mufassal Courts.

86. Whenever any process issued by any Court established beyond the limits of the towns of Calcutta, Madras, Bombay and Rangoon is to be served within any such town, it shall be sent to the Court of Small Causes within whose jurisdiction the process is to be served, and such Court of Small Causes shall cause it to be served in the same manner as if it had issued from such Court, and, after having been so served, the process shall be returned to the Court from which it issued.

Service on defendant in jail.

87. If the defendant be in jail, the summons shall be delivered to the officer in charge of the jail in which the defendant is confined, and such officer shall cause the summons to be served upon the defendant.

The summons shall be returned to the Court from which it issued, with a statement of the service endorsed thereon and signed by the officer in charge of the jail and by the defendant.

Procedure if jail be in a different district.

88. If the jail in which the defendant is confined is not in the district in which the suit is instituted, the summons may be sent by post or otherwise to the officer in charge of such jail, and such officer shall cause the summons to be served upon the defendant, and shall return the summons to the Court from which it issued, with a statement of the service endorsed thereon, and signed as provided in section 87.

Service when defendant resides out of British India and has no agent to accept service.

89. If the defendant resides out of British India, and has no agent in British India empowered to accept the service, the summons shall be addressed to the defendant at the place where he is residing, and forwarded to him by post if there be postal communication between such place and the place where the Court is situate.

Service through British Resident or Agent of Government.

90. If there be a British Resident or Agent of Government in or for the territory in which the defendant resides, the summons may be sent to such Resident or Agent, by post or otherwise, for the purpose of being served upon the defendant; and if the Resident or Agent return the summons with an endorsement under his hand that the summons has been served on the defendant in manner hereinbefore directed, such endorsement shall be conclusive evidence of the service.

Substitution of letter for summons.

91. Nothing herein contained shall prevent the Court from substituting for the summons a letter signed by the Judge or such officer as he appoints in this behalf, when the defendant is, in the opinion of the Court, of a rank which entitles him to such mark of consideration.

The letter shall contain all the particulars required to be stated in the summons, and, subject to the provisions contained in section 92, shall be treated in all respects as a summons.

Mode of sending such letter.

92. When a letter or other communication is substituted for a summons, it may be sent by post or by a special messenger selected by the Court, or in any other manner which the Court thinks fit; unless the person whose appearance is required has an agent empowered to accept the service of the summons, in which case it may be served on such agent.

Service of Process.

Proof of due service and delivery of process sent by post.

93. Wherever this Code provides that any notice, summons, letter or other communication may be sent to the person to whom it is addressed by post, proof that the same was correctly addressed to such person at his place of residence, and that it was posted and registered according to the law for the time being regulating the management of the Post Office shall, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, be sufficient proof of the due service and delivery of the notice summons, letter or other communication.

Process to be served at expense of party issuing it.

94. Every process required to be issued under this Code shall be served at the expense of the party at whose instance it is issued, unless the Court otherwise directs.

Costs of service.

The sum required to defray the costs of such service shall be paid into Court before the process is issued, within a period to be fixed by the Court issuing the process.

Postage.

Postage, where chargeable on any notice, summons, letter or other communication forwarded by post and the fee for registering the same, shall be costs required to be paid as aforesaid within the meaning of this section.

Fixing of costs of service.

In fixing the costs to be paid for service of process, regard shall be had to any law or to any rules issued by the High Court for fixing the amount of such costs.

Notices and orders in writing how served.

95. All notices and orders required by this Code to be served on any person shall be in writing, and shall be served in the manner hereinbefore provided for the service of summons.

CHAPTER VII.

OF THE APPEARANCE OF THE PARTIES AND CONSEQUENCE OF NON-APPEARANCE.

Parties to appear on day fixed in summons for defendant to appear and answer.

96. On the day fixed in the summons for the defendant to appear and answer, the parties shall be in attendance at the Court-house in person or by their respective pleaders, and the suit shall then be heard, unless the hearing be adjourned to a future day fixed by the Court.

Dismissal of suit where summons not served in consequence of plaintiff's failure to deposit costs of issuing it.

97. If on the day so fixed for the defendant to appear and answer, it be found that the summons has not been served upon him in consequence of the failure of the plaintiff to deposit, within the period fixed by the Court, the sum required to defray the cost of issuing or serving such summons, the Court may order that the suit be dismissed:

Proviso.

Provided that no such order shall be passed, although the summons has not been served upon the defendant, if, on the day fixed for him to appear and answer, he attends in person or by a duly authorized agent, when he is allowed to appear by agent.

If neither party appear, suit to be dismissed.

98. If on the day so fixed for the defendant to appear and answer, or on any other subsequent day to which the hearing of the suit may be adjourned, neither party appears, the suit shall be dismissed, unless the Judge, for reasons to be recorded under his hand, otherwise directs.

In such case plaintiff may bring fresh suit;

99. Whenever a suit is dismissed under section 97 or section 98, the plaintiff may (subject to the law of limitation) bring a fresh suit; or if, within the period of thirty days from the date of the order dismissing the suit, he satisfies the Court that there was a sufficient excuse for his not making the deposit required within the time allowed or for his non-appearance, as the case may be, the Court shall pass an order to set aside the dismissal and appoint a day for proceeding with the suit.

or Court may restore the suit to its file.

Procedure if only plaintiff appear.

100. If the plaintiff appears and the defendant does not appear, the procedure shall be as follows:—

When summons was duly served.

(a) if it is proved that the summons was duly served, the Court may proceed ex parte:

When summons not duly served.

(b) if it is not proved that the summons was duly served, the Court shall direct a second summons to be issued and served on the defendant:

When summons served, but not in due time.

(c) if it is proved that the summons was served on the defendant, but not in sufficient time to enable him to appear and answer on the day fixed in the summons, the Court shall postpone the hearing of the suit to a future day to be fixed by the Court, and shall direct notice of such day to given to the defendant.

Procedure where defendant appears on day of adjourned hearing, and assigns good cause for previous non-appearance.

101. If the Court has adjourned the hearing of the suit ex parte, and the defendant, at or before such hearing, appears and assigns good cause for his previous non-appearance, he may, upon such terms as the Court may direct as to costs or otherwise, be heard in answer to the suit, as if he had appeared on the day fixed for his appearance.

Procedure where defendant only appears.

102. If the defendant appears and the plaintiff does not appear, the Court shall dismiss the suit, unless the defendant admits the claim, or part thereof, in which case the Court shall pass a decree against the defendant upon such admission, and where part only of the claim has been admitted, shall dismiss the suit so far as it relates to the remainder.

Decree against plaintiff by default bars fresh suit.

When a suit is wholly or partially dismissed under this section, the plaintiff shall be precluded from bringing a fresh suit in respect of the same cause of action. But he may apply for an order to set the dismissal aside; and if it be proved that he was prevented by any sufficient cause from appearing when the suit was called on for hearing, the Court shall set aside the dismissal upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit, and shall appoint a day for proceeding with the suit.

No order shall be made under the second paragraph of this section unless the plaintiff has served the defendant with notice in writing of his application.

Procedure where defendant residing out of British India does not appear.

103. If, on the day fixed for the hearing of a suit against a defendant residing out of British India, who has no agent empowered to accept service of summons, or on any day to which the hearing has been adjourned, the defendant does not appear, the plaintiff may apply to the Court for permission to proceed with his suit, and the Court may direct that the plaintiff be at liberty to proceed with his suit in such manner and subject to such conditions as the Court thinks fit.

Procedure in case of non-attendance of one or more of several plaintiffs.

104. If there be more plaintiffs than one, and one or more of them appear, and the others of them do not appear, the Court may, at the instance of the plaintiff or plaintiffs who may appear, permit the suit to proceed in the same way as if all the plaintiffs had appeared, and pass such order as it thinks fit.

Procedure in case of non-attendance of one or more of several defendants.

105. If there be more defendants than one, and one or more of them appear, and the others of them do not appear, the suit shall proceed, and the Court shall, at the time of passing judgment, make such order as it thinks fit with respect to the defendants who do not appear.

Consequence of non-attendance, without sufficient cause shown, of party ordered to appear in person.

106. If a plaintiff or defendant, who has been ordered to appear in person under the provisions of section 66 or section 436, does not appear in person, or show sufficient cause to the satisfaction of the Court for failing so to appear, he shall be subject to all the provisions of the foregoing sections applicable to plaintiffs and defendants, respectively, who do not appear.

Court to receive written declaration in support of cause shown for failure to appear.

107. In support of the cause shown by a plaintiff or defendant for failing to appear in person, the Court shall receive any declaration in writing signed by such plaintiff or defendant and verified in manner hereinbefore provided for the verification of plaints.

Of setting aside Decrees ex parte.

Setting aside decree ex parte against defendant.

108. In any case in which a decree is passed ex parte against a defendant under section 100, he may apply to the Court by which the decree was made for an order to set it aside; and if it be proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the summons was not duly served, or that the defendant was prevented by any sufficient cause from appearing when the suit was called on for hearing, the Court shall pass an order to set aside the decree upon such terms as to costs, payment into Court, or otherwise, as it thinks fit, and shall appoint a day for proceeding with the suit.

No decree to be set aside, without notice to opposite party.

109. No decree shall be set aside on any such application as aforesaid, unless notice thereof in writing has been served on the opposite party.

CHAPTER VIII.

OF WRITTEN STATEMENTS AND SET-OFF.

Written statements.

110. The parties may, at the first hearing of the suit, tender written statements of their respective cases, and the Court shall receive such statements, place them on the record, and deal with them as if given in evidence.

Particulars of set-off to be given in written statement.

111. If in a suit for the recovery of money the defendant claims to set-off against the plaintiff's demand any ascertained sum of money legally recoverable by him from the plaintiff, and if in such claim of the defendant against the plaintiff both parties fill the same character as they fill in the plaintiff's suit, the defendant may, at the first hearing of the suit, but not afterwards unless permitted by the Court, tender a written statement containing the particulars of the debt sought to be set-off.

The Court shall thereupon enquire into the same, and if it find that the case fulfils the requirements of the former part of this section, and that the amount claimed to be set-off does not exceed the pecuniary limits of its jurisdiction, the Court shall set-off the one debt against the other.

Enquiry.

Such set-off shall have the same effect as a plaint in a cross-suit, so as to enable the Court to pronounce a final judgment in the same suit, both on the original and on the cross-claim.

Effect of set-off.

When the defendant, for the purpose of availing himself of the provisions contained in this section, intentionally relinquishes any portion of his claim against the plaintiff, nothing in section 43 shall apply to the portion so relinquished.

Relinquishment of portion of claim for purpose of set-off.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths Rs. 2,000 to B, and appoints C his executor and residuary legatee. B dies and D takes out administration to B's effects. C pays Rs. 1,000 as surety for D. Then D sues C for the legacy. C cannot set-off the debt of Rs. 1,000 against the legacy, for neither C nor D fills the same character with respect to the legacy as they fill with respect to the payment of the Rs. 1,000.

(b) A dies intestate and in debt to B. C takes out administration to A's effects, and B buys part of the effects from C. In a suit for the purchase-money by C against B, the latter cannot set-off the debt against the price, for C fills two different characters, one as the vendor to B, in which he sues B, and the other as representative to A, in which B seeks the set-off.

(c) A sues B on a bill of exchange. B alleges that A has wrongfully neglected to insure B's goods and is liable to him in compensation which he claims to set-off. The amount not being ascertained cannot be set-off.

(d) A sues B on a bill of exchange for Rs. 500. B holds a judgment against A for Rs. 1,000. The two claims being both definite pecuniary demands may be set-off.

(e) A sues B for compensation on account of a trespass. B holds a promissory note for Rs. 1,000 from A and claims to set-off that amount against any sum that A may recover in the suit. B may do so, for as soon as A recovers, both sums are definite pecuniary demands.

(f) A and B sue C for Rs. 1,000. C cannot set-off a debt due to him by A alone.

(g) A sues B and C for Rs. 1,000. B cannot set-off a debt due to him alone by A.

(h) A owes the partnership firm of B and C Rs. 1,000. B dies leaving C surviving. A sues C for a debt of Rs. 1,500 due in his separate character. C may set-off the debt of Rs. 1,000.

112. Except as provided in the last preceding section, no written statement shall be received after the first hearing of the suit:

No written statement to be received after first hearing unless called for by Court.

Provided the Court may at any time require a written statement, or additional written statement, from any of the parties, and fix a time for presenting the same:

Court may at any time call for written statement.

Provided also that a written statement, or an additional written statement, may, with the permission of the Court, be received at any time for the purpose of answering written statements so required and presented.

113. If any party from whom a written statement is so required fails to present the same within the time fixed by the Court, the Court may pass a decree against him, or make such other order in relation to the suit as it thinks fit.

Procedure when party fails to present written statement called for by Court.

114. Written statements shall be as brief as the nature of the case admits, and shall not be argumentative, but shall be confined as much as possible to a simple narrative of the facts which the party by whom or on whose behalf the written statement is made believes to be material to the case, and which he believes he will be able to prove.

Frame of written statements.

Every such statement shall be divided into paragraphs, numbered consecutively, and each paragraph containing as nearly as may be a separate allegation.

115. Written statements shall be subscribed and verified in the manner hereinbefore provided for subscribing and verifying plaints, and no written statement shall be received unless it be so subscribed and verified.

Written statements to be subscribed and verified.

The provisions of section 52 as to examining witnesses as to the fact of signature shall apply in the case of written statements.

116. If it appear to the Court that any written statement, whether called for by the Court or spontaneously tendered, is argumentative or prolix, or contains matter irrelevant to the suit, the Court may amend it then and there, or may, by an order to be endorsed thereon, reject the same, or return it to the party by whom it was made for amendment within a time to be fixed by the Court, imposing such terms as to costs or otherwise as the Court thinks fit.

Rejection of argumentative, prolix or irrelevant written statements.

When any amendment is made under this section, the Judge shall attest it by his signature.

When a statement has been rejected under this section, the party making it shall not present another written statement, unless it be expressly called for or allowed by the Court.

117. Every allegation of fact in any written statement, if not denied specifically or by necessary implication, or stated to be not admitted by the opposite party, shall be taken to be admitted for the purposes of the suit.

Allegation of fact not denied admitted for purpose of suit.

CHAPTER IX.

OF THE EXAMINATION OF THE PARTIES BY THE COURT.

118. At the first hearing of the suit, or at any subsequent hearing, any party appearing in person or present in Court, or any person able to answer any material questions relating to the suit by whom he or his pleader is accompanied, may be examined orally by the Court; and the Court may, if it thinks fit, put in the course of such examination questions suggested by either party.

Oral examination of party, or companion of himself or his pleader.

119. The substance of the examination shall be reduced to writing by the Judge, and shall form part of the record.

Substance of examination to be written.

120. If the pleader of any party who appears by a pleader refuses or is unable to answer any material question relating to the suit which the Court is of opinion that the party whom he represents ought to answer, and is likely to be able to answer if interrogated in person, the Court may postpone the hearing of the suit to a future day, and direct that such party shall appear in person on such day.

Consequence of refusal or inability of pleader to answer.

If such party fails without lawful excuse to appear in person on the day so appointed, the Court may pass a decree against him, or make such order in relation to the suit as it thinks fit.

CHAPTER X.

OF DISCOVERY AND OF THE ADMISSION, INSPECTION, PRODUCTION, IMPOUNDING AND RETURN OF DOCUMENTS.

Discovery.

121. At any time before the settlement of issues, either party may without any order for that purpose, and any party may at any time by leave of the Court, deliver through the Court interrogatories in writing for the examination of the opposite party, or where there are more opposite parties than one, any one or more of such parties, with a note at the foot thereof stating which of such interrogatories each of such persons is required to answer:

Power to deliver interrogatories.

Provided that no party shall deliver more than one set of interrogatories to the same person without the permission of the Court.

122. Interrogatories delivered under section 121 shall be served in the manner hereinbefore provided for the service of summons, and the provisions of sections 79, 80 and 81 shall, mutatis mutandis, apply to the serving officer.

Service of interrogatories.

123. The Court, in adjusting the costs of the suit, shall, at the instance of any party, inquire or cause inquiry to be made into the propriety of delivering such interrogatories; and if it thinks that such interrogatories have been delivered unreasonably, vexatiously or at improper length, the costs occasioned by the said interrogatories and the answers thereto shall be borne by the party in fault.

Inquiry into propriety of exhibiting interrogatories.

124. If any party to a suit be a body corporate or a joint stock company, whether incorporated or not, or any other body of persons empowered by law to sue or be sued, whether in its own name or in the name of any officer or other person, any opposite party may apply to the Court for an order allowing him to deliver interrogatories to any member or officer of such corporation, company or body, and an order may be made accordingly.

Service of interrogatories on officer of corporation or company.

125. Any party called upon to answer interrogatories, whether by himself or by any such member or officer, may refuse to answer any interrogatory on the ground that it is irrelevant, or is not put bonâ fide for the purposes of the suit, or that the matter inquired after is not sufficiently material at that stage of the suit, or on any other like ground.

Power to strike out interrogatories as irrelevant, &c.

126. Interrogatories shall be answered by affidavit to be filed in Court within ten days from the service thereof or within such other time as the Judge may allow.

Time for filing affidavit in answer.

127. If any person interrogated omits or refuses to answer, or answers insufficiently, any interrogatory, the party interrogating may apply to the Court for an order requiring him to answer or to answer further, as the case may be. And an order may be made requiring him to answer or to answer further either by affidavit or by viva voce examination as the Judge may direct. Provided that the Judge shall not require an answer to any interrogatory which in his opinion need not have been answered under section 125.

Procedure where a party omits to answer sufficiently.

Admission of Documents.

128. Either party may, by a demand made in writing, within a reasonable time, not being less than four days before the hearing, require the other party to admit (saving all just exceptions to the admissibility of such document in evidence) the genuineness of any document material to the suit.

Power to demand admission of genuineness of documents.

The demand shall be served through the Court in the manner hereinbefore provided for the service of summons, and the provisions of sections 79, 80 and 81 shall, mutatis mutandis, apply to the serving officer.

The admission shall also be made in writing and filed in Court by the other party.

If such demand be not made, no costs of proving such document shall be allowed, unless the Judge otherwise orders.

If such demand is not complied with within four days after its being served, and the Judge thinks it reasonable that the admission should have been made, the party refusing shall bear the expense of proving such document, whatever may be the result of the suit.

Production of Documents.

129. The Court may, at any time during the pendency therein of any suit, order the production by any party thereto of such of the documents in his possession or power relating to any matter in question in such suit or proceeding as the Court thinks right; and the Court may deal with such documents when produced in such manner as appears just.

Power to order production of documents during suit.

130. Any party may apply to the Court for an order directing any other party to the suit to declare by affidavit all the documents which are or have been in his possession or power relating to any matter in question in the suit or proceeding.

Application for order for discovery of document.

Every such affidavit shall specify which, if any, of the documents therein mentioned the declarant objects to produce.

Affidavit in answer to such order.

131. Every party to a suit may at any time before or at the hearing thereof give notice through the Court to any other party in whose plaint, written statement or affidavits reference is made to any document, to produce such document in the presence of such officer as the Court appoints in this behalf, for the inspection of the party giving such notice or of his pleader, and to permit such party or pleader to take copies thereof.

Notice to produce for inspection documents referred to in plaint, &c.

No party failing to comply with such notice shall afterwards be at liberty to put any such document in evidence on his behalf in such suit, unless he satisfies the Court that such document relates only to his own title, or that he had some other and sufficient cause for not complying with such notice.

Consequence of non-compliance with such notice.

132. The party to whom such notice is given shall, within four days from the receipt thereof, deliver through the Court to the party giving the same a notice stating a time within three days from such delivery at which the documents or such of them as he does not object to produce, may be inspected at his pleader's office or some other convenient place, and stating which, if any, of the documents he objects to produce, and on what grounds.

Party receiving such notice to deliver notice when and where inspection may be had.

133. If any party served with notice under section 131 omits to give notice under section 132 of the time for inspection, or objects to give inspection, or names an inconvenient place for inspection, the party desiring it may apply to the Court for an order of inspection.

Application for order of inspection.

134. Except in the case of documents referred to in the plaint, written statement, or affidavit of the party against whom the application is made, or disclosed in his affidavit of documents, such application shall be founded upon an affidavit showing (a) of what documents inspection is sought, (b) that the party applying is entitled to inspect them, and (c) that they are in the possession or power of the party against whom the application is made.

Application to be founded on affidavit.

135. If the party from whom discovery of any kind or inspection is sought, objects to the same or any part thereof, and if the Court is satisfied that the right to such discovery or inspection depends on the determination of any issue or question in dispute in the suit or that for any other reason it is desirable that any such issue or question should be determined before deciding upon the right to the discovery or inspection, the Court may order that the issue or question be determined first and reserve the question as to the discovery or inspection.

Power to order issue or question on which right to discovery depends to be first determined.

136. If any party fail to comply with any order under this chapter to answer interrogatories or for discovery or inspection, which has been served personally upon him, he shall, if a plaintiff, be liable to have his suit dismissed for want of prosecution, and if a defendant, to have his defence, if any, struck out, and to be placed in the same position as if he had not defended; and the party interrogating or seeking discovery or inspection may apply to the Court for an order to that effect, and the Court may make such order accordingly.

Consequences of failure to answer or give inspection.

Any party failing to comply with any order under this chapter to answer interrogatories or for discovery or inspection of documents, which has been served personally upon him, shall also be deemed guilty of an offence under section 188 of the Indian Penal Code.

137. The Court may, of its own accord, and may, in its discretion, upon the application of any of the parties to a suit send for, either from its own records or from any other Court, the record of any other suit or proceeding, and inspect the same.

Court may send for papers from its own records or from other Courts.

Every application made under this section must, if the Court so require, be supported by an affidavit of the applicant or his pleader, showing how the record is material to the suit in which the application is made and that the applicant cannot obtain a duly authenticated copy of the record or such portion thereof as the applicant requires.

Production of Documents at first Hearing.

138. The parties or their pleaders shall bring with them and have in readiness at the first hearing of the suit, to be produced when called for by the Court, all the documentary evidence of every description in their possession or power, on which they intend to rely, and which has not already been filed in Court, and all documents or other things specified in any order made under section 130 at any time before the hearing of the suit.

Documentary evidence to be produced at first hearing.

139. No documentary evidence in the possession or power of any party the production of which has been called for under section 138, and which has not been produced, shall be received at any subsequent stage of the proceedings unless good cause be shown to the satisfaction of the Court for the non-production thereof. And the Judge receiving any such evidence shall record his reasons for so doing.

Effect of non-production of documents.

140. The Court shall receive the documents produced by the parties at the first hearing.

Documents to be received by Court.

The Court may at any stage of the suit reject any document which it considers irrelevant or otherwise inadmissible, recording the grounds of such rejection.

Rejection of irrelevant or inadmissible documents.

141. No document shall be placed on the record unless it has been proved or admitted in accordance with the law of evidence for the time being in force. Every document so proved or admitted shall be endorsed with the number and title of the suit, the name of the person producing it, and the date on which it was produced, and shall be filed as part of the record:

No documents to be placed on record unless proved.

Proved documents to be marked and filed.

Provided that, if the document be an entry in a shop-book or other book, the party on whose behalf such book is produced may furnish a copy of the entry, which may be endorsed as aforesaid, and shall be filed as part of the record, and the Court shall mark the entry and shall then return the book to the person producing it.

Entries in shop-books.

142. When a document is rejected by the Court, it shall be endorsed in the manner specified in the last preceding section with the addition of the word "rejected," and the endorsement shall be signed by the Judge.

Rejected documents to be marked,

The document shall then be returned to the party who produced it.

and returned; unless detained by Court.

143. Notwithstanding anything contained in sections 62, 141 and 142, the Court may, if it see sufficient cause, direct any document or book produced before it in any suit to be impounded and kept in the custody of an officer of the Court, for such period and subject to such conditions as the Court thinks fit.

Court may order any document to be impounded.

144. In suits in which an appeal is not allowed, when the suit has been disposed of, and in suits in which an appeal is allowed, when the time for preferring an appeal from the decree has elapsed, or, if an appeal has been preferred, then after the appeal has been disposed of, any person, whether a party to the suit or not, desirous of receiving back any document produced by him in the suit, and placed on the record, shall, unless the document is impounded under section 143, be entitled to receive back the same:

After lapse of time for appeal, document admitted in evidence may be returned.

Provided that a document may be returned at any time before either of such events, if the person applying for such return delivers to the proper officer a certified copy of such document to be substituted for the original:

When document may be returned before time limited.

Provided also that no document shall be returned which, by force of the decree, has become void or useless.

Document not to be returned in certain cases.

145. On the return of a document which has been admitted in evidence, a receipt shall be given by the party receiving it, in a receipt-book to be kept for the purpose.

Receipt to be given for returned document.

CHAPTER XI.

OF THE SETTLEMENT OF ISSUES.

146. Issues arise when a proposition of fact or law is affirmed by the one party and denied by the other.

Framing of issues.

They are of two kinds: (1) issues of fact, (2) issues of law.

At the first hearing of the suit, the Court shall, after reading the plaint and the written statements, if any, and after such examination of the parties as may appear necessary, ascertain upon what propositions of fact or of law the parties are at variance, and shall thereupon proceed to frame and record the issues on which the right decision of the case appears to the Court to depend.

When issues both of law and of fact arise in the same suit, and the Court is of opinion that the case may be disposed of on the issues of law only, it shall try those issues first.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to require the Court to frame and record issues when the defendant at the first hearing of the suit makes no defence.

Allegations from which issues may be framed.

147. The Court may frame the issues from any of the following materials—

(a) allegations made on oath by the parties, or by any persons present on their behalf, or made by the pleaders of such parties or persons;

(b) allegations made in the plaint or in the written statements (if any) tendered in the suit;

(c) the contents of documents produced by either party and placed on the record.

Court may examine witnesses or documents before framing issues.

148. If the Court be of opinion that the issues cannot be correctly framed without the examination of some person not before the Court, or without the inspection of some document not produced in the suit, it may adjourn the framing of the issues to a future day, to be fixed by the Court, and may compel the attendance of any person or the production of any document by the person in whose hands it may be, by summons or other process.

Power to amend, add and strike out issues.

149. The Court may at any time before passing a decree amend the issues or frame additional issues on such terms as it thinks fit, and all such amendments or additional issues as may be necessary for determining the controversy between the parties shall be so made or framed.

The Court may also, at any time before passing a decree, strike out any issues that appear to it to be wrongly framed or introduced.

Questions of fact or law may by agreement be stated in the form of an issue.

150. When the parties to a suit are agreed as to the question of fact or of law to be decided between them, they may state the same in the form of an issue, and enter into an agreement in writing,

(a) that upon the finding of the Court in the affirmative or the negative of such issue, a sum of money specified in the agreement, or to be ascertained by the Court, or in such manner as the Court may direct, shall be paid by one of the parties to the other of them, or that one of them be declared entitled to some right or subject to some liability specified in the agreement,

(b) that upon such finding some property specified in the agreement and in dispute in the suit shall be delivered by one of the parties to the other of them, or as that other may direct, or

(c) that upon such finding one or more of the parties shall do or abstain from doing some particular act, specified in the agreement, and relating to the matter in dispute.

No such agreement shall be filed after the Court has recorded issues in the suit, unless the Judge, for some reason to be recorded under his hand, otherwise directs.

Court if satisfied that the agreement was executed in good faith may give judgment.

151. If the Court be satisfied, after making such enquiry as it deems proper,

(a) that the agreement was duly executed by the parties,

(b) that they have a substantial interest in the decision of such question as aforesaid, and

(c) that the same is fit to be tried and decided, it may proceed to record and try the issue, and deliver its finding or opinion thereon in the same manner as if the issue had been framed by the Court; and may, upon the finding or decision on such issue, give judgment according to the terms of the agreement; and upon the judgment so given, decree shall follow and may be executed in the same way as if the judgment had been pronounced in a contested suit.

CHAPTER XII.

DISPOSAL OF THE SUIT AT THE FIRST HEARING.

If parties are not at issue on any question of law or fact.

152. If at the first hearing of a suit it appears that the parties are not at issue on any question of law or of fact, the Court may at once give judgment.

If one of several defendants be not at issue with the plaintiff.

153. Where there are more defendants than one, and any one of the defendants is not at issue with the plaintiff on any question of law or fact, the Court may at once give judgment for or against such defendant, and the suit shall proceed only against the other defendants.

If parties are at issue on questions of law or fact.

154. When the parties are at issue on some question of law or of fact, and issues have been framed by the Court as hereinbefore provided, if the Court be satisfied that no further argument or evidence than the parties can at once supply is required upon such of the issues as may be sufficient for the decision of the suit, and that no injustice will result from proceeding with the suit forthwith, the Court may proceed to determine such issue, and if the finding thereon is sufficient for the decision, may pronounce judgment accordingly, whether the summons has been issued for the settlement of issues only or for the final disposal of the suit:

Court may determine issue and give judgment.

Provided that, where the summons has been issued for the settlement of issues only, the parties or their pleaders are present and none of them object.

If the finding is not sufficient for the decision, the Court shall postpone the further hearing of the suit, and shall fix a day for the production of such further evidence, or for such further argument as the case requires.

If either party fails to produce his evidence, Court may give judgment.

155. If the summons has been issued for the final disposal of the suit, and either party fails without sufficient cause to produce the evidence on which he relies, the Court may at once give judgment, or if it is unable to give judgment by reason of additional evidence being required, or for any other cause, the Court shall frame and record, under section 146, the issues requiring to be determined.

Procedure where Court cannot give judgment at first hearing.

CHAPTER XIII.

OF ADJOURNMENTS.

Court may grant time, or adjourn hearing.

156. The Court may, if sufficient cause be shown, at any stage of the suit, grant time to the parties, or to any of them, and may from time to time adjourn the hearing of the suit.

In all such cases the Court shall fix a day for the further hearing of the suit, and may make such order as it thinks fit with respect to the costs occasioned by the adjournment:

Costs of adjournment.

Provided that, when the hearing of evidence has once begun, the hearing of the suit shall be continued from day to day until all the witnesses in attendance have been examined, unless the Court finds the adjournment of the hearing to be absolutely necessary for reasons to be recorded by the hand of the Judge.

Procedure if parties fail to appear on day fixed.

157. If, on any day to which the hearing of the suit is adjourned, the parties or either of them fail to appear, the Court may proceed to dispose of the suit in one of the modes directed in that behalf by Chapter VII, or make such other order as it thinks fit.

Court may proceed notwithstanding either party fails to produce his evidence.

158. If either party to a suit to whom time has been granted fails to produce his evidence, or to cause the attendance of his witnesses, or to perform any other act necessary to the further progress of the suit, for which time has been allowed, the Court may, notwithstanding such default, proceed to decide the suit forthwith.

CHAPTER XIV.

OF THE SUMMONING AND ATTENDANCE OF WITNESSES.

Summons to attend to give evidence or produce documents.

159. The parties may, after the summons has been delivered for service on the defendant, if the summons be for the final disposal of the suit; or after the issues have been recorded, if the summons to the defendant be for the settlement of issues only, obtain, on application to the Court or to such officer as it appoints in this behalf, before the day fixed for such disposal or settlement, as the case may be, summonses to persons whose attendance is required either to give evidence or to produce a document.

Expenses of witnesses to be paid into Court on applying for summons.

160. The person applying for a summons shall pay into court such a sum of money as appears to the Court to be sufficient to defray the travelling and other expenses of the person summoned, in passing to and from the court in which he is required to attend, and for one day's attendance.

Scale of expenses.

If the Court be subordinate to a High Court, regard shall be had, in fixing the scale of such expenses, to the rules (if any) laid down by competent authority.

Tender of expenses to witness.

161. The sum so paid into court shall be tendered to the person summoned, at the time of serving the summons if it can be served personally.

Procedure where insufficient sum paid in.

162. If it appear to the Court or to such officer as it appoints in this behalf that the sum paid into court is not sufficient to cover such expenses, the Court may direct such further sum to be paid to the person summoned as appears to be necessary on that account; and, in case of default in payment, may order such sum to be levied by attachment and sale of the moveable property of the person obtaining the summons; or the Court may discharge the person summoned without requiring him to give evidence.

Expenses if witness detained more than one day.

If it be necessary to detain the person summoned for a longer period than one day, the Court may from time to time order the party at whose instance he was summoned, to pay into court such sum as is sufficient to defray the expenses of his detention for such further period, and in default of such deposit being made, may order such sum to be levied by attachment and sale of the moveable property of the party at whose instance he was summoned; or the Court may discharge the person summoned without requiring him to give evidence.

Time, place, and purpose of attendance to be specified in summons.

163. Every summons for the attendance of a person to give evidence or produce a document shall specify the time and place at which he is required to attend, and also whether his attendance is required for the purpose of giving evidence or to produce a document, or for both purposes; and any particular document which the person summoned is called on to produce, shall be described in the summons with reasonable accuracy.

Summons to produce document.

164. Any person may be summoned to produce a document, without being summoned to give evidence; and any person summoned merely to produce a document shall be deemed to have complied with the summons, if he cause such document to be produced instead of attending personally to produce the same.

Power to require persons present in Court to give evidence.

165. Any person present in court may be required by the Court to give evidence or to produce any document then and there in his actual possession or power.

Service of Summons on Persons required to give Evidence or produce Documents.

Summons how served.

166. Every summons to a person to give evidence or produce a document shall be served as nearly as may be in manner hereinbefore prescribed for the service of summons on the defendant; and the rules contained in Chapter VI as to proof of service shall apply in the case of all summonses served under this section.

Time for serving summons.

167. The service shall in all cases be made a sufficient time before the time specified in the summons for the attendance of the person summoned, to allow him a reasonable time for preparation and for travelling to the place at which his attendance is required.

Attachment of property of absconding witness.

168. If the serving officer certify to the Court that the summons for the attendance of a person, either to give evidence or to produce a document, cannot be served, the Court shall examine the serving-officer on oath touching the non-service:

and upon being satisfied that such evidence or production is material, and that the person for whose attendance the summons has been issued is absconding or keeping out of the way for the purpose of avoiding the service of the summons, may cause a proclamation requiring him to attend to give evidence, or produce the document, at a time and place to be named therein.;

and a copy of such proclamation shall be affixed on some conspicuous place of the house in which he is dwelling.

If he does not attend at the time and place named in such proclamation, the Court may in its discretion, at the instance of the party on whose application the summons was issued, make an order for the attachment of the property of the person whose attendance is required, to such amount as the Court thinks fit, not exceeding the amount of the costs of attachment and of the fine which may be imposed under section 170.

Provided that no Court of Small Causes shall make an order for the attachment of immoveable property.

If witness appears, attachment may be withdrawn.

169. If, on the attachment of his property, such person appears and satisfies the Court that he did not abscond or keep out of the way to avoid service of the summons, and that he had not notice of the proclamation in time to attend at the time and place named therein, the Court shall direct that the property be released from attachment, and shall make such order as to the costs of the attachment as it thinks fit.

Procedure if witness fails to appear.

170. If such person does not appear, or appearing, fails to satisfy the Court that he did not abscond or keep out of the way to avoid service of the summons, and that he had not notice of the proclamation in time to attend at the time and place named therein, the Court may impose upon him such fine not exceeding five hundred rupees as the Court thinks fit, having regard to his condition in life and all the circumstances of the case, and may order the property attached, or any part thereof, to be sold for the purpose of satisfying all costs incurred in consequence of such attachment, together with the amount of the said fine, if any:

Provided that if the person whose attendance is required pays into Court the costs and fine as aforesaid, the Court shall order the property to be released from attachment.

Attendance of Witnesses and Consequence of Non-attendance.

171. Subject to the rules of this Code as to attendance and appearance and to the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act, if the Court at any time thinks it necessary to examine any person other than a party to the suit, and not named as a witness by a party to the suit, the Court may, of its own motion, cause such person to be summoned as a witness to give evidence, or to produce any document in his possession, on a day to be appointed, and may examine him as a witness or require him to produce such document.

Court may of its own accord summon as witnesses strangers to suit.

172. Subject as last aforesaid, whoever is summoned to appear and give evidence in a suit must attend at the time and place named in the summons for that purpose, and whoever is summoned to produce a document must either attend to produce it, or cause it to be produced, at such time and place.

Persons summoned to give evidence must attend.

173. No person so summoned and attending shall depart unless and until (a) he has been examined or has produced the document and the Court has risen, or (b) he has obtained the Court's leave to depart.

When they may depart.

174. If any person on whom a summons to give evidence or produce a document has been served fails to comply with the summons, or if any person so summoned and attending departs in contravention of section 173, the Court may order him to be arrested and brought before the Court.

Consequences of non-attendance.

Provided that no such order shall be made when the Court has reason to believe that the person so failing had a lawful excuse for such failure.

When any person so brought before the Court fails to satisfy it that he had a lawful excuse for not complying with the summons, the Court may sentence him to fine not exceeding five hundred rupees.

Explanation.—Non-payment or non-tender of a reasonable sum for expenses shall be deemed a lawful excuse within the meaning of this section.

If any person so apprehended and brought before the Court cannot, owing to the absence of the parties or any of them, give the evidence or produce the document which he has been summoned to give or produce, the Court may require him to give reasonable bail for his appearance at such time and place as it thinks fit, and on such bail being given, may release him.

Consequences of refusal to give evidence or produce documents.

175. If any person so failing to comply with a summons absconds or keeps out of the way, so that he cannot be apprehended and brought before the Court, the provisions of sections 168, 169 and 170 shall, mutatis mutandis, apply.

Procedure when witness absconds.

176. If any party present in Court refuses, without lawful excuse, when required by the Court, to give evidence, or to produce such document then and there in his actual possession or power, the Court may in its discretion either pass a decree against him, or make such other order in relation to the suit as the Court thinks fit.

Consequence of refusal of party to give evidence when called on by the Court.

Nothing in this section enables the Court to decree a claim which on the face of the record is not warranted by law.

Explanation.—"Lawful excuse" means in this section such an excuse as, under the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, justifies a refusal to give the evidence or produce the document required.

177. No one shall be bound to attend in person to give evidence in Court unless he resides—

Person summoned to attend in person if so required.

(a) within the local limits of its ordinary original jurisdiction, or

(b) without such limits and at a place less than fifty or (where there is railway communication between the place where he resides and the place where the Court is situate) two hundred miles distant from the Court-house.

178. Whenever any party to a suit is required to give evidence or to produce a document, the rules as to witnesses contained in this Code shall apply to him so far as they are applicable.

Rules as to witnesses to apply to parties summoned.

CHAPTER XV.

OF THE HEARING OF THE SUIT AND EXAMINATION OF WITNESSES.

Proceedings on the Hearing.

179. On the day fixed for the hearing of the suit, or on any other day to which the hearing is adjourned, the party having the right to begin shall state his case and produce his evidence in support of the issues which he is bound to prove.

Statement and production of evidence by party having right to begin.

Explanation.—The plaintiff has the right to begin unless where the defendant admits the facts alleged by the plaintiff and contends that on those facts the plaintiff is not entitled to any part of the relief which he seeks, in which case the defendant has the right to begin.

Rules as to right to begin.

180. The other party shall then state his case and produce his evidence (if any).

Statement and production of evidence by other party.

The party beginning is then entitled to reply.

Reply by party beginning.

Where there are several issues, the burden of proving some of which lies on the other party, the party beginning may, at his option, either produce his evidence on those issues or reserve it by way of answer to the evidence produced by the other party. In the latter case the party beginning may produce fresh evidence on those issues after the other party has produced all his evidence, and the other party may then reply specially on such fresh evidence; but the party beginning will then be entitled to reply generally on the whole case.

181. The evidence of the witnesses in attendance shall be taken orally in open court in the presence and hearing, and under the personal direction and superintendence, of the Judge.

Witnesses to be examined in open court.

182. In cases in which an appeal is allowed the evidence of each witness shall be taken down in writing, in the language of the Court, by or in the presence and under the personal direction and superintendence of the Judge, not ordinarily in the form of question and answer, but in that of a narrative, and, when completed, shall be read over in the presence of the Judge and of the witness, and also in the presence of the parties or their pleaders, and shall, if necessary, be corrected, and shall be signed, by the Judge.

How evidence shall be taken in appealable cases.

183. In cases in which the evidence is not taken down in writing by the Judge, he shall be bound, as the examination of each witness proceeds, to make a memorandum of the substance of what each witness deposes, and such memorandum shall be written and signed by the Judge with his own hand, and shall form part of the record.

Memorandum when evidence is not taken down by Judge.

184. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 182, the Local Government may by notification in the official Gazette permit the evidence of witnesses in any Court or class of Courts to be taken down by the Judge with his own hand in English, and may withdraw such permission, and any Judge may take down the evidence with his own hand in English, if the parties to the suit who appear in person, and the pleaders of such as appear by pleaders, do not object.

Local Government may direct evidence to be taken down by Judge with his own hand.

185. If the evidence is taken down in a language different from that in which it was given, and the witness does not understand the language in which it is taken down, the evidence as taken down in writing shall be interpreted to him in the language in which it was given.

When witness may require his deposition to be interpreted.

186. The Court may of its own motion or on the application of any party or his pleader take down, or cause to be taken down, any particular question and answer, or any objection to any question, if there appear any special reason for so doing.

Any particular question and answer may be taken down.

187. If any question put to a witness be objected to by a party or his pleader, and the Court allows the same to be put, the Judge shall take down the question, the answer, the objection and the name of the person making it, together with the decision of the Court upon the objection.

Questions objected to.

188. The Court may record such remarks as it thinks material respecting the demeanour of any witness while under examination.

Remarks on demeanour of witnesses.

189. In cases in which an appeal is not allowed, it shall not be necessary to take down the evidence of the witnesses in writing at length; but the Judge, as the examination of each witness proceeds, shall make a memorandum of the substance of what he deposes, and such memorandum shall be written and signed by the Judge with his own hand, and shall form part of the record.

Memorandum of evidence in unappealable cases.

190. If the Judge be rendered unable to take down evidence, or to make a memorandum as above required by this Chapter, he shall cause the reason of such inability to be recorded, and shall cause the evidence to be taken down, or the memorandum to be made in writing from his dictation in open Court.

Judge unable to make such memorandum to record reason of his inability.

Every memorandum so made shall form part of the record.

191. Where the Judge taking down any evidence, or causing any memorandum to be made under this Chapter, dies or is removed from the Court before the conclusion of the suit, his successor may, if he thinks fit, deal with such evidence or memorandum as if he himself had taken it down or caused it to be made.

Power to deal with evidence taken down by Judge removed before conclusion of suit.

192. If a witness be about to leave the jurisdiction of the Court, or if other sufficient cause be shown to the satisfaction of the Court why his evidence should be taken immediately, the Court, may, upon the application of either party or of the witness, at any time after the institution of the suit, take the evidence of such witness in manner hereinbefore provided.

Power to examine witness immediately.

Where such evidence is not taken forthwith and in the presence of the parties, such notice as the Court thinks sufficient of the day fixed for the examination shall be given to the parties.

The evidence so taken shall be read over to the witness, and, if he admits it to be correct, shall be signed by him, and may then be read at any hearing of the suit.

193. The Court may at any stage of the suit recall any witness who has been examined and who has not departed in accordance with section 173, and may (subject to the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act) put such questions to him as the Court thinks fit.

Court may recall and examine witness.

CHAPTER XVI.

OF AFFIDAVITS.

194. The Court may at any time for sufficient reason order that any particular fact or facts may be proved by affidavit, or that the affidavit of any witness may be read at the hearing, on such conditions as the Court thinks reasonable:

Power to order any point to be proved by affidavit.

Provided that where it appears to the Court that the other party bonâ fide desires the production of a witness for cross-examination, and that such witness can be produced, an order shall not be made authorizing the evidence of such witness to be given by affidavit.

195. Upon any application evidence may be given by affidavit, but the Court may on the application of either party order the attendance for cross-examination of the declarant.

When evidence may be given by affidavit.

196. Affidavits shall be confined to such facts as the declarant is able of his own knowledge to prove, except on interlocutory applications, on which statements of his belief may be admitted, provided that reasonable grounds thereof be set forth.

Matters to which affidavits shall be confined.

The costs of every affidavit which shall unnecessarily set forth matters of hearsay or argumentative matter, or copies of or extracts from documents, shall be paid by the party filing the same.

197. In the case of any affidavit under this Code—

Oath of declarant by whom to be administered.

(a) any Court or Magistrate, or

(b) any officer whom a High Court may appoint in this behalf, or

(c) any officer appointed by any other Court which the Local Government has generally or specially empowered in this behalf, may administer the oath of the declarant.

CHAPTER XVII.

OF JUDGMENT AND DECREE.

198. The Court, after inspecting the documentary evidence on the record, and examining or hearing the witnesses examined by the parties or their pleaders, and hearing the parties in person or by their respective pleaders or recognized agents, shall pronounce judgment in open Court, either at once or on some future day, of which due notice shall be given to the parties or their pleaders.

Judgment when pronounced.

199. A Judge may pronounce a judgment written by his predecessor, but not pronounced, and in such case he shall not be bound by section 198, except as to giving notice.

Power to pronounce judgment written by Judge's predecessor.

200. The judgment shall be written in the language of the Court:

Judgment to be written in language of Court.

Provided that, if such language is not English or the Judge's mother-tongue, the judgment may be written in English or his mother-tongue.

Proviso.

201. Whenever the judgment is written in any language other than that of the Court, the judgment shall, if any of the parties so require, be translated into the language of the Court, and the translation shall also be signed by the Judge or such officer as he appoints in this behalf.

Translation of judgment.

202. The judgment shall be dated and signed by the Judge in open Court at the time of pronouncing it, and shall not be altered or added to, save to correct verbal errors or on review.

Judgment to be dated and signed.

203. The judgments of the Courts of Small Causes need not contain more than the points for determination and the decision thereupon.

Judgments of Small Cause Courts.

The judgments of all other Courts shall contain a concise statement of the case, the points for determination, the decision thereon, and the reasons for such decision.

Judgments of other Courts.

204. In suits in which issues have been framed, the Court shall state its finding or decision, with the reasons thereof, upon each separate issue, unless the finding upon any one or more of the issues be sufficient for the decision of the suit.

Court to state its decision on each issue.

Exception.

205. The decree shall bear date the day on which the judgment was pronounced; and when the Judge has satisfied himself that the decree has been drawn up in accordance with the judgment, he shall sign the decree.

Date of decree.

206. The decree must agree with the judgment: it shall contain the number of the suit, the names and descriptions of the parties, and particulars of the claim, as stated in the register, and shall specify clearly the relief granted or other determination of the suit.

Contents of decree.

The decree shall also state the amount of costs incurred in the suit, and by what parties and in what proportions such costs are to be paid.

If the decree is found to be at variance with the judgment, or if any clerical or arithmetical error be found in the decree, the Court shall, of its own motion or on that of any of the parties, amend the decree so as to bring it into conformity with the judgment or to correct such error: provided that reasonable notice have been given to the parties or their pleaders of the proposed amendment.

Power to amend decree.

207. When the subject-matter of the suit is immoveable property, and such property is identified by boundaries or numbers in a record of settlement or survey, if the decree be for the recovery of a portion only of such property, it shall specify the boundaries or number of such portion.

Decree for recovery of portion of immoveable property.

208. When the suit is for moveable property, if the decree be for the delivery of such property, it shall also state the amount of money to be paid as an alternative if delivery cannot be had.

Decree for delivery of moveable property.

209. When the suit is for a sum of money due to the plaintiff, the Court may, in the decree, order interest at such rate as the Court thinks proper to be paid on the principal sum adjudged, from the date of the suit to the date of the decree, in addition to any interest adjudged on such principal sum for any period prior to the institution of the suit, with further interest not exceeding six per centum per annum on the aggregate sum so adjudged, and on the costs of the suit, from the date of the decree to the date of payment, or to such earlier date as the Court thinks fit.

In suits for money, decree may order certain interest to be paid on principal sum adjudged.

210. In all decrees for the payment of money, the Court may for any sufficient reason order that the amount shall be paid by instalments, with or without interest.

Payment by instalments.

And on the application of the defendant at any time not more than six months after decree, the Court may order that the amount of the decree be paid by instalments on such terms as to the payment of interest, the attachment of the property of the defendant, or the taking of security from him, or otherwise, as it thinks fit: provided that, before granting such application, reasonable notice in writing has been given to the plaintiff or his pleader, and that the Court has heard the objections, if any, made by the plaintiff or on his behalf.

Court may order payment by instalments.

Save as provided in this section and section 206, no decree shall be altered at the request of parties.

211. When the suit is for land or other property yielding rent or other profit, the Court may provide in the decree for the payment of rent or mesne profits in respect of such property from the institution of the suit until the delivery of possession to the party in whose favour the decree is made, or until the expiration of one year from the date of the decree (whichever event first occurs), with interest thereupon at such rate as the Court thinks fit.

In suits for land, Court may decree payment of mesne profits with interest.

Explanation.—'mesne profits' of property mean those profits which the person in wrongful possession of such property actually received, or might with ordinary diligence have received, therefrom.

212. When the suit is for immoveable property and for mesne profits which have accrued on the property during a period prior to the institution of the suit, and the amount of such profits is disputed, the Court may either determine the amount by the decree itself, or may pass a decree for the property and direct an enquiry into the amount of mesne profits, and dispose of the same on further orders.

Court may determine amount of mesne profits prior to passing decree, or may reserve enquiry.

213. When the suit is for an account of any property and for its due administration under the decree of the Court, the Court, before making the decree, shall order such accounts and enquiries to be taken and made, and give such other directions as it thinks fit.

Administration-suit.

In the administration by the Court of the property of any person who dies after this Code comes into force, if such property proves to be insufficient for the payment in full of his debts and liabilities, the same rules shall be observed as to the respective rights of secured and unsecured creditors and as to debts and liabilities proveable, and as to the valuation of annuities and future and contingent liabilities respectively, as may be in force for the time being with respect to the estates of persons adjudged insolvent; and all persons who in any such case would be entitled to be paid out of such property may come in under the decree for its administration, and make such claims against the same as they may respectively be entitled to by virtue of this Code.

Explanation.—Applications under section 265 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, shall be deemed to be suits within the meaning of this section.

214. When the suit is for the dissolution of a partnership, the Court, before making its decree, may pass an order fixing the day on which the partnership shall stand dissolved, and directing such accounts to be taken and other acts to be done as it thinks fit.

Suit for dissolution of partnership.

215. If the defendant has set-off the amount of a debt against the claim of the plaintiff, and such set-off has been allowed, the decree shall state what amount is due to the plaintiff and what amount (if any) is due to the defendant, and shall be for the recovery of any sum which appears to be due to either party.

If set-off be allowed.

The decree of the Court with respect to any sum awarded to the defendant shall have the same effect, and be subject to the same rules in respect of appeal or otherwise, as if such sum had been claimed by the defendant in a separate suit against the plaintiff.

Effect of decree.

216. Certified copies of the judgment and decree shall be furnished to the parties on application to the Court, and at their expense.

Certified copies of decree and judgment to be furnished.

CHAPTER XVIII.

OF COSTS.

217. When disposing of any application under this Code the Court may give to either party the costs of such application, or may reserve the consideration of such costs for any future stage of the proceedings.

Costs of applications.

218. The judgment shall direct by whom the costs of each party are to be paid, whether by himself or by any other party to the suit, and whether in whole or in what part or proportion,

Judgment to direct by whom costs are to be paid.

219. The Court shall have full power to give and apportion costs of every application and suit in any manner it thinks fit, and the fact that the Court has no jurisdiction to try the case is no bar to the exercise of such power:

Power of Court as to costs.

Provided if the Court directs that the costs of any application or suit shall not follow the event, the Court shall state its reasons in writing.

220. The Court may direct that the costs payable to one party by another shall be set-off against a sum which is admitted or is found in the suit to be due from the former to the latter.

Costs may be set-off against sum admitted or found to be due.

221. The Court may give interest on costs at any rate not exceeding six per cent. per annum, and may direct that costs, with or without interest, be paid out of or charged upon the subject-matter of the suit.

Interest on costs.

Costs may be paid out of or charged on subject-matter of suit.

222. There shall be no appeal on a question solely relating to costs except on either of the following grounds (namely)

Questions of costs when appealable.

(a) that the costs are payable out of or chargeable on some property; or (b) that the mode in which the costs have been given is inconsistent with some enactment for the time being in force.

Illustration.

A, an incumbrancer upon a certain estate, sues to compel the payment of his charge. The Court decrees him his principal and interest, but refuses his costs. A may appeal against this refusal, for every incumbrancer has a lien for his costs on the property charged.

CHAPTER XIX.

OF THE EXECUTION OF DECREES.

A.—Of the Court by which Decrees may be executed.

Court by which decree may be executed.

223. A decree may be executed either by the Court which passed it or by the Court to which it is sent for execution under the provisions hereinafter contained.

The Court which passed a decree may, on the application of the decree-holder, send it for execution to another Court,

(a) if the person against whom the decree is passed actually and voluntarily resides or carries on business, or personally works for gain, within the local limits of the jurisdiction of such other Court, or

(b) if such person has not property within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court which passed the decree sufficient to satisfy such decree and has property within the local limits of the jurisdiction of such other Court, or

(c) if the Court which passed the decree considers for any other reason, which it shall record in writing, that the decree should be executed by such other Court.

Notice of every such application shall be served on the judgment-debtor, and the Court after hearing the objections which he or his pleader may urge against the application, may send the decree for execution accordingly.

And the Court to which a decree is sent for execution shall certify to the Court which passed it, the fact of such execution, or where the former Court fails to execute the same, the circumstances attending such failure.

If the decree has been passed in a case cognizable by a Court of Small Causes and the Court making it wishes it to be executed in Calcutta, Madras, Bombay or Rangoon, the Court making it may send to the local Court of Small Causes the copies and certificate respectively mentioned in clauses (a), (b) and (c) of section 225; and such Court shall thereupon execute the decree as if it had been passed by itself.

Provided that if the Court passing the decree is subordinate to a District Court, it shall send the decree to the District Court to which it is subordinate, and such Court shall deal with the decree as if it had been passed by itself.

Decrees of Courts established by Government of India in Native States.

224. A decree of any Court established by the authority of the Governor General in Council in the territories of any Native Prince or State in India, which cannot be executed within the jurisdiction of the Court by which it was made, may be executed in manner hereinafter provided within the jurisdiction of any Court in British India.

Procedure when Court desires that its own decree shall be executed by another Court.

225. The Court desiring that a decree passed by itself shall be executed by another Court shall send such other Court,—

(a) a copy of the decree;

(b) a certificate setting forth that satisfaction of the decree has not been obtained by execution within the jurisdiction of the Court by which it was passed, or, where the decree has been executed in part, the extent to which satisfaction has been obtained and what part of the decree remains unexecuted; and

(c) a copy of any order for the execution of the decree, and if no such order has been made, a certificate to that effect.

Provided that if the Court passing the decree is subordinate to a District Court, it shall send such copies and certificate to the District Court to which it is subordinate, and such Court shall forward them to the Court by which the decree is to be executed.

Court receiving copies of decree, &c., to file same without proof.

226. The Court executing a decree so sent shall cause such copies and certificate to be filed, without any further proof of the decree or order for execution, or of the copies thereof, or of the jurisdiction of the Court which passed it, unless the Court, for any special reasons to be recorded under the hand of the Judge, requires such proof.

Transmitted copy of decree or order to have same effect as decree of Court to which it is sent for execution.

227. The copy of the decree and of any order for execution, when filed in the Court to which such copy has been sent for the purpose of being executed as aforesaid, shall for such purpose have the same effect as a decree or order for execution made by such Court.

Execution by High Court, of decree transmitted by other Court.

228. If the Court to which the decree is sent for execution be a High Court, the decree shall be executed by such Court in the same manner as if it had been made by such Court in the exercise of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction.

Appeal from orders for execution of decrees of other Courts.

229. The Court executing a decree sent to it under this chapter shall have the same powers in executing such decree as if it had been passed by itself. All persons disobeying or obstructing the execution of the decree shall be punishable by such Court in the same manner as if it had passed the decree. And its orders in executing such decree shall be subject to the same rules in respect of appeal, as if the decree had been passed by itself.

B.—Of Application for Execution.

Application for execution.

230. When the holder of a decree desires to enforce it, he shall apply to the Court which passed the decree or to the officer, if any, appointed in this behalf, or if the decree has been sent under the provisions hereinbefore contained to another Court, then to such Court.

The Court may in its discretion refuse execution at the same time against the person and property of the judgment-debtor.

Where an application to execute a decree for the payment of money or delivery of other property has been made under this section and granted, no subsequent application to execute the same decree shall be granted unless the Court is satisfied that on the former application due diligence was used to procure complete satisfaction of the decree; and the order of the Court granting such application shall be conclusive evidence that due diligence was used to procure such satisfaction.

And no such subsequent application shall be granted after the expiration of twelve years from any of the following dates (namely)—

(a) the date of the decree sought to be enforced, or

(b) where the decree directs the payment of money or the delivery of property by instalments,—the date of the default in paying or delivering the instalment in respect of which the applicant seeks to enforce the decree, or

(c) where the decree is for money and the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor have entered into an agreement in writing that the amount decreed, with such interest (if any) as may be therein mentioned, shall be discharged by such instalments as, if duly paid, will discharge the said amount and interest at some time within thirty years from the date of the decree, and such agreement has been filed in Court,—the date of the default in paying the instalment in respect of which the applicant seeks to enforce the decree.

Nothing in this section shall prevent any decree-holder from applying for execution of the same after the expiration of the said term of twelve years, where the judgment-debtor has by fraud or force prevented the execution of the decree at some time within twelve years immediately before the date of the application.

Any one of several decree-holders may apply.

231. If a decree has been passed in favour of more persons than one, any one or more of such persons, or his or their representatives, may apply for the execution of the whole decree for the benefit of them all, or, where any of them has died, for the benefit of the survivors and the representatives in interest of the deceased.

If the Court sees sufficient cause for allowing the decree to be executed on an application so made, it shall pass such order as it deems necessary for protecting the interests of the persons who have not joined in the application.

Application by transferee of decree.

232. If a decree be transferred by assignment in writing or by operation of law from the decree-holder to any other person, the transferee may apply for its execution to the Court which passed it; and if that Court thinks fit, the decree may be executed in the same manner and subject to the same conditions as if the application were made by such decree-holder:

Provided that where the decree has been transferred by assignment, notice in writing of such application shall be given to the transferor and the judgment-debtor, and that the decree shall not be executed until the Court has heard their objections (if any) to such execution:

Provided also that where a decree against several persons has been transferred to one of them, it shall not be executed against the others.

Transferree to hold subject to equities enforceable against original holder.

Every transferree of a decree shall hold the same subject to the equities (if any) which the judgment-debtor might have enforced against the original decree-holder.

Enforcement of execution by Court applied to.

233. When the holder of a decree sent under the foregoing provisions for execution by a Court other than the Court which made it, applies for execution of the decree to the Court to which it has been so sent, such Court, or any subordinate Court to which the execution of the decree may be entrusted, shall proceed to execute the decree according to the provisions of this chapter so far as the same are applicable, and, so far as they are not applicable, according to its own rules in the like cases:

Such Court shall not enquire into the validity of the decree unless it appear upon the face of the decree that the Court by which it was passed had no jurisdiction to pass it.

If judgment-debtor die before execution, application may be made against his representative.

234. If a judgment-debtor dies before the decree has been fully executed, the holder of the decree may apply for its execution against the legal representative of the deceased.

Such representative shall be liable only to the extent of the property of the deceased which has come to his hands and has not been duly disposed of; and for the purpose of ascertaining such liability, the Court executing the decree may of its own motion, or on the application of the decree-holder, compel the said representative to produce such accounts as it thinks fit.

Contents of application for execution of decree.

235. The application for the execution of a decree shall be in writing, verified in manner hereinbefore provided for the verification of plaints, and shall contain in a tabular form the following particulars, (namely)—

(a) the number of the suit;

(b) the names of the parties;

(c) the date of the decree;

(d) whether any appeal has been preferred from the decree;

(e) whether any and what adjustment of the matter in dispute has been made between the parties subsequently to the decree;

(f) whether any and what previous applications have been made for execution of the decree and with what result;

(g) the amount of the debt or compensation, with the interest, if any, due upon the decree, or other relief granted thereby;

(h) the amount of costs, if any, awarded;

(i) the name of the person against whom the enforcement of the decree is sought, and

(j) the mode in which the assistance of the Court is required, whether by the delivery of property specifically decreed, by the arrest and imprisonment of the person named in the application, or by the attachment of his property, or otherwise as the nature of the relief sought may require.

236. If the application be for the attachment of any immoveable property belonging to the judgment-debtor, it shall contain at the foot a description of the property sufficient to identify it, and also a specification of the judgment-debtor's share or interest therein to the best of the belief of the applicant and so far as he has been able to ascertain the same.

Further particulars when application is for attachment of immoveable property.

Every such description and specification shall be verified in manner hereinbefore provided for the verification of plaints.

237. If the property be land which, whether it pays revenue to Government or not, is registered in the Collector's office, the application for attachment shall be accompanied by an authenticated extract from the register of such office, specifying the persons registered as proprietors of, or as possessing any transferable interest in, the land or its revenue, or as liable to pay revenue for such land, and the shares of the registered proprietors.

When application must be accompanied by extract from Collector's register.

238. Every decree-holder applying for an attachment of any moveable property of the judgment-debtor shall annex to his application an inventory of the property to be attached, containing a reasonably accurate description of the same.

Application for attachment of moveable property to be accompanied with inventory.

C.—Of staying Execution.

239. The Court to which a decree has been sent for execution under this Chapter, shall upon sufficient cause being shown, stay the execution of such decree for a reasonable time, to enable the judgment debtor to apply to the Court by which the decree was made, or to any Court having appellate jurisdiction in respect of the decree or the execution thereof, for an order to stay the execution, or for any other order relating to the decree or execution which might have been made by such Court of first instance or appellate Court if execution had been issued thereby, or if application for execution had been made thereto; and in case the property or person of the judgment-debtor has been seized under an execution, the Court which issued the execution may order the restitution or discharge of such property or the person pending the result of the application for such order.

240. Before passing an order to stay execution, or for the restitution of property or the discharge of the judgment-debtor under section 239, the Court may require such security from, or impose such conditions upon, the judgment-debtor as it thinks fit.

Power to require security from, or impose conditions upon, judgment-debtor.

241. No discharge under section 239 of the property or person of a judgment-debtor, shall prevent it or him from being retaken in execution of the decree.

Liability of judgment-debtor discharged to be retaken.

242. Any order of the Court by which the decree was passed or of such Court of appeal as aforesaid, in relation to the execution of such decree shall be binding upon the Court to which the decree was sent for execution.

Order of Court passing decree or of Appellate Court to be binding upon Court applied to.

243. If a suit be pending in any Court against the holder of a decree of such Court, on the part of the person against whom the decree was passed, the Court may (if it think fit), stay execution on the decree, either absolutely or on such terms as it thinks fit, until the pending suit has been decided.

Stay of execution pending suit between decree-holder and judgment-debtor.

244. The following questions shall be determined by order of the Court executing a decree and not by separate suit (namely)—

Question to be decided by Court executing decree.

(a) questions regarding the amount of any mesne profits which by the terms of the decree have been directed to be adjusted in the execution of the decree;

(b) questions regarding the amount of any mesne profits or interest which the decree has made payable in respect of the subject-matter of a suit between the date of its institution and the execution of the decree;

(c) any other questions arising between the parties to the suit in which the decree was passed, or their representatives, and relating to the execution of the decree.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to bar a separate suit for mesne profits accruing between the institution of the first suit and the execution of the decree therein, where such profits are not dealt with by the decree.

D.—Of the mode of executing Decrees.

245. The Court, on receiving an application for the execution of a decree, shall ascertain whether it contains the particulars mentioned in section 235, or such of them as may be applicable to the case, and whether it is accompanied by the inventory mentioned in section 238, and if such particulars or inventory are or is wanting, it shall reject the application or return it for amendment or for the addition of the inventory, as the case may be, or amend it then and there. Every amendment made under this section shall be attested by the signature of the Judge.

Procedure on receiving application for execution of decree.

When the application is admitted, the Court shall enter in the register of the suit a note of the application and the date on which it was made, and shall order execution of the decree according to the nature of the application:

Procedure on admitting application.

Provided that, in the case of a decree for money, the value of the property attached shall as nearly as may be correspond with the amount for which the decree has been made.

246. If cross-decrees between the same parties for the payment of money be produced to the Court, execution shall be taken out only by the party who holds a decree for the larger sum, and for so much only as remains after deducting the smaller sum, and satisfaction for the smaller sum shall be entered on the decree for the larger sum as well as satisfaction on the decree for the smaller sum.

Cross-decrees.

If the two sums be equal, satisfaction shall be entered upon both decrees.

Explanation I.—The decrees contemplated by this section are (a) decrees made by the same Court, (b) decrees sent to the same Court for execution, and (c) decrees of which one is made by the Court and the other is sent to the same Court for execution; but not (d) decrees of which one is made by one Court and the other is made by another Court, and not sent for execution to the former Court.

Explanation II.—This section applies where either party is an assignee of one of the decrees.

Explanation III.—This section does not apply unless (e) both decrees are capable of execution at the same time;

(f) the parties are the same; and (g) the sums due under the decrees are definite.

Illustrations.

(a) A holds a decree against B for Rs. 1,000. B holds a decree against A for the payment of Rs. 1,000. In case A fails to deliver certain goods at a future day, B cannot treat his decree as a cross-decree under this section.

(b) A and B, co-plaintiffs, obtain a decree for Rs. 1,000 against C, and C obtains a decree for Rs. 1,000 against B. C cannot treat his decree as a cross-decree under this section.

(c) A obtains a decree against B for Rs. 1,000. C, who is a trustee for B, obtains a decree on behalf of B against A for Rs. 1,000. B cannot treat C's decree as a cross-decree under this section.

247. When two parties are entitled under the same decree to recover from each other sums of different amounts, the party entitled to the smaller sum shall not take out execution against the other party; but satisfaction for the smaller sum shall be entered on the decree.

Cross-claims under same decree.

When the amounts are equal, neither party shall take out execution, but satisfaction for each sum shall be entered on the decree.

248. The Court shall issue a notice to the party against whom execution is applied for, requiring him to show cause, within a period to be fixed by the Court, why the decree should not be executed against him,

Notice to show cause why decree should not be executed.

(a) if more than one year has elapsed between the date of the decree and the application for its execution, or

(b) if the enforcement of the decree be applied for against the legal representative of a party to the suit in which the decree was made:

Proviso.

Provided that no such notice shall be necessary in consequence of more than one year having elapsed between the date of the decree and the application for execution, if the application be made within one year from the date of the last order passed on any previous application for execution, or in consequence of the application being against the legal representative of the judgment-debtor if upon a previous application for execution against the same person, the Court has ordered execution to issue against him.

Explanation.—In this section the phrase "the Court" means the Court by which the decree was passed, unless the decree has been sent to another Court for execution, in which case it means such other Court.

249. If the person to whom notice is issued under the last preceding section does not appear, or does not show cause to the satisfaction of the Court why the decree should not be executed, the Court shall order the decree to be executed.

Procedure after issue of notice.

If he offers any objection to the enforcement of the decree, the Court shall pass such order as it thinks fit.

250. When the preliminary measures (if any) required by the foregoing provisions have been taken, the Court, unless it sees cause to the contrary, shall issue its warrant for the execution of the decree.

Warrant when to issue.

251. The warrant for the execution of the decree shall bear the date of the day on which it is issued, and shall be signed by the Judge or such officer as the Court appoints in this behalf, and shall be sealed with the seal of the Court, and delivered to the proper officer to be executed.

Date, signature, seal and delivery.

252. If the decree be against a party as the legal representative of a deceased person, and the decree be for money to be paid out of the property of the deceased, it may be executed by the attachment and sale of any such property.

Decree against representative of deceased for money to be paid out of deceased's property.

If no such property can be found, and the judgment-debtor fails to satisfy the Court that he has duly applied such property of the deceased as is proved to have come into his possession, the decree may be executed against the judgment-debtor to the extent of the property not duly applied by him, in the same manner as if the decree had been against him personally.

253. Whenever a person has, before the passing of a decree in an original suit, become liable as surety for the performance of the same or of any part thereof, the decree may be executed against him to the extent to which he has rendered himself liable, in the same manner as a decree may be executed against a defendant:

Decree against surety.

Provided that such notice in writing as the Court in each case thinks sufficient has been given to the surety.

254. Where a decree is against partners in the name of the firm, execution may issue in manner following:—

Decree against partners in name of firm.

(a) against any property of the partners as such:

(b) against any person who has admitted in the suit that he is or has been adjudged to be a partner:

(c) against any person who has been served as a partner, with the summons, and has failed to appear.

If the decree-holder claims to be entitled to issue execution against any other person as being a member of the firm, he may apply to the Court for leave so to do; and the Court may give such leave if notice of the application has been served on such other person and the liability to execution is not disputed, or, if such liability is disputed, may try and determine the same in any manner in which any issue or question in a suit may be tried and determined.

255. Every decree or order directing a party to pay money, whether by way of compensation, or costs, or otherwise, shall be enforced by the imprisonment of the judgment-debtor, or by the attachment and sale of his property in manner hereinafter provided, or by both.

Decree for money.

Explanation.—A decree for mesne profits or any other matter, the amount of which, in money, is to be subsequently determined, is a decree for money within the meaning of this section.

256. When a decree is passed for a sum of money only, and the amount decreed does not exceed the sum of one thousand rupees, the Court may, when passing the decree, on the oral application of the decree-holder, order immediate execution thereof by the issue of a warrant directed either against the person of the judgment-debtor if he is within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court, or against his moveable property within the same limits.

Power to direct immediate execution of decree for money not exceeding Rs. 1,000.

257. Payment of a sum of money ordered to be paid as the alternative to some other relief granted by the decree shall be enforced in manner hereinbefore provided for the execution of a decree for money.

Order for payment of money as an alternative.

258. All money payable under a decree shall be paid as follows (namely)—

Modes of paying money under decree.

(a) into the Court whose duty it is to execute the decree, or,

(b) out of Court to the decree-holder; or

(c) otherwise as the Court which made the decree directs.

If the money is paid out of Court or the decree is otherwise adjusted to the decree-holder, he shall certify the payment or adjustment to the Court whose duty it is to execute the decree; and no satisfaction of a decree in part or in whole by such payment or adjustment shall be recognized by such Court unless the payment or adjustment be certified as aforesaid. Where the decree-holder fails to certify as aforesaid, the judgment-debtor or his pleader may, within eight days of the date of payment, apply to such Court for an order compelling the decree-holder to certify as aforesaid, and the Court, after hearing the decree-holder or his pleader, may make such order.

259. If the decree be for any specific moveable, or for any share in a specific moveable, or for the recovery of a wife, it shall be enforced by the seizure, if practicable, of the moveable or share, and by the delivery thereof to the party to whom it has been adjudged, or to such person as he appoints to receive delivery on his behalf, or by the imprisonment of the judgment-debtor, or by attaching his property and keeping the same under attachment until the further order of the Court, or by both imprisonment and attachment, if necessary.

Decrees for specific moveables, or recovery of wives.

No attachment under this section shall remain in force for more than six months, at the end of which time, if the judgment-debtor has not obeyed the decree, the property attached may be sold, and out of the proceeds the Court may award to the decree-holder such compensation as it thinks fit, and pay the balance, if any, to the judgment-debtor on his application.

260. When the party against whom a decree for the specific performance of a contract, or for restitution of conjugal rights, has been made, has had an opportunity of obeying the decree or injunction and has wilfully failed to obey it, the decree may be enforced by his imprisonment, or by the attachment of his property, or by both.

Decree for specific performance or restitution of conjugal rights.

No attachment under this section shall remain in force for more than one year, at the end of which time, if the judgment-debtor has not obeyed the decree, the property attached may be sold and out of the proceeds the Court may award to the decree-holder such compensation as it thinks fit and may pay the balance, if any, to the judgment-debtor on his application.

261. If the decree be for the execution of a conveyance, or for the endorsement of a negotiable instrument, and the judgment-debtor neglects or refuses to comply with the decree, the decree-holder may prepare the draft of a conveyance or endorsement in accordance with the terms of the decree, and deliver the same to the Court.

Decree for execution of conveyances, or endorsement of negotiable instruments.

The Court shall thereupon cause the draft to be served on the judgment-debtor in manner hereinbefore provided for serving a summons, together with a notice in writing stating that his objections, if any, thereto shall be made within such time (mentioning it) as the Court fixes in this behalf.

The decree-holder may also tender a duplicate of the draft to the Court for execution upon the proper stamp-paper, if a stamp is required by law.

On proof of such service, the Court, or such officer as it appoints in this behalf, shall execute the duplicate so tendered, or may, if necessary, alter the same, so as to bring it into accordance with the terms of the decree, and execute the duplicate so altered:

Provided that if any party object to the draft so served as aforesaid, his objections shall, within the time so fixed, be stated in writing and argued before the Court, and the Court shall thereupon pass such order as it thinks fit, and execute, or alter and execute, the duplicate in accordance therewith.

262. The execution of a conveyance or the endorsement of a negotiable instrument by the Court under the last preceding section may be in the following form: "C. D., Judge of the Court of (or as the case may be), for A. B., in a suit by E. F., against A. B.," or in such other form as the High Court may from time to time prescribe, and shall have the same effect as the execution of the conveyance or endorsement of the instrument by the party ordered to execute or endorse the same.

Form and effect of execution of conveyance by Court.

263. If the decree be for the delivery of any immoveable property, possession thereof shall be delivered over to the party to whom it has been adjudged, or to such person as he appoints to receive delivery on his behalf, and, if need be, by removing any person bound by the decree who refuses to vacate the property.

Decree for immoveable property.

264. If the decree be for any immoveable property in the occupancy of a tenant or other person entitled to occupy the same, the Court shall order delivery to be made by affixing a copy of the warrant in some conspicuous place on the property, and proclaiming to the occupant by beat of drum, or in such other mode as is customary, at some convenient place, the substance of the decree in regard to the property:

Delivery of immoveable property when in occupancy of tenant.

Provided that if the occupant can be found, a notice in writing containing such substance shall be served upon him, and in such case no proclamation need be made.

265. If the decree be for the partition or for the separate possession of a share of an undivided estate, paying revenue to Government, the partition of the estate or the separation of the share shall be made by the Collector.

Partition of estate or separation of share.

E.—Of Attachment of Property.

266. The following property is liable to attachment and sale in execution of a decree, (namely), lands, houses or other buildings, goods, money, bank-notes, cheques, bills of exchange, hundís, promissory notes, Government securities, bonds or other securities for money, debts, shares in the capital or joint-stock of any railway, banking or other public Company or Corporation, and, except as hereinafter mentioned, all other saleable property, moveable or immoveable, belonging to the judgment-debtor, and whether the same be held in the name of the judgment-debtor or by another person in trust for him or on his behalf:

Property liable to attachment and sale in execution of decree.

Provided that the following particulars shall not be liable to such attachment or sale (namely)—

(a) the necessary wearing apparel of the judgment-debtor, his wife and children:

(b) tools of artizans, implements of husbandry and cattle kept bonâ fide for agricultural purposes:

(c) the materials of houses and other buildings belonging to and occupied by agriculturists:

(d) books of account:

(e) mere rights to sue for damages:

(f) the right to perform the service of an idol:

(g) stipends allowed to military and civil pensioners of Government, and political pensions:

(h) the salary of a public officer or of the servant of a Railway Company:

(i) the pay and allowances of persons to whom the Native Articles of War apply:

(j) the wages of labourers and domestic servants:

(k) an expectancy of succession by survivorship:

(l) a right to future maintenance.

Provided also that nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect the statute for the time being in force for punishing mutiny and desertion and for the better payment of the Army and their quarters.

267. The Court may of its own motion or on the application of the decree-holder, summon any person whom it thinks necessary, and examine him in respect to any property liable to be seized in satisfaction of the decree, and may require the person summoned to produce any document in his possession or power relating to such property.

Power to summon and examine persons as to property liable to be seized.

268. In the case of (a) a debt not secured by a negotiable instrument, (b) a share in the capital of any public company or corporation, (c) other moveable property not in the possession of the judgment-debtor, except property deposited in, or in the custody of, any Court, the attachment shall be made by a written order prohibiting,

Attachment of debt, share and other property not in possession of judgment-debtor.

(a) in the case of the debt, the creditor from recovering the debt and the debtor from making payment thereof until the further order of the Court:

(b) in the case of the share, the person in whose name the share may be standing, from transferring the same or receiving any dividend thereon:

(c) in the case of the other moveable property except as aforesaid, the person in possession of the same from giving it over to the judgment-debtor.

A copy of such order shall be fixed up in some conspicuous part of the Court-house, and another copy of the same shall be sent in the case of the debt to the debtor, in the case of the share to the proper officer of the company or corporation, and in the case of the other moveable property (except as aforesaid) to the person in possession of the same.

A debtor prohibited under clause (a) of this section may pay the amount of his debt into Court, and such payment shall discharge him as effectually as payment to the party entitled to receive the same.

No attachment under this section shall remain in force for more than six months; at the end of which time, if the judgment-debtor has not obeyed the decree, the property attached may be sold, and out of the proceeds the Court may award to the decree-holder such compensation as it thinks fit, and pay the balance, if any, to the judgment-debtor on his application.

269. If the property be moveable property in the possession of the judgment-debtor, other than the property mentioned in the first proviso to section 266, the attachment shall be made by actual seizure, and the attaching officer shall keep the property in his own custody or in the custody of one of his subordinates, and shall be responsible for the due custody thereof:

Attachment of moveable property in possession of defendant.

Provided that when the property seized is subject to speedy and natural decay, the proper officer may sell it at once.

The Local Government may from time to time make rules for the maintenance and custody, while under attachment, of livestock and other moveable property, and the officer attaching property under this section shall, notwithstanding the provisions of the former part of this section, act in accordance with such rules.

Power to make rules for maintenance of attached livestock.

Attachment of negotiable instruments.

270. If the property be a negotiable instrument not in deposit in a Court, the attachment shall be made by actual seizure, and the instrument shall be brought into Court and held subject to the further orders of the Court.

Seizure of property in house.

271. If the person executing any process under this Code directing or authorising seizure of moveable property, has gained access to a house or other building, he may unfasten and open the door of any room in which he has reason to believe any such property to be:

Provided that if the room be in the actual occupancy of a woman, who according to the customs of the country does not appear in public, the person executing the process shall give notice to her that she is at liberty to withdraw; and after allowing a reasonable time for such woman to withdraw, and giving her every reasonable facility for withdrawing, he may enter such room for the purpose of seizing the property, using at the same time every precaution, consistent with these provisions, to prevent its clandestine removal.

Seizure of property in zanánás.

Attachment of property deposited in Court or with Government officer.

272. If the property be deposited in, or in the custody of, any Court or public officer, the attachment shall be made by a notice to such Court or officer, requesting that such property, and any interest or dividend becoming payable thereon may be held subject to the further orders of the Court from which the notice issues:

Proviso.

Provided that, if such property is deposited in a Court, any question of title or priority arising between the decree-holder and any other person, not being the judgment-debtor, claiming to be interested in such property by virtue of any assignment, attachment or otherwise, shall be determined by the Court in which such property is deposited.

Attachment decree.

273. If the property be a decree passed by the Court which passed the decree sought to be executed, the attachment shall be made by an order of the Court directing the proceeds of the former decree to be applied in satisfaction of the latter decree.

If the property be a decree passed by any other Court, the attachment shall be made by a notice in writing to such Court under the hand of the Judge of the Court which passed the decree sought to be executed, requesting the former Court to execute its decree and to apply the proceeds in satisfaction of the decree sought to be executed. The Court receiving such notice shall comply with such request. And the holder of any decree attached under this clause shall be bound to give the Court executing the same such information and aid as may reasonably be required.

Attachment of immoveable property.

274. If the property be immoveable, the attachment shall be made by a proclamation prohibiting the judgment-debtor from alienating the property in any way, and all persons from receiving the same from him by purchase, gift or otherwise.

The proclamation shall be made at some place on or adjacent to such property by beat of drum or other customary mode, and a copy of the proclamation shall be fixed up in a conspicuous part of the property and of the court-house.

A copy of the proclamation shall also be fixed up in the office of the Collector of the District in which the land is situate.

Order for withdrawal of attachment after satisfaction of decree.

275. If the amount decreed with costs and all charges and expenses resulting from the attachment of any property be paid into Court, or if satisfaction of the decree be otherwise made through the Court, or if the decree is set aside or reversed, an order shall be issued, on the application of any person interested in the property, for the withdrawal of the attachment.

Private alienation of property after attachment to be void.

276. When an attachment has been made by actual seizure or by written order duly intimated and made known in manner aforesaid, any private alienation of the property attached, whether by sale, gift, mortgage, or otherwise, and any payment of the debt or dividend or a delivery of the share to the judgment-debtor during the continuance of the attachment, shall be void as against all claims enforceable under the attachment.

Court may direct coin or currency-notes attached to be paid to party entitled.

277. If the property attached is coin or currency-notes, the Court may, at any time during the continuance of the attachment, direct that such coin or notes, or a part thereof sufficient to satisfy the decree be paid over to the party entitled under the decree to receive the same.

Investigation of claims to and objections to attachment of attached property.

278. If any claim be preferred to, or any objection be made to the attachment of, any property attached in execution of a decree, on the ground that such property is not liable to such attachment, the Court shall proceed to investigate the claim or objection with the like power as regards the examination of the claimant or objector, and in all other respects, as if he was a party to the suit.

