Notifications by High Court, Comptroller General, &c.

HIGH COURT.—Appellate Side.

NOTIFICATIONS.

Fort William, the 1st September 1877.

Rules of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal (in its Appellate Jurisdiction), relating to the admission of Appeals to Her Majesty in Council, and to the transmission of such Appeals to England.

1. The Court will ordinarily sit to hear applications in matters connected with the Privy Council Appeals once in every week, at such time as the Judge in the Privy Council shall appoint.

2. If, in any urgent matter, it is necessary to make an application to the Court at any other time, notice shall be given to the Clerk in charge of the Privy Council Department, who will communicate with the Judge and obtain an appointment for the purpose. No application whatever, having reference to Privy Council Appeals, will be heard except upon the regular day without such previous appointment.

3. Every application to the Court shall be by petition bearing the proper stamp.

4. Every such petition shall be neatly and legibly written on paper of foolscap size with a margin of two inches, and shall contain about twenty lines in each full page. The petition shall be divided into paragraphs numbered consecutively.

5. Every such petition shall be filed with the Clerk in charge of the Privy Council Department not later than four o'clock in the afternoon of the day but one previous to the sitting of the Court at which the application is to be made, at which time any affidavit intended to be used with the petition shall also be filed.

6. Affidavits in accordance with the Rules of Court of 15th May 1871 shall be filed where necessary; but it will not be necessary to set out in the petition, or in the affidavit, any document which is a part of the record, nor will it be necessary to produce any affidavit of any facts found in the course of the suit or other proceeding out of which the appeal arises by this Court or any of the Courts below, provided that such finding has not been reversed on appeal; but the petition shall state shortly all facts upon which it is intended to rely, and shall give the number, letter, title, or other description of all documents on the record to which it is intended to refer.

7. If the party making the application can himself speak to the facts stated in the petition, no separate affidavit need be filed, but an affirmation may be attached to the petition.

8. Affidavits shall be written in the same manner as petitions, and be divided into paragraphs numbered consecutively. Petitions and affidavits not in the form herein prescribed will not be filed, but will be returned to the parties by the Clerk in charge of the Privy Council Department.

9. Applications (1) for an order to transmit orders in Council for execution to the Lower Courts, where no special directions are required, (2) to transmit securities to the mofussil Courts for investigation as to their sufficiency, and (3) for repayment of money deposited in Court, may, under ordinary circumstances, be made without notice to the opposite party. A separate list will be made of such applications, and they will be called on at the sitting of the Court, when the Court will determine whether notice must be given.

10. In all other applications notice is necessary.

11. In all cases in which it is necessary that notice to any party shall issue, such notice shall be given by delivering to the proper person a copy of the petition, together with a notice in the following form:—

Take notice that this application will be made in Court on the day of 187 , at o'clock in the forenoon, when you are required to attend and show cause against the application, if you are desirous to do so.

12. Any notice which it is necessary to serve under these Rules, or under Act VI of 1874, may be served upon any vakeel who appeared for the party to whom notice is to be given in the appeal to this Court, unless the vakalutnama of such vakeel has been cancelled with the sanction of the Court. If there is no vakeel upon whom notice can be served, then, unless the Judge shall otherwise direct, the notice must be served upon the party in Calcutta through the Sheriff, or in the mofussil through the Court, on paying the usual fee. Such payment to be made by stamps affixed to the notice intended to be served. Notices to be served by the Sheriff or in the mofussil will be signed by a Judge, if left with the Clerk in charge of the Department for that purpose.

13. If the notice is to be served in Calcutta, it shall be served 24 hours before the sitting of the Court at which the application is to be made; if it is to be served in the mofussil, then the time is to be regulated by the Circular Order No. 11 of 1869.

14. If the proper notice shall not have been duly served, the hearing of the application (except in cases of urgency) will be postponed to the next sitting, unless the parties entitled to notice are present and willing to proceed at once. In all cases the parties opposing the application will be at liberty to apply for a postponement, in order to answer the affidavits, or for any other good and sufficient cause.

15. No affidavits in answer shall be read, without the special leave of the Court, which have not been filed with the Clerk of the Privy Council Department by half-past ten of the day upon which the application is to be heard.

16. It will be the duty of the Clerk in charge of the Department to have ready in Court all documents contained in the records in his charge which the parties shall, at any time before half-past ten of the forenoon of the day on which they are required, have given him notice to produce. Unless by the special order of the Court, documents will not be produced from the record-room during the sitting of the Court.

17. No orders nisi, or rules to show cause, will hereafter issue; but, under special circumstances, an ex-parte application may be heard before notice is issued.

18. The prayer of the petition shall state clearly the nature of the order which it is intended to ask for. If at the hearing the applicant desires to change the nature of the application or of the order sought, this will only be permitted upon such terms as to postponement, costs and otherwise as the Court may direct.

19. All applications of which notice has been given to the Clerk in charge of the Department will be set down in a list in the order in which they are notified to him. The cases in the list will be called on peremptorily in their turn; and if, by the fault of the applicant, the application cannot be proceeded with, it will be liable to be dismissed.

20. With the petition to be presented under Section 7 of Act VI of 1874, the party desirous to appeal shall file an application, accompanied by a fee of Rs. 16, to the Clerk of Privy Council Appeals to prepare an estimate of the expense of translating, transcribing or printing, and forwarding to the Registrar of the Privy Council the record of the case.

21. The Clerk shall, with as little delay as possible, prepare such estimate and deliver the same to the applicant or to his vakeel.

22. The application for estimate shall state whether or not the record is to be printed in India.

23. The applicant may, at the next sitting of the Court, object to such estimate; but such objection is not to delay the making of the deposit.

24. All documents which are not originally in the English language, and which have not been translated for the use of the Court, shall be translated into English; and all translations made or used shall be revised and certified by the Sworn Examiner.

25. An index of all the documents included in the transcript shall be prepared and annexed to the record in the form now in use, and shall be followed by a list of all other papers, documents and exhibits in the cause not included in the transcript; the draft of this index and list shall be furnished to the parties, who shall be at liberty to object thereto within three weeks from date of receipt.

26. In the index and transcript the papers shall be placed in the following order:—

It is particularly requested that the nearest local Agent, as above, be first applied to for any map required on the Public Service before indenting on this Department. The cost of postage of parcels must be borne by applicants themselves, as also such incidental charges as may be incurred at their request for mounting and binding maps. The best maps are invariably supplied in lieu of those asked for, which may not be available, and lists of all newly-published maps are periodically notified in the Gazettes of India and of local Governments.

The following revised Rules and Regulations, approved by the Government of India, for the Issue and Receipt of Survey and Philosophical Instruments, from the Calcutta Mathematical Instrument Department, are published for the general information and guidance of Public Officers.

Recommended.

Countersignature of approving authority. Signature of Indenting Officer with designation of appointment in full.

3. All indents must be duly approved and countersigned by the heads of departments, or of the Government under which indenting officers may be serving, before they can be supplied, viz:—

and they should be addressed to the Superintendent, Government Mathematical Instrument Department, No. 9, Park Street, Calcutta.

4. The mode of transit, and address, or station to which the instruments are to be consigned, must invariably be specified on indents in the proper column. Indents should not be accompanied with forwarding letters, unless more explanation is necessary than can be given on the face of the indent.

5. All officers to whom instruments and other stores are issued on public service, have to account for them to the Accountant General to whom their accounts are rendered, in such manner as may be by him directed.

6. All instruments and component parts of instruments, when no longer required, should be at once returned to the Mathematical Instrument Department, except when the officer in charge considers that their transit charges may nearly equal, or exceed, their actual value as material; in which case, he should refer to the Superintendent, Mathematical Instrument Department, for instructions as to their disposal.

7. When instruments are considered unserviceable by any officer, a survey should be held on them by a committee of Government officers, whose report should be forwarded to the Superintendent, Mathematical Instrument Department, who will issue instructions as to which of the articles are to be forwarded to the depôt, Calcutta, and which should be sold by public auction to the best advantage. The proceeds of all articles sold by auction must be deposited in the nearest treasury; and the treasury receipt, with auction account sale, should be forwarded to the Accountant General to whom the accounts of such articles are rendered.

8. When instruments are received for final deposit in store, a receipt will be granted for them by the Superintendent, Mathematical Instrument Department, to enable officers from whom received, to remove them from their debit, by forwarding their receipt to the Accountant General concerned, with half-yearly or other returns of stores submitted to him.

9. All Government instruments, &c., requiring repair, &c., should be forwarded with an official letter or repair indent. If no longer required and intended to be deposited in store, it should be specifically mentioned.

10. All instruments, &c., received from England and issued on book debit on the public service, will be charged at their invoice cost, plus charges incurred in landing, storing and examining and despatching them, &c.; or, when this cost cannot be ascertained, rate book prices will be charged. These are based on average rates.

11. Instruments made in the department will be charged at the actual cost, and those purchased locally for issue, at cost price, plus 10 per cent. for incidental charges.

12. Instruments, when they can be spared, are sometimes issued to officers and others on payment of the cost value, plus 20 per cent.; and instruments, the private property of officers, are repaired, if necessary, on like terms. In such cases the amount must be remitted to the Superintendent, Mathematical Instrument Department, before the instruments can be despatched from the Office of the Superintendent.

13. Instruments returned into store will be valued according to their condition.

14. It is particularly requested that sizes and sorts of instruments, length of scales, how divided, and purposes for which required, and generally any information which will guide this department in knowing, without further reference, the exact wants of the indenting officer, be put as far as possible on face of indent, instead of in covering letters.

15. The following list shows nomenclature of the various descriptions of instruments ordinarily kept in store of this department for issue on public service. This nomenclature, it is especially necessary, should be adopted in all indents.

16. To enable the indenting officer, as well as the officer who countersigns and finally passes an indent, to know the cost involved thereby, the average ordinary price of each description of instrument is also given in the annexed list. Indenting Officers must invariably enter the value of all instruments required by them in column of indent allotted to the purpose.

17. The supply should be regulated, not according to what an Officer would like to have, but by what is absolutely necessary.

POST OFFICE.

NOTIFICATIONS.

Simla, the 1st November 1877.

With effect from the 1st December 1877, the sender of a parcel may, at the time of posting, state the value of its contents in view to the amount being realized from the addressee and paid to him (the sender).

2. "Value payable" parcels may be posted only in disbursing offices (printed in capital type in the list of post offices contained in the postal guide): there is no restriction as to the office of address except in the case of a few vernacular offices to which "value payable" parcels cannot be forwarded.

3. The senders of "value payable" parcels will be responsible for the proper packing and protection of such articles contained in them as may be liable to damage. The parcels will not be received unless the conditions respecting packing and sealing prescribed in paragraph 14, page 4 of the postal guide of 1st September 1877, are fully complied with.

4. The commission chargeable on payment to the sender of the value of the contents of a parcel will be as follows:—

	Rs.	A.
If the value does not exceed Rs. 10 ...	0	4
If it exceeds Rs. 10 and does not exceed Rs. 25	0	8
„ „ 25 „ „ „ 50	1	0
„ „ 50 „ „ „ 75	1	8

and 2 rupees for every additional 100 rupees or fraction thereof.

5. The commission will be deducted from the amount of the value when payment is made to the sender. If a parcel is refused by the addressee, or from any cause is not delivered, payment of the value will not be made to the sender, and no claim will be made upon him except for any unpaid postage which may have been originally due.

6. Postage will be chargeable on "value payable" parcels at the same rates as are chargeable on ordinary parcels, and it may be prepaid or otherwise at the option of the sender.

The limit of weight (2,000 tolas) as well as the conditions respecting size prescribed in the postal guide for ordinary banghy parcels will be applicable to "value payable" parcels.

7. The value of the contents of "value payable" parcels together with any postage due must be paid by the addressees before they are delivered.

8. The payments to the senders will be made within one month from the date of delivery.

9. "Value payable" parcels will be received at the window of the post office during the hours fixed for receiving ordinary parcels, which with a few exceptions are from 7 to 8 A.M., and from noon to 5 P.M. They will not be received at all on Sundays, and they must be posted at least one hour before the time fixed for closing the mail with which they are to be despatched: otherwise they will be detained till the next despatch is made.

10. "Value payable" parcels when presented at the post office window should be accompanied by a memorandum containing the following particulars, viz.:—

Name and address of the sender in full.
Name and address of the addressee in full.
Value of the contents recoverable from the addressee.
Date of posting.

A description of the contents need not be given; on the contrary it is advisable that no description should be given. Receipts will be given to the sender for "value payable" parcels posted by them.

11. Intimation of the arrival of a "value payable" parcel will be sent to the addressee, and on his presenting at the post office, either personally or by messenger, the receipt at foot of the intimation duly signed, and tendering the amount of the value of the contents, together with any postage that may be due, the parcel will be delivered. The parcel should be carefully examined by the addressee or his messenger before it is received, and if there be any appearance of tampering, it should be brought to the notice of the post master, in whose presence, if necessary, it may be opened.

12. When information of the realization of the value of the contents of a "value payable" parcel reaches the despatching post office, written intimation will be given to the sender, a date being mentioned therein on or after which payment will be made on his application. In making application for payment the sender must produce the receipt originally given to him for the parcel and relinquish it with the acknowledgment at foot duly signed, and (if the amount exceeds the limit fixed by the stamp law for the time being) with a one anna bill stamp affixed thereto.

13. Forward postage will not be charged when "value payable" parcels are re-directed from one post office to another.

14. The system of "value payable" parcels will shortly be extended to "overland parcels" booked in London for delivery in India, under detailed conditions which will be made known at the London Parcel Offices. The contents of such parcels must be declared for Custom House purposes. The value payable will be limited to £10, and it will be realised from the Indian addressee at the rate of exchange current in Bombay on the day of the arrival of the invoice.

A. M. MONTEATH,
Dir. Genl. of the Post Office of India.

The 12th October 1877.

Special attention is invited to the recent reduction of the rates of postage chargeable on inland parcels and packets.

The present rates are:—

	Parcels (Closed Covers).	Packets (Open Covers).
	Annas.	Annas.
Not exceeding 10 tolas ...	...	1
Not exceeding 40 tolas ...	8	2
For every additional 40 tolas or fraction thereof	4	2

Attention is also invited to the facility now offered to the sender of a registered letter to have an acknowledgment signed by the addressee sent to him, if he prepays at the time of posting an extra postage fee of 1 anna.

A like facility for obtaining acknowledgments for parcels has now been introduced, but it only applies to parcels for which receipts are given under paragraph 14, page 4 of the Postal Guide of 1st September 1877.

The 1st November 1877.

Notice is hereby given that an arrangement has been concluded for the exchange of parcels between India and the Straits Settlement.

On and after the 1st December 1877 parcels can be sent to places in the Straits Settlement under the rates and conditions given for that Settlement in the following revised set of rules, which, from the above-mentioned date, will supersede those issued under the Notification by the Financial Department, No. 2887, dated 15th September 1876:—

Overland Parcel Post.

(1).—Parcels are received at any Post Office in India (including Aden) under the conditions and rates of charge mentioned below for transmission to the following countries, viz.:—

COUNTRIES.	Rate of charge per lb. or fraction thereof. Pre-payment compulsory.	Remarks respecting special conditions, &c., applicable to particular countries.
	Annas.
The United Kingdom ...	8	The pre-payment carries the parcel as far as London, any additional charge which may become due on account of British custom duty or carriage beyond London being realized from the addressee. Parcels must not exceed £50 in value. Any parcel which on examination of the declaration at Bombay may be found to exceed this value will, instead of being forwarded by the Overland Parcel Post, be transferred to the Bombay Agency of the P. & O. S. N. Company for transmission independently of the Post Office, and subject to such regulations and charges on delivery as may be applicable thereto under the Company's regulations. (NOTE.—The Company's present charge is an ad valorem rate of 2 per cent., which does not include Marine or other Insurance). The attention of the public is invited to the fact that the British Post Office has no connection with the Overland Parcel Post; all arrangements out of India are made by the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company, and enquiries proceeding from the United Kingdom should be addressed to that Company's Office, 122, Leadenhall Street, London, E. C. The rules governing the despatch of parcels from the United Kingdom to India are, however, published in the British Postal Guide, and exhibited in every British Post Office. Persons in India ordering goods to be sent out by parcel post may refer the sender to the above means of information about the transmission of parcels.

COUNTRIES.	Rate of charge per lb. or fraction thereof. Pre-payment compulsory.	Remarks respecting special conditions, &c., applicable to particular countries.
Ceylon ...	8	The pre-payment carries the parcel to the destination. Should any custom duty become due, the amount will be charged on delivery. Parcels must not contain any jewellery. The route is viâ Tuticorin for Southern India and viâ Bombay for other parts of India: see Rule (4).
The Straits, i. e.,— Singapore ... Penang ... Malacca ...	8	The pre-payment carries the parcel to destination. The ports of destination are free ports, so that no custom duty will be chargeable therein. The routes are by opium steamers (Jardine Matheson, and Apcar), monthly through Calcutta to Singapore: by B. I. S. N. Company fortnightly through Calcutta or Madras to Singapore, Penang and Malacca: and by P. and O. S. N. Company fortnightly through Bombay to Singapore and Penang: see rule (4).
Germany ... Austria-Hungary ...	8	The pre-payment carries the parcel to destination. Should any custom duty become due, the amount will be charged on delivery. See also Rule 9 respecting compensation for damage or loss.
Denmark ...	8	The pre-payment carries the parcel to the limit of German conveyance, a separate charge being made on delivery for conveyance beyond the German frontier, as well as for custom duty, should any become due. See also Rule 9 respecting compensation for damage or loss.
Sweden ... Norway ... Switzerland ...	8	The pre-payment carries the parcel to the limit of German conveyance, a separate charge being made on delivery for conveyance beyond the German frontier, as well as for custom duty, should any become due. From Rule 3 it will be seen that there must be also a second or duplicate declaration of contents and value. See also Rule 9 respecting compensation for damage or loss.
France ... The Netherlands (Holland). Belgium ...	8	The pre-payment carries the parcel to the limit of German conveyance, a separate charge being made on delivery for conveyance beyond the German frontier, as well as for custom duty, should any become due. From Rule 3 it will be seen that there must be also a second or duplicate declaration of contents and value, and that the second or duplicate declaration should contain a statement of the weight (lbs. and ozs. or tolas) of the contents, and should, if possible, be written in the French language. See also Rule 9 respecting compensation for damage or loss.

(2).—Every parcel should be securely packed in a close cover or case, and should bear the name and address of the person in the United Kingdom or foreign country for whom it is intended. Parcels containing valuables should be sealed.

N. B.—The public are specially warned against the use of flimsy covers for articles transmitted by the Parcel Post. Heavy articles are sometimes sent with only paper covering insecurely tied with string; friction in transit detaches this cover, and damage and loss ensue. A covering of stout cloth or wax-cloth, sewn at the edges, is recommended; but if the contents are liable to suffer from pressure, boxes of wood or tin should be used.

(3).—Every parcel should be accompanied by a separate paper headed with the address of the parcel and containing a declaration of its contents and value under the signature of the sender. Below the signature the address of the sender should be given.

For the parcels addressed to—

Ceylon ...
Straits ...
Germany ...
Austria-Hungary ...
Denmark ...
} Only one declaration as above described is required.

Sweden ...
Norway ...
Switzerland ...
} A second or duplicate declaration is also required.

France ...
The Netherlands (Holland)
Belgium ...
} A second or duplicate declaration is also required, and the sender is requested to enter in the declaration a statement of the weight (lbs. and ozs. or tolas) of the contents, and to write the second or duplicate declaration, if possible, in the French language. Should he be unable to do so, the Bombay Post Office will attach to the second or duplicate English declaration a French rendering thereof, but the sender is warned of the delay which may result from this.

It is not deemed necessary to require exact adherence to any particular form of declaration, but the following specimen form may be useful to the senders of parcels:—

Specimen form of declaration.

THOMAS B. SMITH,

111, Piccadilly,

LONDON.

CONTENTS—

		Value. £	s.	d.
1 Piece Puttoo Cloth	... ...	2	0	0
1 Rampore Chudder	... ...	2	10	0
TOTAL	...	4	10	0

I declare the above to be a true statement of the contents and value.

(Sd.) A. R. ROBINSON,

Amritsar.

N. B.— Declarations for parcels intended for France, the Netherlands or Belgium should, in addition to the above, contain a statement of the weight (lbs. and ozs. or tolas) of the contents. This may conveniently be done by adding the words "weight —lbs. ozs." underneath the total value, and the words "and weight" at the end of the sentence containing the declaration.

(4).—The parcel so addressed and the separate paper or papers above referred to should then be enclosed in a substantial outer cover. This outer cover should be superscribed and addressed as follows:—

If addressed to Ceylon.

To
The Post Master,
Tuticorin or Bombay. *

* N. B.—The address should be to Tuticorin if posted in Southern India, and to Bombay if posted in other parts of India.

OR

If addressed to the Straits.

Overland Parcel Post. | Postage stamp to be affixed.

To
The Post Master,
Calcutta or Madras or Bombay. †

† N. B.—The address to Calcutta or Madras or Bombay should be according to the locality of Posting.

OR

If addressed to any other country.

Overland Parcel Post. | Postage stamp to be affixed.

To
The Post Master Bombay.

The outer cover must contain one parcel only: if more than one parcel be sent by the same sender such parcel should be sent separately.

(5).—The parcel so made up must be fully pre-paid by means of postage stamps at the rate of 8 annas per lb. (40 tolas) or fraction of a lb., care being taken that the stamps adhere firmly to the cover.

(6).—The parcel so made up must not exceed 50 lbs. (25 seers) in weight, or two feet in length by 1 foot in breadth or depth. It will be received at any Post Office at the hours fixed for the receipt of ordinary banghy parcels, the usual receipt being given to the sender without reference to the mode of packing prescribed in the case of inland parcel for which receipts are claimed.

(7).—On arrival at the Indian sea port of address, the Post Master will take off the outer covering, and forward the inside parcel and the accompanying declaration or declarations to the country of inside address.