Provided that no such investigation shall be made where the Court considers that the claim or objection was designedly or unnecessarily delayed.

Evidence to be adduced by claimant.

279. The claimant or objector must adduce evidence to show that at the date of the attachment he had some interest in, or was possessed of, the property attached.

Release of property from attachment.

280. If upon the said investigation the Court is satisfied that, for the reason stated in the claim or objection, such property was not, when attached, in the possession of the judgment-debtor or of some person in trust for him, or in the occupancy of a tenant or other person paying rent to him, or that, being in the possession of the judgment-debtor at such time, it was so in his possession, not on his own account or as his own property, but on account of or in trust for some other person, or partly on his own account and partly on account of some other person, the Court shall pass an order for releasing the property wholly or to such extent as it thinks fit, from attachment.

Disallowance of claim to release of property attached.

281. If the Court is satisfied that the property was, at the time it was attached, in possession of the judgment-debtor as his own property and not on account of any other person, or was in the possession of some other person in trust for him, or in the occupancy of a tenant or other person paying rent to him, the Court shall disallow the claim.

Continuance of attachment subject to claim of incumbrancer.

282. Of the Court is satisfied that the property is subject to a mortgage or lien in favour of some person not in possession, and thinks fit to continue the attachment, it may do so, subject to such mortgage or lien.

Saving of suits to establish right to attached property.

283. An order under section 280, 281 or 282 shall not preclude the person against whom it is made from instituting a suit to establish the right which he claims to the property in dispute.

Claims and objections to be made without delay.

284. A claim to attached property, or an objection to the attachment of such property, shall be made without delay to the Court which ordered the attachment; and no such investigation shall be made where the Court considers that the claim or objection was designedly and unnecessarily delayed.

If the property to which the claim or objection applies has been advertised for sale, the Court ordering the sale may postpone it pending the investigation of the claim or objection.

Power to order property attached be sold, and proceeds be paid to person entitled.

285. Any Court may order that any moveable property, and any Court not subordinate to a District Court may direct that any immoveable property, which has been attached, or such portion thereof as may seem necessary to satisfy the decree, shall be sold, and that the proceeds of such sale, or a sufficient portion thereof, shall be paid to the party entitled under the decree to receive the same.

V.—Of Sale and Delivery of Property.

(a)—General Rules.

Sales by whom conducted and how made.

286. Sales in execution of decrees shall be conducted by an officer of the Court or by any other person whom the Court may appoint, and, except as provided in section 296, shall be made by public auction in manner hereinafter mentioned.

Proclamation of sales by public auction.

287. When any interest in property is ordered to be sold by public auction in execution of a decree, the Court shall cause a proclamation of the intended sale to be made in the language of such Court. Such proclamation shall state the time and place of sale; and shall specify as fairly and accurately as possible—

(a) the interest to be sold;

(b) the revenue assessed upon the estate or part of the estate, when the interest to be sold is an interest in an estate or a part of an estate paying revenue to Government;

(c) any incumbrance to which the interest is liable;

(d) the amount for the recovery of which the sale is ordered; and

(e) every other thing which the Court considers material for the purchaser to know in order to judge of the nature and value of the property.

Rules to be made by High Court.

The High Court shall, as soon as may be after this Code comes into force, make rules for the guidance of the Courts in exercise of their duties under this section. The High Court may from time to time alter any rules so made.

Nothing in this section shall apply to cases in which the execution of the decree has been transferred to the Collector.

Indemnity of judges, &c.

288. No judge or other public officer shall be answerable for any error, misstatement or omission in any proclamation under section 287 unless the same has been committed or made dishonestly.

Mode of making proclamation.

289. The proclamation shall be made, in manner prescribed by section 274, on the spot where the property is attached.

If the Court so direct, such notification shall also be published in the official Gazette and in some local newspaper.

Time of sale.

290. Except in the case of articles subject to speedy and natural decay (which may be sold at once), no sale under this chapter shall take place until after the expiration of at least thirty days in the case of immoveable property, and of at least fifteen days in the case of moveable property, calculated from the date on which the notification has been affixed in the Court-house of the Judge ordering the sale,

Power to adjourn sale.

291. The officer conducting any sale under this chapter may in his discretion adjourn the sale; and every such sale shall be stopped if, before the lot is knocked down, the debt and costs are tendered to such officer, or proof is given to his satisfaction that the amount of such debt and costs has been paid into the Court that ordered the sale.

Stoppage of sale on tender of debt and costs, or on proof of payment.

Officers concerned in execution sales not to bid for or buy property sold.

292. No officer having any duty to perform in connection with any sale under this chapter shall bid for, acquire, or attempt to acquire, any interest in any property sold at such sale.

Defaulting purchaser answerable for loss by re-sale.

293. The deficiency of price (if any) which may happen on a re-sale under this Code, and all expenses attending such re-sale, shall be certified to the Court by the officer holding the sale, and shall, at the instance of either the judgment-creditor or the judgment-debtor, be recoverable from the defaulter under the rules contained in this chapter for the execution of a decree for money.

294. No holder of a decree in execution of which property is sold, shall, without the express permission of the Court, bid for or purchase the property.

Decree-holder not to bid for or buy property without permission.

When a decree-holder purchases with such permission, the amount due on the decree may be taken as payment in whole or in part, as the case may be, of the purchase-money.

If decree-holder purchase, amount of decree may be taken as payment.

295. Whenever assets are realized by sale or otherwise in execution of a decree, and more persons than one have, prior to the realization, applied for execution of decrees for money against the same judgment-debtor, and have not obtained satisfaction thereof, the proceeds, after deducting the costs of the realization, shall be divided rateably among all such persons:

Proceeds of execution sale to be divided rateably among decree-holders.

Provided that, when any property is sold subject to a mortgage, the mortgagee shall not be entitled to share in any surplus arising from such sale:

Proviso where property is sold subject to mortgage.

Provided also that when any property liable to be sold in execution of a decree is subject to a mortgage, the Court may, with the assent of the mortgagee, order that the property be sold free from the mortgage, giving to the mortgagee the same right against the proceeds of the sale as he had against the property sold.

If all or any of such assets be paid to a person not entitled to receive the same, any person so entitled may sue such person to compel him to refund the assets.

Nothing in this section affects any right of the Government.

(b).—Rules as to Moveable Property.

296. If the property to be sold be a negotiable instrument or a share in any public Company or Corporation, the Court may, instead of directing the sale to be made by public auction, authorize the sale of such instrument or share through a broker at the market-rate of the day.

Rules as to negotiable securities and shares in public Companies.

297. If the property sold be moveable, the price of each lot shall be paid for at the time of sale, or as soon after as the officer holding the sale directs, and in default of payment, the property shall forthwith be again put up and sold.

Payment for moveable property sold.

On payment of the purchase-money, the officer holding the sale shall grant a receipt for the same, and the sale shall become absolute.

298. No irregularity in publishing or conducting the sale of moveable property shall vitiate the sale; but any person sustaining any injury by reason of such irregularity at the hand of any other person may institute a suit against him for compensation, or (if such other person be the purchaser) for the recovery of the specific property and for compensation in default of such recovery.

Irregularity not to vitiate sale of moveable property, but any person injured may sue.

299. When the property sold is any moveable property, or a negotiable instrument, of which actual seizure has been made, the property shall be delivered to the purchaser.

Delivery of moveable property belonging to defendant actually seized.

300. When the property sold is any moveable property to which the judgment-debtor is entitled subject to the possession of some other person, the delivery thereof to the purchaser shall be made by giving notice to the person in possession prohibiting him from delivering possession of the property to any person except the purchaser.

Delivery of moveable property to which judgment-debtor is entitled subject to lien.

301. When the property is a debt not secured by a negotiable instrument, or is a share in any public Company, the delivery thereof shall be made by a written order of the Court prohibiting the creditor from receiving the debt or any interest thereon, and the debtor from making payment thereof to any person except the purchaser, or prohibiting the person in whose name the share may be standing from making any transfer of the share to any person except the purchaser, or receiving payment of any dividend or interest thereon, and the Manager, Secretary or other proper officer of the Company from permitting any such transfer or making any such payment to any person except the purchaser.

Delivery of debts and of shares in public Companies.

302. If the endorsement or conveyance of the party in whose name a negotiable instrument or a share in any public Company is standing, is required to transfer such instrument or share, the Judge may endorse the instrument or the certificate of the share, or may execute such other document as may be necessary.

Transfer of negotiable instruments and shares.

The endorsement or execution shall be in the following form or to the like effect:—"A. B. by C. D., Judge of the Court of (or as the case may be), in a suit by E. F. against A. B."

Until the transfer of such instrument or share, the Court may, by order, appoint some person to receive any interest or dividend due thereon, and to sign a receipt for the same; and any endorsement made or document executed or receipt signed as aforesaid shall be as valid and effectual for all purposes as if the same had been made or executed or signed by the party himself.

(c).—Rules as to Immoveable Property.

303. Sales of immoveable property in execution of a decree may be ordered by any Court not subordinate to a District Court.

Sales of land by Court not inferior to a District Court.

304. Whenever a Court subordinate to a District Court desires that any interest in immoveable property be sold in execution of a decree, it shall refer the case to the District Court to which it is subordinate, and such Court shall have the same power of causing the said interest to be sold as if the decree had been made by itself.

Procedure as to sale of land in execution of decree of subordinate Court.

Nothing in this section applies to Courts of Small Causes.

305. When an order for the sale of immoveable property has been made, if the judgment-debtor can satisfy the Court conducting the sale that there is reason to believe that the amount of the decree may be raised by mortgage or lease or private sale of such property, or some part thereof, or of any other immoveable property of the judgment-debtor, the Court may on his application postpone the sale of property comprised in the order for sale for such period as it thinks proper, to enable him to raise the amount.

In such case the Court shall grant a certificate to the judgment-debtor authorizing him, within a period to be mentioned therein, to make the proposed mortgage, lease, or sale: provided that all moneys payable under such mortgage, lease or sale shall be paid into Court and not to the judgment-debtor.

Where such certificate has been granted and so long as it remains in force, the provisions of section 248 shall not apply, and the year mentioned in that section, clause (a), shall be computed from the date of the expiry of the certificate.

The Court may, on the application of the judgment-debtor, sell any other immoveable property of the judgment-debtor in lieu of the property comprised in such order.

306. On every sale of immoveable property under this chapter, the person declared to be the purchaser shall pay immediately after such declaration a deposit of twenty-five per centum on the amount of his purchase-money to the officer conducting the sale, and, in default of such deposit, the property shall forthwith be put up again and sold.

Deposit by purchaser of immoveable property.

307. The full amount of purchase-money shall be paid by the purchaser before sunset of the fifteenth day after the sale of the property, exclusive of such day, or if the fifteenth day be a Sunday or other holiday, then on the first office day after the fifteenth day.

Time for payment in full.

308. In default of payment within the period mentioned in the last preceding section, the deposit, after defraying the expenses of the sale, shall be forfeited to Government, and the property shall be re-sold, and the defaulting purchaser shall forfeit all claim to the property or to any part of the sum for which it may subsequently be sold.

Procedure in default of payment.

309. Every re-sale of immoveable property in default of payment of the purchase-money within the period allowed for such payment, shall be made after the issue of a fresh proclamation in the manner and for the period hereinbefore prescribed for the sale.

Notification on re-sale of immoveable property.

310. When the property sold in execution of a decree is a share of undivided immoveable property, if the lot has been knocked down to a stranger, any co-sharer may, by application to the officer conducting the sale, claim to take the share sold at the sum at which the lot was so knocked down.

Co-sharer of a share of undivided estate sold in execution may claim share at sale-price.

If the claim be made before sunset on the day of sale, and the claimant then repay to the purchaser the amount of his deposit, the claimant shall be substituted for the person to whom the lot has been so knocked down and shall be bound by all the conditions then binding on the purchaser, and the provisions of the last three preceding sections shall apply.

311. Any person whose interest in immoveable property has been sold under this chapter may apply to the Court to set aside the sale on the ground of a material irregularity in publishing or conducting it;

Sale of land not set aside on ground of irregularity unless in case of substantial injury.

but no sale shall be set aside on the ground of irregularity unless the applicant proves to the satisfaction of the Court that he has sustained substantial injury by reason of such irregularity.

312. If no such application as is mentioned in the last preceding section be made, or if such application be made and the objection be disallowed, the Court shall pass an order confirming the sale as regards the parties to the suit.

Effect of objection being disallowed and of its being allowed.

If such application be made, and if the objection be allowed, the Court shall pass an order setting aside the sale.

No suit to set aside an order passed under this section shall be brought by the party against whom such order has been made.

313. The purchaser at any such sale may, within sixty days from the date of the sale, apply to the Court to set aside the sale on the ground that the person whose interest in the property purported to be sold had no legally saleable interest therein, and the Court may make such order as it thinks fit.

Power to apply to set aside the sale.

314. No sale of immoveable property shall become absolute until it has been confirmed by the Court.

Confirmation of sale.

315. When a sale of immoveable property is set aside under section 312 or 313,

If sale set aside, price to be returned to purchaser.

or when it is found that the judgment-debtor had no saleable interest in the property sold and the purchaser is for that reason deprived of it, the purchaser shall be entitled to receive back his purchase-money (with or without interest as the Court may direct) from any person to whom the purchase-money has been paid.

The repayment of the said purchase-money and of the interest (if any) allowed by the Court may be enforced against such person under the rules provided by this Code for the execution of a decree for money.

316. When a sale of immoveable property has become absolute in manner aforesaid, the Court shall grant the purchaser a certificate to the effect that he has purchased such property, and such certificate shall be deemed to be a valid transfer of such interest.

Certificate to purchaser of immoveable property.

317. The certificate shall state the name of the person who, at the time of sale, is declared to be the purchaser and the date of the attachment; and the purchase shall be deemed to take effect from such date.

Certificate to state name of actual purchaser.

No person shall maintain any suit against the certified purchaser on the ground that the purchase was made on behalf of such other person, or on behalf of some one through whom such other person claims.

Benámi purchaser not recognized.

Nothing in this section shall bar a suit to obtain a declaration that the name of the certified purchaser was inserted in the certificate fraudulently or without the consent of the real purchaser.

318. When the property sold is in the occupancy of the judgment-debtor or of some person on his behalf, or of some person claiming under a title created by the defendant subsequently to the attachment of such property, and a certificate in respect thereof has been granted under section 316, the Court shall order delivery to be made by putting the purchaser or any person whom he may appoint to receive delivery on his behalf, in possession of the property, and, if need be, by removing any person who refuses to vacate the same.

Delivery of immoveable property in occupancy of judgment-debtor.

319. When the property sold is in the occupancy of a tenant or other person entitled to occupy the same, and a certificate in respect thereof has been granted under section 316, the Court shall order delivery thereof to be made by affixing a copy of the certificate of sale in some conspicuous place on the property, and proclaiming to the occupant by beat of drum or in such other mode as may be customary, at some convenient place, that the interest of the judgment-debtor has been transferred to the purchaser.

Delivery of immoveable property in the occupancy of tenant.

320. The Local Government may, with the sanction of the Governor General in Council, declare by notification in the official Gazette that in any local area the execution of decrees in cases in which a Court has ordered any interest in immoveable property to be sold, shall be transferred to the Collector; and rescind or modify any such declaration. The Local Government may also from time to time prescribe rules for the transmission of the decree from the Court to the Collector, and for regulating the procedure of the Collector and his subordinates in executing the same.

Power to prescribe rules for transferring to Collector execution of decrees sale of land.

321. Whenever the execution of a decree has been so transferred, if the Collector has reason to believe that the judgment-debts of the judgment-debtor can be discharged without a sale of the whole of such interest, the Collector may (notwithstanding any order under section 303, but subject to such rules as may from time to time be made in this behalf by the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority) raise the amount necessary to discharge such debts with interest thereon according to the decree, or, if the decree makes no provision as to interest, then with interest (if any) as he thinks fit not exceeding the rate of six per cent. per annum, Powers of Collector as to execution of decrees so transferred.

(a) by selling part of the judgment-debtor's interest in such property or in any other immoveable property:

(b) by mortgaging the whole or any part of such interest:

(c) by letting on farm, or managing by himself or another, the whole or any part of such interest for any term not exceeding twenty years from the date of the order of sale, or (d) partly by one of such modes and partly by another or others of them.

For the purpose of managing under this section the whole or any part of such interest, the Collector may exercise all the powers of its owner.

322. If the Collector proposes to proceed under this section he shall publish a notice in the language of the district, calling upon all persons holding decrees against the judgment-debtor to notify the same in writing to the Collector within sixty days from the date of the publication.

Procedure of Collector.

Such notice shall be published by being posted at the Court which made the order under section 303, and at such other places (if any) as the Collector thinks fit.

So long as any letting or management under this section continues, the judgment-debtor and his representative in interest shall be incompetent to mortgage, charge, lease or alienate the interest so let or managed, or any part thereof.

323. If on the expiration of the letting or management, the amount necessary to discharge such debts in full with the interest (if any) payable thereon has not been raised, the Collector shall notify the fact in writing to the judgment-debtor or his representative, stating at the same time that, if the balance necessary to discharge such debts and interest is not paid to the Collector within six weeks of the date of such notice, the Collector will proceed to sell the judgment-debtor's interest in the said property; and if on the expiration of the said six weeks the said balance is not so paid, the Collector shall sell such interest accordingly.

Sale by Collector.

324. Whenever the Collector sells any interest pursuant to the said order of sale or exercises any of the powers conferred upon him by the last preceding section, he shall inform the Court which made such order of the fact of such sale or exercise, and shall render accounts to such Court of his receipts and payments in respect of the said interest, and shall hold the balance at the disposal of such Court.

Sale, &c., to be reported to Court by Collector.

Such balance (after deducting therefrom any debts due or liabilities incurred to Government by the judgment-debtor) shall be applied rateably in discharging the claims of all the decree-holders who have complied with the said notice; and no other person making any claim against the interest so let or managed, or against such proceeds, shall be entitled to be paid thereout.

Application of balance.

325. When, in any local area in which no declaration under section 320 is in force, the property attached consists of land or of a share in land, and the Collector represents to the Court that the public sale of the land or share is objectionable, and that satisfaction of the decree may be made within a reasonable period by a temporary alienation or management of the land or share, the Court may authorize the Collector to make provision for such satisfaction in the manner recommended by him, instead of proceeding to a sale of the land or share. The provisions of sections 321 to 324 (both inclusive) shall in such case apply to the Collector.

When Court may authorize Collector to stay public sale of land.

326. The Local Government may from time to time, with the sanction of the Governor General in Council, make special rules for any local area imposing conditions in respect of sale of any class of interests in land in execution of decrees for money, or prohibiting such sales Local rules as to sales of land in execution of decrees for money.

(a) where such interests are so uncertain or undetermined as in the opinion of the Local Government to make it impossible to fix their value:

(b) where for reasons of State the Local Government thinks that such class of interests should not be compulsorily transferrable:

and if, when this Code comes into operation in any local area, any such rules or prohibition are or is in force therein, the Local Government may continue such rules or prohibition in force, or may from time to time modify the same with the sanction of the Governor General in Council.

All rules and prohibitions so made or continued, and all modifications of such rules, shall be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

G.—Of Resistance to Execution.

327. If in the execution of a decree for the possession of property, the officer entrusted with the execution of the warrant is resisted or obstructed by any person, the decree-holder may complain to the Court at any time within one month from the time of such resistance or obstruction.

Procedure in case of obstruction to execution of decree.

The Court shall fix a day for investigating the complaint, and shall summon the party against whom the complaint is made to answer the same.

328. If the Court is satisfied that the obstruction or resistance was occasioned by the judgment-debtor or by some person at his instigation, on the ground that the property is not comprised in the decree or on any other ground, the Court shall enquire into the matter of the complaint, and pass such order as it thinks fit.

Procedure in case of obstruction by judgment-debtor or at his instigation.

329. If the Court is satisfied that the resistance or obstruction was without any just cause, and that the complainant is still resisted or obstructed in obtaining effectual possession of the property by the judgment-debtor or some other person at his instigation, the Court may, at the instance of the decree-holder and without prejudice to any proceedings to which such judgment-debtor or other person may be liable, under the Indian Penal Code or any other law, for the punishment of such resistance or obstruction, commit the judgment-debtor or such other person to jail for a term not exceeding thirty days, and direct that the decree-holder be put into possession of the property.

Procedure when obstruction continues.

330. If the resistance or obstruction has been occasioned by any person other than the judgment-debtor claiming in good faith to be in possession of the property on his own account or on account of some person other than the judgment-debtor, the claim shall be numbered and registered as a suit between the decree-holder as plaintiff and the claimant as defendant;

Procedure in case of obstruction by claimant in good faith, other than judgment-debtor.

and the Court shall, without prejudice to any proceedings to which the claimant may be liable under the Indian Penal Code or any other law for the punishment of such resistance of obstruction, proceed to investigate the claim in the same manner and with the like power as if a suit for the property had been instituted by the decree-holder against the claimant under the provisions of the Specific Relief Act, section 9, and shall pass such order as it thinks fit for executing or staying execution of the decree.

331. If any person other than the defendant is dispossessed of any property in execution of a decree, and such person disputes the right of the decree-holder to dispossess him of such property under the decree, on the ground that the property was bonâ fide in his possession on his own account or on account of some person other than the judgment-debtor, and that it was not comprised in the decree, or that, if it was comprised in the decree, he was not a party to the suit in which the decree was passed, he may apply to the Court.

Procedure in case of person dispossessed of property disputing right of decree-holder to be put into possession.

If, after examining the applicant, it appears to the Court that there is probable cause for making the application, the application shall be numbered and registered as a suit between the applicant as plaintiff and the decree-holder as defendant, and the Court shall proceed to investigate the matter in dispute in the same manner and with the like power as if a suit for the property had been instituted by the applicant against the decree-holder under the provisions of the Specific Relief Act, section 9, and shall pass such order as it thinks fit for executing or staying execution of the decree.

In hearing applications under this section the Court shall confine itself to the grounds of dispute above specified.

Nothing in this section or section 330 applies to a person to whom the judgment-debtor has transferred the property after the institution of the suit in which the decree is made.

332. The order passed under either of sections 330 and 331 shall be in the nature of, and shall have the same force as, a decree in a suit, and shall be subject to the same conditions as to appeal or otherwise.

Orders passed under sections 330 and 331 to have force of decrees, and to be subject to appeal.

333. If the purchaser of any immoveable property sold in execution of a decree be resisted or obstructed by the judgment-debtor or any one on his behalf, in obtaining possession of the property, the provisions of this chapter relating to resistance or obstruction to a decree-holder in obtaining possession of the property adjudged to him, shall be applicable.

Resisting or obstructing purchasers in obtaining possession of immoveable property.

334. If it appear that the resistance or obstruction was occasioned by any person other than the judgment-debtor, not in possession of the property sold, but claiming a right thereto as proprietor, mortgagee, lessee, or under any other title, the Court, on the complaint of the purchaser, shall enquire into the matter of the resistance or obstruction, and pass such order thereon as it thinks fit.

The party against whom such order is passed may bring a suit to establish his right to the present possession of the property at any time within one year from the date of such order.

H.—Of Arrest and Imprisonment.

Place of judgment-debtor's imprisonment.

335. A judgment-debtor may be arrested in execution of a decree at any hour and on any day, and shall as soon as practicable be brought before the Court, and his imprisonment may be in the jail of the district in which the Court ordering the imprisonment is held, or, when such jail does not afford suitable accommodation, in any other jail which the Local Government may appoint for the confinement of persons ordered to be imprisoned by the Courts of such district:

Proviso.

Provided that when the decree in execution of which a judgment-debtor is arrested is a decree for money and the judgment-debtor pays the amount of the decree and the costs of the arrest to the officer arresting him, such officer shall at once release him.

Whenever a judgment-debtor is arrested in execution of a decree for money and brought before the Court under this section, the Court shall inform him that he may apply under Chapter XX to be declared an insolvent, and that he will be discharged if he has not committed any act of bad faith regarding the subject of his application and if he places all his property in possession of a receiver appointed by the Court.

If the judgment-debtor express his intention so to apply, and if he furnish sufficient security for his appearance at any time when called upon, the Court shall release him from arrest.

Warrant for arrest to direct judgment-debtor to be brought up.

336. Every warrant for the arrest of the judgment-debtor shall direct the officer entrusted with its execution to bring him before the Court.

Latest day for return of warrant to be specified.

337. A day shall be specified in the warrant on or as soon as possible after which it is to be returned, and unless the amount which the judgment-debtor has been ordered to pay, together with the interest thereon and the costs, if any, to which he is liable, be sooner paid, such officer shall bring him before the Court with all convenient speed.

Scales of subsistence allowances.

338. The Local Government may from time to time prescribe scales, graduated according to rank, race and nationality, of monthly allowances payable for the subsistence of judgment-debtors.

Judgment-debtor subsistence-money.

339. No judgment-debtor shall be arrested in execution of a decree unless and until the decree-holder pays into Court such sum as, having regard to the scales so fixed, the Judge thinks sufficient for the subsistence of the judgment-debtor from his arrest until he can be brought before the Court.

When a judgment-debtor is committed to jail in execution of a decree, the Court shall fix for his subsistence such monthly allowance as he may be entitled to according to the said scales, or where no such scales have been fixed, as it considers sufficient with reference to the class to which he belongs.

The monthly allowance fixed by the Court shall be supplied by the party on whose application the decree has been executed, to the proper officer of the Court by monthly payments in advance before the first day of each month.

The first payment shall be made for such portion of the current month as remains unexpired before the judgment-debtor is committed to jail.

Subsistence money to be added to amount of decree.

340. Sums disbursed by the decree-holder for the subsistence of the judgment-debtor in jail shall be deemed to be costs on the suit.

Provided that the judgment-debtor shall not be detained in jail or arrested on account of any sum so disbursed.

Release of judgment-debtor.

341. The judgment-debtor shall be discharged from jail,

(a) on the decree being fully satisfied, or

(b) at the request of the person on whose application he has been imprisoned, or

(c) on such person omitting to pay the allowance as hereinbefore directed, or

(d) if the judgment-debtor be declared an insolvent, as hereinafter provided, or (e) when the term of his imprisonment as limited by section 342 is fulfilled.

Provided that in the first, second, third and fourth cases mentioned in this section, the judgment-debtor shall not be discharged without the order of the Court.

A judgment-debtor discharged under this section cannot be re-arrested under the decree in execution of which he was imprisoned.

Imprisonment not to exceed six months.

When not to exceed six weeks.

342. No person shall be imprisoned in execution of a decree for a longer period than six months; or for a longer period than six weeks if the decree be for the payment of a sum of money not exceeding fifty rupees.

Endorsement on warrant.

343. The officer entrusted with the execution of the warrant shall endorse thereupon the day on, and the manner in, which it was executed; and if the latest day specified in the warrant for the return thereof has been exceeded, the reason of the delay; or if it was not executed, the reason why it was not executed, and shall return the warrant with such endorsement to the Court.

If the endorsement is to the effect that such officer is unable to execute the warrant, the Court shall examine him on oath touching his alleged inability, and may, if it think fit, summon and examine witnesses as to such inability and shall record the result.

CHAPTER XX.

OF INSOLVENT JUDGMENT-DEBTORS.

Power to apply to be declared an insolvent.

344. Any person arrested or imprisoned in execution of a decree for money may apply in writing to be declared an insolvent.

Such application shall be made to the District Court which ordered his arrest or imprisonment, or when the District Court did not make such order, then to the District Court to which the Court that made the order is subordinate.

Contents of application.

345. The application shall set forth—

(a) the fact of such person's arrest or imprisonment, the Court by whose order he was arrested or imprisoned, and the place in which he is in custody;

(b) the amount, kind and particulars of his property, and the value of any such property not consisting of money;

(c) the place or places in which such property is to be found;

(d) his willingness to place it at the disposal of the Court;

(e) the amount and particulars of all pecuniary claims against him; and

(f) the names and residences of his creditors, so far as they are known to or can be ascertained by him.

Subscription and verification of application.

346. The application shall be subscribed and verified by the applicant in manner hereinbefore prescribed for subscribing and verifying plaints.

Service on decree-holder of copy of application and notice.

347. The Court shall fix a day for hearing the application, and shall cause a copy thereof, with a notice in writing of the time and place at which it will be heard, to be stuck up in Court and served at the applicant's expense on the holder of the decree in execution of which he was arrested or imprisoned, or on the pleader of such decree-holder, and on the other creditors (if any) mentioned in the application.

The Court may, if it thinks fit, publish at the applicant's expense the application in such official Gazettes and public newspapers as it thinks fit.

Power to serve other creditors.

348. The Court may also, if it thinks fit, cause a like copy and notice to be served on any other person alleging himself to be a creditor of the applicant and applying for leave to be heard on the application.

Powers of Court as to applicant under arrest.

349. Where the applicant is under arrest, the Court may, pending the hearing under section 350,

(a) order him to be immediately committed to jail; or (b) leave him in the custody of the officer of Court to whom the service of the warrant was entrusted.

Procedure at hearing.

350. On the day so fixed, or on any subsequent day to which the Court may adjourn the hearing, the Court shall examine the applicant, in the presence of the persons on whom such notice has been served or their pleaders, as to his then circumstances and as to his future means of payment, and shall hear the said decree-holder, the other creditors mentioned in the application and the other persons (if any) alleging themselves to be creditors, in opposition to the applicant's discharge; and may, if it thinks fit, grant time to the said decree-holder and other creditors or persons to adduce evidence showing that the applicant is not entitled to be declared an insolvent.

Declaration of insolvency and appointment of Receiver.

351. If the Court is satisfied—

(a) that the statements in the application are substantially true;

(b) that the applicant has not, with intent to defraud his creditors, concealed, transferred, or removed any part of his property within two months next before the date of the decree in execution of which he was arrested or imprisoned or at any subsequent time;

(c) that he has not, knowing himself to be unable to pay his debts in full, recklessly contracted or given an unfair preference to any of his creditors by any payment or disposition of his property;

(d) that he has not committed any other act of bad faith regarding the matter of the application, the Court may declare him to be an insolvent, and may also, if it think fit, make an order appointing a Receiver of his property, or if it does not appoint such Receiver, may discharge the insolvent.

Creditors to prove their debts.

352. The creditors mentioned in the application and the other persons (if any) alleging themselves to be creditors of the insolvent, shall then produce evidence of the amount, and particulars of their respective pecuniary claims against him; and the Court shall frame a schedule of the persons who have proved themselves to be the insolvent's creditors, and of their respective debts; and the declaration under section 351 shall be deemed to be a decree in favour of each of the said creditors for their said respective debts.

Schedule to be framed.

A copy of every such schedule shall be stuck up in the court-house.

Applications by creditors.

353. Any creditor of the insolvent who is not mentioned in such schedule may, within three months from its publication, apply to the Court for permission to produce evidence of the amount and particulars of his pecuniary claims against the insolvent, and in case he proves himself to be a creditor of the insolvent, for an order directing his name to be inserted in the schedule as a creditor for the debt so proved.

Any creditor mentioned in the schedule may within three months from the publication of the schedule apply to the Court for an order altering the schedule so far as regards the amount, nature or particulars of his own debt, or to strike out the name of another creditor, or to alter the schedule so far as regards the amount, nature or particulars of the debt of another creditor.

In the case of any application under this section, the Court, after causing such notices as it thinks fit to be served, at the applicant's expense, on the insolvent and the other creditors and hearing their objections, if any, may comply with or reject the application.

Effect of order appointing Receiver.

354. Every order under section 351 shall be published in the official Gazette and shall operate to vest in the Receiver all the insolvent's property (except the particulars specified in the first proviso to section 266) whether set forth in his application or not.

355. The Receiver so appointed shall give such security as the Court may direct and shall possess himself of all such property, except as aforesaid; and on his certifying that the insolvent has placed him in possession thereof, or has done everything in his power for that purpose, the Court may discharge the insolvent from arrest or imprisonment, as the case may be, upon such conditions (if any) as the Court thinks fit.

Receiver to give security and collect assets.

Discharge of insolvent.

356. The Receiver shall proceed under the direction of the Court—

Duty of Receiver.

(a) to convert the property into money:

(b) to pay thereout debts, fines and penalties (if any) due by the insolvent to Government:

(c) to pay the said decree-holder's costs:

(d) to distribute the balance among the scheduled creditors rateably according to the amounts of their respective debts, and without any preference; and such Receiver may retain as a remuneration for the performance of his duties a commission at the rate of five per centum upon the amount of the balance so distributed (the amount of the commission so retained being deemed a distribution), and shall deliver the surplus, if any, to the insolvent or his legal representative.

His right to remuneration.

Delivery of surplus.

357. An insolvent discharged under section 355 shall not be arrested or imprisoned on account of any of the scheduled debts. But (subject to the provisions of section 358) his property, whether previously or subsequently acquired (except the particulars specified in the first proviso to section 266 and except the property vested in the Receiver,) shall, by order of the Court, be liable to attachment and sale until the decrees against him held by the scheduled creditors are fully satisfied or become incapable of being executed.

Effect of discharge.

358. If the aggregate amount of the scheduled debts is two hundred rupees or a less sum, the Court may declare the insolvent discharged as aforesaid absolved from further liability in respect of such debts.

When Court may declare insolvent absolved from further liability.

359. Whenever, at the hearing under section 350, it is proved that the applicant has Procedure in case of dishonest applicant.

(a) been guilty, in his application, of any concealment or of wilfully making any false statement as to the debts due by him, or respecting the property belonging to him, whether in possession or in expectancy, or held for him in trust;

(b) fraudulently concealed, transferred or removed any property; or

(c) committed any other act of bad faith regarding the matter of the application, the Court shall, at the instance of any of his creditors, sentence him to imprisonment for a term not exceeding one year from the date of committal.

Or the Court may, if it think fit, send him to the Magistrate to be dealt with according to law.

360. The Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, invest any Court other than a District Court with the powers conferred on District Courts by sections 314 to 359 (both inclusive), and the District Judge may transfer to any Court situate in his district and so invested any case instituted under section 344.

Investment of other Courts with powers of District Courts.

Transfer of cases.

Any Court so invested may entertain any application under section 344 by any person arrested in execution of a decree of such Court.

PART II.

OF INCIDENTAL PROCEEDINGS.

CHAPTER XXI.

OF THE DEATH, MARRIAGE AND INSOLVENCY OF PARTIES.

361. The death of a plaintiff or defendant shall not cause the suit to abate if the cause of action survives.

No abatement by party's death, if cause of action survive.

Illustrations.

(a) A covenants with B and C to pay an annuity to B during C's life. B and C sue A to compel payment. B dies before the decree: the cause of action survives to C, and the suit does not abate.

(b. In the same case, all the parties die before decree. The cause of action survives to the representative of the survivor of B and C, and he may continue the suit against A's representative.

(c). A sues B for libel. A dies. The cause of action does not survive and the suit abates.

(d). A a member of a Hindú joint family under the Mitákshará law, institutes a suit for partition of the family property. A dies leaving B, a minor son his heir. The cause of action survives to B, and the suit does not abate.

362. If there be more plaintiffs or defendants than one, and any of them dies, and if the cause of action survives to the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs alone, or against the surviving defendant or defendants alone, the Court shall cause an entry to that effect to be made on the record, and the suit shall proceed at the instance of the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs, or against the surviving defendant or defendants.

Proceeding in case of death of one of several plaintiffs or defendants, if cause of action survive.

363. If there be more plaintiffs than one, and any of them dies, and if the cause of action does not survive to the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs alone, but survives to him or them and the legal representative of the deceased plaintiff jointly, the Court may, on the application of such legal representative, enter his name on the record in the place of such deceased plaintiff, and the suit shall proceed at the instance of the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs and such legal representative.

Proceeding in case of death of one of several plaintiffs where cause of action survives to survivors and representative of deceased.

364. If no application be made to the Court within a reasonable time not exceeding thirty days by any person claiming to be the legal representative of Proceeding where no application made by representative of deceased plaintiff.

a deceased plaintiff, the suit shall proceed at the instance of the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs; and the legal representative (if any) of the deceased plaintiff shall be made a party and shall be interested in and bound by the decree passed in the suit, in the same manner as if the suit had proceeded at his instance conjointly with the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs.

365. In case of the death of a sole plaintiff or sole surviving plaintiff, the Court may, on the application of the legal representative of the deceased, enter his name in the place of such plaintiff on the record, and the suit shall thereupon proceed.

Proceeding in case of death of sole, or sole surviving, plaintiff.

366. If no such application be made to the Court within a reasonable time not exceeding thirty days by any person claiming to be the legal representative of the deceased plaintiff, the Court may pass an order that the suit shall abate, and award to the defendant the costs which he may have incurred in defending the suit, to be recovered from the estate of the deceased plaintiff; or the Court may, if it think proper, on the application of the defendant, and upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit, pass such other order as it thinks fit for bringing in the legal representative of the deceased plaintiff and for proceeding with the suit in order to a final determination of the matter in dispute.

Abatement where no application by representative of deceased plaintiff.

Explanation.—A certificate of heirship, or a certificate to collect debts, does not of itself constitute the person holding it the legal representative of the deceased. But when the person holding any such certificate obtains thereby property belonging to the deceased, he may be treated as a legal representative liable in respect of such property.

367. If any dispute arise as to who is the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff, the Court may either stay the suit until the fact has been determined in another suit, or decide at or before the hearing of the suit who shall be admitted to be such legal representative for the purpose of prosecuting the suit.

Procedure in case of dispute as to representative of deceased plaintiff.

368. If there be more defendants than one, and any of them die before decree and the cause of action does not survive against the surviving defendant or defendants alone, and also in case of the death of a sole defendant, or sole surviving defendant, where the right to sue survives,

Procedure in case of death of one of several defendants, or of sole or sole surviving defendant.

the plaintiff may make an application to the Court, specifying the name, description, and place of abode of any person whom he alleges to be the legal representative of the deceased defendant, and whom he desires to be made the defendant in his stead.

The Court shall thereupon enter the name of such representative on the record in the place of such defendant, and shall issue a summons to such representative to appear on a day to be therein mentioned to defend the suit; and the case shall thereupon proceed in the same manner as if such representative had originally been made a defendant and had been a party to the former proceedings in the suit:

Provided that the person so made defendant may object that he is not the legal representative of the deceased defendant, or may make any defence appropriate to his character as such representative.

369. The marriage of a female plaintiff or defendant shall not cause the suit to abate, but the suit may notwithstanding be proceeded with to judgment, and where the decree is against a female defendant, it may thereupon be executed against the wife alone.

Suit not abated by marriage of female party.

If the case is one in which the husband is by law liable for the debts of his wife, the decree may, with the permission of the Court, be executed against the husband also; and in case of judgment for the wife, execution of the decree may with such permission be issued upon the application of the husband, where the husband is by law entitled to the subject-matter of the decree.

370. The bankruptcy or insolvency of a plaintiff in any suit which his assignee or the receiver appointed under section 351 might maintain for the benefit of his creditors shall not bar the suit, unless such assignee or receiver declines to continue the suit and to give security for the costs thereof within such time as the Court may order.

When plaintiff's bankruptcy or insolvency bars suit.

If the assignee or receiver neglect or refuse to continue the suit and to give such security within the time so ordered, the defendant may, within eight days after such neglect or refusal, apply for the dismissal of the suit on the ground of the plaintiff's bankruptcy or insolvency, and the Court may dismiss the suit and award to the defendant the costs which he has incurred in defending the same, to be recovered from the plaintiff's estate.

Procedure when assignee fails to continue suit or give security.

371. When a suit abates or is dismissed under this chapter, no fresh suit shall be brought on the same cause of action.

Effect of abatement on parties' rights.

But the person claiming to be the representative of the deceased bankrupt or insolvent plaintiff, may apply for an order to set aside the order for abatement or dismissal; and if it be proved that he was prevented by any sufficient cause from continuing the suit, the Court shall set aside the abatement or dismissal upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit.

Application to set aside abatement or dismissal.

372. In other cases of assignment, creation or devolution of any interest pending the suit, the suit may, with the leave of the Court, given either with the consent of all parties or after service of notice in writing upon them, and hearing their objections, if any, be continued by or against the person to whom such interest has come, either in addition to or in substitution for the person from whom it has passed, as the case may require.

Procedure in case of assignment pending the suit.

CHAPTER XXII.

OF THE WITHDRAWAL AND ADJUSTMENT OF SUITS.

Power to allow plaintiff to withdraw with liberty to bring fresh suit.

373. If, at any time after the institution of the suit, but before judgment, the Court is satisfied on the application of the plaintiff (a) that the suit must fail by reason of some formal defect, or (b) that there are sufficient grounds for permitting him to withdraw from the suit or to abandon part of his claim with liberty to bring a fresh suit for the subject-matter of the suit or for the part so abandoned, the Court may grant such permission on such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit.

If the plaintiff withdraw from the suit, or abandon part of his claim, without such permission, he shall be liable for such costs as the Court may award, and shall be precluded from bringing a fresh suit for the same matter.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize the Court to permit one of several plaintiffs to withdraw without the consent of the others.

Limitation-law not affected by first suit.

374. In any fresh suit instituted on permission granted under the last preceding section, the plaintiff shall be bound by the law of limitation in the same manner as if the first suit had not been brought.

Compromise of suits.

375. If a suit be adjusted by mutual agreement or compromise, or if the defendant satisfy the plaintiff in respect to the matter of the suit, such agreement, compromise or satisfaction shall be recorded, and the Court shall pass a decree in accordance therewith, and such decree shall be final.

CHAPTER XXIII.

OF PAYMENT INTO COURT.

Deposit by defendant of amount in satisfaction of claim.

376. The defendant in any suit to recover a debt or damages, may, at any stage of the suit, deposit in Court such sum of money as he considers a satisfaction in full of the claim.

Notice of deposit.

377. Notice of the deposit shall be given by the defendant to the plaintiff, and the amount of the deposit shall (unless the Court otherwise directs) be paid to the plaintiff on his application.

Interest on sum deposited not allowed to plaintiff after receipt of notice.

378. No interest shall be allowed to the plaintiff on any sum deposited by the defendant from the date of the receipt of such notice, whether the sum deposited be in full of the claim or fall short thereof.

Procedure where plaintiff accepts deposit as satisfaction in part.

379. If the plaintiff accept such amount only as satisfaction in part of his claim, he may prosecute his suit for the balance; and if the Court decides that the deposit by the defendant was a full satisfaction of the plaintiff's claim, the plaintiff must pay the costs of the suit incurred after the deposit and the costs incurred previous thereto, so far as they were caused by excess in the plaintiff's claim.

Procedure where he accepts it as satisfaction in full.

If the plaintiff accept such amount as satisfaction in full of his claim, he shall file in Court a statement to that effect, and the Court shall pass judgment accordingly, and in directing by whom the costs of each party are to be paid, the Court shall consider which of the parties is most to blame for the litigation.

Illustrations.

(a). A owes B Rs. 100. B sues A for the amount, having made no demand for payment and having no reason to believe that the delay caused by making a demand would place him at a disadvantage. On the plaint being filed, A pays the money into Court. B accepts it in full satisfaction of his claim, but the Court should not allow him any costs, the litigation being presumably groundless on his part.

(b). B sues A under the circumstances mentioned in illustration (a). On the plaint being filed, A disputes the claim. Afterwards A pays the money into Court. B accepts it in full satisfaction of his claim. The Court should also give B his costs of suit, A's conduct having shewn that the litigation was necessary.

(c). A owes B Rs. 100 and is willing to pay him that sum without suit. B claims Rs. 150 and sues A for that amount. On the plaint being filed, A pays Rs. 100 into Court and disputes only his liability to pay the remaining Rs. 50. B accepts the Rs. 100 in full satisfaction of his claim. The Court should order him to pay A's costs.

CHAPTER XXIV.

OF REQUIRING SECURITY FOR COSTS.

When security for costs is to be furnished by plaintiff on presenting plaint.

380. When the plaintiff ordinarily resides out of British India, and does not possess any sufficient immoveable property within British India independent of the property in suit, he shall, if any defendant so requires, on presenting the plaint or within such time as the Court may fix, furnish security for the payment of the costs that may be incurred by the defendant.

When security for costs may be required from plaintiff at any stage of suit.

381. If at any subsequent stage of a suit it appears to the Court that a sole plaintiff is, or (when there are more plaintiffs than one) that all the plaintiffs are, residing out of British India, and such plaintiff or plaintiffs does not or do not possess any sufficient immoveable property within British India independent of the property in suit, the Court may, on the application of any defendant, order the plaintiff or plaintiffs, within a time to be fixed by the order, to give security for the payment of all costs incurred and likely to be incurred by such defendant.

Procedure where requisition is not complied with.

In the event of such security not being furnished within the time so fixed, the Court shall pass a decree against the plaintiff or plaintiffs by default, unless he or they be permitted to withdraw from the suit under the provisions of section 373.

Residence out of British India.

382. A person is considered to be resident out of British India, within the meaning of sections 380 and 381 who leaves British India under such circumstances as to afford reasonable probability that he will not be forthcoming whenever he may be called upon to pay costs.

CHAPTER XXV.

OF COMMISSIONS.

A.—Commissions to examine Witnesses.

Cases in which Court may issue commission to examine witness.

383. Any Court may by order issue a commission for the examination on interrogatories or otherwise of persons resident within the local limits of its jurisdiction, who are exempted under this Code from attending the Court, or who are from sickness or infirmity unable to attend it.

Order for commission may be made either on application of parties or by Court of its own accord.

384. Such order may be made by the Court either of its own motion, or on the application, supported by affidavit, of any party to the suit or proceeding or of the witness to be examined.

When witness resides within Court's jurisdiction.

385. The commission for the examination of a person who resides within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court issuing the same may be issued to any person whom the Court issuing the commission thinks proper to appoint to execute the same:

Provided that where the Court issuing the commission is subordinate to a District Court, and is not a Court of Small Causes, the exercise of the power conferred by this section shall be subject to such rules as the District Court may from time to time prescribe, as to the officers or persons to whom commissions may be issued.

When witness resides beyond Court's jurisdiction, but in British India.

386. Any District Court and any Court of Small Causes may issue a commission for the examination of—

(a) any person resident beyond the local limits of its jurisdiction,

(b) persons who are about to leave such limits before the date on which they are required to be examined in Court, and

(c) civil and military officers of Government who cannot, in the opinion of the Judge, attend the Court without detriment to the public service.

If the suit in which it is desired to issue such commission be pending in any Court (other than a Court of Small Causes) subordinate to the District Court, the District Court may issue it on the application of such subordinate Court.

Such commission shall ordinarily be issued to any Court not being a High Court, within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such person resides, and which can most conveniently execute the same:

When witness is within local limits of ordinary original civil jurisdiction of a High Court.

Provided that if he resides beyond the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court issuing the commission and within the towns of Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, or Rangoon, the commission shall be issued to the Court of Small Causes within whose jurisdiction he resides:

Provided also that, under special circumstances, the commission may be directed to any person whom the Court issuing the commission thinks fit to appoint.

The Court on issuing any commission under this section shall direct whether the commission shall be returned to itself or to any subordinate Court.

When witness is not within British India.

387. In the case of a person residing at any place not within British India, the Court, if satisfied that the evidence of such person is necessary, may, of its own motion or on the application of any of the parties to the suit, issue a commission for his examination.

Court to examine witness pursuant to commission.

388. Every Court receiving a commission for the examination of any person shall examine him pursuant thereto.

Commission when executed to be returned to Court issuing it with depositions of witnesses.

389. After the commission has been duly executed, it shall be returned, together with the evidence taken under it, to the Court out of which it issued, unless the order for issuing the commission has otherwise directed, in which case the commission shall be returned in terms of such order; and the commission and the return thereto, and the evidence taken under it, shall form part of the record of the suit.

When depositions may be read in evidence.

390. Evidence taken under a commission shall not be read as evidence in the suit without the consent of the party against whom the same is offered, unless

(a) the person who gave the evidence is beyond the jurisdiction of the Court, or dead, or unable from sickness or infirmity to attend to be personally examined, or exempted from personal appearance in Court, or

(b) the Court in its discretion dispenses with the proof of any of the circumstances mentioned in the last preceding clause, and authorizes the evidence of any person being read as evidence in the suit, notwithstanding proof that the cause for taking such evidence by commission has ceased at the time of reading the same.

Provisions as to execution and return of commissions to apply to commissions issued by Foreign Courts.

391. The provisions hereinbefore contained as to the execution and return of commissions shall apply to commissions issued by

(a) Courts situate beyond the limits of British India and established by the authority of Her Majesty or of the Governor General in Council, or

(b) Courts situate in any part of the British Empire other than British India, or (c) Courts of any foreign country for the time being in alliance with Her Majesty.

B.—Commissions for Local Investigations.

Commission to make local investigations.

392. In any suit or proceeding in which the Court deems a local investigation to be requisite or proper for the purpose of elucidating any matter in dispute, or of ascertaining the market-value of any property, or the amount of any mesne profits or damages or annual nett profits, and the same cannot be conveniently conducted by the Judge in person, the Court may issue a commission to such person as it thinks fit, directing him to make such investigation and to report thereon to the Court:

Provided that when the Local Government has made rules as to the persons to whom such commission shall be issued, the Court shall be bound by such rules.

393. The Commissioner, unless otherwise directed by the order of appointment, may examine the parties themselves and any witness whom they or any of them may produce, and any other person whom the Commissioner thinks proper to call upon to give evidence in the matter referred to him.

Commissioner may examine parties and witnesses and call for papers.

The Commissioner may also call for and examine documents and other papers relevant to the subject of enquiry.

The Commissioner, after such local inspection as he deems necessary, and after reducing to writing the evidence taken by him, shall return such evidence, together with his report in writing, subscribed with his name, to the Court.

394. The report of the Commissioner and the evidence taken by him (but not the evidence without the report) shall be evidence in the suit and shall form part of the record; but the Court, or any of the parties to the suit may, with the permission of the Court, examine the Commissioner personally in open Court touching any of the matters referred to him or mentioned in his report, or as to the manner in which he has made the investigation.

Report and depositions to be evidence in suit.

Commissioner may be examined in person.

C.—Commissions to examine Accounts.

395. In any suit in which an examination or adjustment of accounts is necessary, the Court may issue a commission to such person as it thinks fit directing him to make such examination or adjustment.

Commission to investigate and adjust accounts.

396. The Court shall furnish the Commissioner with such part of the proceedings and such detailed instructions as appear necessary, and the instructions shall distinctly specify whether the Commissioner is merely to transmit the proceedings which he may hold on the enquiry, or also to report his own opinion on the point referred for his examination.

Court to give Commissioner necessary instructions.

397. The proceedings of the Commissioner shall be received in evidence in the suit, unless the Court has reason to be dissatisfied with them, in which case the Court shall direct such further enquiry as is requisite.

Proceedings of Commissioner receivable in evidence.

Power to make further enquiry.

D.—General Provisions.

398. Before issuing any commission under this chapter, the Court may order such sum (if any) as it thinks reasonable for the expenses of the commission to be paid into Court by the party at whose instance or for whose benefit the commission is issued.

Expenses of Commission to be paid into court.

399. The provisions of this Code relating to the summoning, attendance, and examination of witnesses and to the remuneration of, and penalties to be imposed upon, witnesses, shall apply to persons required to give evidence or to produce documents under this chapter, whether the commission in execution of which they are so required has been issued by a Court situate within, or by a Court situated beyond, the limits of British India.

Attendance, examination and punishment of witnesses before Commissioner.

400. Whenever a commission is issued under this chapter, the Court shall direct that the parties to the suit shall appear before the Commissioner in person or by their agents or pleaders.

Procedure ex parte where parties do not appear.

If the parties do not so appear, the Commissioner may proceed ex parte.

PART III.

OF SUITS IN PARTICULAR CASES.

CHAPTER XXVI.

SUITS BY PAUPERS.

401. Subject to the following rules, any suit may be brought by a pauper.

Suits may be brought in formâ pauperis.

Explanation.—A person is a 'pauper' when he is not possessed of sufficient means to enable him to pay the fee prescribed for by law for the plaint in such suit, or, where no such fee is prescribed, when he is not entitled to property worth one hundred rupees other than his necessary wearing apparel and the subject-matter of the suit.

402. No suit shall be brought by a pauper to recover compensation for loss of caste, libel, slander, abusive language or assault.

What suits excepted.

403. The application for permission to sue by a pauper shall be in writing, and shall contain the particulars required by section 50 in regard to plaints in suits: a schedule of any moveable or immoveable property belonging to the petitioner, with the estimated value thereof, shall be annexed thereto; and it shall be subscribed and verified in the manner hereinbefore prescribed for the subscription and verification of plaints.

Application to be in writing.

Contents of application.

404. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 40, the application shall be presented to the Court by the applicant in person unless he is exempted from appearing in Court under section 642 or 643, in which case the application may be presented by a duly authorized agent, who can answer all material questions relating to the application, and who shall be liable to be examined in the same manner as the party represented by him might have been examined had such party attended in person.

Presentation of application.

405. If the application be not framed or presented in the manner laid down in sections 403 and 404, the Court shall reject it.

Rejection of application.

406. If the application be in form and duly presented, the Judge shall examine the petitioner, or his agent when the applicant is allowed to appear by agent, regarding the merits of the claim and the property of the applicant.

When the application is presented by an agent, the Court may, if it thinks fit, order that the applicant be examined by a Commission in the manner in which the examination of an absent witness may be taken under the provisions of this Code.

If presented by agent, Court may order applicant to be examined by Commission.

407. If it appear to the Court upon such examination

Rejection of application.

(a) that the applicant is not a pauper, or

(b) that he has, within the two months next before the presentation of the application, disposed of any property fraudulently or with a view to obtain the benefit of this chapter, or the Court shall reject the application.

(c) that his allegations do not show a right to sue in such Court,

408. If upon such examination the Court sees no reason to refuse the application on any of the grounds stated in section 407, it shall fix a day, of which at least ten days' previous notice shall be given to the opposite party and the Government Pleader, for receiving such evidence as the applicant may adduce in proof of his pauperism, and for hearing any evidence which may be adduced in disproof thereof.

Notice of day for receiving evidence of applicant's pauperism.

409. On the day so fixed, or as soon thereafter as may be convenient, the Court shall examine the witnesses (if any) produced by either party, and may cross-examine the applicant or his agent, and shall make a memorandum of the substance of their evidence.

Procedure at hearing.

The Court shall also hear any argument which the parties may desire to offer on the question whether, on the face of the application and of the evidence (if any) taken by the Court as herein provided, the applicant is or is not subject to any of the prohibitions specified in section 407.

The Court shall then either allow or refuse to allow the applicant to sue as a pauper.

410. If the application be granted, it shall be numbered and registered, and shall be deemed the plaint in the suit, and the suit shall proceed in all other respects as a suit instituted under chapter V, except that the plaintiff shall not be liable to any court-fee (other than fees payable for service of process) in respect of any petition, appointment of a pleader, or other proceeding connected with the suit.

Procedure if application admitted.

411. If the plaintiff succeed in the suit, the Court shall calculate the amount of court-fees which would have been paid by the plaintiff if he had not been permitted to sue as a pauper; and such amount shall be a first charge on the subject-matter of the suit, and shall also be recoverable by Government from any party ordered by the decree to pay the same, in the same manner as costs of suit are recoverable under this Code.

Costs when pauper succeeds.

Recovery of court-fees.

412. If the plaintiff fails in the suit, or if he is dispaupered, the Court shall order the plaintiff, or any person made under section 32 co-plaintiff to the suit, to pay the court-fees which would have been paid by the plaintiff if he had not been permitted to sue as a pauper; and, if it find that the suit was frivolous or vexatious, it may also punish the plaintiff with fine not exceeding one hundred rupees, or with imprisonment for a term which may extend to a month, or with both.

Procedure when pauper fails.

413. Refusal to allow the applicant to sue as a pauper shall be a bar to any subsequent application of the like nature by him in respect of the same right to sue; but the applicant shall be at liberty to institute a suit in the ordinary manner in respect of such right.

Refusal to allow applicant to sue as pauper to bar subsequent application of like nature.

414. The Court may, on motion by the defendant, or by the Government Pleader, of which one week's notice in writing has been given to the plaintiff, order the plaintiff to be dispaupered—

Dispaupering.

(a) if he is guilty of vexatious or improper conduct in the course of the suit;

(b) if it appears that his means are such that he ought not to continue to sue as a pauper, or

(c) if he has entered into any agreement with reference to the subject-matter of the suit, under which any other person has obtained an interest in such subject-matter.

415. The costs of an application for permission to sue as a pauper and of an enquiry into pauperism are costs in the suit.

Costs.

CHAPTER XXVII.

SUITS BY OR AGAINST GOVERNMENT OR PUBLIC OFFICERS.

416. Suits by or against the Government shall be brought by or against (as the case may be) the Secretary of State for India in Council.

Suits by or against Secretary of State in Council.

No suit against the Secretary of State for India in Council and no suit against a public officer for any act alleged to be done by him in his official capacity shall be instituted in any Court inferior to a District Court. Any such suit may be transferred by order of the Court in which it is instituted to any Court subordinate thereto, and otherwise competent to entertain such suit.

Courts in which such suits shall be instituted.

Nothing contained in the second paragraph of this section shall affect suits to which Government is a party, the trial whereof is provided for by any local law.

417. Persons being ex-officio or otherwise authorized to act for Government in respect of any judicial proceeding, shall be deemed to be the recognized agents by whom appearances, acts and applications under this Code may be made or done on behalf of Government.

Persons authorized to act for Government.

418. In suits by the Secretary of State for India in Council, instead of inserting in the plaint the name and description and place of abode of the plaintiff, it shall be sufficient to insert the words "The Secretary of State for India in Council."

Plaints in suits by Secretary of State in Council.

419. The person appointed to act as pleader on the part of Government in any Court, shall be the agent of the Government for the purpose of receiving processes against the Government or the said Secretary of State in Council, issuing out of the Court in which such person may be the pleader of Government.

Agent of Government to receive process.

420. If the suit be against the said Secretary of State in Council or against a public officer for any such act as aforesaid, the summons shall be served on the Government Pleader of the Court in which the suit is instituted, or on any other person appointed to receive process on behalf of the Government.

Service on Government Pleader.

421. The Court, in fixing the day for the said Secretary of State in Council to answer to the plaint, shall allow a reasonable time for the necessary communication with the Government through the proper channels, and for the issue of instructions to the Government Pleader to appear and answer on behalf of the said Secretary of State in Council or the Government, and may extend the time at its discretion.

Appearance and answer by Secretary of State in Council.

The Court may also in any case in which the Government Pleader is not accompanied by any person on the part of the said Secretary of State in Council, who may be able to answer any material questions relating to the suit, direct the attendance of such a person.

422. If the defendant be a public officer, the Court may send a copy of the summons to the head of the office in which the defendant is employed, for the purpose of being served on him, if it shall appear to the Court that the summons may be most conveniently so served.

Service on public officers.

423. If the public officer on receiving the summons considers it proper to make a reference to the Government before answering to the plaint, he may apply to the Court to grant such extension of the time fixed in the summons as may be necessary to enable him to make such reference and to receive orders thereon through the proper channel; and the Court upon such application may extend the time for so long as appears to be requisite.

Extension of time to enable officer to make reference to Government.

424. No suit shall be instituted under this chapter against the said Secretary of State in Council or against a public officer until the expiration of two months next after notice in writing has been in the case of the Secretary of State in Council delivered to, or left at the office of, a Secretary to the Local Government or the Collector of the District, and, in the case of a public officer, delivered to him or left at his office, stating the cause of action and the name and place of abode of the intending plaintiff.

Notice previous to suing Secretary of State in Council or public officer.

Unless such notice is proved, the Court shall find for the defendant.

Every suit against a public officer for compensation for an act alleged to be done in his official capacity shall be commenced within six months next after the cause of action arises, and not afterwards.

425. If the Government undertake the defence of a suit under this chapter against a public officer, the Government Pleader, upon being furnished with authority to appear and answer to the plaint, shall apply to the Court, and upon such application the Court shall cause a note of his authority to be entered in the register.

Application where Government undertakes defence.

426. If such application is not made by the Government Pleader on or before the day fixed in the notice for the defendant to appear and answer to the plaint, the case shall proceed as in a suit between private parties, except that the defendant shall not be liable to arrest, nor his property to attachment, otherwise than in execution of a decree.

Procedure where no such application made.

Defendant not liable to arrest before judgment.

427. If in a suit under this chapter against a public officer the Court requires the personal appearance of the defendant, and the defendant satisfies the Court that he cannot absent himself from his duty without detriment to the public service, the Court shall exempt him from appearing in person.

Exemption of public officers from personal appearance.

428. When the decree is against the said Secretary of State in Council or against a public officer, a time shall be specified in the decree within which it shall be satisfied; and if the decree is not satisfied within the time so specified, the Court shall report the case for the orders of the Local Government.

Procedure where decree is against Government or a public officer.

Execution shall not issue on any decree mentioned in this section unless it remains unsatisfied for the period of three months computed from the date of the report.

429. Where there is no Government Pleader the functions imposed by this chapter on the Government Pleader may be performed by such officer as the Local Government generally or specially appoints in this behalf.

Performance of Government Pleader's functions.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

SUITS BY ALIENS AND BY OR AGAINST FOREIGN AND NATIVE RULERS.

430. Alien enemies residing in British India with the permission of the Governor General in Council and alien friends may sue in the Courts of British India as if they were subjects of Her Majesty.

When aliens may sue.

No alien enemy residing in British India without such permission, or residing in a foreign country, shall sue in any of such Courts.

Explanation.—Every person residing in a foreign country, the Government of which is at war with the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and carrying on business in this country without a license in that behalf under the hand of one of Her Majesty's Secretaries of State or of a Secretary to the Government of India, shall, for the purpose of this section, be deemed to be an alien enemy.

431. A foreign State may sue in the Courts of British India, provided that—

When a foreign State may sue.

(a) it has been recognized by Her Majesty or the Governor General in Council, and (b) the object of the suit is to enforce the private rights of the head or of the subjects of the foreign State.

The Court shall take judicial notice of the fact that a foreign State has not been recognized by Her Majesty or by the Governor General in Council.

432. Persons specially appointed by order of Government at the request of any Sovereign Prince or ruling Chief, whether in subordinate alliance with the British Government or otherwise, and whether residing within or without British India, to prosecute or defend any suit on his behalf, shall be deemed to be the recognized agents by whom appearances, acts and applications under this Code may be made or done on behalf of such Prince or Chief.

Persons specially appointed by Government to prosecute or defend for Princes or Chiefs.

433. Any such Prince or Chief, and any ambassador or envoy of a foreign State may, with the consent of Government certified by the signature of one of its Secretaries (but not otherwise) be sued in any competent Court not subordinate to a District Court:

Suits against Sovereign Princes, &c.

Such consent shall not be given unless—

(a) the Prince, Chief, ambassador or envoy has instituted a suit in such Court against the person desiring to sue him, or

(b) the Prince, Chief, ambassador or envoy by himself or another trades within the local limits of the jurisdiction of such Court; or

(c) the suit is for the determination of any right to, or interest in, immoveable property situate within the said local limits and in the possession of the Prince, Chief, ambassador or envoy.

No such Prince, Chief, ambassador or envoy shall be arrested under this Code; and no decree shall be executed against the property of any such Prince, Chief, ambassador or envoy unless with consent of Government certified as aforesaid.

Sovereign Princes, &c., exempt from arrest.

When their property may be attached.

434. The Governor General in Council may from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, Execution in British India of decrees of Courts of Native States.

(a) declare that the decrees of Courts situate in the territories of any Native Prince or State in alliance with Her Majesty, may be executed in British India as if they had been made by the Courts of British India, and (b) cancel any such declaration.

So long as such declaration remains in force the said decrees may be executed accordingly.

CHAPTER XXIX.

SUITS BY AND AGAINST CORPORATIONS AND COMPANIES.

435. In suits by a Corporation, or by a Company authorized to sue and be sued in the name of an officer or of a trustee, the plaint may be subscribed and verified on behalf of the Corporation or Company by any director, secretary, or other principal officer of the Corporation or Company, who is able to depose to the facts of the case.

Subscription and verification of plaint.

436. When the suit is against a Corporation, or against a Company authorized to sue and be sued in the name of an officer or of a trustee, the summons may be served Service on Corporation or Company.

(a) by leaving it at the registered office (if any) of the Corporation or Company, or

(b) by sending it by post in a letter addressed to such officer or trustee at the office (or if there be more offices than one, at the principal office in British India) of the Corporation or Company, or

(c) by giving it to any director, secretary, or other principal officer of the Corporation or Company, and the Court may require the personal appearance of any director, secretary, or other principal officer of the Corporation or Company who may be able to answer material questions relating to the suit.

CHAPTER XXX.

SUITS BY AND AGAINST TRUSTEES, EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS.

437. In all suits concerning property vested in a trustee, executor or administrator, the trustee, executor or administrator shall represent the persons beneficially interested in such property; and it shall not ordinarily be necessary to make such persons parties to the suit. But the Court may, if it think fit, order them or any of them to be made such parties.

Representation of beneficiaries in suits concerning property vested in trustees, &c.

438. When there are several executors or administrators, they shall all be made parties to a suit against one or more of them:

Joinder of executors and administrators.

Provided that executors who have not proved their testator's will, and executors and administrators beyond the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court, need not be made parties.

439. Unless the Court directs otherwise, the husband of a married administratrix or executrix shall not be a party to a suit by or against her.

Husband of married executrix not to join.

CHAPTER XXXI.

SUITS BY AND AGAINST MINORS AND PERSONS OF UNSOUND MIND.

440. Every suit by a minor shall be instituted in his name by an adult person, who in such suit shall be called the next friend of the minor, and may be ordered to pay any costs in the suit as if he were the plaintiff.

Minor must sue by next friend.

Costs.

441. Every application to the Court on behalf of a minor (other than an application under section 450) shall be made by his next friend, or his guardian for the suit.

Applications to be made by next friend or guardian ad litem.

442. If a plaint be filed by or on behalf of a minor, without a next friend, the defendant may apply to have the plaint taken off the file, with costs to be paid by the pleader or other person by whom it was presented. Notice in writing of such application shall be given to such person by the defendant; and the Court, after hearing his objections, if any, may make such order in the matter as it thinks fit.

Plaint filed without next friend to be taken off the file.

Costs.

443. Where the defendant to a suit, or respondent to an application, is a minor, the Court, on being satisfied of the fact of his minority, shall appoint a proper person to be guardian for the suit for such minor, to put in the defence for such minor, and generally to act on his behalf in the conduct and management of the case.

Guardian ad litem to be appointed by the Court.

A guardian for the suit is not a guardian of person or property within the meaning of the Indian Majority Act, 1875, section 3.

444. Every order made in a suit or on any application before the Court, in or by which a minor is in any way concerned or affected, without such minor being represented by a next friend or guardian for the suit, as the case may be, may be discharged, and, if the pleader of the party at whose instance such order was obtained knew, or might, reasonably have known, the fact of such minority, with costs to be paid by such pleader.

Order obtained without next friend or guardian may be discharged.

Costs.

445. Any person, being sui juris, may act as next friend of a minor, provided his interest is not adverse to that of such minor, and he is not a defendant or respondent in or to the suit or application.

Who may be next friend.

446. If the interest of the next friend of a minor is adverse to that of such minor, or if he is so connected with a defendant or respondent whose interest is adverse to that of such minor, as to make it unlikely that the interest of such minor will be properly protected by him, or if he does not do his duty, or, pending the suit or application, ceases to reside within British India, or for any other sufficient cause, application may be made on behalf of such minor or by a defendant or respondent for his removal, and the Court (if satisfied of the sufficiency of the cause assigned) may order the next friend to be removed accordingly and a guardian for the suit to be substituted.

Removal of next friend.

447. Unless otherwise ordered by the Court, a next friend shall not retire at his own request without first procuring a fit person to be put in his place, and giving security for the costs already incurred.

Retirement of next friend.

448. The application for the appointment of a new next friend shall be supported by affidavit, showing the fitness of the person proposed, and also, that he has no interest adverse to the minor.

Application for appointment of new next friend.

449. On the death or removal, as aforesaid, of a next friend, further proceedings shall be stayed until the appointment of a next friend in his place.

Stay of proceedings on death or removal of next friend.

450. If the pleader of such minor omits, within reasonable time, to take steps to get a new next friend appointed, any person interested in the minor or the matter at issue may apply to the Court for the appointment of one, and the Court may appoint such person as it thinks fit.

Application for appointment of new next friend.

451. On the appointment of a new next friend his name as such shall thenceforth be inserted in the proceedings.

Name of new next friend to be inserted in proceedings.

452. Before the name of any person can be used as the next friend of a minor, he shall sign a written authority to the pleader for that purpose, which authority shall be filed in Court.

Written authority to act for next friend to be filed.

453. A minor plaintiff, or a minor not a party to a suit on whose behalf an application is pending, on coming of age, must elect whether he will proceed with the suit or application.

Course to be followed by minor plaintiff or applicant on coming of age.

If he elects to proceed with it, he shall obtain an order discharging the next friend, and for leave to proceed in his own name.

The title of the suit or application shall in such case be corrected so as to read thenceforth thus:—"A. B., late a minor by C. D., his next friend, but now of full age."

If he elects to abandon the suit or application, he shall, if a sole plaintiff, or sole applicant, obtain an order to dismiss the suit or application on repayment of the costs incurred by the defendant or respondent, or which may have been paid by his next friend.

When minor sole plaintiff, or sole applicant.

Costs.

In either case the application may be made by petition ex parte; and it must be proved by affidavit that the late minor has attained his full age.

454. A minor co-plaintiff or co-applicant, on coming of age, and desiring to repudiate the suit or application, must apply to have his name struck out as co-plaintiff or co-applicant.

When minor co-plaintiff or co-applicant.

The application shall be by summons to the next friend, as well as to the defendant or respondent; and it must be proved by affidavit that the late minor has attained his full age. The costs of all parties of such application, and of all or any proceedings theretofore had in the suit or matter, shall be paid by such persons as the Court directs.

Costs.

455. If any minor on attaining majority can prove to the satisfaction of the Court that a suit instituted in his name by a next friend was unreasonable or improper, he may, if a sole plaintiff or sole applicant, apply to have the suit dismissed.

When suit or proceeding unreasonable or improper.

The application shall be by summons to all the parties concerned: and the Court, upon being satisfied of such unreasonableness or impropriety, may grant the application, and order the next friend to pay the costs of all parties in respect of the application and of any thing done in the suit.

Costs.

456. An order for the appointment of a guardian for the suit may be obtained upon application in the name of the minor. The petition must be supported by an affidavit verifying the fact that the proposed guardian has no interest in the matters in question in the suit or application, adverse to that of the minor, and that he is a fit person to be so appointed.

Petition for appointment of guardian ad litem.

457. A co-defendant or co-respondent, if sui juris, may be appointed guardian for the suit, if he has no interest adverse to that of the minor; but neither a plaintiff, nor a party applicant, nor a married woman, can be so appointed.

Who may be guardian ad litem.

458. If the guardian for the suit dies pending a suit or application against a minor, a new guardian shall be appointed in his place.

On death of guardian, pendente lite, new guardian to be appointed.

459. If the guardian for the suit of a minor defendant or respondent does not do his duty, or if other sufficient ground be made to appear, the Court may remove him, and may order him to pay such costs as may have been occasioned to any party by his breach of duty.

Guardian neglecting his duty may be removed.

Costs.

460. When the enforcement of a decree is applied for against the heir or representative, being a minor, of a deceased party, a guardian for the suit of such minor shall be appointed, and the decree-holder shall serve on such guardian notice in writing of such application.

When decree to be enforced against heir or representative.

461. No sum of money or other thing shall be received or taken by, a next friend or guardian for the suit at any time on behalf of a minor, at any time before decree or order, unless he has first obtained the leave of the Court, and given security to its satisfaction that such money or other thing shall be duly accounted for to, and held for the benefit of, such minor.

Before decree, next friend or guardian ad litem not to receive money without leave of Court and giving security.

462. No such next friend or guardian for the suit shall enter into any agreement or compromise on behalf of a minor, with reference to the suit in which he acts as next friend or guardian without the leave of the Court.

Next friend or guardian ad litem not to compromise without leave of Court.

Any such agreement or compromise entered into without the leave of the Court shall be voidable against all parties other than the minor.

Compromise without leave voidable.

463. The provisions contained in sections 440 to 462 (both inclusive) shall, mutatis mutandis, apply in the case of persons of unsound mind, adjudged to be so under Act No. XXXV of 1858, or under any other law for the time being in force.

Application of sections 440 to 462 to persons of unsound mind.

464. Nothing in sections 442 to 462 applies to any minor or person of unsound mind, for whose person or property a guardian or manager has been appointed by the Court of Wards or by the Civil Court under any local law.

Wards of Court.

CHAPTER XXXII.

SUITS BY AND AGAINST MILITARY MEN.

465. When any officer or soldier actually serving the Government in a military capacity is a party to a suit, and cannot obtain leave of absence for the purpose of prosecuting or defending the suit in person, he may authorize any person to sue or defend in his stead.

Officers or soldiers who cannot obtain leave may authorize any person to sue or defend for them.

The authority shall be in writing and shall be signed by the officer or soldier in the presence of (a) his commanding officer or of the next subordinate officer, if the party be himself the commanding officer, or (b) where the officer or soldier is serving in military staff employment, the head or other superior officer of the office in which he is employed. Such commanding or other officer shall countersign the authority which shall be filed in Court.

When so filed, the countersignature shall be sufficient proof that the authority was duly executed, and that the officer or soldier by whom it was granted could not obtain leave of absence for the purpose of prosecuting or defending the suit in person.

Explanation.—In this chapter the expression 'commanding officer' means the officer in actual command for the time being of any regiment, corps, detachment or depôt, to which the officer or soldier belongs.

466. Any person authorized by an officer or soldier to prosecute or defend a suit in his stead may prosecute or defend it in person in the same manner as the officer or soldier could do if present; or he may appoint a pleader to prosecute or defend the suit on behalf of such officer or soldier.

Person so authorized may act personally or appoint pleaders.

467. Processes served upon any person authorized by an officer or soldier, as in section 465, or upon any pleader appointed as aforesaid by such person to act for, or on behalf of such officer or soldier, shall be as effectual as if it had been served on the party in person or on his pleader.

Service on person so authorized, or on his pleader, to be good service.

468. When an officer or soldier is a defendant, the Court shall send a copy of the summons to the commanding officer of such officer or soldier for the purpose of being served on him.

Service on officers and soldiers.

The officer to whom such copy is sent, after causing it to be served on the person to whom it is addressed, if practicable, shall return it to the Court with the written acknowledgment of such person endorsed thereon.

If from any cause the copy cannot be so served, it shall be returned to the Court by which it was sent, with information of the cause which has prevented the service.

Execution of warrant of arrest in cantonments, &c.

469. If, in the execution of a decree, a warrant of arrest is to be executed within the limits of a cantonment, garrison, military station, or military bázár, the officer charged with the execution of such warrant shall deliver the same to the commanding officer.

The commanding officer shall back the warrant with his signature, and shall cause the person named therein to be arrested if within the limits of his command, and delivered to the officer so charged of the warrant.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

INTERPLEADER.

When interpleader suit may be instituted.

470. When two or more persons claim adversely to one another the same payment or property from another person, whose only interest therein is that of a mere stakeholder and who is ready to render it to the right owner, such stakeholder may institute a suit of interpleader against all the claimants for the purpose of obtaining a decision as to whom the payment or property should be made or delivered, and of obtaining indemnity for himself.

Provided that if any suit is pending in which the rights of all parties can properly be decided, the stakeholder shall not institute a suit of interpleader.

Plaint in such suit.

471. In every suit of interpleader the plaint must, in addition to the other statements necessary for plaints, state—

(a) that the plaintiff has no interest in the thing claimed otherwise than as a mere stakeholder;

(b) the claims made by the defendants severally; and (c) that there is no collusion between the plaintiff and any of the defendants.

Payment of thing claimed into Court.

472. When the thing claimed is capable of being paid into Court or placed in the custody of the Court, the plaintiff must so pay or place it before he can be entitled to any order in the suit.

Procedure at first hearing.

473. At the first hearing the Court may

(a) declare that the plaintiff is discharged from all liability to the defendants in respect of the thing claimed, award him his costs, and dismiss him from the suit:

or if it thinks that justice or convenience so require,

(b) retain all parties until the final disposal of the suit:

and, if it finds that the admissions of the parties or other evidence enable it,

(c) adjudicate the title to the thing claimed:

or else it may

(d) direct the defendants to interplead one another by filing statements and entering into evidence for the purpose of bringing their respective claims before the Court.

When agents and tenants may institute interpleader suits.

474. Nothing in this chapter shall be taken to enable agents to sue their principals, or tenants to sue their landlords, for the purpose of compelling them to interplead with any persons other than persons making claim through such principals or landlords.

Illustrations.

(a) A deposits a box of jewels with B as his agent. C alleges that the jewels were wrongfully obtained from him by A, and claims them from B. B cannot institute an interpleader suit against A and C.

(b) A deposits a box of jewels with B as his agent. He then writes to C for the purpose of making the jewels a security for a debt due from himself to C. A afterwards alleges that C's debt is satisfied, and C alleges the contrary. Both claim the jewels from B. B may institute an interpleader suit against A and C.

Charge of plaintiff's costs.

475. When the suit is properly instituted, the Court may provide for the plaintiff's costs by giving him a charge on the thing claimed or in some other effectual way.

Procedure where a defendant is suing stakeholder.

Costs.

476. If any of the defendants in an interpleader suit is actually suing the stakeholder in respect of the subject of such suit, the Court in which the suit against the stakeholder is pending shall, on being duly informed that a decree has been made in the interpleader suit in favour of the stakeholder, stay the proceedings as against him; and his costs in the suit so stayed may be provided for in such suit; but if, and so far as, they are not provided for in that suit, they may be added to his costs incurred in the interpleader suit.

PART IV.

OF PROVISIONAL REMEDIES.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

OF ARREST AND ATTACHMENT BEFORE JUDGMENT.

A.—Arrest before Judgment.

When plaintiff may apply that security be taken.

477. If at any stage of any suit, other than a suit for the possession of immoveable property, the plaintiff satisfies the Court by affidavit—that the defendant, with intent to avoid or delay the plaintiff, or to avoid any process of the Court, or to obstruct or delay the execution of any decree that may be passed against him,

(a) has absconded or left the jurisdiction of the Court, or

(b) is about to abscond or to leave the jurisdiction of the Court, or

(c) has disposed of or removed from the jurisdiction of the Court his property or any part thereof, or that the defendant is about to leave British India under circumstances affording reasonable probability that the plaintiff will or may thereby be obstructed or delayed in the execution of any decree that may be passed against the defendant in the suit, the plaintiff may apply to the Court that security be taken for the appearance of the defendant to answer any decree that may be passed against him in the suit.

Order to bring up defendant to show cause why he should not give security.

478. If the Court, after examining the applicant, and making such further investigation as it thinks fit, is satisfied that the defendant, with any such intent as aforesaid,

(a) has absconded or left the jurisdiction of the Court, or

(b) is about to abscond or to leave the jurisdiction of the Court, or

(c) has disposed of or removed from the jurisdiction of the Court his property or any part thereof, or that the defendant is about to leave British India under the circumstances last aforesaid, the Court may issue an order for bringing the defendant before the Court to show cause why he should not give security for his appearance.

If defendant fail to show cause, Court may order him to make deposit or give security.

479. If the defendant fail to show such cause, the Court shall order him either to deposit in Court money or other property sufficient to answer the claim against him, or to give security for his appearance at any time when called upon while the suit is pending, and until execution or satisfaction of any decree that may be passed against him in the suit.

The surety shall bind himself, in default of such appearance, to pay any sum of money which the defendant may be ordered to pay in the suit.

Procedure in case of application by surety to be discharged.

480. The surety for the appearance of the defendant may at any time apply to the Court in which he became such surety to be discharged from his obligation.

On such application being made, the Court shall summon the defendant to appear, or, if it thinks fit, may issue a warrant for his arrest in the first instance.

On the appearance of the defendant pursuant to the summons or warrant, or on his voluntary surrender, the Court shall direct the surety to be discharged from his obligation, and shall call upon the defendant to find fresh security.

Procedure where defendant fails to give security or find fresh security.

481. If the defendant fail to comply with an order under section 479 or section 480, the Court may commit him to jail until the decision of the suit, or, if judgment be given against the defendant, until the execution of the decree; Provided that no person shall be imprisoned under this section for a longer period than six months.

Subsistence of defendant arrested.

482. The provisions of section 339 as to allowances payable for the subsistence of judgment-debtors shall apply to all defendants arrested under this chapter.

B.—Attachment before Judgment.

Application before judgment for security from defendant to satisfy decree, and in default, for attachment of property.

483. If at any stage of any suit the plaintiff satisfies the Court by affidavit that the defendant, with intent to obstruct or delay the execution of any decree that may be passed against him,

(a) is about to dispose of the whole or any part of his property, or to remove the same from the jurisdiction of the Court in which the suit is pending, or the plaintiff may apply to the Court to call upon the defendant to furnish security to satisfy any decree that may be passed against him in such suit, and, on his failing to give such security, to direct that any portion of his property shall be attached until the further order of the Court.

(b) has quitted the jurisdiction of the Court, leaving therein property belonging to him,

Contents of application.

The application shall, unless the Court otherwise directs, contain a specification of the property required to be attached, and the estimated value thereof.

Court may call on defendant to furnish security or show cause.

484. If the Court, after examining the applicant, and making any further investigation which it thinks fit, is satisfied that the defendant is about to dispose of or remove his property, with intent to obstruct or delay the execution of any decree that may be passed against him in the suit, the Court may require him, within a time to be fixed by the Court, either to furnish security in such sum as may be specified in the order, to produce and place at the disposal of the Court, when required, the said property or the value of the same, or such portion thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy the decree, or to appear and show cause why he should not furnish security.

The Court may also in the order direct the conditional attachment of the whole or any portion of the property specified in the application.

Attachment if cause not shown or security not furnished.

485. If the defendant fail to show cause why he should not furnish security, or fail to furnish the security required within the time fixed by the Court, the Court may order that the property specified in the application, or such portion thereof as appears sufficient to satisfy any decree which may be passed in the suit, shall be attached.

Withdrawal of attachment.

If the defendant show such cause or furnish the required security, and the property specified in the application or any portion of it has been ordered to be attached, the Court shall order the attachment to be withdrawn.

Mode of making attachment.

486. The attachment shall be made in the manner herein provided for the attachment of property in execution of a decree for money.

Investigation of claims to property attached before judgment.

487. If any claim be preferred to the property attached before judgment, such claims shall be investigated in the manner hereinbefore provided for the investigation of claims to property attached in execution of a decree for money.

488. When an order of attachment before judgment is passed, the Court which passed the order shall remove the attachment whenever the defendant furnishes the security required, together with security for the costs of the attachment, or when the suit is dismissed.

Removal of attachment when security furnished.

489. Attachment before judgment shall not affect the rights of persons not parties to the suit, nor bar any person holding a decree against the defendant from applying for the sale of the property under attachment in execution of such decree.

Attachment not to affect rights of strangers, or bar the decree-holder from applying for sale.

490. Where property is under attachment by virtue of the provisions of this chapter, and a decree is given in favour of the plaintiff, it shall not be necessary to re-attach the property in execution of such decree.

Property attached under this chapter, not to be re-attached in execution of decree.

C.—Compensation for improper Arrests or Attachments.

491. If in any suit in which an arrest or attachment has been effected it appear to the Court that such arrest or attachment was applied for on insufficient grounds, Compensation for obtaining arrest or attachment on insufficient grounds.

or if the suit of the plaintiff fails, and it appears to the Court that there was no probable ground for instituting the suit, the Court may, on the application of the defendant, award against the plaintiff in its decree such amount, not exceeding one thousand rupees, as it deems a reasonable compensation to the defendant for the expense or injury occasioned to him by the arrest or attachment:

Provided that the Court shall not award under this section a larger amount than it might decree in a suit for compensation.

Proviso.

An award under this section shall bar any suit for compensation in respect of such arrest or attachment.

CHAPTER XXXV.

OF TEMPORARY INJUNCTIONS AND INTERLOCUTORY ORDERS.

A.—Temporary Injunctions.

492. If in any suit it be proved by affidavit or otherwise

Cases in which temporary injunction may be granted.

(a) that any property in dispute in a suit is in danger of being wasted, damaged or alienated by any party to the suit, or wrongfully sold in execution of a decree, or

(b) that the defendant threatens, or is about, to remove or dispose of his property with intent to defraud his creditors, the Court may grant a temporary injunction to restrain such act, or give such other order for the purpose of staying and preventing the wasting, damaging, alienation, sale, removal or disposition of the property as the Court thinks fit.

493. In any suit for restraining the defendant from committing a breach of contract or other injury, and whether compensation be claimed in the suit or not, the plaintiff may, at any time after the commencement of the suit, and either before or after judgment, apply to the Court for a temporary injunction to restrain the defendant from the repetition or the continuance of the breach of contract or wrongful act complained of, or the committing of any breach of contract or injury of a like kind arising out of the same contract or relating to the same property or right.

Injunction to restrain repetition or continuance of breach.

Such injunction may be granted by the Court on such terms as to the duration of the injunction, keeping an account, giving security, or otherwise, as the Court thinks fit.

In case of disobedience, an injunction granted under this section or section 492 may be enforced by the imprisonment of the defendant for a term not exceeding six months, or the attachment of his property, or both.

No attachment under this section shall remain in force for more than one year, at the end of which time if the defendant has not obeyed the injunction, the property attached may be sold, and out of the proceeds the Court may award to the plaintiff such compensation as it thinks fit and may pay the balance, if any, to the defendant.

494. The Court may in all cases, and shall in all cases except where it appears to the Court that the object of granting the injunction would be defeated by the delay, before granting an injunction, direct notice in writing of the application for the same to be given to the opposite party.

Before granting injunction, Court may direct notice to be given to opposite party.

495. An injunction directed to a corporation or public company is binding not only on the corporation or company itself, but also on all members and officers of the corporation or company whose personal action it seeks to restrain.

Injunction to corporation binding on its members and officers.

496. Any order for an injunction may be discharged or varied or set aside by the Court, on application made thereto by any party dissatisfied with such order.

Order for injunction may be discharged, varied or set aside.

497. If it appears to the Court that the injunction was applied for on insufficient grounds, or Compensation to defendant for issue of injunction on insufficient grounds.

if, after the issue of the injunction, the suit is dismissed or judgment is given against the plaintiff by default or otherwise, and it appears to the Court that there was no probable ground for instituting the suit, the Court may, on the application of the defendant, award against the plaintiff in its decree such sum, not exceeding one thousand rupees, as it deems a reasonable compensation to the defendant for the expense or injury occasioned to him by the issue of the injunction:

Provided that the Court shall not award under this section a larger amount than it might decree in a suit for compensation.

Proviso.

An award under this section shall bar any suit for compensation in respect of the issue of the injunction.

B.—Interlocutory Orders.

498. The Court may, on the application of any party to a suit, order the sale, by any person named in such order, and in such manner and on such terms as it thinks fit, of any moveable property being the subject of such suit, which is subject to speedy and natural decay.

Power to order interim sale of perishable articles.

499. The Court may, on the application of any party to a suit, and on such terms as it thinks fit, Power to make order for detention, &c., of subject-matter and to authorize entry, taking of samples and experiments.

(a) make an order for the detention, preservation or inspection of any property being the subject of such suit;

(b) for all or any of the purposes aforesaid, authorise any person to enter upon or into any land or building in the possession of any other party to such suit, and

(c) for all or any of the purposes aforesaid, authorise any samples to be taken, or any observation to be made or experiment to be tried, which may seem necessary or expedient for the purpose of obtaining full information or evidence.

The provisions hereinbefore contained as to execution of process shall apply, mutatis mutandis, to persons authorised to enter under this section.

500. An application by the plaintiff for an order under section 498 or section 499 may be made after notice in writing to the defendant at any time after service of the summons.

Application for such orders to be after notice.

An application by the defendant for a like order may be made after notice in writing to the plaintiff, and at any time after the applicant has appeared.

501. When land paying revenue to Government, or a tenure liable to sale, forms the subject of a suit, if the party in possession of such land or tenure neglects to pay the Government revenue, or the rent due to the proprietor of the tenure, as the case may be, and such land or tenure is consequently ordered to be sold, any other party to the suit claiming to have an interest in such land or tenure may upon payment of the revenue or rent due previously to the sale (and with or without security at the discretion of the Court), be put in immediate possession of the land or tenure; and the Court in its decree may award against the defaulter the amount so paid, with interest thereupon at such rate as the Court thinks fit, or may charge the amount so paid, with interest thereupon at such rate as the Court orders, in any adjustment of accounts which may be directed in the decree passed in the suit.

When party may be put in immediate possession of land, the subject of suit.

502. When the subject-matter of a suit is money or some other thing capable of delivery, and any party thereto admits that he holds such money or other thing as a trustee for another party, or that it belongs or is due to another party, the Court may order the same to be deposited in Court or delivered to such last-named party, with or without security, subject to the further direction of the Court.

Deposit of money, &c., in Court.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVERS AND DEPOSIT IN COURT.

503. Whenever it appears to the Court to be necessary for the preservation or the better custody or management of any property, moveable or immoveable, the subject of a suit, or under attachment, the Court may

Power of Court to appoint Receivers.

(a) appoint a Receiver of such property, and may, if need be,

(b) remove the person in whose possession or custody the property may be from the possession or custody thereof;

(c) commit the same to the custody or management of such Receiver; and

(d) grant to such Receiver such fee or commission on the rents and profits of the property by way of remuneration, and all such powers as to bringing and defending suits, and for the management, protection, preservation and improvement of the property, the collection of the rents and profits thereof, the application and disposal of such rents and profits, and the execution of instruments in writing, as the owner himself has, or such of those powers as the Court thinks fit.

Every Receiver so appointed shall

(e) give such security (if any) as the Court thinks fit duly to account for what he shall receive in respect of the property,

(f) pass his accounts at such periods and in such form as the Court directs,

(g) pay the balance due from him thereon as the Court directs, and (h) be responsible for any loss occasioned to the property by his wilful default or gross negligence.

504. If the property be land paying revenue to Government, or land of which the revenue has been assigned or redeemed, and the Court considers that the interests of those concerned will be promoted by the management of the Collector, the Court may appoint the Collector to be Receiver of such property.

When Collector may be appointed Receiver.

505. The powers conferred by this chapter shall be exercised only by High Courts and District Courts. But whenever the Judge of a Court subordinate to a District Court considers it expedient to appoint a Receiver in any suit before him, he shall refer the case to the District Court with his opinion to that effect, and the District Court shall make such order thereon as it thinks fit.

Courts empowered under this chapter.

PART V.

OF SPECIAL PROCEEDINGS.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

REFERENCE TO ARBITRATION.

506. If all the parties to a suit desire that any matter in difference between them in the suit be referred to arbitration, they may, at any time before judgment is pronounced, apply in person or by their respective pleaders specially authorized in writing in this behalf, to the Court for an order of reference.

Parties to suit may apply for order of reference.

Every such application shall be in writing and shall state the particular matter sought to be referred.

507. The arbitrator shall be nominated by the parties in such manner as may be agreed upon between them.

Nomination of arbitrator.

If the parties cannot agree with respect to such nomination, or if the person whom they nominate refuses to accept the arbitration and the parties desire that the nomination shall be made by the Court, the Court shall nominate the arbitrator.

When Court to nominate arbitrator.

508. The Court shall, by order, refer to the arbitrator the matter in difference which he is required to determine, and shall fix such time as it thinks reasonable for the delivery of the award, and specify such time in the order.

Order of reference.

When once a matter is referred to arbitration, the Court shall not deal with it in the same suit, except in the case provided for by section 512, or unless, owing to the death, refusal, neglect, incapacity or departure from India of the arbitrator, the reference be fruitless, in which case the Court may issue an order superseding the arbitration and restoring the suit to the file of the Court.

509. If the reference be to two or more arbitrators, provision shall be made in the order for a difference of opinion among the arbitrators,

When reference is to two or more, order to provide for difference of opinion.

(a) by the appointment of an umpire, or

(b) by declaring that the decision shall be with the majority if the major part of the arbitrators agree, or

(c) by empowering the arbitrators to appoint an umpire, or

(d) otherwise, as may be agreed between the parties; or, if they cannot agree, as the Court determines.

If an umpire is appointed, the Court shall fix such time as it thinks reasonable for the delivery of his award in case he is required to act.

510. If the arbitrator, or, where there are more arbitrators than one, any of the arbitrators, or the umpire, dies, or refuses, or neglects, or becomes incapable to act, or leaves British India under circumstances showing that he will probably not return at an early date, the Court, if any of the parties so desire, may appoint a new arbitrator or umpire in the place of the person so dying, or refusing, or neglecting, or becoming incapable to act, or leaving British India.

Death, incapacity, &c., of arbitrators or umpire.

511. Where the arbitrators are empowered by the order of reference to appoint an umpire and fail to do so, any of the parties may serve the arbitrators with a written notice to appoint an umpire; and if, within seven days after such notice has been served, no umpire be appointed, the Court, upon the application of the party who has served such notice as aforesaid, may appoint an umpire.

Appointment of umpire by Court.

512. Every arbitrator or umpire appointed under sections 509, 510 or 511 shall have the like powers as if his name had been inserted in the order of reference.

Powers of arbitrator or umpire appointed under sections 509, 510, 511.

513. The Court shall issue the same processes to the parties and witnesses whom the arbitrators or umpire desire to examine, as the Court may issue in suits tried before it.

Summoning witnesses.

Persons not attending in accordance with such process, or making any other default, or refusing to give their evidence, or guilty of any contempt to the arbitrator or umpire during the investigation of the matters referred, shall be subject to the like disadvantages, penalties and punishments by order of the Court on the representation of the arbitrator or umpire, as they would incur for the like offences in suits tried before the Court.

Punishment for default, &c.

514. If from the want of the necessary evidence or information, or from any other cause, the arbitrators cannot complete the award within the period specified in the order, the Court may, if it think fit, either grant a further time, and from time to time enlarge the period for the delivery of the award, or make an order superseding the arbitration, and in such case shall proceed with the suit.

Extension of time for making award.

515. When an umpire has been appointed, he may enter on the reference in the place of the arbitrators

When umpire may arbitrate in lieu of arbitrators.

(a) if they have allowed the appointed time to expire without making an award, or

(b) when they have delivered to the Court or to the umpire a notice in writing, stating that they cannot agree.

516. When an award in a suit has been made, the persons who made it shall sign it and file it in Court, together with any depositions and documents which have been taken and proved before them; and notice of the filing of the award shall be given to the parties.

Award to be signed and filed.

517. Upon any reference by an order of Court, the arbitrators or umpire may, with the consent of the Court, state the award as to the whole or any part thereof in the form of a special case for the opinion of the Court; and the Court shall deliver its opinion thereon; and such opinion shall be added to and form part of the award.

Arbitrators or umpire may state special case.

518. On the application of either of the parties, the Court may, by order, modify or correct an award, Court may, on application, modify or correct award in certain cases.

(a) where it appears that a part of the award is upon a matter not referred to arbitration, provided such part can be separated from the other part and does not affect the decision on the matter referred, or

(b) where the award is imperfect in form, or contains any obvious error which can be amended without affecting such decision.

519. The Court may also, on the application of any of the parties or of the persons making the award, make such order as it thinks fit respecting the costs of the arbitration, if any question arise respecting such costs and the award contain no sufficient provision concerning them.

Order as to costs of arbitration.

520. In any of the following cases the Court may remit the award or any matter referred to arbitration to the reconsideration of the same arbitrators or umpire, upon such terms as it thinks fit, that is to say:—

When award or matter referred to arbitration may be remitted.

(a) if the award has left undetermined any of the matters referred to arbitration, or if it determine any matter not referred to arbitration;

(b) if the award is so indefinite as to be incapable of execution;

(c) if an objection to the legality of the award is apparent upon the face of it.

521. An award remitted under section 520 becomes void on the refusal of the arbitrators or umpire to reconsider it. But no award shall be set aside except on one of the following grounds (namely)—

Grounds for setting aside award.

(a) corruption or misconduct of the arbitrator or umpire;

(b) either party having been guilty of fraudulent concealment of any matter which he ought to have disclosed, or of wilfully misleading or deceiving the arbitrator or umpire;

(c) the award having been made after the issue of an order by the Court superseding the arbitration and restoring the suit; and no award shall be valid unless made within the period allowed by the Court.

522. If the Court sees no cause to remit the award or any of the matters referred to arbitration for reconsideration in manner aforesaid, and if no application has been made to set aside the award, or if the Court has refused such application, Judgment to be according to award.

the Court shall, after the time for making such application has expired, proceed to give judgment according to the award, or, if the award has been submitted to it in the form of a special case, according to its own opinion on such case:

Upon the judgment so given a decree shall follow, and shall be enforced in manner provided in this Code for the execution of decrees. No appeal shall lie from such decree.

Decree to follow.

523. When any persons by an instrument in writing agree that any difference between them shall be referred to the arbitration of any person named in the agreement or to be appointed by any Court having jurisdiction in the matter to which the agreement relates, the parties thereto, or any of them, may apply that the agreement be filed in such Court.

Agreement to refer to arbitration may be filed in Court.

The application shall be in writing and shall be numbered and registered as a suit between one or more of the parties interested or claiming to be interested as plaintiff or plaintiffs, and the others or other of them as defendants or defendant, if the application have been presented by all the parties, or, if otherwise, between the applicant as plaintiff and the other parties as defendants.

Application to be numbered and registered.

On such application being made, the Court shall direct notice thereof to be given to any of the parties to the agreement other than the applicants, requiring such parties to show cause, within the time specified in the notice, why the agreement should not be filed.

Notice to show cause against filing it.

If no sufficient cause be shown, the Court may cause the agreement to be filed, and shall make an order of reference thereon, and may also nominate the arbitrator when he is not named therein and the parties cannot agree as to the nomination.

524. The foregoing provisions of this chapter, so far as they are consistent with any agreement so filed, shall be applicable to all proceedings under an order of reference made by the Court under section 523, and to the award of arbitration and to the enforcement of the decree founded thereupon.

Provisions of this chapter applicable to proceedings under order of reference.

525. When any matter has been referred to arbitration without the intervention of a Court of Justice, and an award has been made thereon, any person interested in the award may apply to the Court of the lowest grade having jurisdiction over the whole matter to which the award relates, that the award be filed in Court.

Filing award in matter referred to arbitration without intervention of Court.

The application shall be in writing and shall be numbered and registered as a suit between the applicant as plaintiff and the other parties as defendants.

Application to be numbered and registered.

The Court shall direct notice to be given to the parties to the arbitration other than the applicant, requiring them to show cause, within a time specified, why the award should not be filed.

Notice to parties to arbitration.

526. If no sufficient cause be shown against the award, the Court may order it to be filed, and such award may then be enforced as a decree upon an award made under the provisions of this chapter.

Filing and enforcement of such award.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

OF PROCEEDINGS ON AGREEMENT OF PARTIES.

527. Parties claiming to be interested in the decision of any question of fact or law, may enter into an agreement in writing stating such question in the form of a case for the opinion of the Court; and providing

Power to state case for Court's opinion.

(a) that upon the finding of the Court in the affirmative or negative of such question, a sum of money fixed by the parties or to be determined by the Court, shall be paid by one of the parties to the other of them; or

(b) that some property, moveable or immoveable, specified in the agreement, shall be delivered by one of the parties to the other of them; or

(c) that one or more of the parties shall do or perform, or refrain from doing or performing some other particular act specified in the agreement.

Every case stated under this section shall be divided into consecutively numbered paragraphs, and shall concisely state such facts and documents as may be necessary to enable the Court to decide the questions raised thereby.

When value of subject-matter must be stated.

528. If the agreement is for the delivery of any property, or for the doing or performing, or the refraining from doing or performing, any particular act, the estimated value of the property to be delivered, or to which the act specified has reference, shall be stated in the agreement.

Agreement to be filed and numbered as a suit.

529. The agreement, if framed in accordance with the rules hereinbefore contained, may be filed in the Court of the lowest grade having jurisdiction in the matter to which it relates, and, when so filed, shall be numbered and registered as a suit between one or more of the parties interested, or claiming to be interested, as plaintiff or plaintiffs, and the other or others of them as defendant or defendants; and notice shall be given to all the parties to the agreement other than the party or parties by whom it was presented.

Parties to be subject to Court's jurisdiction.

530. When the agreement has been filed, the parties to it shall be subject to the jurisdiction of the Court, and shall be bound by the statements contained therein.

Hearing and disposal of the case.

531. The case shall be set down for hearing as a suit instituted under chapter V, the provisions of which shall apply to such suit so far as the same are applicable.

If the Court is satisfied, after an examination of the parties, or taking such evidence as it thinks fit,

(a) that the agreement was duly executed by them, and

(b) that they have a bonâ fide interest in the question of fact or law stated therein, and

(c) that the same is fit to be decided, it shall proceed to deliver judgment thereon, in the same way as in an ordinary suit, and upon the judgment so given a decree shall follow, and shall be enforced in the manner provided in this Code for the execution of decrees.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

OF SUMMARY PROCEDURE ON NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS.

Institution of summary suits upon bills of exchange, &c.

532. In any Court to which this section applies all suits upon bills of exchange, hundís or promissory notes may, in case the plaintiff desires to proceed under this chapter, be instituted by presenting a plaint in the form prescribed by this Code; but the summons shall be in the form contained in the fourth schedule hereto annexed, No. 168, or in such other form as the High Court may from time to time prescribe.

In any case in which the plaint and summons are in such forms respectively, the defendant shall not appear to or defend the suit unless he obtains leave from a Judge as hereinafter mentioned so to appear and defend; and in default of his obtaining such leave or of appearance and defence in pursuance thereof, the plaintiff shall be entitled to a decree for any sum not exceeding the sum mentioned in the summons, together with interest at the rate specified (if any) to the date of the decree, and a sum for costs to be fixed by a rule of the High Court, unless the plaintiff claim more than such fixed sum, in which case the costs shall be ascertained in the ordinary way, and such decree may be enforced forthwith.

Payment into Court of sum mentioned in summons.

The defendant shall not be required to pay into Court the sum mentioned in the summons, or to give security therefor, unless the Court thinks his defence not to be primâ facie sustainable, or feels reasonable doubt as to its good faith.

Explanation.—This section is not confined to cases in which the bill, hundí or note sued upon, together with mere lapse of time, is sufficient to establish a primâ facie right to recover.

Defendant showing defence on merits to have leave to appear.

533. The Court shall, upon application within the period of seven days from the service of such summons, give leave to appear and to defend the suit, upon the defendant paying into court the sum mentioned in the summons or upon affidavits satisfactory to the Court, which disclose a defence or such facts as would make it incumbent on the holder to prove consideration, or such other facts as the Court may deem sufficient to support the application, and on such terms as to security, framing and recording issues, or otherwise, as the Court thinks fit.

Power to set aside decree.

534. After decree, the Court may, under special circumstances, set aside the decree, and if necessary stay or set aside execution, and may give leave to appear to the summons and to defend the suit, if it seem reasonable to the Court so to do, and on such terms as the Court thinks fit.

Power to order bill to be deposited with officer of Court.

535. In any proceeding under this chapter the Court may order the bill, hundí, or note on which the suit is founded to be forthwith deposited with an officer of the Court, and may further order that all proceedings shall be stayed until the plaintiff gives security for the costs thereof.

Recovery of cost of noting non-acceptance of dishonoured bill.

536. The holder of every dishonoured bill of exchange or promissory note shall have the same remedies for the recovery of the expenses incurred in noting the same for non-acceptance or non-payment, or otherwise, by reason of such dishonour, as he has under this chapter for the recovery of the amount of such bill or note.

Procedure in suits under this chapter.

537. Except as provided by sections 532 to 536 both inclusive, the procedure in suits under this chapter shall be the same as the procedure in suits instituted under Chapter V.

Power to extend this chapter.

538. Sections 532 to 537 (both inclusive) apply only to—

(a) High Courts established under Royal Charter;

(b) the Chief Court of the Panjáb;

(c) the Court of the Recorder of Rangoon;

(d) the Courts of Small Causes in the Presidency Towns;

(e) the Court of the Judge of Karáchi; and (f) any other Court to which the Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, apply them.

In case of such application the Local Government may direct by whom any of the powers and duties incident to the provisions so applied shall be exercised and performed, and make any rules which it thinks requisite for carrying into operation the provisions so applied.

Within one month after such notification has been published, such provisions shall apply accordingly, and the rules so made shall have the force of law.

The Local Government may from time to time alter or cancel any such notification.

PART VI.

OF APPEALS.

CHAPTER XL.

OF APPEALS FROM ORIGINAL DECREES.

Appeal to lie from all original decrees, except when expressly prohibited.

539. Unless when otherwise expressly provided in this Code or by any other law for the time being in force, an appeal shall lie from the decrees, or from any part of the decrees, of the Courts exercising original jurisdiction to the Courts authorized to hear appeals from the decisions of those Courts.

Form of appeal.

540. The appeal shall be made in the form of a memorandum in writing presented by the appellant or his pleader, and shall be accompanied by a copy of the decree appealed against and of the judgment on which it is founded.

Memorandum to be accompanied by copy of decree and judgment.

Memorandum of appeal.

541. The memorandum of appeal shall set forth, concisely and under distinct heads, the grounds of objection to the decree appealed against, without any argument or narrative, and such grounds shall be numbered consecutively.

Appellant confined to grounds set out.

542. The appellant shall not, without the leave of the Court, urge or be heard in support of any other ground of objection, but the Court in deciding the appeal shall not be confined to the grounds set forth by the appellant:

Provided that the Court shall not rest its decision on any ground set forth by the appellant, unless the respondent has had sufficient opportunity of contesting the case on that ground.

Rejection of memorandum or grounds of objection.

543. If the memorandum of appeal be not drawn up in the manner hereinbefore prescribed, such memorandum or grounds may be rejected or returned to the appellant for the purpose of being amended within a time to be fixed by the Court, or be amended then and there.

When the Court rejects under this section any memorandum, it shall record the reasons for such rejection.

When a memorandum of appeal is amended under this section the Judge, or such officer as he appoints in this behalf, shall attest the amendment by his signature.

One of several plaintiffs or defendants may obtain reversal of whole decree if it proceed on ground common to all.

544. If there be more plaintiffs or more defendants than one in a suit, and the decree appealed against proceed on any ground common to all the plaintiffs or to all the defendants, any one of the plaintiffs or of the defendants may appeal against the whole decree, and the Appellate Court may reverse or modify the decree in favour of all the plaintiffs or defendants as the case may be.

Illustrations.

(a). A sues B and C on a promissory note. The defendants plead payment. The Court decrees in favour of A. B alone appeals. The Appellate Court, holding that payment has been made, may reverse the decree in favour of both B and C.

(b). A sues B and C on a promissory note. B pleads payment and C pleads the Limitation Act. The Court overrules both pleas and decrees in favour of A. B alone appeals. The Appellate Court may be of opinion that payment has been made, but cannot, on B's appeal, reverse the decree as regards C.

Of staying and executing Decrees under Appeal.

Execution of decree not stayed solely by reason of appeal.

545. Execution of a decree shall not be stayed by reason only of an appeal having been preferred against the decree; but the Appellate Court may for sufficient cause order the execution to be stayed.

Stay of execution of appealable decree before time for appealing has expired.

If an application be made for the execution of a decree which is open to appeal, before the time allowed for appeal has expired, the Court may for sufficient cause order the execution to be stayed.

Provided that no order shall be made under this section unless the Court is satisfied—

(a) that substantial loss may result to the party applying for stay of execution unless the order is made;

(b) that the application has been made without unreasonable delay; and

(c) that security has been given by the applicant for the due performance of such decree or order as may ultimately be binding upon him.

Security required before making order to stay execution.

Security in case of order for execution of decree appealed against.

546. If an order is made for the execution of a decree against which an appeal has been preferred, the Court which passed the decree may, on sufficient cause being shewn by the appellant, require security to be given for the restitution of any property which may be taken in execution of the decree, or of the value of such property, and for the due performance of the decree or order of the Appellate Court, or the Appellate Court may for like cause direct the Court which passed the decree to take such security.

No such security to be required from Government or public officers.

547. No such security as is mentioned in sections 545 and 546 shall be required from the Secretary of State for India in Council or from any public officer sued in respect of an act alleged to be done by him in his official capacity.

Of Procedure in Appeal from Decrees.

Registry of memorandum of appeal.

548. When a memorandum of appeal is admitted, the Appellate Court or the proper officer of that Court shall endorse thereon the date of admission, and shall register the appeal in a book to be kept for the purpose.

Register of appeals.

Such book shall be called the Register of Appeals.

Appellate Court may require appellant to give security for costs.

549. The Appellate Court may, at its discretion, either before the respondent is called upon to appear and answer or afterwards on the application of the respondent, demand from the appellant security for the costs either of the appeal, or of the original suit, or of both:

Provided that the Court shall demand such security in all cases in which the appellant is residing out of British India, and is not possessed of any sufficient immoveable property within British India independent of the property to which the appeal relates.

When appellant resides out of British India.

If such security be not furnished within such time as the Court orders, the Court shall reject the appeal.

Appellate Court to give notice to Court whose decree is appealed against.

550. When the memorandum of appeal is registered, the Appellate Court shall send notice of the appeal to the Court against whose decree the appeal is made.

Transmission of papers to Appellate Court.

If the appeal be from a Court the records of which are not deposited in the Appellate Court, the Court to which such notice is sent shall, upon the receipt thereof, transmit with all practicable despatch all material papers in the suit, or such papers as may be specially called for by the Appellate Court:

Power to confirm decree of lower Court without sending it notice.

Provided that the Appellate Court may, if it thinks fit, after fixing a time for hearing the appellant or his pleader, and hearing him accordingly if he appears at such time, confirm the decision of the Court against whose decree the appeal is made, without sending notice of the appeal to such Court and without serving notice on the respondent or his pleader; but in such case the appellant shall be notified to the same Court.

Cross-objections to decree of lower Court.

551. Either party may make an application in writing to the Court against whose decree the appeal is made, specifying any papers of which he requires copies to be made and deposited in such Court; and copies of such papers shall be prepared at the expense of the applicant, and shall be deposited accordingly.

Day for hearing appeal.

552. The Appellate Court shall fix a day for hearing the appeal.

Such day shall be fixed with reference to the current business of the Court, the place of residence of the respondent, and the time necessary for the service of the notice of appeal, so as to allow the respondent a sufficient time to enable him to appear and answer the appeal on such day.

Publication and service of notice of day for hearing appeal.

553. Notice of the day so fixed shall be stuck up in the appellate courthouse, and a like notice shall be sent by the Appellate Court to the Court against whose decree the appeal is made, and shall be served on the respondent or his pleader in the manner provided in chapter VI for the service of a summons to a defendant to appear and answer; and all rules applicable to such summons and to proceedings with reference to the service thereof, shall apply to the service of such notice.

Appellate Court may itself cause notice to be served.

Instead of sending the notice to the Court against whose decree the appeal is made, the Appellate Court may itself cause the notice to be served on the respondent or his pleader under the rules above referred to.

Contents of notice.

554. The notice to the respondent shall declare that, if he does not appear in the Appellate Court on the day so fixed, the appeal will be heard ex parte.

Procedure on Hearing.

Right to begin.

555. On the day so fixed, or on any other day to which the hearing may be adjourned, the party having the right to begin shall be heard in support of or against the appeal, as the case may be. The other party shall then be heard, and the party having the right to begin shall then be entitled to reply.

Explanation.—If the appeal is from the whole decree, or if there are cross-appeals, the party having the right to begin is the party who had the right to begin on the hearing in the Court whose decree is appealed from.

If the appeal is from only a portion of the decree, and there is no cross-appeal, the appellant has the right to begin.

Dismissal of appeal for appellant's default.

556. If on the day so fixed, or any other day to which the hearing may be adjourned, the appellant does not attend in person or by his pleader, the appeal shall be dismissed for default.

Hearing appeal ex parte.

If the appellant attends and the respondent does not attend, the appeal shall be heard ex parte in his absence.

Dismissal of appeal where notice has not been served in consequence of appellant's failure to deposit cost of notice.

557. If on the day so fixed, or any other day to which the hearing may be adjourned, it is found that the notice to the respondent has not been served in consequence of the failure of the appellant to deposit, within the period fixed by the Court, the sum required to defray the cost of issuing the notice, the Court may order that the appeal be dismissed:

Proviso.

Provided that no such order shall be passed, although the notice has not been served upon the respondent, if on the day fixed for hearing the appeal the respondent appears in person or by a pleader, or by a duly authorized agent.

Re-admission of appeal dismissed for default.

558. If an appeal be dismissed under section 556 or section 557, the appellant may apply to the Appellate Court for the re-admission of the appeal; and if it be proved that he was prevented by any sufficient cause from attending when the appeal was called on for hearing, or from depositing the sum so required, the Court may re-admit the appeal on such terms as to costs or otherwise as the Court thinks fit to impose upon him.

Power to adjourn hearing, and direct persons appearing interested to be made respondents.

559. If it appear to the Court at the hearing that any person who was a party to the suit in the Court against whose decree the appeal is made, but who has not been made a party to the appeal, is interested in the result of the appeal, the Court may adjourn the hearing to a future day to be fixed by the Court, and direct that such person be made a respondent.

Re-hearing on application of respondent against whom ex parte decree is made.

560. When an appeal is heard ex parte in the absence of the respondent, and judgment is given against him, he may, within thirty days of the date of the decree, apply to the Appellate Court to re-hear the appeal; and if it be proved that the respondent was prevented by sufficient cause from attending when the appeal was called on for hearing, the Court may re-hear the appeal on such terms as to costs or otherwise as the Court thinks fit to impose upon him.

Upon hearing respondent may object to decree as if he had preferred separate appeal.

561. Any respondent, though he may not have appealed against any part of the decree, may, upon the hearing, take any objection to the decree which he could have taken by way of appeal, provided he has given through the Court to the appellant seven days' notice of such objection.

Form of notice, and provisions applicable thereto.

Such notice shall be in the form of a memorandum, and the provisions of sections 540, 541 and 542, so far as they relate to the form and contents of the memorandum of appeal, shall apply to such notice.

The respondent cannot by such notice raise questions between himself and any party to the suit, other than the appellant.

Remand of case by Appellate Court.

562. If without going into the merits, the Court against whose decree the appeal is made has disposed of the suit upon a preliminary point so as to exclude any evidence of fact which appears to the Appellate Court essential to the determination of the rights of the parties, and the decree upon such preliminary point is reversed in appeal, the Appellate Court may, if it thinks fit, remand the case, together with a copy of the decree or order in appeal, to the Court against whose decree the appeal is made with directions to re-admit the suit under its original number in the register, and

(a) to proceed to investigate the suit on the merits, and pass a decree thereon; or

(b) to try a particular issue; or

(c) to take certain specified evidence.

When further evidence barred.

563. When a case is remanded with directions to take such evidence, the Court to which the case is remanded shall not take any other evidence in the case, except evidence tendered to contradict the evidence so taken.

Limit to remand.

564. The Appellate Court shall not remand a case for a second decision, except as provided in section 562.

When evidence on record sufficient, Appellate Court shall determine case finally.

565. When the evidence upon the record is sufficient to enable the Appellate Court to pronounce judgment, the Appellate Court may, if necessary, resettle the issues, and shall finally determine the case notwithstanding that the judgment of the Court against whose decree the appeal is made has proceeded wholly upon some ground other than that on which the Appellate Court proceeds.

When Appellate Court may frame issues and refer them for trial to Court whose decree is appealed against.

566. If the Court against whose decree the appeal is made has omitted to frame or try any issue, or to determine any question of fact, which appears to the Appellate Court essential to the right decision of the suit upon the merits, and the evidence upon the record is not sufficient to enable the Appellate Court to determine such issue or question, the Appellate Court may frame issues for trial, and may refer the same for trial to the Court against whose decree the appeal is made, and in such case shall direct such Court to take the additional evidence required, and such Court shall proceed to try such issue, and shall return to the Appellate Court its finding thereon together with the evidence.

Finding and evidence to be put on record.

Objections to finding.

567. Such finding and evidence shall become part of the record in the suit; and either party may, within a time to be fixed by the Appellate Court, present a memorandum of objections to the finding.

Determination of appeal.

After the expiration of the period fixed for presenting such memorandum, the Appellate Court shall proceed to determine the appeal.

Production of additional evidence in Appellate Court.

568. The parties to an appeal shall not be entitled to produce additional evidence, whether oral or documentary, in the Appellate Court. But if

(a) the Court against whose decree the appeal is made refused to admit evidence which ought to have been admitted, or

(b) the Appellate Court requires any document to be produced or any witness to be examined to enable it to pronounce judgment or for any other substantial cause, the Appellate Court may allow such evidence to be produced, or document to be received, or witness to be examined.

Whenever additional evidence is admitted by an Appellate Court, the reason for the admission shall be recorded on the proceedings of the Court.

Mode of taking additional evidence.

569. Whenever additional evidence is allowed to be received, the Appellate Court may either take such evidence, or direct the Court against whose decree the appeal is made, or any other Subordinate Court, to take such evidence and to send it when taken to the Appellate Court.

Points to be defined and recorded.

570. In all cases where additional evidence is directed or allowed to be taken, the Appellate Court shall specify the points to which the evidence is to be confined, and record on its proceedings the points so specified.

Of the Judgment in Appeal.

Judgment when and where pronounced.

571. The Appellate Court, after hearing the parties or their pleaders and referring to any part of the proceedings, whether on appeal or in the Court against whose decree the appeal is made, to which a reference may be considered necessary, shall pronounce judgment in open Court, either at once or on some future day, of which notice shall be given to the parties or their pleaders.

Language of judgment.

572. The judgment shall be written in English; provided that if English is not the mother-tongue of the Judge, and he is not able to write an intelligible judgment in English, the judgment shall be written in his mother-tongue or in the language of the Court.

Translation of judgment.

573. When the language in which the judgment is written is not the language of the Court, the judgment shall, if any party so require, be translated into such language, and the translation, after it has been ascertained to be correct, shall be signed by the Judge, or such officer as he appoints in this behalf.

Contents of judgment.

574. The judgment of the Appellate Court shall state—

(a) the points for determination;

(b) the decision thereupon;

(c) the reasons for the decision; and

(d) when the decree appealed against is reversed, the relief to which the appellant is entitled,

Date and signature.

and shall at the time that it is pronounced be signed and dated by the Judge or by the Judges concurring therein.

When appeal heard by more Judges than one.

575. When the appeal is heard by a Bench of two or more Judges, the appeal shall be decided in accordance with the opinion of the majority (if any) of such

If there be no such majority which concurs in a judgment varying or reversing the decree appealed against, such decree shall be affirmed:

Provided that if the Bench hearing the appeal is composed of two Judges belonging to a Court consisting of more than two Judges, and the Judges composing the Bench differ in opinion on a point of law, the appeal may be referred to one or more of the other Judges of the same Court, and shall be decided according to the opinion of the majority (if any) of all the Judges who have heard the appeal, including those who first heard it.

When there is no such majority which concurs in a judgment varying or reversing the decree appealed against, such decree shall be affirmed.

The High Court may from time to time make rules consistent with this Code to regulate references under this section.

Dissent to be recorded.

576. When the appeal is heard by more Judges than one, any Judge dissenting from the judgment of the Court shall state in writing the decision or order which he thinks should be passed on the appeal, and he may state his reasons for the same.

What judgment may direct.

577. The judgment may be for confirming, varying, or reversing the decree of the Court against which the appeal is made, or, if the parties to the appeal agree as to the form which the decree in appeal shall take, or as to the order to be passed in appeal, the Appellate Court may pass a decree or order accordingly.

No decree to be reversed or modified for error or irregularity.

578. No decree shall be varied or reversed nor shall any case be remanded in appeal, on account of any error, defect or irregularity, whether in the decision or in any order passed in the suit, or otherwise, not affecting the merits of the case or the jurisdiction of the Court.

Of the Decree in Appeal.

Contents of decree.

579. The decree of the Appellate Court shall bear date the day on which the judgment was pronounced.

The decree shall contain the number of the appeal, and the memorandum of appeal, including the names and description of the appellant and respondent, and shall specify clearly the relief granted or other determination of the appeal.

The decree shall also state the amount of costs incurred in the appeal, and by what parties and in what proportions such costs and the costs in the suit are to be paid.

The decree shall be signed and dated by the Judge or Judges who passed it:

Judge dissenting from judgment need not sign decree.

Provided that where there are more Judges than one, if there be a difference of opinion among them, it shall not be necessary for any Judge dissenting from the judgment of the Court to sign the decree.

Copies of judgment and decree to be furnished to parties.

580. Certified copies of the judgment and decree shall be furnished to the parties on application to the Court and at their expense.

Certified copy of decree to be sent to Court whose decree is appealed against.

581. A copy of the judgment and of the decree, certified by the Appellate Court or such officer as it appoints in this behalf, shall be sent to the Court which passed the decree appealed against, and shall be filed with the original proceedings in the suit, and an entry of the judgment of the Appellate Court shall be made in the register of Civil suit.

Appellate Court to have same powers as Courts of original jurisdiction.

582. The Appellate Court shall have the same powers in appeals under this chapter in respect to adjournments, granting of time, arrest or attachment before judgment, issue of injunctions, examination of the parties or their pleaders and of witnesses or other persons, issue of commissions, award of interest or mesne profits, separation of misjoined suits, permission to bring fresh suits, or otherwise, as are vested by this Code in Courts of original jurisdiction in respect of suits instituted under chapter V.

The provisions of such chapter, unless when otherwise provided, shall apply to appeals under this chapter so far as the same are applicable.

Execution of decree of Appellate Court.

583. When a party in whose favour a decree is passed in an appeal under this chapter is desirous of obtaining execution of the same, he shall apply to the Court which passed the decree against which the appeal was preferred; and such Court shall proceed to execute the decree passed in appeal, according to the rules hereinbefore prescribed for the execution of decrees in suits.

CHAPTER XLI.

OF APPEALS FROM APPELLATE DECREES.

Second appeals to High Court.

584. Unless when otherwise provided in this Code or by any other law, from all decrees passed in appeal by any Court subordinate to a High Court, an appeal shall lie to the High Court on any of the following grounds, (namely)—

Grounds of second appeal.

(a) the decision being contrary to some specified law or usage having the force of law;

(b) the decision having failed to determine some issue of law or usage having the force of law;

(c) a substantial error or defect in the procedure as prescribed by this Code or any other law, which may have produced error or defect in the decision of the case upon the merits.

Second appeal only on grounds mentioned in section 584.

585. No second appeal shall lie except on the grounds mentioned in section 584.

No second appeal in certain suits.

586. No second appeal shall lie in any suit of the nature cognizable in Courts of Small Causes, when the debt, compensation or demand for which the original suit is instituted, does not exceed the sum of five hundred rupees.

Provisions as to second appeals.

587. Every memorandum of appeal under this chapter shall be accompanied by a copy of the decree appealed against, and the provisions contained in chapter XL shall apply as far as may be to appeals under this chapter, Execution of decree in second appeal.

and the decree made by the appellate Court shall be executed by the Court which made the decree in the suit in which such appeal was preferred, under the rules hereinbefore provided for the execution of decrees in suits.

CHAPTER XLII.

OF APPEALS FROM ORDERS.

Orders appealable.

588. An appeal shall lie from the following orders under this Code and from no other such orders:—

(a) orders under section 19, staying proceedings in a suit,

(b) orders under section 24, determining whether immoveable property is or is not within the local limits of the Court's jurisdiction,

(c) orders under section 32 striking out or adding the name of any person as plaintiff or defendant,

(d) orders under section 44, adding a cause of action,

(e) orders under section 47, excluding a cause of action,

(f) orders rejecting or returning plaints under section 53, clause (d), or section 54, clauses (b) and (d), or section 57, clause (c),

(g) orders rejecting applications under section 102 in cases open to appeal for an order to set aside the dismissal of a suit,

(h) orders under section 120 where a party fails to appear,

(i) orders under section 168 for attachment of property,

(j) orders under section 176 where a party refuses to give evidence or produce a document called for by the Court,

(k) orders under section 244 as to questions relating to the execution of decrees,

(l) orders under section 261 as to objections to draft conveyances or draft endorsements,

(m) orders under section 312 for setting aside, or under section 314 for confirming, a sale,

(n) orders in insolvency matters under section 351, 352, 357, or 359,

(o) orders rejecting applications under section 370 for dismissal of the suit,

(p) orders disallowing objections under section 372,

(q) orders as to interpleader suits under section 473, 475 or 476,

(r) orders under section 479, 480, 481, 485, 492, 493, 503 or 513,

(s) orders under section 518 modifying an award,

(t) orders under any of the provisions of this Code, imposing fines, or for the imprisonment of any person, except when such imprisonment is in execution of a decree.

The orders passed in appeals under this section shall be final.

Court which shall hear appeals.

589. An appeal from any order specified in section 588, clauses (a), (b), (c), (d), (e), (f), (g), (h), (i), (j), (k), (l), (m), (n), (o), (p), (q), (r), (s) and (t) shall lie to the High Court,

When an appeal from any other order is allowed by this chapter, it shall lie to the Court to which an appeal would lie from the decree in the suit in relation to which such order was made.

Procedure in appeals from orders.

590. The procedure prescribed in chapter XL shall, so far as may be, apply to appeals from orders under this Code, or under any special or local law in which a different procedure is not provided.

No appeal, before decree, from order passed in course of suit; but if decree appealed against, error or defect therein may be set forth.

591. Except as provided in this chapter, no appeal shall lie from any order passed in the course of a suit and relating thereto, prior to decree; but if the decree be appealed against, any error, defect or irregularity in any such order, affecting the merits of the case or the jurisdiction of the Court, may be set forth as a ground of objection in the memorandum of appeal.

CHAPTER XLIII.

OF PAUPER APPEALS.

Who may appeal as pauper.

592. Any person entitled under this Code or any other law to prefer an appeal, who is unable to pay the fee required for the petition of appeal, may, on presenting an application accompanied by a memorandum of appeal, be allowed to appeal as a pauper, subject to the rules contained in chapters XXVI, XL, XLI and XLII, in so far as those rules are applicable:

Procedure on application for admission of appeal.

Provided that the Court shall reject the application unless upon a perusal thereof and of the judgment and decree against which the appeal is made, it sees reason to think that the decree appealed against is contrary to law or to some usage having the force of law, or is otherwise erroneous or unjust.

Enquiry into pauperism.

593. The inquiry into the pauperism of the applicant may be made either by the Appellate Court or by the Court against whose decision the appeal is made under the orders of the Appellate Court:

Proviso.

Provided that, if the applicant was allowed to sue or appeal as a pauper in the Court against whose decree the appeal is made, no further enquiry in respect of his pauperism shall be necessary, unless the Appellate Court sees special cause to direct such enquiry.

CHAPTER XLIV.

OF APPEALS TO THE QUEEN IN COUNCIL.

Appeals defined.

594. In this chapter, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context, the expression "appeal" includes also judgment and order.

Appeals to lie to Queen in Council.

595. Subject to such rules as may, from time to time, be made by Her Majesty in Council regarding appeals from the Courts of British India, and to the provisions hereinafter contained—an appeal shall lie to Her Majesty in Council

(a) from any final decree passed on appeal by a High Court or other Court of final appellate jurisdiction,

(b) from any final decree passed by a High Court in the exercise of original civil jurisdiction and (c) from any decree, when the case, as hereinafter provided, is certified to be a fit one for appeal to Her Majesty in Council.

Value of subject-matter.

596. In each of the cases mentioned in clauses (a) and (b) of section 595, the amount or value of the subject-matter of the suit in the Court of first instance must be ten thousand rupees or upwards, and the amount or value of the matter in dispute on appeal to Her Majesty in Council must be the same sum or upwards, or the decree must involve, directly or indirectly, some claim or question to, or respecting, property of like amount or value, and where the decree appealed from affirms the decision of the Court immediately below the Court passing such decree, the appeal must involve some substantial question of law.

Bar of certain appeals.

597. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 595, no appeal shall lie to Her Majesty in Council from the judgment of one Judge of a High Court established under the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth of Victoria, chapter 104, or of one Judge of a Division Court, or of two or more Judges of such High Court, or of a Division Court constituted by two or more Judges of such High Court, whenever such Judges are equally divided in opinion, and do not amount in number to a majority of the whole of the Judges of the High Court at the time being;

and no appeal shall lie to Her Majesty in Council from any decree which, under section 586, is final.

Application to Court whose decree is complained of.

598. Whoever desires to appeal under this chapter to Her Majesty in Council must apply by petition to the Court whose decree is complained of.

Time within which application must be made.

599. Such application must ordinarily be made within six months from the date of such decree.

But if that period expires when the Court is closed, the application may be made on the day that the Court re-opens.

Certificate as to value or fitness.

600. Every petition under section 598 must state the grounds of appeal, and pray for a certificate, either that, as regards amount or value and nature, the case fulfils the requirements of section 596, or that it is otherwise a fit one for appeal to Her Majesty in Council.

Upon receipt of such petition, the Court may direct notice to be served on the opposite party to show cause why the said certificate should not be granted.

Effect of refusal of certificate.

601. If such certificate be refused, the petition shall be dismissed:

Provided that, if the decree complained of be a final decree passed by a Court other than a High Court, the order refusing the certificate shall be appealable, within thirty days from the date of the order, to the High Court to which the former Court is subordinate.

Security and deposit required on grant of certificate.

602. If the certificate be granted, the applicant shall, within six months from the date of the decree complained of, or within six weeks from the grant of the certificate, whichever is the later date,

(a) give security for the costs of the respondent, and

(b) deposit the amount required to defray the expense of translating, transcribing, indexing, and transmitting to Her Majesty in Council a correct copy of the whole record of the suit, except

(1) formal documents directed to be excluded by any order of Her Majesty in Council in force for the time being;

(2) papers which the parties agree to exclude;

(3) accounts, or portions of accounts, which the officer empowered by the Court for that purpose considers unnecessary, and which the parties have not specifically asked to be included, and

(4) such other documents as the High Court may direct to be excluded:

and when the applicant prefers to print in India the copy of the record, except as aforesaid, he shall also, within the time mentioned in the first clause of this section, deposit the amount required to defray the expense of printing such copy.

Admission of appeal and procedure thereon.

603. When such security has been completed and deposit made to the satisfaction of the Court, the Court may,

(a) declare the appeal admitted, and

(b) give notice thereof to the respondent, and shall then

(c) transmit to Her Majesty in Council, under the seal of the Court, a correct copy of the said record, except as aforesaid, and

(d) give to either party one or more authenticated copies of any of the papers in the suit on his applying therefor and paying the reasonable expenses incurred in preparing them.

Revocation of acceptance of security.

604. At any time before the admission of the appeal, the Court may, upon cause shown, revoke the acceptance of any such security, and make further directions thereon.

Power to order further security or payment.

605. If at any time after the admission of the appeal, but before the transmission of the copy of the record, except as aforesaid, to Her Majesty in Council, such security appears inadequate or further payment is required for the purpose of translating, transcribing, printing, indexing, or transmitting the copy of the record, except as aforesaid, the Court may order the appellant to furnish, within a time to be fixed by the Court, other and adequate security, or to make, within like time, the required payment.

Effect of failure to comply with order.

606. If the appellant fail to comply with such order, the proceedings shall be stayed, and the appeal shall not proceed without an order in this behalf of Her Majesty in Council, and in the meantime execution of the decree appealed against shall not be stayed.

Refund of balance of deposit.

607. When the copy of the record, except as aforesaid, has been transmitted to Her Majesty in Council, the appellant may obtain a refund of the balance, if any, of the amount which he has deposited under section 602.

Powers of Court pending appeal.

608. Notwithstanding the admission of any appeal under this chapter, the decree appealed against shall be unconditionally enforced, unless the Court admitting the appeal otherwise directs.

But the Court may, if it think fit, on any special cause shown by any party interested in the suit, or otherwise appearing to the Court—

(a) impound any moveable property in dispute, or any part thereof, or

(b) allow the decree appealed against to be enforced, taking such security from the respondent as the Court thinks fit for the due performance of any order which Her Majesty in Council may make on the appeal, or

(c) stay the execution of the decree appealed against, taking such security from the appellant as the Court thinks fit for the due performance of the decree appealed against, or of any order which Her Majesty in Council may make on the appeal, or

(d) place any party seeking the assistance of the Court under such conditions, or give such other direction respecting the subject-matter of the appeal as it thinks fit.

Increase of security found inadequate.

609. If at any time during the pendency of the appeal, the security so furnished by either party appears inadequate, the Court may, on the application of the other party, require further security.

In default of such further security being furnished as required by the Court, if the original security was furnished by the appellant, the Court may, on the application of the respondent, issue execution of the decree appealed against as if the appellant had furnished no such security.

And if the original security was furnished by the respondent, the Court shall, so far as may be practicable, stay all further execution of the decree, and restore the parties to the position in which they respectively were when the security which appears inadequate was furnished, or give such direction respecting the subject-matter of the appeal as it thinks fit.

Procedure to enforce orders of Queen in Council.

610. Whoever desires to enforce or to obtain execution of any order of Her Majesty in Council shall apply by petition accompanied by a copy of the decree or order made in appeal sought to be enforced or executed, to from which the appeal to Her Majesty was preferred.

Such Court shall transmit the order of Her Majesty to the Court which made the first decree appealed from, or to such other Court as Her Majesty by her said order may direct, and shall (upon the application of either party) give such directions as may be required for the enforcement or execution of the same; and the Court to which the said order is so transmitted shall enforce or execute it accordingly, in the manner and according to the rules applicable to the execution of its original decrees.

When any monies expressed to be payable in British currency are payable in India under such order, the amount so payable shall be estimated according to the rate of exchange for the time being fixed by the Secretary of State for India in Council, with the concurrence of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, for the adjustment of financial transactions between the Imperial and the Indian Governments.

Appeal against order relating to execution.

611. The orders made by the Court which enforces or executes the order of Her Majesty in Council relating to such enforcement or execution, shall be appealable in the same manner and subject to the same rules as the orders of such Court relating to the enforcement or execution of its own decrees.

Amendment of Act IX of 1871, schedule II, No. 169.

612. The first column of No. 169 of the second schedule annexed to the Indian Limitation Act, 1871, shall be read as if the following words were added thereto (that is to say): "or any order of Her Majesty in Council."

Power to make rules.

613. The High Court may, from time to time, make general rules consistent with this Act to regulate—

(a) the service of notices under section 600,

(b) the grant or refusal of certificates under sections 601 and 602 by Courts of final appellate jurisdiction subordinate to the High Court,

(c) the amount and nature of the security required under sections 602, 605 and 609,

(d) the testing of such security,

(e) the estimate of the cost of transcribing the record,

(f) the preparation, examination and certifying of such transcript,

(g) the revision and authentication of translations,

(h) the preparation of indices to transcripts of records, and of lists of the papers not included therein,

(i) the recovery of costs incurred in British India in connection with appeals to Her Majesty in Council, and all other matters connected with the enforcement of this chapter.

Publication of rules.

All such rules shall be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law in the High Court and the Courts of final appellate jurisdiction subordinate thereto.

Legalization of existing rules.

All rules heretofore made and published by any High Court relating to appeal to Her Majesty in Council and in force immediately before the passing of this Act, shall, so far as they are consistent with this Act, be deemed to have been made and published hereunder.

Recorder of Rangoon.

614. In sections 595 and 613, the expression 'High Court' shall be deemed to include also the Recorder of Rangoon, but not so as to empower him to make rules binding on Courts other than his own Court.

Construction of Bengal Regulation III of 1828, section 4, clause 5.

615. The rules and restrictions referred to in Bengal Regulation III of 1828, section IV, clause fifth, shall be deemed to be the rules and restrictions applicable to appeals under this Code from the decisions of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

Saving of Her Majesty's pleasure,

616. Nothing herein contained shall be understood—

(a) to bar the full and unqualified exercise of Her Majesty's pleasure in receiving or rejecting appeals to Her Majesty in Council, or otherwise howsoever, or and of rules for conduct of business before Judicial Committee.

(b) to interfere with any rules made by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, and for the time being in force, for the presentation of appeals to Her Majesty in Council, or their conduct before the said Judicial Committee.

And nothing in this chapter applies to any matter of criminal or admiralty or vice-admiralty jurisdiction, nor to appeals from orders and decrees of Prize Courts.

PART VII.

CHAPTER XLV.

OF REFERENCE TO THE HIGH COURT.

Reference of question to High Court.

617. If before or in the hearing of a suit or appeal in which the decree is final, or if in the execution of any such decree, any question of law or usage having the force of law, or the construction of a document which construction may affect the merits, arises, on which the Court trying the suit or appeal entertains reasonable doubt, the Court may, either of its own motion or on the application of any of the parties, draw up a statement of the point on which doubt is entertained, and refer such statement with its own opinion for the decision of the High Court.

Court may pass decree contingent upon opinion of High Court.

618. The Court may either stay the proceedings or proceed in the suit or appeal notwithstanding such reference, and may pass a decree contingent upon the opinion of the High Court on the point referred;

but no execution shall be issued in any case in which such reference is made to the High Court until the receipt of the order of that Court.

If a decree has been made its execution shall be stayed until the receipt of a copy of the judgment of the High Court upon such reference.

Judgment of High Court to be transmitted, and case disposed of accordingly.

619. The High Court shall hear the parties to the suit or appeal in which the reference is made, in person or by their respective pleaders, and shall determine the point so referred to it, and shall transmit a copy of its judgment, under the signature of the Registrar, to the Court by which the reference was made, and such Court shall, on the receipt thereof, proceed to dispose of the suit or appeal in conformity with the decision of the High Court.

Costs of reference to High Court.

620. Costs, if any, consequent on a reference for the opinion of the High Court, shall be costs in the suit or appeal.

Power to alter, &c., decrees of Court making reference.

621. When a case is referred to the High Court under this chapter, the High Court may return the case for amendment, and may alter, cancel or set aside any decree which the Court making the reference has passed in the suit or appeal out of which the reference arose, and make such order as it thinks fit.

PART VIII.

CHAPTER XLVI.

OF REVIEW OF JUDGMENT.

Power to call for record of cases decided by Small Cause Courts, or, on appeal, by subordinate Courts.

622. The High Court may call for the record of any case in which no appeal lies to the High Court, if the Court by which the case was decided appears to have exercised a jurisdiction not vested in it by law, or to have passed any order contrary to law, and may set aside the decision, or pass such other order in the case as the High Court thinks fit.

The District Court may exercise the like powers as to any case decided by any Court subordinate thereto.

Application for review of judgment.

623. Any person considering himself aggrieved—

(a) by a decree or order from which an appeal is hereby allowed, but from which no appeal has been preferred;

(b) by a decree or order from which no appeal is hereby allowed; or

(c) by a judgment on a reference from a Court of Small Causes; and who, from the discovery of new and important matter or evidence which, after the exercise of due diligence, was not within his knowledge or could not be adduced by him at the time when the decree was passed or order made, or on account of some mistake or error apparent on the face of the record, or for any other sufficient reason, desires to obtain a review of the decree passed or order made against him, may apply for a review of judgment to the Court which passed the decree or made the order or to the Court, if any, to which the business of the former Court has been transferred.

A party who is not appealing from a decree may apply for a review of judgment notwithstanding the pendency of an appeal by some other party, except when the ground of such appeal is common to the applicant and the appellant.

To whom applications for review may be made.

624. Except on the discovery of such new and important matter or evidence as aforesaid, or of some clerical error apparent on the face of the decree, no application for a review of judgment, other than that of a High Court, shall be made to any Judge other than the Judge who delivered it.

Form of applications for review.

625. The rules hereinbefore contained as to the form of making appeals shall apply, mutatis mutandis, to applications for review.

Application when rejected.

626. If it appear to the Court that there is not sufficient ground for a review, it shall reject the application.

Application when granted.

If the Court be of opinion that the review shall be granted, it shall grant the same, and the Judge shall record with his own hand his reasons for such opinion:

Proviso.

Provided that—

(a) no such review shall be granted without previous notice to the opposite party to enable him to appear and be heard in support of the decree a review of which is applied for; and

(b) no such review shall be granted on the ground of discovery of new matter or evidence which the applicant alleges was not within his knowledge, or could not be adduced by him when the decree or order was passed, without strict proof of such allegation.

Application for review in Court consisting of two or more Judges.

627. If the Judge or Judges, or any one of the Judges, who passed the decree or order, a review of which is applied for, continue attached to the Court at the time when the application for a review is presented and are not, or is not, precluded by absence or other cause, for a period of six months next after the application, from considering the decree or order to which the application refers, such Judge or Judges or any of them shall hear the application, and no other Judge or Judges of the Court shall hear the same.

Application when rejected.

628. If the application for a review be heard by more than one Judge and the Court be equally divided, the application shall be rejected.

If there be a majority the decision shall be according to the opinion of the majority.

Order of Court final.

629. The order of the Court whether for granting the review or rejecting the application shall be final, except where the review has been granted without jurisdiction, in which case an appeal shall lie.

Where the application has been rejected in consequence of the failure of the parties to appear, the applicant may, within fifteen days from such rejection, apply for an order to have the rejected application restored to the file, and if it be proved to the satisfaction of the Court that he was prevented by any sufficient cause from appearing when such application was called on for hearing, the Court may order it to be restored to the file upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit, and shall appoint a day for hearing the same.

No order shall be made under this section unless the applicant has served the opposite party with notice in writing of the latter application.

No application to review an order passed on review or on an application for a review shall be entertained.

630. When an application for a review is granted, a note thereof shall be made in the register and the Court may at once re-hear the case or make such order in regard to the re-hearing as it thinks fit.

Registry of application granted, and order for re-hearing.

PART IX.

CHAPTER XLVII.

SPECIAL RULES RELATING TO THE HIGH COURTS.

631. This chapter applies only to High Courts which are or may hereafter be established under the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth of Victoria, chapter 104 (An Act for establishing High Courts of Judicature in India).

This part to apply only to certain High Courts.

Except as provided in this Part, the provisions of this Code apply to such High Courts.

(b) in all other cases, the cause of action, or any material part of the cause of action, has arisen, or the defendant or any of the defendants at the time of the commencement of the suit dwells, or carries on business, or personally works for gain, within the local limits of such jurisdiction:

Provided that the leave of the Court be first obtained,

(c) in the case of suits for immoveable property where only part thereof is situate within such limits, and

(d) in other cases where only part of the cause of action has arisen, or only some of the defendants at the commencement of the suit dwell, or carry on business, or personally work for gain within such limits:

Provided also that no High Court shall, in the exercise of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction, try any case in which the debt, or compensation, or value of the property sued for, does not exceed five hundred rupees, and which falls within the jurisdiction of a Small Cause Court situate within the local limits of such jurisdiction.

633. The High Court shall take evidence, and record judgments and orders in such manner as it by rule from time to time directs.

High Court to record judgments according to its own rules.

634. Whenever a High Court considers it necessary that a decree made in the exercise of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction should be enforced before the amount of the costs incurred in the suit can be ascertained by taxation, the Court may order that the decree shall be executed forthwith, except as to so much thereof as relates to the costs;

Power to order execution of decree before ascertainment of costs, and execution for costs subsequently.

and, as to so much thereof as relates to the costs, that the decree may be executed as soon as the amount of the costs shall be ascertained by taxation.

635. No attorney shall, under the provisions of this Code, be entitled to address the Court or examine witnesses.

Attornies not to address Court.

636. Notices to produce documents, summonses to witnesses, and every other judicial process, issued in the exercise of the ordinary or extraordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court, and of its matrimonial, testamentary and intestate jurisdictions, except writs of summons to defendants issued under section 65, writs of execution, and notices under section 553, may be served by the attorneys in the suit, or by persons employed by them, or by such other persons as the High Court by any rule or order from time to time directs.

Process of High Courts may be served by attorneys in suit.

637. Any act not of a judicial nature which this Code requires to be done by a Judge, may be done by the Registrar of the Court or by such other officer of the Court as the Court may direct to perform such act.

Non-judicial acts may be done by Registrar.

The High Court may from time to time by rule declare what shall be deemed to be acts not of a judicial nature within the meaning of this section.

638. The procedure in civil cases brought before the High Court in the exercise of its Admiralty or Vice-Admiralty jurisdiction shall be regulated, so far as the circumstances of the case will permit, by the rules prescribed in this Code.

Procedure in Admiralty cases.

In the following cases in the exercise of such jurisdiction, (namely)—

(a) cases in which a ship, or a ship and cargo, has or have been or is or are to be proceeded against or arrested,

(b) cases in which goods only have been or are to be proceeded against or arrested, either for the purpose of proceeding against the goods or the freight due thereon,

(c) cases in which property has been or is arrested and no party has appeared or appears at the return of the warrant, and

(d) all other cases in the exercise of Admiralty or Vice-Admiralty jurisdiction in which the rules contained in this Code are not applicable, the practice and procedure shall be regulated as nearly as possible by the Rules and Regulations made and ordained by his late Majesty King William the Fourth in Council in pursuance of the Second of William the Fourth, chapter 51, and touching the practice to be observed in the several Courts of Vice-Admiralty in the Colonies, except so far as such rules may be inconsistent with the Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth of Victoria, chapter 104, or with the Letters Patent granted in pursuance thereof.

639. In suits for mariners' wages brought before the High Court in the exercise of Admiralty or Vice-Admiralty jurisdiction, any number of mariners belonging to the same ship or serving under the same owner may proceed jointly in one suit.

Joinder of mariners in suits for wages.

640. The following portions of this Code shall not apply to the High Court in the exercise of its ordinary or extraordinary original civil jurisdiction, namely, sections 37, 54 clause (a), 119, 160, 182 to 185 (both inclusive), 187, 189, 190, 191, 206, 261, 403, 404, 405, and section 579 shall not apply to the High Court in the exercise of its appellate jurisdiction.

Nothing in this Code shall extend or apply to any High Court in the exercise of its jurisdiction as an Insolvent Court.

Code not to affect High Court in exercise of insolvent jurisdiction.

641. The High Court shall have power to frame forms for every proceeding in such Court, for which the High Court thinks it necessary that forms should be provided, and for keeping all books, entries and accounts to be kept by its officers.

Power to frame forms.

PART X.

CHAPTER XLVIII.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Exemption from Personal Appearance.

642. Women, who according to the customs and manners of the country ought not to be compelled to appear in public, shall be exempt from personal appearance in Court.

Exemption of certain women from personal appearance.

But nothing herein contained shall be deemed to exempt such women from arrest in execution of civil process.

643. The Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, exempt from personal appearance in Court any person whose rank, in the opinion of such Government, entitles him to the privilege of exemption, and may, by like notification, withdraw such privilege.

Local Government may exempt certain persons from personal appearance.

The names and residences of the persons so exempted shall from time to time be forwarded to the High Court by the Local Government, and a list of such persons shall be kept in such Court, and a list of such persons as reside within the local limits of the jurisdiction of each Court subordinate to the High Court shall be kept in such subordinate Court.

List of names of persons exempted to be kept in subordinate Court.

When any person so exempted claims the privilege of such exemption, and it is consequently necessary to examine him by commission, he shall pay the costs of that commission.

Costs of commission rendered necessary by claiming privilege.

Exemption from Arrest.

644. No Judge, Magistrate or other judicial officer shall be liable to arrest under this Code while going to, presiding in, or returning from his Court.

Persons exempt from arrest.

And, except as hereinafter provided, the parties to a suit and their pleaders and recognized agents shall be exempt from arrest under this Code while going to or attending a Civil Court for the purpose of such suit and while returning from such Court. Witnesses acting in obedience to a summons shall be similarly exempt.

Offences in Court.

645. When in a case pending before any Court, there appears to the Court sufficient ground for sending for investigation to the Magistrate a charge of any such offence as is described in section 193, 196, 199, 200, 205, 206 207, 208, 209, 210, 463, 471, 474, 475, 476 or 477 of the Indian Penal Code, which may be made in respect to any document offered in evidence in the case, the Court may send the person accused in custody to the Magistrate, or take sufficient bail for his appearance before the Magistrate.

Procedure in case of certain offences relating to documents.

The Court shall send to the Magistrate the evidence and documents relevant to the charge, and shall bind over any person to appear and give evidence before such Magistrate.

The Magistrate shall receive such charge and proceed with it according to law.

Forms.

646. Subject to the power conferred on the High Court by section 640 and by the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth of Victoria, chapter 104, section 15, the forms set forth in the fourth schedule hereto annexed, with such variation as the circumstances of each case require, shall be used for the respective purposes therein mentioned.

Use of forms in fourth schedule.

647. The language which, when this Code comes into force, is the language of any Court subordinate to a High Court, shall continue to be the language of such Court until the Local Government otherwise orders;

Language of subordinate Courts.

but it shall be lawful for the Local Government from time to time to declare what language shall be the language of every such Court.

Statement of Cases by Registrars of Small Cause Courts.

648. Whenever the Registrar of a Court of Small Causes has any doubt upon any question of law or usage having the force of law, or as to the construction of a document which construction may affect the merits of the decision, he may state a case for the opinion of the Judge; and all the provisions herein contained relative to the stating of a case by the Judge shall apply, mutatis mutandis, to the stating of a case by the Registrar.

Power of Registrars of Small Cause Courts to state cases.

Miscellaneous Proceedings.

649. The procedure herein prescribed shall be followed, as far as it can be made applicable, in all proceedings in any Court, other than suits and appeals.

Miscellaneous proceedings.

The High Court may from time to time make rules to provide for the admission, in such proceedings, of affidavits as evidence of the matters to which such affidavits respectively relate; and such rules, on being published in the local official Gazette, shall have the force of law.

Admission of affidavits as evidence.

Civil Process for Attachment, Sale or Payment.

650. If any property to be attached under this Code is situate without the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court making the order of attachment, such Court, if a District Court, shall send to the District Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such property is situate, a copy of the order together with the probable amount of the costs of the attachment.

Procedure when property to be attached is situate outside the local limits of jurisdiction.

Such District Court shall, on receipt of such copy and amount, cause the attachment to be made as if the original order of attachment had been made by itself, and inform the Court by which such order was made or transmitted of the making of the attachment.

If the Court making the order of attachment is subordinate to a District Court, it shall send such copy to the District Court to which it is subordinate, and such Court shall, if it think fit, deal with the order as if it had been made by itself.

651. The rules contained in chapter XIX shall be applicable to the execution of any judicial process for the sale of property or payment of money, which may be desired or ordered by a Civil Court in any civil proceeding.

Rules applicable to all civil process for sale or payment.

Witnesses.

652. The provisions of chapters XIV and XV relating to witnesses shall apply to all persons required to give evidence, or to produce documents in any proceeding under this Code.

Application of rules as to witnesses.

Escape from Custody.

653. Whoever offers any resistance or illegal obstruction to the lawful apprehension of himself under this Code, or under the warrant of any Court of civil judicature, or escapes or attempts to escape from any custody in which he is lawfully detained under this Code or under such warrant, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months or with fine not exceeding one thousand rupees, or with both.

Penalty for escaping from custody under Code.

Subsidiary Rules.

654. The High Court may from time to time make rules consistent with this Code to regulate any matter connected with the procedure of the Courts of Civil Judicature. All such rules shall be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

Power to make subsidiary rules of procedure.

Written statement of the Defendant.

In the Court, &c.

C. D., the above-named defendant, states as follows :—

1. The defendant made the note sued upon under the following circumstances: The plaintiff and defendant had for some years been in partnership as indigo manufacturers, and it had been agreed between them that they should dissolve partnership, that the plaintiff should retire from the business, that the defendant should take over the whole of the partnership assets and liabilities and should pay the plaintiff the value of his share in the assets after deducting the liabilities.

2. The plaintiff thereupon undertook to examine the partnership books and enquire into the state of the partnership assets and liabilities; and he did accordingly examine the said books and make the said enquiries, and he thereupon represented to the defendant that the assets of the firm exceeded Rs. 1,00,000 and that the liabilities of the firm were less than Rs. 30,000, whereas the fact was that the assets of the firm were less than Rs. 50,000 and the liabilities of the firm largely exceeded the assets.

3. The misrepresentations mentioned in the second para. of this statement induced the defendant to make the note now sued on, and there never was any other consideration for the making of such note.

Written Statement of Defendant.

1. The defendant denies that the carriage mentioned in the plaint was the defendant's carriage, or that it was under the charge or control of the defendant's servants. The carriage belonged to [Messrs. E. F. and G. H.] of Street, Calcutta, livery stable-keepers, employed by the defendant to supply him with carriages and horses; and the person under whose charge and control the said carriage was, was the servant of the said Messrs. E. F. and G. H.

2. The defendant does not admit that the said carriage was turned out of Harington Street either negligently, suddenly, or without warning, or at a rapid or dangerous pace.

3. The defendant says, that the plaintiff might and could, by the exercise of reasonable care and diligence, have seen the said carriage approaching him, and avoided any collision with it.

4. The defendant does not admit the statements of the third paragraph of the plaint.

CHAPTER II.

GENERAL RULES.

4. The Chief Customs Authority may, with the sanction of the Local Government, make and issue rules for regulating the practice and proceedings of officers in the Department of Sea Customs, and may from time to time add to, alter, or revoke such rules or any of them:

Making, issuing, and publishing of rules.

provided that no rule so made shall be inconsistent with this Act or any other law for the time being in force.

All rules made under this section shall be published in the local official Gazette.

5. Any rules made under section 4 may include such rules as appear expedient for the landing and shipping of passengers' baggage and the passing of the same through the Custom House, and for the landing, shipping, and clearing of parcels forwarded by Her Majesty's or other mails, or by other regular packets and passenger vessels.

Rules respecting passengers' baggage and mails.

When any baggage or parcels are made over to an officer of Customs for the purpose of being landed, a fee of such amount as the Local Government from time to time directs shall be chargeable thereon, as compensation for the expense and trouble incurred in landing and depositing the same in the Custom House.

Fee for landing baggage.

6. If any dispute arises between any officer of Customs and any Master of a vessel, or importer, exporter, owner or consignee of goods, or agent, or other person, in respect to any matter (not specially provided for by any law for the time being in force) relating to the importation, exportation, or warehousing of any goods,

Appeals how and by whom to be adjudicated.

or to the proper rate of duty payable in respect thereof,

or to the levy of any duty or penalty thereon,

or to any seizure or forfeiture thereof,

the Chief Customs Authority, or such officer of Customs as the said Authority from time to time appoints in this behalf, shall settle such dispute, subject to an appeal to the Local Government, acting under the general instructions of the Governor General in Council.

Where the dispute relates to the proper rate of duty in respect of any goods, the importer, exporter, owner, or consignee of such goods, or his agent, shall deposit in the hands of the Officer in charge of the Custom House at the Port of importation or exportation, respectively, the amount of duty demanded by such officer, pending the decision of the Chief Customs Authority.

Upon payment of such deposit and compliance with the provisions of this Act relating to the entry of such goods, the Officer in charge of the Custom House shall cause the goods to be delivered to such importer, exporter, owner or consignee, or his agent.

CHAPTER III.

APPOINTMENT OF OFFICERS, PORTS, WHARVES AND WAREHOUSES.

Local Government to appoint necessary officers.

7. The Local Government of every place in which duties of Sea Customs are levied, shall appoint such persons as it thinks proper to exercise the powers conferred, and to perform the duties imposed, by this Act.

Suspension and dismissal of such officers.

Every person so appointed shall be liable to be suspended or dismissed by the Local Government which appointed him.

Local Government may delegate its powers under section 7 to Customs Authority.

8. The Local Government may delegate to any Authority within its jurisdiction in the Department of Customs all or any of the powers vested in it by section 7.

Suspension and dismissal of subordinate officers.

Every subordinate officer who is appointed by virtue of such delegated power shall be liable to be suspended or dismissed by the Authority which appointed him.

Collector of District to perform duties of Customs Officer, where there is no separate Customs Officer.

9. At any place at which there is no Officer in charge of a Custom House, the Collector of Revenue of the District and the officers subordinate to him shall be deemed to be the proper officers for the performance of all duties required by this Act to be performed by an Officer in charge of a Custom House and other Officers of Customs.

Power to appoint Ports and Wharves for shipment and landing.

10. The Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette,

(a) declare the places which alone shall be Ports for the shipment and landing of goods;

(b) declare the limits of such Ports;

(c) appoint proper places therein to be Wharves for the landing and shipping of goods;

(d) declare the bounds and extent of any such Wharf;

(e) alter the name of any such Port or Wharf.

Every such Port, except Aden, shall be deemed to be a Customs Port within the meaning of this Act.

The Local Government may also from time to time in like manner declare what shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be the limits of the Custom House.

Power to declare that an Indian Port not in British India shall be regarded as a British Indian Port for certain purposes.

11. The Governor General in Council may from time to time declare, by notification in the Gazette of India, that any Foreign Port in India shall, with such limitations and on such conditions (if any) as he thinks fit, be deemed a Customs Port for the purposes of sections 16, 126, and 182 to 140, inclusive, in so far as the said sections or any of them are capable of being applied to such Port; and may in like manner from time to time, by notification in the said Gazette, revoke or suspend the operation of any such declaration.

Power to declare Warehousing Ports and places.

12. The Local Government may from time to time declare, by notification in the official Gazette, that any Port or place subject to its administration shall be a Warehousing Port or place for the purposes of this Act;

Existing Ports to continue in use until otherwise declared.

and every Port which, at the passing of this Act, shall have been declared to be or shall be existing as a Warehousing Port, shall continue to be a Warehousing Port under this Act, until the Local Government otherwise declares by notification in the official Gazette.

Approval, appointment, and licensing of warehouses.

13. In any Warehousing Port or place the Chief Customs Authority may from time to time appoint or license public Warehouses or places of security wherein dutiable goods may be deposited without payment of duty on the first entry thereof.

CHAPTER IV.

LEVY OF AND EXEMPTION FROM CUSTOMS DUTIES.

Import Customs.

14. Duties of customs shall be levied on goods imported by sea into any Customs Port from any Foreign Port or place, at such rates and with such exemptions as may be prescribed by any law for the time being in force.

Export Customs.

15. Duties of customs shall be levied on goods exported by sea from any Customs Port to any Foreign Port or place, at such rates and with such exemptions as may be prescribed by any law for the time being in force.

No duties on goods carried from one Indian Port to another not a Free Port.

16. No duties of customs shall be levied on goods carried by sea from any Customs Port to any other Customs Port:

Proviso as to opium, salt, and spirits.

Provided that nothing in this section shall apply to opium, salt or spirits;

or to goods brought from any Foreign Port or place to any Customs Port, and there transhipped for, or thence carried to, any other Customs Port without payment of duty;

or to goods removed in bond.

Power to exempt from Customs Duties.

17. The Governor General in Council may from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, exempt any goods imported or exported into or from British India, or into or from any specified port or place therein, from the whole or any part of the duties of customs to which they are liable under the law for the time being in force relating to such duties, and may, by like notification, cancel any such exemption.

Power to cancel exemption.

Power to authorize exemption from payment of duty.

The Local Government may authorize the Chief Customs Authority to exempt, by special order, from the payment of duty, under stated circumstances of an exceptional nature, any goods on which duties of Customs are directed to be levied by any law for the time being in force.

Baggage in actual use.

18. The Officer in charge of a Custom House may pass free of duty at his discretion any baggage in actual use, and for this purpose may determine, subject to such general rules as may from time to time be made under section 4, whether any goods shall be treated as baggage in actual use, or as goods subject to duty.

Transhipment of Goods.

Power to permit transhipment with payment of duty.

19. In the Ports of Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, Karáchi, Aden, Rangoon, Maulmain, Akyab, Chittagong, and such other British Indian Ports as the Governor General in Council may from time to time by notification in the Gazette of India direct in this behalf, the Chief Officer of Customs may (subject to the provisions contained in sections 20 and 21), on application of any person interested as owner, agent, consignee or otherwise in any goods imported by steamer into such port, grant leave to tranship the same without payment of duty at the port of transhipment, and without any security or bond for the due arrival and entry of the goods at the port of destination;

Proviso.

Provided that such goods have been specially and distinctly manifested or declared at the time of import as for transhipment to some other British Indian or foreign port.

Rules regulating exercise of power.

20. The power conferred by section 19 shall be exercised subject to such rules as the Local Government may from time to time prescribe by notification in the official Gazette.

Levy of transhipment fee.

21. A transhipment fee on each bale or package of any goods or class of goods transhipped under this Act, may be levied at such rates and under such regulations as the Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, from time to time prescribes by notification in the official Gazette.

Power to prohibit transhipment.

22. The Governor General in Council may from time to time, by order notified in the Gazette of India, prohibit the transhipment, at any specified port or at all ports, of any specified class of goods, or prescribe any special mode of transhipping any specified class of goods, or may, by like notification, cancel such order.

Duty on opium re-exported by sea.

23. Opium imported by sea into any British Indian port may, if the Local Government think fit, but not otherwise, be re-exported by sea from the same port on payment of a duty equal in amount to the fee to which it would have been liable if it had been transhipped at such port.

CHAPTER V.

GENERAL PROVISIONS.

Prohibitions and restrictions.

24. The importation into or exportation from British India of the goods enumerated in the following clauses is prohibited:—

(a). Any book printed in infringement of any law in force in British India on the subject of copyright, when the proprietor of such copyright, or his agent, has given to the Chief Customs Authority of the Presidency or place a notice in writing that such copyright subsists, and a statement of the date on which it will expire:

(c). Any obscene book, pamphlet, paper, drawing, painting, representation, figure or article.

Importation without license of arms and ammunition prohibited.

25. The importation into British India of arms or ammunition, except under a license from the said Governor General in Council, or from some officer authorized in that behalf by the said Governor General in Council, is prohibited.

Proviso.

Nothing in the former part of this section shall apply to fowling pieces and sporting powder bonâ fide imported by any person in reasonable quantities for his own private use.

Governor General may prohibit or restrict importation or exportation of goods.

26. The Governor General in Council may from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, prohibit or restrict the importation or exportation by sea or by land, or both by sea and by land, of any particular class of goods.

Importation and exportation.

27. It shall be lawful to import into, or to export from, any place declared under section 10 to be a port for the shipment and landing of goods, any goods the importation or exportation of which is not prohibited or restricted by any law or notice of the Governor General in Council for the time being in force.

Owner, &c., to declare real value of goods in bill of entry or clearance, and, if necessary, to produce invoice, &c.

28. On the importation into, or exportation from, any Port in British India of any goods not liable to duty, or liable to fixed duties according to weight or quantity only, or to duties on fixed Tariff valuations, the owner, consignee, importer, exporter or agent of such goods shall, in his bill of entry or shipping bill, truly declare their real value to the best of his knowledge and belief.

In case of doubt, the officer in charge of the Custom House may require any such person or any other person in possession of any invoice, broker's note, policy of insurance, or other document, whereby the value of any such goods can be ascertained, to produce the same, and to furnish any information relating to the value of such goods which it is in his power to furnish.

And thereupon such person shall produce any such document or furnish any such information so required by such officer.