(8).—It is forbidden to send in these parcels opium or any liquid or any substance or material of a dangerous, damaging, or offensive kind.

(9).—In the case of parcels for or from Germany or Austria-Hungary and the foreign countries served through Germany, compensation will be given by the responsible Post Office to the sender for loss or damage sustained in transit (cases of sea risk or of vis major or of the own negligence of the sender in respect of packing or otherwise excepted). Such compensation will in no case exceed 1½ rupee for each lb. weight or fraction thereof in respect of parcels forwarded from India, and 3 marks or 1½ florins for each 500 grammes or fraction thereof in respect of parcels from Germany or Austria-Hungary. Should the sender desire it, the compensation will be paid to the addressee instead of to himself.

It extends to all the territories for the time being under the administration of the Chief Commissioner of British Burma;

2. In this Act—

"Embankment."

"Embankment" means any embankment constructed for the purpose of excluding, regulating or retaining water, and includes all earthen walls, dams, canals, drains, piers, groins, sluices, buildings, water-gauges, bench-marks, and other works subsidiary to any such embankment; and

"Embankment-officer."

"Embankment-officer," used with reference to an embankment, means the officer appointed by the Chief Commissioner, by notification in the British Burma Gazette, to carry out this Act in respect of such embankment.

Circumstances under which this Act may be put in operation.

3. Whenever the embankment-officer has reason to believe that unless some work is quickly executed in connection with an embankment, loss of life or extensive damage to property will ensue, and that the labourers or materials required for the execution of such work cannot be obtained in the ordinary course in time to enable him to execute such work with the expedition necessary in order to avert such loss or damage, he may, by order under his hand, direct that the provisions of this Act shall be put into operation for the execution of such work; and thereupon Power to impress labour.

(a) every able-bodied person who resides in the neighbourhood of such embankment, and whose name appears in the list hereinafter mentioned, shall, if required to do so by such officer or by any person authorized by him in this behalf, be bound to assist in the execution of such work by labouring thereon as such officer or any person authorized by him in this behalf may direct; and

(b) such officer or any person authorized by him in this behalf may enter into and upon any immoveable property in the said neighbourhood and take possession of, appropriate and remove any trees or bamboos, whether standing or not, and any timber, mats, rope or other materials found in or upon such property, and use the same for the purposes of such work.

4. Subject to such rules as the Local Government may from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, prescribe in this behalf, the Deputy Commissioner shall prepare a list of the persons liable to be required under section 3, clause (a), to assist as aforesaid, and may from time to time add to or alter such list or any part thereof.

List of labourers.

5. All persons labouring, or detained for the purpose of labouring, in compliance with a requisition made under section three, or whose materials may be taken under that section, shall, as soon as may be reasonably practicable, be paid by the embankment-officer for their labour and detention, or for such materials (as the case may be), at such rates, not being less than the highest market rates for similar labour or materials for the time being prevailing in the said neighbourhood, as the Chief Commissioner may, from time to time, by written order direct.

Payment for labour impressed and materials taken.

6. When from the removal of any trees, bamboos or other materials under section three, any damage, over and above the price payable for such materials under section five, results directly to any person, the embankment-officer shall pay to such person such sum as may be agreed upon as compensation for such damage, or, in case of dispute as to the amount so to be paid, as the Deputy Commissioner of the district may award, subject to such rules, as to appeal or otherwise, as the Chief Commissioner may from time to time prescribe in this behalf.

Compensation for damage done in taking materials.

7. Where an embankment-officer has been appointed for any embankment, any person who, without the permission of such officer,—

Penalties for trespass on embankments, &c.

(b) cuts or roots out any trees, shrubs or grass growing on such embankment, or Repeal of Acts.

But all references to the Indian Limitation Act, 1871, shall be read as if made to this Act; and nothing herein or in that Act contained shall be deemed to affect any title acquired, or to revive any right to sue barred, under that Act or under any enactment thereby repealed; and nothing herein contained shall be deemed to affect the Indian Contract Act, section 25.

Saving of Act IX of 1872, s. 25.

Notwithstanding anything herein contained, any suit mentioned in No. 146 of the second schedule hereto annexed may be brought within five years next after the said first day of October 1877, unless where the period prescribed for such suit by the said Indian Limitation Act, 1871, shall have expired before the completion of the said five years; and any other suit for which the period of limitation prescribed by this Act is shorter than the period of limitation prescribed by the said Indian Limitation Act, 1871, may be brought within two years next after the said first day of October 1877, unless where the period prescribed for such suit by the same Act shall have expired before the completion of the said two years.

PART II.

LIMITATION OF SUITS, APPEALS AND APPLICATIONS.

4. Subject to the provisions contained in sections five to twenty-five (inclusive), every suit instituted, appeal presented, and application made after the period of limitation prescribed therefor by the second schedule hereto annexed shall be dismissed, although limitation has not been set up as a defence.

Dismissal of suits, &c., instituted, &c., after period of limitation.

Explanation.—A suit is instituted in ordinary cases when the plaint is presented to the proper officer; in the case of a pauper, when his application for leave to sue as a pauper is filed; and in the case of a claim against a company which is being wound up by the Court, when the claimant first sends in his claim to the official liquidator.

Illustrations.

(a.)—A suit is instituted after the prescribed period of limitation. Limitation is not set up as a defence and judgment is given for the plaintiff. The defendant appeals. The appellate court must dismiss the suit.

(b.)—An appeal presented after the prescribed period is admitted and registered. The appeal shall, nevertheless, be dismissed.

5. If the period of limitation prescribed for any suit, appeal or application expires on a day when the Court is closed, the suit, appeal or application may be instituted, presented or made on the day that the Court re-opens:

Proviso where Court is closed when period expires.

Any appeal or application for a review of judgment may be admitted after the period of limitation prescribed therefor, when the appellant or applicant satisfies the Court that he had sufficient cause for not presenting the appeal or making the application within such period.

Proviso as to appeals and applications for review.

6. When, by any special or local law now or hereafter in force in British India, a period of limitation is specially prescribed for any suit, appeal or application, nothing herein contained shall affect or alter the period so prescribed.

Special and local laws of limitation.

7. If a person entitled to institute a suit or make an application be, at the time from which the period of limitation is to be reckoned, a minor, or insane, or an idiot, he may institute the suit or make the application within the same period, after the disability has ceased, as would otherwise have been allowed from the time prescribed therefor in the third column of the second schedule hereto annexed.

Legal disability.

When he is, at the time from which the period of limitation is to be reckoned, affected by two such disabilities, or when before his disability has ceased, he is affected by another disability, he may institute the suit or make the application within the same period after both disabilities have ceased as would otherwise have been allowed from the time so prescribed.

Double and successive disabilities.

When his disability continues up to his death, his legal representative may institute the suit or make the application within the same period after the death as would otherwise have been allowed from the time so prescribed.

When such representative is at the date of the death affected by any such disability, the rules contained in the first two paragraphs of this section shall apply.

Disability of representative.

Nothing in this section applies to suits to enforce rights of pre-emption, or shall be deemed to extend, for more than three years from the cessation of the disability or the death of the person affected thereby, the period within which any suit must be instituted or application made.

Illustrations.

(a.)—The right to sue for the hire of a boat accrues to A during his minority. He attains majority four years after such accruer. He may institute his suit at any time within three years from the date of his attaining majority.

(b.)—A, to whom a right to sue for a legacy has accrued during his minority, attains majority eleven years after such accruer. A has, under the ordinary law, only one year remaining within which to sue. But under this section an extension of two years will be allowed him, making in all a period of three years from the date of his attaining majority, within which he may bring his suit.

(c.)—A right to sue accrues to Z during his minority After the accruer, but while Z is still a minor, he becomes insane. Time runs against Z from the date when his insanity and minority cease.

(d.)—A right to sue accrues to X during his minority. X dies before attaining majority and is succeeded by Y, his minor son. Time runs against Y from the date of his attaining majority.

(e.)—A right to sue for an hereditary office accrues to A, who at the time is insane. Six years after the accruer A recovers his reason. A has six years, under the ordinary law, from the date when his insanity ceased within which to institute a suit. No extension of time will be given him under this section.

(f.)—A right to sue as landlord to recover possession from a tenant accrues to A, who is an idiot. A dies three years after the accruer, his idiocy continuing up to the date of his death. A's representative in interest has, under the ordinary law, nine years from the date of A's death within which to bring a suit. This section does not extend that time, except where the representative is himself under disability when the representation devolves upon him.

8. When one of several joint creditors or claimants is under any such disability, and when a discharge can be given without the concurrence of such person, time will run against them all: but where no such discharge can be given, time will not run as against any of them until one of them becomes capable of giving such discharge without the concurrence of the others.

Illustrations.

(a).—A incurs a debt to a firm of which B, C and D are partners. B is insane and C is a minor. D can give a discharge of the debt without the concurrence of B and C. Time runs against B, C and D.

(b).—A incurs a debt to a firm of which E, F and G are partners. E and F are insane, and G is a minor. Time will not run against any of them until either E or F becomes sane, or G attains majority.

9. When once time has begun to run, no subsequent disability or inability to sue stops it:

Continuous running of time.

Provided that where letters of administration to the estate of a creditor have been granted to his debtor, the running of the time prescribed for a suit to recover the debt shall be suspended while the administration continues.

10. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, no suit against a person in whom property has become vested in trust for any specific purpose, or against his legal representatives or assigns (not being assigns for valuable consideration) for the purpose of following in his or their hands such property, shall be barred by any length of time.

Suits against express trustees and their representatives.

11. Suits instituted in British India on contracts entered into in a foreign country are subject to the rules prescribed by this Act.

Suits on foreign contracts.

No foreign rule of limitation shall be a defence to a suit instituted in British India on a contract entered into in a foreign country, unless the rule has extinguished the contract, and the parties were domiciled in such country during the period prescribed by such rule.

Foreign limitation law.

PART III.

COMPUTATION OF PERIOD OF LIMITATION.

12. In computing the period of limitation prescribed for any suit, appeal or application, the day from which such period is to be reckoned shall be excluded.

Exclusion of day on which right to sue accrues.

In computing the period of limitation prescribed for an appeal, an application for leave to appeal as a pauper, and an application for a review of judgment, the day on which the judgment complained of was pronounced, and the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the decree, sentence or order appealed against or sought to be reviewed, shall be excluded.

Exclusion in case of appeals and certain applications.

Where a decree is appealed against or sought to be reviewed, the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the judgment on which it is founded shall also be excluded.

In computing the period of limitation prescribed for an application to set aside an award, the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the award shall be excluded.

13. In computing the period of limitation prescribed for any suit, the time during which the defendant has been absent from British India shall be excluded.

Exclusion of time of defendant's absence from British India.

14. In computing the period of limitation prescribed for any suit, the time during which the plaintiff has been prosecuting with due diligence another civil proceeding, whether in a Court of first instance or in a Court of appeal, against the defendant shall be excluded, where the proceeding is founded upon the same cause of action, and is prosecuted in good faith in a Court which, from defect of jurisdiction, or other cause of a like nature, is unable to entertain it.

Exclusion of time of proceeding bonâ fide in Court without jurisdiction.

In computing the period of limitation prescribed for a suit, proceedings in which have been stayed by order under the Code of Civil Procedure, section 20, the interval between the institution of the suit and the date of so staying proceedings, and the time requisite for going from the Court in which proceedings are stayed to the Court in which the suit is re-instituted, shall be excluded.

Like exclusion in case of order under Civil Procedure Code, s. 20.

In computing the period of limitation prescribed for any application, the time during which the applicant has been making another application for the same relief, shall be excluded, where the last-mentioned application is made in good faith to a Court which from defect of jurisdiction, or other cause of a like nature, is unable to grant it.

Like exclusion in case of application.

Explanation 1.—In excluding the time during which a former suit or application was pending or being made, the day on which that suit or application was instituted or made, and the day on which the proceedings therein ended, shall both be counted.

Explanation 2.—A plaintiff resisting an appeal presented on the ground of want of jurisdiction shall be deemed to be prosecuting a suit within the meaning of this section.

15. In computing the period of limitation prescribed for any suit, the institution of which has been stayed by injunction or order, the time of the continuance of the injunction or order, the day on which it was issued or made, and the day on which it was withdrawn, shall be excluded.

Exclusion of time during which commencement of suit is stayed by injunction or order.

16. In computing the period of limitation prescribed for a suit for possession by a purchaser at a sale in execution of a decree, the time during which the judgment-debtor has been prosecuting a proceeding to set aside the sale, shall be excluded.

Exclusion of time during which judgment-debtor is attempting to set aside execution-sale.

Effect of death before right to sue accrues.

When a person against whom, if he were living, a right to institute a suit or make an application would have accrued dies before the right accrues, the period of limitation shall be computed from the time when there is a legal representative of the deceased against whom the plaintiff may institute or make such suit or application.

Nothing in the former part of this section applies to suits to enforce rights of pre-emption or to suits for the possession of immoveable property or of an hereditary office.

18. When any person having a right to institute a suit or make an application has, by means of fraud, been kept from the knowledge of such right or of the title on which it is founded, or where any document necessary to establish such right has been fraudulently concealed from him,

Effect of fraud.

the time limited for instituting a suit or making an application

(a) against the person guilty of the fraud or accessory thereto, or,

(b) against any person claiming through him otherwise than in good faith and for a valuable consideration,

shall be computed from the time when the fraud first became known to the person injuriously affected thereby, or, in the case of the concealed document, when he first had the means of producing it or compelling its production.

19. If, before the expiration of the period prescribed for a suit or application in respect of any property or right, an acknowledgment of liability in respect of such property or right has been made in writing signed by the party against whom such property or right is claimed, or by some person through whom he derives title or liability, a new period of limitation, according to the nature of the original liability, shall be computed from the time when the acknowledgment was so signed.

Effect of acknowledgment in writing.

When the writing containing the acknowledgment is undated, oral evidence may be given of the time when it was signed; but oral evidence of its contents shall not be received.

Explanation 1.—For the purposes of this section an acknowledgment may be sufficient, though it omits to specify the exact nature of the property or right, or avers that the time for payment, delivery, performance or enjoyment has not yet come, or is accompanied by a refusal to pay, deliver, perform, or permit to enjoy, or is coupled with a claim to a set-off, or is addressed to a person other than the person entitled to the property or right.

Explanation 2.—In this section "signed" means signed either personally or by an agent duly authorized in this behalf.

20. When interest on a debt or legacy is, before the expiration of the prescribed period, paid as such by the person liable to pay the debt or legacy, or by his agent duly authorized in this behalf,

Effect of payment of interest as such.

or when part of the principal of a debt is, before the expiration of the prescribed period, paid by the debtor or by his agent duly authorized in this behalf,

Effect of part-payment of principal.

a new period of limitation, according to the nature of the original liability, shall be computed from the time when the payment was made:

Provided that, in the case of part-payment of the principal of a debt, the fact of the payment appears in the hand-writing of the person making the same.

Where mortgaged land is in the possession of the mortgagee, the receipt of the produce of such land shall be deemed to be a payment for the purpose of this section.

Effect of receipt of produce of mortgaged land.

21. Nothing in sections 19 and 20 renders one of several joint contractors, partners, executors or mortgagees chargeable by reason only of a written acknowledgment signed, or of a payment made by, or by the agent of, any other or others of them.

One of several joint contractors, &c., not chargeable by reason of acknowledgment or payment made by another of them.

22. When, after the institution of a suit, a new plaintiff or defendant is substituted or added, the suit shall, as regards him, be deemed to have been instituted when he was so made a party:

Effect of substituting or adding new plaintiff or defendant.

Provided that, when a plaintiff dies, and the suit is continued by his legal representative, it shall, as regards him, be deemed to have been instituted when it was instituted by the deceased plaintiff:

Proviso where original plaintiff dies.

Provided also, that, when a defendant dies, and the suit is continued against his legal representative, it shall, as regards him, be deemed to have been instituted when it was instituted against the deceased defendant.

Proviso where original defendant dies.

23. In the case of a continuing breach of contract and in the case of a continuing wrong independent of contract, a fresh period of limitation begins to run at every moment of the time during which the breach or the wrong, as the case may be, continues.

Continuing breaches and wrongs.

24. In the case of a suit for compensation for an act which does not give rise to a cause of action unless some specific injury actually results therefrom, the period of limitation shall be computed from the time when the injury results.

Suit for compensation for act not actionable without special damage.

Illustrations.

(a).—A owns the surface of a field. B owns the subsoil. B digs coal thereout without causing any immediate apparent injury to the surface, but at last the surface subsides. The period of limitation in the case of a suit by A against B runs from the time of the subsidence.

(b).—A speaks and publishes of B slanderous words not actionable in themselves without special damage caused thereby. C in consequence refuses to employ B as his clerk. The period of limitation in the case of a suit by B against A for compensation for the slander does not commence till the refusal.

25. All instruments shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be made with reference to the Gregorian calendar.

Computation of time mentioned in instruments.

Illustrations.

(a).—A Hindú makes a promissory note bearing a Native date only, and payable four months after date. The period of limitation applicable to a suit on the note runs from the expiry of four months after date computed according to the Gregorian calendar.

(b).—A Hindú makes a bond, bearing a Native date only, for the repayment of money within one year. The period of limitation applicable to a suit on the bond runs from the expiry of one year after date computed according to the Gregorian calendar.

PART IV.

ACQUISITION OF OWNERSHIP BY POSSESSION.

26. Where the access and use of light or air to and for any building have been peaceably enjoyed therewith, as an easement, and as of right, without interruption, and for twenty years,

Acquisition of right to easements.

and where any way or watercourse, or the use of any water, or any other easement (whether affirmative or negative) has been peaceably and openly enjoyed by any person claiming title thereto as an easement and as of right, without interruption, and for twenty years, the right to such access and use of light or air, way, watercourse, use of water, or other easement, shall be absolute and indefeasible.

Each of the said periods of twenty years shall be taken to be a period ending within two years next before the institution of the suit wherein the claim to which such period relates is contested.

Explanation.—Nothing is an interruption within the meaning of this section, unless where there is an actual discontinuance of the possession or enjoyment by reason of an obstruction by the act of some person other than the claimant, and unless such obstruction is submitted to or acquiesced in for one year after the claimant has notice thereof and of the person making or authorizing the same to be made.

Illustrations.

(a).—A suit is brought in 1881 for obstructing a right of way. The defendant admits the obstruction but denies the right of way. The plaintiff proves that the right was peaceably and openly enjoyed by him, claiming title thereto as an easement and as of right, without interruption, from 1st January 1860 to 1st January 1880. The plaintiff is entitled to judgment.

(b).—In a like suit also brought in 1881 the plaintiff merely proves that he enjoyed the right in manner aforesaid from 1858 to 1878. The suit shall be dismissed, as no exercise of the right by actual user has been proved to have taken place within two years next before the institution of the suit.

(c).—In a like suit the plaintiff shows that the right was peaceably and openly enjoyed by him for twenty years. The defendant proves that the plaintiff on one occasion during the twenty years had asked his leave to enjoy the right. The suit shall be dismissed.

27. Provided that, when any land or water upon, over, or from which any easement has been enjoyed or derived has been held under or by virtue of any interest for life or any term of years exceeding three years from the granting thereof, the time of the enjoyment of such easement during the continuance of such interest or term shall be excluded in the computation of the said last-mentioned period of twenty years, in case the claim is, within three years next after the determination of such interest or term, resisted by the person entitled, on such determination, to the said land or water.

Exclusion in favour of reversioner of servient tenement.

Illustration.

A sues for a declaration that he is entitled to a right of way over B's land. A proves that he has enjoyed the right for twenty-five years; but B shows that during ten of these years C, a Hindú widow, had a life interest in the land, that on C's death B became entitled to the land, and that within two years after C's death he contested A's claim to the right. The suit must be dismissed, as A, with reference to the provisions of this section, has only proved enjoyment for fifteen years.

28. At the determination of the period hereby limited to any person for instituting a suit for possession of any property, his right to such property shall be extinguished.

Extinguishment of right to property.

LIMITATION OF SUITS, APPEALS AND APPLICATIONS.

Dismissal of suits, &c., instituted, &c., after period of limitation.

4. Subject to the provisions contained in sections five to twenty-five (inclusive), every suit instituted, appeal presented, and application made after the period of limitation prescribed therefor by the second schedule hereto annexed shall be dismissed, although limitation has not been set up as a defence.

Explanation.—A suit is instituted in ordinary cases when the plaint is presented to the proper officer; in the case of a pauper, when his application for leave to sue as a pauper is filed; and in the case of a claim against a company which is being wound up by the Court, when the claimant first sends in his claim to the official liquidator.

Illustrations.

(a.)—A suit is instituted after the prescribed period of limitation. Limitation is not set up as a defence and judgment is given for the plaintiff. The defendant appeals. The appellate court must dismiss the suit.

(b.)—An appeal presented after the prescribed period is admitted and registered. The appeal shall, nevertheless, be dismissed.

Proviso where Court is closed when period expires.

5. If the period of limitation prescribed for any suit, appeal or application expires on a day when the Court is closed, the suit, appeal or application may be instituted, presented or made on the day that the Court re-opens:

Proviso as to appeals and applications for review.

Any appeal or application for a review of judgment may be admitted after the period of limitation prescribed therefor, when the appellant or applicant satisfies the Court that he had sufficient cause for not presenting the appeal or making the application within such period.

Special and local laws of limitation.

6. When, by any special or local law now or hereafter in force in British India, a period of limitation is specially prescribed for any suit, appeal or application, nothing herein contained shall affect or alter the period so prescribed.

Legal disability.

7. If a person entitled to institute a suit or make an application be, at the time from which the period of limitation is to be reckoned, a minor, or insane, or an idiot, he may institute the suit or make the application within the same period, after the disability has ceased, as would otherwise have been allowed from the time prescribed therefor in the third column of the second schedule hereto annexed.

Double and successive disabilities.

When he is, at the time from which the period of limitation is to be reckoned, affected by two such disabilities, or when before his disability has ceased, he is affected by another disability, he may institute the suit or make the application within the same period after both disabilities have ceased as would otherwise have been allowed from the time so prescribed.

When his disability continues up to his death, his legal representative may institute the suit or make the application within the same period after the death as would otherwise have been allowed from the time so prescribed.

Disability of representative.

When such representative is at the date of the death affected by any such disability, the rules contained in the first two paragraphs of this section shall apply.

Nothing in this section applies to suits to enforce rights of pre-emption, or shall be deemed to extend, for more than three years from the cessation of the disability or the death of the person affected thereby, the period within which any suit must be instituted or application made.

Illustrations.

(a).—The right to sue for the hire of a boat accrues to A during his minority. He attains majority four years after such accruer. He may institute his suit at any time within three years from the date of his attaining majority.

(b).—A, to whom a right to sue for a legacy has accrued during his minority, attains majority eleven years after such accruer. A has, under the ordinary law, only one year remaining within which to sue. But under this section an extension of two years will be allowed him, making in all a period of three years from the date of his attaining majority, within which he may bring his suit.

(c).—A right to sue accrues to Z during his minority After the accruer, but while Z is still a minor, he becomes insane. Time runs against Z from the date when his insanity and minority cease.

(d).—A right to sue accrues to X during his minority. X dies before attaining majority and is succeeded by Y, his minor son. Time runs against Y from the date of his attaining majority.

(e).—A right to sue for an hereditary office accrues to A, who at the time is insane. Six years after the accruer A recovers his reason. A has six years, under the ordinary law, from the date when his insanity ceased within which to institute a suit. No extension of time will be given him under this section.

(f).—A right to sue as landlord to recover possession from a tenant accrues to A, who is an idiot. A dies three years after the accruer, his idiocy continuing up to the date of his death. A's representative in interest has, under the ordinary law, nine years from the date of A's death within which to bring a suit. This section does not extend that time, except where the representative is himself under disability when the representation devolves upon him.

Disability of one joint creditor.

8. When one of several joint creditors or claimants is under any such disability, and when a discharge can be given without the concurrence of such person, time will run against them all: but where no such discharge can be given, time will not run as against any of them until one of them becomes capable of giving such discharge without the concurrence of the others.

Illustrations.

(a).—A incurs a debt to a firm of which B, C and D are partners. B is insane and C is a minor. D can give a discharge of the debt without the concurrence of B and C. Time runs against B, C and D.

(b).—A incurs a debt to a firm of which E, F and G are partners. E and F are insane, and G is a minor. Time will not run against any of them until either E or F becomes sane, or G attains majority.

9. When once time has begun to run, no subsequent disability or inability to sue stops it:

Continuous running of time.

Provided that where letters of administration to the estate of a creditor have been granted to his debtor, the running of the time prescribed for a suit to recover the debt shall be suspended while the administration continues.

10. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, no suit against a person in whom property has become vested in trust for any specific purpose, or against his legal representatives or assigns (not being assigns for valuable consideration) for the purpose of following in his or their hands such property, shall be barred by any length of time.

Suits against express trustees and their representatives.

11. Suits instituted in British India on contracts entered into in a foreign country are subject to the rules prescribed by this Act.

Suits on foreign contracts.

No foreign rule of limitation shall be a defence to a suit instituted in British India on a contract entered into in a foreign country, unless the rule has extinguished the contract, and the parties were domiciled in such country during the period prescribed by such rule.

Foreign limitation law.

PART III.

COMPUTATION OF PERIOD OF LIMITATION.

12. In computing the period of limitation prescribed for any suit, appeal or application, the day from which such period is to be reckoned shall be excluded.

Exclusion of day on which right to sue accrues.

In computing the period of limitation prescribed for an appeal, an application for leave to appeal as a pauper, and an application for a review of judgment, the day on which the judgment complained of was pronounced, and the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the decree, sentence or order appealed against or sought to be reviewed, shall be excluded.

Exclusion in case of appeals and certain applications.

Where a decree is appealed against or sought to be reviewed, the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the judgment on which it is founded shall also be excluded.

In computing the period of limitation prescribed for an application to set aside an award, the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the award shall be excluded.

13. In computing the period of limitation prescribed for any suit, the time during which the defendant has been absent from British India shall be excluded.

Exclusion of time of defendant's absence from British India.

14. In computing the period of limitation prescribed for any suit, the time during which the plaintiff has been prosecuting with due diligence another civil proceeding, whether in a Court of first instance or in a Court of appeal, against the defendant shall be excluded, where the proceeding is founded upon the same cause of action, and is prosecuted in good faith in a Court which, from defect of jurisdiction, or other cause of a like nature, is unable to entertain it.

Exclusion of time of proceeding bonâ fide in Court without jurisdiction.

In computing the period of limitation prescribed for a suit, proceedings in which have been stayed by order under the Code of Civil Procedure, section 20, the interval between the institution of the suit and the date of so staying proceedings, and the time requisite for going from the Court in which proceedings are stayed to the Court in which the suit is re-instituted, shall be excluded.

Like exclusion in case of order under Civil Procedure Code, s. 20.

In computing the period of limitation prescribed for any application, the time during which the applicant has been making another application for the same relief, shall be excluded, where the last-mentioned application is made in good faith to a Court which from defect of jurisdiction, or other cause of a like nature, is unable to grant it.

Like exclusion in case of application.

Explanation 1.—In excluding the time during which a former suit or application was pending or being made, the day on which that suit or application was instituted or made, and the day on which the proceedings therein ended, shall both be counted.

Explanation 2.—A plaintiff resisting an appeal presented on the ground of want of jurisdiction shall be deemed to be prosecuting a suit within the meaning of this section.

15. In computing the period of limitation prescribed for any suit, the institution of which has been stayed by injunction or order, the time of the continuance of the injunction or order, the day on which it was issued or made, and the day on which it was withdrawn, shall be excluded.

Exclusion of time during which commencement of suit is stayed by injunction or order.

16. In computing the period of limitation prescribed for a suit for possession by a purchaser at a sale in execution of a decree, the time during which the judgment-debtor has been prosecuting a proceeding to set aside the sale, shall be excluded.

Exclusion of time during which judgment-debtor is attempting to set aside execution-sale.

17. When a person who would, if he were living, have a right to institute a suit or make an application, dies before the right accrues, the period of limitation shall be computed from the time when there is a legal representative of the deceased capable of instituting or making such suit or application.

Effect of death before right to sue accrues.

When a person against whom, if he were living, a right to institute a suit or make an application would have accrued dies before the right accrues, the period of limitation shall be computed from the time when there is a legal representative of the deceased against whom the plaintiff may institute or make such suit or application.

Nothing in the former part of this section applies to suits to enforce rights of pre-emption or to suits for the possession of immoveable property or of an hereditary office.

18. When any person having a right to institute a suit or make an application has, by means of fraud, been kept from the knowledge of such right or of the title on which it is founded,

Effect of fraud.

or where any document necessary to establish such right has been fraudulently concealed from him,

the time limited for instituting a suit or making an application

(a) against the person guilty of the fraud or accessory thereto, or,

(b) against any person claiming through him otherwise than in good faith and for a valuable consideration,

shall be computed from the time when the fraud first became known to the person injuriously affected thereby, or, in the case of the concealed document, when he first had the means of producing it or compelling its production.

19. If, before the expiration of the period prescribed for a suit or application in respect of any property or right, an acknowledgment of liability in respect of such property or right has been made in writing signed by the party against whom such property or right is claimed, or by some person through whom he derives title or liability, a new period of limitation, according to the nature of the original liability, shall be computed from the time when the acknowledgment was so signed.

Effect of acknowledgment in writing.

When the writing containing the acknowledgment is undated, oral evidence may be given of the time when it was signed; but oral evidence of its contents shall not be received.

Explanation 1.—For the purposes of this section an acknowledgment may be sufficient, though it omits to specify the exact nature of the property or right, or avers that the time for payment, delivery, performance or enjoyment has not yet come, or is accompanied by a refusal to pay, deliver, perform, or permit to enjoy, or is coupled with a claim to a set-off, or is addressed to a person other than the person entitled to the property or right.

Explanation 2.—In this section "signed" means signed either personally or by an agent duly authorized in this behalf.

20. When interest on a debt or legacy is, before the expiration of the prescribed period, paid as such by the person liable to pay the debt or legacy, or by his agent duly authorized in this behalf,

Effect of payment of interest as such.

or when part of the principal of a debt is, before the expiration of the prescribed period, paid by the debtor or by his agent duly authorized in this behalf,

Effect of part-payment of principal.

a new period of limitation, according to the nature of the original liability, shall be computed from the time when the payment was made:

Provided that, in the case of part-payment of the principal of a debt, the fact of the payment appears in the hand-writing of the person making the same.

Where mortgaged land is in the possession of the mortgagee, the receipt of the produce of such land shall be deemed to be a payment for the purpose of this section.

Effect of receipt of produce of mortgaged land.

21. Nothing in sections 19 and 20 renders one of several joint contractors, partners, executors or mortgagees chargeable by reason only of a written acknowledgment signed, or of a payment made by, or by the agent of, any other or others of them.

One of several joint contractors, &c., not chargeable by reason of acknowledgment or payment made by another of them.

22. When, after the institution of a suit, a new plaintiff or defendant is substituted or added, the suit shall, as regards him, be deemed to have been instituted when he was so made a party:

Effect of substituting or adding new plaintiff or defendant.

Provided that, when a plaintiff dies, and the suit is continued by his legal representative, it shall, as regards him, be deemed to have been instituted when it was instituted by the deceased plaintiff:

Proviso where original plaintiff dies.

Provided also, that, when a defendant dies, and the suit is continued against his legal representative, it shall, as regards him, be deemed to have been instituted when it was instituted against the deceased defendant.

Proviso where original defendant dies.

23. In the case of a continuing breach of contract and in the case of a continuing wrong independent of contract, a fresh period of limitation begins to run at every moment of the time during which the breach or the wrong, as the case may be, continues.

Continuing breaches and wrongs.

24. In the case of a suit for compensation for an act which does not give rise to a cause of action unless some specific injury actually results therefrom, the period of limitation shall be computed from the time when the injury results.

Suit for compensation for act not actionable without special damage.

Illustrations.

(a).—A owns the surface of a field. B owns the subsoil. B digs coal thereout without causing any immediate apparent injury to the surface, but at last the surface subsides. The period of limitation in the case of a suit by A against B runs from the time of the subsidence.

(b).—A speaks and publishes of B slanderous words not actionable in themselves without special damage caused thereby. C in consequence refuses to employ B as his clerk. The period of limitation in the case of a suit by B against A for compensation for the slander does not commence till the refusal.

25. All instruments shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be made with reference to the Gregorian calendar.

Computation of time mentioned in instruments.

Illustrations.

(a).—A Hindú makes a promissory note bearing a Native date only, and payable four months after date. The period of limitation applicable to a suit on the note runs from the expiry of four months after date computed according to the Gregorian calendar.

(b).—A Hindú makes a bond, bearing a Native date only, for the repayment of money within one year. The period of limitation applicable to a suit on the bond runs from the expiry of one year after date computed according to the Gregorian calendar.

PART IV.

ACQUISITION OF OWNERSHIP BY POSSESSION.

26. Where the access and use of light or air to and for any building have been peaceably enjoyed therewith, as an easement, and as of right, without interruption, and for twenty years,

Acquisition of right to easements.

and where any way or watercourse, or the use of any water, or any other easement (whether affirmative or negative) has been peaceably and openly enjoyed by any person claiming title thereto as an easement and as of right, without interruption, and for twenty years, the right to such access and use of light or air, way, watercourse, use of water, or other easement, shall be absolute and indefeasible.

Each of the said periods of twenty years shall be taken to be a period ending within two years next before the institution of the suit wherein the claim to which such period relates is contested.

Explanation.—Nothing is an interruption within the meaning of this section, unless where there is an actual discontinuance of the possession or enjoyment by reason of an obstruction by the act of some person other than the claimant, and unless such obstruction is submitted to or acquiesced in for one year after the claimant has notice thereof and of the person making or authorizing the same to be made.

Illustrations.

(a).—A suit is brought in 1881 for obstructing a right of way. The defendant admits the obstruction but denies the right of way. The plaintiff proves that the right was peaceably and openly enjoyed by him, claiming title thereto as an easement and as of right, without interruption, from 1st January 1860 to 1st January 1880. The plaintiff is entitled to judgment.

(b).—In a like suit also brought in 1881 the plaintiff merely proves that he enjoyed the right in manner aforesaid from 1858 to 1878. The suit shall be dismissed, as no exercise of the right by actual user has been proved to have taken place within two years next before the institution of the suit.

(c).—In a like suit the plaintiff shows that the right was peaceably and openly enjoyed by him for twenty years. The defendant proves that the plaintiff on one occasion during the twenty years had asked his leave to enjoy the right. The suit shall be dismissed.

27. Provided that, when any land or water upon, over, or from which any easement has been enjoyed or derived has been held under or by virtue of any interest for life or any term of years exceeding three years from the granting thereof, the time of the enjoyment of such easement during the continuance of such interest or term shall be excluded in the computation of the said last-mentioned period of twenty years, in case the claim is, within three years next after the determination of such interest or term, resisted by the person entitled, on such determination, to the said land or water.

Exclusion in favour of reversioner of servient tenement.

Illustration.

A sues for a declaration that he is entitled to a right of way over B's land. A proves that he has enjoyed the right for twenty-five years; but B shows that during ten of these years C, a Hindú widow, had a life interest in the land, that on C's death B became entitled to the land, and that within two years after C's death he contested A's claim to the right. The suit must be dismissed, as A, with reference to the provisions of this section, has only proved enjoyment for fifteen years.

28. At the determination of the period hereby limited to any person for instituting a suit for possession of any property, his right to such property shall be extinguished.

Extinguishment of right to property.

4. Dismissal of suits, &c., instituted, &c., after period of limitation.

Explanation.—A suit is instituted in ordinary cases when the plaint is presented to the proper officer; in the case of a pauper, when his application for leave to sue as a pauper is filed; and in the case of a claim against a company which is being wound up by the Court, when the claimant first sends in his claim to the official liquidator.

Illustrations.

(a.)—A suit is instituted after the prescribed period of limitation. Limitation is not set up as a defence and judgment is given for the plaintiff. The defendant appeals. The appellate court must dismiss the suit.

(b.)—An appeal presented after the prescribed period is admitted and registered. The appeal shall, nevertheless, be dismissed.

5. If the period of limitation prescribed for any suit, appeal or application expires on a day when the Court is closed, the suit, appeal or application may be instituted, presented or made on the day that the Court re-opens:

Proviso where Court is closed when period expires.

Any appeal or application for a review of judgment may be admitted after the period of limitation prescribed therefor, when the appellant or applicant satisfies the Court that he had sufficient cause for not presenting the appeal or making the application within such period.

Proviso as to appeals and applications for review.

6. When, by any special or local law now or hereafter in force in British India, a period of limitation is specially prescribed for any suit, appeal or application, nothing herein contained shall affect or alter the period so prescribed.

Special and local laws of limitation.

7. If a person entitled to institute a suit or make an application be, at the time from which the period of limitation is to be reckoned, a minor, or insane, or an idiot, he may institute the suit or make the application within the same period, after the disability has ceased, as would otherwise have been allowed from the time prescribed therefor in the third column of the second schedule hereto annexed.

Legal disability.

When he is, at the time from which the period of limitation is to be reckoned, affected by two such disabilities, or when before his disability has ceased, he is affected by another disability, he may institute the suit or make the application within the same period after both disabilities have ceased as would otherwise have been allowed from the time so prescribed.

Double and successive disabilities.

When his disability continues up to his death, his legal representative may institute the suit or make the application within the same period after the death as would otherwise have been allowed from the time so prescribed.

When such representative is at the date of the death affected by any such disability, the rules contained in the first two paragraphs of this section shall apply.

Disability of representative.

Nothing in this section applies to suits to enforce rights of pre-emption, or shall be deemed to extend, for more than three years from the cessation of the disability or the death of the person affected thereby, the period within which any suit must be instituted or application made.

Illustrations.

(a).—The right to sue for the hire of a boat accrues to A during his minority. He attains majority four years after such accruer. He may institute his suit at any time within three years from the date of his attaining majority.

(b).—A, to whom a right to sue for a legacy has accrued during his minority, attains majority eleven years after such accruer. A has, under the ordinary law, only one year remaining within which to sue, But under this section an extension of two years will be allowed him, making in all a period of three years from the date of his attaining majority, within which he may bring his suit.

(c).—A right to sue accrues to Z during his minority After the accruer, but while Z is still a minor, he becomes insane. Time runs against Z from the date when his insanity and minority cease.

(d).—A right to sue accrues to X during his minority. X dies before attaining majority and is succeeded by Y, his minor son. Time runs against Y from the date of his attaining majority.

(e).—A right to sue for an hereditary office accrues to A, who at the time is insane. Six years after the accruer A recovers his reason. A has six years, under the ordinary law, from the date when his insanity ceased within which to institute a suit. No extension of time will be given him under this section.

(f).—A right to sue as landlord to recover possession from a tenant accrues to A, who is an idiot. A dies three years after the accruer, his idiocy continuing up to the date of his death. A's representative in interest has, under the ordinary law, nine years from the date of A's death within which to bring a suit. This section does not extend that time, except where the representative is himself under disability when the representation devolves upon him.

8. When one of several joint creditors or claimants is under any such disability, and when a discharge can be given without the concurrence of such person, time will run against them all: but where no such discharge can be given, time will not run as against any of them until one of them becomes capable of giving such discharge without the concurrence of the others.

Illustrations.

(a).—A incurs a debt to a firm of which B, C and D are partners. B is insane and C is a minor. D can give a discharge of the debt without the concurrence of B and C. Time runs against B, C and D.

(b).—A incurs a debt to a firm of which E, F and G are partners. E and F are insane, and G is a minor. Time will not run against any of them until either E or F becomes sane, or G attains majority.

9. When once time has begun to run, no subsequent disability or inability to sue stops it:

Continuous running of time.

Provided that where letters of administration to the estate of a creditor have been granted to his debtor, the running of the time prescribed for a suit to recover the debt shall be suspended while the administration continues.

10. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, no suit against a person in whom property has become vested in trust for any specific purpose, or against his legal representatives or assigns (not being assigns for valuable consideration) for the purpose of following in his or their hands such property, shall be barred by any length of time.

Suits against express trustees and their representatives.

11. Suits instituted in British India on contracts entered into in a foreign country are subject to the rules prescribed by this Act.

Suits on foreign contracts.

No foreign rule of limitation shall be a defence to a suit instituted in British India on a contract entered into in a foreign country, unless the rule has extinguished the contract, and the parties were domiciled in such country during the period prescribed by such rule.

Foreign limitation law.

PART III.

Exclusion of time of proceeding bonâ fide in Court without jurisdiction.

In computing the period of limitation prescribed for a suit, proceedings in which have been stayed by order under the Code of Civil Procedure, section 20, the interval between the institution of the suit and the date of so staying proceedings, and the time requisite for going from the Court in which proceedings are stayed to the Court in which the suit is re-instituted, shall be excluded.

Like exclusion in case of order under Civil Procedure Code, s. 20.

In computing the period of limitation prescribed for any application, the time during which the applicant has been making another application for the same relief, shall be excluded, where the last-mentioned application is made in good faith to a Court which from defect of jurisdiction, or other cause of a like nature, is unable to grant it.

Like exclusion in case of application.

Explanation 1.—In excluding the time during which a former suit or application was pending or being made, the day on which that suit or application was instituted or made, and the day on which the proceedings therein ended, shall both be counted.

Explanation 2.—A plaintiff resisting an appeal presented on the ground of want of jurisdiction shall be deemed to be prosecuting a suit within the meaning of this section.

15. In computing the period of limitation prescribed for any suit, the institution of which has been stayed by injunction or order, the time of the continuance of the injunction or order, the day on which it was issued or made, and the day on which it was withdrawn, shall be excluded.

Exclusion of time during which commencement of suit is stayed by injunction or order.

Exclusion of time during which judgment-debtor is attempting to set aside execution-sale.

Effect of death before right to sue accrues.

When a person against whom, if he were living, a right to institute a suit or make an application would have accrued dies before the right accrues, the period of limitation shall be computed from the time when there is a legal representative of the deceased against whom the plaintiff may institute or make such suit or application.

Nothing in the former part of this section applies to suits to enforce rights of pre-emption or to suits for the possession of immoveable property or of an hereditary office.

18. When any person having a right to institute a suit or make an application has, by means of fraud, been kept from the knowledge of such right or of the title on which it is founded, or where any document necessary to establish such right has been fraudulently concealed from him,

Effect of fraud.

the time limited for instituting a suit or making an application

(a) against the person guilty of the fraud or accessory thereto, or,

(b) against any person claiming through him otherwise than in good faith and for a valuable consideration,

shall be computed from the time when the fraud first became known to the person injuriously affected thereby, or, in the case of the concealed document, when he first had the means of producing it or compelling its production.

19. If, before the expiration of the period prescribed for a suit or application in respect of any property or right, an acknowledgment of liability in respect of such property or right has been made in writing signed by the party against whom such property or right is claimed, or by some person through whom he derives title or liability, a new period of limitation, according to the nature of the original liability, shall be computed from the time when the acknowledgment was so signed.

Effect of acknowledgment in writing.

When the writing containing the acknowledgment is undated, oral evidence may be given of the time when it was signed; but oral evidence of its contents shall not be received.

Explanation 1.—For the purposes of this section an acknowledgment may be sufficient, though it omits to specify the exact nature of the property or right, or avers that the time for payment, delivery, performance or enjoyment has not yet come, or is accompanied by a refusal to pay, deliver, perform, or permit to enjoy, or is coupled with a claim to a set-off, or is addressed to a person other than the person entitled to the property or right.

Explanation 2.—In this section "signed" means signed either personally or by an agent duly authorized in this behalf.