Whenever the value of any goods is required to be stated in the entry, the importer, owner, or consignee, or his agent, shall subscribe a declaration of the truth of such value at the foot of such entry;

5 *

Provided that, if the importer, owner or consignee, or his agent, makes a declaration before the Officer in charge of the Custom House to the effect that he is unable, from want of full information, to state the value or contents of any case, package, or parcel of goods, then the officer in charge shall permit him, previous to the entry thereof, to open such case, package, or parcel, and examine the contents in presence of an officer of Customs.

No re-valuation of goods assessed for duty on the declared value thereof shall be allowed after such goods have been removed from the Custom House.

Assessment of goods liable to duty according to value.

In all cases in which goods are liable to duty according to the value thereof, and in which no value has been fixed by law for the purpose of levying duties thereon, the value shall be assessed at the wholesale cash price, less trade-discount, for which goods of the like kind and quality are sold, or are capable of being sold, at the time and place of importation or exportation respectively, without any abatement or deduction whatever, except of so much as the duties payable on the importation thereof amount to.

Nothing in this section applies to opium, salt or spirits.

Under-valued goods how dealt with.

29. If, upon the examination of any goods chargeable with duty upon the value thereof, but for which a specific value is not fixed by law, for the purpose of levying duties thereon, it appears to an Officer of Customs that such goods are properly chargeable with a higher rate or amount of duty than that to which they would be subject according to the value thereof as stated in the bill of entry or shipping bill, such officer may detain such goods.

In every such case the detaining officer shall forthwith give notice in writing to the person entering the goods, of their detention and of the value thereof as estimated by him; and the Officer in charge of the Custom House shall, within two clear working days after such detention, or within such reasonable period as may with the consent of the parties be arranged, determine either to deliver such goods on the entry of such person, or to retain the same for the use of Government.

If the goods be retained for the use of Government, the Officer in charge of the Custom House shall cause the full value at which they were entered to be paid to the person entering the same, in full satisfaction for such goods, in the same manner as if they had been transferred by ordinary sale, and shall then cause them to be sold by public auction after due notice in the official Gazette.

If the proceeds arising from such sale shall exceed the sum paid to the person entering the goods, together with the duty to which the goods are liable, and all charges incurred by Government in connection with them, a portion not exceeding one-half of the overplus shall, at the discretion of the Chief Officer of Customs, be payable to the officer who detected the under-valuation of the goods.

Nothing in this section shall prevent the Chief Officer of Customs, when he has reason to believe that any such under-valuation was solely the result of accident, from permitting the person entering the goods, on his application for that purpose, to amend such entry, on payment of such increased rate of duties, or on such other terms as he may determine.

Duties on goods retained under section 29 for use of Government.

30. When goods are retained under section 29 for the use of Government, the duties payable thereon shall in no case be levied from the person entering such goods.

Date of importation how to be determined.

31. If upon the first levying, repealing, enhancement or reduction of any duty, or upon any change of any valuation for duty, or upon the first permitting, prohibiting or restricting of any importation, it becomes necessary to determine the exact date on which an importation of goods had effect, such date shall be deemed to be that on which the goods were actually entered for home-consumption at the Custom House.

For the purpose of this section goods shall be deemed to be entered when the bill of entry thereof is delivered to the officer in charge of the Custom House.

Date of exportation how determined.

32. If, in like manner, it becomes necessary to determine the exact date on which an exportation of goods had effect, such date shall be deemed to be that on which the goods were actually entered outwards at the Custom House.

Contracts for sale of goods, duty on which is raised or lowered before performance.

33. When a contract is entered into for the sale of any dutiable goods at a fixed price including the duty leviable in British India at the date of the contract, and subsequently thereto, and before the contract is fully performed, the duty on such goods is raised or lowered, and levied accordingly, the amount to be paid to or received by the parties to the contract shall be increased or diminished, as the case may be, by the amount by which such duty is raised or lowered.

Illustrations.

(a.) A, a merchant in Calcutta, contracts with B, a merchant in Liverpool, to sell him 100 maunds of indigo at Rs. 200 per maund, including the export duty at the rate of 3 rupees per maund. Before the contract is fully performed the duty on indigo is reduced to 1 rupee per maund. B is entitled to deduct from the price agreed on Rs. 200, being Rs. 2 per maund.

(b.) A, a wine merchant in Bombay, contracts with B, a merchant in Bordeaux, for a thousand gallons of claret at Rs. 5 per gallon, including the import duty of 1 rupee per gallon. Subsequently, and before the contract is fully performed, the duty is raised to Rs. 2 per gallon levied at that rate, B is entitled to be paid at the rate of Rs. 6 per gallon.

Duty leviable on sea-borne goods, duty on which has been altered during transit.

34. When during the transit by sea to British India of any dutiable goods, the duty on such goods is raised, the duty leviable on such goods on arrival in British India shall be the duty which is in force in respect of such goods when such transit commenced, and when the duty on such goods is reduced, the duty leviable thereon shall be such reduced duty.

Re-imported articles of country produce to be deemed Foreign.

35. If goods produced or manufactured in British India be imported into any Customs Port from any Foreign Port or place, such goods shall be treated as Foreign goods, and shall be liable to all the duties, conditions and restrictions to which Foreign goods of the like kind and value are liable on the first importation thereof:

Proviso.

Provided that, if such importation takes place within three years after the exportation of such goods, and it is proved to the satisfaction of the Officer in charge of the Custom House that the property in such goods has continued in the person by whom or on whose account they were exported, the goods may be entered as Indian goods, in such manner as the Chief Customs Authority from time to time directs.

Goods for which any drawback of Excise has been received on exportation shall in all cases be treated as Foreign goods, unless the Chief Customs Authority in any case otherwise directs by special order.

Officer in charge of Custom House may require goods to be weighed or measured on board before landing.

36. The Officer in charge of the Custom House, whenever he sees fit, may require that goods stowed in bulk, and brought by sea or intended for exportation, shall be weighed or measured on board-ship before landing or after shipment, and may levy duty according to the result of such weighing or measurement.

Customs Officer may open package and examine goods shipped.

37. Any Officer of Customs may open any package, and fully examine any goods brought by sea, or shipped or brought for shipment at any place in British India.

Stations for Customs Officers to board and clear ships.

38. The Chief Customs Authority may from time to time appoint, in any Customs Port, stations or places at which vessels arriving at or departing from such Port shall bring to for the boarding or landing of Officers of Customs, and may direct at what particular place in any such Port small vessels, not brought into Port by Pilots, shall be required to anchor or moor.

The Chief Officer of Customs may at any time station Officers of Customs on board of any vessel while such vessel remains within the limits of the Port.

Power to depute Officer of Customs to board ships.

39. The Officer in charge of the Custom House at any Port in British India, may at any time depute at his discretion one or more Officers of Customs to board any vessel arriving at such Port.

Every Officer of Customs so sent shall remain on board of such vessel by day and by night until it be otherwise ordered by the Officer in charge of the Custom House;

Proviso.

Provided that the Officer in charge of the Custom House may direct, whenever he sees fit so to do, and on such conditions as he sees fit to impose, that the discharge of cargo may take place without the presence of an Officer of Customs.

Master to be received with Officer.

Accommodation of Officer and servant.

40. Every Master of a vessel, who is bound to receive on board an Officer of Customs, shall also be bound to receive on board one servant of such Officer, and to provide such Officer and servant with suitable shelter and accommodation, and likewise with a due allowance of fresh water, and with the means of cooking on board.

Officers of Customs to have free access to every part of the ship, and may seal and secure goods.

41. Every Officer of Customs, deputed as above provided on board of any vessel, shall have free access to every part thereof, and may fasten down any hatchway or entrance to the hold, and mark any goods before landing, and lock up, seal, mark, or otherwise secure any goods on board of such vessel.

Officer in charge of Custom House may authorize search and opening of locks.

If any box, place, or closed receptacle in any such vessel be locked, and the keys be withheld, such officer shall report the same to the Officer in charge of the Custom House, who may thereupon issue to the officer on board, or to any other officer under his authority, a written order to search.

On production of such order, the officer bearing the same may require that any place, box, or closed receptacle in such vessel be opened in his presence; and, if it be not opened upon his requisition, he may break the same open;

Goods not to be landed on Sundays, holidays, &c., without permission, nor except within fixed hours, &c.

42. Except with the written permission of the Officer in charge of the Custom House, no goods, with the exception of passengers' baggage, shall on any Sunday or on any holiday or day on which the discharge of cargo is prohibited by the Chief Customs Authority of the Presidency or place, be discharged from any vessel arriving at any Customs Port or be shipped or waterborne for exportation or for carriage coastwise;

nor, except with such written permission, shall any goods be so discharged, shipped or water-borne on any day, except between such hours as the Chief Customs Authority from time to time appoints by notification in the official Gazette, nor without the presence or authority of an Officer of Customs;

nor in the case of goods so shipped or water-borne from any place in any such Port except a wharf duly appointed for such purpose;

nor without the presence of the proper Officer of Customs;

nor before due entry outwards of the exporting vessel and of the goods;

nor before such goods shall have been duly cleared for shipment.

CHAPTER VI.

IMPORTATION.

Power to fix places beyond which inward-bound vessels are not to proceed until manifest delivered.

43. The Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, fix a place in any River or Port, beyond which place it shall not be lawful for any vessel, whether laden or in ballast, arriving from any Foreign Port or place, to pass until the Master thereof has delivered to the Pilot, Officer of Customs or other person duly authorized to receive the same, a manifest signed by the Master containing a true specification of all goods imported in such vessel, with such particulars and made out in such form as is from time to time directed by the Chief Customs Authority.

If, in any River or Port wherein a place has been fixed by the Local Government under this section, the Master of any vessel arriving from any Foreign Port or place remains outside or below the place so fixed, such Master shall nevertheless, within twenty-four hours after the vessel anchors, deliver to the Pilot, Officer of Customs or other person authorized to receive the same, a manifest as provided in the same section.

Delivery of manifest when vessel anchors below reporting station.

44. In the case of a steamer the Master may enter in the manifest the name of the ship's agent as that of the consignee of any cargo, and the Chief Customs Authority may treat him as such consignee, provided he gives sufficient security to pay all claims for damage or short delivery which may be established by the owner of such cargo.

Power of Master of steamer to enter ship's agent as consignee.

45. The Pilot, Officer or other person so receiving the said manifest shall countersign the same and enter thereon such particulars as the said Chief Customs Authority from time to time directs in this behalf.

Duty of person receiving manifest.

46. No vessel arriving in any Customs Port from any Foreign Port or place, shall be allowed to break bulk until a manifest has been delivered as hereinbefore provided; nor until a copy of such manifest, together with an application for entry inwards, has been presented to the Officer in charge of the Custom House, and order has been given thereon by such officer for the discharge of the cargo.

Bulk not to be broken until manifest, &c., delivered, and ship entered at Custom House.

The Officer in charge of the Custom House may refuse to give such order, until any port-clearance, cocket, or other paper, which he knows or has reason to believe had been granted at the place from which the vessel is stated to have come, shall likewise have been delivered to him.

Nothing in this section shall prevent an Officer in charge of a Custom House from granting, prior to receipt of the original manifest and prior to the entry of the vessel at the Custom House, a special pass, permitting bulk to be broken. The granting of such pass shall be subject to such rules as may from time to time be prescribed by the Chief Customs Authority.

47. The Master of every vessel arriving from any Foreign Port or place shall, at the time of applying for entry inwards at any Customs Port, deliver to the Officer in charge of the Custom House, if required so to do, the bill of lading or a copy thereof for every part of the cargo laden on board, and shall answer all such questions relating to the vessel, cargo, crew, and voyage as are put to him by such officer.

Master, if required, to deliver bill of lading, &c., to Officer in charge of Custom House.

48. No goods shall be allowed to leave any vessel, unless they be duly entered in the manifest of such vessel.

Goods not to leave ship unless entered in manifest.

49. Nothing contained in section 48 shall prevent any Officer in charge of a Custom House from permitting the Master of any vessel to amend any obvious error in the manifest, or to supply any omission resulting from accident or inadvertence, by furnishing an amended or supplementary manifest.

Amendment of errors in manifest.

But the receiving of such amended or supplementary document shall always be discretionary with the Officer in charge of the Custom House; and, if he decide to receive any such amended or supplementary manifest, he may levy thereon such fee as the Chief Customs Authority from time to time directs.

50. A period of fifteen working days after the entry of a vessel not exceeding six hundred tons, or such other period as the Officer in charge of the Custom House directs, shall be allowed for the landing of import cargo from such vessel.

Period to be allowed for landing import cargo.

One additional day shall in like manner be allowed for every fifty tons in excess of six hundred.

No charge shall be made for the services of a single Officer of Customs for such period of fifteen working days, or for the services of several such officers for respective periods the aggregate of which does not exceed fifteen working days.

If the period occupied in the landing of import cargo be in excess of that so allowed, the vessel shall be charged with the expense of the Officer of Customs at a rate not exceeding five rupees per diem (Sundays and holidays excepted) for such excess period.

Consequence of exceeding same.

51. If the importer, owner or consignee of any goods (except such as have been declared by the Master as not to be landed), or the agent of such importer, owner or consignee does not land such goods within such number of working days, not exceeding fifteen, after the entry of the vessel importing the same, as the Local Government from time to time appoints by notification in the official Gazette, or within such further period as the bill of lading of such vessel specifies, the Master of the vessel, or the Officers of Customs on his application, may then carry such goods to the Custom House.

Procedure in respect of goods not landed within time allowed.

The Officer in charge of the Custom House shall thereupon take charge of and grant receipts for such goods; and, if notice in writing has been given that the goods are to remain subject to a lien for freight, primage, general average, or other charges of a stated amount, he shall hold such goods until he shall have received notice in writing that the said charges are paid.

52. If any period earlier than the number of working days so appointed is specified in the bill of lading of such vessel for the discharge of her cargo or any part thereof, and if the importer, owner or consignee of such cargo, or his agent does not land the same within such specified period, the Master of such vessel, or the Officers of Customs, on his application, may then carry such goods to the Custom House.

Effect of not discharging cargo in any earlier period specified in bill of lading.

The Officer in charge of the Custom House shall thereupon take charge of and grant receipts for such goods; and, if notice in writing has been given that the goods are to remain subject to a lien for freight, primage, general average, or other charges of a stated amount, he shall hold such goods until the said charges are paid.

53. At any time after the arrival of any vessel, the Officer in charge of the Custom House may, with the consent of the Master of such vessel, cause any small package or parcel of goods to be carried to the Custom House, there to remain for entry in charge of the Officers of Customs during the remainder of the working days allowed under the provisions of this or any other Act relating to Customs, for the landing of such package or parcel.

Goods may be landed at any time after arrival, with consent.

If any package or parcel so carried to the Custom House remains unclaimed on the expiration of the number of working days so allowed for its landing, or at the time of the clearance outwards of the vessel from which it was landed, the Master may give such notice as is provided in section 51, and the Officer in charge of the Custom House shall thereupon hold such package or parcel as provided in the said section.

54. If the duties chargeable upon any goods carried to the Custom House under the provisions of any of the three sections last preceding, together with the freight, primage, charges of landing and removal, rent and other charges to which such goods are liable, are not paid within four months from the date of entry of the vessel;

Procedure in case of non-payment of duties within four months after entry of vessel.

or if such goods are not duly warehoused within such period;

such goods may, after due notice in the official Gazette, be sold by public auction, and the proceeds thereof shall then be applied; first, to the payment of freight, primage and general average; next to the payment of duties; and then to the payment of other charges.

The overplus, if any, shall be paid to the importer, owner or consignee of the goods, or to his agent, on his application for the same; provided that such application be made within one year from the sale of the goods, or that good reason be shown why such application was not so made.

If any such goods be of a perishable nature, the Officer in charge of the Custom House may at any time direct the sale thereof, and shall apply the proceeds in like manner.

Nothing in this section shall authorize the passing for home-consumption of any dutiable goods without payment of duties of Customs thereon, provided that such goods may be so passed where the importer, owner or consignee furnishes security, to the satisfaction of the officer in charge of the Custom House, for the payment of the duties to which such goods are liable.

55. If any goods be not cleared for home-consumption or for warehouse within two months from the date of landing of such goods, or within such further period as the Officer in charge of the Custom House directs, such goods may, after due notice in the official Gazette, be sold by public auction, and the proceeds thereof shall then be applied to the payment of duties and other charges.

Goods not cleared within two months from date of landing, to be sold.

The overplus, if any, shall be paid to the importer, owner or consignee of the goods, or to his agent, on his application for the same; provided that such application be made within one year from the sale of the goods, or that good reason be shown why such application was not so made:

Disposal of proceeds.

Provided also that where such goods are arms, ammunition or military stores, they may be sold or otherwise disposed of at such place (whether within or without British India) and in such manner as the Local Government may from time to time direct.

Proviso.

56. All goods removed from on board of any vessel for the purpose of being landed and passed for importation, shall be forthwith landed at the wharf or other place appointed for the landing of such goods.

Goods removed from ship to be forthwith landed.

57. No goods discharged from any vessel under the authority of an Officer of Customs shall be landed except at the wharf or other place appointed for the landing of such goods.

Goods not to be landed elsewhere than at appointed wharf or place.

No goods discharged into any boat for the purpose of being landed shall, previously to their being landed, be transhipped into any other boat without the permisson of an Officer of Customs.

58. When any goods are sent from on board of any vessel for the purpose of being landed and passed for importation, there shall be sent, with such boat-load or other separate despatch, a boat-note specifying the number of packages so sent, and the marks and numbers or other description thereof.

Boat-note.

Each boat-note shall be signed by an officer of the vessel, and likewise by the Officer of Customs on board, if any such officer be on board.

59. The importer, owner, or consignee of any dutiable goods intended to be delivered for home-consumption on the landing thereof from the importing ship, or the agent of such importer, owner or consignee, shall make entry of such goods by delivering to the Officer in charge of the Custom House a bill of entry thereof in such form and containing such particulars as may from time to time be directed by the Chief Customs Authority.

Entry for home-consumption.

The particulars of such entry shall correspond with the particulars given of the same goods and packages in the manifest of the ship.

60. No claim for any abatement or refund of duty, on account of damage alleged to have been sustained before entry, shall be allowed in respect of any goods imported into any Customs Port, unless such claim be made in writing, and the damaged condition of such goods be ascertained and certified, on the first examination thereof, by a Custom House Appraiser, or by such other person as the Officer in charge of the Custom House appoints for the purpose.

Claims to abatement of duty on account of damage how to be treated.

61. Goods, the damaged condition of which is ascertained and certified to the satisfaction of the Officer in charge of the Custom House, may, after notice in the official Gazette, or some mercantile newspaper circulating in the place, be sold by public auction at such time (within thirty days from the date of entry), and at such place as the Officer in charge of the Custom House appoints.

Disposal of damaged goods and levy of duty thereon.

The duty on such goods shall be adjusted on the gross amount realized by their bonâ fide sale, as proved by the original account-sales, without any abatement or deduction, except of so much as represents the duties payable on the importation thereof.

On goods the value of which has been fixed by law for the purpose of levying duties thereon, no abatement of duties shall be allowed, unless they be deteriorated to the extent of one-fifth of their value.

No abatement of duty on account of damage shall be allowed on wines, spirits, or beer or on any other articles on which duties are levied on quantity and not on value.

62. All goods derelict, jetsam, flotsam, and wreck, brought or coming into any Customs Port shall at all times be subject to the same duties to which goods of the like kind are subject on importation at such Port, unless it be shown to the satisfaction of the Officer in charge of the Custom House, that such goods are the produce or manufacture of any country or place, by virtue whereof they are entitled to be admitted duty-free.

Goods derelict and wreck to be treated as foreign goods.

63. Any portion of an import cargo intended for another Port, or any ship's stores intended for the home voyage, may be declared by the Master of any vessel as not to be landed, and may thereupon, with the special sanction of the Officer in charge of the Custom House, be retained on board, and such cargo or ship's stores so retained shall not be subject to the payment of duty:

No duty on portion of import cargo intended for another Port, ship's stores, &c.

Provided that all such cargo and ship's stores shall be entered in the export manifest of the vessel as cargo or ship's stores not landed, and on which no duty has been paid.

Nothing in this section shall prevent the Officer in charge of the Custom House from sealing up, or otherwise securing, if he see reason for so doing, any portion of such cargo or ship's stores during the vessel's stay in Port.

CHAPTER VII.

WAREHOUSING.

64. Any person who has imported any dutiable goods into any warehousing Port may deposit such goods, without payment of duty for the first entry thereof, in any public or private warehouse approved, appointed, or licensed under this Act.

65. Every public warehouse appointed under section 13 shall be under the lock and key of a warehouse-keeper appointed by the Chief Officer of Customs.

Warehouse-keeper.

The warehouse-keeper shall, to the extent provided in sections 70 and 82 and not otherwise, be responsible for the charge of all goods deposited in his warehouse, and for their due reception therein and delivery therefrom.

Responsibility of keeper.

66. The Chief Customs Authority, or such Officer of Customs as such Authority from time to time appoints in this behalf, may from time to time determine in what division of any public warehouse, and in what manner, and on what terms, including rates of rent, any goods and what sort of goods may be deposited without payment of duty on the first entry thereof.

Chief Customs Authority to decide what goods may be deposited in public warehouse, and on what terms.

A table of the rates of rent so fixed for every public warehouse shall be placed in a conspicuous part thereof.

Table of rates of rent.

67. At any warehousing Port or place, the Chief Officer of Customs may license private warehouses for the reception of dutiable goods under this Act without payment of duty on the first entry thereof.

Power to license private warehouses.

Every license for a private warehouse so granted shall, unless it be otherwise provided in the license, be liable to be revoked after one month's notice by the Chief Officer of Customs.

Revocation of license.

68. Every application for a license for a private warehouse shall be in writing, and shall be drawn up in the Form marked A hereto annexed, or in such other form as is from time to time prescribed by the Chief Customs Authority, and shall be signed by the applicant.

Form of application for license.

69. Every application for the admission of goods into any public or private warehouse shall be in writing, and shall be drawn up in the Form marked B hereto annexed, or in such other form as is from time to time prescribed by the Chief Customs Authority, and shall be signed by the applicant.

Form of application for admission of goods into warehouse.

70. No goods shall be warehoused unless they have been assessed for Customs duty in like manner as goods intended to be passed for home-consumption.

No goods to be warehoused without payment of duty, unless assessed for Customs duty.

The warehouse-keeper in respect of goods lodged in a public warehouse, and the person who obtained the license in respect of goods lodged in a private warehouse, shall be answerable for the weight or gauge reported by the Custom House Officer who has assessed such goods, allowance being made, if necessary, for ullage and wastage as provided in section 84.

Public warehouse-keeper or license-holder of private warehouse to be answerable for weight or gauge.

Nothing in this section shall interfere with the re-assessment for duty of warehoused goods on their clearance for home-consumption, should an alteration of any duty or of any valuation for duty render such re-assessment requisite with reference to the provisions of section 31.

Saving of re-assessment of warehoused goods on clearance for home-consumption.

71. When an application has been made for the warehousing of any goods under this Act, and when such goods have been assessed for duty as directed in section 70, the importer, owner, or consignee, or his agent shall execute a bond for the amount of such duty in the Form marked C hereto annexed, or in such other form as is from time to time prescribed by the Chief Customs Authority.

Bond under what circumstances to be taken. Form and conditions of bond.

Every such bond shall relate to the duties chargeable on the cargo or portion of the cargo of one vessel only.

72. Every bond shall be for twice the amount of duty assessed on the goods to which it relates, and shall stipulate for the payment, on demand, of any sum due on account of any such goods, together with interest on such sum from the date of demand, at such rate, not exceeding six per cent. per annum, as is fixed by the Chief Customs Authority.

Terms of bond to be executed.

Every person executing any such bond shall be bound thereby for the payment of all duties, interest, and charges claimable on account of the goods, and of penalties incurred for violation of the Customs law in respect to the same.

73. When any such bond has been executed, the goods to which such bond relates shall be allowed to remain in warehouse for a period not exceeding three years, without being liable to the demand of import duty.

Period for which goods may remain warehoused under bond.

74. When the provisions of sections 69, 70, 71 and 72 have been complied with in respect to any goods, such goods shall be forwarded in charge of an Officer of Customs to the warehouse in which they are to be deposited.

Procedure in respect of goods to be warehoused.

There shall be sent with the goods a pass in which the name of the importing vessel and of the bonder, the marks, numbers, and contents of each package, and the warehouse or place in the Custom House wherein they are to be deposited, shall be specified.

On receipt of the goods into the warehouse, the correctness of the pass, if it be correct, shall be duly certified by the proper officer, and the pass shall be returned to the Officer in charge of the Custom House, after which the warehousing of such goods shall be deemed to have been completed.

75. No package, butt, cask, or hogshead shall be admitted into any public or private warehouse, unless it bear the marks and numbers specified in the pass for its admission.

76. All goods shall be warehoused in the packages, butts, casks, or hogsheads in which they have been imported, except as provided in section 81.

Goods how warehoused.

77. The Officer in charge of the Custom House may at any time issue his written order to cause any goods or packages lodged in any public or private warehouse to be opened, weighed, or otherwise examined as he directs; and after any goods have been so opened or examined, may cause the same to be sealed or marked in such manner as he thinks fit.

Power to cause packages lodged in warehouse to be opened and examined.

When any goods have been so sealed and marked after examination, they shall not be again opened without permission from the Officer in charge of the Custom House; and when any such goods are opened with the permission of such Officer, the packages shall, if it seems fit to such Officer, again be sealed or marked as before.

78. The Officer in charge of the Custom House, or any Officer deputed by him for the purpose, shall have access to any private warehouse licensed under this Act.

Access of customs officer to private warehouse.

79. Every bond executed for duty chargeable on goods deposited in any private warehouse shall become due and may be put in suit for the levy of such duties and other demands of Customs after seven days have passed from the date on which the Officer in charge of the Custom House has given notice that the license for such warehouse is withdrawn.

When bond for duty on goods in private warehouse may be sued on.

80. Any importer, owner, or consignee of goods lodged in a public or private warehouse under this Act, or the agent of any such importer, owner, or consignee shall, at any time within the hours of business, have access to his goods in presence of an Officer of Customs; and an Officer of Customs shall be deputed to accompany any such person upon application for the purpose being made in writing to the Officer in charge of the Custom House.

Access of owners to warehoused goods.

When an Officer of Customs is deputed as above, the person making the application shall, if required so to do, pay into the hands of the Officer in charge of the Custom House a sum sufficient to meet the expense of employing a special Officer for this purpose, whenever the Officer in charge of the Custom House finds it expedient to employ such special Officer.

81. With the sanction of the Officer in charge of the Custom House, and after such notice given, and under such rules and conditions as the Chief Customs Authority from time to time prescribes, it shall be lawful for any importer, owner, or consignee of goods, or his agent, either before or after warehousing,

Goods in warehouse may be sorted, repacked, &c., by owner, &c.

(a) to sort, separate, pack, and repack any goods, and to make such alterations therein as may be necessary for the preservation, sale, shipment, or disposal thereof (such goods to be repacked in the packages in which they were imported, or in such other packages as the Officer in charge of the Custom House permits);

(b) to fill up any casks of wine, spirits, or beer from any casks of the same secured in the same warehouse;

(c) to mix any wines of the same sort, erasing from the cask all import-brands, unless the whole of the wine so mixed be of the same brand;

(d) to take such samples of goods as may be allowed by the Officer in charge of the Custom House, with or without entry, and with or without payment of duty, except as the same may eventually become payable on a deficiency of the original quantity;

and after such goods have been so separated and repacked in proper or approved packages, the Officer in charge of the Custom House may, at the request of the importer, owner, or consignee of such goods, or his agent, cause or permit any refuse, damaged, or surplus goods remaining after such separation or repacking (or, at the like request, any goods which may not be worth the duty) to be destroyed, and may remit the duty payable thereon.

Compensation for loss or injury not admissible, except in case of proved wilful neglect, &c.

82. No importer, owner, or consignee of goods shall be entitled to claim from the Officer in charge of the Custom House, or from any keeper of a public warehouse, compensation for any loss or injury occurring to such goods while they are being passed into or out of such warehouse, or while they remain therein, unless it be proved that such loss or injury was occasioned by the wilful act or neglect of the warehouse-keeper or of an Officer of Customs.

Power to remit duties on warehoused goods lost or destroyed;

83. If any goods warehoused or entered to be warehoused, or entered to be delivered from a warehouse, are lost or destroyed by unavoidable accident or delay either on board of any vessel, or in landing, or during receipt into the warehouse, or in the warehouse, the Chief Customs Authority may remit the duties due thereon, or return them if paid:

Provided that, if any goods be so destroyed in a private warehouse, notice thereof be given to the Officer in charge of the Custom House within forty-eight hours after the discovery of such destruction.

and if goods are damaged, duty to be levied on actual value.

If goods lodged in a warehouse receive damage through unavoidable accident, they shall be reassessed for duty according to their actual value, and a new bond for the same shall be executed for the unexpired term of warehousing.

Import duty to be on quantity or value registered at time of importation.

84. The import duty on all goods shall be settled on the quantity or value thereof, as the case may be, registered at the time of importation, without any deduction whatever:

Proviso as to wines, spirits, beer or salt.

Provided that, if it appear, at the time of clearing any wines, spirits, beer or salt from any warehouse, that a deficiency exists, an allowance (on account of ullage and wastage) shall be made in adjusting the duties thereon, to an extent not exceeding the rates specified below, or in such table as may from time to time be prescribed in this behalf by the Local Government and notified in the official Gazette:

Rates of ullage or wastage in respect to Wines, Spirits, and Beer in cask.

For any time not exceeding	6 months	... 2½ per cent.
Exceeding 6 months and not exceeding	12 ,,	... 5 ,,
Exceeding 12 months and not exceeding	18 ,,	... 7½ ,,
Exceeding 18 months and not exceeding	2 years	... 10 ,,
Exceeding 2 years and not exceeding	3 ,,	... 12½ ,,

When Salt is warehoused in a Government Gola or Store-house under charge of a Government Officer, duty of Customs shall be chargeable only on the amount actually cleared.

The rate of wastage to be allowed in adjusting the duties on Salt warehoused in a private Gola or Store-house shall be prescribed from time to time by the Local Government and notified in the official Gazette.

Allowance for ullage or wastage in case of wines, &c., lodged in private warehouse.

85. When any Wines, Spirits, Beer or Salt lodged in a private warehouse are found to be deficient at the time of the delivery therefrom, and if such deficiency is proved to be due solely to ullage or wastage, the Chief Customs Authority may direct, in respect to any such article and for the purposes of this section, that allowance be made in any special case for a rate of ullage or wastage exceeding that contemplated in section 84.

Goods not to be removed from warehouse, except after application to Officer in charge of Custom House.

86. No goods shall be removed from any warehouse, except after application to the Officer in charge of the Custom House for permission to pass the goods for exportation by sea to some Foreign Port or place; or for home-consumption, in like manner as is prescribed by section 59 for goods entered for home-consumption on the landing thereof;

or for removal to another warehouse, as provided in sections 93, 94, 95 and 96.

Form of application for removal of goods.

87. Application to remove goods from any warehouse shall be made in the Form marked D hereto annexed, or in such other form as the Chief Customs Authority, from time to time prescribes.

Twenty-four hours' notice to be given.

Such application shall ordinarily be made to the Officer in charge of the Custom House twenty-four hours before it is intended so to remove such goods.

Immediate payment of duty on goods improperly taken out of warehouse.

88. If any goods are taken out of any warehouse otherwise than as is provided in this Act, the bonder shall forthwith pay the duties due upon such goods.

Expenses of carriage, packing, &c., to be borne by owners.

89. The expenses of carriage, packing, and stowage of goods on their reception into or removal from a warehouse shall, if paid by the Officer in charge of the Custom House or by the warehouse-keeper, be chargeable on the goods, and be defrayed by the importer, owner, or consignee, in like manner as the duties of Customs.

Payment of rent and warehouse dues.

90. If goods be lodged in a public warehouse, the importer, owner, or consignee shall further pay monthly, on receiving a bill or written demand for the same from the warehouse-keeper, the rent and warehouse dues.

If any such bill for rent or warehouse dues be not discharged within ten days from the date of presentation, the Officer in charge of the Custom House may, in liquidation of such demand (any transfer or assignment of the goods notwithstanding), cause to be sold by public auction after due notice in the official Gazette such sufficient portion of the goods as he may select.

In case of failure, goods may be sold, &c.

Out of the proceeds of such sale the Officer in charge of the Custom House shall first satisfy the demand for the liquidation of which the sale was ordered, and shall then pay over the surplus, if any, to the importer, owner, or consignee:

Disposal of proceeds.

Provided that application for the same be made within one year from the sale of the goods, or that good reason be shown why such application was not so made.

On goods being removed otherwise than for export, &c., full duty to be paid.

91. If any goods warehoused as provided in this Act are removed or taken from the warehouse otherwise than for removal to another warehouse, as provided in sections 93, 94, 95 and 96, or for exportation by sea to some Foreign Port or place; or if any goods have not been cleared from the warehouse and so exported at the expiration of the time during which such goods are permitted by this Act to remain in warehouse, the Officer in charge of the Custom House shall thereupon demand the full amount of import duty which is chargeable on account of such goods, together with all charges or penalties due on account of them.

But if any goods so warehoused are before the expiration of the time last mentioned removed or taken from the warehouse for removal to another warehouse as provided in sections 93 to 96 inclusive, or for exportation by sea to some Foreign Port or place, no duty shall be chargeable.

Procedure on failure to pay duty or penalty.

92. If any importer, owner, or consignee fails to pay any duty or penalty that falls due on account of goods warehoused under this Act, the Officer in charge of the Custom House may either proceed upon the bond executed by such importer, owner, or consignee, or may detain such portion as to him seems fit of the warehoused goods on account of which the duty or penalty is demanded, to be detained in satisfaction thereof; and if the demand be not discharged within ten days from the date of such detention (due notice thereof being given to the importer, owner, or consignee), the goods so detained shall be liable to be sold by public auction in satisfaction of the demand, after due notice in the official Gazette.

The proceeds of any sale so made of goods so detained shall be written off upon the bond in discharge thereof to the amount received, less the charges of the sale; and if any surplus be obtained from such sale, beyond the amount of the demand, such surplus shall be paid over to the importer, owner or consignee of the goods:

Provided that application for the same be made within one year from the sale, or that good reason be shown why such application was not so made.

No transfer or assignment of goods shall prevent the Officer in charge of the Custom House from proceeding against such goods in the manner above provided, for any demand of Customs duties or penalty claimed thereon.

Power to remove goods from one warehouse to another.

93. Any importer, owner, or consignee of goods warehoused under this Act, or any agent of such importer, owner, or consignee may, with the permission of the Chief Officer of Customs, and on such conditions and after giving such security as the Chief Customs Authority directs, remove goods from one public or private warehouse to another warehouse in the same Port.

When any person desires so to remove any goods, he shall make application in the Form marked E hereto annexed, or in such other form as the Chief Customs Authority from time to time prescribes.

Bonded goods may be removed from one Port to another.

94. Goods warehoused under this Act at any warehousing Port may from time to time be removed by sea or by inland carriage, in order to be re-warehoused at any other warehousing Port.

When any person desires so to remove any goods, he shall apply to the Chief Officer of Customs, stating the particulars of the goods to be removed, and the name of the Port or place to which it is intended that they shall be removed, together with such other information, and in such manner and form, as the Chief Customs Authority from time to time prescribes.

Procedure.

Officers at Port of removal to transmit account of goods to Officers at Port of destination.

95. When permission is granted for the removal of any goods from one warehousing Port or place to another, under section 94, an account containing the particulars thereof shall be transmitted by the proper Officer of the Port or place of removal to the proper Officer of the Port or place of destination;

Owner to execute bond for due arrival, &c.

and the person requiring the removal shall enter into a bond, with one sufficient surety, in a sum equal at least to the duty chargeable on such goods, for the due arrival and warehousing thereof at the Port or place of destination within such time as the Chief Customs Authority directs.

Such bond may be taken by the proper Officer either of the Port or place of removal, or of the Port or place of destination, as best suits the residence or convenience of the persons interested in such removal.

If such bond is taken at the Port or place of destination, a certificate thereof, signed by the proper Officer of such Port or place shall, at the time of the entering of such goods, be produced to the proper Officer of the Port or place of removal, and such bond shall not be discharged unless such goods are produced to the proper Officer and duly re-warehoused at the Port or place of destination within the time allowed for such removal, or are otherwise accounted for to the satisfaction of such Officer; nor until the full duties due upon any deficiency of such goods, not so accounted for, have been paid.

96. The Chief Customs Authority may permit any person desirous of removing warehoused goods to enter into a general bond, with such sureties, in such amount, and under such conditions as the Chief Customs Authority approves, for the removal from time to time of any goods from one warehouse to another, either in the same or in a different Port or place, and for the due arrival and re-warehousing of such goods at the Port or place of destination within such time as the Chief Customs Authority directs.

Remover may enter into a general bond.

97. Upon the arrival of warehoused goods at the Port or place of destination, they shall be entered and warehoused in like manner as goods are entered and warehoused on the first importation thereof, and under the laws and rules, in so far as such laws and rules can be made applicable, which regulate the entry and warehousing of such last mentioned goods.

Goods on arrival at Port of destination to be subject to same laws as goods on first importation.

98. When any goods warehoused as provided in this Act are removed from any public or private warehouse, the Officer in charge of the Custom House shall cause such removal to be noted on the back of the bond.

Every note so made shall specify the quantity and description of goods removed, the purposes for which they have been removed, the date of removal, the name of the person removing them, the number and date of the export-pass under which they have been taken away, if removed for exportation by sea, or of the import-pass or order if removed for home-consumption, and the amount of duty (if any) paid.

Removal of goods to be noted on the bond, with particulars.

99. A register shall be kept of all bonds entered into for Customs duties on goods warehoused as provided in this Act, and entry shall be made in such register of all particulars specified in section 98.

A register of bonds to be kept.

When the register shows that the entire quantity of the goods covered by any bond has been withdrawn from warehouse, either owing to the goods being passed for home-consumption on the payment of duties, or owing to their re-exportation by sea to some Foreign Port or place, and when all charges and penalties which have been incurred on account of such goods have been paid, the Officer in charge of the Custom House shall cancel such bond as discharged in full, and deliver it, so cancelled, to the person who has executed or who is authorized to receive it.

When bonds are to be cancelled and returned to obligors.

100. In no case shall the settlement of duty on warehoused goods be delayed beyond three years from the date of the first warehousing of the goods in British India.

Duty on warehoused goods to be settled within three years.

101. As often as any goods are lodged in a public warehouse or a licensed private warehouse, the warehouse-keeper, or, in the case of the Bengal Bonded Warehouse Association, the Secretary of the said Association, shall deliver a warrant signed by him as such to the person lodging the goods.

Warrant to be given every time goods are warehoused.

Such warrant shall be in the Form I hereto annexed, and shall be transferable by endorsement; and the endorsee shall be entitled to receive the goods specified in such warrant on the same terms as those on which the person who originally lodged the goods would have been entitled to receive the same.

Form of warrant.

102. All the provisions of this Act, relating to private warehouses, shall be applicable to the warehouses wherein the Bengal Bonded Warehouse Association receives bonded goods.

Provisions relating to private warehouses applicable to Bengal Bonded Warehouse Association.

CHAPTER VIII.

TRANSHIPMENT.

103. When goods other than salt or opium are brought in any vessel to any Port in British India, and such goods have been specially and distinctly manifested or declared at the time of import as for transhipment to any other British Indian or Foreign Port, and application is made for leave to tranship such goods, such transhipment shall be allowed without the payment of duty at the Port of transhipment, subject to such rules as may from time to time be prescribed by the Local Government:

When goods brought into one Indian Port, but intended for another Indian or Foreign Port, may be transhipped without payment of duty.

Provided that where the goods so transhipped are to be removed to some other Port in British India, the person requiring such transhipment shall enter into a bond, with such security as may be required of him, in a sum equal at least to the duty chargeable on such goods, for the due arrival and entry thereof at the Port of destination within such time as the Chief Officer of Customs of the Port of transhipment directs.

Such goods shall thereupon be treated in all respects as warehoused goods, removed under the provisions of sections 94 and 95.

An Officer of Customs shall, in every case, be deputed to superintend the removal of such goods from vessel to vessel.

104. A transhipment fee on each bale or package of goods transhipped under section 103 shall be levied at such rates and under such regulations as may from time to time be prescribed by the Local Government.

Levy of transhipment fee.

All such rates and regulations shall be published in the local official Gazette.

105. All goods transhipped under section 103 for removal to a Port in British India shall on their arrival at such Port be entered and warehoused in like manner as goods are entered and warehoused on the first importation thereof and under the laws and rules, in so far as such laws and rules can be made applicable which regulate the entry and warehousing of such last mentioned goods.

Entry and warehousing on arrival of goods transhipped under section 103.

106. If two or more vessels belonging to the same owner be at any Port in British India at the same time, any articles of marine stores in use or ordinarily shipped for use on board may, at the discretion of the Officer in charge of the Custom House, be transhipped from one such vessel to any other such vessel without payment of import duty.

Transhipment of stores from one vessel to another of the same owner without payment of duty.

CHAPTER IX.

EXPORTATION.

107. No vessel shall be entitled to entry outwards, or to take on board any part of her export cargo, until a written application has been duly made to the Officer in charge of the Custom House by the Master of such vessel, or by his authorized agent; nor until an order has been given thereon by such Officer for such entry or shipment of cargo.

Permission for entry outwards to be obtained before export cargo is shipped.

Every application made under this section shall specify the name, tonnage, and nation of the vessel, the name of the Master, and the name of every place for which cargo is to be shipped.

108. A period of fifteen working days after the expiration of the period allowed for discharging import-cargo under section fifty, or such further period as the Officer in charge of the Custom House directs, shall be allowed for the shipment of export-cargo on board of every vessel not exceeding six hundred tons.

Period allowed for shipment of export-cargo.

One additional day shall in like manner be allowed for every fifty tons in excess of six hundred.

No charge shall be made for the services of a single Officer of Customs for such period of fifteen working days, or for the services of several such Officers for respective periods not exceeding in the aggregate fifteen working days.

If the period occupied in the shipment of export-cargo be in excess of that allowed, the vessel shall be charged with the expense of the Officer of Customs at a rate not exceeding five rupees per diem (Sundays and holidays excepted) for such excess period.

Consequence of exceeding same.

Due allowance shall in such case be made for any period during which a vessel, after the completion of the discharge of import-cargo and before commencing the shipment of export-cargo, shall be laid up by the withdrawal of the Officer of Customs upon application from the Master.

Allowance for period during which vessel is laid up.

109. No goods shall be shipped or water-borne to be shipped for exportation, until the exporter or his agent has filled in and delivered to the Officer in charge of the Custom House, or other proper Officer, a shipping bill of such goods in the Form marked F hereto annexed, or in such other form as may from time to time be prescribed by the Chief Customs Authority.

Exporter to deliver shipping bill before shipping any goods.

110. Before any warehoused goods or goods subject to duties of Excise, or goods entitled to drawback of Customs on exportation, or goods exportable only under particular rules or restrictions, are permitted to be exported, the exporter or his agent shall, if required so to do, give security by bond in such sum, not exceeding twice the duty leviable on such goods, as the Officer in charge of the Custom House directs, with one sufficient surety that such goods shall be duly shipped, exported, and landed at the place for which they are entered outwards, or shall be otherwise accounted for to the satisfaction of such Officer.

On entry outwards, bond to be given for shipping and landing.

111. When any goods are sent for the purpose of being shipped for exportation on board of any vessel, there shall be sent, with each boat-load or other separate despatch, a boat-note specifying the number of packages so sent and the marks and numbers or other description thereof.

Boat-note.

Each boat-note shall be signed by the proper Officer of Customs, and, if an Officer of Customs is on board of the vessel on which such goods are to be shipped, shall be delivered to such Officer.

If no such Officer be on board, every such boat-note shall be delivered to the Master of the vessel, or to an Officer of the vessel appointed by him to receive it.

112. No vessel, whether laden, partially laden, or in ballast, shall depart from any Port in British India until a port-clearance has been granted by the Officer in charge of the Custom House or other Officer duly authorized to grant the same.

No vessel to depart without a port-clearance.

Every application for port-clearance shall be made by the Master at least twenty-four hours before the intended departure of the vessel; and every Master of a vessel so applying for port-clearance shall answer to the proper Officer of Customs such questions touching her departure and destination as are demanded of him.

A certificate of departure without port-clearance purporting to be signed by the Chief Officer of Customs of the Port from which any vessel is stated to have so departed, shall be sufficient primâ facie proof of the fact so certified.

113. No Pilot shall take charge of any vessel proceeding to sea, unless the Master of such vessel produces a port-clearance.

No Pilot to take charge of any vessel proceeding to sea without production of port-clearance

114. The Master of every vessel intending to leave any Port in British India shall, at the time of applying for port-clearance, deliver to the Officer in charge of the Custom House, or other duly authorized Officer, a manifest in duplicate according to such form as may from time to time be prescribed by the Chief Customs Authority, containing a full and true specification of all goods to be exported in the vessel and signed by the Master;

Master on applying for port-clearance, to deliver manifest and certificates.

and shall also deliver to the Officer in charge of the Custom House, or other duly authorized Officer, such certificates as the Officer in charge of the Custom House, acting under the general instructions of such Chief Customs Authority, requires.

The Officer in charge of the Custom House, or other duly authorized Officer, when satisfied with the said certificates, and as to the correctness of the manifest, shall grant a port-clearance to the Master, and shall return at the same time to such Master one copy of the manifest duly countersigned by the proper Officer of Customs.

Nothing in this section shall prevent the Officer in charge of the Custom House from granting (subject to such rules as the Chief Customs Authority may from time to time prescribe) a port-clearance to the Master when the Ship's Agent furnishes sufficient security for duly delivering, within three days from the date of grant, the manifest and certificates aforesaid.

Port-clearance may be refused, unless all documents are delivered and charges paid.

115. The Officer in charge of the Custom House may refuse port-clearance to any vessel until the required manifest and certificates are produced, and until all Port-dues and other charges and penalties due by such vessel, or by the Master thereof, are duly paid, or their payment secured by such guarantee, or by a deposit at such rate, as the Officer in charge of the Custom House directs.

Additional charge on goods passed for shipment after port-clearance has been granted.

116. When goods are passed through the Custom House for shipment on an application presented after port-clearance has been granted, two per cent. upon the market-value of any such goods not liable to duty, or liable to specific duties according to weight or quantity only, or to duty according to value, and upon the tariff value of goods so passed which are liable to duties on fixed tariff valuations, shall in every case be levied, in addition to any duty to which such goods are ordinarily liable:

Nothing in this section shall apply to any shipment of Treasure or Opium.

Return of duty on goods not shipped or re-landed.

117. Upon an application being made to the Officer in charge of the Custom House, the duty levied upon goods not shipped, or upon goods shipped and afterwards re-landed, shall be returned to the person on whose behalf such duty was paid:

Proviso.

Provided that no such refund shall be allowed unless application therefor has been made before the expiration of three clear working days after the vessel on which such goods were intended to be shipped, or from which they were re-landed, has left the Port.

Goods re-landed from a vessel returning to Port or putting into another Port.

118. If any vessel, after having cleared from any Customs Port shall, without having discharged her cargo, return to such Port, or put into any other Customs Port, any owner or shipper of cargo in such vessel, or the agent of any such owner or shipper, if he desires to land the same or any portion thereof for re-export, may make application to the Officer in charge of the Custom House.

Such Officer, if he grant the application, shall thereupon send an Officer of Customs to watch the vessel, and to take charge of the cargo during such re-landing or removal from on board.

Goods on board of such vessel shall not be allowed to be transhipped or re-exported free of duty by reason of the previous settlement of duty at the time of first export, unless such goods are lodged and remain under charge of an Officer of Customs, in a place appointed by the Officer in charge of the Custom House, until the time of re-export.

All charges attending such custody shall be borne by the exporter.

Vessel returning to Port may enter and land goods under Import-rules.

119. In either of the cases mentioned in section 118, the Master of the vessel, or any owner or shipper of cargo therein, may enter such vessel and land such cargo under the rules for the importation of goods.

In every such case the export duty shall be refunded to, and the amount paid in drawback shall be reclaimed from, such owner or shipper.

Provisions, stores, &c., for consumption on vessels proceeding to Foreign Ports may be exported duty free on certain conditions.

120. Provisions and other such ship's stores warehoused at the time of importation may be exported without payment of duty for use and consumption on board of any vessel proceeding directly to a Foreign port or place, whether such port or place be or be not the port or place of ultimate destination.

Articles of Indian produce or manufacture including rum, required for use on board of any vessel proceeding to any Foreign Port or place, may also be exported free of duty, whether of Customs or Excise, in such quantities as the Officer in charge of the Custom House determines with reference to the tonnage of the vessel, the numbers of the crew and passengers, and the length of the voyage on which the vessel is about to depart:

Provided that no such rum shall be shipped as stores free of duty on any vessel not going to a Foreign Port or place, or going on a voyage of less than thirty days' probable duration.

CHAPTER X.

DRAWBACK.

Amount of drawback allowable on re-export.

121. Upon the re-export by sea to any Foreign Port or place of any goods, except Salt or Opium, capable of being easily identified, imported by Sea into British India from any Foreign Port or place, and upon which duties of Customs have been paid on importation, three-fourths of such duty shall be repaid as drawback:

Conditions for grant of drawback.

Provided that, in every such case, the goods be identified to the satisfaction of the Officer in charge of the Custom House, and that the re-export be made within two years from the date of importation, as shown by the Custom House Register, or within such extended term as the Chief Customs Authority, on sufficient cause for such extension being shown, in any case determines.

The Governor General in Council may from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, declare what goods shall for the purpose of this section be deemed to be capable of being easily identified.

No repayment shall be made under this section on account of any article entered in the export manifest of the vessel as ship's stores.

Time to claim and demand payment of drawback.

122. No payment of drawback shall be made upon any goods re-exported from any port in British India, unless the claim to receive such drawback be made and established at the time of re-export, nor unless payment be demanded within one year from the date of entry for shipment.

No such payment of drawback shall be made until the vessel carrying the goods has put out to sea.

Drawback not allowed on goods of value less than amount claimed.

123. No drawback shall be allowed upon the exportation of any goods entered for drawback, which are of less value than the amount of the drawback claimed.

Drawback on exportation of spirit.

124. A drawback of the whole of the duties paid under Act No. XXIII of 1860 (to amend Act XXI of 1856, to consolidate and amend the law relating to the Abkárí Revenue in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal), section one, on spirit manufactured at distilleries worked according to the English method and exported by sea in manner prescribed by Act No. XXI of 1856 (to consolidate and amend the law relating to the Abkárí Revenue in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal) to any Foreign Port shall be allowed at the port of exportation:

Provided that the exportation be made within one year from the date of the payment of duty under the said Act No. XXIII of 1860, and that the spirit, when brought to the Custom House, be accompanied by the pass in which such payment is certified.

No drawback on goods not entered in Export manifest.

125. No drawback shall be allowed upon goods not included in the Export manifest.

No drawback allowed except on goods exported out of India.

126. No drawback shall be allowed upon goods exported from one Customs Port to another.

But drawback may be allowed upon goods which, after having been charged with duty at one Customs Port and thence exported to another, are thence again re-exported by sea to a Foreign Port or place:

Proviso.

Provided that, in every such case, the goods be identified to the satisfaction of the Officer in charge of the Custom House at the Port of final exportation, and that such final exportation be made within three years from the date of first importation into British India.

Declaration to be made by parties claiming drawback.

127. Every person, or his duly authorized agent, claiming drawback on any goods duly exported, shall make and subscribe a declaration that such goods have been actually exported, and have not been re-landed and are not intended to be re-landed at any Customs Port; and that such person was at the time of entry and shipment, and continues to be, entitled to drawback thereon.

Drawback of duties on wine allowed for Officers of the Navy.

128. A drawback of the whole of the duties of Customs shall be allowed for wine intended for the consumption of any Officer of Her Majesty's Navy, on board of any of Her Majesty's ships in actual service, unless such wine has been warehoused without payment of duty on the first entry thereof.

The quantity of wine on which drawback may be so allowed in any one year for the use of any such Officer shall not exceed the proportions specified below; that is to say—

	Gals.
For every Admiral ...	1,260
Vice-Admiral	1,050
Rear-Admiral	840
Captain of 1st and 2nd rate ...	630
Captain of 3rd, 4th, and 5th rate	420
Captain of an inferior rate ...	210
Lieutenant or other Commanding Officer, and for every Marine Officer, Master, Purser, or Surgeon ...	105

Persons entering such wine for drawback to declare name and rank of Officer claiming same.

129. Every person clearing and claiming drawback for wine, as provided in section 128, shall state in the entry the name of the Officer for whose use such wine is intended, and of the ship in which he serves, as well as the place and date of the last supply for which drawback was allowed.

All such wine shall be delivered into the charge of the proper Officers of Customs at the Port of shipment, to be shipped under their care; and when the Officer commanding the ship has certified the receipt of such wine into his charge, and the proper Officer of Customs has certified the shipment, the drawback shall be paid to the person entitled to receive the same.

Transfer of wine from one Naval Officer to another, &c.

130. The Officer in charge of the Custom House may permit the transfer of any such wine from one Naval Officer to another Naval Officer on board of the same, or of any other such ship, as part of his authorized proportion;

or may permit the transhipment of any such Wine from one ship to another for the use of the same Naval Officer;

or the re-landing and warehousing of any such Wine for future re-shipment.

The Officer in charge of the Custom House may also receive back the duties for any such wine, and allow the same to be cleared for home-consumption.

Provisions and stores for Her Majesty's Navy exempt from duty.

131. Provisions and stores for the use of Her Majesty's Navy shall, in like manner, be passed free of duty; and where duties have been paid on such provisions and stores, drawback of such duties, whether of Customs or Excise, shall be allowed on receipt of application in writing from the Officer commanding the ship for which they are intended, or from some other Officer duly authorized to make such application.

CHAPTER XI.

COASTING TRADE.

Power to regulate carriage of goods coastwise.

132. The Governor General in Council, or the Local Government acting under the general instructions of the Governor General in Council, may from time to time determine, by rules to be published in the official Gazette, on what conditions goods may be carried in a coasting vessel, though shipped at a Foreign Port in India to be so carried; also in what cases goods may be shipped in a coasting vessel before all goods brought in such vessel from a Foreign Port or place have been unladen.

Rules respecting cargo-book to be kept by Masters of coasting vessels.

133. The Master of every coasting vessel, which is square-rigged or propelled by steam, shall keep, or cause to be kept, a cargo-book stating the name of the Master, the vessel, the Port to which she belongs, and the Port to which on each voyage she is bound.

At every Port of lading such Master shall enter, or cause to be entered, in such book the name of such Port, and an account of all goods there taken on board of such vessel, with a description of the packages, and the quantities and descriptions of the goods contained therein or stowed loose, and the names of the respective shippers and consignees, in so far as such particulars are known to him.

At every Port of discharge of any such goods, such Master shall enter, or cause to be entered, in such book the respective days on which such goods or any of them are delivered out of such vessel.

The respective times of departure from every Port of lading, and of arrival at every Port of discharge, shall in like manner be duly entered.

Every such Master shall, on demand, produce his cargo-book for the inspection of any Officer of Customs, and such Officer shall be at liberty to make any note or remark therein.

Power to prescribe rules for Masters of other coasting vessels.

134. The Governor General in Council or the Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, prescribe rules for the guidance of the Masters of all other coasting vessels, as to the matters mentioned in the last preceding section.

Coasting vessels to deliver account and obtain port-clearance before leaving Port of lading.

135. Before any coasting vessel departs from the Port of lading, an account, with a duplicate thereof, in the Form marked G hereto annexed, or in such other form as may from time to time be prescribed by the Chief Customs Authority, shall be filled in and signed by the Master and delivered to the Officer in charge of the Custom House.

Such Officer shall retain the duplicate and return the original account dated and signed by him; and such account shall be the clearance of the vessel for the voyage and the pass for the goods expressed therein.

Power to refuse port-clearance in certain cases.

136. The Officer in charge of the Custom House may, for sufficient reason, refuse port-clearance to any vessel declared to be bound to any Port in British India, unless the owner, agent, Master gives a bond with sufficient security for the production to the Officer in charge of the Custom House of a certificate from an Officer of the Port to which such vessel is said to be bound, of her arrival at such Port within a reasonable time to be prescribed in each case by the Officer requiring the bond.

Grant and revocation of general pass.

137. The Chief Customs Authority may, on cause being shown, permit a general pass to be given, on any conditions which may be deemed expedient, for the lading and clearance, and for the entry and unlading, of any coasting steam-vessel at any Ports of despatch or destination, or at any intermediate Ports at which she touches for the purpose of receiving goods or passengers.

Any such general pass may be revoked by notice in writing under the hand of the proper Officer delivered to the Master or to the owner of such steam-vessel, or to any of the crew on board.

Time for delivery of pass.

138. Within twenty-four hours after the arrival of any coasting vessel at the Port of discharge, and before any goods are unladen therefrom, the pass, with the name of the place or wharf where the cargo is to be discharged noted thereon, shall be delivered to an Officer of the Port, who shall note thereon the date of delivery.

Goods on coasting vessel, if excisable, not to be unladen without permission.

139. If any of the goods on board of any coasting vessel be subject to any duty of Excise, they shall not be unladen without the permission of the proper Officer of Excise.

Power to board and examine any coasting vessel.

140. Any duly empowered Officer of Customs may go on board of any coasting vessel in any Port or place in British India, and may at any period of a voyage search any such vessel and examine all goods on board and all goods then lading or unlading, and may demand the production of any document which ought to be on board of any such vessel.

The Officer in charge of the Custom House may further require that any such document belonging to any coasting vessel then in Port shall be brought to him for inspection.

CHAPTER XII.

CARGO BOATS.

Power to prohibit plying of unlicensed cargo-boats.

141. The Local Government may declare with regard to any Port, by notification in the official Gazette, that after a stated date no boat not duly licensed and registered will be allowed to ply as a cargo-boat for the landing and shipping of merchandize within the limits of such Port.

Issue of licenses.

142. The Chief Officer of Customs of any Port with regard to which a notification has been issued under section 141 may issue licenses for and make registration of cargo-boats, under such rules and on payment of such fees as the Local Government from time to time prescribes.

Every table of fees prescribed under this section shall be published in the [illegible] Gazette.

CHAPTER XIII.

SPIRITS.

Rules for removal of spirits from distillery without payment of duty, and for exportation thereof.

143. The Chief Customs Authority may from time to time prescribe the conditions on which and the rules under which spirits manufactured in British India after the English method may be removed from any licensed distillery for exportation without payment of duty of Excise.

The person so removing any such spirits shall execute to the Government a bond with one or more sureties, in the Form marked H hereto annexed, or in such other form as the said Chief Customs Authority from time to time prescribes, for the payment of duty on such portion of the said spirits as is not exported within four months from the date of the bond, and upon any portion which is exported to any other Port in British India not being a Customs Port, but proof of the landing whereof and of payment of duty of Customs thereon at the Port of destination is not furnished to the satisfaction of the proper Officer within six months from the date of the bond.

The Chief Officer of Customs of the Port of exportation may extend for a further term not exceeding four months, on sufficient cause shown, the period allowed for the exportation of any such spirits, or for the production of such proof that duty has been paid.

Spirits for export to be taken direct from distillery to Custom House under pass.

144. Spirits for exportation under bond for the duty of Excise shall be taken from the distillery direct to the Custom House, under passes to be granted for that purpose by the Officers of Excise.

Rules to be observed in exportation of spirits.

145. Spirits brought to the Custom House for exportation by sea shall, previous to shipment, be gauged and proved by an Officer of Customs.

Any drawback to be allowed for spirits on which duty has been paid shall be regulated by the strength and quantity of such spirits as ascertained by such proof and gauge; and the quantity of spirits for which credit is to be given in the settlement of any bond shall be determined in the same manner.

Duty to be recovered on any deficiency in spirits under bond.

146. Duty shall be recoverable upon any difference between the quantity of spirits passed from a distillery and the quantity ascertained by gauge and proof at the Custom House, less an allowance for ullage and wastage at such rates as are from time to time prescribed by the Local Government and notified in the official Gazette.

Drawback of Excise duty on spirits manufactured after English method.

147. A drawback of duty of Excise paid on spirits manufactured in British India after the English method, and exported to any Foreign Port or place under the provisions of section 110, shall be allowed by the Officer in charge of the Custom House at the Port of exportation:

Provided that the exportation be made within one year from the date of payment of such duty of Excise, and that the spirits, when brought to the Custom House, be accompanied by the pass in which such payment is certified.

No drawback allowed on spirits exported to Indian Ports not being Customs Ports, but such spirits may be exported under bond.

148. No drawback shall be allowed on spirits exported from any Customs Port in British India to any other Customs Port.

But it shall be lawful, on the conditions and under the rules from time to time prescribed under section 143, to export from any such Port to any other such Port, under bond for the duty of excise, spirits manufactured in British India after the English method.

Every such bond shall be cancelled on the production, by the exporter or his agent, of a certificate from the Officer in charge of the Custom House at the Port of importation, testifying to the due entry at such Port of the full quantity of such spirits so exported, less an allowance for ullage and wastage at the rates from time to time prescribed by the Local Government and notified in the official Gazette.

Duty on spirits exported from one Indian Port to another, how to be adjusted.

149. Spirits manufactured in British India after the English method and exported under bond for the duty of Excise from any Port in British India to any other Port in British India not being a Customs Port, shall be chargeable at the Port of destination with duties of Customs at the ordinary rate fixed for duties on spirits of the like kind and strength imported into such Port.

Rum-shrub, &c., how to be charged with duty.

150. Rum-shrub, cordial, and other such liquor prepared in a licensed distillery under supervision of the Surveyor or Officer in charge of the distillery shall be charged with duty according to the quantity of spirit used in its preparation as ascertained by such Surveyor or Officer.

May be exported under same rules as spirits.

The provisions of this Act respecting spirits manufactured after the English method, except such as relate to gauge and proof, shall apply to such liquor.

When any such liquor is removed for exportation without payment of duty of Excise, the bond to be executed by the person removing it shall be in the Form marked H hereto annexed, or in such other form as may from time to time be prescribed by the Chief Customs Authority of the Presidency or place.

Spirits intended for exportation may be removed for local consumption.

151. Spirits brought to the Custom House for exportation under bond for the duty of Excise may, on payment of such duty, be removed for local consumption under passes to be granted for that purpose by the Officers of Excise.

Credit for every such payment shall be given on settlement of the bond to which it relates.

Conditions of drawback and remission of duty on spirits.

152. No drawback shall be allowed for any spirits on which duty has been paid, nor shall the duty due on any spirits under bond be remitted, unless the spirits are shipped from the Custom House, and in a vessel whereon an Officer of Customs has been appointed to superintend the receipt of export-cargo.

Re-land of spirits shipped.

Spirits shipped for exportation shall not be re-landed without a special pass from an Officer of Excise, in addition to the usual order of the Officer in charge of the Custom House.

153. The Local Government may from time to time prescribe rules for ascertaining and determining what spirit imported into British India shall be deemed to have been effectually and permanently rendered unfit for human consumption, so as to be subject only to an ad valorem duty of ten per cent. or other duty for the time being in force, and for causing such spirit, to be so rendered, if necessary, by their own officers, before the duty of customs leviable thereon is levied, and at the expense of the person importing it.

Power to make rules for ascertaining that imported spirit has been rendered unfit for human consumption.

Such rules, on being published in the local official Gazette, shall have the force of law.

154. In the absence of any such rules, or if any dispute arises as to their applicability, the Executive Officer of highest rank in the Department of Customs in the Port shall decide what spirit is subject only to the said ad valorem duty, and such decision shall be final.

Decision where no rules or their applicability disputed.

CHAPTER XIV.

CUSTOM-HOUSE AGENTS.

155. No person shall act in any Custom House as an agent for the transaction of any business relating to the entrance or clearance of any vessel, goods, or baggage, unless authorized so to do by the Officer in charge of the Custom House.

Agents must be duly authorized.

Such Officer may require any person so authorized, to give a bond with sufficient securities, in any sum not exceeding five thousand rupees, for his faithful behaviour as regards the Custom House regulations and Officers.

Such Officer may, in case of misbehaviour, suspend or withdraw such authorization, but an appeal against every such suspension or withdrawal shall lie to the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority, whose decision thereon shall be final.

156. When any person makes application to any officer of Customs to transact any business on behalf of any other person, such officer may require the applicant to produce a written authority from the person on whose behalf such business is to be transacted, and in default of the production of such authority may refuse to transact such business.

Agent to produce authority if required.

The clerk or servant or known agent of any person or of any mercantile firm may transact business at the Custom House, on account of such person or firm, if such person or a member of such firm identifies to the Officer in charge of the Custom House the person so empowered to transact his or their business, and deposits with such officer a written authority duly signed, empowering such officer to pay to such person all drawbacks, refunds and other monies for which he produces receipts.

CHAPTER XV.

DUPLICATE BILLS OF ENTRY.

157. Upon the entry or clearance of any goods for importation or exportation, the importer, exporter, owner, or consignee, or the agent of such importer, exporter, owner, or consignee, shall, if the Officer in charge of the Custom House so requires, deliver to such officer a duplicate of the bill of entry or shipping bill thereof.

Importer or exporter to deliver a duplicate of bill of entry or shipping bill, if required.

In such duplicate all sums and numbers may be expressed in figures.

CHAPTER XVI.

TAKING OF SAMPLES.

158. Any Officer in charge of a Custom House may, on the entry or clearance of any goods, or at any time while such goods are being passed through the Custom House, take samples of such goods for examination, or for ascertaining the value thereof on which duties are payable, or for any other necessary purpose.

Officer in charge of Custom House may take samples of goods.

Every such sample shall, if the owner so desire, and if it be possible, be restored to the owner; otherwise it shall be disposed of and accounted for to him as the Officer in charge of the Custom House directs.

CHAPTER XVII.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS.

159. The Governor General in Council may from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, fix for the purpose of levying duties, the value of any goods exported or imported by sea on which duties of Customs are thereby imposed.

Power to fix values of dutiable goods.

160. When duty or other Customs-dues or charges have been short-levied through inadvertence, error, or misconstruction on the part of the Officers of Customs,

Payment of duties short-levied or erroneously refunded.

or when duty, after having been levied, has been erroneously refunded,

the person chargeable with the duty or charge so short-levied, or to whom such refund has erroneously been made, shall pay the deficiency or repay the amount paid to him in excess, on demand being made within six months from the date of the first assessment or making of the refund;

and the Officers of Customs may refuse to pass any goods belonging to such person until the said deficiency or excess be paid or repaid.

161. No duty or other Customs-dues or charges which have been charged and paid, and of which, or of a portion of which, repayment is claimed in consequence of the same having been charged or paid under an erroneous construction of law or from other error, shall be returned, unless such claim is made within six months from the date of such payment.

No refund of charges erroneously levied or paid, unless application be made within six months.

162. The unshipping, carrying, shipping and landing of all goods, and the bringing of them to the proper place for examination or weighing, and the putting of them into and out of the scales, and the opening, unpacking, bulking, sorting, housing,

Importer and exporter to pay expense incidental to compliance with Custom House rules.

marking and numbering of goods, where such operations are necessary or permitted.

and the removing of goods to, and the placing of them in, the proper place or deposit, shall be performed by or at the expense of the importer, exporter, owner, or consignee of such goods.

163. No importer, exporter, owner, or consignee of goods shall be entitled to claim from any Officer of Customs compensation for any loss or injury occurring to such goods at any time while they remain or are lawfully detained in any Custom House, or on any Custom House wharf, or under charge any Officer of Customs, unless it be proved that such loss or injury was occasioned by the wilful act or neglect of an Officer of Customs.

No compensation for loss or injury except on proof of wilful neglect.

164. The Chief Customs Authority may from time to time fix the rate to be charged on goods left on any Custom House wharf or other authorized landing place, or part of the Custom House premises, for a period exceeding that prescribed by such Chief Customs Authority.

Rates of wharfage fees.

165. A duplicate of any certificate, manifest, bill, or other Custom House document may, on payment of a fee of not less than one rupee and not more than ten rupees, be furnished, at the discretion of the Officer in charge of the Custom House, if he is satisfied that no fraud has been committed or is intended.

Duplicates may be granted and amendments made on payment of fee.

Such Officer may also authorize any amendment to be made in any document, after it has been entered and recorded in the Custom House, upon payment of a like fee for every document so amended.

166. No Commissioner or Collector of Customs, or Officer of Customs whom a Commissioner or Collector of Customs deems it necessary to exempt on grounds of public duty, shall be compelled to serve on any jury or inquest.

Customs Officers may be exempted from service on any jury or inquest.

CHAPTER XVIII.

OFFENCES AND PENALTIES.

167. If any goods, the importation or exportation of which is for the time being prohibited or restricted, be imported into or exported from British India contrary to such prohibition or restriction;

Goods imported or exported contrary to prohibition liable to confiscation, and persons concerned to penalty.

or if any attempt be made so to import or export any such goods by the Port or otherwise;

or if any such goods be found in any package produced to any Officer of Customs as containing no such goods;

or if any such goods or any goods subject to a duty or restriction in respect of importation or exportation, be found either before or after landing or shipment to have been concealed in any manner on board of any vessel within the limits of any Port in British India;

or if any goods, the exportation of which is or shall be prohibited or restricted, be brought to any wharf in order to be put on board of any vessel for exportation contrary to such prohibition or restriction;

such goods, together with any goods which shall be found packed with or used in concealing them, shall be liable to confiscation; and any person concerned in any such offence shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding three times the value of the goods, or not exceeding one thousand rupees.

168. If it be found, when any goods are entered at or brought to be passed through a Custom House either for importation or exportation, that the packages in which they are contained differ widely from the description given in the entry or application for passing them;

Goods brought to be passed through Custom House liable to confiscation in case of discrepancy, misdescription, &c.

or that the contents thereof have been wrongly described in such entry or application as regards the denominations, characters, or circumstances according to which such goods are chargeable with duty, or are being imported or exported;

or that the contents of such packages have been wilfully mis-stated in regard to sort, quality, quantity or value;

or that goods not stated in the entry or application have been fraudulently concealed in, or mixed with, the articles specified therein, or have been packed to deceive the Officers of Customs;

such packages, together with the whole of the goods contained therein, shall be liable to confiscation.

168*a*. Any person infringing any rule or order made under section 38 by the Chief Customs Authority, or by the Chief Officer of Customs, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees.

For infringing rules under section 38.

169. If, in any River or Port wherein a place has been fixed under section 43 by the Local Government, the Master of any vessel arriving from a Foreign Port or place wilfully omits, before passing beyond such place, to deliver to the Pilot, Officer of Customs, or other person duly authorised to receive the same, a manifest, signed by the Master, and in the form and containing the particulars indicated in the same section, in so far as they are applicable to his ship, cargo and voyage;

For proceeding inward beyond fixed place before delivery of manifest.

or if any manifest so delivered does not contain a true specification of all goods imported in such vessel;

such Master shall, in every such case, be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

170. Any Master remaining outside or below any such fixed place, and wilfully omitting, for the space of twenty-four hours after anchoring, to deliver this manifest, shall, in every such case, be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

For omitting to deliver manifest when vessel anchors below reporting station.

If, after any vessel arriving from any Foreign Port or place has entered any Customs Port, and in which a place has not been fixed under section 44, the Master of such vessel wilfully omits, for the space of twenty-four hours after anchoring, to deliver as required by that section his manifest to the Pilot, Officer of Customs or other person authorized to receive the same, such Master shall, in every such case, be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

For like omission when reporting station has not been fixed.

171. Every Pilot, Officer of Customs or other person authorized to receive a manifest from any Master of a vessel, and refusing so to do, or failing to countersign the same or to enter the particulars referred to in section 43, shall, in every such case, be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees.

For Pilot, &c., not receiving manifest.

172. If any vessel arriving from any Foreign Port or place at any Customs Port shall, after having come to its proper place of mooring or unlading, remove from such place, except with the authority of the Master Attendant or Harbour Master, obtained in accordance with the provisions of the Indian Ports Act, 1875, directly to some other place of mooring or unlading, the Master of such vessel shall, in every such case, be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees, and the vessel shall not be allowed to enter until the penalty is paid.

For vessel removing from place of mooring, or unlading, without due authority.

173. The Master of any vessel arriving at any Port in British India from any Foreign Port or place who, when so required under section 38, fails to bring-to at any such station as has been appointed by the Chief Customs Authority for the boarding of vessels by an Officer of Customs, shall, in every such case, be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

For not bringing to at boarding station.

174. Every Master of a vessel refusing to receive on board an Officer of Customs deputed as provided in section 39, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees for each day during which such officer is not received on board; and the vessel shall not be allowed to enter until the penalty is paid.

For refusing to receive Officer of Customs on board.

175. Any Master wilfully disobeying any direction contained in section 40 shall, in every such case, be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees.

For disobeying section 40.

176. Any Master of a vessel discharging or suffering to be discharged any goods not duly entered in the manifest of such vessel, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

For discharging goods not duly entered in manifest.

176*a*. Any goods found concealed in any place, box, or closed receptacle in any vessel, and not duly accounted for to the satisfaction of the Officer in charge of the Custom House, shall be liable to confiscation.

Goods found concealed liable to confiscation.

177. If any Master of a vessel refuses to allow such vessel, or any box, place, or closed receptacle in such vessel, to be searched when so required by an Officer of Customs bearing a written order to search;

For Masters resisting search, &c.

or if an Officer of Customs places any lock, mark, or seal upon any goods, and such lock, mark, or seal is wilfully opened, altered, or broken, before due delivery of such goods;

or if any such goods are secretly conveyed away;

or if any hatchway or entrance to the hold, after having been fastened down by an Officer of Customs, is opened without his permission—

in every such case the Master of such vessel shall be liable, upon conviction before a Magistrate, to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

178. If any bill of lading or copy required under section 47 is false; or has been altered with fraudulent intent;

For false entry, fraudulent alteration, &c.

or if the goods mentioned in any such bill of lading, or in any bill of lading of which a copy is so produced, have not been bonâ fide shipped on board of such vessel;

or if any such bill of lading delivered under the same section, or any bill of lading of which a copy is so delivered, by any such Master, has not been made previously to the departure of the vessel from the place where the goods expressed in such bill of lading were shipped;

or if any part of the cargo has been staved, destroyed, or thrown overboard;

or if any package be opened, and such part of the cargo or such package be not accounted for to the satisfaction of the Officer in charge of the Custom House;

in every such case the Master shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

179. If any goods be found on board in excess of those entered in the manifest, or not corresponding with the specification therein contained, the fact shall be reported by the Officer of Customs on board, and all such goods shall be liable to confiscation, or to be charged with such increased rates of duty as the Chief Officer of Customs directs.

Goods not agreeing in description and quantity with entry in manifest liable to confiscation or extra duty.

180. If any goods entered in the manifest of a vessel are not found on board of the vessel; or if the quantity so found is short, and if such deficiency is not accounted for to the satisfaction of the Officer in charge of the Custom House,

For not being able to account for missing or deficient package, &c.

the Master of such vessel shall be liable, in addition to full duty, to a penalty not exceeding twice the amount of duty chargeable on the missing or deficient goods, if they be capable of being assessed therewith; or if they be not, to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees for every missing or deficient package of unknown value.

181. Any Master of a vessel causing or suffering any goods to be removed contrary to any of the provisions of section 42 shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees; and all goods so removed shall be liable to confiscation.

For removing goods contrary to section 42.

182. If any goods removed from on board any vessel for the purpose of being landed and passed for importation, are not landed as provided in section 56,

For not landing goods in accordance with section 56.

or if the boat containing such goods be found out of the proper track between the vessel and such wharf or other proper place of landing, and such deviation be not accounted for to the satisfaction of the Officer in charge of the Custom House, such goods, together with any vessel or boat employed in removing them, shall be liable to confiscation, and the person by whose authority the goods are being landed, and the person in charge of the boat, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twice the amount of the duty leviable on the said goods.

183. Any goods landed or transhipped contrary to the provisions of section 57 shall be liable to confiscation.

For landing, &c., goods contrary to section 57.

184. If any goods sent to be landed be found without the boat-note required by section 58 in any boat proceeding to land, such goods shall be liable to confiscation; and the person by whose authority the goods are being landed, or the person in charge of the boat, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twice the amount of duty leviable on the said goods.

For sending goods without boat-note.

185. If, without entry duly made, any goods are taken or passed out of any Custom House or wharf, the person so taking or passing such goods shall in every such case be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees.

For taking or passing goods without entry.

Any prohibited or dutiable goods found, either before or after landing, concealed in any passenger's baggage, together with the other contents of the package in which they are found, shall be liable to confiscation.

186. If, after any goods have been landed and before they have been passed through the Custom House, the importer, owner or consignee, or his agent or any one acting on his behalf, removes or attempts to remove them, with the intention of defrauding the revenue, such goods shall be liable to confiscation;

For removing goods after landing and before due entry.

or, if the goods cannot be recovered, the owner shall be liable, in addition to full duty, to a penalty not exceeding twice the amount of such duty if the goods be capable of being assessed therewith; or, if they be not, to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees for every missing or deficient package of unknown value.

187. If any goods entered to be warehoused under this Act are carried into the warehouse, unless with the authority or under the care of the proper Officers of Customs, and in such manner, by such persons, within such time, and by such roads or ways, as such Officers direct, such goods shall be liable to confiscation, and the person so carrying them shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

For improper carrying into warehouse.

188. If any goods entered to be warehoused under this Act are withheld, or removed from any proper place of examination, before they have been examined and certified by the proper officer, such goods shall be deemed not to have been duly warehoused, and shall be liable to confiscation.

For withholding or removing before examination goods entered to be warehoused.

189. When goods are passed by tale or by package, the importer, owner, or consignee of such goods, or his agent, shall, for every omission or misdescription thereof tending to injure the revenue, be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten times the amount of duty which might have been lost to Government by such omission or misdescription, unless it be proved to the satisfaction of the Officer in charge of the Custom House that the variance was accidental.

For misdescription of goods.

If the quantity or value of any goods has been over-stated on importation, the error may be rectified at any time before the warehousing of the goods is completed.

190. If any warehoused goods be not warehoused in accordance with section 75,

For warehousing goods improperly.

or if any alteration be made in goods so warehoused, or in the packing thereof, except as provided in section 81;

For altering warehoused goods.

or if any such goods be removed from the warehouse in which they were originally deposited, except in presence or with the sanction of the proper officer, or under the proper authority for their delivery,

For removing them improperly.

such goods shall be liable to confiscation.

191. If the keeper of any public warehouse, or the person who has obtained a license for any private warehouse, neglects to stow the goods warehoused therein, so that easy access may be had to every package and parcel thereof, he shall for every such neglect be liable to a penalty not exceeding fifty rupees.

For neglecting to stow goods properly in warehouse.

192. If the keeper of any public warehouse, or the person who has obtained a license for any private warehouse, fails, on the requisition of any officer of Customs, to produce any goods which have been deposited in such warehouse, and which have not been duly cleared and delivered therefrom, he shall, for every such neglect, be liable, not only to pay the duties due on such goods, but also to a penalty not exceeding fifty rupees in respect of every package or parcel so missing or deficient.

Or for neglecting to produce goods when required.

193. If any goods entered to be warehoused are not duly warehoused in pursuance of such entry, or, after being duly warehoused, are fraudulently concealed in or removed from the warehouse, or abstracted from any package, or transferred from one package to another, or otherwise, for the purpose of illegal removal or concealment, such goods shall be liable to confiscation.

Goods entered to be warehoused, if not duly warehoused or if concealed or removed, liable to be confiscated.

194. If the person who has obtained a license for any private warehouse licensed under this Act does not open the same when required so to do by any Officer entitled under this Act or under any other law to have access thereto, or, upon demand made by any such Officer at any time within the hours of business at the Port, refuses access to any such Officer, such person shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees, and shall further be liable to have his license forthwith cancelled and withdrawn.

For refusing to open private warehouse when duly required.

195. If the importer, owner, or consignee of any warehoused goods, or the agent or any person in the employ of such importer, owner, or consignee, clandestinely opens any warehouse, or, except in presence of the proper officer of Customs, gains access to his goods, such importer, owner, consignee, or agent shall, in every such case, be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

For importer or owner of warehoused goods clandestinely gaining access.

196. If any goods lodged in a private warehouse are found to be deficient at the time of delivery therefrom, the person who obtained the license for such warehouse shall, unless the deficiency be accounted for to the satisfaction of the Officer in charge of the Custom House, be liable to a penalty equal to five times the duty chargeable on the goods so deficient.

For deficiencies in a private warehouse, if beyond ullage and wastage allowed.

197. If any goods lodged in a private warehouse are found to exceed the registered quantity, such excess, unless accounted for to the satisfaction of the Officer in charge of the Custom House, shall be charged with five times the ordinary duty thereon.

For excess, in private warehouse, over registered quantity.

When any penalty is incurred under this section or section 196, the goods in respect of which such penalty is incurred shall not be removed until the penalty is paid.

198. Whoever takes any goods out of any warehouse without payment of duty, or who aids, assists, or is concerned therein, shall, in every such case, be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

For taking goods out of warehouse without paying duty.

If the person so offending be an Officer of Customs not acting in execution of his duty, and be prosecuted to conviction by the importer, owner, or consignee of such goods, no duty shall be payable in respect of such goods. For any damage so occasioned by such Officer, the Officer in charge of the Custom House shall, with the sanction of the Chief Customs Authority, make due compensation to such importer, owner, or consignee.