20. When interest on a debt or legacy is, before the expiration of the prescribed period, paid as such by the person liable to pay the debt or legacy, or by his agent duly authorized in this behalf,

Effect of payment of interest as such.

or when part of the principal of a debt is, before the expiration of the prescribed period, paid by the debtor or by his agent duly authorized in this behalf,

Effect of part-payment of principal.

a new period of limitation, according to the nature of the original liability, shall be computed from the time when the payment was made:

Provided that, in the case of part-payment of the principal of a debt, the fact of the payment appears in the hand-writing of the person making the same.

Where mortgaged land is in the possession of the mortgagee, the receipt of the produce of such land shall be deemed to be a payment for the purpose of this section.

Effect of receipt of produce of mortgaged land.

21. Nothing in sections 19 and 20 renders one of several joint contractors, partners, executors or mortgagees chargeable by reason only of a written acknowledgment signed, or of a payment made by, or by the agent of, any other or others of them.

One of several joint contractors, &c., not chargeable by reason of acknowledgment or payment made by another of them.

Provided that, when a plaintiff dies, and the suit is continued by his legal representative, it shall, as regards him, be deemed to have been instituted when it was instituted by the deceased plaintiff:

Proviso where original plaintiff dies.

Provided also, that, when a defendant dies, and the suit is continued against his legal representative, it shall, as regards him, be deemed to have been instituted when it was instituted against the deceased defendant.

Proviso where original defendant dies.

23. In the case of a continuing breach of contract and in the case of a continuing wrong independent of contract, a fresh period of limitation begins to run at every moment of the time during which the breach or the wrong, as the case may be, continues.

Continuing breaches and wrongs.

24. In the case of a suit for compensation for an act which does not give rise to a cause of action unless some specific injury actually results therefrom, the period of limitation shall be computed from the time when the injury results.

Suit for compensation for act not actionable without special damage.

Illustrations.

(a).—A owns the surface of a field. B owns the subsoil. B digs coal thereout without causing any immediate apparent injury to the surface, but at last the surface subsides. The period of limitation in the case of a suit by A against B runs from the time of the subsidence.

(b).—A speaks and publishes of B slanderous words not actionable in themselves without special damage caused thereby. C in consequence refuses to employ B as his clerk. The period of limitation in the case of a suit by B against A for compensation for the slander does not commence till the refusal.

Computation of time mentioned in instruments.

25. All instruments shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be made with reference to the Gregorian calendar.

Illustrations.

(a).—A Hindú makes a promissory note bearing a Native date only, and payable four months after date. The period of limitation applicable to a suit on the note runs from the expiry of four months after date computed according to the Gregorian calendar.

(b).—A Hindú makes a bond, bearing a Native date only, for the repayment of money within one year. The period of limitation applicable to a suit on the bond runs from the expiry of one year after date computed according to the Gregorian calendar.

PART IV.

ACQUISITION OF OWNERSHIP BY POSSESSION.

Acquisition of right to easements.

and where any way or watercourse, or the use of any water, or any other easement (whether affirmative or negative) has been peaceably and openly enjoyed by any person claiming title thereto as an easement and as of right, without interruption, and for twenty years, the right to such access and use of light or air, way, watercourse, use of water, or other easement, shall be absolute and indefeasible.

Each of the said periods of twenty years shall be taken to be a period ending within two years next before the institution of the suit wherein the claim to which such period relates is contested.

Explanation.—Nothing is an interruption within the meaning of this section, unless where there is an actual discontinuance of the possession or enjoyment by reason of an obstruction by the act of some person other than the claimant, and unless such obstruction is submitted to or acquiesced in for one year after the claimant has notice thereof and of the person making or authorizing the same to be made.

Illustrations.

(a).—A suit is brought in 1881 for obstructing a right of way. The defendant admits the obstruction but denies the right of way. The plaintiff proves that the right was peaceably and openly enjoyed by him, claiming title thereto as an easement and as of right, without interruption, from 1st January 1860 to 1st January 1880. The plaintiff is entitled to judgment.

(b).—In a like suit also brought in 1881 the plaintiff merely proves that he enjoyed the right in manner aforesaid from 1858 to 1878. The suit shall be dismissed, as no exercise of the right by actual user has been proved to have taken place within two years next before the institution of the suit.

(c).—In a like suit the plaintiff shows that the right was peaceably and openly enjoyed by him for twenty years. The defendant proves that the plaintiff on one occasion during the twenty years had asked his leave to enjoy the right. The suit shall be dismissed.

Exclusion in favour of reversioner of servient tenement.

27. Provided that, when any land or water upon, over, or from which any easement has been enjoyed or derived has been held under or by virtue of any interest for life or any term of years exceeding three years from the granting thereof, the time of the enjoyment of such easement during the continuance of such interest or term shall be excluded in the computation of the said last-mentioned period of twenty years, in case the claim is, within three years next after the determination of such interest or term, resisted by the person entitled, on such determination, to the said land or water.

Illustration.

A sues for a declaration that he is entitled to a right of way over B's land. A proves that he has enjoyed the right for twenty-five years; but B shows that during ten of these years C, a Hindú widow, had a life interest in the land, that on C's death B became entitled to the land, and that within two years after C's death he contested A's claim to the right. The suit must be dismissed, as A, with reference to the provisions of this section, has only proved enjoyment for fifteen years.

Extinguishment of right to property.

28. At the determination of the period hereby limited to any person for instituting a suit for possession of any property, his right to such property shall be extinguished.

XIX of 1875	An Act to provide an appeal from certain decrees of the Chief Court of the Panjáb, and for other purposes.	The whole.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

This Bill is intended to be mainly a consolidation measure, bringing within a shorter compass and reducing into convenient order the provisions relating to the Chief Court and the subordinate Civil Courts of the Panjáb, which are at present scattered through several enactments passed between the years 1865 and 1875. It proposes, however, to introduce some changes which the experience of the working of those Courts now obtained appear to render desirable.

2. The power to make rules as to petition-writers conferred by section 26 is considered necessary, as at present, owing to the inability of the Courts to control these persons, great abuses and great loss to litigants are found to result.

3. Provision has been made (section 35) as to the appointment, suspension and removal of the ministerial officers of subordinate Courts, and power has been given to fine them.

4. The existence or non-existence, validity or invalidity of a custom alleged to have the force of law is added (section 39) to the grounds on which a second appeal may be brought under the Code of Civil Procedure, section 584, and a second appeal will lie in Small Cause cases when the amount or value of the subject-matter of the original suit is less than Rs. 500, but not less than Rs. 50.

5. Section 43 removes a doubt which has been felt as to the power of the Chief Court to exclude certain classes of legal practitioners from pleading and acting in the Civil Courts of the Province. It places the Chief Court in this respect on the same footing as the High Courts established by Royal Charter.

6. Section 49, giving the Local Government power to vest the administrative control of the subordinate Courts in a single Judge of the Chief Court, has been inserted at the instance of the late Lieutenant-Governor. He considered that although the Judges of the Chief Court had in every way endeavoured, and with considerable success, to improve the judicial service of the province, and had in this direction done all in their power to strengthen the hands of the Local Government, yet so much efficiency could not be attained as when the responsibility for supervision rested with a single Judge. This change will practically give one of the Judges the powers formerly exercised by the Judicial Commissioner in the Panjáb.

SCHEDULE.

ACTS REPEALED.

Number and year of Act.	Title or subject.	Extent of repeal.
XIX of 1865	An Act to define the jurisdiction of the Courts of Judicature of the Panjáb and its Dependencies.	So much as has not been repealed.
IV of 1866	An Act to amend the constitution of the Chief Court of Judicature in the Panjáb and its Dependencies.	So much as has not been repealed.
XXVII of 1867	An Act to empower Deputy Commissioners in the Central Provinces, the Panjáb, Oudh and the Jhánsí Division to distribute the business in subordinate Courts.	The whole.
III of 1868	An Act to authorize the Local Government of the Panjáb to invest any person with the powers of an Assistant Commissioner or Tahsíldár.	So much as has not been repealed.
IX of 1873	An Act to prolong the law relating to Appeals and Reviews of Judgment in the Panjáb.	So much as has not been repealed.
V of 1874	An Act to invest the Assistant Commissioner in charge of the Kullu sub-division of the Kángra District with certain appellate powers.	So much as has not been repealed.
XIX of 1875	An Act to provide an appeal from certain decrees of the Chief Court of the Panjáb, and for other purposes.	The whole.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

This Bill is intended to be mainly a consolidation measure, bringing within a shorter compass and reducing into convenient order the provisions relating to the Chief Court and the subordinate Civil Courts of the Panjáb, which are at present scattered through several enactments passed between the years 1865 and 1875. It proposes, however, to introduce some changes which the experience of the working of those Courts now obtained appear to render desirable.

2. The power to make rules as to petition-writers conferred by section 26 is considered necessary, as at present, owing to the inability of the Courts to control these persons, great abuses and great loss to litigants are found to result.

3. Provision has been made (section 35) as to the appointment, suspension and removal of the ministerial officers of subordinate Courts, and power has been given to fine them.

4. The existence or non-existence, validity or invalidity of a custom alleged to have the force of law is added (section 39) to the grounds on which a second appeal may be brought under the Code of Civil Procedure, section 584, and a second appeal will lie in Small Cause cases when the amount or value of the subject-matter of the original suit is less than Rs. 500, but not less than Rs. 50.

5. Section 43 removes a doubt which has been felt as to the power of the Chief Court to exclude certain classes of legal practitioners from pleading and acting in the Civil Courts of the Province. It places the Chief Court in this respect on the same footing as the High Courts established by Royal Charter.

6. Section 49, giving the Local Government power to vest the administrative control of the subordinate Courts in a single Judge of the Chief Court, has been inserted at the instance of the late Lieutenant-Governor. He considered that although the Judges of the Chief Court had in every way endeavoured, and with considerable success, to improve the judicial service of the province, and had in this direction done all in their power to strengthen the hands of the Local Government, yet so much efficiency could not be attained as when the responsibility for supervision rested with a single Judge. This change will practically give one of the Judges the powers formerly exercised by the Judicial Commissioner in the Panjáb.

ACTS REPEALED.

Number and year of Act.	Title or subject.	Extent of repeal.
XIX of 1865	An Act to define the jurisdiction of the Courts of Judicature of the Panjáb and its Dependencies.	So much as has not been repealed.
IV of 1866	An Act to amend the constitution of the Chief Court of Judicature in the Panjáb and its Dependencies.	So much as has not been repealed.
XXVII of 1867	An Act to empower Deputy Commissioners in the Central Provinces, the Panjáb, Oudh and the Jhánsi Division to distribute the business in subordinate Courts.	The whole.
III of 1868	An Act to authorize the Local Government of the Panjáb to invest any person with the powers of an Assistant Commissioner or Tahsíldár.	So much as has not been repealed.
IX of 1873	An Act to prolong the law relating to Appeals and Reviews of Judgment in the Panjáb.	So much as has not been repealed.
V of 1874	An Act to invest the Assistant Commissioner in charge of the Kullu sub-division of the Kángra District with certain appellate powers.	So much as has not been repealed.
XIX of 1875	An Act to provide an appeal from certain decrees of the Chief Court of the Panjáb, and for other purposes.	The whole.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

This Bill is intended to be mainly a consolidation measure, bringing within a shorter compass and reducing into convenient order the provisions relating to the Chief Court and the subordinate Civil Courts of the Panjáb, which are at present scattered through several enactments passed between the years 1865 and 1875. It proposes, however, to introduce some changes which the experience of the working of those Courts now obtained appear to render desirable.

2. The power to make rules as to petition-writers conferred by section 26 is considered necessary, as at present, owing to the inability of the Courts to control these persons, great abuses and great loss to litigants are found to result.

3. Provision has been made (section 35) as to the appointment, suspension and removal of the ministerial officers of subordinate Courts, and power has been given to fine them.

4. The existence or non-existence, validity or invalidity of a custom alleged to have the force of law is added (section 39) to the grounds on which a second appeal may be brought under the Code of Civil Procedure, section 584, and a second appeal will lie in Small Cause cases when the amount or value of the subject-matter of the original suit is less than Rs. 500, but not less than Rs. 50.

5. Section 43 removes a doubt which has been felt as to the power of the Chief Court to exclude certain classes of legal practitioners from pleading and acting in the Civil Courts of the Province. It places the Chief Court in this respect on the same footing as the High Courts established by Royal Charter.

6. Section 49, giving the Local Government power to vest the administrative control of the subordinate Courts in a single Judge of the Chief Court, has been inserted at the instance of the late Lieutenant-Governor. He considered that although the Judges of the Chief Court had in every way endeavoured, and with considerable success, to improve the judicial service of the province, and had in this direction done all in their power to strengthen the hands of the Local Government, yet so much efficiency could not be attained as when the responsibility for supervision rested with a single Judge. This change will practically give one of the Judges the powers formerly exercised by the Judicial Commissioner in the Panjáb.

A Bill to define and amend the law relating to Master and Servant.

Preamble. Whereas it is expedient to define and amend the law relating to Master and Servant; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.—PRELIMINARY.

Short title. 1. This Act may be called "The Master and Servant Act, 1877;"

Local extent. It extends to the whole of British India;

Commencement. And it shall come into force on the first day of March 1878.

Enactments repealed. 2. On and from that day the Acts specified in the schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed. But all powers conferred under either of such Acts shall be deemed to have been conferred under this Act. And all references to either of such Acts shall be deemed to be made to this Act.

Enactments saved. Nothing herein contained affects—

(a) Act No. I of 1859 (for the amendment of the law relating to Merchant Seamen),

(b) Act No. VII of 1871, Act No. III of 1876, Bengal Act No. VII of 1873, or any other law regulating the emigration or transport of Native labourers and their contracts of service, or (c) the rules as to compensation contained in the Indian Contract Act, 1872.

CHAPTER II.—OF THE CONTRACT OF SERVICE.

Contract of service. 3. A contract binding one party to employ and remunerate, and the other to do any work in such manner as the former party directs, is called a contract of service: the remuneration contracted for is called the wages: the party contracting, by himself or his agent, to employ and remunerate is called the master; and the party contracting to do the work is called the servant.

Wages.

Master.

Servant.

Domestic servant. A domestic servant is a servant who does household work within his master's house or compound.

Application of provisions as to death. 4. The provisions herein contained as to the death of a master or a servant apply, where the master or servant is a private partnership, to its dissolution, and where the master or servant is a public company, to the completion of its winding-up.

Persons competent to enter into contracts of service. 5. Every person competent to contract may enter into a contract of service.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this section a minor is competent to contract; but the contract cannot be enforced against him.

Presumption as to wages. 6. In the absence of express provision as to the amount of wages, the servant is presumed to contract for the remuneration ordinarily paid, at the place and time of entering into the contract, to servants of the same class.

Presumption as to term of service. 7. In the absence of express provisions as to the term of service and the mode of terminating the contract—

(a) a domestic servant is presumed to be hired for a month, and the contract is terminable, on the part of either master or servant, by fifteen days' notice of his intention to put an end to the service, or by payment or tender of fifteen days' wages in advance;

(b) a tutor, governess, clerk or other servant not a domestic servant, and not merely mechanical or agricultural or hired by piecework, is presumed to be hired for a year, and the contract is terminable, on the part of either master or servant, by three months' notice of his intention to put an end to the service, or by payment or tender of three months' wages in advance;

(c) a merely mechanical or agricultural servant and a person hired by piecework are presumed to be hired for no specific term, and the contract is terminable, at the will of either party, by notice to the other that the service is at an end.

Withdrawal of notice. 8. Any notice of intention to put an end to service, whether given under the contract or under section 7, may be withdrawn by the party giving it and waived by the parties respectively, and thereupon the service shall continue as if no such notice had been given.

Termination of contract. 9. A contract of service is terminated—

(a) by the death of the master, unless where the contract provides otherwise:

(b) by the death of the servant:

(c) by mutual consent of the parties:

(d) on expiration of the term of service:

(e) on expiration of a notice to put an end to service duly given under the contract or under section 7:

(f) by payment or tender of wages under section 7:

(g) when the master rightfully discharges the servant:

(h) when the servant rightfully quits his master's service.

Presumption of renewal of contract. 10. Where, after the termination of a contract of service, the parties continue the relation of master and servant, they are presumed to have renewed the contract for the same wages and term of service.

CHAPTER III.—OF THE RIGHTS OF THE MASTER AND THE DUTIES OF THE SERVANT.

Master's right to compensation when servant refuses to enter service. 11. When a servant refuses to enter his master's service, the master is entitled to compensation for the injury caused by the refusal, unless the servant is prevented by some cause over which he has no control from performing his contract.

Obligations of servant after entry. 12. When a servant has entered his master's service, he is under the following obligations:—

(a) he must continue in such service during the whole time that he has contracted for, unless he has rightfully terminated it:

(b) he must run all risks incident to the service:

(c) he must obey all lawful orders of his master and of any person to whom the master has expressly or impliedly delegated power to give such orders:

(d) he must be honest and diligent in his master's business:

(e) he must be respectful to his master and, in the case of a domestic servant, the members of his master's family:

(f) he must take the same care of his master's property entrusted to him as he would be bound to take if he were a bailee:

(g) he must indemnify his master from liability to make compensation for injury caused by any wrongful act or omission of the servant:

(h) he must use his best endeavours to protect his master against the wrongful acts or omissions of his fellow-servants, if any:

(i) he must, as often as may be reasonable, account for money or goods received from or on account of his master, and must, without demand, deliver to his master as soon as, with reasonable diligence, he can find him, everything that he receives on his master's account;

(j) he must not set up the title of any third person to money or goods so received, in opposition to his master's title thereto, except where the master's title accrued fraudulently or wrongfully, or under a voidable contract which has become void.

Time of servant. 13. The whole time of domestic servants belongs to the master; and the time of other servants to such extent as is usual in the business in which they serve.

Master's power to punish. 14. Except for the purpose of maintaining discipline on board a merchant ship, no master shall inflict any punishment on his servant, by way of imprisonment, corporal chastisement, forfeiture of wages or otherwise, whether the servant has or has not attained majority.

Nothing contained in this section renders illegal any contract under which the master may, in the events therein specified, withhold the whole or any part of the servant's wages.

Master's power to discharge. 15. A master may discharge his servant, whether hired for a fixed term or not, for any of the following causes:—

(a) wilful disobedience of any lawful order of the master or of any person to whom the master has, expressly or impliedly, delegated power to give such order:

(b) habitual negligence in the master's business:

(c) conduct likely to injure such business materially:

(d) claiming to be a partner with his master:

(e) incompetence to discharge the duties for which the servant was hired:

(f) permanent disability from illness:

(g) imprisonment in a civil or criminal jail:

(h) failure to perform any of the obligations imposed upon him by section 12, clauses (c), (f), (g), (h), (i) and (j):

(i) gross moral misconduct while in the master's service, or reasonable belief, on the part of the master, in the existence of such misconduct:

(j) or if the master discovers that the servant has been guilty of misconduct, before or after the commencement of his service, of such nature, that if the master had known or foreseen it, he would not have employed him.

The existence of any such cause, though not known to the master at the time of the discharge, is sufficient to justify a discharge under this section.

Master's right to sue for compensation for loss of service. 16. A master is entitled to compensation from any one who, knowing that any person is the servant of the master, deprives the master of the services of such person in any of the following ways (namely):—

(a) by enticing him away from his master;

(b) by harbouring and detaining him;

(c) by any act punishable under the Indian Penal Code, chapter XIV or XVI;

(d) in the case of a female servant, by seducing her.

Compensation may be recovered under this section, clauses (a) and (b), not merely for the loss of service, but also for the detriment (if any) resulting therefrom to the master.

Compensation may be recovered under this section, clause (c), for the loss of service down to the time when it appears by the evidence that the disability to serve may reasonably be expected to cease.

Compensation may be recovered under this section, clause (d), for loss of service and for the expenses (if any) reasonably incurred by the master in nursing and taking care of the servant during her pregnancy and about her delivery.

Master's right to sue or wages earned by servant from third person.

17. Where wages have been earned by a servant and enticed away or harboured by another person knowing him to be a servant, the master may waive his right to sue under section 16, and recover from such other person the amount of the wages so earned.

Where a third person employs a servant during any time belonging to his master, whether with or without the master's knowledge and consent, the master may recover the amount of the wages (if any) so earned, unless he has waived his right thereto.

Effect of servant's contributory negligence.

18. A master is not entitled to compensation for injury caused by the wrongful act or omission of a third person, when the master's servant, in the course and within the scope of his employment, might by the exercise of ordinary care have prevented such act or omission.

CHAPTER IV.—OF THE RIGHTS OF THE SERVANT AND THE DUTIES OF THE MASTER.

Servant's right to compensation from master refusing to receive into service.

19. Where a master refuses to receive his servant into his service, the servant is entitled to compensation for the injury caused by such refusal, unless the servant is at the date of the refusal (a) incompetent to discharge the duties for which he was hired, or (b) permanently disabled by illness.

When the service is to begin on a future day, a suit for such compensation may be brought, at the option of the plaintiff, either immediately on the refusal or on or after such future day.

Illustration.

(a) A, in September, engages a servant, B, at Rs. 30 per mensem to accompany him on a tour for three months through India, to commence on the 1st of November. In October, A writes to B saying that he has changed his mind and no longer requires B's services. B thereupon institutes a suit against A for compensation. Afterwards, before the 1st of November, B obtains another engagement at Rs. 30 per mensem to commence on the 1st December. B, being neither incompetent nor disabled, is entitled to a decree for compensation against A.

Obligations of master—

20. Where a servant has entered his master's service, the master is under the following obligations:

as to retaining servant;

(a) he must retain the servant during the whole time that he has contracted to do so, unless in case of discharge under section 15:

as to payment of wages;

(b) he must pay the wages which he has contracted to pay; provided that, where such wages are payable periodically, and the servant is rightfully discharged, the servant is not entitled to any wages for the portion of time during which he has served since the last preceding periodical payment:

as to indemnifying servant;

(c) he must indemnify the servant from liability for doing any act pursuant to an order of his master which he was bound to obey, or any unlawful act, which the servant, not having reason to believe it to be unlawful, was induced by the conduct of his master to believe to be lawful:

as to compensating servant for injury caused by master's neglect;

(d) he must make compensation to the servant for injury caused to such servant solely by the master's personal neglect or want of skill:

as to fellow-servants;

(e) when the servant has to work along with fellow-servants, the master must use his best endeavours to provide fellow-servants of ordinary skill and care:

Explanation.—In this clause the expression "fellow-servants" means servants of one master jointly engaged on his behalf in the same operation:

as to servants employed in dangerous work.