199. Whoever violates any rule prescribed under section 103 shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

For infringing rules under section 103.

200. If any goods be taken on board of any vessel at any Port in British India before she has been entered outwards at such Port, in accordance with section 107, the Master of such vessel shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

For shipping goods before entry outwards.

201. If the Master of any vessel laid up under section 108 by the withdrawal of the Officer of Customs shall, before application is made by him or his agent for an Officer of Customs to superintend the receipt of cargo, cause or suffer to be put on board of such vessel any goods whatever, such Master shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees, and the goods, if protected by a pass, shall be liable to be re-landed for examination at the expense of the vessel, and, if not protected by a pass, shall be liable to confiscation.

For lading in absence of Customs Officer.

202. Whoever causes or suffers any goods to be shipped or water-borne to be shipped contrary to any of the provisions of section 109 shall, in every such case, be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees; and any goods so shipped or water-borne for shipment, together with any vessel in which they are being so water-borne, shall be liable to confiscation.

For causing goods to be shipped contrary to section 109.

203. Any Master or Officer refusing to receive any boat-note in accordance with section 111, or receiving the same and failing to deliver it when required so to do by any Officer of Customs authorized to make such requisition, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees.

For non-receipt or non-delivery of boat-note.

204. Any Master of a vessel who attempts to depart without a port-clearance, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees.

For departing without port-clearance.

If any vessel actually departs without a port-clearance, the Master shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees;

and such penalty may be levied by the Chief Officer of Customs of any Customs Port to which such vessel proceeds, or in which she is, and in Aden by such Officer as the Governor of Bombay in Council appoints in this behalf.

Also conveyances and animals used in removal.

231. If any person in charge of or owning a vessel has become liable to any fine or penalty on account of any act or omission relating to the Customs, the Officer in charge of the Custom House may refuse port-clearance to such vessel until the fine or penalty be discharged.

Goods may be detained and port-clearance refused, pending payment of fines incurred.

If any person passing goods through the Custom House has become liable to any fine or penalty, the Officer in charge of the Custom House may detain such goods until the fine or penalty be discharged.

232. Any person against whom a reasonable suspicion exists that he has been guilty of an offence under this or any other Act relating to the Customs, may be detained by any Officer of Customs or other person duly employed for the prevention of smuggling.

Persons reasonably suspected may be detained.

233. Any vessel or goods liable to confiscation may be seized, and any person liable to be detained under this or any other Act relating to the Customs may be detained, in any place, either upon land or water, by any Officer of Customs or other person duly employed for the prevention of smuggling.

Vessels, goods, and persons may be seized or detained.

234. Every vessel and all goods seized on the ground that they are liable to confiscation shall, as soon as conveniently may be, be delivered into the care of the officer appointed to receive the same.

Vessels and goods seized how to be dealt with.

If there be no such officer at hand, all goods so seized shall be carried to and deposited at the Custom House nearest to the place of seizure.

If there be no Custom House within a convenient distance, such goods shall be deposited at the nearest office appointed by the Chief Customs Authority for the deposit of goods so seized.

235. Every person detained on the ground that he has been guilty of an offence under this or any other Act relating to the Customs, shall forthwith be taken before a Magistrate or Officer in charge of a Custom House.

Persons detained to be taken to nearest Magistrate or Officer of Custom House.

236. When any person detained on the ground that he has been guilty of an offence against this or any other Act relating to the Customs, is taken before a Magistrate, such Magistrate may, if he see reasonable cause, order him to be detained in gaol or in the custody of the Police for such time as is necessary to enable such Magistrate to communicate with the Officers of Customs:

Persons taken before a Magistrate for offence under Customs Acts may be detained or admitted to bail.

Provided that any person so detained shall be liberated on giving recognizance or security to the satisfaction of the Magistrate to appear at such time and place as such Magistrate appoints for his appearance.

237. If any person liable to be detained under this or any other Act relating to the Customs, is not detained at the time o committing the offence for which he so liable, or after detention, makes his escape, he shall at any time afterwards be liable to be detained and taken before a Magistrate, to be dealt with as if he had been detained at the time of committing such offence.

Any person escaping may be afterwards detained.

238. When any person employed on the crew of any of Her Majesty's ships is detained under this or any other Act relating to the Customs, the detaining officer shall forthwith give notice thereof to the Commanding Officer of the ship, who shall thereupon place such person in security on board of such ship, until the detaining officer has obtained a warrant from a Magistrate for bringing up such person to be dealt with according to law.

Persons in Her Majesty's Navy, when detained, to be secured on board until warrant procured.

The Magistrate shall duly grant a warrant upon complaint made to him by the detaining officer, stating the offence for which the person is detained.

239. When any vessel or goods is or are seized or any person is detained under this or any other Act relating to the Customs, the Officer or other person making such seizure or detention, shall, on demand of the person in charge of the vessel or goods so seized or of the person so detained, give to such person a statement in writing of the reason for such seizure or detention.

When seizure is made, seizing officer to give reason in writing.

240. When any goods liable to confiscation under this or any other Act relating to the Customs are seized by any Police Officer on suspicion that they have been stolen, such Officer may carry such goods to any Police station or Court at which a complaint or information connected with the stealing or receiving of such goods has been made, or an enquiry connected with such stealing or receiving is in progress, and there detain such goods until the dismissal of such complaint or information, or the conclusion of such enquiry or of any trial thence resulting.

Procedure in respect of goods seized on suspicion.

In every such case the Police Officer seizing the goods shall send written notice of their seizure and detention to the nearest Custom House; and immediately after the dismissal of the complaint or information, or the conclusion of the enquiry or trial, the said Police Officer shall cause such goods to be conveyed to and deposited at the nearest Custom House, to be there proceeded against according to law.

If any Police Officer whose duty it is under this section to send a written notice or cause goods to be conveyed to a Custom House, neglects so to do, he shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one hundred rupees.

For neglect of Police Officer to give notice.

241. Any duly empowered Officer of Customs or other person duly employed for the prevention of smuggling, may search any cart, or other means of conveyance, for smuggled goods; provided that he has reasonable ground to suppose that smuggled goods are contained therein.

Officers of Customs may stop carts, &c., and search for goods on reasonable suspicion.

242. The Magistrate of a District or Division of a District may, on application by an Officer in charge of a Custom House, stating his belief that dutiable or prohibited goods are secreted in any place in such District or Division, issue a warrant to search for such goods.

Magistrate of District may issue search-warrant on application.

Such warrant shall be executed in the same way, and shall have the same effect, as a search-warrant issued under the Code of Criminal Procedure.

243. Any Officer of Customs duly employed in the prevention of smuggling may search any person on board of any vessel or boat in any Port in British India, or any person who has landed from any vessel or boat:

Persons may be searched on reasonable suspicion.

Provided that such officer has reasonable ground to suppose that such person has dutiable or prohibited goods secreted about his person.

For possession of smuggled goods.

If any person on board of any such vessel or boat, or who has landed from any such vessel or boat, upon being asked by any such officer whether he has dutiable or prohibited goods about his person or in his possession, affirms that he has not, and if any such goods are, after such denial, discovered to be or to have been upon the person or in the possession of such person, such goods shall be liable to confiscation, and such person shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding three times the value of such goods.

Persons before search may require to be taken before a Magistrate, &c.

244. When any Officer of Customs is about to search any person under the provisions of section 243 such person may require the said officer to take him, previous to search, before the nearest Magistrate or Officer in charge of a Custom House.

If such requisition be made, the Officer of Customs may detain the person making it until he can bring him before the nearest Magistrate or officer in charge of a Custom House.

The Magistrate or officer in charge of a Custom House before whom any person is so brought shall, if he see no reasonable ground for search, forthwith discharge such person; but if otherwise, shall direct that the search be made.

A female shall not be searched by any but a female.

For searching persons on insufficient grounds.

245. If any Officer of Customs requires any person to be searched for dutiable or prohibited goods, without having reasonable ground to believe that he has such goods about his person, such Officer shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one hundred rupees.

Customs Officers, if guilty of breach of duty, how punishable.

246. If any Officer of Customs, or other person duly employed for the prevention of smuggling, is guilty of a wilful breach of the provisions of this or any other Act relating to the Customs, he shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to simple imprisonment for any term not exceeding two years, or to fine, or to both.

Customs Officers committing or conniving at frauds, how punishable.

247. If any Officer of Customs, or other person duly employed for the prevention of smuggling, practises or attempts to practise any fraud for the purpose of injuring the Customs Revenue, or abets or connives at any such fraud or any attempt to practise any such fraud, he shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to imprisonment for any term not exceeding two years, or to fine, or to both.

No suit or proceeding to be commenced without notice.

248. No suit or other proceeding shall be commenced against any person for anything done in pursuance of this Act, without giving him a month's previous notice in writing of the intended suit or other proceeding and of the cause thereof.

Punishment for obstruction to Customs Officers.

249. Whoever intentionally obstructs any Officer of Customs or other person duly employed for the prevention of smuggling, in the exercise of any powers given under this Act to such officer or person, shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to imprisonment of either description for any term not exceeding six months, or to a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees, or to both.

For making false declaration, refusing to answer questions, &c.

250. Whoever knowingly makes or signs or uses any declaration or document used in the transaction of any business relating to the Customs, such declaration or document being false in any particular;

and whoever, counterfeits, falsifies, or fraudulently alters or destroys any such document, or any seal, signature, initials, or other mark made or impressed by any Officer of Customs in the transaction of any business relating to the Customs;

and whoever being required under this or any other Act relating to the Customs to produce any document, refuses or neglects to produce such document;

and whoever, being required under this or any other Act relating to the Customs to answer any question put to him by an Officer of Customs, does not truly answer such question, shall, on conviction of any such offence before a Magistrate, be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

For unauthorized declaration as to value of goods.

251. Whoever subscribes or attests any declaration of the value of any goods upon an application to pass such goods through the Custom House, shall, if he be not the importer, owner, or consignee of such goods, or have not proper and sufficient authority from the importer, owner, or consignee, be liable in every such case to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

Officer in charge of Custom House may adjudge confiscations and penalties.

252. In every case in which, under this Act, any vessel, cart, or other means of conveyance, or any horse or other animal, is liable to confiscation; or any goods are liable to confiscation or to increased rates of duty;

or any person in charge of or owning a vessel, or landing or shipping goods, or passing them through the Custom House, is liable to a penalty, an officer in charge of a Custom House, or if there be no such officer at the place where the confiscation or penalty or increased rates is or are incurred, or such other officer as the Local Government from time to time appoints in this behalf, may, unless it be otherwise provided in this or any other Act relating to the Customs, adjudge such confiscation, penalty, or increased rates of duty.

Local Government may confer like powers on other officers of Customs.

253. In respect to cases cognizable under section 252 by an Officer in charge of a Custom House, the Local Government may empower any Officer of Customs in like manner to adjudge any confiscation, penalty, or increased rates of duty.

Proviso.

Provided that the power to adjudge confiscation shall not extend, as regards a Deputy Collector, to goods of a greater value than one thousand rupees, nor, as regards an Assistant Collector or other subordinate officer, to goods of a greater value than one hundred rupees; and that the power to adjudge a penalty shall not extend, as regards a Deputy Collector, to a sum exceeding fifty rupees, nor, as regards an Assistant Collector or other subordinate officer, to a sum exceeding ten rupees.

On confiscation of vessel or goods, property to vest in Her Majesty.

254. When the confiscation of any vessel, cart, or other means of conveyance, horse or other animal, or any goods, is adjudged under section 252 or section 253, the property in such vessel, means of conveyance, animal, or goods shall thereupon vest in Her Majesty.

The Officer adjudging confiscation shall take and hold possession of the same, and every officer of Police, on the requisition of such Officer, shall assist him in taking and holding such possession.

Appeal from subordinate to Chief Customs Authority.

255. In any case adjudicated by an Officer of Customs any party aggrieved by the award may, within three months from the date of the award, appeal to the Chief Customs Authority or in such cases as the Local Government directs to any other superior officer of Customs empowered in that behalf by the Local Government.

Such authority or superior officer may thereupon make such further enquiry and pass such order as he thinks proper, confirming, alterig, or annulling the original award:

Provided that no such order in appeal shall have the effect of subjecting any person to any greater confiscation, penalty, or rates of duty than has been adjudged against him in the original award.

Penalty under this Act not to interfere with punishment which may be inflicted under any other law.

256. The award of any confiscation, penalty, or increased rates of duty under this Act by an Officer of Customs shall not interfere with any punishment to which the person affected thereby is liable under any other law.

Offences not specially provided for how to be adjudicated.

257. All offences against this Act, other than those cognizable under section 252 by an Officer in charge of a Custom House, may be adjudicated in a summary manner by a Magistrate.

Penalty adjudged by Magistrate, &c., may be remitted or commuted by Chief Customs Authority.

258. If, upon consideration of the circumstances under which any penalty or confiscation has been adjudged under this Act by an Officer of Customs or by a Magistrate, the Chief Customs Authority is of opinion that such penalty or confiscation ought to be remitted in whole or in part, or commuted, such authority may remit the same or any portion thereof, or may commute any order of confiscation to a penalty not exceeding the value of the goods ordered to be confiscated.

How payment of penalty to be enforced.

259. When a penalty is adjudged against any person under this Act by any Officer of Customs, such Officer, if the penalty be not paid, may levy the same by sale of any goods of the said person which may be in his charge, or in the charge of any other Officer of Customs.

When an Officer of Customs who has adjudged a penalty against any person under this Act fails to realize the unpaid amount of such penalty from the goods of such person, such officer may notify in writing to any Magistrate within whose jurisdiction such person or any goods belonging to him may be, the name and residence of the said person and the amount of penalty unrecovered; and such Magistrate shall thereupon proceed to enforce payment of the said amount in like manner as if the penalty had been adjudged by himself.

Periods of imprisonment, in default of payment of penalty or fine, to be fixed within certain limits.

260. When a penalty or fine is adjudged against any person under this Act by a Magistrate, such Magistrate shall, at the same time, fix, within the following limits, a period of imprisonment in default of payment of such penalty or fine:—

If the penalty or fine do not exceed fifty rupees, the term of imprisonment to be fixed in default of payment shall not exceed one month.

If the penalty or fine do not exceed one hundred rupees, the term of imprisonment to be fixed in default of payment shall not exceed two months.

If the penalty or fine do not exceed five hundred rupees, the term of imprisonment to be fixed in default of payment shall not exceed four months.

When the penalty or fine exceeds five hundred rupees, the term of imprisonment to be fixed in default of payment may extend to six months.

The Magistrate may at any time enforce payment of any penalty or fine or of any portion thereof by distress and sale of the defaulter's goods.

Imprisonment to terminate upon recovery of fine.

261. The imprisonment imposed in default of payment of fine or penalty under this or any other Act relating to the Customs shall terminate whenever that fine or penalty is either paid or levied by process of law.

Or upon recovery of proportional part of fine.

262. If, before the expiration of the term of imprisonment fixed in default of payment, such a proportion of the fine or penalty is paid or levied that the term of imprisonment suffered in default of payment is not less than proportional to the part of the fine or penalty still unpaid, the imprisonment shall terminate.

Option to pay fine in lieu of confiscation.

263. Whenever confiscation is authorized by this Act, the officer adjudging it may give the owner of the goods an option to pay in lieu of confiscation such fine as the officer thinks fit.

Appropriation of penalties, &c., and grant of rewards.

264. The proceeds of all confiscations and penalties imposed under this Act shall, after deducting therefrom all Government demands, be paid into a general Fund, out of which the Chief Customs Authority may grant a reward to any person by whose information, assistance, or instrumentality, any seizure has been made or any offence punished.

I do hereby certify that have deposited in the Warehouse of the undermentioned goods which goods, the engage on demand, after payment of rent and incidental charges and Government dues or customs chargeable thereon, to deliver to the said or their assigns, or to the holder of this warrant to whom it may be transferred by endorsement.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

As long ago as 1870 the necessity of a thorough amendment of the Consolidated Customs Act (VI of 1863) was recognized, owing both to the additional legislation which had already taken place, and the numerous improvements which the various local authorities had represented to be necessary, chiefly in consequence of the altered conditions of trade.

Leave to introduce a Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Sea Customs was given by the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations to Sir Richard Temple on the 16th August 1870, but the measure was not proceeded with owing to difficulties connected with the application to India of 32 & 33 Vic., cap. II (for amending the law relating to the Coasting Trade and Merchant Shipping in British Possessions).

These difficulties appear, from further communication with Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India, to have been removed, and the Bill of 1870 is again brought forward, with the addition of the consolidation in it of the Acts specified in the margin, and of certain changes which have been recommended by the local authorities.

Act XIV of 1871.
Act VI of 1873.
Act XVI of 1875, in part.

Of those changes the chief are as follows:—

Provision is made (section 6) for the settlement of disputes as to the proper rate of duty payable in respect of any goods without detention of the goods during settlement.

Where a contract has been entered into for the sale of dutiable goods at a fixed price including the duty leviable at the date of the contract, and before the contract is fully performed the duty is raised or lowered, and levied accordingly, the Bill (section 38) declares that the price shall be increased or diminished (as the case may be) by the amount by which the duty is so raised or lowered. Where during transit by sea to British India the duty on any goods is raised, the duty payable on arrival will be only the duty in force when the transit commenced, and where such duty is lowered, the duty leviable will be only such reduced duty.

In the case of steamers the Bill provides (section 44) that the master may enter in the manifest the name of the ship's agent as that of the consignee of any cargo, and that the Chief Customs Authority may treat him as such consignee, provided he gives security against claims for damage or short delivery.

Power is given (section 46) to permit (subject to rules) bulk to be broken prior to receipt of the original manifest and the entry of the vessel at the Custom House.

For the purpose of landing import cargo and shipping export cargo no charge will be made (sections 50 and 108) for the services of several Customs Officers for respective periods, the aggregate of which does not exceed fifteen working days.

Power has been given (section 114) to grant port-clearance before delivery of the manifest when the ship's agent furnishes sufficient security for duly delivering it within three days from the date of the grant.

Whenever goods are confiscated the owner will have an option (section 263) to pay a fine in lieu of losing his goods.

It is expected that the Bill will be considerably improved in Committee in respect of numerous matters known to require attention, owing to the opening of the Suez Canal and the alterations effected by the telegraph in the conditions of modern trade, by suggestions of the various Maritime authorities, and by the co-operation of the mercantile community.

"Warehouse."

CHAPTER II.

GENERAL RULES.

4. The Chief Customs Authority may, with the sanction of the Local Government, make and issue rules for regulating the practice and proceedings of officers in the Department of Sea Customs, and may from time to time add to, alter, or revoke such rules or any of them:

Making, issuing, and publishing of rules.

provided that no rule so made shall be inconsistent with this Act or any other law for the time being in force.

All rules made under this section shall be published in the local official Gazette.

5. Any rules made under section 4 may include such rules as appear expedient for the landing and shipping of passengers' baggage and the passing of the same through the Custom House, and for the landing, shipping, and clearing of parcels forwarded by Her Majesty's or other mails, or by other regular packets and passenger vessels.

Rules respecting passengers' baggage and mails.

When any baggage or parcels are made over to an officer of Customs for the purpose of being landed, a fee of such amount as the Local Government from time to time directs shall be chargeable thereon, as compensation for the expense and trouble incurred in landing and depositing the same in the Custom House.

Fee for landing baggage.

6. If any dispute arises between any officer of Customs and any Master of a vessel, or importer, exporter, owner or consignee of goods, or agent, or other person, in respect to any matter (not specially provided for by any law for the time being in force) relating to the importation, exportation, or warehousing of any goods, or to the proper rate of duty payable in respect thereof,

or to the levy of any duty or penalty thereon,

or to any seizure or forfeiture thereof,

the Chief Customs Authority, or such officer of Customs as the said Authority from time to time appoints in this behalf, shall settle such dispute, subject to an appeal to the Local Government, acting under the general instructions of the Governor General in Council.

Appeals how and by whom to be adjudicated.

Where the dispute relates to the proper rate of duty in respect of any goods, the importer, exporter, owner, or consignee of such goods, or his agent, shall deposit in the hands of the Officer in charge of the Custom House at the Port of importation or exportation, respectively, the amount of duty demanded by such officer, pending the decision of the Chief Customs Authority.

Upon payment of such deposit and compliance with the provisions of this Act relating to the entry of such goods, the Officer in charge of the Custom House shall cause the goods to be delivered to such importer, exporter, owner or consignee, or his agent.

CHAPTER III.

APPOINTMENT OF OFFICERS, PORTS, WHARVES AND WAREHOUSES.

Local Government to appoint necessary officers.

7. The Local Government of every place in which duties of Sea Customs are levied, shall appoint such persons as it thinks proper to exercise the powers conferred, and to perform the duties imposed, by this Act.

Suspension and dismissal of such officers.

Every person so appointed shall be liable to be suspended or dismissed by the Local Government which appointed him.

Local Government may delegate its powers under section 7 to Customs Authority.

8. The Local Government may delegate to any Authority within its jurisdiction in the Department of Customs all or any of the powers vested in it by section 7.

Suspension and dismissal of subordinate officers.

Every subordinate officer who is appointed by virtue of such delegated power shall be liable to be suspended or dismissed by the Authority which appointed him.

Collector of District to perform duties of Customs Officer, where there is no separate Customs Officer.

9. At any place at which there is no Officer in charge of a Custom House, the Collector of Revenue of the District and the officers subordinate to him shall be deemed to be the proper officers for the performance of all duties required by this Act to be performed by an Officer in charge of a Custom House and other Officers of Customs.

Power to appoint Ports and Wharves for shipment and landing.

10. The Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette,

(a) declare the places which alone shall be Ports for the shipment and landing of goods;

(b) declare the limits of such Ports;

(c) appoint proper places therein to be Wharves for the landing and shipping of goods;

(d) declare the bounds and extent of any such Wharf;

(e) alter the name of any such Port or Wharf.

Every such Port, except Aden, shall be deemed to be a Customs Port within the meaning of this Act.

The Local Government may also from time to time in like manner declare what shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be the limits of the Custom House.

Power to declare that an Indian Port not in British India shall be regarded as a British Indian Port for certain purposes.

11. The Governor General in Council may from time to time declare, by notification in the Gazette of India, that any Foreign Port in India shall, with such limitations and on such conditions (if any) as he thinks fit, be deemed a Customs Port for the purposes of sections 16, 126, and 132 to 140, inclusive, in so far as the said sections or any of them are capable of being applied to such Port; and may in like manner from time to time, by notification in the said Gazette, revoke or suspend the operation of any such declaration.

Power to declare Warehousing Ports and places.

12. The Local Government may from time to time declare, by notification in the official Gazette, that any Port or place subject to its administration shall be a Warehousing Port or place for the purposes of this Act;

Existing Ports to continue in use until otherwise declared.

and every Port which, at the passing of this Act, shall have been declared to be or shall be existing as a Warehousing Port, shall continue to be a Warehousing Port under this Act, until the Local Government otherwise declares by notification in the official Gazette.

Approval, appointment, and licensing of warehouses.

13. In any Warehousing Port or place the Chief Customs Authority may from time to time appoint or license public Warehouses or places of security wherein dutiable goods may be deposited without payment of duty on the first entry thereof.

CHAPTER IV.

LEVY OF AND EXEMPTION FROM CUSTOMS DUTIES.

Import Customs.

14. Duties of customs shall be levied on goods imported by sea into any Customs Port from any Foreign Port or place, at such rates and with such exemptions as may be prescribed by any law for the time being in force.

Export Customs.

15. Duties of customs shall be levied on goods exported by sea from any Customs Port to any Foreign Port or place, at such rates and with such exemptions as may be prescribed by any law for the time being in force.

No duties on goods carried from one Indian Port to another not a Free Port.

16. No duties of customs shall be levied on goods carried by sea from any Customs Port to any other Customs Port:

Proviso as to opium, salt, and spirits.

Provided that nothing in this section shall apply to opium, salt or spirits;

or to goods brought from any Foreign Port or place to any Customs Port, and there transhipped for, or thence carried to, any other Customs Port without payment of duty;

or to goods removed in bond.

Power to exempt from Customs Duties.

17. The Governor General in Council may from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, exempt any goods imported or exported into or from British India, or into or from any specified port or place therein, from the whole or any part of the duties of customs to which they are liable under the law for the time being in force relating to such duties, and may, by like notification, cancel any such exemption.

Power to cancel exemption.

Power to authorize exemption from payment of duty.

The Local Government may authorize the Chief Customs Authority to exempt, by special order, from the payment of duty, under stated circumstances of an exceptional nature, any goods on which duties of Customs are directed to be levied by any law for the time being in force.

Baggage in actual use.

18. The Officer in charge of a Custom House may pass free of duty at his discretion any baggage in actual use, and for this purpose may determine, subject to such general rules as may from time to time be made under section 4, whether any goods shall be treated as baggage in actual use, or as goods subject to duty.

Transhipment of Goods.

Power to permit transhipment with payment of duty.

19. In the Ports of Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, Karáchi, Aden, Rangoon, Maulmain, Akyab, Chittagong, and such other British Indian Ports as the Governor General in Council may from time to time by notification in the Gazette of India direct in this behalf, the Chief Officer of Customs may (subject to the provisions contained in sections 20 and 21), on application of any person interested as owner, agent, consignee or otherwise in any goods imported by steamer into such port, grant leave to tranship the same without payment of duty at the port of transhipment, and without any security or bond for the due arrival and entry of the goods at the port of destination:

Proviso.

Provided that such goods have been specially and distinctly manifested or declared at the time of import as for transhipment to some other British Indian or foreign port.

Rules regulating exercise of power.

20. The power conferred by section 19 shall be exercised subject to such rules as the Local Government may from time to time prescribe by notification in the official Gazette.

Levy of transhipment fee.

21. A transhipment fee on each bale or package of any goods or class of goods transhipped under this Act, may be levied at such rates and under such regulations as the Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, from time to time prescribes by notification in the official Gazette.

Power to prohibit transhipment.

22. The Governor General in Council may from time to time, by order notified in the Gazette of India, prohibit the transhipment, at any specified port or at all ports, of any specified class of goods, or prescribe any special mode of transhipping any specified class of goods, and may, by like notification, cancel such order.

Duty on opium re-exported by sea.

23. Opium imported by sea into any British Indian port may, if the Local Government think fit, but not otherwise, be re-exported by sea from the same port on payment of a duty equal in amount to the fee to which it would have been liable if it had been transhipped at such port.

CHAPTER V.

GENERAL PROVISIONS.

Prohibitions and restrictions.

24. The importation into or exportation from British India of the goods enumerated in the following clauses is prohibited:—

(a). Any book printed in infringement of any law in force in British India on the subject of copyright, when the proprietor of such copyright, or his agent, has given to the Chief Customs Authority of the Presidency or place a notice in writing that such copyright subsists, and a statement of the date on which it will expire:

(b). Counterfeit coin:

(c). Any obscene book, pamphlet, paper, drawing, painting, representation, figure or article.

Importation without license of arms and ammunition prohibited.

25. The importation into British India of arms or ammunition, except under a license from the said Governor General in Council, or from some officer authorized in that behalf by the said Governor General in Council, is prohibited.

Proviso.

Nothing in the former part of this section shall apply to fowling pieces and sporting powder bonâ fide imported by any person in reasonable quantities for his own private use.

Governor General may prohibit or restrict importation or exportation of goods.

26. The Governor General in Council may from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, prohibit or restrict the importation or exportation by sea or by land, or both by sea and by land, of any particular class of goods.

Importation and exportation.

27. It shall be lawful to import into, or to export from, any place declared under section 10 to be a port for the shipment and landing of goods, any goods the importation or exportation of which is not prohibited or restricted by any law or notice of the Governor General in Council for the time being in force.

Owner, &c., to declare real value of goods in bill of entry or clearance, and, if necessary, to produce invoice, &c.

28. On the importation into, or exportation from, any Port in British India of any goods not liable to duty, or liable to fixed duties according to weight or quantity only, or to duties on fixed Tariff valuations, the owner, consignee, importer, exporter or agent of such goods shall, in his bill of entry or shipping bill, truly declare their real value to the best of his knowledge and belief.

In case of doubt, the officer in charge of the Custom House may require any such person or any other person in possession of any invoice, broker's note, policy of insurance, or other document, whereby the value of any such goods can be ascertained, to produce the same, and to furnish any information relating to the value of such goods which it is in his power to furnish.

And thereupon such person shall produce any such document or furnish any such information so required by such officer.

Whenever the value of any goods is required to be stated in the entry, the importer, owner, or consignee, or his agent, shall subscribe a declaration of the truth of such value at the foot of such entry.

Provided that, if the importer, owner or consignee, or his agent, makes a declaration before the Officer in charge of the Custom House to the effect that he is unable, from want of full information, to state the value or contents of any case, package, or parcel of goods, then the officer in charge shall permit him, previous to the entry thereof, to open such case, package, or parcel, and examine the contents in presence of an officer of Customs.

No re-valuation of goods assessed for duty on the declared value thereof shall be allowed after such goods have been removed from the Custom House.

Assessment of goods liable to duty according to value.

In all cases in which goods are liable to duty according to the value thereof, and in which no value has been fixed by law for the purpose of levying duties thereon, the value shall be assessed at the wholesale cash price, less trade-discount, for which goods of the like kind and quality are sold, or are capable of being sold, at the time and place of importation or exportation respectively, without any abatement or deduction whatever, except of so much as the duties payable on the importation thereof amount to.

Nothing in this section applies to opium, salt or spirits.

Under-valued goods how dealt with.

29. If, upon the examination of any goods chargeable with duty upon the value thereof, but for which a specific value is not fixed by law, for the purpose of levying duties thereon, it appears to an Officer of Customs that such goods are properly chargeable with a higher rate or amount of duty than that to which they would be subject according to the value thereof as stated in the bill of entry or shipping bill, such officer may detain such goods.

In every such case the detaining officer shall forthwith give notice in writing to the person entering the goods, of their detention and of the value thereof as estimated by him; and the Officer in charge of the Custom House shall, within two clear working days after such detention, or within such reasonable period as may with the consent of the parties be arranged, determine either to deliver such goods on the entry of such person, or to retain the same for the use of Government.

If the goods be retained for the use of Government, the Officer in charge of the Custom House shall cause the full value at which they were entered to be paid to the person entering the same, in full satisfaction for such goods, in the same manner as if they had been transferred by ordinary sale, and shall then cause them to be sold by public auction after due notice in the official Gazette.

If the proceeds arising from such sale shall exceed the sum paid to the person entering the goods, together with the duty to which the goods are liable, and all charges incurred by Government in connection with them, a portion not exceeding one-half of the overplus shall, at the discretion of the Chief Officer of Customs, be payable to the officer who detected the under-valuation of the goods.

Nothing in this section shall prevent the Chief Officer of Customs, when he has reason to believe that any such under-valuation was solely the result of accident, from permitting the person entering the goods, on his application for that purpose, to amend such entry, on payment of such increased rate of duties, or on such other terms as he may determine.

Duties on goods retained under section 29 for use of Government.

30. When goods are retained under section 29 for the use of Government, the duties payable thereon shall in no case be levied from the person entering such goods.

Date of importation how to be determined.

31. If upon the first levying, repealing, enhancement or reduction of any duty, or upon any change of any valuation for duty,

or upon the first permitting, prohibiting or restricting of any importation, it becomes necessary to determine the exact date on which an importation of goods had effect, such date shall be deemed to be that on which the goods were actually entered for home-consumption at the Custom House.

For the purpose of this section goods shall be deemed to be entered when the bill of entry thereof is delivered to the officer in charge of the Custom House.

Date of exportation how determined.

32. If, in like manner, it becomes necessary to determine the exact date on which an exportation of goods had effect, such date shall be deemed to be that on which the goods were actually entered outwards at the Custom House.

Contracts for sale of goods, duty on which is raised or lowered before performance.

33. When a contract is entered into for the sale of any dutiable goods at a fixed price including the duty leviable in British India at the date of the contract, and subsequently thereto, and before the contract is fully performed, the duty on such goods is raised or lowered, and levied accordingly, the amount to be paid to or received by the parties to the contract shall be increased or diminished, as the case may be, by the amount by which such duty is raised or lowered.

Illustrations.

(a.) A, a merchant in Calcutta, contracts with B, a merchant in Liverpool, to sell him 100 maunds of indigo at Rs. 200 per maund, including the export duty at the rate of 3 rupees per maund. Before the contract is fully performed the duty on indigo is reduced to 1 rupee per maund. B is entitled to deduct from the price agreed on Rs. 200, being Rs. 2 per maund.

(b.) A, a wine merchant in Bombay, contracts with B, a merchant in Bordeaux, for a thousand gallons of claret at Rs. 5 per gallon, including the import duty of 1 rupee per gallon. Subsequently, and before the contract is fully performed, the duty is raised to Rs. 2 per gallon levied at that rate, B is entitled to be paid at the rate of Rs. 6 per gallon.

Duty leviable on seaborne goods, duty on which has been altered during transit.

34. When during the transit by sea to British India of any dutiable goods, the duty on such goods is raised, the duty leviable on such goods on arrival in British India shall be the duty which is in force in respect of such goods when such transit commenced, and when the duty on such goods is reduced, the duty leviable thereon shall be such reduced duty.

Re-imported articles of country produce to be deemed Foreign.

35. If goods produced or manufactured in British India be imported into any Customs Port from any Foreign Port or place, such goods shall be treated as Foreign goods, and shall be liable to all the duties, conditions and restrictions to which Foreign goods of the like kind and value are liable on the first importation thereof:

Proviso.

Provided that, if such importation takes place within three years after the exportation of such goods, and it is proved to the satisfaction of the Officer in charge of the Custom House that the property in such goods has continued in the person by whom or on whose account they were exported, the goods may be entered as Indian goods, in such manner as the Chief Customs Authority from time to time directs.

Goods for which any drawback of Excise has been received on exportation shall in all cases be treated as Foreign goods, unless the Chief Customs Authority in any case otherwise directs by special order.

Officer in charge of Custom House may require goods to be weighed or measured on board before landing.

36. The Officer in charge of the Custom House, whenever he sees fit, may require that goods stowed in bulk, and brought by sea or intended for exportation, shall be weighed or measured on board-ship before landing or after shipment, and may levy duty according to the result of such weighing or measurement.

Customs Officer may open package and examine goods shipped.

37. Any Officer of Customs may open any package, and fully examine any goods brought by sea, or shipped or brought for shipment at any place in British India.

Stations for Customs Officers to board and also land from ship.

38. The Chief Customs Authority may from time to time appoint, in any Customs Port, stations or places at which vessels arriving at or departing from such Port shall bring-to for the boarding or landing of Officers of Customs, and may direct at what particular place in any such Port small vessels, not brought into Port by Pilots, shall be required to anchor or moor.

The Chief Officer of Customs may at any time station Officers of Customs on board of any vessel, while such vessel remains within the limits of the Port.

Power to depute Officer of Customs to board ships.

39. The Officer in charge of the Custom House at any Port in British India, may at any time depute at his discretion one or more Officers of Customs to board any vessel arriving at such Port.

Every Officer of Customs so sent shall remain on board of such vessel by day and by night until it be otherwise ordered by the Officer in charge of the Custom House:

Proviso.

Provided that the Officer in charge of the Custom House may direct, whenever he sees fit so to do, and on such conditions as he sees fit to impose, that the discharge of cargo may take place without the presence of an Officer of Customs.

Servant to be received with Officer.

Accommodation of Officer and servant.

40. Every Master of a vessel, who is bound to receive on board an Officer of Customs, shall also be bound to receive on board one servant of such Officer, and to provide such Officer and servant with suitable shelter and accommodation, and likewise with a due allowance of fresh water, and with the means of cooking on board.

Officers of Customs to have free access to every part of the ship, and may seal and secure goods.

41. Every Officer of Customs, deputed as above provided on board of any vessel, shall have free access to every part thereof, and may fasten down any hatchway or entrance to the hold, and mark any goods before landing, and lock up, seal, mark, or otherwise secure any goods on board of such vessel.

Officer in charge of Custom House may authorize search and opening of locks.

If any box, place, or closed receptacle in any such vessel be locked, and the keys be withheld, such officer shall report the same to the Officer in charge of the Custom House, who may thereupon issue to the officer on board, or to any other officer under his authority, a written order to search.

On production of such order, the officer bearing the same may require that any place, box, or closed receptacle in such vessel be opened in his presence; and, if it be not opened upon his requisition, he may break the same open;

Goods not to be landed on Sundays, holidays, &c., without permission, nor except within fixed hours, &c.

42. Except with the written permission of the Officer in charge of the Custom House, no goods, with the exception of passengers' baggage, shall on any Sunday or on any holiday or day on which the discharge of cargo is prohibited by the Chief Customs Authority of the Presidency or place, be discharged from any vessel arriving at any Customs Port or be shipped or water-borne for exportation or for carriage coastwise;

nor, except with such written permission, shall any goods be so discharged, shipped or water-borne on any day, except between such hours as the Chief Customs Authority from time to time appoints by notification in the official Gazette; nor without the presence or authority of an Officer of Customs;

nor in the case of goods so shipped or water-borne from any place in any such Port except a wharf duly appointed for such purpose;

nor without the presence of the proper Officer of Customs;

nor before due entry outwards of the exporting vessel and of the goods;

nor before such goods shall have been duly cleared for shipment.

CHAPTER VI.

IMPORTATION.

Power to fix places beyond which inward-bound vessels are not to proceed until manifest delivered.

43. The Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, fix a place in any River or Port, beyond which place it shall not be lawful for any vessel, whether laden or in ballast, arriving from any Foreign Port or place, to pass until the Master thereof has delivered to the Pilot, Officer of Customs or other person duly authorized to receive the same, a manifest signed by the Master containing a true specification of all goods imported in such vessel, with such particulars and made out in such form as is from time to time directed by the Chief Customs Authority.

Delivery of manifest when vessel anchors below reporting station.

If, in any River or Port wherein a place has been fixed by the Local Government under this section, the Master of any vessel arriving from any Foreign Port or place remains outside or below the place so fixed, such Master shall nevertheless, within twenty-four hours after the vessel anchors, deliver to the Pilot, Officer of Customs or other person authorized to receive the same, a manifest as provided in the same section.

Power of Master of steamer to enter ship's agent as consignee.

44. In the case of a steamer the Master may enter in the manifest the name of the ship's agent as that of the consignee of any cargo, and the Chief Customs Authority may treat him as such consignee, provided he gives sufficient security to pay all claims for damage or short delivery which may be established by the owner of such cargo.

Duty of person receiving manifest.

45. The Pilot, Officer or other person so receiving the said manifest shall countersign the same and enter thereon such particulars as the said Chief Customs Authority from time to time directs in this behalf.

Bulk not to be broken until manifest, &c., delivered, and ship entered at Custom House.

46. No vessel arriving in any Customs Port from any Foreign Port or place, shall be allowed to break bulk until a manifest has been delivered as hereinbefore provided; nor until a copy of such manifest, together with an application for entry inwards, has been presented to the Officer in charge of the Custom House, and order has been given thereon by such officer for the discharge of the cargo.

The Officer in charge of the Custom House may refuse to give such order, until any port-clearance, cockett, or other paper, which he knows or has reason to believe had been granted at the place from which the vessel is stated to have come, shall likewise have been delivered to him.

Nothing in this section shall prevent an Officer in charge of a Custom House from granting, prior to receipt of the original manifest and prior to the entry of the vessel at the Custom House, a special pass, permitting bulk to be broken. The granting of such pass shall be subject to such rules as may from time to time be prescribed by the Chief Customs Authority.

Master, if required, to deliver bill of lading, &c., to Officer in charge of Custom House.

47. The Master of every vessel arriving from any Foreign Port or place shall, at the time of applying for entry inwards at any Customs Port, deliver to the Officer in charge of the Custom House, if required so to do, the bill of lading or a copy thereof for every part of the cargo laden on board, and shall answer all such questions relating to the vessel, cargo, crew, and voyage as are put to him by such officer.

Goods not to leave ship unless entered in manifest.

48. No goods shall be allowed to leave any vessel, unless they be duly entered in the manifest of such vessel.

Amendment of errors in manifest.

49. Nothing contained in section 48 shall prevent any Officer in charge of a Custom House from permitting the Master of any vessel to amend any obvious error in the manifest, or to supply any omission resulting from accident or inadvertence, by furnishing an amended or supplementary manifest.

But the receiving of such amended or supplementary document shall always be discretionary with the Officer in charge of the Custom House; and, if he decide to receive any such amended or supplementary manifest, he may levy thereon such fee as the Chief Customs Authority from time to time directs.

Period to be allowed for landing import cargo.

50. A period of fifteen working days after the entry of a vessel not exceeding six hundred tons, or such other period as the Officer in charge of the Custom House directs, shall be allowed for the landing of import cargo from such vessel.

One additional day shall in like manner be allowed for every fifty tons in excess of six hundred.

No charge shall be made for the services of a single Officer of Customs for such period of fifteen working days, or for the services of several such officers for respective periods the aggregate of which does not exceed fifteen working days.

Consequence of exceeding same.

If the period occupied in the landing of import cargo be in excess of that so allowed, the vessel shall be charged with the expense of the Officer of Customs at a rate not exceeding five rupees per diem (Sundays and holidays excepted) for such excess period.

Procedure in respect of goods not landed within time allowed.

51. If the importer, owner or consignee of any goods (except such as have been declared by the Master as not to be landed), or the agent of such importer, owner or consignee does not land such goods within such number of working days, not exceeding fifteen, after the entry of the vessel importing the same, as the Local Government from time to time appoints by notification in the official Gazette, or within such further period as the bill of lading of such vessel specifies, the Master of the vessel, or the Officers of Customs on his application, may then carry such goods to the Custom House.

The Officer in charge of the Custom House shall thereupon take charge of and grant receipts for such goods; and, if notice in writing has been given that the goods are to remain subject to a lien for freight, primage, general average, or other charges of a stated amount, he shall hold such goods until he shall have received notice in writing that the said charges are paid.

Effect of not discharging cargo in any earlier period specified in bill of lading.

52. If any period earlier than the number of working days so appointed is specified in the bill of lading of such vessel for the discharge of her cargo or any part thereof, and if the importer, owner or consignee of such cargo, or his agent does not land the same within such specified period, the Master of such vessel, or the Officers of Customs, on his application, may then carry such goods to the Custom House.

The Officer in charge of the Custom House shall thereupon take charge of and grant receipts for such goods;

and, if notice in writing has been given that the goods are to remain subject to a lien for freight, primage, general average, or other charges of a stated amount, he shall hold such goods until the said charges are paid.

Goods may be landed at any time after arrival, with consent.

53. At any time after the arrival of any vessel, the Officer in charge of the Custom House may, with the consent of the Master of such vessel, cause any small package or parcel of goods to be carried to the Custom House, there to remain for entry in charge of the Officers of Customs during the remainder of the working days allowed under the provisions of this or any other Act relating to Customs, for the landing of such package or parcel.

If any package or parcel so carried to the Custom House remains unclaimed on the expiration of the number of working days so allowed for its landing, or at the time of the clearance outwards of the vessel from which it was landed, the Master may give such notice as is provided in section 51, and the Officer in charge of the Custom House shall thereupon hold such package or parcel as provided in the said section.

Procedure in case of non-payment of duties within four months after entry of vessel.

54. If the duties chargeable upon any goods carried to the Custom House under the provisions of any of the three sections last preceding, together with the freight, primage, charges of landing and removal, rent and other charges to which such goods are liable, are not paid within four months from the date of entry of the vessel;

or if such goods are not duly warehoused within such period;

such goods may, after due notice in the official Gazette, be sold by public auction, and the proceeds thereof shall then be applied; first, to the payment of freight, primage and general average; next to the payment of duties; and then to the payment of other charges.

The overplus, if any, shall be paid to the importer, owner or consignee of the goods, or to his agent, on his application for the same; provided that such application be made within one year from the sale of the goods, or that good reason be shown why such application was not so made.

If any such goods be of a perishable nature, the Officer in charge of the Custom House may at any time direct the sale thereof, and shall apply the proceeds in like manner.

Nothing in this section shall authorize the passing for home-consumption of any dutiable goods without payment of duties of Customs thereon: provided that such goods may be so passed where the importer, owner or consignee furnishes security, to the satisfaction of the officer in charge of the Custom House, for the payment of the duties to which such goods are liable.

Goods not cleared within two months from date of landing, to be sold.

55. If any goods be not cleared for home-consumption or for warehouse within two months from the date of landing of such goods, or within such further period as the Officer in charge of the Custom House directs, such goods may, after due notice in the official Gazette, be sold by public auction, and the proceeds thereof shall then be applied to the payment of duties and other charges.

Disposal of proceeds.

The overplus, if any, shall be paid to the importer, owner or consignee of the goods, or to his agent, on his application for the same; provided that such application be made within one year from the sale of the goods, or that good reason be shown why such application was not so made:

Proviso.

Provided also that where such goods are arms, ammunition or military stores, they may be sold or otherwise disposed of at such place (whether within or without British India) and in such manner as the Local Government may from time to time direct.

Goods removed from ship to be forthwith landed.

56. All goods removed from on board of any vessel for the purpose of being landed and passed for importation, shall be forthwith landed at the wharf or other place appointed for the landing of such goods.

Goods not to be landed elsewhere than at appointed wharf or place.

57. No goods discharged from any vessel under the authority of an Officer of Customs shall be landed, except at the wharf or other place appointed for the landing of such goods.

No goods discharged into any boat for the purpose of being landed shall, previously to their being landed, be transhipped into any other boat without the permisson of an Officer of Customs.

Boat-note.

58. When any goods are sent from on board of any vessel for the purpose of being landed and passed for importation, there shall be sent, with each boat-load or other separate despatch, a boat-note specifying the number of packages so sent, and the marks and numbers or other description thereof.

Each boat-note shall be signed by an officer of the vessel, and likewise by the Officer of Customs on board, if any such officer be on board.

Entry for home-consumption.

59. The importer, owner, or consignee of any dutiable goods intended to be delivered for home-consumption on the landing thereof from the importing ship, or the agent of such importer, owner or consignee, shall make entry of such goods by delivering to the Officer in charge of the Custom House a bill of entry thereof in such form and containing such particulars as may from time to time be directed by the Chief Customs Authority.

The particulars of such entry shall correspond with the particulars given of the same goods and packages in the manifest of the ship.

Claims to abatement of duty on account of damage how to be treated.

60. No claim for any abatement or refund of duty, on account of damage alleged to have been sustained before entry, shall be allowed in respect of any goods imported into any Customs Port, unless such claim be made in writing, and the damaged condition of such goods be ascertained and certified, on the first examination thereof, by a Custom House Appraiser, or by such other person as the Officer in charge of the Custom House appoints for the purpose.

61. Goods, the damaged condition of which is ascertained and certified to the satisfaction of the Officer in charge of the Custom House, may, after notice in the official Gazette, or some mercantile newspaper circulating in the place, be sold by public auction at such time (within thirty days from the date of entry), and at such place as the Officer in charge of the Custom House appoints.

Disposal of damaged goods and levy of duty thereon.

The duty on such goods shall be adjusted on the gross amount realized by their bonâ fide sale, as proved by the original account-sales, without any abatement or deduction, except of so much as represents the duties payable on the importation thereof.

On goods the value of which has been fixed by law for the purpose of levying duties thereon, no abatement of duties shall be allowed, unless they be deteriorated to the extent of one-fifth of their value.

No abatement of duty on account of damage shall be allowed on wines, spirits, or beer or on any other articles on which duties are levied on quantity and not on value.

62. All goods derelict, jetsam, flotsam, and wreck, brought or coming into any Customs Port shall at all times be subject to the same duties to which goods of the like kind are subject on importation at such Port, unless it be shown to the satisfaction of the Officer in charge of the Custom House, that such goods are the produce or manufacture of any country or place, by virtue whereof they are entitled to be admitted duty-free.

Goods derelict and wreck to be treated as Foreign goods.

63. Any portion of an import cargo intended for another Port, or any ship's stores intended for the home voyage, may be declared by the Master of any vessel as not to be landed, and may thereupon, with the special sanction of the Officer in charge of the Custom House, be retained on board, and such cargo or ship's stores so retained shall not be subject to the payment of duty:

No duty on portion of import cargo intended for another Port, ship's stores, &c.

Provided that all such cargo and ship's stores shall be entered in the export manifest of the vessel as cargo or ship's stores not landed, and on which no duty has been paid.

Nothing in this section shall prevent the Officer in charge of the Custom House from sealing up, or otherwise securing, if he see reason for so doing, any portion of such cargo or ship's stores during the vessel's stay in Port.

CHAPTER VII.

WAREHOUSING.

64. Any person who has imported any dutiable goods into any warehousing Port may deposit such goods, without payment of duty on the first entry thereof, in any public or private warehouse approved, appointed, or licensed under this Act.

Deposit of goods in warehouse without payment of duty.

65. Every public warehouse appointed under section 13 shall be under the lock and key of a warehouse-keeper appointed by the Chief Officer of Customs.

Warehouse-keeper.

The warehouse-keeper shall, to the extent provided in sections 70 and 82 and not otherwise, be responsible for the charge of all goods deposited in his warehouse, and for their due reception therein and delivery therefrom.

Responsibility of keeper.

66. The Chief Customs Authority, or such Officer of Customs as such Authority from time to time appoints in this behalf, may from time to time determine in what division of any public warehouse, and in what manner, and on what terms, including rates of rent, any goods and what sort of goods may be deposited without payment of duty on the first entry thereof.

Chief Customs Authority to decide what goods may be deposited in public warehouse, and on what terms.

A table of the rates of rent so fixed for every public warehouse shall be placed in a conspicuous part thereof.

Table of rates of rent.

67. At any warehousing Port or place, the Chief Officer of Customs may license private warehouses for the reception of dutiable goods under this Act without payment of duty on the first entry thereof.

Power to license private warehouses.

Every license for a private warehouse so granted shall, unless it be otherwise provided in the license, be liable to be revoked after one month's notice by the Chief Officer of Customs.

Revocation of license.

68. Every application for a license for a private warehouse shall be in writing, and shall be drawn up in the Form marked A hereto annexed, or in such other form as is from time to time prescribed by the Chief Customs Authority, and shall be signed by the applicant.

Form of application for license.

69. Every application for the admission of goods into any public or private warehouse shall be in writing, and shall be drawn up in the Form marked B hereto annexed, or in such other form as is from time to time prescribed by the Chief Customs Authority, and shall be signed by the applicant.

Form of application for admission of goods into warehouse.

70. No goods shall be warehoused unless they have been assessed for Customs duty in like manner as goods intended to be passed for home-consumption.

No goods to be warehoused without payment of duty, unless assessed for Customs duty.

The warehouse-keeper in respect of goods lodged in a public warehouse, and the person who obtained the license in respect of goods lodged in a private warehouse, shall be answerable for the weight or gauge reported by the Custom House Officer who has assessed such goods, allowance being made, if necessary, for ullage and wastage as provided in section 84.

Public warehouse-keeper or license-holder of private warehouse to be answerable for weight or gauge.

Nothing in this section shall interfere with the re-assessment for duty of warehoused goods on their clearance for home-consumption, should an alteration of any duty or of any valuation for duty render such re-assessment requisite with reference to the provisions of section 31.

Saving of re-assessment of warehoused goods on clearance for home-consumption.

71. When an application has been made for the warehousing of any goods under this Act, and when such goods have been assessed for duty as directed in section 70, the importer, owner, or consignee, or his agent shall execute a bond for the amount of such duty in the Form marked C hereto annexed, or in such other form as is from time to time prescribed by the Chief Customs Authority.

Bond under what circumstances to be taken. Form and conditions of bond.

Every such bond shall relate to the duties chargeable on the cargo or portion of the cargo of one vessel only.

72. Every bond shall be for twice the amount of duty assessed on the goods to which it relates, and shall stipulate for the payment, on demand, of any sum due on account of any such goods, together with interest on such sum from the date of demand, at such rate, not exceeding six per cent. per annum, as is fixed by the Chief Customs Authority.

Terms of bond to be executed.

Every person executing any such bond shall be bound thereby for the payment of all duties, interest, and charges claimable on account of the goods, and of penalties incurred for violation of the Customs law in respect to the same.

73. When any such bond has been executed, the goods to which such bond relates shall be allowed to remain in warehouse for a period not exceeding three years, without being liable to the demand of import duty.

Period for which goods may remain warehoused under bond.

74. When the provisions of sections 69, 70, 71 and 72 have been complied with in respect to any goods, such goods shall be forwarded in charge of an Officer of Customs to the warehouse in which they are to be deposited.

Procedure in respect of goods to be warehoused.

There shall be sent with the goods a pass in which the name of the importing vessel and of the bonder, the marks, numbers, and contents of each package, and the warehouse or place in the warehouse wherein they are to be deposited, shall be specified.

On receipt of the goods into the warehouse, the correctness of the pass, if it be correct, shall be duly certified by the proper officer, and the pass shall be returned to the Officer in charge of the Custom House, after which the warehousing of such goods shall be deemed to have been completed.

75. No package, butt, cask, or hogshead shall be admitted into any public or private warehouse, unless it bear the marks and numbers specified in the pass for its admission.

Packages &c., to be marked and numbered before admission into warehouse.

76. All goods shall be warehoused in the packages, butts, casks, or hogsheads in which they have been imported, except as provided in section 81.

Goods how warehoused.

77. The Officer in charge of the Custom House may at any time issue his written order to cause any goods or packages lodged in any public or private warehouse to be opened, weighed, or otherwise examined as he directs; and after any goods have been so opened or examined, may cause the same to be sealed or marked in such manner as he thinks fit.

Power to cause packages lodged in warehouse to be opened and examined.

When any goods have been so sealed and marked after examination, they shall not be again opened without permission from the Officer in charge of the Custom House; and when any such goods are opened with the permission of such Officer, the packages shall, if it seems fit to such Officer, again be sealed or marked as before.

78. The Officer in charge of the Custom House, or any Officer deputed by him for the purpose, shall have access to any private warehouse licensed under this Act.

Access of customs officer to private warehouse.

79. Every bond executed for duty chargeable on goods deposited in any private warehouse shall become due and may be put in suit for the levy of such duties and other demands of Customs after seven days have passed from the date on which the Officer in charge of the Custom House has given notice that the license for such warehouse is withdrawn.

When bond for duty on goods in private warehouse may be sued on.

80. Any importer, owner, or consignee of goods lodged in a public or private warehouse under this Act, or the agent of any such importer, owner, or consignee shall, at any time within the hours of business, have access to his goods in presence of an Officer of Customs, and an Officer of Customs shall be deputed to accompany any such person upon application for the purpose being made in writing to the Officer in charge of the Custom House.

Access of owners to warehoused goods.

When an Officer of Customs is deputed as above, the person making the application shall, if required so to do, pay into the hands of the Officer in charge of the Custom House a sum sufficient to meet the expense of employing a special Officer for this purpose, whenever the Officer in charge of the Custom House finds it expedient to employ such special Officer.

81. With the sanction of the Officer in charge of the Custom House, and after such notice given, and under such rules and conditions as the Chief Customs Authority from time to time prescribes, it shall be lawful for any importer, owner, or consignee of goods, or his agent, either before or after warehousing,

Goods in warehouse may be sorted, repacked, &c., by owner, &c.

(a) to sort, separate, pack, and repack any goods, and to make such alterations therein as may be necessary for the preservation, sale, shipment, or disposal thereof (such goods to be repacked in the packages in which they were imported, or in such other packages as the Officer in charge of the Custom House permits);

(b) to fill up any casks of wine, spirits, or beer from any casks of the same secured in the same warehouse;

(c) to mix any wines of the same sort, erasing from the cask all import-brands, unless the whole of the wine so mixed be of the same brand;

(d) to take such samples of goods as may be allowed by the Officer in charge of the Custom House, with or without entry, and with or without payment of duty, except as the same may eventually become payable on a deficiency of the original quantity;

and after such goods have been so separated and repacked in proper or approved packages, the Officer in charge of the Custom House may, at the request of the importer, owner, or consignee of such goods, or his agent, cause or permit any refuse, damaged, or surplus goods remaining after such separation or repacking (or, at the like request, any goods which may not be worth the duty) to be destroyed, and may remit the duty payable thereon.

82. No importer, owner, or consignee of goods shall be entitled to claim from the Officer in charge of the Custom House, or from any keeper of a public warehouse, compensation for any loss or injury occurring to such goods while they are being passed into or out of such warehouse, or while they remain therein, unless it be proved that such loss or injury was occasioned by the wilful act or neglect of the warehouse-keeper or of an Officer of Customs.

Compensation for loss or injury not admissible, except in case of proved wilful neglect, &c.

83. If any goods warehoused or entered to be warehoused, or entered to be delivered from a warehouse, are lost or destroyed by unavoidable accident or delay either on board of any vessel, or in landing, or during receipt into the warehouse, or in the warehouse, the Chief Customs Authority may remit the duties due thereon, or return them if paid:

Power to remit duties on warehoused goods lost or destroyed;

Provided that, if any goods be so destroyed in a private warehouse, notice thereof be given to the Officer in charge of the Custom House within forty-eight hours after the discovery of such destruction.

If goods lodged in a warehouse receive damage through unavoidable accident, they shall be reassessed for duty according to their actual value, and a new bond for the same shall be executed for the unexpired term of warehousing.

and if goods are damaged, duty to be levied on actual value.

84. The import duty on all goods shall be settled on the quantity or value thereof, as the case may be, registered at the time of importation, without any deduction whatever:

Import duty to be on quantity or value registered at time of importation.

Proviso as to wines, spirits, beer or salt.

Provided that, if it appear, at the time of clearing any wines, spirits, beer or salt from any warehouse, that a deficiency exists, an allowance (on account of ullage and wastage) shall be made in adjusting the duties thereon, to an extent not exceeding the rates specified below, or in such table as may from time to time be prescribed in this behalf by the Local Government and notified in the official Gazette:

Rates of ullage or wastage in respect to Wines, Spirits, and Beer in cask.

For any time not exceeding	6 months	... 2½ per cent.
Exceeding 6 months and not exceeding	12 ,,	... 5 ,,
Exceeding 12 months and not exceeding	18 ,,	... 7½ ,,
Exceeding 18 months and not exceeding	2 years	... 10 ,,
Exceeding 2 years and not exceeding	3 ,,	... 12½ ,,

When Salt is warehoused in a Government Gola or Store-house under charge of a Government Officer, duty of Customs shall be chargeable only on the amount actually cleared.

The rate of wastage to be allowed in adjusting the duties on Salt warehoused in a private Gola or Store-house shall be prescribed from time to time by the Local Government and notified in the official Gazette.

85. When any Wines, Spirits, Beer or Salt lodged in a private warehouse are found to be deficient at the time of the delivery therefrom, and if such deficiency is proved to be due solely to ullage or wastage, the Chief Customs Authority may direct, in respect to any such article and for the purposes of this section, that allowance be made in any special case for a rate of ullage or wastage exceeding that contemplated in section 84.

Allowance for ullage or wastage in case of wines, &c., lodged in private warehouse.

86. No goods shall be removed from any warehouse, except after application to the Officer in charge of the Custom House for permission to pass the goods for exportation by sea to some Foreign Port or place;

Goods not to be removed from warehouse, except after application to Officer in charge of Custom House.

or for home-consumption, in like manner as is prescribed by section 59 for goods entered for home-consumption on the landing thereof;

or for removal to another warehouse, as provided in sections 93, 94, 95 and 96.

87. Application to remove goods from any warehouse shall be made in the Form marked D hereto annexed, or in such other form as the Chief Customs Authority from time to time prescribes.

Form of application for removal of goods.

Such application shall ordinarily be made to the Officer in charge of the Custom House twenty-four hours before it is intended so to remove such goods.

Twenty-four hours' notice to be given.

88. If any goods are taken out of any warehouse otherwise than as is provided in this Act, the bonder shall forthwith pay the duties due upon such goods.

Immediate payment of duty on goods improperly taken out of warehouse.

89. The expenses of carriage, packing, and stowage of goods on their reception into or removal from a warehouse shall, if paid by the Officer in charge of the Custom House or by the warehouse-keeper, be chargeable on the goods, and be defrayed by the importer, owner, or consignee, in like manner as the duties of Customs.

Expenses of carriage, packing, &c., to be borne by owners.

90. If goods be lodged in a public warehouse, the importer, owner, or consignee shall further pay monthly, on receiving a bill or written demand for the same from the warehouse-keeper, the rent and warehouse dues.

Payment of rent and warehouse dues.

If any such bill for rent or warehouse dues be not discharged within ten days from the date of presentation, the Officer in charge of the Custom House may, in liquidation of such demand (any transfer or assignment of the goods notwithstanding), cause to be sold by public auction after due notice in the official Gazette such sufficient portion of the goods as he may select.

In case of failure, goods may be sold, &c.

Out of the proceeds of such sale the Officer in charge of the Custom House shall first satisfy the demand for the liquidation of which the sale was ordered, and shall then pay over the surplus, if any, to the importer, owner, or consignee:

Disposal of proceeds.

Provided that application for the same be made within one year from the sale of the goods, or that good reason be shown why such application was not so made.

91. If any goods warehoused as provided in this Act are removed or taken from the warehouse otherwise than for removal to another warehouse, as provided in sections 93, 94, 95 and 96, or for exportation by sea to some Foreign Port or place;

On goods being removed otherwise than for export, &c., full duty to be paid.

or if any goods have not been cleared from the warehouse and so exported at the expiration of the time during which such goods are permitted by this Act to remain in warehouse, the Officer in charge of the Custom House shall thereupon demand the full amount of import duty which is chargeable on account of such goods, together with all charges or penalties due on account of them.

But if any goods so warehoused are before the expiration of the time last mentioned removed or taken from the warehouse for removal to another warehouse as provided in sections 93 to 96 inclusive, or for exportation by sea to some Foreign Port or place, no duty shall be chargeable.

92. If any importer, owner, or consignee fails to pay any duty or penalty that falls due on account of goods warehoused under this Act, the Officer in charge of the Custom House may either proceed upon the bond executed by such importer, owner, or consignee, or may cause such portion as to him seems fit of the warehoused goods on account of which the duty or penalty is demanded, to be detained in satisfaction thereof;

Procedure on failure to pay duty.

and if the demand be not discharged within ten days from the date of such detention (due notice thereof being given to the importer, owner, or consignee), the goods so detained shall be liable to be sold by public auction in satisfaction of the demand, after due notice in the official Gazette.

The proceeds of any sale so made of goods so detained shall be written off upon the bond in discharge thereof to the amount received, less the charges of the sale; and if any surplus be obtained from such sale, beyond the amount of the demand, such surplus shall be paid over to the importer, owner, or consignee of the goods: Provided that application for the same be made within one year from the sale, or that good reason be shown why such application was not so made.

No transfer or assignment of goods shall prevent the Officer in charge of the Custom House from proceeding against such goods in the manner above provided, for any demand of Customs duties or penalty claimed thereon.

93. Any importer, owner, or consignee of goods warehoused under this Act, or any agent of such importer, owner, or consignee may, with the permission of the Chief Officer of Customs, and on such conditions and after giving such security as the Chief Customs Authority directs, remove goods from one public or private warehouse to another warehouse in the same Port.

Power to remove goods from one warehouse to another.

When any person desires so to remove any goods, he shall make application in the Form marked E hereto annexed, or in such other form as the Chief Customs Authority from time to time prescribes.

94. Goods warehoused under this Act at any warehousing Port may from time to time be removed by sea or by inland carriage, in order to be re-warehoused at any other warehousing Port.

Bonded goods may be removed from one Port to another.

When any person desires so to remove any goods, he shall apply to the Chief Officer of Customs, stating the particulars of the goods to be removed, and the name of the Port or place to which it is intended that they shall be removed, together with such other information, and in such manner and form, as the Chief Customs Authority from time to time prescribes.

Procedure.

95. When permission is granted for the removal of any goods from one warehousing Port or place to another, under section 94, an account containing the particulars thereof shall be transmitted by the proper Officer of the Port or place of removal to the proper Officer of the Port or place of destination;

Officers at Port of removal to transmit account of goods to Officers at Port of destination.

and the person requiring the removal shall enter into a bond, with one sufficient surety, in a sum equal at least to the duty chargeable on such goods, for the due arrival and warehousing thereof at the Port or place of destination within such time as the Chief Customs Authority directs.

Owner to execute bond for due arrival, &c.

Such bond may be taken by the proper Officer either of the Port or place of removal, or of the Port or place of destination, as best suits the residence or convenience of the persons interested in such removal.

If such bond is taken at the Port or place of destination, a certificate thereof, signed by the proper Officer of such Port or place shall, at the time of the entering of such goods, be produced to the proper Officer of the Port or place of removal, and such bond shall not be discharged unless such goods are produced to the proper Officer and duly re-warehoused at the Port or place of destination within the time allowed for such removal, or are otherwise accounted for to the satisfaction of such Officer; nor until the full duties due upon any deficiency of such goods, not so accounted for, have been paid.

96. The Chief Customs Authority may permit any person desirous of removing warehoused goods to enter into a general bond, with such sureties, in such amount, and under such conditions as the Chief Customs Authority approves, for the removal from time to time of any goods from one warehouse to another, either in the same or in a different Port or place, and for the due arrival and re-warehousing of such goods at the Port or place of destination within such time as the Chief Customs Authority directs.

Remover may enter into a general bond.

97. Upon the arrival of warehoused goods at the Port or place of destination, they shall be entered and warehoused in like manner as goods are entered and warehoused on the first importation thereof, and under the laws and rules, in so far as such laws and rules can be made applicable, which regulate the entry and warehousing of such last mentioned goods.

Goods on arrival at Port of destination to be subject to same laws as goods on first importation.

98. When any goods warehoused as provided in this Act are removed from any public or private warehouse, the Officer in charge of the Custom House shall cause such removal to be noted on the back of the bond.

Removal of goods to be noted on the bond, with particulars.

Every note so made shall specify the quantity and description of goods removed, the purposes for which they have been removed, the date of removal, the name of the person removing them, the number and date of the export-pass under which they have been taken away, if removed for exportation by sea, or of the import-pass or order if removed for home-consumption, and the amount of duty (if any) paid.

99. A register shall be kept of all bonds entered into for Customs duties on goods warehoused as provided in this Act, and entry shall be made in such register of all particulars specified in section 98.

A register of bonds to be kept.

When the register shows that the entire quantity of the goods covered by any bond has been withdrawn from warehouse, either owing to the goods being passed for home-consumption on the payment of duties, or owing to their re-exportation by sea to some Foreign Port or place, and when all charges and penalties which have been incurred on account of such goods have been paid, the Officer in charge of the Custom House shall cancel such bond as discharged in full, and deliver it, so cancelled, to the person who has executed or who is authorised to receive it.

When bonds are to be cancelled and returned to obligee.

100. In no case shall the settlement of duty on warehoused goods be delayed beyond three years from the date of the first warehousing of the goods in British India.

Duty on warehoused goods to be settled within three years.

101. As often as any goods are lodged in a public warehouse or a licensed private warehouse, the warehouse-keeper, or, in the case of the Bengal Bonded Warehouse Association, the Secretary of the said Association, shall deliver a warrant signed by him as such to the person lodging the goods.

Warrant to be given every time goods are warehoused.

Such warrant shall be in the Form I hereto annexed, and shall be transferable by endorsement; and the endorsee shall be entitled to receive the goods specified in such warrant on the same terms as those on which the person who originally lodged the goods would have been entitled to receive the same.

Form of warrant.

102. All the provisions of this Act, relating to private warehouses, shall be applicable to the warehouses wherein the Bengal Bonded Warehouse Association receives bonded goods.

Provisions relating to private warehouses applicable to Bengal Bonded Warehouse Association.

CHAPTER VIII.

TRANSHIPMENT.

103. When goods other than salt or opium are brought in any vessel to any Port in British India, and such goods have been specially and distinctly manifested or declared at the time of import as for transhipment to any other British Indian or Foreign Port, and application is made for leave to tranship such goods, such transhipment shall be allowed without the payment of duty at the Port of transhipment, subject to such rules as may from time to time be prescribed by the Local Government:

When goods brought into one Indian Port, but intended for another Indian or Foreign Port, may be transhipped without payment of duty.

Provided that where the goods so transhipped are to be removed to some other Port in British India, the person requiring such transhipment shall enter into a bond, with such security as may be required of him, in a sum equal at least to the duty chargeable on such goods, for the due arrival and entry thereof at the Port of destination within such time as the Chief Officer of Customs of the Port of transhipment directs.

Such goods shall thereupon be treated in all respects as warehoused goods, removed under the provisions of sections 94 and 95.

An Officer of Customs shall, in every case, be deputed to superintend the removal of such goods from vessel to vessel.

104. A transhipment fee on each bale or package of goods transhipped under section 103 shall be levied at such rates and under such regulations as may from time to time be prescribed by the Local Government.

Levy of transhipment fee.

All such rates and regulations shall be published in the local official Gazette.

105. All goods transhipped under section 103 for removal to a Port in British India shall on their arrival at such Port be entered and warehoused in like manner as goods are entered and warehoused on the first importation thereof and under the laws and rules,

Entry and warehousing on arrival of goods transhipped under section 103.

in so far as such laws and rules can be made applicable which regulate the entry and warehousing of such last mentioned goods.

106. If two or more vessels belonging to the same owner be at any Port in British India at the same time, any articles of marine stores in use or ordinarily shipped for use on board may, at the discretion of the Officer in charge of the Custom House, be transhipped from one such vessel to any other such vessel without payment of import duty.

Transhipment of stores from one vessel to another of the same owner without payment of duty.

CHAPTER IX.

EXPORTATION.

107. No vessel shall be entitled to entry outwards, or to take on board any part of her export cargo, until a written application has been duly made to the Officer in charge of the Custom House by the Master of such vessel, or by his authorized agent; nor until an order has been given thereon by such Officer for such entry or shipment of cargo.

Permission for entry outwards to be obtained before export cargo is shipped.

Every application made under this section shall specify the name, tonnage, and nation of the vessel, the name of the Master, and the name of every place for which cargo is to be shipped.

108. A period of fifteen working days after the expiration of the period allowed for discharging import-cargo under section fifty, or such further period as the Officer in charge of the Custom House directs, shall be allowed for the shipment of export-cargo on board of every vessel not exceeding six hundred tons.

Period allowed for shipment of export-cargo.

One additional day shall in like manner be allowed for every fifty tons in excess of six hundred.

No charge shall be made for the services of a single Officer of Customs for such period of fifteen working days, or for the services of several such Officers for respective periods not exceeding in the aggregate fifteen working days.

If the period occupied in the shipment of export-cargo be in excess of that allowed, the vessel shall be charged with the expense of the Officer of Customs at a rate not exceeding five rupees per diem (Sundays and holidays excepted) for such excess period.

Consequence of exceeding same.

Due allowance shall in such case be made for any period during which a vessel, after the completion of the discharge of import-cargo and before commencing of export-cargo, shall be laid up by the withdrawal of the Officer of Customs upon application from the Master.

Allowance for period during which vessel is laid up.

109. No goods shall be shipped or water-borne to be shipped for exportation, until the exporter or his agent has filled in and delivered to the Officer in charge of the Custom House, or other proper Officer, a shipping bill of such goods in the Form marked F hereto annexed, or in such other form as may from time to time be prescribed by the Chief Customs Authority.

Exporter to deliver shipping bill before shipping any goods.

110. Before any warehoused goods or goods subject to duties of Excise, or goods entitled to drawback of Customs on exportation, or goods exportable only under particular rules or restrictions, are permitted to be exported, the exporter or his agent shall, if required so to do, give security by bond in such sum, not exceeding twice the duty leviable on such goods, as the Officer in charge of the Custom House directs, with one sufficient surety that such goods shall be duly shipped, exported, and landed at the place for which they are entered outwards, or shall be otherwise accounted for to the satisfaction of such Officer.

On entry outwards, bond to be given for shipping and landing.

111. When any goods are sent for the purpose of being shipped for exportation on board of any vessel, there shall be sent, with each boat-load or other separate despatch, a boat-note specifying the number of packages so sent and the marks and numbers or other description thereof.

Boat-note.

Each boat-note shall be signed by the proper Officer of Customs, and, if an Officer of Customs is on board of the vessel on which such goods are to be shipped, shall be delivered to such Officer.

If no such Officer be on board, every such boat-note shall be delivered to the Master of the vessel, or to an Officer of the vessel appointed by him to receive it.

112. No vessel, whether laden, partially laden, or in ballast, shall depart from any Port in British India until a port-clearance has been granted by the Officer in charge of the Custom House or other Officer duly authorized to grant the same.

No vessel to depart without a port-clearance.

Every application for port-clearance shall be made by the Master at least twenty-four hours before the intended departure of the vessel; and every Master of a vessel so applying for port-clearance shall answer to the proper Officer of Customs such questions touching her departure and destination as are demanded of him.

A certificate of departure without port-clearance purporting to be signed by the Chief Officer of Customs of the Port from which any vessel is stated to have so departed, shall be sufficient primâ facie proof of the fact so certified.

113. No Pilot shall take charge of any vessel proceeding to sea, unless the Master of such vessel produces a port-clearance.

No Pilot to take charge of any vessel proceeding to sea without production of port-clearance

114. The Master of every vessel intending to leave any Port in British India shall, at the time of applying for port-clearance, deliver to the Officer in charge of the Custom House, or other duly authorized Officer, a manifest in duplicate according to such form as may from time to time be prescribed by the Chief Customs Authority, containing a full and true specification of all goods to be exported in the vessel and signed by the Master;

Master on applying for port-clearance, to deliver manifest and certificates.

and shall also deliver to the Officer in charge of the Custom House, or other duly authorized Officer, such certificates as the Officer in charge of the Custom House, acting under the general instructions of such Chief Customs Authority, requires.

The Officer in charge of the Custom House, or other duly authorized Officer, when satisfied with the said certificates, and as to the correctness of the manifest, shall grant a port-clearance to the Master, and shall return at the same time to such Master one copy of the manifest duly countersigned by the proper Officer of Customs.

Nothing in this section shall prevent the Officer in charge of the Custom House from granting (subject to such rules as the Chief Customs Authority may from time to time prescribe) a port-clearance to the Master when the Ship's Agent furnishes sufficient security for duly delivering, within three days from the date of grant, the manifest and certificates aforesaid.

Port-clearance may be refused, unless all documents are delivered and charges paid.

115. The Officer in charge of the Custom House may refuse port-clearance to any vessel until the required manifest and certificates are produced, and until all Port-dues and other charges and penalties due by such vessel, or by the Master thereof, are duly paid, or their payment secured by such guarantee, or by a deposit at such rate, as the Officer in charge of the Custom House directs.

Additional charge on goods passed for shipment after port-clearance has been granted.

116. When goods are passed through the Custom House for shipment on an application presented after port-clearance has been granted, two per cent. upon the market-value of any such goods not liable to duty, or liable to specific duties according to weight or quantity only, or to duty according to value, and upon the tariff value of goods so passed which are liable to duties on fixed tariff valuations, shall in every case be levied, in addition to any duty to which such goods are ordinarily liable:

Nothing in this section shall apply to any shipment of Treasure or Opium.

Return of duty on goods not shipped or re-landed.

117. Upon an application being made to the Officer in charge of the Custom House, the duty levied upon goods not shipped, or upon goods shipped and afterwards re-landed, shall be returned to the person on whose behalf such duty was paid:

Proviso.

Provided that no such refund shall be allowed unless application therefor has been made before the expiration of three clear working days after the vessel on which such goods were intended to be shipped, or from which they were re-landed, has left the Port.

Goods re-landed from a vessel returning to Port or putting into another Port.

118. If any vessel, after having cleared from any Customs Port shall, without having discharged her cargo, return to such Port, or put into any other Customs Port, any owner or shipper of cargo in such vessel, or the agent of any such owner or shipper, if he desires to land the same or any portion thereof for re-export, may make application to the Officer in charge of the Custom House.

Such Officer, if he grant the application, shall thereupon send an Officer of Customs to watch the vessel, and to take charge of the cargo during such re-landing or removal from on board.

Goods on board of such vessel shall not be allowed to be transhipped or re-exported free of duty by reason of the previous settlement of duty at the time of first export, unless such goods are lodged and remain under charge of an Officer of Customs, in a place appointed by the Officer in charge of the Custom House, until the time of re-export.

All charges attending such custody shall be borne by the exporter.

Vessel returning to Port may enter and land goods under Import-rules.

119. In either of the cases mentioned in section 118, the Master of the vessel, or any owner or shipper of cargo therein, may enter such vessel and land such cargo under the rules for the importation of goods.

In every such case the export duty shall be refunded to, and the amount paid in drawback shall be reclaimed from, such owner or shipper.

Provisions, stores, &c., for consumption on vessels proceeding to Foreign Ports may be exported duty free on certain conditions.

120. Provisions and other such ship's stores warehoused at the time of importation may be exported without payment of duty for use and consumption on board of any vessel proceeding directly to a Foreign port or place, whether such port or place be or be not the port or place of ultimate destination.

Articles of Indian produce or manufacture including rum, required for use on board of any vessel proceeding to any Foreign Port or place, may also be exported free of duty, whether of Customs or Excise, in such quantities as the Officer in charge of the Custom House determines with reference to the tonnage of the vessel, the numbers of the crew and passengers, and the length of the voyage on which the vessel is about to depart:

Provided that no such rum shall be shipped as stores free of duty on any vessel not going to a Foreign Port or place, or going on a voyage of less than thirty days' probable duration.

CHAPTER X.

DRAWBACK.

Amount of drawback allowable on re-export.

121. Upon the re-export by sea to any Foreign Port or place of any goods, except Salt or Opium, capable of being easily identified, imported by Sea into British India from any Foreign Port or place, and upon which duties of Customs have been paid on importation, three-fourths of such duty shall be repaid as drawback:

Conditions for grant of drawback.

Provided that, in every such case, the goods be identified to the satisfaction of the Officer in charge of the Custom House, and that the re-export be made within two years from the date of importation, as shown by the Custom House Register, or within such extended term as the Chief Customs Authority, on sufficient cause for such extension being shown, in any case determines.

The Governor General in Council may from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, declare what goods shall for the purpose of this section be deemed to be capable of being easily identified.

No repayment shall be made under this section on account of any article entered in the export manifest of the vessel as ship's stores.

Time to claim and demand payment of drawback.

122. No payment of drawback shall be made upon any goods re-exported from any port in British India, unless the claim to receive such drawback be made and established at the time of re-export, nor unless payment be demanded within one year from the date of entry for shipment.

No such payment of drawback shall be made until the vessel carrying the goods has put out to sea.

Drawback not allowed on goods of value less than amount claimed.

123. No drawback shall be allowed upon the exportation of any goods entered for drawback, which are of less value than the amount of the drawback claimed.

Drawback on exportation of spirit.

124. A drawback of the whole of the duties paid under Act No. XXIII of 1860 (to amend Act XXI of 1856, to consolidate and amend the law relating to the Abkárí Revenue in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal), section one, on spirit manufactured at distilleries worked according to the English method and exported by sea in manner prescribed by Act No. XXI of 1856 (to consolidate and amend the law relating to the Abkárí Revenue in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal) to any Foreign Port shall be allowed at the port of exportation:

Provided that the exportation be made within one year from the date of the payment of duty under the said Act No. XXIII of 1860, and that the spirit, when brought to the Custom House, be accompanied by the pass in which such payment is certified.

No drawback on goods not entered in Export manifest.

125. No drawback shall be allowed upon goods not included in the Export manifest.

No drawback allowed except on goods exported out of India.

126. No drawback shall be allowed upon goods exported from one Customs Port to another.

But drawback may be allowed upon goods which, after having been charged with dutyat one Customs Port and thence exported to another, are thence again re-exported by sea to a Foreign Port or place:

Proviso.

Provided that, in every such case, the goods be identified to the satisfaction of the Officer in charge of the Custom House at the Port of final exportation, and that such final exportation be made within three years from the date of first importation into British India.

Declaration to be made by parties claiming drawback.

127. Every person, or his duly authorized agent, claiming drawback on any goods duly exported, shall make and subscribe a declaration that such goods have been actually exported, and have not been re-landed and are not intended to be re-landed at any Customs Port; and that such person was at the time of entry and shipment, and continues to be, entitled to drawback thereon.

Drawback of duties on wine allowed for Officers of the Navy.

128. A drawback of the whole of the duties of Customs shall be allowed for wine intended for the consumption of any Officer of Her Majesty's Navy, on board of any of Her Majesty's ships in actual service, unless such wine has been warehoused without payment of duty on the first entry thereof.

The quantity of wine on which drawback may be so allowed in any one year for the use of any such Officer shall not exceed the proportions specified below; that is to say—

	Gals.
For every Admiral ...	1,260
Vice-Admiral	1,050
Rear-Admiral	840
Captain of 1st and 2nd rate ...	630
Captain of 3rd, 4th, and 5th rate	420
Captain of an inferior rate ...	210
Lieutenant or other Commanding Officer, and for every Marine Officer, Master, Purser, or Surgeon ...	105

Persons entering such wine for drawback to declare name and rank of Officer claiming same.

129. Every person clearing and claiming drawback for wine, as provided in section 128, shall state in the entry the name of the Officer for whose use such wine is intended, and of the ship in which he serves, as well as the place and date of the last supply for which drawback was allowed.

All such wine shall be delivered into the charge of the proper Officers of Customs at the Port of shipment, to be shipped under their care; and when the Officer commanding the ship has certified the receipt of such wine into his charge, and the proper Officer of Customs has certified the shipment, the drawback shall be paid to the person entitled to receive the same.