(f) where the servant is employed in a work of danger, the master must provide proper materials and apparatus for the work, and must take all other reasonable precautions so as to protect the servant against unnecessary risk.

Illustrations.

(a) A, a servant, in obedience to the command of his master, B, commits a trespass on the property of C, not having reason to believe that he is doing any injury. C sues A for damages and recovers Rs. 50. A is entitled to recover the Rs. 50 from B.

(b) A hires B, a brickmaker, to make bricks with C's trademark thereon. B, having no reason to believe that the trademark was C's, proceeds to make the bricks accordingly. C sues B to restrain him from using the trademark and obtains an injunction with costs which B pays. B may recover the amount so paid from A.

(c) A orders his servant B to sell an unsound mare, but not to warrant her soundness. B sells the mare to C with a warranty of soundness. C sues and recovers damages from B. B cannot recover these damages from A

(d) A, a master-builder, personally directs his workmen to make a scaffold out of poles which he knows to be unsound. The scaffold gives way, and B, a workman upon it in A's employ, falls and breaks his leg. B may sue A for compensation for this injury.

(e) A and B are lessees of a coal-pit. B acts as banksman at the mouth of the pit, and whilst so acting is guilty of negligence whereby C, a pitman in the service of A and B, is injured. Both A and B are liable for the injury.

Servants' right to compensation for breach of duty imposed by section 20, clauses (e) and (f).

21. When a servant has sustained particular injury by a breach of any of the obligations imposed on his master by section 20, clauses (e) and (f), the servant is entitled to compensation for such injury, provided that he could not have avoided the injury by the exercise of ordinary care, and at the time of the injury he had no reason to believe that the breach had been committed.

Illustrations.

(a) A employs B and C to row, and D to steer, his boat. A has done nothing to ascertain D's competence to act as steersman. Owing to D's want of ordinary skill, the boat collides with a ship in full sail, and B and C are injured. B and C may sue A for compensation.

(b) A railway company employs A to drive a locomotive, B to be guard of a train and C to regulate the switches. The company has neglected to ascertain that C was ordinarily careful, and owing to his carelessness the train runs off the line and A is killed and B is maimed. A's legal representative and B may sue the company for compensation.

(c) A employs B to work as his servant in a mine. Owing to A's negligence the roof of the mine is left unsafe. B, having no reason to believe in the existence of the danger, begins to work in the mine and a stone falls from the roof and breaks B's leg. B may sue A for compensation.

(d) A orders his servant B to carry a bag of rice up a ladder, which A knows, but B has no reason to believe, to be unsafe. The order is within the scope of B's service and B obeys it. The ladder breaks and B falls and fractures his thigh. B may sue A for compensation.

Negligence of foreman.

22. Where a servant sues for compensation for injury caused by breach of any obligation imposed by section 20, clauses (e) and (f), and establishes against any foreman or other agent empowered to direct the work in performing which the injury was received, or to manage any apparatus employed in that work, such proof of negligence in providing fellow servants or taking precautions as would make him liable if he were himself the master, his negligence shall be deemed to be negligence on the part of the master.

Compensation for wrongful dismissal.

23. When a servant is wrongfully discharged, he is entitled to compensation for the injury caused by the discharge in not being allowed to serve and earn the wages contracted for.

Measure of compensation.

The amount of such compensation is subject to the following rules in cases to which they are applicable:—

(a) When the contract is to employ for a specified term, the amount shall be the difference between the wages which the servant would have received under his contract with his master and the wages which he has, or might reasonably have, received under another contract of service:

(b) When the contract is terminable by fifteen days' notice, the amount shall be fifteen days' wages.

(c) When the contract is terminable by three months' notice, the amount shall be three months' wages.

Termination of service by servant for master's fault.

24. A contract of service, even for a specified term, may be terminated by the servant at any time

(a) in case of any wilful or permanent breach of the obligations of his master to him as a servant;

(b) if the master commits against the servant any offence punishable under the Indian Penal Code, Chapter XVI, XVII, XXI or XXII;

(c) if the servant is prevented by permanent illness or other cause over which he has no control from fulfilling his contract.

Illustrations.

(a) A contracts to serve B for a year for the monthly sum of Rs. 100. B refuses to pay the amount due to A for the first month. A may at any time during the year terminate the contract.

(b) A, a sailor, contracts with B, the master of C's ship, for a voyage out and home. During the outward voyage B voluntarily and unlawfully causes grievous hurt to A. A may at once terminate the contract.

Wages of servant in case of wrongful discharge or termination of contract for master's fault or by death.

25. When the servant is wrongfully discharged, or when the contract is terminated under section 24 or by the death of either party, the servant or his legal representative, as the case may be, is entitled to the wages (if any) due for the period during which he has actually served the master.

For the purpose of this section all wages shall (in the absence of an express agreement to the contrary) be deemed to accrue due from day to day.

CHAPTER V.—OF THE LIABILITY OF ONE FELLOW-SERVANT TO ANOTHER.

Liability of one fellow-servant to another.

26. One fellow-servant is liable to make compensation to another for injury caused by neglect or want of skill whilst jointly engaged on behalf of their common master.

CHAPTER VI.—OF THE LIABILITY OF A MASTER TO THIRD PERSONS FOR THE ACTS OF HIS SERVANT.

When servant may bind master by contract

27. A servant may bind his master by contracts entered into in his master's name only when the servant, if he were an agent, could bind his master if he were that agent's principal.

Liability of master for wrongful acts of servant.

28. A master is ordinarily liable to make compensation for injury caused by the wrongful act or omission of his servant, if that act or omission occurred in the course and within the scope of the servant's employment. And the circumstance that the act or omission was not necessary for the proper performance of the servant's duty, or was contrary to his master's orders, does not relieve the master from such liability.

Illustrations.

(a) A, the servant of B, a pawnbroker, takes a pawn from C, and when C comes and tenders the money due to B refuses to deliver the pawn. C may sue B for compensation for A's wrongful act.

(b) A, the shopman of a [illegible] from one to a customer. C may sue B for compensation for A's wrongful act.

(c) A, the servant of a carter, B, negligently runs his cart over C. C may sue B for the injury caused by A's negligence.

(d) A hires horses and a coachman B, from a livery stable-keeper C. B, negligently drives A's carriage over D. Unless A ordered or adopted B's act, D cannot sue A for the injury caused by B, for B is the servant of C and not of A.

(e) A, the servant of B, without B's knowledge, wrongfully takes B's carriage and horses for his own purposes and drives against C. B is not liable to a suit by C for compensation for A's wrongful act.

(f) A, the officer of a Railway Company authorised to give passengers into custody for travelling without tickets for themselves, but not for travelling without tickets for their horses, gives B into custody for travelling without a ticket for his horses. B cannot sue the Company for compensation for A's act, for A acted beyond [illegible] of his employment.

(g) A hires B as his washerman and C as his coachman. B bringing home A's clothes meets C driving A's carriage and, owing to C's want of ordinary care, is knocked down and injured. B may sue A for compensation.

(h) A collision occurs between two steamboats, one belonging to X and commanded by his servant, the other belonging to Y and commanded by his servant. The collision is caused by the negligence of both commanders. Any passenger in either steamboat may sue X or Y, or both, for compensation for personal injury suffered in the collision.

Master when not responsible for servant's negligence.

29. Nothing in section 28 shall render a master responsible for injury caused by his servant's default—

(a) to any person above the age of ten years who might, by the exercise of ordinary care, have avoided the injury;

(b) where the master has been obliged by law to employ the servant;

(c) where the master is a public servant and the servant is in his employment as such;

(d) where the person injured by the default is a fellow-servant of the wrong-doer jointly engaged on behalf of the master in the same operation, and the master had used his best endeavours to ensure that the wrong-doer was a person of ordinary skill and care.

30. For the purposes of section 28 and section 29, persons expressly or impliedly permitted by another person to act as his servants without remuneration are servants of such person.

Volunteers.

CHAPTER VII.—OF THE LIABILITY OF A SERVANT TO THIRD PERSONS FOR ACTS DONE ON BEHALF OF HIS MASTER.

31. A servant, other than a domestic servant, is bound by contracts entered into in his master's name only where the servant, if he were an agent, would be personally liable.

Servant when bound by contract in master's name.

A domestic servant is bound by such contracts only where he has entered into them without his master's authority.

32. Where a servant, acting on behalf of his master, does a wrongful act to a third person, the servant is liable to be sued as a principal by such third person for compensation for the injury caused by such act. But where a servant (other than a public servant) is guilty of negligence only, no such liability arises, except in the case provided for by section 26. Public servants guilty of negligence are liable to be sued by the persons injured thereby for compensation for such injury.

Servant when liable to third person for wrongful act.

CHAPTER VIII.—OF FORMS.

33. Subject to the power conferred on the High Courts by the Code of Civil Procedure, section 639, and by the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth of Victoria, chapter 104, section 15, the forms set forth in the second schedule hereto annexed, with such variation as the circumstances of each case require, shall be used for the respective purposes therein mentioned.

Use of forms in second schedule.

CHAPTER IX.—OF THE JURISDICTION OF MAGISTRATES IN DISPUTES BETWEEN MASTER AND SERVANT.

34. When a master advances to a mechanical or agricultural servant money on account of any work which he has contracted to execute, and such servant wilfully and without sufficient excuse neglects or refuses to perform his contract, the master may complain to a Magistrate, who shall thereupon issue a summons or warrant, as he thinks fit, for bringing such servant before him.

Failure to perform work on account of which servant has received an advance.

If the Magistrate after hearing such evidence as the parties may adduce is satisfied of the truth of the complaint, he shall, at the option of the master, order the servant, on or before such day as the Magistrate directs, either

(a) to repay the money advanced or such part thereof as the Magistrate thinks fit, or

(b) to execute the work according to the terms of the contract.

If the servant fails to comply with either of such orders, the Magistrate may sentence him to imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months, or, when the order is for repayment of a sum of money, for such term or until such sum is sooner repaid.

Where the Magistrate makes an order under clause (b) of this section, he may also, at the master's request, require the servant to enter into a recognizance, with sufficient security for the due performance of the order; and in default of his entering into such recognizance, or furnishing such security to the satisfaction of the Magistrate, may sentence him to imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months.

35. Any Magistrate may enquire into and decide disputes as to wages, hire of carriage, and price of work between any masters and their servants employed in the construction of any railway, canal or other public work sanctioned by Government: Provided that the amount in dispute does not exceed two hundred rupees.

Disputes between masters and workmen on railways, &c.

Cases under this section shall be dealt with, so far as may be, in accordance with the Code of Civil Procedure. But there shall be no appeal against the decision in any such case.

When the Magistrate has heard and decided the case, he shall make an order for the payment, immediately or within such time as he directs, of such sum of money (if any) as appears to him to be justly due, and such sum shall be recoverable as if it were a fine.

36. Whoever contracts to work for a specified term on any such railway, canal or other public work, or to execute any specific work in connection therewith, and who wilfully and without sufficient excuse neglects or refuses to perform such contract, shall be liable, on conviction before a Magistrate, to a fine not exceeding twenty rupees.

Punishment for breach of contract to work for fixed term on railway, &c.

But the Magistrate may, at the request of the master, instead of punishing the servant so neglecting or refusing, order him by himself or another to execute the work according to the terms of his contract; and if he fail to comply with such order, the Magistrate may sentence him to imprisonment for a term which may extend to two months.

Power to order performance of contract.

37. In this chapter "master" includes also any person authorized to act on behalf of a master; and "Magistrate" means, in the towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay a Presidency Magistrate, and elsewhere a Magistrate empowered by the Local Government to act under this chapter.

'Master' and 'Magistrate.'

CHAPTER X.—OF THE REGISTRATION OF DOMESTIC SERVANTS.

38. The Local Government may from time to time by notification published in the official Gazette, (a) establish for any local area an office for registering domestic servants, to be called a Servants' Registration-office, (b) appoint such person as it thinks fit to be Registrar of such office, and to keep a general Register of domestic servants for such local area, and (c) make rules consistent with this chapter for the guidance of such Registrar in the discharge of his official duties.

Power to establish registry-office and appoint Registrar.

39. Within one month of publishing a notification establishing a Servants' Registration office and appointing a Registrar of such office, every master of domestic servants, residing in the local area comprised in such notification shall, in order that such servants may be registered in the general Register, make, sign and send to the Registrar a list showing in the case of each of the said servants his name, the capacity in which he is employed, and the date on which he entered his master's service.

Masters to cause servants to be registered.

Masters to supply lists to Registrar.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to amend and codify the law governing the relation of Master and Servant. The want of a compact and definite system of law upon this subject has long been felt. This want, it is hoped, will be supplied by the present Bill. The Bill is based mainly upon the English law; but a few deviations from that law have been made; and some provisions have been adopted from the Prussian and New York Codes. The Bill, further, contains provisions for the registration of domestic servants. A desire for legislation in this direction has, at various times, been strongly expressed in many quarters; and it is hoped that the rules in the present Bill upon this subject will be found effective in practice. In substance they have been mainly taken from the Ceylon Ordinance No. 28 of 1871, which is now successfully in operation at Colombo.

The Bill is divided into ten chapters.

Preliminary.

Chapter I contains the usual preliminary matter, and saves the provisions of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, as to compensation. The Acts relating to emigrant labourers and merchant seamen are also saved.

The Contract of Service.

Chapter II deals with the contract of service, which it defines so as to include contracts of service of every description. A domestic servant is also defined as one "who does household work within his master's house or compound." This definition is made wider in its terms than the definition of the corresponding class of servants in English law, in order to include table servants and others who, in this country, do not usually sleep in their master's house. It declares that every person competent to contract may enter into a contract of service; and supplies an omission of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, section 11, by providing that a minor may enter into such a contract, but that it cannot be enforced against him. It declares that in the absence of express provision on that head, the servant's remuneration shall be presumed to be that ordinarily paid at the time and place of contract to servants of the same class. It provides that in the absence of express provisions as to the term of service and the mode of terminating the contract, it shall be presumed that (a) a domestic servant is hired for a month, and the contract is terminable by fifteen days' notice or payment or tender of fifteen days' wages; (b) a servant of a higher class is hired for a year, and the contract is terminable by three months' notice or payment or tender of three months' wages; and (c) a merely mechanical or agricultural servant hired by piecework is hired for no specific time, and the contract is terminable by notice at the will of either party. The provision for the termination of the contract in the case of domestic servants is drawn from Bengal Regulation VII of 1819. Section 9 sets forth the events which terminate a contract of service; and section 10 provides for the case in which both parties, after the termination of the contract, continue the relation, by directing that it shall then be presumed that the contract has been renewed for the same wages and term of service.

The rights of the Master and the duties of the Servant.

Chapter III defines the master's rights and the servant's duties. It provides for compensation to the master for the wilful refusal of the servant to enter the service. It declares the duties of the servant after entering the service; amongst these duties attention may be directed to (d) that of being respectful to his master and, if a domestic servant, to the members of his master's family; (e) the servant's liability as a bailee for his master's property entrusted to him; (f) his duty to indemnify his master for liabilities to compensate for injury caused by the servant's wrongful act or omission; (g) his obligation to endeavour to protect his master against wrongful acts or omissions of his fellow-servants; (h) his liability to account for his master's money or goods received by him, and to deliver up as soon as possible, everything he receives on his master's account; and (i) which forbids a servant to set up an adverse title to his master's property, unless the master's title accrued fraudulently or wrongfully or under an avoided contract. These provisions, which are somewhat wider in their scope than the English law, include, it is believed, all the proper duties of a servant. In section 13 there is an express provision, adopted from the New York Civil Code, which declares the master entitled to the whole time of his household servants, and such portion as is customary of the time of his other servants. This provision, it is conceived, is in accordance with the present law. By section 14 the punishment in any shape of servants by their master is forbidden, except for the purpose of maintaining discipline on board merchant vessels. But contracts, under which a master may in certain events withhold part of his servant's wages, will not be rendered illegal. Section 15 describes the cases in which the servant may be discharged. These cases include habitually negligent conduct; conduct or claims likely to be materially injurious to the master; incompetence; permanent disability from illness; imprisonment; breaches of the duties above referred to under section 12; gross moral misconduct or reasonable belief by the master of such misconduct; and the discovery by the master of such misconduct of the servant as would have led the master not to employ him. Section 16 provides for compensation being made to the master by any one knowingly depriving the master of his servant's services, by enticing away, harbouring or detaining the servant; injuring him by acts punishable under chapters XIV and XVI of the Penal Code (relating to offences affecting the public health, &c., and the human body); or, in the case of a female servant, by seducing her. In this latter case the Bill departs, usefully it is thought, from English law by requiring on the part of the seducer knowledge of the master's rights. This section also lays down the usual rules for ascertaining the amount of compensation to be awarded in the cases provided for by this section; and section 17 provides that the master may waive his right to such compensation, and sue for the wages earned by the servant while employed by the wrong-doer. This section also provides for the master's recovering any wages earned by his servant during time belonging to his master, unless the master has waived this right. Section 18 declares that a master is not entitled to be compensated for injuries caused by third persons, when his own servant, acting as such, has by his negligence contributed to cause such injuries.

The rights of the Servant and the duties of the Master.

Chapter IV contains correlative provisions to those of chapter III, and defines the servant's rights and the master's duties. It provides that the master shall compensate a competent servant for refusing to receive him into his service; and gives the servant an option of suing immediately upon the refusal, or of awaiting the time for the commencement of the service. The master's obligations are described in section 20. These include, as well as the obligations to retain and pay the servant, an express duty to indemnify him for liability incurred in obeying his master's lawful orders, or orders which the master's conduct induced the servant to believe lawful. These obligations also include the duty of compensating the servant for injury done by the master; and the last two clauses prescribe that the master must endeavour to provide properly qualified fellow-servants, and must take all reasonable precautions to protect his servant when employed in dangerous work. Section 21 declares the servant entitled to compensation in case of breach of the duties described in the last two clauses, provided that he could not by ordinary care have avoided the injury, and that at the time of the injury he had no reason to believe the breach had been committed. In section 22 a new provision is introduced which seems consonant with justice, which has recently been recommended by the Railway Accidents Commissioners, and which entitles a servant to compensation from the master for injuries caused by a breach of the last two clauses of section 20, when the injury is caused by the negligence of a foreman having the control of the work, or the management of apparatus employed in the work, in performing which the injury is caused. Section 23 declares a servant wrongfully discharged entitled to compensation for such discharge, and contains rules for such compensation. The servant has, by section 24, a right to determine any contract of service at any time for a wilful or permanent breach by his master of his obligations; or if the master commits against the servant an offence punishable under the chapters of the Penal Code relating to the human body, property, defamation and criminal intimidation, &c.; or if the servant is prevented by permanent illness, or other cause over which he has no control, from fulfilling his contract. It is declared by section 25 that, in the case of a servant wrongfully discharged, or whose contract is terminated under section 24, or by the death of either party, the wages are payable for the period of actual service; and that such wages, in the absence of express agreement to the contrary, shall be deemed to accrue due from day to day. This provision will prevent the hardship which frequently arises, under English law, to a servant who, without fault of his own, has not completed his term of service, and who therefore gets nothing for the time he has served.

Liability of fellow-servants.

Chapter V consists of a single section, which provides that one fellow-servant shall compensate another for injury caused by his neglect or want of skill in the common employ. This is in accordance with the Scotch law, and, it seems, with justice; but the American law and, it would appear, the English law also, is otherwise.

Liability of Master to third persons for his Servant's acts.

Chapter VI renders a master liable upon contracts made by his servant in cases when his servant could bind him if the servant were his agent. It declares (section 28) that a master is ordinarily liable for the wrongful acts or omissions of his servant in the course and within the scope of his employment; although such act or omission was not necessary for the performance of the servant's duty, or was contrary to his master's orders. This section will, it is hoped, remove the uncertainty which has prevailed on this subject. Illustration (h) to this section is intended to get rid of the strange doctrine as to the identification of passengers by public conveyances with the persons conducting those conveyances (Thorogood v. Bryan, 8 C. B. 115). Section 29 saves the master from responsibility in the case of (a) contributory negligence of the person injured; (b) compulsory employment, as in the case of pilots; (c) the servants of public servants; and (d) fellow-servants, where the master has performed his duty in properly choosing the wrong-doer. By section 30 volunteers are included in the provisions of sections 28 and 29; and there appears to be no reason that, because they are unpaid, they should be otherwise placed on any different footing from paid servants.

The liability of a Servant to third persons for acts done on behalf of his Master.

Chapter VII provides that a servant, other than a domestic servant, is liable on contracts entered into in his master's name, only when he would be personally liable if he were an agent; and that a domestic servant is liable on contracts unauthorized by his master. This latter provision is inserted because the general rule laid down by the section would impose too great a liability upon servants of this class. The wrongful acts of a servant acting on behalf of his master done to persons not in the service of his master, are provided for by section 32. The servant is liable to the injured person for such acts, but not for negligence, except in the case of public servants.

Forms.

Chapter VIII provides simple forms of plaints and written statements for most of the suits which will lie under the proposed enactment.

Jurisdiction of Magistrates in disputes between Master and Servant.

Chapter IX incorporates the provisions of Act XIII of 1859 (An Act to provide for the punishment of breaches of contract by Artificers, Workmen, and Labourers in certain cases) and those of Act IX of 1860 (An Act to make provision for the speedy determination of certain disputes between work-men engaged in Railway and other public works and their employers), and gives the Presidency Magistrates and all other Magistrates duly empowered jurisdiction to entertain complaints of the kind specified.

The registration of domestic servants.