Transfer of wine from one Naval Officer to another, &c.

130. The Officer in charge of the Custom House may permit the transfer of any such wine from one Naval Officer to another Naval Officer on board of the same, or of any other such ship, as part of his authorized proportion;

or may permit the transhipment of any such Wine from one ship to another for the use of the same Naval Officer;

or the re-landing and warehousing of any such Wine for future re-shipment.

The Officer in charge of the Custom House may also receive back the duties for any such wine, and allow the same to be cleared for home-consumption.

Provisions and stores for Her Majesty's Navy exempt from duty.

131. Provisions and stores for the use of Her Majesty's Navy shall, in like manner, be passed free of duty; and where duties have been paid on such provisions and stores, drawback of such duties, whether of Customs or Excise, shall be allowed on receipt of application in writing from the Officer commanding the ship for which they are intended, or from some other Officer duly authorized to make such application.

CHAPTER XI.

COASTING TRADE.

Power to regulate carriage of goods coastwise.

132. The Governor General in Council, or the Local Government acting under the general instructions of the Governor General in Council, may from time to time determine, by rules to be published in the official Gazette, on what conditions goods may be carried in a coasting vessel, though shipped at a Foreign Port in India to be so carried; also in what cases goods may be shipped in a coasting vessel before all goods brought in such vessel from a Foreign Port or place have been unladen.

Rules respecting cargo-book to be kept by Masters of coasting vessels.

133. The Master of every coasting vessel, which is square-rigged or propelled by steam, shall keep, or cause to be kept, a cargo-book stating the name of the Master, the vessel, the Port to which she belongs, and the Port to which on each voyage she is bound.

At every Port of lading such Master shall enter, or cause to be entered, in such book the name of such Port, and an account of all goods there taken on board of such vessel, with a description of the packages, and the quantities and descriptions of the goods contained therein or stowed loose, and the names of the respective shippers and consignees, in so far as such particulars are known to him.

At every Port of discharge of any such goods, such Master shall enter, or cause to be entered, in such book the respective days on which such goods or any of them are delivered out of such vessel.

The respective times of departure from every Port of lading, and of arrival at every Port of discharge, shall in like manner be duly entered.

Every such Master shall, on demand, produce his cargo-book for the inspection of any Officer of Customs, and such Officer shall be at liberty to make any note or remark therein.

Power to prescribe rules for Masters of other coasting vessels.

134. The Governor General in Council or the Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, prescribe rules for the guidance of the Masters of all other coasting vessels, as to the matters mentioned in the last preceding section.

Coasting vessels to deliver account and obtain port-clearance before leaving Port of lading.

135. Before any coasting vessel departs from the Port of lading, an account, with a duplicate thereof, in the Form marked G hereto annexed, or in such other form as may from time to time be prescribed by the Chief Customs Authority, shall be filled in and signed by the Master and delivered to the Officer in charge of the Custom House.

Such Officer shall retain the duplicate and return the original account dated and signed by him; and such account shall be the clearance of the vessel for the voyage and the pass for the goods shipped therein.

Power to require bond before port-clearance granted.

136. The Officer in charge of the Custom House may, for sufficient reason, refuse port-clearance to any vessel declared to be bound to any Port in British India, unless the owner, agent, Master gives a bond with sufficient security for the production to the Officer in charge of the Custom House of a certificate from an Officer of the Port to which such vessel is said to be bound, of her arrival at such Port within a reasonable time to be prescribed in each case by the Officer requiring the bond.

Grant and revocation of general pass.

137. The Chief Customs Authority may, on cause being shown, permit a general pass to be given, on any conditions which may be deemed expedient, for the lading and clearance, and for the entry and unlading, of any coasting steam-vessel at any Ports of despatch or destination, or at any intermediate Ports at which she touches for the purpose of receiving goods or passengers.

Any such general pass may be revoked by notice in writing under the hand of the proper Officer delivered to the Master or to the owner of such steam-vessel, or to any of the crew on board.

Time for delivery of pass.

138. Within twenty-four hours after the arrival of any coasting vessel at the Port of discharge, and before any goods are unladen therefrom, the pass, with the name of the place or wharf where the cargo is to be discharged noted thereon, shall be delivered to an Officer of the Port, who shall note thereon the date of delivery.

Goods on coasting vessel, if excisable, not to be unladen without permission.

139. If any of the goods on board of any coasting vessel be subject to any duty of Excise, they shall not be unladen without the permission of the proper Officer of Excise.

Power to board and examine any coasting vessel.

140. Any duly empowered Officer of Customs may go on board of any coasting vessel in any Port or place in British India, and may at any period of a voyage search any such vessel and examine all goods on board and all goods then lading or unlading, and may demand the production of any document which ought to be on board of any such vessel.

The Officer in charge of the Custom House may further require that any such document belonging to any coasting vessel then in Port shall be brought to him for inspection.

CHAPTER XII.

CARGO BOATS.

Power to prohibit plying of unlicensed cargo-boats.

141. The Local Government may declare with regard to any Port, by notification in the official Gazette, that after a stated date no boat not duly licensed and registered will be allowed to ply as a cargo-boat for the lading and shipping of merchandize within the limits of such Port.

Issue of licenses.

142. The Chief Officer of Customs of the Port with regard to which a notification has been issued under section 141 may issue licenses for and make registration of cargo-boats, under such rules and on payment of such fees as the Local Government from time to time prescribes.

Every table of fees prescribed under this section shall be published in the local official Gazette.

CHAPTER XIII.

SPIRITS.

Rules for removal of spirits from distillery without payment of duty, and for exportation thereof.

143. The Chief Customs Authority may from time to time prescribe the conditions on which and the rules under which spirits manufactured in British India after the English method may be removed from any licensed distillery for exportation without payment of duty of Excise.

The person so removing any such spirits shall execute to the Government a bond with one or more sureties, in the Form marked H hereto annexed, or in such other form as the said Chief Customs Authority from time to time prescribes, for the payment of duty on such portion of the said spirits as is not exported within four months from the date of the bond, and upon any portion which is exported to any other Port in British India not being a Customs Port, but proof of the landing whereof and of payment of duty of Customs thereon at the Port of destination is not furnished to the satisfaction of the proper Officer within six months from the date of the bond.

The Chief Officer of Customs of the Port of exportation may extend for a further term not exceeding four months, on sufficient cause shown, the period allowed for the exportation of any such spirits, or for the production of such proof that duty has been paid.

Spirits for export to be taken direct from distillery to Custom House under pass.

144. Spirits for exportation under bond for the duty of Excise shall be taken from the distillery direct to the Custom House, under passes to be granted for that purpose by the Officers of Excise.

Rules to be observed in exportation of spirits.

145. Spirits brought to the Custom House for exportation by sea shall, previous to shipment, be gauged and proved by an Officer of Customs.

Any drawback to be allowed for spirits on which duty has been paid shall be regulated by the strength and quantity of such spirits as ascertained by such proof and gauge; and the quantity of spirits for which credit is to be given in the settlement of any bond shall be determined in the same manner.

Duty to be recovered on any deficiency in spirits under bond.

146. Duty shall be recoverable upon any difference between the quantity of spirits passed from a distillery and the quantity ascertained by gauge and proof at the Custom House, less an allowance for ullage and wastage at such rates as are from time to time prescribed by the Local Government and notified in the official Gazette.

Drawback of Excise duty on spirits manufactured after English method.

147. A drawback of duty of Excise paid on spirits manufactured in British India after the English method, and exported to any Foreign Port or place under the provisions of section 110, shall be allowed by the Officer in charge of the Custom House at the Port of exportation:

Provided that the exportation be made within one year from the date of payment of such duty of Excise, and that the spirits, when brought to the Custom House, be accompanied by the pass in which such payment is certified.

No drawback allowed on spirits exported to Indian Ports not being Customs Ports, but such spirits may be exported under bond.

148. No drawback shall be allowed on spirits exported from any Customs Port in British India to any other Customs Port.

But it shall be lawful, on the conditions and under the rules from time to time prescribed under section 143, to export from any such Port to any other such Port, under bond for the duty of excise, spirits manufactured in British India after the English method.

Every such bond shall be cancelled on the production, by the exporter or his agent, of a certificate from the Officer in charge of the Custom House at the Port of importation, testifying to the due entry at such Port of the full quantity of such spirits so exported, less an allowance for ullage and wastage at the rates from time to time prescribed by the Local Government and notified in the official Gazette.

Duty on spirits exported from one Indian Port to another, how to be adjusted.

149. Spirits manufactured in British India after the English method and exported under bond for the duty of Excise from any Port in British India to any other Port in British India not being a Customs Port, shall be chargeable at the Port of destination with duties of Customs at the ordinary rate fixed for duties on spirits of the like kind and strength imported into such Port.

Rum-shrub, &c., how to be charged with duty.

150. Rum-shrub, cordial, and other such liquor prepared in a licensed distillery under supervision of the Surveyor or Officer in charge of the distillery shall be charged with duty according to the quantity of spirit used in its preparation as ascertained by such Surveyor or Officer.

May be exported under same rules as spirits.

The provisions of this Act respecting spirits manufactured after the English method, except such as relate to gauge and proof, shall apply to such liquor.

When any such liquor is removed for exportation without payment of duty of Excise, the bond to be executed by the person removing it shall be in the Form marked H hereto annexed, or in such other form as may from time to time be prescribed by the Chief Customs Authority of the Presidency or place.

Spirits intended for exportation may be removed for local consumption.

151. Spirits brought to the Custom House for exportation under bond for the duty of Excise may, on payment of such duty, be removed for local consumption under passes to be granted for that purpose by the Officers of Excise.

Credit for every such payment shall be given on settlement of the bond to which it relates.

Conditions of drawback and remission of duty on spirits.

152. No drawback shall be allowed for any spirits on which duty has been paid, nor shall the duty due on any spirits under bond be remitted, unless the spirits are shipped from the Custom House, and in a vessel whereon an Officer of Customs has been appointed to superintend the receipt of export-cargo.

Re-land of spirits shipped.

Spirits shipped for exportation shall not be re-landed without a special pass from an Officer of Excise, in addition to the usual order of the Officer in charge of the Custom House.

153. The Local Government may from time to time prescribe rules for ascertaining and determining what spirit imported into British India shall be deemed to have been effectually and permanently rendered unfit for human consumption, so as to be subject only to an ad valorem duty of ten per cent. or other duty for the time being in force, and for causing such spirit, to be so rendered, if necessary, by their own officers, before the duty of customs leviable thereon is levied, and at the expense of the person importing it.

Power to make rules for ascertaining that imported spirit has been rendered unfit for human consumption.

Such rules, on being published in the local official Gazette, shall have the force of law.

154. In the absence of any such rules, or if any dispute arises as to their applicability, the Executive Officer of highest rank in the Department of Customs in the Port shall decide what spirit is subject only to the said ad valorem duty, and such decision shall be final.

Decision where no rules or their applicability disputed.

CHAPTER XIV.

CUSTOM-HOUSE AGENTS.

155. No person shall act in any Custom House as an agent for the transaction of any business relating to the entrance or clearance of any vessel, goods, or baggage, unless authorized so to do by the Officer in charge of the Custom House.

Agents must be duly authorized.

Such Officer may require any person so authorized, to give a bond with sufficient securities, in any sum not exceeding five thousand rupees, for his faithful behaviour as regards the Custom House regulations and Officers.

Such Officer may, in case of misbehaviour, suspend or withdraw such authorization, but an appeal against every such suspension or withdrawal shall lie to the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority, whose decision thereon shall be final.

156. When any person makes application to any officer of Customs to transact any business on behalf of any other person, such officer may require the applicant to produce a written authority from the person on whose behalf such business is to be transacted, and in default of the production of such authority may refuse to transact such business.

Agent to produce authority if required.

The clerk or servant or known agent of any person or of any mercantile firm may transact business at the Custom House, on account of such person or firm, if such person or a member of such firm identifies to the Officer in charge of the Custom House the person so empowered to transact his or their business, and deposits with such officer a written authority duly signed, empowering such officer to pay to such person all drawbacks, refunds and other monies for which he produces receipts.

CHAPTER XV.

DUPLICATE BILLS OF ENTRY.

157. Upon the entry or clearance of any goods for importation or exportation, the importer, exporter, owner, or consignee, or the agent of such importer, exporter, owner, or consignee, shall, if the Officer in charge of the Custom House so requires, deliver to such officer a duplicate of the bill of entry or shipping bill thereof.

Importer or exporter to deliver a duplicate of bill of entry or shipping bill if required.

In such duplicate all sums and numbers may be expressed in figures.

CHAPTER XVI.

TAKING OF SAMPLES.

158. Any Officer in charge of a Custom House may, on the entry or clearance of any goods, or at any time while such goods are being passed through the Custom House, take samples of such goods for examination, or for ascertaining the value thereof on which duties are payable, or for any other necessary purpose.

Officer in charge of Custom House may take samples of goods.

Every such sample shall, if the owner so desire, and if it be possible, be restored to the owner; otherwise it shall be disposed of and accounted for to him as the Officer in charge of the Custom House directs.

CHAPTER XVII.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS.

159. The Governor General in Council may from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, fix for the purpose of levying duties, the value of any goods exported or imported by sea on which duties of Customs are thereby imposed.

Power to fix values of dutiable goods.

160. When duty or other Customs-dues or charges have been short-levied through inadvertence, error, or misconstruction on the part of the Officers of Customs,

Payment of duties short-levied or erroneously refunded.

or when duty, after having been levied, has been erroneously refunded,

the person chargeable with the duty or charge so short-levied, or to whom such refund has erroneously been made, shall pay the deficiency or repay the amount paid to him in excess, on demand being made within six months from the date of the first assessment or making of the refund;

and the Officers of Customs may refuse to pass any goods belonging to such person until the said deficiency or excess be paid or repaid.

161. No duty or other Customs-dues or charges which have been charged and paid, and of which, or of a portion of which, repayment is claimed in consequence of the same having been charged or paid under an erroneous construction of law or from other error, shall be returned, unless such claim is made within six months from the date of such payment.

No refund of charges erroneously levied or paid, unless application be made within six months.

162. The unshipping, carrying, shipping and landing of all goods, and the bringing of them to the proper place for examination or weighing, and the putting of them into and out of the scales, and the opening, unpacking, bulking, sorting, lotting, Importer and exporter to pay expense incidental to compliance with Custom House rules.

marking and numbering of goods, where such operations are necessary or permitted.

and the removing of goods to, and the placing of them in, the proper place or deposit, shall be performed by or at the expense of the importer, exporter, owner, or consignee of such goods.

No compensation for loss or injury except on proof of wilful neglect.

163. No importer, exporter, owner, or consignee of goods shall be entitled to claim from any Officer of Customs compensation for any loss or injury occurring to such goods at any time while they remain or are lawfully detained in any Custom House, or on any Custom House wharf, or under charge any Officer of Customs, unless it be proved that such loss or injury was occasioned by the wilful act or neglect of an Officer of Customs.

Rates of wharfage fees.

164. The Chief Customs Authority may from time to time fix the rate to be charged on goods left on any Custom House wharf or other authorized landing place, or part of the Custom House premises, for a period exceeding that prescribed by such Chief Customs Authority.

Duplicates may be granted and amendments made on payment of fee.

165. A duplicate of any certificate, manifest, bill, or other Custom House document may, on payment of a fee of not less than one rupee and not more than ten rupees, be furnished, at the discretion of the Officer in charge of the Custom House, if he is satisfied that no fraud has been committed or is intended.

Such Officer may also authorize any amendment to be made in any document, after it has been entered and recorded in the Custom House, upon payment of a like fee for every document so amended.

Customs Officers may be exempted from service on any jury or inquest.

166. No Commissioner or Collector of Customs, or Officer of Customs whom a Commissioner or Collector of Customs deems it necessary to exempt on grounds of public duty, shall be compelled to serve on any jury or inquest.

CHAPTER XVIII.

OFFENCES AND PENALTIES.

Goods imported or exported contrary to prohibition liable to confiscation, and persons concerned to penalty.

167. If any goods, the importation or exportation of which is for the time being prohibited or restricted, be imported into or exported from British India contrary to such prohibition or restriction; or if any attempt be made so to import or export any such goods by the Port or otherwise;

or if any such goods be found in any package produced to any Officer of Customs as containing no such goods;

or if any such goods or any goods subject to a duty or restriction in respect of importation or exportation, be found either before or after landing or shipment to have been concealed in any manner on board of any vessel within the limits of any Port in British India;

or if any goods, the exportation of which is or shall be prohibited or restricted, be brought to any wharf in order to be put on board of any vessel for exportation contrary to such prohibition or restriction;

such goods, together with any goods which shall be found packed with or used in concealing them, shall be liable to confiscation; and any person concerned in any such offence shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding three times the value of the goods, or not exceeding one thousand rupees.

Goods brought to be passed through Custom House liable to confiscation in case of discrepancy, misdescription, &c.

168. If it be found, when any goods are entered at or brought to be passed through a Custom House either for importation or exportation, that the packages in which they are contained differ widely from the description given in the entry or application for passing them;

or that the contents thereof have been wrongly described in such entry or application as regards the denominations, characters, or circumstances according to which such goods are chargeable with duty, or are being imported or exported;

or that the contents of such packages have been wilfully mis-stated in regard to sort, quality, quantity or value;

or that goods not stated in the entry or application have been fraudulently concealed in, or mixed with, the articles specified therein, or have been packed to deceive the Officers of Customs;

such packages, together with the whole of the goods contained therein, shall be liable to confiscation.

For infringing rules under section 38.

168*a*. Any person infringing any rule or order made under section 38 by the Chief Customs Authority, or by the Chief Officer of Customs, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees.

For proceeding inward beyond fixed place before delivery of manifest.

169. If, in any River or Port wherein a place has been fixed under section 43 by the Local Government, the Master of any vessel arriving from a Foreign Port or place wilfully omits, before passing beyond such place, to deliver to the Pilot, Officer of Customs, or other person duly authorised to receive the same, a manifest, signed by the Master, and in the form and containing the particulars indicated in the same section, in so far as they are applicable to his ship, cargo and voyage; or if any manifest so delivered does not contain a true specification of all goods imported in such vessel;

such Master shall, in every such case, be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

For omitting to deliver manifest when vessel anchors below reporting station.

170. Any Master remaining outside or below any such fixed place, and wilfully omitting, for the space of twenty-four hours after anchoring, to deliver this manifest, shall, in every such case, be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

For like omission when reporting station has not been fixed.

If, after any vessel arriving from any Foreign Port or place has entered any Customs Port, and in which a place has not been fixed under section 44, the Master of such vessel wilfully omits, for the space of twenty-four hours after anchoring, to deliver as required by that section his manifest to the Pilot, Officer of Customs or other person authorized to receive the same, such Master shall, in every such case, be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

171. Every Pilot, Officer of Customs or other person authorized to receive a manifest from any Master of a vessel, and refusing so to do, or failing to countersign the same or to enter the particulars referred to in section 43, shall, in every such case, be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees.

For Pilot, &c., not receiving manifest.

172. If any vessel arriving from any Foreign Port or place at any Customs Port shall, after having come to its proper place of mooring or unlading, remove from such place, except with the authority of the Master Attendant or Harbour Master, obtained in accordance with the provisions of the Indian Ports Act, 1875, directly to some other place of mooring or unlading, the Master of such vessel shall, in every such case, be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees, and the vessel shall not be allowed to enter until the penalty is paid.

For vessel removing from place of mooring, or unlading, without due authority.

173. The Master of any vessel arriving at any Port in British India from any Foreign Port or place who, when so required under section 38, fails to bring-to at any such station as has been appointed by the Chief Customs Authority for the boarding of vessels by an Officer of Customs, shall, in every such case, be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

For not bringing to at boarding station.

174. Every Master of a vessel refusing to receive on board an Officer of Customs deputed as provided in section 39, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees for each day during which such officer is not received on board; and the vessel shall not be allowed to enter until the penalty is paid.

For refusing to receive Officer of Customs on board.

175. Any Master wilfully disobeying any direction contained in section 40 shall, in every such case, be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees.

For disobeying section 40.

176. Any Master of a vessel discharging or suffering to be discharged any goods not duly entered in the manifest of such vessel, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

For discharging goods not duly entered in manifest.

176*a*. Any goods found concealed in any place, box, or closed receptacle in any vessel, and not duly accounted for to the satisfaction of the Officer in charge of the Custom House, shall be liable to confiscation.

Goods found concealed liable to confiscation.

177. If any Master of a vessel refuses to allow such vessel, or any box, place, or closed receptacle in such vessel, to be searched when so required by an Officer of Customs bearing a written order to search;

For Masters resisting search, &c.

or if an Officer of Customs places any lock, mark, or seal upon any goods, and such lock, mark, or seal is wilfully opened, altered, or broken, before due delivery of such goods;

or if any such goods are secretly conveyed away;

or if any hatchway or entrance to the hold, after having been fastened down by an Officer of Customs, is opened without his permission—

in every such case the Master of such vessel shall be liable, upon conviction before a Magistrate, to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

178. If any bill of lading or copy required under section 47 is false; or has been altered with fraudulent intent;

or if the goods mentioned in any such bill of lading, or in any bill of lading of which a copy is so produced, have not been bonâ fide shipped on board of such vessel;

For false entry, fraudulent alteration, &c.

or if any such bill of lading delivered under the same section, or any bill of lading of which a copy is so delivered, by any such Master, has not been made previously to the departure of the vessel from the place where the goods expressed in such bill of lading were shipped;

or if any part of the cargo has been staved, destroyed, or thrown overboard;

or if any package be opened, and such part of the cargo or such package be not accounted for to the satisfaction of the Officer in charge of the Custom House;

in every such case the Master shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

179. If any goods be found on board in excess of those entered in the manifest, or not corresponding with the specification therein contained, the fact shall be reported by the Officer of Customs on board, and all such goods shall be liable to confiscation, or to be charged with such increased rates of duty as the Chief Officer of Customs directs.

Goods not agreeing in description and quantity with entry in manifest liable to confiscation or extra duty.

180. If any goods entered in the manifest of a vessel are not found on board of the vessel; or if the quantity so found is short, and if such deficiency is not accounted for to the satisfaction of the Officer in charge of the Custom House,

For not being able to account for missing or deficient package, &c.

the Master of such vessel shall be liable, in addition to full duty, to a penalty not exceeding twice the amount of duty chargeable on the missing or deficient goods, if they be capable of being assessed therewith; or if they be not, to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees for every missing or deficient package of unknown value.

181. Any Master of a vessel causing or suffering any goods to be removed contrary to any of the provisions of section 42 shall in every such case be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees; and all goods so removed shall be liable to confiscation.

For removing goods contrary to section 42.

182. If any goods removed from on board any vessel for the purpose of being landed and passed for importation, are not landed as provided in section 56,

For not landing goods in accordance with section 56.

or if the boat containing such goods be found out of the proper track between the vessel and such wharf or other proper place of landing, and such deviation be not accounted for to the satisfaction of the Officer in charge of the Custom House, such goods, together with any vessel or boat employed in removing them, shall be liable to confiscation, and the person by whose authority the goods are being landed, and the person in charge of the boat, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twice the amount of the duty leviable on the said goods.

183. Any goods landed or transhipped contrary to the provisions of section 57 shall be liable to confiscation.

For landing, &c., goods contrary to section 57.

184. If any goods sent to be landed be found without the boat-note required by section 58 in any boat proceeding to land, such goods shall be liable to confiscation; and the person by whose authority the goods are being landed, or the person in charge of the boat, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twice the amount of duty leviable on the said goods.

For sending goods without boat-note.

185. If, without entry duly made, any goods are taken or passed out of any Custom House or wharf, the person so taking or passing such goods shall in every such case be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees.

For taking or passing goods without entry.

Any prohibited or dutiable goods found, either before or after landing, concealed in any passenger's baggage, together with the other contents of the package in which they are found, shall be liable to confiscation.

186. If, after any goods have been landed and before they have been passed through the Custom House, the importer, owner or consignee, or his agent or any one acting on his behalf, removes or attempts to remove them, with the intention of defrauding the revenue, such goods shall be liable to confiscation;

For removing goods after landing and before due entry.

or, if the goods cannot be recovered, the owner shall be liable, in addition to full duty, to a penalty not exceeding twice the amount of such duty, if the goods be capable of being assessed therewith; or, if they be not, to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees for every missing or deficient package of unknown value.

187. If any goods entered to be warehoused under this Act are carried into the warehouse, unless with the authority or under the care of the proper Officers of Customs, and in such manner, by such persons, within such time, and by such roads or ways, as such Officers direct, such goods shall be liable to confiscation, and the person so carrying them shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

For improper carrying into warehouse.

188. If any goods entered to be warehoused under this Act are withheld, or removed from any proper place of examination, before they have been examined and certified by the proper officer, such goods shall be deemed not to have been duly warehoused, and shall be liable to confiscation.

For withholding or removing before examination goods entered to be warehoused.

189. When goods are passed by tale or by package, the importer, owner, or consignee of such goods, or his agent, shall, for every omission or misdescription thereof tending to injure the revenue, be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten times the amount of duty which might have been lost to Government by such omission or misdescription, unless it be proved to the satisfaction of the Officer in charge of the Custom House that the variance was accidental.

For misdescription of goods.

If the quantity or value of any goods has been over-stated on importation, the error may be rectified at any time before the warehousing of the goods is completed.

190. If any warehoused goods be not warehoused in accordance with section 75,

For warehousing goods improperly.

or if any alteration be made in goods so warehoused, or in the packing thereof, except as provided in section 81;

For altering warehoused goods.

or if any such goods be removed from the warehouse in which they were originally deposited, except in presence or with the sanction of the proper officer, or under the proper authority for their delivery,

For removing them improperly.

such goods shall be liable to confiscation.

191. If the keeper of any public warehouse, or the person who has obtained a license for any private warehouse, neglects to stow the goods warehoused therein, so that easy access may be had to every package and parcel thereof, he shall for every such neglect be liable to a penalty not exceeding fifty rupees.

For neglecting to stow goods properly in warehouse.

192. If the keeper of any public warehouse, or the person who has obtained a license for any private warehouse, fails, on the requisition of any officer of Customs, to produce any goods which have been deposited in such warehouse, and which have not been duly cleared and delivered therefrom, he shall, for every such neglect, be liable, not only to pay the duties due on such goods, but also to a penalty not exceeding fifty rupees in respect of every package or parcel so missing or deficient.

Or for neglecting to produce goods when required.

193. If any goods entered to be warehoused are not duly warehoused in pursuance of such entry, or, after being duly warehoused, are fraudulently concealed in or removed from the warehouse, or abstracted from any package, or transferred from one package to another, or otherwise, for the purpose of illegal removal or concealment, such goods shall be liable to confiscation.

Goods entered to be warehoused, if not duly warehoused or if concealed or removed, liable to be confiscated.

194. If the person who has obtained a license for any private warehouse licensed under this Act does not open the same when required so to do by any Officer entitled under this Act or under any other law to have access thereto, or, upon demand made by any such Officer at any time within the hours of business at the Port, refuses access to any such Officer, such person shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees, and shall further be liable to have his license forthwith cancelled and withdrawn.

For refusing to open private warehouse when duly required.

195. If the importer, owner, or consignee of any warehoused goods, or the agent or any person in the employ of such importer, owner, or consignee, clandestinely opens any warehouse, or, except in presence of the proper officer of Customs, gains access to his goods, such importer, owner, consignee, or agent shall, in every such case, be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

For importer or owner of warehoused goods clandestinely gaining access.

196. If any goods lodged in a private warehouse are found to be deficient at the time of delivery therefrom, the person who obtained the license for such warehouse shall, unless the deficiency be accounted for to the satisfaction of the Officer in charge of the Custom House, be liable to a penalty equal to five times the duty chargeable on the goods so deficient.

For deficiencies in a private warehouse, if beyond ullage and wastage allowed.

197. If any goods lodged in a private warehouse are found to exceed the registered quantity, such excess, unless accounted for to the satisfaction of the Officer in charge of the Custom House, shall be charged with five times the ordinary duty thereon.

For excess, in private warehouse, over registered quantity.

When any penalty is incurred under this section or section 196, the goods in respect of which such penalty is incurred shall not be removed until the penalty is paid.

198. Whoever takes any goods out of any warehouse without payment of duty, or who aids, assists, or is concerned therein, shall, in every such case, be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

For taking goods out of warehouse without paying duty.

If the person so offending be an Officer of Customs not acting in execution of his duty, and be prosecuted to conviction by the importer, owner, or consignee of such goods, no duty shall be payable in respect of such goods. For any damage so occasioned by such Officer, the Officer in charge of the Custom House shall, with the sanction of the Chief Customs Authority, make due compensation to such importer, owner, or consignee.

199. Whoever violates any rule prescribed under section 103 shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

For infringing rules under section 103.

200. If any goods be taken on board of any vessel at any Port in British India before she has been entered outwards at such Port, in accordance with section 107, the Master of such vessel shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

For shipping goods before entry outwards.

201. If the Master of any vessel laid up under section 108 by the withdrawal of the Officer of Customs shall, before application is made by him or his agent for an Officer of Customs to superintend the receipt of cargo, cause or suffer to be put on board of such vessel any goods whatever, such Master shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees, and the goods, if protected by a pass, shall be liable to be re-landed for examination at the expense of the vessel, and, if not protected by a pass, shall be liable to confiscation.

For lading in absence of Customs Officer.

202. Whoever causes or suffers any goods to be shipped or water-borne to be shipped contrary to any of the provisions of section 109 shall, in every such case, be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees; and any goods so shipped or water-borne for shipment, together with any vessel in which they are being so waterborne, shall be liable to confiscation.

For causing goods to be shipped contrary to section 109.

203. Any Master or Officer refusing to receive any boat-note in accordance with section 111, or receiving the same and failing to deliver it when required so to do by any Officer of Customs authorized to make such requisition, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees.

For non-receipt or non-delivery of boat-note.

204. Any Master of a vessel who attempts to depart without a port-clearance, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees.

For departing without port-clearance.

If any vessel actually departs without a port-clearance, the Master shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees;

and such penalty may be levied by the Chief Officer of Customs of any Customs Port to which such vessel proceeds, or in which she is, and in Aden by such Officer as the Governor of Bombay in Council appoints in this behalf.

205. Every Pilot convicted before a Magistrate of an infraction of the rule prescribed by section 113, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

On Pilot taking charge of vessel without port-clearance.

206. If any goods liable to duty on importation, or taken from a warehouse to be exported, or entitled to drawback on exportation, which are enumerated in the manifest of any vessel, are not duly shipped before the departure of such vessel, or are not duly certified by the proper officer as short-shipped, such goods shall be liable to confiscation.

Certain goods if entered in manifest and not shipped, liable to confiscation.

If any goods not enumerated in such manifest are taken on board of any such vessel, the Master shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding fifty rupees in respect of every package of such goods.

For shipping goods not in manifest, &c.

If any goods duly shipped on board of any such vessel be landed at any place other than that for which they have been cleared, the Master of such vessel shall, unless the circumstance be accounted for to the satisfaction of the Officer in charge of the Custom House, be liable to a penalty not exceeding three times the value of such goods so landed.

For landing at place other than that for which goods have been cleared.

207. If any vessel actually departs, after failing to bring-to when required at any station appointed under section 38, the penalty leviable under section 204 from the Master of such vessel may be levied by the Chief Officer of Customs of any Port in British India to which such vessel proceeds, or in which she is, or in case of Aden by such officer as the Governor of Bombay in Council appoints in this behalf.

Levy of penalty for failure to bring-to when required under section 38.

A certificate of such failure to bring-to when required, purporting to be signed by the Chief Officer of Customs of the Port from which the vessel is stated to have so departed, shall be sufficient primâ facie proof of the fact so certified.

208. If any goods on account of which drawback has been paid be not found on board of any vessel referred to in section 119, the Master shall be liable to penalty not exceeding the entire value thereof, unless the fact be accounted for to the satisfaction of the Officer in charge of the Custom House.

For deficiency in goods on which drawback has been paid on board vessel returning to port or putting into another port.

209. All goods entered for drawback, which are of less value than the amount of the drawback claimed, shall be liable to confiscation.

Confiscation of goods entered for drawback, which are less in value than the amount.

210. If any goods on the entry of which for re-export drawback has been paid, are not duly exported to a Foreign Port or place, or are unshipped or re-landed at any Customs Port (not having been duly re-landed or discharged as short-shipped under the care of an Officer of Customs, or under section 118 or section 119) such goods, together with any vessel used in so unshipping or relanding them, shall be liable to confiscation;

Drawback goods, if not exported, or if re-landed, liable to confiscation, and parties concerned to penalty.

and the Master of the vessel from which such goods are so unshipped or re-landed, and any person by whom or by whose orders or means such goods are so unshipped or re-landed, or who aids or is concerned in such unshipping or re-landing, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding three times the value of such goods, or not exceeding one thousand rupees.

211. Any wine referred to in section 129 not laden on board of the ship for which it was intended, or unladen from such ship without the permission of the proper Officer of Customs, shall be liable to confiscation.

Wine not laden, or unladen without permission, liable to confiscation.

212. If, in contravention of any rules made under section 132, any goods are taken into or put out of any coasting vessel;

For contravention of rules as to coasting trade.

or any coasting vessel touches at any Foreign Port or place, or deviates from her voyage, unless forced by unavoidable circumstances; or if the Master of any coasting vessel which has touched at a Foreign Port or place fails to declare the same in writing to the Officer in charge of the Custom House at the Port in British India at which such vessel afterwards first arrives, the Master of such vessel shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees, and shall further be liable to pay double duty upon all goods landed or shipped at such Foreign Port or place, in addition to the ordinary duty which shall in every case be levied on such goods.

213. If upon examination, any package entered in the cargo-book required by section 133, as containing Foreign goods is found not to contain such goods, such package, with its contents, shall be liable to confiscation; or if any package is found to contain Foreign goods not entered, or not entered as such, in such book, such goods shall be liable to confiscation.

For breach of rules as to cargo-book.

If the Master of any vessel mentioned in section 133 fails correctly to keep, or to cause to be kept, a cargo-book, or to produce the same on demand; or if at any time there be found on board of any such vessel any goods not entered in such book as laden, or any goods noted as delivered; or if any goods entered as laden and not noted as delivered, be not on board, the Master shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees.

214. Any Master violating any rule made under section 134 shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one hundred rupees.

For breach of rules under section 134.

215. If any account required by section 135 be false, the Master filling in or signing the same shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees.

For signing false account.

216. On failure to produce the certificate mentioned in section 136, or to show sufficient reason for its non-production, the parties to the bond therein mentioned shall be bound to pay a penal sum equal to double the amount of Customs duties which would have been chargeable on the export-cargo of the vessel had she been declared to be bound to a Foreign Port.

For failure to produce certificate.

217. Any Master of a coasting vessel arriving at the port of discharge who fails, within twenty-four hours after arrival, to deliver a pass as required by section 138, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding two hundred rupees.

For failure of Master of coasting vessel to deliver pass.

218. If, contrary to the provisions of this or any other Act relating to the Customs, any goods are laden on board of any vessel in any Port or place in British India and carried coastwise, or any goods which have been brought coastwise are unladen in any such Port or place, or any goods are found on board of any coasting vessel without being entered in the clearance thereof, such goods shall be liable to confiscation, and the Master of such vessel shall, in every such case, be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees.

For breach in respect of lading, carrying coastwise, and unlading.

219. The Master of any coasting vessel refusing to bring any document to the Officer in charge of the Custom House, when so required under section 140, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding two hundred rupees.

For refusal to produce documents.

220. After the issue of a notification under section 141 with regard to any Port, any goods found within the limits of such Port on board of any boat not duly licensed and registered shall, unless such goods be covered by a special permit from the Officer in charge of the Custom House, be liable to confiscation, and the owner or the person in charge of the boat shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one hundred rupees.

Goods found in unlicensed cargo-boats may be confiscated.

221. Whoever wilfully contravenes any rule made under section 153 shall be liable to fine not exceeding five hundred rupees.

For contravening rules under section 153.

222. Whoever, not being authorized under section 155, acts as an agent for the transaction of business as therein mentioned, shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees.

For acting as agent without authority.

223. Whoever, without a special pass from an Officer of Excise at the place of exportation, re-lands or attempts to re-land any spirituous liquor shipped for exportation, shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees;

For irregularly re-landing spirituous liquors.

and all such liquor, together with every cask or other article containing the same, and every boat, cart, or animal employed in conveying it, shall be liable to confiscation.

224. Every importer, exporter, owner, or consignee, and every agent of any such importer, exporter owner, or consignee, wilfully failing to comply with the provisions of section 157, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding two hundred rupees.

For non-compliance with section 157.

225. Any goods put, without the authority of the Officers of Customs, on board of any tug-steamer or pilot-vessel from any sea-going vessel inward bound,

For Masters of tug-steamers or pilot-vessels receiving or discharging any goods without due authority.

and any goods put, without such authority, out of any tug-steamer or pilot-vessel for the purpose of being put on board of any outward bound vessel, and any goods on which drawback has been granted put, without such authority, on board of any tug-steamer or pilot-vessel for the purpose of being re-landed, shall be liable to confiscation, and the Master of such tug-steamer or pilot-vessel or sea-going vessel shall, in every such case, be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

226. If any goods be landed or shipped,

For landing or shipping goods at unauthorized Port, &c.

or if an attempt be made to land or ship any goods, or if any goods be brought into any bay, river, creek or arm of the sea, for the purpose of being landed or shipped at any Port or place, which, at the date of such landing, shipment, attempt or bringing, has not been declared to be or does not exist as a Port for the landing and shipment of goods, such goods shall be liable to confiscation, together with any ship, boat, carriage or other means of conveyance engaged in such landing or shipment, or attempt to land or ship, or bringing for the purpose of landing or shipment.

227. Any person shipping or landing goods or aiding in the shipment or landing of goods, or knowingly keeping or concealing, or knowingly permitting or procuring to be kept or concealed, any goods shipped or landed or intended to be shipped or landed, contrary to the provisions of this Act;

For shipping, landing, concealing, &c., contrary to Act.

and any person found to have been on board of any vessel liable to confiscation under section 226 while such vessel is within any bay, river, creek, or arm of the sea which has not been declared to be, and is not existing as, a Port for the landing or shipment of goods, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

228. All goods found on board any boat in excess of the boat-note or Custom-house pass, whether such goods are intended to be landed or to be shipped on board any vessel, shall be liable to confiscation.

Goods found in boat in excess of boat-note or pass liable to confiscation.

229. If any vessel which has been within the limits of any Port in British India with cargo on board, be afterwards found in any Port, bay, river, creek, or arm of the sea in British India, light or in ballast, and if the Master be unable to give a due account of the Port or place in British India where such vessel lawfully discharged her cargo, such vessel shall be liable to confiscation.

Vessels in Port with a cargo, and afterwards found in ballast and cargo unaccounted for, liable to confiscation.

230. The confiscation of any vessel shall be deemed to include her tackle, apparel, and furniture.

Tackle, &c., included in confiscation of vessels.

The confiscation of any goods shall be deemed to include any package in which they are found, and all the contents thereof.

Packages and contents included in confiscation of goods.

Every boat, cart, or other means of conveyance, and every horse or other animal used in the removal of any goods liable to confiscation, shall in like manner be liable to confiscation.

Also conveyances and animals used in removal.

231. If any person in charge of or owning a vessel has become liable to any fine or penalty on account of any act or omission relating to the Customs, the Officer in charge of the Custom House may refuse port-clearance to such vessel until the fine or penalty be discharged.

Goods may be detained and port-clearance refused, pending payment of fines incurred.

If any person passing goods through the Custom House has become liable to any fine or penalty, the Officer in charge of the Custom House may detain such goods until the fine or penalty be discharged.

232. Any person against whom a reasonable suspicion exists that he has been guilty of an offence under this or any other Act relating to the Customs, may be detained by any Officer of Customs or other person duly employed for the prevention of smuggling.

Persons reasonably suspected may be detained.

233. Any vessel or goods liable to confiscation may be seized, and any person liable to be detained under this or any other Act relating to the Customs may be detained, in any place, either upon land or water, by any Officer of Customs or other person duly employed for the prevention of smuggling.

Vessels, goods, and persons may be seized or detained.

234. Every vessel and all goods seized on the ground that they are liable to confiscation shall, as soon as conveniently may be, be delivered into the care of the officer appointed to receive the same.

Vessels and goods seized how to be dealt with.

If there be no such officer at hand, all goods so seized shall be carried to and deposited at the Custom House nearest to the place of seizure.

If there be no Custom House within a convenient distance, such goods shall be deposited at the nearest office appointed by the Chief Customs Authority for the deposit of goods so seized.

235. Every person detained on the ground that he has been guilty of an offence under this or any other Act relating to the Customs, shall forthwith be taken before a Magistrate or Officer in charge of a Custom House.

Persons detained to be taken to nearest Magistrate or Officer of Custom House.

236. When any person detained on the ground that he has been guilty of an offence against this or any other Act relating to the Customs, is taken before a Magistrate, such Magistrate may, if he see reasonable cause, order him to be detained in gaol or in the custody of the Police for such time as is necessary to enable such Magistrate to communicate with the Officers of Customs:

Persons taken before a Magistrate for offence under Customs Acts may be detained or admitted to bail.

Provided that any person so detained shall be liberated on giving recognizance or security to the satisfaction of the Magistrate to appear at such time and place as such Magistrate appoints for his appearance.

237. If any person liable to be detained under this or any other Act relating to the Customs, is not detained at the time of committing the offence for which he so liable, or after detention, makes his escape, he shall at any time afterwards be liable to be detained and taken before a Magistrate, to be dealt with as if he had been detained at the time of committing such offence.

Any person escaping may be afterwards detained.

238. When any person employed on the crew of any of Her Majesty's ships is detained under this or any other Act relating to the Customs, the detaining officer shall forthwith give notice thereof to the Commanding Officer of the ship, who shall thereupon place such person in security on board of such ship, until the detaining officer has obtained a warrant from a Magistrate for bringing up such person to be dealt with according to law.

Persons in Her Majesty's Navy, when detained, to be secured on board until warrant procured.

The Magistrate shall duly grant a warrant upon complaint made to him by the detaining officer, stating the offence for which the person is detained.

239. When any vessel or goods is or are seized or any person is detained under this or any other Act relating to the Customs, the Officer or other person making such seizure or detention, shall, on demand of the person in charge of the vessel or goods so seized or of the person so detained, give to such person a statement in writing of the reason for such seizure or detention.

When seizure is made, seizing officer to give reason in writing.

240. When any goods liable to confiscation under this or any other Act relating to the Customs are seized by any Police Officer on suspicion that they have been stolen, such Officer may carry such goods to any Police station or Court at which a complaint or information connected with the stealing or receiving of such goods has been made, or an enquiry connected with such stealing or receiving is in progress, and there detain such goods until the dismissal of such complaint or information, or the conclusion of such enquiry or of any trial thence resulting.

Procedure in respect of goods seized on suspicion.

In every such case the Police Officer seizing the goods shall send written notice of their seizure and detention to the nearest Custom House; and immediately after the dismissal of the complaint or information, or the conclusion of the enquiry or trial, the said Police Officer shall cause such goods to be conveyed to and deposited at the nearest Custom House, to be there proceeded against according to law.

If any Police Officer whose duty it is under this section to send a written notice or cause goods to be conveyed to a Custom House, neglects so to do, he shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one hundred rupees.

For neglect of Police Officer to give notice.

241. Any duly empowered Officer of Customs or other person duly employed for the prevention of smuggling, may search any cart, or other means of conveyance, for smuggled goods; provided that he has reasonable ground to suppose that smuggled goods are contained therein.

Officers of Customs may stop carts, &c., and search for goods on reasonable suspicion.

242. The Magistrate of a District or Division of a District may, on application by an Officer in charge of a Custom House, stating his belief that dutiable or prohibited goods are secreted in any place in such District or Division, issue a warrant to search for such goods.

Magistrate of District may issue, search-warrant on application.

Such warrant shall be executed in the same way, and shall have the same effect, as a search-warrant issued under the Code of Criminal Procedure.

243. Any Officer of Customs duly employed in the prevention of smuggling may search any person on board of any vessel or boat in any Port in British India, or any person who has landed from any vessel or boat:

Persons may be searched on reasonable suspicion.

Provided that such officer has reasonable ground to suppose that such person has dutiable or prohibited goods secreted about his person.

If any person on board of any such vessel or boat, or who has landed from any such vessel or boat, upon being asked by any such officer whether he has dutiable or prohibited goods about his person or in his possession, affirms that he has not, and if any such goods are, after such denial, discovered to be or to have been upon the person or in the possession of such person, such goods shall be liable to confiscation, and such person shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding three times the value of such goods.

For possession of smuggled goods.

244. When any Officer of Customs is about to search any person under the provisions of section 243 such person may require the said officer to take him, previous to search, before the nearest Magistrate or Officer in charge of a Custom House.

Persons before search may require to be taken before a Magistrate, &c.

If such requisition be made, the Officer of Customs may detain the person making it until he can bring him before the nearest Magistrate or officer in charge of a Custom House.

The Magistrate or officer in charge of a Custom House before whom any person is so brought shall, if he see no reasonable ground for search, forthwith discharge such person; but if otherwise, shall direct that the search be made.

A female shall not be searched by any but a female.

245. If any Officer of Customs requires any person to be searched for dutiable or prohibited goods, without having reasonable ground to believe that he has such goods about his person, such Officer shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one hundred rupees.

For searching persons on insufficient grounds.

246. If any Officer of Customs, or other person duly employed for the prevention of smuggling, is guilty of a wilful breach of the provisions of this or any other Act relating to the Customs, he shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to simple imprisonment for any term not exceeding two years, or to fine, or to both.

Customs Officers, if guilty of breach of duty, how punishable.

247. If any Officer of Customs, or other person duly employed for the prevention of smuggling, practises or attempts to practise any fraud for the purpose of injuring the Customs Revenue, or abets or connives at any such fraud or any attempt to practise any such fraud, he shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to imprisonment for any term not exceeding two years, or to fine, or to both.

Customs Officers committing or conniving at frauds, how punishable.

248. No suit or other proceeding shall be commenced against any person for anything done in pursuance of this Act, without giving him a month's previous notice in writing of the intended suit or other proceeding and of the cause thereof.

No suit or proceeding to be commenced without notice.

249. Whoever intentionally obstructs any Officer of Customs or other person duly employed for the prevention of smuggling, in the exercise of any powers given under this Act to such officer or person, shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to imprisonment of either description for any term not exceeding six months, or to a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees, or to both.

Punishment for obstruction to Customs Officers.

250. Whoever knowingly makes or signs or uses any declaration or document used in the transaction of any business relating to the Customs, such declaration or document being false in any particular;

For making false declaration, refusing to answer questions, &c.

and whoever, counterfeits, falsifies, or fraudulently alters or destroys any such document, or any seal, signature, initials, or other mark made or impressed by any Officer of Customs in the transaction of any business relating to the Customs;

and whoever being required under this or any other Act relating to the Customs to produce any document, refuses or neglects to produce such document;

and whoever, being required under this or any other Act relating to the Customs to answer any question put to him by an Officer of Customs, does not truly answer such question, shall, on conviction of any such offence before a Magistrate, be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

251. Whoever subscribes or attests any declaration of the value of any goods upon an application to pass such goods through the Custom House, shall, if he be not the importer, owner, or consignee of such goods, or have not proper and sufficient authority from the importer, owner, or consignee, be liable in every such case to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

For unauthorized declaration as to value of goods.

252. In every case in which, under this Act, any vessel, cart, or other means of conveyance, or any horse or other animal, is liable to confiscation;

Officer in charge of Custom House may adjudge confiscations and penalties.

or any goods are liable to confiscation or to increased rates of duty;

or any person in charge of or owning a vessel, or landing or shipping goods, or passing them through the Custom House, is liable to a penalty,

an officer in charge of a Custom House, or if there be no such officer at the place where the confiscation or penalty or increased rates is or are incurred, or such other officer as the Local Government from time to time appoints in this behalf, may, unless it be otherwise provided in this or any other Act relating to the Customs, adjudge such confiscation, penalty, or increased rates of duty.

253. In respect to cases cognizable under section 252 by an Officer in charge of a Custom House, the Local Government may empower any Officer of Customs in like manner to adjudge any confiscation, penalty, or increased rates of duty.

Local Government may confer like powers on other officers of Customs.

Provided that the power to adjudge confiscation shall not extend, as regards a Deputy Collector, to goods of a greater value than one thousand rupees, nor, as regards an Assistant Collector or other subordinate officer, to goods of a greater value than one hundred rupees; and that the power to adjudge a penalty shall not extend, as regards a Deputy Collector, to a sum exceeding fifty rupees, nor, as regards an Assistant Collector or other subordinate officer, to a sum exceeding ten rupees.

Proviso.

254. When the confiscation of any vessel, cart, or other means of conveyance, horse or other animal, or any goods, is adjudged under section 252 or section 253, the property in such vessel, means of conveyance, animal, or goods shall thereupon vest in Her Majesty.

On confiscation of vessel or goods, property to vest in Her Majesty.

The Officer adjudging confiscation shall take and hold possession of the same, and every officer of Police, on the requisition of such Officer, shall assist him in taking and holding such possession.

255. In any case adjudicated by an Officer of Customs any party aggrieved by the award may, within three months from the date of the award, appeal to the Chief Customs Authority or in such cases as the Local Government directs to any other superior officer of Customs empowered in that behalf by the Local Government.

Appeal from subordinate to Chief Customs Authority.

Such authority or superior officer may thereupon make such further enquiry and pass such order as he thinks proper, confirming, altering, or annulling the original award:

Provided that no such order in appeal shall have the effect of subjecting any person to any greater confiscation, penalty, or rates of duty than has been adjudged against him in the original award.

256. The award of any confiscation, penalty, or increased rates of duty under this Act by an Officer of Customs shall not interfere with any punishment to which the person affected thereby is liable under any other law.

Penalty under this Act not to interfere with punishment which may be inflicted under any other law.

257. All offences against this Act, other than those cognizable under section 252 by an Officer in charge of a Custom House, may be adjudicated in a summary manner by a Magistrate.

Offences not specially provided for how to be adjudicated.

258. If, upon consideration of the circumstances under which any penalty or confiscation has been adjudged under this Act by an Officer of Customs or by a Magistrate, the Chief Customs Authority is of opinion that such penalty or confiscation ought to be remitted in whole or in part, or commuted, such authority may remit the same or any portion thereof, or may commute any order of confiscation to a penalty not exceeding the value of the goods ordered to be confiscated.

Penalty adjudged by Magistrate, &c., may be remitted or commuted by Chief Customs Authority.

259. When a penalty is adjudged against any person under this Act by any Officer of Customs, such Officer, if the penalty be not paid, may levy the same by sale of any goods of the said person which may be in his charge, or in the charge of any other Officer of Customs.

How payment of penalty to be enforced.

When an Officer of Customs who has adjudged a penalty against any person under this Act fails to realize the unpaid amount of such penalty from the goods of such person, such officer may notify in writing to any Magistrate within whose jurisdiction such person or any goods belonging to him may be, the name and residence of the said person and the amount of penalty unrecovered; and such Magistrate shall thereupon proceed to enforce payment of the said amount in like manner as if the penalty had been adjudged by himself.

260. When a penalty or fine is adjudged against any person under this Act by a Magistrate, such Magistrate shall, at the same time, fix, within the following limits, a period of imprisonment in default of payment of such penalty or fine:—

Periods of imprisonment, in default of payment of penalty or fine, to be fixed within certain limits.

If the penalty or fine do not exceed fifty rupees, the term of imprisonment to be fixed in default of payment shall not exceed one month.

If the penalty or fine do not exceed one hundred rupees, the term of imprisonment to be fixed in default of payment shall not exceed two months.

If the penalty or fine do not exceed five hundred rupees, the term of imprisonment to be fixed in default of payment shall not exceed four months.

When the penalty or fine exceeds five hundred rupees, the term of imprisonment to be fixed in default of payment may extend to six months.

The Magistrate may at any time enforce payment of any penalty or fine or of any portion thereof by distress and sale of the defaulter's goods.

261. The imprisonment imposed in default of payment of fine or penalty under this or any other Act relating to the Customs shall terminate whenever that fine or penalty is either paid or levied by process of law.

Imprisonment to terminate upon recovery of fine.

262. If, before the expiration of the term of imprisonment fixed in default of payment, such a proportion of the fine or penalty is paid or levied that the term of imprisonment suffered in default of payment is not less than proportional to the part of the fine or penalty still unpaid, the imprisonment shall terminate.

Or upon recovery of proportional part of fine.

263. Whenever confiscation is authorized by this Act, the officer adjudging it may give the owner of the goods an option to pay in lieu of confiscation such fine as the officer thinks fit.

Option to pay fine in lieu of confiscation.

264. The proceeds of all confiscations and penalties imposed under this Act shall, after deducting therefrom all Government demands, be paid into a general Fund, out of which the Chief Customs Authority may grant a reward to any person by whose information, assistance, or instrumentality, any seizure has been made or any offence punished.

Appropriation of penalties, &c., and grant of rewards.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

As long ago as 1870 the necessity of a thorough amendment of the Consolidated Customs Act (VI of 1863) was recognized, owing both to the additional legislation which had already taken place, and the numerous improvements which the various local authorities had represented to be necessary, chiefly in consequence of the altered conditions of trade.

Leave to introduce a Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Sea Customs was given by the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations to Sir Richard Temple on the 16th August 1870, but the measure was not proceeded with owing to difficulties connected with the application to India of 32 & 33 Vic., cap. II (for amending the law relating to the Coasting Trade and Merchant Shipping in British Possessions).

These difficulties appear, from further communication with Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India, to have been removed, and the Bill of 1870 is again brought forward, with the addition of the consolidation in it of the Acts specified in the margin, and of certain changes which have been recommended by the local authorities.

Act XIV of 1871.
Act VI of 1873.
Act XVI of 1875, in part.

Of those changes the chief are as follows:—

Provision is made (section 6) for the settlement of disputes as to the proper rate of duty payable in respect of any goods without detention of the goods during settlement.

Where a contract has been entered into for the sale of dutiable goods at a fixed price including the duty leviable at the date of the contract, and before the contract is fully performed the duty is raised or lowered, and levied accordingly, the Bill (section 33) declares that the price shall be increased or diminished (as the case may be) by the amount by which the duty is so raised or lowered. Where during transit by sea to British India the duty on any goods is raised, the duty payable on arrival will be only the duty in force when the transit commenced, and where such duty is lowered, the duty leviable will be only such reduced duty.

In the case of steamers the Bill provides (section 44) that the master may enter in the manifest the name of the ship's agent as that of the consignee of any cargo, and that the Chief Customs Authority may treat him as such consignee, provided he gives security against claims for damage or short delivery.

Power is given (section 46) to permit (subject to rules) bulk to be broken prior to receipt of the original manifest and the entry of the vessel at the Custom House.

For the purpose of landing import cargo and shipping export cargo no charge will be made (sections 50 and 108) for the services of several Customs Officers for respective periods, the aggregate of which does not exceed fifteen working days.

Power has been given (section 114) to grant port-clearance before delivery of the manifest when the ship's agent furnishes sufficient security for duly delivering it within three days from the date of the grant.

Whenever goods are confiscated the owner will have an option (section 263) to pay a fine in lieu of losing his goods.

It is expected that the Bill will be considerably improved in Committee in respect of numerous matters known to require attention, owing to the opening of the Suez Canal and the alterations effected by the telegraph in the conditions of modern trade, by suggestions of the various Maritime authorities, and by the co-operation of the mercantile community.

" Chief Commissioner, British Burma, No. 1152—38, dated 27th July 1876, and enclosures.
Note by J. Pitt Kennedy, Esq., dated September 1876.

We, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to define and amend the law relating to certain kinds of Specific Relief was referred, have the honour to report that we have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin.

Preliminary.

2. In the interpretation-clause, we have omitted the definition of 'discretion,' the object of the definition being, we think, sufficiently attained by the first clause of section 21. We have amended the definition of 'obligation' so as to preclude the idea that only duties enforceable by the Criminal Courts were intended, and we have struck out the definition of 'agreement,' which does not harmonize with that contained in the Contract Act. To the illustrations of the definition of 'trustee,' we have added one showing that an employé receiving, without his employer's assent, commission on articles purchased for his employer, is a trustee of the commission so received. We have, lastly, declared that all words (such as 'contract') occurring in the Bill, which are defined in the Contract Act, shall have the meanings given them by that Act; and throughout the Bill we have used 'contract' for 'agreement' whenever a valid agreement is intended.

3. In section 4, we have struck out the clause rendering English law inapplicable to the kinds of relief dealt with by the Bill. For some time, at all events, the rules of the Bill will have to be elucidated by reference to the decisions of the English Courts. To the same section we have added a clause saving the Registration Act, which might have been held to have been affected by some of the subsequent provisions of the Bill.

4. To the four kinds of specific relief enumerated in section 5, we have added a fifth—the appointing of a receiver; and, in a subsequent part of the Bill, we have dealt with this matter by reference to the revised Code of Civil Procedure.

Recovering possession of Property.

5. To the three cases mentioned in section 11, in which a person in possession, not as owner, of moveable property may be compelled to deliver it, we have added a fourth, namely, when the possession of the thing claimed has been wrongfully transferred from the claimant. For illustration (b), we have substituted the following:—"Z has got possession of an idol belonging to A's family, and of which A is the proper custodian. Z may be compelled to deliver it to A."

Specific Performance.

6. In section 12, we have struck out the clause relating to an express agreement between the parties to the contract that specific performance thereof may be required by either. It would, we fear, have been always inserted in agreements between money-lenders and land-holders, and might have been treated by the Courts as limiting the discretion which we intend to confer upon them. We have also struck out illustration (e), which goes further than we think desirable in enabling the Courts to compel persons to become partners.

7. Section 13 of the Bill as introduced provides (in strict accordance with English law) that when either party to an agreement is entitled to specific performance, the other party is also entitled to it. The Standing Counsel, Mr. Pitt Kennedy (to whom we are indebted for a valuable Note on the Bill), suggests that this would introduce a principle which found its place in Courts of Equity rather from a desire for symmetry than from its inherent utility. We feel the force of this objection, and we have therefore struck out the section.

8. We have inserted a clause (section 13 of Bill No. II) providing that, notwithstanding anything contained in section 56 of the Indian Contract Act, a contract is not wholly impossible of performance because a portion of its subject-matter existing at its date has ceased to exist at the time of the performance. The illustrations appended to this new clause will sufficiently show its propriety.

9. Section 16 of the Bill as introduced forbids the specific performance of part of a contract except in cases coming under section 14 or section 15. We have also excepted cases where a part of the contract, which, taken by itself, can and ought to be specifically enforced, stands on a separate and independent footing from another part which cannot or ought not to be so enforced: see sections 16 and 17 of Bill No. II.

10. We think the case put first in section 21 of the Bill as introduced (agreements the terms of which the Court cannot find with reasonable certainty) comes more suitably among the cases specified in the previous section (now numbered 21), of agreements not specifically enforceable. We have, accordingly, transposed it. We have extended clause (b) of the latter section to agreements so dependent on the personal qualifications or volition of the parties that the Court cannot enforce specific performance of the material terms, and we have illustrated this by the case of an agreement to marry. Clause (g) of the same section in the Bill as introduced declares that a contract, the performance of which involves the performance of continuous duties over a longer period than five years from its date, shall not be specifically enforced. We have reduced this period to three years. We have forbidden specific performance of a contract of which a material part of the subject-matter, supposed by both parties to exist, has, before it has been entered into, ceased to exist. The rule of the Bill as introduced which precludes specific performance of contracts to refer to arbitration has been considered with reference to the English law and the decision of Phear, J., in Koegler v. The Coringa Oil Company, I. L. R. 1 Calc. 42 (which has been affirmed on appeal) on the one hand, and to the second paragraph of the first Exception to section 28 of the Contract Act and a recent decision of the Madras High Court (8 Mad. 56) on the other. We have come to the conclusion that the rule ought to be maintained; and we have expressly repealed the paragraph in question, embodying, however, in the Bill the provision that if any person who has entered into a contract to refer to arbitration and refuses to perform it, sues in respect of any subject which he has contracted to refer, the existence of the contract shall bar the suit, and saving such remedies as are provided in the Civil Procedure Code.

11. We have extended section 23, clause (c), to cases of compromise of doubtful rights between members of the same family.

12. In section 24, we have altered illustration (b), which the recent decision in Dawson v. Oliver-Massey, 2 Ch. Div. 753, has rendered doubtful, and added an illustration turning on uncertainty of fact.

13. To section 25, we have added an illustration showing that a person entering into a contract in the character of an agent cannot enforce specific performance when he is in reality acting on his own account.

14. Section 26 deals with cases in which the plaintiff seeks specific performance of a contract in writing, to which the defendant sets up a variation. We have added the case in which the object of the parties is to produce a certain legal result which the contract as framed is not calculated to produce.

15. We have inserted a section (30) declaring that the provisions of the Bill as to specific performance of contracts shall apply, mutatis mutandis, to awards and to testamentary directions to execute settlements.

16. Where a decree for specific performance of a contract of sale has been made, we have empowered (section 35) the Court, by order in the suit in which such decree has been passed and not complied with, to rescind the contract, either so far as regards the party in default or altogether, as the justice of the case may require. We have added an illustration of clause (a) of the same section.

Cancellation of Instruments.

17. To the section (39) relating to the cancellation of instruments, we have added a clause empowering the Court, if the instrument has been registered, to cause the fact of the cancellation to be noted in the Registry Office.

Declaratory Decrees.

18. We think that the Courts should be barred from making declaratory decrees only in cases where the plaintiff, being able to seek further relief than a mere declaration of right, omits to do so. We see no sound reason for compelling a man, when others advance a claim to property which he believes to be his own, to wait till his evidence may be lost, to keep his arrangements for his family uncertain, or to suffer from a possibly serious diminution in the value of that property. We have therefore altered accordingly section 42 and illustration (e).

Enforcement of Public Duties.

19. We have, by section 45, confined the exercise of the power to make orders in the nature of a mandamus to the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the Presidency High Courts. We have restricted the power to apply for such orders to cases in which the applicant's property, franchise or personal right would be injured by the act complained of, and in which that act is clearly required by some law for the time being in force. And we have declared that the High Courts shall not make any order expressly excluded by some existing law.

Perpetual Injunctions.

20. We have struck out from section 54 the clause (analogous to that struck out of section 12) which permits the grant of a perpetual injunction where the parties have agreed in writing that, in case of invasion of the plaintiff's property, such injunction shall be granted. We have explained that, for the purpose of section 54, a trademark is property—a matter on which a recent case (Singer Manufacturing Company v. Wilson, 2 Ch. Div. 449) has thrown some doubt.

21. From section 56 we have struck out the clause forbidding the Courts to grant injunctions to prevent libels. Notwithstanding the present Lord Chancellor's decision in Prudential Assurance Company v. Knott, 44 L. J. Ch. 192, we do not see why breach of the obligation not to injure a man's reputation should not be restrained like the breach of any other obligation, and the provision in section 7 will prevent any clashing with the criminal law.

---

22. We have, lastly, cancelled some of the illustrations and transposed or amended others. We think that the Bill has been so altered as to require republication, and we recommend that it be republished accordingly in the Gazette of India and the local Gazettes.

SCHEDULE.—Enactments repealed.

A Bill to define and amend the Law relating to certain kinds of Specific Relief.

WHEREAS it is expedient to define and amend the law relating to certain kinds of specific relief obtainable in civil suits; It is hereby enacted as follows:— Preamble.

PART I.
PRELIMINARY.

1. This Act may be called "The Specific Relief Act, 1877:" Short title.
It extends to the whole of British India, except the Scheduled Districts as defined in Act No. XIV of 1874; Local extent.
And it shall come into force at once. Commencement.

2. The Acts specified in the schedule hereto annexed are repealed to the extent mentioned in its third column. Repeal of enactments.

3. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context,— Interpretation-clause.

'obligation' includes every duty enforceable by law: 'obligation.'

'trust' includes every species of express, implied, or constructive fiduciary ownership: 'trust.'

'trustee' includes every person holding, expressly, by implication, or constructively, a fiduciary character: 'trustee.'

Illustrations.

(a). Z bequeaths land to A, 'not doubting that he will pay thereout an annuity of Rs. 1,000 to B for his life.' A is a trustee within the meaning of this Act for B to the extent of the annuity.

(b). A is the legal, medical, or spiritual adviser of B. By availing himself of his situation as such adviser, A gains some pecuniary advantage which might otherwise have accrued to B. A is a trustee for B within the meaning of this Act of such advantage.

(c). A, being B's banker, discloses for his own purposes the state of B's account. A is a trustee within the meaning of this Act of the benefit gained by him by means of such disclosure.

(d). A, the mortgagee of certain leaseholds, renews the lease in his own name. A is a trustee within the meaning of this Act of the renewed lease.

(e). A, one of several partners, is employed to purchase goods for the firm. A, unknown to his co-partners, supplies them, at the market-price, with goods previously bought by himself when the price was lower, and thus makes a considerable profit. A is a trustee within the meaning of this Act of the profit so made.

(f). A, the manager of B's indigo factory, becomes agent for C, a vendor of indigo-seed, and receives, without B's assent, commission on the seed purchased from C for the factory. A is a trustee, within the meaning of this Act, for B, of the commission so received.

(g). A buys certain land with notice that B has already contracted to buy it. A is a trustee, within the meaning of this Act, of the land so bought.

(h). A buys land from B, having notice that C is in occupation of the land. A omits to make any inquiry as to the nature of C's interest therein. A is a trustee, within the meaning of this Act, to the extent of that interest.

'settlement' means any instrument (other than a will or codicil as defined by the Indian Succession Act) whereby the destination or devolution of moveable or immoveable property is settled or agreed to be settled: 'settlement.'

and all words occurring in this Act, which are defined in the Indian Contract Act, 1872, shall be deemed to have the meanings respectively assigned to them by that Act. Words defined in Contract Act.

4. Except where it is herein otherwise expressly enacted, nothing in this Act shall be deemed— Savings.

(a) to give any right to relief in respect of any agreement which is not a contract;

(b) to deprive any person of any right to relief, other than specific performance, which he may have under any contract; or

(c) to affect the operation of the Indian Registration Act on documents.

5. Specific relief is given— Specific relief how given.

(a) by taking possession of certain property and delivering it to a claimant;

(b) by ordering a party to do the very act which he is under an obligation to do;

(c) by preventing a party from doing that which he is under an obligation not to do;

(d) by declaring and determining the rights of parties otherwise than by an award of compensation; or (e) by appointing a Receiver.

6. Specific relief granted under clause (c) of section 5 is called preventive relief.

Preventive relief.

7. Specific relief cannot be granted for the mere purpose of enforcing a penal law.

Purposes for which relief cannot be given.

PART II.

OF SPECIFIC RELIEF.

CHAPTER I.

OF RECOVERING POSSESSION OF PROPERTY.

(a).—Possession of Immoveable Property.

8. A person entitled to the possession of specific immoveable property may recover it in the manner prescribed by the Code of Civil Procedure.

Recovery of specific immoveable property.

9. If any person is dispossessed without his consent of immoveable property otherwise than in due course of law, he or any person claiming through him may, by suit instituted within six months from the date of the dispossession, recover possession thereof, notwithstanding any other title that may be set up in such suit.

Suit by person dispossessed of immoveable property.

Nothing in this section shall bar any person from suing to establish his title to such property and to recover possession thereof.

No suit under this section shall be brought against the Government.

(b).—Possession of Moveable Property.

10. A person entitled to the possession of specific moveable property may recover the same in the manner prescribed by the Code of Civil Procedure.

Recovery of specific moveable property.

EXPLANATION 1.—A trustee may sue under this section for the possession of property to the beneficial interest in which another is entitled.

EXPLANATION 2.—A special or temporary right to the present possession of property is sufficient to support a suit under this section.

Illustrations.

(a). A bequeaths land to B for his life, with remainder to C. A dies. B enters on the land, but C, without B's consent, obtains possession of the title-deeds. B may recover them from C.

(b). A pledges certain jewels to B to secure a loan. B disposes of them before he is entitled to do so. A, without having paid or tendered the amount of the loan, sues B for possession of the jewels. The suit should be dismissed, as A is not entitled to their possession, whatever right he may have to secure their safe custody.

(c). A receives a letter addressed to him by B. B gets back the letter without A's consent. A has such a property therein as entitles him to recover it from B.

(d). A deposits books and papers for safe custody with B. B loses them and C finds them, but refuses to deliver them to B when demanded. B may recover them from C, subject to C's right, if any, under section 168 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872.

(e). A, a warehouse-keeper, is charged with the delivery of certain goods to Z, which B takes out of A's possession. A may sue B for the goods.

11. Any person having the possession or control of a particular article of moveable property, of which he is not the owner, may be compelled specifically to deliver it to the person entitled to its immediate possession, in any of the following cases:—

Liability of person in possession, not as owner, to deliver to person entitled to immediate possession.

(a) when the thing claimed is held by the defendant as the agent or trustee of the claimant;

(b) when compensation in money would not afford the claimant adequate relief for the loss of the thing claimed;

(c) when it would be extremely difficult to ascertain the actual damage caused by its loss;

(d) when the possession of the thing claimed has been wrongfully transferred from the claimant.

Illustrations

of clause (a).—A, proceeding to Europe, leaves his furniture in charge of B as his agent during his absence. B, without A's authority, pledges the furniture to C, and C, knowing that B had no right to pledge the furniture, advertises it for sale. C may be compelled to deliver the furniture to A, for he holds it as A's trustee.

of clause (b).—Z has got possession of an idol belonging to A's family, and of which A is the proper custodian. Z may be compelled to deliver it to A.

of clause (c).—A is entitled to a picture by a dead painter and a pair of rare China vases. B has possession of them. The articles are of too special a character to bear an ascertainable market-value. B may be compelled to deliver them to A.

CHAPTER II.

OF THE SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACTS.

(a). Contracts which may be specifically enforced.

12. Except as otherwise provided in this chapter, the specific performance of any contract may in the discretion of the Court be enforced—

Cases in which specific performance enforceable.

(a) when the act agreed to be done is in the performance, wholly or partly, of a trust;

(b) when there exists no standard for ascertaining the actual damage caused by the non-performance of the act agreed to be done;

(c) when the act agreed to be done is such that pecuniary compensation for its non-performance would not afford adequate relief; or

(d) when it is probable that pecuniary compensation cannot be got for the non-performance of the act agreed to be done.

EXPLANATION.—Unless and until the contrary is shewn, it is to be presumed that the breach of a contract to transfer immoveable property cannot be adequately relieved by compensation in money, and that the breach of a contract to transfer moveable property can be thus relieved.

Illustrations

of clause (a).—A holds certain stock in trust for B. A wrongfully disposes of the stock. The law creates an obligation on A to restore the same quantity of stock to B, and B may enforce specific performance of this obligation.

A sells 500 tons of iron stacked on his wharf to B, in consideration of a bill accepted by C, and undertakes in writing to deliver the iron to bearer, he (A) 'having been paid for the same.' B mortgages the iron to D. The bill is dishonoured. A refuses to deliver the iron. A holds the iron as a trustee for D, and D may compel him specifically to perform his contract.

A advances Rs. 10,000 to B, and B contracts to execute a mortgage of certain houses 'with an immediate power of sale' to secure the repayment of the advance. A requires B either to pay off the advance at once or to execute the mortgage. B refuses. A is entitled to have the contract specifically performed.

of clause (b).—A agrees to buy, and B agrees to sell, a picture by a dead painter and two rare China vases. The articles are of too special a character to bear an ascertainable market-value. A may compel B specifically to perform this contract, for it would be extremely difficult to ascertain the actual damage caused by its non-performance.

of clause (c).—A contracts with B to sell him a house for Rs. 1,000. B is entitled to a decree directing A to convey the house to him, he paying the purchase-money.

In consideration of being released from certain obligations imposed on it by its Act of incorporation, a railway company contracts with Z to make an archway through their railway to connect lands of Z severed by the railway, to construct a road between certain specified points, to pay a certain annual sum towards the maintenance of this road, and also to construct a siding and a wharf as specified in the contract. Z is entitled to have this contract specifically enforced, for his interest in its performance cannot be adequately compensated for by money; and the Court may appoint a proper person to superintend the construction of the archway, road, siding and wharf.

A contracts to sell, and B contracts to buy, a certain number of railway-shares of a particular description. A refuses to complete the sale. B may compel A specifically to perform this agreement, for the shares are limited in number and not always to be had in the market, and their possession carries with it the status of a shareholder, which cannot otherwise be procured.

A contracts with B to paint a picture for B, who agrees to pay therefor Rs. 1,000. The picture is painted. B is entitled to have it delivered to him on payment or tender of the Rs. 1,000.

of clause (d).—A transfers without endorsement, but for valuable consideration, a promissory note to B. A becomes insolvent, and C is appointed his assignee. B may compel C to endorse the note, for C has succeeded to A's liabilities, and a decree for pecuniary compensation for not endorsing the note would be fruitless.

13. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 56 of the Indian Contract Act, a contract is not wholly impossible of performance, because a portion of its subject-matter existing at its date has ceased to exist at the time of the performance.

Contracts of which the subject has partially ceased to exist.

Illustrations.

(a). A contracts to sell a house to B for a lákh of rupees. The day after the contract is executed, the house is destroyed by a cyclone. B may be compelled to perform his contract by paying the purchase-money.

(b). In consideration of a sum of money payable by B, A contracts to grant an annuity to B for B's life. The day after the contract has been entered into, B is thrown from his horse and killed. B's representative may be compelled to pay the purchase-money.

14. Where a party to a contract is unable to perform the whole of it, but the part which must be left unperformed bears only a small proportion to the whole in value, and admits of compensation in money, the Court may, at the suit of either party, direct the specific performance of so much of the contract as can be performed, and award compensation in money for the deficiency.

Specific performance of part of a contract where the part unperformed is small.

Illustrations.

(a). A contracts to sell B a piece of land consisting of 100 bighás. It turns out that 98 bighás of the land belong to A, and the two remaining bighás to a stranger, who refuses to part with them. The two bighás are not necessary for the use or enjoyment of the 98 bighás, nor so important for such use or enjoyment that the loss of them may not be made good in money. A may be directed at the suit of B to convey to B the 98 bighás and to make compensation to him for not conveying the two remaining bighás; or B may be directed, at the suit of A, to pay to A on receiving the conveyance and possession of the land, the stipulated purchase-money, less a sum awarded as compensation for the deficiency.

(b). In a contract for the sale and purchase of a house and lands for two lákhs of rupees, it is agreed that part of the furniture should be taken at a valuation. The Court may direct specific performance of the contract notwithstanding the parties are unable to agree as to the valuation of the furniture, and may either have the furniture valued in the suit and include it in the decree for specific performance, or may confine its decree to the house.

15. Where a party to a contract is unable to perform the whole of it, and the part which must be left unperformed forms a considerable portion of the whole, or does not admit of compensation in money, the party in default is not entitled to obtain a decree for specific performance. But the Court may, at the suit of the other party, direct the party in default to perform specifically so much of the contract as he can perform, provided that the party seeking specific performance relinquishes all claim to further performance, and all right to compensation, either for the deficiency, or for the loss or damage sustained by him through the default of the other party.

Specific performance of part of a contract where the part unperformed is large.

Illustrations.

(a). A contracts to sell to B a piece of land consisting of 100 bighás. It turns out that 50 bighás of the land belong to A, and the other 50 bighás to a stranger, who refuses to part with them. A cannot obtain a decree against B for the specific performance of the contract; but if B is willing to pay the price agreed upon, and to take the 50 bighás which belong to A, waiving all right to compensation either for the deficiency or for loss sustained by him through A's neglect or default, B is entitled to a decree directing A to convey those 50 bighás to him on payment of the purchase-money.

(b). A contracts to sell to B an estate with a house and garden for a lákh of rupees. The garden is important for the enjoyment of the house. It turns out that A is unable to convey the garden. A cannot obtain a decree against B for the specific performance of the contract; but if B is willing to pay the price agreed upon, and to take the estate and house without the garden, waiving all right to compensation either for the deficiency or for loss sustained by him through A's neglect or default, B is entitled to a decree, directing A to convey the house to him on payment of the purchase-money.

16. When a part of a contract which, taken by itself, can and ought to be specifically performed, stands on a separate and independent footing from another part of the same contract which cannot or ought not to be specifically performed, the Court may direct specific performance of the former part.

Specific performance of independent part of a contract.

17. The Court shall not direct the specific performance of a part of a contract except in cases coming under one or other of the three last preceding sections.

Bar in other cases of specific performance of part of contract.

18. Where a person contracts to sell or let certain property, having only an imperfect title thereto, the purchaser or lessee (except as otherwise provided by this chapter) has the following rights:—

Purchaser's rights against vendor with imperfect title.

(a) if the vendor or lessor has subsequently acquired any interest in the property, the purchaser or lessee may compel him to make good the contract out of such interest;

(b) where the concurrence of other persons is necessary to validate the title, and they are bound to convey at the vendor's or lessor's request, the purchaser or lessee may compel him to procure such concurrence;

(c) where the vendor professes to sell unincumbered property, but the property is mortgaged for an amount not exceeding the purchase-money, and the vendor has in fact only a right to redeem it, the purchaser may compel him to redeem the mortgage and obtain a conveyance from the mortgagee;

(d) where the vendor or lessor sues for specific performance of the contract, and the suit is dismissed on the ground of his imperfect title, the defendant has a right to a return of his deposit (if any) with interest thereon, to the costs of the suit, and to a lien for such deposit, interest and costs on the interest of the vendor or lessor in the property agreed to be sold or let.

Power to award compensation in certain cases.

19. Any person suing for the specific performance of a contract, may also ask for compensation for its breach, either in addition to, or in substitution for, such performance.

If in any such suit the Court decides that specific performance ought not to be granted, but that there is a contract between the parties which has been broken by the defendant and that the plaintiff is entitled to compensation for that breach, it shall award him compensation accordingly.

If in any such suit the Court decides that specific performance ought to be granted, but that it is not sufficient to satisfy the justice of the case, and that some compensation for breach of the contract should also be made to the plaintiff, it shall award him such compensation accordingly.

Compensation awarded under this section may be assessed in such manner as the Court may direct.

EXPLANATION.—The circumstance that the contract has become incapable of specific performance, does not preclude the Court from exercising the jurisdiction conferred by this section.

of the second paragraph:—A contracts to sell a hundred maunds of rice to B. B brings a suit to compel A to perform the contract or to pay compensation. The Court is of opinion that A has made a valid contract and has broken it without excuse to the injury of B, but that specific performance is not the proper remedy. It shall award to B such compensation as it deems just.

of the third paragraph:—A agrees with B to sell him a house for Rs. 1,000, the price to be paid and the possession given on the 1st January 1877. A fails to perform his part of the contract, and B brings his suit for specific performance and compensation, which is decided in his favour on the 1st January 1878. The decree may, besides ordering specific performance, award to B compensation for any loss or damage which he has sustained by A's refusal.

of the Explanation:—A, a purchaser, sues B, his vendor, for specific performance of a contract for the sale of a patent. Before the hearing of the suit, the patent expires. The Court may award A compensation for the non-performance of the contract and may, if necessary, amend the plaint for that purpose.

A sues for the specific performance of a resolution passed by the directors of a public company, under which he was entitled to have a certain number of shares allotted to him, and for compensation. All the shares had been allotted before the institution of the suit. The Court may, under this section, award A compensation for the non-performance.

Liquidation of damages not a bar to specific performance.

20. A contract, otherwise proper to be specifically enforced, may be thus enforced, though a sum be named in it as the amount to be paid in case of its breach, and the party in default is willing to pay the same.

Illustration.

A contracts to grant B an underlease of property held by A under C, and that if C refuses to grant a license necessary for that purpose, A will pay B Rs. 10,000. A refuses to apply for the license and offers to pay B the Rs. 10,000. B is nevertheless entitled to have the contract specifically enforced.

(b). Contracts which cannot be specifically enforced.

Contracts not specifically enforceable.

21. The following contracts cannot be specifically enforced:—

(a) a contract for the non-performance of which compensation in money is an adequate relief;

(b) a contract which runs into such minute or numerous details, or which is so dependent on the personal qualifications or volition of the parties, or otherwise from its nature is such, that the Court cannot enforce specific performance of its material terms;

(c) a contract the terms of which the Court cannot find with reasonable certainty;

(d) a contract which is in its nature revocable;

(e) a contract entered into by trustees either in excess of their powers or in breach of their trust;

(f) a contract entered into by or on behalf of a corporation or public company created for special purposes, or by the promoters of such company, which is in excess of its powers;

(g) a contract the performance of which involves the performance of a continuous duty extending over a longer period than three years from its date;

(h) a contract of which a material part of the subject-matter, supposed by both parties, to exist has, before it has been entered into, ceased to exist.

And save as provided by Chapter XXXVII of the Code of Civil Procedure, no contract to refer a controversy to arbitration shall be specifically enforced; but if any person who has entered into such a contract and has refused to perform it, sues in respect of any subject which he has contracted to refer, the existence of such contract shall bar the suit.

to (a).—A contracts to sell, and B contracts to buy, a lákh of rupees in the four per cent. loan of the Government of India.

A contracts to sell, and B contracts to buy, 40 chests of indigo at Rs. 1,000 per chest.

In consideration of certain property having been transferred by A to B, B contracts to open a credit in A's favour to the extent of Rs. 10,000, and to honour A's drafts to that amount.