Chapter X authorizes the Local Government to establish, by notification, a Servants' Registration Office for any local area, and to provide for the working of such offices. It requires (section 39) every master of domestic servants, residing in the local area, within one month of the publication of such notification, to send a list of the names of his servants, the capacity in which they are employed, and the date of entering his service. Every such servant must within three months of such publication, attend personally before the Registrar, and furnish him with such information as he may require for the purposes of the Act. The servant is then to be registered, full particulars relating to him and his service being recorded. The servant is also to be provided with a pocket-register containing the same details. Provision is made in case of the determination, otherwise than by death, of the service of any servant mentioned in the list furnished under section 39. In such case the master must furnish the Registrar with a memorandum of the date and cause of such termination, unless the servant has previously obtained his pocket-register. The Registrar is required to register any applicant desirous of becoming a domestic servant and whom he has reason to believe fit; he is also required to register full particulars as to his person, and the names and residences of any persons who certify to his respectability. A pocket-register is to be thereupon issued to the applicant. The Registrar must refuse to register the applicant if he has not reason to believe him fit to become a domestic servant. He must also refuse to register certain reputed criminals and bad characters. No person may after three months from the publication of the notification under this chapter, hire a domestic servant who fails to produce his pocket-register, or whose pocket-register does not record the termination of his last previous contract of service, if any. The master hiring a registered servant must require him to produce his pocket-register, and must enter therein the date of his contract of service, and the capacity in which he is employed. Similarly the master must, if the service is terminated otherwise than by death, enter the date and cause of such termination, and the servant's character, in his pocket-register; or he may refuse to give the servant a character, or to state the cause of such termination; but he must in that case sign and send to the Registrar a memorandum of his reasons for so refusing. He must also report to the Registrar if he is unable to make such entry as before mentioned through the failure of the servant to produce his pocket-register. The chapter then provides for the attendance of servants at the Registrar's Office for the purpose of having the subsequent entries in their pocket-registers recorded in the general register; for the production of such pocket-registers to the Police, and for entering any conviction of the servant therein. This last provision is taken from the Prussian Landrecht. The chapter then provides for the registration of the commencement or termination of any service of a registered servant which takes place within any local area for which a Servants' Registration Office has not been established. Such registration is to be made at the nearest Police-station, and information thereof sent to the Registrar of the local area in which the servant was registered. Provision is made for the issue of duplicate pocket-registers in case the originals are lost or worn out. The chapter then provides penalties for breaches of the obligations which it imposes. Penalties are also provided for false information by a servant; for secreting, destroying, &c., the pocket-register; fraudulent use, receipt or delivery of a pocket-register; issuing or signing a false pocket-register or entry; and knowingly using a false pocket-register. A small fee will be charged for registration and entries in the register. And servants born in Europe, America or Australasia are exempted from the operation of this chapter.

CHAPTER II.—OF THE CONTRACT OF SERVICE.

3. A contract binding one party to employ and remunerate, and the other to do any work in such manner as the former party directs, is called a contract of service: the remuneration contracted for is called the wages: the party contracting, by himself or his agent, to employ and remunerate is called the master; and the party contracting to do the work is called the servant. Contract of service. Wages. Master. Servant.

A domestic servant is a servant who contracts to do household work within his master's house or compound. Domestic servant.

4. The provisions herein contained as to the death of a master or a servant apply, where the master or servant is a private partnership, to its dissolution, and where the master or servant is a public company, to the completion of its winding-up. Application of provisions as to death.

5. Every person competent to contract may enter into a contract of service. Persons competent to enter into contracts of service.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this section a minor is competent to contract; but the contract cannot be enforced against him.

6. In the absence of express provision as to the amount of wages, the servant is presumed to contract for the remuneration ordinarily paid, at the place and time of entering into the contract, to servants of the same class. Presumption as to wages.

7. In the absence of express provisions as to the term of service and the mode of terminating the contract— Presumption as to term of service.

(a) a domestic servant is presumed to be hired for a month, and the contract is terminable, on the part of either master or servant, by fifteen days' notice of his intention to put an end to the service, or by payment or tender of fifteen days' wages in advance;

(b) a tutor, governess, clerk or other servant not a domestic servant, and not merely mechanical or agricultural or hired by piecework, is presumed to be hired for a year, and the contract is terminable, on the part of either master or servant, by three months' notice of his intention to put an end to the service, or by payment or tender of three months' wages in advance;

(c) a merely mechanical or agricultural servant and a person hired by piecework are presumed to be hired for no specific term, and the contract is terminable, at the will of either party, by notice to the other that the service is at an end.

8. Any notice of intention to put an end to service, whether given under the contract or under section 7, may be withdrawn by the party giving it and waived by the parties respectively, and thereupon the service shall continue as if no such notice had been given. Withdrawal of notice.

9. A contract of service is terminated— Termination of contract.

(a) by the death of the master, unless where the contract provides otherwise:

(b) by the death of the servant:

(c) by mutual consent of the parties:

(d) on expiration of the term of service:

(e) on expiration of a notice to put an end to service duly given under the contract or under section 7:

(f) by payment or tender of wages under section 7:

(g) when the master rightfully discharges the servant:

(h) when the servant rightfully quits his master's service.

10. Where, after the termination of a contract of service, the parties continue the relation of master and servant, they are presumed to have renewed the contract for the same wages and term of service. Presumption of renewal of contract.

CHAPTER III.—OF THE RIGHTS OF THE MASTER AND THE DUTIES OF THE SERVANT.

11. When a servant refuses to enter his master's service, the master is entitled to compensation for the injury caused by the refusal, unless the servant is prevented by some cause over which he has no control from performing his contract. Master's right to compensation when servant refuses to enter service.

12. When a servant has entered his master's service, he is under the following obligations:— Obligations of servant after entry.

(a) he must continue in such service during the whole time that he has contracted for, unless he has rightfully terminated it:

(b) he must run all risks incident to the service:

(c) he must obey all lawful orders of his master and of any person to whom the master has expressly or impliedly delegated power to give such orders:

(d) he must be honest and diligent in his master's business:

(e) he must be respectful to his master and, in the case of a domestic servant, the members of his master's family:

(f) he must take the same care of his master's property entrusted to him as he would be bound to take if he were a bailee:

(g) he must indemnify his master from liability to make compensation for injury caused by any wrongful act or omission of the servant:

(h) he must use his best endeavours to protect his master against the wrongful acts or omissions of his fellow-servants, if any:

(j) he must not set up the title of any third person to money or goods so received, in opposition to his master's title thereto, except where the master's title accrued fraudulently or wrongfully, or under a voidable contract which has become void.

13. The whole time of domestic servants belongs to the master: the time of other servants belongs to the master to such extent as is usual in the business in which they serve. Time of servant.

14. Except for the purpose of maintaining discipline on board a merchant ship, no master shall inflict any punishment on his servant, by way of imprisonment, corporal chastisement, forfeiture of wages or otherwise, whether the servant has or has not attained majority.

Master's power to punish.

Nothing contained in this section renders illegal any contract under which the master may, in the events therein specified, withhold the whole or any part of the servant's wages.

15. A master may discharge his servant, whether hired for a fixed term or not, for any of the following causes :—

Master's power to discharge.

(a) wilful disobedience of any lawful order of the master or of any person to whom the master has, expressly or impliedly, delegated power to give such order :

(b) habitual negligence in the master's business :

(c) conduct likely to injure such business materially :

(d) claiming to be a partner with his master :

(e) incompetence to discharge the duties for which the servant was hired :

(f) permanent disability from illness :

(g) imprisonment in a civil or criminal jail :

(h) failure to perform any of the obligations imposed upon him by section 12, clauses (e), (f), (g), (h), (i) and (j) :

(i) gross moral misconduct while in the master's service, or reasonable belief, on the part of the master, in the existence of such misconduct :

(j) or if the master discovers that the servant has been guilty of misconduct, before or after the commencement of his service, of such nature, that if the master had known or foreseen it, he would not have employed him.

The existence of any such cause, though not known to the master at the time of the discharge, is sufficient to justify a discharge under this section.

16. A master is entitled to compensation from any one who, knowing that any person is the servant of the master, deprives the master of the services of such person in any of the following ways (namely) :—

Master's right to sue for compensation for loss of service.

(a) by enticing him away from his master ;

(b) by harbouring and detaining him ;

(c) by any act punishable under the Indian Penal Code, chapter XIV or XVI ;

(d) in the case of a female servant, by seducing her.

Compensation may be recovered under this section, clauses (a) and (b), not merely for the loss of service, but also for the detriment (if any) resulting therefrom to the master.

Compensation may be recovered under this section, clause (c), for the loss of service down to the time when it appears by the evidence that the disability to serve may reasonably be expected to cease.

Compensation may be recovered under this section, clause (d), for loss of service and for the expenses (if any) reasonably incurred by the master in nursing and taking care of the servant during her pregnancy and about her delivery.

17. Where wages have been earned by a servant enticed away or harboured by another person knowing him to be a servant, the master may waive his right to sue under section 16, and recover from such other person the amount of the wages so earned.

Master's right to sue for wages earned by servant from third person.

Where a third person employs a servant during any time belonging to his master, whether with or without the master's knowledge and consent, the master may recover the amount of the wages (if any) so earned, unless he has waived his right thereto.

18. A master is not entitled to compensation for injury caused by the wrongful act or omission of a third person, when the master's servant, in the course and within the scope of his employment, might by the exercise of ordinary care have prevented such act or omission.

Effect of servant's contributory negligence.

CHAPTER IV.—OF THE RIGHTS OF THE SERVANT AND THE DUTIES OF THE MASTER.

19. Where a master refuses to receive his servant into his service, the servant is entitled to compensation for the injury caused by such refusal, unless the servant is at the date of the refusal (a) incompetent to discharge the duties for which he was hired, or (b) permanently disabled by illness.

Servant's right to compensation from master refusing to receive into service.

When the service is to begin on a future day, a suit for such compensation may be brought, at the option of the plaintiff, either immediately on the refusal or on or after such future day.

Illustration.

(a) A, in September, engages a servant, B, at Rs. 30 per mensem to accompany him on a tour for three months through India, to commence on the 1st of November. In October, A writes to B saying that he has changed his mind and no longer requires B's services. B thereupon institutes a suit against A for compensation. Afterwards, before the 1st of November, B obtains another engagement at Rs. 30 per mensem to commence on the 1st December. B, being neither incompetent nor disabled, is entitled to a decree for compensation against A.

20. Where a servant has entered his master's service, the master is under the following obligations :

Obligations of master—

(a) he must retain the servant during the whole time that he has contracted to do so, unless in case of discharge under section 15 ;

as to retaining servant ;

as to payment of wages ;

(c) he must indemnify the servant from liability for doing any act pursuant to an order of his master which he was bound

as to indemnifying servant ;

to obey, or any unlawful act, which the servant, not having reason to believe it to be unlawful, was induced by the conduct of his master to believe to be lawful :

(d) he must make compensation to the servant for injury caused to such servant solely by the master's personal neglect or want of skill :

as to compensating servant for injury caused by master's neglect. ;

(e) when the servant has to work along with fellow-servants, the master must use his best endeavours to provide fellow-servants of ordinary skill and care :

as to fellow-servants ;

Explanation.—In this clause the expression "fellow-servants" means servants of one master jointly engaged on his behalf in the same operation :

(f) where the servant is employed in a work of danger, the master must provide proper materials and apparatus for the work, and must take all other reasonable precautions so as to protect the servant against unnecessary risk.

as to servants employed in dangerous work.

Illustrations.

(a) A, a servant, in obedience to the command of his master, B, commits a trespass on the property of C, not having reason to believe that he is doing any injury. C sues A for damages and recovers Rs. 50. A is entitled to recover the Rs. 50 from B.

(b) A hires B, a brickmaker, to make bricks with C's trademark thereon. B, having no reason to believe that the trademark was C's, proceeds to make the bricks accordingly. C sues B to restrain him from using the trademark and obtains an injunction with costs which B pays. B may recover the amount so paid from A.

(c) A orders his servant B to sell an unsound mare, but not to warrant her soundness. B sells the mare to C with a warranty of soundness. C sues and recovers damages from B for breach of the warranty. B cannot recover these damages from A.

(d) A, a master-builder, personally directs his workmen to make a scaffold out of poles which he knows to be unsound. The scaffold gives way, and B, a workman upon it in A's employ, falls and breaks his leg. B may sue A for compensation for this injury.

(e) A and B are lessees of a coal-pit. B acts as banksman at the mouth of the pit, and whilst so acting is guilty of negligence whereby C, a pitman in the service of A and B, is injured. Both A and B are liable for the injury.

21. When a servant has sustained particular injury by a breach of any of the obligations imposed on his master by section 20, clauses (e) and (f), the servant is entitled to compensation for such injury, provided that he could not have avoided the injury by the exercise of ordinary care, and at the time of the injury he had no reason to believe that the breach had been committed.

Servants' right to compensation for breach of duty imposed by section 20, clauses (e) and (f).

Illustrations.

(a) A employs B and C to row, and D to steer, his boat. A has done nothing to ascertain D's competence to act as steersman. Owing to D's want of ordinary skill, the boat collides with a ship in full sail, and B and C are injured. B and C may sue A for compensation.

(b) A railway company employs A to drive a locomotive, B to be guard of a train and C to regulate the switches. The company has neglected to ascertain that C was ordinarily careful, and owing to his carelessness the train runs off the line and A is killed and B is maimed. A's legal representative and B may sue the company for compensation.

(c) A employs B to work as his servant in a mine. Owing to A's negligence the roof of the mine is left unsafe. B, having no reason to believe in the existence of the danger, begins to work in the mine and a stone falls from the roof and breaks B's leg. B may sue A for compensation.

(d) A orders his servant B to carry a bag of rice up a ladder, which A knows, but B has no reason to believe, to be unsafe. The order is within the scope of B's service and B obeys it. The ladder breaks and B falls and fractures his thigh. B may sue A for compensation.

22. Where a servant sues for compensation for injury caused by breach of any obligation imposed by section 20, clauses (e) and (f), and establishes against any foreman or other agent empowered to direct the work in performing which the injury was received, or to manage any apparatus employed in that work, such proof of negligence in providing fellow servants or taking precautions as would make him liable if he were himself the master, his negligence shall be deemed to be negligence on the part of the master.

Negligence of foreman.

23. When a servant is wrongfully discharged, he is entitled to compensation for the injury caused by the discharge in not being allowed to serve and earn the wages contracted for.

Compensation for wrongful dismissal.

The amount of such compensation is subject to the following rules in cases to which they are applicable :—

Measure of compensation.

(a) When the contract is to employ for a specified term, the amount shall be the difference between the wages which the servant would have received under his contract with his master and the wages which he has, or might reasonably have, received under another contract of service :

(b) When the contract is terminable by fifteen days' notice, the amount shall be fifteen days' wages.

(c) When the contract is terminable by three months' notice, the amount shall be three months' wages.

24. A contract of service, even for a specified term, may be terminated by the servant at any time

Termination of service by servant for master's fault.

(a) in case of any wilful or permanent breach of the obligations of his master to him as a servant ;

(b) if the master commits against the servant any offence punishable under the Indian Penal Code, Chapter XVI, XVII, XXI or XXII ;

(c) if the servant is prevented by permanent illness or other cause over which he has no control from fulfilling his contract.

Illustrations.

(b) A, a sailor, contracts with B, the master of C's ship, for a voyage out and home. During the outward voyage B voluntarily and unlawfully causes grievous hurt to A. A may at once terminate the contract.

25. When the servant is wrongfully discharged, or when the contract is terminated under section 24, or by the death of either party, the servant or his legal representative, as the case may be, is entitled to the wages

Wages of servant in case of wrongful discharge or termination of contract for master's fault or by death.

(if any) due for the period during which he has actually served the master.

For the purpose of this section all wages shall (in the absence of an express agreement to the contrary) be deemed to accrue due from day to day.

CHAPTER V.—OF THE LIABILITY OF ONE FELLOW-SERVANT TO ANOTHER.

Liability of one fellow-servant to another.

26. One fellow-servant is liable to make compensation to another for injury caused by neglect or want of skill whilst jointly engaged on behalf of their common master.

CHAPTER VI.—OF THE LIABILITY OF A MASTER TO THIRD PERSONS FOR THE ACTS OF HIS SERVANT.

When servant may bind master by contract

27. A servant may bind his master by contracts entered into in his master's name only when the servant, if he were an agent, could bind his master if he were that agent's principal.

Liability of master for wrongful acts of servant.

28. A master is ordinarily liable to make compensation for injury caused by the wrongful act or omission of his servant, if that act or omission occurred in the course and within the scope of the servant's employment. And the circumstance that the act or omission was not necessary for the proper performance of the servant's duty, or was contrary to his master's orders, does not relieve the master from such liability.

Illustrations.

(a) A, the servant of B, a pawnbroker, takes a pawn from C, and when C comes and tenders the money due to B refuses to deliver the pawn. C may sue B for compensation for A's wrongful act.

(b) A, the shopman of a jeweller B, sells false jewels for true ones to a customer C. C may sue B for compensation for A's wrongful act.

(c) A, the servant of a carter, B, negligently runs his cart over C. C may sue B for the injury caused by A's negligence.

(d) A hires horses and a coachman B, from a livery stable-keeper C. B negligently drives A's carriage over D. Unless A ordered or adopted B's act, D cannot sue A for the injury caused by B, for B is the servant of C and not of A.

(e) A, the servant of B, without B's knowledge, wrongfully takes B's carriage and horses for his own purposes and drives against C. B is not liable to a suit by C for compensation for A's wrongful act.

(f) A, the officer of a Railway Company authorized to give passengers into custody for travelling without tickets for themselves, but not for travelling without tickets for their horses, gives B into custody for travelling without a ticket for his horses. B cannot sue the Company for compensation for A's act, for A acted beyond the scope of his employment.

(g) A hires B as his washerman and C as his coachman. B bringing home A's clothes meets C driving A's carriage and, owing to C's want of ordinary care, is knocked down and injured. B may sue A for compensation.

(h) A collision occurs between two steamboats, one belonging to X and commanded by his servant, the other belonging to Y and commanded by his servant. The collision is caused by the negligence of both commanders. Any passenger in either steamboat may sue X or Y, or both, for compensation for personal injury suffered in the collision.

Master when not responsible for servant's negligence.

29. Nothing in section 28 shall render a master responsible for injury caused by his servant's default—

(a) to any person above the age of ten years who might, by the exercise of ordinary care, have avoided the injury;

(b) where the master has been obliged by law to employ the servant;

(c) where the master is a public servant and the servant is in his employment as such;

(d) where the person injured by the default is a fellow-servant of the wrong-doer jointly engaged on behalf of the master in the same operation, and the master had used his best endeavours to ensure that the wrong-doer was a person of ordinary skill and care.

Volunteers.

30. For the purposes of section 28 and section 29, persons expressly or impliedly permitted by another person to act as his servants without remuneration are servants of such person.

CHAPTER VII.—OF THE LIABILITY OF A SERVANT TO THIRD PERSONS FOR ACTS DONE ON BEHALF OF HIS MASTER.

Servant when bound by contract in master's name.

31. A servant, other than a domestic servant, is bound by contracts entered into in his master's name only where the servant, if he were an agent, would be personally liable.

A domestic servant is bound by such contracts only where he has entered into them without his master's authority.

Servant when liable to third person for wrongful act.

32. Where a servant, acting on behalf of his master, does a wrongful act to a third person, the servant is liable to be sued as a principal by such third person for compensation for the injury caused by such act. But where a servant (other than a public servant) is guilty of negligence only, no such liability arises, except in the case provided for by section 26. Public servants guilty of negligence are liable to be sued by the persons injured thereby for compensation for such injury.

CHAPTER VIII.—OF FORMS.

Use of forms in second schedule.

33. Subject to the power conferred on the High Courts by the Code of Civil Procedure, section 639, and by the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth of Victoria, chapter 104, section 15, the forms set forth in the second schedule hereto annexed, with such variation as the circumstances of each case require, shall be used for the respective purposes therein mentioned.

CHAPTER IX.—OF THE JURISDICTION OF MAGISTRATES IN DISPUTES BETWEEN MASTER AND SERVANT.

Failure to perform work on account of which servant has received an advance.

34. When a master advances to a mechanical or agricultural servant money on account of any work which he has contracted to execute, and such servant wilfully and without sufficient excuse neglects or refuses to perform his contract, the master may complain to a Magistrate, who shall thereupon issue a summons or warrant, as he thinks fit, for bringing such servant before him.

If the Magistrate after hearing such evidence as the parties may adduce is satisfied of the truth of the complaint, he shall, at the option of the master, order the servant, on or before such day as the Magistrate directs, either

(a) to repay the money advanced or such part thereof as the Magistrate thinks fit, or

(b) to execute the work according to the terms of the contract.

If the servant fails to comply with either of such orders, the Magistrate may sentence him to imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months, or, when the order is for repayment of a sum of money, for such term or until such sum is sooner repaid.

Where the Magistrate makes an order under clause (b) of this section, he may also, at the master's request, require the servant to enter into a recognizance, with sufficient security for the due performance of the order; and in default of his entering into such recognizance, or furnishing such security to the satisfaction of the Magistrate, may sentence him to imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months.

Disputes between masters and workmen on railways, &c.

35. Any Magistrate may enquire into and decide disputes as to wages, hire of carriage, and price of work between any masters and their servants employed in the construction of any railway, canal or other public work sanctioned by Government: Provided that the amount in dispute does not exceed two hundred rupees.

Cases under this section shall be dealt with, so far as may be, in accordance with the Code of Civil Procedure. But there shall be no appeal against the decision in any such case.

When the Magistrate has heard and decided the case, he shall make an order for the payment, immediately or within such time as he directs, of such sum of money (if any) as appears to him to be justly due, and such sum shall be recoverable as if it were a fine.

Punishment for breach of contract to work for fixed term on railway, &c.

36. Whoever contracts to work for a specified term on any such railway, canal or other public work, or to execute any specific work in connection therewith, and who wilfully and without sufficient excuse neglects or refuses to perform such contract, shall be liable, on conviction before a Magistrate, to a fine not exceeding twenty rupees.

Power to order performance of contract.

But the Magistrate may, at the request of the master, instead of punishing the servant so neglecting or refusing, order him by himself or another to execute the work according to the terms of his contract; and if he fail to comply with such order, the Magistrate may sentence him to imprisonment for a term which may extend to two months.

'Master' and 'Magistrate.'

37. In this chapter "master" includes also any person authorized to act on behalf of a master; and "Magistrate" means, in the towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay a Presidency Magistrate, and elsewhere a Magistrate empowered by the Local Government to act under this chapter.

CHAPTER X.—OF THE REGISTRATION OF DOMESTIC SERVANTS.

Power to establish registry-office and appoint Registrar.

38. The Local Government may from time to time by notification published in the official Gazette, (a) establish for any local area an office for registering domestic servants, to be called a Servants' Registration-office, (b) appoint such person as it thinks fit to be Registrar of such office, and to keep a general Register of domestic servants for such local area, and (c) make rules consistent with this chapter for the guidance of such Registrar in the discharge of his official duties.

Masters to cause servants to be registered.

39. Within one month of publishing a notification establishing a Servants' Registration office and appointing a Registrar of such office, every master of domestic servants, residing in the local area comprised in such notification shall, in order that such servants may be registered in the general Register, make, sign and send to the Registrar a list showing in the case of each of the said servants his name, the capacity in which he is employed, and the date on which he entered his master's service.

Masters to supply lists to Registrar.

Refusal to register such persons.

If the Registrar has not reason to believe that the applicant is fit to become a domestic servant, he shall refuse to register him.

Registration when to be refused.

44. The Registrar shall not register any person who is by repute a robber, house-breaker or thief, or a receiver of stolen property knowing the same to have been stolen, or of notoriously bad livelihood, or any person who has been convicted of any offence under chapters XVI, XVII and XIX of the Indian Penal Code.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to amend and codify the law governing the relation of Master and Servant. The want of a compact and definite system of law upon this subject has long been felt. This want, it is hoped, will be supplied by the present Bill. The Bill is based mainly upon the English law; but a few deviations from that law have been made; and some provisions have been adopted from the Prussian and New York Codes. The Bill, further, contains provisions for the registration of domestic servants. A desire for legislation in this direction has, at various times, been strongly expressed in many quarters; and it is hoped that the rules in the present Bill upon this subject will be found effective in practice. In substance they have been mainly taken from the Ceylon Ordinance No. 28 of 1871, which is now successfully in operation at Colombo.

The Bill is divided into ten chapters.

Preliminary.

Chapter I contains the usual preliminary matter, and saves the provisions of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, as to compensation. The Acts relating to emigrant labourers and merchant seamen are also saved.

The Contract of Service.

Chapter II deals with the contract of service, which it defines so as to include contracts of service of every description. A domestic servant is also defined as one "who contracts to do household work within his master's house or compound." This definition is made wider in its terms than the definition of the corresponding class of servants in English law, in order to include table servants and others who, in this country, do not usually sleep in their master's house. It declares that every person competent to contract may enter into a contract of service; and supplies an omission of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, section 11, by providing that a minor may enter into such a contract, but that it cannot be enforced against him. It declares that in the absence of express provision on that head, the servant's remuneration shall be presumed to be that ordinarily paid at the time and place of contract to servants of the same class. It provides that in the absence of express provisions as to the term of service and the mode of terminating the contract, it shall be presumed that (a) a domestic servant is hired for a month, and the contract is terminable by fifteen days' notice or payment or tender of fifteen days' wages; (b) a servant of a higher class is hired for a year, and the contract is terminable by three months' notice or payment or tender of three months' wages; and (c) a merely mechanical or agricultural servant hired by piecework is hired for no specific time, and the contract is terminable by notice at the will of either party. The provision for the termination of the contract in the case of domestic servants is drawn from Bengal Regulation VII of 1819. Section 9 sets forth the events which terminate a contract of service; and section 10 provides for the case in which both parties, after the termination of the contract, continue the relation, by directing that it shall then be presumed that the contract has been renewed for the same wages and term of service.

The rights of the Master and the duties of the Servant.

Chapter III defines the master's rights and the servant's duties. It provides for compensation to the master for the wilful refusal of the servant to enter the service. It declares the duties of the servant after entering the service; amongst these duties attention may be directed to (d) that of being respectful to his master and, if a domestic servant, to the members of his master's family; (e) the servant's liability as a bailee for his master's property entrusted to him; (f) his duty to indemnify his master for liabilities to compensate for injury caused by the servant's wrongful act or omission; (g) his obligation to endeavour to protect his master against wrongful acts or omissions of his fellow-servants; (h) his liability to account for his master's money or goods received by him, and to deliver up as soon as possible, everything he receives on his master's account; and (i) which forbids a servant to set up an adverse title to his master's property, unless the master's title accrued fraudulently or wrongfully or under an avoided contract. These provisions, which are somewhat wider in their scope than the English law, include, it is believed, all the proper duties of a servant. In section 13 there is an express provision, adopted from the New York Civil Code, which declares the master entitled to the whole time of his household servants, and such portion as is customary of the time of his other servants. This provision, it is conceived, is in accordance with the present law. By section 14 the punishment in any shape of servants by their master is forbidden, except for the purpose of maintaining discipline on board merchant vessels. But contracts, under which a master may in certain events withhold part of his servant's wages, will not be rendered illegal. Section 15 describes the cases in which the servant may be discharged. These cases include habitually negligent conduct; conduct or claims likely to be materially injurious to the master; incompetence; permanent disability from illness; imprisonment; breaches of the duties above referred to under section 12; gross moral misconduct or reasonable belief by the master of such misconduct; and the discovery by the master of such misconduct of the servant as would have led the master not to employ him. Section 16 provides for compensation being made to the master by any one knowingly depriving the master of his servant's services, by enticing away, harbouring or detaining the servant; injuring him by acts punishable under chapters XIV and XVI of the Penal Code (relating to offences affecting the public health, &c., and the human body); or, in the case of a female servant, by seducing her. In this latter case the Bill departs, usefully it is thought, from English law by requiring on the part of the seducer knowledge of the master's rights. This section also lays down the usual rules for ascertaining the amount of compensation to be awarded in the cases provided for by this section; and section 17 provides that the master may waive his right to such compensation, and sue for the wages earned by the servant while employed by the wrong-doer. This section also provides for the master's recovering any wages earned by his servant during time belonging to his master, unless the master has waived this right. Section 18 declares that a master is not entitled to be compensated for injuries caused by third persons, when his own servant, acting as such, has by his negligence contributed to cause such injuries.

The rights of the Servant and the duties of the Master.

Chapter IV contains correlative provisions to those of chapter III, and defines the servant's rights and the master's duties. It provides that the master shall compensate a competent servant for refusing to receive him into his service; and gives the servant an option of suing immediately upon the refusal, or of awaiting the time for the commencement of the service. The master's obligations are described in section 20. These include, as well as the obligations to retain and pay the servant, an express duty to indemnify him for liability incurred in obeying his master's lawful orders, or orders which the master's conduct induced the servant to believe lawful. These obligations also include the duty of compensating the servant for injury done by the master; and the last two clauses prescribe that the master must endeavour to provide properly qualified fellow-servants, and must take all reasonable precautions to protect his servant when employed in dangerous work. Section 21 declares the servant entitled to compensation in case of breach of the duties described in the last two clauses, provided that he could not by ordinary care have avoided the injury, and that at the time of the injury he had no reason to believe the breach had been committed. In section 22 a new provision is introduced which seems consonant with justice, which has recently been recommended by the Railway Accidents Commissioners, and which entitles a servant to compensation from the master for injuries caused by a breach of the last two clauses of section 20, when the injury is caused by the negligence of a foreman having the control of the work, or the management of apparatus employed in the work, in performing which the injury is caused. Section 23 declares a servant wrongfully discharged entitled to compensation for such discharge, and contains rules for such compensation. The servant has, by section 24, a right to determine any contract of service at any time for a wilful or permanent breach by his master of his obligations; or if the master commits against the servant an offence punishable under the chapters of the Penal Code relating to the human body, property, defamation and criminal intimidation, &c.; or if the servant is prevented by permanent illness, or other cause over which he has no control, from fulfilling his contract. It is declared by section 25 that, in the case of a servant wrongfully discharged, or whose contract is terminated under section 24, or by the death of either party, the wages are payable for the period of actual service; and that such wages, in the absence of express agreement to the contrary, shall be deemed to accrue due from day to day. This provision will prevent the hardship which frequently arises, under English law, to a servant who, without fault of his own, has not completed his term of service, and who therefore gets nothing for the time he has served.

Liability of fellow-servants.

Chapter V consists of a single section, which provides that one fellow-servant shall compensate another for injury caused by his neglect or want of skill in the common employ. This is in accordance with the Scotch law, and, it seems, with justice; but the American law and, it would appear, the English law also, is otherwise.

Liability of Master to third persons for his Servant's acts.

Chapter VI renders a master liable upon contracts made by his servant in cases when his servant could bind him if the servant were his agent. It declares (section 28) that a master is ordinarily liable for the wrongful acts or omissions of his servant in the course and within the scope of his employment; although such act or omission was not necessary for the performance of the servant's duty, or was contrary to his master's orders. This section will, it is hoped, remove the uncertainty which has prevailed on this subject. Illustration (h) to this section is intended to get rid of the strange doctrine as to the identification of passengers by public conveyances with the persons conducting those conveyances (Thorogood v. Bryan, 8 C. B. 115). Section 29 saves the master from responsibility in the case of (a) contributory negligence of the person injured; b) compulsory employment, as in the case of pilots; (c) the servants of public servants; and (d) fellow-servants, where the master has performed his duty in properly choosing the wrong-doer. By section 30 volunteers are included in the provisions of sections 28 and 29; and there appears to be no reason that, because they are unpaid, they should be otherwise placed on any different footing from paid servants.

The liability of a Servant to third persons for acts done on behalf of his Master.

Chapter VII provides that a servant, other than a domestic servant, is liable on contracts entered into in his master's name, only when he would be personally liable if he were an agent; and that a domestic servant is liable on contracts unauthorized by his master. This latter provision is inserted because the general rule laid down by the section would impose too great a liability upon servants of this class. The wrongful acts of a servant acting on behalf of his master done to persons not in the service of his master, are provided for by section 32. The servant is liable to the injured person for such acts, but not for negligence, except in the case of public servants.

Forms.

Chapter VIII provides simple forms of plaints and written statements for most of the suits which will lie under the proposed enactment.

Jurisdiction of Magistrates in disputes between Master and Servant.

Chapter IX incorporates the provisions of Act XIII of 1859 (to provide for the punishment of breaches of contract by Artificers, Workmen, and Labourers in certain cases) and those of Act IX of 1860 (to make provision for the speedy determination of certain disputes between workmen engaged in Railway and other public works and their employers), and gives the Presidency Magistrates and all other Magistrates duly empowered jurisdiction to entertain complaints of the kind specified.

The registration of domestic servants.

Chapter X authorizes the Local Government to establish, by notification, a Servants' Registration Office for any local area, and to provide for the working of such offices. It requires every master of domestic servants, residing in the local area, within one month of the publication of such notification, to send a list of the names of his servants, the capacity in which they are employed, and the date of entering his service. Every such servant must within three months of such publication attend personally before the Registrar, and furnish him with such information as he may require for the purposes of the Act. The servant is then to be registered, full particulars relating to him and his service being recorded.

The servant is also to be provided with a pocket-register containing the same details. Provision is made in case of the determination, otherwise than by death, of the service of any servant mentioned in the list above mentioned. In such case the master must furnish the Registrar with a memorandum of the date and cause of such termination, unless the servant has previously obtained his pocket-register. The Registrar is required to register any applicant desirous of becoming a domestic servant and whom he has reason to believe fit; he is also required to register full particulars as to his person, and the names and residences of any persons who certify to his respectability. A pocket-register is to be thereupon issued to the applicant. The Registrar must refuse to register the applicant if he has not reason to believe him fit to become a domestic servant. He must also refuse to register certain reputed criminals and bad characters. No person may after three months from the publication of the notification under this chapter, hire a domestic servant who fails to produce his pocket-register, or whose pocket-register does not record the termination of his last previous contract of service, if any. The master hiring a registered servant must require him to produce his pocket-register, and must enter therein the date of his contract of service, and the capacity in which he is employed. Similarly the master must, if the service is terminated otherwise than by death, enter the date and cause of such termination, and the servant's character, in his pocket-register; or he may refuse to give the servant a character, or to state the cause of such termination; but he must in that case sign and send to the Registrar a memorandum of his reasons for so refusing. He must also report to the Registrar if he is unable to make such entry as before mentioned through the failure of the servant to produce his pocket-register. The chapter then provides for the attendance of servants at the Registrar's Office for the purpose of having the subsequent entries in their pocket-registers recorded in the general register; for the production of such pocket-registers to the Police, and for entering any conviction of the servant therein. This last provision is taken from the Prussian Landrecht. The chapter then provides for the registration of the commencement or termination of any service of a registered servant which takes place within any local area for which a Servants' Registration Office has not been established. Such registration is to be made at the nearest Police-station, and information thereof sent to the Registrar of the local area in which the servant was registered. Provision is made for the issue of duplicate pocket-registers in case the originals are lost or worn out. The chapter then provides penalties for breaches of the obligations which it imposes. Penalties are also provided for false information by a servant; for secreting, destroying, &c., the pocket-register; fraudulent use, receipt or delivery of a pocket-register; issuing or signing a false pocket-register or entry; and knowingly using a false pocket-register. A small fee will be charged for registration and entries in the register. And servants born in Europe, America or Australasia are exempted from the operation of this chapter.

CHAPTER II.—OF THE CONTRACT OF SERVICE.

Contract of service. 3. A contract binding one party to employ and remunerate, and the other to do any work in such manner as the former party directs, is called a contract of service: the remuneration contracted for is called the wages: the party contracting, by himself or his agent, to employ and remunerate is called the master; and the party contracting to do the work is called the servant.

Wages.

Master.

Servant.

A domestic servant is a servant who contracts to do household work within his master's house or compound. Domestic servant.

4. The provisions herein contained as to the death of a master or a servant apply, where the master or servant is a private partnership, to its dissolution, and where the master or servant is a public company, to the completion of its winding-up. Application of provisions as to death.

5. Every person competent to contract may enter into a contract of service. Persons competent to enter into contracts of service.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this section a minor is competent to contract; but the contract cannot be enforced against him.

6. In the absence of express provision as to the amount of wages, the servant is presumed to contract for the remuneration ordinarily paid, at the place and time of entering into the contract, to servants of the same class. Presumption as to wages.

7. In the absence of express provisions as to the term of service and the mode of terminating the contract— Presumption as to term of service.

(a) a domestic servant is presumed to be hired for a month, and the contract is terminable, on the part of either master or servant, by fifteen days' notice of his intention to put an end to the service, or by payment or tender of fifteen days' wages in advance;

(b) a tutor, governess, clerk or other servant not a domestic servant, and not merely mechanical or agricultural or hired by piecework, is presumed to be hired for a year, and the contract is terminable, on the part of either master or servant, by three months' notice of his intention to put an end to the service, or by payment or tender of three months' wages in advance;

(c) a merely mechanical or agricultural servant and a person hired by piecework are presumed to be hired for no specific term, and the contract is terminable, at the will of either party, by notice to the other that the service is at an end.

8. Any notice of intention to put an end to service, whether given under the contract or under section 7, may be withdrawn by the party giving it and waived by the parties respectively, and thereupon the service shall continue as if no such notice had been given. Withdrawal of notice.

9. A contract of service is terminated— Termination of contract.

(a) by the death of the master, unless where the contract provides otherwise:

(b) by the death of the servant:

(c) by mutual consent of the parties:

(d) on expiration of the term of service:

(e) on expiration of a notice to put an end to service duly given under the contract, or under section 7:

(f) by payment or tender of wages under section 7:

(g) when the master rightfully discharges the servant:

(h) when the servant rightfully quits his master's service.

10. Where, after the termination of a contract of service, the parties continue the relation of master and servant, they are presumed to have renewed the contract for the same wages and term of service. Presumption of renewal of contract.

CHAPTER III.—OF THE RIGHTS OF THE MASTER AND THE DUTIES OF THE SERVANT.

11. When a servant refuses to enter his master's service, the master is entitled to compensation for the injury caused by the refusal, unless the servant is prevented by some cause over which he has no control from performing his contract. Master's right to compensation when servant refuses to enter service.

12. When a servant has entered his master's service, he is under the following obligations:— Obligations of servant after entry.

(a) he must continue in such service during the whole time that he has contracted for, unless he has rightfully terminated it:

(b) he must run all risks incident to the service:

(c) he must obey all lawful orders of his master and of any person to whom the master has expressly or impliedly delegated power to give such orders:

(d) he must be honest and diligent in his master's business:

(e) he must be respectful to his master and, in the case of a domestic servant, the members of his master's family:

(f) he must take the same care of his master's property entrusted to him as he would be bound to take if he were a bailee:

(g) he must indemnify his master from liability to make compensation for injury caused by any wrongful act or omission of the servant:

(h) he must use his best endeavours to protect his master against the wrongful acts or omissions of his fellow-servants, if any:

(i) he must, as often as may be reasonable, account for money or goods received from or on account of his master, and must, without demand, deliver to his master as soon as, with reasonable diligence, he can find him, everything that he receives on his master's account:

(j) he must not set up the title of any third person to money or goods so received, in opposition to his master's title thereto, except where the master's title accrued fraudulently or wrongfully, or under a voidable contract which has become void.

13. The whole time of domestic servants belongs to the master: the time of other servants belongs to the master to such extent as is usual in the business in which they serve. Time of servant.

14. Except for the purpose of maintaining discipline on board a merchant ship, no master shall inflict any punishment on his servant, by way of imprisonment, corporal chastisement, forfeiture of wages or otherwise, whether the servant has or has not attained majority.

Master's power to punish.

Nothing contained in this section renders illegal any contract under which the master may, in the events therein specified, withhold the whole or any part of the servant's wages.

15. A master may discharge his servant, whether hired for a fixed term or not, for any of the following causes:—

Master's power to discharge.

(a) wilful disobedience of any lawful order of the master or of any person to whom the master has, expressly or impliedly, delegated power to give such order:

(b) habitual negligence in the master's business:

(c) conduct likely to injure such business materially:

(d) claiming to be a partner with his master:

(e) incompetence to discharge the duties for which the servant was hired:

(f) permanent disability from illness:

(g) imprisonment in a civil or criminal jail:

(h) failure to perform any of the obligations imposed upon him by section 12, clauses (a), (f), (g), (h), (i) and (j):

(i) gross moral misconduct while in the master's service, or reasonable belief, on the part of the master, in the existence of such misconduct:

(j) or if the master discovers that the servant has been guilty of misconduct, before or after the commencement of his service, of such nature, that if the master had known or foreseen it, he would not have employed him.

The existence of any such cause, though not known to the master at the time of the discharge, is sufficient to justify a discharge under this section.

16. A master is entitled to compensation from any one who, knowing that any person is the servant of the master, deprives the master of the services of such person in any of the following ways (namely):—

Master's right to sue for compensation for loss of service.

(a) by enticing him away from his master;

(b) by harbouring and detaining him;

(c) by any act punishable under the Indian Penal Code, chapter XIV or XVI;

(d) in the case of a female servant, by seducing her.

Compensation may be recovered under this section, clauses (a) and (b), not merely for the loss of service, but also for the detriment (if any) resulting therefrom to the master.

Compensation may be recovered under this section, clause (c), for the loss of service down to the time when it appears by the evidence that the disability to serve may reasonably be expected to cease.

Compensation may be recovered under this section, clause (d), for loss of service and for the expenses (if any) reasonably incurred by the master in nursing and taking care of the servant during her pregnancy and about her delivery.

17. Where wages have been earned by a servant and enticed away or harboured by another person knowing him to be a servant, the master may waive his right to sue under section 16, and recover from such other person the amount of the wages so earned.

Master's right to sue for wages earned by servant from third person.

Where a third person employs a servant during any time belonging to his master, whether with or without the master's knowledge and consent, the master may recover the amount of the wages (if any) so earned, unless he has waived his right thereto.

18. A master is not entitled to compensation for injury caused by the wrongful act or omission of a third person, when the master's servant, in the course and within the scope of his employment, might by the exercise of ordinary care have prevented such act or omission.

Effect of servant's contributory negligence.

CHAPTER IV.—OF THE RIGHTS OF THE SERVANT AND THE DUTIES OF THE MASTER.

19. Where a master refuses to receive his servant into his service, the servant is entitled to compensation for the injury caused by such refusal, unless the servant is at the date of the refusal (a) incompetent to discharge the duties for which he was hired, or (b) permanently disabled by illness.

Servant's right to compensation from master refusing to receive into service.

When the service is to begin on a future day, a suit for such compensation may be brought, at the option of the plaintiff, either immediately on the refusal or on or after such future day.

Illustration.

(a) A, in September, engages a servant, B, at Rs. 30 per mensem to accompany him on a tour for three months through India, to commence on the 1st of November. In October, A writes to B saying that he has changed his mind and no longer requires B's services. B thereupon institutes a suit against A for compensation. Afterwards, before the 1st of November, B obtains another engagement at Rs. 30 per mensem to commence on the 1st December. B, being neither incompetent nor disabled, is entitled to a decree for compensation against A.