The above contracts cannot be specifically enforced, for, in the first and the second both A and B, and in the third A, would be reimbursed by compensation in money.

to (b).—A contracts to render personal service to B:

A contracts to employ B on personal service:

A, an author, contracts with B, a publisher, to complete a literary work.

B cannot enforce performance of these contracts.

A contracts to buy B's business at the amount of a valuation to be made by two valuers, one to be named by A and the other by B. A and B each name a valuer, but before the valuation is made, A instructs his valuer not to proceed.

By a charter party entered into in Calcutta between A, the owner of a ship, and B, the charterer, it is agreed that the ship shall proceed to Rangoon, and there load a cargo of rice, and thence proceed to London, freight to be paid, one-third on arrival at Rangoon, and two-thirds on delivery of the cargo in London.

A lets land to B and B contracts to cultivate it in a particular manner for three years next after the date of the lease.

A and B contract that, in consideration of annual advances to be made by A, B will for three years next after the date of the contract grow particular crops on the land in his possession and deliver them to A when cut and ready for delivery.

A contracts with B that, in consideration of Rs. 1,000 to be paid to him by B, he will paint a picture for B.

A contracts with B to execute certain works which the Court cannot superintend.

A contracts to supply B with all the goods of a certain class which B may require.

A contracts with B to take from B a lease of a certain house for a specified term, at a specified rent, "if the drawing-room is handsomely decorated," even if it is held to have so much certainty that compensation can be recovered for its breach.

A contracts to marry B.

The above agreements cannot be specifically enforced.

to (c).—A, the owner of a refreshment-room, contracts with B to give him accommodation there for the sale of his goods and to furnish him with the necessary appliances. A refuses to perform his contract. The case is one for compensation and not for specific performance, the amount and nature of the accommodation and appliances being undefined.

to (d).—A and B contract to become partners in a certain business, the contract not specifying the duration of the proposed partnership. This contract cannot be specifically performed, for, if it were so performed, either A or B might at once dissolve the partnership.

to (e).—A is a trustee of land with power to lease it for seven years. He enters into a contract with B to grant a lease of the land for seven years, with a covenant to renew the lease at the expiry of the term. This contract cannot be specifically enforced.

The directors of a company have power to sell the concern with the sanction of a general meeting of the shareholders. They contract to sell it without any such sanction. This contract cannot be specifically enforced.

Two trustees, A and B, empowered to sell trust-property worth a lákh of rupees, contract to sell it to C for Rs. 30,000. The contract is so disadvantageous as to be a breach of trust. C cannot enforce its specific performance.

The promoters of a company for working mines contract that the company, when formed, shall purchase certain mineral property. They take no proper precautions to ascertain the value of such property and in fact agree to pay an extravagant price therefor. They also stipulate that the vendors shall give them a bonus out of the purchase-money. This contract cannot be specifically enforced.

to (f).—A company existing for the sole purpose of making and working a railway, contracts for the purchase of a piece of land for the purpose of erecting a cotton-mill thereon. This contract cannot be specifically enforced.

to (g).—A contracts to let for twenty-one years to B the right to use such part of a certain railway made by A as was upon B's land, and that B should have a right of running carriages over the whole line on certain terms, and might require A to supply the necessary engine-power, and that A should during the term keep the whole railway in good repair. Specific performance of this contract must be refused to B.

to (h).—A contracts to pay an annuity to B for the lives of C and D. It turns out that, at the date of the contract, C, though supposed by A and B to be alive, was dead. The contract cannot be specifically performed.

(c). Of the Discretion of the Court.

Discretion as to decreeing specific performance.

22. The jurisdiction to decree specific performance is discretionary, and the Court is not bound to grant such relief merely because it is lawful to do so; but the discretion of the Court is not arbitrary but sound and reasonable, guided by judicial principles and capable of correction by a Court of appeal.

The following are cases in which the Court may properly exercise a discretion not to decree specific performance:—

I. Where the circumstances under which the contract is made are such as to give the plaintiff an unfair advantage over the defendant, though there may be no fraud or misrepresentation on the plaintiff's part.

Illustrations.

(a). A, a tenant for life of certain property, assigns his interest therein to B. C contracts to buy, and B contracts to sell, that interest. Before the contract is completed, A receives a mortal injury from the effects of which he dies the day after the contract is executed. If B and C were equally ignorant or equally aware of the fact, B is entitled to specific performance. If B knew the fact, and C did not, specific performance should be refused to B.

(b). A contracts to sell to B the interest of C in certain stock-in-trade. It is stipulated that the sale shall stand good, even though it should turn out that C's interest is worth nothing. In fact the value of C's interest depends on the result of certain partnership-accounts, on which he is heavily in debt to his partners. This indebtedness is known to A, but not to B. Specific performance of the contract should be refused to A.

(c). A contracts to sell, and B contracts to buy, certain land. To protect the land from floods, it is necessary for its owner to maintain an expensive embankment. B does not know of this circumstance, and A conceals it from him. Specific performance should be refused to A.

(d). A's property is put up to auction. B requests C, A's attorney, to bid for him. C does this inadvertently and in good faith. The persons present seeing the vendor's attorney bidding, think that he is a mere puffer and cease to compete. The lot is knocked down to B at a low price. Specific performance should be refused to B.

II. Where the performance of the agreement would involve some hardship on the defendant which he did not foresee, whereas no such hardship would fall on the plaintiff if the agreement was not performed.

Illustrations.

(e). A is entitled to some land under his father's will on condition that, if he sells it within twenty-five years, half the purchase-money shall go to B. A, forgetting the condition, contracts, before the expiration of the twenty-five years, to sell the land to C. Here, the enforcement of the contract would operate so harshly on A, that the Court will not compel its specific performance in favour of C.

(f). A and B, trustees, join their beneficiary, C, in a contract to sell the trust-estate to D, and personally agree to exonerate the estate from heavy incumbrances to which it is subject. The purchase-money is not nearly enough to discharge those incumbrances, though, at the date of the contract, the vendors believed it to be sufficient. Specific performance of the contract should be refused to D.

(g). A, the owner of an estate, contracts to sell it to B, and stipulates that he, A, shall not be obliged to define its boundary. The estate really comprises a valuable property not known to either to be part of it. Specific performance of the contract should be refused to B, unless he waives his claim to the unknown property.

(h). A contracts with B to sell him certain land, and to make a road to it from a certain railway-station. It is found afterwards that A cannot make the road without exposing himself to litigation. Specific performance of the part of the contract relating to the road should be refused to B, even though it may be held that he is entitled to specific performance of the rest with compensation for loss of the road.

(i). A, a lessee of mines, contracts with B, his lessor, that at any time during the continuance of the lease B may give notice of his desire to take the machinery and plant used in and about the mines, and that he shall have the articles specified in his notice delivered to him at a valuation on the expiry of the lease. Such a contract might be most injurious to the lessee's business, and specific performance should be refused to B.

(j). A contracts to buy certain land from B. The contract is silent as to access to the land. No right of way to it can be shown to exist. Specific performance of the contract should be refused to B.

(k). A contracts with B to buy from B's manufactory and not elsewhere all the goods of a certain class used by A in his trade. The Court cannot compel B to supply the goods, but if he does not supply them, A may be ruined, unless he is allowed to buy them elsewhere. Specific performance of the agreement should be refused to B.

III. The circumstance that the plaintiff has done substantial acts or suffered losses in consequence of a contract susceptible of specific performance is one which the Court may reasonably consider in exercising its discretion to grant specific performance of such contract.

Illustration.

A sells land to a railway company who contract to execute certain works for his convenience. The company take the land and use it for their railway. Specific performance of the contract to execute the works should be awarded in favour of A.

(d). For whom Contracts may be specifically enforced.

23. Except as otherwise provided by this chapter, the specific performance of a contract may be obtained by—

Who may obtain specific performance.

(a) any party thereto;

(b) the representative in interest, or the principal, of any party thereto: provided that, where the learning, skill, solvency or any personal quality of such party is a material ingredient in the contract, or where the contract provides that his interest shall not be assigned, his representative in interest or his principal shall not be entitled to specific performance of the contract;

(c) where the contract is a settlement on marriage, or a compromise of doubtful rights between members of the same family, any person beneficially entitled thereunder;

(d) where the contract has been entered into by a tenant for life in due exercise of a power, the remainderman;

(e) a reversioner in possession, where the agreement is a covenant entered into with his predecessor in title and the reversioner is entitled to the benefit of such covenant;

(f) a reversioner in remainder, where the agreement is such a covenant, and the reversioner is entitled to the benefit thereof and will sustain material injury by reason of its breach;

(g) when a public company has entered into a contract and subsequently becomes amalgamated with another public company, the new company which arises out of the amalgamation;

(h) when the promoters of a public company have, before its incorporation, entered into a contract for the purposes of the company, and such contract is warranted by the terms of the incorporation, the company.

(e). For whom Contracts cannot be specifically enforced.

24. A contract for the sale or letting of property, whether moveable or immoveable, cannot be specifically enforced in favour of a vendor or lessor—

Contracts to sell property by one who has no title, or who is a voluntary settler.

(a) who, knowing himself not to have any title to the property, has contracted to sell or let the same;

(b) who, though he entered into the contract believing that he had a good title to the property, cannot at the time fixed by the parties or by the Court for the completion of the sale or letting, give the purchaser or lessee a title free from reasonable doubt;

(c) who, previous to entering into the contract, has made a settlement of its subject-matter not founded on a valuable consideration.

EXPLANATION.—Marriage is a valuable consideration within the meaning of this section.

Illustrations.

(a). A, without C's authority, contracts to sell to B an estate which A knows to belong to C. A cannot enforce specific performance of this contract, even though C is willing to confirm it.

(b). A bequeaths his land to trustees, declaring that they may sell it with the consent in writing of B. B gives a general prospective assent in writing to any sale which the trustees may make. The trustees then enter into a contract with C to sell him the land. C refuses to carry out the contract. The trustees cannot specifically enforce this contract, as, in the absence of B's consent to the particular sale to C, the title which they can give C is, as the law stands, not free from reasonable doubt.

(c). A, being in possession of certain land, contracts to sell it to Z. On enquiry it turns out that A claims the land as heir of B, who left the country several years before, and is generally believed to be dead, but of whose death there is no sufficient proof. A cannot compel Z specifically to perform the contract.

(d). A, out of natural love and affection, makes a settlement of certain property on his brothers and their issue, and afterwards enters into a contract to sell the property to a stranger. A cannot enforce specific performance of this contract so as to override the settlement, and thus prejudice the interests of the persons claiming under it.

25. Specific performance of a contract cannot be enforced in favour of a person—

Personal bars to the relief.

(a) who could not recover compensation for its breach;

(b) who has become incapable of performing, or violates, any essential term of the contract that on his part remains to be performed; or

(c) who has already chosen his remedy and obtained satisfaction for the alleged breach of contract;

(d) who, previously to entering into the agreement, had notice that a settlement of the subject-matter thereof, not founded on marriage or other valuable consideration, had been made and was then in force.

Illustrations

to clause (a).—A, in the character of agent for B, enters into an agreement with C to buy C's house. A is in reality acting, not as agent for B, but on his own account. A cannot enforce specific performance of this contract.

to clause (b).—A contracts to sell B a house and to become tenant thereof for a term of fourteen years from the date of the sale at a specified yearly rent. A becomes insolvent. Neither he nor his assignee can enforce specific performance of the contract.

A contracts to sell B a house and garden in which there are ornamental trees, a material element in the value of the property as a residence. A, without B's consent, fells the trees. A cannot enforce specific performance of the contract.

A, holding land under a contract with B for a lease, commits waste, or treats the land in an unhusbandlike manner. A cannot enforce specific performance of the contract.

A contracts to let, and B contracts to take, an unfinished house, B contracting to finish the house and the lease to contain covenants on the part of A to keep the house in repair. B finishes the house in a very defective manner: he cannot enforce the contract specifically, though A and B may sue each other for compensation for breach of it.

to clause (c).—A contracts to let, and B contracts to take, a house for a specified term at a specified rent. B refuses to perform the contract. A thereupon sues for, and obtains, compensation for the breach of contract. A cannot obtain specific performance.

(f). For whom Contracts cannot be specifically enforced except with a variation.

26. Where a plaintiff seeks specific performance of a contract in writing, to which the defendant sets up a variation, the plaintiff cannot obtain the performance sought, except with the variation so set up, in the following cases (namely):—

Non-enforcement except with variation.

(a) where by fraud or mistake of fact the contract of which performance is sought is in terms different from that which the defendant supposed it to be when he entered into it;

(b) where by fraud, mistake of fact, or surprise the defendant entered into the contract under a reasonable misapprehension as to its effect as between himself and the plaintiff;

(c) where the defendant, knowing the terms of the contract and understanding its effect, has entered into it relying upon some misrepresentation by the plaintiff, or upon some stipulation on the plaintiff's part, which adds to the contract, but which he refuses to fulfil;

(d) where the object of the parties was to produce a certain legal result, which the contract as framed is not calculated to produce;

(e) where the parties have, subsequently to the execution of the contract, contracted to vary it.

Illustrations.

(a). A, B and C sign a writing by which they purport to contract each to enter into a bond to D for Rs. 1,000. In a suit by D, to make A, B and C separately liable each to the extent of Rs. 1,000, they prove that the word 'each' was inserted by mistake; that the intention was that they should give a joint bond for Rs. 1,000. A can obtain the performance sought only with the variation thus set up.

(b). A sues B to compel specific performance of a contract in writing to buy a dwelling-house. B proves that he assumed that the contract included an adjoining yard, and the contract was so framed as to leave it doubtful whether the yard was so included or not. The Court will refuse to enforce the contract, except with the variation set up by B.

(c). A contracts in writing to let to B a wharf, together with a strip of A's land delineated in a map. Before signing the contract, B proposed orally that he should be at liberty to substitute for the strip mentioned in the contract another strip of A's land of the same dimensions, and to this A expressly assented. B then signed the written contract. A cannot obtain specific performance of the written contract, except with the variation set up by B.

(d). A and B enter into negotiations for the purpose of securing land to B for his life, with remainder to his issue. They execute a contract the terms of which are found to confer an absolute ownership on B. The contract so framed cannot be specifically enforced.

(e). A contracts in writing to let a house to B, for a certain term, at the rent of Rs. 100 per month, putting it first into tenantable repair. The house turns out to be not worth repairing, so, with B's consent, A pulls it down and erects a new house in its place: B contracting orally to pay rent at Rs. 120 per mensem. B then sues to compel specific performance of the contract in writing. He cannot enforce it except with the variations made by the subsequent oral contract.

(g). Against whom Contracts may be specifically enforced.

27. Except as otherwise provided by this chapter, specific performance of a contract may be enforced against—

Relief against parties and persons claiming under them by subsequent title.

(a) either party thereto;

(b) any other person claiming under him by a title arising subsequently to the contract, except a transferee for value, who has paid his money in good faith and without notice of the original contract;

(c) any person claiming under a title which, though prior to the contract, and known to the plaintiff, might have been displaced by the defendant;

(d) when a public company has entered into a contract, and subsequently becomes amalgamated with another public company, the new company which arises out of the amalgamation;

(e) when the promoters of a public company have, before its incorporation, entered into a contract, the company: provided that the company has ratified and adopted the contract and the contract is warranted by the terms of the incorporation.

Illustrations

to clause (b).—A contracts to convey certain land to B by a particular day. A dies intestate before that day without having conveyed the land. B may compel A's heir or other representative in interest to perform the contract specifically.

A contracts to sell certain land to B for Rs. 5,000. A afterwards conveys the land for Rs. 6,000 to C, who has notice of the original contract. B may enforce specific performance of the contract as against C.

A contracts to sell land to B for Rs. 5,000. B takes possession of the land. Afterwards A sells it to C for Rs. 6,000. C makes no enquiry of B relating to his interest in the land. B's possession is sufficient to affect C with notice of his interest, and he may enforce the contract against C.

A contracts in consideration of Rs. 1,000, to bequeath certain of his lands to B. Immediately after the contract A dies intestate, and C takes out administration to his estate. B may enforce the contract against C.

A contracts to sell certain land to B. Before the completion of the contract, A becomes a lunatic and C is appointed his committee. B may specifically enforce the contract against C.

to clause (c).—A, the tenant for life of an estate, with remainder to B, in due exercise of a power conferred by the settlement under which he is tenant for life, contracts to sell the estate to C, who has notice of the settlement. Before the sale is completed, A dies. C may enforce specific performance of the contract against B.

A and B are joint tenants of land, his undivided moiety of which either may alien in his lifetime, but which, subject to that right, devolves on the survivor. A contracts to sell his moiety to C and dies. C may enforce specific performance of the contract against B.

(h). Against whom Contracts cannot be specifically enforced.

28. Specific performance of a contract cannot be enforced against a party thereto in any of the following cases :—

What parties cannot be compelled to perform.

(a) if the consideration to be received by him is so grossly inadequate, with reference to the state of things existing at the date of the contract, as to be either by itself or coupled with other circumstances evidence of fraud or of undue advantage taken by the plaintiff ;

(b) if his assent was obtained by the misrepresentation (whether wilful or innocent), concealment, circumvention, or unfair practices, of any party to whom performance would become due under the contract, or by any promise of such party which has not been substantially fulfilled ;

(c) if his assent was given under the influence of mistake of fact, misapprehension or surprise : Provided that, when the contract provides for compensation in case of mistake, compensation may be made for a mistake within the scope of such provision, and the contract may be specifically enforced in other respects if proper to be so enforced.

Illustrations

to clause (c).—A, one of two executors, in the erroneous belief that he had the authority of his co-executor, enters into an agreement for the sale to B of his testator's property. B cannot insist on the sale being completed.

A directs an auctioneer to sell certain land. A afterwards revokes the auctioneer's authority as to 20 bighás of this land, but the auctioneer inadvertently sells the whole to B, who has not notice of the revocation. B cannot enforce specific performance of the agreement.

(i). The Effect of dismissing a Suit for Specific Performance.

29. The dismissal of a suit for specific performance of a contract shall bar the plaintiff's right to sue for the breach of such contract.

Bar of suit for breach after dismissal.

(j). Awards and Directions to execute Settlements.

30. The provisions of this chapter as to contracts shall, mutatis mutandis, apply to awards and to directions in a will or codicil to execute a particular settlement.

Application of preceding sections to awards and testamentary directions to execute settlements.

CHAPTER III.

OF THE RECTIFICATION OF INSTRUMENTS.

31. When, through fraud or a mutual mistake of the parties, a contract or other instrument in writing does not truly express their intention, either party, or his representative in interest, may institute a suit to have the instrument rectified; and if the Court find it clearly proved that there has been fraud or mistake in framing the instrument, and ascertain the real intention of the parties in executing the same, the Court may in its discretion rectify the instrument, so as to express that intention, so far as this can be done without prejudice to rights acquired by third persons, in good faith and for value.

When instrument may be rectified.

Illustrations.

(a). A, intending to sell to B his house and one of three godowns adjacent to it, executes a conveyance prepared by B, in which, through B's fraud, all three godowns are included.

Of the two godowns which were fraudulently included, B gives one to C and lets the other to D for a rent, neither C nor D having any knowledge of the fraud.

The conveyance may, as against B and C, be rectified so as to exclude from it the godown given to C; but it cannot be rectified so as to affect D's lease.

(b). By a marriage-settlement, A, the father of B, the intended wife, covenants with C, the intended husband, to pay to C, his executors, administrators and assigns, during A's life, an annuity of Rs. 5,000. C dies insolvent and the official assignee claims the annuity from A. The Court, on finding it clearly proved that the parties always intended that this annuity should be paid as a provision for B and her children, may rectify the settlement, and decree that the assignee has no right to any part of the annuity.

32. For the purpose of rectifying a contract in writing, the Court must be satisfied that all the parties thereto intended to make an equitable and conscientious agreement.

Presumption as to intent of parties.

33. In rectifying a written instrument, the Court may inquire what the instrument was intended to mean, and what were intended to be its legal consequences, and is not confined to the inquiry what the language of the instrument was intended to be.

Principles of rectification.

34. A contract in writing may be first rectified and then, if the plaintiff has so prayed in his plaint and the Court thinks fit, specifically enforced.

Specific enforcement of rectified contract.

Illustration.

A contracts in writing to pay his attorney, B, a fixed sum in lieu of costs.

The contract contains mistakes as to the name and rights of the client, which, if construed strictly, would exclude B from all rights under it. B is entitled, if the Court thinks fit, to have it rectified, and to an order for payment of the sum, as if at the time of its execution it had expressed the intention of the parties.

CHAPTER IV.

OF THE RESCISSION OF CONTRACTS.

35. Any person interested in a contract in writing may sue to have it rescinded, and such rescission may be adjudged by the Court, in any of the following cases, namely :—

When rescission may be adjudged.

(a) where the contract is voidable or terminable by the plaintiff ;

(b) where the contract is unlawful for causes not apparent on its face, and the defendant is more to blame than the plaintiff ;

(c) where a decree for specific performance of a contract of sale, or of a contract to take a lease, has been made, and the purchaser or lessee makes default in payment of the purchase-money or other sums which the Court has ordered him to pay.

When the purchaser or lessee is in possession of the subject-matter, and the Court finds that such possession is wrongful, the Court may also order him to pay to the vendor or lessor the rents and profits, if any, received by him.

In the same case, the Court may by order in the suit in which the decree has been made and not complied with, rescind the contract either so far as regards the party in default, or altogether, as the justice of the case may require.

Illustrations

to (a).—A sells an estate to B. There is a right of way over the estate of which A has direct personal knowledge, but which he conceals from B. B is entitled to have the contract rescinded.

to (b).—A, an attorney, induces B, his client, to transfer property to him for the purpose of defrauding B's creditors. Here the parties are not equally in fault, and B is entitled to have the instrument of transfer rescinded.

36. Rescission of a contract in writing cannot be adjudged for mere mistake, unless the party against whom it is adjudged can be restored to substantially the same position as if the contract had not been made.

Rescission for mistake.

37. A plaintiff instituting a suit for the specific performance of a contract in writing may pray in the alternative that, if the contract cannot be specifically enforced, it may be rescinded and delivered up to be cancelled ; and the Court, if it refuses to enforce the contract specifically, may direct it to be rescinded and delivered up accordingly.

Alternative prayer for rescission in suit for specific performance.

38. On adjudging the rescission of a contract, the Court may require the party to whom such relief is granted to make any compensation to the other which justice may require.

Court may require party rescinding to do equity.

CHAPTER V.

OF THE CANCELLATION OF INSTRUMENTS.

39. Any person against whom a written instrument is void or voidable, who has reasonable apprehension that such instrument, if left outstanding, may cause him serious injury, may sue to have it adjudged void or voidable, and the Court may, in its discretion, so adjudge it and order it to be delivered up and cancelled.

When cancellation may be ordered.

If the instrument has been registered, under the Indian Registration Act, the Court shall also send a copy of its decree to the officer in whose office the instrument has been so registered, and such officer shall note on the copy of the instrument contained in his books the fact of its cancellation.

Illustrations.

(a). A, the owner of a ship, by fraudulently representing her to be seaworthy, induces B, an underwriter, to insure her. B may obtain the cancellation of the policy.

(b). A conveys land to B, who bequeaths it to C and dies. Thereupon, D gets possession of the land, and produces a forged instrument stating that the conveyance was made to B in trust for him. C may obtain the cancellation of the forged instrument.

(c). A, representing that the tenants on his land were all at will, sells it to B, and conveys it to him by an instrument dated the 1st January 1875. Soon after that day, A fraudulently grants to C a lease of part of the lands dated the 1st October 1874, and procures the lease to be registered under the Indian Registration Act. B may obtain the cancellation of this lease.

(d). A agrees to sell and deliver a ship to B, to be paid for by B's acceptances of four bills of exchange, for sums amounting to Rs. 30,000, to be drawn by A on B. The bills are drawn and accepted, but the ship is not delivered according to the agreement. A sues B on one of the bills. B may obtain the cancellation of all the bills.

40. Where an instrument is evidence of different rights or different obligations, the Court may, in a proper case, cancel it in part and allow it to stand for the residue.

What instruments may be partially cancelled.

Illustration.

A draws a bill on B, who endorses it to C, by whom it appears to be endorsed to D, who endorses it to E. C's endorsement is forged. C is entitled to have such endorsement cancelled, leaving the bill to stand in other respects.

41. On adjudging the cancellation of an instrument, the Court may require the party to whom such relief is granted to make any compensation to the other which justice may require.

Power to require party for whom instrument is cancelled to make compensation.

CHAPTER VI.

OF DECLARATORY DECREES.

42. Any person entitled to any legal character, or to any right as to any property, may institute a suit against any person denying, or interested to deny, his title to such character or right, and the Court may in its discretion make therein a declaration that he is so entitled, and the plaintiff need not in such suit ask for any further relief.

Discretion of Court as to declarations of status or right.

Provided that no Court shall make any such declaration where the plaintiff, being able to seek further relief than a mere declaration of right, omits to do so.

Bar to such declaration.

EXPLANATION.—A trustee of property is a person interested to deny a title adverse to the title of some one who is not in existence, and for whom, if in existence, he would be a trustee.

Illustrations.

(a). A is lawfully in possession of certain land. The inhabitants of a neighbouring village claim a right of way across the land. A may sue for a declaration that they are not entitled to the right so claimed.

(b). A bequeaths his property to B, C and D, 'to be equally divided amongst all and each of them, if living at the time of my death, then amongst their surviving children.' No such children are in existence. In a suit against A's executor, the Court may declare whether B, C and D took the property absolutely, or only for their lives, and it may also declare the interests of the children before their rights are vested.

(c). A covenants that if he should at any time be entitled to property exceeding one lákh of rupees, he will settle it upon certain trusts. Before any such property accrues, or any persons entitled under the trusts are ascertained, he institutes a suit to obtain a declaration that the covenant is void for uncertainty. The Court may make the declaration.

(d). A alienates to B property in which A has merely a life-interest. The alienation is invalid as against C, who is entitled as reversioner. The Court may in a suit by C against A and B declare that C is so entitled.

(e). The widow of a sonless Hindú alienates part of the property of which she is in possession as such. The person presumptively entitled to possess the property if he survive her, may, in a suit against the alienee, obtain a declaration that the alienation was made without legal necessity and was therefore void beyond the widow's lifetime.

(f). A Hindú widow in possession of property adopts a son to her deceased husband. The person presumptively entitled to possession of the property on her death, without a son may, in a suit against the adopted son, obtain a declaration that the adoption was invalid.

(g). A is in possession of certain property. B, alleging that he is the owner of the property, requires A to deliver it to him. A may obtain a declaration of his right to hold the property.

(h). A bequeaths property to B for his life, with remainder to B's wife and her children, if any, by B, but if B die without any wife or children, to C. B has a putative wife, D, and children, but C denies that B and D were ever lawfully married. D and her children may, in B's lifetime, institute a suit against C and obtain therein a declaration that they are truly the wife and children of B.

Effect of declaration.

43. A declaration made under this chapter is binding only on the parties to the suit, persons claiming through them respectively, and, where any of the parties are trustees, on the persons for whom, if in existence at the date of the declaration, such parties would be trustees.

Illustration.

A, a Hindú, in a suit to which B, his alleged wife, and her mother are defendants, seeks a declaration that his marriage was duly solemnized and an order for the restitution of his conjugal rights. The Court makes the declaration and order. C, claiming that B is his wife, then sues A for the recovery of B. The declaration made in the former suit is not binding upon C.

CHAPTER VII.

OF THE APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVERS.

Appointment of receivers discretionary.

44. The appointment of a Receiver pending a suit is a matter resting in the discretion of the Court.

Reference to Code of Civil Procedure.

The mode and effect of his appointment, and his rights, powers, duties and liabilities, are regulated by the Code of Civil Procedure.

CHAPTER VIII.

OF THE ENFORCEMENT OF PUBLIC DUTIES.

Power to order public servants and others to do certain specific acts.

45. Any of the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William, Madras and Bombay may make an order requiring any specific act to be done or forborne, within the local limits of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction, by any person holding a public office, whether of a permanent or a temporary nature, or by any corporation or inferior Court of Judicature: provided—

(a) that an application for such order be made by some person whose property, franchise, or personal right, would be injured by the forbearing or doing (as the case may be) of the said specific act;

(b) that such doing or forbearing is, under any law for the time being in force, clearly incumbent on such person or Court in his or its public character, or on such corporation in its corporate character;

(c) that, in the opinion of the High Court, such doing or forbearing is consonant to right and justice;

(d) that the applicant has no other specific and adequate legal remedy; and (e) that the remedy given by the order applied for will be complete.

Exemptions from such power.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize any High Court—

(f) to make any order binding on the Secretary of State for India in Council, on the Governor General in Council, on the Governor of Madras in Council, on the Governor of Bombay in Council, or on the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal;

(g) to make any order on any other servant of the Crown, as such, merely to enforce the satisfaction of a claim upon the Crown; or

(h) to make any order which is otherwise expressly excluded by any law for the time being in force.

Application how made.

46. Every application under section 45 must be founded on an affidavit of the person injured, stating his right in the matter in question, his demand of justice and the denial thereof; and the High Court may, in its discretion, either make the order applied for absolute in the first instance, or refuse it and grant a rule to show cause why the order applied for should not be made.

Procedure thereon.

Order in alternative.

If, in the latter case, the person, Court or corporation complained of shows no sufficient cause, the High Court may first make an order in the alternative, either to do or forbear the act mentioned in the order, or to signify some reason to the contrary and make an answer thereto by such day as the High Court fixes in this behalf.

Peremptory order.

47. If the person, Court or corporation to whom or to which such order is directed makes no answer, or makes an insufficient or a false answer, the High Court may then issue a peremptory order to do or forbear the act absolutely.

Execution of, and appeal from, orders.

48. Every order under this chapter shall be executed, and may be appealed from, as if it were a decree made in the exercise of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court.

Costs.

49. The costs of all applications and orders under this chapter shall be in the discretion of the High Court.

Bar to issue of mandamus.

50. Neither the High Court nor any Judge thereof shall hereafter issue any writ of mandamus.

Power to frame rules.

51. Each of the said High Courts shall, as soon as conveniently may be, frame rules to regulate the procedure under this chapter; and until such rules are framed, the practice of such Court as to applications for and grants of writs of mandamus shall apply, so far as may be practicable, to applications and orders under this chapter.

PART III.

OF PREVENTIVE RELIEF.

CHAPTER IX.

OF INJUNCTIONS GENERALLY.

Preventive relief how granted.

52. Preventive relief is granted at the discretion of the Court by injunction, temporary or perpetual.

Temporary injunctions.

53. Temporary injunctions are such as are to continue until a specified time. They may be granted at any period of a suit, and are regulated by the Code of Civil Procedure.

Perpetual injunctions.

A perpetual injunction can only be granted by the decree made at the hearing and upon the merits of the suit: the defendant is thereby perpetually enjoined from the assertion of a right, or from the commission of an act, which would be contrary to the rights of the plaintiff.

CHAPTER X.

OF PERPETUAL INJUNCTIONS.

Perpetual injunctions when granted.

54. Subject to the other provisions contained in, or referred to by, this chapter, a perpetual injunction may be granted to prevent the breach of an obligation existing in favour of the applicant, whether expressly or by implication.

When such obligation arises from contract, the Court shall be guided by the rules and provisions contained in Chapter II of this Act.

When such obligation arises from an actual or threatened invasion by the defendant of the plaintiff's right to, or enjoyment of, property, the Court may grant a perpetual injunction in the following cases (namely)—

(a) where the obligation arises from a trust;

(b) where there exists no standard for ascertaining the actual damage caused, or likely to be caused, by the invasion;

(c) where the invasion is such that pecuniary compensation would not afford adequate relief;

(d) where it is probable that pecuniary compensation cannot be got for the invasion;

(e) where the injunction is necessary to prevent a multiplicity of judicial proceedings.

EXPLANATION.—For the purpose of this section a trademark is property.

Illustrations.

(a). A lets certain land to B, and B contracts not to dig sand or gravel thereout. A may sue for an injunction to restrain B from digging in violation of his contract.

(b). A trustee threatens a breach of trust. His co-trustees, if any, should, and the beneficial owners may, obtain an injunction to prevent the breach.

(c). The directors of a public company are about to pay a dividend out of capital or borrowed money. Any of the shareholders may obtain an injunction to restrain them.

(d). The directors of a fire and life-insurance company are about to engage in marine insurances. Any of the shareholders may obtain an injunction to restrain them.

(e). A, an executor, through misconduct or insolvency, is bringing the property of the deceased into danger. The Court may grant an injunction to restrain him from getting in the assets.

(f). A, a trustee for B, is about to make an imprudent sale of a small part of the trust-property. B may sue for an injunction to restrain the sale, even though compensation in money would have afforded him adequate relief.

(g). A makes a settlement (not founded on marriage or other valuable consideration) of an estate on B and his children. A then contracts to sell the estate to C. B or any of his children may sue for an injunction to restrain the sale.

(h). In the course of A's employment as a vakil, certain papers belonging to his client, B, come into his possession. A threatens to make these papers public, or to communicate their contents to a stranger. B may sue for an injunction to restrain A from so doing.

(i). A is B's medical adviser. He demands money of B which B declines to pay. A then threatens to make known the effect of B's communications to him as a patient. This is contrary to A's duty, and B may sue for an injunction to restrain him from so doing.

(j). A, the owner of two adjoining houses, lets one to B and afterwards lets the other to C. A and C begin to make such alterations in the house let to C as will prevent the comfortable enjoyment of the house let to B. B may sue for an injunction to restrain them from doing so.

(k). A lets certain arable lands to B for purposes of husbandry, but without any express contract as to the mode of cultivation. Contrary to the mode of cultivation customary in the district, B threatens to sow the lands with seed injurious thereto and requiring many years to eradicate. A may sue for an injunction to restrain B from sowing the lands in contravention of his implied contract to use them in a husbandlike manner.

(l). A, B and C are partners, the partnership being determinable at will. A threatens to do an act tending to the destruction of the partnership-property. B and C may, without seeking a dissolution of the partnership, sue for an injunction to restrain A from doing the act.

(m). A, a Hindú widow in possession of her deceased husband's property, commits destruction of the property without any cause sufficient to justify her in so doing. The heir-expectant may sue for an injunction to restrain her.

(n). A, B and C are members of an undivided Hindú family. A cuts timber growing on the family-property, and threatens to destroy part of the family-house and to sell some of the family-utensils. B and C may sue for an injunction to restrain him.

(o). A, the owner of certain houses in Calcutta, becomes insolvent. B buys them from the official assignee and enters into possession. A persists in trespassing on and damaging the houses, and B is thereby compelled, at considerable expense, to employ men to protect the possession. B may sue for an injunction to restrain further acts of trespass.

(p). The inhabitants of a village claim a right of way over A's land. In a suit against several of them, A obtains a declaratory decree that his land is subject to no such right. Afterwards each of the other villagers sues A for obstructing his alleged right of way over the land. A may sue for an injunction to restrain them.

(q). A, in an administration-suit to which a creditor, B, is not a party, obtains a decree for the administration of C's assets. B proceeds against C's estate for his debt. A may sue for an injunction to restrain B.

(r). A and B are in possession of contiguous lands and of the mines underneath them. A works his mine so as to extend under B's mine and threatens to remove certain pillars which help to support B's mine. B may sue for an injunction to restrain him from so doing.

(s). A rings bells or makes some other unnecessary noise so near a house as to interfere materially and unreasonably with the physical comfort of the occupier, B. B may sue for an injunction restraining A from making the noise.

(t). A pollutes the air with smoke so as to interfere materially with the physical comfort of B and C, who carry on business in a neighbouring house. B and C may sue for an injunction to restrain the pollution.

(u). A infringes B's patent. If the Court is satisfied that the patent is valid and has been infringed, B may obtain an injunction to restrain the infringement.

(v). A pirates B's copyright. B may obtain an injunction to restrain the piracy, unless the work of which copyright is claimed is libellous or obscene.

(w). A improperly uses the trademark of B. B may obtain an injunction to restrain the user, provided that B's use of the trademark is honest.

(x). A, a tradesman, holds out B as his partner against the wish and without the authority of B. B may sue for an injunction to restrain A from so doing.

(y). A, a very eminent man, writes letters on family-topics to B. After the death of A and B, C, who is B's residuary legatee, proposes to make money by publishing A's letters. D, who is A's executor, has a property in the letters, and may sue for an injunction to restrain C from publishing them.

(z). A carries on a manufactory and B is his assistant. In the course of his business, A imparts to B a secret process of value. B afterwards demands money of A, threatening, in case of refusal, to disclose the process to C, a rival manufacturer. A may sue for an injunction to restrain B from disclosing the process as being a thing contrary to his duty.

Mandatory injunctions.

55. When, to prevent the breach of an obligation, it is necessary to compel the performance of certain acts which the Court is capable of enforcing, the Court may in its discretion grant an injunction to prevent the breach complained of, and also to compel performance of the requisite acts.

Illustrations.

(a). A, by new buildings, obstructs lights to the access and use of which B has acquired a right under the Indian Limitation Act, Part IV. B may obtain an injunction, not only to restrain A from going on with the buildings, but also to pull down so much of them as obstructs B's lights.

(b). A builds a house with eaves projecting over B's land. B may sue for an injunction to pull down so much of the eaves as so project.

(c). In the case put as illustration (i) to section 54, the Court may also order all written communications made by B, as patient, to A, as physician, to be destroyed.

(d). In the case put as illustration (y) to section 54, the Court may also order A's letters to be destroyed.

(e). A threatens to publish statements concerning B which would be punishable under Chapter XXI of the Indian Penal Code. The Court may grant an injunction to restrain the publication, even though it may be shown not to be injurious to B's property.

(f). A, being B's medical adviser, threatens to publish B's communications with him, showing that B has led an immoral life. B may obtain an injunction to restrain the publication.

(g). In the cases put as illustrations (v) and (w) to section 54, and as illustrations (e) and (f) to this section, the Court may also order the copies produced by piracy, and the trademarks, statements and communications therein respectively mentioned, to be given up or destroyed.

Injunction when refused.

56. An injunction cannot be granted—

(a) to stay a judicial proceeding pending at the institution of the suit in which the injunction is sought, unless such restraint is necessary to prevent a multiplicity of proceedings;

(b) to stay proceedings in a Court not subordinate to that from which the injunction is sought;

(c) to restrain persons from applying to any legislative body;

(d) to interfere with the public duties of any department of the Government of India or the Local Government, or with the sovereign acts of a Foreign Government;

(e) to stay proceedings in any criminal matter;

(f) to prevent the breach of an agreement the performance of which would not be specifically enforced;

(g) to prevent, on the ground of nuisance, an act of which it is not reasonably clear that it will be a nuisance;

(h) to prevent a continuing breach in which the applicant has acquiesced;

(i) when equally efficacious relief can certainly be obtained by any other usual mode of proceeding, except in case of breach of trust;

(j) when the conduct of the applicant or his agents has been such as to disentitle him to the assistance of the Court;

(k) where the applicant has no personal interest in the matter.

Illustrations.

(a). A seeks an injunction to restrain his partner, B, from receiving the partnership-debts and effects. It appears that A had improperly possessed himself of the books of the firm and refused B access to them. The Court will refuse the injunction.

(b). A manufactures and sells crucibles, designating them as "patent plumbago crucibles," though, in fact, they have never been patented. B pirates the designation. A cannot obtain an injunction to restrain the piracy.

(c). A sells an article called "Mexican Balm," stating that it is compounded of divers rare essences, and has sovereign medicinal qualities. B commences to sell a similar article to which he gives a name and description such as to lead people into the belief that they are buying A's Mexican Balm. A sues B for an injunction to restrain the sale. B shows that A's Mexican Balm consists of nothing but scented hog's lard. A's use of his description is not an honest one and he cannot obtain an injunction.

Injunctions to perform negative agreement.

57. Notwithstanding section 56, clause (f), where a contract comprises an affirmative agreement to do a certain act, coupled with a negative agreement, express or implied, not to do a certain act, the circumstance that the Court is unable to compel specific performance of the affirmative agreement, shall not preclude it from granting an injunction to perform the negative agreement; provided that the applicant has not failed to perform the contract so far as it is binding on him.

Illustrations.

(a). A contracts to sell to B for Rs. 1,000 the good-will of a certain business unconnected with business-premises, and further agrees not to carry on that business in Calcutta. B pays A the Rs. 1,000, but A carries on the business in Calcutta. The Court cannot compel A to send his customers to B, but B may obtain an injunction restraining A from carrying on the business in Calcutta.

(b). A contracts to sell to B the good-will of a business. A then sets up a similar business close by B's shop, and solicits his old customers to deal with him. This is contrary to his implied contract, and B may obtain an injunction to restrain A from soliciting the customers, and from doing any act whereby their good-will may be withdrawn from B.

(c). A contracts with B to sing for twelve months at B's theatre and not to sing in public elsewhere. B cannot obtain specific performance of the contract to sing, but he is entitled to an injunction restraining A from singing at any other place of entertainment.

(d). B contracts with A that he will serve him faithfully for twelve months as a clerk. A is not entitled to a decree for specific performance of this contract. But he is entitled to an injunction restraining B from serving a rival house as clerk.

(e). A contracts with B that, in consideration of Rs. 1,000 to be paid to him by B on a day fixed, he will not set up a certain business within a specified distance. B fails to pay the money. A cannot be restrained from carrying on the business within the specified distance.

PART V.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[First Publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 29th November 1876, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to make their report thereon in two months:—

No. 13 of 1876.

A Bill to amend the law relating to Treasure-trove.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to treasure-trove; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preliminary.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The Indian Treasure-trove Act, 1877:"

Extent.

It extends to the whole of British India;

Commencement.

And it shall come into force at once.

Repeal of enactments.

2. The enactments specified in the schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed to the extent mentioned in the third column of the same schedule.

Interpretation-clause.

3. In this Act—

"Treasure."

"treasure" includes gold-coin, silver-coin, bullion, gold and silver in a manufactured state, precious stones and other valuable property;

"Collector."

"Collector" means (1) the Collector of a District, (2) a Deputy Commissioner, and (3) any officer appointed by the Local Government to perform the functions of a Collector under this Act.

Procedure on finding Treasure.

Notice by finder of treasure.

4. Whenever any treasure exceeding in amount or value twenty-five rupees is found buried in the earth or otherwise concealed, the finder shall, as soon as practicable, give to the Collector notice in writing—

(a) of the nature, amount or approximate value of the treasure so found;

(b) of the place in which it was found;

(c) of the date of the finding;

and shall either deposit the treasure in the Government Treasury, or give the Collector such security as he thinks fit to produce the treasure at such time and place as he may from time to time require.

Collector's procedure on receipt of notice.

5. On receiving a notice under section four, the Collector shall take the following steps (namely):—

(a) he shall publish a notification in such manner as the Local Government from time to time prescribes in this behalf, to the effect that, on a certain date (mentioning it), certain treasure (mentioning its nature, amount and approximate value) was found at a certain place (mentioning it); and requiring all persons claiming the treasure, or any part thereof or any interest therein, to appear personally or by agent before the Collector on a day and at a place therein mentioned, such day not being earlier than six months after the date of the publication of such notice;

(b) where the place in which the treasure was found was at the date of the finding in the possession of some person other than the finder, the Collector shall also serve on such person a special notice in writing to the same effect.

Power to declare intention to acquire the treasure on behalf of Government.

6. The Collector may, at any time before the day so notified, by writing under his hand declare his intention to acquire on behalf of Government the said treasure or any specified portion thereof, by payment to the persons interested therein of a sum equal to the intrinsic value of the said treasure or portion, and to one-fifth of such value; and thereupon, subject to the payment aforesaid, the said treasure or portion shall be deemed to be the property of Government.

Procedure on enquiry into value of treasure and persons entitled thereto.

7. On the day notified under section five, the Collector shall cause the treasure to be produced before him, and shall proceed to inquire into the value of the treasure, and (subject to the rules hereinafter prescribed) to determine the persons interested therein, and the amount payable to them respectively.

For the purpose of such enquiry, the Collector may summon and enforce the attendance of witnesses, and compel the production of documents, by the same means, and (as far as may be) in the same manner, as is provided in the case of a Civil Court under the Code of Civil Procedure; and the Collector may, if no claimant attends pursuant to the notice, or if, for any other cause, he thinks fit, from time to time postpone the enquiry to a day to be fixed by him.

Rules for guidance of Collector.

8. In determining claims under this Act, and the amount to which the claimants are entitled, the Collector shall be guided by the following rules (namely):—

(a) if there is reason to think that the treasure was concealed more than one hundred years before the date of the finding, he shall not admit the claim of any person other than the finder of the treasure and the owner of the place in which the treasure was found;

(b) if the treasure was found in the process of executing some work (such as a road, a railway or a canal) for the benefit of the public, and if there be no claimant other than the finder, three-fourths of the amount, or, if the Collector prefers, the value of the treasure, shall be awarded to the finder and the residue to the Government;

(c) if the treasure was found in a place belonging to a private person, and such person and the finder have not entered into any agreement then in force as to the allotment of the treasure, three-fourths of the treasure shall be allotted to the finder and the residue to the owner of the place in which it was found. If such owner and the finder have entered into any such agreement, the treasure shall be allotted in accordance therewith;

(d) if the Collector has, under section six, declared his intention to acquire the whole or any portion of the treasure, the Collector shall (notwithstanding anything contained in clauses (a), (b) and (c) of this section) give effect to such declaration, and in such case the provisions of the same clauses as to the treasure shall be deemed to apply to the payment to be made for such treasure or portion in accordance with section six.

Bar of appeal against decision of Collector and of suits against him for acts done bond fide.

9. There shall be no appeal against any decision of the Collector under this Act, and no suit or other proceeding shall lie against him for anything done in good faith in exercise of the powers hereby conferred.

Penalties.

Penalty on finder failing to give notice, etc.

10. If the finder of any treasure to which this Act applies, fails to give the notice, or to make the deposit or give security, required by section four, the share of such treasure or of the price payable for such treasure or any part thereof under section six, to which he would otherwise be entitled, shall vest in the Government, and he shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to fine not exceeding the intrinsic value of such treasure, and, in default of payment, to imprisonment for a term which may extend to twelve months.

Penalty on owner abetting offence under section 10.

11. If the owner of the place in which any treasure to which this Act applies is found abets within the meaning of the Penal Code, any failure to give the notice, or to make the deposit, or give the security, required by section four, the share of such treasure, or of the price payable for such treasure or any part thereof under section six, to which he would otherwise be entitled, shall vest in the Government, and he shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to fine not exceeding the intrinsic value of such treasure, and, in default of payment, to imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months.

SCHEDULE.

Number and date of enactments.	Title.	Extent of repeal.
Bengal Regulation V of 1817.	A Regulation for declaring the rights of Government and of individuals with respect to hidden treasure, and for prescribing the rules to be observed on the discovery of such treasure.	The whole.
Madras Regulation XI of 1832.	A Regulation for declaring the rights of Government and of individuals with respect to hidden treasure, and for prescribing the rules to be observed on discovery of such treasure.	The whole.
Act XII of 1835	Hidden Treasure (Madras)	The whole.
Act IV of 1872	An Act for declaring which of certain rules, laws and regulations have the force of law in the Panjáb, and for other purposes.	So far as regards Bengal Reg. V of 1817.
Act XV of 1874	Laws Local Extent	The second schedule so far as regards Madras Reg. XI of 1832. The fourth schedule so far as regards Bengal Reg. V of 1817.
Act XVII of 1876	An Act to consolidate and amend the law relating to the Courts in British Burma, and for other purposes.	So far as regards Bengal Reg. V of 1817.
Act XX of 1876	An Act to declare and amend the law in force in the Central Provinces.	Ditto.
Act XVIII of 1876.	Oudh Laws Act	Ditto.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The law of treasure-trove is in a very unsatisfactory state. At present there is one law in Madras and another in Bengal, while it is doubtful what the law is in Bombay, and in the three Presidency towns probably the English law prevails. Moreover, the law everywhere is bad and ineffective, and gives every inducement to finders to conceal or make away with their discoveries; and yet there is a good deal treasure buried in India, and much of it of very high antiquarian and historical interest.

2. Under these circumstances, the present Bill has been prepared. It provides, among other things, that—

(a) the finder shall give notice to the Collector of the District of the discovery of treasure, and either deposit the treasure in the Government Treasury, or give security for producing it when required;

(b) notice shall be given by the Collector to the owner or owners of the land where the treasure was found;

(c) the discovery of the treasure shall be advertised, and all claimants desired to come forward within six months;

(d) if there is reason to believe that the treasure was hidden or deposited more than a hundred years previously, no claim of any outside person shall be admitted;

(e) in the case of treasure found in a public place, such as in digging a road, a railway, or a canal, the treasure shall vest, if more than a hundred years old, or if unclaimed, in the proportion of three-fourths in the finder and one-fourth in Government; and

(f) if the land or other property on which the treasure is found belongs to a private party, then the latter shall receive the Government share, unless the finder has made any previous agreement with such owner or owners, in which case the division shall be regulated according to that agreement.

3. The Bill adopts the principle of certain recent legislation in the north of Europe, which has practically worked well.

PART V.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Second Publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 29th November 1876, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to make their report thereon in two months:—

No. 18 OF 1876.

A Bill to amend the law relating to Treasure-trove.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to treasure-trove; It is hereby enacted as follows:— Preamble.

Preliminary.

1. This Act may be called "The Indian Treasure-trove Act, 1877:" Short title.

It extends to the whole of British India; Extent.

And it shall come into force at once. Commencement.

2. The enactments specified in the schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed to the extent mentioned in the third column of the same schedule. Repeal of enactments.

3. In this Act— Interpretation-clause.

"treasure" includes gold coin, silver coin, bullion, gold and silver in a manufactured state, precious stones and other valuable property; "Treasure."

"Collector" means (1) the Collector of a District, (2) a Deputy Commissioner, and (3) any officer appointed by the Local Government to perform the functions of a Collector under this Act. "Collector."

Procedure on finding Treasure.

4. Whenever any treasure exceeding in amount or value twenty-five rupees is found buried in the earth or otherwise concealed, the finder shall, as soon as practicable, give to the Collector notice in writing— Notice by finder of treasure.

(a) of the nature, amount or approximate value of the treasure so found;

(b) of the place in which it was found;

(c) of the date of the finding;

and shall either deposit the treasure in the Government Treasury, or give the Collector such security as the Collector thinks fit to produce the treasure at such time and place as he may from time to time require.

5. On receiving a notice under section four, the Collector shall take the following steps (namely):— Collector's procedure on receipt of notice.

(a) he shall publish a notification in such manner as the Local Government from time to time prescribes in this behalf, to the effect that, on a certain date (mentioning it), certain treasure (mentioning its nature, amount and approximate value) was found at a certain place (mentioning it); and requiring all persons claiming the treasure, or any part thereof or any interest therein, to appear personally or by agent before the Collector on a day and at a place therein mentioned, such day not being earlier than six months after the date of the publication of such notice;

(b) where the place in which the treasure was found was at the date of the finding in the possession of some person other than the finder, the Collector shall also serve on such person a special notice in writing to the same effect.

6. The Collector may, at any time before the day so notified, by writing under his hand declare his intention to acquire on behalf of Government the said treasure or any specified portion thereof, by payment to the persons interested therein Power to declare intention to acquire the treasure on behalf of Government.

of a sum equal to the intrinsic value of the said treasure or portion, and to one-fifth of such value; and thereupon, subject to the payment aforesaid, the said treasure or portion shall be deemed to be the property of Government.

Procedure on enquiry into value of treasure and persons entitled thereto.

7. On the day notified under section five, the Collector shall cause the treasure to be produced before him, and shall proceed to inquire into the value of the treasure, and (subject to the rules hereinafter prescribed) to determine the persons interested therein, and the amount payable to them respectively.

For the purpose of such enquiry, the Collector may summon and enforce the attendance of witnesses, and compel the production of documents, by the same means, and (as far as may be) in the same manner, as is provided in the case of a Civil Court under the Code of Civil Procedure; and the Collector may, if no claimant attends pursuant to the notice, or if, for any other cause, he thinks fit, from time to time postpone the enquiry to a day to be fixed by him.

Rules for guidance of Collector.

8. In determining claims under this Act, and the amount to which the claimants are entitled, the Collector shall be guided by the following rules (namely):—

(a) if there is reason to think that the treasure was concealed more than one hundred years before the date of the finding, he shall not admit the claim of any person other than the finder of the treasure and the owner of the place in which the treasure was found;

(b) if the treasure was found in the process of executing some work (such as a road, a railway or a canal) for the benefit of the public, and if there be no claimant other than the finder, three-fourths of the amount, or, if the Collector prefers, the value of the treasure, shall be awarded to the finder and the residue to the Government;

(c) if the treasure was found in a place belonging to a private person, and such person and the finder have not entered into any agreement then in force as to the allotment of the treasure, three-fourths of the treasure shall be allotted to the finder and the residue to the owner of the place in which it was found. If such owner and the finder have entered into any such agreement, the treasure shall be allotted in accordance therewith;

(d) if the Collector has, under section six, declared his intention to acquire the whole or any portion of the treasure, the Collector shall (notwithstanding anything contained in clauses (a), (b) and (c) of this section) give effect to such declaration, and in such case the provisions of the same clauses as to the treasure shall be deemed to apply to the payment to be made for such treasure or portion in accordance with section six.

Bar of appeal against decision of Collector and of suits against him for acts done bonâ fide.

9. There shall be no appeal against any decision of the Collector under this Act, and no suit or other proceeding shall lie against him for anything done in good faith in exercise of the powers hereby conferred.

Penalties.

Penalty on finder failing to give notice, make deposit or give security.

10. If the finder of any treasure to which this Act applies fails to give the notice, or to make the deposit, or to give the security, required by section four, the share of such treasure, or of the price payable for such treasure or any part thereof under section six, to which he would otherwise be entitled, shall vest in the Government, and he shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to fine not exceeding the intrinsic value of such treasure, and, in default of payment, to imprisonment for a term which may extend to twelve months.

Penalty on owner abetting offence under section 10.

11. If the owner of the place in which any treasure to which this Act applies is found abets, within the meaning of the Penal Code, any failure to give the notice, make the deposit, or give the security, required by section four, the share of such treasure, or of the price payable for such treasure or any part thereof under section six, to which he would otherwise be entitled, shall vest in the Government, and he shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to fine not exceeding the intrinsic value of such treasure, and, in default of payment, to imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months.

SCHEDULE—ACTS REPEALED.

A Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to the management and preservation of Government forests in the province of British Burma.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to the management and preservation of Government forests in the province of British Burma, to the transit of forest-produce through the said province, and to the duty leviable on timber imported thereinto; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The Burma Forest Act, 1877:"

Local extent.

It extends to all the territories for the time being under the administration of the Chief Commissioner of British Burma;

Commencement.

And it shall come into force on such date as the said Chief Commissioner, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may, by notification in the British Burma Gazette, direct.

Repeal.

2. On and from such date the Acts mentioned in the schedule hereto annexed, and all rules made under or validated by any of the said Acts, shall, except as provided by section 24, be repealed, but not so as to affect any thing duly done under any such Act or Rules.

Interpretation-clause.

3. In this Act—unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context—

"Forest officer." "Forest officer" means any person whom the Chief Commissioner may from time to time appoint by name, or as holding an office, to do

(1) anything required by this Act to be done by a Forest officer;

(2) anything to be done by a Government officer under this Act, or under any rule made under this Act, and for the doing of which no agency is specially provided by this Act:

"Tree." "Tree" includes bamboos and brushwood:

"Timber." "Timber" includes trees and bamboos when they have fallen or have been felled, and all wood when cut up, or when fashioned or hollowed out for cart-wheels, mortars, canoes, or other purposes:

"Forest-produce." "Forest-produce" includes the following when found in, or brought from, a forest, that is to say—limestone, laterite and other minerals and surface-soil, trees, timber, grass, reeds, leaves, flowers, fruits, juice, bark, honey, wax, lac, gum, wood-oil, resin and varnish:

"Forest-offence." "Forest-offence" means an offence punishable under this Act, or under any rule made under this Act:

"Cattle." "Cattle" includes elephants, camels, buffaloes, horses, mares, geldings, ponies, colts, fillies, mules, asses, pigs, rams, ewes, sheep, lambs, goats and kids:

"River." "River" includes streams, canals, creeks and other channels, natural or artificial.

CHAPTER II.

OF RESERVED FORESTS.

Power to reserve forests.

4. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time constitute any forest a reserved forest in manner hereinafter provided. Reserved forests, unless assigned to villages as provided in section 27, may be called State forests.

Demarcation of boundaries.

5. Whenever it is proposed to constitute any forest a reserved forest, and the limits of such forest have not been defined by boundary-marks, and are not, in the opinion of the Chief Commissioner, already sufficiently marked by roads, rivers, or other such boundaries, the Chief Commissioner may cause such limits to be demarcated in such manner as he thinks fit.

Notification by Chief Commissioner.

6. When the Chief Commissioner has ascertained that the limits of such forest are already sufficiently defined or marked as aforesaid, or when such limits have been demarcated under section 5, he may publish a notification in the British Burma Gazette—

(a) declaring that it is proposed to reserve such forest under this Act;

(b) specifying the limits of such forest;

(c) appointing an officer (hereinafter called "the Forest Settlement Officer") to inquire into and determine the existence, nature and extent of any rights alleged to exist in favour of any person to or over any land comprised within such limits, or to or over any forest-produce; and

(d) appointing three persons (hereinafter called "the Forest Court") to hear appeals from the decisions of such officer.

Bar of accrual of forest-rights.

7. During the interval between the publication of such notification and the date fixed by the notification under section 18, no right shall be acquired to, over, or in respect of, the forest comprised in such notification, except under a grant or contract in writing made or entered into by or on behalf of Government or of some person in whom such right was vested when the former notification was issued, and no fresh gardens or toungyas shall be cut in such forest.

Proclamation by Forest Settlement Officer.

8. When a notification has been issued under section 6, the Forest Settlement Officer shall publish in every town and village in the neighbourhood of the forest mentioned therein a proclamation in the language of the country—

(a) specifying the limits of such forest,

(b) explaining the consequences which, as hereinafter provided, will ensue on the reservation of such forest; and

(c) fixing a period of not less than three months from the date of such proclamation, and requiring every person claiming any right as aforesaid, to present to such officer within such period a written notice stating the nature of such right and the amount and particulars of the compensation (if any) claimed in respect thereof.

Rights not claimed, extinguished.

9. Any such right in respect of which no such notice is presented within the said period shall be deemed to be extinguished.

Power to acquire land over which right is claimed.

10. When any such notice is presented as aforesaid, the Forest Settlement Officer shall inquire into the merits of the claim, and may, if he considers it proved and if he thinks fit to do so, in the case of a claim to or over any land, pass an order to that effect and proceed to acquire such land in the manner provided by the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, or, in the case of a claim to rights of way or of pasture, or to forest-produce, proceed in the manner prescribed in sections 11 and 12.

For the purpose of so acquiring such land—

(a) the Forest Settlement Officer shall be deemed to be a Collector proceeding under the Land Acquisition Act, 1870;

(b) the claimant shall be deemed to be a person interested and attending before him in pursuance of a notice issued under section 9 of that Act, and

(c) the conditions prescribed by the preceding sections of that Act shall be deemed to have been fulfilled.

Enquiry into claims.

11. In the case of a claim to rights of pasture or to forest-produce, the Forest Settlement Officer shall enquire into the nature and extent of such rights, and shall pass an order, admitting, rejecting or modifying the claim.

Record to be made by Forest Settlement Officer.

12. The Forest Settlement Officer, when passing any such order, shall record the name, residence and occupation of the person claiming the right, the designation (if any), position and area of all fields or groups of fields, and the designation and position of all buildings, in respect of which the exercise of such rights is claimed.

No such claim shall be admitted, unless

(a) the claimant was, at the time when the limits of the forest were notified under section 6, in the habitual exercise of the right claimed, and

(b) unless the exercise of the right is required for the beneficial use of the land or premises, or of the person claiming the same.

Record where he admits claim.

13. If the Forest Settlement Officer admits any such claim with or without modification, he shall also record the extent to which such rights have been admitted by him, specifying the quantity of timber, bamboos, grass and other forest-produce annually required, the number and description of cattle admitted to graze in the forest and the season during which such pasture is required.

Exercise of rights admitted or modified.

14. After making such record, the Forest Settlement Officer shall, to the best of his ability, and having due regard to the maintenance of the Reserved Forest in respect of which the claim is made, make such arrangements as will ensure the continued exercise of the rights so admitted or modified. For this purpose, the Forest Settlement Officer may—

(a) so alter the limits of the proposed reserved forest as to exclude forest-land of sufficient extent, and conveniently situated for the purposes of the claimants; or

(b) record an order, conferring upon such claimants a right to pasture or to forest-produce, (as the case may be) to the extent so admitted, at such seasons and within such portions of the reserved forest as may from time to time be fixed for that purpose by competent authority; or

(c) set out some other forest-tract of sufficient extent, and in a locality reasonably convenient for the purposes of such claimants, and record an order conferring upon them a right to pasture or to forest-produce (as the case may be) to the extent so admitted.

Commutation of rights.

15. In case the Settlement Officer finds it impossible, having due regard to the maintenance of the reserved forest, to make such arrangements as shall ensure the continued exercise of the said rights to the extent so admitted, he shall (subject to such rules as the Chief Commissioner may from time to time prescribe in this behalf) commute such rights either by the payment to such persons of a sum of money in lieu thereof, or by the grant of land, or in such other manner as may be agreed upon.

Appeal to Forest Court from order passed under section 10, 11 or 14.

16. Any person who has made a claim under this Act, or any Forest Officer or other person generally or specially empowered by the Chief Commissioner in this behalf, may, within three months from the date of the order passed on such petition by the Forest Settlement Officer under section 10, 11 or 14, prefer an appeal from such order to the Forest Court.

Every such appeal shall be made by petition in writing, and shall be chargeable with a Court-fee of eight annas, and shall be presented to and forwarded by the Forest Settlement Officer.

The Forest Court shall fix a day for hearing the appeal, and shall give notice of such day to the parties, and shall hear such appeal in the neighbourhood of the forest. The order passed thereon by such Court, or by the majority of the members of such Court, shall (subject to review by the Chief Commissioner) be final, and the Forest Settlement Officer shall forthwith proceed to carry out the orders of the Court.

Power to appoint pleader on behalf of Government.

17. The Chief Commissioner may appoint any person to appear, plead and act on behalf of the Government before the Forest Settlement Officer or the Forest Court in the course of any inquiry or appeal under this Act.

Notification declaring forest reserved.

18. When—

(a) the period fixed under section 8 for presenting notices has elapsed, and all claims (if any) made within such period have been disposed of by the Forest Settlement Officer, and

(b) (if any such claims have been made) the period limited by section 16 for appealing from the orders passed on such claims has elapsed, and all appeals (if any) presented within such period have been disposed of by the Forest Court, and

(c) all lands (if any) included in the forest, which the Forest Settlement Officer has, under section 10, elected to acquire under the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, have become vested in the Government under section 16 of that Act, the Chief Commissioner may publish a notification in the British Burma Gazette declaring the forest, or any portion thereof, to be reserved from a date fixed by such notification, and from the date so fixed, such forest or such portion thereof shall be deemed to be a reserved forest.

Publication of such notification in neighbourhood of forest.

19. The Forest Officer shall, before the date fixed by such notification, cause a translation of such notification into the language of the district to be affixed in some conspicuous place in every town and village in the neighbourhood of the forest.

No right acquired over reserved forest, except as here provided.

20. No right of any description shall be acquired to, over, or in respect of, a reserved forest, except under a grant or contract in writing made by or on behalf of the Government.

Rights not to be alienated.

21. No right, conferred under section 14, clause (b), shall be alienated by way of grant, sale, lease, mortgage or otherwise, without the sanction of the Chief Commissioner, and no produce obtained by virtue of such a right shall be sold or bartered except to such extent as a right to sell or barter may have been admitted in the order recorded under section 13.

Power to stop ways and watercourses in such forests.

22. The Forest Officer may from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Deputy Commissioner, stop any public or private way or watercourse in a Reserved Forest, provided that he has already assigned or constructed another way or watercourse (as the case may be) in lieu thereof, and that such other way or watercourse is a reasonably convenient substitute for the way or watercourse so stopped.

Acts prohibited in such forest.

23. Any person who

(a) sets fire to a Reserved Forest, or kindles any fire therein in such manner as to endanger the same, or

(b) kindles, keeps or carries any fire therein between the first day of February and the first day of June,

(c) burns any lime, bricks or charcoal therein,

(d) trespasses or grazes his cattle or permits his cattle to trespass therein,

(e) causes any damage therein by negligence in felling any trees or cutting or dragging any timber,

(f) fells, girdles, lops, taps or burns any trees therein, or strips off the bark or leaves from, or otherwise interferes with, the same,

(g) collects any forest-produce therein,

(h) cuts any toungya therein, shall be punished with imprisonment for a period not exceeding six months, or with fine not exceeding five hundred rupees, or with both, in addition to such damages for injury done to the forest as the Court may direct to be paid.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to prohibit any act done by permission in writing of the Forest Officer, or the exercise of any right conferred under section 14, clause (b), or created by written grant or contract made by or on behalf of Government.

Maintenance of rule 13, dated 2nd August 1865.

24. The thirteenth of the rules for the better management and preservation of the Government forests in British Burma, dated the second day of August 1865, shall continue to apply to every forest constituted a Reserved Forest under any law in force previous to the date on which this Act comes into force, until the Chief Commissioner, by notification in the British Burma Gazette, declares such forest to be a Reserved Forest under the provisions hereinafter contained.

Every offence against such rule shall be deemed to be an offence punishable under rules made under this Act.

Formation and extension of Reserved Forests under Land Acquisition Act.

25. The formation and extension of a Reserved Forest shall be deemed a public purpose within the meaning of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, section 4.

Power to declare forest no longer reserved.

26. The Chief Commissioner may, by notification in the British Burma Gazette, direct that, from a date fixed by such notification, any forest or any portion of any forest reserved under this Act, shall cease to be a Reserved Forest.

From the date so fixed, such forest or portion thereof shall cease to be reserved, but the rights (if any) which have been extinguished in such forest shall not in consequence of such cessation be deemed to revive.

Village Forests.

Demarcation of village-forests.

27. The Chief Commissioner may assign any Reserved Forest or portion thereof for the use of any village or villages situated in the vicinity of such forest. Such forests shall be called village-forests. The Chief Commissioner may make rules for regulating the management of such village-forests, prescribing the conditions under which the inhabitants of the villages for the benefit of which any such forest is assigned, may be provided with timber, pasture or other forest-produce, and their duties for the protection and improvement of such forest.

All provisions of this Act relating to Reserved Forests shall (so far as they are consistent with rules so made) apply to village-forests.

CHAPTER III.
OF DISTRICT FORESTS.

"District Forest" defined.

28. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time, by notification in the British Burma Gazette, declare the provisions of this chapter applicable to any forest or waste-land which is not included in a Reserved Forest, and which the Government has not granted, sold or leased.

The forests and waste-lands comprised in any such notification shall be called "District Forests."

Power to issue notification—

29. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time, by notification in the British Burma Gazette—

reserving trees,

(a) declare any class of trees in a district-forest, or any trees in any such forest, to be reserved from a day fixed by such notification;

prohibiting collection of forest-produce.

(b) prohibit, from a date fixed as aforesaid, the quarrying of limestone, laterite or any other stone, or the burning of lime or charcoal, or the collection of any description of forest-produce, in any such forest or in any portion thereof.

Teak to be reserved.

Unless and until the Chief Commissioner by notification under this section declares otherwise, teak shall be deemed to be reserved in all district-forests.

Publication of such notification in neighbourhood.

30. The Deputy Commissioner shall cause a translation into the language of the district, of every notification issued under section 29, to be affixed in a conspicuous place in every town and village in the neighbourhood of the forest to which such notification applies.

Power to make rules regulating disposal of produce of district-forests.

31. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time make rules to regulate the following matters:—

(a) the cutting and removal of trees and timber, and the collection and removal of forest-produce from the district-forests;

(b) the granting of free permits to the inhabitants of towns and villages in the vicinity of district-forests, and the production and return of such permits by such persons;

(c) the granting of trade-permits to persons felling or removing trees or timber or forest-produce from such forests for the purposes of trade, and the production and return of such permits by such persons;

(d) fees payable by such persons, for permission to cut such trees, or to collect and remove such timber or forest-produce, and

(e) the other payments, if any, to be made by them in respect of such timber and produce, and the places where such payments shall be made.

Penalties for acts in contravention of notification under section 29.

32. Any person who

(a) fells, girdles, lops, taps or burns any tree reserved under section 29, or strips off the bark or leaves from, or otherwise interferes with, any such tree, or

(b) makes gardens or toungyas in any forest containing trees reserved as aforesaid, or sets fire to such forest, or

(c) kindles a fire without taking all such reasonable precautions as are requisite to prevent its spreading to any trees so reserved, or to any timber of such trees in the vicinity, or

(d) leaves burning any fire kindled by him in the vicinity of any such trees or timber, or

(e) fells any tree or drags any timber in such a manner as to injure any tree reserved as aforesaid, or

(f) permits cattle belonging to him or under his charge to injure any such tree, or

(g) quarries any stone, or burns any lime or charcoal, or collects or removes any forest-produce when such quarrying, burning or collecting has been prohibited by a notification under section 29,

shall be punished with imprisonment which may extend to six months, or with fine not exceeding five hundred rupees, or with both.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to prohibit any act done with the permission in writing of the Forest Officer, or in accordance with rules made under section 31, or in the exercise of a right recognized by section 6 of the Burma Land-Revenue Act, 1876.

CHAPTER IV.

OF THE DUTY ON TIMBER.

Power to impose duty on timber.

33. On all timber the produce of forests situated within British territory or brought from any forest situated beyond the frontier of British Burma, a duty may be levied in such manner, at such places and at such rates, as the Chief Commissioner, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, from time to time prescribes by notification in the British Burma Gazette:

Limit of such duty when levied on each log.

Provided that if such duty is directed to be levied on each log of such timber, it shall not exceed five rupees per log of five feet in girth and upwards, and two rupees eight annas per log of less than five feet in girth:

When levied ad valorem.

Provided also that if such duty is directed to be levied ad valorem, it shall not exceed ten per cent. of the value.

Power to fix value for ad valorem duty.

34. In every case in which such duty is directed to be levied ad valorem, the Chief Commissioner may, with the like sanction, from time to time fix by like notification the value on which such duty shall be assessed.

CHAPTER V.

OF THE TRANSIT OF TIMBER AND FOREST-PRODUCE.

Power to make rules to regulate transit of forest-produce.

35. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time make rules to regulate the transit of all timber and other forest-produce.

Such rules may (among other matters)

(a) prescribe the routes by which only timber and other forest-produce may be imported, exported or moved into, from or within, British Burma;

(b) prohibit the import, export, or moving of such timber or other produce without a pass from the Forest Officer, or otherwise than in accordance with the conditions of such pass;

(c) provide for the issue, production and return of such passes and for the payment of fees therefor;

(d) provide for the stoppage and examination of timber or other forest-produce in transit, in respect of which there is reason to believe that any money is payable to Government on account of the price thereof or on account of any duty, fee or charge due thereon, or to which it is desirable for the purposes of this Act to affix a mark;

(e) provide for the establishment and regulation of depôts to which such timber or other produce shall be taken by those in charge of it for examination, or for the payment of such money, or in order that such marks may be affixed to it;

(f) prohibit the closing up or obstructing of the channel or banks of any river used for the transit of timber or other forest-produce, and the throwing of grass, brushwood, branches and leaves into any such river, or any act which may cause such river to be closed or obstructed; and

(g) provide for the removal of any obstruction of the channel or banks of any such river, and for recovering from the person causing such obstruction the cost of such removal.

Government and its officers not liable for damage to forest-produce at depôt.

36. The Government shall not be responsible for any loss or damage which may occur in respect of any timber or other forest-produce while at a depôt established under a rule made under section 35, and no Forest Officer shall be responsible for any such loss or damage unless he causes such loss or damage negligently, maliciously or fraudulently.

All persons bound to aid in case of accident at depôt.

37. In case of any accident or emergency involving danger to any property at any such depôt, every person employed at such depôt, whether by the Government or by any private person, shall assist any forest or police officer demanding his aid in averting such danger and securing such property from damage.

CHAPTER VI.

OF THE COLLECTION OF FLOATING AND STRANDED TIMBER.

Drift or stranded timber, or timber unmarked, or with marks obliterated, to become property of Government until title thereto proved.

38. All timber and wood found adrift or stranded on any river, or off the sea-coast of any part of the said territories, and all unmarked wood and timber, or wood or timber on which the marks have been obliterated, altered, or defaced, by fire or otherwise, and all timber beached, stranded or sunk in any river, or on the sea-coast as aforesaid, shall be deemed to be the property of Government unless and until any person establish his right and title thereto.

Licenses to collect timber floating loose.

39. When any timber is floating loose and unrafted in any river or in the sea, or having been so floating has become stranded or has sunk, the Forest Officer may grant a license, either to the owner of such timber, or to any other person he thinks fit, to collect the same, upon such terms as to its continuance, production, return or otherwise, as the Chief Commissioner may from time to time direct.

Timber in danger of escaping beyond control may be collected without license.

40. Except on any rivers and in any place which the Chief Commissioner may by rule exempt from the operation of this section, any person may without a license collect any timber floating, stranded or sunk as aforesaid, which, there is reason to believe, would, if not so collected, escape beyond the possibility of being recovered in the usual course.

Timber collected under sections 39 and 40 how dealt with.

41. Any person collecting any timber under a license granted under section 39, unless he is the owner or the agent of the owner of such timber, and any person collecting any timber under section 40, shall at once inform the Forest Officer that he has collected such timber, shall retain the same pending the receipt of an order from such officer as to the disposal thereof, and, on the receipt of such order, shall dispose of such timber in accordance therewith.

Forest Officer may collect.

42. The Forest Officer may collect any timber floating, stranded or sunk as aforesaid.

Penalty for offences against preceding sections.

43. Any person who—

(a) except as provided in sections 40 and 41, or under and in accordance with the provisions of a license granted under section 39, collects any timber, whether belonging to himself or to any other person, which is floating, stranded or sunk as aforesaid, or,

(b) having collected any such timber, is guilty of any act or omission in respect of the same contrary to the provisions of section 41, shall be punished with imprisonment which may extend to six months, or with fine which may amount to five hundred rupees, or with both.

Forest Officer how to deal with timber collected by, or made over to him.

44. When the Forest Officer has collected any timber under section 42, or when any timber has been delivered to him in compliance with an order issued under section 41, and the person entitled to the possession of such timber is known to him, he shall, subject to the provisions of sections 48 and 74, deliver the same to such person or as he shall direct.

When person entitled to possession is known.

When the person entitled to the possession of such timber is not known to the Forest Officer, he shall publish a notice in the British Burma Gazette and shall affix a translation of the same into the language of the country at the place where such timber then is, describing such timber, and calling upon any person having a claim to the possession of the same to present to him within three months from the date of such notice a written statement of such claim.

When such person is not known.

45. When any such statement is presented as aforesaid, the Forest Officer may, after making such enquiry as he thinks fit, either reject the claim, or deliver the timber to the claimant.

Procedure on claim preferred to such timber.

Any person whose claim has been rejected under this section may, within two months from the date of such rejection, institute a suit to recover possession of the timber claimed by him; but no person shall recover any damages or costs against the Government, or against any Forest Officer, on account of such rejection, or the detention or removal of any timber, or the delivery thereof to any other person under this section.

On rejection of claim to such timber, claimant may institute suit.

Government and its officers not liable for damage to such timber.

46. The Government shall not be responsible for any loss or damage which may occur in respect of any timber collected under section 42 or delivered to a Forest Officer in compliance with an order issued under section 41, and no Forest Officer shall be responsible for any such loss or damage, unless he causes such loss or damage negligently, maliciously or fraudulently.

Effect of omission to prosecute claim to such timber.

47. If the person entitled to the possession of any timber collected or delivered as aforesaid omits to prefer his claim in the manner and within the period prescribed by the notice issued under section 44, or, on such claim having been so preferred by him and having been rejected, omits to institute a suit to recover possession of such timber within the further period limited by section 45, the ownership of such timber shall vest in the Government, or, when such timber has been delivered to another person under section 45, in such other person, free from all encumbrances of every description.

Fees to be paid by claimant before timber is delivered to him.

48. No person shall be entitled to recover possession of any timber collected or delivered as aforesaid until he has paid to the Forest Officer such fees on account of the collection thereof as the Chief Commissioner may from time time by rule prescribe.

CHAPTER VII.

GENERAL.

A.—Of Penalties.

Forest-produce, tools, &c., when liable to confiscation.

49. All forest-produce in respect of which a forest-offence has been committed, and all tools, boats, carts and cattle used in committing any such offence, shall be liable to confiscation.

Such confiscation may be in addition to any other punishment prescribed for such offence.

Seizure of property liable to confiscation.

50. When there is reason to believe that any property is liable to confiscation under section 49 for any offence, it may be seized by any Police or Forest Officer.

Application for confiscation.

Every officer seizing any property under this section shall place on such property a mark indicating that the same has been so seized, and shall, as soon as may be, apply for the confiscation of the same to the Magistrate having jurisdiction to try the offence on account of which the seizure has been made.

51. If on receiving an application under section 50, and on making such inquiry as he deems fit, such Magistrate has reason to believe that such property is liable to confiscation under this Act, he shall cause a notice of such application to be affixed at the place of seizure and served upon every person known or believed to be interested in such property.

Procedure on such application.

52. Any person so interested may within one month from the date of serving such notice present a petition to such Magistrate claiming to be heard in opposition to the application.

Person interested may oppose confiscation.

53. On the expiry of the said period of one month, if no such petition has been presented, or, if any such petition has been presented, after hearing the petitioner and considering any evidence he may adduce, the Magistrate may pass an order for the confiscation of the property or for its release.

Order for confiscation.

54. The officer who made the seizure under section 50, or any of his official superiors, or any person who has presented a petition under section 52, may within one month from the date of such order appeal therefrom to the Sessions Judge, and the order passed on such appeal shall be final.

Appeal from such order.

55. When an order for the confiscation of any property has been passed under section 53, and the period limited by section 54 for an appeal from such order has elapsed and no such appeal has been preferred, or when, on such an appeal being preferred, the Sessions Judge confirms such order in respect of the whole or a portion of such property, such property or such portion thereof, as the case may be, shall vest in the Government free from all incumbrances of every description.

Property when to vest in Government.

56. Nothing hereinbefore contained shall be deemed to prevent any officer empowered in this behalf by the Chief Commissioner from directing at any time the immediate release of any property seized under section 50.

Saving of power to release property seized.

57. Any Police or Forest Officer who vexatiously or unnecessarily seizes any property on pretence of seizing property liable to confiscation under this Act, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, or with fine not exceeding five hundred rupees, or with both.

Punishment for wrongful seizure.

58. Whoever, with intent to cause damage or injury to the public or to any person—

Penalty for counterfeiting or defacing marks on trees and timber and for altering, &c., boundary-marks.

(a) knowingly counterfeits upon any timber or standing tree a mark used by Forest Officers to indicate that such timber or tree is the property of the Government or of some person, or that it may lawfully be cut or removed by some person, or

(b) alters, defaces or obliterates any such mark placed on a tree or on timber by or under the authority of a Forest Officer, or

(c) alters, moves, destroys or defaces any boundary-mark of a Reserved Forest, shall be punished with imprisonment which may extend to two years, or with fine, or with both.

B.—Of Criminal Procedure.

59. Any Police or Forest Officer may, without orders from a Magistrate and without a warrant, arrest any person against whom a reasonable suspicion exists of his having been concerned in any forest-offence punishable with imprisonment for one month or upwards.

Power to arrest without warrant.

Every officer making an arrest under this section shall without unnecessary delay take or send the person arrested before the Magistrate having jurisdiction in the case.

60. Every Police and Forest Officer shall prevent, and may interfere for the purpose of preventing, the commission of any forest-offence.

Power to prevent commission of offence.

61. Every such officer knowing of a design to commit any such offence may arrest without orders from a Magistrate and without a warrant the person entertaining such design, if the commission of such offence cannot be otherwise prevented.

Power to arrest person designing to commit offence.

62. The Magistrate of the District and any Magistrate of the first class specially empowered in this behalf by the Chief Commissioner may try, in the summary way prescribed by the eighteenth chapter of the Code of Criminal Procedure, any forest-offence punishable with imprisonment for not more than six months, or with fine not exceeding five hundred rupees.

Power to try offences summarily.

63. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time, by notification in the British Burma Gazette, empower any Forest Officer of such grade as the Chief Commissioner may from time to time direct, to accept from any person charged with any forest-offence other than an offence under section 57 or section 58 a sum of money by way of composition for such offence.

Power to compound offences.

On the payment of such sum of money to such officer, the accused person, if in custody, shall be discharged, any property seized as liable to confiscation in respect of such offence shall be released, and no further proceedings of any description shall be taken under this Act against such person or property; but nothing herein contained shall exempt such person from prosecution on the same facts under any other law for the time being in force.

64. When in any proceedings instituted under this Act, or in consequence of anything done under this Act, a question arises as to whether any timber is the property of the Government, such timber shall be presumed to be the property of the Government until the contrary is proved.

Presumption that timber belongs to Government.

C.—Of Cattle-trespass.

65. Cattle trespassing in a Reserved Forest, or doing damage to any trees reserved under section 29, shall be deemed to be cattle doing damage to a public plantation within the meaning of the eleventh section of the Cattle Trespass Act, 1871, and may be seized and impounded as such by any Police or Forest Officer.

Cattle Trespass Act, 1871, to apply.

66. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time by rule direct that, in lieu of the fines fixed by the twelfth section of the Act last aforesaid, there shall be levied for each head of cattle impounded under section 65 of this Act, such fines as to him may seem fit, but not exceeding the following, that is to say,

Power to alter fines fixed by that Act.

For each elephant	...	... ten rupees.
,, buffalo	...	... two ,,
,, horse, mare, gelding, pony, colt, filly, mule, bull, bullock, cow or heifer		... one rupee.
,, calf, ass, or pig		... eight annas.
,, ram, ewe, sheep, lamb, goat or kid	...	... one rupee.

D.—Miscellaneous.

67. Every person who exercises any right in a district-forest, or in a forest reserved under this Act or under any law in force previous to the date on which this Act comes into force, or who is permitted to take any forest-produce from, or to cut and remove timber or to pasture cattle in, such forest,

Persons interested in forest bound to assist Forest and Police Officers.

and every person who is employed by any such person in such forest, shall be bound to communicate without unnecessary delay to the nearest Forest or Police Officer any information he may possess respecting the commission of or intention to commit any forest-offence, and shall assist any Police or Forest Officer demanding his aid—

(a) in extinguishing any fire occurring in such forest,

(b) in preventing any fire which may occur in the vicinity of such forest from spreading to such forest,

(c) in preventing the commission in such forest of any forest-offence,

(d) when there is reason to believe that any such offence has been committed in such forest, in discovering and arresting the offender.

68. The Chief Commissioner may, subject to any restrictions from time to time imposed by the Governor General in Council, invest a Forest Settlement Officer, or any member of a Forest Court, or any Forest Officer, by name or as holding any office, with any of the following powers to be exercised by him for the purposes of this Act in any part of British Burma, or in any class of cases, that is to say,

Chief Commissioner may confer additional powers.

(a) power to enter upon any land and to survey, demarcate and make a map of the same,

(b) any power exercised by a Civil Court in the trial of suits or the hearing of appeals,

(d) power to delegate the exercise of any power or the performance of any duty to a subordinate officer.

69. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time, by order published in the British Burma Gazette, remove or suspend any person from the office of Forest Settlement Officer or member of a Forest Court, and, whenever such office becomes vacant, whether by the removal of the incumbent or otherwise, may by like order appoint another person thereto.

Power to remove officers and fill vacancies.

70. In addition to the other matters for which the Chief Commissioner is empowered by this Act to make rules, he may from time to time make rules—

Additional powers to make rules.

(a) to prohibit, absolutely or subject to conditions, within certain local limits, the establishment of sawpits for the sawing up of timber, the converting, cutting, burning, concealing or marking of timber, the altering or effacing of any marks on the same, and the possession or carrying of marking hammers or other implements used for marking timber;

(b) to regulate the use of property-marks for timber, and to provide for the registration of such marks and for the levy of fees from persons registering the same;

(c) to determine the persons by whom, and the manner in which, rights over district-forests and over forests reserved under this Act or under any law in force previous to the date on which this Act comes into force, may be conferred, and the mode in which rights so conferred shall be exercised;

(d) to determine the person by whom, and the time, place and manner at and in which, anything to be done under this Act, and for which no express provision is made in these respects, shall be done; and

(e) generally to carry out the provisions of this Act.

71. The Chief Commissioner may, in making any rule under this Act, attach to the breach of it, in addition to any other consequences that would ensue from such breach, a punishment on conviction before a Magistrate not exceeding one month's imprisonment, or two hundred rupees fine, or both.

Power to impose penalties for breach of rules.

72. All rules made by the Chief Commissioner under this Act shall, when sanctioned by the Governor General in Council, be published in the British Burma Gazette, and shall thereupon, so far as they are consistent with this Act, have the force of law.

Rules when to have force of law.

73. All money payable to the Government under this Act, or under any rule made under this Act, or on account of the price of any forest-produce, or of expenses incurred in the execution of this Act in respect of such produce, may, if not paid when due, be recovered as if it were an arrear within the meaning of the fourth part of the Burma Land and Revenue Act, 1876.

Recovery of money due to Government.

74. When any such money is payable for or in respect of any forest-produce, the amount thereof shall be deemed to be a first charge on such produce, and such produce may be taken possession of by a Forest Officer until such amount has been paid.

Lien on forest-produce for such money.

If such amount is not paid when due, the Forest Officer may sell such produce by public auction, and the proceeds of the sale shall be applied first in discharging such amount.

Power to sell such produce.

The surplus (if any) if not claimed within two months from the date of the sale by the person entitled thereto, shall be forfeited to Her Majesty.

Bribing Forest Officers.

75. All Forest Officers shall be deemed to be public servants within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code, sections 161 to 165 (both inclusive).

SCHEDULE.

(See section 2.)

ACTS REPEALED.

Number and year.	Title.
VII of 1865 ...	An Act to give effect to Rules for the management and preservation of Government forests.
VII of 1869 ...	An Act to give validity to certain Rules relating to forests in British Burma.
XIII of 1873 ...	An Act to amend the law relating to timber floated down the rivers of British Burma.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Province of Burma is, as compared with other parts of India, in a peculiar position, and the whole of the specifically unalienated forest-land is the property of Government, subject only to certain rights of user, or privileges exercised in some parts by individuals or village-communities. This right was proclaimed at the time of the annexation of the various territories which now form the Province of British Burma, and has never been gainsaid. The history of the previous legislation in regard to the forest-lands is this: In 1865, when the general Government Forest Act was passed, certain rules were made under it for Burma, which did not apply to the whole of the forests there, and it was eventually found that in part they were not covered by the Act itself. It therefore became necessary to pass an Act in 1869 to validate them. Subsequently, Act XIII of 1873 was passed to amend the law relating to timber floated and imported from foreign territory into British Burma, and that Act repealed Act VII of 1869, and partly also Act XXX of 1854. Later on, in 1874, the duty on foreign timber was made ad valorem, and finally, in 1875, further rules were made, under the Act of 1865, for the forests which had not been included in the old rules.

However, the whole has been at best but a piecemeal process, and legislation is still required upon five principal points, besides a number of small ones. First, it is necessary to clear up doubts regarding the reservation of trees other than teak. The system of recovering a part of the price of Government timber in the form of a duty also has to be provided for. Forest-duties are necessary to defray the expense of extra police. But perhaps the most important subject for which legal provisions have been found necessary, is the enquiry into, and decision of, claims of persons to the various rights of servitude and user in the Government forests. It is likewise essential to bar the acquisition by prescription of new rights in reserved forests. Finally, the penalties provided by the present law have been found to be insufficient. The Bill provides for all these points; it also repeals and re-enacts, with the necessary amendments, the three Acts relating to forests and timber, which are now in force in British Burma.

PART V.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Third Publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 29th November 1876, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to make their report thereon in two months:—

No. 13 OF 1876.

A Bill to amend the law relating to Treasure-trove.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to treasure-trove; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preliminary.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The Indian Treasure-trove Act, 1877:"

Extent.

It extends to the whole of British India;

Commencement.

And it shall come into force at once.

Repeal of enactments.

2. The enactments specified in the schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed to the extent mentioned in the third column of the same schedule.

Interpretation-clause.

3. In this Act—

"Treasure."

"treasure" includes gold-coin, silver-coin, bullion, gold and silver in a manufactured state, precious stones and other valuable property;

"Collector."

"Collector" means (1) the Collector of a District, (2) a Deputy Commissioner, and (3) any officer appointed by the Local Government to perform the functions of a Collector under this Act.

Procedure on finding Treasure.

Notice by finder of treasure.

4. Whenever any treasure exceeding in amount or value twenty-five rupees is found buried in the earth or otherwise concealed, the finder shall, as soon as practicable, give to the Collector notice in writing—

(a) of the nature, amount or approximate value of the treasure so found;

(b) of the place in which it was found;

(c) of the date of the finding;

and shall either deposit the treasure in the Government Treasury, or give the Collector such security as the Collector thinks fit to produce the treasure at such time and place as he may from time to time require.

Collector's procedure on receipt of notice.

5. On receiving a notice under section four, the Collector shall take the following steps (namely):—

(a) he shall publish a notification in such manner as the Local Government from time to time prescribes in this behalf, to the effect that, on a certain date (mentioning it), certain treasure (mentioning its nature, amount and approximate value) was found at a certain place (mentioning it); and requiring all persons claiming the treasure, or any part thereof or any interest therein, to appear personally or by agent before the Collector on a day and at a place therein mentioned, such day not being earlier than six months after the date of the publication of such notice;

(b) where the place in which the treasure was found was at the date of the finding in the possession of some person other than the finder, the Collector shall also serve on such person a special notice in writing to the same effect.

Power to declare intention to acquire the treasure on behalf of Government.

6. The Collector may, at any time before the day so notified, by writing under his hand declare his intention to acquire on behalf of Government the said treasure or any specified portion thereof, by payment to the persons interested therein of a sum equal to the intrinsic value of the said treasure or portion, and to one-fifth of such value; and thereupon, subject to the payment aforesaid, the said treasure or portion shall be deemed to be the property of Government.

Procedure on enquiry into value of treasure and persons entitled thereto.

7. On the day notified under section five, the Collector shall cause the treasure to be produced before him, and shall proceed to inquire into the value of the treasure, and (subject to the rules hereinafter prescribed) to determine the persons interested therein, and the amount payable to them respectively.

For the purpose of such enquiry, the Collector may summon and enforce the attendance of witnesses, and compel the production of documents, by the same means, and (as far as may be) in the same manner, as is provided in the case of a Civil Court under the Code of Civil Procedure; and the Collector may, if no claimant attends pursuant to the notice, or if, for any other cause, he thinks fit, from time to time postpone the enquiry to a day to be fixed by him.

Rules for guidance of Collector.

8. In determining claims under this Act, and the amount to which the claimants are entitled, the Collector shall be guided by the following rules (namely):—

(a) if there is reason to think that the treasure was concealed more than one hundred years before the date of the finding, he shall not admit the claim of any person other than the finder of the treasure and the owner of the place in which the treasure was found;

(b) if the treasure was found in the process of executing some work (such as a road, a railway or a canal) for the benefit of the public, and if there be no claimant other than the finder, three-fourths of the amount, or, if the Collector prefers, the value of the treasure, shall be awarded to the finder and the residue to the Government;

(c) if the treasure was found in a place belonging to a private person, and such person and the finder have not entered into any agreement then in force as to the allotment of the treasure, three-fourths of the treasure shall be allotted to the finder and the residue to the owner of the place in which it was found. If such owner and the finder have entered into any such agreement, the treasure shall be allotted in accordance therewith;

(d) if the Collector has, under section six, declared his intention to acquire the whole or any portion of the treasure, the Collector shall (notwithstanding anything contained in clauses (a), (b) and (c) of this section) give effect to such declaration, and in such case the provisions of the same clauses as to the treasure shall be deemed to apply to the payment to be made for such treasure or portion in accordance with section six.

Bar of appeal against decision of Collector and of suits against him for acts done bonâ fide.

9. There shall be no appeal against any decision of the Collector under this Act, and no suit or other proceeding shall lie against him for anything done in good faith in exercise of the powers hereby conferred.

Penalties.

Penalty on finder failing to give notice, make deposit or give security.

10. If the finder of any treasure to which this Act applies fails to give the notice, or to make the deposit, or to give the security, required by section four, the share of such treasure, or of the price payable for such treasure or any part thereof under section six, to which he would otherwise be entitled, shall vest in the Government, and he shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to fine not exceeding the intrinsic value of such treasure, and, in default of payment, to imprisonment for a term which may extend to twelve months.

Penalty on owner abetting offence under section 10.

11. If the owner of the place in which any treasure to which this Act applies is found abets, within the meaning of the Penal Code, any failure to give the notice, make the deposit, or give the security, required by section four, the share of such treasure, or of the price payable for such treasure or any part thereof under section six, to which he would otherwise be entitled, shall vest in the Government, and he shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to fine not exceeding the intrinsic value of such treasure, and, in default of payment, to imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months.

Act XX of 1875...	An Act to declare and amend the law in force in the Central Provinces.	Ditto.
Act XVIII of 1876.	Oudh Laws Act ...	Ditto.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The law of treasure-trove is in a very unsatisfactory state. At present, there is one law in Madras and another in Bengal, while it is doubtful what the law is in Bombay, and in the three Presidency towns probably the English law prevails. Moreover, the law everywhere is bad and ineffective, and gives every inducement to finders to conceal or make away with their discoveries; and yet there is a good deal of treasure buried in India, and much of it (if we may judge by what has already been found) of very high antiquarian and historical interest.

2. Under these circumstances, the present Bill has been prepared. It provides, among other things, that—

(a) the finder shall give notice to the Collector of the District of the discovery of treasure, and either deposit the treasure in the Government Treasury, or give security for producing it when required;

(b) notice shall be given by the Collector to the owner or owners of the land where the treasure was found;

(c) the discovery of the treasure shall be advertised, and all claimants desired to come forward within six months;

(d) if there is reason to believe that the treasure was hidden or deposited more than a hundred years previously, no claim of any outside person shall be admitted;

(e) in the case of treasure found in a public place, such as in digging a road, a railway, or a canal, such treasure shall vest, if more than a hundred years old, or if unclaimed, in the proportion of three-fourths in the finder and one-fourth in Government; and

(f) if the land or other property on which the treasure is found belongs to a private party, then the latter shall receive the Government share, unless the finder has made any previous agreement with such owner or owners, in which case the division shall be regulated according to that agreement.

3. The Bill adopts the principle of certain recent legislation in the north of Europe, which has practically worked well.

SCHEDULE—ACTS REPEALED.

A Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to the management and preservation of Government forests in the province of British Burma.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to the management and preservation of Government forests in the province of British Burma, to the transit of forest-produce through the said province, and to the duty leviable on timber imported thereinto; It is hereby enacted as follows:— Preamble.

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

1. This Act may be called "The Burma Forest Act, 1877:" Short title.
It extends to all the territories for the time being under the administration of the Chief Commissioner of British Burma; Local extent.
And it shall come into force on such date as the said Chief Commissioner, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may, by notification in the British Burma Gazette, direct. Commencement.

2. On and from such date the Acts mentioned in the schedule hereto annexed, and all rules made under or validated by any of the said Acts, shall, except as provided by section 24, be repealed, but not so as to affect any thing duly done under any such Act or Rules. Repeal.

3. In this Act—unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context— Interpretation-clause.

"Forest officer" means any person whom the Chief Commissioner may from time to time appoint by name, or as holding an office, to do "Forest officer."

(1) anything required by this Act to be done by a Forest officer;

(2) anything to be done by a Government officer under this Act, or under any rule made under this Act, and for the doing of which no agency is specially provided by this Act:

"Tree" includes bamboos and brushwood: "Tree."

"Timber" includes trees when they have fallen or have been felled, and all wood when cut up, or when fashioned or hollowed out for cart-wheels, mortars, canoes, or other purposes: "Timber."

"Forest-produce" includes the following when found in, or brought from, a forest, that is to say— "Forest-produce."

Limestone, laterite and other minerals and surface-soil, trees, timber, grass, reeds, leaves, flowers, fruits, juice, bark, honey, wax, lac, gum, wood-oil, resin and varnish:

"Forest-offence" means an offence punishable under this Act, or under any rule made under this Act: "Forest-offence."

"Cattle" includes elephants, camels, buffaloes, horses, mares, geldings, ponies, colts, fillies, mules, asses, pigs, rams, ewes, sheep, lambs, goats and kids: "Cattle."

"River" includes streams, canals, creeks and other channels, natural or artificial. "River."

CHAPTER II.

OF RESERVED FORESTS.

4. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time constitute any forest a reserved forest in manner hereinafter provided. Reserved forests, unless assigned to villages as provided in section 27, may be called State forests. Power to reserve forests.

5. Whenever it is proposed to constitute any forest a reserved forest, and the limits of such forest have not been defined by boundary-marks, and are not, in the opinion of the Chief Commissioner, already sufficiently marked by roads, rivers, or other such boundaries, the Chief Commissioner may cause such limits to be demarcated in such manner as he thinks fit. Demarcation of boundaries.

6. When the Chief Commissioner has ascertained that the limits of such forest are already sufficiently defined or marked as aforesaid, or when such limits have been demarcated under section 5, he may publish a notification in the British Burma Gazette— Notification by Chief Commissioner.

(a) declaring that it is proposed to reserve such forest under this Act;

(b) specifying the limits of such forest;

(c) appointing an officer (hereinafter called "the Forest Settlement Officer") to inquire into and determine the existence, nature and extent of any rights alleged to exist in favour of any person to or over any land comprised within such limits, or to or over any forest-produce; and

(d) appointing three persons (hereinafter called "the Forest Court") to hear appeals from the decisions of such officer.

7. During the interval between the publication of such notification and the date fixed by the notification under section 18, no right shall be acquired to, over, or in respect of, the forest comprised in such notification, except under a grant or contract in writing made or entered into by or on behalf of Government or of some person in whom such right was vested when the former notification was issued, and no fresh gardens or toungyas shall be cut in such forest. Bar of accrual of forest-rights.

8. When a notification has been issued under section 6, the Forest Settlement Officer shall publish in every town and village in the neighbourhood of the forest mentioned therein a proclamation in the language of the country— Proclamation by Forest Settlement Officer.

(a) specifying the limits of such forest,

(b) explaining the consequences which, as hereinafter provided, will ensue on the reservation of such forest; and

(c) fixing a period of not less than three months from the date of such proclamation, and requiring every person claiming any right as aforesaid, to present to such officer within such period a written notice stating the nature of such right and the amount and particulars of the compensation (if any) claimed in respect thereof.

9. Any such right in respect of which no such notice is presented within the said period shall be deemed to be extinguished. Rights not claimed, extinguished.

10. When any such notice is presented as aforesaid, the Forest Settlement Officer shall inquire into the merits of the claim, and may, if he considers it proved and if he thinks fit to do so, in the case of a claim to or over any land, pass an order to that effect and proceed to acquire such land in the manner provided by the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, or, in the case of a claim to rights of way or of pasture, or to forest-produce, proceed in the manner prescribed in sections 11 and 12. Power to acquire land over which right is claimed.

For the purpose of so acquiring such land—

(a) the Forest Settlement Officer shall be deemed to be a Collector proceeding under the Land Acquisition Act, 1870;

(b) the claimant shall be deemed to be a person interested and attending before him in pursuance of a notice issued under section 9 of that Act, and

(c) the conditions prescribed by the preceding sections of that Act shall be deemed to have been fulfilled.

11. In the case of a claim to rights of pasture or to forest-produce, the Forest Settlement Officer shall enquire into the nature and extent of such rights, and shall pass an order, admitting, rejecting or modifying the claim. Enquiry into claims.

12. The Forest Settlement Officer, when passing any such order, shall record the name, residence and occupation of the person claiming the right, the designation (if any), position and area of all fields or groups of fields, and the designation and position of all buildings, in respect of which the exercise of such rights is claimed. Record to be made by Forest Settlement Officer.

No such claim shall be admitted, unless

(a) the claimant was, at the time when the limits of the forest were notified under section 6, in the habitual exercise of the right claimed, and

(b) unless the exercise of the right is required for the beneficial use of the land or premises, or of the person claiming the same.

Record where he admits claim.

13. If the Forest Settlement Officer admits any such claim with or without modification, he shall also record the extent to which such rights have been admitted by him, specifying the quantity of timber, bamboos, grass and other forest-produce annually required, the number and description of cattle admitted to graze in the forest and the season during which such pasture is required.

Exercise of rights admitted or modified.

14. After making such record, the Forest Settlement Officer shall, to the best of his ability, and having due regard to the maintenance of the Reserved Forest in respect of which the claim is made, make such arrangements as will ensure the continued exercise of the rights so admitted or modified. For this purpose, the Forest Settlement Officer may—

(a) so alter the limits of the proposed reserved forest as to exclude forest-land of sufficient extent, and conveniently situated for the purposes of the claimants; or

(b) record an order, conferring upon such claimants a right to pasture or to forest-produce, (as the case may be) to the extent so admitted, at such seasons and within such portions of the reserved forest as may from time to time be fixed for that purpose by competent authority; or

(c) set out some other forest-tract of sufficient extent, and in a locality reasonably convenient for the purposes of such claimants, and record an order conferring upon them a right to pasture or to forest-produce (as the case may be) to the extent so admitted.

Commutation of rights.

15. In case the Settlement Officer finds it impossible, having due regard to the maintenance of the reserved forest, to make such arrangements as shall ensure the continued exercise of the said rights to the extent so admitted, he shall (subject to such rules as the Chief Commissioner may from time to time prescribe in this behalf) commute such rights either by the payment to such persons of a sum of money in lieu thereof, or by the grant of land, or in such other manner as may be agreed upon.

Appeal to Forest Court from order passed under section 10, 11 or 14.

16. Any person who has made a claim under this Act, or any Forest Officer or other person generally or specially empowered by the Chief Commissioner in this behalf, may, within three months from the date of the order passed on such petition by the Forest Settlement Officer under section 10, 11 or 14, prefer an appeal from such order to the Forest Court.

Every such appeal shall be made by petition in writing, and shall be chargeable with a Court-fee of eight annas, and shall be presented to and forwarded by the Forest Settlement Officer.

The Forest Court shall fix a day for hearing the appeal, and shall give notice of such day to the parties, and shall hear such appeal in the neighbourhood of the forest. The order passed thereon by such Court, or by the majority of the members of such Court, shall (subject to review by the Chief Commissioner) be final, and the Forest Settlement Officer shall forthwith proceed to carry out the orders of the Court.

Power to appoint pleader on behalf of Government.

17. The Chief Commissioner may appoint any person to appear, plead and act on behalf of the Government before the Forest Settlement Officer or the Forest Court in the course of any inquiry or appeal under this Act.

Notification declaring forest reserved.

18. When—

(a) the period fixed under section 8 for presenting notices has elapsed, and all claims (if any) made within such period have been disposed of by the Forest Settlement Officer, and

(b) (if any such claims have been made) the period limited by section 16 for appealing from the orders passed on such claims has elapsed, and all appeals (if any) presented within such period have been disposed of by the Forest Court, and

(c) all lands (if any) included in the forest, which the Forest Settlement Officer has, under section 10, elected to acquire under the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, have become vested in the Government under section 16 of that Act, the Chief Commissioner may publish a notification in the British Burma Gazette declaring the forest, or any portion thereof, to be reserved from a date fixed by such notification, and from the date so fixed, such forest or such portion thereof shall be deemed to be a reserved forest.

Publication of such notification in neighbourhood of forest.

19. The Forest Officer shall, before the date fixed by such notification, cause a translation of such notification into the language of the district to be affixed in some conspicuous place in every town and village in the neighbourhood of the forest.

No right acquired over reserved forest, except as here provided.

20. No right of any description shall be acquired to, over, or in respect of, a reserved forest, except under a grant or contract in writing made by or on behalf of the Government.

Rights not to be alienated.

21. No right, conferred under section 14, clause (b), shall be alienated by way of grant, sale, lease, mortgage or otherwise, without the sanction of the Chief Commissioner, and no produce obtained by virtue of such a right shall be sold or bartered except to such extent as a right to sell or barter may have been admitted in the order recorded under section 13.

Power to stop ways and watercourses in such forests.

22. The Forest Officer may from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Deputy Commissioner, stop any public or private way or watercourse in a Reserved Forest, provided that he has already assigned or constructed another way or watercourse (as the case may be) in lieu thereof, and that such other way or watercourse is a reasonably convenient substitute for the way or watercourse so stopped.

Acts prohibited in such forest.

23. Any person who

(a) sets fire to a Reserved Forest, or kindles any fire therein in such manner as to endanger the same, or

(b) kindles, keeps or carries any fire therein between the first day of February and the first day of June,

(c) burns any lime, bricks or charcoal therein,

(d) trespasses or grazes his cattle or permits his cattle to trespass therein,

(e) causes any damage therein by negligence in felling any trees or cutting or dragging any timber,

(f) fells, girdles, lops, taps or burns any trees therein, or strips off the bark or leaves from, or otherwise interferes with, the same,

(g) collects any forest-produce therein,

(h) cuts any toungya therein,

shall be punished with imprisonment for a period not exceeding six months, or with fine not exceeding five hundred rupees, or with both, in addition to such damages for injury done to the forest as the Court may direct to be paid.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to prohibit any act done by permission in writing of the Forest Officer, or the exercise of any right conferred under section 14, clause (b), or created by written grant or contract made by or on behalf of Government.

Maintenance of rule 13, dated 2nd August 1865.

24. The thirteenth of the rules for the better management and preservation of the Government forests in British Burma, dated the second day of August 1865, shall continue to apply to every forest constituted a Reserved Forest under any law in force previous to the date on which this Act comes into force, until the Chief Commissioner, by notification in the British Burma Gazette, declares such forest to be a Reserved Forest under the provisions hereinafter contained.

Every offence against such rule shall be deemed to be an offence punishable under rules made under this Act.

Formation and extension of Reserved Forests under Land Acquisition Act.

25. The formation and extension of a Reserved Forest shall be deemed a public purpose within the meaning of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, section 4.

Power to declare forest no longer reserved.

26. The Chief Commissioner may, by notification in the British Burma Gazette, direct that, from a date fixed by such notification, any forest or any portion of any forest reserved under this Act, shall cease to be a Reserved Forest.

From the date so fixed, such forest or portion thereof shall cease to be reserved, but the rights (if any) which have been extinguished in such forest shall not in consequence of such cessation be deemed to revive.

Village Forests.

Demarcation of village-forests.

27. The Chief Commissioner may assign any Reserved Forest or portion thereof for the use of any village or villages situated in the vicinity of such forest. Such forests shall be called village-forests. The Chief Commissioner may make rules for regulating the management of such village-forests, prescribing the conditions under which the inhabitants of the villages for the benefit of which any such forest is assigned, may be provided with timber, pasture or other forest-produce, and their duties for the protection and improvement of such forest.

All provisions of this Act relating to Reserved Forests shall (so far as they are consistent with rules so made) apply to village-forests.

CHAPTER III.

OF DISTRICT FORESTS.

"District Forest" defined.

28. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time, by notification in the British Burma Gazette, declare the provisions of this chapter applicable to any forest or waste-land which is not included in a Reserved Forest, and which the Government has not granted, sold or leased.

The forests and waste-lands comprised in any such notification shall be called "District Forests."

Power to issue notification—

29. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time, by notification in the British Burma Gazette—

reserving trees,

(a) declare any class of trees in a district-forest, or any trees in any such forest, to be reserved from a day fixed by such notification;

prohibiting collection of forest-produce.

(b) prohibit, from a date fixed as aforesaid, the quarrying of limestone, laterite or any other stone, or the burning of lime or charcoal, or the collection of any description of forest-produce, in any such forest or in any portion thereof.

Teak to be reserved.

Unless and until the Chief Commissioner by notification under this section declares otherwise, teak shall be deemed to be reserved in all district-forests.

Publication of such notification in neighbourhood.

30. The Deputy Commissioner shall cause a translation into the language of the district, of every notification issued under section 29, to be affixed in a conspicuous place in every town and village in the neighbourhood of the forest to which such notification applies.

Power to make rules regulating disposal of produce of district-forests.

31. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time make rules to regulate the following matters:—

(a) the cutting and removal of trees and timber, and the collection and removal of forest-produce from the district-forests;

(b) the granting of free permits to the inhabitants of towns and villages in the vicinity of district-forests, and the production and return of such permits by such persons;

(c) the granting of trade-permits to persons felling or removing trees or timber or forest-produce from such forests for the purposes of trade, and the production and return of such permits by such persons;

(d) fees payable by such persons, for permission to cut such trees, or to collect and remove such timber or forest-produce, and

(e) the other payments, if any, to be made by them in respect of such timber and produce, and the places where such payments shall be made.

Penalties for acts in contravention of notification under section 29.

32. Any person who

(a) fells, girdles, lops, taps or burns any tree reserved under section 29, or strips off the bark or leaves from, or otherwise interferes with, any such tree, or

(b) makes gardens or toungyas in any forest containing trees reserved as aforesaid, or sets fire to such forest, or

(c) kindles a fire without taking all such reasonable precautions as are requisite to prevent its spreading to any trees so reserved, or to any timber of such trees in the vicinity, or

(d) leaves burning any fire kindled by him in the vicinity of any such trees or timber, or

(e) fells any tree or drags any timber in such a manner as to injure any tree reserved as aforesaid, or

(f) permits cattle belonging to him or under his charge to injure any such tree, or

(g) quarries any stone, or burns any lime or charcoal, or collects or removes any forest-produce when such quarrying, burning or collecting has been prohibited by a notification under section 29,

shall be punished with imprisonment which may extend to six months, or with fine not exceeding five hundred rupees, or with both.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to prohibit any act done with the permission in writing of the Forest Officer, or in accordance with rules made under section 31, or in the exercise of a right recognized by section 6 of the Burma Land-Revenue Act, 1876.

CHAPTER IV.

OF THE DUTY ON TIMBER.

33. On all timber the produce of forests situated within British territory or brought from any forest situated beyond the frontier of British Burma, a duty may be levied in such manner, at such places and at such rates, as the Chief Commissioner, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, from time to time prescribes by notification in the British Burma Gazette:

Power to impose duty on timber.

Provided that if such duty is directed to be levied on each log of such timber, it shall not exceed five rupees per log of five feet in girth and upwards, and two rupees eight annas per log of less than five feet in girth:

Limit of such duty when levied on each log.

Provided also that if such duty is directed to be levied ad valorem, it shall not exceed ten per cent. of the value.

When levied ad valorem.

34. In every case in which such duty is directed to be levied ad valorem, the Chief Commissioner may, with the like sanction, from time to time fix by like notification the value on which such duty shall be assessed.

Power to fix value for ad valorem duty.

CHAPTER V.

OF THE TRANSIT OF TIMBER AND FOREST-PRODUCE.

35. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time make rules to regulate the transit of all timber and other forest-produce.

Power to make rules to regulate transit of forest-produce.

Such rules may (among other matters)

(a) prescribe the routes by which only timber and other forest-produce may be imported, exported or moved into, from or within, British Burma;

(b) prohibit the import, export, or moving of such timber or other produce without a pass from the Forest Officer, or otherwise than in accordance with the conditions of such pass;

(c) provide for the issue, production and return of such passes and for the payment of fees therefor;

(d) provide for the stoppage and examination of timber or other forest-produce in transit, in respect of which there is reason to believe that any money is payable to Government on account of the price thereof or on account of any duty, fee or charge due thereon, or to which it is desirable for the purposes of this Act to affix a mark;

(e) provide for the establishment and regulation of depôts to which such timber or other produce shall be taken by those in charge of it for examination, or for the payment of such money, or in order that such marks may be affixed to it;

(f) prohibit the closing up or obstructing of the channel or banks of any river used for the transit of timber or other forest-produce, and the throwing of grass, brushwood, branches and leaves into any such river, or any act which may cause such river to be closed or obstructed; and

(g) provide for the removal of any obstruction of the channel or banks of any such river, and for recovering from the person causing such obstruction the cost of such removal.

36. The Government shall not be responsible for any loss or damage which may occur in respect of any timber or other forest-produce while at a depôt established under a rule made under section 35, and no Forest Officer shall be responsible for any such loss or damage unless he causes such loss or damage negligently, maliciously or fraudulently.

Government and its officers not liable for damage to forest-produce at depôt.

37. In case of any accident or emergency involving danger to any property at any such depôt, every person employed at such depôt, whether by the Government or by any private person, shall assist any forest or police officer demanding his aid in averting such danger and securing such property from damage.

All persons bound to aid in case of accident at depôt.

CHAPTER VI.

OF THE COLLECTION OF FLOATING AND STRANDED TIMBER.

38. All timber and wood found adrift or stranded on any river, or off the sea-coast of any part of the said territories, and all unmarked wood and timber, or wood or timber on which the marks have been obliterated, altered, or defaced, by fire or otherwise, and all timber beached, stranded or sunk in any river, or on the sea-coast as aforesaid, shall be deemed to be the property of Government unless and until any person establish his right and title thereto.

Drift or stranded timber, or timber unmarked, or with marks obliterated, to become property of Government until title thereto proved.

39. When any timber is floating loose and unrafted in any river or in the sea, or having been so floating has become stranded or has sunk, the Forest Officer may grant a license, either to the owner of such timber, or to any other person he thinks fit, to collect the same, upon such terms as to its continuance, production, return or otherwise, as the Chief Commissioner may from time to time direct.

Licenses to collect timber floating loose.

40. Except on any rivers and in any place which the Chief Commissioner may by rule exempt from the operation of this section, any person may without a license collect any timber floating, stranded or sunk as aforesaid, which, there is reason to believe, would, if not so collected, escape beyond the possibility of being recovered in the usual course.

Timber in danger of escaping beyond control may be collected without license.

41. Any person collecting any timber under a license granted under section 39, unless he is the owner or the agent of the owner of such timber, and Timber collected under sections 39 and 40 how dealt with.

any person collecting any timber under section 40,

shall at once inform the Forest Officer that he has collected such timber, shall retain the same pending the receipt of an order from such officer as to the disposal thereof, and, on the receipt of such order, shall dispose of such timber in accordance therewith.

42. The Forest Officer may collect any timber floating, stranded or sunk as aforesaid.

Forest Officer may collect.

43. Any person who—

Penalty for offences against preceding sections.

(a) except as provided in sections 40 and 41, or under and in accordance with the provisions of a license granted under section 39, collects any timber, whether belonging to himself or to any other person, which is floating, stranded or sunk as aforesaid, or,

(b) having collected any such timber, is guilty of any act or omission in respect of the same contrary to the provisions of section 41, shall be punished with imprisonment which may extend to six months, or with fine which may amount to five hundred rupees, or with both.

44. When the Forest Officer has collected any timber under section 42, or when any timber has been delivered to him in compliance with an order issued under section 41, and the person entitled to the possession of such timber is known to him, he shall, subject to the provisions of sections 48 and 74, deliver the same to such person or as he shall direct.

Forest Officer how to deal with timber collected by or made over to him.

When person entitled to possession is known.

When the person entitled to the possession of such timber is not known to the Forest Officer, he shall publish a notice in the British Burma Gazette and shall affix a translation of the same into the language of the country at the place where such timber then is, describing such timber, and calling upon any person having a claim to the possession of the same to present to him within three months from the date of such notice a written statement of such claim.

When such person is not known.

45. When any such statement is presented as aforesaid, the Forest Officer may, after making such enquiry as he thinks fit, either reject the claim, or deliver the timber to the claimant.

Proceedings on claim preferred to timber.

Any person whose claim has been rejected under this section may, within two months from the date of such rejection, institute a suit to recover possession of the timber claimed by him; but no person shall recover any damages or costs against the Government, or against any Forest Officer, on account of such rejection, or the detention or removal of any timber, or the delivery thereof to any other person under this section.

On rejection of claim to such timber, claimant may institute suit.

46. The Government shall not be responsible for any loss or damage which may occur in respect of any timber collected under section 42 or delivered to a Forest Officer in compliance with an order issued under section 41, and no Forest Officer shall be responsible for any such loss or damage, unless he causes such loss or damage negligently, maliciously or fraudulently.

Government and its officers not liable for damage to such timber.

47. If the person entitled to the possession of any timber collected or delivered as aforesaid omits to prefer his claim in the manner and within the period prescribed by the notice issued under section 44, or, on such claim having been so preferred by him and having been rejected, omits to institute a suit to recover possession of such timber within the further period limited by section 45, the ownership of such timber shall vest in the Government, or, when such timber has been delivered to another person under section 45, in such other person, free from all encumbrances of every description.

Effect of omission to prosecute claim to such timber.

48. No person shall be entitled to recover possession of any timber collected or delivered as aforesaid until he has paid to the Forest Officer such fees on account of the collection thereof as the Chief Commissioner may from time time by rule prescribe.

Fees to be paid by claimant before timber is delivered to him.

CHAPTER VII.

GENERAL.

A.—Of Penalties.

49. All forest-produce in respect of which a forest-offence has been committed, and all tools, boats, carts and cattle used in committing any such offence, shall be liable to confiscation.

Such confiscation may be in addition to any other punishment prescribed for such offence.

Forest-produce, tools, &c., when liable to confiscation.

50. When there is reason to believe that any property is liable to confiscation under section 49 for any offence, it may be seized by any Police or Forest Officer.

Every officer seizing any property under this section shall place on such property a mark indicating that the same has been so seized, and shall, as soon as may be, apply for the confiscation of the same to the Magistrate having jurisdiction to try the offence on account of which the seizure has been made.

Seizure of property liable to confiscation.

Application for confiscation.

51. If on receiving an application under section 50, and on making such inquiry as he deems fit, such Magistrate has reason to believe that such property is liable to confiscation under this Act, he shall cause a notice of such application to be affixed at the place of seizure and served upon every person known or believed to be interested in such property.

Procedure on such application.

52. Any person so interested may within one month from the date of serving such notice present a petition to such Magistrate claiming to be heard in opposition to the application.

Person interested may oppose confiscation.

53. On the expiry of the said period of one month, if no such petition has been presented, or, if any such petition has been presented, after hearing the petitioner and considering any evidence he may adduce, the Magistrate may pass an order for the confiscation of the property or for its release.

Order for confiscation.

54. The officer who made the seizure under section 50, or any of his official superiors, or any person who has presented a petition under section 52, may within one month from the date of such order appeal therefrom to the Sessions Judge, and the order passed on such appeal shall be final.

Appeal from such order.

55. When an order for the confiscation of any property has been passed under section 53, and the period limited by section 54 for an appeal from such order has elapsed and no such appeal has been preferred, or when, on such an appeal being preferred, the Sessions Judge confirms such order in respect of the whole or a portion of such property, such property or such portion thereof, as the case may be, shall vest in the Government free from all incumbrances of every description.

Property when to vest in Government.

56. Nothing hereinbefore contained shall be deemed to prevent any officer empowered in this behalf by the Chief Commissioner from directing at any time the immediate release of any property seized under section 50.

Saving of power to release property seized.

57. Any Police or Forest Officer who vexatiously or unnecessarily seizes any property on pretence of seizing property liable to confiscation under this Act, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, or with fine not exceeding five hundred rupees, or with both.

Punishment for wrongful seizure.

58. Whoever, with intent to cause damage or injury to the public or to any person—

Penalty for counterfeiting or defacing marks on trees and timber and for altering, &c., boundary-marks.

(a) knowingly counterfeits upon any timber or standing tree a mark used by Forest Officers to indicate that such timber or tree is the property of the Government or of some person, or that it may lawfully be cut or removed by some person, or

(b) alters, defaces or obliterates any such mark placed on a tree or on timber by or under the authority of a Forest Officer, or

(c) alters, moves, destroys or defaces any boundary-mark of a Reserved Forest, shall be punished with imprisonment which may extend to two years, or with fine, or with both.

B.—Of Criminal Procedure.

59. Any Police or Forest Officer may, without orders from a Magistrate and without a warrant, arrest any person against whom a reasonable suspicion exists of his having been concerned in any forest-offence punishable with imprisonment for one month or upwards.

Power to arrest without warrant.

Every officer making an arrest under this section shall without unnecessary delay take or send the person arrested before the Magistrate having jurisdiction in the case.

60. Every Police and Forest Officer shall prevent, and may interfere for the purpose of preventing, the commission of any forest-offence.

Power to prevent commission of offence.

61. Every such officer knowing of a design to commit any such offence may arrest without orders from a Magistrate and without a warrant the person entertaining such design, if the commission of such offence cannot be otherwise prevented.

Power to arrest person designing to commit offence.

62. The Magistrate of the District and any Magistrate of the first class specially empowered in this behalf by the Chief Commissioner may try, in the summary way prescribed by the eighteenth chapter of the Code of Criminal Procedure, any forest-offence punishable with imprisonment for not more than six months, or with fine not exceeding five hundred rupees.

Power to try offences summarily.

63. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time, by notification in the British Burma Gazette, empower any Forest Officer of such grade as the Chief Commissioner may from time to time direct, to accept from any person charged with any forest-offence other than an offence under section 57 or section 58 a sum of money by way of composition for such offence.

Power to compound offences.

On the payment of such sum of money to such officer, the accused person, if in custody, shall be discharged, any property seized as liable to confiscation in respect of such offence shall be released, and no further proceedings of any description shall be taken under this Act against such person or property; but nothing herein contained shall exempt such person from prosecution on the same facts under any other law for the time being in force.

64. When in any proceedings instituted under this Act, or in consequence of anything done under this Act, a question arises as to whether any timber is the property of the Government, such timber shall be presumed to be the property of the Government until the contrary is proved.

Presumption that timber belongs to Government.

C.—Of Cattle-trespass.

65. Cattle trespassing in a Reserved Forest, or doing damage to any trees reserved under section 29, shall be deemed to be cattle doing damage to a public plantation within the meaning of the eleventh section of the Cattle Trespass Act, 1871, and may be seized and impounded as such by any Police or Forest Officer.

Cattle Trespass Act, 1871, to apply.

66. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time by rule direct that, in lieu of the fines fixed by the twelfth section of the Act last aforesaid, there shall be levied for each head of cattle impounded under section 65 of this Act, such fines as to him may seem fit, but not exceeding the following, that is to say,

Power to alter fines fixed by that Act.

For each elephant	...	... ten rupees.
,, buffalo	...	... two ,,
,, horse, mare, gelding, pony, colt, filly, mule, bull, bullock, cow or heifer		... one rupee.
,, calf, ass, or pig		.... eight annas.
,, ram, ewe, sheep, lamb, goat or kid	...	... one rupee.

D.—Miscellaneous.

67. Every person who exercises any right in a district-forest, or in a forest reserved under this Act or under any law in force previous to the date on which this Act comes into force, or who is permitted to take any forest-produce from, or to cut and remove timber or to pasture cattle in, such forest,

Persons interested in forest bound to assist Forest and Police-Officers.

and every person who is employed by any such person in such forest, shall be bound to communicate without unnecessary delay to the nearest Forest or Police Officer any information he may possess respecting the commission of or intention to commit any forest-offence, and shall assist any Police or Forest Officer demanding his aid—

(a) in extinguishing any fire occurring in such forest,

(b) in preventing any fire which may occur in the vicinity of such forest from spreading to such forest,

(c) in preventing the commission in such forest of any forest-offence,

(d) when there is reason to believe that any such offence has been committed in such forest, in discovering and arresting the offender.

68. The Chief Commissioner may, subject to any restrictions from time to time imposed by the Governor General in Council, invest a Forest Settlement Officer, or any member of a Forest Court, or any Forest Officer, by name or as holding any office, with any of the following powers to be exercised by him for the purposes of this Act in any part of British Burma, or in any class of cases, that is to say,

Chief Commissioner may confer additional powers.

(a) power to enter upon any land and to survey, demarcate and make a map of the same,

(b) any power exercised by a Civil Court in the trial of suits or the hearing of appeals,

(d) power to delegate the exercise of any power or the performance of any duty to a subordinate officer.

69. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time, by order published in the British Burma Gazette, remove or suspend any person from the office of Forest Settlement Officer or member of a Forest Court, and, whenever such office becomes vacant, whether by the removal of the incumbent or otherwise, may by like order appoint another person thereto.

Power to remove officers and fill vacancies.

70. In addition to the other matters for which the Chief Commissioner is empowered by this Act to make rules, he may from time to time make rules—

Additional powers to make rules.

(a) to prohibit, absolutely or subject to conditions, within certain local limits, the establishment of sawpits for the sawing up of timber, the converting, cutting, burning, concealing or marking of timber, the altering or effacing of any marks on the same, and the possession or carrying of marking hammers or other implements used for marking timber;

(b) to regulate the use of property-marks for timber, and to provide for the registration of such marks and for the levy of fees from persons registering the same;

(c) to determine the persons by whom, and the manner in which, rights over district-forests and over forests reserved under this Act or under any law in force previous to the date on which this Act comes into force, may be conferred, and the mode in which rights so conferred shall be exercised;

(d) to determine the person by whom, and the time, place and manner at and in which, anything to be done under this Act, and for which no express provision is made in these respects, shall be done; and

(e) generally to carry out the provisions of this Act.

71. The Chief Commissioner may, in making any rule under this Act, attach to the breach of it, in addition to any other consequences that would ensue from such breach, a punishment on conviction before a Magistrate not exceeding one month's imprisonment, or two hundred rupees fine, or both.

Power to impose penalties for breach of rules.

72. All rules made by the Chief Commissioner under this Act shall, when sanctioned by the Governor General in Council, be published in the British Burma Gazette, and shall thereupon, so far as they are consistent with this Act, have the force of law.

Rules when to have force of law.

73. All money payable to the Government under this Act, or under any rule made under this Act, or on account of the price of any forest-produce, or of expenses incurred in the execution of this Act in respect of such produce, may, if not paid when due, be recovered as if it were an arrear within the meaning of the fourth part of the Burma Land and Revenue Act, 1876.

Recovery of money due to Government.

74. When any such money is payable for or in respect of any forest-produce, the amount thereof shall be deemed to be a first charge on such produce, and such produce may be taken possession of by a Forest Officer until such amount has been paid.

Lien on forest-produce for such money.

If such amount is not paid when due, the Forest Officer may sell such produce by public auction, and the proceeds of the sale shall be applied first in discharging such amount.

Power to sell such produce.

The surplus (if any) if not claimed within two months from the date of the sale by the person entitled thereto, shall be forfeited to Her Majesty.

Bribing Forest Officers.

75. All Forest Officers shall be deemed to be public servants within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code, sections 161 to 165 (both inclusive).

SCHEDULE.

(See section 2.)

ACTS REPEALED.

Number and year.	Title.
VII of 1865 ...	An Act to give effect to Rules for the management and preservation of Government forests.
VII of 1869 ...	An Act to give validity to certain Rules relating to forests in British Burma.
XIII of 1873 ...	An Act to amend the law relating to timber floated down the rivers of British Burma.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Province of Burma is, as compared with other parts of India, in a peculiar position, and the whole of the specifically unalienated forest-land is the property of Government, subject only to certain rights of user, or privileges exercised in some parts by individuals or village-communities. This right was proclaimed at the time of the annexation of the various territories which now form the Province of British Burma, and has never been gainsaid. The history of the previous legislation in regard to the forest-lands is this: In 1865, when the general Government Forest Act was passed, certain rules were made under it for Burma, which did not apply to the whole of the forests there, and it was eventually found that in part they were not covered by the Act itself. It therefore became necessary to pass an Act in 1869 to validate them. Subsequently, Act XIII of 1873 was passed to amend the law relating to timber floated and imported from foreign territory into British Burma, and that Act repealed Act VII of 1869, and partly also Act XXX of 1854. Later on, in 1874, the duty on foreign timber was made ad valorem, and finally, in 1875, further rules were made, under the Act of 1865, for the forests which had not been included in the old rules.

However, the whole has been at best but a piecemeal process, and legislation is still required upon five principal points, besides a number of small ones. First, it is necessary to clear up doubts regarding the reservation of trees other than teak. The system of recovering a part of the price of Government timber in the form of a duty also has to be provided for. Forest-duties are necessary to defray the expense of extra police. But perhaps the most important subject for which legal provisions have been found necessary, is the enquiry into, and decision of, claims of persons to the various rights of servitude and user in the Government forests. It is likewise essential to bar the acquisition by prescription of new rights in reserved forests. Finally, the penalties provided by the present law have been found to be insufficient. The Bill provides for all these points; it also repeals and re-enacts, with the necessary amendments, the three Acts relating to forests and timber, which are now in force in British Burma.

SCHEDULE—ACTS REPEALED.

A Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to the management and preservation of Government forests in the province of British Burma.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to the management and preservation of Government forests in the province of British Burma, to the transit of forest-produce through the said province, and to the duty leviable on timber imported thereinto; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preamble.

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

1. This Act may be called "The Burma Forest Act, 1877:"

Short title.

It extends to all the territories for the time being under the administration of the Chief Commissioner of British Burma;

Local extent.

And it shall come into force on such date as the said Chief Commissioner, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may, by notification in the British Burma Gazette, direct.

Commencement.

2. On and from such date the Acts mentioned in the schedule hereto annexed, and all rules made under or validated by any of the said Acts, shall, except as provided by section 24, be repealed, but not so as to affect any thing duly done under any such Act or Rules.

Repeal.

3. In this Act—unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context—

Interpretation-clause.

"Forest officer" means any person whom the Chief Commissioner may from time to time appoint by name, or as holding an office, to do

"Forest officer."

(1) anything required by this Act to be done by a Forest officer;

(2) anything to be done by a Government officer under this Act, or under any rule made under this Act, and for the doing of which no agency is specially provided by this Act:

"Tree" includes bamboos and brushwood:

"Tree."

"Timber" includes trees and bamboos when they have fallen or have been felled, and all wood when cut up, or when fashioned or hollowed out for cart-wheels, mortars, canoes, or other purposes:

"Timber."

"Forest-produce" includes the following when found in, or brought from, a forest, that is to say—

"Forest-produce."

Limestone, laterite and other minerals and surface-soil, trees, timber, grass, reeds, leaves, flowers, fruits, juice, bark, honey, wax, lac, gum, wood-oil, resin and varnish:

"Forest-offence" means an offence punishable under this Act, or under any rule made under this Act:

"Forest-offence."

"Cattle" includes elephants, camels, buffaloes, horses, mares, geldings, ponies, colts, fillies, mules, asses, pigs, rams, ewes, sheep, lambs, goats and kids:

"Cattle."

"River" includes streams, canals, creeks and other channels, natural or artificial.

"River."

CHAPTER II.

OF RESERVED FORESTS.

4. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time constitute any forest a reserved forest in manner hereinafter provided. Reserved forests, unless assigned to villages as provided in section 27, may be called State forests.

Power to reserve forests.

5. Whenever it is proposed to constitute any forest a reserved forest, and the limits of such forest have not been defined by boundary-marks, and are not, in the opinion of the Chief Commissioner, already sufficiently marked by roads, rivers, or other such boundaries, the Chief Commissioner may cause such limits to be demarcated in such manner as he thinks fit.

Demarcation of boundaries.

6. When the Chief Commissioner has ascertained that the limits of such forest are already sufficiently defined or marked as aforesaid, or when such limits have been demarcated under section 5, he may publish a notification in the British Burma Gazette—

Notification by Chief Commissioner.

(a) declaring that it is proposed to reserve such forest under this Act;

(b) specifying the limits of such forest;

(c) appointing an officer [illegible] called "the Forest Settlement Officer" to enquire into and determine the existence, nature and extent of any rights alleged to exist in favour of any person within such limits, to or over any land [illegible]; and (d) constituting [illegible] persons (hereinafter called "the Forest Court") to hear appeals from the orders of such officer.

7. During the interval between the publication of such notification and the date fixed by the notification under section 18, no right shall be acquired to, over, or in respect of, the forest comprised in such notification, except under a grant or contract in writing made or entered into by or on behalf of the Government or of some person in whom such right was vested when the former notification was issued, and no fresh gardens or toungyas shall be cut in such forest.

Bar of accrual of forest-rights.

8. When a notification has been issued under section 6, the Forest Settlement Officer shall publish in every town and village in the neighbourhood of the forest mentioned therein a proclamation in the language of the country—

Proclamation by Forest Settlement Officer.

(a) specifying the limits of such forest,

(b) explaining the consequences which, as hereinafter provided, will ensue on the reservation of such forest; and

(c) fixing a period of not less than three months from the date of such proclamation, and requiring every person claiming any right as aforesaid, to present to such officer within such period a written notice stating the nature of such right and the amount and particulars of the compensation (if any) claimed in respect thereof.

9. Any such right in respect of which no such notice is presented within the said period shall be deemed to be extinguished.

Rights not claimed, extinguished.

10. When any such notice is presented as aforesaid, the Forest Settlement Officer shall inquire into the merits of the claim, and may, if he considers it proved and if he thinks fit to do so, in the case of a claim to or over any land, pass an order to that effect and proceed to acquire such land in the manner provided by the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, or, in the case of a claim to rights of way or of pasture, or to forest-produce, proceed in the manner prescribed in sections 11 and 12.

Power to acquire land over which right is claimed.

For the purpose of so acquiring such land—

(a) the Forest Settlement Officer shall be deemed to be a Collector proceeding under the Land Acquisition Act, 1870;

(b) the claimant shall be deemed to be a person interested and attending before him in pursuance of a notice issued under section [illegible] that Act; and

(c) the conditions prescribed by the preceding sections of that Act shall be deemed to have been fulfilled.

11. [illegible] of a claim to rights of pasture or to forest-produce, the Forest Settlement Officer shall enquire into the nature and extent of such rights, and shall pass an order, admitting, rejecting or modifying the claim.

[illegible] into claims.

12. The Forest Settlement Officer, when passing any such order, shall record the name, residence and occupation of the person claiming the right, the designation (if any), position and area of all fields or groups of fields, and the designation and position of all buildings, in respect of which the exercise of such rights is claimed.

Record to be made by Forest Settlement Officer.

No such claim shall be admitted, unless

(a) the claimant was, at the time when the limits of the forest were notified under section 6, in the habitual exercise of the right claimed, and

(b) unless the exercise of the right is required for the beneficial use of the land or premises, or of the person claiming the same.

Record where he admits claim.

13. If the Forest Settlement Officer admits any such claim with or without modification, he shall also record the extent to which such rights have been admitted by him, specifying the quantity of timber, bamboos, grass and other forest-produce annually required, the number and description of cattle admitted to graze in the forest and the season during which such pasture is required.

Exercise of rights admitted or modified.

14. After making such record, the Forest Settlement Officer shall, to the best of his ability, and having due regard to the maintenance of the Reserved Forest in respect of which the claim is made, make such arrangements as will ensure the continued exercise of the rights so admitted or modified. For this purpose, the Forest Settlement Officer may—

(a) so alter the limits of the proposed reserved forest as to exclude forest-land of sufficient extent, and conveniently situated for the purposes of the claimants; or

(b) record an order, conferring upon such claimants a right to pasture or to forest-produce, (as the case may be) to the extent so admitted, at such seasons and within such portions of the reserved forest as may from time to time be fixed for that purpose by competent authority; or

(c) set out some other forest-tract of sufficient extent, and in a locality reasonably convenient for the purposes of such claimants, and record an order conferring upon them a right to pasture or to forest-produce (as the case may be) to the extent so admitted.

Commutation of rights.

15. In case the Settlement Officer finds it impossible, having due regard to the maintenance of the reserved forest, to make such arrangements as shall ensure the continued exercise of the said rights to the extent so admitted, he shall (subject to such rules as the Chief Commissioner may from time to time prescribe in this behalf) commute such rights either by the payment to such persons of a sum of money in lieu thereof, or by the grant of land, or in such other manner as may be agreed upon.

Appeal to Forest Court from order passed under section 10, 11 or 14.

16. Any person who has made a claim under this Act, or any Forest Officer or other person generally or specially empowered by the Chief Commissioner in this behalf, may, within three months from the date of the order passed on such petition by the Forest Settlement Officer under section 10, 11 or 14, prefer an appeal from such order to the Forest Court.

Every such appeal shall be made by petition in writing, and shall be chargeable with a Court-fee of eight annas, and shall be presented to and forwarded by the Forest Settlement Officer.

The Forest Court shall fix a day for hearing the appeal, and shall give notice of such day to the parties, and shall hear such appeal in the neighbourhood of the forest. The order passed thereon by such Court, or by the majority of the members of such Court, shall (subject to review by the Chief Commissioner) be final, and the Forest Settlement Officer shall forthwith proceed to carry out the orders of the Court.

Power to appoint pleader on behalf of Government.

17. The Chief Commissioner may appoint any person to appear, plead and act on behalf of the Government before the Forest Settlement Officer or the Forest Court in the course of any inquiry or appeal under this Act.

Notification declaring forest reserved.

18. When—

(a) the period fixed under section 8 for presenting notices has elapsed, and all claims (if any) made within such period have been disposed of by the Forest Settlement Officer, and

(b) (if any such claims have been made) the period limited by section 16 for appealing from the orders passed on such claims has elapsed, and all appeals (if any) presented within such period have been disposed of by the Forest Court, and

(c) all lands (if any) included in the forest, which the Forest Settlement Officer has, under section 10, elected to acquire under the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, have become vested in the Government under section 16 of that Act, the Chief Commissioner may publish a notification in the British Burma Gazette declaring the forest, or any portion thereof, to be reserved from a date fixed by such notification, and from the date so fixed, such forest or such portion thereof shall be deemed to be a reserved forest.

Publication of such notification in neighbourhood of forest.

19. The Forest Officer shall, before the date fixed by such notification, cause a translation of such notification into the language of the district to be affixed in some conspicuous place in every town and village in the neighbourhood of the forest.

No right acquired over reserved forest, except as here provided.

20. No right of any description shall be acquired to, over, or in respect of, a reserved forest, except under a grant or contract in writing made by or on behalf of the Government.

Rights not to be alienated.

21. No right, conferred under section 14, clause (b), shall be alienated by way of grant, sale, lease, mortgage or otherwise, without the sanction of the Chief Commissioner, and no produce obtained by virtue of such a right shall be sold or bartered except to such extent as a right to sell or barter may have been admitted in the order recorded under section 13.

Power to stop ways and watercourses in such forests.

22. The Forest Officer may from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Deputy Commissioner, stop any public or private way or watercourse in a Reserved Forest, provided that he has already assigned or constructed another way or watercourse (as the case may be) in lieu thereof, and that such other way or watercourse is a reasonably convenient substitute for the way or watercourse so stopped.

Acts prohibited in such forest.

23. Any person who

(a) sets fire to a Reserved Forest, or kindles any fire therein in such manner as to endanger the same, or

(b) kindles, keeps or carries any fire therein between the first day of February and the first day of June,

(c) burns any lime, bricks or charcoal therein,

(d) trespasses or grazes his cattle or permits his cattle to trespass therein,

(e) causes any damage therein by negligence in felling any trees or cutting or dragging any timber,

(f) fells, girdles, lops, taps or burns any trees therein, or strips off the bark or leaves from, or otherwise interferes with, the same,

(g) collects any forest-produce therein,

(h) cuts any toungya therein,

shall be punished with imprisonment for a period not exceeding six months, or with fine not exceeding five hundred rupees, or with both, in addition to such damages for injury done to the forest as the Court may direct to be paid.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to prohibit any act done by permission in writing of the Forest Officer, or the exercise of any right conferred under section 14, clause (b), or created by written grant or contract made by or on behalf of Government.

Maintenance of rule 13, dated 2nd August 1865.

24. The thirteenth of the rules for the better management and preservation of the Government forests in British Burma, dated the second day of August 1865, shall continue to apply to every forest constituted a Reserved Forest under any law in force previous to the date on which this Act comes into force, until the Chief Commissioner, by notification in the British Burma Gazette, declares such forest to be a Reserved Forest under the provisions hereinafter contained.

Every offence against such rule shall be deemed to be an offence punishable under rules made under this Act.

Formation and extension of Reserved Forests under Land Acquisition Act.

25. The formation and extension of a Reserved Forest shall be deemed a public purpose within the meaning of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, section 4.

Power to declare forest no longer reserved.

26. The Chief Commissioner may, by notification in the British Burma Gazette, direct that, from a date fixed by such notification, any forest or any portion of any forest reserved under this Act, shall cease to be a Reserved Forest.

From the date so fixed, such forest or portion thereof shall cease to be reserved, but the rights (if any) which have been extinguished in such forest shall not in consequence of such cessation be deemed to revive.

Village Forests.

Demarcation of village-forests.

27. The Chief Commissioner may assign [illegible] Reserved Forest or [illegible] thereof for the [illegible]ted in village or vi[illegible]s shall be the vicinity of such forest. [illegible] Commissioner called village-forests. [illegible] the management of may make rules for [illegible]scribing the conditions such village-for[illegible]ants of the villages for the under which th[illegible]any such forest is assigned, may benefit [illegible] with timber, pasture or other forest-be [illegible], and their duties for the protection and [illegible] improvement of such forest.

All provisions of this Act relating to Reserved Forests shall (so far as they are consistent with rules so made) apply to village-forests.

CHAPTER III.

OF DISTRICT FORESTS.

"District Forest" defined.

28. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time, by notification in the British Burma Gazette, declare the provisions of this chapter applicable to any forest or waste-land which is not included in a Reserved Forest, and which the Government has not granted, sold or leased.

The forests and waste-lands comprised in any such notification shall be called "District Forests."

Power to issue notification—

29. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time, by notification in the British Burma Gazette—

reserving trees,

(a) declare any class of trees in a district-forest, or any trees in any such forest, to be reserved from a day fixed by such notification;

prohibiting collection of forest-produce.

(b) prohibit, from a date fixed as aforesaid, the quarrying of limestone, laterite or any other stone, or the burning of lime or charcoal, or the collection of any description of forest-produce, in any such forest or in any portion thereof.

Teak to be reserved.

Unless and until the Chief Commissioner by notification under this section declares otherwise, teak shall be deemed to be reserved in all district-forests.

Publication of such notification in neighbourhood.

30. The Deputy Commissioner shall cause a translation into the language of the district, of every notification issued under section 29, to be affixed in a conspicuous place in every town and village in the neighbourhood of the forest to which such notification applies.

Power to make rules regulating disposal of produce of district-forests.

31. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time make rules to regulate the following matters:—

(a) the cutting and removal of trees and timber, and the collection and removal of forest-produce from the district-forests;

(b) the granting of free permits to the [illegible]ants of towns and villages [illegible] of district-forests, and t[illegible] return of such permit[illegible];

(c) the granting [illegible] felling or r[illegible] forests for the purposes produc[illegible] the production and return of [illegible]mits by such persons;

[illegible] payable by such persons, for permission to cut such trees, or to collect and remove such timber or forest-produce, and

(e) the other payments, if any, to be made by them in respect of such timber and produce, and the places where such payments shall be made.

Penalties for acts in contravention of notification under section 29.

32. Any person who

(a) fells, girdles, lops, taps or burns any tree reserved under section 29, or strips off the bark or leaves from, or otherwise interferes with, any such tree, or

(b) makes gardens or toungyas in any forest containing trees reserved as aforesaid, or sets fire to such forest, or

(c) kindles a fire without taking all such reasonable precautions as are requisite to prevent its spreading to any trees so reserved, or to any timber of such trees in the vicinity, or

(d) leaves burning any fire kindled by him in the vicinity of any such trees or timber, or

(e) fells any tree or drags any timber in such a manner as to injure any tree reserved as aforesaid, or

(f) permits cattle belonging to him or under his charge to injure any such tree, or

(g) quarries any stone, or burns any lime or charcoal, or collects or removes any forest-produce when such quarrying, burning or collecting has been prohibited by a notification under section 29, shall be punished with imprisonment which may extend to six months, or with fine not exceeding five hundred rupees, or with both.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to prohibit any act done with the permission in writing of the Forest Officer, or in accordance with rules made under section 31, or in the exercise of a right recognized by section 6 of the Burma Land-Revenue Act, 1876.

CHAPTER IV.

OF THE DUTY ON TIMBER.

Power to impose duty on timber.

33. On all timber the produce of forests situated within British territory or brought from any forest situated beyond the frontier of British Burma, a duty may be levied in such manner, at such places and at such rates, as the Chief Commissioner, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, from time to time prescribes by notification in the British Burma Gazette:

Limit of such duty when levied on each log.

Provided that if such duty is directed to be levied on each log of such timber, it shall not exceed five rupees per log of five feet in girth and upwards, and two rupees eight annas per log of less than five feet in girth:

When levied ad valorem.

Provided also that if such duty is directed to be levied ad valorem, it shall not exceed ten per cent. of the value.

Power to fix value for ad valorem duty.

34. In every case in which such duty is directed to be levied ad valorem, the Chief Commissioner may, with the like sanction, from time to time fix by like notification the value on which such duty shall be assessed.

CHAPTER V.

OF THE TRANSIT OF TIMBER AND FOREST-PRODUCE.

Power to make rules to regulate transit of forest-produce.

35. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time make rules to regulate the transit of all timber and other forest-produce.

Such rules may (among other matters)

(a) prescribe the routes by which only timber and other forest-produce may be imported, exported or moved into, from or within, British Burma;

(b) prohibit the import, export, or moving of such timber or other produce without a pass from the Forest Officer, or otherwise than in accordance with the conditions of such pass;

(c) provide for the issue, production and return of such passes and for the payment of fees therefor;

(d) provide for the stoppage and examination of timber or other forest-produce in transit, in respect of which there is reason to believe that any money is payable to Government on account of the price thereof or on account of any duty, fee or charge due thereon, or to which it is desirable for the purposes of this Act to affix a mark;

(e) provide for the establishment and regulation of depôts to which such timber or other produce shall be taken by those in charge of it for examination, or for the payment of such money, or in order that such marks may be affixed to it;

(f) prohibit the closing up or obstructing of the channel or banks of any river used for the transit of timber or other forest-produce, and the throwing of grass, brushwood, branches and leaves into any such river, or any act which may cause such river to be closed or obstructed; and

(g) provide for the removal of any obstruction of the channel or banks of any such river, and for recovering from the person causing such obstruction the cost of such removal.

Government and its officers not liable for damage to forest-produce at depôt.

36. The Government shall not be responsible for any loss or damage which may occur in respect of any timber or other forest-produce while at a depôt established under a rule made under section 35, and no Forest Officer shall be responsible for any such loss or damage unless he causes such loss or damage negligently, maliciously or fraudulently.

All persons bound to aid in case of accident at depôt.

37. In case of any accident or emergency involving danger to any property at any such depôt, every person employed at such depôt, whether by the Government or by any private person, shall assist any forest or police officer demanding his aid in averting such danger and securing such property from damage.

CHAPTER VI.

OF THE COLLECTION OF FLOATING AND STRANDED TIMBER.

Drift or stranded timber, or timber unmarked, or with marks obliterated, to become property of Government until title thereto proved.

38. All timber and wood found adrift or stranded on any river, or off the sea-coast of any part of the said territories, and all unmarked wood and timber, or wood or timber on which the marks have been obliterated, altered, or defaced, by fire or otherwise, and all timber beached, stranded or sunk in any river, or on the sea-coast as aforesaid, shall be deemed to be the property of Government unless and until any person establish his right and title thereto.

Licenses to collect timber floating loose.

39. When any timber is floating loose and unrafted in any river or in the sea, or having been so floating has become stranded or has sunk, the Forest Officer may grant a license, either to the owner of such timber, or to any other person he thinks fit, to collect the same, upon such terms as to its continuance, production, return or otherwise, as the Chief Commissioner may from time to time direct.

Timber in danger of escaping beyond control may be collected without license.

40. Except on any rivers and in any place which the Chief Commissioner may by rule exempt from the operation of this section, any person may without a license collect any timber floating, stranded or sunk as aforesaid, which, there is reason to believe, would, if not so collected, escape beyond the possibility of being recovered in the usual course.

Timber collected under sections 39 and 40 how dealt with.

41. Any person collecting any timber under a license granted under section 39, unless he is the owner or the agent of the owner of such timber, and any person collecting any timber under section 40,

shall at once inform the Forest Officer that he has collected such timber, shall retain the same pending the receipt of an order from such officer as to the disposal thereof, and, on the receipt of such order, shall dispose of such timber in accordance therewith.

Forest Officer may collect.

42. The Forest Officer may collect any timber floating, stranded or sunk as aforesaid.

Penalty for offences against preceding sections.

43. Any person who—

(a) except as provided in sections 40 and 41, or under and in accordance with the provisions of a license granted under section 39, collects any timber, whether belonging to himself or to any other person, which is floating, stranded or sunk as aforesaid, or,

(b) having collected any such timber, is guilty of any act or omission in respect of the same contrary to the provisions of section 41, shall be punished with imprisonment which may extend to six months, or with fine which may amount to five hundred rupees, or with both.

Forest Officer how to deal with timber collected by or made over to him.

44. When the Forest Officer has collected any timber under section 42, or when any timber has been delivered to him in compliance with an order issued under section 41, and the person entitled to the possession of such timber is known to him, he shall, subject to the provisions of sections 48 and 74, deliver the same to such person or as he shall direct.

When person entitled to possession is known.

When the person entitled to the possession of such timber is not known to the Forest Officer, he shall publish a notice in the British Burma Gazette and shall affix a translation of the same into the language of the country in the place where such timber then is, describing the timber, and calling upon any person to present to claim to the possession of the same within three months from the date of such notice a written statement of such claim.

When such person is not known.

45. When such statement is presented as aforesaid, the Forest Officer may, after making such enquiry as he thinks fit, either admit the claim, or deliver the timber to the claimant.

On rejection of claim to such timber, claimant may institute suit.

Any person whose claim has been rejected under this section may, within two months from the date of such rejection, institute a suit to recover possession of the timber claimed by him; but no person shall recover any damages or costs against the Government, or against any Forest Officer, on account of such rejection, or the detention or removal of any timber, or the delivery thereof to any other person under this section.

Government and its officers not liable for damage to such timber.

46. The Government shall not be responsible for any loss or damage which may occur in respect of any timber collected under section 42 or delivered to a Forest Officer in compliance with an order issued under section 41, and no Forest Officer shall be responsible for any such loss or damage, unless he causes such loss or damage negligently, maliciously or fraudulently.

Effect of omission to prosecute claim to such timber.

47. If the person entitled to the possession of any timber collected or delivered as aforesaid omits to prefer his claim in the manner and within the period prescribed by the notice issued under section 44, or, on such claim having been so preferred by him and having been rejected, omits to institute a suit to recover possession of such timber within the further period limited by section 45, the ownership of such timber shall vest in the Government, or, when such timber has been delivered to another person under section 45, in such other person, free from all encumbrances of every description.

Fees to be paid by claimant before timber is delivered to him.

48. No person shall be entitled to recover possession of any timber collected or delivered as aforesaid until he has paid to the Forest Officer such fees on account of the collection thereof as the Chief Commissioner may from time time by rule prescribe.

CHAPTER VII.

GENERAL.

A.—Of Penalties.

Forest-produce, tools, &c., when liable to confiscation.

49. All forest-produce in respect of which a forest-offence has been committed, and all tools, boats, [illegible] and cattle used in committing any such offence, shall be liable to confiscation.

[illegible] may be in addition to any other punishment prescribed for such offence.

Seizure of property liable to confiscation.

50. When there is reason to believe that any property is liable to confiscation under section 49 for any offence, it may be seized by any Police or Forest Officer.

Application for confiscation.

Every officer seizing any property under this section shall place on such property a mark indicating that the same has been so seized, and shall, as soon as may be, apply for the confiscation of the same to the Magistrate having jurisdiction to try the offence on account of which the seizure has been made.

51. If on receiving an application under section 50, and on making such inquiry as he deems fit, such Magistrate has reason to believe that such property is liable to confiscation under this Act, he shall cause a notice of such application to be affixed at the place of seizure and served upon every person known or believed to be interested in such property.

Procedure on such application.

52. Any person so interested may within one month from the date of serving such notice present a petition to such Magistrate claiming to be heard in opposition to the application.

Person interested may oppose confiscation.

53. On the expiry of the said period of one month, if no such petition has been presented, or, if any such petition has been presented, after hearing the petitioner and considering any evidence he may adduce, the Magistrate may pass an order for the confiscation of the property or for its release.

Order for confiscation.

54. The officer who made the seizure under section 50, or any of his official superiors, or any person who has presented a petition under section 52, may within one month from the date of such order appeal therefrom to the Sessions Judge, and the order passed on such appeal shall be final.

Appeal from such order.

55. When an order for the confiscation of any property has been passed under section 53, and the period limited by section 54 for an appeal from such order has elapsed and no such appeal has been preferred, or when, on such an appeal being preferred, the Sessions Judge confirms such order in respect of the whole or a portion of such property, such property or such portion thereof, as the case may be, shall vest in the Government free from all incumbrances of every description.

Property when to vest in Government.

56. Nothing hereinbefore contained shall be deemed to prevent any officer empowered in this behalf by the Chief Commissioner from directing at any time the immediate release of any property seized under section 50.

Saving of power to release property seized.

57. Any Police or Forest Officer who vexatiously or unnecessarily seizes any property on pretence of seizing property liable to confiscation under this Act, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, or with fine not exceeding five hundred rupees, or with both.

Punishment for wrongful seizure.

58. Whoever, with intent to cause damage or injury to the public or to any person—

Penalty for counterfeiting or defacing marks on trees and timber and for altering, &c., boundary-marks.

(a) knowingly counterfeits upon any timber or standing tree a mark used by Forest Officers to indicate that such timber or tree is the property of the Government or of some person, or that it may lawfully be cut or removed by some person, or

(b) alters, defaces or obliterates any such mark placed on a tree or on timber by or under the authority of a Forest Officer, or

(c) alters, moves, destroys or defaces any boundary-mark of a Reserved Forest, shall be punished with imprisonment which may extend to two years, or with fine, or with both.

B.—Of Criminal Procedure.

59. Any Police or Forest Officer may, without orders from a Magistrate and without a warrant, arrest any person against whom a reasonable suspicion exists of his having been concerned in any forest-offence punishable with imprisonment for one month or upwards.

Power to arrest without warrant.

Every officer making an arrest under this section shall without unnecessary delay take or send the person arrested before the Magistrate having jurisdiction in the case.

60. Every Police and Forest Officer shall prevent, and may interfere for the purpose of preventing, the commission of any forest-offence.

Power to prevent commission of offence.

61. Every such officer knowing of a design to commit any such offence may arrest without orders from a Magistrate and without a warrant the person entertaining such design, if the commission of such offence cannot be otherwise prevented.

Power to arrest person designing to commit offence.

62. The Magistrate of the District and any Magistrate of the first class specially empowered in this behalf by the Chief Commissioner may try, in the summary way prescribed by the eighteenth chapter of the Code of Criminal Procedure, any forest-offence punishable with imprisonment for not more than six months, or with fine not exceeding five hundred rupees.

Power to try offences summarily.

63. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time, by notification in the British Burma Gazette, empower any Forest Officer of such grade as the Chief Commissioner may from time to time direct, to accept from any person charged with any forest-offence other than an offence under section 57 or section 58 a sum of money by way of composition for such offence.

Power to compound offences.

On the payment of such sum of money to such officer, the accused person, if in custody, shall be discharged, any property seized as liable to confiscation in respect of such offence shall be released, and no further proceedings of any description shall be taken under this Act against such person or property; but nothing herein contained shall exempt such person from prosecution on the same facts under any other law for the time being in force.

64. When in any proceedings instituted under this Act, or in consequence of anything done under this Act, a question arises as to whether any timber is the property of the Government, such timber shall be presumed to be the property of the Government until the contrary is proved.

Presumption that timber belongs to Government.

C.—Of Cattle-trespass.

65. Cattle trespassing in a Reserved Forest, or doing damage to any trees reserved under section 29, shall be deemed to be cattle doing damage to a public plantation within the meaning of the eleventh section of the Cattle Trespass Act, 1871, and may be seized and impounded as such by any Police or Forest Officer.

Cattle Trespass Act, 1871, to apply.

66. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time by rule direct that, in lieu of the fines fixed by the twelfth section of the Act last aforesaid, there shall be levied for each head of cattle impounded under section 65 of this Act, such fines as to him may seem fit, but not exceeding the following, that is to say,

Power to alter fines fixed by that Act.

For each elephant	...	... ten rupees.
„ buffalo	...	... two „
„ horse, mare, gelding, pony, colt, filly, mule, bull, bullock, cow or heifer		... one rupee.
„ calf, ass, or pig		... eight annas.
„ ram, ewe, sheep, lamb, goat or kid	...	... one rupee.

D.—Miscellaneous.

67. Every person who exercises any right in a district-forest, or in a forest reserved under this Act or under any law in force previous to the date on which this Act comes into force, or who is permitted to take any forest-produce from, or to cut and remove timber or to pasture cattle in, such forest,

Persons interested in forest bound to assist Forest and Police Officers.

and every person who is employed by any such person in such forest, shall be bound to communicate without unnecessary delay to the nearest Forest or Police Officer any information he may possess respecting the commission of or intention to commit any forest-offence, and shall assist any Police or Forest Officer demanding his aid—

(a) in extinguishing any fire occurring in such forest,

(b) in preventing any fire which may occur in the vicinity of such forest from spreading to such forest,

(c) in preventing the commission in such forest of any forest-offence,

(d) when there is reason to believe that any such offence has been committed in such forest, in discovering and arresting the offender.

68. The Chief Commissioner may, subject to any restrictions from time to time imposed by the Governor General in Council, invest a Forest Settlement Officer, or any member of a Forest Court, or any Forest Officer, by name or as holding any office, with any of the following powers to be exercised by him for the purposes of this Act in any part of British Burma, or in any class of cases, that is to say,

Chief Commissioner may confer additional powers.

(a) power to enter upon any land and to survey, demarcate and make a map of the same,

(b) any power exercised by a Civil Court in the trial of suits or the hearing of appeals,

(c) power to delegate any power conferred under this section to a subordinate officer or the performance of any duty by such subordinate officer.

69. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time, by order published in the British Burma Gazette, empower or suspend any person exercising the powers of a Forest Settlement Officer or of a Forest Court, and, whenever such office becomes vacant, whether by the removal of the incumbent or otherwise, may by like order appoint another person thereto.

70. In addition to the other matters for which the Chief Commissioner is empowered by this Act to make rules, he may from time to time make rules—

Additional powers to make rules.

(a) to prohibit, absolutely or subject to conditions, within certain local limits, the establishment of sawpits for the sawing up of timber, the converting, cutting, burning, concealing or marking of timber, the altering or effacing of any marks on the same, and the possession or carrying of marking hammers or other implements used for marking timber;

(b) to regulate the use of property-marks for timber, and to provide for the registration of such marks and for the levy of fees from persons registering the same;

(c) to determine the persons by whom, and the manner in which, rights over district-forests and over forests reserved under this Act or under any law in force previous to the date on which this Act comes into force, may be conferred, and the mode in which rights so conferred shall be exercised;

(d) to determine the person by whom, and the time, place and manner at and in which, anything to be done under this Act, and for which no express provision is made in these respects, shall be done; and

(e) generally to carry out the provisions of this Act.

71. The Chief Commissioner may, in making any rule under this Act, attach to the breach of it, in addition to any other consequences that would ensue from such breach, a punishment on conviction before a Magistrate not exceeding one month's imprisonment, or two hundred rupees fine, or both.

Power to impose penalties for breach of rules.

72. All rules made by the Chief Commissioner under this Act shall, when sanctioned by the Governor General in Council, be published in the British Burma Gazette, and shall thereupon, so far as they are consistent with this Act, have the force of law.

Rules when to have force of law.

73. All money payable to Government under this Act, or under any rule made under this Act, or the price of any forest-produce, or any penalty, fee or charges incurred in respect of such produce, may, if not paid when due, be recovered as if it were an arrear of land-revenue within the meaning of the fourth section of the Burma Land and Revenue Act, 1876.

Recovery of money due to Government.

When any such money is payable for or in respect of any forest-produce, the amount thereof shall be deemed to be a first charge on such produce, and such produce may be taken possession of by a Forest Officer until such amount has been paid.

Lien on forest-produce for such money.

If such amount is not paid when due, the Forest Officer may sell such produce by public auction, and the proceeds of the sale shall be applied first in discharging such amount.

Power to sell such produce.

The surplus (if any) if not claimed within two months from the date of the sale by the person entitled thereto, shall be forfeited to Her Majesty.

Bribing Forest Officers.

75. All Forest Officers shall be deemed to be public servants within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code, sections 161 to 165 (both inclusive).

SCHEDULE.

(See section 2.)

ACTS REPEALED.

Number and year.	Title.
VII of 1865 ...	An Act to give effect to Rules for the management and preservation of Government forests.
VII of 1869 ...	An Act to give validity to certain Rules relating to forests in British Burma.
XIII of 1873 ...	An Act to amend the law relating to timber floated down the rivers of British Burma.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Province of Burma is, as compared with other parts of India, in a peculiar position, and the whole of the specifically unalienated forest-land is the property of Government, subject only to certain rights of user, or privileges exercised in some parts by individuals or village-communities. This right was proclaimed at the time of the annexation of the various territories which now form the Province of British Burma, and has never been gainsaid. The history of the previous legislation in regard to the forest-lands is this: In 1865, when the general Government Forest Act was passed, certain rules were made under it for Burma, which did not apply to the whole of the forests there, and it was eventually found that in part they were not covered by the Act itself. It therefore became necessary to pass an Act in 1869 to validate them. Subsequently, Act XIII of 1873 was passed to amend the law relating to timber floated and imported from foreign territory into British Burma, and that Act repealed Act VII of 1869, and partly also Act XXX of 1854. Later on, in 1874, the duty on foreign timber was made ad valorem, and finally, in 1875, further rules were made, under the Act of 1865, for the forests which had not been included in the old rules.

However, the whole has been at best but a piecemeal process, and legislation is still required upon five principal points, besides a number of small ones. First, it is necessary to clear up doubts regarding the reservation of trees other than teak. The system of recovering a part of the price of Government timber in the form of a duty also has to be provided for. Forest-duties are necessary to defray the expense of extra police. But perhaps the most important subject for which legal provisions have been found necessary, is the enquiry into, and decision of, claims of persons to the various rights of servitude and user in the Government forests. It is likewise essential to bar the acquisition by prescription of new rights in reserved forests. Finally, the penalties provided by the present law have been found to be insufficient. The Bill provides for all these points; it also repeals and re-enacts, with the necessary amendments, the three Acts relating to forests and timber, which are now in force in British Burma.