20. Where a servant has entered his master's service, the master is under the following obligations:

Obligations of master—

(a) he must retain the servant during the whole time that he has contracted to do so, unless in case of discharge under section 15:

as to retaining servant;

(b) he must pay the wages which he has contracted to pay; provided that, where such wages are payable periodically, and the servant is rightfully discharged, the servant is not entitled to any wages for the portion of time during which he has served since the last preceding periodical payment:

as to payment of wages;

(c) he must indemnify the servant from liability for doing any act pursuant to an order of his master which he was bound to obey, or any unlawful act, which the servant, not having reason to believe it to be unlawful, was induced by the conduct of his master to believe to be lawful:

as to indemnifying servant;

(d) he must make compensation to the servant for injury caused to such servant solely by the master's personal neglect or want of skill:

as to compensating servant for injury caused by master's neglect;

(e) when the servant has to work along with fellow-servants, the master must use his best endeavours to provide fellow-servants of ordinary skill and care:

as to fellow-servants;

Explanation.—In this clause the expression "fellow-servants" means servants of one master jointly engaged on his behalf in the same operation:

(f) where the servant is employed in a work of danger, the master must provide proper materials and apparatus for the work, and must take all other reasonable precautions so as to protect the servant against unnecessary risk.

as to servants employed in dangerous work.

Illustrations.

(a) A, a servant, in obedience to the command of his master, B, commits a trespass on the property of C, not having reason to believe that he is doing any injury. C sues A for damages and recovers Rs. 50. A is entitled to recover the Rs. 50 from B.

(b) A hires B, a brickmaker, to make bricks with C's trademark thereon. B, having no reason to believe that the trademark was C's, proceeds to make the bricks accordingly. C sues B to restrain him from using the trademark and obtains an injunction with costs which B pays. B may recover the amount so paid from A.

(c) A orders his servant B to sell an unsound mare, but not to warrant her soundness. B sells the mare to C with a warranty of soundness. C sues and recovers damages from B for breach of the warranty. B cannot recover these damages from A.

(d) A, a master-builder, personally directs his workmen to make a scaffold out of poles which he knows to be unsound. The scaffold gives way, and B, a workman upon it in A's employ, falls and breaks his leg. B may sue A for compensation for this injury.

(e) A and B are lessees of a coal-pit. B acts as banksman at the mouth of the pit, and whilst so acting is guilty of negligence whereby C, a pitman in the service of A and B, is injured. Both A and B are liable for the injury.

21. When a servant has sustained particular injury by a breach of any of the obligations imposed on his master by section 20, clauses (e) and (f), the servant is entitled to compensation for such injury, provided that he could not have avoided the injury by the exercise of ordinary care, and at the time of the injury he had no reason to believe that the breach had been committed.

Servants' right to compensation for breach of duty imposed by section 20, clauses (e) and (f).

Illustrations.

(a) A employs B and C to row, and D to steer, his boat. A has done nothing to ascertain D's competence to act as steersman. Owing to D's want of ordinary skill, the boat collides with a ship in full sail, and B and C are injured. B and C may sue A for compensation.

(b) A railway company employs A to drive a locomotive, B to be guard of a train and C to regulate the switches. The company has neglected to ascertain that C was ordinarily careful, and owing to his carelessness the train runs off the line and A is killed and B is maimed. A's legal representative and B may sue the company for compensation.

(c) A employs B to work as his servant in a mine. Owing to A's negligence the roof of the mine is left unsafe. B, having no reason to believe in the existence of the danger, begins to work in the mine and a stone falls from the roof and breaks B's leg. B may sue A for compensation.

(d) A orders his servant B to carry a bag of rice up a ladder, which A knows, but B has no reason to believe, to be unsafe. The order is within the scope of B's service and B obeys it. The ladder breaks and B falls and fractures his thigh. B may sue A for compensation.

22. Where a servant sues for compensation for injury caused by breach of any obligation imposed by section 20, clauses (e) and (f), and establishes against any foreman or other agent empowered to direct the work in performing which the injury was received, or to manage any apparatus employed in that work, such proof of negligence in providing fellow servants or taking precautions as would make him liable if he were himself the master, his negligence shall be deemed to be negligence on the part of the master.

Negligence of foreman.

23. When a servant is wrongfully discharged, he is entitled to compensation for the injury caused by the discharge in not being allowed to serve and earn the wages contracted for.

Compensation for wrongful dismissal.

The amount of such compensation is subject to the following rules in cases to which they are applicable:—

Measure of compensation.

(a) When the contract is to employ for a specified term, the amount shall be the difference between the wages which the servant would have received under his contract with his master and the wages which he has, or might reasonably have, received under another contract of service:

(b) When the contract is terminable by fifteen days' notice, the amount shall be fifteen days' wages.

(c) When the contract is terminable by three months' notice, the amount shall be three months' wages.

(b) A, a sailor, contracts with B, the master of C's ship, for a voyage out and home. During the outward voyage B voluntarily and unlawfully causes grievous hurt to A. A may at once terminate the contract.

25. When the servant is wrongfully discharged, or when the contract is terminated under section 24 or by the death of either party, the servant or his legal representative, as the case may be, is entitled to the wages

Wages of servant in case of wrongful discharge or termination of contract for master's fault or by death.

(if any) due for the period during which he has actually served the master.

For the purpose of this section all wages shall (in the absence of an express agreement to the contrary) be deemed to accrue due from day to day.

CHAPTER V.—OF THE LIABILITY OF ONE FELLOW-SERVANT TO ANOTHER.

26. One fellow-servant is liable to make compensation to another for injury caused by neglect or want of skill whilst jointly engaged on behalf of their common master.

Liability of one fellow-servant to another.

CHAPTER VI.—OF THE LIABILITY OF A MASTER TO THIRD PERSONS FOR THE ACTS OF HIS SERVANT.

27. A servant may bind his master by contracts entered into in his master's name only when the servant, if he were an agent, could bind his master if he were that agent's principal.

When servant may bind master by contract.

28. A master is ordinarily liable to make compensation for injury caused by the wrongful act or omission of his servant, if that act or omission occurred in the course and within the scope of the servant's employment And the circumstance that the act or omission was not necessary for the proper performance of the servant's duty, or was contrary to his master's orders, does not relieve the master from such liability.

Liability of master for wrongful acts of servant.

Illustrations.

(a) A, the servant of B, a pawnbroker, takes a pawn from C, and when C comes and tenders the money due to B refuses to deliver the pawn. C may sue B for compensation for A's wrongful act.

(d) A hires horses and a coachman B, from a livery stable-keeper C. B negligently drives A's carriage over D. Unless A ordered or adopted B's act, D cannot sue A for the injury caused by B, for B is the servant of C and not of A.

(f) A, the officer of a Railway Company authorized to give passengers into custody for travelling without tickets for themselves, but not for travelling without tickets for their horses, gives B into custody for travelling without a ticket for his horses. B cannot sue the Company for compensation for A's act, for A acted beyond the scope of his employment.

(g) A hires B as his washerman and C as his coachman. B bringing home A's clothes meets C driving A's carriage and, owing to C's want of ordinary care, is knocked down and injured. B may sue A for compensation.

(h) A collision occurs between two steamboats, one belonging to X and commanded by his servant, the other belonging to Y and commanded by his servant. The collision is caused by the negligence of both commanders. Any passenger in either steamboat may sue X or Y, or both, for compensation for personal injury suffered in the collision.

29. Nothing in section 28 shall render a master responsible for injury caused by his servant's default—

(b) where the master has been obliged by law to employ the servant;

(c) where the master is a public servant and the servant is in his employment as such;

(d) where the person injured by the default is a fellow-servant of the wrong-doer jointly engaged on behalf of the master in the same operation, and the master had used his best endeavours to ensure that the wrong-doer was a person of ordinary skill and care.

30. For the purposes of section 28 and section 29, persons expressly or impliedly permitted by another person to act as his servants without remuneration are servants of such person.

Volunteers.

CHAPTER VII.—OF THE LIABILITY OF A SERVANT TO THIRD PERSONS FOR ACTS DONE ON BEHALF OF HIS MASTER.

Servant when bound by contract in master's name.

A domestic servant is bound by such contracts only where he has entered into them without his master's authority.

32. Where a servant, acting on behalf of his master, does a wrongful act to a third person, the servant is liable to be sued as a principal by such third person for compensation for the injury caused by such act. But where a servant (other than a public servant) is guilty of negligence only, no such liability arises, except in the case provided for by section 26. Public servants guilty of negligence are liable to be sued by the persons injured thereby for compensation for such injury.

Servant when liable to third person for wrongful act.

CHAPTER VIII.—OF FORMS.

33. Subject to the power conferred on the High Courts by the Code of Civil Procedure, section 639, and by the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth of Victoria, chapter 104, section 15, the forms set forth in the second schedule hereto annexed, with such variation as the circumstances of each case require, shall be used for the respective purposes therein mentioned.

Use of forms in second schedule.

Failure to perform work on account of which servant has received an advance.

If the Magistrate after hearing such evidence as the parties may adduce is satisfied of the truth of the complaint, he shall, at the option of the master, order the servant, on or before such day as the Magistrate directs, either

(a) to repay the money advanced or such part thereof as the Magistrate thinks fit, or

(b) to execute the work according to the terms of the contract.

If the servant fails to comply with either of such orders, the Magistrate may sentence him to imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months, or, when the order is for repayment of a sum of money, for such term or until such sum is sooner repaid.

Where the Magistrate makes an order under clause (b) of this section, he may also, at the master's request, require the servant to enter into a recognizance, with sufficient security for the due performance of the order; and in default of his entering into such recognizance, or furnishing such security to the satisfaction of the Magistrate, may sentence him to imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months.

35. Any Magistrate may enquire into and decide disputes as to wages, hire of carriage, and price of work between any masters and their servants employed in the construction of any railway, canal or other public work sanctioned by Government: Provided that the amount in dispute does not exceed two hundred rupees.

Disputes between masters and workmen on railways, &c.

Cases under this section shall be dealt with, so far as may be, in accordance with the Code of Civil Procedure. But there shall be no appeal against the decision in any such case.

When the Magistrate has heard and decided the case, he shall make an order for the payment, immediately or within such time as he directs, of such sum of money (if any) as appears to him to be justly due, and such sum shall be recoverable as if it were a fine.

36. Whoever contracts to work for a specified term on any such railway, canal or other public work, or to execute any specific work in connection therewith, and who wilfully and without sufficient excuse neglects or refuses to perform such contract, shall be liable, on conviction before a Magistrate, to a fine not exceeding twenty rupees.

Punishment for breach of contract to work for fixed term on railway, &c.

But the Magistrate may, at the request of the master, instead of punishing the servant so neglecting or refusing, order him by himself or another to execute the work according to the terms of his contract; and if he fail to comply with such order, the Magistrate may sentence him to imprisonment for a term which may extend to two months.

Power to order performance of contract.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to amend and codify the law governing the relation of Master and Servant. The want of a compact and definite system of law upon this subject has long been felt. This want, it is hoped, will be supplied by the present Bill. The Bill is based mainly upon the English law; but a few deviations from that law have been made; and some provisions have been adopted from the Prussian and New York Codes. The Bill, further, contains provisions for the registration of domestic servants. A desire for legislation in this direction has, at various times, been strongly expressed in many quarters; and it is hoped that the rules in the present Bill upon this subject will be found effective in practice. In substance they have been mainly taken from the Ceylon Ordinance No. 28 of 1871, which is now successfully in operation at Colombo.

The Bill is divided into ten chapters.

Preliminary.

Chapter I contains the usual preliminary matter, and saves the provisions of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, as to compensation. The Acts relating to emigrant labourers and merchant seamen are also saved.

The Contract of Service.

Chapter II deals with the contract of service, which it defines so as to include contracts of service of every description. A domestic servant is also defined as one "who contracts to do household work within his master's house or compound." This definition is made wider in its terms than the definition of the corresponding class of servants in English law, in order to include table servants and others who, in this country, do not usually sleep in their master's house. It declares that every person competent to contract may enter into a contract of service; and supplies an omission of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, section 11, by providing that a minor may enter into such a contract, but that it cannot be enforced against him. It declares that in the absence of express provision on that head, the servant's remuneration shall be presumed to be that ordinarily paid at the time and place of contract to servants of the same class. It provides that in the absence of express provisions as to the term of service and the mode of terminating the contract, it shall be presumed that (a) a domestic servant is hired for a month, and the contract is terminable by fifteen days' notice or payment or tender of fifteen days' wages; (b) a servant of a higher class is hired for a year, and the contract is terminable by three months' notice or payment or tender of three months' wages; and (c) a merely mechanical or agricultural servant hired by piecework is hired for no specific time, and the contract is terminable by notice at the will of either party. The provision for the termination of the contract in the case of domestic servants is drawn from Bengal Regulation VII of 1819. Section 9 sets forth the events which terminate a contract of service; and section 10 provides for the case in which both parties, after the termination of the contract, continue the relation, by directing that it shall then be presumed that the contract has been renewed for the same wages and term of service.

The rights of the Master and the duties of the Servant.

Chapter III defines the master's rights and the servant's duties. It provides for compensation to the master for the wilful refusal of the servant to enter the service. It declares the duties of the servant after entering the service; amongst these duties attention may be directed to (d) that of being respectful to his master and, if a domestic servant, to the members of his master's family; (e) the servant's liability as a bailee for his master's property entrusted to him; (f) his duty to indemnify his master for liabilities to compensate for injury caused by the servant's wrongful act or omission; (g) his obligation to endeavour to protect his master against wrongful acts or omissions of his fellow-servants; (h) his liability to account for his master's money or goods received by him, and to deliver up as soon as possible, everything he receives on his master's account; and (i) which forbids a servant to set up an adverse title to his master's property, unless the master's title accrued fraudulently or wrongfully or under an avoided contract. These provisions, which are somewhat wider in their scope than the English law, include, it is believed, all the proper duties of a servant. In section 13 there is an express provision, adopted from the New York Civil Code, which declares the master entitled to the whole time of his household servants, and such portion as is customary of the time of his other servants. This provision, it is conceived, is in accordance with the present law. By section 14 the punishment in any shape of servants by their master is forbidden, except for the purpose of maintaining discipline on board merchant vessels. But contracts, under which a master may in certain events withhold part of his servant's wages, will not be rendered illegal. Section 15 describes the cases in which the servant may be discharged. These cases include habitually negligent conduct; conduct or claims likely to be materially injurious to the master; incompetence; permanent disability from illness; imprisonment; breaches of the duties above referred to under section 12; gross moral misconduct or reasonable belief by the master of such misconduct; and the discovery by the master of such misconduct of the servant as would have led the master not to employ him. Section 16 provides for compensation being made to the master by any one knowingly depriving the master of his servant's services, by enticing away, harbouring or detaining the servant; injuring him by acts punishable under chapters XIV and XVI of the Penal Code (relating to offences affecting the public health, &c., and the human body); or, in the case of a female servant, by seducing her. In this latter case the Bill departs, usefully it is thought, from English law by requiring on the part of the seducer knowledge of the master's rights. This section also lays down the usual rules for ascertaining the amount of compensation to be awarded in the cases provided for by this section; and section 17 provides that the master may waive his right to such compensation, and sue for the wages earned by the servant while employed by the wrong-doer. This section also provides for the master's recovering any wages earned by his servant during time belonging to his master, unless the master has waived this right. Section 18 declares that a master is not entitled to be compensated for injuries caused by third persons, when his own servant, acting as such, has by his negligence contributed to cause such injuries.

The rights of the Servant and the duties of the Master.

Chapter IV contains correlative provisions to those of chapter III, and defines the servant's rights and the master's duties. It provides that the master shall compensate a competent servant for refusing to receive him into his service; and gives the servant an option of suing immediately upon the refusal, or of awaiting the time for the commencement of the service. The master's obligations are described in section 20. These include, as well as the obligations to retain and pay the servant, an express duty to indemnify him for liability incurred in obeying his master's lawful orders, or orders which the master's conduct induced the servant to believe lawful. These obligations also include the duty of compensating the servant for injury done by the master; and the last two clauses prescribe that the master must endeavour to provide properly qualified fellow-servants, and must take all reasonable precautions to protect his servant when employed in dangerous work. Section 21 declares the servant entitled to compensation in case of breach of the duties described in the last two clauses, provided that he could not by ordinary care have avoided the injury, and that at the time of the injury he had no reason to believe the breach had been committed. In section 22 a new provision is introduced which seems consonant with justice, which has recently been recommended by the Railway Accidents Commissioners, and which entitles a servant to compensation from the master for injuries caused by a breach of the last two clauses of section 20, when the injury is caused by the negligence of a foreman having the control of the work, or the management of apparatus employed in the work, in performing which the injury is caused. Section 23 declares a servant wrongfully discharged entitled to compensation for such discharge, and contains rules for such compensation. The servant has, by section 24, a right to determine any contract of service at any time for a wilful or permanent breach by his master of his obligations; or if the master commits against the servant an offence punishable under the chapters of the Penal Code relating to the human body, property, defamation and criminal intimidation, &c.; or if the servant is prevented by permanent illness, or other cause over which he has no control, from fulfilling his contract. It is declared by section 25 that, in the case of a servant wrongfully discharged, or whose contract is terminated under section 24, or by the death of either party, the wages are payable for the period of actual service; and that such wages, in the absence of express agreement to the contrary, shall be deemed to accrue due from day to day. This provision will prevent the hardship which frequently arises, under English law, to a servant who, without fault of his own, has not completed his term of service, and who therefore gets nothing for the time he has served.

Liability of fellow-servants.

Chapter V consists of a single section, which provides that one fellow-servant shall compensate another for injury caused by his neglect or want of skill in the common employ. This is in accordance with the Scotch law, and, it seems, with justice; but the American law and, it would appear, the English law also, is otherwise.

Liability of Master to third persons for his Servant's acts.

Chapter VI renders a master liable upon contracts made by his servant in cases when his servant could bind him if the servant were his agent. It declares (section 28) that a master is ordinarily liable for the wrongful acts or omissions of his servant in the course and within the scope of his employment; although such act or omission was not necessary for the performance of the servant's duty, or was contrary to his master's orders. This section will, it is hoped, remove the uncertainty which has prevailed on this subject. Illustration (h) to this section is intended to get rid of the strange doctrine as to the identification of passengers by public conveyances with the persons conducting those conveyances (Thorogood v. Bryan, 8 C. B. 115). Section 29 saves the master from responsibility in the case of (a) contributory negligence of the person injured; (b) compulsory employment, as in the case of pilots; (c) the servants of public servants; and (d) fellow-servants, where the master has performed his duty in properly choosing the wrong-doer. By section 30 volunteers are included in the provisions of sections 28 and 29; and there appears to be no reason that, because they are unpaid, they should be otherwise placed on any different footing from paid servants.

The liability of a Servant to third persons for acts done on behalf of his Master.

Chapter VII provides that a servant, other than a domestic servant, is liable on contracts entered into in his master's name, only when he would be personally liable if he were an agent; and that a domestic servant is liable on contracts unauthorized by his master. This latter provision is inserted because the general rule laid down by the section would impose too great a liability upon servants of this class. The wrongful acts of a servant acting on behalf of his master done to persons not in the service of his master, are provided for by section 32. The servant is liable to the injured person for such acts, but not for negligence, except in the case of public servants.

Forms.

Chapter VIII provides simple forms of plaints and written statements for most of the suits which will lie under the proposed enactment.

Jurisdiction of Magistrates in disputes between Master and Servant.

Chapter IX incorporates the provisions of Act XIII of 1859 (to provide for the punishment of breaches of contract by Artificers, Workmen, and Labourers in certain cases) and those of Act IX of 1860 (to make provision for the speedy determination of certain disputes between workmen engaged in Railway and other public works and their employers), and gives the Presidency Magistrates and all other Magistrates duly empowered jurisdiction to entertain complaints of the kind specified.

The registration of domestic servants.

Chapter X authorizes the Local Government to establish, by notification, a Servants' Registration Office for any local area, and to provide for the working of such offices. It requires every master of domestic servants, residing in the local area, within one month of the publication of such notification, to send a list of the names of his servants, the capacity in which they are employed, and the date of entering his service. Every such servant must within three months of such publication attend personally before the Registrar, and furnish him with such information as he may require for the purposes of the Act. The servant is then to be registered, full particulars relating to him and his service being recorded.

The servant is also to be provided with a pocket-register containing the same details. Provision is made in case of the determination, otherwise than by death, of the service of any servant mentioned in the list above mentioned. In such case the master must furnish the Registrar with a memorandum of the date and cause of such termination, unless the servant has previously obtained his pocket-register The Registrar is required to register any applicant desirous of becoming a domestic servant and whom he has reason to believe fit; he is also required to register full particulars as to his person, and the names and residences of any persons who certify to his respectability. A pocket-register is to be thereupon issued to the applicant. The Registrar must refuse to register the applicant if he has not reason to believe him fit to become a domestic servant. He must also refuse to register certain reputed criminals and bad characters. No person may after three months from the publication of the notification under this chapter, hire a domestic servant who fails to produce his pocket-register, or whose pocket-register does not record the termination of his last previous contract of service, if any. The master hiring a registered servant must require him to produce his pocket-register, and must enter therein the date of his contract of service, and the capacity in which he is employed. Similarly the master must, if the service is terminated otherwise than by death, enter the date and cause of such termination, and the servant's character, in his pocket-register; or he may refuse to give the servant a character, or to state the cause of such termination; but he must in that case sign and send to the Registrar a memorandum of his reasons for so refusing. He must also report to the Registrar if he is unable to make such entry as before mentioned through the failure of the servant to produce his pocket-register. The chapter then provides for the attendance of servants at the Registrar's Office for the purpose of having the subsequent entries in their pocket-registers recorded in the general register; for the production of such pocket-registers to the Police, and for entering any conviction of the servant therein. This last provision is taken from the Prussian Landrecht. The chapter then provides for the registration of the commencement or termination of any service of a registered servant which takes place within any local area for which a Servants' Registration Office has not been established. Such registration is to be made at the nearest Police-station, and information thereof sent to the Registrar of the local area in which the servant was registered. Provision is made for the issue of duplicate pocket-registers in case the originals are lost or worn out. The chapter then provides penalties for breaches of the obligations which it imposes. Penalties are also provided for false information by a servant; for secreting, destroying, &c., the pocket-register; fraudulent use, receipt or delivery of a pocket-register; issuing or signing a false pocket-register or entry; and knowingly using a false pocket-register. A small fee will be charged for registration and entries in the register. And servants born in Europe, America or Australasia are exempted from the operation of this chapter.
